

Rate Of Consumer Price Increase Continues Slip

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose three-tenths of a per cent in October, the government said today. It was the smallest increase in seven months as the nation's inflation rate continued its moderating trend.

The increase in the Consumer Price Index followed a rise of four-tenths of a per cent in September and monthly advances of five-tenths of a per cent during the June-August period.

The Labor Department said October's price increase was the smallest since a two-tenths of a per cent rise last March. Over the past 12 months, retail prices have risen 5.3 per cent, marking the smallest increase since the 12-month period ending in April 1973, when they rose 5.1 per cent.

In a separate report, the department said the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck rose last month after declining in August and September.

Today's economic reports were bright spots in an otherwise bleak picture of high unemployment and slow economic growth.

Wholesale industrial prices, which are influential in setting the over-all inflation trend, have been rising steadily since May. However, these higher wholesale prices have not yet shown at the retail level.

In October, the consumer price index stood at 173.3, meaning that a market basket of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 now costs $173.30. The index is not adjusted to discount seasonal influences, as are the percentage increases. Alan Greenspan, President Ford's chief economist, tended to discount the wholesale price trend in a speech Thursday to the Rubber Manufacturers Association. He said "There is

Summon Caucuses

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's overwhelming Democratic majorities were summoned today to caucuses at which they will nominate officers for the 1977 legislative session.

Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, dean of the House membership, called a meeting of the 114 representatives to be held in the Hall of the House at noon on Nov. 29. Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, dean of the Senate, set a meeting of the 46 Senate Democrats for 4 p.m. Dec. 8 in the Senate chamber.

The House Democrats are expected to nominate Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, as speaker, and the Senate Democrats are expected to renominate Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, as Senate president pro tem or majority leader.

The nominations will be made official when the General Assembly convenes officially on Jan. 12.

Mail Early

The Postal Services has advanced its suggested Christmas mailing deadlines for domestic parcels and letter mail to December 3 and 10, respectively, in anticipation of an exceptionally high mail volume.

Citing the impact of greatly increased mail volumes generated by the 15 state United Parcel Service strike in the East and South, and its residual effect on other parts of the country, the Postal Service said it is compelled to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal.

Mail customers are being asked to mail as early as possible, use proper packaging materials and techniques, and properly address and ZIP Code their mail.

Mizell Robbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Wilmer D. Mizell, R-N.C., returned to his suburban Virginia home after losing the 5th District Congressional race this month to find someone had broken into the house and virtually stripped it clean.

"They took everything, even the clothes, telephones and sheets from the bed," said Mrs. Lucille May, a former aide to Mizell who closed his campaign office in Winston-Salem, N.C. this week.

A spokesman for the Fairfax County police said the break-in occurred sometime Nov. 6 or 7, and said they are investigating. Mizell, who lives in Midway, N.C., could not be reached for comment.

just no corroborating evidence" to support the idea of a new outburst of inflation.

Greenspan said the long-term inflation rate is slowing down and, in what appeared to be a warning to President-elect Jimmy Carter, predicted that the downward trend will continue if the government reduces its budget deficit by following "sensible fiscal and monetary policies."

The seasonally adjusted three-tenths of a per cent increase in over-all prices last month reflected higher costs for new cars, gasoline, natural gas, electricity, transportation services, fruits and vegetables and some foods, the Labor Department said.

Food prices rose an adjusted three-tenths of a per cent last month after showing no change in September. Fresh vegetable prices rose sharply for the third straight month, while prices for beef, poultry, eggs and fresh fruits also increased after declining the previous month.

Coffee and dairy products also rose but not as much as in recent months. Prices for sugar and cereal declined and pork prices dropped for the fifth consecutive month.

Prices for nonfood commodities rose four-tenths of a per cent last month, matching the September increase but less than monthly rises of six-tenths of a per cent from April through August.

More than half the gain in the nonfood index reflected higher prices for the new 1977 model cars and the fact that gasoline prices did not decline as much as expected. The new car index rose a seasonally adjusted 1.4 per cent.

Greenspan also acknowledged that the economic slowdown has continued longer than expected, but he said there is no danger of a recession.

Carter has said he may ask for a tax cut if the economy doesn't show more strength by January.

Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that conditions don't appear bad enough at this time to warrant a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," he said in a speech Thursday to the U.S. League of Savings Associations in New York.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that the economy was even weaker last summer than preliminary estimates indicated.

The Gross National Product, or the total output of goods and services, grew at an annual rate of 3.8 per cent during the July-September quarter. That was lower than the initial estimate last month of a 4 per cent growth rate, the rate generally considered sufficient to keep up with normal population growth.

Job Applications By The Thousands

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Job applications are pouring into President-elect Jimmy Carter's office here at the rate of more than a thousand a day, but most of the applicants are going to be disappointed.

Matthew B. Coffey, 35, director of Carter's personnel office here, said Thursday his office is overwhelmed by mail and a "steady stream of walk-ins, modestly and immodestly offering their services" to the new administration.

Many other Carter staffers report receiving dozens of phone calls a day from friends and friends-of-friends wanting to find out how to find work with the Carter administration.

Those who show up at one of the reception desks outside transition headquarters in Washington are given a standard government application form and a questionnaire asking for name, date of birth, race, education and political affiliation, if any.

Coffey and his staff of 38, with the help of Carter's political advisers, are concentrating now on the 32 key jobs the President-elect must fill, such as the Cabinet secretaries, undersecretaries, heads of independent agencies and a few regulatory commission posts. They have identified a total of 300 jobs they expect Carter to fill in time.

In addition, there are about 3,000 part-time posts on presidential commissions and the boards of quasi-governmental units like ConRail, the U.S.

Postal Service and the National Endowment for the Arts.

About 1,800 policy-making slots in the various government agencies are expected to be filled by the agency heads.

Richard C. D. Fleming, 31, who headed the Carter personnel program before the election and recruited Coffey, now his boss, said the office received more than 10,000 job applications even before the election.

When people phone or come in asking how to apply for jobs, they are told to send their resumes to P.O. Box 2600, Washington, D.C., 20013.

Coffey suggested that the route most job seekers should follow is to do what he did: take the competitive Civil Service examination.

Seek State Pay Hikes

RALEIGH (AP) — A pair of 10 per cent pay increases during the next two fiscal years has been requested by two organizations that represent nearly half of North Carolina's 70,000 state workers.

The North Carolina State Employees Association and the North Carolina State Government Employees Association, with a combined membership of 32,000, also requested two additional steps in the pay scale. The request is similar to the requested pay increase for teachers.

A joint Senate-House commission headed by state Sen. D. Livingstone Stallings, D-Craven, heard the request Thursday night.

The employees need the 20 per cent increase to catch up with inflation because they were not granted a pay raise last fiscal year and got an increase of less than 10 per cent this year, said Emmett Burden, executive director of the State Employees Association.

The organization asked for a 10 per cent pay increase July 1 followed by another 10 per cent the following year of the biennium.

"The past two years, with its money drought, has brought forth only a 4 per cent plus $300 increase for state workers. This is far from adequate. These are very realistic requests when compared with the cost of living escalation that has taken place," Burden told the commission.

The employee groups also asked for the number of pay steps to be increased from the current six to eight. They also requested improvements in the retirement system.

$500,000 Bond Is Posted; Patricia Hearst Is 'Gone'

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was wisked out of a federal prison here in the dead of night, an official at the Metropolitan Correctional Center said today.

Her destination was unknown, but with $500,000 bond posted by her family to free her while awaiting trial in Southern California, she needed only the approval of a San Francisco judge to be free for the first time in more than a year while she appeals her bank robbery conviction.

The official at the correctional center, who declined to have his name used, said Miss Hearst was driven away by two federal marshals about 4:50 a.m. EST.

Members of a television camera crew stationed at the prison said they saw a black-and-white car speed away in the darkness.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick, who in September sentenced Miss Hearst to seven years in prison, was expected to rule today on a request that the 22-year-old newspaper heiress be released in her parents' custody under a secret security plan.

Orrick must decide whether she is still a flight risk. She had been ordered held without bail after her capture in September 1975.

The only other obstacle to Miss Hearst's freedom was removed on Thursday when her father and uncle signed a $500,000 personal surety bond on pending Los Angeles charges of kidnap, assault and robbery.

Miss Hearst faces a January 10 trial in that case involving a wild shooting at an Inglewood, Calif., sporting goods store that occurred while she was a fugitive member of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

Her father, Randolph A. Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner, and his twin brother, David, president of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation, pledged their assets to obtain Miss Hearst's release.

Attorney Albert Johnson asked Superior Court Judge William Ritz to reduce the $500,000 bail, but the judge said he would wait to see whether Orrick sets bail.

"If she is released by the San Francisco court, and if bail is substantial in that case, I certainly would consider reduction in bond," he said.

Miss Hearst, now imprisoned at the Metropolitan Corrections Center in San Diego, has spent 14 months behind bars, including time served during her celebrated trial for the 1974 $10,050 robbery of San Francisco's Hibernia Bank.

Orrick told her during sentencing: "Miss Hearst, the violent nature of your conduct can not be condoned. Violence is unacceptable in our society and will not be tolerated."

State Revenue Collections Behind Hopes

RALEIGH (AP) — Although state revenue collections for this fiscal year are running slightly behind estimates, Revenue Secretary Howard Coble said today "I think we're in good shape."

"I'm by no means ready to push the panic button," Coble told a news conference. While the general fund collections for October showed the smallest increase this fiscal year, Coble said collections for the four months are running 11.47 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

Legislative estimates on which the budget for this fiscal year was based projected a revenue increase of about 13 per cent per month.

General fund collections in October totaled $124 million, an increase of $2.8 million or 2.33 per cent over the same month last year. Collections for the fiscal year were $535.4 million, an increase of $55.1 million.

The bright spot in the October report was an increase of more than $4 million in sales tax collections which totaled $41.6 million.

On the other hand, collections from the income tax and insurance tax were down along with the tobacco tax.

Coble said the insurance tax drop resulted from a $7 million windfall in October last year which came from a change in the time period for filing the tax.

The income tax brought in $61.7 million in October, compared to $62.5 million a year ago. Coble said there were two less working days in October of this year. To get an accurate picture, he said, the income tax collections for October and November should be considered.

Asked about the slight drop in the cigarette tax, he said it may have resulted because of concerted efforts to halt the bootlegging of cigarettes from North Carolina to other states.

Farmer Show Saw Some 70,000 People Attending

The Tobacco Farmer Show concluded here Thursday with an overall three-day attendance of some 70,000 people, according to Jim Swindell, show manager.

Swindell said that the farmer show, sponsored by Specialized Agricultural Publications, publisher of The Flue Cured Tobacco Farmer, exceeded the sponsors projections and was termed a complete success.

"Our exhibitors said this was the finest show they had ever been to," the manager pointed out. He said that none of the exhibitors were displeased with the turnout or response to their merchandise.

Swindell said that a lot of people laughed at the idea of providing a service to and from the airport for farmers flying in for the show but during the three days 72 persons flew private planes to Greenville to visit the agricultural exhibition. Many of the flying farmers were from North Carolina but all six states in the Southeast were represented by the airport visitors, he added.

Some eight carloads of visitors from Canada were here for the show this week. Swindell reported, as well as a group of farmers from Australia. The United Kingdom was also represented.

Plans are already being made for next year's show. Swindell said, and Greenville is very high on the list as the site for the 1977 event.

This year's show, which attracted exhibitors of every major piece of equipment or product used in flue cured tobacco production as well as a variety of educational exhibits, was the first for Specialized Agricultural Publications.

Swindell expressed appreciation to Greenville as hosts for the show and commented, "I feel, and my company feels the same way, that the Greenville Chamber of Commerce is second to none." He called the Chamber assistance during the week "top notch" and said that everyone here was very helpful.

Downtown Mall Plaque Honoring West Unveiled

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The new Evans Mall was dedicated to its strongest supporter, former Mayor S. Eugene West, during ceremonies Thursday morning.

Mayor Percy Cox unveiled a plaque at fourth Street marking the dedication of the two-block facility to West and credited the former city official with being the "leader and man behind the gun" in the effort to secure funding for downtown improvements.

Cox said that application was made to the Department of Housing and Urban Development in 1967 for funds to undertake improvements in the downtown section but HUD officials reported that no more downtown programs would be funded.

"This is when... West used his leadership, influence and initiative to pursue the securing of federal funds,"

Cox noted, "because the citizens of this city had expressed a desire to have these improvements made."

The mayor said, "It was through Mayor West's determination that the issue did not fade away when the negative responses were received."

The $8 million program, including a federal grant of $6,118,815, was approved in November of 1970 and the mall was completed and opened last November, it was pointed out.

Billy B. Laughinghouse, chairman of the Redevelopment Commission, said, "This mall represents the culmination of ten years of effort and involved the cooperation of local government, the federal government, private and public organizations."

He said the downtown improvement program is some 80 per cent complete today "and we hope by the end of 1977 to see all of the improvements in place."

West expressed his appreciation for the recognition but added, "however, too many people contributed too much of their time and untiring efforts for only one person to receive credit for it."

He urged everyone to work with the Redevelopment Commission and city "in order that the rest of the downtown project can be carried out to completion."

He said that "Greenville, and in fact the whole county, can be proud of what we have here."

Cox recognized First District Congressman Walter B. Jones and thanked him on behalf of the city for his assistance over the years in securing federal funds for Greenville.

Further Opposition To Insurance Proposals

RALEIGH (AP) — Further opposition to an insurance industry proposal to raise rates for motorists who get auto liability insurance from the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility came Thursday from an organization representing independent agents.

In addition, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said the industry proposal would not give other drivers an adequate rate reduction, but he did not say he would reject the plan.

On Tuesday, the companies making up the reinsurance facility announced they would set a 74.3 per cent rate increase for drivers insured by the facility and a 10 per cent rate reduction for the other drivers. The latest figures available show that 18 per cent of the state's drivers are in the facility.

The facility was created by the 1973 legislature. All companies share the cost or profit in the facility. Under state law, a company must provide liability insurance to any driver who requests it. If the company decides the driver is a high risk, it can cede the coverage to the facility.

