

Lebanon Embassy To Evacuate Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today ordered the U.S. Embassy in Beirut to evacuate by convoy any American citizens in war-torn Lebanon who want to leave. The convoy—expected to head for Damascus, Syria—would be without protection from U.S. military forces.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the embassy "strongly urged" Americans to leave, calling the advice one notch more urgent than a warning standing since October urging U.S. citizens to clear out unless they have pressing reasons to stay.

An embassy spokesman said 30 of the 1,350 Americans and their 470 non-U.S. dependents in Lebanon had signed up to leave Saturday with a British convoy for Damascus. The distinct impression among observers was that concern was higher in Washington than Beirut.

A Pentagon spokesman said today he did not know how the evacuation Ford ordered — expected to consist of a convoy of buses and cars — would be protected. State Department officials would not comment.

In Beirut, it was reported that the convoy organized by the British would be protected by Palestinian, Libyan and Syrian troops.

It was not known when the convoy would roll, or where the cars and buses would be obtained, but a State Department spokesman said preparations would begin immediately.

The word from Washington was received at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut as its staff was busy arranging to send the bodies of U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr. and his economic counselor, Robert O. Waring, to Damascus to be flown from there to Washington. The two and their Lebanese driver were murdered in Lebanon Wednesday.

The reports from Beirut said U.S. Embassy officials there could give no information about their plans for American evacuees.

The first available transportation out for anyone wanting to go would be the convoy of about 50 buses the British Embassy was organizing for Saturday.

The decision to evacuate was made Thursday night in a 90-minute meeting of Ford and the National Security Council. The President called the meeting to consider whether and how to withdraw Americans after the murder of the two U.S. diplomats.

Ford and his advisers decided against military involvement in the evacuation.

The convoy evacuation method carries some risks, U.S. planners believe. They said Thursday that the security situation in Lebanon is so unstable that departing Americans could be in danger of attack from any of the armed bands roaming Beirut and the countryside.

They worry that convoys of buses and cars would be vulnerable for perhaps the first 20 miles after they leave for Damascus. After that, the convoys would be under the protection of the Syrian army.

The French Embassy sent an unescorted, 18-car convoy of evacuees to Damascus on Tuesday. "The trip went off okay, but I wouldn't want to do it again," said a French official who rode in the lead car.

The State Department said the U.S. Embassy in Beirut will remain open in order "to bring an end to the strife which has brought this tragedy to Lebanon." Nonessential Embassy personnel will leave.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a House committee Thursday that a new ambassador would be named next week to succeed Meloy.

One possible successor, L. Dean Brown, a retired ambassador and Arab specialist who served as a mediator between warring factions, was in Damascus to escort Meloy's and Waring's bodies back home.

Cancels Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today canceled a campaign trip to Iowa because of the American evacuation from Lebanon and the tense situation there.

Ford had been scheduled to attend a $25-a-plate testimonial dinner that would have marked the first time during the presidential campaign that the President and Ronald Reagan would sit down at the same table.

B-1 Has Votes In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed $22-billion B1 bomber got another endorsement in the House, which rejected attempts to delay production of the supersonic plane.

Opponents of the plane say they will continue their fight in the Senate, but an influential House backer said after Thursday's vote: "We've got the plane."

Approving a record $105.6-billion defense appropriation bill, the House rejected 207 to 186 an effort to delay B1 production money until next Feb. 1 so the next president can decide whether to go ahead with the plane.

The House cut a total of $550 million from the total bill in smaller programs. That, plus cuts made by the House Appropriations Committee, trimmed the bill $1.2 billion below Ford's requests.

Some supporters of the move to delay production are hoping Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter will win in November. Carter says he would scrap plans for the plane, while President Ford favors building the plane to replace the B52 strategic bomber in the 1980s.

Unless prohibited by Congress, the Air Force plans to award contracts for the plane in November or December.

The House approved the $105.6-billion defense appropriation 331 to 53 and sent it to the Senate.

The Senate voted 44 to 37 in May to delay the B1 money until next Feb. 1. The House rejected that proposal the first time, 210 to 177. That action was on the weapons procurement authorization bill in which Congress must make policy decisions.

House-Senate conferees have not settled the B1 issue in that bill, but the plane's supporters were confident that the House's second refusal to delay the money will end the effort to do so.

Eastern Belt Leaf Sales Scheduled Begin July 20

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco will be ready for market earlier than usual this year, the Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Commission has been told as growers and warehousemen pressed for early market opening dates.

The committee, which recommends selling dates and other marketing rules for flue-cured tobacco, conceded to the demands and set July 8 for the first day of sales on the Florida-Georgia Belt, the earliest region. The committee's recommendations are subject to approval by the U.S. Department of Agriculture but are normally adopted.

The unusual Thursday opening day for the Florida-Georgia Belt was chosen to avoid conflict with the Independence Day holiday.

Next to open will be the North Carolina Border-South Carolina Belt on July 13. The Eastern North Carolina Belt is to open July 20. The panel delayed a decision on when to open the Old and Middle Belts—composed of Piedmont North Carolina and Virginia—until its July 12 meeting.

The committee is composed of growers, buyers, warehousemen and farm organization representatives from Florida, Georgia, Virginia and the Carolinas.

Representatives of each of the flue-cured states gave the committee status reports on the crop.

The Florida crop is developing quickly, but two weeks of heavy rain followed by a hot spell have caused some damage, said Pleas Strickland of the Florida Agriculture Department.

This year's Georgia crop would be the earliest ever but it would be short by about 15 per cent because of heavy rain for the past month, David Newton of the Georgia department predicted.

Max Lloyd of South Carolina said the Palmetto State would produce a little more than its full quota this season.

John Cyrus of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture said most of the state's tobacco would be ready for sale about two to three weeks earlier than it was last year. Also, he said, North Carolina could sell at least as much leaf as was sold last year, a record year.

Fred G. Bond, president of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., told the committee he believes the organization will buy 150 million pounds of tobacco this season. The organization already has 340 million pounds in stock, he said.

The corporation buys leaf that fails to sell on the open market at a price at least as high as the federal price support. It sells the leaf during slack sales times and passes along any profits to growers.

South African Riots Are Spreading; Toll Mounts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) White-ruled South Africa's bloody racial upheaval spread to at least seven black African townships and to other parts of the country today. The three-day uprising has left at least 58 persons reported dead and 788 wounded.

Reports of rioting and clashes with police over a widening area suggested the casualty figures were already much higher.

At least two persons reportedly were killed by police gunfire today at Alexandria, a black settlement on the northern fringes of Johannesburg. Police Minister James T. Kruger declared a ban on all outdoor public gatherings until June 29 under South Africa's Riotous Assemblies Act.

Police reported general calm was restored in Soweto—the battleground in rioting Wednesday and Thursday—but said sporadic outbreaks of violence and looting were continuing.

The worst violence today was in Alexandra, where the South African Press Association reported police opened fire on a screaming mob of blacks, mostly juveniles.

Young Africans set up roadblocks to prevent hundreds of riot police armed with automatic rifles and tear gas from moving into the area.

A blanket of acrid smoke from burning buildings and the tear gas covered the shanty-town, nine miles from the Johannesburg city center.

The shooting began after rioters set fire to several buildings—including a church and liquor stores—and at least a dozen vehicles.

There was no immediate indication, however, the rioting would spread to nearby white suburbs. Heavily armed police cordoned off Alexandra.

About 3,000 blacks went on a rampage at Vosloorus township, about 15 miles southeast of Johannesburg, and set four buses and a beer hall ablaze. At nearby Natalspruit, rioters stoned passing cars and set fire to buses.

Two government employees were trapped inside a brewery near the outskirts of the white city of Germiston, also near Vosloorus. Police armed with automatic rifles set up roadblocks around Vosloorus, and one police officer said the mood of the crowd was ugly.

The black University of the North at Pietermaritzburg was tense this morning as students gathered on a football field watched by police.

Rioting students at the black University of Zululand on the east coast dispersed after burning down several buildings, police said. Firemen who rushed to the scene were forced back by rock-throwing students, they said.

Jumped In Pool To Save Youth

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A traveling salesman, James Trefny, 31, of Raleigh, who was a life-guard at Nags Head for 12 years, jumped into a motel pool with his clothes on and saved a teen-aged South Carolina boy from drowning Thursday night.

He plucked 13-year-old Wayne Mark of Hartsville from eight feet of water after the boy had sunk and become unconscious.

Trefny gave the lad mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, and got him breathing again.

Wayne, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mark, and two older brothers were stopping at the Holiday Inn on North Tryon Street in Charlotte.

Uphold Right To Fire Illegally Striking Teachers

WASHINGTON (AP) — School boards have the constitutional right to fire illegally striking teachers with whom they are negotiating a work contract, the Supreme Court ruled Thursday.

By a vote of 6 to 3, the justices reversed a decision of the Wisconsin Supreme Court that the Hortonville, Wis., school board exceeded its power by discharging striking teachers in 1974.

The Hortonville Education Association and the six fired teachers contended that the board's action was a denial of due process of law because the board was too involved in the dispute to give them a fair hearing.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the high court said the fact that the board was "involved" in events leading up to its decision "is not enough to overcome the presumption of honesty and integrity in policy makers with decision making power."

"The constituents have declared the board members qualified to deal with these problems, and they are accountable to the voters for the manner in which they perform," the court said. "Permitting the board to make the decision at issue here preserves its control over school district affairs, leaves the balance of power in labor relations where the state legislature struck it, and assures that the decision whether to dismiss the teachers will be made by the body responsible for that decision under state law."

Justices Potter Stewart, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented, saying the case should be sent back to the state court to determine whether there was a "constitutionally unacceptable danger of partiality" under state law.

The teachers of the rural community with a population of 8,500 went on an illegal strike March 18, 1974. Two days later the school superintendent wrote each an invitation to return to work. Several did.

Three days later a second letter went out again inviting the teachers to return to their jobs. This letter contained a notice that the strike was illegal and the board would not condone it. None of the teachers returned. Separate notices of disciplinary hearings then were sent.

N.C. Reaganites Gird For Push

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A showdown is likely this week during the North Carolina Republican party convention when supporters of presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan try to take all of the remaining 21 slots for delegates to the national convention in August. State party Chairman Bob Shaw announced Thursday he will not seek election as a delegate because Tom Ellis, head of the North Carolina Reagan campaign, said he would work for Shaw's defeat unless the chairman pledges to support Reagan.

Also, Gov. Jim Holshouser, the state's highest elected Republican, may be denied a delegate slot. On Wednesday, Holshouser announced he would seek election as a delegate. He is President Ford's southern campaign chairman.

Ellis said Thursday night he would try to defeat Holshouser. If Holshouser is a delegate, that would be one less for Reagan, Ellis said.

Reagan supporters organized at the precinct and district levels and have gained control of the state convention. They elected Reagan backers to 30 of the 33 delegate slots filled so far in district conventions.

Because he won the state's March 23 primary, Reagan is entitled to 28 Tar Heel votes on the first nomination ballot. Ford is entitled to 25 and one delegate is uncommitted.

There are two reasons Reagan backers want their people in as many seats as possible: after the first nomination ballot, delegates will be free to go on to win the Democratic primary in his eastern Ohio district earlier this month and now faces a Republican and an independent in the November election.

Meanwhile, District of Columbia officials said they are re-considering a policy that exempts members of Congress from arrest on misdemeanors.

The reassessment was prompted by published reports that Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., was detained earlier this year after soliciting a police-woman disguised as a prostitute. Soliciting a prostitute is a misdemeanor punishable by a $250 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

Waggoner said, however, that police were satisfied with his account of the incident and let him go. His story differed from that of police.

Police Chief Maurice J. Cullinane confirmed that Waggoner was detained and then released. He explained that under department policy members of Congress are immune from arrest in all misdemeanor cases.

Waggoner told reporters that he was not picked up for soliciting a decoy policewoman. Instead, he said, after a woman tried and failed to entice him, an unmarked car pulled alongside, frightening him and causing him to flee the scene.

Rep. Wayne Hays Said Quitting Chairmanship

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays, whose relationship with Elizabeth Ray touched off the Capitol Hill payroll sex scandal, said today he is stepping down as chairman of the House Administration Committee.

