Carter, Ford Campaigns To Stress 7 Big States

By ROBERT CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

With eight days until harvest time, the presidential candidates are taking their scythes where the hay grows thickest.

The political hay is in seven of the nation's largest states, which both camps consider vital for victory and still winnable by either man.

Voters in those states — California, New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas — will be seeing a lot of Republicans Gerald R. Ford and Bob Dole and Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale in the week ahead. Among them, those voters control 207 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

Ford opened a $4-million media campaign Sunday. It will be the centerpiece of his stretch campaign, and it will be directed at six of those seven states.

He also spoke today about inflation during time bought on the Mutual Radio Network.

His campaign committee bought 30 minutes of prime television time in California and put the President on to be "interviewed" Sunday by a campaign volunteer, sportscaster Joe Garagiola.

Ford chose to talk about three issues in comparing himself with Carter: national defense, taxation and foreign affairs.

He said Carter's call for a cut of $5 billion to $7 billion in the defense budget would weaken the country. Ford noted that he supports production of the B1 bomber, which Carter would delay.

Ford said Carter's proposal to eliminate tax loopholes and deductions would raise taxes for middle-income Americans, a charge Carter has denied. Ford said his proposal for a tax cut would help those in middle-income brackets. The President has said he would reduce taxes with any budget surplus that accrues in the next four years.

He said Carter has no experience in foreign affairs, while he has met with 124 world leaders in two years as president.

Ford will film and show similar programs this week as he campaigns across the country in Illinois on Tuesday, Pennsylvania on Wednesday, Ohio on Thursday and New York on Sunday. New Jersey television markets will be covered by the New York and Pennsylvania programs.

Carter will cross the country in the other direction. Today was his last day of rest at home in Plains, Ga., prior to the voting. He was scheduled to head north and then west, finishing the campaign in Texas on Sunday and California next Monday.

The visit home gave Carter a chance to attend a session of the men's Bible class at Plains Baptist Church.

Carter is still front-runner in the campaign, according to a batch of polls taken for newspapers and magazines and published over the weekend. But his lead is narrow.

A national survey for Time magazine by the firm of Yankelevich, Skelly and White showed Carter with 48 per cent, Ford with 44 and 8 per cent undecided.

Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report magazines surveyed the states to see how the electoral vote total might divide. Newsweek found Carter solidly leading for 83 votes and in the lead for another 225, which would give him 38 more than he needs to win.

U.S. News and World Report's survey showed Carter leading for 244 votes and Ford for 90, with the rest too close to call.

A poll taken for The Associated Press immediately after Friday's final presidential debate by Chilton Research Service found that 49.0 per cent of those surveyed were leaning to Ford and 44.9 per cent to Carter. But The AP sample found a disproportionate number of older people and Republicans in the debate audience, so the sample does not necessarily reflect the views of the total electorate.

In statewide polls, Ford and

Holshouser Here To Urge Voters

Gov. Jim Holshouser, on a campaign swing through Eastern North Carolina, stopped in Greenville this morning to urge local Republicans, "encourage everybody we can to turn out and vote," in next week's general election.

Speaking at the GOP Campaign Headquarters at Five Points, Holshouser said Democrat presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter started off leading Republican Pres. Gerald Ford. "When Carter started talking," the Governor said, "things changed." Carter and Ford are "neck and neck, now," in the posse he pointed out.

"You sort of have to wonder why . . . the more he (Carter) talks, the more concerned the people get."

Holshouser said if Carter is elected president, "things could totally change over the next four years . . . see a whole change in the way of life we've known for the past 200 years." He added the country could be going down a road to socialism with Carter.

Holshouser said Carter supports repeal of the right-to-work law and supports organized farm labor. "That's a lot of reason for farmers in Eastern North Carolina to be concerned."

The Governor noted, "Gerald Ford is a decent, honest fellow . . . doing a good job." Ford, Holshouser continued, "is making us proud again. He's letting us hold our heads up again."

He noted that only 48 per cent of the registered voters are expected to cast ballots in Tuesday's election. "That represents the biggest danger. Democracy doesn't work unless people get out and vote," he emphasized. "Encourage everybody we can to turn out and vote," he said to the Republican workers present. "We're right there at the crossroads now."

"Do a good job between now and Tuesday," Holshouser urged.

In addition to urging support for Pres. Ford's re-election, Holshouser — without mentioning any Republican by name — urged support for Republican candidates for Governor and other Council of State offices.

"I don't want to be the last Republican Governor in this Century," he said, referring to the fact that he is the first

Sadat Opens Arab Summit

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat opened an Arab summit conference today to ratify the latest cease-fire agreement in the Lebanese civil war and to try to figure out how to make it work.

Sadat called on Lebanese of all factions to settle their differences through peaceful dialogue. He also urged that the Palestine Liberation Organization be bolstered in its struggle against Israel.

Today's meeting of the 21 Arab League members was called to approve the peace agreement reached last Monday in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, and to make plans for the 30,000-man Arab peacekeeping force provided for in the agreement.

The cease-fire was supposed to take effect throughout Lebanon last Thursday morning. But Christian forces have continued their drive to clear the Palestinian from the Arkoub area of southeast Lebanon, along the Israeli border.

The Christians said the Palestinians would not be allowed back in the border zone from which they raided Israel before the civil war began. But that violates a key provision of the Riyadh pact, which calls for observance of the 1969 Cairo agreement restricting the Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon to their refugee camps and the Arkoub.

Israel also has vowed that it will not allow the guerrillas to return to their former bases in the border area. It has been supplying arms to the Christian forces north of the border.

A Christian militia commander on the Lebanese-Israeli frontier, Louis Hasrouni, told a reporter that the Arab leaders were putting up a front when they talked about enforcing the 1969 Cairo agreement.

"It's all just talk," he said. The Riyadh meeting was attended by Yasir Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the presidents of Syria, Lebanon and Egypt, and the rulers of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

The agreement in effect approved Syria's military intervention in the Lebanese war to prevent the Christians being overrun.

Confident New Chairman Accepts Peking's Cheers

CHAIRMAN ACKNOWLEDGES APPLAUSE — Hua Kuo-feng, making his first public appearance as the successor to Mao Tse-tung, acknowledges applause from a reported one million Chinese assembled in Peking Sunday. (AP Wirephoto from Hsinhua).

By ROBERT LIU
Associated Press Writer

HONG KONG (AP) — Hua Kuo-feng, appearing relaxed and confident, made his first public appearance as China's new leader before a million Chinese in Peking, who cheered him and applauded condemnations of his radical rivals.

The rally Sunday was staged in the great square before the Tien An Men — the Gate of Heavenly Peace. China-watchers in Hong Kong studying a telecast were struck by the pre-dominance of military uniforms.

Hua, elected to succeed Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the Chinese Communist party — China's highest office — wore a military uniform himself. This was considered a possible indication of the present importance of the military, who outnumber civilians on the party Politburo seven to five.

Observers in Hong Kong also noted that Hua and the other leaders smilingly chatted among themselves while speakers denounced Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and three other radical members of the Politburo. This was in marked contrast to the rigid formality of similar rallies at which Mao presided.

Hua was flanked on the rostrum by Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying, 77, and Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien, 71, considered the man most likely to succeed Hua as premier. However, a Peking broadcast of the rally continued to identify Hua by the title of premier as well as the two new ones he inherited from Mao, party chairman and head of the party's military commission.

The announcer on the telecast frequently coupled Hua and Yeh together, leading to speculation that the two might head a collective leadership.

This speculation was reinforced by the absence of any expression from the throng of wishes for a long life for Hua, who is 57. Observers said this could be due to a desire on Hua's part to discourage attempts to build a personality cult around him.

Hua did not speak at the rally. The chief speaker was the mayor of Peking, Wu Teh, who told the crowd that Mao before his death on Sept. 9 personally selected Hua to succeed him as chairman of the party.

Wu said shortly after Mao named Hua premier and first deputy party chairman last April, "Chairman Mao wrote to comrade Hua Kuo-feng in his own handwriting, 'With you in charge, I'm at ease,' which expressed his boundless trust in comrade Hua Kuo-feng."

Wu said the "gang of four" — Chiang Ching and her three radical allies on the Politburo — tried to thwart Mao's wishes by making Miss Chiang the party chairman.

"While Chairman Mao was seriously ill and after he passed away," Wu continued, "the anti-party clique of Wang Hung-yen, Chang Chun-chiao, Chiang Ching and Yao Wen-yuan hastily seized the opportunities and attempted to usurp top party and state leadership."

Humphreys Up, Shaking Hands

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., is up and about and making daily hand-shaking tours at the hospital in New York City where he was operated on Oct. 7 for removal of a cancerous bladder.

"It's a bit like a political convention," his Washington doctor, Edgar Berman, said Sunday, describing the walks during which Humphrey wears a 20-year-old blue and white bathrobe.

majority rule. Mugabe says he speaks for most of the guerrillas battling Smith's government. He and Nkomo vowed in arrival statements Sunday to step up the guerrilla war in Rhodesia unless there is a swift and complete transfer of power from the country's 278,000 whites to its 6.4 million blacks.

LONG WAIT FOR TV

I bought a color tv from J.C. Penney in April, 1975. I carried it back to the Greenville store in June of 1976 to get it repaired. When I took it home, it worked two hours. I took it back in and they said they'd fix it without any charge the second time. It's been there since June. I can't go along with this long a delay. They tell me they've sent it to another store and that they're having problems getting parts. B.S.

Penney's Store Manager Fred Baumann said he does not blame you for being perturbed about having to wait so long for your tv set to be repaired. He said his store has loaned you first a black and white and then a color tv to use in the meantime, though.

After our call he checked with the Atlanta office which sends out parts and learned that the parts needed to fix your tv had finally been mailed out to the Kinston repair center which serves the Greenville store. He promised to keep tabs on your set and said he'd asked the Kinston service manager to get it back to the Greenville store as soon as possible. About a week later he called us to say you have picked up the tv. We haven't been able to contact you by phone, but hope you are pleased.

Rhodesian Factions Agree To End Jealousies

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — All four Rhodesian black nationalist factions say they are ready to bury old jealousies in a united negotiating effort aimed at putting a quick end to white minority rule in Rhodesia. Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole said today they will present a united front with rival nationalists Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe against white Prime Minister Ian Smith at the Rhodesia conference set to open Thursday.

They spoke after Nkomo and Mugabe announced they hoped to bring Muzorewa and Sithole into a "Patriotic Front" they have formed to push for black majority rule as quickly as possible.

In Salisbury, meanwhile, security force headquarters said six Africans were killed since Friday in incidents related to the guerrilla war. A communiqué said two were guerrillas, one was an African youth running with guerrillas and three were curfew breakers.

Muzorewa founded the shortlived African National Council in 1975 and now leads a splinter group outside Rhodesia. He said the world will be "shocked" to learn how united the previously squabbling four leaders are at the conference.

Sithole claims that he rather than Mugabe is the rightful leader of the Zimbabwe African National Union. He demanded immediate "decolonization" of Rhodesia by Britain, which still has legal responsibility for the country.

"We have had an 86-year apprenticeship," Sithole said in urging immediate black

Preparing For Situation They Hope Never Occurs

Police and night-club owners have been making special plans to cope with a situation they hope never develops — the re-occurrence of last year's Halloween riot in Downtown Greenville.

Chief Glenn Cannon explained that special procedures and plans have been developed to cope with any civil disturbance that may occur, this year.

The procedures, the chief noted, "reflect the best planning available for the risky and unpredictable task of protecting life and property..." with the first priority being, "the prevention of loss of life and bodily injury to non-rioters."

The second priority, he said, is to "prevent loss of life and bodily injury to rioters."

Noting that "restraint would be emphasized and practiced," Cannon said that non-lethal enforcement methods would always be used unless the officer is required to use deadly force in self-defense or to prevent probable loss of life to innocent persons.

Saying the special procedures are designed to be utilized in connection with any civil disturbance — not just on Halloween or in the downtown business district — the chief explained that the goal of the special plans is "to foster future prevention as well as to facilitate effective restoration of public order... in the event of a disturbance."

Stressing again that minimum force would be used by officers in handling civil disturbances, Cannon said no mass arrests would be made. Instead, arrests would be made on a selective basis.

In addition to criminal charges being brought on a selective basis, the Chief said, officers have been trained to be aware of the elements of civil torts against them and against the city by criminal offenders. Cannon said this has been done "so that these offenders can be sued in civil court for their damages."

Cannon said the plans, in addition to outlining the actions of police officers, also detail the proper use of chemical riot control agents; use of pressurized water from fire fighting equipment; and the use of "respected and neutral citizens such as pastors, lawyers and professors," as observers.

"So they can serve as witnesses to the mood of the mob and potential threat of the situation once a disturbance begins."

The plan also provides for the Mayor to proclaim a state of emergency; for an intelligence force to infiltrate the mob to determine the leaders and plans; for documentation (both motion and still photos) of the scene and of arrests made; and for special tactics to neutralize the possible use of weapons, explosives or other unusual devices by members of the mob.

"We hope there will be no need for the civil disturbance plan," Cannon emphasized. "But if it is needed, we'll be more able to handle the situation more effectively."

Cannon noted that the Greenville Nightclub Association is making special plans for the Homecoming weekend that might help forestall any trouble.

Joey McGroarty, spokesman for the nightclub group, said club owners have asked the city to work with them to insure a "fun and safe weekend for students, guests, and residents of Greenville," and have received the city's cooperation.

McGroarty said club owners will sponsor the "First Annual Halloween Music Festival" — a noon to midnight Sunday event 10 miles from Greenville, near Stokes.

The event, he said, will feature six bands playing non-stop during the 12-hour period and a $250 first prize for, "the best — or worst — Halloween costume."

McGroarty said the city has agreed to block off Cotanche Street between Reade Circle and Fourth Street and Fifth Street between Reade and Evans Streets on Saturday night.

He explained that the downtown clubs will operate as usual Friday night and will be open "until our regular hours" Saturday night. "But we have decided to stop our refreshment sales at midnight," Saturday, McGroarty explained.

Sunday, he said, in view of the music festival, the clubs will be closed.

McGroarty said, too, that each club manager and four of his employees will be outside their establishments

"to help you have a safe and enjoyable evening." The club representatives, he said, will be wearing distinctive markings, and "they'll expect you to conduct yourself as ladies and gentlemen."

The club representative emphasized, "We are doing all this out of concern for you. It's your Homecoming and we want to show the City, people of Greenville, and ourselves that we can have a really nice weekend and a really good time... help us and yourself."

Danny Bercini, another nightclub official said club operators will do everything possible to create a "festive atmosphere" for the Halloween weekend and that club operators "hope everyone stays pretty much within the law."

Bercini said, "the city has done everything they can do to prepare for a safe weekend," but indicated it is the responsibility of the public to cooperate with city officials and the club operators.

Will Speak At Services

The Rev. R. N. Hood will be the guest speaker at revival services at Hodges Chapel Pentecostal Holiness Church in Chocowinity October 25-31. The services will begin each night at 7:30 p.m.

