White House Gate Held Off Ramming By Truck

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government recently spent $550,000 fortifying the White House gates after a gate-crasher rammed his car through the old wrought iron gates in 1974.

On Wednesday a Santa Fe, N.M., man drove his battered pickup truck off Pennsylvania Avenue and straight at the new solid steel gates in a bid to crash onto the grounds.

The gates did not budge. The driver, Steven B. Williams, suffered cuts and bruises. He was arrested immediately and charged with destruction of government property.

His truck's front end appeared to have incurred the most damage.

Asked by reporters as he was taken away what his motive was, Williams pointed to the White House and shouted: "Trying to wake him up before he kills us all. Trying to wake him up before he kills us all."

President Ford was working in the Oval Office at the time of the mid-afternoon incident, officials said. He had no comment.

On Christmas Day 1974, a man who said he wanted to deliver a copy of the Koran, successfully crashed his car through a White House gate.

Claiming that he was armed with explosives, the man kept police at bay for four hours before finally being arrested unharmed.

Rezoning 11-Acre Area Tabled For Thirty Days

By TOM BAINES

Action on a request sponsored by the city Planning Department for rezoning approximately 11 acres located east of Forest Hill Circle and north of Green Mill Run was tabled for 30 days last night by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

City Planner John Schofield explained that the Planning Department was petitioned by residents of the Forest Hill area to seek a change in the zoning from Office and Institutional to R-9 (residential).

Schofield said that the department studied the matter and decided that the request for rezoning was reasonable. The department sponsored the request under Section 32-139 of the Zoning Ordinance since the petitioners had no vested interest in the property.

The rezoning change, he explained, was petitioned by the residents "to preserve the character of the E. Fifth Street neighborhood" and stressed five objectives.

Rezoning, the petitioners noted, would help preserve the quality of adjacent residential areas, preserve the esthetic value of E. Fifth Street, halt deterioration of residential neighborhoods near downtown, preserve the flood plain of Green Mill Run as a buffer zone, and prevent increased traffic in the school zone.

In addition, according to the city planner, the residents requested a change in the R-9 zone that would place duplex facilities under special use provisions. He said the department did not sponsor that segment of the rezoning petition.

Some 208 signatures accompanied the petition as well as letters of support for the rezoning change, he pointed out. One letter of opposition was received from Mrs. Lila Watts Heath, one of the co-owners of the property.

W.A. Heath Jr. of Charlotte appeared before the board and

Joan Little's Charges Are Dropped By Judge

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Probation violation charges against Joann Little, who gained national recognition after she was charged with killing a Beaufort County jailer in August 1974, were dismissed in District Court here yesterday afternoon.

Judge Herbert O. Phillips allowed a defense motion to dismiss the probation violation action on the grounds that Miss Little had been denied a speedy hearing in the case.

Miss Little was arrested in Greenville in 1973 on shoplifting charges. That case was heard in District Court here January 9, 1974, at which time she was given a six-months prison sentence which was suspended. One of the conditions of the suspended sentence was that she serve a three-year probation term.

Miss Little was convicted on breaking, entering and larceny charges in Beaufort County on June 6, 1974 and given a seven to ten year sentence. It was while she was in the Beaufort County jail awaiting appeal proceedings in that case that she was charged with killing jailer Clarence Alligood. It was that incident and the subsequent trial at which she was acquitted of the murder, that brought her national attention.

The probation violations on which she was brought into court yesterday included an alleged violation on April 2, 1974, when probation officer Mary Moore said Miss Little changed her place of residence, and on her conviction on the breaking, entering and larceny charge on June 6, 1974.

Defense attorneys Jerry Paul and Milton Williamson argued that the probation violations should have been brought to the attention of the court sooner.

Miss Little, according to her lawyers, has served enough of her sentence on the breaking, (Continued on page 18)

Flue-Cured Tobacco Sales Set A Record

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco sales this season brought a record $1.5 billion, topping last year's return by $47 million.

"It was one of our best seasons in history," said John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Final figures from throughout the flue-cured producing area showed sales totaled more than 1.3 billion pounds, a decline of 100 million from last year.

Record price averages were set on all four tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported. The average for the entire area was $110.64 per hundred pounds, compared to $99.95 in 1975.

Prices were so good that there were fewer complaints from growers than ever before, Cyrus said.

"In most cases," he added, "the net income for the grower was better because of a better cost production price support ratio."

Economists said production costs increased about 4 per cent, while tobacco price supports were up 12 cents a pound.

B.C. Langston, assistant supervisor of the tobacco market news service, said the percentage of tobacco placed with the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. under the government loan program declined in all areas except the Old and Middle Belt. He reported that 135.3 million pounds were placed under loan on the Old and Middle Belt, compared to 83.2 million pounds last year. The increase was attributed to poor quality tobacco on the markets early in the season and in the closing weeks.

Broken down, the sales figures by belts were:

Georgia-Florida, 162.8 million pounds for $179.5 million and an average of $110.25. South Carolina and border North Carolina, 274.5 million pounds for $308.5 million and an average of $112.39. Eastern North Carolina, 479.8 million pounds for $542.4 million, averaging $113.05.

Old and Middle Belt, 452.8 million pounds for $485.2 million, averaging $107.17.

Meet, Plot Prevention Of Execution

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —

As death penalty opponents met to map strategy to stop the Monday sunrise execution of convicted killer Gary Gilmore, the Utah state prison warden said today he is preparing to carry it out.

Warden Sam Smith said details of the firing squad execution will be geared to accomplish the execution "in the way most efficient and without complications."

He said he was preparing "whatever detail has to be taken care of. There are a number of details relative to the whole situation."

He would not say whether he would grant Gilmore's request to face his executioners standing and without a blindfold. The condemned men at previous Utah executions have been seated and hooded.

"We don't see it as a show or experience where someone can express bravado, go out in a blaze so to speak," Smith said.

Lawyers opposed to the execution met today at the office of American Civil Liberties Union attorney Jinks Dabney to map strategy. Some indicated they would act independently in court today regardless of what others did.

Dabney predicted the case eventually will go to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The time of the execution, two days after Gilmore's 36th birthday, was set by District Court Judge J. Robert Bullock.

Robert Van Sciver, an attorney for other Death Row convicts, said, "It's really going to be a concerted effort on the part of a lot of interest groups. We just want to be certain there isn't any overlap" in plans to stop the execution.

Asked how Gilmore, who has consistently fought for a speedy execution, would react to a delaying appeal, his attorney, Ronald Stanger, said, "I don't think he would be happy."

If carried out on schedule, Gilmore's execution would be the first in the United States since June 2, 1967, when Luis Jose Monge died in Colorado's gas chamber.

In Texas, convicted murderer Robert Excell White, 30, is scheduled to die in the electric chair four days later on Dec. 10. However, White's attorney appealed to a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, who referred the request to the full court. There was no indication when the court would act.

The National Weather Service said sunrise in Salt Lake City on Monday will be at 7:37 MST.

Gilmore had said he wanted a six-pack of beer as his last meal, but he has been on a hunger strike since Nov. 19 because officials refuse to let him talk with his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, 20. She was confined to a mental hospital on her mother's orders after she and Gilmore took sleeping pills in an abortive suicide pact on Nov. 16.

Bullock, who presided over Gilmore's trial on charges of killing a motel clerk, originally sentenced him to die on Nov. 15. But the sentence was stayed by Gov. Calvin Rampton pending a review by the state Pardons Board.

At Wednesday's resentencing hearing — one day after the board upheld the death sentence — Bullock rejected a petition by a former Gilmore lawyer, Tom Jones, that would have stayed the execution pending appeal.

Utah tradition gives condemned criminals a choice of hanging or the firing squad.

Tax Bills For Unlisted Pitt Vehicles Sent

The Pitt County Tax Office has mailed notices for bills for over 5,000 vehicles that were not listed for taxes during the month of January 1976 as required by state law.

Tax supervisor Phillip Michaels said the bills, mailed last weekend, represent over $100,000 in taxes, and bring to over $160,000 the amount of tax dollars that have been put on the tax books since the listing period.

Michaels said some of the types of property that have been discovered unlisted, in addition to the vehicles, include business inventories, business equipment, mobile homes, farm equipment and boats.

The tax supervisor noted that the program of auditing the regular listing this year has placed over $16 million in property value on the tax records. He noted that that value is equivalent to two cents on the current tax rate.

"These additional listings should help distribute the tax burden more fairly in the coming years," Michaels emphasized.

Tobacco Hearing Slated

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced today that public hearings will be held on possible changes in the tobacco program December 21 in Greenville at the Moose Lodge on Highway 264 from 9 to 11 a.m.

William Lanier, Federal Administrator of the ASCS tobacco and peanut program will be present to consider suggestions and sentiments of those present.

Jones urged all flue-cured tobacco farmers and other segments of the industry to be present at the hearings and join in the discussion. Lanier will be holding similar hearings in South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida. The hearing in Greenville will be the only one held in North Carolina on the subject at this time.

Pot-Smugglers' Boat Is Seized

PORTSMOUTH, Va., (AP) — A motorized sailboat was seized off the Virginia coast today while attempting to smuggle about three tons of marijuana into the U.S., the Coast Guard said.

Bill Scott, a spokesman for the Coast Guard station in Portsmouth, said the cutter Cherokee seized the Valborg, a boat flying United States colors, about 60 miles northeast of Norfolk. Scott said the seizure was the result of six weeks of intensive investigation and surveillance by U.S. authorities.

Scott said the cutter Chilula, based at Ft. Macon, N.C., had been watching the Valborg for about a week.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I have always admired women who can wear a one-size swimsuit. That is, either a size 12, a 14, or a 16. I wear all three sizes at the same time.

In the modern-day vernacular, I can't seem to get it all together. My friends tell me exercise is the secret. It's not how much weight you carry, it is how it is packaged and distributed.

I stood in front of the mirror the other morning and assessed myself. Imagine if you will the state of Texas. I look terrific at Amarillo, but by the time I hit Dallas and Fort Worth, I begin to blouse, and don't really thin out again until Corpus Christi. (But after Houston, who hangs on to see Corpus Christi?)

I've exercised. I really have. Once I signed up for a course at the neighborhood YWCA. The classes were held in a church and because of the popularity of the class, we were put in the church proper. One afternoon the minister visited and paused long enough to see me in a pair of faded pedal pushers trying to touch my nose to my bent knee which was resting on a pew and said, "You are desecrating the altar." I transferred to a cake decorating class and licked my way to six additional pounds.

For awhile, I used to eat my dessert at breakfast while watching a Swedish girl on television. She held me spellbound by winding her leg around her neck. I watched and listened to her for over a year and one day I wheezed, strained and gasped and finally got one of my ankles hooked over the other. I quit before I really hurt myself.

The idea of going to a spa really intrigued me. I thought how great it would be to splash around in the water and steam your pores and ride a bicycle to nowhere, but going to a spa is like having a cleaning lady. You can't go to a spa looking like you need to go to a spa anymore than you can have a cleaning woman walk into a house that needs cleaning. Somehow, I just couldn't get myself in shape for a towel.

For the last year, I have watched my husband faithfully execute his Air Force exercises (which could account for the decline in enlistments). If there is anything in this world more boring than a man who exercises regularly, I have not met it.

"You should join me," he keeps insisting. "A few pushups; a little jogging. It's good for the old body."

"Then why aren't your knees straight when you bend over to touch your toes?"

"I suppose you could do it better?"

"Sure, by letting my fingernails grow 14 inches." He thinks he's fooling around with some amateur.

Dear Abby

Further Questions Were Useless

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The problem of "adoptive parents" in your column recently was one we faced many years ago. When we brought home a beautiful little baby girl, many of our friends and neighbors were inquisitive and wanted to know the details. On the advice of our pediatrician, we stood our ground and told them nothing.

When they asked, "Where did you get her?" we looked them in the eye and replied, "She's OURS. And we have the papers to prove it."

Or when they asked, "Do you know anything about her parents?" we replied, "We are her parents, and we know each other very well."

They may have been momentarily offended, but they understood that to question us further was useless.

MUM'S THE WORD IN KENOSHA

DEAR MUM'S: Another way to handle people who ask questions that are none of their business is to look them squarely in the eye and ask, "Why do you want to know?"

DEAR ABBY: Before my husband and I were married, he and his sister not only shared an apartment, they slept together in a double bed! (They were both over 21 at the time.)

I told him I didn't think this was normal. He said nothing happened between them, and I had a dirty mind.

Even today, every time they meet she kisses him on the lips. She is still unmarried, and if anyone asks her how come, she says, "Because I've never met anybody as wonderful as my brother."

Abby, I think my sister-in-law is in love with her brother. Is that possible, or am I jealous for no reason? I suppose I should mention that if it weren't for the strange relationship between these two, my husband would be a perfect husband.

What are your thoughts on this?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: It's possible that your sister-in-law is "in love" with her brother, but you say he is otherwise a perfect husband, so it's obvious that he isn't in love with her. I agree that it was highly irregular for a brother and sister of their ages to be sleeping together, but it IS possible that nothing happened. Forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old girl and very nice-looking, or so people tell me, but I've got to be the loneliest girl in Toronto, Canada!

I'm rather shy, and I'm not the type to sit in a bar and make eyes at a stranger. I go to dances with my girlfriends on the weekends, but I always wind up going home with the girls I came with.

The men stare, but they never ask me to dance. Why is it that men don't ask nice-looking girls to dance, Abby? Are they afraid we may think they aren't good enough for us?

