

Ian Smith Warned 'The Game Is Up'

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in effect told Prime Minister Ian Smith, "The game is up."

The Rhodesian leader and the three cabinet colleagues who accompanied him last weekend to Pretoria, the South African capital, had already heard much the same thing from Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa, their lone foreign supporter.

Smith and his men buckled and agreed to advise their cabinet in Salisbury to yield power to the black majority, after 11 years of rebellious independence.

This account of the crucial talks in Pretoria last Sunday is based on reports from U.S. sources and African diplomats in Zambia and Tanzania.

The Rhodesian leaders behaved with dignity as Kissinger emphasized five major points in his assessment of the situation:

1. After 11 years of illegal statehood, Rhodesia today remains in quarantine by the world community.

2. After a few more years of escalating guerrilla activity by independence-seeking blacks, the white regime will find itself progressively beleaguered and unable to defend its supporters, especially when the summer rains immobilize its tanks and armor.

3. After the collapse of Portugal's empire in Africa, the perils of Soviet and Cuban intervention were dramatically displayed in Angola and could spill over into Rhodesia.

4. With world pressures on South Africa's white minority government mounting, prospects of active South African support can only diminish because that regime also may become the target of guerrilla action.

5. After the American experience in Vietnam, the white Rhodesians can count on no help from the United States, or any other Western nations, if one day they find themselves with their backs to the wall.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere told reporters he was no longer gloomy about prospects for a Rhodesian settlement after Kissinger told him Tuesday that Smith had accepted the British-American plan calling for black power within two years, and a $2-billion fund to compensate Rhodesian whites who leave the country and finance development of Rhodesia under black rule.

But Nyerere cautioned, "Life is full of imponderables, and Smith is an imponderable."

The Rhodesian prime minister reported to the rest of his cabinet Tuesday on his talks with Kissinger. Observers in Salisbury said the cabinet undoubtedly would agree if Smith recommended acceptance of the British-American plan.

But the plan could be blocked by diehard white supremacists in Smith's party, the Rhodesian Front, who have killed two previous agreements between Smith and the British government. Smith puts the plan before the party caucus on Thursday.

County Fair

Plans and preparation for the 1976 Pitt County American Legion Fair, scheduled for Oct. 4 through 9, are progressing, according to fair president Les Turnage.

Turnage, who said that the Fair committee met Monday night, reported that all exhibit hall space has been taken, including ten exhibits sites by homemakers, ten by 4-H organizations, six by the county schools, and four by Rose High School.

The theme for this year's fair will be "Looking Ahead to Future Year," the president pointed out.

The Buck Page Shows will again operate on the midway, according to Turnage.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Fair and continued cool Friday through Sunday. Lows mostly in the 40s except 50s near the coast. Highs mostly in the 70s.

Not All Happy

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — More 200 persons have called Probate Judge W.R. "Bobby" Douglas of Cherokee County, S.C., in the last two weeks after a rumor hereabouts that he had not been authorized to perform marriages. "A good percentage of them conveyed the impression that they would like for it to be true. I have to give them the bad news that they are still married," Douglas says.

The rumor spread through Burke, Catawba, Rutherford and other North Carolina counties. It was that Douglas' commission had expired in 1965, and that all marriages he had performed and all marriage licenses he had issued since were invalid. However, Douglas says his commission has been renewed regularly since his first election in 1950, and the South Carolina secretary of state confirms this.

Shatters 5,800 Bricks, But Nobody Interested

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Billy Corbett says he broke a record 5,800 bricks in a karate demonstration for charity and cracked his wrists in the process. But he says he's out of a job, out of money and "disgusted" because nobody seems to care.

Only four kids watched the 105-minute demonstration that was held recently under gray, drizzly skies to raise money to help fight muscular dystrophy.

"I saved up $2,000 of my own money and bought the bricks because I figured I could help the kids in Anchorage," Corbett said Tuesday. "I said the Lord's Prayer and asked God for strength before I started. My hands ache. They ache right now. I thought I was doing something."

May Tischer, director of the Anchorage Muscular Dystrophy Association, said she wasn't able to attend Corbett's performance because she was busy at a telethon in Valdez.

She said the AMDA was to get 10 per cent of proceeds from the brick-breaking, "but if there were no proceeds, I guess AMDA is not the recipient of any funds."

"I'm terribly sorry he wasn't able to do better than that," Mrs. Tischer said of Corbett. "He's always been willing to come forth and demonstrate his abilities freely for us during telethon activities."

Corbett, who until recently worked on the trans-Alaska pipeline in Valdez, said his hands still are swollen from the ordeal and his wrists are

Town Meeting Saturday

Saturday, September 25, has been proclaimed Greenville Town Meeting Day by Mayor Percy R. Cox.

In a brief ceremony at City Hall on Wednesday, the mayor noted in his proclamation "it is the desire of the City of Greenville to commemorate during this Bicentennial Year the rich historical tradition of this community."

"This historical context," Mayor Cox continued, "Provides residents with a unique opportunity to participate in a discussion of the current problems and future possibilities of our community."

Cox is extending an invitation to the citizens of Greenville to attend and take part in the Greenville Town Meeting, which has been in the planning stages for several months.

The event will take place at J.H. Rose High School. Advance tickets, per person is $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and students, and free to children under 12 accompanied by adults. Tickets at the door will be $2.50.

The meeting will open at 9 a.m. with coffee and registration of attendees, followed by a welcome.

At 9:30 a.m., the first of two workshops, "The Present Challenges" will begin, with an interlude at noon which will feature a buffet and an entertainment in the form of a drama.

The second workshop, on the topic "The Practical Proposals" will be held at 2 p.m., and at 3 p.m. the plenary of reports and closing comments will take place.

$40,000 To Hospital For Special Baby Equipment

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

It was announced at the Pitt Memorial Hospital Trustees' meeting last night that $40,000 has been granted through the N. C. Department of Human Resources for equipment for a nursery for premature babies in the new hospital.

Dr. William Laupus, ECU School of Medicine dean, explained that most of this equipment will be used for babies with respiratory difficulties. The Department of Human Resources long ago picked Greenville as a regional center to make use of this equipment, he said. The idea is that babies from throughout the east who have breathing difficulties will be transferred here to make use of this equipment until their critical periods have passed.

Approved was the purchase of a system for imprinting charge tickets throughout the new hospital for $21,472.50, and ultra sound and radionic equipment for use in certain types of surgery. Draperies throughout the hospital were rebid. The new projected cost is $24,000.

Finance Committee Chairman J. H. "Hap" Moye commended hospital Medicaid-Medicare person Warren McRoy for his work in keeping the accounts receivable of the hospital as low as possible. McRoy said that about $155,000 in Medicaid-Medicare payments are now owed the hospital. "About $10,000 was paid us last month," he said, "keeping us in about the same position we have been in, better shape than most hospitals."

Building Manager Ralph Hall reported that finishing touches are being put on the original portions of the new hospital and that grading is underway for 40,000 square-foot Model Family Practice Center. Asked about parking, he said the present lots seem ample for the time being but that there is space for more if it's needed later on. A parking deck may be feasible at some later date, he mentioned.

Approved for provisional medical staff privileges were Dr. Michael L. Bramley, Dr.

Samuel H. Pepkowitz, Dr. George E. Davis, Dr. Jon B. Tingelstad, all active in pediatrics; Dr. Emerson G. Crawford Jr., active in oral surgery; Dr. John Richard Leonard, active in neurosurgery; Dr. Ponnappa S. Prasad, consulting in psychiatry; and Dr. Richard C. Taft, active in obstetrics and gynecology.

Dr. Eric Farrington reported that the data needed for presentation to the Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals is "ahead." He told of an audit done by the hospital pathologists on 24 cases of hyperthyroid problems which resulted in faulty calcium metabolism. This rare condition was discovered 24 times in six years by use of the SMA 12 blood sample testing machine the hospital has and was surgically corrected in each case. He said this audit reinforces the argument for routine multiphasic screening of patients.

Dr. Laupus said the search by the School of Medicine for chiefs of the departments of surgery and obstetrics and gynecology continues.

Valerie Chaffin brought greetings from the ECU Student Government Association.

Kilpatrick Sees Carter As 'Most Ambitious' Person He's Ever Met

By BETTY SANDERSON
Reflector Staff Writer

James J. Kilpatrick, nationally syndicated columnist from Virginia, described Jimmy Carter as "the most ambitious person I've met in 35 years of covering politics" and President Gerald Ford as "not a brilliant man" but "a thoroughly decent, hard-working executive."

Kilpatrick spoke yesterday afternoon at ECU to a journalism class and to a group of political science students. Last night he spoke to a large public gathering, sponsored by the ECU Lecture Series.

Kilpatrick's main lecture topic was the presidential election. However, he covered several other subjects in the class speeches and in an interview with the Daily Reflector.

He called Carter's career "an astonishing story. He has a single-minded determination that is awesome."

"He is aprincipled," Kilpatrick stressed. "He has no guiding political philosophies. He is politically an unfeeling person."

Kilpatrick compared Carter to Richard Nixon in that he considers them both pragmatists.

"Carter is a man more interested in the pragmatic aspect of politics than the principled aspect of politics. He and Nixon are both technicians, not philosophers."

Kilpatrick said Ford is "not a brilliant man, not an inspiring leader or a master of words," but he is "a thoroughly decent, hard-working executive." He compared Eisenhower's father image to Ford's uncle image, saying that neither was a great political philosopher.

Kilpatrick gives Ford an edge in the four debates because "he will show an experience and command of the federal government . . . that will be more than a match for Jimmy Carter's."

He credits Carter with early foresight of the three factors which made his campaign successful: 1) personality — "he would not be defeated"; 2) the opposition — "it was not nearly as strong as it seemed on the surface"; and 3) opportunity — "the taint of being Southern had pretty well worn off" and Carter was "a new face" who attracted disenfranchised voters.

Kilpatrick described Ronald Reagan as "a great campaigner" who "wanted to be number one or nothing. He had been number one in California, so being vice president at 63 under Ford would not have been exciting."

"Reagan might have run an excellent campaign

THEY DON'T ALWAYS TURN

At the intersection of First and Reade streets, I've seen people go straight (west) from the "right turn only" lane on First. Perhaps this is not sufficiently marked or should be made a straight-through lane again. I'm sure there have been accidents because of this, and I've almost been hit myself while I was turning right from Reade Street onto First Street (going west). B.S.

Ron Sewell, assistant city engineer and traffic engineer, talked with HOTLINE about this problem and said he feels these mistakes must be the driver's fault rather than the city's.

In marking the lane for a right turn only, the city marked it more than required, Sewell noted. Three arrows were made on the pavement rather than the required two. A sign stating that the "right lane must turn right" is located on the right side at the beginning of that block of First Street. Beside the arrows on the pavement, "only" is written twice (meaning right turn only) rather than once, as is required. Signs beside the stoplight indicate that only a right turn is allowed from that lane.

The problem, Sewell thinks, might be in the driver's understanding of the lights used. When a green ball light is on for that lane, the driver cannot go straight; that only means he can proceed if no other traffic is turning in front of his vehicle. A green arrow, however, indicates that all traffic is clear for him to turn and he may go without checking for himself (unless he does so for safety reasons).

Sewell said study of the traffic in the area indicates a need for the right turn lane there, so it probably will not become a through lane again. "There is a lot of traffic turning right in peak periods," he said. "If it were a straight lane only, drivers would have to stop a whole cycle (of the light)."

Sewell noted that the red and yellow lights are never on in that lane; a green ball or green arrow is always used and should be followed accordingly.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A University of North Carolina geography professor has come up with some speculative calculations indicating major coastal areas could be underwater within the next 75 years.

The big "ifs," says Richard J. Kopec in a study released this week, are whether the earth is in a warming or a cooling trend and how long it would take a warming trend to melt glaciers and icecaps.

Kopec, a climatologist and map specialist, says a warming "greenhouse effect" from air pollution may lead to a continued warming trend.

He speculates that if the earth is heating, then melting ice could raise the ocean level and put much of Florida, Delaware and other coastal terrain under the waves.

For nine-tenths of the last billion years, the earth's climate has been warmer than it is now and sea levels higher.

Basing his calculations on recent indications of warming trends, Kopec says the level of the oceans could rise about 100 meters, or close to 330 feet, by the year 2050.

"Such a rise would inundate New York City buildings to the depth of their 20th stories," he said.

Air pollution figures in the calculations because the increasing content of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere may prevent heat radiated from the earth's surface from escaping into space.

"Temperatures could eventually reach that level sufficient to melt all remaining ice forms, which would release their stored water to the oceans," Kopec says. He said that would be an estimated 26 quadrillion tons of water.

"More conservative scientists estimate it will take from 400 to 4,000 years for air temperatures to warm sufficiently to melt the glacier," he said.

Kopec has constructed a map based on his calculations, indicating that the greatest land loss would occur in the Eurasian continent if the water level rose by 100 meters. Some four million miles would be flooded there, he said.

He says the Atlantic would wash over American coastal and inland cities from New England to Texas, including New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington in the Northeast.

In the South, Jacksonville, Miami, New Orleans and Houston would fall victim to the waves, Kopec says.

The Gulf of Mexico would bite into nearby states, inundating most of Louisiana and Mississippi. More than 23 million people would be displaced as 200,000 square miles in North and South Carolina, Virginia, Alabama, Georgia and Texas went underwater, Kopec says.

On the west coast, the Pacific would flood portions of the Los Angeles and San Francisco metropolitan areas. Seattle and San Diego would be covered, he says.

Kopec says the possibility of massive ice melting and flooding by 2050 "is remote, but not impossible."

Once Poor, She Enjoys Giving

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —

Before she was a millionaire generous with money gifts and Christian testimony, Rose Totino was a child of poverty who had one orange a year — on Christmas Eve.

"I'm happy I had a poor childhood," Says Mrs. Totino, 61, who cooked up a fortune in pizza. "It helped me have compassion for others. I know what it's like to share a bike with six sisters and brothers."

The tiny, dark-eyed daughter of Italian immigrants says she acquired the joy in giving from her mother. Before she was wealthy, Totino recalls, "I could always afford to stir up a cake for a sick neighbor, or take care of the children when a friend was in the hospital."

Such acts may have given Mrs. Totino more satisfaction than when she now gives $1 million or so for a benevolent cause.

"It's easier to sit down and write a check when you have the money," she says. "It's more difficult to take time to give help to a friend or neighbor."

In 1975, Rose Totino and her husband, Jim, sold their frozen food business to the Pillsbury Company for 258,091 shares of stock worth $22,190,000. Mrs. Totino became a corporate vice president, the first woman to hold such a post in Pillsbury's 106-year history.

Mrs. Totino dropped out of school in the 10th grade. She took her first job in 1931, doing housework for $2.50 a week. Her parents kept cows, chickens and pigs in a barn at their northeast Minneapolis home.

"Poor as we were, my mother always gave a loaf of bread or a half-dozen eggs to friends who'd come to visit," Mrs. Totino recalls. "If she had nothing to give, she'd apologize and ask the friend to come back tomorrow and she'd have something then."

That spirit of generosity became instilled in the young Rose. She says it's how she learned "the fun of giving."

One day in 1965, Mrs. Totino, a lifelong Catholic, "Met the Lord" while driving to work, worrying about being $150,000 in debt and feeling "in the utter depths of despair." The car radio was turned to a gospel station and she heard a minister saying personal salvation could be found through Christ.

"I pulled off the road, and I accepted Christ," she says. I'd made such a mess of things, and I asked Him to help me. I said, 'Lord, if you'll help me out of this mess, I will spend the rest of my life serving you...."

When she got to work that morning, a man from the Small Business Administration was there to say a $50,000 loan had been approved for Totino's Finer Foods.

The Totino business story began in 1951, when Rose and her baker husband borrowed $1,500, with their car as collateral, to open a small Minneapolis restaurant. They figured they'd meet the $85-a-month rent if Totino's Italian Kitchen could sell 25 pizzas a week. As a hedge against an uncertain future, Jim kept his bakery job.

After 10 years, they took their $50,000 savings and moved into the frozen Italian entree business. Two years later, the Totinos were $150,000 in debt.

They saw hope in a frozen pizza business but lacked the capital for such a plunge. It was then the couple applied for a SBA loan. The $50,000 built a plant but the SBA required that neither of the Totinos draw a salary until the loan was repaid. The family's income came from the little restaurant, which the husband still operates.

The pizza business flourished. In 1975, when it was purchased by Pillsbury, Totino's Finer Foods had annual sales of $40 million, employed 375 persons and was the nation's second largest producer of frozen pizza.

Mrs. Totino has her office in a small nook of "Rose's Kitchen," an honest-to-goodness working kitchen of Italian design at the pizza plant in suburban Fridley. She holds business meetings at the kitchen table.

Though she is frequently called on to address large meetings, she says it's difficult for her. But she talks easily to individuals and small groups. She has no hesitancy in ex-

Doctor's Secretary Writes In Defense

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting tired of hearing people say how "rich" doctors are.

If a doctor collected everything owed him he might be, but he doesn't. How many people pay cash for a doctor's visit? Yet those same people pay cash for their gasoline, the food they put on their tables and their entertainment. And they pay their gas, electric and telephone bills within 30 days or else! Same for their house, car and insurance payments. But for some reason, the doctor is the last one paid—if ever.

A doctor's hours are unbelievable. He gets up at 6, is at the hospital by 7 to see his patients (or operate), then goes to his office to see patients all day. Often he stops at the hospital again to check on patients and doesn't get home for dinner until 8 p.m. And don't forget those "emergencies" at all hours of the night to interrupt his sleep.

A doctor pays a hefty income tax and another large chunk goes for malpractice insurance. I'm not saying there aren't doctors who care more about money than serving humanity, but you'll find mercenaries in all professions.

