Ford Challenges Carter To Debate

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Republicans' Middle America ticket of Gerald R. Ford and Robert Dole leaves this city with promises of support from the once-divided GOP convention for its underdog team and primed for debate with Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Dole offered today to debate the other half of the Democratic ticket, his Senate colleague Walter Mondale. He noted that he and Mondale have debated in the Senate for years and that extending this debate into the campaign would provide a natural extension of the colloquy. "I'm willing," Dole declared. There was no immediate comment from Mondale. Ford, meanwhile, urged the Republican National Committee to consider changing the way the party chooses its vice presidential nominee. While endorsing no specific revision, he noted that a fight over the vice presidential selection procedure figured in his nomination battle.

His challenger had urged the convention to require Ford to name his running mate in advance of balloting on the presidential nomination. Ford defeated the proposal in a crucial convention showdown. On the matter of debate, the President took the initiative Thursday night when he launched his campaign against Carter with a challenge to "debate the real issues face to face." Before the Republican convention adjourned, Carter accepted.

From his home in Plains, Ga., Carter called on Ford to join him in a debate or series of debates that would provide "the fullest and most detailed examination of the programs offered by both sides."

The debate challenge wasn't in the advance text of Ford's speech accepting the presidential nomination.

But White House staff chief Richard Cheney told reporters today that a debate proposal had been included in a draft of Ford campaign plans prepared about a month ago.

After staff discussions, Cheney said, Ford passed the word two or three weeks ago that he wanted to challenge Carter, but chose to keep his intention secret. On Thursday night, Cheney reported, Ford handed him a hand-written addition to his acceptance speech making the challenge.

But Cheney said Ford ordered the addition withheld from advance copies of the address.

Asked if Ford was eager for a debate because he trails in the polls, Cheney cited new election rules, including limits on spending, and said: "This is the way (through debates) the campaign should be conducted."

"I am ready and eager," he told the delegates "to go before the American people and debate the real issues, face to face with Jimmy Carter. The people have a right to know where we both stand."

The delegates roared their approval in what was probably the most emotional and most spontaneous response Ford received during the convention.

But the final emotional moment belonged to the man Ford defeated. After his acceptance speech, Ford called Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, to the podium.

It was gesture of unity often seen in the closing moments of national political conventions. The victor and the vanquished stand together to demonstrate Carter Issues Quick Reply To Ford: Yes!

By LAWRENCE L. KNUITSON
Associated Press Writer
AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — President Ford's challenge to a presidential campaign debate upstaged Jimmy Carter and caught the Democratic nominee and his staff by surprise.

The words "face-to-face" debate were hardly out of Ford's mouth when Carter's press secretary rounded up reporters to say his candidate, too, was ready to debate — a decision that could produce the first such presidential campaign encounter since John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in 1960 in a series of four nationally televised debates.

Ford made his challenge Thursday night in his presidential nomination acceptance speech to the Republican National Convention and a national television audience.

"I am ready and eager," he told the delegates, "to go before the American people and debate Jimmy Carter. The people have a right to know where we stand."

The debate challenge was not in the advance text of Ford's speech.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had been considering issuing the challenge for the past 10 days. He said it was left out of the advance text of the speech because Ford wanted to save it as a surprise for the delegates.

Carter press secretary Jody

Powell relayed Carter's acceptance — what Carter people called his "counter challenge" — to fewer than a dozen reporters watching Ford deliver his speech on a television set beside a motel swimming pool.

His staff had scurried from room to room searching for newspaper, wire service and television reporters. Powell read the only available copy of the Carter statement.

It wasn't supposed to happen that way. Carter had intended to issue his own debate challenge to Ford today at a 9 a.m. news conference in a carefully orchestrated response to the week-long GOP convention.

But he decided to release his prepared statement as soon as he learned of Ford's decision from television commentators, who reported shortly before Ford gave his speech that he would issue the debate challenge.

Carter and his wife, Rosalyn, watched the Ford speech Thursday night in their home on the outskirts of nearby Plains.

Carter's prepared text said he will do his best to use normal campaign methods — speeches, press releases and advertising — "to be sure the American people understand my hopes and plans."

He proposed a single debate or series of debates, and said, "In the interest of an informed choice for the American people,

I believe the candidates have an obligation to meet in debate before the people of this country."

Carter said he does not believe choosing a debate format will be any problem, although he said he has not committed himself to any of the debate proposals he had previously received.

Carter said he has named Powell to the steering committee which is laying groundwork for a potential debate for the League of Women Voters. He said President Ford has named a member of his staff to the same panel.

The League arranged a series of joint appearances by most of the contenders in this year's Democratic presidential primaries.

Family Practice Area Groundbreaking Held

By CAROL TYER

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center were held Thursday afternoon at the site adjacent to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Dr. James G. Jones, acting head of the ECU School of Medicine's Family Practice Department, expressed elation at the project's getting underway. When completed hopefully in January, 1978, the 26,000-square foot facility will house the regional offices of the Eastern Area Health Education Center, as well as ECU's Family Practice Residency Program. Construction is scheduled to begin Monday.

Jones said the center is designed "to provide a comprehensive clinical experience for the family practice resident and students in the ECU Schools of Medicine; Nursing and Allied Health. The center's location near both the hospital and the ECU School of Medicine will "allow maximum utilization of consultant and hospital resources, he noted.

ECU School of Medicine Dean Dr. William E. Laupus expressed satisfaction with recent progress in the development of the family practice residency program. He noted that it has been approved by the American Medical Association's Committee on Graduate Medical Education.

Others on the program included the Rev. C. Norman Bennett who gave the invocation, Jack Richardson, Pitt Memorial Hospital Director, Dr. Simmons Patterson, Eastern AHEC Director, and Dr. Edwin Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU President of Eastern AHEC, and Gene Mayer of Chapel Hill, representing the State AHEC Program.

Present for the ceremonies were several county commissioners and hospital trustees, State Representatives Horton Rountree and Sam Bundy and 30 to 40 other persons from the hospital, the medical school, AHEC, and the present Family Practice Center housed in a mobile unit on the old hospital grounds.

The purpose of the Family Practice Center is to provide a model for the delivery of family medical care. The residency program will accept students who have completed medical studies and give them three years of clinical training experience in both in-patient and out-patient medical care. Upon successful completion of a residency program, the physician will be eligible to take the board examination for certification as a diplomate of the family practice specialty. Some 36 residents can be trained at the once, once the center is operational.

The facility also will provide office space for family practice faculty and residents, and for medical social workers, nutritionists, psychologists, and other support personnel involved in the residency program. Other facilities to be included are a library, laboratory, x-ray rooms, lounges, conference rooms, and classrooms. One area will be set aside for UNC School of Dentistry residents.

Construction of the building is supported by a grant from the Eastern AHEC to Pitt Memorial. EAHEC's purpose is education in all health professions within a 23-county portion of Eastern North Carolina.

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce set new priorities for its organization and action in the community at a one-day planning session held Thursday.

Approximately 30 community leaders met to discuss and plan needed projects within the Greenville-Pitt County communities. Representatives of state, city and county governments were invited to discuss the problems and answer the chamber members' questions.

The following four major topics were discussed by the group: Community Development, Public and Governmental Affairs, Economic and Industrial Development, and Organizational Development. Problems discussed concerning community development included water and sewer, recreational facilities, apathy, transportation systems, low and income middle income housing, zoning, and maintaining the quality of life.

"General development needs a game plan with its number one objective in recruiting industry with a high investment and low employment operation. General Development must understand the type of industry that we need at this time. We will have problems with our water and sewer treatment if a game plan is not developed," Reese Hart said.

Chamber members discussed the problems that additional industry has caused in placing a burden on the water and sewer treatment facilities and suggested that since ECU requires so much of these facilities, that a state payments in lieu of taxes is necessary.

"Greenville is the third fastest growing municipality in the state of North Carolina," John Schofield, Greenville City Planner said. "Southwest Greenville is going to change drastically within the next few years because of the medical facilities being in that area. Major revisions of a comprehensive growth plan will be necessary. Eastern North Carolina is the growth center of the state and Greenville is in the middle of the growth center. We must look look at what that means to us and what it will cost the city of Greenville," Schofield said.

"We presently are working on a General Development Master Plan to be a five year plan with revisions and reviews after each year," Schofield added.

"Sometimes it seems that the right things happen for the wrong reasons. I am convinced that without the condemnation of the Third Street School that we may never have gotten the needed money for improvements in the Greenville City Schools. There is a major difference in acting and reacting and what we need now is consolidated leadership," Miles Frost said.

The questions of diversification of the recreational facilities and the merging of the city and county recreational programs was discussed by the chamber.

"We need a more diversified system of recreation that will encompass all ages. We need to be diversified enough to better the lives and encourage contributions to the community," Donovan Phillips said.

"The recreational facilities are presently being funded by revenue sharing in the city. We are at the point that the recreational facility is strained by out-of-city participants. We need to decide if we can pay for only the needs of the residents," Schofield said.

The school systems were a top priority of the chamber's concern with public and governmental affairs.

"One school system in Pitt County would be right at this time. There would be one consolidated tax base and revenues could be used as one system rather than having to compete for monies," Senator Vernon White said.

"A restructuring of the school system would be helpful. The school boards do not have much jurisdiction over many programs and there is a hodge-podge of financing from federal and state governments that require certain guidelines rather than what might be specifically needed at a particular school," Frost said.

Hurricane Watch Below Hatteras

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Dottie, located just off the northeast Florida coast, moved toward the Atlantic seaboard today. Forecasters issued a hurricane watch for residents from Jacksonville, Fla., to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, said the storm's 50-mile-an-hour winds might increase to near hurricane intensity before the storm crosses the coast.

"We don't expect any kind of explosion out there, but even a small intensification will bring it near hurricane force," Neil said.

A tropical storm is upgraded to a hurricane when its winds exceed 74 m.p.h.

Frank said it still was too early to determine exactly where or when Dottie would make a landfall.

"Tides will be 2 to 4 feet above normal this evening northeast of the location where the center crosses the coast," he said.

Earlier, forecasters said "rough seas and heavy swells pose a threat of beach erosion along the coast from northeast Florida northward through the hurricane watch area."

At noon EDT, Dottie was centered near latitude 31.3 north and longitude 80.0 west or about 100 miles east of Brunswick, Ga. It was moving toward the north at about 10 m.p.h.

"The slow movement may delay the threat of heavy rains along the coast of Georgia and the Carolinas, but heavy rains may spread across these coasts if the storm begins moving toward the northwest," forecasters said.

Dottie was upgraded to a storm at 6 p.m. EDT Thursday after it dumped heavy rains on South Florida while crossing the state's southern tip.

Up to eight inches of rain was reported in parts of the Miami area, widespread flooding occurred and Florida Power & Light Co. said power was interrupted to about 20 neighborhoods.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Candice continued its trek through the open Atlantic. At 6 a.m. EDT, Candice was centered near latitude 40.5 north and longitude 63.0 west. The storm's highest sustained winds were estimated at 57 m.p.h.

The hurricane center also reported that a tropical depression, with winds of 35 m.p.h., developed early today in the Atlantic about 1,000 miles east of the Lesser Antilles. The depression was expected to move westward at 15 to 20 m.p.h. and slowly become better organized today and Saturday.

40 Per Cent Cast Ballots

The official canvass of votes for Tuesday's primary election has been completed, according to Margaret Register of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

A total of 11,980 persons, or approximately 40 per cent of the 30,000 persons eligible, voted in the primary.

Thirty-nine per cent of all eligible voters in the county voted in the March 23 presidential preference primary.

REFUND FOR TIRES

I bought a new car with Goodyear radial tires on it. It was a 40,000 mile tire. I went back to the dealer here because the black was coming off of the white and the tires were cracking up. I felt he should give me a new set of tires to replace them. He refused to do this, so he gave me an adjustment on a new set and I had to pay a difference of $189.04, including changing the tires and balancing. I feel like if the Goodyear people knew it, they would replace these tires at no charge. E.B.

HOTLINE referred your complaint to the Goodyear district office, Box 385, Colonial Heights, Va. 23834. We told them what type tire you had, the amount of mileage on the tires and when you had bought them.

K. L. Morgan, assistant district manager in the retail division, wrote us Aug. 11 to say that you were being sent a partial refund of $87.92, reducing your original bill to $101.12. He informed us that the District Service Manager, Larry Williams, had already discussed the complaint with you and had explained their adjustment policy.

"After the discussion Williams said he felt, in the spirit of good customer relations, we would make a concession to Mr. B. and they agreed to refund a total of $87.92," the letter stated. "We will also check the new tires when Mr. B. comes to our store in Greenville and make sure the problem is solved."

When HOTLINE called you to confirm this, you said you were well satisfied with the refund and would go by the local Goodyear store to pick up the money. You said that you and Mr. Williams had agreed that the tires had some type of factory defect, qualifying you for the refund.

Is She Willing To Gamble?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 32-year-old divorcee. No kids, thank heavens. I met a wonderful man. He's 68, but before you say he's too old for me, let me say that he can do everything a 25-year-old man can do, and I'm not just guessing.

He has had two bum marriages and says this is the first time in his life he's ever been in love. I get along fine with his two married daughters, and his grandchildren are crazy about me.

He has a summer home in Indiana and a winter home in Florida, and he's been retired for 10 years.

He has a pacemaker, but you'd never know it unless he told you.

My brother is trying to talk me out of marrying him because he's afraid I'll end up being a young widow, but my mother and father both died before they were 50, so I could be dead at 35. What is your advice?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING: No one knows how long he's going to live or what shape he'll be in next year, so gamble if you like. But if you live to be 50, and he's still alive, you'll have an 86-year-old husband.

DEAR ABBY: My wife just had her fourth child, and we now have two boys and two girls, which are all we want.

My problem is that she wants me to have a vasectomy, but I'm chicken. It's not the pain I'm afraid of; it's just that I'm afraid I'll feel like less of a man just knowing that I won't be able to father any more children.

My wife can't tolerate the Pill, and the other methods of birth control turn her off, so it's up to me.

I feel dumb asking this, but should I or shouldn't I? What do other men who've had it say?

CHICAGO CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: If you're afraid you'll feel like "less of a man" after a vasectomy, the chances are you WILL, so unless you can overcome that feeling, I wouldn't recommend it.

Ask your wife to talk to her doctor about the new, quick and painless method of sterilization for women known as "laparoscopic tubal cautery." A tiny incision is made below the navel. The surgeon then inserts a scope, locates both tubes and seals them permanently. The incision is then closed with a small stitch, covered by a Band-aid. The patient can go home an hour later.

DEAR ABBY: Howie and I have been married for two years.

Everything is fine except for one thing. Whenever Howie needs to see a doctor, he goes to his pediatrician. Abby, Howie is 20 years old and I think it's time he stopped going to a pediatrician and went to a regular doctor.

I've told him this, but he doesn't pay any attention to me. Maybe if YOU told him, he'd listen.