I'm sure other girls wonder about this, too. Can you help us?

PRETTY BUT LONELY

DEAR PRETTY: Being pretty has never been a disadvantage, so there must be another reason. How's your attitude? Do you act superior? Or disinterested? If a girl (whether she's pretty or plain) will meet a fellow halfway, she's got it made.

Jamaica Patties Tea

JAMAICA PATTIES
Our adaptation of the recipe used by Mavis Dean, a good cook from Jamaica.

2 cups flour

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon turmeric

6 tablespoons butter or margarine

1/2 cup water

Meat Filling, see below

Stir together the flour, salt and turmeric; cut in the butter coarsely. Stir in the water; knead in bowl until dough forms a ball. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic — about 50 "turns." Cut into 4 pieces and work with one at a time. Roll out extremely thin; with a 6-inch saucer, cut into rounds. Divide the Meat Filling into 12 portions; place a portion toward the center of each round; fold over so edges meet; seal well by pressing edges together with fork tines; prick tops well with fork. Place slightly apart in a jellyroll pan; bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 25 minutes — patties will look bright yellow, not brown. Serve hot or warm. Makes 12.

Meat Filling: In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat cook together — crumbling with a fork — 3/4 pound ground beef, 1 medium onion (finely chopped), 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon coarse black pepper, 1/4 teaspoon curry powder and 1/2 teaspoon thyme until meat loses its red color. Stir in 4 soda crackers with unsalted tops (finely crushed to make 1-3rd cup) and 1/2 cup water. Cool before using.

Big Issues For N.C. Speaker

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, will serve as speaker of the House in the N.C. Legislature for 1977.

He was nominated for a second term at a recent House Democratic caucus and will be formally elected when the Legislature convenes in January.

Stewart thinks this will be an important session of the Legislature. The session "will deal with more significant legislation than any two previous sessions combined," he said.

Up for consideration will be a constitutional amendment to give the governor the veto power; which Stewart supports, along with one to give the governor the opportunity to succeed himself.

Stewart said he would appoint a constitutional amendment committee which would be favorable to sending the legislation to the full House.

Stewart also predicted that this would be a lengthy session of the Legislature and he said he would have committee assignments and chairmanships ready by the first day of the session.

We concur with Speaker Stewart that there are going to be important issues to be settled in next year's session of the Legislature. We would hope that some way will be found to avoid a long drawn out session, since we feel that the state's business can be handled in less time than has been taken in some previous sessions.

Stewart's experience as speaker of the House and his plans to have committees ready to go to work when the session opens might be a help in speeding up the work of the Legislature.

No Question About Energy Costs Rising

President-Elect Jimmy Carter has said the government should do more about saving gasoline because energy prices are going to go up rapidly.

He said he planned a "fireside chat" to appeal for conserving energy.

We don't have any doubt that energy costs are going to go up steeply, but it is going to take more than appeals to get at the problem. There are going to have to be requirements that energy of all types be used more efficiently. Otherwise we are soon going to find ourselves being bled to death economically to pay exorbitant oil prices on the world market.

Hunt Seeks Popular Touch

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A minor crisis resolved gives a great deal of insight into what kind of administration Tar Heels can expect from incoming Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

The professional planners, security people, logistics experts were all bogged down in details the other day figuring how to get the inaugural party to the Capitol.

It would take X-number of cars, military police, motorcycles, etc., they computed as the maneuver got more and more complicated.

Wait a minute, and aide piped up. The people only have to go a block and one-half—from the Governor's Mansion to the State Legislative Building to assemble; then everybody walks together another block to the Capitol.

Well, let's walk the whole distance; it isn't that far.

So cars will be provided for any in the party too feeble or elderly to walk the block and one-half. Hunt and others will use the sidewalk.

Security
But the planners were worried, then, about security; it would take a monstrous number of officers to line the sidewalk and keep the people back, they figured.

Again, Hunt's people rejected that approach. He will, they insist, be a governor of the people who wants to be in touch with the state. Stories of Gov. Clyde R. Hoey's regular visits to a downtown soda fountain are recalled fondly.

Hunt may be on the way to a similar relationship with the people—he was seen one day boarding a downtown bus for the short ride from one governmental office to another; while waiting on cameras to be set up at the Capitol for his official portrait-making, he joined a passing schoolchildren's tour for a talk; seeing a flock of governmental employees hiking into a nearby building and learning from one of them that they were going to a staff meeting, Hunt trailed along to the auditorium and met with the group for awhile.

The new governor insists he will spend a lot of time keeping in touch with people across the state; has already pledged to keep the ombudsman office for public contact (although wondering if the name might be changed to "bureaucracy-busters" instead); and has promised an open-door policy.

Old Office
He is also intrigued with the idea of having his offices in the recently restored Capitol rather than the bureaucratic sterility of the Administration Building.

The richly decorated, tradition-steeped old Capitol, Hunt feels, lends an aura of history and importance to decisions and conversations. At the least, he is toying with the prospect of having a ceremonial office and a hideaway to get out of the hustle and bustle. Most staff would have to remain in the Administration Building, but that may prove a blessing rather than handicap.

The approach to his term signals more than just a relaxed informality; it portrays a determination to run the office rather than to let it run him. At the gathering for new and veteran governors at Pinehurst recently to talk about the job, Hunt was especially impressed with observations from old-timers that the key to success in finding the best people, setting priorities, putting things into motion, and reserving energies and attention for the truly important matters.

Hunt has already promised to stay out of the "minute, daily nitty-gritty" of things, and there is talk now that he hopes to move in that direction so strongly that he can have the time and energy to be out of the office listening to people and promoting his ideas.

In fact, a key staffer said, Hunt will come close to being his own liaison with the General Assembly. That is a critical job in getting budget changes made and program proposals approved. Hunt has hinted that he will likely appear personally at some sessions of the budget committees pushing his programs. Veterans around the Legislative Building feel it would be both refreshing and very effective for the governor to be seen regularly going about his business in that setting.

TRICK IS TO SEPARATE THE INSEPARABLES!

CBs In Great Demand

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a late summer-early fall sales slump, more citizens band radios will be sold this year than in the 18 years since the general public has been permitted to use them, an industry trade group predicts.

John Sodolski, an Electronics Industries Association vice president, said 1976 sales will total nearly 10 million sets, more than double the number of CB radios sold last year.

Retail sales of radios, antennae and other accessories should top $2 billion this year, he predicted.

Sodolski said there are nearly 20 million CB sets now in use. The Federal Communications Commission said it has issued 7.5 million licenses, with the rate of applications continuing at about 300,000 a month.

Many CB enthusiasts install units in both their homes and their cars to enable home-to-mobile conversations.

The industry expects CB sales to continue to climb next year, Sodolski said, due largely to publicity since the growth of CBs began in 1973, new features and the expansion of the current 23-channel CB band to 40 channels next month.

Recent FCC figures show about 70 models containing the new 17 channels have been approved for sale on Jan. 1 when the FCC channel expansion becomes effective.

Sodolski said only three million CB sets were sold between 1958, when CB radio as it is now known was created, and 1973, when a combination of factors triggered the current Reinforced government troops drove back a violent fascist attack on Madrid today after Premier Francisco Caballero, addressing the Spanish social parliament at Valencia, warned there was imminent danger of a European war.

"A European war is now being fought on a small scale on Spanish terrain," the premier declared, "and unless the League of Nations takes steps to permit the legitimate government to purchase arms and supplies, it will inevitably spread over Europe."

The premier declared the Spanish insurrection would have been subdued within "a few weeks" had the fascists not had "direct assistance" from Germany and Italy from the beginning.

President Roosevelt, hailed by the Latin Americans to whom he brought a picture of a new world united for peace, left Argentina today for his journey to Brazil.

Standing on the deck of the U.S. Cruiser Indianapolis as it sailed for Montevideo, Uruguay, he waved a small Argentine flag to the rain-soaked throng which cheered from the docks and nearby streets.

With the President's plea to consolidate Western democracies against aggression for "our mutual safety and mutual good," the Inter-American Peace Conference launched into informal organizations.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Realists Run Yugoslavia

By ROWLANDEVANS
AND ROBERT NOVAK
BELGRADE — At the very least, President Tito and Stane Dolanc, his shrewd and aggressive Communist party chief, gained important yardage in their hard-nosed talks with Leonid Brezhnev two weeks ago, symbolized by Brezhnev's unprecedented pledge to "absolute non-interference" in Yugoslavia's internal affairs.

The question now in the dangerous sparring between Tito, the man who embodies the country, and the adversary he has feared and contained for three decades is whether that gain can be held in what is invariably termed the "post-Tito" period.

Knowing the question has no remotely conclusive answer, the Yugoslav Communists are now scurrying hard to exploit their gains from the Brezhnev meeting, hoping that Moscow's instinct for aggressions in all forms somehow can be tamed in the very special case of Yugoslavia. One method of taming: holding an acetylene torch of publicity on Moscow's pledge of non-interference.

Thus, in his remarkable speech here last Friday (Nov. 26) Tito could only have been aiming at the Soviets when he exhorted those who "resort to pressure with the aim of... endangering our independence." The speech was remarkable for its plain-speaking, but also for its masterful delivery. The old Communist revolutionary, nearing 85, spoke without slurring a word, raising a glass of water several times with no tremor of his hand.

When Dolanc followed him to the podium in the ornate old parliament (where deputies ratify party decisions without dissent) he quoted at length from Tito, referred to "existing differences" between Belgrade and Moscow, then said it "should not be forgotten by anyone, east, west, north or south" that Yugoslavia is non-aligned.

When we asked a party leader why Dolanc boxed the compass in the absence of any external threat to Yugoslavia except from the Soviet Union, he said it "was simply a matter of convenience." Moscow clearly was the target.

The clear decision here to keep the torch of publicity on Moscow may actually have been aided by Jimmy Carter's blunder when he ruled out U. S. troops if the Soviets moved against Yugoslavia in the post-Tito period. The first reaction was, in the phrase of one diplomat, "extreme nervousness." But the headlines Carter's campaign blunder made, and his later clarification, brought the post-Tito prospect under vivid scrutiny, which is exactly where resourceful Yugoslavia seems to want to keep it.

In similar vein, Brezhnev's graceless resort to Little Red Riding Hood to assure his stunned hosts here that Moscow was not a big bad wolf also served to put Soviet-Yugoslav post-Tito relations under the world microscope. ("Worse than a wolf," the Chinese ambassador murmured to a friend.)

When we asked how top party officials had reacted to the fairy tale, one of them advised us to read the whole story: how the hunter (in his version) slew the wolf and found Little Red Riding Hood inside, alive and well.

Anti-Soviet feeling runs high with virtual unanimity among all Yugoslavs, somewhat less high among party apparatchiks and with Tito himself — but not much less. Thus, while giving Yugoslavia its head on non-alignment with the Warsaw Pact and promising non-interference, the Soviet effort to portray Belgrade as a full partner in "socialist (proletarian) internationalism" — a euphemism for communizing the world under Moscow's direction — is anathema.

Tito insisted on eliminating

Other Side Of Rip-Off

WASHINGTON — Several months ago Senator Frank Moss of Utah uncorked a sizzling report on the delivery of health services under the Medicare and Medicaid programs. The Senator found that a small minority of medical practitioners were engaged in a large rip off. His report was intended to arouse indignation, and it surely aroused mine. I wrote a hot piece.

The piece stands. In my own view, for whatever it may be worth, the medical profession as a whole still is not doing nearly enough to expose and to denounce the licensed rip off artists. Neither is the government yet doing what ought to be done to prosecute fraud or to correct abuse. But there are different kinds of rip offs, and different kinds of abuse; and there are aspects to this story that Senator Moss neglected to discuss.

As the Medicare-Medicaid programs now operate, the doctors themselves also are being ripped off. Physicians are compelled to accept lower fees for treating government patients than the doctors customarily charge for treating private patients. Hospitals are similarly imposed upon. One result is that private patients must take up the slack.

A letter is at hand from Dr. Charles K. Harmon, a surgeon in Sanford, Fla. He provides some specific examples.

A hysterectomy was performed upon a 69-year-old patient. It was a complicated operation, for which the surgical fee was $540. The charge was submitted to Medicare. After two months, Medicare paid $360 only. Because the patient also was on welfare, the balance of $180 was submitted to Medicaid. After 17 months, Medicaid paid $67.50. The balance had to be written off.

Another elderly patient, similarly situated, underwent extensive skin grafting. The charge was $300. Ultimately Medicare and Medicaid paid $186.25.

In a third typical case, a gangrenous leg had to be amputated. The charge was $660. Dr. Harmon's office finally recovered $456. In yet another case, an 81-year-old woman broke her hip; the femoral head was replaced with a metal prosthesis. The charge was $775; the ultimate reimbursement, $573.

Dr. Harmon's experience evidently is universal among American physicians. A family doctor in Florida treated a 17-year-old boy for a serious rattlesnake bite. It took a four-day struggle to save the boy's leg. The family was on welfare, but it had not been on welfare quite long enough to acquire a "transaction number." The red tape could not be unsnarled, and a $125 charge had to be swallowed.

A dermatologist in Massachusetts writes that his customary fee for a private patient is $22. Medicaid pays seven dollars only. This doctor remarks that when he went into medicine more than 20 years ago, he accepted his humanitarian obligations. Since then he has given more than 10,000 hours of his time to charity work, "but I have to pay my staff, rent, and expenses." The reduced fees paid by the government do not even cover his overhead.

