

Ford-Carter Debate: No New Proposals

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both President Ford and Jimmy Carter are claiming victory in the first of the 1976 campaign debates, a restrained yet contentious confrontation laden with economic statistics and political rhetoric, but barren of any new proposals. "I thought I did well," the Democratic nominee told reporters as he left the Walnut Street Theater, site of the debate. Carter said he had wanted to stress what he considers Ford's lack of leadership "and I think I did that very adequately."

"I enjoyed it very much," Ford said as he left the theater. Asked who won, the President replied, "The American people."

Later, Ford told supporters. "We have a turning point in this campaign... The momentum is on our side."

The debate, scheduled to run 90 minutes but interrupted for 27 minutes by an electronic failure that cut off the sound to the millions watching it on television, covered economic issues and domestic policy.

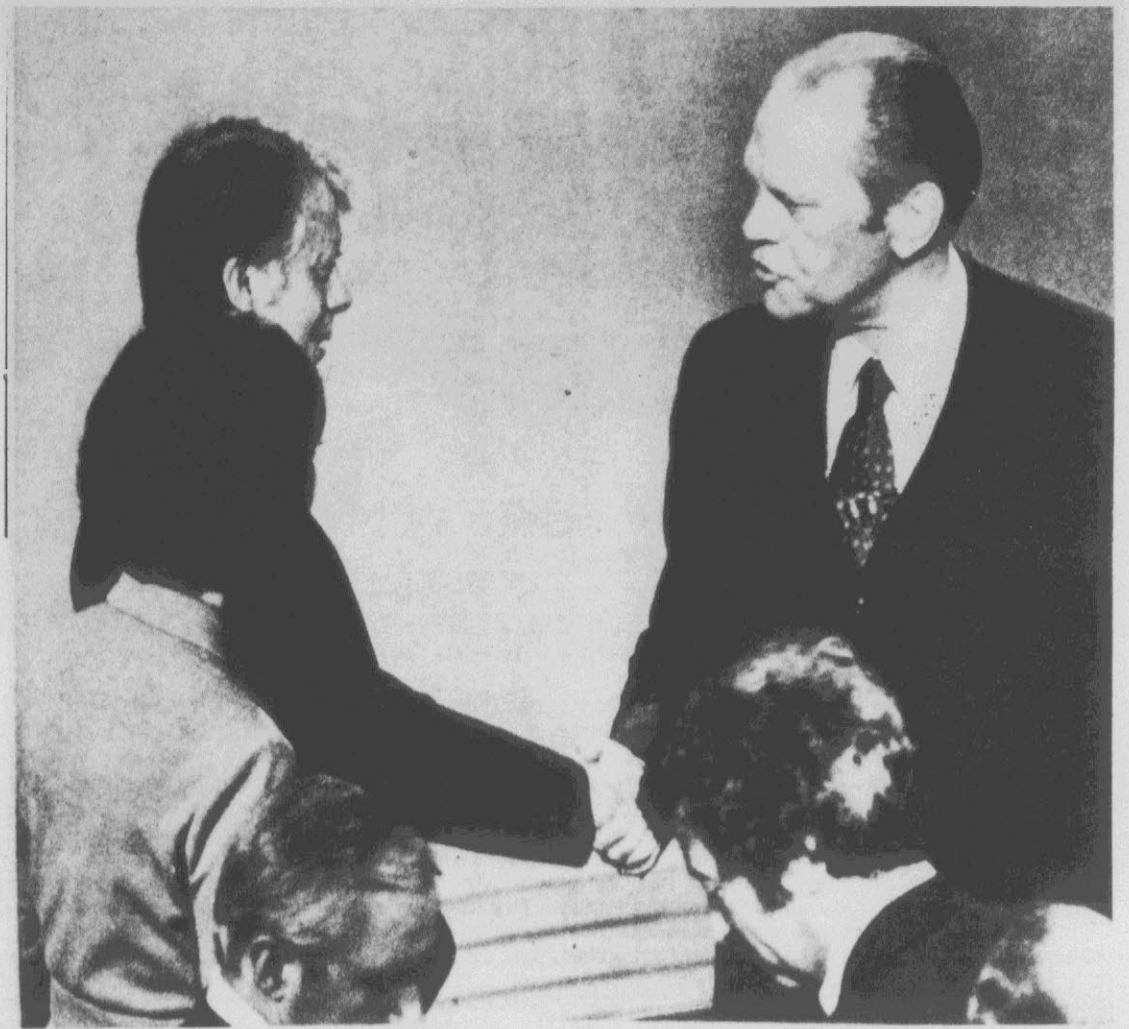

The candidates fielded 12 questions from a panel of three reporters. The topics ranged from unemployment, inflation and taxes to amnesty, government reorganization and domestic spying by government agencies.

Carter described Ford as insensitive to the plight of the unemployed and said that the President's 56 vetoes since he took office represented a "government of stalemate."

At the outset of the debate, Ford accused Carter of failing to be specific in his proposals. The President said his Demo-

College Debate Coaches Give Ford Slight Edge

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four members of a five-member panel of college debate coaches gave a slight edge to President Ford in his debate with Jimmy Carter. The fifth gave Carter a narrow edge.

The Ford four said they leaned toward him principally because he did a better job of rebutting some of the Democratic nominee's arguments.

The five coaches from around the country scored the nationally televised event for The Associated Press using a point system similar to that used in collegiate debate competition.

Evaluating the candidates for their analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and presentation, the coaches voted this way:

Dr. Barbara O'Connor, California State University at Sacramento, 22-19 for Ford.

Dr. Donn Parson, University of Kansas, 24-23 for Ford.

Prof. William Southworth, University of Redlands (Calif.), 27-24 for Ford.

Prof. James K. Unger, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., 15-13 for Ford.

Prof. Melissa Maxcy Wade, Emory University, Atlanta, 22-20 for Carter.

In the first 1960 presidential debate, John F. Kennedy was generally perceived as the winner over Richard M. Nixon because of appearance and image. However, none of the five judges Thursday night gave Carter or Ford a point advantage in the presentation category, the ability to create an image of competence and leadership.

The four panelists who thought Ford won particularly gave him an edge on handling the tax and bureaucracy questions.

"Ford pushed it to him on the tax cuts and bureaucracy cuts," said Dr. O'Connor. "Carter has answers on those things but he never gave them."

Southworth particularly gave Ford credit for his remark at the end of the tax discussion that the tax structure objected to by Carter was enacted by a primarily Democratic Congress.

Unger, the most critical of the panelists, said the refutations in general "seemed to be primarily directed to what the candidates hoped their opponents would say, rather than what their opponents did say. Certainly, though, President Ford seemed to be superior at this level of argument."

Parson thought Ford particularly scored with his argument that Carter can't complain both about Ford's vetoes of spending bills and about the budget deficit.

Wade gave Carter the edge on the basis that he was more responsive than the President in more areas, scored well on the inflation-jobs topic, and because Ford often responded on the basis of proposals rather than his record.

The judges all found the candidates somewhat nervous at the outset.

Ian Smith Said Prepared Bow To Majority Rule

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith will announce tonight that his white minority government is bowing to pressure from the United States and South Africa and is agreeing to hand over power to Rhodesia's black majority within two years, informed sources reported today.

The government refused to comment on the report. "Everything that has to be said will be said when the prime minister speaks to the nation later," a government spokesman said.

Smith scheduled a radio and television speech at 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT) to announce the response of his government and his ruling Rhodesian Front party to the British-American plan urged on him last weekend by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Smith told reporters Thursday after a caucus of the 50 Rhodesian Front members of parliament that he would make a "clear and positive and unequivocal statement. There will be no doubt in anybody's mind."

The sources said the government would insist, however, on an end to the guerrilla war that Rhodesian black nationalists have been waging from bases in Mozambique and Zambia.

Kissinger, on his way home, told reporters in London Thursday night he would be surprised if the Rhodesians rejected his proposals. But British officials in London were skeptical.

Kissinger again declined to disclose the details of the plan.

WHY ADMISSION?

A town meeting Saturday. That is good. The people need a way to interact with their government. Citizens' suggestions bring to light many new views on town and various other matters. But why the $2 admission? We certainly pay a goodly sum at tax time. I say let the folks around come forth to see their leaders in action and let it be without charge. Some out here have much to say, yet may be barely able to buy the necessities. B.C.

Your points are valid, but seem to imply that you believe this to be a city government project. It is a meeting called for and conducted entirely by private citizens. All meetings of the City Council and the city's commission may indeed be attended by the public at no charge.

The charge for this meeting is to cover lunch which will be served at midday, treasurer Dr. Nicole Aronson said.

The town meeting will be held at Rose High School, beginning at 9 a.m.

CAN'T GET DOG'S PAPERS

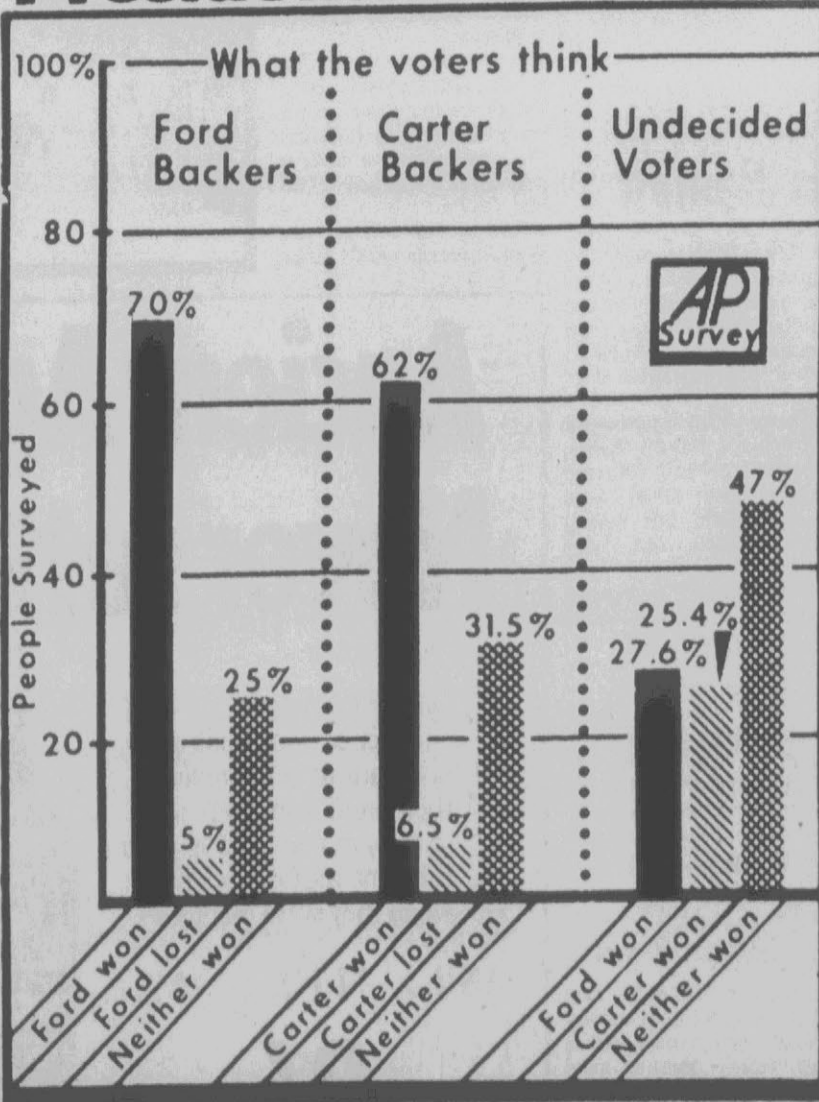

A couple of days before Father's Day we went to Pic-a-Pet and bought a miniature dachshund for my husband's Father's Day present. The dog was supposed to have been registered, with papers and everything. My husband called the store and couldn't get the papers. When we bought the dog, the man said we would have the papers in two days, and it has been about two months. Mrs. L. F.