Abby, I hope you're big enough to print this in rebuttal to the letter from that clown who took a potshot at doctors.

A DOCTOR'S SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: I am and I will. (P.S. Although your letter referred to doctors in the masculine, let's acknowledge that there are many women physicians, too.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 and in my sophomore year at college. Last year, I fell in love with a beautiful, sensitive girl of 18. She's a high school graduate who has many fine qualities, but her English is atrocious.

She says, "I seen you there," or "you was or you wasn't there," or "I throwed it out" or "them there people."

I can't understand how she was graduated from high school. I have tried to help her without nagging but have had very little success. I would like to introduce her to my family because I do care for her, but I know that they will question my judgment when they hear her talk.

What should I do?

ORLANDO

DEAR ORLANDO: Assuming she's as interested in learning to speak properly as you are to have her learn, adult education or tutoring is my recommendation.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound silly, but here goes. My husband and I have been married for two years, but before we were married he dated my sister for a short time.

I had almost forgotten about that until last week. My sister dropped by, and the two of us went shopping together. When we returned, we were greeted by a couple of burglars who had been hiding in my house. They ransacked the place and left us bound and gagged.

When my husband came home from work a few hours later and found the two of us tied up, to my surprise, he released my sister first!

Abby, I was very hurt, and now I can't help but wonder if maybe he still cares for my sister. What do you think?

TIED IN KNOTS

DEAR TIED: I think your husband was being courteous to a guest—no more, no less. Forget it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Cinnamon Flavors This Coffeecake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Because a friend of ours wasn't entirely satisfied with the coffeecake recipes she tried, she worked out her own formula. When we tested it, our tasters were delighted with the result: coffeecake of excellent texture and flavor filled with a heartwarming mixture of cinnamon, raisins and nuts. To have this coffeecake at its best, serve it warm or freeze and heat it according to the directions in our recipe.

CINNAMON COFFEECAKE

4¾ to 5 cups flour
Sugar
2 packages active dry yeast
1 teaspoon salt
Milk
Butter
3 eggs
Cinnamon Filling, see below
Confectioners' sugar
In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 2½ cups of the flour, ½ cup sugar, the yeast and salt.

In a small saucepan over low heat stir together ½ cup milk, ½ cup water and ½ cup soft butter until lukewarm — butter does not need to melt entirely; pour into yeast mixture. At low speed beat until blended; at high speed beat for 3 minutes, then beat in eggs one at a time.

With a wooden spoon stir in enough more flour (about 1½ cups) to make a very soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured surface and knead in enough more flour (about ¾ cup) to make a soft dough. Place in a lightly buttered bowl; turn to grease top. Cover with plastic wrap; let rise in a warm place until doubled — about 1 hour.

Cut 6 tablespoons firm butter into small dice; refrigerate to keep firm.

Punch down dough. Cut into 2 equal parts. Roll out each part into a 16 by 8-inch rectangle. Sprinkle each with the Cinnamon Filling; dot with the chilled butter. Roll up each from long end almost completely. Moisten long exposed end; press edge against roll to seal. Carefully place rolls into two buttered 9 or 10-inch round cake pans, gently curving to form full circles. Pinch edges to seal. With scissors or knife, cut partway through rings at 1-inch intervals. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled — about 1 hour. Melt 2 tablespoons butter; brush over dough.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden and coffeecakes sound hollow when tapped on the bottom with your fingers — about 30 minutes. Cool in pans on wire racks for 10 minutes. Turn out of pans.

Stir together ½ cup confectioners' sugar with 1 tablespoon milk; drizzle over one of the warm coffeecakes. Serve warm.

Cool the other coffeecake completely. Freezer-wrap and freeze without frosting. To serve, remove from wrapper and place on a cookie sheet. Thaw and warm in a preheated 325-degree oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Drizzle with con-

Milk-Keep It Cold

& Keep It Longer

Research has demonstrated again that the colder milk is kept, the longer it will remain fresh.

Tests conducted by a commercial milk producer under a contract with the Agricultural Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture showed that milk stored at 32° to 40° F. stayed fresh up to seven times longer than milk stored at 45° to 50° F. Housewives should follow these two simple rules for keeping milk fresh in their refrigerators:

*Put milk in the refrigerator as soon as you bring it home.

*Keep milk as cold as possible without freezing it.

Fruits-Vitamin Rich

& Calorie Light

All fruits contain some Vitamin C But in varying amounts.

Fruits rich in Vitamin C are oranges, grapefruit, cantaloups, papayas and strawberries.

Fruits containing smaller but worthwhile amounts of Vitamin C are fresh apricots, red raspberries, avocados, bananas, blackberries, blueberries, pineapple and watermelon.

For Vitamin A, serve cantaloups and apricots. Dried apricots are a concentrated source of Vitamin A and iron.

Good sources of iron include dried fruits such as raisins, dates, prunes and peaches.

Most fresh, raw, unsweetened fruits contain fewer than 100 calories per serving.

Here Is a Recipe That's Different That You Might Enjoy:

fectioners' sugar if desired, using the amount given for the other coffeecake.

CINNAMON FILLING: Stir together 1½ cups chopped (medium-fine) walnuts, 1 cup golden raisins and 1 tablespoon cinnamon.

Makes 2 coffeecakes.

Lemon Fresh

Refrigerator Pickles

3 large green cucumbers or 6 zucchini squash
1 medium green pepper, finely chopped
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons celery seed
¾ cup sugar
½ cup fresh squeezed lemon juice

1 California-Arizona lemon, thinly sliced into half cartwheels
Cut unpeeled cucumbers or zucchini squash into slices about 1/16th inch thick. Combine with green pepper, onion, salt and celery seed in large bowl. Mix gently and let stand 1 hour at room temperature. Combine sugar with lemon juice and stir to dissolve sugar. Pour over vegetables; add lemon slices and stir to blend. Cover and refrigerate 24 hours. These pickles will keep 3 weeks when stored, uncovered, in the refrigerator. Makes about 5 cups.

PET CONTROL

CHICAGO (UPI) — Condominium boards can legally make rules to control pets and even forbid them, says William D. Sally, general manager of the property management division of a Chicago company.

The Baird and Warner, Inc., executive said pet restrictions or the power of the condominium to impose them is enforceable if it is in the original declaration and by-laws prepared by the developer. He urges prospective buyers to examine the by-laws before signing up for condominium property.

Expect Food Prices Go Higher

FORECAST

Until Thursday

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm temperatures are forecast today for most of the nation. Cooler weather is due from the northern Plains through the Midwest to western New England. Widely scattered areas of showers are indicated. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

By The Associated Press
Autumn began today and brought cooler and sunny weather to North Carolina. Highs were mostly in the 70s. The overnight lows will range from the upper 30s and low 40s in the mountains to the 50 over the southeast portion. Some rain fell again Tuesday. It was mostly confined to the eastern counties. Jacksonville had nearly four-tenths of an inch in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning. Cape Hatteras had about one-third of an inch and New Bern just under two-tenths. There were only

Cooler On First Day Of Autumn

Temperatures were cooler in the Pitt County area on the first day of Autumn following Tuesday evening showers. The Wednesday 8 a.m. temperature was recorded at 56 degrees by the Greenville Utilities Department. Tuesday's high temperature was recorded at 74 degrees and the low temperature was recorded at 65 degrees. The river level measured 5.6 feet, according to the National Weather Service River Chart.

traces or a few hundredths elsewhere. High temperatures Tuesday afternoon were in the upper 70s to around 80 east of the mountains. There were some 60s in the northern mountains, ranging into the lower 70s southward across the mountains. Cloudiness lingered over the southeastern counties during the night. Some rain continued over the south coastal region and along the Outer Banks early in the morning. Otherwise, skies were clear or clearing during the night. Winds increased from the north today. Therefore, a small-craft advisory was issued for coastal waters from Cape Hatteras northward, and for the sounds.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices yesterday were steady on the Farmville Tobacco Market according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade. "Offerings consisted mostly of leaf and smoking leaf," Williams said. Stabilization receipts accounted for only 1.08 per cent of the gross sales. The Farmville Market sold 699,662 pounds for $871,089 for an average of $124.50 per 100 pounds. To date the market has sold 19,255,457 pounds for $21,778,580 for an average of $113.10 per 100 pounds as compared to last year's season average of $87.41 on the same sale day.

Slowly, over weeks and months but in pennies that add up to dollars, the prices you pay for food are going up.

—The Agriculture Department says food prices as a whole may go 3 to 4 per cent higher through June of 1977 than they did in the first half of this year.

—Sugar producers say the price of their product should go up because of President Ford's actions Tuesday in tripling the tax on sugar grown outside the United States.

—And the Agriculture Department also announced that the second increase this year in price supports for manufacturing-grade milk will have some effect on consumers.

The government announced on Tuesday that consumer prices increased by five-tenths of 1 per cent in August. The rate of increase has not changed in the last three months.

Labor Department statistics showed that inflation is running at an annual rate of about 6 per cent, in line with administration forecasts. The department said a decline in meat prices failed to offset higher costs for most other foods, fuel and clothing.

On the eve of the first debate of the presidential campaign, the White House noted that consumer prices have been relatively stable for nearly six months, and spokesman Ron Nessen said President Ford feels "it is essential to continue steps to hold down inflation."

And Ford, under pressure from Southern congressmen from areas he will visit next week, took steps to bolster sagging sugar prices.

Saying he was protecting domestic sugar producers, Ford tripled the imported sugar tariff from 62.5 cents per hundred pounds to $1.87½.

Sugar producers predicted that the decision by Ford would mean retail prices will increase in the short run by about a penny a pound. Some producers complained that the tariff hike wasn't enough.

At the same time, the Agriculture Department said Americans are eating more red meat than they have in four years, and it said that if the trend continues it will insure stability for beef prices.

But Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., said Tuesday the department is ignoring the drought and its effect of cattle feed. He said taking the drought into consideration indicates consumers will have to pay up to 50 per cent more for beef by the second half of 1977 and 1978.

Some economists say short production of beef next year will push food prices higher than the Agriculture Department predicts.

The department also said Tuesday that the second increase this year in price supports for manufacturing-grade milk will have only a slight affect at most for consumers.

On Oct. 1, the support price for milk used in making butter, cheese, ice cream and other by-products will increase 13 cents a hundredweight, to $8.26.

Seek Tutors In Reading

During this "Week of Reading," as designated by the Citizens United for the Improvement of Reading, the Greenville City Schools is again organizing its volunteer reading program.

The tutorial program is composed of volunteers who are willing to donate two hours per week to work with students in the various schools.

Care and concern for young people are the only requirements asked of a tutor; no formal training in reading is necessary.

All volunteers will be personally contacted relative to the most suitable time and dates for their participation. Expression of preferences for elementary, middle, or junior high, will be considered.

Interested persons are ask to contact the principal of the school in which the volunteer may be particularly interested, or to contact Charles Ross, Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, or Mrs. Betsy Warren at the Greenville City Schools Office, 752-4192.

Offering SAT On Six Dates

The Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), a test required for admission to many colleges, will be offered six times this school year instead of five, according to the College Entrance Examination Board. The test dates are November 6, December 4, January 22, March 26, May 7, and June 4.

The SAT measures verbal and mathematical skills which correlate with academic performance in college. It is available to high school juniors and seniors and takes 2½ hours with an additional 30 minutes devoted to the Test of Standard Written English, used to place freshmen in college English classes.

Students interested in the tests should register at least five weeks in advance to meet deadlines. Those who wish to register for the first test on November 6, for example should do so by October 1. Registration information and forms may be obtained from high school guidance counselors. Test fees are $7.25 for the SAT and $11 for one, two, or three Achievement tests. Students unable to pay test fees may be eligible for fee waivers; last year the College Board issued more than 30,000 fee waivers to needy students.

Reagan To Aid Wilmer Mizell

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Ronald Reagan will come to Winston-Salem Oct. 19 to campaign for Republican Wilmer Mizell in the 5th Congressional District.

The chairman of the Mizell-for-Congress Committee, Ed Armfield, says no arrangements beyond the date have been made as yet.

Armfield said the visit of the former Republican candidate for president is not part of a statewide swing.

Mizell's opponent, Rep. Steve Neal, is trying to get the Democratic presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter, to campaign for him, but has not yet received a commitment.

Cites New German Businesses In N.C.

The Germans Are Coming, a report on increasing investment in industry, manufacturing and business by the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) in Eastern North Carolina, is an article in the October issue of The New East magazine.

The article is authored by Dr. Brame Resnik of East Carolina University, who teaches German language and literature as a faculty member of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures.

Dr. Resnik, in the article, explores reasons for the increasing interest by and growth of West German industry in Eastern North Carolina. These include accessibility, plentiful labor supply, climate, water and availability of component parts and raw materials. There are already at least 24 West German-based industries located and operating in North Carolina.

The article relates a visit by Dr. Resnik to one of these, Beuhler Products Inc., of Kinston, a subsidiary of a Nuremberg, Germany, firm. The vice president of manufacturing support for Beuhler Products is Rainer Kienle, who with his wife, Heidi, and two sons, came to the U.S. from Germany.

Time To Put Silliness Behind

Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter got pretty frank in an interview with Playboy magazines about the effects of his Southern Baptist heritage on his moral attitudes concerning sexuality.

So frank was the interview, in fact, that some people feel it might hurt him with religiously conservative people of the nation.

President Ford apparently saw it as a campaign issue. He immediately volunteered to the press that he would be surprised if his 19-year-old daughter Susan were involved in an "affair."

"I'd protest in a most vigorous way, and I'd counsel her. But I don't think that would happen — not the way Susan was brought up."

If that is all the two men chosen to be the nation's two major political parties' presidential candidates have to talk about, then perhaps we ought to re-convene the conventions. Maybe we could find two who could concern themselves with the major issues that face the nation and leave bedroom morality for individuals to grapple with — as it should be.

Hopefully the candidates have gotten this silliness out of their systems and will move on to problems of inflation, unemployment and maintaining a proper defense for the country.

Reform, Not Tax Revisions Necessary

The tax revision bill, passed by Congress last week, will be helpful to some tax payers and thus deserves to be signed by the president.

It continues tax reductions which were temporarily in effect, for instance.

The tax revisions, however, are not synonymous with badly needed tax reforms. Some deductions are eased and some are tightened up, but the overall confusing and unfair maze of deductions is continued.

Congress should be working on a tax plan which would simplify the entire tax program, eliminating most deductions and bringing down the overall rates correspondingly.

THIS AFTERNOON Readymade Reforms Fight

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The legislative stage is being set for what could well be a major battle in 1977 — a rewrite of North Carolina Public School Law.

A legislative study commission chaired by State Senator Edward Renfrow, D-Johnston County, is now meeting in two-day sessions every other week in preparing the sweeping reforms which will be proposed.

The unknown is how seriously those proposals will be taken by members of the General Assembly. It will take legislators a good many weeks to wade through the volumes of material and pinpoint the numerous changes — and mull the impact of each.

Some significant changes are readymade for conflict.

Appoint Superintendent

One such is a proposed Constitutional amendment which has been written in draft form by the study commission — it calls for an end to the election of a State Superintendent of Public Instruction, presently one of the Constitutional Council of State officers elected statewide along with the Commissioners of Labor, Insurance, Agriculture; Secretary of State; Auditor and Treasurer; and Attorney General.

Under the Renfrow Commission proposal, the State Board of Education would be made up of 15 people. The governor would appoint four members at large upon confirmation by the General Assembly. The other 11 would be appointed by the General Assembly from a list of nominees submitted by local school boards, with one member elected from each of the state's 11 U. S. Congressional Districts.

The proposal spells out overlapping four-year terms shall be used, with no member serving more than two terms. Vacancies would be filled by the governor.

The State Board of Education would hire the superintendent, who would serve as chief administrator and secretary to the board. The proposed law makes it quite clear that the superintendent "shall be a position exempt from the State Personnel Act . . . (with) a four-year contract, one provision of which shall be that the superintendent serves at the pleasure of the majority of the total board."

"If the board elects to dismiss the superintendent, other than for cause, during the contract period, the superintendent's salary and employment benefits shall continue . . ."

More Power

Further details in the rewritten law specifically spell out the powers and responsibilities of the State Board of Education, making it clear that the superintendent would carry out the policies and desires of the board. The chief budget officer currently operating in the State Department of Public Instruction would simply be deleted from the law, leaving the board and superintendent to set up such an office.

These changes would eliminate the present running conflict between some members of the State Board of Education and State Schools Supt. A. Craig Phillips. A sharp difference of philosophy in education exists in top levels of the public school hierarchy. That is complicated by the status of the budget officer as an employee of the board and answering to it rather than the superintendent.

Thus, questions often come up over who is actually in charge.

Other proposals in the massive rewrite job take from the General Assembly its role in approving local school system mergers, putting that authority in the State Board of Education; formalizes the procedures for use of force to maintain discipline; and calls for the board to set up and maintain a minimum standard course of study for all public schools.

The board would also maintain authority over various officials of the State Department of Public Instruction by requiring that the superintendent submit his choices to the board for approval.

By ART BUCHWALD The Report From Paris

PARIS — There is not too much happening in France at the moment. The biggest controversy seems to be that a French bishop insists on saying the Catholic Mass in Latin instead of French, and the Pope is very mad at him. The country is now divided on the issue with the Gaullists supporting the bishop, the Independent Socialists the Pope, and the Communists demanding a television debate before they decide how to vote.

The American tourist, long the symbol of U.S. imperialism in France, has virtually disappeared and has been replaced in all the first-class hotels by large families of Arab sheiks, their wives and children. The lobby of the Hotel George V is now full of little Saudi Arabian princes and princesses playing soccer between the chairs while their parents are out trying to figure out how to spend millions of dollars' worth of oil royalties in Paris shops. The employees of the hotel have strict orders not to remonstrate the children for anything they do because an average Arab kid in a Paris hotel spends $100 a day ordering from room service.