REV. R. N. HOOD

Rev. Hood is the former pastor of the Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville. He is now pastoring the Bizzell Grove Pentecostal Holiness Church of Princeton.

He has been associated with the Evangelism Department of the North Carolina Conference for several years. He served as Conference Evangelist for four years before becoming a full time pastor. He is presently serving as Goldsboro District Director of Evangelism and as a member of the Conference Board of Evangelism, along with his pastoral duties. Rev. Hood participated in a revival on the Mission Field of South Africa along with 18 other ministers four years ago.

Now Medical Insurance Policies For Your Pets

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP) — Do the sometimes beastly costs of medical care for cats and dogs have you climbing a tree? A program called Medi-Pet is offering health insurance for animals.

Medi-Pet is available now only to pet owners in six counties in the San Francisco Bay area. But Paul E. Murray, the man who created it, predicts it eventually will be offered nationwide.

"My dream is to be able to expand it around the world,"

Murray declared in an interview. He said the program has been in existence about a year and has more than a hundred subscribers.

Insurance is available only to cats and dogs between the ages of 16 months and 7 years. Murray said the older and younger pets aren't accepted because they are more vulnerable to disease.

For one pet, the owner pays a $68 annual premium, but the cost per pet is lower if more than one animal is covered. If the insured pet is injured or gets sick, its owner can take it to one of 25 to 30 affiliated veterinary hospitals in the area.

"For example, one of our members owns a St. Bernard who had all four legs broken when it was hit by a bus," said Murray, a former Bank of America vice president. "The cost of the dog's treatment was $880, and it was fully covered by the plan."

There can be additional costs. For example, if an animal requires surgery, the owner is billed $4. Routine checkups are included in the program.

Murray said everyone gains from the Medi-Pet project. He said it means better health for pets, savings for pet owners, and more business for veterinarians, who he estimates currently operate at 65 to 70 per cent of capacity. Murray said he's not making any profits yet, but hopes to.

Murray, himself the owner of a 13-year-old Siamese cat, said many of the 60,000 dogs and cats that are destroyed each day would be kept by their owners except for the cost of medical care.

Another feature of the Medi-Pet plan is Animalert. A 10-digit number is painlessly imprinted on the animal's ear. The number is recorded in Animalert's computer, and if the pet is lost, the SPCA or local pound can call Animalert with the number to trace the pet owner.

Corrections Noted In Voters' Guides

Voters Service Guides covering candidates for state offices in the General Election Nov. 2 compiled by Margaret Wirth of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, and published by the North Carolina League of Women Voters as a public service to the citizens of the state are now being distributed by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters.

These comprehensive information sheets, titled "State Candidates' Questionnaires" include the candidates of both major parties for Governor, Lt. Governor, Secretary of State,

State Treasurer, State Auditor, Commissioner of Insurance, Commissioner of Labor, Supt. of Public Instruction, Attorney General, and Commissioner of Labor, Supt. of Public Instruction, Attorney General, and Commissioner of Agriculture. They contain biographical information and answers to questions composed by the League pertaining to each specific office. Due to an error in the printing, the following corrections are to be noted:

Associate Justice Supreme Court Candidate: Samuel A. Howard. Republican. Raleigh. Age 64. Education: J.D. Wake Forest University Law School. Occupation: Attorney.

Attorney General Candidate: Edward L. Powell. Republican. Raleigh. Age 35. Education: A.B., UNC Chapel Hill, J.D. Wake Forest University Law School. Occupation: N.C. Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The Questionnaires are available at the Greenville public library and through the League of Women Voters, P.O. Box 1551, Greenville, N.C. 27834. The League of Women Voters does not endorse or oppose any candidates but urges all citizens to exercise their choice by voting on Election Day.

Find Two Inside Office Building

Two men were arrested on breaking and entering charges by Greenville Police early this morning after they were found inside the Carolina Sales office building at the intersection of Evans and 14th Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Jimmy Louis Clemon, 19, of 600 C. West 14th St. and William Earl Little, 18, of 405 West 14th St. were discovered inside the building by officers who responded to a burglar alarm, at 5:27 a.m.

Entrance to the building was gained by breaking out a glass door, Cannon said.

Will Address Pitt LWV

Ken Taylor and Herman G. Moeller of the East Carolina Department of Social Work and Corrections Services will speak to the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and Fourteenth Streets.

Overcrowding and idleness in the prison system will be discussed. The public is invited.

Arrest Youths For Break-In

Joseph Earl Williams, 16 of 404A Darden Dr. and Jerry Coward, 17 of 609 Ford St. were charged with breaking, entering and larceny following an incident at Pollard's Grocery on Wade Street yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the two allegedly broke a window at the store and took drinks, cigarettes, cookies, cakes and some pennies from the store's cash register.

The two were arrested about 7:15 p.m., shortly after the break-in occurred. Cannon noted.

The items allegedly taken from the store were recovered.

Five Escaped Women's Prison; Two Picked Up

RALEIGH (AP) — Five inmates of the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women escaped Sunday night, but two were later recaptured in Fayetteville.

Officials said the five slipped away after a religious service at the prison and made their getaway by climbing a fence.

They said Kathy Sue Stokes, 17, of Raleigh and Ruth Barry, 18, of Fayetteville were picked up in Fayetteville.

The other escapees were identified at Joyce Stackhouse, 23, of Angier, Marsha White, 25, of Fayetteville and Debra Nelson, 16 of Jamaica, New York.

Stokes was serving a life sentence for murder, Barry 16-25 years for armed robbery, Stackhouse five to seven years for voluntary manslaughter, White 18 to 24 months for forgery and Nelson nine years for armed robbery.

"He is fine, fully conscious, alert and out of danger," said Dr. J.K. Talwar on Sunday.

DEER HUNTING — Potter County, in Pennsylvania, is known as deer country during archery season when one out of every 10 deer taken falls in the county. But hunters aren't having much luck this season because the apple crop which normally brings deer from woods into orchards, has been poor. The young hunter above is an exception, not the rule, this season. (AP Wirephoto)

Ex-King 'Alert' After Overdose

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Palden Thondup Namgyal — the ex-king of Sikkim who reigned with his American-born queen, former New York debutante Hope Cooke — has recovered from an overdose of barbiturates, according to one of his doctors.

"He is fine, fully conscious, alert and out of danger," said Dr. J.K. Talwar on Sunday.

Namgyal, 53, was flown to Calcutta on Tuesday after he was found unconscious in his palace in Gangtok, the capital of the former Himalayan kingdom that became an Indian state last year.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

BETHEL—Miss Mary Charles Whitehurst and Howard Lee Evans were united in marriage Sunday at four o'clock in the afternoon in the Bethel United Methodist Church. The Rev. Ellis Bedsworth performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Robert Harold Staton. Mrs. Ted Lee Bissett of Spring Hope sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee," "Through The Years," and for the benediction, "O Perfect Love."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cadet Whitehurst Jr. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lee Roy Evans and the late Mr. Evans of Whiteville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight satin and alencon lace, styled with an empire waistline and featuring a scooped neckline and bishop sleeves. An alencon lace overlay enhanced with a jeweled medallion was featured on the bodice and sleeve top. The full skirt, bordered with scalloped lace, fell to chapel length.

Her full length mantilla of imported illusion was applied with re-embroidered alencon lace and was attached to a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, white sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of sun gold and tangerine chiffon, designed with a mandarin neckline and flowing kabuki sleeves. She wore yellow cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of sky blue quiana, styled with an empire waistline and a scooped neck edged in lace. A matching chiffon jacket completed her ensemble. She wore a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. William Cadet Whitehurst Sr., paternal grandmother of the bride, chose a formal length gown of silver blue quiana. Mrs. Charles Kenneth Beatty, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a formal gown of aqua chiffon. Both grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

The bride's sister, Miss Suzanne Whitehurst, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lou Whitehurst and Mrs. William Alton Moody III of Bethel, Miss Janet Hammond of Kinston, Miss Robin Byington of Spruce Pine and Miss Jean Evans of Whiteville, sister of the bridegroom. They wore slip styled gowns of wine knit, designed with a fitted empire bodice of boucle knit edged in crocheted lace. The full skirts were fashioned of wine knit. The gowns were complemented by short jackets of boucle styled with long fitted sleeves that were edged with matching lace. They carried cascade bouquets of pink fuji pom poms, American beauty roses and eucalyptus tied with loops of pink velvet.

David Earl Evans, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. The groomsmen were John Kenneth Hill of Durham, Philip Sloan of Whiteville, Thomas Scott Evans of Whiteville, brother of the bridegroom, William Kenneth Whitehurst, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Wakely Goins of Wadesboro.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst. Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Receiving guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Van Taylor Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Leon James Whitehurst Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Eugene Riddick.

The refreshment table, covered with white satin, was centered with the wedding cake.

Silver candelabra holding epergnes of pink and American beauty roses were flanking the five tiered cake.

Mrs. Harry Cameron Mauney and Mrs. Amos Ray Evans, aunts of the bride, assisted in serving.

On Saturday, the bride and her attendants were honored at luncheon by Mrs. Robert S. Messner and Mrs. J. Con Lanier at the home of Mrs. Messner.

On Saturday evening, the bridal party and out-of-town guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Candlewick Inn. Hosts were friends of the bride.

On Sunday at noon, the bridal party and out-of-town guests were entertained at a brunch at the Candlewick Inn, given by Mr. and Mrs. Leon James Whitehurst Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Ray Evans, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cameron Mauney.

The bride attended Meredith College. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Following a wedding trip to Vermont, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Should Reader Return Old Stolen Goods?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How does one go about marketing a genuine Gutenberg Bible? It was stolen from a German museum during World War I by an American soldier who has been dead for many years.

Is it still considered "stolen goods"? Or is it possible to sell it legitimately?

HAVE ONE

DEAR HAVE: Regardless of how long ago the article was stolen, it's still stolen property and cannot be sold legitimately. And since you know that it was stolen from a museum in Germany, you have a moral obligation to return it to the German government.

The German Embassy in Washington, D.C., would deeply appreciate hearing from you. I urge you to contact them.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19 and have a bum for a boyfriend. Ken and I love each other very much and plan on getting married some day, but I don't want a bum for a husband.

He's 25, but very immature in many ways. Ken has never kept a job for more than three months. He quits and lays around collecting unemployment. When I get on his back because I practically have to support him, he gets another job, but it never lasts very long.

When I lecture him about his laziness, he says if I really loved him I wouldn't try to change him. Abby, I DO love him, but I don't want to support him the rest of his life.

I'm very ambitious. I've worked since I was 16, and keep getting promotions. What should I do? Say goodbye to the only guy I've ever loved, or accept him as he is and quit trying to change him?

"19 AND AMBITIOUS"

DEAR "19": I think you really want to break up with Ken, but you want me to make the decision for you, which says something about your own immaturity. I can't see this "bum" being anything more than a bum, married or single. And until you can, don't waste any more time on him.

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on the American serviceman who wanted to marry a Korean girl? You advised him to talk to his Army chaplain.

That was a bum steer, for sure. I spent five years in Korea as an American G.I., and I've yet to see an Army chaplain who would help a G.I. marry a girl who wasn't round-eyed, Anglo-Saxon and Christian.

It's true that many Korean girls have faked love for American soldiers just to get a trip to America and citizenship, but they were mostly prostitutes. Many Korean girls are honest, hard-working and loving and far superior to American women in more ways than I can count. Sign this...

Miss Janice Carol Cobb Weds Robert Wright Harris Jr.

The Sharpsburg Baptist Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Janice Carol Cobb and Robert Wright Harris Jr. The ceremony was performed by Rev.

Harvey Coppedge. Mrs. Jean Joyner, organist, and Miss Karen Smith, soloist, presented a program of wedding music.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ty Cobb of Elm City, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled with sculptured floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was styled with a sheer overlay featuring miniature Venise lace rows in a radiating design from the high neckline bordered in the sculptured Venise lace. The long fitted sleeves extending from the double caplets featured flared cuffs edged in miniature Venise lace. A similar pattern trimmed the hemline and attached chapel train with the sculptured floral lace appliques enhancing the skirt and train.

She wore a bridal hat overlaid in silk organza edged in the miniature lace and trimmed in the floral lace appliques.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Christine Harris of Spring Hope, and the late Mr. Robert Wright Harris.

Miss Amy Cobb of Elm City was the honor attendant. She wore a pink voile dress trimmed with white lace insertion. The gown had a square neckline and a ruffled hemline. She wore a pink picture hat accented with lace and tulle.

The best man was Tom Bardin of Columbia, S.C., and ushers included Neal Cobb of Rocky Mount, brother of the bride, Steve Bass of Nashville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Dan Harris of Spring Hope, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mark Smith of Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of ECU with a degree in food, nutrition and institutional management. She has been employed with the Pitt County Schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College with a degree in business administration. He is employed with Cargill as regional sales manager.

The couple will reside in Fayetteville, Ark.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

The serving table featured an arrangement of roses, carnations, mums and lilies-of-the-Valley in shades of pink and white.

Kitchen Sponge Enters Surgery

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The housewife's common plastic sponge is getting to be as useful in medicine as it is in the kitchen.

To form these sponges, polyvinyl alcohol is converted into a sponge-like substance by foaming agents and then hardened with formaldehyde. The material is inert, compressible by 10-15 to 1 when wet and has a plastic memory so it can resume its original shape when not under pressure. It is compatible with human tissues and the body won't reject it.

The latest application in medicine was devised by three radiologists at the University of Minnesota Hospitals here. Tiny amounts of the sponge are placed on the tip of a catheter and, under x-ray control, inserted in a blood vessel to halt bleeding or to rob a tumor of its blood supply.

Physicians have also used the plastic sponge material as a skin substitute in burn patients, as a nonsurgical closure of a heart channel in newborn babies and as a synthetic material in the early days of heart surgery.

Women Shunned In Politics

By MICHAEL O'REGAN BONN (UPI) — West Germany has more women than men, but despite their preponderance, political life seems to have neglected them.

Fifty four per cent of those who voted in October's general election were women, but only 7.5 per cent of the total of 496 deputies in parliament will be female.

A woman member of parliament on an election campaign recently complained that women greeting her at their front doors refused to speak to her themselves and referred her instead to their husbands.

The result of a Common Market survey of 9,500 persons showed that 44 per cent of West Germans put their political trust in men rather than in women. Germany thereby topped the list of countries intolerant to women politicians.

Four years ago, women constituted 5.8 per cent of Parliament. In the course of the legislative period the figure rose to 6.9 per cent, or 36 women. The new parliament will have 39 women in it.

Because the Christian Democratic Union emerged the strongest single political party, the country will lose a woman as its second strongest person politically. Social Democrat Annemarie Renger must now vacate the position as the first woman president of parliament, which she has held since 1972. Party chairman Helmut Kohl says he will appoint Rainer Barzel, a man and former chancellor candidate, to replace her.

