Carter Expects Gradual Govm't Reorganization

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's promised reorganization of the federal government will be carried out in a "very careful, deliberate process" over the next two to three years, a key Carter staff member says.

Carter discussed that proposed reorganization, the economy, and his dealing with the House and Senate in a three-hour meeting with Democratic congressional leaders Wednesday at Sen. Herman Talmadge's home at Lovejoy, Ga., about 40 miles south of Atlanta. He later received expressions of support from some of the legislators present.

Carter, who was repeatedly referred to as "Mr. President" at the meeting, said later he had asked the legislators to "direct me to make the executive branch more efficient."

Another topic was Carter's expressed desire to forge a bipartisan foreign policy. A Carter aide later said Carter will seek a meeting with Republican leaders to ask advice and "give them a feeling of participation without their feeling that they were being co-opted."

Carter told the Democratic legislators he wants Congress to re-enact the Hoover Reorganization Act which, before it expired last year, gave the president the authority to reorganize the federal government subject only to congressional veto.

The Carter aide described the meeting with nine senators and seven House members during a news briefing under the ground rules that he not be identified by name.

Carter entered the meeting with a list of discussion topics written on a folded piece of paper. At the top of the list was government reorganization, but the aide said, "Clearly the topic that ran in and out of almost all the discussion was the economy."

Government reorganization was a topic Carter brought up frequently during his campaign, recounting the consolidation of Georgia government agencies he supervised as the state's governor and promising he would reorganize the federal bureaucracy if elected president.

His aide said specific legislative proposals were not brought up.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., expected to be the next House speaker, said Carter "will have 100 per cent cooperation from me."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., retiring as the Senate Democratic leader, said, "If the meeting this afternoon is any indication of what lies ahead for this country...the omens are all good."

Hunt Says His Budget Includes Key Promises

By NOEL YANCEY

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov.-elect Jim Hunt said today many of his key campaign promises will be contained in budget proposals to be presented quickly to the 1977 legislature.

Hunt told a news conference his budget proposals will include at least a cost-of-living pay increase for teachers and state employees.

The Democratic governor-elect said Gov. Jim Holshouser has agreed to write the proposals into a budget package now in preparation, including: a $15 million reading program, a $10 million speedy trials program, a $2 million community schools program and a program providing for use of temporary facilities to relieve prison overcrowding.

Hunt also praised the State Highway Patrol, and said he expects a committee study of patrol morale to be ready by the time he is inaugurated on Jan. 8.

However, he declined specific comment on an incident in Granville County early Monday in which a Virginia trooper was killed at a roadblock set up by the patrol.

Hunt said the incident is being investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation, and he will withhold comment until the investigation is complete.

Discussing East Carolina University, Hunt said that as governor he would do his best to see that ECU's new four-year medical school begins admitting students next fall.

$7,076 To Pitt Juvenile Effort

The juvenile officer program in the Pitt County Sheriff's Department has received $7,076 from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) for continuation of funding for the final nine months of second year funding and the first three months of third year funding, according to the Mid-East Commission.

With the rise of juvenile offenses and arrests, the sheriff's department feels that the continued employment of Larry D. Parker as juvenile officer will serve to maintain contacts with juveniles and to establish lines of communication between law enforcement officers and potential juvenile offenders.

Three basic components will make up Pitt County's juvenile program — prevention, enforcement, and referral.

Since implementation of the juvenile program in August 1975, the unit has contacted over 200 juveniles. Some 150 of these children received counseling and 25 juveniles were taken to court for disposition. An additional 25 juvenile cases were referred to other agencies.

Pitt County will assume the project costs upon termination of the LEAA grant, September 30, 1978.

Record Wind

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Winds were recorded at 161.2 miles per hour atop Grandfather Mountain at 10:45 a.m. today — a record, said Dick Barkley, a spokesman at the resort.

The previous record was 145 miles per hour. The winds reached 154.31 m.p.h. at 9:50 a.m. and then screamed up to 161.2 less than an hour later, he said.

Economic Growth Estimates Reduced

By G. DAVID WALLACE

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter, or just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down unemployment.

The Commerce Department had estimated last month that the Gross National Product — the total output of goods and services — grew at an annual rate of 4 per cent in the third quarter. The revised figures show that the original estimate was dragged down by a poorer than expected performance in foreign trade.

The department originally had estimated a surplus for trade in goods and services at an annual rate of $5.9 billion, but later reports reduced the estimate to a $3.4 billion surplus.

Commerce also reduced its original estimate of inflation during the July-September period. Inflation totaled 4.2 per cent at an annual rate during the quarter instead of the original estimate of 4.4 per cent.

In the previous quarter, inflation was 5.2 per cent at an annual rate while the economic output growth rate was 4.5 per cent. In the first three months of the year, the economic output registered a 9.2 per cent advance.

In another development, Federal Reserve Board Chairman

Arthur Burns today recommended against a tax cut at this time, but did not rule one out if the economy fails to recover from its present slowdown.

"...I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time. My mind on this subject, however, is by no means closed," Burns said in a prepared speech.

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he will consider a tax reduction next year if the current economic slowdown continues, and some of Carter's advisers have expressed concern the Federal Reserve Board could offset the benefits of a tax cut by tightening the nation's money supply.

The revision in the GNP means that despite initial projections of healthy growth in the economy for the last half of this year, the growth this fall was below the 4 per cent rate considered necessary to provide enough jobs merely to meet the demands of normal population growth.

From June to October, unemployment has advanced from 7.3 per cent to 7.9 per cent.

Administration economists have said they still expect growth to pick up in the last quarter of the year, even though the key retail sales and industrial production indicators have shown no growth in the first month of the final quarter.

FCX To Almost Double Size Of Farmville Plant

PLANT ENLARGED . . . A $1.5 million remodeling project is scheduled to begin immediately at the FCX Inc. feed mill in Farmville. The expansion will almost double the capacity of the facility, FCX officials reported.

FARMVILLE — FCX Inc. announced today a $1.5 million remodeling project that will almost double the capacity of the firm's feed mill here.

Marvin McClam, president and general manager of the two-state farmer cooperative, said that work will begin immediately with the expansion project scheduled for completion by January of 1978. The Farmville plant, built in 1962 and located on S. Field Street, currently has an annual capacity of 60,000 tons. The expansion of the feed mill will provide an increase to 100,000 tons, McClam reported.

The contract for the construction has been awarded to the T.E. Ibberson Co. of Minneapolis, Minn.

McClam said the decision to update the Farmville facilities came in response to "increasing demands for poultry and livestock feeds by Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina farmers." He explained that most of the plant's 15-year-old

Farmville Police Chief Loses Post In Commissioners' Vote

By CAROL TYER

Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners yesterday voted unanimously to relieve police chief Marsdon Cannady of duty as of November 30.

The vote was taken before a relatively large number of townspeople in a resumption of Cannady's Monday night hearing called for 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Jack Farrior made the motion and Durwood Little seconded it.

In an appeal at the first of the meeting, Tom Ryon who said that he had been a citizen of Farmville for the past 37 years told the commissioners, "I personally challenge you as a group to find where the leak was and why it was." He explained that he was told at the Post Office at 6:20 p.m. and later by phone at home on election day evening, that the commissioners were to meet in executive session that night and ask for Cannady's resignation. He said he later heard someone at the fire station where votes were being counted ask, "Has he got the ax yet?"

Commissioner Sarah Albritton said that she believed such comments had to be supposition since she herself did not know the commissioners would vote to request Cannady's resignation that evening.

Ryon also commented, "I have yet to work with a chief that has been as cooperative."

Cannady's attorney, Dallas Clark, pointed out that though a hearing was held Monday night with invitation for whoever would like to — commissioners, townspeople, and police officers — to question the chief about his performance in office, police department members had little to say. Yet, that day on the Farmville radio station's noon news a statement of police officers' performance was read with no opportunity for rebuttal.

Town Attorney, Jack Lewis, assured Clark and the audience that the statement, "Whatever it was," was "in no way official."

Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald asked, "Why has he been asked to resign. I just haven't heard it explained yet?"

Lewis replied that a formal statement on behalf of the board had been given Monday night.

Jack Tyson and Ryon both touched on how the police department upheaval over the past few years has hampered the town's development, industrial and otherwise.

All five commissioners made statements that they were voting their convictions. Farrior and W. R. Duke both commented that Cannady is an excellent policeman and an excellent detective. Duke said, "He is just not as good an administrator of the department as we would like."

Family Health Survey Planned

RALEIGH (AP) — More than 10,000 American families will be asked in a survey such questions as: 'who visits the doctor most? Who pays the bills? Who pockets the profit?'

Interviewers will begin asking the questions in January. The answers, said project director Daniel G. Horvitz, hopefully will provide some guideposts for politicians debating widely varying prototypes for a national health insurance system.

Called the National Medical Care Expenditure Survey, the effort is an elaborate study, perhaps the most comprehensive and ambitious one ever undertaken by the Research Triangle Institute.

Horvitz reported Wednesday on the $7.4 million project at the 18th annual meeting of the Research Triangle Institute Board of Governors in the Research Triangle Park west of Raleigh.

RTI President George R. Herbert told the board the institute had just completed a "spectacular year," generating new projects worth $28 million.

The medical survey is being done for the U.S. Public Health Services, a branch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Couple Speaks Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

The home of the Rev. and Mrs. Jasper Tyson in the Oak Grove community was the scene of the candlelight wedding ceremony of Miss Alene Dudley and Calvin Moore Saturday at 4 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Tyson assisted by the Rev. West Shields Jr.

A program of wedding music was presented by Roger Ingram, organist, and Mrs. Mavis Williams, soloist, who sang "More," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ernestine Lyons of Fayetteville. The bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Tyson of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, James E. Dudley, wore a formal length gown of beige chiffon covered to the waistline in Venice lace. The gown was designed with a portrait neckline and long sleeves. The flared skirt and attached chapel train featured lace covered bottoms at the back of the waist where the train was attached.

The bride wore an elbow length illusion veil attached to a bridal cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of carnations with an orchid and sprays of ivy tied with a satin bow.

Miss Pamela Miller of Fayetteville was maid of honor. She wore a formal length blue chiffon gown covered to the waistline in Venice lace. The gown had a portrait neckline and A-line skirt. She carried a long-stemmed mum tied with satin streamers.

The flower girl was Miss Starla Huggins, niece of the bridegroom. She wore a floor length flared crepe polyester white dress with long sleeves. She carried a basket filled with petals tied with satin ribbon. Kendrick C. Dudley of Fayetteville was ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow with a spray of fall flowers tied in satin.

David Gieger of Fayetteville was best man.

The mother of the bride wore a qiana jersey empire apricot formal length dress with beaded Venice lace. The mother of the bridegroom wore a kerri green formal length dress of knit shantung with a draped cummerbund. Both mothers wore carnation corsages.

Mrs. Rosa L. Harris of Greenville directed the wedding.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a two-piece suit of autumn colors.

The bride is a graduate of E. E. Smith High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School. The bride is presently serving in the U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Bragg. The bridegroom is also serving in the U. S. Army and is stationed at Fort Rucker, Ala.

A wedding breakfast was given by Mrs. Ester White, aunt of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the couple and their guests were entertained at a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Huggins at their home. Mrs. Huggins is the bridegroom's sister.

Mrs. William Chance received guests and Mrs. Ann Huggins presided at the register. The receiving line was introduced by Mrs. Bettie Washington.

After the first slice of the three tiered wedding cake was cut by the bridegroom, Mrs. Doris Hansley served the cake. Miss Lisa Williams and Rufus Huggins served champagne. Mrs. Ruby Taylor was in charge of the refreshment table assisted by Mrs. Lizzie Williams.

Good-byes were said by the Rev. and Mrs. Tyson.

Wedding Anniversary

GRIFTON — Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Penuel and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cleaton entertained Sunday evening at a family party on the 34th wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Penuel.

The refreshment table was covered with yellow linen cloth and centered with a green candle arrangement. The honored couple was remembered with gifts from hostesses and hosts.

His Drinking Buddy Is Boozing Dog

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of an alcoholic dog? I think I have one. Every weekend my husband puts away eight six-packs of beer with the help of Rudy, our 10-year-old cocker spaniel.

I am not putting you on, Abby. It all started when Don (my husband) gave Rudy a taste of his beer. Rudy loved it, so Don gave him some more, and pretty soon it got to be a regular thing. Now after a few beers, Rudy chases his tail, staggers around and finally falls down and goes to sleep.

Can all this beer hurt the dog? Don says it can't. I say it can. Rudy can hardly wait until Friday, and when he sees Don carry those six-packs out of the car, he gets so excited he nearly goes crazy.

I would ask our vet but I'm ashamed.

DON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: My vet consultant says it is indeed possible for a dog to become addicted to beer. And I think anyone who would addict a dog is a dirty dog himself!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my boyfriend's taste in clothes for me. When he goes shopping with me, or buys a gift of clothing for me, he always picks out something that's backless or so low in front I can't wear a bra. He also likes dresses that have long slits up the sides and hip-hugger pants that fit skin tight and show the belly button. He gave me a see-through blouse last Christmas and I haven't had the nerve to wear it yet.

I hate to hurt his feelings, but I feel uncomfortable wearing clothes that show so much. Am I too modest? Or do all guys like for their girls to dress this way?

