

Ford And Reagan Are Pursuing State Candidates Make Delegates At Kansas City Last Attempt For Votes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan are personally pursuing the last, scattered handfuls of uncommitted delegates while Republicans open their most divided national convention in a generation.

When Mary Louise Smith, Republican national chairman, calls the party's 31st National Convention to order today it will signal the opening of the final phase of the long, sometimes bitter struggle between an incumbent president never tested in a national election and his brush opponent whose challenge defied conventional political wisdom.

And many of the Republicans gathered here for the showdown fear the outcome will leave the party too divided to withstand the Democratic challenge in the fall campaign.

Few in Kansas City expected the Republicans to duplicate the show of unity and party harmony the Democrats staged last month in New York when they nominated Jimmy Carter for president.

Throughout the pre-convention week, strategists for Ford and Reagan probed and tested and sought signs of softness in the delegate totals each was claiming.

Both sides claimed to have more than the 1,130 delegate votes needed for the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,117 and Reagan 1,036, with 105 uncommitted and a single delegate saying he will vote for Sen. James L. Buckley of New York.

The prospect that Buckley, a conservative Republican, might enter the race was the latest impediment in the tightest

GOP nomination race since Dwight Eisenhower and Robert Taft battled in 1952.

Before the balloting begins Wednesday night for the presidential nomination, the candidates will test their delegate strength in several floor fights.

The first significant test should occur Tuesday night when Reagan's backers plan to fight for adoption of a rule that would require each presidential candidate to name his choice for a running mate by Wednesday morning.

Reagan already has said his choice is Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

The vice presidential rule was rejected Sunday by the convention rules committee, but Reagan and his managers said they expected to lose there. The real test, they insist, will come on the convention floor.

John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, has said repeatedly he believes the former California governor's strength on matters like the proposed rules change is greater than the number of delegates attributed to him in most surveys of intended votes on the first nominating ballot.

Reagan and Ford hit town Sunday and held campaign rallies at about the same hour two miles apart in the convention city.

"I know we are going to win," said Ford.

"Do I think I can still win on the first ballot?" Reagan said to reporters after his arrival.

"Yes."

On the eve of the convention, Ford's delegate total increased by seven, Reagan's by three.

But the biggest remaining bloc of uncommitted delegates, the 30-vote Mississippi contingent, continued to resist pressure from both camps to declare its intentions. The Mississippians caucused Sunday night but made no move to abandon their uncommitted status.

Ford picked up four votes in Pennsylvania, two in New York, one in Virginia and one in Kansas. He lost one New York delegate to Buckley.

Ford's gains included three delegates, counted as uncommitted by The AP, who became ill and were unable to attend the convention. All three were replaced by alternates who support Ford.

Reagan picked up two in Pennsylvania and one in Colorado.

Operating from the 18th-floor presidential suite at the Crown Center Hotel, Ford appeared tantalizingly close to victory.

Enter Buckley. The New York senator arrived in Kansas City a few hours after Ford and Reagan and he continued to put off saying whether or not he would enter the race.

"I've just arrived," Buckley told reporters at the airport.

"I've got to get some information. Is there support? Are there sufficient numbers of people?"

A Draft Buckley Committee was formed by two former Reagan backers, Reps. Phillip Crane of Illinois and Steve Symms of Idaho. Symms is bound by state law to vote for Reagan on the first ballot.

Sears denied having any role in the Buckley trial balloon. But the Reagan campaign manager was the architect of many of the surprise moves pulled during the campaign by the challenger.

One that caught nearly everyone from the Ford camp and many of Reagan's supporters off guard was the naming of Schweiker as Reagan's choice for the vice presidential nomination. The Schweiker announcement brought a flurry of protests from conservative backers of Reagan who objected to the senator's liberal voting record on domestic issues.

Conservative dissatisfaction with Schweiker raised the possibility that if Reagan is nominated he could face a rebellion among his supporters when he asks the convention to endorse his choice for a running mate.

Meanwhile, Reagan and Schweiker continued to hammer away at Ford for his refusal to say whom he would ask to run with him.

"They're still dangling 19 people for the opportunity only one can have," Sears said.

"The vast majority of the delegates feel it is their privilege and their right to know who Mr. Ford's running mate would be," Sears said.

But the convention rules committee was unaffected and voted 59 to 44 against the vice presidential rule backed by Reagan.

The fight over the rules change is likely to be followed Tuesday night by attempts to change planks of the platform drafted by a committee headed by Ford supporter, Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa.

All poll holders are asked to call The Daily Reflector at 752-6166 as soon as possible tomorrow night with the primary election results.

County Ready For Primary

By BARBARA MATHEWS Reflector Staff Writer

Preparations for the primary election to be held tomorrow are now underway, according to Margaret Register of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

"We have been preparing the registration books with all the voters' names, party affiliations and so forth," she said.

"Now we are getting the supplies out to the polling places. Everything used by the registrars, the judges and their assistants is taken from the Board of Elections to the polling places."

According to Miss Register, an instructional workshop was held Saturday morning for the registrars, judges and assistants.

"They will set up the voting areas either tonight or tomorrow," she said.

"The workers will be at the polling places at 6 a.m. The polls will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m."

"We have had prepared for us some signs to be used outside of all polling places. They will help remind the people to stop and vote."

The signs were prepared for the Board of Elections by the signs department of the city of Greenville.

According to Margaret Register, several changes in the precincts have been made.

Greenville's precinct number one is now located at the V.F.W. Post Home on Mumford Road. It had been located at the Meadowbrook Recreation Center.

The third precinct has been relocated from the Third Street School to the West Greenville Recreation Center at the corner of W. Fourth Street and Nash Street.

Greenville's second and eighth precincts have been merged. According to Miss Register, those who voted at the Courthouse and the Rotary building now will vote at the Willis building on the corner of First Street and Reade Street. The combined precincts now make up precinct number eight.

Miss Register said state-wide turnout predictions estimated that only 40 per cent of the voters would participate in the primary.

"I am hoping we'll have a good turnout," she said.

"But there are a lot of people on vacations, and a lot of people are now doing seasonal work."

"I do hope people will come out and vote and really fool us."

She noted that the Board of Elections has already received approximately 260 absentee ballots. Election returns will be called in to The Daily Reflector as soon as the ballots are counted.

An official canvass of votes will be made Thursday at the Pitt County District Courtroom at 11 a.m.

Totals called in Tuesday night are not official until the canvass of the votes.

Four Named To Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Democratic Executive Committee has elected four party activists with ties to three of the North Carolina's top Democratic elected officials as representatives to the Democratic National Committee.

At a meeting in Raleigh Saturday, the committee re-elected Rocky Mount lawyer Charles B. Winberry Jr. and named three persons to their first terms. They are: Greensboro businesswoman Jane Patterson, chairman of the Guilford County Democratic party; Mrs. Johnnie Setzer of Catawba County, secretary of the state party; and Rowe R. Motley of Charlotte, minority affairs chairman for the state party.

The four representatives each will serve a four-year term.

Motley and Winberry, who managed Sen. Robert B. Morgan's 1974 U.S. Senate campaign, are close to both Morgan and Hunt.

Mrs. Patterson has close ties to Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., a candidate for governor. Mrs. Setzer is a strong supporter of Atty. Gen. Rufus L. Edmisten.

The state executive committee also approved a resolution to "wholeheartedly and without equivocation" endorse the Democrat's national ticket of Jimmy Carter for president and Sen. Walter Mondale for vice president.

By The Associated Press

Candidates in the state primary Tuesday are making their last attempts at wooing votes today, just hours before the polls open.

Democratic voters will have a long list of candidates in several races: five in the governor's race; eight for lieutenant governor; three for insurance commissioner and four for labor commissioner.

Republican voters have four candidates in the gubernatorial race, the longest list on the GOP ballot.

Running for Democratic nomination for governor is J.A. "Andy" Barker, owner of the Love Valley ski resort; Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt who has generally been considered the front runner; Ed O'Herron, a Charlotte millionaire who is board chairman of the Eckerd's drugstore chain; Thomas E. Strickland, a state senator from Goldsboro; and George Wood, a wealthy Camden County agribusinessman.

O'Herron, who spent most of the campaign attacking Hunt, spent Sunday in Charlotte. About 3,000 persons reportedly attended a rally at his home where hot dogs, popcorn and soft drinks were served. The candidate reviewed his stand on the issues and emphasized his main campaign theme: more and better jobs through industrial development.

O'Herron had held a series of rallies during the final week of the campaign, hitting most of the metropolitan areas of the state.

Hunt planned a Raleigh news conference this afternoon to make his final appeal for votes. His campaign, well organized and well oiled with contributions, had outspent the others according to spending reports submitted to the State Board of Elections last week.

A Wilson lawyer with a net worth of just $66,000, Hunt reported receiving donations from more than 17,000 persons, a record. He says that shows that someone who is not rich can run for governor.

Wood, who entered the race late, will finish his campaign by talking to state employees in Raleigh today. He planned a midday rally on Capitol Square with ice cream and music provided.

First announcing for the lieutenant governor's race, Wood decided to run for governor only after Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles—the 1972 candidate—decided against running again.

Republican candidates for governor are Jacob F. Alexander, David T. Flaherty, Wallace McCall and Coy C. Privette.

Alexander, who also winds up the campaign in Raleigh today, was secretary of transportation before stepping down to run. Like many other candidates, Alexander has found it difficult to whip up contributions.

Flaherty, former secretary of human resources, has campaigned on his setting up a contract with a private company to handle Medicaid payments. He has claimed it would save the state millions of dollars. The strategy was likely hurt by a federal audit released in the midst of the campaign and a state announcement that the contract has been found unworkable.

McCall is a Baptist minister from Rosman who has called for putting religion first, the state second and individuals third.

Privette gave up a Baptist pulpit in Kannapolis to run. He is widely known for his leadership of the Christian Action League, the organization that has successfully defeated liquor-by-the-drink proposals. He has tried to use his activities as a political jumping off point.

There are eight persons who hope to win Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor: Waverly Akins, C.A. Brown Jr., Herbert L. Hyde, John M. Jordan, Howard Lee, Jimmy Green, Kathryn McRacken and E. Frank Stephenson.

Akins is a former FBI agent who has been on the Wake County Commission for a number of years, several of them as chairman.

Brown is a Maxton farmer and auctioneer and a political unknown. He, Mrs. McRacken and Stephenson have each run low-budget, personal campaigns. Mrs. McRacken is a teacher from Red Springs and Stephenson has been a recruiter for Chowan College in Murfreesboro.

Hyde is a state representative from Asheville, a lawyer. He has been voted one of the most effective legislators and last year led the nearly successful fight for House approval of the ERA.

Jordan has served one term in the state House and is running in his name. His father was B. Everett Jordan who wound up a long political life with 25 years in the U.S. Senate.

Lee is a former mayor of Chapel Hill. He says he has the most integrated of any campaign and has won support from all parts of society.

Green was speaker of the House last legislative session. A tobacco warehouseman, Green has campaigned on his legislative service.

On the GOP side, Odell Payne and William S. Hiatt seek nomination as lieutenant governor. Both are former legislators, Payne serving three terms, Hiatt one. Both lost reelection bids in 1974.

In the Council of State races, 10-year Secretary of State Thad Eure is facing a serious challenge from George Breece in the Democratic primary. Breece, 31, is urging voters to put in a young man to replace Eure, 76. Republicans running are Asa T. Spaulding and C.Y. Nanney.

Also facing a stiff challenge this time is State Auditor Henry Bridges. Consumer advocate Lillian Woo, 38, has launched an aggressive campaign against the 69-year-old Bridges who was first elected in 1947 and hasn't had a serious challenge before this year. Also running is Walter Fuller.

Controversy surrounds the race for state treasurer. Deputy Treasurer Harlan Boyles has obtained loans totaling $115,000 at highly favorable interest rates from one of the state's major banks.

Boyles, 47, has tried to identify himself with retiring Treasurer Edwin Gill.

The chief opponent is R. Lane Brown III of Albemarle, a legislator and Stanly County lawyer. Brown says he would be more active in state policies than Gill if elected. Also running is Jack Journey.

Incumbent Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is facing tough opposition from a college professor whose campaign is largely funded by the insurance industry. Ingram has called opponent Joe Johnson an industry puppet, a charge Johnson denies. Ingram has received little industry support. Also running is Jerry Waters.

There could be a runoff in the labor commission race. Bob Dunnagan, who was fired from the labor office by Republican Commissioner T. Avery Nye, is running against Raleigh lawyer John Brooks, Virgil McBride, formerly a lobbyist for R.J. Reynolds, and Jessie Rae Scott, the wife of former Gov. Bob Scott.

Incumbent Craig Phillips faces opposition from Rocky Mount School Superintendent Ben Currin in the race for superintendent of public instruction.

Unopposed in the Democratic primary are Atty. Gen. Rufus L. Edmisten and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham.

There are two GOP primaries in the Council of State races. C.Y. Nanney, a former newspaper editor, faces Asa T. Spaulding, a Durham businessman in the secretary of state race while state Revenue Secretary J. Howard Coble faces George B. McLeod of Lenoir for the treasurer's nomination.

Statements Are Hit By Ward

By CAROL TYLER Reflector Staff Writer

During a press conference this morning, Dr. Joe Ward of Ayden took issue with two statements made recently by his opponent for the Republican candidacy for U.S. House of Representative Harold Stroud of Pink Hill in Lenoir County.

"Stroud has been quoted as saying he believes I can make a better contribution to the people of this area by continuing as a family physician, rather than going to Congress," Ward said.

"I believe that history has always proved that the people who made a good contribution in government were the same people who made a good contribution in other fields of endeavor."

"Of course, I will have to give up my family practice in Ayden if I'm elected in November, but I have already been making inquiries and will do everything in my power to have someone replace me so my patients won't be neglected. There are 300,000 physicians in this country, but only 435 persons elected to represent Americans in the House of Representatives. Presuming I do a good job there, which I fully intend to do, I feel I could not help but make more of a contribution to the betterment of the lives of my fellow First District citizens as their Congressman than as a doctor in Ayden."

