Friday Is ECU Visitor

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

University of North Carolina President William Friday sees the development of the ECU Medical School as "on schedule."

Dr. Friday visited Greenville and East Carolina University today. He praised the ECU School of Medicine, Dean William Laupus and Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs Edwin Monroe.

Asked about the $1 billion UNC budget, he said, "This budget program developed by Chancellor Jenkins and the other chancellors is a practical one. We didn't ask for anything we didn't need."

He then visited the Art Building, expressing his delight at plans for it to be named for Dr. Jenkins and his intentions to be present at its dedication.

A trip downtown gave him a quick look at the Evans Mall, the Town Common, the Willis Regional Development Institute building, the new McDonald's Restaurant with its ECU motif.

He also was escorted by Dr. Jenkins and Assistant Chancellor Dick Blake through Mendenhall Student Union and made a tour of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital with its ECU School of Medicine additions.

Later in the day Dr. Friday was to visit the Greenville Sports Club and the ECU Faculty Senate.

He talked of his pleasure at visiting ECU and praised Dr. Jenkins and David Whichard of Greenville, the UNC Board member who he said "has been with us and made profound contributions since the Board's inception. Now Dave's doing a great job on the planning committee and I do want you to say in your paper how much I appreciate his fine work."

Asked about the $1 billion UNC budget, he said, "This budget program developed by Chancellor Jenkins and the other chancellors is a practical one. We didn't ask for anything we didn't need."

Capital improvement items for ECU, Dr. Friday said, include the bed tower for Pitt Memorial Hospital, the state's big contribution to the county-state sharing of the hospital and renovation of the Wahl-Coates building.

He expressed appreciation for the work of the Eastern legislators naming Sam Bundy, Horton Rountree, Vernon White, Julian Allsbrook, Livingston Stallings, and Monk Harrington specifically.

"Without these men's help, ECU, and indeed all of UNC, wouldn't be where we are today," he said.

Census Every 5 Years Now Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. citizens will be counted every five years instead of every 10 years under a new law signed by President Ford.

Ford gave his approval Monday to a bill requiring a mid-decade census of the population. And he vetoed a bill requiring Department of Agriculture inspection of rabbit meat.

The first of the new censuses will be in 1985, with subsequent tallies every 10 years. These will be in addition to the normal censuses taken at the beginning of each decade — such as in 1970 and 1980.

"The historic method of counting the population every 10 years simply does not meet the nation's current needs," Ford said.

"Passage of this bill provides us with a major opportunity to improve the statistical information which is often the basis for decisions on major issues of public policy."

Ford vetoed an unnecessary and expensive bill that dealt with rabbit meat. He said no health reason requires inspection by the Agriculture Department, which would cost 10 cents per pound, since the Food and Drug Administration already inspects rabbit meat for purity.

It was Ford's 63rd veto. The President also signed a bill exempting the steamboat Delta Queen from statutory fire-safety standards through Nov. 1, 1978.

In a statement, Ford noted the Delta Queen is a historic paddlewheel riverboat which has been operating on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers since 1928.

"Its preservation as a symbol of Americana is important to the people of this nation to whom our national heritage means so much," Ford said.

"This legislation will preserve a splendid reminder of America's past."

This is the fourth extension given the Delta Queen since 1968. The exemption applies only to operating the vessel on overnight cruises, since it meets fire-safety standards for daytime service.

These were among 26 bills that Ford acted on Monday. He still has to consider 54 measures sent to him by the 94th Congress.

libertarians believe as long as you don't harm others, individuals should have the right to run their business and life as they see fit. The party also believes, according to the candidate, that government control should be reduced and individual freedom and responsibility should be increased.

According to Andrews, "the major issues should be taxes, crime and education."

Saying taxes should be lowered, Andrews suggested a "program of limiting taxes, and said by de-regulating business, new jobs would be created and more tax revenue received without having to raise taxes."

"Less and less restraint in free enterprise" would stimulate the economy, Andrews said.

Andrews said he would "work for repeal of victimless crime laws," which would ultimately free law enforcement officers to concentrate on major crimes.

He said, too, that he would "like to eventually return control of the schools to parents. . . have a free choice where the child goes to school. . . what they are taught. . . how long they go to school."

Andrews also suggested a "voucher plan" under which pupils could choose either private, church or public schools, for their education.

METRICS CLINIC The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Metrics Clinic Wednesday, October 20 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Greenville Municipal Building. Robert Edwards will be the clinic leader.

He writes country and western music, but has yet to sell a song. And Andrews is also interested in aerial phenomena research, counseling, photography and lecturing.

Fined $9,413 For Fish Kill

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The city has been fined $9,413 for a fish kill on the Yadkin River in August caused in part by its sewage-treatment plant.

The fine covers the cost of a state investigation and of restocking the river.

William Puette, a spokesman for the Division of Environmental Management, said the state also may levy a second penalty against Winston-Salem which could run as much as $5,000 for each day the plant violates water-quality standards. However, he said no decision has been made on this because there is a legal question whether the division can levy such a civil penalty.

mittee and discussed the renovations at Third Street School. We have two drawings of a three phased program to present to the board," Supt. Cox.

The three phases are as follows: (1) the building at present, (2) the present building and a modular unit for a library, and (3) a second addition to the building for a kitchen and cafeteria and to provide additional space for an office.

The board has been granted $150,000 by the county commissioners for renovations of the school.

Advertisements for the sale of the Lynndale property owned by the Greenville City Schools were issued Monday. The property will be offered for sale Friday, November 12 at 11 a.m. at the Pitt County Courthouse.

Supt. Cox reported that he had talked with the City Engineer concerning closing a portion of Pennsylvania Avenue behind Sadie Saulter School. The engineer and Supt. Cox will next meet with the Greenville Planning and Zoning Board October 27. Then, a recommendation will be sent from the Planning and Zoning Board to the City Council, November 4. A public hearing will then be held in December to decide whether the street should be closed.

Mrs. Naomi Edwards presented statistics concerning the difference of salaries that are being paid to Greenville City Schools' nonprofessional employees and the salaries being paid to Pitt County Schools' and the state's non-professional employees. Mrs. Edwards also requested that the board consider as a budget priority the raising of salary grades of the city schools' non-professional employees to the salary grades of the state.

Mrs. Edwards suggested that the board have state workers visit the Greenville City Schools and classify and evaluate the jobs of the non-professional employees.

The board agreed to have the jobs classified and will consider the request of the state salary levels after receiving a report about the jobs.

Dr. Jon Tinglestad vice chairman of Pediatrics ECU Medical School, talked with the board about a blood pressure screening program which he would like to initiate in the Greenville City Schools. Dr. Tinglestad proposed that the program involve tenth grade biology students. The board voted to approve the program if the board's research committee also agrees that the program is worthwhile.

The board voted to accept a motion by Terry Shank to accept the N. C. School Law regarding personnel policy information about resignations as part of the board's policy concerning resignations.

Growth Rate Of Economy Faltering

By G. DAVID WALLACE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's rate of economic growth faltered from July through September, a slowdown reflected in the increasing number of persons on the jobless rolls during the summer, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the Gross National Product, the total output of goods and services in the economy, expanded at an annual rate of 4 per cent in the third quarter.

Total investment expanded at an annual rate of 5 per cent during the summer months, compared to 11.5 per cent in the spring quarter, the department said.

The GNP figures represent the broadest measure of the nation's economic performance. Today's report is the last one due before the November election.

The 4 per cent growth rate was in line with economists' predictions during the past several weeks, although it was well below administration forecasts as recently as July.

In midsummer, the administration forecast the GNP growth rate would be about 7 per cent for the last six months of the year when computed on an annual basis, dropping unemployment below 7 per cent by December.

The biggest gains were in manufacturing with 28,500 new jobs and in contract construction with 5,400, while the greatest declines from July figures were in government jobs with 29,700 fewer and in mining with 11,700 fewer persons employed in the region.

Average earnings remained virtually unchanged with an average Southeastern employee working a 40-hour week for $4.19 per hour compared with national averages of 39.9 hours a week at $5.20 per hour.

August employment by states, including comparison with July figures, was: Alabama 1.18 million, down 3,500; Florida 2.64 million, down 24,300; Georgia 1.75 million up 2,900; Kentucky 1.06 million, down 5,400; Mississippi 684,300, up 2,000; North Carolina 1.96 million, up 15,900; South Carolina 1.02 million, down 1,300, and Tennessee 1.52 million, up 6,800.

The Administrative Office of the Courts of the North Carolina Judicial Department has named Henry C. Cox as Eastern Area Supervisor to assume duties November 1. These duties involve supervising 15 of the state's 30 judicial districts court counseling programs and working with juvenile court judges in 51 counties in evaluating and developing juvenile programs. His office will be located in Greenville.

Prior to this appointment, Cox served as the Chief Court Counselor of the Third Judicial District serving Pitt, Craven, Pamlico and Cartaret Counties.

He is married to the former Janice Jenkins, an English-Journalism teacher at J.H. Rose High School. They have an 11 year old daughter, Kimberly Gennell.

New Radar Units

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that local officers will begin using two new radar units to check the speed of cars traveling on city streets Wednesday.

Cannon said the two radar units, which cost about $1,100 each, have been given to the department by the Governor's Highway Safety Program, and are the "newest thing on the market."

The chief said the two new units with digital readout have the "most accurate and steady readout of any radar made. He said the units are accurate to one-tenth mile an hour.

The units, with a range of up to 7,500 feet, will be used, Cannon said, along with the departments two other radar units, in an effort to cut down on traffic accidents in the city by providing stricter enforcement of speed laws.

COLLECTING EYEGLASSES

The Alpha Omega chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Society has let Hotline know that it is putting into action information recently presented by Hotline about the New Eyes for the Needy program.

The local sorority chapter has underway a program to collect discarded eyeglasses — lens and/or frames—and send them to the New Jersey headquarters of New Eyes from which they will be sent all over the world. Collection boxes have been placed in the offices of eye doctors and opticians in the Greenville area. Persons wishing to donate may simply drop the glasses off at any of these places. For more information one may contact Barbara Zicherman at 756-4004.

REFUND

Last year I purchased a Combi Chef kitchen apparatus at the State Fair. I was never able to use it successfully. The instructions said if you are not satisfied with the performance you may return it. This I did Nov. 12, 1975. I wrote them again Feb. 2, 1976. To this date I have not heard from them. The cost of the Combi Chef was $7. P. E.

We write to the address you used to return the item — USA Concessionaire National Kitchen Products Co., Suite 16, Arcade Building, Tennessee and the Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J. 08401. The company never contacted us, but you report you received a full refund a short time later.

Association To Hear Darr

R. A. DARR

R. A. Darr, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and The Federal Land Bank of Columbia, S.C., will address the stockholders of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association here Friday.

The annual stockholders session will be held at Minges Coliseum, beginning at 6:30 p.m. A PCA spokesman said that Darr, who was associated with the local association for seven years prior to 1945, will bring to the group current information relating to the farmer's roll in continuing to supply the world's needs in food and fiber.

Alton Gardner, PCA chairman, will preside over the meeting. The business session will include the election of two directors.

Some 1,000 to 1,200 stockholders from Pitt and Greene counties are expected to attend. Entertainment will be provided and a meal served to all present.

Farmville Leaf Market Sees $121.67 Day

FARMVILLE — Offerings yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market consisted of leaf and smoking leaf grades, according to Louis Williams sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade. "Nondescript grades accounted for only a small percentage of the gross sales. Grade for grade prices were the same as Thursday's sales. Stabilization accounted for only 5.53 per cent of the gross sales," Williams said.

The Farmville Market sold 678,140 pounds of tobacco Monday for $825,080 for an average of $121.67 per 100 pounds. To date the market has sold 27,507,804 pounds for $31,984,958 for a season average of $116.28 per 100 pounds as compared to last year's season average of $100.64 per 100 pounds.

Belgians Want To Buy Control

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — A Belgian supermarket firm, Delhaize, which invested in Food Town stores two years ago, now wants a controlling interest in the North Carolina grocery chain.

Food Town, based in Salisbury, joined with Delhaize in announcing that the Belgian firm will make an offer to purchase up to 391,000 additional shares of Food Town common stock at $25 a share. The stock traded over the counter Monday at an asking price of $21.75 per share.

Prize-Winner Started Early

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The mother of the 1976 Nobel Prize winner in chemistry gave her son a chemistry set when he was 12, and she says he's had "a one-track mind" on the subject ever since.

"He almost blew the house up," recalled Mrs. E.P. Lipscomb of Lexington, mother of Harvard University Prof. William Nunn Lipscomb.

"He used to brew up stuff that smelled like rotten eggs when the girls (his sisters) gave him a hard time," Mrs. Lipscomb said.

Hallowe'en

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — The Great Pumpkin and the "Good Book" don't mix in this Arkansas community.

The City Council passed a resolution Monday night declaring that Halloween will be held on Oct. 30 — a Saturday — instead of the traditional Oct. 31 Sunday.

Mayor Neil Stallings said he proposed the change because he wants the children in this Arkansas city of 27,000 to be able to go trick or treating Saturday night so they'll be free to attend church Sunday evening.

