Triumphant Carter Waits In Wings

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter, his hand freed by political strength that an incumbent president might envy, is wrapping up his vice presidential interviews as he waits triumphantly in the wings for tonight's opening of the Democratic National Convention.

The 37th Democratic National Convention, staged at Madison Square Garden, is expected to nominate Carter for the presidency Wednesday night by an overwhelming vote amid a harmony that contrasts to divisive party fights in 1968 over the Vietnam war and 1972 over party reform.

Sens. Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, meeting Carter today, are the last of seven finalists for the vice presidential nomination, all from Capitol Hill, to be interviewed.

Carter said Sunday he has three names at the top of his list but said he is keeping an open mind until the interviews are over.

The peanut farmer and former Georgia governor who dazzled the political establishment with his long-shot run to the nomination said he would wait until after his own nomination before revealing his choice of a running mate.

With 19 primary victories to his credit and The Associated Press delegate poll showing him with 1,653 votes, well over the 1,505 needed for nomination, Carter is wrapping up a campaign that is a sharp contrast to the close and bitter Republican nomination battle. A month ahead of the GOP convention, President Ford leads conservative challenger Ronald Reagan by only a handful of votes.

The vice presidential selection has emerged as the major unresolved issue at the convention in the absence of a race for the top of the ticket and the calm of a party platform so secure that it's already printed and bound and in the hands of each delegate.

Carter's personal public opinion pollster, Patrick Caddell, has concluded that no particular vice presidential prospect Carter revealed Sunday that he is taking unprecedented steps to keep that sort of thing from happening to him. He said he has requested financial and medical information from everyone on his list of possible running mates.

The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. was engaged to go over the financial data, including tax returns, Carter said, and "they have found nothing to cause me concern."

Carter said Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, one of the finalists, reported he suffers from a mild case of high blood pressure and takes medication for it.

Carter said this "is a factor but not an over-riding factor" in his decision. Later, after meeting with Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, Carter said Rodino's age, 67, also would be a factor but not an over-riding one.

Carter also has interviewed Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio in his search for a ticket-mate. Church and Stevenson round out the seven finalists.

"So far as I know, the vice president will come from one of those seven people," Carter said.

Only two or three other names are expected to be placed in nomination for the presidency, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, and possibly Ellen McCormack of New York, the antiabortion candidate.

Tonight's opening session of the convention was to be largely ceremonial, with keynote speeches by Glenn and Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. Tuesday night, the platform will be presented by a procession of Democratic political stars including Muskie, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Barring some unexpected development, Carter will be nominated on Wednesday and his running mate on Thursday, followed by Carter's acceptance speech.

Carter-Believers Line Up To Get Their Hero's Ear

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter's believers were waiting for him all over town.

Some believed before most Democrats heard of Jimmy Carter. Others needed more time and got run over by his bandwagon before jumping on it.

Sen. Frank Church, who tried to be where Carter is, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson, once a favorite-son candidate from Illinois, waited for audiences today with Carter. They are the last of seven persons Carter is interviewing before he selects his vice presidential running mate.

Some of the faithful waited in a church on a sunny Sunday, when a black Baptist minister addressed the expected nominee as "President Carter," well before the casting of an election — or nominating — ballot.

Chosen delegates waited by the hot and steamy Hudson River to share with him a southern dinner of fried chicken and beer.

Chosen contributors waited among the bubbling fountains of Rockefeller Plaza to join him in a dinner of salmon and shrimp and wine.

Others, by the hundreds, waited for the potluck chance of shaking his hand at his red-carpet, mid-Manhattan hotel.

Carter set aside time today to polish the speech he'll make Thursday night when the Democratic National Convention takes the step that is a foregone conclusion and nominates him for president.

On Sunday afternoon, Carter sandwiched a vice presidential interview with Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey among the hymns and hoopla of his first day in New York. He said Rodino, who became something of a Watergate hero for presiding over impeachment hearings in 1973, is personally compatible and competent to assume the presidency.

Carter earlier had similar meetings with Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine, John Glenn of Ohio, Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Henry Jackson of Washington, and had made similar comments afterward.

He made room for some more guesswork about his vice presidential choice. On the NBC program "Meet the Press," Carter said he has "maintained an open mind deliberately until after all the interviews are over." Then Sunday night, with two still to go, he said there are three names topping his list.

Carter started his Sunday with the ecumenical service in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, where six Baptist ministers prayed and preached and sang.

The Rev. Kenneth L. Folkes, of the Mt. Carmel Baptist Church in New York, said he hoped "President Carter" would remember that unemployment in big cities is substantially higher than the national average.

After church, Carter headed for a brunch for Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss at "21," another New York landmark, and from there to the NBC studios for the television interview.

After that he met with members of the Women's Caucus and said he favors equality among the sexes but doesn't want to force quotas of women convention delegates.

Just before dusk he was back at Rockefeller Center for the more elegant of the feedings of the faithful.

Body Recovered

Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad this morning recovered the body of Marvin Nobles, 19 of Route 1 Greenville, who drowned in a pond east of the city yesterday afternoon.

The fatal incident was reported at 5:44 p.m. and the hunt for Nobles continued — using metal drags and SCUBA divers — until darkness, to no avail.

Nobles had been swimming in a sand-pit pond — known locally as May's Beach — off rural road 1534, when friends said he disappeared.

Rescue squad workers, who resumed the search this morning, recovered the body about 10:25.

NAIL BITING

I wish you'd ask someone who knows how I can stop biting my nails. I just can't seem to do it on my own. J.B.

We asked a person who used to bite her nails, but doesn't at present. She asserts there's no such thing as a cured nail biter, just as there's no such thing as a cured alcoholic.

"Get some emery boards," she suggests "and stash them everywhere you might ever be—your purse, your pocket, your car, at home and at work or school. You may not think you'll have anything to file at first, but keep smoothing rough edges and you'll find you're not as prone to bite. Also, you might want to try one of the terrible-tasting preparations you can buy at the drug store to discourage nail-biting or thumb-sucking. I recommend Stopzit. It makes a nice sheen on your nails and wears off only gradually, and it tastes awful.

"If you backslide with one nail, don't let that be a signal to bite them all off. Keep your long ones trimmed just barely out to the fingertips and so there are no protruding areas to snag. You'll gain a lot of self-esteem when you have the nails that so many other people would take for granted."

Planning Grants

Five Pitt County towns are among 192 local governments receiving planning grants, according to George W. Little, secretary of the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Three of the local governments, in addition to Pitt County itself, will receive planning grants through the Department of Housing and Urban Development's 701 program. Receiving 701 federal appropriations are: Ayden, $3,180; Grifton, $3,000; Simpson, $300; and Pitt County, $3,000.

Fountain and Bethel will receive $2,820 and $3,300, respectively, from state appropriations, it was announced.

Funds for planning grants towards implementation of land use and other planning techniques come from three sources, Little said. He noted that 73 local governments will be given $367,000 from the HUD 701 program; 51 will receive $245,000 from state appropriations; and 65 coastal governments will receive $182,000 from the National Oceanographic and Aeronautics Administration.

Federal funding for HUD 701 planning grants was cut 25 per cent this year and state funding assistance remained the same.

Drowned In Sound

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 9-year-old Kinston, N.C. girl died when an 18-foot boat capsized late Sunday afternoon in Pamlico Sound near Swan Island, the Coast Guard announced today.

A Coast Guard spokesman said Claudia Smith drowned and her mother, Mrs. Gayle Smith, suffered serious injury when the boat overturned in two to four-foot waves.

As Coast Guard units sped toward the scene, a fishing boat, the "Edna Faye," rescued two men from the water. Civilian boats also rescued two others, including George Smith, father of the drowning victim.

A Coast Guard unit from the Hobucken station picked up Mrs. Smith and the body of the girl. Mrs. Smith was given resuscitation and rushed to a hospital in Bayboro, the spokesman said.

Mexico Assails Hostage Rescue

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Mexico told the United Nations today that Israel's commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago creates "precedents of incalculable danger for all civilized coexistence."

In a letter to the president of the Security Council, Mexican Ambassador Roberto de Rosenzweig Diaz denounced the Israeli action as "a flagrant violation" of the U.N. Charter and "universally accepted principles of international law."

Mexico was subjected to a tourist boycott by American Jewish organizations last winter after voting for a U.N. General Assembly resolution equating Zionism, the movement for a Jewish national homeland, with racism.

The boycott was called off in March after Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa went to Israel to explain the vote and President Luis Echeverria invited a group of American Jewish leaders to Mexico to discuss the issue. Rabasa resigned during the controversy.

The Mexican Hotel Association estimated its members had 100,000 cancellations during the boycott and lost at least $9 million.

Mexico's letter on the Ugandan rescue mission was made public as the Security Council prepared to begin hearing a parade of Third World countries calling for condemnation of Israel.

Mauritius, Benin, Guinea and Guyana were to speak in the council debate in support of Uganda's charges that Israel committed "barbaric, unprovoked and naked aggression."

The United States, trying to use the debate to focus attention on the hijacking and terrorism that caused the Israeli raid, was consulting with Israel and other allies about a resolution condemning international terrorism and establishing some sort of mechanism to deal with it.

"We have not yet reached a consensus," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Washington Saturday. He said if agreement was not reached, "we will put it forth ourselves."

The Americans were reported to have drafted a general condemnation of international terrorism and a suggestion that Israel compensate Uganda for its losses in the raid. But council sources said the United States could not get the nine votes necessary for adoption of such a resolution.

African and other Third World nations circulated a resolution condemning Israel and demanding compensation for Uganda. The Soviet Union and China were backing it, but the United States was certain to veto it if it came to a vote.

Council sources said they knew of no effort being made to bring the two sides together.

They predicted that the debate would end with the rejection of both resolutions.

Israel at the opening of the debate Friday declared that its commando action was justified because Ugandan President Idi Amin collaborated fully with the Palestinian and West German hijackers holding the hostages. But nobody was preparing a resolution to censure Amin.

A dispatch from Tel Aviv said the former Israeli military attaché in Uganda, Col. Baruch Bar-Lev, reported Amin told him in a telephone conversation Friday that he has severed relations with Arab guerrilla groups because they have caused him "nothing but trouble."

Excellent Crop For Tues. Sale

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH N.C. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco sales begin Tuesday on South Carolina and border North Carolina markets amid prospects of record prices for an excellent crop.

With federal price supports at an all-time high, the outlook is for an opening day price average of more than $90 per 100 pounds.

"I believe the average will be in the low to mid 90s," said John H. Cyrus, chief of the field crops section of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Cyrus said this year's crop is one of the best he has seen, despite some early season problems caused by cold weather.

Other agriculture leaders are equally enthusiastic about the crop, which has had an otherwise ideal growing season marked by good rains.

On opening day last year the South Carolina and border North Carolina markets sold 6.6 million pounds for an average of $84.89 per 100 pounds.

Full sales are not expected this week, Cyrus said, because of late freezes in April. He estimated that 40-50 per cent of the crop in the border area had to be plowed up and replanted.

"However, quite a few growers got by the freeze," he said.