MODEST

DEAR MODEST: All guys are not eager for their girlfriends to put on a skin exhibition. It's your body, and if you're uncomfortable in such get-ups, don't wear them for him or anybody else.

DEAR ABBY: No problem—I just thought you might enjoy a note our young daughter slipped under our bedroom door. It read:

DEAR ABBY: I have this real problem that only you can help me with. See, it's my parents. After 28 years of marriage, they still love each other! (Abnormal.) They still hold hands in public! (Disgusting.) They keep on telling me that they love me! (Humiliating.)

Do you think they should be committed for this? Say, to the Smithsonian Institution?

Signed,

Fall Bazaar Is Saturday

BETHEL — The annual fall bazaar, sponsored by the United Methodist Women of the Bethel United Methodist Church, has been scheduled for Saturday.

The bazaar will be held in the Bethel Rotary House from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will feature various baked good, gift items and a white elephant table. A light luncheon will be available including sandwiches, cake, coffee and soft drinks.

Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst and Mrs. Walter C. Latham are serving as chairmen of the bazaar. Mrs. W. J. Smith is president of the United Methodist Women.

Proceeds from the event will be used for various church projects.

The public is invited to attend.

SOLVE PUZZLES

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (UPI) — A new research facility here is designed to solve nutrition puzzles.

The USDA Human Nutrition Laboratory, an eight-bed metabolic unit, resembles a small hospital ward. It will enable scientists of the USDA Agricultural Research Service to study the way in which some nutrients in a person's diet influence requirements for other nutrients.

The subjects of the study will be live-in, healthy volunteers participating in carefully controlled studies, including physiologic influences on nutrient requirements. The studies will complement cooperative and collaborative research with hospitals and universities throughout the United States.

Arts Festival Set For Feb. 18

The Arts Department of the Greenville woman's Club will sponsor a local Arts Festival at the club building Feb. 18.

The festival is a part of the arts program of the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

Winners from the local level will compete on the district level in Greenville March 5 and winners from the district are then eligible to compete on the state level in Winston-Salem March 26.

Teachers and students of city and county high schools are reminded of the opportunities for the best of talent in the following areas: Creative Arts; Performing Arts; and Visual Arts.

Creative Arts includes: Crafts Contest: ceramics; metal craft; textiles; stitchery; wood craft; dye craft; paper craft; leather craft; jewelry; or combination craft.

Literature Contest: all entries submitted must be original and completed since the last Arts Festival. Each manuscript must have a title and must be signed by a nom de plume. The contest is open to grades seven to nine and grades 10-12.

Category A—One act skit play or newspaper article or short story not exceeding 5,000 words. Category B—Lyric poem of 28 lines or less or sonnet.

Performing Arts includes: Drama Contest: high school juniors and seniors may enter. Participants must observe time limits—minimum time, three minutes and maximum time, eight minutes. There is no established subject. Any original or published monologue, poem or dramatic poem will be acceptable.

Music Contest: open to seniors from N. C. high schools. Competition on the local level will be no later than Feb. 19. The contestant must perform a classical or semi-classical composition of his own choice not to exceed five minutes in performance time. Contestants in the vocal and piano division must perform from memory. Instrumentalists will not be required to perform from memory. Three copies of the composition must be brought for use by the judges. There are five categories in music, girl vocal, boy vocal, piano, strings or other orchestral instrument.

Public Speaking Contest: High school juniors and seniors are invited to enter. Participants must observe time limits, minimum time, five minutes, maximum time, eight minutes. Speeches must be on one of the following subjects listed for

1977: "The Next Hundred Years;" "Strive to Touch and Know;" "Reduction in Crime;" "Trying to Accomplish Something—Not merely to Exist;" and "Woman's Lib—What and Why?"

Visual Arts Contest: The art contest is open to students in seven through 12 grades. All entries must be original and not previously entered in a federated festival. Entries will be judged by grade level only and not by media. Any media and theme may be used in paintings. Maximum size of 30 inches by 40 inches unframed. Simple frames should be used for oil acrylic paintings. Mats should be used on other media. Pastels should be sprayed with a fixative.

Categories: Grades seven, eight and nine, paintings; grades 10 and 11, paintings; high school seniors, Class A, paintings; Class B, sculpture, (media may be plastic, clay, wire or stone no not over 50 pounds. Artist should supply the display case).

Final instructions will be announced at a later date. For further information contact Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, Arts, Department chairman, 756-0216.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The other day out of a clear, blue sky Bruce asked, "Are we rich?"

I paused on my knees as I retrieved a dime from the sweeper bag, blew the dust off, and asked, "Not so you can notice. Why?"

"How can you tell?" he asked. I straightened up and thought a bit. Being rich is a relative sort of thing. Here's how I can always tell:

"You're rich when you buy your gas at the same service station all the time so your glasses match."

"You're rich when you can have eight people to dinner and don't have to wash forks between the main course and dessert."

"You're rich when you buy clothes for your kids that are two sizes too big for the one you buy 'em for and four sizes too big for the one that comes after him."

"You're rich when you own a boat—without oars."

"You can tell people have money when they record a check and don't have to subtract it right away."

"People have money when they sit around and joke with the cashier while she's calling in their charge to see if it's still open.

"You're rich when you write notes to the teacher on paper without lines."

"You're rich when your television set has all the knobs on it."

"You're rich when you can throw away a pair of pantyhose just because it has a large hole in it."

"You know people are loaded when they don't have to save rubber bands from the celery and store them on a doorknob."

"You're rich when you can have a home wedding without 'Haven Funeral Home' stamped on the folding chairs."

"You're rich when the Scouts have a paper drive and you have a stack of New York Times in your basement."

"You're rich when your dog is wet and smells good."

"You're rich when your hair looks so great everyone thinks it's a wig."

Bruce sat quietly for a moment, then said, "I think my friend, Ronny, is rich."

"How can you tell?" I asked.

"His mom buys his birthday cake at a bakery and it isn't even cracked on top."

"He's rich, all right," I sighed.

ADK District Workshop Held Saturday

The Alpha Nu and Alpha Iota Chapters of Alpha Delta Kappa International honorary sorority for women educators, hosted the ADK District V workshop at the Greenville Moose Lodge Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

All 10 chapters in District V were represented and the attendance was 103.

Mrs. Ann Byrd, ADK District V vice president, and Alpha Nu Chapter member, welcomed the sisters of ADK. Mrs. Lois Haddock, Alpha Nu Chapter member, was in charge of the devotion on "Influence."

Mrs. Byrd called on each chapter to make a presentation on topics of interest to ADK members. The presentations and chapters responsible for were: Alpha Delta Kappa Pin Etiquette — Nu Chapter (Kinston); Scholarships — Alpha Gamma (Goldsboro); Altruisms — Alpha Iota (Greenville); the Greek Alphabet — Alpha Nu (Pitt County); Communications — Alpha Chi (Carteret County); Privileged Membership — Beta Alpha (Havelock); Ways and Means — Beta Gamma (New Bern); Makeup and Function of State Executive Board — Gamma Gamma (Goldsboro); and Protocol — Gamma Iota (Elizabeth City).

A buffet luncheon was served at noon.

Mrs. Byrd recognized Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, state ADK chaplain and Alpha Iota Chapter member, to introduce the guest speaker, Mrs. Mary Worth Ferguson, who is vice president of North Carolina ADK and chairman of the Chapter Presidents' Council of the State. Mrs. Ferguson extended greetings from the state officers and her address stressed that success is measured by what we give — not what we get. As a token of District V's esteem for Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Byrd presented her a gift that was handcrafted by Mrs. Norma Gray, Alpha Iota Chapter member.

Mrs. Myrtle Pritchard, leader, and Mrs. Ann Benton, accompanist, of the Gamma Iota Chapter conducted a sing-a-long. Other areas of participation were: name tags provided by Beta Theta Chapter; registration was headed by Mrs. Faye Dempsey, District V secretary and assisted by the Alpha Nu and Beta Theta Chapters; refreshments served during the coffee hour were provided by Alpha Nu and Alpha Iota Chapters.

Mrs. Byrd reminded members of the State ADK Convention April 29-30 at the Holiday Inn, Greensboro and the International ADK Convention July 24-28 in Chicago, Ill.

The members voted to hold ADK workshops each year. Mrs. Byrd thanked the members for participating and adjourned the meeting.

Fitting Honor To Gene West

A plaque dedicating Greenville's outstanding downtown mall to former mayor Eugene West was unveiled today.

The dedication recognized West's work, over a period of several years to make the mall and other downtown improvements possible.

The mall occupies the former street right-of-way for Evans Street from Fifth to Third Streets. The mall includes gate ways at the Fifth, Fourth and Third Street entrances. It is paved with brick and includes planters and other beautification.

It was controversial in nature when it was first suggested, and it was difficult to obtain the necessary federal funds for financing the mall.

West worked tirelessly on the planning and the carrying-out of the construction.

The wisdom of it all is evident to us now. There are no longer any empty buildings in the two-block area and most of the buildings have been remodeled.

Accompanying the mall planning, the alleys behind the buildings were improved and developed as pedestrian walkways. More off-street parking was obtained.

Former Mayor Gene West deserves a large part of the credit for the improved downtown area of our city. We think the dedication of the mall to him is a fitting honor.

Recognition Is Due To A Lot Of Effort

Grifton has again been named winner of the Community Award and the Beautification Award in the ten-county Coastal Plain Development Association annual competition.

In addition Simpson in Pitt County received a first place and honorable mention in the competition and there were several winners in Martin County.

A lot of effort by the people of these communities went into this recognition. They are to be congratulated.

Screening Project Slowed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The early "crash program" atmosphere of North Carolina's early childhood screening system has been replaced with a deliberate slowdown from the top.

Right now somewhere between 6,000 and 7,000 pre-kindergarten youngsters are involved in pre-school screening on a shakedown basis. About 20 of the state's 100 counties have so far gotten started on the screening program.

In full gear, the effort is supposed to provide thorough testing of the state's 80,000-plus four-year-olds before they enter kindergarten. The object: to pinpoint physical, emotional, mental problems which may hinder the educational process; correct them.

Many Kinks

But the one-year shakedown effort has unveiled a host of problems—some anticipated, some not.

—Pediatricians have largely developed a negative attitude because the screening doesn't provide what they consider sufficient attention to medical problems.

—Kindergarten teachers to a degree have rejected the system as encroaching on their domains and rights to make their own judgments about their pupils.

—Not enough follow-up evaluation service is available when the screening system spots a child with a suspected problem. Developmental Evaluation Clinics to do a thorough workup, and systems for correcting problems have been slow getting into gear.

—Cost is outstripping early estimates of $60 per child for screening, alone (additional for the next testing step to affirm the condition; even more for corrective steps).

—Local officials are still struggling with some method of pulling together the people in charge of the different bureaucratic turfs necessarily involved in such as approach—mental health and health department people, social services agents, school personnel.

—Top-level state officials are still trying to work out the intricacies of cooperative efforts by "competing" agencies in the Department of Public Instruction, Department of Human Resources, and involving private physicians, day care centers, kindergarten teachers.

Slow It Down

"Let's slow it down and do it properly, phasing it in over a three- or four-year period, providing sufficient funds are available," says Don Taylor, head of the Office for Children in the Department of Human Resources.

Taylor, along with James Jenkins of early childhood education in Public Instruction, and Ted Drain, head of special education at Public Instruction, is primarily responsible for getting the program on target.

Efforts are now directed at ironing out the numerous kinks in an attempt to "set it up as to what is supposed to happen, a blueprint of what must happen, and who is responsible for that when a child is screened, and a system to see what did happen, to follow through with the problems," Taylor explains.

Cooperative arrangements and even contractual agreements are being hammered out to shore up weaknesses. The general feeling is that enough service agencies and treatment mechanisms already exist (publicly or privately), and when all the agencies begin working together properly, effectively, and efficiently, the system will work.

Taylor says public response is good, with parents voluntarily agreeing to take part in screening for their children, and not only agreeing, but insisting that the testing be done, results shared with appropriate agencies, and any needed followup provided.

JUDGE A MAN BY THE COMPANY HE CHOOSES!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Mr. Meany Has I.O.U.'s

Back in July, when Jimmy Carter won the Democratic nomination, it was said that politically he owed nobody anything. Now, in November, he is dodging a debtor's prison. He owes everybody something, and the IOU's are coming due.

The victor who wins by a landslide is home free. The fellow who squeaks into office cannot escape the creditors hammering at his door.

New York City gave Carter a margin of 675,000 votes—more than enough to swing New York's 41 electoral votes—and on the day after the election Mayor Beame was on the horn. "Jimmy," he was saying, "let's talk about those bond guarantees."

The President-elect will be hearing from the blacks, of course. Their massive support in the Southern and border States permitted Carter to rack up 134 electoral votes before his opponent even got started. In his first press conference after the election, Carter publicly acknowledged the debt. He will pay it off in part by minority appointments to high offices, in part by seeking legislation affecting jobs and welfare.

It may be possible to stall Hizzoner; after all, what is good for Abe Beame in Manhattan is good for Frank Rizzo in Philadelphia, and good for every other troubled Mayor as well. A program of Federal guarantees of municipal bonds would raise some profound constitutional questions. Satisfying the black creditor should cause no particular problems. But the President-elect will have his hands full in coping with a third collection agency: organized labor. The AFL-CIO's George Meany, chomping a big cigar, is waiting to be paid.