Now, basic rates are the same for all drivers with additional charges for such things as driving records, use of the car and previous accidents.

In a news release, the independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina Inc. said it fears higher rates in the facility will result in some good drivers paying high rates, particularly the young, old and members of minority groups.

The organization said it was "concerned that the facility will become a dumping ground for many drivers who don't deserve surcharges simply because companies seeking ways to counter the effects of prolonged rate depression in the automobile liability field will cede as many policies as possible in order to obtain the higher rate and reduce total auto insurance volume."

A spokesman for the industry conceded Wednesday that the effect of the proposal would result in an increase in total income of nearly 8 per cent.

After the proposal was announced Tuesday, a spokesman for Ingram said the commissioner will reject the plan. Ingram was in Boston at the time.

Thursday, Ingram said that if insurance rates were set by a driver's record, good drivers should get a 23 per cent rate cut and bad drivers would pay more according to their accident and violation records.

A law setting up such a program was adopted by the 1975 legislature but it has not taken effect because the industry is challenging it in the courts.

How's The Weather?

FORECAST

Until Saturday

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for part of New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle and from eastern Texas to Georgia.

By The Associated Press

It was breezy in North Carolina today. But nothing like Thursday, when winds howled around the peak of mile-high Grandfather Mountain at a record 161 miles an hour.

The public relations spokesman for the mountain resort, Dick Barkley, said, "The ravens are hang-gliding; they're soaring all over in the high wind, just playing in it."

Wind of 75 miles an hour is hurricane force. At Grandfather, it maintained a steady 125 to 130 miles Thursday morning.

At 9:50 a.m., the National Weather Service equipment atop the visitors center recorded wind velocity at 154 miles per hour. This was well above the 14-year-old record of just under 145 miles.

Barkley called the news media to announce the new record. Less than an hour later he called back to say gusts of 161.2 were being recorded.

Grandfather Mountain is a hang-gliding center from May through October. Winds most of the time are below 30 miles per hour — the maximum considered safe for hang-gliding.

Besides being windy, it was mild today. The sun shone through, impeded only by an occasional wisp of cirrus clouds. These were caused by the jet stream which was over North Carolina.

High temperatures today were in the 60s in the mountains and around 70 elsewhere.

A weak, dry, cold front will cross the state this evening, preceded by strong westerly winds. The front will begin to stall as it pushes its way to the south of North Carolina. A low-pressure wave likely will develop on the front, and move toward the state Saturday. This means increasing cloudiness from west to east tonight and a chance of rain in the mountains, beginning early Saturday morning.

The chance of rain will likely begin during mid-day over the southern Piedmont and late in the day over the south coast.

It will be cool again tonight. There will be some upper 20s in the mountains. The range will be to around 40 degrees on the coast.

Temperatures will not be as high Saturday because of the increased cloud cover and northeasterly breezes. Afternoon readings will be in the 50s in the mountains and around 60 elsewhere.

Sunday looks partly cloudy and cool. Highs will be in the 50s, except 40s in the mountains.

It averaged about 60 Thursday. The warmest were Charlotte and Wilmington, both reaching 69. Coolest were Boone and Fletcher with 51.

Seattle Is Combatting Exodus Of Residents

By BOB ENGLE

Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — This Northwest metropolis, sometimes called as one of the nation's most livable cities, has started running television commercials aimed at keeping its middle-income residents.

A January 1976 survey of 30 cities by Harpers Magazine ranked Seattle No. 1 in livability. That magazine and The Atlantic magazine described Seattle, cradled by two snow-capped mountain ranges, Puget Sound and two lakes, as an urban jewel.

But the city of about 504,000 persons faces the plight of uglier metropolitan areas — a flight to the suburbs by middle-income families.

"All our studies show that while our population has stabilized, even increased slightly, we're becoming a city of elderly and young, unmarried professionals," said Paul Schell, city director of community development. "The middle-income class of people as a per cent of our population is substantially diminishing."

The 30-second TV spots, financed by $2,000 in tax money plus some private contributions, made their debut Thursday on Seattle's three commercial stations, which will air them free of charge as a public service.

The ads show the diversity of the citizens, point out landmarks unique to Seattle and show disadvantages of buying property inside the city limits — lower taxes, more public transportation.

Schell said the ad effort was prompted in part by the specter of East Coast cities that withered before much was done to save them.

"The seeds are there that exist in the Eastern cities that are in trouble today — a diminishing resource base, a dwindling of the population in the middle income bracket," he said.

School records show that 3,500 pupils left Seattle for the suburbs this year, while about 1,900 new pupils were enrolled in the city school system.

The families are going mostly to suburbs within a 30-mile radius of the downtown, seeking better schools, a lower crime rate and bigger houses at lower costs, Schell said.

But police say the city crime rate has decreased slightly in the last year. And although suburban school pupils rank better on achievement tests, officials think that may have more to do with their home environments than the quality of the schools.

Appeals Firing From N.C. Post

RALEIGH (AP) — A

sensational over possibly missing records concerning the firing of Donald K. Ingle from his $35,000 a year job as director of the State Human Relations Commission.

Ingle said Thursday he had appealed his firing by Administration Secretary Bruce Lentz.

"I also plan to hire an attorney and take any other action I possibly can," Ingle said.

The 41-year-old Ingle is a former representative from Forsyth County who took over the human relations post in January 1975.

Ingle said he was accused by Lentz of not reporting information he gave a newsmen in an interview last Friday. He said he had mailed Lentz a report of the conversation but it had not reached Lentz by time reporters queried him.

missing files would have helped the Wilmington 10 in their effort to be released from prison where they are serving long terms for disorders in Wilmington several years ago.

Ingle said he told the reporter there were indications some of the files were missing but he did not know definitely if they were.

Lentz was not available for comment, but William Dea, assistant administration secretary said, "There were numerous reasons why he (Ingle) was fired, but we can't go into them because of the appeal process."

A Shelby native, Ingle is a former marine. He is a former employee of the Western Electric Co. and of the Economic Development Administration of the Department of Commerce.

$239,029 For ECU In Grants

A total of $239,029 in grants from state and federal government agencies and private sources was awarded East Carolina University during October.

The largest grant, an award of $126,400, was given the ECU School of Nursing by the U.S. Public Health Service. The funds will support ECU's Nursing Capitation Grant Program.

The Public Health Service also awarded Dr. Richard H.L. Marks of the ECU School of Medicine $3,721 for his research on structure-function relationships in copper proteins.

Dr. Hisham A. Barakat, also of the ECU medical faculty, received 2,500 from the N.C. Heart Association for his study of lipid catabolism and heart disease.

Two grants were awarded for projects in the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions: $41,555 from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a long-term training program in rehabilitation counseling, and $22,500 from the Scottish Rite Foundation to continue an aphasia and dyslexia program.

A total of $25,503 was given ECU for its Head Start Supplementary Training/Child Development Associate program, coordinated by the ECU School of Home Economics and the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Dr. John Richard of the ECU School of Education received funding in the amount of $8,850 from UNC-Chapel Hill for a special education project.

Changes Seen In Operas Jail Chef Serves Fancy Fare

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Arts Writer

Grand opera is shucking its old image of blue-haired dowager audiences and obese singers for growing popularity on the national culture scene.

The trend has been gathering momentum for about a decade, and during this Bicentennial year has flowered impressively. Maria F. Rich, head of the Central Opera Service, which collates opera statistics, summarizes the 1975-76 season this way: "More American companies gave more performances of more American operas with more American singers for larger American audiences, disbursing more dollars into the American economy than ever before."

According to Mrs. Rich, 913 amateur, college and professional troupes — 106 more than the previous season — gave 7,109 performances of 427 works.

Included were 179 operas by American composers, 45 being done for the first time. Themes ranged from the historic, such as "Bilby's Doll" about Salem witch-hunts, by Carlisle Floyd, to Leon Kirchner's "Lily," based on a story by the Nobel-winning novelist Saul Bellow.

Getting all those shows on for an estimated total audience of nine million (up 1 million in two years) pumped $200 million into the country's economy through direct and secondary expenditures, the Central Opera Service reported.

The biggest income source, the box office, varies widely. Baltimore and the Civic Opera of Palm Beach sell out completely on subscriptions. Nine troupes go SRO on combined season and individual ticket sales. Only five of the 65 companies with budgets over $100,000 registered less than 70 per cent attendance.

At best, however, such revenue covers only about two-thirds of operating costs.

State government support is most conspicuous in New York, Michigan and Delaware. Municipal assistance is almost imperceptible. Private philanthropy continues to be the main liquidator of deficits.

As costs spiraled, the companies banded for mutual help.

Joint auditions for young hopefuls, exchange of management ideas and cooperative productions are among the main objectives at Opera America, which has recruited 43 members in 29 states, including such major units as the Metropolitan, New York City Opera, San Francisco, Chicago Lyric and Boston.

The Metropolitan, four times bigger than anyone else with a $28 million budget, will present a borrowed production on Nov. 19, for the first time in its history: a staging of Massenet's "Euclarmonde" borrowed from San Francisco.

San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, Ore., shared costs for "Werther," also by Massenet. Wagner's monumental "Ring" cycle was done as a joint project by St. Paul, San Diego, Washington, Houston and Seattle.

"Thais," initiated by Baltimore and Miami, was rented by Seattle and Washington; "Daughter of the Regiment," was shared by San Diego and Houston, "Otello" by Houston and Washington.

Evident everywhere is the determination to attract larger audiences by programming new works, staging familiar classics with daring concepts, and performing foreign favorites in English instead of Russian, French, German or Italian.

"I believe in updating the opera, without changing the basic opera," says Maestro Nicola Resigno of the Dallas Civic Opera.

"The main things are singing in English, with curvaceous instead of voluminous leading ladies," reports Detroit's Michigania Opera.

Missionary work among the young and into communities unfamiliar with opera also engage considerable management attention from coast to coast.

One of the most active programs is conducted by the San Francisco association. For 10 years it has sent a troupe on six months' tour with four productions to remote towns in Alaska and to Indian reservations. Another unit does one-hour lunchtime shows to indoctrinate the uninitiated without overwhelming them.

Opera enthusiasts are keenly aware, too, of how grassroots interest in the art — invented 400 years ago by a group of Florentine esthetes and long a diversion for only the very rich — has been nourished by radio. San Francisco and Chicago regularly broadcast full operas on regional networks. The Metropolitan has been on the air for 45 years, 37 with a single sponsor. From "Aida" to "Zauberflote," over 650 performances have gone out over a 260-station network.

The Met's production director, John Dexter, was long a leading light of British theater but now finds opera "much more absorbing." He hopes to do unfamiliar works — such as this season's "Dialogues of the Carmelites" by Francis Poulence — by borrowing sets and costumes from other productions.

For years many young singers have gone abroad to launch careers, finding roles first with small European opera houses and coming home only after winning their way up to major ensembles.

"Perhaps," says Mrs. Rich of the Opera Service, "1975-76 was the turning point, since it gave record employment in opera to American artists ... All major companies reported a much greater employment of American artists."

The Metropolitan listed 114 natives among 159 soloists; and the New York City Opera ro-

Santa Fe New Mexican
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A Santa Fe police chief once said people tried to get thrown in jail to feast on meals created by jail cook Juan Roybal — whose culinary career included 23 years as a chef for a major restaurant chain.

While it's difficult to imagine a link between crime in Santa Fe and the cuisine at the city jail, there is little doubt the meals from Roybal's recipes are among the best served to occupants of New Mexico jails.

Roybal, 58, began his career in the Fred Harvey Restaurant in Lu Fonda under the direction of chef Conrad Algire.

"Algire was one of the best chefs in the country," Roybal said.

"He taught me how to cook and make my own recipes." Roybal said that after he left there he worked as a chef in various California resort hotels.

Roybal returned to Santa Fe in 1972 and it didn't take him long to quiet food complaints from the cellblocks.

"I do all the cooking from my own recipes," Roybal said. "I like to try different things and ingredients to make the food taste better. My recipes are better than any from recipe books."

The menu favorites range from French toast for breakfast to chicken a la king for dinner — with Roybal's personal touch.

"They (prisoners) don't complain about the food, but they do complain about not having different entrees like the big restaurants do."

Roybal said he's had only one problem with his "clientele," but claims it wasn't his fault.

"Oh, about two years ago, some inmates didn't like the food so they threw it at me," he said. "But now Miller (chief Rudy Miller) sees to it that we get better quality food for the prisoners. And the preparation is the best."

Roybal said he enjoys cooking holiday meals.

"We can make turkey or baked ham and all the trimmings," he said. "The prisoners really enjoy the food for the holidays."

After cooking all day at the city jail, Roybal goes home, where he can get away from the stove.

A widower, he lives with his daughter, Rosina, one of his seven children.

"At home, they don't let me cook," he said.

You can use either dry or prepared mustard in an oil-and-vinegar dressing for salads. A half teaspoon of dry mustard or a whole teaspoon of prepared mustard is a good proportion to use with a cup of oil and a quarter cup of vinegar.

Club Bazaar Is Planned

The Greenville Junior Woman's Club will sponsor a Christmas bazaar Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

The bazaar will feature Christmas crafts by club members including Christmas tree skirts, stockings, ornaments, baskets, spice braids, Advent calendars and other items.

Proceeds will go to Pitt County Needy Children's Christmas Fund.

The bazaar is open to the public.

Secretaries Plan Meet

The Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association will hold its meeting Monday at the Three Steers.

Dinner will be served at 6:15 p.m. and the meeting will begin at seven o'clock.

Ms. Gladys Doer will speak on "Business Outlook for Women." Members and guests planning to attend are asked to contact Barbara Evans, 758-3436.

Dear Abby

Neighbor Delivers A Heart To Heart

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING, concerning a neighbor who was wearing out her welcome, is similar to the problem I encountered. This neighbor would pop in on me often, and always without notice. Sometimes I was entertaining a relative or another friend, and frequently I had a lot of work to do and no time for a social visit. I became frustrated and didn't know how to tell her without hurting her feelings.