Hospitals make the same complaint. In September the Indiana Hospital Association filed suit in U.S. District Court in an effort to compel Medicare administrators to pay full costs for Medicare patients. Under present regulations, Medicare allows nothing for a hospital's continuing overhead costs. In the end, private patients must make up the Medicare shortfall.

On the matter of fraud and abuse, HEW spokesmen say the government's efforts have been greatly expanded.

Other Editors Say The Growers Know

(Henderson Dispatch)

Tobacco growers face the big decision on December 16 in deciding whether to approve extension of the tobacco program for another three years. It is absolutely unthinkable that they would reject it, for the crop faces one of its major challenges in the next few years.

Producers know now what their quotas will be for 1977. Basically, the reduction is twelve percent under allotments the past season. But that is not the total answer. It is not known as yet how much poundage will be involved in carry-over from 1976 that was either not planted, or not harvested and sold if it were. A maximum of ten percent can be brought over into the new crop. In addition, there is a ten percent tolerance, or allowance, for over-production next year.

The two extras could amount to considerable marketings charged against the twelve percent reduction decreed.

These factors will be in the minds of farmers when they vote on extension of the program.

If the traditional plan were to be rejected in the upcoming referendum, chaos would be inevitable. The producer would be fearful of not planting his share, whatever that might be, and in some instances would likely go all-out. Or, if he voluntarily curtailed his own crop and others didn't he could be left holding the bag. Most likely, prices would collapse.

All of which is mere conjecture. Tobacco growers are not going to risk any such disaster. Along with all the urge for approval that will be heard, the farmer knows as well as any one what the stakes are, and will not ignore the threat that would arise. It is by no means a wild guess that the tobacco program will be approved overwhelmingly for another three years.

Sees Possible Red China Trade

By STEPHEN FOX

AP Business Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Will Americans be watching Monday night football on Red Chinese television sets a few years from now?

That's one of the intriguing questions raised by Barry Richman, professor of management and international business at the Graduate School of Management of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Richman, an expert on the economy of the People's Republic of China, thinks trade between the United States and China will increase dramatically in the next few years, with color television sets, transistor radios and other consumer electronics among the possible items being imported by this country.

"You may well see color television sets from China within the next five years," Richman said in an interview. "They're producing them now, but they're talking about producing them for mass markets. If they did, they could undersell the Japanese. In fact, I think you'll see some of the same imports here that you saw after World War II from Japan and Korea."

Richman, who has traveled widely in mainland China, says the recent purge of the so-called "radical" Chinese leaders after the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung may lead to more rapid industrial growth for China under its new rulers.

"It remains to be seen whether Chairman Hua Guofeng — Mao's successor — will abandon substantially the traditional model of self-reliance in favor of a rapid, long-term infusion of foreign capital and technology to meet the pressing economic requirements of modernization," he said.

"But if the moderates can maintain control for the next 10 to 15 years, China would be in a position to achieve a real economic growth rate in the range of 5 to 8 per cent a year."

Richman says this could boost Sino-American trade to the $3 billion to $6 billion level, a whopping increase from the $1 billion figure of recent years.

Some of the products likely to be exported from the U.S., in Richman's view, are chemical plants, agricultural machinery, computers and heavy transportation equipment.

In turn, the Chinese are likely to sell Americans gourmet foods, textiles, sporting goods, musical instruments and minerals, he believes.

China has paid much more for imports in recent years than it has gained on exports and suffers from a balance of payments deficit. However, Richman thinks the vast Chinese oil reserves could reverse that trend.

"China may well have more oil in the ground, and especially offshore, than all of Saudi Arabia," he said. "Exactly how much is there, we don't know."

"But we do know the quantity is very great, and China also has much potential to develop and utilize other sources of energy. So it is highly possible that the export of oil in exchange for technological goods and expertise could turn China's recent balance of payments deficit into a surplus."

Runs A Ferryboat, And Feels No Desire To Get Out Of 'Rut'

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer
OXFORD, Md. (AP) — Life a treadmill? Same old grind, same old rut? Take cheer, then, from Gilbert Clark.

"I've never thought of it as a rut," Clark said. "I'd rather do what I do than anything else. It's a simple life, but it's a good life. I have no ambition to do anything else."

What Gilbert Clark does, day in and day out, is run a ferryboat.

Let other mortals stew and fret over bosses and budgets and business deals. Clark is perfectly content to drive his little ferryboat back and forth, back and forth, across the Tred Avon River on Maryland's Eastern Shore, and at nightfall tie it to a dock in this antique village, go home, and reflect on his happy lot.

He loves his work, he loves his boat. A sign in its pilot house says: "This is my boat and I'll do as I damn please."

It could stand as Capt. Gilbert Clark's autobiography.

No less does he love the area where he does his work. He selected it after search and deliberation.

"All rivers and bays and inlets are places of beauty," he said. "But this river and the others," he said, his arm sweeping the surrounding scenery, "the Choptank, the Miles, the Wye, the Chester, well, I just don't think there is another place like it on earth." Indeed. And no moment quite like the present in this lovely piece of geography, for now is the time of the geese.

Now is the time when the gray December sky is necklaced daily with wafting chevrons of black, and in the corn stubble hundreds of those marvelous birds, thousands of them, tens of thousands of them, gabble and honk in America's annual miracle of migration.

"I always hate to see them leave," Capt. Clark said. "But they always come back."

Predictability, one can well imagine, is something that would appeal to a ferryboat pilot, and all the more to Gilbert Clark. He represents the fourth generation of Clarks in the ferry business.

He swears he can remember, as a baby boy, being perched on the wheel housing of this very boat, the Southside, as his father spun its wheel and worked its levers.

"My great-grandfather started the ferry from Shelter Island to Sag Harbor in Long Island Sound, towing scows with sailboats. My brother still runs that ferry," Clark said.

"Another family had the ferry on the north side of Shelter Island, we had the one on the south side. That's where my boat got her name. I sailed her down here from Long Island Sound."

The trip across the mile-wide

Tred Avon River takes eight minutes, long enough for Clark to scamper around collecting tolls; the boat holds only seven cars.

Clark can make the crossing with his eyes closed — has made it, in fact, in dense fog and 70-mile winds.

Eighteen months ago there were only seven fraud investigators for the entire country. Now a criminal fraud division has been established, with a staff of 75. Approximately 300 cases are actively pending. New management systems are being instituted; sophisticated computers, it is believed, will more quickly detect abuses.

There are, lessons in all this, if anyone wants to heed them, as the incoming Carter administration looks ahead to national health insurance. For many doctors and hospitals, the Medicare and Medicaid programs have become an inescapable $40 billion nightmare of rules, regulations, forms, underpayments, delayed payments, and non-payments. The system make a handful of doctors rich. For the rest it's little more than a burden to be endured.

it at the Berlin conference of European Communist parties. He insisted on similar, bilateral treatment here and got it.

Nevertheless, Belgrade remains paranoid about the big bad wolf. Three days after the Brezhnev-Tito meeting, a Soviet general writing in Red Flag said Moscow must "coordinate the course of Warsaw Pact countries," and the best way to do that was by "socialist internationalism" — an exact about-face on the Soviet surrender to Tito and to West European Communist parties.

Trying to make its own way under the overhang of massive Soviet power, the only Eastern European state to defy Moscow and get away with it can be excused its paranoia. An about-face on Brezhnev's pledge of "absolute non-interference" is ruled out by none of the hard realists now running Yugoslavia, whether by stimulating anti-Belgrade nationalism in the province of Kosovo, ruled by ethnic Albanians, or in Croatia or by overt power plays.

Events themselves in the post-Tito period will tell the story, but until then the best that Tito, Dolanc and Co. can do is make the record speak loud and clear.

boom. Sales in 1973 exceeded one million, then more than doubled each year since then.

But the FCC expansion decision and its initial confusion, combined with the usual late summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand, brought about a halt in the rising rate of sales in September.

Nevertheless, Sodaliski said, record sales in the first half of 1976 and the expected resumption of sales in November and December is expected to result in the 10-million-unit sales this year.

Sodaliski said he expects a shortage of the new 40-channel sets early next year because of FCC rules that prevent shipping the new units to retailers until Jan. 1, and because of some industry difficulty in meeting new FCC standards required to lessen CB interference with television and other broadcast bands.

Nevertheless, the FCC said last week that 79 models had been approved for sale and testing of others will continue to determine whether they meet the new FCC standards and can be sold to the public.

New Look At Old Uniform

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

There's a glimmer of hope for sailors who long to go back to the Navy's traditional bell-bottom trousers, jumper and white hat.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, has told the Navy's personnel bureau to take a new look at the uniform question, simmering since the old style was jettisoned a few years ago.

During Holloway's recent swing through the fleet in the Pacific, he heard repeated complaints from sailors about the new uniform of coats, shirts, black ties and peaked caps.

"Wherever he goes, Adm. Holloway gets asked about the possibility of getting back to the old uniform," a Navy source said.

Officials stress the personnel bureau's look is just preliminary to give Holloway information on probable costs of returning to the old uniform or some variation of it, and to determine accurately the extent of interest throughout the fleet in making such a change.

"Holloway wants to make sure it's more than a few guys who talked to him about it," the Navy source said.

A basic objection to the new style uniform, its critics say, is that it is a bother to keep it in presentable condition, particularly aboard smaller ships that lack cleaning and pressing facilities.

Sailors claim they don't have space to hang the new uniforms. The old outfits could be rolled up and stored in sea bags.

Some sailors, along with nostalgic ex-Navy men, say the bell-bottoms and the white hat made a smarter looking uniform.

And there are chief petty officers who complain that the distinction they once enjoyed when wearing coats and peaked caps disappeared when all enlisted men began dressing the same way.

The uniform change was ordered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., when he was the Navy's top officer. Announcing his decision in June 1971, Zumwalt said he hoped to "enhance morale and present the concept of one Navy" with a standard uniform for all.

A period of about four years was allowed for a gradual changeover so that sailors would get used to the idea.

Apparently, many of them never did.

Suggestion Is Behind Firing

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A teacher who has been notified he is being dismissed from the University of North Carolina geology department claims it is the result of his public stand that the possibility of earthquake predictions by geophysicists should be studied scientifically.

Dr. David M. Stewart, 39, a geophysicist and seismologist who was named the department's teacher of the year in 1973, says he plans to ask the university to override the department's notice. If the decision is not reversed, Stewart's contract will expire in May 1978.

Stewart appeared at Davidson College on Jan. 10 with Clarisa Barnhardt, a California woman who says she can sometimes sense impending earthquakes. She predicted a large earthquake in the Wilmington, N.C., area, within a year.

Afterward, 12 members of the University of North Carolina geology department signed a statement debunking Mrs. Barnhardt's record of predicting earthquakes, and upholding the use of scientific instruments and scientific data.

Dr. Roy Ingram, geology department head, said, "It would be inappropriate to comment" on the notice of dismissal to Stewart.

However, Stewart said Ingram told him the psychic issue had no part in the decision by a vote of the majority of the 11 full professors in the department. Stewart also said that Ingram's written statement called his scientific achievements only "fair at best" and considered his "potential for contributing to geology and geophysics (as) not very good."

Stewart, director of the university's MacCarthy Geophysics Laboratory, said, "In my view, it's nothing more than a violation of my academic freedom, pure and simple."

is in the front of a closed general store and serves about 35 families. He says the job is a quiet one but that leaves him time to study. (AP Wirephoto)

C. & L Proposes Higher Rate Schedule

Changes Story Again; Now Admits Kidnaping

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Robert Erskine Thomas, 21, described by a prosecutor as a "prolific liar," has changed his story again. He now says he and another man kidnaped a department store official, and two brothers serving prison sentences for the crime were not involved.

A national television program, "Weekend," shown on the National Broadcasting Co., has aired a report that its investigators found that the brothers, Sandy Sawyer, 21, and Lonnie Sawyer, 19, were innocent. "Weekend" plans to broadcast a follow-up report this Saturday night in which Thomas is shown saying he kidnaped Robert Wayne Hinson, 27, assistant manager of the Collins Department Store in Monroe, 20 miles southeast of Charlotte.

Hinson says he was kidnaped on May 15, 1975, in an unsuccessful attempt to get him to open the safe. He continued to insist Wednesday that the Sawyer brothers were the kidnapers.

Thomas' most recent admission of the kidnaping, given at a prison and shown Wednesday on a Charlotte television news program, came a day after he had recanted a similar admission made in October to the State Bureau of Investigation.

The man who prosecuted the Sawyer brothers, Dist. Atty. Carroll Lowder of Wingate near Monroe, had said Tuesday after Thomas' recantation that he was not surprised that Thomas had first confessed to the crime and then reversed his story.

"It certainly confirms once again that he's a very prolific liar," Lowder said, adding: "He's told more than a half-dozen different stories related to the matter."

Thomas, from nearby Matthews, is serving a recently imposed 14-month jail sentence for breaking and entering, issuing bad checks and beating a former girl friend.

The Sawyers, who are from nearby Mint Hill, have asked Gov. Jim Holshouser to grant them a pardon. They lost a new trial appeal in which they accused Thomas and another man of committing the crime, but Holshouser has agreed to investigate.

RALEIGH (AP) — Under a company proposal, customers of Carolina Power & Light Co. would be charged for electricity under a new schedule and would pay more beginning next summer, though some relief has been promised.