When the new parliament convenes Dec. 14, 20 women will represent the Christian Democrats and 19 the Social Democratic-liberal coalition.

Germany had its greatest share of women in parliament in 1957 under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Parliament consisted of 9.2 per per cent women.

Today, the Free Democratic Party has the highest proportion of women deputies of all the parties. It has 10 per cent women, compared with under eight per cent by the other parties.

One week before the polls, Stern magazine rated Heidi Wiecek Zeul, known as "Red Heidi" for her left-wing views and red hair, as one of the 28 most popular persons in the country. But her Social Democratic Party effectively denied her a parliamentary seat by placing her 100th on its list of candidates to be voted indirectly.

Her party, in coalition with the liberals, has introduced several measures since 1972 aimed at greater women's equality. The measures include amendments to the abortion laws and divorce reforms that remove guilt rulings. A guilt ruling proclaiming a woman responsible for a marriage break-up used to exclude the woman from alimony claims.

The oldest woman member of parliament Dec. 14 will be Lenotte von Bothmer, 61, a Social Democrat. The youngest will become Ingrid Matthaeus, a 31-year-old judge and former member of the Free Democratic Youth Auxilliary.

Mrs. Matthaeus, who has pledged herself to supporting the youth and women, blamed the decline in women's political participation on a "self-generating process in which women lack female political models to emulate."

She added that she saw a political disillusionment among women since this year's abortion amendments brought less than women had hoped for.

Tobacco Problems Now Larger

A problem that seems to be looming larger all the time is the big amount of lugs, priming and nondescript tobacco which is being taken on under government loan by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

Bill Lanier, director of the tobacco and peanut division of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, told a tobacco meeting that the price support formula "worked well until the 1974 crop, but during the last two years it seems to be leading us to a serious problem."

The government officials see the price support system as being in jeopardy and they urged growers and warehousemen to reassess the support system.

According to Fred Bond, executive director of Stabilization Corp., some 85 percent of the 521 million pounds of tobacco currently being held is from downstalk.

U. S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee said, "I have always advocated the policy of trying to correct the program before it gets out of hand." He made no recommendations but said, "I would want folks who produce tobacco to be those primarily involved and I want them to be the principal originators of the guidelines."

The answer seems to be lower support prices for the downstalk grades which the industry doesn't want, with possibly higher supports for the more desirable leaf. This, of course might not be desirable to the tobacco producer, but it will certainly be better than seeing the tobacco price support program which has worked so well fall apart.

The tobacco industry can't afford to see the support program bogged down. There are simply too many enemies of tobacco who would look for any excuse to throw tobacco supports out altogether.

It is going to be up to those who grow and market tobacco to get together and determine a solution to this vexing problem. It won't be easy but it's got to be done.

Confusion Over Medicaid

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Isolated tales of phony treatment centers and outright ripoffs by recipients or providers have captured the attention of the public in U. S. Congressional investigations into the Medicaid dilemma.

But the truth is that such abuses are, while disturbing, uncommon, and represent only a tiny fraction of the billions of dollars being spent on medical care for the needy.

Nationally, Medicaid has grown from a cost of less than $2 billion in 1966, to $14 billion in 1976.

North Carolina's situation has tracked that spiral: from $94.5 million when started in 1970-71 to $218.9 million last year. Projections call for spending in North Carolina to pass $300 million per year in the next two fiscal periods.

Phillip J. Kirk, Jr., and his staff at the Department of Human Resources are presently compiling for the General Assembly a slate of options to try to bring the runaway medical care program under control.

What To Cut?

But where can the cuts be made? That is the knotty problem which will confront assemblymen when the Legislature convenes next January.

There are no signs that abuse drains any sizable amount of money from the program in North Carolina. A Peer Review Commission regularly reviews claims and bills to guarantee service are both necessary and adequate, hospitals, nursing homes, providers all come under regular scrutiny.

At the bottom, then, there are only two areas in which effective controls can be implemented: eligibility, and costs.

Health care costs, across the board, have increased by 25.3 per cent in the past two years; while the consumer price index logged increases of only about 16.4 per cent elsewhere. In 1965, the average person spent $198 for medical care; the average is now more than $547. The average hospital stay, over a 10-year period, has climbed from $311 to $1,017; a physician's office visit up from $12.80 to $19.55.

But can, or will, the North Carolina General Assembly attempt to tackle the volatile issue of what health providers charge? Highly unlikely, observers agree. That politically and philosophically hot potato will be left alone.

Eligibility, then, becomes the only major area in which cuts can be made.

Most Liberal

The 1969 General Assembly adopted one of the most comprehensive Medicaid programs in the nation — all mandatory services are naturally included, as are all the possible options. Not only are welfare eligibles covered, but the "medically needy" who have incomes, but would be financially wiped out by a major medical bill, are covered.

The state is also liberal in covering dental work, glasses, drugs, Chiropractic or Naturopathy treatment.

Yet the most significant part of Medicaid spending goes to patients in hospitals ($55.1 million or 29 cents of every dollar); nursing homes ($25 million); and intermediate care facilities ($23.3 million) for a total of $103.6 million from the Medicaid budget of $218.9 million.

Other major spending areas are physicians, $22.2 million; dentists, $8 million; prescription drugs, $25.4 million.

A number of states are moving to place limits on services and restrict eligibility. The more generous program in North Carolina has resulted in expenditures generally 40 per cent higher than other states in the region.

But after all the debate which is certain to come in the the 1977 General Assembly; after all the charts and graphs depict the millions and billions; after all the charges and counter-charges are finished, one big question will remain:

Who can afford to pay $3,000 for a month in the hospital, or $700 per month for nursing home care, month after month?

THE INSIDE REPORT

Abzug Cost Jimmy Votes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ATLANTA — Rep. Bella Abzug of New York, terrible — tempered gladiator of the Democratic party's far-left wing, was surreptitiously unleashed by Jimmy Carter's political high command in a way that could only hurt his candidacy — a strange decision raising doubts about the Carter campaign and the administration that may follow it.

With just a month left before what promises to be an extremely close election, top Carter aides authorized an Abzug barnstorming tour across the country in Carter's behalf. Included were some areas where her ideology and personality could cost Carter badly needed votes. Not one word of notification went out to Democratic leaders or even the Carter coordinators in the states affected.

When word did get out, screams of outrage cancelled so much of the Abzug tour that it became a pale shadow of its former self. Nevertheless, questions persist: Do Carter's closest advisers really consider Battling Bella a mainstream Democrat? Is this a dark preview of the true ideological inclinations of a Carter administration?

As much for her corrosive rhetoric as her extreme left views on national security and foreign policy, Mrs. Abzug is viewed by moderate Democrats as the type of polarizer who menaces the party's future. Consequently, there was considerable rejoicing by old-line Democrats last month when she narrowly lost the Democratic Senate primary in New York to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, a centrist and hard anti-Communist.

Shortly after the New York primary, Mrs. Abzug chatted with Carter aboard the Democratic whistlestop train and expressed her desire to get deeply involved in his campaign. Carter immediately agreed and referred her to his campaign manager, Hamilton Jordan. After a five-minute conversation, Jordan turned her over to his assistant, Landon Butler.

Whether Carter and Jordan were happy about the Abzug offer or just being polite is impossible to know. But there is no mistaking the attitude of Butler, one of the young Southern liberals who abound at Carter's 24th floor campaign headquarters here. "We think Bella can help a lot," Butler told us, "and she's very, very strong for Jimmy."

Consequently, Butler approved an Abzug barnstorming tour opening with a press conference on the Capitol steps in Washington Oct. 12 and continuing to Detroit, Milwaukee, Madison, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Buffalo. No clearance was sought from local party leaders.

Alarm bells were set off when Mrs. Abzug sent on Oct. 5 letter to all Democratic members of Congress, beginning: "Carter campaign manager Hamilton Jordan has asked me to coordinate a national barnstorming effort by members of the Senate and House in behalf of the Carter-Mondale ticket."

Her proposed itinerary particularly outraged party leaders in Washington state, where Democrats prefer the style and ideology of Sen. Henry M. Jackson. Word from the Pacific Northwest was conveyed loud and clear

Strength For Today

CHAINED TO PAUL

When St. Paul was a prisoner in Rome, he was constantly attended by a soldier, and since the custom was in those days to chain and guard his prisoner together, the great apostle and the soldier in the emperor's service were probably linked together in this fashion.

Of course a number of soldiers would stand watch by turns. We wonder what must have been their reaction, and whether any one of the group realized that his prisoner would go down in history as one of the greatest men of all time. Was any one of the guards converted to the Christian faith? Perhaps most regarded Paul as a tiresome fanatic. Others may have listened to him with a bad conscience and requested a new assignment from their centurion.

Were there any who listened to him, felt the hand of God on their hearts, and were converted? We know that there were many soldiers in the early church. What a privilege it would be to know God through the Apostle Paul!

The Unused $15 Billion

WASHINGTON — Something terrible happened in Washington last week. The federal government discovered that it was unable to spend $15 billion it had been authorized to use in the 1976 budget. Now most taxpayers would call such a happening a "windfall," but government economists call it a "shortfall" and are very distressed about it.

To find the answer I sought out my favorite government bureaucrat, Plotkin. He had just received a directive from the Office of Management and Budget that if his agency did not spend a billion dollars by January 1, Plotkin would receive a reprimand in his civil service record book.

He was drinking a bottle of Pepto Bismol when I walked in his office.

"What happened?" I asked him. "I would think that would make you happy."

"Have you ever tried to spend a billion dollars in two months?"

"I haven't," I admitted. "But my wife has."

The phone rang and Plotkin picked it up. "How many paper shredders did you buy? 1,000. What price? $75 each. Couldn't you get any for $250? Okay, buy them." He hung up. "A lousy $75,000 for paper shredders. The trouble with this agency is nobody thinks big. I told them to think of some $30 million and $50 million projects that we could fund immediately, and they come up with paper shredders."

"You do have a problem," I admitted. "Why don't you build a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier?"

"That isn't my department. I'm in charge of Asphalt Safety and Quarry Inspection. I have to spend the money in these areas. Besides the Pentagon has underspent its budget by $5 billion and they're in more trouble than I am."

"Why don't you construct a new building?" I suggested. "We're already constructing a new building," Plotkin replied. "But it's only going to cost $150 million."

"Maybe you could order a new 747 airplane to take you to regional meetings around the country."

"I thought of that, but OMB in a slump. Worse, it could give government spending a bad name.

No one has been able to come up with an explanation as to why the government has been so lax in not using up the money allotted to it.

Teddy Looking Ahead?

By STEWART POWELL
BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's campaign for a third full Senate term has all the trappings of a future run for the White House.

The Massachusetts Democrat, now 44, has unleashed a statewide crusade for a Senate seat observers feel has been safe all along. Loyalists view the effort as fresh evidence Kennedy's presidential dreams are not dead.

"We always work hard," Kennedy said last week as he swept through a string of suburban communities south of Boston. "That's the only way I know how."

And he does know how. During a stop at Quincy's St. Coletta school for the handicapped, a seven-year-old boy hugged him around the waist. Kennedy brushed the child's sandy hair and pulled him close.

"Hi, Kennedy, how are you?" asked the youngster. "You're one of the good ones."

The scale of his campaign against a modest GOP challenge from businessman Michael Robertson appears aimed beyond the borders of Massachusetts.

"A strong showing is obviously helpful" in the Senate, Kennedy says.

The 14-year Senate veteran announced two years ago a "firm, final and unconditional" decision to bypass the presidential race. His announcement sparked the free-for-all among liberals that saw Jimmy Carter emerge with the nomination.

"It was a decision for this election," Kennedy told UPI when asked if the decision was a choice for life. "I don't really plan very far into the future."

Kennedy is watching the 1976 presidential campaign from the sidelines, a far different role than he had in 1968 and 1972.

"I have indicated that if Mr. Carter asked me, I'd travel the country with him," Kennedy said.

But the former Georgia governor has not asked. "That's his decision and we respect it," Kennedy said.

The Kennedy campaign resembles in many ways the White House drives of his brothers in the 1960s. A potent blend of family, money and magic has been served to the state's 3 million voters. And it

Liability Claims Hike Prices

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — An offshoot of the consumer movement that ironically is bound to mean higher prices for retail products is the rising number of people suing companies for allegedly defective products.

Insurance officials and manufacturers compare the problem to the more publicized medical malpractice situation, in which doctors complain they cannot afford to pay the rising costs of premiums.

The trend in industry, however, is far more serious. The Conference Board, which analyzed the trend in its publication "Across The Board," estimates that one million product liability claims will be filed in 1976.

"The cost of liability coverage for nonauto-related accidents jumped from $2 billion in 1970 to $3 billion in 1974 and some estimates indicate it could reach $30 billion by 1980," it stated.

Wherever possible, the costs are being worked into the retail prices of consumer products, thus constituting an almost automatic inflationary factor.

In some instances, however, this cannot be done. Reports of insurance-induced failures are rising, and a growing number of small concerns are reporting difficulties in obtaining insurance.

"Increasingly," says The Conference Board, "smaller companies are going self-insured, a synonym for uninsured." When confronted with a product liability claim, these companies are highly vulnerable.

Nobody, aside from the relative few who obtain settlements, benefits from the situation. While insurers are obtaining higher prices for their product, they are also being forced to pay out larger amounts.

During the past 15 years, says The Conference Board, a nonprofit research organization, more than 50 product liability awards have topped $1 million.

In filing more and more claims for product-related injuries, the board states, "plaintiffs are being aided by a growing army of 'hired guns,' including doctors, engineers and economists retained by attorneys..."

Cited as another key factor is a shift in the judicial climate which reportedly makes it easier for persons to collect for product-related injuries.

"Individuals seeking damages need not prove that the manufacturer has been negligent or has violated either an express or implied warranty. The manufacturer can be held liable simply by producing what turned out to be a dangerous or defective product," the report states.

Even the negligent use of the product by the consumers isn't always a effective defense. The record shows that consumers who have improperly used products nevertheless have received sizable rewards.

The solution to the problem apparently rests with manufacturers, although there is no assurance that they can succeed. In order to reduce claims and settlements, manufacturers will have to become ingenious in devising products that are safe under almost all conditions and uses.

In other words, they are confronted with a situation which requires the production of almost idiot-proof products.

In order to accomplish this goal a considerable amount of technology that might have gone into lowering prices will have to be utilized.

Investigators Think New Trend In Organized Crime Shaping Up

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of Sicilian-born Carlo Gambino, reputedly the most powerful Mafia boss in the country, marks another turning point in the move toward a native American brand of syndicated crime, law enforcement officials say.

And investigators say the new generation of the Mafia is finding that there is more money in executive suites than on the streets.

Gambino reportedly was the pattern for the Don Corleone character in the Mario Puzo book and movie, "The Godfather." He died of a stroke Oct. 15 at 74.

"In terms of broader significance, I would look at Gambino's passing as more confirmation of the trend," says Jay C. Waldman, a deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's criminal division. "We're talking about a younger group of people now, many of them born in this country and educated here."