GEN. GEORGE BROWN, CHAIRMAN OF THE Joint Chiefs of Staff, said yesterday he was quoted accurately in a story in which he described Israel as a military burden to the U.S. However, Brown said he did not mean to imply he disagreed with U.S. policy of providing weapons to Israel. (AP Wirephoto)

'Propuh' English Only Spoken By Bostonites

BOSTON (UPI) — "Is Bawhston the only place in Ameriker wheyah propuh English is spoken?"

So asks Dana Lynn Wilson, a 5-foot-8 honey blonde Texan, in an irreverent little book "Boston English Illustrated."

Dana, who any proper Bostonian would agree is "an eiffel" (translated: eyeful), wrote it to make Boston English understandable to those not "bawn" here. In it, she spells the words the way she says Bostonians pronounce them.

Boston isn't only the home of the bean and the cod. To Dana, it's the place where you learn to drop "r's" where they belong — and add them where they don't.

She explains that her book is a "proper dictionary of the English language as spoken in Boston. Bostonians declared their independence from the king and his English 200 years ago. But the rest of the nation hasn't caught up.

"I don't think Bostonians realize how unique their speech is. It takes a foreigner to hear it and Texas is about as foreign as you can get," she said with a distinct Texas drawl.

The 31-year-old freelance writer, photographer and columnist moved to neighboring Cambridge six years ago. She got the idea for a book on Boston English (which she calls "Boslish") after her "brothaw" visited Boston and complained he "couldn't understand a thing Bostonians were saying.

"I thought that was a shame because Bostonians have a lot to say and the way they say it is their living oral heritage. For years friends of mine around the country asked me to send them my collection of Boston words because it was what they remembered most about Boston.

"After all, Boston has had something to say for 200 years. It's about time all of those from 'out there' like me should understand what's being said."

Dana is a descendant of Josiah Bartlett — a Revolutionary War patriot, governor of New "Hampshaw" and signer of the Declaration of Independence. But, tongue in cheek, she said that probably won't help when they decided to ban her in Boston.

That's because she sent copies of the book to the Massachusetts delegation in Washington, hoping it will read into the Congressional record so fellow congressmen from other states can look up words they don't understand when someone from Boston speaks.

"I've sent a copy to Jimmy Carter so when he's in Boston or the White House, whichever comes first, he won't have any problems with proper English," she added.

To give you a flavor of the book, here's a sample of the "Boston English Illustrated" dictionary:

— Bach: the sound a dog makes. "That dog's bach is awful."

— Faughty: the number between 39 and 41. "We'll discuss promotions when yuh're faughty."

— Cuber: the Caribbean island ruled by Fidel Castro. "Havanner. Yuh know, on the seashaw of Cuber."

— Hod: difficult. "Yes, it's hod to know if the streets or the buildings came fust in Bawhston. But anyone who was bawn heyah knows."

— Cuppachowdah: a creamy stew of clams, potatoes and onions served in a cup. "I ottered crackuhs with my cuppachowdah."

— Draw: a compartment in a chest for storing clothes. "That smotts. Yuh closed the draw on my fingah."

— Potty: a social gathering. "The Bawhston Tea Potty was a wawning to the British."

— Kneelee: almost. "Yuh kneelee shotchanged me a nickel!"

Dana is working on similar dictionaries for the other five New England states. She also is syndicating a column "Nine to Five" on New Englanders for newspapers and is working on a biography of Fannie Farmer, the 19th century, world famous cook.

Incidentally, her hobby is parrots. Until last winter she owned five of them. Now she shares her cottage with two of them: Carleton Cabot Lodge, a white capped Amazon from Guatemala, and Ezra, a yellow-pied cockatiel.

If she could, would she alter the way Bostonians speak?

Well, as her saucy dictionary says it: "Altah Bawhston? Nevah!"

Reopening Of Brooks' Case Ordered By Judge

RALEIGH (AP) — Though the reason won't be officially released until Nov. 8, Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey has ordered a reopening of a case that created a controversy during the primary elections.

In an order Monday, Bailey revealed that a prison inmate who was a key witness in a murder trial had later signed a statement that he lied as a witness. Contents of the latest statement were not revealed. Bailey set a hearing for Nov. 8.

The controversy erupted last month around Raleigh attorney John C. Brooks, the Democratic nominee for labor commissioner. He was in a runoff against Jessie Rae Scott and he now faces incumbent Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye Jr.

Brooks was the attorney for Wesley Harris in 1971 when Harris was convicted of killing Knightdale farmer Jesse Dexter Wall. Harold W. "Buttercup" Jones, a prison inmate, was a key witness against Harris. Jones signed a statement last year that he had lied on the witness stand.

Brooks filed for a new trial and in a hearing last month before Bailey, the claim of perjured testimony came out. Bailey ordered an investigation into whether Brooks had violated the law in not revealing for more than a year that a witness had claimed his trial testimony was perjured.

The state attorney general's office hurriedly investigated the matter and two days before the election announced that Brooks had committed no crime, that he had acted properly in handling the case.

Bailey said in Monday's order that Jones had signed a statement on Sept. 10 and that its contents would be made available to Brooks at the Nov. 8 hearing.

Brooks said Monday that he opposed reopening the case.

Get A Break In Insurance Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Owners of motor homes have been given a break in the rates they pay for collision and comprehensive insurance.

In an order filed Monday, state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram called for collision insurance to go down 35 per cent a year and comprehensive rates to drop 45 per cent. Agreeing to the order was the North Carolina Fire Insurance Rating Bureau, which represents the companies in rating matters.

For full comprehensive coverage, a $15,000 motor home which had cost $217.50 for insurance, will now cost $119.63. Comprehensive insurance covers loss by theft or non-accident damage.

For the same motor home, $100 deductible collision insurance which had cost $123, the new rate will be $79.95. Collision insurance covers damage in an accident that is not covered by another driver's insurance.

Two hearings had showed that the rates for recreational vehicles had been excessive, Ingram said. Also, the commissioner ordered the rating bureau to compile further information to determine whether the new rates are low enough.

Initially, Ingram and the bureau had disagreed on how much the collision rates should be cut. Ingram wanted them lowered 50 per cent but the bureau argued for having the rate on a sliding scale that would have raised rates for the least expensive motor homes while giving rate reductions to the most expensive.

The 35 per cent figure is a compromise proposed by the rating bureau.

Completed in 1968, the San Mateo bridge, 17 miles south of San Francisco, is 6.7 miles long and is capable of handling 50,000 cars daily.

Revival In Progress

Rev. T.R. Bradshaw

tributed to newspapers by King Features.

Brown was asked: "Speaking about the Middle East from a purely military point of view, would you say that from the American global strategic interest, militarily, is Israel and its forces more a burden or a blessing from a pure military point of view to the United States?"

Brown replied, "Well, I think it's just got to be considered a burden."

At a Pentagon news conference Monday with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, Brown said: "I couldn't see strategic value to the United States. I was thinking in military terms."

Rumsfeld said, "I want it clearly understood that the absence of a reprimand should not be taken as an endorsement of obviously inelegant phraseology."

Israel was not the only point of controversy in the interview with Lurie. He wrote that when he asked Brown whether the United States has the stomach to stand up to the Soviet Union, the retary Donald Rumsfeld, Brown said: "I couldn't see strategic value to the United States. I was thinking in military terms."

Rumsfeld said, "I want it clearly understood that the absence of a reprimand should not be taken as an endorsement of obviously inelegant phraseology."

Israel was not the only point of controversy in the interview with Lurie. He wrote that when he asked Brown whether the United States has the stomach to stand up to the Soviet Union, the four-star Air Force general responded, "No, we haven't."

Brown denied making that statement. He did not deny saying it is pathetic how Britain is no longer a world power. The interview quoted Brown as saying Britain's military decline "just makes you want to cry... All they've got are generals and admirals and bands."

However, Brown told the news conference his remark was made out of "compassion and understanding, not criticism and ridicule."

Yoshimura Trial Has Very Routine Opening

By TONY LEDWELL Associated Press Writer OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura's trial on weapons and explosives charges opened quietly, with none of the hoopla or tight security that accompanied the bank robbery trial of her underground companion, Patricia Hearst.

When the session Monday was called to order, Miss Yoshimura was in a corridor chatting with friends.

Her attorney, James Larson, muttered, "I'll get her," to Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich. He dashed outside, and a moment later the 33-year-old Japanese-American artist came scurrying into the small courtroom. Miss Yoshimura, who met Miss Hearst when both were on the run in 1974 and was with her when both were captured in San Francisco on Sept. 18, 1975, has been free on $25,000 bail.

She is charged with possessing explosives, a machine gun, bomb components and a destructive device with intent to injure persons and destroy property. If convicted, she could be imprisoned for five years to life.

The prosecution contends she rented a Berkeley garage in 1971 as a weapons storage facility for radicals. Police raided the building in March 1972. Miss Yoshimura dropped out of sight the next day.

On Monday, she smiled, glanced at the dozen reporters who were covering the opening of the trial and jotted down notes as her attorney argued several motions.

Only the two regularly assigned deputies were in the courtroom, whereas a platoon of federal marshals were assigned to the Hearst trial.

Larson argued for an hour — in private — against allowing Miss Hearst to testify at the trial. He has said that Miss Hearst's testimony would be irrelevant to the charges, because the Berkeley incident occurred two years before the kidnaping that led to Miss Hearst's underground activity.

Larson also asked that Miss Yoshimura be allowed to act as cocounsel.

Judge Pulich took the motions under advisement, and he was not likely to rule on the one involving Miss Hearst unless she is called as a witness. Prosecutor Jeffrey Horner has said she might be called during the rebuttal phase of the state's case.

The judge summoned a pool of 40 prospective jurors and laid out a jury selection process that will last at least until Oct. 27.

Miss Hearst, who was brought to court handcuffed daily, was convicted of armed bank robbery and sentenced to seven years in prison. She and Miss Yoshimura have not met since their capture.

N.C. Democrat Ranks Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — More than half the new voters registered between the Aug. 17 primary and the Oct. 4 registration deadline were Democrats, state elections officials said Monday.

With nearly every county reporting, Democratic registration picked up by about 55,000 voters and Republican numbers were swelled by about 25,000 new registrants, elections officials said. The remainder signed up as independents.

Tar Heel Democrats maintained their 3-1 superiority over Republicans because as of July 1 the state had 1.76 million Democrats and 572,000 Republicans.

Elections Director Alex K. Brock said the 100,000 new registrants is not a record, it is significant in that this is the first year that such a short time was allowed between the primary and the general election. Before this year, the primary had been in May.

The state's urban counties accounted for the heaviest registrations. Mecklenburg added about 14,000 voters, Guilford added 9,000, Wake now has 7,000 more voters, Forsyth added 9,000, Durham added 2,000 and Buncombe county put 4,500 additional names on its books. Registration by party in the six counties was 28,000 Democrats to 11,000 Republicans.

For those who didn't remember or just didn't get around to it, there's still a chance to vote. Federal law allows all citizens at least 18 years old to vote in the presidential election, but no others. Special ballots have been prepared for those who wish to take advantage of the provision, but such persons must vote at their local elections boards by Oct. 27.

Police List Three Collisions Monday

An estimated $1,925 property damage resulted from a series of three collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers estimated heaviest damage resulted from a 4:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th Street and Myrtle Avenue involving vehicles driven by Walter Venston Littleton of 107 Wilshire Dr. and Linda Mae Smith of 407 West Village Dr.

Investigators, who made no charges, estimated damage to the Littleton truck at $400 and set damage to the Smith car at $600.

James Anthony Murchinson of 2707 East Fourth St. was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 2:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Third and Cotanche Streets.

Police said the Murchinson car collided with an auto operated by John Matthew Farrow of 102 Rotary Ave. causing an estimated $100 damage to the Murchinson car and $400 damage to the Farrow auto.

An estimated $250 damage resulted to a car driven by Harold White of 104A Lakeview Terr. following a 4 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Sheppard Streets.

Officers said the White car collided with a car driven by Patricia Whitehurst Clemons of Route 1, Greenville causing an estimated $175 damage to the Clemons auto.

No charges were reported.

Walk-A-Thon Permit Okayed

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced the approval of a request by Pitt County REACT 3133 Inc. to conduct a walk-a-thon on Nov. 6 to raise funds for United Cerebral Palsy.

Caldwell said that the approval is subject to the organization receiving a parade permit from the Police Department.

The city manager also announced approval of a request by the Downtown Greenville Association to block off Evans Street from Second to Third on Oct. 30 for a farm equipment show.

Don't Rush Into Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a nice, refined woman my age (45) and we planned to be married next month. But an incident occurred last week in the shop where she works that makes me wonder if I should go through with my marriage plans.

Another woman employee and my friend got into an argument when the other woman accused my friend of stealing one of her best customers. The name-calling graduated into hair-pulling, and my friend was getting the best of this other woman when the other woman yanked her dress off her.

Well, my lady friend just wouldn't quit. Minus her dress she tore into the other woman, and before the battle was over, both women stripped each other and were fighting naked when the boss called the police.

My question: Should I marry this woman who fought naked in front of both men and women when she could have quit when just her dress had been torn off?
WONDERING IN N.Y.

