Carter's Foreign Policy Plans 'Dangerous': Ford

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
President Ford says Jimmy Carter's plans for foreign policy are "potentially dangerous" and warned that the Democratic nominee advocates domestic programs that could "wreck our economy."

With the balloting only a week away, both Ford and Carter are storming through states considered critical to their campaigns.

Carter, who spent the weekend at home in Plains, Ga., was beginning his final campaign trip, starting the day in South Carolina and moving on to highly contested Illinois.

Ford, in a speech prepared for delivery today in Pittsburgh, stressed his experience in Washington. He was critical of Carter for statements Ford said would "concede such nations as Yugoslavia to the Soviet sphere" and promise "total economic warfare against the Arabs in the event of another oil embargo."

Such statements, Ford contended, "invite conflict" and aggression.

Ford said both sides in the Middle East trust the United States, but he warned that Carter's policies could "drive these countries into the arms of the Soviets, threatening the stability of the area and eventually inflicting enormous harm upon the very country that it purports to help, the state of Israel."

Ford said voters must choose between his foreign policy and "venturing into the unknown with a doctrine that is untested, untried and, in my view, potentially dangerous."

On Monday, Ford taped a radio broadcast in which he claimed Carter embraces programs that would cost about $200 billion, "requiring a 50 per cent increase in federal taxes." Ford has claimed in the past that programs named by the Democratic platform, such as health care and various job-creating plans, would cost $100 billion.

Carter has said he would delay new programs until revenues are available and in relation to his plans to balance the federal budget by 1980. Carter also has called for lowering taxes for low- and middle-income Americans by closing loopholes available to those in the highest income brackets.

Both vice presidential candidates, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, were on the road Monday.

Mondale was in New Jersey where he said Ford has refused to support programs that he said help those who are unable to help themselves. Dole was in Pennsylvania where he said he had reservations about fighting in World War II, which he has characterized as a "Democrat war."

Meanwhile, a Harris poll of 1,503 persons with some college education shows a large switch in sentiment from Carter to Ford among better educated Americans.

In July, the college-educated backed Carter 62-33 per cent, Harris said. Harris said the new count, taken before the third Ford-Carter debate, showed the group backing Ford 51-38 per cent, representing a shift from a 29-point Carter lead to a 13-point deficit.

Harris said those in the sampling felt by 57-32 per cent that Carter ducks issues; a 53-27 per cent majority felt that he no longer seems independent of the party "establishment," 56-35 per cent felt "uneasy" about the kind of man Carter is, and 46-28 per cent believed that Ford is the man they can best trust.

In Portland, Ore., on Monday, Ford said all 50 states should develop nuclear energy programs, and that the use of nuclear energy is "an important, significant part of our over-all energy program."

Before leaving Portland for a late night flight to the East Coast, Ford said, "We're very optimistic. We think the momentum is going with us and we're going to surprise some people."

While in Portland, Ford had been scheduled to meet with a group of Oregon labor leaders, but none of them showed up. Asked why they hadn't appeared at the appointed time, Ford said, "I understand for various reasons they were not available. You'll have to ask them."

Earlier, Ford told Seattle aerospace workers at a Boeing plant that new noise standards he has ordered for U.S. airlines will create 250,000 jobs in their slumping industry.

Ford said noise restrictions he announced last week will strengthen the aircraft industry by requiring construction of "a fleet of quiet, new airplanes." That, he said, will produce "almost a quarter of a million useful, productive jobs for Americans."

Get A Surprise At Old Number

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore area residents who dial 837-1040 expecting to reach the information desk of their local Internal Revenue Service office are in for a surprise. Now they'll be getting H&R Block, the private income tax preparers.

IRS dropped the 1040 exchange — same as the most commonly used federal tax form — last October, and the private firm immediately applied for it.

A spokesman for Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. said the assignment was just the luck of the draw.

Planning-Zoning Meet Tomorrow

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will consider a total of ten items at Wednesday night's meeting.

The City-County board will discuss three items, including: preliminary plat of Tucker Industrial Park; preliminary plat of Nichols Commercial Subdivision located north of the Tar River and east of US 264; and Revised preliminary and final plat of Professional Center adjacent to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Business on the Greenville board's agenda includes: revised final plat of Windy Ridge Condominiums, Section II; revised preliminary plat of Section II of Mills Subdivision; Revised preliminary and final plat of Greenville Square

Shopping Center; sediment control plan for property located on E. Tenth Street near the intersection of Fornes Road and Green Mill Run;

Consideration of the withdrawal and closing of Pennsylvania Avenue; withdrawal and closing of a portion on the north and the Fred Webb Inc. property on the south; and Rezoning request of Sam J. Vincent and B. J. Lawhead for approximately 19,322 square feet located on the southeast corner of Sylvan Drive and Memorial Drive, from R-6 (residential) to Downtown Commercial Fringe, to allow development of the existing houses as medical offices.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m.

The work force at Boeing's Seattle plant fell from 101,000 in 1968 to 44,800 today.

Ford indicated concern Monday for the number of voters who are expected to stay away from the polls next Tuesday and a Carter spokesman said the Democratic nominee is planning to appeal in the final days of the campaign to those who now have no plans to vote.

Carter spent a quiet day at home on Monday. He looked over the family peanut business early in the day, then returned home to read and prepare for the start of today's trip.

Although he did no campaigning, Carter headquarters issued a statement in the candidate's name criticizing Ford's record on environmental issues.

The statement said the administrations of Ford and Richard Nixon "have shown no serious concern for our environment."

Holshouser Points To Four Years

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser, in the waning days of his single-term administration, tried television Monday night to tell North Carolinians what he has done as governor.

Holshouser, prevented by state law from succeeding himself, claimed changes which he said had saved taxpayers $80 million a year, expanded educational programs and improved the state's road-building program.

Holshouser set the tone for the show at the beginning, rhetorically asking viewers if they could name the successes of his administration. "I've got $10,000 that says you couldn't," he said, referring to the money which he paid to have the show produced and aired.

Jack Childs, a Holshouser spokesman, said Holshouser actually put $13,000 of his own money into the show, with increases coming after the opening segment was taped.

It was an unprecedented move for a governor to spend his own money to recount his administration, and Holshouser explained the program with an old adage — "Good news doesn't sell newspapers."

The slickly packaged 30-minute program, pre-empting such shows as "To Tell the Truth" and "The Andy Griffith Show," was carried by eight stations Monday night. Another one scheduled it for tonight.

The show, which Childs said was produced by a New York advertising executive who had a hand in Holshouser's campaign advertising four years ago, took a folksy tone. Holshouser chatted amiably from behind his desk, at a highway construction site, in a state park, in the governor's mansion with his wife and daughter, and on other locations.

"Whether you voted for me or not, I hope you don't feel that I've let you down," Holshouser said. "I didn't make many promises in 1972, but I believe we've kept those I did make."

Holshouser said, "We started working on the fat in state government" by establishing an efficiency study commission. He said 600 of the commission's recommendations were implemented and, "It's saved you $80 million in taxes."

In other areas, Holshouser said: "Four years ago, only 3,427 children were in the state kindergarten system. Now, more than 80,000 children are enrolled in the system, which is open to everyone.

"I promised in 1972 to get our highway program out of politics and start a road-building program based on planning and real issues. We've tried hard to do just that."

"We've bought more land for state parks than any other administration — in fact, more than all the other administrations in history put together."

—He said the state's industry program is bringing new business to smaller cities, but environmental concerns have also been important. "We've fought hard for the New River, the Jockeys Ridge and the Cape Lookout National Seashore," Holshouser said.

Childs said the program produced "a flood of calls to the governor's mansion — they were saying they liked the show."

Childs said Holshouser was not in Raleigh Monday night and was unavailable for comment.

Holshouser, a Republican, did not mention partisan politics during the program.

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, who is seeking the House speakership, said the program was "a well done presentation from a gubernatorial vantage point."

"I think it was quite obvious that the legislative role in whatever has been accomplished is quite significant and I heard no mention of the role," Stewart said.

During the speech, Holshouser indicated he thought news coverage of his administration could have been more favorable. "I know I haven't pleased some of the editors — I think one of them has spent all four years trying to prove he was right when he endorsed my opponent," Holshouser said.

Rep. Laurence Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, said he thought Holshouser was trying to show the positive effects of his administration.

"He feels badly that everything was negative," Cobb said.

The program was Holshouser's idea, Childs said. The Governor, his aides and the production company worked on the show during the past month, with the filming completed eight days ago.

In Charlotte, both WRET-TV and WCCB-TV carried the program at 7 p.m.

A spokesman at WCCB said the only comment the station received was "one man who wanted to know how much he (Holshouser) paid for it."

Rhodesia Is Pressured To Free Political Prisoners

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Britain supports black nationalist demands for the release of political prisoners held by Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime in Rhodesia, a British spokesman said today.

A spokesman for Ivor Richard, the British United Nations ambassador who is to chair talks on majority rule for the breakaway colony, said the backing would come today, possibly in the form of a message to the Smith delegation or in a meeting.

New black demands and Smith's claim Monday that his white minority regime could hold on to power for years widened the gulf between the two sides and dimmed the outlook for the conference, scheduled to open Thursday.

Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, two of the four black leaders who will face Smith at the conference, topped a list of demands Monday with a call for the immediate release of political prisoners from Rhodesian jails.

The British spokesman said the demand was being passed on to the Smith delegation, and "we of course identify ourselves with it." Britain has urged Smith to free political prisoners held without charge, especially those sought by black nationalist delegations as advisers. The black leaders also demanded that Smith and his aides be counted as members of the British delegation, in effect repudiating his unilateral declaration of independence from Britain in 1965.

Other nationalist demands included: That a cabinet minister replace Richard as chairman of the talks; that the Smith regime halt its antiguerilla warfare; and that Britain pay all expenses for the four black delegations.

Spokesmen for Nkomo and Mugabe would not say whether their demands had to be met before they would attend the conference.

The British delegation said it did not expect Richard to be replaced by a cabinet minister, but the demand had been passed on to the government in London.

It was thought that Smith might order a few releases, but he was considered certain to reject the other demands on him.

Smith angered the blacks Monday by boasting at a news conference that his military forces are killing 12 or 13 blacks for every white victim in the four-year-old war with the black guerrillas based in Mozambique and Zambia.

"You know we are having great success against the terrorists," Smith said. "A 12-or-13-to-1 kill ratio....

"There are people who believe that we have come to this conference because we feel the position in Rhodesia is weak, that we have come here desperate. They seriously misjudge the situation. I can assure you, if it's necessary for Rhodesia to continue as we are now for another 20 years, we will do that."

Bumper Grain Crop In Soviet

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet imports of Western grain are not expected to decrease immediately despite Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's announcement of a bumper Soviet crop this year.

Opening the second session this year of the party's 280-member central committee, Brezhnev said Monday that 216 million tons of grain have been harvested so far this year, and that the final total may top the record of 222 million tons in 1973.

Western specialists in Moscow cautioned that Brezhnev's totals could be gross weight figures, including wet wheat, chaff and even rocks. But they agreed that Soviet agriculture has recovered from its extreme difficulties of last year, when only 140 million tons of grain were harvested and 26-30 million tons were imported from the West.

However, the bumper crop is not expected to affect imports immediately. The Soviet Union is already locked into a series of grain purchasing contracts with Western nations, including a commitment to buy at least 6 million tons of American corn and wheat per year for the next five years.

Brezhnev, 69, made his announcement in a 10,000-word report to the otherwise secret committee session. The party chief devoted most of the speech to foreign policy and called once more for Western countries to take a more serious approach to detente.

He accused the United States of not responding to Soviet proposals made in March at the strategic arms limitation talks in Geneva and contended that the American presidential election is standing in the way of an agreement.

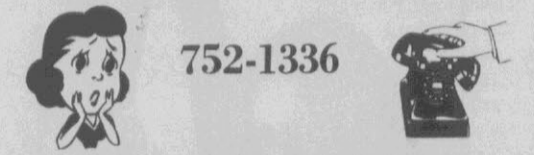

Brezhnev expressed support for an expansion of U.S.-Soviet trade. He also reiterated the argument that Soviet-American trade is being held to a shadow of what it could be by such American barriers as the failure to grant the Soviet Union most-favored-nation trading status.

The pound's nosedive was preceded by publication of a Sunday Times article saying the government would be forced to devalue the pound to $1.50 because the United States and the International Monetary Fund — IMF — want it at that level before the fund grants a $3.9 billion loan.

NO FUSS

I would like to locate some burial service in this area. As soon as death occurs to me, I wish all usable body organs to be placed in organ banks for any needy person or experiment. I then wish my remains to be immediately cremated and dispersed. While I am alive I wish to pay for the above service and, in that respect, delete the necessity of embalming, coffin, funeral arrangements, and extension of the sorrowful burial period. In a nutshell, no eulogy, no funeral, no fuss. P.A.

