HOTLINE FEEDBACK

FIVE IN PITT

As was promised in an earlier Hotline item, we are publishing information about which railroad crossings in Pitt County are on the State Department of Transportation's priority list for signalizing.

Farmville's S. Main Street crossing of the Norfolk-Southern Railroad has a hazard index of 74.8. It's hoped that signals can be revised and gates can be installed at a cost of $35,000.

Greenville's Greenville Boulevard crossing of the Seaboard Coastline Railroad (adjacent to Wickes) has a hazard index of 57.0. Cantilevered signal installation is planned at a cost of $30,000.

Greenville's Tenth and Pitt Street intersection with N-S Railroad, (near Bostic Sugg Furniture Store) has a hazard index of 36.4. Flashers are contemplated at a cost of $35,000.

Winterville's State Road 1711 (Copper St.) crossing of SCL RR, has a hazard index of 26.9. Flashers are considered at a cost of $30,000.

Greenville's Greenville Boulevard crossing of NS RR (near 14th St. Extension) has a hazard index of 25.2. Revision of signals and installation of gates is contemplated, at a cost of $45,000.

Division Traffic Engineer Gerald England indicated that while these crossings on the top 200 priority list, there is no indication as to when funds may be made available for the work to be done.

The railroads make the installations, charging a flat rate to the state or federal government, whichever is footing the bill. Costs, like all costs, have gone up tremendously in the past few years.

Asked specifically about the 14th Street Extension crossing where a fatal accident occurred Oct. 23, he said, it has a hazard index of 49.1 after 10 and a half years of study. Counts indicate some 2,800 cars cross it per day. It's not on the program at the present time, though this accident and any others which occur there will no doubt increase its hazard index and move it up further in relation with other crossings throughout the state.

All of the five crossings slated to be signalized are on the federal highway system, England indicated. The 14th Street Extension crossing is not, and therefore, money does not seem to be available at the present time, since there are so many crossings in the state with much higher indices.

"We tentatively formed a budget with goals of $15,000 per year. We hired a full time secretary and made a list of prospective members. We had a meeting of a group of about 20 merchants and each of these people talked to five or six other merchants and got them to join," Brody said.

"The solicitation of the merchants was based on the size of the store, the number of employees and the type of business," Mosier said.

"We now have 57 merchant members out of the 61 downtown merchants in the association," Mosier said.

Laney explained the redevelopment plans that the City of Greenville used to help improve the city.

"We first looked at the downtown area. We tried to begin to set a schedule of activities to give the most benefit to the area. We worked on the congested traffic, completed Reade Circle and closed two blocks on Evans Street to make the mall," he said.

Mosier explained that some downtown activities are being done. "I came over here a month ago and saw the mall. I had not been here in over four years and I just couldn't believe it. I travelled in this area for 25 years. I walked down the mall in amazement and almost got lost. I

"We don't have a merchant without an increase in sales. A September sales report showed that the lowest sales increase of our merchants was six per cent and the highest sales increase was 53 per cent," Mosier said.

Thousands At Tobacco Farmers' Show Opening

"IT WAS 'BOUT THIS BIG . . ." Country comic Jerry Clower, of Yazoo City, Miss. tells stories before a large crowd yesterday at Farmers Warehouse.

Swindell pointed out that free parking for nearly 10,000 had been planned and by noon Tuesday, apparently much of that space had been taken as cars and trucks lined the highways and filled the parking sections near the warehouse.

Puerto Rican Cookery From The Old World

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The people of Puerto Rico, who have about a million settlers in New York City alone, have made a number of contributions to the cookery of this country.

It apparently began when American tourists who visited the beautiful Caribbean island about a thousand miles southeast of Florida acquired a fondness for the tangy specialties served there. Travelers returning from vacations there complained that few restaurants on the U.S. mainland served these delightful dishes, many adapted from the Old World.

This has changed in the past few years, so much so that in 1970 James Trager, a student of international menus, made a list of Puerto Rican delicacies he had sampled in the continental United States. It included empanadas, meat fried in bread crumbs; yames, a root vegetable that turns purple when cooked, and of course the rice and bean variations.

He also contended that Spanish paella, a one-dish meal of rice, Spanish chorizo sausage and shrimp, reached us by way of Puerto Rico. I was told later that the Puerto Ricans used a variation. The Spaniards use saffron to color their paella, but Puerto Ricans do it with annatto seeds, which have little or no taste but can be used as a vivid coloring when heated.

Because of its historical background, Puerto Rico is a land of sharp contrasts, combining the best of Spanish and American culinary art. Over the centuries, simple dishes originally prepared by the Indian inhabitants of the island have been enriched by the skills of descendants of the early settlers and by African slaves brought over to work in the sugar fields.

Puerto Rican delicacies are legion. One I like is a succulent, dumpling-like dish known as banana pastilles. Here is the recipe.

- 1/2 pound vegetable shortening or lard
- 3 ounces paprika
- 1/2 pound diced pork, raw
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped garlic
- 1 pinch oregano
- Tabasco to taste
- 12 pitted green olives
- 1 teaspoon capers
- 1 sweet pepper chopped
- 1/2 pound diced potatoes, raw
- 2 pounds green bananas
- 1/2 pint milk
- Salt to taste

For filling, melt shortening and add paprika till it becomes red. Add pork, saute 1 minute then add garlic, oregano, Tabasco, olives, capers, sweet pepper, potatoes. Cook 10 minutes, strain and save fat. Peel and mash bananas to make dough, adding milk, salt and half of the reserved fat. Spread 1 tablespoon melted fat over center of wax paper measuring 12 by 12 inches. Then spread 3 tablespoons of dough atop melted fat. In the middle of the dough place 3 tablespoons of filling. Fold over completely, covering the filling and making a pastille. Wrap this with a second piece of wax paper. Repeat

Inform Daughter Of Your Feelings

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, Nell, who lives 200 miles from here, was divorced last year. She has a 4-year-old son, Terry, whom I love very much. Nell used to call me on the phone and tell me (not ask me) to meet Terry at the bus and keep him for the weekend. Naturally I always did.

Last week when Nell called to tell me to meet Terry at the bus, I told her I couldn't do it as I had made plans to go away for the weekend myself. I could tell she was irritated.

Well, yesterday she sent me a telegram telling me to meet Terry at the bus again! I tried phoning her to inform her that I was going away again, but I couldn't reach her. Now I'm stuck.

How can I get out of being a weekend sitter for my grandchild when it's not convenient? With her sending telegrams and not answering her phone, I'm over a barrel.

BOILING IN LA JOLLA
DEAR BOILING: Tell your daughter that she is NOT to send any more telegrams instructing you to meet her child at the bus. And furthermore, she should phone you and give you a fighting chance, or she'll lose her free sitting service permanently.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the woman who kicked her 24-year-old brother-in-law out of the house because she didn't want to leave him alone in the house with the performance till all ingredients are used. Put 2 pastilles together and tie with string. Repeat with the rest. After wrapping all pastilles, place in boiling salted water and cook 1 hour. Any wax that melts from paper will float to top of water and can be skimmed off.

For calorie-watchers: Use a large lettuce leaf instead of a tortilla for enclosing a portion of a chili-flavored meat mixture. Have the lettuce icy-cold and the meat mixture hot for an interesting taste contrast.

13-year-old sitter prompts this letter.

When our children were small many years ago, my husband and I had sitters occasionally, and no matter what time we came home my husband made ME drive the sitter home while he stayed with the kids. He always said, "No young punk with hot pants will ever have the chance to say that I made a pass at her!"

Abby, maybe I was dumb, but the thought that one of our sitters would unjustly accuse my husband of such a thing never even entered my mind. Nevertheless, he refused to drive a sitter home. But the fact that I, his wife, was driving alone after midnight didn't seem to bother him. How do you figure it?

STILL ANGRY

DEAR STILL: I can't say what was in the minds of those sitters, but it's obvious what was on your husband's mind.

DEAR ABBY: I see in your column that readers are submitting names for couples who are shacking up together. Well, you can quit searching. I have the perfect name. "Newlybeds."

JACK DENTON

DEAR JACK: "Friends" is still my choice, unless the Quakers object to being confused with those who are feeling their oats.

Center Educates 'Whole Person'

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — Under the guidance of professors who have abandoned traditional education methods and accepted massive salary cuts, a small experimental college here in northern Arizona is offering a tailor-made education as an alternative to the conventional four-year college.

The Prescott Center for Alternative Education espouses an active, innovative education based on experience instead of textbooks and lectures, according to James Stuckey, the center's president, who is also the fund raising director, communications coordinator, psychology professor and mountaineering coach.

"It's the education of the whole person — emotionally and intellectually," he explains. "There are no spoon-fed lectures, 'textbook answers' or perfunctory examinations. For the student without goals, the student who has learned only how to play test-passing games, the Prescott Center experience can be completely unnerve."

There are no institutionalized requirements, Stuckey explains, but rather individualized requirements giving students expertise in their fields. "Students actually sign a contract (we call it a proposal) drawn up by the student in collaboration with faculty and upperclassmen in that field. In the beginning, research projects, specific courses, reading assignments and working experiences are tailored to the student. Later, the student recommends his own projects, shouldering the responsibility for learning."

The center calls this "self-direction" and, beyond an intellectual education, it is a primary goal, Stuckey says.

To meet the center's mandatory graduation requirements of "self-direction" and "professional competence," upperclassmen increasingly use the professional world as a classroom. Students can be found working in veterinary hospitals, at the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, organizing wilderness programs for juvenile delinquents and conducting wildlife surveys under contracts from the Bureau of Land Management.

As the student develops emotionally and professionally — a judgment made by the faculty — tuition decreases on the theory that "self-directed" students demand less of the center.

Prescott Center is a college without time requirements, Stuckey explains. "If after six years a student cannot give proof of professional competence (with resumes, portfolios, working experiences, outside activities or job offers, for example), the center will not graduate him. If it can be done in less than four years, that's fine."

Orientation here is a three-week wilderness immersion, including a three-day "solo" without a supply of food, "designed to prepare students emotionally for the higher education experience," says Stuckey. "Using the wilderness as a classroom, students develop the same techniques for survival and self-reliance they will need to survive in the professional world."

And in the field of survival techniques, the center can justifiably claim expertise: as a direct extension of the now defunct Prescott College, it survived a financial disaster.

The center's predecessor had been described as everything from "a wild West dude ranch" to a first-rate academic institution. Students from around the country were attracted by innovations that had established the 10-year-old liberal arts college among academia's upper echelons. But as the recession accelerated, declining endowments spelled disaster for the overbuilt college.

"Within 24 hours of Prescott College's demise, a handful of students and professors began the task of rebuilding a college using the techniques for survival and self-reliance the school had taught," Stuckey recalls. "Professors agreed to massive salary cuts and a curriculum was devised so the institution could function on the basis of student fees."

Operating in the cramped basement of a 48-year-old hotel, the school began its first semester as scheduled while the $6-million campus lay abandoned. Through a grant from the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation, the center recently made a down payment on a new campus: the somewhat dilapidated former Mercy Hospital, currently being renovated by students and faculty. Ironically, the Prescott College campus is still deserted, held in limbo by the bankruptcy courts.

Recruiting with a nickel-and-dime budget, the center has an enrollment this semester of 100, nearly 25 per cent of its predecessor's maximum enrollment. And beginning its second year offering courses like White Water Rafting, Ecology of Diets, Psychology and Personal Growth and Religious Experience and the Environment, the center is operating in the black.

"The innovations for which Prescott College was famous," Stuckey says, "were purified and strengthened through the closing of the college and the center's opening."

To underscore his claim, Stuckey points to last year's graduates — 100 per cent were employed in their respective fields at graduation.

Though the center itself does not offer a degree, it offers students a recognized undergraduate degree through an affiliation with Johnston College, an experimental branch of the University of Redlands.

Salt and lemon juice

Soak the bulgur in about 1 cup of cold water and set aside.

Heat up the oil and cook the onion over medium heat until it is soft. Drain the bulgur and add it to the spinach and stir it all around until bulgur is evenly distributed throughout. Thanksgiving is next week and many of you are planning to have a turkey or poultry dinner. I do have a few hints or reminders to share with you about the care and preparation of the bird.

Most turkeys are marketed as frozen whole birds—chilled turkeys are sometimes available. Boneless turkey roasts and boneless turkey rolls are popular convenience items. They are available in all white meat, all dark meat, or a combination of both. In some sections of the country, turkey halves, quarters, parts, and steaks are available.

Whole ready-to-cook turkeys may range in size from 4 to 24 pounds or even higher. Young hens weigh less than toms of the same age.

THAWING

Keep turkey frozen until time to thaw or cook.

You can thaw turkey in any of these ways:

In the refrigerator, in the original wrapping or lightly covered with waxed paper if turkey is unwrapped. Place turkey on a tray for easy handling and to catch any drippings. Thaw until pliable.

Here is a timetable for thawing turkey in the refrigerator:

Turkeys

4 to 12 pounds — 1 to 2 days

12 to 20 pounds — 2 to 3 days

20 to 24 pounds — 3 to 4 days

Pieces of large turkey (half, quarter, half breast) — 1 to 2 days

Cup-up pieces — 3 to 9 hours

Boneless roasts — 12 to 18 hours

In cold water, in original wrap white-wine vinegar

Mince fresh or dried herbs and crushed garlic to taste

Mash or chop the artichokes very fine and with a fork beat in the remaining ingredients. Or for a delightfully smooth spread, turn all the ingredients into a French food processor (using the steel blade) and process until smooth. Serve as a spread for small crackers, cucumber slices or cherry tomatoes. Makes about 1 cup.

or other watertight plastic bag. Change water often. Thaw until pliable. Approximate thawing times are:

Turkeys

4 to 12 pounds — 4 to 6 hours

12 to 20 pounds — 6 to 8 hours

20 to 24 pounds — 8 to 12 hours

You may partially thaw turkey in the refrigerator and complete thawing in cold water.

In a cool room, in a double-wall paper bag or wrapped in several thicknesses of paper. Place turkey on a tray for easy handling and to catch any drippings. Thaw at 70°F. or below until pliable. Approximate thawing times are:

Turkeys

4 to 12 pounds — 12 to 15 hours

12 to 24 pounds — 15 to 20 hours

Thawing times with any of the above methods will be shorter if giblets are not packed in the bird cavity.

After turkey is thawed, prepare for cooking in the same way as chilled, unfrozen turkey. Cook turkey promptly after thawing.

ROASTING

All kinds of poultry—chicken, turkey, duck, and goose—are delicious roasted. Poultry roasted whole may be stuffed or unstuffed; it cooks faster unstuffed.

Plan the roasting time for a large bird so it will be done about 30 minutes before serving. Allowing turkey to stand a short time makes it easier to carve.

To keep poultry safe to eat and for best eating quality, do not partly roast poultry one day and complete roasting the next day.

To test for doneness, press the fleshy part of the thigh with protected fingers. If the meat feels soft, poultry is done. Or if the leg

VFW Auxiliary Has 30th Birthday Saturday

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars celebrated its 30th birthday at Parkers Restaurant Thursday night.

Members of the Post were special guests. President Carrie West gave the welcome and told of the history of the auxiliary. It was instituted Oct. 18, 1946, and had 21 charter members.

The following were presented 30 year pins: Mrs. Margaret Brown; Mrs. Margaret Joyner; Mrs. Alice Proctor; Mrs. Madaline Vincent; and Mrs. West.

Mrs. Vincent paid tribute to Mrs. Brown, who has been treasurer and proposed to give her a life membership in the National Home, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Majorie Angstadt gave the invocation. Mrs. Alice Mosely, Buddy Poppy chairman, thanked those who helped with Buddy Poppy Day. Proceeds will be used for disabled veterans and their families.

It was announced that the yard sale would be held at a later date.

The center table was decorated with an arrangement of red and white carnations interspersed with miniature flags. An auxiliary table, holding the tiered birthday cake, was decorated with red tapers and berries.

How Evaluate Biggest Stories?

Each year the Associated Press sends out a list of important news stories of the year and asks newspaper editors to choose the ten most important ones.

This year, as the nation's bicentennial closed, the news service sent out an extensive list of events which have taken place in this nation over the past 200 years. Editors were asked to choose the most important events over the nation's life time.

It isn't easy. Some sensational things have occurred in the United States since our founding. Some of them vastly changed the course of mankind; others were simply the sensations of their day.

Most of us would put the American revolution and the drafting and ratification of the Constitution and Bill of Rights near the top of such a list, of course.