A BABY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: A pediatrician has all the training of a "regular" doctor, plus specialized training in the care of children, so if Howie is more comfortable with his pediatrician, why make waves?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bullock-Dail Food Scientists Vows Said Are Studying Processes

Mrs. Frances O'Neal Dail and Raymond Earl Bullock were united in marriage Friday, Aug. 12, in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church. The Rev. Levy Payton performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, J. T. O'Neal. Miss Lorraine Dail served as her mother's maid of honor and Miss Terry Dail, daughter of the bride, was flower girl.

Conrad McLahorn served as best man. Mac Ross served as usher and Greg Bullock, son of the bridegroom, served as junior usher.

Mrs. Daneel leRoux provided the nuptial music.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. J. T. O'Neal poured punch and Mrs. Mildred Johnson, sister of the bridegroom, served cake. Mrs. Mac Ross and Mrs. Kenneth Kelly assisted with the serving.

ST. PAUL (UPI) — Two food scientists at the University of Minnesota are trying to understand and better interpret the relationship of cooking processes to consumer acceptability of the product.

Joan Gordon and Eugenia A. Davis are studying how the nutritional quality and acceptability of meat are affected by variations in humidity, atmospheric changes, heating and cooking rates, water release and movement, mineral distribution, vitamin degradation and cellular transformations.

They hope to learn how the treatment of meat in slaughter and storage relates to the meat's cooked quality, which is affected by such things as how it is cut and the size of the muscle. The type of cut influences water loss, among other things.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Willie M. Long Sr. of Everetts announces the marriage of their daughter, Cathy Yvonne, to Garland Edward Warren Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Edward Warren Sr. of Rt. 2, Robersonville. The wedding took place Aug. 1 in the Everetts Christian Church, Everetts. The couple is residing in Robersonville.

George Briley, Mrs. William Harris, Mrs. Loyd Huggins, Mrs. Roy Moore, Mrs. William Johnston Jr., Mrs. John Melvin, and Mrs. Jerry McGowan.

Mrs. Garrison Entertained

Mrs. Maureen Garrison, the new pre-first kindergarten teacher at Karl B. Pace Academy, was honored with a coffee Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. James N. Galloway.

Mrs. Garrison was presented a corsage by hostesses, Mrs. Eddie Harrington and Mrs. Galloway.

She was introduced to the mothers of her students for the coming school year by Carol Whitaker, head-mistress of the academy. Mrs. Garrison and Mrs. Whitaker answered questions concerning the curriculum of the new pre-first program.

Coffee and refreshments were served in the dining room to invited guests including Mrs. Frank Bookhardt, Mrs. Robert Briley, Mrs. Bill Dansey, Mrs. James Bullock, Mrs. Benjamin Gardner Jr., Mrs. J. D. Briley, Mrs. Julian Norvell, Mrs. Robert Pittman, Mrs. Ledyard Ross, Mrs. Bobby Swinson, Mrs.

Cherry Bounce Is Old-Time

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Folks who enjoy reviving the old-time eating and drinking customs of some of the settlers of this country may be interested, this midsummer, in making Cherry Bounce. It's a potent concoction to "put by" when sweet cherries are in season, to serve in later months.

Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams, the second President of the United States, wrote about Cherry Bounce one January in a letter to her sister: "There is a kind of cake in fashion upon this day called New Years Cooky. This and cherry bounce as it is called is the old Dutch custom of treating their Friends upon the return of every New Year."

Apparently New Englanders also made Cherry Bounce. In her "Yankee Cookbook" Imogene Wolcott offers an old-fashioned recipe for it and adds: "As the lady who gave this recipe used to say: 'Hifalutin people call this cherry cordial, but I say it's cherry bounce.'"

Cherry Bounce may be made with sweet cherries, sugar, spice and brandy. Quaffers of the liquid drained from the cherries are likely to say that it is well-named; it really makes one feel bouncy!

CHERRY BOUNCE

3 pounds fresh sweet cherries
1 pound sugar
1 cinnamon stick, broken
2 teaspoons whole cloves
1 bottle (4-5 quart) brandy
Choose perfect cherries; wash, remove stems and dry completely. Do not pit. In a large crock that has a coger, layer the cherries, sugar and spices; add brandy; stir thoroughly. Cover and let stand at room temperature at least 2 months. Offer drained liquid as a liqueur; refrigerate cherries and use in various ways for desserts.

CLAMS UP

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Price increases on canned clam chowder, canned chopped clams and fried clams for restaurant use are predicted by a major manufacturer, as a result of rising demand and decreasing supplies of surf clams.

This variety is taken largely from ocean waters of the coasts of Virginia and New Jersey, says a spokeswoman for Borden Foods, who said bad weather off the East Coast this past winter greatly reduced the number of clam fishing days.

The size of catches also was reduced, apparently because the clams have not been able to reproduce rapidly enough after a year of heavy fishing.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool temperatures are forecast Friday for the California coast, northern Plains and southern Atlantic coastal states. Elsewhere temperatures will be warm. Showers are forecast from the central Plains to the upper Great Lakes and the southern half of the Atlantic Coast. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
The second tropical storm to threaten the U.S. mainland this season, Dotti, slowed and became erratic early today, but still promised heavy rain and erosion for the North Carolina coast.

A hurricane watch extended from Jacksonville, Fla., to Cape Hatteras, N.C., at 6 a.m. Dotti was centered then 70 miles east of St. Augustine, Fla. Her highest sustained winds were 50 miles an hour.

Gale warnings were posted for the entire Carolina coast and Pamlico and Albemarle sounds.

Dotti started as a low-pressure area near the Florida Keys. She started to pick up strength as she moved to the east-central Florida coast Thursday afternoon. During the night she blew steadily northward at from 20 to 25 miles an hour. But by 5 a.m. she had slowed down considerably an area of high pressure centered over Pennsylvania was in her way.

However, She was still threatening to develop into a hurricane today. Dotti will do that if winds reach 74 miles an hour.

Small-craft were advised to stay in port. And vacationers were told to keep out of the water because of the danger of riptides and undertows.

A hurricane watch means keep advised and be prepared to take emergency action. Gale warnings are for winds of 39 to 54 miles an hour.

Rain reached the lower North Carolina coast early this morning.

Tides were one to two feet above normal.

Waves of six to 10 feet were expected.

Rain likely will continue across North Carolina through Saturday.

High temperatures today were in the 70s, with some coastal areas in the low 80s. Lows tonight will be mostly in the 60s. That also will be the range Saturday.

Eastern North Carolina was cloudy Thursday. The west enjoyed almost full sunshine. Temperatures were kept mild by a brisk easterly wind. Cloudiness thickened across the state during the night. As dawn approached, only the mountains were clear.

Considers Resignation

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Mary Elizabeth Dole, Salisbury, N.C., native and wife of the Democratic candidate for vice president, is considering whether to resign as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

She said so Thursday when she was asked whether she felt her role as the campaigning wife of Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas would conflict with her post on the commission.

Mrs. Dole, 40, a lawyer and Duke University trustee, held a series of government posts before President Nixon appointed her to a seven-year term on the FTC in 1973.

That was more than two years before she and Sen. Dole were married in December 1975.

The President's legal staff is checking to see if any constitutional or legal problems are posed by the probably unique situation of a person who could be in line for the presidency whose spouse is an appointed federal official.

Mrs. Dole came to Washington during the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson as a staff assistant to the assistant secretary of health, education and welfare. She left that post and opened a private law practice.

In 1968, she joined the president's committee on consumer interests as associate director for legislative affairs, later becoming executive director.

When that organization was changed to the Office of Consumer Affairs in 1971, headed by Virginia Knauer, Mrs. Dole was named deputy director.

She was president of the student government at Duke University and won honors in political science. She earned her law degree from Harvard University Law School and a master's degree from the Graduate School of Education there.

In Salisbury, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Hanford Sr., received the news of Sen. Dole's nomination while they were in a doctor's office. Hanford, who is in his 80s, was getting an examination. They said they were surprised, since they thought the President would pick Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee as his running mate.

The Van Hanfords have a son, John Van Hanford Jr., 53, who operates a wholesale florist supply house in Charlotte. He said his sister will be an asset to the Ford-Dole team, "she is very dedicated and sensitive to people."

"Liddy," as she is nicknamed, worked during the early 1960s as a legislative secretary for the late Sen. B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina, a Democrat, and she worked in John F. Kennedy's presidential campaign.

She has been a professional model in Boston and Washington.

Intelligence Agencies Emphasized Quantity As They Overlapped Work

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence agencies duplicated each other's efforts and emphasized quantity, not quality, in gathering data abroad, according to a study that led to a major overhaul of the intelligence community in 1971.

The pivotal study, which was declassified and released Thursday, was prepared under the direction of James R. Schlesinger, then assistant director of the White House Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

Former President Richard M. Nixon not only heeded Schlesinger's call for reform, but eventually chose Schlesinger to serve as director of the Central Intelligence Agency and, later, as Secretary of Defense.

The study noted "the cost of intelligence has almost doubled during the past decade," but found that "it is not at all clear that our hypotheses about foreign intentions, capabilities and activities have improved commensurately in scope and quality."

Intelligence-gathering has become "exceedingly expensive," primarily due to "the acquisition of expensive new systems without simultaneous reductions in obsolescent programs," the report found.

During his six-month stint as CIA head in 1973, Schlesinger moved to cut costs and improve performance. He forced 1,200 of the CIA's 18,000 employees into early retirement and also initiated an internal review that led to the first disclosures of CIA misconduct.

Schlesinger served as defense secretary from 1973 until last November, when President Ford fired both him and his successor as CIA director, William Colby. Schlesinger apparently fell from favor with his outspoken criticisms of détente with the Soviet Union.

Nixon issued an executive order in November 1971 giving then CIA director Richard Helms an "enhanced leadership" role with broad supervision over all foreign intelligence activities carried out by the CIA, the Defense Department's Defense Intelligence Agency, the State Department, the Atomic Energy Commission and the FBI.

Schlesinger's OMB report was credited with precipitating that order, but the actual 47-page report had not been made public. It was released, with references to actual intelligence costs deleted, under a Freedom of Information Act request by Rolling Stone magazine and Morton H. Halperin, former National Security Council aide to Henry A. Kissinger.

The study found that the National Security Act of 1947, which laid the groundwork for present U.S. intelligence activities, did "little to provide strong leadership for the (intelligence) community."

One reason was that the act's primary intent was "to prevent a recurrence of the intelligence confusions and delays that occurred prior to Pearl Harbor." To do so, it emphasized collecting intelligence, not analyzing or coordinating it, the study found.

Another reason, the report said, was that "powerful interests in the military services and elsewhere opposed (and continued to oppose) more centralized management of intelligence activities."

Tar Heel GOP Influence Is Seen

North Carolina has been influential at the Republican National Convention this week.

Sen. Jesse Helms, the state's conservative senator, has commanded much media attention, and even though he backed Ronald Reagan in a losing fight for the presidential nomination, Helms is clearly a power within the party.

He made it clear early in the week that he would not accept a third party presidential nomination.

"I'm not going to be nominated, he said. "I have not discussed it. I didn't even know about it until I read it in the newspapers."

Helms said conservatives had won 90 percent of their aims in the party platform. "On a scale of 10, we're at nine," he said Monday.

Helms also said that he would support the party's nominee.

Also wielding strong influence on party affairs was Dr. John P. East, political science professor from East Carolina University. He was named to the powerful platform committee which worked for long hours last week formulating a platform for this year's campaign.

Dr. East told The Daily Reflector in a telephone interview that he was "very pleased with the final platform" which was adopted by the committee for convention consideration.

East, who is a Reagan delegate at the convention said, "There has been a lot of debate and interest centered on issues involved in the platform."

Representatives from our state have shown up well at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City.

President Friday Called On By Carter

It may be that UNC President William Friday will play an important part in a President Carter administration in the event that the Democratic presidential nominee is elected in November.

Friday is serving as chairman of Carter's education task force and he met Monday with the nominee in Plains, Ga.

Dr. Friday could be in line to serve as an advisor to Carter if he is elected president, or he could be named to a full time post. In any event it appears that the university president is highly regarded by Candidate Carter.

THIS AFTERNOON

Seeking Ways To Help

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gradually, the figures reflect a changing trend in ways of dealing with North Carolina's juvenile problems.

Once this state held the dubious distinction of having one of the nation's highest population rates for juvenile training schools; the highest per capita rate for putting children into the reformatories.

Last year there were 27,131 juvenile case hearings before the courts in North Carolina; only 1,700 children went to training schools. That figure will be reduced even more this time next year when the state law prohibiting training school sentences for status offenders is in effect.

Not Criminals

For last year's figures also show that nearly half the children who come before the juvenile court bench are there for various reasons other than committing crimes.

Of the 27,131 cases heard, 15,152 (59 per cent) were delinquency (criminal) cases; 3,596 felonies such as burglary, forgery, arson, homicide; 8,934 misdemeanors such as trespass, shoplifting, driving drunk; 2,590 parole violations; 32 capital offenses such as first degree murder or rape.

What about the other cases? They were in court for being undisciplined, for school truancy, for running away, or for frequenting unlawful places for children. A truancy case in Wake County involved a girl who was thrown out of school because of body odor.

Numerous truancy cases arise because the students simply can't go along in public school — the curriculum and typical school program force some who can't adapt out of school, judges say.

Runaways, according to counselors, quite often are children trying to escape problems at home; delinquents frequently are children fighting against a bad home situation.

Judges are increasingly looking for better solutions to the delinquency problems, and finding them in various community treatment facilities or probation under the guidance of juvenile court counselors.

In the past year, however, another new approach has had significant impact on the figures — diversion. In some court districts, particularly the more heavily populated ones, as many as 85 per cent of the children are diverted from the courts.

In some the figure runs as low as 13 per cent.

Diversion

Overall, in the first year of operation, diversion meant that between 30 and 40 per cent of the children funneled into the juvenile system were diverted before the juvenile court hearing. If not, the total number of juvenile hearing cases would have been much higher — and a corresponding increase shown in training school admissions.

Diversion means simply that the child is kept from the formal court procedure and resultant record by seeking out other ways to help the problem through school counselors, mental health centers, rehabilitation programs, etc.

Most of the diverted cases involve the minor, non-criminal offenses. The central purpose is to "address the problem in the most appropriate way; involving decision-making by the child and his parents in a voluntary way, rather than being under an order," says Thomas A. Danek, administrator of the juvenile court division of the state court system.

The first year of operation has pinpointed a major problem, Danek said. "We don't have the ability to enforce the stipulations agreed to. We can encourage the child to go to the mental health agency and he may agree. But, does he actually go?"

Diversion, teamed with development of community treatment alternatives now being planned in counties across the state, should mean continued declines in numbers of children committed to training schools.

"And wire my congratulations to the convention... to have rejected an incumbent with Jerry's record would have been unpardonable!"

Rather Be Right

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There are those who say Jesse Helms would rather be right than win, if winning means he has to compromise.

And the tall, courtly senator from North Carolina showed time and again that that is the case as he led ultraconservative forces in back room maneuvering that put their stamp on the Republican platform and in tossing obstacles into the path of President Ford's nomination.

Although not campaigning for the vice presidential nomination, Helms said he would allow his state's delegation to enter his name tonight in a final gesture for the conservative cause he pushed so hard before the GOP national convention.

Helms is the first Republican senator from the Tar Heel state in this century, although he was a Democrat until six years ago. He is one of the most conservative senators.

