City Council Okays Relaxing Blue Laws

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council, in a split vote Thursday night, approved an amendment to the much-discussed Sunday Blue Law that will permit the sale of some items, including those of personal hygiene, that were banned from Sunday marketing in the past.

The anticipated public hearing debate between proponents and opponents of the city's "Sunday Observance" ordinance, which seemed likely several months ago when the issue surfaced, never really materialized as the matter took only a few minutes to dispose of.

The amendment, taken from the Wilmington ordinance, covers three matters. In one instance, Section 29-2 (a) of the City Code is amended by adding a new sub-section reading, "Sporting goods and toys."

Also, Section 29 is amended by adding a new section reading, "Emergencies. Emergency repairs, services, and sale of materials and part incident thereto are permitted on Sunday."

The third item involves an amendment to Section Three of Chapter 29 adding a new section which reads: "Exceptions. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this ordinance, the following items may be sold: Items of personal hygiene and items of medicinal and therapeutic necessity, ladies' hose, picnic supplies, flashlights and flashlight batteries, and household maintenance supplies."

The Council was not in agreement as to the adoption of the amendment and new member, the Rev. William Hadden, called for the total abolishment of the Blue Law, saying he has had a "change of mind" since the original ordinance was adopted.

Councilman John Howard offered the motion to approve the amendment and Councilman Joe Taft Jr. provided the second. Voting in favor of the measure with Howard and Taft was Councilman Clarence Gray while members Hadden, Mrs. Mildred McGrath and Dr. Frank Fuller opposed the action.

Mayor Percy Cox, voting to break the tie, cast his vote in favor of the amendment, explaining that, "I have let it be known I am in favor of the Blue Law."

Hadden, discussing his position, said that he was on the committee that drafted the original ordinance but since then has changed his mind as to the regulation of sales activity on Sunday.

The Councilman said that no one should attempt to control the behavior of the community and it is up to the individual citizen to decide how he should spend his Sunday. Hadden, saying he viewed the Blue Law question with "mixed emotions," said he feels the law as it stood was "almost unenforceable."

Mrs. McGrath contended, "There is no one left who doesn't know how I feel." She said the issue should be a business decision.

Howard observed that he was also a party to the drafting of the first ordinance. He said that at the last meeting, he voted not to repeal the ordinance and "I still feel that way." Howard added that he feels, however, that the old ordinance is not workable and the amendment could make it work.

Gray said the amended version is "more extensive than the one we have" and "I'm willing to give it a try." He noted that many people have questioned the selling of beer on Sunday but he pointed out that it is a state regulated action.

Following the vote on the amendment, Mrs. McGrath offered, "This shows that each of us vote our own convictions."

During the public hearing, only Jim Hix of 107 Heritage Street had a comment. Hix said that he did not think that amending the ordinance would clarify the problem and he added that stores will continue to be "half open, half closed."

Hix asked, "Where do you draw the line?"

The Blue Law as discussed at length during the March meeting of the Council, Fuller said then he was inclined to agree with those who proposed to let the citizens decide the matter by a referendum.

Cox noted that at meeting that the Council had received petitions with approximately 4,000 signatures asking that the Blue Law be abolished. He said that an unlimited number of letters, phone calls and visits were also received in favor of retaining the ordinance.

Four Year Terms For Councilmen Proposed

A public hearing has been scheduled for July 8 by the City Council on an ordinance amending the city charter to provide for four-year staggered terms for members of the governing board.

The Council, meeting Thursday evening, adopted a "Resolution of Intent" to consider the ordinance and set the July regular meeting as the date for the hearing.

The resolution points out that the amendment proposes "that at the regular municipal election to be held in 1977, the three candidates who receive the highest number of votes shall be elected for four-year terms, while the three candidates who receive the next highest number of votes shall be elected for two-year terms."

It further states, "Beginning at the regular municipal election to be held in 1979, and every two years thereafter, three members of the City Council shall be elected to serve for four-year terms. Beginning at the regular municipal election to be held in 1981, and every two years thereafter, three members of the City Council shall be elected to serve for four-year terms."

Following the public hearing on the proposed ordinance, it was pointed out, the Council will consider passage of the measure at its regular meeting on Aug. 5.

Mayor Percy Cox noted that the proposal for four-year terms came up when the Council consisted of only four members. He said it was felt that with the members serving for only two years, a new councilman would still be learning the position when he had to begin running for reelection again.

The major would still run for reelection every two years as under the present system. Cox said that he feels the four-year staggered terms would be beneficial to the city.

Councilman John Howard said that when the idea of making office tenures four years was brought up, it was the opinion that adding two additional positions on the Council was enough of a change at that time.

Howard offered the motion to adopt the resolution and the motion passed with only Clarence Gray voting in opposition.

In other business during an active business session, the Council accepted the bid of Dominick Motor Co. in the amount of $96,000 and awarded the contract for the purchase of four diesel powered transit vehicles.

The Council also voted to consider an ordinance at the July meeting awarding the local Cable Television franchise to Tar River Cable Television Inc.

City Manager Jim Caldwell said that a proposal was received from the firm seeking the franchise, which was advertised for bids following the May meeting. Caldwell said that the firm's proposal for the franchise was in accordance with franchise provisions and he saw no reason why it should not be granted to the business.

According to the city manager, Tar River Cable Television is currently building a cable television system in Rocky Mount and has the franchise for a system in Tarboro.

Humphrey Might Change Mind, Run If Carter Falts Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Sep. Hubert H. Humphrey says he'll reassess his position against actively campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination after Tuesday's primary elections in Ohio, California and New Jersey.

If Jimmy Carter, the present front-runner in the race for Democratic nominating delegates, comes out of those primaries with fewer than 1,200 to 1,300 committed delegates, Humphrey said Thursday, he will begin testing the sentiments of party leaders about mounting an active campaign for himself.

Carter, whom Humphrey said has "lost a lot of his zip," was not immediately available for comment.

On the Republican side, meanwhile, the California Poll, released today, said Ronald Reagan has substantially widened his lead over President Ford in the latest survey of Republican voters planning to cast ballots in next Tuesday's election.

Reagan leads Ford by 24 percentage points, 56 to 32 per cent, with 12 per cent undecided, in the nonpartisan poll taken earlier in the week by Mervin D. Field. In a poll taken a month ago, Reagan led Ford by 10 percentage points — 49 to 39 per cent with 12 per cent undecided. In March, Ford led Reagan by five percentage points in the sampling by the independent, statewide survey.

Among Democrats interviewed in the same poll, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. had more support for his party's presidential nomination than all his rivals combined with 51 per cent. Carter got 20 per cent, the poll said.

The winner of the Republican primary gets all 167 of the state's delegates. In the Democratic primary, 280 delegates are distributed under a proportional system weighted in favor of the winner and second-place finisher.

Reagan said Thursday in California that his earlier statements on keeping peace in racially divided Rhodesia had been misunderstood.

He said he wants to achieve peace in the African nation — not start a war involving American troops. But an aide to the former California governor denied Reagan was backing away from earlier comments.

"Reagan is saying, as part of peace-keeping after mediation, then perhaps we might send a token contingent to help maintain that peace," Jim Lake, the GOP candidate's press secretary, said Thursday.

Reagan said in a news conference Thursday on San Francisco's Nob Hill, "I made the mistake of trying to answer a hypothetical question with a hypothetical answer."

President Ford, asked Thursday about Reagan's comment on Rhodesia, said in Washington he does not believe it would be necessary to send U.S. troops to southern Africa because peace in the region can be won through diplomacy and negotiation.

Leaders of a move to draft Humphrey announced Wednesday they had contacted nearly 400 uncommitted convention delegates and "the overwhelming majority have indicated a preference for Sen. Humphrey."

Humphrey had said previously he would not enter any primaries but would be available for a draft if one developed.

Noting that Carter has over 900 officially committed delegates, Humphrey said, "Carter has a significant lead now. If he came out of the next three primaries with a substantial number of delegates, he'd be in a position" to win.

Two Arrested In Bank Robbery

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Two men who slipped through a police dragnet after a bank robbery surrendered late Thursday and were charged in the incident, the FBI reported today.

Eddie Mitchell Brown, 22, and Alonza Brown, 20, no relation, were charged with bank robbery early today, an FBI spokesman confirmed.

The two Williamston men were arrested without incident at the home of Eddie Brown's father shortly before 11 p.m., about six hours after an armed robbery at the Martin Plaza shopping center branch of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., authorities said.

Police said a bandit with a long-barrelled gun held up the bank and escaped with an undisclosed amount in a car in which a second man was waiting. The two men switched cars a short distance away as police pursued them.

The two abandoned the car in a wooded area about 10 miles from Williamston, but managed to escape as police using search dogs closed in on the area after nightfall.

A police spokesman said today that officers traced one of the cars to the home of Eddie Brown's father, who met officers at the door and said the two men wanted to surrender.

A rifle believed used in the robbery was found in the wooded area but the money was not recovered, the spokesman said.

Hays May Face Justice Suit

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is considering filing a civil suit against Rep. Wayne Hays in an effort to recover public money paid to Elizabeth Ray, who claims she was on the government payroll to serve as the Ohio Democrat's mistress, an informed source says.

The source said Thursday the Justice Department's civil division is weighing the possibility of filing the suit, which would be handled independently of the department's criminal investigation of Hays.

Meanwhile, another source revealed that Miss Ray is claiming to have had relationships with congressmen besides Hays. This source, asked about a published report that Miss Ray claimed bedroom encounters with 15 members of Congress, said:

"That's the correct order of magnitude. By that, I mean it's less than the capacity of a football stadium and greater than zero."

Hays bowed to pressure of his colleagues Thursday and announced he would step down from one of the two leadership posts he holds until the completion of investigations into his relationship with Miss Ray.

Miss Ray, 33, says she was placed on the payroll of Hays' House Administration Committee at $14,000 a year, but that her only duty was to be Hays' mistress. Hays has denied the allegation, but admits having a "personal relationship" with the shapely blonde.

The 65-year-old congressman, reading a prepared statement, said he would temporarily give up chairmanship of the Democratic campaign committee, which disburses funds to party House candidates, until investigations into his conduct are completed.

Several colleagues said Hays probably will step down as chairman of the Administration Committee after the Ohio primary next week.

Justice Department attorneys examining a possible civil suit against Hays were said to be eyeing the federal False Claims Act as a possible vehicle for the suit. The source said it is possible the lawyers could decide to file such a suit against Miss Ray as well.

The False Claims Act allows the government to collect double the amount of any money the government lost, plus $2,000 in penalties.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments Thursday: —The House ethics committee met behind closed doors to discuss new names mentioned in the scandal.

Ethics panel chairman John J. Flynn said he expects Hays to testify, but said, "I don't intend to call him the day of his primary."

—President Ford avoided commenting on the fact that his official photographer, David Kennerly, once dated Miss Ray. Ford answered one question about politics as he was leaving his office, but walked away when a reporter tried to ask about Kennerly and Miss Ray.

—A Democratic House leader predicted that if Hays does not voluntarily give up the Administration Committee post, Democrats will oust him at their June 16 caucus. The Democrat said Hays "won't have 30 votes" to count on. There are 287 Democrats in the House.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

OUT OF FLORIDA

May 13 Hotline published an item about the N. C. Society of Poets, which has been advertising in this area for aspiring poets to submit material. Our reader told us that his students all received "pitches" for $25 to have something published in some future publication of the Society.

Hotline has now been told by the N. C. Attorney General's Office that the "N.C. Society" actually has only a mail drop and answering service in Winston Salem, which is given in the ads as headquarters of the Society. The firm is based "on the southern tip of Florida," says Stephanie Fountain of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division. She says the Attorney General's office has contacted the firm and the firm has said it will not advertise in North Carolina any more this year. The planned publication has not been published yet, a spokesman for the firm told the Attorney General's office.

Ms. Fountain said the Attorney General believes there is little hope of retrieving people's money, as the operation seems to be "borderline legal." Any N. C. citizen who has had dealings with the company is welcome to make the Consumer Protection Division aware of it, she said. The address is Box 629, Raleigh, N. C. 27602.

