Debates Begin A Crucial Phase For Ford, Carter

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
Despite Jimmy Carter's 15,000-mile campaign log, despite President Ford's high-visibility home stand, despite the promises and the polls, the crucial phase of the contest for the White House begins tonight. What is past is warmup. The 90-minute debate in Philadelphia tonight is viewed in both camps as the likely pivot point for the 40 campaign days that remain.

In large part, it is the lack of a single, compelling issue or set of issues that has raised so high the stakes in the first of three Ford-Carter debates. Image and voter impressions of the Republican President and the Democratic challenger are therefore the more important. And those are precisely the perceptions that the debate can shape, or reinforce, or erase. Furthermore, by any measure, the race is closer now than on the steamy night in Kansas City, Mo., when Ford told a cheering Republican convention that he wanted to meet Carter face-to-face to debate the issues, the first incumbent president ever to do so. Not that Ford has overtaken Carter at this point; his own campaigners acknowledge he is still behind. But as one Republican put it, a real contest is in prospect now, where once it seemed there would be none. Carter, who has from the start cautioned Democrats against overconfidence, makes that point from his own campaign platforms: "It's a very difficult political undertaking to defeat an incumbent president with a unified party. And that's what I face." Nonetheless, Carter claims a healthy lead. On the eve of the debate, his spokesman said September polling showed Carter ahead in 35 states with about 440 electoral votes, Ford in 13 with about 100 electoral votes. It takes 270 to win election. According to Carter aide Jody Powell, the polling by Patrick Caddell showed Carter leading by margins of less than 5 percentage points in states with about 120 electoral votes. To which William Greener, spokesman for President Ford's campaign, replied, "It would appear that Mr. Caddell's poll verified that we're closing the gap all over the nation." Greener recalled the published polls conducted before the Republican National Convention that showed Carter leading by wide margins, up to 29 percentage points in a Louis Harris survey between the two party conventions. The most recent Harris poll, based on surveys completed on Aug. 30, gave Carter an 11-point lead. The latest Gallup poll gives Carter a 15-point lead.

Apparent Stalemate On Industrial Park Services

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The developers of Tucker Industrial Park, proposed across from Pitt Technical Institute on NC 11, have reached an apparent stalemate in their negotiations with Greenville Utilities Commission over the provision of water and sewer service to the area.

Clark explained in his letter that the agreement reached with Winterville to permit the developers to hook on to their lines would allow the development of Phase I of the project with "totally developed lots which we could sell immediately."

have another city willing to provide services... He said he did not think the public interest would be jeopardized by the developers tying into the Winterville system for a limited length of time. Mack Howard, attorney for the developers, pointed out that "we are in a legal dilemma."

Linwood Stroud, engineer for the developers, contended that under the present system, the entire water and sewer program would have to be constructed initially, with the developers bearing all of the costs. He said that the developers proposed construction of an initial phase which would involve a cost that they could live with.

It was pointed out that utilization of Winterville services would cost the city of Greenville nothing and the city would not lose its jurisdiction in the water and sewer district. Horne said last night that the area in question is part of a section that has been designated for future service by GUCO. He noted that it is the feeling of the commission that if the area is going to be developed, it should be developed initially with Greenville water and sewer systems.

The Joint City-County Planning & Zoning Commission, after discussing at length the preliminary plat for the development, voted to table the matter once again in an effort to allow the developers more time to reach a workable solution concerning the water and sewer problem.

He added, "We hereby formally request that we be permitted to hook-on to the Winterville water and sewer system on a temporary basis until Greenville can serve the area without the entire burden being placed on this development."

Clark, saying that the developers feel that they have a "feasible proposal that should be approved by GUCO," noted that they would like to have some direction from the city as to what steps to take to solve the problem.

Greenville Utilities had initially asked for direction from the City Council and Planning board as to whether the area across from Pitt Tech should be included in the plans for future development of the extrajurisdictional area, Horne added.

Winterville, according to the developers, has agreed to allow the tie-in for a minimum of five years with the provision that Greenville could take over service to the area at the end of the period if GUCO extensions were being desired.

Rhodesian Ruling Party Gets Word

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith held a crucial meeting today with members of his party to submit the British-American plan for black majority rule in Rhodesia for their approval. Smith emerged from the session at midday and told newsmen "I got a good reception." But he gave no indication if the ruling all-white Rhodesian Front party would accept the plan. The party has rejected two previous British proposals for passing power from Rhodesia's 278,000 whites to its 6.4 million blacks. Smith said there was "realistic talking from all of the members," and said the caucus would meet again after lunch to "think over the tremendous problems that confront us." He added that any decision made by the caucus would not be announced until "hopefully tomorrow evening."

The prime minister scheduled a radio-television broadcast Friday to outline his white-minority regime's position on the plan, proposed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in talks with Smith last weekend in South Africa. Smith, who reportedly told Kissinger he would recommend approval of the plan, ended two days of conferences with his 20-member cabinet Wednesday. He gave no indication of the cabinet's reaction, saying the decision would be made by the caucus, which holds 75 per cent of the 66 seats in Parliament. Smith was expected to encounter resistance from hard-liners still adamantly opposed to handing over power to Rhodesia's 6 million blacks, who outnumber the whites 22-to-1. Kissinger's African mission ran into new obstacles Wednesday. A top Rhodesian black nationalist said the Rhodesia plan had "very serious flaws," and the vice president of neighboring Mozambique said his government would not support it. Joshua Nkomo, head of the African National Council faction inside Rhodesia, said in Lusaka, Zambia, that he could not discuss the "flaws" publicly until he had met with the leaders of other factions that are waging guerrilla war against the Smith government. But he said parts of the plan were "ambiguous" and could be distorted by Smith, whom he called "a professional twister and a professional distorter."

From there, water probably was absorbed into the Martian soil, Farmer said, where it is now locked in permafrost. Most of the water that dissipated into the air probably condensed at the north pole, while the rest boiled off into space, he speculated. Farmer said this theory is supported by the discovery by Viking 2's lander of the rare gases krypton and xenon. They indicate that the Martian atmosphere was once dense enough for water to flow on the surface. "But whether that was 100 million years ago or three billion, there's just no way of telling yet," said Tobias Owen, an astronomy professor who supervised the rare-gas test. He said that question should be answered by Viking mission geologists sometime in November.

The Viking 2 lander is conducting tests of Martian soil for possible traces of organic compounds that could indicate the presence of life. Viking 1's lander made similar tests which suggested the possibility of life forms, but they were inconclusive. Mozambique Vice President Marcellino dos Santos, also in Lusaka, said his Marxist government has no interest in Kissinger's African peace shuttle and does not support his peace proposals for Rhodesia and South-West Africa, the South African territory where black insurgents are also trying to end white rule. Mozambique is the chief base for the black guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia.

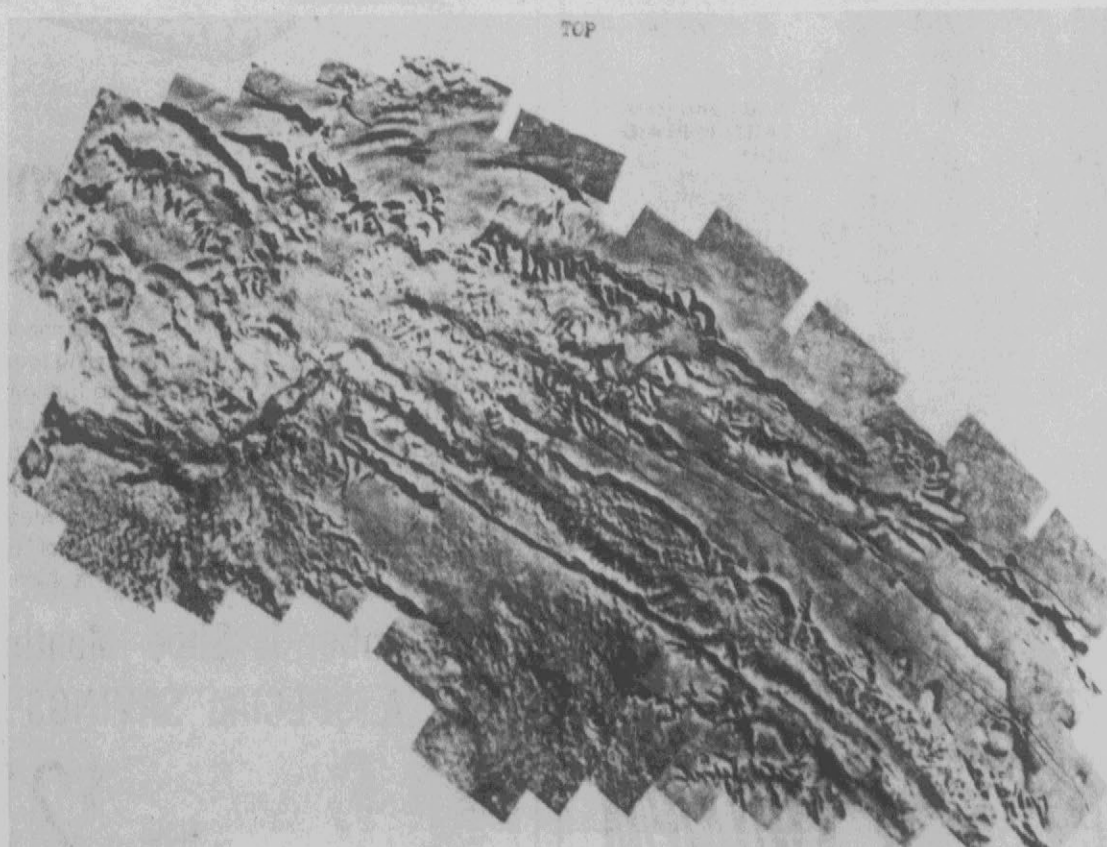

Finding Frozen Water On Mars Raises A 'Possibility' Of Life

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking 2's discovery of frozen water at the north pole of Mars raises the possibility that some form of life may be locked beneath the icy surface, scientists say. Crofton B. Farmer, an atmospheric scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, said the discovery announced Wednesday constitutes "another shred of evidence" that conditions on the red planet may once have been suitable for life. As a result, he said, future searches for traces of Martian life may turn to the planet's north pole. The discovery by Viking 2's orbiter counters theories that Mars' polar regions are composed mostly of frozen carbon dioxide gas, with only traces of water. Water is generally considered a basic ingredient for the evolution of life.

"I think this shows a much stronger possibility for past life than for present life," said Farmer. "I think future tests will now hold more significance in detailed studies of the polar regions." Viking 2's orbiter discovered water by using an atmospheric spectrometer to measure the absorption of infrared light by molecules at the planet's north pole, Farmer said.

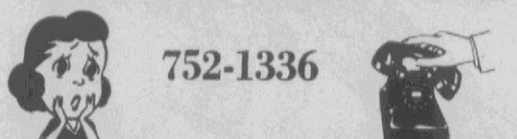

Tobias Owen, an astronomy professor, said the presence of frozen water at the Martian north pole may mean that organic molecules — the building blocks of life — or actual life forms are frozen in the Martian icecaps "much like on earth where we have dug prehistoric creatures out of the ice." Farmer said he believes that great quantities of ice were melted by volcanoes erupting sometime in Mars' past, sending rivers cascading across the planet's surface, cutting wide channels.

VIKING SNAPS MARTIAN CANYONS — This photo mosaic, revealing canyons on the surface of Mars, was taken by cameras aboard the Viking 1 orbiter spacecraft and released Wednesday by scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory. In another development, scientists announced discovery of water on the Red Planet. (AP Wirephoto)

REFUND

I sent a $52.75 check to The Brass Mariner in Dover, Del. April 29 asking them to send a "Nantucket basket" pocketbook to my mother in Virginia. We went round and round because the purse was so long being delivered, but finally it was. It was completely unsatisfactory. I returned it July 1 by United Parcel Service. I got a letter dated July 23, saying the basket had never been delivered and would I please have it traced. This I did, finding it had been signed for July 2 at the Brass Mariner. I want my refund, but they're still delaying. Mrs. G. R.

HOTLINE wrote to the Brass Mariner Aug. 23, enclosing photostatic copies of your UPS tracer form and of both sides of your canceled check. When neither you nor we had been contacted by Sept. 16, we called.

Sarah McFadd, the person with whom you had corresponded originally, said she had come back from showings of the store's wares around the country to find our letter waiting for her. The letter brought her attention to your file once again, which then contained the tracer. It had been filed during her absence, she said, and would have gone unnoticed had we not sent the photostat. Based on this information, she wrote you an apology and authorized a refund, which you report you received Sept. 21.

Face-Flattering Hats Give Fashions Finishing Touch

ADDING FASHION FLAIR to any outfit, hats for fall and winter are face-flattering and chic. From left, the "haberdasher-wrapped look," ideal for the layered look in clothes. This shape by Frank Olive combines a chin-tie scarf with a masculine-type peaked cap of pepper and salt tweed; for true face-framing beauty, the soft uncluttered felt fedora by Don Anderson is a favorite for all-occasion wear; new enchantment for evening is reflected in this deeper version of the Juliet cap by Veumont, of silver and black sequins and an ideal companion for most evening gowns; the girl on the go chooses the newer and fuller side tilt knitted beret and matching scarf, of multicolored pattern design, by Betmar; the ultimate in fashion security for the chic woman on important occasions is the snap brim fedora shape of white ranch mink by Winter Fashions.

Lady Pilot Says Flying, Wedlock Not Compatible

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Men tend to give Ann Bostock a searching glance, but this has nothing to do with the fact she is an attractive girl who looks much better than she photographs.

What draws the scrutiny at Gatwick Airport is the fact Miss Bostock is usually wearing the uniform of a first officer and the viewers are obviously wondering: "A lady pilot — is she going to fly my plane?"

Well, if they're lucky the answer is yes. For First Officer Bostock, 25, may be the first of her sex to hold this rank with British Caledonian Airways, but she earned the job by passing every test comfortably and with distinction.

Back from a roundtrip to Milan with a flight captain who let her make one of the takeoffs and landings, Miss Bostock relaxed over a cup of tea and said:

"I've seen surprise on many faces when they see me but never alarm. I've never met any discrimination from passengers or the crew. Their reaction to a woman on the team has been very pleasant. I'm treated just like any other first officer and that's the way it should be."

She was, she said, a farmer's daughter, physically strong from a largely outdoor life and showjumping her thoroughbred horse, when her brother began to come home full of his adventures in learning to fly in a cadet scheme. The whole family enthused with him and she and her sister and father all got private flying licenses as well.

By now the bug had bitten deep. She became a flying instructor, ran up the 700 hours needed for a commercial license and applied for the written and practical flying examinations for civil aviation.

One exhausting test was to handle, in a simulator, a BA-111 passenger plane as though the power-assisted steering had failed.

She then began the heart-breaking job of writing around to airlines, at a time of flight deck unemployment in the industry, for an interview. She suspects her name went to the bottom of the pile until Caledonian said that, on the basis of her test ratings and exceptional flying experience, she deserved at least a trial. Thus the door opened.

Miss Bostock said she had graduated from Oxford with an honors degree in philosophy, economics and politics.

None of this is of much help in her present assignment to continental runs but may be useful when, as she hopes, she becomes a captain on intercontinental flights and has to spend some time abroad.

At the moment it's a five-day week and mostly back home in Britain every night.

"Flying is hard work," she said, "but fortunately I'm a good sleeper and I recover quickly. There's nothing women's lib about my employment. Women have gotten into the flight crew in other countries and the way is open here for those willing to work hard. But even though it's a great job not many women aim for it."

"There's nothing denigrating about it. But you have to make up your mind that it isn't really compatible with the concept of marriage, a home and kids. I don't have any social problems at the moment, though if I were on long-range flights I can see them happening."

She said the lure of far places was a powerful antidote to romantic commitment. Marriage in her case was a possibility. "But," she added quickly, "I won't let it interfere with my flying" — and off she went in a flight uniform adapted from the men's uniform only for her.

As she left, down below in the Caledonian hangars two 16-year-old girls were working as the first girl engineering apprentices in another advance into a male stronghold.

"Our supervisor says one of these kids is so brilliant she frightens him," said a Caledonia staffer.

Local Women's Caucus To Meet Monday

The Pitt County Women's Political Caucus will meet Monday, Sept. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion Building, Greenville.

Judith Donnalley, president of the county caucus, said the meeting's agenda will include the election of a nominating committee for new officers, a report from the statewide Women's Political Caucus Policy Council and discussion of "Get Out the Vote" procedures.

All members and interested persons from Pitt and surrounding counties are invited to attend the meeting.

The Women's Political Caucus, organized on national, state and local levels, is bipartisan.

Its chief objective is to promote greater participation by women in political processes and in government, by supporting qualified women who run for elective office, by raising women's issues in political campaigns, by encouraging more appointments of women to policy-making positions, and by working for legislation to end discrimination against women.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If there's one aspect of television that intrigues people, it's the Green Room Mystique.

Maybe it's because it's the one room that viewers have never seen. They want to know what goes on in that mysterious hole in the wall that contains the bodies of guests just before they walk out on the Carson, Dinah, Douglas, Merv, or Donahue sets. Do the sweaties drink? Is it a fun place? Are they nervous? Is it really green?

With every book I've published, I do the green room circuit. (I also sell the book door-to-door with a line of vanilla.) This month, with the publication of my newest, "The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank," I will visit more than 70 green rooms. (Setting a new Olympic record of 70 spit-ups.)

I am known as the Willy Loman of the green rooms. Rarely do I meet anyone I know or anyone who knows me. In fact, in one green room, I was the only person there not related to anyone on the show by a former marriage.

I take a seat near the door, and ever 15 seconds or so a director will poke his head in the door and inquire, "You okay?" He does this because I am the only person in the room rocking back and forth and humming while sitting in a fetal position.

Occasionally, a man will come in, scrutinize all the faces and come to rest on me. "You!