HOTLINE contacted the Pic-a-Pet store manager, David Langston. He investigated the situation and later informed us that some mix-up had been involved, causing the delay in getting the papers for your dog.

Mr. Langston said he knew the address of the person who had the papers and he would be happy to get them for you as soon as possible. When we checked back with him Sept. 10 he said he had received the papers and was sending them on to you. He apologized for the inconvenience and hopes you are enjoying your pet.

You report that you have received the registration papers and are happy to have the problem solved.

The Presidential Debate

Jimmy Carter's recent controversial statements to Playboy magazine concerning adultery "won't make much difference one way or the other" in the upcoming presidential election, according to Mrs. Emily ("Sissy") Dolvin, Carter's aunt.

Mrs. Dolvin, a native of Roswell, Ga., was in Greenville yesterday for a Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee dinner meeting.

"I don't think the statements should become a major issue in this campaign," said Mrs. Dolvin.

"He was just giving a truthful answer. If people would put themselves in his shoes, they would understand.

"He was simply saying, 'Who am I to judge?'"

Mrs. Dolvin said she feels Carter will do well in the televised debates between him and President Ford; one of which was held Thursday night.

"I think Jimmy will go as well-prepared as anyone could go, not having the secret information that Ford has," she said.

"Jimmy is at his best when he's ad-libbing. In fact, when he has a prepared speech it is not as good as when he does it right off the top of his head."

Carter is "an honest person, one with high integrity", Mrs. Dolvin said.

"Jimmy is a man with compassion and with love for people," she said.

"He's proven this to me in a personal way when he's come to me when I needed him.

"He'd like to see every person live up to their potential.

"I think he's going to be the best president we've ever had."

Over 200 persons attended the meeting, which also featured Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and Jimmy Green, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Hunt spoke to the group about leadership.

"The key issue of this campaign is leadership," he said.

"Our people are looking to us to lead. In 1976, following the years of destruction in North Carolina by the Republicans, we need new leadership.

"North Carolina is at a vital juncture in its history and in its future. It is important for us to realize we can't do everything.

"But there's no excuse for us not to do anything,"

Hunt spoke of the present needs of North Carolinians.

"We have needs in education, economy and crime prevention," he said.

"We need help in making ends meet.

"I haven't heard a single thing proposed by this Republican administration as to how we can help the people of this state who are so sorely burdened.

"We can have full representation for our people before the Utilities Commission.

"We can make changes. We need a lean government in

Old Mansion 'Haunted' By Acts Of Vandals, Lovers, Scavengers

HAUNTED HOME — Pearl and Chuck Woellner relax with German Shepherd pet on porch of their partly-restored mill home. (AP Wirephoto)

GIBSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Chuck and Pearl Woellner fell in love with a "haunted" house. They have been battling vandals, lovers and witches to make it their home.

The nearby Ludwig Summers Mansion, which some local residents believe was built more than 200 years ago, had been vacant for 15 years when the Woellners began their weekend visits in 1971. "As soon as we saw it, we fell flat in love with it," says Mrs. Woellner, a high school teacher of French. "There was no other house for us."

Its majestic windows were shattered. The two-story front porch was near collapse. The timbers were decayed.

And there were tales that the late Lud Summers was still known to appear.

"Scavengers and antique hunters took everything they could carry out of the house," said Woellner. "They even stripped the walls and took the fireplace mantels."

The area also had become a lovers' lane and haven for vandals.

"What it amounts to was we were messing up their playground," said Woellner. "We had people riding by at night yelling obscenities. One night somebody even started shooting at the windows from the road. I ran out with my shotgun and scared them off with a blast, but they kept coming back."

One wintry weekend they arrived to find the place boarded up. Inside they found the remains of a fire, spent candles and an elaborate witch's circle. Once, a neighbor spotted

Mrs. Ilene Blok of Greenville has been appointed chairperson of the Project Council of the N.C. Sudden Infant Death Syndrome Project.

The project is being carried out through the office of the Chief Medical Examiner of N.C. to focus on SIDS. It has been funded since July, 1975, by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The project provides counseling through home visits by nurse-counselors to families who have recently lost a child to SIDS. Information about SIDS families is being compiled to hopefully turn up leads to the cause of the syndrome.

smoke and rushed to extinguish a fire at the old frame house.

The Woellners decided to camp inside the house permanently.

Now exterior siding is up and insulation is complete. The windows and porch have been repaired. Plumbing and heating problems have been solved.

The Woellners have purchased three cows and planted a large vegetable garden.

"I guess you could say we're really getting back to nature out here," Woellner said. "It's something we always dreamed about and it's beginning to pan out for us."

Claim Slavery In Labor Camp

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A migrant farm worker says he and a friend walked miles along a railroad track to escape Ivory Wilson's Polk County labor camp where he was beaten and held in bondage for his debts.

Richard Brown, 34, testified Thursday that he was held against his will for debts to Wilson, who had charged him for food and supplies but didn't pay him for his work.

Brown said he was charged $30 a week for sandwiches and beans, $7 for blankets and $4 for a fifth of wine.

Wilson, 30, his brother, Roscoe, and Willie James Bibbs went on trial before U. S. District Judge W. Terrel Hodges Thursday on charges of involuntary servitude and peonage.

The Wilson brothers have citrus labor camps at Lake Wales in central Florida and in sweet potato country near Benson, N.C.

Brown said he agreed to join Wilson's labor camp last year for four days to pick potatoes in North Carolina to earn "some good money."

But Wilson refused to pay him the $10 a day for his labor and told him he couldn't leave because he owed money for supplies, Brown testified.

When he tried to flee the camp, Ivory Wilson threatened him with a pistol, Brown said. He quoted Wilson as saying: "you niggers aren't going nowhere. I'll blow you niggers away."

Brown said he was forced to travel with Wilson and about 30 other migrants to Lake Wales where he was caught in a second escape attempt and beaten.

He said he and another worker finally escaped last April by hiding in the woods near a grove, then walking along railroad tracks to a Lakeland police station where he asked to be jailed to be kept from Wilson.

Police called the FBI which raided the camp. Brown claimed he shared a three-room apartment with eight other men, and each paid Wilson $14 a week rent.

Also indicted with the three men was Carter Hagley who is still being sought by authorities.

Committee Is Named

GRIFTON — The Town Board of Grifton in a special meeting Monday appointed a museum committee to oversee plans and displays for Grifton's new museum to be located in the old school building on Creek Shore Road.

Members of the committee are as follows: William Harris, Bertha Johnson, Maxine Harker, Mattie Dixon, Janie Mae Mewborn, Don Watson, Murle Nelson, and Janet Haseley.

The committee is presently receiving suggestions for a name of the museum. Suggestions may be sent to the Grifton Town Hall.

In other business the board hired two police officers. Calvin Craft and James Powell were hired as police officers and began their duties immediately. The Grifton Police Department now has nine police officers.

Ford-Carter Debate...

cratic opponent was advocating programs calling for "more spending, bigger deficits, more inflation and more taxes."

The second debate is scheduled for Oct. 6 in San Francisco and will cover foreign policy and national security. A third, with no limitation on the subject matter, will be held Oct. 22. The vice presidential candidates, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Bob Dole, R-Kan., will debate sometime the week of Oct. 11.

But the candidates and their advisers felt the first debate would be the one likely to have the most lasting impression on the voters and the one to set a pattern for the others.

Members of Carter's staff had said they felt the former Georgia governor should avoid strongly worded, direct attacks on Ford which voters might resent as showing disrespect for the presidency.

Nonetheless, the Democratic candidate took Ford to task for what he said was a lack of leadership and blamed the Republican administration for what he said was a variety of economic ills.

The moderator for the debate, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, was Edwin Newman of NBC. The questioners were Frank Reynolds of ABC television, Elizabeth Drew of the New Yorker, and James P. Gannon of the Wall Street Journal.

The two candidates stood behind chest-high lecterns. During the opening minutes of the confrontation, their voices sounded strained.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, said later, "I thought Jimmy was a little nervous at first and started a little slow." Jordan added that he thought that later Carter "took command of the debate."

Jordan's assessment was as expected as that of White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said, "We compared notes on the President's staff and came to the conclusion that he had won — and that he had won ... by a wide margin."

Reynolds asked the opening question, and it was directed to Carter: "You have said you are committed to a drastic reduction in unemployment. Can you say now, governor, in specific terms, what your first step would be next January, if you are elected, to achieve that?"

"Yes," Carter began. "First of all is to recognize the tremendous economic strength of this country, and putting back to work of our people as a top priority. This is an effort that ought to be done primarily by strong leadership in the White House."

Carter went on to say that unless unemployment was reduced "we'll never have an end to the inflationary spiral, and we'll never have a balanced budget."

He called for tax reform, for incentives to private industry to create jobs and for special programs geared to central cities where unemployment rates are far higher than the national average.

Carter had three minutes for his initial answer and another two minutes to answer a follow-up question. Then Ford got his first chance to speak in the two minutes allotted for comment after an opponent has answered a question.

"I don't believe that Mr. Carter has been any more specific in this case than he has been in many other instances," said the President, echoing a familiar Republican charge against Carter.

Ford said Democratic jobs programs would add $10 billion to $30 billion each year in additional expenditures.

The second question dealt with taxes and was directed to Ford, who replied that he probably would sign the tax bill recently passed by Congress. This time it was Carter's turn to rebut, and he linked the Republicans to a tax structure he called "a welfare program for the rich."

Carter was asked where he'd find the money to pay for the programs he was promising voters. With reduced unemployment and a steady economic growth, there would be $60 billion in extra money in four years, he said.

Ford questioned whether such a dividend would be found. If it was, he added, "I think the American taxpayer ought to get an additional tax break, a tax reduction of that magnitude."

