

End Of 17-Month Carter Drive In Sight

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight, after a 17-month campaign from nowhere, Jimmy Carter receives the Democratic presidential nomination. His choice for vice president remains a mystery close to the last moment.

Carter worked on an acceptance speech and a presidential ticket today. He invited nine governors to discuss the selection of his running mate.

Carter, once he is officially the nominee, will phone each of six U.S. senators and tell them the one he will ask to be the No. 2 man.

Current plans are to make the public announcement at a news conference Thursday morning. The vice presidential nominee then will be confirmed by the convention Thursday night, just before Carter's acceptance speech.

Speculation about Carter's choice centered on three senators — Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the man who took the party's vice presidential nomination in 1968 and rejected it in 1972; Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, the choice of the Hubert Humphrey-liberal wing of the party; and John Glenn of Ohio, the first American to orbit the earth. The other three were Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Frank Church of Idaho.

Although Carter himself said Tuesday he had narrowed the circle somewhat, his press secretary insisted nobody had been eliminated.

Carter is one of four candidates whose names will be placed before the convention for the presidential nomination tonight. The others are Rep.

Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California and antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack of suburban Long Island.

Udall, who finished a distant second to Carter in delegate strength, said he would release his delegates before the roll call but would allow his name to be placed in nomination for the benefit of dedicated supporters who still want to vote for him. His nominating speech will be delivered by former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Brown will be nominated by Cesar Chavez, leader of the United Farm Workers Union. Mrs. McCormack is to be nominated by James M. Killilea of Boston, a Massachusetts legislature staff member.

Some Massachusetts delegates said they would nominate Alabama Gov. George Wallace even though he has requested his delegates to support Carter. Three delegates, including Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, once a candidate for Carter's running mate, will speak for Carter's nomination.

The Associated Press' poll of convention delegates showed Carter with 1,794 votes on the verge of the big roll call. Udall had 316.5, and Brown 281. It takes 1,505 delegates to win the nomination.

Before coming to New York Tuesday, Muskie told a news conference in Portland, Maine, it was "conceivable" he might decline the nomination if it is offered, noting he had passed up a chance to run with George McGovern on the 1972 ticket. He ran as Hubert Humphrey's vice presidential choice in 1968 when the ticket lost.

Mondale, meanwhile, was playing just as unconcerned despite the obvious tension building over the waiting game.

"I love the Senate," Mondale told reporters, "and I'm perfectly content to stay there if the voters of Montana want me."

Glenn, whose chances may have slipped somewhat after his convention keynote speech Monday night, said Tuesday he still is in the running and had been contacted by Carter adviser Charles Kirbo for more screening information.

"I don't think they would be asking for clarifications if I was out of the race," Glenn said. Muskie was one of the party luminaries who presented the 1976 Democratic platform at Tuesday's convention session. Departing from his prepared text, he delivered a free-swinging attack on President Ford's record of vetoes.

"No, No, No, No, in a series of 52 vetoes without precedent in the history of the presidency," Muskie said. "What America now needs is a president...who will say 'yes' to people who are looking for work...to policies which will make our country productive and economically alive again...to fair taxes, equal employment opportunity and fair labor standards."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the 1968 presidential standard bearer, said if Carter is elected "the American people will have a friend in the White House." He said the voters will throw out the "Republican Tories," as their forebears did the British Tories of 1776.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the 1972 presidential nominee who lost in a landslide, urged Democrats to profit from past mistakes and rally around Carter.

McGovern said the party should seek a "victory of principle and purpose — not the kind of victory of its own sake which our opponents contrived four years ago."

Wallace denounced the "overgrown monstrous bureaucracy...that controls every aspect" of people's lives. The statement drew cheers and applause from the delegates.

After his speech, Wallace shook hands with Coretta Scott King, widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King. In her speech, Mrs. King recalled her husband's work and said the Democratic party should seek "again the great passion that a crusade for human rights stimulates in the spirit and in the deeds of men."

Utilities Action Put Off In Area Service Dispute

By BETTY H. SANDERSON Reflector Staff Writer

A dispute over water and sewer service to an area within Greenville's extra-territorial limits caused the Greenville Utilities Commission Tuesday night to table action until further information could be obtained from the city.

The GUC voted at its July meeting to wait for recommendations by the City Council and the city Planning and Zoning Board before taking action in the proposed Tucker Industrial Park area, located on Highway 11 across from the Tice Drive-In Theatre near Pitt Technical Institute.

Property owners attending the meeting suggested that the GUC allow the town of Winterville to provide water and sewer service to the industrial park area.

Charles Horne, Greenville Utilities director, presented four possible alternatives for service to the area. He recommended that the GUC retain the right of service (due to Greenville's extraterritorial rights within three miles of the city limits) and provide all equipment and work necessary for long-range service. The total estimated cost for this program is $129,000, substantially higher than Winterville's estimate for a more temporary type of service.

The dispute arose over the city's anticipated expansion plans into that area and into other areas where service might be provided by another source. Several Commission members noted that Winterville has service in the park area only through a "quirk," a one-time agreement on the part of the city to allow Winterville service in a Greenville service area.

Action was postponed last night until information could be obtained on future planning and zoning plans for the area. It was also recommended that the City Council and the Planning and Zoning Board be advised of the situation so that they make their own recommendations for further action.

In other action last night, the GUC voted to allow a seven-month extension for water and sewer line construction in Lynndale and Club Pines due to unfavorable soil and weather conditions. The original completion date of June 1, 1977 was changed to January 1, 1978.

A natural gas surcharge of 18.5 cents per thousand cubic feet (MCF) was reduced to 5 cents per MCF as of July 1, 1976. This surcharge may be eliminated completely after July, 1976.

GUC members approved plans for a periodic review necessary to update classifications of positions. The review is estimated at a cost of $3,200. The most recent review was made about three years ago.

Wadie Lewis, GUC water and sewer superintendent, informed the commission that a letter was sent to the Environmental Protection Agency to inform them that the city's level of suspended solids met EPA standards for June. The GUC had been notified in June that past levels were below legal standards. Lewis said that four to six months of compliance might be sufficient to prevent a fine.

A low bid of $4,218, from Hastings Ford was accepted for a 1976 one-ton truck (cab and chassis only) to replace a gas construction truck. A total of $6,000 has been budgeted for the complete unit.

Other action taken by the commission included: (1) Notification of advertisement of a public hearing July 20 on the 201 Wastewater Facilities Plan;

(2) approval of a new customer deposit policy presented at the June session, to be effective as of Aug. 1, 1976;

(3) revision of attorney fees from $200 per month to $250, with an additional fee of $35 per hour for all work beyond six hours;

(4) presentation of proposed terms and conditions for electric service to be studied later, copied from VEPCO's terms and approved by the N.C. Utilities Commission.

Border Belt Sees $89.05 First Day

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolinas Border Belt flue-cured tobacco markets opened Tuesday with an average of $89.05 a hundred pounds, $4.13 above last year. Growers were pleased.

The figures are subject to revision as reports are completed from all markets.

The Federal-State Market News Service estimated that the average was a record $90 to $94 during the opening hour on several markets.

"I haven't seen any dissatisfied growers or tickets turned" said tobacco expert John Cyrus after visiting early sales on five markets.

He is chief of the field crops section of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. "I talked with many growers, and all seemed to be well pleased with the prices," he said. "They realized that their tobacco was of a low quality. However, the general quality was improved over last year's opening day."

Volume was heavy for an opening day and consisted mainly of low to fair primings. An estimated 15 to 40 per cent of early sales went to the Stabilization Corp. under the government price-support loan program, compared to 52 per cent on opening day last year. For the first three days of sales last year, 56 per cent of the tobacco was placed under loan. Cyrus visited markets in Lumberton, Fairmont, Chadbourn, Tabor City and Whiteville. "There is no question that this will be a good marketing season," he said. "Much of the tobacco in the border area is still in the fields. I would estimate that 75 per cent is yet to be harvested."

Quiet Follows Firebombings

SCOTLAND NECK, N.C. (AP) — Scotland Neck was quiet Tuesday after a rash of firebombings kept police and fire sirens screaming in the early hours of the morning. But in Henderson, home of the recent Sandra Dupree murder trial, a police dispatcher confirmed that a fire-bomb may have been the cause of a fire in a paper company there Tuesday night.

Dispatcher Bobby Wilkerson said police thought "it's a good possibility" that the fire was set by persons protesting the acquittal of Mrs. Dupree Saturday.

Two of the three fires set in Scotland Neck early Tuesday were quickly extinguished. The third proved to be a dud. No injuries were reported in connection with the blasts.

Police Chief Ted Mitchell said "we got a few suspects" — but declined to be more specific.

The State Bureau of Investigation and the Halifax County sheriff's department have been called in to aid in the investigation of the firebombings, Mitchell said.

The firebombings followed the acquittal Saturday of a Sandra Dupree, a white minister's wife who had been charged in the shooting death of a black man, Harry Lee Dickens. Blacks charged that she received preferential treatment because she is white.

The target for one of the Scotland Neck fire bombing attempts was the Harrison Oil Co. There an apparent bomb started a blaze in the cab of a tanker truck loaded with fuel oil.

Another fire was touched off by an apparent Molotov cocktail in a trash container at the Paul Bruce Manufacturing Co.

which employs about 200 people making shirts.

The third bombing attempt was at the Edward Fork Commissary where a Mason jar apparently containing liquid and a wick was thrown through a window. It did not go off.

Town Attorney Kitchin Josey, a state representative from Halifax County, quoted police as saying someone apparently crawled over the fence at the oil plant and placed the Molotov cocktail in the truck. Josey said the oil plant is about two blocks from the shirt factory and he theorized "it could well have been the same person."

NO MACHINE GUNS

What limitations on the citizens' right to bear arms exist? For instance, there's a lot of talk now about Saturday night specials, but is it possible to own guns at the other end of the spectrum, say sub-machine guns? E. W.

According to Glenn Cannon, chief of the Greenville police, a citizen could own a machine gun if the proper procedure was followed, but it would be difficult. Chief Cannon said a permit to own a machine gun would have to be obtained from the federal government, but very few (understandably) are given.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Brooks Oakley added that handguns, rifles and shotguns are permissible, but again that no fully automatic weapon (which would include the machine guns) can be possessed in the home without a permit.

Both law enforcement officials emphasized that all guns must be registered.

INSURANCE PROBLEM

I need to cash in two life insurance policies belonging to my grandmother. One policy is with Continental Life Insurance and the other is with Home Securities Life Insurance. Neither of these companies has a branch in Greenville, and I wonder if you could find out the name and address of a representative for each of these companies. C.H.

We talked with Armetta McPherson in the consumer division of the Commissioner of Insurance office in Raleigh. For information regarding the Home Securities policy, you may write Mr. William A. Dula, assistant vice president, Home Securities Life Insurance Co., P. O. Box 61, Durham, N.C., 27702.

If the Continental Life Insurance policy was issued before 1950, you will need to contact the Southland Life Insurance Company. According to Ms. McPherson, Continental merged with Southland in October, 1950. Correspondence to Southland should be addressed to Mr. R. L. Dillard, Jr., Southland Insurance Co., 1105 Southland Center, Dallas, Texas, 75201.

Candidate For Lt. Gov. Outlines His Platform

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

C. A. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, outlined his political platform here Tuesday, with emphasis on law and order, education, framing, tax reform and utility rates.

Brown, 33-year-old auctioneer from Maxton in Robeson County, visited Greenville during the eastern segment of a campaign swing across the state.

"I believe in capital punishment," he offered, observing that the controversial program is the "only way to make our streets and sidewalks safe."

Brown cited the state's overcrowded prisons and contended that a return to the road work program rather than spending money on attempting to rehabilitate felons would be a good crime deterrent.

The rehabilitation system has obviously been unsuccessful, the candidate added, in view of the crowded prison conditions and he disagreed with paying inmates to work. Brown added that capital punishment should apply to the persons currently on death row in the state prison.

He asserted that politicians have overlooked the mentally retarded and handicapped and suggested that teachers be employed in every public school to teach them some type of trade.

Brown said that he would like to see the state sales tax removed from food purchases, pointing out that senior citizens and people on Social Security suffer most from the tax burden.

"I would like to see the tax taken off food and added to alcoholic beverages," he continued. Noting that it would take substantial revenue to offset the loss of food tax funds, Brown proposed, "If it takes 20 cents (tax), then add that much to alcoholic beverages."

Seek Toll-Free Grifton-Greenville Telephone

By SUSAN QUINN Reflector Staff Writer

Toll-free telephone service from Grifton to Greenville is a service that many Grifton citizens are requesting now. The reason Grifton citizens are requesting the toll-free connection is because the towns of Grifton and Fountain are the only two towns in Pitt County that must pay toll charges to call the county seat.

The Grifton Chamber of Commerce has discussed the possibility of requesting the toll-free service during the past few months and has issued petitions to Grifton citizens and to Ayden citizens.

The following Grifton citizens were asked to express their opinions concerning the toll-free service.

"It would benefit me quite a bit," Walter Whitehurst owner and operator of the Blue Strawberry Restaurant said.

"I own two businesses in Grifton, but I live in Ayden so I think that I could save about $25 a month on toll charges if I could call Ayden toll-free.

"The majority of the people of Grifton are Kinston oriented so the Kinston toll-free exchange is beneficial. I support the toll free exchange to Greenville and I have signed the petitions three times, once for each phone."

"I live in the Lenoir County part of Grifton and having the toll-free exchange does not bother me," Pauline Murphy said.

"I would favor the toll-free exchange service because most of my friends live in Pitt County and it would be nice to talk to them without charge," Dorothy Baker said.

AF Seeks 100 Women For Training As Antiterrorists

By K. MACK SISK
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Air Force is looking for 100 women this summer to undergo antiterrorist combat training which could go a long way in determining how tough female assignments will become in future military service.

The women will go through basic training and security police school at Lackland AFB beginning in October, then will participate in the rugged antiterrorist program at Camp Bullis, 20 miles northwest of this city, where the Air Force operates the world's largest police academy.

Five female officers already have completed successfully the program which involves the tossing of grenades, firing of M16 rifles, M60 machineguns, M79 grenade launchers and the use of illumination devices and mines. The training also covers map and compass reading, land navigation, field hygiene, camouflage concealment, fire movement, combat tactics, counterattack techniques, field patrol and riot control.

The grand finale of the strenuous training involves a 24-hour realistic test in which trainees ward off their own instructors posing as heavily armed terrorists. During the period, sleep is a luxury, and the women will eat C-rations on the run through the rugged terrain of Camp Bullis. Lt. Col. William K. Rector, acting head of the program, said he liked what he saw so far with the first five women, and predicts the 100 females who will go through the training will open up the security field to them permanently.

"We think they can do it, but it's never been tried before," Rector said.

After completing the course, the women will be assigned to four USAF installations in the United States and abroad for a year's observation, "then we'll determine whether it's a go or a no go," Rector said.

Women already have been widely integrated into the security police forces of air force bases and have performed admirably "taking their normal knocks just like the guys," Rector said, but this will be the first time they will be exposed to combat-type situations at installations where there are threats of terrorist attacks.

The Air Force already has entrusted to women security officers the safety of bases throughout the service, but the antiterrorist trainees will be assigned to flight lines and missile sites more susceptible to terrorist threats. Rector said their admission to the Air Force Academy in Colorado this year and future training of female pilots cleared the way for an expanded female role in combat situations formerly limited to men.

Pretty Hat Picture Painted For Summer

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE FASHION SUN is offered by Fabiani with his brilliant-toned, hand-painted lightweight panama straw hats. Supplanting the traditional ribbon and flower trim on summer hats, these decorations offer a vivid range of colors and patterns matched to the silhouette of the hat. Eye-catching, if a ceframing and sun-shading, these hats add a chic "go-anywhere" look to a warm weather wardrobe. From left, the ever-popular big brim

"picture" hat's bold trim at the crown is in tasteful tandem with the sweep of the brim; softly flattering, the large down-brim straw reflects the newly popular mood of charming femininity, with the accent of an understated painted banding at the crown; feminine and flirtatious, the modified, side-tilt cowboy shape supports a bold and full trim at the crown; the small, snap-brim cloche shape is total chic with bold stripe tones at the crown repeated in throat kerchief.

