Pregnancy Ruling Hit As 'Insult'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court decision on disability benefits for pregnancy outraged feminists, but left the way open for legislative changes that would nullify the ruling's impact.

An employer may legally refuse to pay disability or sick-leave benefits to pregnant women, the court said Tuesday in a 6 to 3 decision.

There is no sex discrimination "simply because an employer's... plan is less than all-inclusive," said the majority opinion written by Justice William H. Rehnquist.

The justices overturned the findings of a lower court in saying that General Electric Corp. does not violate the rights of any of its 100,000 women employees by making them take unpaid leaves of absence to have babies.

The decision does not mean that those employers now offering pregnancy disability coverage as part of their over-all compensation package must stop doing so. The court said, however, that existing laws such as the 1964 Civil Rights Act do not compel employers to offer that coverage.

Congress is free to pass legislation making such exclusions illegal, the court said.

One group which had supported the GE women employees, the International Union of Electric Workers, said it planned to seek such legislation.

David Fitzmaurice, the union's president, said his organization would lobby for legislation that specifically tells companies offering disability insurance to employees that pregnancy must be one of the health risks covered.

It was through the electrical workers union that 43 women GE workers, representing themselves and all other GE female employees, first filed grievances against the company. Later, they sued.

Their challenge was enthusiastically backed by women's rights groups, which unanimously panned the court's decision.

Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, called the ruling "insulting to every mother in the country."

She said, "The court states that men and women are treated equally under such a plan because if a man is pregnant, he will be treated in the same manner as a woman. Such a definition of sex discrimination is unique."

Susan Ross, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union, called the court's action "disastrous" for working women. The ACLU said the case showed the need to impress on President-elect Carter "the importance of seating women on the Supreme Court."

While labor and women's rights groups teamed on one side, employers lined up on the other. The Chamber of Commerce praised the court's decision for upholding the "right of employers to determine which risks they will insure their employees against."

'No Chance' Death Row Inmates Face Execution

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Associate Atty. Gen. Dave Crump says he doesn't see "any potential whatsoever" that 51 North Carolina death row inmates "will be subject to a death penalty under the new capital punishment statute we are preparing."

There were 115 people on death row in Central Prison here last July when the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the state's capital punishment law.

For inmates whose sentences were final, the death penalty was automatically vacated by the high court ruling and life imprisonment was substituted.

However, as of Tuesday, appeals were pending for 51 of the death row occupants. Death penalties technically remained in effect for them because disposition of their cases was not final.

It has been speculated in legal circles that prompt action on a new capital punishment law next year by the General Assembly could mean new death sentences for at least some of the prisoners.

But Crump, who is putting the finishing touches on the law the attorney general's office will submit to the legislature, says not to worry.

"The effective date of the bill I have in progress will be applicable to offenses committed after the ratification," he said. "There will be no application to the people technically on the row now."

Ordinarily, the U.S. Constitution prohibits ex post facto laws - laws that affect crimes committed before the effective date of the statute.

However, some lawyers speculate that, if a law is ruled unconstitutional, a statute passed to replace that law might not fall into this category.

Crump disagreed, saying, "It doesn't matter at all."

Some ex post facto laws, he said, are allowed under the Constitution, but they always either reduce the punishment or abolish the crime.

The state's old capital punishment law made a death sentence mandatory for conviction of first degree murder.

The proposed new law would require juries in such cases to conduct a second trial to determine whether the punishment should be death or life in prison, depending on the facts of the case and specific provisions of the law.

A preliminary draft of the bill is already in the hands of at least some legislators.

Crump said the final bill would be substantially the same, with some technical differences that "could be important in concrete cases."

Farmville Board Sets 2 Hearings On Applying For Development Sums

By CAROL TYLER, Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE - Two public hearings, one for Dec. 15 and one for Monday, Dec. 20, both at noon, were set by the Farmville Commissioners to consider applying for Community Development funds.

It is hoped that this project, if approved, will improve the housing situation in Farmville and will help in the demolition of the old high school building situated on property recently bought by the town.

Approval was given for a nutrition program for senior citizens of Farmville. The program would be financed by MidEast funds and would provide a hot lunch and midday activities for any citizens of the town over 60 who wish to participate. Named to a committee to make plans for the program are Mrs. Evelyn Wright, Bob Parvin, Mrs. Myrtle Tucker, H. P. Norman, and Mrs. Ruth Ryon.

T. S. Ryon, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Farmville Housing Authority, read his letter of resignation to the board. He said, "Due to the action taken by the board recently and the wishes of the citizens ignored, I feel it would be impossible for me to work with the town board with problems that might involve the Project and the town. So reluctantly I submit my resignation as member and chairman."

The Board accepted a check for $190 from the police fund, money that the secretary-treasurer of the organization of police officers said she felt had been wrongly placed in the fund. The money is to be put into the general fund of the town.

The need for a meeting to consider annexation of certain areas was discussed. The need for an early date was said to be because there may be necessary to apply for State Clean Water funds, which will terminate in March, in order to provide water and sewer to the area if it is to be added.

The Board agreed to put water and sewer to the property line of a shopping center being developed on the outskirts of Farmville, but no further. They were told by Water and Light Department Director J. A. Wooten that he had polled six nearby towns and this is the policy of them all. Be sure easements are included, Town Engineer Jack McDavid cautioned.

Building Inspector H. P. Norman reported that the owners of the Braddy property at the corner of Horne Avenue and George Street have agreed to clear it. Feb. 15 was set as the date when the work should be completed.

The Recreation Committee of today in Granville District Court.

"The report itself will not be submitted into evidence against Conley," Waters said, "but it will be used by me as a tool of assistance."

Waters declined to comment on the details or scope of the report, but state Secretary of Transportation G. Perry Greene said Tuesday he had spent most of the day reading it.

"It's detailed and it's in excess of 200 pages," Greene said, adding that the Highway Patrol's internal affairs investigators will use it to help determine whether North Carolina troopers used proper procedures at the roadblock.

Fisher was wounded when his car was seized near Petersburg and was found slumped over the wheel of the bullet-riddled vehicle after the roadblock erupted in gunfire.

Conley was found in the back seat, suffering from three bullet wounds.

Authorities later confirmed that Fisher had been shot 14 times. Sources said medical tests showed the fatal bullet to be from a .38-caliber pistol. Conley allegedly had a pistol of that caliber in his possession.

However, a superior court judge imposed a gag order, preventing release of the autopsy report. That order has been challenged in court by a Raleigh newspaper, The News and Observer.

Several members of the oil cartel had requested postponement of the meeting because it conflicted with a round in the "North-South" talks in Paris between the industrialized and underdeveloped countries. But the members of that conference are so far from any agreement that they are expected to announce a postponement any day.

The oil nations have been reported planning to demand increases ranging from 8 to 25 per cent in the base price of crude oil, now $11.51 per barrel.

Frost: Nixon Is Ready To 'Confront His Past'

By LINDA DEUTSCH, Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former President Richard M. Nixon has come to terms with the Watergate scandal and "wants to confront his past" in public, says entertainer David Frost, who will do a series of TV interviews with Nixon.

"I think that Richard Nixon wants to confront his past, to give his version, to be candid," Frost said in a speech Tuesday to the Hollywood Radio and Television Society.

"I think it's up to us to press him to go further," he added. Nixon is willing to discuss "the whole Watergate saga," Frost said. "He seems to have come to terms with it, which is why he wants to confront his own past now."

Frost, who is paying Nixon an undisclosed sum for the exclusive interviews, said he will begin taping at Nixon's San Clemente estate next March and will conclude in April.

Nixon has agreed to 12 two-hour taping sessions, Frost said. The British TV talk show host said he will edit the 24 hours of tape down to four 90-minute shows.

"I have sole control of the content," said Frost, "and Mr. Nixon has no right to know any questions in advance or to view the shows before they are aired."

Under questioning, Frost conceded that no one company "has come rushing forward" with an offer to sponsor all four shows.

The interviews were initially planned for this month, Frost said, but were delayed because Pat Nixon's stroke, which put Nixon behind schedule in writing his memoirs.

"I wanted him to finish the book, to finish reviewing things before we begin," Frost said.

Job-Filling Meetings For Carter

By FRANK CORMIER, Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) - President-elect Carter today began meeting with five more prospective cabinet-level appointees, including former Air Force Secretary Harold Brown who reportedly is under consideration to be secretary of defense.

Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., perhaps Carter's leading supporter in the black community, was the first to arrive at the governor's mansion where Carter is holding the job interviews.

Carter began the round of interviews Tuesday by meeting with five other candidates.

In addition to Brown and Young, other persons being interviewed by Carter today are: -June Cahill Pfeiffer, former vice president of the IBM Corp.

-Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., chairman of the House Budget Committee, reportedly under consideration for secretary of transportation.

-Michael Blumenthal, the president of the Bendix Corp., and a principal trade negotiator in the Kennedy administration. Blumenthal, who took part in an economic review session with Carter in Plains last week, reportedly is under consideration for secretary of commerce.

The only visitor on today's list who was identified before the start of the meetings was Brown, who was Pentagon research chief under President Lyndon B. Johnson, served as Air Force secretary and now is president of the California Institute of Technology.

Rex Granum, a Carter spokesman, said the other names had not been released in advance because the Carter camp did not want reporters calling them prior to the sessions in the hilltop governor's mansion, once occupied by the president-elect and now the home of Georgia Gov. George S. Busbee.

Young has said that under most circumstances, he would rather stay in Congress than accept a job in the new administration.

When Young emerged from his hour-long meeting with Carter, he told reporters, "I am not a candidate for any job. I was here as a friend and supporter."

"There really isn't a job in the administration, you know, that has a great deal of appeal to me," Young added.

Rather than seek a job on his own behalf, Young said, he emphasized to Carter that his Treasury secretary should be someone with the respect of the entire business community who also is sensitive "to the needs of the cities and to international realities."

OPEC Meeting Dec. 15

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will hold its ministerial conference to discuss an oil price increase as scheduled on Dec. 15 in Doha, Qatar's minister of petroleum said today.

Sheik Abdulaziz Bin Khalifa al-Thani said "agreement has been reached finally to hold the meeting on time" in the capital of Qatar, the government radio there reported.

Several members of the oil cartel had requested postponement of the meeting because it conflicted with a round in the "North-South" talks in Paris between the industrialized and underdeveloped countries. But the members of that conference are so far from any agreement that they are expected to announce a postponement any day.

The parade route is as follows: It will begin at Ninth Street and Dickinson Avenue, travel down Dickinson Avenue toward downtown, turn left at Washington Street, turn right at Fifth Street, turn left on Reade Street and disband at the corner of Second Street and Reade Street.

To get the pick to today's citrus, know what to look for. Navel oranges are characterized by a rich orange skin color. They have thick and more textured skin than other kinds. They are easy to peel and segments are easy to separate. Their texture and taste make them especially suitable for eating out of hand or segmented for salads. The Florida Temple orange is similar to the California navel — it peels easily and separates into segments readily. Florida

Temples have excellent flavor.

Skin color is not always a reliable index of quality. A greenish cast or green spots do not mean that the orange is immature. Often fully matured oranges take on a greenish hue late in the marketing season. Russeting (a tan, brown or blackish mottling or specking on the skin) is often found on Florida and Texas oranges. It does not affect eating quality and often occurs on oranges with thin skin and superior eating quality.

Avoid oranges that are light weight, for they may lack flesh and juice. Avoid those with very rough skin; it usually indicates abnormally thick skin and less

Park Ranger Likes Her Job

By JENNIFER KIRKLAND
Clay Today Writer
KEYSTONE HEIGHTS, Fla. (AP) — When you first meet Sandy Cook you immediately realize she isn't your average 21-year-old female.

She climbs out of her dark green pickup truck clad in official gray ranger fatigues with black boots, and apologizes for being late.

"I had to work on a truck just to get up here," she says, shaking her shoulder-length red hair.

The lifelong Keystone Heights resident is the only woman ranger at Gold Head Branch State Park and one of only a handful in the state.

As a ranger for the past three years, Miss Cook has had to compete with men years older than she and with plenty of experience behind them.

But the self-reliant ranger hasn't let her inexperience or youthfulness deter her from her ambition — to be the first woman park superintendent in Florida.

Although she isn't boastful, she admits "it would be nice" if she did become a park superintendent.

And Miss Cook can count on at least one supporter — her mother.

"She thinks it's great I'm a ranger," she says with a smile. "She's pushing me to be the first woman superintendent."

Along with her eight male coworkers at Gold Head Branch, Miss Cook performs a wide variety of duties, which accounts for the title she has given herself as a "jack-of-all-trades."

In the summer she spends most of her time as a garbage collector, picking up behind littering campers. She also repairs plumbing in the park's restrooms and does minor carpentry work when needed.

In the winter, she mows much of the acreage on the park and tries to catch up on things neglected during the busy summer months.

Much of Miss Cook's job involves public relations, answering questions from campers — at all hours of the day and night.

Miss Cook has often opened the door of the three-bedroom trailer, which is her home in the park, in the early morning hours to find a lost camper seeking directions or sometimes just a "night owl" who wants to ask a few questions.

"They come wandering in here at all hours," she said, a grin spreading across her freckled face. "I try to help them and answer whatever questions they might have."

Miss Cook first became interested in the park service when she took a part-time job there during her sophomore year in high school.

In love with the outdoors, she decided she definitely "didn't want an office job" when she graduated from high school, so she decided she would apply at the park.

"But I didn't think they would consider me because I was a woman," she said. However, when she received encouragement from the park superintendent, she applied and after two weeks' training and passing a written exam, she made it.

Despite the fact she is the only woman ranger at the park, Miss Cook says she has had no problems over being accepted by her fellow rangers.

"They might resent me if I didn't have to do the same things they did but I do," she explained.

And although she has found she can handle her job and most of the situations she is confronted with, she says she doesn't hesitate to ask for help when she needs it.

In her spare time, Miss Cook does carpentry work at her trailer, where she is, in the midst of building a home entertainment unit for her television and stereo. She also putters around with her Javelin and motorcycle.

Marriage is not part of her immediate plans. Instead, she is looking ahead to a career in the park service.

