9 Feared Dead In Tanker Fire

By STEWART SLAVIN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nine men were feared dead Saturday in an oil tanker explosion in Los Angeles Harbor that rocked the port area with a force so strong it was heard more than 40 miles away. Five bodies had been recovered.

About 50 persons, many of them children on nearby pleasure boats, were injured in the Friday night explosion which shattered windows for miles. Several boats at a nearby marina were scorched or damaged.

A coroner's office spokesman said four bodies and parts of a fifth were taken from the burned hull of the 38,000-ton Liberian-registered oil tanker Sansinena.

"We think there are four more down there. Divers are looking for them now," a coroner's office spokesman said.

The 810-foot long tanker was split in half by the explosion that sent hunks of metal across the crowded harbor like pieces of shrapnel. Flames and smoke shot 1,000 feet into the air and lit up the San Pedro port area. Hundreds of windows were shattered and police patrols fanned out to protect against looters.

Vince Perri, 24, Point Fermin, said he thought the mushroom cloud came from a nuclear bomb. "I thought it was all over," he said. "I swear, I thought it was the war."

The superstructure of the ship was hurled onto a dock. The blast broke windows in Costa Mesa 21 miles away and was heard in Los Angeles suburbs 40 miles north.

Phone service was knocked out, burglar alarms went off, and traffic signs were flattened by the shock.

More than 200 firemen battled the fire before it was put under control early Saturday. The flames were dangerously close to the Union Oil Co. docks where the ship had spent most of two days unloading more than half a million gallons of fuel oil.

The fire was fed by 20,000 barrels of bunker fuel the ship had just taken aboard.

A Union Oil Co. spokesman said the cause of the blast was not immediately known.

Survivors of the blast from the ship's 31-man crew and dock workers were taken to six area hosptials for treatment of burns and shock.

Some of the 29 crewmembers aboard at the time were taken off the fantail of the ship and others were plucked from the water.

The Coast Guard closed the port late Friday until the damage could be assessed. But after daybreak Saturday, three vessels were permitted to enter the port and others left.

A special Coast Guard team, called the Pacific Strike Team, moved in after dawn with a container boom to begin cleaning up an estimated 10,000 gallons of oil that was blown across the harbor surface by the blast.

Carter Names Andrus Secretary Of Interior

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter Saturday named Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus, an ex-lumberjack and strong environmentalist, as his interior secretary and said he expects to fill the seven remaining vacancies in his cabinet by Christmas.

Appearing nettled at times under questions that suggested he is ducking campaign promises, Carter said his cabinet will include "at least" one woman and one black. He denied charges that he is indulging in mere "tokenism" toward those groups.

After the news conference, his third of the week, Carter said he still expects to complete his cabinet selection process by Christmas.

Carter continued interviewing likely prospects throughout the day, meeting with former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and with Theodore Sorenson, John Kennedy's closest White House adviser.

Schlesinger is considered a possible candidate to head a new, consolidated energy superagency. Sorenson has been touted as the prospective director of central intelligence.

Andrus, 45, is Carter's fourth designated cabinet officer and his eighth major appointee. Unlike some selections still to be made, the choice of Andrus was an easy one for the former Georgia governor to make.

"I've never considered anyone else," Carter said in introducing Andrus. "He is a man who is a tough, competent manager. He's reorganized the government of Idaho in a superb way."

Carter praised Andrus, who once worked in sawmills Oregon and Idaho, as a leader of the fight to preserve the nation's environmental resources. Andrus pledged in response he would make environmental protection — including strong legislation to regulate strip mining—a high priority of his department.

Andrus said America must strike a balance between the need for economic progress and preserving its "legacy of clean air, clean water and uncluttered landscape."

Carter seemed at times to be controlling anger when reporters suggested that he is picking old Washington hands—such as Secretary of State designate Cyrus Vance—instead of new faces for many key posts and noted that feminist groups say he is not giving serious consideration to qualified women.

The president-elect denied both charges, saying he will pick "the best qualified person" for each post.

Out of the 11 formal cabinet posts, Carter has chosen only the secretaries of state, treasury, transportation and interior. Remaining are the attorney general and the secretaries of defense, labor, commerce, agriculture, housing and urban development and health, education and welfare.

Carter said his attorney general would pick the new FBI director, subject to his approval. He said the current director, Clarence Kelley, has not been ruled out as a choice.

Denies AFL-CIO Pressure

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter denied Saturday the AFL-CIO is insisting he restore former Labor Secretary John Dunlop and former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger to their old posts.

But he said Schlesinger, a conservative jack-of-all-trades in government, would probably serve in some post, and that Dunlop is still among the candidates for labor secretary.

At a news conference, Carter also said Alabama federal judge Frank Johnson is under consideration to head the FBI, and so is the current director, Clarence Kelley.

