Steel, Gas Prices Pace Rise By Index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher prices for steel and gasoline pushed wholesale prices up four-tenths of a per cent in June, the government said today.

The increase compared with a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in May and was in line with relatively modest inflation rates so far this year at both the wholesale and retail level.

Farm and food price increases slowed last month but an acceleration in industrial prices, led by steel and gasoline, was largely responsible for the over-all wholesale price increase, the Labor Department said.

Fears of a new outburst of inflation were expressed by many economists after an eight-tenths of a per cent jump in wholesale prices in April, the biggest rise in six months. But the slowdown in May and June is expected to help dampen those fears.

The Ford administration forecast an inflation rate of about 6 per cent this year, high by historical standards but down from the 7 per cent rate in 1975 and far below the near record 12.2 per cent increase in 1974.

In June, the wholesale price index stood at 183.1, meaning it cost $183.10 to buy the same goods that sold for $100 in the 1967 base period.

Industrial prices rose five-tenths of a per cent last month with metal and fuel products accounting for more than half the increase, the government said.

Gasoline prices were up 3.7 per cent while metal products rose 1.1 per cent, largely as the result of previously announced increases in certain steel mill products.

Farm prices, which rose sharply in April and May, slowed to an increase of three-tenths of a per cent in June. Prices declined for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, livestock, plant and animal fibers and milk.

Processed foods and feeds rose four-tenths of a per cent in June, following increases of 1.9 per cent in April and 1.3 per cent in May.

Sharp increases in prices for manufactured animal feeds were offset by lower prices for sugar and confectionary. Beef and veal prices continued to decline, although less than in May.

Council Votes Dispose Of Unclaimed Dogs By Gas

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The dog issue is back before the City Council.

This time the issue does not concern the merits of the leash law but the method of disposing of unclaimed dogs at the animal shelter.

The Council, after hearing from a spokesman for the Pitt County Humane Society Thursday evening and discussing at length the unscheduled item, voted in a split decision to begin using individual carbon monoxide chambers to put the animals to sleep.

Mayor Percy Cox pointed out prior to bringing the matter before the Council that the Humane Society had expressed concern about the method of disposing of the dogs, particularly with the administering of the drug currently used by the city for such purposes.

Parker Overton, who said that he was appearing on behalf of the Society, voiced objections to the current method of disposal and added that although there is "no humane way of killing anything," individual units for gassing the animals would be better.

Overton said that a committee is also needed to govern the operation of the animal shelter.

Dr. Ira Hardy said that the ideal situation would be to put the animals to sleep with an injection but the practice would require that the drug be administered by a veterinarian since it is a controlled substance.

He appealed for a "moresensitive way of putting these pitiful animals away."

Cox said that he had reservations about the gas chamber being the best solution to the problem but he contended that he has "almost run around in circles as to which way to go."

Chief Inspector Alton Warren, whose departments heads the Animal Control Division, figured that it would cost approximately $500 to provide a chamber for one animal and he cited the amount of time that would be necessary to administer the gas method. Warren said that

Slaughter In Lebanon Worsening

By FAROUK NASSAR

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian spokesmen claimed today that their forces were attacking 1,200 trapped Palestinians and leftist Lebanese Moslems in the northern coastal village of Enfe.

"Their backs are to the sea," said one spokesman. "Our guns are pounding them from all directions and blocking their attempts to escape by boat."

Bodies of attacking Christians, fleeing Moslems and villagers caught in the middle dotted the northern coast as the civil-war slaughter raged unabated for the fifth day in that part of the country.

Security forces and other sources estimated that 285 persons were killed and 400 wounded in the past 24 hours, raising the estimated toll in 15 months of Moslem-Christian warfare to nearly 32,000 dead.

Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat asked for an Arab summit meeting in Cairo Monday to consider the "dangerous developments in Lebanon," the Moslems' Beirut Radio reported. The Arab foreign ministers are scheduled to meet in the Egyptian capital Monday to discuss the Lebanese situation, but the broadcast said Arafat wants the kings and presidents to meet.

The Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese allies invaded the Christian enclave between Beirut and Tripoli Monday in an attempt to force the Christians to lift their siege of the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar camp on the southeast side of Beirut. But the Christians counter-attacked and began taking territory and villages north of their enclave from the Moslems.

Each side accused the other of atrocities as reports of summary executions and mass burials reached Beirut.

The Christian Phalange party's radio station accused Palestinian guerrillas of murdering 43 Christians in the village of Hamat. However, a Western newsman who visited the village said the villagers spoke of only nine persons having been killed. But he said a third of the village was destroyed.

The leftists claimed that Phalangist militiamen lined up 57 families against the wall of the town hall in Amioun Thursday and machine-gunned them to death.

Officials in Beirut estimated that 1,400 persons have been killed.

Raleigh Fires Strikers

RALEIGH (AP) — The city of Raleigh carried through its threat to fire striking sanitation workers who did not return to work this morning. One-hundred-fifty-seven workers were officially stricken from city payrolls.

W. Lynn Baird, Public Works Director, said the firing of the employes means the city will not negotiate with them. "These people are no longer employes of the city," Baird said.

Baird also announced that the city's contingency trash collection plan, which involved using non-striking laborers to collect trash, has failed.

"We were unable to follow through with that (the former plan) because of the fear of retalitation," Baird said.

The workers reported harassment yesterday from striking laborers. No arrests were made in the incidents, however.

Baird said the city will hire a commercial operator to pick up trash begining early next week. He could not name the cost of the operation. But when asked if it might cost more than granting an employe wage increase, Baird said "I don't know."

Doctors Keep Vigil On Pat Nixon After Stroke

By LYNDA FILLMORE
Associated Press Writer

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Doctors kept an overnight vigil on former first lady Pat Nixon, partially paralyzed on her left side from a stroke and in "serious but stable condition."

Mrs. Nixon was reported resting comfortably after visits with her two daughters Thursday night, but neurologist Dr. John Mosier said she is far from being out of danger.

"If the stroke doesn't get any worse, she's not going to die. If it gets worse, well, people do die from strokes," Mosier said at a news briefing called after the 64-year-old wife of former President Richard M. Nixon was admitted to Memorial Hospital Medical Center.

The stroke caused "moderate paralysis" of Mrs. Nixon's left leg, arm and left side of her face, which in turn caused a "slight slurring" of speech, Mosier said.

"I think she will walk," he said, but added, "She may not walk normally." Pressures in her life "certainly could have been a contributing factor" toward her illness, Mosier added.

PAT NIXON

Doctors said Mrs. Nixon had apparently suffered a right cerebral infarct, or a blood clot on the right side of the brain. A stroke can be caused by a clot or hemorrhage and can cause paralysis and speech slurring, or in severe cases, death.

Secret Service agents called an ambulance for Mrs. Nixon, and she was accompanied during the 30-mile trip from the former Western White House by her husband and younger daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Nixon slipped out of the hospital only an hour after her arrival and apparently returned to San Clemente.

The couple's other daughter, Tricia Cox, flew in from New York and she and Mrs. Eisenhower visited with their mother until about 9:15 p.m. before joining their father at San Clemente.

Mrs. Nixon suffered the stroke Wednesday while reading, Mosier said.

Dupree Case Nearing End

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Two firearm experts have testified that the bullet that killed a young black man in Scotland Neck last March 11 was fired less than a foot from his head.

Sandra Dupree, wife of a fundamentalist Free Will Baptist minister, has testified that she didn't know the bullet had struck Harry Lee Dickens, 21, when she pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Dupree, 34, who is white, is charged with first degree murder and could be sentenced to life imprisonment if convicted.

A group of Scotland Neck blacks continued their demonstration Thursday, picketing the Vance County Courthouse to emphasize a demand that Mrs. Dupree be convicted.

Testimony in the weeklong Superior Court trial could end today with the jury possibly beginning its deliberations Saturday.

The defense concluded its case this morning by asking the jury to examine the photgraphs, records and other exhibits introduced as evidence in the trial.

The prosecution recalled Mrs. Dupree's son Mark to the stand and questioned him on why he did not run to avoid the fight with Dickens that led to the shooting. The boy said he could have run but did not, arguing that the nine or 10 "Grit" newspapers he was carrying would have slowed him down.

The boy had no answer when the prosecution asked why he could not have dropped the papers and run. Prosecutors also noted that Mark was seven inches taller than Dickens.

The trial was recessed this morning while awaiting arrival of an additional prosecution witness, Dr. Page Hudson of Chapel Hill, chief state medical examiner. The prosecution also recalled Dr. Charles Gilbert, a Greenville pathologist who did the autopsy on Dickens.

In testimony Thursday, S. G. Satterfield Jr., a ballistics expert with the State Bureau of Investigation, said he tested the .22 caliber pistol that killed Dickens.

Satterfield said the tests, plus an autopsy report that powder residue was found where the bullet entered Dickens' head, showed the gun was less than 12 inches away.

John Boyd of Morganton, the SBI's ballistics expert from 1953 to 1967, said he believed the gun was four to eight inches from Dickens' head when it was fired.

Dist. Atty. W. H. S. Burgwyn asked the weapons experts if a person could fire a bullet into another person's head from only inches away and not know the victim had been hit. The judge would not allow an answer.

In earlier testimony Thursday, Dorothy Lamour Keeter, 17, a neighbor of the Dupree family and a member of the Rev. Harvey Dupree's church, said she saw Mrs. Dupree and her son, Mark, 14, right after the shooting.

When Mrs. Dupree drove up to her home, Miss Keeter said, "I heard Mrs. Dupree say, 'Harvey, come quick. A nigger tried to kill me'. She was terribly upset. She was in tears." Miss Keeter said the son, Mark, was "very upset . . . trembling, almost in tears . . . scared."

Miss Keeter quoted Mrs. Dupree as saying repeatedly, "I couldn't have hit him. He tried to kill me."

Mrs. Dupree and her son have testified that Dickens was killed after attacking Mark and demanding $5 from him. The youth was in a black neighborhood where he was selling the weekly paper, "Grit."

Leaf Sales

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Offerings were heavy though demand was fairly light at warehouses today in the second day of sales at the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets.

Fair orange leaf was being sold for $108 to $110 per hundred pounds while fair orange primings ranged from $96 to $103.

Today's offerings included a large amount of lower-quality primings, the Tobacco Market News service said.

Amounts of tobacco bringing less than the federal support price level ranged from 25 per cent to 30 per cent at various markets, according to the service.

Sales on opening day Thursday brought growers an average of $92.93 a hundred pounds, compared with $86.33 on opening day last year.

Lobbyists Charged With Failure To File Expenses

RALEIGH (AP) — Thirty-four legislative lobbyists and 31 corporations have been charged with failing to file expense reports within 30 days after the North Carolina General Assembly adjourned.

According to Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell Jr., warrants were in the process of being served. He said that no bonds would be required and that trial for the 65 defendants had been set for July 19 in Wake District Court.

Secretary of State Thad Eure with whom the reports are to be filed furnished the list of delinquents.

Some 35 charges were brought against individual lobbyists. Arch Laney of Raleigh, representing the North Carolina State Government Employees Association and the Carolina Association of State Employees, was charged in two cases.

Forty-eight charges were brought against 31 corporations which hired lobbyists. In some cases, multiple charges were brought. These included four counts against N. C. Public Interest Research Group Inc., six counts against N.C. Speech, Hearing & Language Assn. Inc., and four counts against ERA United Inc.

Some of the lobbyists and corporations had filed late reports and some had not, Mitchell said.

"We look upon the charges as a mechanical thing," he said. "If there is a violation we bring charges."

The offense is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $1,000 or two years in prison, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The reports cover lobbying activities in the 1975 and 1976 sessions. However, some corporations and lobbyists were not active during the brief 1976 session which was devoted mainly to budget matters and lasted less than two weeks.

Following the 30-day deadline in June, Eure announced that he was turning over the delinquent list to the state attorney general's office.

For the first time, three charges were brought in 1974 under the 40 year-old law for failing to file reports on time. Convictions were obtained and fines of $50 were imposed.

Order Clean Air Laws Revamped In 45 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is ordering 45 states to revamp their antipollution programs to meet federal standards, even though clean air plans have reduced pollution levels by 5 per cent annually.

Russell Train, who heads the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday that stricter compliance in meeting anti-emission levels will be needed to ensure that clean air is maintained in the United States.

The EPA formally notified 45 governors that their state plans were "substantially inadequate" to attain or maintain clean air standards in at least one antipollution area. Alaska, Mississippi, Florida, Hawaii and Oklahoma were not affected by the EPA directive.

The EPA order seeks to strengthen compliance with clean air standards regarding sulfur dioxide, oxidants and carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen dioxide and sulfur dioxide.