Later, the subject of taxes came up again and Carter said he wanted to do away with the kind of deductions he said were used by the wealthy but were not available to the average working person. He cited "first-class travel, the $50 martini lunch."

Ford then renewed recent Republican charges that Carter had indicated in an interview with The Associated Press that he planned to ask for a tax increase "on about 50 per cent of the working people of this country." The President also said that the tax laws which Carter claims contain gross inequities were written by congresses controlled by the Democrats.

Carter repeatedly has said that he has no intention of asking for a tax increase for low- or middle-income families. The Democratic candidate has said he only intends to do away with provisions that give extra advantages to high-income families.

One of the most acrimonious exchanges occurred when Ford was asked to comment on the anti-Washington feeling often mentioned during the campaign.

Ford said he thought any anti-Washington feeling "ought to be focused on the Congress.... I don't think the American people are getting their money's worth from the majority party that runs this Congress...."

"They spend too much money on themselves; they have too many employees; there's some question about their morality."

Ford concluded that "I think the American people want a Republican president to check on any excesses that come out of the next Congress."

Carter retorted that "it's not a matter of Republican and Democrat, it's a matter of leadership or no leadership."

He said Ford "quite often puts forward a program just as a public relations stunt and never tries to put it through the Congress by working with the Congress.... The point is that a president ought to lead this country. Mr. Ford, so far as I know, except for avoiding another Watergate, has not accomplished one single major program for this country."

On government reorganization, Carter said he had drastically consolidated the state government bureaucracy as governor of Georgia and that "it was a tremendous success."

Ford countered that during Carter's four years as governor, state expenditures increased more than 50 per cent and the number of state employees increased by 25 per cent.

The official record shows that during Carter's term as governor of Georgia, the state budget increased from $1.057 billion to $1.657 billion, up 58.5 per cent.

The number of state employees rose 24 per cent. Both figures were lower than the increases during the four-year term of Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox.

A principal theme of the Carter presidential campaign has been a promise to cut sharply the number of federal agencies. Both men restated their positions on amnesty and on Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said he opposes across-the-board pardon of draft evaders or deserters. He said he pardoned Nixon after Nixon resigned the presidency "because it seemed to me Mr. Nixon had been penalized enough by his resignation in disgrace and the need and necessity for me to concentrate on the problems of the country fully justified the action I took."

Carter said he advocates a pardon for draft resisters. "I think now is a time to heal our country," he said.

On energy and particularly nuclear power, Carter said he favored development of coal resources and declared that "we should use atomic energy only as a last resort with the strictest possible safety precautions." He also said he would favor mandatory conservation measures.

Ford said he had submitted to Congress "the first comprehensive energy conservation program." The President said his administration has increased research and development to "insure that our nuclear power plants are safer, that they are more efficient and that we have adequate safeguards."

Asked about his vetoes of jobs bills passed by Congress, Ford said his 56 vetoes of various measures had saved $9 billion and thereby relieved inflationary pressures which "would help to destroy jobs in the private sector."

Carter said unemployment under the Ford administration was the highest since the depression of the 1930's. "This affects human beings and his insensitivity in providing these people a chance to work has made this a welfare administration not a work administration."

Government unemployment figures for August showed 7.9 per cent of the work force was jobless, or nearly eight million people.

Answers were filled with figures, billions of dollars in deficits, other billions in surpluses and still others in taxes. The candidates also referred to millions employed and other millions unemployed.

Political analysts would judge their performances; opinion analysts would try to determine the public reaction.

But as Ford is fond of saying, the poll that counts will be taken Nov. 2, Election Day, 1976.

Autistic Children: A Right To Free Public Education

By STEVEN PROKESCH PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Parents of autistic children are slowly realizing a goal that other Americans take for granted — the right to a free public education for their children.

Their efforts have come a long way since 1968 when the only state laws on the books were to exclude autistic children from the classroom.

"Without appropriate public education, it would be hard to permanently help these children," said Dr. Bernard Rimland, a San Diego psychologist and founder of the National Society for Autistic Children. "Part of society's duty is to take care of these kind of problems."

Dr. Harvey Lapin of Los Angeles, the current president of NSAC, acknowledged the argument of public school officials that it is tremendously expensive to educate children with severe behavior disorders.

"But they have the right to have a free public education," he said. "And who the hell can afford those private places?"

For the general public, educating an autistic child in a public school is still cheaper than footing the bill for a lifetime in a public institution, according to Thomas Gilhool, a Philadelphia lawyer.

Gilhool said the average cost of institutionalization is now more than $7,200 per year.

The legal precedent upon which mentally handicapped children won access to a public education was Brown vs. Board of Education, the landmark desegregation ruling in 1954. Ensuing cases ordered that autistic children receive an education appropriate to their needs as well. The basis for the cases was the due process clause of the 14th Amendment.

Today, nearly all of the 50 states have implemented special education programs for autistic children, although Ohio is fighting such an order and suits are pending against Delaware and Mississippi.

Autism, which strikes four of every 10,000 American children, is not the name for one disease. It serves as the label for the symptoms of several diseases.

As the name implies, autistic children appear withdrawn and incapable of emotion. Many parents of autistic children describe their children as "machine-like, seemingly incapable of exhibiting love."

However, Constance Torisky, the head of the Pennsylvania chapter of the National Society for Autistic Children, does not believe such children lack emotions. She attributes their disinterested, apathetic response as an attempt to conserve emotion.

"They can't afford to engage in a relationship that makes an emotional demand on them," she said.

Their alternative — their refuge — is a world of inanimate objects where there are no emotional demands. A particular autistic child might stack blocks in the same pattern for hours on end. He finds security in the repetition.

Unfortunately, the repetition and unresponsiveness cause many parents to incorrectly assume their children are retarded. However, the autistic often have I.Q.'s of average or better. Many exhibit extraordinary mathematical or musical aptitude.

The condition was named by Dr. Leo Kanner of Johns Hopkins University in 1948. Scientists don't know the source of the affliction. But they have theories.

Child psychologist Bruno Bettelheim of Chicago, theorized that parents are to blame. But his contention — that children withdrew as a result of a hostile environment — has been largely discounted.

Most psychologists and psychiatrists believe the symptoms probably result from a variety of bio-chemical disorders.

Dr. Rimland believes body chemistry and brain disfunctions are the roots of the problem — not environmental factors.

Dr. Lapin says autistic children may never be normal.

"But," he says, "they can be rehabilitated. They can work. They can be trained. They can do meaningful things."

Dentist's Whistling Might Be On Bill

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in the process of having some root canal work done, which is no picnic, but that's not my problem. It's my dentist. While he works, he whistles through his teeth.

I wouldn't mind a little Herb Alpert or Burt Bacharach, but no, my dentist keeps whistling "Easter Parade" over and over again until I am ready to scream!

Not only that, but he calls me "Mrs. Grassfield," and my name is Mrs. Greenfield.

Should I deduct 20 per cent from my bill for aggravation?

MRS. GREENFIELD

DEAR MRS. GREENFIELD: You could try. Maybe he's already added 20 per cent for entertainment.

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved to this city to be near my married son and his family. Although my son and his wife have many fine traits, they use foul language that I find very offensive.

I frequently babysit with their children (ages 5 and 9), and I am horrified to hear these children use the same vulgar four-letter words their parents use.

I have told my son and his wife it offends me, and I've asked them not to allow their children to talk that way, but they say I'm old-fashioned and prudish, and everybody talks that way today. (Do they?)

I was also told I'm not to discipline their children because that's the parents' job.

Have our values become so depraved that clean speech, modesty and respect for others no longer exist? What am I to do?

HEARTBROKEN IN HARTFORD

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: You can decline to babysit with your grandchildren. Clean speech, modesty and respect for others still exist in some homes, but unfortunately not in your son's.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen a problem like mine in your column.

I have two fathers who are equally dear to me. My "real" (biological) father and my adoptive father.

When I was four, my parents were divorced, but my father always kept in close touch and let me know that he loved me all the years I was growing up.

My mother remarried when I was six, and I can truthfully say that my adoptive father could not have been more wonderful to me.

I am being married at a church wedding. My problem is which father I should choose to give me away. I don't want to hurt the feelings of either father by choosing the other. It was suggested that the ideal solution would be to have an uncle give me away. Please help me.

TORN

DEAR TORN: Why not ask both fathers to share the honor? And when the clergyman asks, "Who gives this bride away?" both fathers can respond in unison, "We do." Check this out with your clergyman. You are twice blessed.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Watercress Is Super As Garnish

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

An ancient Greek pundit once advised "eat more cress and learn wit." This prophet may have been without honor in his own land, but the Romans took him seriously enough to consume quantities of the leafy green with vinegar as a remedy for unbalanced minds.

Today we eat this tasty member of the mustard family as a garnish or ingredient for innumerable dishes from canapes to piecrust. Cress covers such varieties as peppergrass, Rocket and Belle Isle, but the most popular is watercress. It grows profusely in this country wherever there is a damp spot. In fact, it gets its name because it grows in cold running water. As a child I used to watch my mother gather watercress from a rippling brook that meandered through the woods in back of our house.

All cresses have crisp green leaves and a pungent taste. Peppergrass can be sprinkled over beet soup and all varieties can be boiled as potherbs. All are a tasty addition to summer salads.

Minced, cresses are good sprinkled on cream soup and are an excellent garnish for vegetables. Watercress is used to dress up canapes and seafood appetizers. It is also used to garnish meats, fish and fowl. It can be blended into cottage cheese and is a popular ingredient for cream cheese spreads.

Watercress goes well in omelets and other egg dishes and can be added to biscuit dough or pie crust. I like it chopped fine and sprinkled over carrots, cauliflower, potatoes and a host of green vegetables.

Watercress is a native of temperate Europe and was brought to this country years ago. It can be found by almost any American pond or brook.

The origins of cress are vague, but it is believed that it may be related to the Latin word for grass or perhaps the Sanskrit verb meaning to nibble.

One English writer who lived during the Renaissance period had his own views about cress. He opined that "the eating of cress doth restore the wanted bloom to the cheeks of old-young ladies."

Here's a recipe I like for watercress sauce. 13½-ounce can chicken

broth
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
1-3rd cup cold water
1 ounce dry white wine 2½ cups chopped watercress ¼ teaspoon salt
Dash tabasco

Heat chicken broth in saucepan to boiling point. In a cup with fork blend flour and water till smooth. Reduce heat to medium and gradually stir mixture into hot broth and add wine. Cook, stirring steadily, till sauce is smooth and thickened. Stir in remaining ingredients. Simmer 2 minutes. Serve with chicken or fish.

Villagers Make Art Cottage Industry

By KENNETH WHITING

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — Art as cottage industry in the Ubud area seems as well organized as General Motors.

Art experts say that products churned out to satisfy the tourist trade are as stereotyped and repetitive as models from the same production line.