You'd better come to makeup." To which I reply, "I've just returned."

During recent years, I've noted a camaraderie among guests of talk shows, mostly because they have become a rather tight-knit group that tours with some regularity. It is hard to break through. Once, for no reason at all — except I was lonely — I said, "Has anyone heard from Frank lately?"

I've never seen booze in a green room (externally, that is), or a magazine, or a picture on the wall, or much food, or children, a newspaper, a phone, a live plant, or a television set that works.

A green room has the personality of a bus station restroom, the capacity of a life raft, the comfort of a Brahma bull in a chute just before the gate opens . . . and you are mumbling to yourself, "I turn right . . . that's the hand I open mail with . . . and go up one step and kiss the host . . ."

As to why they're called green rooms . . . most of them aren't. They merely reflect the color of the people who occupy them.

Wooden spoons are a must in the well-equipped kitchen. Their handles stay cool when used in saucepans on top of the range and they do not mar utensils.

Dinner meetings will continue to be the theme for District 30. Members plan to gather in various towns throughout the district to discuss the business of the association and to be informed on politics, swine flu immunization and the art of relaxation.

Members and guests are encouraged to attend the next meeting at the Family Fish House, Washington, Oct. 12.

District Meet Held Recently

District 30 of the North Carolina Nurses Association began its new year last week with a dinner meeting for members and guests.

The topic for the evening "ERA: How It Affects You and How You Can Affect It" was presented by Mrs. Tennala Gross. She is a representative from the speakers bureau of the North Carolinians United for ERA.

Copycat Cooking: Bran Cookies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: My family likes the raisin bran cookies I buy in small packages. They are made without preservatives. I am wondering whether you have a recipe from which I could make cookies similar to these. I wouldn't always have time to bake them but should like to do so sometimes. — WORKING MOTHER.

DEAR WORKING MOTHER: I agree with your family that the new packaged raisin bran cookies are delicious. We've used the ingredients listed on the package and worked out a recipe that produces a reasonable facsimile of them. The homemade cookies, of course, cost far less than the bought ones. — C. B.

RAISIN BRAN COOKIES
1 cup unbleached white

flour, stir to aerate before measuring
¼ cup stoneground whole-wheat flour (coarser than the white flour)
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup all-bran cereal
½ cup milk
½ cup solid white shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large eggs
1 cup raisins
On wax paper stir together the flours, soda and salt. In a small mixing bowl stir together the bran and milk; let stand until milk is absorbed—a minute or two. In a large mixing bowl cream shortening, sugar and vanilla; beat in eggs; gradually stir in the flour mixture until smooth; stir in bran mixture and raisins. Drop by level tablespoons, well apart, onto well-greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until edges are browned — about 10 minutes. With a wide spatula loosen all cookies on the pan, then remove to cool on wire racks. Makes 4½ to 5 dozen.

Effect Of Gnawing Inflation

If there's anyone who thinks that inflation isn't affecting us all, he only has to look at the latest recommendation concerning the nation's coins.

A government sponsored study was done by the Research Triangle Institute and it was recommended that the penny be eliminated as a coin by 1980. Seems there's not much you can buy for a penny these days so instead of carrying them around, people hold them until there is enough value on hand to cash in for larger money.

And, of course, we all know that there is little that you can buy for a penny anymore. There's no more penny candy. The biggest use a penny has is making change when the total bill comes out to some amount less than a nickel.

But it wasn't clear just what would be done

when a shopper spends a dollar and gets charged the extra four cents tax. In fact it wasn't even certain that the recommendation would be accepted by the government. Mint Director Mary Brooks said she had reservations about the conclusion, but they would be studied.

Seems like the penny is necessary to us, but then again maybe its elimination would graphically illustrate to us all just what inflation is doing.

If it didn't, another part of the recommendations might. It proposed elimination of the half dollar and instituting a smaller dollar coin.

That ought to dramatize inflation. We all know how the dollar has shrunk.

"Pity we couldn't exorcise his demons... but it was a great exercise in democracy!"

Voters Of Sweden Put U.S. To Shame

The end of the Socialist regime in Sweden over the weekend of passing interest to Americans.

We should all sit up and take notice however, of the fact that some 90 percent of the eligible voters turned out for the election which decided who would be running the country.

A turn-out like that in the United States would be unbelievable.

We can be sure the new government of Sweden is a fair reflection of how people are thinking. In the United States, who ever is elected president will be put in office by only a part of the eligible voters. That is a shame in our democracy.

THIS AFTERNOON Bureaucracy Is Rolling On

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — CETA . . . EJP . . . PSJ . . . ESC . . . DOL . . . Prime Sponsor . . . Sub-Contractor

What does that string of alphabetical jargon related to federal job programs have to do with Mrs. Pat Carone, Winston-Salem mother of seven?

Mostly, the bureaucratic mish-mash means that Mrs. Carone and her co-workers in the Winston-Salem Employment Security Commission office get run over from time to time.

It's really a simple, little thing: paychecks don't get delivered on time in that state office for those paid by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program.

Angry Lady

"I am angry . . . and I am here representing a lot of people in Winston-Salem and other places in the state who don't know enough to complain. There are people in Winston-Salem starving while our tax dollars are dissipated," complains the former New Yorker who has been in North Carolina for 22 years.

Once, paychecks were two weeks late; again they were five weeks late; another time a 24-hour delay had the recipients nervous.

"We can't just not pay our bills," Mrs. Carone complained to members of the General Assembly Intergovernmental Relations Committee recently. She was brought to Raleigh by State Senator E. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, chairman of the study group.

Representatives of the State Employment Security Commission and the State Manpower Commission, which oversee the federal programs, were on hand at Davis' invitation.

Those things do, indeed, happen from time to time, the officials said. Not because they have hard, bureaucratic hearts and like to hurt little people, they insisted, but because of things like reports supposed to be filed on time from the contractor to the prime sponsor and forwarded to Raleigh; or something that is supposed to be typewritten being sent in longhand; or the transfer of some money which was supposed to be done one day being delayed to the next.

Fairy Tale

Or, in a "fairy-tale" situation described by one official: he had on his desk a legally signed amendment to a contract while some official in Winston-Salem denied existence of that same amendment.

And it is not just Winston-Salem. "It is happening in other parts of the state periodically . . . in just about all programs in the state . . . It's just the mechanics of the thing . . . it's tedious, and things don't get together as they ought," one official explained.

"It should not be a disadvantaged person's fault . . . To suffer because some jackleg somewhere didn't sign a piece of paper. They are playing Mickey Mouse games while we are the ones who cry at night," the working mom argues. "If contracts have to go back and forth being nitpicked to death, it should be done without penalizing us."

Mrs. Carone is perhaps unusual among the disadvantaged. She is well educated and is accustomed to a good living—until

Singing Minority Blues

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

George Tierney, one of the great English Whigs of the last century, was fond of saying that the duty of an opposition party is simple: It is to oppose everything and to propose nothing.

Congressman John Rhodes, the Arizona Republican, finds that his party has inherited that negative image today, and he is hungry to do something about it.

Americans of every political persuasion should wish him luck. Our political system demands for its effective functioning a minority party that is large and lively, that presses its own constructive alternatives, that is never content merely to oppose the majority's program. In his recently published book, "The Futile System," Rhodes argues the Republican cause in these respects. He makes a convincing case.

To be sure, Rhodes hungers for much more than a healthy opposition party. As minority

Scoring That Debate

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to keep your own score of tonight's debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter? Want to compare notes with the experts? Here's how.

Five leading university debate coaches will judge the debate for The Associated Press.

You can score the debate yourself, using the same kind of scorecard the experts are using, and compare your results with theirs, when they are reported in Friday afternoon's edition.

The judging panel is using a scorecard modeled after the form used by the American Forensic Association for student competition.

ECOLOGICAL FANTASIES A Fear Of Watermelons?

By RAYNER PIKE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — True or false?

1. Lake Erie is dead.
2. DDT causes cancer.
3. The world's oxygen is being depleted.
4. Watermelons falling from airplanes are a major threat to life.

If you think the first three are true, then you may as well say "Yes" to No. 4, too, says a New York scientist who believes Americans are under the thrall of what he calls ecological fantasies.

Cy Adler, oceanographer and engineer, says messengers of ecological doom often raise alarms about dangers almost as remote as airborne melons.

"During the 1960s I began to notice that many of the technical reports crossing my desk conflicted with stories of environmental disaster then rampant," he said.

For example, technical data indicated air quality improving in cities, but one day his mail brought another message.

"This pamphlet from the air pollution commissioner said the average New Yorker was breathing 730 pounds of air pollution a year. Now that's a lot. It's two pounds a day. I figured I should at least be gaining weight from it."

As an engineering consultant and former teacher of physics, math and oceanography, Adler says he'd be the last to claim pollution is not a problem. But he maintains that much of human progress is marked by acceptance of some undesirable consequences in exchange for tremendous advances.

"Before the era of mass communication, myths propagated slowly from individual to individual," Adler writes in his book "Ecological Fantasies." "But now a lunatic with a microphone and money can spread his version of unreality across the face of the land."

In a recent interview in his journal-cluttered office in

Other Editors Say Special Interests

(Jacksonville Daily News)

The promising by politicians of special favors to special groups has long been deplored.

Political candidates should look to the general public interest, it is said, and ask, "What is good for America?" rather than "What is good for this group or that group?"

It is a sound principle but one that is seldom carried out impartially in practice.

A politician who has no trouble denying the pleas of welfare mothers or senior citizens may suddenly become attentive and submissive when approached by a lobbyist for a business or professional group.

A statesman who spurns the support of organized labor can tremble at the first world of criticism from the chamber of commerce.

We need legislators who are independent of all special interests, all pressure groups.

Lyndon Johnson had the right idea when he was a Texas senator and said he was a free man first, and American second, a Texas third and a Democrat fourth.

Public officials should think in those general terms, putting the common good ahead of any special or partisan interest.

It is in the nature of pressure groups to have artificially narrow interests. Presumably every individual who is a member of such a group is a whole person, with many interests which he shares with members of other groups. But as a member of the pressure group his other interests become irrelevant.

The group and its lobbyists concentrate only on the special issues, usually economic, that concern the group as a whole. They are spokesmen for the group's self-interest—and nothing else.

Doctors are interested in the welfare of their patients and lawyers in the welfare of their clients. But doctors' lobbies tend to be interested only in the interests of doctors. And lawyers' lobbies are preoccupied with the interests of attorneys. The patients and clients have no lobby.

This is why it is important that anyone who seeks to speak for the public interest consult directly with the people, with individuals who speak only for themselves, with the uncommitted and the open-minded, before making decisions that affect the general welfare.

40 Years Ago Today

September 23, 1936

The fall of Madrid and Toledo was declared imminent today by insurgent leaders as the fascists rapidly cut the distance separating their armies from both cities.

Officers said the government forces were hurled back on both fronts after suffering severe losses in battles at Torrijos and along the Talavera-Madrid highway beyond Maqueda.

Current reports indicated the Madrid government was debating the advisability of surrender.

Governor Alf M. Lando stepped personally into Iowa Republican party organization work today after a farm address pledging a "free and independent agriculture."

Cash benefits and conservation payments were endorsed by the candidate last night amid the cheers of an audience at the state fair grounds estimated by police at from 15,000 to 18,000.

Cheers greeted his declaration that after four years the New Deal was "right back where it started from" and that its conservation plan was a "stop gap and a subterfuge."

stood by his description of the lake as dead an added: "The alarm that was raised by environmentalists about 10 years ago has done a lot to start it on the road to recovery."

As for Adler's general view of the environmental movement, Ehrlich commented: "If you understand exponential growth and the data that exist on the assaults mankind is launching on the ecological systems of the planet, you'll see that historical evidence is no guide whatsoever to the present-day situation, which in fact is unprecedented."

The record shows, Adler counters, that individual wellbeing and life expectancy have improved even as industrial pollution has mushroomed.

"I'm not arguing that pollution is good for people, but rather that it is a relatively minor nuisance compared with other causes of death and unhappiness, such as war, cigarette smoking and alcoholism," he said.

The most devastating environmental damage, Adler holds, is caused by cars and suburban living.

"The automobile is the most inefficient form of transportation yet devised by human ingenuity," he said. "Without question, most air, water, land and noise

Strength For Today

A UNIVERSAL PRINCIPLE

Beginning in the earliest chapters of the Bible and going through to the very last, we find the concept that human life is cut after the pattern of sacrifice.

The crucifixion of Jesus was not only a great redemptive event, it was also the symbol of life's greatest reality—namely, that life involves sacrifice, and that you and I are out of step with the whole universe until we are willing to put self aside. Jesus Christ is God sacrificing. The unseen spiritual world is build on sacrifice.

Take the cross out of religion, and you take the core out of it. Take away sacrifice and you take away salvation. The teachings of Jesus Christ will never of themselves save men and women and were never intended to. People are saved when they accept the sacrifice of Jesus Christ at the value God placed upon it. The teachings of Christ were meant to guide people in the right way after they have made the great acceptance.

'Median Income' Range Shifts

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — To base any argument on the median income of American families is to take aim at a target that is constantly shifting, changing shape and assuming new meanings.

It varies from year to year and from place to place. It grows swiftly in one year and barely can be discerned to move at all in others. It may rise while financial fortunes shrink with the dollar.

It is often too casually used as a dividing line between rich and poor, which it is not. Some families are comfortable earning the median, while others fall deep into debt and distress.

The median income, now approaching $14,000, appears to be a very useable statistic, since it lies in the middle, with half the number of families earning more, half less. But it hardly can be called the happy median.

Families earning near the median aren't likely to accept praise for being there, since the American tradition is that you don't settle for average but seek to excel. And those earning less aren't always bitter but instead may be ambitious and confident.

The typical family—supposedly two children, 8 and 13, and their parents—lives considerably better on the median income in Austin, Tex. than in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles or Anchorage, Alaska.

The median income has a different meaning in the city than on the farm. A city family might have to scrimp on the median. A farm family might be comfortable because of its other resources.

The median income shifts with the years, because Americans on average tend to improve their financial standing. But the meaning of the median income also shifts because of changes in buying power.

If you earned today's median back in 1950 you would have been well off. But if you earned 1950's median income today you would be badly off. In that time inflation has eroded the dollar to about one-third its value.

Does being on the sunny side of the median make a family rich? If more than 40 million families were asked to reply to that question in unison the answer might be a thunderous no that might vibrate seismographs.

Is the median income a definition of class? Hardly. Blue Collar workers sometimes make more than college instructors. High school dropouts often make more than college graduates. If there are mathematical measurements of "class," the median income isn't one of them.

What is rich? Perhaps a state of mind. The loans records of banks, the bankruptcy files, the divorce courts and other sources attest to many thousands of "rich" people who lived beyond their means.

If your family income exceeds $30,000 you are in roughly the upper 5 per cent income bracket, but you are aware that you must deny your family many of the privileges you thought would be theirs at that level of income.

Lebanon's Rivals Blazing Away

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon changed Christian presidents today, but the civil war that has ravaged the Moslem-Christian nation for 17 months blazed away without letup.

President Suleiman/Franjeh handed over his constitutional authority to President-elect Elias Sarkis in a small ceremony at Franjeh's wartime headquarters in Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut, Christian radio stations reported.

The two men drank a toast to the "new era," the broadcasts said, and Sarkis left for Choura, in Syrian-occupied territory 30 miles east of Beirut, where he was to be sworn in before a special session of parliament.

Leaders of the right-wing Christian militias pledged their support to Sarkis and called on their foes in the leftist alliance of Palestinians and Lebanese Moslems to stop shooting and start talking.

Leftist leaders also declared their support for Sarkis but told him there could be no peace until he secured the withdrawal of the Syrian forces who intervened in the civil war last June on the side of the Christians.

Sarkis, 51, was the governor of Lebanon's central bank and unlike Franjeh and other Lebanese leaders has no party militia to support him. But his candidacy was favored by Syria, and that proved decisive in the election by parliament in May.

"At last I am free," said Franjeh, 66, whose six-year term expired at midnight Wednesday. "I can now rest. I can breathe a sigh of relief."

"I am confident that I am leaving Lebanon in safe hands. President Sarkis deserves the support of every Lebanese, Moslem or Christian."

The leftists had been demanding Franjeh's resignation for six months. But the tough, silver-haired mountain warrior, who defeated Sarkis for the presidency by one vote in 1970, held on until the end of his term so he would not be the first president forced out of office.

The unwritten political agreement under which Lebanon has operated since independence from France 32 years ago allots the presidency to the Maronite sect, the country's largest Christian denomination. The premier is a Sunni Moslem and the speaker of parliament a Shiite Moslem.

On the Moslem side, leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt and moderate Premier Rashid Karami boycotted the swearing-in ceremony because it was being held behind the Syrian lines.

"The new president would have gotten off to a much better start if he took the oath of office away from Syrian occupation bayonets," Jumblatt said in a statement.

Despite the boycott, the Christians were expected to muster the quorum required — at least half of parliament's 98 members — for the inaugural to be valid.

Street battles flared along much of the front line between the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut. Rocket and long-range artillery duels also continued to rage around the mountain resorts 12 to 18 miles east of the capital.

Hospital officials estimated that about 70 persons were killed and 90 were wounded during the night. Estimates of the death toll in the war now exceed 36,000.

pollution springs from our use of internal combustion vehicles.

"Cars are simply not acceptable means of mass transportation in genuine cities, such as New York, Boston and San Francisco." Auto-oriented places like Los Angeles and Houston he calls "mock cities ... really clusters of suburbs with baseball stadiums."

As for suburban living, he says, compared to an average family in a Manhattan apartment, a neighboring suburban family on Long Island "generates more than three times as much air pollution, about 15 per cent more solid waste, considerably more insecticide and pesticide runoff, at least 10 per cent more thermal waste from home heating ... greater waste of wood and other natural resources."