Divide Winnings Between Partners

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will take time to give me your opinion on a problem that involves two partners in a small business.

Partner A bought a $100 ticket to a charity ball with company funds, a normal procedure. The day of the ball, partner A asked partner B if he would like to use the ticket. Partner B said no. Partner A offered it to others. No takers. At the last minute partner A decided to go himself.

The ticket was the winning number. It won $4,000! Partner A insists the money is his. Partner B thinks it should be split 50-50. What do you think?

P.R.

DEAR P.R.: If partner A, with the knowledge and consent of partner B, invested company funds in an oil well, and it brought in a million-dollar gusher, wouldn't partner B be entitled to half the proceeds? The same principle applies.

DEAR ABBY: When I go to my doctor for my blood pressure checkup, he always checks my breasts for cancer as well. We both belong to the same country club. I wonder if he thinks he is doing me a favor, or if he is doing himself one.

As far as I know, there is no cancer in my family, and I read somewhere that people with high blood pressure don't usually have cancer.

Do you think I should change doctors?

ANXIOUS IN MONTANA

DEAR ANXIOUS: He is doing YOU a favor, not himself. He sounds like a very competent physician, but if the fact that you see him socially inhibits you, you'd be wise to change country clubs!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who agreed to babysit for a neighbor. I know they don't have much money, so I charged only 50 cents an hour. Everything was fine until she went out the door and said, "I left a few dishes in the sink. Would you mind doing them up? We're bringing home company."

Well, I did up the dishes, and I really didn't mind. A few nights later, she said, "You know how to run a washing machine, don't you? Well, just throw in these towels and a few little odds and ends, will you?" Then she ran out the door. (I did three loads of laundry that evening.)

Now, it's become a regular thing. She always leaves the supper dishes in the sink for me to do, and I'm doing most of her laundry. Besides that, I have her three children to get supper for and put to bed. And all for 50 cents an hour. Is this fair? And how can I tell her I think she's taking advantage of me?

SHY

DEAR SHY: Of course it's not fair. And you can tell her that, just as you've told me. You were hired as a sitter, not a housekeeper.

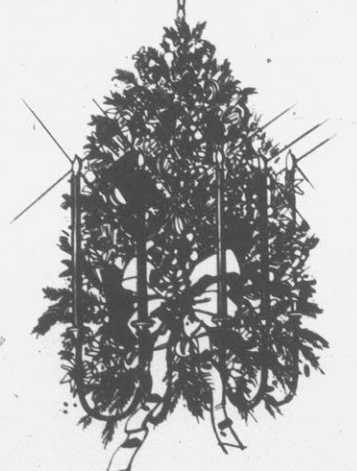

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. IN BEVERLY HILLS: A fine artist knows when a painting is finished. A wise woman knows when the affair is over. Accept it with grace and save face.

Local Stadium Drive Encouraging

One has to be encouraged about the prospects for expanding Ficklen Stadium with the announcement that $715,000 has already been raised locally.

Dr. Ray D. Minges, local chairman for the campaign last week said that his "Mafia Special Division" is well on its way to the $1 million local goal.

The overall campaign is attempting to raise $2.5 million to finance the expansion of Ficklen Stadium to 35,000 seats and to make other improvements.

Minges said local response had been "truly amazing."

Greenville and Pitt County are being called upon to give a large portion of the funds needed to expand the stadium, but that is as it should be.

East Carolina University has affected the lives of nearly everyone living here in one way or another. The institution will continue to provide benefits to all of us.

Among the benefits for those of us who enjoy football will be the opportunity to see major games without having to travel many miles.

Once the stadium is expanded that advantage will be available to us.

Judging by last week's report it appears that area citizens and businesses are completely behind the drive for funds to increase the size of Ficklen Stadium.

We hope that everyone will resolve to give something to the campaign, and the local portion can be completed in short order.

Roberts Ended Distinguished Career

Judge J. W. H. Roberts ended a distinguished career when he retired as chief district court judge in ceremonies at the courthouse Monday.

Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse of Farmville expressed it well when he said, "There is no better Chief District Court Judge that I've seen or know anything about."

Judge Roberts played a large role in seeing that the revised court system got off to a good start in our area. Our best wishes go with him as he retires.

New Look For Power Split

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)
RALEIGH—People used to talk about the power split in North Carolina as a clash between East and Piedmont. But the traditional battle lines have largely disappeared.

The 1980 Federal Census will officially usher in a new era: the final tilt from rural to urban in population. Population will total just short of six million; North Carolina will rank 10th nationally.

Developing power clashes at the top in state government are now taking on the shadings of a conservative rural versus progressive urban conflict—and many of those progressive urban communities are "Downeast" in the Roanoke Rapids-Rocky Mount-Greenville-Wilson crescent.

New Alliance
Thus, it may surprise some to see a strong alliance between Wilson-born James B. Hunt, Jr., as governor, and Gaston-bred Carl J. Stewart, Jr., as speaker of the house. Lt. Gov.-elect James C. Green will, by most odds, represent the remnants of rural domination of state politics.

Given their past performances and known convictions on things political, it is almost certain that sooner or later Green and Stewart will do battle as they literally and symbolically face one another across the width of the State Legislative Building.

That clash will be heightened by the fact that both aspire to the governor's mansion with present intentions to run in 1980.

And given the numerous clashes between Hunt and Green in the past session of the General Assembly it is hardly likely that as governor Hunt will remain apart from the fray. In fact, say some of his key aides, they fully expect Hunt to function often as his own legislative liaison, going personally onto the battle field to marshal forces for programs.

Both Stewart and Hunt have publicly pledged continued efforts to strengthen open meeting laws and conduct public business openly.

The Commission

Green has been a steady practitioner of private decision-making and a leader in recent efforts to consolidate more power in the hands of legislators—especially in the elite Legislative Services Commission which he chaired regularly. Green and his close allies (particularly State Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, who lost a bid for the speakership to Stewart) have been instrumental in the so-called "stripping" actions directed at the governor.

The Legislative Services Commission was specifically exempted from the Open Meeting Law which Stewart authored—a move necessary as a compromise to win approval.

The Commission is made up of senior Senators and Representatives, and was established primarily as a housekeeping agency for the Legislature.

Under Green's leadership, the Services Commission has regularly held closed-door sessions sought expanded power: all legislative study commissions must report meetings, and has conducted their findings and recommendations to that group for prior approval or rejection; all research staff in the building are under hiring and firing supervision of the Services Commission; direction of legislative research was changed away from investigating policy matters to simple auditing; many efforts to strip the governor of appointive and supervisory powers originated there; a variety of measures were launched to gain legislative control of the governor's budget-making powers; and steps are now underway to take the writing of legislative proposals out of the Attorney General's office and place them in a Bill-Drafting Division—operated by the Legislative Services Commission.

Members of the commission admit the move is being made to gain control over content, and to provide inside information on proposals being drawn up by other lawmakers.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Expect Move For Tax Cut

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Candidates for top economic jobs in the new administration emerged from their long session with President-elect Carter in Plains Wednesday feeling that the question was no longer "whether" taxes would be cut but "how much" and "what kind."

A strong push for a $15 billion consumer tax cut as a one-time rebate to stimulate the sluggish economy was made during Carter's session with 16 businessmen and economists. Some responded the tax relief should be divided between consumers and business, but nobody offered an argument against the need for tax reduction.

If Carter indeed follows this course, it could pose a test of wills between him and Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, where all tax legislation must originate. Ullman wants jobs boosted by selective tax incentives for business rather than across-the-board tax reductions.

At Wednesday's meeting in Plains, the necessity of a tax cut to boost the economy was pushed hard by Brookings Institution economist Joseph Pechman, who was supported by economists Lawrence Klein (University of Pennsylvania) and Walter Heller (University of Minnesota). Some corporate officials and bankers present countered that tax relief also should be given corporations to stimulate investment.

But nobody made a strong pitch for federal spending as an alternative to tax reductions—a popular position among liberal Democrats in Congress. Several veterans of the Kennedy administration told Carter that they had learned the hard way how slowly the economy responds to higher government outlays.

Transition Trouble

Beneath the smooth transition facade, the change-over at one critical agency grew testy when the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) turned down this request by Carter operatives: when did each key employee begin work there?

The Carter transition team told us the request was a routine one made throughout the administration. But ACDA officials felt it fit in all too neatly with boasts by arms control advocates that hardliners brought into the agency after the 1972 election will all be purged. Consequently, full information about the agency's employees will not be available until the takeover.

A footnote: A softer line under Carter seems increasingly likely at both ACDA and the Pentagon. The leading candidate to be Secretary of Defense is now Dr. Harold Brown, president of Cal Tech and former Secretary of the Air Force. Brown, a strong arms control advocate, would not go over well with hard-line Democrats hoping for Dr. James Schlesinger's return to the Pentagon.

Ford's Lethargy
"If I had it to do all over again, I would have gone to Delaware," a pensive President Ford told a surprised recent visitor—reflecting the uncharacteristic and unexpected mood of deep regret that has overwhelmed him since Nov. 2.

Mr. Ford speculated that since Republicans had carried other statewide races in Delaware Nov. 2, he could have picked up the state's three electoral votes with a visit there. Correct or not, such speculation confirms other reports that the President has been reliving the past campaign in his mind, over and over again, rather than looking to the future.

Prominent Republicans worried about the party's post-election malaise, want Mr. Ford to break his lethargy and conduct meetings seeking a united front in selecting a new Republican national chairman. Indeed, some party operatives are preparing to transmit this advice to Mr. Ford: forget the past and look to the present.

Strauss's Successor
Democratic politicians are counting on Charles Kirbo, the most conservative member of President-elect Carter's inner circle, to make sure that the successor to Strauss will be

Strength For Today

THE LESSONS OF SORROW
Many of our best lessons are learned through sorrow. Someone has written:

"I walk a mile with Sorrow
And ne'er a word said she;
But, oh, the things I learned
From her
When Sorrow walked with me."

There is an account in the 24th chapter of Luke of two sorrowful men making a journey from Jerusalem to Emmaus. They were followers of Jesus, who had been crucified two days before. On the road they met a stranger who thrilled their hearts with his discourse. Later, as they broke bread with the stranger, he revealed himself to them as their risen Lord. Sorrow then disappeared and gladness suffused their hearts.

The only thing that steadies us in the day of sorrow is a belief in a power that is higher than ourselves, which orders all things according to his perfect knowledge. When people have this faith, then the common brotherhood of pain becomes the brotherhood of joyful purpose.

Who's In And Who's Out

WASHINGTON — The big game in Washington these days is who is "in" and who is "out" in the Carter Administration. It seems to change every day and it's giving lobbyists and other power seekers conniptions.

At lunch the other day I overheard four people talking at the next table and it went like this:

"I hear if you want to get to Carter you have to see Rhett Butler."

"No, he's been out for two weeks. If you want to get anything done you have to talk to Charley Winkler."

"Carter doesn't talk to Winkler any more."

"Why not?"

"Winkler had a fight with Hamilton Jordan and Jordan axed him with Carter. If you want to get anything done you have to get to Phil Stromberg in Atlanta."

"Forget Stromberg. He canceled a luncheon date with Jody Powell, and Powell is putting out the word that Stromberg can't even get a motel room in Americus, Ga. The only one Carter listens to now is Henry Kleinberg of the Savannah Coca-Cola bottling plant."

"That was Thursday. Kleinberg is no longer in the inner circle because he didn't show up for Sunday school in Plains this weekend."

"Well, if it isn't Kleinberg, who is it?"

"I hear the guy with all the clout is Horace Bromide, a banker from Pecksville. He was in the Peace Corps with Miss Lillian."

"Don't waste your time on Bromide. Carter hasn't taken a telephone call from him in a month."

"Where did you hear that?"

"From Sarah Collins, Russell Haliburton's

Other Editors Say One Small Step

(Greensboro Daily News)

Something of a breakthrough, as breakthroughs go, was achieved last week at the conference on Rhodesian independence: Two of the most uncompromising black nationalist leaders accepted a compromise. They relaxed their earlier posture by agreeing to discuss their country's transition to majority government without setting a date for the transfer of power. Previously, establishing that date had been a precondition to any further talks, with white delegates arguing for more time than the black ones could accept. The negotiators, now meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, to engineer the transition to black rule, can point to little other progress in a month of talks.

Still to be addressed is a long list of matters involved in turning over the African territory to its more than 5 million black people, who now live under the thumb of some 270,000 whites. How will the transition government be weighted racially? Who will maintain social order in Rhodesia during the interregnum? What will become of those whites who choose to remain there?

Meanwhile in Rhodesia itself, the more militant black nationalists and the more hidebound members of Premier Ian Smith's white minority government are hoping that the Geneva conference will unravel over such disputes as the one just skirted. The black nationalists are beset by factionalism and intense personal rivalries, and the whites are negotiating under considerable duress, so there are countless occasions, and much motivation, for stalling and bickering. But delays and intransigence on the part of the conferees only provide grist to those whites, on the one hand, who have resisted black rule for decades and resist it still, and for those blacks, on the other hand, who would prefer a dramatic "transition" to majority rule through military force.

The common agreement to proceed without a firm date for independence, important as it is, ends a dispute that was largely contrived in the first place: The negotiators simply seized the first opportunity — an issue of limited consequence — to flex their muscle and parade their nonnegotiable positions. But now that the haggling is over, the conferees in Geneva can get on with the pressing business of bringing about the country that will be called Zimbabwe. If they keep up their current pace, the negotiators will be at the conference table beyond the most distant independence date anyone has suggested.

40 Years Ago Today

December 8, 1936

The peaceful farming valley of Cagayan was a devastated graveyard today as flood waters of the mighty Cagayan River, largest in the Philippines, swept thousands to their death and left thousands of others missing.

Officials marshalling the commonwealth's relief agencies expressed the fear that the full extent of the greatest disaster the Philippines had ever experienced would never be known.

The unprecedented flood covered more than 100 miles of rich tobacco and rice farming lands northeast of Manila. At least 54 villages are known to have been destroyed.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin reached Fort Belvedere this evening, summoned by King Edward, presumably to receive his final decision regarding Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

It is generally believed the decision will be withheld from the public until Premier Baldwin has had opportunity to communicate it to the House of Commons.