A recent analysis by Congressional quarterly indicates the magnitude of Carter's debt. A spokesman for labor's Committee on Political Education says modestly that "we put out our biggest effort ever." And the spokesman points not only to Carter's victory but also to the election of 19 Senators and 258 members of the House.

What would President Meany ask of President Carter? It is quite a list.

For starters, organized labor doubtless will remind the President of a specific pledge in the Democratic party platform: "We will seek repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act which allows States to legislate the anti-union open shop." Procedurally, such an act would require a bill only two sentences long—one sentence to nullify the State laws, another sentence to fix an effective date. The right-to-work laws, in Meany's view, have been as painful as a toothache. He will demand that Carter pay up promptly on this obligation.

The party platform makes another pledge: "We will support the full right of construction workers to picket a job site peacefully." This refers to the bill that was known in dog Latin as the "common situs picketing bill." Both houses of Congress approved the bill a year ago, only to have it vetoed by President Ford in January. Meany will have a handy-dandy copy in his pocket when he makes his social call.

There is much more. Carter is committed to a party platform that says: "We support the right of public employees and agricultural workers to organize and bargain collectively." The platform promises "to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act to speed up redress of grievances of workers asserting their legal rights." The platform promises an increased minimum wage, a comprehensive mine safety law.

Learn Lesson In Flak

By BRIAN B. KING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal safety agency that is drawing up an outhouse regulation has learned a lesson from the uproar over what irate farmers called "the privy on every prairie" rule, an official says.

The experience for the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) appears to have been as sobering as one of those fabled "trips out back" on a frosty morning.

"I'm sure that OSHA learned a lot" from the flap, said Maynard Dolloff, OSHA's special adviser for agricultural affairs.

The furor, which erupted last June, resulted in a congressional curb on OSHA's authority and an awareness within the agency of what is needed to restore its credibility, he said.

OSHA also drew flak for its farm safety booklets — said to be aimed at barely literate laborers — advising, among other things, that wet manure is slippery and that farmers should "speak softly to cows."

OSHA originally planned to require field toilets and drinking facilities within five minutes' reach of any farmworker. Farmers from around the country ridiculed the proposal as costly and impractical. They said nature's call could best be met in more informal ways or by driving to toilet accommodations.

The privy rule is still being considered, but Dolloff said it probably will apply only to such farms as fruit-growing operations and large truck farms, which frequently hire large

40 Years Ago Today

November 18, 1936

Wearry thousands streamed out of Madrid's packed subway stations after a night of terror today to view the blackened skeleton of bloodshed and great shell and bomb-craters in the heart of the capital.

A nightmare of bombardment and great fires which found white-faced Madrid packed four deep in the underground city took many lives and caused incalculable property damage, gave way to bright sunshine and a lull in the battle for the Spanish capital.

There was an early morning air raid but the big guns of fascist invaders limited themselves to occasional shots along the southern and western front.

Italy and Germany, the world's great fascist powers, formally recognized Dictator Designate Francisco Franco's regime in Spain today.

The joint action came on the Italian "Day of Ignominy and Iniquity," the first anniversary of the day on which most of Europe's powers — not including Germany — resorted to League of Nations' sanctions in a futile effort to stop Italy's conquest in Ethiopia.

It followed by less than a month an Italo-German agreement under which the two countries, both accused by the Spanish and Russian governments of aiding the Spanish insurgents with men and arms, agreed to work together on the major problems of Europe.

PROMOTION OF HISTORY

N.C. Groups Recognized

By Dr. H. G. JONES

Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Four North Carolina organizations will receive recognition from the American Association for State and Local History for meritorious service in the promotion of history.

The certificates of commendation, voted at the 1976 annual meeting of the AASLH in Albany, New York, will be presented on Dec. 3 in Raleigh during the annual meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association to the following:

—The Raleigh Fine Arts Society for contributions to state and local history through the publication of an exceptionally attractive booklet titled "Raleigh: A Guide to North Carolina's Capital." Alexa Carroll Williams was editor of the booklet, and Ann Vallentyne Walker was chairman and Ann Brower Turner was president of the organization during the publication of the 100-page illustrated work.

—History Seekers Tar Heel

Junior Historian Club, Albemarle Junior High School, for devoting over ten thousand hours to historical restoration and preservation projects, for voluminous research to support these projects, and for services to community education. Among the projects was the restored Snuggles House in which the club prepared a room for permanent junior historian exhibits. James W. Yandle is advisor to the club.

—The Skewarians Junior Historian Club, Bear Grass School, Williamston, for researching, writing, and producing a motion picture, "The Other Side of the River," which depicted the Tuscarora Indians that once inhabited the area. Mrs. Elizabeth Roberson, the advisor, and members of the club later visited the present-day Tuscaroras in upstate New York.

—Union Pines Museum Project Class, Cameron, for an ongoing program that has created a community resource of documented historical data. Dr. Barlett Chappell is advisor to the class.

The four certificates of commendation are among 49 given throughout the nation this year. Certificates are awarded "for superiority within the context of available means and regional standards," but the competition is keen.

Nominations proceed from the state chairman through a regional chairman and finally to the national awards committee which meets annually.

It is appropriate for North Carolina to continue to receive recognition from the American Association for State and Local History, for the organization has had close ties with the state.

Dr. Christopher Crittenden, longtime director of the State Department of Archives and History, was chairman of the committee which recommended formation of the group in 1940, and he was the association's first president.

Other Tar Heels have played leading roles in the organization over the years, including W. S. Tarlton of Raleigh and H. G. Jones of Chapel Hill, who served as members of the council and as state awards chairmen. In 1948 and again in 1963, the association held its annual convention in Raleigh, each time jointly meeting with the Society of American Archivists which also has had a Tar Heel flavor. Four North Carolinians—R. D. W. Connor, Albert Ray Newsome, Crittenden, and Jones—served as president of that society.

The fact that North Carolina this year earned approximately 12 per cent of the certificates awarded in the country indicates that interest in the study and preservation of local history continues at a high level despite disturbing trends toward deemphasis of history in the public schools.

Opinions In Brief

"You take all the experience and judgment of men over 50 out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it." — Henry Ford.

"What a terrible time people have trying to have a good time." — Ed Howe.

"Delays have dangerous ends." — William Shakespeare.

"A compliment is something like a kiss through a veil." — Victor Hugo

Strength For Today

WE CAN'T DO IT ALONE

Basic to all religious teaching is the conviction that if man is left to face evil with nothing more to rely upon but his own powers, it will surely overwhelm him.

This contention of course runs contrary to the philosophical position, very popular in modern times, that mankind is naturally good and can triumph over evil if only properly educated and conditioned.

But experience, if nothing else, has proved the falsity of this position. Without some help from a power higher than himself, man will be drawn aside from doing what is right by the enticement of things that appeal to his selfish nature.

Christianity calls upon every person to acknowledge himself a sinner and face the fact that he is unable alone to meet his sin and overcome it. He must therefore seek forgiveness and must promise obedience to the God who has forgiven him. And through this process alone will come the vital strength to overcome evil in the future.

Delivery Points Set Up For Carryover Tobacco

Delivery points have been designated by Stabilization Corporation to handle growers' carryover tobacco in the N.C. Eastern Belt, N.C. Middle Belt, and the Old Belt of N.C. and Virginia, according to Fred G. Bond, general manager. Carryover tobacco is tobacco in excess of 110 per cent of the 1976 quota.

The following delivery points will be open for scheduling and receiving tobacco from November 29 through December 28: Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company, Bethel Highway, Greenville, telephone 752-0425; Tobacco Growers Services Inc., Fuquay-Varina, telephone 552-0425; and Commonwealth Tobacco Company, Green Priory, one mile North of Kenbridge on Victoria Highway, Kenbridge, Va., telephone 676-0351.

The following are points for producers who plan to deliver tobacco: (1) Obtain a Marketing Card from the County ASCS Office prior to delivery. (2) Schedule the delivery by telephoning Stabilization's representative at any of the designated points, beginning Monday, November 29, between the hours of 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. (3) The tobacco should be delivered in standard tobacco sheets. At the time of delivery, sheets will be exchanged. (4) Only that tobacco which is graded into Official USDA Standard Grades will be accepted. (5) All participating producers must be members of Stabilization.

There will be an Official Government Tobacco Inspector to grade the tobacco. A receipt will be given to each producer listing the weight and grade of each sheet of tobacco delivered. Also, the producer will be asked to sign an agreement making Stabilization Agent for the producer for the handling, servicing, and sale of such tobacco.

The tobacco will be received, processed, and redried in the usual manner and offered for sale as soon as possible after July 1, 1977. That tobacco which does not sell for a satisfactory price will be tendered to Commodity Credit Corporation for loan under the 1977 program.

Proceeds from sales or loans advanced, less expenses incurred (storage, fumigation, insurance—anticipated not to exceed $.01 per pound) during the carryover period, will be distributed to participating growers after July 1, 1977.

Special Singing On Saturday

BETHEL — A special singing will be held at the Bethel Church of God Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The singers will be the Christian Ayes. The program was announced by the Rev. Ernest Bateman.

The public is invited to attend.

'Buried Alive' 90 Minutes

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew

I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin last Friday when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway from backing under the bin while somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

"I knew I was going to die," Durham said. "I struggled, I yelled, but nobody heard me. Then I realized I had better save my energy."

Durham said he was nearly trampled and suffocated when the truck stopped at a weigh station. "I could feel somebody walking right on top of me there, but no one heard me yelling," he said.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free.

He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"I'm not religious, but I have second thoughts now," he said. "I know God had something to do with me making it."

How's The Weather?

FORECAST Until Friday

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is due today from the Midwest to the Atlantic Coast. Mild weather is expected in the Southeast and most of the West. Rain is forecast in the Northwest and Texas-Oklahoma. Showers are expected in the New Mexico-Oklahoma border area with snow flurries for the Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press North Carolina will enjoy perfect weather for outdoor activities though the weekend.

It was 10 degrees warmer today than Wednesday. The sun shone brightly as high pressure from Texas pokes into the mid-Atlantic states.

It also was breezy. But the west to northwest winds helped drive the mercury up into the 60s for most of the state. The range was from some upper 50s in the mountains to the upper 60s in the southeastern portion.

Skies will continue fair tonight. Lows will dip into the 20s in the mountains to around 40 on the coast. A cold front, which is in the Northern Plains this morning, will be approaching western North Carolina Friday night. But winds will be from the southwest Friday ahead of the frontal system. So North Carolina will continue to enjoy pleasant temperatures. Highs will be in the 60s and low 70s.

Skies will be sunny again Friday.

day because of the lack of significant moisture in the area.

The cold front should pass through the state Friday night and Saturday. Partly cloudy skies are expected through the weekend and temperatures will be a bit cooler. Highs will be in the 50s in the west and in the 60s in the east.

A low-pressure wave is expected to develop on the front in the Gulf of Mexico. This may cause some rain late Sunday and early Monday along the coast.

Temperatures were cool under high cloudiness Wednesday. Lows ranged from a 24 at Laurel Springs to 46 at Cape Hatteras.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

Mr. Herbert Gilbert, the executive editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religion, philosophy, etc.

He will be in Greenville in early January. If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately and describe your work. State whether you would prefer a morning, afternoon, or evening appointment, and kindly mention your phone number. You will receive a confirmation by mail for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress.

To be sure, some of the Senators and Congressmen that Big Labor thinks it has bought and paid for may prove a disappointment.

Repeal of the right-to-work laws, which seems a simple matter, could turn out to be tough. But other aims could be achieved by executive order, or by presidential guidelines to the regulatory agencies. When it comes to the machinery of federal power, Meany is a master mechanic. numbers of migrant workers.

Assistant Labor Secretary Morton Corn soon will hold hearings in farm communities on the proposal.

"He's going to try to get some sense in that thing," said Dolloff, a former Maine agricultural commissioner brought to OSHA 11 months ago by Corn. "Anyone with any common sense should have known it was never meant to apply to the prairies. But it's true it wasn't clearly worded."

A Skubitz-sponsored amendment that became law last month prohibits OSHA from inspecting farms with less than 10 workers and exempts those farms from other OSHA rules about agriculture.

Quick Decision Made On Televising Game

East Carolina University was offered a "take it or leave it" situation concerning the telecasting of the Appalachian State University football game next week.

"We worked hard to get the game on television," Athletic Director Bill Cain. "For some time, we had Pirate Club members and other fans telling us they hoped we would be able to get the game on television, and now some of them are angry because of the switch in dates."

Cain related that the American Broadcasting Co., which televises NCAA football, was anxious to broadcast the game, but wanted a Thursday night game on Thanksgiving. They offered this time slot to East Carolina.

"Of course, we would have rather played it when it was scheduled, but this is when ABC wanted to broadcast it. They gave us a very short time, a matter of a half-hour or so, to decide. And it appeared to be a question of this time or nothing. If we had turned them down, it probably would have meant that the conference would not have had a game next year on television," Cain added that under present rules, ABC is required to "offer" a conference two appearances every three years. "Since both ASU and us were to appear in the game, it was this or nothing."

Cain also pointed out that the NCAA had other teams waiting if East Carolina refused.

"It means not only the exposure, but a good deal of money too," Cain said. Under present agreements with the NCAA and ABC, the NCAA receives a share of the money, along with the Southern Conference. Each of the six schools eligible for the title will also receive a share, as will former conference member Richmond. East Carolina and Appalachian will each receive double shares since they are the participants. "Richmond had an agreement with the conference to share any television money this year, and we have a similar agreement for next year," Cain said.