Reid Quits As City Attorney

The resignation of David E. Reid Jr. as city attorney was accepted "with regret" by the City Council last evening, effective June 30, 1976.

The Council unanimously approved the appointment of local attorney A. Louis Singleton to the post held by Reid for the past 11 years.

In his letter of resignation to Mayor Percy Cox, Reid wrote, "As I have previously advised you and the members of the Council, I have found that the increasing demands upon the office of the city attorney along with the ever increasing demands of my private law practice have come to the point where I must make a choice between the two."

Reid continued, "When Fred Mattox and I merged our law practices in 1974, I realized then it would be only a matter of time before the demands of my private practice would make it impossible for me to serve as city attorney and at the same time continue to render adequate service to my private clients."

He pointed out in his letter, "As you know I am prohibited on ethical grounds from representing any citizen who has a matter pending before the city nor can I represent any person who is arrested by an officer of the city. This prohibition extends to the three other lawyers who are in my firm as well."

Reid recalled the "significant events" during the past 11 years, "including the appeal to the Supreme Court of North Carolina in the challenge to our Sunday Observance ordinance in 1966, the numerous cases in Federal Court growing out of the challenges to our parading and picketing ordinance in the demonstrations during the late 1960's, and of course the challenge to our Central Business District Project which also had to go to the Supreme Court of our state."

The attorney, who served with five previous City Councils during his tenure as the city's top legal officer, said that his resignation was effective the end of the current fiscal year on June 30.

Cox, who has served with Reid during the past 11 years, also expressed his regret at the attorney's decision.

Six Accidents On Thursday

More than $7,500 property damage resulted from a series of six traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 5:10 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial and Country Club Drives involving cars driven by Reginald Franklin Clark of 231 Country Club Dr. and David Lee Adams of 804 Bancroft Ave.

Police, who charged Clark with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Clark car and $1,800 to the Adams auto.

No charges were reported in the other five collisions, which included a 10:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and McKinley Streets which involved a parked car owned by Larry James Hardy of Route 1, Clio Marle, S. C. and a car driven by Effie Mae Barrett Reaves of 200B East Roundtree Dr.

Damage from that mishap was set at $2,000 to the Hardy car and $800 to the Reaves vehicle.

Four vehicles were involved in a 5:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street.

Drivers of the cars were listed as Russell Keith Ingram of 101C

The Angolan information ministry said the passengers included 32 Angolans, three Soviet citizens and a Hungarian.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Continuing cool weather is forecast Friday for the Northwest but seasonable temperatures are expected for most of the nation. Rain and showers are forecast from the northern Rockies to the northern Plains. Showers are expected for the Texas Panhandle, the Midwest and the Southeast. (AP Wirephoto)

It was fitting that the official Charles H. Lamm Drainage Improvement Project in Charlotte, named for an ordinary citizen who had fought for it five years, was dedicated during a heavy rain Thursday.

For despite the steady rain, Briar Creek held within its banks and didn't overflow the yards of Lamm and his neighbors.

That rain, and other early June showers, have gladdened North Carolina farmers.

"Corn is looking good and tobacco is starting to grow," says Carl Cross, state agricultural statistician. "Cotton is ahead of time and probably coming up.

Pastures are reviving." A bridge over the Watauga River near Boone washed out early Thursday, stranding 15 persons at a campground. Eleven persons in four homes, and four out-of-state campers, were cut off when one-end of the 50-foot, one-lane wooden bridge washed out.

Mrs. Claude Moretz, whose husband manages the camp, said plenty of food was available and there was no danger. It was possible to get out by hiking, if necessary, she added.

It will continue unseasonably cool over the weekend. Scattered rain fell today and will do so Saturday. Highs were in the 60s today, with some low 70s in the southeast. The southeast had another brush with severe weather Thursday. A funnel cloud was reported near Cherry Point. Thunderstorms dropped almost five inches of rain at New Bern. No injuries or major damage have been reported.

Rainfall was mostly under one-half inch in the mountains. Some sections of the northwest mountains did have between one and two inches. East of the mountains, between one and three inches of rain was general.

Cool northeast to east winds, plus the rain and thick clouds, held maximum temperatures to mostly in the 60s Thursday. Some places reached their highs in the forenoon instead of the afternoon.

There were some low to mid 70s in southeast counties and on the Outer Banks.

Terrorist Work Is Isolated

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP) — Terrorist attacks on U.S. military installations in West Germany this week are isolated outbreaks of anti-Americanism in a country that supports the presence of U.S. forces here, according to random interviews and recent opinion surveys.

"I reject violence against Americans and institutions," a 35-year-old real estate salesman told a reporter. "I am very glad U.S. troops are stationed here. I have had only positive experiences with them."

Time bombs exploded in a shopping area and officers' club at the Frankfurt headquarters of the U.S. Army's 5th Corps Tuesday. Fifteen American soldiers and a West German were wounded. A group of anarchists claimed it was responsible for the attack on what it called the "U.S. imperialist occupation army."

The next day somebody cut through the fence at an American air base 25 miles west of Frankfurt and set fire to two trucks.

German politicians and newspapers condemned the attacks, which raised fears of a renewal of the urban guerrilla terrorism that swept West Germany in the early 1970s.

Interior Minister Werner Maier called the bombing a "low deed" motivated by "pseudo-political" ideas. Telmut Kohl, leader of the conservative Christian Democratic party, sent a letter of regret to the U.S. Army. The Hesse state government offered a $20,000 reward for information leading to the capture of the bombers.

"The objective of the terrorists is unquestionably to bomb the nation into a revolutionary situation, upset the police and cause the state to over-react and thus discredit it," the newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung of Munich commented.

Margot Rieger, 26, a Frankfurt secretary, said she disapproved of the bombing but also opposed the presence of the 200,000 U.S. troops in West Germany.

"I don't particularly like American soldiers here," she said. "They are loud and boastful. But this is no reason to throw bombs into their houses." However, polls show that the West Germans overwhelmingly favor having U.S. troops on their soil as a deterrent to the Soviet bloc. A recent survey by Stern Magazine showed that 49 per cent regard the United States as their country's best friend, rating it ahead of Common Market partners.

"Our experience is that the Germans are happy to have us here," said Col. Erik G. Johnson Jr., chief of public affairs for the U.S. Army in Europe. "There are no German newspapers urging U.S. troops to get out of Germany."

Brother Is Slain

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — The bodies of two brothers have been found in separate but apparently related incidents in western North Carolina and law enforcement authorities acknowledge they were slain in apparent gangland style.

The body of a man identified as Alfred Connard Greene, 32, of North Wilkesboro, was found lying in the trunk of his car Thursday but it was not immediately determined how he had been killed, or when, authorities said.

Greene had been missing since Monday. Authorities said his car was parked on an unpaved mountain road less than a mile off Highway 421 east of Boone.

His younger brother, Edward Lee Greene, 20, of Rt. 5, Boone, was found stabbed and shot to death in his van Wednesday.

Fiscal Management Is Theme Of James Green

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
James C. Green, Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives and a candidate for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor, spoke at a breakfast held for him this morning.

Green, who spoke at a meeting of the Winterville Kiwanis Club in Winterville last night, told the breakfast gathering this morning that "we're in this race for lieutenant governor because we feel we have something to offer..." stressing the fact that the state needs sound fiscal management.

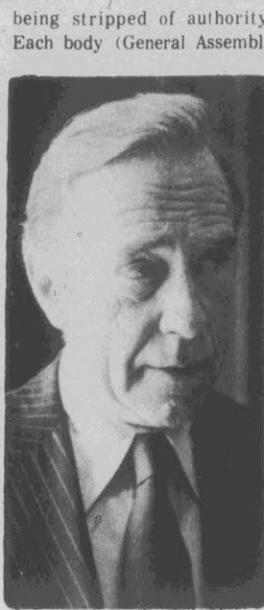

The candidate, from Clarkton, pointed out that the present administration had a $300 million surplus when it took office in 1973. He noted that in light of the states financial position, the General Assembly, acting on recommendations from the Base Budget Committee which he appointed to seek out ways to reduce spending for continuing programs that were not of great benefit to the states residents, cut $129 million from the continuation budget for the coming fiscal year.

Green, who has served eight terms in the General Assembly said when first elected in 1961, the state budget totaled $1.3 billion. "Now it's $6.8 billion," he explained.

"I'm saying to you, you need a businessman... you need people who have had some experience..." to lead the state.

Green said as far as he was concerned, the question of fiscal management is the top issue of the campaign. He noted, "All I ask you to do is search the record of my 16 years in Raleigh" and vote for the candidate with the best record.

Commenting on the move by law makers last month which stripped the lieutenant governor's power to make committee appointments, Green said "I have never viewed that (the lieutenant governors post) as an office of power. It's strictly a question of leadership," he said. "I don't have any real fear of being stripped of authority. Each body (General Assembly session) establishes its own rules of operation," Green said, indicating that the 1977 General Assembly may restore the appointive power to the lieutenant governor.

A supporter of university status for East Carolina University and a backer of the ECU School of Medicine, Green said too, that "education is still a big issue in North Carolina. Seventy five per cent of tax revenue is spent in the name of education."

"There is a lot of anxiety" on the part of parents and others "about the quality of education." People, according to Green, are interested in "improving educational opportunities for our youth."

Expressing his support for improved educational programs, Green said "schools should come back around toward the basics."

Rain Continues Thursday Night

Scattered showers continued in Pitt County Thursday evening and Friday morning. The rainfall was measured at .66 inches at midnight Thursday, according to the Greenville Utilities with a total of 2.38 inches of rainfall since Wednesday at midnight. The river level measured 5.2 feet and rising Friday morning according to the National Weather Service river level chart.

Temperatures were cooler during the rain storm Thursday the high temperature was measured at 67 degrees and the low temperature was recorded at 59 degrees, according to Greenville Utilities. The Friday 8 a.m. temperature was recorded at 60 degrees and raining.

The cooler temperatures and continuous rainfall has not damaged the crops in the Pitt County area as of yet, according to Pitt County Agriculture Extension Agent, Ed Yancey. "We have had no reports of drowning of crops as of yet. If the rainfall continues over the weekend there may be a problem of leaching of nitrogen which would make re-fertilization necessary and there may be a possibility of drowning," Yancey said.

Bridal Couples Shop Together

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Doreen Freeman and her fiancé, Bruce Kaye, are shopping together for most household items to use after their wedding next November.

"He has a lot to say about what I pick, enough to make me change my mind if he's really dead set against something," Miss Freeman said.

The 24-year-old bride-to-be from Venice, Calif., represents what bridal registry managers and bridal consultants say is a growing trend.

Past generations of brides shopped for home furnishings with their mothers or girl friends. Now they bring along their fiancés instead.

"The bridegroom usually voices his opinion, and most grooms don't like flowers and frills, so these things are on the way out," says Marlene Alexander, bridal consultant for a major Los Angeles store.

In a spot check by UPI of shops and stores in widely scattered American cities, only one registry manager, Jan Pringle of Dallas, said the majority of brides-to-be shop alone. But when they are accompanied, it's more often by their fiancés than their mothers, she said.

The typical no-frills male point of view shows up in the choice of casual china instead of traditional and more expensive table settings.

Yet demand for both casual and formal dinnerware, silver and crystal persists in the south, and is making a comeback in cities such as Los Angeles and New York.

Miss Alexander said brides there are returning to formal china, even in patterns that sell for $50 per place setting. She said they also choose casual designs in stoneware for everyday use.

Mary Abby, manager of the bridal gift registry for a New York City-based department store chain, sees a definite trend toward more casual dinnerware paralleling a slight swing back to fine china.

"Fifty per cent of the brides now want two sets of china, and those from kosher homes want three," said Ms. Abby. The third is reserved for use during Passover, according to Jewish dietary law.

Some consultants said the economic pinch apparently prompts some guests to buy less silver flatware and expensive china and crystal than they did a few years ago.

As a result, brides often finish their collections later with presents from their new husband, their parents and/or in-laws on other gift-giving occasions, Ms. Abby said.