To correct inadequacies in state clean-air plans, "numerous small (pollution) sources in urban centers may require (stricter) controls," including efforts to go beyond smoke stack controls, the EPA said.

The EPA said a major problem in western states is windblown pollutants, such as dust from construction sites, unpaved roads and tilling of farmland.

"This problem will likely take many years to resolve due to the difficulty in implementing effective controls, but the EPA is initiating programs aimed at identifying solutions over the long term," said Train.

He said the limited information available on the pollution level caused by carbon monoxide and photochemical oxidants "indicates that the standards are being violated far less frequently than five years ago, in some cases as much as 50 per cent less."

Train's order directs 31 states to take new steps to meet the 1970 Clean Air Act standards for particulate matter; 12 states to revise sulfur dioxide standards; 22 states to revise carbon monoxide standards; 29 states to set new or more stringent standards for photochemical oxidents and three states to revise their nitrogen oxide standards.

Most states must change at least two standards.

Under Train's order, state regulators must submit new anti-emission plans no later than July 1, 1977. Other necessary regulatory measures, such as transportation improvements, must be submitted by July 1, 1978.

Writer Claims 'The Ripper' Was 3 Persons

LONDON (AP) — Jack the Ripper was actually three men engaged in a political coverup operation, a book published today says.

Jack the Ripper is the name given to the unfound slayer of young women in London's West End in 1888.

Stephen Knight, in the latest of a string of theories put forth about the case, says the murders were committed not by one man, but by three.

He maintains the three included Queen Victoria's physician, a painter and a coachman.

According to his book "Jack the Ripper — The Final Solution," the three killed four women because they knew of the secret marriage of a a Roman Catholic commoner to the Queen's grandson, which the prime minister feared would lead to scandal. The account says one other woman was killed because of a mistake in identity.

Harris labeled himself a populist in his last two unsuccessful attempts to get the Democratic nomination for president.

Fayetteville Sees Raids

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — More than 40 alleged drug traffickers were arrested Thursday in a series of predawn raids culminating an undercover investigation dating back to the first of the year.

Law enforcement officers from Ft. Bragg and Cumberland, Harnett and Sampson counties and the SBI had arrested 43 persons by Thursday night and authorities still sought 33 others named in warrants.

Many of those arrested were allowed to post bond and were back on the street within hours of their arrest.

Ft. Bragg authorities refused to identify the 22 military personnel arrested in the crackdown. Col. James Duffy, post provost marshal, said the names would be released when all were in custody.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, who was in Fayetteville for the raids, said those charged are "dealers in drugs, not just street pushers."

He said that more than $60,000 worth of heroin was confiscated during the raids, along with animal tranquilizers and LSD.

Edmisten said similar raids will be conducted in other North Carolina cities.

Exercising When Dieting Aids Personal Appearance

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition
Harvard University
(Second of a four-part series on dieting)

If so many people complain that dieting is bad enough, why do I add insult to injury by telling you that you have to exercise, too?

The answer is so simple—and so encouraging—that all such complaints should be silenced forever. First of all, exercise adds a great deal to the way you look. You'll be thinner, firmer and shapelier. Second, and I think maybe even more important, it makes you feel better and makes your body function better.

Take a look at any active person—the morning jogger, the neighborhood tennis enthusiast. They look better not just because they're thin, but because their bodies are alive and they are actively enjoying themselves. It shows.

We seem to forget that nature and evolution never intended us to spend our lives sitting down. Our bodies were made for running, climbing, moving. The real wonder is not that so many people get fat, but that so many do not.

The reason for this—for both the fatties and the non-fatties—is that we are all equipped with an appetite-control mechanism that normally works beautifully. It tells us, by flicking a "hunger switch," that when we use up more energy, we need to eat more to replenish the supply. And when our energy supply is replenished, the mechanism very obligingly reverses itself and signals that it's time to stop eating.

Now, most people wrongly assume that more exercise will make your appetite increase to the point where you will eat too much, thereby defeating all your efforts to lose weight. Fortunately, it just doesn't work that way. The appetite switch will only tell you to eat a little more—not an enormus amount—and certainly not more than you just used up in activity.

The problem is that the appetite regulator doesn't work at extreme ends of the activity specturm. If you climb mountains day after day to the point of exhaustion, for example, your appetite does not increase enough to compensate, and you lose weight.

On the other hand, if you never do much except sit at a desk, sit in your car, sit in front of your TV—the appetite switch doesn't go down to near zero. It tends to outrun your energy needs, so you keep on eating as usual—and you gain weight.

A nice satisfying amount of daily exercise will make your appetite regulator run like a Rolls Royce.

Let's also get rid of the notion that any exercise you decide on has to be done in one great outburst of energy. You don't ordinarily eat your entire 1,900 or 2,400 daily calorie allowance in one gigantic meal. And if you want to use up 200 extra calories a day by being active, you don't have to do it by a straight half-hour of uninterrupted wood sawing, either. You can use it up just as effectively with three brisk, 15-minute walks. In short it's the accumulated total that counts.

Let me say one more good thing in behalf of exercise. Besides making you look and feel better, it contributes in significant ways to your overall health. Even if you're not trying to lose weight or improve your looks, some type of exercise should be part of your daily life.

Walking for an hour or so every day—to the commuter train, to the grocery store or to pick up the children after school—will increse your oxygen intake and help your blood circulate. Vigorous exercise three times a week for 20 minutes or so will help keep your blood vessels elastic and help build up additional circulation in blood vessels around the heart. That could make all the difference between having or not having heart trouble.

No matter how busy your schedule, surely you can fit in those two basic forms of exercise—regular walking and some energetic sport like tennis or swimming. You'll not only be healthier, but also look and feel better. It will add variety to your life and decrease boredom. Far from making you tired, exercise will give you new energy and enthusiasm.

Is It Proper To Make Change?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: While in church, I saw a woman put a $5 bill in the collection plate and take back $4. Is that considered proper etiquette?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Why not? God knows she put in five.

DEAR ABBY: This is an old story, but I need any help I can get. I fell in love with a married man. I'm married, too. There was no good reason for this, as I have a very nice husband, but nonetheless it is a fact.

I can't respond to my husband sexually, and it is hurting him. Things seem to be completely out of control.

I have tried keeping busy and active, but to no avail. I still wake up at 3 in the morning and toss and turn for hours. Taking an interest in other people is a real challenge. My children are the ones who are suffering most.

It's not necessary to tell me not to see the other man because there is no contact between us now, but I think of him constantly. Also, please don't tell me there must have been something missing in my marriage for this to have happened. I already know that, and it doesn't help.

What I want from your readers is any suggestion that has worked for them.

LOVESICK

DEAR LOVESICK: Lovesickness is a "mental disease." It doesn't respond to logic, and what has worked for one may not work for another. You can't kill love: it has to die by itself.

Talking to a therapist is your best bet. Try it. Also forcing thoughts of "him" out of your mind by replacing them with other thoughts helps. And so does time!

DEAR ABBY: I often eat out with friends who seem to gobble their food down. Unfortunately, I wear dentures and must eat more slowly.

Is it considered bad manners to continue eating after the guests and hostess have finished their meal?

PLAIN DUMB

DEAR PLAIN: Please don't label yourself "dumb" because yours is a very intelligent question. Take all the time you need to enjoy your meal, and don't worry about those who have gobbled down their food hastily. They are lacking in good manners—not you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DEAR ABBY: Ten lashes with a wet typewriter ribbon for advising that young girl who had been molested by her father to tell her mother. Not all mothers are sympathetic. Some are afraid of their husbands. Others don't want to rock the boat by facing reality. The girl may be better off bypassing her mother and going directly to an agency.

The Children's Protective Services are the people to call. Please let children know this.

PHYLLIS IN CONCORD, N.H.

DEAR PHYLLIS: You are right. About 10 years ago, a 16-year-old St. Paul girl who was in the same predicament wrote seeking my help. I checked out her story and learned it was true. I then enlisted the help of a State Supreme Court justice in an effort to rescue the girl and deal with her father appropiately.

Incredible as it may seem, the girl's mother refused to press charges against her husband, saying, "If he's put away, there goes the family's paycheck." The daughter also refused to testify against her father, so we were stymied.

Children who are sexually molested by an adult should call the Children's Protective Service, if the community has one. Otherwise, tell a trusted adult friend, teacher, relative or neighbor. Or call the police.

DEAR ABBY: I have an alcoholic sister who lives in the same city with my elderly mother. My mother lives alone, and she hasn't been well for the last few years, but she is very proud and will not allow anyone to live with her.

My sister very often gets drunk and phones me at 2 or 3 or even 4 o'clock in the morning. This is upsetting, of course, but I don't dare get an unlisted number because I'm afraid my mother may need me, or my sister might want to call me to tell me that my mother is sick or possibly dead.

Telling my sister NOT to call me when she's loaded does no good. I've told her a dozen times, but she forgets.

Is there a solution?

ANXIOUS SON

DEAR SON: If there is, I'm not able to come up with it. Readers?

Advised To Play For Fun

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (UPI) — Kirby Sams says adults have a lesson to learn from children: how to play for the fun of it and not for the laurels of winning the game.

Sams, 27, used competition as the theme for his recreation programs for psychiatric patients for five years, then decided it was not the best way to structure therapeutic activity.

He said the theory of new games that stresses few rules and no scores at all is equally good for persons who are not under psychiatric care.

"One of the things I'm trying to do is to change the philosophy about sports and athletics for people who have gone through Little League and come out with the aggressiveness of competition," Sams said. He is recreation director at the Elmcrest Psychiatric Institute in Portland, Conn.

He said the idea of "it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game" changes when a child goes to school and begins to be achievement-oriented. That leads to competition.

"Most people think it's acceptable for children to play and adults to compete. It's good for adults to play, too," he said.

Sams has organized what he calls "playfair, a giant games event" held this summer at Wesleyan University in Middletown.

Some games on the roster, such as three-way tug of war, ping pong and slow motion tag, are variations on old favorites. Others are less easy to recognize. Sams has named some: three people pass, keep-up and do you like your neighbor?

He said play for the sheer frolic of it should not be considered the exclusive province of children, but something adults can benefit from both physically and psychologically.

"A lot of people are stagnant, they don't move around much and their circulation decreases, but they become so frustrated by rules that they are not willing to play conventional games," he said.

He said adults can get exercise from playing relatively unstructured games, such as infinity ball, a variation on volley ball that uses a ball six feet in diameter and dispenses with most regulations.

"The idea is to perpetuate play for the sake of play and not for the purpose of competing," he said.

He said many persons have what he calls a low body image of themselves.

"They have little awareness of their bodies' endurance, speed, power, depth, pain and joy. Adolescents especially tend to have poor definitions of their own sexuality."

In the new games people of both sexes and all ages can play together. "If your circulation increases, your energy increases in other aspects of life and self-esteem goes up" regardless of age, Sams said.

"I am using recreational games to try to get people in touch with the feelings and expectations of their bodies, to get them to explore their own energies and find out how much they can do for the frolic of it," he said.

Two New Schools For County

No doubt neither the city nor the county school physical facilities are in as good a shape as authorities would like, but the county system will have two fine new middle school facilities this fall.

The new buildings are being constructed at Farmville and just North of Greenville.

The Farmville building will be known as Farmville Middle School, while the school to serve the North Pitt area has been named Wellcome Middle School, after the neighboring Burroughs-Wellcome pharmaceutical facility.

Pitt Assoc. Supt. Tom Craft reported good progress on the construction of both buildings at a meeting of the Pitt Board of Education Tuesday. He said he was pleased with the progress of both schools. He said work had been slowed down temporarily on the Wellcome School in order to meet the completion deadline of Aug. 1 on the Farmville Middle School. However both schools are expected to be ready on time.

The county schools have four modern high school plants in North Pitt, Farmville Central, Ayden-Grifton and D. H. Conley.

The completion of the two new middle schools now under construction will give the county added up-to-date facilities in which to carry out an improved educational program.

Dismayed, Like Every Other Consumer

Farmville electric patrons, like so many other utilities customers everywhere, expressed their dismay with skyrocketing bills to the Farmville commissioners Tuesday.

The Farmville electrical system is owned by the town and naturally the citizens look to the town board for relief.

As with other municipally owned systems, however, Farmville board members find themselves in the position of having to pass on rate increases which come from the suppliers—in Farmville's case Carolina Power and Light.

There doesn't seem to be much hope for relief from soaring electric bills, unless the municipals can carry out a plan to construct their own generating facilities.

Mobile Homes Seldom Move

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — From 12-wide, to double-wide, and now to triple-wide, mobile homes continue to gain a commanding position on the North Carolina landscape.

Once considered a home on wheels which the owner could hitch up and haul away to a new job in a new town, today's mobile homes are seldom moved more than once—from the sales lot to a parking place.