Finally, in desperation, I took this nice neighbor into my bedroom and closed the door. Then I explained that I really liked her and valued her friendship, but there were times when I wanted to be alone with my friends or family, and as a favor to me to please phone to see if it was all right to come over.

She was very understanding, and thanked me for being honest with her. Now she visits me less often and always phones first. Today we are the best of friends.

Abby, if we could all speak our minds honestly and with love, we could accomplish much.

G. S. IN VA.

DEAR G. S.: Read on for a letter from a woman who lacked your compassion and lived to regret it!

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently retired woman who once enjoyed a successful and fulfilling business career. I've remained single by choice.

I live alone, but I'm far from lonely. I have all the friends I want. I like my privacy and have never encouraged visitors to drop in.

The high-rise in which I live has excellent security, and no one gets into the building without being screened.

One evening about 7:30, there was a knock on my door. I wasn't expecting anyone so I asked who was there. It was a widow who lives on my floor, and with whom I had had only a nodding acquaintance. She said she was "lonely," and didn't know what to do with herself, and asked if she could come in and visit for a while.

I told her politely but bluntly that I was busy, and didn't approve of visitors dropping in without phoning first. (I have an unlisted phone number, which I did not give her.) She apologized for bothering me and left.

Abby, I've always felt that people who intrude on others should be treated with the same lack of consideration they give those upon whom they intrude. I felt quite proud of myself for not getting trapped by a bore who would probably be difficult to get rid of.

The next evening a friend telephoned to ask if I knew the woman in my building who had committed suicide the night before.

If you have already guessed that she was the woman who knocked on my door, you are right.

Do We Let Lawbreakers Go?

Add to the problems that are facing next year's General Assembly and the administration of the new governor Jim Hunt: what to do about the state's overcrowded prison system?

The chairman of a legislative committee on prison reform says that the state must begin releasing some prisoners due to overcrowding.

Eddie Knox, a former state senator and chairman of the commission, says that prisoners could be given a day's credit for each good behavior day to facilitate early release. Knox said, "... we're going to have to get some of them out of there."

"The ideal way to solve our problems would be to have fixed sentences, plenty of courts, and a guarantee that everybody gets the same treatment," Knox said in an interview, "but our state simply can't pay for that."

There are now more than 13,000 prisoners in space designed for around 10,000.

The Knox Commission plans to present an orderly picture of the prison system, who goes to prison, their sentences, with recommendations on how to improve the system.

It is no secret that North Carolina's prison system is badly overcrowded. Efforts have been made to finance the needed prison facilities but those efforts have fallen short. It is difficult to persuade the taxpayers to pay for facilities to house those who break the law.

An Indicator Of Healthy Industries

The FCX feed mill at Farmville has been an important part of the county's economy for 15 years, and now it is going to be modernized.

FCX Inc. Thursday announced a $1.5 million remodeling which will nearly double the Farmville facility.

President and General Manager Marvin Mc-

Clam cited "increasing demands for poultry and livestock feeds by Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina farmers."

That indicates a healthy situation for the poultry and livestock industries. It reflects in improved FCX facilities at Farmville, and we are pleased to see FCX's continued faith in the area.

THIS AFTERNOON

It Takes Money To Serve

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A sluggish recovery from recession is putting out danger signals to state governmental experts now getting ready for the January convening of the General Assembly.

"All of us are feeling uneasy about revenues, and that comes first — before the government can run any endeavor, serve any people," says Lt. Gov.-elect James C. Green as he goes through the paces of getting ready for his own inauguration, and convening of the Legislature on Jan. 12.

The budget, Green feels, will be the most important business of the General Assembly.

"The budget is going to control everything else: what we can do in public education, work on parks, building highways..." Green said during an interview in his cluttered office as he prepared to move from the western side of the Legislative Building where he has occupied the office of Speaker of the House, to the eastern side where the lieutenant governor makes his headquarters.

Base Budget
He is not ready to talk about how he will handle committee assignments and appointments of chairmen in the Senate — to do so would be presumptuous before the Senate meets to organize, he said.

But in light of the faltering state income picture, he will definitely move to put into operation in the Senate a Base Budget Committee which he inaugurated two years ago in the House of Representatives.

That new committee — roundly criticized from some quarters — was designed to take a close look at the state's continuation budget, recommending areas in which cuts could be made. Traditionally, the continuation budget has been rubber-stamped, while only expansion pending got a close examination. Green hopes the House will retain the Base Budget review, while the concept is expanded to the Senate in the coming year.

"It has been proven to be a real important function, and members of the Legislature feel it to be a necessary exercise, particularly in light of the state's economy," Green said.

Given the economic condition, can the state move ahead with needed programs without a tax increase?

"Yes... it can," Green thinks. "There should be no need for a tax increase, and that is the reason that the Base Budget operation is necessary and imperative. It allows us to re-order our priorities, and do away with unnecessary spending, with eyewash, and window-dressing."

All Democrats
Green does not think the fact that he, the governor-elect, and the legislative leadership are all Democrats will automatically give every legislative proposal clear-sailing. The Legislature has been accused of attempting to "strip" the Republican administration of a number of powers and prerogatives during the past four years.

On many fronts, legislators have moved to assume control over administrative activities. Will that effort continue with Democrats in office?

"Most veteran legislators have a clear understanding of the responsibilities of the executive and legislative... each accepts that responsibility, and will carry out duties cooperatively."

"I am a firm believer in the committee process, and I would hope that all legislative proposals will be considered on merit... we should not consider them based on whether sponsored by a Democrat or a Republican... but on merit, aired, and debated openly," Green said.

Green thinks his job as lieutenant governor should be a full-time one, that there are many jobs he can do, and has talked about his role with Gov.-elect James B. Hunt, Jr. "He is aware I am a hard worker, and available for whatever assignments present themselves from him, or from the Legislature."

His special interests would lie in industrial development, Green said, and in working with local governmental officials to resolve problems between the state and local levels of government.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter's Major Problem

By ROWLANE EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
BRUSSELS — The gradual shift of Soviet military forces from defensive to offensive, a growing source of worry for NATO military leaders, has now escalated to the point that some diplomatic and political leaders in Belgium and other Western European countries have become for the first time genuinely alarmed.

One such leader here told us that "NATO's strength is too close to the minimum today to be comfortable."

This reluctant conclusion is the handmaiden of another fear: that détente has now been found dangerously wanting as a political device to interlock East and West and thus crimp Moscow's fantastic progress toward what Gen. Alexander M. Haig, the NATO commander, calls an "imperial" phase.

Indeed, there are many leading indicators at NATO headquarters here that the Warsaw Pact is now at the threshold (some think well beyond it) of a military capability to make a lightning-like attack against Western Europe patterned after the World War II German Blitzkrieg. Yet, concern runs high that the political impact of advertising such a Soviet capability might damage the leaders of political parties in power in NATO countries. They might find themselves suddenly asked: how have you allowed this to happen?

Accordingly, the deepening concern among military leaders — and important segments of Europe's political leadership — about the transformation of Soviet conventional power in Central Europe from defensive to offensive is publicly voiced only by indirectness. For example, no word has leaked out about the Soviet Union's astonishing new technology for throwing temporary bridges over rivers, scarcely an art in defensive warfare.

Behind the scenes, however, President Ford (regarded in Europe as its best friend and truest Atlanticist since Dwight Eisenhower) has empowered NATO Ambassador Robert Strausz-Hupe to brief both his colleagues here and throughout Europe on NATO's gloomy but realistic perceptions.

As a long-time anti-Soviet hardliner, who has spent his diplomatic life promoting Atlantic unity, Strausz-Hupe needed little prodding. He has been pounding home his warning against lowered Western defenses and for new steps toward Atlantic unity not only to politicians but also to non-Communist left-wing youth groups of such parties as the ruling West German Social Democrats (SPD). He is being listened to.

Few if any NATO leaders here, either military or political, believe Moscow has any intention of using its immense superiority in forces and weapons to make a surprise attack (although most believe such an attack could have devastating effect under certain conditions).

The Soviet objective is seen differently. By continuing to allocate forces and weapons to its Western front in a display of frightening numerical superiority, Moscow is aiming at two things:

First, to bully Western Europe, which is in the midst of yet another batch of grave political and economic problems, into the colossal and fraudulent belief that since the future lies with Communism, the military defense of Western Europe is quite hopeless, and certainly futile.

Second, to concentrate the West's attention on Europe, permitting far more latitude to the Soviet Union for what Haig calls "peripheral" runs against the West: in Angola, for example.

That leaves unanswered this rock-bottom question: under the very best of cir-

Inaugural 'Woodstock'

WASHINGTON — The word has just been passed that Jimmy Carter is inviting 300,000 to 400,000 campaign workers and friends to his inauguration in Washington, D.C. Naturally, those of us who live in the capital are thrilled to hear that so many people will be coming here on Jan. 20. There won't be anything like it since Woodstock.

I believe Mr. Carter's decision to send out so many invitations proves he doesn't know Washington at all. We really don't have that many hotels in the area. We can handle an American Bankers Convention, and we just manage to accommodate the Daughters of the American Revolution when they come to town every spring. But when you talk about housing and feeding 300,000 or 400,000 people from all parts of the country, Mr. Carter is going to have a problem.

Even if he uses the indoor swimming pool and the Oval Office for sleeping quarters, I can't see him able to put up more than 10,000 people at the White House. Since the weather forecasters are predicting a very cold winter, not too many supporters will want to camp on the Mall or the Capitol steps.

Of course, Mr. Carter could open up the federal buildings and invite people to sleep there, but that would mean displacing thousands of federal employees who are sleeping in them already.

There may be an effort on the part of the Carter Inaugural Committee to ask Washington residents to take people into their homes. I'm not sure what kind of reaction they would get.

I called up Sen. Bob Dole and asked him if he would be willing to take in any guests coming to the Carter inauguration, and he hung up on me. Henry Kissinger said that, unfortunately, Nancy was redecorating their house in Georgetown, and they wouldn't have any room. The Fords said they would be packing at the time and couldn't take anyone in, and Teddy Kennedy told me he would be happy to put someone up, but, unfortunately, he has only one bedroom.

Even if we could find rooms for everybody, the question is how could we feed them? There are only 15 Kentucky Fried Chicken stands in all of Washington, 18 McDonald's hamburger outlets, 17 Burger Chets and 12 Hot Shoppes.

The only experience Washington has had with handling so many people at one time was when the Veterans of World War I came to town during the Hoover Administration to protest their lack of bonuses, and Gen. MacArthur was ordered to drive them out of town.

In recent years we've dealt with mobs — during the Nixon Administration thousands of students came to Washington to protest the Vietnamese war. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell handled the problem by rounding everyone up, arresting them and locking them up in the R.F.K. Stadium, which can't handle more than 51,000 people at one time.

Whether Mr. Carter would want to go to this extreme to handle his guests is something I don't know.

We admire the President-elect for wanting so many people to come to his inaugural, but we question his judgment in not thinking through what it will do to the town. We have about four places that can handle inaugural balls, so the majority of people will have to dance in the streets, possibly in the

Hunt's Budget Plans

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Steps to see that some of Gov.-Elect Jim Hunt's campaign promises are carried out are being taken by Gov. Jim Holshouser and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Hunt told his news conference Thursday that Holshouser and the budget commission have agreed to include in the budget recommendations they are preparing for the 1977 General Assembly recommendations to carry these Hunt promises:

- $15 million for a reading program in the schools.
- $2 million for a speedy trials program in the courts.
- $2 million for a community schools program.
- Provisions for use of temporary facilities as prisons to relieve prison overcrowding within 180 days.

Hunt told reporters he would also ask the legislature to provide a pay raise for teachers and state employees. He said he would propose to "start with a cost-of-living raise and then go as far as we can beyond that."

Hunt agreed that "anything below a cost-of-living raise would not be reasonable."

While discussing the new four-year medical school at East Carolina University, Hunt said, "I will do all that I can to see it is ready to admit students next fall." He had been asked about reports that opening of the med school may be delayed past next fall.

Hunt reiterated that his first executive order as governor will be to set up a code of ethics for the executive branch of state government.

He told the Associated Press following the news conference that he wants the 1977 General Assembly to reinstate the death penalty, at least for first-degree murder.

Hunt said he expects state employees in policy-making positions to submit resignations by time he is inaugurated. He said not all the resignations would be accepted and that other state employees have no cause to fear for their

40 Years Ago Today

Nov. 19, 1936
The East and Midwest, gripped by a cold wave which tumbled temperatures generally to sub-freezing marks, received predictions of slowly rising temperatures today with hope of relief within the next 24 hours.

Many Eastern communities reported record seasonal lows for the date as the penetrating cold dipped as far south as Virginia and several main counties found roads blocked by heavy snowdrifts.

Severe storms at sea impeded shipping and arrival of at least four liners in New York was delayed by the heavy weather.

In contrast to the Eastern weather, unseasonable warmth prevailed on the Pacific coast. San Francisco's 81 yesterday marked the highest reading for the date in that city in four years.

While residents of Eastern and Midwestern states were shivering in bitter cold today, Greenville citizens experienced the coldest weather of the season.

The official reading at 8 a.m. showed that the mercury dropped to 27 degrees during the night.

Ice was in evidence this morning for the first time of the season. The weather bureau forecast warmer weather tomorrow.

Strength For Today

FEAR OF HELL
Some Christians develop an obsessive fear of hell which not only tortures them but also blinds them to the more hopeful and inspiring aspects of the gospel. Centuries ago an English theologian, Sir Thomas Browne, had some very sensible words to say about hell which might be pondered by Christians today.

SIR THOMAS BROWNE, I was never afraid of hell nor ever grew pale at the description of the place. I have so fixed my contemplation on heaven that I have almost forgot the idea of hell; and am afraid rather to lose the joys of one than endure the misery of the other. I fear God, yet am not afraid of Him; His mercies make me ashamed of my sins. I can scarcely think that there was ever any scared into heaven; they go the fairest way to heaven that would serve God without a hell."

This wholesome old teacher was certainly correct. The thing to fear is not hell, but the decimating power of sin which leads men into hell. An enjoyment of God will do much more good than morbid thinking about pain and punishment.