On Wednesday, the utility asked the North Carolina Utilities Commission for a 15 per cent rate increase that would cost its customers in the state $69.2 million a year. Next spring, the company will file a similar request with the South Carolina Public Service Commission. The different filing times are because of differences in the states' laws.

In the North Carolina request, the company said higher rates are needed because of the completion of the second unit of its Brunswick nuclear plant near Southport at a cost of $331 million; the effect of inflation on operating expenses; needed improvements in the company's rate of return on equity; and the need to regain a higher bond rating which would allow lower interest rates.

The rating structure would be changed substantially. Now, the company has three residential rate classifications which result in different rates for customers with all-electric homes, those who use electricity only for lighting and those who use it for space heat and heating water.

Under the proposal, all residential customers would pay the same rate. But, there would be different rates for summer and winter electricity use. The proposed winter rate for 1,000 kilowatts is $39.88. The proposed summer rate for the same amount of electricity is $41.80. CP&L now charges all-electric customers $34.91 for 1,000 kilowatt hours during the summer and $35.11 for the same amount of electricity during the winter.

Just last February, the company was granted a 22 per cent rate increase.

CP&L President Shearon Harris said the impact of the rate increase would be offset somewhat by reduced fuel costs resulting from increased use of the Brunswick nuclear plant.

Harris said he hopes CP&L won't have to ask for another rate increase until 1980 if the Utilities Commission allows this one. A Utilities Commission attorney said it would likely be April before the commission begins hearings on the rate request.

Acknowledging that electric rates have increased substantially in recent years, Harris said, "Even with today's price of electricity, an hour of labor now buys the average North Carolinian more electricity than it bought in 1960. I hope our customers are aware that even with the increases since 1970, CP&L's residential rates remain among the lowest on the East Coast."

Key Witness Is Arrested

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The man who has claimed he lied on the witness stand against the Wilmington 10 has been arrested on a burglary charge.

Allen R. Hall, 23, was arrested in the home of a Wilmington resident after police received a call that someone was breaking in late Wednesday.

Hall's testimony led to the conviction of the Rev. Ben Chavis and nine other civil rights activists on charges of conspiring to burn a white-owned grocery store and shoot at police and firemen during a period of racial unrest in Wilmington in 1971.

The nine black men and one white woman were sentenced to long prison terms, largely on Hall's testimony.

Earlier this year, Hall said he had lied to the state under pressure of the prosecutors. He, too, had been convicted in the store burning incident but served only part of his five-year sentence.

Earlier this week, Hall was accused of parole violation by making out-of-town trips without clearing it with his parole officer.

Studying Story Of Rights Movement

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Duke University historians are studying how the civil rights movement began, functioned and sustained itself in the racially troubled South during the 1950s and '60s.

The project, which is expected to require several years, is called the Research Program for the Study of Race Relations and Civil Rights. It is being coordinated by Drs. William Chafe and Larry Goodwyn, co-directors of the Duke Oral History Project.

The study will involve lawyers, judges and journalists as well as professional historians.

The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded Duke $299,780 to help support the study.

Chafe said in an interview that the project is "the first systematic effort to marshal the academic community for a thorough study of race relations and civil rights."

He said lawyers, judges, journalists and others will be involved in the study because they affected the movement and, in turn, were affected by it.

Unlike other studies, this one will not focus on the national leadership of the movement, the Duke historian said. Rather, it will focus on "the movement's grass roots and the forces that brought it into being in communities throughout the South."

Mrs. Trudeau On Sophia's Set

MONTREAL (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's wife, Margaret, spent an afternoon with Sophia Loren while the Italian actress was at work on "Angela." Miss Loren plays a waitress in the film, set in 1953 and directed by Boris Sagal.

A Paramount Pictures spokesman said Mrs. Trudeau took still pictures Wednesday during location filming at a restaurant in Old Montreal.

The prime minister's wife and the actress "jointly signed autographs for at least two dozen people" at the fast-food restaurant which usually closes in mid-afternoon, the spokesman said.

The two women met during a private luncheon at the Italian Embassy in Ottawa on Nov. 21, and Miss Loren invited Mrs. Trudeau to Montreal to watch filming for a day.

Senior Tiant Is Hospitalized

BOSTON (AP) — Luis Tiant Sr., father of Boston Red Sox baseball pitcher Luis Tiant, is in satisfactory condition at a Boston hospital, undergoing treatment for an unspecified illness.

The ball player's lawyer, Robert Woolf, said the elder Tiant has been a patient at Carney Hospital for the past two weeks, but he declined to elaborate.

Tiant's father was a pitching star with the old New York Cubans and has been permitted, along with his wife, to live in this country by special arrangement between the U.S. State Department and Cuba.

The family of the late Mrs. Carrie C. King wishes to express their sincere thanks for all acts of kindness most of all your prayers that were shown during the illness and death of our beloved one. Your kindness will never be forgotten.

"I quit a better job than that," he said when asked about speculation that he might run for governor in 1978. But, said the former Ohio and U.S.

Recall 1976 Chevettas

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. is recalling all 175,000 of its 1976 Chevrolet Chevettas because some of the cars may have loose fuel tank caps, which could increase the chances of a fire in an accident.

GM's Chevy Division said Wednesday the caps may not seal properly because of excessive solder on the internal threads of the fuel tank filler neck.

A Chevy spokesman said the problem could cause excess fuel spillage if the car were in an accident and "increase the chances of a fire."

The spokesman added, however, that Chevrolet has received no field reports of fires or injuries resulting from the potential defect.

Chevrolet said its dealers will inspect the cars and correct the problem, if necessary, at no cost to owners.

HONOR TAP HEEL

DENVER (AP) — Citing his support of revenue sharing, the National League of Cities presented its first special citation for distinguished congressional service to Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C.

Motor vehicle license validation stickers and plates will go on sale in Greenville and Farmville Jan. 1, at Home and Auto Supply, 718 Dickinson Avenue here and at Farmville Toyland, 109 S. Main Street, Farmville.

Mrs. Anna Garriss is the Greenville agent and Mrs. Ruby Johnson is the Farmville agent. Validation stickers are to be affixed to the upper right hand corner of current license plates in the designated indenture over the 1976 validation sticker.

Newly acquired private passenger vehicles, trucks, and other vehicles will continue to require metal license plates.

The application cards necessary for obtaining 1977 license plates or validation stickers will be placed in the mail Dec. 10 and 20. Division of Motor Vehicles officials expect this huge mailing, estimated at more than 4,000,000 cards, to be delivered by Jan. 1.

The 1976 plates and stickers expire Dec. 31 and their use beyond this date is permissible only if they are duly registered by the Division to the vehicle on which display is made. Owners who have their vehicles properly registered by the Division have through Feb. 15 to obtain new plates or validation stickers.

Mrs. Garriss points out that "to renew a plate you must have a renewal card" and cautions against the misplacing of it when it is received. She asks that the applications be completed according to instructions before they are presented at her or Mrs. Johnson's offices. This will speed up issuance and keep lines from forming, she said.

The Division of Motor Vehicles has made arrangements with the post offices to turn over to the local license offices renewal cards which are undeliverable. Therefore, anyone failing to receive an application card may possibly find it at the local license office. "It will take from 10 days to two weeks to get application cards from the Division of Motor Vehicles in Raleigh," Mrs. Johnson said. She suggested that those who have not received an application go to hers' or Mrs. Garriss' office as early as possible so there will be time to get one out of Raleigh before the deadline.

Mrs. Garriss' hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Mrs. Johnson's hours are from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

entering and larceny conviction to become eligible for parole December 19. They contended that to revoke her probation at this late date and require her to serve the six months sentence would delay her parole eligibility date.

"Why the delay," Paul asked. Had the probation hearing been held earlier, the sentences on the shoplifting charge and the breaking, entering and larceny conviction would have run concurrently, he said.

The probation violation report was filed November 22, 1976, some two and a half years after the violations occurred.

Mrs. Moore told the court that she had filed the report in order to clear up her file, and indicated that she was prepared to recommend to the court that Miss Little's probation be terminated, rather than revoked which would require her to serve the shoplifting sentence.

"If it wasn't Joann Little, we wouldn't be here," Paul said.

Judge Phillips, in allowing the defense motion to dismiss the complaint, said "it would not be proper under the law" to revoke Miss Little's probation, in light of the fact that the probation violation report could have been filed as long ago as June 1974.

CORNELIUS FOR TWO—East Carolina's Greg Cornelius goes up for a tap-in during last night's action against Western Carolina. Others in the shot are ECU's Larry Hunt (at JAMESVILLE — Jamesville opened its season in basketball last night taking double victory over Bear Grass.

The Jamesville boys nipped the Bears, 46-41, while the girls handed the Bear Grass lasses their first loss in four starts, 28-25.

Bear Grass salvaged only the junior varsity game, 79-27.

In the girls' contest, Bear Grass edged out into a 9-6 lead after the first period. Jamesville came back to cut the lead to just 11-10 at intermission. In the third period, Jamesville forged ahead with a 9-5 advantage, making it 19-16. Both teams hit nine points in the final period.

Lou Rawls, with 10 for the Bears, was the lone girl in double figures.

Jamesville and Bear Grass matched points in the first period of the boys' game, 10-10. But in the second frame, the Bulls managed to inch out into a 27-25 lead.

Bear Grass rallied in the third period, and inched into the lead, 37-34, but they couldn't hold it. Jamesville came back with a 12-4 margin in the final period, pulling out the victory.

Ricky Whitehurst led Jamesville with 18 points, while Tommy DiNardo added 11. Robert Harrison hit 21 for the Bears, while Jerry Wynne added 10.

The loss left the Bears with an 0-4 record on the year. Jamesville goes to Chocowinity on Friday, while Bear Grass entertains Roanoke on Saturday.

half to pull out a 70-62 victory over Western Carolina University last night.

Freshmen Herb Gray and Jim Ramsey helped the Pirates put the icing on the victory, hitting key free throws in the closing minutes of play. Gray also sparked the Pirates to a comeback on the backboards, where they were getting murdered in the first half.

Gray pulled off ten second half rebounds for a total of 11, while Greg Cornelius helped out with a team-leading 13. Larry Hunt, who was shut off the boards in the first half, came back with nine as the Bucs outrebounded the Catamounts, 36-12, in the final 20 minutes.

Ramsey's key help came from the charity stripe, where he canned 10 of 10 free throws in the second half. He hit 18 during the half and finished with a high of 20.

Cornelius added 16, while Hunt tossed in 10 more for the Pirates.

The improved offense was coupled with a turnaround on defense too. The Bucs shut the door on Western in the second half, allowing the Cats just seven baskets on 29 shots, a poor 24.1 percentage. The Pirates did not shoot well throughout the evening, but their guttiness and determination more than made up for it.

"Again, I'm extremely proud of these kids," a beaming Dave Patton said afterwards. "Our freshmen brought us back. Gray and Ramsey did the job when we had to have it. Gray got the boards going for us again, and Cornelius made some things happen for us underneath. But the real key was their 'D'."

"The crowd helped us a lot too. They got us going with their support. Our freshmen have done a lot of growing up fast out of necessity."

Pete Conaty of East Carolina kicked 10 field goals in as many attempts in his team's first four games in 1976.

The Pirates trailed most of the way, only taking the lead three times in the first half, and never by more than one point. Meanwhile, Western pushed out to as much as a ten-point bulge.

In the second half, the Bucs rallied to tie it up three times before finally getting a two-point edge. But they could never expand it and again fell behind, this time by five. But again, they rallied to take the lead, and then built on it.

Western got the initial lead on a free throw by George Dodkin, and after a Billy Dineen basket, Dodkin hit again for a 3-2 lead. The Catamounts held it for a while after that, moving out by as much as three.

East Carolina finally took the lead on baskets by Cornelius and Herb Krusen, at 10-9, but again, Western regained it as Dodkin again hit. Western again moved out by three, before the Pirates rallied again.

This time, Gray hit twice in succession for a 20-19 lead with 9:37 left in the 1st. It was the final Pirate lead until the second half.

Western sparked by Dodkin, pushed back ahead, and ran off three straight baskets before the Pirates could hit a free throw. Three more baskets by the Catamounts ran the lead out to 10, at 31-21 with 4:35 left, and the Bucs made no headway in trying to cut the margin after that. They trailed, 37-27 at the intermission.

East Carolina put on a sprint early in the second half and cut the lead away to a tie at 41-41 after nearly seven minutes. That came when Louis Crosby stole the ball for his second dunk of the year. Ramsey had led the comeback with four points.

Unable to take the lead, the Pirates tied it up again at 43-43 and then at 47-47 before Ramsey finally put them ahead, 49-47.

But the Bucs couldn't get ball and the lead together, and Western pushed back out at 52-51 on a three-point play by Dodkin. Jay Lassiter added two more free throws, and Thomas Wilson got a dunk for five-point edge. He was fouled on the play, but was unable to shoot, with Russell Gibbs hitting two running it out to seven at 58-51 with 6:38 left.

But one more the Bucs came to life, and charged back. Cornelius scored three in a two from underneath, then Ramsey hit to cut the lead to one.

Gray tied it up at the line, then Ramsey made a basket for a 62-60 lead. Western tied it once more, but two free throws by Gray, followed by two more by Ramsey upped the lead to 66-62 with just 14 seconds left. East Carolina made four more free thogs after that to wrap it up.

For Western, Dodkin finished with 20, 15 in the first half. Thomas Wilson and Jay Lassiter each had 12 and Alex Bell had 10.