In Atlanta, the consumer affairs manager for one department store said bridegrooms' growing interest in home furnishings reflects their interest in gourmet cooking, and the things they choose to live with.

Almost half the bridal registrants shop together, said manager Cyle Butts.

"In this area, we're still very much into fine china, silver and crystal," she said, adding that couples often choose both formal and casual articles.

"Freezer-to-oven-to-table ware is very popular, and they do register these.

"They are beginning to ask for articles safe for microwave oven use.) You see a few (microwave ovens), but most don't get into that until they have been married for awhile."

Years ago, a typical bridegroom never knew what furnishings his bride had chosen until the day of the wedding, said Diana Bynum, bridal registry manager of a Houston store. That's changed, she said, adding that Houston area brides are moving away from contemporary patterns in favor of traditional ones, especially Early American.

"Almost all brides want to know if their selections can be used in a dishwasher. I guess most expect to have a dishwasher," she said.

In Denver, a spokeswoman for a bridal registry said a bride-to-be who comes in with her fiancé initially usually finishes outfitting the kitchen herself. The spokeswoman said stainless is outselling silver, and more casual designs and multipurpose utensils are in demand.

But in the housewares department of another Denver store, Mildred Kraufe said both silver and stainless were selling well.

Terry Dufka, manager of wedding services for the Chicago division of a Chicago-based chain, said the choice of casual dinnerware reflects "more informal at-home casual elegance ... more entertaining at home with young married couples. This is partly due to the cost of going out and more of an interest in gourmet cooking (at home). This is pretty much a national trend."

Ms. Dufka said demand for multipurpose utensils-serving dishes is up because: "So many brides are working when they get married and want an easier way of keeping house."

Different Drummers Intrigue Collectors

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Vacation time is a prime period for collectors who like to browse through new shops in their perennial search for an addition to a collection.

The harder an item is to find, the more intrigued the hunters become as they peer into shop windows or store shelves for that elusive foot warmer, glass of special pattern or color, or lustre porcelain.

For career woman Terry Mayer of New York, a collection means drumbeaters. She now has 226 that range in size from one inch to 14 inches. Any object shown with a drum is fair game for her.

"But it becomes more than that. It really piques your curiosity so that you follow up every clue in learning more about your hobby," she explained in her office-apartment where she keeps her collection on numerous glass shelves.

She got into collecting innocently enough about eight years ago, she says. Thinking of herself as a drummer — she is a fashion commentator and publicist — she acquired her first drummer, a wind-up Indian, in Florida, where it had been used by a store executive to illustrate a point in a speech.

After that she was "hooked," she says. She soon found a companion for the Indian, then another, then a regiment of soldiers, and pairs of thuds, and as she says, "it all adds up."

She also began reading about drumbeating in libraries and has become so involved that she sometimes feels that "there may be some kind of happening connected with it all, but whatever is going to happen as a result of the collection hasn't happened yet," she explained.

"If only we knew the language of the drums," she goes on. "It always has been a basic form of communication among primitive societies where they used them to send messages about births, deaths, coronations and travelers in need of lodging," she explained. "When you think about it, almost everyone in the world is beating a drum for something: communicating with people gets the message across."

Her collection includes red, white and blue soldiers that march backwards in unison as they rat-a-tat, Royal Scots in kilts doing their thing, and a bi-centennial group of clothespin soldiers like those dolls made by the colonists, but her drumbeaters are not only soldiers.

They are angels — winged — winking, little and big, frogs, clowns, elephants, Russian bears, monkeys, Japanese ladies, a Snoopy, nuns and even a railroad brakeman. There is a cookie cutter drum, and one that is a puzzle, and they are in pendulum clocks, salt and pepper shakers and a bunny bank.

"But there are only eight women in the collection, which interests me. In some societies women were not allowed to play drums," she says.

Two of the women are nuns, one is a blue-jean-clad girl, another is a kabuki dancer. Although the nuns were once the tiniest in her collection — two inches high — there are now two one-inch drummers, a French girl and a colonist wearing a tricorne hat.

She has drummers made of just about everything — wood, seeds, felt, porcelain, metal pipe cleaners, plaster of Paris, crepe paper, and even an apple from Appalachia. Among the 43 countries represented are drummers from Thailand, Argentina, Ecuador, Guatemala, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia, and African drummers that wear rings around their long necks. The tallest is a 14-inch Mexican lady made of reeds, and the oldest one, from South America, is made ofoclay.

Although Miss Mayer buys drumbeaters in flea markets and has also found the United Nations' gift shop a good source, she likes to find them in the country of origin, one reason she is partial to five she acquired in Colombia.

"When I go into any store unusual ally head for a boutique where you can often find very unusual things, but I have received many from friends, the most recent a cobalt blue standing poodle from the estate of Amy Vanderbilt," she says.

Any collection of small objects exposed to view must be kept dusted, which may be the most difficult part of collecting. Few collectors will permit anyone to dust a collection, and Miss Mayer is no exception. She does it herself, so the ritual takes place only about once a month.

She has found one drummer she couldn't buy. The drummer boy is part of a stained glass window in a hotel in New Jersey.

How To Help Her Problem Drinker

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune & N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law phoned from the police station to say she had been arrested for drunk driving, so we went to get her out and drive her car home. (I'm surprised she hasn't been picked up before now.)

My husband drove her car home, and if they had given HIM a breath test, he would have been in trouble because he'd been drinking beer all day and was far from sober.

I've known that my husband has had a drinking problem for a long time, but he won't admit it, and no amount of nagging will change his mind.

He wonders why our sex life has diminished, but it's hard to be lovey dovey with a man who is drunk and unable to function half the time.

How does a woman who really loves her husband help him if he refuses to admit that he has a problem?
BLUE IN BURBANK

DEAR BLUE: She calls Al-Anon. It's a self-help group that counsels the families of alcoholics. You need to learn how to cope with problem drinkers, and Al-Anon does an excellent job. They're in your phone book. Get going and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I read about the woman whose husband destroyed all their credit cards. You said since she was employed she could have credit cards issued in her name. That's fine if she has an independent income, but what about women who are NOT employed, such as farm wives who help run the farm? Or the housewife whose work consists of keeping house and raising-the-children?

I think the Equal Opportunity Act discriminates against women who are not employed outside the home. Why not include all women and let the chips fall where they may? You gave a good answer to the working woman, but what about the rest of us?
ROBERTA

DEAR ROBERTA: If a housewife or "farm wife" has no income other than her husband's, she cannot qualify for an independent credit card. And certainly not if her husband won't pay the bills and destroys the joint cards.

Credit cards are issued on proven ability to pay. Women who are financially dependent on their husbands have no credit of their own. It may be "unfair," but it's another fact of life that needs changing.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you did a whole column on what men notice first about women. Some men said they noticed a woman's figure first, some said her face, her legs, her behind, her eyes.

Well, the first thing I notice about a woman is the size of her husband.
RON IN CORRECTIONVILLE, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: OPEN BOOK IN MICHIGAN said her sex-life was fantastic, but she found out that her husband had been blabbing about it to all the men at work.

You said: "Tell him you know he's been talking, and if he doesn't keep his big mouth shut, he's not going to have anything to talk about."

Abby, withholding sex as a form of punishment is the worst thing a wife can do!
I hope that you will reconsider and come up with a better answer.
VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

DEAR VOICE: You (and many others) misunderstood my reply. I did not recommend that the wife withhold sex from her husband to punish him. I meant that if she knows that her husband is talking about their mattress acrobatics, she's apt to become inhibited and turned off. And soon there will be nothing to talk about.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dishwasher No Longer Considered A Luxury

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Although the dishwasher was invented more than 60 years ago, throughout much of its history it has been an appliance stepchild.

It was not until the housing boom that followed World War II that the dishwasher began to find a place in the American household. Today, the dishwasher is no longer considered a luxury by a generation raised to the idea that you don't have to have your hands in scalding dishwater three times a day to prove your worth as a homemaker.

With a majority of the dishwashers installed in the '50s and early '60s now well past their prime, a booming replacement market has developed and manufacturers have been encouraged to make a host of improvements to overcome the early consumer complaints having to do with cleaning ability, operating noise and the need for pre-rinsing.

Here's a checklist of what to look for in a new undercounter dishwasher, prepared by a major appliance manufacturer:

—Good sound insulation must be sure of peace of mind. Make sure the model you buy has insulation all around, not just on the top or sides.

—Consider the type of material used for the tub interior. Metal tubs are usually stainless steel and, while chip-proof, they can later develop surface rust and even leak at the seams in extreme cases. Porcelain enamel resists surface rust and seam leaks, but can chip and rust and is difficult to repair. Plastic coatings also resist seam leaks and are chip-proof; they can be cut, but are easily repaired. New one-piece molded solid plastic tubs cannot rust, chip or peel.

—Reversible door panels simplify changing your kitchen decor. Some dishwashers come with a choice of colors.

—Look for a built-in soft-food disposer; it will eliminate most scraping and pre-rinsing. Large or hard scraps, of course, must always be removed.

—Wash time can be critical to getting dishes truly clean. Look for extended time wash cycles for use with heavily soiled pots and pans.

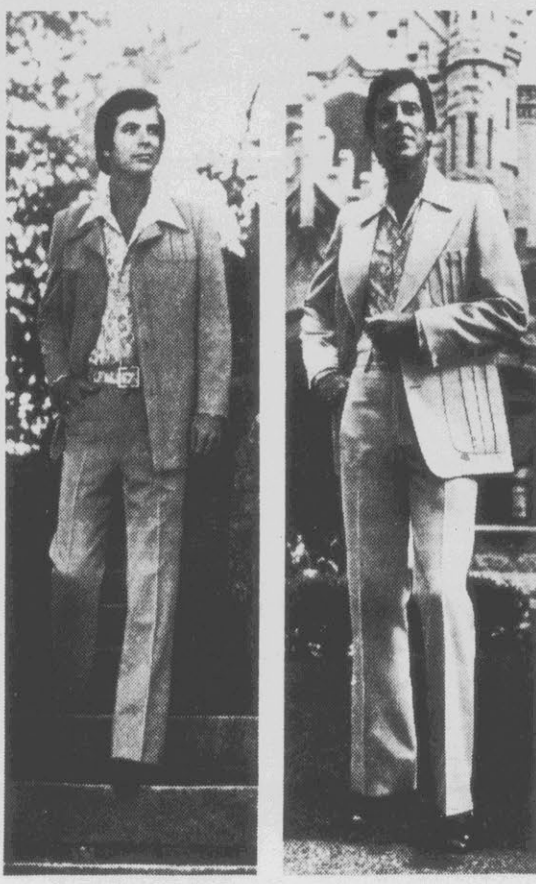

—Wash action is important to the cleaning job. Most dishwashers have either two or three sources of water action. A water source for each rack and a rinsing shower will do a thorough job.

—If energy costs are high in your community, look for a power-saver option that lets you omit the heated drying cycle, a rinse-and-hold setting, or a water and energy saving short-wash cycle, advises the Consumers Institute of General Electric and Hotpoint.

—A rinse aid dispenser is considered a necessity in hard water areas to prevent water spotting.

—Ask acquaintances who have purchased a dishwasher recently about its performance, to see if they are satisfied. Take into consideration the reputation of both the manufacturer and dealer of brands available locally.

—If at all possible, have the dealer demonstrate the operation of those models you are interested in.

Safety A Benefit To Everyone

Some 55 firms and industries of the area received safety awards from Commissioner of Labor T. Avery Nye, Jr. at a dinner Tuesday night.

Union Carbide Corp., one of the county's oldest industries was cited for having reached the two millionth man hour without a disabling injury.

We are also modestly proud that The Daily Reflector joined Union Carbide in receiving one of the two 11-year safety awards.

Industries and businesses in our area have been putting increased emphasis on safety measures for their workers in recent years. This is due in part to the Federal safety act, but we also think there is a genuine concern for safety among most employers which precedes that law.

No industry or business can do too much to provide safe working conditions for its employees and this concern for safety should extend to all our personal lives. We should be concerned for safety as we, engage in recreational activities, and we should strive to make our homes safe.

