Carter Nominated; Mondale His Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter acted today to complete the Democratic ticket by designating Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his choice for the vice presidential nomination. Carter's decision will be ratified at tonight's closing session of the Democratic National Convention.

Asked why he had settled on Mondale, Carter said he had found "a remarkable compatibility between his stands on the issues and my own."

Mondale described Carter as "an uncommon man, terribly gifted, committed, experienced, ready, but, above all, a good man and I'm proud and honored to be a part of this team."

Carter kept his choice a secret until the moment, a few minutes after 10 a.m. EDT, when he strode into the Royal Ballroom of the Americana Hotel to make his announcement.

It was the only suspenseful moment in a convention that belonged totally to the man from Plains, Ga., whose capture of the nomination the night before represented one of the most remarkable coups in American political history.

on "a high level" and "I look forward to a good contest this fall."

The vice presidential selection process was drawn out over 30 days during which Carter said he changed his mind three times.

"This has been, as you can well imagine, one of the most difficult decisions I have had to make," he told the news conference. "But I have absolutely no doubt that this is the right decision."

Carter called the Minnesota senator "the best person to lead this country if something should happen to me." He added that Mondale has "a very clear concept of what the presidency should be."

Mondale arrived at the Americana during Carter's news conference. He was accompanied by his wife, Joan.

Carter said Mondale had suffered from mild hypertension, but that "since he has been taking medication he has had no problem."

Carter said Mondale's medical records had been examined by a doctor and they showed nothing unusual for a 48-year-old man.

With his wife at his side, Mondale joined Carter at the ballroom podium and said, "I am proud and honored to be a part of this team."

Asked about his trip to Plains where he was interviewed by Carter, Mondale said they had a long talk about the role of the vice president in a Carter administration.

"I was not interested in a ceremonial post," the senator said. "I was pleased to see he plans to use his vice president in a broad range of responsibilities."

"I am determined to put major responsibilities on the head of the vice president," Carter told the news conference.

Mondale said he expects Carter to be president for eight years. "I'm not taking this job with the expectation of becoming president," he added.

Two years ago, Mondale made an exploratory run at the presidency but dropped the idea when he failed to generate widespread support.

Carter said that in the last few days "I have had very serious allegations" made against the six senators on his final list but that no evidence was found to support the charges.

"I don't know of anything that would have been embarassing about the six," he said.

After the delegates ratify Carter's choice of Mondale they will hear acceptance speeches from the two nominees and then adjourn.

They will leave Madison Square Garden more united than they have been in years and hopeful of regaining control of the White House after eight years of Republican administrations.

Since the last primary elections on June 8, there was no doubt who the Democratic presidential nominee would be.

Non-Resident User Fee Is Recreation Board's Goal

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission on Wednesday night approved a recommendation that a user fee be charged to persons not residents of Greenville who participate in any of the city's supervised recreational activities.

The recommendation will go to the City Council for its action. Non-resident annual user fees proposed are $25 for an individual and $50 for a family unit.

The annual fee would be prorated on a quarterly basis so that non-residents wishing to take part, for example, in a three month summer program, would pay only for that time period — at a fee of $6.25 or $12.50, respectively, for an individual or family group.

Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee pointed out non-resident user fees would apply to "programs for which instructor or supervisory personnel are paid to administer the program or activity." This includes activities such as tennis, the various ball leagues, and bridge instruction courses.

Lee told commissioners "you as commission members are not setting policy. You have been given a mandate by the City Council to come up with a recommendation. All the council is asking you for is guidance on a reasonable fee to be charged, and for the mechanics of administering some form of control and identification."

Approval of the recommendation followed member Rufus Huggins' motion setting forth the proposed fee. Huggins, as chairman of a committee studying the issue and charged with fact-finding, reported that New Bern and other communities who charged similar non-resident user fees had been successful with their programs. He said that "related to the number and scope of programs available, the figures recommended are certainly very reasonable."

In discussions prior to adopting the recommendation, it was acknowledged that one of the primary sources of objections was that voiced by persons living outside Greenville but who owned property in and paid taxes to the City of Greenville on such property.

"I think it's important to stress that the tax structure has no relevancy to charging or not charging user fees," Dr. M. W. Aldridge commented. "Recreation is a service designed for residents of Greenville, and whether or not as Greenville residents they pay taxes, that is an irrelevant consideration."

Lee confirmed that concept, saying that "What Dr. Aldridge says is true. It is another service provided to the people, the same as fire, police protection and garbage collection which is given to all people living within the city."

Several members reported having receiving phone calls from persons living outside the city who object to the idea of paying a non-resident user fee.

They all agreed that the most appropriate answer to give in such instances is for them to contact their county commissioners, to urge them to either provide county recreational facilities or to give financial support to the city program so that all Pitt County residents could take part in city activities without having to pay such a fee.

The idea of charging a non-resident user fee for persons living outside the city limits has been on the drawing board for several years.

Last night's action marks the first concrete recommendation for an actual fee and criteria of programs for which the fee would be charged.

"There's no doubt about it," Lee stated, "This is going to undoubtedly be the most controversial action this commission has taken in a long time. Already the response I'm getting is that we're being bad guys."

taking something away from people. But it's something that's never been rightfully theirs.

"The ideal situation," Lee added, "would be for the county people to put some money in the city program, then we could let everybody come."

If the fee recommendation receives City Council approval, the Recreation Department will immediately begin action to set up the mechanics of some form of identification passes.

"However," Lee noted, "those persons (outside Greenville) already involved in an activity now underway will not be penalized by being charged a fee to complete the activity. There will be a grace period."

Lee informed that in the event the fee is approved by the City Council monies collected will go into the city's general fund.

The second agenda item, that of a request for use of Elm Street Gym as the site of a professional IWA Wrestling match on August 7 was denied. It was explained this request is not for a charity event, but was simply that of a group seeking a place to hold a professional event for which admission would be charged.

In his monthly report to commission members, Lee reported that the first six days of the operation of the swimming pool, (June 9-15), were very successful, with a total of $1,202 taken in, representing an attendance by about 2,400 people during that period. "The pace has gone down since then," Lee reported, "but we're still pleased with the usage of the pool." He said it was hoped the season would bring in $10,000. "It will take that amount to cover expenses," he said.

Commission chairman Dr. Edgar Hooks asked Lee to have prominent signs erected at the pool site relative to the availability of a family season ticket for $5. Hooks mentioned that there had been instances where patrons were not aware of this family service for pool-users.

In other matters, Lee reported that Robert Stringfield had been

Bank Robbed

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

Two young women — one white, one black — held up a branch of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. at gunpoint today and escaped on foot, authorities said.

One woman had a stocking over her head and the other's face was obscured by a scarf, police reported. No one was injured.

The pair escaped with an undetermined amount of money shortly after 10 a.m.

'Active' Sec. Of State Offered By Candidate

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

The office of secretary of state must be run more efficiently and effectively, according to George W. Breece, Democratic candidate for the office.

Breece, 31, was in Greenville yesterday on an eastern campaign swing. He is currently serving in the N.C. House of Representatives.

"We need an active secretary of state, one who is willing to accept recommendations made by a state government efficiency commission," said the Cumberland native.

"The first recommendation made by the state government efficiency commission was to relocate the personal office of the secretary from the capitol building to the administration building, where his staff works."

"I would be willing to do this."

"Also, the only department that did not take base budget reductions in the past two years was the secretary of state.

"The secretary should be expected to undergo budget reductions."

Breece noted that the office of secretary of state is one most citizens are not aware of.

"The people should become aware of the duties and responsibilities of the secretary of state," he said.

"The secretary charters corporations, commissions notaries public, maintains state documents and handles filings under the Uniform Commercial Code."

"Most importantly, the secretary of state regulates the issuance and sale of securities."

Breece said North Carolina has had some problems in that area in the recent past.

"We've had problems with several companies," he said.

"I think we need to strengthen these laws, and we need a secretary of state who will spur reform in this area."

Peak Load Rate Tests

RALEIGH (AP) — As a part of a peak-load pricing experiment, hundreds of North Carolina electrical customers may soon be paying higher rates for electricity used during the daytime than for power used at night.

The experiment will last three years, and is funded by a $900,000 grant from the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

Participating in the project will be Carolina Power and Light Co. and Blue Ridge Membership Corp. Its sponsor is the state Utilities Commission, and consultants include the Research Triangle Institute, EBASCO Services, Inc., of New York City and ICF of Washington.

The experiments is designed to discover if consumers would change their habits if electricity cost more during the daytime hours—the period of peak demand.

If electricity use were spread out over a longer period each day, the number of generating plants needed to meet power demands could be reduced.

If it is found that customers like the new electrical rates, the Utilities Commission may decide to institute widespread peak-load pricing.

The commission has not yet determined how much more electricity should cost during peak periods of the day. But peak load rates in other parts of the country range from three to eight times the off peak periods.

Proposed peak periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. during the summer and 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. during the winter. The peak load rates would apply only on weekdays.

CP&L will contribute $235,000 to the cost of the three-year experiment. It will begin participation in the project in 1977. Blue Ridge's share will be $63,000 and it is slated begin its experiment this fall.

River 'Deoxygenation' Found In Pamlico Study

STUDYING RIVER CONDITIONS...
Dr. Graham Davis (right), ECU biologist, and Tom Vicars of Greenville, his research associate, survey the extensive oxygen depletion in the Pamlico River. The river study has shown the current deoxygenation to be the longest-lasting depletion known. (ECU News Bureau photo)

North Carolina State University studies made in the late 1960's."

He added that fish kills are a possible result also.

Davis said that the river is about 30 miles long, but the deoxygenation has been found mainly in the 25-mile area nearest the Pamlico's mouth.

"We checked the river yesterday," he said. "The deoxygenation was still there but it was breaking up some toward the mouth. We have been checking it about every three or four days. Yesterday we did a detailed study of the biological processes involved, which is what we are interested in."

Davis said the condition is not caused by pollution as the general public knows it, but it can be furthered by increased amounts of inorganic nutrients that may come from industrial waste waters or river tributaries.

"Texasgulf is not polluting the estuary in regard to organic substances but it does contribute a certain amount of phosphorus and nitrogen. These can increase the amount of organisms used for food and the number of plants also."

"A large amount of phosphorus in the Pamlico River comes from Texasgulf and from waters from the Tar River. Nitrogen generally comes from the Tar River and other tributaries. Some nitrogen comes from Texasgulf but it is minor, in my opinion, compared with other sources."

"Another problem, which does not seem to be critical here, is that the respiration of algae at night can cause serious deoxygenation. We studied it

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Speaking of my hair . . . you may remember that in the last episode, I opted for the Brillo pad look, which followed the Grace Kelly syndrome (I was blessing children in supermarkets), which came after the wig that got dandruff and died.

Don't get me wrong. I loved the little tight curls close to my head, it's only when they started to grow out that I looked like an aging pepper plant.

That's when I went for the Blow n' Go. In my mind, I saw it as a coiffure with the maintenance of a self-cleaning oven. You just set a few dials, and zip, you were ready for the ball.

This isn't exactly true.

My blow n' go blew too much and went too far.

To begin with you need one of those Dorothy Hamill haircuts, which look terrific but you get this intense urge to ice skate. Secondly, there are two definitions of blow.

There's blow (verb), to send forth a current of air with force, as a wind that blows gently through the chimneys.

There's also blow (noun), a sudden unexpected shock, an unfortunate or calamitous happening.

My blow was definitely an unfortunate and calamitous happening. I laundered my hair and borrowed my son's hair dryer.

Without any warning whatsoever, that dryer sucked up my two pitiful strands of hair, nearly pulling my feet off the floor. It was only by a miracle that I was able to kick the plug out of the wall, thus saving my entire face from being devoured by the appliance.

"That dryer nearly killed me," I said to my son.

"You used a dryer for that measly amount of hair? For that you could just hang out of the no-draft in the car. What do they call it?"

"A blow n' go."

"Go where?"

"Any place you want to be."

"You're kidding. You look like a guy I know in the Marine corps. He's too embarrassed to go anywhere."

When my husband came home he looked at me and said, "What happened to your hair?"

"I blew it," I said.

He shook his head. "I'll say."

Mother, Be Very Sure Of Your Facts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the grandmother of a beautiful little granddaughter I love dearly. I used to babysit with her while my daughter worked because she didn't care all that much about being a mother. Actually, my daughter never really wanted this child, but she had no choice.

My daughter and her husband moved to another state, and I know that my granddaughter is being neglected. She is left at a daycare center all day, and a sitter comes in on some evenings. Whenever I call my daughter, the child has a cold and doesn't feel well.

I am so worried about her, Abby. I'm afraid something will happen to her if she doesn't get better care.

Do you know of any legal steps I could take to bring charges against my daughter and her husband for being unfit parents? Please answer before it's too late.

PENNA. GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If (as you say) your daughter doesn't care "all that much" about being a mother, perhaps if you offered to take the child off her hands, she would be glad to let you have her.

In order to take the child from her legally, you will need a lawyer and proof to support the charges that your daughter is an unfit mother. But you'd better be sure of your facts, Mother, or you could stir up a hornet's nest.