The influence of Mafia godfathers is waning, and younger men are taking their place, suggested Waldman, whose duties include supervising the over-all thrust of department investigations and prosecutions in the field of organized crime.

The nation's crime syndicates are moving off the streets and into corporate boardrooms because they're finding that business frauds are more rewarding than conventional racketeering, said Waldman. "These people go where the money is," he said. "There's more money to be made more quickly and with less risk in the so-called paper crimes."

In the 1970s, he said, there has been some shift in organized crime that reflects changing times and "personalities among the leadership of organized crime, and changing conditions in the country at large."

He said the old Mafia families based on ethnic and blood kinship still operate in perhaps two dozen cities. But new "groups and combinations of individuals who really transcend ethnic lines" are on the rise.

Crime syndicates are devoting less attention to traditional gambling, loan-sharking and fencing operations and turning to more lucrative frauds in-

Wants A Limit On Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Milton Friedman, winner of the 1976 Nobel Prize in Economics, says the United States needs an amendment to the constitution setting a limit to government spending.

Friedman, a professor at the University of Chicago for 28 years, appeared Sunday on the NBC program "Meet the Press."

He blamed excessive government spending, which he said amounts to 40 cents of every dollar, as the root cause of inflation and the unemployment he believes results.

(Continued from page 4) turned me down. They said it would look bad for the head of the Asphalt and Quarry Agency to fly in a bigger plane than the President of the United States. There's one idea that could save me. I'm thinking of building an asphalt pipeline from Alaska to Detroit. We could ship the asphalt by pipe instead of by ship and save the country millions of dollars.

"I didn't know Alaska had asphalt."

"It doesn't, dummy. The pipeline would ship the asphalt to Alaska."

"That should cost a billion dollars," I agreed.

Plotkin's secretary walked in. "There are six Brink's trucks downstairs with $200 million cash in them. The drivers want to know where they should put it."

Plotkin screamed, "I don't have any more room for money. My warehouses are full. Tell them to take it back to the Treasury."

The secretary said, "Treasury won't take it. They have to get rid of $3 billion by Christmas and if you don't take the money the drivers have orders to dump it on your lawn."

invest and launder the vast sums of money already made in the conventional rackets.

In some cases, he said, crime syndicates may take over a business and operate it in what appears to be a legitimate fashion. But behind the scenes, they're relying on old-fashioned stong-arm tactics and political corruption to win contracts or gain monopolies, he said.

"The common type of scheme we see is that they look for a business that is heavy with assets but also heavy with liabilities, so it can be bought for a nominal amount plus assuming the debts," he related.

"Then they don't pay the debts, quickly convert the assets to cash, and file for bankruptcy."

Through such bankruptcy frauds, stock manipulation and stock frauds, the syndicate can Evans-Novak...

(Continued from page 4) to Atlanta: the presence of Bella Abzug would be damaging in a state where the races for both President and governor are tossups; so, she is not welcome in the state of Washington.

Her visits to Seattle and Spokane were scrubbed along with most of the other proposed stops (including that debut on the Capitol steps). The bobtailed remainder of the tour, say embarrassed Carter staffers, are left-leaning enclaves where she might help take votes away from Eugene McCarthy — such as Madison, Wis.

But her actual performance in Madison Oct. 13 raises doubts about how much help Mrs. Abzug provides anywhere. While sparing of praise for Carter and promising to "keep his feet to the fire" if he is elected, she was profligate in abuse of President Ford. "Richard Nixon self-impeached himself. He gave us Gerald Ford as his revenge."

When a questioner asked who had "pulled her strings" to support Carter, she shouted back: "Nobody pulls my strings, brother, and who the hell are you?" To Mrs. Abzug, the country is "a junkpile of despair." The effectiveness of this as an antidote to Clean Gene McCarthy will be seen in Madison Nov. 2.

That Carter's political high command could believe the Abzug style would sell in Spokane is, at the least, miserable political judgment. At the worst, it suggests a possible leftward bias around the candidate that distorts the reality of this nation's views and aspirations.

Wedding On Interstate

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It was marriage on the move for Devoy Geiger and his new bride, Phyllis. They tied the knot while Geiger drove his bus along Interstate 40.

And it came as a surprise for some 20 guests on the bus Saturday, who thought they were being driven to the location for the ceremony.

Nor did the surprises stop there. The wedding reception was held at a Nashville hamburger stand.

"I'm a bus driver, and we met on a bus trip," Geiger said. "I used to drive for Trailways, and she was on a charter trip from Biloxi, Miss., to Kansas City."

Beth, 17-year-old daughter of the new Mrs. Geiger, served as maid of honor and also played a key role in bringing the couple together. Mrs. Geiger — then Phyllis Clark — was chaperoning her daughter and 35 other teenagers during a trip to a square dance contest in Kansas City when Beth sprained her ankle.

"She was so disappointed because she couldn't dance, and we could not find crutches for her. So our bus driver literally carried her around to all the events for three days," Mrs. Geiger said.

The Rev. James Barton, pastor of the First Christian Church here, said it was the most unusual ceremony he had ever performed.

Immediately after the couple was married, Geiger drove into a filling station to refuel.

In a traditional post-wedding ceremony move, relatives tied cans to the back bumper of the bus.

N.C. Poll Indicates Jim Hunt Enjoys 2-1 Margin

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A voter poll taken by the News and Observer of Raleigh shows President Ford and challenger Jimmy Carter running neck-and-neck in North Carolina, while Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt has a 2-1 edge over Republican David Flaherty in the state gubernatorial race.

Carter led Ford for the state's 13 electoral votes by less than one percentage point, a margin not considered significant and subject to change with the slightest change in voter sentiment, the newspaper reported. The poll was conducted Oct. 19 and 20 before the final Ford-Carter debate in Williamsburg, Va. and before Ford's visit Saturday to Raleigh.

The poll was designed and conducted by Dr. Walter De Vries and Katy Martin of North Carolina Opinion Research Inc., based on telephone interviews with 768 registered voters who said they planned to vote in the Nov. 2 general election.

The poll showed 41.2 per cent favoring Carter and 40.5 per cent favoring Ford. Some 14.7 per cent were undecided, 3.2 per cent refused to respond and less than half of one per cent supported three minor candidates on the ballot.

In the gubernatorial race, Hunt was favored by 52 per cent of those responding, while 26.2 per cent said they would vote for Flaherty. Of the rest, 19.2 per cent said they were undecided and 2.6 refused to state a choice.

Hunt's margin among Democrats was 68 per cent to 12 per cent. Flaherty was the choice of 53.4 per cent of Republicans, with 21.8 per cent favoring Hunt.

Hunt also led in every occupational category, with Flaherty challenging most closely in the skilled worker grouping. Hunt and Carter both have 42.5 per cent of the vote in the western part of the state, where Flaherty has 32.2 per cent.

Hunt registered 58.5 per cent in the coastal plain, but Carter trailed Ford with a weak 38.4 per cent. Flaherty was rated at 20.1 per cent.

Carter and Ford appeared deadlocked in the Piedmont, but Hunt nearly doubled Flaherty at 51.3 per cent to 26.6 per cent. When asked why they support Hunt, 21.3 per cent said they like his program and 4.8 per cent cited his stand on education. Another 18.5 per cent said they liked him because he's a Democrat and 17.7 said he has experience by being lieutenant governor.

The main reason given for Flaherty's support among voters — 21.6 per cent — was a dislike for Hunt, while 16.8 per cent said they like him because he's a Republican and 16 per cent agreed with Flaherty's views and program.

Labeling Data Confuses Buyers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Food manufacturers are telling consumers more about what's inside the cans, jars and boxes they sell, but the information is not always easy to decipher.

Government studies show that shoppers often do not understand labeling information on fat, carbohydrate, cholesterol or sodium content. They are confused about the meaning of figures pertaining to the government's recommended daily allowance of vitamins and minerals.

The Food and Drug Administration now requires nutritional labels on any food that has been fortified or enriched or for which a nutritional claim is made. Even a statement such as "rich in Vitamin C" is enough to require nutritional labeling.

The manufacturer must list the size of a serving in ounces, cups, slices or whatever and the number of servings per container. He also must list the number of calories and the weight, in grams, of protein, carbohydrate and fat in each serving. In addition, the label must include the percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for protein, five vitamins and two minerals contained in each serving.

The U.S. RDA's indicate how much of a given nutrient is necessary to maintain good health. If a nutritional label lists Vitamin A, followed by the number 10, that means one serving of the product provides 10 per cent of the amount of Vitamin A needed every day.

Part of consumers' confusion may be due to the fact that protein is listed twice on nutritional labels — once by the number of grams and one by the percentage of the U.S. RDA provided in a serving.

Another reason for confusion may be the frequent use of ounces for serving size and grams for nutritional information.

A spokesman for the FDA said the use of grams for the nutrition information is required, first, because the nation is switching to the metric system and second, because the amounts involved often are too small to be expressed in ounces.

Reading a nutritional label won't tell you at a glance what part of a given product is fat, for example. You will have to do your own calculations for that. (There are just over 28 grams in an ounce.) The label will, however, enable you to compare the amount of fat in different foods with different serving sizes.

Some of the information appearing on nutritional labels is optional, including the cholesterol and sodium content.

The Kellogg Co. recently started providing some information that is not required by the government, but has often been demanded by consumer groups — the sugar content of various cereals.

"We are trying to give the consumers what they want and need," said company president W.E. Lamothe.

Kellogg considered listing the sugar content by percentage, rather than by grams per ounce, but the company said it decided such information would be misleading. To support its claim, Kellogg points out that the number of grams of sugar in a whole orange and in one ounce of Kellogg's Sugar Smacks are the same, although the percentage of sugar in the orange is smaller since the fruit weighs more.

Believe N.Y. Club Fire Was Started By Thrown-Out Man

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators believe an arson fire that killed 25 persons at an overcrowded second-story club may have been started by a man who was thrown out after arguing with his wife, sources say.

Authorities said a flammable liquid or other accelerating material was used to start the fire early Sunday morning in the only staircase in the South Bronx building. The death toll was said to be the worst from any arson fire in the city's history.

Most of the victims died of smoke inhalation in the 25-by-40-foot room. Twenty-four persons suffered injuries. Most of them broke bones when they leaped from a window, unable to use a blocked fire escape.

"The poor people never had a chance," one fireman said.

Police Commissioner Michael Codd said at the scene that his detectives were looking for "a specific person." He said later that police knew where the man was. He reportedly was in a hospital, among those injured during the blaze.

Sources said the man in question had an argument with his wife and was told to leave by the proprietor of the Club Puerto Rico, where more than 50 persons of Dominican descent had gathered for a party. The club's occupancy permit is for 20 persons, city records show.

Jacob Melendez, 27, the leader of the band playing at the party, said he heard an argument between a man and woman, apparently over the woman's dancing with another man. "Don't worry, I'll get you," Melendez said the man yelled before he was thrown out.

"The man then left," Melendez said. "We continued to play and everyone was having a good time. About an hour and half later, I heard a noise and immediately saw flames and black smoke by the door."

Codd said "There are many aspects under investigation" and refused to confirm or deny reports that the man had returned to the club with gasoline and been burned while setting the fire. Bronx Dist. Atty. Mario Merola said the fire escape was blocked by a window gate locked from the inside to ward off burglars.

Some of the dead bore evidence of having been trampled as they tried to escape. Some literally were torn from their shoes, which were scattered about the room as reminders of the terror that accompanied the fierce flash fire.

Ten died in restrooms where they fled or were trapped. Most of the other victims were found near the window, police said.

N.C. Weekend Traffic Saw 8 Persons Killed

By The Associated Press

Eight persons died in weekend accidents on North Carolina's highways, the Highway Patrol said Sunday night.

They included three persons killed Saturday night when their car ran off a road and landed in a pond in Cumberland County.

The deaths pushed North Carolina's total for the year to 1,176, compared with 1,207 killed during the same period in 1975.

Two Ft. Bragg soldiers were among the three killed in the Cumberland County accident. They were identified as Gary Lynn Schrackendgust, 22, and John Michael Paroby, 20. Also killed was Sharon Jean Saxon, 26, of Spring Lake.

The patrol said their car was traveling at a high rate of speed on a rural road near Pope Air Force Base when it struck a tree and fell into a pond. Authorities said the victims were trapped when the car landed upside down.

Also killed Saturday night was a Linden man, Bobby Lee Bryant, 21. The patrol said he died when the car he was driving ran a stop sign and was struck by another vehicle. The accident occurred on U.S. 401 about 10 miles north of Fayetteville.

A Monroe boy identified as 4-year-old Timothy James Griffin was killed Sunday afternoon when he was struck by a car on U.S. 74 west of Monroe. The patrol said the child ran into the car's path.

An elderly Thomasville man died Saturday night when he was struck from behind by a car while walking along N.C. 62 about four miles west of Trinity in Randolph County. The victim was identified as 80-year-old George Washington Johnson.

Another pedestrian accident Saturday claimed the life of Theodore Brown, 36, of Greenville. The patrol said he walked into the path of a car on N.C. 33, five miles west of Greenville in Pitt County.

A two-car collision in Sanford Saturday resulted in the death of Leroy Robert Cameron, 57, of Sanford. The patrol said another car ran a red light and struck Cameron's car at an intersection.

Candidate Here

Mrs. Evelyn Tyler, Republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction, will speak at Wahl-Coates School Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Her visit is sponsored by the Pitt County-Greenville chapter of the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE) of the N. C. Association for Education. She is the third candidate for the superintendent of public instruction to have a PACE-Sponsored visit here.

Incumbent Craig Phillips and Democratic candidate Ben Currin spoke here earlier this year.

Reynolds May Is Named To Board

LOUISBURG — S. Reynolds May of Greenville was recently elected to the Board of Trustees of Louisburg Junior College.

May, prominent businessman and community leader, is a former executive director of the East Carolina University Foundation.

The new board member is a graduate of Duke University.

E. Hoover Taft Jr., chairman of the board, commented, "We are extremely fortunate in having Mr. May as a member of our board because of his interest in Christian higher education, and further because of his wide reputation throughout the state as a leader and successful businessman."

May was also appointed to the board's development and public relations committee.

In addition to Taft and May, ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins serves as a member of the board and Mrs. W. P. Moore Sr. of Greenville, who served for over 25 years, is a trustee emeritus.

Louisburg Junior College, the oldest junior college in the nation, according to Taft, was founded in 1787. Affiliated with the United Methodist Church, the college has an enrollment of 660 students, 11 of which are from Pitt County.

Dr. Allan S. Norris serves as president.

The board consist of 35 members from throughout the eastern sector of North Carolina.

Call To 'Resist' By Archbishop

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, West Germany (AP) — Traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre has called on Roman Catholics around the world to resist Pope Paul VI.

The French archbishop told a congregation of about 10,000 persons from West Germany, Austria and Switzerland that the church should return to "true Catholic belief." He made the statement in a 90-minute speech Sunday preceding the first Latin Mass he has celebrated in public since he met with the Pope on Sept. 11.