DEAR WONDERING: Among other things, your lady friend exhibited a violent temper. I'd have to know more about her before answering your question, but if you place a high premium on modesty, don't rush into anything.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a man who is married and has four children to go out with other women as long as it doesn't interfere with his home life? I can't receive mail at my place because nothing around here is private, but I need an answer fast.
BURLINGAME

DEAR BURLINGAME: It's NOT all right. Besides, regardless of what you may think, it HAS TO interfere with his home life.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in disagreement over something and want you to settle it.

When someone comes to our door asking for me, my husband will invite him (or her) in, and he sends them to whichever room of the house I happen to be in at the moment.

He's sent people to my bedroom when I'm lying down! He has directed them to the basement while I'm putting up pickles. He's even invited them to join me in the kitchen while I'm mopping up the floor!

Some of the people he's invited in I hardly know, such as the Avon lady.

I have asked him to please ask the caller to be seated, then come get me so I can go to THEM, but he never does. He continues to send them to me, which embarrasses me to no end.

He is a perfect gentleman otherwise, but now that he's retired and home all day, this habit of his is getting me nervous. We've been married 43 years, and this morning he sent a magazine salesman into my bedroom while I was dressing!
Please help me.
FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: You've told your husband what I would have told him. Now it's two to one.

NEW YORK (AP) — Children visiting museums often ask whether the exhibits are real. The answer is yes and no, explains a new exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History which tells how various displays are prepared and what goes into them.

The exhibit encourages participation such as petting a mounted tiger. Visitors learn that the skin is authentic, but that the skeleton is man-made. A rock display uses three rocks to show children how the museum makes its models. Another feature is a scale model of a common fly, 24 times its actual size, which must be used because the original is too small to view in detail, the exhibit explains.

Good Roles For Actresses Scarce Today

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
It could be discouraging — being beautiful and an actress — because women just can't make it big these days in the theater, "but you keep trying ... and then, of course, there is always outer space."

So says Catherine Schell, of London, a beautiful, blue-eyed, reddish blonde, who plays a far-out space character in a current television series, "Space 1999," which is in its second year.

The role conceals the beauty of the earth woman, but she's grateful to be working — 90 per cent of the acting population in England is unemployed, she says — and the space role is a challenge. Then, too, men may not always be the favored sex at the box office as they are today. In the meantime, women accept roles that may not show off their special talents or beauty.

"It is really difficult to be alien and attractive," she says of her role as a slinky space woman, even though she loves it. "It takes one and a quarter hours to make up for it. I arrive on the set at 7 a.m. and work until 5:20 or so, and several nights a week I work much later.

"I found myself drifting to television, mostly with BBC, because things are still pretty tight for women in plays and movies. There is almost a 10 to 1 ratio of men to women, even in television, and some of the biggest female names cannot really carry a film on their name alone. They need to be teamed with outstanding male stars such as Steve McQueen or George Segal."

At one time Miss Schell thought this situation was due to prejudice at the studio level, but she now thinks the public "happens to prefer being entertained more by men than by women." Why, she doesn't know. But studios "no longer nurture their female stars as they did once when they wrote special vehicles for them and promoted them to the hit.

"But it is probably all to the good when you think how many movie stars have been hurt by the promotions. For example, Marilyn Monroe found it hard to live up to the image that had been set for her," she adds.

The space series is being touted as "the most expensive series ever done on television" she explained. It is the first since "Star Trek" began and she is enjoying the role of Maya, princess from the planet Psychon who is in charge of computers and scientific analysis of alien data.

In fact, Miss Schell might have been a baroness in Hungary — her father, Baron Schell von Bauschlott renounced the title when the family fled to the United States from Hungary during the Communist takeover, she says.

She went to school for five years on Staten Island when her family lived in New York, and she lived in Washington, D.C., where her father was a diplomat in the Hungarian Embassy, before returning to Europe. Recently she has been touring the United States to promote the space series, but she has never worked in America.

For her space role, the make-up people provide her with eyebrows that sweep up to her temples like a seagull in flight and her hair is swept back close to her head. She also has "the power of molecular transformation into animals, birds and human beings" in the role. Maya doesn't resemble the real Miss Schell, who has an enchanting smile and wears her long, straight hair at times in a curly, girlish hairdo.

She has spent a lot of time educating herself in the theater. She has played in about 10 movies including "The Return of the Pink Panther" with Peter Sellers, but such roles do not come along often enough.

"The unemployment rate in England is high in the acting profession because an incredible number of kids come out of drama school and the repertory companies can take only a small number each year. Then, too, there are union members who work other jobs and just act now and then. Hard core actors do tend to work more because they are more persistent," she explains.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For years, the battle has raged on about whether a child is the product of his heredity or his environment.

To me, the division has always been clear-cut.

A child is influenced by three factors: life about him, plus dominant genes from his mother's side and dominant genes from his father's side.

Ironically, all three of our children share evenly in the distribution.

From their environment they gleaned bad language, poor judgment, hopeless dependency on the telephone, lack of motor skills to pick up a towel or replace a cap on the toothpaste, little realism concerning money, disregard for responsibility and job opportunities, the need for 18 hours of sleep, impetuous decisions that never work out, a dress code that is sub-standard, and a rash that appears when it is suggested they write a thank-you note.

From their father they inherited shortness, frequent nosebleeds, poor spelling, overconfidence, no memory, toeing in, allergies to dust and mold, uncontrollable cowlicks, weak ankles, inability to conquer math, tendency to put on weight, short interest span, sulking over Monopoly, shyness, a definite weakness for losing anything of value, car sickness, poor taste in friends, the lack of wisdom to know when they've lost an argument and a hang-up about Brussels sprouts.

To many parents, it might seem very discouraging knowing that certain traits in your child are predestined.

But all the mothers I've talked with, without exception, were able to supply the saving genes that gave their children and motivation to go on living.

I know from my side of the family, our children have inherited good skin, good grades, instant comprehension, imagination, coordination, a sense of humor, good posture, straight teeth, sensitivity, appreciation of the arts, moral values, integrity, a good feeling about money, infinite patience, loyalty and are champions of the underdog.

As my husband observed, "Don't forget humility. That's your strongest trait."

You know, I think he's right.

'CHAIRMAN' TITLE FINE WITH HER

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — When Prof. Eleanor Prosser was recently named acting head of the Stanford University Department of Drama for the current academic year, she asked to be called "chairman."

"I prefer not to be called chairwoman or chairperson," she explained. "My respect for the grace of the English language and the intelligence of women is too great to foist such awkward jargon on us. For me, man is generic."

Piano Strikes Up Lively Decor Tune

CHICAGO (AP) — Ready for a grand piano on a revolving pedestal in the middle of your living room? That's one of many ways that interior designers are treating pianos in homes around the country. Designers say they enjoy working with today's pianos because of the wide variety of styles available. More than 200,000 pianos are sold annually. Besides ranking as this country's favorite musical instrument, the piano has gained stature in bold and original room settings. Decorators revealed some of these ideas in a survey conducted by the National Piano Manufacturers Association.

Miami designer Bob Rubenstein, who recently created the revolving piano for a client, also came up with a more affordable suggestion for grand piano owners: a piano bar. "Have a laminated plastic top cut to fit your piano top, then add a bumper edge upholstered in vinyl," he suggests.

Designer Patricia Plaxico of High Point, N.C., believes that a piano doesn't have to be in the living room. "It depends on your lifestyle," she says. "Put it wherever people congregate in your house. My piano is in the dining room because my friends and I like to sit around the table and sing old-time songs."

Another plus for a piano in the dining room, says Riverside, Ill., designer Mary Jean Kamin, is that "frequently dining rooms have doors that allow them to be closed off. This lets you use the rest of the house when the piano student is practicing or taking a lesson."

For the house or apartment without a dining room, designer Ethel Samuels of Winnetka, Ill., recommends using a spinet to help create a dining area. It's only four and a half feet wide and fits easily into small living quarters. "A spinet placed at right angles to the wall makes an excellent room divider between living and dining areas," she says.

Chicago interior designer Joan Bluter agrees: "If a piano is at right angles to the wall, you can cover the back with fabric, or you can attach a trellis and train plants to grow up it."

For people who prefer a traditional against-the-wall placement, she suggests, "Put the piano in an alcove or foyer and turn it into a music area. Use old sheet music or playbills as wallpaper."

New York designer Patricia Harvey created an illusion of an alcove by making tall folding screens for each side of the piano and covering them with wallpaper, then using the same paper on the wall above the piano.

Adele Faulkner, Los Angeles decorator, uses mirrors to create a light-and-space illusion by putting a piano against a long wall and mirroring the wall on either side of the instrument, floor to ceiling.

"A piano makes a good focal point as the center of a storage wall," says Washington, D.C., designer Emily Malino. "You can put shelving and cupboards on either side of the piano and above it, with a hidden strip light to illuminate the music rack."

Vibrant colors for pianos are favored by many of the decorators surveyed. Patricia Plaxico painted her piano, an old upright, the same plum color as her walls. Then she replaced the front panel with plexiglass so the action is visible, and lit the piano with two high intensity lamps.

For a children's playroom, Bob Rubenstein painted a piano cherry red and decorated it with hand-painted animals. "You could get the same effect with stencils or decals," he explains.

Designer Joseph Blake of Evanston, Ill., concentrates on color in the piano bench. "When the piano is against a wall, the bench becomes very conspicuous," he says. "I like attractive upholstery on the bench, such as needlepoint."

Wherever the piano is placed, the piano manufacturers offer these tips to maintain the instrument's best sound and appearance: Don't put it under a window, in direct sunlight, or near radiators, or cooling or heating ducts.

Don't put a lamp with dangling crystals on a piano — they'll rattle when the instrument is played.

Try to maintain a humidity of 40 per cent in the room where the piano is kept. A piano will sound mellow in a heavily curtained and carpeted room, and brighter in one with bare floors and windows.

CHICKEN LOAF—Oven-toasted rice cereal helps to make it "light."

New Chicken Loaf Features Rice Cereal

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When a friend of mine told me that she made a good chicken loaf using oven-toasted rice cereal my response was, "What's the advantage of switching from the usual bread?" Her reply: "The cereal makes a lighter loaf." When we tested her recipe our tasters enjoyed it because they said it tasted like "all chicken."

NEW CHICKEN LOAF
1½ cups oven-toasted rice cereal
2 eggs
¼ cup clear fat-free chicken broth
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1½ teaspoons lemon juice

Kit Tries To Aid Roommate Compatibility

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — In an effort to increase compatibility between new roommates, Pennsylvania State University has come up with a "Roommate Starter Kit." It offers a way to help avoid conflicts over just about everything from blasting radios to visitors and religious beliefs.

The basic idea of the kit is to let the newly-paired roommates learn more about each other's habits and attitudes before it's too late. The kit consists of a booklet which students are asked to read and then use as a basis for discussing habits and preferences which may cause confrontations later.

Information exchange specified in the kit includes matters such as: "How much sleep I need and when I'd like to get it"; "How I feel about drugs and drinking," and "Times when I would really prefer to be left alone."

Mary Anne Sagaria, director of new student programs, says "the program is not designed to match roommates or to make them conform to each other. It's just a way to let them know what to expect from each other."

1½ teaspoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1½ cups finely chopped skin-free chicken

Line the bottom and sides of a 7 by 3½ by 2-inch loaf pan with a sheet of foil. In a large bowl slightly crush the rice cereal; add unbeaten eggs and the remaining ingredients except the Cream Sauce; stir together well. Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a knife inserted in center comes out clean — 55 to 60 minutes. Turn out onto a serving plate; peel off foil. Serve hot with Cream Sauce. Makes 4 servings.
Note: The loaf may be baked in a buttered round 1-quart glass casserole (6½ by 2½ inches) at the temperature and for the time given above. Serve without turning out; cut in wedges.

CREAM SAUCE
In a small saucepan over low heat melt 2 teaspoons butter; stir in 1 tablespoon flour. Off heat, stir in ¼ cup clear fat-free chicken broth, keeping smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, over moderately low heat until boiling and thickened; remove from heat. Beat together 1 egg yolk, ¼ cup light cream and 2 teaspoons lemon juice; gradually stir into the hot sauce. Heat gently but do not boil. Stir in 1 tablespoon parsley and salt and pepper to taste.

Law Designed For Another Era

A three judge federal panel has struck down North Carolina's outlaw statute, maintaining that it gives the public a license to kill and strips the fugitive of his due process rights and equal protection of the law.

The law provides that a Superior Court judge can issue an outlaw proclamation for a fugitive who has committed a felony. Then any citizen can capture the outlaw. In the event he resists the citizen "may slay him without any accusation of any crime."

The federal judges saw as a flaw in the law the fact that a judge "acts ministerially and is required to issue the proclamation upon presentation of a facially sufficient affidavit."

"The effect of the proclamation is to license the public to kill the accused felon if he runs after being called on to surrender."

The problem with the statute is that an impartial judge is not called on to decide the felony questions, no indictment is required and the outlaw has no chance to hear the notice or to be heard.

The outlaw statute was designed in another era when it was not as easy to track down fugitives nor was there the law enforcement network that now exists to protect individual citizens.

We can't quarrel with the constitutional flaws that the federal judges found in the statute. The only question seems to be whether the General Assembly should make any effort to write a law which would conform with the ruling. Certainly an outlaw statute should be used rarely; yet there are cases where individuals are at large who are so dangerous and who have committed such heinous crimes that the public in general might need some legal method to protect itself. Call it outlawing of fugitives or something else, there is that potential in some maddog types.