Have Lawyer To Answer Questions

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-A. T. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What do you give a man who has everything?

I.M. SERIOUS

DEAR SERIOUS: If I were with the Internal Revenue Department, I'd give him an audit!

DEAR ABBY: I plan to be married soon. We both have grown children by previous marriages. I have some property, savings, etc., that I want my children to have, and I do not wish any of it shared with the children of my spouse-to-be.

Assuming that I die first, how can this be accomplished and still allow my spouse the use of my assets during her lifetime?

Are prenuptial agreements legally binding? Or should another written document be prepared and notarized? Could my wishes as stated in a properly executed will be ignored? Sign me...

"IN LOVE AND IN DOUBT"

DEAR IN: Unless you want to add "IN TROUBLE" to your signature, I urge you to have all of your questions answered by your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me? I have a problem with my thoughts. Because we needed the income, my wife and I rented our spare room to a young woman. I never would have done it had I known how it would affect me.

This young lady has her own friends and regards me as an "old codger," but I must confess that I have been having some very impure and indecent thoughts about her. Isn't there some medicine I can take to clear away unwanted thoughts? How about the tiny electric shocks they give rapists? (Like from two penlight batteries?) I hope you won't think I am an evil-minded old man. There must be other men past 75 with my problem. I might add, my wife cannot respond to me.

DEEP DOWN

DEAR DEEP: I admire your honesty and integrity. I consulted a psychiatrist about your problem, and he said that under similar circumstances, he might be proud and pleased to have such healthy masculine feelings at your age—which is nothing to be ashamed of.

But since this young woman's presence makes you feel guilty and ashamed, why not rent the room to another "old codger"? The psychiatrist recommends that you forget about electric shock and says there is no medicine that will abolish sexual fantasies—short of a general anesthetic.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FOURTEEN AND WORRIED STIFF": Tell your mother today. I promise you she will not kick you out of the house. If you just can't tell her, please send me your name and address. I think I can help you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

WINE VIRTUES

AVIGNON, France (UPI) — The nutritional virtues of wine were reviewed by an enology professor at the International Symposium of Wines of the World here.

Maynard Amerine, a professor emeritus at the University of California-Davis, said a half-liter of wine supplies about 40 per cent of the adult daily requirement for iron and at least 10 vitamins in significant amounts, especially the B-group vitamins, including thiamine and riboflavin.

Amerine said more than half of the 20 growth factors needed for human well-being are present in wine.

Homemaker's Haven

By Addie Gore
Pitt Home Agent

Pickle products truly add spice to meals or snacks. The skillful blending of spices, sugar, and vinegar with fruits and vegetables gives crisp, firm texture and pungent, sweet-sour flavor.

Pickles and relishes contribute some nutritive value, contain little or no fat, and, except for the sweet type, are low in calories.

Although food markets today offer a wide variety of pickles and relishes, many homemakers like to make their own pickle products when garden vegetables and fresh fruits are in abundant supply.

Fresh-pack or quick process pickles, such as crosscut cucumber slices and whole cucumber dills, sweet gherkins, and dilled green beans, are brined several hours or overnight, then drained and combined with boiling-hot vinegar, spices, and other seasonings. These are quick and easy to prepare. They have a tart, pungent flavor. Seasonings can be selected to suit individual family preferences. Fresh-pack whole cucumbers are olive green, crisp, tender, and firm.

Satisfactory pickle products can be obtained only when good-quality ingredients are used and proper procedures are followed. Correct proportions of fruit or vegetable, sugar, salt, vinegar, and spices are essential. Alum and lime are not needed to make pickles crisp and firm if good-quality ingredients and up-to-date procedures are used.

Use tested recipes. Read the complete recipe before starting preparation. Make sure necessary ingredients are on hand. Measure or weigh all ingredients carefully.

Use pure granulated salt if available. Un-iodized table salt can be used, but the materials added to the salt to prevent caking may make the brine cloudy. Do not use iodized table salt; it may darken pickles.

Use a high-grade cider or white distilled vinegar of 4- to 6-percent acidity (40 to 60 grain). Vinegars of unknown acidity should not be used. Cider vinegar, with its mellow acid taste, gives a nice blending of flavors, but may darken white or light-colored fruits and vegetables. White distilled vinegar has a sharp, pungent, acetic acid taste and is desirable when light color is important, as with pickled pears, onions, and cauliflower.

Do not dilute the vinegar unless the recipe so specifies. If a less sour product is preferred, add sugar rather than decrease vinegar.

Use fresh spices for best flavor in pickles. Spices deteriorate and quickly lose their pungency in heat and humidity. If they cannot be used immediately, they should be stored in an airtight container in a cool place.

Pickle products require heat treatment to destroy organisms that cause spoilage, and to inactivate enzymes that may affect flavor, color, and texture. Adequate heating is best achieved by processing the filled jars in a boiling-water bath.

Heat processing is recommended for all pickle products. There is always danger of spoilage organisms entering the food when it is transferred from kettle to jar. This is true even when the utmost caution is observed and is the reason open-kettle canning is not recommended.

Problems Of Coping With Baby Is Program Study Topic

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Many first-time mothers prepare themselves far better for childbirth than for the child care that comes afterward, a University of Michigan researcher says.

"They take classes, exercise and read technical manuals to prepare for the delivery. But it seems to be assumed that when the infant arrives, natural instinct will take over."

"In reality, the new mother finds she needs a lot of information and especially, reassurance," said Joan Bowker, doctoral candidate in psychology and an instructor at the UM-Dearborn. "At this point, she almost invariably turns to one resource — her own mother."

This pattern appeared again and again in Mrs. Bowker's study, "The First Baby: Crisis and Coping in the First Three Months." She interviewed 60 women two days after their babies were born and, again, after the first 12 weeks at home. Although they varied widely in age, education level and life styles, Mrs. Bowker focused her comparisons on their adjustments to motherhood.

Different people play different roles in this transition, she found. Professional instructors are consulted about giving birth; the maternal grandmother is urged to come after the baby arrives; and the husband's emotional support is seen as crucial throughout the period.

But the responsibility for a smooth adjustment lies within the woman herself, Mrs. Bowker noted.

"The women who were really unhappy during the first three months seldom blamed their babies," the UM researcher said, "but took it out on themselves. One of the things they mentioned most was feeling isolated."

"In many cases, the couple had just moved to a new house or apartment to accommodate the new baby, so they lacked neighborhood ties. Also, the birth of the first child tends to accelerate the husband's career striving, so that he may work longer hours away from the home."

Most of the women in Mrs. Bowker's study had worked during at least the early months of their pregnancies. Retaining ties with former co-workers and other friends helped alleviate feelings of being cut off from the active world.

"The mother who made a happier adjustment to infant care had foreseen that the baby would not absorb every moment of their time, and planned ahead to either return to work or to get involved in some hobby, handicraft, or other home activity," Mrs. Bowker said. "They viewed the baby's arrival as an opportunity to expand their lives, rather than limit them."

"Birth control has granted women an enormous power of decision," Mrs. Bowker observed. "This power is limited only by age. National research shows that most couples who want children want two, and for health reasons, it is advantageous to complete the pregnancies before the woman is 30."

"Thus, the women feel they must decide in their mid-20s, at a time when they are most likely enjoying their freedom, relative affluence, and careers.

"To many women, motherhood represents status and accomplishment. But to others, it causes a loss of identity. 'First I became Tom's wife, then Bob's mother,' one woman said. 'What happened to me?'"

"Mothers no longer merely aim to keep their children 'safe and sound'; they must be intellectually stimulated, and psychologically stable. Even in the first three months they reflected this."

To make the task seem less awesome, Mrs. Bowker suggests that women expose themselves to infants before their own is born — learn what a cry sounds like, and what a feeding schedule entails.

"Furthermore, plan for your own time at home as well as the baby's," she advised. "Prepare to keep in contact with that part of the world you most value, whether it be job, hobbies, or just people."

Be Qualified For N.C. Primary

As the state primary approaches, citizens who are qualified to vote but are not registered have a few more days to get their names on the books. The primary is Aug. 17 and Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, says that registration books will be open until July 19. In addition to new voters, those who have changed their names or addresses should see that the changes are made on the voter registration books.

Registration can be done at the Board of Elections office at 201 E. Second Street with office hours normally 8:30 to 5. However, Miss Register said that Thursday and Friday the office will be open until 7 o'clock in the evening to accommodate county citizens.

Registrars will also be at a number of designated places throughout the county including the local libraries when appointed registrars are on duty. It is well to remember, though, that those who do not register by 5 p.m. Monday will not be eligible to vote in the upcoming primary.

We cannot emphasize too much how important it is in a Democracy for every eligible citizen to vote. Voting, however requires that our names be listed on the registration books, and that must be done in the next few days.

We would urge our readers who have not done so to register.

Running Mate Will Be Carter's Choice

Even as the Jimmy Carter nomination as the Democratic presidential candidate nears, it is still a question as to who he will choose as his vice presidential running mate.

It has been customary for the presidential candidate to keep quiet about his running mate until the presidential nomination is complete. We can be sure though that Carter will absolutely have his way as to whom he will be running with. It would be rare indeed for a convention to fail to honor the presidential candidate's wishes on this matter.

Tax Value Books Debated

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Many months before a countywide tax revaluation takes place, the local board of county commissioners must adopt a price guidebook called a schedule of values.

With that manual in hand, appraisers are supposed to be able to come up with a fair market value for any piece of real estate so that taxpayers feel they are being treated fairly and equally.

After 30 days for public review, the book becomes law, even though it may set up deliberately lower prices on particular kinds (or even specific tracts) of land, and can be used by county commissioners to effectively control the tax values on select pieces of property.

Confusion "And the average person doesn't really know what the schedule of values is, or how to challenge it. And once that 30 days passes without challenge, you are out of business. When the schedule is applied to your property in revaluation, it is binding," says Doug R. Holbrook, director of the ad valorem division of the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Can the bulky, technical, complex book be effectively used by appraisers who come to fix the tax value on your property?

"Probably not. Can any person from outside take a big thick book and tell you what your house can be appraised at? Especially when it was drawn up a year and a half back?" Holbrook wonders.

He thinks the answer is obvious: that the system is the opposite of fair, and the format often is used to confuse taxpayers rather than help them.

A drastic shift in procedure is necessary to protect the property tax system from irate citizens, Holbrook thinks. He defends the property tax on real estate as an essential and good part of the formula for taxation in North Carolina.

To resolve the problems, he feels, three essential steps are required: —The schedule of values should not be legally binding; rather, appraisers should use construction figures, true sales figures on comparable real estate, and data from building supply sources to reach a "reasonable and defensible market value."

—County Commissioners should not adopt the schedule; the tax supervisor should do that so he could be held solely and personally accountable by taxpayers and officials.

—The whole appraising process should be wide open and understandable to the public.

Public Display "We ought to paste tax maps of the county all over the walls of the tax office and write in the prices so everybody can see every parcel of land and see how his compares and how others are valued," Holbrook said.

"As it is now, nobody can figure out the results. The tax supervisor ought to develop reasonable guidelines so people can see how various kinds of property is being appraised." "The goal is, to reach market value in a fair and equitable way. Certainly, people will protest that inflation is causing their property value to go up . . . but they will feel they are being treated fairly.

"The appraisal system must be loose, and not rigid. It must be based on present conditions. And it should not be capable of being used as a format to confuse people," Holbrook thinks.

Other steps are under consideration by a legislative study group on property taxes, including training local employees to conduct revaluation instead of the outside appraisal firms which invariably produce results leading to public protest; and revaluation more often than every eight years, a process which results in too-sharp increases in values and results in protest.

Also, some thought is going to a statewide appraisal book and schedule of values imposed from state government to guarantee fair and equal treatment from county to county.

Doubt Hanoi's Goals

By GEORGE GEDDA Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though Vietnam is normalizing relations with its neighbors, State Department officials believe the Communist state may still be interested in military domination of Southeast Asia.

The skepticism about Vietnam's intentions is based partly on a recent statement by the Vietnamese foreign minister, whose rhetoric suggested Hanoi's traditional support for insurgents will continue in the area.

When South Vietnam fell in April 1975, there was general agreement among U.S. officials that Hanoi would step up support of rebel movements. The ultimate goal, officials said at the time, was an all-Communist Southeast Asia under Hanoi's leadership.

"The only question in our minds was whether Hanoi would move quickly or slowly," one official said Tuesday. "Obviously, they haven't moved quickly, but it's still too early to tell what their long-range intentions are."

In a statement two weeks ago, Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said Vietnam "fully supports the Southeast Asian people's just cause of national independence, peace, democracy and social progress."

U.S. officials said that is Hanoi's standard line for opposition to U.S. influence in Southeast Asia and support for insurgent groups.

A major source of U.S. concern is the eventual use of American military equipment captured by the Communists at the end of the war.

It was announced Monday that the newly reunified Vietnam has agreed to establish ties with The Philippines and plans to receive a delegation from Thailand next month to discuss diplomatic relations.

Since the end of the war, The Philippines and Thailand have asserted a greater independence from the United States. Officials believe Hanoi took this into account in deciding to normalize ties with the two countries.

The Philippines has established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries

That Victory For Amin

WASHINGTON—While the Western press has been giving the Israeli army credit for pulling off one of the great military operations of modern times, no one has taken note of the fantastic success of Field Marshal Idi Amin Dada in driving out the invaders from his country in less than an hour.

According to a military spokesman in Entebbe, the Ugandan army repulsed the invasion of Entebbe and drove off the hostile troops, forcing them to flee Uganda by plane. As of this writing, the Entebbe Airport is still in Ugandan hands and Israel suffered a terrible defeat when their soldiers had to return home in disgrace.

An admirer of Field Marshal Amin told me,

"Everyone keeps talking about the Israeli success, but no one gives credit to the field marshal for rallying his troops and preventing Israel from taking over the country."

"I never thought of it that way, but it's true. If Amin still holds the Entebbe Airport, that means the Ugandans won," I said.

"Exactly. The field marshal has given Israel a thrashing they'll never forget. They'll think twice before they send commandos into his country again."

"Was the field marshal expecting them?"

"Of course, he was. Field Marshal Amin has one of the greatest military minds of the 20th century. He was aware that the Israelis would try something, and he had all his troops alerted."

"But why did he leave to attend a meeting of the Organization of African States if he knew the Israelis were going to invade his country?"

"To catch them off guard. That was part of the plan. The Israelis were lulled into a false sense of security when they saw Amin boarding a plane for the OAS conference. 'Big Daddy' knew that as soon as he left the Israelis would put their disastrous plan into effect."

"And he was right. The ruse worked."

"It certainly did. The Israelis flew their commandos 2,600 miles to the Entebbe Airport and found themselves surrounded by crack Ugandan troops. They had no choice but to pick up the hostages and high-tail it out of there, or they would have been annihilated."

"Where was Big Daddy while all this was going on?"

"The Israelis thought he was at the OAS conference, but he was at his command post in his bunker, directing the defense of the airport."

"Why didn't Big Daddy send up his MIG-21s and MIG-17s to repulse the invasion?"

"That was another ruse the field marshal pulled off. He knew the Israelis wanted him to send up his fighter planes so they could shoot them down. So he kept his fighters on the ground and gave his pilots the night off. This threw the Israeli strategy completely off, and they were forced to blow up the field marshal's planes on the ground. The Israelis were so busy blowing up Big Daddy's planes they never had time to capture the airport."

"I never thought of it that way, but when you look back on it, it was a military stroke of genius," I said in admiration.

"The field marshal counted on surprise, deception and reading the enemy's mind. He knew that he had to hold the airport at all cost. When the Israelis realized what they were up against, they

Other Editors Say Fiscal Restraint

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The fantasy-ridden Humphrey-Hawkins bill as a means of providing jobs in this country is comparable to pouring gasoline on a fire to quench it. Its authors demonstrate that after more than 40 years of government deficit financing, they are still ignorant of basic economics.

On the other hand, the essential condition for creating productive new jobs—not federal make-work schemes—is to bring the federal budget at least to proximate balance within the next few years.