"The charges which have been made against me and the current state of my health make it impossible for me to devote time necessary to carry out my responsibilities as chairman of the House Administration Committee," Hays said in a letter to the Democratic leadership.

The three-paragraph letter was released by Hays' office shortly after House Speaker Carl Albert announced that Hays had told him he is relinquishing the powerful committee post.

But Hays, who is recovering in a Barnsville, Ohio, hospital from an overdose of sleeping pills, indicated he might try to regain the post later.

"I am confident that I will be vindicated as to any wrongdoing and when that occurs, I shall ask for a re-examination of my position by the (House Democratic) caucus," the letter concluded.

Sources close to the Democratic leadership said Thursday night that Hays will soon announce plans not to run for re-election in November. Hays previously stepped down as chairman of the House Democratic campaign committee which channels campaign funds to candidates.

In a one-line statement released along with the letter, Hays denied that he is resigning from Congress.

His press secretary, Carol Clawson, said he plans to seek re-election "at this time."

The speaker said the leadership's Democratic Steering and Policy Committee will meet after it gets the letter to nominate a new chairman.

Albert told newsmen he was not sure whether Hays intends to resign the chairmanship permanently or simply to step aside pending investigation of Miss Ray's allegations.

But House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said the naming of a new chairman will make Hays action, however he terms it himself, a resignation from the chairmanship of the committee.

"There's no stepping aside," O'Neill said. "You don't step aside, you step down." Albert said Hays did not mention during their conversation Thursday afternoon whether he might retire from Congress at the end of this session.

Hays previously stepped down as chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, which channels campaign funds to candidates.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., the Administration Committee's senior Democrat behind Hays, was said to be the leading choice to succeed him as chairman.

It was Hays' relationship with former committee staffer Miss Ray that started a series of allegations about sex in Capitol Hill offices.

Miss Ray last month told the news media that she was paid $14,000 a year to do nothing but supply sex to Hays. She said she couldn't type, take dictation or even answer the telephone.

Hays at first denied any relations with Miss Ray but later took the House floor to acknowledge that he had a "personal relationship" with her. Hays insisted she was a skilled office worker and that the taxpayers got their money's worth.

Hays, now finishing his 14th two-year term in Congress,

Arrested For Arson Attempt

Chester Cory Jr., 32, of 618D Hudson St. was arrested about 3:10 a.m. today on charges of attempted arson following a 1 a.m. incident at his Hudson Street home, according to Police Department Capt. Paul Jewett.

Jewett said Corey allegedly poured gasoline on the furniture and floor of the apartment while his wife and children were asleep, then left the dwelling.

The captain noted that a gas stove, with its pilot light burning, luckily failed to ignite the flammable vapors from the gasoline.

The Fire Department was called to the scene and used special exhaust fans designed for use in explosive atmospheres to clear the dwelling of the fumes.

Claim Finding New Elements

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Scientists at Florida State University say they have discovered three and possibly six new natural elements — the first new ones in 51 years.

Using a sophisticated particle accelerator, the team of physicists said Thursday that it found the new elements to be super-heavy, weighing more than uranium.

Elements, such as oxygen, copper and sulfur, constitute the fundamental building blocks which alone or in combination with other elements make up matter.

The new elements were found in minute quantities in clumps of mica rock discovered by Dr. Robert Gentry of the Oak Ridge National laboratory in Tennessee, the scientists said.

Dr. Alex Zucker, associate director at Oak Ridge, said it was too soon to confirm the findings.

"From time to time, this hunt looks like it's going to bag something. Usually these hopes turn out to be ephemeral," he said.

However, Dr. J. William Nelson, an FSU physicist on the team, said he was confident new elements had been found because the scientists had been able to photograph the struc-

Police Check 3 Accidents

An estimated $5,000 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 2:30 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive, 90 feet North of the Langley Street intersection involving a car driven by Ann Harris Forelines of Winterville and a truck driven by Linwood Elmo Lang of 1417 Jule St.

Police, who reported Mrs. Forelines was injured, estimated damage at $200 to the truck driven by Lang and $3,000 to the Forelines car.

Mrs. Forelines was charged with driving too fast for existing conditions.

No charges were reported following investigation of the other two mishaps.

Officers reported a truck operated by Naomi Garris Buck of 1702 Sulgrave Rd. and a car operated by Barbara Jean Russ of Azalea Gardens collided about 4:10 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard at the N.C. 43 intersection causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the truck and $400 damage to the Russ car.

A 5:30 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 250 feet West of the Evans Street intersection involved cars driven by John Paul Gamboa of Route 2, Farmville and Willie Earl Joyner of 304B Darden Dr.

Investigators set damage at $300 to the Gamboa car and $100 to the Joyner car.

Make Certain!

Recently there have been a number of cases of people posing as building or fire inspectors inspecting houses and making recommendations about repairs needed and suggesting contractors who might do the work. Chief City Building Inspector Alton Warren said.

"It should be brought to the attention of the general public that before any inspector is allowed inside any house located in the City of Greenville or extrajurisdictional limits, the person should be required to show identification which should include badge and identification card," Warren said. "Further, property owners should require and be certain that all contractors have privilege licenses to operate in Greenville and that they have obtained permit for any work prior to the beginning of the work."

If there are any questions, the home owner or occupant should call 752-4137 and ask for the Inspections Department, he suggested.

ECU Coed, Karate Expert Parents Anonymous Meet Set

Is Self Employed Painter

ECU COED . . . Vikki Morrow wields her putt knife on a summer painting job in downtown Greenville. (ECU News Bureau photo by Marinanne Baines)

While literally thousands of college students are working off-campus in various occupations this summer, thousands more are seeking jobs and having problems finding them.

The philosophy of Vikki Morrow, an East Carolina University coed, is that a job can be found where there's work to be done. With that philosophy, Vikki keeps busy. She's a painter, self-employed.

With brushes, buckets of paint, ladder, drop cloth and putty knife, Vikki can be found anywhere around Greenville this summer at work on jobs for which she's contracted. That's enterprise.

A lady painter isn't really unusual, but it's an interesting pleasure to watch Vikki work. She's good at it, and enjoys her job.

"I began painting about a year ago," said the 25-year-old native of Mooresville, a 1969 graduate of Mooresville High School. If she's especially agile on the ladder and quick with her brush and strokes, there's good reason for that too. She's an expert at karate.

For a while, before going to work as a painter, Vikki owned a local karate studio and was a karate instructor. She has won more than 60 awards at karate and was named the No. 1 female karate competitor in the Southeast.

At ECU, she's a junior majoring in parks, recreation and conservation with a minor in the Coastal Marine Resources program. In addition, she does volunteer work with the Greenville Recreation department. And she continues to instruct in karate.

All of which keeps her active, agile and busy, not to mention the fact that painting can be profitable.

What better way for a college coed to spend a summer?

Kathy Jonas, regional coordinator for Parents Anonymous, a self-help group of parents attempting to control their physical or verbal abuse of their children, will meet with persons interested in forming a local chapter Thursday, June 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the fellowship hall of St. James United Methodist Church.

The Parents Anonymous organizational meeting is scheduled in conjunction with a two-day Child Abuse Workshop co-sponsored by East Carolina University.

Parents Anonymous has chapters throughout the nation, whose members share experiences and help each other build strength to control patterns of child abuse. It publishes a newsletter, "P.A. Frontiers."

According to Ms. Jonas, parents who answer "yes" to one or more of the following questions could benefit from attending Parents Anonymous meetings:

—Are you a troubled or nervous parent who has no place to get help?

—When you are ready to blow up it is you and the children who bear the brunt of it?

—Do you feel confused, guilty and frightened about your parental behavior and feelings?

—Do you believe that you were treated indifferently or cruelly as a child and that now you're repeating some of the past?

—When you hear the words "abuse" or "neglect" do you end up thinking about your childhood or the parenting you're doing now?

—Are you physically or emotionally abusing or neglecting one or more of your children?

—Do you want your relationship with your children to be different . . . your family life more fulfilling . . . less explosive and tense . . . more loving?

Further information about the organizational meeting and the Child Abuse Workshop is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 88 and lives with my sister. Every time my sister wants to take a trip, my mother insists that I stay with her. The problem is that it is not always convenient for me, but she absolutely refuses to have a "sitter," as she calls them.

Mother has over half a million dollars in the bank and investments that pay her a very handsome steady income, so she can well afford a live-in companion.

When we (her daughters) were growing up, she was far from a loving mother. She used to abuse us, physically and verbally, so we have very little love for her. (How could we have?)

My husband resents the fact that we are not free to make plans. We are both retired and have ample income, so Mama's inheritance means nothing to us. We just want to live our own lives. Please help.

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Why are you trapped? If you feel that your mother's demands are unreasonable, tell her so. And if she disinherits you, she disinherits you! There is no price tag on your independence, unless you yourself place one there.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and now planning my wedding. I have three older sisters who are all married. The eldest is 27. My problem is that I can't afford to have more than four attendants.

Everyone in my family (especially my mother) has been pressuring me to have my sisters in the wedding party, or at least to have my oldest sister as my matron of honor.

I love my sisters very much, and don't want to hurt them, but I think a wedding is the time to show friends how much you think of them. My sisters already know how much I care for them.

Also, my friends are much prettier and can add more class to my wedding than my sisters can. Is there anything wrong with my feeling this way?

WEDDING PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: If you really want to show "class," ask your eldest sister to be your matron of honor and your other two sisters to be bridesmaids. And select one friend to show her how much you care for her.

FROZEN FOOD

CHICAGO (UPI) — A recent consumer profile indicates age and income are among the key factors determining how much of a household's food budget is spent on frozen products.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board says usage of frozen food at home increases with income. Almost half the respondents in the over-$20,000 income range said they spent more than $4 a week on frozen food, while only 22 per cent of those with incomes under $6,000 a year spent as much.

The biggest consumers among age groups were 40-to-49-year-olds, and the smallest, the under-30s and over 60s.

YOGURT CUCUMBER SOUP
Another version of a Persian delight.

- 8 ounces plain yogurt
 - 1 cup skim milk
 - 1 large cucumber, pared and grated medium-fine (1 cup not packed)
 - 1 tablespoon minced scallion
 - 2 tablespoons minced fresh dillweed
 - 2 tablespoons golden raisins
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Stir together all the ingredients; chill. The raisins will fall to the bottom of the soup, so stir well as it is served to distribute them; they give the soup a good deal of its charm. Drop an ice cube into each bowl of the soup; the ice will keep the soup chilled as it is eaten and pleasantly thin it. Makes 4 small servings.

I have been singing for about 75 years, but when I was a lad in my teens and had just started taking voice lessons, the Vatican choir came to my town on tour. One of its members was a portly man in his middle years who sang with a pure soprano voice and again, everybody knew how he could do so.

I was told that he was one of the last to have had the castration operation before it was outlawed.

A Caste System Is Stifling

A recent report given to the UNC board of governors contends that the traditionally black institutions have not been discriminated against insofar as state financial support is concerned. The report did not compare the predominantly black institutions with UNC-Chapel Hill and N. C. State University which have extensive graduate programs.

Rather it compared them with institutions of similar educational aims. Appalachian State and N. C. Central University, for example, or Elizabeth City State and UNC-Asheville.

There are tremendous differences between per student appropriations at the various campuses, but it does not involve a differential between the traditionally black and white campuses.

Per capita spending at Appalachian for 1974-75 was $2,002, while at NCCU it was a comparable $1,995. But at the state's traditional university center—Chapel Hill—the figure was $4,054. Those figures are based on tuition and state appropriation. Add in federal grants, contracts, endowment funds at Chapel Hill and the per capita figure goes to $10,382.

Based on the figures it may be difficult to prove a case of financial discrimination based on race, but there is sure to be talk about discrimination against the various institutions, black and white, in the state university system. Granted that it is going to take more money to run the extensive doctorate programs at Chapel Hill and N. C. State, there will still have to be complaints about an English instructor, teaching freshman courses at Chapel Hill being on a different salary scale from a similar instructor at Appalachian or N. C. Central.

Associated Press writer Robert Cullen noted that a strict caste system has developed in the higher educational system.