No Problem In War-Prize Candidates

It's rather a sad commentary when a year goes by during which the Nobel committee cannot find anyone in the world to receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

It has happened this year. There will be no recipient for the award and the $160,000 prize money will be reserved for 1977.

No doubt if a war prize were created there would be no problem finding a recipient; yet peace should be the prime concern of all mankind.

Hopefully we can do better in the future.

THIS AFTERNOON

Make Bureaucracies Work!

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — "Don't Fight Bureaucracy... Use it!" is the novel suggestion of a group of experts trying to come up with ways to make services for children with special needs more complete and workable in North Carolina.

Before, such study efforts invariably have called for reorganization in a sweeping way: merger of various agencies; elimination of some programs; even creation of a cabinet-level Department for Children in state government.

Also invariably, such suggestions sent the bureaucrats scurrying — raising real or imagined pitfalls, protecting their turf, fighting to maintain the status quo.

Meantime, proof abounds of children whose needs are not met; children who fall through the gaps of eligibility for services which exist between competing agencies; agencies which must go out and drum up clients in order to use funds allocated.

Too Many
At bottom, the problem results from the dozens of agencies and programs with specific goals which reside in several different state or local departments, often competing with one another for dollars and clients; often going blithely along not knowing that another agency may be doing the same job.

But now comes a report from a special task force set up by the legislative Commission on Children with Special Needs which suggests that the bureaucratic dilemma can be turned to an advantage — by taking advantage of the bureaucratic tendency to work hardest in defense of its own turf.

In a presentation by Dr. John D. Bridgers, High Point pediatrician, the task force has suggested to the legislative body the creation of — actually — another level of bureaucracy: a State Commission for Development and Coordination of Services for Children.

That commission, appointed by the governor and headed by a fulltime executive director, would have three sections — a planning and development section with consultants in education, health, behavior, social sciences, and higher education; a statistical section to store, analyze and evaluate data; and an advocacy section to work with public needs, information, etc.

Such an approach would immediately eliminate the fears among agencies that they are going to be undercut and absorbed by reorganization or creation of a "super agency," would allow the numerous bureaucracies to go on with their vigorous work in meeting needs of their distinctive clients, would create a climate of cooperation and coordination in which all could talk the same language, and would still provide a way to bring order of chaos.

Direct Link
Key functions of the proposed commission would be direct links to the governor and General Assembly to both support needed budget and program requirements, and to report on genuine needs of children and whether specific programs are working well or not.

Thus, says Dr. Bridgers, emphasis can shift from political considerations to realistic are working well or not.

Thus, says Dr. Bridgers, emphasis can shift from political considerations to realistic consideration of needs. "Philosophy is important... there would be developed a common conceptual language for the various disciplines... a method for planning... and a mechanism for accomplishing the goals. If we are all talking the same language, all are planning, and all know what the others are doing, then we can assess needs, and meet needs."

Agencies would still be free to lobby for more dollars, but legislators would have sufficient information to send them back to the drawing boards.

"The checks and balances are built," Dr. Bridgers said. "It does not just depend on goodwill... it is not naive. But it does free people up to move ahead with their jobs since it is no threat to their power bases."

As to advocacy, he sees the best results coming from having it inside the system, rather than outside threatening.

The task force feels there are enough agencies, programs, and dollars about to do the job for the most part; provided the programs are coordinated and developed to fit the needs of the children.

FUMBLE FINGERS!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Down In Carter Country

MIAMI — They say it is "Carter country" down here in the southeastern states, and probably it is, but it is definitely submarginal land. Even in Atlanta, a wandering correspondent is hard-put to find passionate support for the former governor of Georgia.

This is a strange campaign. You would think, two weeks before a presidential election, that the number of "undecideds" would have dwindled to a vanishing point. This time around, the indecision appears to be massive. Perhaps it is not indecision. The feeling is closer to uncertainty, dissatisfaction, and troublesome doubt.

Last week the Miami News came out for Carter. In the newspaper's view, Carter is "clearly the better choice." But if that choice is clear to the News, it remains murky to many others. One looks back to other campaigns, when Southerners were passionately for Goldwater or passionately against McGovern. This year the passions seem subdued.

Here in Florida, Carter's staff people are projecting a ten-point margin for their man on election day. "That's minimal," they say. In their optimistic view, Carter will carry Miami, Tampa and Jacksonville by impressive margins, and will break even in the panhandle where onetime Wallace supporters are drifting back to the Carter column.

The Ford people, naturally, dispute these predictions. In their own partisan view, Carter is losing ground, not gaining it. Sen. John Tower of Texas was in Miami a few days ago, but about the best he could say is that Florida is still "winnable." The Republicans have a candidate running against Sen. Lawton Chiles, a Belle Glade physician by the name of John Grady. Tower says Dr. Grady is "winnable" too, but the opinion is not widely held.

Florida's substantial Jewish vote is generally expected to go to Carter. The Cuban vote, which is potentially large but actually fairly small, apparently will be divided. The "old folks," one is told, will go to Carter in the thought that a liberal Democratic administration would be more likely to provide additional goodies under Social Security and Medicare.

A veteran political writer in Miami says that Carter was hurt by the flap over his Playboy interview, but that the second debate pulled Carter back in the winning column. It is Carter's Southern credentials, more than any other factor, that make him the favorite for Florida's 17 electoral votes. Bill Gordon, a veteran TV anchorman in West Palm Beach, agrees that the Confederate coloration helps, but Gordon is puzzled by the apathy of, for example, the stock-car racing crowd. The stock-car fans ought to be whooping it up for Jimmy, but their horns are remarkably quiet.

It is more or less the same picture in South Carolina. This correspondent spent a day last week at a small Methodist college in Spartanburg. A student poll had turned up two-to-one for Carter, and many of the faculty were planning to vote for Carter. But of passion, there was none. There was less enthusiasm for Ford than for Carter, but there was no great enthusiasm for either one.

North Carolina and Virginia appear to offer better hopes for the President's campaign. Political observers in both states rate Ford a point or two out front, but the vote on

Kitchen Risks Abound

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A government survey indicates that 63 per cent of American home kitchens are "high risk" zones for the 2 million to 10 million estimated cases of food poisoning each year.

The risks are higher if the cook is under 50 years old, better educated and part of a family with $15,000 or more income a year, according to the report by Judith L. Jones and Jon P. Weimer of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

The nationwide survey, using a scientifically selected sample of 2,503 representative households, was conducted in 1974. The analysis of the findings is being published this month.

The focus of the study is the "high risk" homemaker — those with an unnecessarily high potential of sickness due to possible contamination of food through such things as undercooking and poor refrigeration.

Too much faith on the part of the cook is a major part of the problem, the report says.

"Homemakers may place undue reliance upon government inspection functions for prevention of bacterial contamination of raw meat and poultry products," it concluded.

For example, Agriculture Department meat inspectors do not check roasts to regulate the amount of salmonellae, the most common source of food poisoning, in slaughtered meat or processed products. The bacteria are present in the environment generally and it would

40 Years Ago Today

October 19, 1936

The cold, treacherous waters of Lake Erie held today the bodies of 18 men and one woman, victims of a 30-mile an hour gale which overturned and sunk the 252-foot Canadian sand sucker, the Sand Merchant, in the second major disaster of the 1936 great Lakes season.

Of 26 aboard, only seven remained today to tell how their benumbed companions dropped off one-by-one from the two capsized life boats to which they clung through a terrifying night of waiting. For 10 hours they watched unseeing ships pass them. Then daylight brought their rescue, five miles off Cleveland.

It was the second sand sucker tragedy of the Great Lakes this year. The Material Service sank off Chicago on July 27 with 15 lost.

The government won tactical victories in the Supreme Court today when the nine justices refused to review litigation challenging the constitutionality three New Deal laws.

The Court declined to pass on an appeal filed by J. Edward Jones, New York security dealer, questioning the constitutionality of the 1933 "Truth in Securities" act requiring registration of stocks before public sale.

It also refused to review an attack on provisions of the National Industrial Recovery Act and of the 1935 Emergency Relief appropriation measure authorizing government loans and grants for construction of public-owned electric plants.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Compounding Misfortune

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In the hours following the second debate, President Ford compounded misfortune by approving major new military equipment sales to Israel in an effort to rally his fading Jewish support — thereby revealing the bankruptcy of political thinking in the White House.

This bankruptcy was obvious enough in the President's inability to reach higher ground for three full days following his inexplicable handling of Poland and Eastern Europe. Much worse than this fumbling was his desperate effort to repair the damage on the Jewish vote.

During the debate, Mr. Ford reacted to Jimmy Carter's total advocacy of Israel by misrepresenting the recent congressional fight over the Arab boycott against Israel. He falsely implied that the administration, not Congress, was pressing for the toughest anti-boycott position, angering even his own supporters in the Jewish community. The post-debate arms-for-Israel decision, attempting to repair that damage, undercuts Mr. Ford's own principles while surely falling far short of its goal. Whatever the political results, the decision to make available to Israel some of the most advanced technology in the American military arsenal has stunned high military officers and divided the Pentagon's top civilians.

Details are still obscured in secrecy. However, included in super-technology long sought by Israel and long withheld is a new "fuel-air" explosive which detonates jet-streams of a petroleum-like substance 20 feet off the ground with tremendous devastation. Another high priority weapon in the U.S. arsenal is the Forward Looking Infrared system which permits a helicopter pilot actually to "see" at night.

What makes this decision by the President so suspect is that it was made inside the White House. Neither the Pentagon nor the State Department was asked in advance to reverse their vetoes of the past two years against dispatch of this equipment to any U.S. ally. One bitter administration official complained privately that there is "absolutely no strategic or tactical rationale for doing this now."

Some leaders in the American-Jewish community say there is no political rationale either. Their reasoning: Mr. Ford irrevocably lost any chance to break into the Jewish vote when he misrepresented the administration's position on the Arab boycott.

But the risk Mr. Ford takes in bidding for the Jewish vote at this last moment in the campaign goes far beyond the election itself. This spectacular exercise in ethnic politics brings the President down to the same

To the editor:

I am concerned by the thrust of Jack Kilpatrick's mid-September column on "energy policy." I agree that for many the energy problem no longer convey a "sense of urgency."

However, it is not fair to say that no one is taking action. The Administration has a comprehensive energy policy and has proposed programs to implement that policy. Pres. Ford's February, 1976 energy statement, the National Energy Outlook which backed it up, and persistent efforts by the Administration throughout the year to make known the need for those policies and programs are all a matter of record. The Administration's energy program contained 13 major legislative proposals; 28 Congressional committees and 79 subcommittees held hearings on it, and Administration officials testified on it 470 times.

The problem is that, in an election year, we have not been able to stir the public and the Congress to sufficient action. It has grown fashionable to encourage the public to assume that... hard problems will somehow resolve themselves.

The President's 1976 energy policy would encourage greater use of coal, our most abundant energy source, through conversion of our utilities to coal and through assistance to resolve the barriers to private sector investment in synthetic fuels. It also provides for deregulation of oil and gas to encourage greater investment in domestic production. Further, we must achieve a greater degree of energy conservation. Part of the program has been enacted, but not all of it.

Nevertheless, I share Mr. Kilpatrick's concern. If no action had been taken this year, oil imports in 1985 would have amounted to nearly 12,000,000 barrels per day; with the actions taken, such important will still be approximately 7,000,000 barrels per day. If the balance of the President's program is enacted, however, we can reduce the latter figure by nearly half.

We must do a better job of bringing home to the American people the urgency of our energy problems and the Congress must be urged to act.

Small Business Being Starved

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In doubt about the meaning of the "prudent man" standard of the 1974 retirement act, pension fund managers are investing cautiously and, it is claimed, starving small business.

This caution, investment sources say, has resulted in an even more pronounced funneling of funds into the very largest American corporations, accelerating a trend that may already have been under way.

As a result, top executives of corporations in the less-than-giant categories are complaining about difficulties in raising equity capital. Some pension consultants also are concerned about potential weakness of returns.

Involved in the issue are the country's ability to finance industry and keep the economy expanding. Important but lesser issues are the smooth functioning of stock markets and the rate of return on pension funds.

The prudent man standard, restated in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, requires trustees to use the same diligence in choosing fund investments as they would in managing their own affairs.

Because of confusion about the precise responsibilities imposed by the standard, some portfolio managers have applied such a restrictive definition that it permits investments in only the largest, most stable corporations.

In that way, they feel, they will not be liable to personal charges of imprudence.

Critics claim, however, that the cautious portfolio managers are mistakenly applying the standard to each and every investment rather than to portfolios as a whole. In doing so, it is argued, they encourage oligopolies.

In no well-managed portfolio, they maintain, should the higher rewards of greater risk automatically be enjoined. The higher returns of selective investments in some smaller concerns often more than offset losses, they say.

"The prudent man rule should be clarified so as to be expressly applicable to a total portfolio of pension plan investments rather than to each individual investment," argues The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies.

The committee, formed in 1973 by chief executives, claims that the standard has intimidated institutional investors, that they have "taken refuge behind it," and that they have increasingly limited their investments.

Many of the companies involved in the nationwide organization, such as Chrysler Corp. and Reynolds Metals, are themselves large companies, but they often find themselves excluded from the 50 or 100 favored investments.