Dr. Ward also differed with his opponent concerning Stroud's saying that if he is elected he will propose legislation to send veterans needing health care to hospitals and doctors nearer their homes than Durham or Fayetteville, where the two Veterans' Administration hospitals nearest the First District are located.

"My opponent's sentiments are good, but completely unrealistic," Dr. Ward said. "If we had started that way 20 years ago, it might be well and good, but we did not—we built multi-million dollar veterans' medical facilities in a few central locations and we must continue to use these in order not to waste the taxpayers' dollars. As a doctor and a Korean War veteran, I vigorously oppose this stand by Harold Stroud."

"I would say, though, that if the need arose to increase VA facilities, I would, as a Congressman, fight for the next location to be in an Eastern North Carolina location," he added.

Flaherty Makes Campaign Stop In Greenville

By SUSAN QUINN Reflector Staff Writer

"We are making a last day of stops all across the state, Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty said Monday at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

"At this time I feel very good about the campaign and according to our latest figures we are expecting to win with a 51.8

per cent margin," Flaherty said. Asked about the possibility of a runoff, Flaherty said that the other candidates are hoping for a runoff. "But I feel that it is a two man race at this time."

Flaherty said that after the primary he will take a short vacation.

"We plan to take a few days off, then go back to a few strategy sessions and sessions with staff members," he said. Flaherty was accompanied by his wife and sons, Bobby and Johnny.

"It is nice to have the family's support. After the primary my other three children who are in college will be travelling with us," Flaherty said.

Flaherty visited Raleigh, Charlotte and Winston-Salem today.

DREAM COME TRUE— AN ELECTRIC WHEELCHAIR

I have a son who is 16 and a student at EBA. He is a very smart boy and an A student. He loves going to school, although he is confined to a wheelchair and has been for the last 11 years. Within the next year he wants to see a desire come true, something he has wanted for these 11 years—he will be entering high school this summer in the tenth grade, and I promised that if there were any way possible I would try very hard to get him an electric wheelchair by the time he entered. Due to expenses I kept putting it off, and now I don't see any way that I can do it. Please see if there is any organization in town that would like to take this on as a project, or maybe they could get it going and I could take over later. I.S.

After your call in March, 1976, HOTLINE contacted the Greenville office of Vocational Rehabilitation. We talked to the director, Carlton Hardee, who said the chances of getting an electric wheelchair for your son looked good but he couldn't promise anything. Hardee said that certain tests would have to be made, such as a medical examination and psychological tests. After the testing, an evaluation could be made of your son's potential work ability. Then, with the beginning of the new fiscal year, funds might be available for your son.

Ruth Kelly, a VR counselor, was assigned to your son's case. She contacted several persons and arranged for the necessary tests.

We called Hardee a few weeks ago for a progress report and he said everything was going smoothly. He had received the medical report as of June 28 and the psychological tests were scheduled for July 30. He said that if all the tests checked out okay, your son would be fitted for the electric wheelchair. After a fitting, he said, the wheelchair should be ready in three to four weeks.

Ms. Kelly sent us a letter dated Aug. 10 saying that your son would have his fitting Aug. 27. We realize that he may not be able to get the electric wheelchair in time for the first day of school, but it should be soon afterwards.

You have said that you will notify us the day he gets the wheelchair so that HOTLINE can publish a Feedback item.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today in quiet trading as Wall Street kept an eye on the Republican convention in Kansas City.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.83 at 992.02.

The Dow Jones utility average also advanced, but the transportation indicator declined.

Gainers held a slight lead over losers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Brokers found no special news behind the gain. They said some traders might be doing a little buying in hopes of a rally once the Republicans choose their presidential candidate.

At the same time, analysts noted some caution over further signs that the economic recovery had slowed.

After Friday's close, the government reported that industrial production increased only .2 per cent in June for its smallest rise in nine months.

Westinghouse Electric was the most active NYSE issue, up 1/4 at 17 1/4. A 34,000-share block traded at 17 and another of 20,000 shares changed hands at 17 1/4.

Price changes in most other stocks were small.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was unchanged at 55.69 after the first hour.

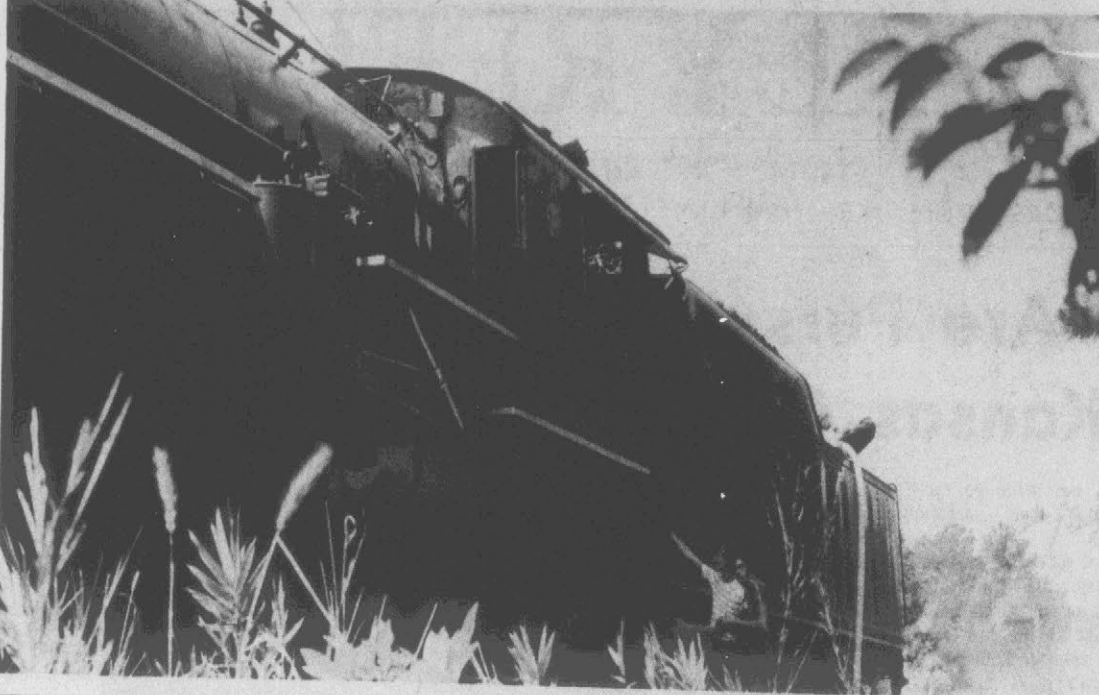

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .06 at 103.86.

Brooks Ends Campaign Here

 "I decided to come back to Greenville and wind up the campaign where I started four months ago," John Brooks, candidate for Commissioner of Labor said Monday.

unskilled workers," Brooks said. Brooks noted that the vocational education programs and the technical institutes should be companions to the Department of Labor's efforts to increase the jobs and the wages in North Carolina.

"I feel that there should be more coordination between the statistics department of the Department of Labor with the technical institutes so they can plan the scheduling of the training courses for long range and short range sessions. We must also improve the vocational educational facilities in the colleges and the high schools," Brooks said.

"The Department of Labor has been an isolated department for a while and I would promote the coordination and cooperation of our facilities with all departments of government," Brooks said.

Helms Not Interested In Race

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)— Sen. Jesse Helms says he isn't interested in any third party presidential nomination and that he will support the nominee of the Republican National Convention.

"I'm not going to be nominated," the North Carolina senator told the state delegation Sunday. "I have not discussed it. I didn't even know about it until I read it in the newspapers." The senator added: "I will support the nominee who will be nominated this week."

Helms and Tom Ellis, a Raleigh attorney who heads the delegation, also said conservatives had won "90 per cent" of their demands in the formulation of the party's 1976 platform.

"On a scale of 10, we're at nine," Helms said. "We're going after the other one on the floor." Ellis said the delegation's work on the platform committee had resulted in stronger language on issues such as military superiority, the Panama Canal and disarmament agreements with the Soviet Union.

"Without doubt, whether by accident or design, North Carolina was the only game in town last week," Ellis said. "Through the leadership of our delegation we have hammered into that wishy-washy document platform, some real strong, hard-hitting Reagan language. Ellis also tried to squelch speculation that the North Carolina delegation might throw its support to a third candidate.

"We are behind Ronald Reagan," he told the cheering caucus. "We are going to back him all the way." Helms acknowledged he was "disappointed" with Reagan's selection of Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Penn., as a vice-presidential nominee and spoke glowingly of Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., who has been mentioned as a potential presidential candidate.

"I would go anywhere, any time to speak well of Jim Buckley," Helms told the caucus.

No Excuses For Voter Failure

By tonight we will have heard the last of the rhetoric of the current campaign. The outcome of the 1976 primary election will be in the hands of the voters.

Choosing the candidates who will represent the two parties in the November general election is an awesome responsibility for the registered voters of this state. Unfortunately it is a responsibility which is all too often taken lightly.

Predictions are that there will be a light turnout of voters for the primary election tomorrow. Various reasons are given for that prediction. One is that the primary is being held in the summer and people are busy with vacations or farmers are at work in the fields. Other observers say that this has been generally a lackluster campaign with few issues to create interest among the public.

Either may be true, but neither is any excuse for any registered voter to fail to vote tomorrow. If there are no exciting issues this year, it's certainly not because the multitude of candidates haven't tried. Most of the state candidates have visited Greenville not once but several times and we can be sure they have been as active throughout the state.

As for the time of the year, there will always be some people out of place and unable to cast their ballots. Nevertheless at any time there are still enough registered voters at home to assure a record vote.

There should be a large turnout of voters in our area tomorrow. Good government demands it. Won't you who are eligible to vote visit the polls between 6:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.?

Kansas City Should Not Be Dullsville

The Republican National Convention opened in Kansas City this week, and still the overriding question is who will be nominated as the party's presidential candidate.

Most polls agree that President Ford is ahead in delegate count, but at this writing he did not appear to have a clear majority.

There was talk of New York Sen. James Buckley becoming a candidate which could deny the president a first ballot nomination. With Ronald Reagan so close, a second ballot could change the entire picture.

This should be an interesting week in Kansas City.

State Info Flow Continues

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH—A few days' escape from the muggy dog-days of the State Capital to the cool blue and green western Carolina mountaintops would be expected to leave one out of touch and wondering what was going on.

Not necessarily. The multi-million dollar state information machine continues to grind out its prose. And that, in addition to the seasonal political offerings at this primary time, produced several hours worth of reading matter.

How else but from that taxpayer public information industry would we know such things as these, gleaned from the dozens of offerings:

Trapped

Approximately 6,000 sexure traps are being tied on trees and utility poles across the state—a wick inside contains a synthetically produced sex attractant similar to that used by the female gypsy moth.

Males who come panting to the lure will be trapped inside by a sticky substance—to die, unrewarded. State and federal agriculture and forestry people are putting out the traps.

Banks

Banks in North Carolina have total resources amounting to $5,270,439,000.00 as of June 30, 1976.

That figure compares to $5,110,069,800.00 in resources at the same time a year ago—an increase of $160,369,200.00, says the Office of the Commissioner of Banks.

Beached

Public school principals and superintendents met in July for a state wide conference. According to the "Superintendents Report" published by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, the overall evaluation results for the Superintendents' Conference held in Asheville in July was significantly higher than for previous years, but the Principals' Conference total rating was below the 1975 rating.

When asked where the conference should be held next year, the majority of superintendents said they wished to return to Asheville. A majority of principals said they wished to have the next conference at the coast.

Busy

Gov. James E. Holshouser has been busy: he chaired a closed-door meeting of the Council of State, spent two days in the office, received a deed for some property given the state and a copy of a Bicentennial almanac; presented State Employee Awards, and went to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City.

Stuff

The Board of Award of the Purchase and Contract Division met again, buying treated timber, concrete pipe, some typewriters, some bituminous plant mix, welding equipment, books, a video camera lens and image enhancer, mashed potatoes, milk, ice cream, bread, coffee, and tea; clothing; some steel sheets and piling; and an argon ion and dye laser system, a laser pulsed ultrasonic and slicer, a preparative ultracentrifuge, and some polarizing microscope components.

Millions

From the Department of Human Resources we learned that county social services departments across the state were allocated their share of the $63,256,250 allotted to North Carolina in federal Title XX funds.

Money

The State Department of Administration has printed a summary of the state budget for fiscal year 1976-77 showing where the estimated $3,462,536,472 comes from and how it has been divided among state agencies.