The growth in size of the modern units to rival that of many standard three-bedroom stick houses is reason enough for that change.

But the lack of portability is one of the prime reasons those in the business are now pushing for another name change: from mobile homes to manufactured homes. The campaign to change the public image is similar to that which accompanied the name change from trailers to mobile homes.

Matter of Money

Economics are obviously the foundation of the mobile home boom. In the under-$20,000 housing market, 96 per cent of the units sold are now mobile homes. Under-$30,000, mobile homes make up 69 per cent of the new units occupied.

Overall, fully half of the new single-family housing units occupied in North Carolina in recent years are manufactured homes.

The reason is obvious in these times of inflation when costs of transportation, electricity, heat, and other essentials have increased more repiadly than paychecks. So has the cost of housing.

The average stick-built house in North Carolina today runs shomewhere over $38,000, and for most newly built homes, even at that price, some of the trimmings have been cut.

The average price of a mobile home is somewhat above $8,000 including furnishings, carpet, appliances, and draperies.

Financing a manufactured home has become easier, too, as popularity increased and the image of "drifters" living in trailer parks changed to that of clean-cut young couples trying to make ends meet.

Between 1970 and 1975, there were 112,073 mobile homes sold in North Carolina by over 500 dealers.

That volume of business puts this state third in the nation in citizens living in mobile homes; second nationally in annual sales of mobile homes; and eighth in the Southeast in the manufacture of mobile homes.

Currently, more than six per cent of North Carolina's population live in mobile homes (over 300,000, people in a population of five million).

Problems, Too

The boom in manufactured home living is not without accompanying problems in North Carolina. The lightweight, metal structures are particularly vulnerable to high winds or tornadoes, and to fire.

Codes have been enacted to require better fireproofing, and tiedown anchors, but many units still exist which were set up prior to such law.

New federal safety and liability laws take effect this year, and manufacturers continue to make design changes to meet the demands of a better educated and more sophisticated buyer.

And the growing popularlity is likely to challenge — and probably shatter — the attitudes of people in communities all across the state. Traditionally, zoning ordinances in cities have been used to keep the "trailers" out of "nice communities," consigning them to industrial sections or more rural settings.

Most property owners fear declining land values in areas where mobile homes are allowed, but with the growing numbers of people who must depend on manufactured housing for affordable shelter, the pressure will mount for permission to locate the units in more desirable locations.

As North Carolina's predominately rural and small town characteristics change in the next several years to more urban, the conflict between traditional homeowners and trailer-dwellers is likely to sharpen.

Pep Talk Sales Meeting

WASHINGTON—It was reported in the New York Times last week that the Pentagon has set as one of its highest priorities the sale of U.S. Military equipment to foreign countries. Chief sales manager is Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements, and The Times reported he held a pep talk sales breakfast meeting to tell his people the Pentagon sales program was one of the most important missions of the Defense Department.

I wasn't invited to the breakfast, but I like to think this is how it went.

"Gentlemen, we've moved $10 billion worth of arms this year, but I am disappointed in many of you. We were hoping to have a $12 billion year. Now, we're here to speak frankly. Why isn't the stuff moving?"

"I can only speak for Africa, sir, and my people have done a fine job there. We sold a squadron of F-5 fighters to Kenya, and tons of stuff to Zaire. Ethiopia is talking about buying a missile crusier."

"What's holding up the sale?"

"Since she's landlocked, she doesn't know where to put it."

"I don't want excuses. I want sales. Your people should have figured out some way of persuading Ethiopia that it was essential for a Third World power to have a missile crusier whether she was landlocked or not. They have lakes in Ethiopia, don't they?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then let them keep the cruiser in one of their lakes. All right now, what about the Seychelles Islands. Why haven't they bought anything from us?"

"They only got their independence last week. We're waiting for the prime minister to appoint a minister of defense."

"What are you pushing?"

"We thought we'd talk them into some aircraft carriers, submarine chasers and possibly antiaircraft guns."

"That's all? A country has just gained its independence, and all you're going to sell them is a couple of lousy carriers and a few sub chasers. What kind of a salesman are you?"

"Well, sir, it's a question of money. They want to put what little money they have into industry and agriculture."

"You're job is to persuade them that defense comes first. What good is it to have industry and agriculture if they can't protect themselves from an attack by Kenya."

"Kenya?"

"Listen, you tell them we just sold a squadron of F-5 fighters, and if the Seychelles Islands don't buy a squadron of our F-15s they'll never be able to repulse an attack."

"I got you."

"All right now, what about South America?"

"I left two samples of Trident missiles with Ecuador just to whet their appetites. I told them to try them, and if they didn't live up to their expectaations, they wouldn't have to pay for them."

"What about Brazil?"

"We told Brazil that Ecuador is ordering the Trident missiles and advised them to order the anti-Trident missiles that could shoot them down.

"That's just a drop in the bucket. Why isn't Brazil ordering cruise missiles? I'll tell you why. Because you all think like Avon Women. You make one sale and believe that's all you have to do. Well, let me tell you, gentlemen, the Pentagon is not going to stay in business unless we sell. SELL—SELL! I want those warehouses emptied by Christmas, and if you people can't do it I'll find generals and colonels who can. All right now, take your order books and get out of here. The first man who sells a complete nuclear weapons system to a Third World power gets an all-expense-paid trip to Bermuda."

"Woweeee!!!"

Other Editors Say

Still A Vital Issue

(Jacksonville Daily News)

The attack by marauding youths on motorists stranded in a storm on Chicago's South Side only reveals the utter cruelty of all street crime. The detoured motorists in Chicago who were victimized—one of them murdered—will become part of the crime statistics which regularly seem to show a losing battle by society against its miscreants.

Political commentators have noted that "law and order" is a muted issue in the current campaigns in spite of the high degree of impatience with the crime rate among the populace. One reason probably is that candidates are running out of fresh ideas for fighting crime. Like many problems in our society, this one has proved particularly impervious to the strategy of throwing money at it.

Congress has been hesitating at continuing the high level of funding for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which was established in 1968 with high hopes of making the streets of America safer. Now, after $4 billion in grants to state and local law enforcement agencies, the muggings, robberies and burglaries go on.

It would be a mistake for Congress to assume that because LEAA cannot point to more tangible results from its grants to police departments, money is not going to be involved in an anti-crime strategy. It is where money is spent in law enforcement that should concern federal, state and local officials, and California can offer a case in point.

Last year the Legislature with only a few dissenting votes enacted a law requiring mandatory sentencces for those who use firearms in serious crimes—mainly murder, robbery, kidnaping and rape. This may not be the last of new laws attempting to keep judges from being too liberal with probation and thus blunting the deterrent effect of criminal laws.

Now the bill is coming due. The state Department of Corrections and the California Youth Authority are asking the Legislature for $4.5 million in extra funds to handle an increase in population at their prison facilities they anticipate as a result of this limited mandatory sentencing law.

Elected officials and candidates generally can count on a round of applause when they come out for tougher penalties to "get criminals off the street." The cheers may die away, however, when they begin to estimate the investment in jails and prisons that needs to be made if and when a get-tough strategy is carried out.

Law and order is still a legitimate political issue, but it does not lend itself to glib campaign rhetoric nor to promises that are not coupled with a recognition of the costs they would entail. Of course it would help if we get more criminals off the streets—but what do we do with them then?

Could Do It Again

BY FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — "We could do it again, if it happened again, in a couple of days or a couple of weeks," said Israel's chief of staff in a review of the commando rescue of 102 hostages from Uganda.

From the moment the hijacked French jetliner landed at Entebbe airport on June 28, the Israeli military began planning the rescue, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur told a news conference Thursday.

Plans were considered and rejected. Intelligence sources constantly provided new information. The commandos were assembled on Thursday, and the raid was rehearsed on Friday, apparently on a replica of the Entebbe airport.

Gur said he went before the cabinet Saturday and told it, "This time I'm showing you an implementable plan."

"When we told the troops it was actually going to happen, they couldn't believe their ears," he said.

Gur said he talked to "the four pilots and their navigators," in effect confirming that a fourth plane was used in addition to the three previously reported. A report from Kenya on Thursday said the fourth

A WORRIED AUDIENCE

Tidings In Somber Times

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For a week now, His Majesty's warships have been sailing into New York Harbor. The British guns, their ability to destroy fearsome indeed, are pointed at the homes of New Yorkers.

The biggest fleet of men o'war ever gathered in one spot in the New World is anchored just a few miles south of Manhattan.

Nearly 20,000 New Yorkers have abandoned their homes in the past 10 months. Some were Royalists, seeking haven in Canada and the West Indies. Others were Patriots, fleeing to safety before their homes became a battleground.

Of the 5,000 or so remaining, loyalties are still divided. Anxieties had run high as the Continental Congress met in Philadelphia and voted July 2 to declare the 13 colonies free from the rule of King George III of Britain. On that same day, the first British troops came ashore on Staten Island, five miles off the southern tip of Manhattan.

It is now July 9, and the British are still pouring into the harbor. Soon there will be more than 32,000 troops under the British flag on Staten Island — including grenadiers, dragoons, artillery, light infantry and 8,000 Hessians, the German mercenaries.

George Washington, the commander in chief of the Continental Army, has barely been able to muster 10,000 men. At most, he will have only 19,000 to throw against the British war machine.

A copy of the Declaration of Independence has just reached New York City. On Washington's order, it has been copied in longhand for each of his brigades. Tonight, at 6 p.m., it will be read to the soldiers and to the town-speople who have stayed behind.

"This important event," Washington wrote, "will serve as a fresh incentive to every officer and soldier to act with fidelity and courage, as knowing that now the peace and safety of his country depends solely on the success of our arms, and that he is now in the service of a state possessed of sufficient power to reward his merit, and advance him to the highest honors of a free country."

On parade grounds throughout the city, the continental brigades have gathered to hear the declaration. Washington himself proceeds to the Commons, to the spot where 200 years later politicians and bureaucrats will hold forth in City Hall.

The people of Lower Manhattan, the merchants, the farmers, the ship's chandlers are here, too, as one of Washington's aides begins to read:

"When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another ...a decent respect ...requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness ...

"The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations ...

"We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America ... do solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be Free and Independent States ..."

Those words had already been read to the peoples of Philadelphia and Baltimore, where they were met with

Death has kept pace with destruction and despair in the drought belts today as a week-long wave of intense heat blanketed the midwest and swept east to the Atlantic coast.

Fatalities-many of them in arid areas of the west and south-rose to 138.

No general relief was sighted.

North Carolina has made tremendous strides in rural electrification during the past year, largely due to the activities of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, according to the report of the Authority.

Figures show that North Carolina leads all the other states in rural electrification activity during the past year and that most of the progress was made without any aid whatever from the federal government.

THE CHALLENGE OF FREE WILL

For some reason known only to Himself, God has given us free will. He commands us to do certain things, but we do not have to obey. He gives us wise counsel, but we do not have to obey. He gives us wise counsel, but we do not have to follow His advice. He marks out pathways in which we may walk and gives us light that we may see, but we can walk in pathways of our own choosing if we so desire and turn our backs on the light.

We can do these things, but we cannot do them with impunity. We can disobey God if we want to, but in the end we shall have to pay for this disobedience. It is when we start to exercise our free will and turn a deaf ear to God's commands that trouble begins. That is the meaning of the Garden of Eden story. The pair in the Garden had everything the heart could wish for, but by a wrong use of free will they turned themselves out into a harsh and hostile world where they had to live by the sweet of their brow.

Freedom of will is a great blessing if we use it properly; a great curse if we do not.

Money-Raising At Convention

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The television commercial interruptions of the Democratic National Convention next week will include advertisements of the Democrats, by the Democrats, for the Democrats.

The message: Send money.

The Democratic National Committee has bought eight television spots, two each on two networks, Monday and Wednesday night.

"We'll have primarily a Democratic audience," S. Lee Kling, the party finance chairman, said in an interview Thursday. "What better time to say to them, 'We'd like you to support us with small contributions.'"

The Democrats have raised money previously by staging telethons, but this will be the first time they've joined soap and deodorants to appeal for the dollar.

The commercials will cost in the neighborhood of $120,000, Kling said, and will starparty chairman Robert S. Strauss and others not yet selected.

Officials wanted to have the contributions sent to Box 1976, in keeping with the year, but alas, someone else already has the magic number.

The federal government, through the dollar income-tax checkoff, is picking up the $2,-182,000 convention cost. With no convention costs to worry about, the Democrats are concentrating on raising $10 million for the campaign ahead.

The law allows individual contributions of no more than $1,000 to the candidate, but individual donations of up to $20,-000 can be made to the party.

"The fat cat this year will really be the person who gives us $20,000," Kling says.