The amount of money East Carolina will receive was not made public, but estimates have been made of between $30,000 and $70,000.

"Playing the game at night also justifies our expense in putting in the lights. They make color television broadcasting at night possible. This is another reason ABC chose us for this game, since we are one of the few schools in this area with the capability," Cain added that there were other games in the area that ABC had considered, but they were discarded because of the lack of proper lighting.

"Moving a game is not unprecedented either. A number of schools such as Notre Dame, Southern California, Pittsburgh, Temple, and Penn State, have moved games in recent years because of television. We recognize that this causes some problems for some of our fans, but we hope that they will continue to support the school. All of us will have to change some of our plans, too, and we are grateful to those fans who will continue their support regardless of the situation."

The contest, which will decide the Southern Conference championship, was originally scheduled for this Saturday at 7 p.m., but will be played instead on Thanksgiving at 8:30 p.m.

Niland: Easy To Fix Game

By KRISTEN GOFF
Associated Press Writer
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles' offensive guard John Niland testified in a federal court suit that he believes it would be relatively easy to fix a National Football League game.

The 32-year-old Niland told the U.S. District Court Wednesday that he personally did not know of any attempts to fix any NFL games, but predicted mounting pressures on game officials and players by gambling interests if legalized sports betting were added to illegal operations.

His testimony came on the third day of an NFL suit to halt Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery which offers the first state-operated sports betting in the nation.

Niland was among a parade of witnesses the NFL has produced who predicted that Delaware's sports game and others that might follow would compound and aggravate problems caused by illegal sports betting. William Sullivan, president of the New England Patriots, told the court that he probably would sell his franchise immediately if gamblers filled his Foxboro, Mass., stadium.

Sullivan testified that his security people indicated angry gamblers may have played a part in a serious post-game disturbance Oct. 18, when the Patriots beat the New York Jets 41-7.

Sullivan and Niland were part of a star-studded group of witnesses, which earlier included NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who has predicted dire consequences for pro sports if games like Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery become widespread.

Although Nevada offers legal sports betting, Rozelle told the court, earlier this week, it doesn't pose the same threat as Delaware's games.

The Nevada betting is privately run but state-licensed. Montana also offers a less direct type of privately-run sports-related gambling.

NFL attorneys spent several hours questioning Peter Simmons, the Delaware lottery director, in an apparent effort to substantiate their charges that the lottery game violates NFL property and trademark rights as well as state and federal laws.

Jaguars Hosting White Oak

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Farmville Central's Jaguars, after accomplishing an unprecedented Eastern Carolina Conference win in the state 3-A playoffs last week, look now to the second round of the playoffs and this week's foe, White Oak of Jacksonville.

The Jaguars made it to the second round on the basis of a 21-6 victory over Williamston last week, the first for any ECC team in the league's six-year existence. The win was also a satisfying one for Farmville because it avenged one of the Jaguars' two losses this year.

Coach Gene Brewer said, "I thought the defense did an exceptional job" in the Williamston game. "The offense was sporadic, but they played well enough to score enough points to win."

Williamston's defense was the main contributor to Farmville's offensive problems. "They (Williamston) did a good job defensively in taking certain things away from us and we had some problems adjusting and doing other things," according to Brewer.

One bright spot in the offense was running back Keno Farrow, who rushed for 130 yards in the game, Brewer said. In addition, both the offensive guards and center played well, as well as the two receivers.

The whole defensive team played a good game, Brewer said, and he commended the entire unit.

This week, the Jaguars must get ready for White Oak, a team noted for its tough defensive unit.

TED DUNN

"White Oak has got a big, strong football team," Brewer said. "They play real tough defense — I believe they only gave up four touchdowns during the regular season."

Brewer said the Vikings are

similar to Williamston except "they are a lot bigger." Fullback Chuckie Canady and running back Melvin Meadows lead the offensive attack, according to Brewer and White Oak has "a good, balanced backfield," as well as two good receivers.

Although the Vikings who operate out of the wishbone formation, have not thrown the ball extensively this year, "they have a real good passing attack when they do throw the ball," Brewer said.

The Jaguars don't plan any changes for the ball game. They will be starting "basically the same that started against Williamston," according to Brewer.

The Williamston game really didn't help boost the team's confidence, Brewer said, adding, "Confidence has been one thing we haven't lacked this year. Our kids have felt like they could play with anybody." This week's game against White Oak will be played in Farmville, but Brewer is not claiming any home field advantage.

"I can't say the home field really gives you an advantage. All the teams in the playoffs are good ballclubs, especially those in the second round."

"It's going to come down to being prepared for the other team and being mentally ready to play."

Farrow Looks Toward Further Advancement

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Being in the state high school football playoffs is nothing new for Farmville Central running back Keno Farrow. Although this is his first year with the Vikings, Farrow has been in playoffs for the last two years with 2-A school Hallsboro of Whiteville.

Farrow moved back to Farmville during the middle of last year and hopes this year's Jaguar team can be more successful in the playoffs than those at Hallsboro. The Hallsboro teams never got farther than the second round.

Farrow, the leading rusher for Farmville, said, "I think we have a real good team. I feel that a lot of improvements have been made and we have worked exceptionally hard."

He doesn't give all the credit to the team, however. "A lot of it, I feel, comes from the coaching staff and what they've put into it."

The Jaguars' win over Williamston in the first round of the playoffs last week boosted the team's morale, Farrow said. "Getting revenge meant a lot to making an amazing catch for a beat team."

Farrow has "a lot of ability," according to his coach, Gene Brewer. "Keno is blessed with good speed and good quickness and he doesn't shy away from contact."

The Williamston game last week was probably Farrow's best game Brewer said. The 6-1, 185-pound senior rushed for 130 yards during the game as well as that, they are about the 63-yard touchdown. He scored two other TD's on the ground.

During the regular season, Farrow rushed for 1013 yards in 118 carries, an 8.6 yard average. His 22 touchdowns tied Eastern Carolina Conference record and he was fourth in the conference in receiving with 18 receptions for 254 yards and eight touchdowns.

The move from another school didn't really pose a problem for Farrow. Other than adjusting to a new offense, there was nothing to it. "I feel I can play for anybody," he said.

The teams he played on at Hallsboro had a stronger passing game than Farmville, according to Farrow, but "other us, but we always knew we could beat them."

Farrow also plays guard on the Farmville Central basketball team, but doesn't really like one sport more than the other. "I just love sports. It's hard to decide which one you like better."

As for future plans, Farrow said, "I would like to go to college to continue my studies and play some football." He said he has been in contact with some colleges, but declined to mention any names.

In his spare time, Farrow likes to run, watch television, read and draw. His biggest thrill in sports is getting to the playoffs this year.

As for this week's playoff game with White Oak, Farrow said, "I'm sure they have a pretty good ballclub or they wouldn't be here—but I feel we're a lot quicker. "They're just another ballclub. We've got to give 110 per cent if we want to win."

Wrestlers In N.C. Tourney

This weekend, the East Carolina University wrestling team will participate in the North Carolina Invitational Tournament at Chapel Hill.

Eight teams will be competing in the tournament, which used to be the North Carolina Collegiate Tournament. The team involved are: East Carolina, UNC-CH, N.C. State, Duke, Appalachian, Pembroke, University of Virginia and Alabama.

ECU wrestling coach John Welborn sees the tournament as a good chance for his young wrestlers to gain experience.

"We dominated the tournament until last year," he said, "but we've been hurt by graduation and injuries in the last couple of years, and so our strength has been diminished. This year, UNC, State and Virginia will all be tough, and Alabama probably will be too."

The format this year is going to be different from some times in the past, as there will be no team scores kept. Still, Welborn hopes for a good showing from the Pirates. "I think we'll do well," he said, "but I don't know just how well because we've got some people injured at 118 and we're not bringing a heavyweight, so only time will tell."

Leading the Pirates this year will be Paul Osman, who is captain of the squad, and wrestles at 126 and 134. He is coming off an injury, though, and is slowly rounding into shape. Phil Mueller, who was a champion in this tournament last year, is back. He also took a championship in the Southern Conference Tournament and made a trip to the NCAA nationals.

Welborn feels that he has two major problems to solve in order for ECU to have a successful wrestling season.

"First of all," he said, "we face our toughest schedule in recent years. We have Lehigh who finished fifth nationally, plus schools like UNC and N.C. State and Wilkes College. Then," he added, "we have the most inexperienced team I can remember having in my years at East Carolina. Our kids are working hard, though, and I hope they will improve as the season goes on so we'll be ready by the Southern Conference Tournament."

New Pact Raising Player Salaries

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Bill Campbell is the best example of how the free enterprise system can play ball with American sports.

The Minnesota Twins offered Campbell $22,000 for the 1976 season. Campbell, having a somewhat higher opinion of himself, asked the Twins for $30,000.

Neither side would budge, so Campbell played the 1976 season without a signed contract. Campbell, 28, had a marvelous season, compiling a 17-5 record with 20 saves and a 3.01 earned run average.

At some point during the 1976 season, Calvin Griffith, owner of the Twins, decided Campbell was worth an $8,000 raise. But by then it was too late, and Campbell went on to join the first batch of baseball free agents. Campbell was going to find out how much he was really worth.

At least one team, the Boston Red Sox, thought the right-handed reliever was worth 10 times as much. It didn't take long for Campbell, the same Bill Campbell who would have settled for $30,000 earlier in the year, to sign on the dotted line.

"I'm very, very happy," said Campbell earlier this month after he signed a four-year contract with the Red Sox. Reports value the package at between $600,000 and $1 million.

"Now I'm financially secure and won't have to be concerned with contracts for a long while," Campbell said.

Free at last, the American athlete generally is being given the same option as his fellow laborer on the assembly line. If he doesn't like his job, he can look elsewhere.

"When I came here in 1966," says Marvin Miller, executive director of baseball's players association, "there really was no salary negotiation. When you came right down to it, the player either accepted the owner's offer or he found a new way of making a living."

The modification of baseball's reserve system, which allowed Campbell and 23 others to appear on the open market Nov. 4 in the re-entry draft, has changed that one-sided relationship.

Because of an arbitrator's decision, baseball players not signing their 1976 contracts were free to sign with other clubs in 1977 and players not signing 1977 contracts will be free to sign with other clubs for the 1978 season.

Except for the category of players who don't sign 1977 contracts, a new labor contract between the union and the owners will determine the future free agency rules, permitting players to gain freedom after six years in the major leagues.

How will this new system affect salaries?

"I think the level of salaries will rise," says Miller. "The players will have increased bargaining power. That's one of the things we were fighting for."

The system worked to Bill Campbell's benefit; he's one of the stars of the game. But will it do as much for the lesser-quality players in baseball, or the other sports?

"I believe salaries will tend to level off somewhat," says Larry O'Brien, commissioner of the National Basketball Association. "More teams will be cautious when dealing with untried college draftees and will be more realistic in their offers to rookie players."

O'Brien, in his second year as NBA commissioner, engineered the league's landmark five-year labor contract earlier this year. The agreement calls for major modifications in the college draft, erases the option year for veterans and ends the policy of compensating the team that loses a free agent after 1981.

The National Hockey League is in the second year of five-year labor contract that provides for compensation to the club losing a free agent. If the two clubs can't reach agreement, the dispute then goes to binding arbitration.

In the case of baseball and basketball, there is no real barrier to a player's freedom. Hockey's compensation policy provides some restriction on player movement, while the Rozelle Rule in football has been deemed by the federal courts to be illegal for limiting player movement.

The National Football League and its players now are negotiating the question of player movement. Pete Rozelle, the league commissioner, says the future of salaries will hinge on that settlement.

"If there is a high degree of freedom, then the so-called superstars will probably benefit," he said. "But there will be problems there, too, because it may limit the amount of money the rank and file can get."

Miller says it's already apparent that baseball players other than superstars have benefited from the new system.

"There's been a large increase in multi-year contracts," he said. "I think there's a far more realistic salary level than before for players who aren't in the star category."

"I don't accept the position that if 'A' gets more, 'B' has to get less. A high top salary raises the whole salary structure. A higher top allows middle salaries to reach a higher level."

Julius Erving, probably the top gate attraction in basketball, makes $3 million over five years, one of the largest salaries in sports. Last month, the New York Nets, refusing to negotiate Erving's contract, sold him to Philadelphia for $3 million.

"There may be some leveling off of salaries because of the merger," says Erving, "but there's nothing unfair about that—as long as the owners don't try to take unfair advantage of the situation."

"I think the superstars will continue to receive superstar salaries. I've seen no evidence to the contrary."

And Erving thinks the owners, who might be forced to give up a larger share of the profits to the players, still will be doing well.

"The owners who say they lose money do so because they want to, for tax reasons or bookkeeping," Erving said. "And those are just paper losses. I don't see anyone going broke. The smart owners, the ones who know what they're doing, will go on making money."

But will they do so at the fans' expense?

The 76ers, who have Erving and McGinnis' $3.2 million on the payroll, raised ticket prices slightly this season.

"High ticket prices concern me. They concern me very much," said Pat Williams, vice president and general manager of the 76ers. "On the one hand, we have to charge enough so expenses can be met. But high ticket prices can mean a very expensive evening for the average family."

"I think it's a very dangerous situation."