DEAR ABBY: I am seeing a Hungarian woman, and before we part, she always shakes hands with me.

Is she trying to tell me something? Or do all Hungarian women do this?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: No. Some of them kiss.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are very friendly with another married couple I'll call "Bob" and "Joan." Bob is having an affair and Joan knows it, but she suspects the wrong woman and has been bad-mouthing her.

Most of Bob's friends (including us) know who his girlfriend is because he has introduced her around.

I don't think it's fair for an innocent party to be slandered, and I want to tell Joan that she is on the wrong track, but my husband says I should stay out of it.

I would NOT tell Joan who the right party is: I would only tell her she has put the finger on the wrong woman. Would I be out of line?

FOR TRUTH

DEAR FOR: Yes. And you would also be in the middle. Stay out of it.

ELM HYBRIDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The elm tree may grow again on Elm Streets across the United States. Scientists of the USDA Agricultural Research Service have developed a hybrid urban elm that is resistant to Dutch elm disease. This fungus destroyed the stately elms that once lined American roads and streets, and shaded parks and lawns from the Great Plains to the Atlantic shore. Current propagation should make limited consumer stocks available in about three years.

She Stirred Demo Convention

Every political convention seems to produce someone who captures the nation's fancy, and for this year's Democratic convention it may be Rep. Barbara Jordan (D-Texas).

"We must provide the people with a vision of the future that is attainable," she told the cheering Democrats, "We must strike a balance between the idea that the government can do everything and the belief that the government should do nothing."

Right there she took a cue from the Democrats' presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, and appealed to the moderates and even conservatives who she knew were before her.

She was a woman and the first black to keynote a national political convention. However, she said, "The past notwithstanding, a Barbara Jordan is before you tonight. This is one additional bit of evidence that the American Dream need not forever be deferred."

She saw something "different and special about the Democratic convention this year."

"We are a people in a quandary about the present," she continued. "We are a people in search of our future. We are a people in search of a national community."

No doubt as a woman and a black it has been more difficult for Barbara Jordan to reach national prominence. But she has done it to the point of bringing excitement to a Democratic convention which otherwise has been rather dull this year.

The delegates loved her.

Encouragement From Leaf Mart Prices

Record prices on the opening of the South Carolina-Border market ought to be encouraging for tobacco producers in the Eastern Belt areas.

The Border Belt averaged $89.02 per hundred pounds on Tuesday's opening, compared to a $84.80 opening average last year.

With a superb tobacco crop in this area, the Border average offers the hope of a good opening here next week.

Upset By Personnel Shift

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The Democratic Legislature in May tried to make certain that Republican administration personnel officers working in regional offices of the State Highways Division lost those jobs.

Convinced that the personnel officers in the field were in truth either being rewarded for past Republican political activities, or serving as clearing houses to make sure any new job applicants were politically "right," the General Assembly ordered the jobs abolished.

The action by Department of Transportation officials to get around that legislative action has angered legislators, who are now conducting a staff probe of the circumstances.

position with substantially the same job description or duties."

The law went on to warn that no career employees could be demoted, transferred or dismissed "in order to retain a person who held one of the eliminated positions."

But the lawmakers—intent on closing all loopholes—left one open. When agency heads pleaded that the legislators leave them the flexibility to use vacant positions for other essential purposes, the lawmakers gave in.

The understanding was that such transfers were essential to good management practices, and would be used only to meet critical needs.

So what the Department of Transportation did was consolidate 32 existing job vacancies throughout the agency to find the funds to keep 13 of those personnel officers on board.

"It's a mighty expensive joke — if that's what they think of it," grumbles State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, who originally pushed to have those slots eliminated. "It's costing the taxpayers a lot of money."

State Personnel Director Al Boyles was called upon to make a ruling that the transfers were legal, and did so. But all he did was to see that the law was complied with.

Department of Transportation officials say they did not recommend the move, nor push for it. Orders came from higher up.

The Governor

In fact, when Transportation Secretary G. Perry Greene, an appointee of Gov. James E. Holshouser, announced that the personnel officers were being kept on the payroll, he made a point of saying: "This action taken by the General Assembly has the effect of hampering the Governor's ability to control his administration."

Preliminary results of a probe into the situation by the Legislative Fiscal Research Division shows that the action was initiated at the "highest level — presumably the governor's office — and not by DOT staff."

The 13 personnel officers were transferred on paper to the main office in Raleigh, but remain in their field locations physically, performing personnel classification work, employee relations, and overseeing equal employment opportunities.

The use of 32 vacant jobs were necessary to provide the funds to pay the personnel officers salaries ranging from $11,000 to $18,000 per year (average is $14,000).

A staff review of the personnel records for each of the men reveals that some went into the jobs straight out of college, while others had at most one or two years of experience in jobs including sales, coal inspections, or lifeguarding.

None had previous experience in personnel work, and the staff has tentatively told lawmakers that there is serious doubt if any were qualified to be personnel officers to start with.

While certainly incensed over the situation, most legislators now tend to dismiss the idea that any corrective action can be taken, rather depending on changes in the next election to rectify the situation.

One Drink On The House

NEW YORK — Most of the talk about Jimmy Carter now looks to the future — to Labor Day, to Election Day, even to Inauguration Day. As the curtain falls on the Democratic Convention, it may be useful to take one more look at the past. How did Carter pull it off?

Three factors may help to explain the Carter story: the nature of the man, the nature of his opposition, and the nature of his opportunity. With only a handful of exceptions, most of us in the Washington press corps misread all three.

Permit me a personal word. Carter is a liberal Democrat; I am a conservative Whig. Before the hurly-burly's done, I doubtless will be trying to knock his block off. Meanwhile, he is entitled to one free drink on the house. He did an astonishing job.

Carter is an astonishing political figure. On the record of his brilliant campaign, he emerges as a superlative strategist, planner, executive, and administrator. He possesses that keen sense of pace that is built into the brain of the long distance runner. In 35 years of covering politics, I have never met a candidate who worked harder, more singlemindedly, more confidently, than Jimmy Carter of Georgia. He ran the whole field into the ground.

It was Carter's shrewd perception, and our particular blindness, that he saw his opposition clearly. We looked at the roll of prospective candidates and saw the names of national figures — names we were at home with: Humphrey, Muskie, Jackson, Bayh, Bentsen, Udall, Wallace. They seemed a formidable lot.

Hawks Sale Is Near

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Jordan are expected to agree within the next few days on a multimillion-dollar missile sale, U.S. officials say.

While details are still being worked out, the discussions center on 12 to 14 American-built Hawk air defense missile batteries and some limited support equipment.

State Department officials were cautious Wednesday in discussing the Hawk deal, but several sources confirmed that the basic agreement will be reached in a matter of days, perhaps within a week.

Other administration sources said the total price will probably be in the $600-million range, although the final cost remains under discussion.

Jordan has clamored for an air defense system ever since the 1967 Middle East war in which Israel easily conquered the West bank area of the Jordan River valley.

Under assurances that Jordan would use the Hawks only for defense, the United States agreed last spring to negotiate a sale.

But the transaction quickly ran into trouble which ultimately damaged U.S.-Jordanian relations, embarrassed Saudi Arabia and sent Jordan's King Hussein on a fruitless mission to Moscow to obtain a similar missile system.

Jordan initially agreed to buy 14 Hawk batteries, with Saudi Arabia, its wealthy neighbor, to finance the $350 million cost. However, Hussein decided he wanted to add sophisticated communication equipment and other high-priced facilities.

These items plus the cost of installation and maintenance ultimately drove the final price to about $850 million. The Saudi's balked at paying this and Congress refused to provide the financing after some Pentagon officials indicated Jordan didn't need such an advanced defense system.

When the deal fell through last April, Hussein was prodded by his then-Prime Minister Zayd Rifai to buy a similar missile system from the Russians. This ended unsuccessfully.

Preparing For Real World

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — In five years, Pennsylvania high school graduates may be showing employers and colleges a list of skills they've accomplished instead of letter grades.

The list would be part of their school records. It could show ability to read and write at 12th grade levels and proficiency in balancing a checkbook, computing interest, purchasing insurance and completing tax forms.

It's all part of a state government program to prepare pupils for the outside world. Some call it competency-based education and it's catching on, to one degree or another, across the country.

Educators want schools to teach skills rather than just subjects because too many high school graduates lack the skills needed for life's daily decisions, they say.

"Students need to know that if you can't read a newspaper you aren't going to make it in this society," says Pennsylvania's Education Secretary John C. Pittenger. "If you can't fill out a job application you are headed for disaster. If you don't have the computational skills to take out a mortgage, handle a checking account or buy insurance, life is going to be one long headache."

About a dozen districts will be selected this fall to include in their curriculums the survival skills needed in the outside world. The districts also would upgrade teaching of basic reading, writing and math.

Within five years the state will require every school district to incorporate new course material into teaching programs.

Eventually, the decision to award diplomas may depend on pupils' abilities to read and write at acceptable levels, and to competently handle survival skills.

A proposed new school code leaves open the question of making pupil competency in specified areas a graduation requirement.

Rep. Samuel E. Hayes Jr., a member of the House Education Committee, said those who drafted the legislation never intended the section on survival skills to prevent graduation.

State government educators say they favor promoting, evaluating and graduating pupils based on their demonstrated competencies. They feel it's meaningless to continue awarding diplomas just because pupils complete a specified number of English, math and social studies courses.

There's no debate among the drafters and the educators over the need to teach survival skills.

Among the principal boosters of the concept are Pennsylvania school children.

A pupil advisory board that offers the pupil viewpoint to Pittenger said in a committee report:

"There is a growing skepticism over the value of the traditional system. Educators, taxpayers and employers are questioning the value of the high school diploma. It is imperative that we re-evaluate our system and establish new outcomes for education."

The pupils chose a dozen areas where pupils must demonstrate competency to graduate. They added seven life experiences that pupils must participate in before earning a diploma.

The competency areas ranged from traditional reading, writing and mathematics to shopping, swimming, simple electrical repair, politics and the law.

The experiences would involve care of children, participation in sports, exposure to art, speaking to a group, working with a group on a common task, job training and working with foreign languages.

Some competencies would

Other Editors Say Where'd They Go?

(Henderson Dispatch)

In some quarters, official and otherwise, surprise has been expressed over the sharp decline in Fourth of July tourism. They are wondering what happened, and they have an explanation. Any one who was at the fireworks display at the Henderson Mall Sunday night the Fourth could give a partial answer. Many folks simply stayed at home. It was a massive turnout here.

Bill Arnold, director of the State's Travel and Promotion Division, said the reason was simple. For one thing, he stated, people stayed at home to celebrate the Bicentennial. Late school closings in the North delayed travel from that source, he explained, though it would seem that schools generally quit for the summer on schedule.

In Virginia, Williamsburg and Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's estate, had expected droves of tourists. But they didn't come, at least not to the extent anticipated. An 18 percent decrease was reported at the Biltmore House in Asheville, and North Carolina's beaches had fewer than usual for the Fourth.

People have the money to go when they want to travel. And, despite the Independence Day slump, it will probably be made up before cold weather comes.

Henderson's Kerr Lake recreation centers had about as many people as had been expected, though cloudy skies and threats of rain may have trimmed the number of visitors to some extent.

Whether these explanations give the full answer is debatable. It did appear, however, that there was validity to the celebration at the home base.

The attractions are there and always will be for those who travel. There are scenic spots in North Carolina, from the mountains to the sea, which are the equal of other nearby points, unless one wishes to travel to the West or to Canada. The far away places require time and a lot of gas for the family car. So many apparently decided to economize.

Moving swiftly to bring former Lieutenant Commander John S. Farnsworth to trial on spy charges, high officials hinted today that his arrest was only the beginning of a wholesale roundup of persons suspected of supplying Navy secrets to foreign powers.

After Farnsworth was lodged in jail under $10,000 bail on a charge of purveying confidential data to an agent of the Imperial Japanese Navy, Navy officers said the United States is "honeycombed" with spying activities.

The determination was expressed to take all possible steps to protect the fleet's secrets as the United States goes ahead with its program to strengthen the Navy.

Pitcher Bill Holland hurled a 4-2 win for the Greenies yesterday afternoon against the Williamston Martins to regain first place for the local team.

Strength For Today

MESSAGE FROM THE BIBLE

In the Gideon Bible lying on the dresser in a motel room the words, "having done all, to stand" (Eph. 6:13) were heavily underlined in pencil.

Why these particular words? Perhaps the underlining was done by someone in grave temptation who opened the Bible, chanced upon these words at random, and found the strength to resist. Or it may have been a tried and discouraged salesman ending a day of failure or starting on one which held little promise.

The room may have been occupied by a wanderer who, disillusioned with the course of his life, found the strength to turn to something new and creative.

Life is a pageant of joy and sorrow, of anticipation and regret, of success and failure. For everyone, no matter what his situation, the Bible has advice and comfort. Happy is the person who is aware that the Bible has a message for him and who is confident that it can change the course of his life.

Carter And Zero-Base Budgets

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If there is political appeal to zero-base budgeting in this presidential election campaign, it will be because people are fed up with waste and bureaucratic inefficiency. Jimmy Carter hopes so.

