Bolivia Mourns Toll From Worst Aviation Disaster

By WILLIAM R. LONG
Associated Press Writer
SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia began three days of national mourning today for more than 100 of its people killed when a chartered American cargo jet plowed through a street crowd and into a group of young soccer players at practice.

The three American crewmen of the Boeing 707 were also killed. At least 100 Bolivians were hospitalized, a government spokesman said, "and there are injured who are hovering between life and death."

He said at least half the victims were children.

The spokesman reported 84 bodies, including those of the Americans, had been identified.

Officials said it was the worst aviation disaster in Bolivia's history. President Hugo Banzer flew to Santa Cruz, 350 miles southeast of La Paz, ordered three days of national mourning and said he would lead the funeral procession Thursday morning.

The four-engine jet was owned by Jet Power Inc. of Miami and was being flown by another Miami firm, Rodel Enterprises, for the Bolivian firm Lloyd Aerero Boliviano. After delivering oil well machinery and other cargo from Houston, it had just taken off empty at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday from the airport on the edge of the city when it faltered.

"People at the scene said they heard an explosion before it fell and saw fire in one of the motors on the left wing," a Bolivian air force officer told reporters.

The plane clipped the tops off several big trees, demolished a corner of the Julio Gutierrez primary school, mowed down a line of people buying kerosene from a street vendor on Avenida de Ejercito, and crashed into a practice field outside the municipal soccer stadium where a number of people were watching two boys' teams scrimmaging.

The pupils at the school were home for lunch, but the caretaker, his wife and three children were in the building and were killed, an air force official said.

Another official said about 50 people were killed in the kerosene line, about 40 were killed on the soccer field, and eight boys were suffocated in a locker room of the stadium by smoke from the burning plane.

Debris and bodies were strewn across the soccer field. "All those people were destroyed, burned, mutilated," a witness said. "It was like a scene from Dante. There were screams from the burned people."

Jet Power Inc. said the three crewmen were Capt. Charles Baldwin, a former airline pilot; first officer Lee Marsh; and flight engineer Leslie Bennett. All were from the Miami area.

An air force officer said the plane's instruments indicated that one of the engines on the left wing failed. The "black box" flight recorder was recovered and turned over to investigators.

N.C. Officials Urge Flu Shots Continue

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Continuation of the swine flu inoculation program has been urged by state health officials even though two elderly and ill North Carolinians died this week after getting the vaccine.

At a meeting of the Health Services Commission Wednesday, state epidemiologist Dr. Martin P. Hines said there apparently was no link between the deaths and the vaccine. The board was also told that two other elderly persons have died in the state recently after being given flu shots for strains other than swine flu.

'Til Wednesday

The moratorium on the giving of bivalent swine flu vaccine has been extended to next Wednesday at noon, Pitt County Health Department Director Roger Barnaby said this morning.

"We still don't feel the vaccine is anything for Pitt County citizens to fear," he said, "but we must in good conscience be cautious. For this reason, we've extended the moratorium, hoping to learn more about the deaths of bivalent recipients in other parts of the country before we continue."

The board was told that the two deaths following swine flu inoculation were:

—James A. Evans, 65, of Enfield who was given the shot Monday. He died Wednesday morning at home.

State medical examiner Dr. R. Page Hudson said Evans had been under treatment for tuberculosis and his death was caused by a ruptured blood vessel, "an ordinary complication of TB."

—A 96-year-old Asheville woman confined to a nursing home whose name was not released. Hudson said she suffered from advanced arterial sclerosis and a stroke. She was given the shot about 9 a.m. Monday and died about 8:20 that night, Hudson said.

The inoculation was temporarily halted in six North Carolina counties following Tuesday's disclosure that three elderly Pennsylvania citizens died after getting the flu shots.

Counties temporarily stopping the program were Polk, McDowell and Rutherford which are served by a single clinic and Wilson, Pitt and Forsyth.

Officials in Buncombe and Halifax counties said there were no plans to curtail inoculation programs there.

Arrest Two For Bank Robbery

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The FBI today announced the arrest of two men on bank robbery charges.

Edgar Best, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said David Paul Spaeth, 29, a soldier assigned to the 333rd Signal Co. at Ft. Bragg, was charged with the robbery of the Womack Army Hospital branch of First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. at Ft. Bragg last Friday.

"I don't see anything in what we have right now that would cause us to change our (vaccination) plans," Hines said during Wednesday's hourlong commission meeting. "It's a good vaccine. It's a safe vaccine and I shall take it. If I had elderly parents I would want them to take it," he said.

Another factor favoring continuation, said Dr. Jacob Koomen, director of the state Division of Health, was that no evidence has been shown that the benefits of the inoculation program are outweighed by the risks.

Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk Jr. scheduled a news conference today to publicly receive an inoculation in an effort to allay fear of the swine flu shot.

Nobel Prizes For Three Americans

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two American medical researchers and an American economist were named today as winners of 1976 Nobel Prizes in medicine and economics.

The Swedish Royal Academy of Science awarded the economics prize to Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, dean of American conservative economists. The 64-year-old native of Brooklyn also writes a weekly column for Newsweek magazine.

The Royal Caroline Institute announced that the medicine prize was awarded to Prof. Baruch S. Blumberg of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and Prof. D. Carleton Gajdusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases at Bethesda, Md., "for their discoveries concerning new mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious diseases."

The economics prize, a latecomer to the Nobel awards, was established by the Swedish Central Bank in 1968 to mark its 200th anniversary, and Americans have now won or shared in six of the eight awards.

The other five Nobel Prizes — in medicine, physics, chemistry, literature and peace — were established by the will of Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, and have been given since 1901 from the income from a $9 million fund he established.

All the prizes this year carry a cash award of 681,000 Swedish kronor, or $160,000 at the current rate of exchange.

Friedman was honored "for his achievements in the fields of consumption analysis, monetary history and theory and for his demonstration of the complexity of stabilization policy," the Swedish Royal Academy of Science said.

Sources at the Royal Academy said the award to Friedman followed an unprecedented and sometimes heated debate, centered primarily over his political activity as adviser to conservative politicians and his journalism. Some academy members also reportedly felt his economic judgments were insufficiently scientific.

Deliberations of the academy are kept secret.

Friedman has declined to serve officially in Washington, but his influence was felt under the Nixon administration and during the presidential candidacy of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Friedman is perhaps the foremost American exponent of the monetarist school of economics, which maintains that the economic cycle is determined more by money supply and interest rates than by fiscal policy. His philosophy is generally associated with a 'laissez-faire' or hands-off policy in regard to business and trade.

Friedman believes that interest rates within countries and the value of world currencies internationally should be free to seek their own levels. On the international monetary scene, Friedman has seen his view become a reality as major trading nations have permitted their currencies to "float."

Arrest Man On Drug Charges

AYDEN — SBI agents, Greenville Narcotics Agents and Ayden Police officers arrested an Ayden man for various drug charges Wednesday night, according to Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney.

Steven Ray Rasberry of 515 Park Ave. Ayden was arrested for possession of heroin for the purpose of sale and possession of cocaine after the vehicle he was driving on Park Avenue was stopped and searched, according to Chief Burney.

Rasberry was placed in the Ayden City Jail in lieu of a $10,000 bond and his vehicle was confiscated. He has been released on bond and will appear in Ayden District Court October 29.

Ford Cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff today cleared President Ford of any wrongdoing in connection with campaign finances in his home county while he was in Congress.

"The matter has now been closed, and counsel for the President has been so advised," Ruff said in a two-page statement issued to reporters.

Ruff said FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley on July 13 alerted the Justice Department to "information concerning alleged misuse of political contributions" by Ford during the period from 1964 to early 1974.

That information "concerned a previously unreported allegation that political contributions from certain named unions had been transmitted to political committees in Kent County, Mich., with the understanding that they would be passed on to Mr. Ford for his personal use," the statement said.

Ruff identified the source on the allegation only as "an individual who had recently become aware of the underlying information."

He said the individual took the allegation to an FBI agent.

Recreation Body Reviews Reports

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Reports showing the collection of $1,187.50 in non-resident recreation user fees during September, the first month of the fee being in effect; and a loss of $5,418.34 in the 1976 operation of the municipal pool highlighted the October meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission held last night.

Recreation Director Boyd Lee, giving a first-time report on the controversial non-resident user fee, said "I'm pleased with the result. This is a greater response than we had expected at this stage."

County people who have opted to continue using the city's recreational facilities on an established fee paying basis "total 60 family or individuals registrants," Lee said.

A breakdown of figures show that the 60 include six entire families paying for a complete year; 11 families paying for one-half a year; eight individuals for a complete year; and 35 individuals for half a year.

"Activities for which this number have registered for include just about the full scope of our program, in sports, crafts and special programs," Lee reported.

Initial reaction from non-Greenville residents, Lee said "was certainly a matter of mixed emotions. Some were very much upset. Some expressed a feeling of gratitude that county people were not excluded altogether from the city facilities and said they were glad to pay the fee and to be able to continue in the recreation programs."

"The greatest expressions of impact came from senior citizens and handicapped persons," Lee noted. "These people are seriously concerned about their opportunities to have recreation." He added that senior citizens, especially, had said the non-resident fee was prompting them to talk to their county commissioners about doing something for county people.

A vast majority of the 60 registrants, Lee said, "live near Greenville, in areas immediately adjacent to the city."

Jim Parker, Manager of the Municipal Swimming Pool, in a detailed report on the 1976 operation of the pool, reported a collection of revenues amounting to $5,610.10, and total expenditures of $11,028.44.

This gives a 1976 operational deficit of $5,418.34, or a 49 percent deficit figure. The 1975 deficit was $4,432.77, or 44 percent.

"Expenditures would have been almost a thousand dollars less than the $11,000 figure," Parker said, "if it had not been for the unfortunate incident of pipes freezing during the winter."

Parker said "I can assure you this will not be repeated. Everybody concerned now knows how and where to shut all

Seeks Bar On Loan Of Monitoring Equipment

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten today asked the state Utilities Commission to prohibit Southern Bell Telephone Co. from providing business subscribers equipment for monitoring conversations.

"Without strict controls over the use of this equipment," Edmisten said, "it is obvious that there is a great potential for its abuse. Businesses have the capability of eavesdropping on private conversations between their employees and unsuspecting customers who call or are called upon."

He added, "The surest way to curtail this potential abuse is to prohibit the use of monitoring equipment. I have asked that it be banned."

He pointed out that customers are allowed to lease monitoring equipment for business purposes such as supervising and training employes, if they promise to use it for legitimate business purposes only.

Edmisten said Southern Bell must rely on promises that it will be used solely for legitimate purposes. The company, he said, has no other means to prevent misuse.

Edmisten said the monitoring equipment "borders very close on wiretapping because you're recording a conversation of someone who doesn't know that this is being done. That gives me great concern."

Edmisten said that if the commission does not prohibit such equipment, it should at least implement strict safeguards to prevent its misuse.

He said he had asked the commission to require that: telephone books denote users of monitoring equipment, beep tones be used on monitored calls, and all business phones subject to monitoring be labeled.

Film Role Gives Young Dancer Instant Stardom

By WAKA TSUNODA
NEW YORK (AP) — The star at the last moment steps down and her stand-in steps up. That show business cliché actually happened recently to Leslie Browne.

Miss Browne, a 19-year-old member of the New York City Ballet's corps de ballet, replaced Gelsey Kirkland, the star of the American Ballet Theatre, as one of the four major characters in a much-publicized movie, "The Turning Point."

She got the role when Miss Kirkland bowed out because of tendonitis, a tendon inflammation common among dancers.

The movie, written by Arthur Laurents and directed by Herbert Ross, is about two middle-aged women who started out together as ballet dancers. The character played by Anne Bancroft has devoted herself to her career, while the character played by Shirley MacLaine has become a housewife.

Miss Browne plays Miss MacLaine's daughter, who is an up-and-coming ballet star. Mikhail Baryshnikov, the famous Russian defector hailed as the heir-apparent to Rudolf Nureyev, portrays Miss Browne's boyfriend.

How does the young dancer feel about the big break?

