

Transit System Planned Begin Operating In July

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Greenville Mayor Percy Cox announced this morning "a GREAT event—the opening this month of the Greenville Area Transit system.
Four new Mercedes Benz

buses will begin rolling July 29, he said.
"I urge every citizen of Greenville to ride the bus," he said. "We have done everything possible to provide a convenient and reliable transit system. It is now up to you to make it work.

With the ever-increasing cost of gasoline and other car expenses, it makes sense to ride the bus, especially for errands and other quick trips. Housewives can use it to go shopping, school children can use it to go to our parks, retired persons can now go almost any place they want to without relying on friends. We feel very strongly that the transit system is needed by all our citizens—all you have to do is try it once, and I know you'll agree that it will be a GREAT experience."

A special get-acquainted three days of free service will begin Thursday, July 29, with regular service set to start Monday, August 2. Fare will be 25 cents.
Route and schedule will be published and distributed soon.

Cox also announced the hiring of Robert Tallo as manager of GREAT. Tallo has been involved with starting the Chapel Hill transit system. "There must be a little masochist in me to make me want to go through it all again," he joked. However, he quickly added, "Actually, public transit is something I believe in and I'm going to accept the challenge of doing everything I possibly can to making it work

"Each of the four diesel-run buses carry 16 seated passengers. However, before GREAT goes into operation, the seats will be turned so that they line the side and rear walls (a U effect). Then each bus will seat 22 people and there will be more standing and walking space in each and potential for better viewing of the street for each passenger," City Planner Schofield explained.

The diesel engines will allow for use of less expensive and less noxious fuel than gasoline.
Three Greenville mechanics will be sent to a special school of the Mercedes Benz company to learn how to care for the engines.

More details of the program and the schedules will be published in the weeks before July 29. The buses will be on view downtown during the Bicentennial celebration this weekend, Mayor Cox said.

News Gag Is Ruled Out By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a Nebraska judge's order restricting news coverage of a sensational mass murder case last October was an unconstitutional restraint on freedom of the press.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the court did not rule out the possibility that such orders could be issued in other circumstances to protect the right of a defendant to a fair trial.

But the court said "the barriers to prior restraint remain high" and that those barriers had not been overcome in the Nebraska case.

The decision marked the first time in the court's history that it gave full-scale review to a direct prior restraint on news coverage of a criminal case.

Burger's opinion was confined closely to the facts in the Nebraska case, but he said the decision also "results in part from the problems inherent in meeting the heavy burden of demonstrating, in advance of trial, that without prior restraint a fair trial will be denied."

In another case involving the news media, the court declined to review an order jailing a Los Angeles newsmen for refusing to reveal his sources for a story about the Manson murders.

The U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco had upheld the contempt conviction of William T.
Farr, then a reporter for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.
Farr had written a story about a written statement by a cel-mate of Susan Atkins, a follower of Charles Manson, convicted in the slaying of actress Sharon Tate.

In its Nebraska decision, the court focused on a longstanding debate over whether the constitutional guarantee of a fair trial requires restrictions on news coverage to keep publicity from influencing jurors.

At the heart of the debate is what balance should be struck between the Sixth Amendment, guaranteeing a person facing criminal charges "a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury," and the First Amendment, prohibiting any abridgement of the freedom of the press.

The fair trial-free press debate has been building since 1966, when the Supreme Court reversed the conviction of Dr.
Sam Sheppard for the murder of his wife. The court said the Cleveland osteopath had not been adequately protected from "the inherently prejudicial publicity which saturated the community."

The debate has been sharpened by several so-called gag orders in which judges have restricted news coverage before and during trials. Five orders containing such restrictions were issued the year after the Sheppard decision.

Last year, there were 62. Attorney E. Barrett Prettyman, representing news organizations in arguments before the Supreme Court in April, said he knew of 11 such orders in the previous six months alone.

Since then, news restrictions have been ordered and subsequently lifted in singer Connie Francis' lawsuit against a New York motel in which she was raped and entertainer Claudine Longet's manslaughter trial in the Aspen, Colo., killing of her lover, skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

Today's decision marks the Supreme Court's first full-scale review of a direct prior restraint on news coverage of a criminal case.

Checking The Scene

CHECKING THEIR GEAR... U.S. Marines—
Sgt. Donald Marriott, Capt. William McHenry and Lt. John Harris—check their diving gear before entering the Tar River here Tuesday afternoon to check for underwater obstructions in the area of the Town Commons. The mission, by members of Bravo Company, Second Reconnaissance Battalion, Camp Lejeune, was designed to insure the safety of other Second Recon Marines who will take part in a demonstration here July 3 as part of the Jaycees-sponsored July 4 celebration. As part of the demonstration Marine reconnaissance team will jump into the river from a helicopter flying at 10 miles per hour, 10 feet from the surface; be picked up from the water again by the helicopter; and rapell from a helicopter hovering 85 feet above the ground. The helicopter and other military hardware used by the Marine Corps will be on display prior to the 1 p.m. demonstration. In addition to Capt.

McHenry and Sgt. Marriott, L-Cpl. Mark Palmowski and Pfc. Ed Daniels took part in yesterday's diving operation.

Greenville Is Promised A July 4 Celebration Never Before Staged

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer
Plans for Greenville's Independence Day festivities are proceeding on schedule, according to David Duffus, co-chairman of the Jaycees' Fourth of July celebration committee.

"Out of all the July 4 celebrations we have had in Greenville, we have never had one this large," said Duffus.

"We expect a crowd of 10 to 15,000 people to be present.
Many people have expressed interest in the celebration so far and plan to take part in it.

"We would urge all people in the Greenville and Pitt County area to join in the festivities for the Bicentennial Fourth of July celebration.

"We probably will not have another celebration of this magnitude for the next 10 years."

According to Duffus, the two-day celebration will be kicked off Saturday morning with a canoe race down the Tar River from Falkland to Greenville.

Approximately 20 people have signed for the race, which will involve two classes of crafts: canoes and rafts.
Military activities will be featured Saturday afternoon from 1-5 p.m.

The military exhibitions will include a flyover of jets from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at 1 p.m., and a demonstration given by a reconnaissance team from Camp Lejeune involving ten scuba divers, who will jump from helicopters into the Tar River.

Afterwards, various military equipment will be displayed by some reserve units.

From 2-5 p.m. Saturday, the Jaycees will sponsor an "Oddball Olympics," featuring various marathons such as a lemon-and-onion eating contest and a talking marathon, Duffus said.

A street dance will be held Saturday evening from 8-12 p.m. on Reade Street. New Image, a six-piece band from Fayetteville, will perform Top-40 hits, and "boogie music."

A small fireworks display will end Saturday's activities.

A bicycle race will begin Sunday's festivities.
According to Duffus, the race, sanctioned by the U.S.
Cycling Federation, will consist of distances varying from 12 to 30 miles.

The race will be held in the downtown area. Up to $400 in prize money will be awarded.

There will be a number of competitive events in the afternoon, including fishing contests, a greased-pole climb and a pie-eating contest.

From 4-6 p.m. Sunday a gospel sing will be held. The Melody Makers from Black Jack and the Temple Quartet from Parker's Chapel will be featured performers.

Following the gospel sing will be a karate demonstration.

"Sunday in the Park,"

featuring the Plank Road String Band, will take place from 7 p.m. until dark.

According to Duffus, the Bicentennial festivities will conclude with fireworks.

"At dark, we will have a large and awe-inspiring fireworks display to cap the Bicentennial celebration," he said.

In addition to the activities already mentioned, Duffus added that a bake sale sponsored by the Jaycees will be occurring throughout the weekend.

Ky Asserts He Stayed Honest

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former South Vietnamese vice president Nguyen Cao Ky has admitted that his government was corrupt, but says he had always maintained an honest position — and now regrets his honesty.

"I was not corrupt," he said Tuesday. "Perhaps that's the only thing I regret. I realized after 14 months in this country the value of money, whether it's clean or dirty."

He said it was this corruption that allowed the Communists to unify Vietnam.

Ky, who was here to address the Indianapolis Business and Professional Men's Club, told a news conference earlier that the 150,000 Vietnamese refugees in America are homesick.

Barry Is For Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen.
Barry Goldwater, an influential voice among conservative Republicans, has endorsed President Ford for the GOP nomination for the White House.

The 1964 Republican presidential nominee issued his endorsement in a letter sent Tuesday to national convention delegates.

The Arizona senator, who had long signaled his preference for the President over Ronald Reagan, said it was a difficult call, and added that he greatly admires the former California governor.

"Although, frankly, the philosophy presented by the two candidates is almost identical and the solutions offered to the problems in most cases coincide, my decision rests solely on the fact that at this time in our history I do not believe that our government can suffer through the months and months of reorganization that would be necessary if we had a change in the office," Goldwater wrote.

Request Search

NEW YORK (AP) — Balloonist Karl Thomas' ground crew asked the U.S. Coast Guard today to start looking for him.
There has been no contact with him since Sunday night, and the crew said it was worried.

Thomas took off Friday night on his attempt to become the first person to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon. Several others have died in similar efforts.

"We think he is still aloft," crewman Wallace Clayton said today. "But we haven't heard from him for more than 56 hours so we've asked the Coast Guard to initiate a search."

Before his 90-foot-tall red, white and blue helium-filled balloon lifted off, Thomas confided to few of his friends, "I may not make it, but I'm not

Hijackers Free 47 Of Hostages

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) —
Palestinian hijackers of a French jetliner today released 47 elderly women, sick persons and children among the more than 250 hostages they were holding for the third day at En-tebbe Airport, the Ugandan government announced. Two Americans were among them.

The West German Embassy, which handles American affairs in Uganda, identified the Americans as Carol Taylor, 33, and her son Eric, 6. No home town was given.

The Israeli cabinet was meeting in emergency session to decide what it would do about demands to free 40 prisoners, to ransom the rest of the captives and the plane. At least 70 Israelis are among the hostages.
Official Uganda radio said those freed were handed over to French Ambassador Pierre Renard, with Ugandan President Idi Amin and Somali Ambassador Hashi Abdullah acting as intermediaries.

Besides the two Americans, the 47 included 33 French, one Canadian and various other nationalities, the announcement said.

The Ugandan government said an Air France Boeing 707 plane had left neighboring Kenya for Entebbe to fly the freed hostages out. French Embassy officials said they believed the plane would go directly to Paris, but an airport spokesman in Nairobi said it might return there.

Modest Rise In City Tax Rate

A new city budget has been approved by the Greenville City Council and the tax rate for 1976-77 will be 64 cents per $100 valuation.

That was the rate in 1974-75. It was dropped by four cents for the 1975-76 fiscal year, a tight year for the economy in general, and will be returned to the 1974-75 rate for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The tax rate and other sources of income will provide $6,877,808 for operating the city and capital improvements during the fiscal year. The budget also includes $24,060,495.76 for Greenville Utilities Commission, which is owned by the city. In recent years it has been required that the Utilities budget be approved as a part of the city budget by the City Council, although the Utilities Commission generally makes up its own budget for submission to the council.

We consider the tax increase to 64 cents this year a modest one, particularly since it returns to the tax rate used two years ago.

It is well to keep in mind, however, that much revenue for meeting the city's needs comes from other sources. Federal revenue sharing, for instance amounts to $695,225 in the new budget, and it is still not certain that this program will be continued after the first of the year. Powell Bill funds from the state for street maintenance and improvements.

A large source of outside funds is the federal Community Development Funds which for the year 1976-77 will total $2,107,000. That is an exceptionally large amount for a city of Greenville's size. Our city fared well under this program because it had taken advantage previously of various federal grants.

Greenville should be able to get a lot done in the year ahead in providing for the needs of a growing city and the tax rate has been held to a reasonable level. We can be thankful for that.

Coastal Bill Is Pending

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is ready to send to President Ford a bill establishing a $1.5-billion program of financial aid to help coastal states deal with large energy projects.

The Senate approved the measure by voice vote Tuesday, and the House was expected to pass it today.

Included in the compromise measure is $1.2 billion in loans and grants to help communities whose populations expand because of major energy projects, such as offshore oil and gas wells.

Both houses had previously approved different versions of the legislation, but it was bottled up in a conference committee for four months.

Enactment seemed assured after the conferees last week bowed to Ford administration suggestions that the outright grants be awarded only as a last resort.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., protested that such language would discriminate against states like Louisiana that have an immediate need for the grants. But backers said that without the administration-sought restriction, the measure would have faced a near-certain veto.

The bill sets up a federal fund containing $800 million for loans and other indirect assistance and $400 million for outright grants.

The federal assistance would be used to help states build roads, schools, hospitals and water and sewer projects in areas affected by energy projects.

The aid would be available to states with a shore on either ocean, the Gulf of Mexico or on the Great Lakes.

Under the restriction sought by the White House, the federal grants could not be awarded until communities involved had first applied for alternate means of financing, including the loans.

However, in some cases grants could be issued to help states or communities pay off the loans.

Pitt County farmers are enthusiastically in favor of a tobacco-grading system supervised by the federal government.

With reports in from almost all of the township meetings, approximately 90 percent of farmers allowed to participate in the voting favored the proposal.

If farmers favor government-supervised grading, the system will be installed at the Farmville, Smithfield and Goldsboro markets this year.

Greenville residents experienced the hottest weather of the summer today when the mercury soared to 102½ degrees at 1:30 p.m. and was said to be still rising at the time.

Just As Susceptible To Public Pressures

The Associated Press reported that President Ford is urging other industrial nations to "go slow" on social welfare spending. The president's concern is for the revival of inflation and a subsequent recession.

We recognize that possibility, but the leaders of our allied nations are politicians, too, and they are susceptible to popular pressures for new social programs. It will be remarkable if those pressures can be withstood.

Growth Is In Active Selling

By BILL NOBLITT (Second of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — A successful business firm has an aggressive marketing program — identifying potential customers, formulating a product to meet those specific needs, and sending salesmen armed with more information and knowledge than even the buyer has.

That is what North Carolina needs in recruiting industrial growth, many experts now agree.

To lift North Carolina out of last place in average wages paid in manufacturing industries, the state must bring in higher paying industries to compete with the traditionally low-pay textile, apparel, and furniture companies. That, concluded an in-depth study by the Research Triangle Institute in 1974 and now embraced by a number of people seeking to improve wages, is the key to future growth.