The budgeting approach to governmental programs of "let's return to zero bases and begin again" seems to have instinctive, fundamental appeal to Carter and, he hopes, to millions of voters too.

Upon becoming governor of Georgia in 1970, Carter observed that once a bureaucratic entity had been established, it was almost immune from later scrutiny, often wastefully perpetuating itself like a cancer.

"We changed all of this in my state and devised a procedure whereby future budgets would start from scratch — at zero," he writes in his campaign autobiography. It was the beginning of his version of zero basing.

"I had run on a platform promising reorganization of the state government, stating that there were 146 agencies in all. Our later analysis revealed 300, and we abolished 278 of them!" he writes.

Carter now promises, if elected, to pursue a reorganization of the structure of the federal government and the institution of another zero-base budget system.

A Carter adviser suggests that at the federal level "it would not be a revolution so much as a change — one of degree rather than kind." Whether Carter would be able to zero-base away any agency cannot be foretold, said Michael Wachter, an economic adviser.

The concept is nothing new, having been used by some businessmen for years. It has some support among concerned federal officials too, and years ago was endorsed to some extent by Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman.

Its appeal to the public, however, might never have been so high, at least in Carter's opinion. He sees a public fed up with agencies whose purpose over the years deteriorates from public service to self-preservation.

Ask the fundamental question, he urges; determine if an agency is needed at all. Instead of each year adding increments to the prior year's budget, scrape away the bureaucratic accretions until the goals shine clear again.

While some Carter-watchers are inclined to see this quest for renewal, for a new beginning, as originating in almost theological attitudes, others see it as a necessary, practical, hard-nosed — maybe even ruthless — and politically appealing.

Legislatures in several states already have responded to the public's dissatisfaction with self-perpetuating programs by proposing sunset laws. Colorado has passed such a measure. Congress has expressed interest.

The sunset approach, a legislative cousin to the mainly administratively enforced zero-basing, simply but radically changes the usual bureaucratic attitude, which is to assume that once

N.C. Gave 56 Votes To Collier Says Meet Carter, 3 For Wallace

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina cast 56 votes for Jimmy Carter, three for George

Wallace, and there were two abstentions at the Democratic National Convention.

The vote was announced by the chairman of the delegation, James R. Sugg, the state Democratic chairman.

North Carolina voted just Wednesday night just before Ohio, whose ballots put Carter over the top.

Many in the 61-member delegation expressed pleasure at having the best seats in the house, but complained about being treated as "country bumpkins" in the big city.

The delegation was seated seven rows from the front, just to the left of the podium at Madison Square Garden.

"When I saw where we were, I said, 'Hot dog, we're up front,'" commented Mrs. Willie Smith of Charlotte, a Carter delegate.

The issues haven't been hot and heavy, but the good seats made it more fun, she said. "Even though it's been slow, we've been right up there."

There have been disadvantages to the near-perfect seating arrangement. Television cameramen often usurped seats and standing areas for interviews with prominent people and obstructed the view.

According to N.C. Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, New York's high prices offended the delegates this week, and he said he intended to file a complaint with the New York attorney general.

"This hotel is ripping people off and I'm going to call the attorney general of New York and complain about it," he said of the New York Hilton.

"I'm told one man was charged $60 extra just to get a room with two sinks in it. I guess it goes with the season, but I don't think we are that big a bunch of fools," he said.

"We were told that rooms would top out at about $50 before we came up here," complained Jeanette Council of Fayetteville. Her room turned out to be $57 per day.

John Clark, a delegate from Craven County, threatened to take his complaint to the floor of the convention.

"I'm paying $68.50 a day for a room with one bed," he said. "I know people who have better rooms than we do and they're paying only $34."

Clark complained that North Carolina delegates were being treated like "country bumpkins. I resent that. You don't have to be a Philadelphia lawyer to know when you're being taken."

to catch the wave at its crest and to ride it home. The man, the opposition, and the opportunity — Carter put it all together. We nagged at him to get specific on the issues. He knew, better than we, that issues were not so important this time around.

There were none of the instant catchwords of other years—Korea, civil rights, Vietnam, the draft. There was something else instead — an inchoate desire, out in the broad land, for a cessation in the shrill and bitter tumult.

Carter had sense enough to understand this. Early on, I watched him make the "love speech" to high school audiences in New Hampshire. Time after time he repeated his simple appeal for a return to those qualities of honesty, decency, compassion, and love that characterize the American ideal. Sophisticated reporters, quickly jaded, used to wince and roll their eyes. Carter knew exactly what he was doing. It was the laying on of hands, the healing touch. The issues could wait.

So, one on the house for the gentleman from Georgia! He ran a long, exhausting, relentless campaign — a clean campaign, singularly free of the words that slash, the blows that wound. He took on the best his party could throw at him. He crumbled some of the toughest cookies in the media. When he tripped, as he tripped on the "ethnic purity" line, he came nimbly to his feet and smoothly glided on. For a truly professional performance, he has earned professional acclaim. It may be the last time, but I cheerfully stand up to applaud.

Don Collier, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, announced that plans have been set for a joint meeting of all committee chairmen of the local Chamber.

Collier said the breakfast meeting is scheduled for Friday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Collier, is to implement the Program of Work that will "enhance that liveability and profitability for the Greenville area." He added that the meeting will also serve as an orientation meeting for the Chamber committee chairmen who will be responsible for carrying out the activities of the Program of Work.

Those serving as chairmen of the various committees include: Civic Affairs Committee, James Hecker, Empire Brushes; Community Advertising, Mike Aldridge, Aldridge & Southerland Realty; Convention and Tourism, W. B. (Buff) Chalf, Planters National Bank;

Credit Bureau, Bruce H. Baker, Home Credit Co.; Educational, Billy Laughinghouse, Bostic-Sugg; Highway and Communications, Tom Taft, Taft & Taft; Human Relations, Donovan Phillips, Phillips Brothers Mortuary; Industrial Development, E. Andy Warren, Wachovia Bank & Trust;

Membership, Carl Knott, Ernest & Knott Glass Co.; Political Action, Miles F. Frost, North Carolina National Bank; Restructuring Dues Investment, Jerry Powell, NCNB; and Retail Trade, John Shannonhouse, White's Store.

The meeting will mark the first session of the committee chairmen with Ed Walker, new executive vice president of the Greenville Chamber.

ly after the United States told Hussein he was endangering Jordan's participation in the large American military and economic aid program.

Hussein thus turned again to Washington. After U.S. officials said they were still willing to sell him a Hawk system, Hussein went to Saudi Arabia early this month to discuss a scaled-down program.

A side effect of the situation was the dismissal by Hussein of Rifai, U.S. officials added. Rifai, who constantly pressed the king to ease his dependence on the United States, fell from grace this week as a direct result of Hussein's failure to reach agreement with Moscow on the missile sale, the officials explained.

The Church Of Jesus Christ Of Latter Day Saints (Mormon)

invites the public to attend an Open House Thursday, July 15 at 7:30 p.m. at 307 Marlinsborough Road, Greenville. The program consists of small group discussions, a short film and a question and answer period followed by light refreshments.

be taught in the traditional classroom. Others would be learned in the community. The proposed school code asks the state to devise ways of measuring pupil competency. A record would be kept of skills attained by each pupil, thus telling the state, the district and the individual how the new concept was working.

Charles Lohin, principal of McCaskey High School in Lancaster, said the skills list could be an advantage to the pupil.

"I think it's more meaningful for a student to leave the school at a certain level and go to an employer or a college and be able to say: 'Here is actually what I can do, here's evidence that I can do it,' as opposed to 'Here is my A or B and you decide what that means.'"

Frank Manchester, state commissioner of basic education, said once school districts meet the minimum requirements, they could tailor competency-based education to their own community needs.

In districts with a strong family and church environment, pupils can learn to balance checkbooks and do comparison shopping from their parents, he said. Where strong family ties are lacking, a teacher might have to take pupils to the supermarket.

The Lancaster School District is already into a competency program.

For example, Maria Morales, a junior at McCaskey High, filled out this year's income tax form for her mother, who only speaks Spanish. She learned how to do it in class.

Patti Leonard, another McCaskey junior, was hired to run rides at an amusement park. She won out over several friends, she said, because she learned in school how to conduct herself during job interviews.

"A lot of kids graduating are still sliding by," Maria said.

Pupils are learning to complete tax forms, balance checkbooks, read insurance policies and fill out job applications, among other skills.

New course material is under development, using a survey of employers and parents who told the district what they expected of graduates.

One of McCaskey's most popular electives is "Practical English." In that class Maria Morales learned to handle her mother's income tax and Patti Leonard discovered what to expect at job interviews.

The teacher, Nancy Shackford, also taught her pupils to plan a family budget. She issues them "paychecks," and has the pupils allocate realistic amounts for rent, utilities, food, spending money, bus fare and savings.

in motion an agency must be kept in motion.

Rather than assuming the perpetuity of an agency, a life limit is placed upon it; and if a particular program cannot demonstrate its right to life, it is aborted. No longer does it bask in budgetary sunshine.

Both zero-basing and sunshining area, like other governmental enterprises, are open to criticism.

Critics of zero-base budgeting contend it is nothing but common sense, to which its sponsors often reply that, yes, of course it is, but how seldom exercised. The label, they say, helps popularize the procedure.

Sunset laws sometimes are said to be escapism. If legislators had the will, it is argued, they could put into darkness any number of programs that have failed to justify their existence; the law merely relieves them of the duty.

How did zero-basing do in Georgia? It depends upon your point of view.

One common criticism is that the startling reduction of agencies merely created a relatively few but unwieldy superagencies. The over-all budget rose. The numbers of state workers rose.

In "Why Not the Best?" Carter states "When I left office our state surplus was almost $200 million," and he suggests that government was streamlined, efficient and effective.

James McIntyre, director of the Office of Planning and Budget in the new Georgia administration, said this week that zero-basing has been continued and enhanced. It worked for Carter and it works now, he said.

 Breece said he feels it is time for new leadership in the secretary's office.
 "I have nothing but the greatest respect and admiration for the present secretary of state," he said.
 "I commend him on his 40 years in office."
 "But it's time for new leadership in that office. When Thad Eure first ran for secretary of state in 1936, even his slogan was 'Give a young man a chance.'"
 "The office could certainly be run more efficiently. It's not just a ceremonial position."
 Breece mentioned that the last day to register before the August 17 primary is July 19. He urged residents to register at their local board of elections.

Valid Ruling Is Questioned

The question "When is a ruling a valid ruling?" was asked by members of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission at the monthly meeting last night. The question was directed to a late May ruling by the Greenville Board of Adjustments.

River Study...

 this summer. The river is severely deoxygenated in the day and at night. We need to study this more but it doesn't appear to be critical right now." Davis and Dr. Mark M. Brinson, another ECU biologist, are studying the river as part of a project funded by the Water Resources Research Institute (WRI). They are assisted by Tom Vicars, a research associate and Bill Burke, a graduate student, financed by the WRI grant; Judith Midgette, a graduate of Martin Technical Institute, and Janet Haynes and Chip Duncan, ECU Biology undergraduates, all financed for ten weeks of work under a grant from the National Science Foundation.

A two-year study produced the current findings. The second phase of the project was recently awarded $14,356 by the WRI.
 "We are now trying to determine the relative importance of food produced in the estuary compared to that which comes in through the tributaries," Davis noted. "We are also studying the kinds of food, such as cellulose and proteins."

STUDY APPROVED
CHICAGO (UPI) — The General Board of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has agreed to the denomination's participation in a controversial study, sponsored by the National Council of Churches, on the potential threat of nuclear wastes created by the use of plutonium.

On May 27, the Board of Adjustments, in a lengthy administrative hearing on the Jaycee Park next to Eastern Elementary School, made a decision, among others, that "by September 1, 1976, a 9:30 p.m. curfew must be observed."

What Recreation Commission members are seeking to determine is whether the Board of Adjustments has authority to decide on the Recreation Department's policy relative to operation of its facilities.

Director Boyd Lee explained that the Board of Adjustments can only decide whether the park should be there or not and does not have authority to set rulings on it. He noted also that the Board of Adjustments has the authority, and did rule to uphold the opinion of the City Building Inspector that under zoning ordinances, Jaycee Park is located in a proper area.

Several commission members at last night's meeting asked Lee whether the curfew directive could be ignored in light of the non-authority of the Board of Adjustments in this case.

"We have to accept it," Lee noted. "That's the way the law is. We have the choice of going to court or making an appeal to the Board of Adjustments at their September meeting."

The Recreation Commission members unanimously concurred in making a strong appeal to the Board of Adjustments in September. They also expressed their dismay that one city agency could overstep the bounds of their authority in making such a ruling.

Lee expressed an opinion that the ruling was made in an effort to appease a single citizen who has consistently protested the nights hours operation of Jaycee Park.

Construction Underway On New Office Building

NEW OFFICE . . . of East Federal Savings & Loan Association under construction at 100 Arlington Boulevard.

Construction is underway on East Federal Savings and Loan Association's new Greenville office, located at 100 Arlington Boulevard.

The new branch, according to R. Ben Rayford, branch coordinator, will have some 2,600 square feet with three private offices, large lobby, teller servicing area, drive-up facilities and storage area.