No Policy Concessions Based On Oil Prices

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter Saturday praised Saudi Arabian efforts to hold the new foreign oil price hike below the level sought by most producers, but he said the United States will make no Middle East peace policy concessions in return.

Rebuffing an apparent Saudi bid for a modified U.S. position on the Arab-Israeli issue, Carter told a news conference the price of oil should be kept separate from "political decisions concerning the Middle East."

In a letter to the American Jewish Congress, meanwhile, Carter said he has not forgotten his campaign promise to fight the Arab boycott of firms that trade with Israel. He asked for suggestions on how to bring the boycott to an end.

"There is no room in the international arena for such discrimination," Carter said in the letter, released by AJC officials in Miami. "I deplore it and want to work with you to end it."

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, broke with 11 other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Thursday and announced it would raise prices by 5 per cent rather than the 10 per cent voted by other cartel members. Only the United Arab Emirates supported the Saudi position.

The Saudis also said they would boost production and draw customers away from OPEC nations charging the higher price in an effort to force the rest of the cartel toward a moderate pricing position.

Sheik Ahmad Zaki Yamini, the Saudi oil minister, and Sheik Mana Saeed Al-Otaiba of the Emirates said that in exchange for price moderation they expect "an appreciation" from the West — specifically, progress at the Paris talks between rich and poor nations and a solution to the Arab-Israeli crisis.

U.S. officials viewed the Saudi price moderation and statement of expectations as a direct message to Carter.

Carter said that neither he nor anyone representing his administration has suggested any special consideration for the views of Saudi Arabia or the United Arab Emirates in Middle East political decisions because of their price hike moderation.

"I don't believe that the oil price decision should be a factor in the ultimate political decisions concerning the Middle East," Carter said.

"I certainly don't object to Mr. Yamani expressing that hope. But there has been no quid pro quo discussed between the Saudis and either myself or (Secretary of State-designate) Cyrus Vance or anyone speaking for us."

Action Against Troopers For Ticket Fixing Deal

RALEIGH (AP) — Last week's firing of two Highway Patrol troopers and the disciplining of three others came because of alleged ticket fixing, a Raleigh newspaper reported today

The News and Observer quoted unnamed sources as saying troopers had fixed traffic tickets for Rose's Stores Inc. truck drivers in exchange for merchandise.

Major Jack Cabe, acting commander of the patrol, said Friday that the firings and disciplinary actions had taken place but refused to elaborate. He said the actions grew out of a probe by the State Bureau of Investigation and he was forbidden by state law to reveal details.

The newspaper said the investigation began in September after several Rose's truckdrivers and one store employe were fired or asked to resign for their part in the alleged ticket-fixing.

Cabe refused to comment on the newspaper's story.

Fired were troopers George B. McAllister, 37, of Asheboro and G.F. Gardner, 33, of Hillsborough. Disciplined were troopers J.M. Newton, 32, of Spruce Pine, E.W. Clemmons, 35, of Burlington and J.D. Klutz, 31, of Charlotte.

The newspaper said it was told that troopers picked up "mostly small items" from a Rose's store in Rocky Mount.

"The way I understand it is, like, if one of the highway patrolmen was going to fix a ticket for one of the truck drivers, then he (a store employe) would take care of the payoff—give them some merchandise—to even the score," a source told the newspaper.

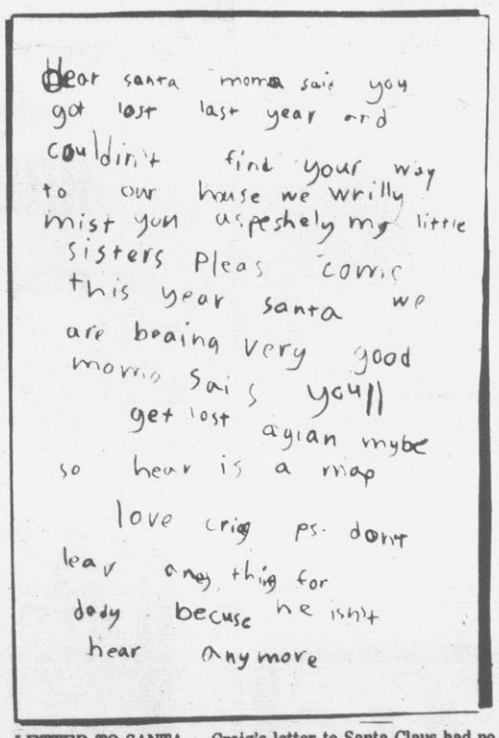
But, another source told the newspaper, "You have to infer that, but you can't prove it."

Drivers for the company contrived shortages in their loads so they could give merchandise troopers around the state, a source was quoted as saying.