Research Analyst Lloyd O'Carroll of the General Assembly staff has taken a close look at the present recruitment system in North Carolina, pronounced it

"passive" rather than "active," and suggested an alternative approach.

Pave Way
His memorandum sent to the top leadership of both houses of the General Assembly is expected to help pave the way for serious consideration of economic development policies in the 1977 session.

The "ideal program" which O'Carroll suggests would be a comprehensive growth management program where an activist industrial recruiting effort would identify and directly solicit desirable industries.

Tourist promotion, community assistance, some aspects of environmental management and resource management, and coordination efforts with state agencies such as Community Colleges and Transportation should be included.

Comprehensive stock-taking of available manpower, raw materials, community resources, water and sewer availability, environmental constraints, and political considerations (local likes and dislikes such as anti-unionism) should be done on a county or julticounty regional basis.

Then, local needs and attractions should be matched by industry experts with prospective Tar Heel firms and the comprehensive plans aggressively shown to the selected industries who might now or in the future be considering a move to the South.

Foreign Firms
O'Carroll concludes that the "international area appears to offer particularly good opportunities for solicitation of industrial plant locations. Many business leaders in Western Europe are beginning to fear creeping socialism in their domestic economies and view the U.S. as the last economy that is likely to succumb to that disease."

He says many business leaders are considering relocating in this country from both western Europe and Japan, and that with sharp increases in labor costs due to government-mandated social programs, the wages in this country now compare favorably to labor costs overseas.

A recruitment program in those overseas areas "could be potentially very rewarding," O'Carroll says, and notes that special expertise on customs and social attitudes would put an aggressive state ahead of the competition. "It is important that the governor be very visible in international solicitation efforts," he noted.

A new marketing strategy would require program changes and increased spending, with more skilled people to analyze data, select potential customers, and trained salesmen to make the presentations.

Beyond just marketing, O'Carroll suggests changes in state policy and law which could create advantages in winning industrial prospects, such as reduced or eliminated inventory taxes, improved ports, better education at all levels, a work force with higher skills, a community college system more oriented to vocational training, transportation, etc.

"Improvements in the actual advantage of the state would have the greatest long-term impact on the pace of economic development. It is easier to sell a better product," O'Carroll concludes.

A Gossip Column For All

WASHINGTON — There is a tremendous amount of talk these days about the newspaper's role in scandal. Should the press discuss the sexual and private lives of public servants? What is the point of newspapermen reporting gossip? Unfortunately, the sex scandals have gotten everyone off the track. There is a definite place for gossip in Washington, but it shouldn't have to do with who is sleeping with whom.

This is the type of gossip column that Washington and the country needs. Congressman Val Blinkerman was seen last night at Duke Zeiberts Restaurant dining with a lobbyist from General Dynamics. Rumor has it that Blinkerman may be in bed with the B-1 bomber people.

Senator Tom Crinkle

missed an important vote on the tax bill because he was off hunting on the eastern shore of Maryland with several buddies from an aerospace conglomerate. General Charley Rotor and his family are vacationing in the Virgin Islands, compliments of an armored personnel tank company. Charley wanted to stay for a second week, but he had to get back to the Pentagon to advise the secretary of defense on equipment for the U.S. Army's new tactical division. Tough luck, Charley, but a week is better than nothing.

Washington is agog over the new Mercedes Benz Billy Rimsikorf is driving. Billy, who makes $15,000 a year, said the Mercedes was a gift from an old college school chum who is now VP of a large oil company hoping to get offshore drilling rights to

New Jersey. Do we hear wedding bells in the offing?

The lovely hostess Clara Kay, wife of the powerful Senator Biff Kay, is no longer doing charity work. She has just been hired by the government of Rutania to handle its public relations in the United States. Clara is very excited about her new job and sees no conflict with her husband's position as chairman of the subcommittee on Rutania, which will hold hearings next week on a $900 million aid package to the country. Ambassador Zoog, who throws the best parties in Washington, told us, "I am secretly in love with Clara. We're very lucky to get her." When we asked Clara what her salary would be, she said $85,000. "Isn't it fun?" she giggled. "I'll be making more money than Biff."

What consumer advocate is now being followed night and day by the FBI? . . . Toland Brillo, of Brillo, Factor and Capistan, the Washington law firm, gave a big party at the Madison Hotel last week to celebrate an out-of-court settlement he made with the Justice Department in the SEC fraud case of Dilly Doodle. For those of you who have short memories, Doodle was indicted for embezzling $20 million in a grain fraud scandal. Thanks to Brillo, Doodle was fined $500 and cannot deal in wheat futures for six months. Poor Dilly.

Dr. Huddleston Hargrave, the tough Federal Drug Administrator who was responsible for the recall of Whizzadrine, made by the Plowboy Drug Co., has resigned to become vice president in charge of public affairs for Plowboy at $150,000 a year. His last act before leaving the FDA was to rescind his recall of Whizzadrine, which he admitted was a "terrible" mistake.

State income in May from various taxing sources came on strong to ease the pressure in the fiscal crisis which brought legislators to Raleigh last month to ponder a solution. Now, taxpayers have met the challenge and have relieved the emergency, and without any new taxes.

Revenue Secretary Coble said that the way things have turned out, the extra session was not necessary at all. That of course, was not evident at the time. A slack of some $20 million below previous estimates remains, but that is expected to be overcome, possibly this month.

Continued improvement in the economy explains the reversal of the downtrend in State finances, and there is reason to assume that it will continue. That would eliminate the worries. At the same time, the State is not the loser by retrenchments that were made effective, except that pay raises for employees, including teachers in the public schools, were not all that was desired, and will likely be compensated when the next Legislature convenes.

As it now develops, Governor Holshouser was right in predicting last winter that the economy would lift the State out of the crisis by the end of this fiscal year this June 30. Some thought he was talking through the hat, and he may have been, but time has confirmed his optimism.

Even if the economy may continue the improvement that has come about, it will not justify pulling all the stops in returning to the old ways of free wheeling with public finances. Since retrenchment has been brought about, it ought to continue. Overly generous outlays in recent years got the State into the jam and that could repeat unless sound fiscal policies are made permanent in the future.

Revising Economic Statistics

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the most important statistical measures of the economy for late 1975, when a slack recovery developed new vigor, have since been revised, a review of government reports shows.

Some of the revisions, routinely made, indicate the economy was even stronger than originally depicted, but downward revisions not only appear to have been more numerous but to have occurred in more significant areas.

The third-quarter inflation rate as measured by the Gross National Product "deflator," for example, was revised from under 5 percent, as reported late in the year, to 7.1 percent in January 1976.

The importance of revisions is underscored by the extent to which statistics are used as the basis of government revenue sharing, political and economic planning, corporate investment and personal buying decisions.

Further intensifying their significance is the emergence of the economy as the number one issue in the presidential election campaign and the heavy reliance on the government numbers.

While there is no question that the economy did indeed become stronger, some of the reports, coming at a time when doubts existed about continued recovery, tended to exaggerate the new strength.

In October, for example, the Commerce Department announced that the Gross National Product, the output of goods and services rose at a strong 11.2 percent annual rate in the third quarter of the year.

In addition, it said the inflation rate as measured by the GNP deflator, a broad gauge indicator, held steady at 5 percent. The figures offered double reassurance to those people who had doubts about the recovery.

It had been no understatement when, five days prior to the announcement, President Ford told a meeting of businessmen that "You are going to probably see some very encouraging economic statistics coming out in the next few days."

The improvement, which was very encouraging, looked even better in the next month. In November, that same third-quarter GNP advance was revised upward to 13.2 percent, and the inflation rate was dropped to 4.7 percent.

The encouraging revisions continued in December, when the third-quarter rate was again revised upward, this time to 13.4 percent. The revised inflation rate moved up a minuscule one-tenth of one percent to 4.8.

The increasingly good news was greeted enthusiastically everywhere. By the stock market too. In December it began one of the sharpest ascents ever recorded, more than 150 points on the Dow Jones industrial average by the end of January.

Then, with relatively little fanfare, those third-quarter GNP figures that had been successively raised higher in November and December were suddenly revised the other way in January, back to 12 percent.

Few people noticed; the figures, after all, referred to the year before, to history. These were not the only statistical indicators that depicted good news during the latter part of 1975 which later, and relatively unnoticed, were revised, often to show a less pronounced improvement.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Friends Warn Gerry Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Four senatorial champions and long-time friends of President Ford have quietly moved into the center of campaign strategy planning for the President, warning him bluntly that failure to tighten up his incredibly loose campaign organization could well result in his defeat at Kansas City.

The most recent secret meeting between the President and the four — Robert Griffin of Michigan, Robert Dole of Kansas, Howard Baker of Tennessee and John Tower of Texas — was a 3½-hour session Wednesday evening, also attended by Mr. Ford's regular political aides.

But the first and far more important session was the evening of June 15 when the four spent two hours alone with the President. Their message, delivered with grim reality, was that Mr. Ford was dangerously outclassed by Ronald Reagan's superior organization at the delegate-selecting state conventions, the all-important last step in choosing delegates for the national convention.

The clear warning: If top-level attention was not immediately put on the state conventions, following the disastrous loss of 18 at-large Missouri delegates June 12, the President could lose the nomination by default. At least one of the Senators present said he was convinced that well before the Aug. 16 Kansas City convention, Mr. Ford's perceived delegate count must exceed the 1,130 needed for nomination by at least 20 delegates.

His reasoning: there is more "water" in the "hard-core" Ford count than in the "hard-core" Reagan count. To make a credible showing for a first-ballot nomination, thus stopping last-minute erosion to Reagan, Mr. Ford's perceived delegate strength must be well over 1,130.

The four Senators avoided recriminations in the June 15 session. Indeed, Mr. Ford twice telephoned his campaign chairman, Rogers Morton, during his talk with the Senators to check out several points.

Recriminations, the Senators feel, are meaningless because the real culprits were top White House staffers, headed by now Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, who totally ignored or belittled the possibility of serious opposition from Reagan to Mr. Ford's nomination in the spring and summer of 1975.

That is when the pre-convention organization should have been established, but nothing was done.

A footnote: At Mr. Ford's urging, Griffin went to Des Moines, Iowa, the next day to plan strategy for the President at the Republican state convention two days later. Baker and Dole both flew to Des Moines with Mrs. Ford on June 18, working delegate caucuses into the early hours of June 19.

A Ford Liberal

The White House, covertly but unsuccessfully, tried to keep prominent liberal Republican Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, an aggressive Ford supporter, off the convention platform committee in an effort to minimize battles there over Ronald Reagan's hard-line foreign policy positions.

What makes this so galling to Anderson's friends is that early this year he adjusted

SUCCESS IN SERVICE

Gold was discovered in California in 1848. Thousands of excited men crossed the plains or went by ship to the West Coast lured by the fascination of hidden treasure.

Yet who in the end found real treasure in California? Certainly not the great mass of people who went in search of gold. To be sure, a few of these struck real bonanzas and became wealthy. But the great mass of those who found fortune in that western country were those who, upon their arrival, opened stores and sold supplies to the miners, or transported them and their equipment to places of operation, or who built up productive farms and supplied food for the miners.

These people were the real founders of California — not the placer miners who were there a few years and then drifted away. It is the people who provide service for their fellow men who lay the foundations of civilization, not those who wish only to grasp for themselves the riches of the earth.

his own future to benefit the Ford campaign. Anderson was considering nomination by Mr. Ford to the seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago vacated by Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens. But when Ford operatives suggested to Anderson that leaving active politics just before the March 16 Illinois primary might be interpreted as bailing out on the President, he loyally decided to stay in Congress.

Nevertheless, conservative Ford backers are not happy about Anderson, particularly on foreign policy issues.

Anderson was approached several weeks ago by two conservative Ford leaders from Illinois, Reps. Bob Michel and Ed Derwinski, with this suggestion: wouldn't he rather serve on the rules or credentials committee instead of the platform committee?

Mortified though he was being invited out, Anderson would have been far angrier had he known the scheme originated in the White House. According to congressional sources, riding the platform committee of Anderson was suggested by presidential chief of staff Richard Cheney, a political neophyte.

The avowed reason was to utilize Anderson's expertise gained during long service on the House Rules Committee for convention rules or credentials fights. Ford backers privately admit the real motive was to prevent Anderson from tangling with conservatives on foreign policy and national defense platform planks.

Anderson refused to roll over, and beat down a challenge at the Illinois state Republican convention June 12. Nevertheless, he was politely rebuffed last week by the platform chairman, Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, when he volunteered to head the foreign policy subcommittee.

A footnote: If and when Mr. Ford is nominated, liberal Republicans such as Anderson may be brought out of the closet. One of the President's most influential advisers believes Anderson should replace Rogers Morton as post-convention campaign manager.

were subject to related revisions, some significantly downward, as more data were collected, examined and re-examined.

The figure for fourth-quarter corporate profits, originally announced at an annual rate of $142 billion, a sharp jump over the third-quarter figure of $130 billion, was revised to $134 billion, the smallest quarterly increase of the year.

This sweeping revision, not made until mid-March of 1976, badly threw off the calculations of some business analysts who had projected the rate far into the future for the benefit of clients, including stock market investors.

A redefinition of consumer price inflation for the year 1975 also illustrates the "bent mirror" view of the economy that can be produced by the numbers. By one measure it was 7 per cent; by another, 9.1 per cent.

The larger number was produced by the traditional method of adding up the monthly data, which represent increases people actually paid, and then averaging it. In the past, this technique had been accepted generally.

The smaller number, which suddenly found favor with the administration and the Federal Reserve, measured price changes from December to December, a technique that failed to depict the actual experience.

Very little fog formed this morning because wind speeds were fairly high. This contrasted with Tuesday morning's widespread and dense fog.

Lows at 5 o'clock this morning were mostly in the 60s.

Scattered thundershowers rumbled across the mountains and the Piedmont Tuesday. Temperatures reached into the 80s everywhere. Raleigh-Durham and Hendersen were the warmest with 91.

Southwesterly winds will continue along the coast through Thursday, until the cold and rainy front passes. Speeds will be from 10 to occasionally 20 knots. Waves were from one to three feet today.

Korean War Defector Plans Return To U.S.

HAWTHORNE, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. George Veneris never lost faith that her son, James, a prisoner of war who chose to remain with his Communist captors after the Korean War, would someday return to see her.