The campaigns after the conventions also will be financed by the taxpayer to the tune of $21,820,000 each if the candidate does no fundraising on his own, but the parties can spend money in his behalf.

The Democrats want to help out their man with $3.5 million.

Kling says if the $10 million goal is realized, the DNC will spend $2.5 million for voter registration, $1.5 million for a get-out-the-vote campaign, and $1 million for training campaign workers, polling and such.

"We will have $2 million for the first time to put into several congressional races," says Kling. "We never really had funds for congressional candidates before."

Choosing Running Mate Is Difficult, Says Carter

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — After holding back-to-back conferences with Sens. Walter Mondale and John Glenn, Jimmy Carter says he is having a more difficult time choosing a vice presidential running mate than he expected.

Mondale of Minnesota flew to Carter's hometown in a private plane early Thursday morning to meet with him as a vice presidential possibility, and Glenn, from Ohio, followed him several hours later.

The former Georgia governor earlier said he would interview at least five vice presidential possibilities, and he now has lengthened that list to six or seven. He talked with Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine in Plains on Monday.

Carter said Thursday he plans to meet with Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington in New York on Saturday, two days before the start of the Democratic convention.

He also has said he probably will interview Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey. Although they now are considered dark horses, two other senators who are expected to be interviewed by Carter during the convention are Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Standing with former astronaut Glenn on the lawn of Carter's home, the man who almost certainly will be nominated for the presidency next week insisted that "I honestly have no preference at this point" for a vice presidential nominee.

"I'm not going to rush myself," Carter said. "I'm deliberately going to wait until quite late."

He added he probably would not make up his mind until about 24 hours before he announced his choice, after his nomination Wednesday night.

After his meetings, Carter gave his Washington visitors a taste of small-town Georgia life, first taking Mondale on a quick tour of downtown Plains and later escorting Glenn to his peanut fields, where he pulled a peanut plant and delivered a lengthy lecture on how it grew.

Carter refused to compare for the benefit of reporters his recent senatorial visitors, saying: "They all are superb leaders. All three are highly regarded not only by their colleagues ... but by leaders in other parts of this country."

He added that he felt compatible with all three, both personally and regarding issues.

Carter was asked whether Mondale, who decided last year not to run for president because he felt the stress of campaigning was too rigorous, could undergo the pressures of running for the vice presidency.

"Yes, we went into that, and there's no doubt in my mind that he would be willing," Carter replied.

"What I said at that time was that I didn't want to spend my life in Holiday Inns," Mondale quipped. "But I checked and found out they've all been redecorated and they're marvelous places to stay. I've thought it over."

Asked whether Carter was worried because Mondale was considered more liberal than himself, the 51-year-old Georgian said that based on their discussion of issues, he felt sure that "Sen. Mondale would support with enthusiasm my own positions."

"I don't think there would be any philosophical incompatibilities to prevent our running as a harmonious ticket," he added.

Mondale strongly indicated he would accept the vice presidential nomination, answering "yes" to a question about whether he would be willing to give up his career in the Senate.

Glenn, on the other hand, refused to say whether he would accept the bid.

"The bid has not been offered, and I think it would be presumptuous of me to say yes or no to that," said Glenn, who was elected to the Senate in 1974.

Asked whether Glenn's short Senate tenure might be considered a drawback, Carter answered: "Sen. Glenn's record in the Senate is much more broad-ranging, and his contribution to the legislative process is much more far-reaching and successful than I had known before."

Besides, Carter added with a grin, "he's had more experience in the Senate than I've had in the White House."

But Carter did say that Glenn's brief Senate experience could be a factor in his decision. He did not elaborate further.

Carter also said he would take into consideration public opinion polls which rate vice presidential possibilities but added, "I don't think that it would be a major factor."

Recent polls have favored Glenn, Church and Mondale.

plane was a flying hospital that waited at Nairobi for the return of the hostages.

Gur said his chief of operations and the Israeli air force chief were also aloft over Africa, "somewhere on the way" between Tel Aviv and Entebbe. He said both commanders "could hear all the comments of all the forces."

The chief of staff gave this account of the rescue operation:

The C130 transports took off from Israel at 4:30 p.m. Saturday. The weather was poor and constantly changing "even in the area of the target." But the planes landed "precisely on the dot" seven hours later.

The first strike force charged out in vehicles and raced to the old terminal building where the hostages were being held. Two Ugandan soldiers who challenged them were shot by Lt. Col. Yonatan Netanyahu. The commandos achieved "total surprise" and reached the terminal in "fantastically fast time. They had orders to split up and enter all doors of the building and kill any hijackers guarding the captives with one burst of fire."

A Ugandan soldier who ran from the building into the lighted courtyard was shot down. Four of the terrorists — the German man and woman and two of the Palestinians — were dead within 45 seconds. They were "the most important from our point of view because they were in the best position to shoot the hostages."

The Israelis shouted in Hebrew for the hostages to lie flat on the floor.

Meanwhile, another force broke through two other doors into the building and ran upstairs to take care of the Ugandan soldiers there9 Some were shot inside; others were hit on tme runway outside.

From a distance of 150 yards, Israeli gunners opened fire on MIG jet fighters lined up several dozen yards from the terminal. "One by one they caught fire and blew up." Uganda later reported about 10 were destroyed.

Riflemen opened fire from the control tower and killed Netanyahu. He was the only Israeli military fatality.

A third strike force took over the airport's new terminal and began directing the operation from there. Hostages ran to one of the rescue planes; soldiers carried the injured on their backs. They took off 53 minutes after the landing, two minutes ahead of schedule.

For another 37 minutes the Israelis fought sporadic firefights with the Ugandans as they secured their retreat. The last plane took off about 1 a.m. for Nairobi, the Kenyan capital.

Two Physicians Join Facility

DR. SAMUEL PEPKOWITZ

DR. MICHAEL BRAMLEY

Two physicians have joined the Greenville Pediatrics Inc. medical practice here.

Joining Dr. Earl Trevathan and Dr. Ben Shappley in their practice at the Medical Pavilion here are Dr. Samuel Pepkowitz and Dr. Miachael Bramley, both of whom recently completed pediatrics residencies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Pepkowitz, whose hometown in Monroeville, Pa., is a graduate of John Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., Columbia University School of Medicine in New York City, and did his internship and residency in pediatrics at UNC-Chapel Hill. He and his wife, the former Roberta Belkin, also of Monroeville, Pa., have an eight-month-old-son, Aaron.

Dr. Bramley, an Alexandria, Va. native, graduated from Washington and Lee University and Yale University School of Medicine. He also interned and was a resident at UNC-CH. He and his wife, the former Sally Taylor of Roanoke, Va., have a daughter, Susan, two.

No Evidence Hostage Slain

LONDON (AP) — The Foreign Office said today it has "absolutely no confirmation" of reports in the United States that Ugandan police killed Dora Bloch, the woman hijack hostage left behind by Israeli commandos during the Entebbe airport rescue last weekend.

"Nor have we any news of Mrs. Bloch," a spokesman said. He added that British High Commissioner James Hennessy was to meet with President Idi Amin today in Kampala.

Mrs. Bloch held both Israeli and British citizenship.

She was among the passengers and crew of an Air France plane hijacked to Uganda by Palestinian and West German terrorists but was taken to a Kampala hospital last Friday after getting some food caught in her throat.

The Israelis raided the airport Sunday and rescued 102 other hostages, including Mrs. Bloch's son Ilan Hartuv.

CBS News, quoting a British diplomat, said Mrs. Bloch died Sunday, shortly after the raid, when Ugandan security police tried to remove her forcibly from the hospital. The network said the diplomat reported the police tried to muffle her screams by stuffing a cloth in her mouth and she suffocated.

The Israeli newspaper Yediot Aharanonot said today it talked with Amin by telephone, and he again denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of the 75-year-old widow.

The paper said Amin claimed again that Mrs. Bloch was returned to the rest of the hostages two days before the rescue and "I have no idea what happened to her since the raid.

"Mrs. Bloch was in hospital until July 2," Amin reportedly said. "She was returned to the Entebbe terminal and departed with the other Israelis. She is in Israel."

Israeli officials and Hartuv said earlier that Mrs. Bloch was not among those rescued.

Reopening Ski Resort

BANNER ELK, N.C. (AP) — Sugar Mountain, a resort closed since June 1 because of lack of operating capital, has been reopened by a Mississippi firm which says it is planning an enlarged ski program for the coming winter.

Diversified Equities Limited of Pascagoula will be the operating entity for the Sugar Mountain Co., which developed the $20 million, 3,000 acre resort.

The reopening was announced Thursday by the Sugar Mountain Co. and Don Funderburke, president of Diversified, and Bobbie Toups, secretary-treasurer.

"We reopened the Sugar Mountain facilities today and will immediately offer property owners and other guests the best in summer resort activities, while laying the groundwork for a largely expanded ski program this winter," said Funderburke.

He added that depite a rumored bankruptcy proceeding, there was none and would be none. He said the Sugar Mountain Co., which opened the resort in 1969, is a viable corporation and will continue to be.

He said Diversified is working closely with Sugar Mountain directors in an effort to protect the investment of current property owners.

Minor Road Emphasis Up

RALEIGH (AP) — Surveillance of North Carolina secondary roads is being beefed up in an attempt to cut down on fatal traffic accidents there.

Highway Patrol Commander Col. E. W. Jones said the department's patrol emphasis will be switched from interstate highways to the minor roads because of an increase in fatal accidents there.

Patrol statistics show that 695 persons have been killed so far this year on North Carolina roads; 246 of the deaths were on secondary roads.

Accidents are more common on secondary roads, Jones said, because they have more entrances and exits than interstate highways, because they are patroled less frequently, because their mileage is so much greater and because their construction doesn't meet that of heavily traveled highways.

"But high speed and drunk driving is the real cause of accidents," Jones said.

Driver Charged In Collision

Louise Renee Chalkley of 600 East Tenth St. was charged with careless and reckless driving after the car she was driving collided with a Greenville Police Department patrol car about 1:15 a.m. today at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Country Club Road.

Investigators identified the driver of the police vehicle as Pfl. Clarence J. Warren of Winterville and said Warren and a passenger in the Chalkley car were injured in the collision.

Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the city-owned car and $900 to the Chalkley vehicle.

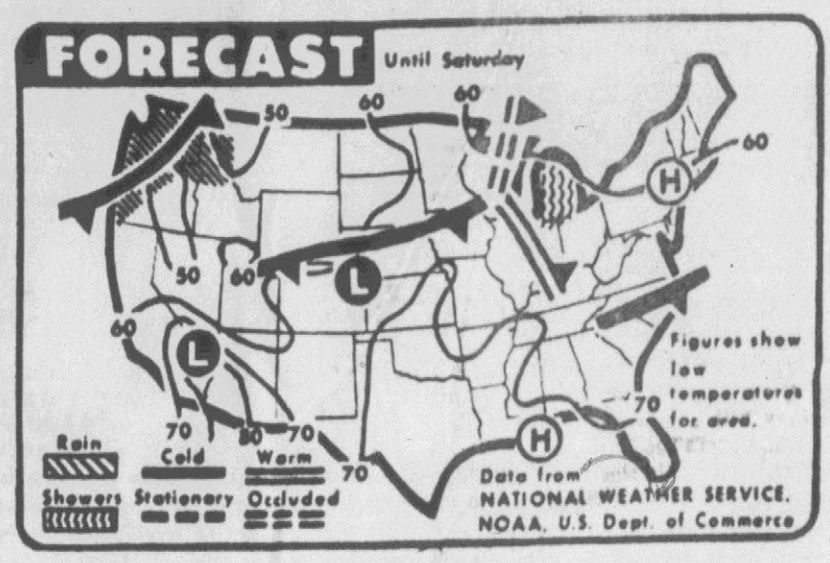
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Seasonably warm weather is forecast for most of the nation. Rain is expected in the Northwest and showers in Michigan. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

It was hazy today in all of North Carolina but the northwest mountains. But skies were mostly sunny, and temperatures warm, generally in the upper 80s, hitting 90 in the southeast.

Under hazy skies tonight, temperatures will cool into the 60s across most of the state.

It will be hazy and warm again Saturday.

Rain over the weekend will be confined to widely scattered afternoon or evening thundershowers.

Sunny and hazy skies were the rule Thursday. Afternoon temperatures reached into the 80s. The warmest was 89 degrees at Wilmington.

Skies were fair during the night, except for a few patches of cloudiness around the state. And radar indicated a few thundershowers in the northwest mountains. After midnight, considerable haze and some fog was reported across much of the state.

great jubilation and riotous celebration.

The people of New York are subdued after the reading. In the past, in times of celebration, they had lit great bonfires, fired artillery salutes and rung the church bells. But now, they will soon be under siege. A bonfire, a cannon boom, the peal of a church bell might be interpreted as a signal, as an alarm that the battle has begun.