"I'm excited. I never even dreamt of it," says Miss Browne dutifully, but it's clear she is less than overwhelmed by her overnight stardom. She is a sophisticated show business child whose parents are former ballet dancers and to her, footlights and greasepaint are as familiar as breakfast cereals. Besides, she isn't at all interested in becoming an actress.

"I want to dance and dance only," she proclaims. "Just plain acting is not what I want. It's okay, but I'd rather act through movements than through my voice and my facial expressions."

The 5-foot-4, 95-pounder with her light brown hair, green eyes, long neck and milk-white skin, looks the typical classical ballet dancer that she is.

She was born in New York, but grew up in Phoenix, Ariz. Her father, a former American Ballet Theatre soloist, still operates a dance school there. Her parents are divorced and her mother works as a travel agent in New York.

Miss Browne returned here a few years ago to attend the Professional Children's School and the School of American Ballet, the official school of the New York City Ballet. Within a year, George Balanchine, the school's faculty chairman and ballet master of the City Ballet, picked her to join the company and she made her debut in "Symphony in C."

She obtained a leave of absence this summer from City Ballet to work on the movie, originally as Miss Kirkland's stand-in, and also to play a small role. She got the job through her parents, who are long-time friends of Nora Kaye, one of the movie's associate producers and a former prima ballerina of the American Ballet Theatre. Miss Kaye is married to director Ross, who is also the movie's co-producer.

The theme of "The Turning Point" being the choice between career and home, which way would Miss Browne go if the problem arose?

"Well, at this point, I'd stick to career," she said, explaining she had no boyfriend although there are many she is "fond" of.

Does she think the character played by Miss MacLaine made a mistake in abandoning her dance career? "No," said Miss Browne firmly. "Because I think at that time that was what she wanted. If that's what she wanted, it's not a mistake. A lot of people regret what they do later."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's only a matter of time before the insurance companies revamp their list of high-risk professions. In the past, they've included such hazardous jobs as: steeple painting, sky diving, combat warfare, firefighting, bomb demolition and umpiring a World Series.

Those are pussycat jobs compared to the new breed of citizen who goes out every day of his life, exposing himself to the hazards of the 20th century.

Watch for the insurance rates to go up on game show hosts. These poor, battered devils are in an emotional arena. Monty Hall, after 13 years of hosting, learned to duck and weave when an hysterical lady, dressed as a tuna casserole, won a Dune Buggy. But for the greater part, his life was just one great big hammerlock causing pain and imbalance.

Another precarious job, although it's seasonal every four years, is the uncommitted delegate. When in favor, they are wine, dined, pursued, smothered, and stalked at every turn of the corner. If their life is any more jeopardized, their premiums may be out of sight.

And don't forget the peril of the Olympic streaker. Those engaged in running across a stadium sans clothes are going to find (excuse the expression) coverage hard to come by. In addition to pursuit of police with clubs, you must also consider the hazards of a streaker during the Winter Games. (Colds, pulmonary disorder and terminal goose bumps.)

I never thought postal clerks would make the list, but you can see the danger for their lives developing day after day. One woman leaped over the counter the other week with a shopping bag containing a package that rattled that was stamped, "FRAGILE." She was held at bay by six postal employees who threatened to mail her to Baltimore... a 15-day trip.

The rates for people who answer the telephone and put you on hold without waiting to hear what you want are already exorbitant. No one would touch them with a 10-foot pole. Everyone is out to get them. Mothers have always been a high insurance risk by the nature of their work, but look for a rider that will become optional. If you have to teach a teenager to drive, that is, sit in the car next to him, you may have to file with Lloyds of London.

The Other Woman Tells Her Side

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from HIS WIFE who wrote an open letter to all women who were in love with a married man. I hope you will give me equal space to respond:

DEAR WIFE: He has never told me you are a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) or that you have neglected him sexually. Instead he speaks only in glowing terms of you, how you stood by him in rough years, through all the difficult times.

There is no talk of divorce. I know I will never see him on Sundays or holidays. I don't call him at home. We meet at hotels since there are teenagers at my place. Yes, I sometimes spend more on him—on transportation, gas for the car, whatever. But we do not measure our relationship in money. And I insist he not buy me gifts.

I know how you feel about social status, financial security and retirement income. I ended my loveless, unhappy marriage without regard to such things. I love your husband; and we share a need for each other that has nothing to do with your set of values. But because your husband is a good man and would never hurt you, I know we will probably never be together.

I never went after your husband; he pursued me, because I recognized his pain and bewilderment, his triumphs and delights, in a way you have forgotten or belittled. He needed to be actively loved, or I would not be a part of his life.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I learned he was married when we ran into some people who knew his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she's better off with him than without him, I think he showed his "lousiness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refused to sleep with him but refused to divorce him.

The subject of independence or Russian domination among countries of eastern Europe shouldn't have been raised in the second Ford-Carter debate.

No matter how he tackled it, Ford was at a disadvantage.

For many years it has been widely known and understood that east Europe was under the Kremlin's thumb; but succeeding administrations have refused to concede that control because by so doing they would put a stamp of official recognition on Russian overlordship. The same policy was followed in the darkest days of World War II when France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Denmark and Norway were overrun.

For the President of the United States to publicly concede Bulgaria, Romania, Czechoslovakia, nearly half of Germany, Hungary and other small states were no longer free and independent nations would play havoc with the whole global political structure. When he said they were ruled by their own governments, each claiming national borders... hence "free"... he opened the doors to criticism that now abounds.

The best the United States and free world can do under today's circumstances is to hope the spirit of national identity in the countries of eastern Europe will someday re-emerge.

Attempts to clarify the words he used in the "debate" and the appeasing of dismayed East European ethnic groups have not made clear the very difficult position the U. S. is trying to maintain in foreign affairs.

Pretense is part and parcel of diplomacy. Attempting to call a "spade" a "spade" in that field would not only put a lot of people out of work, but add still more unbearable tensions to day-to-day living.

A Few Days Delay Just To Make Sure

It doesn't seem likely that the swine flu shots were the cause of three deaths in Pennsylvania; still the Pitt Health Department showed good judgment to temporarily halt the bivalent type immunizations.

The bivalent type is given to persons over 60, and the chronically ill. Monovalent type, for those under 60 and healthy will be continued.

All reports indicate that the deaths of three elderly persons who had had the bivalent shots were due to causes other than the shots. Nevertheless the deaths are being studied by authorities.

We have little doubt that the bivalent immunizations will prove to be reasonably safe, but a few days delay in administering them in Pitt County won't matter.

At-Home Treatment Fails

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Once-enthusiastic work aimed at getting non-criminal children out of the state's reformatories by midsummer of next year has come to a screeching halt.

Bogged down in bureaucratic power struggles, legalistic nit-picking, and the active opposition of the state's judges and court counselors, the idea of community alternative treatment programs for status offenders appears to be dead before it was given a chance.

Status offenders — truants, runaways, and others locked up not for criminal behavior, but "undisciplined" behavior — are by state law supposed to be out of the juvenile training schools effective next July.

No Hope

But next July will come and go with nothing happening, says Raymond T. Shurling, director of the Youth Services Division of the Department of Human Resources. The next step, he predicts, will be substantial change in the law by the General Assembly; possibly even repeal.

The object was to provide community services (group homes, counseling, runaway shelters, etc.) so the youngsters could stay at home or in the community.

Regular schools, job training, rehabilitation programs would replace the cages of the training schools. Typically, about half the children in training schools are there for non-criminal reasons.

Early this year the word went out to the counties: get a plan underway so we will know how many children you will be keeping at home, and how you propose to handle them. Then, state and federal dollars can be got to help fund local programs.

All but a handful of counties responded with beginning plans. Existing programs would be used in some cases; new ones built in others. The state moved to sign contracts to get the ball rolling in several community programs. So far, none have been able to clear the multitude of state or federal hurdles.

In what has become widely known in some state agencies as "The Alice In Wonderland" memorandum, D. T. Dickey, chief of management services in youth services has detailed the months of hoop-jumping in hopes to get the program moving.

But he says a "seemingly endless amount of red tape" makes it "extremely doubtful the Division will ever be allowed to spend any of this money... the bureaucratic levels of State and federal government have been totally unable to arrive at a decision and stick to it."

Law And Order

The chief culprit is the Governor's Law and Order Committee which does out federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act money. A $250,000 grant was approved over a year ago.

But wrangling over legal details, opposition from Corrections Secretary David Jones, objections from Bert Montague of the Administrative Office of Courts that some efforts encroached on his court counseling turf, and pickpocketing by judges who complain that they must have power to send children to reformatories have bottlenecked the program.

To date, some $2.2 million in federal community program grants have been locked up by the Law and Order Commission; some $450,000 in community grant applications from various localities have been axed; and a $300,000 grant application to pay for required training of youth services personnel was killed.

"Community treatment — our ability to move kids who ought not be in there out of the training schools — is dead. We have only some $250,000 in state funds, and only a glimmer of hope for any future funding," says Parks Todd, assistant youth services director in charge of community treatment.

"The effort to divert kids into community treatment has been next-monthed to death... delayed over forms, lousy paperwork, petty jealousies, and politics. Even worse, our credibility has been destroyed with the local people. They set to work setting up programs and building momentum to get these kids out of training school... now we are dead in the water," Todd said.

What about the children? Todd was asked. "They are the product of all this misery pie. All those people can talk for days about rules and regulations and protecting their own turf and never mention a child."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Ford Failed To Challenge

By ROWLANE EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

SAN FRANCISCO — Primed by advisers to expect a Jimmy Carter assault on the Helsinki Treaty, President Ford responded by freeing Poland with the slip of a tongue — casting shadows well beyond the Polish-Americans and hard-line anti-Communists who were incensed by his blunder.

A smirking and sarcastic Carter, though less than attractive, entered the Palace of Fine Arts Theater with a well-conceived tactical plan which provoked Mr. Ford's Polish bloop. In contrast, the President seemed badly briefed and personally incapable of improvising beyond his briefing book.

"I'm very much afraid that this was the real Jerry Ford," one high-ranking administration official confided to us. That implies a disorganized White House inadequately supporting a President so fuddled by criticism that he was unable to probe Carter's many vulnerable points.

In a two-hour session with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the White House last Sunday, Mr. Ford was warned that Carter would be coming at him from the right rather than the left. He was told that Carter had attacked the Helsinki Treaty and a secret speech by State Department counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt as ratifying Soviet hegemony over Eastern Europe.

So, Mr. Ford entered the debate intent on refuting the "Sonnenfeldt Doctrine" implying U.S. support of Soviet dominion over Eastern Europe. The result was verbal overkill — absurdly claiming no such dominion exists, even in Poland. But that does not explain how Mr. Ford could so confuse reality to forget about four Soviet army divisions permanently stationed in Poland.

Typically, the Ford apparatus perceived no great harm done here. Talking informally following the debate, Mr. Ford's top political aides expressed no great dismay over the Polish blunder. Stranger still, at the daily 8 a.m. White House meeting back in Washington Thursday, aides congratulated each other on the chief's fine showing. No surprise, then, that Mr. Ford, campaigning in Los Angeles, did not apologize for his Polish blunder until Thursday afternoon.

The Carter performance, by both candidate and staff, provides a vivid contrast. Besides readying himself "to go for the jugular this time" (as described by a top aide) Carter heeded advice from moderate Democrats to take a hard line, not only on Helsinki-type "freedom" issues but on defense. Surprised Pentagon officials were elated that Carter said not one word about cutting defense, returning troops from overseas or eliminating all nuclear weapons.

A reason for those omissions may have been the late briefing from Dr. James Schlesinger, fired by Mr. Ford as Secretary of Defense. Thanks to information supplied by hard-liner Schlesinger, Carter pointed out that Mr. Ford dropped plans to cut defense spending only after Ronald Reagan threatened for the nomination. Caught off balance by that, Mr. Ford

TURNABOUT IN CAMPAIGN COATTAIL RIDING!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Philosopher-Politician

In the whole of this smoggy, sulfurous presidential campaign, one breath of fresh air keeps intruding. It emanates from Eugene McCarthy, philosopher, politician and poet. His independent candidacy is the victim of the kind of anti-competitive conspiracy that in the industrial world would send its perpetrators straight to jail.