There has been a drought in northern France, and this has given the French merchants an excuse to raise their prices not only on food products in the drought zone, but on other things that ordinarily would not be affected by water.

Other Editors Say Major Highway

(Raleigh News and Observer)

Whatever the outcome of a route study on a major limited access highway between Eastern North Carolina and the Piedmont, it deserves high priority by the next administration and the state Transportation Board. Citizen groups have been lobbying for relief for over a decade, and the need is undisputed.

Rocky Mount has become a regional trading center. Wilson is among the state's top farm markets and Greenville is both a trading center and farm market and a growing university city.

The out-of-state consultant conducting the study unveiled seven proposals Tuesday at an interim report in Farmville. A final recommendation will be made in three months. The evidence presented Tuesday, however, indicates that first consideration should be given to enlarging U.S. 264 between Wilson, Greenville and Washington and U.S. 64 between Rocky Mount and Tarboro. The highest east-west traffic count was made along the U.S. 264 stretch around Greenville, and the U.S. 64 section west of Rocky Mount was found most in need of improvements.

Among the listed alternatives was a compromise favored by the Holshouser administration that would build a new road between and paralleling the current U.S. 64 and U.S. 264 routes. The study said such a highway could connect Wilson and Williamston and would cost an estimated $112.5 million. It would provide a more direct road to the Outer Banks, but it hardly solves the transportation needs of the region's most populous cities, namely Greenville, Rocky Mount and Washington, A more ambitious but similar compromise would cost $194.5 million.

In the past, competition between U.S. 64 and U.S. 264 boosters has hampered the overall effort to obtain a four-lane highway in the East. That rivalry still exists, but the study suggests that improvements are needed on both routes. Enlarging U.S. 64 between Rocky Mount and Williamston would cost $83.3 million; expanding U.S. 264 between Wilson and Washington would cost $93.2 million. Together, the two projects are less than the most expensive compromise proposal.

The final recommendation, of course, will weigh traffic needs and project growth. The result, however, can only emphasize again that Eastern North Carolina remains the one part of the state that has no major, four-lane highway joining its cities to the rest of the state.

A handbag I priced on the Faubourg St. Honore cost $450. The lady in the store explained to me it was "because of the drought."

A man's shirt in a window near the Place de l'Opera had been marked up from $40 to $50 "because of the drought."

Even a Louis V table in an antique shop had increased by $8,000 because of the dry weather in Normandy. The antique merchant explained that because of the lack of water the dealers had to slaughter all their Louis V tables, since they couldn't afford to feed them any more.

The big question I was constantly asked in Paris by the French was, "What do the Americans think of Giscard d'Estaing and France?"

I had to be honest and explain that Giscard was probably as well known in the

Carter Views Upheld

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE (AP) — Jimmy Carter's statements on morality and his Baptist faith, made in a Playboy magazine interview, accurately reflect Southern Baptist teachings, a denominational authority of social ethics says.

But Dr. Harry N. Hollis Jr. said Tuesday he "wouldn't have used the same language."

Hollis, a staff member of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Conference, has written several books on the moral aspects of sex and has served on a national committee on pornography.

In taped interviews with Playboy, the Democratic presidential candidate admitted having committed adultery in his heart by having "looked on a lot of women in lust."

But Carter said this a fault God recognizes and forgives, Carter said he does not necessarily mean that he condemns someone who "leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock," because people should not be proud and look down on others.

"What he (Carter) says about lust and forgiveness reflects deep insight and knowledge of the teachings of his religion," Hollis said.

"I think it reflects an open man, an honest man who knows a great deal about reality and teachings of his religion."

Hollis said individual Baptists cannot speak for the denomination as a whole or attempt to impose their views on other Baptists.

He said there is no way to predict what, if any, affect Carter's statements will have among voting Baptists.

"There's a man who is struggling to be moral. I believe people are hungry for morality in their leaders," Hollis said.

"Heaven knows Playboy needs to hear someone speak a strong moral word about sex. I hope (Playboy publisher) Hugh Hefner will read every word of it."

40 Years Ago Today

September 22, 1936

Germany pondered today a widely circulated report that Adolf Hitler may resign as Nazi Chancellor and retain the simple title of "der fuehrer" (the leader).

The same report mentioned Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering as Hitler's possible successor.

Authoritative circles refused to comment on the prediction, confining their expressions to an evasive, "we have not heard of it."

However, the persistence of the report and the diverse and cautious quarters from which it came have led some observers to believe there might be an actual basis for the report.

Creation of a farm council composed of federal, state, county and farmer representatives to coordinate various activities of agricultural relief was proposed today by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

O'Neal said he went over the plan at the summer White House with President Roosevelt only in a "general" way, but said Roosevelt favored the idea.

THE INSIDE REPORT

'Clinical Vision' Offered

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ANN ARBOR, Mich.—The presence of a Washington super-bureaucrat aboard Air Force One when it arrived in Michigan for the Ford campaign kickoff suggested the clinical nature, and hence the limitations, of the President's vision of America's future.

Paul O'Neill, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), brought along his actuarial tables to explain to newsmen the details of President Ford's proposal for easier terms on home mortgages. Indeed, not only the housing plan but his employment and education proposals unveiled in the campaign opener had the deadly odor of OMB and not the slightest touch of poetry.

Accordingly, the new "vision for America" that White House press agents had predicted would emerge from Ann Arbor is essentially the vision of a Washington bureaucrat. In a time of pervasive public hostility toward Washington, Mr. Ford is running—perhaps not intentionally but nonetheless unmistakably—as the Washington candidate. He is tied, for better or for worse, to the OMB mentality, Henry Kissinger's mission to Africa and the overriding political image of the federal government.

While far superior to the horrors of Mr. Ford's pre-convention campaigning, neither the style nor the substance of his performance here achieved the inspirational uplift the President's managers both need and want. Rather, there is reason to believe that Mr. Ford's hope of winning Nov. 2 is based less on what he does to arouse the public and more on what Jimmy Carter does not do to dispel public doubts about himself.

Mr. Ford's defiance of tradition by opening his campaign nine days after Labor Day on his old college campus was grounded in sound strategy. Campaign planners wanted no repetition of the old Jerry Ford careening around the countryside looking the spitting image of a Congressman from Grand Rapids. Moreover, they hoped that sustained practice by the President on a carefully prepared speech would duplicate the triumph of his impressive acceptance address in Kansas City.

The results were mixed. Mr. Ford's image on his visit to the University of Michigan was presidential, not congressional. Even while attending the Michigan football practice, former all-star center Ford watched sedately from the sidelines and resisted the impulse to try his hand at snapping the ball for the benefit of photographers.

But Ann Arbor was not another Kansas City. That night, the President at times aroused the preponderantly friendly audience of 14,000, which was particularly appreciative of a section of the speech twitting an unnamed Carter for asking voters to trust him without offering specific proposals. Mr. Ford generated a standing ovation when he declared: "Trust is not having to guess what a candidate means." However, the students were anesthetized by Mr. Ford's recitation of programs concocted for him by the federal bureaucracy.

Since the polls show the public perceiving greater vision in Carter than the President, Mr. Ford's advisers had determined that the Ann Arbor speech must show what course the nation would take if he were elected. The result, after endless meetings, debating and studying of option papers, was a typically bureaucratic product: long on programs, short on poetry.

Similarly, the President took pains to praise Secretary of State Kissinger's peacemaking mission for southern Africa. Yet, that effort though laudable is a diplomatic longshot which Republican politicians prefer Mr. Ford would not mention.

Nevertheless, the President declared here: "At my direction, Secretary Kissinger (booing begins) is now engaged in an intensive effort (prolonged ac-

THE COURAGE OF CONVICTION

We often make the mistake of believing that we commend ourselves to worldly people by being like them. Yet often they lose their respect for us if we are no better than they are.

Charles II, of England, was a notorious rake, yet the two men he admired above all others were William Penn, the Quaker, and Thomas Ken, an Anglican minister. Young Penn met Charles as the old man was nearing his grave. Penn kept his hat on in the presence of the king, addressed him as "Friend Charles," and spoke to him seriously about his approaching demise. Instead of resenting these liberties, Charles declared that Penn was a remarkable man.

Thomas Ken on one occasion refused to rent his house to the king's mistress when Charles commanded him to do so. The next Sunday he preached a sermon on the sanctity of marriage. Charles, admiring Ken's courage, later had him made a bishop.

No one admires a "trimmer," least of all the people for whom the "trimming" is done.

Candid Look At New Realities

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

Here are some highlights.

—Speaking of the need for the economy to evolve to meet needs:

"The new realities will demand that products of greater value, durability and economy of operation be developed for sophisticated consumers more in need of product utility, quality and conservation than in initial cost and style."

"The new realities will require that business be managed by leaders who are actively in tune with the larger goals of society."

—Explaining that the two main constituencies of business are customers and employees:

"Customers are entitled to ask, first, that the choices of products offered are responsive to their needs and, secondly, that in making their choices they have all the relevant facts and are assured of the service and quality they implicitly are promised.

"With respect to employees...they have a right to know that their aspirations and needs have a high place in our economic system."

"Our people are looking up from the grindstone and asking if there is not something more to life than work, however successful. Management must accommodate these new aspirations for larger dimensions to life, meshing corporate goals and practices as closely as possible with new employee objectives."

—On the contribution of business to achieving public goals beyond immediate business interests:

"This generation of managers appears to be farsighted enough to recognize that the future role of business in society inevitably will include more of the society in business."

"This is not only inevitable but logical. Many private decisions, especially those by larger enterprises, have substantial public effects. We should not expect that the people will continue to let such effects fall without the people achieving a voice, through government, in such decisions."

—On fears that government will supplant private industry on a large scale:

"Some people in government would like to do this, of course, but I think most people recognize that, just as business can't govern, government has proved that it cannot effectively manage anything close to a business activity."

Phony 'Fence' Did Some Acting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — For three months, Tony Ditranni managed an adult book store and slowly built up a sizeable sideline of buying stolen goods, usually at about 10 per cent full value.

Tony gave customers cards with his name, his business address and the store name, "Adult Book Store." He was in the book store job several weeks before he made his first buy: a camera for $10.

"The main thing was trying to give the appearance of being shady, of letting them know I'd do shady things," he said, "It was part acting and part salesmanship."

Tony warned his clients not to tell anyone he was buying stolen goods. "Those were the magic words. They ran right out and told everybody on the street," he said.

About 2:30 a.m. Tuesday Tony and his police buddies closed down "Operation Butterfly" which has resulted in 35 arrests. Tony—a rookie policeman who made up the name Tony Ditranni and worked through two agents of the State Bureau of Investigation—paid $9,608 for about $124,000 worth of stolen merchandise and $25,000 in illegal drugs.

Raleigh police said 91 persons sold drugs or stolen merchandise to Tony, but some of them may never be arrested because the 26-year-old undercover cop knew them only by street names such as "Boom Boom," "Toothpick," "Chastity," "Sea Man" and "Skeedy Weedy."

In an interview Tuesday night, Tony said he let his hair and beard grow before taking on the job. Now that it's over, he said he plans to shave and go back to college to earn a master's degree in criminology then return to undercover police work.

Raleigh police officials said Tony got away with his act because he came to the department from another city and had not yet worked in uniform in his new job. His real identity is still secret for his protection. While acting as a fence, Tony made nightly tape recordings of his day's activities and he arranged elaborate secret meetings with other officers to turn over the tapes and stolen goods he had purchased.

He gained the reputation as a fence who would go anywhere and would buy anything, always paying in cash from a wallet with no identification in it to give him away. He bought items such as guns, stereos, television sets, typewriters, gas masks and silverware. He worked an average of 80 hours a week.

A department spokesman said adult book stores are not known for fencing operations, that Tony became manager of the store after the owner complained to police that he suffered heavy shoplifting losses. Tony managed the store without a salary because he was paid by the department and all profits went to the owner.

"After two hours I was sick of dirty books," Tony said. His assignment had elements of risk and some of his clients questioned his identity.

"I most certainly had my moments of fear," he said. Once a customer with a knife held him up. Another time two men approached him in the store's parking lot with their hands in their pockets as though they had guns.

"I put my hand in my pocket too and said I didn't want a gunfight," he said, noting that the would-be bandits fled.

Tony said he had two ways of acting when accused of being an informer: "Sometimes I'd say 'You know that's not true' and give them an honest look. Sometimes I'd laugh and say 'Yeah sure, I'm the man,' and then say, 'C'mon, you want to make the deal or not?'"

"He had to be a bigger con man than the people he was dealing with," said Tony's boss, Lt. K.J. Johnson. *

Prewitt Joins Stadium Drive

Dr. Clinton R. Prewitt, professor of psychology at East Carolina University has been named campus chairman for the $2.5 million ECU Stadium Expansion Campaign.

The announcement was made today by Dr. Ray Minges, stadium expansion chairman for Greenville and Pitt County.

"We are very fortunate to have Dr. Prewitt assisting us in this drive," said Minges.

"He is highly admired by the faculty, staff and students at East Carolina University and he understands the impact a larger stadium will have on the University and the Eastern North Carolina area," he said.

A member of the ECU faculty since 1951, Prewitt has served a dean of students from 1952-73. He holds degrees from the University of Georgia, Oklahoma University and the University of North Carolina.

Prewitt said he was accepting the chairmanship for the ECU campus because the need for a larger stadium is "a legitimate concern."

"A larger stadium is necessary if we are to schedule our major opponents in Greenville," he said.

"A very heavy case could be made to the point that our athletic facilities now lay behind our other facilities. Anyone who has seen football games at our major opponents' home fields probably would agree."

The campaign to expand the stadium from 18,000 to 35,000 seats began earlier this month and is expected to be concluded by the end of year. Construction is slated to begin early next year and be completed in time for the 1977 season.

Heading the fundraising campaign is Robert L. "Roddy" Jones of Raleigh with Chancellor Leo Jenkins serving as vice-chairman. Tom Willis of Greenville is directing the drive.

United States as Richard Schweiker, and the last time France was mentioned in the United States was when some Croats hijacked an airplane flying from New York to Chicago.

"But it isn't our fault," I explained to my French friends. "Most Americans are only interested in the countries Henry Kissinger is interested in. At the moment Henry has decided he prefers Africa to France, and we have to go along with him."

"Why?" a Frenchman asked me.

"Because Henry knows best," I replied. "The national interests of the United States are inexorably tied to Namibia, Rhodesia and South Africa. It came as a surprise to most of us, but if Henry says, 'That's where it's happening,' we have no choice but put our prestige and money on the line. Henry doesn't fly around the world for nothing."

My French friend said, "He's making a big mistake getting into that stew."

"Ordinarily I would agree with you, but as an American I cannot question Henry's reasons for taking such a big interest in southern Africa. Besides, he may have something going for him in Capetown that none of us knows about."

My French friend said, "Do you think Kissinger will stay on if Ford is elected President?"

"He'll have to," I said. "He can't quit until Namibia is a free nation."

"Where is Namibia?"

"If we Americans knew," I replied testily, "do you think we'd tell you?"

None Injured In Copter Crash

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — No injuries were reported Tuesday in the crashlanding of a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter with a crew of three aboard.

The Coast Guard said the helicopter was headed to Mobile, Ala., from the cutter Westwind in the North Atlantic. The copter crashed in a cornfield near Plymouth after leaving Elizabeth City, N.C., en route to its next stop, Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Aboard the craft were Lt. Bill Hodges and Lt. J.G. R.G. Ausness, both of Miami, Fla., and Airman D.M. Lawson of Philadelphia.

celebrated boogie, forcing Mr. Ford to stop temporarily) to help all the parties, black and white, involved in the mounting crisis in southern Africa, to find a peaceful and just solution . . . (continued boogie)."

Elsewhere during Mr. Ford's 33-minute speech, cheers drowned out scattered hecklers. Only in the case of Kissinger and Africa were the boos sustained enough to interrupt Mr. Ford. Is this, then, a sign that the President should not mention his Secretary of State? "Absolutely not," one adviser angrily told us. "You'll see. Henry is a political asset."

Asset or not, Dr. Kissinger, along with much of the federal bureaucracy, enters this campaign as the President's silent partner. Following two recent Presidents who would listen to nobody, Gerald Ford listens to everybody—especially senior officials closest to him. That may be a heavy burden for him as he tries to catch the elusive, front-running challenger from Georgia.

Ford Busy Preparing For Thursday Night Debate

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

On the eve of the Great Debates, President Ford is holding dress rehearsals at the White House while Jimmy Carter is resting and studying issues after offering his first detailed suggestion for reorganizing the government.

Their first nationally televised debate, on economic and domestic issues, will be held in Philadelphia on Thursday night. Two more Ford-Carter debates, on other issues, will follow.

Presidential advisers say Ford is rehearsing with his aides acting as reporters who fire questions at him. Aides say the exercise is aimed at honing his responses to questions likely to be asked before the national television audience.

Ford aides say he is hoping to dispel doubts about his intelligence and ability. "He wants to appear informed, decisive and experienced while picturing Carter as the opposite," one aide said.

For his dress rehearsal, Ford planned to perform before videotape cameras that would allow him to replay and refine his responses.

Carter's aides said the Democratic nominee planned no special preparations for the debate other than to rest and read briefing books designed to keep him abreast of the issues.

Although Carter aides said the Democratic nominee planned no dress rehearsals before the debate, he does plan to visit the site of the debate to familiarize himself with the setting before he actually arrives to face Ford on Thursday night.

Meanwhile, the sponsors of the debate, the League of Women Voters, denied that the second debate, which is set for Oct. 6, will be in San Francisco's War Memorial Veterans Building.