Instead, they stroll south to Bowling Green, the grassy park at the southernmost tip of Manhattan.

Here is the statue of King George himself, a two-ton tribute commissioned by the colonial assembly 10 years earlier, a leaden statue covered with gilt.

It depicts George III, the third-generation German, in the dress of a Roman emperor, seated astride a horse.

Somehow, these American patriots, deprived of their bonfires, their artillery salutes and their church bells, determine to pull down the statue of King George. With ropes and crowbars, they climb aboard the marble pedestal, lasso the statue and topple it to the ground.

Someone bashes off the head. The rest of the statue is broken into small pieces to be melted into bullets — bullets which in a few short days' time will be fired at His Majesty's soldiers.

Later, the mutilated head will be recovered by a British captain, John Montressor, who will send it back to London with the message:

"In order to convince them at home of the infamous disposition of the ungrateful people of this distressed country."

Elizabeth II Gives Big Farewell Dinner Party

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II gave a farewell dinner and a garden party for 1,500 guests as she ended the Washington leg of her Bicentennial tour and prepared to move on to New York and New Jersey today. President Ford was the guest of honor at the Thursday night dinner at the British Embassy, but Mrs. Ford missed the colorful finale of the royal visit because of a head cold.

Aides said Mrs. Ford hoped to be well enough to dine with the queen and Prince Philip aboard the royal yacht Britannia at Newport, R.I., on Saturday.

Ford had arrived too early, reaching the embassy before the queen. So his motorcade had to drive around several minutes to give the queen a chance to get to the embassy so she could greet him on his arrival.

The queen's two days of fast-paced sightseeing and ceremonials in Washington ended at midnight Thursday with white-uniformed British royal guard musicians sounding retreat in a ceremony on the flood-lighted embassy terrace.

The royal couple had invited 80 guests for dinner in the embassy ballroom with the Fords. Most of those invited were government officials, but there were such other notables as actress Elizabeth Taylor, comedian Bob Hope, Alfred Lunt and Lynne Fontanne and violinist Yehudi Menuhin, who played a solo after dinner with students from a music school in England that is named after him.

Outside, while the dinner was underway, the 1,500 guests invited to the reception gathered under three huge red-and-white striped tents for a buffet and drinks.

Queen Elizabeth was resplendent in an outfit of diamonds and a tiara. She wore the blue sash of the Order of the Garter on a gown of sea-green silk, with the bodice embroidered in gold.

The embassy had to cope with an early evening rainstorm. The weather cleared for the party, but left soggy grass that ruined many a pair of evening shoes for women in formal attire.

Seek Correct GI Bill Abuse

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is nearing passage of legislation halting most advance payments to veterans attending school under the GI bill. It is an effort to halt overpayments that have totaled more than $800 million in the past year.

The proposal, which would not take effect until next year, is designed to eliminate all advance payments except in hardship cases.

With 11 months of the past fiscal year tabulated, overpayments in the program totaled $813 million, nearly double the $446 million of the year before. Part of the increase was attributed by Veterans Administration officials to publicity that brought to light numerous unknown overpayments.

At this point, $410 million is owed the government, compared with $60 million uncollected in 1973, according to VA officials.

The overpayments result from veterans dropping out of school or reducing their study load without notifying the VA to cease or reduce payments. The VA says it is recovering 76 per cent of all overpayments.

Congress voted in 1972 to pay GI Bill students at the start of each month and to give advance payments at the start of each school year to ease the problems veterans faced at enrollment time.

The legislation to halt the advance payments is one paragraph tucked away in an appropriations authorization bill for the VA and other agencies. The bill includes a $60 million reduction in the VA budget.

Income Tax To Pay For N.J. School-Funding

By THOMAS G. DONLAN
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has signed into law personal income tax legislation that will provide funds for the reopening of New Jersey's public schools.

The bill signed Thursday ended a 10-year battle over the income tax in New Jersey. It creates a new system of school aid for the state and will permit the schools to reopen Monday, providing the state Supreme Court lifts its injunction closing them.

The tax would expire June 30, 1978, under companion legislation not yet signed by Byrne.

New Jersey joins 40 other states that levy a personal income tax. The new law, retroactive to July 1, taxes earnings up to $20,000 a year at 2 per cent and anything beyond that at 2.5 per cent.

Payroll deductions will begin Sept. 1.

Byrne called the bill, passed narrowly in both houses of the legislature, the completion of "the toughest task approached by the legislature in this century."

"This does not represent a giant leap toward the ultimate in tax reform but it is a significant contribution and represents real tax reform and a more equitable system of public education," Byrne said.

The income tax will raise $775 million, including $375 million in school funds. After signing the bill, Byrne sent a letter to Chief Justice Richard J. Hughes asking the court to lift the injunction that closed the schools.

The court ruled on May 13 that if the state did not come up with new financing system by June 30, the schools would have to close.

The court held more than three years ago that reliance on local property taxes to finance schools violated the state constitution.

The tax also will finance about $250 million in local property tax reductions and municipal aid. Surplus funds in the first year will go into a pool for later years of the school aid program. None of the money is intended to be used for general state operations.

Asks Special Session Call

CHARLOTTE (AP) — State Sen. Jim McDuffie, a Democrat from Charlotte, asked Thursday that Gov. Jim Holshouser call a special session of the legislature to enact a new death penalty law.

However, the governor's press secretary, Jack Childs, said previously that Holshouser doesn't intend to do so.

The U.S. Supreme Court last Friday upheld the death penalty as constitutional but struck down North Carolina's version because it was applied mandatorily.

Another state law provides that if the death penalty were declared unconstitutional, those already sentenced to death be given life sentences. And until a new death statute is enacted, anyone convicted of premeditated murder or another capital crime will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

"I would be willing to go to Raleigh for four or five days or a week, without pay," to reinstate the death penalty, McDuffie said. "I wouldn't feel right about costing the state money to do a special session."

BLOOD BROTHERS

We're always encountering the heredity versus environment controversy . . . even when we think about brothers. Is blood primarily responsible for the bond of comradery and affection pictured here?

Or did the influence of parents and the atmosphere of their home largely inspire this relationship?

History suggests the answer in man's religious growth: it was when he came to know God as his Father that he began to think of other men as his Brothers.

The beliefs that draw families to church on Sunday inspire the dimensions of brotherhood every day.

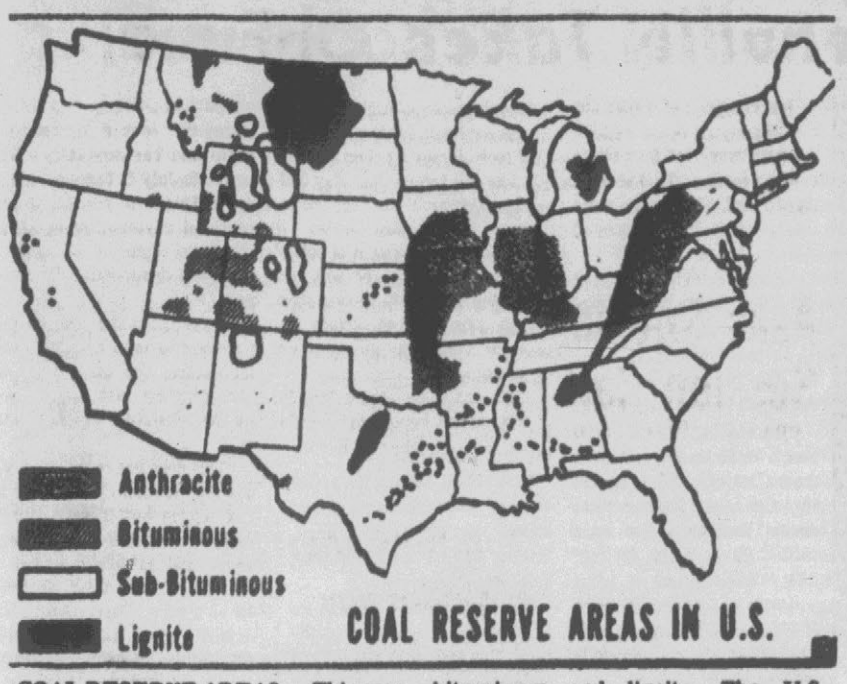
Little Done With Most Abundant Fuel Resources



COAL RESERVE AREAS — This map locates the various coal reserves of anthracite, bituminous, sub-bituminous and lignite. The U.S. estimated reserves could last 300 years. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By JOHN BRONSON
Associated Press Writer

Coal was supposed to be America's answer to the energy crisis. But three years after the Arab oil embargo, little has been done to take advantage of the nation's most abundant fuel.

An estimated 18.6 per cent of the U.S. energy needs will be met by coal this year. That's only a 1 per cent increase since the embargo.

With those statistics in mind, many experts predict that the drive to wean the nation from foreign oil will flop unless the government forges a clear energy policy that encourages more use of coal.

"Our political leadership has done absolutely nothing," said Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association. "There's been rhetoric and energy scenarios, and we have established a vast new bureaucracy of incompetents to worry about the problem.

"But we are in worse shape today than before the oil cutoff."

The figures bear him out. In March, the United States imported more oil than it produced for the first time in its history. The American Petroleum Institute says the nation now imports 42 per cent of its oil. Before the embargo, it was 32 per cent.

The United States has an estimated coal reserve that could last 300 years. For that reason, coal is looked on as the best way to avoid the fluctuations of the world oil market by substituting it for oil and natural gas wherever possible.

Besides its traditional use as a fuel for making electricity, coal can also be converted into synthetic natural gas and gasoline.

The main area for expansion right now is in the conventional uses of coal. And coal is cheaper to burn than oil. The contract price per BTU — British Thermal Unit, a standard energy measurement — for oil in January was about $1.96 versus 78 cents for the same amount of energy from coal, the Federal Power Commission says.

So why aren't we using more coal? We planned to. At the height of the embargo, when about 590 million tons of coal was being mined, then President Richard M. Nixon called for a tripling of production by 1985.

But forecasters no longer dream of reaching that goal. The latest report by the Federal Energy Administration calls for output to top one billion tons by 1985. While recent production has increased — 640 million tons was mined in 1975 and this year's estimate is 664 million tons — some experts still see the goal as too high.

"If we exerted a superhuman effort and if we removed all the roadblocks and obstacles to developing all the new coal mines which we need, we would probably still fall short of this forecast," said Gerald Gambs, vice president of the engineering firm of Ford, Bacon & Davis.

"Since I see no hope that anyone in Washington either understands the problem or in fact seems to care, I believe it will be impossible," he added.

What rankles the industry the most is what it sees as the lack of direction at the federal level. At the same time that ambitious production goals are set, coal producers say obstacles are also placed in their path. The worst, they say, involve the environment.

Amendments to the Clean Air Act that took effect last year set stiff limits for the emission of sulfur dioxide. The act has, in effect, outlawed the burning of virtually all coal mined east of the Mississippi River.

"So far the standards have not been strictly enforced and variances have been granted," said Ralph Bailey, chairman of second-ranked Consolidation Coal Co.

President Ford agrees with the energy industry and has asked Congress to ease the law so that more high-sulfur coal can be burned. But the Senate has responded with a bill that will actually tighten the restrictions.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency insists that the technology exists to remove sulfur from coal when it is burned. The devices are called scrubbers and they literally wash out sulfur dioxide from stack gases at electric generating plants.

Many utilities say the scrubbers are unreliable, and others are hesitant to install because they don't know if further changes in the law will make the equipment obsolete.

"We don't know from one day to the next, if we'll be able to burn the coal," said Henry Brown, of the Keystone Bituminous Coal Association.

Scrubbers are also expensive. For instance, one-third of the $1.3 billion price tag for the Bruce Mansfield power station at Shippingport, Pa., went for pollution controls, including scrubbers.

Tackling that problem has created another. Once the plant is at full capacity, nearly three million tons of a toothpaste-like sludge will ooze out of the scrubber each year. The utilities involved at Bruce Mansfield have to dump the waste behind the largest earthen dam in the eastern United States.

The American Electric Power system — AEP — one of the nation's largest utility combines, refuses to use scrubbers. Instead, it has built smokestacks that sometimes tower more than 1,000 feet over its plants to disperse sulfur emissions high into the air.

The company also mixes low-sulfur coal with its regular supplies in order to comply. The need to do so at the Gallipolis, Ohio, plant is a graphic example of the predicaments some utilities face.

The General James Gavin plant lies in the heart of the Ohio-West Virginia coal region. Since that coal contains too much sulfur to be burned by itself, AEP ships in low-sulfur coal from the West.

Thus, there is the spectacle of barges hauling coal from Wyoming and Utah up the Ohio River passing barges loaded with local coal headed downstream.