Rayford added that a spacious community room, designed to meet civic and other community meeting needs, will also be provided with a separate entrance for the convenience of organizations utilizing the facility.

Construction is scheduled to be completed by early December, it was pointed out.

J. V. Brittle, chairman of the East Federal board of directors, said that Farrior & Sons of Farmville is handling the general construction. Warren E. Hargett of Kinston was the architect for the new structure.

East Federal, founded on Oct. 21, 1924, in Kinston, is presently headquartered on North Queen Street, Kinston.

The association's first branch office was opened in 1959 in Snow Hill and since that time branches have been opened in Warsaw, Jacksonville, Farmville, Cape Carteret, Burgaw, and New Bern, in addition to Kinston's second office at Vernon Park Mall.

The association changed its name from Home Federal Savings and Loan to East Federal in June of 1975.

Kiwanis Honors Past Presidents

Past presidents were honored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club as they celebrated 55 years of service to the Greenville community on Wednesday evening.

In a look at the past, present and future of the club, past president Virgil Clark, current president Ed Yancey, president-elect Dave Stevens, and secretary "Dixie" McGlohn noted achievements and plans.

The club, through money raised by the sale of peanuts, supports the Boys' Club, Salvation Army, Little League, Operation Sunshine, Boys' Home and other youth projects.

The Ken Beatty Picnic shelter at Green Springs Park here was a recent project of the club, it was noted. Sponsorship of the learning disability screening clinic has been a major activity for the past two years.

A scholarship fund maintained by the club annually provides three scholarships to Rose High School graduates who will study at East Carolina University.

During Wednesday's meeting, Judge Dink James, the oldest active member of the club and a past president, blew out the candles on a cake specially decorated for the celebration.

Mrs. Lena Tyson, pianist, was recognized for her 55 years of service to the club. Mrs. Tyson began playing the piano for the club at the second meeting after it was organized in 1921.

The club has sponsored eight new clubs during its history. The presidents of several of those clubs were on hand for the event. Billy Poole, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis Division Seven North, was a special guest.

Stevens, in noting that the 1976-77 theme will be "Lead the Way," encouraged the Kiwanians to continue to lead in providing service to Greenville.

Greenville Man On Trade Board

A Greenville man, Charles W. Howard, was named Wednesday to the N.C. Advisory Board of the Japan-U.S. Southeast Association, a trade group.

Howard, president of Greenville Tobacco Co., was appointed by Gov. James Holshouser along with ten other persons.

Holshouser will leave Sept. 17 to lead a week-long trade mission to Japan, accompanied by representatives of several state banks, and officials of the state ports and the Dept. of natural and Economic Resources.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined slightly today in an atmosphere of impatience with the market's continued struggle above the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips was down 3.20 at 1,001.98 at 11:30 a.m.

Losers held a slight edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange listed issues.

Trading was moderate.

Brokers noted some disappointment after the Dow climbed to a new closing high for the year on Monday, only to start slipping back again in the next two sessions.

Price changes in most stocks was small. The exceptions were some glamor issues which were responding to individual second quarter earnings reports.

International Business Machines, which came in with sharply higher quarterly profits Wednesday, licked up 2 1/2 to 27 1/4.

Walt Disney Productions, on the other hand, fell 2 1/4 to 53 1/4. The company posted record second quarter earnings, but the figures evidently fell short on some investors' expectations.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .09 to 56.52 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was unchanged at 107.05.

Two Arrested On Theft Counts

Michael Douglas Stewart, 23, of Route 1, Holly Ridge and Carl Michael Jones, 20 of Route 5, Greenville, were arrested by Greenville police yesterday on charges of receiving stolen property, and breaking, entering and larceny.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the charges stemmed from a July 9 break-in at Surf City, during which two guitars and a pistol were taken.

Cannon said local police recovered the two guitars and the gun.

Stewart and Jones were turned over to Surf City officers following their arrest.

Maximum Benefits To Increase

Tighten Up On Parking

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that local officers will begin more stringent enforcement of a city ordinance that prohibits drivers from their vehicles on the operator's left side.

Cannon said, too, that police will make wider use of an ordinance authorizing them to remove vehicles parked in prohibited areas.

The stepped-up enforcement program, Cannon said, will begin Monday. He explained that the action is being taken in an effort to reduce the number of traffic accidents in the city.

The chief explained that under the city code, it is illegal for a driver to park a vehicle on the operator's left side of any street, with the exception of one-way streets on which vehicles may be parked on either side unless signs or markings indicate no parking zones on either one or both sides.

Cannon said police are authorized by the city code to remove vehicles parked in prohibited areas. He noted that privately owned tow trucks are used to remove illegally parked cars to storage areas and that the city code provides that the car owner shall become liable for the removal and storage charges.

He urged local drivers to observe all traffic laws and to be more mindful of their driving habits, in an effort to reduce the number of traffic mishaps in the city.

hired as the new Recreation Department Park Ranger. "He was formerly with the Security Guard at Shaw University in Raleigh," Lee commented. "We're fortunate to have his services."

He reported also that since the Park Ranger's position has been included in the recreation budget, the Emergency Employment Act funds previously used for this position were now being utilized for an assistant to Stringfield, "so we'll have seven day a week coverage."

A third summer intern, Miss Beth Malloch, a senior at East Carolina University, was introduced. Jimmy Sutton and Wandra Elks, both UNC-Chapel Hill students, are the other interns working with the department this summer.

Bids will be let the last week in July for renovation at the South Greenville Recreation Center. That facility has been closed since early June due to a badly leaking roof. "We have $45,000 in Community Development Project funds for necessary renovations," Lee reported. "This should be sufficient to get that site in top shape."

Lee reported that "the go-ahead has been given to start renovation work on a portion of the classroom building of the old

Jobless workers qualifying for the maximum unemployment payment after August 1 will be paid $105 per week instead of the current $97 maximum, according to Jim Hannan, Manager of the Greenville office of the N. C. Employment Security Commission.

The increased rate of payment applies only to new claims established on or after August 1, 1976. Persons currently receiving the $97 maximum payment will not have their payments adjusted to the new amount. The minimum payment remains at $15 per week.

"State law requires that the maximum weekly unemployment payment remains at two-thirds the average weekly wage paid all workers covered by unemployment insurance," Hannan said.

"Each August the Employment Security Commission computes a new maximum payment based on the prior year's average weekly wage," He said.

The average weekly wage earned by all persons covered by unemployment insurance in 1975 was $158.19. The present statewide average unemployment payment is $64 a week.

When workers become unemployed their rate of unemployment insurance payments is determined by the amount earned during the high quarter of the qualifying base period of employment. The base period is the first four of the most recently completed six calendar quarters.

For example, if a claim is filed today, the qualifying period would be all of calendar year 1975, and would change on October 1 to the last nine months of 1975 and the first 9 months of 1976. Beginning with August 1 claims, a worker who earned as much as $2,717 during his high quarter will be entitled to the maximum $105 payment pegged to average wages, the providing he meets other eligibility requirements. Since unemployment payments are pegged to average wages, the maximum benefit increases each year.

East Carolina Nips Campbell, 11-10

It was another rip-roaring last night at Harrington Field as the Bucs and their guests kept up their high-scoring high-jinx. By the time it was all over, the Pirates had eeked out an 11-10 ninth inning victory over Campbell College.

East Carolina pushed out into an early lead, scoring three runs in the first. Campbell came back to score five in the second frame, but the Bucs tied it up in the third.

The two swapped the lead in the fourth and seventh innings, and after the eighth saw the two score a total of seven runs, it was knotted at 10-10.

That set up the Bucs' final rally in the ninth, scoring the game-ending run.

The 21-run total ran to 40 the total runs scored this week in two games by the Bucs and their foes. Monday night, East Carolina nipped Methodist in a 10-inning, 10-0 outburst.

Each team banged out 11 hits, while Campbell made five errors and the Bucs, one. Each used three pitchers, but it was those who came in the eighth that got the decisions.

Pete Conaty came on to snuff out the Campbell fires in the eighth and picked up his fifth win against four losses. John Lippert also came in for relief duty in the eighth, stopping a Pirate rally, but he was tagged with his second loss without a win.

After starter Glenn Card fanned the side in the first inning, the Pirates broke loose for three runs in their half of the frame. Robert Brinkley reached on a fielder's choice and scored when Macon Moye tripped to center. He scored when Bobby Supel reached on a fielder's choice. Charlie Stevens moved Supel up with a hit, and he scored when Pete Paradossi reached on an error, making it 3-0.

A controversial call got Campbell going in the top of the second, and the Camels didn't stop until they had scored five runs. With one out, Max Mann lofted a double to straight-away center. Tony Naumann walked.

Johnny McLamb eased a grounder down the first base line, and Sonny Wooten appeared to put the tag on him, but one umpire didn't see the play, and appealed to the other, who signaled safe. After ECU Coach Monte Little argued in vain, Dave Warrick singled to left, scoring Mann. Naumann scored on a wild pitch and Paul Rappa singled to left, scoring both McLamb and Warrick. Mo Toner finished the scoring off with a double to left, driving in Rappa.

The Bucs tied it up with two in the third. Supel hit what looked to be a routine fly to center that would end the inning, but the ball kept going and family bounced off the glove of the racing outfielder, falling in for a triple. Stevens then hit a towering fly to right center that cleared the fence for a two-run homer, knotting it at 5-5.

Campbell went back out with a run in the fourth. Gary Buck was hit by a pitch with one down, and Rappa singled to right. Toner beat out at bunt, loading the bases. Lippert grounded to second, with Buck scoring on the play. The Bucs then cut down Rappa, trying to score on a double steal attempt.

It stayed 5-5 until the seventh, when the Bucs moved back ahead 7-6, with two runs. Rick Koryda and Brinkley both walked. Moye then hit a fly to right. The rightfielder and the second baseman both called for it, with the second baseman finally backing off, just as the rightfielder did, too. The latter then made a stab at the ball, but couldn't control it, and it loaded the bases. Koryda scored on a passed ball and Wooten hit a sacrifice fly to score Brinkley.

Campbell came right back to pushed over four more runs, getting a 10-7 lead. With two away, Warrick singled and Buck walked. Rappa also walked, loading the bases.

Toner was hit by a pitch — again controversially. In spinning to avoid that he thought was to be an inside pitch, he stuck his leg out, and was hit on the knee. Again Little argued — to no avail — that he had stuck his leg into path of the ball and that he had been in the strike zone.

Nevertheless, the resulting advance of the runners scored Warrick. A wild pitch brought Buck home, and Lippert singled in both Rappa and Toner.

In the bottom of the eighth, the Bucs came through with three to tie it once more. Stevens opened up with a single and Paradossi hit a pop fly to the infield. The pitcher started to take it, but was called off by the first baseman, who then couldn't get to the ball. He still had time to get Stevens, who had hung around first, but the throw to second sailed high over the base, and Stevens arrived safely. Jerry Carraway then singled to load them up. Howard McCullough walked to score Stevens, and Brinkley singled to left, scoring Paradossi. An error on the relay let Carraway score the tying run.

Then, in the ninth, the winning run scored. With one down, Paradossi doubled and moved to third on a wild pitch. Carraway grounded to second, but the throw to home was not quite in time as Paradossi slide over.

The Bucs are 14-10, and host UNC-Wilmington in a double header here Friday, starting at 6 p.m. Campbell drops to 10-22.

Babashoff Insists She Isn't Only U.S. Threat

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Shirley Babashoff has blond hair. But that's where the similarity to Joan of Arc ends. She doesn't ride white horses and she bristles at the suggestion that she is America's last line of resistance to the charge of the East Germans.

"That stuff about me being our only hope for a gold medal is just a dumb remark," said Miss Babashoff, America's only legitimate hope for a gold medal. "Everybody on our team is capable of winning a gold medal."

That was the party line echoed by four American women swimmers and their coach, Jack Nelson, at a press conference on Wednesday. Only it didn't take into account that some swimmers are more capable than others.

The East Germans, owners of world records in 12 of the 13 Olympic events, are the most capable bunch of female swimmers in the Games' history. In almost every race, they have one super athlete who seems to have found a short cut to the finish line.

The list of them goes on and on and where it stops everybody knows. Shirley Babashoff in the freestyle races.

Miss Babashoff, 19, from Fountain Valley, Calif., said her goal was "to try my hardest, try to win a gold medal. I'll be disappointed if I don't try my hardest."

She downplayed her rivalry with East Germany's Kornelia Ender, world record holder in the 100 and 200 freestyles.

Miss Babashoff, the 19-year-old Olympic veteran, holds the world record in the 800 freestyle and American marks in the 100, 200 and 400 freestyles. She'll be swimming in all these races, plus the 400 individual medley and two relays.

Her best gold medal shots are in the 200 and 400 freestyles, although she wouldn't say so. With a certain amount of smugness, she merely said her best chances were in the freestyles. "One of those events," she said.

Miss Babashoff, chosen the homecoming queen at Golden West Junior College, is 5-foot-11, 150 pounds. She can be very attractive when she smiles, but most of the time, around news, she acts bored.

At the one-hour news conference, the only time she has made herself available to reporters, she smirked a lot.