"Any school will be encouraged to seek improvement, as long as it stays within its class," Cullen wrote. "None will be allowed to step out of class without the board's approval."

"Under the new setup, the East Carolinas, N. C. Centrals and UNC-Charlottes will have a better chance to surpass the elite schools on the basketball court than in the classroom."

We would never be a party to pulling down the standards at the so-called elite schools, but a system which won't allow all the institutions to experiment and improve could be very stifling for higher education in North Carolina.

Murdered While On A Mission Of Peace

The killing of U. S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy, Jr. in Beirut is a great tragedy for the American diplomatic corps.

Meloy, his economic counselor, and a Lebanese driver were murdered as they drove to a diplomatic meeting.

There are dangers in diplomatic service in unsettled countries, but it is indeed a shame with a U. S. ambassador has to be killed while on a peaceful mission.

THIS AFTERNOON

Sweeping Changes In Laws

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — While this election year will find many candidates talking about North Carolina schools and what ought to be done about the problems there, it will be December before the public gets a firm grip and what what direction things may take.

A special study commission of the General Assembly, chaired by State Senator Ed Renfrow, D-Johnston, plans to file its proposals to completely rewrite the state school law with the State Board of Education at that time.

Then in January, 1977, those recommendations will go to the General Assembly and the fight will be on. For some of those proposals will be quite explosive.

Still in the talking stage in various subcommittees of the Renfrow Commission, members of that study group have reached basic agreement on some directions.

Other Changes

Even further change will take place when the State Board of Education reviews the material and makes recommendations for change or deletion, and decides which parts will be pushed; and when present candidates for office who are elected make good on their promises regarding public education by putting their suggestions into proposals which will likely be worked on jointly.

Further, a number of legislators have themselves come up with some proposed changes which will put forth from the House Committee on Education chaired by State Rep. Thomas B. Hunter, D-Richmond.

Based on conversations with several of the leaders in various reform activities, the following general shape of proposed changes can be seen:

The most controversial move will be elimination of smaller school systems within various counties. The state now has 147 districts in 100 counties. Probably phased in over a five-year period, school systems would be merged to form one per county.

While much attention is focused on the election of a state superintendent of public instruction, this may be the last such official elected statewide. The superintendent would be hired (or fired) by a State Board of Education named by the General Assembly and the governor from nominees submitted by local school boards.

Some steps are assured to bring closer cooperation between public school people and the teacher-training institutions to make sure future teachers are better trained in needed fields.

Some action is being considered on testing and certifying teachers so that state and local officials can pick better from the surplus of applicants available now.

Discipline

Discipline and dropout problems would be partially met by a "Discipline Hall" approach to which youngsters causing problems in the classroom could be assigned to separate him or her from the serious students.

Grade three may become a stopping place for children who have not learned to read or write. Convinced that mastering those basic skills early is the key to future performance in school, some legislators think minimum mandatory skill levels should be met.

Testing of students at various grade levels and in different skills will be required at local schools in light of growing dissatisfaction with statewide testing programs which do not pinpoint problem areas. The idea of measuring the

Faith A Private Thing

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — To use religion as "a tool" to curry public favor is a fraud, says the sister of Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter. "But it is very important that the candidate be a man of faith."

Ruth Carter Stapleton was talking about the relationship of political life and personal convictions, an area highlighted in the current presidential race by her brother's forthright assertions of Christian commitment.

Such commitment "strengthens a person's life to bring honesty and integrity into whatever they're doing, whether it's running a grocery store, carrying a baby or being president," she said in an interview.

"You can't separate a person's spiritual life from other things they do. It's part of everyday living. It's what a person is."

At the same time, she said, faith is a "very private thing, the most private thing we have. It is to be lived rather than just talked about. It is to be experienced. It should not become a political issue in itself."

"But it has everything to do with what a person stands for."

Mrs. Stapleton does extensive spiritual counseling across the country, but has cut down her own schedule to campaign for her brother, and has been on the hustings for him in a dozen states.

Often, she makes her appeal in small gatherings and "coffee," but at times has substituted for him at large rallies when he couldn't make it. "That's very hard to do," she said. But she'll keep at the task to the finish "if he needs me."

There is a trusting affection between them, in a closely loyal family.

A long, thoughtful conversation the two had on a walk through a Georgia pine woods in 1967 has been cited by him as one of the influences bringing him to a full dedication to Christ.

"He finally came to a place of coming into a completely new dimension of commitment," she said. "He is a man of great faith in God, faith in his fellow men and faith in himself."

New Coals To Newcastle

WASHINGTON — A place gets an image and there isn't a darn thing you can do about it. For a while everybody thought Washington, D.C. was one big Watergate. That was bad enough but now, since all the sex scandals, out-of-towners think of our town as Sodom-on-the-Potomac.

The other day I heard from Ralph, an acquaintance out of the past, who announced he was in D.C. for the Bicentennial.

"How's the old boy?" he chortled on the telephone.

"Fine, Ralph. How's your second — or is it third wife?"

"Third," he said. "She's not with me. I told her, 'Honey, I only get to Washington once in my life, and if I brought someone as sexy as you along, it would be like bringing coals to Newcastle.' Ha, ha, ha."

"You were always one to come up with a fresh phrase, Ralph. What did she say to that?"

She said, 'You can take the man out of the boy, but you can't take the boy out of the man.' And she let me go. 'Ida's a great girl. Okay, let's forget the small talk. I have only three days. Where's the action?'"

"What action?" I asked. "Aw c'mon, get off it. The houseboats, the parties in the lobbyists' penthouse apartments, the skinny-dipping in the Georgetown pools — all the stuff I've been reading about."

"Ralph, you're not going to believe this, but I've never seen any of it. It may exist, but I'd be the last guy to know about it if it did."

"You're putting me on," Ralph said. "This town is supposed to be hotter than Havana in its heyday. I'm your buddy and I'm discreet."

Other Editors Say Excess Paperwork

(The Wilson Times)

Story after story has been written on the paper-work demands of the federal government. It is hard on the large manufacturing and business organizations but it is often fatal for the small business.

This unnecessary paper work throws an ever-increasing burden on the American people.

Today you read of raising the debt limit. The 10 billion sheets of forms, applications, reports and the like that federal agencies produce each year drain $40 billion from the economy annually.

The government share of $20 billion is borne by the taxpayer (about $280 per household). The private industry share of $20 billion is passed on to the consumer. But the paper-work burden includes more than cost. It includes time. There have been reports that a typical farmer spends four hours a week on government paper work.

A recent letter from a farmer in Neosho, Wis., irritated over the 20-page, 900-question Agriculture Census form, said, "I've got farming to do. With farm prices so low, I don't have the time or the money to hire a bookkeeper to do this long form. What can they do to me if I refuse to complete it?"

Evidently Congress has received many complaints and letters on the subject of the forms which have to be completed for the $100 penalty for the Ag Census was eliminated in an amendment passed by the House in April. The bill is now before a Senate committee.

The Ag Census is only one of thousands of forms. In 1965 there were 3,800 different government reports required of U.S. citizens and businesses, excluding income tax returns. By 1971, the figure had grown to about 5,300. Today it is estimated to run more than 6,000 not counting about 4,400 more for the Internal Revenue Service. Many of the forms are duplicative, redundant and serve little if any useful, valid or essential government need.

The Commission on Federal Paperwork has found many of the forms Americans fill out under penalty of law are never read. The commission and the IRS have taken action jointly to simplify federal income tax forms, now it is time to cut down on the paper-work burden in all areas.

We must keep after the powers that be, the Congress, and use some common sense in order to eliminate unnecessary and burdensome rules and regulations imposed on the American people by federal regulator agencies.

as hell. Just give me a few numbers. I'll take it from there."

"Okay," I said. "If you go down to 14th Street there's a go-go bar and two movies that specialize in X-rated movies, and two bookstores that sell 'The Story of O.' But don't use my name."

"Listen, we got more than that in Des Moines," Ralph said. "I'm talking about the secretaries who can't type and the typists who aren't allowed to be secretaries, and the runners-up of the Miss Cherry Blossom Festival. That's the kind of girls I want to meet."

"I don't know any of these girls, Ralph. Why don't you go to a singles bar in Bathesda? Maybe you'll find the girl of your dreams."

"Give me the name of someone who chairs a committee in Congress," he said. "Just give me the name of one person up there you know and I won't bother you again."

"Bella Abzug."

"Give me another name," he said.

The GALLUP POLL

Ford Favored In GOP Poll

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Gerald Ford holds a 51 to 41 per cent lead over Ronald Reagan in the latest nationwide survey of Republican voters, completed Monday.

Despite Ford's lead among Republicans nationwide, the race is closer both in terms of the total vote cast in this year's primaries and in terms of the delegate count. Ford, as of this writing, now leads Reagan by 84 delegates, 963 to 879, with 162 uncommitted; 1,130 are needed for nomination.

The results of the primaries generally do not reflect accurately the views of all party members, as measured by scientifically conducted surveys, because voter turnout is typically low. In fact, fewer than one-third of eligible voters, on the average, vote in primary elections and the question arises as to the preferences of non-voters.

Survey results indicate that Ford would have scored better in the primaries this year if younger Republicans, who prefer the President to Reagan, had participated at the same level as older Republicans.

Latest Figures Match Those In February

Interestingly, the latest results match those recorded in a late February survey, conducted shortly after the nation's first primary, in New Hampshire.

Between that first survey and surveys in April, Ford widened the gap. From early May on, however, the gap between the two men has steadily narrowed.

Trend Among Independents

Ford also holds a lead over Reagan among voters who classify themselves as independents. His lead, however, is marginal—46 to 40 per cent, with 14 per cent undecided.

The trend in the choices of independents has paralleled the trend in GOP choices, with Reagan making gains since early May.

This question was asked to determine relative support for the two GOP contenders:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Republican convention this year narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

Here are the latest results and the trend among Republicans nationwide:

	Ford vs. Reagan (Choices of Republicans)
	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
June 11-14	51%	41%	8%
May 21-23	53	40	7
April 30-May 3	61	35	4
April 23-26	57	36	7
April 9-12	62	33	5
March 26-29	55	32	13
Feb. 27-March 1	51	41	8

Here are the latest results and the trend among independents nationwide:

	Ford vs. Reagan (Choices of Independents)
	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
June 11-14	55%	40%	14%
May 21-23	51	39	10
April 30-May 3	54	33	13
April 23-26	52	33	15
April 9-12	50	34	16
March 26-29	51	30	19
Feb. 27-March 1	48	37	15

The latest findings reported today are based on in-person interviews in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period June 11-14. Of the total sample of 1,243 respondents, 299 classified themselves as Republicans and 339 as independents.

Strength For Today

TOLERANCE AND INDIFFERENCE

We are sometimes prone to congratulate ourselves on our tolerance of other faiths when in reality we are merely indifferent to them — and probably to our own.

It is not hard, for instance, for a person who is neither a Christian nor a Buddhist and unaffected by both to be tolerant toward both. But it is an entirely different thing for a man who believes that salvation can be gained only through Christ to tolerate a religion which in his opinion is directing millions of people away from the truth.

Tolerance is easy for the unbelieving. But the believing person needs great strength of character to be tolerant. His dislikes of the erroneous religion must be exceeded by his love for its communicants.

The truly tolerant person is not silent when confronted by what he considers to be erroneous beliefs. But he will strike at such beliefs only through moral persuasion, never by force.

Magazines In Grocery Stores

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Magazines and turnips might seem to be unrelated, except in the sense that one might be food for the body, the other for the mind, but your supermarket manager will tell you differently.

If trends continue, it won't be long before sales of printed materials in these traditional outlets for household products will reach $500 million, providing both publishers and retailers with a tidy profit.

"Progressive Grocer" magazine estimates that sales of paperbacks and magazines in "grocery" outlets last year reached $455 million, "a good sized piece of a total market estimated at $2 billion."

Market managers reportedly are enthusiastic about the growth, since most of them feel they are in a profit squeeze on conventional items. And publishers, pressed by rising postal rates, are happy to have alternative outlets.