Watching Big Bank Loan Trend

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Bankers, government officials and economists are closely watching the trend of commercial and industrial loans at New York City banks for clues to the immediate economic future.

Interest is especially keen because of the huge falloff in such loans ever since the economy began to emerge from the recession of 1973-1974.

Based on previous recovery patterns, a fairly robust recovery in loans should be due in the early months of the administration of President Carter, but the prospect at this time remains a bit uncertain.

The big decline isn't totally unexplained, because the growth of loans relative to growth in Gross National Product traditionally begins to lag as the economic recovery begins.

But the decline between January 1975 and this past September was unusually severe, "the largest and longest-lasting drop in loans since the 1930s," according to Citibank. It measured the decline at 21 per cent.

In the aftermath of other recessions since the 1960s, loan growth also slowed and briefly turned negative. Nevertheless, the year-to-year growth in such loans has been positive.

It is only in the past two years that there have been actual year-to-year declines, rather than intrayear declines that became averaged out in the annual statistics.

The big bank-holding company, parent of First National City Bank, nevertheless is optimistic that demand should pick up during the first quarter of 1977. In fact, it finds indications that the resumption of demand already might be under way.

Outside New York City, it notes, loan portfolios of all commercial banks have been rising at an annual rate of 9 per cent since June, and that since Labor Day an increase in business loan demand has been observed here also.

This, too, follows the patterns after the recessions of 1960-1961 and 1969-1970, in which "outside" banks began to observe strength in loans before the larger and far more highly publicized banks here.

Say Bureaucrats Block Removal Of Chipmunks

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The W.R. Kelly Jr. family has chipmunks in the attic. Mrs. Kelly thinks the bureaucrats who have hindered efforts to get rid of them may have bats in their belfry.

After poisons, mouse traps and the Kelly's cats failed to dislodge the estimated 30 chipmunks, the family turned to a professional exterminator. But he said chipmunks are a protected species, and can be disturbed only by a special permit from the State Wildlife Resources Commission.

The Kellys asked the commission for a permit. What they got back was an application for a permit to kill deer "injurious to agriculture."

Richard Hamilton, the commission's assistant executive director, says that was a mistake or a misunderstanding. But he added that he won't grant a permit just because the Kellys are annoyed by the animals. The chipmunks "would have to be detrimental to somebody's mental or physical well-being," he said in a telephone interview from the state capital in Raleigh.

He said he would have an agent investigate the situation at the home in a fashionable section of Charlotte. This is the first time the Kellys have been invaded by chipmunks in the 11 years they have lived in the house.

"The chipmunks emerged victorious," Mrs. Kelly wrote this week in a letter of frustration to Gov.-elect Jim Hunt and state legislators from her county of Mecklenburg. "save one lone chipmunk whose tail was caught in a mouse trap. After clapping the trap about the attic floor for about an hour or more, he, too, escaped, leaving only his tail as the grim reminder of his nocturnal escapades."

Mrs. Kelly thinks the family might qualify for the extermination permit under the mental well-being clause. She says they are awakened four or five times a night by the noise of the chipmunks. Both of her sons, Richie, 11, and Kevin, 5, have awakened screaming, thinking something was in the rooms, she says, adding, "It's a loud, loud noise when it's in the wall next to your bed."

Hamilton says the chipmunks are protected because they are native to the state. "There are a lot of people who think very favorable of chipmunks and other little critters," he says.

He speculates that the attic occupants are the young from summer litters, driven out by their elders to seek new territory.

While chipmunks usually don't live with man, he says, "If they get in an attic, they sure would do quite well."

The Kellys say they can vouch for that.

Cousteau Plans A Polar Dive

PARIS (AP) — Jacques Cousteau says he and his underwater exploration team will penetrate 2,275 feet below the ice of the North Pole in 1978.

Cousteau said Thursday that the venture would be part of a larger exploration of the Lomonosov Ridge that stretches roughly from the tip of Greenland to Russia's New Siberian Islands.

I'm not predicting trouble, but I believe Mr. Carter's first act as President may have to be to call out the National Guard on Jan. 20 and declare Washington a disaster area.

Every President has a right to have the inauguration of his choice, but Mr. Carter may have bitten off more than he can chew if everyone he invites to his swearing-in agrees to come.

If the President-elect decides to go ahead with it, I think he should pardon John Mitchell and make him chairman of his Inaugural Committee. Mitchell may not have cleared the streets of Washington legally, but at least he got the job done.

cumstances, how can NATO meet the Soviet challenge if its leaders are unable to advertise that challenge?

Although Haig has succeeded in having a new U. S. brigade assigned to the vital central section of northern Germany, the trend today is down in one NATO country after another, either to ease economic problems at home or for often narrow political reasons. Even West Germany, the hard core of the alliance, is under pressure to reduce its commitment.

Thus, the answer to the question can be found in only one place: the Oval Office of President Jimmy Carter after Jan. 20. Until then, NATO leaders will lie quiet, not speaking the harsh reality that might build a mood of despair. But the new President will not be able to avoid reality.

Indeed, it is the prospect of hope in a fresh administration in Washington, more than anything else, that is holding off despair among those who know the facts and who hope President Carter will substitute reality for his previous pledges to cut defense spending.

jobs.

The governor-elect had high praise for the State Highway Patrol and declined to comment on the patrol handling of an attempted rescue of a kidnapped Virginia state trooper. The trooper was killed in the rescue effort. Hunt said the incident is being investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation and he would have no comment until the investigation is completed.

Hunt said "we do need a very close study of the juvenile justice system. That is going to take a major study commission."

Quick action is expected, Hunt said, to carry out his promise to shift the state's industry hunters from the Department of Natural and Economic Resources to the Commerce Department where it would be an independent agency. He said if legislation was necessary, he felt the General Assembly would enact it speedily.

Soviet Union Draft Boards Have Come Under Fire

BY CHARLES P. WALLACE
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's draft boards have come under fire as several hundred thousand young men brace themselves for the nation's second massive call-up of the year.

An editorial in the Defense Ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda accuses draft officials of shortcomings in the selection of new soldiers, who are inducted in vast groups each May and November.

The newspaper charges that the "regulations granting a deferment for family or other reasons are sometimes violated," suggesting that favoritism has enabled some men to escape the long reach of the draft.

Krasnaya Zvezda also reports that "young men who are physically unfit to serve in the armed forces" are being called up by the boards, which are known as military commissariats, despite their infirmities.

"It is the duty of the commissariats, local organs of power and social organizations to take all necessary steps to make the induction ceremonies a manifestation of patriotism," the newspaper said.

The article gave no estimate of the number of men affected by this year's current draft, although Western military experts believe several hundred thousands will be inducted.

The same experts have estimated the total number of men under arms at any one time at about three million, including troops who guard the vast Soviet borders.

The basis of the draft system is a 1967 law which reduced the term of service by a year to two years in the army and air force and three years in the navy. The draftee apparently has no choice about his service.

All young men become eligible for induction when they turn 18 and most are called up within six months of their birthday.

Occasional deferments appear to be granted, but as Krasnaya Zvezda indicated, officials evidently consider the number too great.

At a railroad depot on the outskirts of Moscow recently, the young soldiers could be seen marching to troop trains for transportation to various training bases.

They seemed like novice soldiers in most countries. Their heads were shaved nearly bare, they carried personal belongings in small battered suitcases and many appeared uneasy under the newly imposed discipline.

For most of the draftees, induction itself is not the beginning of their military career, but a mid-point in a program aimed at keeping the civilian population in a state of military readiness over a period of years.

The 1967 law reduced the period of actual military service but also mandated that all young men receive 140 hours of basic military instruction before induction.

In practical terms, this has meant that ninth and tenth grade high school students find they are required to take one or two classes a week in the kind of instruction that is usually reserved for boot camps in other countries.

It is not unusual to see 16-year-olds having lessons in the operation of machine guns and the destructive properties of hand grenades.

In addition, a voluntary military organization known as DOSAAF, which appears in some respects to be similar to the Civil Air Patrol in the United States, attempts to encourage young people to pursue a hobby outside the classroom which at the same time teaches a military specialty.

DOSAAF teaches such things as radio communications and airplane flying to its members, believed to number more than 20 million.

As a result, Krasnaya Zvezda estimated that a third of incoming draftees have a military specialty before entering the service, obviously relieving the military of a major burden.

Because of the pre-induction training and the nation's tight system of police controls, most young men tend to regard military service as inevitable. The phenomenon of draft dodging is unknown and there is no apparent relief for a "conscientious objector" on religious grounds.

Little information is available about what happens to the soldiers once they enter the armed services. What information there is suggests that military life is a hardship by even Soviet standards.

A private soldier receives pay amounting to about $5 a month. Housing, food and uniforms are provided free.

The daily routine for the common soldier is apparently divided between heavy physical training, which Western military experts view as far more rigorous than in the West, and a diet of heavy handed political indoctrination.

Discipline is tough. The military oath taken by each new soldier is clear about the consequences of disobedience:

"May the severe penalties of Soviet law, the overall hatred and contempt of the working masses strike me."

Krasnaya Zvezda estimates that the "absolute majority" of new soldiers are members of the Communist party or the Komsomol, its youth branch.

Army barracks are shown in the official press with "Lenin corners" and "Lenin rooms" where political study is conducted. Political officers apparently occupy a prominent role in the armed forces.

Regulations say a soldier may be granted a 10-day leave each year, but that it may be withdrawn at the order of the local commander.

Once in the army, soldiers are generally segregated from the civilian population, especially on assignments in Eastern Europe. Soldiers are occasionally seen at cultural events, but — unless on leave — they are marched in and out as a group.

Despite the large size of the Soviet armed forces, Western experts often profess to be puzzled by the enormous scope of the draft.

Electric Theft Crime Spreads

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — In the wintry Northeast, where consumers pay prices for electricity that rank among the nation's highest, power companies are being squeezed by "juice" stealers.

Stealing electricity by tampering with meters was first noticed by a Florida utility in 1970, industry sources said. It has spread to all parts of the country and appears to be flourishing in New England.

Boston Edison and New England Electric System recently mailed warning pamphlets with their bills.

Three New England Electric subsidiaries said that in 1975 they found 405 suspected cases of theft among one million customers. They billed 177 customers for $61,457 worth of stolen electricity.

Through September of this year, the firm said it has found 1,521 suspicious cases, with 686 billed for a total of $130,588.

"Anybody who says his company doesn't have a problem hasn't looked for one," says Clarence F. Eckelmann of the New Orleans Public Service Co. and chairman of the security committee of the Edison Electric Institute, a trade group.

Eckelmann said utilities initially ignored the problem for fear of putting larcenous ideas in the heads of otherwise honest customers.

Most electricity thieves realize they'd be caught if their meter recorded no usage, so they disable it or install jumper wires only part of the time, or else they rig their meter so it runs slow.

An apartment house owner here told a friend he disables his meters for the middle two weeks between the meter reader's monthly visits.

John Walsh of Boston Edison said the relatively new crime apparently "cuts across all the socio-economic categories."

New England Electric said it has prosecuted 23 cases this year. Boston Edison said it prefers civil to criminal remedies. In Massachusetts, the maximum penalty for stealing electricity is a $100 fine and a year in jail.

Most cases of theft are uncovered by meter readers, but some are found when computers spot a suspiciously low bill. Sometimes neighbors tattle.

Bill Messer, of the New England Gas & Electric Association, said some people offer, for a price, to "cut your bills in half."

Two men have been charged with larceny for allegedly selling such services to 25 Hyannis, Mass., motels, liquor stores and restaurants, he said. A similar case was reported in Rhode Island.

Govm't Plans Promote Flu Shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is going to make a special effort, including nationwide television and radio ads, to convince blacks and other city residents to get swine flu shots.

Dr. Delano Meriwether, director of the federal program and a black, said he will meet with the Rev. Jesse Jackson in Chicago today and Saturday to develop a strategy for overcoming the distrust particularly felt by urban blacks toward the immunization program. The TV and radio ads will begin next week. Meriwether said early public information programs tended to be directed elsewhere.

Aside from the low turnout among blacks and other city dwellers, federal officials said Thursday more than 20 million Americans have gotten free flu shots so far and the program is gaining momentum.

But Meriwether said "I am particularly concerned that people living in our cities, especially black people, have not been taking advantage of the flu vaccine."

"If there is an epidemic, it will spread like wildfire in our crowded city areas," he said.

"And disadvantaged people in these areas, who still have the least access to good health care, will be those who suffer the most."

The immunization rate in large cities is running at only about half the state rates. Only 3.5 per cent of New York City's eligible population got flu shots by last weekend, for example, compared with 8.2 per cent for the New York State average.

In other large cities, 8.8 per cent had been immunized in Chicago, 7.6 per cent in Indianapolis, 5.8 per cent in Houston, 15 per cent in San Antonio, 7.2 per cent in Philadelphia and 19.3 per cent in Washington, D.C.

Meriwether told a news conference that blacks and other poor city residents traditionally do not participate in public health programs, perhaps because they are "suspicious about big government, a federal effort," he said.

"I can only emphasize that the vaccine is safe and it works," he said. "It will keep you from getting swine flu. The shot doesn't hurt, and it can't give you the flu."

Fourteen per cent of the 135 million Americans over 18 got flu shots by last weekend, a record in recent years, said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mass immunization of healthy youngsters aged 3 to 18 years is not planned now by the government because there's only enough vaccine for about 4 million of the 40 to 50 million children in that age group.

Says Probe To Be Monumental

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., says the House Committee on Assassinations will launch a "monumental" investigation to write the final chapters in the deaths of President John Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

"Sixty-five per cent of the people in America do not believe that (Lee Harvey) Oswald was the single assassin of Kennedy," Preyer said. "That means they disagree with the Warren Commission's findings...That means they are also questioning our institutions and our agencies and they'll keep on questioning until there is an answer to it."

Preyer, named chairman of the subcommittee on the Kennedy assassination, said he wants the examination to be "definitive so that people can look at it and say this is the way it was."

"What we want to do is to follow every lead...I think we can run down every question as far as it will go," he said. "It's going to be a monumental investigative job."