Carter's Job Goal A Problem

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter has set a precise job goal that, in effect, provides everyone with a scorecard to measure his administration's performance in one of the most sensitive areas of the economy.

Having established a similarly precise goal, the Ford administration found itself receiving very low marks and losing votes as well.

Ford shot for a jobless rate of under 7 per cent by the end of 1976 and missed the target by more than a full percentage point, assuming the 8.1 November jobless rates continue into December.

The president-elect's goal is for a reduction of 1.5 per cent in that jobless rate by the end of the first year of his leadership, a goal he admits might be difficult to achieve.

Some independent economists here say they too have serious doubts, citing among other factors the rising number of women seeking jobs and the perniciousness of teen-age unemployment.

Both these factors are symptoms of persistent underlying changes in the nature of the labor force that are unlikely to respond sharply or immediately to temporary fiscal stimulus, such as a tax cut.

Changing mores, and to a great extent the need for additional family income, are behind the rise in the number of women seeking jobs. Ironically, as the economy improves it is possible that even more women will seek jobs.

The explosive teen-age unemployment rate of 19 per cent, and much higher than that for black teen-agers, represents a grave mismatch of individual abilities and employer needs.

Both these situations have been developing for years but haven't been dealt with adequately in previous administrations.

One factor sometimes cited as leading to teen-age unemployment is a minimum wage rate of $2.30 an hour. Small business people everywhere have complained that they cannot afford to train unskilled workers at that rate, only to lose them when the apprenticeships are completed.

Advisers to the president-elect are fully aware of the difficulty involved in reducing unemployment sharply through the use of fiscal measures alone, and therefore are advising specific action against specific job problems.

Not everyone believes the goal will require such special measures. One business

Taxes Pay For Bites

By JEFFREY MILLS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The radio commercial begins: "Ten thousand dog bites. That's the number of attacks made upon mailmen last year. Dog bites are painful not only to the letter carrier but to the taxpayer who must pay for lost wages and hospitalization of the victims."

That's a sample of the advertising campaign that the letter carriers' union is using to try to improve the public image of the Postal Service and the letter carrier.

"Worse than dogs these days are the growls of the people," James H. Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said in an interview Tuesday. "People these days are actually shooting at us if we are late with their welfare checks."

Most of the seven different ads are designed to restore faith in the mail service and the people who deliver mail.

For example, one commercial asks for patience if packages are delivered late. It notes that the Postal Service has a greatly expanded burden because of the strike against United Parcel Service, its main competitor.

The commercial dealing with the letter carrier's perennial problem of dog bites goes on to urge dog owners to keep their pets leashed or inside when the letter carrier comes.

The same commercial also notes that falls on steps and porches caused 10,000 injuries to letter carriers last year. "You can help your mail carrier avoid these injuries by keeping his path free of obstacles," the commercial urges.

The one-minute commercials now are being broadcast by 85 radio stations once a day. Rademacher recorded the messages in one of his last acts as president of the 200,000-member union.

He announced Tuesday that J. Joseph Vacca, executive vice president, has been elected to

Farmville Board... Tobacco Varieties For Sale In N.C. Announced

The Board, composed of Mrs. Sarah Albritton, Jack Farrior, and Durwood Little was asked to meet with Thomas Craft of the Pitt County Schools to discuss a fence around the athletic field. The town wishes to buy the fence and the school board is considering keeping it and having it moved.

Farmville citizen Don Wrought asked several questions about the town's ordinances concerning the office of town administrator. He was told that the ordinance to which he referred was superseded by a 1971 ordinance which created the office of the administrator.

When he questioned on what basis a town employee is allowed to serve beyond the age of 65, he was told it is "at the board's pleasure."

He said there is a petition circulating to ask for the resignation of Town Administrator W. A. Martin. Commissioner W. R. Duke said "I'd just as soon be reading the newspaper as that petition."

It was pointed out that there are 5,500 citizens, roughly, in the town. Citizen Glenn Price later pointed out that the number of people who voted in the last election was about 800, so a majority required to win the election was only something over half of this estimated figure. "This brings it more into perspective, I think," he said.

Duke said Martin's resignation had been discussed, but that it would be decided by the board. He said the matter had been discussed before the police department controversy ever came about.

Asked by Wrought about the police fund, Commissioner Jack Farrior explained that the police fund is money raised by and donated to the police officers themselves and is in no way controlled by the town.

Marsdon Cannady, former police chief, presented several letters and documents which he said he believed backed up the actions he took while he was chief. One had to do with his belief that anything purchased by a town employee had to have a purchase order or that person would be required to pay for it himself.

The Commissioners said they feel the police matter is "over and done with."

Citizen Paul Tripp stood up in the audience and said he is "tired of seeing our nice mayor and nice commissioners humiliated." He called Wrought, who ran for commissioner in the last election, "an outsider."

Cannady also questioned whether he as a citizen of Farmville, not the chief of police, is entitled to police protection. He said he called the police department one time and asked that an officer go by his house, but that no one came. He said he also called to ask that the department keep a check on the home of a neighbor who was in the hospital, but could not get out his request before he was told that the officer answering had been ordered not to tell Cannady anything if he called.

Glenn Price asked, "How many people does it take to make a complaint, if this petition with 65 names on it means nothing..."

"It only takes one," Commissioner Albritton replied.

Commissioner Farrior asked, "Why should we drag out into the public matters that could only hurt people?"

"I think I am in a better position than the public or the press to know the facts. I feel confident in my decision."

He added that he communicates best on a one-to-one basis and will be glad to talk to anyone individually about the police matter or anything else.

Citizen Rom Webber said he

Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham announced today the recording of 49 flue-cured tobacco varieties which will be authorized for sale in North Carolina in 1977 by nine tobacco seed growers. ## Swedish Prince Is Finally Wed

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden's Prince Bertil married Lillian Craig, his Welsh sweetheart of 33 years, in a royal ceremony.

Bertil's father, the late King Gustav VI Adolf, had opposed the marriage after Bertil became next in line to the throne when his elder brother was killed in a plane crash.

He would have lost his royal title had he defied the king's wishes.

The new king, 30-year-old Carl XVI Gustav, Bertil's nephew, approved the marriage this year and was among the 200 wedding guests Tuesday.

Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham announced today the recording of 49 flue-cured tobacco varieties which will be authorized for sale in North Carolina in 1977 by nine tobacco seed growers. The recordings were made upon the recommendation of the N.C. Tobacco Seed Committee, as required by North Carolina Seed Regulations.

Robert S. Strauss as Democratic national chairman will represent no radical change.

Since the chairmanship is a figurehead post when a Democratic President is in the White House, there has been speculation that Carter would shatter precedents with a highly unusual choice — perhaps a black woman. But former Georgia state Democratic chairman Kirbo is worried over maintaining Carter's Southern base the next four years and will press for a conventional party leader. A possibility: former Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine.

Some National Committee members are boosting state chairman Charles Manatt of California to succeed Strauss, but the move has no chance. Carter will select the chairman, and it surely will not be a political backer of California's Gov. Jerry Brown, the new President's most formidable rival within the party.

The headwaiter delivered a phone to the table.

One of the men took the call. "Are you sure?" he said. "You're positive. You'll stake your life on it? Thank you."

He turned to the others. "I just got the word. Walter Cronkite is in."

"Then that means Barbara Walters is out?"

"It looks that way."

School Tax Again Voted Down

By JOE McKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer
GROVEPORT, Ohio (AP) — Supt. Phillip Williams still has 12 empty school houses on his hands, and his 6,900 pupils have another month of vacation after voters for the second time defeated an attempt to raise property taxes.

"The problem is we haven't solved anything," Williams said after the election results were announced Tuesday. "We can finish this (academic) year, but I doubt we'll have the money to reopen next September. We will have used up all the money by then."

Carol Cole, a truck driver's wife who worked for a pro-tax "We Still Care" group, said, "These people just let their school district go down the drain."

Mrs. Cole, who has two sons in Groveport schools, said, "They don't care, but I do."

But Barbara Groves, who worked against the tax proposition even though her husband is on the school board, said she was elated. "Now maybe our dreams can come true," she said.

She said school spending was not adequately explained to the working-class families and farmers who make up most of the population of this Columbus suburb. Her "dream" is for a task force that would inspect finances to see if more taxes are really needed.

In Tuesday's election, voters defeated a five-year levy that would have allowed schools to reopen today by adding $13.80 to the current $44.40 in taxes for every $1,000 of a property owner's assessed valuation. Of the current tax, $30.10 goes to schools.

The schools closed after a proposed $11.50 increase was turned down by a narrower margin on Nov. 2. They cannot open until Jan. 3, when 1977 funds become available.

"The levy will likely go on the ballot again in the spring and they could go for it then," Williams said. "But if we don't get additional money, we can't open in September and will have to merge with another district."

He said the district operates on a $6.4 million annual budget, and "when it's gone, we have to quit." The levy would have produced an additional $1.6 million annually.

The Groveport-Madison School District is one of seven closed in Ohio for lack of funds, putting a total of 70,000 students out of classes.

Three school districts in Oregon closed when tax levies failed. Two reopened with alternate financing, but they may close again if new tax measures fail on Jan. 11.

Schools in Putnam, Conn., which had shut down a week ago, reopened Tuesday after a judge ordered the town to provide money.

Predicts Speed Limit Accepted

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A majority of Americans may violate the 55 miles per hour speed limit, but it still saves thousands of lives each year, says a federal transportation department official.

Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, special assistant to the Secretary of Transportation, said Tuesday he believes the 55 m.p.h. program eventually will win voluntary public compliance and should be continued indefinitely.

Addressing a meeting of law enforcement officials from 16 southern states, Davis said he has no firm figures on the number of drivers who exceed the speed limit, but added, "We do have flagrant violations."

"But we should also note that the average speed on interstates dropped from 60.3 m.p.h. in 1973 to 55.8 m.p.h. in 1975."

Davis said an increase in the use of citizens band radios has had a role in the "successful evasion" of speed limits.

But the lower speed limit has proved its value, both in terms of fuel conserved and lives saved, he said.

During the two full years the 55 m.p.h. limit has been in effect, Davis said, deaths have been 9,000 per year below the 54,000 death level of 1973.

"We have been killing as many people each year as the number who died in the entire Vietnam war," he said. "I think that's a disaster."

"I hope over a period of a few years people will get to realize that the driver is unsafe at 70 or 75. I believe we will have voluntary compliance in the future."

Urging the state legislature to increase and make uniform the fines for exceeding the limit, state Safety Commissioner Joel Plummer said the highway patrol has been hampered in its enforcement effort because of generally low fines.

In many counties, he said, drivers caught going between 55 m.p.h. and 75 m.p.h. can be fined only $2. Because no court costs can be added under state law, Plummer said many clerks are refusing to write the warrants, making enforcement impossible.

Psychic Recalls 'Coincidences'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Safety from natural disasters, a series of coincidences and an invitation from the chairman of Reynolds Tobacco Co. prompted jet set psychic Fredric Davies to pack his tarot cards and move to North Carolina.

"I was attending a party in New York when I met (Reynolds chairman) Bill Hobbs," said Davies. "He invited me to Winston-Salem and I came. It was my first trip to the state."

Upon his arrival, Davies said, a series of coincidences, or omens, prompted him to stay.

For example, the Holiday Inn assigned him the Zodiac Room for a lecture he will deliver next week.

He also remembered that Edgar Cayce, the late renowned psychic, declared North Carolina and Virginia among the nation's safest states from natural disasters.

Then, of course, there was the proximity of Duke University's parapsychology research center.

"Signs or a series of coincidences always come about and I know I'm doing the right thing," Davies said.

Once a speech teacher and later an actor, Davies said his interest in horoscopes, tarot cards and psychic phenomena was sparked when he had his palm read.

The decision to become a full-time psychic came in Rome, Davies said, where he had traveled in a futile attempt to land a movie part.

"I had $28 in my pocket, my astrology books and tarot cards. So I began doing horoscopes and in eight months I had 200 clients," he said.

The jet set soon began flying a path to his door and his present clients include Liza Minnelli, Muhammad Ali, Mia Farrow and Robert Redford.

Among his successful predictions, Davies claims foretelling Britain's 1973 energy crisis, Golda Meir's resignation and the devaluation of the British pound.

Helping Make Your Home Sweet Home

Deck Your Halls with These Sweet Secrets Sugar Mold Decorations

Sugar molding is the quickest, easiest method of making exciting holiday decorations. Let the kids help and make it a family fun activity.

Sugar Mold Recipe
2 cups DIXIE CRYSTALS granulated sugar
4 tsp. water
Liquid food coloring—use as desired for coloring
(For larger amounts use 5 lbs. of sugar to 1/3 cup water)

Measure sugar and water into container. NOTE: Do not exceed measurement for water. Add a few drops of food color for desired shade. Mix together with your hands until color is well blended and sugar is damp. Hand-pack sugar firmly into mold (cookie cutter, coffee cup, plastic mold, etc.) and scrape off excess with flat edge of a knife. Unmold at once with a quick, firm rap onto a flat counterpane, cardboard, cookie sheet or bottom of cake pan. If planning to hang decorations, poke a small hole through each before they harden for string or hook. The shapes will dry hard in 5 hours. Or place in oven at 200° for 5 minutes. Now, here's how to decorate your decorations.

Easy-To-Make Decorating Bag

Cut a triangle from a sheet of freezer paper. With point B toward you.

Take the triangle with wax side face up, bring corner A to meet corner B and cut under so a cone begins to form.

Now bring corner C over the top of the cone you started forming and bring it down behind corner B, so that all three points touch. Adjust paper to make a tight point. Make sure there isn't a hole in the point end of the cone. Fold the open edges over several times to secure bag.