The way to do this is to hold the annual increase of federal spending to a low rate. That's what Professor Raymond Saulnier, of Columbia University, believes, and he has listed some of his thoughts on this crucial issue.

His conclusion is that the only route to achieving the employment goals to which everyone subscribes is to move the federal budget toward balance through a determined policy of expenditure restraint.

This year's expected budget deficit of more than $70 billion is two and a half times as large relative to gross national product as the average deficit incurred in the years 1930 through 1974.

Proposals to increase federal spending at a still faster rate and to run a still larger deficit have lost their earlier credibility. As a result most analysts have moved away from the standard approach to national economic manipulation of the federal budget.

The proposed federal budget deficit has caused Treasury financing to dominate credit markets. Experience shows that even when private credit demands are depressed, a federal deficit in the $75 billion range can be financed without sharply rising interest rates only when accompanied by a 9 to 10 per cent increase in the broadly defined money supply.

"The rub is that a 9 to 10 per cent increase in the money supply virtually ordains inflation at 5 to 6 per cent a year," Saulnier warns, "and we know that 5 to 6 per cent inflation is a serious block in the vigorous promotion of high and rising levels of employment."

Good Economic Year Forecast

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — While the Democrats in convention assembled castigate the economic policy of President Ford, a Jimmy Carter economic adviser believes the current recovery will continue strong for another year or more.

This is the latest report by the forecast team at the Wharton School, which uses a statistical or econometric model of the economy to make its projections. Its most prominent member is Lawrence Klein, a Carter adviser.

Issued on June 11, the forecast seems to indicate that whoever is elected President of the United States this fall should be able to enjoy a fairly strong economy during his first year in office.

Democrats, although the computer model used by Klein and his associates apparently is aseptically apolitical.

So much so, in fact, that nowhere in the material released to the news media is there any indication of how presidential economics could affect the findings, when of course they do. Sometimes unintentionally.

Democrats can easily recall, for example, that while President Ford takes credit for the improving state of the economy, he was actively seeking a tax increase at the very time the worst recession since the 1930s was under way.

Looking back it is recognized that perhaps what was needed at the time was the precise opposite, a tax cut, a conclusion to which his Pelting rains in three northwest states brought hope of general relief today from the lethal heat wave which gripped the nation for 11 days, causing upward of 1,878 deaths.

Relief was promised by forecasters tomorrow in Illinois, contributor of almost 300 to the nation-wide heat death toll, and Michigan, where more than 400 died.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd at Chicago said the break in the northwest provided evidence that the cool front was breaking its way through what he described as a circular wall of hot air piled up in the great central farm belt.

Jim Smith, who operates a grocery store and filling station near Ayden, was surprised when he attempted to put change in his cash register Monday. He pulled out the drawer and found a large white oak snake quietly keeping vigil. —Barbara Mathews

THE INSIDE REPORT

Ex-Im Bank Is Under Fire

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A potent weapon is about to be introduced into an intense backstage Washington struggle to pressure the Export-Import Bank to reduce interest rates for Poland, thereby assuring $200 million for the depressed U.S. machine tool industry.

The weapon: a tautly-worded letter from Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, to Stephen M. DuBrul, Jr., Ex-Im Bank president.

Although Anderson's letter does not say so, intimates of the Congressman report it is only his first of many such moves. Their intent is to compel the bank to offer better terms for Poland's purchase of machine tools here for the new truck plant to be built in Poland by General Motors.

Few East-West deals have provoked such strong political passions as the GM truck deal for Poland. Therefore, more powerful influences than Anderson and other congressional leaders may be needed to bring down interest rates. It may take President Ford, intervening to replace flinty banking policies with more flexible procedures for East-West deals not involving U.S. security.

The issue is simple. With interest rates to finance the purchase of the machine tools far lower abroad (6.5 per cent in France) than the 9 per cent rate proposed to Poland by the Ex-Im bank, Poland naturally is turning elsewhere.

But the Poles so prefer American-manufactured tools that they probably would pay 8 to 8½ per cent interest. Nevertheless, DuBrul and the bank refuse to permit lower rates, despite one instance of mild but direct White House intervention by Presidential economic aide William Seidman.

DuBrul may well eventually compromise, but by then it could be too late. For now, DuBrul appears more concerned by pro-labor congressional critics decrying federally subsidized financing of a foreign truck plant than he is by the $200 million windfall in new business for the recession-bound machine tool industry.

Top AFL-CIO lobbyist Andrew Biemiller took big labor's opposition directly to Ex-Im Bank officials, arguing that some of the 1 to 5 ½-ton trucks to be manufactured in Poland might turn up for sale here. DuBrul was impressed. In truth, however, the trucks are being built to environmental specifications lower than those in the U.S. and probably could not be imported here.

Although the Ex-Im Bank should "facilitate exports" by providing credits unavailable at commercial banks, DuBrul tells critics its mandate also requires it to be "self-sustaining"—no loans at rates lower than its borrowing costs. In fact, the record shows that Ex-Im is in no danger. Last year, it returned more than $110 million to the Treasury.

One former Ex-Im Bank president told us DuBrul is too tight-fisted, partly because of pressures from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) which would like to convert Ex-Im into a money-maker.

When Secretary of State Henry Kissinger pointed out adverse foreign policy im-

COMPREHENSIVE RELIGION

To be religious means to be religious in every part of our lives.

Many people are religious in certain aspects of their lives and thoroughly irreligious in all the rest. One of the most notorious political bosses of the late nineteenth century kept the state he dominated absolutely closed to any commercial activity on Sunday because he remembered his mother's great reverence for the Sabbath. In every other aspect of his life he was the completely unscrupulous and corrupt politician.

The one thing which has made certain men great spiritual leaders among their fellows has been the fact that they have been religious on all occasions. St. Paul, for example, was not religious one day and secular the next. The truly religious person believes in God and relies upon him in the smallest detail of daily living. Sincerity, consistency, and faith are indispensable characteristics of sound and wholesome religion. —By Elisha Douglas

'Birthday Boy' Is An Underdog

WASHINGTON (AP) — He began his 64th year today as an underdog, slicing a birthday cake that urged him to "Give 'em Hell, Jerry."

The birthday boy is Gerald

Ford. The unnamed "em" mentioned on the cake, could be Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter or both. Carter becomes the Democratic presidential nominee tonight and polls show he leads Ford in surveys gauging their relative popularity with voters.

President Ford was to take his semi-annual physical today, with electrocardiogram and standard lab tests by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash and that crimped an early birthday celebration.

Ford was the pre-game star at Tuesday night's baseball All-Star game and the celebration of his birthday began on the flight home from Philadelphia. Ford's staff brought out a birthday cake with five candles and the legend suggesting the presidential campaign of Harry Truman, an incumbent underdog who won.

Ford, confronted with the birthday cake, was reminded that he should not be eating prior to a physical exam. Turning to Lukash, Ford asked, "Couldn't it be postponed for 24 hours?" Lukash firmly shook his head in the negative.

So Ford cut the cake and passed pieces out to people on the plane. He did not eat a slice himself.

As the Democratic convention ground on in New York Tuesday night, Ford tossed out the first pitch at the All-Star game — twice, first with his left hand, then his right.

Ford straddled onto the diamond, arms around managers Sparky Anderson of the National League and Darrell Johnson of the American League as a band played "Hail to the Chief."

Red, white and blue balloons by the hundreds were released from beyond the centerfield wall. Fireworks lit the sky and water fountains sprayed into the air over a replica of Independence Hall.

Before the game, the Presi-

Four Killed On N.C. Highway

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Four farm workers on their way to work in eastern North Carolina tobacco fields were killed Tuesday when a tractor-trailer swerved off Interstate 40, striking them as they stood beside their disabled pickup truck, authorities said.

Sgt. D.J. Caudle of the Highway Patrol identified three of the victims as Jerry Crumb, 26, of Detroit, Mich.; Clarence Turner, 41 of LaFollette, Tenn.; and John R. Heynes, about 30, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Caudle said the fourth man was not identified.

The field hands were riding in the back of a pickup driven by William E. Guy of Four Oaks when the pickup had a flat tire, Caudle said.

He said Guy had picked the men up at the Volunteer Helper Mission in Knoxville, Tenn., offering them several months work. Guy did not know the names of the farm workers he was transporting, Caudle said, and was unable to help in the identification of the fourth victim.

Guy pulled about four feet off the highway and began changing the tire, Caudle said.

"They were hit as pedestrians," Guy said of the victims. "They were milling around this pickup truck, on the traffic side. He must've knocked them down like a picket fence."

Caudle said the driver of the tractor trailer, Jack Hollingsworth, 45, of Antioch, Tenn., was charged with death by vehicle and released on $2,000 bond. Caudle said Hollingsworth was driving the truck for the Tennessee-Carolina Trucking Co., and was not injured.

The pickup was not struck. Guy suffered minor injuries and was treated at a hospital and released, Caudle said.

Caudle described the Volunteer Helper Mission as a church related center that helps destitute men.

The incident occurred about five miles inside the North Carolina border on I-40, north of Waynesville.

Evans-Novak....

Evans-Novak, a DuBrul-led holdout against lowered interest rates for a proposed RCA television factory in Poland, DuBrul replied to Kissinger that foreign policy is not in the bank's mandate. The RCA-Poland deal finally was arranged—but only because RCA alone could provide the needed technology. Poland had to swallow high interest rates.

No such inducement is available for the GM truck plant. Top Polish officials can buy everything they need in West Germany, Britain, Italy and Japan.

National security is not an issue. Hard-line anti-Soviet politicians have expressed little unhappiness over the truck deal for Poland. "Poland is not the Soviet Union," we were told by an intimate of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who led the battle against giving Moscow Ex-Im Bank privileges.

Still, DuBrul holds fast to his 9 per cent interest rate, in the face of warnings from Warsaw that the machine tools will have to be contracted for soon—if not here, then elsewhere. DuBrul may be bluffing, hoping the Poles will meet his terms. But Anderson and other congressional leaders, along with key officials in the Ford administration, will soon push for presidential help to end the game.

The political reality can be found in John Anderson's congressional district, one of the nation's largest machine tool centers. Unemployment is high there, the election campaign is heating up, and $200 million in new business would help. If DuBrul does not understand that today, he will very soon.

Libertarians To Run Candidates

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina's newest political party has only 50 members but plans to field candidates for president, vice president, governor, Congress and some state offices.

The Libertarian Party has attracted a few but dedicated supporters, and state chairman Bert Weiner says they include "anarchists, former Communists, former right-wingers, freaks and straights."

"What we're trying to do is obtain political power in order to destroy it, in order to let people choose their own values and let people live according to them," Bert Wiener, 25, of Charlotte, said.

"We want to leave others alone and have the government leave us alone," Weiner said.

In North Carolina, the party's appeal is directed at a few specialized groups, Weiner said. They include motorcyclists, because the party disapproves of legislation requiring protective helmets; homosexuals, because the party advocates repeal of "victimless" crimes; and drug users, because the party advocates repeal of drug laws.

The party acquired more than 10,000 signatures of registered voters to be placed on the state ballot. The Libertarians have called a state convention July 24 and 25 in Raleigh to nominate candidates for office.

The party has already held a national convention, nominating Roger L. MacBride, 46, of Charlottesville, Va., as its candidate for president.

¼ cup salt
1 quart vinegar
1 quart water
3 tablespoons mixed pickling spices
30 to 40 medium cucumbers, cut in half lengthwise
Green or dry dill

Combine sugar, salt, vinegar and water. Tie spices in a cheesecloth bag; add to vinegar mixture; simmer 15 minutes. Pack cucumbers into hot jars, leaving ½ inch head space; put a head of dill in each jar. Heat brine to boiling. Pour boiling hot vinegar mixture over cucumbers, leaving ¼ inch head space. Adjust caps. Process pints and quarts 15 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield: about 7 pints. (Taken from Ball Blue Book)

Kosher Pickles - Short Method

Follow recipe for Dill Pickles - Short Method. When packing cucumbers, add 1 clove garlic, 1 bay leaf, ½ teaspoon mustard seed and 1 piece hot red pepper to each jar. Process as recommended in Dill Pickle-Short Method recipe. (Taken from Ball Blue Book)

Dill Pickles - Fresh Kosher Style

30 to 36 cucumbers (3-4 inches long)
3 cups vinegar
3 cups water
6 tablespoons salt
Fresh or dried dill
Garlic
Mustard Seed

Wash the cucumbers. Make a brine of the vinegar, water and salt. Bring to boil. Place a generous layer of dill, ½ to 1 clove of garlic (sliced) and ½ tablespoon of mustard seed in bottom of each sterilized quart jar. Pack the cucumbers into the jars. When the jars are half filled with cucumbers add more dill and complete the packing of the jars. Fill the jars to within ½ inch of the top with the boiling brine. Put caps on jars, screw the band firmly tight. Process 20 minutes in boiling water bath. Pickles will shrivel after processing. They will later plump in sealed jar. (Taken from Kerr Home Canning and Freezing Book)

Fresh-Pack Dill Pickles

17-18 pounds cucumbers (3 to 5 inches in length)
2 gallons brine (¾ cup pure granulated salt per gallon of water)
6 cups vinegar
¾ cup pure granulated salt
¼ cup sugar
9 cups water
2 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spice
Whole mustard seed
Garlic (optional)
Dill (fresh or dried) or Dill seed

Wash cucumbers thoroughly; scrub with vegetable brush; drain. Cover with the brine. Let set overnight; drain.

Combine vinegar, salt, sugar, water, and mixed pickling spices that are tied in a clean, thin, white cloth; heat to boiling. Pack cucumbers into clean, hot quart jars. Add 2 teaspoons whole mustard seed per quart jar, 3 heads of dill, fresh or dried, per quart jar (or 1 tablespoon dill seed per quart jar), and 1 or 2 cloves garlic per quart jar. Cover with boiling liquid to within ½ inch of top of jar. Adjust jar lids.

Process in boiling water bath for 20 minutes (start to count the processing time as soon as hot jars are placed into the actively boiling water).

Remove jars and complete seals if necessary. Set jars upright, several inches apart, on a wire rack to cool. (Taken from USDA Home and Garden Bulletin No. 92)

Colombia Giving Signs Of Going 'Soft On Drugs'

By PIETER VAN BENNEKOM
BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Colombia, the world's major distribution and processing center for cocaine and an increasingly important marijuana producer, has lowered the penalties for possession of small quantities of drugs.

The possession of one ounce of marijuana or less for personal use is now a misdemeanor, no longer a felony.

But the government of President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen vehemently denies Colombia is going "soft on drugs."

The new measures are only a long-overdue recognition of the fact that traffickers and users should be dealt with differently, according to administration spokesmen.

Drug traffickers will be prosecuted with renewed vigor, they said.

Judges may still impose a jail sentence of up to two months, but they also have the power to suspend sentence and just levy a fine.

The same treatment was given to possession of 12 grams or less of cocaine, a drug which is rarely grown in Colombia but clandestinely imported from other South American countries in large quantities for processing at illicit laboratories and re-export to the lucrative North American market.

When the measures were first announced, they were widely interpreted in the local press to mean the legalization of marijuana and cocaine.

Church and civic groups, as well as conservative politicians, touched off storms of protest and Justice Minister Samuel Hoyos Arango was at great pains to explain that the softened drug law meant no such thing.

"I was misquoted and misinterpreted at every step," Hoyos said. "People just didn't understand what we are trying to do."

To some extent, the new laws can be attributed to a subtle campaign by American officials to pressure Colombia into doing more at home to stop the drug flow to the United States.

One of the arguments in the U.S. drive was that Colombia was beginning to have a drug problem itself and that it was in Colombia's interest as well as the United States to stop the drug traffic at the source.

The U.S. Information Service published the results of an American study showing drug abuse on the increase at the high school level in Barranquilla on the Caribbean coast and a series of top-level American visitors, from the administration as well as Congress, have paraded down to Colombia in the past few months outlining the American point of view.

Their argument invariably was that Colombia could not be untouched by all the drugs passing through its territory, that something was bound to rub off.