She was asked which of her events she enjoyed the most.

"I like the 100 because it's short, and I don't like it because it's short. The 200 is the perfect distance. I like the 400 because I can go easy for part of it. And I like the 800 because I can go easy for most of it."

Miss Babashoff, 19, from Fountain Valley, Calif., said her goal was "to try my hardest, try to win a gold medal. I'll be disappointed if I don't try my hardest."

She downplayed her rivalry with East Germany's Kornelia Ender, world record holder in the 100 and 200 freestyles.

"I'll be looking for whoever's ahead of me. I'm not going out to beat her (Miss Ender). She's there but so is everybody else."

"To me it's not a big Babashoff-Ender thing. I came here to win a gold medal. Whoever I have to beat to do it, they're there."

Williams Has No-Hit Victory Over Edenton

Two no-hitters were recorded in the first round of the Babe Ruth District tournament which began here last night as Washington slipped past Edenton, 29-0, and Greenville's All-Stars beat Edenton's 14-15 year-olds, 11-2.

Vic Walls pitched the no-hitter for Washington's 13-year-olds striking out 11, walking no one but hitting one batter.

His teammates got all Walls needed in the first inning as they rallied for six runs. Vann Parker led off reaching on an error and scored on Bobby Boyd's triple. Todd Cutler singled in Boyd and Walls singled Cutler across. Nat Rogers got a hit and an infield single by Keith Garrett scored Walls. Rodgers scored on an passed ball and when Greg Smith reached on a fielder's choice, Garrett scored.

Washington added four in the second, seven in the third, two in the fourth, none in the fifth and 10 in the sixth.

Walls missed a perfect game when he hit Edenton's lead-off batter in the second, David Jordan, and Chris Harmon reached on an error in the fifth.

Walls led the hitting with three singles and a triple, Boyd had three and Cutler, Rodgers, Garrett, Fred Stowe and Smith had two each.

Greenville's Mike Williams also hurled a no-hitter but his was no as clean as Walls'. Williams fanned 14 but walked 14.

Greenville, likewise, got all it needed in the first picking up three tallies.

Bobby Woronoff led off with a double to left and Skip Topping walked. Ronnie Chapman walked to load the bases and an error scored Woronoff. Calvin Parker doubled driving in Topping and Chapman.

Edenton got its first in the second when Alan Jones stole home after walking and moving around on passed balls. Greenville got it back in the bottom of the inning on a run-scoring double by Chapman.

Greenville added four in the fifth and four in the sixth. Edenton picked up its second run in the third on a wild pitch.

The tournament shifts to Edenton tonight and will return to Greenville Friday if extra games are needed.

Second Half May Be Yawner

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Now that the All-Star Game is out of the way, it would be time to resume the pennant races...if there were any.

Major league baseball's four division races are so one-sided at this point that they make Jimmy Carter's race for the Democratic nomination look like it was a cliff-hanger. Unless some of the front-runners collapse and some of the followers pick up the pace, the second half of the 1976 campaign will have them yawning in the aisles before long.

There will be other events, of course, to stir interest. Will San Diego's Randy Jones win 30 games? Will the New York Mets' Dave Kingman hit 61 home runs? Will the Montreal Expos finish the season?

But without a legitimate pennant race or two, baseball could be bad box office over the second half of the season.

At present, the best record in baseball belongs to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils, often maligned in the past, have steamed out to a 56-25 mark and a whopping 10-game lead over the formerly mighty Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Is the pennant assured or will the 1976 Phils manage a collapse like their 1964 ancestors who dropped 10 straight games over the final two weeks of the season and blew a 6½-game lead?

In the NL West, the world champion Cincinnati Reds are six games ahead of the runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers. The Reds have come through the first half of the season in fine shape despite injuries to second baseman Joe Morgan, catcher Johnny Bench and pitcher Don Gullett. The Reds have started the eight-man lineup that opened the World Series against Boston last October in only 17 games this season, winning 13 of them.

The Reds are 53-33. Last season they were 56-29 at this time.

In the American League, the rebuilt New York Yankees are the only club in the East over .500. They lead the second-place Boston Red Sox by a comfortable 9½ games and, at this point anyway, have nothing to fear but fear itself.

U.S. Athletes In Montreal

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — Harvey Glance did not seem awed. Benny Brown did. Dwight Stones was unhappy with his roommates. Dr. Leroy Walker fretted over a room assignment chart.

The United States track and field team finally arrived at the 1976 Olympic Village Wednesday, during a rainfall which dampened luggage and caused a number of groans from athletes.

But the excitement of the Olympics was apparent.

Brown, who will run on the 1,600-meter relay team, no sooner had dumped his bags on the floor of his fifth-floor room than he rummaged through a suitcase, found his camera and ran outside on the balcony to snap pictures of the Olympic Stadium two blocks away.

"Well, it's the Olympics," he said to Millard Hampton, winner of the 200-meter race at the U.S. Olympic Trials. "We're finally here."

Stones and fellow high jumper Bill Jankunis both were assigned to a six-man apartment with discus thrower Jay Silvester and shot putter George Woods. The outspoken Stones was upset.

"I like to play my music at midnight," he said pointing to a stereo radio he had brought with him. "Those guys go to bed at 10."

Then he thought a minute and said to Jankunis, "You know, with those two guys in our room we don't have to worry about anyone stealing anything." Silvester weighs 240 pounds and Woods about 290.

Glance, winner of the 100-meter race at the Trials and an Auburn freshman who is only 19 years old, gazed through the rain at the two giant pyramid-shaped buildings in which the athletes will be housed for the next 2½ weeks. He barely said anything.

Walker, the former North Carolina Central University coach who is the head coach of the men's track squad, said plans were being formulated to make sure athletes with competitions coming up could obtain private sleeping quarters the day before their events.

"Actually I'd like to kick out of the Village all those guys who have completed their competitions," said Walker. "Those who are done competing may upset the ones who still have to compete."

But he said an alternative would be to ask athletes whose competitions were over to move into quarters away from those who still must perform.

Most of the athletes were hungry after a long bus trip from their first assembly point at Plattsburgh N.Y., and went to the Village cafeteria for a hearty lunch. When they came out, the rain had stopped.

CONCENTRATION — Golfer Johnny Miller grips his tongue between his teeth as he watches a putt roll toward the cup of the ninth green during the Pro-Am event of the Westchester

Classic at Westchester Country Club, in Harrison, N.Y., Wednesday. The putt came up short and Miller settled for a par-5 on the hole. (AP Wirephoto)

Top Qualifiers Early Victims

COON RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — Medalist Jeff C. Thomas and Peter Jacobi, the second-leading qualifier, were first-round casualties in the U.S. Public Links Golf Tournament Wednesday, while defending champion Randy Barenaba went 20 holes to win his first match.

Barenaba, 19, Hawaii, edged Robert Holdstein, Woodbury, N.J., 1-up on the 20th hole when Holdstein hit his drive out of bounds on the windy, hot and muggy course.

Thomas, 25, Boise, Idaho, had scored 69-71—140 on the par-72 Coon Rapids Municipal Course in the Monday and Tuesday qualifying, but he lost to Frank Sexton of Barboursville, W.Va., 2 and 1.

Two more 18 hole matches will be played Thursday to cut the remaining 32 players to eight. Quarter-finals and semi-finals are Friday, and the 36-hole final is Saturday at the 6,670-yard Coon Rapids layout.

Barenaba barely qualified for match play with 79-75—154, one below the cutoff score, but he was only one over par until the deciding 20th hole where he made a safely played bogey to Holdstein's triple bogey seven.

as. "I just caught him on a bad day. Jeff's a real solid player. But he just had a bad putting day," Sexton said.

A mild upset was turned in by Rick Radder, 32, Edina, Minn., one of the state's top amateurs and a former Wisconsin high school champion. Radder gave up 40 to 50 yards off the tee to powerful Frank Mazion, 35, a pretournament favorite from San Francisco. But Radder prevailed 4 and 3.

Mazion joined the many who were unable to solve the large Coon Rapids greens, as he 3-putted four times while Radder shot steady one over par for the 15 holes.

Chris Marszelek, Arlington Heights, Ill., played the day's best golf at three under par, but needed all of it for a 2-up victory over Art Diaz, Phoenix.

Randy Pallis, Torrance, Calif., and Gene Parr, Richfield, Minn., each were two under par in their victories. One under par performances meant victories for Gary Hitch, Ventura, Calif.; Jim Peterson, Scottsdale, Ariz.; Reid Schronce, Charlotte, N.C., and Ken Hyland, Hartsville, Ohio.

Sexton, 29, a chemical plant technician who hasn't played competitive golf since he was entered in the 1968 U.S. Amateur, was even par for his 17 holes against left-hander Thom-

Kuhn Believes Owners Will Accept Agreement

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Despite some vocal opposition and a decision to postpone voting on a settlement with the players, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he believes baseball owners will ratify a four-year agreement that would give players freedom of movement.

After meeting for three hours to discuss the package, owners and representatives of the 24 major league clubs unanimously agreed Wednesday to delay a vote on the agreement until next Monday.

A majority of 13 votes is needed for ratification, with at least five from each of the 12-team leagues.

"I would say there was some strong opposition to the agreement, which didn't come as a surprise to me," Kuhn said. "I would say," he added, "that there's sufficient support to ratify."

The vote on the settlement, reached earlier in the week after 13 months of sometimes heated debate between the owners and the union, will be conducted by teletype message.

While details of the settlement have not been disclosed, the main points in the agreement reportedly include: free agency for players after six years in the majors; a limitation of 12 clubs with which a free agent can deal; draft choices as compensation for lost free agents, and an increase of $1.85 million in the owners' annual benefit plan contribution of $8.3 million.

Also, players under contract who do not sign new uniform player contracts after the agreement is approved will be able to play out their options. These players would become free agents at the end of their current contracts.

Under baseball's old reserve system, players were bound to one team unless they were traded, sold or released. The beginning of the end of the reserve clause came when New York arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled that pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally would play out their options.

Two federal courts upheld that decision, despite arguments by owners that baseball would become embroiled in bidding wars and only the richer teams could sign free agents.

Without being specific, Kuhn said the owners who voiced objections to the settlement were concerned about money. "Some of the clubs just don't feel that the agreement makes economic sense," the commissioner said.

Most of the owners, however, wanted more time to study the specifics of the agreement. The owners' eight-member negotiating unit, the Players Relations Committee, unanimously approved the settlement after the accord was reached with the players on the eve of the All-Star Game.

Charles O. Finley, the Oakland A's owner who has been stung by player movements recently, said he opposes the package.

Tickets Go Fast

DETROIT (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych's loss in the All-Star game hasn't hurt his power at the gate for the Detroit Tigers.

The rookie sensation with a 9-2 record, who talks to the ball and likes to smoothe down the mound at the start of an inning, is scheduled to pitch Friday night against the Oakland A's at Tiger Stadium.

By late Wednesday, the Tigers reported at least 35,000 tickets sold for the game.

The only seats left were a few reserved seats, 4,000 general-admission seats being sold on a reserved basis and the 10,500 bleacher seats where tickets will go on sale at 6 p.m. Friday.

In his two most recent outings, Fidrych has pitched to crowds of more than 50,000 and at the current rate, he will perform before a crowd approaching that size Friday night.

The Tigers will open a four-game home stand against Oakland tonight when they send veteran pitcher Dave Roberts to the mound against the Vida Blue.

Roberts has an 8-8 record and Blue is 7-7 for the season.

After the series with the A's, Detroit goes on the road until July 29.

American Stand Latest Problem Of Olympics

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Whose word will be law in Montreal's Olympic Stadium when the Games open Saturday?

"That is our territory," say members of the International Olympic Committee. "We decide what happens there."

But what will the government of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau do if the IOC defies its wishes and has two Taiwanese yachtsmen parading under the name of the Republic of China?

The U.S. Olympic Committee intervened in the dispute and indicated Wednesday it might withdraw its team from the Games if Taiwan's rights are not respected and the Olympic charter is not honored.

The Americans are "seriously considering withdrawing from the Montreal Olympic Games," said Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The Taiwanese, encouraged by the American stand, dug in their heels and said they would not march in the parade under the Olympic flag instead of their own, one compromise plan suggested by the IOC.

The latest ruling by the IOC is that two Taiwanese yachtsmen, already in this country, march in the opening parade under the banner of the Republic of China.

The yachtsmen, brothers named Lim, got around Canada's entry ban because they have dual nationality and have U.S. passports. They have been training at the Olympic yachting center at Kingston, Ont., for two weeks.

Canada refused to allow the rest of Taiwan's team in because they use the name "The Republic of China," which is offensive to Canada's trading partner, Communist China.

But refusing to let 40 athletes in is a different proposition than ordering two yachtsmen out.

And in Ottawa, a spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said "there is not spirit in the prime minister's office" to give in to pressure on the issue.

Julian K. Roosevelt, a U.S. member on the IOC, said, "We cannot force the Canadian government to do anything about the Taiwanese athletes held up in the United States. But we can insist that the two yachtsmen, whose entries have been accepted, are not expelled from Canada."

If the name of the Republic of China is carried aloft in the opening parade, the claims of the Olympic movement to be independent of politics and governments will be put to the test. The ball will be in Trudeau's court.