Some supermarkets now have developed what used to be a small rack near the checkout counter into an entire reading department, where shoppers can purchase the latest issues and perhaps become inspired by the food ads.

Some managers claim the publications outsell grocery items, as they are appreciative because, unlike turnip distributors, magazine distributors take back unsold copies.

America's space program demonstrated that the search for perfection is a very costly endeavor and that perfection never can be achieved with certainty. Still, the quest goes on in various areas of endeavor, and the bills are rising.

Nothing demonstrates the point better than the controversy over the paper match and the matchbook. Matches are potentially dangerous, of course, nothing is likely to change that fact. But we're trying.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has proposed a standard that would require that matches be manufactured to self-extinguish after 15 seconds and matchbooks made with devices to inhibit use by children.

While the proposals are designed to reduce accidents, the Council on Wage and Price Stability feels they could have the opposite impact.

How? By raising the cost and causing consumers to switch to wooden matches, which also are hazardous. And also by making those matchbooks even more fascinating to curious children.

If the standards become effective they could raise the cost to consumers by $68 million a year, the council said, and the essential problem will remain unsolved.

Matches burn and children are curious, and it isn't likely that any millions of dollars will change the facts.

It isn't always what you buy at the grocery store that ruins your budget.

The Conference Board, a research and educational organization, reports that a family of four must earn more than $19,000 in 1976 to maintain the purchasing power of $10,000 in 1960.

Among the chief reasons: higher federal income taxes and Social Security contribu-

Ford, Reagan At Same Table In Iowa Delegate Bid

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Tonight, for the first time during their long Republican presidential campaigns, President Ford and Ronald Reagan will sit down at the same table. That's how important Iowa is.

They are to attend a $25-a-plate testimonial dinner for party chairman Mary Louise Smith in her home town of Des Moines. Coincidentally, Iowa Republicans begin naming their 36 convention delegates tonight.

Right now, 960 convention delegates are pledged to Ford, and Reagan has 873, leaving Ford a precarious lead of 87 delegates. Some 1,130 delegates are needed for nomination.

There are 170 uncommitted GOP delegates and 255 yet to be chosen.

An Associated Press survey of delegates shows the number of uncommitted GOP delegates has increased by 18 since the end of the primaries. The poll shows small groups in scattered states are shying from previously stated preferences and joining the ranks of the uncommitted. At the same time, there is no apparent movement from the neutral camp to Reagan and only a trickle to Ford.

Iowa is one of the two remaining states really in doubt and has one of the biggest delegations yet to be picked.

It is the first time Ford has ventured a head-to-head confrontation with Reagan, although they have followed each other in convention appearances before.

It is a gamble for the President, but campaign aides say the stakes are too big to play shy. Reagan officials say he wouldn't commit his prestige to the test unless he expected to win, but there's some question that he could do otherwise.

Eighteen Iowa delegates will be picked tonight in district conventions, and 18 at-large delegates will be selected Saturday in the state convention.

Washington, the only remaining state with more delegates to be chosen, elects its 38 this weekend. Reagan is conceded to have the edge there and Ford isn't even making an appearance.

The President, meantime, is expected to win most of 17 Delaware delegates being named Saturday and Reagan is considered a cinch for four Texas delegates being chosen the same day.

Only North Dakota, with 18 delegates, is considered up for grabs among the other remaining states. Ford and Reagan are generally seen trading off the rest of the remaining delegate selections.

That's why Iowa is so important to Ford and Reagan — the last battleground with a lot to win and a chance for it to go either way.

Rogers Morton, Ford's campaign manager, said early this week that Iowa was a 50-50 state for the president. However, John Sears, Reagan's manager, said he expects Reagan to get 20 of the 36 Iowa delegates.

At Sea Island, Ga., meantime, Democratic frontrunner Jimmy Carter said he is still considering procedures for selecting a vice-presidential running mate, including whether a list of top choices should be publicized in advance.

But Carter told reporters after meeting with top staff members Thursday he is not inclined to accept President Ford's offer of FBI background checks on potential vice-presidential candidates.

In Houston, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said he is continuing his campaign for the Democratic nomination because he feels no useful purpose will be served by jumping on Jimmy Carter's bandwagon.

Brown also said he is not interested in the vice presidency. "I'm not interested in it, I'm not seeking it, and if Carter offered it I wouldn't accept it," he said.

In other political developments Thursday: —Delegates to the American party's national convention in Salt Lake City prepared to choose a presidential candidate today from seven contenders.

The favorite was Tom Anderson of Tennessee, the party's 1972 vice presidential candidate and current national chairman.

—Robert S. Strauss said in Houston he probably will not run for another four-year term as chairman of the Democratic party after the general election in November.

Strauss, a Dallas attorney and the first Texan to serve as the national chairman, also indicated Thursday that the apparent Democratic presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter, wants him to remain in office after the national convention in July.

—Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally urged Republicans at a fundraising dinner in Indianapolis not to let the battle between Ford and Reagan distract them from their job of electing GOP congressmen.

—The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., endorsed Carter for president. The AFSCME is the nation's largest public employees' union.

—The Federal Election Commission helped Carter slice his campaign debt of $1.8 million with certification of $198,939 in matching funds. And the commission gave Brown his first dose of federal money — $100,000.

Other payments certified were $322,905 for Ford, $241,841 for Reagan, $101,009 for Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, $37,454 for Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and $17,989 for antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack.

order to become permanent possession of the winners, must be won in three consecutive years.

Homemade baked goods, hot dogs and hamburgers will be served during the event. A flag ceremony will be performed by a Scout troop.

The public is invited to attend and to support this effort to raise funds for the county's handicapped people.

product rather than the input is gaining, as it becomes clear that increased spending, higher teacher salaries, and more and better equipment have not necessarily produced better students.

The state law restricting classroom size has proved its merit, but in some cases created administrative problems. Change appears due to allow flexibility for smaller or larger classes when circumstances demand that, for some relief from having to juggle students when enrollment changes in mid term.

The groundwork is being done now for these and other major changes in local public schools across the state. Final decisions will be made by the 1977 General Assembly, whose members are currently running for election.

As to what bearing his religious convictions have on public service, she said it means "honesty and character, the upholding of truth, principle and integrity, and the values given through the Bible."

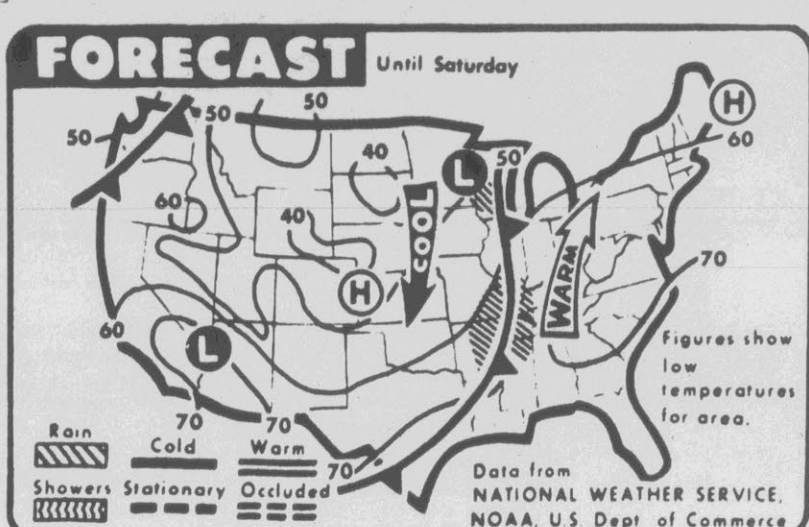

"All through the country, there's a yearning for these standards of leadership," she said. "We've come to a place of terrible disintegration of moral principles and values."

She termed "nonsensical" the idea that a president of evangelically oriented faith might feel he should convert everyone else to it.

Both she and her brother are Southern Baptists, among the staunchest defenders of separation of church and state as essential to religious freedom. "It's indispensable," she said, adding that political leadership and laws must never infringe on beliefs.

Furthermore, she said, "the more Christ-like a person is, the more caring he is for all people, the fewer the barriers of race, class and religion. If a religion separates a person from other human beings, from people of other faiths, it's not true Christianity in my understanding of the term. It's not the way of Christ."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST— Warm weather is due from the upper Mississippi Valley to the westerly east of the Mississippi, mild to cool weather for the rest of the nation. Rain is expected from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Midwest. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
What the National Weather Service calls midwest weather-warm and humid—continues to splotch North Carolina.

It also was very foggy in most of the state early this morning, and people had to drive to work carefully. Abundant moisture caused the fog and low overcast.

Scattered showers fell today. And they will be more numerous Saturday. Highs today were in the 80s.

Most sections had rain Thursday. Amounts were extremely varied. There was almost none on the coast. But the Boone area in the northwest had five inches in the 24 hours ended at 2 a.m. Thursday, and there was some flooding.

Mostly cloudy skies kept temperatures down slightly Thursday. Maximums were in the upper 70s to mid 80s. A few upper 80 were reported on the south coast. Wilmington topped the list with 88. Outside of the mountains, Greensboro reported the lower limit with a high of 77.

Typical summer weather will hold over the weekend. High pressure off the Mid-Atlantic coast will cause continuation of warm and humid conditions. And with afternoon heating, there will be the scattered afternoon and evening thunder-showers.

Greenville Horse Show Scheduled On Saturday

Co-sponsored by the Greenville Saddle Club and the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, the Greenville Horse Show will be held at the Dorothy Clark Stables, located seven miles northwest of Greenville between Greenville and Belvoir on Highway 33 West.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday, the show will feature a variety of events including halter, western, hunters, jumping, and pleasure ponies. Also included will be walking, gaited and driving horses.

Admission to the event is $1 for children under 12. Proceeds realized from the show will go to the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens for work with handicapped people.

In addition, there will be four challenge trophies—the Charles P. Adams Challenge Trophy (small pleasure pony stake); and J. P. Payne Challenge Trophy (five gaited stake); Bobbie Dee Challenge Trophy (pleasure horse); and Warrior Wings Challenge Trophy (walk-trt stake). These trophies, in order to become permanent possession of the winners, must be won in three consecutive years.

Homemade baked goods, hot dogs and hamburgers will be served during the event. A flag ceremony will be performed by a Scout troop.

The public is invited to attend and to support this effort to raise funds for the county's handicapped people.

"Sure, he said, "you guys are trying to keep it all to yourselves. Well, I'm a taxpayer and I got as much right to have fun as any congressman or senator in Washington. We people back home are getting sick and tired of our elected officials making hay at our expense."

"Don't get sore at me, Ralph. If I knew where the action was I'd not only tell you, I'd go with you. But a big night for most of us who live here is to go to a Safeway supermarket and see if we can get out for less than $100."

"So you're not going to help me," Ralph said. "You think I'm not good enough to meet a receptionist or a girl that can't take shorthand. Well, I won't forget this, buddy. I have other sources in Washington to call."

"I'm sorry, Ralph. I don't know how to put it, but I think you came to the wrong place for action."

"Where should I have gone?"

"Newcastle."

Claudine Longet Admits She Pointed The Pistol

By JUDY HERB
Associated Press Writer
ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Entertainer Claudine Longet told an investigator she "playfully" raised the gun and pointed it at her lover and said "boom-boom" because she thought the safety device was on, court transcripts show.

The testimony by Mary F. Wiggins of the Pitkin County Sheriff's Department was in transcripts of a June 10 preliminary hearing for Miss Longet, who pleaded innocent to manslaughter in the shooting death of professional skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.
The trial is scheduled to begin Aug. 30.
The transcripts, initially sealed by a judge's order, were made public Thursday.

"It was my impression that she believed the safety to be on," Miss Wiggins, who had custody of Miss Longet the night of the shooting, testified.
Sgt. Robert E. Nicoletti, a ballistics expert for the Denver Police Department, testified that the safety device on the .22-caliber weapon was in fact not working.

"This weapon will fire whether it's on safe position or off safe position," he said. Nicoletti also said tests showed the gun could not have fired unless the trigger was pulled.

Miss Wiggins said Miss Longet, 34, told investigators that Sabich, 31, had been skiing the afternoon of March 21. When he returned to the mountain chalet he had shared for two years with Miss Longet, she asked him how to use the gun, Miss Wiggins testified.