Seven markets in North Carolina open Tuesday, Fairmont, Whiteville, Lumberton, Clarkton, Fair Bluff, Tabor City and Chadbourne. But Clarkton will not hold its first sales until Wednesday.

Two of the 11 South Carolina markets which open Tuesday will not hold sales until Wednesday. They are Dillon and Pamplico. A third, Lamar, will begin sales Thursday. The other markets are Conway, Darlington, Lake City, Hemingway, Kingstree, Loris, Mullins and Timmonsville.

The Fayetteville market plans to open July 20 along with markets in the eastern North Carolina area.

The quality of tobacco for Tuesday's opening is expected to be "slightly better" than in 1975, Cyrus said. Primings and low lugs will comprise the bulk of the offerings.

July 19th Deadline For Unregistered Voters

Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, reminded voters that the deadline to register for the Aug. 17 primary is drawing near.

Miss Register said that citizens who have not yet registered have until 5 p.m. on Monday, July 19 to get their names on the registration books.

New residents of the county who have not registered, as well as persons who have changed their names and addresses since the last election should make sure they are properly registered, she pointed out.

She explained that people who have had name or address changes need to fill out a short form that insures they are now registered in the precinct in which they live. In addition, persons who did not vote in the last general election need to check to find out if their names are still on the books. All affiliation changes must be made by the July 19 deadline.

Miss Register said that special extended registration hours are planned in order to assist voters. The Greenville office at 201 E. Second Street will remain open Thursday, July 15, and Friday, July 16, until 7 p.m., she said, in addition to regular week day hours Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Voter registration may also be made at various places in the county, including: town halls in Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Grimesland, Grifton and Winterville; building inspector's office in Farmville; at McAlvin Turner's home by appointment in Belvoir; and at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Butler by appointment in Stokes (Carolina Township).

When appointed registrars are on duty, registration may be conducted at Sheppard Memorial Library, East End Library, Carver Library, and the mobile library unit, all in Greenville.

Miss Register said that absentee voting may be accomplished by voters who will be out of the county on election day. Requests may be made by the voter or by a near relative from July 19 through Aug. 11.

Voters seeking additional information pertaining to registration or other voting matters should contact the Board of Elections, 758-4683.

Career Option Nursing Class Is Graduated Friday By Pitt Tech

Pitt Tech's first class of 21 Career Option Nursing graduates received their Associate in Applied Science degrees and nursing pins Friday night. The graduation and candlelight, pinning ceremonies were held in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church in Greenville. Dr. Khalil Tanas, a psychiatrist from Cherry Hospital addressed the graduates. According to Ms. Judith W. Kuykendall, R.N., B.S.N., M.S.,

Chairperson of Nursing Education, the 21 graduates will write the Registered Nurses State Board Test Pool Examination on July 14 and 15, in Raleigh. The five tests to be written included Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics, Pediatrics, and Psychiatry. "All of the graduates have secured employment," remarked Ms. Kuykendall. Eighteen have been employed by Pitt Memorial Hospital. Two graduates, one from Kinston and one from Windsor, are returning to their hometown hospitals. One graduate is returning to the pediatric office where she had been employed as an LPN.

Ms. Kuykendall said that some of the graduates plan to further their education, after gathering work experience. Graduates were presented for degrees and pinning by Ms. Kuykendall, and two of the nursing instructors, Ms. Renatta Loquist, R.N., B.S.N., and Ms. Arlene Collins, R.N., B.S.N. They received their nursing pins from Ms. Sally Barnaby, R.N., B.S.N., Ms. Frances Bennett, R.N., B.S.N., and Ms. Patricia Earnhardt, R.N., B.S.N., all of whom are nursing instructors.

T.F. Ellis Elected N.C. GOP Delegation Head

GREENSBORO (AP) — Thomas F. Ellis, a conservative Raleigh lawyer who switched political parties six years ago, was elected chairman Sunday of North Carolina's delegation to the Republican National Convention. Ellis, who managed the 1972 campaign of U. S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., also is state campaign coordinator for Ronald Reagan. Ellis and state GOP Chairman Robert G. Shaw of Greensboro said after the meeting that they expect a "harmonious" delegation to the convention Aug. 16-19 in Kansas City.

Both said they did not expect any divisive infighting between Ford and Reagan delegates.

"Some of our delegates suspect that Reagan folks are being mistreated," said Ellis, "but we're going to Kansas City to cast 28 votes for Reagan, 25 for Ford, and we've got one uncommitted, just like the votes turned out in our state primary."

Denying charges of "dirty politics" leveled after some counties ousted Ford delegates and bitter feuds disrupted conventions where partisan groups jockeyed for position, Ellis said these squabbles were "just a matter of who could get the votes."

Ellis said he believes Gene Anderson, assistant to Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., "is bitter about the way things are going, but I don't know anyone else who is."

"It's about time Anderson caught some flack," he continued. "He's been giving the flack for a long time."

Ellis described Sunday's GOP meeting here as "a get-together to help delegation members from across the state to get to know each other, get ready for the national convention and make sure everyone knows what's going on."

Shaw said it was "a nuts and bolts information meeting" designed to answer any questions the national convention delegates might have.

See Record Harvest For Soviet Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — From a dismal outlook last winter when fall-planted wheat suffered from dry weather, the Soviet Union's 1976 grain crop now appears headed for one of the largest harvests ever.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that the Soviets are now expected to harvest 195 million metric tons of grain this year, up 5 million tons from the department's initial forecast on June 22.

Good weather has brightened prospects, officials said.

Last winter it appeared to some experts that another Soviet crop debacle might develop when fall-planted wheat got off to a poor start and later suffered extensive loss from cold weather. But Russian farmers were able to plant extensive areas in spring wheat and other grains which apparently have done well.

The Soviet wheat crop is estimated at 80 million tons, up from 75 million forecast last month. Thus, all of the increase in the estimate for total grain is for wheat. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Plagued by drought, the 1975 Soviet grain harvest plummeted to 139.9 million tons, the smallest in a decade, from 1974 output of 195.7 million tons which was the second largest on record. Russia's largest crop was 222.5 million tons of grain in 1973.

The new analysis was compiled by a department task force on Soviet grain production. It said, however, that because of weather uncertainties, final 1976 production could vary from the estimate of 195 million tons by at least 10 million.

At the upper range of possibility, this year's Soviet crop could match or exceed Moscow's 1976 production goal of 205 million tons. Last year, with a goal of more than 215 million tons, the harvest fell 35 per cent below the mark.

Carter Said Equipped To Wage Convention Battle

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter is equipped for a small political war on the floor of the Democratic National Convention even though no one else has the votes to mount more than a skirmish.

The Carter campaign has spent a total of $350,000 on its convention operations, including those at Madison Square Garden where the votes are taken and at the Americana Hotel where Carter is staying, spokesman Peter Emerson said Sunday.

At the convention hall, Carter's forces have four trailers manned by 25 persons, 50 telephones and 44 floor workers, including 30 VIP floor leaders. These VIPs, empowered to speak for the Carter campaign and spotted around the convention floor, include Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, whom Carter bested in the presidential primaries, and Frank Mankiewicz, who was Sen. George McGovern's press secretary during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Square Garden. The Carter people also have their own internal telephone system between their rooms at the Americana and their trailers at the Garden. And they have the ability to join their system to others for conference calls.

No other candidate has his own telephone system on the floor.

Carter's spokesmen admit there appears to be little need for all this paraphernalia, but they point out that it was designed in February, the month of the first primary when there were more Democratic presidential candidates and potential candidates than there are buttons on a Touch-tone phone.

Normally such a telephone set-up is used to keep a candidate's delegates in line and give them instructions about how he wishes them to vote on any platform, rules or credentials fights.

Rather than dismantle the system as Carter eliminated his opponents and with them most of the controversy in the party, his campaign decided to keep it to avoid surprises and help quell rumors. The Carter staff is convinced that the aisles, some only six feet wide, will be virtually impassable during convention sessions and they count on the telephones to stem waves of rumor that sweep such gatherings.

The other telephones on the convention floor are a key component of the Democratic National Committee's plan to end each session by midnight, so they can put their show on during prime television time rather than in the wee hours as they did in 1972.

There remains a chance, if the convention is running late, that television viewers will be spared the traditional, long-winded introductions during votes in which state chairmen identify their homeland as "The Great State of... Home of..." With these introductions, roll call votes have taken an average of one hour in the past.

The convention chairman has discretionary power to order the votes taken over the telephone, and while they hope to avoid that, Democratic officials vow they will if the convention falls behind schedule.

They also hope to resolve the voluminous parliamentary inquiries in private on these telephone lines.

But on Sunday, as reporters waited for Democratic party

Might Close Two Courts

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A court official says federal courts in Wilkesboro, Salisbury and Rockingham may be discontinued because of lack of use.

However, no plans to close the courts have been decided on, said U.S. Middle District Court Clerk Carmon Stuart.

Middle District courts can be closed only by an act of Congress, Stuart said in a press conference Friday, but appropriations for the three courts have been cut more than $600,000.

The cuts were made by a congressional committee acting on information supplied by the administrative office of the federal courts, he said, adding the office also suggested that courts be eliminated where facilities are underused.

Judges Eugene A. Gordon and Hiram H. Ward have said the three courts are underused but they lack the jurisdiction to close them, Stuart said.

The last court session in Wilkesboro was held April 20 when 15 cases, including seven that involved moonshine whiskey, were heard.

The U.S. Treasury's division of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has since been cut back to a small number of agents, Stuart said.

Only 12 cases were heard at the last session in Salisbury May 17, 90 cases at the June 7 session in Greensboro and 37 cases at the May 3 session in Winston-Salem.

Stuart said maintaining a courtroom in the cities can cost more than $40,000 and requires sending a judge, law clerk, clerk of court, probation officers and a court reporter.

Hyde Predicts A 2nd Primary

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, predicts a second primary will be necessary to determine whether he or former Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee will be the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

Hyde rejected Lee's contention that he will win Aug. 17 and said, "I don't believe any candidate has attracted sufficient attention to have a hope of winning on the first ballot."

Hyde said that since eight candidates are running and voters are "obviously confused about the opinions of the candidates on the issues, I just don't think anyone can win first time around."

Hyde said his major opposition for the runoff spot is House Speaker Jimmy Green, D-Bladen. He said Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, is the "dark horse" candidate.

Fungus Disease

ATLANTA (UPI) — The national Center for Disease Control published details Saturday of an outbreak of a rare fungus disease that struck five persons in a rural farming region around Enfield, N.C., last winter.

The ailment was identified as pulmonary blastomycosis, a lung infection which can be fatal if not treated.

The CDC said the North Carolina cases, which came to the attention of health authorities from early December, 1975, to January of this year, represented the third outbreak of this disease reported in medical literature.

Three of the patients in the Enfield outbreak were children and the 2 adult cases were females. Enfield, in northeast North Carolina, has a population of 3,200.

All five patients were hospitalized but have now been discharged and were reported doing well.

The CDC said all but one of the patients lived near a peanut farm and that dates of onset of the disease in all cases was in November, a period approximately 6 weeks after peanuts—the main agricultural product in the community—were harvested. But it said soil and vegetation tests taken in the area were negative for the fungus disease.