Different Designs You Can Make—You should never cut a bag more than one time. A straight cut will give you straight lines, wavy lines and will also fill in free-hand designs. An X cut in the point of the bag will make a star design. A V cut in the point of the bag will make a leaf design. Cuts should be approximately 1/16" in length. If using commercial cake decorating tips, make a straight cut 1/2 inch from the cone point. Insert tip from top of cone so it's partially exposed but won't pass through the hole you have made. The icing will hold it in place while decorating. Now that you've made your decorating bag, lets make the icing to fill it.

Decorating Icing
Royal Icing
1 lb. DIXIE CRYSTALS 4X powdered sugar
3 egg whites (from large eggs, room temperature) or 3 level tbs. Meringue Powder
(If using Meringue Powder, add 1/3 cup water to ingredients.)
1/2 tsp. cream of tartar

Mix all ingredients together in a mixer. Beat at high speed for 10 minutes. Royal icing is very quick drying, so keep covered at all times with a damp cloth. Does not store well.

Divide the icing into several bowls and tint each bowl a different color using one or two drops of food color. Be sure to mix well and keep covered with a damp cloth at all times. Put a small amount of icing in the prepared bags.

To fill the bag, hold bag in left hand and use a table knife to place the icing in the bag. Be sure to only fill three quarters full. Push the icing well into the tip of the cone. Then with the seam of the bag facing toward you fold in the front and sides. Fold the top down at least twice to keep the icing from running out of the bag.

In addition to decorating ornaments, you can also make ornaments out of Royal Icing. Try these easy-to-make candy canes.

Candy Cane Ornaments

Make one recipe of Dixie Crystals Royal Icing—Let set until workable. Keep covered with bowl. Pinch off a large round ball from the mixture and tint red with a few drops of food coloring. Mix well until color is blended.

Now roll back and forth in your hands until a rope is formed—cover with a bowl so it won't dry out. Now pinch off another piece of the mixture and leave it white. Roll it back and forth to form a rope. Take red rope and white rope and twist together to form a candy cane.

20 Years For Heroin Dealer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "It is my opinion that a heroin dealer is low enough to walk under a snake's belly with a top hat on," Wake Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey said Tuesday upon sentencing James Walker to 20 years in prison.
 Walker, 45, was convicted of possessing and selling heroin after the jury, which deliberated less than an hour, refused to believe his story that he was working as a police agent.
 His attorney gave notice of appeal.
 Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten was subpoenaed Monday by Walker in an attempt to lend credence to his contention that he was cooperating with police when he made two heroin sales to an undercover State Bureau of Investigation agent.
 Edmisten testified that he personally offered to help Walker obtain parole from an earlier sentence in exchange for information on drug pushers. But no further agreement was made, Edmisten said.

 Walker was working in a restaurant as a work-release prisoner.
 Asst. Dist. Atty. Kyle S. Hall dismissed Walker's story of working with police as a smoke screen attempt to escape the drug-selling charges.
 SBI agent James W. Lewis testified he made two $50 heroin purchases from Walker, on Aug. 26 and Sept. 14, in Raleigh. Walker invited him to come back after the first sale, Lewis said, because the heroin was not very pure.
 Walker also threw in an extra packet on the second sale, Lewis said.

New Computerized Typesetting For The Reflector

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
 In an effort to increase efficiency and to speed production of the newspaper, The Daily Reflector has completed the installation of a new computerized typesetting system. Since publishing its last newspaper using the old hot metal typesetting method on November 16, 1969, the Reflector has been using faster, computerized photo-typesetting equipment, to produce the news and feature articles that fill the paper each day. For the past seven years, copy from the newsroom has gone to the composing room, where typesetters, using special keyboards, would retype the local copy to produce a coded paper tape which could then be run on a phototypesetting machine. The typesetting machines, in turn, would produce readable copy for use in the makeup of the newspaper.

Since last Friday, when a new Compugraphic Uniscan unit was placed in operation, things have been different. Staff writers have now, in effect, become their own typesetters. According to Tim Jones, composing room foreman, the newsroom staff and certain advertising department people now produce copy, using an IBM typewriter equipped with a special type ball. That copy is then fed into the Uniscan unit, eliminating the need to have the news story or advertising copy retyped to produce the coded tape. The Uniscan unit reads the characters on the paper electronically, Jones explained, and transmits the data to a Compugraphic Unified Composer where it is displayed on a video screen. At that time, the copy is proof-read and if errors are found, corrected.

After the copy is read and corrected, according to Jones, the data can then be transmitted electronically to a floppy disc storage bank in the composer, or transmitted directly to a Compugraphic Videosetter phototypesetting computer which produces the readable copy used in production of the newspaper. Jones said the purpose of the disc storage system "is so later revisions or changes in the original story can be made by simply calling the story back to the video screen on the Unified composer."

The system, Jones explained, is designed to "capture the reporter's original key-stroke, speed up production and eliminate the need for paper tape." And it does speed production. When the newspaper was produced using hot metal, according to Jones, Linotype machines were used to produce the type required for production of the paper.

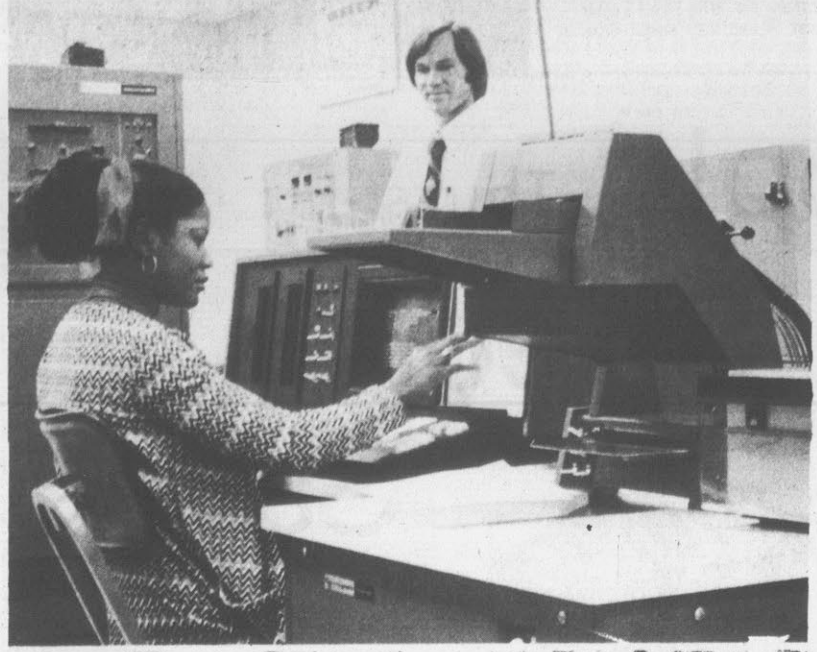

A good Linotype operator could set six lines per minute, while an automated Linotype, using coded paper tape, could produce nine lines of type every 60 seconds.

When the Reflector changed from hot metal to photocomposition, Jones said, the new typesetting equipment could produce 25 lines of type each minute. Now, he said, the scanner can read an 8½ by 11 inch sheet of copy in 5½ seconds. It would take a good typist more than three minutes to retype the story and produce the coded tape.

The copy now, after being read and corrected, is fed into a typesetter that can produce 450 lines of type a minute. Jones noted that the new system, including the new electric typewriters, the Uniscan, Unified Composer and Videosetter costs in the neighborhood of $86,000.

Plans To Leave Foundation Post

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Gov.-elect John D. Rockefeller IV has told the Rockefeller Foundation he will keep a campaign promise and resign from the board of directors prior to taking office Jan. 17, 1977. Rockefeller, who has been a member of the foundation since July 1968, gave the notice Monday while attending a foundation meeting in New York. Prior to leaving the board post, Rockefeller will serve on a committee to name a replacement for Clarksburg native Cyrus Vance.

Rumors Given Weight In Ruling On Prejudice

RALEIGH (AP) — Rumors in a community should be given the same standards as pretrial news coverage in proving prejudice against a defendant, the North Carolina Supreme Court says. The court Tuesday laid down guidelines for future cases in upholding the murder conviction of Margie C. Boykin, 45, of Kenly. Her attorneys contended her trial should have been moved from Johnston County because of widespread rumors about her in the county. The tribunal said in a 5-2 decision that it apparently was the first appeals court in the nation to deal with the question of adverse pretrial publicity by word of mouth rather than by the news media.

failed to document her claims adequately. Such decisions will be left to the discretion of the judge trial, the court pointed out. Mrs. Boykin's attorneys said there had been rumors in the county that she had her brother-in-law killed and fed him to hogs; that she was instrumental in the death of her son's former fiancée who died in a car wreck and that she had performed abortions, including one in which a girl had died. Mrs. Boykin's attorneys submitted five sworn and 73 unsworn statements by residents of Johnston County who said they had heard rumors about her.

Mrs. Boykin was convicted of hiring a friend of her maid to shoot her husband, Daniel S. (Chick) Boykin, after she led the assassin into the house on Aug. 14, 1975. She was sentenced to die, but this was reduced by the court to life imprisonment because North Carolina's death penalty law has been declared unconstitutional. "In considering the type of prejudice here alleged for the first time, this court is sensitive to the difficulty of proving prejudice generated by 'private talk,'" the court said in the majority opinion. "At the same time, this court must be solicitous of the potential for manufacture and manipulation of proof of this type of prejudice." The tribunal said that in some cases, a trial should be moved. It said Mrs. Boykin

Shaken Over Closing Home

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Many elderly residents of the Wake County Home expressed shock at the Wake County commissioners' announcement that they will study the possibility of closing the home, according to its business manager. "We were really shocked," said Beverly Pittman. "The residents are upset. They're wondering, 'Where are we going to go?'" Myra Benner, head nurse at the two-story brick building, said many residents were reading news accounts of the commissioners' action to other who were unable to read. "Of course they're upset," she said. "And they're defensive. This is their home and they feel it's been degraded." Forty-eight persons currently live at the home. All are elderly, some are confined to wheelchairs and many have no family in the Raleigh area. The commissioners ordered a study into the feasibility of the home's operation after Commissioner Waverly F. Akins said he was concerned about its declining population. The home once housed 70 residents.

According to National Geographic Society, no one knows the origins of the inhabitants of Madagascar, the world's fourth largest island.

Students From 42 Countries

SINGAPORE (AP) — Fostering international understanding through education may be a difficult task but that is exactly what the United World College of South East Asia is doing. The College is really equivalent to American secondary school and has students, ranging in age from 11 to 18, from 42 countries.

Originally known as St. John's School, it was built on 60 acres of land by the British Armed Forces in 1964. But when the British forces were withdrawn from this island republic in 1971, it became the Singapore International School, run by the International Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier this year it underwent its last name change. There are two other similar colleges, the United World College of the Atlantic in South Wales, Britain, and the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific in Vancouver, Canada. All three schools are largely organized by prominent businessmen, leading citizens and eminent politicians and diplomats, according to John Marshall, deputy headmaster of the United World College of South East Asia.

To help slow learners who need individual attention, the school maintains a student-teacher ratio of 12 to 1. The school has 1,250 students, including 300 boarders.

The Singapore government does not allow the school to accept Singapore citizens as students but there are no other limitations — except the tuition, which is about U.S. $1,908 a year (boarders pay about U.S. $3,870). Marshall explained that the entire school's expenditure was met by these fees.

DRASTIC REMEDY

MOSCOW (UPI) — Georgi Bushuyev, 60, decided drastic remedies were necessary to get into shape after he suffered two heart attacks. So he walked 6,800 miles (11,000 km) from his home in Riga, Latvia, to Vladivostok. "I felt like a boy again," the pensioner told Tass.

About 20 per cent of the students are British, 10 per cent Australian, 7½ per cent each Malaysian and American. The others are from Japan, India, Sri Lanka, Pakistan, Indonesia, Taiwan, France, Germany and Holland.

The college provides a variety of courses not found in many high schools, including Malay, Mandarin and Russian. It also offers courses in aero modeling and Japanese flower making. All students must study ethics and religion but they have their choice of Christianity, Buddhism, Hinduism or Islam.

Viet Dentists Given Training

HOUSTON (UPI) — The University of Texas Dental School has begun a special program to prepare Vietnamese refugee physicians for professional licensing examinations in the United States.

Dr. John Victor Olson, dean of the school, said the program financed by an $88,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare is one of two in the nation.

Olson said 19 Vietnamese dentists who have resettled in Texas and neighboring states have enrolled in the six-month program. He said each receives a monthly stipend and travel expenses.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change today, repeating Tuesday's neutral pattern.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped a fraction in the early going. Advances held a slight edge on declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market was continuing to absorb profit-taking pressures after its first advance since the middle of last month.

Great Northern Nekoosa was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, down 1/4 at 30 in a 68,000-share block trade.

Other early prices included Sony, unchanged at 9; H.F. Ahmanson, down 1/4 at 16 1/2, and S.S. Kresge, up 1/4 at 41 1/2.

In Tuesday's mixed market, the Dow Jones industrial average lost 1.08 to 960.69.

But gainers outpaced losers by about an 8-6 margin on the NYSE. The exchange's composite index slipped .01 to 55.83.

Big Board volume reached 26.14 million shares, hitting a 2 1/2-month high for the second straight day.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .45 at 101.42.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market was mostly 50 cents to $1.50 higher today. Wilson, High Falls not reporting; Rocky Mount 38.00-38.50; Kinston 38.00-39.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 39.50; Salisbury and Bethel 35.00-35.50; Tarboro 34.00.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was firm today with supplies adequate, demand good, weights desirable to heavy.

City Plans Create Snow

MEMPHIS (AP) — It may not be nice, but a group of businessmen determined to have a White Christmas have announced plans to fool Mother Nature.

Merchants in Overton Square are spending $30,000 to bring in four snow-making machines to provide snow for their annual Christmas celebration.

Ben Woodson, president of the restaurant and entertainment complex, announced Tuesday plans to cover a block-long stretch of Madison Avenue with real snow.

Overton Square merchants are installing four snow-making machines similar to those used at ski resorts when nature doesn't cooperate. The machines will be turned on Friday night and Woodson is hoping for cold temperatures to avoid ankle-deep slush.

"If it's not 28 degrees or below, we could have a lot of slush," Woodson said.

