

Production Down, Signaling Troubles

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. industrial production slipped in September and October to the lowest point in four months, the first such drop since the economic recovery began 19 months ago.

The drop, reflecting slower economic growth and some work stoppages, was the strongest signal yet that the economy might be headed down or at least growing more slowly than necessary to make a dent in the jobless rolls.

The Federal Reserve Board report Monday on industrial production measures the output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities. Sustained changes in the industrial index are taken as key signals of economic shifts. However, the figures for only two months are regarded as too skimpy to show a clear trend.

It's been two weeks since Jimmy Carter said that continued poor economic indicators would make a tax cut a strong possibility once he takes office Jan. 20. The indicators have been poor ever since.

First, unemployment moved up a tenth of 1 per cent to 7.9 per cent for October. Retail sales were only a whisker above where they were four months ago. And then the industrial output report Monday.

Carter's top economic adviser has been saying since June that the economy needs $10 billion to $15 billion in extra government stimulus.

Carter's remarks were his first mention of tax rebates, which are laid out in a single dose and usually provide a quicker, more concentrated stimulus than a tax cut that is spread out over several months' paychecks.

The 1974 anti-recession tax rebates amounted to $17 billion and averaged a $200 treasury check per taxpayer.

The Federal Reserve said output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities dropped one-half of one per cent in October. And the September figures, which originally were level from August, were revised to show a drop of two-tenths of one per cent.

The Federal Reserve said strikes in the car and farm equipment industries contributed to the decline, but not more than one-third of October's drop.

Car production was steady in October at an annual rate of 7.7 per million units, but output of home appliances, carpeting and furniture were off for the second month.

Business equipment production, an indicator of business spending, was off by one per cent largely due to the farm equipment shut downs the Federal Reserve said. About the only category showing an increase was construction equipment.

The industrial production index was at 130.4 per cent of its 1967 average, 6.7 per cent ahead of the same month a year ago.

Meanwhile, auto sales for early November showed drops by Ford and American Motors and left domestic new car sales down 1.5 per cent, heralding a lackluster start for the 1977 model year. General Motors and Chrysler both reported gains.

Beirut Occupied; Syrians Prepare To Extend Control

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — With Beirut under its undisputed control, the Syrian army prepared today to extend its peacekeeping grip to the rest of Lebanon.

The capital, occupied in a swift and peaceful invasion Monday, spent its first night without a single shot or explosion after 19 months of civil war. An Arab League spokesman said plans were being made for other Syrian units of the Arab League peacekeeping force to occupy Tripoli and Sidon, Lebanon's second and third largest cities and both Moslem strongholds, before the end of the week.

Armored reinforcements were reported to have crossed the border from Syria within the past 24 hours to move into Tripoli, 60 miles north of Beirut. Leftist Moslem militias there were reported still exchanging artillery fire with the neighboring Christian town of Zagharta, as they have been doing throughout the civil war.

In Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut, Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies pulled out of hilltop positions, dismantled street barricades and declared the city open to the Syrians.

Dozens of people turned out to watch Syrian army engineers defuse mines in Beirut's devastated downtown commercial center, ignoring radio warnings from the peace-keeping command to stay out of the area.

Hilltop batteries of heavy artillery and anti-aircraft guns ringed the outskirts of the city, while tanks dotted the five-mile seafloor.

Tanks also stood guard at about 50 strategic points in the city, including government buildings, radio and television stations, the central bank and the 300-yard-wide buffer zone between the Christian and Moslem sectors.

Bulldozers knocked down scores of concrete and sandbag

Some housewives cooked meals for Syrian troops camped in residential quarters. Syrian soldiers directed traffic on the seaside boulevard. The heavy traffic at times confused them, producing traffic jams.

The peacekeeping command banned movement of house or office furniture in the city in an attempt to keep down looting.

The superintendent of the Beirut police force, which disintegrated during the war, ordered his men to report to their headquarters in preparation for resuming their functions within two days.

Yasir Arafat's Palestinian high command said its guerrillas should stay "on guard for anything that might threaten their rights under the Cairo agreement."

Fresh Effort To Sell School Site

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville City School Board on Monday night voted to readvertise for sale the Lynndale School Site. Reconvening into regular session following an executive session, members approved readvertising the site for sale without the stipulation of a $100,000 minimum bid.

In a previously advertised sale held Friday, November 12, in which the $100,000 minimum bid was part of the bid agreement, there were no bidders.

The matter is being turned over to the school attorneys who will prepare a readvertising notice. The Lynndale school property is a 12-acre tract located behind the First Federal Savings and Loan Association Building on Greenville Boulevard.

In considering a request for a leave of absence (without pay) for a teacher, Janet L. Artis, to be effective November 30, the board denied the request for leave of absence but approved acceptance of her resignation if she submits a letter of resignation. Ed Carter opposed the action.

The motion carries an understanding she will be considered along with other applicants for employment at a later date. Ms. Artis requested the leave of absence for the purpose of attending school to of the teacher granted an extension of sick leave.

Also approved by the board was the compilation of a roster of substitute teachers meeting required standards for substitute work.

Reports on the status of construction and renovation of schools in the system, presented by Cox, show that:

—At the Middle School all contract have been signed and that all state bond and Literary Loan monies have been certified. General and electrical contractors are on site. "The process of laying out the building had begun," Cox said, "and shop drawings have been approved by engineers."

—Aycoc roofing. Work is progressing, with the contractor finding it necessary to remove most of the roofing in the affected areas in order to put on new roofing. The only area where it has been possible to put new roof directly on top of the old roof is in the gym area.

Member Terry Shank voiced concern over safety factors resulting from rain dripping into hall areas creating hazardous conditions, and asked that corrective action be taken.

Cox noted that it would be possible to complete the roof work within the $158,000 bid.

—Third Street School. Cox said that renovation work there had progressed satisfactorily. Most of bad flooring has been removed and is now being replaced. Work has also begun on taking out the old heating system, replacing it with new piping. Bids will be received Nov. 18 on windows, doors and gutters.

"Things are in the slow stages now," Cox said, "because of work being done underneath the floors. Once we're past this stage, things will move faster."

Cox said the architect for the project, Bill Friend, has said the scheduled date of completion for June of 1977 can be met. To date about $285,000 has been spent on the renovation at Third Street.

Responding to a question on redistricting from an interested citizen, Gary Rayle, chairman Henry Dunn said "the school board has not forgotten its commitment on redistricting. We have data to work on, and can assure you the public will be the first to know when we are able to go ahead." Rayle noted he was afraid there'd be "public panic if people didn't know until next June what the redistricting decision might be."

Concurrence was given to a request made by the Greenville Utilities Commission through the city government that easement be granted for utilities

Report Raid By Rhodesia Eastern Pines Money

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Mozambique government claimed today Rhodesian forces have attacked a Mozambican army base near the Rhodesian border with jets, bombers, helicopters and paratroopers.

Black nationalist guerrillas trying to topple Rhodesia's white minority government have been operating from bases in Mozambique, which supports and provides aid to them.

A communique issued by the Mozambique Information Agency (AIM) said that Rhodesian forces began the attack last Thursday and quickly occupied the camp, but that fighting was still going on when last reports from the area were received Monday.

There was no confirmation of the report from Rhodesia. The white minority government in Salisbury has acknowledged in the past making raids on guerrilla bases in Mozambique in which regular Mozambican troops were killed. They have also reported exchanging fire with regular Mozambican troops across the border.

The Mozambican communique said that "a total of 20 aircraft took part, attacking from four directions."

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced today the approval by the Farmers Home Administration of a loan of $1,131,000 and a grant of $400,000 to the Eastern Pines Water Corp., Rt. 9, Greenville.

Jones said that the purpose of the action is to extend an existing water system to the Eastern Pines water system. The present system consists of distribution lines, an elevated tank, and an office building.

According to the announcement, the extension will consist of an additional deep well, two 150,000-gallon elevated storage tanks, and distribution systems that will serve 690 residences.

The representative noted that some 1,510 users in the area will benefit from the improved water system.

Previous loans totaled $465,000 for the rural area system through FHA. The new loan is to be repaid in 40 years at five per cent interest.

STEVE'S HOPE
ROMANA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Ford, the President's youngest son, says he wants his father to take a post of visiting scholar at one of several universities.

90 Per Cent

Approximately 90 per cent of the Pitt United Fund's 1976-77 goal has been achieved so far in the campaign, according to Don Parrott, chairman.

Parrott announced that pledges and contributions to date total $223,993. The fund goal for this year's campaign is $248,418.

The campaign chairman reported that an increase of 13 per cent over last year's contribution by the employees of Pitt Memorial Hospital helped push the drive up to the 90 per cent mark.

He said that 80 per cent of the eligible employees contributed at Pitt Memorial this year as the hospital surpassed its goal with a total figure of $4000.58, up from last year's $3,547.62.

Carter To Begin Conferences With Kissinger

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter will meet with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here Saturday for a briefing on foreign policy matters and will confer with President Ford in Washington next week, it was announced today.

Carter's staff said Kissinger will be accompanied by Lawrence Eagleburger, the undersecretary for management at the State Department who is handling the department liaison with Carter during the transition from the Ford administration.

Vice President-elect Walter Mondale, who will be in Plains on Friday for a meeting between Carter and CIA Director George Bush, also will attend the briefing with Kissinger.

The meeting is the first between Carter and the secretary of state, whom Carter and Mondale frequently criticized during the presidential campaign. The session, scheduled for 10:30 a.m. EST, marks the highest-level conference Carter has undertaken in the transition period.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who also said the President and Carter will meet next week.

Carter and Mondale will be accompanied at the Kissinger briefing by David Aaron, who is their representative on transition matters dealing with the National Security Council and intelligence activities.

Carter is beginning what he says is a "careful and thorough and deliberate" process to name the top officials who will help him run the government.

Carter told a news conference Monday that a meeting with Kissinger and other Cabinet members was under consideration for when the President-elect makes his first post-election visit to Washington on Nov. 22.

He said he also planned to meet with Ford by the end of the month, but that a meeting with Kissinger would precede the Carter-Ford session.

The Carter-Kissinger meeting was announced both by the Carter staff and by White House

C-of-C To Stress Organization And Development

Editor's Note: This is the second part in two part series about the goals that the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce proposed at its out-of-town planning session November 12-14.

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Two areas of particular interest considered in planning goals for 1977 for the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce to participate in were community development, and organization and membership development.

Art Galya was the group leader in the community development division which set goals for the following five areas: education, livability, medical and social services, communications, and transportation.

The division members listed the following as major areas of concern in the area of transportation: traffic flow, adequate highways, airport scheduling, public transportation expansion, and train safety. The members supported better markings at railroad crossings, the expansion of Highway 264, extending the GREAT system, and improving the bus station.

To better develop the livability of the community, the division members agreed that a "Welcome to Greenville" committee is necessary and that a beautification committee is also necessary. Other committees that members decided to establish were a housing committee to study public, and private housing; a communications committee to inform citizens of community services, voluntary services, government actions and report on each chamber committee; an ECU and Greenville liaison committee; a recreational committee which would study county recreational and cultural facilities; and a race relations committee.

In the area of education, division members were basically concerned with quality, merging the city and county systems, construction of facilities, vocational education, and the coordination of programs with ECU and Pitt Technical Institute.