Such criticism matters little to painters, carvers and other craftsmen, most of whom seem to be without pretensions of artistic originality and are candid about sticking with what sells best.

"You like this," said a teenage salesgirl as she displayed a painting for a visitor. It was not so much a question, more a statement of fact. He nodded.

"We sell many just like it," she said, looking pleased that previous market research had been confirmed.

Groups of artists tend to work together and share popular subjects, styles and color schemes. Scenes of rice harvesting, dances, temple ceremonies, festivals and cock fights are repeated endlessly. Episodes from the Ramayana, the Hindu epic poem, provide dozens of themes.

"Artistic property cannot exist in the communal Balinese culture; if an artist invents or copies something that is an interesting novelty, soon all the others are reproducing the new find," said Miguel Covarrubias in his book "The Island of Bali."

The Balinese have been painting for centuries. They adopted new techniques, including oil paints, from itinerant European artists who started arriving in the 1920s. Now, in the name of modern merchandising, travelers' checks and credit cards are accepted at "art shops" around Ubud where more than 1,000 craftsmen live.

One popular woodcarver has 70 fulltime assistants in his shop and 80 others who carve parttime at home when work is finished in the rice paddies.

Boys as young as 6 or 7 are apprenticed to established artists. The artists' status is not judged only by the prices fetched by their work or the numbers of items sold, but also by the number of students under their wing.

Rhodesia Can Expect No Help

While there is some sympathy in this country for the white governments of Rhodesia and South Africa it has to be becoming obvious what their ultimate fate will be.

An Associated Press story recently reported that U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith that "the game is up."

Reportedly Smith was willing to recognize this and advise his cabinet that power must be yielded to the black majority.

Kissinger was reported to have pointed out that white Rhodesians could expect no help from the rest of the world if they were overrun. The United States wouldn't help after its disastrous Vietnamese involvement. South Africa wouldn't be able to help because of its own racial problems. In short the relatively small white group in Rhodesia would be in a sea of hostility and in danger of annihilation.

It's sad but it's true that that is the future the whites face in Rhodesia. One-by-one colonial powers have left the continent and black majorities have taken over control of their countries. One can argue that the white man brought civilization and progress to these lands; nevertheless the natives wanted to control their own destinies and they got that control.

Now the blacks of Rhodesia and South Africa also want control and it is likely that they are going to get it, either through bloodshed or by negotiation.

An orderly transfer of power with possibly some means of compensating Rhodesian whites for property losses would be preferable to a civil war.

That might mean leaving their homeland and relocating in some other part of the world for many white Rhodesians, but that will be better than more destruction and perhaps death.

Another Payoff From Hospital

A $40,000 grant to Pitt Memorial Hospital will provide equipment for a nursery for premature babies.

The grant came from the Department of Human Resources which has chosen Greenville as a regional center for treating babies with breathing difficulties.

It is just one more way the investment which Pitt County taxpayers made in the new hospital is paying off.

Can Demos Keep Unity?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A simple fact is obvious from even a casual look at recent election history in North Carolina and nationally:

It is not so much that Republicans have won, but that Democrats have succeeded in beating themselves.

The Democratic Party almost traditionally has ripped itself apart in primaries or conventions to the degree that repairs were not possible in time for the General elections.

This year's Democratic Party Convention in New York was a rare exception for its harmonious (deliberately done) proceedings.

And now, North Carolina Democrats are intent upon putting forth an equally harmonious face for the party—all the way from local posts to the presidency.

The nucleus is the Jim Hunt campaign organization; credited widely with being the largest, most diligent, best organized bunch of enthusiastic volunteers seen in this state in many years.

With top-level changes in the party leadership in Raleigh just effected, the Hunt team is clearly in the saddle.

And the word has gone from headquarters to the field: the Democratic Party is running united with EVERY candidate for office touching base with the organization.

"It is overall the best unified, totally organized political package I have ever seen in North Carolina," says former Gov. Bob Scott. "The message will be Vote Democratic across the board."

Will the harmonious, unified package hold up through November?

It showed signs of unraveling during days preceding the September 14 runoff in the lieutenant governor's race.

—A forged letter had Jim Hunt endorsing Howard Lee over Jimmy Green. Word quickly went across the state in official and unofficial ways that the trick came not from any Democratic Party sources, but was without doubt a Republican effort to create disunity.

—Down East rumors that a plot was already afoot to turn out massive black votes, elect Howard Lee, then eliminate Jim Hunt so North Carolina would have its first black governor fortunately were rejected by reasonable people, and never spread far nor rapidly.

One Remains
—Some urban and resort area proponents of liquor-by-drink remain angry that Ed O'Herron did not get the Democratic nod, and threaten to go for Republican David T. Flaherty. Sounder reasoning goes, however, that despite the new governor, North Carolina's utter rejection of drinks in 1972 buries that issue for another decade.

Scott, who is working for Jimmy Carter (they were governors during the same years and Scott was an early supporter), agrees that recent elections reflected less a voter enchantment with Republicanism than a Democratic fumbling. "People voted not so much for Nixon as against McGovern," he thinks.

Carter, on the other hand, is both acceptable to Tar Heel Democrats, as well as the recipient of considerable regional pride support.

Further, Scott says, "Hunt has the troops—and they delivered. The two strong elements, then, in this state are Carter and Hunt."

"Carter doesn't have the strong organization to the degree which Hunt does. Working together—and in tandem with the other candidates across the state—I think the party can win," Scott says.

If so, North Carolina will have witnessed the rather unusual phenomenon of a presidential aspirant being swept into national office on the coat-tails of a local leader.

WISH HIM LUCK!

Charley And The MIG

WASHINGTON — When Lieutenant Viktor Belenko of the Soviet Air Force delivered a spanking new MIG-25 "Foxbat" fighter plane to the Japanese last week, there was tremendous excitement amongst all Western military commands. The Foxbat is considered the world's fastest warplane and everyone, especially the U.S. Air Force intelligence people, were dying to have an opportunity to examine every toggle switch on it.

The Japanese knew the Soviet Union would put tremendous pressure on them to have the MIG-25 returned immediately so they asked the United States how they could stall for time. Pentagon officials huddled for a few days and then a general came up with the answer. "What we need is an expert in stalling — someone who can keep the MIG from being sent back and at the same time not offend the Soviets." "Whom do you have in mind?" the secretary of defense asked.

"Charley Muleback." "Who the hell is Charley Muleback?" another general asked.

"I can't tell you now," the general replied.

Muleback was flown out that evening. He arrived at Hakodate airport and was taken to the Foxbat which had been completely sealed off by the Japanese and under heavy guard. In another part of the airport an angry Russian Embassy official was screaming at the Japanese officials that the Soviet Union wanted its MIG back immediately, and if they didn't get it there would be serious consequences.

The Japanese introduced Muleback to the Russian.

"Tell him," Muleback said, "that the plane's been completely totaled and we're going to have to start from scratch to rebuild it."

A Japanese official translated this to the Russian.

The Russian protested that the plane was in perfect condition and there wasn't a scratch on it.

Muleback shook his head. "That's what all MIG-25 owners say, but they never look underneath the plane where the real damage is. Besides, we're going to have

Errors About Vetoes

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford and Jimmy Carter traded claims during their debate on the number of presidential vetoes from Civil War days up to Ford's administration. But both erred in their numbers.

"We've never had a president since the War Between the States that vetoed more bills. Mr. Ford has vetoed four times as many bills as Mr. Nixon, per year, and 11 of them have been overridden," Carter said during Thursday night's confrontation. However, the book "Facts About the Presidents" lists Grover Cleveland with 414 vetoes in his first term and 170 in his second, Theodore Roosevelt with 82 vetoes, Franklin Roosevelt with a record 631, Truman with 250 and Eisenhower with 181.

Carter also erred on the number of Ford's vetoes that have been overridden. It is 12, not 11. Forty-two of his vetoes have been sustained.

The President came back to the subject of vetoes later in the debate, accusing Carter of playing "fast and loose" with the facts.

Ford said President Franklin D. Roosevelt vetoed an average of 55 bills a year and President Harry S. Truman vetoed an average of 38 a year.

Ford was correct in claiming he had fewer vetoes than Roosevelt and Truman. But the averages for Roosevelt, 48 a year, and Truman, 36 a year, were less than Ford claimed.

Ford also claimed that his vetoes have saved Americans $9 billion, and he said his vetoes could have saved an additional $13 billion if Congress hadn't overridden them.

To the editor:

Greenville is submerged in enthusiasm! Not since President Kennedy visited East Carolina's campus on a speaking engagement has Greenville exhibited the degree of excitement and exuberance created by Pat Dye's football Pirates.

The football season constitutes a full slate of games, but with nine encounters remaining the gridiron Pirates certainly harbor the thoughts of an undefeated schedule and a legitimate shot at a major bowl. With the Pirates playing such outstanding pigskin action—witnessed by their initial triumphs—the citizens of this eastern city realize the regional exposure and the national prestige which the city will undoubtedly receive as the Pirates continue winning.

The essence of this article is intended to portray the pride and excitement which Greenville radiates at this time since the Pirates of ECU are performing victoriously. It is my hope that this article does not pressure the Pirates unduly, but I trust the football team continues to truck toward an undefeated season.

Everyone in Greenville and all of eastern North Carolina are extremely proud of the Pirates' accomplishments, and all of us wish them the very best in their future confrontations.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Jimmy's Big City Friend

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — When Jimmy Carter opened his New York campaign Sept. 7 at Brooklyn College by pledging "complete support from the White House" to remedy the city's financial headaches, a smiling Mayor Abraham Beame was at his side—a presence disturbing to key figures in finance and politics.

Carter months ago abandoned his hard line on this city's profligacy. But beyond that, he has made the beleaguered mayor his main man here to the exclusion of Wall Street and state government leaders. Neither the Democratic nominee nor his advisers consult either Gov. Hugh Carey of financier Felix Rohatyn, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp. overseeing city hall's tangled finances.

That Carter is identified so heavily with the mayor carries implications both political and financial. Democratic politicians, noting Carter's unexpectedly narrow lead here, are not pleased by the Beame connection. The city's financial watchdogs fear Carter is underwriting chronic mismanagement at city hall which can only lead to ultimate disaster.

Carter has proved himself more than nimble enough to get out of any unwise commitments here. Nevertheless, his curious course on New York's fiscal woes contributes to continued aloofness here by many Democrats toward the probable first Democratic President in eight years.

While campaigning in Iowa and New Hampshire early this year, Carter was a pinch-penny from the provinces, warning the Big Apple that it "would be inappropriate for the federal government to single out New York City for special favors." His sympathy for the city grew as New York's April primary neared, then mushroomed as he wooed Beame and other New York delegates.

Carter's pro-New York posture for the fall campaign was stressed at Brooklyn College when he denounced President Ford "for telling New York to drop dead." Although "drop dead" actually was the New York Daily News interpretation rather than the President's own words, Carter was playing sound politics. What is not so sound is Carter's becoming pro-Beame as well as pro-New York.