The archbishop said the Pope accused him of leading traditionalists in defying the decisions of the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council. Among council decisions was a switch in the Mass from Latin to the language of the people celebrating it.

Pitt GOP Will Hold Breakfast

The Pitt County Republican Party will sponsor a "Dutch-Treat" breakfast honoring Robert Long, U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Thursday at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Secretary Long will present a brief talk followed by a question and answer session.

Reservations for the breakfast can be made by calling 758-4639 or 756-1623. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Postal Losses To Stir Debate

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A study of why the Postal Service is losing more money each year — when its goal was to eliminate deficits — should touch off a major congressional debate over its future.

The federal Postal Service Commission, expected to hold its first meeting soon, is due to make recommendations by March 15. The commission includes seven voting members representing business, postal workers and consumers.

The Postal Service can neither raise mail rates nor trim services while the commission deliberates.

The service was created in 1971, replacing the old Post Office Department, with the goal of paying for itself. To do this, the agency was given powers to operate more like a private business.

However, the Postal Service has lost $3 billion in its first five years, and the deficits have been getting larger. The corporation has avoided insolvency only by borrowing from the federal Treasury.

The 1971 reorganization was based on recommendations of an earlier government commission, which said postal costs could be reduced by at least 20 per cent if the investment and operating practices used in private industry were made available to postal management.

"Several years after the corporation is under way, therefore, it should be able to eliminate entirely the postal deficit, releasing over a billion dollars a year of tax money to other purposes," the commission said. "The long-run potential for improvement, furthermore, is so high that we are reluctant to estimate its size."

That commission's recommendation for a corporate-style mail agency received bipartisan support and heavy majorities in Congress.

The new commission is likely to be given various explanations about why these predictions have failed to come true.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, a nonvoting member of the new commission, is expected to say that economic factors beyond the control of the Postal Service are responsible for mounting deficits.

"I believe that if the old Post Office Department had had to contend with the recent period of the energy crisis, double-digit inflation and recession, the nation's mail problems would today be multiplied many times over," Bailar said in a recent speech.

President Ford, a supporter of postal reorganization as a congressman, blames postal management for the agency's problems. "I just don't accept that they're doing as well as they should be doing," Ford has said.

Holding rates at present levels would require massive increases in the subsidies from the present $1.5 billion per year, the General Accounting Office said. But if all subsidies were to end by 1984, the nation would face the prospect of a 34-cent rate for first-class letters, the GAO has estimated.

Fatal Shot Is Held 'Accidental'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh man was accidentally shot Sunday by a state trooper who was trying to club the man with his service revolver, Highway Patrol officials said.

James Walter Harris, 19, of Raleigh, was shot by Trooper D.L. Hawkins after Harris assaulted the trooper with a stick, Patrol Sgt. A.H. Campbell said.

Harris was in satisfactory condition Sunday night at Wake Medical Center with a bullet wound in the back of his neck. A hospital spokesman said the bullet passed through the neck and no surgery was necessary.

"All evidence indicates Hawkins acted in self defense," said Campbell, one of the patrol officials investigating the incident. He said no charges had been filed against Hawkins. Campbell also said he had not talked with Harris, but his investigation was continuing.

Campbell gave this account of the events leading up to the shooting:

About 5 p.m., Hawkins saw a 1969 Pontiac with no inspection sticker.

When the trooper started toward the car on foot, the car went in reverse for about half a block and hit a curb. The driver, whom the patrol identified as Harris, ran into the woods.

After running about 250 yards, Harris stopped and put his hands on his head. Hawkins told him he was under arrest and to put his hands behind his back.

When Harris brought his hands down, he picked up a two-foot-long oak branch and hit the trooper on the arm. Hawkins drew his .357 magnum service revolver to use as a club and when he hit Harris, the gun fired, hitting Harris in the back of the neck.

Campbell said Hawkins carried Harris to Wake Medical Center in his patrol car.

Campbell said Harris was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, driving while his license was revoked, assault on an officer with a deadly weapon and resisting arrest.

Dissension Over Carter

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The pastor of the Southern Baptist Convention's largest church, having condemned Jimmy Carter and endorsed President Ford, has raised the ire of a North Carolina group called the Baptist Laymen for Carter.

Calling Carter "our fellow churchman," the group issued a statement Sunday condemning the Rev. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex.

Criswell criticized Carter during an Oct. 10 sermon, which was attended by Ford.

Criswell cited Carter's interview with Playboy Magazine and later offered his endorsement of Ford on the steps of the 19,000-member church.

Dr. James Ralph Scales, president of Wake Forest University, and George McCotter, a Sanford businessman, released the statement on behalf of the 16-member group, saying Criswell attacked Carter "for witnessing to his faith in a magazine interview."

"We commend the governor," the statement said. "In a hostile medium, Jimmy Carter gave strong and courageous expression to the Biblical view of marital fidelity. We are proud to reaffirm our support for Carter."

The statement also said Criswell "attacked those of us who labored in the struggle for human rights...He has not been noted for attacking crime in the White House."

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

"The difference is the game was turning the thing over," a saddened coach Pat Dye said yesterday after viewing the game again on film.

Even then, it still came out 12-10 in favor of the Tar Heels of North Carolina, ending any hopes of an unbeaten year for East Carolina.

"I don't feel that we got beat," Dye continued. "Time just ran out on us. We never gave up, we never quit fighting."

Dye said he had to give a lot of credit to North Carolina. "They were well prepared, and it's the best I've ever seen them play emotionally. And it is a credit to us that Carolina would have to get that emotionally up to beat us."

The coach also said that he had to be proud of his players for continuing to have faith in themselves and for coming back like they did. "It's quite a thing to come back and score 10 points in the final period and take the lead like we did. But Carolina got three big plays in that final drive for the field goal. The penalty that got them out of the hole, then the two pass completions. And that last one was right through two defenders. It was a super job both by the quarterback and the receiver.

"If we could have knocked that one down, it would have been fourth and 15 and they'd have had to try at least another 49 yarder."

Asked if he thought Terry Gallaher's injury late in the game might not have been another key situation, Dye said he couldn't second guess on that.

"It's still something when you can go up there in Carolina's back yard and come out on top in all but the score and turnovers."

Dye said the Pirates never let up, and were in the game all the way. "But now we can't do anything but forget it and play to win these last four."

"There's no doubt in my mind that we'll be back up for the rest of them, but this week has taken a lot out of us. It's going to take a lot of leadership and character on the part of our players to get ready for Western Carolina.

"But we've been down before, and we've come back. We've got too much at stake now."

Still ahead lies a possible Southern Conference championship, not to mention a shot at a bowl game. "I don't think the bowl scouts can possibly hold a two-point loss in Kenan Stadium against us. We're good enough to go somewhere when this year is over if we can finish with a 10-1 record. We've still got a chance if we can be a class team from here on in."

But the coach admits that the biggest problem for this week will be to prepare the team mentally. "Western Carolina has a good team, I'm not putting them down. But I think our mental approach will mean more than anything else in this game. We've worked so hard and come so close and still not gotten the prize.

"But we're not dead yet. We've just got to come back and we've got to start coming back Saturday."

Mac Shows He Can Stand The Pressure

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — "The players say things, and it gets back to you," Mac McLendon observed.

"You know, like, 'he's got no guts,' and 'he can't stand the pressure.' Well now, maybe at last I've got my head screwed on straight."

McLendon, who had blown chances for two other titles with poor last rounds earlier this season, had just scored a two-stroke victory over close friend Hubert Green in the Southern Open Golf Tournament, McLendon's first individual title in nine long years of tour activity.

He won it with a solid, two-under-par 68 in the last round Sunday and nailed it down with a brilliant nine-iron shot to within four feet of the flag for a birdie on the final hole.

"It was his career shot," said Green, who was watching beside the 18th green as his friend came down the stretch at the hilly, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

"It was the most important shot of my career," agreed McLendon. "It was the best nine iron I've ever hit."

It closed out a 72-hole total of 274, six under par and two in front of Green, who also shot a 68 in the cool, cloudy, windless weather of the final round.

"I'm real proud of the way Mac won it," said Green, a three-time winner this season, the winner of this tournament a year ago and McLendon's partner when they won the 1974 National Team championship. "Nobody gave it to him. He won it for himself. And that's got to be a very happy thing for him."

It was. The victory was worth $25,000 but, more im-

Dye Proud Of Bucs Despite Loss

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Coach Pat Dye of East Carolina says "I'm proud of our people" even though his Southern Conference-leading Pirates saw their 12-game football winning streak end and their No. 20 national ranking jeopardized by a 12-10 defeat by North Carolina.

"We've come a long way to be able to play UNC. We did not back off. We challenged them all the way," Dye said after Saturday's loss that dropped the Pirates to 6-1 for the season.

It was one of three setbacks by title-eligible teams against outside opponents, but three others came out winners. William and Mary's Indians, 5-2, surprised Ohio U. 20-0; The Citadel's Bulldogs, 5-2, whipped Air Force 26-7; and Virginia Military's Keydets, 2-5, avenged last year's season-opening 10-9 defeat with a 10-6 decision over Delaware.

The losers besides East Carolina were Furman's Paladins, 3-4-1, who fell to Richmond's 1975 champion Spiders 13-9, and Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 5-2-1, beaten 20-7 by Ball State.

Among the teams not eligible for the crown, Davidson's Wildcats, 1-3-1, upset Division III power Hampden-Sydney 20-14, but new member Marshall, 4-3, was beaten by Western Michigan 31-21 and new member Western Carolina, 5-3, lost to Wofford 10-6.

Down 9-0 after three quarters, East Carolina took a 10-9 lead on a 15-yard run by Mike Weaver after a 54-yard drive set up by a fumble recovery and a 19-yard field goal by Pete Conaty with 6:14 left. But the Tar Heels rallied with a 24-yard pass from Matt Kupec to Walker Lee setting up Tom Biddle's 17-yard field goal with 2:14 left.

"We got beat by a fine football team. They had a chance to fold when we came back and went ahead, but they didn't," said Dye. "We moved the ball well, but not consistently enough."

Quarterback Marty Crosby ran for one touchdown and passed for another and Andrew Johnson ran for a third, but it was The Citadel's defense that provided the Bulldogs their victory at Air Force.

Ralph Ferguson ran 31 yards with an intercepted pass for the final score, and defensive ends

Randy Johnson and Bob Tillman and middle guard David Sollazzo sacked Air Force quarterbacks nine times.

It was a big defensive play that won for VMI, too, as freshman middle guard Jeff Morgan picked off a midair fumble and ran 67 yards for the game's only touchdown with three minutes left.

Until then, Delaware's Hank Kline had kicked two field goals and VMI's Craig Jones one even though Dave Bachosky ran 24 times for 133 yards for the Blue Hens and Kim Glidewell 26 times for 115 yards for the Keydets.

"I couldn't be any prouder of these guys. After the losses we've had, a lot of teams would have quit," said VMI Coach Bob Thalman. "We said we were going to win our last four and, as far as we're concerned, we're 1-0."

William and Mary, whose only losses were by 20-19 to East Carolina and 15-13 to Delaware, shut out a second opponent in one season for the first time since 1965.

"I was quite honestly surprised that we were able to close them down like we did. We shut out Virginia earlier, but this was a tough game with the weather the way it was," said Indian Coach Jim Root. It was cool, windy and rainy.

Sophomore quarterback Tom Rozant, who had 96 yards on 10 carries and hit five of 10 passes for 85 yards, directed a 70-yard march capped by Keith Fimian's one-yard run in the first period.

The Indians wrapped it up in the second half on a 15-yard run by Jim Krus following a fumble recovery by Jeff Hosmer and a three-yard run by Jeff Vanderbeek at the end of an 82-yard march set up by Keith Potts' pass interception that halted Ohio's final scoring bid.

Richmond, no longer a member of the conference, overcame a 9-7 deficit with an 80-yard march which ended with Larry Shaw's 31-yard scoring strike to John D. Call with 7:47 left. The Spiders then twice halted the Paladins with pass interceptions.

"Call made a real fine play on the touchdown. He really made a good catch on the ball to begin with, then he gave a little juke, saw the split and ran it in," said Richmond Coach Jim Tait. Milton Ruffin, who gained 64 yards, scored the Spiders' other touchdown.

"We just played a great game defensively," Tait added. "Offensively, we had our chances to score early. We finally had that long drive when we had to make it and we drove it in."

After three weeks of bad weather, Furman Coach Art Baker couldn't understand why his team had "the least emotional game we have played" in almost perfect weather. "We had every reason to play well. But we had turnovers at crucial times."

Baker thought his defense did a good job, too, "until the last drive, but you have to give Richmond credit. They took the ball and went 80 yards when they had to."

Appalachian lost one fumble and had three passes intercepted at Ball State. Emmitt Hamilton's three-yard run gave the Mountaineers a 7-7 tie in the second period, but that was the end. Scott McConnell had 75 yards on 12 carries for Appalachian.

Chairman Giles Wins Tournament

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — They should have known better than to let Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va., both play in and serve as chairman of the National Bicentennial Tournament of Champions, a 72-hole medal play affair for the nation's top amateur golfers.

Getting his game together after the first two rounds, the red-haired 33-year-old former U. S. and British Amateur champion was five under par for the last two days and wound up with a four-shot victory Sunday over Kelly Roberts of London, Ontario.

After equalling Saturday the four-under-par competitive record of 67 set over the Kingsmill Golf Course Friday by Roberts, Giles came from two shots behind Sunday with a 70 and a par 284 total for 72 holes. Roberts, 23, an Indiana University graduate who plans to try for the PGA tour in the December qualifying school, shot a 76 Sunday and wound up at 288.

The tournament's third 67 was shot Sunday by former Porter Cup champion Jay Sigel of Berwyn, Pa., and earned him third place with a 292 total, one shot ahead of Kim Heisler of Aurora, Ohio, 75.

Tied at 294 were 1976 U. S. Amateur runner-up Parker Moore of Laurens, S. C., who had a 71, and Virginia Amateur champion Skeeter Heath of Hampton, 73.

Seventh place was shared at 296 by Middle Atlantic champion Marty West of Bethesda, Md., the first-day leader who had a 74 Sunday, and Eastern Amateur winner Vance Heafner of Cary, N. C., 77, who finished nine under par in four rounds on the three par 5 holes.

There was no contest in the senior division. Ralph Bogart of Bethesda, Md., the leader from the start, had a 74 Sunday for 306 and an 11-shot margin.

"I just felt very confident over the ball, and for the last 13 holes, I played like I used to play; that is, I swung as hard as I could and didn't worry about hitting it into the rough," Giles said.

It started inauspiciously with a double bogey on the first hole, where he trapped his second shot and failed to reach the green with his third. He two-putted from 80 feet for a birdie on the par 5 third but bogeyed the fourth and fifth when he missed the green.