The following education action programs were proposed: a study and report of the quality of education in the area to be presentable for newcomers of the area; a survey of employment needs of the community; a committee of retired business persons who could be available to advise new businesses; focus the community's attention on merger, and for the chamber to state a position on merger in 1977;

Division members decided that the establishment of a council on narcotics and crime would be a worthwhile project for the chamber to undertake to improve relations with local law enforcement agencies. Members also suggested that work needed to be done to improve the relationship between citizens and the police department and that a civilian police review board would be helpful.

One of the top priorities in the area of health was to investigate and publish information of unique problems of the aged. Another top priority was to publish and distribute a directory of the available medical services in the Greenville area. Division members also favored the development of a reception program for new medical residents in the area.

Organization and Membership Development
According to division leader, Don Collier, the chamber president for 1976, the following five major areas concerned the division's proposals: membership drive, image, chamber facilities, credit bureau services and accreditation of the chamber.

The division members decided to hold a membership drive in the middle of February 1977. During the membership drive new members would receive a sales package listing information about the services of the chamber, new members could be contacted, delinquent accounts could be cleared and orientation sessions could be held.

As a long range goal of projecting the image of the chamber, division members decided that the roles that the chamber should play must be established. The publishing of pamphlets and brochures about the chamber and area businesses is one of the continuing long range goals.

The president of the chamber will receive a recommendation from the division to select a committee to study the relocation of the chamber facilities within the next six months.

Extended services and a luncheon meeting for all credit bureau members were recommendations made by division members concerning the credit bureau.

Division members suggested that the chamber week accreditation by the National Association of Chambers of Commerce.

An Overview
According to Ed Walker, executive vice president of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, the out-of-town session was designed to allow members to have time to work on plans, suggestions, and goals for chamber activities for 1977.

After returning to Greenville, the executive board of directors of the chamber will review proposals from each of the four divisional meetings and make final proposals for a plan of action for the organization for 1977.

A special guest at the out-of-town session, Pitt County Commissioner Bob Martin, said the chamber's effort of having an out-of-town planning session was worthwhile.

"I think that it was good for the chamber to meet out-of-town to make plans. The committees seem to have worked hard on the suggestions for programs. I am glad to see that the chamber is focusing on area activities rather than just on Greenville," Commissioner Martin said.

Chamber leaders said the out-of-town planning session will probably become an annual event for the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce and Williamsburg was suggested as a location for next year's session.

Foster Child Is Suing A System Of 'Misery'

LAWSUIT—Dennis Smith is 17, but the first 16 years of his life have been spent as a foster child. "It's like a scar on your brain," he says. Attorneys from the Youth Law Center say they plan to file an unusual lawsuit in the youth's behalf that will seek to recover $500,000 in damages from Alameda County. (AP Wirephoto)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dennis Smith is in his 17th year and his 16th foster home. "It's like a scar on your brain," he says.

"If I had known I was going to spend the first 16 years of my life this way, I'd rather have been dead. I'd have wished my mother could have aborted me," said Dennis.

"I want people to realize what's happening to foster children," he adds. And he has filed an unusual lawsuit with that purpose in mind.

The suit, filed in Alameda County Superior Court Monday, asks damages of $500,000 from the county social service agency and officials of the public school system there.

Smith claims the agency told his mother he would be placed for adoption but sent him instead to one foster home after another. He says the schools accepted what he called a mistaken diagnosis that he was mentally retarded and put him in classes for the handicapped.

Dennis was born in Oakland on Oct. 5, 1959. His two legal aid lawyers say county records are unclear where he spent his first 2½ months. He doesn't know who his parents are or where he got the name "Smith."

Early in 1960 he was placed with a couple already caring for one foster child. Then came more homes and a couple of stretches in public orphanages.

He was placed last September in his present foster home, where his attorneys say he is "reasonably content."

In Oakland, Alameda County officials refused to comment on specifics of the case, but Librado Perez, director of the Social Services Agency, said:

"Regardless of the outcome, we are re-examining our operation to determine whether improvements can be made or if preventive steps can be taken."

Marian Love, an officer of the California State Foster Care Association and Dennis's court-appointed guardian for the lawsuit, said his case is not unusual.

"On the one hand, you have hundreds of childless parents waiting to adopt children," she said. "And on the other, you have hundreds of parentless children seeking stability and hoping against hope they'll be adopted. The chief impediment to bringing these two groups together seems to be the courts and the Department of Social Services. That's what is so ludicrous."

In Prison, It's Worse Problem

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Being 53 inches tall has its problems in every day life, but it's even worse in prison.

"It's bad enough being locked up if you're average size, but it's even worse if you're a dwarf," says Jack Jett, serving time at the Tennessee State Penitentiary here.

Climbing to second-tier prison bunks, wearing ill-fitted prison clothing and being eye-to-waist with other prisoners are all regular parts of Jett's life behind the yellow prison walls.

But getting meals is even worse, says Jett, 48, serving 24 to 40 years for passing bad checks.

"I have to hold my tray over my head to get my meat because the counter is pretty high," he said. "Then I have to jump up just to get in one of the chairs in the dining room."

Jett says he is accustomed to the regular kidding he gets about his size.

"I'm called a 'short-termer' and 'shorty' and things like that. Most of it is friendly kidding," he said.

But Jett says people know better than to take advantage of him, because he says he has friends in the prison.

Jett claims he was "railroaded" in Sullivan County because he is a dwarf and because he is from the North.

"I got more time for bad checks than most people get for murder," Jett laments.

A former Johnson City auto dealer, Jett is the father of five children, three of them dwarfs.

He says he is bitter at prison officials for not allowing him to attend the funeral of his wife last month.

Jett said she took her own life because she "just couldn't take any more of it." She was 14 years old when they married 27 years ago, Jett said.

He said he spends his time writing letters to his family, and anyone who will listen, in his efforts to get out of prison while his sentences are under appeal.

Santa Parade

The annual Christmas Parade sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees will be held December 11 at 10 a.m. according to parade chairman, Jim Bullock.

Groups and persons interested in participating in the parade should contact Bullock at 752-1138 before November 25.

WEATHER FORECAST—Mild weather is forecast today for the Northwest. Cold weather is expected from Arizona to the southern Plains. Seasonable temperatures are expected for most areas. Rain is due for southern Texas and Louisiana. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Fog caused traffic problems in North Carolina this morning. It was densest in the southern Piedmont, where a travelers advisory was issued.

Later, skies became partly cloudy and there was some sunshine.

High temperatures were only in the upper 40s and 50s.

Under fair skies, overnight temperatures will cool into the mid to upper 20s across the mountains. They will dip to the upper 20s and 30s across the remainder of the state, except for some low 40s along the Outer Banks.

Partly cloudy skies will prevail again Wednesday. Afternoon temperatures will range in the 50s, except for the low to mid 60s along the south coast.

It was rainy and cold Monday. The rain ended in the mountains early in the morning and across most of the Piedmont during the day.

Temperatures again were well below normal. In the northern Piedmont and northern coastal plain, the mercury rose only into the upper 30s. The warmest locations were at the opposite ends of the state. It reached the low 50s across portions of the mountains and along the south coast, and the low to mid 60s along the Outer Banks. The warmest was Cape Hatteras with 65, followed by Asheville and Wilmington with 51.

Temperatures at dawn today were mostly in the upper 20s and 30s.

Rainfall in the 24 hours ended at 2 a.m. ranged from light in the extreme west to heavy across portions of the east. More than two inches fell in Goldensboro, and from one to two inches at Elizabeth City, Jacksonville and New Bern.

Small-craft advisories for strong northwesterly winds are in effect for the coastal waters and sounds.

Bagel Beasts Become Big Business

By JOYSTILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Hope Blau is looking at the future through the hole in a bagel, an ethnic bakery product made out of a water-based dough and resembling a miniature life preserver.

But Mrs. Blau's bagels are no longer edible, since she began decorating them and turning them into jewelry, Christmas wreaths, animals and smiling faces.

"My bagelmania was inspired by my grandfather, who baked bagels for a living and who told me stories, making his magical bagels spin and roll and leap through each other," says the dark-haired artist and author.

She continued the tradition by telling stories to her own children, Ricky, now 10, and Laurie, now 15, enlivening the tales with the aid of the hand-painted "acrobatic" animals she created from bagels.

One day her daughter wore one of the happy-faced bagels to school as a pendant and it attracted so much attention that a new industry was born in the Blau apartment in Eastchester, N.Y.

"When stores started ordering pounds of them for their costume jewelry departments even my housekeeper stopped cleaning and pitched in to sort and string the bagels," Mrs. Blau recalls with a laugh. "She loved it and asked if I would mind if she hired a maid to do the cleaning."

Mrs. Blau took to examining the bagels, which she purchased from a local baker at the rate of 500 to 1,000 a week, looking them over "as though viewing a new litter of puppies." Fat, medium-sized ones translated into pigagels; big, lopsided ones became elephantagels and others emerged as lionagels, fishagels, hippogels and frogagels.

Mrs. Blau's physicist husband, Dr. Lawrence Martin Blau, yielded his rights to the bathtub, which became the storage place for the day's output. This unusual workshop was not without its drawbacks, however.

"There was the time I put several large bagels on the bathroom floor to dry and that evening my husband caught his big toe in the hole of one and fell into the shower," she relates.

Once they were dried out the bagels, in minibagel and superbagel sizes, were painted with acrylic paint, shellacked and, on the advice of a lawyer, tagged with a "Don't Eat Me" sign.

"When he told me I must have a notice on each bagel saying that it was not for eating I raced to the nearest printer and asked how quickly he could print several thousand 'Don't Eat Me' labels. I must have been breathless because he said, 'Lady, is your life in danger?'"

"One day I was asked to custom design a bagel for the president of the European branch of a large U.S. company, who had a passion for bagels and was celebrating his 25th anniversary with the company. The bagel was to be presented at a dinner in Paris.

"I developed the 'Executive Bagel,' an average-sized one that could act as a paperweight while adorning the bagel-loving executive's desk. What could be more exciting than an American bagel mingling with all that French pastry?"

As the demand for bagel creatures grew, even the efforts of an industrious family weren't enough, so Mrs. Blau formed her own company, which creates bagel necklaces, key chains, toys, T-shirts, socks, pillows, sheets and candleholders.

Though they still resemble the doughnut-shaped snacks that once emerged from her neighborhood bakeshop, these days the jewelry is made of synthetic "dough."

"It's hard to believe that we still like to eat bagels," Mrs. Blau reports, "but if I find an unusual one I set it aside to dry and paint it."

Mrs. Blau, 38, has just written and illustrated her first book for children, "The Bagel Baker of Mulliner Lane." It's the story of Mrs. Blau's grandfather — the man who inspired her trip into the whimsical world of painted bagels.

Preserve Grapefruit Peeling

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
We've come upon an absolutely lovely new preserve recipe — one we've never found in any cookbook. And our collection of cookbooks is large.

It's timely these days because it makes use of the grapefruit peel usually thrown away.

We find this preserve may be used several delightful ways, and we've suggested these at the end of the recipe.

SYRUP-PRESERVED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL

4 medium or large grapefruit
3 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup short slivers of candied ginger, not packed down
Two 3-inch cinnamon sticks

16 whole cloves tied in a cheesecloth bag

Wash and dry grapefruit. On each, with a small, sharp knife make 4 equidistant lengthwise cuts, from stem to bottom, through entire peel. With a butter knife, gently loosen peel at stem ends. With your fingers, pull off the sections of peel — there will be 16 in all. (Refrigerate the remaining grapefruit and use for compotes and or salads.)