"It's the biggest thrill in 25 years," she said after learning Tuesday that her son will be allowed to visit his native country.

Veneris, who now lives in China, was one of 23 American prisoners of war who stayed with the Communists after the war. He asked to return to the United States for a visit and will be issued a passport, State Department officials said Tuesday.

The State Department said the 53-year-old Veneris is still an American citizen and needs only a passport to return to the United States.

All the other Americans but one, Howard G. Adams, have returned home since the Korean war. Adams also lives in China.

Mrs. Veneris, 78, last saw her son 25 years ago when he left for Korea. But her daughter, Nesta Greth, said her mother never doubted she would see James again.

"She always had this faith that he would come back and see her," Mrs. Greth said. "She has been waiting for this for 25 years."

Although her husband died in 1954, Mrs. Veneris still lives in the same house here that she did when her son went to Korea.

Mrs. Greth said that the family has corresponded regularly with Veneris despite the lengthy separation.

"My sister received a letter Friday and he mentioned he had been thinking of coming to America," she said. "But he didn't say when. He has been saying this through the years."

She said that her brother was very happy living in China, that he was married and had two children of his own and four from his wife's first marriage. He has worked in a paper mill in Tsinan for the past 25 years, she said, and will return to his home there after visiting the United States.

No date for Veneris' visit has been set. State Department sources said Veneris will not be charged with any crime and will be allowed to move around the country like any other citizen.

Born in Vandergrift, Pa., Veneris entered the Army in 1940 and took part in the World War II New Guinea campaign in the Pacific. He was honorably discharged in 1945 but reenlisted five years later. Three months after that, he was listed as missing in action in Korea. Veneris and 22 others refused repatriation in 1953 during the prisoner-of-war exchange after the Korean armistice. Two of the 23 changed their minds immediately and were imprisoned in the United States after they were convicted of collaborating with the enemy.

The Defense Department ordered dishonorable discharges for all 21 men in June 1954 and said it had no further jurisdiction over them.

Beame Seeking FBI Probe Reports Kept From Kelley Avoid Default

NEW YORK (AP) — With fiscal default looming once again, city officials and representatives of municipal labor unions broke off contract talks early today to revitalize themselves for a do-or-die effort later today to prevent default.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame warned that unless the city and its workers agree to "no-cost" contracts "we will not get the loans we need. We must recognize the urgency of this matter."

"We're going to work hard to get it (agreement). Otherwise we'll miss a payroll and default on our bonds."

Neither side would comment upon emerging from the talks at 2 a.m. except to say they would meet again at 8 a.m. Beame remarked that "there are still many knotty problems to be worked out."

He said he had heard Tuesday that Treasury Secretary William Simon would not approve the $2.3 billion the city needs, beginning Thursday, to avert default unless the city had in hand the "outlines of an agreement in principle" on no-cost, two-year contracts with the 160,000 employees. New York City has more than 250,000 workers.

Beame said that beyond not adding to the city's labor bill, new agreements must reduce the cost of fringe benefits by $24 million in the next year to cut the city's deficit.

Thus, any cost-of-living or other pay increases would have to come either from the surrender of $24 million worth of already obtained benefits or from new productivity increases.

City officials had to report today to Simon on the agreements.

Member Of Nat'l Group

Gamma Theta Upsilon international honor society in geography has received membership in the Association of College Honor Societies. The announcement was made by Dr. Robert E. Cramer of the East Carolina University geography faculty, past international president of Gamma Theta Upsilon.

The Association of College Honor Societies is an organization of about 50 honor societies, representing most academic disciplines and many professional fields. The organization works toward the promotion and recognition of honor students.

Gamma Theta Upsilon, organized in 1928, now has active chapters at 165 campuses in the U.S. and other nations. During Dr. Cramer's term of office, 1973-75, constitutional changes were made to meet standards for membership in the Association of College Honor Societies.

Since leaving office, Dr. Cramer has continued to act as negotiator until Gamma Theta Upsilon received full approval of membership in the Association.

Elected Nat'l Sec. Of Society

Owen Kingsbury, Scientific glassblower for the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry, has been elected to another two-year term as National Secretary of the American Scientific Glassblowers Society.

He officially resumed the office at the organization's 21st symposium and exposition in Chicago last week.

Kingsbury also conducted a lecture and workshop on sealing Mullite high temperature ceramic to Borosilicate glass for symposium participants.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has blocked FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley from receiving investigative reports on a probe of FBI burglaries, according to a knowledgeable source.

The department official in charge of the investigation has hand-picked a team of 12 FBI agents to do much of the leg-work in the case, this source and others familiar with the developments said Tuesday.

The agents' reports may have been sent to Kelley and one of his top assistants, James Adams, early in the investigation, the sources said. But that was changed on orders from department officials and agents no longer are allowed to report their findings to Kelley or Adams, the source said.

It is unusual for the FBI director to be sealed off from reports of his own agents even in investigations involving alleged FBI wrongdoing. It could not be determined why department officials took such action. But the probe is being conducted in even tighter secrecy than usual, and few department officials have been told about the details.

The investigation centers on allegations that FBI agents carried out burglaries at the homes or offices of Americans during the last five years. It is not known how many burglaries might be involved.

Sources said the investigation involves possible criminal charges that FBI men violated the civil rights of citizens in the break-ins.

The department probe is under the over-all direction of Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division.

"I've seen Stan shake his head in dismay at what they've found," a department official remarked.

In a development related to the probe, Assistant FBI Director Andrew Decker has hired a well-known Washington attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, to represent him, sources said.

Decker was assigned to intelligence and security matters for several years before Kelley appointed him assistant director for the computer systems division in 1974.

INTERN PROGRAM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment of the Arts says the 10th session of its Work Experience Internship Program begins Sept. 20.

Nancy Hanks, chairman of organization, says, "Our goal is to provide educated, talented young people with practical work experience so that they may enter administrative positions in the arts where trained personnel are very much in demand."

Teamster Pension Fund Loses Status

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The loss of tax-exempt status for the Teamsters union's biggest pension fund could have a devastating impact on the fund itself, the employers who finance it and the pensioners who benefit from it, says a key trucking industry official.

"The ramifications are really far-reaching," said William G. McIntyre, president of Trucking Employers, Inc., the industry's bargaining arm.

McIntyre said the disclosure

Tuesday that the Internal Revenue Service has revoked the tax-exempt status of the $1.4-billion Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund for alleged mismanagement and imprudent loans came as a surprise.

IRS officials, in keeping with policy, declined direct comment on the agency's action, contending that the affairs of taxpayers are confidential. But the officials did discuss generally the impact of an IRS decision revoking a fund's tax-exempt status, and their assessment of the potential impact agreed with McIntyre's.

If the action survives expected appeals by the fund's trustees — IRS officials say the process could take years — the Central States fund would be liable for taxes on its earnings back to 1965. The revocation was retroactive to Jan. 31, 1965.

This could involve millions of dollars in both past and future earnings and substantially reduce the amount of money available for paying out benefits. That would mean employees who contribute to the fund in behalf of their workers either would have to kick in more money or the benefits would be lower than they would have been otherwise. The workers do not contribute to the fund.

For employers who contribute to the fund, the government's action could mean they will have to pay taxes on contributions deducted since 1965, as well as on future contributions.

In the year ended Jan. 31, 1975, records filed with the Labor Department show the trucking industry contributed $283 million to the Central States fund. If forced to pay taxes on that amount, the bill might run as high as $135 million.

The fund is administered by 16 trustees, eight from the trucking industry and eight from the union, including its president, Frank E. Fitzsimmons. The trustees declined comment.

Fitzsimmons confirmed Tuesday night that the IRS had revoked the fund's tax-exempt status, the Oklahoma City newspaper, The Oklahoman, said.

The newspaper said the Teamsters boss said in a telephone interview that the action extends back to Jan. 1, 1966.

Fitzsimmons criticized the action and suggested that IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander did not know the status had been revoked by subordinates in Chicago, the newspaper said.

Over the years, the fund has been accused repeatedly of investing its members' money unwisely, making loans to people connected with organized crime and failing to provide proper pensions. An estimated $200 million has been invested in Las Vegas gambling and hotel interests, making the fund the biggest investor in that city.

The departments of Labor and Justice began an investigation last fall into allegations of improper and illegal loans by the fund to persons with underworld ties. But the IRS action was not directly related to either that inquiry or a separate congressional probe.

Sources said the IRS decision resulted from an investigation of the fund that started before the other government agencies began looking into Central States affairs.

Early Scores Lead Campbell Past Bucs

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Terry Durham hurled seven and a third innings of one-hit baseball last night against Campbell College.

But it didn't mean a thing. Durham was in relief of Pete Conaty, chased in the second inning by the Camels after giving up six runs on five hits. Durham did his job, shutting the door on the opposition, but the Pirates were able to come up with only three runs during the evening, failing to a 6-3 defeat.

The loss dropped the Pirate record to 8-8 on the year in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League. Campbell climbed to a 7-12 mark.

Conaty, who hurled a one-hitter at North Carolina his last time out, has trouble finding the mark last night. Campbell jumped on him quickly for a hit and followed that up with a pair of walks to load the bases before anyone was out.

Durham came on after the score reached 6-0 and has a man on base. The first man he faced reached on an error, but he retired the next to finally close the second inning out.

From there on, Durham was in complete control. Just two other runners reached on him. Bob Mayhew beat out an infield chopper in the third, and Paul Rappa reached on an error in the sixth. After the hit, Durham retired nine in a row before Rappa reached, then the hurler set down the final ten without damage.

Winner Mark Percifield did a good job in scattering the seven Pirate hits he allowed. He got into trouble only in the second when the Bucs got their runs, but a double play then, plus another in the third killed any hopes of the Pirates of a full rally.

Campbell got it going when Rappa hit the first pitch of the game into center, then stole second. John Lippert walked and Tony Naumann also got a free pass to first, filling the bases. Keith Snider slapped a single into center, scoring both Rappa and Lippert. Snider moved up on a wild pitch and the first out of the inning. Then, after a strikeout, Max Mann doubled to deep center, scoring Snider for the 4-0 lead.

The Camels came back with two more in the second. With one away, Rappa walked and Lippert reached on an infield hit, dodging Sonny Wooten's attempt to tag him out after picking up the ball almost of the foul line. Pirate Coach Monte Wooten argued in vain that Lippert ran outside the baseline.

Rappa went all the way to third on the play, scoring on Naumann's sacrifice bunt. Snider then singled in Lippert, making it 6-0.

East Carolina got a rally going in the second when Wooten opened up with a walk and Pete Paradossi singled. Charlie

Stevens also got a hit, loading the bases. Bobby Supel doubled to left center, scoring Wooten and Paradossi, and Jerry Carraway walked to reload the bases. Howard McCullough grounded into a double play, scoring Stevens, but the twin killing effectively killed the rally. The Bucs got only two more men as far as second, both in the sixth, on a single, a walk, and a wild pitch, but couldn't get them in.

East Carolina travels to UNC-Wilmington on Thursday, and returns home Friday to host Methodist at 7:30 p.m.

Legion Loses In 10th Frame

SNOW HILL — Floyd Adams singled in Mike Chase in the bottom of the tenth breaking a 6-6 tie and giving Snow Hill a 7-6 American Legion victory last night.

Greenville had taken a 6-5 lead in the top of the eighth but Snow Hill tied it in the bottom of the frame. Greenville got a man to second in the ninth but failed to score.

Snow Hill took the lead in the first. Mike Jenkins led off with a single and an error moved him to second. He was sacrificed to third and scored on a wild pitch. Snow Hill ran the lead to 3-0 in the second. Ronnie Whitley doubled and Jerry Speight singled. Holloman doubled them both across.

Greenville broke the ice in the top of the third getting a run on a bases-loaded walk and rallied for four in the fourth to take the lead.

A hit by Aubrey Wynne started the rally and Smith singled. An error let David Dixon reach and load the bases. Mike Belton doubled scoring the three runners. Jim Averette singled Belton in.

Snow Hill picked up runs in the fourth and fifth to tie the game, 5-5.

Greenville regained the lead in the eighth as Dixon reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored as Belton reached on an error.

But Snow Hill tied the game when Jenkins tripled driving in Jay Carraway in the last of the eighth.

Chase opened the tenth with a one-out double and after Jenkins walked, Adams singled for the winning run.

Jenkins, Adams and Speight had two hits each for Snow Hill. Belton and Wynne had two each for Greenville.

Wise Flirts With Perfect Game Before Accepting One-Hitter

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Rick Wise sat at his locker and listed the factors involved in pitching perfect baseball: "Good stuff ... good control ... good defense ... good concentration," he said.

Pitch by pitch, it became clear to the 30-year-old right-hander that the factors were dropping into place. Inning by inning, with Baltimore batters falling in order, it became clear to the Boston are the plateau of perfection was within reach.

"I knew I had good stuff from the outset," he said after his one-hit, 2-0 triumph over the Orioles Tuesday night. "I was hitting spots and had them hacking at the ball. I was jamming guys, making them hit the ball up. I just felt I really had it."

Well, he almost did. Paul Blair marred the masterpiece with a sharp, clean single leading off the sixth inning. Only walks to Reggie Jackson and Al Bumbry in the seventh and ninth innings, respectively, proved the faulty brush strokes in what still was a pitching work of art.

"He had it all tonight," said Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who picked up the list where Wise had left off: "Good fastball, breaking pitches, and — just as important — good location."

But the hit was no disappointment to Wise, who pitched a no-hitter for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1971.

and hurled one-hitters in 1968 and 1972 and another two weeks ago.

"It was no disappointment losing the no-hitter tonight. If it happens in the eighth or ninth it is a different story. It's great to just throw a one-hit shutout. That's not easy, either."

Rick Wise just makes it seem that way.

In the other American League games Tuesday night, California clipped Chicago 4-1; Oakland blasted Texas 8-3; Kansas City defeated Minnesota 1-0; Detroit downed New York 7-5 and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 4-1.

Run-scoring hits by rookie Steve Dillard and Fred Lynn in the eighth inning supported Wise's third shutout of the campaign. The hurler faced just 28 batters, one over the minimum, and needed just 98 pitches to beat Baltimore.

Angels 4, White Sox 1

Dave Collins hit a two-run homer in the ninth to support "one of the most satisfying wins I ever had," according to Angels left-hander Frank Tanana, who had missed the last two weeks with an arm injury. A run-scoring single by Ron Jackson and a sacrifice fly by Jerry Remy plated the other California runs.