In theory, other independent candidates also are being treated unfairly. In fact, McCarthy is the only independent whose candidacy might have a significant impact. Under the Election Reform Act, he is denied the funds that might permit him to wage an effective campaign. Under the networks' make-believe view of a "new event," he is denied access to TV.

The pollsters have demonstrated for several years that neither of the two major parties commands the allegiance of a majority of the people. The Republicans are thought to have 18 to 20 percent of the voters, the Democrats perhaps 38 to 40 percent. The Rest are independents. Yet the Election

Reform Act proceeds on the bland assumption that only the two major parties matter; their candidates get $20 million each from public funds. McCarthy is caught in Catch 22. If he had funds, he could attract the votes that would make him eligible for funds, if he had the funds. His campaign is broke.

Exposure on national TV, especially under the dreary circumstances that now obtain, might generate a substantial sum. No contrived "news event" is in sight. That the League of Women Voters' debates are not "news events" in the ordinary sense was embarrassingly revealed when the audio failed in Philadelphia. Suppose the audio had failed in the ninth inning of a playoff game between the Phillies and the Reds. Would the players have stood around for 28 minutes? Humbug. The Republicans, the Democrats, the League and the networks are coconspirators in a comfy little deal to evade the fairness doctrine. The effect is to freeze McCarthy out.

Other Editors Say The Tar Baby

(Greensboro Daily News)

Governor Holshouser created a straw man in his attempt last week to attach statewide Democratic candidates to the right-to-work tar baby.

In a press conference, the Governor charged that Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and John Brooks, Democratic candidate for Labor Commissioner, both threatened the state's economic well-being by supporting efforts to repeal the state's right-to-work law, which permits workers to choose whether or not they wish to join unions. The only problem is that neither Hunt nor Brooks supports such repeal. The Governor grossly misrepresents their positions.

Hunt has repeatedly stated that he favors retention of the law. Brooks has taken a neutral position, arguing correctly that the law has little to do with the commissioner's functions and that in any case the commissioner should maintain a balanced position between labor and management.

Governor Holshouser's swipe is part of an apparent effort to link these candidates to each other, and by association to the national Democratic platform and the state AFL-CIO. The Democratic platform supports repeal of section 14-b of the Taft-Hartley Act, which permits states to decide whether they want right-to-work laws or not. Governor Carter has said he would sign such legislation into law. The state AFL-CIO also supports repeal of North Carolina's right-to-work statute.

But Mr. Carter is not running for governor of North Carolina. Neither is Wilbur Hobby, state AFL-CIO chief, running for Labor Commissioner. Yet Governor Holshouser persists in his distortion. Brooks, he said, is "very clearly the union candidate. . . Everybody knows he's not going to be neutral." The Governor's assessment is presumably based on the state AFL-CIO's endorsement of Hunt and Brooks. But these are not the only endorsements the candidates have received; it hardly suggests they are creatures of organized labor.

If neutrality is the issue, the Governor should take a look at his party's own candidate for Labor Commissioner, incumbent T. Avery Nye Jr. According to recent news accounts, the Nye campaign is gearing up a coalition of businessmen and industrialists to help defeat Brooks. By the Governor's yardstick, is Nye any less "pro-business"?

It is unfortunate that the Governor has chosen to interject such false issues into the campaign. There is no groundswell to repeal North Carolina's right-to-work law in the General Assembly. Hunt and Brooks have justifiably steered clear of it.

The Existing Housing Market

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The housing market is lacking in vigor, we are told. New housing starts for the entire year will come to only 1.5 million; prices are too high for many families; lenders are restrictive.

Turn now to the existing housing market and the story is entirely different. Sales are booming; prices are holding fairly steady; mortgage money appears to be plentiful.

The existing housing market is not thought of as one of those economically significant or glamorous areas that the government statisticians report on regularly. It gets relatively little official attention.

Still, the amazing vitality of this market through the entire year, and even through much of the recession that preceded the recovery, indicates that Americans are involved in some very constructive activities — that there is more vitality and spirit than might be depicted by traditional indicators.

The National Association of Realtors reports that "For the first time, sales of existing single-family homes pushed through the three million-level" during August.

"The seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3,070,000 sales in August was 5.9 per cent higher than the previous month, and a full 23.3 per cent above the level of a year ago."

Reports such as this are rare, even in fairly good economic times. But the strength of the existing home market isn't freakish or restricted to one area or one type of single-family dwelling. It is pervasive.

"Records were either equaled or broken in each of the four regions," the latest report continues. The Northeast reported a 14 per cent gain over the July level. Sales in the North Central region rose by 7.5 per cent, in the West by 3.5 per cent, in the South by 2.7 per cent.

"At its current pace, the resale market is zipping along at an annual rate of $133 billion, well above the $101 billion rate for the same month a year ago," the realtors report.

Explaining the activity, they observe that thrift institutions — the savings and loan institutions that provide mortgage money — have received a strong volume of new deposits. At the same time, the slowdown in the rate of economic growth as

Carter Had Tax Shelter

By R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford paid a larger share of his income in taxes than did Jimmy Carter last year because Carter was able to take advantage of a tax benefit tied to improvements in his peanut operations.

A comparison of the financial information provided by the two presidential candidates showed that Ford reported gross income of $251,991 last year and Carter reported gross income of $136,139.

Ford paid total federal taxes of $94,569 in 1975, which was 38 per cent of his gross income. Carter paid taxes of $17,484, equal to 13 per cent of his gross income.

Carter was able to take advantage of a business investment tax credit to substantially reduce his taxes. He also took advantage of income-averaging features of the tax code to further reduce his taxes.

Carter has made public his tax returns from the last five years. Ford has not revealed his tax returns but has released a statement of his finances, including the amounts of tax he paid for the past 10 years.

The bulk of Carter's 1975 income, $119,244, was from his peanut-seed business, "Carter's Warehouse." He also reported $3,293 in income from his book, "Why Not The Best?"

Most of Ford's income, $200,000, was from his salary as president. He also got $50,000 from the presidential expense account.

Carter was able to reduce his taxes by claiming an investment tax credit of $41,702, equal to about 10 per cent of the $410,646 he spent for equipment for his peanut business.

While Carter has pledged to eliminate many tax shelters if elected, he says he probably would retain the investment tax credit as an incentive for business to invest.

Congress recently raised the investment tax credit from 7 per cent to 10 per cent after Ford recommended a boost. Thus, Ford indirectly contrib-

40 Years Ago Today

Oct. 14, 1936

Dedicating a world war memorial site in St. Louis, President Roosevelt declared today that "we best honor the memory of those dead by striving for peace that the terror of the days of war will be with us no more."

"In what we have done during the last three years to promote recovery at home, to extend the hand of the good neighbor to the nations of the world, to break down the barriers to commerce which divide nations, we are promoting the course of peace throughout the world," he said.

Henry Ford officially declared his support for Governor Alf M. Landon today as the Republican presidential nominee.

"I admire and believe in him, I hope he is elected," the motor car manufacturer said in a statement after conferring with the Kansas governor.

"I am not criticizing the New Deal," Ford continued, "I am only saying that we have had enough of it. We have had about all the country can stand."

THE BESETTING SIN

In the twelfth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, we find the injunction, "Let us lay aside the sin which doth so easily beset us."

A New Testament scholar recently pointed out that in order to get the literal meaning of these words, we would have to invent a grotesque translation—"Let us lay aside th well-stood-around sin." This is the popular sin which day by day thrusts itself upon us. About it there is a band of admirers, and beyond them another group, and farther out from these still other people who want to participate in this admired sin.

In every generation there are sins which have been popular. Dissolute living has been particularly admired and emulated at various points in history. Duelling, with the death and maiming it entailed, was a sin whose commission conferred much honor on the participants.

What are the admired sins today? It would be wise for us to identify them and stay away from the crowds which surround them.

Self-Avowed Perjurer Declares 'No Justice'

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — "There's no justice in Wilmington and there's no justice in the state of North Carolina or there wouldn't be as many people on death row, black or white," said Allen R. Hall, chief prosecution witness in the trial of the Wilmington 10, during a press conference Wednesday in Wilmington.

Hall, 22, says he perjured himself as part of a deal with the prosecutor during the trial and called Wednesday for the immediate release of the Rev. Ben Chavis and the other nine members of the group.

Chavis, eight young black men and a white woman are serving lengthy prison sentences for their convictions on charges of firebombing a grocery store during Wilmington's 1971 racial violence.

Charlotte attorney James E. Ferguson II, representing the group, has petitioned for their immediate release on bail, saying he has evidence "that the state used perjured testimony to secure the petitioners' convictions, which the state knew or reasonably should have known was perjured."

Attached to the petition was a lengthy statement from Hall saying he lied under oath at the direction of prosecutors and police.

Allen said he complied after being told his family had been threatened by Chavis.

Police Chief D.L. Bruestle said Hall distributed a separate handwritten statement Sept. 24, which also told of lying under oath. He did so because of threats made against his 15-year-old girlfriend, Bruestle said, adding that Hall told police an anonymous caller warned him to change his testimony and pay $5,000 if he wanted the girl to be safe.

Hall denied Bruestle's claim, calling it a "false statement." "I feel like the police put this in the paper in order to confuse the people of the truth concerning Rev. Chavis and the Wilmington 10," he said.

Hall confirmed filing a missing report on the girl, but insisted it was not for the reasons Bruestle outlined.

The girl has since been found, but Hall said he does not know where she was at the time he filed the report.

Looking To Black Votes

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's Republican party has decided to make an all-out effort to attract black voters this year and will use the lure of improved employment opportunities, party officials said Wednesday.

Primary emphasis will be on urging blacks to vote for GOP candidates for Council of State offices but it is hoped the effort will also aid the party's presidential and gubernatorial campaigns, said state Chairman Robert Shaw.

A series of five or six meetings will be held with black community, business and church leaders, Shaw said. Also, the party will have telephone and mail campaigns, he said.

"Blacks have been taken in by the Democratic leadership of this state for generations and haven't been thrown a bone," Shaw said.

Among tools Shaw said he will use are computer printouts showing that the Republican administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser provided more opportunities in higher level state jobs for blacks than had previous Democratic administrations.

Though he did not have the figures yet, Shaw said the Holshouser administration "has hired more blacks than all the Democratic administrations since 1900."

never really challenged Carter about how much and where he would cut the Pentagon budget.

To placate liberal supporters offended by his defense position, Carter used Chile's military dictatorship as a whipping boy. As he often does, however, Carter went beyond the factual by claiming "this administration overthrew an elected government" in Chile. Although this was so far from the truth that Carter's own advisers winced, Mr. Ford never contradicted him.

Nor did the President seem to notice when Mr. Carter claimed $7.5 billion in arms shipments to Saudi Arabia this year; in fact, the $7.5 billion figure covers two and a quarter years and includes only 20 per cent in arms sales. Worse than this omission were some of Mr. Ford's commissions. To justify arms sales to Iran, he incorrectly described neighboring Iraq's government as "communist-dominated." The President grossly distorted Carter's views by claiming "he would look with sympathy to a Communist government in NATO."

The President grossly distorted Carter's views by claiming "he would look with sympathy to a Communist government in NATO." When Carter was most demagogic, the President tried to outdo him. Carter's blanket endorsement of Israel to the exclusion of all other Mideast interests even embarrassed strongly pro-Israel Democrats. In response, Mr. Ford totally misrepresented his administration's position on anti-Arab boycott legislation, trying to seem more pro-Israel than Congress. That enraged officials who had taken a politically unpopular position on the boycott in Mr. Ford's behalf.

This pattern of omissions, mistakes and distortions in debate No. 2 triggered an immediate search for a scapegoat and came up with Michael Duval, 38-year-old White House special counsel in charge of Mr. Ford's briefing books. "Mike Duval is too arrogant to answer telephone calls," contends one angry administration official, who vainly tried to supply relevant information for the debate, "but he wouldn't understand what we were talking about anyway."

Whatever its shortcomings, however, the White House staff is not the core of the problem. It is clearly Gerald Ford, who Wednesday night here resurrected the old image of fumbler and stumbler he had very nearly shaken off.