"The temporal association between the peanut harvest and onset of this outbreak," the CDC said, "suggests a common source of exposure; however, the significance of this exposure is not clear, since soil cultures were negative and one patient gave no history of this kind of exposure."

Couple Speaks Vows On Sunday

Miss Kathy Elaine Bullock became the bride of Joe Marshall Cooke Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at the Oak Grove Church of Christ. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold C. Turner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Darrell Bullock of Rt. 1, Stokes. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Moses Pinkney Cooke of Rt. 2, Huntersville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Gene Bryson of Elizabeth City, organist, and Mrs. Ron Crisp of Rt. 1, Stokes, soloist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Mrs. Alton Johnson of Rt. 1, Stokes, directed the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and peau d'ange lace. The fitted Victorian styled bodice was overlaid with peau d'ange lace and trimmed with bridal buttons. The full length tapered lace sleeves ended with a ruffle over the hand. The full length organza skirt extended into a chapel train. Peau d'ange lace graced the skirt and bordered the hemline of the gown.

The bride chose a fingertip mantilla trimmed with peau d'ange lace attached to a bandeau of lace and carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow roses centered with an orchid and tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Brenda Bullock of Rt. 1, Stokes, sisters of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of yellow dotted swiss flocked with pink roses over yellow taffeta. The gown was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, short puff sleeves, and a deep ruffle at the hemline. The back of the gown was gathered at the bodice above the natural waistline and featured a self-tied bow. She carried a nosegay of summer flowers tied with yellow ribbon and wore a cluster of summer flowers with yellow ribbon in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Eddie Conley of Charlotte, Mrs. Don Lee of Raleigh, and Miss Annette Nobles of Wilson. Their gowns and nosegays were identical to that of the honor attendant. They wore clusters of summer flowers with yellow ribbon in their hair.

Hubby Can't Sell Your 'Property'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was a widow and he was a widower. We were both lonely and decided that marriage would be a better way of living for both of us.

I have my own income and Herbert has his, but we do share living expenses, so there's no problem there.

On my birthday Herbert bought me a bicycle. I was thrilled with it because it was the first gift he ever gave me. I ride the bicycle occasionally, but apparently I don't ride it enough to suit Herbert, because he keeps threatening to sell it if I don't ride it more.

Please comment on this, Abby. I am 67 and Herbert is 77. HURT IN FLORIDA

DEAR HURT: Perhaps it's Herbert's way of trying to get you to exercise more—for your own good. However, regardless of his motivations, when he gave you the bicycle it became your property, and he has no right to sell anything that is yours.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to BORED ON MY HONEYMOON did nothing but perpetuate the male-performance-oriented approach to sex. You said people might think there is something wrong with the husband if his wife spent all her time writing thank-you notes on their honeymoon. Why put all the pressure on the male in sexual relations, while the woman sits back and waits for his move? I get the same thing from the girls I take out. They all call themselves "liberated," but do you think they'd ever initiate anything? No! I've got to kiss them first and make all the first moves. Then they're supposed to say, "No," when I go too far. (At least, the first time.)

Who made up the rules for this game anyway? SINGLE MALE

DEAR SINGLE: You're either playing with an old set of rules or some very old players. The truly liberated woman doesn't wait for the man to make the first move or say, "No," when he goes to far—if he's appealing.

The honeymoon scene is another matter. If the bride spends most of her time writing thank-you notes, it's assumed she has no choice.

DEAR ABBY: A reader submitted "Lectori Salutem" as a practical, non-sexist salutation for a business letter, explaining that it meant, "Hail to the reader!" You replied "Hail no! Most Americans have enough trouble with English!"

Abby, if in your view Americans are that incompetent, why not open all correspondence with, "Hi, Dummies!"? CORY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I don't consider myself a "dummy," but since I've never studied Latin, "Lectori Salutem" would be Greek to me.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTING A BABY: MONEY NO OBJECT": What you are suggesting is clearly illegal. I recommend that you deal only with an authorized adoption agency.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

When Dieting, Count Calories

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition,
Harvard University
(Last in a four-part Series on Dieting)

Eat less, exercise more — and you will lose weight. Fad diets tend to ignore this equation and offer miracles instead. But the truth is you cannot defy the laws of nature.

But many people try so hard — and fail — to lose weight because they forget 10 rules that they should always keep in mind:

1. COUNT EVERY CALORIE. These three little words make the crucial difference. Remember, every time you put anything in your mouth (except water), you are adding calories. A cup of nuts as a snack, for instance, represents 800 calories. A tiny indulgence of this sort twice a week can actually add up to two pounds a month! So get ahold of a booklet with caloric equivalents and become familiar with the caloric content of the foods you like to eat.

2. KNOW YOUR CALORIC NEEDS. These are based on your age, sex and body size. The more active you are, the more calories you will need. Once you know the average number of calories you need daily to maintain your body weight, you can decide how fast you want to lose weight. Each time you use 3,500 calories less than you need—either by eating less and/or exercising more—you lose one pound of fatty tissue.

3. KEEP YOUR EYE ON PORTION SIZE. Pay as much attention to the size of the portions on your plate as you do to the number of calories in a given food. If you double the portion, you double the caloric content. It's also worth investing in a small scale until you can judge size and weight by eye and feel. Meats with fat and bone, like chops and steaks, are hardest to judge, but a rule of thumb is that one pound will yield approximately six ounces of lean meat after deboning, trimming and cooking.

4. REMEMBER YOU CAN DRINK CALORIES AS WELL AS EAT THEM. "Wet" calories are easily overlooked. Whole milk contains 166 calories per cup, skim milk, 87. Choose tomato juice at 50 calories per cup, rather than grape juice at 170.

5. DON'T LEAN ON PROTEIN. Too many people have been misled into thinking that protein contains fewer calories and somehow "burns" fat. Actually, protein contains about the same number of calories as carbohydrates — 120 per ounce. Meat, our main source of protein, also contains fat, and fat contains 270 calories per ounce! Sirloin contains twice as many fat calories as protein calories.

6. CUT DOWN DRASTICALLY ON SUGAR — AND MODERATELY ON SALT. Don't be deceived by claims that sugar provides "quick energy." Sugar only offers empty calories without nutrients, so you're better off consuming calories that also give you some nutrition. Trimming your salt intake won't affect how much you lose, but it will help speed up your weight loss by cutting down on water retention.

7. MAKE EVERY CALORIE COUNT NUTRITIONALLY.

Your diet must not only have fewer calories, but also must provide you with enough vitamins, minerals, fats, carbohydrates and protein to keep your healthy. The best way to maintain a well-rounded diet is to eat a variety of foods.

8. COOK AND EAT LEAN. Remove all unnecessary fats; trim meats; choose lean varieties; use water-packed canned fish; avoid all creamy foods, even creamed cottage cheese. Cut down on sweets; use herbs, spices, unsweetened juices and water-packed fruits; forego all candy, pies and rich pastries.

9. REMEMBER THAT EXPENDING CALORIES BY EXERCISE IS AS USEFUL AS CUTTING DOWN ON THE CALORIES YOU EAT. For example, cycle for one hour, take four brisk, 30-minute walks or two 20-minute swims, and you'll burn up 500 extra calories.

10. WEIGH YOURSELF FREQUENTLY. The best time is in the morning, before breakfast. That's the time when you are closest to being your most consistent weight.

Don't be just one more failure in the rhythm method of girth control. Observe these 10 rules, and you'll have greater success in your attempts to be the you that you'd like to be. (To put you on the road to dieting success, Dr. Mayer has compiled a 31-Day Reducing Diet Plan with menus, exercise and caloric charts. Crop reports in North Carolina continue to be excellent with the corn crop now pronounced outstanding this year.

THIS AFTERNOON

Sheriffs Upset By Rules

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH—Many of North Carolina's 100 county sheriffs are upset over what they see as a growing encroachment of state regulation over their local domains.

The key issue is minimum standards for deputies, and the state agency set up to enforce those, which sheriffs complain interfere with their constitutional powers.

Losing Authority Not only are encroaching state regulations feared, but federal rulings which deal with how local jails are run and other aspects of sheriffing, cause the elected officials to worry.

Several sheriffs met recently with a legislative committee to talk about the problems and suggest remedies.

Most of the complaints centered around the standards for employment drawn up and enforced by the Criminal Justice Training and Standards Council.

For deputies and local police, that means an applicant must be 21 years old, a U.S. citizen, a high school graduate, pass a written test, and a physical exam, and undergo a background investigation and fingerprint check to make sure he has no felony criminal record.

Standards are also set for State Bureau of Investigation agents, highway patrolmen, paroles and probation officers, and correctional employees.

At first, the supervising council operated independently, but was moved under jurisdiction of the Attorney General in 1975. The council is made up of 21 people, with the state Sheriffs Association allotted five; police chiefs allotted five, and others from the courts, Justice Department, Motor Vehicles Division, education and some appointed by the governor rounding out membership.

Increasingly, the sheriffs complained to a meeting of the Governmental Operations Commission chaired by State Senator L.C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, the council has usurped local authority.

For example, said Buncombe Sheriff Tom Morrissey, a fingerprint check might take a month or two to clear, but even if a sheriff knows the applicant and his family well, he can't go ahead and put him to work without requesting such permission in writing from Raleigh.

Boiled down from the various specifics is the feeling among sheriffs that Raleigh is nibbling away at local authority, changing regulations without touching base with those affected, constantly moving to take way constitutional responsibilities from elected sheriffs.

Other sheriffs at the session from Burke, Stanly, Cabarrus, and Halifax counties joined in the concerns. But not all lawmen present agreed.

Raleigh Police Chief Robert Goodwin and Sheriff Buck Night of Orange County, both members of the standards council, said the system was improving law enforcement personnel.

The standards are making lawmen standard and respected statewide while in the past there have been communities which not only tolerated but wanted less than professional, competent law enforcement.

Cecil Hargett, director of the Standards and Training Council staff, said he understands the problems which the sheriffs complain of, but that the majority of the "criminal justice community across the state—particularly police and state agencies—want standards raised even more, and the move is in that direction."

The sheriffs said they are not opposed to minimum standards, but the imposition of regulations from the state level without enough involvement of local officials in writing those rules.

On Monday evening at exactly 8 o'clock we will stand and sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." This will be followed by welcoming speeches from Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abe Beame, both of whom we know you've been waiting on tenterhooks to hear.

Then that Texas spellbinder, Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss, will give his report on the state of the party.

This will be followed by a real treat. At tremendous expense we are going to present a film showing highlights from the careers of all the great Democratic Presidents. It will keep you riveted to your seats.

But there's more. We are going to hear keynote addresses from Sen. John Glenn, America's most famous hero, and Congresswoman Barbara Jordan, who will both tell us what a mess the Republicans have made of the country for the past eight years. This will be a night to remember.

I know you don't think we can top Monday night, but wait until you hear what we have in store for you on Tuesday. There will be reports from the Credentials and Rules Committee followed by the highlight of the evening, which will be the reading of the Democratic platform.