He often votes against the administration. He opposed the confirmation of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller because of Rockefeller's liberalism, and he is one of the staunchest critics of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"The Republican party in its leadership people who follow the old axiom that to get along, you have to go along" Helms says. "They don't say anything publicly but they say it privately. I just have to be a person who believes in speaking his mind and let the chips fall where they may. I don't have any political ambition."

Though not a convention delegate, Helms came to Kansas City and, with his Washington staff, orchestrated the conservative fight in the GOP platform committee. At first, the Helms crew operated separately from Ronald Reagan's strategists.

But as they began making progress — toughening language in the foreign policy plank and winning on an anti-abortion statement — Reagan's people joined in support.

Helms' people stood firm on a proposal that put the GOP on record in favor of cutting off federal aid to education, despite pleas from moderates who said this would cost the GOP votes in November.

Ford's Finest Moment

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bumbler, unpretentious, too dumb to walk and chew gum at the same time.

Gerald Rudolph Ford, everybody's friend and, it seemed, nobody's hero, had heard it all before. Heard it from that moment of trauma, noon, Aug. 9, 1974, in the East Room of the White House, to the moment of magic, 12:26 a.m., Aug. 18, 1976, in the hot, shrieking swirl of a hockey arena.

Now, at least, he had some kind of a mandate.

Until then, it seemed, he might have been doomed to go down in history as a genial, innocuous caretaker between real Presidents. It was as if the numbered sequence would have to be fractionalized. Richard Nixon was the 37th President.

Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan would be the 38th. And, oh yes, there was that nice guy Ford, the 37th and a half.

He might still end up that way in the history primers but last night he turned at least half a corner. He became a President with a Republican constituency beyond the fifth congressional district of Grand Rapids, Mich., beyond the sole appointment of Richard Nixon.

To get there, Gerald Ford had to scramble for the Republican nomination like an alderman who had just been redistricted into a neighborhood of hostile strangers.

Until Tuesday he was chasing uncommitted delegates down hotel corridors to avoid becoming the first incumbent president to lose his party's nomination in 92 years. The last was another Republican, Chester A. Arthur.

Ronald Reagan zealots resisted Gerald Ford to the end. They didn't have the votes but they had the lung power. For two hours they yelled, blew boat horns, waved banners, threw Frisbees. They seemed reluctant to get to the showdown.

It made no difference except to guarantee that Ford would be nominated on TV time normally reserved for "Casablanca."

Finally, the demonstrators were muted, only to be revived just as the President's name was being placed in nomination. Nancy Reagan chose that moment to leave the hall, touching off another prolonged roar from her husband's followers.

The Ford folks took half the time the Reagan people did to place their man in nomination, second and cheer him. People who know they are going to win spend less time yelling.

The roll call finally began at 11:43. Reagan took an early lead, mostly from the south and west. He peaked at 12:02 coming around New Mexico, leading 684 to 635. A moment later he ran into New York and the downhill slope. New York made it Ford, 768; Reagan, 704, and the man from Grand Rapids was on his way.

Then 12:26 a.m. west Virginia, "mindful of the tensions gripping this convention ... proudly casts ..." Gerald Rudolph Ford was over the top, 1,135 to 1,060.

The accidental and, in some eyes, incidental President became the second Republican in his party's history to win his nomination in Kansas City.

The first was Herbert Hoover.

German warships in Spanish waters were ordered tonight to meet all "unjustifiable acts" with force.

Admiral Carl, commander of the Nazi warships, wirelessed the commander of the Spanish government fleet and advised him he had given the order to reply to acts of force with force.

The stringent orders followed a curt Nazi ultimatum in which Madrid was warned the German warships would take "all means" to prevent repetition of such incidents as the reported search of the German steamer Kamerun on the high seas.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Way Down In Dixie

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
Way Down In Dixie

KANSAS CITY — The overpowering sense of doom enveloping President Ford's candidacy was heightened on the convention floor around 1 a.m. Thursday when Ray Barnhart, militant chairman of the solidly Reaganite Texas delegation, grabbed the floor microphone to shout, "No, no, no," against making the Ford nomination unanimous.

Barnhart's shouts went unheard in the tumult, and the nomination was declared unanimous. But the quick gavel of the convention chairman, Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, cannot pound Barnhart and his fellow Texans into eager Ford backers. Many of the 100 Texas delegates will not work for Mr. Ford, few will support him with any zeal and none feel he has much chance of carrying the state against Jimmy Carter.

That attitude is duplicated exactly in other Southern Reaganite delegations. While regular party leaders in the South either backed Mr. Ford in the first place or easily accepted him, rank-and-file party workers were drained and embittered by Reagan's defeat. Indeed, the Reagan Ford clash has left the Republican party painfully fractured and weakened for the future.

This deterioration, when combined with Carter's nativist regional appeal, puts Mr. Ford behind in all 11 states of the old confederacy (150 electoral votes) — hopelessly so in most. Although the President's strategists in the Crown Center Hotel here acknowledge this harsh reality, they seem emotionally incapable of accepting its even harsher consequences; no President since Calvin Coolidge has been elected without Southern electoral votes, and Mr. Ford surely cannot in 1976.

When campaign manager Rogers Morton blurted out to newsmen on Tuesday that the Ford campaign would concentrate on "Cotton South" states, he was being impolitic but not inaccurate. Notwithstanding a personal call to the wavering Mississippi delegation from the President himself, Wednesday night repudiating Morton's statement, the hard fact is that the Ford camp has written off the Deep South.

That hard fact, fully appreciated by Southern Republicans, intensifies hostility by Reaganites against pro-Ford party leaders. The contrast of 80 per cent of the South's delegates but only one state chairman (Virginia's George McMath) for Reagan suggests a crossroads (Reagan) vs. country-club (Ford) split in Dixie.

At a closed meeting of Southern Republican state chairmen here, longtime Mississippi leader Clarke Reed chided his colleagues for being Ford "patsies." But Reed himself spent a week of torment for having endorsed Mr. Ford in an emotional reaction to the Schweiker shock. The taunts against Reed, most from fellow Southerners, during the Reagan demonstration Wednesday night grew so vicious that he had to leave the floor.

Earlier Wednesday at the Independence, Mo., Ramada Inn, a closed Mississippi caucus turned into a caustic interchange of personal recriminations which will not soon be forgotten. A special target was Tommy Giordano, who, soon after making a Reagan-to-Ford switch, was named manager of the state Ford campaign.

Whether even the skilled Giordano can put together much of a campaign remains doubtful. While the state's Republicans overwhelmingly support Reagan, the delegation split 16 to 14 for the President. "These people are going to be murdered when they get back to Mississippi," one Reagan delegate told us. "There'll be so much blood

Other Editors Say Pure Justice

Washington N.C. (Daily News)

Does not pure justice itself demand the death penalty for certain crimes?

Suppose those children out in California recently should have died in that underground quarry? Would not those persons who would have been guilty have deserved to die?

Let us ask ourselves some very searching questions. If a person goes into a bank to rob it and in the process he kills a cashier, has he not forfeited his right to live?

We see no connection here with race, color, economic position, age, or sex, but only the fact that a most serious crime has been committed.

Now capital punishment has become a very strong political issue in North Carolina. A recent poll shows that more than two-thirds of our citizens in this state believe in capital punishment.

And a lot of others, we suspect, would believe in it if crime ever strikes so close as to hurt those now against capital punishment.

We look at this matter of capital punishment, not as the political issue it has become today, but rather as a matter of justice — pure justice.

To our way of thinking, there are many times when pure justice demands that the guilty persons forfeit their lives.

We might argue that pure justice is impossible to come by. The challenge is ever there to seek pure justice however. And day by day, month by month, and year by year that challenge remains.

Pure justice means exactly what it says. There is no substitute. And the search is never really completed.

ANGELS

Biblical teachings regarding angels have received little attention in the history of the Christian church. The angels have been left to the artists.

But angels are mentioned in the Bible several hundred times. The word "angel" means "messenger." The angels are messengers from God who carry out His will. Generally they bring good news, but sometimes they pronounce judgment. They bear the souls of the departed to heaven. They do everything that a servant does for a master. Jesus definitely stated that children have guardian angels, and from this we are justified in assuming that these guardian angels remain with us throughout our lives, unless in perversity we thrust them from us.

The angels are higher than man but lower than God. They do not teach us — the Holy Spirit does that. They are not to be worshipped, since worship is reserved for God. As we think of them we should remind ourselves that God's watchful care over us never ceases.

Put The Voters On The Payroll

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — John Perry believes the country will go broke if the government keeps spending the way it has been, and he suggests as a solution that every registered voter be given, tax-free, $50 to $75 a year.

That recommendation might seem to be contradictory, but Perry insists it isn't, and Perry is a serious, intelligent, conservative gentleman, an innovative engineer, a wealthy manufacturer and former owner of a large newspaper chain.

He has convinced many doubters that his plan will work, and among them are esteemed economists, government officials and businessmen. His plan was considered for inclusion in the Republican Party platform.

Perry, who lives in Palm Beach, Fla., is the founder of the National Dividend Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization that seeks to preserve free enterprise by giving away some of the billions produced by corporations.

Instead of putting into the Treasury the $50 billion in taxes collected from corporations annually in recent years, his National Dividend Plan would distribute it to every person registered to vote.

In so doing, says Perry, whose foundation operates out of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., we would raise the income of the minimum wage-earner by 25 per cent or more, and lift at least one-half the poverty families out of that category.

Social Security and other benefits would be maintained. The dividend would provide a voting couple with $1,000 to $1,500 a year, over and above their income or benefits.

In the process, he continues, we would be able to cut government spending and inflationary pressure, encourage voting, help reduce the capital shortage that threatens economic expansion, raise consumer buying power generally, spur production and even raise corporate profits and the National Dividend itself.

"With the dividend," he explained, "people would have a vested interest in the system rather than in getting more from the government." And, he said, "it would get the people of the government's back and the government's back to the people's back."

Perry, who believes in income redistribution, feels the only way we can solve the financial needs of the underprivileged is through earnings. All other job or welfare plans he has seen, he said, simply add to government expenses.

"You can't buy success; you have to earn it," he said. The money earned by corporations, instead of going to the government, would be returned directly to the people as a dividend for their contributions to those profits.

"This would get everyone on the same side of the fence," he explained. "You're helping the system, increasing the standard of living and bypassing the

Reagan Came A Long Way From Movie Studio To Near-President

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There were tears in Ronald Reagan's eyes at the moment of his deepest disappointment as there had been once before at the scene of his greatest triumph.

There was a feeling of past experiences, watching the 65-year-old former actor, former governor, never-to-be president standing there with tears welling, bidding farewell to troops wildly loyal not just to the cause but to the man.

Some who remembered Ronald Reagan's beginnings, the first step from "Death Valley Days" and the midnight movie to the very brink of the Republican presidential nomination, also recalled the tears on the night of the man's greatest success in California 10 years ago.

There was something incongruous back in 1964 about this grade B actor suddenly showing up on television late in the presidential campaign, pleading with the voters on behalf of a lost cause — Barry Goldwater.

And after Goldwater's candidacy became a debacle that Republicans shunned in polite conversation, they still referred to that actor, that Reagan guy, who radiated such sincerity, such belief in his 11th hour appeal for the Goldwater cause.

It was that one speech that launched Reagan into the 1966 California primary for governor, and the Democrats laughed at him as a phony, a late-show freak and neophyte unskilled in the knife-sharp practice of politics.

One chain of television stations ran old Reagan movies before the general elections that year, showing candidate Reagan every night in a different role. The opposition's favorite advertisements showed Reagan as a cowboy, carrying a gun, or as detective or in some other role.

Now, they said, he wanted to play governor.

But Reagan spoke to California and California responded, enamored of the golden tones, the smile timed always right, the steady gaze into the camera. He was elected by about a million votes.

He chose midnight to be sworn in, to become California's governor.

It was a strange ceremony in the middle of the night. Reagan, tears welling, his voice tense and choked, took the oath and became California's governor. It would be his greatest role.

Those who were there and those who watched that bizarre TV late show remember the look, the sound of Ronald Reagan, actor now governor, as the full impact of what was happening to him struck home.

He wasn't just acting any more. He was the governor of a state populated by 15 million very real people.

So there was a similarity, watching Reagan the winner taking the oath of office and Reagan the loser bidding farewell to loyal legions.

"Don't get cynical," he told them. "Look at yourselves and what you are willing to do and recognize that there are millions and millions of Americans out there that want what you want, that want it to be that way, want it to be a shining city on the hill."

The tears came then and he turned away, saying, "I've done this once this morning, and I said I wouldn't do it again."

Failed In Break-In

Police said an attempted break-in was reported at Biggs Drug Store at 2:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Officers noted that a screen on a restroom had been torn, a window broken out and bars on the window had been pried on.

Damage was set at $15, although entrance to the building was not gained.

Smoke, Gas May Have Been Cause

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The mysterious deaths of 26 Legionnaires in Philadelphia might be the result of an interaction between cigarette smoke and freon gas from a faulty air conditioner, a former scientist at Oak Ridge National Laboratories speculates.

The Knoxville News-Sentinel reported Thursday that Dr. Norman Anderson, now a member of the surgery unit of the Medical University of South Carolina, made the assessment in a letter to the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Anderson speculated that a cigarette-freon interaction caused polymer fume fever — an industrial type ailment associated with super-hot Teflon, Fluon and freon, the gas used in refrigerators.

"The case reports on polymer fume fever in the animal studies on pyrolytic (burning) products suggests many parallels with the Legionnaires' experience including dry cough, high fever and bilateral (both lungs) pneumonia-like symptoms," he said.

The Legionnaires died after attending a state convention in Philadelphia the weekend of July 25.

Anderson's assessment was made as researchers in Philadelphia focused their attention on a water hose connecting drinking water with cold water lines for air conditioning at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Sorority Gets Award

The Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority of Greenville received an award for having the highest percentage of members present at ESA's 11th annual Leadership Seminar.

The seminar was held Saturday at McEwen Hall on the campus of Elon College. Beta Psi and Gamma Zeta Chapters of Burlington were the hostesses.

Michael Burns of Loveland, Col., executive director of ESA International, spoke on "ESA—Now and the Future." Jim Maloof of Peoria, Ill., a volunteer for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, spoke on "Enthusiasm—Involvement."

Maloof showed a film "Half Sung Song," showing different aspects of the children's hospital in Memphis, Tenn. St. Jude's is one of the ESA International philanthropic projects.

Attending from Alpha Omega chapter were Mrs. Louise Spain, Mrs. Barbara Woods, Mrs. Shirley Westbrook, Mrs. Barbara Zicherman, Mrs. Barbara Parker, Mrs. Margaret Roberts, Mrs. Mildred Hecker and Mrs. Linda Peele.

Leo Joseph Chenier Jr. of 1613 Longwood Dr. was charged with driving left of center following investigation of a 9:20 p.m. collision yesterday on North Overlook Drive, 30 feet East of the South Overlook Drive intersection.

Most Reagan Followers Will Support Ticket

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ronald Reagan supporters at the Republican National Convention, by a 4 to 1 margin of those responding to a survey, say they'll work for the Ford-

Dole ticket in the fall presidential campaign.