"She (Miss Longet) was interested in learning how to be able to use this weapon... for her own protection and protection of her children," said Miss Wiggins. The singer-actress' three children by former husband singer Andy Williams lived with her and Sabich.

Sgt. David Garms of the Aspen Police Department said he talked to Miss Longet at Aspen Valley Hospital the night of the shooting.
"She indicated that he (Sabich) had come home and that he was in the bathroom and that she somehow acquired the weapon," Garms said. He said Miss Longet told him she specifically asked Sabich about the safety device.

Miss Longet told Garms that she pointed the gun at Sabich and "jokingly said 'bang-bang' a couple of times," he said.
Pitkin County District Court Judge George E. Lohr originally granted a defense motion to close the preliminary hearing to news reporters and the public and ordered all transcripts sealed. He also imposed a gag order on participants.

But after six hours of secret testimony, he granted another defense motion to open the hearing while Miss Longet entered a plea. Lohr also ordered the transcripts released as soon as they were prepared.

Men's Day To Be Observed
Men's Day Service will be observed at the Sweet Hope F.W.B. Church Sunday at 11 a.m. All men are invited to attend. Elder W. E. Carmon will be the guest speaker.

At 7:30 p.m. the Rev. Grandy, choir, ushers and congregation of Best Chapel F.W.B. Church, Goldsboro, will render service for the benefit of the pastor's anniversary, sponsored by the Senior Choir.

Notice Of Public Hearing On The Greenville 201 Wastewater Facilities Plan

The Greenville Utilities Commission will hold the above public hearing on July 20, 1976, at 8:00 P.M., in the Council Room, City Hall Building, in Greenville, North Carolina.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-500) has as its objective "restoration and maintenance of the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the Nation's waters." To assist municipalities in providing treatment works capable of treating wastewater to the degree mandated, the law provides for Federal financial assistance in planning and construction of such facilities. In order to qualify for this financial assistance, municipalities are required, under Section 201 of P.L. 92-500, to prepare a "Facilities Plan" which demonstrates the need for the proposed facilities and by a systematic evaluation of alternatives, identifies the most cost effective means of providing those facilities, taking into consideration social and environmental factors.

The Greenville Utilities Commission is preparing such a 201 Facilities Plan for the Greenville 201 Planning Area. The hearing will consist of a presentation of the current draft of the Plan, and an explanatory account of the most viable alternatives contained therein. The hearing will be open to those present for any statements, questions, comments and/or submission of material pertinent to the Plan.

Copies of the current draft of the Facilities Plan together with a summary will be available for public examination and review no later than July 2, 1976, at: the office of the Director of Utilities, Utilities Building, 200 West 5th Street, Greenville, North Carolina; the City Planner's office, City Hall Building, 201 West 5th Street, Greenville, North Carolina; and the Sheppard Memorial Library, Evans Street, Greenville, North Carolina.

Judge Censured For His Taking Plea In Private

RALEIGH (AP) — A District Court judge in Catawba County has been censured by the state Supreme Court for taking a guilty plea in private without a prosecutor on hand in a drunk-driving case.

The court also upheld eight death penalty convictions and ordered a new trial in another in decisions handed down Thursday.

Following a recommendation of the state Judicial Standards Commission, the court said Judge Joseph P. Edens was guilty of "more than a mere error of judgment or act of negligence." Public censure is the harshest penalty short of removal from office that can be imposed on a judge or lawyer for misconduct.

Edens had issued a prayer for judgment continued (PJC) to Henry Conner Coan Jr. Only Coan and his attorney were present when Edens conducted the hearing after court had adjourned for the day. The district attorney's office had not been notified.

A PJC prevents a final decision in a case and spares the defendant of having penalty points assessed against his license.

In its decision, the court said the district attorney should have been notified of the hearing so the state's side could be presented. Edens had improperly excluded the district attorney, had improperly excluded the public and violated the Code of Judicial Ethics which requires a judge to allow everyone to be heard in a case.

Death sentences were upheld by the court for:
—Marcus B. Shrader III of Jacksonville, convicted of abducting Sheryl Potter Boyd, using her as a hostage in a bank holdup, then killing her on Jan. 24, 1975.
—George W. Phifer, Charles Wharton and Johnny Ray Lawrence, convicted of killing Dorothy Cuthrell, a teller, in the robbery of a bank in Pantego.

—Thurman Lee Strickland, 31, convicted of killing his mother and grandmother in his mother's Onslow County home in June 1974.

—Michael Leopold Poplinski of Robeson County, convicted in the January 1975 killing of Huddle Hunt during a robbery of Hunt's home.

—Alfred Jones of Lenoir County, convicted of killing William B. Turner, an insurance salesman.

—James Vernon Smith, convicted of killing Lindsey Winfred Hall in Stokes County in 1975.

The court ordered a new trial for Gregory James Taylor of Charlotte, convicted of killing Betty Floyd Moore during a holdup of her husband's store in January 1975. Taylor had pleaded insanity and the court ruled that the jury should have been told that Taylor would have been committed to an asylum if the jurors determined that he was insane.

Youth Crusade Begins June 21

The youth department of Selvia Chapel F.W.B. Church will sponsor a youth crusade beginning June 21-25. The Rev. Jerry Crarey of Pamalee will be guest evangelist for the week. Various pastors, choirs, and congregations have been invited to serve each night. Prayer service will begin nightly at 7:30. The public is invited to attend.

WORLD OF PROMISE

It looks like fun outside. A bright, happy, wonderful day — and a pal to share it with. A world of promise.

As the future unfolds in every life it looks like a world of promise. Whether it lives up to our expectations depends less on what's outside than what's inside. Human character tends to shape the events and experiences of life.

Our tremendous responsibility as parents is to nurture a human soul, foster its spiritual growth, cultivate the crucial development of our child's character.

As a window lets light reach inside, the teaching of moral and religious truth lets faith find its rightful place in each youthful heart. To discover all the Promise in this world the soul must begin by realizing the promises of God.

Ecumenical Sewing Circle Is Turned Into Group That Helps

By LINDA THRANE

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (UPI) — Farm wife Verona Devney turned an ecumenical sewing circle into Operation H.O.P.E., a clearinghouse to match haves with have-nots.

Mrs. Devney calls the loose network of 4,000 chapters a "nonorganization" because "it just happened, and I went along with it." It is a clearinghouse because it doesn't dole out money, only merchandise people need and can use: even slivers of soap scrounged from motels, retail store castoffs, used tools and seeds.

"I've yet to find anything I can't find a use for," said Mrs. Devney.

"Right here in the United States, there are people who cry when they get something new for the first time," she said. "There is so much need, and so many who can give, it was just a matter of getting them together."

H.O.P.E. stands for Help Other People Everywhere. Its headquarters is in Mrs. Devney's den in her home in southeastern Minnesota. There she maintains a filing system showing where the need is, who is willing to help, and the locations of church missions and other organizations that will distribute the goods.

"When I get a request, say, for shawls for three old ladies living in what amounts to a chicken shack on a mission in Appalachia, I go to the file. That's where I beg from," she said.

Mrs. Devney, who is 60, said she began begging for the needy 10 years ago. One Sunday in church, she decided to send $5 checks to textile manufacturers with an appeal for remnants to make clothing for the poor.

The initial response netted three carloads of fabric, more than she or her church sewing circle could handle. So she called on all churchwomen, Catholic and Protestant, in the community.

The women began meeting once a week to produce a roomful of clothing for orphans in Vietnam. It also produced many friendships.

She feels the shared rewards and the ingenuity of H.O.P.E. helpers have made the low-budget organization work.

"There are a lot of great people in the world, like our little 80-year-old lady in Ohio who sells plant slippings to raise shipping money," Mrs. Devney said. "These are simple, good people, proof you don't need a fabulous sum to do these things."

"Hundreds of senior citizens have found a new purpose sewing and making things for poor children. Right here in Northfield an 86-year-old lady with a Pacemaker has keeled over several times at her ancient sewing machine. She keeps coming back from the hospital saying, 'I can't die yet. There's too many cold people.'"

"I know a rich lady who lives to buy clothes," Mrs. Devney said. "She doesn't feel so guilty now she can give me the castoffs for someone who never had a nice dress."

"It generated all this goodwill. I think it almost does more for the rich than the poor."

Mrs. Devney hasn't gone unnoticed. She proudly displays letters from cardinals, generals and politicians praising her work. She can recite a list of awards, including the Marines' Mother of the Year. This year she was selected as a Bicentennial mother by a group doing a book on 10 mothers in every state.

"But that's the cream," she said. Just as important are two bushel sacks of seed corn and peas donated by a local farmer that she divided into lunch sacks for shipment to a mission in Kentucky.

"You don't do this for the awards," Mrs. Devney said. "Everything I've done, it just happened. The only credit I get is I haven't quit."

Jim Hartz Will Be 'Road-Host'

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In late August, Jim Hartz will turn over the studio end of hosting

NBC's "Today" show to Tom Brokaw and go on the road as what NBC calls the "travelling co-host" of the two-hour program.

In some circles, this is called a massive shakeup, as the show, suffering ratings sag and the much-publicized adios of Barbara Walters, tries to refurbish its appearance and get those ratings up and viewers back.

For Hartz, co-host of "Today" almost two years, it's one of the hazards of the job. But he says it's also the chance to do something he's wanted to do — knock around the United States doing for "Today" the kind of human interest stories the late Ernie Pyle did for newspapers in the 1930s.

Hartz, 36, is no stranger to the road, having done a series of bicentennial segments from various states for the show this year. In fact, he says his travels for those segments led to his new on-the-road job.

"A lot of people liked them, sponsors liked them and they got higher ratings for the show than during the rest of the week," he said of his bicentennial segments, all aired on Fridays.

"I guess it turned out that a lot of people liked that better than they liked me sitting behind a studio desk."

"And it's also no secret that we're down a (ratings) point or two from the record highs we had a year ago ... with Barbara leaving, I guess there was concern they'd (NBC officials) have more ratings problems."

"So I guess they just seized this opportunity to make a structural overhaul in the show."

He said when he got the offer, his main consideration was his family — a wife and three kids.

Big Mix Of Jazz Sounds Family Planning Seems Reduce Infant Deaths

By DOLORES BARCLAY

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — From a four-part salute to the late Duke Ellington to the electronic jazz of Billy Cobham and the George Duke Band, the Newport Jazz Festival will be a musical mix of jazz sounds old and new.

The 10-day festival begins Friday, June 25, with Tony Bennett and Bill Evans, and closes July 5 with the swinging dance music of Cootie Williams, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, Zoot Sims and other jazz greats of that era at the Roseland Ballroom.

In between is a jazz "who's who," including musical tributes to the late saxophonists Julian "Cannonball" Adderley and John Coltrane. Last year pianist Thelonious Monk came out of retirement to play at the festival. This year, guitarist Tal Farlow has shed his retirement to perform.

"The Newport Jazz Festival has always presented a good cross-section of jazz," says festival producer George Wein. "This year we're trying to stock with as many pure jazz groups as possible. Last year we mixed in a few commercial groups, and the audience didn't like it."

Wein predicts the 1976 production will be one of the best years for the festival because of the diversity of the artists.

"We've found such a great spirit of cooperation with the musicians," he said. "They want to do something special this year."

For example, bass player Charlie Mingus, who has fallen in love with flamenco music, will perform with the Azucena y Edo Flamenco Dance Group. And a Radio City Music Hall concert salute to the Rev. John Gensel, pastor to the jazz community, will also honor Rahaan Roland Kirk, who recently suffered a stroke but has been able to resume his career. A portion of the proceeds from the show will be donated to Kirk for his medical expenses.

Three events will be held outside New York City at Waterloo Village in Stanhope, N.J., a canal town of preserved 18th and 19th century structures.

The first program to be held there June 26 is a gospel picnic, featuring choirs and gospel performers from the New York-New Jersey area. That evening, the State of New Jersey will honor its native son, Count Basie. Basie and his orchestra will perform with Eubie Blake, the 93-year-old ragtime composer-pianist.