But pollution in dense urban centers is more dramatic because it is more concentrated, more visible and measured.

"The clean-air standards set by the federal government will probably never be met in a few downtown areas during rush hours," he says, "but I would estimate that 99 per cent of New York City residents breathe air that meets the standards over 95 per cent of the time."

As for depletion of oxygen, Adler says the earth's oxygen level has remained constant for at least the last 60 years. If all available fuel were burned at once, he says, the percentage of oxygen in the air would drop from 20.94 per cent to 20.8 per cent.

Data and experience also have led him to conclude that other concerns — DDT, mercury levels in fish, phosphates in detergents, thermal pollution from power plants, oil spills as threats to oceans, etc. — may be overrated. He says some may cause nasty situations locally, but can be dealt with locally.

He said her "inability to care for herself began several years ago and worsened a year ago." Justice Hyman Korn appointed a retired judge, Sydney Fine, as her temporary guardian until a decision is made on appointment of a conservator. He set a hearing on Sept. 27.

Huck said the move was necessary to permit the sale of Miss Lillie's $75,000 cooperative apartment overlooking the East River, her jewels and other assets to pay her medical bills.

Huck said her only source of income is a trust fund that provides $47,000 a year, and her expenses, including nursing and other medical costs, run about $82,000 a year.

He said he hopes to arrange for Lady Peel's return to England before the end of the year because her medical expenses would be far less there.

Huck said the apartment contains a 40-year accumulation of memorabilia associated with a theatrical career in which Miss Lillie captivated audiences with her elegantly absurd routines.

No Tears From Frozen Onions

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — A panel member of National Family Opinion, Inc., has a new solution to an old problem, the tears brought on by slicing raw onions. The panelist recommends freezing them first. This prevents the oil responsible for tearing from spraying when the knife penetrates the vegetable.

Another panelist recommends rinsing milk containers or glasses in cold water before washing. Warm, soapy water used first makes them cloudy.

Arrests Follow Pitt Thefts

Several arrests have been made by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department following investigation of a rash of thefts in the county.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested three persons on charges stemming from a break-in at the home of Bobby Roger Manning on Rt. 8, Box 338 Greenville. He noted that the incident, which was reported on Sept. 5, resulted in the theft of some $3,000 in property, including several guns and a citizens band radio.

Arrested and charged with breaking, entering and larceny was Billy Ray Rouse, 17, of Rt. 4, Box 337, Greenville, the sheriff said, while William Jasper Farmer, 31 of Rt. 2, Box 453-C, and Ray Farmer, 28, of Rt. 4, Box 335, Greenville, were charged with receiving stolen property in connection with the incident.

Some $2,000 worth of property, including all the weapons except one, was recovered from the Manning break-in, he said. Rouse, Ricky Lee Skinner, 17, of 119 W. 12th Street, Greenville, and Eddie Weaver, 16, of Rt. 4, Box 292-C, Greenville, were charged by the department with a breaking, entering and larceny at Productive Communications, located at Red Oak Shopping Center, on Sept. 10.

Deputies recovered a calculator, radio, tape recorder and a small amount of change allegedly taken in the incident. Skinner, Rouse and Weaver were also charged with a break-in at the Wicker Shop located at Red Oak Shopping Center. The owner reported the theft of two baskets, valued at $38 from the shop. Deputies recovered one of the baskets.

Skinner, Rouse, Weaver and a juvenile were charged by officers with a Sept. 10 break-in at McRoy Insurance Agency on the Grimesland Highway where some $250 in property, including a stereo, built-in clock and camera, and $38 in cash, was reported stolen.

Investigation of a break-in at Pat's Beauty Shop, located in the McRoy building, resulted in additional breaking, entering and larceny charges against Weaver, Rouse, Skinner and the juvenile, according to the sheriff.

He said that a hair dryer, valued at $40, plus $20 in cash, was reported stolen. Deputies recovered the dryer, it was noted.

Skinner, Rouse and the juvenile were charged with a Sept. 15 break-in at Roland Stocks' Store at Hamm's Crossroads during which some $385 in merchandise was reported stolen. Deputies recovered approximately $300 worth of property, Sheriff Tyson added.

Weaver, Rouse and Skinner were charged with breaking and entering following investigation of an incident at Hardee's Grocery and Grill, located at Rt. 4, Greenville, on Sept. 16. Nothing was reported missing in the incident.

A break-in at North Pitt High School on Sept. 2 resulted in charges of breaking, entering and larceny being preferred against Rouse and the juvenile, the sheriff said. Some $2000 worth of property and money was reported taken from the school, he added, with deputies recovering a stereo.

Skinner, Rouse and the juvenile were charged with a break-in at Belvoir Primary School during which property valued at $306 was reported stolen. Deputies recovered a television and radio allegedly taken in the break-in.

In addition, Skinner, Rouse and the juvenile were charged in connection with a break-in and larceny at Thomas Venters' Store on Rt. 2, Ayden on Sept. 15. The owner reported the theft of $84 worth of merchandise. Sheriff Tyson said that the items recovered by deputies during the investigation were found at Skinner's residence. He noted that the property had been buried in a hole.

He listed bond for Rouse at $6,000 while a $2,500 bond was set for Skinner, $2,500 for Weaver, and $1,000 each for Ray and William Jasper Farmer. The juvenile was released in the custody of his parents pending a hearing in Juvenile Court.

Hearings were scheduled for all but the juvenile in District Court here.

Groups Advise New Combined Middle School

The Ayden-Grifton Advisory Committee voted Tuesday night to recommend to the Pitt County Board of Education that a middle school be constructed in the vicinity of the Ayden-Grifton High School to serve sixth, seventh, and eighth grade students of both the Ayden and Grifton communities.

"I think that it took an awful lot of merit and good planning by the advisory councils. It will add to the one big city which will eventually encompass the Ayden and Grifton territory," Pitt County School Supt. Ott Alford said after reading a report of the proposed combined middle school.

The Ayden and Grifton councils met separately Tuesday before the proposal was voted on. The Ayden Council, which had already been working on a site selection for a new Ayden Grammar School to house grades five and six, voted to support the Ayden-Grifton Middle School provided that there is no delay in the construction of this school as in the original plan of the Ayden Grammar School.

The Grifton Council also approved the concept of the Ayden-Grifton Middle School and the location near the high school.

Ayden has 341 students in the 6-8 grades and Grifton has 203 students. Council members noted that neither Ayden nor Grifton could individually have an effective middle school program, but combined with 544 students more programs could be instituted as well as additional occupational courses. Council members also pointed out that personnel now being shared between the two communities would not have to be shared in a combined middle school.

Dr. J. O. Carson, Pitt County Board of Education member from the Grifton area was in favor of the combined middle school.

"I am basically in favor of the Ayden Grifton Middle School because it will have some advantages for the students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades not available at either school now. The reduced school enrollment in future years may cause problems in individual middle schools. The combined middle school would help the need for a more diversified program," Dr. Carson said.

The Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council plans to present the proposal to the Pitt County Board of Education October 5 for its consideration.

Toy Loan Library Begins In October

A toy loan library, sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Home Economics, will begin operation in October. The program will serve local homes and day care centers where child care services for infants and toddlers are provided.

Ruth Lambie, associate professor in the ECU Department of Child Development and Family Relations, will coordinate the program.

"Infants and toddlers in selected homes and child care centers will have opportunities to play with a variety of toys, chosen in terms of each child's age and ability," she said.

"As the children grow and develop, new, different and more challenging toys will be loaned to them."

The toy library program is formulated according to Miss Lambie's observations of similar toy libraries in Sweden and the U.S. and is intended to help child care personnel add to their skills and knowledge in stimulating the growth of small children.

The use of specifically-designed play activities as a means to stimulate child development is one of Miss Lambie's special research interests. Her study of Swedish child care centers was supported by a grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, under ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins' "Pockets of Excellence" project.

Her assistant in the toy library program will be Lisa Boyce of Charlotte, a child development student at ECU.

Arrest Two In Kinston Murder

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Two persons have been arrested in the beating and shooting death of a Kinston woman Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The victim was identified as Vera Grace Stephens, 36. She was found dead in her home after being beaten with a nightstick and shot in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Charged with first degree murder shortly after the killing were her husband Frank Matthews Stephens, 35, and Mary Ann Harris, 27, also of Kinston. Officers said Stephens and Mrs. Harris were seen fleeing the scene together.

Couple To Entertain At Town Meeting Event

THE STINSONS... Sandra and Billy, the Greenville Town Meeting '76 will sing during the lunch interlude at Saturday.

Billy and Sandra Stinson will entertain at the buffet lunch which is part of the Greenville Town Meeting here Saturday.

The singing Greenville couple has performed throughout the area. They are regulars at the city's Sundays in the Park.

In addition, Billy will be working with the children who attend the meeting during the morning to compose a song, which, if it is successfully completed, will be performed during the lunch interlude.

Tickets for the meeting may be purchased at the door at $2.50 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and students, and free to the children under 12. Registration in advance may be accomplished by mailing ones name, address, and phone number to Greenville Town Meeting, Box 1155, Greenville. If one registers this way, entrance material need only be picked up at the door, according to Dr. Nicole Aronson, treasurer. Advance registration is $2 as opposed to $2.50 at the door.

INSURANCE

NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more people are beginning their insurance programs at an earlier age, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. A council survey showed that whereas 21 per cent of those under 25 bought their own life insurance four years ago, by this year the percentage had risen to 24 per cent.

Record Day For Market

Another record day was chalked up Wednesday on the Greenville Tobacco Market, according to J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the local Tobacco Board of Trade.

The supervisor said that the market sold 969,531 pounds yesterday for $1,212,878, a record average of $125.10 per hundred pounds.

Top practical price paid was $1.30 per pound, he said, with some of the better quality offerings bringing from $1.31 to $1.35 per pound.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 1.16 per cent of total sales, Bryan reported.

Cutters, leaf, and smoking leaf continued to make up the bulk of offerings, he pointed out, with lugs, primings and non descript tobacco declining in volume.

For the season, the market has sold 32,268,636 pounds for $36,507,929 an average of $113.14 per hundred pounds.

LIFE GOAL

NEW YORK (UPI) — An increasingly better standard of living is the major goal of U.S. youth, according to the Rand Youth Poll. The organization, which makes surveys of American youth, says four of every five persons under 30 say "a higher and higher" standard of living is what life means to them. Next in popularity as a goal is "a peaceful life," it adds.

Mark-A-Thon

Greenville policemen will hold a "mark-a-thon" Saturday to engrave approved identification numbers on electronic equipment, according to Doug Jackson, Crime Prevention Officer.

The "mark-a-thon," sponsored by the Police Department, the Pitt County Insurance Exchange Inc. and the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women, will be held at Pitt Plaza from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Any type of electronic equipment such as Citizen

Band radios and FM converters can be engraved, with the exception of hand-tooled equipment. The service is free of charge to anyone. A decal is placed in the vehicle window to indicate that equipment has been registered.

"We've done this once a month since May," Jackson said. "We have marked about $65,000 worth of electronic equipment, and of that only four pieces have been stolen."

Pre-Reading Role Urged

Dr. Umberto Price, director of the Appalachian State University Reading Center, was guest speaker Tuesday night at the Allied Health Center, in conjunction with "Reading Week" observances in Greenville and Pitt County.

In his topic, "The Importance of Pre-Reading Experiences," Dr. Price outlined steps parents can take to stimulate the growth and development of a child's mind, especially at the pre-school age.

Among proposals outlined by Dr. Price were: encouraging the child to read by providing reading material, a table, and a bookshelf; providing time in which to read books; and encouraging the independence and curiosity of a child.

"Reading Week," being observed locally and statewide, is a culmination of a year-long effort by Citizens United, for the Improvement of Reading.

Local organizations sponsoring "Reading Week" are the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters; the Department of Home Economics Education and the School of

Drug Arrests

A Greenville man and woman were arrested yesterday evening at their home by Greenville policemen and State Bureau of Investigation agents, according to police department records.

Robert Jones, 39, and Pattie Mae Jones, 34, of 1407 Spruce St., were charged with possession of heroin with intent to sell after a search at their residence about 5:20 p.m.

Officers found a total of 36 foil packets containing powder, valued at about $875, with several needles, syringes and other pieces of equipment.

The couple was placed in Pitt County Jail under $2,500 bond each. A hearing has been set for Friday in District Court.

EPA Reports New Car Gas Mileage Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says the new 1977 model cars are getting better mileage per gallon of gasoline and that 11 of 13 auto makers already meet a 1978 mileage requirement.

The EPA said Wednesday that 1977 model cars will yield 6 per cent better gasoline mileage than 1976 cars and 34 per cent better mileage than 1974 models.

The agency, which said foreign cars are leading the way, found that 1977 model cars tested in its laboratory averaged a theoretical 18.6 miles per gallon of gas, or one-mile per gallon better than the 1976 models tested a year ago. The figure exceeds the 18.0 miles per gallon federal fuel economy standard which will go into effect with 1978 model cars. There was no federal requirement for 1977 models.

Only Ford's and Chrysler's 1977 models did not meet the 1978 standard, the EPA said. The other 11 automobile manufacturers equalled or bettered it, and seven manufacturers, all foreign makers, met the 1980 standard of 20.0 miles per gallon. They are BMW, Nissan-Datsun, Toyo Kogyo-Mazda, Toyota, Volkswagen, Audi and Fuji-Subaru.

The improved mileage is the result of better engines, new engine combinations and changes in the average weight of cars, the EPA said. Slightly more than half the improvements resulted from better engines and new engine combinations, the agency said.

Here are the top performers: —The diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit with an average 44 miles per gallon. The 90-cubic-inch Rabbit diesel averaged 39 miles on its simulated city driving and 52 miles on the simulated highway cycle.

—A four-cylinder Toyota Corolla with a 71-cubic-inch engine averaged 41 miles per gallon.

—The Volkswagen Dasher diesel, 40 miles per gallon.

(The Rabbit and the Dasher diesel models will not be available in this country until next summer.)

—The Mazda 808 with a 78 cubic inch engine, 38 miles per gallon.

—The top American finisher, the Chevrolet Chevette with a 98-cubic-inch engine, finished fifth with 36 miles per gallon.

All of the top finishers had manual transmissions. The top finisher with an automatic transmission was the Chevrolet Chevette, which averaged 30 miles per gallon. General Motors also made a large improvement over-all, EPA said, increasing its average by 10.4 per cent. The agency estimated that 6.4 per cent of GM's improvement came by reducing vehicle weight and the mixture of cars being sold.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, September 23, 1976—11

American Motors posted a 4.8 per cent improvement and Chrysler's average went up by 0.5 per cent. Ford's dipped by 1.4 per cent.

Indict Ex-Chief

BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — The Beaufort County grand jury has indicted former Belhaven Police Chief Rudolph Hall on a charge of taking town money under false pretenses. Hall resigned as chief last week.

On Monday, Hall was charged with personally accepting checks worth $590 intended for other police officers. He was accused of submitting records that the officers had performed work that had not been done.

The indictment said Hall cashed the checks and kept the money intended for the officers. The incidents allegedly occurred between Feb. 27 and June 18.

COMMENT ON SEX TOPICS — Frank comments on once-taboo sex topics by Presidential candidates and their wives is a sign of the times, two women advisers in the Ford and Carter campaigns say. Pat Bailey, left a member of the Republican Women's Task Force, said politicians and their wives no longer are afraid to discuss sensitive topics. Mary King, director of the Committee of 51.3 Percent, the Carter campaign's effort involving women, said the Democratic candidate's language in a Playboy magazine interview reflected a modernization of Biblical idioms.  economically feasible to handle the situation that way and if it is not permitted, the developers will "lose $25,000 down the drain."
 Commission member Eddie Howell said he would like Horne to "get up and tell me why we can't let Winterville provide this water for five years."
 The ultimate problem, according to Horne, is that if the total area is to be served by GUCO, then the first part should be served initially by the system.
 Howell said that "we are not being realistic in saying that the first man in has to bear the entire cost of the project."
 Commission chairman Karl Faser said that the question before the planning body was whether the preliminary plat met the checklist for subdivisions. He noted that the checklist involving water and sewer service had not been met according to the information provided in the memorandums.
 He said he did not see how the planning board, without a comprehensive plan looking into the next five years, could approve the plat.
 Commissioners voted unanimously to table the matter.
 In other business during the lengthy meeting, commissioners recommended that the request of Tucker Estates, Section II, located on Red Banks Road south of the existing Section I, be approved by the City Council for rezoning from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R-15 (residential).
 The recommendation for Council approval of a request of North River Estates, Section II, located west of Greenfield Terrace and east of State Road 1419, for rezoning from RA-20 to R-9 was also approved by the commission.
 A request for consideration of the annexation of Tucker Estates, Section II, was endorsed with the recommendation for Council approval.
 Commission members, after discussing the addition of residential quarters for resident managers, supervisor or caretaker in the Medical Arts district, voted to disapprove the addition.
 The matter was brought before the board several months ago and the vote at that time was also for recommendation to the Council that the matter not be approved. The Council concurred in upholding the recommendation of the planning board.
 City Planner John Schofield noted that a doctor who has an office in the Medical Arts district has again asked to have the authority to have someone reside in his office complex for security purposes. The family of the resident manager would be included, by definition, in the provision, it was noted.
 The high number of break-ins in the area is the main concern, according to Mayor Percy Cox.
 Faser said that unless the person living at the complex was surveying the area for security measures, he would be of no real use. He noted that security would not be in effect after the manager retired for the night.
 Commission member Mrs. Ruth Trevathan said that a watchman was needed rather than a resident manager.
 In a final matter, Howell asked that the Council give the commission guidance on what direction to take regarding Tucker Industrial Park. A motion asking for a Council reply in writing was approved.
 In business on the agenda of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, approval was given to the renaming of Railroad Street in West Meadowbrook to Melody Lane.
 The request for renaming was submitted by Mrs. Christine Lewis, it was pointed out, with a petition containing the names of persons living on the street.
 Action of the preliminary plat of Mills Subdivision, Section II, located in East Meadowbrook north of Church Street, was tabled when no one was present to represent the developers.
 Approval was given to the preliminary and final plats of Maplewood Subdivision located on Fornes Road. The

 In other business during the lengthy meeting, commissioners recommended that the request of Tucker Estates, Section II, located on Red Banks Road south of the existing Section I, be approved by the City Council for rezoning from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R-15 (residential).
 The recommendation for Council approval of a request of North River Estates, Section II, located west of Greenfield Terrace and east of State Road 1419, for rezoning from RA-20 to R-9 was also approved by the commission.
 A request for consideration of the annexation of Tucker Estates, Section II, was endorsed with the recommendation for Council approval.
 Commission members, after discussing the addition of residential quarters for resident managers, supervisor or caretaker in the Medical Arts district, voted to disapprove the addition.
 The matter was brought before the board several months ago and the vote at that time was also for recommendation to the Council that the matter not be approved. The Council concurred in upholding the recommendation of the planning board.
 City Planner John Schofield noted that a doctor who has an office in the Medical Arts district has again asked to have the authority to have someone reside in his office complex for security purposes. The family of the resident manager would be included, by definition, in the provision, it was noted.
 The high number of break-ins in the area is the main concern, according to Mayor Percy Cox.
 Faser said that unless the person living at the complex was surveying the area for security measures, he would be of no real use. He noted that security would not be in effect after the manager retired for the night.
 Commission member Mrs. Ruth Trevathan said that a watchman was needed rather than a resident manager.
 In a final matter, Howell asked that the Council give the commission guidance on what direction to take regarding Tucker Industrial Park. A motion asking for a Council reply in writing was approved.
 In business on the agenda of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, approval was given to the renaming of Railroad Street in West Meadowbrook to Melody Lane.
 The request for renaming was submitted by Mrs. Christine Lewis, it was pointed out, with a petition containing the names of persons living on the street.
 Action of the preliminary plat of Mills Subdivision, Section II, located in East Meadowbrook north of Church Street, was tabled when no one was present to

On-Again, Off-Again Cardinals Visit Rebounding Rampant Team

Lineman Freager Sanders

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After last week's heart-breaking loss to Kinston, Coach Dave Bumgarner has taken a hard look at his 1976 Rose High School football team—and he's not too pleased with what he's seen.