Western coal, most of which is low in sulfur, would make the use of scrubbers unnecessary in many cases. The area between Montana and Arizona has nearly half of the nation's known coal reserves.

Since most of that coal lies just below the surface and in seams up to 100 feet thick, the easiest and cheapest way to recover it is through strip mining.

But memories of stripscarred land back East and fear of unchecked development in the West has led to a number of environmental actions that have stymied production.

One prominent casualty has been the gigantic Kaiparowits power plant project in Utah, abandoned in April because backers didn't want to fight regulatory delays and environmental lawsuits.

Their opponents, eager to halt what they see as the rape of the scenic West, hailed the decision as a victory. "We don't want the Mountain States to become the boiler room of the nation," said one Montana official.

President Ford has vetoed two attempts to establish national strip mine laws, but it appears Congress will bring the measure up again. Coal operators oppose the move, arguing that state regulations are enough.

"The people who are talking about regulating strip mining on the federal level are talking about no mining at all. They simply want to prohibit it," said Howard Frey, executive vice president for Westmoreland Coal Co.

Environmental hurdles are not the only ones the coal industry faces.

Productivity has nosedived in the past six years from a peak of 19.90 tons per man-day in 1969 to 15.15 tons last year.

Part of the drop is due to tough federal safety regulations that took effect in 1970, but high absenteeism and wildcat strikes by miners have also taken their toll.

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller succeeded n negotiating a generous contract for miners in 1974 — they average $50 a day not counting overtime — but he has had trouble controlling the membership.

The union's International Executive Board recently suspended two West Virginia miners who led a series of wildcat strikes, and operators hope that relatively rare move is an indication that the UMW will exert firmer control in the future.

Any new growth by the coal industry will also require huge amounts of capital, estimated as high as $25 billion.

Says Consol's Bailey: "All of the growth will have to come from new mines, produced by equipment that doesn't exist today, operated by miners who have not yet been hired or trained and transported in rail cars that haven't been built running over rail lines ... too dilapidated to be safe or efficient."

Mangione Listens As He Conducts Musicians

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You can see Chuck Mangione listen to the music as he conducts. He bounces.

His flat-brimmed hat crowns his shoulder-length hair. His unflappable leather jacket matches his leather pants. His flugelhorn dangles from his wrist as he takes a 17-piece orchestra through the samba-like beats of "Bellavia" from his latest album.

His hands swirl, painting a picture perhaps, pinpointing a solo for the reed player. Then Mangione fits the funny looking flugelhorn to his lips and puffs of air magically change to poignant and melodic sounds.

"It's very hard for me to shut off music," he says. "I can be playing tennis or I can be with my family, but I can't shut off music."

When Mangione was 13 years old, he sat through jam sessions with Dizzy Gillespie, Art Blakey, Ron Carter, Junior Mance and other jazz musicians playing his trumpet in his parents' Rochester, N.Y., home.

The Mangiones didn't know any of these musicians before they sat down for pasta and jazz. It's just that Chuck's father had chutzpah.

"My father would walk into a club with my brother and I and say, 'Hi. I'm Mr. Mangione and these are my kids. They play too,'" he said. "We had a grocery store and it was attached to the house. So our home became the center of everything. Musicians were always invited over to eat and to play."

It was a valuable musical education, the musician-composer-arranger recalled recently during a concert tour at New York's Bottom Line. It permitted him to learn the business at an early age.

From those impromptu gatherings at home to his more formalized training in the classics at the Eastman School of Music, Mangione has grown to produce one of the newest sounds in jazz today. It is a lyrical and melodic style that seems to have captured a wide range, especially the music world's middle line — those people who were weaned on Elvis Presley and who matured with the Beatles.

"It's been a thrill in the 1970s to be making music that I believe in and that has a growing, expanding audience that doesn't just take the music and say it's nice," he said. "Until you play your music for the people and they react to it, the music doesn't really exist."

Now 35 and the father of two, Mangione plays keyboards and the flugelhorn, a mellow cousin of the cornet. He also composes and arranges for quartets and entire symphony orchestras.

In fact, his first album, "Friends and Love," was made during a performance in 1970 with the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra. A later album, "Land of Make Believe," was recorded with the Hamilton, Ontario, Philharmonic.

USDA Peanut Ruling Reversal Is Announced

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has reversed an earlier decision that threatened to put peanuts grown in North Carolina and Virginia at an economic disadvantage to peanuts produced in other areas.

The USDA action reinstates the price support differentials for various type peanuts at 1975 levels. Peanut price supports are set at different levels depending upon the variety of peanuts.

Earlier this year the USDA announced that the differential between Virginia-Carolina peanuts and types produced in other areas would be increased.

"If this action had remained in effect," stated Jones, "manufacturers would have shifted their purchases to peanuts grown in Georgia and Alabama. This would have seriously curtailed the market for Virginia-Carolina peanuts, hurting producers in our area.

"The federal government would have had to buy many Virginian-Carolina peanuts through the Commodity Credit Corporation, increasing the cost to taxpayers.

"I am grateful that our efforts were finally successful," continued Jones. "It took many weeks of negotiations with USDA officials, but finally the administrators saw that their proposed action was based on erroneous assumptions.

"With the 1975 differential back in effect," Jones concluded, "peanut growers and shellers in eastern North Carolina can look forward to a continuation of a strong market for their varieties of peanuts."

Military's Education Role Cited By Jenkins

MAXWELL AFB, Ala. — Education is "big business" in the military and educational programs offered in the Air Force are paying "great dividends," a lending Southern educator said today.

Education, both specialized and general, is a requisite for preparedness, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C., told the 128 member graduating class of the Air Force's Academic Instructor Course here. He stressed the importance of teaching and personal satisfaction derived from engaging in educational professions.

Dr. Jenkins, himself a World WAR II Marine officer, noted that the university he heads as chief administrator has had an Air Force ROTC program for many years.

"We have been associated with your products for almost 30 years through our ROTC program," Dr. Jenkins said. "The professors you send us measure up well and are highly regarded in every respect." Ninety nine of the 128 graduates will go on ROTC duty. Four will go to the Air Force Academy and most of the rest will teach at Air University here. The graduates included 114 officers, two airmen, one civilian and 11 from allied foreign nations, four of them from Iran.

Dr. Jenkins' commencement address was at the invitation of Co. C. R. Carlson, Commandant of the Academic Instructor and Allied Officer School of the Air University.

Officials Seek LateCompromise

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Olympic officials strove for a last-minute compromise agreement with the Canadian government today as Taiwan's Olympics team, center of a political controversy, headed for Montreal.

A group of 36 members of the Taiwan Olympic team, including approximately 20 athletes, arrived in Los Angeles Thursday night. After a two-hour stopover' the group took off for Chicago, the second leg on its journey to Montreal, where the delegation was supposed to arrive later today.

Lawrence S. Ting, chief of Taiwan's Olympic mission, said during the stop in Los Angeles that he was hopeful the Canadian government would abide by IOC regulations.

"In 1936, Hitler was trying to intervene in the Olympic Games in Germany," Ting said. "After the IOC's strong representation, Hitler changed his mind and respected IOC rules. So I really hope the Canadian leaders will come to their senses, turn around, if they are not worse than Hitler in terms of sensibility."

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, called a hurried meeting of his tripartite commission, made up of delegates from the IOC, the international sports federations and the national Olympic committees. He had hoped to find a compromise to put to the Canadian government before the Taiwanese plane touched down.

The Olympic Games, scheduled to begin July 17, could be threatened if agreement was not reached over the Taiwanese.

Willi Daume of Germany, a vice-president of the IOC and a member of the commission, said: "I do not think there will be any move to make the athletes compete under the name of Taiwan, or Formosa. We recognize them as the Republic of China. But we shall try to find some sort of compromise."

In 1969, when Montreal bid for the Games, the Canadian government pledged free entry for all national Olympic committees recognized by the IOC. Canada now is threatening to ban the Taiwanese following diplomatic pressure by the Communist Chinese government in Peking.

Mainland China has been gathering a lot of support from the international sports federations and from Asian Olympic committees in its bid for Olympic recognition. But Peking insists that Taiwan be kicked out of the Games — and most of the 70-strong IOC stand firm against that.

Youngest May Play In Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Butch Wynegar, who would become the youngest All-Star participant if he plays, and Willie Randolph, the first rookie ever listed on an All-Star ballot, were among the 11 reserves named today to complete the 28-man American League All-Star team.

Wynegar, the Minnesota Twins' prize catcher, will be 20 years, three months, 29 days old Tuesday night, when the AL meets the National League at Philadelphia in the 47th All-Star Game.

Randolph, second baseman for the New York Yankees, already broke ground when he was listed on the ballot. He finished second to Baltimore's Bobby Grich in the fans' voting.

Boston Manager Darrell Johnson named two other Yankees, frontrunners in the AL East, to the squad — first baseman Chris Chambliss and outfielder Mickey Rivers. He also named a trio of players from Kansas City, the leader in the AL West — outfielders Hal McRae and Amos Otis and shortstop Fred Patek.

Also selected for the AL team, which has lost 12 of the last 13 midseason games, were catcher Carlton Fisk and first baseman Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Baltimore shortstop Mark Belanger and Milwaukee third baseman Don Money.

Six of the 11 reserves have been selected for the All-Star Game in the past. Patek was on the team in 1972, Money in 1974 and McRae in 1975. Otis has made the All-Star team four times, Fisk has been given the honor three times and Yastrzemski will be participating in the game for the 13th time.

Johnson mainly selected runner-ups from the All-Star balloting, with the exception of McRae, who finished eighth in the outfield voting but is the AL's leading designated hitter at .338, and Wynegar, who was fifth in the balloting for catchers. But Wynegar led all write-in candidates in both leagues with 561,488 votes.

Six Yankees are on the complete AL squad, which consists of the reserves, pitchers chosen by Johnson, and eight starters selected by the fans. Yankees catcher Thurman Munson was the fans' choice, while pitchers Catfish Hunter and Sparky Lyle were two of Johnson's nine pitching picks.

The other pitchers on the squad are Mark Fydrich of Detroit, Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Rich Gossage of the Chicago White Sox, Dave LaRoche of Cleveland, Frank Tanana of California, Luis Tiant of Boston and Bill Travers of Milwaukee.

George Brett of Kansas City, the AL's top hitter, was picked by the fans as the starting third baseman. The other electees were first baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, second baseman Grich, shortstop Toby Harrah of Texas and outfielders Fred Lynn of Boston and Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub of Detroit.

Grand-Slam Home Run Leads Way As Greenville Takes Opener

LITTLEFIELD — One Greenville Babe Ruth All-Star team came away with a victory, thanks to a grand-slam home run by Mac Stokes, while the other went down to defeat, thanks to a one-hitter last night.

The 13-year-old Greenville team suffered a 15-6 setback at the hands of Washington as Victor Walls and Al Haddock combined for a one-hit effort against them. The loss, the first for Greenville, sent them into the losers bracket of the double elimination tournament. They will face Pitt County tonight. The winner meets Washington on Saturday, with a final game, if needed, on Sunday.

Stokes, with a total of six runs batted in during the game, powered Greenville's 14-15 year olds to a 13-9 win over Pitt County in their best of three series, giving Greenville a 1-0 lead. They can wrap it up tonight, and a third game, if needed, will be played Saturday.

Game time tonight in the Area Tournament will be 6 p.m. for the 13-year-olds, and 8 p.m. for the 14-15's.

Washington picked up a run in the first inning. Van Parker walked, and after two more walks loaded the bases, a passed ball let Parker in.

Greenville quickly came back to tie it up. Junior Neal opened with a walk, and three passed balls allowed him to score.

In the third, however, Washington pushed back ahead, this time scoring five runs for a 6-1 lead. Walls singled and Steve Barners walked. Nat Rodgers slammed a triple, driving in both runners. Rodgers scored on a sacrifice fly by Keith Garrett. Tommy Glancey got it going again with a walk, and Haddock and Parker both followed with walks. Todd Cutler singled to score two runs.

In the fourth, Washington got what proved to be the winning runs, getting two more. Barnes doubled and Garrett reached on a fielder's choice. An error let Barnes score. Haddock then singled in Garrett.

Washington picked up six additionals runs in the sixth and one in the seventh. Greenville got two in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Greenville's 14-15's got the lead in the second inning, scoring a pair of runs. Calvin Parker walked and Reggie Selby also got a free pass. Both moved up on an out, and three walks, to Bobby Woronoff, Skip Topping and Ronnie Chapman brought the first two runners over.

In the third, Greenville added another run. Stokes singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Parker singled and a throwing error let Stokes socre.

Pitt County came up with its first run in the bottom of the third. Don Holloman singled and stole up. An error on the steel allowed him to come the rest of the way.