Hotline put you in touch with the Triangle Memorial and Funeral Society, which has an office in Chapel Hill. For $10 you may apply for family or individual membership and will be sent a membership card, member's manual and forms for filing your desired funeral or memorial service (or wish that there be no such service) with next of kin, minister, undertaker, and the Society. In answer to your request, Gertrude M. Willis, M.C., who is executive secretary of the Society, says that embalming is not required. She suggests that donation of the body to a medical school involves no expense of any kind.

For more information you may write the Society at Box 1223, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514 or may call Dr. Willis at 942-4427.

If the donation to a medical school idea appeals to you, you may wish to talk to Dr. Michael Schweisthal of the ECU School of Medicine, 757-6217.

Most Of French 'Sewer Gang' Arrested Today

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — Most of the sewer gang that pulled off the $8 million to $10 million "robbery of the century" in Nice was arrested early today in coordinated raids across France, police sources said.

The whereabouts of the money was not known, and there was no comment from police officials beyond acknowledging that a vast arrest operation was in progress in connection with the case.

About 30 men were grabbed in Nice, Marseille, Montpellier, Nimes, Corsica and the Paris region, including most of the robbers who made off with safe-deposit box contents from the Societe Generale branch bank in Nice the weekend of July 17-18, the informants said. The thieves dug their way into the bank from a sewer.

A gang using the same technique robbed a branch of the same bank on the Ile St. Louis in Paris a month later, rifling 191 safe-deposit boxes of an estimated $5 million in cash and valuables.

French sewer bandits first struck in December 1975, trying to knock over a post office vault in Paris, but they were interrupted and fled empty-handed. In January 1976 they tunneled into a Paris bank vault, emptying 40 safe-deposit boxes. The amount taken was not made public.

On Oct. 8, Paris police arrested 40-year-old auto mechanic Raymond Brisacier and said he was trying to sell bonds stolen in the Ile St. Louis robbery. Police said although they were convinced Brisacier did not participate in the Ile St. Louis robbery, he knew the gang members and was part of their fencing operation.

Detectives said Brisacier had already cashed in bonds for about $24,000, but when asked where he got them replied that a man he met by chance in a cafe sold them to him for a commission.

Special Workshop Held On Decorator Lampshades

Attractive "punch and cut" lampshades were made at a recent workshop held at the Agricultural Extension office.

The workshop was sponsored by Pitt County members of the Home Economics Division of the Coastal Plain Development Association. Mrs. Mary Jo Nason served as instructor of the group.

Mrs. Nason was first introduced to the "punch and cut" lampshades in her home state of Pennsylvania according to Mrs. Sue B. May, Pitt County home economics extension agent.

During the past several years Mrs. Nason, who is a home economist by profession, has practiced the art and has added her own techniques in producing the product, added Mrs. May.

This type shade can be found in Wintearthur, the Dupont Museum, which perhaps houses the largest collection of American decorative arts in the world.

Women present for the workshop included: Miss Grayce Haddock; Mrs. R. A. Davis; Mrs. C. E. Carawan; Mrs. Howard F. Burns Jr.; Mrs. Nathan Smith; Mrs. Percy Boyd; Mrs. Lonnie Staton; Mrs. Evelyn Spangler; Mrs. Herbert Randolph; Mrs. William Tripp; Mrs. John Heine; Mrs. Jerry Bailey; Mrs. Herbert Taylor; Mrs. Edna Elliot; Mrs. Les Turner; and Mrs. May.

Give Daughter Guidelines She Can Live With

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 8-year-old daughter who has recently developed a crush on a boy in her class. He is nine years old and has flunked a grade. He walks her to and from school every day.

All she talks about is kissing this boy and writing love notes. She carries these love notes wherever she goes. The boy is very mature for his age, but seems polite and nice.

This boy calls her two and three times an evening. Last night she asked me if she could go to the movies with him (matinee). She wants me to drop them off there.

Should I allow her to talk to him so often? And how long should an 8-year-old be allowed to talk to a boy on the phone?

Should I try to discourage this relationship, or will it make her more eager to see him?

I really need your advice, Abby. She is our only child, and I want to raise her right.

CONCERNED MOM

DEAR CONCERNED: I think your daughter is too young to be so preoccupied with one boy. Listen to her attentively, however, and keep the lines of communication open. Never ridicule, belittle or put her down for her feelings. (They're normal, though somewhat premature.)

Lay down some ground rules: One call an evening and 10 minutes is long enough.

Put the kibosh on their going to a matinee together. That's dating, and she's too young to date.

Give your daughter guidelines she can live with. It's important for you to be her friend and confidante during her growing-up years.

DEAR ABBY: About motel maids who never get tipped: I've been a motel maid for more years than I care to remember.

Would you believe a grown man wetting a bed? (No tip.) Or a 10-year-old boy who is a nightly bed-wetter whose mother doesn't have enough sense to carry a rubber sheet? I'll bet she has one on his bed at home. (No tip.)

And how about those men who read dirty books that cost from $2 to $20 each, but are so ashamed of what they read that they stick it under the mattress or behind the ice machine on their way out? (No tip.)

I'll take the polite Japanese people any time. They leave a dollar under their pillow daily, and their rooms are as clean when they leave as when they check in.

HAD IT AT HYATT

DEAR HAD IT: A registered nurse registers a complaint. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A "motel maid" wrote you recently, begging for tips. She complained about changing bed linen, scrubbing bathrooms, picking up soiled towels and gathering trash thrown near but not in the trash can. She said an extra dollar would be appreciated for the dirty work she has to do.

I won't go into detail about what we hospital nurses have to do. I'll just say that we work up to our knees in the unappetizing byproducts of illness, infection and old age. And do we get tips? Of course not! We get a salary and do the job we're paid to do.

A housekeeper and a nurse's aid are paid salaries comparable to a hotel maid's. I don't know one fellow employee who would not be insulted if a tip were offered. And that goes for the orderlies and the kitchen and cafeteria help, too.

Women's Prison In Brazil Is Not Usual Lockup

By MARC LIFSHER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — The Talavera Bruce Penal Institute's 175 female inmates rarely misbehave. Most realize they're doing time in the state's most comfortable prison and that a step out of line means transfer to a grimmer lockup.

The medium-security prison on the outskirts of Rio de Janeiro is a giant step away from horror stories told about many other Latin American prisons.

On one gray fall day the prison fairly buzzed with anticipation as the women, mostly young and black, did their hair, painted their nails and dressed up in prison clothes with nonuniform sweaters and other accessories.

This particular Friday the Rio Symphony would be putting on a concert, and some male prisoners from a neighboring men's institution would be brought over for the music.

The unusual concert was part of a program sponsored by a Rio newspaper that takes classical music out of high-priced concert halls and puts it in streets, parks and prisons among a population raised on a steady diet of samba and imported rock.

By the time the three busloads of musicians and choral singers arrived at the gates, the inmates had been wandering around the institution in a state of holidaylike excitement. The orchestra set up with the help of unarmed guards and trustees in a courtyard just inside the prison's surprisingly low walls.

The musicians practiced and milled about, feeling somewhat uncomfortable. Prison Director Jesse de Souza Marquez, 42, eagerly collared a few curious foreign musicians and whisked them away for a tour of the facility.

Marquez showed them the kitchens and classrooms for teaching office work and home economics and the cramped but private five-by-nine-foot cubicles where the inmates sleep.

He said each woman can decorate her cubicle as she wants. The tremendous number of stuffed animals, movie-star posters and cosmetics stuffed into the tiny rooms attested to that freedom.

"The average prisoner stays here from four to five years," the director said, "but the sentences run from one year to life. The women come here for every type of crime, but most because of stealing or drugs."

In general, Marquez said, the incidence of crime by women in the state of Rio de Janeiro remains low. "There are 10,000 prisoners in this state, but only 200 to 300 are women," he said.

He said most of the women are 22 to 28 years old, and a great many of them arrive illiterate.

"But they have to leave literate because we make them attend our prison school," he said, "and the time they spend here helps them rehabilitate because they receive an education which emphasizes liberty. In the one and one half years I've been here, only two women have been sent back to prison out of a total of 148 who have been released."

Marquez said part of his prison administration philosophy calls for minimizing many of the institution's more shocking characteristics. None of the male or female guards carry pistols except for the man at the gate. Women are only locked up at night when in their private rooms.

The state also allows women prisoners who have no one to watch their children while the mothers are in jail to keep their offspring at a special dormitory on the prison grounds. The prison also provides frequent entertainment, such as parties and popular music bands, the director said.

Despite its deceptive low-pressure atmosphere, Talavera Bruce remains a prison, and few prisoners forget that fact. They say they're glad to be where they are as long as they have to be in jail, but they'd rather be out.

"Being here is an enforced vacation," one prisoner said, "and I do mean enforced."

Port Salut Is Classic Cheese

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Back in 1815, the Trappist monks, exiled by the French Revolution, returned to their homeland and founded a new Abbey known as Notre Dame de Port du Salut. Today we associate the name with a classic cheese.

A short time after their return, the monks made a discovery. A bacteria the French call B. Linens could do miracles with cheese, softening and enriching it. The result was the delightful Port Salut famed all over the world today.

Soon after the monks began making it, imitations of Port Salut began cropping up everywhere. Finally the French government stepped in and decreed that only cheese made in France could bear the name. Today several modern plants in that country use the monks' formula to produce the world's supply of this mellow cheese.

Port Salut is compact and elastic, holding its shape when cut. The texture is soft, without holes, and it tastes something like Gouda. The rind of Port Salut should be smooth without cracks.

Whether served with fruit as a dessert or eaten as a snack, Port Salut is satisfying to most cheese lovers. It is especially good with a slightly chilled Beaujolais wine.

Many cheeses lend themselves to cooking and serve as a key ingredient in countless dishes. Their usefulness in this field is determined by how easily and smoothly they melt, how much heat they can tolerate and how much flavor and character they retain when cooked. It is also important to know how well they combine with other foods.

Being a versatile cheese, Port Salut grates easily and melts readily. It makes a fine ingredient in sauces and soups, such as Monk's Cheese Soup. This flavorful recipe, which should delight lovers of both cheese and soup, is a mixture of leeks, chicken broth and milk with grated Port Salut allowed to melt into the mixture. Here's the formula.

- ¼ cup butter
- 2 large leeks, chopped
- ½ cup French rusk crumbs
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups chicken broth
- ¾ pound (3 cups grated) Port Salut
- Salt and pepper
- Toasted slices of French rusk

Melt butter and saute leeks till golden brown. Stir in crumbs. Slowly stir in milk and chicken broth. Stir over low heat till mix thickens slightly. Simmer 15 minutes till leeks are tender. Gradually stir in, a handful at a time, 2 cups of grated cheese. Stir till cheese melts. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Spoon soup into individual oven-proof soup bowls. Top with French rusk sprinkled with remaining grated cheese. Place under broiler till cheese melts and serve. Good with slightly chilled Beaujolais. Serves 8.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My son never fails to amaze me. At age 21, he has come up with a new way to break his neck. It's called a skateboard.

Frankly, I'm tired. I've dedicated my entire life to keeping that kid whole and at a time of my life when I should be eating chocolate sandwiches and getting up at the crack of noon, I'm a bundle of nerves.

It started with the two-wheel bicycle. As I ran along beside him, clutching his sweater with one hand and the bicycle seat with the other, I yelled, "You could kill yourself on this thing." Sure enough, my housecoat caught in the spokes and I almost made a wheel out of myself.

The pogo stick was worse. As he sprang about the house, his head inches from the ceiling, I tried to shield him from falling into a lamp and he lost his balance. . . pinning me, causing the floor and his body, between me and severe pain.

When he wanted a horse, I tried to warn him that I just wasn't up to it, but did he listen? He did not. As I led the beast around by the reins, I was repaid for my vigilance by being stomped on by a 1,500-pound horse.

"We are not going out for football," I told him the summer of his 15th year. "What do you mean what has that got to do with me? I'm your mother. If you want to kill your mother, I can't stop you, but every Mother's Day . . . mark my word . . . you're going to feel just terrible." (I carry with me today a trick knee suffered when I ran onto the playing field with an extra mouthpiece to protect $1,500 worth of braces.)

It never ended. He jumped off the high board at the pool just to give me stomach cramps and just when I thought I had myself under control, he came home with his learner's permit to drive. The only boy I know who was given a ticket for going 25 mph . . . in reverse.)

I thought all of it was behind me until the other night when he was leaving the house with this little board with the wheels under his arms.

"Where are you going?" I asked.

"Trying to find an empty swimming pool, a hull, or a paved ditch. Then I am going to balance myself on this little board up the side of it until I fall off."

I climbed on the skateboard, clutched him around the waist and closed my eyes. "Why don't you like your mother?" I whimpered.

Charges Against 11 Southern Bell Execs Dropped

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charges against 11 current or former Southern Bell Telephone Co. executives were dropped Monday by the prosecutor after he said Southern Bell admitted making "political contributions in North Carolina in violation of North Carolina law."

Dist. Atty. Peter Gilchrist dropped the charges, saying his case would not stand because of the company's admission. Gilchrist said the company said more than 80 of its executives had followed a company practice in the past by falsifying expense vouchers to provide cash for political contributions.