John T. Church, chairman of the company's board of directors, said, "We're having our own investigation and I'm not positive, but I think we may have been the instigators of the SBI investigation. When we get the investigation finished we'll be glad to make a statement."

Dist. Atty. Herbert F. Pierce of Graham will decide whether to seek criminal charges after reviewing the SBI report. He said Saturday that he still hadn't received it.

dear Santa, dont get lost



LETTER TO SANTA — Craig's letter to Santa Claus had no return address. And that, in itself, is sad to people who care about forgotten children who scribble their Christmas dreams on scraps of paper. The letter is among the thousands that have passed through the Seattle Post Office this season. (AP Wirephoto)

By WENDY WALKER
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — A child's letter to Santa never reached its destination, but it found its way into hearts all over the city.

Its author is unknown, so the food, toys and Christmas decorations being donated because of it will go to other needy kids.

"Dear santa," the letter says, "moma said you got lost last year and couldn't find your way to our house. we wrilly mist you aspeshely my little sisters.

"Pleas come this year santa. we are beaing very good. momo sais youll get lost agian mybe so hear is a map."

It's signed, "love criag," but people are assuming that the real name of the haphazard speller is Craig.

A postscript says, "ps. don't leav any thing for dady becuse he isn't hear anymore."

Craig forgot to enclose the map for Santa to follow. His letter bore no return address.

Officials said the letter apparently fell out of the "North Pole" mail pouch the Postal Service maintains at Christmas time and was delivered by mistake to Francisco's Restaurant.

"I don't mind telling you, when I read that letter there were tears," said Arthur Grinbaum, who works at the restaurant.

"We took Craig's letter to the FBI," Grinbaum said. "They said they would trace the postmark and then go through lists of names of kids in the schools in the area. But unfortunately, we had thrown the envelope away."

FBI Special Agent John Reed said he read the letter but could do nothing. "It's beautiful in its childish simplicity. It's a real tear-jerker," he said.

Then Grinbaum decided to organize a holiday drive for needy families in the Seattle area.

"We figured we'd just start helping a family here and a family there, and sooner or later, we'd have to hit Craig's," Grinbaum said. "We thought it would have a snowballing effect."

He said the names of children who might go without presents this year have been gathered from "people we talk to who have a neighbor or know someone in need."

At another restaurant, the Edgewater, bartender Scotty Randall joined the impromptu campaign. He collected $140 from customers in one night.

"I make them pay me $10 to read the letter," Randall said.

Centers To Stay Open

RALEIGH (AP) — The threat of three children's centers being closed by United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina (UCP) has been removed now that pledges of financial support have come in, the charity said.

The treatment centers in Charlotte, Greenville and Wilmington will continue and two other treatment centers—in Morganton and Kannapolis— will remain open but will be operated by local school systems, UCP said.

Eric Ritzen, UCP executive director, said pledges came from the state AFL-CIO, citizens band radio clubs and the Jaycees.

Jenkins Nominated For N.J. Board Chancellor

East Carolina University's Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins has been placed in nomination for the position of chancellor of the New Jersey Board of Higher Education.

The post for which Jenkins has been nominated is reportedly equivalent to the presidency of the University of North Carolina.

Jenkins is a native of New Jersey and an alumnus of Rutgers, the state university. He also has served as assistant commissioner of education for the state of New Jersey.

He has been at ECU since 1947 serving as dean, president and then chancellor following reorganization of this state's university system.

Jenkins has been scheduled for retirement as chancellor at ECU for 1978. In recent talks, however, he has emphasized a strong commitment to complete several programs now under development at ECU.

Perhaps most important of these is development of the four year medical school which has been authorized by the Board of Governors and funded by the State Legislature.

A staff for the school is now being assembled with plans to begin the first class next fall.

Over the years Jenkins has also expressed a commitment to North Carolina and Eastern North Carolina in particular. It has been generally assumed he would remain in Greenville and Atlantic Beach upon retirement.

While it was known that Jenkins has been contacted by the search committee for the New Jersey higher education position, the ECU chancellor would make no public comment on the prospects this weekend.

Young Supports UN Membership Bid

BOSTON (AP) — The incoming U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations says he will support Vietnam's bid to enter that world organization.

"I certainly intend to work for that," said Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., when asked if he would support Vietnam's membership.

Young was appointed by President-elect Jimmy Carter this week to replace UN Ambassador William Scranton when the new administration assumes office in January.

The Georgia Democrat was interviewed by Lovell Dyett of Boston television WNAC-TV in Atlanta on Friday.

"I am a supporter of a strong Vietnam," Young said. "I think it is in the United States' national interest to have a strong Vietnam.

"Vietnam as an independent entity in Southeast Asia with some strength is one of the things that curtails the expansion of the People's Republic of China," he added.

Young, a member of the Congressional Black Caucus, said it would be easier for the United States to deal with individualistic countries with their own brand of Communism rather than a "monolithic" Communist block.