Roads

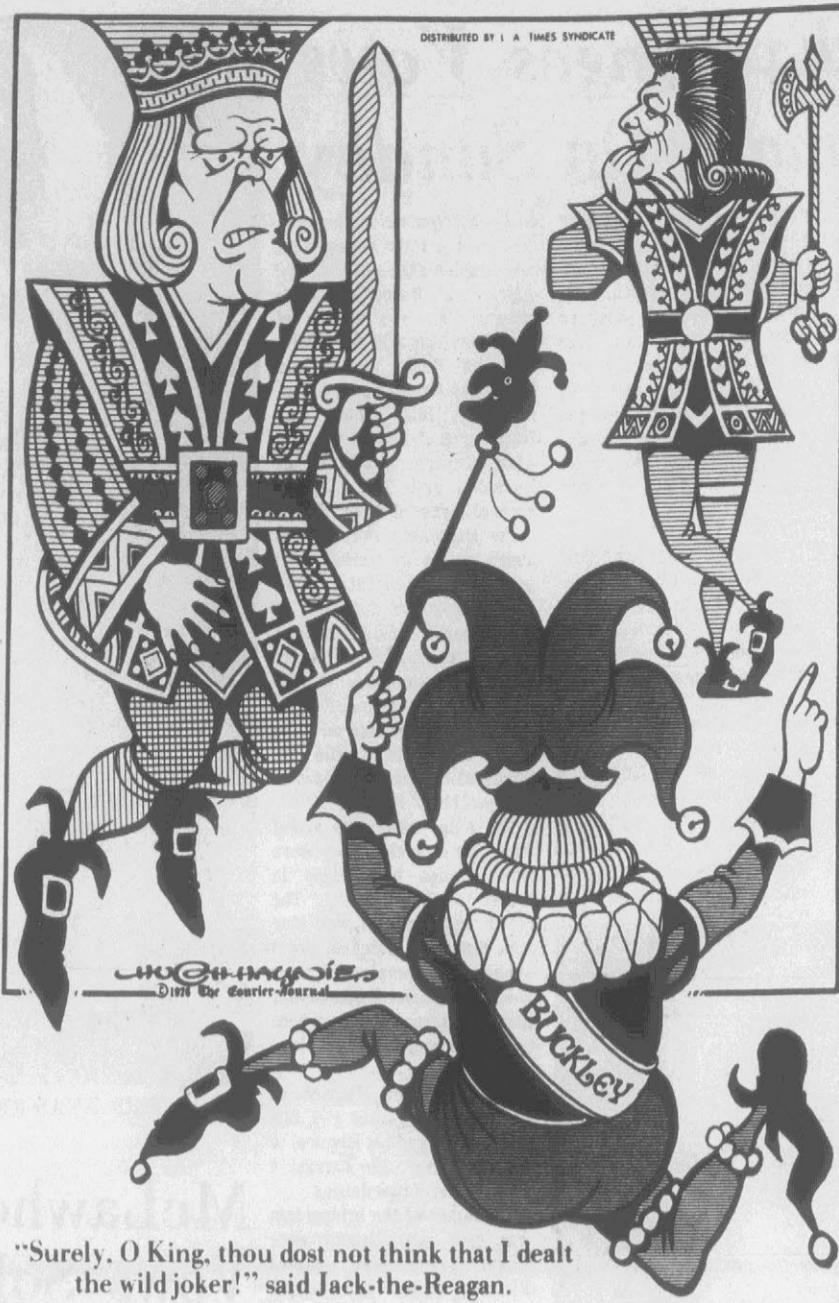

The State Board of Transportation approved 40 highway construction contracts which were let last month for a total of $23,088,237 in new expenditures for highway work.

Jobs

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that during May, favorable labor turnover activity was experienced by most of the sampled forms as net additions were noted in both durable and nondurable goods segments.

Hogs

And finally, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham put out his annual hog cholera warning - they've got it in New Jersey so we must be alert in moving hogs about.

"Surely, O King, thou dost not think that I dealt the wild joker!" said Jack-the-Reagan.

New Toys For The Shah

WASHINGTON — The State Department makes everyone write an essay when he or she comes back from vacation. Here is the one Henry Kissinger wrote.

"I went to Iran on my summer vacation. I met a new friend named Shah. He is a very nice person and we had a lot of fun together in his palace. Shah likes to play with missiles and airplanes and specially fitted destroyers and tanks and guns and toys like that.

"He asked me if there were any toys we had in America that he didn't have. I said we had a lot of toys that he would love and he said he would like to buy some.

"Shah has a very big allowance and he said he would give me $10 billion if I would send him some new toys when I got back home. I told him it would be no problem and all he had to do was give me a list of what he wanted and I would go to the toy store in the Pentagon and buy them for him.

"He seemed very happy because he said that if he couldn't buy the toys in America he was going to buy them some place else. I told

Other Editors Say Pension Troubles

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

State and local government units paid over $9 billion into their employees' pension systems in fiscal 1975, an increase of 277 per cent over annual costs a decade ago. That would seem to adequately take care of the needs of government employees after retirement.

Yet, despite this sharp rise in the costs, there are growing indications they may be inadequate to meet the future benefit claims which some employees have been led to expect in their retirement years.

This clear warning emerges from a year-long study of more than 2,300 government pension plans just completed by Tax Foundation. The report shows that more than 9 million state and local government workers are covered. Receipts of all 2,304 systems in 1974 totaled $16.5 billion, almost five times the $3.4 billion reported in 1960.

Of this amount, $4.2 billion was contributed by the workers themselves, $4.5 billion came from earnings on investments, and $7.8 billion was contributed by the government employers.

Beneficiaries of the systems in fiscal 1972, the latest year for which overall figures are available, received $326 million a month, more than triple the amounts paid 10 years earlier.

The report makes it clear that in a great many cases the government pension plans are inadequately funded, or not funded at all; they are set up and administered in secret; overgenerous in many of their provisions, and growing at a rate that will cost taxpayers new burdens in future years.

There are also wide discrepancies among the hundreds of different pension plans. In four of New York City's five pension systems it is estimated that additional payments of $300 million a year for the next 15 to 20 years would be required to put them on a sound financial basis.

It was revealed recently that levels of funding in that city were based on actuarial assumptions made before World War I, more than 60 years ago.

Public pension plans in systems in Atlanta and in 44 cities in Pennsylvania may be in similar danger of insolvency. Congress passed a law in 1974 to regulate the private pension plans. One wonders if public pension plans also need attention, and the law requires.

him America makes the best toys there are and they are all brand-new and they can do things no foreign toys could duplicate. Some of them had lasers and others were controlled electronically and still others had heat-seeking devices on them that could blow other people's toys to bits.

"He got very excited and said maybe he should buy $15 billion worth of toys instead of $10 billion.

"I told him that was a very good idea. I described a new American toy airplane called the F-16 fighter and another called the F-18. They were so new that American kids didn't even have them yet. He liked that said he would buy as many of them as I could get my hands on. Then he asked me if there were any new toy ships that would be coming out for Christmas.

"I told him about a guided missile attack frigate that could fire 20 missiles at one time in 20 different directions. His eyes lit up and he made me promise I would send them a dozen of them as soon as they were available.

TV Ads Seeking Voters

By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — As the primary campaign draws to a close, the televised cacophony of the candidates is getting louder.

It happens every time there's a station break. Lane Brown gets up and says that as State Treasurer, he'll open the doors. Thad Eure says his door has always been open.

Jim Hunt slammed a cell door, or at least he did. That ad has been phased out of his campaign, a spokesman said. Waverly Akins fired his pistol in an anti-crime ad. That, too, has been phased out.

The barrage of 30-second spots never shows anyone getting up and saying, "Hi, I'm a professional politician." That is definitely out this year. The voters reportedly would just as soon choose for a used car salesman as a politician.

One fashion that endures among the candidates is shirtsleeves. If anyone has ever filmed an ad showing the candidate wearing his jacket as he talks to the masses, it has never been seen.

There are those who think that the 30-second television spot is less than useful to the voter. Democratic gubernatorial candidate Thomas Strickland is one of them, perhaps partly because he doesn't have enough money to buy them. Republicans are in the same financial condition.

"What do we learn from these? One candidate (Hunt) can slam a cell door. Another (Edward O'Herron) can screw in a light bulb. Another (George Wood) can pick potatoes. If those are qualifications for governor, I'll learn them," Strickland says.

Judging by the amount of money Hunt has raised and Wood and O'Herron have borrowed to buy them, someone thinks the ads are useful. But questions are being raised by the sheer volume of commercials now on the air. There are signs that television, once the magic elixir for a tired campaign, may be losing a little of its potency through overuse.

"All this paid media may not be doing what it traditionally did: raise the candidate's identification level and reduce indecision among the voters. With so many candidates, it may just be confusing people and helping create indecision," said Dr. Walter DeVries, who is the chief strategist for Wood.

All those non-politicians in shirtsleeves, he thinks, may not be saying anything that grabs the people's attention.

One exception might be the ads that O'Herron has placed on the tube for the final two weeks of the campaign. One shows a balloon being filled with hot air and bursting. Another shows a red-tipped puppet talking out of one side of his mouth. An announcer talks about "politicians who come up with solutions every four years when they run for higher office."

The obvious target of the ads is the acknowledged front-runner for the gubernatorial nomination, Hunt. O'Herron is trying to persuade people planning to vote for Hunt that they ought to reconsider.

In the political advertising trade, this is known as a negative spot. It is usually the tactic of someone running behind and trying to catch up; O'Herron acknowledges that he started the campaign in that position. He personally approved the ads.

There are pitfalls in the negative approach. One consultant,

THE INSIDE REPORT

Castro Will Be Available

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A new and steady infiltration of Soviet-bloc "technicians" to Mozambique, suspected but unproven until now, coupled with similar movements by Cuban military "advisers," points to dangerous escalation of guerrilla war in white-ruled Rhodesia sometime this autumn after the rainy season starts.

Such escalation of guerrilla actions, which so far have posed no serious problems for Rhodesia's well-organized border police and internal security forces, suggests an ominous Communist gameplan for southern Africa. That is where Soviet power-politics now appear to be making major gains at U.S. expense.

The plan, as perceived by Ford administration experts, rules out any public effort by Moscow to torpedo Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's desperate, last-minute effort to achieve a political settlement in Rhodesia: setting a timetable for transferring political power from 270,000 whites to 6 million blacks.

Moscow's strong assumption is that Kissinger's plan will fail. Failure of the diplomatic U.S. effort will be followed by escalation of guerrilla warfare from new black nationalist bases in Mozambique now being readied by white and Cuban Communist technicians.

Even if Kissinger succeeds in gaining some form of political arrangement that would satisfy more moderate black-nationalist leaders of Rhodesia, however, radical factions will be prodded to reject any compromise and take the guerrilla warfare route. Officials here doubt that it will take much prodding.

Advanced contingents of Soviet-bloc and Cuban technicians and military experts now known to be moving into the former Portuguese colony of Mozambique are concentrating on two things: building (and hence controlling) such essential elements of government in Mozambique as internal security, intelligence and communications (believed to be largely under control of East German specialists) as well as other government offices; and training Rhodesian black nationalists for waging guerrilla war. Significantly, reliable reports have reached here for the first time that "sizable sums" of Communist money are being paid to Rhodesian nationalist leaders.

While actual numbers of these outside advisers are only estimates, because of the elusive quality of accurate information from Mozambique, East German technicians may now number 100 (probably the largest single number from any Soviet-bloc country) and Cuban "advisers" perhaps as many as 250.

These are, of course, from the same Cuban military force that Prime Minister Fidel Castro pledged to withdraw to Cuba in his heralded letter to Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme two months ago. That pledge is now regarded as a virtual dead letter, composed by Castro to placate anti-Communist African leaders deeply worried about the sinister meaning of Castro's Africa corps bouncing around their borders with Soviet backing.

In addition, Castro's announcement of intention to take his expeditionary force back home was probably timed to coincide with the conference of non-aligned countries starting this week in Colombo, where black Africa is heavily represented.

But Castro's real intention is now assumed to be quite different: retaining much of his Africa corps in southern Africa, possibly with routine rotation, and — when the proper time comes — making it more available as military advisers in the intensification of guerrilla war against Rhodesia. Indeed, despite some anti-Castro sentiment among black non-Communist and anti-Communist leaders in southern Africa, Castro is

Strength For Today

RELIGION AND MORALITY

The world is full of people today who to all intents and purposes have lost their religion. They are not irreverent or vicious. They simply pay no attention to churches or religious matters, and never give a thought to religion one way or the other.

A critic once said of the French scholar, Ernest Renan, who in 1863 published a very influential life of Jesus denying any claims of divinity: "Renan's brain was like a cathedral no longer used for divine service, containing wood, trusses of straw, and miscellaneous articles, yet retaining its religious architecture."

Renan was the offspring of a very pious family. By inheritance he was the beneficiary of many fine elements of character which his forebears had built up. There was a general religious architecture to his life, yet within it were housed only secular interests.

The moral values which we all prize come from religion. And these will fade if that religion is no more than empty architecture.

Some Gold Bugs Taking Beating

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold bugs, who two years ago were convinced that the price of gold and the size of their fortunes might soar to the heavens, have been crawling of late.

Being an economic rather than zoological creature, the gold bug draws its nourishment from the price of gold, which it believes is the essential repository of value, a safe haven in any economic storm, especially those of inflation.

In December 1974, with inflation and recession pummeling economics of the industrial world, many gold bugs were more confident than ever. Gold sold for $195.20 an ounce, more than five times its 1970 price.

It wasn't uncommon in 1974 to hear the gold bugs speak about an even more lustrous future, not at $200 an ounce but at $300 and even more. Paper money was more suspect every day; gold was solid.

Gold sold for $113.30 in New York Friday, and some analysts familiar with the market were forecasting even lower prices, perhaps much lower.

While some of the gold bugs picked up their ounces at $40 or so several years ago, a good many of them paid several times that figure and now have either no gains or substantial losses.

In addition to the quoted price, many buyers also paid an agent's fee, an assay fee and perhaps a storage fee. And they received no interest in return.

Problems for the gold bugs began soon after, or even slightly before, U.S. citizens were permitted to buy bullion at the beginning of 1975. The entrance of U.S. citizens into the market was expected to be bullish. It wasn't.

At the time inflation was raging throughout the world, and that of course was considered a boost for gold prices. Whereas paper money, losing its value, sometimes is refused, gold seldom is.

The observations of the gold bugs were correct but their forecasts of even worse inflation weren't. Gradually inflation began to lose momentum and, while stability is still a distance off, people regained some confidence.

The lessened role of gold as backing for currencies contributed further to the decline. The relative value of international currencies, rather than being pegged to gold, were permitted to float against each other.

Central bank members of the International Monetary Fund agreed not to increase their total gold holdings. And the fund began a four-year program to auction off some of its holdings.

All this, combined with sales by the Soviets and the continued output of that country and South Africa, has led to a situation where a relatively large supply exists, and that is bad for prices.

But not all gold bugs are convinced they have to crawl; they still feel their metal is special, and that it will yet prove its higher value.

Noting the difficulty that some European nations are having in controlling inflation, some gold bugs already are grooming their wings for the takeoff.

Philadelphia Visits Dropping

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Thousands of tourists have canceled plans to visit Philadelphia since a puzzling and deadly malady struck after an American Legion convention. Over the last two weeks, daily attendance at the Liberty Bell has dropped 25 per cent.