But more than one-third of those who said they are willing to work for the ticket said their principal efforts will go to other Republican candidates.

There was almost no support for a third-party effort among the more than 600 respondents to The Associated Press poll of Reagan delegates or their alternates conducted Thursday, the day after President Ford won the GOP presidential nomination. The number of those responding was more than half the total of 1,070 votes Reagan received in the presidential balloting.

The level of enthusiasm for campaign work varied widely among the backers of Reagan, and some said it was simply too soon for them to know what they'll feel like doing during the next two and a half months.

Peggy Wutke, a Reagan delegate from Nevada, said she'll work "with all my heart" for the national ticket.

Michael South, Reagan state chairman in Colorado, said, "Whatever the differences between ourselves and Mr. Ford, they do not compare with the differences between ourselves and Mr. Carter."

But Hugh Gregg, a Reagan delegate from New Hampshire, said the extent of his activity for Ford "depends entirely upon the tone of the Ford effort and its identification with the Reagan organization. It will be a very difficult ticket to elect without Reagan."

The survey, conducted by more than two dozen reporters, first asked Reagan delegates, "Now that President Ford has won the nomination and picked his running mate, will you work for their election this fall?"

Eighty-two per cent of those responding answered "yes," 6 per cent said "no" and 12 per cent said they don't yet know.

Among the more than 500 who said they would work for the ticket, 64 per cent said they would campaign actively. The others said they would endorse the ticket, but mostly work for other GOP candidates.

The more than 100 respondents who did not say they would work for Ford and Dole were asked what they did intend to do this campaign. Slightly more than half said they would vote for the ticket but not work for it.

Only seven persons answering the questionnaire said they would support a third party effort and just three said they would vote for Jimmy Carter, the Democratic nominee.

One of these three, Clara Giordano of Ford's home state of Michigan, said: "What's the difference? We might as well join the status quo and go with the winner."

Two delegates said they'd forget politics entirely and not even vote this year.

While turning the corporate tax over to the people, Perry would also call a moratorium on further federal spending. Originally, he wanted to cut back on spending; now he'll settle for no increases.

So that government functions aren't disrupted, the National Dividend would be phased into use — 20 per cent of corporate taxes the first year, 40 per cent the second, and so on to 100 per cent in five years.

The government, meanwhile, would be required to stop spending beyond its means, not by cutting programs but simply by not adding any more. Because of economic growth, Perry believes, there would be a budget surplus in five years.

A man of extraordinary energy and idealism, Perry, 59, is confident that his idea, for which he has been fighting for many years, will gain acceptance.

Father of six, registered Democrat, manufacturer of modular homes, head of three cable television companies, manufacturer of submarines, self-made multimillionaire, pioneer of modern newspaper technology and former operator of 28 newspapers, he has a record of accomplishing what's on his mind.

He tried to interest the Democrats at their convention but failed to have the proposal put into the platform. Considerable interest was shown at Kansas City, but again, perhaps because it appears revolutionary, it missed inclusion.

To Perry, the National Dividend isn't revolutionary at all, since it seeks only to return power to the people. He has high hopes that Congress will consider his proposals soon and get a bill passed quickly.

tor, was mentioned as a possible alternative presidential candidate, Helms was identified as an instigator of what was seen as a ploy to swing votes away from Ford. Buckley later withdrew.

Born 54 years ago in Monroe, N.C., Helms attributes his conservatism to his late father, who was the local police and fire chief, to his wife and to his high school principal. They encouraged him to seek an education, though it was during the depression.

He paid for his college education by digging utility post holes for 25 cents an hour and by washing dishes at a boarding house.

His switch from Democrat to Republican, he says, was a spur of the moment thing while accompanying his daughter, who was applying for a marriage license. She also decided to register for the first time — as a Republican — and chided him for not doing the same because of his record of often voting for GOP candidates. He then became a Republican.

back home, there won't be a campaign."

Strains within the Louisiana delegation are similar, though less severe. Rep. David Treen, one of the state's two Republican Congressmen, became a pariah within the 41-member Louisiana delegation, not merely because he was one of its five Ford votes, but because he so vigorously pushed the Ford line on the platform committee.

"I never knew before just how the Washington buddy system works," sadly commented national committee member John Cade, Treen's friend and campaign manager. In the platform subcommittee, Treen opposed the Reagan position on the Panama Canal which he had embraced in Congress; in the full committee, he surrendered on his anti-federal school aid plank under White House pressure; on the floor, he was prepared to speak against the anti-Kissinger foreign policy plank until the Ford campaign accepted it.

In Virginia and South Carolina, Reaganites vow vengeance against delegates who were chosen in caucuses after promising to back Reagan but switched to Mr. Ford. Hostility was directed against Georgia delegates who defied state convention instructions on procedural questions. North Carolina Reaganites left Kansas City incensed by chairman Rhodes's refusal to permit a roll call vote on the anti-Kissinger amendment.

There is precious little time between now and Nov. 2 to repair the damage done down South. Save for the highly improbable sacrificial offering of Henry Kissinger's head, no single act — such as selecting Sen. Bob Dole, popular among Southern Republicans — can repair his Southern condition. Like Thomas Dewey in 1944 and high Hubert Humphrey in 1968, Gerald Ford may soon confront the virtual impossibility of being elected President with the South against him.

Religious Life Key To Grace's Happiness

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—After 20 years of marriage, the one-time Hollywood star and the ruler of Monaco say the basis for successful, happy life together is their shared religious convictions.

"The discipline of one's faith is the cement that keeps a family together," says Prince Rainier.

The Princess, former actress Grace Kelly, seconds that view, saying:

"A similar Christian background and training is of great importance to harmony in family life, so that no matter what problems or discords may enter a family, the base is solid to fall back on in difficulties."

"I know for myself—in my own situation—marrying a man from a different country—different language—different culture and traditions—who was also a head of state with big responsibilities—it would have been extremely difficult without the strong basic bond of our religion."

The prince, 53, heavyset, in rumpled dark suit and square-toed loafers, and the still lovely princess, 46 in trim beige dress, a gold collar at her throat, her brown hair in a bun at her neck, spoke at the recent International Eucharistic Congress here.

They now have three children, Caroline, 19; Albert, 17, and Stephanie, 11, and the parents offered some tips on how to nurture the offspring.

Make the child feel secure, suggested the prince, and also give the child a strong faith, the Christian affirmation of love and goodness at the heart of life.

"At home a child yearns for a kind authority, a great deal of consideration and affection," he said. But in the long run, he added, a youngster's inner security depends on acquiring faith in God, a recognition that "above and beyond us, there is only one authority to whom we have committed ourselves in obedience."

In modern society, with so many materialistic preoccupations, he said, "we have reached the point where it is up to Christians, parents and religious soldiers of the church, to show the way."

Princess Grace, who starred in such movies as "High Noon," "High Society" and "Rear Window," winning an academy award before her marriage in 1956, says the most important thing to give a child is character.

The role of the wife and mother, she said, is primarily to "keep the family together" in a harmonious unit.

"It is essential to establish a fundamental discipline and respect within the family structure," she said. "This is mainly the mother's job—not only to teach her children to respect the authority of the father as natural head of the family but to respect each other and to respect themselves."

"We must provide our children with an identity—surround them with faith, hope and love," she said.

Riot Death Toll Climbs To 33

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Police said today a total of 33 blacks were killed in three days of antigovernment rioting in black townships around Port Elizabeth, the center of South Africa's automobile industry.

"More bodies have been found," a Port Elizabeth police spokesman said. "Some of them were killed by knives; others were run down by motor vehicles, and about two were shot."

Police said 19 more deaths had been confirmed. Many of the victims were killed by police gunfire.

The area around the southeastern coastal city was "relatively calm" today, a police spokesman said.

Police Minister James Kruger claimed in a speech Thursday night that almost all the organizers of South Africa's continuing racial upheavals have been arrested.

The Johannesburg Star newspaper reported today that 49 leaders of South Africa's growing "black consciousness" movement have been arrested in the past nine days. They are among an estimated 140 black leaders held under the detention-without-trial provisions of the Internal Security Act since renewed violence broke out in black townships last week.

Kruger has in the past blamed the disruptions on the importation of "black power ideology" from the United States. The dissident blacks have been protesting the white government's apartheid policies of racial segregation.

The latest deaths, raising the toll in racial violence to at least 252 dead since mid-June, came in rioting and clashes between police and blacks that began Tuesday in Port Elizabeth's three African townships.

All but three of those killed in the past two months have been black, and more than 1,500 persons have been injured.

The rioting spread outside the Port Elizabeth townships on Thursday, and for the first time industrial plants became a target. Until then, the violence had been confined to the black ghettos outside the cities, and the only effect on industry had been absenteeism caused by workers being prevented from getting to work. But on Thursday several hundred blacks tried to storm two automobile factories. Police gunfire drove them off.

South Africa's industrialists called for sweeping improvements in political, living and employment conditions in the riot-torn black townships which supply their labor force. The Transvaal Chamber of Industries sent a memorandum to Prime Minister John Vorster urging self-government in the segregated townships in which all urban blacks must live, improved housing, and an end to job and wage discrimination.

"To give the black employe the dignity and self-respect to which he is entitled, wages should be adequate for him to pay for the services he utilizes," the statement said.

The businessmen also said it was essential "to recognize the permanence of the urban black in contrast to viewing him as a temporary sojourner."

The curbs on the free movement of blacks were also criticized as well as "the very poor state of black education and training" and discrimination by white trade unions.

Under the apartheid system, blacks cannot vote, sit in parliament or hold government office, are not allowed to own real estate outside the tribal areas, cannot compete for jobs with whites, are not allowed to belong to trade unions and are paid inferior wages.

6,000 Believed Quake Victims

MANILA, The Philippines (AP)—President Ferdinand E. Marcos and his wife flew to devastated Cotabato City on the south coast of Mindanao island today to inspect areas ravaged by earthquakes and tidal waves earlier this week.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center said 3,131 bodies have been counted and that 3,117 persons are missing. Most of the missing were believed to have been swept out to sea and drowned by the tidal waves that followed the first of Tuesday's two severe quakes.

More than 150,000 persons were reported homeless, and Marcos said 60,000 were in relocation camps.

Reports from Mindanao, the Philippines' biggest southern island, said epidemics were feared in some areas. But officials said medical teams were coping adequately with the thousands of injured.

Military planes were ferrying emergency supplies of food, clothing and medicine to the stricken area. Officials said supplies of food and rice were adequate.

ENCHANTED ISLAND

It was too good to be true. Suddenly I found I had the opportunity to visit the land of my dreams — a tropical island! It was long ago when my beloved "rolling stone" uncle visited my home, brimming with stories of the fascinating, delightful South Seas. I had been convinced that life in this land would be a forever-happy thing.

And now the magical moment had come. I found that the sky was, indeed, bluer than blue, the flowers brilliant and luxurious, the sea clear and everchanging. Yes, it was all this and more.

But one day as I stood on the shore listening to the roaring rhyme of the waves, I realized that I was no happier than I had been before. I discovered that my problems were within me. How could I have assumed that happiness would be guaranteed on an enchanted island?

These thoughts prompted me to return to my church which I had ignored for many years. Here I found my faith was renewed, and I found self-respect and understanding that come from loving God and doing His will. I sensed anew that no man can expect to experience true happiness without Him. Hurry to your church — there to find the ingredients to make your days and your life glad and secure.

Modest Advance In Food Prices

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices, which have provided most of the nation's inflation relief recently, are expected to show a continued modest advance in the latest government figures.

There's a possibility the statistics could even show a drop in food costs when the Labor Department issues its monthly report on consumer prices today.

Generally, economists do not expect a dramatic change in the rate of inflation for July, although they feel a slower rise in consumer prices is more likely than a stepped up pace.

Consumer prices were up by five-tenths of 1 per cent in June, leaving them 5.9 per cent ahead of a year ago. This advance is expected to be smaller after the July report.

Much of the relief from the high rates of inflation of the previous three months can be attributed to food prices. They had declined for three consecutive months at the start of the year and as of June were only 3.7 per cent ahead of a year earlier.

If it hadn't been for food prices, inflation for the year ending June 30 would have been seven-tenths of 1 per cent higher at 6.6 per cent.

The latest figures contrast sharply with 1974, when the rise in food prices matched the over-all 12.2 per cent inflation. By the end of 1975, food prices were up 6.2 per cent and already showing a slower growth than the over-all inflation rate of 7 per cent.

The slowing of the rise in food prices has resulted from improved weather at home and abroad, and fallout from the high prices of 1974.

The higher prices encouraged farmers to plant bigger crops, and with the cooperation of the weather, the U.S. is expected to harvest a record corn crop this year, a near-record wheat crop, and a soybean crop that should be in line with demand.

These harvests are being supplemented by improved harvests abroad. Sizable wheat sales to the Soviet Union, for example, were a factor in the rapid rise of food prices. But the Agriculture Department reported recently that the Soviet wheat and grain crop for this year is expected to be better than anticipated.

Still, what pressure there is behind rising food prices is coming from abroad. A killing frost in the Brazilian coffee fields, for instance, is blamed for the recent run-up in coffee prices.

Debates Figured To Work In Ford's Favor

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — By selecting Robert Dole as his running mate and promising a debate with Jimmy Carter, President Ford is setting a campaign course marked by familiar Republican themes in a strategy at once traditional and unusual.

Dole is Ford's ideological brother, a political scrapper who probably will concentrate on attacking Carter and the Democratic Congress.

That is the traditional role of the vice presidential nominee, leaving the President to appear presidential and above the eye-gouging, fist-swinging combat of the political arena. The main theme of the Republican attacks on Carter will be an effort to paint both the candidate and the Democratic Congress as big spenders whose policies spawn inflation and sap individual freedom.

But in a departure from the normal political strategy of incumbents, Ford offered in his acceptance speech Thursday night to debate Carter, a certain sign of the concern of a campaign trailing even before the race begins.

Departing from his prepared speech, Ford said he would "debate the real issues face-to-face with Jimmy Carter."

Carter quickly accepted, saying he wanted a format that would allow for "tough examination" with questions posed by the news media.

Since the celebrated 1960 television debate between rivals John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon it has been accepted political wisdom that incumbent presidents avoid debating their rivals, but Ford said, "The American people have the right to know first hand exactly where we both stand."

Ford and his advisers, conscious of polls showing him trailing Carter, decided the President had much to gain and nothing to lose by a debate with the former Georgia governor.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Ford had been considering debating Carter for the last 10 days, but had left the proposal out of the text of his speech so he could surprise the Republican delegates.

Nessen said he had not yet officially heard of Carter's proposal to debate, but said "If he accepts the challenge to debate we hope it finally will get him to state his stands on some of the issues."

He added that Ford had said it will take a series of debates "before the American people can get a clear idea of Carter's stands on the issues."

Asked what format Ford would prefer for the debates, Nessen said "The President's own view is that good hard questioning by good tough reporters would be a good way to do it."

In choosing Dole, a Kansas senator now in his second term, Ford deliberately ignored considerations of geography by picking a fellow Midwesterner.