In a large saucepan bring the sections of peel, covered with water, to a boil; simmer 20 minutes; drain. With a sturdy metal spoon scrape off all the inner white membrane so only the thin yellow rind is left. Cover the rind sections with water, bring to a boil and simmer until rind is tender — about 20 minutes. Drain. Cut rind in pieces, making as many of them as you can about 1/2-inch wide and about 2 inches long. (This size helps give this preserve great appeal.)

Into the large, clean saucepan turn the sugar, salt, 1 1/2 cups water, the lemon juice, ginger, cinnamon sticks and clove bag. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Add prepared rind and bring to a boil; simmer until syrup reaches 220 degrees on a candy thermometer — about 35 minutes. Remove cinnamon sticks and clove bag. Ok! heat, at once ladle into 1/2-pint, wide-mouth canning jars to within 1/2-inch of rim. Seal. Label and store in a cool place. Makes three 8-ounce jars.

Ways to use Syrup-Preserved Grapefruit Peel:

Top grapefruit halves with some of it and serve as dessert. Use it as a topping for a compote of sliced oranges and ba-

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I have just figured out that I have spent a total of 23 years, four months, six days, 12 hours and 17 minutes looking for things around the house that are not really lost. (If I had spent that much time taking care of my face and body I could be a love goddess by now.)

The other morning as I hung by my heels retrieving the innards of the coffee pot from the garbage can, my husband in one of his rare moments of sentiment said, "You have the instincts of a water buffalo. You eventually find everything. I don't know how you do it."

"I'll tell you how I do it," I panted. "It comes from having stupid kids who have thrown away the insides of the coffee pot every day for the last three years and from having a husband who sits in a chair and yells, 'Don't get up. Just tell me where my discharge from the Army is.'"

"Whatever," he said. "You really should do a column about it."

He's probably right. This is my formula for finding things around the house before they get lost. Here is how it works. First, you must ask yourself, "If I were an iced tea spoon who wanted to get away for a few days, where would I hide? Then you call on experience. Small boys hate to take medicine. Right? They often drink their orange juice from an old fashioned glass just to be different. Thus, they have probably taken their cold syrup from an iced tea spoon. The iced tea spoon then is in the medicine chest.

Spoon some of it into the cavities of home-style canned peaches or poached fresh pear halves.

Serve it with plain buttered or cinnamon toast; or with toasted English muffins or crumpets or hot biscuits.

Using this kind of logic, the odds are very good for finding the following 15 most often lost items in the following places.

School shoes: In a pair of tight boots.

Tight boots: In the school lost and found.

Baby's pacifier: In the dog bed.

Pencil: (without lead) By the telephone. (With lead) Under the refrigerator.

Car keys: In the mailbox. Marriage license: In the bookshelf under fiction.

Screwdriver: In a raincoat pocket.

Phone directory: In the bathroom.

Comb: Anywhere where it is surrounded by food.

The hamster: In a bedroom slipper.

Umbrella: In the school lost and found.

Title to the car: In the attic in a box marked, "Nativity Scene and Yearbooks."

Scissors: In the shoeshine kit in the utility room.

Yardstick: 12 inches of it is in the hall closet, 8 inches in the tackle box in the garage and 16 inches supporting a tomato plant in the side yard.

Now, let's see, if I were an envelope and a stamp who hated crowds, where would I go?

Flaked coconut adds good texture and flavor to banana bread.

Minister's Wife Questions Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an ordained minister who doesn't charge a fee to officiate at weddings for families in his congregation.

Last summer he performed six ceremonies. They were all lovely church affairs followed by receptions and dinners, and the night before, there were rehearsal dinners. Abby, my husband and I never got one invitation to any of these festivities!

One bride's mother said to my husband after the ceremony, "Oh, please stay for the reception and dinner, and phone your wife and tell her to come over right away?" (He politely declined.)

Another bride told him, "We didn't invite you and your wife to our wedding reception because we figured you'd be too busy to come."

The other four brides didn't even ask my husband to stay after the ceremony, but one saw him on the street a few months later and said, "How come you didn't stay for the dinner? We had a place set for you!"

My husband's brother is a minister in Illinois, and he and his wife are invited to all the affairs related to the wedding. And he is paid a fee, too. What's the matter with the people in California, Abby?

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: California is a large state. Pinpoint the place, and I'll give them the needle.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have raised 14 children, eight daughters and six sons, here in the coal fields of the Southeast. All were raised in the church. (My husband teaches a Bible class.)

Seven years ago one of my daughters, then 15, became pregnant. I couldn't believe it and was heartbroken. My husband insisted that she be sent away, and her baby left wherever it was born. I defied him, saw my daughter through the birth and am now raising her little boy. My once tenderhearted, precious daughter has become a lesbian and has fallen into the use of alcohol and drugs.

Six weeks ago she revealed to me that her own father is the baby's father, too! I also learned that he had molested our other daughters as they were growing up. No one would tell me, but immediately after high school graduation they would leave home to work. Now I know why!

For the first time in my life, prayer has not brought me the wisdom I need now. I am 58, a diabetic, ailing physically and longing for peace of mind. My 60-year-old husband repels me. Would you leave him or endure till death separates you? Please help me.

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: If ever a mother of 14 children deserved their understanding and help, you do. They can help make life bearable again. Go to them.

Your husband is a very sick man, and unless he goes for treatment and recovers completely (which I doubt he will), the Lord will forgive you for not being a wife to him.

DEAR ABBY: To those who write you about problems with relatives, may I submit what I call Einstein's Second or Revised Law on Relativity: Your chances of getting along with your relatives increases directly in proportion with the distance you keep away from them.

Party Lines Shouldn't Figure

The Associated Press reported last week that a tug-of-war had started in the Carter organization.

The problem, if there is one, apparently involves the "old hands" who have been with Carter since the beginning of his long shot campaign to be elected president, and the new people who have come in since Carter won the Democratic nomination and then the presidency.

The staff members deny that there is any controversy going on and they point to Carter's desire for competition among the members of his staff.

Carter understandably has some staff members around him who have been with him for many years—back to the days when he was running for governor of Georgia. He would certainly have to feel some allegiance to them.

THIS AFTERNOON National Health Aid Eyed

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH — The election of James E. Carter to the presidency with overwhelming support from labor groups and blacks is a sure signal that some form of National Health Insurance is not far away, some state experts believe.

So convinced of that are some research people and health planners that work is quietly moving ahead now to put North Carolina in the best possible position to promptly take advantage of whatever system emerges.

Several factors are at work: this state has moved speedily ahead—despite misgivings—with implementation of the federally mandated Health Systems Agencies and the statewide coordinating body; health officials are still struggling with an acceptable way to handle Medicaid coverage for the poor; the state has taken a sizable lead in establishing Rural Health Clinics to provide reach into even the most isolated Outer Banks community or mountain cove.

Children First

Above all, North Carolina is taking giant steps in setting up a system for early childhood screening and treatment of physical, emotional, or mental problems before children get into public school.

Word is quietly being passed in planning agencies and in legislative circles where interest in child care is strongest that this is where the most important work is to be done.

The rationale goes like this: given his campaign promises and the essential support he got, President-elect Carter will likely make health care a top priority. Further, the U.S. Congress has been on the brink of national health care for years, awaiting only the Presidential push—a push likely to come from Democrat Carter.

A key question is whether Carter has the mandate to move with such a costly and expansive program. To several health experts in Raleigh, the Congress is so ready to move that Carter may end up trying to hold them back, rather than the other way around.

Thus, the think-tank people are flatly predicting National Health Insurance within 18 to 24 months.

At the same time he is now moving onto the national scene and he is going to have to draw about him some advisors with expertise in national domestic and international affairs. That could cause friction.

It is going to be most important that Jimmy Carter find the best minds available from throughout the nation to advise him and to fill the appointive positions of government. The search should not stop with the groups who supported him in his successful bid for the presidency. It should not even stop at party lines.

Solving the momentous problems which face this nation is the most important thing facing the Carter administration now. To do this, he will need the best people this country has to offer.

delayed national elections. It means that there will not be a national vote at least until March, 1978.

That's a terrible thing in a third world country where democracy once seemed to be blooming.

coverage under the Medicaid plan. North Carolina is one of the few states which provides that program for low to middle income people—not on welfare—who face extremely high medical bills.

Legislators and agency people most directly involved in plans for the statewide Early Childhood Screening, Diagnostic and Treatment approach now being built are privately mulling over the implications of "Kiddiecare" and trying to figure out how best to take advantage of it. If, as the federal government often does, pilot projects are funded to test the system, this state should be ready to participate that way; if existing systems are sought out by Washington for study and participation in structuring the federal law, this state is ready; and if funds don't move until required plans and cooperative programs are in place, then North Carolina is already a leg up.

Additionally, contacts are being made with Carter aides and Congressmen in hopes of having a direct hand for North Carolinians in designing the program.

"Kiddiecare"

That leaves children as the most needy and manageable group in which national health insurance can be applied. Thus, "Kiddie care" is apt to supplement Medicare and Medicaid as a first step. Second, protection for the family faced with financial wipe-out by a major health problem—catastrophic coverage for middle-income people would be the next logical step.

Federal law already permits a limited version of such

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Post-Mortems Go On

By ROWLANDEVANS AND ROBERTNOVAK

WASHINGTON — While lameduck operatives at the White House blame their loss on Robert Dole, Ronald Reagan and, implausibly, pollster Robert Teeter, more objective Republican politicians place the cause for defeat squarely on Gerald R. Ford.

Asked this week what single event was most instrumental in losing the election, one of the three Republican Senators defeated for reelection told us: "The President breaking his promise not to run" — because if he had held to it, the party would have nominated somebody else. Harsh though that bitter judgment is, it is concurred in by other influential Republicans.

They are not criticizing President Ford's mechanical defects as a campaigner. Nor are they dwelling on pre-convention blunders by his managers; the Ford campaign after Labor Day was more shrewdly conceived and executed than Jimmy Carter's.

The complaint is that Mr. Ford never offered the American people the prospect of inspirational leadership which might have erased Carter's final small margin. Specifically, Mr. Ford is faulted for never seeking to rally the nation with calls for maximum sacrifice in days of maximum peril.

Post-mortems conducted over coffee in the White House mess these days differ considerably. Most absurd are complaints by senior aides that Teeter's polls showing rising Southern strength, led Mr. Ford to waste valuable effort in Dixie; actually, Teeter fought tenaciously for more emphasis in the Northern industrial belt at the expense of Southern activity.

In the first few post-election days at the White House before starting his Palm Springs vacation, the President himself joined in the mortems. He was uncharacteristically bitter about Reagan, complaining about Reagan's refusal to make a late campaign swing through the South. "I don't think it's any exaggeration to say that the President blames Reagan for his loss," one insider told us.

The most popular scapegoat, however, is Bob Dole. As we reported earlier, presidential advisers nominated him as chief scapegoat days before the election. Since then, the assumption of Dole's guilt has hardened into certainty inside the tight little world of the White House mess.

But outside that tight little world, Republicans look no further than Mr. Ford.

Carter's fumbles beginning in September had given the President a golden opportunity. The clear sign that he could not seize it came early in October when he vacillated over firing Earl Butz as Secretary of Agriculture. Looking backward, Republican politicians see Mr. Ford giving voters a costly glimpse of weakness.