Because of the restrictive interpretation of the standard, they say, the vast majority of small and medium companies are systematically deprived of the more than $145 billion of investment funds held by pension funds, depriving them of capital needed to produce goods and services.

Strength For Today

GENIUS AT WORK
The great Mozart, as he approached death, produced great compositions at a speed which astonished his friends.

But it was his Requiem upon which to the last moment of his life he lingered with fond devotion. He declared that he was writing it for himself, and it seemed to be both the culmination of his career and the great piece which he prepared for his own passing.

At last, with swollen limbs and a high fever, he lay on his death bed surrounded by his wife, sister, and friend

Susmayer. The score of the beloved Requiem lay open before him. Feeling the end coming, he turned to Susmayer and tried with his lips to indicate a particular effect which the kettledrums were supposed to produce at one place in the score. This was the last act of one of the world's greatest musicians. He closed his eyes for the last time and fell into a tranquil sleep.

Mozart's genius was his life, and his last thought was to make this work effective.

Jim Hunt Puts His Campaign On A Personal Basis

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — When Jim Hunt meets the public, he singles out each person he shakes hands with for a penetrating eye-to-eye contact, a smile and a comment like, "Hi, it's good to see you."

It's short and simple. In the months of campaigning, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate has met and shook hands with thousands of people. And to each of them he has tried to deliver the message that he's sincere about their being important.

Is it real or is it superficial? "To those thousands of people out there, it means something," a campaign aide said recently.

Hunt's campaign, although having a large paid staff in the Raleigh headquarters, has emphasized the grassroots and sought the support of the average citizen, according to its organizers.

More than 20,000 people have donated to the campaign, most of the gifts small.

Hunt's style has been to appear to never dodge an issue or avoid a face-to-face meeting with an opponent. He issued the challenge that resulted in the televised debate with GOP candidate David Flaherty. A Hunt supporter allowed, however, that Hunt had anticipated Flaherty would issue such a call and reaped the public relations benefit by doing it first.

A debate between the gubernatorial candidates was generally expected because of the presidential debates setting such a tone. Normally, candidates such as Hunt who are considered frontrunners avoid debates because they believe they have little to gain and a lot to risk.

Asked recently why he doesn't try to minimize the risk in dealing with newsmen or appearing on the same platform with his opponent, Hunt replied confidently, "I believe my positions are sound."

Though he has taken positions on all the issues, Hunt defies classification as liberal or conservative and calls himself "pragmatic."

He supports the Equal Rights Amendment, which is not believed to be generally popular, and utilities regulation reform, which is. Both stands are usually considered liberal.

But, he stands for a get tough attitude in dealing with criminals, saying the liberal approach that emphasized rehabilitation didn't work. He also speaks out in favor of capital punishment, saying it will prevent killings. Both stands are popular with conservatives.

His pragmatism is best illustrated in his now forgotten 1974 call for tax reform, which would have cut taxes for the poor at the cost of the rich. Tax reform is not considered a burning issue this year and few politicians mention it.

It has been said that Hunt mapped out his life early with his goal being elected governor. He denies making such plans.

Friends say Hunt is intelligent, serious, deliberate, careful, energetic, ambitious and self-disciplined.

Knighthood, Near 200 Years Late

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — It took almost 200 years, but John Paul Jones finally was knighted in the Military and Hospitaller Order of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem.

When King Louis XVI proposed knighthood for Jones in 1779, officials of the international order turned him down because the American naval hero was a Scots Presbyterian. The order was then exclusively Catholic, but it now is ecumenical. Monday's ceremony at the U.S. Naval Academy, where Jones is buried, was intended as an appropriate gesture during the U.S. Bicentennial.

be impractical to market sterile meat, the department said.

But 63 per cent of those surveyed thought it unlikely that government-inspected meat would carry such bacteria. The survey also found that 30 per cent would taste a suspected product to see if it were safe to eat, a potentially fatal act, the report said. About two-thirds of the respondents thought the leftovers from cooked foods should be left out to cool before refrigerating.

A homemaker earned a "high risk" designation for one or more of these "undesirable practices":

Eating hamburger rare, leaving meats at room temperature for more than two hours after cooking, leaving tuna, chicken or other salad-type sandwiches — including brown-bagged lunches — at room temperature for more than two hours, stuffing a turkey a day or more in advance, storing stuffing in the leftover turkey or cooking the turkey partially in one place and finishing it later.

Of the 63 per cent getting the label, about half committed only one of the errors, the researchers said, while 47 per cent hit on two to four.

The Jones-Weimer analysis commented that one reason for the apparently "safer" kitchens among the older, less-educated and lower-income families is they are less apt to be buying vulnerable whole turkeys or beef or pork roasts.

Even some of those who prepared the food safely were undone by their refrigerators, the survey found. About a third of the appliances checked were operating at temperatures higher than 45 degrees, the minimum needed to check bacterial growth. Twenty per cent of the homemakers erroneously thought refrigeration completely stopped the growth and that freezing killed the germs.

November 2 could go either way. In conservative Virginia, Carter probably is more hurt than helped by his linkage with Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, who is challenging Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. for a Senate seat. Zumwalt, a newcomer to Virginia, can't shake his carpetbagger image. The Byrd people are strongly anti-Carter, and will roll out a solid Ford vote.

Eisewhere in the South, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and Oklahoma appear safe for Carter. If Florida, South Carolina and Georgia also are conceded, the eight states would produce 77 electoral votes. Maryland and West Virginia would provide 16 more. Toss in three from the District of Columbia, and you wind up with 96 — more than one-third of the 270 electoral votes needed for victory. Deep in the heart of Dixie, that prospect ought to evoke rebel yells of jubilation. What one hears, curiously enough, are mostly rebel murrers.

"He has his interests directed in one direction and nobody is going to turn his head to the side," said H. Edward Knox, a Charlotte attorney and a long-time Hunt friend.

While supporters praise his dedication to government and politics, some people, especially Republicans, say he is overly ambitious. David Jones, corrections secretary under Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser, complains often that Hunt spent four years as lieutenant governor running for governor at the public's expense.

Lifelong friends and those who have known him since college say Hunt had little time for the frivolous.

"His sights were a little higher, his mind was occupied with things other than what were on the minds of most students," said J. Russell Kirby of Wilson. In 1966 Hunt joined Kirby's law firm.

As a youth, Hunt practiced public speaking driving a tractor on the family farm. He won numerous speaking awards. He joined organizations such as 4-H, Future Farmers of America and Grange Youth and was elected president of most of them. He also played on the football team and was first trumpet in the high school band.

At North Carolina State College he was president of the student body for two years, helped organize a campus Young Democrats Club and worked in the campaign of former Gov. Terry Sanford. After earning a masters degree in economics, he went to law school at the University of North Carolina.

Amid his law studies, he spent a year in Washington as national director of the Young Democrats. In 1964, he took a Ford Foundation assignment to help the impoverished country of Nepal improve its economy. He says he and his wife Carolyn would have joined the Peace Corps had couples with children been accepted.

Because he had flunked the state bar exam in 1964 — he says he is embarrassed and doesn't understand why — Hunt studied law in Nepal's cold early mornings for six months, passing the bar on return to the United States in 1966.

Hunt said he disciplined himself to study under trying circumstances, a discipline that remains. Some critics say Hunt is too disciplined, that he never relaxes and opens up. A woman who worked close to him in the campaign said she never saw him "let his hair down."

Gary Pearce, Hunt's press aide, said recently he believes Hunt will loosen up after the election. "At least, I'm going to try to get him to loosen up."

Hunt's disciplined demeanor is matched by his appearance. At 39, he still looks boyish, though it's giving way to greying maturity. His lawyer-style pin striped suits are always pressed and his shoes glisten.

Styled in a somewhat dated pompadour, Hunt's hair is always in place. If he has a 5 o'clock shadow, few people know because he travels with two portable electric razors, having a spare should one fail.

Before running for lieutenant governor, Hunt was state president of the Young Democrats and headed a commission to reform to revise party rules.

"Cash-Flow" and your lifelong battle of income vs. outgo.

That first paycheck can seem pretty big, until you start paying for your own food, clothes, and housing.

The median price of a home in the U.S. today is $39,300—something to consider when you need room for kids.

Sending kids through four years of college can cost anywhere from $10,000 up, depending on where they go to school.

In a working life, you make hundreds of thousands of dollars. So you shouldn't have money worries when you retire.

Over your lifetime, you'll have a lot of money coming in.

And a lot of money going out. Sometimes, you'll have more than you need. Other times, you won't have enough.

And, in this lifelong battle of income vs. outgo, a bank can help you in a lot of ways. By looking at things more from your point of view. And less from the bank's point of view.

NCNB INTRODUCES LIFETIME "CASH-FLOW" BANKING.

"Cash-Flow" is a new way of banking designed to work for you, whatever your situation.

Whether you're a 20-year-old with your first job, or a couple planning your retirement.

It considers more than just the banking business you do; it also considers all the things that affect your financial life. So we've put together booklets covering eight different situations.

They're designed to help you with everyday finances, long-range planning and putting NCNB services to work for you.

Then, our people are trained to do more for you than open an account or make you a loan. They'll answer your questions and help you find the best way to handle things. (If they can't answer your questions, they'll find someone who can.)

Finally, our services have been designed to be flexible enough to help you make the most of the money you make.

HOW TO START GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A BANK.

One of our booklets fits your situation right now and it's yours for the asking.

So stop by any NCNB office and pick one up. Or just call our toll-free number, 800-822-8855 and we'll send you a copy.

Either way, do it soon.

With all the money you earn, save, spend and borrow over a lifetime, it pays to get the most out of your bank.

And, we think you'll get more when your bank is NCNB.

Murder Charges Face 2 Child Abusers

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — Ronald and Wanda Maddux, held in a secret location since shortly after their 4-year-old daughter, Melisha Gibson, was found beaten to death in their home six days ago, faced their first-degree murder charges today.

Police, fearing possible violence, planned heavy security around the Bradley County court house for the preliminary hearing.

Authorities say Melisha was beaten and tortured for at least a day before she was found on a mattress in the living room.

Since the girl's death last Wednesday, emotions among the residents of this South-eastern Tennessee city have been running high.

About 250 persons earlier signed petitions demanding the couple be held without bond.

Residents have told interviewers they hope the mother and stepfather will be given the death penalty.

The Madduxes were convicted in 1974 of abusing Melisha and served 6 months of a one year sentence.

The state human services department was criticized Monday for its handling of the case by a former Cleveland police-woman who worked as the city's juvenile officer until 1974 when her job was abolished and all juvenile cases turned over to county authorities.

Faye Griffith, the former juvenile officer, said she was personally involved after Melisha was beaten in 1973.

She said that should have been a clear signal to state officials not to return Melisha to her home.

"The doctors say she was bruised from the top of her head to the soles of her feet when she died last week," Mrs. Griffith said. "If the welfare department made 21 visits to the home, why in the hell didn't they see some of that?"

She said most social workers are not properly trained to deal with child abuse problems.

"They are not psychologists, not psychiatrists. They are not capable of changing a person's mental condition or of dealing with people like this," she said.

Commissioner Horace Bass, who opened a departmental investigation Monday of how the case was handled, told reporters he did not believe the Madduxes received psychiatric treatment after they completed the 1974 jail terms.

The human services department had custody of Melisha until last May, when she was returned to the couple's care. The Madduxes four other children had been returned to their custody earlier.

Local authorities also investigated a case over the weekend in which a 13-month child was hospitalized and his mother charged with child abuse.

In that case, the human services department took the child from the mother in January 1975, but allowed him to be returned to her a few months later.

Buss said three committees would be formed, including one specifically to investigate the official actions in Melisha's case. A citizen's advisory committee would be appointed, he said, to make suggestions to a legislative committee which would consider changes in the state law.

"On a cursory look, I see some changes that need to be made," Bass said. "One valid suggestion was that child abuse be made a felony. And parents are now able to pay a visit once a quarter or contribute $5 to a child's welfare and retain jurisdiction — this needs to be changed."

Rep. Ben Longley, R-Cleveland, one of a dozen officials meeting in secret with Bass, said he felt the legislature would be receptive to changing the law to protect children more adequately.

"In my judgment, we will have a major breakthrough with positive child abuse legislation next session," Longley said.

"But we don't want some legislator getting hysterical and producing legislation to dehorn everyone in sight and wipe out all the things we've accomplished over the years. We're going to correct the problems, in short, but we don't want to overreact."

Reformed FWB Meets Oct. 27

The General Conference of the Reformed Free Will Baptist Church will convene Oct. 27-31 at Lillington Star Reformed FWB Church in Lillington. The presiding officer and host pastor is Bishop G. D. McNeill Jr., with vice-moderator W. F. King assisting.

The Christian Youth Fellowship will meet Wed., Oct. 27 with Mrs. Annie Drane as chairperson.

Thursday the Sunday School Convention will hold its annual convocation with Mrs. Mamie Berry as chairperson.

The Home and Foreign Missions Conventions will observe their annual "Missions Day" Friday, highlighted by a message from Dr. C. R. Edwards, president of the Lott-Carey Foreign Mission, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Ada King and Mrs. Ellen Berry will serve as co-chairpersons.