But where do you put Watergate? It is still too close on us to determine how it will affect the course of our government.

Where do you place man walking on the moon, World Wars I and II. Does the California gold rush which led to the settlement of the west deserve to be on the list, or should the nineteenth century immigration be ranked.

Is the 1954 Supreme Court segregation decision more important than the Civil War. Then there is the New Deal, Eli Whitney and the cotton gin, Henry Ford, Edison and electricity, the Wright brothers flight, television, presidential assassinations, telephone, telegraph, railroads, trade unions and the rise of the movies and sports.

All of these things are important to many people, but remember that we are trying to pare the list down to the 20 events which most shaped this country.

It all makes one aware of what a wonderful heritage this nation has; and how much we have to pass on to future generations.

Pitt Countians Urged To Take Vaccine

Once again health officials are urging Pitt Countians to take advantage of the free swine flu vaccine offered at the Health Department and by private physicians.

Dr. Charles Gilbert, president of the Pitt County Medical Society, said recently that only a small percentage of those eligible for the immunization had taken it.

He said it is important that the immunizations be taken soon since "probably it takes several weeks for antibodies to be built up to protect one should he be exposed to this strain of flu."

THIS AFTERNOON

Rescue Squads OK Rules

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Volunteer rescue units across the state, once on the verge of revolt over state regulations and training requirements, are now satisfied with the system, a legislative study commission has found.

The crux of the bitter feeling among the volunteers was not just a state law requiring formal training for ambulance attendants, but the high-handed fashion in which that requirement has been imposed upon the local squads, legislators think.

Most of the rescue squad men endorse the need for training, in fact, and a survey of units across North Carolina found the majority in favor of increased training.

There are some 250 rescue squads in the state. An Emergency Medical Services office was established by the General Assembly in 1973, and in 1975 set up laws governing training and certification for ambulance attendants and Emergency Medical Technicians.

Too Central
A number of volunteer

rescue squad members felt things were moving too fast toward a formalized and centralized system; that regulations were too standardized; and that the voluntary nature of the squads would be wiped out by the requirements.

Those fears, legislators now believe, were the results of failure to communicate with the rescue squads by the state agency, and the methods by which the state agency worked with the local units. The end result was "apprehension, friction, and concern within the ranks of the agency," and "considerable dissatisfaction with the program in several areas of our state," the legislative committee chaired by State Rep. Larry P. Eagles, D-Eggleston, decided.

"We just used the wrong approach at the state level. When you just go down and try to tell a bunch of volunteers what they've gotta do, you just create problems," Eagles now says of the approach.

The state agency was changed, and former State Highway Patrol Commander

Charles Speed placed in command.

Letters were sent to rescue volunteers explaining that training requirements would not take effect until mid-1977; that a category called Certified Ambulance Attendant would be used requiring less training; and that Emergency Medical Technician status (81 hours of training) was needed for only one person aboard a vehicle.

Thus, the trained individual is responsible for medical aspects of the mission, while drivers or others are not required to have the training.

More Training
So far, over 7,000 Emergency Medical Technicians have been trained in the state, and many of those are now asking for additional upgrading to paramedic or higher status, the legislative committee found.

From the survey of rescue squads in the state, legislators found that those who favor the Emergency Medical Services program believe it assures better trained people to handle emergencies.

Opposition centered on administration, on the time required to gain certification, and on the nature of training which the volunteers thought should provide "less word terminology and more practical application."

From the survey, the hearings held by the committee, and talks with key officials of the Emergency Medical Services office and the N. C. Association of Rescue Squads, legislators are concluding that no new legislation is needed at this time and that the present direction of the state agency should continue in doing "everything in its power to support and enhance the functioning of local voluntary rescue squads recognizing the great services they perform..."

The legislators also suggest improved communication efforts, noting in a report to the General Assembly that, "Many of the problems brought before the committee could have been prevented with open and direct dialogue between the various components of the Emergency Medical Services system."

County Clerks Never Die

WASHINGTON — Not everyone was running for President of the United States this year. I have a friend named Jerry Altshuler who ran for county clerk in Oklahoma City. A county clerk, as I understand it, is in charge of recording records, deeds, births, deaths and legal papers that must be filed in the county courthouse. It is not a very glamorous job, nor does it pay very well. But Jerry, as a good citizen, decided to run for it anyway, if for nothing else than to prove to himself he could get elected to something.

He formed a committee consisting mostly of relatives, raised a few thousand dollars through friends and started his campaign.

What Jerry wasn't prepared for was the citizenry of Oklahoma City, who were not too concerned with how good he was at county clerking but wanted to know where he stood on the issues.

"How do you feel about abortion?" was one of the first questions Jerry was asked at a church meeting.

He responded, "The county clerk's office will not be concerned with abortion. I believe abortion is a matter between a woman and her congressman, her senator, her doctor, her church and the Supreme Court of the United States."

He was loudly booed.

"What do you plan to do about unemployment?" a union man asked him at a rally.

"As county clerk I will keep accurate records of all unemployment in the area."

He was booed again. Jerry found himself in front of an ethnic group and a man in the audience stood up and said, "What will you do if the Soviet Union invades Yugoslavia?"

It was a question that his campaign manager had not prepared him for. He said off the top of his head, "I would immediately notify someone at the Pentagon."

This did not satisfy his audience. "Why should you tip your hand to the Soviets as to what you would do?"

"There isn't much the county clerk of Oklahoma City can do if the Soviets invade Yugoslavia," Jerry protested.

He was booed again. Jerry had a meeting with his staff members who were worried that he had put himself on the defensive.

They concluded that he had put forward an affirmative program which would win the hearts and minds of the people of Oklahoma City. They suggested that he promise, if elected, that he would institute a new computerized system in the county recorder's office and microfilm all outdated files to save space and the taxpayers' money.

He presented his plan at a press conference covered by one reporter from a weekly paper. Then Jerry opened the conference to questions.

The reporter asked, "How do you feel about nuclear energy?"

"That's not my department," Jerry responded tersely.

"Then you refuse to take a stand on all environmental issues?" the reporter said.

"My staff is now working

Costly Beef In '77

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers who have seen beef prices fall steadily from last year's highs can expect to pay record prices to put beef on the table in 1977, an Agriculture Department economist predicted today.

Retail beef prices soon will begin climbing and probably will cost a record average of $1.49 a pound next year, Richard J. Crom of the department's Economic Research Service said.

That is 10 cents above the estimated 1976 average of $1.39. Last year's record average was $1.46.

The reason that beef prices will swing back up is that cattlemen, who are enduring severe financial losses because of a glut of beef this year, have reduced their herds sharply, Crom said.

One consolation is that pork prices will be down in 1977, he said, although beef accounts for about two-thirds of the meat consumed by American families. Meat is the biggest item in food budgets.

"Look for beef prices in 1977 to average about 10 cents per pound higher than this year's average, while pork prices may average five cents lower," Crom said. "Retail pork prices likely will be lowest this winter, while beef will peak seasonally in the summer months."

Pork was $1.35 a pound in 1975, and climbed another penny to a record of $1.36 this year.

Crom made his analysis in a speech prepared for the department's annual outlook conference.

Retail food prices over-all are

Fascist attackers and the government defenders of Madrid threw the full strength of their air force and tank corps of artillery into a ferocious battle for the possession of the capital today.

Four months old tomorrow, the Spanish civil war appeared in its decisive stage.

The thunder of artillery boomed ever louder and the chatter of machine gun fire filled the center of the city as government militiamen hurled themselves against insurgent armies filtering across the Manzanares River and into Madrid proper.

They turned close range artillery fire on the Moors and foreign legionnaires who held doggedly to their battle-won positions in University City inside the northwestern limits of Madrid.

Hoping to promote world peace, President Roosevelt will leave tonight to participate in the opening December 1 at Buenos Aires of the conference he called to bolster anti-war ideals and economic relations among the 21 American republics.

A definite decision to lengthen his long-planned post-election vacation cruise into the 12,000-mile round trip to the Argentine capital was made by the Chief Executive last night.

He will embark tomorrow morning at Charleston, S.C., and will be away from Washington a month.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Crisis For Sadat Looms

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Mounting pressure on President Anwar Sadat from the Egyptian army, the most powerful political force in Egypt, is the real reason Sadat is pressing hard on Moscow to arrange military spare parts for the aging Soviet war machines delivered to Egypt a decade ago.

If there is no Carter administration breakthrough in Arab-Israeli peace talks and if the U. S. continues to embargo arms for Egypt, military backlash against Sadat could force him to do an about-face and turn to Moscow from Washington — a grave decision that would undo almost five years of U.

S. diplomacy.

Sadat's military problem is far more politically acute than realized in the U. S. Congress (which systematically denies Egypt military aid despite Sadat's Washington orientation).

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger did little to discourage Sadat's public claims of U.S. pledges for voluminous military supplies following the second Sinai agreement last year. But while Congress was approving more than $4 billion in aid for Israel, including the most advanced U.S. weapons, Egypt received six C-130 transports.

That was a blow to Sadat, whose military commanders believed the Sinai agreement would be followed by a gradual switch from Soviet to American military supplies, starting with U.S. F-5 aircraft.

Moscow, switching vital spare parts on or off for Sadat, recently approved spare parts sales from one of its Eastern European satellites to keep Sadat's MIG-21s flying. But that beneficence could be turned off whenever Moscow chooses.

Accordingly, pressure from the military on Sadat is understandable. Sadat told a congressional delegation in Cairo Nov. 9 that Egypt was ready to sit down with Israel and other Arab states at Geneva to negotiate a settlement — and that Egypt would welcome a U.S.-Israeli security pact to guarantee Israel's borders after settlement.

Sadat's problem, however, will soon get more dangerous. Israel is complaining that peace talks are out of the question until after its late-1977 elections. Moreover, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin summarily rejected

Sadat's Nov. 9 olive branch as simply a "general statement" signalling the start of a new Arab campaign to "pressure" Israel.

Whither Brock?
Sen. William Brock of Tennessee is being advised by friends that becoming Republican national chairman would stifle any lingering presidential hopes for him following his defeat for reelection.

Brock is the popular choice to succeed Mary Louise Smith as national chairman. Even such liberals as Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland (now traveling the country for a preliminary testing of 1980 presidential waters) view Brock as well-suited to unify the party.

But Brock's friends warn that the chairmanship would preclude a comeback attempt for governor of Tennessee in 1978 which, if successful, could propel him back into presidential politics — perhaps in 1980, considering the lack of prospective

PRAYER AS COMMUNICATION

To a certain degree, prayer works like a telephone system. The system is a means of communication; not communication itself. It only works when we pick up the phone and start the process of communication.

Similarly, earnest and sincere prayer only works when we work prayer — that is, when we utilize the opportunity God has given us to make our requests known to Him. We waste our time when we philosophize about prayer. Arguments over religion seldom do anything but irritate those who take part in the arguments. But prayer works when we utilize its possibilities. The telephone may ring all day, but if we pay no attention to it, the message someone is trying to get across never reaches us. Only when we lift the receiver and respond are we in a position to express our requests to the person at the other end of the line.

God's telephones are ringing all the time, summoning us to lift the receiver and respond. We cannot expect to receive the message unless we do.

A New White House Glossary

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Will it be socially correct in the new

White House to tell the president you consider him "wild as a peach orchard boar?"
Not hardly. In fact, that type of running off at the mouth could get you branded as a fellow who's about three pickles shy of a barrel, or somewhat less than prudent.

"Wild as a peach orchard boar" is an old Southern expression for a man intent on having his way with the ladies. It is definitely not the type of subject to bring up in polite company, according to a new book called "You All Spoken Here."

The book was written by Roy Wilder, a sometime newspaperman and ad writer from Raleigh, N.C. Wilder thinks there could be quite a market for a glossary that defines what Jimmy Carter and his fellow Georgians mean when they get to "carryin' on" in their mother tongue.

Washington hostesses, for example, have been reportedly nervous that they won't fit into the Carter family's White House social circle.

They'll know what it means if one of Carter's Southern friends refers to him as "the big dog in the meathouse." That's been a Georgia term for top banana ever since baseball great Ty Cobb used it to describe a top player back at the turn of the century.

Carter became the top dog in the meathouse by beating President Ford, even though he didn't exactly "blow his doors off." Blowing someone's doors off is what the driver of a fast stock car does to the driver of a slow one when he passes him. It's synonymous with trouncing.

Others recall his promise never to lie. If he fails to keep that promise, they'll be able to say, "His mouth ain't no prayer book."

But if they're not judged by Carter to be "born tired," "common," or "not worth the shot it would take to send them to hell," — all terms signifying less than high esteem — they might find themselves working in the Carter administration.

Such good fortune would enable them to start "living in high cotton," or even "owning two cars and a boat," the ultimate goal on the good old boy's ladder of success.

They might even want to throw a "chitlin' strut" for their friends. That's a social gathering where folks get together to drink liquor and eat chitlins, or hog intestines.

They'll employ the all-purpose Southern modifier, "right." As in, "We might could get that report finished today, but we've got right much work to do first." Such fluency in the language might could help avert a pink slip from the incoming Carters, which would cause those still employed to say of the departed, "He got flatted."

conservative candidates.
A race for governor, however, might confront Brock with highly regarded Lamar Alexander, nominee for governor in 1974 and ally of Tennessee's senior Senator, Howard Baker.

At Taxpayers' Expense
Overriding the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. ordered the federal government to pick up the tab for a Washington, D.C., consumer group's travel and expenses to attend an FAA hearing in Denver this week.

Coleman's decision could cost taxpayers millions of dollars if it led to a government-wide policy of subsidizing consumer complainants. The FAA, in reversing its refusal to finance Aviation Consumer Action Project (known as A-Cap), proclaimed that the decision would not set a precedent.

In fact, however, pressure groups for consumer interests — and for every other conceivable form of interest — are now certain to claim that Coleman's A-Cap decision creates a new rule for political reformers and "sunshine" government.

Coleman, a respected Philadelphia lawyer, insisted to us that Lawrence M. Noble and Mimi Cutler, who run the Nader-type A-Cap, had a right to appear at the FAA regulatory hearing (called a "135 review") because they had been principal critics of FAA safety regulations governing commuter air travel.

Unable to change the venue from Denver to Washington, he approved travel and per diem expenses, only asking in return a signed statement that A-Cap "participation" was essential and that A-Cap could not pay its own way.

A footnote: Dr. Joseph Ferrares, deputy director of flight standards service, dismissed A-Cap's charge that commuter air service is 3.5 times more dangerous than long-haul flight as "neither fair nor accurate."

expected to rise 3 to 4 per cent in 1977, about the same as the 3 per cent increase now estimated for this year, the department announced earlier this week. A spokesman said the prospective jump in 1977 beef prices was included in that estimate.

Beef prices traditionally peak in the summer. In July 1975, they hit a record monthly high of $1.61 a pound before turning down. By last September, store prices were about $1.34 a pound, measured on an all-cut basis.

Retail beef prices have fallen 4.8 per cent this year, Crom said.

on a position paper on that," Jerry replied, "and it will be released next week."

"What about the Panama Canal?"

"I promise that as long as I am county clerk of Oklahoma City the Panama Canal will remain a part of the United States."

The headline in the next edition of the weekly paper read: 'ALTSHULER REFUSES TO DISCUSS SOVIET WHEAT EMBARGO.'

I wish I could tell you that Jerry won his election for county clerk. But he lost, as did so many other people in this election. He wrote me, "I don't know if it was the abortion issue or my stand on Yugoslavia or the Panama Canal. But when you're running for county clerk I guess the electorate expects you to be all things to all people. The people have spoken. I shall now retire to private life and only pray that the legal papers of this great county for the next four years will be filed in alphabetical order."

REID'S IDEA

NEW YORK (AP) — Chester Reid, a navy captain, suggested an American flag with 13 stripes and a star for each state.

Congress accepted the idea and on April 4, 1818, according to "World Book Encyclopedia," it set the number of stripes to increase when a new state joined the Union.

Medicaid Role To Texas Firm

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A six-month contract to handle North Carolina's Medicaid claims has been awarded to a Texas computer company that state officials say has a good record of catching fraud and duplication.

The company—Electronic Data Systems-Federal (EDS-F)—is owned by billionaire H. Ross Perot. The contract begins Jan. 1 and the decision was unanimous.

Saying it would take six months for the state to set up the bureaucracy needed to handle Medicaid payments, Gov. Jim Holshouser said the General Assembly must decide whether to continue farming out Medicaid processing or to have the state do it.