The committee will have a staff of 170 persons, the 6th District Congressman said. Allegations about the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency's role in the Warren Commission, he said, make the large staff necessary.

"The Warren Commission had its own staff of 83, plus 150 fulltime FBI investigators, 12 fulltime CIA people, 60 fulltime Secret Service people and another number of people from the Justice Department and State Department," he said.

Preyer said he hasn't read extensively on the assassinations, and said the committee's legal counsel suggested he not begin reading books and magazine articles before the probe begins because of the possibility of developing biases.

The program will cost the airlines between $5 billion and $8 billion, Coleman said. The government might help the airlines finance some of the cost. But Coleman said all details will be worked out after a public hearing on the financing in December.

The new requirements apply to 1,654 planes — more than three-fourths of all jets now in use domestically by U.S. airlines — that were built before federal antinoise regulations went into effect in 1969.

Coleman and Federal Aviation Administrator John McLucas said at a news conference that noise will also be reduced by requiring pilots to start descents closer to airports and to make minimum use of noise-producing wing flaps, used to increase lift during takeoffs and landings. He did not say how these requirements would be enforced.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today in very active trading, encouraged by some favorable inflation news and a large bank's reduction of its prime lending rate.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up an even 3 points at 953.13, after a 12.05-point jump on Thursday.

Gainers outpaced losers by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume totalled 7.69 million shares over the first hour.

As the market opened, the government reported that its consumer price index rose 0.3 per cent in October, for the equivalent of a 3.6 per cent annual rate.

It was the smallest increase in the index in seven months.

At mid-morning, New York's morgan Guaranty Trust, the nation's sixth largest bank, cut its prime rate from 6 1/2 to 6 1/4 per cent.

It was unclear, however, whether that move would start a trend immediately.

New York's Citibank said earlier this morning it was keeping its basic rate on blue chip loans at 6 1/2 per cent.

Thursday's upsurge had been attributed largely to hopes that oil-exporting countries might delay any decision on a prime increase. But officials in Washington cautioned that they had no hard evidence that such a delay was in the offing.

City Investing was the most active NYSE issue, unchanged at 13 1/2. A 136,900-share block traded at 13 1/2.

General Motors, partially struck by members of the United Auto Workers, slipped 3/4 to 70 1/2 in active trading.

The Big Board's composite index added 22 to 54.77 in the first hour. The American Stock Exchange market value index was up .48 at 99.89.

Russians Believed Working On Long Range Bomber Capability

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military intelligence specialists believe the Russians are working on a new tanker plane that would enable the Soviet Backfire bomber to strike targets in the United States and return home.

The development could complicate U.S.-Soviet attempts to set new strategic arms ceilings, analysts say.

The new tanker, a variant of Russia's big four-engine 1176 commercial cargo plane, may be ready for use by the Soviet Air Force in 10 months, according to U.S. intelligence estimates.

The supersonic Backfire is one of what President Ford last month called "gray area weapons systems...creating some problems" in negotiations toward a new U.S.-Soviet agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

U.S. negotiators want the Backfire included under any new strategic arms limitation talks agreement. The Russians have resisted this, contending the Backfire is not an intercontinental-range weapon.

The Backfire is credited with an unrefueled combat radius of about 3,500 miles. Disagreements in the U.S. intelligence community have centered on whether the Russians intend to use the Backfire as an intercontinental weapon.

But the appearance of a new tanker aircraft likely would be taken as evidence that the Russians plan to build a fleet of tankers and use their refueling capacity to extend the Backfire's range. Then the bomber could reach targets virtually anywhere in the United States — and fly back home.

Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed said last summer that "every Backfire we see has a refueling probe on it."

Intelligence sources say Backfire pilots have practiced refueling from the older tanker planes inside the Soviet Union.

The Russians have built at least 90 Backfires so far, and U.S. intelligence analysts have forecast an eventual force of about 400 Backfires, armed with the Kitchen air-to-surface missile.

This is a 280-mile range weapon which carries a 2,200-pound warhead, either conventional or nuclear.

CHICAGO (AP) — Voter resistance to school tax hikes has grown so strong that schools face severe curtailment of services — or even collapse — unless they get more federal and state assistance, big-city school superintendents say.

"Don't think you can get the cities straightened out if you don't get the schools straightened out," Vincent Reed, superintendent of Washington, D.C., public schools told a meeting of heads of 27 major city school systems here.

The three-day conference of the Council of the Great City Schools, which opened Thursday, was called to develop urban educational priorities that the superintendents hope President-elect Jimmy Carter will adopt.

Sam Husk, council executive vice president, said he would like the federal government to add $3 billion to $4 billion to the nearly $5 billion it now pays of the $60-billion annual tab for public education.

Carter has said he favors bolstering federal educational aid by eliminating the ban on using revenue-sharing funds for schools. He also proposed creation of a separate Department of Education.

Speakers at the meeting cited the recent shutdown of several small districts in Ohio and Oregon after voters refused to pass higher tax levies. They also pointed to the struggle of many larger districts to remain solvent.

"It's created a situation in Detroit whereby we have to constantly battle just to keep our heads above water," said that city's school chief, Arthur Jefferson.

He said Detroit voters this month rejected for the second time this year a tax increase that would have brought in an estimated $38 million to the schools.

Jefferson attributed the resistance to massive urban unemployment, the "lost credibility" of schools as test scores plummet and the concentration of the poor and aged in central cities.

William Pearson, governmental relations director of St. Louis public schools, said his district tried at least half a dozen times before finally passing a tax levy last spring.

Denver Supt. Louis Kishkunas said voters in his city routinely have turned down school tax increases, adding that "this year we had to cut $11 million out of our budget because of it."

Yankees Add Gullett To Free-Agent Stable

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Atlanta Braves, who took home the prizes in past free-agent sweepstakes, are still playing the game.

The Yankees signed Catfish Hunter, the first free agent in modern times, on New Year's Eve, 1974. On Thursday, they became the first team with matching free-agent pitchers, adding left-handed Don Gullett to the right-handed Hunter.

When Hunter's auction was held, he was the only player eligible. The law of supply and demand escalated his value to a five-year package worth $3.5 million. With 24 free agents available this time, money isn't being thrown around as readily. Gullett signed a six-year contract worth in the neighborhood of $2 million.

That's a little more than Gary Matthews got for moving south to Atlanta to join the 1975 free-agent, pitcher Andy Messersmith. Matthews, a strong offensive and defensive outfielder, will receive $1.75 million over five years to play with the Braves.

That's not a bad pay raise considering the fact that Matthews made $46,000 with San Francisco in 1975, asked for $65,000 in 1976 but was only offered $60,000 by the Giants.

Matthews, 26, turned down a higher offer of more than $2 million from the Montreal Expos. Higher income taxes in Canada and the cold weather were factors in that decision.

Matthews, a lifetime .285 hitter with the Giants, said Thursday at the press conference announcing his signing that he was happy "to get out of the cold on the West Coast."

Gullett is changing leagues, moving from the biggest winner in baseball, the Cincinnati Reds, to the American League champion Yankees.

"I'm coming to a winning baseball team," said Gullett. "I can't wait to get started."

Gullett won the opening game of the World Series against the Yankees, but left the game early because of a dislocated tendon in his ankle. He says the ankle is fine.

"Don Gullett was one of the premier guys we wanted," said Yankee owner George Steinbrenner. "You can't argue with his won-loss record." The 25-year-old Gullett was 11-3 with a 3.00 earned run average in 1976. Lifetime, he's 91-44 in seven NL seasons.

Also hot on the trail of Gullett were the Los Angeles Dodgers, who considered Gullett a modern-day Sandy Koufax. The Dodgers haven't had a power-pitching left-hander since Koufax retired in 1966.

Dye Glad To Have Open Date

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina University football team is trying to "get back to basics" after its loss last week to Furman University. They have a little extra time this week because of the switch in game time to suit a regional television broadcast Thanksgiving night.

"I'm glad of the extra time," Coach Pat Dye said. "It gives us a chance to get our game plan in with plenty of time. We're working on fundamentals. We've had a lot of contact work in trying to work against the Appalachian offense. And we've got to get our offense back to fundamentals if we are to have a chance to win."

Dye said this phase of practice has been neglected too long, mainly due to injuries on the offensive team. "But we've gotten worse and worse in execution. So we have to take a chance on getting someone hurt in practice to get ready for this one."

With the Furman game went the chance for a perfect Southern Conference season. And it also cost the Pirates a chance to sew up the league title prior to playing Appalachian. Now the Bucs must win, or tie, to gain their top goal of the year—the Southern title.

Dye put the Pirates through a live scrimmage session yesterday. "It's like (Thursday) was Saturday for us. We're working our sessions along these lines to get ready for next Thursday. I feel like things will go well during these last few days. But we have to get ready on the practice field, and we haven't been doing that in recent weeks."

Dye said that the "human element" was one of the reason for the Pirates problems. "It's difficult to tell people they are doing something wrong when they are winning, despite the way we've been doing it. We're working hard now," he added, "but I'm not convinced yet that we're ready to win."

The coach is pleased with the open date. "There's no question that it will help us. We took three days off. We're not looking at each other now getting ready to play Saturday. There's no mental stain this week. Maybe we've gotten stale. Somehow I haven't been able to keep them in the right momentum. Whether we can get back to where we're supposed to be in a week, I don't know."

Dye said that emotions on the part of the team and on the part of the fans had gone downhill since the North Carolina game. "Somewhere along the line we've lost sight of the things that got us this far along. We didn't have it Saturday (against Furman) that's for sure."

Dye was uncertain how the nearly three weeks off would affect Appalachian. "As far as preparation, repetition on the field, and recognition of our offense and defense, it's helped them a lot. Mentally, well, I don't know."

The loss to Furman left the Pirates with an 8-2 record. They can still equal the second best season of a Pirate team with a win, and they can still win the league title.

But, Dye acknowledges, it's going to take a whole lot more effort than the Pirates came up with last Saturday. . . and maybe a few Saturdays before that.

Purple-Gold Contest Is Set For Saturday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Dave Patton puts his third East Carolina University basketball team on exhibit Saturday in the annual Purple-

Gold game, and so far, he's been pleased with the way things have gone.

The scrimmage will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. No admission is being charged.

Patton and his staff divided the team up earlier this week, with graduate assistants Billy Lee and Dan Kenny assigned to the Purple, and assistant Butch Estes handling the Gold.

Chosen for the Purple team are Larry Hunt, Ty Edwards, Don Whitaker, Tommy Williams, Herb Krusen and Louis Crosby. Picked for the Gold are Greg Cornelius, Herb Gray, Billy Dineen, Dean Hartley, Jim Ramsey and Kyle Powers.

"It's gone very well so far," Patton said in review of the first month of practice. "This does not mean we're doing everything right, but they're doing what's asked of them. They showing a tremendous amount of desire to play and to learn. They're really hustling."

Patton said there have been no major surprises or disappointments. "I'm pleased with the way some of them have been playing, especially some of the new players. They've turned out to be better than we thought they'd be at this stage."

"I've always been very strong on loyalty and I always felt there is a lot more to life than money," said Anderson. Gullett, 25, was nearing greatness after six years with the Reds, who made him their No. 1 draft choice in 1969. He joins the team the Reds humiliated during a four-game sweep last month that produced a second straight World Series title.

Sparky Unhappy

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson closed the book on Don Gullett Thursday, with anguish and disillusionment.

"The name will be dropped. I will never bring his name up again," said Anderson.

"Cincinnati is going to carry on," added Anderson, admitting he was "a little shocked" after learning that the Reds' ace left-hander had jumped to the New York Yankees for a six-year contract worth an estimated $2 million.

The loss clearly cut Anderson deeply. Despite indications that Gullett and his attorney Jerry Kapstein were cool to last-minute overtures by the Reds, Anderson was optimistic to the end that the differences might be settled.

"I've always been very strong on loyalty and I always felt there is a lot more to life than money," said Anderson.

Barnes Fails To Show Up

DETROIT (AP) — Marvin Barnes, the Detroit Pistons' problem forward, pulled another disappearing act Thursday — this time failing to show up in court and answering a gun charge. But his lawyer succeeded in getting the case adjourned until Dec. 2.

Barnes, serving his third suspension by the National Basketball Association team, showed up later Thursday for a consultation with team physician Dr. Benjamin Paolucci, who checked his injured ankle.

Attorney Neil Fink represented Barnes before Wayne County Circuit Judge James Canham in Romulus, Mich.

Barnes is charged with having an unloaded revolver in his briefcase as he was about to board an airliner.

Pirates Still Choice Of Panel

We're down to the final two picks of the year this week, and the race is still far from undecided. Last week, things tightened up considerably, and we still have a tie for first place in the standings.

George Holland and Joe Jenkins are tied this week for the lead with 78-38-4 records. Two games behind them comes Barbara Mathews with a 76-40-4 mark.

Tom Baines and Jack Whichard are tied for the next spot, Tom having fallen out of the lead. They are 75-41-4. And finally we are 73-43-4.

This week, there are some differences. We've also gone ahead and picked the East Carolina-Appalachian State game so we'll have to wait until next week to see who has the lead going into the final week. Well, not really, since everyone picked the same thing in that game.

We'll come back one more time when the bowls come around to finish things up.

But now a look at this week.
First off, Farmville Central will be entertaining White Oak in the second round of the 3-A state playoffs. The Jaguars have done a great job to this point, but they are up against their toughest opponent to date. White Oak managed to get past Havelock in conference play, no mean feat.

Still, our group likes the Jaguars. There is a 4-2 voting picking Farmville to come away with a win and a trip into the Eastern finals.

East Carolina will be hosting Appalachian State come next Thursday night in a regionally televised game. It means a lot—the Southern Conference championship.

For sure, the Mountaineers are going to come down off the hills with blood in their eyes. And the Pirates are going to have to play a whole lot better than they've been playing if they expect to win. We still think the Bucs should have wrapped it up last week, but now it's to the final game.

Our pick is as usual, however, I really thought some of us would pick ASU, but it's a 6-0 vote for the Pirates.