East Carolina is now 2-0 on the year, while Western falls to 1-1.

The Pirates play host to Virginia Military Institute on Saturday in their first Southern Conference game.

Greene Central Gets Victory In 1st Outing

SNOW HILL — Greene Central had a successful opening to its basketball season last night, capturing a 64-54 victory over Saratoga Central.

The Greene Central girls didn't fare quite as well, however, bowing to Saratoga, 52-22. The Greene Central junior varsity took a 45-42 win.

In the varsity action, Saratoga pushed out into a 20-13 lead during the first quarter. Things got no better for the Rams in the second period, as Saratoga pulled further out, holding a 40-28 halftime lead.

But the Rams took command in the second half. They outthrust Saratoga, 18-8, and closed the gap to 48-46 at the end of the period. Then, in the final period, Greene Central outthrust their guests, 18-6, to forge ahead and take the win.

Ernest Thompson led Greene Central with 14 points, while Lawrence Edwards had 10 and Curtis Shirley had 13. Tillery led Saratoga with 14, while Ralph Bailey and Meeks each had 10.

In the girls' game, Saratoga made short work of the Ewes. They built up a 19-2 lead after one period and had no trouble after that. Saratoga increased its lead to 31-4 at halftime, and ran it to 41-8 as the final period opened. Greene Central came back with a 14-11 margin in the final period.

Charlene Boykin led Saratoga with 18 points, while Peoples had

Five Man Backfield Highlights All-America Team; Godette On 3rd

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Dorsett, Pitt's fabulous running back who made the team as a freshman four seasons ago, was named to The Associated Press 1976 All-America college football team today along with three other great runners in a unique five-man backfield.

Joining Dorsett and rifle-armed quarterback Tommy Kramer of Rice in the offensive backfield were running backs Ricky Bell of Southern California, Rob Lytle of Michigan and Terry Miller of Oklahoma State. Bell, Lytle and Miller were considered so even that it was impossible to separate them.

The only repeaters from 1975 on the first team were Bell and split end Larry Seivers of Tennessee. Dorsett made first team in 1973 — the first freshman so honored in 29 years — third team in 1974 and second team a year ago.

The AP All-America team will be seen on Bob Hope's Comedy Christmas Special on NBC-TV, Monday, Dec. 13, from 8:30-10 p.m., EST.

Coaches Bo Schembechler of Michigan and John Robinson of Southern California, the rival Rose Bowl coaches who each have two players on The AP All-America team, also will appear.

The only other first-teamers from last year's first three teams were linebacker Brian Ruff of The Citadel, up from the second unit, and defensive back Bill Armstrong of Wake Forest, elevated from the third team.

Joining Seivers at end was Michigan's Jim Smith, a clutch receiver and gifted kick returner. The offensive tackles were Georgia's 253-pound Mike "Moonpie" Wilson and Oklahoma's 275-pound Mike "U.S.S." Vaughan. The guards were a pair of 250-pounders, Ted Albrecht of California and T.J. Humphreys of Arkansas State, and the center was 245-pound John Yarno of Idaho, who beat out all the backs and was named Offensive Player of the Year in the Big Sky Conference.

The defensive line consisted of 247-pound Ross Browner of Notre Dame and 240-pound Bob Brudzinski of Ohio State at the ends, tackles Wilson Whitley of Houston, 268, and Eddie Edwards of Miami, Fla., a 250-pounder, and 225-pound nose guard Al Romano of Pitt.

The linebackers were Ruff, Robert Jackson of Texas A&M and Jerry Robinson of UCLA, while the deep backs were Armstrong, Gary Green of Baylor and Dennis Thurman of Southern Cal.

Top-rated Pitt, runner-up Michigan and third-ranked Southern Cal were the only schools to place two players on the first team.

All but four members of the 23-man first team are seniors. Miller, Browner and Thurman are juniors while Robinson is a sophomore.

Dorsett finished the regular season with an NCAA single-season record of 1,948 yards. His 6,082 career yards was another mark, along with his 356 career points.

Bell, who missed setting a single-season record last year by six yards when he finished with 1,875, settled for 1,417 this year although he missed one game and played hurt in a couple of others. He carried 51 times against Washington State for an incredible 347 yards, just three short of the all-time record.

Miller rushed for 1,541 yards, second best ever by a Big Eight Conference runner. He was sensational in league games, gaining 81 against Kansas, 137 against Colorado, 159 against Oklahoma, 228 against Missouri, 149 against Nebraska, 221 against Kansas State and 199 against Iowa State. He had two other 100-yard games outside the conference and was named Big Eight Offensive Player of the Week four times in a five-week stretch.

Lytle, who played both tailback and fullback, is rated by Schembechler as the best running back he has ever had. Lytle was remarkably consistent and went over 100 yards eight times, including 180 against Michigan State, 175 against Indiana, 172 against Northwestern and 165 against Ohio State in the Rose Bowl showdown. His per-carry average of 6.9 yards was the best of the four All-America running backs.

Kramer led the nation in total offense and passing. Although opponents knew Rice was going to throw the ball most of the time, Kramer still completed 269 of 501 passes — 24.5 completions per game — for 3,317 yards and 21 touchdowns. He threw only 19 interceptions, just one in every 26.3 passes, and finished his career by connecting on 27 of 52 for 409 yards against Southwest Conference champion Houston.

Williamston Hopes To Improve On Northeastern Loop Standing

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
With a "strong nucleus" returning from last year's 11-11 squad, Williamston basketball coach John Hardison is expecting better things for this year's team.

"I don't know if you would consider it a rebuilding year or not," he said. "We've got a good nucleus back from last year. If we play up to our potential, we should finish in the middle of the conference or a little better."

Two starters return from the team, which was third in the Northeastern Conference last year with a 7-5 conference record.

One of the returnees is two-time all-conference forward Barry Wallace. The 6-3 senior averaged 17-18 points a game last year, Hardison said, and will carry a big portion of the scoring load this year.

Center Ronald Brown, a 6-3 senior, was also on the Tiger team last year and is the only other player who "saw any playing time at all last year."

Both Wallace and Brown will be starting for Williamston this year. At the other forward spot, 6-1 Ronnie Horton has the edge on a starting position right now. He is being pushed, however, by 6-2 Merritt Taylor and 6-1 Anthony Griffin.

With no return guards, Hardison has had to start over at this position. Horace Wynne, a 6-1 junior, and Tony Speller, a 5-9 senior, are the probable starters. Mike Koesy and Ricky Cowan will also play some guard behind Speller.

Randy Freeman, the best ballhandler on the team, will play behind Wynne and be used against presses and some man-to-man defenses.

Although the participation of the Williamston football team in the playoffs has slowed the Tiger basketball progress somewhat, Hardison said, the team should do pretty well.

"We were 11-11 last year and I think that we can at least have a winning season. The players have really been hustling and working hard. The competition is going to be better, but with a few breaks I think we can do as well as last year."

The Tigers plan to use a zone defense for the most part this year. They will probably use a 2-3 zone with some 1-3-1 zone pressing.

Offensively, they will be in a 1-3-1 formation with most of the scoring coming from the inside men. "We will be basically inside-oriented, but capable of taking the outside shot," Hardison said.

Hardison predicts a conference race with everyone chasing Washington, the defending champs. "Washington should be a little better," he said. "But it should be pretty even among the rest of us."

Pell, 35, of Albertville, Ala., was a two-way starting lineman under Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and played on Alabama's 1961 national championship team.

Later he served as an assistant to Bryant before compiling a 30-7-2 record as head coach at Jacksonville (Ala.) State in four seasons. He was defensive line coach at Kentucky before becoming defensive coordinator at Virginia Tech.

Pell told a news conference his immediate reaction to the announcement was one of "appreciation, and my first thoughts are with Coach Parker who gave me the opportunity to come to Clemson last January."

He said the head coaching assignment "is an opportunity for me at a great university, one that I've dreamed about and tried to prepare myself for my entire coaching career."

The dejected Parker said he had planned to inform his players personally of his dismissal at a meeting of the team called for 11:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Parker previously coached for seven years at The Citadel, where he compiled a 39-34 record.

Governments, Firms Try To Evade Fishing Limits

By JOHN LENDEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign governments and companies are buying into U.S. seafood firms in an apparent effort to avoid compliance with a law restricting foreign fishing within 200 miles of the U.S. coast.

At least one congressman involved in passage of the new law establishing the 200-mile limit says he is planning legislation to halt foreign efforts to buy into U.S. fleets.

To date, 56 foreign businesses and the Soviet government either have bought an interest in a U.S. seafood company or have joined with an American firm to form a joint-venture corporation.

Such arrangements could allow the foreign enterprises to fish within the 200-mile limit as Americans do, free of fees, quotas and access restrictions that will apply to foreign vessels. A firm under foreign control could export all the fish it can buy or process, affecting U.S. prices and the balance of payments.

So far, 33 Japanese firms have invested in firms like Hilton Seafood and Seattle's North Pacific Fisheries. Japanese Alaska Pulp Co. owns Wrangell Lumber Co., which owns Harbor Seafoods of Wrangell, Alaska.

The Soviet government, through Sovrybflot, joined Bellingham Cold Storage Inc., of Washington, to form U.S.-U.S.S.R. Marine Resources Inc., according to congressional records. Sovrybflot was created by the Soviet government to enter into joint-venture fishing industry agreements. It has similar arrangements in France, Iran and Spain.

A Finland company, Huhtamaki-Yhtyma, has an interest in Los Angeles Smoking & Curing Inc., and a British holding company, Hanson trust, is said by U.S. officials to have potential control of 40 per cent of the menhaden harvest through the facilities of Seacoast Inc.

Also involved are The Netherlands, Kuwait, Canada and South Korea.

Raps. Gerry E. Studts, D-Mass., who was instrumental in creation of the 200-mile limit, and Les Au Coin, D-Ore., say they have their staffs examining prospective legislation to deal with the situation.

U.S. fishermen had complained that under the old 12-mile limit many species of fish were near commercial extinction because of the operations of more efficient foreign fishing fleets.

Under the 200-mile limit, effective March 1, regional councils will draw up conservation plans and determine the size of the catch to be allowed for each species. U.S. fishermen get first crack at the catch, with foreign vessels allowed only if the council decides there is a surplus beyond the capacity of the U.S. fleet to harvest.

Since some stocks have been overfished, there probably will be no surplus and foreign firms buying into American companies are trying to guarantee at least a share of what is available inside the limit.

Advise Pay Boost For N.C. Judges And DAs

RALEIGH (AP) — Judges and district attorneys would get an 18 per cent pay increase over the next two years if a proposal adopted by the state Advisory Budget Commission wins approval in the legislature.

Now that the board has finished its work on the proposed 1977-79 budget, it will go to the General Assembly for consideration.

Among the other recommendations in the budget is a 6.5 per cent pay raise for teachers and state workers to take effect next July 1. That amount is in line with the suggestions of Gov. Jim Holshouser and Gov-elect Jim Hunt.

The board left open for later consideration a general pay increase for 1978-79, the second year of the biennium. Representatives of teachers and state workers have set as their goal a 10 per cent increase each year of the biennium.

The board met in closed session last week and reports from the meetings were that the proposed 18 per cent pay increase for judges and district attorneys had drawn considerable debate. The legislature is also expected to heatedly debate the question.

During recent years, judges and district attorneys have complained that they suffer financially by serving. Also, it has been noted that the average 7.5 per cent pay increase granted last spring that took effect July 1 did not cover judicial officers.

If the proposal is approved: —Superior Court judges who now earn $32,000 would get $39,500.

—District attorneys would go from $28,300 to $36,000.

—Chief District Court judges would go from $25,700 to $33,200.

—District Court judges would go from $24,700 to $32,000.

Two Tapped By Phi Beta Kappa

Two Pitt County students have been tapped for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's highest scholastic honorary fraternity. Christie Speir Price of Bethel and Mitchell Jules Reep of Greenville were honored at ceremonies held in Carroll Hall at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Wednesday night.

Charged Having Marijuana

Greenville police yesterday arrested 18-year-old Jeffery Donell Best of Route 4, Greenville on charges of possession of marijuana. Chief Glenn Cannon said the charge stemmed from a Monday incident at Rose High School where Best is a student.

By The Associated Press

A cold front moved across North Carolina today. It reinforced the cold air that has covered the state for the last few days. So temperatures continued well below the early-December normal.

Snow flurries fell in the mountains, where the temperatures reached only into the 30s. East of the mountains, readings were a few degrees warmer than those of Wednesday afternoon. But they remained cold, with highs in the 40s, except for the low to mid 50s along the coast.

Skies were partly cloudy today and will become fair Friday.

Overnight lows will range from the teens in the west to the low and mid 30s along the Outer Banks.

Highs Friday will be in the 30s, except for the low and mid 40s along the coast.

It was sunny and cold Wednesday, but a few degrees higher than Tuesday. Highs ranged from the upper 30s in the north portion to the 40s in the south and along the coast. The warmest was Wilmington with 48, followed by Cape Hatteras, New Bern and Jacksonville with 46.

Lows early this morning were in the upper teens and 20s inland, and the 30s and low 40s on the coast.

Angola Wins UN Entry

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Angola is the 146th member of the United Nations, admitted Wednesday by a General Assembly vote of 116 to 0.

The United States formally abstained on the vote to express its disapproval of the continuing presence of Cuban troops in the former Portuguese colony in southwest Africa. The United States vetoed the Marxist Angolan government's application in the Security Council last June, but reversed its position and abstained on a second council vote last week.