Saturday will mark the official sitting of the conference. The 10 a.m. session will begin with the ratification of the church constitution, committee reports and the election of new conference officials. Guest speakers and dignitaries include: Dr. J. J. Johnson, president of the State Baptist Convention; Dr. Grady Davis, member of the N.C. State Parole Commission; and Dr. J. Z. Alexander, dean of the School of Religion at Shaw University.

The Sunday session will begin at 10:30 a.m. with the installation of lay officials and the consecration of bishops and elders. At 11 a.m. Senior Bishop G. D. McNeill Jr. will conduct the morning worship service, assisted by the Emanuel Hill Memorial Chancel Choir.

Evening services will be conducted by the Rev. J. Earl Williams of Ayden, pastor of the New Metropolitan RFB Church of Durham. The closing keynote address will be presented by H. V. Bryant, superintendent of the Central Orphanage at Oxford.

Member churches and interested observers are invited to attend.

Seeks Divorce After 20 Years

LONDON (AP) — Hugh Fraser, 58, a prominent Conservative member of parliament, has begun divorce proceedings against his wife, the author Lady Antonia Fraser.

Fraser claims their 20-year marriage has irretrievably broken down, his attorneys said Monday.

Last year, actress Vivien Merchant named Lady Antonia, 43, a biographer and fiction writer, as the "other woman" when she filed for divorce from her husband, playwright Harold Pinter.

Burt Reynolds Out Of Hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds, 40, who was hospitalized with chest pains over the weekend, has returned home.

A spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Hospital said Monday that doctors in the cardiac care unit were unable to determine the cause of the pains and that Reynolds was sent home late Sunday night.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY,
County Extension Agent
Land use and agriculture — that's a subject sure to stir the emotions of farmers and landowners. Of course we're not talking about whether to use the land for corn, soybeans, peanuts or tobacco. Land use, in this case, refers to decisions about whether land will be used for agriculture, industrial development, urban growth, recreation, conservation, etc.

A recent workshop on the subject was sponsored by the Agricultural Committee of the Coastal Plain Development Association. Farmers and rural leaders were told that the pressure for land use planning is growing stronger because of changes in population and economic structure.

Dr. Paul Stone, Director of the Center for Rural Resource Development at N.C. State University, cited the dramatic decrease of people involved in agriculture and the increase of people in manufacturing, trade, and service as a major cause of changes in land use patterns. North Carolina experienced a 71 percent decline in agriculture, forestry, fish and mining employment during the period 1950-1970. Manufacturing employment increased 101 percent and trade and service employment jumped 61 percent during the same period.

Stone noted that farmland is being converted to non farm uses at a rapid rate. The ten county area represented by CPDA lost 90,395 acres of cropland from 1958-1967. (Pitt County lost 7,139 acres during 1970-1974) He pointed out the conflicts that occur when non farm development, move into agricultural areas.

Zeno Ratcliff, a Beaufort County farmer, stated that he had a long standing interest in land use planning because of his concern about nuisance suits and complaints when non farm development conflicts with agriculture. He cited instances where farmers have been forced out of business by new neighbors who complained about noise, dust, flies or Ratcliff also noted a concern about preserving good farmland for food production. "We can ill afford to squander this precious land resource much longer if we have any concern for any generation but our own," he stated.

Pitt County leaders attending the workshop commented that a strong local planning effort is much more desirable than having plans developed at state or national levels imposed.

Land use and agriculture is a subject of importance to farmer and consumer alike. All will be affected by the decisions made. If you would like more information on land use in Pitt County or on the issues involved contact the Agricultural Extension Service.

Thinks Noise Due Quakes

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Two university of North Carolina geologists say small earthquakes on the ocean bottom may have caused the booming noises, rattling doors, falling plaster and trembling buildings which have mystified residents of the Cape Fear area for years.

Dr. David Stewart and Kenneth B. Taylor will report on their findings Nov. 10 at a geological seminar in Denver, Colo.

The report is the result of three months of seismographic study, eight months of observations, and interviews with more than 150 residents along 180 miles of coastline.

The study indicates the disturbances, which have created waves in Southport harbor, originated 10 to 50 miles offshore south and southeast of Cape Fear.

"Attempts to explain the phenomena by sonic aircraft booms, quarry blasts, sunken ship salvage operations, military artillery or explosions have failed," Stewart said.

He said that six minor earthquakes of magnitudes 2.5 to 3 on the Richter Scale have occurred in the area since 1871, the most recent in 1974.

If the findings are accurate, it would be the first indication of intermittent offshore earthquake activity over a long period of time, Stewart said. He said the disturbances seem to be concentrated from Wrightsville Beach south to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Group Inducted Dr. J.W. Carter

Dr. James W. Carter of Greenville has been initiated into the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Carter is a member of Pitt Surgical Associates here, composed of Dr. Frank Longino, Dr. Bernard Vick, and him.

Investigating Theft At Lodge

Greenville Police are continuing their investigation into the reported theft of $2,000 from a safe at the Moose Lodge on Dickinson Avenue here. Chief Glenn Cannon said the theft was reported at 4 p.m. Sunday.

He noted there was no sign of forced entry into the building or the safe.

Still Lives With The Scars Of Losing Hair

By ELAINE HOOKER
Associated Press Writer
MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — "Baldie, baldie, baldie," schoolmates in Michigan called after her more than 25 years ago.

Once, during a fire drill, a child pulled the wig off and exposed her bald head, to the delight of the rest of the pupils.

To this day Kaye, now 36, winces when she says the word bald and doesn't even like to say the word wig.

She says her own maturity and the popularity of wigs have helped give her "a free psyche."

But the scars are still there. She has never allowed her husband of 17 years to see her bald head. She wears a wig to bed and will shop only in wig boutiques where there is a back room for her to try on hairpieces.

And she didn't want her real name used in a story, although she couldn't explain exactly why.

She doesn't know how many other women have the same secret — that under the wig there is no hair — because most people are ashamed to talk about it. The owner of a large local wig boutique, however, says that of every 100 women who buy wigs from him, one is completely bald.

Kaye's hair fell out when she was 4 years old, after she had suffered a low-grade fever for several months. No doctor has been able to explain why.

She says she blanked out about six months of that time and doesn't remember when she first realized she was different. But tears came to her eyes as she recalled that her mother found her standing in a corner one day when she was 4½, crying. Her mother said that when she asked what was wrong, the child replied, "I look funny, don't I?"

Throughout school she was teased by other children and always felt "like a second-class citizen." Occasionally, schoolmates invited her to sleep at their houses hoping she would take her wig off at night, when she had thought they were her friends.

"For years desperately I would dream that when I woke up in the morning all my hair was there."

Her parents, who were not wealthy, spent thousands of dollars on human hair wigs, doctors' visits, injections and heat treatments in the hope her hair would grow back.

During early adolescence, when her body underwent hormonal changes, she grew some hair. When that fell out she realized it never would grow back and began to try to accept it.

When Kaye was 17 or 18, a Methodist minister went to her house to talk over her problems, telling her:

"You've just got to learn to accept it, and say, 'Yes, I do wear a wig. So what?'"

"Now that I look at it, it's so simple I don't know why I ever tried to hide it," she said. "I am in control of my life now."

"You don't ever get over the scar of being rejected by other kids. To the day I die I will never feel comfortable in this body."

East Carolina Ranked 20th On AP Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Michigan, Pitt, Nebraska and UCLA held onto the first four spots in The Associated Press college football poll today while two-time defending champion Oklahoma moved into fifth place and four schools cracked the ratings for the first time this season.

The four newcomers are No. 16 Iowa State, No. 19 South Carolina and East Carolina and Mississippi State, tied for 20th. Michigan remained atop the ratings for the sixth week in a row. The Wolverines trounced Northwestern 38-7 for their sixth consecutive triumph and received 58 first-place ballots and 1,232 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

The other four first-place votes went to Pitt, which defeated Miami, Fla. 36-19 without its top two quarterbacks. The Panthers received 1,088 points in holding onto second place for the fourth week in a row. Last week, Michigan led Pitt 1,194-1,057 with 60 voters participating.

Nebraska remained third with 930 points by walloping Kansas State 51-0 while UCLA clobbered Washington State 62-3 and stayed in fourth place with 896 points.

Oklahoma moved up from sixth to fifth with 718 points by defeating Kansas 28-10, dropping the Jayhawks from 15th place out of the rankings for the first time this season.

Meanwhile, Maryland slipped from fifth to sixth with 554 points after a hard-fought 17-15 victory over Wake Forest.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Southern California, Texas Tech, Ohio State and Georgia.

Southern Cal, idle last week-end, climbed from eighth to seventh while Texas Tech jumped from 10th to eighth by battering Rice 37-13. Ohio State, a 30-20 victor over Wisconsin, remained in ninth place while Georgia moved up from 11th to 10th with a 45-0 rout of Vanderbilt.

Missouri fell from seventh to 17th via a 21-17 loss to Iowa State, which also moved the Cyclones into the Top Twenty for the first time in several years.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Notre Dame, Texas, Houston, Arkansas, Iowa State, Missouri, Alabama and South Carolina, with East Carolina and Mississippi State sharing the 20th position.

Last week's Second Ten was Texas Tech, Georgia, Florida, Texas, Notre Dame, Kansas, Louisiana State and Mississippi tied for 16th, followed by Arkansas, Houston and Alabama.

LSU lost to Kentucky 21-7 and Ole Miss was beaten by South Carolina 10-7. East Carolina, 6-0, cracked the Top Twenty with a 17-3 triumph over VMI while Mississippi State, 5-1, outlasted Memphis State 42-33.

Sparky, Billy Agree Yankees Are Not Dead

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson isn't about to write off the New York Yankees and Yankee manager Billy Martin thinks he's wise not to do so.

"I said before the World Series began that I thought it would go seven games," Anderson said before the Series resumed tonight with Game Three. "I think I'll stick with that."

"The Yanks are an excellent club. They have to be to be here in the Series. They've won three or four in a row before and they can always do it again," Anderson said.

The Yanks will have to do just that to get back into this Series. They lost the first two games in Cincinnati, 5-1 and 4-3. Only six times in 73 previous World Series has a team been down 2-0 and come back to win the championship. And two of those teams were Yankee teams, in 1956 against the Brooklyn Dodgers and two years later against the Milwaukee Braves.

"I think Sparky's right," Martin said of Anderson's conservative stance. "I think we have the edge at home because we're more used to the natural grass. And we're very easily capable of turning this thing around in a hurry."

"I'm not all that impressed with their pitching," Martin continued. "But I am impressed with the rest of their club. Still, I can't call them awesome the way some people have. The Yankee clubs that I played on, when we won five World Series in a row, that's awesome."

Martin sends 31-year-old right-hander Dock Ellis to the mound tonight in hopes of turning things around. Ellis turned himself around this year after coming to New York as a virtual throw-in in a trade with the Pittsburgh Pirates. After several stormy and ineffective seasons, he posted a 17-8 record this year.

"I hate cold weather. I don't like pitching in it. I don't think anyone likes playing in it," Ellis said, viewing the possibility of playing in sub-freezing temperatures in Yankee Stadium.

Ellis said he was in no way nervous about being the man on the spot. "It's just another game to me," he said. "You've got to take each game as it comes. You can't get all worked up over one game, no matter how important it may seem. You can only do what you are capable of doing. It's the same way all over, starting with Little League."

Going against Ellis will be rookie Pat Zachry, a 24-year old right-hander who was 14-7 this year.

Zachry finds himself in an unusual position, playing in a ball park he always wanted to play in — but in the wrong uniform.

"The Yanks were always my favorite team from the time I was growing up," he said. "When I was a kid, I'd go in the back yard with a plastic ball and bat and make believe I was playing for the Yankees. And we won every game 15-0."

Contest Winners

Dennee Mozingo of 700 Cotanche St., Apt. 5, captured first place in this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest. She correctly picked the winners in 24 of the 32 games listed in the Reflector last week.

Second place went to John Brown Jr. of P.O. Box 23, Fountain, who came up with 23 right picks in the 32 games. He won on the basis of his point total with a guess of 77. A total of 75 points was scored in Mississippi State's 42-33 win over Memphis State.

Two other people also had 23 right, but were further off the point total.

The tie between Clemson and Duke was counted wrong on all entries since it is possible to pick a tie.

The next weekly contest appears on the following pages.

Kubek Compares This Yank Team To His 1961

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees are no Little League team. After all, they're the American League champions. Yet former Yankee Tony Kubek thinks only one player from New York's 1976 club could have started for the Yankees in 1961.

Kubek says that of the present Yankee regulars, only Catfish Hunter would definitely fit into the pinstripes of the Yankee powerhouse, which crushed the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series 15 years ago.

Kubek, a cog on six Yankee pennant-winning teams in the late 50s and early 60s, considers himself a somewhat biased historian, but he was willing to compare the two clubs that are separated by much more than 15 years and new double knit knickers.

"It's really hard to make comparisons," says Kubek, part of NBC's baseball broadcasting team. "The game's changed so much, with expansion, relief pitching, artificial turf and the designated hitter."

"But the only guy I feel certainly would make the 1961 Yankees would be Hunter," Catfish, five-time 20-game winner, would fit nicely into then-Yankee Manager Ralph Houk's rotation, which included Whitey Ford, Bob Turley and Ralph Terry.