There will also be horse-drawn sleighs, an ice skating rink and Christmas carolers dressed in turn-of-the-century costumes.

Music Seniors Giving Recital

Flutist Gail Ramee and clarinetist Denise Hodges, both seniors in the ECU School of Music, will perform in recital on Friday, Dec. 10. The program will be held in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. and is open to the public without charge.

Ms. Ramee will be accompanied by pianist Karen Burke, and Ms. Hodges will be accompanied by pianist Frances Cain and assisted by percussionist Jack Stamp.

Human Relations Workshop Held

The teachers of Belvoir Grammar and Stokes-Pactolus School participated in a human relations workshop held recently in the Stokes community.

The purpose of the meeting was to stress that the merger of the schools could be successful if those involved moved into the new situation with positive attitudes. In addition, the meeting offered the opportunity to acquaint the two groups of teachers and familiarize them with some of the characteristics of middle school children.

Consultant for the meeting was Ms. Dina Crowell, assistant superintendent of Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools.

Rampants Stopped By New Bern

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose High School came from behind twice against New Bern but was unable to put together a third rally and lost their third game of the season, 66-60.

Anthony Bryant who paced the Rampants with 17 points, was the spearhead of the two rallies, but he fouled out near the end of the third quarter with Rose down by four and the Rampants were never able to catch the Bears after that.

New Bern jumped out to a 6-0 lead early in the first quarter as Mike Newby fed his teammates for some easy baskets. The Bears held the lead for much of the quarter, building it to seven points at 12-5 with 4:17 left in the period.

Bryant led the Rampants back, however, with two straight tap-ins to cut the score to 14-11. Nat Johnson hit a baseline jumper for the Bears with 2:00 left to put them back out by five before James Hawkins hit a jumpshot for Rose and Bryant made a steal and drove the length of the court for a layup to bring the Rampants to within one, 16-15 at the end of the first quarter.

Derek Brewington tied it up early in the second period by making both ends of a one-and-one. The score was then tied four straight times by Rose before the Rampants went ahead for the first time when Perry Worthington hit a free throw with 3:22 left in the second quarter.

The Rampants pulled out by three, 29-26 on a short jumpshot by Greg Guthrie, only to have New Bern tie it up again when Russell Scott made a three-point play.

New Bern again took the lead when Rodney Taylor's two free throws made it 31-29, but the Rampants tied it once more on two foul shots by Lorenzo Owens with 1:44 left in the half.

A jump shot and free throw by the Bears was matched by one Rose foul shot to give New Bern a 34-32 lead at halftime.

The Rampants fought back to tie again in the third quarter. Down 38-32, Owens hit a jump shot with 6:15 to play in the period and, 26 seconds later, Bryant scored from underneath to cut the lead to two.

Owens made both ends of a two-shot foul with 5:21 left in the quarter to tie the score at 38-38. But that was the last time it was tied.

The Bears scored three straight field goals to take the lead again and built it to six points when Bryant fouled Beatty and he sank both shots of a one-and-one. The foul came with six seconds left in the quarter and it was Bryant's fifth.

New Bern had built the lead to nine, 61-52, with 3:02 left in the slow-paced fourth quarter before the Rampants once again tied to rally.

Guthrie hit four straight free throws and Jackie Payton made a jump shot to cut the lead to 63-58. The Rampants had the ball with a chance to cut it to three with 17 seconds left in game but Zeke Simmons made a steal for the Bears and was then fouled. He hit both shots of the one-and-one with 15 seconds left to tie it for New Bern.

Simmons made another free throw with no time left on the clock to make the final score 66-60.

Simmons was the high scorer for the Bears, hitting for 17 points. Taylor scored 14 for New Bern and James Hawkins added 11 for the Rampants.

Rose shot only 32 per cent for the contest, compared to New Bern's 43 per cent. The Rampants won the battle of the boards, pulling down 44 rebounds to New Bern's 32.

The junior varsity Rampants survived a scare by the New Bern Cubs to win their game, 62-57.

The Cubs came from 11 points down to tie the Baby Rampants with 3:35 left in the game.

Gary Chapman hit for three straight points to put the Ram-pants out in front for good with 1:40 left, however, and Ronnie Chapman scored three more in the final minute to put the game on ice.

The loss was the third straight for the Rampants in three games. They host Kinston Friday.

Rumors Fly About Lou Holtz And Arkansas Job

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

Are the New York Jets trying to tell Lou Holtz something? In New York, the Jets have been making statements about wanting Holtz back next season for the second year of his five-year contract with the National Football League team.

However, Jets' General Manager Al Ward sounded like a man trying to tell Holtz to take the head coaching job at the University of Arkansas Tuesday when he was interviewed by a Little Rock station.

"Holtz loves the teaching aspects of football, but has not yet geared himself to a 20-game season," Ward said. "He is re-evaluating his position with the Jets. If Holtz decides to go college — and the Arkansas offer is there — it would be the best," said Ward, who was unavailable for further comment.

Phil Iselin, president and part owner of the Jets, told the station, KARK-TV, he would meet with Holtz today.

There was a report that Holtz, considered the No. 1 choice to replace Frank Broyles as head coach at Arkansas, would be flying to Little Rock before the end of the week.

Broyles denied that report, saying, "He certainly wouldn't be coming down here until after the Jets play their final game of the season on Sunday."

The Arkansas position is one of the major coaching jobs still available now that Illinois' Bob

Washington State, Arizona, Bowling Green, Drake, Illinois State, Miami of Florida, Oregon, Stanford, Toledo and Tulsa.

Holtz has compiled a 3-10 record in his first season as a pro coach and the season has been filled with many disappointments after a successful college coaching career.

Ward said in the interview that Holtz "is presently frustrated and very tired."

The station quoted Holtz family sources as saying he wanted out of the Jets' contract and wanted to return to college football. He formerly coached at William & Mary and North Carolina State.

In Texas, defensive coach Mike Campbell is being mentioned to move up and replace Darrell Royal. Interviews for the position are likely to begin Friday.

In other football coaching developments Tuesday, Jim Carlen had his contract extended until 1980 by the University of South Carolina; Utah hired Wayne Howard, Long Beach State's winningest football coach, and Texas Tech extended Steve Sloan's contract for 10 years after the Red Raiders' coach held discussions concerning the possibility of becoming head coach of the NFL's Atlanta Falcons. Blackman's move to Cornell and Jackie Sherrill's switch from Washington State to Pittsburgh have been confirmed.

Other positions available include the University of Texas.

ECU's Scharf, Welborn Speak To Sports Club

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University swimming coach Ray Scharf and the school's wrestling coach John Welborn spoke yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Greenville Sports Club.

Scharf, whose teams have dominated Southern Conference swimming for years said "most people have the concept that most athletes are dumb." But he emphasized, "all athletes are not really dumb. Most carry a 'B' average... most are under six feet tall and most are under 175 pounds," indicating that the majority of college athletes are average people.

Scharf said motivation is what really makes outstanding athletes.

The speaker said East Carolina coaches take average people and through motivation, produce outstanding teams.

"We've taken guys that couldn't go anywhere else," because other schools wouldn't give them scholarships. "We've taken them in here," Scharf said, "and tapped their resources."

"How do we get the little bit extra out of the average guy... You've got to get excited yourself about a program before the athlete will get excited. Motivation. It's an inside job."

"It takes a good coach to make a good athlete better," Scharf said, indicating that the success of the athletic program at ECU is, "a tribute to the coaching staff at East Carolina."

Scharf concluded by asking, "What can you do to help?" "Give these average guys support."

"We want you to support our program basically by coming in and cheering for these guys," Welborn, who has produced an outstanding wrestling program at East Carolina told sports club members "there are a lot of ups and downs in coaching... a lot of bad moments," such as losing contests, losing athletes due to poor grades or lack of money to stay in school and seeing athletes fail to apply themselves.

But, he emphasized, "there are gratifying moments," when you win a conference championship or have athletes come back and thank you for the opportunities afforded them in school.

Welborn, whose ECU team is ranked in the top 20 in the nation, outlined the progress of wrestling in the United States for the audience, then said "we have a young team" this year, that might not stack up as well as in the past because of the growth of the sport over the past few years.

The speaker said "people think coaching is an easy life. It's not."

Indicating it is easy coaching during a practice or during a contest, Welborn said the hard part is "dealing with the people on the team" and their day-to-day problems, such as mental attitude, grades, money, discipline and other matters.

But "there's a lot of good in coaching," he emphasized.

FC's Ninth Team Loses

WOODINGTON — Woodington defeated Farmville Central in a ninth grade basketball game here yesterday, 74-51. Woodington was paced by Reginald Rouse with 29 while Harold Phillips scored 12 for Farmville.

Woodington	14	19	22	19-74
Farmville Cent	7	5	16	14-51

"Coaches are out on an ego trip. They have to be," Welborn pointed out.

Welborn said of the ECU athletic program, "I think for the amount of money spent," the school has "a better coaching staff and better administrative staff than any school in the country."

DONATION
PHELPS, Ky. (UPI) — Joseph and Leonard McCoy, two businessmen who have been successful in this area, donated much of the cost and labor for a new $950,000 gymnasium for the local high school basketball team.

The Arkansas position is one of the major coaching jobs still available now that Illinois' Bob

Viking Wrestlers Look For Another Good Year

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

D. H. Conley's wrestling team will have a difficult time equalling all the accomplishments of last year's team but, with eight returning lettermen, they might even do better.

Last year, the Vikings were Eastern Carolina Conference champions, Sectional Champions, winners of the Hoggard Christmas Tournament and fifth in the state, along with compiling a 12-1 dual meet record.

"I'm not one to make predictions," said coach Milt Sherman of this team's chances. "I'm a wait-and-see type person."

Sherman said the Vikings have a "challenging schedule" this year, meeting some of the top teams in the state in dual competition. In addition, they will compete in two Christmas tournaments.

"We have our work cut out for us. This type of competition should prepare us to win when the season-ending tournaments come around," Sherman said.

"We aim toward the end of the year." Several of last year's conference and sectional champions return to the Viking squad this year.

Alton Crandall, a sophomore who wrestles in the 112-pound weight class, was both a conference and sectional champion. His brother, Floyd, a junior at 119, was also a conference and sectional champion, as well as finishing third in the state.

Ronald Harris, a 132-pound junior, was a conference champion and Charles Harrison, a 167-pound junior, was a conference champ and third in the sectionals.

The heavyweight, Lo Carmon, a senior, was also a conference and sectional champion. Each of these wrestlers is number one in his weight class for the Vikings this year.

In addition, freshman Gary Harris, at 98 pounds, was the state United States Wrestling Federation champion in freestyle wrestling last year. He is backed by Rick Farris, also a freshman.

Donald Hardy, a freshman, is the top wrestler at 105 and sophomore Alvin Lang will be backing up Alton Crandall at 112.

Sophomore Willie Moore will back Floyd Crandall at 119 and sophomores William Small and Harvey Green are the top wrestlers at 126.

At 132, in addition to Harris, is Joseph Nicholson, a sophomore. Larry Powell, who finished third in the conference last year, returns at the 138-pound position. He is backed by sophomore Curtis Dixon.

Marvin Hardy, a sectional runner-up last year, returns to the 145 weight class, along with senior Robert Carmon.

At 155, freshman Earl Page and junior Ronald are battling it out for the top spot. Paul Bridges, a junior who was conference runner-up last year, will wrestle at 185 and Jesse Davis will wrestle at 195. Davis was a USWF state champion last year.

Sherman predicts an improved conference this year and said the addition of coaches Willie Bryant at North Pitt Richard Byrd at Ayden-Grifton gives the conference the most experienced coaches it has ever had.

The Vikings are presently 2-0 for the season, with lopsided wins over Williamston and North Pitt. They face Wilson Fike tonight.

In addition to having excellent talent this year, D. H. Conley, with only three seniors on the team, should be in excellent shape for years to come.

Bears Defeated In Two Overtimes

BEAR GRASS—Bear Grass outscored Chocowinity 15-8 in the fourth quarter to tie the game and then took the Indians into two overtimes before finally bowing, 39-37.

Robert Harrison hit a shot with two seconds left in regulation to tie the game at 35-all and put it into overtime.

Neither team was able to score in the first overtime period.

In the second OT, Isiah Wilson and Freddie Smith both hit two free throws to give Chocowinity a four-point lead and the Bears were only able to muster two more points.

Chocowinity's Henry McCuller led all scorers with 16. Jerry Wynne and Harrison each scored 11 for the Bears.

The Bear Grass girls' team got back on the winning track against the Squaws, winning 30-29. Patricia Taylor paced Chocowinity. In the junior varsity contest, Chocowinity handed the Cubs-49-44 loss.

The varsity team is now 0-6 for the season and the girls are 4-2. Bear Grass will be back in action Friday at Pantego.

Goldsboro Defeats Chargers

LITTLEFIELD—Goldsboro handed Ayden-Grifton its third straight loss of the young season last night, defeating the Chargers 76-49.

The Chargers, down 39-31 at halftime, lost all hope of a comeback in the third quarter when they only scored two points the whole period.

Goldsboro's Warren Alston was the game's high scorer with 30 points. Ron Holloway added 13 points for Goldsboro and Larry Hilliard had 11.

The Chargers were paced by Ogden Braxton with 21 points and Terry Maye with 11.

In the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton lost its third straight contest, 46-45. The Chargerettes were ahead at the half, 26-21, but were outscored 15-8 in the third period.

Karen Haseley of Ayden-Grifton led all scorers with 17 points while Vertha Dixon added 12 for the Chargerettes.

Goldsboro was paced by King with 13 points and Thomas with 12.

Goldsboro also won the junior varsity contest, 66-49, for a sweep of the games.

Bullets Rally To Nip Belhaven

JAMESVILLE—Jamesville's Bullets stages a fourth quarter rally to come from behind and nip Belhaven, 63-62 last night.

Jamesville, which led at the half, 30-28, was outscored in the third quarter 22-13. The Bullets came back from this seven point deficit to take the lead in the final period.