Later in the festival, Basie will give a free concert at the World Trade Center to celebrate the nation's bicentennial on July 4.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Federally-subsidized family planning programs appear to narrow the gap between white and non-white infant mortality rates, according to a study by Johns Hopkins University.

The study showed that increases in the use of family planning services by poor women of the child bearing age were paralleled by decreases in non-white infant mortality rates between 1969 and 1973.

Non-white infant mortality in nine Maryland counties fell by more than 26 per cent during this period, while the use of family planning services by needy non-white women rose by 26 per cent.

Drs. Melvyn Thorne and Lawrence Green, who conducted the study, said the lower infant mortality rate cannot be accounted for by general improvement in the living conditions in the counties since they did not experience a pattern of higher incomes or improved social services.

The researchers said available data does not indicate that prenatal clinic visits, well-baby services, improved immunization or the availability of abortion accounted for the improvements in the non-white infant mortality rate.

Instead, Thorne and Green reasoned that the use of birth control reduces the infant mortality rate by reducing the number of high risk infants born.

Doctors associate infant mortality with poverty, very young and very old maternal age, short birth intervals, and with large numbers of children born to one woman.

In the base years of 1969 and 1970, the study showed that only 18 per cent of the needy, non-white women in the counties studied were making use of birth control services supplied by state and federal agencies.

In 1973 and 1974, 41 per cent of the target population was using the services. The number of active non-white users of public birth control facilities increased from 2,488 to 5,508 during the period.

The study, which covered counties where there were more than 10 non-white infant deaths during 1969 and 1970, showed the greatest decreases in non-white infant mortality to be in the counties which also had the greatest increases in the proportion of needy women using public family planning services.

In the two-year base period, Prince Georges County had 137 non-white infant deaths. In 1972 and 1973 after the expansion of federally funded family planning services, the county had 106 non-white infant deaths.

Non-white infant deaths in the county declined from 27 per 1,000 live deaths to 19 per 1,000 live deaths.

Only one of the nine counties studied experienced an increase in non-white infant mortality. St. Marys County had 15 non-white infant deaths in the first period and 17 in the second period.

The Hopkins researchers believe their study is the first to provide direct evidence that family planning programs can improve the health of populations served, although health planners have acted on the assumption for years.

Lions Defeat Kiwanis, 5-1

The Lions kept their faint title hopes alive in the North State Little League yesterday with a 5-1 victory over the hapless Kiwanis.

The Lions are now 9-5, while the Kiwanis are 0-14.

The Kiwanis scored first, getting their lone run in the top of the first. John Jordan walked and moved up on a wild pitch. He took third when John Parney reached on an error, and then stole home.

The Lions came right back to score three runs to move ahead. Roger Williams reached on a fielder's choice and took second on a passed ball. Troy Hudson walked and Marshall Rand was safe on a fielder's choice. Jim Whitehurst singled in both Williams and Hudson, and a passed ball let Rand score.

The other two runs came in the second. Marc Gatlin singled and Steven Staton walked. Both advanced on an out, and Gatlin scored on Ed Frazier's out. Williams singled to score Staton with the final run of the game.

Rand and Hudson combined to pitch a one-hitter at the Kiwanis. Rand went the first three innings, allowing no hits, while he walked six and struck out three. Hudson went the last three, giving up the hit with one out in the sixth to Spencer Mayo. He walked none and fanned four. The Lions got only four hits off Parney, with no one getting more than one.

First Federal Tops Big Value

First Federal put together a nine-run rally in the fifth inning yesterday to pull out a 10-6 victory over Big Value Drugs.

The win moved First Federal into sole possession of second place in the league, clinching no worse than a tie for that spot for them. First Federal is now 9-5 and Big Value is 8-6. Both have one game remaining.

First Federal got one run in the first. Mont Carter reached on a two-base error and moved to third on a passed ball. Keith Stocks singled him in.

Big Value tied it up on a solo home run by Emmitt Walsh.

In the fourth, Big Value moved into the lead with a run, 2-1. Bill Coffman doubled and scored on Scott Irwin's hit.

But in the top of the fifth, First Federal erupted for nine runs to put it out of reach. Stocks singled and Horace Barrett slapped a home run. Landy Warren walked, as did Joe Joyner, Marty Radford, Mont Brown and Mont Carter, accounting for two more runs. Mike Holloman reached on an error, scoring Radford, and Stocks singled in Brown. Barrett reached on an error that scored three runs.

Big Value came back with two in the bottom of the fifth, and got two more in the bottom of the sixth, the last two on another homer by Walsh.

Finley Says He Had No Choice

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley, lashing out at a baseball system that has "no stability and no permanence," said he had no alternative but to sell three of his star ballplayers because he couldn't make a trade for them.

Finley appeared with representatives of the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and player union head Marvin Miller at a hearing with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday, and said the current system of player-management behavior is "wrecking the sport."

In a matter of hours Tuesday, Finley sold Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each, then sent left-hander Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million after signing the pitcher to a three-year contract. Kuhn, prohibiting the purchased players from reporting to their new clubs, had ordered the hearing because of questions that arose in his mind over Finley's clearance sale.

"The issue is whether the assignment of the three contracts is appropriate or not under the circumstances. That's the issue I have to wrestle with," said Kuhn. "I have to consider these transactions in the best interest of baseball. I have the inherent power to do what I feel is in the best interest of baseball."

His decision regarding Finley's action was expected some time today.

The maverick A's owner had the explanation of his moves well prepared. "Clubs don't want unsigned ballplayers," he said after Thursday's hearing, referring to the fact that the three athletes sold were among seven Oakland players who had not signed contracts for the current season. "I wouldn't want one either. It was only the Red Sox and Yankees who said, 'We'll take these ballplayers, even if they're unsigned.'"

"I didn't want to sell them. We had made every effort for two months to make trades — to no avail," said Finley, dressed in a grey plaid suit with a yellow golf shirt and matching hat.

"We were trying to make trades, but when we got to within six hours of the (trading) deadline, we had no alternative" but to sell the athletes.

Kuhn apparently wanted to be made sure of that, and called the hearing. Though neither would comment on what had transpired in the 90-minute session, Finley explained, "He wanted to know the reasons I sold and they bought."

Finley made it clear he felt he was right in making the deals and that "I frankly think he (Kuhn) was satisfied with the information we presented him," man, it usually ends a ballgame.

Amateur Grabs Lead With Sub-Par Round

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — The skinny kid with the close-cut haircut and high-pitched voice was almost apologetic.

"I had toothpicks in my eyes," said 21-year-old Mike Reid, an amateur out of Brigham Young University, an army brat whose young life reads like a travel poster.

"I kept looking at the leader board. It's neat to see your name on the leader board. I went out expecting to shoot an 80. Every minute I expected something to come up and bite me."

Nothing did, so the youngster finished in the gathering dusk at the Atlanta Athletic Club with a three-under-par 67 that gave him the first-round lead by three shots over a field of the world's best professionals in the 76th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Nobody else broke par.

Instead, the opening round of golf's most prestigious event saw most of the game's elite fuming and fussing over playing conditions. It was a day of bogeys and double bogeys, complete frustration for the players and blushing embarrassment for the course superintendent and the tournament brass.

The wrong size wheels were put on the gang mowers and the grass in the fairway wasn't properly cut. This made almost everybody mad, especially Arnold Palmer. A sprinkler broke and the 18th fairway was saturated overnight. This made others unhappy.

The U.S. Golf Association formally apologized. The apology failed to soothe some ruffled feathers.

Only young Reid wasn't distressed and he seemed uncomfortable — if secretly happy — sitting up there three shots ahead of five toughened pros — Masters champion Ray Floyd, Al Geiberger, Rod Sunseth, Rik Massengale and John Mahafey, all tied at even par 70 — with the rest of the 149-man field strung out all the way to 88.

Big-name scramblers were legion. Defending champion

The announcements by Virginia Military Institute and the College of William and Mary of their departure from the Southern Conference has left the league's commissioner in a quandary.

"It's a real blow," said Commissioner Kenneth G. Germann of Thursday's announcements by the two Virginia schools earlier in the day. "I don't know what's going to happen from here. We'll try to salvage something. This was not unexpected, but I'm very disappointed."

"We've got a tough road ahead of us," said Germann of the conference which has been notified by all but three of its existing members of plans to get out. "But if we get a little cooperation out of the remaining members, we can do it. Unless this causes a complete domino effect, I think we can make it."

Asked what he planned to do to shore up the badly shaken conference, Germann said "I don't know. You tell me."

Both VMI and William and Mary announced they plan to leave the conference by June 30, 1977. The Southern Conference also faces the departure of the University of Richmond and East Carolina from its ranks.

VMI, an SC member since 1924, and W&M, which joined in 1936, became the third and fourth schools to leave the conference in the last 18 months. Richmond's withdrawal becomes effective at the end of this month, and ECU recently announced its intention of getting out as of June 30, 1977.

Officials of both VMI and William and Mary cited the recent approval for Southern Conference membership of Western Carolina, Marshall and the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga as primary reasons they were leaving the league.

For the 1977-78 academic year, the SC will be composed of the three new members and holdovers Appalachian State, Furman, The Citadel and Davidson.

Lt. Gen. Richard I. Irby, superintendent of VMI, said the withdrawal of Richmond and the announcement by William and Mary left the military school with "no traditional rivalries with most of the teams which are remaining in the conference."

Meanwhile, six colleges which met in Richmond this week to discuss the prospects of forming a new athletic conference have expressed optimism that their idea can come to fruition.

Graniteers In Slim Victory

Greg Nowak scored on an error in the top of the fifth and the Graniteers added a run in the sixth to beat Auto Specialty, 7-5, in a Prep League game last night.

Both teams got a run in the first on bases-loaded walks. Auto Specialty struggled into the lead in the second picking up two runs. John Dawson walked and scored when Larry Talbert reached on an error. Mark Douglas forced Talbert at third but Douglas scored on Arthur Fletcher's double.

The Graniteers picked up a pair in the top of the third to tie the game, 3-3. Kenny Barnes reached on an error and Teddy Gartman walked. Both moved up on wild pitches and scored on wild pitches.

Jeff James reached on a fielder's choice in the fourth and Barnes drew a walk. Gartman drove in Jones with a single to center and Dwayne Allgood singled in Gartman for a 5-3 lead.

Nowak's fifth inning score made it 6-3 but Auto Specialty knocked two off the gap in the fifth. Fletcher reached on an error and moved up on John Williams's single. Hits by Bert Singleton and Woody Wichard drove them over.

Gartman scored the final Graniteers run in the sixth on a wild pitch.

Allgood had two hits for the Graniteers while Fletcher and Williams led Auto Specialty with two each.

Jay Wood reached on an error scoring Selby and Jeff Worthington walked. Gavin Ray singled and an error on the play let Wood score and Worthington go to third. Micky McGrath singled in Worthington and Ray and after Jimmy Stalling was hit by a pitch, Chris Ross got a hit scoring McGrath.

NCNB got two back in the bottom of the inning. Mark Shank singled and stole second. Don McGlohon beat out an infield hit, but Shank was thrown out on the play rounding third.

Bulls, Hawks Figure To Gain

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — The Chicago Bulls and the Atlanta Hawks, the National Basketball Association's worst teams last season, figured to reap the biggest benefits with the addition of four American Basketball Association clubs to the NBA for the 1976-77 campaign.

The Bulls and Hawks will have the Nos. 1 and 2 picks, respectively, in a special dispersal draft of players from the two ABA franchises — Kentucky and Utah — which were not added to the NBA Thursday, plus players remaining from the Virginia franchise which folded following the 1975-76 season.

Most likely the Bulls, who have been struggling for several years without a high-scoring center, will select 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, who led Kentucky to the ABA championship in 1975. The Hawks, also lacking a good big man, would then take 6-11 Moses Malone, who stepped right into the pros from Petersburg, Va., High School in 1974 and was an immediate sensation.

The order of selection was decided upon after the announcement of the historic merger, which will result in the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs becoming a part of the NBA next season, bringing the league's membership to 22.

The teams will select in the inverse order of their records for last season. Following Chicago and Atlanta will be Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York Nets, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

It will be another opportunity for the poorer to get rich, and the Bulls and Hawks it could not have come at a more opportune time. Chicago finished last season with a 24-58 record and Atlanta was 29-53.