Mountains. We put in some pleasant hours drinking whisky, quoting poetry and spinning baseball yarns. After one such session, he sent me a quotation from Plutarch. He added a covering note.

This was the quote: "They are wrong who think that politics is like an ocean voyage or a military campaign, something to be done with some particular end in view, something which leaves off as soon as that end is reached. It is not a public chore, to be gotten over with. It is a way of life. It is the life of a domesticated political and social creature who is born with a love for public life, with a desire for honor, with a feeling for his fellows, and it lasts as long as need be."

"It is not simply office-holding, not just keeping your place, not just raising your voice from the floor, not just ranting on the rostrum with speeches and motions. . . Politics and philosophy are alike. Socrates neither set out benches for his students, nor sat on a platform, nor set hours for his lectures. He was philosophizing all the time — While he was joking, while he was drinking, while he was soldiering. . . He was the first to show that all your life, all the time, in everything you do, whatever you are doing, is the time for philosophy. And so also it is of politics."

This was the covering note: "This is what it's all about. Best regards, Gene."

retired to a lower tax bill for Carter.

Carter also reduced his tax obligation by averaging his income over a five-year period. Since his taxable income fluctuated from a low of $50,195 in 1972 to last year's high, it was to his advantage to do so.

Without the income averaging and investment tax credit, Carter had a potential tax of $58,981. At his level, the tax is $57,580 for the first $120,000 of taxable income, plus 64 per cent of anything above that, up to $140,000.

Ford's $200,000-plus income potentially put him in the highest tax bracket, where incomes over $200,000 are taxed at 70 per cent if they are derived from unearned income such as interest. But since most of his income was earned, the tax he paid was substantially less.

Mammography Praised By ACS Prexy

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Vowing not to "abandon" women with undetected breast cancer, the president of the American Cancer Society has praised breast X rays as an effective diagnostic tool that has not been proved unsafe.

Dr. Benjamin F. Byrd, Jr., a surgeon from Nashville, Tenn., commented Wednesday on a report by the National Cancer Institute (NCI) which said the X rays — mammography — in women aged 35 to 50 might cause more cancers than they detected.

"For those under 50, and not in a high-risk group, it may not be required annually — that is a subject on which women should consult their physicians," Byrd told the society's annual meeting.

"But we know there are more than 245,000 American women today with undiscovered breast cancer, and we will not abandon them," he said.

Temporary guidelines adopted recently by the society and NCI suggest that women between 35 and 50 shouldn't have yearly X-ray exams if they have no symptoms, such as lumps or discharges, and no family history of breast cancer.

"Some scientists think that radiation is dangerous even in the tiny amounts used" in mammography, Byrd said, and they estimate "that the radiation exposure from a mammographic study might increase the risk of cancer by one per cent 20 to 30 years from now."

"This is an opinion; it is not an established fact." The controversy now is whether "the case-finding, life-saving use of mammography today (is) overbalanced by a theoretical increased risk of one per cent in the future," he said.

Over a three-year period, 27 breast cancer detection demonstration projects set up by the society and NCI have examined about 275,000 women over 35 who had no breast cancer symptoms.

"They have uncovered more than 1,000 breast cancers," most of them in early stages, and not one treated woman has died, Byrd said.

In Chicago, meanwhile, two cancer specialists said women have been unnecessarily frightened by the NCI report on mammography.

As a result, they said, many women are delaying examinations which might detect cancer at an early, curable stage. The specialists spoke at a news conference Wednesday at the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

"It is unfortunate, some people obviously are going to be hurt by delaying coming out of fear," said Dr. James A. Urban, an attending surgeon at Sloan-Kettering Memorial Institute in New York City.

There is no evidence that mammograms ever caused cancer, he said, adding that the NCI's conclusions were based on outdated information.

Dr. Robert J. Schweitzer, director of the Northern California Breast Cancer Screening Center in Oakland, recommended that every woman over 35 have at least one mammogram. Unless they are at high risk of developing cancer, he said, they may never need another.

Those at high risk should have an examination once every year or two, Schweitzer said, noting that 90 to 100 per cent of breast cancer can be cured if detected at its very early stage.

Group Hears Chip Carter

The North Carolina Jimmy Carter Steering Committee met for the second time this week and heard "Chip" Carter report on the status of the Carter/Mondale campaign.

Young Carter, the second of the presidential candidate's three sons, noted that recent polls indicated a majority of voters in the nation favored his father's candidacy.

The Committee, made up of active democrats from throughout the state, first met in Raleigh September 22. At Tuesday's meeting, former Governor Robert Scott, and Senator Robert Morgan urged members of the committee to work actively with their constituents on behalf of the Carter/Mondale ticket.

Local members of the committee include Dr. Leo Jenkins of Greenville and Seroba Aiken of Snow Hill.

ECU Host To 85 At Shorthand Workshop

Approximately 85 teachers and students from eastern North Carolina high schools, vocational schools and colleges met at East Carolina University Friday for a shorthand workshop.

The workshop's primary focus was a new shorthand method, Century 21 Shorthand. Conducting the workshop sessions was Betty Bauman of South-Western Publishing Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

According to Ms. Bauman, Century 21 shorthand is easier to learn than the traditional Gregg method because of its "consistency."

"It is easier to read, to write, and to transcribe because it has fewer rules," she said.

The workshop was divided into sessions on the history, rationale, methodology and features of the Century 21 shorthand system, and featured a practice session and question-and-answer period.

Ms. Bauman noted that the number of schools and colleges teaching the Century 21 method to beginning shorthand classes has tripled in the past 12 months.

Names of workshop participants from this area include: GREENE COUNTY, Snow Hill—JoAnn Cobb, Greene Central High School.

MUMMY IDENTIFIED — University of Michigan scientists announced Wednesday in Ann Arbor that this mummy has been positively confirmed to be that of Queen Tiy. She was a major figure in the 18th Egyptian Dynasty. The discovery is the first such find since the opening of King Tut-Ankh-Amun's Tomb in 1922. Final confirmation was made by electron probe analysis of the mummy's hair and a lock of hair found among King Tut's funeral treasures. (AP Wirephoto)

Abusers Charged In Killing Of Daughter

SETTING FOR DEBATE — Stage setting nears completion at the Alley Theatre in Houston for the Friday evening debate between the Vice Presidential Candidates, Sen. Robert Dole and Sen. Walter

Mondale. The two candidates are scheduled to arrive in Houston Today. (AP Wirephoto)

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — A couple convicted of abusing their infant daughter in 1973 was charged today with beating the girl to death Tuesday, Dist. Atty. Gen. Richard Fisher said. Fisher said the child, Melisha Morgana Gibson, was taken from her Wanda Gibson Maddux, her mother, and Ronald Maddux, her stepfather, while they served their prison sentences. She was returned to the couple in May, he said. The couple told police Wednesday they awoke to find the child lying dead on a mattress in the living room where she had been sleeping. An autopsy revealed that the four-year-old girl died of a severe beating, said Fisher. He said doctors reported the girl's injuries included a split liver and a ruptured left kidney. Police said the couple speculated someone may have broken into their home and killed their daughter. Officers said there were no signs of forcible entry. "First degree murder charges were filed against both of them late last night," said Fisher. "There will be an arraignment hearing this afternoon in General Sessions Court and the state will move that the couple be held without bond pending a trial in November," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lapsed into another sharp decline today, wiping out a large part of the gains recorded in Wednesday's technical rally. Trading was moderate.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 10.47 at 937.83. The average had jumped 15.95 points on Wednesday after an 81.78 loss in the 11 previous sessions.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 3-2 margin in today's tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said traders seemed simply to be skeptical that Wednesday's rally, sharp as it was, had firmly reversed the downtrend of the past couple of weeks.

"The market doesn't come down 82 points, turn on a dime and suddenly get well," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart.

Atlantic Richfield rose 3/4 to 56 1/2 and Anaconda fell 3/4 to 26 1/2. Late Wednesday the Federal Trade Commission said it would seek to block the two companies' planned merger.

IBM, which warned Wednesday that its earnings growth rate might slow through the rest of the year, fell 2 1/2 to

Parker expressed puzzlement that "patrons are not buying the season passes. About 90 per cent of those using the pool are persons who repeatedly make use of it, but they still prefer to pay the individual fee, which of course costs them more."

Total attendance in the 1976 season was down considerably in comparison to attendance in 1975, the first year the pool was open. Figures presented by Parker showed an attendance of 15,787 for 1975 as compared to 9,107 for 1976, a drop of 6,680 in attendance.

"The drop, I feel," Parker said, "can be attributed to two main reasons. The first summer it was something new, maybe even a novelty to many people. Also, the summer of 1975 was an exceptionally hot summer, whereas this past summer was much cooler with many more cool, gray days that were not ideal for swimming."

Monetary figures cited in the report do not include any profit that may have accrued from the concession stand. This account is handled separately from the revenue-expense operating account, and the revenue figures quoted represent only fees received from user sources.

Parker added that "near the end of the season there was a persistent rumor that a child had drowned at the pool. This of course was not true, but rumors are difficult to refute and I think this may have hurt us some in attendance."

Reporting on developments of the earlier stricture imposed by the Greenville Board of Adjustments on "lights out" time at Jaycee Park, Lee commented "in their September meeting, members of the Board of Adjustments rescinded the motion, saying they regret their error on imposing the 9:30 p.m. lights out time."

"Since it was an official ruling, we complied with it until the ruling was rescinded. The lights are now on until 10:30."

Relative to a recommendation by the Board of Adjustments that the Parks and Recreation Department secure land for a right-of-way at Jaycee Park, Lee said "We have an option to buy additional property, about five acres, adjacent to the park. We hope to be able to do this before option expires on January 1."

Without making it a matter of official action, board members verbally concurred in the continued renovation of the South Greenville Recreation Center without closing the gymnasium. Lee explained that construction now underway is for extensive remodeling of the community building hooked on the gym.

"Our major concern is one of liability in the event of a possible injury if someone should wander from the gym area to the construction area."

To minimize the possibility of such an occurrence, Lee said danger signs were posted and that construction people and supervisory personnel in the gym programs had been asked to take every precaution possible.

Use of the South Greenville gym is consistently heavy, with an average daily attendance of 109 during the month of September. This includes usage both by neighborhood people and school children.

Rampants Seek To Reverse Skid Against Improved Bertie Falcons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The first time Rose High School gets the ball Friday may turn out to be the most important one of the night, according to Coach Dave Bumgarner.

The Rampants will be traveling to Bertie Senior High School on Friday for an 8 p.m. football game with the Falcons. A victory is imperative if the Rampants are to have any hope of a shot at the Division I title.

After losing their opening conference start last Thursday at Rocky Mount, the Rampants dropped their record to 1-5 overall. Now they must even their league mark at 1-1. An 0-2 start in Division I would make it next to impossible to have any chance at another league crown.

"We played a good first half," Bumgarner said after last week's defeat. "Even though we were down at the half, 3-0, I felt like we were winning. But in the second half it was fumble, fumble and interception, interception. We just never got the offense doing anything in that half. You can't expect to win when you only run 17 offensive plays in a half."

Bumgarner added that he did not blame the quarterback for the fumbles—not all of them at least. "For the spectator's point of view, it may have appeared that way, but sometimes, it was the back just not taking hold of the ball, and in others it was someone missing a block and letting someone hit the quarterback just as he was handing off."

Nevertheless, Bumgarner will be starting a new quarterback this week. Scott Brady is expected to get the initial call and Ronnie Chapman will also see a lot of duty in the game.

The coach did feel that there were a few good performances in the game. He singled out David Northrup for his play, both offensively and defensively. He also noted MacDonald Washington for his defensive work.

Larry Speight, injured last week, will miss this week's game, as will Washington.

Bumgarner feels that Bertie, 2-4 on the year, and 0-1 in the conference, is probably the biggest team the Rampants have faced to date. "The are a lot like us in experience, however. They have a lot of young players."

"Still, they played Wilson a real close, aggressive game. They are greatly improved from last year. They have a good running back in Larry Cooper (6-0, 215-pound fullback) and a fine quarterback in Jack Curlings. They have good lines and good receivers."