Gilchrist said the statute under which the 11 were indicted requires intent to defraud the corporation. He said the company indicated the 11 were authorized to set company policy and were following such a policy when the illegal money was gathered.

He said Monday night that his investigation was continuing and charges against the company "might be a possibility."

"I think you have a legal question as to whether or not a corporation can be guilty of defrauding itself," Gilchrist said.

"It's an Alice in Wonderland question. Is the corporation the left hand that is being defrauded or the right hand that's doing the defrauding? You sort of meet yourself both ways."

The 11 were indicted in August on charges of filing false expense account vouchers. The indictments stemmed from a Mecklenburg County grand jury investigation into allegations that company officials diverted $142,000 in company funds through bogus expense vouchers from January, 1972, to June, 1973.

A spokesman for Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said it is illegal for a corporation to make political contributions in the state but there is a two-year statute of limitations on the law.

Gilchrist's surprise announcement to drop the charges came as the first of the 11, F. Byran Houck, 43, of Gastonia, an administrative assistant, was scheduled for trial Monday in Mecklenburg County Superior Court.

In a statement before dropping the charges, Gilchrist indicated the 11 charged would have claimed as their defense that they were only following company orders.

"We received assurances from counsel for the corporation that a statement from the president of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., Mr. L.E. Rast, would be issued today (Monday) admitting and confirming the corporation's responsibility in these matters," Gilchrist said.

Rast's statement, which Gilchrist quoted in court, said it was "the company's practice to make political contributions in North Carolina in violation of North Carolina law during that time."

Rast had issued a statement in January, 1975, in which he said the preparation and payment of bogus vouchers that had been discovered in North Carolina "was a flagrant violation of long-standing company policy."

The company Monday refused to comment when asked about the statement.

Monday also said, "Funds were periodically paid in cash by...management level employees to senior level employees in North Carolina for disbursement as political contributions in violation of North Carolina law."

It concluded, "Southern Bell recognizes and accepts responsibility for the acts of its management employees in North Carolina."

Later Monday, a spokesman quoted Rast as saying, "The company is pleased that the indictments have been dropped. The practice, which was not known to the company's board of directors, existed only in North Carolina. Our continuing audits in North Carolina also substantiate that the practice, successfully stopped in mid-1973, no longer exists."

Neither Rast nor B. Franklin Skinner, Southern Bell general manager for North Carolina, would comment further.

Bell's former state manager, John J. Ryan, has said he ran an illegal slush fund at the request of company officials in Atlanta. Ryan, who was fired in 1973, has not been charged in the case.

Neither Gilchrist, other law enforcement officials nor the company has said where the diverted money went.

In addition to Houck, those indicted were:

- Henry Hudson Helms, 53, of Charlotte, state general sales manager.
- Judson Manly "Jud" Palmer, 62, of Charlotte, state general public relations manager.

- Edward Farrier Sykes, 55, of Charlotte, division commercial manager.
- Francis Donald "Frank" Joffron, 50, of Charlotte, administrative assistant.
- Marion Cortez "Bill" Bowlers, 51, of Charlotte, marketing supervisor.
- George P.W. Harmon, 40, Marietta, Ga., company manager in Wilmington before transferring to Atlanta in 1975.
- Frank Edward Roberts, 50, of Charlotte, state general sales manager.
- Charles Duffie Penuel, 54, of Charlotte, assistant vice president for North Carolina.

- John Orman Gilmore, 57, of Charlotte, assistant in charge of relations with independent telephone companies in the state.
- J.B. Smith, 59, of Charlotte, former administrative assistant who left the company last year.

To Sponsor Conference

The North Carolina Association of Educators will sponsor a day-long professional conference at J. H. Rose High School October 29.

Miss Alma Teeple, a Durham County teacher who is NCAE president pointed out that NCAE has sponsored a series of professional conference with workshops for professional improvement each year since the association was formed.

As estimated 3,000 teachers, principals, curriculum, directors, superintendents, and other educators will attend each of the 15 conferences held this fall. The Rose High conference is for educators from the counties of Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt Tyrrell, and Washington.

The conference will open with a general session at 9:30 a.m. Workshops will follow the general session at 10:40 a.m. Each workshop will be repeated at 11:40 a.m. Workshop topics include discipline causes and alternatives, metric system working with handicapped students, teacher-made learning materials, school law, and several association related subjects.

Yearbook Staff Plans Carnival

SNOW HILL — The Greene Central High School Yearbook Staff will sponsor a Halloween Carnival October 28 at 6 p.m. at the Snow Hill National Guard Armory. Admission will be 50 cents.

Entertainment will include the following: a haunted house, hay ride, bingo, pony ride, games, hotdog stand, and a costume contest. The public is invited.

Clinic To Open

Grifton's new public health clinic will open November 4 and begin administering free flu shots.

The clinic, which is located in the old school building on Creek Shore Road, is being established through the cooperation of the Pitt County Health Department and the Town of Grifton. The school building was acquired by the Town of Grifton last year through a HUD Community Development grant, and is being renovated by the town with Community Development funds and Health Department funds.

Grifton Extension Homemakers and Garden Club members are making drapes for the new clinic.

A child development center, arts classrooms, and a historical museum will also be housed in the old school building when renovations are completed.

Costly Wreck In Early Hours

A 2:55 a.m. mishap today on Fifth Street, 25 feet West of the Cadillac Street intersection resulted in an estimated $1,350 property damage, officers reported.

Investigators said a car driven by George Allen Valentine Jr. of Nags Head collided with parked cars owned by Nathaniel Glover of New Haven, Conn., and James William King of 1503B West Fifth St. causing an estimated $700 damage to the Valentine car, $500 damage to the Glover auto and $150 damage to the King car.

Valentine was charged with driving under the influence.

Arrest Youth On Varied Charges

Roger Glenn Odham, 18, of 1113 Forbes St. was arrested last night on charges of robbery, discharging firearms into an occupied dwelling and possession of marijuana.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the robbery and firearms charge stemmed from an incident that occurred at 1111A Forbes St. on July 25. He noted that the marijuana charge was made after officers found a quantity of "grass" in Odham's possession when arrested on the other two charges.

Regional Swine Event Nov. 10

The 1976 Regional Swine Conference will be held at the Wilson County Fairgrounds in Wilson November 10. The conference will begin at 4 p.m. and end at 9 p.m.

The program will include a demonstration of feeder pig and market hog grading, a panel on performance testing, and discussions on swine building management, sawing baby pigs, and 1977 prices.

A pig picking will be provided by Swift and Company. For further information and reservations contact the Pitt Agricultural Extension Office at 758-1196 before November 1.

Responsibility Is Individual's

The bivalent swine flu vaccine program, suspended for a time in Pitt County, has been resumed after it was determined that several deaths were not related to the shots.

The monovalent vaccine was never interrupted in the county.

To facilitate the mass inoculation program special clinics have been established throughout the county. The scheduled was listed in Friday's edition of The Daily Reflector.

We felt that county health authorities were prudent to temporarily halt the bivalent flu shots while the investigation of the deaths was underway.

Now, however, it appears that the vaccine has been cleared for use and the shots have been resumed in Pitt County.

It would be easy to pass up the inoculation and hope that there will be no swine flu epidemic this winter.

Judging by the severity of the attacks which affected the few people who had it last year, we feel that not taking the shots is risking alot.

The inoculations are being made available to the public by health authorities, but it will be the individual's responsibility to get to one of the planned clinics for the immunization.

Campus Deserves Credit For Its Role

A three-day visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile on the ECU campus last week collected 960 pints.

Some 1,066 persons turned out for the Air Force ROTC sponsored visit with some rejected for health reasons.

Large blood collections during the campus Bloodmobile visit are not unusual and students, staff and sponsoring organizations deserve much credit for their support of the blood program.

THIS AFTERNOON

Won't Push Tax Plea Hard

By BILL NOBLITT
CHARLOTTE—The state's organization of city officials has voted to push for a local option income tax, and a room tax at hotels and motels.

But the push will not be a vigorous one.

"I just don't believe most of the members of the League are ready for that... most of the officials feel the people are not ready for it," says the new League of Municipalities President Simon C. Sitterson, Jr.

Yet, Sitterson agrees that problems of finance are the most pressing ones facing city governments in North Carolina. He and other influential people at the recent annual meeting of the League seemed largely agreed that while officially endorsing the payroll tax idea, legislative lobbying would not be very intense.

Many Opposed
A number of mayors are outright opposed to the idea. Most of the impetus comes from the larger cities with more commuting workers than the smaller. Even S. Leigh Wilson, executive director of the League and the man in charge of the staff in day-to-day contact with members of the General Assembly, agrees the proposal has an uphill fight.

Some of the sting has been removed by adoption of the League of a proposal (subject to legislative approval) that the local income tax be used only where approved by local voters.

Still, Sitterson says candidly: "I doubt many cities would vote for such a tax."

The problems of municipal finance remain, and dependence will obviously continue on the local property tax as the foundation. Tax experts generally see the arrangement in North Carolina as a good one: the state taking income taxes and most of the sales tax; local governments getting a penny of the sales tax, and all the property taxes. Such a diversified system is best, and the property taxes can be made to produce increasing revenues, state officials believe.

The rationale behind the move for a local income tax comes from city officials who feel that both workers in the city who live elsewhere, and those who live close to the city take advantage of city police, hospital, recreation, parking, street and other amenities, without paying a share of the cost.

Other Ways

Other schemes have, from time to time, been tried to meet that disparity. Some municipalities have levied special charges for use of recreational facilities or hospitals by out-of-town people.

Some cities have imposed especially high auto licensing fees against people who live outside the city but drive into town regularly to work. Either approach produces numerous collection, enforcement and administration problems.

Sitterson has been mayor of Kinston for 14 years, and a member of the City Council before that. While the drive for a local income tax and room tax appears doomed, Sitterson places his top priority on new and increased revenues for local government.

"We can make our big push for the General Assembly to return some of the income produced from other sources to the cities... a form of revenue sharing," Sitterson thinks. Increased funding for schools, for example, would relieve local government of some expenses and the money could be diverted to other purposes.

Two favored approaches Sitterson suggests are the proposed $225 million statewide bond issue for sewerage work; and outright funding by the General Assembly for local mass transit systems.

There has been some movement toward diverting state gasoline tax money away from roadbuilding and into planning and buying equipment for local busses or other mass transit.

YOUR LOUDEST VOICE---USE IT!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Peering At Road Ahead

One week to go; and the time has come in this presidential campaign to lift the fog, and to take a slow, sober look at the road ahead. What do we know about Jimmy Carter? Where would the gentleman take us?

It is not so necessary to ask these questions about Gerald Ford. The past two years have given us time to size up his faults and his virtues. We know the set of his mind. On specific issues, we have Ford's budgets, we have his state papers, we have his veto messages. If Ford wins, we know exactly what to expect.

It is entirely different with Carter. True, we have a stack of his position papers; we have books by and about him; we have a thick file of speeches, interviews, transcripts, and the like. We have his record for four years as governor of Georgia, but we are talking about the presidency of the United States, and it is not the same thing at all.

It adds up to fog. Carter declared his candidacy on Dec. 12, 1974. Nearly two years have passed. The gentleman remains an enigma. If he has any consistent political philosophy, it has not emerged. My own conviction is that he has none. On every substantive political issue of our time, he has plopped down on the liberal side, but this is a computerized liberalism. It is carefully calculated. Carter is a careful, calculating man.

Entirely too much of this campaign has been pursued in a mist. It is all very well to talk of decency, compassion and love, but it is humbug to assert that Carter has more of these qualities than Ford. One recalls Carter's instant reaction in the matter of Clarence Kelley. All he knew of the FBI director's impropriety was what he read in the papers, but he had a hair-trigger answer: Fire him! The gentleman has the instincts of a gunslinger. There is not much charity in him.

When we get away from decency, compassion and love, we plunge into a deeper fog. It is impossible to know, except in the most general way, what his ideas are on tax reform. About all Carter tells us is that the present tax code—a tax code contrived largely by his own party—is a disgrace to the human race. On specific tax proposals, he has wandered all over the map.

It is the same story in matters affecting the economy. We know that he wants certain standby powers to impose price and wage controls, but this tells us nothing. He wants to politicize the Federal Reserve Board through a "cooperative" chairman amenable to his wishes. Carter dwells upon solving unemployment by creating federal jobs; he seems not so concerned about the risk of inflation. But in his position papers, he is yes and no, hot and cold; he says all the ritual things about private enterprise. He is on both sides of every street. We don't know.

To be sure, the gentleman's campaign has its clear and lucid patches. On his first afternoon in office, he would pardon the draft evaders. He would sign a bill abolishing state right-to-work laws. He would ask for prompt creation of a new Consumer Advocacy Agency—this being the same gentleman who on other occasions would reduce the federal bureaucracy. Last week he was hot for immediate action on his plan for comprehensive, mandatory national health insurance. The plan is predicated upon a walloping increase in Social Security taxes—this from a

40 Years Ago Today

October 26, 1936

Squaring away for the grand finale of the presidential struggle, President Roosevelt and Governor Landon came almost within speaking distance of each other today as they prepared their eleventh-hour bids for large blocks of electoral votes in the east.