Next came the second debate and Mr. Ford's blunder over Poland. Republican politicians outside the White House agree this was the most decisive single incident of the campaign; they disagree whether it was merely an aberration or reflected a fatal pattern for the President.

Those who argue for the pattern seem to have the better case. In that second debate, Mr. Ford incorrectly put Iraq under Communist control (requiring a secret diplomatic apology), apparently forgot U. S. military aid to Yugoslavia when he contended there is no such assistance to any Communist country and ignored the then-secret plans to send defense-oriented computers to Red

Strength For Today

THE ULTIMATE TYRANNY

After all of the struggles for freedom which have taken place in the last hundred years or so, it is a sad fact that most of the people in the world today still live under tyrannies of one sort or another.

Yet even more destructive of freedom than these political or military tyrannies is the tyranny of self-bondage. Great numbers of people everywhere, regardless of the regimes under which they live, are languishing under the heel of their selfish desires. The avid scramble for money, for power, for the gratification of sensual desires; the felt need to work out resentments and taste vengeance—these are some of the taskmasters that make more slaves than military dictators or commissars.

The great need for people in such circumstances is to draft a declaration of independence. The tyrant they need to be freed from is themselves. Also, if they begin to bear some of their neighbors' burdens, they will find their own becoming lighter by comparison.

GOOD TIME TO PUT ON THE BRAKES!

High-Rollers And Dreams

LAS VEGAS — An acceptance of poetry, or of fairy tales, demands what Coleridge once termed a willing suspension of disbelief. That is what Las Vegas demands. In its own strange, strident way, the Strip is poetry of a curious kind, and the city's economy is spun from the gossamer dreams that fairy tales are made on.

This wandering newsman never drops into Vegas without a sense of incredulity. The place is impossible. It cannot exist — but it does. Out of the gritty sand a Caesar's Palace lifts its sculptured fountains. Mesquite flowers into castles, gardens, pennons, mazes and just as many fairy tales present their grisly aspects — billygoats devoted, and maidens put to sleep — so Las Vegas has its morbid overtones. The city lures; it tempts, it draws, it fascinates; and it repels.

What Vegas asks of the tourists — and what the tourists willingly provide — is a suspension of belief in the old conventional values: if the value of money, in the meaning of work, in concepts or worth that can be measured in usefulness or beauty or need. These are the realities that most of us live by, but Las Vegas whispers: Escape them; those plastic tokens are not money; they are merely chips. Come! Try your hand at a toss of the dice; tempt yourself with forbidden fruit — three clusters of cherries all in a row.

The seductive voices find a ready response. Despite every economic indicator — despite recession, inflation, unemployment, or perhaps because of these very things — Las Vegas is booming as never before. Last week the State Game Control Board released its third-quarter report. In the July-September period, Nevada's casinos won a record $351.8 million. Put another way, the tourists lost a record $351.8 million. The tourists seldom seem to mind.

This dreamy madness has to be seen to be believed. At MGM's Grant Hotel, the vast casino rooms are a stageset from a book by Dante, a film by Fellini. Along the busy corridors of slot machines the hot-panted demons gently treat-lights flash red and orange; bell ring. Here there is no day, no night. Wheels spin, coins rattle. Slipper-soft, the card slip round the game board.

The players are mostly as silent as sleepwalkers. Graying ladies sit before the slot machines, hour after idle hour, feeding coins into insatiable mouths. At blackjack tables, players perch like gulls on broadwalk pilings, now and then breaking a card, nipping a plastic tidbit. The roulette wheel rolls its glittering, bloodshot eye, as mesmerizing as the one-eyed monsters of Homeric Legend. What strange odyssey brings the traveler to find a Cyclops, here?

Whatever the lure of Vegas, it works phenomenally well. Last week saw the wholesale druggists and the dentists reveling in Nevada's fantasy land. In recent weeks, Vegas has played host to automobile dealers, tobacco distributors, optical wholesalers, the American Society of Bariatric Physicians. In 1975, the city counted 9.1 million visitors. This year, despite a costly three-week strike of culinary workers in the spring, the count is higher still.

Nothing about Vegas is cheap. The city's convention bureau estimates tourist revenues of $60 per person per day, exclusive of gambling losses, and the figure is probably low. A typical tab for dinner and show, with drinks and wine and tips run to $40 a head; and if the shows are superlative, the dinners are often dreadful. A guest who dined last week at the

Other Editors Say The Reagan Gossip

(Henderson Dispatch)

How genuine it may be or how much lies behind it is not clear, but gossip purporting to have substance is that Ronald Reagan plans to seek the Republican nomination for President again next time around. Next time, of course, will be 1980 and that's four years from now. In a sense it is a long time, but it will come in a hurry depending on who is concerned, and events that transpire in the meantime.

It can be a fair guess that this was back of Reagan's strategy all the while, explaining his flat refusal to run for vice-president on the ticket with President Ford. He could have reasoned that Ford would not win, and the confidence that Reagan could have won had he had been the candidate, and which he missed by only a few votes at the national convention. Conceivably, he might have made a better run than Ford, except for the fact that the party, under such circumstances, would have been repudiating its own President.

All of that will be behind by 1980 and will largely be forgotten by many of the rank and file. The nomination at that time, whoever may achieve it, will not be by shuffling aside an incumbent.

Reagan did not strain himself in supporting Ford in the campaign, and hence would be almost free of any charge that he backed a loser.

Reagan is quite at home on his feet, whether in campaign oratory on the stump or in television debate with an opponent. So far as can be seen as of now, Reagan as the Republican candidate in 1980 would be challenging Carter's bid for a second term. Ford seemed to be somewhat at a disadvantage in the television debates. Reagan would not be, by reason of his fluency as a speaker.

If there be substance to current gossip, a good deal will be heard of the former movie star as the months fly by. It may just be that the campaign for the 1980 nomination has begun, albeit in a quiet manner and without formality.

Home Mortgage Costs To Dip?

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of home mortgages might be coming down in 1977.

That pleasant prospect comes from the people who should know, the officials of the nation's savings and loan associations, who make the majority of home mortgage loans.

"Savings are coming in at a great rate and we're starting to pile up money," said a representative of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, which is holding its annual meeting here.

"When you've got a lot of merchandise on the shelf and you want to move it you lower prices," he explain, noting that savings held by the associations rose about $50 billion in the past year to a total of $340 zillion.

Homebuyers aren't used to good news of this sort, but in a way they can thank themselves. It takes savings to make mortgages, and a good many of those who borrow for mortgages are savers also.

Those savings have soared in the past two decades or so, helping build total assets of the associations to more than $380 billion, compared with a mere $16.9 billion in 1950.

Savers at the associations earn 5.25 per cent interest on ordinary passbook accounts, and 7.75 per cent on six-year certificates of deposit. But borrowing charges have averaged about 8.75 per cent.

Because of this spread, which the league calls "an unprecedented development during recent years," the associations have managed to significantly improve their

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Vietnam began campaigning today for General Assembly pressure on the United States to reverse the Security Council veto it cast against Vietnamese membership in the United Nations. But nothing the assembly did was expected to have any effect on the Americans.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton told the council the failure of the Hanoi government to "account satisfactorily" for 800 American servicemen missing in action in the Vietnam war raised doubts about Vietnam's humanitarianism and consequently about its fitness to join the United Nations.

Scranton said if Vietnam would "abandon trading on the sorrows of families to attain its ends, normalization of relations could then flow swiftly."

The council voted 14 to 1 on Monday in favor of recommending that the General Assembly admit Vietnam to membership, but the dissenting vote from one of the five permanent members — the United States — killed the recommendation.

It was the 18th American veto in the history of the council.

Vietnamese observer Dinh Ba Thi accused President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of a "desire for vengeance" against Vietnam. He told the council he was confident many U.N. members would back Vietnam's application "when the matter is placed before the General Assembly."

Thi hinted that information

40 Years Ago Today

November 16, 1936

The German government protested sharply to Soviet Russia today against the arrest of 23 German citizens.

The protest followed Soviet announcements to the German government that charges of espionage had been lodged against 14 of those arrested.

Accusations against the other nine Germans had not been disclosed.

Previously they were reported detained with a number of persons of other nationalities in connection with an alleged fascist plot against the Soviet government.

The German protests, delivered by the German Charge de Affairs, said the Reich considered that "no serious reason has been given for the arrest of its nationals."

Violent fighting raged today for control of a crossing of the Manzanares River and "Frenchman's Bridge" as insurgent troops struggled to gain a foothold in University City, a northwestern section of Madrid.

University City itself was under the heaviest shell fire of the siege, now in its eleventh day.

But the main battle lay between the insurgent forces on the other side of the Manzanares and government forces on the Madrid banks.

The civilian population on the fringes of University City was evacuated as shells dropped into the side streets, smashing house fronts and pavement.

Quebec Secession Dream Dims Dropout Grandmother Is Attending College

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP) — The Parti Quebecois, which advocates the independence of French-speaking Quebec from English-dominated Canada, has won control of the provincial government.

But the vote for members of a new provincial legislature Monday indicated defeat for secession in a referendum promised within two years by party leader Rene Levesque, who will become premier of the province.

Anti-separatist parties got 59 per cent of the vote, and opinion polls before the election indicated only about 20 per cent of the voters were diehard separatists. Levesque himself during the campaign soft-pedaled his party's traditional goal of independence.

Instead he attacked Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberal-party administration for the province's 10.1 per cent unemployment rate, predicted billion-dollar deficit and the highest taxes in Canada.

Assessment Of Scarlett O'Hara

NASHVILLE (AP) — Fiddley dee, all Scarlett O'Hara did was use her feminine charms to get what she wanted.

At least that's what Dr. Charles E. Wells, Nashville, thinks about the heroine in Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With The Wind."

The novel, set in the Civil War and Reconstruction period of the Old South, was adapted into a movie released in 1939.

Wells, vice chairman of Vanderbilt University Medical School's psychiatric department, takes his assessment of the character seriously.

In fact, he has published a scholarly paper on her, entitled, "The Hysterical Personality and the Feminine Character: A Study of Scarlett O'Hara."

"Scarlett is not a hysterical character — she is not a caricature," Wells said Monday.

When counting stopped Monday night, the Parti Quebecois, or Pequistes, had won 66 of the 110 seats in the assembly and was leading for three others. The Liberals had 27 seats and were leading for one other. In the last assembly there were 102 Liberals and six Pequistes.

"She simply uses femininity to achieve her objectives."

He said the character's hysterical behavior was nothing but a front, designed to manipulate people to do what she wanted them to.

"The reason she is of interest is that she is indeed the prototype of the scatterbrained, upper-class Southern woman," Wells said.

"Her whole life centered around her own wants, and what she wanted foremost was attention and adulation in a setting of comfort and security," Wells wrote.

"She was, in reality, self-willed, vain and obstinate ... she could never long endure any conversation of which she was not the chief subject."

The Parti Quebecois won about 41 per cent of the popular vote; the Liberals got 34 per cent; Union Nationale took 18 per cent, and minor parties got the rest.

There was no immediate comment on the election outcome from Charles Bronfman, the millionaire distiller, sportsman and Liberal party supporter, who said just before the election that if the Pequistes won, he would take his company, Seagrams, and his baseball team, the Montreal Expos, out of the province.