The president of the board that operates the building had said the debate would be there. But a spokesman for the league said that while San Francisco is being considered along with other cities, the veterans building has been ruled out for technical reasons.

Both Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, and Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, planned to campaign today.

As Carter relaxed at home in Plains, Ga., his campaign organization issued the first details of what the Democratic nominee has promised would be an overhaul of the federal bureaucracy.

In a statement, Carter said he would abolish four existing agencies that now deal with energy questions, replacing them with a Cabinet-level department. He said he would abolish the Federal Energy Administration, the Federal Power Commission, the Energy Research and Development Administration and the Energy Resources Council.

Such a move, he said, would eliminate "the overlap, duplication and inconsistency of the present structure."

There are 20 agencies concerned with one aspect or another of energy policy now, but they have no central plan, creating a "jumble," he said. He added, "I will give the development of a coherent energy policy ... the highest priority."

Streamlining the government has been a major theme of the Carter campaign, and the candidate carried out a similar project when he was governor of Georgia.

Abolishing, consolidating or creating federal agencies or Cabinet departments requires congressional approval. Former President Richard M. Nixon proposed some reorganization plans to combine departments, but the Democratic-controlled Congress ignored most of them.

Carter often has been criticized for being imprecise on his plans for federal government reorganization. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said the announcement of the energy plan had nothing to do with the fact that the debate is Thursday and that Ford may raise such criticism of Carter.

Meanwhile, Ford spokesmen brushed aside published reports that a lobbyist for U.S. Steel Corp. paid for golf outings for Ford while he was a congressman and that the Watergate special prosecutor has subpoenaed records from the Republican party in Ford's home county.

About the golfing, White House spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford was twice the guest of William Whyte, the lobbyist, at the Pine Valley Golf Club near Clementon, N.J.

"If the President thought there was anything wrong, he wouldn't have done it," Nessen said. He said Ford considered it nothing more "than going to play golf with a friend of long-time standing."

Columnist Jack Anderson reported the golf outings, saying Whyte had said U.S. Steel paid for them. Edward Magee Jr., manager of the golf club, said Ford stayed at Laurel Ridge, a lodge owned by U.S. Steel.

At the same time, Watergate special prosecutor Charles Ruff subpoenaed records of the Kent County Republican party, headquartered in Ford's hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Another subpoena went to the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association for its campaign contribution records. The union made the largest single contribution to Ford's campaign in 1972, the last time he ran for Congress.

Tuesday night, David Gergen, special counsel to Ford, said there was no indication in the White House "of any overriding concern" about the investigation in Michigan.

And White House Counsel Philip Buchen said the Watergate prosecutor's investigation probably involves the Maritime Union and that everything regarding Ford was brought out during Ford's vice presidential confirmation hearings.

In Columbus, Ohio, Dole said Carter's top priority is "to get elected, at any cost, with any statement," and Dole accused the Democratic nominee of switching his position for political expediency.

"All we have from Mr. Carter are promises that change every day," Dole said in a speech to the Ohio Republican convention.

Mondale was riding a train on the Democratic campaign trail through Ohio and Illinois en route to Chicago.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee declared the whistlestop tour a success, saying in Gary, Ind., "We've gone through the heartland of America and spoken to thousands of people."

Murder, Suicide After Heart Death

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A retired Texaco executive, his wife and their invalid daughter are dead—he of a heart attack and the women of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The medical examiner, Dr. Kenneth LaTourette, ruled Tuesday that the death of the daughter was a homicide.

Robert Conary, 63, retired director of European research for Texaco, his wife and daughter had been living in Hendersonville with friends as they awaited completion of remodeling of a roomy, colonial style residence which would be their retirement home.

Visiting the remodeling site on Thursday morning, Conary was stricken. He was dead on arrival at a hospital.

A carpenter who reported for work at the home on Friday morning found the bodies of Mrs. Conary, 58, and Susan Conary, 35, in the front seat of a family car parked in the garage.

Garland Brown, chief of detectives of the sheriff's department, said a hose was rigged from the car's exhaust pipe into the right side of the car.

LaTourette ruled Mrs. Conary died of carbon monoxide poisoning. The body of Susan Conary was sent to Chapel Hill for an autopsy which LaTourette said disclosed that she, too, died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

He said the autopsy revealed no signs of violence.

He said, however, he believed it unlikely the young woman would have entered the car of her own free will, had she known she was going to die.

He said Miss Conary suffered from congenital heart disease.

Five Items Before Adjustments Board

Five items of business are scheduled for consideration by the Greenville Board of Adjustments on Thursday evening while the City-County Board will discuss two business matters.

The Greenville Board will consider a request by the Pitt County Mental Health Department for renewal of a special use permit in order to continue operation of the school for the mentally handicapped at 1600 E. Greenville Boulevard. The item was tabled at the August meeting.

Also scheduled is a report on the Jaycee Park, as well as public hearings on requests by: Fast Fare Inc. for a special use permit in order to construct and operate gasoline pumps at 506 Memorial Drive.

Esther and Lucille Rich for a variance from front and side setback requirements in order to construct a carport at 509 W. 14th Street; and by Gene Higson for a variance in order to enlarge the structure located at 711 North Greene Street.

Public hearings are scheduled by the city-county members on a request by Dan Owens for a special use permit in order to place a mobile home on the lot located on the northeast corner of old Greek Road and Pactolus Highway for use as a drive-in restaurant; and on a request by Ricky Meeks for a special use permit in order to place a mobile home on the lot located on Highway 43 approximately one mile from the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center.

Cupcake Is 'Heirloom'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Carefully protected from the maraudings of ants and mice, a 12-year-old cupcake nestles in a special box at the home of Sara Ogg in Columbus, awaiting its next appearance.

The cupcake, with caramel icing slowly losing its color and pecan bits on top held in place by wax, has become a family keepsake, emerging from its box on birthdays, anniversaries and special events.

Its next appearance is scheduled for October, when Mrs. Ogg's second child is due.

"Some people are mortified that I have kept it," she said. "Others have no idea why I'm keeping it. That cupcake and I had a milestone this summer. It was 12 and I turned 30."

"I intend to pass the cupcake down to my children."

The cupcake first came into Mrs. Ogg's life in 1964 as an 18th birthday present from her father's secretary.

"I just stuck it in a drawer," she said. "When I came home at Christmas, I discovered it. I kept it and next year brought it out for my birthday."

Mrs. Ogg says she's tried to have the cupcake bronzed, but local outlets have refused.

Lonely Death For Man Chained To Tree

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Before he died, Douglas Ray Sumner spent two weeks chained to a tree. He built a lean-to for shelter, dug a hole to collect rain, and ate palmetto leaves and bark chips while he struggled in vain to free himself, police say.

Sumner, 21, had not been seen by his family since he left home to go camping two years ago, telling his mother, "I'll be back in three or four days — or maybe never."

When his best friend saw him a year ago and asked what he had been doing, Sumner replied, according to police: "I'm just trying to get my head screwed on straight. Don't tell anybody you've seen me."

A Baptist pastor who knew him said Sumner had gotten involved in a "way-out religious group" and might have willingly allowed himself to be anchored to a tree by a 15-foot logging chain attached to a 20-inch metal collar around his waist.

Two hunters stalking wild boar found his bones in a dense thicket a mile from the Gulf of Mexico last month. Investigators say Sumner had died about seven months before that, from either starvation or exposure.

Police call his death murder, but have not speculated on a possible motive. No arrests have been made.

Pastor Pierre Kennedy said Tuesday that the last time he saw Sumner the youth told him "he was going to go up to the forest and stay for a while."

"I think he might have had somebody chain him to that tree. Maybe someone said to him, 'We'll chain you to this tree and you can get closer to God."

"This is the type of thing some of those lunatic religious groups talk about, this ascetic idea that you can get close to God by depriving your body of things, food and drink and pleasure."

Found near Sumner's body were sneakers, shreds of clothes, a leather belt, books including a Bible and an identification card from the University of South Florida where he had worked as a ground-keeper.

Only 10 of the body's 206 bones remained. Officers said the rest must have been carried off by animals. Sumner was identified by a jawbone fragment and the identification card.

At the bottom of the pine tree was a gash where Sumner apparently tried to cut the thick bark, police said. They said scars 10 feet up showed where he tried to work the chains up and over the top of the tree.

Agents from the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement said that near the tree where Sumner died they found a crude lean-to fashioned from palmetto fronds and a hole apparently dug by human hands.

Also nearby they found several balls of leaves the size of a fist, which they believed Sumner had used for nourishment in addition to the fronds.

They speculated that he had been left to die sometime in January and had managed to keep alive for about two weeks.

'Tenella' Compiled 1854 Anthology Of N.C. Poetry

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator North Carolina Collection
Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — In 1854 the first anthology of North Carolina poetry was published in Raleigh. Its compiler, listed on the title page simply as "Tenella," was in actuality a prominent Tar Heel woman. The two-volume anthology brought together 181 poems, a substantial sampling of the antebellum production of a state which had shown little sensitivity to poetry. In fact, the status of the poetic art was interred in the compiler's preface: "In this utilitarian age we are too prone to consider poetry as ingenious, trifling, unmanly and unwise; but it should be remembered that in every age and nation it has been the record of the highest and noblest thoughts of the best and purest of men." "Tenella" was Mary Bayard Devereux Clarke of Raleigh. Born in Raleigh in 1827, Mary was a daughter of Thomas Pollock Devereux and Katherine Anne Johnson Devereux. Her father was a substantial lawyer and planter and he was able to supply his daughter with an English governess who gave her the course of study prescribed then at Yale University. Both in the arts of womanhood and languages, Mary excelled. She took particular delight in translating poetry from other languages into English, and she showed special talents in writing. As Mary matured, her childhood playmate, William John Clarke, went off to war in Mexico, returning with wounds and the rank of captain. At the Louisiana home of her uncle, Bishop Leonidas Polk, they were married in 1848. The couple returned to Raleigh, and Clarke opened law practice. Mary busied herself with writing poetry and reading the works of others. Noting the need for poetic stimulation in her home state, she published the above-mentioned "Wood-Notes: OR, Carolina Carols" in 1854. Early in the life Mary had contracted tuberculosis, and the disease was aggravated by the Raleigh climate. She sought escape in Cuba one year, and in 1855 the couple moved to San Antonio, Tex., where Clarke became president of the San Antonio and Mexican Gulf Railway. With the outbreak of the Civil War, however, Clarke was called into service. Later he was commissioned colonel of the 24th North Carolina Regiment, and he was captured and imprisoned toward the end of the war. Meanwhile, Mary had continued her literary activity back in Raleigh. Many of her poems, published in the newspaper of the day, provided patriotic encouragement for the Confederacy. Following the war, Mrs. Clarke was for a time assistant editor of the "southern Field and Fireside," but she also furnished poems and articles for other publications. She issued a volume of poems, "Mosses from a Rolling Stone," and gave the proceeds to the Stonewall Jackson Cemetery in Winchester, Va. In 1868 the Clarks moved to New Bern where the colonel practiced law and later became a superior court judge. His income was small, however, and Mary wrote both for pleasure and money. "I am busy editing my paper, the 'Literary Pastime'; corresponding with two others; contributing to two magazines; and translating a French novel; added to which I am composing the libretto for an opera, and writing Sunday-school hymns at 5 dollars apiece." Archibald Henderson concluded that "Mrs. Clarke was the only literary figure in North Carolina prior to 1870 who made a profession, and not a mere pastime, of literature." Literary activity, and the pleasure of seeing her works published, kept Mary Bayard Devereux Clarke going. Tuberculosis ravaged her body, and as her health deteriorated, she wrote dejectedly, "I can't keep house or sew without being laid up in a few days; and it is impossible for me to get any writing to do that will pay and enable me to hire the work done." After suffering a stroke in 1883, Mrs. Clarke could no longer er write. Surprisingly, however, she could press down a finger of each hand. Consequently, when a friend gave her a "calligraph" (an early version of today's typewriter, she was able to continue her correspondence. In 1905 published a volume titled "Poems by Mrs. Mary Bayard Clarke," thus assuring literary immortality for North Carolina's foremost antebellum patron of poetry.

Assured Of More Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Strom Thurmond says U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has given his assurances that tobacco sales opportunity on South Carolina tobacco markets will be increased. Thurmond, R-S.C., said Tuesday the sales will be increased by raising the amount of sales that federal buyers can handle. The increase should be from 2,560,000 pounds per day to 3,600,000 pounds. Thurmond made the announcement after conferring with Butz, who he quoted as saying that sufficient sales opportunity will be provided so that the tobacco season in the state will be closed by Oct. 14. Thurmond said the amount of sales permitted daily for each set of tobacco buyers in the state will be increased Oct. 4 to the maximum allowed by federal regulations. One of the senator's aides said the eight sets of buyers currently in the state are handling 320,000 pounds of tobacco per day. He said the new limit will be 450,000 pounds per set of buyers. Managing Director Marion Fowler of the South Carolina Warehousemen's Association said late Tuesday that the increase would be helpful in closing out the tobacco sales season in the state.

Leaf Prices Still High

Price average on the Greenville Tobacco Market continued high Tuesday as overall quality of offerings remained at a high level, it was reported by sales supervisor J.N. Bryan. Bryan said that the market averaged $124.59 per hundred pounds yesterday as the warehouses sold 955,774 pounds for $1,190,822. The figures brought the season totals to 31,299,105 pounds which have sold for $35,295,051, an average of $112.77 per hundred pounds, according to Bryan. Top practical price paid here on Tuesday's sale was $1.30 per pound. Stabilization receipts dropped down to only .91 per cent of total sales. Offerings consisted mostly of leaf, smoking leaf and cutters with an increase in lugs, primings and non descript tobacco.

Building Plant At Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Connecticut company has announced it will build a $4 million plant here to produce diesel fuel-injection parts. About 200 persons will be hired initially by Stanadyne Inc. with plans calling for the plant expanding to a $15 million value with 1,000 employees, company officials said at a meeting called to announce the plant. Company President Paul Mongerson said construction will begin immediately and should be completed early next year. It is being built on a 21-acre site here. Mongerson said demand for diesel parts has increased and the firm decided to construct a new plant rather than expand its Hartford, Conn., facility. Stanadyne make plumbing products at its Sanford plant.

Grieves For S. Vietnam

By JOHN RUTHERFORD BRACKENRIDGE, Pa. (UPI) — Peace has brought only more heartache to Vietnam.

William Cooper Jr. spent six years in Vietnam and was one of the last Americans to leave in August. He had hoped to stay in Saigon after the Communist takeover in April 1975, but instead was imprisoned for nine months on suspicion of being a CIA agent.

When Cooper emerged from prison in January of this year, the 38-year-old Quaker was shocked at what he saw.

The North Vietnamese have imposed a grim and oppressive regime on the South, he said.

"The NLF (National Liberation Front, or Vietcong) was not strong enough to resist the North Vietnamese," Cooper said. "The northerners moved in and took over and the southerners have no say in the government."

Food, medicine and other goods are scarce and expensive because the North Vietnamese have shipped them to Hanoi, he said.

Jobs are hard to get and many people are denied work permits. People stay off the streets out of fear and hatred of the North Vietnamese.

"At 9 o'clock at night, Saigon is like a ghost town," Cooper said.

People are being forced out of Saigon into "slow deaths" in the countryside, and their homes are confiscated by the North Vietnamese.

Refugees who come back to Vietnam also are treated harshly. A group of Vietnamese who returned by boat from the United States has not been seen since.

"They just disappeared," Cooper said. "Most people think they're in re-education camps."

Former South Vietnamese soldiers and government officials were sent to similar re-education camps after the Communist takeover. Thousands are still there and rumors persist of inhumane treatment and many deaths.

The South Vietnamese believe conditions will get even worse after the last of the foreigners leave the country. Cooper doubts, however, that the situation will be as bad as Cambodia because the Vietnamese Communists want American aid and membership in the United Nations.

"But people cannot live under such conditions," Cooper said. "Most of the people in Saigon are doing everything they can to get out of Vietnam."

Some try to marry foreigners. Others try to escape to Thailand by boat or overland through Laos.

Still others are hiding out in the jungle. There are rumors of resistance by former South Vietnamese soldiers and disenchanted Vietcong.

Cooper had sympathized with the Vietcong and opposed the U.S. military presence because of the "oppressive and unjust" Thieu regime. He had hoped his close contacts with the Vietcong would allow him to remain in Vietnam after the Communist takeover to continue caring for war-injured children in Saigon and Quang Ngai.

But he was arrested by the North Vietnamese six days after Vietnam fell and placed in solitary confinement in Saigon's Chi Hoi prison from May, 1975, through January, 1976.

Cooper lost 45 pounds in prison and came down with beriberi. He kept his wits by practicing Buddhist meditation and composing books and playing games in his head.

"There were times when I thought I wouldn't be able to take another day," he said. "I was never tortured but always questioned."

It was only after his release that Cooper learned he had been held as a suspected CIA agent. He said he never had any connection with the CIA or any other U.S. government agency.

Cooper discovered his old residence had been turned over to a "revolutionary family" so he moved in with some other Americans who had been trapped in the takeover and were waiting to get out.

He wandered freely about Saigon for the next six months and earned a living by teaching English. In August, he was suddenly allowed to leave Vietnam with most of the other foreigners.

"If things were different, I'd like to go back," Cooper said. "Most of the Vietnamese are still very friendly toward the Americans and wish we'd come back."

"But I'm afraid Vietnam will always be a closed society."

Pet Cemetery Ass'n Growing

Has Mushrooms And Trespassers

EBEY ISLAND, Wash. (AP) — Farmer Brown's fields are filled with thousands of tiny mushrooms — and with hundreds of trespassers who think they'll get psychedelic highs by eating them.