Jim Essian's sacrifice fly scored the Chicago run in the eighth.

A's 8, Rangers 3

Third baseman Sal Bando had a two-run homer and two-run double to lead Oakland's victory over the Rangers. Texas tallies came in the second on run-scoring singles by Jim Sundberg, Gene Clines and Mike Hargrove.

Royals 1, Twins 0

Fred Patek's 10th-inning sacifice fly scored Hal McRae from third base with an unearned run to give Kansas City pitcher Al Fitzmorris his ninth victory in 13 decisions. McRae had singled and taken second on a throwing error by Minnesota shortstop Roy Smalley. An infield out moved him to third.

The tally ruined a three-hitter by the Twins' Dave Goltz.

Tigers 7, Yankees 5

Home runs by rookie Jason Thompson and Rusty Staub helped bring Detroit to victory from a 4-0 first-inning deficit. The triumph, the Tigers' second in two nights over the AL East leaders, was their eighth in 10 games.

Thurman Munson and Fran Healy drove in two runs each to give New York its 4-0 lead.

Buck's In Lead Tie

Buck's Gulf, led by Carl White and Lise Leggett who scored six points each, upended Coke to move into a tie for first place in the Junior Putters League yesterday.

Buck's and Coke are tied at 5-2-1 and are in the lead of the league. Coke was led by Robert Sturtevant with six and Hayes Finnegan scored six.

Smith-Waldrop took a 22½-13½ victory over Jefferson Standard. Gene Tripp and Reagan Rogers had six each for Smith-Waldrop and Mitchell Wingate had four and Alan Marx had 3½ for Jefferson.

Jerry's beat J. H. Hudson 21½-20½. Joel Mauger and Raleigh Bland led Jerry's with six each while Gray Finnegan got six and Robert Stancill had 5½ to lead Hudson.

Coke and Buck's are in first, Jerry's is third at 5-3, Jefferson and Smith-Waldrop are in fourth at 3-5 and Hudson is sixth at 2-6.

Chris Chambliss homered in the seventh for a 5-3 Yankee advantage until Detroit scored three in its half of the inning and got insurance on Staub's blast in the eighth.

Indians 4, Brewers 1

Two-run homers by Larvell Blanks and George Hendrick helped Cleveland hand Milwaukee its sixth consecutive loss.

Best Gets ECU Grant

Billy Best of Leland has signed a grant-in-aid at East Carolina University to play baseball.

Best, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Best, spent a number of years in Greenville, playing Little League ball here when his father coached basketball at Rose High School.

Best later became principal at Leland School in Brunswick County.

Now graduated from high school, Best achieved one of his dreams in signing with the Pirates. He turned down offers at several other schools, according to his family.

While playing at North Brunswick High School his junior year, Best hit at a .403 clip, scoring 25 runs and stealing 21 bases. This past year, he hit .526, scored 29 runs and stole as many sacks — a school record. In American Legion ball, he hit .300 last year and stole 14 bases.

A shortstop in baseball, Best also played on the football team, where he was one of the leading players.

Kingman Blasts 27th Home Run

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Dave Kingman speaks, everyone listens. When he hits, everyone watches.

The New York Mets' strongman commands attention and gets respect everywhere he goes these days, especially from National League pitchers.

"I think I'm back in the groove," says the tall, powerful outfielder. "I'm just picking up the ball good. I think I have a nice, fluid motion now."

That awe-inspiring motion has muscled out the most home runs in the major leagues so far this season, including Tuesday night's two-run blast that carried the streaking Mets to a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. It was Kingman's 27th homer, putting him on a collision course with Hack Wilson's National League record of 56.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 2-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs 10-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1; the Houston Astros outscored the San Francisco Giants 4-3 and the Cincinnati Reds routed the San Diego Padres 12-5 in 14 innings.

While Kingman was doing the hitting, Mickey Lolich was doing the pitching as the Mets won their sixth straight game. Lolich pitched a three-hitter to gain his first National League shutout after 39 with the Detroit Tigers in the American League.

Kingman lined the first pitch thrown to him by Pete Falcone in the first inning over the left field fence after Joe Torre had doubled. The ball landed at the 442-foot marker beyond the fence.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

Dick Allen scored from third on a squeeze bunt in the ninth to give Philadelphia its victory over Montreal. Allen led off the ninth with a single and went to third on Jay Johnstone's base hit. After Garry Maddox flied out, Bob Boone laid down a bunt on the first base side and Allen ran home with the winning run.

Pirates 10, Cubs 1

John Candelaria pitched a three-hitter and contributed a two-run triple to an eight-run first inning as Pittsburgh defeated Chicago. Candelaria, 7-4, stopped the Cubs without a hit until Jose Cardenal singled to center with two outs in the sixth inning. The only Chicago run came on Bill Madlock's ninth home run, in the ninth inning.

Dodgers 2, Braves 1

Winning pitcher Tommy John, 5-4, squeezed home the decisive run in the second inning and Elias Sosa provided instant relief in the ninth as Los Angeles edged Atlanta.

Astros 4, Giants 3

Cliff Johnson's two-run triple capped a three-run eighth-inning rally that lifted Houston over San Francisco. All four Astros' runs were unearned, thanks to four errors by the Giants.

Reds 12, Padres 5

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum's lead-off homer in the 14th inning ignited a seven-run rally that gave Cincinnati its victory over San Diego. Following Lum's blast and a two-run triple by Cesar Geronimo, a solo homer by Dave Concepcion finally put the four-hour game out of reach for the Padres.

HE SCOOPS TO CONQUER — Roscoe Tanner almost scoops the ground with his racket as he goes after a ball during his quarter-finals match against favored Jimmy Connors at Wimbledon

Tennis Championships Tuesday. Tanner scored the upset of the day with a 6-4, 6-2, 8-6 victory over the second-seeded Connors. (AP Wirephoto)

Medal Might Have Ended It

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — If Rick Wohlhuter had won a medal at the 1972 Olympic Games, he might not have become the dominant force in the 800-meter run that he has been during the past four years.

"If I had won something at Munich, I might not have been as goal-oriented as I am," said the Chicago insurance man.

"Your goals determine your motivation frequently, and I guess I can say that what I did in 1972 might have led me to where I am today."

Today he is on the road to the Olympics, hopeful of winning the gold medal in the 800 next month at Montreal, despite — or perhaps because of — his own clumsiness in the Munich Games four years ago.

It was an ordinary 800 quarter-final race on Aug. 31, 1972. Still only 23, Wohlhuter was the favorite against such unknown runners as Alain Sans of France and Mansour Guettaya of Tunisia. Wohlhuter was supposed to ease into the semifinals.

After all, he had run a fast 1:45.0 behind Dave Wottle's 1:44.3 in the U.S. Trials only weeks earlier. But Wohlhuter fell over his own feet.

After 200 meters, he began to cut to the inside, stumbled and went down. "I stayed down on the track too long after falling," he said, but the crowd of 70,000 felt that getting up and trying to catch the departing runners was worth a standing ovation.

Wohlhuter's last-gasp dash to place, among the top three and advance failed when unknown

Azzedine Azzouzi of Algeria held him off for the final spot in the semifinals.

"No, I don't think it's bothered him consciously all these years," said Ted Hayden, coach of Wohlhuter's University of Chicago Track Club.

"He's not very emotional about things like that," said Hayden. "In fact, he liked to joke about it. He said the Munich track was very nice for falling on."

Since then, Wohlhuter has blossomed into one of the world's greatest runners. For two years he was unbeaten. He set world records of 1:44.1 for 880 yards, and 2:13.9 for 1,000 meters, within six weeks in 1974. He raced a mile in 3:53.3.

He ran away from some of the world's finest runners including Danie Malan of South Africa, Mike Boit of Kenya, and in 1974, he scored consecutive victories at a mile and 1,500 meters over John Walker of New Zealand.

The Olympic 800 appears wide open, even though Wohlhuter is one of the favorites.

Boit might be considered to have an edge in pre-race odds. A 6-2, 150-pounder, who is two weeks older than the 27-year-old Wohlhuter, Boit has run the second-fastest 800-meters on record, 1:43.79. He also was rated the No. 1 middle distance runner in the world in 1975, the same spot Wohlhuter had earned in 1974.

Also expected to be in strong contention at Montreal are the other two U.S. entrants, James Robinson, 20, and Mark Enyeart, 22, who halted Wohlhuter's two-year winning streak in 1975 by winning the AAU title.

Marinero Inks Jet Contract

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — It is a simple axiom of football that for a running back to be effective, he must be allowed to run. Ed Marinero never quite understood why the rule didn't apply to him.

"I got to the National Football League as a running back," said Marinero, "but then, I didn't get the opportunity to run."

Marinero spent his first four NFL seasons in Minnesota, where the offense is spelled Chuck Foreman running and Fran Tarkenton passing. He left that routine behind Tuesday when, after playing out his option with the Vikings last season, he signed a one-year contract with the New York Jets.

He comes to the Jets after his most productive NFL season. Given a regular starting job for the first time, he caught 54 passes for 462 yards as Foreman's backfield partner. But he had only 101 carries for 358 yards. That is about seven attempts per game, not nearly enough for a running back to prove anything.

"To be effective, a running back has to be given the ball," he said. "Unless you establish yourself as a runner, your position in the starting lineup is at ways threatened. You never have the opportunity to relax as a football player."

Marinero considers 15 carries per game the kind of diet a running back should be fed.

Marinero never had to worry about getting the ball at Cornell, where he set an NCAA rushing record by gaining 4,715 yards in 27 varsity games.

"In college, I ran from the I-formation," he said. "In that, you run to an area and find what's there. In the pros, I had to adjust to the split backfield. At first, I was not disciplined enough to run to the hole. In time, though, I learned."

Coach Lou Holtz, delighted with the acquisition of Marinero after losing free agent running back John Riggins to Washington earlier this month, said the Jets might try the I with Marinero as the tailback.

Marinero is a native of New Jersey and he said that was a major consideration in his selection of the Jets. "I have always wanted the chance to play in New York. I've got a lot of friends and family here and I'd like to finish my career here."

Feller Sees Answer To Baseball Furor

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Feller, whose fastball was once timed at 98.6 miles per hour, says baseball has a fever that could be cured by an all-powerful commissioner paid by both players and owners.

"The situation of baseball right now is a lot like that of the United States on Dec. 8, 1941—a little messed up," said Feller, who visited Texas last week on a promotion tour.

Feller, voted the greatest living right-handed pitcher during baseball's centennial in 1969, says Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was correct in voiding the sale of three Oakland players.

"Kuhn was just protecting the fans. They buy tickets with the idea their team will compete with a nucleus of players," Feller said. "Charlie Finley was trying to cash in before his assets evaporated."

He says a solution to the unrest in baseball would be for the players to pay half of the commissioner's salary and have an equal say with the owners in his hiring and firing.

"The commissioners would have the final say in disputes. You can't take away the legal right to sue but there would have to be a gentleman's agreement to accept the commissioner's decisions."

Forty years ago, in 1936, a decision by another commissioner settled a contract dispute involving the 17-year-old Feller.

Feller's whose fastball was a local legend in Iowa at age 11, had been plucked from the cornfields of Van Meter at age 16 by Cleveland Indian scout Cy Slapnicka.

Facing major league batters for the first time in an exhibition, the teen-aged fireballer struck out eight St. Louis Cardinals in three innings and in his first regular season start he fanned 15 St. Louis Browns.

It was then that the contract was questioned, because the rules at that time dictated that players had to be signed to minor league contracts before they agreed to a major league pact.

The technical tangle, which could have ended Feller's career at Cleveland, was settled by Commissioner Kenesaw Landis in favor of Cleveland after, Feller says, he lied to Landis about his signing.

"They told me to say I was signed first by our Fargo, N.D., minor league team," he says. "That was our story and I don't think he believed us, but I stayed in Cleveland."

The first five years of his career were right out of a storybook — 17 strikeouts in one game at the age of 17, 109 victories by the age of 22, 18 strikeouts in one game at age 19 and an opening day no-hitter in 1940.

Today, Feller is a walking advertisement for baseball. His post as a sports sales representative for a major hotel chain gives him time for old timers games and appearances at minor league parks and youth clinics.

Renovated N.C. Capitol To Be Opened To Public

ANCIENT LEGISLATIVE CHAMBER—With restoration of the North Carolina State Capitol nearly complete, visitors are now able to view the chamber where the House of Representatives met starting back in 1840. (AP Wirephoto)

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's 136-year-old state Capitol, wearing a new look on the inside, reopens to the public Thursday after being closed since last August for restoration repairs.

"Big improvements have been made," said veteran Secretary of State Thad Eure, who has been a Capitol occupant for 40 years.

"Everyone will be prouder than ever of the Capitol," he added. "It's the symbol of government in the state."

Although some work remains to be completed, the Capitol will be rededicated in ceremonies Sunday, July 4. Gov. Jim Holshouser will deliver an address in mid-afternoon from the second floor of the east portico. The restoration cost, including replacement of the Capitol dome, runs about $1.1 million, more than twice the original $531,000 cost of building the Capitol.

Eure said major improvements were made in the plumbing and lighting system.

"For 40 years I've been turning on and off the lights by pulling a cord from the ceiling," he explained. "Workers chiseled into the stone walls, recessed the conduit and installed switches. You can dim the lights now to any shade you want."

Still to be installed are marble mantels and hearths at 10 fireplaces. The Capitol has 18 other fireplaces that have been completed. Ten had been covered over in past years. These were uncovered and restored.

Margaret Bailey, education coordinator for the Capitol, pointed out that $460,000 was spent in replacing the copper dome. When the old dome was removed, workers found that much of the timber had been damaged from roof leakage. This had to be replaced and caused the costs to escalate.

Miss Bailey said plans call for the furniture in the governor's office to be restored like it was in the 1840 era. This is expected to cost about $100,000.

but no money is available, she said.

Eure noted that for the first 40 years the Capitol housed all of state government. Today the government occupies dozens of buildings and has an annual budget of over $3 billion.

Surrenders On Holdup Charges

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The FBI announced today that Don Curtis, 19, surrendered to local police and FBI agents on federal bank robbery charges.

Outing was charged in connection with the June 24 robbery of a First Union National Bank branch in Charlotte.