The council must approve membership applications before they are referred to the General Assembly.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton said last week that the United States decided not to block Angolan membership "out of respect for the sentiments expressed by our African friends." Other American diplomats said their government switched in the hope that black African governments would urge black Rhodesian leaders to be more conciliatory at the Geneva negotiations.

Zoning Board...

said that he was representing two of the six owners of the property, his mother (Mrs. Heath) and his uncle, Lawrence Watts of Raleigh. The property is owned by the Brown heirs.

Heath suggested a compromise that would provide a 100-foot buffer strip of R-9 zoning along Forest Hill Circle with the balance of the 11 acres rezoned from O and I to R-6. He contended that multi-family use under R-6 would be more suitable than R-9 usage.

A resident of the area who did not give her name said that the "prospect of duplex development (in the area) is appalling to us."

Stan Riggs, one of four property owners along Forest Hill affected by the 100-foot buffer proposed by Heath, said he was not concerned with the buffer but with the total area.

Riggs said that city will have to take a stand and prevent the whole area around the downtown section from becoming rental oriented. He also expressed concern about potential fill and development of the mill run.

Tom Greer, another of the Forest Hill property owners, said he was concerned about the traffic that would accompany high density development. The proposed buffer would not help the situation behind his house, he added.

Noting that the residents had to submit their request through Planning Department since they legally could not petition for rezoning of the Brown property, Greer said that some avenue for residents to make such a petition without having to seek a sponsor is needed.

Commission chairman Karl Faser said that the automatic 30-day tabling period would be applied in this instance and action would be considered at the next session.

The board also automatically tabled a request of Harold D. Taunton for rezoning of four acres on the east side of Hooker Road north of the 264 Bypass from RA-20 (agricultural) to Highway Commercial. The rezoning was sought in order to construct a musical instrument repair shop and provide for future commercial development.

Schofield said that the request involved 856 feet of frontage along Hooker Road that would be divided into four lots. He noted that Taunton applied for a special use permit before the Board of Adjustments to continue use of the present structure on Hooker as a repair shop but the request was denied.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, board member, said that the request with commercial property and some of the city's better residential property. She said that some type of buffer district is needed between the two developments.

Several residents of nearby Cambridge Subdivision appeared to oppose commercial development in the area and seek protection for the continued growth of the residential nature of the area.

Dick Farris said that residential property owners would have no assurance that the current commercial request would be the last in the area.

Gary Giles said that he did not consider the proposed use a good addition to the neighborhood. Highway Commercial zoning would open up the area to increased traffic, he contended.

Commissioner Eddie Howell suggested that the proposed repair business could be placed in an Office and Institutional zone, which is more restrictive than Highway Commercial. Howell said that he would recommend that Office and Institutional be substituted.

Taunton said that he would be agreeable to the alternate zone if it would allow the proposed use. He added that he understood the concern of the residents and reminded them that a tree line already exists between the two zones.

Commission members agreed that the entire tract of 31 acres should be looked at with the idea of rezoning all of the property behind the Hooker Road frontage that is currently RA-20.

In other business, commissioners approved a revision to the preliminary plan of Greenville Square Shopping Center off Greenville Boulevard and Arlington Boulevard to provide for the site plan of Cape Fear Theatre.

A spokesman for the developers said that the theatre will be located to the rear of the proposed A & P Food Store with frontage on Arlington. Entrance to the theatre property would also be on Arlington.

City Engineer Charlie Holliday said that the revision involves only minor modifications in the overall layout of the shopping center. The layout has already received planning board approval.

Commissioners gave their final approval to the final plat of Mills Subdivision, Section II, located in Meadowbrook. Holliday said that the tract adjoins the city limits and is an extension of Mills Street.

Approval also given by the city members to the final plat of Section II of Tucker Estates, located on Red Banks Road.

Members of the Joint-City-County Commission, meeting prior to the city board, voted to table a request of LANCO Realty, agent for 2.76 acres on the north side of US 264 adjacent to Lawson's Trailer Park, for rezoning from RA-20 to Highway Commercial in order to convert the former People's Bible Temple structure to a variety store.

The property is located across from Oakdale Subdivision and is bounded by trailer park development on both the east and north side, it was noted.

Mrs. Trevathan said that the request involved spot zoning and she stated her opposition to that type of zoning.

Commissioner John Moye observed that the property is located beside open farm land and in the future will be developed in some type of commercial zone.

Mrs. Trevathan contended that there are other types of commercial zones than Highway Commercial.

Oscar Edwards, representing the petitioners, noted that adjoining property owners had been contacted and they approved the rezoning action. He said that he would not be opposed to another type of commercial zone if it permitted the proposed use.

Howell said that he would recommend Shopping Center zoning for the property since it is more restrictive than Highway Commercial. It was suggested that other property in the area be looked at in considering the overall zoning.

Commissioners approved the preliminary plat of the Clara H. Bland Mobile Home Park consisting of approximately 26 acres and lying east of Floral Park Subdivision on State Road 1523, approximately 1.5 miles from the city limits.

Holliday said that the developers designated some 36,000 square feet of recreational area or more than double the acreage required. He said the mobile home park meets the minimum standards for such a development.

125th ANNIVERSARY
SALISBURY, N. C. (AP) — Catawba College, which is connected with the United Church of Christ, will celebrate its 125th anniversary Sunday.

Chrismons Service Is Planned Sunday

Saint James United Methodist Church will celebrate the Advent Season with a special service of worship designed to explain the Chrismons which adorn the two trees in the sanctuary during Christmas, Sunday, December 5 at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Frances K. Spencer who originated the idea of the Chrismon tree explained that it began as an offering to God and continues as a song of praise and thanksgiving.

According to Mrs. Spencer an elderly pastor came to her home asking for discarded gift wrappings and ribbons to make ornaments for the tree in his little church. From this experience she was inspired to become a professional decorator of Christmas trees.

In 1956 she offered to decorate the three in her church, The Lutheran Church of Ascension in Danville, Va. with Christian symbols. She also did extensive research on Christian symbolism and developed the idea of Chrismons alone adorning a tree.

This is the sixth year that Saint James has had Chrismon trees and the service is being offered to explain their significance and celebrate the Christmas spirit.

The following persons will participate in the service: Karri Cecil, Kathy Clark, Mary Kathryn Clark, Donna Costner, Amy Dohm, Karen Green, Sarah Hayes, Ann Heath, Keith Johnston, Heather O'Neal, Scott Plueddemann, Paul Quinn, Enoch Reid, Burt Singleton, Doug Smith, Larry Talbert, Jr., Scott Wallace, Shaun Wallace, Kerri Warner, Scott Wilson, and Steve Worley. The youth chorale and the church choir will sing and the Christmas bells will be played by the Handbell choir.

Following the program, ushers will distribute brochures with more information about Chrismons.

Mexico's New President Offers Work, Austerity

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's new president began his six-year term by calling for hard work, promising to reduce government spending and urging business to help overcome the country's economic crisis.

Jose Lopez Portillo said in his inaugural address Wednesday that Mexico is faced with a period of austerity to contend with inflation, recession, unemployment, rising prices and financial instability, including the recent devaluation of the peso.

"We must recognize that crisis is not a fatal castastrophe if we employ our will," he said. "The gravest fact is that in the moment of deterioration, some Mexicans lost their confidence in the country,

Singer Freda

Payne Is Wed

CHICAGO (AP) — Pop singer and songwriter Freda Payne and Stanford University doctoral candidate Gregory Abbott have been married in a private ceremony here.

Abbott, 30, has a 3-year-old son by a previous marriage. The marriage is the first for Miss Payne, 32, of Detroit. The two said they met at a party last December. They were engaged in June.

Friends said they plan a honeymoon in Acapulco, Mexico, and a simultaneous appearance on the Sammy Davis and Company television show, now filming there.

The marriage took place Wednesday at the home of an aunt and uncle of Miss Payne.

which is the same as losing confidence in themselves."

Leaders of the conservative business community welcomed his message.

"This is the message that Mexico needed," said Jose Represas, director of the Nestle company.

Lopez Portillo received the red, white and green presidential sash in the National Auditorium from outgoing President Luis Echeverria, whose agrarian reforms and government spending alienated much of the business community.

One of Echeverria's last acts was to award titles to 1.1 million acres of land to 32,000 peasants and to order a new expropriation of 8,668 acres of land to be divided into 60,200 plots for peasants' homes.

The Associated Press erroneously reported Wednesday that Echeverria expropriated the 1.1 million acres on his last day in office. The error was due to an incorrect AP translation of a government announcement in Spanish from the Agrarian Reform Secretariat. The secretariat said the land had been expropriated at various times since Mexico's 1910 revolution, and the peasants had been working it without title to it.

Both Lopez Portillo and Echeverria are members of the Institutional Revolutionary party (PRI) which has ruled Mexico without serious challenge for more than 30 years. Lopez Portillo was his predecessor's finance minister until he resigned to run for the presidency.

Lopez Portillo said the banking system would be changed to encourage savings and channel "part of the resources that would otherwise be devoted to consumption into the formation of capital." He promised help to companies that lost money in the devaluation of the peso. And he said his government would try to channel public and private investment into the areas of fishing, energy, petroleum, mining, steel, capital goods, consumer goods, and transportation.

Lopez Portillo also said the rich would be taxed more and the poor less, the government would continue to promote public works in the poorer sections of the country, and land reform is basic to the Mexican revolution and the ruling party. But he added there are "real limitations to land distribution."

Leading foreigners attending the inauguration included President-elect Jimmy Carter's wife, Rosalynn; Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his wife, Nancy; President Johnson's widow, Lady Bird, and her daughter Luci Nugent; and President Ford's son Jack.

Toll Trend?

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Central Telephone and Utilities Corp. will experiment late next year with a call-by-call charge for local telephone service.

Maurine Taylor, public relations manager for the North Carolina office of Central Telephone, said the experimental tariff would be filed in one of nine states served by the company.

She said there is no indication at this time that North Carolina points will be designated for the experiment, or exactly what the details of the plan will be.

Central Telephone serves the Hickory, Elkin, Eden and Asheboro districts in North Carolina.

"The toll charge idea is being studied," she said. "In December 1977, our parent company is planning to file through one of its subsidiary companies an experimental tariff in one exchange."

"It'll be strictly experimental. If granted, it would be a trial run. We'd be doing background research on it."

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reportedly is studying such an idea nationwide. It would eliminate the flat rate charge for local telephone service and instead charge customers per call.

Wreck Fatal To Pres. Ford's Half-Brother

Immunizing Still Slow

ATLANTA (AP) — More than 10 million Americans have been immunized against swine flu since Oct. 1, the national Center for Disease Control announced today.

So far, only five states and Puerto Rico have exceeded 50 per cent immunization, a spokesman said.

Federal health officials have said the program is now in its most critical period as the government seeks to vaccinate as many as 200 million persons.

Last week, 4.7 million persons were vaccinated — a decline of about 2 million from the previous week. A spokesman said the decline was attributed to the Thanksgiving holidays when public health offices were closed.

The states which have exceeded 50 per cent immunization were listed at North Dakota, 60.35 per cent; South Dakota, 56.31 per cent; Wyoming, 74.40 per cent; Hawaii, 67.07 per cent, and Alaska 50.24 per cent. Puerto Rico reported 69.64 per cent.

The congressionally funded $135 million national swine flu immunization program was begun after the virus struck several soldiers at Ft. Dix, N.J., last winter, killing one.

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP) — Leslie Henry King, President Ford's 53-year-old half brother, was killed today when his car collided head on with a tractor-trailer loaded with pipe, police said.

Ford learned of King's death shortly after 7 a.m. when King's widow called the President, a White House spokesman said. There was no immediate word whether Ford would attend the funeral.

State police Sgt. Ron Hill said

King's car was westbound in the eastbound lane of Interstate 40 about 5 1/4 miles west of this central Tennessee town when it hit the tractor-trailer. King, a resident of Cookeville, Tenn., where he owned an auto parts store, was alone in the car and apparently was killed outright Hill said.

The driver of the tractor trailer, Billy Hudson, was not injured, Hill said.

Hill said it took more than an hour to cut King's body from the tangled wreckage.

Witnesses told police that King had been driving in the wrong direction for several miles, Hill said.

Operators of Citizens Band radios who saw King driving the wrong way said they tried unsuccessfully to warn him of the highway.

His body was taken to McFarland Hospital in Lebanon.

Hill said an investigation would be made.

King was one of three children born to Ford's father, Leslie L. King, by a second marriage.

LESLIE H. KING

President Ford, born in Omaha, Neb., in 1913, was the only child of the first marriage and originally was named Leslie L. King Jr.

His parents divorced in 1915, and the following year his mother married Gerald R. Ford of Grand Rapids, Mich., who adopted the baby and renamed him. Mrs. Ford subsequently bore three other sons.

Ford did not learn until he was a teen-ager that he was the adopted son of his mother's second husband.

King, who also was a hunting guide, said he recalled first meeting his half-brother when Ford was an assistant football coach at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., where Ford attended law school.

During the years that followed, they exchanged letters and met whenever Ford's political trips took him into Tennessee.

After Ford became president in 1974, King, who was a member of the state Republican executive committee, invited him to visit the state. He said then he felt closer personally to Ford than to either of his two full sisters "because of our political thinking."