Steve Bartkowski, the bright young quarterback of the Atlanta Falcons, speaks for many fans and sports officials when he voices his fear that sports will become "for rich people only."

"There's no way a guy can pack up the family and take 'em to the ballpark at $14 to $16 a ticket," he said. "My mom and dad couldn't have taken our family out to the game."

"That's basically what I reflect back on, what we're capable of doing when I was young. The owners have the inflation and player salaries, so they have to keep up with the times and put it back on the fans."

"This is a very negative thing for me because I'm a firm believer that football was invented number one to play and number two to be appreciated as a spectator sport."

"When things get out of proportion, it's time I think to examine the whole business very closely."

Female Fan Turns To Coaching Pee-Wee

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — Jane Robinson has been a football fan for as long as she can remember.

"I grew up with it," she says. "I have three brothers, and I was the only sister. If I wanted to play at all, I had to learn football, baseball and basketball. No one would play dolls with me."

Now at age 32, Jane Robinson has become the first and only woman football coach for the Rock Hill Recreation Department. She helps coach a boys' pee wee squad.

"I'm no women's libber," she says. "I just like to see kids participate in something so they're not just sitting home doing who knows what."

This year is Mrs. Robinson's second as coach for the pee wees, boys aged 6 to 10. She was asked to join the staff by coaches Jack Faile and James Parrish.

"She seemed to know a lot about football and she was here every game," says Faile.

Mrs. Robinson's 8-year-old, Brian, plays on the team she coaches, but she says there's no way her daughter, Kelly Lynn, will ever play on a boys' football team.

"She can play tennis or anything else, but not football," says Mrs. Robinson. "Girls just don't have the (physical) build to compete against boys in football."

But Kelly Lynn has about five years to work on her mom. She's 11 months old.

Notre Dame in the Gator Bowl will mark still another step by the Irish into the bowl picture. Seven years ago, Notre Dame relaxed its long-standing moratorium against Bowl participation, but made it clear the Irish would consider only the so-called majors—Cotton, Orange and Sugar. But with reports of dwindling financial reserves, Irish brass discreetly let it be known they would consider the next two bowls in the pecking order—Liberty and Gator, the paper said.

When the Liberty went for Alabama, the Gator Bowl moved in on Notre Dame. The Gator Bowl wanted to ensure the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner—if uninvited to the Orange Bowl—as Notre Dame's opponent. But Oklahoma balked at the offer, the paper said, opting for a win or lose offer from the Fiesta Bowl.

Guilford Grad Leads Pistons To Seventh Straight Victory

By The Associated Press
M.L. Carr, a second-year pro from Guilford College, scored a career-high 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, helping the Detroit Pistons to their seventh straight National Basketball Association victory, a 118-95 clubbing of Maravich's New Orleans Jazz Wednesday night.

In other NBA games, the Indiana Pacers surprised the Philadelphia 76ers 123-117, the Denver Nuggets routed the New York Nets 112-78, the Houston Rockets edged the Buffalo Braves 120-114 in overtime, the Boston Celtics beat the Atlanta Hawks 104-91, the Washington Bullets defeated the New York Knicks 111-97, the Phoenix Suns beat the Milwaukee Bucks 103-95 and the Seattle SuperSonics stopped the Cleveland Cavaliers 92-78.

Pacers 123, 76ers 117
Billy Knight scored 30 points and Wil Jones 20 as the Pacers snapped a six-game losing streak by stunning the 76ers in Philadelphia. Indiana scored 12 consecutive points in the first quarter and took a lead it never gave up.

Nuggets 112, Nets 78
Denver raised its record to 10-1, best in the NBA, by overrunning the Nets in a matchup of last year's ABA playoff finalists. The Nets, who finished with a .296 shooting percentage, trailed by just four points after one quarter but were outscored 32-16 in the second period, when they sank just three of 25 field goal attempts.

Rockets 120, Braves 114
Houston erased a 17-point second-quarter deficit, blew a six-point lead in the closing 2½ minutes of regulation play, then came on to outscore Buffalo 16-10 in overtime. Buffalo's Bob McAdoo led all scorers with 27 points, but his desperation, half-court basket at the buzzer was ruled too late.

Celtics 104, Hawks 91
Boston ran off 16 points in a row during the second period and went on to hand Atlanta its 27th consecutive loss on the road. Boston's Charlie Scott and John Havlicek and Atlanta rookie center Tom Barker each scored 20 points.

Bullets 111, Knicks 97
Phil Chenier scored 30 points and Len Robinson added 27 points and a career-high 20 rebounds as Washington coasted past the Knicks. Robinson and Elvin Hayes combined for 22 points in the third period as the Bullets broke the game open by outscoring New York 36-26.

Suns 103, Bucks 95
Paul Westphal, used sparingly because of a knee injury, scored 12 points in the fourth quarter as the Suns beat the Bucks. Dick Van Arsdale, who hit all seven of his field goal tries in the first half, topped Phoenix with 19 points and Westphal finished with 18.

Sonics 92, Cavaliers 78
Bruce Seals scored 21 points and Fred Brown added 16 as Seattle posted its 24th consecutive victory at home and snapped Cleveland's three-game winning streak. The Sonics led by 26 points midway through the final period.

Davidson Wants To Build Back To Its Old Days Of Cage Glory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Not counting the Southern Conference's new members, there is one new coach in the league this year, Davidson's Dave Pritchett.

And he faces quite a job. But one he believes is possible to achieve. A former assistant of Lefty Driesell at Maryland, Pritchett has assumed the role of bringing Davidson back to the glory it once enjoyed—under Driesell.

This year, however, has to be regarded as a transition year. Only five lettermen return to this year's team, and no one on the team tops 6-9, since 7-2 Tom Dore transferred out.

So Pritchett feels he will have a young, mostly inexperienced team, but at the same time, he expects to be nobody's doormat.

"It's going to be a season when we need a lot of commitment and when we need to play with a great deal of enthusiasm," the new coach said. "That's not just a cliché. It's true when there are only two seniors and one junior on scholarship."

Pritchett said that while it takes time to build, it does not take any time for players for make a commitment. "It's important for us to keep the players excited and positive."

The three upperclassmen will be counted only heavily for leadership. They include Marvin Lively and Jerry Stallworth, both seniors, and junior Kevin Doherty. Both Lively and Doherty played a lot last year, but Stallworth did not play enough to letter.

Most of the experience is in the sophomore class, where 6-5 John Gerdy returns as the leading scorer. He average 17.9 points a game last year. The other soph with good experience include 6-7 Pat Hickert and 6-0 Tom Jorgensen, all of whom started and lettered last season.

Pritchett, however, plans on everyone playing a lot. This includes three scholarship freshmen, 6-9 Tim Bowker, 6-7 Rod Owens and 6-1 Ernie Reigel.

Still, Gerdy is the lone player with proven ability. He was named to the All-Southern rookie team last year and is the only returning player to hit double figures last season.

"We're going to have people playing out of position for the good of the team. Lively and Hickert are examples of that. They will have to match up with players much bigger than they are." Both will see front court duty, with Hickert at center.

"Our forwards are short and so is Hickert for a center, but they will have to go inside and get rebounds. The guards will have to rebound, too. A lot depends on their commitment and enthusiasm."

Despite the height disadvantage, Pritchett plans to get the ball inside more. "We're going to play a different style. We want to get it inside more and move the ball more. I'm not saying I'm going to slow it down, but I will say that Gerdy probably won't score as much this year. We want other people to help."

Pritchett's goal, of course, is to return Davidson to the national program it had several years ago before Lefty moved on to Terrapin-land. "We need to get great players. We're not going to drop our academic standards, however. We just have to convince four or five great men with great grades to come to Davidson. Our administration wants a national program with class, and that is our goal: to return to the Top Ten."

It may be the goal, but with the lack of experience and the youth of this year's team, it is doubtful that the Wildcats will make it this year.

Maryland Shoots For Cotton Bowl Invite

By The Associated Press
Maryland reportedly will be in the Cotton Bowl if it ends its regular football season undefeated by beating Virginia on Saturday.

The Washington Post reports that the Cotton Bowl has unofficially tapped the Terps to play the Southwest Conference champion in Dallas on New Year's Day.

This would be Maryland's first major bowl appearance in 21 years. It lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day of 1956.

The Post said that Cotton Bowl commitment toward Maryland was strong but that sources warned nothing is definite until 6 p.m. Saturday, when bids bowl bids can be officially offered. Maryland athletic officials have said they would accept the first major bowl bid offered.

Another Atlantic Coast Conference team, North Carolina, also is a bowl prospect. Representatives of the Peach, Tangerine, Gator and Liberty bowls are expected to watch the Tar Heels, 8-2, meet Duke at home Saturday. North Carolina also is under consideration for the Sun Bowl.

Clemson will be the other ACC team in action Saturday, meeting South Carolina at home. Wake Forest and North Carolina State finished their seasons last Saturday.

Mike Voight of North Carolina has wrapped up his second straight ACC rushing title.

He also appears to have the scoring title.

The senior running back from Chesapeake, Va., has gained 1,146 yards this season, an average of 114.6 yards a game. His two closest challengers have finished their season. They are Ted Brown of N.C. State with 1,088 yards and James McDougald of Wake Forest with 1,018. Fourth with 635 yards is Art Gore of Duke.

Voight has 84 points on 14 touchdowns. Brown, the scoring leader a year ago, finished second with 78 points. McDougald closed out with 60. Third with 55 points on 12 field goals and 19 extra-point kicks is Tom Biddle of North Carolina. Mike Dunn of Duke has 54 points on eight touchdowns and six extra points.

Dunn has a 108-yard lead over another quarterback, Mark Manges of Maryland, in total offense. Dunn has 1,596 yards and Manges 1,488. Johnny Evans of N.C. State is third at 1,459, and Steve Fuller of Clemson is fourth at 1,274.

The passing championship will depend on this week's performances. Andy Hitt of Virginia leads with 8.4 completions a game, but Dunn is right behind at 8.3. Should both have a bad day, Make McGlamry of Wake Forest, who finished at 8.3, could come out on top.

Tom Hall of Duke appears to have receiving honors locked up with 41 catches, an average of 4.1 a game. Andy Young of Wake Forest is second with 36 catches for a 3.3 average. Jerry Butler is Clemson is third with 32 catches, an average of 3.2 a game.

Connors Advances

WEMBLEY, England (AP)—The champion of the $125,000 Wembley Tennis Tournament may have been determined today when top-seeded Jimmy Connors met Stan Smith in a quarter-final match between two of America's top players.

Both advanced easily Wednesday. Connors taking only an hour to beat another American, Marty Riessen, 6-3, 6-3 despite trailing 0-2 in the first set and 1-3 in the second. Smith ousted Pakistan's Haroon Rahim 6-1, 6-0.

Two other Americans advanced. Roscoe Tanner smashed 17 aces in 10 service games in eliminating Ove Bengtsson of Sweden 6-3, 6-4, and Brian Gottfried ousted Nikki Spear of Yugoslavia 6-3, 7-6.

Tanner's triumph moved him into eighth place in the Grand Prix standings—a vital position since the top eight players are automatic qualifiers for next month's Masters tournament at Houston.

Tanner's point total is 535, but Bjorn Borg of Sweden, who skipped this tournament, has two more chances to move back into the top eight.

Cowboys, 'Skins Enter Finals

The Cowboys and the Redskins advanced in their respective divisions of the Greenville Recreation Department's football playoffs yesterday.

The Cowboys downed the Eagles in the flag tournament and will meet the Steelers today at 3:15 p.m. for the title.

The Cowboys' Roderick Harrell scored first in the 18-13 victory, on a 28-yard run. In the second period, the Eagles came back to tie it up on a 30-yard punt return by Tony Clemmons. Lamont Duffy then scored the PAT for a 7-6 Eagle lead.

Harrell scored two third period touchdowns to put the Cowboys back into the lead. He scored on an eight-yard run and a 60-yard punt return for an 18-7 edge. Clemmons scored on a 35-yard punt return for the Eagles, but that ended the scoring.

Clemmons, with an interception, and Willie Jones, also with an interception, led the Eagle defense. Edward Frazier had two interceptions, and Harrell, one, to pace the Cowboys.

In the tackle game, the Redskins took a 16 to 10 win over the Jets. The 'Skins will now meet the Bills in Friday's finals.

Bary Smith put the Redskins into the lead in the first period with a six-yard pass reception. Alonza Taylor scored the PAT for an 8-0 lead that stood the rest of the half.

In the third period, the Jets moved into the lead with two scores. Stacy Mills made an endzone tackle to put the Jets on the board with a safety. Then, Tray Perkins scored on an 18-yard run, and added the PAT for a 10-8 lead.

In the final period, Christopher McLawhorn scored on a 40-yard pass reception and William Carney added the PAT for the winning 'Skin score.

Carney with an interception and a fumble recovery, led the Redskins defense, while Barry Smith also had an interception. Tracy Mills and Keith Frizzell each recovered fumbles for the Jets, while Frizzell picked off an interception.

Dorsett Wanted Orange Bowl Bid

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Tony Dorsett favored the Orange Bowl for the top-ranked University of Pittsburgh, but he will join the majority and Coach Johnny Majors at the Sugar Bowl.

"Majority rules," college football's rushing king said Wednesday night in the locker room where team members had huddled Tuesday night and voted on their bowl choice.