Southern To Study Expanding

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)

— Southern Conference Commissioner Kenneth Germann said expansion of the league is an agenda item for an Aug. 11 meeting of member schools.

At a news conference during his first visit to the Marshall University campus Wednesday, Germann said the Thundering Herd and the remaining five conference members have made a commitment to build a strong and viable league.

"We're going to stay in business and be a competitive conference," he said.

He would not comment on any proposed new members.

Four veteran members of the conference — East Carolina, Virginia Military Institute, Davidson and William and Mary — recently announced plans to withdraw.

Germann said their actions do not mean the conference is doomed and he added the league has faced adversity before.

He said the presidents of Davidson and VMI also are expected to attend the Aug. 11 meeting, but he would not comment on whether that might be an indication those schools are having second thoughts about withdrawing.

The conference accepted Marshall, Western Carolina and the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga as members in May. Other members include Appalachian State, the Citadel and Furman.

He said the six schools in the conference should do everything they can to establish a strong base with themselves and move from there.

The commissioner said Marshall will be eligible to compete for league championships this year in all but football and basketball. He said the Thundering Herd should be eligible in basketball during the 1977-78 season and may be eligible for football during the 1977 season.

Strike Is No Problem

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States and Canada won't be affected, but the rest of the world faces possible disruption of telecasts of the Olympic Games because of a strike by 350 technicians.

"We can't guarantee what effect a continued strike would have on the quality of service," said a public relations officer for Telelobe Canada, which handles the overseas transmissions of Olympic telecasts.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press
MONTREAL (AP) — The 1982 Commonwealth Games were awarded Wednesday to Brisbane, Australia.

Sports officials from the commonwealth countries selected the Australian city, the only candidate after the withdrawal of an application from Birmingham, England.

The 1978 Games will be in Edmonton, Canada.

ATLANTA (AP) — Heart failure brought on by a blood infection killed University of Georgia football player Hugh Hendrix Wednesday, according to team physician Dr. Marion Hubert.

A starting offensive guard, Hendrix had been at summer school in Athens, but went to his Decatur home during the weekend. He developed "flu-like symptoms of chills and fever," a school spokesman said.

The 21-year-old senior was admitted to DeKalb General Hospital and, when his condition did not improve, was transferred to Emory University where he died.

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League have signed free agents Bill Line and James Buckmon.

The new additions, announced Wednesday, brings to 63 the number of players in camp at California State University-Fullerton.

Line is a 6-foot-7, 265-pound tackle from Southern Methodist University who previously played with the New Orleans Saints and Chicago Bears of the NFL, Hamilton of the Canadian Football League and Hawaii of the defunct World Football League.

Buckmon is a 6-3, 230-pound defensive end from the University of Pittsburgh.

Largest Field For Westchester

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. — The largest field ever assembled for a Professional Golfers Association tourney, 169 entries, tied off today in the first round of the $300,000 Westchester Classic.

Sponsors of this 10th edition of the Classic, the richest tourney on the trail, might have been hard put to gather a representative field, what with it coming just one week after the British Open and a week prior to the Canadian Open.

But the PGA lists the Westchester as a Designated Tournament, one in which those players who are listed as designated — mainly specific champions of recent years — must participate or face a fine.

So they were at the 6,603-yard, par-71 West Course of the Westchester Country Club — British Open winner Johnny Miller; Westchester's defending champion, Gene Littler; Canadian Open winner and two-time Westchester winner Jack Nicklaus; plus Masters titlist Ray Floyd, U.S. Open champion

Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, South African Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

The only notable absentee was Lee Trevino, whose ailing back kept him out of both the U.S. and British Opens.

If any of the pros whose presence was required here didn't like it, they were not saying. A $300,000 purse can do that — even to those who don't have to be here.

"I'm not one of the designated players who must be here," said Pate. "I'm here because I want to be."

And Crenshaw, a local favorite whose wife, Polly, comes from the area, agreed. "I'm glad to be here," he said. "I missed the British Open with a bad wrist but I didn't want to miss this tournament."

No Early Impact From Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials have said that a State Supreme Court ruling striking down a bill designed to guarantee the availability of medical malpractice insurance in North Carolina will have little immediate impact.

"I don't see any immediate repercussion from this," said William Hale, a General Assembly staff member who handles insurance legislation.

"There's just no absolute guarantee now for primary coverage, but as long as the medical mutual company and the hospital trust fund and St. Paul's Fire and Marine Insurance Co. are still around, there should be no problem," Hale noted.

The Supreme Court Wednesday threw out a law setting up a "reinsurance exchange" on the grounds that the state could not compel companies not selling malpractice insurance to participate in the exchange.

The "exchange" would have required all companies in the state to offer malpractice coverage and to join in an insurance pool that would spread the financial risk among the companies.

"Quite clearly, a company which has been carrying on a business of insuring against liability for property damage only would be thrown (by the act) into a type of business utterly foreign to its undertaking and experience," the court said in an opinion written by Justice I. Beverly Lake.

The law, passed by the 1975 General Assembly, had been ruled unconstitutional by Superior Court Judge James H. Poul Bailey last November. Wednesday's decision affirmed Bailey's action.

Only Discord By Antiabortionist

NEW YORK (AP) — Anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination came to an end with an attack against Jimmy Carter, producing virtually the only note of discord on the night of his nomination.

There were scarcely 10 seconds of scattered applause mixed with some boos after Mrs. McCormack's name was put in nomination and one of her supporters declared that the Democratic party is "becoming the party of abortion."

Referring to Carter only as "Mr. X," James Killilea of Boston told the delegates that "Mr. X made sure his pro-abortion stand would not only be his view, but the view of the entire Democratic party."

Killilea warned that Carter is ignoring Catholics, most of whom, he said, are "pro-life." He said it "doesn't make any difference to the Democratic party what Catholics think."

Carter has said that although he personally opposes abortion, he does not advocate a constitutional amendment to prevent it. His position is reflected in the platform adopted by the convention.

At a news conference earlier Wednesday, Mrs. McCormack said Carter's position is "like saying he personally opposes slavery and then putting a slavery plank in the platform."

The 49-year-old Long Island housewife said that "not even George McGovern forced those Democrats who opposed abortion to go on record as endorsing it. But Mr. Carter has done so."

Mrs. McCormack drew 22 votes on the first nomination ballot before Carter's nomination was made unanimous by acclamation.

She would not say whom she would vote for in November, and added that she might vote for herself as a write-in candidate.

There were several openings in the Children's Beginner tennis classes for the third session (July 19-July 29) and the fourth session (August 2-August 12). These classes are for children between the ages of 8 and 13.

Classes meet at 9:00, 10:00, and 11:00 a.m. Individuals may choose any one of these times. Persons interested in registering for any of these classes may call 752-4137, ext. 220 or come by the Elm Street Gym.

CHANGED HABITS
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new poll indicates that only four out of 10 persons surveyed have changed their eating habits, although their interest in nutrition is changing.

ever, and a spokesman said it will continue its practice here.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said Wednesday he was "disappointed" with the court ruling because "this law was enacted to guarantee uninterrupted health care to the citizens of North Carolina."

A major proponent of the reinsurance exchange, he said he plans to meet with lawyers for the hospital association and the medical society to "discuss possible amendments to the law which would meet the constitutional test."

Hospital Association executive vice-president John Marston agreed with Ingram that, "with this ruling, there is no guaranteed availability of insurance to hospitals and other health care providers."

"More than ever, it points up the great need for us to continue the hospital association's self insurance trust fund," he said.

Another insurance safeguard was provided by the 1976 legislature when it set up a fund to provide "excess" malpractice insurance to doctors and other health providers above the minimum amount now provided by the medical society's insurance plan.

Moments To Remember In Carter Nomination

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — When he was governor of Georgia, he appeared on "What's My Line" and nobody could guess what his line was.

When he was governor of Georgia, his mother asked what he expected to do after leaving the state house and he said: "Run for president."

"President of what?"

"President of the United States. And I'm going to win."

Today, Jimmy Carter was half way there, while many people in his party were still wondering what his line was.

He reached the half-way point at 11:15 p.m. (EDT), July 14, 1976, in the fourth day of the second week of the third century of the Republic and the 19th month of Jimmy Carter's quest, begun at ground zero.

It went this way Wednesday night, a sequence of events which somehow combined tedium, comedy and poignance....

At opposite ends of the arena, two widows. On the left, Jackie Kennedy Onassis in red. On the right, Ethel Kennedy in pink, with Teddy Kennedy. The announcement brings a warm, sustained ovation.

Had he lived and won, Bobby Kennedy would be finishing his second term now. Had it not been for Chappaquiddick, Teddy Kennedy might now be....

At 9:10, Carter's name is placed in nomination by Rep. Peter Rodino, unknown beyond the pizza parlors of Newark, N.J., until he became a hero of Watergate. His eloquence goes unattended.

"Proudly I place before you the name of Jimmy Carter," he concludes, and the crowd cheers and the state banners wiggle, but the effect is one of preordained ritual.

Among the seconds, Rep. Andrew Young, first black man elected to Congress from Georgia, says:

"I am ready to lay down the burden of race and whether you know it or not, Jimmy Carter comes from a part of the country that has done just that."

A moment to remember, a black man from the South nominating for president a white man from the South....

The name of Ellen McCormack of Merrick, N.Y., is placed in nomination and the crowd sinks into a new level of indifference.

Archibald Cox, another hero of Watergate, rises to nominate Mo Udall of Arizona and the cheers for a loser seem more spontaneous and more reluctant to end than the cheers for the winner.

"If this goes on much longer I might accept the nomination," says Udall from the platform.

Udall releases his 348 delegates, a graceful, witty withdrawal by the wittiest Democrat since Adlai Stevenson....

The name of Jerry Brown of California, the Huck Finn of mystics, is placed in nomination by Cesar Chavez. Small ovation.

It is now 10:57 and the roll call begins and Brown has still not released his delegates to the inevitable.

The aisles are more crowded than a Cook County ballot box.

Alabama begins with a long speech about the glories of Alabama and the virtues of George Wallace. The crowd boos the rhetoric, Alabama pushes on. The crowd tries to clap the speaker into silence. Alabama tries again. The chair pleads.

Alabama finally votes 30 for Carter, five for Wallace....

"California casts 205 votes for Jerry Brown, 73 for Carter and...."

Mississippi goes for Carter. Among the delegates are a white man named Ross Barnett

Jr., and a black man named Charles Evers.

At 11:15, Ohio, "Ohio, in a spirit of love and unity, is proud and honored to cast 132 votes for..." Jimmy Carter is real and the crowd roars and the state banners dance and Carter's campaign manager is raised to the shoulders of a delirious Georgia delegation and "Happy Days Are Here Again" and the South has come back all the way from Appomattox, and for the second time in four years of an unpredictable, changing country a man from nowhere, with no national constituency, no name, no power base or link with the blocs of power, has taken the prize right out of the hands of the party establishment.

WOTM Chapter Night Tonight

Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, will hold a chapter night program tonight at the Moose Temple, starting at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Betty Diehl is in charge of the program which will be presented by members of the College of Regents. WOTM members attain College membership after serving successfully as senior regent of a chapter.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

SINGING SUNDAY

The Handley Sisters will sing at Phillippi Church of Christ Sunday at 3 p.m., sponsored by the Senior Choir. The public is invited.

Begin Phone Expansion

Don Collier, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone, announced today that a $134,000 project is now underway to expand the company's Hooker Road central office local dial equipment here.

The program will provide facilities not only to serve new subscribers in this area, but also to permit higher grades of service for existing subscribers.

"Recently," Collier said, "the growth of Greenville has accelerated the demand for telephone service. As a result, the maximum capacity of present equipment has nearly been reached."

In the past 10 years, for example, telephone in service here increased from 13,000 to more than 33,800.

"The expansion project here was engineered to enable the company to meet future growth requirements," Collier noted.

Correction

A story in Wednesday's edition discussing the political platform of C. A. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, contained a typographical error.

The story's first paragraph should have stated, in part, "...with emphasis on law and order, education, farming, tax reform and utility rates."

Investigate CB Radio Theft

Greenville police chief Glenn Cannon reported officers are investigating the theft of a citizens band radio, valued at $250, from a boat owned by Frank Moyer of 113 Prince Rd.

The theft was reported at 10:20 a.m. Tuesday.

The chief said investigators are also hunting for a thief who took $235 worth of fishing gear from a car port at 2009 Greenville Boulevard.

Cannon said Allen Buck reported the theft of two rods and two reels and a tackle box at 8:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Problems Of Angola Daily Grow More Desperate

EDITOR'S NOTE — The civil war has ended but things are not going smoothly in Angola. Here is a report by AP Special Correspondent Hugh A. Mulligan, who was recently in Luanda to report on the trial of 13 white mercenaries.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Besides the increasing threat of severe food shortages and a lingering guerrilla war, the new People's Republic of Angola faces racial and tribal unrest that daily grows more desperate.

At the height of the recent trial of white mercenaries, just as the prosecutor was calling for the death penalty, blacks demonstrated in the downtown streets because not enough blacks had been appointed to high posts in the Marxist regime proclaimed by the Popular Front faction that won the bloody civil war with the aid of some 15,000 Cuban troops.