Medicaid is a program of providing medical care to the poor. The company that had been paying the claims—Health Application Systems (HAS)—had been on a contract that was to run through next June under a

Nearing Goal In Bond Sales

Sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pitt County during the third quarter of 1976 were $180,598, according to R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman.

Howard reported that January through September sales amounted to $600,997 or some 76.5 per cent of the county's goal for the year of $785,480.

Sales of Series E and H Bonds in the state totaled $24,937,714 in the third quarter of 1976, Howard added, which represented the highest third-quarter sales recorded since 1945. The figure was six per cent more than a year ago, he said.

Total sales to date in North Carolina stand at $76,778,458 or 71.4 per cent of the 1976 dollar goal of $107,600,000.

Today's Toy Even Safer

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government experts believe toys for sale this Christmas season will be safer than ever, although they admit the job of protecting children from dangerous playthings is still not finished.

For the second year in a row the Consumer Product Safety Commission has decided not to publish its list of banned toys. Nor will it send volunteer consumer deputies into stores, as it once did, to hunt hazards before they fall into children's hands.

The reason, the agency says, is that the toy industry has largely cleaned itself up.

In addition, the banned list, last published in 1974 with nearly 2,000 dangerous toys on it, was always suspect of being out of date and confusing, according to the commission.

One year ago, when the agency stopped sending deputies into stores armed with the list, it said the toy industry had become more safety conscious, and it was going to funnel its efforts into developing general rules for toy safety. They would cover such things as sharp points and breakage and tackle the whole problem at once rather than approach it on a toy-by-toy basis.

Commission chairman S. John Byington, speaking of this year's situation, said it's still the same: the agency can't keep track of the 4,000 to 5,000 new toys that arrive on the market every year.

However, the rules have not yet been proposed, and the commissioners admit they will not be in place by February or March of next year when the buying and ordering for Christmas, 1977, sales takes place.

Commissioner David Pittle said "I will not be comfortable about toys until I see the generic regulations in place. I don't have any basis for believing the shelves are free of dangerous toys."

Byington and Commissioner Barbara Franklin agreed with him.

Miss Franklin said, "I see the toy market getting more sensitive to safety and toys being safer." The other commissioners agree with her. And while they admit to not being comfortable because the job isn't finished, they are confident the industry has come a long way in the past few years.

Commissioner Lawrence Kushner thinks the agency has done a better job in the toy area than many other things it has tackled.

Agency officials also think that even if the new regulations are not in final form when the merchants begin buying toys for Christmas next year, the industry should nonetheless have a good idea of where the agency is heading and will respond accordingly.

Some grass roots consumers, however, still don't think the safety agency is doing enough.

Judy Braiman, head of a consumer group in Rochester, N.Y., said her colleagues went into the stores last year with the old banned toy list and "we found banned toys. We're going to use the same list this year and do it again," she said.

She is also critical of the commission spending what she said was $350,000 to develop an advertising campaign, the theme of which is "You Better Watch Out," when that money could have gone into in-the-field inspections.

The other major consumer safety problem of last Christmas and a few yuletides before that was Christmas tree lights. Last year, the Product Safety Commission conducted a concerted campaign on the subject, singling out imported, miniature lights as the main culprit.

The effort continued through the year. Right now, a spokesman said, the commission is "conducting very low key surveillance of troublesome lights. The market has since been cleaned up as a result of surveillance last year.

"New shipments indicate that the troubles with Christmas lights are just no longer there," he said. "The very presence of the Product Safety Commission and its enforcement efforts has brought about industry self-policing in its own interest, to the benefit of the consumer."

Final Day For Baptist Session

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina Baptist State Convention was expected to adopt a budget of more than $13 million and hear a sermon by evangelist Billy Graham before concluding its annual meeting today.

The messengers also were scheduled to act on a resolution proposed by Bill Wallace of Gastonia, calling on the convention to work with the Christian Action League in an effort to introduce and seek passage of strong antiobscenity and pornography laws.

Tuesday, the trustee study committee was granted its request for a one-year extension before making new appointments that may affect the accreditation of the state convention's seven Baptist colleges.

The committee was prepared, according to Bill Mobley, the chairman from Ahsokie, to present its report which would have insured trustee representation from churches with less than 400 members.

Adoption of the report at this time could jeopardize accreditation of the state's Baptist colleges, according to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The report is to be presented, after further study, next year at the convention's meeting in Charlotte.

The convention elected officers for the next year. They are Coy Privette of Kannapolis, president; Ray W. Benfield, Greensboro, first vice president; Mrs. Sarah Parker, Greensboro, second vice president; Lamar Brooks, Laurinburg, recording secretary; and Ted W. Williams, Raleigh, assistant recording secretary.

Apparent Suicide Try May Prolong Life

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore, the killer who wants to die, may have prolonged his life instead by taking sleeping pills in an apparent lovers' suicide pact that left him and his girl friend hospitalized.

Gilmore, 35, who has fought efforts to delay his execution by a firing squad, remained in what officials called "very serious" condition today with a drug overdose complicated by pneumonia.

He was hospitalized Tuesday after taking sleeping pills and writing a suicide note despite what officials called a prison "suicide watch" to guard against such an attempt.

Nicole Barrett, his girl friend, was in critical condition in a coma at a hospital in Provo, 40 miles away from the prison here.

Mrs. Barrett, 20, was found in her apartment on Tuesday morning, with two notes and two empty vials of sleeping pills nearby.

Call For A Public Fast

Student members of a Joint Religious Task Force on World Hunger at ECU are requesting people to join the Fast For A World Harvest November 18.

Co-chairmen Tom Frandsen and Bill Martin are asking people to fast from all solid foods from Wednesday night after dinner until Thursday night.

According to the co-chairmen, the fast will show people how more than 400 million people feel for most of their lives.

The fast is sponsored by Ox-fam-America, an international organization helping hungry people all over the world to grow more food. For further information call Bill Martin at the Baptist Student Center at 752-4646 or Tom Frandsen at 758-9625.

Gilmore's condition forced the Utah Board of Pardons to drop plans to consider his case at its regular hearing today. He was to have pleaded in person for the three-man board to uphold his execution.

Deputy Warden Leon Hatch said the note in Gilmore's Utah State Prison cell said, "I leave all of my personal belongings to my mother."

Asst. Utah County Atty. Brent Bullock refused to discuss the contents of the two notes found near Mrs. Barrett, except to say that they were "like suicide notes."

A prison spokesman said the pills could have been slipped to him by visitors or other inmates and that he could have concealed them under his tongue during routine searches.

Gilmore, convicted of killing Provo motel clerk Bennie Bushnell last summer, was originally sentenced to die on Monday. But the sentence was deferred by outgoing Gov. Calvin L. Rampton.

Jeff Newman, a friend who discovered Mrs. Barrett in her apartment, said she had told him of a suicide pact she and Gilmore had made, but he said he had not believed her. Newman said Mrs. Barrett told him after visiting Gilmore on Monday that she would not be going to the prison Tuesday.

Springville Police Chief Le-land Bowers said police had been watching Mrs. Barrett closely in recent days. "We knew where she's been," he said. "We knew she had received a prescription."

After the stay was announced, Mike Esplin, one of two fired lawyers who earlier represented Gilmore, recalled a conversation he once had with the condemned man.

He quoted Gilmore as telling him, "If they don't do it, I'm going to do it myself. I'm not going to spend the rest of my life in prison."

Doctors said Gilmore had taken a "sublethal dose" of 10 to 20 sleeping pills which would not have killed him even had he not received emergency treatment. He was found in his cell breathing with difficulty.

List Series Of 4 Traffic Accidents

An estimated $2,625 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:39 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street involving a car driven by Virginia Lynn Roberts of 1212 Red Banks Rd. and a school bus operated by Barbara Jones Williams of 601B Golden Pl.

Officers, who charged Miss Williams with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Roberts car and $200 to the bus. No charges were reported in connection with the other three mishaps, one a 4:10 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets involving cars operated by Lisa Karen Bradley of Burlington and Cynthia Stallings of Washington.

Police estimated damage from that mishap at $400 to the Bradley car and $450 to the Stallings auto.

Vehicles driven by Michael Bryan Sorrell of Winston-Salem and Julia Templeton Hettiger of 16 Greenway Apts. collided about 4:10 p.m. on Fifth Street, 35 feet West of the Holly Street intersection.

Damage was set by police at $50 to the Sorrell auto and $300 to the Hettiger vehicle.

Cars driven by Janice Marie Bridges of 1714 West Conley St. and Ed Alton Whitehurst of Route 3, Washington collided about 10:05 a.m. at the intersection of First and Greene Streets, resulting in an estimated $125 damage to the Bridges vehicle and $100 damage to the Whitehurst car, police reported.

New Police Academy Set

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — City Police Chief C. M. Gilstrap says his force has plans to open one of the most comprehensive police academies in the state next year.

"We hope to have a 300 or 400-hour course," he said. "This will put our academy on a par with the largest in the state."

Classes in practical application of law enforcement as well as lecture classes, which currently make up most of the requirements in the force's present 164-hour course, will be included in the new program.

The police department's present course is the minimum required by the state, and requirements will be raised to 240 hours in 1977.

"You can't teach police officers what they need to know in four weeks of lecture classes," said Lt. Bobby Williams. "We are going to add a lot more practical training, such as actual on-the-scene investigation of accidents and crimes. We also anticipate as much as 60 hours of physical fitness training."

Gilstrap said only Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte offer a course of study to compare with the new plans.

An Overdose

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — Fanne Foxe, who splashed into Washington's Tidal Basin and the national news media in a 1975 incident involving retiring U.S. Rep. Wilbur Mills, was hospitalized and released after taking an overdose of pills, her press agent says.

Ingram Expected Reject New Rate Reduction Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is expected to reject a plan offered by the insurance industry that would give about 82 per cent of the state's drivers a 10 per cent reduction in auto liability insurance rates.

Gloria Jimenez, acting deputy commissioner for administrative law, said Tuesday there is no doubt in my mind he's going to turn it down." Ingram's main objection would be that the other drivers, whose coverage comes from the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility, would pay 74.3 per cent more for their insurance, she said, adding that Ingram believes drivers should be charged according to their driving and accident record.

Ingram must approve the proposal before it can be implemented by the companies. Now, all drivers are charged the same basic rate for insurance with additional charges tacked on for accidents, poor driving records, business use of the car and other factors.

The legislature created the Reinsurance Facility in 1973 and each company that offers liability insurance participates in it. All companies are required to provide insurance coverage to anyone who asks for it, but if the company believes the driver to be a high risk, the policy can be ceded to the reinsurance facility where all companies share any loss or profit.

The law sets no standards outlining who should be in the reinsurance facility, leaving the companies free to arbitrarily cede policies to it. Some drivers insured through the facility have good driving records and were reinsured for reasons such as place of residence.

Each company can cede up to 50 per cent of its customers to the facility but the latest statistics are that only about 12 per cent of the policies are in the facility. Also, because the rates are standardized, a customer would not know if his policy is in the facility.

In a statement released Tuesday, D.T. Zimmerman, chairman of the reinsurance facility board, said the proposal is aimed at making drivers in the facility pay their share. The facility lost $22 million last year and $17 million in the first nine months of this year, he said, adding that the losses were borne by customers not in the facility. To support the proposal, the industry cited figures showing that for every 100 cars in the facility, there were 12.6 accidents while others had 6.9 accidents for every 100 cars. Also, the industry said the average bodily injury claim for the reinsured driver was $1,774 compared to $1,537 for other drivers and the average property damage claim was $428 compared to $381.

Steve Gheen, consumer liaison officer in the Department of Insurance, complained that the proposal would increase rates of some safe drivers. Gheen and industry spokesmen both say that policies are commonly put in the reinsurance facility without regard to a driver's traffic ticket or accident record.

"No person who has a safe driving record should be surcharged," Gheen said. Charging reinsured drivers more would be a step back toward the "assigned risk" plan which the facility replaced. That plan allowed companies to set rates higher for some drivers.

An industry spokesman said the proposal will be presented to Ingram soon, but it was not known when.

Found Success And Insecurity

By ELIZABETH A. HARRIS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Dave Rowland, the baritone of the Dave and Sugar country-harmony trio, never wants to receive another phone call like the one that made his private world crumble.

Two years ago, Rowland left the Stamps Quartet — a gospel group that travels with Elvis Presley — and joined the Four Guys.

Since he was making a steady living, he and his wife bought a new house, a car, furniture, a piano and settled in Nashville.

"Then one day I get this phone call. The guy that I replaced on the Four Guys wanted to come back. It was like a lightning bolt. One phone call and when we hung up it was over," the dark-haired, burly singer-musician said.

"My whole world collapsed. For two weeks, I didn't have a job, then I started working as a singing waiter in an Italian restaurant. I figured I'd do what I had to do to pay the bills. But it took me that long to find a direction."

Rowland said he'd had enough of being at the mercy of a group, so he decided to form his own musical act.

"After I got my sights, I analyzed every part of the country music industry. I wanted a new sound that was commercial, that people could really enjoy and that had longevity."

At first he chose two other men and a woman, but during the months of rehearsals, two of the members decided they didn't want to travel, and Rowland was back where he started.

Word spread along Music Row that Rowland was looking for girl singers. He chose Vicki Hackeman, a refugee from a Florida rock band, and Jackie Frantz, who toured with a Western Kentucky University all-girl group in the Caribbean and Europe.

The trio's first appearance a year and a half ago on a Charley Pride show was a success and Pride took the group under his direction.

Dave and Sugar signed with RCA and their first release of Emmylou Harris' "Queen of Silver Dollar" reached the No. 20 spot on the music publication charts.

Boeing 'Borrowed' Soviet CD Method

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing Co. says it has tapped the Soviet Union's civil defense program to develop a system to protect its industrial machinery from a thermonuclear attack and has tested the plan by using Soviet defense manuals.

The protection method involves supporting machines and equipment on polyurethane foam and covering them at the first sign of attack with plastic foam, metal chips, balsa wood, dirt or sandbags.

Boeing estimates that all the nation's industrial machinery could be partially protected for

ARMING GUERRILLAS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia is increasing military aid to Rhodesian guerrillas even while white and black African leaders in Geneva are trying to negotiate a peaceful solution, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

between $1.2 billion and $1.5 billion.

Boeing itself could resume airplane production 12 weeks after a nuclear attack if its machinery is protected in the Soviet manner, the report said.

T.K. Jones, Boeing's program and product evaluation manager, says in his report that the protection method works if industrial plants have 48 hours to prepare for an attack. However, the company said it had not yet found a way to protect the workers who would have to implement the protective measures.

The report was prepared for the U.S. Joint Committee on Defense Production. Jones is to testify today at the committee's opening hearings in Washington, D.C., on proposals for protecting critical U.S. industries against a Soviet nuclear attack.

George Weiss, one of two Boeing representatives in Washington, said Tuesday that the aerospace firm and federal government used conventional explosives to test the theory of the Soviet Union's civil defense program that machinery can be protected through use of plastic foam, metal chips, balsa wood and dirt or sandbags.

Weiss said tests were conducted using Soviet civil defense manuals as a guide. He said he did not know how the company obtained the manuals. He said they are "commonly available inside Russia."

Jones criticized "the widespread notion that nuclear war would be the end of all mankind. ..." But he said if the Soviets execute the defense plan while the United States does not, "the consequences to the United States of escalation to nuclear war would be disastrous while consequences might be tolerable to the Soviet Union."

He said the Soviet Union could recover in "no more than 2 to 4 years," while the United States would need 12 years to recover.

Correction

The statement in yesterday's paper in the news story of Monday's school board meeting that "to date about $285,000 has been spent on the renovation at Third Street" should have read: "To date about $285,000 has been spent on the renovation work being carried out in all the city schools."

Corrections

Several corrections are in order for the article carried yesterday about the Farmville hearing on the request by town board members that the police chief resign.

Lt. Wilbur Barber was incorrectly identified as Sgt. Barber. Former Policeman Larry Mulkey was incorrectly identified as Police Officer Ernest Williams.

Lt. Barber says he did not say that he won a "Policeman of the Year" election within the police department on the first ballot. He said it was not a tie, as was reported. He believes that Sgt. Jenny Childers won, he clarified.

There was a typographical error in a sentence concerning a grievance list, which altered the meaning. The sentence read: "A list of grievances dated Aug. 30 and signed by all three of the police department members working under Cannady at the time was read, along with his answers to each question." It should have read all BUT three.