"A lot of the problem has been that we've taken a lot for granted," he said. "We just can't do this any more."

Because of this, Bumgarner has made a few changes in the lineup for this Friday night's game against Jacksonville's Cardinals.

And one thing is certain. There won't be any penalties against the Rampants for not having a mouthpiece in its proper place.

That particular problem brought the Rampants two penalties last Friday, one of them a key one that sprang Kinston's Vikings loose on their final touchdown drive to win the 13-12 contest.

The coach said that several years ago, he and his staff got very cautious about warning the players about the mouthpiece penalty, "but we've taken too much for granted. We haven't done a very good job coaching so far. We just expect them to know things: like taking salt tablets."

The salt tablets are an aid against cramps, another problem that bothered the Rampants against Kinston.

"We're doing some things well," Bumgarner said. "We played real well in the first half. We were following our game plan, and I feel like the score should have been 7-0 at the half instead of 6-6."

"But in the second half, we didn't do anything like we'd planned to do."

Bumgarner cites two reasons for this, lack of experience and the lack of aggressiveness.

"In the past, we've been able to win the 13-12, 7-6 or 12-6 games. But we can't keep doing this unless we're prepared. And some of our players just aren't prepared to be aggressive enough yet."

The coach hopes that some of the changes he's planning on putting into effect this week will do the trick. One of them was brought about by an injury during practice. Center Gene Pittman dislocated an elbow and will miss four to six weeks.

"We're going to move Rocky Bulter to offense because of this. He'll still be playing some linebacker, but only on spot duty."

The other changes will see both Gary Porter and Derek Brewington seeing some action as offensive guards. They will still continue as defensive regulars at tackles.

Mark Conway and Larry Boyette will move into the outside linebacker slots, while Bryant Morton and David Northrup on the inside.

"Inexperience has hurt our secondary, but they are coming along rapidly. They made some mistakes last week, but they still did a good job. All three of them will be back next year, and they will be a very good group before they finish."

Bumgarner isn't sure what to expect from Jacksonville, a team that brings a 2-2 record into the game. They have beaten

New Hanover (42-13) and White Oak (9-0) and lost to Seventy-First (18-3) and Hoggard (35-7).

"In the film we saw, they didn't look good at all," Bumgarner said. "But they scored an awful lot of points against New Hanover, a team that beat Hoggard 3-0. So what can you say?"

Bumgarner describes Jacksonville as a big, physical team. "They run from a power setup that puts the fullback right behind the quarterback, with a halfback out to the side behind one of the tackles. The other back lines up as a wide receiver, and they plan two tight ends. They like to run with the power stuff both inside and outside."

"They have a big fullback who's rushed for 279 yards so far, and they have some good people in the line."

There's also another plus for the Cardinals. Their coach is John Green, brother of Sam Green, coach of Kinston. "You can bet they got together over the weekend to compare notes," Bumgarner said.

The Rampants go into their final two non-conference games (they play Reid Ross next week) with a 1-2 record. "I'll feel bad if we don't win at least one of these next two," Bumgarner said.

"And I think that if we can beat Jacksonville, we'll have a good chance to get Reid Ross."

The game gets underway at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

Soccer Team In MonarchTourney

With three straight losses in less than a week and several key starters out with injuries, it appears the East Carolina soccer team is going off the deep end in a hurry.

Not so, says Pirate head coach Curtis Frye.

"We've played three outstanding teams so far in N.C. State, William and Mary and Campbell," explained Frye, "and we have not been humiliated yet. We've gotten outstanding effort defensively and our offense is improving rapidly. It's just going to be a matter of maintaining confidence because we will win our share this season."

The Pirate booters were shut out for the second straight game in a row as they dropped a close 2-0 contest to N.C. State. Goalie John Keener, wing Jay High and fullback Charlie Hardy all missed the N.C. State game because of injuries suffered in last weekend's tournament at Campbell.

Nevertheless junior Wayne Barrow replaced Keener at goalie against State and was credited with 18 individual saves while fullback Dave Wasolek held N.C. State's All-Conference performer Gino Olcese scoreless.

"Wayne was playing in his very first game since he's been at East Carolina," said Frye. "He made two mental mistakes early in the game but then settled down and played a tremendous second half. And you've got to credit Dave Wasolek with a super individual performance."

The Pirates travel to Norfolk, Va., Friday to face highly touted American University in the first round of the Old Dominion Tournament. American topped William and Mary last week 3-0 while the Pirates fell to the same Indians 4-0 in the Campbell Tournament. East Carolina will face either Princeton or Old Dominion in the second round.

"We're playing these top caliber teams early in the season so that we'll be prepared when the conference schedule opens," explained Frye. "All these teams in the tournament this weekend are top ranked teams in the country so we'll have our work cut out for us."

East Carolina will return to action following the Old Dominion Tournament next Thursday in Durham against Duke University.

Center fielder Ron LeFlore of the Detroit Tigers hit in 30 straight American League games last spring.

31 YEARS IN ARMY
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — You may remember Arnold Tucker. He quarterbacked three undefeated Doc Blanchard-Glenn Davis football teams at West Point for Coach Earl (Red) Blaik 30 years ago. Tucker is fully retired in Miami after 31 years in the Army, followed by three years as assistant athletic director at the University of Miami. Tucker lost only one game during a seven-year high school and college career. Tucker and Blanchard are the only football players ever awarded the Sullivan award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

'Three And Off' Is The Cry Of East Carolina's Defensive Unit

It is no secret that the key to having a good football team is a strong defense. Vince Lombardi had one in his glory days at Green Bay. The Los Angeles Rams had their "fearsome foursome." The Washington Redskins have their "Over the Hill Gang." The Minnesota Vikings have their "Purple Gang."

Well, Greenville, N.C., is a long way from Bloomington, Minn., but the Pirates of East Carolina University have their own "Purple Gang" on campus.

In the first two football games of the season, the Pirate defense has been outstanding. Against Southern Mississippi, they held the Eagles to 61 yards rushing and 173 yards total offense. In the N.C. State contest, the Wolfpack was limited to 26 total yards in the first half, and 128 total for the game. The "Purple Gang" has recorded eleven quarterback sacks and has dropped opposing runners for losses totalling 78 yards. In addition, they have recovered three fumbles, intercepted two passes and have recorded a whopping total of 166 takedowns in the first two games.

This puts the ECU defense very high in the national standings. They are currently ranked in three defensive categories. In total defense, the "Purple Gang" ranks third in the country, giving up a stingy 150.5 yards per game. They are sixth in rushing defense and 12th in scoring defense. The main body of the "Purple Gang" is the defensive line. Anchored by ends Zack Valentine and All-America Cary Godette, the outside running game is well taken care of. Both men possess great quickness, though their appearances are deceiving. Godette is large and strong, Valentine is lanky and strong. Moving through the middle of the line, which none to date have found easy, tackles Jake Dove and Wayne Poole, along with noseguard Oliver Felton, have performed brilliantly in the first two games. They have virtually negated opponents' running attacks.

One might say that the ECU linebackers are "Harolded."

Through the two opening contests, Harold Randolph and Harold Fort have combined for a total of 30 takedowns, and rank first and second on individual tackles.

Experience is the name of the game in the defensive secondary. All-America safety Jim Bolding, along with Reggie Pinkney and Ernest Madison have played together the last three years. Bolding led the nation in interceptions last fall capturing ten in ten games. He currently has 20 career thefts, needing just nine more to tie an NCAA record. But he does not take all credit.

"With guys like Ernest and Reggie backing me up, I can afford to take more chances. I couldn't do it without their help."

The lone newcomer to the secondary is Gerald Hill. The sophomore has fit in well, though, which increases the effectiveness of the defensive backfield.

No member of the ECU "Purple Gang" singles out anyone who is responsible for the great success. They all see it as a team effort. They have even come up with their own motto, as described by Valentine.

"Our motto is three plays and out," explained Valentine. "That's what we like to aim for. They run three plays, then we come out."

Buc Basketball Staff To Hold Gitmo Clinic

East Carolina University's basketball coaching staff will hold a series of instructional clinics at Guantanamo Bay Naval Base in Cuba early next month.

Coach Dave Patton, assistant Butch Estes, and graduate assistants Billy Lee and Dan McKinney will be the guests of the Naval Department for the coaching clinics on Oct. 7 through Oct. 12.

"We hope that this will be the first of a series of clinics in the future for military bases everywhere," Estes said.

The activities will get underway on Friday, Oct. 8, when the staff will put on a clinic in the dependent schools for younger children. They will follow that up with another on Monday, Oct. 11, also for school age children.

On Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 9-10, the Pirate coaches will hold instructional clinics for members of the base's service league teams.

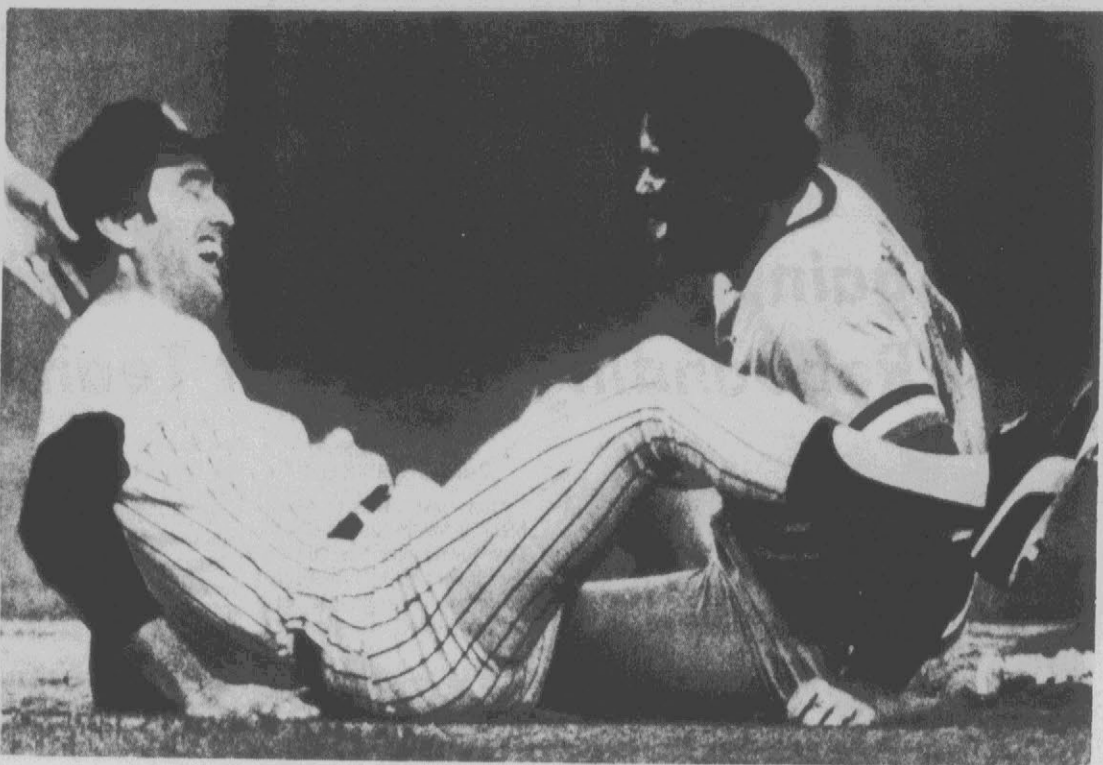

Estes said that area television sportscaster Lee Moore suggested to the Pirate staff that they put on a clinic at Cherry Point.

"But when we contacted Cherry Point, they forwarded our suggestions on to Guantanamo, which promptly accepted," Estes said.

East Carolina will also hold a coaches' clinic on Saturday, Oct. 16, on the ECU campus, running from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Speakers will include James Fulghum of Greene Central High School, Dave Smith of Washington High School, Larry Lindsay of Wake Forrest-Rolesville High School; Jeff Adams of Clayton; Lee and Patton.

Details of the clinic and registration forms can be obtained from the basketball office at East Carolina.

Yankees, Royals Still Cruising Along In Their Holding Patterns

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals still are drifting above their respective divisions in a holding pattern.

The Yankees' "magic number" for winning the American League East remained at three and Kansas City's stayed at five in the West after fruitless efforts Wednesday night.

"Until those three games are won, there's danger," said New York's Lou Piniella after the tenacious Baltimore Orioles kept their desperate hopes alive with a two-night doubleheader sweep over the Yankees, 2-0 and 5-2.

Had the Yankees won but one of the games, they would have clinched a tie for the East Division title. But the Orioles have been perched on the East leader's shoulder with tireless persistence recently—winning the last five games between the teams.

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's strong right-hander, sees little hope for his team, despite the Orioles' uncanny domination of the Yankees.

"I have to be a realist about the pennant—I think we just delayed the inevitable," said Palmer.

Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner was a little more optimistic about his divisional race after an 11-1 rout of the Royals Wednesday night.

"Thursday night's game is more important now than it would have been if we'd lost," said Tanner cheerily. "I'd have to say it gives us great satisfaction, winning by a large margin."

Jaguars Take Win

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central rolled up a 7-2 victory over the Williamston High School girls' tennis team yesterday.

Williamston managed to win one match in the singles and another in the doubles.

Farmville returns to action this afternoon, hosting Rocky Mount, while Williamston is at home to Roanoke.

Summary: Jennifer Counterman (FC) defeated Lisa Roberson, 6-4, 7-5. Diana Gordon (FC) defeated Christy Rogerson, 6-3, 6-4. Courtney Lancaster (FC) defeated Susie Orlos, 6-1, 6-1. Margaret Yelverton (FC) defeated Terri Hopkins, 6-4, 7-5. Joanna Lilley (W) defeated Lynn May, 6-7, 6-2, 6-3. Margaret McLaughley (FC) defeated Lisa Roebuck, 7-6, 6-4, 6-4. Counterman-Yelverton (FC) defeated Orton-Cullipher, 8-1. Hopkins-Rogerson (W) defeated McLaughley-Cara Burnett, 8-2.

In the other American League games, the Texas Rangers shaded the California Angels 2-1, the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Chicago White Sox 6-3, the Boston Red Sox turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3 and the Cleveland Indians blanked the Detroit Tigers 3-0.

Palmer fired a four-hitter and became the major league's winningest pitcher in Baltimore's opening-game victory. Palmer snapped a tie with San Diego's Randy Jones, winning his 22nd game. Rudy May, 14-10, a former Yankee, won the second game for the Orioles with late relief help from Tippy Martinez, another ex-Yankee.

A's 11, Royals 1
Gene Tenace, Phil Garner and Joe Rudi each pounded home runs and Vida Blue cruised to his 17th victory as Oakland clubbed Kansas City. The Oakland victory narrowed Kansas City's advantage to six games in the West with 10 games remaining. The Royals, who had won five straight games, meet the A's four more times before the season ends.

Rangers 2, Angels 1
Gaylord Perry pitched a three-hitter and Gene Clines drove in the deciding run with an infield single in the seventh inning as Texas shaded California.

Twins 6, White Sox 3
Butch Wynegar belted two solo home runs and Rod Carew drove in three runs with a triple and a home run, leading Minnesota over Chicago. Bill Singer, 12-9, scattered seven hits before needing ninth-inning relief help from Bill Campbell, who picked up his 19th save. Red Sox 6, Brewers 3

Jim Rice collected four hits, including a pair of doubles, and Carlton Fisk hit a two-run homer, powering Boston over Milwaukee.