Outing, of Charlotte, appeared before a U.S. magistrate Tuesday and was remanded to custody in lieu of $50,000 bond.

CHARISMATICS

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Lutheran Charisicles, an organization of Lutheran charismatics, believes that as many as 10 per cent of the Lutheran parish clergy in the United States and Canada have "charismatic experiences" and that resistance on the part of church authorities to charismatic phenomena such as speaking in tongues is driving many clergy and lay people out of the church.

Eagle Scout To Program

Melvin Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. Milam Johnson of Greenville is one of three Eagle Scouts selected from the East Carolina Council to attending the National Eagle Scout Bicentennial Celebration in Washington, D.C. July 1-14. Approximately 760 Eagle Scouts from all parts of the United States have been selected to attend the 14 day event.

MELVIN JOHNSON

The 1976 Eagle Scout activities are designed to provide the scouts a cultural and educational experience and to support the efforts of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration during the summer of 1976 in the nation's capital.

The scouts will participate in Scouting-USA Center activities, assisting visitors of the Lincoln Memorial and assisting the National Capital Parks Service.

Johnson, a rising senior at Rose High School, is a member of the National Honor Society and was one of four members who captured the State Chess Championship for Rose High School. He is a member of troop No. 398 sponsored by Red Oak Christian Church and is a member of the Order of the Arrow.

DANDY LION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many consider the dandelion a pest but it once was a cultivated plant and shown at flower shows.

The National Geographic Society says, "... in 1871 dandelions were exhibited by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and in a few years French and American horticulturists were selling choice varieties."

The dandelion's scientific name is Taraxacum officinale. Its popular name is a corruption of the French dent-de-lion, or lion's tooth.

Non-Farm Jobs In N.C. Rising

RALEIGH (AP) — State labor department figures indicate that nonfarm employment in North Carolina is on the upswing.

The number of non-farm jobs rose last month by 2,800—$4,100 higher than in May last year, according to department figures released Tuesday.

"Seventeen employment groups reported increases in May while six groups registered minor and seasonal declines," labor commissioner T. Avery Nye said Tuesday. "This brought the North Carolina total of employed nonfarm workers to 2,036,300. Combined with the state's 5.8 per cent unemployment rate for May—the lowest in 20 months—the month's job increase indicates steady progress in economic recovery."

Gains of 1.2 hours in the workweek and three cents in hourly earnings during May also were reported. The average factory workweek is now 39.9 hours; the average hourly wage, $3.71.

Factory jobs increased 1,900 in May to a total of 762,000—39,300 higher than a year ago. Non-manufacturing jobs gained 900—14,800 over last May.

The six groups in which employment decreased are: education, textiles, printing, publishing, cigarettes, tobacco stemmeries, and finance, insurance and real estate.

End Of The World Just Didn't Happen

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) — The world didn't end Tuesday, but a spokesman for the 24 persons awaiting its demise says the group still has faith in their mission.

"Everything is in the hands of God, we know He will provide," said Elizabeth Nance Bard. "We are not worried, we are just as sure as ever that He will come. We just know it."

She had said Monday the end of the world could occur the following day because that was the nine-month anniversary of the beginning of the vigil to await the Second Coming of Christ. "From conception to birth is nine months," she noted.

The group also faces an earthly problem, a possible eviction from the house on which Mrs. Bard's brother, Gene Nance, lost legal possession when he stopped paying on a $15,000 loan at the vigil's beginning.

The U.S. attorney's office in Fort Smith has filed court action to have the vigil members evicted by federal marshals, by force if necessary. U.S. Atty. Robert Johnson says both U.S. District Court judges in the western district of Arkansas are out of town until next week, so the eviction order can't be signed.

Mrs. Bard has said she almost hopes the marshals will hurry up and come. "We know God won't let them break us up," she said. "So when they (the marshals) come, maybe that will be the time."

A HOT TIME

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Championship Chili Cook-off is to be held Oct. 24 at the Tropico Gold Mine in Rosamond, Calif., an Old West settlement 90 miles north of here.

The International Chili Society says "the foremost chili cooks from nearly every state in the union, including Hawaii and Alaska, will converge on the tented grounds to vie for the world title."

Auto Workers' Strike Appears Unlikely This Year

By EDWARD S. LECHTIZIN
UPI Auto Writer
DETROIT (UPI) — The triennial bargaining that begins in mid-July between the four U.S. automakers and the United Auto Workers is shaping up as a battle without the traditional bang.

Much of the pre-bargaining fervor that has marked past negotiations is missing this year as the union and companies settle down to work out the details of new contracts covering nearly 700,000 U.S. auto workers at General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors.

The betting is that there will be no walkout at midnight, Sept. 14, when the current agreements expire.

There are rallying cries. But "Job Security" hardly has the same ring as "30 and Out," "Voluntary Overtime" or "Take the Cap off COLA."

"Everyone still has the past two years on their minds," observed Larry McGee, a white collar Chrysler Corp. employee who was idled for four months during the No. 3 auto company's virtual shutdown in late 1973 and early 1974.

He was one of close to 325,000 auto workers off the job anywhere from one week to indefinitely.

"They (the UAW leadership) are talking job security because that's what everyone wants — to know they'll have a job or at least money coming in if they're laid off," McGee said.

And in a suburban Warren bar, where workers from nearby Chevrolet and Chrysler plants were taking their lunch breaks, talk of a strike is played down.

"Look, my wife is still working to help pay off the bills I couldn't pay when I was off for five months and SUB (Supplemental Unemployment Benefits) had run out," one worker said.

"They can talk as tough as they want, but I'm just getting back together and we're working overtime. Why should I want to strike?"

To that, UAW President Leonard Woodcock answers: "Don't ever rule out a strike."

He also warned the four companies not to count on the depression of the past two years and the possibility a long walkout could cripple the recovery to keep the workers in the plants.

"The chorus has begun. They say we can't have a strike," Woodcock said. "Granted, a long strike would be a depressant on the economic recovery, but this is a responsible union and we understand our obligations."

"But it would be a sad, sad mistake for the other side to think they don't have to bargain sensibly and in good faith."

In the last three negotiating years, strikes were called before pattern-setting contracts were hammered out. Ford was out for 66 days in 1967, GM for 67 days in 1970 and Chrysler nine days in 1973.

But even in the harshest pre-bargaining statements made so far this year, both company and union officials have thrown in at least one conciliatory statement.

"Let 'em know we mean business, but let's not work ourselves into a corner," is how one company bargainer explained this year's strategy on both sides.

Health care has emerged as one prime topic for the bargaining table.

Union officials say they won't give up even the least of the fringe benefits that rank auto workers among the highest-paid blue collar workers in the world.

But they are privately looking for items that might be trimmed to ease rapidly escalating costs and still not aggravate any large number of members.

One would be removing mental health care as part of the paid Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage that encompasses as much — if not more — than any other industrial health care plan in the nation. It's one of the things the union might be willing to give up to stifle the company demands that workers pick up part of their health care payments.

GM now figures it will pay $150 a month — $1,700 a year — for health care for each employee.

The UAW claims the workers would get that money in their paychecks if the company didn't make the direct health care payment. GM executives, however, claim the health care costs have risen much faster than any payment to employees and says workers must now bear some of the cost.

"During our negotiations with the UAW this summer we intend to try very, very hard to restructure our health care coverage without increasing health care costs," says George B. Morris, GM's chief negotiator.

To that, Woodcock has a simple answer: "No."

"We will say absolutely no to the employers' proposals to solve their health care problems by pushing those costs onto the family budget," Woodcock said.

The UAW-auto industry negotiations cover more workers than any other contract talks this year. They are the third major talks in a year when new major labor pacts are being negotiated for 4.5 million workers.

The two earlier rounds — with the Teamsters for a nationwide trucking agreement and the United Rubber Workers at four major tire companies — have climaxed in strikes.

The Teamsters got an agreement that one auto company executive claimed "better not be tried on us," and the rubber workers are involved in a dispute that began April 21 and has all the signs of lasting through the summer.

Woodcock likes to point out that all the Teamsters and URW have been trying to do is catch up with what the auto workers already have.

"We bargain for the auto workers and won't be influenced by what other unions get," Woodcock told delegates to a pre-bargaining convention earlier this spring.

The average GM employee has seen wages increase by $1.70 an hour since September, 1973, when the present contracts were negotiated.

The average GM employee now earns $6.68 an hour in straight-time wages. This doesn't include the cost to GM of employee benefits which bring GM's total hourly labor cost to almost $11 an hour — nearly $3 more than it was three years ago. On an annual basis, that amounts to about $6,000 more per employee than three years ago.

If the union expects the economics of the contract — the dollars and cents of direct wage increases — to pretty well work themselves out in two months of negotiations, it admits there may be more difficulty on some non-economic issues.

Besides health care — an issue raised by GM — the UAW expects to work toward a shorter work week, improvement in the Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) program that allows workers to receive up to 95 per cent of their regular take-home pay while laid off and greater control of outside contracting of work the union says belongs to its members.

The shorter work week is sure to generate the most interest outside the bargaining rooms.

While many workers might simply like to shift to a four-day week without any loss in pay, the most likely way they'll achieve a shorter work week is through the "Bonus Time" plan already being used in the farm implement industry. In that industry, workers earn one-half hour off for each week of perfect attendance — a day off every 16 weeks.

Woodcock has indicated he'd like to see workers earn their "Bonus Time" with fewer days on the job. Pat Greathouse, the UAW vice president who engineered the agreement with the agricultural equipment manufacturers says it has worked — to a degree.

"It has been effective for those participants who would only miss a day here or a day there," says Greathouse. "It has done much to relieve casual absenteeism, although it has not been particularly effective in curbing habitual absenteeism."

In fact, despite the massive layoffs in the auto industry in 1974 and 1975, the slump had little effect on the number of workers who are chronically absent.

About one in 16 workers is absent from a plant at midweek — 42,000 absentees in the entire industry on those days — and frequently two to three times that number on Mondays and Fridays.

Union executives contend a shorter work week — either through "Bonus Time" or a four-day work week would substantially reduce the absenteeism rate. They reason that a day skipped in a four-day week means a 25 per cent pay cut, compared to 20 per cent in the current five-day work week.

When the bargainers face each other across the table at GM on July 19, and on succeeding days at Ford, Chrysler and AMC, they'll know the UAW has the fattest war chest ever — $175 million by mid-September — to back up its demands if a strike does appear necessary.

Strike benefits of $40 to $50 a week would be possible for eight to nine weeks in a strike against giant GM, 16 to 17 weeks at Ford and about 25 weeks at Chrysler. AMC is just about ruled out as a strike target because of its small size and its collapsing share of the market because of the small car sales slump.

In Detroit, the great guessing game centers on who will be the strike target — the company selected in late August as the one that must come up with a pattern-setting agreement or face a strike while its competitors continue to build and sell new cars.

Woodcock gets a pained look and is obviously annoyed when a reporter or one of his own members says it's Ford's turn to be the strike target. Chrysler was the target company in 1964 and again in 1973, while Ford was targeted in 1967 and GM in 1970.

"It's not Ford's turn," he told one union meeting. "It may be Ford's turn, but it is not Ford's turn."

"We are not playing rotation pool."

Whatever company is selected, the impact of the contract talks on the national and local economies figures to be immense.

An estimated 14.7 million jobs depend on the auto industry and its related operations; more than 60 per cent of all rubber and 20 per cent of all steel consumed in the United States is related to motor vehicles; and the effect of shutdowns has a rippling effect that can cripple the economy.

The industry's importance in Michigan is even greater. The 1975 downturn in sales — the lowest in 13 years — pushed the city of Detroit and the state of

That's why Detroiters watch the auto talks with greater interest than most Americans.

At Randazzo's Fruit Market on Detroit's East Side, just a block from Chrysler's massive engine plant, auto contracts and auto layoffs are always a big subject.

Many of the shoppers are Chrysler workers on their lunch hour or on their way home. But there's also great interest on the part of shoppers who aren't auto workers — and some curiosity about the union's demands.

"They already seem to have so much," Mrs. Lillian Marvel said. "My husband doesn't have the benefits they get."

"But they always keep coming back for more. And then they can't understand why we won't go out and buy a new car. Pretty soon, they'll be the only ones who can afford the cars they're building."

Better Deal For Mortgages

CHICAGO (UPI) — The typical American home mortgage seekers got a much better rate break borrowing money last year than the typical corporation, according to the U.S. League of Savings Associations. The organization says for the greater part of 1975 the conventional rate on new home mortgages was under nine per cent, which was better than the rate at which AAA-rated corporations were able to sell their bonds.

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 17 through June 23.

House
PANAMA CANAL Rejected, 157 for and 197 against, an amendment stating that any new Panama Canal treaty "must perpetuate the sovereignty and control" of the United States over the canal. The amendment was proposed to HR 13179, a bill authorizing $1 billion for fiscal 1977 operations of the State Department. The bill was passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The amendment was aimed at putting the House on record on the canal issue. Treaty negotiations are in preliminary stages.

Rep. Elliott Levitas (D-Ga.), a supporter, said that "while we certainly should negotiate important issues with any friendly nations, including Panama, those negotiations should not deal with abandonment or surrender."

Rep. David Obey (D-Wis.), an opponent, said that "we are either going to have a new treaty or we are going to have an old canal that does not work, because that canal is simply not defensible under present political conditions or military conditions down there."

Hail Start On Brewery

EDEN, N.C. (AP) — A turnout estimated at 4,000 persons, including North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser, was on hand Tuesday for the groundbreaking for Miller Brewing Co.'s new $132 million mid-Atlantic brewery.

Holshouser said the economic impact of the facility on the area would be "substantial." He said property taxes alone were expected to be more than $1 million a year.

Also on hand were Miller president John A. Murphy of Milwaukee and top company executives. Murphy said the $132 million figure was the cost of the first stage of a facility that eventually will cost $225 million.

Murphy said the new brewery represents one of the largest industrial capital investments in North Carolina history. Grading and construction already are under way on the site which lies principally in North Carolina's Rockingham County and extends into Virginia's neighboring Pittsylvania County.

The brewery, expected to be completed within two years, initially will employ 500 persons. Plans call for a 1.4-million square foot plant that eventually will hire 1,000 workers.

Saying it will be "one of the largest breweries in the world," Murphy said the facility will pour $11 million in salary and fringe benefits into the area's economy.