While President Roosevelt was writing speeches he will deliver in Pennsylvania, New York and nearby states this week, Governor Landon pursued a campaign path that led through Washington en route to Baltimore, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New Jersey and New York. In a speech prepared for delivery at Baltimore he denounced what he called the New Deal's evasion of issues and said the "overwhelming issue" is whether the American people "want dictatorship of a foreign kind."

The only talk on Mr. Roosevelt's schedule today was one described by the White House as non-political, an address at the dedication of a PWA financed chemistry building at Howard University.

ETC lost a hard-fought game to the Western Carolina Teachers in Cullowhee Saturday by a margin of one point, 6-7.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter's Rescue In Texas

By ROWLANDEVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AUSTIN—The best that can be said for Jimmy Carter's chances to bring home the Texas bacon of 26 electoral votes is that he may have stopped his precipitous decline from the giddy heights of midsummer—just in time.

That is far from certain, however, a fact proved by the Carter camp's revealing effort to stem the hemorrhage by sending in a flying platoon of blue-ribbon Atlanta bankers and businessmen last week.

Their unpublishable mission: to "allay the fear syndrome," in the words of a leading pro-Carter Dallas businessman. That syndrome of fear over Carter's economic policies had dangerously diminished Carter support among most conservative and many moderate Democrats who control this state's oil, gas, banking, insurance, real estate and construction billions.

Indeed, with John B. Connally, the former conservative Democratic governor, exploiting his influence over Texas business—particularly on his own Houston turf—on behalf of President Ford, Carter's business support was down to a devastating low point. "In Houston," a top Democratic officeholder told us, "Big John's got the money taps turned off tight."

The flying squad of Atlanta's finest dispatched last week by Carter was headed by Charles Kirbo, Carter's backroom eminence, and included Bert Lance, head of the National Bank of Georgia, Richard L. Kattel, president of the Citizens and Savings Bank, Frank Moore, a longtime Carter operative, and others. In Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth, El Paso, Lubbock and here in the state capital, worried Texas businessmen listened to their soothing words that Carter is, too, a fiscal conservative.

What most worries Texas business is Carter's windmill assault on the "disgraceful" tax system and its big-business shelters and loopholes, but with no off-setting plan guaranteeing future accumulation of risk capital. Risk capital is mother's milk to this booming empire of free enterprise with its high population growth (17,000 every month) and low unemployment (little more than half the national rate).

Beyond the risks in his fiscal platform, Carter's grave political error was to babble on too much about issues with transcendent symbolic meaning in Texas and other Southern states: that his administration would out-Nader consumer protector Ralph Nader (which translates here into still bigger government); that he would sign a repealer of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act, which permits state right-to-work laws ("gladly" sign it, he told AFL-CIO president George Meany, a subtle escalation much remarked here).

In addition to alienating an important share of Texas business, Carter is vulnerable in this conservative state to other issues of inflammatory symbolism: gun control (Carter favors hand-gun control); the right of farm workers to organize on private property (similar to Carter-backed Proposition 14 in California); cuts in defense spending up to $7 billion a year (costly in this state of military bases, aircraft plants and servicemen).

Early signs that Carter may have given too many hostages to the North when he looked unbeatable in the South are visible in the extremely high number of absentee ballots now flooding the office of Secretary of State Mark White. Normally, heavy absentee voting would help Mr. Ford.

Against these Carter problems in what could be a critically close election is the hoped-for asset of a huge voter turnout with registration almost 1 million higher than 1972. But despite that seeming show of interest, voters are as immune to election excitement here as everywhere else. Indeed, Carter's most important asset is the support of every statewide Democratic officeholder, starting with conservative, unexciting Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Briscoe has campaigned faithfully for Carter particularly in rural Texas where he must do well to win but where the conservative Baptists have turned against him.

"If Jimmy Carter was as nutty as the Republicans claim, Dolph wouldn't be pulling out the stops for him," one high state official says. But he says it without conviction, thus underlining Carterite concern that Carter may not have arrested the precipitous decline from his high perch of last summer or have answered the question that so brutally reveals voter suspicion: what is Jimmy Carter really like? If so, Gerald Ford will win this big-ticket state which has failed to vote with the winner only once—1968—since 1928.

Strength For Today

GREATER THAN THE STARS

One of the most mystifying experiences of life comes when we look up at the stars on a clear night. They are almost numberless.

A visitor to a government observatory once asked the astronomer who was showing him the equipment whether there was danger of collisions because of the apparently overcrowded nature of some sections of the universe. The scientist replied, "If you were to take five shrimps and plant them in the Atlantic Ocean, putting one off Greenland, one off Newfoundland, one off Bermuda, and one on the equator, there would be as much danger of their colliding as there is of a collision of the heavenly bodies."

Human beings certainly seem insignificant compared to the dimensions of the universe. Yet what are planets and stars but lumps of matter. We are living beings made in the image of God. The stars should make us feel not insignificant, but confident and content.

—Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Trial Publicity

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The question still comes up as to what degree the press can cover a trial and still not jeopardize the outcome of that trial. The latest issue involves the mistrial declared in the case of John Harvey Adamson, accused of murdering a newsman, Don Bolles, in Phoenix, Arizona.

In calling a mistrial last Thursday, Judge Frederic Heineman said pretrial publicity made it impossible to select a fair jury. The defense attorney had moved for a mistrial, a prosecutor joined in the motion and the judge declared there had been "sufficient prejudicial publicity in recent weeks to warrant a mistrial."

Adamson is the sole defendant indicted so far in the gangland-style bombing of Bolles, a prominent Phoenix investigative reporter who was the victim of an auto explosion.

Asst. Atty. Gen. William Shafer, the prosecutor, admitted that lawyers had been experiencing difficulty in obtaining fair and impartial jurors during three days of jury questioning.

The defense had claimed that prejudicial remarks had been made by County Attorney Donald Harris. But the judge, although he agreed to the mistrial, did not blame Harris and did not believe Harris acted in bad faith.

Harris had said in a statement that "five or six or perhaps seven persons other than Adamson might soon be indicted for the Bolles killing." He also discussed the possibility of multiple conspirators in the case during a TV news show.

Bolles' newspaper, The Arizona Republic, has published a story on the case every day since the bombing and has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to Bolles' killers.

Was this sensationalism? Newsmen will reply that what Bolles' paper did was simply to give consistent coverage to a crime and the subsequent trial proceedings.

Sometimes it seems that the only ideal conditions acceptable to some courts is no coverage at all. That is impossible. The people demand to be informed. The question is one of interpretation—that is, what constitutes responsible coverage and what constitutes over-publicity. Too often, the line is too fine to be adequately defined.

His Advice: Raise Prices Now

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The man who warned industry in 1969 that "The best way to protect yourself against inflation is to raise your prices faster than others raise their prices," is doing it again.

In a report being circulated this week, Pierre Rinfret tells clients that prudent businessmen should assume a victory by Jimmy Carter, and that price controls might follow.

Therefore, he advises, "management should work to obtain as high a base profit as possible in 1976 and in 1977."

Rinfret wrote that "The point is very basic and very simple but, nevertheless, fundamental. When wage and price controls come, they will be in essence profit controls... Don't get caught as some did in 1971. Forewarned is forearmed."

The attitude expressed by Rinfret is believed to be spreading throughout industry, and might have contributed strongly to a recent hefty increase in the Wholesale Price Index, which is based on catalog or listed prices.

Industry sources say manufacturers and other businessmen are anxious to be on record with higher prices, although many of them are not charging listed prices. In this way they retain pricing flexibility in the event of a price freeze.

Rinfret, a frequent adviser to President Richard M. Nixon, obtained considerable notoriety in 1969 when he warned clients that to cooperate in the fight against inflation by eschewing price increases might boomerang on them.

On August 15, 1971, Nixon reversed his previous hands off prices policy and announced he was imposing a 90-day wage and price freeze, to be followed by wage and price controls.

Much of American industry was caught by surprise, Rinfret noted, especially since Nixon "had professed his profound faith in free markets and his distaste for wage and price controls."

Rinfret states in his advisory to clients that in 1971 "the patriotic industrialist, the cooperative businessman who did not raise prices," was left with profit bases too low to permit increases during the controls period.

"The businessman who had ignored President Nixon's pleas for no price increases in 1969, 1970 and 1971 did much better," he said. "He tended to have a higher profit base and was, therefore, in a better position during the period of wage and price controls."

Rinfret, whose approach to practical economics is to assume that economic considerations are usually tainted by politics, warns clients that "facts may not be important."

"Politics may be and frequently are far more important 'facts' than the economic and financial kind," he said.

To clients who feel Carter would forego controls as unfair, he cautions:

"Fairness is not necessarily a criterion for any decision. The bureaucrats perception of the 'public good' frequently takes precedence over fairness to business or to stockholders."

N—Noon M—Midnight

By The Associated Press
Rain ended along the north coast and Outer Banks early this morning as the cold front that caused rain across the state Monday moved eastward off shore.

High pressure centered over south central Canada began building into the state today. Colder air was to move back into the state today and tonight.

Clouds lingered today as highs ranged from the mid to upper 40s in the northern mountains to near 70 along the south coast. Under fair skies tonight, lows will cool into the 30s across most of the state, ranging from the mid to upper 20s across the northern mountains to the low and mid 40s along the south coast.

Sunny skies will prevail Wednesday but highs will remain cool. Highs will range from the 40s in the northern mountains to low and mid 60s along the south coast.

Across North Carolina Monday, there were cloudy skies and some rain. Rain was more widespread across the mountains, but most reporting locations across the state had measurable rainfall. There was little change in temperatures through the day. Highs ranged from 50s in the mountains to upper 60s and near 70 in the east. The warmest temperature reported was 70 degrees at Cape Hatteras, Cherry Point, Fayetteville, Jacksonville, Rocky Mount-Wilson and Wilmington.

Rain persisted into Monday night and became more general across the state east of the mountains. Rain ended across the mountains before midnight and eastward across the Piedmont and much of the coastal plain early this morning. Lows ranged from the upper 40s and 50s in the west to 60s along the coast.

Rainfall amounts Monday and Monday night were generally less than one inch.

Counted 4 Traffic Accidents Monday

Four traffic mishaps here yesterday resulted in an estimated $6,840 property damage.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 6:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards and involved cars driven by Louise Proctor Tadlock of 1509 East Fourth St. and Ethel Everette Nichols of 109 Greenway Dr.

Police, who estimated damage at $2,000 to the Tadlock car and $3,000 to the Nichols car, charged Mrs. Tadlock with falling to stop for a stop light.

No charges were reported in the other three collisions which included a four-vehicle mishap about 2:02 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Trade Street.

Police identified drivers of the vehicles involved in that collision as William Brooks Eaks of Route 2, Farmville; James Garrett Davis of Louisburg, Thomas Earl Clark of 1901A Norcott Cir., and Joyce Anne Harris of Route 4, Greenville.

Damage was estimated at $100 to the Eaks truck, $100 to the Davis car, $300 to the Harris

Claim Racist Campaign Literature Distributed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The assistant director of Jimmy Carter's state campaign has complained that racist and false campaign literature is being distributed in North Carolina by supporters of President Ford.

Cher Brooks said Monday Democrats in Wilmington, Morehead City and Rocky Mount had reported getting the literature. Some of it was anonymous, she said, and was sent to predominantly rural homes in eastern North Carolina.

"We turned it over to the SBI (State Bureau of Investigation) for investigation," Miss Brooks said.

Ted Hydinger, executive director of the Ford campaign in North Carolina, said his office has not been involved with anonymous mailings. The flyers his office has distributed, he said, did not distort the truth.

Miss Brooks said poor quality photographs of what appeared to be a magazine picture of Carter kissing the cheek of a black woman were mailed anonymously. The headline on the flyers read: "Guess why he's going to get the Negro vote," she said.

Tom Kilpatrick, reached at his home in Morehead City Monday night, said he was responsible for distribution of 20 copies of the photograph. He did it as a gag, Kilpatrick said, adding that he is a Republican but has no official role in the state Republican party or President Ford's committee.

He said the photograph shows Carter kissing Aretha Samuels, who was appointed by Carter to a state office while he was governor of Georgia.

Kilpatrick said the photograph was on the front page of the Oct. 18 issue of "Spotlight," a conservative weekly newspaper of Washington.

There were reports of the photograph being circulated fairly widely in the state, particularly in the rural East and mountainous West.

Every motor driven vessel should have an identification number painted on each side of the bow and the copy of the number should be aboard whenever the vessel is in operation.

Miss Brooks said another anonymous letter accused Carter of favoring registration of all handguns. She added, "Jimmy Carter is a hunter and Ford had much more stringent gun control laws that he has supported. Carter only wants to register Saturday night specials (cheap handguns)."

A spokesman for the state Justice Department said the case comes under the jurisdiction of the state Board of Elections. The flyer and names of those involved will be sent to the board, the spokesman said. State Elections Director Alex Brock said Monday night he had not received any information or request concerning the case.