He made no move toward an ideological broadening of the ticket, either. Dole, a former Republican national chairman, is also a conservative. And Ford ignored those who suggested he pick someone from outside Washington. Since Dole is a senator, he did not fit that category either.

Seeking Animal

APEX, N.C. (AP) — A biologist from the state Wildlife Commission planned to take plaster casts today of tracks left by a marauding animal that killed at least five pigs and a half-grown cow south of Apex.

Charles Stephens, who saw the remains of the carnage Thursday, said, "It's a terrible mess to look at. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it myself."

Stephens said tracks, about five inches wide with the mark of two large claws in front, were found in a pig pen near the house of Ricky Evans.

The animal ripped a leg from the cow.

Usual Fare From Nonaligned

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer
COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Leaders of the nonaligned movement returned home today after another call for a new international economic order and the usual criticism of the United States and its Western allies.

Communist and socialist countries were spared the harsh words.

Political and economic declarations approved Thursday at the end of the four-day, 85-nation summit conference condemned the West in specific and general terms. But the language of the economic statement was relatively restrained.

Diplomatic observers said this reflected awareness that the underdeveloped Third World can't achieve an economic breakthrough without the cooperation of industrialized North America, Western Europe and Japan.

The conference produced two unexpected moves: plans for the Third World countries to start their own commercial bank and a call for oil embargoes against France for agreeing to sell a nuclear reactor to South Africa and against Israel for contracting to build corvettes for the South African navy.

Although 10 of the 14 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) also belong to the nonaligned movement, no embargo is likely. The OPEC nations have never reduced their prices because of the hardships they cause other underdeveloped nations, and they are not likely to reduce their revenues for the remote possibility that this might benefit the blacks of South Africa.

The conference also asked the U.N. Security Council to impose a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa. This, too, is unlikely to be achieved.

The demand for a new economic order that would transfer wealth and technology to the developing countries has been made repeatedly at Third World meetings and in the United Nations. The have-not nations want a new monetary system in which they would have a big voice, curbs on multinational corporations, easier repayment terms for their debts and stockpiling of the major raw materials they produce so they can keep the prices up.

The conference approved political declarations and resolutions that:

—Accused the United States, France, West Germany and Britain of supporting white minority rule in southern Africa;

—Chided the United States for its military presence in South Korea but made no mention of the new tension resulting from the clash Wednesday in which two Americans and three North Koreans were reported killed.

—Condemned the presence of "foreign and imperialist military bases and installations" in the Indian Ocean, including the U.S. naval base on the island of Diego Garcia.

—Welcomed Soviet-American detente and said it should be made worldwide with the cooperation of the nonaligned nations.

—Accused Israel of aggression by its rescue of hijacked hostages from the Entebbe, Uganda, airport.

Enthusiasm For Ticket Scarce Among Tar Heels

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Enthusiasm for the Republican ticket of President Ford and Kansas Sen. Bob Dole was scarce Thursday night among members of the North Carolina delegation.

On the final night of the Republican National Convention, the only bright moment for the delegation that had overwhelmingly supported Ronald Reagan came as Sen. Jesse Helms' name was placed in nomination for vice president.

Cheering wholeheartedly for the first time of the evening, the delegation chanted, "We want Jesse" after Maryland Rep. Robert Bauman called on the convention to vote for "a man who isn't afraid to say what he believes."

Helms, a strong Reagan supporter who helped shape the party's platform on foreign policy, used the occasion to serve notice he hopes President Ford will actively follow the policy statements adopted by the convention.

"It is important that we say what we mean and mean what we say and the way to do that is through a firm, unequivocal platform," the North Carolina senator said. "We have an excellent platform and we must run on that platform. We must not distort it in the name of politics as usual."

Helms then withdrew his name from consideration for the vice presidential nomination and urged support for Ford's choice, Bob Dole. North Carolina cast its 54 votes solidly for the Kansas senator, as requested by Helms, but there were deep doubts about the Ford-Dole team on the mind of many members of the delegation.

"I'm not going to be overly enthusiastic about the ticket, but I'm going to work for it as best I can," said Tom Ellis, a Raleigh attorney who headed the delegation. "Frankly, I'm somewhat pessimistic about the outlook because Jimmy Carter is a very strong candidate and I think we needed a man like Ronald Reagan on the ticket."

Fred Hutchins Jr. of Winston-Salem also expressed reservations about the Ford-Dole team and said he doubted the Kansas senator would strengthen the party's chances in North Carolina, even though Dole is married to the former Mary Elizabeth Hanford of Salisbury.

"I think it was a strategic blunder to pick a lackluster Midwesterner to go with a lackluster Midwesterner," Hutchins said. "I can work for this ticket, but not as happily as I would have if Reagan had been on it."

The standing joke in the North Carolina delegation Thursday was that "when you say Dole most people think of Pineapples," but Gov. James Holshouser, a strong Ford supporter who was refused a delegate spot by a Reagan-dominated state convention, said he believed the Kansas would have great appeal for the state's voters.

"Senator Dole has been to North Carolina many times and many people there are well acquainted with him and like him," Holshouser said. "I think he has wide appeal. He's strong for agriculture, which is one of our major industries."

The governor added he hoped the state party would put its dispute over the presidential nomination aside and unite behind Ford and Dole to take on the Democrats in the November elections.

"That's the issue now — whether we want to keep a Republican in the White House," Holshouser said. "I think this is a ticket we can all support and I think we will. We have to if we want to win in November."

Fire Hits

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A two-alarm downtown fire badly damaged a shoe store and a variety store Thursday night, and injured two firemen.

Twenty-five off-duty firemen were called in. Seven fire engines, two ladder trucks, a snorkel unit and a rescue unit were dispatched.

Two firemen were overcome by smoke and heat in the building on Main Street. They were treated at High Point Memorial Hospital and released.

"There is a definite need for measuring the quality of teachers and the progress of the students," Janice Buck said.

"Prospective industries are concerned about the educational facilities in our area because of the families that they will bring with them and because of the quality of the people that they intend to hire here. At this time we don't stack up to national statistics concerning testing of students," Art Galya said.

Other discussion of public and governmental affairs concerned the competition of the 264 highway.

Rep. Horton Rountree said that the Highway 264 project is not even in a planning committee, but he expects that it will be put back into a planning committee because the economy is better now for road building.

Topics discussed concerning economic and industrial development include the following: regional conference center, jobs for all, increased wages, include Grifton into the Greenville community, and adequate public facilities for future development.

A study for a regional conference center was a suggestion of the chamber.

"The tax base is too low for equal employment for all. If we could offer equal employment for all it would decrease the crime rate, increase the educational status, eliminate many housing problems, and decrease social services," Phillips said.

Many people can get more money not to work. This takes away the incentive," Mrs. Lucille Gorham said.

"We need to increase the wage base and need a larger span between wages and welfare," Phillips added.

"In view of the fact that the community is growing, growth problems are coming also. Paying low wages to public servant, like police officers and firemen is not good. We need good, qualified, well paid police officers as the town grows. They are our line of defense and they need more attention paid to them," Lawton Nisbet said.

The major topic of discussion concerned the organization of chamber involvement in the community activities.

"During a personal survey in the six weeks that I have been in Greenville I have questioned the leadership of the community and found that many of the leaders are persons who are in their graves. We invited the city council and the county board of commissioners to our meeting today to sit down and discuss problems of our community and to set goals. We need to identify the problems and the work on misguided efforts and lack of information," Chamber Manager Ed Walker said.

"We can educate the people about what the Chamber of Commerce is by getting into these programs. We should have representatives monitoring the meetings of government bodies," Walker said.

"One of the biggest problems is a lack of communication. The people who are in office will not listen unless they are in their positions of authority. City Council members and county commissioners were invited to meet with us today. Why aren't they here?" Mrs. Buck said.

"The chamber is one of the largest organizations in the county and we have previously not been interested in the state and local affairs. We should monitor the action of the governmental agencies and contact members through our newsletter to promote action," Walker said.

"I have been a member of the Chamber of Commerce for 15 years and I have never seen the enthusiasm that I have seen tonight. Ed has us on the right road and we can get things undertaken if we can get the officials to listen to us," Ken Watkins said.

"We have said tonight that the chamber is concerned. Now we must appoint effective committees who can actively serve our chamber. We need the committees to be concerned about these problems and we need to get the Board of Directors to take a stand on the issues and put the Chamber of Commerce on record. Once we can build a reputation we can take any stand and it will mean something to community," Frost said.

"I think that we should take a bus tour of the city and the county schools to see the schools, and to talk with the principals, teachers and students and to eat lunch there. This way we will see what the school system looks like. This seems to be our main priority tonight and we should take this tour right away," Walker said.

"I have worked in 40 local governments and it is evident that the city council can do everything. They can react to problems, but they do not have all of the necessary time to sit and think about the problems nor do they have the time to anticipate many problems. This is where the Chamber of Commerce can help out. One of the biggest advantages of the Chamber of Commerce is that it can anticipate many of the problems and let the council know about them," Schofield said.

The chamber listed the following as top priorities of its reorganization:

- Organization of community involved committees.
- Serving as a community support base.
- Monitoring governmental affairs meetings.
- Professional training for members about public awareness.
- More political forums with candidates.

The six hour planning session included afternoon speakers. They are as follows: Mrs. Janice Buck, "Community Development"; Rep. Horton Rountree, "Public and Governmental Affairs"; Reese Hart, "Economic and Industrial Development"; and Ed Walker, "Organizational Development".

Special guests at the meeting included Rep. Sam Bundy, Rep. Horton Rountree and Sen. Vernon White.

to their followers that the contest is over and it is time to unite against the common enemy.

But when Reagan began to speak, the hall grew silent. He recalled the cheers that had greeted his arrival in the hall hours earlier. "They give us a memory that will live in our hearts forever," he said.

Among the delegates who had given Reagan 1,070 votes, 60 short of the majority he sought for the presidential nomination, many wept.

The former California governor referred to the "erosion of freedom that has taken place under Democratic rule."

He told the delegates that although they belonged to a minority party, their actions could significantly affect the course of American history.

"We must go forward from here united, determined," Reagan said.

Then he embraced Betty Ford, and greeted others on the podium. Minutes later, the convention ended.

After his defeat Wednesday night, Reagan pledged to campaign for Ford. And Ford acknowledged the pledge in his acceptance speech when he said that "after the scrimmages of the past few months, it really feels good to have Ron Reagan on the same side of the line."

But only the campaign itself will demonstrate whether the show of unity that ended the Republican convention or the one that ended the Democratic convention a month earlier will hold up, whether wounds will heal, whether supporters of the

Reward Offered

Officials of Blount and Ball reality company are offering a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who took an estimated $1,150 worth of building materials from a construction site in the Lynndale Subdivision last night, or the return of the materials.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the theft was reported to police at 9:20 a.m. today.

He noted that thieves took a reported 60 four feet by eight feet sheets of plywood and 800 two-by-fours eight feet long from a Wesley Drive construction site.

"I have been called an uneducated president, an accidental president," Ford said.

"Having become vice president and president, without expecting or seeking either," he added, "I have a special feeling toward these high offices.

"To me, the presidency and the vice presidency were not prizes to be won, but a duty to be done.

Baltimore Dines On Split Peas Served By Minnesota Twins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles suffered another dose of indigestion Thursday after sampling the peas served up by Bill "Soupy" Campbell.

"When Campbell's throwing like he was for those couple of innings, he's not throwing peas, he's throwing split peas," Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch said after the bullpen ace preserved the Twins' 5-4 victory over the Orioles.

Campbell entered the game with two on and two out in the seventh inning. He retired Tony Muser on a grounder and then set down the final six batters, striking out three and earning his 15th save to go with 12 relief wins, five short of the American League record.

In other AL action, Milwaukee turned back Kansas City 6-4, Cleveland outslugged Texas 7-5, Detroit edged California 5-4 and the Chicago White Sox downed Boston 4-2. New York and Oakland were not scheduled.

The Twins came from behind twice, wiping out a 2-0 deficit in the fifth and then getting three in the bottom of the sixth after the Orioles scored twice in the top half. Although Dave Paga was charged with the loss, Tippy Martinez walked Lyman Bostock with the bases loaded to force in the winning run and drop the Orioles 11 games behind the idle Yankees in the AL East.

At the first sign of trouble in the seventh, Mauch wig-wagged for Campbell.

"There's no way I'm going to let this one get by us," he said, even though starter Bill Singer insisted he was still strong. "We've just got so far behind too many times recently, and when we've got a chance I'm not going to let it slip by."

"I kept telling him I felt good," Singer said, "but it didn't do any good and I guess it worked out."

West Hired To Coach Former Los Angeles Team

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke ended his feud with Jerry West, hired the all-star basketball player to coach his Los Angeles Lakers and now undoubtedly will demand a championship team.

West had filed a $6-million suit against Cooke claiming the owner hadn't lived up to his last playing contract two years ago.

Cooke had filed a $2-million countersuit claiming West hadn't lived up to what was expected from him, but in an amicable news conference, the 38-year-old former star guard said, "My differences with Mr. Cooke are settled. I'm extremely pleased with the terms of the contract."

Those terms were not divulged but reports were that Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas had been offered a five-year, $350,000 contract to coach the Lakers. West's pact couldn't be less.

Called "Mr. Clutch" and "Zeke from Cabin Creek" in reference to his West Virginia background, West joined the Lakers in 1960 when they moved from Minneapolis to Los Angeles. On 13 occasions, he was the National Basketball Association's all-star guard.

Admitting he'll be under pressure, West said, "I haven't seen the player yet who didn't think he's smarter than the coach."

Cooke pondered his coaching selection for six months after the end of the NBA season, the second in a row in which the Lakers failed to reach the playoffs. Then he announced that Bill Sharman would have a front office job. That turns out to be assistant general manager.

West must coach Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the 7-foot-2 All-NBA center who enters his second year with the Lakers.

JERRY WEST

"I don't plan to change his style of play," the new coach declared. "We won't have men crowding into an area so he will have more movement. We'll stress defense and I think we'll be stronger in the defensive game."

And the coach himself said, "I wanted this job very badly. After all, I haven't done anything for two years. I'm happy to be back in basketball."

World Series Opens Tonight

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Two games tonight and four Saturday get the eight-day Babe Ruth World Series for baseball teams in the 16-18-year age group under way.

Host Kinston joins eight regional tournament winners in the field for the double elimination event.

The schedule for today's kickoff included a breakfast with Rod Dedeaux, University of Southern California baseball coach, as the speaker.

The 7 p.m. (EDT) opener sends Kinston against Delaware. The second game matches Stamford, Conn., against North San Gabriel Valley, Calif., at about 8:45 p.m.

Four other teams make their first start Saturday afternoon. Seattle plays Hammond, Ind., at 12:30 and Mobile, Ala., faces

Brooklyn Center, Minn., at 2:30.

Lubbock, Tex., which drew a first round bye, opens the Saturday night program at 6:30 against the Kinston-Delaware winner.

The two Friday night losers play at 8:30 Saturday night. That loser will be the first team eliminated.

Two games are set for Sunday, at 4:30 and 7 p.m.

Games Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are set for 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. One game will be played Thursday, at 7 p.m., and the windup is set for 6:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 27.