"It is in our interest to have tension between the Soviet Union and China," Young said, "as it is in our interest to have a strong Vietnam capable of asserting its own independence against the influence of China."

Two Injured

Two persons were injured in a Saturday afternoon accident occurring near Greenville.

According to highway patrolman Fred Davis, a car driven by Raymond Elks of Rt. 3, Washington, was headed east on N.C. 33 when a car driven by Hazel Smith Stoneham of Winterville turned into the path of the Elks car causing a head-on collision.

Davis added that Mrs. Stoneham turned left onto U.S. 264 at the intersection of N.C. 33 west and U.S. 264 east.

Mrs. Stoneham and a passenger in the Elks car were reportedly injured. Mrs. Stoneham has been charged with failure to see an intended move could be made in safety.

Pitt County Ends Swine Flu Shots

Roger J. Barnaby, M.P.H., Pitt County Health Director, has indicated that the Pitt County Health Department was advised by the North Carolina Division of Health Services late Thursday afternoon to terminate swine flu immunizations for a temporary period of time. Reason for the termination is to allow further time for studies to be carried out concerning a possible increased incidence in Guillian-Barre's syndrome among vaccinees.

Barnaby said the Health Department has alerted all physicians and facilities receiving swine flu vaccine to temporarily hold on to their supplies but suspend giving any future shots until advised to do so by the Health Department.

No decision regarding a specific time to resume the immunization program will be made pending the results of the study mentioned above.

Joan Little Denied Parole

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Because of her blemished record and because there was no evidence she was ready for it, Joan Little has been denied parole by the North Carolina Parole Commission.

Miss Little, 22, was eligible for parole on Wednesday from her seven-to-10-year prison sentence but it was denied by the commission Thursday.

Miss Little, a black, drew international attention in the summer of 1975 when she was tried and acquitted in the killing of her 62-year-old white jailer in rural Beaufort County.

2nd Newspaper Wants Report

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A second North Carolina newspaper has asked the courts to order release of an autopsy report in the shooting death last month of a Virginia state trooper.

In a brief filed with the state Court of Appeals Friday, the Charlotte Observer joined the effort of the News and Observer of Raleigh to have the report released. The Observer argued that the case would have an important impact on the future of press freedom in the state.

The Observer said it "strongly supports" the request to the Appeals Court for an order to Superior Court Judge Donald L. Smith to lift his ban on release of the report.

A Surprise For Davidson

DAVIDSON, N. C. (AP) — Davidson College officials have found, to their surprise, that two-thirds of the $2 million left to the formerly all-male college during the last 10 years came from women.

Only since 1972 has the 140-year-old college been coeducational.

In a number of cases, donors were the wives who left funds accumulated by their Davidson alumni husbands. But more than half the amount left by women came from their own personal estates, according to a study by Dr. Julius Melton, Davidson's director of special resources.

Light Plane Hits Car

SYLVA, N.C. (AP) — Three passengers of a light airplane escaped injury Friday night when their craft made an emergency landing on U.S. 441 five miles west of Sylva.

Two Prominent Political Prisoners Exchanged

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Two of the world's most prominent political prisoners were exchanged here today.

Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky arrived for exile in the West just five minutes before Chilean Communist party leader Luis Corvalan flew into Zurich airport aboard a Lufthansa flight from Santiago, Chile. Airport police said Corvalan and his wife boarded the Aeroflot plane that brought Bukovsky here and took off for Moscow.

Bukovsky was smiling but pale after his release from four years in Soviet prison camps. "I am very happy, but I am tired," the 35-year-old human rights activist told reporters.

Corvalan was freed by Chile's right-wing regime in a prisoner exchange the United States helped to arrange.

The actual exchange took place on a runway about two-thirds of a mile from the terminal. Scores of Swiss police surrounded the two airliners, which were parked about 500 yards apart. Bukovsky, his wife and his sister and Corvalan and his wife got into separate black limousines after their arrival.

Chilean officials said the exchange took place in the presence of the Chilean, Soviet and U.S. ambassadors.

Reporters were kept in the terminal. They swarmed around the fur-hatted Bukovsky when he and his family suddenly turned up there.

Bukovsky smiled and repeated in broken English, "I am very happy, I am tired," then lapsed into Russian. He said he planned to stay in Switzerland a few days before flying on to London. "I am not feeling well," he explained.

Bukovsky was reunited with his mother, sister and nephew Friday night. They were flown to Zurich from a military airport near Moscow. His bedridden nephew, Mikhail Ivanov, was operated on Thursday for a blood disease and was to enter a Swiss hospital.

Actor David Markham said he had invited the Bukovskys to his farmhouse in Sussex, England. Markham said Bukovsky told him it was only after arriving at Zurich that he learned he was being exchanged for Corvalan.