Miss Brooks said a flyer paid for by the Ford committee compares the candidates' records and contains distortions of Carter's stand on some issues such as taxes and welfare.

When Jimmy Carter gets specific, Americans get worried.

Jimmy Carter has a reputation for being fuzzy on the issues. But lately he's been getting specific—and Americans have been getting worried.

He says it's okay to slash 5-15 billion dollars from America's defense budget, despite the fact that the Russians are moving full steam ahead.

He says he supports "with enthusiasm" the Democratic Party platform, despite the fact that it's a more-big-government, more-big-spending platform that would cost the taxpayers over $100 billion more the first year alone.

He says we've got to check inflation, but his all-out support of that same platform means lots more deficit spending—and lots more inflation.

He says he doesn't like forced busing, but names Walter Mondale as his running mate, one of the strongest supporters of pro-busing legislation in Washington.

He says he's for the middle class home-owners, but proposes the elimination of the mortgage tax deduction for home-owners—which enables many working, middle class families to afford a home.

He says we've got to attack crime, but all he offers are warmed-over liberal notions, and comes out against capital punishment.

He says he's for preserving neighborhoods, but backs programs which would mean more federal control at the expense of local control, and proposes to tax church-owned properties—churches being one of the most stabilizing forces in neighborhoods.

He says he's for the middle-income taxpayer, but announces he would increase taxes on all those earning more than the median income—which is only $13,000 per year.

No wonder Americans are getting worried. No wonder growing numbers of them are lining up behind President Ford... a man whose leadership has cut the inflation rate in half, put 4 million more Americans back to work in the last 18 months, and restored the trust of Americans in their government.

President Ford He's making us proud again.

McCloskey Is Being Cast In Establishment Role

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer
MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pete McCloskey, a symbol of protest since he challenged his party's president on the Vietnam war, is being crowded out of his role as Establishment critic this year by another kind of dissenter.

"He was elected as a maverick but he votes like a Ford," puns David Harris, ex-radical draft resister turned Democratic politician and congressional candidate. Harris has mounted a promising campaign in the district south of San Francisco where Republican McCloskey has cornered the Democratic vote for nearly a decade. "It's really strange for Pete to be put in an Establishment role," mused a McCloskey aide. "He doesn't like it at all." From his first election to Congress in 1967, when he took on the party regulars who backed Shirley Temple Black in the GOP primary, Paul N. McCloskey has cultivated the outsider's image.

It reached its peak of publicity when he dared to enter 1972 primaries as a test of GOP support for President Nixon's war policy.

"He was great on the issues of Nixon and the war," Harris says now. "But those issues aren't around any more. On other issues, his voting record is standard Republican."

To counter that image, McCloskey, 49, is waging a campaign that includes jogging from precinct to precinct and appearing for many of his speeches dressed in rumpled T-shirt, jeans and tennis shoes.

Harris, on the other hand, appears everywhere in a suit — even on the college campuses where he drew huge crowds 10 years ago as a symbol of student antiwar dissent. This year he is 30, and he must convince the Democrats who usually turn out for McCloskey that he is not dangerous.

"People's perceptions of the '60s are as one big lump," he says. "Down in that lump in their minds they have women's lib, the SLA and campus demonstrations. In their minds I'm part of that lump."

As an activist student body president at Stanford and then the husband of folk singer Joan Baez, Harris was highly visible when he refused to be drafted and spent nearly two years in federal prison.

He was paroled in 1971 and divorced from his wife after his release. He is eligible to run for office by grace of a recent California law that restores full citizenship to onetime felons.

Harris is well known in the district, which includes the Stanford campus, the wealthy suburbs south of San Francisco and industrial suburbs north of San Jose. He is concentrating his pitch on Democratic voters in those industrial suburbs who have made it a habit to vote for McCloskey. Political observers give McCloskey the edge, but say it could be close.

In the past, McCloskey's toughest battles have been in GOP primaries against conservative candidates who attack his renegade record.

In 1974, after a last-ditch effort to get Stanford students and faculty to register Republican so they could vote for McCloskey, he came out ahead by a scant 832 votes over GOP challenger Gordon Knapp.

McCloskey was spared a repeat contest this year when President Ford offered Knapp a Pentagon job. After shaking his head over Ford's stands on amnesty and abortion, McCloskey has endorsed the President.

Record Price

For Rembrandt

NEW YORK (AP) — "Juno," a painting of the Greek goddess by Rembrandt, was purchased recently for $3.25 million by Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp.

The highest previous price paid for a Rembrandt was in 1961 when New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art obtained "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" for $2.3 million.

I still want to change."

The two candidates agree on many social issues, but differ on areas like nuclear plants, defense spending and public jobs for the unemployed. McCloskey's vote for the Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act, designed to encourage industry to invest in the production of nuclear fuel, was the spinoff for a highly technical debate attended by 600 supporters of both men.

Harris points to a voting record which he says shows McCloskey supporting Ford policies more than many other congressmen. He also stresses an "era of limits" theme that another young California Democrat — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. — has used successfully.

But the campaign is likely to turn less on the issues than on images.

Picking up on Jimmy Carter's anti-Washington theme, Harris says: "We've got a government that floats almost like a separate planet over Washington, D.C."

He adds that he doesn't think anyone should stay in the House more than eight years — heaping on the "insider" image he's trying to create for nine-year veteran McCloskey, who says he might retire from Congress after one more term.

McCloskey, for his part, encourages the perception of Harris as a radical who he says is putting a respectable face forward only for the duration of the campaign.

"There are two David Harris," he says. "One is an image he's seeking to portray in the campaign of not being a radical. The other is as the author of a book that portrays a much different attitude toward the law and institutions and seeking to change institutions than in his public statements."

Harris's book, "I Shoulda Been Home Yesterday," recounts his prison experiences, shocking enough that some of his staffers hoped he would wait until after the election to publish it. It portrays a man with an abiding personal resentment toward prison guards and institutions, but it is carefully nonpolitical.

Bike Club Bar Hoppers Look Out For Members

CHICAGO (AP) — You won't find this bicycle club pedaling down leafy country lanes on warm afternoons.

But you may see members whizzing down Chicago's neon-bright Rush Street some night as they cycle from bar to bar. Headquarters for the Chicago Friars is a corner of a cozy tavern called Friar Tuck's on the city's North Side.

Several times each month, an assortment of the club's some 180 members meet, take on some lubrication, then pedal off into the night in search of more refreshment. It might be as far away as a pub in Rogers Park, 10 miles north of the city, where a glass of beer sells for a dime.

Then they will return to home base for some pizza, and more beer. Sometimes they head downtown with a supply of wine and cheese to add a little culture to their outings at the Grant Park bandshell. Sometimes they just drink the night away at Friar Tuck's then mount their bikes at closing time and take an "insomnia ride."

This entails several stops at all-night hamburger joints before ending up at the lakefront to toast the sunrise.

So far there have not been any accidents or tickets for tipsy biking. The Friars have a code of looking out for each other.

"Once we had a guy fall off his bike, but usually everybody manages to hang on," says Jerry Gross, 34, club president. "We do have a lot of people who develop amnesia on these trips. They forget anything embarrassing they might have done along the way."

The average age of the Friars is about 30, and most work at white collar jobs. There are nearly as many women as men in the club, and almost all are either single or divorced.

"I used to be embarrassed just hanging out in bars all the time, but here we drink and do things. We get in a lot of exercise," said Dave Wildgrube, 28, a data processor.

Gross said, "For most of the members, the club probably provides at least 50 per cent of their social lives. On some weekends we go camping. And in the winter we set up skiing trips."

Gross said a lot of the Friars went through the "meat market scene" — the discos and dance clubs where most singles meet members of the opposite sex.

"That wears you out after a while. It's so electric. Everybody feels obligated to hustle. You have to score just to show the others you're a viable human being, that you can cut the program," said Gross. "There are two types of singles. The pretty people at the discos and the people like us. We do whatever we feel like doing. We're only concerned about impressing ourselves."

"From all the nutty things we do together we develop a sense of obligation toward one another. That never happens with the beautiful people."

Linda Meads, 29, a computer programmer, said when she first came to Chicago three years ago she spent some time on Rush Street and "it was hard to get close to people in that environment. In the Friars, people look out for each other. It's nice to know you have people to depend on if something goes wrong."

Sparks, Flame, Fire A Part Of Hallowe'en

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sparks, flame and fire have been part of Halloween ritual since earliest times.

November 1 marked New Year's Day for the pagan Druids who inhabited Wales, Ireland, Scotland and parts of England and France, according to Hallmark historians. On Halloween, the night before New Year's, it was traditional to let old fires die out and light new ones. These fires, often lit on hilltops, were believed to drive away witches, ghosts and evil spirits. In Scotland the fire-lighting custom is called Samhain, after Samhain, the god of death. In Wales, Hallowe'en fires were called Coel Coeth. Welsh people would mark white stones with their initials and throw them into the fire. If any stone was missing next morning, its owner supposedly would not live to see another Hallowe'en.

His Choice Of The Sea Nearly Cost His Life

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When he left the University of Southern California business school, Bruce Collins was faced with a choice: work for an accounting firm or sail yachts to tropical Pacific isles.

He chose sunshine and brisk winds on blue seas rather than fluorescent lights in some air-conditioned office building. It was a decision which nearly cost him his life.

On Sept. 27, a storm splintered and sank the 42-foot ketch Spirit about 900 miles west of San Francisco. But Collins, hired as navigator and skipper, climbed into a canopied life raft with Camilla Arthur, 21, and Jim Ahola, 25. They quickly became separated from another raft carrying Durel Miller, 28, and Nancy Perry, 21.

Miller and Miss Perry were rescued 24 days later. But, at the whim of winds and currents, Collins' orange raft drifted for 28 days, until a Coast Guard search plane spotted it Sunday.

Collins was the only person on board. Malnourished, dehydrated and covered with sores, he told rescuers that his two companions were dead and buried at sea. But he refused to make any public statements about the ordeal until he could talk to their families.

He is scheduled to arrive here late today aboard a Coast Guard cutter. Collins' 16-month mariner's adventure started as a long vacation. He kept his career options open. An accounting firm had agreed to hold a job for him for six months while he sailed to Hawaii and New Zealand.

Later, he talked the firm into an extension so he could touch more exotic ports, like Fiji and Bali, and get the miles under his belt to become a master seaman. He crewed for yacht owners on his island-hopping journey, but now and then found it necessary to hop a plane.

Meanwhile, he wrote his parents infrequent but long letters, trying to convey his passion for sailing while easing their disappointment.

Sometimes he needed money from his savings, or would ask his parents in Walnut Creek, Calif., to cash some of his inherited stocks. It wasn't much, but enough to keep wind in his sails and a little meat on his lanky 6-foot-3 frame.

"Around September, we got a long six-page letter from him saying that he loved sailing so much and wanted to make a lifetime of it," his mother, Kathryn Collins, recalled in an interview. "His last letter, from Honolulu in September, said he wanted to decide where he wanted his life to go."

Collins was spotted after a search of some 0,000 square miles. The pilot of the Coast Guard search plane, Lt. James Skelton, said, "I want to find out what gave him the will to live."

Arrested 22 Parents Wait At S. Boston On Park Hunt

BOSTON (AP) — Twenty-two young protesters were arrested here during a one-day antibusing school boycott that included two attempted fire-bombings of integrated schools, authorities said.

The arrests occurred when about 100 persons tried to stage a demonstration Monday against busing at South Boston High School. Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct.

Police said six bottles of gasoline and motor oil and three flares were thrown through a classroom window at the rear of the school, but they failed to ignite.

"By rights, it should have gone off," said Patrolman Bill Charbonnier, who discovered the broken window before dawn.

The city school information center said only 159 black pupils and 39 white students showed up for Monday classes at the school. Official figures indicate that 835 white students and 534 black pupils are registered at the school, but daily attendance has averaged about 400 whites and 200 blacks.

Black pupils who traveled to and from the school by bus Monday were subjected to racial epithets and jeers from scattered groups of white youths.

South Boston has been a trouble spot in the court-ordered school desegregation program, now in its third year.

Meanwhile, police said a stick of dynamite and a burned fuse were found in a steel grating on the front door of Charlestown High School, another integration trouble spot.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For Robert and Hope Gibson, the hardest part is waiting.

Their 16-year-old daughter, Trenny, has been missing in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park near Gatlinburg, Tenn., since Oct. 8, when she went on a field trip with members of her high school class.

"The hardest part is waiting...waiting without knowing where my daughter is," said Gibson, a personnel director for a Knoxville corporation.

Since the girl's disappearance, searchers have combed a 10-mile radius of the Clingman's Dome area of the park in North Carolina, but have not found any trace of her.

At one point 200 persons were in the park looking for the girl, but now that number has been reduced to 10 persons, park officials said Monday.

The FBI has been questioning Trenny's friends, but agents have not said if they have been able to find any clue to her whereabouts.

Gibson discounts theories that his daughter left the park with someone voluntarily.