The Bulls began rebuilding last week when they chose 6-7 forward Scott May of Indiana, the College Player of the Year, on the first round of the NBA draft.

The Hawks were extremely active on the trading market as the season ended, swinging two major deals. In one transaction they obtained center-forward Joe C. Meriweather and guard Gus Bailey from the Houston Rockets and in the other they acquired guard Ken Charles and forward Dick Gibbs from the Buffalo Braves for guard Tom Van Arsdale.

The date of the dispersal draft was not set but other players expected to be among the top picks are Marvin Barnes, Ron Boone, Maurice Lucas and Bird Averitt.

Perhaps the two biggest losers in the agreement will be Los Angeles and New Orleans. Both had forfeited their first-round draft choices in 1977 in a recent supplemental draft of underclassmen who have signed by the ABA this season but were not chosen by NBA clubs. In that draft, the Lakers took Mark Olberding, a strong rebounder who now will remain with San Antonio, and the Jazz chose the highly prized Malone.

While those four teams checked out well, Kentucky and Utah were not accepted because they failed to meet all proper requirements, such as solid financial backing and future potential. However, both teams will be remunerated. Kentucky will receive $3 million from the departing ABA clubs, while the payment to Utah has not been settled.

"We wanted all six teams to go in, but it proved a big stumbling block to the NBA," said ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, who added that his future plans were uncertain beyond the next three or four months, when he hopes to complete all of the ABA's house-keeping.

The agreement still has to be approved by the ABA Players Association and agreed upon by Judge Robert Carter of Southern District Court in New York.

The players union's acceptance is expected to be a mere formality, because its counsel, Prentiss Yancey, said he felt the package was one he could recommend for passage to the group.

Sports Briefs

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League announced Thursday the signing of their No. 1 draft pick, Aaron Kyle, a cornerback from Wyoming.

Kyle, a 5-foot-11, 183-pounder, signed a series of one-year contracts, but terms were not disclosed, the team said.

HAZEL PARK, Mich. (AP) — Wayne Catalano, leading jockey at the Hazel Park race track, was suspended for five days Thursday for rough riding.

Catalano brought John Lighter home in front by 8½ lengths in the fifth race Tuesday but was disqualified for bumping on the first turn. The suspension followed. Catalano had won 104 races thus far this season at Hazel Park.

In another disciplinary action, stewards set down trainer Al Viczava for 30 days after finding an illegal substance in a saliva test on Ray Bauer, who won the sixth race June 10.

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Leigh Barczewski of West Allis, Wis., won the 1,000-meter match sprint event and Leonard Nitz of Sacramento, Calif., won the 4,000-meter individual pursuit Thursday to win the second and third berths on the U.S. Olympic Cycling team.

Barczewski pedaled the final 200 meters of his event in 12 seconds flat to beat out Fred Markam of Los Gatos, Calif.

Nitz was timed in 5:01 in the 4,000-meter individual pursuit, beating Ron Skarin of Van Nuys, Calif.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A crash program began here Thursday to clean the uniforms of the West team scheduled to play in Saturday night's 16th annual Coaches All-America football game.

The uniforms were dirtied when a smoke fire started in a sauna room at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium.

Fire department officials said some offices sustained minor damage.

Jones Stadium will be the site of the Saturday game.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Arizona and Arizona State will try again tonight to decide who plays Eastern Michigan for the title in the 30th College World Series.

Rain forced postponement Thursday night of the fifth-round matchup of the two Arizona schools. The winner of the intra-state battle will meet Eastern Michigan, 46-15, for the series crown Saturday night.

Arizona, 54-17, and top-rated Arizona State, 65-9, were first-round foes in the series with Arizona State rallying for a 7-6 victory in 10 innings. The Sun Devils have beaten Arizona in all seven meetings this year.

"Rain sure doesn't help us any," said Eastern Coach Ron Oestrich. "Our pitcher (Bob Welch) was rested anyway. It could help the Arizona-Arizona State survivors because it will give their pitcher that much more rest."

Eastern Michigan, which came to the series third-rated behind Arizona State and Arizona, received a bye into the finals by winning its first three series games.

Arizona is expected to pitch senior right-hander Steve Powers, 10-4, against Arizona State. Don Hanna, 15-0, including one series victory, will be Arizona Elate's pitcher.

The rainout was the first in the eight-team, double-elimination series that began June 11.

Will Try Again

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Arizona and Arizona State will try again tonight to decide who plays Eastern Michigan for the title in the 30th College World Series.

The Detroit Tigers were fit to be tied ... but the umpires said the playing field wasn't.

"It was solid mud," said umpire-in-chief Jerry Neudecker, explaining why he called off a 4-4 game between the Tigers and the Minnesota Twins in the bottom of the sixth inning Thursday night. "Sure, you could put sand on the field, but you can't put it all over the infield."

Unfortunately for the Tigers, they scored their four runs in the top of the sixth. So when the proceedings were washed out with one out and two Minnesota runners aboard in the bottom of the inning, the score reverted back to the end of the fifth and a 4-0 triumph for the Twins.

The umpires' decision, after two delays totaling 94 minutes, sent Manager Ralph Houk into a shirt-throwing rage in the Detroit clubhouse.

"I don't want to talk to any censored body," he ranted. "Go talk to the censored umpires. They're the ones that censored up the game. I've played in much worse censored weather than this many censored times before. I'm going to report those censored umpires to the censored league. I've already gone in and told those censored myself."

"I can't blame him," Neudecker said, sympathizing with Houk but standing by his decision. "I can understand his point."

In other American League action, the New York Yankees

nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4, the Boston Red Sox trounced the Oakland A's 8-2, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Texas Rangers 4-1 and the California Angels blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0. Kansas City and Cleveland were not scheduled.

Before the rains came in Minnesota, Mike Cubbage drove in three runs for the Twins with a double and sacrifice fly. Dave Goltz was credited with a three-hit shutout, with relief help from the weatherman after being kayoed in Detroit's nonexistent four-run rally, which included a two-run homer by Aurelio Rodriguez.

Yankees 3, White Sox 4

Reliever Sparky Lyle overcame a two-run throwing error by first baseman Chris Chambliss and pitched out of an eighth-inning jam to preserve Catfish Hunter's eighth triumph. With two runs in, runners on second and third and only one out, Lyle retired Bucky Dent and Buddy Bradford to record his 10th save.

Red Sox 8, A's 3

Dwight Evans knocked in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and Jim Rice and Carlton Fisk also homered as Boston pounded Mike Torrez and Stan Bahnsen and averted a three-game sweep by the A's. Dick Pole beat the route for Boston, scattering nine hits.

Orioles 4, Rangers 1

Reggie Jackson cracked a towering three-run homer over the center field wall off Nelson Briles in the eighth inning to propel the Orioles to their third consecutive triumph following a nine-game losing streak. Unbeaten Wayne Garland notched his sixth triumph with two-inning relief from newly acquired Dave Pagan.

The three tie-breaking runs were unearned thanks to an error by Texas first baseman Mike Hargrove.

Angels 2, Brewers 0

Gary Ross fired a two-hitter for the second complete game of his career and first since he was with the Chicago Cubs in 1968. He allowed singles by Darrell Porter in the sixth inning and Von Joshua in the ninth. Since 1968, Ross has been used primarily as a reliever in both the majors and the minor leagues.

Kingman Hit Ends A Game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

One hit doesn't end a slump, but in the case of Dave Kingman, it usually ends a ball game.

Kingman either strikes out or hits it out — and Thursday night, it was the latter.

"I'm still swinging at bad pitches, I'm still in a slump," Kingman insisted despite a 14th-inning home run that led the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kingman's homer was his 23rd of the season, but only his first at home since May 28. He prefers hitting on the road, obviously.

"I feel less pressure on the road," said Kingman, who hit his last seven shots away from Shea Stadium. "These last few days, I've been wishing we'd been on the road."

Despite leading the major leagues in home runs and despite a healthy RBI figure of 50, Kingman is not happy with his season. He had hoped for more consistency than just a .240 batting average, as well as fewer strikeouts.

"I have a good day and then I have a bad day," Kingman said. "I would rather be mediocre. I have been having some rather bad days lately."

Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough will remember Thursday night's blast for a while.

"It was a bad pitch, right in the zone where he wanted it," said the knuckleballer. "It had no spin on it and it was straight. It was a knuckler."

In the only other National League game, the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Kingman's eighth game-winning hit of the season came with one out in the 14th inning and landed in the left field bullpen. Skip Lockwood, 3-2, was the winner in relief of Craig Swan. For Hough, it was his second loss against seven victories.

Swan pitched the first 10 innings for New York, allowing only three base runners on three singles, the total of Dodger hits for the evening. He struck out eight. Don Sutton, the Los Angeles starter, worked the first nine innings, permitting six hits and walking two.

Phillies 3, Giants 2

Dave Cash's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning carried Philadelphia over San Francisco. Cash's game-winning RBI scored Garry Maddox with the winning run for relief pitcher Gene Garber, 1-1.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

There are times when declarer can get a complete count of the defenders' hands and plan his play accordingly. On occasion though, declarer will have to rely on intuition or a specific line of the cards in order to land his contract, as South did in today's hand.

There is no really satisfactory opening bid with the South hand. An opening bid of one no trump is usually not recommended with two suits wide open, but any other opening could have caused grave rebid problems. One no trump at least had the virtue of describing South's distribution to a tee. North's hand was similarly featureless, so he decided not to probe for a 4-4 heart fit, and made a straight value raise to three no trump.

West led the king of clubs, which was allowed to hold. The simple action of withholding the ace forced West to switch, for otherwise declarer would score two club tricks. West shifted to a spade, won by dummy's ten. A diamond finesse lost to the king, and another spade was continued.

It seemed that a successful heart finesse was all that was required to make the contract, but declarer did not want to rely on that alone—West had already shown up with two kings and a queen in the minor suits, so the heart king was more likely to be with East. He found a way to increase his chances if the king was off-side and West had started with a five-card club suit.

Declarer cashed the ace of clubs, and then ran the rest of his tricks in spades and diamonds. Now he led a heart, and when West produced the nine, declarer covered with dummy's queen. Declarer's preliminary work paid off, for East was down to nothing but hearts. He continued with the jack of hearts, but declarer simply made him a present of that trick. East was not forced to lead away from his ten of hearts into dummy's ace-eight tenace, and so declarer scored two heart tricks the hard way for his contract.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to stick to what has proven to be advantageous and successful in the past. The unknown has some unpleasant aspects to contend with. A new project needs more study to be successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Visit congenials and have a good time at recreations you mutually enjoy. Take no chances when in motion tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to cooperate more with kin and make better plans for the future. Personal affairs are best handled with the aid of others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan your time wisely so you can accomplish a great deal today. Allow time to engage in your favorite hobby later in the day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need to handle an important financial matter early in the day. Study your surroundings and make needed repairs.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to stay at home and organize your personal affairs, so all runs smoothly in the days ahead. Do some entertaining tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You may have a new interest in mind, but this is not for you, so forget it. Await a better day for this. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An associate could be quite demanding but use tact and avoid a confrontation. Make plans to have more abundance in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure to keep calm when handling an important duty early in the day. Take the health and better treatments you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Engage in recreations you enjoy with congenials. Persevere in a goal you have and achieve success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive for more harmony at home. Not a good day to entertain, so spend time reading and watching TV.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You could be letting your imagination run away with you today, so calm down and be more practical. Check reports for possible errors.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consult a business expert and make long-range plans for the future. Take time for inexpensive recreation later in the day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have many brilliant ideas to put across but will need the best education you can afford to be successful. Make sure your progeny makes adequate preparation for any undertaking. Give ethical and spiritual training early in life.

Everything In Hotel Room Is There To Sell

By GARY PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
SODA SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — At the Soda Springs Hotel, if you like the bed you slept in the night before, you can buy it.

And that goes for the matching wardrobe, the end tables, the mirror, and whatever else you might fancy.

The hotel is more than a hotel, restaurant and lounge, it is one big antique shop — 36 rooms of different furniture, all for sale.