Political insiders believe Beame is responsible for Carter neglecting to discuss city fiscal problems with Gov. Carey or Felix Rohatyn. "Abe doesn't want Jimmy getting an earful of what's wrong at city hall," one Democratic politician told us.

The politically sensitive Carter might have doubted the wisdom of this when the overflow crowd at Brooklyn

College greeted Beame with boisterous booing. Whereas the close embrace of the mayor is a mixed blessing for Carter in this city, it is of no help whatever in upstate New York (now representing over half the state vote).

Beyond politics, one important Wall Streeter calls Carter's tie with Beame "like relying on the people who brought us Pearl Harbor." Such business critics fear that Carter's pledge to stretch the present three-year federal financing to six, seven or even eight years not only satisfied the mayor's heartfelt desire but may be interpreted at city hall as a green light for renewed extravagance.

However, many business men and politicians here do not take Carter's commitment to New York all that seriously. Whatever the cost of embracing the mayor, it has not reassured New Yorkers about Carter's intentions.

"I'm telling you," said one liberal Democratic operative, "nobody in this town trusts Jimmy Carter on New York City." More sur-

Strength For Today

FEVER OF AVARICE
A man whose business is to advise people about investments has a sign hanging on the wall of his office: "Get eight percent and eat better; take five percent and sleep better."

People are not hurt spiritually by earning money, either in small amounts or large, but the very potential of their souls is eaten out by the fever of avarice. Just as the use of alcohol often promotes alcoholism, so money-making often promotes the disease of avarice.

Get eight percent and eat well. This is good as far as it goes, but a quiet and secure mind is better. Better security and sleep than a surefeit and sleeplessness.

Being satisfied with what one has is an art which few people have the patience and character to develop. The desire for things led Judas to betray, and his example has been followed elsewhere more times than we can count.

The more we are satisfied with what we have, the more things we discover in life which are truly satisfying.

—by Elisha Douglass

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The shattering impact of one day's economic news demonstrates again how basically nervous and indecisive the stock market really is.

After dallying in a 60-point range from roughly 950 to just over 1,011 points for several months, the Dow Jones industrial average exploded for 20.28 points on Tuesday.

It was the 13th time since March that it had surmounted 1,000 points. In each of the previous spurts the energy seemed to drain from the market shortly after reaching that psychological benchmark.

This time, the usual Wall Street commentators said, it might be over that hurdle for an extended period. It stood at a 1976 high of 1,014.79 points, highest in 44 months, and traders said that level was supported by a scaffold of economic statistics.

The prime interest rate had fallen below 7 per cent. Consumer inflation at an annual rate of 6 per cent was viewed as moderate. Institutions were financially poised for action. Short traders were being forced to buy.

If over-all the recovery was proceeding slowly, well this too could be viewed as constructive. Traders observed that a slow but steady recovery was the economy's best protection against a new surge of inflation.

The mood continued into Wednesday, when the average rose another 8 points by early afternoon. Volume was heavy, suggesting some conviction behind the advance. Strength in blue chips was viewed as wholesome.

Then came the shattering news from the Commerce Department that new orders for durable goods—big ticket items that represent major, long-term investments, such as industrial machinery for manufacturers and refrigerators for consumers—fell sharply for the second month in a row.

Not only was a decline of 2.2 per cent recorded for August, but in the same announcement the government economists told of a revision in the July figures to an even worse decline of 2.4 per cent.

It didn't matter that both these reports might later be revised to show a less bleak picture. This was a dark cloud floating over the sunny market and nobody wanted to get struck by lightning. They sold.

What if indeed the Commerce Department reports are statistical exaggerations based on incomplete data?

It probably wouldn't change things much because, while the statistics might be questioned, there was little doubt that the primary metals industries were really beginning to hurt. Steel orders were off. Layoffs were spreading.

When steel demand drops it rings a loud bell in the minds of investors because, despite the inroads of plastics, steel still is the most basic industry, supplier to a thousand others. It is the bellwether, and the bell sounded tinny.

Other news, of course, was involved in the immense change of mind. In the new, less exuberant mood, for instance, it is likely that some investment managers reconsidered that "moderate" 6 per cent inflation rate and recognized that, continued, it would make a dollar worth a penny in just 12 years.

In reacting as it did, the market also forgot some mildly encouraging observations by analysts, such as the apparent strength in corporate profits and the large number of dividend increases, by General Motors and IBM, among others.

For the moment, few large investors—and large institutions were active both Tuesday and Wednesday—didn't question the Commerce Department report. Understated or exaggerated, it still was a warning to get out of the way.

How long this attitude will persist is anyone's guess, because at this point in the economic cycle the public is offered both good news and bad, buy signals and sell signals. Something's going on in the economy; there's a shift.

Whether the current pause is to be followed by a renewal of recovery or a drift back toward recession is a speculative consideration.

$11,245 To Put Trainee In Job

RALEIGH (AP) — Bungling and conflicting rules by the federal government are largely to blame for North Carolina's cost averaging $11,245 to place a Manpower trainee in a job, state officials have charged.

In a 32-page letter to the U.S. Department of Labor, state officials admitted North Carolina is not without blame itself and promised to streamline procedures to cut costs. The letter, signed by Gov. Jim Holshouser, was sent last week but was made public Thursday.

prising is this assessment from a prominent Democratic business man conversant with both politics and city government here: "I don't think there's a hell of a lot to choose from between Carter and Ford (on New York City questions)."

Considering Mr. Ford's minimal compassion for New York, equating him with Carter may be less rational than irritable. After reading an interview with Carter covering the city's problems in the Sept. 13 New York Magazine, government and financial figures are as puzzled as ever about what he really intends for the city. "I don't know what Carter wants, and I don't give a damn," one irritated state official told us. "I'll wait to find out when he's President, if ever."

As a candidate influenced by polls, Carter might react to last week's New York Times survey of Democratic voters showing a high unfavorable rating for Beame and a high favorable rating for Carey. But apart from the mayor's lack of popularity, key figures responsible for the city's snarled finances are in contact with Jimmy Carter only by reading New York Magazine. That helps explain Carter's tenuous lead in a state where he ought to win a landslide.

"Just give us the plane as it is!"

Muleback listened to the translation and shook his head.

"I'm sorry, mister. It's too late now because we've got the whole thing torn apart. We were under the impression you wanted your MIG plane fixed up so no one would ever know it had been totaled on a Japanese runway."

The Japanese officials were horrified to see the Russian Embassy official beat his head against the ticket counter.

That night the general in the Pentagon received a cable which said, "I did like you said. Regards, Muleback."

The elated general showed it to everyone at the meeting.

"All right," the secretary of defense said. "Who the hell is Muleback?"

The general replied, "He runs a body shop in Alexandria. My kid smashed up my Mustang and it took Muleback six months to repair it. I figured if it took him six months to repair a Mustang, it would take him three years to patch up a MIG-25, providing he can get all the parts."

"Many problems can be directly attributed to the action or inaction by the Department of Labor and the Congress of the United States," the letter said.

The Manpower program oversees public service job placement, on-the-job training programs, counseling and the emergency jobs program for the unemployed. The programs are run by local governments, nonprofit organizations, colleges and other public assistance agencies.

The 32-page report to Washington included complaints that:

—Labor officials issued policy guidelines for the coming year's Manpower program 10 months after the state began working on its plan and just a month before the state plan was due.

—The department has repeatedly failed to meet its own schedule for issuing grants.

—The department has yet to give the state a handbook on preparing Manpower forms even though the handbook's requirements took effect in July.

—The department has issued conflicting guidelines and information, particularly over which of two federal minimum wages should be paid persons employed by Manpower programs.

In July a Labor Department assessment concluded that the state program was "marginal" overall, though it had shown improvement. The average cost of $11,245 is about $15,000 less than what it cost about a year ago to put a person in the program to work. The goal is to reach a cost of $4,538 per person put to work.

State officials said the program will reach between 17,000 and 19,000 persons in the next year.

In the next week or so, the state expects to learn whether its Manpower funding will be renewed. At stake is between $17 million and $50 million depending on the state's unemployment rate and which job bills are approved by Congress

Probation In Gun-Running

NEW YORK (AP) — The former operator of a pool hall in Charlotte, N.C., John Kiriakos, 50, who pleaded guilty in August to a federal gun-running conspiracy charge, received a three-year probationary sentence Thursday.

Steven Frankel, attorney for the New York Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime, would not comment when asked for whom the guns were ultimately intended, whether any cash exchanged hands, or where the guns are now. Frankel said that Kiriakos showed three machine guns in Charlotte to Daniel Philip Brown, a government informant.

Kiriakos was arrested last April 28 in Charlotte after a New York grand jury indicted him and two others on a charge of conspiring to sell and ship 20 cases of handguns and five machine guns from Charlotte to New York City.

Another defendant, John Trambitis, 35, of Seattle, Wash., got a six-month prison sentence after pleading guilty in June.

The third accused conspirator, Toni Lavio, 28, of New York City, has not been arrested.

Two Complete 30 Years In Army Reserves

1st Lt. Robert E. Dickinson, Reception Co. B, and SSgt. Edgar Driver, Initial Receiving Branch of Detachment Two, 3398th US Army Reception Station at Goldsboro, recently completed 30 years in the Reserves.

Capt. Thomas Westbrook, Detachment Two commander, said that both Dickinson and Driver, natives of Goldsboro, joined the unit in 1946 after serving on active duty.

LTC John C. Atkeson, 3398th Reception Station commander in Greenville, headquarters site for the unit, noted that it is rare that an Army Reservist can complete 30 years with the same unit and particularly noteworthy that two men can join the same unit at the same time and complete 30 years of service in the Reserve together.

Okays Rezoning

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Planning and Zoning Board received a petition from C.D. Langston requesting rezoning 15 acres of his land from Agricultural Residential to Industrial at its Monday meeting. The board voted to grant Langston's request and rezone the land.

Lyman Grubbs was present at the meeting replacing L.I. Rouse as one of the five members on the board from outside of the town.

Both Essentially Right On Governor's Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jimmy Carter and President Ford drew very different portraits of Carter's record as governor in their debate Thursday night. Both were essentially accurate, even though they cited strikingly different statistics.

For example, Ford said the number of state employees went up 25 per cent during Carter's term. The Georgian said that the number of state workers rose by 2 per cent in his last year in office. Both were apparently right.

Carter said as governor "we had a bureaucratic mess like we have in Washington now. And we had 300 agencies, departments, bureaus, commissions, some fully budgeted, some not.... We eliminated 278 of them. We set up a simple structure of government that could be administered fairly and it was a tremendous success."

Ford did not dispute the specific figures, but the number of boards, bureaus and agencies eliminated has been contested previously by some Georgia officials. One planning specialist, for example, said there were 66 budgeted agencies before reorganization — not 300.