"I told the chief ranger if he could get Trenny to tell me she just took off, then I'd believe his theory," Gibson said. "I know my daughter and she wouldn't leave except against her will."

Officials say the girl was last seen walking down a path near the dome area, which is covered with heavy undergrowth and brush. Gibson said he has several reasons to believe his daughter would not have left the park voluntarily, including the fact she left about $200 in cash at home and another $1,000 in her savings account.

He said his daughter injured her foot about three weeks before the trip and left at home the medication she had been taking for the injury.

"The only thing we can do now is trust in the Lord and the FBI," Gibson said.

Virginia Military Institute, "The West Point of the South," trained many famous military men, including Stonewall Jackson, Gen. George Patton and Gen. George C. Marshall.

GET MORE CAR FOR YOUR MONEY.

Looking over the car you want doesn't cost a thing. Financing one does. But if you come to Planters National Bank before November 30, it won't cost as much.

We're offering a special, reduced loan rate on new cars that can save you a tidy amount. And the more you save on financing, the more you'll have to spend for the car you really want.

So to get more car for your money, check with your dealer about a Planters loan. Or stop by one of our offices. But hurry. Because after November 30, your money won't get you quite as much.

the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said buyers appeared to have been attracted by the relatively steady showing of the market Monday, when the Dow slipped just .75 after falling more than 16 points in the two previous sessions.

Larry Wachtel et Bache Halsey Stuart suggested further that some traders were buying in the hope that the market would strengthen after the presidential election a week from today.

He noted a feeling that, regardless of the outcome of the election, the winner might feel inclined to take steps to counter the recent sluggishness in the economy.

Wall Street generally accepts the view that Jimmy would move to stimulate economic activity. And today President Ford declared that he would seek personal and corporate tax cuts in January if he wins the election.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Motors picked up 1/4 to 72 1/2; Exxon added 1/4 to 51 1/4; and General Electric rose 1/4 to 52 1/2.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index advanced .26 to 53.72 in the first hour.

The American Stock Exchange market value index was off .03 at 97.86.

Black Africa Attacks Transkei Independence

By SERGE SCHMEMANN Associated Press Writer UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly marks the birth of Transkei today with the start of its annual attack on the South African white government's apartheid racial policy and a condemnation of the first protege nation it has produced.

The black African blueprint for the apartheid debate also includes a condemnation of alleged "increasing collaboration" between Israel and South Africa, a charge certain to draw strong opposition from the United States.

U.N. officials said at least nine resolutions would be introduced during the debate. The first, timed to coincide with the start of Transkei independence at midnight Monday, demands that all U.N. members pledge to boycott the new nation and all other tribal states set up by the South African government in an effort to preserve white rule in the more valuable parts of the country.

The Transkei is an area of 14,300 square miles on the southeast coast of South Africa with a population of 3.3 million blacks. The South African government has set aside nine such Bantustans, or tribal homelands. This allot 13.7 percent of the country's land area to the 18 million blacks, while the 4.5 million whites retain control of the other 86.3 percent, including industrial and mining areas and the most fertile agricultural lands.

The blacks are not being forced to live in the Bantustans since they are needed to work in South Africa's booming industries. But the government plans for them to be citizens of their tribal states with no more rights in "white" South Africa than any other foreign black.

Leaders of seven of the eight other Bantustans have rejected independent statehood, contending that this would help to entrench and perpetuate white rule in the rest of South Africa.

Prime Minister Kaiser Manantzima and other black leaders of Transkei defend their acceptance of statehood as a first step toward the destruction of the apartheid policy of racial separation. But the United States and most other U.N. members will not recognize the new nation.

Both the General Assembly and the Security Council have repeatedly condemned apartheid.

Wm. Warfield In Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — William Warfield, the distinguished American bass-baritone, will sing in Rocky Mount under the auspices of the North Carolina Symphony.

Enrique Batiz of Mexico will guest conduct the concert, which will be held at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Rocky Mount High School Auditorium.

Pupils Heard LWV Speaker

Mrs. Margaret Wirth of the League of Women Voters was the guest speaker in Mrs. Jane Reel's fifth grade class at Falkland Elementary School recently.

Mrs. Wirth talked to the class about elections and provided them with booklets about government and puzzles.

The class is planning to have a mock election after completing its studies about elections.

Animals, she said, because had they merely been tranquilized, they would have had time to run.

Mrs. Keown, 25, and her husband, a 41-year-old builder, owned the zoo because "it was our hobby," she said. They raised some animals to sell, she said.

Greenville Is Ranked Fourth In Building

Greenville ranked fourth in the state among 38 major cities with building permit totals for August of over $3 million, according to Commissioner of Labor T. Avery Nye.

Nye said that Greenville's $3,147,487 in permit valuations trailed only Durham with $8.2 million, Raleigh with $7.9 million, and Monroe with $3.4 million.

Other eastern totals included: Elizabeth City, $328,420; Jacksonville, $463,890; Kinston, $404,290; New Bern, $128,695; Roanoke Rapids, $92,579; Rocky Mount, $1,645,616; and Wilson, $629,338.

Nye said that building permits totaled $53,937,625 in the 38 Tar Heel cities during August, registering a 16 per cent drop from the $64,235,753 reported for August of 1975.

CANDIDATE HERE

Mrs. Evelyn Tyler, Republican candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be the guest speaker at the Greenville meeting of the North Carolina Association of Educators at Wahl-Coates Elementary School at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Two More TV Series Dropped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Low ratings have done in two more television series. ABC says Bill Cosby's Sunday variety show will have its last broadcast this Sunday, and CBS says "Spencer's Pilots" will have its last regular Friday broadcast on Nov. 5.

No regular weekly replacement shows have been chosen yet for the two programs, ABC and CBS said Monday in making public the cancellations.

It brought to four the number of series axed by the networks thus far during the 1976-77 season, now in its sixth week.

The other dropped shows, both on CBS, are the new "Ball Four" series and "Doc," which was in its second season when canceled.

NBC hasn't yet announced any cancellations.

Washington Sloshes Past Cards In Fumble-Filled Mud Game, 20-10

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington 20, Mother Nature 13, St. Louis 10.
A two-day rain, pelting at times in the first half, caused 13 fumbles, one shy of a National Football League record, in waterlogged RFK Stadium Monday night when the Redskins scored a 20-10 victory over the Cardinals in a nationally televised game.
The Cardinals lost eight of their nine fumbles, in addition to suffering two interceptions, as the Redskins moved into strong contention in the race for the National Conference East title.

The Dallas Cowboys, the East leader with a 6-1 record, visit the nation's capital Sunday to meet the Redskins, who now are tied with the Cardinals for second place at 5-2.
"This is probably the first time we've played totally together," said Washington Coach George Allen, winner of nine of 10 Monday night games since coming to the Redskins. "We had to play that way to win."

The Redskins gained the advantage early in the fourth quarter when Cardinals' running back Terry Metcalf fumbled and the ball was recovered by Washington defensive end Dennis Johnson on the St. Louis seven with 10:38 remaining.
On the next play, Mike Thomas, the 1975 NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year, ran to his left behind the blocking of tight end Jean Fugett and running back John Riggins for a touchdown, putting the Redskins ahead 13-10.

and Metcalf fumbled for the fourth time in the game at the Redskins one, ending another. "Even after the punt return, we still figured we were in the game," said Hart. "If we score at the end and then force a mistake, we can take the game into overtime."
Cardinals Coach Don Coryell said simply: "This time last year we were 5-2. Now, we're 5-2. So we're still not out of it."

Contest Winners

Sidney Beacham of 202 Sir Walter Dr., Greenville, and Cindy Ross of 217 Churchill Dr., Greenville, finished in a tie for first place in this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.
Both finished the contest by picking 26 of the 32 games listed last week correctly. Then, both had the same point total, 67, for their guess.
The actual point total was 91, scored in Texas A&M's 57-34 victory over Rice.
The two winners will split the combined first and second prize money for the week.
The next contest appears on the following pages.

Cancer Claims Life Of Claire Ruth, The Babe's Greatest Fan

WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — The frail, little lady on Riverside Drive never surrendered.
Although Babe Ruth's proudest home run records crumbled under the bats of later stars, they fell like popcorn balls on the head of the Bambino's unyielding widow.
"There was only one Babe Ruth," Claire Ruth insisted. "There will never be another Babe."

It was a conviction Mrs. Babe Ruth took with her Monday afternoon when, after a long battle with cancer, she succumbed in her sleep in her rambling apartment beside the Hudson River.
It is the same 11-room, four-bedroom apartment she shared with the Babe from 1942 until 1948 and in which she lived alone, among the mementoes of his remarkable career, through the last 18 years.
It was a cluttered museum of photographs, balls, bats, newspaper clippings, trophies and other memorabilia which she guarded with a vengeance and never allowed to be touched.

They were the source of endless stories when newsmen dropped by for a chat or when her place was overrun by the grandchildren — four by an adopted daughter of the Babe and a fifth by her own daughter.
Mrs. Ruth resented the legends that the Babe, in his heyday, was a hell-raiser, who drank too much beer, ate too many hot dogs and had a too wandering eye for the pretty ladies.
"None of it is true," she said. "He drank some beer but he couldn't eat hot dogs because he had a delicate stomach. He was a fun-loving person and an easy mark for friends. If he had any faults, it was that he was overly generous."
When Roger Maris of the Yankees hit 61 home runs in 1961, breaking the Babe's season record of 60, Mrs. Ruth was quick to recall that Maris had 58 more times at bat than Ruth had in 1927.

She refused to be shaken when the Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron hit his 715th home run on April 8, 1974, shattering one of the Bambino's greatest career marks. "I don't care if someone hits 800 home runs, or 900," she said. "They will never accomplish what the Babe did."
She was a bright, quick-witted woman who maintained an intense interest both in baseball and the Yankees long after the Babe had died. Her pet project was the Babe Ruth Baseball League for juniors.
Mrs. Ruth grew up in baseball. Her father, Col. James Monroe Merritt, was Ty Cobb's lawyer. A first cousin was Johnny Mize, who hit 359 home runs for the Cardinals, Giants and Yankees.

A show girl, she met the Babe at a Washington, D.C., party in the mid-1920s and they were married in a morning ceremony April 17, 1929, just before the Babe was scheduled to take the field for the Yankees' home opener.
After the Babe's death, Mrs. Ruth became an even more prominent personality, sought after for appearances at charity affairs and sports events. She rarely missed one of the Yankees' Old Timers games.

Ruff, Rozantz Again Honored

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Second-team All-American linebacker Brian Ruff of The Citadel today was named Southern Conference defensive football player of the week for the second week in a row and the third time this season.
Chosen for the second time this year as offensive player of the week was sophomore quarterback Tom Rozantz of William and Mary.
Ruff, a 225-pound senior, was cited for his performance last Saturday as The Citadel trounced Air Force 26-7.
The Bulldog ace was credited with 18 primary tackles and five assists in a game in which Air Force quarterbacks were sacked nine times. The victory upped The Citadel's record to 9-2.
"Brian Ruff is a great linebacker," said Air Force Coach Ben Martin.
Rozantz was honored for his performance in surprising William and Mary's 20-0 victory over Ohio U.
The 6-foot-2, 185-pounder hit five of 10 passes for 85 yards and ran 10 times for 96 yards for 181 yards in total offense as the Indians ran their record to 5-2.

Rozantz is the conference leader in total offense with an average of 144.4 yards per game and is second in passing with 8.3 completions per game.
Roanoke Defeated
ROANOKE — Camp Lejeune ousted Roanoke from the state volleyball tournament yesterday with a 3-1 victory.
Roanoke captured the first game, but Camp Lejeune came back to win the next three of the best-of-five series to win and advance to the second round of play.
In the first game, Roanoke took a 15-4 win. Lisa Roberson led the scoring, serving up eight straight points.
Camp Lejeune came back to take a 15-9 win in the second game. Bradley served 10 straight for Camp Lejeune, while Roberson had five for Roanoke.
Lejeune again won in the third game, 15-6, with Tiede serving up six in a row for them. In the final match game, Lejeune captured a 15-12 victory. Bradley led the scoring with eight, while Mary Langley had six for Roanoke.
The loss ended the season for Roanoke.

NEVER HIT A MASCOT
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It was the day after Oregon's mascot was painted on the field at Autzen Stadium. End Mark Cramer tried to defend against a pass at midfield, stumbled and fell. He began pounding a fist into the turf. Suddenly, he realized he had been hitting the bill of the Oregon duck.

GETS OFF WINGING
HOUSTON (AP) — Quarterback Tony Kramer of Rice had his passes aiming in the right direction in the first game. He completed 28 of 43 aeriels for four touchdowns and 319 yards. Not one of his passes was intercepted by Utah.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Clyde Mayes, a 6-foot-9, 225-pound forward, will join the Indiana Pacers for tonight's National Basketball Association game against the Seattle SuperSonics.
Mayes, the No. 1 draft pick by the Milwaukee Bucks last year, signed with the Pacers Monday after being placed on waivers by the Bucks. He averaged 4.5 points and four rebounds as a rookie and worked his way into the Milwaukee starting lineup late in the season.