Bomb Threat At Exhibit

MOSCOW (AP) — About 1,000 Russians were evacuated from the U.S. Bicentennial exhibition in Moscow's Sokolniki Park today because of a bomb threat.

Officials said the Interior Ministry telephoned the Soviet administrator of the exhibit at 12:24 p.m. and told him an unidentified man telephoned that a plastic bomb would go off in the building at 12:30.

A search for the bomb started as those looking at the exhibition were cleared out of the hall. But none was found by the time the deadline passed, and there was no explosion.

The exhibit includes photographs, copies of historic American documents and films. It was an instant hit when it opened last week, and many Russians have been turned away because of overcrowding.

A half-mile-long line of about 8,000 persons lined up before the exhibit opened this morning. It has a daily capacity of about 9,000.

The U.S. Embassy in Moscow was evacuated twice last March after telephoned bomb threats, but no bombs were found. Those threats came after shots were fired into an official Soviet residence in New York City and the Soviet airline office there was bombed by Jewish extremists protesting the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. However, there has been nothing like that in the United States recently.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

During the past few days, we have heard comment after comment about East Carolina's moving its game with Appalachian State to Thanksgiving night.

Most of the comments are unhappy ones. People are angry because they have other plans for Thanksgiving, or that it is not convenient for them that evening, or that it will be too cold.

Now, we understand that East Carolina's band has voted not to participate.

It's unfortunate to say the least. For several weeks, about all we've been hearing are comments from people about the chances of getting the game on television. It would be great for the program, they told us, a real shot in the arm. The Pirates deserve it.

Well, East Carolina worked hard to get the game on television. It means a lot to the program. It means quite a bit of money—much more than the school could have gotten with a full house this Saturday. It means exposure that the university could get no other way. And on television, it means a much larger audience than normal because more people would be watching than on Saturday afternoon.

So the good must go with the bad. Certainly it's an inconvenience. It's inconvenient for everyone: the players, the coaches, the fans... all of them. I'm sure that the players would rather be home with their families. So would the coaches. So would I, but I'll be in the press box along with the rest of the press corps.

Some fans won't come. That's to be expected. They might not have shown up if the game were played Saturday night.

The action of the ECU Marching Pirates surprises me. This organization is one of the best, if not the best, in the South. I certainly haven't heard a band that can equal it in my travels this year.

Such a group deserves the exposure it would get on television. Just playing the National Anthem the way this band does would be worth hearing, but the TV audience will miss this.

Appalachian's band is coming, I understand, so perhaps they can fill in.

But let's ask this. It's unlikely now that East Carolina will get a bowl bid. This is their bowl. It's on television. It's for the Southern Conference championship. There's a lot on the line.

If the Bucs HAD gotten a bowl bid, how many of the fans who are griping now would have rushed to buy tickets? How many would have driven hundreds of miles to see the game... in the midst of the Christmas and New Year's Holiday seasons?

Would the Marching Pirates have bowed out of that due to inconvenience? They'd have certainly had to miss some of their Christmas vacation then. It all boils down to this. Do you want a big time program at East Carolina? If so, you must be willing to pay the penalty. You have to follow the whims of the TV people to build your program to the level when you can call the shots. You have to take the big money when it's offered.

It may be lonely in Ficklen Stadium next Thursday night. But just think how that football team is going to feel when it looks around and sees all those ASU fans, the ASU band and very few Pirate fans. Might as well go on up to Boone and play it there.

Teams Advance In Rec Playoffs

The Steelers and the Bills advanced in the first round of the Greenville Recreation Department's football playoffs yesterday.

In the flag program, the Steelers rolled up a 19-12 victory over the Redskins. The Cowboys will take on the Eagles today at 3:15 p.m. with the winner meeting the Steelers for the title on Thursday.

The Bills took a 36-6 win over the Oilers in the tackle program playoffs. The Redskins meet the Jets today, with the winner meeting the Bills on Friday.

In the tackle game, the Oilers scored first on a 37 yard pass reception by Mike Thurber. But the Bills came back to take the lead on two Mike Pollard touchdowns. The first was a 29-yard run, and the second a 63 yarder. Jim Bearden and Mike Edwards picked up PATS after the scores for a 16-6 lead.

Bearden scored for the Bills on a seven-yard pass in the second period, with Jeff Porter adding the PAT. Jule Budaz also scored for the Bills on a 14-yard pass. That made it 30-6 at the half.

Pollard added a fourth period touchdown for the Bills in the final period on a 25-yard run.

Kent Green recovered a fumble and Mike Thurber sparked the tackling for the Oilers defense. Gordon Walker and Johnny Green each recovered fumbles for the Bills.

The Redskins scored first in the flag game, on a 50-yard run by Jay Miles. Randy Warren tied it up for the Steelers on a 68-yard pass, then Horace Barrett put the Steelers into the lead by converting the PAT.

In the second period, the Steeler, added to the score with a touchdown by Donnel Lee on an eight-yard run. Reggie Smith scored for the Redskins, on a 25-yard run, but a 50-yard pass catch by Anthony Phillips sewed it up for the Steelers.

Neither team scored in the second half.

Barry Finally Misses Free Throw Attempt

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

Rick Barry has got to learn to concentrate at the free throw line.

"I had hoped to make 80 or 90 in a row, but I didn't concentrate — and then I missed," said Barry, who finally saw one of his underhand tosses from the free throw line roll off the rim Tuesday night — but not before he set a National Basketball Association record of 60 in a row.

Barry's miss late in the fourth period came after he made his first eight tries of the game and erased the NBA record of 58 set last season by Houston's Calvin Murphy.

In other NBA games, the New Orleans Jazz nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 100-98, the New York Knicks edged the Atlanta Hawks 100-97, the San Antonio Spurs shaded the Buffalo Braves 114-112 and the Kansas City Kings beat the Milwaukee Bucks 100-91.

Slick Watts led Seattle with 25 points. Fred Brown had 16 points for the Sonics, including 10 in the final quarter.

Barry broke Murphy's record with his seventh free throw of the game, then added another before finally missing. He did, however, make his final toss of the game, finishing 9-for-10—and with a streak of one.

Jazz 100, Blazers 98 "This is the year for the game to be physical," observed New Orleans Coach Butch van Breda Kolf, in whose Jazz nipped Portland in a game marred by 66 personal fouls — 33 against each team — and three technicals.

Physical is one thing, but the game got out of hand in the second period when Pete Maravich, New Orleans' high-scoring star, squared off against Portland's scrappy Dave Twardzik. When the brawl ended, Maravich was hit with a technical foul but permitted to remain in the game, which did not sit well with Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. The Jazz, leading 45-40 at the time of the fight, fell behind 54-51 at the half but rallied behind Maravich's 15 third-quarter points. Maravich also led all rebounders with 15.

Knicks 100, Jazz 97 Bill Bradley's jumper with 1:28 to play put the Knicks ahead, then they clinched it with six free throws in the final nine seconds—four by Earl Monroe and two by Walt Frazier. Atlanta's Tom Henderson scored 27 points, while Frazier led the Knicks with 26.

It was Atlanta's 26th consecutive loss on the road.

Spurs 114, Braves 112 Larry Kenon, who topped the Spurs with 25 points, sank two free throws with two seconds left to beat Buffalo and snap the Braves' five-game winning streak. Bob McAdoo topped Buffalo with 27 points.

Kings 100, Bucks 91 Ron Boone scored 27 points for Kansas City and Scott Wedman added 19, including three baskets early in the fourth quarter that broke open the game center.

Elmore Smith and rookie forward Alex English each scored 21 for the Bucks.

Coaches Fired

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Bo Rein fired two assistant coaches after the Wolfpack wound up with its worst season record in five years.

Dick Kemp confirmed today that he and Brian Burke, both offensive coaches, were dismissed Sunday afternoon following N.C. State's 28-14 loss to Duke the day before in the final game of the season.

Rein was not immediately available for comment, but Kemp said Rein gave no reason for his dismissal. He said he has no immediate plans.

The Wolfpack finished with a 3-7-1 record.

White Oak Defense Had Terrific Year

By JIM KYLE Reflector Sports Writer

Outstanding defense has marked the play this season of White Oak, Farmville Central's foe this week in the state 3-A playoffs.

The Vikings will be bringing a 10-1 record to Farmville, their only loss being to 4-A Jacksonville by a 9-0 score in the first game of the season.

Prior to last week's 24-21 win over Lakewood, White Oak's defense had only given up four touchdowns all year. At one point during the year, they had a six-game shut-out streak going and, during the same period, the Vikings went five games with the defense scoring a touchdown in each game.

White Oak Coach Jack Baile, in his first year as a coach, said "I didn't really know what to expect at the beginning of the season. But, I knew we would have to beat Havelock to win our conference."

The Vikings did defeat Havelock; runners-up last year in the 3-A playoffs, but an 8-7 score in the next-to-last game of the regular season. A 32-8 victory over West Craven in the final game wrapped up the Coastal 3-A title for the Vikings.

The Viking defense "has had an outstanding year," Baile said. Anchoring the defensive line, which averages 210 pounds, tackles Keith Cogan (6-0, 245) and Blizz Baker (5-10, 230).

The smallest of the defensive starters is Joe Matson (5-8, 160), a defensive end. At the other end is Tony Price (6-2, 190). Both Matson and Price have recovered fumbles for touchdowns this year. Baile said.

In the defensive backfield, the standouts are Mark Chesla and Angelo Cuttala. Cuttala has seven interceptions this year and Chesla has five, two of which he returned for touchdowns.

Offensively, the Vikings are run-oriented, operating out of the wishbone. They are averaging 24 points a game. Balance is the key here, Baile said, with each of the three backs rushing for over a hundred yards in at least one game this year.

The leading gainer is Melvin Meadows, a 5-10, 170 pound running back who has run for around 720 yards. Fullback Chuckie Canady had gained 650 yards on the year and the other running back, Chesla, has rushed for 450 yards on the season.

In addition, quarterback Glenn Kellum has passed the ball well when he has had to, according to Baile. Kellum, a starter last year threw for over 1,000 yards before Baile brought the wishbone to White Oak. This year the Vikings are only averaging 6-7 passes per game. The two players who are on the receiving end of most of those passes are Cuttala, 13 receptions, and Brian Knight with 11 receptions.

Although White Oak scouted Farmville Central last Friday night, Baile said the Jaguars are difficult to analyze. But, the Vikings know they will have to stop running back Keno Farrow to have a chance.

In addition, Baile said Farmville seems to "put the ball in the air pretty much."

Baile said he doesn't foresee a real defensive battle with the Jaguars. "I feel like it will take three touchdowns to win it. They seem to be able to score and our offense has not had too many problems — we feel like we can score some points."

Terrapins Picked By Cotton Bowl

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The Cotton Bowl has unofficially tapped Maryland for its New Year's Day game in Dallas, the Washington Post reported today.

So if Maryland beats Virginia Saturday, the Terrapins will play the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl.

The game would be Maryland's first major bowl appearance in 21 years. Maryland athletic officials have said they would accept the first major bowl bid offered.

It happened to be the one the Terrapins reportedly wanted most.

The newspaper said the commitment was strong Tuesday, but that sources warned nothing is definite until 6 p.m. Saturday.

That is when bids officially are offered. NCAA rules forbid bowls and schools to commit themselves before then.

The Terps' last major bowl was on New Year's Day, 1956, when they lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

That loss ended a 15-game winning streak. Coach Jim Tatum left soon afterwards for North Carolina, and Maryland football immediately plummeted until Coach Jerry Claiborne's arrival five years ago.

By beating Virginia, Maryland again would have a 15-game winning streak.

Furman Expects To Be Strong

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Joe Williams, the coach of Furman University, didn't flat come out and say he expects his Paladins to win the Southern Conference basketball title this year, but he left little doubt in the minds of reporters that he expects a good year in 1976-77, and a banner one the next year.

"In the next two years," he said, "this would be the best team I've had since I've been at Furman. We may be a year away right now. I can't tell for sure."

The main reason for this optimism is that there is only one senior, 6-3 guard John Cottingham, on the team. And the brightest stars in his crown are a freshman and a sophomore.

The sophomore is 6-11 center Jim Strickland, who was one of the top rookies in the country last year. He averages 15.3 points a game last season, along with 11.1 rebounds. And during the final 16 games of the year, he pulled off a 13 rebound average. In comparison, Clyde Mayes, his last superstar, averaged 13.6 rebounds when he was fourth in the nation in that category.

"We started out last year with our offense built around Craig Lynch," Williams said. But Lynch got hurt, and before the Paladins could restructure themselves around Strickland, the year was down the drain. Furman finished 9-18.

"Jim's defense has improved. He was the best big man in the league last year, and he's going to be better this year," Williams said.

Joining Strickland in the front court is 6-8 freshman Jonathan Moore. "He could be one of the best players South Carolina has ever produced," Williams said. Named to practically every All-

America prep team, Moore averaged 34 points and 27 rebounds his senior year. "He could be the best I've ever coached," Williams enthused. "He's quick, a great rebounder and a good shooter. He's also a tremendous passer. His playing the high post will prevent defenses from sagging on Strickland."

When one looks back at the combo of Fessor Leonard and Mays, the statement from Williams that "this may be the best two man inside pair I've had since I've been at Furman" makes foes tremble.

Joining that group are several returning veterans. The important post of point guard finds 5-10 junior Ron Smith back. He has averaged nearly nine points a game during his two-year starting duty.

Then, in January, former starter Bruce Grimm, who came to Furman, left to go to Providence, then changed his mind again, will be eligible to play. He will speed up the Furman offense as the second guard. Top candidates for the early starting job are 6-6 freshman Dave Dredger and 6-5 sophomore Rick Harness. These two could also give Cottingham problems at the wing post.

Adding depth will be 5-11 guard Artie Knight, 6-6 forward Don Harris, and 5-10 Andy Means among the letterman; plus 6-10 freshman Rick McKinney, and 5-11 Stan Woods.

The Paladins weren't the outright pick this year. They are among the top three favorites, along with William & Mary and defending champion VMI.

Still, if the Paladins play like Williams is expecting them to, about the best thing that the rest of the league can be thankful for is that this year's tournament is not played in Greenville, S.C.

Why Are Pro Athletes Paid High Salaries?

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

In the "Babe Ruth Story," actor William Bendix promised a critically ill boy a home run. Anything can happen in Hollywood, so when the Bambino came through with his homer, the movie cameras showed the boy perking up. He went on to live happily ever after.

Baseball players, or sports figures in general, are not in the business of saving or protecting lives. They may make the public stand up and cheer or provide excitement and entertainment for millions of people. This, too, is a public service.

But they don't save people's lives.

Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Doc Medich leaped into the stands this season and tried to revive a heart attack victim. The man died, but Medich succeeded, it would have been because of his medical school training, not his pitching ability.

Assuming that saving lives is one of the most admirable things a human can do, why does the average professional athlete make more money than the average doctor? Why is the average basketball salary nearly $10,000, when the average salary for policemen and firemen in America is under $15,000?

"If we had a completely rational system then I think it would be legitimate for people to compare salaries," says Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "If the majority agreed to base the system of salaries on society's needs, then the top priorities should be for cancer research and the like.

"If we had such a system, then it would be fair to ask, 'What does playing ball mean?' "But we don't have that kind of system. Our system is a hogopode. It's based on all sorts of rational and irrational things.

"If a rock star fits the tempo of the times, then people will pay to buy his records. This has nothing to do with whether society needs rock stars.

"The fallacy of comparing athletes salaries with other professions is that it makes a stupid assumption. If a ballplayer made less, would a teacher be paid more?"

"Absolutely not. If a ballplayer makes less, then the rich owners will make more."

Professional athletes are merely the beneficiaries of American society and its economic system. They didn't create it; they only profit from it.

"That's what society wants because if society didn't want it, they wouldn't be paying the dollars," said basketball star George McGinnis of the Philadelphia 76ers, who is in the second year of a six-year package worth $3.2 million.

"If a club thinks a player is worth $1.5 million to play, he has to be worth it," said Los Angeles Dodgers baseball player Steve Garvey, who just completed a two-year contract worth $220,000. "No organization is going to pay more than a player is worth."

The professional sports owners feel athletes have a marketable talent, and they pay them accordingly. Some can afford it better than others.

Roy Boe of the New York Nets said he couldn't afford to renegotiate Julius Erving's contract. So he sold him to the 76ers for $3 million. Philadelphia is now paying Erving $3 million over five years.