Anyone who has been injured in an accident knows the needless agony that can be generated. We are pleased that so many of our area firms have safety records going. Everyone benefits from good safety programs.

Young Democrats Are Welcomed

Saturday we may see the largest gathering of political candidates here that will be seen at any time in one location this year.

Included in the day's activities will be a forum of lieutenant governors candidates at 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, and the ceremonies at 7 p.m. at the Moose Lodge with Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt performing the installation and Sen. Robert Morgan the principal speaker.

We are happy that a local young man is being honored as president of the State YDC, and we welcome the many political leaders and guests to our city.

Prepare For Kindergartens

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — There are some problems in store for local school boards and superintendents getting ready for school to open next September.

About 1,000 new kindergarten teachers, classrooms, and aides will be needed as the state's public school kindergarten program goes 100 per cent two years ahead of schedule.

Classes will jump from 1,904 to 3,036, enrolling about 85,000 five-year-olds. This year, there are some 54,000 children in kindergarten.

Enrollment is underway now, and will continue until school opens in the fall.

Open Door
 Registration will remain open right up until school starts, for those who were missed, and some state funds are being kept in reserve to meet any unanticipated students.

The biggest problem, out of many, is that "children don't come in packages of 28," says

James W. Jenkins, director of early childhood education at the State Department of Public Instruction.

That classroom size, fixed by the General Assembly in funding the program two years ahead of schedule, will revert to the statewide limit of 26 in the fall of 1978, the original date for full implementation.

Meanwhile, Jenkins describes flexibility built into guidelines going to local schools this week and next.

"We must have the flexibility to be able to take a small class at one school with one teacher and no classroom aide; and to have a large class with a teacher and two or three aides at another," he said. The problem will be especially acute in rural mountain and coastal areas where one school district may have only a handful of five-year-olds; while another provides a class-and-a-half.

Classroom space and hiring teachers and aides is a problem in logistics, not so much in supply, Jenkins said. Many school systems have vacant classrooms due to the decline in first-grade enrollments in recent years, paralleling the drop in the birth rate. Major problems are seen in only a few isolated sections of the state.

Enough Teachers
 And the supply of teachers has shifted dramatically in the last three years from shortage to overabundance, giving plenty of applicants and even certified teachers willing to take jobs as aides at a third the salary of the classroom teacher. That situation is particularly true in urban areas, not rural.

Additionally, bus transportation will cause some trouble at the opening of school.

"But the main thing is that we are going all the way as of September to make a place for any five-year-old who wants to attend," Jenkins said.

Indications are that local county commissioners, school boards, and superintendents are "pleased . . . but naturally have anxieties relating to getting ready to go in just three short months," Jenkins said.

"Regardless of the problems, though, most look at the good which will result. We have turned down so many children in the past several years. It was unfair. A neighbor's child was in while your's was out . . . involving expenditure of tax dollars for a program which was unavailable to some."

"It will take a month or so to get settle down in September, but the big thing is that we're going to do it," Jenkins said. Kindergarten will cost approximately $57 million per year in full gear, with the declining birth rate expected to absorb the shift from 28 per classroom back to 26 in 1978. Even then, however, Jenkins thinks the flexibility of providing for some smaller and some larger classes in isolated areas may be required.

Reagan Makes Impression

 NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan has made a strong impression during this campaign year with his advocacy of higher military spending and an overhaul of the welfare system, an Associated Press poll shows.

Reagan's stands provide the two clearest links between a candidate and an issue in the otherwise blurred picture of presidential contenders and positions that Americans now see after four months of intensive primary campaigning.

In the poll designed to probe Americans' views on the issues, the only other clear link of a candidate and issues comes from supporters of Rep. Morris Udall with their accurate perception of his views and their concern about pollution, civil rights and solving energy problems.

The survey, conducted for The AP by the Roper Organization of New York between May 8 and May 15, found that an average of more than half of the potential voters didn't know where their favorite candidate stands on five major issues.

The other major findings of the poll were:

—Economic issues head the list of Americans' concerns during this election year, with 59 per cent of those questioned naming inflation, unemployment or holding down government spending as their main worry.

—Crime was the second biggest concern for Americans. Lawlessness in general, drug abuse and criminal acts by public officials were all in the top five issues.

—About 57 per cent of all Americans are choosing a candidate to support for his personal qualities, not for his stands on the issues. More than 58 per cent of Jimmy Carter's supporters, for example, said personal factors were the basis for their decision, compared to only 20 per cent who cited issuess.

—In addition to more than half of the people not knowing where the candidates stand, many supporters were wrong in naming where their favorite candidate stood on five major issues. Carter's backers were the most likely to name the wrong stand for their contender, missing four out of five issues picked to differentiate among the candidates.

During the second week in May when the poll was conducted, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Frank Church scored their initial primary victories. Because the national perceptions of Brown and Church had not then taken shape, the poll did not test their supporters' perceptions.

By the date of the interviewing, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace had stopped campaigning and was running fourth in delegates. Thus, his supporters' perceptions were also not tested.

Reagan's supporters stand out in the poll above those of other candidates for their precision in pegging his stands on military spending and welfare.

By a 65-9 margin, his backers correctly linked him with pushing for more money for national defense. But even then 26 per cent of his supporters could not say where he stood.

Reagan's supporters are the main reservoir of concern about U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations and military spending found by the poll. About 22 per cent of his backers named these two issues as the most important ones, close to double the figure for any other candidate.

Looking at the poll another way, concern over detente is centered with self-identified conservatives. About 14 per cent of the conservatives named it the major issue, compared with only 9 per cent of moderates and 10 per cent of liberals.

The former California governor's supporters also correctly linked him by a 51-8 edge with proposals to turn the welfare system back to state control.

Even for Reagan, however, his supporters' view of his stand on issues blurs when they move away from the two top positions.

They incorrectly said by a 25-16 margin that he supports dismantling the oil companies. But 59 per cent of his backers didn't know where he stood on this issue.

By narrow margins, they correctly said he favors a constitutional amendment to end abortions and opposes the government guarantee of a job to everyone. But the percentages of those who didn't know his stand on the issues was far higher than on

BENEDICTION FOR WALL STREET
 Trinity Church in downtown New York stands at the edge of the famous Wall Street financial district. As the crowds mill about, almost on the church's doorstep, eagerly discussing business problems, the bells of old Trinity placidly chime out the passing hours.

The sound of these bells is like a benediction over the hurrying throngs beneath. The church with its commanding position, its tall spire, its ponderous bells, seems to preside over this center of commerce. Fortunes will be made and unmade, business empires will rise and fall, but the Christian church stands for an eternal order of things. Old Trinity seems to warn the crowds that their interests are ephemeral, their plans petty, their ideals superficial.

Does the warning do any good? Is the counsel heeded? In most cases, no; in some cases yes. But whether heeded or unheeded, the counsel and will of God prevail over the carefully laid plans of men.

Odd Cards Out

By JEFFREY MILLS
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Odd-shaped greeting cards could fade from the drug store counters, a victim of a plan to make the Postal Service more efficient.

The Postal Service announced on Wednesday it plans to restrict the size of envelopes, effective April 15, 1978. Envelopes smaller than the specifications will be banned and a surcharge, of an amount to be determined later, will be levied for any envelopes larger than the specifications. Specifications will be set later by the Postal Rate Commission.

Most envelopes now in use will meet the specifications, but greeting cards, which come in a wide variety of shapes and sizes, will be heavily affected, postal officials said.

The delay until April 15, 1978, is to allow all envelope manufacturers to conform to the specifications.

Envelopes can be sorted more efficiently by machine if they all conform to size specifications, a Postal Service spokesman said. He said the size rules are expected to save money for the financially ailing agency.

The envelope measure was one of a series of money-saving rules approved by the Postal Service's board of governors.

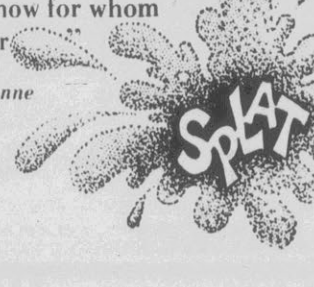

Another innovation is a discount, effective July 6, for large business mailers who sort their own first-class letters before mailing.

These mailers will pay 12 cents per letter, instead of the regular 13-cent rate. This is the first discount ever offered on first-class mail. To qualify, mailers of at least 500 first-class letters must bundle their mail according to the zip code of the destination.

Postal officials say they hope the discount will bring back some patrons who have begun delivering their own mail.

. . . Therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls . . . it tolls for

Another New Memoir

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The little old lady came into my office clutching a yellow manuscript.

"I was wondering," she said in a tiny voice, "if these are worth anything?"

"What are they?"

"My memoirs. I was the mistress of Abraham Lincoln."

"Fantastic," I said. "Nobody knows Lincoln had a mistress."

"It's been my secret for 101 years," she said.

"Why are you revealing it now?"

"Everybody else seems to be talking about their affairs with the President, and I figured I might as well get into the act. President Lincoln and I were more than good friends."

"How good?"

"It's all in the book. We used to meet in the Lincoln Room any time Mary Todd was out of town."

"How did you meet him?"

"Through Frank Sinatra. We were introduced at a party in Chicago."

"Frank Sinatra the singer?" I asked in amazement.

"Not that Frank Sinatra, silly. Frank Sinatra was a colonel in the Illinois Regulars. I met him through Sam Giancana."

"Giancana, the Mafia boss?"

"No, stupid," she said. "Sam Giancana was in the War Department. I used to date him when I worked up on the Hill for Congressman Hays."

"Wayne Hays?"

"No, Rutherford B. Hayes. I couldn't type, but it didn't seem to matter because we didn't have typewriters then."

"Let's get back to Lincoln. You say you had an affair with him?"

"That's correct. He may have been in a wheelchair, but he was strong as an ox."

"Now wait a minute. Lincoln wasn't in a wheelchair. That was Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

"Are you sure?" she asked.

"I'm certain of it."

"Well, maybe it was Roosevelt then. He had a moustache and kept talking about San Juan Hill."

"That was Teddy Roosevelt, not Franklin Roosevelt. Lincoln was the one with the stovepipe hat and a beard."

"It's been so long ago it's hard for me to remember. I know he never wore a stovepipe hat when we had our affair. He told me once that he wouldn't be able to see me for a while because he was going to be impeached."

"The only Presidents who were going to be impeached were Andrew Johnson and Richard Nixon, was it?"

"I should say not. I would never have had an affair with that man. He lied to the American people."

"Then it must have been Andrew Johnson."

"That's funny, I thought it was Lincoln. Do you think Frank Sinatra lied to me?"

"I wouldn't know."

"Well, whoever it was used to make me for long walks by the Tidal Basin."

"The Tidal Basin? Are you sure you didn't make all this up?"

"Cross my heart and hope

To the editor,
 The 1976 Indianapolis "500" was one massive gyp. Sneva, Foyt, Johncock, and the other prominent racers weren't given the opportunity to reveal their flaming qualifications.

The misfortunate Foyt was dispirited by the rain, not by Rutherford. An extension of the race was what many people cried out for. Many occurrences may happen between the 120th turn and the final turn.

Rutherford had arrayed a great performance to the gathering horde; but he didn't get to perfect it.

What is a story without a conclusion? You are left dangling on the extremity of an exciting plot. Give Rutherford an opening to confirm his driving ability. Continue the race at a more acceptable time.

Rutherford was a "supposed" winner. He was supposed to win because of a slight interruption. Rain. What an eccentric excuse. Whoever constituted this "rule" about winning a race halfway through because of rain or other hindrances is a demented person.

Watching the so-called "end" of the race was like witnessing an escapade. Also, an abundant amount of money was wasted in this delusion.

40 Years Ago Today

June 4, 1936

With Woody Upchurch doing the hurling for Ayden, the Aces topped the Greenville team yesterday afternoon 9-2.

This was the second scheduled game between the two teams and the second consecutive victory for the Ayden team.

Upchurch was recently farmed out by Connie Mack and picked up yesterday where he left off last year. The skillful pitcher was with Ayden last year and chalked up 27 wins for his team.