Levesque is a 54-year-old former radio-tv journalist who quit the Liberal party in 1967 to fight for the independence of Quebec.

In the Canadian national capital of Ottawa, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and other political leaders said the election was a mandate to form a provincial government, not to separate Quebec from the rest of Canada.

"I am confident that Quebecers will continue to reject separatism because they still believe their destiny is linked with an indivisible Canada," Trudeau said.

Bourassa, a 43-year-old economist, attributed his government's defeat to "centrifugal forces in society...that polarize people rather than allow them to accept the middle course proposed by the Liberal party."

He said a major factor was the Official Language Act, which his government passed in 1974. The law made French the province's official language and tried to force children of immigrants into French-language schools by requiring those whose native tongue was not English to pass a proficiency test in that language in order to attend English schools.

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An 80-year-old grandmother is attending Methodist College where her son is president and one of her 12 grandchildren is a student.

Alice Pearce, who dropped out of Indiana University 59 years ago, is taking three classes. Her attendance this semester was a last minute decision.

Her son, Dr. Richard W. Pearce, is president of the college. Her grandson, Ed, is a sophomore on the 700-student campus.

Ed first encountered his grandmother on campus when she walked into his history class with an armload of books. "All I could think to say was 'What on earth are you doing here,'" he said. She replied, "Well, you can't sit around doing nothing or you'll go crazy."

Mrs. Pearce plans to enroll fulltime next semester in order to earn a bachelor of arts degree in English, hopefully within three years.

She said she has noticed only a few changes from the 1917-18 school year at Indiana. "I really can't see that much change because the core requirements are very similar," she said. "One difference I do note is that now when we discuss ancient history in Western civilization, I remember the events first-hand."

In 1920, Mrs. Pearce married and dropped out of Indiana University.

"It was just as well," she said, "because I was completely lost on that campus of 1,500 students." The university now has an enrollment of 31,000.

"Another difference," Mrs. Pearce said, "is that there seems to be so much more to learn now. But the freshman class of 1976 is just as wonderful as the freshman class of 1917."

Dr. Pearce, asked what he thinks about his mother attending the college, said it's great but he laughed and added, "I want her grade reports sent to me."

Must Free Some

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The state must begin releasing some prisoners to relieve overcrowding, says the chairman of a legislative committee on prison reform.

He proposes day-for-day credit, release one day earlier for every day of good-behavior time served.

"It might not be popular, and it would be awful if someone committed a serious crime, but we're going to have to get some of them out of there, to release them," says Eddie Knox, Charlotte attorney and former state senator.

"The ideal way to solve our problems would be to have fixed sentences, plenty of courts, and a guarantee that everybody gets the same treatment," said in an interview. "But our state simply can't pay for that."

He said the Knox Commission's report will be an attempt to present an orderly picture of the prison system in North Carolina: who goes to prison, the stiffness of their sentences and how best to improve the system. "I really think we're in a situation where we can get something done," he said.

Knox said the prison system has more than 13,000 inmates with space designed for a little over 10,000.

China when he flatly barred military help for Peking. The sum total: a certain confusion about the state of foreign policy.

Confusion may account for complaints by Republican politicians that Mr. Ford failed to clearly enunciate the Soviet military threat — potentially a dramatic issue capable of mobilizing Americans yearning for leadership. While Mr. Ford pressed defense hard in the campaign's closing weeks ("I stand for a strong national defense. America must be No. 1"), he never supplied a coherent reason because he never explained the Soviet menace.

To some Republicans, the President's last chance to inspire his countrymen came on the first question of the third debate when columnist Joseph Kraft asked what sacrifices he would call on the people to make. Confronted by a question apparently not included in his briefing book, Mr. Ford wandered for a moment, then replied: "A tax reduction primarily for the middle-income people."

Failing to provide an inspirational alternative to Carter's bread-and-butter issues and heavy support from labor and minority groups, Gerald Ford relied on his excellent media campaign and the value of incumbency. It fell just short, leading to today's search for scapegoats at the White House. But outside those gates, Republicans hold Mr. Ford responsible for not sounding the rallying call that might have restored his declining party.

about the missing men might be supplied if the United States would let Vietnam into the world organization. He said the U.S. veto policy "will only serve to continue the days of waiting of American families whose children" were listed missing.

A resolution probably will be pushed through the assembly noting the council's one-sided vote in favor of Vietnam, pronouncing the country qualified for U.N. membership and asking the council to reconsider the application and approve it.

The assembly by a vote of 123 to 0 adopted a similar resolution in favor of North and South Vietnam on Sept. 19, 1975, after the United States vetoed their separate membership applications. Despite the huge assembly majority in favor of the Vietnamese, the United States vetoed the applications again 11 days after the assembly vote.

Another American veto is expected when the issue comes back from the assembly unless Vietnam has supplied information about the missing Americans to the U.S.-Vietnamese talks which opened in Paris last week. However, this is not considered likely.

Pre-Registering On December 7

Pre-school registration will be held at G. R. Whitfield School December 7 from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. Students who will be five years old before October 16, 1977 should register at the school on this date. Parents should submit, their names, the children's names, birthdates, addresses, and telephone numbers to the school prior to December 1. For further information contact the school office.

Under the anesthetic spell of Vegas, few tourists feel the pain. Visitors pour in by bus, commercial jet, and chartered plane. Hotels are running at occupancy rates of 90 percent or more. The city boasts 36,000 hotel rooms now; another 2,700 rooms will be available next year. The newspapers overflow with help-wanted ads, for maids, waiters, dealers of cards, counters of coins, weavers of an opulent enchantment.

By any rational measure of values, it is all false, as hollow as the plastic columns, as phony as the papered bathroom tiles, but no rule of existence says that economic values must be "true." The wheels spin, the caged machines regurgitate a silver flow, and blackjack dealers, mute as mannequins, pronounce no judgments on the folly of mankind. This is Vegas, the air-conditioned Inferno in the hot Nevada sands. The willing sinner should not pass it by.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

Mr. Herbert Gilbert, the executive editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religion, philosophy, etc.

He will be in Greenville in early January. If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately and describe your work. State whether you would prefer a morning, afternoon, or evening appointment, and kindly mention your phone number. You will receive a confirmation by mail for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress.

"Cash-Flow" and your lifelong battle of income vs. outgo.

That first paycheck can seem pretty big, until you start paying for your own food, clothes, and housing.

The median price of a home in the U.S. today is $39,300: something to consider when you need room for kids.

Sending kids through four years of college can cost anywhere from $10,000 up, depending on where they go to school.

Over your lifetime, you'll have a lot of money coming in.

And a lot of money going out. Sometimes, you'll have more than you need. Other times, you won't have enough.

And, in this lifelong battle of income vs. outgo, a bank can help you in a lot of ways. By looking at things more from your point of view. And less from the bank's point of view.

NCNB INTRODUCES LIFETIME "CASH-FLOW" BANKING.

"Cash-Flow" is a new way of banking designed to work for you, whatever your situation.

Whether you're a 20-year-old with your first job, or a couple planning your retirement.

It considers more than just the banking business you do; it also considers all the things that affect your financial life. So we've put together booklets covering eight different situations.

They're designed to help you with everyday finances, long-range planning and putting NCNB services to work for you.

Then, our people are trained to do more for you than open an account or make you a loan. They'll answer your questions and help you find the best way to handle things. (If they can't answer your questions, they'll find someone who can.)

Finally, our services have been designed to be flexible enough to help you make the most of the money you make.

HOW TO START GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A BANK.

One of our booklets fits your situation right now and it's yours for the asking.

So stop by any NCNB office and pick one up. Or just call our toll-free number, 800-822-8855 and we'll send you a copy.

Either way, do it soon. With all the money you earn, save, spend and borrow over a lifetime, it pays to get the most out of your bank.

And, we think you'll get more when your bank is NCNB.

Court May Take Up Reverse Discrimination Case

Two Accept Roles For Stadium Fund Campaign

J. T. SNOWDEN

JACK EDWARDS

J. T. (Tommy) Snowden and Jack Edwards, Greenville businessmen, have been appointed to leadership roles in East Carolina University's campaign to expand Ficklen Stadium. Dr. Ray Minges, Greenville chairman, announced today.

Minges said Snowden will coordinate the overall solicitation efforts through the professional, industrial, campus and general business community and Edwards will serve as general business chairman.

"These men are respected businessmen in the Greenville community and I am very pleased they have agreed to join the Stadium Expansion Campaign team," Minges said.

The solicitation drive will begin in Greenville Wednesday, Nov. 17 following a 12 noon briefing of solicitors at the Willis Regional Development Institute Building. The campaign organizers say they hope to raise the $2.5 million by early next year with a large portion of that amount to come from the Greenville area.

In commenting on his post as Greenville coordinator, Snowden said he views the expansion of Ficklen Stadium as one of the most exciting things to happen in the area during the past 20 years.

Snowden is a partner in a Greenville land development company and is an officer and director of Charter Foods, Inc.

Edwards, a Greenville merchant and president of the Greenville Sports Club, said he was extremely optimistic about the business drive.

Edwards added that anyone who is interested in participating in the campaign and has not already been invited, should attend Wednesday's kickoff meeting.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Can a medical school reject a white student with test scores higher than minority students admitted under a special program? Or is that racial discrimination in reverse?

The Supreme Court may agree to wrestle with that question. If it does, its answer could carry great consequences for affirmative action programs in education and business throughout the nation.

The justices on Monday temporarily set aside an order by the California Supreme Court striking down a program at the University of California-Davis Medical School that gives admission preference to minority students.

While not denying the racial and ethnic aspect of its program at Davis and other UC campuses, the university's regents said they were attempting "to bring historically under-represented minorities and ethnic groups into the mainstream of our country's educational and professional life."

The charge of "reverse discrimination" was made by Alan Bakke, a 36-year-old white civil engineer who twice was turned down for admission to the medical school.

He charged that he was discriminated against because UC-Davis admitted 16 lower-rated students, all minority members.

The Supreme Court gave the UC regents 30 days to appeal the state court's ruling, saying it will hold in abeyance the order dismantling the affirmative action program pending the appeal.

Many civil rights groups — including the NAACP, the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund and the National Conference of Black Lawyers — have urged the regents to drop the case. They fear an adverse ruling could jeopardize affirmative action programs in schools as well as in working places.

Two years ago, the justices declined to rule in a similar case involving Marco DeFunis Jr., a white Phi Beta Kappa student who was rejected in 1971 by the University of Washington law school, which also had a special admission program for minorities.

By a 5 to 4 vote the court decided DeFunis' case was moot because he had been admitted to the law school under a lower court's order pending appeal, and he was about to graduate.

The court on Monday also: —Agreed to hear arguments in a case where a worker alleges that he lost his job because of religious discrimination.

—Refused to consider an appeal by Fairfax County, Va., and Nassau County, N.Y., authorities seeking to void federal approval of landing rights the supersonic Concorde jetliner at airports within their confines.

—Agreed to decide whether Michigan has to pay for half of an $11.6-million educational enrichment program in Detroit schools, an outgrowth of efforts to integrate the city's school system.

—Refused to consider the constitutionality of a curfew imposed by Middletown, Pa., which prohibits persons under 18 from being away from their homes at night when unescorted or without prior approval. About 3,000 U.S. cities and towns have similar curfews.