"We're entertainers, and the entertainment business is big business," says Erving, whose on-court ability is credited with being an important influence behind the recent basketball merger. "A player has to try and get whatever the traffic will bear, and make the most of his earning capability while he has it."

The average career in the National Football League is five years. It's five years for baseball players, six years for the National Basketball Association and nine years in the National Hockey League.

"I'm not guaranteed anything for next year," says Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys, who makes an estimated $100,000 a year. "There's no question that we are in a short-term business as far as a career is concerned.

"I definitely don't want to be paid a ridiculous figure, but as long as sport is drawing people and making money an athlete deserves his fair share.

"My salary is very good but I've got to produce every year. I've signed a long-term contract, but it's based on my production. It's not guaranteed. My salary would end, however, in one year if I got hurt."

Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings is probably the richest quarterback ever. He lives in a $400,000 house in Atlanta and leases a lakefront home in suburban Minneapolis during the football season.

Through various investments he became a millionaire in 1971 and his net worth is estimated at $7 million. "That's what my accountants tell me," Tarkenton said.

When Tarkenton was an NFL rookie in 1961, he made $12,500. He is now working on a three-year contract estimated at $1 million.

"Who is to determine what any group of people make? We make what the market bears," Tarkenton said. "Should an athlete make a half-million dollars a year or should Elvis Presley make a quarter-million dollars a night to sing?"

"We all make what the market bears."

It just so happens that the going rate is high for an All-Pro quarterback who sets career passing records and leads his team to the Super Bowl. Isn't that the case with most people who are at the top of their professions?

"I don't think athletes are overpaid, particularly golfers," said Arnold Palmer, whose career earnings on the U.S. golf tour are nearly $2 million.

"In every other sport, except maybe tennis, the player has a contract. He's gonna get that much," Palmer said. "In golf, you're paid solely on the basis of your performance.

"Look, if you're the best at what you do, or if you're close to the top, I think you're worth what you can get."

Rein Says Rule Will Equalize College Ball

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

N. C. State head football coach Bo Rein praised East Carolina, said he felt sorry for Maryland, and saw the 30-grant limit as a leveling factor in college football in a talk to the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

"I just want you folks down here to know that the best defensive team we played this year, and that includes Maryland, was this bunch from down here in Greenville," Rein said.

He added that this was an unusual season, with many upsets. "No one knows who'll win anywhere anymore," he said. "The 30-rule (the NCAA rule allowing a school to recruit only 30 players a year) is taking hold. This year's senior class at Pitt has 70 seniors. Next year, I think they're going to be in for an awakening. This means too that there are a lot of talented players that the big schools can't take anymore and other schools are getting them."

Rein said he felt sorry for Maryland, seeking an unbeaten season against Clemson Saturday. "There's a good chance that they won't be in a major bowl game and they should be," Rein added that he felt North Carolina would get a bid to the Peach Bowl if it beats Duke Saturday.

"We started out with good talent, but a lot of inexperience at State this year. Then, when we started to put it all together, we had a lot of injuries. I'm just glad that our season is over," Rein added that with the returning people, he looked for a strong Wolfpack team next fall. "I'm already looking forward to our opener with East Carolina."

Rein was asked how he felt about open dates and did he feel one helped a team. "I really can't say. If you're on a winning streak, you don't like to have one. But when you've got injuries, they help you get people ready to play."

Referring to the long layoff Appalachian State will have prior to playing East Carolina, he said the nearly three-week gap may help the Mountaineers. "During the season, they probably saw just a few, if any, wishbone teams. So they've got plenty of time to work up their defenses for the wishbone. It could turn out to be to their advantage. But it does break up the practice schedule and tend to get you a little stale, too."

Rein said he thought the defenses were beginning to catch up with the veer (State's offense) and the wishbone. "You've got to change the offense some every year to keep an advantage over the defenses. I really look to a return to more passing, more motion and tighter wing sets in the near future."

The State coach added that he feels that the 30-rule might be changed to that limit only. Currently there is a 95-total grant limit, too. "I know one school that hasn't had that kind of attrition, and they certainly can't take a grant away from people just to meet the limit."

He feels a 12th game would be too much, especially for those playing only a limited amount of time, if at all. As to playing some teams twice in a season, Rein said that might work. "You may see teams playing each other in spring games too. This could be the big rivals, or teams that never play each other during the regular season."

Rein also added that Eastern North Carolina is a rich area for recruiting. "I don't know why people ignored it for so long."

Next week's guest will be East Carolina basketball coach Dave Patton.

Munson Takes AL MVP Honors

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, capturing the 1976 American League Most Valuable Player Award was the culmination of a fantastic season.

Munson was named winner of the award by the Baseball Writers Association of America Tuesday in a landslide. He easily outdistanced runner-up George Brett, third baseman of the Kansas City Royals, by 87 points.

In leading the Yankees to their first pennant in 12 years, Munson hit .302, belted 17 homers and batted in 105 runs.

The 29-year-old right-handed swinger, in running away with the honor, collected 18 of the 24 first-place votes and a total of 304 points from the 24-man panel of writers. He received four votes for second and two for third.

He became the first Yankee to gain the accolade since Elston Howard in 1963. Howard also was the last catcher to win the MVP.

Brett received 217 points, including two first-place votes. He won the league batting title with a .333 average.

Third in the balloting was center fielder Mickey Rivers of the Yankees with 179½ points, including one first-place vote. The speedy Rivers batted .312 with 43 stolen bases.

An elated Munson said at a press conference Tuesday evening. "This is the greatest individual honor I've ever received in baseball. I'll try harder to win it again next season."

As for losing the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds, Munson said, "It wasn't a disappointing World Series. We got beat by a great ball club. We'll be back next year."

Hal McRae, Kansas City's designated hitter, finished fourth and another Yankee, first baseman Chris Chambliss, completed the top five. First baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota was sixth.

Others in the top 10 were center fielder Amos Otis of Kansas City, 58 points; relief pitcher Bill Campbell of Minnesota, 56; first baseman Lee May of Baltimore, 51, and pitcher Jim Palmer of Baltimore, 47.

THURMAN MUNSON

Some 29 players were mentioned on at least one vote, but outfielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, last year's MVP, was not among them.

Seven Yankees were named on at least one ballot, while five players from Kansas City and five from Oakland received votes.

The Yankees now have won the MVP award 19 times since its inception in 1931, tops among teams in both leagues. Munson is the latest in a long line of outstanding Yankee catchers that includes Bill Dickey, Yogi Berra and Howard.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Munson has a career batting average of .288 since joining the Yankees late in the 1969 season. He caught 121 games last season and appeared in 31 more as a designated hitter or pinch hitter.

Pitt Picks Sugar Bowl

PITTSBURGH (AP) — No. 1-ranked Pitt has voted to forego Miami's sunshine and face Georgia in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on New Year's Day and, hopefully, to preserve a national championship.

An informed source told The Associated Press Tuesday night that an almost evenly divided Panthers' committee of seniors and starters voted for the Sugar Bowl after Coach Johnny Majors convinced them their best chance to keep the No. 1 rating was in New Orleans.

The team was at one time heavily in favor of an Orange Bowl meeting.

USC Picked To Stop UCLA, Grab PAC-8 Rose Bowl Spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How important are the remaining games in the college football season?

"Well," says UCLA's Terry Donahue, "my wife served me Mylanta for breakfast and I think I'll have Gelusil for dinner."

Let us ring in a couple of guest selectors and hear how they pick the UCLA-Southern Cal Pac-8 Rose Bowl showdown.

Washington's Don James: "A tossup. I think if they played 10 times it would come out 5-5. They're that close."

Oregon State's Craig Fertig: "The team that wins will be decided by the quarterback who gets the hot hand. I think USC is bigger and stronger on defense but UCLA is faster. I think they are even on offense." So for the Rose Bowl...Southern Cal 28-21. Last week's score was 50 right — including Kentucky's upset of Florida — and 19 wrong for a .724 percentage. On the season, it is 481-196-11 — .710.

Michigan at Ohio State: "I always feel good going to Ohio State; we have never played badly against them," says Michigan's Bo Schembecher...Michigan 20-10.

Houston at Texas Tech: A funny thing happened to last year's Southwest Conference tri-champs. First Texas A&M foundered, then Texas, then Arkansas. And now unbeaten Texas Tech...Houston 31-24.

Iowa State at Oklahoma State: What are these two losers doing battling for a possible Orange Bowl berth? Playing good football, that's what. If Iowa State wins, they have got to hope Nebraska beats Oklahoma. The only way Oklahoma State can go — possibly — is for Kansas State to upset Colorado — unlikely — while Nebraska and Oklahoma battle to a tie. Got it? We got...Oklahoma State 34-24.

Colorado at Kansas State: Colorado is ranked 15th with a 7-3 record, including victories over Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Iowa State. Kansas State has dropped nine in a row after beating Brigham Young in its opener. This has been such a crazy conference, let's try the Upset Special of the Week...Kansas State 24-20.

Miami, Fla. at Notre Dame: Miami's patsy schedule has sent the Hurricanes against the likes of Colorado, Nebraska, Pitt and Penn State, with "only" Notre Dame, Florida and Houston left...Notre Dame 28-14. Kansas at Missouri: Missouri has beaten four of the top 15 teams in this week's ratings, but the Tigers are no better than sixth in the Big Eight...Missouri 27-17. Colgate at Rutgers: The Scarlet Knights match their basketball team and complete a perfect regular season...Rutgers 35-6.

Kentucky at Tennessee: If Tennessee should somehow manage a bowl bid, it would automatically extend Bill Battle's contract by a year, and wouldn't that come as a disappointment to his critics! Tennessee 24-14.

Texas at Baylor: How the mighty have fallen ... Baylor 28-21. Wyoming at Air Force: Now that the Cowpokes have clinched a berth in the Fiesta Bowl, why not a letdown? Second Upset Special ... Air Force 24-21.

Sen. Helms Assuming Role In Stadium Fund Drive

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., one of the state's most widely known leaders in politics, banking, business and the mass media, has accepted appointment as Chairman for Special Gifts in the $2.5 million fund-raising drive to expand Ficklen Stadium at East Carolina University.

Helms' appointment was announced jointly today by general chairman Robert L.

(Roddy) Jones of Raleigh and ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins. Jones said he was "extremely pleased that Senator Helms will give his enthusiastic support to this very important undertaking." Helms' active support "will be a significant contribution toward its success," Jones said.

In Washington, Helms said "I am always delighted, at any time and in any way, to try to be of assistance to East Carolina University, and this worthy project is no exception.

"It has been a pleasure to work with my friend, Leo Jenkins, on many projects through the years.

"I am very proud and grateful for what this great institution has meant to our state and nation."

Chancellor Jenkins said "I am very proud to announce that our good friend, Senator Jesse Helms, has agreed to serve in a leadership role in East Carolina University's campaign to enlarge its football stadium. Senator Helms has agreed to serve as Special Gifts chairman.

"Jesse Helms is no newcomer to the causes of East Carolina University. He has stood by us and helped in many ways over the years of our growth and development — including our efforts for university status and the development of a greatly-needed school of medicine.

"His help in our stadium drive represents a tremendous boost for which we are deeply grateful."

The stadium fund drive, kicked off officially this week, is aimed at enabling East Carolina to nearly double the seating capacity — to 35,000 or more seats — and improve other facilities at Ficklen Stadium.

The stadium will be the scene of a regionally televised Southern Conference championship football game Thanksgiving night, pitting ECU and Appalachian State University.

Last week, campaign officials announced appointment of Charlotte banking executive Luther H. Hodges Jr. as chairman of the statewide campaign and of Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., as national campaign chairman.

Helms, the first Republican elected to the U.S. Senate from North Carolina in this century, took office Jan. 3, 1973.

Overreaction At Roadblock Said Apparent

RALEIGH (AP) — Cmdr. E.W. Jones of the State Highway Patrol says it appears "there was a tremendous amount of firepower used" at a roadblock where an abducted Virginia state trooper was slain.

Jones said Tuesday there were indications of an "over-reaction on the part of officers" at the roadblock 10 miles north of Durham on Interstate 85.

Trooper Garland West Fisher Jr., 33, of Petersburg, Va., was found riddled with bullets, slumped over the steering wheel. Wounded and lying on the back seat of the unmarked patrol car was Reuben Conley, 33, of Atlanta, Ga. He has been charged in Virginia with kidnaping and assault and in North Carolina with murder.

Conley is accused of wounding Fisher in Virginia and forcing him to drive into North Carolina en route to Atlanta. He is reported in serious but stable condition in Central Prison hospital from wounds suffered in the shooting at the roadblock.

Col. Jones said he is awaiting reports from patrol investigators and the State Bureau of Investigation before reaching final conclusions in the death of Fisher. An autopsy report showed that 14 bullets struck him.

The patrol chief said there were more than 20 state troopers, plus local officers, at the roadblock.

Jones said there was evidence Conley had said that "if they were stopped he would kill the officer." He also said Conley was seated to the right of Fisher where he had the opportunity to fire quickly into Fisher's right side when they were stopped. Jones said the entry points of several of Fisher's wounds were in his right side.

Dr. Wilton M. (Mack) Reavis, assistant state medical examiner, said he could not tell what kind of weapon killed Fisher. He added, "Further tests are being done at the State Bureau of Investigation lab. As far as which weapon fired the fatal bullet, we are still awaiting completion of tests."

New Study 'Duplicative'

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative committee study of the future role of nuclear energy in North Carolina would be "redundant and duplicative," the North Carolina Energy Policy Council has decided on the urging of a Duke Power Co. executive.

At its meeting Tuesday, the council voted 6-4 to ask the legislature's Utilities Review Committee to reverse its decision to have hearings on the future of nuclear power because there are already sufficient studies and reviews. Duke Power senior vice president William S. Lee, a member of the council, also told the panel he thought the proposed study would be expensive because it would require staff.

A council subcommittee had recommended that the panel give its blessing to the Utilities Review Committee's plan for having a hearing.

The legislative review had been backed by Ed W. Erickson, an economist at North Carolina State University and chairman of the subcommittee. He said whether nuclear plants should be built is a public policy decision that the legislature should consider.

The legislative committee had asked the council for advice on whether to have the hearings. A committee spokesman said it is likely that the panel will have the hearings anyway.

Lord Snowdon On Assignment

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Lord Snowdon, estranged husband of Britain's Princess Margaret, says he's taking pictures in Malaysia for a book.

The 46-year-old globe-trotting photographer gave no details of the project except to say that he's doing it for an international firm.

"It has been strenuous and I have been working flat out. But I have enjoyed myself enormously because of the wonderful hospitality of the people," he said.

Snowdon leaves for an unknown destination today.

Slow Change On Salvage

By BRUCE NICHOLS
United Press International
The U.S. Interior Department, widely criticized for an effort to take sunken Spanish treasure from a Florida salvager, is seeking a new image in dealing with finders of a Civil War wreck off the coast of Texas.

Charles McKinney, coordinator of the federal antiquities program, said the situations are different in many details but the Texas case can help restore confidence among marine salvagers and treasure hunters.

"We've got all these articles in the newspapers about how the federal government's going to reach out and take it all away," he said, referring to reports of the Florida court battle over the Spanish galleon Atocha.

"That's not the case. We're not interested in retaining everything in federal ownership. What we're interested in is making sure it's properly curated, properly handled and made available to scholars.

"The policy has changed somewhat. We've realized we've got to work with people, even ripoff artists, even outright treasure hunters ... to maintain a high level of data recovery."

McKinney said there likely will be no court fight with Rice University physicist Dr. Paul Cloutier, who wants to raise the Hatteras, a Union ship sunk off Galveston in 1863 by the Confederate cruiser Alabama.

An application for federal licensing of the Hatteras project is now being processed by Interior. McKinney said preliminary onsite work could begin early next year.

Part of the difference, McKinney said, is that less treasure is involved (indications are that, aside from artifacts, there is only $5,000 in cash aboard the Hatteras) and Cloutier has been unusually cooperative.

But McKinney said much of the change is due to the persistence of Mel Fisher of Key West, Fla., and Interior's administrative reaction to Fisher's challenge.

One of many "treasure hunters" regarded as "pirates" by academic archaeologists in and out of government, Fisher found the long lost Atocha in 1973 only to have to fight Interior for control of what he'd discovered.

Fisher, who lost a son and a daughter-in-law and spent a small fortune in his five-year search for the treasure-laden galleon sunk off the Marquesas in 1622, won the first round in Miami federal court last February.