Reynolds May, from Duke University, did the mound work for the Greenies yesterday throughout the game when manager Bo Farley found himself short of pitchers.

Stock Market In Horse Latitudes

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is caught in the horse latitudes.

It might be confusing to introduce the name of another animal into the stock market menagerie, in which bulls and bears are the senior citizens, but it is entirely appropriate in view of the market's lack of action.

For 3 1/2 months the averages haven't changed very much, and the stock market reports sound the same each day: "Stocks drifted today in another dull and inconclusive session."

Every so often a flurry develops, but it seems to lead nowhere after a day or so.

The master of an old Spanish sailing ship might understand and sympathize with the investor caught in such a situation, especially if he, the master, had once been becalmed in the horse latitudes.

Those latitudes, your dusty geography text might inform you, are two regions, one about 30 degrees north and the other 30 degrees south, marked by high pressure, heat, frequent calms, day to day sameness, and light and baffling winds.

Caught in these latitudes, with water running low, sailors were said sometimes to dispatch their live cargo, often horses for the West Indies, into the briny depths.

There is another characteristic of the horses — descending air, which might be appropriate also in describing stock market conditions. A lot of confidence seems to have gone out of the market.

Several months ago it wasn't uncommon to see some very inflated forecasts, such as 1,200 points, on the Dow Jones industrial average. It remains near 970 or 980 points, however, and those puffed up forecasts are much rarer.

The chief deflator seems to be the probability that interest rates will continue to rise, perhaps producing a 7.75 per cent prime lending rate late this year, compared with 6.75 last week and 7 per cent this week.

Rising interest rates generally mean trouble for business and for the market, drawing away funds into fixed-income securities, and raising the cost of doing business. They usually mean the swiftest part of a recovery is over.

There are also disconcerting reports that some insiders have been selling, that institutional funds are pretty much used up, and also that future institutional commitments might be more heavily in the bond markets.

Various other explanations are drawn in to day to day, but they are as ephemeral as the light, baffling winds — incapable of moving prices for long in any one direction.

Meanwhile, the crew of stock market investors is growing lethargic. On Tuesday, volume fell to 13.88 million shares, the lowest in about four months. The most active stock, Texaco, was unchanged in price.

Eventually, of course, you may expect movement, but even that forecast is rather pathetic when you look back at the record: It is the very same forecast made two months ago, when some investors already were growing bored.

Now, as the same sameness persists, with no direction sustainable formore than a few days, some of the crew are thinking of tossing some of the livestock overboard.

the military and welfare questions.

Reflecting this precision in their views, Reagan's supporters were the lowest of any candidates' in saying personal factors were the basis for their decision. But 48 per cent of his backers still cited personality over issues.

About 29 per cent of those who said Reagan is their favorite candidate cited issues as the reason for their decision, the same percentage of Udall's backers who cited issues as their reason. About 57 per cent of his supporters say personal factors were the basis for their decision.

Udall's supporters correctly gauged his stand on all five issues examined in the poll, the best showing of any candidate. Here are the issues and the margins by which his supporters named his stand correctly:

—For government guaranteed jobs, 47-19;

—For breaking up major oil companies, 46-10;

—Against anti-abortion amendment, 41-9;

Buchwald...

(Continued from page 4) to die," she said. "I was somebody's mistress and if it wasn't Lincoln, it was the fellow that came a few years later."

"General Grant? Did he drink a lot?" "Yup. It's all in my memoirs. We used to drink and then we'd go up to the Lincoln Room. Maybe that's why I thought it was Lincoln—because of the name on the room. I remember he said his greatest dream was to return to his ranch on the Pedernales."

"Wow, you do have a story to tell."

"So you think someone might buy my memoirs?"

"Are you kidding? I know seven paperback houses that will give you $100,000 for them, without reading a chapter."

The little old lady said, "I'm not just doing it for the money. I'm doing it because I believe people should know what Abraham Lincoln really was like."

—Against spending more on military, 53-20;
—Against turning welfare back to state, 25-20.

It is no surprise that Udall has the greatest percentage of supporters who identify themselves as liberals, since he has said he is the liberals' candidate. The poll found 61 per cent of his support came from people who identify themselves as liberals.

Udall's supporters also named issues long identified as liberal as their main concerns far more than any other candidates'.

For example, solving energy problems and insuring equal rights for Americans of all races were each major issues for 23 per cent of Udall's supporters, ranking right behind inflation and unemployment. Next was air and water pollution with 20 per cent.

No other candidate's supporters cited those issues with nearly that frequency.

Only on one of five issues did Carter's supporters pick his position correctly — government guaranteed jobs — which they pegged by a 42 per cent to 14 percent margin.

But most of the supporters of all the candidates listed in the survey correctly identified the positions of their favorite candidate on this issue that has been a prime focus of Democratic legislative efforts this year in Congress.

President Ford's supporters correctly identified his positions on three issues, missed on one and split evenly on the other. Reagan's influence with the GOP partisans was most clearly seen in the responses of Ford's supporters on the welfare issue.

Ford's backers said he supports turning welfare over to the states by a 40 per cent to 17 per cent margin. Ford has said he favors welfare reform, but has opposed placing the financial burden of welfare solely on the states.

Just over 56 per cent of Ford's supporters say personal factors were the crucial factor in their decision to support him, against 20 per cent who cited his stands on the issues. About 18 per cent said both factors were crucial.

Appeal Is Planned By Agnew Attorneys

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Betty Agnew, director of the Beaufort County Department of Social Services and president of the Social Services Directors Association of North Carolina, was convicted in Beaufort Superior Court Thursday of obtaining money under false pretense, misapplication of funds, and embezzlement.

Her attorneys filed notice of appeal after the verdict was returned by a jury which deliberated about three hours. The trial was concluded after nearly two weeks of testimony.

Mrs. Agnew was sentenced to three one-year prison terms, one year each on the three counts. The sentences were suspended.

Non-candidate Sen. Hubert Humphrey was the choice of some of those interviewed. His explanation of their reasons for picking the Minnesota Democrat broke down this way:

—Personal factors, 66 per cent;
—Issues, 17 per cent;
—Both, 16 per cent; and
—Don't know, 5 per cent.

Supporters of Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who has halted active campaigning, gave the following explanation of their support for the Washington democrat:

—Personal factors, 65 per cent;
—Issues, 11 per cent;
—Both 13 per cent; and
—Don't know, 9 per cent.

She also was placed on two years of probation and fined $5,000.

She was accused of false pretense in connection with $434 used to finance a trip to Boston in 1975 to attend a national conference on child abuse.

The embezzlement charge involved more than $1,300 from her department's so-called discretionary fund, which she used for advances for travel and other expenses between 1971 and 1975.

Mrs. Agnew testified that the money was returned in cash and subsequently reissued for other purposes, but no receipts were presented to verify the reimbursements.

Testimony brought out that the misapplication of funds charge stemmed from use of the discretionary funds to purchase a refrigerator, a coffee pot and other items for use by the department.

It also was shown, however, that the items were added to the county property inventory and still are in use.

Anniversary Is Observed

Jobless Rate Drops; Price Increases Slow

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had good news in unemployment and inflation statistics today, reporting that the nation's jobless rate fell from 7.5 to 7.3 per cent in May while wholesale price increases slowed.

The drop in the unemployment rate brought an end to a two-month period in which joblessness had not improved.

Wholesale prices rose only three-tenths of a per cent last month, after surging eight-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said.

The May figures eased fears of a new round of heavy inflation, at least temporarily.

The economic reports, coming only four days before the last round of presidential primaries, could be a plus for President Ford, who credits his policies for the improving economic picture in its price report, the Labor Department said a six-tenths of a per cent increase in farm prices and a one-tenth of a per cent rise in industrial goods held the overall increase to only three-tenths of a per cent in May.

The combined job and price reports presented a picture of an expanding economy with moderate inflation.

With the jobless rate of 7.3 per cent, the Labor Department said 6.9 million Americans were out of work last month, a decline of 180,000 from April. Total employment continued to increase, rising by 300,000 in May to another new high of 87.7 million.

The unemployment rate had improved dramatically earlier this year before leveling off in March at 7.5 per cent of the work force. It was unchanged in April, with seven million persons unable to find jobs.

Government economists predicted further improvement would be very slow unless the economy picked up sharply, resulting in large increases in employment that would offset the normal summer increase in the labor force.

The experts also said they wouldn't be surprised if the jobless rate edged up slightly to compensate for what may have been an over-adjustment in factoring out seasonal influences earlier this year.

"If it went up a tenth of a per cent it wouldn't shock me," said Maynard Comiez, the Commerce Department's chief economist. He said an increase in unemployment would not have resulted from a weakening economy, but rather would have been due to seasonal problems or a sharp increase in the labor force.

Wholesale prices declined at an annual rate of 1.8 per cent in the first quarter of this year and retail prices rose at an annual rate of only 2.9 per cent. But in April, wholesale prices surged eight-tenths of 1 per cent, largely due to a 4.2 per cent jump in farm prices.

Administration officials have often warned that price increases remain a serious threat to the economy, despite a substantial moderation over the last half-year. But they said the April rise did not indicate a return to heavy inflation and predicted that the May increase would be less than that in April.

Spoke At Safety Meet

Dr. Alfred S. King, coordinator of the Driver and Traffic Safety Education program at East Carolina University spoke at the Pitt County Safety Council meeting yesterday.

Dr. King outlined the undergraduate and graduate programs in Driver and Traffic Safety Education at ECU.

He said, "Motorcycle safety has become a very popular course on campus since its inception in 1974. However, our primary program objective still remains to prepare our students to be thoroughly safety oriented in all aspects of traffic safety."

Safety council president Ed Askew presided at the session.

ance is steady. Outlays for new buildings are up. Financial contributions are at a peak. But they haven't kept up with inflation.
These are key points from recent compilations of the 1975
statistics on the religious situation in this country.

Over-all, membership in U.S. churches and synagogues began climbing again, after registering slight losses in recent years. It rose by 1 million last year to a total of 132,287,450 or 62.3 per cent of the population.

The percentage had been 61.9 per cent the year before, a ratio that had been slipping ever since a 1967 peak of 64.4 per cent, but which now seemed headed back up.

A breakdown shows there are approximately 73 million Protestants, 49 million Roman Catholics, 3 million Eastern Orthodox, 6 million Jews and 1 million others.

Nevertheless, it's still a "period of slow growth" for the churches, says Constant Jacquet, editor of the new Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches 1976, compiled by the National Council of Churches.

The value of new church construction rose to $947 million last year, compared with $814 million the year before — still off from the peak $1.2 billion in 1965.

Attendance held steady with 40 per cent of U.S. adults attending church or synagogue in an average week, according to a Gallup poll. That proportion has remained constant from 1971 through 1975, after edging down from a 1958 peak of 49 per cent, mostly because of a drop in Roman Catholic attendance.

Meanwhile, the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, Inc., reported that giving to religious institutions climbed to a record $11.68 billion in 1975, an increase of 7.6 per cent over the $10.8 billion given the year before.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Josh Logan has always been outspoken, whether talking about his bouts with mental illness or directing actors in plays and films. So it's no surprise that his memoirs prove frank and candid about the greats he has worked with.

"It was a terribly painful thing to do," said the director of his three-year ordeal in writing "Josh" (Delacorte, $10). "I didn't set out to be nasty to anyone, yet I had to be honest.

"I don't approve of books that are written for revenge. The most loathsome thing I have read recently is the first chapter of Truman Capote's 'Answered Prayers.' It's simply terrible how he has bitten the hands that fed him — people who invited him to dinner and to weekends in the country. And then to write so scatalogically about them."

Logan said he had feared the results of his honesty about certain personalities. For instance, Henry Fonda, whom he had directed in the play "Mister Roberts."

Fonda had escaped a film contract to play "Roberts," which Logan had written with Thomas Heggen, author of the novel. The director-star relationship remained fairly smooth until Fonda took the play on the road. Before the Los Angeles opening, Logan felt the show had deteriorated because the entire cast was trying to play Doug Roberts.