Other export countries like France had come to repent their earlier uncooperative attitudes towards the United States on the drug problem, they said.

The campaign may have produced a realization on the part of the Colombian government that there was a user's market domestically, albeit a small one compared to the United States, and led to the overhaul of Colombian drug legislation.

Local laws hitherto had not distinguished between traffickers and users. Everyone found in possession of drugs was automatically presumed to be a trafficker, probably because local use was so rare, and liable for a minimum three-year jail sentence.

The new law reflects the new philosophy.

U.S. officials say they are not worried that drug traffickers will now have an open season in Colombia.

They say they are more worried about cutting off the supply at the source and would prefer that police use their full energies in the drive against the big fish, rather than mercilessly pursuing small users.

Robert DuPont, head of the U.S. National Institute on Drug Abuse, said as much in a recent speech to Colombian newspaper editors. It is counter-productive, he said, to the overall objectives of the drug drive to devote great energies to catching and punishing users only.

Hoyos said the lowering of users' penalties could be just the beginning of a complete revamping of Colombia's drug legislation.

"I don't really know myself what I want to do yet," Hoyos said. "I'm studying the problems and the laws of other countries, like Mexico, the United States and Holland."

Williamston Bd. Votes Purchase

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Williamston Town Board at their July meeting on Monday approved the purchase of a lot from the Women's Club for a price of $12,525. The lot is located at the corner of N. Smithwick and Church Street.

A resolution authorizing the town administrator to amend line items in the 1976-77 budget without prior approval of the town board was passed. Any such amendment will be reported to the board at the first regular meeting following such action.

Also approved was the sale of four lots from the Neighborhood Development Project.

A contract was awarded the Motorola Company low bidder for 35 beeper-pagers for the town. The bid amounted to a little over $10,000.

Junior Long, assistant superintendent of the Street Department, reported that one of the five deep water wells in Williamston, the one at the Skewarkee Ball Park, is producing only 40 gallons per minute instead of the usual 350 gallon per minute output. The matter is being checked out to determine the cause of this loss in capacity.

Authorization was given to let bids on a Pakmore truck for the Sanitation Department; and approval was given to acceptance of a federal grant for $1,328 from the Midwest Commission, Division of Law and Order, for assistance in training police.

Negotiations with the Griffin family has been authorized to pursue the purchase of land necessary to square off the recently acquired Lindsay property which will become a city parking lot.

C. Urbin Rogers was reappointed to a new five year term on the Williamston Housing Authority Board.

Rehabilitation For Capote

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Writer Truman Capote, charged May 30 with driving while intoxicated, has been fined $185 after pleading guilty. Capote, 51, agreed Tuesday to attend a state rehabilitation program for people who are convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol. The charges stemmed from a two-car wreck in Bridgehampton, where Capote maintains a home. No one was hurt.

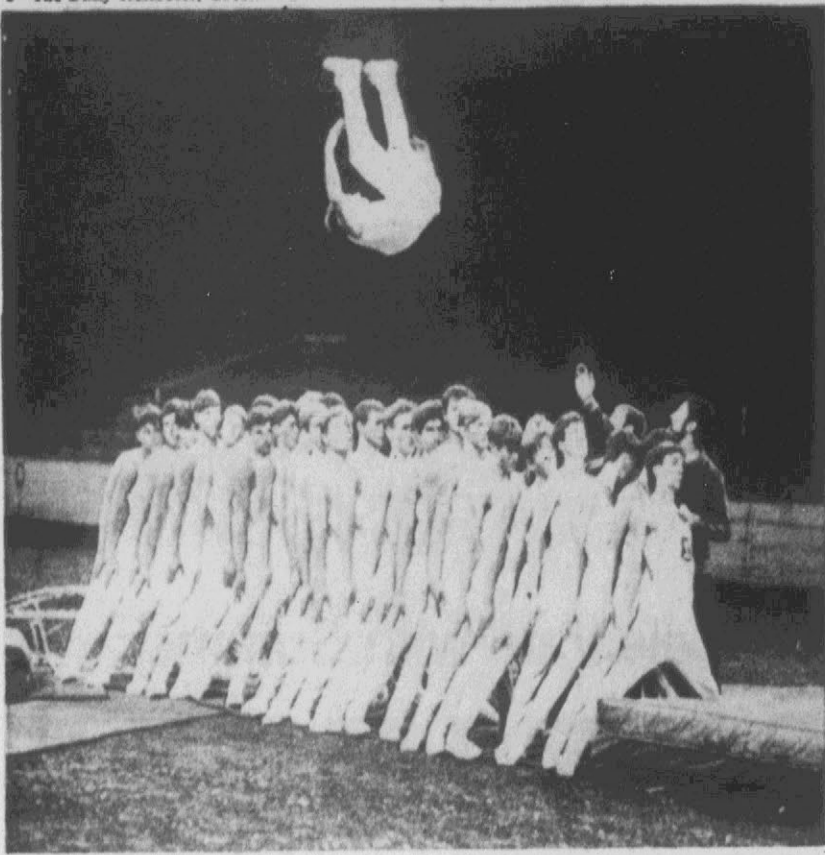

The writer's attorney said if Capote had refused to attend the rehabilitation program, his driver's license would have been automatically revoked.

Syria Adds To Lebanon Troops

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has sent more troops into Lebanon to reinforce the Syrian attacks on the Moslem towns of Baalbek and Sidon, the joint Palestinian-leftist Lebanese command claimed today.

A leftist communique said two motorized battalions totaling 1,000 men rolled across the eastern border during the night to join the attack on Baalbek, 42 miles northeast of Beirut. The Moslems reported Tuesday that Syrian troops and tanks moved into the outer streets of the town after heavy shelling that caused many casualties. The communique today said the Syrian tanks bludgeoned their way deeper into the town, overpowering grenade-throwing leftist defenders, "while troops conducted a house-to-house search to disarm Baalbek."

Syrian rockets also pounded a nearby small Palestinian refugee camp called Galilee, the communique said, adding, "Our forces are returning fire."

Baalbek straddles the Bekaa valley's main north-south road, which the Syrians need to guarantee direct communications between their forces in northern and southern Lebanon.

It was not reported whether the fighting had reached the town's Roman ruins. They are among the most notable in the Middle East and before the civil war were one of Lebanon's tourist attractions.

Another communique from the joint Moslem command said a second Syrian force made up of 20 truckloads of troops, eight tanks and five heavy cannon crossed the border and took up positions in Jezzine, a Christian town 12 miles east of Sidon, the Moslem port city 25 miles south of Beirut.

The Palestinians denied a report by a Libyan officer of the Arab League peace force that Syrian forces were withdrawing from positions around Sidon in fulfillment of an agreement with Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud. The Palestinians said instead the Syrians who had been shelling Sidon and the adjacent American oil refinery had moved forward.

Jalloud, who has been acting as a mediator for nearly two months, informed Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat on Monday that the Syrians also agreed to pull back from artillery positions threatening Tripoli, the Moslems' biggest city in northern Lebanon, and from Sofar, 20 miles east of Beirut, which controls a mountain pass on the Beirut-Damascus highway. But there was no report of any withdrawal at these points.

Juvenile Officer Grant Received By Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The Town of Winterville received a grant for a Juvenile Officer at its Town Board meeting Monday night.

The Juvenile Officer grant totaling $21,407 is 90 per cent funded by federal funds, five per cent by state funds and five per cent by local funds. The monies will be used for salary, the purchase of a new car, office equipment, and uniforms. Applications are now being accepted for the juvenile officer position.

The board voted to budget $3,812 as the town's share for the reconstruction of railroad crossings on the town street system.

The board approved Lyman Grubbs to fill a vacant position on the planning board. Grubbs will serve as one of the five members from outside the town's limits on the ten member board and the Pitt County Commissioners must also approve his position on the board.

A request of $2,000 was submitted to the state to help fund Winterville's participation in the state mosquito control program.

The board voted to pay for pre-evaluation of an Actuarial Report concerning the initial requirements for determining the eligibility of town employees for the state retirement system.

A proposal from the Greenville Utilities Commission to connect sewer lines to Winterville's sewer extension to Pitt Technical Institute was rejected by the board.

Bids for a new fire truck will be opened August 9, 1976 at 8 p.m. The new fire truck will be a 750 gallon per minute pumper. The town will pay for half of the cost of the truck and the Winterville Rural Association will pay for half of the cost of the truck.

Jasper Tripp of South Railroad Street petitioned the board for a curb and gutter project on Blount Street to Cooper Street. The board issued a petition to Tripp to be submitted to property owners on the street.

Pat Nixon Exercising

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon has begun physical therapy as she continues recovery from a stroke suffered last week.

Workers at Long Beach Memorial Hospital converted a lounge area adjacent to Mrs. Nixon's sixth floor room into a therapy area Tuesday. A hospital spokesman said this was done to avoid disruption of care for other patients in the rehabilitation center.

The former first lady's treatments consist primarily of exercises to rebuild muscle strength and short walks once or twice daily.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Mrs. Nixon is still listed in serious condition "because of the nature of the stroke." But he added that she was "much improved."

Lungren said Mrs. Nixon's speech has improved and her blood pressure is under control. The partial paralysis she suffered on her left side should be cleared up in a few months, he said.

Doctors said she should be released from the hospital in a week to 10 days.

Still A Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — They played it again, Sam, and the fundamental things did not seem to apply as television viewers in the New York area preferred "Casablanca" by a wide margin to the Democratic convention, according to early ratings checks.

Independent station WPIX here ran the Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman classic as part of a Bogart film festival Monday night. It drew almost as many viewers as the combined network convention viewing.

Official ratings checks were not immediately available for the nation. But projections from ratings checks in Los Angeles and New York indicate that nationally more than 70 million viewers watched all or part of the convention.

No ratings checks were immediately available on baseball's All-Star game Tuesday night, which was expected to outdraw the convention nationally.

Inflation Strategies Of 'President Carter'

By SYLVIA PORTER
(Third Of)
(Five Columns)

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter, what would it mean to you, a family frightened almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation?

A. A greater risk of a renewed price spiral than would be willingly assumed by a more rightist conservative than Carter, for the Georgian considers jobs, not inflation, the No. 1 priority of the U.S. now. And he openly has said: "I would put my emphasis on employment and take my chances on inflation."

But the first key point is that Carter believes the fundamental solution to curbing inflation is a balanced budget via the creation of more jobs that would generate enough taxes to bring the federal budget finally into balance — and so, Carter is convinced he is not taking those "chances on inflation" at all.

His approach to inflation is precisely the opposite to the approach of the Nixon-Ford administrations. This is a crucial distinction between the economic stands of the Democratic nominee and whomever will head the Republican ticket.

A second key point is that Carter insists that the forces which set off the galloping price spiral of 1973-75 and the nightmare of an economic slump side by side with runaway inflation will not soon reappear. As one-time adverse factors not to be feared in the foreseeable future, he lists: the quadrupling of oil prices in one year; global droughts; huge sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union; simultaneous booms throughout the world which led to excessive demands for U.S. foodstuffs particularly; the devaluation of the dollar to the most underpriced money in the world, etc.

Says Carter: "Most of my advisers believe that we could reach a low unemployment level with a stable inflation rate of say, 3 per cent or less."

In addition to these basic policy attitudes, the Democratic nominee would:

* Ask for steady-by-price and wage controls. Although he says he does not see the need for standby controls now and although he guesses "I would never use them," he also says, "I would use them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

* Urge new agricultural policies aimed at increasing the supply of foods to the consumer at prices we can afford and avoiding shortages that drive prices higher. "We would strive for a predictable, reasonably small and stable reserve of agricultural products" and also "strive to give farmers incentives to produce abundantly." He condemns

GOP Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "whose orientation is toward grain speculators and food processors."

* Make a serious attempt to work out with the Federal Reserve System monetary policies that would place less reliance on tight money to control inflation. He has a most skeptical attitude toward restrictive monetary policies, thinks that, in recent years, tight money has put "unnecessary pressure on the housing market," has scared the U.S. consumer and dried up formation of capital.

* Completely overhaul our federal bureaucracy and budgeting systems. Repeated over and over has been his pledge to slash the present 1,900 federal departments to no more than 200 "with a great savings in tax money and a streamlining of services."

* Zero in on the problem of increasing productivity so that, as workers produce more per workhour, they will provide corporations with the profits to permit regular pay hikes without undue raising of prices.

There is no disputing that an increase in productivity (efficiency of workers) is a prime key to control of inflation. Carter has not yet come through with details on how he would achieve this most desirable goal, but at least he understands how significant a weapon it could be against renewed inflation.

This is merely a sampling of his ideas — which also range from much stricter anti-trust enforcement to across-the-board restructuring of regulator agencies to reduce price pressures. But in this column are sufficient details to indicate that, as President, Carter would mix some very old, conservative ideas (balancing the budget) with new drastic changes in Federal Reserve-White House relationships to control inflation. He would monitor results as he went and use wage-price controls as standby weapons — in case.

And if the approach didn't work? Then Carter wouldn't hesitate to fight — and switch.

Tomorrow: Carter and the taxpayer.

Ask Maddox Enter Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Indiana leaders of the American Independent party (AIP) are hoping to persuade former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox to seek the AIP nomination for president.

Marvin A. Scantland, AIP state public relations director, said Tuesday he had talked to Maddox Monday evening. Fred V. Culp, state AIP chairman, had talked with Maddox earlier in the day and encouraged Scantland to phone.

"I'm sure our national convention will accept him," Scantland said. "He's popular with all of them."

The AIP's national convention will be held Aug. 26-28 in Chicago.

Scantland said Maddox asked for more evidence of support in Indiana, so Scantland is passing word to many Indiana AIP members to phone the former Georgia governor.

"We're more or less leaving it up to him," Scantland said. "I think it's his move. But I think he's interested in taking out after Jimmy (Carter)."

Maddox has been a harsh critic of Carter, a former Georgia governor, throughout Carter's drive for the Democratic presidential nomination. Carter is expected to receive the nomination tonight at the Democratic National Convention.

In Atlanta, Maddox said he would discuss the possibility of his candidacy with members of the party in other states before deciding whether to seek the AIP's nomination.

Still Planning For Flu Shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Insurance questions "pose a major question" about the swine flu immunization program, but the government still plans to start giving the flu shots at the end of next month, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare David Mathews says.

Mathews planned to meet with President Ford today to discuss the possible snag in the plans to immunize 200 million Americans.

After meeting with insurance, pharmaceutical and public health officials Tuesday, Mathews said the insurance companies will decide by the end of this week whether to write policies protecting four drug companies that are producing the swine flu vaccine.

Mathews said the problem was "not going to yield instant resolution in just one meeting."

Mathews said the Justice Department has approved the proposed wording of HEW contracts to purchase the vaccine from the drug companies, and for the government to assume liability for vaccine distribution.

The companies would remain liable for injuries resulting from any negligence in vaccine production, he said, but the question is whether they would be insured against lawsuits that proved baseless.

"The risk involved is not medical, but financial," he said.

was willing to pay its own legal expenses in defending itself against law suits, and to join the drug companies in legal defense when both parties were sued.

Officials of Merrell-National Laboratories, Wyeth Laboratories, Parke-Davis Laboratories and Merck and Co., their lawyers, insurers and representatives of the American Insurance Association and the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association were at the meeting.

The government has established safe and effective vaccine doses for persons over age 25, but it must conduct further human clinical tests to determine dosages for children and young adults. It is having problems getting vaccine for these tests.

Cuts Corners In Mailing Letter

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Cliff Baxter sent her 8-year-old son Bobby to mail a letter. He soon returned and handed her some change.

"But the money was for the stamp," Mrs. Baxter pointed out.

"Oh, I didn't have to buy a stamp," the boy said proudly. "I put the letter in the box when nobody was looking."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices drifted lower in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off nearly a point after opening trades, and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a small lead on those advancing.

The NYSE tape was three minutes late in recording trades at one point.

The market appeared to be influenced again by the mood of uncertainty and profit taking that set in Tuesday to erode a swift two-day advance.

There was one report that some analysts were having second thoughts about the moderate rise in wholesale prices last month. That showing had been credited with helping the market's rise Friday and Monday.