"People call us and ask us if we know anything new," said a motel clerk in Cherry Hill, N.J., a Philadelphia suburb. "They ask if it's contagious, and when

certain to come under heavy pressure from pro-Communist Rhodesian black nationalists to share the hazards of their guerrilla war.

The reason for that lies in the formidable anti-guerrilla capacities of Rhodesia's small security forces and regular army, contrasted to weak and untutored guerrilla units. As these units predictably pay an ever higher cost in lives, an SOS to Castro's Cubans will inevitably draw them further into the guerrilla war.

It was precisely this sort of SOS from the pro-Moscow nationalist faction in Angola, called the Popular Movement, that encouraged Castro to deepen his Angolan involvement month by month last year and into 1976. Cuban forces are still essential in Angola because the Popular Movement has miserably failed to consolidate its hold over that country.

In the long run, the danger is profound to the U.S. and other anti-Communist countries in the East-West struggle, including pro-Western Zambia and Zaire in southern Africa. The steady increase of Soviet-bloc and Cuban involvement in southern Africa adds fuel to the world's most incendiary racial conflict. When the fall explosion comes, Moscow's Cuban proxies will be available to exploit its effects, while the U.S. watches from the sidelines.

"I told him I would try to work something out if he promised to be very careful of the waste material and not tell anybody what he was going to do with it. He apologized for getting mad and said he would probably buy another $5 billion worth of toys next year and another $5 billion the year after.

"I never saw a kid who had so much money to buy toys in my life. We had a swell dinner and the next morning as I left he gave me a World War II collection of bubble gum cards as a going-away present. I thought that was real nice of him because I really hadn't done anything to deserve it. I like buying toys for other people. It makes me feel I've done something to earn my vacation."

the number of cancellations directly attributable to fear of the disease. But a check of a dozen hotels turned up six scrapped conventions or meetings, and numerous reports of Philadelphia-bound tourists who had changed their mind.

One man who canceled plans to attend a convention here last week was Richard Givan, chief justice of the Indiana Supreme Court.

"If it were just an epidemic in town you might not think so much about it," he said. "But since it appears to be centered in the very same hotel where we're supposed to stay, it doesn't sound too inviting."

Givan was to have stayed at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, as were the San Francisco Giants baseball team. But on Thursday, when the Giants came to town to play the Phillies, they checked into a Holiday Inn.

The Bellevue-Stratford was headquarters for the Legion convention July 21-24. Subsequently, 25 of the estimated 10,000 people who had some connection with the state-wide gathering died of the illness, and 140 others were hospitalized. Last weekend, state officials said a priest and a musician who attended the 41st International Eucharistic Congress here two weeks ago and who stayed at the hotel - also contracted the pneumonia-like illness.

The Bellevue-Stratford is not the only hotel to suffer.

"The International Brotherhood of Carpenters was coming here Sunday," said Ted Kissane, manager of a downtown Sheraton hotel. "It means about 2,000 room nights. But because of the illness they said they weren't coming. That's a big hunk of change. Counting their food and drinks, it's in excess of $100,000."

Despite two weeks of intensive research and interviews with thousands who attended the Legion convention, health officials remain puzzled about the cause of the disease, which caused high fevers and lug congestion.

The researchers say they have ruled out as causes viruses, bacteria, fungus, or such exotic diseases as plague or Lassa fever. They say the cause may turn out to be a toxin-a poisonous agent - but a number of toxins, including heavy metals, have also been discounted.

The latest victim to die - the 25th - was Jane Palmer, 64, of Philadelphia, who succumbed Saturday after being on the critical list for several days. She attended only one event at the Legion convention - watching a July 23 parade from a window at the Bellevue-Stratford with her husband, Edward. He showed no symptoms of the disease.

At one time, 27 persons had been listed as dying of the "legionnaires disease," but state health officials have revised their definition of the ailment and taken three names off the list.

On the other hand, there is a belief in the O'Herron and Wood camps that Hunt's support is fragile, that the people who would vote for him today are not really certain why they would do so.

"Good negative advertising in a situation with a lot of indecision may work," said the consultant.

At the least, O'Herron's balloon and puppet may do something that no one else appears to have been able to do: make people pay attention.

"He got very angry at this and said he didn't want to play with me any more if he couldn't have the waste material for himself.

On Tuesday, August 17, you can elect a man who stands out from the other candidates for governor.

GEORGE WOOD

Stands alone

Wouldn't it be nice to have a governor who isn't afraid to tell you what he thinks...a governor who does things just because they're right? Wouldn't it be nice to have a governor who is a farmer and a businessman and who understands the needs of all working men and women? Wouldn't it be a pleasant change to have a man of integrity and versatility as governor? That man is George Wood.

"Alone among all the candidates, only I believe that:

- * we must raise teachers' salaries to the national average.
- * we must have a people's constitutional convention.
- * we must revise our taxes so they are more equitable for all taxpayers.
- * we must reform our legislature so it is more efficient and responsive.
- * we must pass a sunset law so the sun sets on any state program which cannot justify its spending level.
- * we must open state government to total public scrutiny."

"Alone among all the candidates, I know how to work with my hands. I know how to plant corn and dig potatoes. I can drive a bulldozer and plow a field. I can raise a hog. I have done all these things and more.

My roots are deep in the soil of North Carolina. I am proud of our state's farmers and of the contribution they make to our way of life. A man must never forget where he comes from."

"I think it's time North Carolina had a farmer as a governor. I think we need someone who understands the working man. I am a farmer—and a businessman—who knows how to work with people and who knows his way around state government."

"If you agree with my stand on most of these issues . . . then, I am not alone."

"The people are with me. Let the other candidates have the courthouse politicians."

FORECAST

WEATHER FORECAST—Cooler temperatures are forecast Monday for almost all the northern half of the nation. Warmer weather is expected for the southern tier of states and a segment of the central Plains. Showers are forecast for the Gulf coast and Florida and from the Dakotas into the upper Midwest. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
Showers and thundershowers occurred mainly over inland sections yesterday afternoon and last night to bring much needed rain. Raleigh especially benefitted from a heavy shower as its main water supply, the Neuse River, rose to its highest point in three weeks.

Asheville received a little over 1½ inches while Butner recorded 1 inch. Roxboro, Raleigh-Durham and Wilsonville had around ½ inch. Greensboro and Charlotte received three-tenths of an inch of rain.

A cold front has pushed into the central Plains. Showers are forecast for the Gulf coast and Florida and from the Dakotas into the upper Midwest. (AP Wirephoto)

Western North Carolina and was expected to move southeastward through the central and eastern counties today to off the south coast tonight. Cooler high pressure will dominate our weather tonight and tomorrow. Scattered showers and thundershowers are expected mainly over the eastern half of North Carolina and over the southeastern counties early tonight. Clearing is in prospect tonight.

Refuses Visitors

RALEIGH (AP) — Central Prison officials Sunday refused to admit a group of nine persons seeking to visit imprisoned civil rights activist the Rev. Ben Chavis.

Chavis, in the prison hospital where he is on a hunger strike, is being allowed visits by only his lawyer minister and immediate family, said W.L. Kautzky, deputy director of the state division of prisons.

The group sought to visit Chavis as part of activities commemorating "Wilmington 10 Day," Kautzky said. Chavis was one of ten persons sentenced to long prison terms for convictions stemming from racial violence in Wilmington, N.C. in 1971.

He was transferred to the hospital after beginning the hunger strike in May at the McCain prison unit. He was protesting an earlier transfer from another unit, and has continued to refuse most food, Kautzky said Sunday.

To Direct Nursery

Miss Lucy Marino has been named director of Immanuel Baptist Church Nursery School, replacing Mrs. Sue Turcotte, who is returning to graduate school at ECU.

Miss Marino is a graduate of Meredith College and holds a K-3 Class A North Carolina teaching certificate. She has taught first grade and kindergarten in Florida and North Carolina.

While serving as the nursery school director, Miss Marino will be working toward a masters of science degree in child development and family relations in the School of Home Economics ECU.

The Immanuel Nursery, which opens again Sept. 7, is a morning program for three and four-year-olds. There are a few openings for the fall in both groups.

Two Wrecks On Sunday

An estimated $2,100 property damage resulted from a series of two collisions investigated by Greenville Police Sunday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Thomas Nicholas Egerton Jr. of 901 Forest Hill Cir. and Judith Tripp Garrison of 112 Greenwood Dr. collided about 8:40 p.m. at the intersection of Evans and 14th Streets.

Investigators, who said both drivers were injured in the crash, estimated damage at $1,200 to the Egerton car and $900 to the Garrison vehicle.

No charges were reported. Police reported an estimated $150 damage results to a car driven by George Hoyt Sumerlin of 101 Greenway St. and $150 damage resulted to a trailer being pulled by the Sumerlin car following a 6:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Third Street.

Officers said an unidentified car collided with the Sumerlin trailer at the intersection causing the damage. The hit-and-run car did not stop.

Can't Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford says she can't lose.

She will be a winner, she says, whether or not her husband wins the GOP presidential nomination in Kansas City, Mo., and whether or not he beats Jimmy Carter in November to return to the White House.

"If Jerry gets the nomination, then I win as a citizen of this country because, in my opinion, he is the most experienced and qualified man for the job.

"If he doesn't get the nomination, or if he gets it and should lose the presidency to Jimmy Carter, then I win as a wife, because after the campaign he will retire from active politics."

Mrs. Ford made her comments in Sunday's Parade Magazine.

A COMMON SENSE APPROACH TO NORTH CAROLINA GOVERNMENT

North Carolina has many problems and many opportunities.

We need a governor who will provide leadership to solve these problems and take advantage of our opportunities.

Tom Strickland will be that governor.

Take a look at his common sense approach to North Carolina government.

There Is No Need To Re-Invent The Tax Wheel In North Carolina.

We have an almost unbelievably good and working tax structure. Those who advocate tax cuts in certain areas are really talking about shifting the tax burden to the heavily taxed middle class. We do not need to shift the burden. We need to spend our available funds wisely.

Efficient Use Of Tax Dollars Will Mean Better Services To Taxpayers Without Additional Taxes.

We need to evaluate our present state programs before adding new ones. Let's find where we're getting results and where we're not. Eliminate programs that don't work. Concentrate on those that benefit our state. We can keep state services even during times of inflation by using available funds efficiently. I propose to appoint department heads that will seek out ways to provide the best services at the least cost. Wasted tax money cheats every citizen of North Carolina. Better money management can save this waste.

Every Needy Person In North Carolina Should Be Given The Help He or She Deserves. But I Am Bitterly Opposed To Those Who Defraud Our Social Services of Millions Every Year.

Many social services such as mental health facilities, day care centers, and nursing homes deserve, and will receive, my strongest support. We have a fundamental responsibility to provide aid to those who cannot help themselves. I will lead the support of these needy people.

There are areas where our social service money is being wasted, however. Millions of tax dollars are lost every year to fraudulent welfare claims. This must and will be stopped. No working citizen of North Carolina should be required to support an able-bodied person who chooses not to work. I propose an investigative arm to validate welfare claims. This unit will pay back 100-fold through prosecution of these frauds upon the taxpayers of North Carolina.

We've Missed Out On Federal Funds That Can Pave The Way To A Better North Carolina Road System.

Let's make sure we receive our proper share of federal aid to our Interstate and primary road systems. We've missed out in the past. Let's cash in in the future. The Department of Transportation needs a fresh look at the Seven-Year plan established during the present administration. Needed links in our primary road system and between our Interstates have been neglected. Let's put our priorities in order. Bureaucratic red tape can be cut to bring our secondary road systems closer to the people they serve. I propose that local and district engineers be given the authority to make decisions without clearing everything through Raleigh.

Two Primaries Instead of One Will Cost N.C. Taxpayers an Extra $500,000 This Year.

As a state senator, I voted against moving the state primary to August. We can save tremendous amounts of time and money by combining the national and state primaries. And if we hold all primaries in May instead of August, more voters will be near their local polls.

North Carolina Will Reap Tremendous Benefits From Agricultural Research.

Farming is the backbone of our state's economy. And as the world cries out for food, agribusiness becomes even more important. Our farmlands may be our greatest single resource during the coming century. Let's take full advantage of this great opportunity. I strongly support agricultural research to increase our farmers' production. And heartily endorse marketing programs to insure top dollar in the marketplace.

Industry Is North Carolina's New Frontier.

Our state has experienced great industrial growth. Growth that has provided our people with income and security. We must continue to encourage our established businesses with tax incentives and a minimum of government interference. We must also create an environment that attracts industries we want in our state. I will appoint the Lieutenant Governor as chief of our industrial recruiting forces. His presence will add energy and prestige to the important work done by the Department of Natural and Economic Resources. And he will coordinate state recruitment with existing organizations such as the Industrial Redevelopment Commission, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Merchants Association. Stability and continuity in this area will attract industries that will set the tone of our future development.

Let's Make Public Utilities Public.

Public utilities are supposedly state-controlled monopolies. Yet the state does not have the legal and accounting manpower to control our public utilities. I propose that our State Utilities Commission be composed of three members instead of seven. This reorganization will provide funds for a first-class auditing team to feed the proper information to the Utilities Commission. In this manner, the Commission members can make informed decisions on rate increases and public utilities will again be public.

I Cannot and Will Not Support Liquor By The Drink.

Liquor-related crimes and misdemeanors have increased even under our present state-controlled distribution system. We must not increase the number of outlets for liquor. I will do everything in my power to stop liquor by the drink in our state.

State Employees and Teachers Must Receive Incentives Equal To Those Found In Private Enterprise.

In order to attract and keep superior individuals in state government jobs, we must offer the security, recognition, and career incentives that are offered in private businesses. These are people who protect our lives, teach our children, and provide the services we need. If the state of North Carolina does not offer the type of incentive that these superior people need, private enterprise will. I have voted for more legislation toward these goals than any other gubernatorial candidate. I will continue to support all state employees to the maximum extent made available by revenues.