The director tried to restore the original spirit, Fonda rebelled, said he wouldn't appear in the movie if Logan directed, as had been promised. Logan withdrew.

"I thought I had been rough on Fonda in the book," the author remarked. "But he called me last night and said he thought the book was terrific."

Logan doesn't expect to hear from Richard Rodgers. He had directed several Rodgers and Hart musicals, as well as "Annie Get Your Gun," produced by Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. Logan and Leland Hayward bought the rights to "Tales of the South Pacific" and gave Rodgers and Hammerstein 51 per cent interest to write the show.

When Hammerstein bogged down in the writing, Logan collaborated and was allowed coauthorship credit. But not the author's royalties. Thus he was deprived of a lifelong royalty on the classic that he coauthored and staged.

He is convinced that Rodgers, who had become "a monument," had enforced the decision. In midrehearsal Logan was told to sign his contract within two hours or he would be fired.

"My name had been so minimized that I lived through years of having people praise 'South Pacific' in my presence without knowing I had had anything to do with it," he writes. The final ignominy came when his name was mistakenly left off the 1950 Pulitzer Prize for Drama.

Logan said Bennett Cerf had nagged him for years about writing his memoirs — "it was almost a relief when Bennett died." But then John Dodds of Putnam took up the campaign. He admitted writing "Josh" had been a struggle: "Dialogue for plays is easy; it can be bad grammar and still be acceptable. Prose has to be the king's English."

Bellamy Duo Is Unspoiled

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Success hasn't spoiled the Bellamy Brothers. Neither a hit record, "Let Your Love Flow," nor an angry neighbor has prompted them to mow their lawn. The grass is a couple of feet high.

The two men grin and chuckle infectiously as they explain they're merely preserving a bit of their cultural heritage. After all, they grew up on a 100-acre farm in Darby, Fla.

"Hell," Brother Howard draws, "we're used to tall grass—for our cattle."

Tall grass in the heart of the big city — it's an unusual combination somewhat representative of the Bellamy Brothers' music.

Growing up in the South with a father who played fiddle and, dobro in a bluegrass band, Howard and David were heavily exposed to country music. But as they worked in the fields on their parents' farm, they listened to a transistor radio that David would tie to his belt loop. Through it came the melodies of the Beatles and all the other stars of the burgeoning rock music scene.

Always musically inclined, the two boys were quickly influenced by both types of music. At a church square dance once — Howard on banjo and David on accordion — they accidentally switched in midtune from the upbeat Baptist song "I'll Fly Away" to the pop hit "Downtown."

The mixture is still evident, particularly on their album, titled simply "The Bellamy Brothers." Much of it has a strong country flavor but there are catchy pop elements that broaden the music's potential audience.

There isn't much that is country about "Let Your Love Flow," but the Bellamy Brothers didn't write that song. They got it from Larry E. Williams, Neil Diamond's road manager.

"It sounded like the type of song we could have written," recalls David, 25. "I wish we had."

The latter comment is said jokingly, for the brothers have nothing to gripe about regarding that song. It was the big break they've been seeking for nearly 10 years.

They began playing professionally in about 1967, crisscrossing the South with a band called Jerico to whatever small club or dance hall would hire them. They did some recording but never got anything released.

Demoralized, Howard and David returned to their folks' farm in 1971, interspersing their chores there with songwriting and occasional session work.

Then in 1973 David sold a song called "Spiders and Snakes" to Jim Stafford and theirs began to happen. Stafford's producers took an interest in the Bellamys and brought them to Los Angeles in 1974. David wrote more songs for Stafford and Howard toured with him as a backup musician.

Meanwhile, they began looking for the right material that would get their own performing careers into the limelight. They hung on for a year and a half before "Let Your Love Flow" took off.

When the opponents bid voluntarily to slam, you usually do not expect to defeat them more than one trick. Therefore, a double of a voluntarily bid slam by the defender who is not on opening lead can be used more profitably to direct a particular lead than to increase the expected gain. There is no guarantee though that, even with the right lead, you will beat the contract.

South's hand was a mite short of a demand opening bid. However, he was able to express his full power when, despite East's preemptive overcall, he introduced a new suit at the three-level and then leaped to slam over his partner's simple preference. East's double was not based on sure conviction that he could beat the slam. He wanted to steer his partner away from a club lead to a heart, which he felt represented his side's best chance to spike declarer's guns.

West dutifully led his top heart, and declarer won the ace. The ace of diamonds revealed the 4-0 break and declarer was in trouble. He had to ruff two spades in dummy, which meant that he might have to lose two trump tricks. However, South was equal to the challenge.

To make the hand, declarer had to reduce his trumps to the same length as West's, and then throw West on lead when both hands were left with nothing but trumps. That would require a friendly distribution, but any hope was better than simply conceding a defeat. Declarer cashed the king of clubs and ace-king of spades, then ruffed a spade in dummy. The ace of clubs provided a parking place for declarer's heart loser, and a heart was ruffed in the closed hand. Next came a spade ruff and a heart ruff.

Both declarer and West were now down to three trumps each. Declarer simply exited with a low trump. West had to win and lead a trump away from the queen into declarer's K-10 tenace, and the slam coasted home.

Four Teams May Move Into NBA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Miller informed the Browns earlier this week that he had raised half the money — $750,000.

A final decision whether to incorporate the ABA teams into the NBA would have to be made June 13-17 during the NBA Board of Governors meeting at Hyannis, Mass.

Some owners are known to oppose a merger of any sort. But the deal now has a new twist. The CBS television network has offered the NBA an incentive, in the form of extra cash in its package for rights to televising NBA games, for each new team up to four the NBA adds.

"We have something we've never had before," said Pacers board chairman Bill Eason, "and that's an offer from the NBA. And unless it changes drastically, it is one which we can live with."

But, Hilliard cautioned, "We have no signed contract in hand and negotiations are on daily. There are so many hassles ahead. We still have to deal with the players, and we have to decide what to do about the (ABA) franchises not included."

"So there's a lot still to be decided before the T's are crossed and the I's dotted. There is still some debate about the TV money, and the cost to get in is going to be very expensive."

Indiana Pacers President Jim Hilliard confirmed Thursday that the ABA had talked with the older league about some ABA teams joining the NBA next year. The number arrived at was four — Indiana, New York, Denver and San Antonio.

"Yes, it is all true, and yes, I know it to be fact," said Hilliard. A recommendation by the NBA expansion committee would put a $4.5 million price tag on each new NBA franchise from the ABA.

Excluded from the plans were Kentucky and Utah, which was moved from St. Louis after last season. It was not known how the NBA arrived at the decision to exclude the two franchises.

However, Kentucky Colonels' owners John Y. and Ellie Brown have offered the team for syndication, claiming that they can no longer handle the team's expenses alone.

Acting as their agent, Jefferson County Attorney J. Bruce Miller was to have at least half the purchase price of $1.5 million covered by June 1, with the remainder covered by June 15.

Tiant Pitches Red Sox To Victory Over Yankees

By PHIL CANNADAY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — It could have been the team meeting before the game or Louie Tiant's dominance over New York, but the Red Sox finally came to life and beat the division-leading Yankees.

"If they (meetings) help like that, we ought to have a meeting every day," centerfielder Fred Lynn joked following the 8-2 victory at Fenway Park Thursday night.

In the only other American League game, the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Detroit Tigers 6-2.

The Red Sox' victory against the American League East leaders moved Boston to within seven games of the top. However, the Yankees won the other two games of the abbreviated-by-rain series.

For Tiant, now 7-3, it was his 21st lifetime victory against New York, against nine losses.

"We get paid to win, we don't get paid to lose," said Tiant, who went the distance, giving up eight hits and walking none. "I've beaten them before; why can't I beat them again?"

Following the game played before a crowd of 29,505, the Red Sox announced that pinch hitter Bernie Carbo, along with an undisclosed amount of cash, had been traded to the Milwaukee Brewers for slugger Bobby Darwin and relief pitcher Tom Murphy.

Tiant allowed New York two runs in the first inning — a triple by Roy White, a double by Chris Chambliss and a single by designated hitter Carlos May. Then the veteran hurler settled down and shut out the Yankees the rest of the way.

The Red Sox drove New York starter Dock Ellis, 4-4, from the mound in the second inning while putting together three walks, a hit batsman (Carlton Fisk) and four singles. Designated hitter Cecil Cooper and Jim Rice each knocked in a pair of runs that inning.

Boston scored twice more in the bottom of the eighth on a double by Lynn, his third hit of the night, and a single by Carl Yastrzemski.

Brewers 6, Tigers 2

Bill Travers, 6-2, scattered nine hits as Milwaukee salvaged the fifth game of their series after dropping the first four. Don Money knocked in two runs with a homer and triple and Robin Yount hit a pair of sacrifice flies for the Brewers. Dave Roberts, 4-4, took the loss.

Extra police were on hand for the game in Detroit after Milwaukee pitcher Jim Colbert and first baseman George Scott received anonymous threatening telegrams, apparently prompted by a brawl in Wednesday night's game.

Rookie Leading Floyd By Two

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ray Floyd surveyed the scoreboard, allowed a sly little smile to cross his face and observed: "I've been there before. I know how to handle it. I know how to prepare for it."

The tough, four-armed Floyd, a former PGA champion, holder of a half-dozen titles, a record-setting, runaway winner of the Masters a couple of months back, was two strokes off the pace — but quite possibly in command — after the first round of the $200,000 Bicentennial Golf Tournament.

Of the other leaders, only Frank Beard has been there before. And Beard, once one of the game's greatest, has been mired in a deep, dismal slump for three years. He hasn't won in five.

On top after Thursday's opening round over the tight, tidy, little 6,687-yard Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course was longshot rookie Tom Purtzer, who parlayed some phenomenal putting into a six-under-par 65.

Revived Dierker Whips Cincinnati By Two, 5-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds were about to count "10" over Larry Dierker when the Houston pitcher suddenly came up with a knockout of his own, as the Astros won 5-3.

Back in April, Dierker started against the Reds in Cincinnati and failed to retire any of the six batters he faced, allowing four hits and two walks before he was lifted.

In Houston Thursday night, Dierker hit Pete Rose with a pitch, Dan Drissen singled, Joe Morgan homered, the Reds had a 3-0 lead and Dierker had faced nine Cincinnati batters without getting anyone out.

"I started out exactly like I did in Cincinnati, but I knew I'd have to get an out sooner or later," Dierker said. "I wasn't extremely sharp, but after the first inning I made up my mind to be uncompromising on most of my pitches."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 3-2 in 10 innings, the St. Louis Cardinals cooled off the Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, the Montreal Expos upended the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-1 and the Chicago Cubs nipped the New York Mets 2-1. Atlanta and San Diego were not scheduled.

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Astro nine after Dierker's shaky start, especially with unbeatn rookie sensation Santo Alcala on the mound for Cincinnati.

But Houston's Greg Gross stroked a two-run single in the second inning and Bob Watson's RBI grounder tied the score in the fifth.

The Astros then loaded the bases in the seventh on singles by Dierker and Cesar Cedeno and a walk to Bob Watson before walks to Jose Cruz and Cliff Johnson forced two runs across the plate. That was enough to make a winner of Dierker, although he gave way to Ken Forsch for the final three outs.

Rain washed out another day of city-wide recreational sports. Only the Little League games have been rescheduled as yet.

Yesterday's games Exchange vs. Big Value and Coke vs. Lions will be played at 2:00 and 4:00 p.m. respectively at Guy Smith Stadium. Sunday, other games rained out included Women's and Church League softball, Senior Babe Ruth and Prep League baseball.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 1

Don Kessinger pounded out two doubles and a single and Mike Tyson added three hits, including a run-scoring triple, helping Bob Forsch gain his first victory of the season. Forsch hurled eight strong innings and Bill Greif worked the ninth as the Cardinals ended the Phils' road winning streak at 13 games, four short of the major league record.

Expos 7, Pirates 1

Don Stanhouse stifled Pittsburgh on five hits as he earned his first win as a starter and his first complete game since 1973 when he was with the Texas Rangers.