Starting players and all seniors on the traveling squad did the voting, and Majors confirmed Wednesday they had opted for the Sugar Bowl.

The bid will not officially be tendered until Saturday.

The Jan. 1 game in New Orleans will match Pitt against sixth-ranked Georgia, 9-1 and champion of the Southeast Conference.

The supposed advantage of the Sugar Bowl is that it will match Pitt with a higher ranked team, thus easing doubts about the Panthers' schedule.

RALEIGH (AP) — Five North Carolinians were given the state's highest honor Wednesday, the North Carolina Awards.

The awards and the gold medals were presented by Gov. Jim Holshouser during a black tie dinner in Raleigh. Cited for their contributions and achievements were: Romare Bearden, a New York painter who is a native of Charlotte and who received the award which can be given to a native living outside the state; Richard Walser of Raleigh who received the award for literature; Dr. Juanita M. Kreps of Durham, an economist honored for public service; Dr. C. Clark Cockerham, a Raleigh geneticist presented the science award; and Foster Fitz-Simons of Chapel Hill, a dancer who received the fine arts award.

Bearden has had his paintings exhibited in the Museum of Modern Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Corcoran Gallery and the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Walser, a professor emeritus of literature at North Carolina State University, has edited, written or prepared for publication about 25 books covering a wide range of subjects closely connected with the state.

Kreps is a James B. Duke professor of economics and vice president of Duke University. A prolific writer she has served as an advisor to federal agencies and is a member of the board of many corporations.

Cockerham, also on the NCSU faculty is regarded as an international authority in statistical genetics and in the application of quantitative concepts to plant and animal breeding.

Fitz-Simons was honored for his long service to the dramatic arts in North Carolina as an actor, director, teacher, dancer and choreographer.

'Pete' Thompson Takes Chairmanship In Drive

C. O. (Pete) Thompson of Greenville has been named Chairman of the Industrial Division of the local phase of the $2.5 million East Carolina University stadium expansion campaign.

Dr. Ray Minges, Greenville area campaign chairman, said "I am very pleased that Mr. Thompson has accepted this position so that we can actively begin the industrial drive. Industries' participation in the drive will have significant impact on its success."

Thompson is Employee Relations Manager for Eaton Corporation's Greenville plant, having moved here in 1974 from previous Eaton Corp. assignments in Tennessee and Kentucky. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee.

"This is a very important campaign which can significantly contribute to the continued economic development of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina," Thompson said.

Arrest Woman On Drug Count

Greenville Police yesterday arrested Linda Faye Tripp, 27 of 10 Quail Hollow Trailer Ct. on two counts of obtaining prescription drugs with forged script (prescription).

Chief Glenn Cannon said the woman allegedly telephoned Big Value Drugs on North Greene Street Tuesday saying she was calling for a local physician and giving a prescription for Darvon 65.

Cannon said Miss Tripp allegedly telephoned Nichols' pharmacy yesterday, using the same method and giving a prescription for more Darvon.

The chief said the woman was taken into custody at Nichols' when she went to pick up that prescription about 6 p.m.

Giving Lectures On West Coast

Dr. Lewis C. Forrest Jr. of the East Carolina University School of Home Economics is on the west coast this week, where he is scheduled to address gatherings in Seattle, San Francisco and San Diego.

Dr. Forrest will conduct seminars sponsored by the National Restaurant Association for restaurant managers and hotel and restaurant executives.

An associate professor in the ECU Dept. of Food, Nutrition and Institution Management, Forrest is also a partner in Hospitality Consulting Associates.

Earlier this year he conducted seminar programs in Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and Kansas City under the sponsorship of the National Restaurant Association.

said. "This additional revenue which the new stadium will generate will be felt by each of us."

Thompson added, "This area has an excellent industrial community, and I am confident that industry will support the campaign generously."

Sponsoring TV Show On Family

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will sponsor a special television show Saturday, November 20 at 7 p.m. on WRAL Channel 5.

The special entitled "The Family and Other Living Things" combines drama, music and humor to give a well rounded view of family life.

Investigate Assault By Gang At Marine Base

Hard Choices In Defense Funds

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press Writer
CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — A commando-style attack by up to 10 black Marines using screwdrivers and other weapons against seven white Marines at Camp Pendleton has prompted an investigation that could lead to courts-martial, a base official says.

A military magistrate was to decide, possibly today, whether to try four black Marines who were taken into custody after the clubbing and stabbing assault in a new motel-style barracks Saturday night, a base spokesman said.

All but one of the white Marines were injured in the incident, and three of them remain hospitalized in satisfactory condition at the base hospital.

Spokesman Lt. Charles Owen refused comment on anonymous telephone calls to local newspapers saying the targets of the attack were white power advocates. "The investigation has not been completed," he said.

But Owen confirmed that in addition to the black Marines already identified, three to five more were being sought for questioning.

Owen said a military magistrate now taking testimony would determine whether evidence shows there was a crime, whether there is reason to order courts-martial for the four

Evangelist To Lead Services

The Rev. Larry Poole of Charlotte will be the evangelist for services at the Grindle Creek Church of God.

The services will be conducted Friday through Sunday at 7 p.m. Special singing will be held nightly in addition to prayer for the sick.

J. B. Morris, pastor, invites the public to attend.

men in custody, and whether they should be released or held in the brig pending trial.

The military courts system does not provide for bail.

The incident apparently was the most serious racial outbreak at the base since 1970, when more than 30 black Marines stormed through a barracks occupied by men getting ready to ship out for Vietnam. It took several hours to restore order.

In April of the same year, military police used tear gas to quell interracial fighting at a base club and the barracks of a helicopter squadron.

That August, about a dozen men were injured when fighting broke out among black and white prisoners at the base correctional center.

Owen said problems at the base have declined in recent years.

"The Marine Corps has a good record in race relations," he said. "Whenever you mix 50,000 people together, there is going to be some friction."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steadily rising costs may force Congress to make "hard choices" in allocating defense funds between manpower and new weapons, a new study warns.

Although the report prepared by the General Accounting Office was directed to Congress, its conclusions carry significant implications for President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Among other things, the GAO report says there are limits to manpower cost reductions that can be achieved by improving efficiency in the use of defense personnel. "Larger reductions can only be achieved by policy changes affecting strength and pay levels," it said.

During his successful campaign for the presidency, Carter pledged to cut the defense budget by $5 billion to $7 billion, mainly by eliminating waste, improving efficiency, and changing some personnel policies.

Carter also called for a withdrawal of the 42,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea over a four-to-five-year period, but he did not advocate reducing the size of the Army.

He has said nothing about cutting the pay of the Defense Department's 2.1 million military personnel and one million civilian employees.

In the report sent to Congress after the Nov. 2 election, the GAO cautioned that "changing national military policies or lowering pay levels would be controversial and should not be undertaken without careful study."

GAO analysts noted that personnel costs have absorbed an increasing share of the Pentagon's resources since 1964 and now eat up well over half the defense budget.

"Meanwhile, costs of weapons have rapidly risen, causing serious concern that the country may not be able to afford enough of the weapons needed for its defense," the report said.

"If the budget is to be restrained, the Congress will be confronted with hard choices in allocating funds between manpower and weapons systems."

The report cited figures showing that payroll and other personnel costs account for about 53 per cent of the $99.6 billion projected for defense spending this year. A dozen years ago, personnel costs absorbed about 44 per cent of a defense budget that was half as big.

Old Documents Ruled Public Property

RALEIGH (AP) — In a decision that could affect countless collectors, the North Carolina Court of Appeals has ruled that two court documents bearing the signature of an historical figure are public property even though they had been purchased on an open market.

In a 2-1 decision handed down Wednesday, the court said the state of North Carolina properly owns two 1768 criminal indictments bearing the signature of William Hooper, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The indictments were part of the court record and therefore "property owned by the government...held in trust for the people..." the court ruled. Some time in the past, a court official had failed to remove his duty and maintain the records, the decision said.

"The intentional or negligent acts of the agents of the government should not serve to deny the people of the benefits and enjoyment of their property," Judge Robert Martin said in the majority opinion.

"The public is not to lose its rights through loss, theft or the unexplained removal of the public records from the custody of the court, nor because one of its citizens purchased the documents in good faith, because it was his duty, as much as that of every other citizen, to protect the state in its rights," he wrote.

An appeal to the state Supreme Court is expected.

The decision came on a suit by the state Department of Cultural Resources against B.C. West Jr. of Pasquotank County who purchased the indictments at a New York auction. The department learned of the papers when West offered them for sale.

The indictments were handwritten and, at the time, Hooper was attorney for the king. He was assigned to the Salisbury, N.C., district.

The New York auction house had purchased the documents from a resident of East Bend, N.C., who had bought one from a Greensboro museum and the other from a Winston-Salem resident.

In his dissenting opinion, Judge David Britt argued that the state had not shown adequate claim to the documents.

"Were court officials in colonial North Carolina required to preserve bills of indictment after they had served their purpose?" he said.

He also asked if the state claimed possession after the Revolutionary War and whether the state has always required retention of such documents.

The majority held that there was a clear chain of legal responsibility that made the documents the state's property.

N.C. Baptists Declare 'War' On Pornography

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C., (AP) — The North Carolina Baptist State Convention wound up its annual meeting Wednesday, approving a $13 million operating budget for 1977 and declaring war on pornography in one of several resolutions.

Messengers approved a resolution calling for the drafting of, and lobbying for, legislation in the 1977 General Assembly to ban all massage parlors, X-rated movies, adult book stores and violence and obscenity on television.

Also approved was a resolution to urge Congress to ban all advertising on radio and television for alcoholic beverages which "portray the use of alcohol as the way to a happier, more productive life."

The evangelist said Carter was merely attempting to explain what Jesus meant in a biblical discourse on adultery.

Graham also said the phrase "born again," which Carter used in reference to his own religious experience, does not apply just to Baptists but "goes back to Jesus' teachings."

Rate-Fixing Suit Brought

ATLANTA (AP) — Three trucking firm associations in Georgia and North Carolina have been charged by the U.S. Justice Department with conspiring to fix rates for intrastate freight hauling in five southern states.

The firms named in the civil suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court represent more than 400 truck lines.

Accused of violating antitrust laws were Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conference Inc. of Atlanta, Motor Carriers Traffic Associations Inc. of Greensboro, N.C., and North Carolina Motor Carriers Association Inc. of Raleigh, N.C.

The suit said the alleged rate-fixing conspiracy dated back to the early 1940s.

The court was asked to enjoin the associations from continuing the alleged conspiracy and from communicating intrastate rate information on competitive truck lines unless required to do so by state law.

The court also was asked in the suit to cancel all intrastate rates the trucking organizations have on file with state regulatory agencies in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Died After His Beating

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Though an 89-year-old Broughton Hospital patient suffered no major injuries when beaten by another patient last Friday, a medical examiner said the incident could have contributed to the man's death.

Dr. John C. Reece performed an autopsy on Lester Beam who died Wednesday morning. Beam died of heart attack due to a blockage of the artery serving the heart. Beam also developed pneumonia since the Friday night incident.

"There were no major injuries due to the assault, but because of Beam's age the incident could have been a contributing factor in the death," said Reece.

An investigation revealed that Beam, a Lincoln County native who had been a patient at Broughton for 44 years, was assaulted by another patient in a ward bathroom. He suffered bruises, scrapes and cuts of the head, face and chest and a broken jaw and ribs, hospital officials said.

The name of the patient who assaulted Beam was not released. A report was turned over to the State Bureau of Investigation to determine whether charges will be brought, hospital officials said.

Both patients were confined in the hospital's intermediate care facility.

Big Medicaid Fraud Penalties Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being urged to consider severe jail terms for doctors, druggists and nursing home operators found guilty of taking part in the estimated billions of dollars in Medicaid fraud.

A New York state prosecutor told a Senate investigating committee Wednesday that his office uncovered evidence that nursing home operators were padding bills under the federal-state Medicaid program to pay for personal luxuries.

Charles Hynes, New York state special prosecutor for nursing homes, said his office found that nursing home operators treated themselves to mink coats, stereo equipment and paintings by such masters as Matisse and Renoir, claiming in bills to Medicaid that these were all legitimate business expenses.

It has been estimated that abuse and fraud in Medicaid, a federal-state program for the poor, and Medicare, which aids the elderly, cost taxpayers $3 billion to $4 billion a year.

Despite those figures, said Hynes and Samuel K. Skinner, U.S. attorney for Northern Illinois, virtually no health service offenders are ever sent to jail.

Skinner blamed the federal government in large part because the health insurance programs, which together cost about $40 billion a year, were launched with no tests or pilot projects.

Skinner also warned that "it would be suicidal to go ahead with national health insurance," which could cost up to $80 billion a year, until state and federal officials show they can rid Medicaid and Medicare of fraud.

Hynes said that "there still exists a climate in this country where the exploitation of old people is a respectable and risk-free profession."

He testified that the kickback scheme with suppliers worked this way: in order to get a nursing home contract, the supplier would pad its bill by charging for goods that were never delivered, and the nursing home operator would pass the phony bills along to the Medicaid program and end up with the extra cash.

Hynes, who obtained indictments earlier this week of 26 nursing home owners, employees and suppliers, told the Senate panel that up to half the 125 nursing homes in the New York City area may be involved in taking kickbacks from suppliers.

Skinner suggested appointment of state-federal task forces operating in cooperation with U.S. attorneys.