Bumgarner noted that the Falcons run from the wishbone, and will remind fans a lot of Kinston. They like to run their fullback up the middle about 40 to 45 per cent of the time, while Curlings will keep the ball and try and get to the outside about 30 to 35 per cent of the time. "He'd rather keep it than option it off," Bumgarner said.

Defensively, Bumgarner isn't sure what to expect. "They ran several looks at Wilson, but they mostly tried to stack up the middle. Wilson scored by being able to get outside them. They are real strong up the middle with a big nose guard and tackles. Their linebackers are real quick."

Bumgarner said he sees the game as a toss-up. "We are going to have to score the first time we get the ball. We haven't been scoring like we should, and we've got to get our offense cranked up. If we can score right off the bat, I think we'll be a long way toward winning the game. We can't start sputtering."

The coach added that he felt the team still has good spirit and hasn't given up. "We've really done a lot of good things this year, but they've just been overshadowed by the bad things."

Division I	Overall	Conference

Northern Nash	4-20	1-0
Wilson	3-30	1-0

Last week's results: Wilson 20, Bertie 13; Northern Nash 21, Northeastern 0; Rocky Mount 23, Rose 8.

This week's games: Rose at Bertie, Wilson at Northern Nash; Rocky Mount at Northeastern.

Dye Angry Over Sticker

An angry Pat Dye has issued a statement regarding a bumper sticker which made its appearance this week in Greenville.

"I understand that a bumper sticker has been printed about Coach (Bill) Dooley and myself. We try to teach our players to have class and show it on and off the field. This shows no class at all."

"I'm disappointed that one of our own people would try to profit financially on something that our football program does not believe in. It's unfortunate that this has occurred the week we're getting ready for VMI. I certainly hope nothing of this sort takes place in the future."

Dye was referring to a sticker reading "Hang down your head Bill Dooley — Poor boy, you're going to Dye." The sticker was reportedly printed by an alumni of East Carolina, and according to Dye has no sanction from him, the football team, the athletic program, nor the Pirate Club.

"I hope that our fans will not be a party to using these," Dye said.

Newcomer Aids Rampant Effort

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

One of the most consistent players for the Rose High School Rampants this fall has been a newcomer to Greenville.

David Northrup is the middle of five brothers—and he has two stepbrothers to boot. That's practically a whole football team in one family.

Northrup came to Greenville during the summer when most of his family moved here. His stepfather is employed at Procter & Gamble.

"I'm in the middle," he said when referring to his family. "I've got two older and two younger brothers. One of my step-brothers is the same age, and another is older."

Many people seem to have trouble adjusting to a new set of friends and to different situations, but not Northrup. "People are the same everywhere. You always meet new friends."

A junior this year, Northrup played last year while living in Conneaut, Ohio, on the shore of Lake Erie. "I started out on the JV team, and moved to the varsity for the final five games."

As he does for the Rampants, Northrup played fullback and linebacker for his Ohio team. He doesn't seem to have much preference as to which he plays either. "I like them both," he said. "I've always gone both ways, ever since I first got into a sandlot league in Roanoke, Virginia, when I was nine. The hitting was just as hard there, too."

Comparing the many systems he's been in, Northrup rates this the best. "I think the coaching is better, and my father seems to think that there's more organization here. But, like everywhere, the contact is the same."

Last year, Northrup played tennis in addition to football, but this year, he's thinking of golf and swimming. "I shoot in the low 40s," he said of golf. "I really haven't done any competitive swimming in some time. I do all the strokes. When I was ten, I won the county title in my age group. But now, I really don't know how well I can do."

Aside from his sports activities, Northrup has no other hobbies. He hopes to go to college two years from now, but has no definite plans. "As far as football is concerned, I guess I'll have to wait and see if anyone offers me a scholarship. But I think I'll probably be too small for college ball."

Looking toward this week's game with Bertie, Northrup feels that the team is ready to go. "We're getting up for it. We feel we can win."

Royals Top Catfish; Stay Alive

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Having beaten New York Yankees ace Catfish Hunter in the game they had to win to stay alive, the Kansas City Royals go after their first World Series berth tonight against Ed Figueroa.

The Yankees, hoping for their first American League pennant in 12 years, tried to wrap it up with Hunter Wednesday. But the bid backfired when the Royals kayoed Hunter early.

That left Figueroa, a 19-game winner during the regular season but the loser in Game Two of these best-of-five AL playoffs, for tonight's deciding game. Today is Figueroa's 28th birthday.

The Royals forced the championship series to its limit by beating New York 7-4 Wednesday with a barrage of extra-base hits that included a double and triple by Hal McRae.

That overcame a pair of home runs by Graig Nettles of the Yankees and sent the two division champions back for one more game in this see-saw series.

McRae, who broke out of a slump that had left him hitless in the first three games of the series, thought that beating Hunter in Game Four would give the Royals the edge tonight.

"I feel we have the momentum now," said McRae. "I think we're in the best position. We beat their best pitcher — their big gun. They won't have the same faith in the guy they throw tomorrow (Thursday night) that they had today (Wednesday)."

Yankees Manager Billy Martin bristled at that suggestion. "Figueroa will start the fifth game, and we have a lot of faith in him," he said.

What was Martin's reason for using Figueroa, who has lost three decisions to Kansas City this season, including the second game of the playoffs?

"Nineteen wins," snapped the Yankees manager. "That's a pretty good reason."

Ignored as a possible starter for the final game was left-hander Ken Holtzman, a veteran of playoff and World Series competition during his years in Oakland. "Holtzman hasn't been pitching well lately," said Martin. "I really didn't consider him."

If the Yankees had no plans for Holtzman, Royals Manager Whitey Herzog could have used him on loan. Asked about his fifth game starter, Herzog had to hedge Wednesday night.

"I have no idea right now," he said. "I have a choice of four — Dennis Leonard, Marty Pattin, Al Fitzmorris and Paul Splittorff. If I had Holtzman, I'd pitch him."

Splittorff, who pitched 5 2-3 innings of shutout relief in Game Two, would have had the assignment almost automatically if he had not had to warm up Wednesday. But he was anxious for another shot at the Yankees.

Leonard was the second game starter and was knocked out early. But Herzog thinks the 17-game winner could do a creditable job. "He's a power pitcher and if he throws strikes he can give them trouble," the manager said.

Fitzmorris is the only Royals player who has not played in the series so far. "If I pitched, I'd feel strange," he said. "I think my bid was turned down."

Pattin faced just one batter in his only playoff appearance. "I'm ready," he said. "I should be strong. I couldn't get the ball over the plate the other night."

He would have been in trouble if he had. Herzog ordered an intentional walk to the only batter he faced.

Herzog shook up the Royals' lineup, benching regulars Jim Wohlford and Frank White. He sent McRae, usually the designated hitter, into right field, inserted veteran Cookie Rojas at second base and made Jamie Quirk, a rookie, the DH.

All of the moves worked. Rojas supplied two hits, igniting a pair of rallies. Quirk drove in two runs and scored a third. McRae scored twice after his two hits. And Patek collected three hits and three RBIs.

McRae had been experimenting with his stance, trying to battle his way out of the slump. "I've been playing around with five or six stances," he said. "I had been lunging at the ball. I wasn't hanging back enough."

He finally found a comfortable position in his second swing and drilled his hits in the fourth and sixth innings. Only a brilliant stop by Nettles at third base deprived him of a third hit in the eighth inning.

"If I had figured it out earlier," said McRae, "this series might be over now."

Patek's second-inning double drove in the first two Royals runs against Hunter. Then Buck Martinez got an RBI single, making it 3-0.

Nettles got two of those runs back with a homer in the bottom of the second, but McRae opened the fourth with his double and scored on Quirk's sacrifice fly. Two innings later, Patek doubled home the final Kansas City run following a two-out single by Rojas.

Waiting for the survivor of this bout are the Cincinnati Reds. Tonight's winner will be in Riverfront Stadium for the opening of the World Series Saturday.

SHALL WE DANCE? — New York Yankees catcher Thurman Munson gets a helping hand from Kansas City Royal shortstop Fred Patek after Munson was thrown out attempting to steal second during their American League playoff game at Yankee Stadium in New York Wednesday night. The Royals won, 7-4, to tie the playoff at two victories each. The final game is set for today in New York, with the winner moving on to the World Series against Cincinnati. (AP Wirephoto)

Doesn't Matter Who Shows Up On Saturday

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — They're playing a waiting game in Cincinnati — and they don't seem to care who shows up at Riverfront Stadium Saturday.

The Cincinnati Reds, fresh from their three-game sweep of Philadelphia in the National League playoffs, began looking ahead to the World Series.

For some, it was a matter of taking on the bigger name.

For others, it was a matter of raking in a bigger paycheck.

And for most, it was a matter of believing that whichever team wound up representing the American League would also wind up a loser.

"I don't care who we play because these guys represent the best team in baseball," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said Wednesday as he awaited the outcome of the best-of-five playoff between the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals, now tied 2-2.

"There isn't another club in baseball that can match the eight players we can put on the field every day," Anderson added. "This isn't any three or four-man team, like most clubs."

Anderson said he believed "some of the younger players are hoping it will be in New York. But that's because Yankee Stadium seats more than the Kansas City park and they're figuring that playing New York will mean more money to them."

Gary Nolan, the right-hander who started the final game of the Reds' playoff against the Phillies, said emphatically that he was hoping to play New York "because I figure it's a once-in-a-lifetime shot. I've never seen Yankee Stadium except on television. And it would sure make me feel proud, standing out there on the mound."

Pete Rose also said he would prefer going against New York, but for a more practical reason. "I know the Yankees' pitchers better because I've faced most of them before," he said. "I guess you might say it's a psychological thing with me, but it always bothers me when I'm facing a pitcher for the first time."

Ray Shore, Cincinnati's special assignment scout who has been keeping close tabs on both American League playoff clubs, said he would rather see the Royals win the AL flag.

"Kansas City, that's the club I'd like for us to play in the series," Shore said. "The Yanks have the more experienced staff and I think they'd have a better chance of holding down our hitters. And the Kansas City park has Astroturf like ours. That's another reason why I'd rather see us play them than the Yankees."

For the most part, though, the Reds were being non-committal about their possible opponent.

Recreation Football

The Bills and the Steelers came away with victories in the Greenville Recreation Department's football programs yesterday.

The Bills took a 6-0 win over the Oilers in the first game for each team in the tackle football program.

The lone score came in the second period when Mike Pollard broke away for a 53-yard run.

Mike Thurber and Sammy Hodges led the Oiler defense, each recovering a fumble, while Willie Moye, with an interception, and Pat Cannon, with a fumble recovery, led the Bills.

The Steelers gained an 18-0 win over the Cowboys in flag football. The Steelers are now 3-0, while the Cowboys are 2-1.

Gregory Taft opened the scoring in the second period with a 60-yard pass reception, making it 6-0. Donnell Lee scored on a 44-yard run in the third period, then added a 19-yarder in the fourth to complete the scoring.

Chip Cayton with two interceptions, led the Cowboy defense. David Moye with one interception, and Anthony Phillips, with two, paced the Steelers.

Ali's Libel Suit On Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — When Muhammad Ali comes to New York, he can't seem to avoid disputes.

Two weeks ago, the world heavyweight boxing champion retained his title with a controversial 15-round decision over Ken Norton at Yankee Stadium. Ali returned to New York Wednesday and appeared in court during a $20 million libel suit brought against him by fight referee Tony Perez.

Ali sat quietly in the courtroom as Perez testified that the champion taunted him during a bout against Chuck Wepner on March 24, 1975. Ali also was quoted as having said that Perez "probably had been paid by gangsters to see that I lose" in a fight against Joe Frazier in Jan. 28, 1974 and that Perez had bet on Frazier to win the fight.

When Ali took the witness stand, he was asked by Perez' attorney, Robert G. Sullivan, if he still believed Perez had bet on the fight.

"I truly believe it," Ali replied.

Ali had taken the stand after Perez testified that his career as a referee had been damaged by Ali's remarks, which included a reference to him as "not a black man or a white man. He is a Puerto Rican. He is more black than white but he is trying to be white."