See Growth Of Incentive Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Sperry and Hutchinson Co., which promotes the use of S and H Green Stamps, expects an increase of up to 20 per cent in incentive industry sales this year. Incentive sales dipped drastically in recent years, but the company notes a "strong" improvement in consumer and business confidence which it says "is essential for a thriving incentive marketing industry."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Richardson Preyer (D-6) and James Martin (R-9) voted "nay."

HELICOPTER TRAINING Adopted, 288 for and 110 against, an amendment to fund a consolidated basic helicopter training program for pilots of all armed services. The amendment was attached to a $105 billion fiscal 1977 defense appropriations bill (HR 14262), and added $10.1 million in Army funds while cutting $17.5 million in Navy outlays. The bill was passed and sent to the Senate.

Army and Air Force helicopter pilots are presently trained at Fort Rucker, Ala. Navy, Marine and Coast Guard helicopter pilots are trained at Pensacola, Fla. The Defense Department wants all basic helicopter training to be conducted at Fort Rucker, beginning next Oct. 1.

Rep. Jack Edwards (R-Ala.), a supporter, said that eventually more than $37 million per year will be saved by the consolidation, and that "we will end up with the same well-trained helicopter pilots that we have today" because individual services will supply advanced training.

Rep. Robert Sikes (D-Fla.), an opponent, said that Congress has been given "uncertain cost figures" on consolidation, and that combined basic training "is much more likely to cost lives and planes" because Navy, Marine and Coast Guard pilots will receive inadequate training for flights over water and landings on ships.

Fountain, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Henderson, Rose and Taylor voted "nay."

YOUTH JOBS Adopted, 205 for and 201 against, an amendment to increase appropriations by $66.6 million for fiscal 1977 summer youth employment and training programs. The amendment was attached to HR 14232, a bill appropriating $56 billion for fiscal 1977 programs of the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Passage of the bill was pending.

The bill had provided $528 million to create about 900,000 jobs for youth next summer. The added funds would create 100,000 additional jobs.

Rep. Parren Mitchell (D-Md.), sponsor of the amendment, said that rising unemployment rates for youth justify the extra funds. "We pay a terrible price for not letting our youth work," Mitchell said. "We pay a price in terms of delinquency... and we pay a price in terms of alienation from our society."

Rep. Daniel Flood (D-Pa.), an opponent, said that the bill maintained funding for the programs at this summer's level, and that if necessary Congress can appropriate additional funds later. "We do not have a crystal ball," Flood said. "We have no idea what the economy will be like a year from now."

Andrews, Neal, Preyer and Rose voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Senate
TAX SHELTERS Tabled, 53 for and 41 against, an amendment to close tax shelters used by wealthy investors in some areas of farming, real estate, movies and equipment leasing. The amendment was proposed to HR 10612, a bill to extend tax cuts and revise many provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The amendment was aimed at saving the Treasury about $200 million per year by limiting the opportunity for a high-income person to invest in these enterprises and then use assorted deductions connected with the enterprises to reduce taxes on regular income.

Sen. Robert Packwood (R-Ore.), a supporter of the motion to table and thus kill the amendment, said the amendment would only "squeeze into other noncovered areas the wealthy who want to shelter income." Packwood added that the minimum tax provision in the bill is a better approach "if we want to make sure that a millionaire cannot avoid paying taxes."

Sen. Floyd Haskell (D-Colo.), an opponent of the tabling motion, urged the Senate to "get rid of the artificialities in our tax system" embodied in tax shelters. Haskell said that "by virtue of the Internal Revenue Code we have got socialism for the rich, and by virtue of the welfare system we have got welfare for the poor, with all those folks in the middle trying to make it under the free enterprise system."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "nay."

SOLAR ENERGY Adopted, 54 for and 41 against, an amendment increasing appropriations for solar energy research by $16.4 million in fiscal 1977. The amendment was attached to HR 14236, a bill appropriating $9.7 billion for fiscal 1977 public works programs. The bill was passed and sent to conference with the House.

The amendment raised to $278 million the amount available to the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) for fiscal 1977 research on solar heating, cooling and related technologies.

Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.), sponsor of the amendment, said that the additional research funds will help "demonstrate that the contribution of solar energy to our national energy demands can be significant by 1985 and not somewhere down the road in 1990 or 2000."

Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.), an opponent, said that top ERDA officials do not want more funds for solar research. Appropriating more money than is necessary, Pastore said, "leads to waste, it leads to neglect..."

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

MARY MARTIN is planning a return to show business, and the little girl from Weatherford, Tex., can have any role she wants. (UPI Photo)

Mary Martin Planning Return

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mary Martin, whose life fell apart in 1973 when she was widowed after 33 years of married bliss, is planning to return to show business.

"Right now I'm just relaxing and doing all the things I've never done," she said in an interview during a recent visit to New York from her home in Palm Springs, Calif.

"I'm going to start physical exercises in June or July, and then I'll start singing lessons again. I'm not prepared to sing until I'm ready to work up to 2½ hours a day."

"There are two shows that are being written and I have to decide which. Then there is television and there is a picture and..."

The little girl from Weatherford, Texas, who became the country's biggest musical star can have any role she wants. All she has to do is ask. She hasn't been seen on Broadway since "I Do, I Do" closed early in 1968, or anywhere on stage since a U.S. tour of the same show ended a year later. But no one can forget her.

Mary Martin was born in Weatherford, Dec. 1, 1913, to lawyer Preston Martin and his music teacher wife Juanita. From an early age she sang and danced, giving her first joint recital at 12 with Bessie Mae Sue Ella Yaeger, still her best friend. She was married at 16, a mother at 17, opened her first dancing school at 18, was divorced and singing in theaters and hotels and on radio shows in Hollywood by 20, the toast of Broadway and on the cover of Life at 25.

Her first Broadway show was "Leave It To Me," and the song she sang in it made her a star overnight and whisked her to Hollywood: "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

In the audience for the first night of "Leave It To Me" was Richard Halliday, a story editor at Paramount. They were married the following year, 1940.

After a couple of years making forgettable movies, Mary Martin returned to Broadway for her first starring role, in "One Touch of Venus." Hit followed hit as, with Halliday as manager, she played "Lute Song," "South Pacific," "Peter Pan" — her favorite role — "The Sound of Music," interspersed with more films and tours of such shows as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Hello, Dolly!"

The famous fazenda (farm) in Brazil came into their lives almost by accident in 1955, when on impulse they took a freighter to South America instead of to Greece. They fell in love with the country and lived there as much as they could for the next 18 years. Richard died there.

In her recent autobiography, "My Heart Belongs," Mary Martin wrote:

"There have been three people in my life, 'I,' 'we,' and 'me.' When I was young I was 'I.' Then for thirty-three years I was 'we.' That was the most important period. I would always have had a career, I suppose, but it would not have been the same one without Richard... It was OUR career... Now I am 'me,' alone..."

She can talk now about widowhood.

"There's no way of knowing what it's like to lose a loved one," she said. "Time does heal and you go through many stages. You don't believe it. You hear a car and think it's him; or see someone; or hear a voice. Then you get angry..."

"One letter I got from a minister said, 'Finish your unfinished tasks.' That made sense. Richard always had planned years ahead, and it was like telling me to finish the book and look after the farm."

She started the book while resting up in Bermuda after finishing "Sound of Music," at the urging of agent Paul Reynolds.

"Richard gave me a yellow pad and some pencils as a going-away present. It was a different life for me in Bermuda after going to bed at 3 a.m. during the show. About midnight I'd try to read and then start writing. I got about 100 pages written and Paul liked it, but I forgot about it till we were in Brazil again, and I did some more. Then I forgot about it again till after Richard died."

"I was in England, Greece, France; all over. Then one day I got a call from Paul and he said if I ever tried to finish it he'd like to see me."

"It was a rare association I had had with Richard and I thought, well, all right, I'll try to write about it. I think it helped me face up to the fact that that life is finished and another is started..."

"I went back to the farm last July and August, and I will go this summer. But it is hard.

Every single plant that he planted — the honeysuckle outside my bedroom window, the rose bushes, the frangipani — they all remind me of him. I have an urge NOT to go back, though I love the people and the country."

She has lived in Palm Springs since 1974, near her old friends Janet Gaynor and her husband Paul Gregory, and sees a lot of her son Larry and his family who live in Malibu. Her daughter Heller and her family live in New York.

"Janet and I talk on the phone every day," she said. "I'm up at 6:30 every morning. I go bicycling and I have a pool which is heated all winter. I've indulged myself."

But, she says in the book, "I want to work and I will... Richard's concentrated devotion to me as his wife, to my career, would have been in vain if I don't continue to work."

Country Music Stars To See Busy July 4th

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — July 4 will be no picnic for most country music performers.

Most country artists will celebrate the nation's 200th birthday by working. July 4 is to many country music entertainers what New Year's Eve is to Guy Lombardo.

"July 4 is usually a big, big day," says Leo Zabelin of the Halsey Agency in Tulsa, Okla., a main booking agency for country performers.

"You have to be booked well in advance — at least six months," he said. "Some are booked a year in advance."

"Usually the parks try to tie in a patriotic theme," he added.

A few entertainers can command a larger fee because of the holiday.

Johnny Cash will be master of ceremonies for a three-hour show at the Washington Monument. He and his band will perform without pay as a birthday present to the nation.

Another major event is Willie Nelson's annual Fourth of July Picnic near Gonzales, Tex. Last year's attendance was 70,000.

Scheduled to join Nelson at a 28,000-acre site near Gonzales are Waylon Jennings, Jessi Colter, Kris Kristofferson, Rita Coolidge, George Jones, Leon Russell, Mary McCreary, Jerry Jeff Walker, David Allan Coe, Rusty Weir, Floyd Tillman, Jody Payne, Milton Carroll and Roger Miller.

Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, Donna Fargo, Billy Thundercloud and the Chieftones, Bashful Brother Oswald and Charlie Collins will appear on a nationally televised show from Nashville.

Some other artists and where

Loretta Lynn, Mechanicville, Pa.; Bill Anderson, Monticello, Iowa; Freddy Fender, Narvel Felt and Red Steagall, Poteau, Okla.; Conway Twitty, Lexington, Tenn.; Marty Robbins, Greeley, Colo.; Roy Clark and Leroy Van Dyke, Kansas City, Mo.

Billy "Crash" Craddock, Parkers Lake, Ky.; Hank Thompson, Cal Smith and Sherry Bryce, Kerrville, Tex.; Mel Tillis, Arlington, Tex.; Stonewall Jackson, Webster, Mass.; Barbara Fairchild, Jackson, N.J.

Kenny Starr, West Grove, La.; Joni Lee, Grafton, Va.; Tracy Nelson, Dallas, Texas; David Wilkins, New Orleans; Nat Stuckey, Winchester, Ind.; Jimmy Dean, Philadelphia; Moe Bandy, Crittenden, Ky.

Johany Carver, Wister, Okla.; Connie Cato, Virginia Beach, Va.; Dottie, San Jose, Calif.; Jack Greene and Jeannie Seely, Columbus, Ind.; Del Reeves, Pardeeville, Wis.; Kitty Wells, Huntingdon, W.Va.; Dottie West, Griggsville, Ill.; and Jimmy Buffett, Charlie Daniels, Emmys Lou Harris and John Sebastian, New Orleans.

Has Replicas For Parades

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Jack Bumgardner, World War II sailor and a retired textile worker, has built seven and nine-foot replicas of four U.S. battleships. They are authentic in every detail, but he doesn't have a sense of completion, and won't have until they are seen by a lot of people, perhaps on floats at parades.

That's why Bumgardner, whose address is P.O. Box 558, Rt. 6, Shelby, would like to contact sponsors.

He began building them last Dec. 19, the day he got out of the hospital after major surgery.

The U.S.S. North Carolina, built to scale, is 9½ feet long and is made of wood. The Arizona, Tennessee and Alabama are 7 feet apiece and of plastic in a vacuum-formed casting technique.

"Love for the Navy, and to make up for my stupidity in not staying in," is one reason he built them says Bumgardner, who is in his mid 50s.

A whopping 93 per cent of readers responding to a straw poll conducted by the Newspaper El Espectador in Bogota, Colombia, said they favored birth control. Colombia is an overwhelmingly Catholic country.

Rare Film In Old Newsreels

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a million feet of vintage newsreel footage spanning the 1919-1929 decade, much of it unduplicated in other libraries, is being turned over to the National Archives by Movietone.

There are also some rare segments of film dating back to 1903.

"This is a vital step in the preservation of motion picture newsreels, and we are proud to be part of the effort," says James B. Rhoads, archivist of the United States.

"Movietone should be very pleased with the contribution it is making to our archival heritage."

Movietone, now a subsidiary of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, distributed two newsreels weekly to theaters all over the world from 1919 through 1963. Its library grew to more than 4,000 episodes and 100 million feet of film before television changed the news habits of Americans.

"From the outset, Movietone captured the mood of the day, not just the headline events," the Archives says. "Its film crews covered stories ranging from politics and wars to social trends and fads. Volume I, Number 1 released in September 1919 illustrates the point and explains why the library evokes such interest today."

The first 10-minute reel, for example, includes such shots as these:

A letter of welcome and tribute from President Woodrow Wilson saluting the firm's role in sustaining a free press; steeplejacks cleaning the statue of William Penn atop Philadelphia's city hall; fencing as an aid to beauty; Hudson Maxim, inventor of the machine gun; a visit to Toledo by King Albert of Belgium; hosiery from Paris at $300 a pair; first views of the region menaced by the Bolsheviks in Russia.

"As a complete visual encyclopedia of contemporary history, the library's value is enormous," the Archives says. "It has found renewed interest among documentary film producers, television networks, colleges and universities and film buffs."

The agreement signed by Rhoads and Movietone president Robert T. Kreiman provides that the newsreel library will be turned over to the government after it is converted from the original nitrate base of acetate film. Nitrate deteriorates badly and cannot be preserved.

The library will be transferred to the National Archives after conversion is complete and will be available for use in research and study.

Movietone will reserve commercial rights for 50 years, after which the films will be in the public domain. When the footage is turned over, the government will also get all library index cards and continuity sheets related to it.

Bulgaria Seeks To Increase Birthrate

By RICHARD C. GROSS
SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI) — Bulgaria has launched a drive to get women to devote more time to increasing output of one product: babies.