A federal judge ruled Interior — which had based its claim largely on the Federal Antiquities Act of 1906, a law Fisher's attorney contended applies only to dry land — has no general authority over ancient shipwrecks in U.S. waters.

But Interior has appealed, arguing loss of the case would frustrate a valid public interest in historic preservation of such wrecks — an interest the purists believe treasure hunters like Fisher tend to ignore in favor of profit.

Fisher expects to win and Interior has already agreed he can keep at least half of his treasure. But half is small comfort and Fisher is bitter and disappointed in government.

"I don't think there's any mutual understanding between salvagers and the federal government," he said. "I believe the federal government has no business in treasure salvage at all. They aren't equipped for it."

His lawyer, David Paul Horan of Key West, said "free enterprise" salvagers could lead the government to historic treasures that otherwise would remain undiscovered.

"Government intervention has forced the treasure hunter to go underground so that, when he finds a wreck, he has to work at night," Horan said.

Michael Creamer of the Galveston Historical Foundation, Cloutier's sponsor for the Hatteras, has little sympathy for unscrupulous strippers of potential museum treasures, but he agreed salvager distrust must be dispelled.

"It should be the case that anyone who discovers a magnetic anomaly that is a potential galleon or wrecked ship should be enthusiastic about contacting the local university, historical society, state agency, whatever.

"Discoveries are going to be multiplying faster than previous archeological arrangements can deal with. And they (government officials) better hurry up and get it together before these wrecks are raped (by unsupervised salvage)."

Discoveries will multiply because of improving technology, Creamer said. Indeed, Cloutier's main interest in the "Hatteras" is not history but proving the reliability of a magnetometer he designed.

But McKinney attributed much of the stress to the newness of the problem.

Princess Alice Vigorous At 94

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Alice of Athlone holds the royal record for public engagements — she has carried out more than 20,000 — but then she is a vigorous 94-year-old and has been at it longer than anyone else in the House of Windsor.

Princess Alice is the only surviving grandchild of Queen Victoria and a firm disbeliever in a quiet old age. She tends to head south in the winter, formerly by banana boat (five seamen were swept to their deaths in storms on one of her journeys) but more recently by plane.

It is one of her few concessions to her years. She can still be seen boarding a bus near her grace-and-favor home in Kensington Palace, sometimes carrying a shopping bag. Or, more often lately, leaving or arriving by taxi.

Princess Alice is the daughter of Prince Albert, Duke of Albany, younger brother of King Edward VII. She relates in her memoirs, "For My Grandchildren," that her father died three days before he was due to receive his royal allowance of 25,000 pounds and it was therefore withheld from his widow and children, leaving them comparatively impecunious.

She spent considerable time at the court of Kaiser Wilhelm II after her brother became ruling Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha in Germany through inheritance. She returned to England in 1903 and married Prince Alexander of Teck, brother of the future Queen Mary. He later became Earl of Athlone and they traveled widely for the monarchy as governor general of South Africa and Canada and for their own pleasure.

She was a notable big game hunter and once shot a tiger as it sprang at her. She is a favorite of Queen Elizabeth, who always sends her a telegram on her birthday. Prince Charles once included her in an opera party of young people and she was just as vivacious and interested as any of them.

Her memoirs are a fascinating account of royal life in the days when palaces and castles were as drafty as they were big and keeping warm in bed was a major problem. She knew Queen Victoria — her present home is in the palace where Victoria was summoned from sleep in 1837 to be told she was queen.

She was Chancellor of the University of the West Indies in Jamaica for 21 years until black militants objected to her holding the post in 1970. She regretted not having a reason to go to Jamaica. Typical of her anecdotes of six reigns is the time Victoria chided her daughter Princess Helena for a plunge neckline. "A little rose in front, dear child," she said, "because of the footmen."

The exact center of Ireland is marked by the Pinnacle of Killenny West.

Emergency Energy Conservation Powers Prepared

RALEIGH (AP) — If the legislature takes action as recommended, North Carolina's governor will have the power to impose mandatory energy conservation measures if there is another severe energy crisis.

At its meeting Tuesday, the North Carolina Energy Policy Council adopted the plan for emergency power and also approved an energy conservation plan. A highlight of the conservation program would be to encourage construction of energy efficient homes through property tax breaks for insulation and other energy saving efforts. That, too, requires legislative action.

The 1975 legislature gave the governor authority to impose some mandatory conservation measures in event of an emergency. Under the program approved Tuesday, the governor would be required to obtain approval of the Legislative Committee on Energy Crisis Management, set up by the 1975 legislature, before imposing restrictions.

Here are highlights of the plan to deal with a gasoline shortage, first imposed as voluntary and made mandatory if necessary:

- Hours which gas could be sold would be limited.
- Service stations would be closed one day a week on a staggered basis.
- Cars with even numbered tags would be allowed to buy gas on even days and odd numbers on odd days.
- The amount of gas per sale would be limited.

In the event of a coal shortage brought on by factors such as an oil embargo:

- Early in the shortage, use of coal for generating electricity would be cut and lighting of homes and businesses would be reduced.
- Later, if necessary, industrial uses of coal would be cut back by measures such as reducing working hour.
- Also, the state Utilities Commission would be required to order power companies to reduce coal use by cutting voltage and rotating outages.

Natural gas is the most likely fuel to be in short supply, the council said, predicting curtailments of as much as 60 per cent in coming years.

A number of methods of encouraging energy conservation were endorsed by the council, including:

- Preferential traffic lanes and parking for carpools.
- Banning cars from certain business districts.
- More bikeways and elimination of all unnecessary traffic signals.
- Requiring energy consumption reports to the buyer of a house when it is sold.
- Encouraging the Utilities Commission to examine methods of pricing electricity so it will make conservation financially attractive.

—Calling on state government to ban natural gas heating of schools, insist on energy efficient schools and state buildings, encourage carpooling and minimize use of state cars.

Name Rehabilitation Committee At Pitt Hospital Board Meeting

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A committee of the Hospital Board of Trustees to work with rehabilitation director Dave McRae was set up last night. Volunteering to serve on this committee were Ephraim Smith, Mrs. Mildred Indorf, Mrs. Martha Walston, Mrs. Gretchen Deichmann, and Eugene James.

McRae reported that a medical director for the rehab center is being sought, along with persons to fill several other positions. A director of nursing, Ms. Sandra Hall, has recently been hired.

A contract with Redtop Company, a subsidiary of American Hospital Supply, for housekeeping services in the new hospital, was approved. The amount for the first year is $355,477, which includes salaries and also all cleaning supplies except paper. It was explained that several hospitals in this area use this kind of service and that it seems to be less expensive in the long run than the hospital's providing the service themselves. The hospital may break the contract with three months notice any time the service is deemed by them unsatisfactory.

Board Chairman W. R. Duke read a letter from ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins recommending that Dr. Eugene Furth and Dr. James Mathis be appointed to the Joint Conference Committee.

Approval was given for the buying of an Orthair bone saw for the operating room at $1,592; a pharmacy marking system at $850; a pharmacy packaging system at $1,800; and a Bourne respirator for the nursery at $15,900. The last item is being bought out of money obtained from a $40,000 grant for perinatal needs.

New hospital construction manager Ralph Hall said it's hoped that the March board meeting of the trustees can be held in the new hospital. He said the acute care section is virtually finished, and that heat should go in today. He said areas where construction abuts the acute hospital area, like additions to the emergency room and the like are being partitioned off, so moving in can be considered even if they are not finished.

Dr. Robert McConnell reported the names of physicians that have been reapproved for medical staff privileges and he asked and it was granted that Mrs. Trudy Blessing be approved for privileges as a physician's assistant.

Richardson reported on the Pitt Technical Institute's pursuit of a physician's assistant program. Bill Minette, the project director, tells him that $3,240 has recently been received from the State Office of Emergency Planning to be used toward this program.

Richardson and Board member James Cheatham reported on the First North Carolina Seminar on Hospital Law attended by them recently.

Dr. William Laupus reported that the medical school is in "a relatively invisible stage now." He said work is being done on presentation of Ph.D. programs soon and that an obstetrics and gynecology chairman is being sought.

Laurie Browning, a new representative to the Board from the ECU Student Government Association, was introduced and welcomed.

All members and their guests are invited.

Arrest Man On Drug Charges

Greenville police early today arrested Wade H. Cooper Jr., 21 of 2105B East Fifth St. on charges of felony possession of marijuana and peyote.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the charges stemmed from a search of Cooper's residence by local police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation Monday night that uncovered $2,600 worth of illegal drugs.

Cannon, who reported another man was arrested at the dwelling Monday, said Cooper allegedly jumped through a window of the apartment and fled the scene as officers moved in to begin their search of the dwelling.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving Day services will be held at Wells Chapel Church of God in Christ Thursday Nov. 25, at 3 p.m.

The guest speaker will be Elder J. H. Turner of Rockingham. He is the chairman of the Elder's Council for the Greenville District.

Bishop Leo B. Davenport, church pastor, invites the public to attend.

TURKEY SHOOT

A Turkey Shoot will be held at Chicod School Saturday, November 20 from 1 to 4 p.m. The event will be sponsored by the Chicod PTA and will be held at the school.

Farmers Show...

Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., Tobacco Associates, N.C. Department of Agriculture-Agronomics Division, and Tobacco Village U.S.A.

Tobacco Associates displayed a liberty bell made out of tobacco.

Several Pitt County booths were set up not only representing farm equipment dealerships and agricultural products, but some of the area banks and the Pitt Agribusiness Association. A hospitality center was hosted by the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

One of the busiest spots on the warehouse floor, especially around the noon hour, was the concession stand operated by the Winterville Kiwanis Club.

Clower, who served as an assistant county agent and fertilizer salesman before going into the entertainment field, delighted the large crowd with his storytelling and then mingled with the gathering for several hours signing autographs and chatting.

The popular comic from Yazoo City, Miss., commented after his performance that "no state has been any better to me than the old North State." Saying that "these are my kind of people here," Clower noted that he has made numerous trips to North Carolina and recently performed at Farmville.

Clower, a member of the Grand Ole Opry, joked that on the drive Monday from the airport in Raleigh to Greenville, his escort "made 83,000 turns" on "every highway you could think of" before arriving here.

An exhibitor from Valdosta, Ga. presented the comedian a "gold peanut" from the home state of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Swindell said that Greenville was selected for the farm show, the first sponsored by Specialized Agricultural Publications, because Farmers Warehouse is the "largest tobacco warehouse in the world" and because Greenville is in the largest tobacco growing area.

He predicted a three-day attendance figure of 100,000.

A spokesman at Farmers this morning said that another large crowd appeared to be in the making for today as a sizeable number of persons had already arrived by 9:30 a.m.

The show opens for the final day at 9 a.m. Thursday and closes at 6 p.m.

Behind-Scenes Look Of TV Shows Spoils Magic

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thomas Wolfe once wrote that you can't go home again. If you try it at Universal Studios, it costs $5.95, plus four bits for parking. That's the tab for seeing the old homestead via the "Universal Tour" of Universal Studios, the 423-acre lot where they make such TV shows as "Kojak" and such movies as "Jaws."

Back in 1959, Universal — or the mailroom thereof — was my home during working hours. A giant talent agency, MCA, had just bought the movie lot for its ever-expanding TV production business.

It was a pleasant, leisurely life then. You could see Ward Bond amiably rumberling at someone, chat with the sparrow-like old lady who came for Dale Robertson's "Tales of Wells Fargo" mail, and maybe even see Cary Grant out on the lawn near the grey bungalows like "Jaws" and "Earthquake," promoting them with poorly-focused electronic gusto. A man in top hat and tails, his face made up to resemble either an ape or an agent who took too much sun, is busy scaring or amusing the arriving pilgrims.

After 35 minutes of this, the line of pilgrims starts moving. We become part of the record 2.9 million folks Universal — which started the tour in 1964 — estimates will have taken the tour by year's end.

About 100 in my crowd of friendly, amiable sight-seers are shown to a line of four trams, where they are greeted by Susie, a young, chipper, enthusiastic guide.

She introduces herself over the public address system and urges one and all to give Dan, the tram driver, "a big hello." He gets it.

We set out and see a small pit where, Susie says, a model of the dirigible Hindenberg was burned for a movie.

We also see from our hillside vantage point the entire back lot of Universal, including 35 soundstages and a tall, black office building that Susie says "houses all the big executives here."

No doubt one of them is Jay Stein, who runs Universal's TV division. He and I delivered the Universal mail way back when.

Downhill to another cluster of low grey buildings, repositories of stars, producers, writers. Susie clams up so as not to disturb them, having advised us to keep on the lookout for a star. No star is seen.

It is kind of disappointing when you consider that this season, no less than 14 TV series are shooting at the Universal lot, among them "Baretta," "Kojak" and "Rockford Files." Oh, well.

On to the soundstages, where the tram halts in front of a huge corrugated metal building and we see big signs touting such coming Universal movies as "Airport '77" and "Jaws 2."

We dismount and tour a typical star's quarters. Susie says this one was used by Lucille Ball. It has three rooms, one a large living room with French Empire furniture and a fireplace. But no Lucille.

After that, Stage 32, used only for the tour. We get a run-down on a photography process, see "an exact duplicate of the 'Ironside' set," and get details of how they film and create effects therein. We make two more how-they-do-it stops before exiting to the bright California sun.

We start rolling again, through the prop section, where we're told 5 million props hang out, 200,000 of them books, and by soundstages where "Kojak," "McMillan and Wife" and "Captains and the Kings" are filmed. We don't go in. We keep rolling to suburbia.

The old home of "The Munsters" goes by, as does the old house used for a John Denver special being filmed, then a modest manse once used for "Marcus Welby" and before that "Leave It To Beaver."

In the city section of the back lot, we see such things as the old Chevy that Robert Blake drives in "Baretta," then drive over an old-looking bridge that nearly "collapses" beneath us.

Up into the hills then, past a shack used in the "Sarah" series, past a small Mexican town where it rains amid sunshine and a mini-flood occurs on cue, past an old West street where we're told part of that John Denver special is being made. It looks busy with activity, but nobody spots Denver.

On we go, past a small pond featuring a riverboat and the top half of a small sub that fires a torpedo at us. It makes a muffled "boom," throwing up water and scaring two passing ducks.

A tram-wide section of the pond parts before our very eyes, showing how Cecil B. DeMille parted the Red Sea in Biblical times. The Red Sea, or 4,000 gallons of it, closes behind us as we continue.

Susie keeps up a rapid-fire commentary wherever we go, mentioning Universal TV shows so often you get the feeling you not only are paying for the tour but also the world's longest commercial.

We arrive at what is billed as the main event — the "Jaws" pond. A dummy in a rowboat is seen fishing. A shark's fin appears. It circles, then WHOOSH! No more dummy, no more rowboat.

The road beneath us wavers ominously as "Bruce," the huge mechanical shark, has at us pilgrims. He rises from the pond near us, belching.

The "Jaws" feature, put on the tour only last April, has been its most heavily-publicized attraction.

For me, the best part of the tour was the drive through the bogus "glacier," where things rumble, walls revolve and one is tempted to send out for an icepick before doom ensues.

Although we never saw a TV star during the 95-minute tour, we were told that at no extra price we could see a brief stunt show, observe animal actors, perhaps appear in a for-tourists-only screen test, or watch a makeup expert at work.

I chose the stunt show, where three "cowboys" put on a funny display of fighting, shooting and falling from the Old West hotel near the Silver Slipper Saloon.

I left after that. Thomas Wolfe was right. You can't go home again, at least at Universal. Home is only a memory and I couldn't find it at all. Had trouble finding my car, too.

his game. We judge him more sternly. His heart holding should have alerted him to the fact that he could ill afford to let East gain the lead, and his efforts should have been directed to keeping the dangerous defender off play.

Correct technique is to win the first trick with the ace of diamonds. Declarer now cashes the ace-king of clubs, enters dummy with a trump and leads the jack of clubs. When East follows low, declarer discards his remaining diamond. West can do no better than win and return a club for East to ruff.

Declarer overruffs, enters dummy with a trump and leads the queen of diamonds. If East covers, declarer ruffs, enters dummy with a trump and discards a heart on the jack of diamonds. Now he can lead a heart toward his king, playing for an overtrick. But suppose West had the king of diamonds. When East follows low, declarer discards a heart. West wins the king of diamonds, but he can do declarer no harm. There is a trump in dummy to serve as an entry which will allow declarer to discard a second heart on the jack of diamonds, thus limiting his losers to a trick in each side suit.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? HOPPER STUDY
NEW YORK (AP) — The Whitney Museum recently received a $150,000 grant for a study of 20th-century American artist Edward Hopper (1882-1967). The grant was made by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation for a study to be made over three years.