Snead, Palmer Are In Third; Massengale Takes Hartford Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Pro golf's nostalgia buffs were in their glory.

There was Sam Snead, that 64-year-old relic from the days of the hickory shafts, one-putting nine times from his side-saddle stance and happily chortling: "If I could keep this up, they might be able to coax me back to the tour."

Snead, with his trademark, a brightly-banded Panama straw hat firmly in place, converted his best putting round in years into a 68. That was just three strokes off the pace of Rik Massengale, whose six-under-par 65 was all but overshadowed by the heroics of another generation of golfing greats Thursday in the first round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

There was Arnold Palmer, 46, a winner of this tournament 20 years ago, holing out his approach shot for an eagle two on the first hole and then bringing home a 68.

"I hit the wedge just the way I wanted to," Palmer solemnly announced of the 70-yard shot that ripped a joyous roar of appreciation from his huge gallery on the first hole.

There was Art Wall, 52, a winner here a decade ago, moving into a tie for second with a 67 despite a bogey on the final hole. "I shot 63 in the last round last year with a bogey on that hole," Wall recalled. "I just don't play it very well. Maybe I'm just choking. Maybe I'm just a bad player," said the soft-spoken man who won the Masters and Player of the Year honors in 1959.

And there was Billy Casper, 45, once one of the game's premier putters, who used a refound touch for a 67 that included two putts of 35-40 feet in length and three more from about 15 feet.

"It's been a long time since I had a round like this," said Billy, who won the first of his four Hartford titles 13 years ago.

That quartet of challengers chasing Massengale, a 29-year-old Texan who has won but once, totals 208 years in age and has a combined accumulation of 210 official tour titles.

Wall, subject of the first interview in the first round of the inaugural Hartford tournament a quarter of a century ago, and Casper were tied for second two strokes off the pace with J.C. Snead, Sam's nephew, and Chi Chi Rodriguez, himself 40 years old.

The large group with Snead and Palmer at 68 included Lee Trevino, Homero Blancas, Jim Colbert, Mac McLendon, Tom Jenkins, Jim Wiechers, Bobby Wadkins and Dave Lind.

Hubert Green, a three-time winner this year, shot a 70. So did Al Geiberger. Defending champ Don Bies shot 72. Masters king Ray Floyd must improve from a 73 if he's to make the cut for the final two rounds. And Dave Stockton, the newly-crowned PGA king, blew to a 76.

NEW LOOK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Giants did not stop with Larry Conka when they went looking to the defunct Memphis Southmen for offensive help during the offseason. The Giants also signed six of the seven starters off the Southmen offensive line, which enabled Conka & Co. to rush for a league-high average of 193 yards per game over their one and a half seasons in existence.

Full Field Still Expected

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
AP Sports Writer
SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Officials at the Tennis Week Open awaited word here today on whether more women players would drop out of the tournament in reaction to the entry of transsexual Dr. Renee Richards.

Gene Scott, tournament director, said Thursday that 15 players had been dropped because "they didn't intend on coming."

"I'm sure we'll lose some more," Scott said, but he guaranteed a full 32-member field for Saturday's start of the $60,000 event. "I've got a waiting list of 30 or more."

Scott said "a number of sources" had told him that at least four of the women — Wendy Overton, Val Ziegenfuss, Janet Newberry and Cynthia Doerner — "were parading around the Canadian Open in Toronto persuading the other women from playing our tournament."

tennis will be playing in a Philadelphia tournament next week.

Richards, 41, a California eye surgeon who last year had a sex-change operation, will face Cathy Beene of Houston, Tex., in the tournament's first center court match at 1 p.m.

Before the operation, Richards was nationally ranked in the men's 35-and-over category. She will play here as an amateur.

Others dropped from the draw were Glynis Coles, Sandy Stap, Donna Ganz, Laura Dupont and Helen Gourlay.

Top-seeded Terry Holladay and second-seeded Ann Kiyomura are still entered, Scott said.

A spokesman for ABC-TV said Thursday the Richards-Beene match would be shown on tape on the network's "Wide World of Sports" later Saturday.

Richards won a professional tournament in La Jolla, Calif., last month, besting Robin Harris, 20, the top seed, in the finals. Tournament officials there did not learn of Richards' operation until after the finals.

Richards' personal life received widespread publicity when it was revealed she had filed an entry for the U.S. Open. Earlier this week, the United States Tennis Association announced that Richards would have to pass a chromosome test, like those administered in the Olympics, to prove she is a woman.

Scott said he accepted Richards' entry on "face value. She's a woman and that's all there's to it."

He termed the chromosome test "absurd and simplistic" and said he "accepted her application after I received a gynecological report stating she was a woman."

"Based on those reports, I excluded these girls and those who apparently had the ear of the ringleaders," Scott said.

Scott said when he talked to Cathy May she said, "She would follow the leaders" and not compete.

"The second reason that the 15 girls were dropped was because the Women's Tennis Association issued a letter to its players withdrawing its sanction of the tournament," Scott said. "The letter says that a man is playing in our tournament. The letter is patently incorrect."

The tournament, the annual warmup to the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., is a major men's event. The women's event carries a first prize of $1,800, while the men's winner gets $10,000. Most of the top names in women's professional

ASU Hopes Rest On Price, Hamilton, Simon And Craig

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

For the last two years, Appalachian State has flirted with a Southern Conference football championship, but each time, that goal has eluded the Mountaineers.

This year, however, might be the year they make it all come true.

Coach Jim Brakefield feels that his team will be potent again, mainly because quarterback Robbie Price is back for a third year as a starter—and still just a junior.

Joining him are halfbacks Emmitt Hamilton and Calvin Simon, plus good depth behind them. John Craig, the fullback, is the lone senior in the backfield.

Last year's Mountaineer team finished the year seventh in the nation in total offense, running up 418.6 yards per game. They were eighth in scoring, 30.6 ppg, and ninth in rushing, 312.5 ypg. And in each of these, they were first in the Southern Conference.

The year ended with ASU holding an 8-3 record and a 3-2 league mark. They beat Wake Forest and South Carolina, but were stunned by Furman and eventual champ Richmond. Their other loss was to Western Carolina in another shocker.

This year, things could be even better overall, and Brakefield hopes that the Southern record will be without blemish.

Only two starters are gone from the offensive unit, and with Price leading those returners, the offense could be potent. "We think Price is the best quarterback in North Carolina, and he could be the best in the South," Brakefield said. "Our entire backfield looks strong."

Donnie Holt returns, leading the receivers, while split end Devon Ford moves to the defensive secondary. He'll still return punts, a job he handled well enough for national ranking last season.

Gil Beck returns at center, and Brakefield feels he is definitely All-America caliber. Another top star back is punter Joe Parker, who led the nation two years ago, and was fifth in the country last season.

Gary Davis, the leading scorer in the conference, returns as the place kicker. He booted 81 points during the season, and ranked nationally in three categories.

"We've got to improve our defense to be a better club," the coach said. Just three starters were lost, but Brakefield feels that moving Ford to the backfield will be a key move.

Mike Staton and Julius Thomas return at linebacker, and three starters from the interior line also are back. Quinton McKinney is back at one of the secondary positions, giving some experience there.

"The offense carries us last year, and it may do it again, but I'd like to think that the defense will be improved. Speed is going to be an important factor for us."

As to winning a conference title, Brakefield would like to think the Mountaineers could do it. "But if we lose Price or two or three other key people, we could be in a great deal of trouble."

Appalachian opens early. Its first game is on September 4, and it's a toughie. The Mountaineers will be after the team they upset last year, South Carolina. If they win that one, it might be a downhill glide from there to a title — or last game fight for it with East Carolina.

Loss Shocks Colts Back Into Reality

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Sometimes a loss can be a good thing — especially if it happens in an exhibition game. Sitting in a locker room and listening to a coach warn against overconfidence is one thing. Looking up at the scoreboard after 60 minutes of football and finding your team on the short end is another.

"We've finally learned we can't show up, get ahead and have our opponents roll over and play dead," said Baltimore's exciting kick return specialist, Howard Stevens, after the Colts were knocked off by the Chicago Bears 25-14 last week.

"We didn't practice well all week for the Bears," said Stevens, who played two years for the New Orleans Saints before being traded to Baltimore last season. "Then we played just like we practiced, and we were unable to suddenly turn on to 100 per cent."

The Colts, who won their first two preseason games before being shot down by the Bears, host New Orleans in one of three National Football League exhibition games scheduled tonight. The others are Green Bay at Buffalo and the New York Giants at Pittsburgh.

Saturday night's schedule lists Miami at Tampa Bay, New England at Atlanta, Washington at Kansas City, Detroit against Dallas at Memphis, St. Louis at Chicago, the New York Jets at Houston, Los Angeles at Oakland, Seattle at Denver and San Francisco against San Diego at Honolulu.

Cincinnati is at Minnesota for a Sunday afternoon game, while Cleveland at Philadelphia closes out the weekend action Monday night.

New Orleans, following an opening loss to Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh, has beaten Houston and Buffalo in its last two starts. New Coach Hank Stram is anxious to instill a winning spirit in the Saints, 2-12 last season.

"It's important for a young team like ours to relate to a winning experience," Stram said. "We must establish a feeling of confidence now that will carry over into the regular season."

Stram's Saints showed a strong ground game in beating Buffalo 21-14 last week, rushing for 237 yards. Rod McNeill led the way with 80 and Mike Strachan had 60.

Unbeaten Pittsburgh goes for its fifth straight victory against the Giants, 2-1, in a nationally-televised (ABC, 8 p.m., EDT) battle. The Giants, coming off two wins in three days — 16-14 over the Jets, 30-14 over Houston — will face a stern test in the Steelers, who have uncovered a pleasant surprise in rookie running back Jack Delplane, top ground-gainer of the preseason with 220 yards in 35 carries.

Buffalo, 0-3 and still without O.J. Simpson, will open with Gary Marangi at quarterback in an attempt to perk up a Juice-less offense which has managed just 41 points in three games. Green Bay, 2-1, has its top two quarterbacks — Lynn Dickey and Don Milan — out with injuries, so Carlos Brown will get the call.

The Giants-Steelers is the first of three TV games this weekend. The others are Los Angeles, 3-0, at Oakland, 3-0, Saturday on NBC at 9 p.m. EDT, and Cincinnati, 3-0, at Minnesota, 1-2, Sunday on CBS at 1:30 p.m., EDT.

Lum Shift Fails, Braves Lose, 3-2

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves pulled one out of left field against the Cincinnati Reds.

"I've seen the Willie McCovey shift and the Henry Aaron shift, but never bringing an outfielder in to play the infield," said Mike Lum, shaking his head.

The "Mike Lum Shift" installed by Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol Thursday night brought left fielder Tom Paciorek in to play the infield, giving the Braves three fielders on the right side.

Lum, who doesn't consider himself a pull hitter, was baffled by the move — but obviously not shaken by it. He smashed a single through the dramatic overshift into right field to score the winning run in the Reds' 3-2, 11-inning victory.

"That's a Gene Mauch play all the way, no ifs, ands or buts," noted Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

He added: "If you're going to pull in outfielders, though, you just as well should bring them all in. But you know what it really is in that situation? You pray. That's the best play — you pray. At that point, it is how do I want my poison."

The Reds had men on second and third at the time with Lum in a pinch-hitter's role and the dangerous Pete Rose on deck.

"I pitched to Lum," pointed out Bristol, "because Rose with 2,700 lifetime hits is not going to beat me."

Pirates 1, Giants 0
John Candelaria scattered nine hits and scored the game's only run as Pittsburgh beat San Francisco. The shutout was the third of the season for Candelaria, 12-4, with two coming against the Giants. He hurled a two-hit victory at Candlestick Park on April 25.

Phillies 7, Astros 1
Steve Carlton pitched a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory and Mike Schmidt belted his 32nd home run as Philadelphia beat Houston. Carlton, 15-4, struck out six and walked two in earning his 10th triumph in his last 11 decisions.

Dodgers 6, Mets 5
Steve Garvey blasted a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning and Ron Cey followed with a game-winning solo shot as Los Angeles rallied for a comeback victory over New York.

Roster Limits On Top Of Policy List

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The crunch and the groan are still to be heard in hallways around the National Football League.

"Down to the crunch" is how NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle describes hard-nosed, late-night, eyeball-to-eyeball talks among the owners of the 28 clubs when it comes time to set policy.

One policy still to be decided is just how many players will be permitted on each team's roster during the regular season.

And when it's decided, it'll be groan time as players in the various camps find themselves out of jobs.

Just how many will be groaning may not be known for another 10 days or so. Representatives of the club owners met Thursday, ostensibly to decide the regular-season roster size. But when they were told that an even stickier situation — the long-standing contract dispute with the players' union — might be nearing settlement, they decided to pass.

Instead, they limited themselves to the next preseason cut. By Tuesday, the 26 established teams have to be down to 49 players plus the late arrivals from the College All-Star Game. Tampa Bay and Seattle, the expansion entries for the 1976 season, will remain at the current limit of 60, plus all-stars.

"Negotiators for the NFL players and owners have progressed to a point where they believe a vote by their memberships on a collective bargaining agreement is a possibility prior to the start of the regular season," Rozelle said, explaining why the clubs deferred to a regular-season roster limit. Such a limit would be a part of that agreement.

The owners plan to meet again Sept. 1 in New York. If no contract agreement has been reached, they'll get down to the crunch on the rosters.

Not that they have to. The NFL's by-laws set them at 36 players — but each season it has been amended on a one-year basis to permit more per team, usually in the mid-40s. The last two seasons the limits have been 43. For several years before that it was 47.

The poorer clubs, talent-wise, generally push for a lower figure. The teams with more talent generally want a higher one. In each case the reason is obvious.

Say you own the Pittsburgh Steelers or Washington Redskins. You've got a ton of good running backs, virtually all of whom could be starters on most lubs, including your own.

A higher limit gives you more leeway. A lower limit and you've got to release some of them.

Say you own the Chicago Bears or New York Jets and really need a solid, front-line runner. A lower number means some of those choice performers on the Steelers or Redskins might be in the hopper. A higher one and you'll never see their names on the cut list.

PILOTS' PILOT
SEATTLE (UPI) — Joe Schultz was the Seattle Pilots manager in 1969, their only year of existence. The American League club moved to Milwaukee the following season and became known as the Brewers.

Dole Is Not Afraid Of A Fight

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Robert Dole is a sharp-tongued adversary, a man who doesn't walk away from a fight even if he's battling President Ford, who picked him as his running mate.

In public, the Kansas senator lashes out with sarcasm and brashness when he's on the attack. In private, he's a different person, quiet and even-tempered.

His bare-knuckled style, often displayed in defending the Nixon administration during the Watergate scandal and on the stump as national GOP chairman, once caused a fellow Republican, former Sen. William Saxbe of Ohio, to call Dole a "hatchet man."

But Democrats aren't the only ones Dole's not afraid to fight.

In recent months, he has criticized Ford's budget-cutting moves, particularly proposals for reductions in food stamps and limits on Social Security benefits. In turn, a Senate food stamp bill largely authored by Dole is opposed by the Ford administration, which has promised to veto it.

As a representative of a major wheat-growing state, Dole also has had trouble back home with the administration's grain embargoes against the Soviet Union.