The lighter-skinned mestizos, or mixed-blood peoples, are resentful because the newly arrived Cuban civilian administrators have taken over the best jobs in the "middle bureaucracy" just below ministerial rank.

The few remaining white Portuguese, estimated at less than 8,000 in contrast to the 400,000 who ran the country only a year ago, are subject to constant insult and abuse by both the blacks and the mixed blood Angolans, who wonder why they have not inherited the white man's villas and big cars now that colonialism is ended.

Tales of houses being stripped with the occupants standing helplessly by and cars being hijacked in broad daylight are too commonplace.

Many blacks already are squatting in the hillside villas abandoned by the Portuguese who fled to Lisbon. The government has given them 45 days to reoccupy their property or face confiscation, but few have been able to obtain entry visas to come back.

"People power not black power is our strength," proclaim Popular Front posters urging racial unity. But with the capital breaking down little by little every day in a roar of unmuffled exhausts and the cries of people trapped in elevators during the many power failures, the message doesn't come across.

"We were told that when the white imperialists left wages would be higher and prices lower," said Antonio, a Cape Verde Islander who came to fight in the liberation struggle but has since lost faith in the victory.

"But prices are higher and wages are lower and there is only meat three days a week in the market. My wife gets in line at 5 a.m. and comes home at 2 p.m. with one kilo — 2.2 pounds — of pork, all she is allowed. Never beef or eggs." Famine is gradually encroaching on the capital, for a number of reasons directly connected with the racial and tribal turmoil. More than 60 percent of the white Portuguese farmers have abandoned their lands, the richest and largest in the southern vegetable-growing belt.

The deep sea fishing boats don't go out anymore because the returning Portuguese fishermen stripped them of their radar, sonar and other navigational aids. No black captains were trained to read the charts of the hazardous deep sea fishing grounds, alive with tuna and red snapper, beyond the reef.

Of the 32 high-speed, ultramodern fishing boats left behind in Luanda's Half Moon Bay, 16 were destroyed in a tidal wave a few months ago because no one could be found to sail them to safer anchorage. Only sardines and other shoal fish show up in the markets.

The Popular Front-run Angolan government, whose main strength is in the Kimbundu tribe, is trying to rally the people to bring in the coffee harvest, the country's most important agricultural export, once valued at a half-billion dollars a year. The plantation workers, mostly members of the northern Bakongo tribe, were the main supporters of the losing faction, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola. It was for this side that the white mercenaries fought.

With the Cubans in charge of the harvest, the government has emptied out the jails and resorted to press gangs to pack off the unemployed in trucks to the plantations because the offered wage of 80 escudos — about $2.40 — a day is scoffed at by the regular hands.

"The Communist union leaders used to lead strikes against the Portuguese when they paid twice that much," said a shipping agent who remembers when 4,000 ships a year called at Luanda as opposed to about one a week these days.

One day recently a big downtown supermarket had only curry powder, dried milk and, ironically, American instant coffee on its shelves, and Danish caviar at 600 escudos — $20 — a jar in the refrigerated show case.

The line four abreast outside was for a tiny tobacco shop around the corner that had cigarettes.

Only one truck was unloading in the huge cargo area of the modern four-story central market. It was bringing a consignment of lettuce which few people could afford.

The few stalls open in the cavernous market building offered radishes, hot African peppers and some already decaying oranges that had not fared well on the tedious journey to the capital by ferry and barge from the lush hinterland. An American representative of a pharmaceutical house, trying to get his previously thriving Angolan outlet going again, reported that many Western businesses were going bankrupt because black Angolans refused to come back to their old jobs, remaining convinced that the death of colonialism meant a new, rich future was just around the corner.

Ayden To Get $4,884 Grant From State

The Town of Ayden is one of 34 local governments that will receive State grants amounting to $3 million for water supply improvements according to Phillip J. Kirk, Jr., Human Resources Secretary. Ayden will receive a grant of $4,884.

The issuance is another in a series of grants made under the North Carolina Clean Water Bond Act of 1971 which authorized $70 million to local governments to aid in financing the construction of water supply improvements throughout the state.

Applications are now being accepted by the Division of Health Services for consideration during the first semi-annual review period of fiscal year 1976-77. Announcement of State grants for this group will be made in January.

'MOSTLY FAIR'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's cotton crop is in "mostly fair" condition and is in the best shape in Oklahoma and Texas, says the Agriculture Department.

Convention Not An Eye-Catcher N.C. Centennial Flag Made By Popular Religious Artist

AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC, urging viewers to see its abbreviated coverage of the Democratic National Convention, said: "Get to the heart of the convention." CBS and NBC just tried to find the pacemaker.

All three close the Fun City show tonight with live coverage of acceptance speeches, then get set for what no doubt will prove a much livelier story, next month's GOP convention in Kansas City.

Excluding Texas Rep. Barbara Jordan's dramatic closing speech, Monday's opening start-to-finish coverage by CBS and NBC was a sure cure for insomnia, despite valiant efforts by anchors and reporters.

ABC's two-hour tape and live effort wasn't riveting, either. Even its guest commentator, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., had only kind things to say, praising even Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

About the only threat of action seemed to come when a

CBS man butted in on an NBC interview with vice-presidential hopeful Sen. John Glenn Jr., D-Ohio, early in the evening.

But no war ensued then, nor a few minutes later when CBS' Ed Bradley and NBC's Tom Pettit simultaneously sought the views of Carter's wife, as CBS' Dan Rather and NBC's Cassie Mackin lurked in the background, just in case. It was that kind of night.

NBC was the most energetic interview emporium opening night. By my count, it logged 37 interviews, from Glenn to two ad men in charge of political buttons and posters, before the proceedings closed.

For variety, there was a videotape view, shown by all three networks at different times, of Carter in his hotel room, watching the convention on TV and rising to adjust one of three sets — or wake up.

Tuesday night brought a variation of this hotel scene — Carter in a polo shirt, wearing no shoes, working on his acceptance speech.

That night was largely devoted to (a) attempts to see if a report was true that Carter was considering only two possible running mates, down by four from Monday, and (b) a search for an elusive Democratic upstart of some kind.

CBS and NBC each aired Sen. George McGovern's strongly worded speech complete and live, including the 1972 Democratic standard-bearer's statement that "the enormity and pervasiveness of Watergate crimes were kept under cover until after the election."

But not much of that speech came at the same prime time on ABC. Harry Reasoner and Howard K. Smith used the time to discuss the Democratic platform and hear Goldwater's views on part of it.

They picked up McGovern's speech live only near its end, when McGovern — whom ABC has hired to comment on the GOP convention — was saying, "the American dream remains incomplete."

No American dream is complete without an All-Star baseball game, which ABC carried — showing President Ford throwing out the first ball in Philadelphia as Hubert Humphrey addressed Democrats in New York.

ABC's convention coverage resumed at game's end, near 11 p.m. EDT, the game coverage interrupted but brief convention reports.

Meeting On City Offer

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh's striking sanitation workers were expected to meet today to vote on whether to accept an offer made at a closed door meeting Wednesday.

City Councilman William R. Knight said the city tentatively agreed to rehire all the 157 workers who have been on strike for eight days with full benefits and to guarantee a 3 per cent pay raise in January.

Strike leaders were silent about their plans. "Morale is still strong," said strike leader John D. Wiggins Jr. The strikers have been pressing for a 3.5 per cent pay hike, retroactive to January. The city did not offer any additional money.

In other strike developments: —The Raleigh Police Officers Association announced its support of strikers and said a picket line would be set up today as a token of that support.

—The city's emergency garbage collection plan continued to progress with the city putting more men and trucks on the streets than at any time since the strike began.

—A group of strike supporters announced plans for a mass rally Sunday and agreed to ask the City Council for time to speak at a zoning hearing tonight.

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Johannes Adam Simer Oertel, whose pirated painting "Rock of Ages" once hung in homes across America, also made North Carolina's centennial flag which was displayed in Independence Hall during the Centennial Exhibition in 1876.

In fact, Oertel lived for seven years in Lenoir, where he painted and preached.

A native of Bavaria, Oertel was an engraver when in 1848 he came to America and turned his talents to painting and carving. He lived in various places in the North, and during the Civil War he followed a New York cavalry regiment and made sketches from which he later produced paintings.

But his real strength was in religious art. His most popular work, "Rock of Ages," showed a woman clinging previously to a stone cross which was being buffeted by vicious waves of water. This picture created something of a sensation, and the artist expected a steady income from its reproductions.

Unscrupulous competitors, however, pirated the picture, removed Oertel's signature, and sold copies by the thousands. The painter, plagued by generosity which kept him in debt, received practically no income from the picture.

Another popular work of Oertel was his series of illustrations for the printed version of William Cullen Bryant's "Waiting by the Gate." When he saw the drawings, Bryant wrote, "You have made a poem out of my poor verses."

Oertel changed his church affiliation from Lutheran to Episcopal, and in 1867 he was ordained to the diaconate. Now sharing his enthusiasm for art with his commitment to the church, he accepted the invitation of an art student, Miss Laura Norwood of Lenoir, North Carolina, to take charge of St. James' Episcopal Church in that town.

The artist moved his family to Lenoir in 1869 and occupied the rectory. The church did not pay him a living wage, so he preached and painted. In addition to the church, he had charge of the Chapel of Peace three miles away and another country chapel eight miles out in the Yadkin Valley. In 1872 he opened St. James School for Girls — later named St. Euphemia's Hall — but financial troubles led to its closing two years later.

In his specially built studio in Lenoir Oertel completed a re-dos for St. James and presented it to the church. Among the noted pictures painted in Lenoir were a thirteen-foot-high canvas for the Church of Heavenly Rest in New York City and one titled "The Shadow of a Great Rock in a Wary Land" which was displayed in the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia.

Faced with financial problems deriving from his small income and his generous nature Oertel felt compelled to paint more so that he could support his charitable activities. So he traveled to other towns — Salem, Wilmington, Greensboro — and sought patrons. Mostly he painted portraits and animal scenes.

It was this need for money that led him to Raleigh in May, 1876. There the Ladies Memorial Association commissioned him to paint a large double silk banner or "centennial flag" depicting North Carolina's deeds during the Revolution. The flag, when completed, depicted on one side the state's political and military role, and on the other its nature and industry.

This flag was displayed in Independence Hall in Philadelphia during the centennial of the declaration of independence and was later displayed in the University of North Carolina Library in Chapel Hill. The banner itself has been lost, but Collier Cobb's glassplate negative made around 1900 was recently discovered by Cobb's granddaughter, Mrs. Edward G. Lilly, Jr., and given to the North Carolina Collection.

Feeling the need to be near the nation art center, Oertel and his family moved back North in 1876. For a short time in 1880 he returned to North Carolina and was rector of Christ Church, Morganton. His wife wrote an interesting little book, "Hand in Hand through the Happy Valley," which described life in the Yadkin River valley of Caldwell County.

Prior to his death in 1909, Johannes Oertel had executed nearly twelve hundred major works in various mediums — oil and watercolor paintings, steel engraving, drawing, modeling, and carving in wood. His lifelong ambition was attained in old age when he finally completed his great four-picture series embracing the entire biblical plan of redemption. This mammoth work now hangs in the chapel of the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee. Undoubtedly some of Oertel's paintings may be found here in North Carolina.

There were many examples of fine defense in the 5th World Team Olympiad. However, this defense, found by Vlado Bisht of the Netherlands in the match against the U.S., and also by Micha Hochzeit of Israel, ranks among our favorites.

The contract in each case was three no trump, reached via similar auctions. At most tables the play proceeded as follows after a diamond lead: dummy's ace of diamonds won and a low club went to the eight and jack. West continued a low diamond, and declarer allowed East's ten to hold. West won the next diamond and cleared the suit, but declarer was in control. He led a club to the nine and East's queen, then won East's spade return with the jack and now had the rest of the tricks as dummy's club suit was established.

Bisht and Hochzeit improved considerably on this defense. When declarer led a club from dummy at trick two, both of them went in with the queen! Not un-naturally this play convinced both declarers that East, not West, had started with two of the missing three club honors.

The ten of diamonds was ducked, and the diamond continuation went to the jack and king. West cleared diamonds, and declarer could still have gotten home if he realized the situation. However, when he led a club, West helped out in the deception by following with the king. Dummy's ace was played, and declarer now tried to tuck East in with the jack of clubs to make his contract. Unfortunately, West turned up with that card, and still had a diamond to cash for the setting trick.

While some might fault declarer for the line he adopted, count us among those who have a sneaking suspicion we would have played the hand the same way. Thus, allow us to proffer our sincere congratulations for sparkling defense.

District Attorney Is Reprimanded By High Court

RALEIGH (AP) — Dist. Atty. Joe Freeman Britt of Lumberton has been sharply reprimanded by the State Supreme Court. It has granted a new trial to a man convicted and sentenced to die in a case Britt prosecuted.

In another decision made public Wednesday, the court upheld the right of a judge to order a defendant to remain shackled during his trial, if such security measures are deemed necessary.

And the court upheld the dismissal of a state employee who was fired after she refused to transfer to another location.