Reported 4 Traffic Mishaps Yesterday

An estimated $3,125 damage resulted from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene Street and Gum Road involving cars driven by Queen Elizabeth Speight of Route 1, Bethel and Hewi Khoshnaw of 901 Douglas Ave.

No charges were made by officers who set damage at $400 to the Speight car and $1,500 to the Khoshnaw vehicle.

Jerry Allen Brady of 2818 Edwards St. was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 10 a.m. mishap on Tenth Street, 200 feet East of the Monroe Street intersection.

Police reported the Brady truck collided with a car driven by Jamie Nelson Austria of Norfolk causing an estimated $350 damage to the Austria car and $100 damage to the Brady truck.

No charges were made following investigation of a 1:11 p.m. mishap of Fourth Street, 100 feet East of the Jarvis Street intersection.

Investigators said a truck driven by Willie B. Teel of 601 Hudson St. collided with a parked car owned by Kenneth Lee Clark of Charlotte, resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Clark car and $75 damage to the truck.

Vehicles driven by Stephen Boyd Benton of 804A Johnston St. and Carl Douglas Page of Route 2, Siler City were involved in a 2:15 p.m. mishap on Chestnut Street, 40 feet West of the Skinner Street intersection.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage at $125 to the Benton car and $175 to the Page truck.

Drowned When Boat Capsized

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP)—A physician and his fishing companion, a drug company representative, both of Charlotte, drowned Monday when their 17-foot boat capsized in an inlet between Long Beach and Holden Beach.

They were Dr. William Isaac Jones, 56, a family doctor, and Jack Lee Burford Jr., 46.

Dr. Jones opened his office in Charlotte in 1960 after practicing in Great Falls, S.C., for seven years. He was a native of Fort Mill, S.C.

located in the portion of Pennsylvania Avenue being considered for closure at Sadie Salter School. Advance agreement is needed prior to the December meeting of the City Council, when a public hearing will be held on the street's closure.

Relative to a resolution from the school board asking the City Council to consider construction of a pedestrian overpass on Arlington Boulevard at the site of the new Middle School under construction, a letter from City Manager Jim Caldwell outlined the council's action. The city has no funds to construct the overpass, but city officials are concerned over the safety factor involved.

Cox added that he is working with Assistant City Engineer Ron Sewell on possibilities, one of which is a request for a traffic light and the utilization of safety medians at that point.

Non decision matters discussed included a planned policy attendance for students; expressions of appreciation for the interest of the Chamber of Commerce in a recent tour of the schools; and appreciation to the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary for the annual Health Fair conducted at Wahl-Coates School.

Preparing For 3-Day Show

Final preparations were being made this morning at Farmers Warehouse here prior to the opening of the three-day Tobacco Farmer Show.

Jerry Clower, country comic from Yazoo City, Miss., was scheduled to open the show with an appearance at 11 a.m., according to show manager Jim Swindell.

More than 120 exhibitors, featuring every major piece of equipment or product used in flue cured tobacco production, were preparing their displays for viewing. A variety of educational exhibits was also planned, Swindell said.

Swindell pointed out that a large turnout, including visitors from other states, is expected for the event. Bus trips from other states have been organized by various groups, he said, including Young Farmers and tobacco warehousemen.

Pitt County will be represented by the Pitt Agribusiness Association and a hospitality center hosted by the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

The show opens at 9 a.m. on Wednesday and Thursday and closes at 6 p.m. Sponsors are Specialized Agricultural Publications, publisher of The Flue Cured Tobacco Farmer magazine.

NATIONALLY KNOWN SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT HERE IN GREENVILLE

GREENVILLE (Spec.) United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Greenville area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about the Greenville classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible).

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming . . . now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places.

"Merit Delivers More Taste Than Higher Tar Cigarettes."

—American Institute of Consumer Opinion

Extensive taste testing shows Merit delivers flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

The bottom line was conclusive:

In a series of taste tests conducted for MERIT by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion*, smokers from across the country judged MERIT to have more flavor than five leading low tar cigarette brands.

What's really startling—and of major importance to all smokers—is that MERIT has less tar than these five brands.

Dallas May Be Playing Bad, But Cowboys Are Still Winning, 17-10

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Wide receiver Drew Pearson of the Dallas Cowboys had just caught nine passes for 135 yards, but he displayed a hang dog look on the sidelines as the final seconds ticked away in a 17-10 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills.

"Boy, he's going to chew us out this time," Pearson said to a teammate. The other player nodded.

"He" is Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who has a 9-1 team that is playing bad and winning. In fact, the Cowboys are off to their finest start in their 16-year history in the National Football League.

Pearson said later, "We are professionals and if we don't play up to our level then we should expect to be chewed out."

He was told that Landry says he never chews out players. Pearson answered with a smile, "If he says he doesn't chew us out — then he doesn't."

Landry did not sound like the Cowboys were in for too severe of a tongue-lashing.

Dallas is playing well enough to lead St. Louis by one game in the National Conference Eastern Division. The teams meet in a Thanksgiving Day showdown at Texas Stadium.

"It still all comes down to that game," said Landry.

Dallas played good defense but had an almost non-existent rushing game. Virtually the only offense was passes from quarterback Roger Staubach to his favorite receiver, Pearson.

The duo clicked for 61 yards in 13 seconds on two passes just before the end of the first half for the go-ahead touchdown after Buffalo had tied the score 7-7 on a 29-yard touchdown pass from Gary Marangi to Reuben Gant.

Dallas led briefly 7-0 in the second quarter on Preston Pearson's two-yard touchdown run.

The payoff was a 21-yard touchdown pass from Staubach to Drew Pearson.

Staubach admitted, "Our offensive performance wasn't good at all."

Pearson added, "The coach has to do something to get us fired up — so he'll probably chew us out. We just haven't played to our potential."

UCLA Narrows Pitt's AP Lead; Rutgers In

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
The University of Pittsburgh's still-comfortable lead over UCLA was narrowed slightly in The Associated Press' college football ratings released today.

Meanwhile, Southern California, Michigan and Texas Tech retained the 3-4-5 spots, while Georgia climbed into a sixth-place tie with Maryland, Oklahoma returned to the Top Ten after a four-week absence and unbeaten Rutgers cracked the Top Twenty for the first time this season.

Pitt ran its record to 10-0 with a 24-16 triumph over West Virginia last Saturday. The Panthers received 44 first-place votes and 1,206 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

UCLA, a 45-14 winner over Oregon State, got 13 first-place ballots and 1,093 points. Pitt's margin last week was 1,226-1,093 and UCLA also sliced Pitt's edge in first-place votes from 49-7 to 44-13.

Southern Cal, which beat

Washington 20-3, received one first-place mention and 866 points, while Michigan, the No. 1 team for most of the season until a loss to Purdue two weeks ago, rebounded to beat Illinois 38-7 and was accorded two first-place votes and 834 points.

Texas Tech, one of the nation's four unbeaten teams along with Pitt, Maryland and Rutgers, walloped Southern Methodist 34-7 and received one first-place vote and 786 points. The other two first-places went to Maryland and Texas A&M, No. 11 in the new rankings.

Georgia, seventh last week, caught Maryland for a sixth-place deadlock at 663 points with a 28-0 trouncing of Auburn, while the Terrapins blanked Clemson 20-0.

Ohio State, a 9-3 winner over Minnesota, held the No. 8 position, but idle Houston jumped from 12th to ninth and Oklahoma's defending two-time national champions rose from 14th to 10th, downing Missouri 27-20.

Nebraska and Alabama were 9-10 last week, but the Cornhuskers lost to Iowa State 37-28, while the Crimson Tide bowed to Notre Dame 21-18.

"Bowl games do have to be secondary right now. We do have one more game to go," said North Carolina's Mark Cantrell, a 246-pound center who makes no secret of where he wants to go for a New Year's celebration. "I'd like to go to the Gator Bowl."

Gator representatives scouted the Tar Heels' 31-6 victory over Virginia last weekend, as did Tangerine and Peach officials. The Sun Bowl included the Tar Heels in its list of candidates announced Monday, along with Penn State, Florida, Alabama, Arkansas and six other Midwest and Southwest teams.

Peach Bowl officials named North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Iowa State and Oklahoma State as its top prospects, adding that it would like one of the Carolina teams to serve as host.

South Carolina, 6-4, hurt its chances for a post-season appearance last Saturday when it lost to Wake Forest 10-7.

Carolina Looks To Bowl Trip

By The Associated Press
North Carolina plays Duke Saturday, hoping to end the season with a ninth win but keeping an eye toward a post-season bowl.

"This team really needs to concentrate and not think about outside teams," said Tar Heel Coach Bill Dooley, refusing to talk about the bowl prospects. But just about everyone else is talking, with most saying a Peach, Gator, Sun or Tangerine bowl appearance is likely for the Tar Heels.

Maryland, 10-0 and virtually certain to end the season with a third-straight Atlantic Coast Conference championship, also has bowl fever as it prepares to meet Virginia at Charlottesville.

Coach Jerry Claiborne, defending his team against critics of the Terps' schedule, says his team deserves to go to a top bowl. They probably will too, as bowl spokesman says the Terps are in the running for a chance to meet the Southwest Conference Champ in the Cotton Bowl or the Big Eight representative in the Orange Bowl.

Bowl invitations are to go out Saturday.

North Carolina, 8-2, needs a win at home Saturday against the Blue Devils, who are coming off a 28-14 win over North Carolina State. Last year the teams played to a 17-17 tie.

"Bowl games do have to be secondary right now. We do have one more game to go," said North Carolina's Mark Cantrell, a 246-pound center who makes no secret of where he wants to go for a New Year's celebration. "I'd like to go to the Gator Bowl."

Robinson Top Player

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Furman tailback Larry Robinson and William and Mary free safety Scott Hays today were named the Southern Conference football players of the week.

Robinson, a 5-foot-10, 185-pound senior from Hogansville, Ga., ran 10 times for 137 yards and scored the winning touchdown on an 84-yard run in Furman's 17-10 upset last Saturday over East Carolina.

The All-Southern halfback broke six tackles en route to the goal on his run, which aided in his selection as the top offensive player.

The 137 yards he gained gave Robinson a conference career record of 2,897 yards, wiping out the previous mark of 2,889 set in 1973 by Carlester Crumpler of East Carolina.

Hays was named defensive player of the week for his eight solo tackles, four assists and one pass deflection in William and Mary's 22-0 victory over The Citadel.

The 6-foot-1, 200-pound junior from Williamsburg, Va., twice made the big play in goal line stands that enabled the Indians to preserve their third shutout of the season.

The Second Ten consists of Texas A&M — 16th a week ago but a 31-10 winner over Arkansas — followed by Nebraska, Notre Dame, Iowa State, Colorado, Oklahoma State, Penn State and Alabama, with Missouri and Rutgers tied for 19th.

Last week's Second Ten was Missouri, Houston, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Florida, Texas A&M, Oklahoma State, Notre Dame, Colorado and South Carolina.

Western Carolina Looks Toward Future In Southern Conference

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Western Carolina University is glad to be getting into a conference, and Coach Fred Conley is looking forward to next season, when the Catamounts will be eligible for the title.

"It's tough to practice when you're an independent when you know you have to have a super record to get into post-season play. But in a conference, you know that you've got a tournament berth waiting. You have more of a chance, your competition is tougher, and it helps recruiting."