Tennis Still Fun For Ashe

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — When the age-temperature quotient on the Roland Garros Stadium practice courts dipped to 15 — Fahrenheit 47, Arthur Ashe 32 — there was a wind-whipped moment, not even a second, when Ashe thought: Hey, really, what for?

The moment flew off with the wind and Ashe banged another backhand into the red clay.

"No," he said, "I'm four or five years away from thinking about anything else but tennis. When John Newcombe, who's younger than me, told me this was his last year, it threw me for a loop. He's lost his desire to put out 100 per cent."

"I guess that's the test. It's still fun for me, and the desire is still there. I'm the oldest guy in the top 10, though. I realize that."

Ashe, who will be 33 in July, plays Ray Moore of South Africa today in the second round of the French Open Tournament, after a rest day on Thursday.

Two other Americans, Harold Solomon and Eddie Dibbs, advanced through the second round Thursday. Solomon beat Sashi Menon of India 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-2, and Dibbs bested Hans Pohmann of West Germany 6-3, 7-5, 6-1. Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden beat Hans Kary of Austria 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

In women's first-round singles, Americans Marita Redondo and Beth Norton advanced. Miss Redondo, National City, Calif., downed Elvira Weisenberger of Argentina 6-1, 6-1, and Miss Norton, Fulton, Conn., beat Christine Matison of Australia 6-0, 6-1.

Ashe is not really a clay court player — although he got to the U.S. Clay Court finals last year — because the surface sucks the life out of his volleys and serve.

Game Is Postponed

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's 3-A baseball playoff game with Pembroke has been rescheduled for a third time and may be changed a fourth time before it is finally played.

The game was originally set for tonight but changed to last night because of Pembroke's graduation exercises. The game was rained out last night and rescheduled for Saturday at 8 p.m. If the weather looks threatening Saturday, the game will be played at 4:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Williamston is the defending 3-A champ.

Bland Performances Mark First Day

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Vilanova's Eamonn Coghlan, defending champion in the 1,500-meter run, voiced the sentiment of most of the stars in qualifying trials at the 55th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field Championships.

"I caught up when I was supposed to," said Coghlan Thursday after winning a lackluster 1,500 heat in the ordinary time — for him — of 3:43.16.

John Ngeno, Washington State's defending double winner, said somewhat the same thing after qualifying for the 5,000-meter run with a third place finish.

"I was taking it easy," admitted Ngeno, who has won four NCAA titles at 5,000 meters. "I wasn't pushing myself because I have to run the 10,000 (final) tomorrow (Friday)." That was the scene, everybody running, jumping or throwing just good enough to qualify for Friday semifinals or Saturday finals. There wasn't anyone even close to a record on a beautiful, sunlit day with the temperature in the low 70s and a refreshing wind blowing out of the northeast.

Only one defending champion was eliminated, Louisiana State's Larry Shipp in the 110-meter hurdles in which he finished sixth in his heat. UCLA's James Owens had the best time in the event — 13.88. Other qualifiers included San Jose State's Dedy Cooper (13.92), Arizona State's Gary Burl (14.10), and Auburn's James Walker (14.04). They'll be in the semifinals today.

Among the other defenders competing in the first of the three-day meet were: Coghlan in the 1,500; Ngeno in the 5,000; Reggie Jones of Tennessee in the 200; James Munyala of Texas-El Paso in the 3,000-meter steeplechase; and Earl Bell, the world record breaking pole vaulter from Arkansas State.

Tennessee's Jones ran second in his 200 heat, and won a heat of the 100-meter sprint in 10.34, fastest of the qualifiers for today's semifinals. Munyala finished fourth in his heat of the steeplechase in 8:54.85, just qualifying. Bell was among 13 pole vaulters who qualified by clearing 16 feet, 6 inches.

Te set a new world mark last week of 18-7 1/2, but he'll still have to beat Don Baird of Long Beach State, best in the British Commonwealth, and Russ Rogers of Southern California and Pac 8 champion Mike Tully of UCLA.

In the team chase, California led with 10 points as the result of its decathlon victory by Ed Miller earlier in the week. The decathlon is the only final held so far.

In Thursday's trials, however, Big Eight champion Kansas advanced a total of 11 athletes in seven events, Southern California seven in six. Tennessee, Auburn, Arizona State and Washington State each had survivors in five events. Texas-El Paso, the defending champion, was expected to show its strength in field events today and Saturday. UTEP qualified two runners Thursday.

In other Thursday highlights, San Jose State's Cooper had the best time in the 110-meter hurdles, Oregon's Matt Centrowitz the 1,500 best (3:40.02), Kansas' Bill Lundberg the steeplechase competition (8:41.78), Evis Jennings of Mississippi College the 400 meters (45.8), Florida's Horace Tuit the 800 (1:48.30), Auburn's Harvey Glance the 200 (20.53), and Harold Schwab, Penn., the 400-meter hurdles (50.29).

In field events, Tennessee's Phil Olsen topped the javelin (262 feet, 2 inches), Florida's Fletcher Lewis the long jump (25-4) and world record holder Dwight Stones of Long Beach, the high jump (7-1).

The big feature today among six finals is the 10,000-meter run defended by Ngeno. Other finals are in the hammer, long jump, shot put, 110-meter hurdles, 100-meter sprint, and 1,600-meter relay.

Ngeno defends against strong challenges from Illinois' Craig Virgin, Nevada's Domingo Tibaduiza, Arizona's Ed Mendoza, the Drake Relay champion, and Duke's Robbie Perkins, IC4A winner.

There also will be trials in the discus today with Jim McGoldrick of Texas the defending champion, and semifinals in the 400-meter relay, triple jump, 400-and 1,600-meter relays.

Teams Trying To Take Upper Hand In Playoff

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Accustomed as they are to winning, the Boston Celtics find themselves in a familiar position going into tonight's fifth game of the National Basketball Association's championship series.

Unaccustomed as they are to winning, the Phoenix Suns — the Celtics' opponents in the nationally televised best-of-seven series — find themselves in an unfamiliar position.

So far, each team has won two games, both on their home courts.

The pattern of the first four games was exactly the same as the Celtics followed in their two previous playoff series this season — against Buffalo and Cleveland, both of which they wound up winning in six games.

Ending — and winning — a championship series on the road also has been the Celtics' pattern over the years. Of the last three NBA titles they won — in 1968, 1969 and 1974 — the Celtics clinched them on the road.

The last time they won a championship at historic Boston Garden was 10 years ago, when they completed an unprecedented run of eight straight league titles.

Should the struggling but favored Celtics beat the Suns for the 13th consecutive time a home tonight, they could win the crown on the road again — in Game Six at Phoenix Sunday. If a seventh game is necessary, it would be at Boston Wednesday night.

Beating the Suns now, however, will not be as easy as originally expected. The Suns are bursting with confidence after defeating Boston twice at Phoenix. And they no longer are fearful of the proud, tradition-laden Celtics.

They also realize they have avoided embarrassment and humiliation by preventing a much-discussed Celtics sweep, and now have little more to lose, in this, their first experience in championship competition in the eight-year history of the franchise.

"I never thought at the beginning of the season that we'd be in the position we're in now," said Ricky Sobers, the Suns' battling backcourt rookie, "because we had so many new players."

Although many observers felt the Suns would be beaten quickly by the playoff-hardened, unbendable Celtics, Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn was wary of the rapidly improving Phoenix team.

"They're a very formidable team," warned Heinsohn. "This isn't going to be an easy series. Phoenix is nobody's patsies. If they were, they wouldn't be here (in the final)."

before defeating Graham MacIntyre of Canada in the fourth round. Then after a short rest he went out again and beat David Long of England 2 and 1.

A third American contender is James Gabrielsen of Atlanta, who also had a long hard day. After a 2 and 1 victory over Pat Mulcare of Ireland, he toiled for 20 holes before overcoming Peter Deebie of England in the fifth round.

It could be an all American final, with Siderowf or Gabrielsen playing Giles.

The quarter-final pairings were Giles against Davies, Ian Carslaw of Scotland against Paul McKeller of Scotland, Siderowf against Willie Paterson of Scotland and Gabrielsen against Allan Brodie of Scotland.

Golfer With Best Legs Will Be Champ

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The golfer whose legs can hold out over the hillocks and hollows of the Old Course at St. Andrews will be the man to win the British Amateur championship.

It is 36 notes of golf a day from now on.

Even Vinny Giles, the favorite who is seeking to defend his title, admitted all that golf makes a man tired.

"I won two matches fairly comfortably Thursday, but my legs felt they had done a lot of walking," said the 33-year-old lawyer from Richmond, Va.

"The trouble with this course is there is no cutting any corners. No matter how quickly you win, you still have to walk 18 holes."

Giles won 6 and 5 Thursday morning in the fourth round and then 4 and 3 in the afternoon. But the Old Course — the oldest golf course in the world — is built so that you have to walk 3,482 yards out and 3,432 yards in. The outward nine holes and the inward nine lie side by side in a long line, with 14 holes sharing seven big double greens.

Hundreds of years ago, when the Old Course was first laid out, Scots played just nine holes and then went home. But the game became so popular it was converted to 18 holes — and the rest of the world copied it.

Giles' victims Thursday were both Englishmen — Sandy Dunlop in the fourth round and Michael Kelley in the fifth.

In today's quarter-finals he faces another Englishman, John Davies, a Walker Cup player who has never lost to an American in this country. Victory in that match would take Giles to the semifinals in the afternoon.

Saturday's final is over 36 holes. Giles won it at Hoylake in England last year.

If he wins again, he'll be the first American to take the title in consecutive years since Lawson Little did it in 1934 and 1935.

Dick Siderowf, 38-year-old stockbroker from Westport, Conn., went 20 holes Thursday

NEW TWO

Introducing two fun Toyotas that are incredibly functional. The new Corolla Liftback and Corolla Sport Coupe. Both have eye-stopping, sporty good looks inside and out. Both are available in sporty-equipped SR-5 and Deluxe models. They round out Toyota's quality line of Corollas.

Functional fun. We designed the Corolla Liftback to be stylishly sporty looking, and yet it's a practical car with two doors plus a wide rear liftback that opens into a spacious cargo area. Its versatility continues with a unique fold down split rear seat. Fold it all the way down and you've made enough room to hold three carts of groceries. Fold half the split rear seat down and you can carry long awkward loads, and there's still a seat left in the back to carry a passenger.

Economical to operate. The new Corolla SR-5 Liftback and Sport Coupe have a standard 5-speed overdrive transmission to give you great gas mileage and performance. 1976 EPA tests with 5-speed overdrive transmission, 39 MPG highway, 24 city. These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary, depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment. An automatic transmission is available on Deluxe models.

No-cost extras. Toyota has always been known to give you a long list of extras at no extra cost. The two new Corollas are no exceptions. Every Corolla is equipped with standard features like: reclining bucket seats, power assisted front disc brakes, MacPherson strut front suspension, transistorized ignition, styled steel wheels, and power boosted flo-thru ventilation, all included in the list price.

Toyota stands behind Toyota quality. There are nearly 1,000 authorized Toyota dealers across the U.S. comprising a network of service departments staffed with Toyota trained mechanics. Quality. You got it. The new generation of Corollas. If you can find a better-built small car than a Toyota... buy it!

Elizabeth Ray Quiet; Looks To Book Sales

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray is claiming to have had relationships with several members of Congress besides Wayne Hays, informed sources say. But her lawyer hints that she's keeping mum on the details so that she doesn't destroy the cash value of her memoirs.

She and her lawyer say the book she has written will spell out details of her alleged liaisons with Washington men. One informed source, asked about a published report that Miss Ray claimed bedroom encounters with 15 members of Congress, said:

"That's the correct order of magnitude. By that, I mean it's less than the capacity of a football stadium and greater than zero."

Seymour Feig, who describes himself as Miss Ray's show business lawyer, declined to say how many men have trooped barefoot across the red carpet in her apartment. "No comment," he said. "Read the book."

Her $14,000-a-year job with Hays' House Administration Committee has ended and her lawyer says she doesn't have any income now.

Although Miss Ray has fled her now famous suburban apartment, Feig remained, negotiating to sell interviews or articles.