North Carolina's Future Begins In Our Public School System.

Our state's progress depends on education. If we want North Carolina to grow and flourish, we must begin in our public schools. I support kindergarten programs to give each student a fair start. Limited class sizes so each student can receive the attention he or she needs. Standardized literacy and math evaluations at each level to assure each student of the knowledge needed to progress. Ten month programs for the teachers. Everything within our state budget to insure the quality of our future citizens' education and training. I am strongly opposed to pornography in any form in our schools. There is no place for such bad influences among our developing children. I will appoint textbook commissioners who agree with my views and will recommend removal of all pornographic materials from our public school system. As Chairman of the Legislative Commission of Public and Private Schools, I have had the unique opportunity to see the important role that private schools play in our state. Private schools remove a great burden from the taxpayer. I shall always support private schools.

We Can Improve Higher Education Without Expanding.

The "baby boom" of the early '50's placed tremendous requirements upon our system of higher education. We met that challenge by expanding our facilities. Now that the number of students entering colleges has leveled off, we can concentrate on improving the quality of college facilities that already exist.

Our community colleges and technical institutes are filling a growing need. Not only do these schools train our policemen and firemen, they play an important part in our industrial development. Potential employers are impressed with our ability to train skilled labor in our local schools, for their manufacturing facilities. These training programs attract industry and assure high paying jobs. I fully support the outstanding services our community colleges and technical schools provide.

Rural Firemen and Rescue Workers Are Our Unsung Heroes.

Dedicated volunteers are protecting our lives and property throughout our state. Their service deserves our praise and recognition. I sponsored the $25,000 life insurance coverage for these individuals. And I propose extensive training to be offered in our community colleges and technical institutes.

Law and Order Must Mean Exactly That.

We have seen marked increases in crime across our nation. Our state must lead in halting this increase. I support capital punishment as a deterrent to crime. Since the Supreme Court has held our current capital punishment law unconstitutional, I propose a new, constitutional law to reinstate capital punishment in North Carolina. Our citizens deserve to be protected from those who would commit capital crimes. I will see that they get this protection. I also propose mandatory prison sentences for those convicted of armed robbery.

I believe in punishment first and rehabilitation second in our prison system. Too many criminals are not properly punished for their crimes. In fact, out of 13,000 prisoners in our prison system, only 1,200 are working on the roads. I propose that we decentralize our prison system once more so that prisoners can work on our roads and provide other services to repay their debt to North Carolina.

Gun control does not accomplish its objective or reduce crime. In fact, gun control takes guns out of the hands of honest people and leaves them in the hands of criminals. I will not support gun control in our state.

Public Service Deserves A Better Reputation.

In my years of involvement in community, church, state government, and on budget commissions, I've had a chance to see where our tax money is going. Promises made but not delivered. Programs passed for special interest groups. These inequities have given politics a bad reputation. I want to clean up the public servant's name.

Our state government's budget has tripled during the past 16 years. The time has come to halt this spiraling increase. I promise no new programs until present ones are evaluated. I make no appeals to special interest groups. We should not be judged on how much we spend but rather on how wisely we spend it.

I believe in a new morality for North Carolina government. A morality that evaluates the needs of all of the people. Establishes priorities according to these needs. And works within a stated budget to satisfy the maximum number of needs for the maximum number of people. If you agree that North Carolina's governor should follow these guides, help me in my pursuit of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

How Long Can North Carolina Stand If The Governorship Is Determined By Money and Power Politics?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: EVIE IN DES MOINES asked if a rooster had a reproductive organ, and you said, "Yes, but it's so small it's practically invisible. I suppose a hen would tell you it's adequate for her needs, but by human standards it's nothing to crow about."

You are wrong. A penis is lacking in most birds that copulate by cloacal contact. In chicks, a penis is present only as a vestige for a few days after hatching. However, some birds do have a copulatory organ: ostriches, emus, kiwis, cassowaries, tinamous, geese and ducks, for example.

J.F.L., Ph.D.: DEPT. OF BIOLOGY OXFORD COLLEGE, EMORY U., OXFORD, GA.

DEAR DR. L.: According to "Avian Physiology" by Paul D. Sturki (rhymes with turkey), the rooster has a phallus (which, according to Webster's Dictionary, is a penis). And although this sex organ is external only when mating, that certainly doesn't make it non-existent.

And thanks for the information on the other birds. It'll come in handy in case I'm ever on Hollywood Square.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married at a church wedding. I know it's customary to seat the guests of the bride on one side of the church and the guests of the groom on the other side.

My fiancé is black and I am white, and we don't want the church to be segregated—blacks on one side and whites on the other.

How can we seat the guests so this won't happen? ANTI-SEGREGATIONIST

DEAR ANTI: Ignore the traditional protocol and integrate the guests. How else?

DEAR ABBY: I see letters in your column from young mothers complaining because their mothers and mothers-in-law spoil the grandchildren and even fight to babysit with them. It should happen to me!

My children, ages 2, 5 and 7, are the victims of two liberated grandmothers. I would never dream of asking my mother to babysit because she made it clear from the start that she would not sit with my children—except in an emergency.

My husband's mother is so busy with her poodles, shopping for antiques and playing cards that she hasn't time for her grandchildren. On their birthdays and Christmas she sends them checks! (Abby, what do 2-, 5- and 7-year-olds know about checks?)

I have taken studio portraits of all my children and have sent them to both sets of grandparents, but I've yet to see any of them displayed.

I'm not asking for "help" with a problem, because there's really no solution, but it sure felt good to get this off my chest. Thanks, Abby.

FEELS BETTER IN CHICAGO

DEAR FEELS: In a few years your "liberated grandmothers" may regret what approaches estrangement from their grandchildren. Kids can be a pain in the neck in their early years, but a joy later on. And one day the "liberated" grandmothers may wish they had that kind of joy.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90000. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Uncommitted Delegates Keep Quiet

By DAVE RILEY Associated Press Writer KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Just what are they waiting for, all those uncommitted delegates who are keeping President Ford and Ronald Reagan guessing?

Well, they're wondering if they will get free meals, they're waiting for the candidates to ask their advice, and one is waiting for "voices" to tell him the right choice.

The uncommitted delegates to the Republican convention hold the key to who will win the party's presidential nomination, and while most are keeping mum on who they will ultimately back, many aren't so silent on what they want.

For some, like Bryan Wagner of New Orleans, all it takes to get his vote is to persuade him that a candidate is electable. That means, he says, that he is leaning toward Ford. "The polls show he is the stronger candidate," Wagner said.

And for some delegates, it is attention or personal interest from the candidate that fills the bill.

Patricia Hans of Beverly, Ill., is waiting for the telephone to ring before she makes up her mind. And President Ford has to be the caller.

"The governor, Gov. Reagan, talked with me and answered some questions, and now I would like the chance to put the same questions to the President," she said.

And Davison Osgood, Maine's lone uncommitted delegate, says he will make up his mind on Tuesday. He wants to hold a full-fledged news conference to tell the world who he is supporting. But first, he said, he would like Ford to tell him who he wants as a running mate.

Osgood has offered to meet with the candidates if they ask. For others, the decision may hinge on the little comforts that candidates can supply.

Calvin James, a delegate from Jewell, Kan., says he is holding out to find out how the Ford and Reagan camps operate. He says he has had 40 or 50 contacts with each side, but "without even the offer of a free meal."

But it isn't clear if the benefits come to those who end up on one side or the other.

The Texas delegation, for instance, is behind Reagan and also found itself behind other things in the Kemper arena. Delegates complained that the Ford operatives saw to it that they got "the worst seats in the house." So reports cropped up that 20 Reagan delegates were preparing to switch to Ford. The delegation chairman denied that there were any switches and there was no indication that any seats changed hands.

Some uncommitted delegates reach a decision without any move by a candidate. For Lois J. Kindt of Waynesboro, Va., the light flashed at a Sunday night cocktail party. She put down her drink, rushed upstairs to a telephone, and called the Ford campaign to tell them she had decided to back the President.

But for James C. Soper of Cicero, Ill., the light is still off. "I'm waiting until I hear a voice," he said, rolling his eyes upward. "I'll know when the voice comes to me."

Petition No Council Change

Citizens for Total Positive Government have approved the circulation of a petition urging a public referendum on the issue of extending the term of the City Council persons from two to four years.

This local civic organization resolved that the two-year terms help the City Council members stay in closer contact with the voters and also provide a better opportunity for minority representation.

The City Council in its August meeting resolved that the Council members would have four-year terms and that these terms would be staggered so that half the Council members would be elected every two years. The only way this resolution can be changed is by petition of 10 per cent of the Greenville City voters (1,205 petitioners) request a public referendum on the issue. The Citizens for Total Positive Government will be circulating copies of this petition in the coming weeks.

The organization also discussed the issue of Third Street School and passed a resolution requesting that the School Board submit plans to open the school by November.

The next meeting of the organization will be held at St. Gabriel's School Friday at 7:30 p.m. All interested citizens are invited to attend.

Mondale: Seek Return To Work

By CHARLES WOLFE Associated Press Writer BLACK MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—Citing unemployment and inflation as the top issues of 1976, Democratic vice presidential nominee Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., Sunday promised the nation would return to work under a Jimmy Carter administration.

Speaking to delegates of the United Auto Workers Region Eight conference here, Mondale attacked the economic policies of the Nixon and Ford administrations, accusing them of trying to fight inflation with "massive and deliberate unemployment, a strategy that has not worked and cannot work."

Some 800 UAW delegates and wives, many waving "Grits and Frits" signs, crowded into the tiny, sweltering meeting hall of the Blue Ridge Assembly here, singing union songs and rendering thunderous applause to Mondale and UAW President Leonard Woodcock.

"I'm proud we stood behind Sen. Mondale," Woodcock said, "a man who contributed with Gov. Carter what the New York Times called "the strongest ticket the Democrats could have fielded."

Mondale stressed the need for party unity, urging the delegates to "argue the case" at home for a Democratic victory and to help avoid party splits, such as those in 1968 and 1972.

"We have no radical schemes. We want a government that tells the truth and obeys the law," he said, in one of several oblique references to Watergate.

Mondale said major objectives, in addition to alleviating unemployment and inflation, were lower interest rates, easier credit, national health insurance, tax reform and "an open foreign policy."

Mondale's jibes at the apparent disarray of the Republicans brought the loudest cheers of the meeting.

"Reagan has picked a vice president he might dump if nominated and Ford has dumped a vice president he might pick if nominated," he said.

"But the Republicans have done much for us," Mondale continued. "They were the first to give us two presidents and three vice presidents in two years without an election."

Following his 25-minute speech, Mondale hurried through a drizzling rain to his waiting motorcade and was whisked away to the Asheville, N.C., airport.

Cannon said police and SBI agents found about three pounds of marijuana, valued at about $450, in the dwelling. No one was at home at the time of the search, the chief noted.

Plunkett In Homecoming

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

Jim Plunkett's homecoming was successful, but not spectacular.

And it was overshadowed by a stingy defense that frustrated the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday as San Francisco remained unbeaten in National Football League exhibition play with a 21-13 triumph.

Plunkett, who won the Heisman Trophy as a collegian at Stanford University, was making his debut at home with the 49ers. He directed a key touchdown drive in the final minutes, but completed only 10 of 21 passes for 67 yards.

"I'm just not real sharp yet," said Plunkett, who played the whole game after sitting out last week's 49er victory over Denver. "We won, but we are going to have to control the ball more."

Coach Monte Clark, unbeaten after three games as the new 49ers head coach, didn't mind Plunkett's lack of success. His defensive unit sacked Chiefs quarterbacks Mike Livingston and Mike Nott several times for losses totalling 99 yards, and held the offense to a paltry 2.1 yards gained per play.

Running backs Del Williams, Sammy Johnson and rookie Paul Hofer did the scoring for the 49ers, all on the ground. The runs were part of a 268-yard rushing performance by the winners.

The Green Bay Packers used Chester Marcol's toe to defeat the New England Patriots 16-14 in Sunday's other exhibition game.

Saturday, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were led by former 49er quarterback Steve Spurrier in recording their first NFL victory, a 17-3 decision over the winless Atlanta Falcons.

In other Saturday games, the New York Giants pounded Houston 30-14, Los Angeles edged Seattle 16-13, Denver knocked off Dallas 13-9, Chicago upended Baltimore 24-14, Pittsburgh overpowered Washington 27-7, Cincinnati nipped Detroit 26-24 and Miami topped Philadelphia 24-16.

Friday, Oakland routed the

New York Jets 41-17 and New Orleans downed Buffalo, 21-14.

In today's game in Tokyo, the first game ever played outside the North American continent, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Diego Chargers 20-10 in an exhibition that attracted 38,000 fans.

Quarterback Jim Hart hit wide receiver Ike Harris on a 52-yard touchdown pass that broke a third-period tie and powered the Cards to victory and hand the Chargers their first preseason loss in three games. St. Louis is also 2-1.

The Cards also got a pair of Jim Bakken field goals and a 15-yard Bill Donkers-to-Pat Tilley TD pass. San Diego scored on Dan Fouts' 23-year pass to McDonald Wright and Sergio Albert's field goal.

Minnesota plays at Cleveland tonight.

The Chiefs, who have scored one touchdown from scrimmage in three games, threatened to overtake the 49ers in the second half when Larry Brunson returned a kickoff 99 yards to score and Jan Stenerud kicked his second field goal of the day to cut San Francisco's lead to 14-13.

But Hofer, a rookie running back from Mississippi, scored on a 47-yard run with two minutes left to put the game out of the Chiefs' reach.

Marcol, who missed all but the opening game last season because of a leg injury, booted field goals of 37, 36 and 32 yards in the first half to show Coach Bart Starr that he doesn't have to worry about that phase of the game as Green Bay prepares for the upcoming season.