Other consensus picks find: North Carolina over Duke; Furman over Wofford; William & Mary over Richmond; Southern California over UCLA; South Carolina over Clemson; Maryland over Virginia; The Citadel over Davidson; VMI over Indiana State; Tennessee over Kentucky; and Texas over Baylor.

Southern Conference Shoots For Best Outside Record In Years

By The Associated Press

Four teams eligible in the Southern Conference football race take on noncounting opposition Saturday with a chance to give the league one of its best records against nonleague foes in years.

Seeing action will be William and Mary's Indians, 7-3 overall; Furman's Paladins, 5-4-1; The Citadel's Bulldogs, 5-5; and Virginia Military's Keydets, 4-5. Together with East Carolina's Pirates, 8-2, and Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 6-3-1—who play at 8:30 p. m. Thanksgiving Day for the championship—they've gone 22-9 against either nonleague opponents or teams within the conference whose games don't count.

East Carolina was 5-1 outside the league, William and Mary and The Citadel are 4-1, Appalachian was 4-2, Furman is 3-2 and VMI 2-2.

Headlining the schedule is William and Mary's battle at Richmond against the 1975 conference champion Spiders, 4-6, no longer in the conference. The winner takes home the Virginia Big Five title.

The Citadel is at home against Davidson, 2-5-1, a conference team not eligible for the title; Furman, which has won its last two starts, plays host to Wofford; and VMI, which has won three in a row, entertains Indiana State.

East Carolina, 3-1 in league play, and Appalachian, 2-1-1, had been scheduled to meet Saturday night, but the game was moved to next Thursday night and will be regionally televised.

An East Carolina victory not only would give the Pirates the title but would give second place to William and Mary, the preseason choice to finish in the cellar.

New member Marshall, 8-3, is at home against Southern Illinois Saturday afternoon. New member Tennessee-Chatanooga, 4-4-1, plays host to Bowling Green at night.

The Indians, who already have won more games than any W&M team since 1951, have upset Richmond the last two years, but the Spiders pulled a shocker of their own last week, beating Virginia Tech 16-0.

"I expect it to be a rugged, hard-fighting, emotional game. Richmond has an excellent defensive unit and a solid offense," says William and Mary Coach Jim Root.

The Indians have the league's total offense leader in sophomore quarterback Tom Rozant with 137.1 yards per game and the leading rusher in junior tailback Jim Kruis with a 109-yard average.

"They are so balanced offensively with a great passing game and outstanding runners at three key conditions," says Richmond Coach Jim Tait. "Defensively, it's going to be a lot harder to get ready than it was for either Tech or East Carolina."

VMI Coach Bob Thalman says "we have nothing but respect for Indiana State." The Keydets were idle last week, and Thalman said "we gave our players some time off and hoped some of the small injuries healed. We're thinking nothing but finishing 300."

Dunn is the conference's total offense leader with 1,599 yards, 908 of them passing. He is averaging 8.3 completions a game.

Cremins Would Like To Win Championship

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Last year, Bobby Cremins came into the Southern Conference and despite being picked for last place, his Appalachian State University Mountaineers finished in a tie for fourth.

This year, Cremins has higher hopes. He'd like to win the Southern Conference championship. And he thinks it just might be possible.

One of the principal reasons for this is that all five starters return from last year's team. However, it is more likely that all five will not be starting this year. Two newcomers might break into the lineup.

"We have the championship as our goal this year," Cremins said. Asked if he thought this was a realistic goal, he replied, "Based on how we played last year, I think it is. Of course, I'm going to have to see the other teams first before really thinking it. They may have improved a lot."

Cremins said he didn't expect to build a program in one or two years at Appalachian, but that he did think he'd reached the point where he could win in the Southern Conference.

"I think we can run more this year, too," he said. I'm not stupid enough to think I can do it against everyone on our schedule. Some of those teams would kill us if we tried that."

Topping the returning veterans is sophomore guard Darryl Robinson, who led the scoring last year with a 18.2 average. Also back is Calvin Bowser, a 6-8 forward who hit 13 points a game and 6.7 rebounds. He will be a senior this year.

Neil Hubbard, with a 10 point average, was the leading rebounder last year at 7.7. He's a 6-7 sophomore. Rounding out the returnees are 6-5 Mark Campbell and guard Bob Pace. Both are expected to take on reserve roles this year, although Cremins may start them.

Also back are subs Al Gentry and Tony Salvo.

The top additions are Walter Anderson and Tony Searcy. Both are looked to for starting duty for the Apps.

Anderson is a 5-11 guard who is tabbed by Cremins as a real sleeper. "I'm looking forward to great things from him," the coach said. He is a freshman. Searcy is a 6-7 junior, transferred as an excellent player by Cremins.

There is one other freshman, 7-1 Mike Crisman, but he is expected to see only light duty this year. "He's a year or two away yet."

Whether the Appalachian team lives up to Cremins' hopes will be seen. But if the Mountaineers come as far as they did last year, it could be their year.

Finley Taps New Manager

OAKLAND (AP) — For the 14th time since purchasing the A's franchise in 1961, Charles O. Finley has changed managers, and Jack McKeon says he is "really very thrilled" to have been chosen.

McKeon, former manager of the Kansas City Royals who piloted Atlanta's Richmond farm club in the International League last season, was given a one-year contract to lead depleted Oakland.

"It's gonna take a little patience," McKeon said Thursday in a telephone interview after returning to his home in Burlington, N.C. "We'll probably have to force-feed a few young prospects into the lineup."

"But you know Charlie, he'll find some way of getting some pretty good ballplayers. He's done it in the past, and he will do it again."

The A's have lost several star players who helped them win three straight World Series from 1972-4, most of them during the season just ended when they played out their options.

McKeon, who will be 46 Tuesday, said he was invited to Chicago where Finley offered him the job at a luncheon Thursday. Later in the day, Finley released the news from the A's office here.

"We got bombed," said Johnson after the Spurs blasted Kansas City 129-104 for their sixth straight National Basketball Association victory.

"We couldn't hit a shot. They were going in and out time after time," he moaned after Billy Paulitz scored 25 points and Larry Kenon 21, helping the Spurs hand the Kings their seventh loss in eight road games this season.

In other NBA games Thursday night, the Golden State Warriors crushed the Phoenix Suns 131-111 and the Indiana Pacers bested the Detroit Pistons 104-99.

Warriors 131, Suns 111
Rick Barry scored 24 points and Phil Smith 23 in Golden State's romp over Phoenix. Barry scored 12 in the second quarter, when teammate George Johnson grabbed nine rebounds, as the Warriors charged from a 38-35 deficit into a 46-38 lead.

Phoenix was led by Ricky Sobers with 19 points.

Pacers 104, Pistons 99
Billy Knight led a balanced Indiana attack with 23 points, helping the Pacers overcome a 30-point performance by the Pistons' Bob Lanier and end Detroit's seven-game winning streak.

Maryland Going After Third Unbeaten Team

By The Associated Press

Only twice since the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed 23 years ago has one of its football teams been able to go through a regular season undefeated. Maryland did it both times, and the Terps are expected to make it No. 3 by winning at Virginia Saturday.

The Terps, under the late Jim Tatum, were 10-0 in 1953 before losing 7-0 to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl. They were 10-0 under Tatum in 1955 and lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl again, this time 20-6.

A victory over Virginia will give Maryland an 11-0 mark and a bid to a bowl game.

Maryland has shut out Cincinnati and Clemson in its last two games. It hasn't allowed a touchdown on the ground since the second quarter of the Wake Forest game on Oct. 16. It has allowed only 11 touchdowns all season, and has yielded an averaged of only 8.5 points a game, third best in the nation. Virginia has won only two of its 10 games this season.

Two other games against traditional rivals will close out the regular season for ACC teams Saturday. Duke will be at North Carolina, which also has bowl fever, and Clemson will be home to South Carolina.

North Carolina State and Wake Forest have finished their seasons.

North Carolina, 8-2, and Duke, 5-4-1, will be meeting for the 55th consecutive year.

North Carolina's rushing game, which is sparked by Mike Voight, is averaging 232.5 yards a game. Duke is averaging 223.8 on the ground.

Voight is the league's leading rusher with 1,146 yards. Duke has three rushers with more than 500 yards. They are Art Gore, 635; Mike Dunn, 627; and Tony Benjamin, 580.

Dunn is the conference's total offense leader with 1,599 yards, 908 of them passing. He is averaging 8.3 completions a game.

Depth Is No Heel Problem

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) —

Coach Dean Smith says that depth, which was a problem on his North Carolina basketball team which won the regular-season title in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year, will be a strength time. He has 10 players returning from a club which went 25-4, including 13 straight victories.

Four of those were starters; three of them earned Olympic gold medals.

"We could have some problems with so many good players in trying to give everyone enough playing time," Smith says.

But missing from that 1975 team, which lost to Virginia in the championship playoffs, is center Mitch Kupchak.

Kupchak, standout on the Olympic team, now is with the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association. Filling the center spot is 6-foot-10 Tommy LaGarde, back with Olympic experience and 20 more pounds on his lanky frame to throw around under the goal.

"Tommy is our center," says Smith. "He's a Bob McAdoo-type shooter and he'll make a great pro. He can run and shoot and I think he's going to have an outstanding year."

One of the most exciting returning starters and another Olympic hero is Phil Ford.

"Phil Ford is faster and better this year than ever after an ankle operation, especially on defense," Smith said. "He was always adequate defensively, but now he's outstanding."

Walter Davis, who averaged 16.6 points per game last year, also is back, along with John Kuester.

Pittsburgh Has Its Back To The Wall In Battle For Super Bowl

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was a year in which Pittsburgh was supposed to set National Football League history. The team with the impenetrable Steel Curtain defense last year and the year before, was going to succeed where Green Bay and Miami had failed.

The Steelers, it was expected, would win a third straight Super Bowl.

Now, they may not even get into it. They may not surpass that first hurdle to greatness. They may not even make the playoffs.

Not that the Steelers are to be written off yet, mind you.

But time is growing short for this once-invincible band of behemoths. Naturally, the Steelers, who face the Houston Oilers Sunday, are not writing themselves off.

"We're playing like it's the last game—because every game is the last game for us," says defensive back J.T. Thomas.

Sunday's other NFL games are Cincinnati at Kansas City, Cleveland at Tampa Bay, Washington at St. Louis, Dallas at Atlanta, Oakland at Philadelphia, Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Los Angeles at San Francisco, San Diego at Buffalo, Chicago at Detroit, New Orleans at Seattle, New England at the New York Jets and the New York Giants at Denver. Monday night, it will be Baltimore at Miami.

If the Steelers are to get back to the Super Bowl, they will either have to overtake Cincinnati, which owns a two-game lead in the American Conference's Central Division, or come away with the AFC's wild-card playoff berth. Even that looks as a difficult task. Pittsburgh is 6-4, tied among AFC runner-up candidates with Cleveland and Denver. But all three trail New England, second-best in the East at 7-2.

Coach Bum Phillips, whose Oilers have lost their last five games to wreck what was such a promising season, does not relish the idea of playing against a team which has permitted only nine points (three field goals) in five games, three of which were won by shutouts.

"Against their defense, a man ought to be able to carry a weapon," Phillips said, not altogether jokingly.

The Oilers nearly pulled off a shocker last Sunday before the Bengals, on Ken Anderson's 47-yard touchdown pass to Isaac Curtis with 42 seconds left, pulled out a 31-27 triumph.

The Bengals' biggest problem this week will not be the Kansas City Chiefs themselves. It will be trying to avoid looking past the Chiefs to next Sunday's showdown against Pittsburgh, which beat Cincinnati to start its five-game streak.

Showdown Time In Two Cities

By The Associated Press

It's showdown Saturday in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles.

The Minnesota, Iowa, California and Stanford have all fallen by the wayside again. As usual, it will be Michigan against Ohio State to decide who wins the Big Ten and a spot in the Rose Bowl. And UCLA against Southern California for the Pacific-8 championship and the other berth in the Rose Bowl.

No. 4 Michigan, 9-1 after its untimely loss to Purdue a couple of weeks ago, needs a victory to get a share of the title and a probable trip to Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day. No. 8 Ohio State, 8-1-1, is unbeaten in the Big Ten and can wrap up first place with a tie Saturday.

Michigan mixes its versatile running game with the passing of quarterback Rick Leach to provide a more balanced attack, but the Buckeyes' have a strong one-two ground attack with massive fullback Pete Johnson and tailback Jeff Logan.

Both No. 2 UCLA, 9-0-1, and No. 3 Southern Cal, 8-1, are undefeated in the Pac-8. Both boast exceptional running backs who have been slowed by injuries. Southern Cal's Ricky Bell will play but UCLA's Wendell Tyler, who has a shoulder injury, may not.

Among other ranked teams, No. 1 Pittsburgh takes the week off to prepare for its showdown with No. 17 Penn State Nov. 26. The Panthers are apparently bound for the Sugar Bowl against Southeast Conference champ Georgia.

No. 5 Texas Tech faces No. 9 Houston in a Southwest Conference showdown with a possible trip to the Cotton Bowl bid in the offing. Maryland, co-ranked No. 6 with Georgia, puts its unbeaten record on the line at Virginia. The Terrapins have been promised a Cotton Bowl invitation if they win.

No. 11 Texas A&M hosts Texas Christian, No. 13 Notre Dame entertains Miami, Fla., and No. 14 Iowa State visits No. 16 Oklahoma State. Both teams are among the five-way tie for first place in the Big Eight, as is No. 15 Colorado, which visits Kansas State. No. 19 Missouri hosts Kansas.

Along with Pittsburgh and Penn State, Georgia, No. 10 Oklahoma, No. 12 Nebraska, No. 18 Alabama and Rutgers, tied for No. 19, are idle.

Most of the top 20 teams are involved in speculation surrounding one bowl or another and the scramble will be on Saturday. Notre Dame is rumored interested in the Gator Bowl, Alabama in the Liberty Bowl, Texas A&M in the Sun Bowl and Oklahoma in the Fiesta, if the Sooners don't make it into the Orange as the eventual Big Eight champs.