But Giles came alive when he was just short of the green on the par 5 seventh and chipped in from 80 feet for an eagle. That was followed by birdie putts of 8, 2, 4 and 18 feet.

The tournament's second hole in one was recorded Sunday on the 151-yard fifth by Julian Arnold of Miami, Fla., who had a 73 and a 306 total. The 131-yard 13th hole was aed the first day by Gene Christiansen of Minneapolis.

Victory Is Hollow For Virginia

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The University of Virginia snapped the nation's longest losing streak among major college football teams Saturday, but the death of a player made it "a hollow victory," Coach Dick Bestwick said.

Kevin Bowie, a 5-foot-11, 210-pound sophomore defensive end from Plainfield, N.J., was shot to death Friday night outside a Washington restaurant in what police said may have been a robbery attempt.

The Cavaliers met Wake Forest the following afternoon in Winston-Salem, with the players unaware of the previous night's tragedy and concentrating only on breaking a 15-game skid.

The Demon Deacons led 17-12 and appeared to be in firm control as the Cavaliers tried to move from their own 38-yard line with time steadily slipping away in the fourth quarter.

A 26-yard pass from quarterback Andy Hitt to flanker Joe Sroba suddenly gave Virginia a first down at the Wake Forest 36 as the clock approached the one-minute mark. On the next play, Hitt scrambled to his right under a heavy pass rush and arched a desperation heave to Andre Grier, who made a diving catch in the corner of the end zone.

The clock showed 53 seconds remaining. A stunned Wake Forest team, having suffered all day from mistakes, launched a final drive, but Bob Hely's 44-yard field goal attempt fell short as time expired.

Virginia players bounded jubilantly off the field, many of them having tasted a college football victory for the first time.

Their jubilation, however, was short-lived.

Bestwick, also having tasted his first victory as a head coach, gathered his players and told them of Bowie's death. The unrestrained joy of a moment before gave way to ashen faces and stunned disbelief.

Teams Advance To Tournament Semis

The team of Lib Proctor and Ron Hignite upset the top-seeded team of Frances Cain and Wes Hankins 7-6, 6-4 this weekend to advance to the semi-finals of the Greenville Tennis Club's Annual Mixed Doubles Tournament.

The upset ended the losers' three-year streak as the Club's mixed doubles champions.

Other teams advancing to the semi-finals were: Cynthia Averette and Gil Hensgen, who defeated Alicia and Christian Slater, 6-3, 6-4; Becky McDonald and Jim Gaskins, who defeated

Cathy and Nick Mumford, 6-2, 6-1 and Ann Sayetta and Madhu Balachandran, who defeated Gloria Schwidde and Tom Butler, 6-0, 6-3.

The semi-finals will be played next Sunday at the Elm Street courts.

Cowboys Gain Win, Lose Quarterback

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Dallas Cowboys survived a scare and lost a quarterback, albeit temporarily, against the Chicago Bears.

Roger Staubach, the Cowboys' durable star, went out of action in the third period Sunday with a fractured little finger on his passing hand when he was hit by Bear linebacker Mike Hartenstein. Danny White, a refugee from the World Football League, replaced him and promptly hit Preston Pearson with a 15-yard touchdown pass for a 24-7 Dallas lead.

Even without Staubach, Coach Tom Landry figured the situation was well in hand. But it wasn't.

"This was an incredible game," said Landry after Dallas eventually won 31-21. "How we ever got in jeopardy of losing I'll never know."

Elsewhere in the NFL, Minnesota remained undefeated with a 31-12 victory over Philadelphia, Cincinnati whipped Houston 27-7, Miami edged Tampa Bay 23-20, Baltimore blanked the New York Jets 20-0, Pittsburgh shut out the New York Giants 27-0, Oakland held off Green Bay 18-14, New England beat Buffalo 26-22, Denver topped Kansas City 35-26, Cleveland downed San Diego 21-17, Los Angeles got by New Orleans 16-10 and Detroit mauled Seattle 41-14.

San Francisco dumped Atlanta 15-0 in a Saturday night contest. St. Louis visits Washington tonight.

Chicago linebacker Ross Brupbacher got the Bears back in the game when he intercepted a White pass and returned it 25 yards before later-ally to Hurtensteine who went the final 12 yards for a touchdown. Then Virgil Livers ran back a punt 51 yards to set up Johnny Musso's two-yard TD run and it was 24-21.

Not to worry. White came back with a 54-yard toss to Golden Richards to set up the final Dallas score, a six-yard White-to-Pearson pass, and Dallas had its sixth victory in seven games.

NFL history to pass the 40,000-yard mark in passing yardage. He needs 91 yards to top all-time leader John Unitas. Foreman wound up with 28 carries for 200 yards — a club record.

Bengals 27, Oilers 7 apiece as Cincinnati took sole possession of first place in the American Conference Central Division. The Bengal defense held Houston to just 28 yards rushing and sacked Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini six times.

Dolphins 23, Bucs 20
Miami needed a 29-yard field goal by Garo Yepremian with 55 seconds left to edge cross-state rival Tampa Bay. The Dolphins built a 20-7 lead on short TD runs by Bennie Malone and Don Nottingham before ailing quarterback Steve Spurrier came off the bench in the second half to throw a pair of TD passes to Morris Owens for the Bucs.

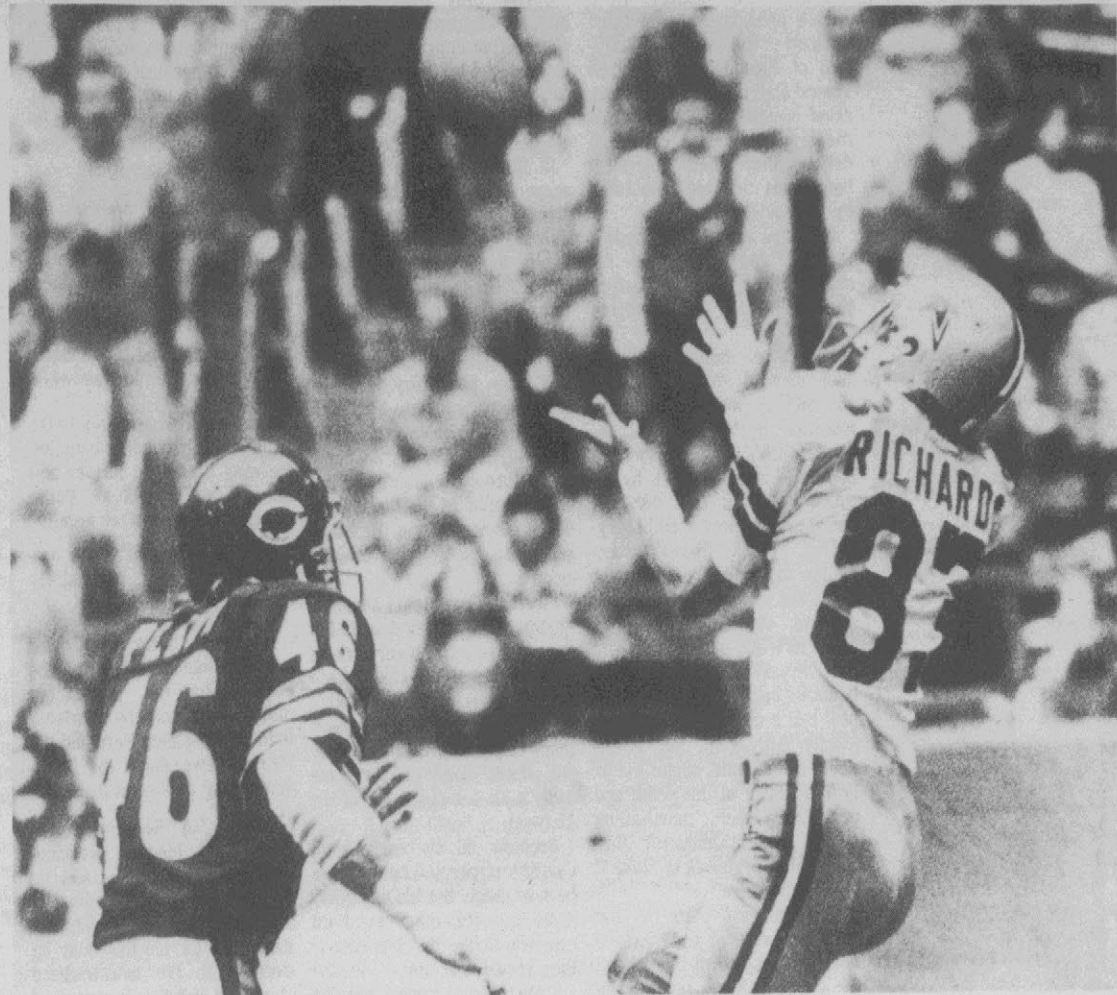

came up short. Ferguson suffered a back injury in the second quarter and may be lost for the season. Sam Cunningham gained 118 yards for the Pats and Simpson had 110 for the Bills.

Broncos 35, Chiefs 26
Quarterback Steve Ramsey tossed a pair of touchdown passes as Denver outlasted Kansas City in a wild offensive game in which the teams combined for 53 first downs. Otis Armstrong gained 101 yards for Denver and the Bronco defense stiffened long enough to stop two Chief drives on the one-yard line.

Browns 21, Chargers 17
Brian Sipe threw for two touchdowns, including the go-ahead score on a 10-yarder to Oscar Roan in the fourth quarter, as the surprising Browns won their third straight. Sipe hit on 23 of 28 tosses for 246 yards and Larry Poole, replacing injured Greg Pruitt, who hurt his ankle late in the second quarter, gained 64 yards on 16 carries.

Rams 16, Saints 10
Pat Haden came off the bench to fire a 40-yard fourth-quarter touchdown pass to Harold Jackson, lifting Los Angeles over scrappy New Orleans. The Saints lost three in the sloppy game. Haden replaced Ron Jaworski who hit three of 11 passes for just 15 yards and threw two interceptions.

Lions 41, Seahawks 14
Greg Landry threw for three touchdowns and the Detroit defense intercepted six Jim Zorn passes as the Lions rolled over the expansion Seahawks. Levi Johnson returned one interception 70 yards for a touchdown and Lem Barney went 24 yards with another steal for another score.

TAKES A LONG ONE — Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Golden Richards (83) beats Chicago Bears safety Doug Plank to gather in a 56-yard pass in the fourth period of their game Sunday in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys went on to score on the drive and won 31-21. (AP Wirephoto)

Cindy Sailor scored two firsts and shared in another, as the East Carolina women's swimming team rolled to a 7-44 victory over UNC-G. Sailor took her wins in the 50 and 100 meter butterfly, and was on the winning 200 medley relay team.

In addition, the Lady Pirate swimmers swept all three places in two events to claim the win.

Lady Bucs Down Wake

Kathy Zwigard, Gail Betton and Linda Christian all scored two goals and Cathy Clause added a single goal as the East Carolina women's field hockey team crushed Wake Forest 7-0 in a Friday match.

East Carolina completely dominated the game, getting off 20 shots on goal compared to the two shots on goal Wake Forest managed against the ECU defense. The Lady Pirate defense was so strong, their goalie only had to make one save the entire match.

The win raised the field hockey team's record to 4-5-1 for the year. The next match is Wednesday against Old Dominion.

Petty Back On Winning Track, But Still Concerned About Car

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Richard Petty is still searching for victory.

He's winning races again, but his Dodge is still not capable of beating everybody.

And that's what concerns him.

"This is the best we've run all year, so maybe this means better days are ahead," Petty said of the rapidly winding down Grand National stock car season, after he won Sunday's American 500 here. "We didn't finish up last year too strong, even though we won 13 races. And we didn't start out real good this year.

"I'm hoping a strong finish now will give us a push in the right direction to start next season."

Of the tracks remaining on the schedule, North Carolina Motor Speedway's 1.017-mile oval provides the best chance for a Petty victory: David Pearson is almost unbeatable on the bigger tracks; Cale Yarborough invincible on the shorter ones.

It's really Petty's home track, only a few miles from his residence near Randleman—and the fans here seem to like the local boy.

"I don't know why we always run so well here," said Petty, who won the Carolina 500 here in February, one of three victories for him this year. "There must be some reason, but I don't know what it is." If he did, he probably wouldn't tell.

Still, he probably wouldn't have won if Dave Marcis hadn't dropped back to due a disconnected battery cable and ultimately other problems.

"No one looked like they wanted to race except Marcis," Petty said. "He looked like he was the only one who wanted to go and could go."

At the time Marcis had trouble, he was a lap ahead of everyone.

"Damn! I had a lap on the field. I guess if I had continued the entire race I could have won by four or five laps," Marcis moaned. "This really hurts when you know you have the fastest car and the best setup on the track."

"It was the best I've seen him run in a long, long time," Petty marveled.

Sunday's performance was obviously Petty's tops in a while, too. But it almost had a controversial ending, one which might not have left Petty fans happy.

Petty had tire troubles like many of the early front-runners, while Lennie Pond managed to keep his Chevrolet steadily plugging along.

Petty made five pit stops under racing conditions, and was stopped for 125 seconds to change tires three times for 54 seconds. That averaged out to about seven laps Petty sat in the pits to less than three for Pond.

Several independent scorers had Pond, still looking for his first Grand National victory, leading and at least a lap ahead of Petty, until the final 80 miles or so when Petty drove at unbelievable speeds. He finally passed Pond to take the lead on the independent cards, while official scorers said he had been leading and merely put a lap on Pond.

Midwest Vote Still Toss-Up To Ford Strategist

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

The industrial heartland, where President Ford is supposed to have his greatest strength and where the presidential election may very well be decided, is too close to call as the race enters the stretch drive.

"It's pretty much a toss-up all across this belt," said one top Ford strategist. "It's probably going to be decided in the last four days of the campaign."

An Associated Press survey of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, based on interviews with political and campaign leaders and the latest available polls, shows the race about even throughout the industrial Midwest.

These five states account for a total of 96 electoral votes of the 270 needed for election.

One of the things which makes predicting the Midwest difficult is the large concentration of East European ethnic voters and the still fluid situation created by Ford's statement in the second campaign debate that their ancestral homelands are not dominated by the Soviet Union.

Ford has admitted he made a mistake and reaffirmed his support of freedom for Eastern Europe, but the debate lingers on.

The Carter campaign claims spot surveys of Polish-American and Slavic-American communities in the Midwest indicate Ford's blunder may have boosted Carter support by as much as 20 per cent although the gain may prove temporary.

The Ford headquarters denies anything like a 20-point drop but concedes their own surveys showed erosion as much as 5 to 6 points. They say the President already has bounced back from what they now call a momentary setback.

Only Michigan, the President's home state, seems clearly in his favor at this point, and organized labor, marshalling solidly behind Democrat Jimmy Carter, promises to make it close even there.

Carter's best state in the area probably is Ohio, where one poll has shown him ahead by a dozen points, but a more recent poll by the Ford campaign gives the President a one-point lead.

Indiana, because of its Republican tradition in presidential elections, must be considered leaning toward Ford if anybody, but both sides see the race there as neck-and-neck.