The 1961 Yankees brought tape measures wherever they went. They hit a major league record 240 homers that year, with Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle combining for 115. They won 109 games, second most ever by a Yankee team, winning their second of five straight pennants.

The streak ended in 1964, the last time the Yankees won the AL pennant until this year's team, headed by Hunter and hitters Thurman Munson, Mickey Rivers and Chris Chambliss.

Catcher: "Thurman Munson's a helluva good player, but could he have beaten out Yogi Berra or Elston Howard?" asked Kubek. Berra, a Hall of Famer, batted .285 with 358 homers in his 19-year major league career. Howard hit 167 homers and batted .274 in 10 seasons.

"And don't forget, Johnny Blanchard (third-string catcher) had 21 homers that season," said Kubek.

Munson batted .302 with 17 homers and 105 runs batted in this year.

First base: "I like Chambliss, but Moose Skowron hit over 300 four straight seasons and he was a good defensive first baseman," Kubek said. In 14 seasons, Skowron batted .282 and slugged 211 homers.

Chambliss, also a good defensive player, batted .293 with 17 homers and 96 RBI this year.

Second base: "I know Willie Randolph's a good, young player, but I can't say I'd take him over Bobby Richardson." Richardson, one of the smoothest Yankee infielders, batted .266 in 12 seasons.

Randolph, a 22-year-old rookie with excellent range, hit .267 in 1976.

Shortstop: "Shortstop, I can't say," said Kubek, who happened to play that position for the 1961 Yankees. A slick shortstop with a strong arm, Kubek batted .266 in nine seasons.

Fred Stanley, also a strong fielder, hit .238 this year.

Third base: "Graig Nettles had a great year and he has power, but no one ever played third base like Clete Boyer," Kubek said.

Boyer, a peerless defensive third baseman, hit .242 in 16 seasons. Nettles, a very respected defensive player, led the AL in homers with 32, while driving in 93 runs and hitting .254.

Outfield: "People forget that Hector Lopez drove in a lot of runs for us and he was in and out of the lineup," Kubek said.

In 12 seasons, Lopez hit .269 with 136 homers. He was only a fair defensive player. Roy White has a weak arm but, overall, is a good outfielder. He hit .286 this season.

"I think you're going to have some problems in centerfield and right field," said Kubek.

Mantle, a Hall of Famer, is sixth on the alltime home run list with 536. His lifetime batting average was .298. He was an excellent outfielder. In 1961, he slammed 54 homers, scored 132 runs, knocked in 128 RBI and batted .317.

Rivers, a fleet centerfielder with no arm, scored 95 runs while batting .312 this season. He stole 43 bases.

Maris hit a record 61 homers in 161 games, and had a powerful arm in right field. Lifetime, he batted .260 with 275 homers in 11 seasons. The Yankees platooned in right field this year between right-handed hitting Lou Piniella and left-handed hitting Oscar Gamble. Piniella batted .281. Gamble socked 17 homers.

Duke Kicker Receives Honor

By The Associated Press
A kicking specialist has been named an Atlantic Coast Conference football player of the week for the first time ever.

He is Duke placekicker Vince Fusco. He set an ACC single-game record of six field goals, accounting for all the Blue Devil's points, in their 18-18 tie with the Clemson Tigers.

Two conference players had kicked four field goals in a game. Dave Wright of Duke and Ken Craven of North Carolina did it in 1971.

Fusco's six three-pointers tied the NCAA mark for a game.

Also winning offensive honors is North Carolina State tackle Mike Fagan. He played with sore feet and a pinched nerve in his neck but still did an outstanding job blocking in the 21-13 victory over North Carolina.

The weekly selections are by a panel of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Wake Forest safety Bill Armstrong, and Virginia tackle Mike Ozdowski, were named earlier as the defensive players this week.

Fusco's final boot, of 57 yards, bounced over the crossbar as time expired and established an ACC distance record. It broke Steve Mike-Mayer's 54-yard record set for Maryland in 1973.

Fusco is a senior from Hyde Park, N.Y.

In numerous third down and short yardage situations, Fagan led N.C. State runners for the yardage that kept long drives alive.

Twice in the first half, the Wolfpack drove nearly the length of the field for touchdowns. The drives of 98 and 97 yards were part of the team's 401 yards for the game.

The Wolfpack line coach, Bobby Morrison, said Fagan, 6-2, 245-pound senior from Portsmouth, Va., had great movement and consistency on the key plays.

Recreation Football

The Eagles defeated the Dolphins yesterday in Greenville Recreation Department flag football and the Redskins defeated the Bills in tackle football.

Tony Clemmons scored four times in the Eagles' 40-0 romp over the Dolphins. He scored two touchdowns and added two PAT's.

Maurice Carney caught two TD passes of 24 and 35 yards, John Wooten scored on a 3-yard run and Willie Jones added another TD with a 65-yard interception return. Mike Jaboni also scored a PAT for the Eagles. The Eagles are now 2-2 and the Dolphins are 0-3.

Willie Carney caught touchdown passes of 65 and 20 yards to lead the Redskins past the Bills 20-6 in tackle football.

Jule Budaz scored the Bills' only TD in the first quarter on a 25-yard pass reception.

Willie Short added the Redskins' other score in the second on a 10-yard touchdown pass reception.

The game evens the Redskin record at 1-1 and drops the Bills to 1-1.

Rampants Are Second

Northern Nash nipped the Rose High School cross-country team in a three-way meet yesterday. Bertie finished third.

Northern Nash finished with 28 points, while Rose had 34. The Falcons finished with 58 points.

Northern's Donald Earl finished the course first in 15:36, while Rose's Jesse Baker was next at 15:40. Mark Davis of Northern was third in 15:52, followed by Til Jolly of Rose in 16:13.

John Nobles was fifth for Rose, 16:15, followed by Clinton Nardy and Willie Austin of Northern, in 16:19 and 16:21, respectively.

Bertie's Jackson Outlaw was eighth in 16:28, with Cliff Hagan of Rose ninth in 16:32. John Outlaw of Bertie was tenth in 16:34.

Other Rose finishers were Mike Norfleet, 14th in 16:48; Mickey Finn, 16th in 17:01; Walter Kortscak, 20th in 17:10; Steve Blackwell, 21st in 17:28; David Daniels, 22nd in 17:29; Robert Vick, 23rd in 17:41; and John Lawler, 26th in 18:39.

Rose travels to Wilson on Thursday.

Farmville Nets Win

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girls' tennis team romped to a 7-2 victory over Roanoke High School yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars won all six of the singles matches to put the win away. Roanoke came back to take two of the three doubles.

The victory raised the Farmville Central record to 11-2 for the season. Farmville plays host to Greene Central on Thursday.

Summary:
Jennifer Counterman (FC) defeated Kim Respass, 6-0, 6-2.
Lou Ann Eason (FC) defeated Sandra Whitaker, 6-7, 6-1, 6-2.
Courtney Lancaster (FC) defeated Suzanne Mobley, 6-1, 6-2.
Margaret Yelverton (FC) defeated Fran Vandford, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.
Lynn May (FC) defeated Miriam Jones, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6.
Cara Burnett (FC) defeated Charlotte Grimes, 6-3, 6-2.
Counterman-Lancaster (FC) defeated Respass-Whitaker, 8-0.
Mobley-Vandford (R) defeated Eason-Jill Cutler, 8-6.
Roberson-Moica (R) defeated Burnett-Margaret McCaughey, 8-5.

Conley In Victory

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley moved into the semifinals of the Eastern Carolina Conference volleyball tournament with a 2-0 victory over North Pitt last night.

Conley will meet regular season champion Roanoke in the semifinals tonight at 8 p.m. at Farmville Central. The winner of that match moves into the 9 p.m. finals.

The Valkyries won the opening game, 15-6, with Alice Costen serving up four in a row to pull Conley away from a 5-4 edge.

Then, in the second game, Conley wrapped it up with a 15-4 win over the Pant-HERS. Costen served eight straight points in the match, while Sheila Washington added three.

Lady Jags Down Ewes

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's volleyball team moved into the semifinals of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament by defeating Greene Central, 2-0, yesterday.

Farmville will face Ayden-Grifton tonight at 7 p.m. in Farmville for the right to play in the finals. Roanoke, the regular-season winner, will meet Conley in a second match, with the two winners meeting in the night's finale for the title.

Farmville Central won the first game of the match, 15-13, in a closely contested match that saw no one team able to run off a series of points.

In the second game, Farmville moved away, taking a 15-6 win. Bobbie Pittman led Farmville in this, serving up seven straight points.

Grogan Guides Patriots In 41-7 Romp

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer
FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Steve Grogan, the New England Patriots' sophomore quarterback, isn't yet comparable to such National Football League scramblers as Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach, but he loves to run as much as pass. The 23-year-old former Kansas State star has done both in making New England fans forget about traded Jim Plunkett while leading the Patriots to a surprising 4-2 record. Grogan enjoys running so much that he even scores touchdowns on broken plays. He did that twice Monday night, sparking the Patriots to a 41-7 romp over the New York Jets before a national television audience. Grogan, who received a telegram signed by about 500 hometown friends from Ottawa, Kan., celebrated his debut on national TV with a spectacular performance that stole the thunder from veteran quarterback Joe Namath of the jets. He completed 14 of 23 passes for 145 yards and one touchdown. He also carried seven times for 103 yards, including a 41-yard scoring sprint. And he scooped up a fumble by teammate Don Calhoun at the New York six and ran for a touchdown. "Grogan had an excellent game, a super game," Jets Coach Lou Holtz said. "The tale of the game was the offensive line. "They protected Grogan and opened holes in play action. When we blitzed inside, he stepped outside. When we blitzed outside, he stepped inside. He sure has some horses in front of him and behind him."

Grogan's pickup of Calhoun's fumble for New England's second touchdown in the second period was the broken play. However, his run for the fourth touchdown in the third quarter was electrifying.

"A couple of his runs were planned, a couple weren't," New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "The long one for the touchdown was not designed for him to carry the ball."

"Most plays are designed for me to run, but I took off about four times on my own tonight," Grogan said. "They were giving it (the quarterback run) to us."

However, the Jets didn't give Grogan the run when he took off for his sixth touchdown of the season. There was a mixup in signals in the New England backfield, so Grogan kept the ball himself, found a hole on his left side, picked up blocks from tackle Leon Gary and guard John Hannah and raced for the score. Namath, 33, and in his 11th

NFL campaign, completed 16 of 27 passes for 135 yards and one touchdown, only his second of the season, before retiring to rest a pulled hamstring in the third period. The Jets now are 0-8 in the long-standing weekly television series and 1-5 over-all for this season.

Suggests Talks On NFL Rule

By ROGER D. JOLLEY
Associated Press writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — A federal appeals court opinion Monday which upheld an earlier court ruling against the National Football league's Rozelle Rule drew optimistic praise from the two chief protagonists in the case — the league and the NFL Players Association. A three-judge panel of the 8th

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the Minnesota District Court's ruling that the Rozelle Rule is unlawful and in violation of federal antitrust laws. However, the court also found that "some reasonable restrictions relating to player transfers are necessary for the successful operation of the NFL" and suggested that such restrictions should be negotiated.

The appeals court ordered the case remanded to the district court, where the players' demand for damages still is to be settled. Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association, which funded the original suit by 15 present and former players, said his group was extremely pleased and "hopefully, with this decision, the NFL owners and the commissioner will decide to come to the bargaining table in good faith to achieve a compromise agreement."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the league said, "This judicial clarification should pave the way for a resolution of these matters at the bargaining table, as has been done in baseball, hockey and basketball."

The spokesman said the league understood that the appeals court "has confirmed the league's position that the Rozelle Rule is a subject to be resolved in collective bargaining" and that the court also "recognized the need for reasonable restrictions on player transfers in the NFL."

The rule, called the Rozelle Rule after NFL commissioner

Pete Rozelle, says a player can become a free agent when he plays out his contract with a team, but gives the commissioner the power to order compensation when a player goes to another team in the league.

John Mackey, a former Baltimore colts player, and 14 others filed the suit in May 1972. The Minnesota court of U.S. District Judge Earl R. Larson ruled last Dec. 30 in favor of the players after they alleged the Rozelle Rule constituted an illegal combination in restraint of trade, denying football players the right to freely contract for their services.

Among the "reasonable restrictions" listed as possibilities by the court was limiting the period during which the rule can be invoked.

Cunningham To Call It Quits

By BRUCE DALLAS
Associated Press Writer
CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, whose gritty determination and competitive spirit helped make him a pro basketball star, has lost a comeback battle to a knee injury.

He was one of the greatest basketball stars ever to play at the University of North Carolina, where he played three years in the mid 1960s, before freshmen were eligible for varsity competition. He was named the Tar Heels' most valuable player all three years. He made All-America in 1965. He is North Carolina's leading career rebounder, and fifth leading career scorer, behind Lennie Rosenbluth, Charlie Scott, Larry Miller and Bob Lewis.

The 11-year veteran of the National and American Basketball Associations announced his retirement from the game at a news conference Monday. "I don't want people feeling sorry for me," the 6-foot-7, 215-pounder said. "It's not the end of the world. There are other things to do."