This rigidly controlled Communist Balkan nation has turned its back on world population problems and is championing the cause of motherhood through increased material benefits for Bulgarian mothers and mothers-to-be.

President Todor Zhivkov put it succinctly in his report to the 10th Bulgarian Communist Party Congress.

"Motherhood is a highly noble social function of women," said Zhivkov. "This should be understood by everybody because we all have mothers."

Obvious, but Bulgaria's enthusiasm has its practical side. The immediate aim is to increase the birthrate from 17.2 children per 1,000 families to 19 and spawn a population of 10 million by the year 2000.

The birthrate in 1950 was 25.2 per 1,000, but that was before Communism swept the Virginia-sized country into an industrial revolution.

The Communists' decision to industrialize the once largely agrarian nation and collectivize its farms spurred a major exodus from the country to urban areas.

The rural population, which in 1946 stood at 75.3 per cent of the whole, including 74.6 per cent of women of childbearing age, plummeted by 1971 to 45.3 per cent of the nation and only 38.2 per cent of potential child bearers.

This realignment brought a change in the role of women, who make up half the country's 8.7 million population and 46 per cent of its labor force.

It meant more women at work — helping to bring home enough money to live comfortably in a country where the average yearly income is only $1,771. It takes one-fourth of that to buy a washing machine.

According to government statistics, women make up one-third of all engineers, 50 per cent of all doctors, 40 per cent of all architects, designers and technicians, 64 per cent of all teachers and 36.5 per cent of all economists.

As the Soviet Union — where women make up a large percentage of the work force — has learned, working women tend to have fewer children.

Now Bulgaria is trying to reverse the trend.

"We are trying to help women to be mothers," said Ruminana Gancheva, a member of the party's Women's Committee.

"Women have special protection by the state in all aspects of life," she said. "We are trying to stimulate population growth."

To that end, there are generous monetary allowances and maternity leaves for child-bearers, even to unmarried mothers who are recognized under the law.

Free day care centers tend children of working mothers from dawn to dusk.

Bulgaria goes so far as to include in its penal code prosecution against "persons guilty of insulting or abusing mothers' feelings."

But the benefits have not eliminated the traditional double burden of working women that rankles ardent feminists.

It is the mother, not the father who stays home to care for an ill child, said Angel Pradkov, a member of the central committee of the Komsomol, the Communist party youth organization.

ONE OF HER FANS — Miss USA, Barbara Peterson, of Edina, Minn., appreciates the swirl of air created by one of her fans as temperatures hovered near 90 in Hong Kong. Miss Peterson is in Hong Kong to compete in the Miss Universe Pageant scheduled for July 11. (AP Wirephoto)

Opening lead: King of ♦.

Many players are reluctant to overtake their partner's trick. This holds particularly true when over-taking could promote a trick for the enemy. Yet, it was vital to the defense for East to do just that on today's hand.

We are not taken with South's insistence on playing the hand at no trump, though we can understand his reluctance to have his ace-queen of hearts exposed to attack at the opening lead.

A contract of four spades would have proved no problem, except in the unlikely event that the defenders maneuvered a club ruff.

Mary Jane Farrell of Beverly Hills and Peggy Solomon of Philadelphia sat East and West respectively.

Mrs. Solomon got her side off to a good start when she led the king of diamonds, and Mrs. Farrell showed the suit by signalling with the nine. West continued with the ace and jack of diamonds.

It was obvious that West could not hold four diamonds—with a four-card suit headed by three of the four top honors, West would surely have rebid two diamonds at her second turn rather than show a ragged six-card heart suit. Therefore, it was certain that declarer had started with four diamonds to the ten. Nevertheless, Mrs. Farrell overtook the jack of diamonds with the queen, giving declarer a present of a trick in the ten of diamonds.

But declarer did not enjoy this Greek gift. Mrs. Farrell put the one entry to her hand to good use—she shifted to a heart. No matter what declarer did, he could come to no more than eight tricks before the defenders collected five in the form of three diamonds, the king of hearts and ace of clubs.

Observe that if East does not "sunder" her queen of diamonds on her partner's jack, declarer has no trouble making her contract.

Already Signs Mao's Wife Losing Political Grip

There's A Difference

BLOUNTVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Gov. Ray Blanton told a Democratic rally Tuesday night this is how to determine whether a person is a Democrat or Republican:

Democrats buy most of the books that have been banned somewhere. Republicans form censorship committees and read them as a group.

Republicans usually wear hats and almost always clean their paint bushes.

Democrats give their wornout clothes to those less fortunate. Republicans wear theirs.

Republicans employ exterminators. Democrats step on the bugs.

Democrats name their children after popular sports figures, politicians and entertainers. Republican children are named for patients or grandparents, according to where the most money is.

Democrats keep trying to cut down on smoking but are not successful. Neither are Republicans.

Republicans tend to keep their shades drawn, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Democrats ought to, but don't.

Republicans raise dahlias, dalmations and eyebrows. Democrats raise airedales, kids and taxes.

Democrats eat the fish they catch. Republicans hang them on the wall.

Democrats make up plans and then do something else. Republicans follow the plans their grandfathers made.

Republicans sleep in twin beds—some even in separate rooms. That is why there are more Democrats.

TOKYO (AP) — Chairman Mao Tse-tung's deepening illness raises a question: What is to become of his wife, the former movie actress Chiang Ching, who is a member of the Politburo of the Chinese Communist party.

Already there are subtle signs that the woman Mao married in 1937 may be losing her grip on the cultural scene she has ruled for so many years.

The Communist party Central Committee decided this month that Mao, 82 and said to be suffering from the after-effects of a stroke, would no longer see foreign visitors.

This suggests that Mao is no longer in day-by-day control of the country. If this is so then Chiang Ching's unique political position may also have ended.

Leader of the radical group in the Communist party, she has fought for Maoist ideology against the moderates and technocrats who gave it second place to economic advance.

She carried out a revolution in the Peking Opera, the ballet, the theater, films and music. True to Mao's dictum, pronounced three decades ago, art for art's sake has been abolished and the frivolous or merely entertaining replaced with the Maoist message, heroic, heavy and considered by outsiders to be dull.

Though she adapted Western music to opera, she is said to have been behind the movement to ban the playing of the Western Classic two years ago. Western symphony orchestras, once welcomed, found the door suddenly closed.

When the Chinese wish to attack someone, they sometimes do it in the guise of defending that person. The Peking newspaper, People's Daily, recently disclosed that some people in the theater were saying, "The broad masses of workers, peasants and soldiers are dissatisfied with the present state of the arts."

Discredited former first Vice

Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was accused of circulating this rumor, along with another that nobody wants to buy tickets for the New Model Revolutionary operas which Chiang Ching fostered.

Another article in the official newspaper disclosed there has been some heated debate over whether the proletarian heroes of the opera are too good to be true, unblemished by human weaknesses.

Wall newspapers at Tsinghua University recently said Teng walked out of one of the operas saying: "With the Model Operas today, you just see a bunch of people running to and fro on the stage. Not a trace of art. No sense bragging about them. Foreigners applaud out of courtesy, not because they appreciate the show."

Teng's reaction, after hearing the Vienna Symphony play Beethoven: "This is what I call food for the spirit ... The Model Operas nowadays are no more than gong-and-drum shows. Go to the theater and you find yourself on a battlefield."

It seems more than a coincidence that in the wake of these thinly concealed jabs at Madame Mao the door has suddenly been reopened to a European musical group, the French National Toulouse Chamber Orchestra. It not only has played Couperin, Rameau and Leclair in Canton and Peking, but also has received rave notices from the official press: Hsinhua news agency, the People's Daily, and the Kuangming Daily.

How much all this is linked to Chairman Mao's declining health and Madame Mao's loss of influence can only be a subject of speculation.

Even if, as seems possible, Chiang Ching, who is in her early 60s, now is being attacked in a roundabout way, it does not necessarily mean that her future is imperiled. The immense prestige of her name and the relationships she has nurtured with the radicals will be assets when the post-Mao power struggle begins.

She rose to her place in the 19-member party Politburo through the intrigues and infighting of the 1965-69 cultural revolution, making enemies along the way. They include many of the moderate leaders, now rehabilitated, she helped purge.

Though her backers include First Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao, concurrently chief of the army's political department, her own roots in the military are shallow. They are even flimsier in the government administration.

In the final analysis, she may decide to remain in the background, lending her presence and talents to leaders like Chang Chun-chiao. Or, as some Western experts predict, she could — although this seems highly improbable — just withdraw from politics entirely and play the role of the chairman's revered widow.

Investigate 2 Accidents

An estimated $1,925 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 1:17 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 150 feet North of the Moore Street intersection involving vehicles driven by Elbert Junior Stokes of 1403 Ragsdale Rd. and Gary Wayne Ross of Route 3, Greenville.

Investigators, who made no charges, estimated damage at $500 to the Stokes truck and $800 to the Ross car.

William Newton Howard Jr. of 216 York Rd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 3:15 p.m. mishap on Elm Street, 50 feet South of the Brookgreen Drive intersection.

Police reported the Howard car collided with a vehicle driven by David William Lazzo of 108 Martinsborough Rd. causing an estimated $375 damage to the Lazzo car and $250 damage to the Howard auto.

Not Like On Television

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Ann Marie Knops of Durham, a university sophomore studying police work this summer, becomes "not scared exactly" when a call for help crackles over the police radio and the officer she is with turns on the siren.

"Just say extremely alert."

She and another sophomore Morehead Scholarship winner at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill are seeing, as their summer study program, how policemen and firemen operate. Miss Knops and the other girl, Denise Langevin of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., are observing in Winston-Salem.

Miss Langevin said it's mostly not like on television.

"Details, working with small things that could turn into large things," constitute the bulk of police work, she said. "The follow-ups in court and things like that which are the most essential part of the process you don't see on television."

"I was amazed at the way the men work so hard at assisting each other. It seems to give them a necessary sense of security."

Old Liturgy To Be Used Sunday

An English liturgy first used in the American colonies in 1748 will be used by the congregation of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church as part of their commemoration of the nation's 200th anniversary.

The Service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the church at 1800 S. Elm St.

Congregation members are being encouraged to wear colonial dress or red, white, and blue. Following the service there will be "dinner on the grounds." Games, contests and folk dancing will round out the afternoon and evening activities.

According to Pastor R. Graham Nahouse, liturgy to be used at the 11 a.m. worship hour was first used by German Lutheran congregations in Pennsylvania, a generation before the Revolution.

Jodie Grossman First In Line For President In The 1992 Campaign

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Jodie Grossman is the frontrunner in the 1992 presidential campaign.

Jodie, 20, a senior in college, has ambition matched only by her confidence. She threw her hat into the ring eight years ago. She has been running hard ever since.

Jodie has campaign buttons, posters and "workers" to prove her campaign is for real. Shortly after the Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King assassinations, she decided to run.

"Following the assassinations, I felt an urgent necessity to become as deeply involved in our country as I can," said Jodie, of Brighton, N.Y., a Rochester suburb. "The presidency is the best place for that."

Jodie comes from a long line of dedicated Democrats. Her father, Alvin, a personal friend of the late President John F. Kennedy, is former U.S. Marshall for the Western District of New York.

Her birth announcement read: "A new Democrat arrives." At age 2, Jodie began politicking by handing out campaign literature at her father's side.

Now a political science and pre-law major at American University in Washington, D.C., Jodie is working this summer in Lt. Gov. Mary Ann Krupak's regional office in Rochester.

Articulate, enthusiastic, the young politician "campaigns" on a platform of liberal Democratic issues and humanitarianism.

"I wear my big 'Jodie Grossman for President' button all the time and people come up to me on the street and ask me about it," she said. "Some people think I'm a lunatic but many others realize I'm quite serious and listen to me."

Slowly but surely, she expects to build a power base through these contacts. Her college friends, back home in 12 different states for summer vacation, are also campaigning in her behalf.

They are refreshingly clever. One new campaign button reads "A woman's place is in the house ... the White House."

The dark-haired campaigner realizes the needs for experience for the presidency. She expects to pick some up when she reaches the House of Representatives in 1982. She intends to make to the U.S. Senate four years later.

"My education, future employment and the congressional experience I intend to acquire prior to 1992 will give me the necessary training for the job," said Jodie, whose ambition is matched by her confidence.

But why 1992? "It's the first presidential year I'll be old enough to run for the office."

Effort To Save A Trout Stream

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — An effort is under way to save Idaho's Silver Creek, a favorite trout stream of author Ernest Hemingway.

Under the auspices of a new land conservation program, The American Land Trust, a corporate grant of $100,000 has been made toward the protection and preservation of this fishing and wildlife area 25 miles southeast of Sun Valley.

The American Land Trust is an organization of national leaders in conservation, business and civic affairs.

FURNITURE SALES
NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Association of Furniture Manufacturers predicts that furniture sales will rise by 12 percent this year and another 11 per cent in 1976. At the same time, according to the association, prices will rise less than 5 per cent this year and 6 per cent next year.

Europeans Join In Celebration

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — In an astonishing flood of goodwill toward the United States, Europeans are whooping it up for the American Bicentennial as if the birthday were their own.

A staggering number of celebrations — many of them strictly local, small-town events — are making Europe seem like one big party this year, a United Press International survey disclosed.

There are exceptions. Russia is cool, as might be expected. Greek newspapers spit anti-American venom and there are riots over American sailors in Greek ports. Spain and Portugal, for the most part, are too preoccupied with their own problems.

But it is "be kind to America" year in most of the rest of Europe. Probably not since World War II has there been so much interest in, and friendliness toward, the United States.

It's taken the Bicentennial to bring Princess Grace of Monaco back to the stage. She's giving three recitals of American poetry and prose at this year's Edinburgh Festival.

No other year could prompt the "Bicentennial Blue Jeans" — jeans covered in stars and stripes — that are dazzling promenaders on the Champs-Elysees. When else would there be a Boy Scout Jamboree in Geneva, Switzerland?

The remarkable thing about the celebration is not the major set-piece event planned for nearly every European capital. Neither is it the well-publicized tide washing both ways across the Atlantic of big-name Bicentennial travellers — kings and queens and presidents, ballets and brass bands and precious art.

The surprising thing is the vast number of strictly local, mostly non-commercial and

Most Ready To Accept Change

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost 8 out of 10 people in a recent opinion survey said they would change their household routines to take advantage of lower nighttime electricity rates.