But Dole and Ford, who spent eight years together in the House, are longtime friends and both are conservative loyalists of the Republican party. "His philosophy and mine coincide almost exactly," Ford said Thursday in naming Dole to the No. 2 post. "He has been a great team player."

Dole, 53, is midway through his second Senate term.

In 1971, his ardent defense of the Nixon administration's handling of the war in Southeast Asia earned him a two-year assignment as national chairman of the Republican party, succeeding Rogers C.B. Morton, who now is Ford's campaign manager. Then, after the Watergate scandal, Dole emerged as one of Richard M. Nixon's chief defenders.

Dole grew up in Russell, Kan., where his father operated a cream and egg station. His early plans to pursue a medical career were derailed when World War II broke out.

He rose to the rank of captain before being hit by shrapnel while leading an infantry charge against a machine-gun nest in Italy. His right shoulder was shattered and his vertebrae cracked, and he spent the next 39 months in hospitals. Even now, he has a partially immobile right arm, which accounts for his left-handed handshake.

With the retirement of Kansas Sen. Frank Carlson in 1968, Dole moved to the Senate by defeating former Gov. William H. Avery for the GOP nomination and winning the general election with more than 60 per cent of the vote.

His work in the Senate has earned Dole a conservative record.

In 1974, the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action gave Dole a rating of 84 per cent out of a possible 100. At the same time, the liberal Americans for Democratic Action rated Dole at 20 out of a possible 100.

Calm Period For Volcano

BY NAT CARNES
Associated Press Writer
POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — "We expect a calm period at the volcano of at least 20 days," French Overseas Minister Olivier Stirn told reporters Thursday night after a helicopter trip around the steam-wreathed peak of the Soufriere volcano.

The government announced that farmers who were evacuated from around the 4,869-foot volcano last weekend could return to their fields by day beginning Monday but would be trucked out of the area every night.

Stirn told a news conference the farmers should keep their transistor radios turned on while they worked so they could be alerted if the volcano's activity picked up.

"The farmers will remain under the permanent control of the scientists who will give the green light and who will have the power to withdraw it at any moment," he said.

A military helicopter took Stirn and a group of scientists to within 640 feet of La Soufriere's peak. Smoke and steam belching from the crater and new openings near the top prevented them from flying closer.

A powerful smell of sulphur filled the air, Stirn said. Fields and villages on the upper slopes were covered with a thick layer of white ash, but frequent heavy rains usual to the island were expected to cleanse the crops and reduce damage.

If the volcano shows no signs of renewed activity, the 73,500 people evacuated from within a six-mile radius of the peak will be allowed to return to their homes in about three weeks, the minister said.

Volcanologists last week were warning that a vast and catastrophic eruption was imminent. But scientists reported Thursday that observations made during Stirn's flight indicated the molten rock inside the volcano was moving laterally toward the base instead of upward toward the crater, suggesting that a long pause may be at hand.

Offerings Lessened

FARMVILLE — Offerings yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market were not as good as Wednesday's offerings, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"There were more low grades of primings and nondescript grades appearing on the floor than any previous day this week. Leaf and smoking leaf grades were the top grades offered. Top price of $1.26 was paid for quality leaf grades," Williams said.

Stabilization receipts accounted for only 3.47 per cent of the gross sales as compared to 30.94 per cent of the gross sales on the same sale day last year.

The Farmville Tobacco Market sold 687,258 pounds yesterday for $793,275 for an average of $1.1543 per 100 pounds. To date 10,255,415 pounds have been sold for an average of $105.01 per 100 pounds.

During his recuperation, he met an occupational therapist, Phyllis Holden. They were married in 1948 and had one child before being divorced in 1972. Last year, Dole married Elizabeth Hanford, a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

After recovering from his injuries, Dole returned to the University of Kansas and earned a law degree in 1952. His political career began in 1951 when he won a seat in the Kansas legislature, where he served from 1951 until 1953. Then he won four straight elections as prosecuting attorney of Russell County.

In 1960, Dole was elected to the first of four consecutive terms in the House of Representatives, where he took a seat on the Agriculture Committee and devoted much time to the farm interests of his district, which spanned 52-wheat-growing counties on the plains of western Kansas.

Greenville Leaf Sales

Sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market Thursday consisted of a good quality of leaf, cutters, and lugs, according to J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"There were more primings and nondescript grades on the floor than any previous days this week," Bryan said.

Sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market Thursday totaled 775,261 pounds for $895,305 with an average of $115.48 per 100 pounds. Stabilization receipts accounted for only 4.73 per cent of the gross sales. To date, 16,335,301 pounds have been sold for $17,055,762 for an average of $104.41 per 100 pounds.

Airport Gets Grant

The Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority has been awarded a $3,750 grant from North Carolina Department of Transportation for improvements at the flight facility here.

The funds will supplement local money to clear about 85 acres of trees to allow operation of a simplified direction finder localizer and line of sight between the direction finder and runway.

The local grant was one of eight grants totaling $365,000 awarded to airports in the state under the N.C. Airport Aid Program.

Other facilities receiving funds included the Manteo, Raleigh-Durham, New Hanover County, Plymouth, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount-Wilson and Tri-County (Ahsokie) airports.

Lebanese Exchange Artillery Barrages

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian and Moslem militias traded artillery barrages today, ignoring Arab League efforts to stop random shelling of residential quarters by both sides in the Lebanese civil war.

"The hysteria of indiscriminate shelling continues to escalate," a Moslem spokesman said. "Districts of southern Beirut have been turned into hell."

Hospital officials estimated that about 140 persons were killed and 180 wounded in fighting during the night in Beirut and the mountains of eastern and northern Lebanon. More than 34,000 are estimated to have been killed in the civil war since April 1975.

Christian sources said shelling intensified along the front line between the southern Beirut suburbs of Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh. "More than a dozen huge fires have been sighted in downtown Beirut and neighboring quarters," the newspaper An Nahar reported.

Witnesses said more than 15 apartment buildings were set afire by Palestinian shelling of Christian hill towns in the mountains east of Beirut.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party paper Pravda criticized the Arabs' inability to resolve the Lebanese crisis.

"It is strange to see that there is still a lack of Arab solidarity and united action in the efforts to bring the Lebanese conflict to an end," said Pravda. "Evidently such a situation suits the interest of certain circles in the Arab world which are pursuing a policy of conciliation with the imperialist forces."

Maj. Gen. Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim, the Egyptian commander of the Arab League peace force, continued contacts with Phalange militia leaders demanding that the Palestinians withdraw unconditionally from the towns along the mountains east of Beirut. Moslem sources said the Phalange rejected Ghoneim's peace proposals and insisted that Palestinian "withdrawal must precede any cease-fire."

May Curb Darvon Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators want to clamp strict controls on distribution of Darvon, the nation's third most-prescribed drug. Researchers have warned that abuse of the painkiller can cause dependence or death.

The Food and Drug Administration has recommended imposing limits on how often patients can refill prescriptions for Darvon, an FDA spokesman said Thursday.

Last year, U.S. physicians wrote 16.4 million new or refill prescriptions for Darvon, a trade name for propoxyphene. They also wrote about 1.6 million more prescriptions for similar products.

The FDA's stand comes three years after the agency rejected a call by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) to put Darvon and other painkillers containing propoxyphene under restrictions.

The FDA reconsidered its stand after a study this year implicated propoxyphene in thousands of overdose death over a period of years.

FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt now feels tighter control on the drug is "clearly warranted," according to the FDA spokesman.

THE DEA will move to include propoxyphene in Section 4 of the Controlled Substances Act, which would bar druggists from refilling a prescription more than five times in a six-month period. It would also require suppliers and pharmacists to control their inventories.

Darvon is made by Eli Lilly & Co. of Indianapolis. A spokesman said the firm would have no immediate comment on the FDA recommendation.

Nurses To Hold Meet

The N. C. Association of Industrial Nurses will hold its biannual conference at the Velvet Cloak Inn in Raleigh Friday and Saturday, Aug 27, and 28.

The program will deal with the treatment and rehabilitation of arthritis patients and with injuries of the hand.

Final registration will be at 8 a.m. next Friday.

Sabin Asks Shot Change

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The developer of the oral polio vaccine says he will recommend in a meeting Monday with President Ford that the strategy of administering the swine flu vaccine be changed.

Dr. Albert Sabin, research professor of biomedicine at the Medical University of South Carolina, says, "The strategy is too little and too late to prevent either the appearance or the spread of the swine influenza within the United States."

Sabin said that, according to an announcement, the swine flu vaccine will be administered beginning Oct. 1, with a million doses a day being given throughout the country.

He says under this plan it would take six to seven months to give the vaccine to everyone.

He will recommend to Ford that the vaccine be administered "only when there is a need for it."

Sabin said if the flu doesn't appear until next year, the vaccinations given this year will have worn off and won't be effective.

No Bare Facts At Iowa Fair

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Time was when a farmer looking for the bare facts would slip away from mama and sneak into a girls show at the Iowa State Fair. No more.

"You can see more on the midway than you could in the tent," says Al Kunz, owner of Century 21 Shows, operator of the shows and rides on the midway.

He canceled the girls show this year.

"Des Moines has always been known as one of the best girls show spots in the country," Kunz said Thursday. "They'd tell mother to go watch them can peaches, put the kids on the rides and they'd sneak into the girls show."

"Last year I brought in the Best of Burlesque — a heck of a show with fine looking chorus girls — but people didn't support it."

For generations the gyrating dancers performed at the 123-year-old fair which opened its 14-day run Wednesday at the fairgrounds on the east side Des Moines. Forty thousand people attended, a figure that will soar to 75,000 to 100,000 on weekends.

"But the younger generation that used to support the girls shows in a very good manner withdrew," Kunz said. "It's a permissive society. Girls started wearing tight hot pants, X-rated movies started, and you can see almost anything on television now."

Kunz, who has been in "show business" 40 years, was a Wisconsin farm boy who went to a county fair to exhibit a 4H calf and was "completely captivated by the bright lights and the gyrating girls."

"There's only a handful of major shows in the nation — I'm one of them — and the demise of the girls shows has happened to all of us," he said.

"People refused to pay admission to the show. Last year was the last of the burlesque-type shows on my midway."

School Is In Trouble

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hertford county School Supt. J. M. Jenkins says a "financial mess" discovered at Murfreesboro High School has left the school without funds to pay debts.

Jenkins said Thursday funds deposited in the school's general fund for one purpose had been spent for other purposes. An audit is being made by Riddick & Urquhart, an Ahsokie certified public accounting firm.

Jenkins said the matter had not been brought before the board of education, but would be when the audit results are available.

Media Presence Felt

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If you've come to the conclusion that the media presence here is enormous you're right. It extends from the "Today" set on a setback roof at the Crown Center Hotel to antenna-topped floor reporters in Kemper Arena, to saloon gatherings where candidates and strategies are debated endlessly.

This Republican National Convention is, apart from the politics, a media show, the emphasis on television. Network booths with lighted signs saying CBS, NBC, ABC, loom over the arena. Convention strategies for floor fights and demonstrations are calculated in part on whether they'll occur in — or avoid — prime time.

Broadcast and print reporters throng in hotel after hotel, chasing delegates or rumors with equal determination. In the arena, flanking the podium you see on TV, the print press is alternately battling a deadline or taking it easy while the network troops do their prime-time battle for stories and air time.

The coverage is costly. There's no ready estimate of what the tab is for the forces of print, but conservative industry estimates say it totals at least $10 million for the three networks.

That's the fiscal side of conventioning. The social side includes the upper-level pre-convention parties for the print and TV heavies, parties ABC anchorman Harry Reasoner attended in the old days, but shunned on this go-around.

He says he was busy, "although I expect the parties were better in Kansas City than New York (where Democrats met) because there were fewer beautiful people tripping over each other." Such folk come from New York and Washington, usually.

Were you watching famous folk you might see Hughes Rudd at the Raphael restaurant, Betty Furness breaking bread at Jaspers' or Sally Quinn looking about the lobby of the historic Radisson Muehlebach Hotel here.

But you were out of luck if you lacked clout with the wealthy Kansas City couple whose party last Saturday drew the likes of Walter Cronkite, Mike Wallace, Dan Rather, Edwin Newman and Barbara Walters, who is here only as an observer.

Before convention's start, many top print and TV folk met at the Muehlebach's Haberdashery, a saloon CBS anchorman Cronkite — a reporter here in the late 1930s — calls a "perfect political cockpit" at convention time.

He means it's where political types and reporters gather to discuss the main and lesser events and renew old acquaintances or feuds.

Or you'd find well-known and unknown reporters out on what NBC anchorman John Chancellor calls "the Bud Trillin pilgrimage" to good restaurants

The bidding:

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
6 ♣ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

Here's another chance for you to test your play technique. Cover up the East and West hands with your thumbs and see how you would fare in six clubs after the lead of the jack of spades.

You have bid well to reach a good slam. After you showed a good hand with your reverse into diamonds, partner gave you a jump preference to your first suit. Your decision to bid what you thought you could make was sensible. All that remains is for you to bring in your slam.

You are faced with possible finesses in three suits. Which did you take first? If your answer to this question was anything but none, you are on the wrong track. Given reasonable breaks, you can land the slam without taking a single finesse. The correct approach is to spurn the trump finesse, because if it loses the defender can return a trump and cause you problems. Win the king of spades, cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond in dummy. Return to the ace of spades and ruff another diamond. Discard a heart on the queen of spades, cash the ace of hearts, ruff a heart and ruff your last diamond. Now run the queen of clubs.

Unless the cards lie abnormally badly, you should get home, losing, at most, a trump trick. For this line to succeed, you need little more than to find spades divided no worse than 5-3 and hearts 4-2. If you do happen to run into a very unfriendly split in one of the side suits, you may still land the slam if the club finesse is on.

(The opening lead is the most important single play in bridge. And Charles Goren's "Opening Leads" will help you to substantially increase your winnings. For a copy, send $1.50 to "Goren Leads," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.)

Primary Likely To Be Moved Back To Spring Date In 1977

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The 1977 General Assembly is certain to get strongly backed legislation calling for North Carolina's primary election to be moved from August back to May or some other spring date.

This is evident on the basis of a survey the Associated Press conducted among several candidates in Tuesday's primary. David Flaherty, the front-running Republican gubernatorial candidate, summed it up when he said, "We had to go through a long, hot summer. The campaign dragged on and the people turned off."

"It was a serious mistake" to move the primary from May to August, Flaherty said.

Secretary of State Thad Eure said that in his opinion "we will never have another primary in August or September. It was a mistake to change it. It made the campaign long."

Waverly Akins, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, agreed. He said, "I feel it should be moved back to early in May. I have never seen voter apathy like it was in Tuesday's primary. The campaign was long and just about killed all the candidates, including myself."

House Speaker Jimmy Green, who has called for a runoff against Howard Lee for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said, "Without a doubt it should be changed."

He predicted a strong move will be made in the next legislature to shift the primary date.

"The campaign was entirely too long, and too costly," Green said.

The 1975 General Assembly enacted legislation changing the primary to August. The main arguments for it were that it would cut down on skyrocketing campaign expenses and shorten the actual campaigning time. The theory was that the candidates would begin campaigning in May or June.