Ali has filed a $1 million counter-suit in connection with the Wepner fight, in which the champion stopped the challenger in the 15th round. Ali accused Perez of allowing Wepner to throw rabbit punches and, in the ninth round, permitting the challenger to step on his foot, resulting in a knockdown.

A video tape of an Ali interview with sportscaster Howard Cosell following the Wepner bout was shown to Judge Milton Pollack and a civil jury of four women and two men. In the tape, Ali called Perez "a dirty dog." Ali also made what Perez claims were "false, malicious and libelous" remarks about the referee possibly waging on Frazier.

Roanoke Ices Tie

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School gained a 2-1 volleyball victory over North Pitt yesterday and iced a tie for first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference race.

The victory boosted Roanoke to a 7-2 record overall. A victory for the Squaws today against Greene Central, or a loss by Ayden-Grifton to Farmville Central would sew up the title for Roanoke North Pitt is now 1-8 and closes with Conley today.

Roanoke took the first game of the series, 15-0. Shelia Hoskins served up 11 straight points to lead the shutout victory.

North Pitt came back in the second contest to squeeze out a 16-14 win. Renee Vernelson led the Pan-HERS with six straight serves, while Emma Manning had six for Roanoke.

The Squaws then took the final game, 15-12. Hoskins again led Roanoke with five, while Gwendolyn Dixon and Vernelson each had five for North Pitt.

The six conference teams will hold a tournament next week.

SEAVER WINS FANS

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver added a few new fans to his cheering section the first Friday in September when he beat the Phillies 1-0 in a brilliantly-pitched game. After Seaver ended the game by striking out Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt for the third time, Met president Lorinda de Roulet came onto the field in her exit and congratulated the fastballing right hander.

Earlier, when Seaver fanned pinch-hitting Tom Hutton in the seventh, the fans gave him a standing ovation. It was his 200th strikeout of 1976 and broke his own record of 200 or more strikeouts during a season. Seaver has now fanned more than 200 the past nine years.

Juniors In Net Defeat

KINSTON — The Greenville Junior High tennis team, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department, suffered a 6-1 defeat at the hands of Kinston yesterday.

It was the second loss in as many starts for the Greenville team. Greenville's next match is at Wilson on Oct. 27.

Claiborne: Injured Ready For The Deacs

By The Associated Press
Coach Jerry Claiborne says the Maryland cripples with the exception of tailback Steve Atkins will be ready to try to knock Wake Forest out of the Atlantic Coast Conference football lead Saturday.

Guests at the Maryland Homecoming game will be members of the Terps Sugar Bowl champions of 1952. The team, which defeated Tennessee 28-12, was led by quarterback Jack Scarbath, now a member of the University of Maryland Board of Regents.

Fifth-ranked Maryland held 15 players out of practice at the beginning of the week, following the physical 16-6 victory over North Carolina State, a record 16th straight in the ACC.

The Wake Forest Deacons lead with a 2-0 ACC record on victories over North Carolina State and Clemson. Tied for runnerup at 1-0 are Maryland after the victory over the N.C. State Wolfpack, and Duke, which has beaten Virginia.

Wake Forest has not scored on the Maryland Terps in the last four years. Maryland has run up 134 points on the Deacons in that time. The Deacons won the 1971 game, 18-14. This year they have strong runner in freshman James McDougald, who set a school record of 249 yards rushing in the 20-14 victory at home over Clemson last week.

Clemson, home to Duke this week, reportedly has placed starting running back Warren Ratchford on probation after Clemson city police charged him with disorderly conduct.

The State newspaper of Columbia, S.C., reports he was involved in what university officials called an "incident" at a tavern following the Wake Forest game. Clemson coach Red Parker had said a player had been disciplined because of the incident and the police charge, but did not give the player's name or describe the incident.

North Carolina, unscheduled last week, has had extra time to get ready for its home game with North Carolina State, one of the fiercest rivalries in the South.

The Wolfpack coach, Bo Rein, says the North Carolina Tar Heels, 4-1, are easily the most improved team in the conference. This will be the first league game of the season for North Carolina.

The Tar Heels have lost middle guard Roger Shonosky, who suffered torn ligaments in his right knee during a practice session. He has been replaced in the starting lineup by sophomore Dave Simmons of Goldsboro, N.C.

Virginia, loser of all five games this season, is not figured to break the string against Virginia Tech, which beat VMI 37-7 last week. Tech has a 3-2 record, including a 23-6 season-opening victory over Wake Forest.

"I'm kind of afraid to say how things look," Coach Dave Patton said on the eve of the start of basketball practice at East Carolina University. "We thought a lot of things last year that didn't happen. So we're going to take a wait and see attitude this year."

Patton's third East Carolina team will open drills on Friday, hoping to improve on last year's 11-15 record. Two years ago, the first Patton team posed a 19-9 mark, and was the surprise of the Southern Conference, gleaming a trip to the Collegiate Commissioner's Tournament. But last year's disaster included a fourth place finish in the standings, and a first round Southern Conference Tournament loss to Appalachian State.

"I think we have some fine players this year. How quickly they mold into a team is going to be the big question. We don't have a great deal of experience, and we're a young team."

Offensively, Patton feels that the Pirates will be in good shape. "The only area not quite as good as we'd like is the total team quickness. Now we can put a quick team on the court, all right, but it's the total quickness I'm talking about. We do have speed, too. I think we've got good rebounding, shooting and ballhandling."

Defense, however, is a question mark. "This is the area we'll have to work the hardest at," Patton said.

"I think we'll have the type of team that people will enjoy watching. We'll be young and inexperienced, and we'll make some mistakes. But they'll be the time of mistakes we won't be likely to keep making."

There is only one experienced senior on the team this year — center Larry Hunt. "His chances of starting are pretty good," Patton said. "He's shown a change of attitude, and a lot depends on how much he really wants to play. But I still think that that ankle injury he got last year was the chief reason for his not playing up to par."

Joining Hunt are four others who could play in the two "big" front court positions — the pivot and the big forward. They include Tyrone Edwards, Dean Hartley, Greg Cornelius and Wade Henkel. Of these, Henkel is the most experienced, while Cornelius has no varsity experience.

"Ty has the ability. He's going to be great one of these days, when he decided to be. He's stronger now, but not as much as we'd like. He seems to be okay physically too, but he's going to have to guard against colds and the flu," Edwards, at 6-11, is the tallest of the Bucs.

Hartley lacks in experience, but the 6-10 junior could prove helpful. "Looking back, the one game he played in (at Furman), he did a real good job. How much he plays depends on what he does."

Cornelius, a 6-9 sophomore, is an unknown quantity. "He hasn't played competitively in over a year, but he has been working hard. He's a strong rebounder and a good inside shooter. We're not so much worried about his talents as his mental frame of mind. He's not so much worried about his talents as his mental frame of mind. He's not so much worried about his talents as his mental frame of mind."

Powers. "He's going to be good for us. How soon depends on how hard he works at overcoming some of the things he can't do now. He's a strong jumper who can shoot."

Veteran — but sophomore — Lewis Crosby returns at the big guard position. "He appears taller and he's filled out a little," Patton said. "He's coming off an All-Rookie year, and we look for him to be improved. I don't think the others are going to wait around for him to do it all like they did last year, however. We put too much burden on him then. He could play the small forward position, too, but we'd rather have him here."

Joining him is Jim Ramsey, a freshman. "He's another sound fundamental player who so far has shown a lot more maturity than you expect from a freshman. He does all phases of the game well."

Billy Dineen brings experience to the point guard position. "He's a natural point man — a leader and a competitor. He's a good ball handler, but he needs to work on his maturity in his floor decisions."

Don Whitaker is a junior college transfer. "He does things we need done at this position. He gets the ball up the floor and gets people to the right place and the ball to them. He reminds me a lot of Donnie Owens, but he's not quite as good a shooter."

Three non-grant players join them, including veteran Tommy Williams, expected to see quite a bit of duty. Albert Holloman and Tim Wray are the other two walk-ons.

Patton has 45 days to get the Bucs ready. They open at home against UNC-Asheville on November 29.

January Closing Out Golf Season

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tough old Don January, who happily calls himself "Old Folks," will close out one of pro golf's most remarkable seasons this week.

"This is it," drawled the slow-moving, easy-going January before teeing off in the first round today as the defending champion in the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open. "I've played enough. I'm running out of gas."

That's exactly what happened in his last start, two weeks ago in the Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas. He led through three rounds, then faded over the last 18 holes and finished in a tie for second with Dave Hill.

"It's been very rewarding, very satisfying," January said. He wasn't sure he would make it when he started on the comeback trail two years ago. "I hadn't even played friendly golf," he said. "And that's a whole different animal from the golf they play out here on the tour."

"When I came back out, I gave myself a year to find out if I could make it back."

The year was almost up at this tournament last season. January won it. He was back to stay.

"I shall not leave on my own," he said. "It will take my game to force me off the tour. As long as I can be competitive, as long as I can play and make money, I will continue to play."

He has acquired more than his share this season and looks for even more in this chase for a $25,000 first prize.

"You always want to do your best," he said. "That's particularly so when you're defending. But you can't predict that you'll play well. All you can do is try your hardest. And if that isn't good enough, well, I'll just pack my bags and go back to Dallas."

Among January's chief challengers here are the veteran Hill, enjoying his best season since 1969; Al Geiberger, winner of two 1976 titles, and Ben Crenshaw, a three-time winner this season who needs a first or second-place finish to move into the leading money-winning spot.

Other standouts include 1976 winners Tom Kite, Rik Massengale, Mark Hayes and Larry Ziegler, along with John Mahafey and veteran Miller Barber.

Greenville Golf Results

The Greenville Golf and Country Club recently released a number of results from the past few weeks of play.

Having their best rounds were Phil Koonce with a 106 and Pat Dye Jr. with a 73.

Harriette White tied for first place in the recent Carolina Pines Invitational and won the Happy Valley Invitational with a 75.

First place in a Men's Better Ball of Four tournament went to Bruce Sauter, C. W. Everett Jr., Dick Douglas and Charles Vincent. Ed Tipton, Joe Murad and Bill Batchelor took second place.

Sue Dye and Betty Akin took first place in a ladies' Better Ball of Four tournament and another Better Ball of Pair tournament held on Ladies Day. Dardie Longino and Ann White finished second in the Ladies Day event and Ann Evans and Gay Waldrop took third place.

The M. B. Massey Jr. Match Play Tournament is currently being held and Greenville Golf and Country Club. Advancing to the quarter-finals of the senior division were Pat Dye Jr., Jack Mann, Greg House and Don White.

In the junior division, Brett Dye, Lyn Moore, Stewart Ward and Marvin Blount all moved into the semi-finals.

The Pitt County League's recent women's tournament was won by Barbara Walker of Ayden with a low gross of 80 in the championship flight. Dardie Longino had a low net of 72 and Jane Worsley and Marie Israel, both of Grifton, tied for low putts in the championship flight with 28 each.

In the first flight, Bernie Wail had a low gross of 90, Tee Ficklen took low net with 64 and Sara West had the fewest putts with 31.

Donna Lane of Ayden had the low gross score of 97 in the second flight and Bernice Moseby of Ayden won low net with a 61. Grace Merritt of Ayden and Edna Anderson of Grifton tied for low putts with 31.

In the third flight, Nan Rogers of Grifton shot a 103 for low gross. Ginny Hill had a low net score of 64 and Rottie King and Staley Wilson tied for low putt honors with 32 each.

Upcoming events announced by the country club are a free clinic for men and women on Oct. 27 from 4-5:30 in the afternoon. Topics covered will be rules, swing technique and hitting shots on range.

In addition, the Pitt County League will hold a tournament at Grifton on Nov. 5.

Still, that performance helped him to the best year of his pro career that has spanned more than 20 years, and capped one of the most dramatic comebacks in sports history.

At age 46, after a three-year retirement in which he rarely played even friendly golf, he won the prestigious Tournament of Champions, was in the title contention almost every time he started, has a chance at the Vardon Trophy for the tour's low scoring average and now has won $162,772, more than twice as much as he had ever

Nebraska leads the nation's college football teams in pass defense over the past five years, allowing an average of 93.8 yards per game on passes.