Green Anxious To Face Spartans

By The Associated Press The Wolfpack, with the 18-Bubba Green, a 6-5, 272-pound year-old Green hoping to change Michigan State's im-

Carolina State, dropped by pressions, will be trying to break a losing streak which has Michigan State last year as a high school student, when he was sifting through scholarship offers.

It was before he chose the Atlantic Coast Conference's N.C. State, but he remembers that the Michigan State players "weren't very impressed by N.C. State last year."

Now, with the Wolfpack getting ready to play host to the Spartans Saturday night in Raleigh, Green says "I'm just anxious to get out there on the field with them."

"I'm young, the entire team is young and the mistakes we've been making have been the result," says Green. But the Woodbine, N.J., native has accounted for 16 tackles in the two games which he started.

Coach Bo Rein, meanwhile, sizes up this week's opponent by saying "Michigan State is a typical Big Ten football team — they're big, they're physical and they come right at you."

Wilson In 7-2 Victory

WILSON — Wilson High School's girls' tennis team handed Rose High School's girls their first defeat of the young season yesterday, 7-2.

Rose managed to win one match in the singles and another in the doubles against the strong Lady Titan team.

The loss dropped the Rampettes to a 1-1 record. They play host to Washington this afternoon at Jaycee Park.

In exhibition matches, Wilson's Jennelle Booth downed Helen Whitehurst, 9-7, and Marsha Vickers beat Betsy Garrett, 8-2.

Summary:

Susan Hollar (W) defeated Serena Matney, 7-6, 6-1.
Mizzi Corbin (W) defeated Marly East, 6-3, 6-4.
Karen Jeffreys (R) defeated Ann Jenette, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.
Gina Gibbons (W) defeated Margaret McGlothlin, 6-3, 6-2.
Rhonda Winstead (W) defeated Cindy Talbert, 6-1, 6-0.
Lou Mackney (W) defeated Christy Dunn, 6-2, 6-3.
Hollars Gibbons (W) defeated Matney-East, 8-6.
McGlothlin C. Talbert (R) defeated Elizabeth Raspberry Rose Hester, 9-7.
Linda Lafayette Ann Dillard (W) defeated Caroline Bruton Pam Talbert, 8-0.

Wake Forest and Kansas are both expected to direct primarily ground attacks Saturday when the Deacons visit Kansas State. Starting at quarterback for the Deacons will be Mike McGlamry, who was a back-up last year when Wake Forest and Kansas State met for the first time, with Kansas State winning 17-16.

McGlamry has hit just under 50 per cent of his passes in Wake Forest's first three games this season.

In another percentage department, Maryland has taken an early-season ACC lead in statistics for some offensive and defensive categories. The Terps are averaging 421.5 yards per game in total offense and they have scored 55 points for a 27.5 average.

Woody's Ramblin's
BY WOODY PEELE

One might wonder what one has to do. After three straight victories over Atlantic Coast Conference teams, East Carolina University is still a "second-class citizen" in the eyes of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In today's edition of the News and Observer, N. C. State Athletic Director Willis Casey poo-pooes East Carolina's five wins in the ACC as coming "at a time when those teams were down."

Casey supposedly was putting down the idea that the Southern Conference was as good as the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the story quotes ECU coach Pat Dye as saying, "About the biggest difference between the Southern Conference and the ACC schools is in the minds of sportswriters."

Well, maybe not just in the minds of sportswriters. Perhaps a few athletic directors as well.

Casey also reeled off some "figures to support his statement."

These included that East Carolina scored its first win over an Atlantic Coast Conference team in 1963, defeating Wake Forest. "At that time, the Deacons were coming off an 0-10 season," the story said.

"They beat State in 1971, when the Pack was 1-5 and enroute to a 3-8 record.

"They defeated North Carolina in '75 when UNC was 2-4 and on the way to a 3-7-1 mark. They also crushed Virginia, which was 1-7 and headed for all 1-10 slate.

"And they stung the Pack again last Saturday, which was 0-2 going into the game."

Casey added that he was not trying to belittle anything East Carolina had done, saying the Pirates deserved the victories they've come up with, and adds that he hopes his own team won't follow the pattern of other ECU victims—and has a losing season.

It seems to me, however, that belittling East Carolina is exactly what he's doing—not attacking the statement about the Southern being on par with the ACC.

But we must look at it like this. So what if these teams didn't have good records. In every instance except for the Virginia and this year's State game, the ACC team was heavily favored to win. In every game except for these last two, the ACC team was favored.

But now, when it appears that the shoe might be on the other foot, the retreat into "well, we really weren't very good that year" starts to pop up.

Second class. That's what they'd have us folks down here believe.

Some people in the other parts of the state will swallow this without any problem. They believe in the total sanctity of the "Big Four" and still talk about ECTC in joking tones.

But let'em lose to little ECTC and it's no joke. They start looking for excuses. It's just sour grapes, in our opinion.

We're not going to predict anything from here on out. It may never happen. But the outcome of the East Carolina-North Carolina game will be watched with interest.

If UNC wins, I can tell you now, all we'll hear is "Well, see, I told you so. They're not so good after all. State's just not the team they used to be."

But what are they doing to say if East Carolina should win?

Pirates Not Giving Up Hope

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The numbers are against them, and those numbers are getting worse each day. But the Pittsburgh Pirates are not yet ready to throw in the towel.

"Maybe we'll have to win our last 10 in a row and the Phillies will have to lose 10," said Pirates outfielder Al Oliver. "It's not logical, but it's still possible."

Each day, however, the possibility grows more and more remote. The Pirates took another step towards elimination Wednesday when they dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker to the Chicago Cubs on a run-scoring single by Joe Wallis in the ninth inning.

That loss, coupled with Philadelphia's 9-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, sank the Pirates six full games behind Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phils have 12 games remaining, the Pirates just 10.

Team leader Willie Stargell agreed, however, that there's no point to the Pirates rolling over and playing dead.

"We've just got to keep playing, that's all," said Stargell. "We've come too far for me to say anything else. Our attitude just can't change. No matter what the outcome, we can't say we lost because we didn't put forth an effort."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the San Francisco Giants 3-1, the Cincinnati Reds edged the San Diego Padres 4-3, the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 4-2 and the Houston Astros defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-2.

The Pirates have lost seven of their last 11 games, including three of their last four — each in heartstopping fashion. On Monday, Mets rookie Lee Mazzilli hit a two-run homer with two-out in the ninth to beat Pittsburgh 5-4. They lost the second half of a double-header Tuesday 2-1 to Chicago on a two-out single in the 13th inning.

And Wednesday it was Joe Wallis' single off relief pitcher Kent Tekulve which drove home Jerry Tabb second for a 4-3 decision. Tabb, a pinch-hitter, had walked to start the ninth and taken second on a sacrifice. After Rick Monday was intentionally walked, Wallis delivered his game-winning hit on a 3-1 count.

Mets 4, Expos 2
Jon Matlack, 16-9, scattered eight hits and got last-out relief help from Skip Lockwood against Montreal. Veteran second baseman Felix Millan drove in two runs for the Mets.

Astros 5, Braves 2
Bob Watson and Jose Cruz drove in two runs apiece for the Astros, who have won three of their last four games in their bid to clinch third place in the NL West.

Plans Tourney For Boxing

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You knew this was going to be a big announcement when Howard Cosell walked into the room.

But then, promoter Don King deals only in big announcements.

King summoned Cosell and a few other friends and associates, including his bankers, for a less-than-intimate brunch at the posh 21 Club Wednesday to announce his latest creation, the United States Boxing Tournament of Champions.

He used old films of some of the classic fights of the 1940s and 50s involving boxing greats like Jake LaMotta, Tony Zale, Sugar Ray Robinson, Marcel Cerdan and others to recall the sport's glory days. Then he explained his plan for resurrecting that glory.

Throwing adjectives as if they were jabs and multi-syllable words around like uppercuts, King described his plans for the tournament to crown American champions in every weight classification.

"This is a monumental moment for boxing," he said. "This tournament will revitalize boxing. It will contribute something meaningful and constructive to (the country's) prosperity and longevity."

The tournament, which begins in January, will be televised by ABC, which explains Cosell's interest. The purses will total over $1 million, which explains the bankers' interest.

"They will prevent any 'trickery' with the money," explained King.

The matchups of eight fighters in each weight division for the single elimination tournament will be arranged according to ratings devised by Ring Magazine. And the whole affair will be under the general direction of James A. Farley, Jr., president of the New York State Athletic Commission.

King, who described everyone involved in the venture as having "impeccable integrity," said the tournament would restore enthusiasm for boxing's lighter weight divisions. "Most Americans do not even know the champions of the lighter weight classes," said King. "That's because all the reigning champions reside outside of the United States."

The tournament would produce winners in each of eight classes ranging from featherweights to heavyweights. By winning their divisions in King's tournament, they would be recognized as American champions and challenge for the world titles.

Phils 9, Cards 4
Philadelphia erupted for eight runs in the eighth inning to beat St. Louis. Dick Allen's two-run single off Cards relief ace Al Hrabosky snapped a 4-4 tie, then Bob Boone added a two-run single later in the big eighth-inning outburst.

Dodgers 3, Giants 1
Right-hander Don Sutton became a 20-game winner for the first time in his career when he stopped the Giants on six hits to raise his record to 20-9. Sutton, who compiled 19-9 records in 1972 and 1974, struck out five and walked four in posting his eighth straight victory.

Reds 4, Padres 3
Cincinnati became the first team in National League history to have seven pitchers post 10 or more victories in one season when Don Gullett raised his record to 10-3 by beating the Padres.

Women Top Wilson, 9-0
Greenville's East Carolina Tennis Association women's team rolled to a 9-0 victory over Wilson yesterday.

Greenville had little trouble in the win, never being extended to a second set. Wilson never won more than four games in a single set.

Conley In 2-1 Victory

HOLLYWOOD—D. H. Conley rallied in the first game to take a victory, then split the last two and took a 2-1 win over Greene Central in volleyball yesterday.

Conley won the first contest, 15-12, while the Ewes came up with the second game, 16-5. Conley then rallied for a 15-12 win in the final game to take the win.

Trailing 12-2 in the first game, the Valkyries got a comeback going when Alice Coston served up eight straight points. That cut the lead to 12-10.

Then, after getting the serve back without losing a point, Conley's Annie Hardy served up five more points to give the Valkyries the win.

Greene Central had a string of eight points in the second game. Conley came back to take the final game with Pam Manning steaking the Valkyries to a 10-6 lead on seven straight points. Greene Central never caught up after that.

In a junior varsity match, Conley also won, 2-1. Greene Central took the first match, 15-5, while Conley came back with a pair 15-10 wins to take it.

Conley is now 2-1 overall while Greene Central is 0-3.

House Committee Ends Hearings On Baseball

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sports committee has held its final hearing with the panel's leaders saying no decision has been made on whether to recommend that baseball be subjected to the nation's antitrust laws as are the other sports.

Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., and the vice chairman, Frank Horton, R-N.Y., said the committee will meet next Wednesday to begin the formulation of any recommendations for its report to Congress, which will be made in January.

Sisk and Horton talked to newsmen Wednesday after hearing Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, recommend that Congress strip baseball of its special immunity from the antimonopoly laws.

Miller said there could be a major labor confrontation in baseball when the current collective bargaining agreement expires in three years if the sport is permitted to keep its immunity from the antitrust laws.

He said the owners might try to unilaterally reverse the gains made by the union because they know they could not be sued in court.

Sisk said the hearings held by the Select House Committee on Professional Sports have "made me wonder if any sport should enjoy an immunity to the antitrust laws. The immunity may have been used as a prop — a prop that is not necessarily needed."

Sisk said informal discussions with others of the 13-member committee indicated to him that some want to take away baseball's immunity while at least one "strongly felt we

Episcopal Church Is Opposed To Limiting Abortion Choice

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Episcopal Church has declared its "unequivocal opposition" to any legislation that would restrict individual choice about abortion.

At the same time, the church condemned "abortions for convenience" as a means of birth control.

The action, taken Wednesday at the church's governing convention, came at a time when several groups, including Roman Catholic bishops and some Protestants, are pressing for a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion.

The question also has become a political campaign issue, with President Ford, an Episcopalian, favoring an amendment allowing states to regulate abortion. Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, a Southern Baptist, has declined to support such an amendment.

The Episcopal convention declared it was against any legislation, federal or state, that would "abridge or deny the right of individuals" to make their own "informed decisions" about abortion.

Reproduction is a "gift of the power of God," and decisions about it should take into account moral and ethical dimensions, the church said.

But it said that termination of pregnancy is permissible when the woman's physical or mental health is threatened seriously, when it results from rape or incest or when indications are the child would be badly deformed.

Most major Protestant denominations take similar positions.

Representatives of the 3 million-member Episcopal Church, which combines both Protestant and Catholic elements, took their action as the 13-day triennial convention neared an end today.

The bishops acted on the matter in concurrence with earlier action by the other branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the lay-clergy House of Deputies.

In that branch, the Dallas, Tex., diocese had pressed unsuccessfully for a blanket condemnation of abortion as the "killing of a life," and advocating federal law to protect "the right to live of the unborn human being from arbitrary assault and destruction."

The delegates voted this down by a heavy majority.

After lengthy debate, the delegates also adopted a resolution saying homosexuals are "entitled to equal protection of the laws with all other citizens." But they turned down resolutions that would have opposed any laws regulating private sexual conduct between consenting adults.

Earlier, the bishops reversed themselves under pressure of some colleagues and approved a more lenient way of regularizing the priesthood of 15 women ordained before it was authorized.

The turnabout came after 12 of the women's bishops announced they would not abide by the tougher course prescribed earlier and which insisted on further "conditional ordination" of the 15.

After voting to reconsider their previous action, the bishops approved an option that allows simply for public ceremonies affirming the priesthood of the women ordained irregularly in 1974 and 1975.

Ordination of women priests was approved at the convention here.

Toastmasters Have Visitors

The first of two membership drive meetings was held Wednesday at the Greenville Chapter of Toastmaster's International. Nine prospective members attended.

Mary Murrell was voted the best speaker of the evening and Joe Sherwood was the Toastmaster for the meeting.

The next meeting will be held at Sambo's Restaurant Wednesday, October 13 at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited. For further information call Bob Muzzarelli at 758-5621.

Several Accidents Are Reported Here

One driver was injured and $5,100 in damages resulted from several city traffic accidents yesterday and this morning, according to the Greenville Police Dept.

Newton Clemmon, 1003 Van Nortwick St., was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital after the car he was driving collided with that driven by Owen Fimmel Dudley Jr., 211 S. Library St., at N. Greene and Dudley Streets about 11:20 last night. Clemmon was also charged with a safe movement violation. Damages were $900 to the Dudley car and $700 to the Clemmon auto.

A three-vehicle collision occurred yesterday morning on N. Memorial Drive, 600 feet north of W. Third Street, involving cars driven by Ronnie Carson Evans, Rt. 1, Chocowinity, and Dennis Gordon Whitehurst, 202 S. Sylvan Dr., and a van driven by Gerald Wayne Creech, Rt. 1, Greenville. Whitehurst was cited for following too close. Damages were $200 to the Evans auto, $275 to the Creech van and $950 to the Whitehurst vehicle.

A truck operated by Joe Brinson Jr. of Conetoe and a car driven by Hilda Routledge Brunelle, Rt. 2, Washington, collided about 5:30 p.m. yesterday at N. Greene Street and Mumford Road. Damages were $350 to the Brinson vehicle and $500 to the Brunelle auto.

Greenville Boulevard, 600 feet west of E. Redbanks Rd., was the site of a mishap at 12:30 p.m. involving cars driven by Linda Martin Gurganus, 724 Hooker Rd., and John Frank Neely of Raleigh. Neely was cited for a safe movement violation. Damages were $400 to the Gurganus auto and $300 to the Neely auto.

An accident about 2:15 this morning in the Old London Inn parking lot, Memorial Drive, did $150 damage to the car driven by Vera Holloman Chase of Winterville and $125 to a parked car owned by Vickie Lynn Smith and James Calvin Darden, of Greenville. Mrs. Chase was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

A hit-and-run accident yesterday evening on Spruce Street, 25 feet south of Watauga Ave., did $250 damage to the parked truck owned by Frances Burton Werner, 1600 Spruce St. Apt. D, and an unknown amount of damage to the vehicle owned by Phebie Mills Dunn of Winterville.

Farmville Mart Demand Strong

FARMVILLE—Due to a shortage of quality tobacco demand was strong by all buying companies on the Farmville Market Wednesday, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"Prices on poor and medium grades have been steady. Leaf and smoking leaf accounted for 80 per cent of yesterday's sales," Williams said.

The Farmville Market sold 681,258 pounds Wednesday for $847,949 for an average of $124.47 per 100 pounds. Stabilization accounted for only a half per cent of the gross sales. To date the market has sold 19,936,715 pounds for $22,626,529 for an average of $113.49 per 100 pounds as compared to $97.76, last year's average on the same sale day.

Hunt, Flaherty Trade Blows

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's gubernatorial candidates are on the attack.

Democrat Jim Hunt has criticized the Republican administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser. Republican David Flaherty, a secretary of human resources in the Holshouser administration, has attacked Hunt's record as lieutenant governor.

In remarks prepared for a 9 a.m. news conference in Charlotte, Flaherty said a major issue in the campaign is leadership.

"I have been running on my record of leadership," he said, citing his business experience and his service state senator and secretary of human resources.

Flaherty's prepared remarks quoted from newspaper editorials that complained that the 1975 General Assembly generally performed poorly. Only a few of the editorials cited mentioned Hunt by name.

In a speech Wednesday night to local officials who are members of the Triangle J Council of Governments meeting in Raleigh, Hunt said state and local governments have not worked together well in the last four years.

"The state has not been a good partner with local governments," Hunt said, adding, "I think we need a new partnership. State government must open its doors to you. The state has to learn to work with you, not try to dictate to you."