More Thousands At Program Yesterday

The Tobacco Farmer Show at Farmers Warehouse experienced another successful day Wednesday with some 25,000 persons viewing the agricultural exhibits and displays.

Jim Swindell, manager of the show sponsored by Specialized Agricultural Publications, said that the large number of persons on hand yesterday included many out-of-state visitors who traveled from as far away as Florida and Alabama.

Swindell reported that the crowd total for Tuesday's opening day reached 25,000 pushing the two-day total to 50,000 visitors.

The manager said this morning that the sponsors, published of The Flue Cured Tobacco Farmer magazine, were looking for at least 25,000 today as the show concluded its three-day program.

He pointed out that the exhibitors have been delighted with the response of the public to their products.

Swindell said that the success of this year's first farmer show has insured that a second event will be scheduled next year. The location for the 1977 show has not been decided, he added.

The exhibits were scheduled to close today at 6 p.m.

Seminar On ECKANKAR

ECKANKAR, The Path of Total Awareness, a religion that focuses on degrees of spiritual growth and level of consciousness, is sponsoring a seminar in Greenville on Saturday, November 20.

The seminar will be held at the Ramada Inn. The theme of the seminar is "Training For The Spiritual Life," and the program includes original ECK music, poetry, art and drama, as well as talks on various aspects of ECKANKAR. Sherwood Shaffer of Winston-Salem will be the keynote speaker. His topic will be "Soul Travel."

A color film, "ECKANKAR, A Way of Life," featuring Sri Darwin Gross, the Living ECK Master, will be shown. Registration begins at 12:00 noon. The seminar is from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. Registration fee is $3.00.

Driver Charged In Collision

Martha Littleton Langley of 214A Stancill Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:50 a.m. mishap here yesterday on Elm Street, 130 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police said the Langley car collided with a vehicle driven by Milo Hemby Smith of 1609 East Fifth St., causing an estimated $200 damage to the Smith car and $1,800 damage to the Langley auto.

Plan Youth Revival Here

REV. GARNETT REID

The Rev. Garnett Reid, a senior ministerial student at Free Will Baptist College in Nashville, Tenn., will conduct a youth revival at the Grace F.W.B. Church in Greenville November 19-21, according to the Rev. Roger Tripp, pastor. Randy Sawyer, a junior at the college, from Gastonia, will direct the music and serve as guest soloist. The services will begin each night at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Reid is the student body president at the college and has been selected for inclusion in the 1977 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities And Colleges. He is also a member of the Evangel Players drama team. The public is invited.

Big Jobs In Brazil Attracting Workers From U.S.

By MARY LENZ
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The slow, southern drawls sound a little funny in bars full of Latin American sailors. The boots and the cowboy hats look a little out of place near Ipanema Beach.

But men from Texas and other states in the American Southwest are appearing with increasing frequency in the streets of Rio de Janeiro, passing through here on their way to the drilling rigs off the Brazilian coast.

They are on their way to work on "semisubmersible, four-column, stabilized drilling vessels," otherwise known as oil rigs, explained Pete Gutierrez, a Whittier, Calif., native who lives in Lafayette, La.

They work 28 days straight, followed by 28 days of free time, "commuting" to Brazil by plane at the expense of their companies in the United States. The U.S. companies drill under contract to Petrobras, Brazil's state oil monopoly.

As far as Don Sullivan of Houston, Tex., is concerned, "It's a long way to come to do the same kind of work." But when you're working around complex, heavy machinery, using hand signals to explain how to do the job to employees who don't speak English, it can be difficult and dangerous.

"In the States, you can tell somebody to go get something," said Sullivan, who is a "materials coordinator" or warehouseman, on the rig. There are 14 Americans out of a crew of 46 and the only truly bilingual people are officials from Petrobras who come by for occasional visits.

Sullivan, Gutierrez, Ronnie Hoglan of Plainview, Tex., and Reid Smith of Lucedale, Miss., work for Santa Fe Petroleum, Ltd., a subsidiary of Santa Fe International Corp. Gutierrez, a barge engineer, had just returned from working a one-month shift on the Bluewater 3 rig.

He explained that in the United States, men work seven days on and seven days off. Working 12 hours a day or more, seven days a week for 28 days, can cause a little tension. Smith, who had just arrived in Brazil after working offshore in Scotland's North Sea, explained that the round trip ticket home each month is considered "part of the salary" and is a main advantage to working in a foreign country, since otherwise salaries are the same.

Smith and Hoglan are watch standers, which means they must "make sure the rig stays stable and meets U.S. Coast Guard regulations," Smith said. An off-shore rig is considered a marine vessel.

Gutierrez said a number of the Brazilian employees have worked for Petrobras for up to 10 years and know how to handle themselves on a rig, but in general "working habits are different because we are used to working at a faster pace. You just have to slow down to where they can work comfortably and do the job with maximum safety."

The two Texans enjoy the politeness and courtesy of Brazilian crew members, but have their complaints about the food. Sullivan said, "the people doing the cooking — man, they dump sugar in everything. You get a cup full of sugar and no coffee."

Sullivan explained the food served is Brazilian style, but it isn't the same quality as you can order in Rio de Janeiro. "We had one tool pusher out there who was on corn flakes for 28 days," he said.

Scandal Boosted His Game Sales

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Psst — wanna buy an adult game? Bob Reiss will sell you such diversions as "Seduction," "Lie, Cheat & Steal," and "Compatibility."

Reiss, head of a game company that bears his name, says his most popular offering is "Lie, Cheat & Steal: The Game of Political Power," in which players scheme their way to prominence. The game came out before Watergate, but Reiss acknowledges that the scandal gave sales a boost.

"But it'll be current years from now," he said. "All you have to do is pick up a paper in any town and there's lying, cheating and stealing right in front of you."

Prinze Charged On Drug Count

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Freddie Prinze, star of the "Chico and the Man" television series, has been charged with driving under the influence of drugs.

Prinze, 22, was arrested Nov. 5 by a highway patrol officer who said he observed the actor driving erratically on the San Diego Freeway.

Officer Richard Ripley said he found a two-ounce prescription bottle which contained a small quantity of methaqualone, a tranquilizer, in Prinze's shirt pocket.

Prinze was charged Tuesday.

French Leftists Press L'Affaire Dassault

By GEORGE SIBERA
PARIS (UPI) — Marcel Dassault, the French Mirage-jet manufacturer whose passion for secrecy is as legendary as his engineering and business genius, finds himself at age 84 at the center of a political-financial scandal.

The scandal began last July when his trusted chief accountant, Herve de Vathaire, vanished with $1.6 million from Dassault's personal account. It grew when de Vathaire surrendered to police and it mushroomed when the accountant claimed he had spent the money in a vain effort to recover a stolen file detailing alleged tax fraud by Dassault to the tune of $300 million.

Author of the stolen file: De Vathaire himself.

Dassault is a prominent Gaullist party deputy in the National Assembly and one of the world's leaders in the design and production of military aircraft. Accordingly, the accusations are a hot political issue in a country which is readying for a decisive election early in 1978 that could bring the Communists into the cabinet for the first time since 1947.

"We will give Dassault real shivers," a Communist deputy said with a grin.

The Communist and Socialist factions are harassing the government of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at every opportunity over the "l'affaire Dassault."

They are demanding that Dassault be stripped of the assembly seat he has held since 1951 and that his industrial empire be nationalized.

The Communist's use of the word shivers was deliberate. Dassault is known in France as "the shivering Caesar," a nickname given him by the late acerbic author Francois Mauriac, who was critical of Dassault's reputation as a mystery man and ruthless business tycoon.

Dassault does have the shivers — a nervous condition that is an after-effect of his three-year imprisonment in the Nazi concentration camp of Buchenwald where, even his Communist adversaries agree, he behaved with exemplary courage.

Dassault was born a Jew but converted to Catholicism after the war. He bore the family name of Bloch until France's occupation by the Nazis. He adopted the cover name of Dassault and decided to retain it.

Dassault began building planes as a young flying enthusiast toward the end of World War I. In 1918 with his friend and partner, Henri Potez, he developed the Sea fighter. The French government ordered 1,000. Then came Germany's capitulation and the contract was canceled.

With no customers for his planes, Dassault went into the real estate business and made a financial killing. He was back building planes when France began rearming in 1937.

Dassault built one plane which is still talked about by many World War II veterans, but rarely by Dassault himself. It was the Bloch 200 which was so underpowered that it crashed frequently and earned the nickname of "flying coffin."

After World War II Dassault regained his reputation and fortune by developing the Mystere fighter — Europe's first to break the sound barrier.

Dassault's star brightened further after 1957 when his factories started rolling out the renowned Mirage fighter-bomber. With sales helped by the plane's stellar performance on the Israeli side in the Middle East Six-Day War, Dassault sold more than 1,800 Mirages to over 20 nations. He now is working on new advanced versions of the plane, which was the first in Europe to fly at twice the speed of sound.

The tax fraud charges turned the spotlight on a man so anxious to escape public attention that his country residence — a 100-room palace at Coignieres, near Paris — has been surrounded by a three-mile wall.

The Dassault affair came to public attention in August when police leaked the news that de Vathaire, 49, had fled to Greece with the money.

Dassault told the press de Vathaire apparently lost his head after the death of his ailing wife, who drowned in her bathtub. He said he decided not to press charges after an appeal from de Vathaire's parents.

But many of the French were skeptical. Leftist newspapers asked how a man could take the loss of more than $1 million so lightly.

What news media called the "l'affaire Vathaire" became "l'affaire Dassault" Sept. 8 when the accountant returned from Greece to face charges leveled against him by police.

He told police he fled because he didn't want to work for a man who, he said, had amassed a huge fortune through financial misdeeds.

De Vathaire told police he had compiled a bulky dossier containing evidence of Dassault's alleged frauds. De Vathaire said he gave the dossier to Jean Kay, a soldier-of-fortune known to have fought in such lost causes as Katanga and Biafra.

But Kay, whom de Vathaire had befriended in a Paris bar, refused to hand the dossier back unless he received 8 million francs, according to de Vathaire. The accountant said he then withdrew that sum from Dassault's private account.

But, de Vathaire told police, Kay fled abroad without returning the dossier.

A Paris judge booked de Vathaire on charges of embezzlement. He also issued a warrant against Kay.

By that time several French papers had published a handwritten 17-page summary of Vathaire composed from memory on Dassault's alleged financial fraud.

It made the following charges that Dassault:

- had systematically siphoned government payments to the Avion Marcel Dassault-Breguet Aviation firm into his private firms.
- had on his payroll two finance ministry officials who were getting $4,000 a month to help him fake tax reports.
- had defrauded the treasury of at least $300 million in concealed taxes.
- used company funds to build the $300 million residence at Coignieres, which is a replica of Marie Antoinette's famous Petit Trianon Palace at Versailles.

Dassault called in the press and even went on television to deny the charges.

He said there may have been "minor" tax problems but that these had long been straightened out.

Government sources said these "minor" problems totaled about $22 million over the past decade. But they said this was not an unusual amount for a firm the size of Dassault's.

Dassault denied de Vathaire's assertion the two finance ministry officials were working for him. The two men themselves filed libel suits.

The Dassault affair took on political overtones when the industrialist's aides dropped hints he might be the target of a conspiracy by his foreign competitors.

The affair sharpened the conflict between Giscard's majority and the Socialist-

Communist opposition when the left demanded creation of a parliamentary commission to investigate Dassault's finances.

The majority agreed — and set up a commission to investigate the finances of all French aircraft firms. The left cried foul, the majority chuckled, since Dassault's firm paid $32 million in taxes last year.

Dassault told reporters he was not afraid of nationalization.

"I already have been nationalized once, in 1937," he said.

The Socialist-Communist Popular Front government which ruled France did take over Dassault's factories in 1937. After returning from Buchenwald eight years later, Dassault started all over again and increased his fortune tenfold.

Dassault has long given up flying. He dislikes travel and takes only short trips in his white Rolls Royce.

His aides say Dassault's main passion is to supervise the production of his factories. His second hobby is to watch over publication of his glossy weekly magazine Jours de France.

The magazine — yet another financial success — specializes in chitchat about royalty and the world's beautiful people, banning any reference to disasters, wars, illness and death.

"Dassault is not really interested in money," said one of his aides. "He neither drinks nor smokes. He leads a quiet family life with his wife Madeleine and their two sons."

Use No Fox For Foxhunt

CLEVELAND, N.C. (AP) — The Yackin Valley Hounds hunt club goes foxhunting without a fox.

Instead, about an hour before the hunt, a drag line with the scent of a red fox is laid.

The hounds are trained to stick with that trail, even if they see a live fox.

"The primary reason for hunting is to watch the hounds at their work," says Betsy Poole.

"It's the joy of watching them go cross-country. There is no better combination than horses and hounds, and it is a joy to be and stay with the hounds, to ride through beautiful country."

Mrs. Poole said the club will hunt each Thursday and Saturday throughout the winter months.

She said he club, which was formed last year, now has 35 members, "from all walks of life," including teachers, a minister, and several junior members under 18.

"People have the idea that this is a rich man's sport," she said. "That's not necessarily true."

Hot Dogs Snuff 'Eternal Flame'

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — This city's eternal flame — snuffed out by overzealous hot dog roasters — is headed for a facelift.