The second Pitt County run scored in the fourth. Eugene Joyner walked and moved up on a wild pitch. He stole third and scored when David Smith reached on an error.

Greenville opened the sixth with three more runs, taking a 6-2 lead. Woronoff, Topping and Joey Mattheis all walked, and a wild pitch scored Woronoff. Stokes then doubled to right, driving in both runners.

In the bottom of the inning, however, Pitt County rallied for seven runs, taking a 9-6 lead. Wayne Newton was hit by a pitch and Joyner and Smith both walked, loading them up. Tony Eason walked, forcing in Newton. Ed Coley singled to center, driving in Joyner and Smith, and Don Holloman's sacrifice fly brought in Eason. Coley scored on an error on the play.

Arnold kept it going with a walk, and after stealing second, he scored on Phillip Gordon's hit. Gordon came around on a hit by Curtis Spencer and an out by Newton.

But Greenville then rallied for seven of its own in the top of the seventh. Will Sanderson reached on an error and Selby and Peter Pace both walked, loading them up. Topping doubled in Sanderson and Selby, and Chapman walked. Mattheis reached on an infield hit, scoring Pace, and that loaded the bases for Stokes, who followed with his grand-slam, powering Greenville into the 13-9 edge it needed.

Farmville, Clifton In Senior Babe Ruth Wins

Farmville and Bill Clifton Insurance picked up victories in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night as league play neared completion.

Farmville topped University Kiwanis, 9-3, while Clifton took a 9-2 win over Taff Office Equipment.

In the opener, Farmville pushed over two runs in the opening inning. Scott Evans singled and moved up on an out. David Cochran reached on an error and stole second. A passed ball scored Evans, and another brought Cochran over for a 2-0 lead.

The Kiwanis got a run in the second. Mark Conway was hit by a pitch and stole second. Worth Albea singled and a hit by Joey Downing brought in Conway.

Farmville broke it open in the fourth with seven runs, taking a 9-1 lead. Jerry Rackley walked and moved up on a single by George Gay. A balk moved both up, and Joey Moore reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Rackley. Edward Hines reached on an error, scoring Gay, and Evans walked to load the bases. Clarke May was hit by a pitch, scoring Moore, and Cochran reached on an error, letting Hines in. Ted Dunn also reached on an error, scoring Evans. May and Cochran both scored on Neil Gordon's single.

The Kiwanis got two more, in the sixth. Mike Baker singled and Downing slapped a home run.

Downing led the Kiwanis hitting with three, and was the game's only player with more than one.

In the second game, Clifton pushed ahead in the first with two runs. Curtis Clemons tripled and scored when Clifton Clemons grounded out. Donnie Cox doubled, stole third and scored on Mile Phillips' hit.

In the fifth, Clifton added three more. Curtis Clemons reached on an error and Clifton Clemons singled. Cox got a hit to drive in one run, and when Kevin Adams reached on an error, the other two crossed.

The players will be flighted and given starting times for Sunday's final round following the completion of Saturday's round.

The Greenville junior boys came out on top in a match against the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club's juniors recently.

Greenville's low six scorers finished the match with a 535 total, as compared to a 562 for Brook Valley. The top three finishers for Greenville were Jack Mann 77, Greg House 79 and Don White 80.

In a Ladies Day event, Laura Brody took low gross honors. Julia Painter won low net, followed by Alice Hudson with second low net.

Jones Picks Up 16th Victory As Cubs Fall; Wants All-Star Start

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Randy Jones has the drop on National League batters.

"His sinker falls four to eight inches," says San Diego pitching coach Roger Craig. "It's unlike anyone's I've ever seen in baseball."

Jones' bag of pitching tricks is so complete that even his sinkers have different character. Usually, all you do is wind up beating the ball into the dirt — which is what the Cubs did against the ultra-successful San Diego left-hander Thursday while losing 6-3.

Jones' sinker ball was in such rare form against the Cubs that the Padres only made five outfield putouts all day.

Not incidentally, San Diego's bread-winner captured his 16th victory of the season — a National League record before All-Star competition. He thinks the accomplishment has earned him a start in the inter-league competition next Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

"I think 16 wins is enough work for half a season," Jones said after fashioning his seven-hitter against the Cubs. "Now I'd like to start the All-Star game."

In the other National League games Thursday night, the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 and the Houston Astros tripped the Montreal Expos 7-6. In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles outscored the Oakland A's 9-6; the Boston Red Sox turned back the Minnesota Twins 8-4; the New York Yankees blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 5-4 in 13 innings.

Thursday's victory was the fourth straight for Jones and the 11th in his last 12 decisions. He struck out six batters and walked two. He was aided by two balks and one wild pitch by Chicago pitchers, who contributed to two San Diego runs.

The Padres, snapping a three-game losing streak, jumped on Chicago starter Bill Bonham, 6-7, in the third inning, clustering five singles for four runs and ending a scoreless string by Chicago pitchers at 31 innings.

Mets 5, Braves 2

Wayne Garrett ripped a two-run single, capping a four-run fifth inning rally as New York downed Atlanta behind Tom Seaver's six-hitter. Seaver and Atlanta rookie right-hander Frank LaCorte were locked in a scoreless duel after four innings before the Mets exploded, aided by LaCorte's costly throwing error.

Astros 7, Expos 6

Jose Cruz' bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning brought home Enos Cabell with the winning run as Houston edged Montreal. Cruz' hit followed a single by Cabell and intentional walks to Bob Watson and Leon Roberts.

Orioles 9, A's 6

Ken Singleton drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a sacrifice fly as Baltimore defeated Oakland. Wayne Garland won his 10th game against only one loss, although he needed relief help from Dyer Miller in the seventh inning.

Red Sox 8, Twins 4

Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs with his 15th homer and a single and Carlton Fisk broke out of a slump with three hits, powering Boston over Minnesota. Yastrzemski singled across a run in the first and then belted a two-run homer into the Boston bullpen in the third. Yastrzemski hit only 14 homers all last season.

Yankees 6, White Sox 0

A three-run homer by Roy White backed the seven-hit pitching of Ken Holtzman and gave New York its victory over Chicago. The victory was the second for Holtzman since he was acquired from Baltimore, raising his season's record to 76 and giving the Yankees their seventh straight victory over Chicago. White Sox starter Rich Gossage, 5-7, took the defeat.

Brewers 5, Rangers 4

Gorman Thomas' two-run double capped a three-run 13th-inning rally, lifting Milwaukee over Texas. After the Rangers had taken a 4-2 lead in the top of the 13th on a pinch-hit RBI single by Gene Clines and Jim Sundberg's squeeze bunt, the Brewers won it in their half of the inning on an RBI bunt single by Bill Sharp and Thomas' hit over left fielder Tom Grieve's head.

Four Will Not Be Reclassified

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)— The National Collegiate Athletic Association has agreed not to downgrade Furman, The Citadel, Appalachian State and Marshall says Joe McMullen, Marshall athletic director. The four Southern Conference schools will remain in Division 1, rather than be moved to the new Division 1A.

McMullen says he has been assured of this by the Tom Hanson, assistant director of the NCAA.

The proposed reclassification of the four schools had caused Virginia Military Institute and East Carolina to announce they were leaving the conference. But the change of mind by the NCAA may keep VMI and ECU in the league, McMullen said.

Officials at East Carolina University emphatically denied that there would be any change in their position as to withdrawing from the conference.

Col. Dick Blake, administrative assistant to chancellor Leo Jenkins, said that he could foresee "no circumstances that would make us reverse out stand to withdraw from the Southern Conference next June."

"Our position is to proceed with the mandate of our board of trustees to seek a higher plane of competition. What the NCAA might do in respect to reclassifying other members of the Southern Conference would in no way affect our decision."

East Carolina, along with Richmond and William & Mary, have joined with several other schools, including South Carolina, Florida State and Southern Mississippi, in exploratory talks about forming a new league.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Four Phillies Added To List

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cincinnati's Big Red Machine and Philadelphia's powerpacked Phillies placed a combined 12 players on the National League All-Star team. Surprise — they're all hitters.

The Phillies, way out in front in the NL East, will have five players competing in front of their home fans at Veterans Stadium Tuesday night for the 47th All-Star Game. The Reds, leaders in the NL West, added two reserves to the five Cincinnati starters the fans had chosen earlier.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson Thursday picked 11 reserves, including four Phillies, to fill his NL roster to 28 players. The four Phillies were catcher Bob Boone, second baseman Dave Cash, shortstop Larry Bowa and third baseman Mike Schmidt. Earlier, the fans had selected Philadelphia outfielder Greg Luzinski as an All-Star starter.

Anderson also named two of his own players, outfielder Ken Griffey and first baseman Tony Perez. With the fans' previous selections of Cincinnati's three other infielders, second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion and third baseman Pete Rose, the NL could field an all-Cincinnati infield sometime in the game. The fans also named Cincinnati outfielder George Foster to the starting lineup.

The other reserves chosen by Anderson were third baseman Ron Cey and shortstop Bill Russell of Los Angeles, catcher Steve Swisher of the Chicago Cubs and outfielders Cesar Cedeno of Houston, Al Oliver of Pittsburgh and Bake McBride of St. Louis.

Anderson agreed with the fans' overall balloting, choosing the runners-up in the voting at each position. At shortstop, Bowa, the second choice, and Russell, the third pick, were both named to the squad. Boone was the second leading vote-getter at catcher, while Swisher, the Cubs' mandatory one representative on the squad, was the seventh choice in the fans' balloting.

In the outfield voting, McBride, hitting .342, and Griffey, batting .334, were the top runners-up. Oliver finished ninth in the balloting but leads the major leagues in hitting with a .363 average. Anderson passed over Lou Brock of St. Louis, Rick Monday of Chicago and Garry Maddox of Philadelphia to get to Oliver, the one Pittsburgh representative on the team.

Anderson didn't name any Cincinnati or Philadelphia pitchers for his eight-man pitching staff. The NL pitchers selected were Randy Jones of San Diego, who won his 16th game Thursday, Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Rick Rhoden of Los Angeles, Woodie Fryman of Montreal, John Montefusco of San Francisco, Ken Forsch of Houston and Andy Messersmith of Atlanta. Because of an injury, Messersmith was replaced by Dick Ruthven of Atlanta.

The NL starters will be Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, Morgan, Concepcion, Rose, outfielders Foster, Luzinski and Dave Kingman of the Mets.

Zoeller In Quad Lead

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Unheralded Fuzzy Zoeller, a 24-year-old pro who has won less than $8,000 on the golf tour this year, carded eight consecutive birdies on the back nine en route to a course-record 63 and held a one-stroke lead over veteran George Archer after the first round of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open started Friday.

Zoeller, who turned pro in 1974, tied a tour record with his string of eight birdies on the back nine of the 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course. Bob Goalby set ths mark in the 1961 St. Petersburg Open.

Bunched at 65 were Mike McCulpough, Gene Frank, Carlton White and Bob Dickson. Joe Porter, Gary McCord and Rex Caldwell were at 66.

Defending champion Roger Maltbie, seventh on the Professional Golfers Association money chart this year with $115,56, came in at two-under par 69—a score posted by 19 other players. The 1974 Quad Cities titlist, Dave Stockton, was among nine ppayers at 68.

Top Golfers Have Troubles

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Although no longer a surprise, the world's best golfers are finding that strange things can happen when they hit a golf ball in Britain.

The type of golf being seen at Royal Birkdale in the 105th British Open this week is not the kind seen in the United States.

The thick, bushy rough that guards every fairway, the deep bunkers, the weird bounces off humpy terrain and the unpredictable breezes make every swing an adventure. Nothing is routine.

It has provided quite a bit of devilish entertainment for record crowds of British fans . . . and a fairway full of frustration for the golfers.

Only Severiano Ballesteros, a 19-year-old Spaniard, who is one of the top players in Europe, managed to escape most of the pitfalls with a second 69 Thursday for a 138 total and a two-stroke lead over American Johnny Miller after two rounds. Ballesteros did it by hitting the ball to the center of the fairways, then directly to the green.

Just seven other golfers managed to break the two-round par of 144 on the 7,001-yard course that softened to lower scores slightly on the second day as the field of 155 was cut to 82 with a score of 152 the cutoff.

American Hubie Green managed a 142 and Ray Floyd, another American, with a 67, was in at 143. But Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Jerry Pate and Tom Kite could only match par 144. Tom Weiskopf had a 145, Hale Irwin 146 and Arnold Palmer and Tom Watson 147. Carl Higgins, a little-known assistant club pro from Dallas, also had a 67 for 144.

"British golf is just that way," said Nicklaus. "You feel you've played pretty well but you always give away four-five shots."

"It's certainly a good spectator course," said Miller, who had his share of unusual shots.