Educators In St. Louis

Five Pitt County educators are attending the National Middle School Conference in St. Louis, Mo. this week. Richard Cutler, principal and Mrs. Sarah Orgel, counselor of Farmville Middle School; Gaston Monk, principal, and Mrs. Elaine King, counselor at Ayden Middle School; and Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, Director of Pupil Personnel Services attended the conference.

Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Orgel and Mrs. King presented their model middle school counseling program, "Training for Living and Learning Counseling Center," at the conference Wednesday.

Major speakers at the conference included Dr. Gordon Vars, professor, College of Education, Kent State University; Dr. Donald Eichhorn, assistant Superintendent of Upper St. Clair, Penn.; and Dr. Mel Heller, professor of College of Education of Loyola University.

Planning Early Study Of SHP

RALEIGH (AP) — Reiterating his concern over reports of low morale in the ranks of the North Carolina Highway Patrol, Governor-elect Jim Hunt today asked a special study committee to focus on seven aspects of the patrol.

The seven fields of study listed by Hunt were:

—Increasing the safety of troopers on highways.
—Improving leadership effectiveness of patrol's officers.
—Clarifying the relationship between the patrol and the governor.

—Insuring the proper use of patrol personnel.

—Eliminating politics from personnel decisions and improving promotion procedures.

—Establishing adequate compensation, pensions, insurance and so forth.

—Other matters that will improve the well-being of members of the state Highway Patrol and their families.

Dedicating New Center

Dedication services will be held at the new Hookerton Health Care Center Sunday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the center, according to Gary Lewis, Administrator of the Greene County Health Care Services.

Guest speakers at the dedication ceremonies will include the following: Dale Jones, of the Regional Economic Development Administration in Raleigh; Jim West of Health Education and Welfare of Atlanta; Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the ECU Medical School and Congressman Walter B. Jones.

The facility will be one of three health care centers located in Greene County. The other centers include one at Walstonburg and one that will open in Snow Hill in January. The dedication ceremonies of the Hookerton center will mark the grand opening of the facility, according to Lewis.

Hunt admonished the committee, headed by F.E. Garvin of Wilkesboro to make its report to him on the day after his Jan. 8 inauguration.

The governor-elect urged the committee not to study the death of a Virginia State trooper who was killed early Monday when patrolmen attempted to rescue him from a kidnaper. Hunt said that was being investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Hunt said "as governor I will see that women and minorities are given equal opportunities to serve in the patrol."

On the question of the relationship between the governor and the patrol, Hunt told the committee, "the patrol does not exist to serve the governor of North Carolina," but to protect the people of the state."

Threat Case Still Probed

GRIFTON — Investigation is continuing into the case of a threat which caused the evacuation of the Grifton School last Friday, according to Grifton Police Chief, Linwood Outlaw.

According to Chief Outlaw, a call was received by Ikey Baldree, principal, at the school Friday at 12:50 p.m. warning him to evacuate the school as soon as possible. The school was evacuated and the Grifton Police Department and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department searched the school for an hour but did not find anything that would possibly endanger the students.

Tuesday, another call was received by the school officials, which stated that if the Grifton Police Department would keep an automobile located at a specific location under surveillance, that "their troubles would be over". The call was traced and the police questioned the resident at the phone's location who denied making the call.

According to Chief Outlaw, the threat to the school may possibly be connected to the recent controversy about the combination of the Ayden and Grifton middle schools.

Milovan Djilas No Longer Harassed

By RICHARD C. GROSS
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — For someone who wanted to be a writer, Milovan Djilas should not have been a politician in a Communist country.

His heretical outspokenness not only got him slapped into jail twice but caused him to lose his post as vice president and his apparent to President Tito.

But Djilas at 65, and after nine years in prison, has no regrets. He has been doing what he said he always has wanted to do: write. And the authorities now let him get away with it. He is watched but not harassed.

He shows the same spunk in conversation that appeared in his most famous books, "The New Class" and "Conversations With Stalin." Both were published in the United States and both landed him in Yugoslav jails. He is not afraid of returning to a cell.

His latest book, dealing with his memoirs of World War II in which Tito figures prominently, is at the New York publishing house of Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich and will be out in the spring.

It will be 10 years on New Year's Eve since he last was in jail.

Djilas lives in a comfortable apartment crammed with art and books, a little more than a block from the gray stone parliament building. He was briefly president of that body until he got into trouble the first time in 1954.

He was one of Tito's closest friends. In a battle with the Nazis he fought a rear-guard suicide action so Tito might escape. He was Tito's representative to talks with the late Soviet dictator Premier Josef Stalin.

"It was a friendship with catastrophic results," Djilas said with a smile.

"In many ways, the book is complimentary to Tito," he said. "The conclusion can be drawn that Tito is a serious, able politician. The book reproduces the revolutionary spirit that existed at the time but because of that spirit objectivity suffered. So the book is not objective. It describes the atmosphere, the man."

"It is too simple to say whether Tito is a great man. He made a great many mistakes and one of them was his arrest of me (in 1957). It demoralized the country. He could have liberalized the country with more democratic means."

The book was written in the first person and thus, Djilas laughed, "Tito is the central figure after me." Then he turned serious.

"This will be my best book. I'm a double man — a literary man and a politician. I think I succeeded in this book to synthesize both."

The earlier books and dozens of Djilas articles railed at Communist bureaucrats who were "enslaving" Yugoslavia. He urged more democracy, freer discussion and freer elections.

Djilas lives with his second wife Stefani, a heavy-set woman who quietly bustles about brewing Turkish coffee for visitors to their second-floor apartment.

A married daughter, Vuskica, lives nearby. A son, Aleksa, 23, is studying sociology at the London School of Economics.

Sociology is one of the favorite topics of Djilas. In "The New Class" he describes Karl Marx, the father of Communism, as the first sociologist.

Djilas is not against Communism; he is against those totalitarian regimes that he feels have twisted Marx's ideas for the purpose of enslaving whole societies.

But he emphasizes that not all Communists are the same.

"The Italian and Spanish Communists are all right because they have democratic ideals," he said. "But the French are Stalinists. The Italian Communists say 'our democracy' when they talk to the people. And this is a necessary, positive approach to the existing constitution."

"The French Communists, they talk about, 'we shall create a popular democracy of the masses,' which is Stalinist dogma."

"The Italian Communist party is part of the establishment now. It is unimaginable that the Italian party would retrogress to the Soviet line if it achieves total power."

So why does American foreign policy take such a strong stand against the Italian Communists?

"Anticommunism is still very much alive in America and politicians like (President) Ford pander to American public opinion," Djilas said.

"Secondly America is accommodating its allies in Europe. The Germans, the British, the French and the Italians now in power — they're all against Communists taking power in Italy."

"Communism is worth trying in Italy but not in France," he said softly. "In France, it would mean civil war."

The conversation turned to Yugoslavia. Though Djilas often has supported Tito in his foreign policy he backed up somewhat when it came to Belgrade's role as a leader of the nonaligned movement. Tito helped found it.

"Our destiny is in Europe because that's where we are," he said. "We have correct relations with Europe but it's not enough. It's an illusion to think we could be a leader of a large portion of humanity, though this doesn't mean we shouldn't have relations with these countries."

"But I'm against this ideological talk within the nonaligned that it is a class struggle for the world."

Djilas advocated closer Yugoslav ties with the United States.

"With America," he said, "it's possible to do great things. But there's no initiative here for it. America doesn't endanger Yugoslavia in any way, but there are many people here who don't recognize that."

Djilas said he thinks Yugoslavia will survive after Tito despite its diverse nationalities. But he does not think the machinery Tito set up to take over after his death will survive.

That machinery is the eight-man state presidium made up of representatives from the six constituent republics and the two autonomous provinces. It would be a collective presidency.

"You can't have a collective run the country," Djilas said. "It's impossible. Someone will emerge."

Djilas spends most of his time reading since he finished his memoirs last year. He would like to travel but cannot. The authorities will not give him a passport. He visited the United States and Britain shortly after his release from prison but his passport was confiscated on his return.

Djilas gave lectures at Princeton and Yale and would accept a position to teach at an American university if Yugoslavia would let him out.

But if he were free to travel, he said, "the first place I would go would be Jerusalem. I have always wanted to see Jerusalem."

NATIONALLY KNOWN SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT HERE IN GREENVILLE

GREENVILLE (Spec.) United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Greenville area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about the Greenville classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible).

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming . . . now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places.

STAR OF INDEPENDENCE — This tear-drop shaped diamond, named the "Star of Independence," will be on display at the Smithsonian Institution until the first of December. The stone which weighs just under 76 carats, is said to be one of the largest and most flawless cut diamonds of this century. The stone is shown here mounted as a pendant on a necklace with 75 other stones which have an aggregate weight between 80 and 90 carats. (AP Wirephoto)

Famous Statue Is Back In Buff

By MATTHEW T. KENNY
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A nude and curvaceous lady known simply as "Diana" is once again drawing admiring glances, and some stares, from passing pedestrians and motorists in this capital, even though she's made of bronze.

Diana the Huttress is back on a new revolving pedestal, with a fountain splashing below, after nearly two years' seclusion in a city warehouse.

Her return to public view in September was so important that both President Luis Echeverria and President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo stopped by to mark the occasion.

She had been dislodged at the end of 1974 from a key traffic circle on the city's main boulevard, the Paseo de la Reforma, because of construction of new expressway lanes.

Now she stands—a bow in one hand, one knee resting on a pile of sculpted rocks—in a tiny park about 300 feet from her previous spot on the traffic-clogged Reforma. Her pedestal revolves completely every 15 minutes.

After the "Angel" — the 150-foot-high Independence Monument in the form of a golden, winged woman — Diana probably is Mexico City's most famous statue.

From the moment she emerged, 34 years ago, from the work shop of the late Mexican sculptor Juan Olaguibel, Diana became embroiled in controversy over her lurid nudity.

The sculptor forged her into a "big girl," standing nine-feet tall, with correspondingly hefty vital measurements: 61-44-65.

From high on her pedestal she takes on Amazon-like proportions.

The uproar over the naked Diana was so strident in 1942 that—against his artistic instincts—Olaguibel had to forge a metallic drape around her mid-section. Mexicans jocularly referred to it as Diana's "iron pants," "bloomers," and "G-string."

Some pruders felt she also should have a bronze brassiere, but she was allowed to remain topless.

For the next 25 years, Diana—to the satisfaction of moralists, but to the utter disdain of naturalists — stood demurely "clothed" before the restless eyes of bystanders.

Olaguibel himself attempted one night to unriver her drape, but was surprised by a policeman and had to run to escape arrest.

Finally, in response to an impassioned appeal by the sculptor, the then mayor of Mexico City, Alfonso Corona del Rosal, decreed that Diana should indeed be stripped to the buff, as the artist had intended.

It took Olaguibel less than a week to complete the disrobing. When she went back on display Dec. 6, 1967, in full nudity, Mexicans agreed it was the biggest strip-tease in the capital's history.

Parking Meters To Lose Heads

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — City officials here will remove the business ends of 355 parking meters in the Ohio State University area for the school's weekend football with Michigan — a move they think will save up to $25,000.

The Division of Traffic Engineering figured it would be cheaper to spend $200 to $300 for labor to remove the meter heads than to replace them. After the OSU-Michigan meeting here four years ago, celebrating fans tore the heads off.

Will Feed Poor 175 Turkeys

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Roast 175 turkeys, season with 50 pounds of salt, serve with 700 pounds of potatoes and eight cases of cranberry sauce, and you might have enough Thanksgiving dinner for all of a city's poor.

The staff at St. Anthony's Dining Hall, which feeds about 1,100 hungry persons daily and expects 4,500 for Thanksgiving, says the holiday dinner is fashioned from a huge grab bag.

Also on St. Anthony's menu for Thursday next are 10 cases of canned sweet potatoes; five 5-gallon cases of French dressing; 100 pounds of flour; 10 pounds of monosodium glutamate flavor enhancer; four 50-pound sacks of onions — plus whatever cakes, pies and candies people donate.

Revival Series Begins Monday

GRIMESLAND — Revival services will begin Monday night at 7:30 and continue through Friday at St. Monica Missionary Baptist Church.

The speaker will be the Rev. Jesse Wilson of Ayden.

Guest choirs for the week are as follows: Monday, Maple Grove Church, Chocowinity; Tuesday, St. John, Stokes; Wednesday and Thursday, home choirs; and Friday, the Rev. Wilson's choir.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are a number of delays in getting the various weekend tasks you wish to accomplish, so take them into account before making any plans. Be energetic, generous with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Combine creative activities with the practical today and get good results, but schedule your time wisely first. Avoid friction with loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do not enter into any arguments with an associate or close tie, or there could be real trouble. Keep promises you have made to allies meticulously. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy at the tasks ahead of you and don't go off on a trip that could net you nothing but trouble. Don't lose your temper with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care you are not extravagant with money for worthless pleasure that is best forgotten. Stick to that which is tried and true.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A situation at home needs careful and positive attention today so that it clears up nicely. Be more philosophical and gain inner peace.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study personal problems carefully and solve them through sincere application on your part. Clean up odds and ends during spare time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Settle debts with personal friends and come to a better understanding. Study business matters from the financial angle too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make necessary corrections in outside matters and get on even keel. Not a good day to ask for a favor from a bigwig; bide your time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget a problem you have and get to some place where you can advance in your career and have a good time also. Avoid a nuisance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget responsibilities for the time being and be happy with congenials. A dear friend can help relieve tensions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to understand bigwigs better now and can also do whatever will make partners happier. Partake in a sport you like.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although you are busy be sure to study into a new idea you have which could prove to be most practical and usable. Take time to improve health through right treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have to be taught early to keep any promises made to others, whether of a personal or business nature, simple or involved. Otherwise the great success possible in this lifetime could be lost through deviousness.

"ONCE UPON A TIME"

Local Affiliate Is Big Factor

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A recent advertisement shows the faces of Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters, coanchors of the ABC Evening News. The ads say: "On the network more people are watching."

But don't get the impression more people are watching the Harry and Barbara show than the CBS Evening News or the NBC Nightly News. They aren't.