The Britt rebuke came in the appeal of Robert Lee Thompson and Willie Davis McEachern who were convicted in Robeson Superior Court of first degree rape.

The Supreme Court said Thompson should be granted a new trial because Britt remarked to the jury about the fact that Thompson's wife had not appeared to testify in his behalf.

The court noted in an opinion written by Chief Justice Susie Sharp that Britt's actions had come under scrutiny in a number of recent cases and that Britt's action in the rape case had prejudiced Thompson's defense.

Using the words of former Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. when he was an associate justice, the decision noted that "the ministers of the law ought not to permit zeal in its enforcement to cause them to transgress its precepts. They should remember that when the law ends, tyranny begins."

The court continued that, "It remains only to be said that the purpose of this repeated reprimand of the solicitor of the 16th Judicial District is not to dampen his zeal as an advocate of the state but—since repetition is one method of teaching—to reiterate that prosecuting attorneys can best serve the cause of justice by themselves observing the law."

The death penalties of McEachern and seven other defendants were commuted to life prison sentences in the court's first reaction to the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling that found North Carolina's death penalty law unconstitutional.

The defendants included: —Tharoy Davis and Joseph C. Foster who were convicted of murdering George C. Grant in a robbery in Lenoir County in December 1973. —Coleman Covington, James McEachin, David Wayne Nicholson and Leroy Richardson for the murder of Joseph Maxwell Cook in a Robeson County on Dec. 13, 1974.

—Tamarus Swift, who was convicted of murdering Thelma Jean Jones in Wayne County on June 3, 1975.

The court's ruling that a judge may order a defendant to stand trial while shackled came as the court upheld two life sentences for second degree rape convictions given Perry Lee Tolley in Caswell County.

Superior Court Judge William Z. Wood had noted near the close of the case that Tolley had worn shackles on his legs throughout the trial. Tolley had attempted to escape during a preliminary hearing. The defense attorney said he did not object.

The court said Tolley had waived any objection to shackling by his failure to object.

But the court noted that, "Even so, security measures which are inherently prejudicial, such as shackling, should ordinarily be avoided. When necessity dictates the use of such restraints, the trial judge should, preferably before the trial begins, place in the record in the presence of the defendant and his counsel the reasons for shackling and give them an opportunity to make their objections known."

The court found Wednesday that proper procedures were followed in the dismissal of Betty Thorne Nantz in January 1974.

S. Alvis had dismissed her suit against the State Personnel Board and the Employment Security Commission. The Supreme Court affirmed his decision.

N.C. Rehabilitation Facilities Said Compare Well With Others

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

How do rehabilitation facilities in North Carolina compare with those in other states and countries of the world?

Very well, according to Ida Bromley, Member of the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy and superintendent physiotherapist at Stoke-Mandeville Hospital in Aylesbury, England.

Miss Bromley was in Greenville this week to conduct a series of lectures on various aspects of physical therapy at the Allied Health Center of ECU.

"In North Carolina, you have a potentially very good set-up," she said.

"There are five hospitals with rehabilitation units attached to the hospital scattered throughout the state.

"In these types of set-ups you have acute care and rehabilitation on the same grounds. This is geographically ideal for the treatment of the patient as a total human being."

Miss Bromley said she favors a system of care for the patient whereby acute aid and rehabilitation are administered as part of a total program.

"That is the only way to get unification in the program and the best help for the patient. And that's why we're all here!" she said.

"The United States has potential for developing the best policy. As it develops, its success will depend on the tie-up between the two units as to whether the best care possible is given."

She recently attended the conference of the American Physical Therapy Association in New Orleans to gain insight into the American system of physical therapy care.

"The problems in physical therapy are universal," said Miss Bromley.

"In America, the set-up is ideal for research since medical training schools are affixed to universities.

"And since the United States is a comparatively wealthy society, more money is available for research and evaluation of physical therapy techniques."

And evaluation is a necessity.

"There are a lot of new techniques coming out now, some more effective than others," she said.

"Some traditional methods may even be outmoded. Especially in America, you've got to have cost-effectiveness evaluations done so people are sure they are getting quality treatment for their money."

"I'd like to see Americans press for that. The rest of us will look to America for the answers."

Miss Bromley, who was trained at a large hospital outside Liverpool, has written a book, "Tetraplegia and Paraplegia", which she calls a cookbook for physiotherapists.

"My book is an illustrated manual with instructions on spinal injury treatment," she said.

"I hope it will be used beside the patient, so physiotherapists will have the instructions they

IDA BROMLEY

While at ECU, Miss Bromley lectured on the nationalized British medical system, the acute phase of spinal injury treatment, bladder and bowel control therapy for patients with spinal injuries, sports for the disabled, and resettlement.

According to Miss Bromley, sports for the disabled were pioneered by Sir Ludwig Guttmann of Stoke-Mandeville Hospital.

"Sir Ludwig's original efforts have now grown into a system of international sports," she said.

"Olympics for the disabled will be held this year in Toronto, right after the regular Olympics. Over 1,000 wheelchair contestants will participate.

"And for the first time, multisport events, involving the blind, the paralyzed and amputees, will be held."

From Greenville, the soft-spoken Britain will travel to Charlotte and Durham to visit rehabilitation units there. After a stop in Philadelphia, she will return to Stoke-Mandeville, where spinal injury treatment began, to continue her work.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Rain is due today from the Midwest to the Northeast. Cool weather is expected for Michigan and the upper Great Lakes but warm weather for most of the country. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press

Hot, muggy weather returned to North Carolina today.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms relieved things somewhat.

Highs were in the upper 80s to low 90, except for the low to mid 80s in the mountains.

Skies were mostly sunny Wednesday. High, thin cirrus clouds did little to retard the sunshine. Despite the warm temperatures humidity was low, so it was fairly comfortable.

Highs reached the mid and upper 80s over most sections. Humidity dropped to the 30 per cent range, which is very dry for the middle of July.

Fair weather continued during the night. Temperatures early this morning were mostly in the 60s.

Warm and moist air returned to the state today, and brought a 30 per cent chance of rain. It will continue hot and humid Friday, but the chance of rain is 60 per cent in the mountains and 40 per cent elsewhere.

Stress Victims Not Dumbbells

ARDEN, N.C. (AP) — Camp Loquastee, named for a Cherokee Indian word meaning "ways to help one," trains teachers to show children with the learning disability dyslexia that they are not dumbbells.

It is a six-week summer camp for teachers, and for children with the difficulty that prohibits the complete understanding of the spoken and written word. "These children all have average or above average intelligence, but are failing in one or more subjects," said Carolyn Smith, assistant director of the camp at Arden near Asheville.

Another executive says the camp has been successful with every child. And a 15-year-old camper says, "Ever since I've been in school I thought I was dumb. But I've found out I'm not dumb."

Camp Loquastee gives the children specialized training that public schools cannot afford in time, money or individualized attention. There are 37 staff members who work and live with the 79 campers.

Studies have shown that the average camper increases one grade level in reading comprehension, vocabulary, spelling and mathematics. Some children have improved as much as five and one-half grade levels in the six-week period. And every camper who remains for the entire session has shown a tested increase.

Classroom activities include math, individualized language development, reading skills, and handwriting classes to encourage spelling accuracy, coordination and letter formation.

Dr. Lucia Karns, academic director, says the children are not mentally or physically retarded or emotionally disturbed; but they often have a low self-confidence level which inhibits their socially.

The camp combines lessons with summer activities. Horseback riding, arts and crafts, swimming, tennis and soccer fill the afternoons. But there is no pressure to win in the games.

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — United Methodists were urged by their bishops Wednesday to make "every local church a functioning center for evangelistic ministry by 1980."

The call came in a series of presentations at the Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference as Southeastern United Methodists launched a four-year evangelism drive.

Bishop Robert M. Blackburn of Raleigh, N.C. urged each annual regional conference to "prepare a plan of vital, compassionate evangelism."

Fletcher Carter of Gadsden, E.C., chairman of the evangelism council, said that evangelism needs to "become the style of life" for local congregations and individuals.

The church, he said, should "find a proper balance between witnessing to the gospel, winning souls for Christ and addressing social disease...The times demand that we move from evangelism as rhetoric and program to evangelism as relational, as action and as a normal way of functioning in the church."

The Rev. Leontine Kelly of Richmond, Va. told the 530 delegates that churches cannot afford to practice "selective evangelism."

As a black minister, she warned against churches being afraid to be "enriched by the perspectives of all cultures."

What Taxpayers Could Look For From Carter

By SYLVIA PORTER

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter, what would it mean to you, a taxpayer in our country?

A. An all-out effort to overhaul, reform and simplify the entire U.S. tax system with four prime goals: (1) all income would be treated the same; (2) the tax rate would be made much more "progressive," meaning it would hit the higher tax brackets the hardest and the lower tax brackets the softest; (3) no income would be taxed more than once; (4) hundreds of tax incentives that have been added "temporarily" to the system in past decades would be wiped out.

But Carter has no illusions on how quickly he could put through this "complete tax reform." He frankly confesses: "I don't know how to be specific yet." "I am just not qualified yet." He even talks of postponing a "tax reform package" for two years or more after he had entered the White House.

What Carter already has said and done, though, permits this outline for you and me. To you, as a—

* Homeowner counting on your mortgage interest as a tax deduction. Along with other tax incentives, Carter would like to eliminate the income tax deduction for home mortgage payments because he says the deductions are more beneficial to high income than to low-middle income homeowners. He would substitute other homeowner incentives more favorable to lower-income groups: for instance, he would use mortgage guarantees to assist you as a homeowner when mortgage interest rates rose above a specified level and would have the government pay the difference between the free market level and the fixed lower interest rate level.

* Recipient of capital gains. Your capital gains would be taxed as other income — wages, salaries, etc. — is taxed. Capital gains no longer would be given favorable treatment as in today's law.

* Earner of corporate dividends. Repeatedly, Carter has said he favors taxation of corporate income only once — in contrast to today, when corporate income is taxed when earned and then the dividends paid to stockholders out of that taxed corporate income are taxed in turn.

"I would tax that income at the corporate income point or dividends — I would like to keep that option open," says Carter. "I don't favor taxing the same income twice."

* A higher-salaried worker paying Social Security taxes. Carter is adamant on maintaining the soundness of our Social Security system. He would attack the system's financial problems by taxing your income at a higher level. Today, SS taxes are levied on only the first $15,300 of your income; he would tax the first $20,000-$22,000. Broadening the taxable income base this way, he says, would "make sure that Social Security has enough money going into the reserve fund to meet obligations." As to Social Security's long-range problems, the Democratic nominee believes the solutions lie in a reduction in the inflation rate and the unemployment rate to below

4 per cent — both developments that would rebuild the Social Security reserve.

* Chief executive of a corporation operating in other nations as well as the U.S. Carter would remove the incentives that encourage U.S. multinational corporations to manufacture products in foreign countries when "their own employees in this country are out of work." In brief, he wants to discourage corporations from locating plants abroad while U.S. workers are going jobless at home.

The Georgian has spoken in grandiose terms about our national tax system as a "disgrace," has pledged a tax reform program that would reduce the tax rate by 40 to 50 per cent and shift the tax load to a much greater extent to Americans who earn higher incomes.

He frequently refers to Joseph Pechman — an internationally respected authority on federal taxes, recognized liberal on tax reform and a member of the Brookings Institution — as a tax adviser. He also

No Accrediting Of Dix Hospital

RALEIGH (AP) — A state mental hospital in Raleigh has failed to win renewal of its accreditation and has been told that numerous aspects of patient safety need "urgent attention."

Dorthea Dix, a 1,000-bed hospital plans to appeal the rating, but if appeal attempts are unsuccessful, it could lose nearly $2 million in annual federal health insurance payments.

Officials of the hospital were notified last week of the "non accreditation" decision, made by the Chicago-based Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. It will not officially lose its accreditation until all appeals have been exhausted, a commission spokesman said.

"A vigorous appeal" was promised by Dix Director Dr. S.G. Tolley.

The Joint Commission's rating of Dix was based on a week-long inspection in February. Its safety recommendations include:

—Improving fire safety and fire-resistant construction.

—Installing grab bars in certain geriatric toilet and bathing areas.

—Ensuring that all patient rooms open onto a corridor.

—Installing emergency nurse call systems.

The report also noted that the hospital should upgrade privacy in showers, toilets and sleeping facilities. A general tightening of medical staff bylaws would make the staff more efficient and improve communication among hospital workers, the report said.

The quality of the staff, treatment of patients, diet, medical and dental services, nursing, vocational rehabilitation and social work were found to be in "substantial compliance."

Federal medicare and medicare reimbursements to Dix could be cut off if a state inspection team agrees with the commission's findings.

"We will be going over to Dix as soon as we get the official word," said C.W. Sanders Jr., assistant chief of the state's hospital licensing section, which conducts the inspections.

Dix was last accredited in January 1975.

Hospitals pay for the accreditation service of the Joint Commission formed in 1951 by several national medical associations.

How far he would get with his explosive, controversial tax reform ideas is now and must long remain a big question mark. But he is on the record. In this area as well as in others, the Democratic nominee is by no means as fuzzy as you may have thought.