It all started four years ago when Maggi Littenstein got tired of her routine executive's job in San Francisco. First it was an item in the classified advertising section of a newspaper. That was followed by some foresight, some financial haggling and soon she was the proud owner of a hotel.

She and Lorraine Wells, an old friend, began turning the then rundown interior of the structure into a home, a hobby and a business.

The hotel's granite walls, erected in 1929, were unchanged, but the inside, in their words, had been ruined.

While they began refurbishing it a bit at a time, they also began filling it with antiques. "Our idea was to make this a big home, just the way we wanted it," Maggi explained.

Visitors and guests began putting on pressure to buy their antiques. The women relented, and once they began the practice, realized they didn't need to stop.

Old furniture from around the world finds its way into the Soda Springs Hotel. If it sells, fine, if it doesn't well that's fine with the owners, too.

Because the hotel is near Donner Pass in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, snowy winters preclude a large movement of new furnishings, and the selling is slow. But comes spring, and the furniture sells quickly and is replaced. It comes to the hotel from buyers and auctions.

The pieces add a quaint air to the hotel, as do the numerous plants, wood paneling and the occasional train which whistles by on the nearby tracks.

"It wasn't always like this," said Maggi. "The previous owners had plastic and vinyl all over the place. It robbed the building of its natural atmosphere."

Maggi and her husband Marvin, along with Lorraine and some employees, run the hotel. Marvin came into Maggi's life a couple of years back when he stopped at the hotel to see what it was all about.

"I fell in love with her and the hotel and we got married, just like that," Marvin said.

He chucked his full-time business interests in San Francisco and came to help fix and run the hotel. Since then he and the women have learned the hard way about plumbing, wiring and carpentry.

Before he came into the picture, the women already had put a new roof on the hotel, added a sewer and more. They got some laughs from some of the men in the tiny community, but they didn't give up.

Up the old stairs is like a trip back into the past. Each room offers different furnishings from different eras.

FBI Joins In A Search

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The FBI has joined police in the investigation of an 18-year-old woman clerk who disappeared Thursday from a north Mecklenburg County convenience store, where she was last seen putting up stock.

An FBI spokesman in Charlotte said that while agents have joined local police in the investigation, it was not in federal jurisdiction but was being considered as a missing person case.

The missing clerk was identified as Susan Paulson, who lived with a brother and sister-in-law in an apartment complex about a mile from the store.

Police said they believed she disappeared between 3:45 a.m., when a customer last saw her, and 4:45 a.m., when another customer found the store empty.

Mecklenburg County officers said an unsuccessful air and ground search was conducted within a mile radius of the store. Police said a handwritten note on a paper bag, found taped to a door, read, "Be back in a few min."

Officers said the clerk's shoes, raincoat and a pocketbook containing about $40 were found in the store. They said there were no signs of a struggle, but an undetermined amount of money was missing from a cash register.

Norfolk Almost Couldn't Handle Big Southern Baptist Turn-Out

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Thursday night. "I can very honestly say it has been a real delight to have this group."

The Baptists spent an estimated $4 million to $5 million this week. They crowded into downtown eating establishments which had asked their regular customers to pack lunches this week and eat in their offices in order that the visitors could be accommodated. They shopped in department stores, parked their cars for a fee and took some of the local tours.

The biggest complaint among the messengers was the size of Scope, Norfolk's coliseum-convention center. It has a seating capacity of 11,500. But hundreds could not get inside to hear President Ford speak Tuesday. As a result, a motion was passed requiring a 16,000-seat facility at future convention sites.

When the 6,000 hotel rooms were filled, Baptists and non-Baptists opened the doors of their homes.

"The Southern Baptist Convention has provided us with a strong test of our ability to handle this size group," City Manager Julian Hirst said before the convention closed.

Here are some convention highlights:

—A convention filled with supporters of fellow Southern Baptist Jimmy Carter heard Ford deliver what many members of the news media considered his best speech in months. It was the first time an incumbent president had addressed the group.

—Dr. James L. Sullivan, 66, a moderate Baptist from Nashville, was elected president of the convention succeeding Jaroy Weber of Lubbock, Tex.

—A resolution was passed affirming that Baptists believe homosexuality is a sin. They agreed that homosexuals can neither be ordained as ministers nor employed in church jobs.

—An abortion stance taken in 1971 remained virtually unchanged. A new abortion resolution affirmed the "limited role of government" and urged citizens to work to change attitudes and conditions that lead people to use abortion as a means of birth control. Abortion is acceptable in cases of rape, incest, severe fetal deformity and when the pregnancy endangers the woman's life, they agreed.

—Approved without debate a record $55 million budget for the next year, an increase of $4 million.

Archivist Still Fascinated By Chosen Field

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Historian Otto Bettmann pointed at a reproduction of what appeared to be a rather undistinguished photograph of a 19th-century small-town train station taken from a distance.

"It didn't look like much at first, but we enlarged this one little section and look what we found," said the dapper, goateed Bettmann. In the enlargement, the word "Gettysburg" was clearly visible on the sign hanging above the station platform.

And begueth the sign, one could make out the familiar lanky figure of a man in a black suit, with a black beard and gaunt face visible beneath a stovepipe hat.

"This turned out to be what is really quite a rare photograph of Lincoln arriving in Gettysburg to make his famous speech," the historian said triumphantly.

The 73-year-old Bettmann was explaining to a visitor at his winter home in Boca Raton why after 40 years he is still fascinated with pictures and the stories they tell.

His life's work has been the collecting, organizing and distribution of photographs, sketches, cartoons, advertisements, paintings and movie stills that tell the story of mankind from the moment the first hairy Neanderthal stumbled into a warm cave.

And when the founder and president of the Bettmann Archive left his massive collection in New York City three years ago to move into an oceanside apartment here, he found he could not leave that fascination for pictures behind.

So on his Florida "vacation" from November to April each year, he dutifully packs a briefcase every morning and spends hours in a small windowless office at Florida Atlantic University poring over old pictures.

Red Tape Entangles New U.S. Embassy In Moscow

By HOWARD A. TYNER
MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. diplomats recently handed over to Soviet officials three bulky brown paper rolls, each weighing more than 100 pounds, containing the final blueprints and technical drawings for a new American embassy in Moscow.

For both sides it was a significant step in an extraordinarily complicated, expensive and drawn-out undertaking. But the whole thing still is far from completion. Negotiations on the building of a new U.S. Embassy here and a new Soviet diplomatic complex in Washington have been going on for more than a decade. Yet not a single brick has been laid on either site and neither embassy is likely to be completed before the 1980s.

"Rome wasn't built in a day either," one American diplomat said, "although I guess there was a bit more to it."

American officials describe the sprawling embassy compound planned for Moscow as the biggest and most expensive overseas construction operation ever launched by the U.S. State Department.

By current estimates, the total cost will be approximately $100 million.

The move was made necessary by a rapid expansion of manpower at the U.S. mission here — now totaling 145 diplomats and their families — that brought on severe overcrowding at the present embassy.

Officials also want to eliminate continual housing problems caused by a shortage of adequate apartments in Moscow by having living quarters for the bulk of the staff on the embassy grounds.

The final blueprints handed over on April 26 for Soviet approval show an almost self-sufficient community situated on a 10-acre site just behind the present embassy building. Walled and liberally sprinkled with trees, the new compound will be horseshoe shaped and include a school, approximately 130 apartments, a seven-floor chancery building, plus movie theater, cafeteria, gymnasium, medical offices and underground parking for 125 vehicles.

The whole issue of building new embassies here and in Washington is governed by two basic agreements hammered out in talks that began in the mid 1960s. One, signed in 1969, settled on sites in the respective capitals, and the other, signed in 1972, included the conditions of construction.

They cover in excruciating detail such topics as preparation of the sites (done by the host country free of charge) to whether building materials can be imported duty free (they can) to the maximum height of each chancery — 577.28 feet in Moscow and 446.77 feet in Washington.

Each side agrees to provide the site for 85 years rent free, not to tax the property and not to "create or permit conditions that will interfere with full access to them and their proper use and enjoyment."

The agreements also call for each side to submit all its blueprints and plans for approval by local authorities — something that the Soviets completed in Washington last year.

But because of the complicated design of the U.S. Embassy here — and because by agreement work here and Washington must proceed simultaneously — construction is not expected to begin at least until next year.

Before that must come yet another round of highly-detailed negotiations on contracting out the building. That involves the delicate question of how much work each country will insist on doing itself and how much it will permit workers from the other side to do.

Preliminary American plans call for the Soviet side to carry out all excavation, landscaping and much of the basic structural work, with Americans or West Europeans brought in to handle the finishing.

Here, too, lie potential problems. For example, warehousing of materials. U.S. officials say they must negotiate with the Soviets on where and how the materials can be stored while construction is underway, and what sort of security will be arranged.

Ultimately be most responsible for delays are the 1980 summer Olympic games, to be held in Moscow.

The Soviet Union already has a persistent shortage of skilled construction workers, but U.S. officials fear the situation could become worse as manpower is diverted to massive pre-Olympic building programs planned for the Soviet capital.

Garden Traces Centuries Of Plant Growth

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Americans eat rhubarb courtesy of Benjamin Franklin. He took the first rhubarb plants to the colonies from Europe.

Sir Walter Raleigh, as everyone knows, carried tobacco the other way.

For nearly 400 years, in fact, plants have been swapped across the Atlantic. Now Britain's greatest garden has mounted an exhibition, "Plants Across the Sea," to trace this traffic.

The bicentennial show at the Royal Botanic Gardens Kew, better known as Kew Gardens, goes back to the earliest transatlantic transplants.

Doubtful of what they would find, the first settlers took plants and seeds with them: useful plants like cereals and vegetables, decorative plants like hollyhocks, surprising plants like fruit trees.

Apples, for instance, were unknown in North America before the first settlers introduced them. The first orchard was Gov. John Winthrop's on Governors Island in Boston harbor.

"The apples were mostly used for cider, which was consumed in huge quantities and even used for paying bills," says a pamphlet accompanying the exhibition. "It was also New England's chief export to the southern colonies and the West Indies."

Some of the earliest plants introduced from Europe were hitchhikers, grown from seeds carried in by accident. Many were weeds, like nettles. The buttercup was another hitchhiker.

Lilacs were deliberately taken over, the pamphlet said. So were trees like the Lombardy poplar and the Norway maple. Some authorities also credit Ben Franklin with introducing the soy bean.

The traffic was by no means one way.

In the years before 1637, John Tradescant's London garden contained Virginia Creepers, amp cypresses and daisies, all imported from America. In 1637, Tradescant's son was in Virginia to bring back more exotic plants.

John Josselyn described what colonial gardens had to offer in a book published in 1672: cabbage, lettuce, wheat, cucumbers, marigolds. His book's title tended to run on a bit:

"New England's Rarities Discovered in Birds, Beasts, Fishes, Serpents and Plants of that Country together with the Physical and Chirurgical Remedies wherewith the Natives constantly use to Cure their Distempers, Wounds and Sores; Also a perfect Description of an Indian Squaw, in all her Bravery, with a Poem not improperly conferred upon her."

The Kew exhibit calls the first native-born American botanist, John Bartram, born in 1699, a great collector who sent a vast amount of material to Europe.

When Bartram died in 1777, the era of great plant collectors in America was underway. The first professional collector went to Virginia in 1712. Mark Catesby and those who followed him naturally concentrated on plants of the East Coast.

The West was opened in time for David Douglas, another great plant collector, who sent back an immense amount of material. Douglas was killed while hunting plants in 1834. He was gored to death when he tumbled into a pit designed to trap wild cattle in Hawaii.

The exhibit traces close connections between Kew Gardens and America to work as horticulturists," the pamphlet said. "Almost all made good, and some became famous."

July 1 Deadline On Those Liable For Privilege Licenses

HORNET'S NEST WITH PICTURE WINDOW— A swarm of hornets obligingly built their nest against a window at a railroad freight office in Durham allowing persons in the office a safe, closeup view of the adult insects crawling through the interior tunnels of the nest and the larvae hatching from the pupae stage. Turn the picture over and it gives a "jaws" effect of looking in the mouth of a shark. (AP Wirephoto)

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with an ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out... and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.