King was an active supporter of Ford's recent election campaign in Tennessee. While campaigning in the state, he indicated he was thinking of seeking office himself, saying he might "run for something instead of somebody."

USED CAR WARRANTY

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Of for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

N.C. Sheriffs Call For A Tough Stand On Crime

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Saying they believe that stiffer penalties help deter crimes, the North Carolina Sheriffs Association has proposed changes in state law emphasizing a tough stand on crimes against persons and property.

The sheriffs also called for restoration of the death penalty in a one-day meeting here Wednesday. The sheriffs also hired Raleigh attorney Wade Smith, a former legislator, to be their legal counsel and lobbyist.

On hand for the meeting was a representative of the state Department of Justice who will have bills drafted that would implement the sheriffs' proposals.

The members said they will try to convince the General Assembly, which meets next month, that "imprisonment acts as a positive deterrent to crime."

Gov.-elect Jim Hunt has also promised a hardline approach to crime, though his proposals differ somewhat. Hunt has promised to be the first governor to deliver a special message sage to the General Assembly on crime. Differences between proposals from Hunt and the sheriffs, as well as others proposing legislation on crime, would be worked out in committee.

Major points of the organization's legislative package were:

- Deny probation, parole, suspended sentences or early release from prison for good behavior for anyone convicted of armed robbery.

- Stiffer sentences for anyone convicted a second or subsequent time for breaking and entering and burglary, a type of crime that is on the increase. Repeat offenders would also be denied probation, parole or suspended sentences.
- Every citizen "should feel secure in the privacy of his home," the organization said.
- Restoration of the state's death penalty which was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court last summer.

- Increasing the $25,000 benefit paid to families of law enforcement and other public safety officers killed in the line of duty to $35,000.
- Increasing the $10,000 death benefit for law enforcement and other public safety officers to $20,000.
- To set up a commission to study whether North Carolina needs juvenile training schools (reform schools) and to study the possibility of limiting the civil liability of sheriffs.

Sheriff Manley Lancaster of Forsyth County, president of the association, said the organization's members intend to lobby hard for passage of their proposals.

Sheriff Tom Morrissey of Buncombe County, host for the meeting, complained that a soft approach to crime has not worked. "We believe that one of the most effective ways to combat crime is through stiffer and more consistent sentencing."

Launch Pad Is Topped

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The metal frame from which America's early manned spacecrafts were launched was topped with an explosive charge Wednesday.

The rusting gantry, ruined by corrosion, had become a hazard because of falling debris, space agency officials said.

So, with a brief flame and a large cloud of smoke, the 110-foot tall, 250-ton structure collapsed while black smoke spiraled skyward.

It was a moment of nostalgia for reporters and space center workers who had seen the first Atlas firing from the pad in 1957 and the launch of John Glenn, America's first man to orbit the earth, on Feb. 20, 1962.

A small group of military officials watched the blast from atop a nearby blockhouse.

Although local officials had expressed a desire to maintain the complex as a historic site, the government appropriated no funds for restoring and maintaining the area.

Wednesday's charge was set by a demolition team from Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Two Public Hearings Set

Two public hearings to discuss the problem of applying for HUD Community Development Block Grant Funds on behalf of low-income handicapped, elderly and disabled citizens of Greenville and Pitt County have been scheduled.

Hearings will be conducted at 7 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 6 and again at the same hour on Tuesday, Dec. 14, in the auditorium of the Willis Building at the corner of First and Reade Streets.

One of the particular needs to be discussed is that of housing problems and possible solutions. The public is invited to attend and to offer input into the discussions. Persons who might be affected by funding decisions, such as the handicapped and elderly, are urged to be present to give suggestions and comments.

The meetings are sponsored jointly by the N.C. Department of Human Resources, Div. of Vocational Rehabilitation Services, and the N.C. Dpt. of Natural and Economic Resources, Div. of Community Assistance.

Carter Energy Policy Depends On Congress

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If President-elect Jimmy Carter carries out all his past energy proposals, the nation can anticipate higher natural gas prices, tight oil supplies and the revival of Appalachia's coal country.

Carter may not get to carry them out; Congress and circumstances may change his mind or thwart his plans.

In position papers and comments on energy during his campaign, however, Carter has laid out lengthy blueprints for his energy plans.

"The major thrust of the energy problem," Carter has argued, "should be away from oil toward coal and solar energy, with heavy emphasis on conservation."

"Whatever we cannot accomplish with these measures would have to be made up temporarily and as a last resort by atomic power," he said.

President Ford's administration has urged a doubling of coal production by 1985 and has moved to resume leasing of federal coal lands in the West.

"If there is a choice to be made," said Carter, "my own attitude would be to strengthen the production of coal in the Appalachian regions."

"You've got some very serious problems in the West," added Carter, referring to strip mining and other environmental impacts and the scarcity of water.

Apt Symbol Of City Finances

NEW YORK (AP) — This year's city Christmas tree is an apt symbol of New York City's finances — as unbalanced as the city budget and as lean as its purse.

"Don't judge the scrawny thing until we've patched it back together," pleaded a Parks Department spokesman after the tree was installed across from City Hall. "Some extra branches will be drilled in."

Previous trees have measured up to 60 feet tall and 30 feet wide and have cost about $2,350. This year's is 46 feet tall and 20 feet wide and cost $950.

Honor Campus Bartender

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — Grateful students at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse have founded a scholarship for one of the most important men on any college campus: the local bartender.

The namesake of the Ray George Scholarship Fund opened his bar, The Rustic, in 1944 and has kept the beer and paternal advice flowing ever since.

"He served as a godfather-grandfather to a lot of us," said John Olson, a 1964 La Crosse graduate who teamed with his wife and several other graduates to raise money for the fund at a recent dinner-dance.

"You're up on Cloud 19 and you don't know if you're ever going to come down, to be remembered after all these years," said George.

And Appalachia, where coal once was king, badly needs the economic revival that a new coal boom would bring, Carter pointed out.

The Federal Energy Administration estimated last year that eastern coal production would rise some 22 percent by 1980, but its share of the total market would slip from 76 to 70.5 percent as production races ahead in the West.

That potential shift represents some 46.6 million tons of coal worth nearly $1 billion a year, at recent prices, to the region that gets to produce it, and Carter seems to feel most of that business should stay in Appalachia.

Eventually, coal will be converted into synthetic oil and gas, Carter noted, but he suggested these processes should center not in the West but in the upper Midwest where water is abundant.

To stimulate natural gas production, Carter has favored removal of federal regulation over prices charged for new supplies by producers to interstate pipelines, at least for a five-year trial period.

The Federal Power Commission recently tripled the producers' ceiling price and estimated this would cost consumers an additional $1.5 billion in the first year — about $15 more each year on the average homeowner's gas bill.

If the same amounts of gas were deregulated entirely and climbed to recent unregulated prices, the consumer impact might hit some $2.35 billion, adding $23 to the average yearly gas bill, with further increases sure to follow.

To hold down U.S. dependence on foreign oil, Carter has proposed "a quota system that would keep imports at the present 40 per cent level."

But American Petroleum Institute statistics estimate that oil imports will average 41 per cent this year, and have been increasing 2.5 percent a year since 1968.

At that rate, unrestricted imports would supply 51 per cent of the nation's oil four years from now. A strict 40 per cent limit would amount to a self-imposed 11 per cent oil shortage by the end of Carter's first term — roughly equal to the worst of the Arab oil embargo of 1973-1974.

Whether such a quota would create actual shortages of gasoline and heating oil would depend on the nation's success at energy substitution and conservation.

"If it becomes necessary," Carter has warned, "petroleum supplies available for consumption should be allocated" as was done during the Arab embargo.

Carter has proposed a series of strong energy conservation measures, including: efficiency standards for electrical appliances; mandatory improvements in building insulation; a ban on advertising that promotes electricity consumption, and abandonment of utility rates that charge the lowest electricity prices to the biggest users.

Carter even has proposed "stand-by excise taxes" that could be imposed on selected petroleum products to reduce consumption.

Gasoline would be the prime target, as the petroleum fuel with the most flexible demand and the only major category whose consumption now surpasses its 1973 levels.

Carter has not indicated how large the excise tax might be, but past experience suggests it would have to start at several cents per gallon, at least, to have any substantial effect.

On the other hand, some Carter proposals would tend to reduce the prices of petroleum products, so the final consumer impact cannot be predicted.

Carter wants to encourage U.S. oil production, but has not said how.

The encouragement might come through appropriate price regulations favoring new production. Carter opposed removal of price controls from domestic "old" oil, suggesting its price be held about $3 per barrel below international oil prices. New oil, presumably, could claim the higher international price.

This policy might require amendment of last year's energy act, which provided for phasing out oil price controls by late 1979.

To the extent that these measures still leave a gap between U.S. energy supply and demand, Carter said, nuclear energy would have to fill it.

Carter, who was trained in nuclear engineering in the Navy, has proposed strict, and probably costly, new safety measures: placing atomic plants underground; encasing reactors in large, double-walled vacuum chambers so air would rush in through any break instead of out, and posting federal agents in control rooms, with authority to shut down a plant in an emergency.

Such measures might make nuclear power more acceptable to present opponents, but would increase the cost of fission-generated electricity.

Carter's energy package also included:

—A slowdown in development of the nuclear "breeder" reactor, which would both use and produce plutonium, a hazardous radioactive metal suitable for atomic bombs.

—A shift of research funds from nuclear power toward solar energy, conservation and cleaner ways to burn coal.

—Proposal of a five-year moratorium on all U.S. and Soviet nuclear explosions.

—Convening a World Energy Conference.

—Direct negotiation of imported oil prices by the U.S. government, rather than individual companies, with foreign oil nations.

—Consolidation of the Federal Energy Administration, Federal Power Commission, Energy Research and Development Administration and parts of the Commerce and Treasury departments, Securities and Exchange Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission and Nuclear Regulatory Commission into a single new department of energy.

—And consideration, though not immediate endorsement, of proposals to break up major oil companies or prohibit them from controlling coal, uranium and other competing fuels.

It is a heavy agenda that could keep Carter, Congress and the courts busy for years, but Carter sees energy as a true crisis demanding a national policy.

"If we fall into the trap of seeing the energy problem as just another marketing opportunity, or just another political opportunity, with the benefits of production and distribution fought over like highway funds or defense bases," he has said, "then our country will wind up without energy.

"It will also be bankrupt in more ways than one."

Mothball Fleet Sailors Fight Barnacles, Not War

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — The sailors at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard fight barnacles, not battles. About 30 ships are in storage at facilities here. The latest addition is the aircraft carrier Oriskany, decommissioned Sept. 30 at Alameda Naval Air Station in California and towed north up the Pacific Coast to the Puget shipyard.

She joins other illustrious retirees. The battleship Missouri — the "Mighty Mo" — on whose decks the Japanese surrendered in 1945, is here, as well as the New Jersey, the last active USS battleship. Also anchored with only memories of captain, crew and cannons are the carriers Hornet, the successor to the ship that launched Jimmy Doo-little's Tokyo raid, Bennington and Bon Homme Richard. The Navy says the equipment aboard the ships is in good enough repair so that they could be recalled to duty if needed. Most of them were built from 1943 to 1945.

Preparing the Oriskany to sit instead of sail is a job of many months, begun by the crew in Alameda after the ship returned from the Far East into forced retirement.

Her sailors removed topside equipment, wired shut state-room drawers, disconnected power-driven equipment, chipped out warped linoleum and bathed surfaces in the Navy standby — corrosion-fighting red paint.

In preparation for her tow, Oriskany's 30,000-pound anchor and two tons of chains were removed and donated to the City of Oakland, Calif., which put them on special exhibit in Jack London Square.

"If we need her anchor back, we've got the right to take it back," said Lt. Cmdr. Reginald Robinson, inspection officer at Bremerton's Inactive Ship Maintenance Facility. So is it also with chunks of other mothballed ships "on loan" to cities, towns and states around the country, said Robinson.

The rest of Oriskany's anchor chains were coated in special grease to reduce friction and then secured in case the main tow line should break.

A broad white arrow was even painted from her boarding station to flight deck to guide tow crews should they need to board her during the journey.

At Bremerton, the Navy is sandblasting the hull, welding metal plates over various openings, repainting the bottom with preservative, pumping and cleaning fuel tanks and installing dehumidifiers.

After a ship remains in mothballs 15 or 20 years, with regular inspections, the Navy takes another look. Small ships such as landing craft are allowed to be converted to other uses. But large warships must by law be dismantled, Robinson said.

It Was Marvin's Day At The Ocotillo Cafe

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
OCOTILLO, Calif. (UPI) — Poor Marvin. He was two orders behind. He had eggs on the grill. A couple of customers were clamoring for more beer.

"I'm sure glad we're not busy," he grumbled, "because Lu's gone to the doctor, and I'm no cook."

Marvin is Marvin L. Steinbach, who owns the small Ocotillo Cafe at the western edge of the Imperial Valley Desert.

The sign says merely "cafe". "I'll get around to putting Ocotillo on it someday," says Marvin.

The cafe is a watering hole for travelers heading over the mountains to San Diego on Interstate 8.

At one point, Marvin asked the five customers at the counter "which one of you ordered the stew?" forgetting the order had been canceled 20 minutes earlier. "I didn't write it down," he apologized.

Steinbach manages well when Lu is aboard. She takes care of the cooking and he takes care of the dispensing.

But when she's gone, a fiercely independent Marvin doesn't hesitate to tell customers, "This is home cooking. We don't make anything in advance. You'll just have to wait."