A report on Corvalan's release by the official Soviet news agency Tass in Moscow did not mention Bukovsky.

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet government have provided Luis Corvalan the opportunity to come to the USSR and will give him full hospitality," Tass said.

Corvalan, 60, has been held by the Chilean military since shortly after a 1973 militay takeover. He and his wife, Lide, boarded their Lufthansa flight Friday night in Santiago amid tight security and official silence.

Corvalan holds the Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet peacetime decoration. He was sure to be a star guest at Moscow's official celebration Sunday of Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev's 70th birthday.

The Swiss government issued a communique saying the exchange took place "through the mediation of the United States.

"The governments involved approached the federal (Swiss) government with the request to have the exchange take place in Switzerland. The federal government granted this request in accordance with its policy of providing good offices in humanitarian matters."

It was believed to be the first exchange of political prisoners in the history of East-West relations.

Over $300 Million In Bribes

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. companies have voluntarily admitted making more than $300 million in bribes and questionable overseas payments since 1970, but it is difficult to trace the money trail, a public interest group reported Saturday.

The non-profit Council on Economic priorities said bribery and other improper payments have become "routine" business practices.

It said the lack of specific guidelines under the Securities and Exchange Commission's voluntary disclosure program on corporate bribery makes it "virtually impossible to determine exactly where, to whom and for what purpose these payments were made."

The council's document was based on reports that 175 major corporations filed through October with the Securities and Exchange Commission, but later reports indicate the volume of improper payments is probably much higher.

SEC Chairman Roderick Hills said recently there are now more than 250 corporations connected with improper payments. The Internal Revenue Service is investigating more than 300 companies for potential tax fraud resulting from illegal payments.

Most of the companies far making public reports of illegal campaign contributions, bribes to foreign government officials and other improper payments blame the business climate. They frequently cited adherence to "local customs."

"Disclosures to the SEC tell only part of the story," according to Dr. Gordon Adams, author of the CEP study, "The Invisible Hand."

"While several companies reported having no questionable payments and some have denied that their payments were of material importance, nobody knows how many companies have failed to conduct an internal investigation," he said.

The council report, billed as the first independent review of corporate disclosures to the SEC, found that 117 of the 175 companies making questionable payments rank in the prestigious Fortune 500 group.

Among the disclosing companies, 22 are in the drug and health care field, 22 in the oil and gas production industry, 14 in aerospace, airlines and air service and 14 in chemicals.

The nation's four major tire and rubber manufacturers—Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and General Tire and Rubber—also appear on the SEC list.

The study pointed out the SEC allows the reporting company to define "questionable payment" and to determine how it will present any disclosures.

"Some firms, such as Gulf, Northrup and Ashland Oil, have made fairly detailed disclosures under the constraints of an SEC injunction," the CEP said, but most disclosures give dollar amounts covering different time periods and do not name the recipients or countries involved. A few companies have filed only sketchy reports and many have not made any disclosures.

The report said most disclosing companies have introduced self-policing practices, which vary in effectiveness.

A handful, such as Castle and Cooke, Core Laboratores and Santa Fe International have gone on record with their intention to continue "grease" or "facilitating" payments to low-level government officials.

Eli Lilly, for example, has found it cannot make a profit overseas without spicing the pot with questionable payments, the report said.

But in most case, the CEP concluded, anti-bribery policies do not endanger the U.S. company's ability to compete abroad with "less ethical" foreign concerns.

"The problem seems to be not so much one of lower foreign corporate standards as of low standards for U.S. corporate behavior and of competition among U.S. companies," said Alice Terrer Marlin, CEP president.

Save N.C. Taxpayers $2.5 Million

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The North Carolina Division of Social Services announced Saturday that it had saved the state's taxpayers $2.5 million over the last two and a half years by removing ineligible recipients from welfare rolls and curbing overpayments.

The division said the total error rate in the Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) program has been reduced from 48.2 per cent in January, 1974 to 27.4 per cent this past June 30.

The rate of ineligibility in the program was trimmed from 7.7 per cent to 3.8 per cent during the period. The error rate in overpayments dropped from 21.3 per cent to 14.8 per cent and underpayments to recipients decreased from 19.2 per cent to only 8.8 per cent.

Statistics released this week by the the Department of Health Education and Welfare showed that the national ineligibility rate over the same period has been trimmed from 10.2 per cent to 5.5 per cent and overpayments from 22.8 per cent to 13.9 per cent for the two and a half year period.

Proposes Cigarette Law

WASHINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, has recommended that interstate bootlegging of cigarettes be made a federal offense.

The commission rejected a proposal Friday to combat the cigarette smuggling problem by raising federal taxes.

Supporters of the proposed tax increase argued that a uniform tax rate would halt the profitable shipment of cigarettes from low-tax to high-tax states, where they are sold on the black market. But Fountain suggested that stronger interstate cooperation could help solve the problem before such drastic measures as tax increses were adopted.