Over 100 In Race

ODESSA, Mo. (AP) — The best of NASCAR, USAC and ARCA, plus many of the top independent names in stock car racing are scheduled to compete this weekend in the World Cup 400 race at 1-70 Speedway, a fast, high banked half-mile track just east of Kansas City.

Using a purse of $71,500 as a lure, the season closing race has attracted more than 100 drivers. Heading the entries are singer Marty Robbins and Bobby Allison from the prestigious NASCAR circuit; Ramo Stott, the current USAC champion; Butch Hartman, who won four in a row prior to Stott's feat, and Dave Dayton, the ARCA champ.

Time trials will consume the opening session Friday night, a series of qualification races are scheduled for Saturday night and the 400-lap feature will be run Sunday afternoon, with $10,000 going to the winner.

Wise Fashions Store Formally Opened Today

The formal opening of Wise Fashions, located at 400 Evans Mall, took place this morning with ribbon cutting ceremonies marking the occasion.

Among those on hand for the ribbon snipping were Mayor Percy Cox, who welcomed the new fashion store to Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Blount Sr., owners of the building; Dave Mosier, head of the Downtown Greenville Association; and Nancy Bray, store manager.

Wise Fashions of Greenville, a member of the Wise nationwide chain headquartered in New York, features fashion merchandise for juniors and misses, according to Mrs. Bray. Fashions are geared toward the college girl and working woman, it was noted.

The new store is located in a completely renovated building that formerly housed two downtown businesses. In remodeling, the owners combined the two facilities into one and completed both interior and exterior refurbishing.

The facility features an exposed beam look with paneling throughout. Completely carpeted, the store has an "open" appearance with its glassed-in front.

Store hours for Wise Fashions, Mrs. Bray pointed out, will be Monday through Thursday from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Friday from 9:30 a.m. until 9 p.m., and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

The opening of the Greenville facility, located at the corner of Fourth and Evans, along with the opening of a new Wise store in Oxford, brings the number of stores in the chain operating in Carolina to six. Others are located in Roanoke Rapids, Wilson, Kinston, and Goldsboro.

Mrs. Bray, a Greenville native, was formerly manager of a men's and ladies' retail store in Washington.

Nat'l Health Ins. Cost Studied

BOSTON (AP) — A national health insurance program would cost between $560 to $850 annually for a family earning $15,000 a year, according to a study by the Rand Corp. and Tufts University Medical School.

The price would be much higher for the wealthy and far lower for the poor, says the study, published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The study was based on an imaginary health insurance program similar to three major proposals that were before Congress last session. None of the bills passed, but new proposals are expected next year.

Dr. William B. Schwartz of Tufts said the research is intended to guide federal policy makers.

"This lays out for the first time in a systematic way how the burden will be distributed," he said in an interview. "There's a lot of money involved. Who wins and who loses is a very critical issue."

The report suggests three ways of paying for the insurance — premiums, payroll taxes and income taxes. Whether the government picks one of these methods or uses a combination would determine how the burden is spread among taxpayers.

Here is the researchers' breakdown:

—Income taxes: If financing was by this method alone, it would mean a 28 per cent increase in personal and corporate income taxes. A family earning $3,000 a year would pay nothing, but taxes for a family that earned $9,000 would go up $260, one that made $15,000 would increase $560, a family that made $30,000 would increase $1,910, and one that earned $50,000 would pay $4,330 more.

—Payroll taxes: These would be collected in a method similar to Social Security. To pay for the entire program this way would require a tax rate of 6.9 per cent on earnings up to $15,300. A family that makes $3,000 would pay $210, one that earns $9,000 would pay $610, and a family earning $15,000 would pay $970. Families with incomes between $30,000 and $50,000 would pay $1,060.

—Premiums: Using this method alone, every family would pay the same — $850 — regardless of income.

Six-County Church Conference Sunday

United Methodists from a six county area will be gathering in Greenville for the annual Greenville District Conference Sunday, October 17. St. James United Methodist Church located at 2000 East Sixth St., will host the District Conference which begins at 3 p.m.

The Greenville District, under the superintendency of the Rev. Richard T. Commander, includes Beaufort, Greene, Hyde, Lenoir, Martin and Pitt Counties. The district's 69 churches have over 15,900 members.

Ms. Winell M. Thomas of Cuba will be the guest speaker at the conference. She is a teacher and is active in the United Methodist Church. Her husband, James J. Thomas, is executive secretary of Specialized Ministries for the United Methodist Committee on Relief.

The program will also include reports from district committees and Conference institutions. The choirs of St. James United Methodist Church will present special music and the Rev. Roderick Randolph will be the host pastor of the conference.

Two Wrecks Wednesday

An estimated $1,550 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:35 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street which involved vehicles driven by Susan Anne Harper of Havelock and William Shade Wilson of Route 2, Ayden.

Damage from the mishap was set at $100 to the Harper car and $850 to the Wilson vehicle.

Cars driven by Debra Joyce Spain of Lawson's Trailer Pk. and Carol Cooper Rouse of 1212 Redbanks Rd. collided about 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Spain car and $200 damage to the Rouse auto.

Police made no charges in either mishap.

Arrest Two On Drug Charge

Two young women were charged with possession of marijuana early today following an incident on Mumford Road.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Teresa Yvonne Rose, 21 of Belhaven and Gloria Jean Perry, 21 of Edenton were arrested on the drug charge after officers stopped a truck in which they were riding about 2:20 a.m. on Mumford Road.

Cannon said Patrick Steven Hoff, 18 of Frisco, the driver of the truck, was charged with driving under the influence.

Miss Rose was also charged by police with carrying a concealed weapon.

More Low Grade Leaf Appearing On Market

FARMVILLE — Quality tobacco continued in strong demand, with less desirable grades weaker in yesterday's sales. Due to marketing of more low grade tobacco, the average was down from Wednesday, but the average price was approximately $12.50 a hundred more than a year ago on the same day.

Several sheets of wrapper grades sold from $1.50 to $1.55 a pound in company purchases. Stabilization receipts showed a gain compared to the previous sale day.

The market sold 684,263 pounds for $828,559 for an average of $121.09 per hundred pounds.

To date, the Farmville market has sold 26,475,832 pounds for $30,719,572 for a season average of $116.03 per 100 pounds.

A worldwide flu epidemic in 1917-19 killed 20 to 30 million persons.

Red China's Leaders Meeting

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Leaders of the Chinese Communist party are believed meeting in Peking to back up Premier Hua Kuo-feng's purge of radical party leaders and perhaps to prepare the formal announcement of his elevation to chairman of the party, Japanese press reports from the Chinese capital said today.

Kyodo news agency reported that scores of limousines were parked Wednesday night at the Great Hall of the People, the Chinese party's central meeting hall. The report said traffic control in the area was strengthened, and that police were patrolling adjacent streets.

There was speculation that Hua had called the Communist party Central Committee together to endorse his reported arrest last weekend of Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's firebrand widow, and some 30 other leading party radicals. There was no confirmation from the Hsinhua news agency, Peking Radio or other official Chinese organs that a party meeting was in progress. Nor was there any official confirmation of the purge.

However, Japanese correspondents reported that photographs of Chiang Ching and the other three leading radical members of the party Politburo — Shanghai leader Wang Hung-wen, Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao and ideologist Yao Wen-yuan — were no longer on sale in the city. This was another indication that the widespread reports of the purge were true, since photographs of disgraced leaders usually disappear quickly.

The power struggle between moderate and radical leaders that has been going on in China for years was intensified by the death in January of Premier Chou En-lai. Radicals blocked the advancement of First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-peng, Chou's choice for his successor, and succeeded in having him purged. But Hua, 57, who was named premier and first vice chairman of the party, was considered a compromise choice whose leanings in the power struggle were not clear.

As first vice chairman, Hua has been acting head of the party since Mao's death Sept. 9, and wall posters in Peking last week said he had been named chairman. Foreign correspondents in Peking reported this week that a spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry confirmed the poster report and said the formal announcement would be made after the entire party organization had been informed.

POACHING RAID — Florida wildlife officer L. Floyd Buckhalter shows some of the 500 illegal alligator hides and deer heads agents said they confiscated Wednesday during a raid on an alleged poaching operation in the central part of the state. Three men were charged. Officials said the skins have a black market value of about $40,000. The seizure was called the largest ever in Florida and was the culmination of a six-month investigation. Suit Aimed At Land-Use Act

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — A suit has been filed by Carteret County officials challenging the constitutionality of the state's Coastal Area Management Act.

Filed on behalf of the county commission, the suit asks that the Superior Court overturn the 1974 law that sets up a system of regulating land use in the 20 coastal counties. Named defendant was the Coastal Resources Commission (CRC), the 15-member board that is to draw guidelines, approve land use plans and review requests for construction permits in regulated areas.

In May, the county commission—which called the act an attempt by "well-intentioned legislators to save us from ourselves"—refused to approve a land use plan worked up by its planning department under state guidelines. The suit was authorized in August.

The state is now drawing up a land use plan for the county. The suit charges that the act violates the state constitution because it applies to only 20 counties and not the entire state as required. It also charges that the act unconstitutionally regulates matters such as health, sanitation, labor and mining.

Through land use restrictions, the CRC has the unconstitutional power to deprive counties and private property owners of the use of their land without just compensation, the suit alleges.

The suit further complains that the General Assembly failed to provide sufficient restraints on the CRC.

Two Hurt In Bus Accident

DENTON, N.C. (AP) — Two pupils were slightly injured early today when a Davidson County school bus drive, by a 16-year-old youth veered off the road to avoid a car, authorities said.

"There were no serious injuries involved," said Highway Patrolman Bill Ussery.

Ussery said two 15-year-old girls were taken to a hospital in Thomasville as a precaution, but suffered only bruises.

The driver was identified as Timothy Gallimore. He was uninjured and continued his route with a substitute bus.

Only five pupils were aboard the bus at the time of the incident on North Carolina 109 north of here, Ussery said.

According to the highway patrol's report, Gallimore met an oncoming car across the centerline and swerved onto the shoulder of the road to avoid a collision. The ten reportedly lost control of the bus and ran into shrubbery along the highway.

After the queen of hearts wins the first trick, declarer should cross to his hand with the ace of clubs. The reader can see that this falls the king, and the contract sails home. But, for purposes of this demonstration, let's suppose both defenders follow with low cards. Declarer now cashes the ace of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy, and ruffs a heart on the board. After taking dummy's top diamond, he ruffs a diamond in his hand, then exits with a trump.

If East has the king of trumps, he must win this trick and concede the contract. A spade return is into dummy's tenace, and any red-suit return gives declarer a ruff-and-suff. If West has the king of clubs, declarer can still fall back on the spade finesse, and he is no worse off than had he relied on taking both black-suit finesses in the first place.

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — In an unprecedented action, CBS has formally beefed about NBC's wartime series, "Baa Baa Black Sheep," calling it "inappropriate" for the "family-viewing" hour in which it appears.

Nay, says NBC, the series is quite appropriate. A "Baa Baa" executive says CBS just got mean because "Baa Baa" was beating the competing Tony Orlando show. CBS strongly denies such a motive. The whole thing started last week when CBS filed its complaint with National Association of Broadcasters TV code officials, whose "family viewing" rule went into effect in September 1975.

CBS, which initially pushed the "family viewing" concept, thus became the first network, according to the NAB, to accuse another network of stepping beyond the Sanitary Divide in program content.

CBS said the first two episodes of "Baa Baa" were inappropriate — CBS censor Van Gordon Sauter said this meant they "exploit violence, glorify excessive drinking and condone dubious moral standards." Sauter explained in an interview that "what we're saying (in the NAB complaint) is that if the series continues in that fashion, in our opinion it's a blatant violation of the family hour."

NBC, which now must respond to CBS' charges through the association, said in a statement that it considers the Tuesday series, which airs at 8 p.m. EDT, "appropriate programming for that time period."

The one-hour show, second in its time period in the ratings to ABC's "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," still has been beating CBS' Tony Orlando show on Tuesdays.

"Baa Baa" is loosely based on the exploits of Marine Col. Gregory "Pappy" Boyington and the fighter squadron he headed in the South Pacific in World War II.