The 33-year-old veteran missed two-thirds of last season and had played very little during this exhibition season after ripping up his knee last December in a game against the New York Knicks.

Despite an exhaustive rehabilitation program, he could not regain the form that made him a four-time NBA all-star and the Most Valuable Player in the ABA in the 1972-73 season. "His knee is surgically irreparable," said Philadelphia General Manager Pat Williams, who announced that Cunningham's uniform No. 32 would also be retired.

"There's no stability or strength in it. It's not sound," Williams said.

Cunningham had said before he would not hang on if he could not play up to his standards. "If I can contribute as a player, I'm not going to deprive another guy of a living," he said last week.

Cunningham's inability to come back is Philadelphia's loss.

"He played with abandon," Williams said. "That fighting instinct is why he rose above the pack. His vintage years were irreplaceable. You have to put him with the greatest forwards of all time—Elgin Baylor, Bob Pettit and John Havlicek."

The 76ers offered Cunningham a position with the organization, but Cunningham said his future plans were uncertain.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Cunningham was Philadelphia's first-round draft choice from the University of North Carolina in 1965. During his NBA career, he averaged nearly 21 points and 10 rebounds per game, and wound up with a career field goal percentage of .445.

Cunningham, who jumped to the Carolina Cougars of the ABA in 1972, rejoined the 76ers after spending two seasons in the ABA.

He recovered from a broken wrist and battled back from two major kidney operations during his career before the knee problem finally stopped him.

Movie's Author Fears Triggering 'Copycats'

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN
Associated Press Writer
SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — The author of "Death Wish" fears that when CBS airs the movie version it will trigger a rash of copycats imitating the "hero" — a man who kills those he thinks are law-breakers.

So Brian Garfield has been waging a so far unsuccessful campaign to convince the giant network that showing the violence-drenched film on a Friday night in prime time is a mistake that could result in tragedy.

"If they don't show it, it might keep a couple of people alive," the novelist said in an interview. "If you run it for an audience of 100 million, you have to accept the responsibility for kooks."

"My problem with the film is that I think it's dangerous," said Garfield, who was attending a writer's workshop here. "It's already led to a couple of people emulating the events."

CBS, which says the movie meets its programs' standards, says it'll be broadcast in November but no date has been set yet.

Garfield's book deals with a man, portrayed by Charles Bronson in the film, who takes the law into his own hands after his wife is murdered and his daughter driven insane during a vicious rape by three hoodlums.

The character in the book shows clear evidence of a mental disorder as the book progresses and near the end is shooting burglars and car strippers. "He's obviously a nut," Garfield said.

But in the movie, says Garfield, who had no part in the production, the man is made out to be a "cowboy hero" who never shoots first. "It makes it much more appealing," he said.

The character, a wealthy architect, kills his first victim, a mugger, almost by accident. But after the ease with which he exacts his retribution, he decides to continue his vigilante assault on crime.

As the movie ends, Bronson is caught in the act by a policeman, who realizes he is the vigilante killer and turns his back on the bloodshed.

Garfield objected to scheduling the film as a "Movie of the Week" late this year in prime time.

"I suggested they think of running it as a late show. But of course if they run it as a late show they lose advertising."

"The only reply I got was full of courteous double-talk which amounted to a 'no,'" he said.

"Mr. Garfield's desire to have us not show the film does not reflect the reality of the situation at all," said Mike Buchanan, head of CBS publicity on the West Coast. "If a show meets our program practice standards, it is shown."

Denies Report On SBI Hiring

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Nat Walker, city-state editor of the Daily News, said Starling told him the only quarrel he had with Cline's story was that he felt it should have quoted him as saying he had been asked to "consider" the hiring of persons who did not meet bureau standards. "We think it's a good story and we are going to stand by it," Walker said.

Cline wrote that Starling made his comments in response to questions about rumors of political interference and discontent in the bureau's operations.

Haywood Starling, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, says a story in the Greensboro Daily News that he had been asked to hire persons who didn't meet the minimum standards of the bureau, and had resisted, "did not represent the true facts about the hiring of bureau special agents."

The newspaper says it stands by the story by reporter Ned Cline, which was published Sunday.

The story said the requests came from the office of state Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten and his aide, Charlie Smith. It quoted Starling as saying, "They have asked me to do, and suggested to me that I do, certain things that I just could not do. We have had several people they wanted us to hire and I simply told them the people just didn't measure up."

The story said Starling insisted he had not yielded to the hiring suggestions because to have done so would have lowered SBI standards.

Starling said in his statement about the story: "At no time have I ever been told to hire anyone by the attorney general or any member of his staff. I never made the statement that I had resisted 'hiring pressure' to Ned Cline."

The story did not quote Starling directly as saying he had resisted hiring pressure.

Cline said he had taped the interview with Starling and "stand by my story. Everything he is quoted as saying was off the tape."

Dick Gregory Again Arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian Dick Gregory has been arrested with his wife, Lilian, and another man for conducting a protest at the South African Embassy.

The Gregorys and Mitchell D. Snyder of Washington, who described himself as a peace activist, were charged Monday with violating a city ordinance against demonstrations at foreign embassies. They chose to spend the night in jail rather than to be released without bail, a spokeswoman for Gregory said.

She issued a statement in which Gregory said he intends to continue a 40-day fast as part of his protest against treatment of blacks in South Africa.

Have you ever wondered why it seems that an expert almost never misguesses the location of a key card? Take a seat behind former world champion Jim Jacoby as he sets out to navigate the waters of a difficult four-heart contract.

North was a trifle aggressive in jumping to four hearts after he learned via the Stayman convention that South had a four-card heart suit. However, his faith in his partner's playing skill was fully justified.

Without a trump lead, declarer would have time to ruff two spades in dummy, and the contract would have been made easily. Unfortunately, West scuttled these plans when he led a trump, and the defenders quickly drew three rounds of hearts, leaving both declarer and dummy with only a single trump in each hand. For the contract to come home, the diamond finesse would have to succeed and declarer would have to locate the queen of clubs. Jacoby won the third trump in his hand and made a farsighted play—he led a low spade to the queen. Since he would have to lose a spade trick no matter how he played, he wanted to find out who held the king. East won and returned a spade, and Jacoby now knew which way he was going to take the club finesse.

East had shown up with the ace of hearts and king of spades, and he would have to hold the king of diamonds if the contract were to succeed. If he had the queen of clubs as well, that would give him 12 points and some distribution, and he would probably have opened in third seat instead of passing. So Jacoby won the ace of spades and ran the jack of clubs. It was only fitting that both minor suit finesses worked and that the contract made.

Would you like to learn to play this well? Jim and Judy Jacoby will be handling the bridge activities and instruction aboard the Sun Line's "Stella Solaris" when the ship sails for Galveston on February 19, 1977 for a 14-day Caribbean-Mexico cruise.

Tired of waiting for the interminable rubber to end so that you can cut in? Trinidad, Tobago Seize Leadership

By ERROL PILGRIM
PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad and Tobago (UPI) — On the face of it, nothing much ever seems to happen in Trinidad and Tobago.

The two island nation is known mostly outside the Caribbean for the excellence of its steel band music.

But this Delaware-sized country a few miles off the coast of Venezuela is anything but a backwater.

Only six years after social unrest nearly toppled the government of Prime Minister Eric Williams, Trinidad has parlayed good economic luck and a surprising show of political vitality into a position of unquestioned leadership among the Commonwealth Caribbean islands and nations.

Williams, elected Sept. 13 to his fifth five-year term as Prime Minister, is the only head of state independent Trinidad has ever had. His Peoples National Movement is the only political party that has ever ruled.

But just about everything else has changed. In the past few months, Trinidad has dissolved its 179-year-old ties to the British crown, written a new constitution, become a republic and acquired its first viable left-wing party.

Oil Power
At the same time, officials predict that revenue from the country's all-important oil industry will top $3.5 billion over the next five years, a figure guaranteed to maintain Trinidad's position as the regional "big brother" that has pumped more than $160 million into the economies of the Commonwealth Caribbean in the last three years.

Trinidad and Tobago, a nation of slightly over one million persons, has scrambled to the top of the regional heap. The trip has not been easy. In 1970 black power militants and rebellious army units nearly toppled the Williams government with a series of riots and violent demonstrations protesting foreign domination of the island's economic life.

Williams, a history professor who graduated first in his class at Oxford University, and most of Trinidad's other high officials are black, but the rebels charged they were "puppets" of white business interests.

Williams defused the crisis by imposing stringent martial law measures, but the bitterness spawned by the unrest carried over to the general elections of 1971 when major opposition parties boycotted the campaign and handed all 36 of Trinidad's seats to Williams' PNM.

The political dissatisfaction was accompanied by an economic downturn that reached a low point in mid-1973 when net foreign exchange reserves stood at a paltry 28 million dollars.

Oil Embargo Helps
Redemption came from the Arabs.

Government planners here have acknowledged that the 1973 energy crisis and Arab oil embargo saved the Trinidadian economy from ruin. Exchange reserves leaped to $640 million within a year and by Feb. 1976 had reached an all-time high of $50 million.

The attractive economic picture gave an edge to Williams when campaigning for 1976 general elections began, but most observers billed the race — contested by 11 parties — as the most decisive in the 64-year-old Prime Minister's career.

No one suggested that Williams, first elected in 1956, would lose the election, but several experts, including some PNM insiders, conceded he might have to rule within a coalition.

Various opposition parties attacked the government for the traditional reasons of high unemployment, inefficient public services and corruption in government, but all united in their opposition to the way the PNM rammed Trinidad's new republican constitution through parliament in August.

"The constitution, the culmination of a five-year reform project, officially ended Trinidad's ties to the British monarchy and provided for the replacement of London's appointed Governor-general with an elected figurehead president.

The opposition charged that the government, in getting its own constitution ratified, had ignored the recommendations of a commission charged with drafting it.

60 Per Cent Vote
But even with the controversy going full blast, the election came off without a hitch as some 300,000 persons — about 60 percent of the electorate cast ballots.

The results were a surprise. Williams, far from succumbing to opposition pressure, swept 24 of the 36 house seats for a two-thirds majority.

Even more surprising was the collapse of the Democratic Action Congress, a major opposition party, which only won two seats.

But the most significant development was the emergence of the Marxist-Leninist United Labor Front, a worker-oriented party led by militant trade unionists, among them Raffique Shah, an ex-army lieutenant and one of the leaders of the 1970 army revolt.

Labor Front Gains
The Labor Front won ten senate seats to create an effective opposition and promise an effective counterweight to Williams centrist policies.

Lloyd Best, leader of the liberal left Tapia House movement which won nothing in the elections contended that voters split along traditional racial lines with blacks backing the PNM and east Indians, Trinidad's other major ethnic group, supporting the ULF.

The Barbados Advocate-News, while noting the emergence of the Labor Front, called Williams' victory "almost contemptuous," in a tribute to the dominance exerted by the 64-year-old leader over two decades.

In fact, most observers regarded the results as something of an electoral triumph, particularly after the 1971 non-campaign.

While Williams won a mandate, the ULF gained stature as a legitimate left-wing opposition force. And the entrance of Shah and other militants into the political spotlight showed that the wounds of 1970, though not fully healed, are starting to scab over.

Islands' Jobless
However, the picture is not completely rosy. One out of every six Trinidadians is unemployed and 4,000 persons leave the island every year seeking better economic opportunities and relief from the islands' 13 per cent inflation rate.

The rise of the ULF has been accompanied by a rise in labor unrest throughout the country. In 1975 job actions cost Trinidad some 800,000 man days of work, an eight-fold increase in two years.

Most opposition parties — with the ULF in the forefront — regard foreign domination of the economy as Trinidad's major problem. The ULF manifesto claimed that the "bulk of our natural resources is owned and controlled by the foreigners," the ULF election manifesto said. "What is not controlled by the foreigners is controlled by a capitalist elite comprising a mere five per cent of the population."

Buy Shell Trinidad
The PNM has launched an accelerated program to increase Trinidadian participation in the economy, buying out Shell Trinidad for $93.6 million in 1974 and staging negotiations with Texaco on partial purchase of that company's assets. The future scope of these projects is still blurred, but the ULF's presence in the house is expected to exert some influence.

But despite its troubles, Trinidad and Tobago, is one of the sunnier spots in a Caribbean clouded by a slumping tourist industry and skyrocketing energy costs.

It is the only island in the Caribbean with a favorable balance of trade and one of the few still without a population problem. As long as the oil flows, it should continue to enjoy a place in the sun.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford has signed into law a bill to preserve some 15,000 acres of the Congaree Swamp in the South Carolina midlands as a national monument.

The President's signature ended a 22-year campaign by conservationists in the state to save the huge swamp, considered by many to be the east coast equal to the redwood forests of California.

"Earlier in our history the southeast of the United States was covered with forest," Ford said in a statement at the bill-signing Monday. "But the remarkable industrial progress in that area along with logging operations has changed much of the landscape.

"The greatest remaining concentration of virgin hardwood forest and riverbottom land is now the Congaree Swamp," he added.

"By officially coming within the National Park Service, this forest and its unique ecological system will be preserved not just for this generation, but for many generations to come," the President said.

The new law authorizes the immediate expenditure of $35.5 million to buy the land known as the Beidler Tract. It is owned by the Beidler family of Chicago.