We want everyone in their seats for the reading of the platform, and we don't want anyone sneaking off to watch the All-Star baseball game on television. A motion that the Democratic National Committee adjourn the Tuesday night session and charter special trains to go to Philadelphia to watch the game was overwhelmingly defeated by the committee last week by a vote of 35 to 34. The platform reading will go on as planned.

Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to the Rules Committee report, and then we will all break for dinner. After dinner we will come back and hear the nomination speeches for our presidential candidates. At this moment we haven't decided how many nominating speeches

They are for being "tough" on criminals, putting them in jail and making them stay there. They are against raising taxes to build the prisons needed to hold the population.

They are for economic development, but not at the expense of the environment. Put another way, they are for preserving the environment but not at the expense of economic development.

They are for giving pay raises to teachers and state employees, but against raising taxes to pay for it. Instead, they promise they will get the money by cutting bureaucratic "fat" out of state government.

They are for a progressive, fair tax system, but they are against putting the bite on the people who do not pay their fair, progressive share.

Reporters and "do gooders" press them to take specific stands on the issues. So they put forth "program proposals."

One candidate will move the industry-hunting office in state government out of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources and put it directly under the governor's office. Another will put it in the Department of Commerce. A third will leave it where it is.

While they debate these momentous ideas, no one talks about things like North Carolina's unionization rate, the educational opportunities it offers, its transportation system and its cultural offerings, despite the fact that all of these would seem more important to industry than the location of the industry-hunting office.

Another thing the candidates learn from the polls is that only a small minority of North Carolinians like "liberals." More like "conservatives," but the greatest number like to think of themselves as somewhere in between.

Thus they pride themselves on staying away from that sort of coherent, coordinated view of state affairs that might get them tagged with either label.

In the short run, the candidates may be helping themselves get elected. In the long run, they may be doing every-favorable on the latest recommendation at a July 16 caucus. Formal action will await the actual meeting of the Legislature next January.

The committee has taken a sensible action in recommending restoring the lieutenant governor's appointive powers. It doesn't make much sense to us to pay the lieutenant governor a full time salary and then relieve him of virtually all his duties. The job of lieutenant governor is an important one and able individuals are needed to fill it. It's not likely that qualified persons will seek the office if it means sitting around for four years with little to do.

The Senate Rules Committee action of last week is proper.

12 years I've been commissioner. I've driven throughout the area and without question the crop is excellent. We should have a record yield."

The committee has taken a sensible action in recommending restoring the lieutenant governor's appointive powers. It doesn't make much sense to us to pay the lieutenant governor a full time salary and then relieve him of virtually all his duties. The job of lieutenant governor is an important one and able individuals are needed to fill it. It's not likely that qualified persons will seek the office if it means sitting around for four years with little to do.

The Senate Rules Committee action of last week is proper.

A Letter To Delegates

Dear Democratic Delegates,

Welcome to the Democratic National Convention in New York City, which we know will be one of the most exciting events of the last 200 years.

Our program committee has worked day and night to make this an enjoyable, entertaining and suspenseful experience.

This is the tentative schedule which I know will meet with your approval.

On Monday evening at exactly 8 o'clock we will stand and sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." This will be followed by welcoming speeches from Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abe Beame, both of whom we know you've been waiting on tenterhooks to hear.

Then that Texas spellbinder, Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss, will give his report on the state of the party.

This will be followed by a real treat. At tremendous expense we are going to present a film showing highlights from the careers of all the great Democratic Presidents. It will keep you riveted to your seats.

But there's more. We are going to hear keynote addresses from Sen. John Glenn, America's most famous hero, and Congresswoman Barbara Jordan, who will both tell us what a mess the Republicans have made of the country for the past eight years. This will be a night to remember.

I know you don't think we can top Monday night, but wait until you hear what we have in store for you on Tuesday. There will be reports from the Credentials and Rules Committee followed by the highlight of the evening, which will be the reading of the Democratic platform.

We want everyone in their seats for the reading of the platform, and we don't want anyone sneaking off to watch the All-Star baseball game on television. A motion that the Democratic National Committee adjourn the Tuesday night session and charter special trains to go to Philadelphia to watch the game was overwhelmingly defeated by the committee last week by a vote of 35 to 34. The platform reading will go on as planned.

Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to the Rules Committee report, and then we will all break for dinner. After dinner we will come back and hear the nomination speeches for our presidential candidates. At this moment we haven't decided how many nominating speeches

They are for being "tough" on criminals, putting them in jail and making them stay there. They are against raising taxes to build the prisons needed to hold the population.

They are for economic development, but not at the expense of the environment. Put another way, they are for preserving the environment but not at the expense of economic development.

They are for giving pay raises to teachers and state employees, but against raising taxes to pay for it. Instead, they promise they will get the money by cutting bureaucratic "fat" out of state government.

They are for a progressive, fair tax system, but they are against putting the bite on the people who do not pay their fair, progressive share.

Reporters and "do gooders" press them to take specific stands on the issues. So they put forth "program proposals."

One candidate will move the industry-hunting office in state government out of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources and put it directly under the governor's office. Another will put it in the Department of Commerce. A third will leave it where it is.

While they debate these momentous ideas, no one talks about things like North Carolina's unionization rate, the educational opportunities it offers, its transportation system and its cultural offerings, despite the fact that all of these would seem more important to industry than the location of the industry-hunting office.

Another thing the candidates learn from the polls is that only a small minority of North Carolinians like "liberals." More like "conservatives," but the greatest number like to think of themselves as somewhere in between.

Thus they pride themselves on staying away from that sort of coherent, coordinated view of state affairs that might get them tagged with either label.

In the short run, the candidates may be helping themselves get elected. In the long run, they may be doing every-favorable on the latest recommendation at a July 16 caucus. Formal action will await the actual meeting of the Legislature next January.

WARRANTIES
The Federal Trade Commission has proposed letting companies offering a full warranty make a deduction if a defective product is used before it is returned.

Under the formula suggested, the amount of the refund would depend on how much use the customer got out of the product. To figure out the size of a refund, you would take the amount of use you got, divide it by the total useful life of the product and multiply it by the purchase price. The company issuing the warranty would have to explain, in the warranty itself, how the formula worked.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has proposed requiring air carriers to publish and distribute easy-to-understand summaries of available fares, including any restrictions on use. The proposal is the result of a petition by the Aviation Consumer Action Project, which claimed that the public now "has no practicable way to determine all the options available to it for discretionary travel, since the official fare tariffs are Simon attended a PFC reception) cost $644.76, with $29.01 charged to the PFC. A Simon trip to Oklahoma aboard a plane chartered for $11,812 included television interviews, an editorial board meeting and two PFC receptions all related to the campaign. Cost to the PFC: $348.87.

Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson, Mr. Ford's bridge to liberal Republicans, has been only a shade less active than Simon and nearly as cheap for the PFC did pay for a $1,444.68 chartered plane trip to Fort Wayne, Ind., but most of Richardson's travels cost the Ford campaign little. He split a day in Los Angeles May 11 between an oil industry meeting and two Ford campaign appearances. But of the total $1,162.25 commercial air travel cost and lodging for Richardson and an aide, only $57 was charged to the PFC.

Two days later, Richardson was in Detroit as a one-man "truth squad" rebutting Reagan's speech to the Economic Club just before the Michigan primary which was so vital to Mr. Ford. Charge to the PFC? Nothing. Explanation? Richardson happened to be in Detroit between planes.

The PFC share of Richardson's Tennessee-Alabama trip back on April 29 (including two PFC receptions) has not yet been computed. Hence, it is not surprising to find no record of the legion of Ford advocates who swarmed into California on the eve of the primary to denounce Reagan's Rhodesian war talk. With the Ford campaign perilously bumping the $13 million ceiling, all that activity is not likely to generate major reported expenses.

A proposed regulation in the FEC would end all this by establishing two simple rules: first, if there is any campaign activity in a city, all expenses getting there and being there shall be charged to the campaign; second, expenses of everybody accompanying the speaker (excluding Secret Service) shall be charged to the campaign. If not vetoed by Congress, this would go into effect about mid-August—in plenty of time for the 1980 primaries.

N.C. Counts 7 Traffic Deaths

By The Associated Press

Seven persons died in weekend traffic accidents on North Carolina highways, including two motorcycleists and a bicyclist, according to the Highway Patrol.

The deaths pushed North Carolina's traffic death toll to 719 this year, compared to 722 for the same period in 1975.

Reginald Wayne Francis, 28, of Bailey, died and four other persons were injured Saturday night when Francis lost control of his car on a rural paved road near Wilson. The patrol said Francis' car ran off the right shoulder of the road, then skidded across the center line, striking two other vehicles. Judy Wayne Byrd, 20, of Jacksonville, was killed Saturday night while riding a bicycle on a rural paved road eight miles south of Burgaw. The patrol said she was struck from behind by a car as she rode on the right side of the road.

LONGER LIFE
NEW YORK (AP)—The average 45-year-old woman now can look forward to 33.9 more years of life, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. It says that when the 1950s were beginning the life expectancy for women that age was 30.6 years.

Marta Foster Price, 22, of Wilmington, died Saturday afternoon in a collision eight miles north of Wilmington on U.S. 17.

A Gibsonville man, 29-year-old Samuel Lee Hutcherson, was killed Friday night when his motorcycle ran off a rural road 10 miles east of Greensboro.

Another motorcycleist, Richard Louis Bates, 18, of Vass, died early Saturday at Lake view in Moore County when his motorcycle struck a bridge. Nineteen-year-old Kenneth Wayne Wood, of Coats, was killed early Saturday when his car struck an embankment on a rural road five miles east of Angier in Harnett County.

A Florida man, 27-year-old William Victor Slaughter, was killed Friday night when his car ran off a rural road and struck a tree near Ayden in Pitt County.

Curtain Is Briefly Lifted On Pentagon's Command Center

NEW PENTAGON NERVE CENTER — Here's the new $15.4 million National Military Command Center that was unveiled Friday in the Pentagon. The center is where senior defense officials direct worldwide U.S. military forces in emergencies. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has lifted the veil of mystery from its new command complex, briefly revealing a super-sophisticated, $15.4-million nerve center where U.S. military leaders sit in conference and direct U.S. forces during international crises.

The complex replaces the center set up 14 years ago for the Cuban missile crisis. Command Center — a two-story complex located deep inside the Pentagon — is filled with the latest in communications and information-processing equipment.

pleted last February, it is more than double the size of the old unit.

The main room of the command center was used most recently during the tense evacuation of Americans from Lebanon.

A group of reporters was allowed to tour the center Friday under escort just days after a newsmagazine characterized it as so secret that the Pentagon's chief spokesman, assistant Defense Secretary William Greener, was not allowed to see all of it.

The main cog of the command center is a huge Emergency Conference Room which looks much the way the makers of the movie "Dr. Strangelove: or, How I Learned To Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb" depicted the U.S. military command center in its fictional account of apocalypse.

The real thing is equipped with six giant screens to display up-to-the-minute information on the status of U.S. forces, the deployment of Soviet missiles and other forces, and any other information required by the decision makers.