Lively Lady Has Dull Story-Line

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC tonight is airing "The Disappearance of Aimee," a dramatization of the controversial disappearance and return in 1926 of Aimee Semple McPherson, the flamboyant evangelist.

It stars two fine actresses, Faye Dunaway as Aimee and Bette Davis as her mother, Minnie Kennedy. This should make for a rousing show, no? No. The program is akin to a long sermon on a hot Sunday.

For those too young to recall the case, Sister Aimee contended she was kidnapped while swimming at Ocean Beach Park, Calif., and held for ransom for more than a month in the early summer of 1926.

Los Angeles authorities contended she was off having an illegal fling with Fred Ormiston, a young radio engineer who used to work for her, and had lied in an attempt to cover it all up.

Tonight's dramatization of both contentions — each argued in a preliminary court hearing where authorities tried to bring her to trial — revolves around that hearing, with flashbacks used to depict the claims of each side.

The show starts with Aimee at her temple here shortly after her return. She speaks of her coming court appearance with her mother in dramatic terms, calling it another sign of "the age-old fight between the children of light and the people of darkness."

Her words are so extravagantly ripe, her mother's reaction to them so apparently skeptical, you may think this is a sardonic, tongue-in-cheek show, observe animal actors, perhaps appear in a for-tourists-only screen test, or watch a makeup expert at work.

I chose the stunt show, where three "cowboys" put on a funny display of fighting, shooting and falling from the Old West hotel near the Silver Slipper Saloon.

I left after that. Thomas Wolfe was right. You can't go home again, at least at Universal. Home is only a memory and I couldn't find it at all. Had trouble finding my car, too.

Minnesota Case May Turn Loose Lot Of Drunks

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A year ago Thomas Ticen, a high ranking government official in the Twin Cities, was arrested for drunken driving.

A year after the arrest, the charge against the Hennepin County Commissioner was dismissed. Municipal Judge Neil Riley in a prepared statement commended him for completing an alcoholism treatment program which was offered as an alternative to prosecution upon his arrest.

In this state, which prides itself upon being the nation's leader in the rehabilitation of alcoholics and other chemical dependents, where some of its top citizens openly admit to alcoholism and undergo treatment, the State Supreme Court has issued a ruling which is troubling authorities and the citizenry.

On Oct. 8, Associate Justice Fallon Kelly, writing for the majority of the court, ruled that drivers stopped under suspicion of drunken driving must have the right to consult an attorney before submitting to a breathalyzer test.

Until Kelly's decision, Minnesota laws held that anyone who refused to take the test must be presumed drunk.

Traffic safety officials fear the ruling will result in a drastic rise in traffic fatalities in Minnesota, where for two straight years the toll has been going down compared with the previous year.

"It's a subject I am somewhat familiar with," Ticen said in an interview.

"Frankly," he said, "it points up the whole problem that we have with laws regarding drinking driving versus the $6.5 million we have recommended we spend in Hennepin County to root out the cause.

"If we are going to treat drunken driving as a crime, the kind of penalties we impose deserve the decision made by the Supreme Court.

"The big job is to get the drunken driver off the road and treated. No imprisonment or fines can prevent the cause of the disease," Ticen said.

"Twenty-five per cent of all drivers after midnight are legally drunk (some authorities say it is closer to 50 per cent). The more we drink the better we think we can drive.

"The state legislators have not addressed themselves on how to lead to protect the public on the one hand and restore the individual to his control, to sanity."

Joel Watne, special assistant attorney general, said "hundreds if not thousands of DWI cases (driving while under the influence of alcohol) will be dismissed because the recent ruling was retroactive, virtually reversing a 1971 decision of the same court.

"Law enforcement officers previously were not required to tell persons suspected of DWI that they had the right to counsel because the law said they weren't. Since this recent ruling applies to all past as well as future cases, a person can say he was not informed of his right to counsel. We'll have to throw the case out."

The attorney general's office said it was currently reviewing about 700 license revocation cases and estimated that 5,000 to 10,000 cases are pending in court.

St. Paul Police Chief Richard

Rowan is among the worried law enforcers.

"The time involved is crucial, especially if the drunk driver is involved in an accident. Drivers can use the right to call counsel to stall for time, to burn up the alcohol in their systems."

Chief James Dickinson of the Moorhead, Minn., police department, said a two hour delay usually makes a breathalyzer test unreliable.

State Patrol chief James Crawford wondered what the "reasonable time" to take the test stipulation in the court's decision means. Crawford blames drunken driving for many of Minnesota's traffic fatalities.

In Washington, a lawyer who keeps abreast of federal criminal cases told UPI, "I would be astounded if it is ever held to be a constitutional requirement."

As a possible precedent, he cited a case in which the U.S. Supreme Court held counsel need not be present when a suspect goes into a lineup before he has been formally charged.

But, of the right to counsel before a breathalyzer test, he said the states still "have a right to adopt that policy even if they are not constitutionally obligated to."

The Minnesota supreme court's ruling said the blood-alcohol test was a "critical" step in criminal procedures in DWI cases.

"The decision will set free an awful lot of drunks," Watne said.

DETROIT (AP) — The clang clang of a trolley is echoing along Detroit's downtown streets again for the first time in 20 years, with the revival of trolley car service on Washington Blvd., one of the city's main thoroughfares.

The red and gold-trimmed cars the city bought from Lisbon, Portugal, for $54,000 carry passengers from Cobo Hall Convention Center to Grand Circus Park for a quarter.

Sterilization Faces Growing Resistance In India

By JOHN NEEDHAM
NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India's mass sterilization program is moving forward with greater caution these days in the wake of increasing resistance that has included riots in widely scattered sections of the country.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government has ruled out compulsory sterilization but has left it up to India's 22 states to take the measures they wish.

Maharashtra, the state including Bombay, passed a law requiring sterilization of one parent in a couple having three or more children.

The bill was rewritten and the title changed from the "compulsory sterilization" act to the "family planning" act and officials said that while violators could be imprisoned for six months and fined 500 rupees (about $7), in practice an offender would be sterilized and released.

The president of India, however, has thus far refused to sign the measure. Normally a figurehead, President Fakrudin Ali Ahmed was reported to have been worried by strong Moslem opposition to forced vasectomies and tubectomies.

Sources report the federal government's Home ministry is now rewriting the bill and may wind up removing the compulsory. The spokesman for the Health and Family Planning ministry, V. Bhanumurthy, says only that there is "close examination and study of the implications of the bill."

Last April, government officials in Mrs. Gandhi's home state of Uttar Pradesh announced a bill similar to Maharashtra's, but the jail term for offenders was proposed to be two years.

A little while later, the government drew back, saying it wanted to "thoroughly canvass" the population on the matter before going forward.

Several Indian doctors and Western health officials in New Delhi report only a minimal effort in some states to persuade residents of the need for sterilization.

They agree too, that Mrs. Gandhi's government, while urging the states to move as fast as possible on family planning, is also speaking on the need for caution.

There are "horror stories" galore connected with the program: men of 18 or of 70 dragged off and forcibly sterilized, men and women dying of diseases contracted after operations performed hastily, in unsanitary conditions, with instruments that weren't sterilized.

Mrs. Gandhi, in a recent interview with a visiting British correspondent, admitted there were "individual cases where somebody may be harassed either deliberately in order to get the government into dispute or some other local reason, but such cases are very, very limited.

"And we follow them up and I have been writing almost regularly to the chief ministers and local authorities to be very careful."

In Faridabad, 20 miles south of New Delhi, three people were killed in late September during a riot stemming from opposition to sterilizations. The violence occurred during the nationwide "family planning fortnight."

Sources said Faridabad residents had been going along with the sterilization campaign, but had wanted it delayed until after religious celebrations ended. Those sterilized were receiving about $14 in cash, while "motivators" who brought the patients in were being paid about $11.

"Some of the motivators were police and they weren't about to listen to any objections or request for delay," said one person with knowledge of the incident.

An outbreak in Sultanpur, 340 miles southeast of New Delhi, several weeks earlier left at least seven persons dead. In Calcutta, a crowd angered by the sterilization program surrounded three policemen trying to arrest a pickpocket and stoned them. Mrs. Gandhi said one policeman died of his injuries; Calcutta sources reported all three died.

In a speech to parliament Oct. 27, Mrs. Gandhi admitted publicly for the first time that police had shot people to death during rioting over family planning, usually involving sterilization.

"Some deaths have taken place due to firing," she said, but there had not been as many as her opponents claimed. The claims have ranged up to 50 and more.

Yet Mrs. Gandhi has maintained that it was "astonishing how (well) people have responded."

"When there is any trouble, it is by people who deliberately want to create it. And they want to take political advantage of the situation, (religious) advantage and something like that.

"It is quite astonishing that in spite of opposition from orthodox groups, very limited in number, even those people whom one would have thought would not normally listen to such advice, they are for the program, especially the women."

Figures compiled several months ago showed India, a nation of 610 million people, had about 102 million couples of reproductive age. About 12 per cent had been sterilized and an additional four per cent used conventional contraceptive techniques.

Last April the government told the states it wanted 4.3 million people sterilized. In September, a month that featured a nationwide "family planning fortnight," 1.8 million persons were sterilized, according to government figures.

The number brought the total since April to 3.7 million which was 78.8 per cent of the target of 4.3 million for the financial year ending next April. The government said so far this year 75 per cent of those sterilized have been men.

The pressure has been especially severe in New Delhi. The annual target was 29,000; in five months 68,000 sterilizations were performed, according to government records. Doctors involved in the program say they hope to have all reproductive couples in New Delhi sterilized by next March. Several states took early action against their government workers, cutting off housing allowances, loans and other benefits to workers having three or more children and who did not undergo sterilization.

The federal government took action against its 3 million employees last month, telling them not to have more than three children or if they already do, to see to it they have no more. No penalties have yet been announced.

A doctor in New Delhi reported his mother-in-law took the doctor's two children, one 8 years old and the other 6, to a nearby public health clinic for treatment of sore throats and fever. "The children were denied assistance until each brought one person in to be sterilized," he said. When the mother-in-law pointed out the children's ages, the official at the center said if the parents each brought forth one patient, the children would be looked after.

Other residents of the capital report they have been threatened with a cutoff of cooking gas for their stoves or cancellation of their ration cards unless they have been sterilized.

The family planning program has been in existence in India for the past 22 years, but it has moved into high gear only since Mrs. Gandhi's imposition of a nationwide state of emergency on June 26, 1975.

Indians now add about 13 million people per year to what is already the second most populous nation in the world. The country hopes that by reducing the birth rate it can insure that in good harvest years there will be enough food for all the eventually enough schools to reduce the 70 per cent illiteracy rate.

Sterilization is considered the best method because it is permanent. But it is also the most controversial and the government is watching its step, lest sterilization lead to widespread disorders in India.

Trying To Teach Computer To Read

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Scientists at Yale University are trying to teach a computer to read so that ultimately they may be able to produce computers that can read whatever people can.

The research is based on work done by Roger Schank, a computer scientist who has been a pioneer in producing computers that are able to deal with everyday language instead of special programming language.

"I'm basically working on the study of human thinking," says Schank, a Yale professor who heads the Artificial Intelligence computer project.

He hopes that by producing a computer that can read, he will be able to obtain a better understanding of the human reading process.

Robert Wilensky, a researcher working on the project at Yale's computer science department, says the first things given to the computers were simple stories composed by the researchers. From there, researchers fed the computers accident reports taken from newspapers.

The computer is able to answer questions about the reports, make inferences based on report data and retell the report "in its own words," Wilensky says.

"We picked accident reports because they have a rather fixed structure," he adds.

Schank says that having a computer that can read would also solve some large problems of computer application. A program that could read "natural language" would be able to accept instructions typed by anyone.

"It would be like having a friend who had read every thing," he says. "It might have access to all the books in the world and would know where to find something. If two people were arguing about a baseball average, a computer could tell them. Or if your plumbing broke, you could ask a computer how to fix it."

Schank also says knowing how a computer reads may teach researchers about how children read, thus possibly producing better ways of instructing them.

Foreign Journalist Looks At America

By ALFRED ARAUJO
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Just in case I was wondering what the world of water beds, CB radios and Kentucky Fried Chicken was all about, I certainly found out during a four-week tour of the United States, during which I drove about 5,000 miles from Pataluma, California, to Dayton, Ohio.

I was invited to visit the United States by the U.S. State Department — one of a group of journalists from around the world — as part of the Bicentennial celebrations.

The idea was that we drive across the United States hauling camper trailers. Air transportation to the United States from our countries of origin — in my case Kenya — was provided by an American airline.

My tour of the United States was the seventh in an eight-tour program organized by the State Department. The tours were sponsored by the Wally Byam Foundation, Discover America and the Society of American Travel Writers. Each group was accompanied by a staff member of the U.S. Information Agency in Washington.

Tour No. 7 — from California to Ohio — was made up of 26 caravans and four escort cars, occupied by our guides, caboose and escort officer.

Journalists on this voyage of discovery were drawn from Britain, West Germany, Bangladesh, Italy (the largest contingent), Chile, Spain, France and Kenya.

Three days were spent in the sleepy town of Pataluma in California as we got used to the big American cars we would be driving. Some of us had to get used to driving on the right, the automatic transmission, and finally the idea of towing the massive one-ton trailers behind us.

The journey from Pataluma, near San Francisco, was to take us to Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and finally Ohio.

We camped for the most part in state camps or at Campgrounds of America camps.

Although cautioned to drive at 50 to 55 miles per hour on the freeway while towing the trailers, we found that in most cases we were holding up traffic.

The idea of the "Caravan America" exercise was that we as journalists should see what the United States had done with its 200 years of freedom. A great part of the tour was spent going down memory lane: seeing the historic shrines, monuments, buildings and museums.

There was a visit to the Lincoln home, law office and tomb in Springfield, Ill.; Death Valley in California-Nevada; the Homestead National Monument of America in Nebraska; the Golden Spike Monument at Promontory, Utah, where on May 10, 1869, the Central Pacific and the Union Pacific were linked, thereby "joining" the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

There were also visits to Yellowstone National Park; to Indian reservations; and to the casinos and gambling halls of Reno, Nev.

Most of the journalists, some traveling with wives and children, found it hard to reconcile the image of Americans we had formed at home with what we found in the small towns we drove through.

But what must stand out as memorable was the marked degree of prosperity and riches that we found almost everywhere. "This country is just bursting at the seams with prosperity," said a newspaper columnist from New Zealand. "They say the economy's in a mess... that's really hard to understand," said a Turkish newswoman. "It must be the biggest boom of all time," said a French TV reporter.

The image of Mr. Average American was generally one of

Eye Exam Can Help Skiers

Your eyes are vital equipment that should be checked out before you go out on the slopes, says Olympic gold medal skier Barbara Ann Cochran of the Council on Sports Vision.

"To make skiing safe and enjoyable," the 1976 inductee into the U.S. Ski Hall of Fame says, "you have to see conditions ahead to avoid bad snow or to negotiate jumps. At 20 miles an hour, there's no room for error."

So, before skiers pull their ski poles out of the closet, she suggests they visit their eye doctor for an examination. If vision correction is prescribed, skiers can choose soft contact lenses, hard contact lenses or eye glasses.

Busy Drive-In Of 1960s Now A Parking Lot

NOW IT'S A PARKING LOT — Mel's Drive-In in San Francisco, which served 3,000 meals a day during the 1960s and '70s, is pictured shortly before it was turned into a parking lot. (AP Wirephoto)

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Back in the Golden '60s, cars used to line up for blocks around Mel's Drive-In, waiting for the opportunity to buy 35-cent hamburgers served by 15 scantily clad carhops.

"There were five policemen directing traffic. Everyone loved it," recalled Mel Weiss, whose operation once sold 3,000 meals a day.

Mel's Drive-In was turned into a parking lot a few months ago, mirroring a national trend away from curbside dining.

Weiss, who in 1947 founded the once-popular gathering place for teen-agers and families, sold his chain of 30 drive-ins four years ago. His flagship restaurant on South Van Ness was a key locale for the movie "American Graffiti," a nostalgic look at an era when drive-ins were teen-age social centers.

The film was actually based on goings-on in Modesto, site of Burgies' and Al's Drive-in. That, too, closed down years ago.