Spurrier, selected by the Buccaneers in the expansion draft, ran for one touchdown on a dive from the one and his passing sparked a 70-yard drive, capped by Essex Johnson's one-yard touchdown run.

Golfers Differ On Making Up Rained Out Rounds

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
BETHESDA, Md. (AP) —

Pro golfers raised a clamor for a firm rain policy as the 58th PGA Championship went into a fifth-day overtime today with former Masters champion Charles Coody holding a two-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus and the unsung golfing optometrist, Dr. Gil Morgan.

"I have always thought that once a guy hits a shot in a tournament, that shot should count no matter what the circumstances," insisted the 39-year-old Coody, whose two-day, rain-interrupted 67 for the third round put him in command position with a 207 — three under par.

"I always have felt that if there was just one man left on the course the entire round should be replayed," argued Arnold Palmer. "That is the purist's view, but I have to admit that television and other things have to be taken into account."

"I am not arguing either way," said Tom Weiskopf. "All I am saying is that we should have a firm policy. We shouldn't have to sit around and sweat it. There shouldn't be arbitrary decisions varying with each tournament."

It is an argument that is bound to continue to boil — among golf officials, television brass and spectators as well as players — long after the $45,000 first prize in this tournament has been decided.

Nobody knows when that might be. More thundershowers were forecast today, with the first teoff scheduled at 9:30 a.m., EDT, and the leaders were closely bunched enough to make an 18-hole playoff appear likely.

Coody was heading for the 14th tee when a crackling thunderstorm, with winds and drenching rain, struck the Congressional Country Club course late Saturday. He was one of the 24 leaders who had to get up at daybreak Saturday to complete the third round, which was washed out by a similar cloudburst.

Blalock Wins First In Sudden Death Playoff

By ALAN ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) —

Oglebay Park's Speidel golf course is one of the tougher stops for the nation's top lady pros golfers and this year the weather made the 6,400-yard par 72 course even tougher. But the pros didn't seem to mind it.

Jane Blalock came three shots off the pace Sunday to deadlock an equally fast-closing Pat Bradley and then win on the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

An early-morning downpour drenched the course.

"This course is one of the most competitive we play on all year," Miss Blalock said after she was presented with her $7,000 check. "The rain made the course play longer than usual but it made it play true."

Miss Blalock's winning one-over par total of 217 was the highest of the tournament's three-year history. Carole Jo Skala, the 1974 winner, and 1975 champion Susie McAllister posted winning totals of even-par 216.

Miss Blalock and Miss Bradley rallied during Sunday's rain-and-fog-plagued round to produce the playoff. Miss Blalock was three shots off the second-round pace of coleaders Laura Baugh and Sandra Post.

Miss Bradley was even further back, coming from six shots back with the only sub-par round of the day, a two-under 70.

The one-hole playoff seemingly was headed for another hole after Miss Blalock — whose tricky five-foot birdie putt on 18 forced the tie — had scored a routine par on the par-4, 365-yard first hole. And Miss Bradley was faced with only a three-foot tap-in for her par.

But the ball mysteriously rolled around the cup and trickled out, leaving Miss Bradley and most of the large gallery standing surprised and Miss Blalock a stunned victor.

"I had my glove on and was ready to go the next hole," Miss Blalock said. "She (Miss Bradley) hit the putt good and there was no way I thought it would miss."

Tanner Is Still Dreaming

By HERSHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

Chuck Tanner has this recurring dream. Ten days ago it seemed like an impossible dream, but Tanner still claims that anything is possible.

"It's my dream to be in a World Series and I still think we're gonna do it," Oakland's optimistic manager insisted Sunday after his charging A's chipped away at a six-run deficit and scored two runs with two out in the ninth inning to nip the Boston Red Sox 8-7 for their ninth consecutive triumph.

"It was our biggest win of the season," Tanner said as the second-place A's remained seven games behind the Kansas City Royals in the American League West. Ten days ago they were 12 back and fading.

The Royals, meanwhile, whipped the Detroit Tigers 7-3. In the East Division, the front-running New York Yankees blew a four-run lead and had their five-game winning streak clipped by the Minnesota Twins 9-5. The Baltimore Orioles climbed within 9½ games of New York with a 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Elsewhere, the Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from the Texas Rangers 6-4, 3-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers downed the California Angels 5-3.

The A's, bidding for their sixth straight West Division crown, have become specialists in last-gasp impossible dreams. Sunday's ninth-inning rally marked the 16th time they have won a game in their last time at bat.

"I didn't think we had much chance when it was 6-0," said John Baylor, whose pop fly double drove in the winning run.

Bill North's two-out, two-strike double ignited the winning rally.

North scored the tying run on a single by Bert Campaneris, who raced home with the winner when Baylor's double eluded a desperate dive by Boston center fielder Fred Lynn.

Home runs by Dwight Evans and Lynn powered the Red Sox to a 6-0 lead after three innings and Rick Wise held the A's defense until the fifth, when Joe Judge singled and Sal Bando hit his 23rd home run to start the A's on the road back. Oakland added two runs in the sixth and two more in the eighth.

Royals 7, Tigers 3

Mos Otis clouted a two-run homer and Frank White drove in two runs with a pair of singles as Andy Hassler notched his second consecutive victory following a near-record 18-game losing streak. The Royals battered Dave Roberts for all their runs and 12 hits and nailed down the victory with three runs in the sixth as Buck Martinez and Fred Patek doubled and White singled, each knocking in a run.

Twins 9, Yankees 8

Rod Carew's RBI single capped a three-run eighth-inning rally after Roy Smalley tied the score with a two-out, two-run single off relief ace Sparky Lyle. The Twins, who trailed 8-4 after a five-run New York fifth highlighted by Chris Chambliss' three-run homer, began their comeback with a pair of runs in the seventh on a single by Smalley, a triple by Carew and a wild pitch.

Orioles 3, White Sox 0

Wayne Garland notched his 14th victory with a six-hitter while Baltimore scored all its runs via the long ball — Bobby Grich's solo homer in the first inning and Lee May's two-run shot in the third.

Indians 6-3, Rangers 4-0

Jim Bibby allowed only an infield single through seven innings and finished with a four-hit shutout in the nightcap for his first complete game in almost a year. In the opener, Larvell Blanks and John Lowenstein drove in two runs apiece for Cleveland, offsetting Texas homers by Toby Harrah and Jeff Burroughs.

Rick Manning's leadoff double in the seventh inning ended a no-hit bid by Texas, Steve Hargan in the second game and moments later Buddy Bell delivered a two-run single.

Brewers 5, Angels 3

Bill Travers posted his 14th victory with help from Bill Castro, and Mike Hegan homered for Milwaukee. Darrell Porter doubled home a Milwaukee run in the first inning, Hegan homered in the fourth, Robin Yount singled, stole second and scored on Don Money's single in the sixth and Milwaukee made it 4-0 in the seventh on an error.

If Furman University can get through its opening game without total loss of face, the Paladins just might be in a position to make a run for the Southern Conference title.

The Paladins open the season in Raleigh on September 4, facing N. C. State University. For Furman, which finished with a 5-5-1 record last year, it has to be their toughest game of the season.

"We really could have a better team this year," Coach Art Baker says, "but with teams like State and Southwest Louisiana on the schedule, our record may not reflect it."

Baker does have a wealth of experienced players back for his fourth year at the Furman helm. There are 25 seniors, his first recruits, to lead the way. That's the largest senior class in his four seasons.

During the spring, 80 players showed up for drills, more than any other year, and there'll be nearly 100 by the time the incoming freshmen show up.

Nineteen starters are among the 22 from last year's team that lost three of those five by a total of 13 points. The worst defeat was by a total of 12.

The entire offensive backfield is back, with David Whitehurst at quarterback, speedster Larry Robinson at tailback, and Ike Simpson at fullback. The linebackers return intact, along with the defensive line.

Actually, only one starter off the defense, ranked best in the league, is gone.

And overall, Furman has its best depth during the Baker era.

That depth, Baker said, helped the team to its best spring ever. "Injuries didn't restrict us; in past years, we might have had to cancel scrimmages due to injuries."

Ten night games are listed this season for San Diego State. The only day game is at Bowling Green, Ohio.

Opener Will Give Paladins Tough Test

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— "We beat an established team," defensive end Pat Toomay said with satisfaction over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' first victory. "But we can't really enjoy it that much. Miami will be the true test."

The Bucs play their first home National Football League exhibition game in Tampa Stadium next Saturday night against their intrastate rivals, the Miami Dolphins.

But the 17-3 victory over the winless Atlanta Falcons in the Gator Bowl Saturday night was one of the first plus marks in the Tampa Bay expansion team's record book.

"We're all pretty relieved," said wide receiver Johnny McKay, who had no glory role in the game.

That belonged chiefly to the offensive line, 10-year veteran quarterback Steve Spurrier and defensive ends Toomay and Council Rudolph.

Spurrier played down his contribution of plunging a yard for the first touchdown and driving the Bucs 70 yards for another, scored by Essex Johnson from one yard. He yielded the quarterback reins to Parnell Dickinson in the fourth quarter.

"We played pretty conservatively," Spurrier said. "Our offensive line whipped Atlanta's defensive line and the guys know we can win now."

Coach John McKay, with all his experience in the college ranks, was a little puzzled, but quite pleased.

juries, but we didn't wish that because of the depth."

Perhaps one of the brightest notes of the fall is that Robinson may not be the starting tailback. That's right—a bright note.

The reason is that Harry King pushed Robinson from the top spot during the spring, and that brings smiles to Baker's staff. "King has good speed and great hands," Baker said. "Despite the fact that Robinson is our leading career rusher (2,429 yards), he'll have to earn his spot back."

Another battle is going on at fullback, where Simpson was also replaced during the spring by Kent Woerner.

Add to that Whitehurst's experience and ability, and the Paladins may have a very potent backfield.

In the offensive line, two starters were lost, at center and guard. Jeff Holcomb, a tackle, anchors the line, while Mike Gibbs returns at the other tackle position. Tim Kennedy, winner of the team's Best Blocker Award, returns at one guard spot, while Ken Cadle, a converted tackle, and John Baker, will battle for the other. John Graham heads a lengthy list of candidates for the center position.

Tommy Southard is already established as one of the top flankers in the conference, catching 24 passes last year. He's also an excellent blocker. Brette Simmons returns at tight end, and Angus Poole is back at the split end position, giving

Furman plenty of experience and talent in the receiving game.

Tony Cox and Bobby Church return at defensive tackles, with Frank Moses back at the middle guard. Dolphus Carter and Kirby Pack flank the line as the whole unit returns from last year's top ranked unit.

Seniors Larry Anderson and Steve Wilson are back to handle the linebacking, with plenty of experience and strength.

While the secondary is sure he has the right combination. Strong point is Mark Gordon, the left cornerback, who is the sixth-leading pass interceptor among returning players across the nation. Strong safety Tommy Marshall is another dependable player. Rick Perry and Russell Gambrell, both sometime starters are back at free safety, with the lone defensive opening at right cornerback. Steve Patton and Mark Bowers are top candidates for the job, but Perry might end up with it.

Furman's kicking game is also fairly solid, with Andy Goss handling the placements and Bill Freeman the punting.

"The potential is there for us to have an outstanding season," Baker said. If Furman can overcome its injury problems of the past, and convert those close losses into victories, it could become a banner year for the Paladins.

Koosman Cools Hot Reds With Five-Hitter

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Jerry Koosman is starting to feel like Tom Seaver. In fact, he's starting to look like him.

A second fiddle to the three-time Cy Young winner over the years, the veteran left-hander has become the exclamation point of the New York Mets' pitching staff this season.

"Koosman is, I think, the best left-hander in the National League," said New York Manager Joe Frazier after the southpaw shut out the Cincinnati Reds 1-0 on five hits Sunday. "He is really tough right now. He has got it all together. He just wants the ball and wants to pitch. He said he could have gone another three innings."

Koosman, an exuberant 33-year-old who never has reached the prestigious 20-victory circle, is well on his way toward it this year.

Koosman added this postscript after improving his record to 15-7 and his earned run average to 3.02: "I never felt better. I was in command all the way."

In the other National League games, the San Francisco Giants whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 9-5; the San Diego Padres stopped the Montreal Expos 6-1; the Atlanta Braves edged the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and the Pittsburgh Pirates took a doubleheader from the Houston Astros, 8-6 and 3-0.

Koosman struck out 11 and raised his season total to 138 while recording his second shutout of the year. The southpaw, winning his fourth straight game, has lost only once in his last 10 decisions.

Gary Nolan, 10-8, was the losing pitcher for the Reds, who were beaten for only the 11th time in their last 41 games. New York has won nine of its last 12 games and finished the season with a 6-6 record against Cincinnati.

Phil Niekro hurled a six-hitter and knocked in a run in the second inning as Atlanta defeated St. Louis. Dave May and Rob Belloir opened the Braves' second with consecutive singles before Vic Correll walked, loading the bases with nobody out. Niekro 13-8, drilled a sacrifice fly to center, and moments later Belloir scored on a squeeze bunt single by Darrel Chaney.

Ron Cey followed with a run-scoring single before Bonham balked, allowing Garvey to score and putting Cey on second. Bill Russell followed with a run-scoring single.

Pirates 8-3, Astros 6-0

Ed Kirkpatrick's two-run double keyed a decisive four-run rally in the ninth and reliever Kent Tekulve put down a Houston uprising in the bottom half of the inning as Pittsburgh whipped the Astros in the first game of their doubleheader. The Pirates won the second game behind Jerry Reuss' six-hitter.

Niekro Planning To Stay A While

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP)— Knuckleballer Phil Niekro, a 37-year-old veteran, isn't even thinking about retirement.

"Right now, in the stretch of the year, I'm pitching about as well as I've ever pitched," Niekro said Sunday after hurling a six-hitter to give the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I haven't thought about quitting or retiring," he said. "Come back in seven or eight more years and maybe I'll have an answer. I still feel fortunate that I can still put on a major league uniform every day. A lot of people would like to have my job."