Four Jamesville players were in double figures for the game and only five scored. Eric Davis led the way with 20. Tony DiNardo added 14 and Ricky Whitehurst scored 14. Trent 'A' was the other double figure scorer with 10.

Belhaven was led by Freeman with 20 and Hooker with 18.

In the girls' game, Belhaven led the Lady Bullets at the end of the first quarter, 15-11. Jamesville cut the lead to three at the half and outscored Belhaven 20-11 in the third quarter to gain command.

Joyce Manning and Edith James each scored 13 for the Lady Bullets while Timpy and Lorrie Modlin each scored 11. Belhaven was paced by Martha Gibbs with 21 and Linda Nelson with 16 points.

End Clennie Brundidge of Army caught 31 passes in the Cadets' first four games in 1976 to pace the nation's collegians.

The Bullets will play again Friday night when they host Bath.

Life In A 'Crib' On Lake Michigan

By SHARON RUTENBERG
CHICAGO (UPI) — Peter, Ray and Joe live in a crib on Lake Michigan. It's their job. They live there for a week at a time.

Peter Milke, 63, Ray Perkins, 44, and Joseph Rago, 47, are cribkeepers for the Chicago Water Department.

Cribs are those round structures which motorists on Chicago's Lake Shore Drive sometimes puzzle over while driving to work. They are located about 2.5 miles off shore and their basic task is to take in lake water. The water flows down a crib shaft and through pipes to the Central Water Filtration Plant on shore, where it is treated for drinking.

The cribkeepers' main function is to poke poles down the shaft to make sure the water flow is not blocked. They occasionally use one-third of a stick of dynamite to break up winter ice. Department officials say the explosion is not dangerous and is cushioned within the crib water.

The men have one of the best views of the Chicago shoreline and a chance to get away from it all. But they also have to live with the loneliness, boredom and violent weather.

"I wish I had wings so I could fly over there," Milke said as he looked out the window. "But then I get used to it."

It takes a certain type of person to work on the cribs. The pay isn't bad, room and board is free, and they get every other week off. But then there is the isolation.

Tom Ward has been the head cribkeeper for 34 years, and his father was the head cribkeeper before him. "The general run of people do not care for the isolation, but they can tolerate it," Ward said. "The week off covers a multitude of sins."

Three cribs are currently in service. They were built during the turn-of-the-century and measure between 70-110 feet in diameter. They rest firmly on the lake bottom in about 35 feet of water.

Most of the cribkeepers didn't pick the job out of a sense of adventure or for doing something unusual. To them, it's simply a job.

Joseph Rago became a cribkeeper three months ago because of "lack of employment." Peter Milke, a cribkeeper for 12 years, said, "The job was open and I had to take it."

Ray Perkins has worked on the cribs for 20 years. "Before it was fine," he said. "Now my wife can't wait until I get off and retire."

A telephone in the crib gives Rago and Perkins a chance to talk to their families once a day. Milke complains that his sisters call him too often.

The crib has sleeping quarters, a well-equipped kitchen, and a television and radio. The men bring along books and magazines.

A 120-foot bridge connects two cribs. During the winter, the men use ropes to get across the icy path. No one has fallen into the lake yet, but chances are he wouldn't survive in the winter.

"No one goes across that bridge by himself," Perkins said.

The winter winds are so violent sometimes that the furniture inside shakes. Milke said he was sitting in a chair once, and it started to move. Perkins remembers Milke running down the hall once, "Did you feel that?"

The winter also means transportation problems. The men are stuck on the cribs if the boat can't get through the lake ice to pick them up. One time a helicopter had to land on top of a crib to pick up a sick cribkeeper.

Life on the cribs demands compatibility. Perkins said, "You've got to get along with people. Everybody's got to work together."

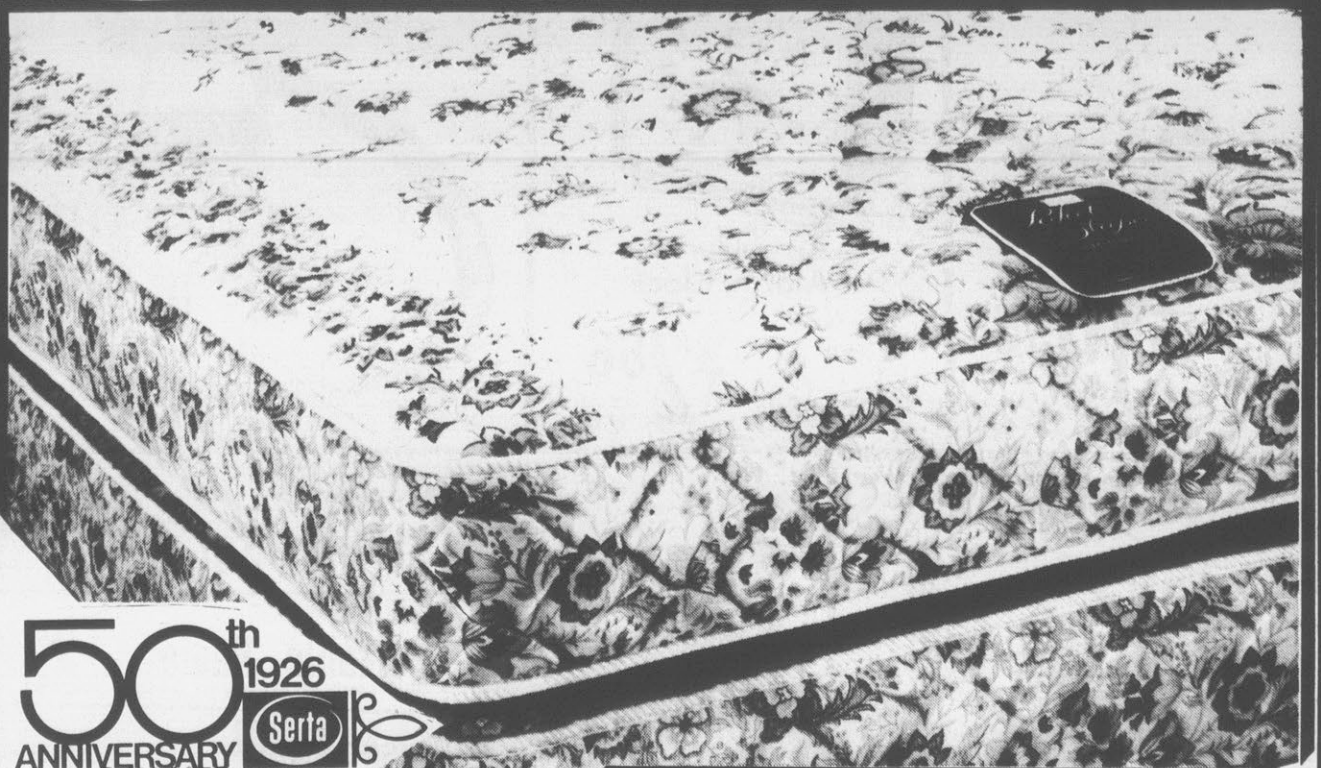

Besides an occasional boat going by during the summer, the only people the men see are on the tugboat which brings them out to the crib. The men change shifts every Monday morning, and the boat comes again on Fridays to bring supplies.

Forty-three per cent of the 86,245,000 citizens who filed income tax returns in 1976 paid for professional help in filling out their forms.

WINTER'S ARTISTRY — Winter lent its own artistry to this stark tree south of Prior Lake with some snow on the trunk of the tree and on a bench which isn't likely to see much occupancy in the Minnesota winter. The tree is along the banks of a snow-covered lake. (AP Wirephoto)

GAO Serves As Watchdog For Congress

By DONALD H. MAY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The thin, white book hit a sensitive political nerve.

It was a Tuesday, Oct. 5, the eve of the second televised debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter. Election Day lay just four weeks ahead. Ford's campaign was recovering from the Earl Butz incident; Carter's, from his Playboy interview. Both camps were edgy.

In that charged atmosphere, a white-covered volume less than half an inch thick was delivered to reporters at the Capitol.

It said Ford had resorted to military force in the Mayaguez crisis on the basis of faulty handling of reconnaissance information, without exhausting diplomatic avenues and without fully weighing indications a political solution was possible.

The administration reacted sharply.

During his debate with Carter the next night, Ford called the Mayaguez report the work of a "grandstand quarterback" and said "every possible" diplomatic means had been tried before force was applied.

A letter from Deputy Undersecretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger, printed in the report's appendix, labeled the document the "misleading" product of "amateurs" and an attempt to "second-guess the actions of officials acting under the constraints of time — and without the advantage of hindsight."

Far from being amateur grandstanding, however, the report that touched off such fire was an analysis prepared by investigators from the independent, nonpolitical watchdog arm of Congress, the U.S. General Accounting Office.

It bore the signature of Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the United States and head of the GAO.

The GAO is a relatively obscure branch of the government. Its name calls to mind men in green eyeshades, clacking away at adding machines, rather than investigators probing distant military operations.

When Congress created the GAO in 1921, accounting was indeed its sole job — making sure the government spent its money according to law. But times have changed, and so has the agency's assignment.

But by degrees — through legislation in 1950, 1970 and 1974 — Congress replaced many of the GAO's dollars-and-cents auditing chores with the more significant and often controversial role of examining government programs.

Where once the agency only looked to see how money was spent, it began to ask: "Is this a good program?"

Robert F. Keller, Staats' deputy, said in an interview the GAO spends 40 per cent of its effort evaluating programs. He said the agency initiates 60 to 65 per cent of its studies, responding to congressional requests on the rest.

GAO reports this year have covered such varied issues as international nuclear safeguards, natural gas deregulation, the rising cost of Medicare, preventing hepatitis in blood transfusions, the Labor Department's role in rehabilitating criminals, the effectiveness of federal auto safety standards, local jail conditions and the opportunity for more effective use of animal manure.

Sometimes GAO recommendations are heeded; sometimes, not.

Last year the agency said Red Dye No. 2 had been used for 15 years without any final ruling of its safety. The Food and Drug Administration launched a new study, found the dye linked to increased malignant tumors in test animals and banned its use in food, drugs and cosmetics.

And in 1972, before the Federal Election Commission took over campaign finance auditing, the GAO traced a $25,000 campaign check to the bank account of a Watergate burglar. It was an early piece of the puzzle that eventually led to the resignation of Richard Nixon.

But in 1968 and again in 1973 the agency urged an overhaul of the peanut price support program — without results.

And a recommendation that the U.S. Postal Service could save money without harming mail service by closing many small post offices was discarded after it touched off an outcry around the country. The GAO calls itself as "an independent, non-political agency in the legislative branch of government." But it is not always able to avoid politics, and sometimes it has to fight for its independence.

The Mayaguez report is an example of a political pitfall.

The study was requested by the House Subcommittee on International Political and Military Affairs, headed by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla. The GAO gave the subcommittee its findings in classified form in May, 1976.

Fascell got the White House to declassify most of the report, then made it public the day before the Ford-Carter debate. The GAO had nothing to do with the release.

"The biggest thing we have to avoid is to make sure, particularly on request work, that we're not politically used," Keller said. "Some of that may have happened in the Mayaguez report."

Although officially a branch of Congress, the GAO has a great deal of independence from both the legislative and executive branches.

The comptroller general is appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate for a 15-year term. He cannot be removed by the president. Congress has the power to impeach him, but it has never done so.

Staats, who took office in 1966, is the nation's fifth comptroller general.

The GAO claims authority from Congress to initiate examinations of almost all federal agencies except the Central Intelligence Agency and Federal Reserve.

A number of agencies, however, refuse to concede the GAO has such power.

The FBI has allowed investigation of its domestic intelligence operations only through the examination of case summaries prepared by bureau agents.

The Internal Revenue Service has allowed examination of its operations only when requested by Congress' Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

The White House put heavy restrictions on the Mayaguez inquiry.

The study of the Mayaguez incident was designed to show government crisis management. But the GAO was denied access to deliberations of the National Security Council, where key decisions were made, and to information provided for the NSC by the State and Defense Departments.

An incident in 1965 raised questions about the GAO's independence.

Staats' predecessor, Joseph Campbell, issued a series of reports accusing specific defense contractors of overcharging and other alleged procurement abuses.

A House Government Operations subcommittee headed by then-Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., held hearings and raked Campbell over the coals. Campbell, suffering from rheumatoid arthritis, resigned for health reasons before the subcommittee issued its report.

After the hearings the GAO grew more cautious about naming firms and toned down the language of its reports.

One GAO staffer summed up the political realities: "Congressmen have to live, eat and get political contributions. Companies won't give them campaign contributions if GAO is putting the finger on them."

Keller, however, said if a contractor steps out of line "we don't hesitate to name him."

Recent reports bear him out. Last August the GAO found itself in political hot water for recommending that Congress reject an administration bill proposing $4 billion in loan guarantees to help private industry develop synthetic fuels.

The report was issued while the legislation was pending in the House Rules Committee. Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., wrote that "by the act of issuing such reports on pending legislation they (GAO) usurp the policy-making function of Congress."

With opponents of the measure citing the GAO's findings, the House voted 193 to 192 against letting the bill come to the floor.

Keller said, however, the GAO will continue to advise Congress on pending legislation.

SIDS Toll In N.C. Is Described

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
"Grief after any death is normal, though we would not dare to say what normal is," Dr. Joseph Lowman of the University of North Carolina Department of Psychology told those attending a conference on Sudden Infant Death Syndrome here yesterday.

"But to lose a child is the most acute form of grief a person can go through. This coupled with the suddenness with which the death strikes, the responsibility a parent feels for the care of an infant, and the many unknowns about this type of death makes it a case unto itself, different and more difficult than other deaths a person must experience."

SIDS affects about 2.05 babies out of every 1,000 in North Carolina, Dr. Jack Blok of the East Carolina University Department of Geography, told the group. He said the rate of infant mortality has declined in the state over the past few years, but the percentage of infant death attributed to SIDS has remained virtually the same.

SIDS deaths are most likely to occur in babies six months or younger, with the age 2.8 months being the peak time. More occur in the winter months and clusters often occur within months. For example, in a month in which there are 14 deaths reported, seven may occur within a four-day period.