Murph Brown estimates that 500 or more young persons, ignoring the "Keep Out" signs posted on his fences, have trampled his fields the past month in search of "Psilocybe pelliculosa" mushrooms, a variety that thrives in late summer.

"I talked to 40 or 50 of them," Brown said. "There were 28 cars last Sunday and they had a bus at the other place. You make 'em mad (and) they can do a lot of damage."

Fans of the mushroom say it causes a reaction similar to that of LSD, including a temporary loss of awareness of time and space.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Association of Pet Cemeteries held its fifth annual convention here, attended by about 135 pet cemetery owners from all over the nation.

"The idea of pet cemeteries isn't new," said Patricia Blosser, a founder, past president and now executive director of the association. "It goes all the way back to the Egyptian pharaohs. But our association right now is one of the fastest-growing trade groups in the country."

Mrs. Blosser and her husband Robert operate a boarding kennel and grooming parlor for dogs in Elgin, Ill. They also operate a pet cemetery there, one of 418 listed in the United States.

Of pets receiving cemetery burials or cremations, 75 per cent are dogs, 24 per cent cats and 1 per cent miscellaneous, with horses the most common in the latter category, Mrs. Blosser said.

Hunt-Flaherty Debate Snagged

RALEIGH (AP) — Though there were some problems Tuesday, a spokesman for the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters said he was sure a debate between gubernatorial candidates Jim Hunt and David Flaherty would be televised live Oct. 5 as planned.

The debate is to be broadcast from Pinehurst but Hunt's schedule had a conflict and there was a problem with the federal law requiring equal television time for all candidates.

The debate is planned to take place during the last day of the broadcasters convention and tentatively scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Democrat Hunt is scheduled to attend a Council of State meeting in Raleigh at 9:30 a.m. that day and a Hunt spokesman, Gary Pearce, said the lieutenant governor could not be in Pinehurst unless the debate time is changed or the meeting is postponed.

Peter Powell, associate counsel for the broadcasters, said it would be difficult for them to change the time for the debate. But, Gov. Jim Holshouser could change the date for the Council of State meeting.

Holshouser, a Republican, was in Japan Tuesday on a trade mission and could not be asked whether he would change the meeting to accommodate the candidates.

The Federal Communications Commission could solve the other problem by granting the broadcasters an exemption from the equal time rule for the debate. Powell expressed confidence they would get it.

If the exemption is not granted, minor party candidates could demand the right to participate in the debate or to

Town Is Still No Tourist Mecca

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — After years of putting up a brave front, this town is ready to admit it's having a tough time luring tourists.

In 1955, the city boldly adopted the slogan "Tan Your Hide in Oceanside."

Now city fathers have decided to replace it with "Oceanside — California's Best Kept Secret."

of Carthage, the nominee of the American party.

The agreement by the candidates to debate was reached earlier this month at a meeting of the North Carolina Associated Press Broadcasters' Association. Hunt challenged the winner of the GOP runoff to debate, and Flaherty accepted.

Flaherty has called for two debates with the second one possibly being sponsored by the League of Women Voters. No date or time has been chosen, and no agreement in principle with Hunt has been reached, a Flaherty aide said.

The format for the first debate would probably have the candidates questioned by a panel of reporters, Powell said. There would be more opportunity for exchanges between the candidates than there was in the series of "forums" held before the Aug. 17 primaries.

Greensboro Field Busier

RALEIGH (AP) — The jet runway at the Raleigh-Durham Airport has been closed for repaving until at least Oct. 1. This has made The Greensboro Airport, 80 miles away and the closest for jet travel out of the state, busier than ever.

The only aircraft flying in and out of Raleigh-Durham are one-engine or two-engine planes which can land on the short, secondary runway which remains open.

Feeder airlines have added flights during the repaving. And the airport limousine service is traveling between Greensboro and the airport at least every two hours.

Eastern and United Airlines are making stops at Greensboro which normally would have been made at Raleigh-Durham.

The North Carolina football team will travel by bus to Greensboro on Friday to fly to Newburgh, N.Y., for Saturday's game with the U.S. Military Academy. The Michigan State team, which plays in Raleigh on Saturday, will have to fly into Greensboro and travel by bus for its game with North Carolina State.

During regular operations, Raleigh-Durham handles about 85 landings and takeoffs a day.

Only three cylinders will operate automatically when the vehicle's power demands are minimal. (AP Wirephoto)

Some States Short Of Polio Vaccine Supplies

ATLANTA (AP) — Several state health departments have been left short of polio vaccine by a contract disagreement between the Center for Disease Control and a vaccine supplier anxious to protect itself from possible lawsuits, the CDC says.

The impasse comes at the height of the traditional school pupil vaccination season and a time when federal health officials fear declining immunization could lead to new outbreaks of polio.

An assistant secretary in the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dr. Theodore Cooper, has said in a recent memo, "I am fearful that curtailment of childhood immunization activities in a number of states may result in outbreaks of the disease."

Eight polio cases in the United States have been reported to the CDC so far this year.

Negotiations are now at a stalemate between the CDC, which distributes vaccines to most states, and Lederle Laboratories, the principal supplier of the vaccine, a CDC spokeswoman, Betty Hooper, said Tuesday.

The company is fearful of lawsuits arising from possible side effects of the vaccine. It wants contract wording to say the CDC "warrants" that parents of school children will give written "informed consent" to the vaccinations.

The CDC wants to keep the original wording that said the federal agency will "take reasonable steps" to get acknowledgment from parents.

Most severely affected by the lack of vaccine are South Carolina, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

South Carolina has temporarily suspended enforcement of a law requiring children to be vaccinated before entering elementary school, Mrs. Hooper said. The state normally administers 68,000 vaccinations from September to December. It has fewer than 1,000 doses on hand.

Pennsylvania, which usually administers about 50,000 polio vaccinations each fall, has about 1,000 doses on hand. The District of Columbia, which normally administers about 10,000, is completely out, said Mrs. Hooper.

Georgia is in somewhat better shape, with 120,000 doses on hand compared to a normal fall usage of 140,000, a state spokesman said.

"The signatures are the only way the company can protect itself against lawsuits," said Paul Stessel, a company spokesman.

Stessel said there is no shortage of vaccine. "We are just waiting for the contract to be signed and we will begin distributing the drug," he said.

Mrs. Hooper said that earlier this year a manufacturer of measles vaccines temporarily withheld them from distribution because it wanted the federal government to require consent statements. She said the CDC signed a contract with the company after the firm withdrew its demands.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead in heavy trading today, riding the momentum of Tuesday's full-speed rally. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed more than 3 points in the early going. Gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The composite ticker tape reporting trades in NYSE-listed stocks ran 6 minutes late shortly after the opening.

Brokers said buying was encouraged by expectation of lower interest rates as well as the market's breakout Tuesday through the top of the range in which it had fluctuated for more than six months.

Analysts were keeping a close eye on the money markets in hopes of spotting signs of a slight relaxation in the Federal Reserve's credit policy. The Fed's policy-setting Open Market Committee held its monthly meeting Tuesday. Today's early NYSE prices included American Telephone, up 1/4 at 62 1/2; General Electric, ahead 1/4 at 56; and General Motors, unchanged at 72 1/2.

In Tuesday's upsurge the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 20.28 points to 1,014.79, its highest close since Jan. 23, 1973.

It was the biggest daily advance for the average since Aug. 28 of 1975, when it climbed 22.45 points.

Jenkins Calls For Setting Guidelines

GREENSBORO — Universities and government must assert leadership in providing expertise and guidelines needed to meet new challenges in the environment and hazards to health "undreamed of a few years ago," East Carolina University chancellor Leo W. Jenkins said today.

"In our colleges and universities, we have to take the lead in discovering new ways to clean up effluent as well as help develop non-polluting technologies," Jenkins said.

"In government, we must set regional pollution standards. Different environments require specific guidelines," he said.

Jenkins, in an address prepared for the Environmental Health Section, N.C. Public Health Association, called for additional studies about what harms the environment and how, and to better determine the degree to which the environment can cleanse itself.

If people and government had heeded warnings of more than a century ago, "we would have done a much better job in managing our environment and in lessening the impact of new industrial technology upon our health," Jenkins said.

"The trial-and-error lessons so dearly learned by all of us might never have taken place," he said.

"Proper awareness of potential ill-effects could have led to better planning, more adequate controls, and a safer life while permitting the continued and necessary growth and expansion of our industries, our agricultural plants and others," Jenkins said.

At East Carolina University, he said "we became aware of the growing need for well-trained environmental health professionals some years ago, and we are very proud of the results we have achieved."

An "outstanding job" has been done in the ECU Department of Environmental Health established in the School of Allied Health and Social Professions. This department, offering the B.S. degree in environmental health, has one of only eight fully-accredited undergraduate programs in the nation, and the only one in North Carolina. Jenkins said, "we hope to move forward to develop a master of science program in environmental health" at ECU.

Claim Ex- Ambassador Secret Police Victim

By JAMES H. RUBIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of the ruling military junta in Chile are charging that nation's secret police with responsibility for a bomb blast that ripped through the car of a former Chilean official, killing him and a woman colleague.

The explosion in downtown Washington killed Orlando Letelier, 44, ambassador to the United States under the late Chilean President Salvador Allende. Ronni Karpen Moffitt, 25, a staff member at the Institute for Policy Studies where Letelier ran a foreign affairs program, was riding in the front seat and also was killed.

Her husband, Michael, a research associate at the liberal research institute, who was in the back seat, survived with injuries that didn't require hospitalization.

Opponents of the current Chilean regime claimed that Letelier, an outspoken critic of the military group, was the victim of a political assassination.

Although they did not cite specific evidence, they pointed to violent attacks on other allies of Allende's Marxist rule in recent years.

Those include Carlos Prats Gonzalez, commanding general of the Chilean Army under Allende, and his wife, who were killed by a bomb blast on Sept. 30, 1974, in Buenos Aires; and Bernardo Leighton, a former Christian Democratic Party leader in Chile who was shot with a machine gun in Rome last October. Leighton and his wife were wounded in the attack.

Letelier's coworkers at the research institute here and the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, a private group that advocates suspension of U.S. economic and military aid to nations that violate human rights, said the killings were the work of Chilean spies.

But Chilean Ambassador Manuel Trucco said, "My government repudiates this outrageous act of terrorism. I urgently request that a complete and serious inquiry be undertaken."

Letelier was Allende's ambassador to the United States from 1970 until the Marxist president was overthrown Sept. 11, 1973. He spent a year in prison in Chile after the coup and came back to the United States after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger intervened to have him freed. But upon his return here, Letelier charged that American officials deceived him about the CIA's alleged role in undermining Allende.

Letelier was Allende's ambassador to the United States from 1971 until May 1973 when he was called back to Chile to become foreign minister. He also served as defense and interior minister under Allende. He was jailed on Sept. 11, 1973, when the armed forces overthrew Allende's government.

He spent a year in prison in Chile after the coup and came back to the United States after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger intervened to have him freed. But upon his return here, Letelier charged that American officials deceived him about the CIA's alleged role in undermining Allende.

Boston Terrier Month In N.C.

Governor James Holshouser recently signed a resolution designating September as Boston Terrier Month in North Carolina according to Curtis Joyner of Greenville.

Joyner, Chairman of the board by-laws of the N.C. Boston Kennel Club, said that Gov. Holshouser agreed to honor the Boston Terrier since it was the first American bred dog in the United States.

Steamships that have no regular routes but will go anywhere to pick up and transport cargo are labeled tramp steamers.

Found Stolen Cigarettes In Burned House

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation arson squad is investigating the fire at an abandoned farm house last week that authorities say they believe burned $160,000 worth of stolen cigarettes.

Authorities said there was no immediate indication whether the fire was set by the thieves who stole the cigarettes or whether the building burned accidentally.

The cigarettes were part of a $210,000 shipment of cigarettes stolen from Ryder Truck Lines in Raleigh Sept. 14. They were identified by B.M. Caudell, Ryder terminal manager.

Cumberland County officers found the burned cigarettes after being called to the farmhouse blaze about 1 a.m. Monday.

Police found the rig in which the cigarettes were stolen at a rest stop in Interstate 95 in Cumberland County. It still contained 301 cases of the total shipment of 1,148 cases inside the rig when it was stolen.

Test Safety Of Incinerator Plan

NORTH BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Tests are being made to determine whether it would be safe to burn abandoned chemicals in the Caldwell County incinerator.

There are 12,000 rusty 55-gallon drums of the material at a chemical reprocessing site at North Belmont in Gaston County which is no longer used.

A court has ordered them destroyed. A plan to burn them in an open pit in Lincoln County backfired last month.

Meat Packers' Strike Delayed

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The nationwide strike against the Hormel meat packing company, which was to have started today, has been postponed 24 hours to allow further negotiations on a new contract. Hormel has a Carolinas distributing plant in Charlotte.

Union and company representatives met today in St. Louis.

Police Erred In Public Auction

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police in Charlotte illegally sold confiscated and found property at a public auction last Saturday. The items had not been kept for the required 60 days for bicycles and 210 days for other goods, the time for advertising. The police say it was an honest mistake that won't happen again. The buyers will not have to return the articles.

County Teams Enter Conference Play

When was it, pray tell, that all four Pitt County football teams lost on the same weekend? It's been a long time, that's for sure. At any rate, that's what happened last week. This week, however, the four join the Eastern Carolina Conference's other team — also losers last week, in opening the league schedule this Friday night.

Things turned out bad for all eight Eastern Carolina teams as C. B. Aycock bowed to Camp Lejeune, 24-22; Ayden-Grifton fell to Washington, 20-16; Havelock rolled over D. H. Conley, 49-0; Plymouth upset Farmville Central, 24-21; Southern Wayne routed Greene Central, 34-0; Eastern Wayne did the same to North Lenoir, 40-0; Lillington shut out North Pitt, 26-0; and Smithfield-Selma went past Southern Nash, 27-7.

This week, there are bound to be four winners however. Under the new state rule on ties, all games will be played to a conclusion.

North Pitt visits Aycock, Ayden-Grifton is at Southern Nash, North Lenoir visits Conley, and Farmville goes to Greene Central.

The defeat for Conley was its first this year after downing two Carteret County teams.

"We just went up against a better team," Coach Chuck

NP's Larry McLawhorn

Dunn said following the contest. "We got a large number of bruises and sprains but everyone should be ready for this week's game."

Dunn termed North Lenoir as young a team as are the Vikings. "But they are physically stronger, so it should be a good, tough game."

North Lenoir brings in an 0-3 record, however, having scored only six points this year.

Nuggie Worthington drew praises from Dunn as the outstanding player from last week's game.

North Pitt will be on the road against one of the tougher teams in the league in Aycock. The Falcons won their first two games by impressive margins, but then lost a close one to Camp Lejeune.

The Panthers, hampered by injuries, have dropped all three of their games, scoring in only one of them.

Larry McLawhorn suffered an injury in the Lillington game, and may not see action this week. If out of action, he is the third Panther to be sidelined.

Melvin Vines gained honors as the top Panther player last week.

Farmville Central's loss to Plymouth came by extra points. In each instance, Farmville kicked and Plymouth went for the two-pointer as each scored three touchdowns.

"We scored with about seven minutes left in the game and I felt that we had ample time to score again and win," Coach

Gene Brewer said. The Jaguars, however, were cut down by a late interception deep in Plymouth territory.

"Our defense did not play well at all. They didn't do anything unexpected. We just didn't stop them. Offensively, I think we did a pretty good job considering the elements," the coach said. The second half was played in the rain.

Buc Booters Fall By 2-0

RALEIGH — The N.C. State soccer team scored two goals early in the first half and held off East Carolina to capture a hard fought 2-0 victory here Tuesday afternoon.

The win was N.C. State's first of the season after losing its opener to Pfeiffer while the Pirates suffered their third straight loss of the season.

Freshman midfielder Greg Myren scored the Wolfpack's first goal on an assist from wing Patrick Ndokuba. Halfback Dan Beatty got the Pack's final goal of the afternoon on an assist from wing Gino Olcese.

The Pirates were playing without their starting goalie John Keener who suffered an ankle injury in Friday's loss to William and Mary. Junior Wayne Barrow who replaced Keener in the lineup was credited with ten saves and did a fine job defensively for the Pirates.

East Carolina swings back into action this weekend when the Pirates travel to Norfolk, Virginia, to play in the Old Dominion Tournament. East Carolina opens its home season the following Saturday against the defending Southern Conference champions Appalachian State.

While the Jaguars have some bumps and bruises, everyone should be ready to go Friday against the Rams.

"It's hard to tell what kind of team they are," Brewer said in reference to his foe. "Statistically, Greene Central has won the last two games, but they've lost them both on the scoreboard. They played good ball against Washington (two weeks ago) and should have

FC's Len Hunt

North Pitt Gets Win

BETHEL—North Pitt's volleyball team evened its record at 1-1 with a 2-1 victory over Greene Central yesterday.

The Pant-HERS had earlier lost a match to Farmville Central on Monday, 2-1.

North Pitt won the opener against Greene Central, 15-8, but the Ewes came up with a 15-4 win in the second game.

The Pant-HERS won the third game, 16-14, in a hard-fought contest to clinch the match.

Greene Central is now 0-2. Further details were not available.

won.

"They'll be ready to play us, you can bet," Brewer added.

He singled out Keno Farrow, Carroll Griffin and Len Hunt for their offensive play, and Mike Jenkins for his play both offensively and defensively.

Despite some poor play in the Ayden-Grifton game, Coach Claude Kennedy felt his team should have won. "We didn't look all that good, but neither did (Washington). We had a couple of breaks that didn't go our way, like their first touchdown was tipped by our linebacker and they caught it in the end zone anyway."