Few, however, like the job of hitting against his fluttering pitches when Niekro is sharp, as he was Sunday, fanning eight Card batters.

Niekro said that Manager Dave Bristol "keeps reminding me that nobody likes to hit a knuckleball. So I just threw it most of the game. I didn't throw very many fastballs at all."

Bristol said his hand was cramped from signalling knuckleball so much during the game.

Niekro also drove in one of the Atlanta runs with a sacrifice fly in the second inning, giving him seven RBI in his last seven games.

The other second inning tally came when Rob Belloir scored on Darrel Chaney's suicide squeeze bunt single. Those runs ended a 25-inning scoreless string for Atlanta.

The deciding run came in the eighth when Rod Gilbreath tripled and scored on Tom Paciorek's sacrifice fly.

St. Louis scored in the first on Hector Cruz's sacrifice fly and got its other run in the ninth when Joe Ferguson smacked his ninth home run of the year.

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)—While Republicans fight over their presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter is playing the statesman, bringing in experts on energy, international economics, education, welfare and health. Carter, the Democratic nominee, has said he will keep silent about any and all developments at the GOP convention in Kansas City, at least until it is over. He put his last complaints about Republican rule on the record Saturday night in Charleston, W. Va., when he told a Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner of 3,000 Democrats that the Ford administration governs by veto and by using recessions and unemployment to fight inflation.

secretary, telephoned the Rev. Bruce Edwards, the church's pastor, and Clarence Dodson, the Sunday School teacher, to express the opinion that reporters, who also are women, should not be placed at a professional disadvantage because of their sex.

Both Edwards and Dodson said the controversy arose from their attempts to deal with the thousands of tourists who have arrived in Plains since Carter won the nomination.

"We're not antiwomen, said Edwards. "We're just trying to find something that works."

The new rule is that women assigned to the small "pool" that covers Carter's activities will be admitted to Sunday School. Other women will not.

Award Money For Equipment

The North Carolina Office of Emergency Medical Services has awarded the Region Q Emergency Medical Services Council $19,020 to upgrade equipment on ambulances and rescue squad vehicles in the five-county area which includes Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

According to Cay Cross of Greenville, area OEMS supervisor, the grant will assist the region in securing equipment for prehospital care providers as required by rules and regulations set forth by the Medical Care Commission.

The Region Q or Mid-East EMS Council applied for the funds several months ago, according to Terry Barber of Williamston, chairman of the EMS Council.

Today's briefing was to spotlight experts on social security, welfare reform, health, urban and rural life and education.

In Plains on Sunday Carter sat in his usual pew at the town's Baptist church, spent time with his family and, through an aide, settled the question of whether women journalists can attend the all-male Bible class he sometimes teaches.

cone and began belching foul gas, steam, ash, stones and mud. The activity intensified Thursday, and 30,000 persons living nearest were ordered to leave. Then on Sunday the team of about 12 volcanologists keeping a close watch on the situation reported the presence in the vapor of ash from much deeper in the earth indicated an eruption was imminent.

Evacuation of the rest of the danger zone was ordered.

An observer who flew over the volcano Sunday reported: "I could see white smoke coming up from at least five different places, and even from the plane the smell of sulphur was very strong."

Eruption May Be Days Off

By NAT CARNES

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The predicted big eruption of the Soufriere volcano may not occur for several days, a French scientist monitoring the volcano reported early today after thousands were evacuated from the danger zone.

The scientist, Charles Brousse of the University of Paris, said the warning Sunday that the blowoff was expected in 10 to 12 hours was given to insure that all 72,000 persons left the area around the 4,813-foot peak.

Broadcasting from a ship off the coast, Brousse warned that the eruption was "now an inexorable process; we have gone past the point of no return."

He predicted that it would have at least the force of the 1902 eruption of Mt. Pelee, on Martinique, which killed more than 30,000 people and destroyed the town of St. Pierre.

"However, we have cleared an area of sufficient size so that the eruption could be completely without loss of life," he said.

La Soufriere, French for the sulphur mine, last erupted in 1956, but there was no lava flow and no one was injured.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ1076 ♠Q52 ♠5 ♠AK6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Dbles. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—We are not in the habit of overruling partner's penalty doubles of opposing two-level contracts, but at this vulnerability, this is clearly a case where we should. Since a bid of two spades would sound as if you were running from the double because of weakness, we suggest you jump to three spades to show that you think you will do better in game than by taking the penalty, and that you have an independently powerful suit (shortness in spades may have been one of the reasons for partner's double). If partner has an exceptionally strong hand, you might even have a slam.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ ♠93 ♠872 ♠QJ852
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. Don't let your excellent support for partner's first bid suit lead you into a jump preference of three spades. You have a near minimum for your two-over-one response, and you already counted your spade honors in calculating your first bid.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7 ♠Q65 ♠A1073 ♠AQ854
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three diamonds. Partner has gone out the wrong way to describe a good hand with three-card club support and a singleton diamond. If he has the right cards, there could be good play for slam, and by cue-bidding the ace of diamonds, you alert him to the possibilities. You can still bid three no trump at your next turn over his probable major-suit rebid, leaving the next move to him.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J1094 ♠7 ♠Q852 ♠A1064
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dbles. 3 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. This is not as clear-cut as it may seem. Partner must have a respectable hand and his values are positioned over the strong hand. Thus, there is every possibility that we may be able to make a part-score in one of the minors. However, it really doesn't pay in the long run to compete in the minors without a known fit; but if our minor two-suiter were a major two-suiter, we would certainly recommend competitive action.

A.—Bid three spades. East's raise to three hearts was pre-emptive—an attempt to shut you out of the bidding. He would almost certainly achieve his goal if you timidly chose to pass now. Since partner's takeout double of one heart guarantees spades, you could easily have a game for your hand revalued to 10 points in support of spades. Indeed, we would not fault you if you jumped to four spades, or cue-bid four hearts to get partner to choose a suit.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ107642 ♠J652 ♠95
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. It is possible, even probable, that the hand will play better in spades, but there is no way that you can get to play that strain at a reasonable level if you want to act now. Partner would interpret any immediate bid in spades as a cue-bid, and by the time you convinced him otherwise it could be an expensive proposition.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ5 ♠QJ8752 ♠6 ♠Q32
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid two hearts. Since you passed at your first turn, partner cannot expect you to hold more than this. You could reopen with one heart on a raker weaker hand, or by maintaining with a jump bid, you are able to show that you have a near opening bid with a decent suit.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK5 ♠J10762 ♠A952 ♠K
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid two diamonds. Even though partner did nothing more than overall, you should not ignore the slam possibilities. A jump to four hearts does not do justice to your holding. No matter what action partner takes after the cue-bid, you should jump in hearts at your next turn. If you bid only three hearts initially, you flunked badly—that isn't even forcing.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J65 ♠QJ874 ♠K9752
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 NT Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. This is not as clear-cut as it may seem. Partner must have a respectable hand and his values are positioned over the strong hand. Thus, there is every possibility that we may be able to make a part-score in one of the minors. However, it really doesn't pay in the long run to compete in the minors without a known fit; but if our minor two-suiter were a major two-suiter, we would certainly recommend competitive action.

Nabors Is Still 'Gomer'

By GREG MCGARRY
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After 15 years, people still approach Jim Nabors on the street with a "Hey, Gomer!"

And he says it doesn't upset him one bit to still be identified as the bumbling gas station attendant he played on the old Andy Griffith television show.

"No, it doesn't bother me at all," Nabors said in an interview here. "I'm very proud of it as a matter of fact. He was such a nice guy to play that it makes you feel good."

"I'll tell you a story," the affable star continued. "Some guy walked up to me in Kansas City once. He was a fan; he meant well. Well, he picked me right up and held me up in the air — and he was a big old guy — and he said, 'Boy, we watch you all the time on TV. You sure are a stupid son of a . . .'"

"And I just said, 'Why, thank you sir,'" recalled Nabors, flashing a Gomer smile.

That's Jim Nabors, polite and friendly just like Gomer. But that's where the similarity stops.

Not that Nabors doesn't have a bit of hillbilly twang. But he is bright and witty. He has established himself in show business with appearances in Las Vegas and on television. He has recorded more than 20 record albums, his baritone voice earning him five gold records.

He is currently on a tour of summer theaters and will resume TV guest spots in the fall, including appearances on the Carol Burnett Show, as well as Sonny and Cher and Tony Orlando and Dawn shows.

He was host of two recent Dinah Shore shows. It went so well, he said, that 20th Century Fox is producing his own daytime variety pilot.

A long way, indeed, from Sylacauga, Ala., a small town where Nabors kept secret his boyhood dream of becoming a star.

"If you told anybody you were going to be in show business they'd run you out of town," he said half seriously. "Especially me. I was 6-foot-2 and weighed only 126 pounds. I was really skinny and it was just a far-fetched fantasy."

"It was always in my mind," he continued. "But I wouldn't tell anybody, not even my family."

So Nabors went to the University of Alabama and earned a bachelor's degree in business. But then he began dabbling in theater.

"Then various people started encouraging me to do more," he said. "I didn't think it would be realistic to go into show business because the competition is so fierce."

But he got up enough nerve to do some comedy at the Horn, a Los Angeles nightclub that has launched numerous singers and comics.

"I didn't think I had a very good voice back then," he recalled. "Heck, Jack Jones was the bar boy and there was a little Mexican girl singing there. Her name was Vicki Carr. So the only thing I did was talk like this." He reverts to Gomer.

Nabors was spotted by comedian Bill Dana, who asked him to audition for the Steve Allen television show. He made it and after being spotted by Andy Griffith, got the part of Gomer Pyle.

Republicans Take Over TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Well, that convention stuff starts again tonight. This time, it's the GOP congregation, meeting in Kansas City to nominate either President Ford or Ronald Reagan for president.

As with July's Democratic assembly in New York, CBS' Walter Cronkite, NBC's John Chancellor and David Brinkley, and ABC's Harry Reasoner and Howard K. Smith will materialize to mull matters for us multitudes.

As in July, CBS and NBC will show it live, gavel-to-gavel, starting at 7:30 p.m. EST tonight. ABC offers abbreviated taped and live coverage, plus entertainment, as has been its convention coverage since 1968. ABC's look at the start of the Republican proceedings is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. EST. But its schedule also calls for 2½ hours of baseball, starting at 7:30 p.m., then a live and taped view of the opening GOP ceremonies back in Kansas City.

Tuesday's prime-time lineup for ABC calls for a "Happy Days" return and a "Captain and Tennille" special to precede the network's convention show at 9:30 p.m.

Wednesday night it'll start with two, yes, two episodes of a situation comedy, "Viva Valdez," then pick up the GOP at 9 a.m.

On Thursday, closing night, ABC's schedule calls for a repeat of "Welcome Back Kotter," followed by a summer sitcom called "What's Happening," followed by what's happening in Kansas City.

ABC will also provide quick GOP recaps between the entertainments and says it'll stop the entertainments altogether whenever it feels a breaking convention story requires live television coverage.

abbreviated convention coverage and entertainment an alternative form of viewing for a nation offered gavel-to-gavel convention coverage by the two other networks.

The mixture worked well during the week of the extraordinarily dull Democratic convention. Then, boosted by an audience of nearly 18.9 million homes watching its July 13 All-Star baseball coverage, ABC emerged No. 1 in the week's average ratings for nightly shows.

No such All-Star aid is afoot on this go-around. And it'll be interesting to see if more viewers are attracted to the CBS-NBC coverage of the Ford-Reagan battle than ABC's mixed bag of goodies.

Over 1,000 Fiddling

GALAX, Va. (AP) — By comparison, the crowd was small. But the population of this Southwest Virginia city still increased five-fold over the weekend as 30,000 spectators and 1,000 musicians attended the 41st annual Old Fiddlers Convention.

Just last weekend, Galax played host to 100,000 people attending the Stompin'-76 bluegrass-rock music festival.

People who attended the Stompin'-76 festival left behind a mountain of debris and unsettled property damage claims. But no such problems were reported with the Old Fiddlers Convention, which began Thursday night and ran through Saturday.

As a precaution, Carroll County Circuit Court Judge Jack M. Matthews ordered 80 state and county policemen to help the 21-member Galax police force and private guards patrol the festival.

A police spokesman said there were about 70 convention-related arrests, mostly on charges of public intoxication, drug possession, disorderly conduct and trespassing.

A spokesman at Twin Counties Hospital here said about a dozen convention spectators were treated at the emergency room by Saturday morning.

One possible drug overdose on several injuries from an auto accident near the festival grounds were reported, as well as cuts, bruises and twisted ankles.

Billed as the oldest and largest event of its kind, the convention draws most of its competitors from Virginia and North Carolina, although this year's event attracted musicians from as far away as Japan, Sweden and Britain.

Little Trying To Break With Past

She's even changed the spelling of her first name—from Joan—to help her do it.

The past she is trying to forget is not so pleasant—although Miss Little is hoping the public won't remember it like that.

She said at a recent interview at the N.C. Correctional Center for Women that she hopes she won't be remembered as the young Chocowinity woman who was charged with the slaying of Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood. Instead, she says she wants "to be remembered as a human being that breathes" like other people.

Miss Little said that she wishes her jailer had not died.

If there was any possible way to turn it around, Mr. Alligood would still be alive," she said. "There wasn't any intent on my part to take somebody's life. It's hard to deal with people saying it was done intentionally."

Her story goes like this: early last year, Miss Little was being held in the Beaufort County Jail pending appeal of a seven to 10-year sentence for breaking into mobile homes. She killed jailer Alligood with repeated blows from an icepick, escaped from the jail, and turned herself in several days later.

Her trial last summer was not an easy one. It was well-publicized and she had to testify that she was defending herself from a sexual assault when she struck Alligood. She told the jury that sexual favors had been demanded of her before by Alligood.

She was acquitted. Now, she is serving the original breaking and entering sentence.

Miss Little wears an engagement ring on her left hand—given to her the last week of the murder trial by her fiancé, Paul Little. He is a Marine who lives in Washington, D.C. and who coincidentally has the same surname as Miss Little.