Opening prices today included ARA Services, up 1/8 at 58 1/2; Witco Chemical down 1/4 to 27 1/4; and McLouth Steel, off 1/4 at 22 1/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.15 to 1,006.06. NYSE issues rising in price held a slim lead on those declining, however.

Volume on the Big Board rose to 27.55 million shares from the 23.75 million traded the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .11 to 58.43.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .11 to 106.94.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — Cotton is lower today on the Charlotte market. Strict low middling 1-16 inch was quoted at 88.25 per hundred pounds.

Hunt Proposes More Small Farmer Aid

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt — a candidate for the Democratic nomination as governor — proposed here this morning that state programs which give aid to small farmers be expanded.

Hunt's proposals were voiced at a press conference at his campaign headquarters attended by a number of news media representatives and campaign workers.

"Farming is North Carolina's number one industry. It brings almost $3 billion into our economy each year," Hunt said, with tobacco alone a $1 billion annual crop. "It provides jobs for hundreds of thousands of citizens."

Saying the state needs a governor who knows farmers and farming (Hunt was raised on a Wilson County tobacco and dairy farm and earned degrees in agricultural education and agricultural economics from N.C. State University), the lieutenant governor said to keep agriculture strong, the state needs a "defensive strategy and an offensive strategy."

"The first thing we must do is protect agriculture against those who attack it, in Raleigh and in Washington," Hunt said.

"Our governor has to right against the proposed federal cigarette tax bill that would tax the tobacco industry to death," the candidate suggested, as well as the proposed federal regulation of tobacco and tobacco products proposed recently by Congress' General Accounting Office.

"The second thing," according to Hunt, "is to aggressively strengthen and develop agriculture in North Carolina." The governor must offer some constructive proposals for strengthening agriculture, Hunt suggested. "We must continue to support research, development and educational efforts at the state and national levels that benefit agriculture."

But the lieutenant governor suggested that State must go beyond its present level of support.

"I believe we have to give our small farmers more tools with which to do their job. Agricultural extension works now with those farmers to help them improve their individual operations."

"But I believe we can do more, so I propose that we expand the state's involvement in small farmer programs."

Hunt said the aid might be in the form of "agricultural development teams, backed by local agricultural aids, to help small farmers work together on their common problems."

"These teams might, for example, find a market for crops that a number of farmers could produce together — a market that the farmers couldn't supply individually."

Hunt said the teams might develop "service packages — perhaps a cooperative equipment pool that would make available to small farmers large equipment, such as combines and harvesters, that is too expensive for them to own individually."

Slapped After Tooting Horn

RALEIGH (AP) — A young female motorist was slapped Tuesday morning by a driver who was angry when she tooted her horn at him.

Ava Michelle Jennette, 18, told police that while driving Tuesday morning, a red and white van-type truck stopped suddenly in front of her, almost causing her to hit it. When she sounded her horn, the truck stopped, and the driver got out, walked back and slapped her face.

Patrolman J.D. Everett, who investigated the complaint, said Miss Jennette had a red mark on her face when he interviewed her.

AVL DOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Prices remained steady on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets today, and volume remained heavy, the federal-state Market News Service reported.

Top grades were bringing from $108 to $114 a hundred pounds, while primings were bringing between $80 and $105.

Receipts of the Stabilization Corp. for Tuesdays were reported at 34.4 per cent of sales, while the season receipts were reported at 33.5 per cent.

Small losses for about half of the grade averages were reported Tuesday with most declines at about $1 per hundred pounds. There was little change in the quality of offerings.

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — J.P. Stevens & Co. says that to comply with a federal judge's order intended to ban job discrimination against blacks at its textile plants in Roanoke Rapids would require discrimination against whites.

It announced Tuesday that it was appealing to the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., last month's order by District Judge Franklin T. Dupree in Raleigh.

All-Star Result: Same Old Story, 7-1

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ho Hum, the National League beat the American League again in the All-Star Game.

So what's new?

Just for the record, the score in the National's fifth straight triumph and 13th in the last 14 years was 7-1. San Diego's Randy Jones, the starting pitcher, threw three scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

And George Doster, the Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who leads the majors with 72 RBI, drove in three runs, two with a third-inning homer and was selected the game's Most Valuable Player. The loser was Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' rookie sensation who pitched two innings and left trailing 2-0.

The National League now leads the All-Star series 28-18-1.

And no relief is in sight for the beleaguered American Leaguers.

Perhaps John Montefusco, the outspoken San Francisco Giants' pitcher, put the dull game in its proper perspective. "I didn't have my good fast-ball, but I didn't need it against the American League."

It would seem that all the National League needs in this annual American League summer nightmare is gloves, bats and balls.

"It's a little bit embarrassing," said Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, whose fourth-inning home run accounted for the loser's only run against five National League pitchers.

Lynn said the big difference was the National League bats. "They hit," he said. "And they hit the long ball too. They have a bit more power than we do."

Lynn's boss, manager Darrell

Johnson, who directed the American League, had a different view.

"It was National League pitching," said Johnson. "Their pitchers did a damn good job."

There you have it, good hitting, good pitching, and throw in those three snappy double plays the National League turned and you have another American League defeat.

The 27-year-old Foster outwardly took his MVP accolade almost with a yawn.

"I was quite honored to be selected," he said, his face and voice devoid of emotion. "But I didn't come out here to play to win any honors. I just wanted to play the best I could to help us win. Whatever came my way in honors, fine."

Foster drove in the National League's second run in the first inning after Pete Rose had singled and scored on a Steve Garvey triple.

What about the home run? Foster showed he had a little humor behind that poker face.

"It was a fastball. If you want to know was it up or down or in or out, I'd say it was in reach of my bat."

Foster said he wasn't sure the ball was going out. "I thought maybe that cross wind out there might be holding up the ball. The main thing is I was trying to be aggressive at the plate."

The Cincinnati Reds produced seven of the National League's 10 hits. That didn't surprise Pete Rose, the wisecracking Reds' third baseman.

"We got more bats than anybody, so we're supposed to get more hits," said Rose, who singled, tripled and scored a run. "Foster did what he's been doing all year. The only difference is that he got only one hit.

He usually gets two or three."

The 21-year-old Fidrych, a free spirit who says what's on his mind, took the loss in stride. The rookie, 9-2 in the first half of the American League season, gave up four hits and two runs in two innings.

"No one should smile after a loss," said the curly-haired Tigers' pitcher. "But this is a different game. I can go home proud because I was on an All-Star team. You can't forget anything like this. There's this ball with everyone's name on it, a trophy and the ring... I never even had a high school ring."

Winning manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds said he believed the dominance over the American League stemmed from the office of former NL President Warren Giles.

"He believed the National League had to win," Anderson recalled. "And there is an enthusiasm in the National League to win."

San Diego's Jones, as always, kept a low profile. He said the only thing wrong was that he gave up a walk. He said he was nervous at the start, but settled down after a two-out first-inning walk to Kansas City's

Kiwanis Rally For Victory

An error on a strikeout led to the winning run as University Kiwanis took a 5-4 victory over Taff Office Equipment last night in the Senior Babe Ruth League.

The two teams were tied at 4-4 in the bottom of the seventh inning when Larry Boyette led off by reaching on an error after his third strike was dropped. He came all the way around on a hit by Howard Vainright to score the winning run and end the game.

Taff took the lead in the second inning, scoring two runs. Max Joyner reached on a fielder's choice and scored on Gene Pittman's double. Gary Chapman walked and David Manning reached on an error, scoring Pittman.

The Kiwanis tied it with a pair in the fourth. Vainright walked and Worth Albea doubled. Vainright scored when Mark Conway grounded out, and Mike Baker grounded out to score Albea.

Taff regained the lead with one in the fifth. Greg Lassiter walked and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored when Connor Merritt grounded out.

In the sixth, the Kiwanis pushed ahead, scoring two more runs for a 4-3 edge. Albea walked and Conway singled him to third. Conway stole up a base and Sid Ashby walked, loading them up. Joey Downing singled, driving in both runs.

Taff tied it up in the top of the seventh. Merritt walked as did Carlton Wall. Two wild pitches brought Merritt around.

But that set up the Kiwanis' final score in the bottom of the frame.

Officials Wrestling With Age-Old Problems

By WILL GRIMSLEY
MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin is a pookish Irish nobleman who constantly puffs on a curve-stemmed pipe, delights in making jokes and sends his jowls into a dance when he laughs — which is often.

He is a sharp contrast to the stern, prudish and dictatorial Avery Brundage, the man he succeeded as president of the International Olympic Committee. Brundage died a little over a year ago.

Killanin heads one of the most exclusive, most powerful and — perhaps next to the United Nations — one of the most indecisive deliberative bodies in the universe.

These are the men currently wrestling with the problems that destroyed the original Olympic Games in Greece centuries ago — politics, commercialism, national aggrandizement and inflexible pride.

They are magnificent in the art of condemnation, as in the official chastisement of Canada in its refusal to let Taiwan compete under its official name and colors. They cringe at strong, firm action. They have been letting member nations get away with abuses for years.

One has to look over the makeup of the club to understand these contradictions.

The IOC is a collection of more than 70 lords, princes, barons, maharajahs and industrial tycoons with a Midas touch.

They all are well healed, as if wealth were a prerequisite for membership. You don't find any plumbers, bricklayers or truck drivers sitting in the august councils. There are no women, and the few blacks are from the African nations.

"We are beholden to no government and no earthly power," Brundage used to say. If you listened to Brundage, you would know IOC members are neither elected nor chosen. They are ordained.

"We are more like a board of trustees," says Killanin. The pleasant Irishman has brought a touch of humanity to the order, if no more clout. Whereas Brundage was a dictator, held in awe and fear by fellow IOC members, Killanin is a diplomat. He even accepts expenses, which Brundage shunned.

"The IOC presidency should never give the impression that it can be bought," he said.

Rogers Takes Pitt Crown

GRIFTON — Rogers Furniture came up with four runs in the third and went on to beat Piggy Wiggly, 5-1, for the tournament title of the Southern Pitt Little League last night.

Piggy Wiggly scored its run in the top of the first when Gary Parisher came across after walking.

Gary Edwards singled — with one out in the third and walks to Chuck Smithwick and Kevin Battle loaded the bases. Tyrone Gay singled in two of the four runs.

Ronnie Gay added the last Rogers' run in the sixth hitting a homer.

Maurice Thorbs of Piggy Wiggly was named the tournament's most valuable player.

More Than Game To Nationals

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League players bring more than just the thrill of being named to the All-Star team with them when they take the field in this mid-summer festival. They come with fire in their eyes and base hits in their bats.

"Everytime they get in the clubhouse," said Manager Sparky Anderson, "it's more than just being honored. They say, 'Hey, let's go.'"

"Maybe that sounds like high school or college," the white-haired Cincinnati manager said. "But to me, that's what it's all about."

The Nationals, powered by a pair of two-run homers by Cincinnati's George Foster and Houston's Cesar Cedeno, put together a 10-hit attack that produced a 7-1 victory over the AL. The Nationals have won 13 of the last 14 games, including the last five.

"I think it goes back to Warren Giles (former National League president)," Anderson streak. "He wanted the National League to start winning."

said in trying to explain the Soft-throwing Kandy Jones of the San Diego Padres, who worked three scoreless innings and got the victory, agreed with Anderson that the NL stars bubble at the thought of winning the game.

The 26-year-old left-hander, baseball's winningest pitcher with a 16-3 mark, said he noticed the gut feeling last year when he earned a save.

"When I came to the park, I was nervous about the game," said Jones. "But I could see the excitement they had. This calmed me down. I wanted to win just like the rest of the guys."

Foster, the game's Most Valuable Player with his homer and three RBI over-all, agreed. "You try to get up a little more because you know you're not going to be in there the whole game. You want to show what you can do," added the Reds' slugger. "There's a whole lot of pride involved."

Foster and Anderson both pointed to the fact that seven of the 10 NL hits were struck by Cincinnati players. Seven Reds played in the game.

Foster went further by evaluating the talent in the two leagues.

"I think there are better caliber ballplayers in the National League than in the American League," the game's top producer said. "But the American League is progressing. They're getting better all the time."

Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who piloted the AL squad, was at a loss to explain the NL's streak.

"They've had great success in the last couple of years, but it's the reverse of the 13 years before that when the American League dominated the game," the stone-faced Johnson said.

"I can't tell you the answer," he added. "I don't know what it is."

Johnson also pointed out the American League had only five hits, with Lynn's blast into the right field seats the only extra base blow.

"If you want to talk about the game today, I think it was the National League pitchers," said Johnson.

The loss spoiled the ballyhooed debut of Detroit rookie sensation Mark Fidrych, who worked the first two innings and took the loss. The hard-throwing right-hander, nicknamed "The Bird," gave up two runs in the first and four hits over-all.

"I don't know what happened," the moppo-haired 21-year-old said. "I was up for the game. Maybe I tried to over-throw."

But the loss failed to bridge his boyish enthusiasm.

"See this ring?" he said, showing off his All-Star prize. "I never even had a high school ring."

Drug Use To Be Checked

MONTREAL (AP) — A sophisticated drug checking program to discourage Olympic athletes from using outlawed stimulants and to catch those who break the rules will be put into effect later this week.

About 2,300 urine samples taken from participants will be analyzed for drugs during the Games, according to Dr. Robert Dugal, head of the doping control program. All medal winners, fourth-place finishers in most events and others selected at random will be tested.

"Drug use has been a problem at recent Olympics and other world sports events. Two medal winners from the 1976 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and seven from the 1972 Games at Munich were disqualified and stripped of their medals for using drugs banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dugal said some of the random sampling would be aimed at determining whether athletes were using anabolic steroids, added to the list of forbidden drugs this year. Some athletes take the steroids to give them greater strength. An official said a survey made in Sweden two years ago showed that 75 per cent of athletes checked were using anabolic steroids.

The results of most of the tests will be known within eight to 10 hours. However, tests to determine the use of steroids requires four days.

Owner Representatives Meet About Contracts

BY TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Representatives of the major league baseball owners were to meet today and consider a new contract with the union that would recognize players' freedom of movement for the first time.

After more than 13 months of bargaining, which at times was bitter, the baseball owners and the players reached the agreement on the four-year contract Monday, the eve of the All-Star Game.

In calling the meeting of the 24 club owners, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said its purpose "is to receive and act upon a report of the Player Relations Committee recommending ratification of collective bargaining agreements with the Players Association."

Kuhn said he would recommend approval of the contract although he declined to give details of what it contained.

It was understood, however, that the contract would enable a player to become a free agent after six years of major league service.

The agreement would replace the so-called reserve system under which a player was bound to one club until he was traded, sold or released.

The new agreement is divided into two parts — a four-year basic agreement covering working conditions and economic terms other than players' salaries, and a four-year benefit plan.

Ask Blacks To Pull Out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Black Olympic entrants are to be asked today to follow various black African countries in withdrawing from the games, says The Sacramento Bee.

The Bee quoted an anonymous source Tuesday as saying black Africans would approach the American blacks "individually in an attempt to promote the pullout."

"A traumatic political experience" could result, the source said.

The Bee said the requests, in Montreal, would come from representatives of about 30 countries in the "Supreme Council For Sports."

The request would be "to follow Tanzania's lead and follow the black African countries in pulling out."

The reference to Tanzania meant that country's protest against the New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa just after 170 Africans were killed in Soweto race riots.

The Bee said the countries protesting against segregation are "such places as Algeria, Cameroon, Chad, Andorra, People's Republic of Congo, Antigua, Ethiopia and the Ivory Coast."

Thomas captured medalist honors

Thomas Captures Medalist Honors

COON RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — A 25-year-old groundskeeper from Boise, Idaho whose only goal in the U.S. Public Links Golf Championship was to be among the 64 qualifiers for the match play title won medalist honors Tuesday.

Left-hander Jeff Thomas compiled rounds of 69 and 71 to finish four under par after two days of qualifying on the wind-swept, hot and muggy Coon Rapids Municipal course.

Thomas was the only player to break par both days of the qualifying for match play, which begins today. It took a score of 155 or less for the low 64 players who intermatch play.