Kennedy also cited several fumbles when the Chargers had good field position.

Two injuries marred the game for the Chargers. Linemen Mike Teachey and Eddie Ricciarelli were both hurt. Teachey is expected to be ready to play, but Ricciarelli, with torn cartilage, will miss five to six weeks.

"We're playing one of the conference favorites, and I think (Southern Nash) is better than its 1-2 record. They don't have a great deal of top athletes, but they have several who are real good. They're going to be tough for us to handle. We just haven't put it all together yet."

Elsewhere in the area last week, Jamesville bowed to Belhaven, 14-0, Roanoke topped Elm City, 28-12, and Williamston won its fourth straight, dumping Murfreesboro, 32-0.

This week, Jamesville is at Bath, Roanoke at conference favorite West Edgecombe, and Williamston at Roanoke Rapids, as all three are in league play.

Dean Smith's Philosophy Is Not To Play Non-Loop State Teams

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

University of North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith told the Greenville Sports Club a little of his basketball philosophy and why he'll never play East Carolina University in a regularly-scheduled game.

"I made a decision early, and I guess I got it from Adolph Rupp (former Kentucky coach): never play a team not in your conference from your own state," Smith said.

"I just don't think it would benefit our program. If we played someone like East Carolina who had a chance to beat us, well, they just might. They would be all fired up, and that wouldn't be good for us.

"I know when we've had to play Davidson in the NCAA (regionals) they were really up for the game. I just don't think it would help us.

"And we certainly don't need it for the gate since we fill our little place up every game anyway."

Smith did say that he thought the upcoming football game between East Carolina and North Carolina would be a sellout.

Referring to a picture of State coach Bo Rein bawling out an official which appeared in papers across the state, Smith said it was a shame. "It's terrible to see a picture of a football coach yelling at an official," he said in jest. "I always thought that football coaches could get away with anything since they're not right out front like us basketball coaches."

Referring to State's losses to Furman and East Carolina, Smith said he believed that there was a mental attitude in sports all over about certain conference by members of others. "Look at the Big Eight in the bowl games. Everyone was after them. The same thing is true with the ACC when they play outsiders."

Smith said that it is difficult to recruit these days no matter where you are. "People got upset at the NCAA for putting people (who cheat) on probation, not at the coaches for doing wrong. The honest guy has no chance against a dishonest one, and we must get rid of cheating. It's not rampant, by any means, but the fans must help the problem by not accepting winning at any cost."

Smith asked why it was that it makes someone feel good to beat someone else and make them feel bad. "I don't know why it is. I know I feel good if we play bad and win, and I feel bad if we play good and lose. I hope the value is in participation; in doing the best you can all the time."

The Tar Heel coach said intercollegiate athletics is the common denominator between the 60-year-old alumnum, the professor and the long-haired student. "They all want their school to win. Some professors might deny it, but they believe in 'Harvard all week and Notre Dame on Saturday.'"

He added that he felt the Tar Heels would have a good team this fall, but that the ACC would be strong. "We have four starters back and Bruce Buckley looks like the top candidate for the fifth spot."

Referring to Phil Ford's ankle injury, he said that while Ford had gotten back on it too early, it should be okay by playing time.

"We had a good year recruiting. Usually we only bring in two or three but this time we got six. Just signing (John) Virgil (of Elm City) was a good year for us."

Turning to the Olympics, Smith said he didn't feel that Russia's win four years ago had anything to do with preparation for this year's Olympics. "So many people were saying that we didn't have a team that could win, and the players just wanted to prove them wrong."

Chargers Beat Conley

LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton gained a 2-0 victory over the D.H. Conley volleyball team yesterday.

The Chargerettes took the opening game, 15-10, then came back to post a 15-8 win in the second game.

In the opener, Ayden-Grifton had built up an 11-2 lead before Conley's Alice Costen ran off the only string of points in the match, pulling the Valkyries back to 11-9. But they could never catch up and finally bowed by the five-point margin.

In the second game, Vivian Ellis opened up for Ayden-Grifton with six straight points off her serve and Conley was never able to get into the game.

Ayden-Grifton also took a pair of exhibition games, 15-1 and 15-1.

The Chargerettes are now 2-1 in volleyball, while Conley is 1-1.

Says National Will Expand

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the threat of losing baseball's antitrust exemption hanging over their heads, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the two league presidents and two club owners have told Congress that the National League will expand.

However, no timetable was given for the expansion Tuesday, when Kuhn and the baseball hierarchy urged Congress not to take away baseball's special status — immunity to the antimonopoly laws which the other pro sports do not enjoy.

The biggest obstacle to expansion, as shown last spring when the NL declined to go into Toronto and Washington, was the need for unanimous consent of the 12 club owners, Congress was told.

M. Donald Grant, chairman of the New York Mets, told the Select House Committee on Professional Sports there were a few owners who want to change the rule and were trying to persuade those who are opposed. If they cannot be convinced, Grant said, there would be a legal test of the unanimous vote rule.

National League President Chub Feeney, who said he has favored a change in the rules for some time and promised to support Grant, said afterwards that a move to change the rules probably would come at baseball's annual winter meeting Dec. 3 in Los Angeles.

Even if the rules were changed then, Feeney said, the National League could not act on expansion to place teams in new cities for the 1977 season as the American League did when it voted to move to Toronto and Seattle last spring. He said there would not be enough time.

Grant said that there were at least eight, and possibly 10 clubs, that favor expansion. Last spring, it was believed that only Cincinnati and Philadelphia opposed the action.

He also said there were more than seven club owners who were prepared to vote for a change in the rules, with possibly as many as nine or 10. In order to change the unanimous consent rule on expansion, a unanimous vote is needed.

The House sports committee was created last spring after baseball refused to place a team in the nation's capital which lost the Washington Senators to Texas in 1971, a decision that was made five years ago Tuesday.

Chairman B.F. Sisks, D-Calif., and vice chairman Frank Horton, R-N.Y., headed an ad hoc congressional committee which unsuccessfully sought a team for the past five years.

50 YEARS AT SPA
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Rozier Cohen Johnson has operated the field glass concession at Saratoga race track 50 years. Ha says the recent four-week meeting was one of the best at the Spa. Johnson also has the concession at Belmont Park and Aqueduct in downstate New York.

Jaguars TopRoanoke

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central downed the Roanoke High School volleyball team in two straight game yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars won the first game, 15-5, and took the second 15-8.

Debra Barrett led the way in the first game, serving up 11 straight points as Farmville built their lead from 3-2 to 14-2.

In the second game, Gail Harris powered Farmville to a 5-1 lead on her opening serve. Ilean Phillips then served up seven in a row for a 12-2 lead.

Sheila Knight led a Roanoke comeback with five in a row to close it to 12-7, but that was as close as it got.

Farmville Central is now 2-1 in league play, while Roanoke is 1-1.

Wanted To Be A Cowboy, Became Western Artist

HARRY JACKSON went west to become a cowboy and became an artist. He paints and sculpts scenes mainly from the American west. (UPI Photo)

By James R. Schiffman
LOST CABIN, Wyo. (UPI) — In real life, Harry Jackson has eclipsed the achievements of fictionalized characters played by his friend, John Wayne. He went West to be a cowboy and became a premier western artist.

President Ford selected a Jackson original entitled "Two Champs" as a state gift to Queen Elizabeth II of England. The piece shows the winner of the 1907 and 1909 Cheyenne rodeos, mounted on the horse that brought him the prize.

Jackson said the gift was fitting because "it couldn't be more cowboy" and that "the Queen was particularly delighted because the horse was British."

The 52-year-old artist paints and sculpts scenes mainly from the American West. His works are displayed in museums in the United States, South America, and Europe.

Jackson's trail to artistic prominence began, literally, on the trail.

As a boy, he lived near the Chicago stockyards, which motivated thoughts of going West. Then a Life Magazine article about a ranch in Wyoming tipped the scales, said Tina, 21, his fourth wife. He struck out for the ranch at age 14, with his buddy Cal Todd, who remains his best friend today.

"It was wild and woolie. They would work for a while, get kicked out, work for a while, and get kicked out again."

When he was not driving cattle, Jackson drew, as he has done for as long as he could hold a pencil, she said.

Jackson still rides but, true to the cowboy tradition, only if there is something that must get done — never for pleasure.

"There has to be some kind of work involved," his wife said. "With Harry, there's no limit, no boundary. He's super intense and into whatever he's doing, whether it's getting drunk with the cowboys, working on his art, or driving cattle."

Although most of his creations depict western historical events, Jackson does not call himself a "western" artist.

"I like the West and I like cowboys," he said. "And that's the way I see life. A cowboy is someone who is terribly independent and is not passing the buck."

Power, cleanliness and timelessness are the qualities Jackson feels are important expressions of his art.

"I simply see things. It's no different than anything else, but others don't seem to know they see things."

Time magazine commissioned him to do a bust for a 1969 cover on John Wayne's movie, True Grit. The event christened a deep friendship between the artist and the man who answers to "Duke."

"Duke Wayne is one of the most genuine, unassuming, misrepresented men I know," Jackson said. "In real life he's 10 times more like his movies."

The artist's personal philosophy could have been written for a Wayne character.

"I've always thought positively. You can't think any other way if you are going to win. The minute you begin to think otherwise, you'll fall on your ass."

"As big as my career has been already, I think it will be a great deal bigger."

Lately, Jackson has sculpted exclusively in bronze, concentrating on relatively small statuettes. But now he wants to mold larger-than-life creations.

The artist plans to craft a 100 foot long tribute to cowboys who died on the range, patterned after two of his paintings hanging in a Cody, Wyo., museum. One of the works shows a stampede and the other a scene of lonely death called "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie."

The director of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City originally suggested the idea, but the artist said he would like to place the piece near Interstate 25 on the vast expanse of barren plains that marks the Wyoming-Colorado border. "I would prefer that in many ways," Jackson said.

on higher ground would be a more suitable place.

"I'd like to do 12 foot monumental subjects for the cities of St. Louis and Philadelphia but I can't discuss the details," he said.

Jackson, the sculptor, has outshined Jackson, the painter, but two of his best known pieces of sculpture, "The Stampede" and "Range Burial" were originally models for paintings.

Although he has recently worked exclusively in bronze, he is no stranger to other mediums. Early in his career, Jackson even tried abstract design, until he found his metier in realism.

A Jackson sculpture goes through three distinct phases. First the idea is carved in wax. A mold is then made and finally cast in bronze.

Jackson became a combat artist in World War II, then studied in New York City and received a Fulbright scholar-

Conscripted Needed Jury

RIO VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Doors of bars all over town were locked in mid-afternoon recently when word got out here that bailiff Cy Beaver was making the rounds, conscripting bartenders for jury duty.

"It was kind of like the Old West, just going out and dragging in jurors off the street, but it was all we could do; we'd run out of the regular panel," said Judge Kent Jackson.

The judge needed jurors for the two-day trial of a 28-year-old man charged with drunken driving.

"Rio Vista's a pretty good drinking town, so when Cy went looking, he started with the bars and by the time he'd gotten two bartenders the word got around and everyone else started locking the doors," the judge said. When he was locked out, said the judge, Beaver "took 'em wherever he could find them. He got us 26 prospective jurors and that was enough."

Special Effects Create New 'Space: 1999' Star

By DAVID DUGAS
NEW YORK (UPI) — The producers of that lavish British TV series, "Space: 1999," were getting ready for a second year of episodes and needed an actress to play the new character, Maya, an exotic creature described as a "resident alien who possesses the incredible power of molecular transformation."

The part went to beautiful Catherine Schell, born in Budapest and schooled in Washington, New York and Munich; an American citizen who settled in London nine years ago after marrying an English actor.

She wasn't a total stranger to the austere environs of "Space: 1999." Last year she joined stars Martin Landau and Barbara Bain, the husband-and-wife team formerly of "Mission: Impossible," for a guest role.

"I played a robot — computerized to please," she said. "I was blown up in the end. There were all these

Host Conference On Handicapped

The White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals will be held for Eastern North Carolinians Saturday, October 9 at the Allied Health Building in Greenville.

Registration will begin at the Allied Health Building located on the 264 by-pass across from Pitt Plaza Shopping Center at 8:45 a.m. The conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. and continue to 4 p.m.

The purpose of the Greenville conference, one of six being held across North Carolina, is to provide a national assessment of problems and potentials of individuals with mental or physical handicaps, to generate a national awareness of these problems and potentials and to make recommendations to the President and Congress which, if implemented, will enable individuals with handicaps to live their lives independently with full participation in community life.

In addition to joint sessions, the conference will have eight specific topics to be discussed in smaller groups. The eight sessions are as follows: health concerns, social concerns, barriers, economic concerns, education concerns, special concerns, civil rights for the

Found Treasure In Thrift Shop

DALLAS (AP) — Ovid Neal, who went to a thrift shop to get a hobo costume, came back with a find — a print that could bring him a tremendous profit.

"I saw some prints on the wall and one caught my eye," said Neal, president of a photographic communications firm. "I thought at first that it was a photograph." He bought it for $1.

After inquiring at reputable art galleries, he found out that the print was actually a stone lithograph of western artist George Catlin's "Buffalo Hunt, Chase No. 6," which is worth from about $200 to $400.

He also has expressed an interest in doing two large bronze renderings of Sacajewia, an Indian woman who helped Lewis and Clark find their way to the Pacific Ocean. A 15 foot statue would be displayed at the Wyoming state capitol in Cheyenne and a 9 foot version would go to Congress.

A 56 by 13 foot mural of the French and Indian Wars has been completed but Jackson said he has changed his mind about the original plan of giving it to the Fort Pitt Museum in Pittsburgh because of the danger of flooding. Jackson said a public building

Dental Paste Is Sold For Pets

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Ursula Dietrich, a San Mateo dentist, believes one should brush a pet's teeth, so she is selling dental paste for animals through her own mail order company.

And just how does one brush a pet's teeth?

"You hold the lips up with your hand," says the company's treasurer, Gordon Simmons. "The animals love it. At a dog show recently, I brushed 150 personally."

He says one of the benefits of the tooth paste flavored with beef is that it is totally digestible. Dogs and cats can swallow the preparation after the teeth are brushed.

Museum Gets Big Art Gift

DETROIT (AP) — A treasure of 20th-century art has been presented to the Detroit Institute of Art by a native son.

"Flora," a life-size bronze created in 1911 by the famous French sculptor Aristide Maillol, was purchased by the real estate magnate Ben Silberstein for $192,000 and then turned over to Dr. Frederick Cummings, the museum's director.

Silberstein, now a California hotel owner, was born in Detroit.

Green Cheese Said Stringier

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Green cheese can make toasted cheese sandwiches tough and stringy, say Cooperative Extension specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Green cheese is a natural cheese that has not been allowed to ripen. It becomes stringy when heated because the protein is less soluble, and the fat separates. The service advises either lowering the temperature and shortening the cooking time, or using aged or processed cheese instead.

PEAR CROP

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A big California bartlett pear crop of exceptional quality and cleanliness is forecast by growers. It is estimated at 327,650 tons, with about 73,000 tons destined for consumption fresh. Plentiful supplies are expected to be available well into November, the growers said.

The rhinoceros' name comes from the Greek words meaning "nose" and "horn".

Yale was founded at New Haven, Conn., in 1701.

Article Will Be Published Three New TV Shows Bow In

An article by Dr. Stephen K. Creech, area director, Pitt County Mental Health Center, Greenville, has been accepted for publication in the "Journal of Psychiatric Nursing and Mental Health Services." The title of his article is "Changes in Attitudes about Mental Illness Among Nursing Students Following a Psychiatric Affiliation." Dr. Creech did research in the subject covered in the article at John Umstead Hospital, Butner, during his studies toward the PH.D. Degree at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. A native of Kinston and an alumnus of Wake Forest University, Dr. Creech has served as Area Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center since Oct. 1975. He also has an appointment as Adjunct Associate (Professor of Community Health at East Carolina University.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight's new wares are CBS' "Ball Four," a horsehide ho-ho; ABC's "Charlie's Angels," a private eye opus of triple vision, and NBC's "The Quest," a show of new realism in the Old West.

NBC's newbie is good. "Angels," about three lovely lady gumshoes, proves that eye-fel and awful equal pretty wretched. CBS' knuckleball comedy falls off the mound trying, but has promise.

"BF" is based on the inside-baseball book by ex-pitcher Jim Bouton. Jim, now an ex-sports-caster, is star of the series, which he cooked up with TV critic Marvin Kitman and sportswriter Vic Ziegel.

Bouton plays a relief pitcher and chief flake for the Washington Americans. The team is like Congress on Fridays and Mondays — imaginary.

But the athletes are fairly realistic. There's a huge dumb catcher (Ben Davidson), a "Birdman" (Lenny Schultz) who quacks a lot, a staff red-neck (Marco St. John) and a long-suffering manager (Jack Somack).

The manager is the kind who, when asked by Bouton if there's any chance of getting in tonight's game, says: "Yeah, got a ticket?"

The plot concerns the team's concern over a series of inside-baseball articles that Bouton — a much better actor than Gardner McKay — has written. The alarm is major, the gags minor.

The good stuff comes only when Bouton, summoned to the baseball commissioner's office, is met by a TV crew for a stop-and-start interview that resembles the real thing.

"Charlie's Angels" stars Kate Jackson, Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Jaclyn Smith as ex-cops working for a private eye emporium run by John Forsythe, who never faces the screen. Smart move, John.

The opening show has the Angels trying to solve a fatal car-crash that you will find is linked to a planned diamond heist.

The plot explodes, screeches, twists, turns and makes childish seem adult. Not much acting is required of the ladies, only that they look tawny.

NBC's "Quest," the sole Western on this fall, may sound mundane — two young brothers (Kurt Russell and Tim Matheson) seeking their sister, whom Cheyenne Indians kidnapped in a raid eight years earlier.