The flame, originally lighted in McFarlan Park on Memorial Day 1970 and supposed to burn forever on natural gas, became a favorite for barbecuers and fell victim to hot dog drippings about a year ago.

Last Thursday, it was re-lighted for Veteran's Day and was renamed the Freedom Flame.

Now Genesee County officials are lifting the base of the flame about eight feet — partly to honor the county's war dead but mostly to get it eternally free of the reach of outdoor cooks.

Add-a-Gold Bead...

... The Gift of Love that grows with the years

"The Story of the GOLD BEAD"

It all began with one gold bead on a chain...the beginning of a necklace which was to be cherished through the years. Then, as other beads were added, the necklace grew in beauty and value, until at last the chain was full...lovely and sentimental.

Young Artists Find 'Shelter From Cold' In Co-Ops

By LEO LLOYD
NEW YORK (UPI) — Critics disagree on the quality, but young artists who cannot get their work exhibited in established galleries are finding "shelter from the cold" in co-ops.

The trend toward cooperative galleries, where artists also can sell their work cheaper by cutting out the middleman, was born in New York about 1969 and is now spreading around the United States and Canada.

"I think it's the Greenwich Village outdoor art show moved indoors," sniffs Mona da Vinci, 35, art critic for the Soho Weekly News in Manhattan who feels the co-ops will spoil Soho. "They've found shelter from the cold."

But Lawrence Alloway, 50, art critic for The Nation magazine, disagrees. "I think the work (in co-ops) is first rate," said Alloway, a professor of art and history at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. "I wouldn't fool around with it otherwise."

Sorority Plans Turkey Dinner For Students

The Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority of East Carolina University has taken as its 1976 Thanksgiving project providing a turkey dinner with all the trimmings to about 60 Extended School Program students.

Coordinated by sorority member Robin James, who is serving an internship with the Extended School Program, the event will be at 1 p.m. today at the sorority house on East Fifth Street.

James said preparation of the meal is a joint venture, with the program students giving assistance to the 55 sorority members in preparing and serving the holiday meal.

Last year, Sigma Sigma Sigma was host to a Thanksgiving dinner for young people of Operation Sunshine.

FISH FIGURES

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Nearly 30 million fish have been stocked in Texas' public lakes and rivers this year, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Almost 22 million of the fish included walleye perch, a fish considered excellent table fare.

Traditional commercial galleries naturally want established artists whose work can be expected to sell, earning money for the gallery as well as the artist.

But many artists who have been rejected, or who not choose to show their work in commercial galleries, are investing in their own galleries. In the cooperative gallery each artist pays a fee of $250 to $1,200 and thus becomes a part-owner of the gallery with the privilege of displaying his work on a regular basis.

Because they set their own policy the member artists are free from the financial pressures and restrictions often imposed by commercial galleries.

"I can do what I want — I'm totally not bound," said Joellen Bard, 34, an artist active in a co-op gallery.

In the 1960s art schools were pouring out students, but commercial galleries were not expanding. "We're the war babies, so to speak, of the art world," said Mrs. Bard.

Mrs. Bard admits, "We're not selling as well as we could. We have to go out and hustle."

But co-op art sells for less than commercial gallery art, partly because the gallery doesn't rake off a sales commission.

Many of the co-ops, such as those in Soho, specialize in different kinds of art. For example, the Prince Street, First Street and Bowery galleries, in rebellion against abstraction, specialize in realistic art.

"We don't turn up our noses at the way people worked in the past," said David Klass, 35, of the First Street Gallery.

A co-op called 14 Sculptors specializes in three dimensional art. A.I.R. (Artists in Residence) and Soho 20 are women's galleries.

"We wanted to disprove the idea there weren't enough good women artists around," said Doty Addie, 38, of A.I.R. which opened in 1972.

Others, like the West Broadway gallery, are eclectic. "We have a pretty big cross-section," said director Robert Ehrlich, 35. "The only criteria for admission is that the artist is good."

NAME Gallery in Chicago

consists of only six persons. In contrast, Gallery Signal in Montreal has 250 artists who sometime exhibit in public places such as the city center.

Washington's Woman's Art Center, like many other co-ops, gives classes to non-members in such areas as silk screen, dance, leather and watercolor, and offers tours of artists' studios.

San Francisco's 63 Bluxome, whose artists are largely inexperienced, is located in a warehouse building.

"The purpose of the shows here are publicity and exposure," said John Behanna of the gallery. "We help give them exposure."

Many co-op artists complain that art critics do not give them fair coverage.

Miss Da Vinci is no friend of the co-ops. She argues that many of the co-op artists are teachers and points out "in order for a teacher to gain tenure at a university he has to put on a show."

"I hesitate to review such shows," she said. "I do feel suspicious because it's not my job to do someone else a favor."

Miss Da Vinci also said co-op artists, by distributing statements at their exhibitions, often alienate critics.

"It's pointless, irrelevant and turns off the critic," she added. "To expect to sway the critic on that level is an insult."

Alloway acknowledges that many co-op artists teach, but points out that many commercial gallery artists also teach.

"Because of my interest in feminism and realism I go into co-ops," he said.

Alloway ranks the A.I.R. as "absolutely great — one of the most important galleries in the city" and Soho 20 as "first rate."

Four New York co-ops banded together to form the Association of Artist Run Galleries (AARG) in January, 1975. Their purpose was to attract critical attention, publicity and government grants to co-ops and to coordinate exchange shows between member galleries.

Recently AARG, with about 25 member galleries nationwide, started a letter in which co-op artists review each other's work and publishes a map showing the location of its member galleries in New York. In June, AARG threw an outdoor festival in Soho. Artists created work in the streets, musicians played, poets read verse and dancers danced. Artists and critics participated in an art symposium at the Pleiades Gallery.

Miss Da Vinci thinks such activities, with the influx of teacher-artists, will spoil Soho. "It will drive the good artists out," she said. "Some of them already are moving."

To join a co-op, an artist's work must be approved by a selection committee. Once accepted, may stage an average of one three-week show every 18 months.

"Galleries that have the top fee do a lot more for the artist," Mrs. Bard said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning is ideal for making plans and getting ideas across to others. Evening best for relaxing and rebuilding energies so that future operations will be more successful. Taking big risks is definitely out. Use much care in motion of all kind.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day for contacting those who can be of assistance to you in current affairs, be they personal or business in nature. Dig into any source that is good for information you need.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study into monetary matters that are important to your welfare. Pay bills, make collections. Make necessary repairs to property.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Think intelligently and solve any problems you may have, both personal and business. Take time for social pleasures. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) New interests have come up that require your immediate attention, so be sure to get at them. Keep this confidential, though. Plan time to solve a personal problem and be happier.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Having long talks with others can clarify matters that are important to you and to them. Do some entertaining this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care of chores so you have a free weekend. Take time to rest before you go out for an evening's entertainment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You get fine ideas today that should be discussed with experts in order to make them operable and successful. A new contact you make can be invaluable to you in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your hunches are good during the day and should be used to finest advantage. Try to please a loved one. Don't spend money foolishly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Making right contacts today can lead to greater advancement. Understand civic matters better and improve prestige. Think along more logical lines and get ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show courtesy to those who have done you many favors in the past. Plan time for looking into new projects that seem promising.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan some kind of amusement that appeals to you for the evening, then get into the work that is pressing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take more time for handling important family affairs. New interests should be studied carefully before you get into them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those young persons who, early in life, will want to convince others to do what he or she wants to gain aims. sure to teach early to cooperate more with others and use diplomacy for best results. Slant education toward the law, trouble-shooting professions. Don't neglect religion. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Bridge players should once again lift their glasses to toast the Dutch firm of Lucas Bols. They are fast becoming as well known in the field of bridge as they are for their fine liqueurs. For the third year, they are sponsoring the Bols Bridge Tips competition, in which nine world-famous bridge players have been invited to compete for a $1000 first prize for the tip adjudged best by a worldwide panel of bridge writers.

Kicking off the new competition is Dorothy Hayden Truscott, one of only three women to play in the Bermuda Bowl—the world bridge team championship. Mrs. Truscott argues that, against no trump contracts, a defender's first spot card, unless it is a count signal, should show attitude toward the opening leader's suit. Consider this hand.

After a normal bidding sequence, South becomes declarer at three no trump and West makes the natural lead of a low spade. East plays the jack and declarer wins the king. After crossing to dummy with a club, declarer leads a diamond to his jack. West wins the king and has to decide how to continue. Anyone looking at all four hands can see that the contract will be defe. if West continues spades. But what if declarer started with the king-queen of spades and the king of hearts instead of the ace? Now a heart shift is required to get to East for a lead through the queen of spades. (Don't let declarer's play of the king of spades influence you—a competent declarer will win with the king even if he holds the queen.)

Mrs. Truscott suggest that, when declarer crosses to dummy with a club, East should follow with the ten—an unnecessarily high card. This tells partner: "I love your original lead, please continue." If East did not hold the queen of spades, he should follow to the first club with the two. A low card says: "Partner I cannot contribute anything to your suit." West will then shift to a heart as his only chance to defeat the contract.

Note that, in both cases mentioned, West would have to guess at trick three if he and his partner were not using 'attitude' signals.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" German Abortion Reform Lags

By MICHAEL O'REGAN
BONN (UPI) — When Hilde heard the results of her pregnancy test, she broke down in tears. At 16, it wasn't an occasion for her to feel the glowing pride of motherhood.

Hilde typifies the women who turn up at one of West Germany's 52 family planning centers.

A survey by the Ministry of Youth Family and Health indicates such women are likely to be from the working classes, unmarried and between 15 and 25.

Although Hilde knew about contraception, she did not use it. Before parliament liberalized the abortion law in June, Hilde would have had to make an expensive trip to Holland for an abortion, to avoid a plunge into a world of responsibility for which she was not ready.

The survey shows a jump in the number of girls and women applying for abortion counseling, but implementation of the reform is a problem.

The amended law permits abortions during the first 22 weeks of pregnancy if doctors determine the child would be born deformed, during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy resulting from rape, and during the first 12 weeks "to avoid the danger of distress to the pregnant woman."

In the predominantly Roman Catholic south of the country, a stronghold of the opposition Christian Democrats, several county councils have forbidden hospitals to perform the operation. Whether the councils have a right to do this is a matter of controversy.

No doctor can be forced to perform an abortion against his will. Whether councils, which operate hospitals, may lay claim to a corporate conscience remains a point of contention.

In Biberach, in the southern state of Bad Württemberg, Werner Kalbfleisch, a Social Democratic member of the council, admits he is fighting a losing battle. The three-man Social Democratic faction introduced a secret ballot to lift the council's ban on abortions.

Outnumbered 90 to three by the Christian Democrats, they lost.

"It is a case of the individual conscience of the doctor and the woman, not the collective conscience of the county council," Kalbfleisch said. "The contract with the hospitals extends only to abortions which are indicated by medical reasons, where there are legally admissible, ethical and eugenic reasons," the Biberach council determined.

The Oct. 3 general election showed a swing to the right as the Social Democratic-liberal coalition reduced its majority in parliament from 46 to eight seats. A newly elected woman Social Democratic member of parliament blamed the change on disillusionment among women with the abortion reform. Women cast 54 per cent of all the votes.

Women had rallied around the right-to-abortion cause before the amendment, she said. After the amendment failed to liberalize abortion to the extent women had hoped for, the cause fell apart.

Today a woman or girl must have the approval of two doctors before an abortion may be performed.

This requirement often scares women off the operation. A recent television film dealing with the problem spotlighted the case of a woman who, desiring anonymity, wandered the city knocking on door after door in quest of a doctor's approval.

"One fifth of those asked, who do not live in large cities, preferred to undertake a lengthy journey in order to maintain their anonymity," the Health Ministry survey said.

The survey said factors inhibiting a person from visiting a family planning clinic included a feeling that "everyone must solve his own problems."

"There are considerable feelings of committing a crime or of shame," the survey added.

But the survey said that even among the "disadvantaged" social groups, most inhibited toward counseling, a growing tendency to seek such advice has emerged.

"First reports from counseling clinics show that since (the reform of) June 21, 1976, the number of persons seeking abortion advice has leapt," the survey said.

Of 303 persons questioned, the greatest number sought abortion in order to continue their studies. Forty per cent sought advice in the ninth week of pregnancy.

While Hilde may now receive an abortion in West Germany, if she needs one in a hurry, she may still find it easier to go abroad.

Square Pegs In Round Holes

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP) — Square pegs do fit in round holes ... sometimes.

That was the method used to build America's first pre-fabricated homes — in New Harmony, Ind. — back in 1862. This historic Midwestern community, undergoing a massive restoration program, is using the exact methods of its earliest settlers to restore and rebuild the town.

New Harmony homes were constructed of standardized parts, all numbered and then stored in a central building. When a house was needed the materials were delivered to the site and quickly put together. Beams were firmly anchored by driving square pegs into snug round holes. Many buildings made of the original pre-fabricated sections still exist, as evidence of how effective these construction methods were.

Mirrored Lens Not A Gimmick

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Mirrored lenses for sunglasses are not just a gimmick, says Gordon Taylor, director of research and development for an optics manufacturer.

Gradient mirrored lenses block 94 per cent of the light at top and bottom to protect skiers and others who are outdoors in snow country from the sun's rays overhead and snow and ice reflections from below. The mirrored effect is achieved with a thin layer of stainless steel called incoel. It not only absorbs excess light, it also reflects glare.