The number left is also in dispute. Carter's count of 22 major operating divisions does not include independent, operating agencies such as the Georgia Forest Research Council, various state retirement systems and parks authorities, all of which receive state funds.

Pressed during the debate about whether he planned to cut the over-all number of federal employees or merely put them in different departments with new labels, Carter said, "I can't say for sure that we would have fewer federal employees when I get out of office than when I came in."

He said the last year he was in office in Georgia (1974) the state budget was less than it was the year before, "which showed a great improvement."

Carter said there was a 2 per cent boost in the number of employees the last year he was governor, but it was a shift from administrative jobs "into the field to deliver better services. The same thing would be done at the federal level."

He cited a reduction in Transportation Department employees and the increase in the number of state workers at mental hospitals.

Ford said Carter's record in his four years as governor showed that "employees of the government in Georgia during his term of office went up over 25 per cent. And the figures also show that the bonded indebtedness of the state of Georgia during his governorship went up over 20 per cent."

State employment, not counting teachers, rose under Carter from 34,322 to 42,400, an increase of 24 per cent.

Knowledgeable observers in Atlanta said that the 2 per cent figure for the last year of Carter's term was nearly accurate, but a year-by-year breakdown was not immediately available.

During the term of Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox, employment rose 45 per cent. Figures on the state's debt during Carter's term were not immediately available.

Ford also said Bureau of the Census figures showed "expenditures by the government went up over 50 per cent" during Carter's term.

The Georgia budget increased from $1.067 billion in fiscal 1971 to $1.675 billion in fiscal 1975, a boost of 58.5 per cent. The growth rate was 61 per cent under Maddox, who is the American Independent party's presidential candidate this year.

Ford also said that "there was some very interesting testimony given by Gov. Carter's successor, Gov. (George) Busbee, before a Senate committee a few months ago on how he found the Medicaid program when he came into office following Gov. Carter."

"He testified ... he found the Medicaid program in Georgia in shambles."

After the debate, a Busbee spokesman said he was not criticizing Carter when he testified — "The governor's testimony was directed at the Medicaid program as administered nationally."

See Record Leaf Price

FARMVILLE — A record top price of $3.00 per pound, breaking all previous records for the price paid for tobacco sold on the Farmville market, was realized during Wednesday's sales. The record sale was a company purchase.

The market also surpassed the previous high average with a top practical price of $1.30 per pound realized.

Quality of offerings was the best in several years, with grades marketed covering grades from the bottom to the top of the stalk. Leaf and smoking leaf accounted for most of the volume. Stabilization receipts accounted for only .71 per cent of gross sales.

A total of 354,108 pounds was sold on the Farmville market Wednesday for an average of $127.56 per 100 pounds.

To date the market has sold 20,290,823 for a total of $23,078,240 for a season average of $113.74 per 100 pounds. This compares with an average of $97.78 per 100 pounds on this date last year.

Carter contended that Ford's vetoes saved only $4 billion, not $9 billion, adding that "the cost in unemployment compensation, welfare and lost revenues has increased $23 billion in the last two years."

Neither candidate offered any breakdown or documentation for his claims about the costs and savings of vetoes. Ford's claim of saving $9 billion could not immediately be confirmed.

One bill that Ford vetoed was the $6-billion public jobs program that Congress later revised downward to a $3.7-billion program and passed over his second veto.

Paul VI Embattled As Years, Hostility Rise

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Age and increasing hostility have turned Pope Paul VI into an insular figure battling threats of schism and personal attacks from the right and the left.

Pope Paul will be 79 next Sunday, just a year short of the age he himself decreed that cardinals should give up their jobs and be deprived of voting rights for a new Pope.

But long-time Vatican observers give little credence to theories of papal retirement. According to Vatican doctors, the most serious ailment suffered by the Pope is arthritis of the right knee which causes him difficulty in walking.

The past year, the 13th of his pontificate, has brought a series of events that have forced the Pope into an increasingly defensive position — a Communist-affiliated mayor in Rome, and personal attacks from dissidents within the Roman Catholic Church.

The biggest threat to papal authority today comes not from any young reformist priest threatening to become a modern day Martin Luther. Rather the Pope is most concerned about an elderly French bishop, the Most Rev. Marcel Lefebvre, who says Mass in Latin, wears old-fashioned lace-trimmed vestments and longs to return to the pre-Reformation purity of the Catholic Church.

Bishop Lefebvre has accused the Pope of being influenced by Protestants, Communists and Free Masons, and the bishop is figurative leader of a breakaway movement that threatens to become a full-fledged schism with its own priests and bishops.

The threats of schism were lessened somewhat when Pope Paul met personally with Bishop Lefebvre Sept. 11 for an hour-long conversation that left the bishop encouraged about prospects for the future. But there was no guarantee that positions would not harden again.

The response of Pope Paul to all these challenges has been a change of perspective that has been developing for years.

During the early part of his papacy, Paul VI captured the fascination of the world with a tour of the slums of Bombay in India, a trip to the United Nations in New York to plead for world peace, the first papal visit to the heart of Africa and a 40,000-mile tour of Asia and the South Pacific.

Since the 1970 Asian-Pacific trip, Pope Paul has not been outside Italy. The most extensive recent trip was a 60-mile helicopter flight Aug. 9 from his summer home in Castel Gandolfo to Bolsena, where he joined himself "in spirit" with the International Eucharistic Congress in Philadelphia. The event only dramatized to what extent the "Apostle on the move" has become a stay-at-home Pope.

Funds Received By Juvenile Program

A Juvenile Officer Program, currently operating in the Pitt County Sheriff's Department recently received second year funds totaling $2,253 from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, according to the Mid-East Commission.

Department officers recognize the need to continue the specialized unit which deals specifically with young people. Since its inception in August of 1975, the Juvenile Unit has established contact with over 200 juveniles.

Program statistics reveal that the majority of the juveniles were given counseling and returned to their parents. Other juveniles, contacted by the newly established unit, were either taken to court for the disposition of their cases, placed on probation or sent to training schools. Twenty-five juvenile cases were referred to other agencies.

Pitt County will assume the project cost on June 30, 1978 if the juvenile unit program continues to accomplish results and if county funds are available at that time.

Will Speak At Revival

Homecoming day will be held at Gum Swamp F.W.B. Church Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m. with Sunday School, followed by the morning worship service at 11 a.m., with lunch to be served on the church grounds at noon. Those attending are encouraged to bring a picnic lunch to share.

The morning worship will have special singing and a note-burning ceremony for the new fellowship building. The Rev. J. Stewart Humphrey, pastor, will deliver the morning message.

Following lunch, "The Gospel Chargers" of Winterville will provide special music.

On Monday, September 27, a week of revival services will be held at Gum Swamp, continuing through Friday, October 1, with services at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

The end of your search for a friendly church.

In the Big Leagues or the Little League, at the World Series or on a sandlot—the rule is the same: Three strikes and you're out! And it's also one of the basic rules of life. Missed opportunities spell failure! But it's your attitude that counts. Come to the plate knowing you'll strike out... and you will! Take a positive approach in all matters—even religious education. Every Sunday in our churches hundreds of boys and girls gain a spiritual foundation that will help them fulfill their richest opportunities. Their parents, too, in worship and Christian service, are learning to improve the quality of life in our community. Be sure—next Sunday morning.

“Cash-Flow”SM and your lifelong battle of income vs. outgo.

That first paycheck can seem pretty big, until you start paying for your own food, clothes, and housing.

The median price of a home in the U.S. today is $39,300. Something to consider when you need room for kids.

Sending kids through four years of college can cost anywhere from $10,000 up, depending on where they go to school.

In a working life, you make hundreds of thousands of dollars. So you shouldn't have money worries when you retire.

Over your lifetime, you'll have a lot of money coming in.

And a lot of money going out. Sometimes, you'll have more than you need. Other times, you won't have enough.

And, in this lifelong battle of income vs. outgo, a bank can help you in a lot of ways. By looking at things more from your point of view. And less from the bank's point of view.

NCNB INTRODUCES LIFETIME "CASH-FLOW" BANKING.

"Cash-Flow" is a new way of banking designed to work for you, whatever your situation.

Whether you're a 20-year-old with your first job, or a couple planning your retirement.

It considers more than just the banking business you do; it also considers all the things that affect your financial life. So we've put together booklets covering eight different situations.

They're designed to help you with everyday finances, long-range planning and putting NCNB services to work for you.

Then, our people are trained to do more for you than open an account or make you a loan. They'll answer your questions and help you find the best way to handle things. (If they can't answer your questions, they'll find someone who can.)

Finally, our services have been designed to be flexible enough to help you make the most of the money you make.

HOW TO START GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A BANK.

One of our booklets fits your situation right now and it's yours for the asking.

So stop by any NCNB office and pick one up. Or just call our toll-free number, 800-822-8855 and we'll send you a copy.

Either way, do it soon. With all the money you earn, save, spend and borrow over a lifetime, it pays to get the most out of your bank.

And, we think you'll get more when your bank is NCNB.

Bucs Meet Indians In 1st Loop Game

Halfback Willie Hawkins

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last Saturday, Saturday, East Carolina University played N. C. State and pride and prestige at stake.

This Saturday, the 2-0 Bucs travel to Williamsburg, Va., to meet William & Mary — and much more may hang in the balance.

It's the first conference contest for the Pirates, who have set winning the title as their prime goal for this, their last year in the Southern. But William & Mary, figured by many as the cellar-dweller in the league, flexed new-found muscles early in thumping VMI, 34-20, and then breezed past Virginia, 14-0.

Those two wins gave the Indians a lot more than just pride. It has given them a new beginning and they are thinking "title" themselves now.

It all boils down to a heck of a game come 1:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye is worried about the game for several reasons. His Pirates didn't play as well as he would have liked in their 23-14 win over State. "If we don't play better, there's a very good chance that we will get beaten," he said.

But the Bucs have had a good week of preparation, he added. "I expect us to be ready, and I'm going to be really disappointed if we are not.

"This team has a lot at stake in this game. In fact, just about every time we line up this year, it means something," Dye said. "And we are certainly playing a capable team."

Dye added that he has no doubt in his mind that William & Mary will be ready for the game.

"Our players respect William & Mary. The fact that they're 2-0 proves that they can win... just as the fact that we're 2-0 proves that we can win. It's a critical game in that it's our first conference game. We need to get away to a good start in conference play, not doing that is what hurt us last year. We haven't played our conference games as hard as we have some of the non-conference ones."

And, the coach pointed out, everyone in the league is pointing for the Pirates.

"This (W&M) team may be the best offensive team we've played so far." The Indians run out of the power I and they do about everything off it, the coach said. "They are very well balanced. They have an excellent front on defense, and they're as big as anyone on both of their lines. They have a strong secondary."

William & Mary also has a strong kicking game, as does the Bucs, although Dye feels that the Pirates need to cover kicks better than they are and improve their kickoff return game.