The new ABC effort, launched Oct. 4 after constant publicity about Miss Walters and her $1 million-a-year salary, still is third in the ratings, even though ABC says it detects a definite ratings improvement.

Over a six-week period — the latest Nielsen available are for the week ending Nov. 12 — the Reasoner-Walters show has been seen in just over 7.5 million homes each weeknight, on the average.

In contrast, the Nielsen figures say the six-week average for CBS' news show is more than 10.8 million homes each weeknight, with a nightly average of nearly 9.9 million homes watching NBC's news.

Still, says William Lord, an ABC News vice president, the Reasoner-Walters show is getting, on the average, nearly a full ratings point more than in the days without her. A Nielsen spokesman agreed.

ABC's Evening News actually had shown a ratings decline before she joined it, Lord said, but now "what in effect has happened is that the decline has been reversed and it's beginning to grow again."

Did ABC think the new show would do better in the ratings — TV's equivalent of newspaper circulation — than it actually is doing?

"Well, we set no real goals in terms of that," Lord said in a phone interview from New York. "We looked at where we were and realized we could go no place but up at this time."

He described the ratings increase for the show as moderate and said ABC considers it "the beginning of continued growth."

But he emphasized that the key to that growth — in terms of national ratings — is how large an audience ABC affiliates can get for their local news shows when such precede the ABC Evening News.

By this he meant the audience "lead-in — local news programs provide network newscasts.

"The strength of the local affiliate is terribly important to our own success," he said.

When starting the new show, ABC noted that building an audience for it would take time. It said it would wait until the end of 1976 before judging the show was doing what ABC hoped it would do in the ratings.

Lord said the watch-and-wait policy still is in effect, and added, "Let's face it, if the ratings went down precipitously, of course we'd have to make a terrible reassessment."

"But that (ratings drop) isn't happening . . . so I do think we have a problem as to where we are now with the growth pattern. I think it looks very good."

Governor-Elect Plans 'Bashes'

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Governor-elect Dixy Lee Ray has told her aides to plan for a statewide round of inauguration bashes.

The traditional Olympia area ball will be held Jan. 12. Tickets are $35 a couple or $17.50 apiece — as compared with $25 a couple four years ago.

Other parties will be held in Vancouver, Aberdeen, Port Angeles, Bellingham, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and south-eastern Washington. In most cases, the tickets will be $25 a couple.

On the nights where two parties are scheduled, Miss Ray and her entourage will use an airplane to get from one town to the other.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

There are a number of plays that an experienced bridge player learns automatically. Sometimes too automatically.

After his partner opened the bidding with one spade, North was not even sure whose hand it was. His length in his partner's suit considerably weakened his side's defensive prospects, so he jumped to game to make it as difficult as possible for the opponents to enter the auction.

West led a club, and declarer saw at once that there was a possibility of losing two tricks in each red suit. Of course, if either the king of diamonds or ace of hearts were with West, the contract would be easy, but successful declarers are by nature pessimists.

When this hand occurred in a recent Philip Morris European Cup tournament, former world champion, Bertrand Romanet of France, was the declarer. He won the king of clubs, drew trumps in two rounds and, to prepare for a possible end-play, he cashed the ace of clubs. Now he led a low diamond toward dummy.

There is an old bridge adage: Second hand low. Without thinking, West automatically followed with the five of diamonds, and regretted it immediately. Declarer, guessing correctly that West did not have the diamond king, covered with the seven of diamonds from dummy, and the contract was assured. East could win this trick cheaply with the ten, but he did not relish the prospect of being on lead. No matter what suit he elected to return, he would present declarer with the game-going trick.

Observe the difference if West considers the situation before playing to the diamond lead, and then inserts the nine. Whether dummy covers or not, declarer will, sooner or later, have to surrender four tricks for down one.

MS Fund Drive Scheduled For November 21-28

Bart Ritner, Campaign Chairman, of the Triangle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, announced the Greenville area 1976 Multiple Sclerosis Hope Chest fundraising drive will be held during the week of November 21-28.

The theme of this year's campaign is "Athletes v.s. MS." The theme was selected since multiple sclerosis, a crippling neurological disease of the central nervous system, most often attacks young adults between the ages of 20 and 40.

Howard Cosell will be the campaign chairman for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

According to Ritner the Triangle Chapter's goal this year is $60,000.

Quartet Giving Sunday Program

The Free Will Baptist Bible College Quartet of Nashville, Tenn. will present a program of hymns and gospel songs at 7 p.m. Sunday at Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Members of the group are Bobby Sebastian, Randy Settle, Randy Carr, Sam Postlewaite and Ricky Polston.

Rev. Roger Tripp, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend.

Hayakawa And Moynihan: Professors In Senate

Daniel Moynihan

By PETER SLOCUM
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — New York's new U.S. senator grew up a poor Irish boy in the real-life setting for the musical "West Side Story."

But Daniel Patrick Moynihan, won his Senate seat on Manhattan's East Side, where his dramatic performances at the United Nations drew rave notices and gave Democrat Moynihan a head start with the state's important Jewish voters.

The sometimes-professor, sometimes-bureaucrat made two big speeches on behalf of Israel during his time as U.S. permanent representative to the United Nations, and his reputation was made.

Moynihan's dramatic flair is considerable. He can hunch his narrow shoulders up, spread out his arms like wings, toss his long, gray hair — he even seems to stretch his 6-foot-4 frame into a strung bow.

His eyebrows are capable of arched heights beyond the reach of most mortals, and his reddened face bobs and twists into numberless masks atop the thickened neck.

For all that skill, Moynihan's campaign speeches often left audiences flat, and it is too early to class him with the Senate's grand old speakers, with their melodrama and passion. Moynihan's thrusts against his recent foe, incumbent Republican-Conservative Sen. James L. Buckley, were more tweaks than denunciations.

"Professorial" is a word many observers enjoy pinning on Moynihan. Buckley called him "Professor Moynihan" throughout the campaign, and while Moynihan put on great displays of anger, he seemed to relish the label.

In fact Moynihan's whole campaign image was a marriage of Irish street imp and Ivy League intellectual.

"Say something in Irish and I'll introduce you," one speaker told him from the stage during the campaign.

"I'll have a beer," Moynihan responded.

Moynihan, who favors plaid Irish walking hats, will have some colorful competition in the Senate from a fellow academic who's fond of tam-o'-shanters. It will come from Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, a semantics professor who, like Moynihan, defeated an incumbent to become a California senator.

Hayakawa, who gained his fame as a college president for a confrontation with student demonstrators in the 60s, is a Republican.

At 49, Moynihan has behind him a career of bouncing back and forth between government and campus, between Republican and Democratic power-holders. Hayakawa, who says he and Moynihan are liberal intellectuals who have seen the light, only recently switched from the Democratic to the Republican party.

Moynihan started out working for New York's Democratic governor of the 1950's, W. Averell Harriman. When Harriman lost his bid for re-election in 1958, he gave his official papers to Syracuse University and Moynihan went there to teach.

Moynihan got involved early in John F. Kennedy's campaign and went to Washington when Kennedy won the 1960 election.

There, in the forefront of the New Frontier, and later President Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society, Moynihan was a highly ranked architect of expanding social programs.

Later, after his first stint at Harvard, he grew more doubtful about the federal government's ability to bring about creative change, and he signed on as President Richard M. Nixon's domestic affairs adviser.

In that post Moynihan counseled that the black "problem" could benefit from a period of "benign neglect." That advice, in addition to some of his academic work, has rendered him eternally suspect to many black leaders. During the same time Moynihan promoted a welfare reform plan, based primarily on the notion that the current system works to divide families and that a system which offered more cash and fewer programs for broken families would probably help people more. It would cost more in the short run but less in the long run, he argued.

Congress refused to go along, but Moynihan did push to get the outline of his plan into the Democratic party platform this year.

On foreign policy matters, Moynihan pronounces himself deeply suspicious of the Russians and other Communists, and sounds like a 1950s Cold Warrior at times. He supported Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington during the presidential primaries.

Moynihan says he is helping to lead a Democratic party return to moderation after what he views as the excesses of George McGovern and radical chic.

In New York State, Moynihan has tremendous name recognition, almost celebrity appeal, but no firm political base of his own. He won both the primary campaign and the general election as the designated candidate of the state's most powerful county chairman, Joseph Crangle of Buffalo.

Could Save 89,000 Lives

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — If the use of seat belts were made mandatory, 89,000 lives could be saved in the next 10 years, says a study by the Research Triangle Institute.

If all 37 automobile safety steps suggested in the study were adopted, it would cost about $20 billion over 10 years and some 180,000 lives could be saved, the report said.

Next to seatbelts, the next most effective lifesaver would be continued enforcement of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit, it said.

The $700,000 study was commissioned last year by the Federal Highway Administration and the National Highway Safety Administration. It included interviews with more than 2,000 state and local officials in 20 states, and complex statistical research.

The information was released this week by Joseph E. Lema, one of 700 researchers stationed at the institute.

According to the study, traffic fatalities under current conditions will increase from 46,000 in 1974 to about 56,000 annually by 1986, and traffic injuries will jump from 1.8 million to 2.1 million.

Mandatory seat belt usage could save 89,000 lives between now and 1986, and prevent 3.2 million auto-related injuries, the study said.

Strict enforcement of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit could save almost 32,000 lives and prevent more than 400,000 injuries.

Other safety precautions which could reduce the highway carnage included break-away signs and various road construction improvements.

TWO NEW VOICES — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, left, New York's new U.S. Senator, and S.I. Hayakawa, California's U.S. Senator-elect, have many things in common, including being professors and having witty senses of humor laced with tinges of sarcasm. The thing they don't have in common are the parties from which they spring. Moynihan is a Democrat and Hayakawa is a Republican. (AP Wirephoto)

Prof Offers Computer As Teaching Tool

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A Morningside College professor says a relatively inexpensive, portable classroom computer could change learning techniques in American classrooms.

"Our system of education is based on groups of people all the same age going through classroom programs at the same rate of speed — some learning more than others," says Dr. Richard Evans.

Evans, 43, a professor of educational psychology, said testing by a computer such as Morningside's $12,000, 50-pound model, "would provide the conditions for a higher degree of success than we now have. Perhaps 90 per cent of the kids could function at grade A levels."

"We know some kids learn probably five or six times faster than others, yet we keep them all together in the same grade through all 12 years of school, resulting in unfair teaching."

Some larger universities use computers in the learning process, Evans said, but they cost from $300,000 to $500,000, "and nobody is using a computer for time-variable learning."

Evans said if schools were reorganized "according to the way kids learn — allowing the time for learning to vary — we could prevent much of the failure which is evident in schools today."

He said the system can be changed by computers "keeping track of the kids going through a curriculum at their own rate of speed, rather than at a speed convenient for the administration."

Schools today aren't as good as they could be, Evans said, with some reports "showing 11 per cent of high school seniors as functional illiterates."

Evans, a Morningside professor for five years, is using an IBM 5100 portable computer.

"We really don't know how fast students can progress because the concept hasn't been tried that much," he said.

Students take a total of five computer-administered tests in educational psychology when they feel they are ready. Each exam offers multiple-choice answers to questions selected at random by the computer from a large question-pool.

The idea behind computer tests is mastery learning, Evans said. "This assumes that almost all kids can learn almost anything the schools teach."

In current testing situations, "students who give wrong answers are not given an opportunity or assistance to correct errors," he said. "They leave the course ignorant of certain concepts and misinformed about others."

The computer flashes a question on a display screen. If the student selects the wrong answer, the computer displays "Try again." When the correct choice is made, the screen provides further explanation to a question, plus pages in text books for additional reference.

Comparing two classes of students, Evans said a computer-tested group "did more work, perceived that they learned more, and actually did score higher" than the non-computer group.

S.I. Hayakawa

By SUSAN SWARD
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — S. I. Hayakawa, California's colorful 70-year-old senator-elect, is a recent Republican convert who says he views campaigning as a combination of evangelism and standup comedy.

His own campaign contained elements of each. Picture the scene:

The Japanese-American semantist is on his campaign train playing "Bye Bye Blackbird" on a harmonica. Dressed in a white suit and white shoes, light blue shirt and polka-dot tie, Hayakawa embarks from the train in San Diego and hears the crowd chanting: "We want Sam!"

Hayakawa pauses, then tells his admirers: "I love that sound ... we want Sam. Sam the samurai, yellow hope of the Republican party."

As with most of his quips, the short, pockish Republican was at least semiserious. He has said he wants to move the GOP forward in the 20th century, including more recruiting minorities to its ranks.

Hayakawa's campaign symbol was a tam-o'-shanter — the kind of hat he wore when television cameras filmed him ripping wires out of a student sound truck in 1968 at San Francisco State College.

He was then president of the school, and Hayakawa says the episode helped him become a folk hero of sorts — "in the same way Patrick Moynihan became a folk hero when he was cursing them out at the United Nations." Moynihan is a newly elected U.S. senator from New York.

After seeing universities "go down the drain" in the student radical days in the 1960s, Hayakawa said: "I stood up and I moved people very profoundly. I stood up to all the abuse the universities were taking."

During his campaign to unseat incumbent Democrat John Tunney, Dr. Samuel Ichiji Hayakawa lived up to his self-billing as an "unpredictable" even though he spent a lot of time talking about traditional GOP issues such as the need for a streamlined bureaucracy and increased aid to the small-business man.

It wasn't just that Hayakawa was a nonpolitician. Californians elected song-and-dance-man George Murphy senator in 1964 and former actor Ronald Reagan governor in 1966.

What made Hayakawa different was what else he talked about and how he behaved on the campaign trail.

He seemed to enjoy being an odd mixture, one moment brushing off a question on the Panama Canal with the line, "I think we ought to keep it, we stole it fair and square," and the next minute making an erudite comment on political theory.

One point he discussed in a serious way was his change of political parties. How could a man who called himself a liberal Democrat until three years ago now have conservative GOP backing?

FIRST WELL

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (UPI) — The first oil well in Texas was drilled by Lyne T. Barret near Nacogdoches in 1866.

Barret's well started the state on an oil production program that made Texas the nation's top oil producer by 1928. The first well was only 106 feet deep.