Of the three principal geographic regions of the state, the 40 eastern counties have the highest SIDS rate. Of the races, the highest rates are among Indians and Blacks.

The State Medical Examiner's Office has developed a program for helping parents of SIDS babies deal with their questions and their grief and also of providing information that hopefully may lead to greater knowledge of the problem.

Dr. Lowman said there are now five public health nurses who attempt to visit every family in the state which has a SIDS death. He made suggestions as to how this program can be localized so as to serve each family better and more promptly after such a death.

The nurse arranges a visit at a time that is convenient for the family, preferably at a time when the father as well as the mother can be present. She listens to whatever the couple and their other children may wish to tell her about the baby's death or anything else. She seeks to convey to them that their grief is normal. She gives them the autopsy report on their baby and goes over it with them, assuring and reassuring them that they were in no way responsible, that medical science can find no cause for such death; therefore, it is nothing they did or did not do which caused it. Research questions are asked, questions which hopefully will help pinpoint causes and also teach these nurses to better help out other grieving families.

The service, once it is localized, should be voluntary on the part of the participants and free of charge. Lowman said. First contact should be made within at least a month after the baby's death. Contact persons should be chosen more for their personal qualities than for their professional ones. Warmth and ability to relate to persons of all social and economic classes, as well as to be sympathetic to the grief of each individual she must deal with should be deemed most important.

He did not say which agency he felt should handle this effort.

He also mentioned the need to educate persons who come in contact with the family after the SIDS death including siblings of the baby, other relatives, physicians and their office staffs, rescue squad members and emergency room personnel, morticians, law enforcement officers, and ministers. These people he said, have the potential to either make the parents' pain worse or to make it less worse or more easy to bear.

Pre-Treatment Said Effective

HOUSTON (UPI) — Researchers at the University of Texas Health Science Center believe Pepto-Bismol may be an effective preventive medicine for diarrhea in travelers.

"We feel it is accurate to refer to the pink preparation by trade name rather than the less specific description, 'bismuth subsalicylate mixture,'" said Dr. Charles Ericsson, noting separate ingredients were less effective.

Ericsson said tests run on 29 students visiting Mexico suggest pretreatment of the intestinal tract reduces intestinal fluid accumulation as a result of e. coli toxin, a common cause of travelers diarrhea, by 78 per cent.

He said the preliminary results from tests of the widely used diarrhea curative justify further study of its preventive powers.

First Female Country Star

By ELIZABETH A. HARRIS
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Kitty Wells is a name recognized by few of the young country music fans who made John Denver and Olivia Newton-John rich.

Disc jockeys under the age of 30 may know the name, but they don't play her music.

Yet, Kitty Wells was the first female singer to become a star in the male-dominated country music industry and she was the first to hold the title "The Queen of Country Music."

She dominated the country music charts from 1952 to the mid-sixties with so-called heart songs, gospel music and answer songs such as "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels," which was recorded in reply to Hank Williams No. 1 song "Wild Side of Life."

But in recent years, her career has been eclipsed by the female dynamos like Loretta Lynn, Dolly Parton, Lynn Anderson and Tammy Wynette.

"I knew I wouldn't stay on top forever," said the 57-year-old brunette. "There's always somebody who's going to come along and take over the No. 1 spot."

Along with her husband, Johnny Wright, and their son, Bobby, the family makes a comfortable living traveling in their customized Silver Eagle to about 200 personal appearances a year.

Shy, soft-spoken and modest, she credits her success to her husband, who married her when she was 16.

"If I hadn't been traveling with Johnny and his partner, I just wouldn't have been in show business. I just wouldn't have traveled alone. People looked down on an unmarried girl who traveled with a band," said the Nashville-born singer.

Friends say the veteran entertainer hopes to have one more hit record before she retires.

Three years ago, she signed with Capricorn records, the Macon, Ga., based label responsible for the Allman Brothers, the Marshall Tucker Band and other southern rock groups.

Her recording of Bob Dylan's "Forever Young," featuring members of the Allmans and Marshall Tucker band, did not do as well as she hoped.

"It's so hard to get in the Top 40 now. Radio stations have switched to the more progressive country sound and they won't play the older artists. We're too country, they say."

But she recently cut a novelty song, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," and hopes the popularity of the television satire will carry over to her record.

A traditional woman who places her family ahead of her career, she looks forward to a time when she can read novels, work crossword puzzles and cook.

"Every once in a while we talk about slowing down or easing up on the traveling. If we were to retire we'd keep our publishing company and Johnny would probably go into the booking business."

"But then the fans come around and say, 'Don't ever retire.'"

Town's Elderly Men 'Benched'

OILTON, Okla. (AP) — You might call it the problem of the missing bench.

A group of elderly men who have traditionally sat and watched the time and traffic pass by in this northeastern Oklahoma town are annoyed.

Part of the traffic that had passed included elderly women, and the men think they're the ones responsible for the loss of the bench. Before the bench disappeared overnight, some of the women had complained the men "just sit there, spitting their tobacco and looking at our legs."

Police Chief Fred Stewart has been tipped by one of the men that the bench has already been used for firewood.

Few Vacation In Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — About 25 million foreign tourists enter Yugoslavia annually, but only about 6.5 million spend their vacation in the country, mainly on its Adriatic coast, the tourist association said.

An annual income from tourism in the past three years totaled about $1 billion, and tourist officials said the hard currency harvest should be considerably increased in the future.

Nice Treat By The Carpenters

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recommended tonight: "The Carpenters," ABC's special starring Karen Carpenter and brother Richard, who've shown that a gentle sound can survive in a music world where loud means a hit. Granted, they've been knocked by assorted pop critics as too gentle, too mild in their music to be anything more than a pleasant, forgettable hum on radio stations with easy-listening formats. Yet, put your headbone close to the speaker; you'll find solid musicianship by both, not to mention quite subtle, often surprisingly inventive vocal and instrumental arrangements by Richard C. Much of that — plus sly, unexpected flashes of whimsy — is on display in tonight's show, which has pianist-comic Victor Borge and singer John Denver sharing the bill.

True, you may groan when the Carpenters launch the hour with what seems a lip-synch rendition of their "Top of the World," which has been played so often it should be led away and shot. But stick around. Vast improvement sets in when we're told Richard is a big fan of the late Spike Jones (a superb musician despite his loony legend as head of the ensemble called the City Slickers).

The Carpenters then say they'll do their first hit — "Close to You" — in the Jones manner. Whereupon they and their guests demolish the tune with kazoo, whistles, pots and pans. Weird. Funny, too. Another fine whimsy moment: Richard drives a fantasy race against two big-name professionals and makes an emergency pit stop — to replace an eight-track stereo cartridge. Sister Karen, who at times shows a deft touch for visual comedy, also checks in with a rousing display of her jazz-drumming ability (the Carpenters started as a jazz group).

While not quite in Buddy Rich's league, she still gets the swinging job done in a round of tunes you'd not expect to hear on a mod music show — George Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band," "S Wonderful" and "Fascinating Rhythm."

Borge has little to do, other than a funny piano duet with Carpenter. Which is a shame, but it's still good to see him at work. Denver, who always has struck me as the leading exponent of folk Muzak, does a forgettable solo, yet more than redeems himself later in a lovely duet with Miss Carpenter.

HELLZAPOPPIN' ZCOMIN — Jerry Lewis and Lynn Redgrave perform a selection from "Hellzapoppin," a new musical comedy revue on Monday at New York's "21" club. A major portion of the Broadway revue's first act will be televised live by NBC on opening night, Feb. 13. (AP Wirephoto)

New Course In Firefighting

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A and M University, more than 100 miles inland, has offered a new course in marine firefighting. Trainees will practice on a 120-foot long, 28-foot high mockup — made from segments of a salvaged ship — complete with hatches, ladders, platforms, valves and exhaust stack.

Forty-one weekend courses annually will offer what developers hope will prove more effective life and property saving techniques for fires, explosions and other marine emergencies in port and on the high seas.

The first ship of the American navy, the U.S. Frigate Constellation, was built and launched in 1797.

trump game would be a snap. However, declarer realized that a 4-1 spade break would pose problems.

With four tricks available in the other three suits, Ogust saw that he needed only five spade tricks to make his contract. Taking this into account, he found a way to give himself a vital extra chance in case the spades didn't split. At trick two, Ogust cashed the king of spades, then overtook the queen of spades with the ace. Had both opponents followed, declarer would have conceded a spade trick to set up the suit while the ace of clubs was still in dummy as an entry.

When East showed out on the second spade, declarer still had the time to fall back on his alternative line. He ran the ten of diamonds to West's king. West knocked out the ace of clubs, but declarer repeated the diamond finesse. When the queen of diamonds dropped under the ace, declarer was home with two spade tricks, one heart, four diamonds and two clubs.

We like to think that the new Charles Goren's 100 Challenging Bridge Hands would be the perfect gift for a bridge player in the holiday season. Selected from the nearly half-million hands that the author estimates he has played, written about or kibitzed, the hands are presented as problems in declarer play or defense, and the reader is invited to match his skill with the stars who faced these problems at the table.

This hand is from rubber bridge, and features an old friend—American internationalist, Harold Ogust. He and his partner conducted an orderly auction to a reasonable no trump game. In fact, North is to be commended for his decision to raise to three no trump instead of rebidding his six-card suit at his third turn. That was indeed fortunate, for a club lead by East against four spades would have left declarer with no chance.

West led his fourth-best club, which ran to the queen. With the spade suit apparently furnishing six tricks, it seemed that the no

Soaring Is Pure Art Of Flying

By JOHN LEIGHTY
FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Cattle grazed on the brown hillsides, unaware of the silent object whirling above them.

A ridge loomed directly ahead. The sailplane turned sharply, catching a wind lift that eased it up and over the rocky outcropping.

"We'll swing around and make another pass over the ridge," said Blaine Banks, a pilot-instructor at Sky Sailing, home of the nation's busiest gliderport.

Banks performed two half rolls and then nosed downward to pick up speed, pulled up and straightened out, causing a brief moment of exhilarating weightlessness.

"Now you know how astronauts feel in space," he said. About 20 minutes from when the glider was towed into the air by a light plane and with a clink, the sound of the rope release, was left alone in the sky, it circled over a row of power lines and approached the airport runway.

The engineless bird touched down at 70 miles per hour, bumping to a halt within a few inches of its assigned parking space.

"I enjoy gliding as a recreational type thing. It's a lot of fun," said Banks, who has been flying single-engine planes for nine years.

Barbara Otto, a member of Soaring Experience, America's first all-woman gliding club, said the field's air ships get taken up between 10 and 100 times a day, depending on weather conditions, particularly wind currents.

"Glidering makes a good pilot out of you," said Ms. Otto. "It trains you in safety and precision with the controls."

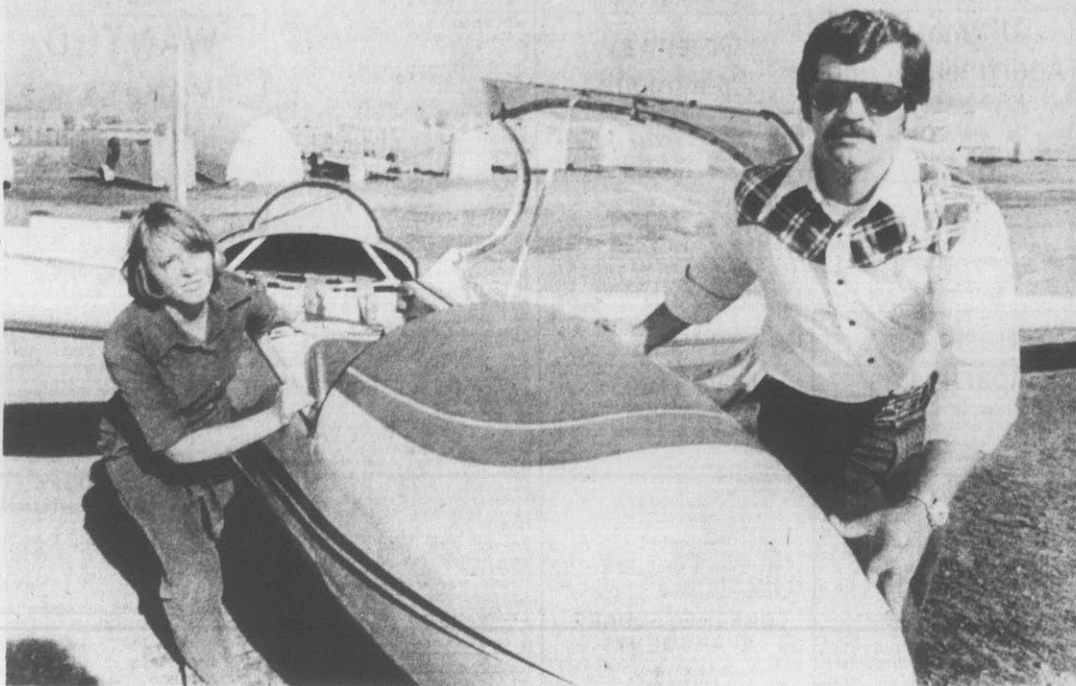

Taking away the noisy engine, she said, makes a pilot become almost one with the craft, guiding it easily without conscious effort.

"With an engine things are predictable — soaring's never predictable," said Ms. Otto, an Allentown, Pa., native who now lives in San Francisco.

"The emphasis is on learning the pure art of flying itself and the medium that you're moving in — the air.

"One of the pleasures of gliding is you feel very much attuned to the new medium. There's the thrill of discovering another dimension."

Soaring Experience is one of 197 glider clubs in the United States, four of which are located at Sky Sailing Airport. Ms. Otto said there was a "sense of comradeship" among the women, who supported each other en route to achieving their gliding credentials.

"I enjoyed the challenge — watching 16 women learn to fly," said Ms. Otto, who has registered 155 hours of flight time and who had a power rating before she tried soaring. "It gave me a way to express myself, show my talent."

The club is also one of the few in the country which, after careful screening, will admit beginners who don't have a power license.

Many gliderports, including Fremont, have increasing safety problems due to the increase in air congestion. Gliders have the right-of-way over the faster power planes, but pilots in power craft have poorer visibility.