He landed one shot in what he described as a "kind of blackberry patch" and, on another occasion, hit a drive into rough "two feet high."

"I could have stayed in there all day...I hit it as hard as I could, dead solid and it went 20 yards. Then I hit a one iron and almost holed it, and then sank the putt. It was maybe the best birdie I've ever had."

Buck's Back On Top

First place continued to be too hot to handle in the Junior Putters League last night as Jerry's Sweet Shoppe got knocked out of the lead.

Jerry's, which had won seven in a row to take over first on Tuesday, bowed last night to Smith-Waldrop, 18½ to 17½. Wally Norris and Mark Grossnickle led Smith-Waldrop with six points each. Joel Mauger and Gordon Clark each had 4½ for Jerry's.

Buck's Gulf downed Jefferson Standard, 17½ to 12½. Ryner Bullock led Buck's with six, while Irving Bennett had 5½. Mark Barner had five and Karen Green, 4½, for Jefferson Standard.

In the other match J. H. Hudson won its fifth in the last six matches with a 20½ to 15½ upset of Coca-Cola. Gray Finnegan led Hudson with six, while Hayes Finnegan had 5½ for Coke.

Buck's is back in first with a 7-3-1 record, while Jerry's is second at 7-4. Coke is third at 6-4-1, followed by Hudson at 5-6, Smith-Waldrop at 4-7, and Jefferson Standard at 3-8.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning can find you making a mistake in judgment or having some difficulty in motion so use more than average care. The afternoon and evening give you the chance to be very articulate in stating your views. It is also a good time to put interesting new plans into effect.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Take care of responsibilities early and then look into new projects. Run errand for mate before you start out on some little trip.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Take care of that chore you promised to do for a partner and then you can go out with the one you love. Be alert to danger during the daytime. The evening is fine for handling some work you have to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you get that important work done before you go out for pleasures with congenials. Take time to improve your health, also.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Pleasure plans could turn out badly so be sure to handle those tasks that need to be done. Make friends for advancement. Put that creative idea to work. Invite a friend to your home in the evening.

Not Like Usual Comedy Series

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's so funny about a comedy where nobody tells jokes or gets into zany situations? Plenty, if it's "Barney Miller."

The situations in ABC's "Barney Miller" are about as mundane as you can get. The characters are so ordinary you wouldn't look at them twice on the street. You'd swear that Jack Webb could take this show and easily turn it into a low-key police drama.

But "Barney Miller" is funny because it is on the cutting edge of reality. It milks laughs from anguish.

"What we have done is take fundamentally dramatic situations and examine them," executive producer Danny Arnold said.

"Reality is the key. The characters and the situations are mundane. But on closer examination you find the satirical twist is the closeness to reality. Making a dramatic situation just slightly larger than life produces the comedy.

"The safety valve that allows us to live through tragedy and pain is the ability to hold it up and examine it. Farce and sketch comedy are so much larger than reality. You can laugh at it because you're so removed from it. But in satire you see something of yourself."

Satire, as the saying goes, is what closes on Thursday. That nearly happened here. It took the show a long time to catch on, but now it is a solid hit.

Arnold, a bearish man with the animated face of a standup comic, created the show with Theodore Flicker from a blend of two separate police comedies. He saw it as the flip side of "Detective Story," approaching police work the way "M-A-S-H." approaches war.

"Barney Miller" is an ensemble of disparate characters reacting individually in a similar situation, as was "Detective Story." The key word for both is survival.

Arnold believes that people today are more interested in looking at themselves than in escape.

"So many things are threatening people today they want to examine themselves," he said. "There were so many things you used to be able to believe in. All those dreams that allowed you to think of other things no longer exist. People are more dependent on themselves. Today you appeal to people on the most fundamental, emotional level.

"People are threatened by everything — the air they breathe, terrorists — these are paranoid times. People want to be told that even in the worst circumstances something is funny. People want to know that no matter how bad things get there is something to laugh at and somewhere there is a way out."

Strange things have been known to happen in top-level play. This deal is from a U.S. vs. Brazil qualifying match in the recent World Team Championships, held in Monte Carlo. The U.S. went on to win the Bermuda Bowl, while Brazil was the surprise winner of the World Team Olympiad.

If you look at the four hands you will discover a distinct pattern in the holdings—the spot cards in the various suits all follow the same descending pattern. That is the hallmark of a new deck which has not been shuffled, but simply cut and dealt, and that is indeed what happened here!

However, this board produced two vastly different auctions in the U.S. vs. Brazil match. When the Americans held the North-South cards, the board was passed out; yet when the Brazilians were North-South, they bid to game on the auction shown! True, both North and South took rather aggressive action, and the final contract was a heavy favorite to fail, but the Brazilian declarer justified the bidding by making his game.

Declarer did receive a bit of help from the defenders when West elected to lead a diamond, which was won by declarer's queen. The heart ace was cashed and a heart to the queen lost to the king. The diamond return went to the ace and a heart ruff set up the suit.

Using a diamond ruff as an entry to the board, declarer ran the jack of trumps to West's ace. West now tried the jack of clubs, solving declarer's problem in that suit. The king lost to the ace, and the club return was won by dummy's ten. A repeat spade finesse allowed declarer to pick up the outstanding trumps, and he claimed ten tricks.

So Brazil scored 420 points for making game in one room while the hand was passed out in the other, allowing the Brazilians to win 9 International Match Points on the deal.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, responding to news of a smaller-than-expected rise in wholesale prices last month.

Trading was moderately active.

The 11:30 a.m. DowJones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 7.04 at 999.02. Gainers outpaced losers by about a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening the government reported a .4 per cent rise in its wholesale price index for June.

That represented a slight increase from the .3 per cent rise recorded for May. But it was smaller than most Wall Streeters had been expecting.

For additional encouragement, short term interest rates continued their recent decline in the money markets amid indications that the Federal Reserve had relaxed its credit policy a little.

Federal National Mortgage was the most active NYSE issue, down ⅛ at 14¾. A 110,000-share block traded at that price.

Phillips Petroleum, which said preliminary tests of a North Sea well were "very encouraging", climbed 1⅛ to 63.

General Electric added ¼ to 58 in active trading. Late Thursday the company reported substantially higher second quarter earnings.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index gained .23 to 55.79 in the first hour.

AT the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .32 at 106.21.

Reagan Seeks Greener Colo. Pastures

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for potentially greener pastures in Colorado today after suffering his worst setback in several weeks in his campaign for the Republican nomination for president.

President Ford gained 24 delegates Thursday and Reagan picked up three in delegate elections in North Dakota and commitments from previously uncommitted delegates in six other states and territories.

That gave Ford 1,028 of the 1,130 delegates needed for the Republican nomination. Reagan, who had been steadily gaining in recent weeks, trails with 979 in The Associated Press' survey of GOP delegates.

And Reagan, while still predicting a first-ballot victory next month in Kansas City, devoted a significant portion of his day Thursday to trying to head off second-ballot slippage if the convention gets to that point.

He held several private meetings with about a dozen Indiana delegates — who are legally bound to him only on the first ballot — to solidify their support.

The former California governor planned to meet today with state convention delegates in Colorado. The state meeting was scheduled to elect 25 national convention delegates today and Saturday.

Jim Lake, Reagan's press secretary, said he hoped to win at least 19 of those delegates, which would balance some of Thursday's losses.

Reagan, who spent most of Thursday courting delegates from Illinois and Missouri, as well as those from Indiana, in a marathon series of private meetings at a Chicago hotel, did not comment on the North Dakota loss.

A number of the delegates pledging themselves to Ford Thursday had been expected by both campaigns to go that way. But North Dakota, where Reagan campaigned in person, was a setback, although Lake claimed the opposite.

Reagan had said he hoped for a "rough split," and various aides had predicted winning six to nine of the North Dakota delegates. In voting Thursday, 18 legally uncommitted delegates were elected — 10 who declared for Ford, three for Reagan and five uncommitted.

After Colorado picks its delegates, there will be 55 still to be named, and Ford is the favorite to gain more ground.

City Council. . .

manpower was not available to tie up for most of a day disposing of the animals.

Council member Mrs. Mildred McGrath observed that she would rather have the animal control personnel spend half a day in administering the disposal program than sitting in a court room for half a day.

She said that the $500 over a two-year period would be saved in the overall cost of drugs. She offered a motion to utilize the individual chambers.

Councilman Frank Fuller objected to the matter being brought before the Council and pointed out that he felt the Council's function was to set policy and not get into operation. He said the city manager was being bypassed and said the matter should be in his hands.

On the motion to adopt the carbon monoxide method, Mrs. McGrath and Councilman Joe Taft Jr. voted in favor while Fuller and Councilman Clarence Gray opposed the measure. Cox broke the tie in favor of the motion.

Fuller emphasized that he was not voting against the method of disposal being changed but said he was voting against the motion because "I feel this is an administrative matter."

At the conclusion of the meeting, Warren brought the matter up again and Council members discussed the idea of utilizing partitioned chambers that would hold more than one dog at a time. No further action was taken since the motion had already been adopted earlier to go with the individual units.

City Manager Jim Caldwell said that he was requesting guidance as to the problem and would handle further matters of that nature.

It was mentioned that by partitioning the chambers, the dogs would, in effect, be disposed of individually.

In another matter that generated a lengthy discussion, the Council adopted an ordinance amending the section of the City Code dealing with cemeteries to provide for a revised schedule of fees to be charged for lots in city-owned and operated cemeteries.

Under the new schedule, single grave lots in Greenwood Cemetery would cost $125 for city residents and $250 for non-residents while four-grave lots would cost $500 for city residents and $1,000 for non-residents. A $1,000 cost for eight grave lots was set for residents while $2,000 was adopted for non-residents.

In Brownhill Cemetery, the schedule of fees would include: single grave lot, $100 for residents, $200 for non-residents; four-grave lot, $400 and $800; and eight-grave lot, $800 and $1,600.

In addition, the amendment calls for a $5 fee for each permanent marker or monument permit issued in order to defray the cost of paperwork involved in the program.

Local mortician Donovan Phillips said that he feels the people of Greenville should have some input since the price increase affects every family. Phillips said that there is much concern about the condition of Brownhill Cemetery and said that a uniform code should be adopted to apply to both city cemeteries to assure equal treatment.

Phillips also asked that the possibility of appointing a cemetery commission, that would oversee the operation of the city facilities, be considered.

Cox said that the Council would meet with Phillips and other members of his industry here to discuss the matter.

The schedule of rates was adopted with Gray voting against the measure.

Developer Phil Carroll requested that a request for rezoning some 46 acres on the west side of US 264 Bypass north of 14th Street be withdrawn from consideration by the Council and he asked that a revised request be placed on next month's agenda for consideration.

Carroll said that several meetings have been held with residents in the neighborhood surrounding the property in question and a new plan has been drawn up for utilization of the property. The matter has been a subject of contention for years as area property owners objected to the rezoning.

The Council agreed to advertise the revised request for the Aug. 5 Council meeting and instructed the Planning & Zoning Commission to consider the revised plan at its meeting later this month.

An ordinance granting a cable television franchise to Greenville Cable TV Inc. was read and, according to law, placed on the agenda for a second reading on Aug. 5. The ordinance grants a franchise to construct, maintain and operate a cable television system in the city.

Council members discussed a proposed ordinance amending the city charter to implement four-year staggered terms for members of the Council. Although a public hearing was held on the proposed ordinance, the board agreed not to take any action on the matter until the August meeting.

Under the proposal, the top three persons in the municipal voting for the Council would be elected to four year terms and the next three would receive two year terms. On the next election in two years, three councilmen would be selected for four year terms to stagger the process. The mayor would continue to be elected for two-year terms.

Other Council action included:

—Adoption of a resolution endorsing the Pitt County Civil Preparedness Ordinance;

—Adoption of a resolution of commendation and appreciation to the Greenville Jaycees for the club's efforts in promoting the July 4th celebrations;

—Approval of application for a taxicab operator's permit by George Mercer Jr. and denial of application by James A. Little;

—Waiver of privilege license requirements for the Jaycees' July 4th activities and refund of license fee to the chapter;

—Acceptance of bids receive on June 26 on surplus city equipment; and, acceptance of bids received on July 8 for a line printer for the city's mini-computer.

The Council reappointed James T. Little Jr. to a second four-year term on the Pitt County-City of Greenville Airport Authroity.

Reappointments were also made for Ms. Sarah Ashton and Ms. Linda Hix for three-year terms on the Public Transportation Commission while Mrs. Thelma Jones was named to the commission for her first three-year term. John H. Taylor Jr., who completed one term this month, was not reappointed.

The three students proposed for membership on the Citizens' Bikeway Committee by the Student Government Association at East Carolina University (Greg Pingston, Larry Zicherman and Barbara Luciani) were approved by the Council.