Under the Holshouser administration, Hunt said, in some cases the state has kept federal money rather than passing it along to local government, that state law and order efforts have bogged down in paperwork and state officials have not worked well with councils of government in making decisions.

"I want you to know that in a Jim Hunt administration, state government will be a partner, not a master, to local government," he said.

Citing water shortages in some parts of the state such as Raleigh and Chapel Hill, Hunt said the Holshouser administration "has ingored the agency that is supposed to help us meet our water supply needs. To me, that just symbolizes the attitude of the current administration and bureaucracy toward local government. If people ever wonder what I mean when I talk about unresponsive government, this is it. You are victims of it."

KEEPING UP WITH HEAVY TRADING — So hectic was trading at the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday that men on the floor had time only to stuff down sandwiches. The market continued to gain, piling on Tuesday's exuberant rally that carried the Dow Jones average up 20.28 to a new 3 1/2 year high. (AP Wirephoto)

Child Run Over By A Fireman

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Seven-year-old Louis Russell Fox Jr., was run over and killed Wednesday by a volunteer fireman driving to a trailer fire.

The boy had been waiting for a school bus. The previous day he had attended a traffic safety program at school which urged pupils to be careful while waiting for buses.

Trooper John Finney said the car was driven by Thomas E. McCarthy Jr., 38, of Gastonia, and had a flashing blue light. The trooper said the boy ran in front of the car, and the driver "was in no way negligent." The accident occurred in southwest Gaston County, six miles from Gastonia.

Sees Little Can Be Done To Deter Bird Swarms

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Millions of blackbirds will be invading the Southeast again this year and little can be done to stop them, says a scientist who has studied the problem for 30 years.

Over the years, officials say, the birds have destroyed million of dollars worth of crops and have spread a lung disease, histoplasmosis, to humans.

Researchers say they have been unable to find a way to either effectively kill the birds in large numbers or prevent them from returning to their annual roosts.

"There's no immediate cure and any lasting solution may be 10 years down the pike," said Dr. Burt Monroe, chairman of the University of Louisville biology department.

Monroe, recognized by researchers as a leading authority on blackbirds, made his comments in an interview following a seminar here Tuesday.

Monroe said there will be about 230 million blackbirds invading the Southeast in late fall and early winter. He said there was about that many last year.

Of that number, he said, 45 million will head for Tennessee, where large roosts are near Milan, Chapel Hill and Ft. Campbell, Ky.

He said use of the chemical detergent, Tergitol, has had only limited success throughout the country because the weather conditions must be just right in order for the chemical to work.

"The weather limitations make the use of Tergitol practical only in February or March, so the relief is only short term," Monroe said. "In addition, even with the use of Tergitol, the birds more than likely will return to the same roosts next year."

He said Tergitol was used to kill 4 million blackbirds in 1975 in Tennessee and Kentucky. However, the same chemical killed only 2 million birds last year.

"The cheapest and most permanent cure is to destroy the birds' roosting place," Monroe said. "This can be done by cutting down part of the trees in the areas where they roost."

The average size of a roost ranges from 1 million to 5 million blackbirds, although some roosts are larger, officials say. One in Arkansas has been estimated at 40 million and one in Missouri has about 35 million.

In all, more than 700 roosts are known to officials, the largest concentrations in the Southeast, from East Texas to the Carolinas, officials say. At least 125 of the roosts have a minimum of 1 million birds each.

Historic Dempsey-Tunney Fight Half-Century Ago

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — "He was a very impressive fighter, quick and smart, but I was rusty. I felt as if I had never been in the ring before." — Jack Dempsey.

"I knew he was a murderous puncher, a killer in the ring. But I also knew I had trained hard for the fight. I was ready. I was confident I would win." — Gene Tunney.

It was 50 years ago today that these two boxers squared off in what was destined to become one of the most memorable heavyweight fights of all time, the first Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia on Sept. 23, 1926. The two old warriors recall almost every detail as if it were yesterday.

If there was any bitterness at the time, it has evaporated over the years.

"I always have had the greatest admiration for Dempsey, as a fighter and as a man," says Tunney, 78, a semi-retired millionaire who lives on a palatial estate in Stamford, Conn., and spends one day a week in his 37th-floor office on Park Avenue.

"Gene was a far better boxer than I expected. He has been a credit to the game," says Dempsey, the former Broadway restaurateur. Still an imposing figure at age 81, Dempsey is recovering from a mild stroke and busy writing his memoirs — "The Name's Dempsey" — at his Manhattan home.

Although both call New York home, they are rarely seen together. Just as their fighting techniques were strikingly dissimilar, so are their lifestyles.

The beetle-browed Dempsey still has the rough edges of the onetime miner from Manassa, Colo., who hopped on freight cars and fought for pocket change in the back rooms of Western saloons. Tunney, the former stenographer and Marine, married an heiress, joined high society and became renowned for his penchant for heavy reading. They dubbed him "Gentleman Gene."

The first Dempsey-Tunney fight, in Philadelphia's Sesqui-centennial Stadium, not only ended in an upset but divided a nation in its loyalties. Youngsters scrapped on street corners and sons argued with fathers over the respective merits of the brawler, Dempsey, and the scientific boxer, Tunney.

The official attendance was 120,757. The gross was $1,895,733 of which Dempsey, the beaten champion, received $717,000 and Tunney $200,000.

Tex Rickard was the promoter. He was prodded into making the match by a restless, cash-hungry Dempsey, who had been virtually inactive since knocking out Luis Firpo in 1923, and by the pressure from backers of the aspiring Marine.

The sky was overcast and a light rain began falling when the two fighters entered the outdoor ring. Dempsey checked in at 190 pounds, Tunney at 185½.

Nat Fleischer, late editor of Ring Magazine, remembered later that Dempsey was tense while the younger challenger looked cool as an ice cube.

"I wasn't a bit nervous," Tunney said recently over lunch at the New York Athletic Club, where he swims daily. "I had heard about Dempsey's lack of training. I was certain I could take him."

Dempsey admitted that he entered the fight with some reservations. "He looked pretty lean and sharp," Dempsey recalled. "I still thought I had too much punch for him. I felt if I could catch him, I could beat him."

The trouble was that Dempsey never cornered the quick, superbly conditioned challenger.

James P. Dawson of the New York Times wrote of the fight:

"He (Tunney) was complete master, from first bell to the last. He outthought and outboxed Dempsey at every turn. Where it had been expected that Tunney would break and run before the vicious attack of Dempsey, he not only failed to back up but he went forward all the time with the instinct of the true leatherneck and hammered Dempsey in a driving attack which brooked no restraining effort on the part of the champion."

Fleischer said that Dempsey was only a shell of the vicious, relentless slugger who had demolished big Jess Willard in three rounds, crushed Georges Carpenter in four and stopped Firpo in two prior to his three-year period of inactivity.

"Gene went into the bout a 4-1 underdog but he made Dempsey look like a rank outsider," Fleischer wrote. "With the exception of two rounds, Gene was the master of the situation. In several rounds, he made Dempsey look foolish."

Dempsey showed only brief spurts of his old form. In the fourth round, he pounced on Tunney at the bell and sent him reeling into the ropes with a left hook. Later he staggered Gene with a right but the challenger took the punches and snapped back. Tunney was landing punches when the round ended.

There were no knockdowns. Once the arm-flailing Dempsey almost slipped on the wet canvas when Tunney side-stepped. Tunney opened a gash over Dempsey's right eye in the fourth. In the sixth a cut opened over Tunney's right eye when the two butted heads.

Both judges agreed Tunney was winner by a 10-round decision, negating the necessity for the referee, Pop O'Brien, to cast a vote. It marked the first passing of the heavyweight title on a decision.

The ring in which they fought was purchased by Briggs Cunningham, a wealthy sportsman, and donated to Hill School in Pottstown, Pa.

A year later, on Sept. 22, 1927, in Chicago, Tunney was to repeat his victory in the famed "long count" fight, then retire with the words, "Boxing can offer me nothing further that I desire."

Dempsey continued fighting until 1940 when, at the age of 45, he hung it up. But the "Manassa Mauler" remained a ring legend.

Unconvinced On Aerosols

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C., a professor of chemistry at Davidson College until he was elected to Congress four years ago, says more study is needed before aerosol sprays are banned as diminishing the earth's ozone shield.

The question of whether fluorocarbons from aerosol sprays diminish the shield enough to expose human beings to hazardous doses of cancer-causing ultraviolet light came up in connection with air-quality legislation.

Martin said in a recent interview that an anticipation of an effort in the House to ban aerosol sprays, he read "a stack about a foot and a half thick of reports and journals on ozone chemistry."

He concluded that fluorocarbons, drifting into the stratosphere, "can initiate a reaction that decomposes ozone." But he wasn't convinced that this calls for a ban on aerosol sprays.

Instead, he agrees with legislation passed by the House for two more years of study before considering such a ban.

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Chapman United Methodist Church will be celebrating its annual homecoming activities Sunday.

The pastor, Rev. Carson Tyson, will be the speaker for the morning service scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. Dinner will be served on the church grounds. Following this will be an old-fashioned gospel sing at 1:30 p.m.

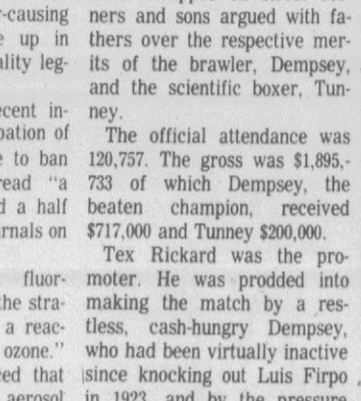

Revival services begin Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. and continue through Thursday night, Sept. 30. There will be special singing each night. The public is invited.

Chapman United Methodist Church is located between Chapman and Dudley's Cross Roads, on 43.

Ford, Carter To Cover Familiar Ground In Debate

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
President Ford and Jimmy

Carter are sure to cover some familiar ground in their debate tonight on domestic and economic issues. Here is a brief guide to what the candidates already have said on some of the questions involved:

ABORTION: Both men personally oppose abortion. Carter also says he does not favor "a constitutional amendment which would prohibit all abortions, nor one that would give states local options to ban abortions." Ford opposes a national ban on abortion, but supports "an amendment which would permit each state, or the voters in each state, to make the decision on that state's abortion policy."

AMNESTY: Carter says, "... I am going to issue a blanket pardon for all those who outside our country or in this country, who did not serve in the armed forces. I am going to issue a pardon, not an amnesty." Ford set up a program in 1974 offering conditional pardons to draft evaders. GOP Vice Presidential nominee Robert Dole says: "Let there be no confusion as to President Ford's position on this issue. It is unequivocal ... — no blanket pardon, no blanket amnesty, no blanket clemency."

BUSING: Both men oppose forced busing. Carter says he will support the rulings of the federal courts, however, and does not believe the subject should be "reopened with a constitutional amendment." Ford says "busing as a remedy sought to be the last resort and

... limited in scope to correcting the effects of previous constitutional violations." He sent legislation to Congress to limit busing.

EDUCATION: Carter urges increased federal aid for public schools and allowing revenue-sharing funds to be used for education. Ford sent Congress a plan to consolidate federal aid for elementary and secondary schools and has said he will try to find a way to use the tax system to help families "who choose to send their children to nonpublic schools." He also says, "No student should be denied access to a post-secondary education because of financial barriers."

ENERGY: Carter has urged increased emphasis on solar power and coal and says, "U.S. dependence on nuclear power should be kept to the minimum necessary ... Atomic power itself should be relegated to the last priority as far as energy sources are concerned." Ford ordered a concerted review of U.S. nuclear policy. He supports development of nuclear energy and has proposed an Energy Independence Authority to provide $100 billion in loan guarantees to encourage investment in energy projects and speed up nuclear production.

FARM POLICY: Carter and Ford say they are against embargoes on foreign grain shipments except in extraordinary circumstances, such as a shortage at home. Carter told a crowd in Des Moines, Iowa: "Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products." He said any embargo "would have to be an extreme case." Ford, who imposed a temporary embargo in 1975, said in accepting the presidential nomination, "We will never use the bounty of America's farmers as a pawn in international diplomacy. No embargoes!"

HEALTH INSURANCE: Carter urges "a national health insurance program, financed by general-tax revenues and employer-employee shared payroll taxes which is universal and mandatory." He says the added annual federal expenditure might be $10 billion, but has not provided specific details. Ford opposes an all-inclusive national health insurance, but has proposed a catastrophic illness plan to cover everyone now covered by Medicare. No one over 64 would pay more than $500 a year for covered hospital or nursing home care or more than $250 a year for doctor bills.

HOUSING: Carter says, "A direct subsidy of new housing units is essential." He also says that the $10 billion to $11 billion in tax breaks now provided to homeowners represents about the right level "of encouragement for home construction and home ownership," but he is not sure whether he will retain those breaks in their present form or in some new program. Ford said last week that he would recommend reduced down payments on lower and medium-priced homes to encourage home ownership and would order the Department of Housing and Urban Development to expedite implementation of a new program under which mortgage payments are lower during the early years of home ownership and rise gradually with family income.

INFLATION: Carter says he believes inflation — now over 6 per cent — can be cut to 3 or 4 per cent by 1979 or 1980 by comprehensive planning, controlled budgets and businesslike management of government. He says, "I'm against across-the-board permanent wage and price controls, but I do favor standby controls ..." Ford says, "My first objective is to have sound economic growth without inflation." He opposes wage and price controls, but adds, "We do have a wage-price council that ... on several occasions has been helpful in trying to get a moderation of a price increase."

There will be no new programs implemented under my administration unless we can be sure that the cost is compatible with my goal of having a balanced budget ... Ford proposed a $394 billion spending ceiling for fiscal 1977 — almost $20 billion below that approved by Congress. Ford also says, "We will submit in the fiscal year 1979 a balanced budget."

TAXES: Carter promises a comprehensive reform plan by the first part of 1978. He says he cannot provide specifics now, but has four principles: "Treat all income the same ... tax income only once ... a progressive tax rate ... greatly simplify the whole system." He says his aim is to increase taxes for those earning higher incomes and decrease taxes for those in lower and middle-income brackets. When pressed in an AP interview for a definition of what he meant by higher, Carter said: "I don't know. I would take the mean or median level of income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower." He said repeatedly that he did not know where the tax burden would shift, but Republicans jumped on the "median income" statement, claiming Carter would raise taxes for everyone earning more than the median, now around $13,000 a year. A Carter aide said later that families earning up to $25,000 would be considered middle income. Ford says his tax objectives "are threefold — greater equity, greater simplification, and lower taxes." He says benefits should be "directed toward middle and lower income employment." "But," he says, "the federal government can create conditions and incentives for private industry to make more and more jobs." He says he expects unemployment to fall below 7 per cent this year and 6 per cent next year. Ford's goal is 2½ million new jobs a year. That would take care of the 2 million who normally join the labor force every year and would reduce unemployment by 500,000.

REORGANIZATION: Carter says, "I believe the present 1,900 federal departments can be reduced to no more than 200 with a great savings in tax money and a streamlining of services to our people." He has not said which agencies will be eliminated. Ford also condemns the size of government bureaucracy and urges cutbacks. The President Ford Committee says that during the first two years of the Ford administration, the number of federal forms that have to be filled out by individuals at all levels was cut by about 12 per cent.

SPENDING: Carter says, "We can attain a balanced budget with full employment by 1979..." He urges zero-based budgeting, with government programs required to justify all expenditures annually. He says, "The major priority of the next administration has got to be unemployment." He supports the Humphrey-Hawkins bill aimed at reducing adult unemployment to 3 per cent by 1980, but says he prefers job creation in the private rather than the public sector. Ford also stresses private employment. "But," he says, "the federal government can create conditions and incentives for private industry to make more and more jobs." He says he expects unemployment to fall below 7 per cent this year and 6 per cent next year. Ford's goal is 2½ million new jobs a year. That would take care of the 2 million who normally join the labor force every year and would reduce unemployment by 500,000.

URBAN AFFAIRS: Carter says many costs, including welfare, should be shifted from local governments. He urged a Federal Municipalities Securities Corporation to help cities market their bonds. Ford proposed consolidating some government grant programs to give cities greater leeway in spending. He told the U.S. Conference of Mayors and League of Cities: "The success of the community block grant program, like the success of the general revenue sharing program, points to one central fact: you know what to do to improve your cities and you know how to do it ... I have faith in you..."

More Firms Aid In Relocation

CHICAGO (UPI) — More and more corporations are offering to pay for the relocation of newly-hired executives who must sell their present homes and buy new ones, says Herbert L. Seeger, a relocation authority.

Seeger is vice president of Employee Transfer Corp., which is retained by corporations to buy the homes of transferred employees and help them find new ones. He described this practice as "a new and enlightened approach in competitive hiring practices."

Seeger said some corporation executives say relocation help for new employees helps them obtain the personnel they want. In many cases it clinches the deal.

Boost Premium Ice Cream Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — Increasing demand for natural flavors in ice cream is boosting sales of premium ice cream, says Bob Krebs, editor of American Dairy Review, a trade magazine. Krebs said per capita consumption of ice cream rose last year to 19 pounds, an increase of 1.2 pounds over the previous year. He attributed the increase to rising prices for cakes and other baked goods and to ice cream's nutritional advantages.

MANEUVER VICTIMS — Pedestrians display a good mood as they are escorted at gun point by a West German riot policeman during anti-terrorist exercises near Diez, West Germany. The maneuvers are based on assumption that Baader-Meinhof terrorists had attacked a nearby communications tower in support of foreign invaders. The "attackers" and some civilians were rounded up during the exercise. (AP Wirephoto)

Births Continue Outpace Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Births and deaths both declined last year from the year before, but births still outnumber deaths by a wide margin, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. It says government estimates show the U.S. birth rate last year was 14.8 per 1,000 population, while the death rate was 9.0 per cent.