They are still engaged, Miss Little says, but she is not sure she wants to get married soon.

"I'm still engaged to Paul," she said, turning the ring on her finger. "But I'm not sure I'm ready to get married. We'll have to see when I get out."

Miss Little said her experiences the past two years have "given me a direction. Before I had no future to look forward to. I lived each day to the other. What I do from now on out will speak for what kind of person I am. Everybody is entitled to their opinion. But I'm not judging them and I don't want them to judge me."

Her attorney, Jerry Paul noted that, "Joanne has matured a lot since she's been in prison. She's able to deal with reality."

Her future, as she sees it, will include writing an autobiography and go to school, and she hopes that she will be paroled soon. She has already been accepted at Shaw University in Raleigh, where she wants to study business education.

Her case comes up for parole consideration next month.

Five years from now, "I want to have my college degree and be teaching," she said. "And I want to have some land and a house."

Miss Little plans to pay for school with the royalties she will receive from a Universal Studios movie to be made about her life.

She received a $25,000 down payment and will get a percentage of the movie's profits. Filming is scheduled to begin late this year.

Miss Little has earned a high school equivalency degree while in prison. She works in the sewing room, sings in the choir and takes part in Yokefellow, a prison ministry program, and Toastmasters, a club that teaches inmates public speaking.

"When I get out, I'd like to speak to high school students. I think young people need something they can relate to," she said. "I would tell them not to be ashamed of what they've done—and not feel I was being Joan of Arc."

"I'm not ashamed of it. I've done a lot wrong. Everyone's entitled to some mistakes but you have to learn from it. Step forward. That's what I intend to do."

Paper May Give Up

RALEIGH (AP) — Unless a financial backer can be found soon, the Carolina Financial Times will permanently cease publication after barely clinging to life for eight years, its publishers say.

The last edition of the weekly newspaper came out Aug. 2. Twenty seven North Carolina newspapers carried the Times as a supplement.

"We're looking for a financial partner. If we can get on in three or four weeks we'll be all right. If not, we'll have to let it go," said William B. Brown, co-publisher of the Times.

Started in 1968 by David Ethridge, a former Chapel Hill alderman, the newspaper was sold last year to Brown and Sherman Kennedy. It had 3,000 subscribers.

Brown and Kennedy decided in January to expand readership by giving copies to newspaper for them to distribute with their own papers. It was free and 27 papers took advantage of the offer, upping the Times' circulation to about 200,000.

Despite the large number of readers, advertising revenues did not increase, causing the eventual suspension of publication.

"We were right up to the starting line in terms of quality, leadership and acceptance by the host papers," Brown said.

Records indicate more tornadoes hit Texas than any other state, mainly because of its size, but it ranks ninth in terms of tornadoes per 10,000 square miles, an average of 3.6 per year.

In No Condition To Fill Order

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — When a customer called a pizza parlor to order pizza, the parlor's manager was in no condition to fill the order. He was tied up — literally.

Robert Dunham told police that a masked man, carrying a small revolver and rope, entered the parlor, tied him to a chair and left with $285 of the parlor's money.

Dunham managed to move the chair near the phone, wait for it to ring and ask the caller to call the police.

Good Players Told To Leave

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada casino operators like customers who trust to Lady Luck when playing blackjack. The player who depends on skill and wins might just be told to beat it.

Depending on luck alone, the blackjack player is likely to lose. Most clubs even welcome "system" players — either because the system doesn't work or the player hasn't learned it. But among the many "systems" there, apparently are some which do work — providing the player is willing to put in long hours learning them. One of these systems is card counting.

Gambler claiming to be good card counters complain they are usually invited to play anything but blackjack, or are simply told to get out once they're spotted.

Casino spokesmen argue that the card counters may not be cheating, in the usual sense of the word, but are altering the odds in blackjack so that the casino's advantage is lost.

Lawsuits are piling up in various courts as self-proclaimed card counters try to force the casinos to let them play blackjack — or hand over money for damages allegedly sustained when they are barred from the tables.

Basically, card counting is keeping track of pastboards dealt in a blackjack game, where the object is to get 21, but no more.

If most of the 52 cards in the deck have been played and the card counter realizes there's a fistful of high-value cards left which could give him 21 or close to it, he will increase his bets because the odds of winning are improved.

It's not easy to count. Casino dealers often reshuffle the deck long before all cards are used — and before the card counter can figure out what's left in the deck.

Many clubs use more than one deck — sometimes up to six decks stacked in the "shoe," a box from which cards are dealt to players.

Kenneth Uston of San Francisco says he, and up to 100 other card counters, can alter the average 5 per cent advantage the casino holds over blackjack players to a point where the counter holds as much as a 2 per cent advantage.

Uston, who holds a master's degree in business from Yale University and was a Pacific Stock Exchange executive before turning to gambling, is the most visible of the counters because of a series of lawsuits he has filed against major Las Vegas casinos.

Uston, 40, won't say how much money he makes but claims it's enough to provide him "the most enjoyable life I could ever imagine."

Robbins Cahill, director of the Nevada Resort Association, says most casinos "don't really like the card counters, because they're changing the natural odds of the game."

"In order for a casino to keep operating, you have to keep the odds down to a normal level," says Cahill. "We're not in the business for dead-even odds."

Cahill argues that even though casinos usually have the upper hand, "there are winners here. People can win and win big. But it's a gamble. Counting cards is an advantage for the player that the house can't live with. In blackjack, it should be the luck of the draw."

Poll of Physicians in State of North Carolina Regarding PSRO Area Designations

Notice is hereby given in accordance with Section 1152(g) of the Social Security Act (42 USC 1302-1 (g)) that the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, prior to the designation of a conditional Professional Standards Review Organization (PSRO) within any PSRO area located in the State of North Carolina, is conducting a poll of the doctors of medicine or osteopathy who are engaged in active practice in each PSRO Area to determine whether such physicians in each area support a change from the present local Professional Standards Review Organization area designations as stipulated in 42 CFR 101.37 to a single statewide area designation. This notice appeared in the Federal Register on August 16, 1976.

Each such doctor in the PSRO Areas will receive a ballot on which he shall indicate whether he supports a change from the present local PSRO area designations to a single statewide area designation. The Secretary will then proceed to establish the entire State of North Carolina as a single Professional Standards Review Organization area.

Little Physical Fitness Advance

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The physical fitness of America's boys and girls got mixed reviews from University of Michigan researchers who tested some 7,800, ages 10 to 17.

The chinning, sit up, shuttle run, long jump and such tests showed: Physical fitness hasn't declined over the past decade, but it hasn't improved much either. The only gains were "relatively minor" ones made by girls in endurance tests.

Free Enterprise In Sixth Grade

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (UPI) — Free enterprise is alive and well at the St. Lucie Middle School Manufacturing Company in Fort Pierce, Fla.

Sixth graders build and sell spruce planter boxes. An assembly line in the school's woodworking shop turns out about 300 planters a week during the school year. Students then market the boxes at $3.50. One dollar goes into a wage pool and 25 cents to the salesman.

"The next time you ask for a 'stark' of celery, you might get the entire plant. The proper name for a single stem is a 'stalk.'"

Lebanese Christians Open New Drive

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian forces opened a new campaign today to drive the Palestinians from the Meten area of the mountains overlooking Beirut.

"Unless the Palestinians pull out of the Meten area immediately, we will have to evict them by force," said a leader of the right-wing Phalange party, which has the largest militaria on the Christian side of the Lebanese civil war.

Reports from the warring sides said the Palestinians shelled Christian positions with missiles and antiaircraft guns during the night, and that Christian militiamen backed by tanks and halftracks assaulted Palestinian positions at the mountain village of Aintoura.

Fighting also continued in Beirut's devastated commercial sector and the neighboring Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh suburbs, the former Moslem, the latter Christian. Hospital and security sources reported that about 90 persons were killed and 135 wounded during the night.

The small towns and villages scattered along the mountains were mostly summer resorts for wealthy Lebanese before the civil war, and the area was traditionally Christian. The Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies moved into them during their offensive last spring, which brought the Syrian army into the war to save the Christians from defeat.
Phalangist leaders told the commander of the Arab League peace force, Maj. Gen. Mohammed Hassan Gheneim, that they consider Meten part of their territory in the de facto partition of Lebanon that is taking shape.

A Palestinian source commented: "It's a card. It is valuable to us only because they want it and we can use it to get what we want."

Other Palestinian sources said their forces would not give up their positions unless they got concessions in return, such as a Syrian withdrawal from eastern Lebanon.
The independent newspaper

An Nahar reported agreement in principle between Al Fatah, the biggest of the Palestinian organizations, and the Phalange to station Arab League peace forces along a buffer line in Meten. But other sources said Phalange military commander Pierre Gemayel rejected a Palestinian proposal for a cease-fire and withdrawal of forces all along the front line of the civil war.

The Christians turned their attention to the mountain area

after their capture Thursday of the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp on the southeast side of Beirut. The conquest of the camp, in which an estimated 3-000 persons died, removed the last Palestinian stronghold between Christian East Beirut and the 800-square-mile Christian hinterland north of the capital.

Fuzzbusters Bugging Fuzz

BALEIGH (AP) — "Fuzzbust-ers" are being installed right next to Citizen Band radios by many North Carolina motorists who hope to increase their chances of beating the speeding ticket game.

"I'll tell you one thing, good buddy," said a trucker stopped at Raleigh restaurant for lunch.
"If I had to drive 55 miles an hour all the time, I'd flat out be broke in 30 days. There just ain't no way.

"I'm a professional driver and a good one and I sure ain't gonna drive so fast that I'd hurt me, my truck or somebody else. But if I didn't have CB and my Fuzzbuster I'd spend the rest of my life in traffic court or jail," he continued.

A "Fuzzbuster" looks like a simple black box. But by means of a warning light and a buzzer, it can notify a driver that highway patrol have radar turned on in the area. It is reputed to pick up wayward radar signals about two miles away.

The state of Virginia has outlawed the devices because they are so effective. And troopers there will confiscate them if they find them in car.

"They tell me they are a pretty effective way to determine if radar is being operated in an area," said N.C. Highway Patrol Commander Col. E.W.
Jones. "But I haven't made up my mind on whether or not they should be made illegal.
The people who use them are either persistent violators or pretty conscientious drivers.

"I've sent out a memo to our men on the front line asking them for suggestions. I don't know what they will advocate and I need to know that before we consider asking for legislative action," Jones said.

Henry Knight, manager of Womack Electronics, is one of many dealers who are selling the devices. He explains they are popular because "55 is awfully slow for a man who drives, say 1,000 miles a week. It is amazing what 10 more miles an hour does for you psychologically and in terms of comfort."

Fuzzbuster users have one important warning for speeding drivers who buy the devices—they work only on radar, not Vascar, a new type of speed measurement system that doesn't send out beams.

In North Carolina, troopers have 430 Vascar units compared to 350 radar units.

INGRAM'S RECORD ARGUES FOR CHANGE

The present commissioner is an attorney and former legislator who obviously yearns for higher office. A politician of the old school, he's more adept at polishing his public image than at grasping the intricacies of an important, difficult regulatory job. Ingram has used the post as a platform for horn-tooting. He's spent so much time boasting of his accomplishments that he's had little chance to do anything.

Ingram's public relations skill makes it easy to forget sometimes how meager his achievements are. He gives the impression of holding down insurance rates, but he does not. He loudly denies or silces company requests only to be overturned every time in court. He classifies himself as a reformer.
But he would not work for genuine "no-fault" auto insurance when his support might have helped this proposal through the General Assembly.

As commissioner in a time of special insurance problems, Ingram either let them fester while he junketed around the country, or, as in the medical malpractice crisis, went at them in a manner guaranteed to alienate the industry and to postpone resolution. This state has no use for a coddler of insurance companies in the commissioner's seat. But it is just as bad, in a different way, to have a relentless antagonist in the job.

As Ingram's leading challenger, Johnson seems, on balance, an attractive alternative. He has something rarely offered by aspirants to this post: special knowledge of the insurance business.

He is on record as favoring a meaningful
"no-fault" plan. He advocates a five-member commission to rule on insurance rates.

Johnson pledges prompt action on issues coming before the department, which would be a welcome change from the frequent backlogs of business on Ingram's desk.

After the incumbent's four tempestuous, wheel-spinning years, the Insurance Department needs a productive peacemaker. With his calmer temperament, consumer concerns and far superior knowledge of the business,
Johnson seems well-qualified for that role.

PAID POLITICAL ADV. BY THE COMMITTEE TO ELECT JOE JOHNSON
FOR COMMISSIONER OF INSURANCE

JOE JOHNSON

For Commissioner Of Insurance

EXCERPTS FROM THE NEWS & OB- SERVER, MONDAY AUGUST 9, 1976 FORMER COMMISSIONER RAPS INGRAM

Edwin S. Lanier, former North Carolina commissioner of insurance, Sunday characterized the administration of incumbent Commissioner John R. Ingram as "very much to the contrary of what the public interest would expect and need."

"I'm certainly not going to vote for Mr.
Ingram. I don't think it is in the public interest for him to be re-elected," he said.

"I think he (Johnson) is thoroughly competent and I have no reason to question his integrity or the spirit with which he would approach his work in that office," he added.

"It appears to me that much of the statutes and guidelines for the commission have been ruthlessly ignored," he said.
"Lanier accused Ingram of using hearings
"just to make news copy" and endangering availability of insurance at a reasonable rate that is fair to both the insurers and the insured."

EXCERPTS FROM THE NEWS & OB- SERVER SUNDAY AUGUST 8, 1976 UNDER THE DOME

ENDORSEMENT—A former state legislator who considered challenging incumbent Insurance Commissioner John R.
Ingram but later backed off, has thrown his support to Ingram's challenger in the Aug.
17 Democratic primary.

"We have had enough in the past four years of fighting between the commissioner's office and the insurance industry while the consumer has suffered,"