The tournament winds up with a 36-hole final match Saturday.

The only other par breaker over two rounds was the qualifying runner-up, Pete Jacobi, 33, Dayton, Ohio. Jacobi, a civilian employe of the Air Force who sells U.S. surplus aircraft to foreign governments, shot a competitive course record 68 Tuesday for a two-round total of 143.

After Thomas and Jacobi there was a tie for third in the qualifying at even par 144. Reid Schronce, Charlotte, N.C., had 71-73 and Victor Wolfe, Livermore, Calif., had 70-74.

Defending champion Randy Barenaba, 19, Hawaii, just survived the qualifying rounds with 79-75-154.

Jacobi, runnerup in the West German Amateur in 1969 when he was in the Air Force, also carries the distinction of being the last champion of Le Club Golf in Saigon in early 1975, when he was with the U.S. Embassy before Saigon was taken and the Viet Cong turned the golf course into soccer fields.

The major qualifying casualty, who had five three-putt greens Tuesday, was Ken Ezell of Jacksonville, Fla., with 76-80-156. Ezell had set the Coon Rapids course record at 66 in a practice round on the 6,670-yard course last weekend.

Detroit won the Public Links team championship with 446 total, led by Bob Proben at 145. Ken Allard at 148 and Keith Mohan with 153.

Jerry's In Lead

First place again was the hot spot in the Junior Putters League as Buck's Gulf was the latest to be knocked off the perch. Last night, J. H. Hudson downed Buck's, 2 1/4 to 1 3/4, dethroning the leaders.

Lance Cain led Hudson with 5 1/2 points, while Jon Langley had four. Buck's was led by Troy Fleming with 5 1/4 while Ryner Bullock had four.

Jerry's Sweet Shoppe beat Jefferson Standard, 2 1/4 to 1 1/4. Jerry Butts led Jerry's with six, while Laura Vincent and Eddie Robinson each had 4 1/4. Alan Parks led Jefferson with 5 1/4.

In the other match, Coca-Cola topped Smith-Waldrop, 2 1/4 to 1 1/4. Rodney Speight and Hayes Finnegan led Coke with six each. Belinda Barnes had six and Wally Norris, five, to pace Smith-Waldrop.

Jerry's now leads the league with an 8-4 record, while Coke and Buck's are tied for second at 7-4-1. They are followed by Hudson at 6-6, Smith-Waldrop at 4-8, and Jefferson Standard at 3-9.

All-Star...

George Brett.
As for the game itself, before a sellout crowd of 63,974, including President Ford, the Nationals built a 4-0 lead with their two in the first and Foster's home run after a one-out single in the third. Lynn's homer made it 4-1. The NL put it away in the ninth on an RBI single by Ken Griffey, and Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer, all off California's Frank Tanana.

"I never thought this would happen," said Thomas, who plays in rubber-soled street shoes instead of golf spikes. "I came here with the idea that I would just try to make the cut. There are so many good players. It's quite an honor."

Winds gusting to 20 miles per hour and the temperature hit the 100-degree mark Tuesday as golfers struggled to qualify.

Donnie May Sub

NASHVILLE (AP) — NASCAR driver Bobby Allison, injured last week in a race at Elko, Minn., may be replaced by his brother Donnie for Saturday night's Nashville 420 Grand National race, a spokesman says.

A spokesman for the Nashville Speedway said Wednesday it's doubtful that Bobby Allison will race and that negotiations with Donnie Allison were underway to replace him.

Allison suffered broken ribs, several broken toes and facial lacerations Saturday when his car hit a retaining wall at the Minnesota Speedway.

Reagan Delegate Hunt Hits 2 'Ford' States

By DOUG WILLES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for two of President Ford's strongest states today in his hunt for delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The former California governor hoped to trim Ford's lopsided majorities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with a series of speeches and private meetings with uncommitted delegates and delegates who might switch from Ford to Reagan.

An Associated Press delegate count shows Ford ahead of Reagan by 33 delegates nationwide, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination for president next month in Kansas City.

Reagan, in a statement issued Tuesday by his campaign headquarters in Washington, said that once the convention begins he will not challenge the credentials of any delegate. He urged Ford to pledge the same in the name of party unity.

"The manner in which we conduct our national convention must give the American people confidence that the Republican party can govern honestly, decently and effectively over the next four years," the statement said.

In a separate development, reports on file with the Federal Elections Commission showed that Reagan's campaign has taken in more money and spent more than the President's.

Reagan's forces, for the six months ending June 30, collected almost $13.2 million, mostly in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports showed. The campaign spent about $13.1 million for the six-month period.

Ford's campaign for the same period attracted slightly more than $11 million, again mostly in contributions and federal matching funds. The President's committee has spent $10.9 million.

New Jersey stands 67 to 0 for Ford in the AP delegate count, and Pennsylvania is 72 to 5, with 25 uncommitted and one for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

In both states, the delegates are legally uncommitted.

Even a modest switch in those two states could wipe out the President's lead, because the combined GOP delegate total of the other 48 states is 994-893 in Reagan's favor.

Later this week, Ford plans to visit the Connecticut state convention, where he is favored to take most or all of 35 delegates, and Reagan plans to visit Utah, where he is favored to win the last 20 delegates to be selected nationwide.

By the end of the week, Ford could close to within 70 delegates of the nomination, with Reagan close behind.

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Jimmy Carter has a platform applauded by Democrats as diverse as Coretta Scott King and George Wallace, there are some party figures who wonder how long he'll stand on it.

The platform, approved by Democratic National Convention delegates early today with hardly a murmur of dissent, performs the political near miracle of being all things to all people.

Carter said his supporters helped prepare the exact wording of the platform, labor leaders said they were successful in almost every item of the charter and a spokesman for the party's left said, "It's a platform which progressives in the party happily support."

Carter's supporters made sure that some platform planks contain qualifying language that falls short of an absolute commitment to proposed goals. But that didn't deter praise for the document.

Wallace, himself an unsuccessful candidate for the party's nomination hailed the platform as a Democratic commitment to "cut the government to its proper size," even though Carter has said his pledge to reorganize government is not a promise to reduce the size of the federal bureaucracy.

The convention made only one change in the document that was drafted by the party's platform committee in Washington in May. The change proposes legislation to ease restrictions of the Hatch Act and to allow federal workers to engage in some political activity.

Otherwise, the platform was approved as proposed, without opposition on the floor. Delegates seeking discussion of some sections, such as the platform's neutral stance on the abortion issue, were unable to win enough votes to allow debate.

Carter has said the platform should be "a contract with the people." But some Democrats said they question whether a Carter administration would deliver on the platform's promises.

A qualifying passage written in the employment plank by Carter supporters pledges the party to make "every reasonable effort" to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent in four years.

Pledges for federally financed national health insurance and guaranteed minimum incomes for the poor and elderly note that "accomplishing our goals in the areas of human needs will require time and resources." The platform does not carry an estimate of the cost of any program.

Some economists, including some Democrats, question whether unemployment can be slashed to the full employment level without setting off a new round of serious inflation. But Carter has said the nation can have low inflation, low unemployment and a balanced budget by 1980 if the economy grows at even a near-normal rate of 4 to 6 per cent a year.

Party conservatives are attracted by the platform's pledges for government reorganization and zero-based budgeting — a concept requiring programs constantly to demonstrate their usefulness.

The platform also says that the social programs it proposes do not require a larger bureaucracy. But if Carter could institute major new federal programs without adding to the federal payroll, he would be doing something not accomplished before.

In addition to full employment, health insurance and minimum income guarantees, it calls for tax reform to increase federal revenues by $5 billion a year and advocates an immediate cut of $5 billion to $7 billion in defense spending.

But it pledges support for adequate funds to meet the nation's defense needs and calls for continued pursuit of better relations with "traditional adversaries."

It supports busing to achieve racial integration of schools as "a judicial tool of last resort."

Indict Four In New Bern

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The superintendent of streets, William Savage Pool, and three others have been indicted on charges of embezzling of city money or property.

The Craven County Grand Jury returned the indictments Tuesday against Pool; Henry A. Barker, former superintendent of parks and cemeteries; Weldon Elbert Warf, former city garage superintendent; and Roy Monteith, a city garage employe.

Poole, 53, was charged with two counts of embezzlement involving tires and their equipment allegedly taken from the city garage and sold to a private dealer.

Barker, 37, was charged with embezzling nearly $5,000 in fees paid to his department by persons securing gravesites in city cemetery property.

Warf, 62, was charged with three counts and Monteith with four counts of embezzling city property from the garage.

The indictments followed a three-month investigation conducted by city police and the State Bureau of Investigation.

The investigation began when Barker was ordered to give an accounting of grave fee receipts. He resigned. Nine days later, Monteith and Warf resigned.

Man Charged In Dynamiting

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Alexander County authorities say they have charged a Taylorsville man in connection with the attempted dynamiting of an Alexander County service station last year.

Michael Dean Keller, 22, was arrested and placed under $75,000 bond. He was charged with placing a quantity of dynamite in front of a door at Frye's service station on February 19, 1975, authorities said.

The station was owned by Capt. Kenneth L. Frye of the Alexander County Sheriff's Department. Officers discovered the dynamite before it exploded.

Keller was charged with felonious attempt to damage real property with an explosive device.

Tries To Form 36th Postwar Govm't In Italy

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Giulio Andreotti, a two-time premier and fixture in Christian Democratic cabinets, began trying to form Italy's 36th postwar government today. It will probably be weeks before he knows if he can succeed.

President Giovanni Leone gave Andreotti the assignment Tuesday night. The 57-year-old premier-designate called on all parties for "political, economic and social solidarity" to help bail Italy out of its grave economic and social crisis.

Andreotti said he would meet with other leaders of his own party today and begin talks with leaders of other factions Friday.

The Christian Democrats won 262 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, 54 short of a majority, in the election last month. Because the party's leaders refuse to invite the second-place Communists to join the government, Andreotti can only get a majority by enlisting the support of the Socialists, who ran third and won 57 seats.

The Socialists have frequently been cabinet partners of the Christian Democrats during the past 15 years. But for more than a year they have refused to join the government unless the Christian Democrats assured them of economic and social reforms by sharing power with the Communists.

Andreotti's chances of getting the Socialists to change their position were clouded by turmoil within because it lost four seats in the Chamber of Deputies and four in the Senate to the Communists. Secretary-General Francesco de Martino resigned Tuesday under fire from the party's left wing. It was not clear which faction would win control and what it would demand to cooperate with the Christian Democrats.

Andreotti, a Roman who headed two short-lived governments in 1972 and 1973, has served as undersecretary or minister in most governments since 1947. He was budget minister in the last minority government headed by Aldo Moro.

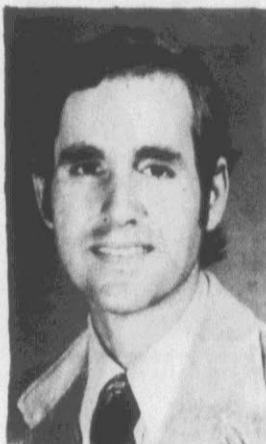

Although he is firmly opposed to a partnership with the Communists, who hold 228 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, he did not join the Christian Democratic right wing's virulent anti-communist campaign before the election. Because of this, it is believed he might agree to a consultative role for the Communists on economic and social policies.

Andreotti is liked in Washington, and during talks in the Kremlin in 1972 he defended Italy's ties with the United States and its role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Despite this, he managed to improve trade and industrial links between Italy and the Soviet Union.

Humphrey Leads Parade Of Old Faces

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who has wanted to be president since the Articles of Confederation, maintained a stiff upper lip although the lower one may have suffered a slight quiver.

His reward was the longest, loudest ovation of Tuesday night's session of the Democratic National Convention, from a party that once more had passed him by.

By now the old warrior must be weary of trying not to be a sore loser. He tried four times to get his party's nomination for president and got it but once, in the worst of times, at the worst of conventions.

"I have good news for you tonight: we will have a Democrat in the White House Jan. 20," shouted the man who won't be that Democrat, and the crowd shouted back its approval.

"They say go slow, not now, no, no, veto. We've had enough of that defeatism.... If America ceases to be good, America ceases to be great."

At the end, Muriel Humphrey took the hand of her twinkling husband and led him off the platform and he was gone, reluctant but smiling, a vivid memory in a baby blue suit.

He came and he went in a long procession of the party's familiar faces and last burrahs, the former heroes and the forgiven villains, the widows, the passing symbols of profound change.

The delegates also cheered George McGovern in apparent forgiveness for the disaster four years ago. He issued a strenuous call for the defeat of those other fellows and then he, too, was gone, with less than 24 hours to wear a title nobody remembered, titular head of the Democratic party.

Ed Muskie appeared, attempted a casualness, tried a few jokes and then, with great effort, sounded the bugle for a cavalry charge that fell somewhat short of Light Brigade. In oratory, John Glenn and Muskie, two out of the three men believed to be Jimmy Carter's top choices for vice president, have now failed to light up the sky.

The chairman introduced a "very special person, for whom all Democrats have a special affection," and there she was, rising demurely from the VIP box, waving and smiling in her tentative way, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. The convention came to its feet, turned to its right and cheered.

George Wallace's appearance Tuesday night was framed in irony. He was preceded on the platform by the black mayor of Detroit, in whose office there now works one Rosa Parks. It was Rosa Parks, the Alabama seamstress, who began the Montgomery bus boycott, which ignited the civil rights movement in the South and the emergence of Martin Luther King.

Tuesday night, they cheered George Corley Wallace, who once stood in the school house door and now sat in a wheel chair, a gaunt face behind the microphones.

"Some of you need to laugh at me," he said, "but many of you are now saying the same thing: those bureaucrats in Washington ought to have their briefcases thrown into the Potomac."

Unseen hands pulled back George Wallace's wheel chair and he sank from the view of delegates. On the way out, he shook hands heartily with Coretta King, the widow of the civil rights leader. Nobody could remember whether her husband was ever invited to address a Democratic convention. She did Tuesday night, to a loud ovation, as "We Shall Overcome" swept the hall.

There were cheers, too, for Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, whose father has scarcely been mentioned in the last two Democratic conventions.

And also for Richard Daley, the Lord Mayor of Chicago, who couldn't get a seat in the convention four years ago.

Candidate...

favorable utility rate than private citizens, Brown said, and that situation should be reversed. The middle class working citizen is affected more by high utility rates than anyone, he added.

Brown, one of eight Democrats in the lieutenant governor contest, called for a "better price support" for farmers, saying that it would help keep the small farmer in business. Farming, he said, is the "backbone of the nation" and small farmers are "going broke every day."

Farmers are currently at the bottom of the economic ladder, he said, and better price support would help the farmer when he goes to the market to sell his goods.

"A deep concern of mine is the plight of the older citizens who are caught in a vise between rising prices and fixed income," Brown added. "Old age doesn't have to be the end of the American dream. I believe older citizens are entitled to a better standard of living and a decent Social Security."

Brown, the youngest Democrat in his contest, was an unsuccessful candidate for chief circuit court judge two years ago.

"I have all ideas that I will be in a runoff," he said, predicting he will face either Waverly Akins or Howard Lee for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cooler temperatures are due today in the northern Plains but warm weather is expected for most of the country. Showers are forecast in central Texas and southern Plains, Florida, northern Illinois and Lake Michigan and from West Virginia to the lower Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A combination of dry air and a weak ridge of high pressure gave North Carolina fair and warm weather today.

The only clouds were wispy, high, thin cirrus clouds, and they didn't stop the sun from shining through. Temperatures reached the upper 80s and low 90s, except for the lower 80s on the Outer Banks and in the mountains.

Tuesday was a beautiful day. Highs were mostly in the 80s as the sun pierced the thin clouds. Humidity was low, winds gentle, and visibility almost unlimited.

Conditions continued pleasant

Neil Diamond's Lapse Is Ended

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I want to go places I've never been, do things that have never been done. New challenges scare you, but they also excite you and get you up."

Superstar Neil Diamond was discussing his return to performing after a lapse of more than three years. After his record-breaking one-man show at the Winter Garden in New York in 1972, he abruptly left the spotlight for a period of writing and introspection.