But the opening show, about a white woman and her half-breed son whom the brothers save during an Army reprisal raid on a Cheyenne camp, is realistic, gritty stuff for television.

Among other things it shows the Army did its share of frontier massacres, that brothels were part of frontier life and that those who believed in the Bible could be as bigoted as anyone.

Another Ticket Was Too Much

NEW YORK (AP) — When Gloria Burns finished paying off 300 parking tickets and came out of the Parking Violations Bureau, her car was being towed away for illegal parking.

Enraged, the Brooklyn woman jumped into the driver's seat of her car and refused to budge. More police were called, and a crowd of spectators gathered.

After a half hour, and despite her plea that one more ticket was just too much, she was persuaded to get out of the car and it was towed away.

But not before police gave her two other summonses — one for failure to register her car and another for failure to have it insured.

Greenville Physicians Assigned Committees

RALEIGH — The appointment of 13 Greenville physicians to membership on important public service committees of the State Medical Society has been announced by Dr. Jesse Caldwell, Society President.

They are: Doctors Alley Taylor, Robert L. Timmons, Karla E. Nelson, Frank H. Longino, Stephen M. White, James G. Jones, F. M. Simmons Patterson, William W. Waugh, Charles F. Gilbert, Jack W.

Wilkerson, Philip D. Nelson, Harry H. McLean, III, and James F. Bowman.

Dr. Taylor was appointed to the Committee on Blue Shield and Dr. Timmons was renamed to this committee. Dr. Nelson was named to the Committee on Child Health and Infectious Diseases. Dr. Longino was reappointed to the Committee on Disaster and Emergency Medical Care. Dr. White was appointed to the Committee on Eye Care and Eye Bank.

Dr. Jones was reappointed to the Insurance Industry Committee. Dr. Patterson and Dr. Waugh were renamed to the Committee on Medical Education. Dr. Gilbert was appointed to the Committee Advisory to Medical Students. Dr. Wilkerson was renamed Chairman of the Committee Advisory to Medical Students. Dr. Wilkerson was renamed Chairman of the Committee on Medicine and Religion. Dr. Nelson was reappointed as Chairman of the Committee on Mental Health.

Dr. McLean was also reappointed to the Committee on Mental Health. Dr. Bowman was renamed to the Committee on Sports Medicine.

College Student Is A Mere 93

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Charles Wagner, 93, has so far taken six courses at the Mansfield campus of Ohio State University in a program that allows people 65 and older to audit courses without charge.

A retired merchandise manager for a tool company, Wagner said, "It's a good way to spend my time, and I've always been interested in keeping up with what's going on in the world."

Correction: A Boy, Not A Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Jose Reyes welcomed their seventh child, a daughter.

The following day, however, Reyes, a dishwasher at a restaurant, received an excited call from his wife at the hospital. Their new offspring wasn't a girl, but a boy. A nurse had apparently got her sexes mixed in making the initial report.

CHER AND FAMILY — Cher and Gregg Allman pose with their 10-week-old son, Elijah Blue Allman in Los Angeles. The baby was born on July 10 at Cedars-Sinai Hospital in Los Angeles. Cher's television series returns for its second season Sunday evening. (AP Wirephoto)

Believe Mass Murder Part Of Ambush Plans

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A man who authorities say leveled a shotgun blast at a school bus then committed suicide Monday had apparently planned a mass murder, Guilford County Sheriff P.H. Gibson said Tuesday.

The body of a man found near the scene of the shooting was identified Monday as that of Richard Strawther, 38, a drifter and sometime carnival worker who had once lived in a ramshackle cinder block house near the scene of the shooting. Gibson said tapes which Strawther recorded before and during the shooting detailed his plans to shoot the bus and kill himself.

"It sounded like to me that Strawther wanted to kill the bus driver, then shoot each of the children as they came off the bus," Gibson said.

None of the 49 elementary school students on the bus were injured by the blast. The driver suffered a slight injury when a shotgun pellet grazed his shoulder.

After listening to three hours of tapes which Strawther left, Gibson said, "He said he wanted some attention. I feel like he thought he'd get it if he killed all the children."

Near Strawther's body, authorities found a shotgun, a 10-speed bicycle, a sleeping bag, a cassette recorder and the tapes. The tapes included Strawther saying "I'm laying in ambush for the school bus," authorities said.

Strawther's body was identified from an identification card which said he worked with a carnival operated by the Deggle Amusement Company of Richmond, Va.

Allen Deggle, co-owner of the carnival, said Strawther worked for about five weeks after signing on in Richmond last year. He said Strawther was known by the nickname "Rearview Mirror."

"He wore this little mirror the size of a quarter on a wire sticking out from his eye-glasses, so he could see behind him, so we called him Rearview," Deggle said in a telephone interview.

"He always wore that mirror and he was always riding a bicycle."

4 ♥ Pass 5 ♦ Pass
6 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Eight of ♦.

The careful declarer tries to combine all his chances in an effort to bring home his contract. South's technique on this hand is worthy of study.

North-South bid superbly to reach their optimum spot. South's hand was a shade too weak for an immediate jump shift, but he showed his strength by jumping at his next turn. North's hand suddenly improved, for he had first- or second-round control in all the side suits and three-card support. He conveyed this with a cue-bid of his ace of hearts. South was worried about diamonds, and brought this concern to his partner's attention by jumping past game. Since North had a singleton in South's weak spot, he hid the slam.

The defense got off to a good start with a trump lead. On any other lead, declarer would have had the time to concede a diamond, ruff two diamonds in dummy and discard his remaining diamond on a high heart. Even so, that line was not completely ruled out. If one of the defenders held both the ace-king of diamonds and a singleton trump, declarer could still maneuver two diamond ruffs. To cater for this possibility and to establish communication between his hand and dummy, declarer led the queen of diamonds!

West took the ace and returned another trump. North declarer could ruff only one diamond, but he had a second string to his bow. He led a club to the ace and ruffed a club. When both defenders followed, the contract was a cinch.

A diamond ruff put declarer in dummy to ruff another club. Dummy was reentered with a heart to the queen for a third club ruff, which set up two long clubs in dummy. And, since declarer could still get back to the board by overtaking the king of hearts with the ace, he was able to discard his two diamond losers on the established clubs to come to 12 tricks.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 9 through Sept. 15.

House
AUTO EXHAUST Adopted, 224 for and 169 against, an amendment to delay until the 1982 model year the full implementation of auto emission standards which otherwise would take effect with the 1978 models. The amendment was attached to HR 10498, a package of amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970. The bill was passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The auto industry says that the antipollution standards cannot be met by 1978. The amendment delays until 1980 tighter controls on hydrocarbon, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide emissions. Then the standards would have to be fully implemented by 1982.
Rep. Elwood Hillis (R-Ind.), a supporter, said the amendment strikes "a reasonable balance between continued air quality improvement and increased automobile fuel efficiency," while giving automakers the time "needed to develop and perfect the proper pollution control devices."

Rep. Anthony Moffett (D-Conn.), an opponent, said that the auto industry has had "ample time" to develop antipollution technology, and that it's up to Congress to give Detroit the "needed motivation." Moffett added, "I am tired of seeing my seven-year-old daughter coughing and choking from air pollution."
Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Charles Rose (D-7), W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea." Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "nay."
Rep. Stephen Neal (D-5) did not vote.

set both outlays and revenues at $362.5 billion, primarily by cutting expenditures in social program areas and "holding the line" in others.
Rep. Joe Skubitz (R-Kan.), a supporter, said that inflation caused by federal deficit spending is the economy's primary ailment, and that "we are going to have to turn the spending practices of Congress around if we are going to realize any economic recovery that is lasting."
Opponents said that the budget can't be balanced immediately without disrupting the economy, and that the new congressional budgeting process is at least beginning to bring the deficit under control. "Each year, if we make the process work, it will be easier to achieve a balanced budget," said Rep. Brock Adams (D-Wash.).
Henderson, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."
Jones, Fountain, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "nay."

Passed, 55 for and 23 against, a resolution setting fiscal 1977 federal revenue and spending targets that would result in a $51 billion deficit. The resolution (S Con Res 139), — sent to conference with the House, requires Congress to hold outlays to $413 billion and projects revenues of $362 billion for the fiscal year.
Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), a supporter, said that the resolution's "policies and priorities, while not perfect, are balanced and sensible," and that their goal is to move the U.S. to full employment with a balanced budget by 1980.
Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.), an opponent, said that at a "time of strong economic recovery," the resolution's spending level only deepens federal involvement in the economy. Dole said that "this nation needs continued increases in private productive employment, not government-manufactured jobs."
Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea."
Sen. Jesse Helms (D) voted "nay."

cluded in the bill without more study. Percy said that the costs of defending lawsuits against competitors and handling the disclosure paperwork would "be passed on to the consumers."
Morgan and Helms voted "nay."
VETERANS BENEFITS
Passed, 50 for and 25 against, a bill (HR 71) extending veterans medical benefits to about 40,000 U. S. citizens who are World War I or World War II veterans of the armed services of American allies, and who subsequently immigrated to the U. S. The bill was sent to conference with the House.

Primarily Polish and Czechoslovakian veterans who have been naturalized American citizens at least 10 years will be eligible. The fiscal 1977 cost of the bill is estimated to be $5.6 million.
Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.), a supporter, said the bill's cost is "negligible" and that the measure "means a great deal to those American citizens who have courageously fought against tyranny as members of allied forces."

Sen. Clifford Hansen (R-Wyo.), an opponent, said that with the Veterans Administration "currently under attack for not providing quality care to our own veterans," paying out more in benefits "will only exacerbate the problems which already exist."
Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Russians Sound Off About How To Improve Life

EDITOR'S NOTE — Soviet citizens write letters to the editors of their controlled press, but one newspaper seeks letters from people with ideas on how to improve everyday living. Here's a sample of what they wrote about.

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — "If I were director, I would put a special garage for baby carriages in every apartment building," a man in Leningrad wrote to the editor of the Soviet newspaper Literary Gazette.

"I would demand that the police enforce the laws against profanity," a Moscow lawyer wrote.

"I would decree that every school give dancing lessons as well as singing lessons," said a letter from a woman from Chelyabinsk.

In the last two years, 3,000 Soviet citizens have given a glimpse of their daily concerns in letters to a regular column in the Literary Gazette called "If I were the Director."

The letters, as selected by the newspaper's editors, include a variety of suggestions about everyday conveniences, but few thoughts about the larger questions that confront the Soviet Union, such as housing problems, harvest shortfalls and shortages of consumer goods.

These questions are not generally the subjects of public discussion in a nation where almost every detail of daily life is controlled by the government.

And under an economy not guided by market considerations, consumer demands, like the following, often are not resolved as they can be in the West:

"I would open special clothing stores for very tall people."
"I would sell special knives for peeling potatoes, carrots and fruit."

"I would keep stores open during lunch hours so people could shop during their time off."

It would take a high-level government decree to implement the suggestion: "I would only allow building superintendents to come to work after 7 a.m. so people could get a little sleep."

Some of the letters suggest innovations that are already taken for granted in some Western countries:

"I would put parking lots at all airports. Many car owners — and their numbers are increasing — could start off on a business trip by driving to the airport."

"I would install radios in the seats of aircraft so people could listen to music during the flight."

"I would print health warnings on cigarette packages."

Other letters have a universal appeal, and could have been written by dreamers in almost any country:

"I would have separate cars on trains for people with noisy children."

"I would require markets to round off the prices of their items, to speed up the checkout lines."

Intrigued by the response to its "Director" column, the Literary Gazette editors recently surveyed 500 of their letter writers. They found that the people with the most ideas for improving Soviet life are middle-aged men with good educations, living in the European cities of the Soviet Union.

BALANCED BUDGET
Rejected, 111 for and 264 against, an amendment to require that the fiscal 1977 federal budget be balanced at $362.5 billion in revenues and expenditures. The amendment was proposed to H Con Res 728, the congressional budget resolution, which was passed and sent to conference with the Senate.
The resolution projects revenues of $362.5 billion and limits outlays to $413 billion, for a fiscal 1977 deficit of $51 billion.
The amendment would have

BEER TAX Passed, 211 for and 126 against, a bill (HR 3605) to reduce the federal excise tax on beer produced by about 40 small, independent breweries. The bill was sent to the Senate.

The measure reduces the excise tax paid by small brewers from $9 per barrel to $7 per barrel on the first 60,000 barrels produced per year, at an annual loss to the Treasury of about $5 million in tax revenues.
Rep. Donald Clancy (R-Ohio), a supporter, said the tax cut will "help these small brewers compete more effectively," with the giant breweries which dominate the domestic beer market.

Rep. Fortney Stark (D-Calif.), an opponent, objected to singling out breweries for a tax break, and said, "The mail has just now started to come in: 'What about reducing the excise tax for small wineries?'"
Jones, Andrews, Preyer and Rose voted "yea."
Fountain, Neal, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."
Henderson did not vote.

BUDGET RESOLUTION
In addition, Corning Glass Works has called for a universal, easily understood language for product warranties and use-and-care information, the latter printed permanently on the products.

Profs Told Humor Keeps Class Awake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California's psychology department says the way to keep students awake during lessons on ponderous material is through their funny bones.

Instead of conducting conventional lessons, instructors have been urged to spice up lectures with jokes — to turn them into something resembling comedy routines.

It all began about 2½ years ago when Prof. Edward Conolley began one of his classes by saying:

"It was in this very room that I attended my freshman orientation. I'll never forget it. We were addressed by a man with a nervous tic who was wearing a clip-on tie and what looked like a clip-on suit. He also carried a Roy Rogers lunch box with him."

"He was, I learned later, the head of the psychology department."

For several hours, the professor intermingled jokes produced by comedy writer Eric Cohen into his lecture. When class ended, his students stood up and applauded.

Conolley has since left USC, but his experimental lecture technique has been developed into what's known as the Quality Teaching Effectiveness Program. The department also called in Dick Shaal, an actor-director who is married to Valerie Harper, star of the "Rhoda" series on television and has played in "Phyllis," to show teachers stage techniques for capturing and keeping attention.

Critics say QTE does little more than make professors popular with their students.

But Dr. Scott Fraser, one of QTE's organizers, says the technique really works.

"We have run control groups and found that students in classes where the course material was infused with the humor and dramatic techniques did better than those in classes where such methods were not used," Fraser said.

Fraser said the jokes used in QTE aren't Henny Youngman one-liners, "but jokes designed to illustrate concepts as well as hold the attention of students."

QTE is limited to the psychology department, but Fraser hopes resource centers will be set up across campus where professors can develop their "entertainment" skills and practice before audiences made up of faculty members.

Cohen, the man who started it all, now produces the hit television series "Welcome Back, Kotter." He still writes jokes for psychology lectures, but says he doesn't have time to work for other colleges.

But Cohen says he sees a real challenge in a request from the University of Oregon medical school.

"What kind of a joke can you tell with a scalpel in your hand?" he says. "How do you punch up brain surgery?"

Chapel Hill Conference

CHAPEL HILL—The annual fall conference of the North Carolina Association of College and University Summer School Deans and Directors will be held Thursday, Sept. 23, at the Carolina Inn at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Donald Tarbet, UNC professor of education and director of summer sessions, is president-elect of the organization.

Some 20 participants will attend informal workshops to discuss problems involved in operating summer sessions and to plan for next year's sessions.

Other officers of the organization include Dr. Gloria Goore of Winston-Salem State University, president; Dr. Susan McDaniel of East Carolina University, secretary-treasurer; Dr. William Lanier of Greensboro College, member-at-large; and Dr. Harry Swain of Atlantic Christian College (Wilson), past president.

Sees Growth In Fast Food Sales

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — A Purdue university professor predicts every other meal will be eaten away from home by 1985. Prof. Arthur Avery says push-button dinner selections will be common, along with menus that feature the aromas of the day's leading entrees, and orders can be filled in about two minutes.

Some Babies Just Fail To Thrive On Care At Home

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Billy was a healthy seven pounds at birth. He was an active baby, smiling and cooing with every playful poke to his fat, pink stomach.

One month later, Billy was comatose, emaciated and dying. He shrank from any contact with the world around him and barely tipped the scale at four pounds.

After weeks of tests, doctors concluded there was nothing medically wrong with Billy. He was one of a growing number of infants who fail to thrive at home.

Something in the bond that links parent to child went awry. Without maternal love to nourish them, these babies start to feed on themselves.

"Holding these babies is like picking up a rag doll. They refuse to respond to you," said Dr. Milt Kotelchuck, research director of family development at Children's Hospital.

He is one of three physicians who have gathered information about this disorder, one of the most mysterious social illnesses of pediatrics.

Now Filling Library Post

Dr. Eugene A. Brunelle has assumed duties as Director of Library Services, J.Y. Joyner Library, at East Carolina University.

The appointment of Dr. Brunelle, effective Sept. 1, was announced by Dr. John M. Howell, Provost.

Dr. Brunelle, a native of Providence, Rhode Island, comes to ECU from St. Mary's College in Maryland, where he was Director of Instructional Resources. He holds the AB degree in Classics, Philosophy and English Literature from Harvard; MS in Library Science from Simmons College; MA in English and Germanic Philosophy from the University of California-Berkeley, and the EdD from the State University of New York, Buffalo, in Psycholinguistics and Learning Theory.

In addition, Dr. Brunelle has had wide experience as a consultant and is the founding editor of the Journal of Creative Behavior.

Dr. Brunelle and his wife, the former Lisa Routledge of London, England, are the parents of three children.

Dr. Eli H. Newberger, Dr. Daniel Rosen and Kotelchuck devised a questionnaire to pinpoint the characteristics of failure-to-thrive infants and their parents.