The show's executive producer, Stephen J. Cannell, reacts to CBS' charge this way: "I suppose I ought to thank em' for the publicity. I find it (the complaint) the high point of hypocrisy."

"I don't think this has anything to do with the family hour. I think it's because CBS is in big Nielsen trouble in that time period."

Sauter's reply to that, "Our complaint is totally unrelated to matter of ratings." And he said to attribute "such callous and unfounded motives" to CBS' use of procedures for discussing what is or isn't appropriate family programming "is detrimental to the whole concept of industry self-regulation."

Stockton Helfrich, director of the NAB code authority office, said he expected NBC's response to the CBS charge soon. The matter eventually could go to the full television code board for a ruling. But he said he doubted CBS' action will touch off a series of tit-for-tat "family hour" complaints by competing networks, saying, "I think this is an atypical situation."

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, October 14, 1976—19

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take care that you do not become involved in any arguments and disputes at home today, as well as in business. Maintain a cheerful attitude and avoid becoming emotionally excited.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Keep calm at home where some argument might start that is best quelled quietly. A new venture may be proposed to you which you should consider carefully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need more information to help you in your routines, but this is not a good day for gaining such planetary-wise. Drive or walk with more than usual care. Be wise in speech also.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study finances carefully and get out of that feeling of lack since you have more than you realize and need, actually. Plan hows to make needed repairs to property.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on your duties and stop worrying about others' feelings toward you and you get ahead faster. Remember that others have their own problems and little time for yours.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some limiting situation can give you a setback if you permit, but take it in your stride and clear it up. Don't try to use your wits where an expert is concerned or you get into trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some personal aim is difficult to gain and could get you frustrated, but use wisdom and all is fine. Don't rely on a friend who is too preoccupied with own affairs to be of much help right now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get rid of those duties that are pressuring you and free time for more worthwhile endeavors later. Make sure you handle a credit matter carefully. Do nothing radical at home in evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try a new tack at some long-standing problem and you get it solved quickly, but be sure to use accepted methods. Don't annoy a new partner or you invite serious trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't let all those tasks bog you down, but get them handled efficiently and they are soon behind you. A loved one is apt to complain, but don't pay much attention to such.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An emotional partner could get you in a lot of trouble if you permit, so take it easy. A civic matter may seem annoying but could bring you benefits instead if handled rightly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Organize work cleverly and then get it done efficiently with right benefits derived from it. Avoid a co-worker who is in a bad mood.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Spend only what is necessary and do not get yourself in further unnecessary debt. Try to be more affectionate with a loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those persons who needs much love and encouragement otherwise a martyr complex will develop which is best avoided early in life. Slant education along lines of serving the public in commodities, foods, clothing, etc. Teach early to be an optimist.

Another 1976 Increase In Newsprint Prices

PUBLIC NOTICES

By DEIRDRE DONNELLY
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian manufacturers of newsprint, citing a jump in wages and other production costs, are raising their prices for the second time this year.

Canada is the world's leading producer of newsprint and supplies about 65 per cent of the nine million tons used each year by United States newspaper, telephone directory and paperback book publishers.

The year's first increase came in March when prices for newsprint rose $20 to $25 a ton. The second will come Nov. 1 and Dec. 1, when five of the biggest Canadian mills put a $20 a ton hike into effect.

The increase will raise newsprint prices to $305 a ton for Eastern, Southern and Midwestern publishers supplied by Kruger Pulp and Paper Limited, Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd., Abitibi Paper Co., the Price Co.

Ltd., and International Paper Co.'s subsidiary, Canadian International Paper Co.

It brings the so-called eastern newsprint price in line with prices at western mills in Washington, Oregon, and British Columbia that raised prices to $300 a ton from $280 a ton last July.

The mills blame the latest price increase chiefly on rapidly rising union wages.

Contracts signed last February and March between the Canadian mills and paper workers ended a bitter nine-month strike with a hefty increase in payroll costs for the mills.

The new three-year contract raised mill wages by 14 per cent retroactively to May 1, 1975, and saddled the mills with an additional 10 per cent wage increase on May 1, 1976 and another 8 per cent raise next May.

By next summer, average mill wages will have risen 38 per cent in two years, according to the Newsprint Information Committee, the public relations arm of the newsprint industry.

The lowest pay scale at the mills will be $15,600 a year, average annual wages will be $18,000 and salaries will run as high as $23,500 for machine tenders, the committee said.

"We raised prices as early as we felt we could this fall to meet these critical costs," said an Abitibi spokesman.

Abitibi along with several other mills omitted shareholder dividends during last year's strike and have been unable to reinstate them.

More problems for the mills have been caused by the unexpectedly slow recovery of newsprint demand by U.S. newspaper publishers following the recession.

U.S. newsprint consumption dominated by the newspapers, ran less than 2 per cent ahead of last year in the first eight months of 1976, despite a 20 per cent increase in newspaper advertising revenues and good gains in circulation.

Publishers say the reason for the slow growth of demand is the success of newsprint conservation programs implemented over the past three years to combat recurring paper price increases.

Conservation programs often include reducing the width of the paper, keeping a close watch on the number of copies printed, shrinking the comics and editorial page cartoon, and redesigning the newspaper format.

The New York Times said it expects to cut newsprint use by 5 per cent from last year's 268,000 tons due to changes in design introduced on Sept. 7.

Instead of an eighth-column page for news and advertising, the Times divided the space for news into six columns per page and the space for advertising into nine columns per page.

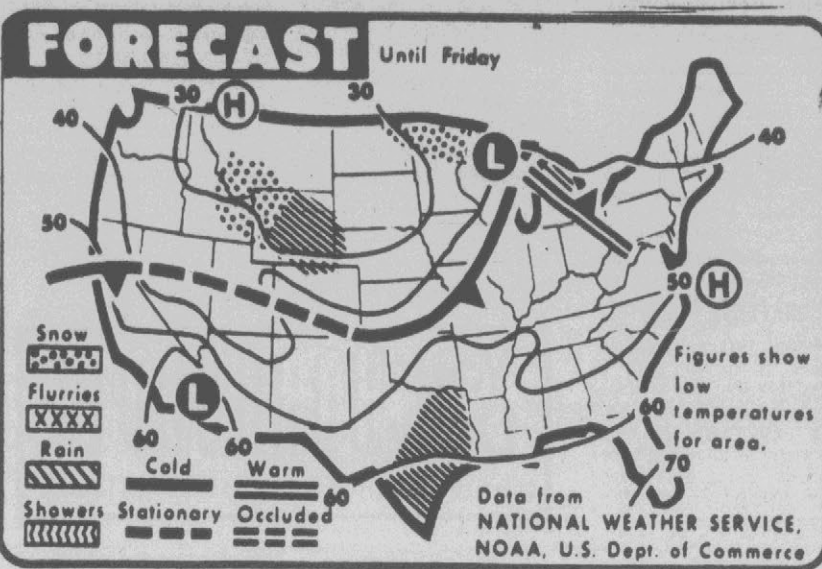

"Conservation measures have really helped newspapers in this country hold down their newsprint consumption even though circulation and advertising have come back strongly since last year," a Times spokesman said.

The price increase of newsprint this fall is the maximum allowed under Canadian price controls, but industry analysts predict there will be more price increases as the market gets stronger.

"They have a way to go on improving profitability," a Canadian analyst said.

"All the recent increases in newsprint production capacity are due to machine speedups. The mills profits haven't justified any major expansion since 1970," he said.

How's the Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Colder weather is due today from the Northwest to the Midwest and for New York and New England. The rest of the southern coast by late afternoon. Associated with this front was a wind shift and a slight drop in temperatures. Not enough moisture was available along the front to produce cloudiness.

One bridge is being repaired and another is being taken down on the Yadkin River.

Army Engineers have started dismantling the temporary bridge which replaced the span which collapsed at Siloam last Feb. 23, killing four motorists and injuring 16. The temporary bridge is no longer needed. A million-dollar replacement for the collapsed bridge was opened to traffic two weeks ago and will be dedicated on Nov. 1.

High waters which followed heavy rains last weekend tore out a section of the Rockford bridge five miles upstream. A state Department of Transportation crew has started a $30,000 repair job.

The workers should not be hampered by the weather today or Friday. There is no chance of rain in the state today, and only a 10 per cent chance Friday, the National Weather Service says.

The extended outlook is for widely scattered showers during the weekend and into Monday. Highs will be in the 70s, cooling into the 60s by Monday. Lows will be in the 40s in the mountains to the 60s along the coast.

All streams and creeks are within bankful.

Cloudiness will develop in the mountains Friday as the winds become more westerly, permitting moisture to enter into that area. High temperatures over the state will be mostly in the 70s.

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Of for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

President Of CBS Inc. Abruptly Quits His Post

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

Just 15 months after his powerful boss said he'd be "greatly pleased to have him as my successor," Arthur R. Taylor, 41, abruptly quit his $480,000-a-year job as president of CBS Inc.

Industry observers were surprised by his unexpected decision Wednesday to leave the billion-dollar conglomerate he's headed since 1972. He disclosed neither his future plans nor reasons for leaving. CBS declined to say why he resigned.

But if his decision in no way involved CBS-TV's poor ratings this season or the controversial "family viewing" concept for early evening shows he initiated and the networks adopted in September 1975.

A knowledgeable industry source attributed Taylor's departure to a personality clash between the handsome young executive and his strong-willed boss, CBS board chairman William S. Paley, 75.

Paley went to great lengths in July 1975 to rebut an article in "New York" magazine that mentioned "a strong rumor" that he and Taylor "aren't hitting it off" together.

"Absolute nonsense," Paley said in a statement then. "As I have said before and as I have been quoted in the press, Arthur Taylor and I have a very good relationship and I would be greatly pleased to have him as my successor."

Paley, declining to comment on Taylor's sudden resignation, praised him in a statement Wednesday, and tersely added: "We understand and appreciate his decision to make other plans for his future. We wish him the very best."

CBS said Taylor, an investment banker who rose to executive vice president at International Paper Co. before joining CBS, turned in his resignation shortly before a CBS board meeting Wednesday.

The board immediately replaced him with John D. Backe, 44, since early 1973 president of CBS' publishing group.

In another action Wednesday, Paley, who built CBS from a fledgling radio network to a broad-based company expecting to exceed $2 billion in sales this year, told the board he'll step down next April as chief executive officer.

Paley, in that post since 1928, said he'll remain CBS board chairman, which he became 30 years ago.

Backe, the new CBS Inc. president, is a native of Akron, Ohio. Like Taylor, his predecessor, he comes to his new job with no broadcast background. He is a publishing veteran who previously was president of General Learning Corp. He now may become Paley's successor. Taylor, holder of a degree in Renaissance history from Brown University, joined CBS after his predecessor, Charles T. Ireland Jr., died of a heart attack after eight months on the job.

A hard-working executive in managing the increasingly diversified CBS, whose main revenues still are from broadcasting and records.

Officials at NBC and ABC, who preferred anonymity, expressed surprise Wednesday at Taylor's departure from CBS.

Carter Will Be Speaking

RALEIGH (AP) - Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will speak at a Winston-Salem rally next Tuesday, the North Carolina headquarters announced today.

The rally will be at the Benton Convention Center at 1:30 p.m., party officials said. Carter will not have a news conference and no other activities are planned for the visit.

Statewide and congressional Democratic candidates are expected to participate in the rally. Joel McCleary, Carter's Tar Heel campaign manager, said the appearance is aimed at helping state Democratic candidates as much as boosting Carter's own efforts in the state.

Carter will land at Winston-Salem from Miami then continue to New York after giving a speech at the rally. It will be Carter's second visit to the state since his nomination. He attended a fund raising dinner in Asheville in August.

Head-On Crash Killed Two Men

BURGAW, N.C. (AP) - A Mount Olive man and his stepson were killed Wednesday when their pickup truck collided head-on with a tractor trailer on N.C. 53 near Burgaw, the Highway Patrol reported.

The victims were identified as Raymond Suggs, 66, and his stepson Robert Hudson. Suggs' pickup was on the wrong side of the highway when the accident occurred, the patrol said.