His withdrawal lasted until early this year, when he appeared in Australia and New Zealand. And he recently opened the $10-million Aladdin Theater for the Performing Arts in Las Vegas. His fee for three concerts: $500,000. Then he threw in two more at the bargain rate of $150,000.

"In August I'll play Forest Hills Stadium in New York," he added. "It hasn't been used for concerts in four years because of troubles with audiences, but they're opening it up for me. I'm the only one playing there this summer. I don't expect any problems. My audience is more mature."

Diamond will also appear in Cleveland and Chicago, perhaps the Greek Theater here, a few other cities, make an album in November, play Japan for the first time in December, then start taping his first television special for NBC.

The composer-singer talked about his renewed activity in his comfortable office on a West Hollywood sidewalk. Now 33, he seemed relaxed but eager to face audiences again.

The Aladdin date was his Las Vegas debut. Why did he wait so long?

"Because I didn't know if I could do two performances a

Gets 2 Long 'Rebels With A Cause' Sentences Preserve Old Aircraft

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Morrey Joe Campbell, 29, has been sentenced to two 20-year prison terms, to run consecutively, for shooting two sheriff's deputies to death.

The Davie County man, who had been charged with first-degree murder, was sentenced Tuesday, a day after the prosecution accepted a plea of guilty to second-degree murder. He admitted in court that he killed Davie County Sheriff Wayne H. Gaither and Forsyth County Reserve Deputy Jack O. Reniger. Gaither was slain after stopping a car in Davie County on May 30, 1975, and Reniger died in a shootout shortly afterward.

Campbell was sentenced by Judge Julius A. Rousseau Jr. of North Wilkesboro, who presided at a special term of Superior Court in Alexander County.

A third felony charge for allegedly shooting at Forsyth Deputy Robert Russ during an automobile chase was dropped.

Campbell was arrested two days after the slayings. Officers found him hiding in a tobacco barn at Farmington, after he had been declared an outlaw. An officer or citizen cannot be prosecuted for shooting an outlaw who does not heed a command to surrender under North Carolina law.

HARLINGEN, Tex. (UPI) — No one outranks anyone else in the Confederate Air Force, a group of 1,600 "rebels with a cause" who banded together for the sole purpose of preserving for posterity — and to keep them flying as long as possible — a collection of World War II aircraft.

All members are given the rank of colonel, and men from all walks of life donate their time and money to support a museum at Rebel Field where relics of the 1939-45 era are preserved.

They also support a flying museum of about 65 planes that dazzles youngsters and oldsters alike by bringing World War II dog fights to life again at air shows throughout the country.

"It's the damndest organization you ever saw," said Col. Lloyd Nolen, Mercedes, Tex., one of the men who founded the CAF in the mid-1950s.

Generals in the regular or reserve U. S. Air Force work alongside USAF enlisted men in the CAF, polishing and maintaining old planes ranging from U.S. P-51 Mustangs to Japanese Zeroes, British Spitfires and German Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs.

The CAF has all seven P47 Thunderbolts known to exist and the only F82 Twin Mustang, B24 and B29 that are flying.

"You wonder how in the heck this organization operates," said CAF Col. Harry Rutter of Tinker AFB, Okla., who has the rank of Lt. Col. in the "real" Air Force. "It's a true democracy. We have a general staff, but no commander. They piad, our vote for the best performance would go to the winners—Brazil. For the best single play, this clever bit of thievery by Prof. Kerr of New Zealand must rank high on any list.

The optimum contract is six clubs by East-West. It is not easy to get there, but one or two pairs managed to bid the slam and make it by taking a ruffing finesse in diamonds. In the New Zealand-Argentina match, Kerr bought the contract at four spades and received the lead of the diamond four.

It was obvious from the bidding that West held a singleton diamond, so it looked as if declarer would have to lose at least three aces and a diamond ruff. However, Kerr found a way to confuse the issue. At trick one, he dropped the king of diamonds under the ace!

In the cold light of day, it can be argued that East perhaps should not have been taken in by this falsecard. At the table, however, East swallowed the bait and shifted to the jack of clubs, giving Kerr a fighting chance.

West won the ace of clubs and continued the suit for declarer to ruff. There was still work to be done: declarer had to find two discards for his losing diamonds, and hearts offered the only chance. Needing three tricks from the heart suit, declarer had to find one defender with no more than three hearts to the jack. Since East was long in diamonds, declarer elected to play him for the shorter hearts.

South crossed to the nine of trumps and led a heart to the nine, fetching the ace. After ruffing the club return, declarer unblocked the king of hearts and drew trumps, ending in dummy. One diamond was pitched on the queen of hearts, and when the jack fell from East, the ten of hearts was established for a second discard, so the contract rolled home!

Barbers Advising Take A Shortcut

By JOHN MOODY
NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're a man and you've decided to go the route of hairstyling, barbers across the country agree: take the shortcut.

Men's hairstyling, which once consisted of sitting in Joe's neighborhood barbershop, perusing back issues of sports magazines, has become a multimillion dollar industry.

And to the delight of Joe's inheritors in the business, the price for clipping and coiffing males has multiplied with the number of customers.

"The way a man wears his hair says something about him," said Vidal Sassoon, perhaps the best known and most expensive stylist in the world. "Hair has been a social comment since we started doing something with it besides singeing it off. The most important development right now, I believe, is the lack of inhibition with which men are going to the stylist to get the cut which suits them best."

"Styles have become much shorter, and that movement has been led mostly by the young. The return of short hair began when older people and establishment people — doctors, lawyers, judges, police — started letting their hair get longer at the beginning of the decade. To counter that, the young people got their hair cut shorter."

Sassoon, whose customers include the richest and most famous people in the world, and who gets up to $200 for a styling, holds out for individuality in haircutting.

"The most important thing is for the man to get his hair cut in exactly the way which he feels he wants it. It's of interest to note, I think, that last year most of the San Francisco Giants baseball players who weren't black had their hair in an Afro cut, because it's so easy to care for."

"Bone structure of the head is very important, too. People with high cheekbones and the proper bone structure have found the Tely Savalas-Issaac Hayes look very appealing, and they're wearing mustaches and beards with it. After all, there's no law that says you have to have your hair on top of your head. But overall, hair is getting shorter."

Joe Upchurch, a less expensive and less famous colleague of Sassoon's, agrees.

At his "Razor's Edge," a four-seat shop in Marion, Ill., Joe said, "Older men are letting their hair go down and younger men are letting it come up, and they are meeting in the middle of the ear. I believe that in the next two years we may see women wearing their hair shorter than men."

Joe charges $3.50 for a regular haircut, $7.50 for a styling.

"They're only coming in for stylings once a month, so you've got to raise the price," he said.

They wouldn't put up with those fancy prices, or fancy styles, in the suburbs of San Antonio, Tex., where Rick Leal cuts hair.

"We're in a kind of redneck district," he said. "Our cuts are pretty much standard — out of the eyes, over the ears and off the collar. We charge $2.50."

"We don't give any razor cuts. They take too much time."

Time — and money — are apparently easier to come by, across the state in Houston.

"The latest thing is the volume cut," said Linda High, who works at Norris Hair-stylists. "That's a full thick lock where the hair's all one length. It's layered, but definitely shorter than the length people wanted a few years ago. Everyone's had long hair and now they are tired of it. The GI's grew long hair when they got out of service, and now even they are tired of it."

The benefit of Linda's sociological theories, and her trained scissors, costs $10 to $15 per appointment.

"Mostly I take between a half hour and an hour, depending on the fella," she said.

In Salt Lake City, a shop called "A Man's Image" has a new twist on the traditional haircut: the barber bar. Customers can get coffee, cokes, or liquor while they wait for their hair styling appointment, which costs $7. If they prefer their own brands, they can bring a bottle and take a swig or two during the cutting session.

In Vernal, Utah, Jake the owner of (what else?) Jake's Barber Shop, doesn't worry about fads. Most men ask him for a short haircut, Jake said, because they know that's what they'll get anyway. He doesn't keep track of how often his customers come in and he doesn't serve booze.

But Jake proved to be one of the shrewdest barbers in the land. His cuts cost between $2.50 and $3. When he was asked what the difference was, Jake just said, "Four bits."

'America At The Movies' Treat For Cinema Buffs

By RONALD E. COHEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "Spirit of St. Louis" bumped crazily down the runway, evaded a swamp, clipped a power line and barely missed crashing into a clump of trees.

Inside the open cockpit, the pilot, wearing a World War I-style aviator's helmet, had a worried look on his face. His eyes bugged, his breath came quickly, his lips were clamped grimly.

But the funny-looking plane suddenly was airborne and one of man's great adventures had begun.

No, it wasn't Charles Lindbergh in the cockpit. It was Jimmy Stewart. Playing Charles Lindbergh.

It was a 35-second film clip, part of "America at the Movies," the American Film Institute's contribution to the Bicentennial. On June 27 it got its premiere at the Opera House of the Kennedy Center after an old-fashioned wine and popcorn party that drew 2,200 visitors.

Then it went to Europe for a special showing at the Berlin International Film Festival on Independence Day Eve. It will be showing in theaters around the nation later this summer.

The film is a dandy — clips from 83 great American films. Its only drawback is the frustration you feel when a scene ends too quickly.

You'd like to see a bit more of Jimmy Cagney as George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

You wonder what finally happened to Woody Allen who ineptly tried to rob a bank in "Take the Money and Run."

And you wonder did Mickey Rooney ever get the girl in "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

But never mind. It shouldn't be missed. There are absolutely classic scenes — from "Modern Times," when Charlie Chaplin performs a ballet that is 50 years ahead of its time in depicting the tedium of the assembly line and the stultifying effect it can have on a person's humanity.

Rita Moreno's dancing and singing of the "America" number from "West Side Story," city slickers Humphrey Bogart and Walter Huston greedily dreaming of gold in "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," Dustin Hoffman kidnapping Katharine Ross from the altar in "The Graduate."

The two-hour film is divided into five parts. The Land, The Cities, The Families, The Wars, The Spirit.

There is narration by Charlton Heston. But unlike many film compilations, it is delightfully unobtrusive. It helps the film along but does not overwhelm it. And it is well written.

The film was created and produced for the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration by the American Film Institute. Included is the work of 86 performers, 54 directors, 113 screenwriters and 73 producers.

The director of AFI George Stevens Jr. told the Kennedy Center audience that the film is something that could be taken out on America's 30th birthday and enjoyed. "It is a glimpse of the American spirit and character, a mosaic . . . not a history of America or a history of the movies."

"The movie has no point of view," he said. "It is not a polemic. It is a feeling that our country keeps moving on, and that perhaps film has captured that movement and that spirit as well as anything else in this nation."

Sure, some of your favorite movies were left out. It seemed strange that something as American as "The Wizard of Oz" was missing. Or that there was no scene from "A Thousand Clowns," no sign of Marilyn Monroe, Greta Garbo, Ingrid Bergman; only one scene from the great Broadway musicals.

But there was enough of Laurel and Hardy and the Marx Brothers and W.C. Fields to make you laugh; enough of Jennifer Jones waving goodbye to her departing soldier-boy friend, enough of the "The Grapes of Wrath" Joads, enough of Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke in "The Miracle Worker" to make your throat catch.

And you can't get 7 years of American cinema into two hours without leaving some things out.

What makes this a satisfying film are not the things missing — but the things present.

'Brier Patch' Makes A Difference In Atlanta

By MATTHEW C. QUINN
ATLANTA (UPI) — What began seven years ago as a federally-funded social program to aid "unemployable" low-income women has sprouted into a full-fledged business operation selling textiles to retail stores across the nation.

Each week about 60 women living below the federal poverty level meet in small groups in the Atlanta area to submit their finished products for sale and get homework assignments for more.

The women started out making quilts, shorts, skirts, blouses and pillows. They are now working on a complete tennis line under the trade name "Brier Patch," which is being sold nationally in specialty shops and department stores, including fashionable Garfinkle's in Washington, D.C.

Mary Bankster, executive director of Rabbit Enterprises, Inc., the non-profit parent company of Brier Patch, said the group was formed in 1969 out of aYWCA arts and crafts program.

"TheYWCA put money in and the women were making more and more money because it was an opportunity to make money while staying home," Ms. Bankster said. "They didn't have to go outside the home to get jobs and get their children cared for."

Now, Ms. Bankster said, the women take home about $100 a month, in many cases "the difference between dog food and chopped hamburger meat" for the family table.

"We started out with volunteers selling the goods at arts and crafts festivals around town. But by 1972, the funding got too complicated and the YWCA told us we'd have to go elsewhere," she said.

The group landed a $25,000 Office of Economic Opportunity grant and got some foundation support. The foundation money is long gone and the group aims to become self-sufficient and shed the federal funding this year.

"In 1972, we made three or four thousand dollars. In 1974, we did $31,000. In 1975, $62,000 and this year we're pushing to double that again to over $120,000," Ms. Bankster said.

Currently there are four groups. Three are in full production and one is being trained by Mary Earhart, one of the four full-time staff members.

One of the groups is comprised entirely of Spanish-speaking women. Many of the women have physical disabilities, including diabetes and heart conditions. Many cannot read and most are receiving Social Security benefits.

"Most are incapacitated and cannot work a full-time job. That's why we want them in the program," Ms. Bankster said.

Eighty-one-year-old Mary Turnipseed is the senior member. "She works more slowly than the others but turns in her work on time," said Ms. Bankster. "She can make about six products, including tennis racket covers and sun visors."

At a training session eight black women and one Spanish-speaking woman got their assignments from Ms. Earhart, who urged each to produce three items by their next meeting.

"We've got to be thinking in terms of production and you don't do that when you do only one," she said.

The women agreed to work on the three items. Most of them have sewing machines at home, but if they don't, facilities at community centers around town are available.

"I think it's great, I really love it," said Evalina Kirby, a newcomer to the program. "The fellowship is great."

Miss Kirby said she joined the program "for the experience."

Sara Kelly said she liked the program because of the social atmosphere and supplementary income it provides.

The United Methodist Church has provided the women with life insurance and hospitalization benefits.

There is a long waiting list for the project and each new entrant must be carefully screened to see that she is living below the federal poverty line. If a woman earns too much money, she must leave the program.

An all-volunteer board of directors sets management policy but the groups, each of which elects a board member, virtually run themselves.

The board determines wages by timing production of a given article. But if the women aren't happy with their wage, they can have their representatives on the board order that production be re-timed and a new wage set.

"We're one of the few programs operating that has become stable and is rapidly moving towards a self-sufficient position," said Ms. Bankster. "It doesn't look like more than six months before we will be able to cut loose from federal funding."

ECU Title I Project To Serve 6 Counties

An East Carolina University project to implement environmental education in six northeastern North Carolina counties has received $20,587 in funding under provisions of Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

The project, involving the county school systems of Gates, Hertford, Bertie, Chowan, Martin and Perquimans Counties is directed by Dr. Carolyn H. Hampton, associate professor of science education at ECU.

According to Dr. Hampton, the project is designed to upgrade the environmental knowledge and skills of teachers of science and social studies at the junior high level, and to assist the teachers in the integration of environmental education in existing curricula.

The project, begun during the past fiscal year, is guided by an environmental education advisory task force consisting of three ECU science education faculty members and a school supervisor, a junior high school principal and a junior high school classroom teacher from each of the six county school units.

The task force will plan curriculum development, in-service training for teachers, workshop sessions and curriculum activities, and help in the evaluation of the project.

Dr. Hampton said the project will involve two basic phases: a curriculum development phase and a staff development phase. She will coordinate all project activities and act as liaison between ECU and the six counties.

Other members of the ECU Department of Science Education faculty who will be working in one or more phases of the project are Carol Hampton, Charles Coble, Robert Dough and James Nicholson.

BIRTH RATE
NEW YORK (AP) — The Institute of Life Insurance says the birth rate in the United States in 1974 was at the lowest level ever recorded.

It says final statistics recently released by the Health Resources Administration show the 1974 rate of 14.9 births per 1,000 population was identical to that in 1973, the lowest on record.

Here's How They Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 1 and July 2, when Congress recessed for the July 4 holiday and the Democratic National Convention.