"I'd like to think that we can move the football on them, and I'd like to think that we can stop them. But I feel they'll be able to move the ball too. I just hope we don't get into a scoring contest."

The Bucs have some health problem too. Matt Mullholland has been ill, while Ricky Bennett and Cary Godette have been hampered by injuries. All three are expected to be ready to play, however.

The two teams come into the game as the number two and three offensive teams in the Southern. The Pirates are getting 420.5 yards a game, and allowing just 150.5. William & Mary is picking up 399.0 and allowing 236.0. They are the top two in defense.

The Bucs are rushing for 336.0 yards a game, as compared to 303.0 for the Indians. East Carolina is allowing 81.5 rushing yards, while the Indians are giving up 166.0.

William & Mary ranks last in pass offense with 21.4 yards a game, but they've only attempted 20. East Carolina, with 16 attempts, is fourth with 84.0. Defensively, East Carolina is allowing 64 and the Indians, 70.0.

East Carolina's Mike Weaver leads the team in total offense, picking up 151.9 per game. The Indians' Jim Kruijs leads his team with 142.0, while Tom Rozantz, the quarterback, has a 130.5 average. Kruijs is the tailback in the I formation.

He's also the leading rusher in the Southern with a 142.0 average. Fullback Keith Fimian has a 112.0 mark, East Carolina is led by Willie Hawkins with 95.0 and Eddie Hicks with 86.0.

Indian kicker Joe Agee is East Carolina leads the series booting the ball 44.7 yards, as 5-2-1, winning the last four compared to 39.3 for Tom Daub games, including last year's 20-0 decision.

Aycock Nips Goldsboro

E. B. Aycock came up with his second straight victory yesterday, slipping past Goldsboro, 7-6.

Aycock scored early in the game, getting its touchdown in the first period. Calvin Paige took the ball in from the ten-yard line. Ted King then added the fateful PAT kick for a 7-0 lead.

Goldsboro's lone score came in the second quarter. Jeff Hunter scored on a 60-yard pass play. But a pass try for a two-point conversion failed, leaving Aycock in the lead, 7-6.

Neither team offered another threat until late in the game, when Goldsboro drove near the 20 just before time ran out.

Now 2-0, Aycock travels to Rocky Mount next Thursday.

Ewes Take First Win

SNOW HILL—Greene Central's volleyball team captured its first victory of the season yesterday, downing Farmville Central, 2-1.

Greene Central romped to a 15-1 victory in the opening game, with Lana Ginn serving up seven straight points. Farmville Central came back to take the second game, however, 15-5.

In the match game, Greene Central's Ginn again was the big server, dishing up 12 straight points as the Ewes took the game, 15-8, to win the match.

Greene Central is now 1-3 overall and Farmville Central is 2-2. The Ewes face Roanoke on Tuesday, while Farmville Central travels to Ayden-Grifton.

Frenchy Bordagaray smacked 13 straight hits for Kansas City when the team played in the American Association in 1940.

Tom Robello hit 58 home runs for Pocatello, Idaho, in the Pioneer League in 1939.

Chargers In First

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton captured a hard-fought final game from North Pitt in volleyball yesterday and took a 2-1 win in the match.

The win kept Ayden-Grifton in at least a share of first place in the league with a 3-1 record. North Pitt is now 1-2.

Ayden-Grifton won the first game by a 15-8 score. No long strings of points were run off, with four being the most at any one serve.

North Pitt came up with a 15-8 win in the second game, despite a series of six straight served up by Ayden-Grifton's Patricia Cannon.

Ayden-Grifton, ahead 6-4, saw North Pitt's G. Dixon serve up eight in a row as the Pant-HERS took a 12-6 lead. But Ayden-Grifton fought back to finally pull out the win.

The Chargerettes meet Farmville Central, while North Pitt visits Conley on Tuesday.

Roanoke Tops Vikes

HOLLYWOOD — Roanoke High School edged past D. H. Conley in a 2-1 volleyball match yesterday.

The victory was the second in three starts for Roanoke, while Conley fell back to a 2-2 record in league play.

Roanoke took the first game of the match by a 15-4 margin. Shelia Knight ran off six straight points for the longest Roanoke string during that game.

Conley came back to win the second game, 15-8. Alice Coston scored seven straight points for the Valkyries along the way.

The Squaws came up with the win in the final game however, to win the match, 15-5. Lisa Roberson paced the way, serving up seven straight points for Roanoke.

Royals, Yankees Can't Get The Door Closed

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Kansas City Royals had the opportunity to slam the door in Oakland's face, but the A's still have their feet inside.

"We're very confident," said Oakland's Sal Bando.

The New York Yankees had the chance to seal the door on Baltimore, but the Orioles still see a crack.

"It's possible they'll continue to lose more games," said Baltimore's Rick Dempsey. "The Philadelphia Phillies blew it in 1964 somehow."

The runnersup in the two American League divisional races remained on the critical list, but both still had a wisp of hope after "must" victories over the leaders Thursday night.

The A's refused to die with an 8-1 rout of Kansas City that moved them within five games of the West leaders. The Orioles shocked the Yankees 2-1 to sweep their four-game series and climb within 7½ games of the East front-runners.

"We might have instilled some doubt in them," said Bando after the A's second straight rout of the Royals.

Acknowledging a possible pennant race in the West, Oakland pitcher Mike Torrez said: "We know we have to win every game. Hopefully, Texas will give us a little help. And we're going to have to sweep in Chicago."

The Orioles face more of an impossible mission, since the Yankees' "magic number" for clinching their division is merely three. However, Dempsey, the Baltimore catcher, is hoping for a miracle.

"I don't really think there's any way they can blow it," said Dempsey. "But they really have to break their necks now. If we win all our games I think they'll really have to go hard to win three."

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox routed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-3; the Minnesota Twins blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Texas Rangers nipped the California Angels 6-5.

Torrez hurled a five-hitter to lead Oakland's victory. Torrez, 15-11, was in control all the way, allowing a lone run in the sixth on singles by Tom Poquette, Amos Otis and John Mayberry.

Taking the loss was Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, 17-9, who gave up five runs in the first two innings. The A's pounded seven hits, but were aided by nine walks, three wild pitches and one hit batter.

Rookie Mike Flanagan out-duelled veteran Catfish Hunter for his third major league victory as Baltimore again stalled New York's pennant drive. Flanagan allowed six singles and Ken Singleton drove in both Baltimore runs with a seventh-inning triple and a ninth-inning single. The setback was the fifth in a row for the Yankees, their longest losing streak of the season.

Red Sox 10, Brewers 3
Jim Rice, Bob Montgomery, Dwight Evans and Jack Baker featured a 12-hit attack with home runs, powering Boston over Milwaukee. Veteran Boston left-hander Bill Lee, 5-7, posted his first complete-game victory since Aug. 24, 1975, scattering nine hits.

Twins 3, White Sox 0
Larry Hise tripled leading off the eighth inning to break up Ken Brett's no-hitter and scored on Craig Kusick's sacrifice fly as Minnesota beat Chicago. Pete Redfern, 7-8, tossed a three-hitter while striking out four and walking one.

Rangers 6, Angels 5
Mike Hargrove's ninth-inning home run gave Texas its victory over California. Hargrove connected off relief pitcher Dick Drago, 7-8, after the Angels had rallied to tie the game with two runs in the eighth.

Phillies Win Again; Keep Lead At 6 Games

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies are talking, and more importantly playing, like winners once again.

"Only a monumental collapse can beat us now, and we're not capable of that," said veteran catcher Tim McCarver, whose two-run homer helped Philadelphia beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Thursday night behind the pitching of Steve Carlton, who posted his 19th victory.

"That's the way we played the first part of the year," observed Carlton. "We're starting to play again like we know how."

The victory kept the Phils six full games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East, offsetting the Pirates' 5-4, 10-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

In the only other National League game, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 4-1. New York at Montreal was postponed by rain and cold weather.

The Phils' magic number is now five — any combination of five Philadelphia wins or Pittsburgh losses will give the Phils the division title.

Carlton, 19-6, gave up seven hits and struck out nine over the first eight innings before tiring. Ron Reed pitched a scoreless ninth.

In the eighth inning Wednesday night when the Phillies scored eight runs — hit Bobby Tolan and Greg Luzinski with pitches. The Phillies claimed it was deliberate, that Hrabosky was angry and frustrated by his earlier performance. In the ninth, a pitch from Reed hit the Cards' leadoff hitter, Hector Cruz.

Home plate umpire Dick Stello issued a warning to Reed, which carries with it an automatic $100 fine.

"It was worth it, whatever it cost," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "We'll pay the fine. I'll pay it myself."

Pirates 5, Cubs 4

The Pirates came up with about as unlikely a hero as possible — Ed Ott, a 25-year-old rookie third-string catcher who was making his first major league start.

First Ott made a spectacular tag on a play at the plate to prevent the winning run from scoring in the bottom of the ninth. Then he rapped a run-scoring double in the 10th to score Rennie Stennett with the decisive tally.

Ott was in the lineup only because injuries shelved the Pirates' top two catchers, Manny Sanguillen and Duffy Dyer.

The game was the fifth straight for the Pirates which has been decided in the last inning, including all four in the series which they split with the

Cubs. Dodgers 4, Giants 1

Burt Hooton pitched a three-hitter to raise his record to 11-14, retiring 16 batters in a row in one stretch. He pitched his way out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the ninth by getting Bobby Murcer to fly out and Gary Thomasson to pop out.

Cubs Bow To Cards

JACKSONVILLE — Rose High School's junior varsity went down its fourth straight loss yesterday, but did manage to get on the scoreboard, 27-13.

Doug Selby scored one of the Rampant Cub touchdowns, running back a fumble recovery. The other touchdown came on a run by Durwin Clemons.

David Fulgum kicked one extra point and a two-point try on the other failed.

One of Jacksonville's touchdowns came off a blocked punt. Rose will face Reid Ross in Fayetteville next week.

Pirates Favored In W&M Contest

There are few red faces this week on our panel of experts, and most of us are hoping that there will be none following this week's games.

Just about everything went according to our picks. Three of the panel came up with 11-1 weeks last week, while the other three were 9-3. Not a bad week at all.

On the high school level, we were 6-2, running our record to 16-7. The only misses came in the Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central losses.

It would seem like it would get easier as it goes, but this is not always the case.

The Pitt-Martin-Greene area teams are all involved in league play this week.

First off, Conley plays host to North Lenoir. The Vikings are coming off a hard loss to Havelock, while North Lenoir has yet to post a win. Conley should have the advantage if they're not still shellshocked from last week.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Southern Nash still reeling from three straight losses. Southern Nash is picked by many to be the team to beat in the league. They should win over the Chargers.

Jamesville goes to Bath in a Tobacco Belt game. The Bullets have had no success, while Bath is running wild. The Bullets will fall here.