Carter may have a slight lead in Wisconsin on the basis of objective appraisals, but this is tempered by the fact that the dairy state almost never votes Democratic in a presidential election.

In Illinois you can find polls going either way, but Carter probably has the edge. His best showing is the Chicago Sun-Times straw poll which gives him a 55 to 45 lead over Ford.

Shadowing the picture in the Midwest, as in other large population states, is the presence of Eugene McCarthy as an independent candidate. In such states as Wisconsin and Illinois a strong McCarthy vote likely would throw the states to Ford and, because of the large number of electoral votes the states represent, possibly even the election.

When the campaign began in September Ford strategists felt they had to carry every one of these states if he was to keep his job. Now, hopes of picking off some Southern states have made this less crucial, but they still think Ford has to come away with a large share of the Midwest.

Because of his early lead, Carter's strategic choices have been broader, but his managers know they still must beat Ford somewhere in the Midwest if they are to oust him.

State-by-state here's how the Midwest battleground looks: MICHIGAN: This is Ford's homeground, which he represented as a congressman from Grand Rapids for 25 years, and the odds have to favor a native son and 21 electoral votes for Ford.

But Detroit has one of the largest concentrations of unionized workers in the country and an unemployment rate hovering around 10 per cent. The unions, splintered in 1972, are now solidly behind Carter, who also enjoys the support of a good state party organization.

Ford's biggest problem has been a lack of visibility in his home state, although he formally opened his campaign there in September. But the Michigan organization is beginning to come around and put a dozen caravans on the road last week.

Carter's strongest area is Detroit and surrounding counties. He may be helped further now because of the 600,000 Polish-Americans in the Detroit area.

Ford is strongest in the out-state rural areas, particularly the southwestern districts.

A private Carter poll showed him 9 points ahead during the Ford Motor Co., strike, but more recent polls by a private firm for President Ford and the Detroit news shows the President riding an 8 point lead.

OHIO: No Republican has ever been elected president without carrying Ohio and its 25 electoral votes. Ordinarily this would be a safe Republican state, but Carter has built up strength in the industrialized Cleveland and Toledo areas and allied it with support in the Appalachian southeast. The ethnic issue may pinch

Ford here, too. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., himself in a tight re-election race, was so concerned about the Eastern European gaffe that he called on Ford to come to Cleveland and clarify it. There are 440,000 Eastern European ethnics in Ohio.

Although there are signs that the traditional big farm vote is lining up with Ford there is still widespread resentment over grain export embargoes imposed by the Ford administration last year.

A Ford poll taken before the foreign policy debate showed him ahead by one percentage point in Ohio, but the Columbus Dispatch poll showed Carter 53 and Ford 41.

INDIANA: The Hoosier state, with its 13 electoral votes, is the home of Earl Butz, the agriculture secretary who resigned after being caught in some unprintable language slurring blacks. The farmers here adored Butz, especially the large grain producers who have prospered under his administration.

Butz's departure is likely to hurt Ford. Even if the farmers don't switch to Carter, they may just stay in the fields on election day. The black vote, already in Carter's corner, may be more highly motivated now.

Helping Ford in Indiana is company on the ballot from a popular Republican governor, Otis R. Bowen, and former Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar, who is running a strong race against Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke. On the other hand Ford was trounced here by Ronald Reagan in the Republican presidential primary.

Despite its bipartisan record, Indiana usually goes Republican in presidential elections. It is expected to go for Ford this year, although his campaign here is worried that Indiana may have been taken for granted. Going into the final days, neither Ford nor running mate Bob Dole had been in the state.

In mid-September, a Republican poll had Ford ahead of Carter by nine points in Indiana but observers on both sides think it is closer than that now.

ILLINOIS: Chicago has more citizens of Polish descent than any other city in the world except Warsaw, and also a concentration of Slavic-Americans. If the Eastern European thing is going to hurt Ford anywhere, it should be in the Chicago suburbs where Republicans have been making steady inroads into the ethnic vote.

The farm vote also may be affected by the loss of Butz, although it may be more an apathy problem than new Carter votes. But Carter has some following among the smaller farmers down-state.

Carter has the all-out support of Mayor Richard Daley's machine in Chicago. But Ford hopes for some coattail assistance from James Thompson who is running well ahead in the race for governor.

A Chicago Tribune poll gave Ford an early lead for the 26 Illinois electoral votes, but the Sun-Times poll went the other way to Carter by a big spread. The consensus is that it is very close.

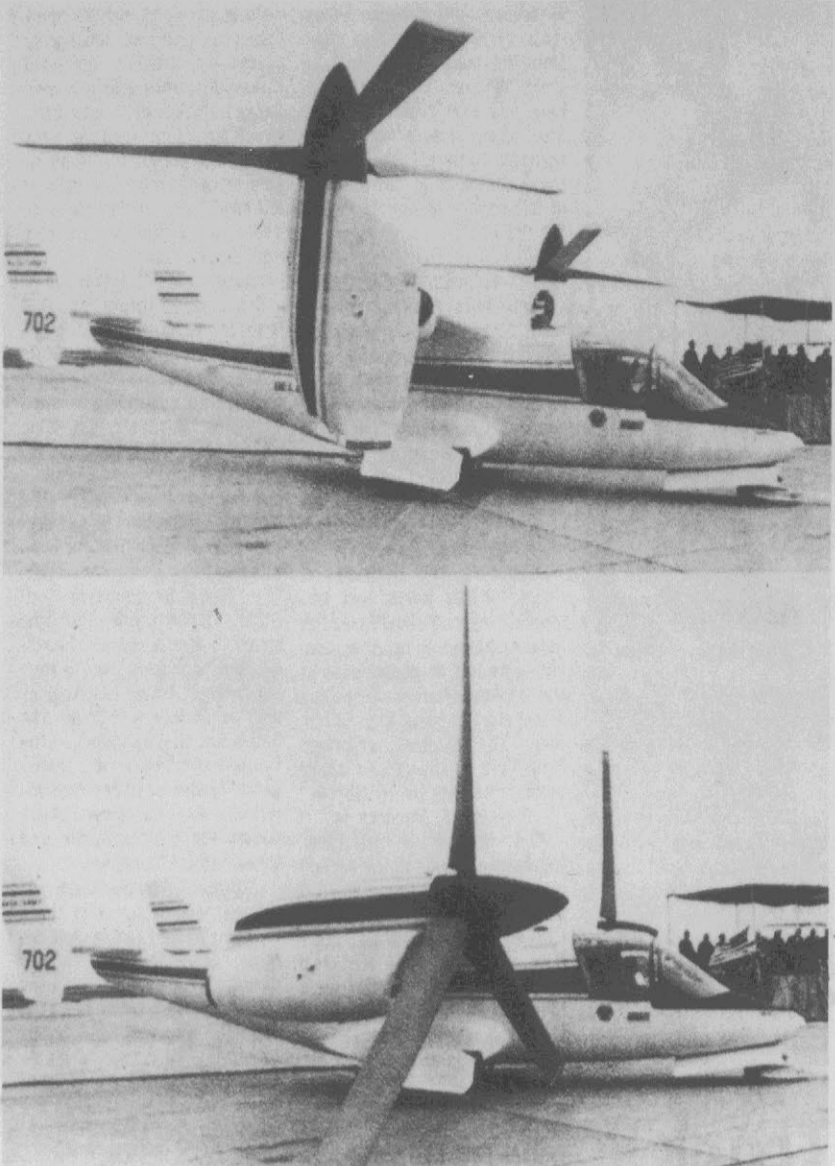

WISCONSIN: The Ford organization is sending a million pieces of mail into the dairy state in the campaign windup, and Carter is matching it. Both sides see this as a critical state.

Wisconsin, with 11 electoral votes, has a liberal tradition, but has gone against an incumbent Republican president only once in this century, Herbert Hoover in 1932.

But Republicans are worrying over a disaffection among the state's farmers which they find hard to explain. Without a good farm vote it would be difficult for Ford to overcome Carter's expected strength in Madison, seat of the state university, and in the industrial belt running from Kenosha to Green Bay and including the metropolitan Milwaukee area. The state also has a high ethnic quotient which may be sensitive to the East European issue.

The difference could lie in a Democratic strategy, aided by powerful labor allies, which is concentrating on turning out Democratic voters. Republicans are trying the same tactic, although with not quite the organization Carter has.

Carter led by seven points in an early September poll, but a later survey by the Milwaukee Sentinel had Ford up by five.

Bluebirds Have Haven

MOUNT PLEASANT, N.C. (AP) — A Nash County man has made his farm a headquarters for a campaign to provide nesting places for the vanishing bluebird.

"The great majority of young people today have never seen a bluebird," said Jack R. Finch. "Yet 50 years ago, bluebirds were among the commonest songbirds in America."

"They are an asset to farmers and gardeners because their diet consists almost entirely of insects in the spring and summer," Finch said. "In the late fall and winter they live largely on wild berries. They almost never damage cultivated crops."

Finch started building homes for bluebirds three years ago. Now his farm is the principal office for Homes For Bluebirds Inc., a nonprofit organization sponsored by a Mount Pleasant civic club.

Finch and others build bluebird houses and sell them with instructions about where bluebirds are likely to nest.

"The eastern bluebird population may have plummeted as much as 90 per cent due to shortage of natural cavities for nesting competition from house sparrows and starlings and pesticides," he said.

"What is needed is a wide-spread effort to help the bluebird in its struggles."

"The ideal habitat," he said, "is a rather open area with scattered trees, relatively free from underbrush. Bluebirds do not nest in heavily wooded areas. They prefer open ground with sparse vegetation or short grass for feeding."

Low mounting of bird houses discourages sparrows and other birds but does not bother bluebirds, he said.

No Ford In Ga. Motorcade

ATLANTA (AP) — Motorcades that will cross Georgia Oct. 30 and 31 to demonstrate support for Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter may be missing an often popular vehicle — the Ford.

An organizer said "trucks, tractors, trailers and every type of motorized vehicle except Fords" have been invited. "Those who must, of necessity, resort to Fords, will be supplied with some type of insignia indicating that 'This Ford is for Carter,'" said a campaigner.

A Carter spokesman compared the motorcade in the Democratic nominee's home state to Gen. William Sherman's "march through Georgia."

Need A Good Crossover Of Voters On Nov. 2

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The Republican candidates for North Carolina agriculture commissioner and state auditor figure they need a good size crossover of Democratic votes to win in the Nov. 2 election.

"I've got to have at least 33 per cent of the Democratic votes in North Carolina," said Kenneth Roberson, who is seeking to oust veteran Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham.

Michael A. Godfrey of Chapel Hill feels he has a good chance to defeat Auditor Henry L. Bridges "if I could get 10 per cent of the crossover vote."

Edwin B. Drury of Thomasville, a Southern Railway employee, is also running against Graham as an American party candidate.

Graham, 55, a Cleveland County native, is one of the best known state officials. He was unopposed in the Democratic primary and is seeking his fourth term.

He was appointed to the post in 1964 by then-Gov. Terry Sanford, was elected later that year, and then reelected in 1968 and 1972.

Roberson, 51, a Martin County farmer, says his chances "hinge on what the people in eastern North Carolina do." He ran against Graham in 1972 and received 43 per cent of the votes, but did not win in an eastern county.

Roberson is a father of five who operates a 650-acre farm.

"If elected, one of the first things I would do would be to ask for a letter of resignation from all of the agriculture department heads," Roberson said. "It would give me a chance to evaluate their records and either accept or reject the resignations."

Godfrey, 36, treasurer of the state Republican party, said that in the past three or four elections it has been shown that Republican candidates get 40 to 45 per cent of the vote. He figures he needs at least 10 per cent of the Democratic vote.

Godfrey is an accountant who recently resigned as director of the Systems and Procedures Department at the University of North Carolina. If elected, he said, he will introduce "innovative accounting and business systems methods" into the management of state agencies.

Bridges, 69, defeated Lillian Woo in a runoff Sept. 14 to win nomination. He defends his record, citing his experience and saying his efforts in the past have saved the state money.

Bridges is a native of Franklin County. He was appointed by Gov. Gregg Cherry 29 years ago and has won every election since then.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES,
Agricultural Extension Agent

With the coming of fall, farmers are harvesting summer crops and planting next year's small grain crops.

Although the best planting dates for a given season cannot be dictated, the ranges of planting dates given below are a good guide on when to seed small grains. Planting before the recommended dates may result in excessive fall growth that is more subject to winter-kill.

Recommended dates and rates of seeding small grains:

Crop: Wheat, Oats, Barley, Rye, and Rye.
Coastal Plain: Oct. 25-Nov. 10, Oct. 10-30, Oct. 10-30, Oct. 15-Nov. 15.

Seed Rates Per Acre: 1-1/4-1-1/2 bushels per acre, 2 bushels per acre, 2 bushels per acre, and 1-1-1/4 bushels per acre.

Rye is the most winter hardy small grain followed by wheat, barley and oats. There are, however, wide ranges in relative winter hardiness among varieties in each species.

Winter hardiness is one of the reasons oats are planted earlier than barley which is planted earlier than wheat.

Small grains should generally be seeded 1 to 2 inches deep. The 2 inch depth would be better under low soil moisture conditions and rainfall is not expected in the near future.

Sandy loam to silt loam, well drained soils are ideal for small grain production.

Heavy clay soils may swell, resulting in the plants being heaved out of the ground. Wind erosion may severely damage stands on extremely sandy soils by removal of soil from around plant roots as well as burial of seedlings by drifting sand.

None of the small grains produces well in poorly drained soil. Barely is especially sensitive to poor drainage.

'Earhart' Movie Is Oddly Flawed Man's Life, Dreams Merge In Clown Role

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An oddly flawed show, "Amelia Earhart," is on NBC tonight. It stars Susan Clark as America's most famous aviatrix and a leading women's lib advocate of her era.

Miss Earhart mysteriously vanished in the Pacific in July 1937 while on a round-the-world flight with navigator Fred Noonan. There later were reports, denied by the Navy, she was spying on Japanese-held islands for the U. S. at the time.

Don't expect any of that tonight. It's not mentioned and the highly dramatic moments of her last flight don't come up until almost the end of the three-hour program.

The focus isn't primarily on her flying exploits or her mysterious disappearance.

It instead concerns her personal life, views and woe as a troubled celebrity who reluctantly married George Putman (John Forsythe), a rich New York publisher who backed her aviation cause with much gusto, relentless publicity and merchandising skill.

Now, the show's flying sequences, staged by Frank Tallman, are just great, whether involving her student days in an old Jenny biplane or as a veteran flying a twin-engine Lockheed Electra.

And Miss Clark does a superb job as the at-times shy, fiercely independent flier folks called "Lady Lindy" because of her supposed resemblance to aviation hero Charles A. Lindberg.

But even though the script by Carol Sobieski indicates an admirable aim — make the lady a real human, not a stereotype — the show just doesn't come off dramatically. It moves too slowly.