However, some candidates were hard at work as early as January.

According to estimates, the gubernatorial campaign expenditures will total about $2.5 million.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, said, "We won't know the full impact of the campaign expenditures until after the final reports are filed."

"There were problems with the August primary date," he said, adding that consideration should be given to changing the date.

The candidates agreed that the August primary was a factor in the low vote.

George Woods, who ran third in the Democratic gubernatorial race, said he feels the primary should be held in the spring.

"As a matter of fact, I would like to see our state races held in off years from the presidential election," he said. "The people sort of got tired of politics during the long, hot summer campaign."

Fewer Extras In New Homes

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans put fewer extras in the new homes they bought last year, but analysts say the shift to a no-frills house was short-lived and probably is over.

New Census Bureau figures show that homes built in 1975 generally were smaller, had fewer bedrooms, bathrooms and garages, and were less likely to have central air conditioning. Economists say the recession that began to lift in mid-1975 spurred the trend.

Not everything was bare-bones, however. Fifty-two per cent of new homes were built with fireplaces in 1975, up from 49 per cent in 1974.

Despite the economies, the median new home price jumped 9.5 per cent in 1975 to $42,600 from $38,900. That was a smaller increase than in 1973 and 1974, when the median price climbed 27.5 per cent, or $8,400. But in those years homes were growing larger and more luxurious.

Builders, who prefer to call the "no frills" house the "basic" house, felt that by cutting corners last year they could increase the number of persons who could afford to buy new homes.

But an economist with the National Association of Home Builders said the back-to-basics trend never got up much steam.

"From what we have in our own data, we already can see a leveling off," said Robert Sheehan. He expects homes to be built with fewer bathrooms in the future, however, and anticipates more townhouses in proportion to detached houses.

John C. Weicher, the Department of Housing and Urban Development's chief economist, commented: "I would not think you are going to see downturns like that continually.... My sense of last year is that along about the end of the summer it became reasonably clear we were pulling out of the recession. People in the market for new homes found they were in better shape than they thought they were."

Weicher said that in recent months the proportion of new single-family homes priced below $30,000 has slipped from about 23 per cent to 14 per cent or lower. The drop has been made up by an increase in the proportion of homes priced at $40,000 and higher.

How N.C. Congressmen Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Aug. 5 through Aug. 10, when Congress recessed for the Republican National Convention.

House POSTCARD REGISTRATION — Adopted, 255 for and 130 against, an amendment killing a proposal to mass-mail federal voter registration "postcards" to every household in the United States.

The amendment provided instead that the cards be made "generally available" at places such as post offices. It was attached to HR 11552, a bill allowing eligible citizens to register by mail to vote in federal elections. The bill was passed and sent to the Senate.

Since one registration in most jurisdictions qualifies a voter to vote in federal, state and local elections, the effect of the bill would be to permit postcard registration for all elections.

Supporters of the amendment said that mass mailings of the registration cards would be costly, burdensome to the Postal Service and probably ineffective. "If we really want to increase registration, we have got to take more positive steps than blasting 140 million postcards around the country," said Rep. Bill Frenzel (R-Minn.).

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), an opponent, said that getting the cards into the hands of potential voters is "fundamental" to the success of postcard registration, and that adoption of the amendment would "destroy the concept and destroy the purpose of this legislation."

Reps. L.H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (D-9), James Broyhill

(R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. David Henderson (D-3) and Charles Rose (D-7) voted "nay."

Rep. Walter Jones (D-1) did not vote.

NEW RIVER — Passed, 311 for and 73 against, a bill (HR 13372) to prevent the New River in North Carolina and Virginia from being dammed to power a planned hydroelectric plant. The bill was sent to the Senate.

The $845 million Blue Ridge Project, already licensed by the Federal Power Commission, calls for two dams to be built on the New River, flooding about 40,000 acres and displacing about 3,000 persons in the two states.

The river is considered by geologists to be among the oldest in the world, and environmentalists have supported the bill to keep it unspoiled. Electric utilities and some labor groups oppose the legislation, which protects the river by placing the threatened 26.5 mile portion in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W. Va.), a supporter, said the legislation will protect the public against "those who through a desire for private gain... are threatening the future of one of this nation's few remaining timeless treasures."

Rep. Mario Biaggi (D-N.Y.), an opponent, said the dams would provide new water recreation areas, while the plant would furnish needed electrical energy. "The country needs jobs. It needs expansion. It needs an abundance of low-cost energy to stimulate jobs and industrial expansion," he said.

Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Jones and Fountain did not vote.

SWINE FLU — Passed, 250 for and 83 against, a bill (S 3735) to get the federal swine flu inoculation program underway by helping vaccine manufacturers obtain liability insurance. The Senate-passed bill was sent to the White House.

Insurance firms, fearful of numerous injury lawsuits, have been unwilling to insure the vaccine makers. So the drug firms have refused to sell the government vaccine for the forthcoming nation-wide inoculation program.

This bill provides that a person claiming harm from the vaccine can sue only the federal government, so insurance companies need not fear "meritless suits" against the vaccine manufacturers. The government, however, may then sue manufacturers to recover for claims it has paid to the injured.

Supporters said the bill breaks the impasse in getting the inoculations started, and criticized the "short-sightedness" of the insurance industry for making legislation necessary. Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Fla.) called the bill a "stopgap, emergency solution to save this program."

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent of the government shielding private firms from responsibility for their acts. Rep. Richard Ottinger (D-N.Y.) said that under this bill "the government takes the risk and the insurance companies make the profit..."

Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain and Preyer did not vote.

Senate

TAX REFORM — Tabled, 48 for and 42 against, a motion to send the tax reform bill (HR 10612) back to the Senate Finance Committee, with instructions that the committee delete everything except extension of the $35 individual income tax credit and other personal income tax reductions.

The motion was an attempt by liberals to sweep from the 1,300-page bill assorted "loopholes" which they say would cost the U.S. Treasury more than $2 billion next year. The bill was passed by a wide margin and sent to conference with the House. More than 100 roll call votes had been conducted over six weeks on amendments to the bill.

Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), a supporter of tabling and thus killing the motion, said that each provision of the bill "is there because a majority of the Senate thinks it ought to be there." He added that it would be "very foolish for the Senate to attempt to bypass all the hard work that has been done" by limiting the bill to a basic extension of income tax cuts and credits.

Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), an opponent, said the bill should be returned to committee because it "flies right in the face of the budgetary process which we created; it flies right in the face of the credibility which we are trying to establish between this body and the people of the United States; it flies right in the face of what is commonly conceived as tax reform."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

NUCLEAR CARRIER — Rejected, 35 for and 50 against, an amendment to cut $350 million in initial development funds for a fourth nuclear powered aircraft carrier. The amendment was proposed to HR 14262, a $104 billion fiscal 1977 defense appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), sponsor of the amendment, said that "the future of the large aircraft carrier is uncertain," and questioned whether Congress should begin "putting $4 billion into one single floating target" before the need for more giant carriers is fully studied.

Opponents said that approving the $350 million outlay does not mean a commitment to build the vessel, and that parts made with the funds could be used for other purposes. Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) said that delaying steps to replace old carriers "would dangerously threaten the capability" of U.S. naval forces. Helms and Morgan voted "nay."

Don't Take Storm Lightly

MIAMI (AP) — Residents of the Northeast shouldn't take the next hurricane for granted just because Belle left less damage than expected, says an expert on the sometimes savage storms.

"People must look at this in the proper perspective. This wasn't a major hurricane," Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, said Wednesday. "Next time, it could be a lot worse."

Frank said Belle, which hit Long Island last week after dealing a glancing blow to the Outer Banks of North Carolina, once had the makings of a major hurricane.

"When this storm was off the Carolinas, it was a major hurricane, comparable to Donna which went into Long Island in 1960 and did a lot of damage."

"As Belle started moving north, we thought there was a chance it would begin moving fast. A fast-moving storm doesn't have a chance to weaken or colder northern waters. But it never accelerated, so when it arrived over Long Island it was much weaker."

But by the time it arrived in the Northeast, Belle rated only a "one" on the hurricane center's 1-5 scale.

Frank said complaints already are coming from people who feel they were needlessly evacuated and made to spend extra money because of warnings about Belle.

A "one" storm carries winds of 74 to 95 miles an hour. Generally, there is only minor damage.

Officials said assessments were incomplete. But they said Belle caused at least three deaths and more than $12 million in insured damages.

A "three" hurricane, the rating Belle was given off the Carolinas, has winds to 130 miles an hour. Expected damage includes foliage blown from trees and plants and some structural damage to buildings.

A "five" storm — the highest rating on the "Saffir-Simpson Scale" — has winds of over 155 m.p.h. Shrubs and trees are all blown down, roof damage in considerable, all signs are felled and there is extensive window and door damage. Some buildings are completely destroyed and all mobile homes are demolished.

Almost 50 years ago, a number "four" storm bore down on South Florida. More than 100 persons were killed.

As Frank was being interviewed Wednesday, other forecasters were watching a tropical depression near Bermuda. It later gained strength and became tropical storm Candice and was expected to become a hurricane — although no threat to land — today.

A second depression, this one off Key West, was also being watched for an expected gain in strength.

Secret Suburb Brings New Life

By BOB BARR
Associated Press Writer
KWAJALEIN ISLAND (AP) — This super-secret suburb in the middle of the Pacific has brought American affluence tantalizingly close to native Marshall Islanders.

California seems much closer than 4,600 miles away.

The Marshall Islanders live on Ebye — 73 parched acres where 7,000 people have crowded out all but a few trees and patches of grass. There is only one doctor to treat common ailments such as influenza, scabies, dysentery and malnutrition. "There is no question that there is discrimination," says George Allen, an American lawyer employed by Micronesian Legal Services. "It is just like South Africa's apartheid."

But American officials say Kwajalein is no different from any other U.S. military base.

Kwajalein Atoll, a necklace of more than 90 small islands surrounding 1,000 square miles of lagoon, has been a missile test base since 1959. The Nike-Zeus, Nike-X, Sentinel and Safeguard ABM systems were tested here, and Kwajalein Lagoon is the target for ICBMs test-fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

Security is strict. Visitors must get permission from the Army, and reporters have been allowed on the island only in the last few years.

Although the Safeguard system was scrapped, Kwajalein is now preparing to test radar and computers for another missile defense system. "As long as there is ballistic missile defense testing and intercontinental ballistic missile testing, there will be a need for Kwajalein Missile Range," says Col. Robert L. Russell, the base commander.

Russell estimates the U.S. investment here at $1 billion.

For the Marshallese, though, "Over the long term, Kwajalein is a real liability," says Sen. Amata Kabua of the Congress of Micronesia. "All of the evils of the ghetto are on Ebye."

Rep. Ataji Ebalos, a member of the congress who was born on Kwajalein, concludes: "We're stuck with it."

The islanders have become dependent on the base. Kwajalein is worth $3.3 million a year in salaries to Marshallese employees, $2 million a year in taxes to local government and $704,000 in reparations to those who were relocated from Kwajalein.

Here, this big money. The rest of the Marshall Islands earned barely $1.1 million in 1975 from exports and tourism.

Some Marshallese are asking for a better deal — for example, access to Kwajalein's schools, stores and hospitals.

Col. Russell responds that Marshallese may not shop on Kwajalein for the same reason that Hawaii residents may not use the PX at Pearl Harbor. And he notes that seriously ill Marshallese are treated on Kwajalein, qualified Marshallese are given preference for jobs on Kwajalein and Kwajalein charities contribute more than $90,000 a year to projects in the Pacific.

Though a slum by American standards, Ebye continues to be a magnet for the Marshallese. The lure of jobs and Western ways has pushed Ebye's population from 2,000 to 7,000 in 15 years.

The 505 Marshallese who commute by boat to jobs on Kwajalein earn an estimated average wage of $3.15 an hour — four times the pay considered good elsewhere in the Marshall Islands. The Marshallese generally have menial jobs, though several hold skilled positions.

But few of the islanders are getting ahead because virtually every wage-earner is inundated by free-loading relatives.

"You can't just send people away," explained one Ebye resident. "It is very bad in our custom."

The Army spent $7 million between 1966 and 1968 to build housing on Ebye for 3,500. Today as many as 20 people are crammed into single $10-a-month units in now-dilapidated buildings.

What is the attraction for the Marshallese? "The bright lights, the beer, the movies — and, for some, the jobs," says Lawrence Edwards, who represents the Marshalls government on Ebye. "They think it is a good standard of living. There are a lot of things they cannot get on the outer islands." Edwards is in charge of Operation Exodus, an effort to cut Ebye's population to perhaps 4,000. More than 200 have left voluntarily since Exodus began in January, and Edwards is now drawing up lists of the jobless and homeless, who will be ordered out.

The government extends little help to those who leave Ebye. Critics fear that many who have had one foot in the Twentieth Century may now be unprepared to return to more primitive ways.

Paycheck Doesn't Want To Be Judged On Past

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Paycheck doesn't want the current "outlaw" cult to interfere with his identity as a country music singer.

Paycheck, 35, admits he fits the "outlaw," mold normally associated with Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson and David Allen Coe.

Some 15 years ago, he served two years in a New Hampshire federal prison for various offenses, including desertion and escape.

In 1972, he received a suspended sentence of 11 months and 29 days for forgery.

This June, he filed a bankruptcy petition listing assets of $153,000 and debts of about $489,000.

Despite that and confessed battles with liquor and drugs, he doesn't totally embrace the "outlaw" cult.

"I've got pride in my profession and I want to be judged on my ability, not my background," said Paycheck, whose current single is "11 Months and 29 Days."

"I happen to think I'm a damn good singer and people come to see me sing, not because of my background. I'm becoming known as an outlaw, but I personally don't want to lose my identity as a singer and be known as a complete outlaw."

"I hope it doesn't come to the place where people come to see an outlaw instead of a singer."

The title of his current single, he said, was not intended to embellish his past. The idea for the song came from producer Billy Sherrill and the title simply fit.

In interviews, he does not project an "outlaw" image. He's friendly, perceptive, articulate. He could pass as a high school history teacher.

Nevertheless, he believes the "outlaw" following is good for the music industry.

"I love the outlaw image and I think the industry has needed it," he said. "It takes the artist off a pedestal and brings him down to the people's level. This type of music lets the listener be comfortable. I think this is more the music of the land than has come along in a while."

His bankruptcy petition came as a relief, he said.

"I feel a lot better about getting it off my shoulders," he said. "I couldn't sleep for a year and a half. They told me I should have filed a year earlier."

"It was just impossible to keep up with my debts. Nobody realizes the tremendous expense of becoming a star. I just had to do this to get the pressure off, otherwise I would have been wasted and couldn't continue my career. Now I can."

"Bankruptcies are common — they are filed daily."

His financial situation will not seriously affect his career, he said. He recently taped several syndicated country music shows that will be shown this fall and his seventh album will be released in September.

"Life is good and I'm glad I'm here," he said. "The album has five originals and a couple of the nicest ballads I've ever done. It's a mixture of things. I think it's the best album I've ever done."

"I'm on my way back, and I'm going to get there."

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with an ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out... and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.