Brazil's Poor Know Too Well Facts Of Inflation

By ROBERT E. SULLIVAN
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — "The man is here to talk about inflation," said the slum dweller by way of introduction to a washerwoman standing over a load of sheets. "You know about inflation don't you?"

The woman's eyes burned mad for a second, then widened with a grin that burst into a guffaw.

Yes, she knew about inflation. The washerwoman, Silvia de Santos, knows nothing of high finances or the monetary-correction policy that helped build the "Brazilian miracle," but she knows about the food-correction policy she uses at home: less meat, more rice.

Although the present Brazilian government has begun to loosen up a bit on the squeeze on the lower classes that helped generate the profits to reinvest in that "miracle," the Brazilian poor still have a long way to go to share in it.

Some 43 per cent of the country's workers receive the official minimum salary of about $70 a month or less.

Although the government claims that increases in the official minimum salary have been greater than inflation in the past two years, the Inter-union Department of Studies and Statistics (DIEE) last week reported that the minimum-salary-man-working hours necessary to buy the foods for a proper diet more than doubled between 1965 — the year after the military took over the government of Brazil — and last March.

Theoretically, according to the DIEE it has become virtually impossible for a man on a minimum salary to feed a family at the standards set down as "basic minimum rationing" by the government itself in 1938.

According to the latest available DIEE statistics, he would have to work 182.11 hours a month just to feed himself properly — 364.22 hours for himself and a spouse. The study did not include possible children, rent, transportation, schooling or any other expenses.

In practice, the poor Brazilian families cut corners, eat less meat, more rice, and form together in family units where income is pooled to cover expenses.

"I don't know what I spend per month on food," Mrs. Santos said. "I do know that I make about 200 cruzeiros ($18.25) a month taking in washing and when I get it, it goes."

When her husband died Mrs. Santos began taking in washing to augment her widow's pension and the salaries her two grown sons bring home to feed the family of six.

She scrubs the laundry in a basin out back of her three-room brick-and-tile shack in the Saigueiro slum perched on a hill overlooking a lower middle class residential section.

A clothesline connects an old wall and a tree, and the sheets dry in the breeze that sweeps down the hill through the other shacks.

She said she tries to make up a monthly budget but "by payday we owe so many people it just goes away and we have to live piecemeal, shopping when we have or borrow money."

A few shacks further up the hill, Mrs. Ilery Maltos da Silva is a little better off. With a husband, two sons and a daughter, all working and contributing to the support of the family of nine, she does not have to take in washing. And if she can find time from chores, she can watch the afternoon soap operas on the family television.

"We are better off this year than last year by far," Mrs. Maltos said. "Because this year we have two more people working, one son and a daughter."

The government's social security program would pay any medical bills should one of the family become ill. But it would not pay the full salary and the family income is largely dependent on family health.

Fifteen-year-old Eduardo wide open spaces — blue skies, empty beaches, a lone parachuter falling in a clear sky, a single balloon rising above an endless horizon.

He works on them in the room he shares with two brothers in a government project for the poor. His father, Rubin Vasconcellos dropped the second of his two office-cleaning jobs two years ago when his wife died and now supports his six children on the one salary.

"My monthly salary now is 1,648 cruzeiros ($150.50)," he said recently. "My monthly expenses are the same."

marriage or the birth of a child.

"Today it's a little better than 10 years ago," says Murakami. "Back then they used to cut women off at the age of 30. But as the situation for women has improved, I've been getting older, and time finally caught up with me at 39."

She goes on, "Men don't give women jobs as human beings in broadcasting. They think a woman announcer has to be cute, young and charming. But an announcer must also conduct interviews; the job requires more than cuteness."

"The time they asked me to transfer was when a new, young woman announcer had just been hired," she says. "They wanted to get rid of one of the older ones."

There are nine women announcers at Nippon Television, according to Murakami. Three are between the ages of 20 and 30, three between 30 and 35 and three between 35 and 40. She says they mostly report women's news and weather and act as assistant announcers to the company's 16 male announcers.

The sight of a male newscaster flanked by a smiling woman announcer who punctuates his monologue with an occasional "hai" (yes) or "a so desuka" (is that so) is common on Japanese television.

Married and the mother of a 12-year-old daughter, Murakami says the birth of her child marked a turning point in her career at Nippon Television.

"Before I had my child I was assigned to large-budget, national programs. After my baby was born they assigned me to local, low-budget programs about cooking, child care, fashion. Actually, I didn't mind this because on local programs you have to put the whole program together yourself — planning, scriptwriting, everything — which is much more fun."

Now she reports to work every day, waiting for an assignment.

"It's the same problem in all the professions," she says. "Japanese men really believe women are inferior, and so they shouldn't do important jobs."

Memorial Service Is Held By BPW

The Greenville Business and Professional Woman's Club met at the Ramada Inn last Thursday night. A memorial service was held for the late Margret Riddick. Leading in the tribute was Annie Turner, followed with the Pledge of Allegiance using the Flag presented by the State BPW Convention in Mrs. Riddick's honor.

Special guests for this program was her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Wright.

Arlene Mallison reported on the plans for the observance of National Business Woman's Week, Oct. 17-23. Members of BPW will worship together Oct. 17 in the 11 o'clock service at Hollywood Presbyterian Church. During the week members will meet for breakfast, lunch, or dinner with those of the club acting as hosts. An open house will be held Oct. 17 from three to five at the home of Estella Dunbar, Farmville, for members and guests.

Miss Julia Wilson and Mrs. Peggy Sawyer announced plans for the bazaar to be held Nov. 13 at the Recreation Department.

The program was given by Mary Daughtry, who discussed "Taxes, how they affect you!" The meeting was adjourned by Ruth Scott, president leading in the Club Collet.

Ice Cream 'Barometer'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The condition of ice cream is a good barometer of home freezer temperatures, according to the consumer education program of Cornell University. If the frozen dessert is easy to spoon after a container of it has been in the freezer a few hours, freezer temperature probably is in the 20s. If it is hard to spoon, the range probably is 10 to 20 degrees. If it is hard and brick-like when a spoon is bounced on it, the freezer temperature probably is about zero degrees.

Jobs Awaiting Most Seniors

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Eighty-eight per cent of Lehigh University's senior class of 1976 either have jobs or are going to graduate school or into military service or have other plans, according to the university placement service.

Placement director Eugene R. Seeloff said a late summer surge occurred in employer requests for Lehigh seniors, especially engineering graduates.

WE ALSO INCLUDE THE ORIGINAL
TARHEEL TOYOTA NEW CAR GUARANTEE
100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS

Every car dealer in the country is talking "dependability" these days. At Tarheel Toyota we've decided to do something about it. A new car warranty that's longer than any other warranty in the world. (exclusively for Tarheel Toyota) Bill Draper can tell you why: "Nobody else in the world has a car like this. I've been in the factory in Japan, I've seen how the Toyota is made, the quality of the workmanship, the integrity and the craftsmanship that go into this car. I know the Toyota inside and out."

Until now most new car warranties haven't been much more than discounts on the car repairs you knew you'd need. Our warranty is our guarantee of faith in the Toyota.

"Nobody else in the world can put this kind of warranty on their car. My faith and my knowledge and experience with Toyota tell me I can do it. Toyota builds an automobile to last."

Our knowledge of the Toyota comes from research, from first hand information from our service department and from a great number of satisfied Toyota customers. For 100,000 miles or 3 years from the day you purchase your new Toyota, we guarantee to replace or repair your motor, transmission and rear end, if they fail under normal driving conditions.

We'll ask you to keep the vehicle properly maintained and we'll ask that you bring it back to Tarheel Toyota for any repairs covered by this warranty. We're offering the 100,000 miles, 3 year warranty in addition to the new car warranty offered by Toyota Motor Sales, USA. It's a promise, a guarantee of Toyota quality. Toyota dependability.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel Toyota when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel Toyota and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Asterisk denotes warranted car.)

Muslim Prisoners Among 'Coolest' N.J. Inmates

By MIKE AVENTI
CLINTON, N.J. (UPI) — They are considered among the best of New Jersey's prison inmates — quiet, courteous to the guards and loathe to fall into common jail vices of stealing, smuggling and homosexuality.

They are the Muslims, called religious fanatics by some critics and violent insurgents by others. But followers of the "Nation of Islam" and the teachings of the prophet Muhammad claim their faith makes possible their rehabilitation and survival behind bars, even in the face of violent battles with other inmates that have ended in death.

"All things are possible under Allah," says Lester 2X Gilbert, 48, of Newark, the acknowledged leader of imprisoned Muslims in New Jersey. Gilbert is doing life for a felony murder.

Officials estimate there are 300 to 400 Muslims they know of in the total inmate population of 6,000. They say there are probably that many more who have never been identified.

Prison officials say Gilbert wields enormous powers among Muslim inmates here and in the other penal institutions.

Gilbert, whose adopted Arabic name is Abd Mutaqdir Tasbih, downplays such claims. He even says Muslim teachings against homosexuality and masturbation "inside the wall" have made their sect "disliked" by other inmates.

But he has helped improve prison life in many ways.

Gilbert started a printing shop in prison and later worked in a Muslim delicatessen in Trenton on "community release" program.

And he organized private for inmates with their families and friends. He has been unsuccessful, however, in getting the prison system to allow inmates to have sexual relations with wives or girlfriends.

"They force you to live an unnatural way," he said in an interview at the Clinton Reformatory. "They would prefer that you have sex with another man rather than a woman or rather than with your wife."

Prison officials generally regard Gilbert as a positive influence on penal life.

"The Muslims don't give you any trouble. They are the coolest," said a prison spokesman. "They are well-dressed and well-behaved and keep the jail cool because of their discipline."

Gilbert says prison conditions lead to Muslim conversions.

"We have many brothers and sisters who do not go into jail as Muslims," the minister said. "We recruit in the form of our newspaper — the Balalian News — lectures and association.

"When they see they can graduate to a better life, when they see how real Islam is they readily embrace it."

He said that in the past the faith did not tolerate smoking and drinking but now "it is up to the individual to put a control on such vices — I should say weaknesses."

While he was in Trenton State Prison, he said as many as 250 inmates gave up drinking, smoking and homosexuality because of the efforts of the Muslim prisoners.

"We have demonstrated a more meaningful and permanent rehabilitation program. It is a discipline of one's will," the minister said. "We have done more in the rehabilitation of the mind and morals than any other religion or psychologist in the prisons."

Yet, Gilbert is highly critical of the prison system and the method in which he said all inmates are punished for the transgressions of a few.

The minister said that the inmates' greatest concern is whether the laws of the prison will be applied justly to all. He gave the furlough system as an example.

"If a guy goes out and fouls up, then he wrote the check and he should cash it," Gilbert said. But he said all furloughs were suspended recently when several inmates were accused of murder while on furlough.

"Thousands of inmates have been punished unjustly in the furlough system," he said.

The Muslims also are recruiting among the women in the state's prisons, most of whom are kept here. But Gilbert admits that efforts are not as successful among the women as with the men.

"Islam is new here and the administration is afraid of it and there is a lack of knowledge of the duties and ways of its actual teaching," said Madelyn DX Roane, 32, of Elizabeth, who is serving time for threatening a man with a butcher knife. She is a recent Muslim convert.

Despite the recruiting efforts, Gilbert denies that the Muslims are out to take over the prisons.

"Who would want to take over a prison after a lot of bloodshed and sit down with the same people to negotiate?"

Add Insulation To Prefab Home

New York (UPI) — The Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. has developed an insulated prefabricated home which it claims saves owners as much as 65 per cent in heating and cooling costs over conventionally insulated homes. The key to the saving, according to the company, is extra added insulation, with 12 inches of it installed in the ceiling and six inches each in the floor and walls.

RECORD YEAR

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is shaping up as a banner year for sales of recreational vehicles, according to industry projections. The Recreational Vehicle Industry Association says producers will ship 425,000 units this year, an increase of almost 100,000 from last year's figure.

Sole Styles For Fall Reported

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sole styles for fall footwear include negative heels, wedges, cowboy boot-shaped heels and wavy bottoms, as well as traditional standard and stacked heels, says a spokesman for one of America's largest retail shoe chains.

He said casual footwear will focus on earthy, natural upper leathers and features such as hand-lacing, interwoven uppers and hand-rubbed or burnished-wax finishes.

CHANGING HIS TUNE — Professor Richard Keefe, 61, sits at one of four harpsichords he has built in his DeKalb, Illinois, home. The University of Northern Illinois professor has taken early retirement so he could return to classes as a student.

One Phone Is For Suicide Calls

By MELANIE DEEDS
DETROIT (UPI) — When Paula Sporn answers the telephone at home on Tuesday nights, she listens. That's the most important part of her job. For the past six years, she has been a volunteer with the Suicide Prevention Center. She is one of 50 volunteers in the metropolitan Detroit area who devote at least four hours a week listening to people who are contemplating ending their lives. "Most of the people are just lonely," Miss Sporn said. "People basically need to be loved and wanted." For Miss Sporn, 28, an employee of the Detroit Recreation Department, the job with the bureau was a way to put her college psychology degree to use. But she has found common sense more valuable than anything she ever learned in school. "Everyday people with common sense are the best kind to help others with problems," she said. After 10 weeks of training, under the supervision of Dr. Bruce Danto, director of the bureau, a separate phone was installed in her apartment. It is for suicide calls only. At first, Miss Sporn said, the hopelessness of the callers and her feelings of futility made her wonder whether she could handle it. One Tuesday night, a woman in her 30s told Miss Sporn she was going to kill herself and her young children by turning on the gas in her stove. "She said 'I just want to tell someone why I'm doing it.' She shouted, 'don't try to stop me, and hung up.'" For weeks, Miss Sporn agonized over what she could have said that would have helped. She searched the obituary columns. She picked apart the paper in search for stories of the suicide. "I finally got to the point where I said to myself, 'Well, you did what you could.' Then, about a year later, the same woman — I could tell by her voice, her problems, her situation — called again. "I felt a great sense of relief." Miss Sporn has since come to grips with the fact that suicide prevention efforts can go only so far. She realizes that not all the calls she receives are legitimate. "It takes time to know if they (the callers) are really for real. Unfortunately those most serious about suicide don't even bother to tell anyone, much less call us. "They just do it." During nighttime hours, callers are connected with volunteers via telephone operators or the police department. During the day, their calls go directly to the bureau — with a staff of two psychiatric nurses working with Danto — at Herman Kiefer Hospital.

Over the years, Miss Sporn has learned to listen for certain things. "You can tell whether people are drunk, high, really serious about their threats or just in need of a sympathetic ear." This is why the bureau has equipped volunteers with a "resource manual" that lists a variety of numbers for persons willing to go for professional help. Suicide calls increase around the holidays, anniversaries and birthdays. "If loved ones have died, often there's no one left to remember those special days, days that you are forced to remember," she said. "It's too hard for some to handle. "When you've been drinking, everything seems to snowball. Things that don't seem big to others — or weren't that important before the booze — start to mushroom. "They just grow inside of you." Miss Sporn never makes plans to go out on Tuesday nights and doesn't "do anything to clutter my head — like drinking". "I've decided to do this and it's important to me," she said. "I just do the best I can. Listening is the most important thing."

Exotic Plans For Using Sun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of today's solar energy projects make straight forward use of the sun's heat, but plans for the future are much more exotic. Some envision indirect harnessing of the sun's energy through windmills, ocean-based power plants and solar farms on land and sea. One would create a gigantic solar power station in space to beam energy back to earth. In a sense, the wind is a product of solar energy because it is sun's heat that creates weather patterns. The Energy Research and Development Administration recently announced plans to build the largest windmill in history within the next two years. It will sit atop a tower 150 feet tall and will have two slender fiber glass blades each 100 feet long. The windmill will turn at 30 or 40 revolutions per minute in any wind above 11 miles per hour. It will produce 1.5 megawatts of electricity, enough for 500 homes. The site is still to be selected.

"Although experimental in nature, the system will be located at a utility company site and will supply electricity to the local electric system for public use," an ERDA spokesman said. The first windmill project will cost $7 million. The cost for a second would drop $2.5 million, and production after that would be even less expensive. ERDA plans to explore the possibilities of floating power plants that would generate electricity by making use of the temperature difference between the sun-warmed water on the ocean surface and the cold water in the ocean depth. Other plans would make use about 1985 of an ocean seaweed farm or agricultural plant refuse on land to produce methane gas — another indirect way of tapping solar energy, capitalizing on the unique characteristics of the photosynthesis process.

ACCOUNTANTS' OPINION

The Greenville Utilities Commission
Greenville
North Carolina

Gentlemen:

We have examined the Balance Sheet of the Greenville Utilities Commission as of June 30, 1976, and the related Statement of Changes in Financial Position, and Statement of Income and Expenses for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the aforementioned Balance Sheet, Statement of Changes in Financial Position, and Statement of Income and Expenses present fairly the financial position of the Greenville Utilities Commission at June 30, 1976, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Young Hobbyist Sees Career Reflected In Glass

ALBION, Mich. (AP) — An interest that developed during a college chemistry course and led Tom Andert to request an independent study course in glassblowing may lead him to a career as a glassblower in the scientific field.

The 22-year-old recent graduate of Albion College began working with glass as part of a regular course in physical chemistry taught by Dr. Dan Steffenson, associate professor of chemistry. According to Steffenson, most large laboratories employ a fulltime glassblower to create the unusual hardware needed for particular experiments.

"But a chemist really needs to be able to do some basic glassblowing techniques for himself," he says, "so I teach them to make a t-joint, straight joint and a right angle."

At the end of the course Andert expressed an interest in doing a directed study in glassblowing. His proposal was approved by Steffenson and Dr.

Jack Crump, department chairman.

"What I like about glassblowing is that what looks like a simple apparatus takes time and skill to put together," Andert says. "It's really more an art than a science."

After mastering other skills, he constructed a manometer, an instrument used for measuring the pressure of gases and vapors, for the department. He learned to repair a vacuum system and has made a condenser.