House
HOUSE REFORM Rejected, 165 for and 236 against, a Republican-sponsored motion aimed at nullifying the Democrats' plan for reforming the manner in which members' office accounts are administered. This motion sought to recommit H Res 1372, the Democrats' reform vehicle, to the Rules Committee, thus clearing the way for consideration of the alternative Republican proposal.

H Res 1372 was subsequently passed. It represents the Democrats' major response to the Capitol Hill sex-and-payroll scandal, which has hit hardest at their party. The Democratic majority is responsible for most rules governing internal matters such as office allowances and payrolls.

H Res 1372 in effect ratified Administration Committee actions to improve oversight of congressional funds and allow congressmen greater latitude to transfer funds among office accounts. The resolution stripped the committee of power to make future allowance changes other than cost-of-living adjustments. Republicans wanted separate votes by the House on all allowance changes, and said the new freedom to shift office funds amounted to giving each member a "slush fund."

Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.), a supporter of the recomittal motion, said the Democratic plan contains "precious little" reform.

Rep. Norman D'Amours (D-N.H.), an opponent, said recomittal would mean delay, and he asked: "If we cannot make this reform now with the backing of the public... then when will we be able to make it?"

Reps. James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7) and W. G. Hefner (D-8) voted "nay."

Rep. Roy Taylor (D-11) did not vote.

HOUSE PROBE Rejected, 143 for and 269 against, a motion to kill a Democratic plan to establish a commission to study House financial and personnel procedures in the wake of disclosures of misuse of congressional funds. The motion sought to recommit the Democratic plan (H Res 1368) to the Rules Committee, with instruction to the committee to send to the floor the tougher Republican substitute. H Res 1368 was then passed.

The Republicans proposed establishing a select committee with equal representation of Republicans and Democrats. It would audit the office allowances of all House members, officers and committees. The adopted Democratic plan provided for a commission which would have until late next year to study House operations and make recommendations.

Supporters of the recomittal motion said a thorough and speedy audit of the House would best restore the integrity of the body after allegations ranging from missing travel funds to keeping a mistress on the congressional payroll. Rep. Delbert Latta (R-Ohio) said H Res 1368 was a "milktoast approach to the problem."

Opponents said that the commission, which will include House members and outsiders, and effectively study the House and propose changes without an expensive audit of House books. Rep. Richard Bolling (D-Mo.) said audits of members or committees will be conducted "when an accusation is made that is substantial."

Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "nay."

Senate
GEN. BROWN Confirmed, 57 for and 34 against, the nomination of Air Force Gen. George S. Brown to a second two-year term as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's highest military position.

Brown drew wide public criticism and a rebuke from President Ford in 1974 for comments to a Duke University audience in which he criticized the Jewish influence on Congress and the nation's banks and newspapers.

"I think that General Brown's apology at that time fully explained his personal position in making those unfortunate remarks," said Sen. Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), a supporter. Cannon said that, at recent confirmation hearings, Brown "reaffirmed his basic personal belief that he had erred in his original remarks."

Sen. Richard Stone (D-Fla.), an opponent, said that Brown's Duke University statements reflected "basic antisemitism and religious bigotry," and urged the Senate to "vote 'no' on behalf of better advice by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs and against bigotry in high office."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

TAX REFORM Rejected, 30 for and 58 against, an amendment to save the U.S. Treasury about $500 million in fiscal 1977 and more in later years by reducing tax benefits for American exporters who form domestic international sales corporations (DISCs). The amendment was proposed to HR 10612, a tax reform bill.

Exporters who establish DISCs are allowed to defer payment of much of their taxes on export income, under a 1971 law passed to boost U.S. exports. Tax deferrals by DISCs cost the Treasury about $1.4 billion per year in revenue.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), sponsor of the amendment, said that DISC benefits have been "stuffing the multinationals full of money," but that "there is not anybody—not one knowledgeable expert—who says this DISC subsidy actually works to expand our trade."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), an opponent, said that for the U.S. "to tie the hands of our exporters by giving them nothing, and allowing the advantage to go to our trading partners all over the world, is sheer nonsense and foolishness."

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Clark Loves Island Life

ARTHUR C. CLARK, started living in Sri Lanka, which was called Ceylon until 1972, over a decade ago. (UPI Photo)

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — As he bids the author of "2001: A Space Odyssey," Arthur C. Clarke has the only television set in this nation, a typewritersized computer that can do more things with numbers than a crooked accountant, and a law nicknamed for him.

The TV set is a gift from the government of India, the computer a gift from the manufacturer, and the law comes from the government of the island nation Clarke now calls home.

The lanky, bespectacled author says he fell in love with Sri Lanka, which until 1972 was called Ceylon, and started living here more than a decade ago. "I got tired of leaving the island every five months and 29 days or whatever it was," he said. But if he didn't leave he would become subject to heavy tax laws.

"I spoke to every official in every government agency I could find, asking them to change the laws," he recalled. Last year they did, enacting the "Facilities for Foreigners for Residence in Sri Lanka" act. It's known to the foreigners involved as "Clarke's law."

The law applies to those bringing in a specified amount of foreign exchange — about $150 for a single person — each month and exempts the foreign resident from paying residence taxes.

About 40 persons are currently living on the island under the terms of the law and another 20 are waiting for their applications to be approved.

Clarke himself hopes to spend nine or 10 months here this year. On the second-floor study of his spacious, airy house is the computer. The nasty computer in the movie "2001" of course was called "Hal." Clarke's is called "Hal Jr." and a pocket calculator is "Hal 3rd." The fixation on the extraterrestrial extends to Clarke's German shepherd dog, who is named "Sputnik."

Downstairs is the television set, idle during the day but the focal point for up to three dozen visitors at night. The next nearest set is in India.

The Indian government presented "the tube" to Clarke to see programs broadcast by India under its Satellite Instructional Television Experiment.

Indian scientists, like many others, look on Clarke as the father of communications satellites. On his wall is a framed copy of the article he wrote in 1945 for "Wireless World" magazine, predicting how some day three satellites hanging in a stationary orbit would relay television signals all over the world.

That was more than a decade before the Soviet Union launched its first space satellite.

Clarke is invited to thousands of events a year, here and abroad. He commands $5,000 per lecture but is very choosy about where he speaks.

"Now I must be going someplace I'm interested in, speaking to the right group and saying something new." Those kinds of conditions means he winds up addressing a joint session of the U.S. Congress, say, or a seminar at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Those speeches and others, as well as some biographical material, will be wrapped into his next book, to be called "The View from Serendip." Sri Lanka was once called "Serendip" and, as a noun, serendipity means stumbling by chance onto happy things.

"For the past 20 years, my life has been dominated by three S's — Space, Serendip and the Sea," is the opening line of the book. Clarke says he can write a book in about three months and hopes to start another later this year.

"It's about a country that is 96 per cent Sri Lanka in 150 years' time. It was conceived originally as a film script" and may be titled "The Fountains of Paradise."

Longer Living Said Realistic

NEW YORK (AP) — Work with enzymes and enzyme-related drugs now being tested could add years to lives as well as slow down the physical and emotional effects of aging, according to "Future Fact," (Simon & Schuster) by Stephen Rosen.

Physicians, medical researchers and enzyme scientists, working on new ways to improve the health of the aged, indicate that it is realistic to expect the advent of pills which may "prolong mental and physical vigor — as well as life itself — beyond age 100," according to Rosen.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission manages 49 natural areas.

Charleston To Host 'Eagle'

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Charleston will host a visit from the U.S. Coast Guard bark Eagle, August 6-9.

The ship recently led more than 200 sailing vessels from 30 nations into New York Harbor as part of Operation Sail of the country's Bicentennial celebration.

The Eagle is to arrive in Charleston at 3 p.m. August 6 and will be open to the public the next day from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

For Most Louisville Kids, Busing Is No Big Deal

By EARNI YOUNG
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

It's dark as 12-year-old Mark Jump hurries toward his neighborhood school. There, he will join about 30 other youngsters on a yellow school bus which will take them across town.

Mark is white. His new school is in a predominantly black neighborhood.

About the same time, Babbette Norfleet, 12, leaves her home in a housing project on the other side of Louisville. Shortly, she will board a bus for a 25-minute ride through the rolling Kentucky countryside to suburban Middletown.

Babbette is black; Middletown is not.

Mark and Babbette are among 22,600 students, half of them black, who participated this past school year in the massive and often wrenching social experiment called forced busing. There were 119,000 students enrolled in the school district.

Their movements were dictated by the federal courts, which found Louisville's school system to be unconstitutionally discriminatory.

Busing is one of the most emotional and controversial experiments in the nation today. It turns law-abiding parents into rock-throwing rebels. It disrupts public budgets. It swings elections.

But what does it do to the kids?

Mark recalls his fear nine months ago when a rock crashed through the window of his school bus, showering the children aboard with broken glass. His friend was cut.

"I was afraid," Mark said. But as time went on, he added, the fear lessened. He now says it's his parents who are frightened, not he.

"I like it here better than my old school. The building's much newer and the teachers aren't so old fashioned," the youngster said.

Interviews with other children on Louisville's buses brought much the same reaction. For most kids, busing is no big deal. There are no traumas, no nightmares, no instant geniuses, no unexplained dunces. Just kids.

Adults are a different matter.

One white Middletown student, 8-year-old Kendra Bryant, wrote a letter to the Louisville Courier Journal, saying, "I think busing is good because I've gotten to meet two new friends I would not have met before."

The Bryants received a flood of abusive telephone calls and hate letters as a result of Kendra's letter.

Gwen Bryant, Kendra's mother, said one of the letters was signed by the Ku Klux Klan and another by the National White People's Party. At least one of the callers identified himself as a member of the KKK.

Kendra, unconcerned about the names she was called in the hate mail, said, "You should have seen the writing on those letters. They write worse than first graders."

"What parents don't understand is that we're all the same inside," said 11-year-old Doris Holloway, a black student at Martin Luther King Jr. Elementary, the same school Mark attended.

"Even if you're red or green or purple, it'll still be the same. You have a heart, a brain, a nose and eyes. You're just a different color outside."

Doris, who expects to be bused outside of King's district to a school in a largely white area this fall, said she looked forward to it as a chance to get to meet new people and "observe how they live."

"Parents should give busing a chance to see if it works. If it's bad, they can do something about it. But if it's going on fine, they should leave it alone."

Doris' best friend, Dianne Guess, 12, is looking forward to what she calls an "adventurous experience."

"Your mother and father will probably tell you that they're (white students) different from you and have different ways, but you should go and see for yourself. Sometimes your mother and father could be wrong."

"The children have adapted much faster than I expected," said Evelyn Ashkenaz, a student counselor at King. "Their problems are the small petty ones of childhood."

"Somebody snatched somebody else's pencil. There may be a quick tussle, but it's all forgotten by three o'clock. But when the child goes home and his parents ask what happened in school, it's all blown out of proportion."

"I have one child, whose mother insisted she resume taking medication (a tranquilizer), the doctor said she no longer needed. The little girl said to me one morning, 'You know Mrs. Ashkenaz, my mother needs the pills, not me.'"

Bernard Minnis, associate superintendent for human relations in the Louisville system, said many of his department's programs are directed toward parents.

"You can't just dismiss the parents and their feelings, that's why we spend a lot of effort on the parents in the community ... not trying to sell desegregation, but trying to curb the overt behavior toward the school and the children."

"We do not deal with preparing people so much for busing itself, but to ease the strain caused by desegregation and busing."

"It's really unfair to ask if these programs are working. Over-all, we could say within our own gut feeling that we've seen change but we can't really point out statistics and say this is so."

"We just know that the people we've worked with aren't out there throwing rocks."

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, a psychologist and professor emeritus at New York City College, says parents who violently demonstrate against busing, "inflicting their children with their own racial bias ... are examples that tell the detriment of segregated schools."

He compared the need for federal intervention in desegregation with earlier cases requiring federal intervention when parents resisted inoculation of children.

"These parents are the product of segregated schools," Clark said. "They don't even understand what they are inflicting on their children."

Not all Louisville parents are manning the protest lines. At Middletown, where 76 black students were bused in daily from Louisville's inner city, Principal Josephine Trowel says the parents have been an asset.

Mrs. Trowel, a black, said the parents "have leaned over backward" to make the new students and their parents feel welcome.

School officials also believe the chronic truancy of the past year may be eased next year, too.

In the past school year, about one-third of the 300 white students scheduled to be bused into King were truant. "They just never showed," said Principal William Horan.

School officials say about 4,000 children were transferred from the public school rolls to parochial or private schools at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year, and an additional 2,000 are truant. Most of these lost students are attributed to the antibusing feeling among parents. Dr. Marie Doyle, the system's director of public information, says she thinks that many of this year's truants and transferees will return to class next September.

Experience in some other major school districts desegregated since 1970 shows that antibusing violence, protests and parent resistance eventually decline.

Charlotte, N.C., began its fifth year of court-ordered busing last September with only one picket.

Walter DeVries of Duke University said a recent poll showed 2 per cent of 563 North Carolinians thought busing was still a serious issue.

"Nobody wants to go back to the way things were," DeVries said.

"CULTURAL DIVERSITIES" — A busload of tourists views a Mission District playground in San Francisco as a guide describes "the city you don't see on postcards." The weekly three-hour tour sponsored by the radical Glide Memorial Methodist Church has become a hit with the tourists and San Franciscans alike. Averaging 50 persons who pay $5 each, they are usually sold out in advance. (AP Wirephoto)

Saw Vast Destruction Still In North Vietnam

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Canadian-American couple just back from a motor trip in Vietnam says vast destruction and poverty are still evident in northern Vietnam, while people in the southern cities of Da Nang and Hue still cling to a life style learned from Americans.

But Canadian Murray Hiebert and his American wife, Linda, said they saw "a fantastic amount of reconstruction" of roads, railroads, churches, hospitals and schools as they drove about 500 miles from Hanoi to the central province of Quang Ngai, formerly part of South Vietnam.

The Hieberts are members of the Mennonite Central Committee, an American religious and humanitarian organization that gave aid to both sides in the Indochina war. Since the Communist victory in April 1975, the committee has been allowed to work and travel in Vietnam.

The Hieberts told the Foreign Correspondents' Club of Thailand that women were doing much of the heavy reconstruction work, carrying pails of mud on bamboo poles and filling in road and railway beds with simple tools.

Other work crews often were unarmed soldiers, the couple said.

The Hieberts said they were struck by the poverty of northern Vietnam, the frayed clothes of Hanoi's residents, the lines of women waiting to buy cloth at stores, the shacks in the countryside that "looked like refugee housing that was built in the South (during the war) but even poorer."

They said there were also indications of serious food shortages, but that the Vietnamese were reluctant to discuss this.

Northern Vietnam suffered heavily from floods and poor weather during the last growing season and still has not recovered from the war damage to its agricultural system.

"Most of the people we talked to in North Vietnam said their country wanted normal relations with the United States, wanted friendship with the American people," Hiebert said. But both private citizens and officials stressed that they think the United States is obligated to help rebuild the country.

The Hieberts said they found the southern Communists tougher, more dogmatic and sometimes more anti-American than those in the North. They reported little change in Hue, the old imperial capital, and Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city. Young men still had long hair; women wore Western-style clothing, and prostitutes were in evidence — all things condemned

Medical Group For Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — Ministering to the medical needs of some 12,000 athletes from 128 nations at the XXI Olympiad in Montreal, July 17-Aug. 1, will be 1,303 men and women, says The Physician And Sportsmedicine.

This medical corps was put together by Dr. Carroll Laurin, chief medical officer for the summer games.

The McGraw-Hill publication notes the group will include 260 general practitioners and specialists, 8 medical administrators, 30 nurses, 143 medical assistants, 25 dentists, 7 pharmacists, and 200 physiotherapists.

Health Hazard In Roaming Dogs

HOUSTON (UPI) — The city's more than 500,000 free-roaming dogs are an ecological and public health menace, according to a veterinarian.

Dr. Primo V. Arambulo said his research shows one of the greatest problems is the spread of parasites through the dogs' waste.

Arambulo estimated the dogs infect the city's environment with 178 billion hookworm eggs daily.