One lighted display board has President Ford's whereabouts followed in order by those who head the line of presidential succession: Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and House Speaker Carl Albert.

There is a teletype hotline to Moscow, and a staffer stands by fulltime to interpret any messages that might appear on the printer.

In a crisis, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other key officials sit in deep, tan leather swivel chairs around a wide conference table.

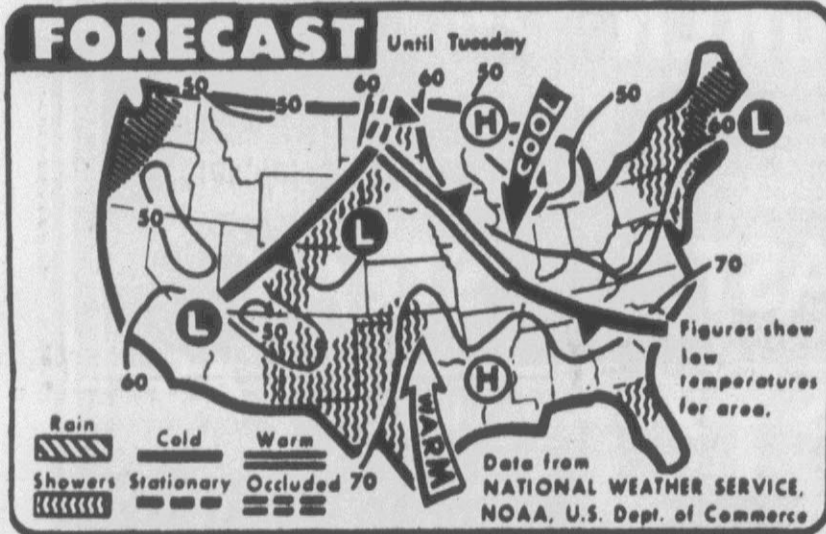

Available are microphones for conference-table talk, and secure telephones for communications to military commanders thousands of miles away. During the Lebanon evacuation, officials talked with the commander of the amphibious craft Speigel Grove.

Nearby is a network of color-coordinated offices, where specialists gather information and prepare their assessments for decision makers.

For the first time, in the event of a crisis, the men who run the command center will not have to sleep at their desk. Tucked into a corner of the vast complex is a tiny dormitory with a dozen cubicles containing beds and lockers.

Five teams of between 13 and 16 officers and enlisted personnel rotate on duty around the clock, each headed by a general or admiral.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today from the Southwest to the Dakotas. Showers and rain are expected for the Northeast and rain for coastal regions of the Northwest. Warm temperatures in the plains and cool weather in the Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press Sunny and hot weather was the rule for North Carolina Sunday. One exception was in the coastal sections of the state. Unstable air dropping out of Virginia caused heavy thunderstorms with frequent lightning, high winds and small hail along the Outer Banks.

This activity resulted in partly cloudy conditions over much of the eastern third of North Carolina. These storms redeveloped in Virginia Sunday night, but dissipated shortly after midnight. Afternoon temperatures reached well into the upper 80s and low 90s Sunday as warm southerly winds brought warm air into the state. Temperatures during the night were also warm.

Temperatures early this morning were mostly in the 70s across the state. A cold front stretched across the northern U.S. was to have been the main feature affecting weather today and Tuesday.

This front was rapidly moving southward and brought a chance of showers and thunderstorms to the state. Scattered showers kept temperatures a bit cooler than Sunday, but it was still warm.

The combination of the front and warm temperatures could produce a few thunderstorms with locally heavy rains and strong gusty winds. Highs today were in the 80s over the state with some low 90s over southern sections of the state. Lows tonight will be in the 60s with some low 70s over eastern and southern sections.

Drier, slightly cooler air will move in behind the front late tonight. This should produce a sunny and pleasant day Tuesday.

Lebanon's Christians Advancing

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians claimed today that their forces have overrun all Moslem strongholds in the Koura region of northern Lebanon and are "within grenade-throwing distance" of Tripoli, Lebanon's biggest Moslem city 60 miles north of Beirut.

tanks were "savagely shelling" the Nahr el Bared and Badawi refugee camps on the northern and eastern edges of Tripoli with artillery and rocket launchers.

The Palestinians also accused the Syrian army of attacking their forces and those of their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies in eastern and southern Lebanon as well as in the north.

Security and hospital sources estimated that more than 325 persons were killed in the past 36 hours on all fronts, raising the estimated toll for 15 months of civil war to more than 32,000 dead.

The Palestinians said the Syrians shelled Baalbek, the site of extensive Roman ruins 40 miles northeast of Beirut; a neighboring small refugee camp; and another crowded refugee camp on the southern edge of Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut.

The leftists said a fire started by Syrian shelling was still burning out of control at the American oil refinery outside Sidon. They said the fire was consuming reserves of gasoline the Moslems had been counting on.

The Christian siege of the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar refugee camp on the southeast side was in its 22nd day, and the Christians said they captured one of the last major buildings still standing in the 74-acre camp.

A communique said that the camp, which threatened the main highway between the Christian sector of Beirut and the Christian enclave between Beirut and Tripoli, was now a "military zero."

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, arrived in Damascus with a representative of Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah Palestinian guerrillas, Hani Hassan. Also in the Syrian capital was a delegation representing all major Christian militias in the Lebanese war.

Prince Saud was reported trying to get Syria President Hafez Assad to withdraw the 13,000 troops he sent into Lebanon on June 1 to prevent a leftist victory.

Observers in Beirut thought Assad would try to check the Christians now that they have the Moslems on the run and bring the warring factions to the negotiating table.

Arafat appealed Sunday to Egypt, Libya and Iraq for immediate troop reinforcements but got nothing.

The Moslems are "caught in the jaws of a nutcracker," the Palestinian leader said in a message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The Arab foreign ministers were to meet in Cairo today for another attempt to find a way to stop the civil war.

Auto Rentals Accord Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three largest passenger car rental companies in the nation have signed consent orders prohibiting them from trying to squeeze out competitors and fix prices among themselves, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC said today that Hertz Corp., Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc., and National Car Rental System, Inc., have agreed to the consent orders.

The FTC has unanimously accepted the agreements signed by the rental firms, but could withdraw its approval later.

The consent order is the result of an FTC complaint filed more than a year ago, alleging that Hertz, Avis and National had conspired since at least 1968 to monopolize airport car rentals, forcing customers to pay inflated rates.

In its complaint, the FTC said the three companies held 96 per cent of the airport auto rental market in 1973.

Officials noted the consent order does not signify admission by the companies to any of the allegations.

Under the order, the FTC said all three companies will be prohibited from conspiring to monopolize any portion of the passenger automobile rental business or conspiring to fix or stabilize prices.

The firms also will be prohibited from obtaining agreements from airports that would hinder would-be competitors from locating on airport property and will be barred from providing false information to airport authorities in an effort to adversely affect competitors.

In its complaint, the FTC had accused the three firms of submitting common bid specifications and contracts for airport concessions, fixing prices, entering into anticompetitive agreements with auto makers for advertising subsidies and harassing small competitors.

Such action, the FTC complaint alleged, meant that customers were forced to pay "substantially higher prices," the supply of rental cars at airports was reduced, profits for the three firms were excessive and smaller companies were blocked from entering the airport rental car business.

Two Die In Gem Mine

HIDDENITE, N. C. (AP) — Two men died Saturday when the walls of an open pit emerald mine caved in on them and a third man barely escaped with his life, according to authorities.

Lt. Jim Sharpe of the Alexander County Sheriff's Department said the two men killed in the mid-day incident were buried to a depth of about eight feet by the cave-in.

Sharpe identified the victims as Richard Draedyn, 51, of Plantation, Fla., and Delmas Joseph Harrison, 26, of Belmont, N. C.

Sharpe said Robert Lebowitz of North Miami Beach also was buried to his armpits but was freed.

The Alexander County Rescue Squad, members of the ambulance service, firemen, deputies and a backhoe operator took part in the tedious rescue operation which took about three hours, Sharpe said.

Dr. Bob Heafner, a county medical examiner, was rushed to the mine in the rural Hiddenite community about five miles east of Taylorsville, the county seat, as rescue operations proceeded. He pronounced the two victims dead at the scene.

Sharpe described the mine as an open pit ranging in depth to about 16 feet. He said it was eight to 10 feet wide in some sections and wider in others.

The mine is in an open farm field where rock hounds pay a fee to search for minerals on their own.

The cause of the cave-in was not immediately determined, a spokesman said.

Unemployment Policy Of 'President Carter'

By SYLVIA PORTER

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter and if his stated positions on key economic issues were to become reality, what would it mean to you — an unemployed adult or teenager? An investor in stocks? A family frightened, almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation? A taxpayer in any bracket? Any American consumer in today's jungle of a marketplace?

The following three points demand your attention: Carter has not been as fuzzy about the economic issues as you may think; he is far more conservative (as well as imaginative) in most of his financial views than he has been given credit for; he is a pragmatist who will concentrate on accomplishing the merely possible rather than on attempting the clearly politically impossible.

Since Carter has made it unmistakably clear that reducing unemployment would be the major priority of his administration, and since this in itself would signify a vital change in priorities at the White House, this week's series starts with the unemployed.

A first and most important fact is that Carter repudiates the Nixon-Ford administrations' conviction that a high rate of joblessness is essential to combat the price spiral — a theory that places the jobless in the first line of defense against inflation.

Instead, Carter's philosophy is that a high rate of employment would create the paychecks that would generate the extra tax payments that would help the Treasury balance the federal budget — and this balance would be THE fundamental weapon against revived inflation.

This is a crucial distinction! Don't downgrade it!

Thus, Carter's long-range goal (over four years) would be a cut in today's overall rate of unemployment from 7.5 per cent to 4 or 4.5 per cent and in the adult jobless rate to 3 per cent.

As an unemployed adult, your chances of getting a job you want in private industry or services would be improved, for Carter underlines his "commitment to the free enterprise system" and promises he would rely on the private sector until forced to turn to the public sector for jobs.

He sees "Millions of jobs crying out to be filled" in new industries such as solar heating — not for scientists, but for carpenters, pipe fitters, plumbers, tinsmiths, plastic workers, electricians, truckers, etc. He sees more millions of jobs in repair of railroads and rapid transit systems; pollution control for cities; preventive health care on a nationwide basis; care for retarded children, alcoholics and drug addicts; better housing, individualized and remedial instruction in our schools, and on and on.

He insists that the costs of such employment programs would not exceed by much, if any, what's being spent now.

If you still couldn't get a job in private enterprise and if, say, you were on welfare, then and then only would Carter turn to government-created jobs for you. If you were on welfare and without defects to keep you from working, he would train you, give you literacy education, and through private and public job agencies, he would try to match you with a job. If you didn't accept it, he would have you kicked off the welfare rolls.

If you lived in an area of high unemployment, and your company had to lay off 100 of its 1,000 employees, Carter would have the company employ all of you for a shorter work week for a specified period of time, with the government and the industry sharing the costs. This definitely would be something new for our country.