"Training includes a heck of a lot of looking around," Ms. Otto said.

An introductory lesson at the Fremont field costs $17. A ride for two in a bigger model is $20. Glider students also get to participate in flying parties and educational activities. A license to solo can take a few months and costs approximately $800.

Glidering has a low accident rate and are resilient ships, most of them tested to withstand at least 8 Gs, or eight times the pull of gravity.

"You'll break before it does," said Ms. Otto, who says her life has changed from the joy she finds in soaring.

"It's one of the world's unique sports," she said, "and the most exciting."

Lone Travelers From Germany

Small Town Has Five Taxicabs

OSCEOLA, Iowa (AP) — It's only a two-stoplight town of 3,200, but Osceola has two taxicab companies and both are doing just fine.

"It's always been a good taxicab town, while in Leon (25 miles south), they can't keep a cab at all," says Marvin Wallace of the Osceola Cab Co. Marvin Wallace is a part-time driver whom owner Kenneth Hall hires for the winter when business gets heavy. The rest of the year Hall, 59, and his wife operate their "fleet" — a 1974 Dodge and a 1974 Pontiac.

Junior Black, 50, owns Mark's Cab Co., which consists of a 1972 Dodge and 1969 and 1975 Plymouths.

"My mother, mother-in-law and father-in-law help out, too," Black said. "It's kind of a family affair."

To get a cab at night in Osceola, you telephone the company owners — and they dispatch themselves.

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Of about 3.1 million Germans who took vacations alone in 1975 more than two million were women, most of them up to 30 years old and above 50 years old, a survey by the Tourism Study Group reported.

Most were either farm wives whose husbands had to stay at home to look after the property, architects who worked together with their husbands and needed a rest from their constant contact with them or housewives whose husbands took frequent business trips and who demanded the right to also travel on their own, the study said.

SPRING BULBS

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Spring flowering bulbs should be planted during the winter, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and crocuses should be planted before the first heavy freeze of the season.

Digs Around World Shed Light On Man's Origins

By WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN
United Press International
Archaeologists are digging farther into the early roots of modern man, pushing back the record on his prehistoric development in East Africa and China and unearthing previously unknown civilizations in Syria and South America.

The scientists are now arguing that modern man is much older and sophisticated civilizations were developed much earlier than previously believed.

And the so-called New World may not be nearly so new.

Archaeologists armed with new dating techniques believe they have found traces of man dating back to 70,000 B.C. in southern California.

Another discovery of early metal alloys and pottery in Thailand challenges the generally held view that the Middle East was the "cradle of civilization."

"They're pushing man back further and further," said George Stuart, the National Geographic Society's staff archaeologist. "Things are just happening all over the place. It's fantastic."

The archeological work is focusing on the entire gamut of man's development — how he evolved from ape-like primates, migrated around the world and then built sophisticated civilizations.

"The stuff has been coming in so fast that even articles I wrote last spring are out of date," said Richard MacNeish, director of the Robert S. Peabody Foundation for Archeology in Amherst, Mass.

Among the more fascinating theories and discoveries:

— The "missing link" between modern man and his more primitive ancestors has been found in Tanzania.

— A new Yuanmo man has been found in China that is one million years older than the earliest man previously identified in Asia.

— Asians migrated across a now-submerged land bridge and settled down the New World more than 20,000 years ago.

— The Incas of South America borrowed their architectural skills from an earlier undiscovered civilization called the Mollo people.

— A previously undiscovered civilization in Syria called the Ebla kingdom rivalled the empires of Egypt and Mesopotamia.

Most scientists agree that the earliest primate originated in eastern Africa, between two and five million years ago. But there has been only sketchy clues as to when modern man using tools and fire emerged.

In August, Tanzanian officials reported that the skull of a creature, apparently a kind of missing link between modern man and his primitive predecessors, had been found at Lake Ndutu in northern Tanzania.

"The cranium is remarkable in that it seems to form an evolutionary link between (Peking man) and homo sapiens (humans) having features in common with both," one official said.

The Ndutu man was found near bones at least 500,000 years old, indicating that modern man appeared in eastern Africa about that time.

Although Western scientists are searching East Africa for the earliest traces of modern man, Chinese scientists say they have discovered a man using tools and fire more than a million years before the earliest man so far detected in Asia.

Chinese scientists have found teeth and stone implements proving that the Yuanmo man lived in what is now Yunnan Province in southwest China 1.7 million years ago, the New China News Agency said July 26.

"This dating pushes the age of the earliest apeman discovered in China back more than one million years," the official news agency said.

"It can be seen that the Peking ape was already a relatively advanced man," said an article in Red Flag Magazine, the theoretical journal of Chinese Communism. "It is now established that a fairly long period of time separated the time the ape began to make tools from the 'Peking ape' in the evolution toward man."

Man's migration around the world, particularly to the New World, is also coming under particularly close scrutiny.

Scientists believe they have just pieced together a picture of how man migrated across a land bridge from what is now Siberia to Alaska, migrated southward and established sophisticated civilizations when he reached Mexico and Peru.

The University of Toronto's William Irving announced in September that he had found a human jaw bone at least 20,000 years old, as well as bone tools up to 29,000 years old, near the Old Crow River in the Yukon Territory.

Scientists expect to find much older signs of these immigrants in Alaska, particularly since traces of man have been found near La Jolla, Calif. dating back to 70,000 B.C.

The National Geographic Society and the National Park Service have launched a $600,000 three-year effort to search an Alaskan valley 75 miles south of Fairbanks for the earliest signs of man in the New World.

The immigrants who began moving southward were surprisingly developed, according to two anthropologists at the Memorial University of Newfoundland.

James A. Tuck and Robert J. McGhee, writing in the November Scientific American, said they have found an ancient-burial mound along the Quebec-Labrador border — a sign of a certain level of cultural stability.

"It comes as a surprise to learn...that the earliest burial mounds known anywhere in the world were built more than 7,000 years ago not by some settled, well-off people but by bands of Archaic Indians," they said.

It was not until they reached the warm climate of Mexico and South America around 300 B.C. that these immigrants developed agricultural skills, giving birth to the great Aztec, Mayan and Incan civilizations, scientists now believe.

But ruins near La Paz,

Bolivia, opening to the public for the first time Nov. 28, reveal a culture using the trapezoidal shape in its architecture that predates the Incan empire, said Carlos Ponce Sangines, national director of archeology.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS are digging farther into the roots of modern man, pushing back the record on his prehistoric development and finding previously unknown civilizations. Artists depict here two concepts of the cavemen's life. (UPI Photo)

Queen Ida: Zydeco Next

By JIM WILLSE
Associated Press Writer
MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — After reggae, what? "Zydeco, that's what," declares Ida Gullory, a leading proponent of the Creole-Cajun music that had them dancing in the aisles of the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Mrs. Gullory, better known as the leader of Queen Ida's Bon Ton Zydeco Band, is certain that zydeco's popularity is about to spread beyond the confines of its native Louisiana and the San Francisco Bay area, where her group has been preaching its musical virtues at everything from art festivals to nightclubs to occasional weddings.

"Zydeco is a slang expression for the French word 'haricot,' which means string bean," explains the Queen. "It's connected with the music because the music is a snappy, string-along kind of thing — very happy and danceable."

She sees similarities between zydeco (pronounced "ZY-deh-koh") and reggae, the Jamaican street music that became one of the hottest recording commodities of the year. Like reggae, zydeco is a heavily syncopated ethnic music that shows promise of catching on with disco maniacs anxious for something new to dance to.

With Queen Ida leading the way on accordion, her five-piece Bon Ton Zydeco Band plays a musical gumbo of syncopated blues, rock 'n' roll with a backbeat reminiscent of Bo Diddley, and even an upbeat waltz.

Until the Queen, zydeco performers were heard pretty much in Louisiana and Texas only, a situation she hopes to correct. Her Bon Ton Band has one record out that is selling "fairly well" and is planning two tours this winter to further spread the word. "We're reaching all ages already," said Queen Ida. "Our following is getting larger all the time, and even if they miss the words, it doesn't seem to matter. It's the rhythm that counts."

The rhythm of Queen Ida and her four male subjects was enough to energize the 7,000 customers at the 19th annual jazz festival held here this fall. "Ree-lease yourselves!" instructed guitarist Al Lewis, and the audience surprised festival organizers by pouring into the aisles to dance.

Queen Ida, whose adroit accordion playing has earned her the nickname Lady Fingers, is a native of Lake Charles, La. Her family moved to San Francisco in 1946, and, as a young woman, she played a hand-me-down squeezebox at Creole socials before putting it aside for marriage.

Then, with her three children in their teens, she followed her husband's advice and began practicing again. She and Lewis, her younger brother, formed the band, adding a bassist, drummer and Queen Ida's youngest son, Myrick Gullory, on washboard, tambourine and other miscellaneous percussion. "The music we play is basically the same as they play in Louisiana," the Queen explains. "But we've updated it some, adding blues licks to it, and some Latin rhythms. It's a multi-cultural music."

Look To Female Astronauts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Space agency physicians, working toward selection of female astronauts next year, are gathering data on female physiological performance to use as guides in choosing women for the program.

Johnson Space Center cardiologist Dr. R.L. Johnson said he will try to determine whether women respond differently to stress. Women employees at the center are taking treadmill and decreased lower body pressure tests.

"Although the tests have been conducted with many male subjects in the past, there is little information on how women respond to treadmill exercise," Johnson said.

ALREADY BARE — Jim Whitehead, a regional superintendent of California state parks, has recommended the state designate this mile-long strip of Pacific shoreline near San Diego as the state's first swimsuit optional beach. Officials of groups pushing for nude beaches say they estimate 200,000 bare bathers a month use this beach during the summer, so the state may as well grant the stretch nude beach status. ## Cost, Picture Quality Keep Big TV Sales Down

By MIKE GOODKIND Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television watchers can turn their living rooms into giant-screen mini-theaters, but the cost is high and the picture quality only so-so thus far.

Those who make the big-life projection sets are hoping for a revolution that will turn what is now a specialty item into an industry staple. But the odds are tough as salesmen and manufacturers buck technical problems and high cost. So far, only two or three stores in the nation are specializing in the large-screen TV sets. The latest to open is L.A. Video Center, which started up in Beverly Hills in November. L.A. Video's dimly lit showroom has six or eight different big-screen models that project TV's fare of cartoons, movies, soap operas and game shows onto movie screens.

Len Shabes, 28, one of the owners, focuses a set and declares, "Now that's an acceptable picture, isn't it?" But the image is grainy and dim compared with the sharp picture quality of most of the conventional TV sets in American homes today.

L.A. Video carries a full line of the projection sets, ranging in price from $725 to $7,200 and in size from a screen measuring 40 inches diagonally to a unit that beams out an 8x10-foot image. The smallest set, Shabes notes, is nearly three times larger than the 25-inch screen of the biggest conventional set now on the market.

A handful of giant sets have been custom-made for years, mostly for use in bars, stadiums, theaters and industry. A mass-production model became available for home purchase two years ago when one of the TV manufacturing giants, the Sony Corp., entered the field.

Dave Lachenbruch, editorial director of Television Digest, estimates that 16 companies now produce the 12,000 projection sets expected to be sold this year. Aside from Sony, the largest is Advent Corp. of Cambridge, Mass., whose main line is stereo equipment.

"There's no way of determining how many sets will wind up in the home," says Lachenbruch.

Paul Brown, 30, of Brown's Music Store in New Ulm, Minn., says all of the 97 sets he has sold this year went to "bars and lounges where they already have the lighting situation necessary for these sets."

All of the projection sets rely on a modified conventional TV, usually a 15-inch color set, that uses a lens and mirror system to project an image onto a screen. The smallest of these units is marketed in a cabinet that measures 3 by 5 by 2 feet.

And when you blow up the picture, the quality goes down.

"Picture quality is quite good, but you can't compare the quality to a regular television," concedes Kozo Shiramatsu, a Sony spokesman in New York.

But Ron Domont, 30, president of L.A. Video, Shiramatsu and Earl Muntz, 62, a pioneer in the field, believe that the giant size offsets the loss of definition in small sets, particularly in viewing sports and movies.

"A lot depends on how good your reception is," says one TV dealer. "If you have ghosts on your small screen, you're going to have giant ghosts on the big screen."

The technical difficulties have been overcome in commercial units retailing at $50,000 and more. But Dave McCarty, market research manager for RCA in Indianapolis, says his company has no immediate plans to enter the large-screen market or commit the millions of dollars needed to develop a large-screen set with a bright, clear picture at a price homeowners can afford.

Meanwhile, the big American demand is for medium-size TV sets. Lachenbruch cites industry statistics showing that the 19-inch color set is the largest-selling unit among the eight million sets sold each year. In 1975, that single size accounted for 39.2 per cent of the market, up 11 per cent from 1973. In contrast, the sale of 23- and 25-inch consoles in 1973 was 35.9 per cent, dropping last year to only 24.9 per cent of the market.

The giant screen may continue to be a specialty item for a long time. Jensen Wong, store manager at L.A. Video, says many of his customers so far have been entertainment folks who like to watch their own work.

Shiramatsu says the fragile market, about 200 of the 50,000 TV sets that Sony sell each month, is dominated by "wealthy people who really love sports and also the mechanical nut."

On the other hand, Muntz, who has made TV sets since the 1940s and now markets large-screen units, disagrees that the customers are always the wealthiest.

"Our biggest market, actually, is the television addict, the guy making $9,000 to $14,000. The biggest part of their entertainment is television. It's the only thing they can afford."

Jim Ryder, president of the three-store HI-FI Associates in the Miami-Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., area, says he suspects buyers aren't looking at giant sets as just another step up from conventional color models. "They're probably comparing them to pool tables and inexpensive boats. They're comparing the prices to being more like a car payments."

OUCH!

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper reports that doctors at a Vologda hospital are keeping their own bees. They use them to sting patients suffering from spine troubles, aching joints and similar diseases. The newspaper says 1,000 persons have undergone the bee-sting treatment and all were either improved or cured.