General Public Utilities Corp. asked the question of a sample of more than 60,000 of its customers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Some 78 per cent of those answering said they would replan such household chores as dish and clothes washing, baking and bathing to late evening if electricity costs less at that time.

GPU has been urging its customers to switch some use of energy from daytime peak consumption periods to "after 8 p.m." to lessen the need for construction of new generating plants to meet rising daytime demand.

entirely spontaneous events. It could be expected somehow that Britain would give Washington a gold replica of the Magna Carta, or that Paris' George Pompidou Center would exhibit American art from 1890 to the present.

But what about a show of American gravestone rubbings in Middlesbrough, England? Or a museum display of illustrations of Moby Dick in North Germany? Or an exhibit of American quilts in Walsall, England, or a second-hand book sale in Hay on Wye, Wales, featuring American books published in 1776, 1876 and 1976?

West Germany, with typical thoroughness, is mounting some 4,000 of them during the year.

France and Italy find it hard to count the celebrations. Tiny Belgium is mounting 85, Switzerland 45, Denmark 20 events which are mostly long-term projects. At the Holland Festival, one of 16 major Dutch events, there will be 90 programs with a special American flavor.

Together, these from-the-heart commemorations may generate goodwill unmatched by official cultural exchange programs, formal heads-of-state visits or trade and aid agreements between countries.

The UPI survey showed country after country issuing special Bicentennial stamps and swamping the local press with American features. Television abounds in Bicentennial shows.

A UPI correspondent in Paris noted that "new books published in France on the United States could stretch from the Eiffel Tower to the River Seine," and France is not alone.

The British especially are throwing themselves into celebrating their 1776 defeat. They're acting as if the Bicentennial were their own private thing.

The British Tourist Authority produced a 36-page booklet listing Anglo-American ties and Bicentennial events. The variety is endless.

There is a "State Fair" in Gloucestershire, another fair in London's swank Belgrave Square, a din of concerts of American music and by visiting American orchestras, a Thanksgiving mass in Coventry, four big-name productions in London on July 4 for a special starspangled salute.

Special exhibitions would fill a mail-order catalogue of American topics — the American Indian, the Scots in America, Lancashire's cotton-industry prints, Wales's American connections, plants which crossed the Atlantic, American posters, early New York views, American harbors and seaports and on and on.

Few European places are untouched by Bicentennial fever.

Yugoslavia is shipping to Niagara Falls a bigger-than-life statue of a Yugoslav inventor. Florence, Italy, plans a big November bash. A Belgian family is trekking across the United States in a covered wagon.

Even poor Northern Ireland, ignoring six years of inter-community violence, is opening the Ulster-American Exposition and Folk Park, built around the Mellon family's ancestral cottage.

Another proud Northern Irish show holds portraits of 13 American presidents whose origins trace back to Northern Ireland's soil.

Traditions Of Africa Kept Alive In Brazil

By ROBERT E. SULLIVAN
SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — "Pai Didi, a small, worldly-wise black man, sat in his modern living room working straw into a snake-bedecked image of the spirit Oluaie.

He told a foreigner visitor that his religion was brought to Brazil intact 200 years ago by African slaves and it is still practiced with minute orthodox-y.

"The language in Dahomey now has become corrupted," he said. "But the language we use in our ceremonies is still pure."

Outside Didi's apartment building, an old black woman dressed in a long white robe and African headcloth sits at an outdoor stand and sells vatapa, a dried shrimp and fish dish of West African origin.

A mile away flourish hundreds of centers for Candomble, an African-based religion; and downtown, several schools teach Capoeira, a self defense method brought from Africa and perfected by slaves.

That heritage lives on in food, music, dance, religion, and even the martial arts.

One of the most widely accepted reasons for the retention of African heritage in Brazil and its loss in North America is that unlike the British, the Portuguese kidnapped most of their slaves from the same region in Africa.

The black people spoke similar languages and found common, lasting cultural ties.

Another reason often cited is the conforming influence of the Roman Catholic Church, as opposed to the individualism of the Bible-oriented North American Protestantism.

Besides Didi's secret cult of the dead, practiced by some 600 families, Salvador has some 1,600 Candomble centers, each with hundreds of followers.

Forced into Catholicism hundreds of years ago, the slaves mixed their religions with that of their masters and still refer to themselves as Catholics.

The supernatural forces in Candomble, called Orixas, frequently take on the identities of Roman Catholic saints who are believed to have similar powers.

The result is the use of Roman Catholic statues in the holier parts of the generally bare-walled Candomble centers.

"The Mae de Santo (head priestess) of a Candomble sect may conduct services Saturday night, and go to Mass on Sunday," said Eliseu Guedes, a Roman Catholic friar who has studied Candomble for the past 25 years.

"But if the priest at Mass knows her, he will refuse her Holy Communion."

Circular dances used in Candomble services come directly from Africa and the hymns are sung in a mixture of Portuguese and several African dialects.

The modern folklore dances of Bahia are heavily influenced by the Candomble dances.

Salvador is dotted with schools that teach Capoeira, an African-based dance that is really "played" or "fought" rather than danced.

Believed to have come from Dahomey, the dance was perfected during the slave period as a way for blacks to fight with their feet, while appearing to their white masters to be happily dancing.

It is accompanied by a bowed instrument called berimbau, which provides the rhythm and, in slave times warned of the approach of the master by a sudden change of the beat.

"Typically Bahian food" is just as typically African as it is Bahian or Brazilian.

Dried shrimp, fish, chicken, coconut, oils and spices are the main ingredients, mixed into dishes that carry such non-Portuguese sounding names as vatapa, muqueca, and xin xin.

The seafood itself is caught in a way more typical of western Africa than eastern South America.

Groups of men sit and chat on a hill overlooking the ocean, waiting to spot a school of fish feeding near shore.

With the spotter's shout, the men dash down to logboats, made out of huge hollowed-out tree trunks, and paddle themselves out to a position between the school and the open sea.

They drop nets, paddle ashore and pull in the catch, often singing in harmony.

Cecilio de Souza, a 58-year-old black fisherman, said he had heard that the fishing system came directly from West Africa 300 years ago, but he personally didn't know for sure.

"When I was born, I found it this way," he said.

Entertaining in the apartment-office of his secret cult, Didi laughed at a question about African influence in Salvador.

"Salvador is an African city," he said, and gave the visitor a friendly glance that clearly meant the question should have been phrased the other way around — about Brazil's influence in "African" Salvador.

Mountbatten's Life Like Story

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Queen Victoria fondled her newest grandson and, though no one could have known it that June 22, 1900, it was a historic moment. For the Empress of India was petting the infant who, 47 years later, would remove that resplendent title from the honors of the British crown.

Recently Earl Mountbatten of Burma went to a memorial service for his friend and wartime colleague, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein. Though he is now 76 and grey he is still erect and distinguished and it is easy to see why he was considered one of the handsomest men of his time.

Good looks were only one of the many gifts a profligate fate bestowed on the son of Princess Victoria and a German nobleman, Prince Louis of Battenberg. From his birth at Frogmore House near Windsor Castle his life has unreel like a series of film epics — except no author would dare to put down in fiction a career so astonishing in reality.

There was Mountbatten, the flamboyant confidant of the Prince of Wales, water-skiing in white tie and tails from one ship to another for a party. There was Mountbatten the war hero on the bridge of his destroyer Kelly as it went down guns blazing — and lived on in Noel Coward's film, "In Which We Serve," one of the morale boosters of the early days of World War II.

There was Mountbatten, the heartbroken teen-ager whose father was replaced as First Lord of the Admiralty in World War I because of his German origins (the family name was anglicized to Mountbatten) and who vowed to wipe out the affront — and rose to become First Sea Lord himself. There was Mountbatten, the leader of the Commandos, and then Supreme Commander in South-east Asia, the longest front in the war.

There was Mountbatten the brilliant linguist and naval inventor — who as a hobby revolutionized British polo playing. And Mountbatten who was pursued by the great heiress, Edwina Ashley, across Europe and Asia to New Delhi where they became engaged in one of the enduring romances of the pre-war days. She died in 1960.

And there was Mountbatten, the last Viceroy of India, whose mission was to bring independence to India and Pakistan.

After his retirement as head of the Chiefs of Staff, Lord Mountbatten spent some time on a genealogy of his remarkable family — he is a descendant of Charlemagne the Great. Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth, is his nephew and there was another Mountbatten role there — as matchmaker.

When that was finished, he became interested in the United World Colleges, a chain of pre-university colleges already established in Wales, Vancouver and Singapore, with five other locations under consideration. These will have multinational student bodies and are mainly financed by a combination of government and private donations.

He visited China in 1974, first member of the royal family to do so since 1949, and attended the coronation of the King of Nepal in 1975 with Prince Charles, Heir to the Throne.

Study Cats As Clue To Migrations

By BERNARD GAVZER
For AP Newsfeatures
ATHENS, Greece (AP) —
The stage of the ancient Theater of Dionysos was barren, all the workmen gone for the afternoon siesta and not a tourist in sight.

Then, a sound ... An echo from the glorious days of Euripides, Aristophanes Sophocles?

Black and white, it appeared briefly on the stage apron. "Meow. Meow." And vanished.

It was a sight that would have brought cheer to the heart of Dr. Neil B. Todd, adjunct professor, Department of Biology, Boston University.

It is not so much that he admires cats, which he does, but that he regards them seriously as living clues to what went on in the Theater of Dionysos, as well as prehistory times.

And it is in Athens that he will soon begin a cat-watching expedition that will attempt to record the cats of Greece, with special focus upon Crete. A second phase of the expedition will concentrate on Iran.

"The cat was one of the first animals to penetrate the human community," Todd said in a telephone interview from Boston. "Urban life was a haven and a heaven for cats because at the very beginning one of the first products of urban life was garbage. That attracted mice and rats, which attracted cats. The cats insinuated themselves upon man and became one of the first of the domesticated animals."

Todd's research project is under sponsorship of "Earthwatch," a Belmont, Mass., nonprofit agency that brings together scientists and amateurs who pay their way to help in field expeditions.

Others on the team with Todd are Dr. Thomas Kunz, a mammalian ecologist from Boston University, and Ruth Saliternik, a geneticist at the Laboratory of Animal Science, Hadassah Medical School in Jerusalem. There will be an amateur team of 15 to help them.

"The research will involve systematic reconnaissance of urban habitats," said Todd. "There will be genetic and numerical censusing of feline populations, including written records and photographic documentation." A genetic shorthand has been developed for the numbering and recording of each cat sighted.

"It is my belief that the domestication of the cat was an evolutionary adaptation to a niche created by the development of human communities," said Todd.

He dismisses archeological and cultural records as inadequate. Todd claims that for information on the development of communities one must turn to behavioral analysis, ecological studies, historical research and population genetics.

"I feel certain that there is a distinct possibility that genetic profiles of cat populations will shed light on past human migrations, trade and commercial routes."

Todd has done research on cats in more than 20 countries, developing his thesis, and declares that "little is understood concerning the place of the domestic cat in the urban community."

"Mostly the cat has been disregarded as having any social or economic importance. But in my view it is in fact proving to be highly significant in the study of evolution."

He said that the cat is closely associated with man and is a clue to man's movements because the cat could not migrate vast distances and across waters.

"The cat does not like to travel great distances on foot; it does not like to swim; it had to be carried from place to place. For example," he said, "through observing the genetic fingerprint of the cat — that is, its visible mutations — it was possible to trace the migration of loyalists from the colonies to Nova Scotia. The cats that are there arrived along with the people."

One of the high points of the summer's cat expedition — which is described by Earthwatch as "Population Genetics: Felis Catus" — will be a team project operating from Iran.

Village Life Is Changed By TV Sets

By AHMED LUTFY
Associated Press Writer
SEHAFA, Egypt (AP) — It's only a television set, but it has changed the pattern of life in this Nile delta village in the past few months more than anything else since Pharaonic times.

The elders call it "instrument of the devil" but the young in Sehafa call it "our wonderful ticket to freedom." Whatever it is, the village hasn't been the same since the government brought the set last summer.

Cairo wanted the peasants to have a chance to watch the celebrations commemorating the July 1952 overthrow of the monarchy.

The government step came after electricity was introduced in Sehafa and 300 other villages.

Up to now seven affluent peasants have purchased their own private sets out of a population of 3,000 persons. But Mahmoud Hussein, 58, has resisted all his sons' pleas to buy a set and said if he had the money he would buy a water buffalo.

Despite opposition from the elders who are conservative by nature, television quickly left its mark on the people of Sehafa, about 35 miles northeast of Cairo. Even the old wife of Mahmoud Hussein is now acquainted with such celebrities as King (U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger), the Shah of Iran and President Ford.

But she disapproves of many programs. "It is shameful that they show girls wearing two inches dress who go shaking all around like mad," she says in reaction to modern dancing. She believes it is spoiling the village girls "who return home and try to imitate everything they watch on TV."

The set was installed in the market place of the village. The first rows of hard wooden benches are usually occupied by men, while women dressed in ankle-length black robes sit in the back.

The village mayor Mohammed Sobehi says the midwives in the village have complained to him that there are fewer pregnant women to care for now that everyone watches TV.

He contends that television is more effective than programs for birth control, which are opposed by the village's religious leaders, who claim it is against Islam. He explains why.

Most of the peasants have no transistor radios, no movies and newspapers don't arrive in the village. So after returning from the fields they used to go to bed at dusk and add to Egypt's acute population problem, he said.

It is all changed now. Everyone in the village deserts his home to remain glued before the tube until the last program at midnight, complains Mahmoud Hussein.

"I go to the field as usual at dawn but now no one shows up until very late and I know that this instrument of the devil will keep us from our work."

His son Azzal, 21, on the other hand, is happy with the change.

"My wife has learned a lot of nice words and ways of cooking she picked up from the TV. She has also made a nice colored dress instead of the usual gloomy black dresses of the women in the village."

What worries the elders in Sehafa is that the more the boys and girls watch films featuring life in Cairo, the more the young villagers feel discontent about everything — poverty, dusty roads, the mud-brick houses — and they yearn to flee to the capital.

"After watching life in Cairo on the TV all I dream of now is to drive a car," Azzal says. Donkeys are still the only mode of transportation in the village.

After a period of observation the elders admit that their young boys' and girls' discontent has encouraged them to study harder so they can go to a high school and leave the village.