This year, however, Conley's biggest problem is to keep the Catamounts from getting discouraged since they have no place to go. They are not eligible for this year's tournament in the Southern Conference, and since they are in Division I for the first time, they would just about have to win all of their 25 games to have any chance at an at-large berth, and even with a perfect season, anonymity might do them in.

"The challenge we are faced with could justifiably discourage a team, but we are really looking forward to it and sincerely think we can have a successful season, despite the odds," Conley said.

"Our attitude and hustle so far has been impressive. It could be easy for us to be lackadaisical, but that hasn't happened yet."

Conley thinks the team play may be better than expected. "The addition of Alex Bell at the post is going to give us something we lacked last year in that we expect to be more physical there." Bell was a late transfer from West Florida, which dropped basketball. The 6-8 senior averaged 14 points and 13 rebounds for that school which posted a 20-8 record.

Conley feels speed and quickness will be the biggest assets on the team. "We should have a good balance of scoring, and we have several young men who can play different positions."

But the lack of size could hurt the Catamounts, despite having good leapers. Bell is the tallest man on the roster. "Experienced depth could also be a factor," Conley added. "Once we go to the bench, we also lose our physical strength, especially at the post."

The Catamounts will be a running team, one with good discipline and an offense that won't have to rely on any one scorer.

Quickness will also play a big role on defense, and Conley plans to make use of a lot of pressure. "We can press a good deal, whether it be man-to-man, zone or combination. We should be able to change defenses and not lose ground in the process."

The Cats return just three veteran performers, however, and that inexperience could be their downfall. Thomas "Bubba" Wilson, a 6-3 guard returns and will probably handle the point. He averaged 11.1 points a game last year, and picked off six rebounds a contest.

Ike Mims is the leading scorer back. The 6-6 front court man could play either the wing or the post. He hit 16.7 points a game, and pulled off 11.2 rebounds last year.

The other veteran is guard-jumper James Lassiter, 6-4. He hit 15.6 points a game last year and 7.7 rebounds.

Also back is Willie Hamilton, 6-4, who missed all but two games last year due to injury. Two other non-lettermen are back, 6-3 guard Russell Gibbs, a sophomore, and 6-5 George Dodkin, a senior.

There are three freshmen on the squad, 6-6 Ben Mitchell, 6-3 Jimmy McCallister and 6-5 Vance Hughes.

It all boils down to how quickly the Catamounts can build experience. This is really a transition year, however, and they may rely on getting ready for next year's conference race.

Rozelle Hits NFL Lottery

By KRISTIN GOFF
Associated Press Writer
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle says widespread legal sports gambling would drive families from football stadiums and make bettors suspicious of every important game play.

Rozelle testified on Monday in the first day of a federal court suit brought by the NFL to halt Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery which offers the first state-operated sports pool betting in the nation.

If such games were widely copied in other states, Rozelle told the U.S. District Court, the "family-oriented" character of the football audience would erode and football fans could end up booing their home teams if point spreads did not coincide with their bets.

The NFL filed for a permanent injunction to halt Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery and is seeking a cash award of damages from proceeds of the 10-week-old betting games.

Although Rozelle predicted serious problems for pro football if legalized sports betting became widespread, under questioning by defense attorneys, he acknowledged that the NFL had taken no legal steps against betting operations in two other states and did not claim violation of property rights in the publication of a number of books on football or football betting that were introduced as evidence.

NFL attorneys told the court they object to the "forced association" with gambling because it threatens the integrity of pro football and argued that Delaware was violating NFL trademark and property rights by tying its sports lottery to NFL games.

E. Norman Veasey, who headed the NFL legal team, also told the court in his opening statement that he would show that the Scoreboard lottery violated both state and federal lottery and anti-gambling laws. The trial is scheduled to continue through the middle of next week.

Rozelle was referring to Montana and Nevada, which both offer types of legal sports betting games but differ from Delaware in that the games are licensed by the state but privately-run.

Rozelle told the court that Nevada's sports betting operation was geographically isolated, had been operating for years and posed less of a threat of being widely copied than Delaware's system which is operated by the state lottery office.

He also described Montana as isolated, but said he knew little of the game played there except that it was played along the lines of a bingo or punchboard game.

Still Has A Chance

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers have an exceedingly difficult task in their bid to get a chance at a third consecutive Super Bowl victory.

"What we have to do hasn't changed at all," Coach Chuck Noll said Monday. "We have to win the rest of our games."

Here is the way it shapes up for the Steelers, 6-4, who have won five straight games, allowing nine points and no touchdowns in that span, but still trail Cincinnati by two games in the American Conference Central Division with four games remaining.

They can likely forget the "wild card" playoff berth that goes to the best division runner-up. It probably will go to New England or Baltimore from the AFC East.

They also will likely have to win all their remaining games: at home Sunday against Houston, at Cincinnati, home against Tampa Bay and at Houston.

Furthermore, it is likely that in addition to beating Cincinnati, they will have to hope the Bengals also lose to at least one of their other remaining games, against Kansas City, Oakland and the New York Jets.

Yet Steelers guard Sam Davis agreed with Noll that Pittsburgh cannot look too hard for that outside help.

"Maybe we got ourselves into trouble in the first place by looking too far ahead," he said, referring to Pittsburgh's 1-4 start.

Six Make All-League

Six Rose High School athletes were named to Division I All-Conference teams in tennis and cross-country.

Four were named on the girls' tennis selections. They are Serena Matney, Marty East, Karen Jeffreys and Margaret McGlohon.

A total of 12 players were named to the tennis team. The others included seven from champion Wilson and one from Rocky Mount.

Named to the All-Conference cross-country team were Jesse Baker, the individual champion, and Tili Jolly.

The All-Conference football team has also been selected, but will not be announced until Wilson concludes play in the state playoffs.

Super Athletes Making Super Salaries

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
(Editor's note: Million-dollar contracts are becoming almost commonplace in professional athletics. The top players are earning more in a year than many Americans will make in a lifetime. This series will examine the salary phenomenon, looking at the development of the pay structure, the players' point of view and the future of the huge contracts. Today: Who makes the most and how those salaries got there.)

For stuffing a basketball through a hoop with more dazzle than anybody else, Julius Erving makes $600,000 a year.

For throwing a baseball with more savvy than anyone else, Catfish Hunter makes $250,000 a year, with a promised bonus of $1.5 million after the 1979 season.

For playing superlative hockey on a pair of gimpy knees, Bobby Orr was given a $3 million contract for five years. He will make the money whether he plays or not.

For being a football star in Buffalo, O.J. Simpson makes a reported $2 million for three years.

For giving soccer in the United States a shot in the arm, Pele was given a $4.5 million package for three years.

For four title fights and a bizarre exhibition with a Japanese wrestler, Muhammad Ali, possibly the most recognized figure in the world, grossed $13 million in 1976.

These figures don't even include the money athletes can make from endorsements, radio and television spots or post-season jobs. And they don't include daily expense money athletes get on the road and in training camp.

So is there any doubt that sports, a category of show business, is big business, too?

These high-paid athletes are considered to be the top stars in their profession. For their seasonal work, they compare favorably with top business executives in America.

The American Management Association surveyed the salaries of the chief executive officers for nearly 3,000 durable goods manufacturing companies. This year, the average salary ranged from $77,500 for the top executive in a company doing $10-25 million in sales to $247,000 for companies with sales of $500 million to $1 billion.

The chief executive of the United States was making $200,000 a year, with numerous privileges and fringe benefits. "I had a better year than the president," was Babe Ruth's famous 1930 remark in justifying his $80,000 salary, which surpassed Herbert Hoover's by $5,000. But when the Babe was earning big salaries, he was the only athlete who could play in the same financial league with the president.

On the 1927 Yankees—perhaps the greatest team ever—Ruth made $70,000. But the other 25 players totaled only $200,000, or about $8,000 a man. Herb Pennock, a 23-game winner the year before, had the second highest salary, $15,000.

The professional athlete of average ability is doing much better these days. In 1975, the average salaries were $48,000 for major league baseball, $109,700 for the National Basketball Association, $95,000 for the American Basketball Association, $75,000 for the National Hockey League, $60,000 for the World Hockey Association and $42,000 for the National Football League.

(In comparison, the average salary of policemen and firemen in cities of over 100,000 population last year ranged from $10,717 to $14,001, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.)

Until the 1960s, baseball was the leader in high salaries, among the team sports.

In 1939, Carl Hubbell was making $22,500, Hank Greenberg $25,000 and Bill Terry $30,000. They were the baseball stars of their era, and they made much more money than football's Bulldog Turner made 10 years later. Turner, still recognized as the best center who ever played the game, earned $14,000 in 1948 and 1949.

In 1949, Joe DiMaggio became the first $100,000 baseball player and Ted Williams was getting $90,000. Meanwhile, star running back Steve Van Buren of the NFL made $15,000.

In 1950, DiMaggio again got $100,000 and Williams jumped to $125,000. Van Buren still earned $15,000, while quarterback Sid Luckman got $20,200.

In 1952, quarterback Sammy Baugh made $12,000; in 1960, quarterback Norm van Brocklin made $22,500, and in 1964, Sonny Werblin, owner of the New York Jets, made quarterback Joe Namath a star and gave him $400,000 to sign with the new American Football League.

Namath's signing gave the AFL legitimacy, and that authenticity was the breakthrough for the NFL players' salaries. They finally had some bargaining leverage, the same advantage gained by the NBA and the NHL several years later. Football salaries began to rise.

Jimmy Brown made $60,000 in 1965, but it wasn't until the late '60s that the bidding war between the competing leagues led to skyrocketing salaries.

Depending on which side of the salaries you were on, the AFL and television were either the angels or the devils in the NFL's escalating salary picture.

"The main thing was that in those days baseball was making much more money than football," says NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "In the early '60s we were getting $150,000 a team from television. But in the late '60s television and the laws of supply and demand took effect."

The salaries went up when the money became available. The key was 1965 and 1966 when the teams first got $1 million from television. Now the teams are receiving $2 million from television and the sport is generating more money than ever before."

Another key was the creation of the World Football League in 1974. The WFL, which expired after 1½ years, did raise the standard of living for some players who jumped leagues and some who were paid well to stay.

The WHA in hockey and the ABA in basketball did the same thing to the winter sports.

The ABA wasn't financially successful, but its presence and the fact that basketball rosters are relatively small helped the sport reach the highest level of salaries in the athletic kingdom.

Finally, the NBA owners decided it wasn't economically feasible to continue winning the battle with the ABA while losing the war of the checkbooks. A merger agreement creating a 22-team league was reached earlier this year.

The arrival of the WHA spurred a bidding war for players with the NHL and resulted in higher salaries than hockey had ever known. Players such as Derek Sanderson, Bernie Parent and Gerry Cheevers went to the new league for large salaries only to return later to the NHL.

Now there is relative peace between the two hockey leagues with only an occasional player switching from one to the other and no bidding to prevent or induce it.

Salaries, however, aren't going to return to previous levels. It's much too late for that. "The result will be that untried players right out of college will not be making exorbitant salaries to sit on the bench," said an NBA spokesman. With the high base of salaries already established and the new labor contracts permitting free agency in most of the sports, the super stars will still be earning the super salaries.

"An athlete deserves his fair share," says quarterback Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys, who earns an estimated $100,000 a year. "I've earned the position that I'm in. I produced and I'm paid well."

"We, of course, want high benefits and salaries as long as the owners are making a profit—and they are."