Paddock to their American Hockey League farm team at Springfield, Mass.
A team spokesman said Monday that the 22-year-old Paddock was sent to the minors in order to get more playing time. He played in five games for the Flyers.
Paddock was obtained from Washington at the start of the season.
TORONTO (AP) — Jack Shill, who played with four National Hockey League teams from 1934-39, died Monday. He was 63.
Shill, a forward, played for the Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins, New York Americans and Chicago Black Hawks. He helped Chicago win the 1938 Stanley Cup, scoring the clinching goal against Toronto in the final game of the series.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Varsity diving Coach John Walker has been named acting head swimming coach for Harvard University.
The school announced Monday the appointment of Walker to succeed Ray Essick, who stepped down earlier this month to join the Amateur Athletic Union.

Reds Dominate All-Star Team

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Four members of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds were named today to The Associated Press All-Star baseball team for 1976.

Second baseman Joe Morgan headed the Cincinnati contingent with one of the largest voting pluralities in the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters. He received 277 votes with runner-up Dave Cash of Philadelphia getting only 14.
Morgan batted .320 with 27 home runs and 111 runs batted in and is considered a favorite to repeat as the National League's Most Valuable Player.
The other Reds selected were shortstop Dave Concepcion and outfielders George Foster and Ken Griffey.

Concepcion, who batted .281 for the Big Red Machine, had 161 votes to 101 for Philadelphia's Larry Bowa. Foster, the major league leader in runs batted in with 121, who batted .306, led all outfielders with 215 votes. Griffey, the National League's second leading hitter with a .336 average, received 125. Squeezed between the two Reds' outfielders was Mickey Rivers of the New York Yankees, who had 134 votes, following his .312 batting average and 43 stolen bases for the American League champions.
Joining Morgan and Concepcion in the All-Star infield were Minnesota's Rod Carew at first base and George Brett of Kansas City at third.

Carew, who batted .331 and missed a fifth straight batting crown by just two percentage points, won the closest race, receiving 114 votes to 103 for Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Brett, the American League batting champion with a .333 average, had 179 votes and easily outdistanced Pete Rose of Cincinnati, who finished second with 76.
Catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees was the leading vote-getter with 298 votes to only 22 for Johnny Bench of Cincinnati. The voting for that position was particularly interesting because Munson was involved in a post-World Series controversy with Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson when Anderson said that no catcher could compare with his man, Bench. Munson batted .302.
Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles was selected as the team's right-handed pitcher and San Diego's Randy Jones was picked as the top left-hander. Palmer, 22-13 with a 2.51 earned run average, easily outdistanced rookie Mark Fidrych of Detroit, 205-81. Jones, who was 22-14 with a 2.74 ERA, had a tighter race, receiving 172 votes to 121 for runner-up Jerry Koonsman of the New York Mets.

Both Palmer and Jones were repeaters from last year's team. The only other player to repeat was Morgan.
The National and American League Managers of the Year will be announced later this week.

State Tops ECU Spikers

RALEIGH — N. C. State captured a victory in volleyball over the East Carolina University women yesterday, 2-1.
State took the opening game, 15-10, but East Carolina came back to tie it up scoring a 15-13 win in the second contest.
The Lady Wolves won it, however, with a 15-4 romp in the match game.
State also won a junior varsity match, 2-0. State took wins of 15-6 and 16-5 over the Pirates junior varsity.
East Carolina travels to Boone Friday for the Appalachian Invitational.

Chargerettes Are Beaten

LITTLEFIELD — West Carteret gained a 3-1 victory over Ayden-Grifton yesterday in the first round of the state girls' volleyball tournament.
West Carteret will now meet Camp Lejeune, winner over Roanoke.
Ayden-Grifton won the first game of the best-of-five series, 15-13. Down 8-6, Ayden-Grifton forged into a 14-8 lead on eight straight serves by Vivian Ellis. S. Sampson led West Carteret comeback with five in a row, cutting it to 14-13, but Ayden-Grifton got the next point to win the match.
West Carteret evened the match with a 15-7 win in the second game. Buchanan hit seven straight serves to put the match away, with a 14-6 lead.
West Carteret then won the third game, 15-5, and captured the final one 15-6, steadily chipping away with no long strings.
The defeat ended the season for the Chargerettes.

Moses Malone Is A Rocket

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Tom Nissalke says the addition of Moses Malone will make the Rockets one of the better rebounding teams in the National Basketball Association — and the 22-year-old forward-center will get more than 24 minutes playing time to aid the improvement.

The Rockets, off to a 2-0 start this season under Nissalke, announced Monday they had traded their first-round draft choices in 1977 and 1978 plus an undisclosed amount of cash to Buffalo for Malone, a former star in the American Basketball Association.

"He'll make us one of the better rebounding teams in the league where we have been just average," Nissalke said. "He'll give us another dimension of speed and quickness and strong rebounding."

Buffalo General Manager Bob MacKinnon said the Braves decided to trade Malone because of a demand by the youngster and his attorney Lee Fentress that Malone be guaranteed 24 minutes of playing time per game.

That is virtually guaranteed with the Rockets. "I'd hope he would play more than 24 minutes for us," Nissalke said. "If he was only going to play 24 minutes for us, we wouldn't have traded for him in the first place."

Fentress said in Washington, D.C. there was no such demand for playing time. "It's outlandish for any player to be guaranteed any number of minutes," Fentress said.

Rockets officials declined to name the financial terms, but a Buffalo source said the Rockets reportedly would pick up Malone's reported $3.5 million contract and agreed to make the final two payments of the $350,000 owed for Malone in the dispersal draft.

Malone, who passed up a scholarship to the University of Maryland and went directly to the pros, will be playing for his fifth team in less than one year.

The 6-foot-11 Malone began last season with the Utah Stars of the ABA and moved to the Spirits of St. Louis after the Stars folded. He went to Portland in the dispersal draft of ABA players, then the Trail Blazers sent him to Buffalo last week for $323,000 and Buffalo's No. 1 pick.

Penalty Call Hurts Islanders

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Gerry Hart of the New York Islanders felt both he and Pete Mahovich of the Montreal Canadiens were to blame for the penalty call that played a large part in their National Hockey League game Monday night, won 4-1 by Montreal.

"He was as guilty of the occurrence as I was," Hart said of Mahovich's role in a high-sticking major penalty that Hart was assessed when he drew blood from above the Montreal center's eye.

The penalty came 29 seconds after Bob Bourne began serving a tripping penalty, and the Canadiens scored the goal that broke a 1-1 tie with the two-man advantage and added another goal while Hart still was off late in the first period.

The battle between the two division leaders was the only game played Monday night in the NHL.

"I guess if there's a two-minute penalty called when blood is drawn, then it's supposed to be a five-minute major," Hart said. "But I still think it's unfortunate. I don't think there should have been a penalty at all."

"That a penalty could be called like that, even when somebody is just brushed, well, that's ridiculous. What kind of game would we be playing here?"

Hart said the Islanders were "embarrassed" in the second period, when Montreal's Doug Jarvis scored the game's final goal and the Canadiens outshot New York 13-5 after a 16-5 first-period margin.

"We were put off our game in the second period. It was a combination of the adversity we were experiencing and the Montreal Canadiens and referee Wally Harris. I think maybe I should go out there and shake his hand."

The game was marked by several exchanges, largely involving Montreal's Bob Gainey, who was sent off at 10:43 of the second period with New York's Clark Gillies. Gillies received a double minor for interference and roughing while Gainey was assessed an interference minor.

Bryan Trottier of the Islanders accompanied Gainey to the penalty box in the third period, Trottier for holding and Gainey for interference.

New York took a 1-0 lead on Denis Potvin's third goal of the season at 7:11 of the first period, before Montreal got goals from Mario Tremblay, Larry Robinson and Jacques Lemaire and took command.

The victory gave Montreal a 9-2 record — the best in the NHL. The Islanders, who hold a two-point lead over Philadelphia and Atlanta in the Lester Patrick Division, dropped to 6-2-1.

Arnsparger Is Fired By New York Giants

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Seven was the magic number for Coach Bill Arnsparger and now it's the magic number for Coach John McVay.

After seven consecutive losses and a 7-28 record in 2½ seasons, Arnsparger's rebuilding program for the New York Giants was terminated Monday morning and McVay, one of his assistants, was named as the club's new coach.

The Giants have seven games remaining on their schedule. "We hope that John can shake up the players and make them respond. We'll determine at the end of the year what kind of team we have, and hopefully, he and the staff can be a part of our organization," said Andy Robustelli, the Giants' director of operations, who huddled with club President Wellington Mara before announcing the change.

In other words, McVay has seven games to turn the team around if he hopes to be the head coach next year.

McVay has a good chance to end the Giants' skid this week when the 2-5 Philadelphia Eagles play at Giants Stadium.

"I feel we have reached the point where it is imperative to see whether the people we have can respond to another personality more than they did to Bill," said Mara.

The firing came in the final year of Arnsparger's three-year contract and followed a 27-0 drubbing by the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday.

McVay, who coached for two seasons in the World Football League before joining the Giants this year as assistant coach for research and development, plans no major changes.

"I don't plan any great shakeups," McVay said. "I think I've been left with a good nucleus and there's a good chance to turn things around."

Arnsparger reported to work at the Giants' training camp around 8 a.m., Monday, and was studying game films of the latest loss while his fate was being decided. Robustelli broke the news and then McVay was offered the job.

Arnsparger was hired to direct the rebuilding of the Giants after the team had struggled through a 2-11-1 season in 1973. The team was 2-12 in its first year under the former Miami Dolphin defensive coach but improved that to 5-9 last season.

Hopes were high during the 1976 pre-season, especially with the addition of free agent fullback Larry Conka. But the team dropped a heartbreaker in the opener at Washington. A week later, the Giants were upset by Philadelphia and then lost to Los Angeles, St. Louis, Dallas, Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

Arnsparger was not offered another job in the organization. McVay, 45, played college football at Miami of Ohio under Woody Hayes and Ara Parseghian. He served as an assistant to Duffy Daugherty at Michigan State for three years and then was head coach and athletic director at Dayton for five years before moving to the WFL in that league's first season.

Cale Holds To Point Spread

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough is leading defending champion Richard Petty for the title with only two races left on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing season.

Petty's victory at Rockingham, N.C., Sunday put him within 97 points of Yarborough going into the Dixie 500 at Atlanta International Raceway Nov. 7 and the final event at Ontario, Calif., Nov. 21.

Yarborough, one of the top drivers on the Grand National circuit for several years, is seeking his first title, while Petty has won six times, including the past two years.

After 28 races in the $4.2 million season, Yarborough has 4,380 points and Petty 4,283.

Benny Parsons is third with 3,984, followed by Bobby Allison 3,948; Lennie Pond 3,669; Dave Marcis 3,599; Buddy Baker 3,539; Darrell Waltrip 3,316; Richard Childress 3,285, and Richard Brooks 3,211.

Yarborough also is on the verge of being the second driver to win $300,000 in a season on the late model circuit. Petty has done it twice and is about to do it again. He leads with $296,479 to Yarborough's $291,886.

David Pearson is third in money with $247,394.

Then come Parsons $198,689; Baker $189,789; Allison $183,804; Waltrip $168,994; Marcis $164,195; Pond $111,659, and Brooks $86,675.

WEEKLY PRIZES

1st PRIZE
$15.00

2nd PRIZE
$10.00

CONTEST RULES

- Thirty-two football games are placed on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $15.00. Second place $10.00.
- Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
- Only one entry per person per week. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
- Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: FOOTBALL CONTEST, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable Facsimiles also accepted.)

Avers Ferry Failed Turn

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A commuter ferry had "plenty of time" to avoid a Norwegian tanker which rammed it, sending an estimated 100 passengers to their deaths in the Mississippi River, the pilot of the merchant ship told a Coast Guard board.

But the ferry failed to turn away, and forced a collision which was "no different than a Volkswagen running out in front of a train," pilot Nicholas J. Colombo said Monday.

Divers working around the clock have recovered the bodies of 64 of the passengers who were aboard the commuter ferry George Prince when it capsized last Wednesday. Eighteen persons survived the sinking.

Gov. Edwin Edwards said the search would continue as long as there was a possibility of finding more victims. He also asked for the formation of a task force of marine law experts to look into the disaster and its legal problems.

The state and the Norwegian owners of the tanker Frosta both went into federal court Monday asking that they be relieved of any liability for the collision.

Colombo said at the hearing that he attempted to make radio contact with the ferry as soon as he spotted it, then sounded an emergency signal with the Frosta's whistle.

He said the ferry appeared to turn upriver for an instant then come back on a course that would bring it beneath the Frosta's bow.

He said he again sounded the ship's whistle and ordered the engines into reverse.

But he said it takes more than a mile to stop a ship the size of a tanker — "You just don't stop a vessel that size like you're driving an automobile."

Probe Rumored ROK Payoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations that U.S. congressmen were paid large cash sums as part of a South Korean campaign to court U.S. favor are centering on rice dealer Tong-sun Park, a mystery man with reported links to the Korean CIA.