If you were an unemployed teenager, Carter would ask for a program under which federally created jobs would become available to you — "similar to the CCC and WPA of the depression years." He is particularly worried about the 40 per cent jobless rate among black young Americans in many areas.

And Carter would not favor a lower minimum wage for younger jobless Americans. Many of you, he says, are not part of a family structure, and since you must face the world as an adult faces it, you should be entitled to the same minimum pay.

In essence, all of Carter's job-creating programs and his outspoken faith in the private sector are much more conservative than you may have thought. This reflects the general conservatism of the economists who are his closest advisers at this stage.

Montanez's Double Helps Braves Win

ATLANTA (AP) — "There were two outs, and I was just trying to get a hit," says Willie Montanez, whose eighth-inning double lifted the Atlanta Braves to a 9-8 National League victory over the New York Mets Sunday.

"I had a good pitch and I hit it. I usually make them throw a strike. After that I go to work," said Montanez, whose hitting gave the Braves six runs for the day.

Montanez's other contributions included a run with a single in the first inning and two more with a single in the seventh.

When Montanez doubled to right center, clearing the bases, he ruined what would have been a victory for Tom Seaver, who made his first relief appearance of the season for New York in the seventh inning.

"It was a heavy game today. That was a lot of runs late in the game," said Seaver. "They scored, what? Eight runs in two innings? Wow."

Mets manager Joe Frazier explained his decision to use Seaver in relief, saying, "He's not going to pitch again until after the All-Star game."

"It was his day to pitch, and I wanted him to get the work," Frazier added. "It was his normal day to throw on the side. He always throws on the side three days after pitching in the rotation. He'll rest tomorrow and will pitch a little in the All-star game."

Pinch-hitter Dave May led off the Braves' eighth against reliever Bob Apodaca, 1-5, with a double. One out later, Jerry Royster walked and then Rod Gilbreath was safe on an error by shortstop Bud Harrelson, loading the bases.

After Jim Wynn struck out, Montanez doubled.

The Braves wiped out the Mets' 4-1 lead with a five-run seventh. Gilbreath drove in the first run of the inning with a sacrifice fly, then Montanez batted in two more with his second single. Tom Paciorek capped the rally with a two-run double.

Bruce Dal Canton, 3-1, the Braves' third pitcher, picked up the victory.

The Braves lost the lead when New York scored four in the top of the eighth.

Ron Hodges singled in the Mets' first run of the eighth off reliever Mike Marshall. Pinch batter Joe Torre's grounder scored another, and the third run scored when Gilbreath threw wildly to first after Torre's grounder. Leon Brown, running for Torre, later was driven in by Felix Millan's single.

LOSES HIS CASE—New York Mets manager Joe Frazier gestures with both hands as he pleads with umpires to change their decision again in Sunday's Atlanta Braves-Mets game in Atlanta. In the seventh, a ball hit by Atlanta leftfielder Tom Paciorek was ruled a ground rule double. After a protest by the Braves, the umpires changed their decision and allowed a man on first to score and put Atlanta in the lead. Frazier lost his protest and the Mets lost the game, 9-8. (AP Wirephoto)

Spanish Writer Did Not Write

By MIKE RECHT
SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — There was only one journalist from Spain known to be at the British Open to see his young countryman Severiano Ballesteros leap into the international golfing spotlight. And that sportswriter didn't write a word.

He told his boss earlier that he would be at the Open on vacation, and asked if his paper wanted a story. His boss said no.

That's the way it is in Spain, and even more so in the rest of Europe. Soccer is king, with sports such as cycling and rugby ahead of golf.

So while young Severiano caught the imagination of Americans, British, Japanese and others where the Open was televised, he probably remains a relative unknown in his own country. But his exciting performance — he led for three rounds against the best in the world before falling to Johnny Miller in the final round Saturday — is a swing in the right direction for golf on the continent.

Miller won it with a final-round 66 for 279 and the largest margin of victory — six strokes — in more than 40 years at this event. Ballesteros, who shared the lead after the first round and held it alone after the second and third rounds, faded to a 74 and need an eagle and birdie on the final two holes to get that.

He wound up tied for second with Jack Nicklaus who finished with a 69.

"He gave the biggest boost possible for European golf," said Gaetan Morgue D'Algue of France, the publisher of a golf magazine and a man who also runs many European golf tournaments.

"I know the French pros got very excited about Ballesteros, and if he had won, there would have been 20 Spaniards trying to qualify for the Open next year."

Despite its secondary status in Spain, that country still is far ahead of the rest of Europe in the sport, and Morgue D'Algue felt some 15 Spaniards could do well in the Open.

Ballesteros says he will try for the U.S. tour in 1978 after he serves his military duty.

Of his showing in the British Open, he seems to have a bright future indeed. The 19-year-old farmer's son held a two-shot lead over Miller starting the final round but slumped to a 74 to finish in a second place tie with Jack Nicklaus at 285.

Aside from Miller, Ballesteros and Nicklaus, Ray Floyd was the only other golfer to break par at 286 over the 7,001-yard Royal Birkdale course.

Palmer Putts Into LPGA Playoff

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer sounded more like a loser than a contender after she rolled in the five-foot putt that sent her into today's 18-hole playoff with JoAnne Carner for the 1976 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Miss Palmer, who started the last round two strokes in front of Miss Carner, lamented about her first nine holes. She bogeyed four of the first five and the eighth, had one birdie and made the turn two down.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to tie Mrs. Carner. She needed a par on the 18th to set up a playoff, a birdie to win.

Mrs. Carner, winner of the Open in 1971, stood at the 18th green and watched as Miss Palmer hit her third shot on the par-five hole 40 feet past the pin. The first putt was five feet short. "When she hit her first putt and lined up her second and shook her head, I knew she was going to knock it in," Mrs. Carner said later.

While Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer were at the top, a disappointed Jane Blalock finished third, four strokes off the pace.

The 30-year-old Miss Blalock was tied for the lead on the back nine of the final round Sunday, but she double-bogeyed the 16th to fall out contention. She finished 75-72-73-76—296.

Gamble's Homer Gives Yankees, Figueroa Win Over Chicago

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
Ed Figueroa will spend the All-Star break with his family this year, but he knows his time is coming.

After firing a three-hit shut-out Sunday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, Figueroa reflected on his role with the Yankees and his own stature in baseball.

"It is my second year in the big leagues," said 27-year-old native of Puerto Rico. "I just want to win my games. Then next year I have the name. Maybe I can win 20 games with this club."

"Last year I had only seven wins before the All-Star Game. This year I have 10," said Figueroa, 10-6, the third Yankee pitcher to win 10 games before midseason. The other two are Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis.

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston defeated Minnesota 6-4, Baltimore beat California 3-1, Oakland whipped Cleveland 9-3 and Milwaukee took two from Texas, 6-3 and 5-4 in 10 innings.

Going into Tuesday's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, the Yankees led Boston by 9½ games in the AL East pennant race.

Oscar Gamble's two-run, 400-foot homer in the second inning gave the 6-foot right-handed Figueroa all the firepower he needed to give the Yankees their ninth victory in 10 games between the two teams this season.

Figueroa allowed three singles, gave up two walks and struck out four. Chicago starter Bart Johnson, 7-8, seeking his fifth straight victory, took the loss.

Tigers 6, Royals 5
Rusty Staub's two-out, 12th-inning single scored John Wockenfuss and gave Detroit its victory. Wockenfuss had walked and advanced to third on successive sacrifice bunts.

John Hiller, 8-4, got the victory in relief, while Steve Minger, 3-1, was tagged with the loss.

The Royals had tied the game in the seventh inning with three runs.

The Tigers' Aurelio Rodriguez got his sixth homer of the year, a two-run blast, in the fourth inning.

Red Sox 6, Twins 4

Fred Lynn ignited a 13-hit Boston attack with a first-inning home run, his sixth of the year, and Ferguson Jenkins evened his record at 8-8 in Boston's win.

Jenkins scattered 10 hits before giving way to Jim Willoughby in the ninth. Denny Doyle had a two-run single in the third for Boston, which evened its record at 40-40 going into the All-Star Game.

Orioles 3, Angels 1
Reggie Jackson blasted a two-run homer off Nolan Ryan and Dave Pagan, in his first start for Baltimore since being traded from the Yankees in June, earned his second victory in five decisions this season.

Ryan, 7-10, was the loser, despite striking out 12, as he walked five and allowed nine hits. It was the sixth time this season and the 77th time in his career that Ryan has fanned 10 or more batters in a game.

A's 9, Indians 3
Bill North drove in two runs, scored three more and extended his league-leading stolen-bases mark to 42 with a single swipe in Oakland's victory. The A's have won seven of their past eight games.

Winning pitcher Paul Mitchell, 5-5, got relief help from Paul Lindblad, who gave up just one hit and held Cleveland scoreless for the final 3 2-3 innings. The loser was Dennis Eckersley, 4-8.

Brewers 6-5, Rangers 3-4
Hank Aaron homered in the 10th inning to give Milwaukee a sweep of its doubleheader with Texas and a sweep of their five-game series. The Rangers now have lost six in a row.

Aaron's 340-foot homer into the left field stands was his ninth of the season and 754th of his career.

Milwaukee tied the nightcap 4-4 in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Bernie Carbo, who had a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Robin Yount. Bill Castro, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Jim Slaton picked up his 10th victory against six losses in the opener as Gorman Thomas's two-run double highlighted Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning.

Steady Lister Wins Quad Cities

By GORDON HANSON
AP Sports Writer
MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — New Zealand's John Lister had begun to wonder whether he was capable of winning an American golf tournament.

"I went out charging but I've reached that point a number of times where I considered maybe I couldn't win over here," he said. Sunday he proved that he could.

Lister took the $100,000 Quad Cities Open with steady rounds of 68-68-65-67 for a 16-under par 268, beating Fuzzy Zoeller by two strokes.

The victory was worth $20,000 to Lister, who had been 67th on the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) money list this year at $24,637.

Lister, 29, has been playing the American tour about eight months a year since 1971. His victory marked the first for a foreign player in a PGA tournament this year.

"The Masters is the one I'm really looking forward to," he said after the final round on the par 71, 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course.

Zoeller had taken the first-round lead on a course-record 63, including a tour record-tying eight straight birdies. After 36 holes, Zoeller was in a three-way tie for the lead with Rex Caldwell and Mike Morley, each at 134. Lister and George Archer were two strokes back.

Lister shot 65 in the third round to Zoeller's 68, giving the

New Zealander a one-stroke lead going into the final 18 holes. Caldwell was two strokes back and Archer and Tommy McGinnis were four shots off the pace.

"I went out charging but I started a little slow," said Zoeller, who turned pro in 1973 and has yet to win a tournament. "I didn't birdie No. 1 like I wanted and bogied one and five."

The turning point, said Lister, came when he got birdies on the No. 6 and No. 7 holes. "I was starting to relax."

Lister's only bogey was on the par four, 435-yard No. 18. Caldwell stroked a 69 and finished third at 12-under 272. Archer was fourth at 275 and McGinnis fifth at 276.