Staubach, Simpson, Namath and all the other professional athletes are not self-employed. Some person or conglomerate is paying their salaries.

"Can the players really get more than they're worth?" asks Marvin Miller, executive director of baseball's players association.

"Remember, the owners are the ones who are paying the players."

Anthony Davis Ends Canadian Grid Career

TORONTO (AP) — The Canadian Football League career of running back Anthony Davis has come to an unceremonious end.

Davis, the heralded college superstar who arrived in Canada six months ago with a five-year, $1-million contract, bought the contract back from the Toronto Argonauts Monday and said he hoped to pursue a career in the National Football League.

Peach Scouts

ATLANTA (AP) — The Peach Bowl will scout six college football teams Saturday, including South Carolina and North Carolina, both possible choices as the host school for the Dec. 31 contest in Atlanta Stadium.

Executive director George Crumley said Monday scouts would be at the Duke-North Carolina, South Carolina-Clemson, Kentucky-Tennessee and Iowa State-Oklahoma State contests Saturday.

He said the selection committee met for five hours Sunday and expressed sentiment for one of the Carolina teams to serve as the host team.

"We are going to try to tie it up Saturday night," said Crumley. "I think we'll have one team picked anyway but we are interested in seeing what happens to the other bowls like the Orange, Sugar and Cotton."

Bowls can officially extend invitations for post-season events on Saturday, according to National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

SPOIL SPORT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cesar Tovar has broken up no-hit bids by five different pitchers, providing his team's only hit. While playing for the Minnesota Twins, Tovar spoiled bids by Barry Moore and Dick Bosman of the Washington Senators, and Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar of the Baltimore Orioles. As a member of the Texas Rangers, Tovar made the only hit in a game against Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter. Every hit was a single.

Held For Kidnap, Murder Of Patrolman Flu Vaccine Is More 'Gentle'

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — An Atlanta, Ga., man is in Central Prison Hospital facing murder and kidnaping charges growing out of the abduction and wounding of a Virginia state trooper who was killed at a roadblock Monday.

Reuben Conley, 33, was wounded by gunfire at a roadblock about 10 miles north of Durham on Interstate 85. Trooper Garland West Fisher Jr., 33, of Petersburg, Va., was found riddled with bullets. He was slumped over the wheel of his car. Conley, hit in the chest, neck and knee, was found lying on the back seat, officers said.

Dr. Wilston (Mack) Reavis, assistant state medical examiner, said there were 14 bullets in Fisher's body. An autopsy report was expected today.

North Carolina state troopers had used a tractor trailer rig as a roadblock to halt Fisher's unmarked car.

Barney Bernard, Granville County magistrate, said a warrant charging Conley with murder was sworn out Monday by State Bureau of Investigation agent Joseph Momler of Henderson.

Virginia state police said Conley had been charged with kidnaping, attempted murder and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Conley was taken to Duke

Medical Center and later transferred to Central Prison hospital. Durham County Prosecutor Anthony Brannon said Conley was exhibiting "aggressive behavior," such as spitting at doctors. Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood signed an order transferring him.

Fisher was about to go off duty late Sunday night when he stopped a car on I-85 south of Petersburg.

Cmdr. E.W. Jones of the North Carolina Highway Patrol said Fisher was shot, abducted and forced to drive toward Atlanta, and then apparently was allowed to radio his headquarters. Jones said the abductor was armed with two pistols, a .22 and a .38.

The patrol chief said he did not know how Fisher was able to tell his headquarters he had been shot and was taking a man to Atlanta "since the gunman had control of the situation."

While other Virginia state police trailed the automobile into North Carolina, a roadblock was arranged. Jones said about 20 or more troopers and other officers were at the scene at 1 a.m.

Brannon said the troopers opened fire when they heard several shots from within the vehicle.

"There was a lot of shooting," said Brannon.

"It is very likely the trooper received gunfire from outside the car," Jones said.

"If we find a man criminally liable, we'd ask that the SBI (State Bureau of Investigation) take action," he said.

The patrol commander said he understood that at least one shotgun was used at the roadblock, indicating that Fisher could have received multiple wounds from one shot.

The car had been riddled with bullets. One officer at the scene said the tires were flattened with gunfire so the car couldn't go any farther.

Col. Jones said he talked with Conley's sister in Atlanta, who told him her brother was a "troubled guy...He thought someone was trying to kill him."

He quoted the sister as saying Conley was "always troubled, as if he were being pressured by somebody or something."

Fisher was the first Virginia state trooper shot to death since Nov. 1, 1968, when W.Y. Harless was slain while attempting to apprehend a suspect.

Apprenticeship Opportunities For Rose High Gifted Seniors

This year gifted seniors at J. H. Rose High School have a chance to become apprentices, without salary, to a senior official in government; an educational or cultural institution; an executive or professional in the fields of public health, law enforcement, education, research, the arts and humanities, administration, social services, communication, industry and other fields in community services and vocational opportunities in the Greenville area in the Executive Internship Program.

According to Mrs. Wende Allen, director of the program, the program is patterned after the Distributive Education and Occupational Education courses, but the students receive no salary. The Executive Internship Program is offered to students during the third level of a program for gifted students. During the first two levels, students may research a topic and conduct independent study on the topic.

"This is the first year that seniors are allowed to leave school after they finish their classes. This program allows some of them to go out and study an occupation rather than just go home," Mrs. Allen said.

Presently there are eight Rose High School students working in various occupations. The students and the firms that they are working with are as follows: Dave Middleton, Tom Taft, attorney; Mary Lou Diener, Fred Mattox and David Reid, attorneys; Bob Northrup, Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce; Lynn Calder, TEACCH classroom for children who are autistic or have communication disorders; Vicki Howard, Elmhurst School, in the Learning Disability Resource Center; Beth Heath and Charlie Hayek, working with Dr. Graham Davis in the Biology Department at ECU; and Jim Hunt, WRQR.

The interns are intellectually gifted and selected for their leadership and creative problem-solving potential. The interns are placed in an apprenticeship only after meeting with potential sponsors and discussing all aspects of the roles of the student and the sponsor. The intern's schedule includes approximately 10-20 working hours each week throughout the school year. The actual times are arranged by mutual agreement between sponsors and interns. Interns receive credit toward graduation.

The Executive Internship Program at Rose High School is patterned after the Executive High School Internships of America, but it is not a member of the nation-wide organization. Last year 2,500 students in 27 school districts across the country represented the fourth year of interns enrolled in the program.

Additional sponsors are needed in the Greenville area for more interested students who

Y'all Come

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Y'all come," to Jimmy Carter's inauguration as president on Jan. 20.

That, in essence, is what Carter's inaugural committee chairmen are saying as they launch the preparations.

"The greatest concern of the President-elect is that we reach the maximum number of people possible. He wants an open inauguration," said Bardyl Tirana, who met with Carter about his plans last week.

Carter and his aides have turned back through history to the inauguration of Andrew Jackson, a Southern populist, in 1829. Jackson's boisterous constituents flooded Washington and reportedly made a shambles of the White House carpet, among other things.

Tirana, a Washington attorney, is one of the people running the inaugural committee, which now has a staff of 10 and more work than it can handle.

One of its first duties will be compiling a list of 300,000 or more people who helped the Carter campaign in some way and are to get printed invitations.

D. H. Conley Highlights

By LINDA COX

College Day was held at D. H. Conley November 8. Representatives from various schools were present to answer students' questions. Conley seniors and juniors planning to attend school after graduation were invited to interview the visiting representatives in order to improve their knowledge about the different colleges.

Sue Ellen Bridgers, formerly of Winterville, visited D. H. Conley High School recently to talk about her new novel HOME BEFORE DARK, which was partially published in "Redbook" last summer. Mrs. Bridgers explained different writing techniques.

Open House was held in the school auditorium November 9. Parents visited with teachers and elected officers of the Parent Involvement Association. New officers are as follows: John Bailey, president; Rommie Mallison, vice president; Connie Garris, coordinating secretary; Willie Mae Hawkins, secretary; Betty Fornes, treasurer; and Alva Worthington, second vice president.

Trent Knight and Eddie Woodall are editors of the VALKYRIAN this year. Linda Cox is the business manager. The yearbook will probably not be completed until mid-May.

Coach Shelly Marsh has announced that December 1 is Junior High Night for basketball. The eighth grade with the largest attendance at the game will be awarded $50.

This week seniors will be ordering invitations and getting their pictures taken in their caps and gowns.

Elect Officers Of Association

The East Carolina University Library Science Alumni Association has elected the following officers for the year 1976-1977:

Neal Hardison, President, Dean, LRC, Sampson Technical Institute, Clinton; Jane Alligood, President-Elect, Media Specialist, John Small School, Washington; and Scottie Cox, Secretary-Treasurer, Dean, LRC, Wayne Community College, Goldsboro.

Association directors elected included: Virginia Quinn, Media Director, Duplin County Schools, Beulaville; Bill Snyder, Librarian, Librarian, J. C. Holiday Library, Clinton; and Vivian Crickmore, Librarian, East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education, Greenville.

Peyote Buttons Found In Search

Greenville Police and East Carolina University campus officers found five peyote buttons — parts from certain cacti that act as a stimulant drug — during an early-morning search of a Jones Dormitory room today.

Chief Glenn Cannon reported Joe Graham Bason, 18, of Hillsborough, was charged with felony possession of peyote following the search.

Street value of the drug was estimated at $1,000.

NBC Cancels Movie Slot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC says it is dropping its Wednesday TV movie series. And CBS, plagued by low ratings this season, has canceled "The Blue Knight" and Tony Orlando's Tuesday variety show.

NBC said that on Dec. 1, it will start three new situation comedies and move a Danny Thomas comedy, "The Practice," from its current 8 p.m. EST time slot on Wednesdays to 9:30 p.m. that night.

NBC's new comedies are "CPO Sharkey," starring Don Rickles as a chief petty officer at a Navy training base in San Diego; "The McLean Stevenson Show," with the former co-star of CBS' "M-A-S-H" as the owner of a hardware store in a small town, and "Sirota's Court," starring Michael Constantine as a night court judge.

The cancellation of NBC's Wednesday night TV movie series came less than a month after CBS juggled its Wednesday night schedule to put in a two-hour program of hit theatrical movies.

The changes are part of efforts by the two networks to lure audiences away from ABC's top-rated "Bionic Woman," "Baretta" and "Charlie's Angels" on Wednesday nights.

THE NEW AMC PACER WAGON IS HERE!
HANDLES ROADS LIKE A PACER.
HOLDS CARGO LIKE A WAGON.

Pacer Wagons wide design gives you the room and comfort of a much bigger car.

Pacer Wagons special hatch eliminates the cumbersome tailgate of other wagons. And the bothersome lip of other hatchbacks.

Pacer Wagon's unique wide design cargo area—makes everything easy to reach.

Pacer Wagon features a practical 6-cylinder engine as standard equipment.

Pacer Wagon's rack and pinion gives you direct, responsive steering.

Pacer Wagon's wide stance and isolated suspension give you a smooth ride with sure, stable handling.

AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN II.

FEATURING A FULL 2-YEAR 24,000 MILE WARRANTY COVERAGE ON ENGINE AND DRIVE TRAIN.

No other U.S. car company offers a full 2 year, 24,000 mile warranty on engine and drive train. Plus everything else (except tires) is covered against factory defects or failure due to wear for 1 year or 12,000 miles.

THERE'S MORE TO AN AMC.