Park, who also is a leading light in Washington cafe society, reportedly has told federal investigators about the payments. Park denies he has bribed anyone.

One of Park's reported allegations was corroborated Monday when Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards acknowledged that his wife, Elaine, took an envelope containing $10,000 as a "gift" from Park in 1971. Edwards, a Democrat, was a congressman running for governor at the time. He said Monday he had no knowledge of the money until several years later.

The Edwards' gift was part of the $500,000 to $1 million Park spent annually for parties, trinkets and cash "gifts" to influential congressmen and government officials, Park has reportedly told investigators.

The disclosures by Park have caused the Justice Department to subpoena the bank records of the South Korean Embassy in an effort to trace the flow of cash from Park's rice business to American politicians, the Washington Post reported today.

The Justice Department is counting on a recent Supreme Court ruling that bank records belong to the bank, and not its customers, to buttress its subpoena against any claim of diplomatic immunity by the South Koreans.

If the records belong legally to the Riggs Bank of Washington and not to the South Koreans, diplomatic immunity does not apply, the Justice Department is reportedly contending.

The South Korean Embassy declined comment on the report Monday night.

The State Department also is reportedly considering asking for the removal of several South Korean Embassy officials, believed to be members of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, because of their link to the alleged congressional payments. They include Kim Yung Hwan, who has been identified as the KCIU station chief in the United States.

Tongsun Park himself has not been available for comment this week. His present seclusion contrasts with his former position as a striver in Washington social circles.

Investigators say Park has been tied to Korean CIA operations here, as has Sue Park Thomson, a Korean-born woman who works in the office of retiring House Speaker Carl Albert.

Rival Utilizes Ingram Record

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Ed Tenney, Republican candidate for insurance commissioner, says that in his campaign he is primarily "questioning the leadership and competency" of Democrat John Ingram, who is seeking reelection.

Tenney, a Chapel Hill realtor, says in doing this he generally quotes the news media and courts. Tenney was referring to the fact that the courts have reversed Ingram on at least 10 major decisions, including every substantial order he has issued in the past four years.

After a recent setback by the courts, Ingram told newsmen, "I guess what the judges were writing is that I'm prejudiced in favor of the people. I have tried to weigh all the facts and rule correctly."

Ingram, 47, won the nomination in the Aug. 17 primary by easily defeating a Greensboro professor who had strong backing of the insurance industry.

Tenney, 53, is chairman of the North Carolina Real Estate Licensing Board. He served for six years on the Chapel Hill school board and ran unsuccessfully in 1968 for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

laws have been written on the books abolishing the assigned risk and abolishing age and sex discrimination in automobile insurance."

Ingram says industry is to blame for delaying automobile insurance rates based on the law abolishing age and sex discrimination. The industry blames Ingram and that is one of the matters tied up in litigation.

Ingram is a Greensboro native who was raised in Ashboro and practiced law there before serving one term in the legislature and campaigning successfully for the insurance post.

Ingram points his finger at the industry when asked about the many legal battles he has lost. He said that industry has been unwilling to work with him.

"We still haven't had as much litigation as Franklin D. Roosevelt had in the 1930s...and you know what he won...he was well into his second term when he really started winning," Ingram said.

Tenney points to the stand taken during the primary by Edwin S. Lanier, a Democrat who preceded Ingram as insurance commissioner.

Lanier described Ingram's administration as "very much to the contrary of what the public interest would expect and need."

In answer to Lanier, Ingram said that Lanier "did not get the assigned risk abolished. Mr. Lanier did not get legislation completely abolishing age and sex discrimination in automobile insurance enacted by the General Assembly."

"Cash-Flow" and your lifelong battle of income vs. outgo.

That first paycheck can seem pretty big, until you start paying for your own food, clothes, and housing.

The median price of a home in the U.S. today is $39,300: something to consider when you need room for kids.

Over your lifetime, you'll have a lot of money coming in.

And a lot of money going out. Sometimes, you'll have more than you need. Other times, you won't have enough.

And, in this lifelong battle of income vs. outgo, a bank can help you in a lot of ways. By looking at things more from your point of view. And less from the bank's point of view.

NCNB INTRODUCES LIFETIME "CASH-FLOW" BANKING.

"Cash-Flow" is a new way of banking designed to work for you, whatever your situation.

Whether you're a 20-year-old with your first job, or a couple planning your retirement.

It considers more than just the banking business you do; it also considers all the things that affect your financial life. So we've put together booklets covering eight different situations.

They're designed to help you with everyday finances, long-range planning and putting NCNB services to work for you.

Then, our people are trained to do more for you than open an account or make you a loan. They'll answer your questions and help you find the best way to handle things. (If they can't answer your questions, they'll find someone who can.)

Finally, our services have been designed to be flexible enough to help you make the most of the money you make.

HOW TO START GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A BANK.

One of our booklets fits your situation right now and it's yours for the asking.

So stop by any NCNB office and pick one up. Or just call our toll-free number, 800-822-8855 and we'll send you a copy.

Either way, do it soon.

With all the money you earn, save, spend and borrow over a lifetime, it pays to get the most out of your bank.

And, we think you'll get more when your bank is NCNB.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able at last to accept a good opportunity to get your practical interests on a solid and secure foundation. Make sure you organize all phases of such interests for they can be more as you wish them to be for a long time to come.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Listening to the suggestions of a bigwig can be most helpful to you now in your daily dealings with others. Become more involved in community affairs and add to your prestige.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Getting into new outlets that appeal to you can bring fine results today. Find the right person to give you the information you lack and need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Stop all that wishful thinking and get down to brass tacks with others and get good results. A more practical approach with a loved one is wise also. Avoid a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ask questions of a partner and then you know better where you stand and how to proceed in the future. Be sure you keep any promises made so you have a better understanding with others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan your work and then schedule it so that it is easy to perform in the days ahead. Plan time for getting your health improved, also.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Iron out the wrinkles out of any creative work you have done and get it perfected. You can then get the right benefits from it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to have serious talks at home and come to right decisions today in order to better the situation there. Make sure you get pressing matters handled also in business world.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get the information you need so that you can operate more efficiently with associates in the future. Make an effort to get your personal life better organized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Formulate a plan that will guarantee you a greater abundance in the days ahead. Confer with an expert in finances and get good advice where you are in doubt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can make real progress now toward gaining some personal goal by applying yourself more. Do not neglect credit matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more practical if you are to gain those personal aims that mean so much to you. Have a more ideal relationship with loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You like to work alone but more contacts should be made today if you are to get ahead faster. Get personal affairs better organized also.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very practical and should be given tasks to perform early. Teach to formulate a plan that will insure a firm structure to the life by steadiness of purpose and effort. Give as fine an education as you can, but do not neglect important religious training early.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
 © 1976 The Chicago Tribune

West led his singleton heart, won by dummy's ace. Without the double declarer almost certainly would have started trumps, but now there was no point. Instead, he cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in his hand. A low trump to the king brought the consolation that West did not hold all the missing trumps. Another diamond ruff was followed by a club to the ace, felling the king. A club to the queen put declarer in his hand to lead a low club towards dummy's ten.

West rose with the jack of clubs and, since a diamond return would give declarer a ruff-and-sluff and a trump would be into declarer's tenace, he exited with his last club. Declarer now conceded his heart loser and East was on lead with both declarer and West down to nothing but three trumps each.

No matter what East did, declarer was bound to take two of the last three tricks for his contract. Whatever red card East returned, declarer would ruff low. West could overruff, but then he would be forced to concede the last two tricks to declarer's A-J of trumps.

Will Broadcast For Hispanics

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — True, Guillermo Restrepo lacks the fame of a Walter Cronkite. But on Nov. 2, he'll be Cronkite's equivalent for hundreds of thousands of viewers who want their news in Spanish.

He'll be in New York, anchoring Election Night coverage of the Spanish International Network (SIN), begun here in 1961 to provide programs for Spanish-speaking viewers in the U.S.

Restrepo's broadcast — called "Destino '76" — will be fed by satellite, SIN says, from the company's New York outlet to seven stations in four states and possibly to Mexico's Televisa network.

All six SIN-owned stations in New York, Miami, San Antonio, Texas, and Los Angeles, Fresno and San Francisco, Calif., will air the show, as will two stations in Modesto, Calif., and Chicago.

All serve areas with high concentrations of Hispanic residents.

Restrepo, 33, says SIN's election night program, which the company says will cost $100,000 to put on, will of course report on the outcome of the night's main event — the presidential election.

But unlike the major networks, which will take the broad approach to election night coverage throughout the U.S., SIN will be far more specialized in its coverage and analyses, he adds.

For starters, Jacobo Zabudovsky, news director of Mexico's Televisa network, will be working with him, commenting on possible effects of the election on Latin America, he said.

And SIN won't emphasize state-by-state returns, said Restrepo, who says he began in news at age 12 as a police reporter on the newspaper of his hometown of Pereira in eastern Columbia.

He said the network instead will concentrate on election-night results of House, Senate and gubernatorial races in 14 key states with large concentrations of Spanish-speaking persons.

Restrepo, speaking by phone from SIN's New York offices, said close attention also will be given election-night winners — regardless of state — who now serve or want to serve on congressional committees whose work directly affects Hispanic-descent Americans or Latin America.

He cited as examples the Foreign Relations, Judiciary and Appropriations committees of the Congress.

Restrepo, who joined SIN more than seven years ago at its station here, KMEX, said he doubts the major networks will report as extensively as SIN on the backgrounds of those who'll return to these committees or

Lodge Chairman Receives Plaque

Community Service committee chairman W. J. Barnes of the Greenville Moose Lodge last night received a plaque from the State Association recognizing his contribution for similar services during the 1974-75 year in which the lodge won first place honors in North Carolina for its activities.

Barnes said the first week's collection of used articles of clothing was helpful, but past experience indicated more would be needed if the Clothing Bank was to serve as it had in the past. He again reminded prospective donors could telephone the Moose office (756-4370) and arrangements would be made to pick up the clothing which in turn would be given to the neediest of Pitt County's needy families. In answer to a question, he said donors may receive on request a receipt.

He also announced the Pitt County Health Department, which used the lodge as one of its swine flu vaccination centers Monday, gave 417 immunization shots yesterday.

Past Governor Jim Fleming called attention to the Moose say they want to join them.

"To them (the networks) all the areas are important," he said. "It doesn't matter what the committee is. Well, we also feel all the committees are important."

"But some are more important (to SIN's Spanish-speaking audience) than others because their work is more related to decisions affecting Latin America or the Spanish-speaking people of this country."

D. H. Conley Highlights

By LINDA COX

The following are some of the many activities that have been planned at D. H. Conley for the 1976-77 school year.

Varsity cheerleaders for 1976-77 are Paulette Hill, Carol Gooding, Devicky Cox, Becky Allen, Shelia Washington, Alice Hines, Priscilla Tucker, Sandy Lewis, Lynn Cox, Jackie Lilley, Christie Gurganus and Patricia Cannon.

The Junior Varsity cheerleaders for 1976-77 are Melonie Tyson, Nancy Berg, Nancy Andrews, Charlene Best, Gail Cates, Lisa Chase, Regina Crandall, Sheri Lawrence, Amy Manning, Tammy Manning, Beth Smith, and Eunice Ward.

The performing majorettes include the following: Mary McCracken, Bertha Carter, Pamela Tyson, Renee Mills, Joey Faust, Stacy Hibbard, Donna Hudson and Ruby Cox.

The Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) chapter at Conley sponsored a greeting card sale this year. According to Charles Leonard, advisor, the club raised $486 to use for funding occupational equipment.

Fourteen Future Business Leaders members traveled to Bertie Senior High School recently to a District I meeting and attended mini-sessions.

The Student Council Association held an Eastern District Workshop at Conley October 1. The council members from the different school exchanged ideas relating to problems of the student councils.

Last week 16 students attended a drama workshop at ECU which was sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction. Mini-sessions at the workshop included costuming, makeup, movement, and other topics.

Homecoming highlighted last week's activities at Conley. Princesses were selected, homecoming festivities were held during the week and the Super Heavy Funk Brothers played at the dance following the game. Unfortunately the Vikings lost to C. B. Aycock 20-0.

The U.S. Army Field Band from Washington, D. C. Entertained the Conley student body recently. The band played popular music tunes.

The trigonometry class held an auction sale in Winterville October 16 and raised enough money to fund an outing planned for later this year.

Merit Cigarette Sets New Taste Standard.

'Enriched Flavor'TM breakthrough brings unprecedented taste to low tar smoking.

Today there's a way to get real taste from a cigarette without high tar.

That's the report on a new taste discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into tobacco without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco is remarkable new MERIT.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

In tests involving thousands of smokers of filter cigarettes, the majority reported

© Philip Morris Inc. 1976

9 mg. 'tar,' 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

MERIT delivered more taste than five current leading low tar cigarettes having all the way up to 60% more tar.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, MERIT MENTHOL was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette. MERIT.

Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.