Defending champion Roger Maltbie finished well back at five-over 289.

Little Interest In Rules-Change

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost everybody connected with broadcasting seems to complain about the fairness doctrine, but few members of Congress seem interested this election year in changing anything. The fairness doctrine requires broadcastings to present contrasting views on controversial issues of public importance. The equal time doctrine, which applies mainly to politics, requires that equal use of broadcast facilities be given opposing candidates.

Most members of the Federal Communications Commission support the doctrine, but they too want some changes.

Chairman Richard E. Wiley and Commissioner James Quello said it was "absurd" but the way the law reads the FCC had no choice but to rule that any TV station that broadcasts old Ronald Reagan movies would be obligated to offer equal time to President Ford, who doesn't want it.

Commissioner Glen O. Robinson, no supporter of the fairness doctrine, complained similarly last month in voting with the majority to invoke for the first time what has been called the "forgotten half" of the doctrine.

It overrode the news judgment of radio station WHAR in Clarksburg, W.Va., and told the station it must present both sides of the strip mining controversy as an issue of local importance.

The decision prompted the board of directors of the National Association of Broadcasters to pass a resolution calling it "an unwarranted intrusion" into the right of free speech.

The NAB board also complained another FCC decision that eight California radio stations were not giving enough time to opponents of nuclear power plants. If this stands, the NAB said, it means "broadcasters will no longer be able to make judgments about what constitutes controversial issues."

This is the busy season for William B. Ray, chief of the FCC's complaints and compliances division, and his political expert, Milton O. Gross, handling complaints and questions about political broadcasts.

Gross said he handled about 600 questions, mostly phone calls, in April and about 600 in May but, with the primaries mostly over, about 500 in June. Most involve equal time and the lowest going rate which broadcast stations must charge for political broadcasts.

Gross and Ray handle most questions, but the commission itself rules on the major problems, especially if a major candidate is involved.

FCC Commissioner Benjamin Hooks complained recently that the TV networks are reluctant to sell prime air time to presidential candidates.

He said network officials cry over and over for release from equal time, the fairness doctrine and reasonable access provisions and say "if you release us from everything then we will do everything."

Q.1—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠872 ♥AK8 ♦AJ72 ♣743
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—We might have opened despite the fact that we have only 12 points, for we do have three quick tricks. Now, unfortunately, we have no way of conveniently expressing our strength without distorting our hand. Ideally, we would like to bid two no trump, for if we have a game, it will probably be in the nine-trick contract. But no trump should really be played by partner to protect his spade holding. A jump to two diamonds can also be considered, but that could lead to awkward rebid problems. Our vote is for a simple response of one diamond, hoping to hear more from partner.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass
2♥ Pass 3♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. First, you should avoid bidding no trump on unbalanced holdings if possible. Secondly, your two honor cards in partner's suits could be more valuable than you might think. A temporizing bid of three spades cannot do any harm—it is not a reverse, since you didn't bid spades at your second turn. And it should give partner a better picture of your holding so that he can decide where to play the hand.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8 ♥AQ5 ♦K10875432 ♣J
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1NT 2♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Partner has expressed no great desire to have you enter the auction, so there is no need for you to introduce your diamond suit. He should have a very good suit of his own, which, combined with your values in the side suits, should make him a favorite for his contract.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J76 ♥852 ♦9863 ♣762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2♦ Pass 2NT Pass
3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The one thing you cannot do is pass—they shoot partners for less than that. North's change of suit is absolutely forcing, so you must bid. The choice here is between three spades and four diamonds, and we prefer the former. Partner must have at least five spades, and since the hand should play the game in either contract, it will be easier to make 10 tricks rather than 11.

Q.5—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A7 ♥A9862 ♦AQ742 ♣6

Our Gang's 'Buckwheat' Still Enthused By Show

By LYNN LANDRUM
Nashville Banner
WAVERLY, Tenn. (AP)—Almost 40 years have passed since James F. Frazier played Buckwheat in the "Our Gang" comedy series, but he still says it was the greatest thing that ever happened to him.

In this Middle Tennessee town Saturday to attend a fundraising event for the black community, he enthusiastically recalled the series and the child actors who made up the gang.

Frazier joined the series in 1933, acting along with Robert Blake, now television's Barbetta, who played Porky; Joe Church, as Spanky; Carl Switzer, as Alfalfa; and Darla Hood, who played Daria, the show's sweetheart. The children represented several faiths and nationalities.

"It was something new to me. I had never been with all white kids before," Frazier said. "But after a while, we got along just like sisters and brothers."

He said the cast members were "typical American kids. We had our little spats, but we always made up."

Frazier remembers one famous scene from the show as especially shocking—a routine in which Buckwheat's hair stood on end while he quaked in terror.

He said the effect was created with a wire running from his foot to his head, which was given an electric charge through a switch on the floor.

"The first time I did it, my hair was wet and it really shocked me," Frazier said. In later shows, the problem was worked out, but he still received a mild jolt every time he stepped on the switch.

Frazier said he has little tolerance for the blacks who have criticized Buckwheat as a pint-size Stepin Fetchit.

"I just can't get along with people who criticize that stuff," he said. "I don't call it Uncle Tom. I call it pure acting."

"Whatever people do in motion pictures, they just do for the money," Frazier said, roused from his usual quiet manner.

"That series, the Our Gang comedies, was the beginning of the break for black people in show business," he said.

Frazier's own break came in 1931, when he was 5 years old and performing with traveling riverboat shows.

Both his parents sang and danced in the shows, and Frazier said he soon started mimicking his father.

Once when he was performing on the dock alongside a boat in New Jersey, he was observed by Hal Roach and a group of other Hollywood notables.

Roach arranged for a screen test and sent Frazier to Hollywood in 1933.

Frazier, who spent four years in the series, currently travels most of the year, performing and participating in question and answer sessions of the still popular show.

Asked if any of the present television shows might last as long as Our Gang, he was quick to say no.

"They were classics," he said.

Confiscated Crop Of Pot

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Alexander County authorities arrested one man and confiscated an estimated $250,000 worth of marijuana plants in a raid staged Sunday, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Deputy Gary Rector supplied the estimate, which he said was based on street value, and said the one-acre field of some 2,500 plants had been under surveillance for some time.

He said he arrested Roger Lee Greene, 21, of Purlier in Wilkes County, as he cultivated the field with a garden tiller.

Greene was jailed in Taylorsville under $2,000 bond on a charge of manufacturing marijuana, Rector said.

Rector said the field was about eight miles southeast of Taylorsville.

The deputy said the confiscated marijuana, with some plants ranging to five feet, filled a three-quarter ton pickup truck and the back of a jeep.

It was stored at the county jail and virtually filled one cell, Rector said.

Survey Indicates ERA No Campaign Issue

GOING UP — This glass tower rising on downtown Detroit's riverfront will be the 1,400-room Detroit Plaza. The spectacular 70-story structure is the centerpiece in the city's new Renaissance Center and is scheduled to open next spring. The glass ring around the hotel's base is a skylight over an eight-story atrium that is crossed by aerial walkways. (AP Wirephoto)

By GAIL GREGG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — It was only a year ago that state representative Ronald Earl Mason and Myrtle Wiseman turned their backs on their promises of support for the Equal Rights Amendment and voted it down.

And although ERA supporters vowed revenge at the time of the amendment's defeat, it appears that Mason and Mrs. Wiseman and the others who changed their tunes at the last moment will get off free. Mason and Mrs. Wiseman are up for reelection this year. Both face opposition. But, as Mason put it, "the only thing I've heard about the ERA is a questionnaire I got from a group asking me my stand on it."

That group, the North Carolinians United for the ERA (NCUERA), appears to be concentrating on securing the promise of votes during the 1977 General Assembly, rather than calling the ERA's opponents on the carpet during the legislative races. That is the same strategy used in the 1975 contest.

It is waging a low-key campaign to see the amendment passed during the 1977 legislative session. Its components include publishing the candidate survey, organizing local coalitions, encouraging constituent lobbying in legislative districts and disseminating "educational information" on the ERA.

NCUERA President the Rev. Maria Bliss explained that the group's almost apolitical activities stem from several limitations.

First, many of the organization's member groups have charters prohibiting participation in partisan politics. (NCUERA groups include state chapters of the American Association of University Women, Council of Churches, the Civil Liberties Union, the Nurses Association and the Democratic Women.)

Secondly, The Rev. Mrs. Bliss said "one really good reason for not participating in partisan politics is that we have to work with everybody once they are elected."

And, "it takes a lot of money (to wage an active campaign)," Mrs. Bliss said. "That kind of money people just have not raised or had."

But not all ERA supporters believe the campaign should be waged on such a passive level. Nancy Drumm, who coordinated the ERA campaign last year, said she thought the group had learned that it needs to be offensive, "to wage an all-out emotional appeal" to achieve its goal.

"And unless women and men rally to defeat people who switched votes, we aren't going to be as effective as we ought to be," Ms. Drumm noted.

Kathy Stark, this year's campaign coordinator, said the political battles are being left to individual lobbyists or local members of the ERA coalition whose charters allow them to be political.

But a spot check in several legislative districts where incumbents face opposition shows that the ERA has not emerged as a campaign issue.

And that's just fine with most of them. William Capel, Jr., who is running for the Democratic nomination for senator from Anson County, said he thinks the airing of the issue by candidates for governor and lieutenant governor "has taken the heat off us. I'm not going to mention it unless I'm asked."

Capel said he favors the amendment. Sen. Mary Horne Odom, incumbent from Scotland County, agreed with Capel. "I don't say much about it. It's not a grass-roots issue. Only the business and professional women clubs seem to be much concerned about it."

And Mason, who is running for the House from Carteret County, said he hopes the ERA won't become an issue during the summer campaigning months. He said he will vote against it if it comes up again.

One candidate who is talking about the ERA is Mrs. Wiseman, a Democrat from Avery County. But even she is taking no formal stand on the issue.

Mrs. Wiseman voted for ratification of the amendment twice during the 1975 House vote. But on the last balloting, she bowed to a sudden anti-ERA pressure from her district and voted no. She broke into tears when she added her vote to the slate of those who defeated it, 62-57.

Mrs. Wiseman said she hopes to be better prepared for a vote on the issue if she is reelected. She is taking pro-and-con-ERA literature to speaking engagements to "educate" her district. She has asked constituents to write—not call—her with their wishes on the issue. That way their feelings are on record.

Running against French-born Mrs. Johnson is incumbent Ruth Cook. She said she has not made the amendment an issue because "I'm clearly on record in support of the ERA."

Just as the candidates seem sure the ERA will not emerge as a campaign issue, they are uncertain about its chances of passage next spring.

Mason said he thought "it would depend on the makeup of the Senate. If it passes there, it probably will pass the House."

Mrs. Odom said the key to the amendment's chances of passage lies with the outcome of the race for lieutenant governor.

"If we get someone who doesn't favor it, chances are he will give it to a committee who will bury," she said.

And while Mrs. Cook called the bill's chance of a passing "very good," Mrs. Johnson said she hopes it will not come up.