The tax evasion costs high-tax states about $390 million in revenue annually.

Assad Confers With Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Syrian President Hafez Assad conferred Saturday with President Anwar Sadat on reconvening in the Geneva Middle East conference in Assad's first visit to Egypt since the two leaders reconciled their differences last October.

They were also expected to discuss joint military coordination between Syria and Egypt.

It was Assad's first official trip to Cairo and his third meeting with Sadat since they patched up their differences two months ago at two Arab summit conferences in Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Gilmore Returned To Prison

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore, still weak and very thin from a second suicide attempt and prolonged fast, was returned to the Utah State Prison Saturday after two days of treatment for a drug overdose.

Wearing a University Medical Center hospital smock over his inmate clothes, Gilmore was wheeled to a waiting prison car while guards and University of Utah police kept newsmen and onlookers at a distance.

Hearst Castle Closed

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (UPI) — The Hearst Castle, a popular tourist attraction, was closed indefinitely Saturday after an anonymous telephone threat to shoot anyone seen with Patricia Hearst unless she is turned over to an undergound group.

Miss Hearst was staying with members of her family at one of the homes on a working ranch about a mile from the baronial estate begun by publisher William Randolph Hearst in 1919.

The castle in the Santa Lucia Mountains, a mixture of ancient Rome, Spanish and baroque styles, was turned over to the state when Hearst, Patricia's grandfather, died. It is operated as a state historical monument.

Crippled Tanker Leaking Oil

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — A black stream of smelly oil seeped slowly Saturday from the crippled Liberian tanker Argo Merchant, aground on treacherous Nantucket shoals and battered by rough seas and high winds.

Not Offered Job

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter has met twice with Dr. Juanita M. Kreps, a vice president of Duke University, but she says she hasn't been offered a job and that is is premature to speculate about an appointment.

Dr. Kreps, who is reportedly being considered for Secretary of Commerce, met with Carter in Plains, Ga., for the second time on Friday.

No statement was issued by the Carter staff about her visit.

Dr. Kreps, who is also a professor of economics and author of several books and articles on economics and labor, said she and Carter discussed economics and "lots of people and lot of appointments."

A specialist in labor economics who has been on the Duke faculty since 1955, Dr. Kreps was invited to Plains earlier this month with a group of economists. After that visit, there were reports that she was under consideration for Secretary of Labor or some other top labor department post.

She has served on the board of directors of major national corporations such as Eastman Kodak, J.C. Penney, Western Electric and the New York Stock Exchange. She also has been a member of the council on aging and the North Carolina Manpower Council.

Jenkins To Get Award

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (UPI) — Retiring East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins will be given the 1977 North Carolina Public Service Award, award society officials said Saturday.

Jenkins, who will retire next year after 16 years as chancellor, will be honored in February for his contributions to the "welfare of the citizenry."

Others who have received the award are retired Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., former Gov. Robert Scott and the late Sen. B. Everett Jordan.

College Status Needs Approval

Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute have asked the county commissioners to endorse community college status for the school.

Fortunately the situation is a little different now from what it was several years ago when community college status was defeated in a referendum. Now the board of trustees is united in requesting the new status.

Trustee Clifton Everette told the commissioners, "A wise man changes his mind. A fool never does. In 1970 I opposed it. I changed my mind."

Also since the referendum the Institute has improved its quality of instruction and is now filling most of the functions of a community college.

By assuming community college status the school could realize another $250,000 in state funds annually with a county additional investment of $15,000.

With endorsement by the county commissioners a bill could be introduced in the 1977 Legislature which would make PTI a community college in name as well as in function.

We think this should be done. The biggest concern in 1970 was that the technical programs might suffer with community college status. But PTI has already moved into the college level courses without any harm to the technical side of its programs.

Hopefully the county commissioners will go on and act favorably on this request and the needed legislation can be prepared for early introduction when the General Assembly begins its work next month.

Sluggish Economy Faces Hunt, Carter

It is regrettable that employment is not improving in North Carolina as well as had been anticipated.

Employment Security Commission Manager James Hannon said employment improvement for the last quarter of the year had not met expectations.

That is an indication that the economy is "sluggish".

Fortunately for our area, Pitt County showed an unemployment decrease, from 5.7 percent to 4.8 percent last month. The state as a whole, however, showed little improvement.

It is one of the problems that will be facing the new administrations both in Raleigh and in Washington in January.

Action Could Be Slow

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. — It took seven of Jimmy Carter's aides three to four weeks to compile all of Carter's campaign promises in a 110-page book.

"The feeling now is that we won't be able to do all of these things immediately," said Gregory S. Schneiders, one of the President-elect's close aides, about the likelihood and timing of carrying out the promises.