And it has some of the most mawkish dialogue this side of True Confession, starting with a young beau sadly says, "You're never going to marry me," and she sadly replies, "But I'm going to love you forever."

The mawk thickens when she confides to her married sister that Putman has been bugging her about marriage, then sighs, "Sometimes I feel the only thing I need from a man is a baby."

It peaks when Miss Earhart, at the peak of her fame, temporarily splits from hubby Putman to gather her thoughts and lecture to women at Purdue University.

He unexpectedly shows up. Surprised, she gently delivers the classic line so often used by the formerly married when they unexpectedly meet their former mates: "You're looking well."

After this, the show has no place to go but up. And it does, providing a subdued, but effective, feeling of approaching doom amid preparations for what becomes her last flight.

Alas, it strikes me as coming way too late.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fantasy blurs a bit of every man's reality, but when the man is a clown, his life and dreams merge into one.

"My life is the circus," explains Raggedy Robin, a 28-year-old street clown who has never traveled the circuit, who chose instead to create his own private world immersed in the magic of the center ring.

"I'm in my own clown world, in a way," he admits.

Inside Robin Smith's Victorian apartment, the rooms are thick with remnants of the circus' Golden Age. A giant image of a clown's face hangs from the ceiling. To the right and left are stacks of ancient circus posters — the hubba-hubba artistry that the Big Top demanded.

The Fat Lady is here — so is Karmi and Gargantua, "the world's most terrifying creature."

The circus paraphernalia crowds out the usual comforts — bed, sofa and the like. "I'm living with as much as I can," Robin says. Much more of his collection is in storage.

The whole fantastic scheme is somehow quite natural — perhaps because this clown takes his fun seriously. He has researched the history of the clown and hopes to publish a book soon.

"I see the clown in a very exalted way, showing the better part of humanity," he says, pointing to a life-sized statue of St. Anthony, the saint of lost objects, whose head is covered by a clown's mask.

"The clown symbolizes the young in man — the foolishness," he says. "I think it's a finer expression of myself. I'm portraying who I am in my heart of hearts."

In costume, he dons white slippers, jumpsuit with stripes and star and gant red, white and blue ruffled buttons. He says he feels "juicy" in his make-up, but his manner is not much different in street clothes.

"I was kid I was a clown when I was kid," Robin says, although he admits to other dreams, of becoming Peter Pan or even a priest. He grew up in Vermont, and made his commitment to the art of clowning 10 years ago after coming to San Francisco. In 1968, he studied in Paris with mime Marcel Marceau.

In 1971, he married. His bride was a woman clown, of course, named Raggedy Jane. Their wedding at Glide Memorial Church was billed as the "Magical Wedding Circus" and attracted international media attention.

They separated a year later.

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. While you have a fair hand, it is not quite good enough to jump. A leap to three spades would show the ability to take about seven tricks in your own hand, and you are a mite short of that. Since partner is likely to bid again, you can make some loud noise later to show your values, depending on his rebid.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠83 ♠AK1076 ♠954 ♠K83
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠
INT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Bid two no trump. With a timid partner, we would even suggest a leap to three no trump. Partner must be better than minimum to freely rebid over the interference. You have 10 points and a good five-card suit, so you should make some effort to get to game. Don't rebid your heart suit—that would show a weaker, more distributional hand, with a distaste for no trump.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠954 ♠K10 ♠AJ6 ♠AK1063
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—The bidding has developed awkwardly. You really have quite a good hand, but there is no convenient way to describe it. You are balanced and would like to bid no trump, but you have no stopper in the enemy suit; a rebid of three clubs misdescribes the shape of your hand. The least of evils seems to be to raise partner's hearts. Admittedly, we are reluctant to raise with only a doubleton honor, but the fact that partner entered the auction freely at the two-level suggests that he has either a good suit or enough strength to direct the hand to an alternative contract.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K6 ♠984 ♠A10763 ♠J53
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass INT Pass Pass
Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. The fact that partner reopened the bidding with a double in the face of a strong no trump suggests that he must have very close to an opening bid. You have a hand with useful defensive values and a natural opening lead. Since declarer will obviously find little of use in dummy, he will have to play from his hand all the time.

(The opening lead is the most important single play in bridge. And Charles Goren's "Opening Leads" will help you to substantially increase your winnings. For a copy, send $1.50 to "Goren-Leads," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.)

Q.1—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♠6 ♠KQ107 ♠94 ♠AKQ1072
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Five hearts. Partner has cooperated in your slam effort by cue-bidding the ace of spades. Your only concern now is the diamond suit where you have two potential fast losers. By leaping to five hearts, you tell partner you are worried about diamonds—if he has second-round control, he will go on to slam.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J7642 ♠K5 ♠J5 ♠KQ82
Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you respond?

A.—In terms of high cards, you have the values for a slam try. Partner has at least 22 points and you have 10. However, your hand is slightly unbalanced, so a suit contract might play better than no trump. You should start the investigation by responding three spades. If partner simply rebids three no trump, continue describing your hand by showing your second suit.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK106 ♠KQ7 ♠K8 ♠KQ73
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two no trump. You have a balanced hand of 20 points, and that is exactly what this rebid shows. We are not in the habit of suppressing a biddable major suit, but there is no convenient way to introduce your spades now. If you rebid one spade, you run the risk that partner might pass. And if you jump to two spades, you will have a job convincing partner later that you have a balanced hand—he will expect some distributional values.

Q.4—As South, both vulnerable and you have 60 on score, you hold:
♠AK54 ♠KQJ106 ♠AQ52
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—We vote for a simple overcall of two diamonds, although we won't severely criticize an immediate cue-bid of two hearts. Under no circumstances should you make a takeout double. There is a high probability that partner has length in spades, in which case he may doggedly rebid his suit until it is too late. The cue-bid has the advantage of showing your strength, while warning partner you may not have a fit for his spade suit.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

Not Many Critics On Energy Supply

HOUSTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe says the nation will use during the remainder of this century as much fuel as it has produced in its history.

Kleppe said the nation has the technology to meet such a requirement and sufficient resources to produce enough energy to insulate itself against international blackmail and economic uncertainty.

But he says the nation does not have a wide range of options for increasing the energy supply.

"To hope that solar energy will be a major energy resource before the turn of the century is unrealistic, as much as I hate to say it," Kleppe said.

"Perhaps the breeder reactor will begin to produce in the 1990s. But no one is promising that."

He said there are hopes for major scientific breakthroughs, but that, once again, no one can say when this might occur.

What we have, what we know we can count on for energy, are oil, gas, coal, and uranium," Kleppe said.

"Our goal is to reduce our oil imports from last year's 6 million barrel per day level to 3.8 million barrels a day in 1985."

In recent speeches and at news conferences, Kleppe has outlined what such a goal would require under an assumption of an annual growth rate of 2.8 per cent in energy demand.

"We need to raise our production of oil, including gas liquids, from last year's 9.8 million barrels a day to 14 million barrels per day in 1985," he said.

"We need to produce 22 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in 1985, compared with 20 trillion last year. We need to mine and use one billion tons of coal, compared with 640 million tons produced last year."

And, he adds, the nation's nuclear generating capacity has to be increased by four times the 1975 capacity.

The nation's proved crude oil reserves have declined each year since 1967. Its reserves of gas liquids and of natural gas have declined each year since 1968.

Excluding Alaska's North Slope region, crude oil reserves have dropped from 31.4 billion to 23 billion barrels, gas liquids from 8.6 billion to 6.2 billion barrels, and natural gas reserves from 292 trillion to 202 trillion cubic feet.

Kleppe said the nation now must expand its production after having made all the easy discoveries.

"Now we have to look harder and invest more for production once we have located the mineral," he said.

"Although we are a long way from wringing the last drop of oil out of the continental United States, the easy discoveries have been made and the large fields have been located on shore."

Kleppe said some temporary relief is on the way through the completion of the Alaskan pipeline and the start of production from the North Slope's Prudhoe Bay field next year.

"Prudhoe Bay will provide 2 million barrels per day, but we will still have to discover the equivalent of a Prudhoe Bay every 2½ years just to stay even with current production," he said.

"The largest new domestic source to meet oil and natural gas needs over the next two critical decades are the Outer Continental Shelf areas."

Offshore development, Kleppe said, can supply needed energy with less damage to the environment and at a lower cost to the American economy than any alternative source of petroleum.

One Accident And A Larceny On Weekend

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Police Department reported one automobile accident and one larceny over the weekend.

No persons were injured in a two car collision Friday at 1:30 p.m. Vehicles operated by Bonnie Gwen Purser of Winterville and Lenvia Ray Maye of Winterville collided at the intersection of Mill Street and Main Street according to Winterville Chief of Police, G. I. Jones.

Damages were estimated at $200 to the Purser vehicle and $100 to the vehicle operated by Maye.

Sam Tripp of 114 E. Main St. reported that a lawn mower valued at $80 was stolen from his home during the past week.

According to Chief Jones the exact date that the lawn mower was stolen has not been determined since Tripp discovered that the lawn mower was missing when he returned home after having been away for a week.

Trading was light. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 3.33 at 935.42, after a drop of 16.12 points last Thursday and Friday.

Losers outpaced gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers ascribed the slow pace of activity partly to the observance of Veterans Day in some parts of the country.

They noted a general air of disappointment over the drop in the market late last week, which all but erased gains built up last Monday through Wednesday.

In addition, traders seemed to be inclined to sit tight as the very close campaign contest for the presidency comes down to its final stages.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 58 3/4. An 80,900-share block traded at 58 1/2.

Exxon, which posted a 3.8 percent decline in its third quarter earnings, gave up 3/4 to 50 3/4 in active trading.

The NYSE's composite common stock index lost .18 to 53.24 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .10 at 97.78.

Family visitation will be held tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock at Flanagan and Hardee Funeral Chapel.

at the called meeting this Tuesday night. "It is very important that our membership attend this meeting or either return their proxy vote today as the North Carolina laws require a two third majority of the entire membership to ratify the proposed consolidation and the adoption of the new By-Laws," President Collier said. At the called meeting the new organization of the Chamber will be discussed and a question and answer period will follow the proposal of the consolidation. There will be adequate parking for the meeting.

Three Greenville Men Named To Committee

East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, David J. Whitchard II and F. L. "Bill" Britt of Greenville have been named to the state steering committee of "Educators for Carter-Hunt" by Mrs. Betty McCain, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

At its first meeting in Raleigh, gubernatorial candidate Jim Hunt told the committee, "During the current Republican administrations in Raleigh and Washington, it has been obvious that adequate attention to improve education needs have not been given.

Hunt said, "the election of Jimmy Carter will mean a new national commitment in support of local and state efforts, public and private, to improve education. With a Democratic President in Washington and a Democratic Governor in Raleigh, this state will fulfill its historic commitments to the best possible education for all our citizens."

Craig Phillips, Democratic candidate for re-election as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, told the more than 80 members of the steering committee, "that the entire Democratic team is dedicated to the premise that education is a key issue in the state and nation and all of us are pledged to help frame and support educational progress during the next four years."

Likes Pose On Rooftop

DETROIT (AP) — Dan Ogden says he's used to surprising people who see him standing on suburban roofs, wearing a black top hat and tails.

One man recently "screamed at the top of his lungs" for his wife, Ogden recalled. "Ethel, the man yelled," he said, "come out here — there's a chimney sweep on the roof!"

Ogden, dressed in the traditional 19th century garb of an English sweep, has spent the past two months hauling a trailer full of brushes, ropes, poles and an enormous vacuum cleaner from chimney to chimney in southeastern Michigan.

The 28-year-old University of Michigan graduate usually foregoes slithering down chimneys, opting instead for his special vacuum cleaner to handle most jobs.

Ogden said he learned the trade from a friend last summer after the energy crisis spurred a widespread renewed use of fireplaces.

Judy Carter Be Hosted Here

Mrs. Judy Carter, wife of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's oldest son, Jack, will be present at the First District Rally of the N.C. Democratic Party Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Redman's Hall in Washington, N.C.

Council of State and Democratic candidates at all levels also will be present.

Mrs. Carter also will appear in Greenville Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 when she visits the Pitt County Democratic Headquarters on Memorial Drive here. She will be here an hour.

The public is invited to meet Mrs. Carter at either place. She is one of 11 members of the Carter family now on the campaign trail. Her husband, an Atlanta attorney, is also touring on his father's behalf.

Announcement of the Greenville visit is released by Betty Speir of Bethel, Chairperson of the Pitt County Democratic Party. Members of the local Carter for President Committee are Janice Faulkner, chairperson; Carl Darden; and John Bizzell, all of Greenville, and Sam McLawhorn of Grifton. Tickets for the First District Rally are available from any Democratic county chairman.

Chief Owned A Pot Plant

MOREHEAD, Ky. (AP) — Police Chief James Pelfry admits he had a four-foot-high marijuana plant growing in his backyard, but he adds, "I never touched it and I never intended to touch it."

The 49-year-old police chief of this northeastern Kentucky community said Sunday that after a drug raid earlier this year, he tried to destroy some confiscated marijuana in a spot in his backyard that his wife had cleared for tomatoes.

Pelfry said he set fire to the haul, but since that didn't destroy all the seeds, he decided "to let it go and see what it looked like."

"I was just curious. I just wanted to see how big it would grow and what it would develop into," Pelfry said the only reason the plant appeared to be cultivated was that his wife had cleared the area for the tomato plants. He also denied reports that the wayward plant was staked.

Since word of the plant got around town, Pelfry said he "pulled it up, broke all the leaves and stems off and threw it in the trash."

Permit Public Advisor Groups

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The municipal government has authorized the formation of neighborhood committees of prominent residents to advise the city government on local problems.

The committees will not be able to carry out any political or ideological activity, due to the general ban imposed by the armed forces when they took power last March.

EMERGENCY LOANS

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Livestock producers facing financial problems have until Dec. 31 to apply for loans from the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.

The act was initiated as a temporary program by the Farmers Home Administration and provides emergency help to producers whose businesses have a good chance of success if current liquidity problems can be solved.

Carter, Ford...

Carter both found reason for optimism. The Detroit News found Ford leading in Michigan, but by only three percentage points, 45 to 42.

In North Carolina, The News and Observer of Raleigh found that Ford is nearly tied with Carter in a state once all but conceded to the Georgian. Its survey showed Ford less than two points behind.

The New York Times and The New York News both said Carter was leading in the Empire State. The Times did not give statewide percentages, but The News said Carter led by 53-44 per cent.

With the race so close, Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale was stumping the industrial Northeast, reminding party regulars that a difference as small as one vote per precinct, spread across the country, might affect the outcome of the election.

He pointed to the results in 1960 and 1968, when the Democrats won and lost by extremely narrow margins. He urged them to vote and work to get the vote out.

Dole, in Michigan, visited a Billy Graham crusade service in a football stadium at Pontiac. Graham introduced Dole and his wife, Elizabeth, to the crowd of 50,000. But he said he was not endorsing anyone in the election this year.