Farmville Central goes to Greene Central. The Rams have yet to win, while Farmville suffered an upset to Plymouth last week. That surprised us. And a Farmville loss this week will be another surprise. The Jaguars should win.

North Pitt is at C. B. Aycock. The Falcons are another team that has been picked as one of the favorites. Things haven't gone well for the Panthers, and probably won't start this week. Aycock the winner.

Williamston, after four straight, travels to Roanoke Rapids seeking to open conference play with a win. Unless something unexpected happens, the Tigers should keep clawing their way along.

Roanoke is at West Edgecombe in a key game for the Redskins if they want a chance at the title. West has been figured as one of the top teams in the league, and have shown that so far in pre-season play. Roanoke could pull off a surprise, but we'll go with West.

Rose High School is the lone exception to the conference play situation, as they still have two more games before moving into league play. This week, they host Jacksonville.

I'm really up in the air on this one. Rose is coming off a heart-breaking loss, and I don't know how that's going to affect them. Jacksonville has been hot-and-cold.

The panel is divided too. Our forecast sees Jacksonville the winner by a 4-2 margin.

East Carolina travels to William & Mary for a game that has developed into more than was figured in pre-season. The Indians are riding a three-game win streak (one from last year) and would like nothing better than to bump off the Pirates.

And East Carolina must win to keep its bowl and title hopes from being dimmed.

No questions from our panel, however, which casts a 6-0 vote for the Bucs.

Other consensus picks are: Furman over The Citadel; Richmond over VMI; Duke over Virginia; Carolina over Army; Kansas State over Wake; Appalachian over Wofford; Georgia Tech over Clemson; Maryland over Syracuse; Michigan State over State; and Tennessee-Auburn a toss-up.

Science-Fiction Writer Found Sees Trend To Peoria A Good Place To Retreat Pet Scorpions

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
PEORIA, Ill. AP — Thousands of miles from the aerospace industry of Southern California where he used to work and light years distant from his neighbors in Peoria, Philip Jose Farmer wanders in and out of the distant future and vanished past.

Farmer, who writes science fiction, moved to Peoria six years ago because Los Angeles, he said, was overcrowded and too polluted. His new neighbors, he said in an interview, "know what I do for a living, but they don't read science fiction."

So Farmer, an innovative writer in an innovative field, retreats into worlds of his own making, like Riverworld.

The first in the Riverworld series, "To Your Scattered Bodies Go," earned Farmer the Hugo award for best science fiction novel of 1971. He also has Hugos for the best novella of 1969, "Riders of the Purple Wage," and for being the most promising author with his 1952 novel, "The Lovers," which ignored all of science fiction's traditional taboos against sex.

Farmer's books show man the exploiter. "When I was a young writer, I believed in rationality," the author said in an interview. "Not any more. Man is basically irrational. He justifies his actions with logic. ... But I try to show that no matter how bad you are, you're capable of being better — of doing good."

Many of Farmer's stories involve the "middle-size mid-illinois city of Busiris," a thinly disguised Peoria. In "Stations of the Nightmare," Paul Eyre of Busiris asks Leo Tincrowder, a neighbor who writes science fiction, "Why don't you ever write anything good about anybody?"

Tincrowder replies: "The people get the kind of science fiction writer they deserve."

Peoria is Farmer's home town, but he says he has few friends and lives a quiet life.

He is working on three novels at the same time. "You just have to wait yourself off from one world and step into another," he said.

One of the books Farmer is working on is the long-awaited conclusion to the Riverworld series, which takes place in an alien world of the future. Another, in his Hadon of Opar series, is based on the civilizations of ancient Crete and Babylon.

To many people, Farmer is most famous as the Tarzan Hunter — he created a meticulous genealogy of the jungle warrior. Farmer said he got more than 50 letters, some for forwarding to Tarzan and others wondering if Farmer had indeed seen the Ape Man in a Chicago motel — as he claimed.

Farmer was a technical writer for an aerospace firm in California until 1969, when he lost his job in a big industry layoff.

He said he believes the world is headed for a tragic end and Peoria is as good a vantage point as any. Unless something drastic is done about pollution of the oceans and the energy crisis, "civilization is going to crumble," Farmer said.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. (AP) — The "in" thing in pets is tarantulas, but scorpions are coming, says a dealer in pets.

"Very few people walk into the shop to buy tarantulas, but when they see them they are intrigued," said Tom Krause, coowner of Noah's Ark pet shop, a major outlet in the Chicago area for the furry fellows.

"It's impulse buying. They think they are getting something the Joneses don't have," he said. "We don't sell to kids under 18 unless they are accompanied by their parents. We buy them from suppliers five dozen at a crack and they are shipped in containers."

He said he's sold 800 tarantulas so far this year — up 25 per cent over a year ago — "and thousands of live crickets to feed them."

"Now we are getting requests for scorpions from some exotic pet fanciers who have gone through lizards, snakes and tarantulas and are looking for something new to amaze their friends."

Krause said he has only two "poor man's scorpions" in stock for $10 each. They are called Vinegaroons, he said, and don't even belong to the scorpion family, although they look like them. They aren't poisonous, either.

About 90 per cent of tarantula species are harmless, said Krause, who retails them from $10 to $40 for one with a leg spread of six inches. They eat a couple of crickets a day that sell for 50 cents a dozen.

One of the country's tarantula specialists, Esther Lewis, 59, of suburban Lisle, said she "doesn't approve of tarantulas being sold, but if they are it should be under controlled conditions for educational purposes."

"Kids are so hard up for excitement these days they buy them to scare people with," said Mrs. Lewis, who has had them ever since she plucked one from a banana stalk in a Mount Ayr, Iowa, grocery store when she was a young girl.

Another Movie Sequel On 'Walking Tall' Set

HENDERSON, Tenn. (AP) — The movie company which made a legend out of Buford Pusser has returned to West Tennessee to film a third motion picture on the life of the former McNairy County Sheriff.

And Helen Pusser, mother of the late lawman, is glad to see the chronicles end.

"All they want to do now is make a dollar off of him," said Mrs. Pusser, who tried unsuccessfully to halt production of the latest film. "I've appealed it and they're going to go on and make it anyway."

Producer Chuck Pratt said he hopes to complete work on "The Final Chapter—Walking Tall" within seven weeks.

The $2 million production is the third movie about Pusser, who was killed in a 1974 automobile crash about which his mother still voices suspicions.

Mrs. Pusser, 68, of Adamsville believes her son was murdered.

Pusser, who had been defeated in a re-election bid, died while returning to the McNairy County Fair just hours after he had signed to play himself in the movie "Walking Tall—Part Two."

"Nobody who saw the second movie liked it," Mrs. Pusser said. "Nobody who's been by here—and I have three guest registers full of their names—said they liked 'Part Two.'"

Svenson will again be playing Pusser in the latest chapter. Also playing in the film will be

Mrs. Pusser has retained a private investigator who she claims has found proof that foul play was involved. But state law enforcement agencies aren't interested in what the detective has to say, Mrs. Pusser said.

"They say I'm crazy over Buford's death and I don't know what I'm doing."

Pratt said Pusser's death in the movie implies no foul play and is based on police and Tennessee Bureau of Identification investigations.

"We talked to the authorities and I went to the scene of the accident and to the funeral," Pratt said.

The original movie, "Walking Tall," produced in 1972, portrayed Pusser's battle to eliminate bootlegging and gambling in McNairy County along the Mississippi-Tennessee border.

After Pusser's death, Bo Svenson was signed the play the lead in "Walking Tall—Part Two."

"Nobody who saw the second movie liked it," Mrs. Pusser said. "Nobody who's been by here—and I have three guest registers full of their names—said they liked 'Part Two.'"

Svenson will again be playing Pusser in the latest chapter. Also playing in the film will be

Forrest Tucker, Maggie Blye and Sandy McPeak. A company official said about $500,000 would be spent in the Madison County area between Jackson and Henderson where the movie is being shot.

None of the "Walking Tall" movies have been filmed in Pusser's home county because of local opposition.

"What's going to be in this next one is going to be pitiful," Mrs. Pusser said.

Boris Schapiro was a member of the 1955 British team which broke the skein of four straight U.S. victories in the Bermuda Bowl, symbol of world bridge supremacy. His book, Bridge Analysis (Sterling Publishing, $4.95), has just been released in this country. It is an interesting collection of hands, not all of them new to our readers, presented in a lively manner. The hands are grouped into sections so that instructive points can be gained from each section.

Much of the bidding reflects current British methods. However, in this hand, the bidding could have been the same on both sides of the Atlantic. South is fully worth a jump shift in any man's language, and the slam that was eventually reached is a sound proposition.

When this hand was played, declarer received the normal lead of the queen of diamonds. He won and drew the outstanding trumps, then tried for a 3-3 club division. When this did not materialize, declarer attempted to hold his spade losers to one by cashing the ace and leading toward dummy. Unfortunately East held both missing honors, so the contract went down one.

While declarer was perhaps a trifle unlucky to fail in his odds-on slam, he receives little sympathy from Schapiro. The writer points out that declarer overlooked the best line for twelve tricks. After drawing trumps, he should simply duck a club! Now, he can win any return and, provided clubs break no worse than 4-2, he can then get three spade discards, thus obviating the need to guess the spade position. The combined odds on either a 4-2 or 3-3 split of six missing cards is nearly 84 per cent—a considerably better chance than the one declarer actually choose at the table.

TARHEEL TOYOTA NEW CAR GUARANTEE
100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS

Every car dealer in the country is talking "dependability" these days. At Tarheel Toyota we've decided to do something about it. A new car warranty that's longer than any other warranty in the world. (exclusively for Tarheel Toyota) Bill Draper can tell you why: "Nobody else in the world has a car like this. I've been in the factory in Japan, I've seen how the Toyota is made, the quality of the workmanship, the integrity and the craftsmanship that go into this car. I know the Toyota inside and out."

Until now most new car warranties haven't been much more than discounts on the car repairs you knew you'd need. Our warranty is our guarantee of faith in the Toyota.

"Nobody else in the world can put this kind of warranty on their car. My faith and my knowledge and experience with Toyota tell me I can do it. Toyota builds an automobile to last."

Our knowledge of the Toyota comes from research, from first hand information from our service department and from a great number of satisfied Toyota customers. For 100,000 miles or 3 years from the day you purchase your new Toyota, we guarantee to replace or repair your motor, transmission and rear end, if they fail under normal driving conditions.

We'll ask you to keep the vehicle properly maintained and we'll ask that you bring it back to Tarheel Toyota for any repairs covered by this warranty. We're offering the 100,000 miles, 3 year warranty in addition to the new car warranty offered by Toyota Motor Sales, USA. It's a promise, a guarantee of Toyota quality. Toyota dependability.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel Toyota when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel Toyota and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Asterisk denotes warranted car.)