Like their counterparts around the country, Mel's and Burgies' have been replaced by fast-food franchises that dispense across-the-counter hamburgers, tacos and fried chicken to take out.

Royce Halley claims to have introduced curbside food service to the world in 1921 with a drive-in near Dallas. At one time he had 70 Pig Stands from Los Angeles to New York, but most have since been converted to coffee shops and only five still have curb service.

A major reason for the demise of the drive-in was the appeal they held for teen-agers, Halley said.

"There were disruptions by the teen-agers, and we lost some adult customers because of that," he said. "The teens liked to be seen, and would spend more time than money there. That made it unprofitable."

Weiss said: "I think the problem was that years ago, people felt very secure in eating at drive-ins. But in the last few years, there was a fear, for some reason, and people weren't comfortable eating outside."

"The old-fashioned drive-in of yesteryear has gone by the wayside," said W. H. "Buckshot" Price, executive vice president of the Texas Restaurant Association. "What a shame. Kids enjoyed them. So did mothers with kids who didn't want to have to haul them inside a restaurant."

Their Goal Is The Conquest Of Death

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Committee for Elimination of Death believes death is "an imposition on the human race" that needs not be inevitable.

"When the history of this century is written, the achievement that will stand head and shoulders above the rest will ... be the conquest of death," said A. Stuart Otto, chairman of the committee.

The committee exchanges information concerning gerontology, prosthetics, genetic reprogramming, cloning, cryonics and spiritual matters.

The most commonly known scientific approach to increased longevity, Otto said, is that of the gerontologists, who "hope to extend life appreciably in the very near future" with drugs and therapeutic techniques.

"Most of them seem very optimistic that by the turn of the century the common three score and 10 will have been replaced by a figure more like 90 or 100," he said. "And this is not in a decrepit state but in a state of youth and health."

Intermeshing with gerontological research, prosthetics "has to do with the artificial replacement of worn out organs and limbs," he said.

"It is predicted that within a decade it will be possible to replace destroyed joints and things of that kind with motorized parts that will be so perfect that unless you know what to look for you won't be able to tell a crippled person from one who's completely normal."

Genetic reprogramming involves "a longer range approach" based on recent breakthroughs, Otto said.

"The geneticists now feel that it is entirely feasible to be able to re-order the programming within the genes of human beings so that undesirable features will be bred out and desirable ones amplified," he said.

"The concept is almost universally held in the scientific community now that aging is a disease ... just like cancer or any other disease."

"The idea is that if that disease can be overcome, we'll stop aging. The geneticists believe that they can program the disease out of mankind."

Otto said cloning — growing duplicates from parts taken from plants or animals — would be useful for growing new organs to replace damaged ones. He said the "ultimate in sophistication of the cloning art" would be to grow a new person, but he said he doubted that would be much comfort to the person who provided the cloning material.

Otto said more time is needed to evaluate cryonics, "freezing people who have died because of some killer disease" with the intention of thawing and treating them when cures are found.

"There are 24 bodies that have been frozen to date. None has been revived because cures have not been found for the various diseases of which they

Alcohol-Fueled Cars Finish 5,000-Mile Tour

By RICHARD W. FOSTER
Associated Press Writer
BRASILIA (AP) — Three cars fueled entirely with alcohol have completed a 5,000-mile tour of Brazil to publicize alcohol as a substitute for gasoline.

Technicians for the Brazilian air force, which sponsored the marathon, said the modified engines performed flawlessly in all weathers and got 36 miles to the gallon on asphalt and 30 miles on a 950-mile stretch of dirt road.

The three cars — a Volkswagen 1300, a Dodge Polara and a Gurgel jeep — were welcomed home at the air force research center in Sao Jose dos Campos Monday by a military band playing the popular samba song "You Think that Whiskey is Water?"

The use of alcohol as a fuel in combustion engines is not a new idea. But with Brazil spending nearly $4 billion a year to import 80 per cent of the oil it uses, some government officials see the country's sugar cane crop — the world's largest — as a potential source of alcohol to substitute for gasoline.

Alcohol as a fuel is entirely free of pollutants, its advocates say, its exhaust consists of carbon dioxide and water vapor, the same exhaust produced by a human being exhaling.

Air force engineer Miguel Azevedo, who drove one of the cars, said the alcohol fuel improved acceleration because of its higher octane content and reduced engine wear because it was cleaner.

Gasoline in Brazil now costs about $1.60 per gallon. Engineers refuse to predict how much alcohol fuel would cost if produced on a scale sufficient to fill even part of the country's needs. But the air force and other advocates say large-scale production from the abundant local sugar cane would eventually bring the cost way down.

"The energy which comes from sugar cane offers enormous opportunities for the development of our country," said an editorial in the Jornal do Brasilia. "Alcohol should not be viewed simply as a substitute for oil but as an opportunity for Brazilian control of a technology unique in the world."

The ministry of industry and commerce says it has received several inquiries from abroad about the technology. Volkswagen has a fleet of alcohol-fueled Volkswagens touring the country to promote the idea, and Fiat's Brazilian subsidiary says it has modified engines on some of its cars to burn alcohol.

Club Begins Annual Sale

The Greenville Civitan Club began its Civitan Fruit Cake sale recently, according to Richard Stephenson, president-elect.

The Civitan Club sells the Claxton Fruit Cakes to raise money to sponsor worthwhile projects, according to Stephenson. The Greenville Civitan Club sold 6,000 pounds last year. The funds raise from the sale have in the past funded sending a high school student to Civitan Citizenship Camp; Civitan projects at Camp Waccamaw; contributions to the National Association of Retarded Citizens; and the Outstanding Citizenship Award.

Persons who purchase more than 100 pounds will receive a 10 per cent discount and can have the cakes delivered by calling 756-1916. The cakes sell for $1.75 per pound and are sold in one, two, and three pound cakes.

Soviet Army Belt Buckle A Souvenir

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — Russian Army belts with shiny brass buckles have become a favorite object for souvenir hunting GIs in Berlin.

Cigarettes, girlie magazines and money may be used to lure a belt and a buckle from the Russian soldiers who guard Allied crossing points in and out of West Berlin.

Officially, the U.S. military command frowns on the practice. Unofficially, it is tolerated.

"Why not," a senior officer said privately. "It's harmless enough. It's just a souvenir."

The belts and buckles hold up jeans and are worn as decoration over blouses and sweaters for just about every kind of occasion — shopping, football games, cocktail parties.

The Red Army buckle has a large star and hammer and sickle emblem on it so that it is easily recognizable even from a distance.

The Russians wear the belts outside over their uniform jackets.

The belt itself is of good quality leather. How much it costs a Russian soldier is not known. Nor is it apparent how Russian commanders are reacting to what must be a run on Red Army belt supplies in East Germany.

Informants say getting a souvenir belt can work like this:

On presenting his travel credentials at a border crossing point, a soldier, airman or U.S. Mission civilian waits in a room that features the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda and an East German television set. The psychology behind this is obscure, since neither American soldiers, nor their British and French counterparts, usually are well versed in either Russian or German.

As the GI waits, a Russian soldier outside the building, the same one who salutes him in and back out of the checkpoint, often appears at a window. He makes a sign asking the American if he has cigarettes. The basis for a possible transaction has been established.

Or inside the building, an American is kept waiting until a one-to-one situation is possible. Then a Russian comes out of a hidden control room with a belt and freshly polished buckle in his hand.

Without saying a word, he holds it up. It is up to the American to respond. Sign language fixes a price.

A well-placed military source said it used to be that a girlie magazine shoved through a control room aperture along with credentials was enough to bring out a belt and buckle in return.

"The price of a belt in good condition first went up to a carton of cigarettes," the source said. "But lately the Russians have been making it plain they want from $6 to $12."

"I get the impression," another soldier laughed, "that the Russians would sell us their whole uniform for cigarettes, lighters, ballpoint pens and those centerfold magazines, not to mention money, if they could get away with it."

Back home in the States, a high school student has reported gleefully, he was able to resell a Russian Army belt for $30.

Donates Prized Japanese Art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles County Museum of Art has acquired five important Japanese paintings of the Edo period (1615-1868).

George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern art, says the paintings are from the most creative, varied and prolific periods in Japanese art.

The paintings were purchased with funds donated by Frederick Weisman and Associates. "The biggest Japanese population of the United States is in Los Angeles," said museum trustee Weisman. "My hope is that with this gift interest will be stimulated in the community so that we may develop one of the finest collections of Japanese art in the United States."

Stitch In Time Saves Billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Road Information Program (TRIP) says $84 billion could be saved by resurfacing 447,000 miles of badly worn roads and streets right away. The cost would be $24 billion.

Failure to resurface the roads within four years means they will deteriorate so much that complete reconstruction will be necessary — at a cost of $108 billion, says TRIP.

Shamed Into Settling Their Debts

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Every day, a tiny band of men roams the streets, striking fear in the hearts of Argentines. They are armed with top hats, tall coats and briefcases.

They are not political terrorists, but employes of one of the oldest bill collection agencies anywhere.

The agency, dreamed up by a couple of businessmen fed up with clients who wretched on their payments for new cars, sends out teams of collectors outfitted in top hats and tails. They carry black briefcases with the words "overdue debt" painted on the sides in glaring red paint.

Each team of two men invariably attracts a large crowd of curious spectators eager to know who owes money, which is exactly what the agency wants.

Adolfo Cabello, one of the founders of "The Gentlemen," as the agency is known, claims the success rate of the elegantly-dressed bill collectors is nearly 100 per cent.

He had patented the idea here as a "system for the collection of overdue debts based on publicity, psychology and elegance" and says he is dickering with interested parties in other Latin American countries and in the United States who want franchises to use the concept.

"People who owe money are usually so anxious to get rid of our employes and the crowds following them that they often pay up the same day," he explained to a visitor at the agency's cluttered downtown Buenos Aires office.

"The secret of our success is that we have incorporated into the collection of bills the main ingredient of selling: publicity."

Business is so good that the agency handles only certain cases. One of its major clients is a large U.S. airline with offices here. Almost daily, the agency receives computerized printouts of customers who have bounced checks for air tickets, or who have fallen behind in credit payments.

"We try to handle only those cases where people, although they have the money or should have it, try to get out of paying their debts at the cost of others. For example, we have vacationers who fly on credit all over the world and suddenly get amnesia about their bills when they return home."

Rubber checks which bounce because of lack of funds in the bank are a staple for the collection agency. In Argentina they are called "flying checks."

The top-hatted collectors usually step in when normal measures, such as phone calls and polite letters, have failed.

The agency collects a commission on the debt, up to a maximum of 25 per cent. A polite note is sent to the debtor asking payment within three days. If not, the missive warns, "our personnel will be mobilized."

The agency has a staff of 14 collectors in top hats and tails. They are trained never to crack a smile or engage in conversation with spectators or the target. A simple card is handed over without comment asking the debtor to visit the collection agency office immediately and settle accounts.

Cabello recalls that a Buenos Aires lawyer, who received a visit from "The Gentlemen" because of a bad check, had to move his office to another building because other tenants accosted him in the elevator every day laughing and shouting: "Pay up! Pay up!"

His men also make trips to other Argentine cities to collect debts. In one provincial town, the local police chief saw two top-hatted men in their car and ordered a motorcycle escort for them, thinking that they were foreign diplomats.

None of the bill collectors has ever had problems with violence.

"The debtor just wants these men in the top hats and tails to go away. He doesn't make trouble," says Cabello. "In fact, several of them have since paid their debt and then come to us to collect money from other people."

WHAT WE EAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are eating more meat and fewer potatoes than they did 40 years ago, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Bureau data shows meat consumption has risen from 117 pounds per capita in 1935 to 186 pounds in 1970, while potato consumption has fallen from 198 pounds per capita in 1910 to 91 pounds in 1970.

Some Psychiatrists Doubt Exorcism Really Needed

By CHARLES J. CANNON DENVER (UPI) — Movies and books on diabolical possession are blamed by two priests and a psychiatrist for a rising number of persons who claim the devil has taken control of their bodies.

Many other persons deny the existence of Satan, saying since they do not believe in God, they cannot believe in the devil. Others believe in a divine being but dismiss Satan's existence as superstitious bunk.

"In this country and throughout the world it has become intellectual not to believe in the actual, literal existence of the devil," said the Rev. R. W. Lawrence, a Roman Catholic priest who lectures on the occult.

"It isn't only among the laity. There are a great many priests and ministers of other denominations who, if they were asked, would tell you they don't believe in the literal existence of Satan."

Many psychiatrists, because of their association with mental abnormalities, find it difficult, if not impossible, to acknowledge the existence of demons. They claim cases of possession can be explained by ESP, hallucination, hysteria or compulsion.

"In every case of claimed possession that I have examined, the evidence for classical possession was not there," said Jule Eisenbud, a psychiatrist. "The evidence always has pointed to an emotional disturbance of one kind or another."

But Eisenbud admitted a person's belief he is possessed can be a very real force in his life. He said several patients, when told they were not possessed, left unsatisfied with the answer.

"Persons who believe themselves possessed often will not accept any other explanation. What they want is to rid themselves of the evil influence they think is attacking them. They are not at all inclined to say, 'Let's sort things out, maybe it's something within myself.'"

The Rev. John O'Meara of the Denver archdiocese said claims of possession often were a convenient way to explain a problem.

"There are some persons who, when they are unable to deal with problems in their lives, are only too willing to blame the devil. But most often, after intensive counseling with physicians, psychiatrists or the clergy, the problem turns out to be an emotional or physical illness of which the person may have been totally unaware."

Father O'Meara said a recent flood of books and movies dealing with possession, witchcraft and the supernatural had opened up new avenues of escape for emotionally disturbed persons. Father Lawrence and Eisenbud agreed.

"Some people are more susceptible, more open to suggestion, than others and it is easy for them to see 'The Exorcist' and say 'Hey, that's what's wrong with me.'"

Eisenbud cited a recent case in which a man claimed to be possessed by a "malignant, extra terrestrial influence. Whether it is the devil or a UFO (unidentified flying object), it amounts to the same thing.

"Both are simply cultural artifacts, just as witches who thought they were in league with the devil in the Middle Ages. There are a number of people today who feel they are being controlled by beings from outside our own planet, and I suppose it's the same thing

Weed Plague Found Spreading

FT. COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Two hardy, aggressive weeds, Johnson grass and shatter cane, are beginning to plague farmers in southeastern Colorado, according to Gene Heikes, extension professor of weed science at Colorado State University.

Johnson grass, which can grow to about four feet if uncontrolled, chokes out many low-lying crops, says Heikes. Shatter cane, a type of wild sorghum, can grow to more than six feet.

with the devil."

Despite scientific advances, there still are numerous documented cases in which the whole of man's knowledge has been unable to explain a person's bizarre behavior. In many such cases, exorcism has been used — often with positive results.

The case described in "The Exorcist" actually occurred, although it involved a young boy instead of a girl and lacked many of the sensational occurrences described in the book. The exorcism began in Maryland and ended six weeks later in a hospital at St. Louis.

One of the most famous exorcisms in the United States occurred at Earlring, Iowa, in 1928. The Rev. Theophilus Riesinger, a Capuchin priest, exorcized a demon from a 40-year-old woman reportedly possessed at age 16 when cursed by her father who reportedly tried unsuccessfully to seduce her. The exorcism lasted 23 days.

Other exorcisms have been approved and have been unsuccessful. In some instances, the person who claimed possession said they were repossessed once exorcized. In a few cases, the demon reportedly left the body of the possessed and invaded that of the exorcist, according to records.

"But there have been many cases where the demon has identified itself verbally to the exorcist and has been cast out by the invocation of Christ's name," said Father Lawrence. "I know it is difficult for many persons to believe. But we must always remember the teachings of scripture, that the devil gains his first foothold when we cease to believe he exists."

NATIONALLY KNOWN SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT HERE IN GREENVILLE

GREENVILLE (Spec.) United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Greenville area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about the Greenville classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible).

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming... now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places.

Mr. Ribs Restaurant
706 Evans St.
Monday November 15 at 6:30 P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M.
Tuesday November 16 at 6:30 P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M.
Wednesday November 17 at 6:30 P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M.
Thursday November 18 at 6:30 P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M.

P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M. Friday November 19 at 6:30 P.M. and again at 8:30 P.M. SATURDAY NOVEMBER 20 AT 10:30 A.M. AND AGAIN AT 1:30 P.M. SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 21 AT 2:00 P.M. AND AGAIN AT 4:00 P.M.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive this course, which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits you best.