Andert had some instruction from Steffenson, but also taught himself techniques from a book on scientific glassblowing he found in the Albion College library, which was also a source for his research into the history of glassmaking.

"Glass is really a very viscous liquid," he explains. "That's why old glass windows are thicker at the bottom. Modern glass has chemicals added to stiffen it."

In the glassblowing shop in the Norris Science Center, Andert demonstrated the technique for making a flange on the end of a narrow Pyrex tube so that it can be connected to another glass instrument.

"You need a temperature of 1,600 degrees to melt Pyrex," he says. "First you 'pull a point.' That means heating a point on the tube until it becomes molten, then pulling the ends apart. The idea is to get the point right in the center."

He breaks off the glass thread that connects the tubes and puts the closed end of one into the flame. When it is pink, he carefully blows into it. The molten spot bulges slightly, like a blister, and suddenly bursts out into a large irregular bubble. The thin glass of the bubble cools almost immediately, and he breaks it off from the tube. A metal file is used to smooth the edges of the new opening.

Steffenson notes that the goals of a scientific glassblower are both functional and aesthetic. "You make an apparatus that works, and you do it so that it doesn't look handmade."

Andert, who has "thought about" becoming a professional glassblower but says "I need to find out more about it first," went to work after graduation for a company that makes instruments to test steel, and which has its own glassblowing shop.

At home in Edwardsburg, Mich., the Anderts are a hobby-oriented family.

"Our basement looks like a museum," says Andert.

He and his father, Joseph Andert, have been rock hounders, antique collectors and model builders. Currently the senior Andert is building miniature brass cannons from blueprints. Tom Andert designs and builds space models. The two do their own tooling.

Squatters Can Live Like Lords

By JOHN JONES
LONDON (UPI) — A group of hippies drawing welfare benefits is living like lords in a $360,000 west London mansion full of antique furniture — as squatters.

There have been comfortable "squats" in London before, even in stately Regent Terrace, owned by the Crown and overlooking Regent's Park. But the occupants had to make do with orange boxes as furniture.

This house in sedate upper-crust Kensington has so many more of the desirable comforts of life.

Reporters who visited the house found squatter leader Michael Stewart, a 35-year-old West Indian who wears his hair in tight ringlets fastened with colored beads, sitting in a Chippendale-style chair beneath the crystal chandelier in the drawing room. His companions lolled about on the deep-pile carpet in front of the Adam fireplace.

In the evening the occupants can spend a quiet evening in the library or languish on one of the green velvet sofas in front of the huge circular television — one of two color sets in the house.

It is a house fit for a top politician or an oil sheikh.

Indeed, that is what it was — the former residence of Conservative opposition trade spokesman Michael Heseltine. The squatters say it is owned by a Saudi Arabian, although the Saudi Embassy denied any connection with the property.

Stewart has been living in the house for seven months with his Australian girl friend Chrissie Gray, 30. Squatters from Nigeria, China and Wales share the eight-bedroom house with them.

He first occupied the house opposite and moved across the street when he noticed No. 50 was empty.

"It was nicer than the house we were in," he said. "I climbed through a drainpipe and got in through the window."

The neighbors are nice too. "A member of the aristocracy who lives next door has been okay," said Stewart, who is unemployed and draws a $33 welfare check. His girlfriend gets $39. The state gives them extra for rent, he explained, although none is paid out.

"Everyone must do their bit in cooking, clearing up and housework," Chrissie said. The eight adults each pay $36 weekly towards bills.

Any money left over goes to an obscure housing pressure group called MUSTARD (Multi-Racial Squatters to Alleviate Racial Discrimination), of which Stewart is the organizer. He said MUSTARD's bank account is overdrawn at present.

Stewart has been spending some time organizing the publication of a book he has written. It's called "An Instinct for Survival."

Anticipate Rise In Beef Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Beef prices in the United States now are well below those at this time last year, but the prospect is they will be on the rise by the first of the year. The National Restaurant Association says a survey of cattle feeders shows that the high cost of grain and falling demand for beef products has brought about a reduction of animals moving into feedlots for processing. But the falling supply and lack of demand are expected to work together to boost prices in the coming months.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Families with annual income under $15,000 will decline from 31 million currently to 25 million in the next decade, according to a Conference Board Projection. The group says those with incomes of $25,000 or more will increase — from eight million now to some 20 million in the next 10 years.

Gondolas Of Venice Ride Troubled Waters Today

By SYLVANA FOA
VENICE, Italy (UPI) — For centuries millions of lovers had found nothing more romantic than a moonlit ride in a gondola along Venice's story-book canals.

Today the magic has all but disappeared in the battering wakes of roaring speedboats and smoke-puffing steamers.

The graceful gondola — symbol of this canal-laced, treasure-house city on the Adriatic — is being driven to extinction by the quest for faster and more efficient transportation.

"Road hog!" a middle-aged American screamed at a passing speedboat whose wake had jolted his wife off the cushions of their gently gliding gondola.

The speedboat driver responded with a smirk and a typically Italian gesture. The gondolier shook his head and managed to steady his sleek but fragile craft against the canal wall.

"In five years there won't be any gondolas in Venice," Dino Carraro, a gondolier who has plied the 150 canals of Venice for 27 years, said sadly.

"We will soon be gone," Dino is probably right.

In the 16th century Venice was a beehive of Gondolas — some 10,000 of the renaissance craft slipped through the city's canals.

Luxurious private gondolas were moored outside the gilded palaces of Venice's nobles and the canals were clogged with taxi gondolas, police gondolas, cargo gondolas, fire-service gondolas and even garbage-collecting gondolas.

Today, less than 500 of the fabled craft remain and, according to the gondoliers, if it weren't for the two million tourists who travel to Venice each year looking for a bit of romance to write home about, the gondolas would have vanished long ago.

"Only the tourists hire gondolas," said Franco, the 35-year-old chief gondolier at the Paglia Bridge mooring where the gondoliers' madonna stands.

"I haven't carried a Venetian in more than five years," he said. "In the last 30 years the Venetians have wanted gondolas only for their weddings and their funerals — but even for that not so much any more."

The demise of the gondola became a certainty after World War II when the demons of industrialization and speed invaded Venice.

The first to go were those gondolas belonging to prominent families with palaces along the Grand Canal.

"Since the war no one keeps his own gondola," said Giovanni Palmarin, 66, who once piloted the private gondola of the Duc de Cazi.

"It's not that the rich can no longer afford it," he said.

"They traded their gondolas for private motorboats with chauffeurs — which is much more expensive than a private gondola."

"They just don't like the gondolas any more. Today they want to rush, rush, hurry, hurry, hurry."

The wealthy weren't the only ones in a hurry after the war. Dozens of factories sprang up in Mestre, Venice's sister city on the mainland, and spawned a commuter traffic of more than 50,000 Venetians traveling daily from the old city to the industrial center, or vice versa.

In their rush to work, the practical Venetians clamored for less romantic, cheaper and faster transportation.

Vaporettos — Venice's bus boats — and the speedy motorboat taxis were soon crowding gondolas off the waterways.

The motorized craft are even grabbing a share of the tourist trade.

"In the old days, the tourists would come to Venice and stay for weeks or even months," said Dino. "They would hire a gondola for their whole visit and it would wait outside their hotels to take them to restaurants, to the churches, to the parties."

"Now they only come for one or two days and they tour Venice in the speedboats — one church, one palazzo, one glassworks," he said.

"Some will hire a gondola for 30 minutes or an hour — but for them the gondola is not a tranquil, civilized method of transport; it is an amusement park ride."

In addition to taking precious business away from the gondoliers, the motorboats also make rowing and navigation difficult by stirring waves in the once quiet waters of the canals.

"The motorboats are destroying our livelihood and make it very hazardous now for us to enter traffic on the Grand Canal," said Franco.

"They go very fast and don't pay attention to the speed limits unless they see a police launch — then they crawl along and look very innocent," he said.

"My father worked the gondola until he was 68," said Franco.

"Before, if you had good legs, you could keep working until you died. Now, with the motorboat waves, the work is too difficult for the older men."

Paolo di Bernardo, 28, is the youngest of the six gondolier sons of a gondolier.

It is tradition in Paolo's family for the men to become gondoliers — but never the women.

"Women don't have the muscles for the gondola," said Paolo, proudly flexing his own.

"There has never been a woman gondolier, but if there was she would get very rich because everyone would pay her double."

Paolo said he was the exception to the legend that all gondoliers serenade their clients.

"I try to sing if the tourists ask me," he laughed. "It always brings down the rain."

Motorboat waves are the main reason gondoliers have almost discontinued the ferry service across the Grand Canal for the small fee of 50 lire (six cents), Paolo said.

"The Gondola has a flat bottom and is almost impossible to turn over," he said. "But gondoliers are much easier to turn over and the waves have put me into the canal twice this year already."

The waves also make some tourists squeamish.

"Those gondolas really looked a bit dangerous," said Victoria Miller of Toronto who came to Italy this summer to study art.

"I watched them bobbing along the Grand Canal and I said 'not for me.'"

The gondoliers get some official support for their contention that motorboats are Venice's arch-enemy.

"The palazzos along the canals were not built with the idea of waves crashing constantly against them," said Maria Teresa Rubin de Cervin, who directs UNESCO's efforts to keep the city from succumbing to the ravages of time and pollution.

"The wash of the motorboats is dangerously undermining the foundations of many buildings," she said. "They are one of the worst problems we face."

In three decades of war with the motorized craft, the men in picturesque straw hats and striped T-shirts have blocked traffic on the Grand Canal a dozen times to protest the presence of unlicensed vessels and the failure of police to enforce speed limits.

They have formed gondola fleets to do naval battle with the unlicensed craft and have rowed down the Grand Canal with an overturned "dead" gondola in a mock funeral procession.

They have tried passive resistance and hid all their gondolas.

They have tried violence and stormed the city council, pulling down water pipes and flooding the chamber.

All in vain.

"The gondola is finished," said Giovanni Palmarin. "The young men no longer want to become gondoliers and they look for other jobs."

Charging tourists about 10,000 lire ($12) for a 40-minute glide, Giovanni estimates that he earns about three million lire ($3,600) during the four-month tourist season.

Maintenance on his gleaming black craft with its polished brass fitting and intricate wood carvings costs him about 500,000 lire ($600).

"In the winter we must find odd jobs to keep our families alive," said Giovanni. "This is not an easy life."

Most gondoliers come from long "dynasties" — their fathers, grandfathers and great-grandfathers all plied the canals.

But many now hope that their sons will break the family tradition.

"I will not allow my son to join the gondoliers," said Paolo.

"For me this work is good. I have no boss, I work the hours I please and I meet many different people — Germans, Americans, French, even Russians."

"But instead of spending 10 years as an apprentice gondolier, as I did, my son will go to school. He must have a good job."

Despite their problems, the gondoliers get little sympathy from their fellow Venetians.

Like the much-maligned New York taxi driver, the Gondoliers talk too much, say the Venetians. They also have a bad reputation as incorrigible romeos.

Sherwood Forest Again Rescue Effort Target

By GREGORY JENSEN
EDWINSTOWE, England (UPI) — The trouble with Robin Hood, said Ian Solly, is that he is so popular his fans were killing off Sherwood Forest.

"It just got impossible," Solly said near two 400-year-old oak trees. "We were getting 20,000 people here on a Sunday. The trees just couldn't stand it."

Solly is head ranger of a forest rescue project which is trying to rejuvenate the only patch of Sherwood Forest still surviving as Robin Hood and his Merrie Men may have known it.

He presides over the striking new Sherwood Forest Visitor Center, a series of half-buried huts blending into the surrounding woods, which opened earlier this year.

"Everyone who comes here comes because he's heard of Robin Hood," Solly said.

So an exhibition dutifully tells visitors of this legendary outlaw who poached the king's deer and robbed the rich to help the poor.

But then the exhibit cunningly leads visitors on through the history of Sherwood Forest itself. It makes social points about the brutal "forest law" which made Robin an outlaw, makes ecological points about the still-continuing rape and ruin of his great forest.

A few hundred yards into the forest sprawls the most famous tree in England, the gnarled old giant called the Major Oak. It is a huge, much-doctored tree. Its burl trunk is some 32 feet around.

The Major is supposed to have been Robin Hood's "headquarters" tree, a rallying point for his outlaw band. This belief brings so many people to touch the Major that their feet were killing the old oak tree, compacting the ground so hard that food and water could not reach its roots.

So this year a new path winds from the Visitor Center. The old path is closed. Now, a fence surrounds the patched-up old tree. Its venerable branches rest on props and are tied together with cables. A sign on the fence pleads, "Give it a rest."

Unsuspecting visitors to the new center — built on concrete rafts to avoid harming tree roots — find a few romantic notions about Robin Hood and his golden age gently deflated. Sherwood Forest itself, for instance.

There is a weird, grotesque look about this stretch of ancient oaks 142 miles north of London.

Its green glades are punctured by massive oaks which seem blasted on top, their dead branches bare and contorted like witches' arms. The forest looks virgin, untouched since the beginning of time.

"What we're seeing is the relic of a commercial enterprise," Solly said.

Landowners once "farmed" oak trees commercially here. They simply abandoned it 180 years ago when they found coal underneath — 11 major mines in the Sherwood Forest area now produce 9 million tons a year.

"Trees of about 200 years old, approaching maturity then, were just left," Solly said.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 24, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are opportunities in the early part of the day to make definite plans with those of whom you very fond. However some adverse aspects could develop later if you are not careful. Be astute.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can reach a fine agreement with persons who can assist you to grow and develop. Control your temper at all times.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new plan is needed where your regular work is concerned, so take steps in that direction. Improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan recreation for the weekend and then put your personal affairs in order. Be more affectionate with mate and be happy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make definite plans for the future and include whatever will make your life more interesting. A new project needs more study.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to cooperate more with allies and you will have more success in the future. Clarify your ideas with the aid of an expert.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do whatever will bring you the goodwill of one in high position, and who can give the backing you need. Be more practical minded.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to measure how far you have progressed in a new business interest. Plan the right kind of social life you want to enjoy in the days ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have the knack for getting at the truth in any matter and this can be most advantageous to you today. Try to please your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to show your friends that you are devoted to them. Once your work is done, engage in the recreation you enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle civic work you have to do early in the day and get excellent results. Consult a business expert for advice you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Look at all angles of a matter that arises today and you will know how to handle it. Don't neglect to pay an important bill.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study monetary matters well and become more successful. There are many needed repairs to make in your surroundings.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to cooperate with others and ca. thus live a most harmonious life. Ideal chart for the designer, the artist and the musician. Be sure not to neglect good spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Refuses to be Son's Laundry Service

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Jimmy, a junior in college, has just informed his father and me that he is moving out of the house to live on campus, just 30 minutes from here. He plans to share an apartment with another college student.

We can't understand why he wants to move. He has a lovely big room here, with all the privacy in the world, and it's free. He says he wants "total independence."

Jimmy has always worked and saved his money so we know he can handle it financially. He's a good boy, makes good grades and has never given us any trouble.

He says after he moves, he hopes he'll be welcome to come home for dinner maybe once a week. We assured him he'd be welcome for dinner anytime. Then he asked if he could bring his dirty laundry home for me to do. I said, "No, not as long as you're living somewhere else."

Was I wrong? My husband agrees with me, but my sister doesn't.

BUFFALO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you. A totally independent person shouldn't rely on his mother for laundry service.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I plan to adopt a baby without friends and relatives knowing it was adopted. We feel that we would be shielding the child from the many embarrassing questions and remarks to which most adopted children are subjected. We plan to announce my "pregnancy" three or four months before we actually bring the child into our home.

Could you please tell us where we could buy some "padding" that actresses wear to make them look like they are carrying a child? Thank you.

FUTURE MOTHER

DEAR FUTURE: Frederick's of Hollywood has foam rubber fannies that look (and feel) like the real thing. Maybe they could come up with a foam rubber tummy.

DEAR ABBY: Where did the custom of kissing a lady's hand originate? And what is the purpose of it?

MADE A BET

DEAR MADE: It originated in France. And I suppose it's as good a place to start as any.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

There is one simple rule which applies to both declarer and defenders—think ahead! This point was clearly illustrated on this hand from a team match at New York's Regency Whist Club.

Aggressive action got both North-South pairs to a game in hearts. North was surely worth a jump raise at his second turn since he had a singleton and all of his high cards were in his long suits. South, with an eye on the vulnerability, let his sixth trump influence him into bidding one more.

At both tables, West started his fourth-best club. East won the king, but was faced with a difficult task at trick two. A spade return would have beaten the game, but both Easts elected to play safe by continuing the ace of clubs, which was ruffed in dummy.

The contract now looked secure. One declarer led the king of hearts from dummy, and when West discarded a club, he suddenly realized that unless diamonds broke 3-3, he was in danger of losing two spade tricks in addition to a club and a trump.

He went after diamonds, discarding a spade on the third round. Now he set up the diamond suit with a ruff, but there was no way to reach dummy to enjoy the fifth diamond. Down one.

The successful declarer took time out at trick three to consider the hand. He realized that the contract was unimpeachable if trumps were 2-1, so he bent his efforts toward combating a possible 3-0 trump division.

After ruffing the second club, declarer led a heart to his ace. When West showed out, declarer was pleased with his foresight. He cashed the three high diamonds, discarding a spade from his hand, and was absolutely delighted when West let go another club. His careful play had insured the success of the contract.

Declarer ruffed a diamond to set up the fifth card in the suit, then entered dummy with the king of trumps to lead the high diamond. East could ruff this trick, but in the process declarer would shed a second spade, thus holding his losers to three tricks.

VIDEO DATING

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fred Weston is in a business that takes blindness out of blind dates.

For $100, he makes a videotape of a single man or woman that will be viewed by potential dates.

Weston, a 42-year-old former stockbroker, says business is "really good, really good."