He explained how one of his first orders of the day was ham and eggs "and I looked for that ham for 20 minutes before I could find it. I don't know where she keeps things."

When he got behind on a couple of hamburgers and told a customer the reason was he had two orders ahead of that, the customer replied, "I was a fry cook once myself. I know you can keep three or four orders going at once."

"But I've got a small grill," Marvin retorted.

The cafe clearly has none of the modern features like walk-in freezers, glistening 12-foot grills and indoor restrooms. The building appears to be one of the oldest in town but it is neat, and clean, and — most importantly — cool. The temperature gets to 118 degrees some afternoons.

Marvin dispenses food and drinks — mostly beer — to the hot and thirsty travelers. They are bikers and truckers and tourists and businessmen.

He was explaining how happy he was to have Lu cooking because she knew how to cook for a few people. "Most cooks I've had in here want to cook everything in five-gallon pots. I say, 'Hey man, what are you gonna do with all that stuff — we can't put it all in the refrigerator because we'll run out of room.'"

Business fluctuates so much from day to day that Marvin says the best he can do is buy a little every day and "keep pulling the old stuff off the front of the shelves, and putting the new stuff behind."

A retired carpenter from San Diego, Marvin bought the cafe earlier this year and well remembers the biggest day he had.

A flash flood devastated most of the town. The water missed the Ocotillo Cafe, and with stranded tourists, visiting news reporters and displaced residents, Marvin said "there wasn't room to stand in here."

"I had people sitting out on the porch eating breakfast. It was so crowded I couldn't tell who had paid and who didn't."

Discover More Theft Methods

GARDEN CITY, N. Y. (AP) — There are 415 known ways to steal money and/or goods from employers and new methods are being discovered almost every day, according to a recent study by the Dale System, Inc.

"A clerk in a busy New York City candy store under-rings every sale by one penny and takes home $5 a day — for 22 years. A super market manager in Oklahoma City sets up his own cash register at peak periods and in three months collects $75,000 his employers never knew about," noted Dale statisticians.

"Business thieves are smart and imaginative and extremely resourceful," researchers warned.

Inclined To Staying Young

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Man is the most advanced of mammals probably because he never grows up.

According to Rand McNally's "Atlas of the Body and Mind," human evolution has been dominated by a process known as neoteny, or "remaining young." Essentially, this means that man has evolved by retaining the immature characteristics of his ancestors. These include not only such physiological characteristics as the large brain found in newborn primates and the resulting capacity to learn, but also such behavioral characteristics as a curiosity about the world, a flexibility of response and "a playfulness." Such behavior is common to practically all young mammals, but is usually rapidly lost with the onset of maturity in all but man.

High Prices And Food Lines Plague Lisbon

BY NAT GIBSON
LISBON (UPI) — When a housewife goes shopping in Lisbon these days, she has a shrinking selection of foodstuffs to choose from and three major lines to face.

If she tarries too long in the bread line, her family will likely go without milk for the day. Unless she reaches the butcher fairly early, she will have to take pot luck on buying whatever he has left.

In addition, the prices she pays will be stiff, particularly if what she wants is imported. For example, a can of baked beans sells here for 45 escudos ($1.50), if you can find them.

One foreign couple who recently returned from a vacation in France stuffed their station wagon with unobtainable foods like dill pickles for the trip home. They told neighbors they found the cost of eating in a medium-class restaurant on the French Riviera cheaper than a lunch in the cafe around the corner in Lisbon.

Traveling is just as expensive as eating. A Volkswagen theoretically costs 140,000 escudos ($4,500). The local dealer says none will be available until late next year, and "we don't know what the price will be then." By then, the government has hinted that gasoline, now selling for 17.5 escudos per liter ($2.41 per U.S. gallon), may be rationed.

On Nov. 1, the cost of all forms of public transport rose 20 to 30 per cent. This came on top of a 50 per cent hike earlier this year.

The zooming prices represent the knife edge of the government's campaign to halt Portugal's overconsumption by taxing all but essential goods off the nation's shelves.

In a sweeping austerity plan, the government raised the duty on a wide range of imported "luxuries" such as household appliances and shellfish by 60 per cent. In addition, importers must deposit half the money with the government six months before the goods arrive.

Economic Planning Minister Antonio Sousa said the measures were necessary to halt Portugal's mounting trade deficit, which is expected to reach 35 billion escudos ($1.13 billion) this year. That is a lot of money in a nation of 10 million with a gross national product of $12 billion.

The price increases imposed by Sousa staggered Portugal's already harried consumers. He warned worse could come.

The siege economy being constructed by the minority socialist government of Prime Minister Mario Soares has already had one depressing effect for many consumers. A black market in bacalhau (salted cod), Portugal's favorite traditional dish, has developed.

There is a saying that the Portuguese live on hope and survive on bacalhau. In the opinion of many Portuguese, the nation now is in short supply of both.

Christmas Carols Arranged For Piano; Peter Duchin Saw Need

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures
A funny thing happened when Peter Duchin sat down at the piano last Christmas with his wife and three children. The only book in the house which contained Christmas carols was a hymnal.

Out just in time for Christmas this year, "A Musical Christmas with Peter Duchin" was obviously inspired by last year's experience. The publisher says it's the first new Christmas songbook of traditional holiday music to be published in more than 20 years.

Duchin says, "The thing about carols in a hymnal is that they're in four-part vocal arrangements. That's not much fun to play at the piano." So he and his wife Cheray thought he should compile a book and he did. A friend suggested adding guitar chords for people who have guitars and not pianos. All the words are there — and some are also in French, German and Latin — for people who want just to sing.

Duchin, 39, is a pianist and known as a society band leader, though he says society functions are only about one-fourth the business. His father, Eddy Duchin, who died when young Duchin was 13, also was a pianist-band leader.

This is his first book and Duchin is enthusiastic about it. "It has a strong binding and it's bound in such a way to lie flat on a piano. It's well made it's a book that is meant to be used often, year after year."

"It's beautiful, Jamie Wyeth is a very good friend of mine so I just asked him if he'd paint a picture for the cover and he did. The back cover has 'Old Kris,' painted by his grandfather, N.C. Wyeth.

"The arrangements are pianistic. Even if no one is singing, they sound fine. They're not very difficult. I've autographed books at various department stores and a lot of music teachers have told me they'll teach them to children.

"Well, there are a couple of difficult ones," he admits. "One is so difficult I put a very simple arrangement of the same song in there."

Of the 61 carols, Duchin says 31 are very well known, 15 are less known and 15 virtually unknown. He did research to find "curious old ones" he liked in the Yale and Lincoln Center libraries. None are thought of as songs as opposed to carols.

Duchin's children are 10, 8 and 6 and have "gone in and out" of piano lessons, at present are taking them.

"There's a village near where we live," Duchin says, "and every Christmas Eve we stand in the square with all the children and sing carols. On Christmas we go to church. I never perform Christmas Eve or Day."

"Dad used to take great pains to be home at Christmas. No matter where he'd be playing, or if I was away at school, we spent a certain amount of the Christmas vacation together. It was very important to him. We had a lot of fun playing the piano together."

Duchin's mother died soon after he was born and his grandparents, the Averell Harri-mans, brought him up while his father was in the Army in World War II or, in civilian life, performing. He remembers wonderful Christmas times in Harriman, N.Y., also, while he stood on a sled or skis and was pulled along the side of a country road by a horse trotting along the road.

Duchin has made a Christmas album for the Columbia record club. His most recent album, "Child of Mine," on Capitol, is his 25th. He has been discussing doing an album for RCA.

"And the band business has been sensational lately. We've been playing all kinds of different things, college proms which definitely have come back, Gershwin with symphony orchestras, concerts, conventions, year, it was with a 40-piece band."

Last year he personally played 90 to 100 jobs, Duchin says. "I don't like to play a steady job for three or four weeks. When I started I did that, at the St. Regis Hotel. Dad did it. In his day, the band business was that — going to the Palmer House for four weeks, then going to the Coconut Grove."

Duchin is writing music for the Dance Theater of Harlem and is working on a musical show. He spends a lot of time as a member of the New York State Council on the Arts. "If people aren't into the arts, they really are missing out — if they aren't into the dimension of life that the arts can bring. It is basically civilization."

Duchin plays one of the carols from his book on the piano in his office, then laughs. "Can you imagine what delivery men coming to the house in May and June thought? I'd be upstairs playing away at Christmas carols."

("A Musical Christmas with Peter Duchin" is published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.)

It helps to know your opponents. There are occasions where, if you know your opponent to be an upright citizen who wouldn't dream of deceiving you in the play of the cards, you would adopt one line. But if deceit is more natural to him, and the only time he plays an honest card is when he has no alternative, it might be right to pursue a different course. Consider this hand.

North-South bid quickly to a good game. Once his partner had shown a balanced minimum, North saw no point in telling the world he had a good club fit—he simply bid the game he expected to make.

West, a good man who regarded a falsecard as tantamount to lying under oath before the Supreme Court, led the two of spades. Declarer saw no reason to doubt that this was fourth best, and if that were the case, the spade suit was going to divide 4-4. In that event declarer could lose no more than two spades, and could afford to lose two more tricks. So he won the ace of spades and led a diamond to the queen and ace.

West continued with spades. Declarer won and forced out the king of diamonds. The defenders cashed two more spades, but the balance of the tricks belonged to declarer. Making three.

Now let's consider the play if West is the devious type of defender who would lead the two from any holding except four cards. Now, declarer can no longer afford the luxury of going after the diamonds, because the risk of losing two diamonds and three or more spades is too great. It might be better to establish clubs, relying on a 2-2 split and five tricks in the suit. On this hand, that would have resulted in down one.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" New Offering By CBS Radio

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS Radio, which in January 1973 began giving the nation the seven-nights-a-week "CBS Radio Mystery Theater," has a new Saturday-Sunday ear offering coming up the first week in February.

It's called the "General Mills Radio Adventure Theater," and will run just under an hour each night, and will premiere promptly at 6:07 p.m. est on Saturday, Feb. 5, says CBS Radio President Sam Cook Diggs.

Diggs, speaking by phone from New York, said the new weekend show will be an anthology series of such classic adventure yarns as "Robinson Crusoe," "Kidnapped" and "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

It's scheduled for early evening broadcasts, he says, so as to catch the family trade, particularly youngsters for whom radio drama is just something Grandad mutters nostalgically about now and then.

"We wanted to go with drama that would appeal to children broadcast at a time they could listen to it," Diggs said.

"We've found we've had a lot of complaints because 'Mystery Theater' in many markets is on too late for youngsters to hear it."

He said that series, which CBS says now airs on 220 stations, 190 of them CBS affiliates, is fed the stations at 10:07 p.m. EST, an hour most tots theoretically are abed.

CBS hopes to get at least the same number of stations carrying the new weekend adventure series, he added. As with the mystery show, CBS affiliates will get first crack at it, then other stations.

He said the new show will be produced and directed by Hyman Brown, chief honcho on CBS' mystery radio series.

The new offering will air first-run episodes each Saturday and Sunday for 26 weeks this year, followed by 26 repeat weeks in which Saturday shows will air on Sundays, and Sunday shows on Saturdays.

However, Diggs added, the new show won't be just a one-year proposition. General Mills, the sole sponsor, is signed up for what Diggs called a long-term agreement. He didn't specify how long, though.

In any event, he added, this agreement will help the show avoid what happened to the "CBS Radio Mystery Theater" in almost three years on the air — operate at a financial loss.

Diggs, who declined to say what the loss was, said it was incurred because the show was paid for on a participating sponsorship basis.

And there were times, he conceded, sponsors didn't participate.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your day to get into the various specific items of work and expense that require your attention. Make sure you think in terms of exactness and meticulousness in organizing and arranging them for your future use. When in doubt consult with a financial expert for right answers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on financial matters this morning and get all your affairs in better order. Use a proven system that has been workable for you in the past. Add to present security.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study personal problems and get them solved satisfactorily today. Then concentrate on greater success in the future. Do not argue at any social affair you attend. Be wary of strangers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal time to handle those annoying conditions efficiently, so stop procrastinating any longer. Get information you need from an expert. Be careful of one who has ulterior motives.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study personal problems more intelligently and you know better how to solve them. Steer clear of social functions where arguments may ensue. Be of greater cheer and enjoy kin.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Any public pressures should be taken care of without further delay. Bring your fine talents to the attention of bigwigs. Work more efficiently at your regular job. Derive more benefits from it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You understand better how to get into new interests and activities and can make big headway with them. Not a good day for taking any trips, though. Relax tonight after a busy day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure to keep any promises you have made to others or you will soon be held to account for failure. Try to please closest tie more and be happier together. Avoid a hypocrite.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to find out what partners expect of you and then you can work together more intelligently. Some civic work may not seem to be working out as it should, but this soon changes. Keep at it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a better system for handling your work so that you get better results. Improve vitality via new methods and patience. Take no chances where reputation is concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get stumbling blocks out of the way that could take away from your enjoyment of life. Persevere where your finest talent is concerned and get fine results. Evening is best spent at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listening carefully to the wishes of kind family ties shows you how to have more accord at home by cooperating with them more. Don't invest too heavily in some new project.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Give particular attention to any reports you have to make out and see that they are precise. Be very careful in travel of all kinds today. Attend a worthwhile social function tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons who will want to over-analyze every situation before reaching decisions. Teach early to speed up on thinking process and then your progeny will get far ahead of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