Whatever the ERA's chances of winning, the chances that it will become a hot issue once it makes its way to the floor of the legislature are good. During the 1975 debate on the amendment, "anti" lobbyists passed out homemade bread to legislators in an attempt to convince them that a woman's place is in the home.

Emotional debate was inspired by the issue. Fred S. Hutchins, a Democratic representative from Winston-Salem, told his audience "I have an 18-year-old daughter. Now my son can be cannon fodder, but not my daughter. If my boy has to go to war, that's his duty to his country. But I don't want my wife, my daughter, my women going."

And in a last-ditch after the ratification bill was defeated, a group of legislators proposed that the issue be handed to the people in the form of a referendum—a proposal that was killed almost as quickly as the original bill.

Elvis Fans Gather For Memphis 'Convention'

MEMPHIS (AP) — Although most of them were veterans of many past campaigns it was the first convention for the scores of persons who came with buttons and hats to view movies and listen to their man's records.

They came not to elect a presidential candidate, but to pay honor to "The King," as more than 400 Elvis Presley fans gathered Sunday at Everett R. Cook Convention Center as a climax to the first Elvis Presley Convention.

Following a greeting and a proclamation from Mayor W. Wyatt Chandler the Presley faithful rode in a motorcade down Elvis Presley Boulevard. "It's the man himself that keeps us interested, more than the image," said Kenneth Templeton, a Memphian who coordinated the three day event. "He's not a put-on, he's real and different, with a style all his own."

When not leading organized "Elvismania," Templeton works as a tire salesman. He is also a member of the Grace-land Fan Club, sponsor of the convention.

Richard Dean, 35, arrived in Memphis from his Round Lake, Ill., home in time for the Friday evening party at a motel near Presley's home.

"The hearts were my idea," said Dean as other Presley fans admired the rear side window design on his customized Buick Limited.

The immense white car also sported a massive chrome hound dog overlooking the radiator and a license plate reading "EP 1893."

"I wanted it to read '1-8-35' for Jan. 8, 1935, the day Elvis was born, but they sent me one with a '9' instead," said Dean, who works for ITT's water pump and heating subsidiary at Round Lake.

"Oh well, what's wrong with giving him four years?" Other fans attending the opening party wore buttons, T-shirts, or jackets.

Carolyn Trolley drove to Memphis from Asheville, N.C., with her friend Louise Creasman in an automobile adorned with two huge photos of Presley.

"If one time I could ever get close enough to meet him...I'd just like to shake hands with him and see what he's like to talk to," said Mrs. Trolley, who plans to paper a wall with pictures of Elvis.

The fans were taken on a tour of sites Saturday where the Memphis entertainer attended school and performed in his early recording days nearly 20 years ago.

Then it was Elvis movies from midnight until 6 a.m. Most of the out-of-town visitors joined the locals Saturday outside the gates of Presley's home, Graceland.

"We thought we could sneak over here and get some pictures," Mrs. Creasman said. "At one time I drove all the way up to the door. I don't think they let people do that anymore."

Her vigil went unrewarded, however, as the gates to Graceland mansion remained closed. Mrs. Creasman once paid a scalper $75 for an 11th row seat at a Presley concert in Atlanta.

However, "It was worth it, every penny," she said.

Special Delivery To Go To $1.25

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a special delivery letter will go up 45 cents to $1.25 starting a week from Sunday.

Postal money orders will go up 20 cents to a half dollar, and the charge for an address correction will jump from 13 cents to 25 cents.

Other new, so-called permanent rates, approved by the Postal Service board of governors, are:

—For second-class matter, primarily newspapers and magazines, an average 2 per cent hike over temporary increases which took effect Tuesday.

The agency estimates that the combined permanent and temporary increases might raise the mailing costs of smaller daily and weekly newspapers by more than 25 per cent.

—For bulk third-class regular advertising, a decline from 41 cents to 36 cents per pound; for books and catalogs a drop from 32 cents to 30 cents per pound.

Bulk regular rates will be 7.5 cents per piece for the first 250,000 pieces mailed in a calendar year and 7.7 cents for pieces in excess of 250,000. That compares to current rates of 7.7 cents and 7.9 cents.

The changes are part of a Postal Service plan to adjust rates to reflect the actual costs of handling various types of mail.

They will not affect the current first-class charge of 13 cents for letters and nine cents for post cards.

Hussein Claims Bargain Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan claims Russia offered his nation a missile defense system at 60 per cent the price of the U.S. Hawk system and that the Hawk deal is dead unless the Americans make a better proposal.

"I can't see any change unless a better offer from the U.S. is forthcoming," Hussein said in an interview in Newsweek magazine Sunday.

The king said he returned from a recent trip to Moscow "with a very attractive offer which would give us a compatible yet more flexible air defense system than the Hawk."

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—The trend on the North Carolina hog market was steady to fifty higher today. Wilson 50.00-51.00; High Falls 49.00-50.00; Rocky Mount 50.00-50.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethton, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg, Benson, 51.00; Kinston 50.00-51.00; Tarboro and Bethel 48.00-48.50; Salisbury 48.00.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—The trend on the North Carolina l.o.b. dock broiler market was steady today with supplies moderate, demand good, weights desirable. The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 44.01 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,275,000.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market recorded a moderate gain today, drawing more support from optimism over the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy.

Trading was fairly active. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.19 at 1,006.30 on top of Friday's 11.13-point jump.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Fed provided much of the spark for Friday's rally, giving strong indications that it was relaxing its credit policy slightly.

There was speculation today on Wall Street that the central bank might be planning to ease up further before long.

Brokers also noted continuing encouragement over the smaller-than-expected rise in wholesale prices during June reported by the government on Friday.

After a strong advance at the opening, however, the market leveled off in the face of profit taking.

Carrier Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 16 1/2. A 101,300-share block traded at 16 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks climbed .26 to 56.32 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .40 at 106.97.

Two Honored For Services

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser presented awards today to two Pinehurst citizens in recognition of their work in behalf of handicapped children and adults.

The recipients were Constance Matheson Baker and Larry Marchese.

"It would be impossible for me to cite all the many contributions Connie Matheson Baker has made to this country, our state, the Southern Pines-Pinehurst community, and the handicapped, in particular," Holshouser said.

She received a certificate of appreciation. Holshouser noted that in 1960 Mrs. Baker donated her stock commissions to help fight fatal blood diseases in children. She made available the use of her home in Southern Pines, "Duncraig Manor," for handicapped children.

Holshouser said she had also given her time in work with the activities of the North Carolina Association for Emotionally Troubled Children.

Marchese moved to Greensboro about 10 years ago as vice president of marketing for Exxon. He is now retired and lives in Pinehurst.

The governor said hundreds of handicapped children in North Carolina had benefited from Marchese's work. He was presented a certificate making him a member of the Order of the Long Leaf Pine.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Daniel Gearhart signed up to fight as a mercenary in Africa because his family was deeply in debt. Now, says his widow, the Angolan government that executed him wants her to pay $5,000 to get his body back.

Angry and close to tears Sunday, Sheila Gearhart said her husband died on their 11th wedding anniversary. "I'm beginning to wonder if they didn't even know that," she said. "I wouldn't be surprised."

The 34-year-old Vietnam veteran was executed Saturday by an Angolan firing squad, although he claimed he never had a chance to fight in the African country before his capture by Cuban troops. He had advertised his services as a mercenary in Soldier of Fortune magazine.

Mrs. Gearhart said her husband fought for pay because of $30,000 in debts plaguing the family. Now, facing life as a widow on welfare with four children, she said the Angolan government has told her it will cost her $5,000 to get her husband's body back.

"I can't pay it," she said from her home in suburban Kensington, Md. "There's no way I can pay it. I have four children to support."

But she said she would do "everything I can to get his body back, to give him a decent funeral."

She said she never received $1,000 that her husband said he sent her. The money was three weeks' advance pay received when he arrived in Angola. Gearhart said at his trial he believed it came from the CIA.

The pastor of the Gearhart's church said neighbors and church members had contributed "several thousand dollars" for the family.

Earlier, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said from Lisbon on Sunday that the U.S. Embassy was trying to arrange release of Gearhart's body. Mathias, who was trying to get into Angola to argue against the execution of Gearhart, was quoted as saying he was certain the body would be returned "within a few days."

But Mathias said his own effort to get Gearhart's body out of Angola had stalled.

Neighbors of the Gearhart family were shocked by the execution.

"I think it was nothing short of murder, considering he was only in the country three days and never fired a shot," said Elaine Holmes. "I think he drew the death sentence because he was an American."

A neighbor of Gearhart's mother was quoted as saying Gearhart "just wanted what everybody else had—to live a good life."

Family Is Cheered By Reports On Pat Nixon

By CRICKET BIRD
Associated Press Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The Nixon family's optimism is rising with reports that Pat Nixon is out of the critical stage in her recovery from a stroke that could leave her partially paralyzed.

Former President Richard M. Nixon said late Sunday as he left Long Beach Memorial Hospital that he was encouraged by his wife's progress.

Nixon and daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower spent more than four hours with Mrs. Nixon. It was the longest visit since she was hospitalized Thursday, the day after she was stricken.

Earlier Sunday, doctors said Mrs. Nixon was responding to treatment and remains within normal limits.

Dr. Jack M. Mosier, a neurologist treating the 64-year-old former first lady, said Sunday it would be two to three months before doctors know if she has suffered any permanent damage.

Mrs. Nixon was moved Sunday from her windowless hospital room to one with a distant ocean view. The room was the same one in which her husband was treated for plebitis in 1974.

Nixon said, "I think she is passing through the crisis...maybe has passed through it—time will tell—but most important now comes the long haul and that is a difficult time."

Nixon said his wife may require therapy for several months.

To cheer his wife, Nixon brought a special gift Sunday which he displayed for reporters. It was a waxy and fragrant gardenia—one plucked from the bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente estate.

Mrs. Nixon has been listed in serious but stable condition since her arrival at the hospital Thursday. Doctors say they are still uncertain about the cause of the stroke, but a hemorrhage is mostly likely.

A flood of letters and flowers continues to keep hospital workers busy. Operators say the switchboards are buzzing with calls from well-wishers.

And so many bouquets have arrived at the hospital that Mrs. Nixon has requested that the flowers be sent to other wards to cheer patients there. Arrangements so far have come from, among others, President Ford and his family, Henry Kissinger, King Hussein of Jordan and the Shah of Iran.

Three Collided At Intersection

An estimated $7,400 property damage resulted from a three-vehicle collision at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets about 7 a.m. today.

Investigators identified the drivers of the three vehicles involved as Doris Ayers Minch of 2610 Crockett Dr.; Alfred P. Worthington Jr. of Route 7, Greenville and Joseph Raymond Body of Goldsboro.

According to officers, the Worthington car and the truck driven by Body collided, causing the truck to overturn, throwing wooden bread crates from the vehicle. Several of the crates struck the Minch vehicle, causing an estimated $400 damage to that car.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $4,000 while damage to the Worthington car was placed at $3,000.

Body was charged with failing to stop for a stop light by police who reported both Body and Worthington were injured in the collision.