"This girl has no source of income," Feig said. "Somebody has to take care of her." He said she has not yet received a congressional paycheck for her last week on the House payroll.

So her economic future depends, it appears, on public acceptance of her book, now being rushed into print by Dell Publishing Co.

Although Feig urges quiet-

ers to read the book (Dell hasn't announced yet what it will sell for), it seems doubtful that it will clear up any of the more pressing questions such as who and how many.

The book, called "The Washington Fringe Benefit," names no names and is described as a "novel" by Dell executives.

One lawyer involved in the publication said Dell's attorneys decided against issuing the work as non-fiction because they feared that if actual persons were named, they might sue for libel.

Since the law makes it relatively easy for publishers to win libel suits brought by public figures such as congressmen, Dell's decision to fictionalize Miss Ray's stories is an admission that her claims are weak, the lawyer admitted.

Extensive inquiries have so far produced no support for a published account that Miss Ray kept a tape recorder under her bed to record amorous adventures with congressmen. A Justice Department source said Thursday that, contrary to the account, Miss Ray had not told federal agents of such recordings.

Miss Ray denies making any such tapes to back up her stories.

Author New Work

Dr. Avtar Singh, professor of sociology at East Carolina University, is co-author of a new book, Villages Upward Bound, a sociological study of community structure and technological development in selected villages of India.

Dr. Singh served as field work supervisor for the study conducted in 1964 and in 1972. Sponsoring research organization was the Social Science Research Center of Mississippi State University. Dr. Singh and two other co-authors were on the staff of the MSU center in the late 1960s when basic organization of the book was formulated.

The work is co-authored by Drs. Singh, Harold F. Kaufman and Satadal Dasgupta, and was published by Editions Indian, Calcutta.

Inlet Fate Undecided

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The eventual fate of the inlet at Carolina Beach remains unsettled after the release of an interim study report by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The narrow, shallow inlet could be dredged and widened, as fishermen and boating interests would like, the corps said.

It could also be left alone; the tides and the winds would soon close it completely, the corps added.

The study did not recommend either of those two courses or any of 11 other specific alternatives. Some of the other possibilities include construction of jetties and offshore breakwaters.

The corps will hold a public hearing on its report on June 28 in Carolina Beach.

Winterville Board Meets

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board will meet Monday at 7 p.m. Major topics of business to be discussed include the following: the 1976-77 town budget, bids for auditing, resignation of a planning board member, a proposal from Seaboard Coastline Railroad, and approval of the Dawn View Subdivision.

Grifton Recreation

GRIFTON—The Grifton Summer Recreation Program will begin June 21 at the Town Park on St. David Street and run for eight weeks through August 13.

Supervision will be provided for all ages with a full-time director and three assistants. Mrs. Fay Bollinger will be director and will be assisted by three high school students, Hope Mullen, Rex Anne Thorne, and Karen Haseley.

The recreational program's hours will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each week day and children who find it inconvenient to go home for lunch may bring lunches to the park.

The fee for participation in the program will be $5 per child for the entire summer which will help fund the cost of some of the games and craft materials used. Any family who finds the $5 a hardship may contact Mrs. Bollinger or Town Clerk Mrs. Nan Smith.

Hearing On Grifton Budget

GRIFTON — A public hearing has been scheduled for Monday, June 14 at 8 p.m. to discuss the proposed budget for the Town of Grifton for the 1976-77 year. The tentative budget totals $550,794.

The budget must be approved by the Grifton Board of Commissioners by July 1.

District Office

RALEIGH—The Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America Inc. has opened a district office at 3825 Barrett Drive, Raleigh.

According to Alton Hinson, regional coordinator, this office will be responsible public health education, community and patient services, and fund raising in the Raleigh-Durham and Coastal Plain area of N.C.

"Last year MDA spent 80 per cent of its income on direct program services," Hinson said. "All of the Association's services are provided free of charge to the patient with no means test required. It is funded almost entirely by individual contributions, with no tax-supported government grants."

Anyone wishing information about muscular dystrophy or other neuromuscular diseases may contact the district office, phone, 782-4735.

As Exclusive Sales Agents for WEDCO homes in LAKE ELLSWORTH

We take a great deal of pride in presenting the following letter from a happy homeowner.
 May 18, 1976

Mr. William E. Dansey
 P. O. Box 443
 Greenville, N. C. 27834

Dear Bill:

We have lived in Lake Ellsworth for a little over two years now and have truly enjoyed watching the development grow. After two years we felt that a letter of appreciation was long overdue, but sincerely written.

Bill, right from the time we entered into our contract to buy, it has been our pleasure to be associated with WEDCO. Like any new home, we had some problems, but the manner in which they were remedied was most satisfactory. We have great pride in our home and enjoy our daily lives in Lake Ellsworth.

Lake Ellsworth has been designed to offer so much for every member of the family. There are many areas for our children to play and lots of friends to play with. The lighted tennis courts, the club house which rents very reasonably to residents, the pool in the summer and the lake for fishing: all are real benefits of living in Lake Ellsworth. One thing Terry and I really appreciate is the land you let us use for a vegetable garden. This area seems like country living within the Greenville City Limits.

Now that the Lake Ellsworth Civic Association is organized and functioning, the residents are looking forward to more community activities for both children and adults. We hope you can attend some of our activities.

Thanks Bill, for making Lake Ellsworth such a nice place to live.

Sincerely,
Richard and Terry Pike

How They Voted On Roll Call Ballots

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 20 through 26.

HOUSE
NUCLEAR SAFETY — Adopted, 238 for and 140 against, an amendment providing that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) receive "reasonable assurance" of safety before granting a construction permit for the proposed Clinch River breeder reactor nuclear power plant.

The amendment only re-stated existing NRC policy. Its chief impact was to blunt a separate amendment proposing a more demanding safety requirement — that the plant design be demonstrated as safe before issuance of the construction permit. Such a requirement now must be met only before issuance of an operating permit. Those voting "nay" favored the tougher, more complex standard. The amendments were considered during debate on H.R. 13350, a bill authorizing $7 billion in fiscal 1977 for the Energy Research and Development Administration, later passed and sent to the Senate.

The $2 billion Clinch River plant is the Administration's pilot project to test the liquid metal fast-breeder reactor, viewed as the next-generation source of nuclear power. Oak Ridge, Tenn. is the site of the proposed plant.

Supporters of the amendment argued that existing regulations adequately check safety. Rep. Mike McCormack (D-Wash.) said the tougher standards would impose staggering technological burdens on the NCR and "force the NCR to see in a crystal ball 10 years in the future what the reactor would be like even before it is built."

Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Minn.), an opponent said: "The basic design questions relating to health and safety ought to be settled before we put the $2 billion into it."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Richardson Preyer (D-6), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Rep. Stephen Neal (D-5) voted "nay."

Reps. Charles Rose (D-7) and James Martin (R-9) did not vote.

THE BUREAUCRACY — Defeated, 111 for and 178 against, a motion to send back to committee a bill (HR 12679) extending several U.S. Public Health Service programs. The motion sought to prevent the addition of 30 high-level jobs on the National Center for Health Services Research, the National Center for Health Statistics and the National Library of Medicine. Its defeat left intact a planned increase from 150 to 180 in the number of scientist, researcher and administrator positions, each paying in the $30,000 — $35,000 range. HR 12679 was later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), sponsor of the motion, said the approximately $1 million in additional salaries annually "is a somewhat unreasonable request with our present budgetary position," adding: "I do not really believe that this high level of help is going to produce all that much work."

Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Fla.), an opponent, said: "Statisticians and scientists are expensive, but so are these programs and health care and it is incumbent on us to assure that these programs are run by the best people."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews and Taylor voted "yea."

Neal, Preyer and Broyhill voted "nay."

Jones, Rose, Hefner and Martin did not vote.

CONGRESSIONAL LIAISON — Defeated, 143 for and 178 against, a bill (HR 9810) creating the post of Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Congressional Affairs. The official was to have been appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The congressional affairs post, essentially a lobbying position, is now filled by a special assistant to the Secretary of Commerce.

Rep. Fred Rooney (D-Pa.), a supporter, said the request was "not unusual" since eight of the 10 other Cabinet departments have a similar post. "Effective communication between the department and . . . Congress could be enhanced by subjecting this key position to the confirmation process. . . ." Rep. Harley Staggers (D-W.Va.), added.

No one spoke against the bill during floor debate. Many critics felt, however, that the Commerce Department already has a sufficient lobbying and liaison presence on Capitol Hill.

Jones, Preyer and Broyhill voted "yea."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Taylor and Hefner voted "nay."

Martin did not vote.
B1 BOMBER — Adopted, 44 for and 37 against, an amendment to postpone production of the B1 bomber. The amendment prevents the spending of $1 billion in fiscal 1977 funds to build the first three airplanes until the next President certifies, after next Feb. 1, that production is in the "national interest."

Passage of the amendment sets back the Air Force's plan to begin building the planes in November. The amendment was attached to the fiscal 1977 military procurement authorization (HR 12384), later passed and sent to conference with the House.

The B1, whose prime contractor is Rockwell Industries of California, is a manned bomber intended to replace the B52 in the 1980's. The 244-plane fleet is expected to cost about $22 billion, about $88 million per copy.

Supporters of the amendment to delay production generally argued that the B1 has not been sufficiently tested. Sen. Dale Bumpers (D-Ark.) said: ". . . too many questions still remain in my own mind about, first, the ability of the B1 to perform its primary mission; second, the possibility of obsolescence. . . . and third, the availability of a more effective alternative weapons system. . . ."

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), an opponent, called the B1 "the finest strategic weapon that has ever been developed by any country. . . ." He said the amendment "is taking a major defense issue and turning it into a political one. . . ."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

CONSUMER NOMINATION — Confirmed, 45 for and 39 against, the nomination of S. John Byington to a two-and-a-half year term on the Consumer Product Safety Commission. This vote reversed a vote two days earlier in which the Senate, with 30 members absent, rejected the nomination.

Byington, from Grand Rapids, Michigan, has been deputy assistant to the President for consumer affairs since 1974. His nomination was strongly opposed by the Consumer Federation of America and other consumer groups.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kans.), a supporter, said Byington is "very knowledgeable" about consumer affairs and legislation. "I do not think he needs to take a pledge that he will support certain legislation or advocate it in this position," Dole added.

Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), an opponent, said:

"Mr. Byington's record. . . is that he did not do much for the consumer. In fact he leaned the other way." Another opponent, Sen. John Durkin (D-N.H.), said that Byington's only qualification for the job is "that he happens to come from the President's hometown."

Helms voted "yea." Morgan did not vote.

Says Rickover Defying Boss

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's top civilian cost specialist says Adm. Hyman G. Rickover is openly defying the secretary of defense and should be disciplined for "working to torpedo" a Pentagon plan to settle about $1.5 billion in claims by major shipbuilders.

"Adm. Rickover has so arrogantly abused the power . . . that has been reposed in his high office that he has forfeited the right to hold that office," said Gordon Rule, director of Navy procurement control. He accused Rickover of "harassment of private nuclear shipyard management."

Like Rickover, Rule has been something of a gadfly, criticizing some Navy shipbuilding programs in the past. This time, however, Rule said he supports decisions of the Pentagon brass on the claims issue.

Rickover's office said the admiral would have no comment on Rule's blast, delivered Wednesday before the Shipbuilders Council.

Rickover's latest conflict with the Pentagon leadership grows out of the Defense Department's plan to dispose of claims filed by three major companies on contracts to build some 70 ships for the Navy.

Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements has said the backlog developed because contracts signed before 1970 did not adequately protect contractors against the abnormal inflation that set in later.

Other officials have said the shipbuilders have indicated "they would be disinterested" in further Navy ship construction work unless their claims were settled.

In mid-May, Clements urged Congress to approve the Pentagon's settlement plan, which officials said would avert contractor losses of $467 million, and yield the firms a profit of at least $74 million. The plan had the blessing of Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

However, Rickover wrote Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., opposing the Pentagon proposal.

Rickover said the shipbuilding firms should be required to comply with their original contracts with the Navy rather than being allowed settlement of what he called their "inflated" claims.