"We saw a picture of a mother who was isolated, stuck at home with this baby she was almost afraid of because it didn't act normally. She was at the end of her rope," Rosen said.

A failure-to-thrive child "looks just like those pictures of the starving Biafrans," one physician said. The infant is far below normal in growth, height and weight — a "deprivational dwarf."

Because of its severe malnutrition, the infant is listless and passive. The child refuses to eat despite a mother's desperate efforts to make her child gain weight.

"If these parents didn't care about their kids they'd let them die at home instead of taking them to a pediatrician or hospital," Newberger pointed out. "The parents are looking for help, not only for their child but for themselves."

The doctors examined 303 children admitted to the hospital's in-patient services. Forty-two cases were diagnosed as failure to thrive because of the inability to gain weight.

Of those 42 cases, 81 per cent were under 18 months of age, 83 per cent were white, 33 per cent were from welfare families and 69 per cent were male.

From their findings, doctors concluded that these babies — unlike many cases of neglect or abuse that often occur in low-income neighborhoods — were the products of white middle-class families.

Besides logging the characteristics of the children, doctors developed an interview for the mother, focusing on housing, marital well-being, employment, child care and family problems.

What emerged was an anxious, over-concerned parent who was frightened of her child and her surroundings.

The mothers shared high levels of stress. They tended to be less educated than the fathers and saw their neighborhoods as unfriendly, even hostile. Rarely did the mother develop her own life or keep in contact with her own family.

Sometimes a simple question started them on an avalanche of emotion that laid bare their hidden feelings.

"I can't relate to the kid." "He's a difficult child." "He just isn't happy." "He doesn't like to eat what I give him." "It's not my fault he looks the way he does." "I'm a good mother."

Telling a mother that her child is not flourishing at home is placing blame on her, even when the doctors are trying to help her.

As one distraught mother told doctors, "When I hear the term 'failure to thrive,' all I hear is the word, 'failure.'"

Doctors agree that the various theories pointing to a lack of interaction — a "failed mutuality" — between mother and child as the cause of the condition takes a punitive attitude by placing blame on an already guilt-ridden parent.

"The purpose of our questionnaire is to ask questions that's going to lead the mother to the problem. You need to keep in mind one's ethical posture and role — be sympathetic, nonaccusing, nonjudgmental," Kotelchuck said.

Many of the mothers were maternally retarded, ignorant about baby care. They had not set up a routine for their child and often treated the babies like dolls or pets.

Doctors often refer the mothers for counseling at the hospital or with a social worker. In some instances, dance therapy has proven successful since the mother learns to develop a rhythm with her child.

In extreme cases, as in Billy's, the infant is placed in a foster home until authorities decide that the mother is "fit" to take care of her child again.

Once the baby is admitted to the hospital, it is force-fed enormous amounts of food — about 50 calories for each pound of weight, twice the normal amount.

Recovery comes quickly, with some babies gaining as much as 14 pounds in seven to 10 days. But getting them to respond emotionally is often the hardest result to achieve, doctors agree.

"You've got to take it slow with these kids," Rosen said.

"You can't overwhelm them with a battery of stimuli. They have to learn how to respond."

Physicians keep a close watch for symptoms of serious illness throughout the child's hospital stay, like kidney or stomach disorders, brain damage — anything to explain the child's severely emaciated state.

State agencies around the country are getting more and more reports of children who fail to thrive. All cases of neglect or abuse must be reported.

In 1975 alone, 6,000 cases of neglect were logged in Massachusetts. About 10 per cent were failure-to-thrive infants.

Area Labor Force Showed Gain In July

The civilian labor force in the Greenville area was estimated to be 42,020 for July, 1976, up 2,350 from the May, 1976 estimate according to Jim Hannan, manager of the Employment Security Commission.

Total employment for July, 1976 was estimated at 39,870, an increase of 2,130 above the level of May 1976 and 570 above the year ago total. Most of the increase since mid-May occurred in the agricultural sector as farming activities reached their seasonal peak.

Since May 1976 unemployment has increased in the Greenville area. This increase in joblessness resulted primarily from an increase in the number of unemployed summer job-seekers and recent high school and college graduates. Total unemployment for July, 1976 was estimated at 2,150 or 5.1 per cent of the total civilian labor force. Although unemployment increased since May 1976, it decreased since July, 1975 by approximately 850.

An employment outlook shows that agricultural employment should decrease but total employment should increase and unemployment should decrease within the next few months.

Regional Meet Of Educators On Sept. 29

Educators from school units in Education Region I, the Northeast region which includes Pitt, Martin and Greenville City Schools, will meet September 29 to review a proposed Standard Course of Study being developed by the State Department of Public Instruction. The meeting will be held at the Williamston High School at 1 p.m.

The educators will discuss the draft edition of the Course of Study, according to State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips.

"The purpose of the meeting is to get suggestions and reactions from local educators to be considered in developing the final publication. We invite school board members, county commissioners, and other lay citizens to join the meeting to give their input," Phillips said.

Legendary Hank Snow's Son Is In Another Field

THE REV. JIMMY SNOW, son of the legendary Hank Snow, preaches weekly from the stage of the Grand Ole Opry. (AP Wirephoto)

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Eighteen years ago, Jimmy Snow gave up a promising country music career for the ministry. So instead of concentrating on hit records, recording contracts and personal appearances, he's concerned with "bringing eternity to people."

Snow, son of the legendary Hank Snow, preaches on a live 30-minute radio show originating from the stage of the Grand Ole Opry immediately after the Opry's Friday night broadcast. He also has a 195-member congregation on the north side of Nashville.

The show, "Grand Ole Gospel Time," has an estimated audience of 16 million to 20 million persons in 40 states. Additionally, the show has been taped for syndication to television and radio stations.

"I'm bringing eternity to people," said Snow, 40. "I make spiritual millionaires of people."

Eighteen years ago, he was an unlikely candidate for the ministry. He drank heavily, used drugs and made several suicide attempts, he admits.

"I was making $200 or $300 a day if I wanted but I drank it all up in a couple of weeks," he recalled. "I decided I'd had enough of show business. Women, liquor and pills were destroying me. I went at it hard."

"I went to the front yard in the middle of the night and asked God to take me back. I knew right then I wanted to be a preacher."

A picture of the spot sits on his desk.

Many of Nashville's country music entertainers attend Snow's church, Evangel Temple. Included is Johnny Cash, who gave Snow a part in the movie, "Gospel Road."

It has been said that Snow commands a pulpit rather than occupies it.

"I preach. I preach hard," he said.

His intensity has cultivated a loyal following. He recently raised $13,900 in two weeks to pay off debts incurred by the radio show. An Illinois couple, moved by one of his broadcasts, mortgaged their home and raised $2,500 of the total.

Despite being one of the country's best known preachers, he's not pompous. Last week he was checking on a balky air conditioning unit. The clock in his office is three hours behind. Most of his friends call him "Jimmy."

Because of the celebrities who attend Evangel Temple, he said he has trouble convincing people the church is not wealthy. The average attendance is 450 and the weekly tithe totals an average of $1,500 he said.

People think we're floating in money," Snow said. "Actually the church has sacrificed for the program."

"Grand Ole Gospel Time" will occupy a niche in history. It was the last broadcast from the former Grand Ole Opry House in March 1974.

"That night the whole audience stood up and prayed the Sinner's Prayer," Snow recalled. "And the last thing done was an altar call."

One night 275 persons in the audience stood up and accepted Christ.

"That's phenomenal because they didn't go there to go to church; they were there for the Opry," Snow said.

Another time, Kris Kristofferson sang "Why Me, Lord?" on the show — the first time he had performed it publicly.

Snow preaches for eight minutes each show and always has a guest celebrity perform.

"I have to keep it simple — to the point," he said. "It's a great challenge."

He currently is visiting the Holy Land for the 11th time. His autobiography, "I Cannot Go Back," will be out in October.

Little Town Now A City

By ROBERT D. INDERMAN KILLEEN, Tex. (UPI) — The town Earl Massey remembers was one of those small, dusty Texas communities headed nowhere, and no one particularly cared.

"Oh, occasionally someone would speak up at a city council meeting about bringing new business to town. But not much was ever done about it," Massey said.

"We already had a couple of fine dry good stores — the Norman brothers for one over on Avenue D — and they had just about everything the town needed.

On one side was groceries and on the other side they had dry goods, ladies' dresses and men's suits. Even sold ladies hats."

A night on the town: a root beer, a hamburger down and a Clark Gable movie at the Texas Theater, where Massey was the proprietor. That was 40 years ago.

"I think we all knew things were going to change the day we saw those strangers in town," said Massey.

The strangers were government surveyors. Things never were quite the same for Killeen and its 1,280 residents.

In 1942, the Army opened a training camp in the rolling black hills east of the town. Today after three wars, Ft. Hood is the largest armor post in the Western world. It covers an area one-fourth the size of Rhode Island.

And Killeen claims a population of 42,000. Another 8,500 live in Harker Heights, a suburb almost swallowed up in the growth of the larger community.

"If you were to count noses tomorrow at 4 a.m., you'd find 120,000 persons in a 15-mile radius of the center of town," said Arnold Mathias, director of the city's Board of Development. "Boy, you can't sneeze at those kind of figures."

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the Killeen-Belton-Temple strip was the sixth fastest-growing metropolitan area in the country during the past five years. In Texas, it was No. 1, outdistancing No. 2 Austin.

"We've got lots of fresh air and lots of room to grow," said

Dan Manfull, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. "And we plan on continuing to grow."

But the overnight growth has come at a price.

Today, the quiet, unassuming Texas prairie town of the late 1930s has become a military camp town. The city center is largely a collection of pawn shops, franchise food houses, used car lots, acres of mobile homes and the kind of businesses — topless bars and massage parlors — that cater to the GI dollar all over the world.

The Texas Theater is no more. Massey, who served for a time as the town's postmaster, is retired and the Norman brothers closed their doors long ago.

In 1975, Killeen police made 460 prostitution arrests. On military paydays, buses full of young women show up at the downtown depot. Police jokingly call them "the Dallas reinforcements," a supplement to the resident supply of call girls.

During the five years that Killeen was becoming No. 6 in fast-growing metropolitan areas, the city's crime increased 32 per cent, the population 17 per cent.

"Comparing crime to population, our ratio is worse than Waco or Austin," Police Commander Bill Mangerich said. "It's outta sight."

More growth pains are in the offing, Mathias said. A growth rate of 25 per cent is forecast for the next six years.

City leaders have tried to alleviate some of the problems before they arise and expand the economic base of the city.

"The military, well, it's like a large industry to us. Some cities — like Dallas — have Texas Instruments. We have the Army," Mathias said.

"But even though the military is here to stay, we would like to diversify the economy — bring in more industry and expand our tourist trade."

So far, there hasn't been much success. Industry has been slow in coming. More national hotel franchises and discount store chains are cropping up. But big business has shunned Killeen.

Announce Opening Pitt GOP Offices

Mack Howard, chairman of the Pitt County Republican Party, announced that the Pitt GOP has opened its headquarters for all Republican candidates at Five Points.

Howard said that the office will serve as headquarters for the campaign of President Gerald Ford, as well as for all state, district and local GOP candidates.

The office will be staffed by volunteer help, he explained, and will be open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until the general election on Nov. 2.

An open house and rally for Ford will be held at the headquarters on Thursday evening. Howard noted, for the purpose of viewing the nationally televised debates. Television sets will be installed at the office and coffee and doughnuts will be available.

An office opening ceremony is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 24 at 12 noon with several of the Republican candidates on hand, Howard said.

Open Travel To Disabled

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

You don't have to walk to fly. Or physical disability may not be a handicap when it comes to traveling by plane to faraway places.

That's the message contained in the free booklet "Air Travel for the Handicapped" published by Trans World Airlines for the consumer.

"We have been aware of the increasing number of disabled persons who are taking trips and feel certain that this handy booklet will help answer their questions regarding TWA's special efforts toward facilitating travel for the handicapped," said Janet Garlough, TWA director of consumer affairs, in a news release accompanying my copy of the pamphlet.

"We want these passengers to know that flying today is simple and convenient for them."

The booklet lists some of the special services TWA provides for handicapped passengers, including pre-boarding, seating, wheelchairs and meals. All you have to do, if your doctor says it is okay to fly, is to explain the nature of your disability when making reservations.

"It just takes a little extra planning to let us know, in advance, that you need special attention," the booklet says.

"... TWA records your needs along with the reservation record so that all other employees ... from reservation through ticketing and finally at the airport and even your arrival destination (here or abroad), can be alerted in advance about which special services to provide."

It notes there are times when flying is not recommended.

For instance, persons with severe colds, sinus or blocked ears are often advised against flying because pressure changes in the ear could be painful.

There are times when written medical approval is required. Women in the ninth month of pregnancy will need a certificate signed by their doctor within 72 hours of takeoff attesting to their ability to travel. "This, of course, is to lessen the likelihood of ... giving birth while on the aircraft," the booklet says.

Travelers confined to wheelchairs, who are making long-distance flights of eight hours or more, may also be asked to provide certified medical confirmation they can travel alone.

The booklet notes that the duration of the flight is also important in regard to the capability of travelers who need colostomy or urine appliances.

The captain of the plane, however, is the final authority. He "has the authority to refuse the boarding of any passengers whose condition he feels could jeopardize their own welfare or that of any of the other passengers."

"Complete disclosure of medical conditions and proper preplanning can avoid this inconvenience and embarrassment for everyone."

A LESSON IN METRICS — Misty Roe, 23, blonde and beautiful and touted as the new Marilyn Monroe, has the same measurements as the late actress whom she plays in a new film "Goodbye Norma Jean." Misty travels by skateboard in London. The "tape" on Misty is 36-24-36 (inches). When converted to the metric system those figures balloon to 91-61-91 (centimeters). (AP Wirephoto)

Catalogued British Past

By JOHN JONES

LONDON (UPI) — As every tourist knows, one of England's main attractions is its historic buildings; churches, palaces, cottages, castles, mansions, — thousands of them. One man has seen them all.

His name is Nikolaus Pevsner. Now a balding twinkling-eyed man who is visually the cartoonist's stereotype professor, he is still hard at work in a ramshackle peeling building in London's Bloomsbury district at an age when most people have lapsed into retirement.

But his main task is done. In middle age he took upon himself the job of compiling a latter day Domesday Book, visiting and chronicling all the buildings of England that are worth seeing.

Most of the work was done during his university vacations, a labor of love since he paid for his own gasoline and gets no royalties from the series.

Pevsner began his wanderings in Cornwall in 1949, being driven around in a battered old sedan by his wife, who was his principal assistant, and finished 80,000 miles and 25 years later at a vicarage in Staffordshire in the English Midlands.

Two research assistants prepared the groundwork for each county taking notes from written sources. Then Pevsner would set off on his travels, working 13 hours a day, seven days a week.

Every parish would be systematically cataloged, the day's work often starting with a walk around the village before breakfast.

"The first thing I did was go around the church," Pevsner said, "walk around the outside. All around the inside. When that was finished I would sit down and read the information sheets — not before."

His text was written in a hotel room in the evening. The books, he said, are written for the "interested layman," the result was 46 volumes of tightly-packed prose that many tourists find indispensable. He wrote 36 volumes himself. Two counties were surveyed by colleagues and he had help in writing another eight volumes.

"I liked the counties which are far from London best — Northumberland, the North Riding of Yorkshire, County Durham, and the Welsh border counties of Herefordshire and Shropshire, down to Cornwall," he said. "They have still got the kind of society where pretty well everybody knows everyone else and this is very nice — you merge with it for a time."

Pevsner is uniquely qualified to talk about England. The hotels are now much better and the food is very much improved. But in the towns there are more high-rise buildings, and more motorways linking them.

He believes England is the only country where he could have tackled the mammoth work, trusting to luck that householders would let an inquisitive scholar look around.

"If you take France for instance, you couldn't possibly do it, you wouldn't get into a single house unless you had a recommendation." In Spain or Italy the householders might expect a handsome tip.

Pevsner got the idea for his series from a set of guidebooks to his native Germany. The criteria are strict. Architectural merit is what counts but the canvas is broad, taking in everything from hut circles to Victorian breweries — provided they are worth looking at.

The style is economical, a few terse observations aptly summarize the qualities of a building or monument. Thus Shakespeare's tomb in Stratford-upon-Avon church is chronicled:

"Shakespeare, 1616, alabaster by Gerard Johnson, who succeeded in making the bard look a self-satisfied schoolmaster."

Pevsner catalogs Victorian buildings for the first time. There is room for the best of modern buildings too, like the nuclear attack warning station at Fylingdales, north Yorkshire:

"Three perfect white globes of great size on three perfect black plinths in the grandiose undulating silence of the moor. The geometry of the space age at its most alluring and most frightening."

Besides all this, Pevsner maintains a firm narrative pace through some 50,000 churches, but resisting the scholar's temptation to print all the facts.

The series had to be finished. The government-sponsored official county history will, by his reckoning, take 350 years to complete.

Now Pevsner's work is done, and a team of young art historians, selected by him, are hard at work surveying the buildings of Wales, Scotland and Ireland.

That gives him a little more time to catch up on editing a 45-volume history of art.

FROM INSIDE PIPES

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP) — City Manager Melvin Holmes says tests have confirmed that dark specks which showed up in water from a new regional water system came from the insides of the 15 miles of lines.

Want To Get Off County Line

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP) — The town of Blowing Rock, which is astraddle the Watauga and Caldwell county line, wants to be entirely in Watauga.

It has been at odds with Caldwell over how much money that county should appropriate for the Blowing Rock Fire Department.

Mayor Toy L. Garrison says he plans to ask next year's legislature to redraw the line.

Most of the Blowing Rock business district is in Watauga. Some of the outlying residential area is in Caldwell.