Schneiders said Carter was not surprised about anything in the book. "He's got a pretty good memory and he was pretty cautious. All the promises he made are of a fairly general nature."

No one on the staff has yet put a price tag on the promises, compiled from speeches, news conferences, letters and position papers that make up the record of Carter's two-year presidential campaign.

The book, known jokingly around the Carter camp as "Promises, Promises," after the Broadway musical, was prepared under the direction of David Rubenstein, a staff aide.

He placed the promises into several categories, including items Carter said he would review and programs or policies he said he would actually put into effect.

Carter promised to pardon Vietnam War resisters. That promise is an example of a campaign pledge that will be carried out quickly, Carter aides say.

But there were many other less specific plans that Carter had only promised to study.

Behind the compilation was the anticipation that various interest groups would soon be seeking action on the promises made to them during tha campaign and that it was necessary to know what the promises were and to assign them a priority as a first step toward carrying them out.

"If you actually boiled down the things he actually said he will due, which will result in action, it would be one-eighth that," Rubenstein

Moore Advises Hunt

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Former Gov. Dan K. Moore, now a Supreme Court justice, passes on to Gov. -elect Jim Hunt some sage advice which he got from retiring Treasurer Edwin Gill:

When you're out across the state making speeches or talking with people about activities, always call for Divine guidance and praise the Legislature—you're gonna need both, Moore said.

Scott, Too

Former Gov. Robert Scott has shared with retiring Gov. Jim Holshouser his sentiments about leaving office:

When the ceremonies are over, the parade is rounding the corner, and you see all the people—security, drivers, and so on—crowding around Number One with the new governor, you'll have a strange feeling.

Then when they drive off, and you realize you've got to get home the best way can, you'll know it's all over, Scott says.

Jim and Jim

The two Jims (outgoing and incoming governors Holshouser and Hunt) have been talking regularly during this transition period.

Gov. Holshouser says he will extend on criticism of the incoming administration—for awhile. But given the political split (outgoing Republican, incoming Democrat), that moratorium isn't likely to last more than six months.

State of Franklin

The legislator with the longest drive to sessions in Raleigh is State Rep. Jeff H. Enloe of Franklin. He represents Cherokee, Clay, Graham, and Macon counties and says he sometimes finds himself wondering whether it wouldn't be easier to transfer to Tennessee or Georgia.

Most people don't realize it, but when you get to his hometown of Franklin, you still have about 100 miles of mountains west of you toward Tennessee.

The State of Franklin is a state of mind, these days, but during western boundary hassles there was a serious move to establish such a state embracing mountains of Tennessee and western North Carolina.

Press Corps

Those who closely follow state governmental activities also try to keep up with who is in Raleigh representing the various news outlets from across the state.

The pending change in administrations will be accompanied by almost as much change among members of the Capitol Press Corps.

The state bureau of Associated Press has moved from Charlotte to Raleigh with an influx of reporters and the moving of former Raleigh Bureau chief Bob Cullen to a Washington assignment. The Charlotte Observer is losing Paul Bernish, and Susan Jetton will cover the State House. Ned Cline is moving his base of operations from Greensboro to Raleigh and Rick Gray will move to Greensboro. Ferrell Guillory of the Raleigh News and Observer is going to Washington to reactivate that paper's bureau there, and Martin Donsky will assume principal legislative and governor's office duties. WBTV in Charlotte has set up a fulltime office staffed by Ken Eudy, and WRAL-TV in Raleigh has shifted Fred Taylor back to the government beat.

Sunday Morning Notes

Will patrons now be able to quaff their favorite brew at Sheppard Memorial Library?

No way.

Librarian Elizabeth Copeland said, "For the time being we will not be serving beer to library patrons." This despite the fact that an on-premise permit for serving beer was recently received in the mails.

"I was out of town attending state meetings when it all started," Ms. Copeland said, "so I missed out on the City Council meeting which included among other items a request for a beer permit for the library."

Upon her return, however, she and the library staff found the piece of mail from City Hall. Inside was a letter signed by City Manager Jim Caldwell. It said that "your application for an on-premise beer permit has been granted."

"Naturally," Ms. Copeland continued, "I immediately got in touch with Jim Caldwell. He told me he thought it was a grand idea, but that he'd always thought I'd never let beer be served at the library. He then wanted to know when we were to start serving beer with books."

It turned out, of course, that the permit had been issued to a club called "The Library", which is opening on Contanche Street. The postman, understandably, had delivered the letter to the city library (Sheppard Memorial) one block over on Evans Street.

"Anyway," Ms Copeland said, "we've had some good laughs and lots of people have been asking when we'll start serving. But for now, it's still a policy of no beer at the library."

A wise policy, no doubt, but think what a fantastic source of revenue it would be.

Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse of Farmville, spent three days in the hospital and will have his right arm in a cast for "several weeks," because of an accident November 28.

The jurist, along with several other people, was visiting a lady, who was confined to her home, to serve Holy Communion.

"It was raining," Rouse explained. When the service was over, the judge slipped on a wheel chair ramp as he left, fell and broke his arm.

Rouse indicated that area residents should feel fortunate to have good doctors, nurses and a hospital such as Pitt Memorial available to them.

But, he lamented, "it's expensive."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Brown: Hawk To Dove

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Dr. Harold Brown, frontrunner for Secretary of Defense who is criticized for softness on U.S.-Soviet relations' successfully led the charge inside the Johnson administration in 1967 to continue bombing North Vietnam.

Brown's position as Secretary of the Air Force might have been decisive in President Johnson's rejection of drastically curtailed bombing. What's more, just before bombing actually stopped in 1968, Brown escalated his position with a futile bid for unlimited bombing.

Yet, during LBJ's protracted lameduck period following the bombing halt, Brown pioneered in advocating strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) in a form that hard-liners believe put the U.S. at a disadvantage. During the next eight years as president of Cal Tech, he emerged as an ardent arms controller and an unyielding proponent of strategic theories that would limit increased U.S. spending on strategic weapons.

This seeming transformation from hawk to dove fits a pattern among the brainy, self-confident young men of Kennedy-Johnson days — David Halberstam's "best and the brightest." Hawks turned dovish in the seminal year of 1968, with some today prepared for a re-entry with President-elect Carter. The self-assured, unemotional Dr. Brown, a nuclear physicist by profession, seems as confident now that his theories will bring world peace as he was a decade ago that U.S. bombers would win the Vietnam war.

When Brown at 38 became Air Secretary in 1965, the Air Force brass was suspicious. As director of defense research, he had ruffled feathers by advocating the disastrous TFX fighter-bomber and opposing the proposed XB-70 bomber. His support of surgically precise bombing of North Vietnam conflicted with the bomber generals, who felt only unrestricted air assault would work.

With the war going badly in the spring of 1967, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara privately proposed drastically curtailed bombing. The Joint Chiefs of Staff vigorously objected, advocating just the opposite: expanded bombing into the Hanoi-Haiphong area. Secretary Brown split the difference, urging that the bombing continue more or less as before to interdict supply routes from the north.

But that just plain didn't work. The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was so convinced that bombing the north accomplished nothing that CIA director Richard Helms refused to back any bombing option. The Joint Chiefs insisted that the existing restricted bombing was useless. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon agreed.

Nevertheless, Brown on June 9, 1967, sent McNamara a memo arguing that bombing was cutting down supplies from the north. The Joint Chiefs' call for expanded bombing was ignored by all the civilians; that left it to Brown alone to fight drastically curtailed bombing urged by McNamara and Deputy Defense Secretary (and future Secretary of State) Cyrus Vance.

According to the Pentagon Papers, "it seems very likely that Brown's thinking swayed his (McNamara's) oral recommendations to the President." True or not, Johnson in July accepted Brown's option: bombing without change.

When the unsuccessful bombing was again reviewed in March 1968, Brown opposed a total halt advocated by Clark Clifford, the new Secretary of Defense. Insisting on victory through airpower, he escalated his previous position by urging virtually unlimited bombing (including the port of Haiphong) "to erode the will of the population." But U.S. political conditions had changed. Brown's options "were never considered as major proposals within the inner circle of presidential advisers," say the Pentagon Papers.

Once the bombing halted and Johnson renounced the presidency, Brown underwent what one former associate calls a "soul change." He was instrumental in the Joint Chiefs' acceptance of a position on the new question of SALT which hard-liners feel got this country off on the wrong foot.

Suspicions that Brown was merely game-playing were allayed over the next eight years as he became a proponent of arms control fully as unyielding as he had been over the bombing issue. On the arms control agency's general advisory committee,

To the editor:

I would like to express my appreciation for your printing "Winter Travels" in Sunday's edition. I think the photographs are beautiful and reflect so well some of the typical scenes which I see on my travels through Eastern North Carolina, but never stop to photograph!

Could the author of "Winter Travels," Jerry Raynor, be persuaded to put some of his remarkable photographs in book form? I could think of a number of people on my Christmas list who would appreciate a book with collections of photographs of scenes typical of Eastern North Carolina.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Dec. 19, the 354th day of 1976. There are 12 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the Indochina War broke out as troops under Ho Chi Minh launched widespread attacks against the French.

On this date:

In 1675, British colonists defeated Narragansett Indians in Rhode Island in the last battle of King Philip's War.

In 1732, Benjamin Franklin began to publish his "Poor Richard's Almanac" in Philadelphia.

In 1842, the United States recognized the independence of Hawaii.

In 1939, in World War II, the crews of the German liner Columbus scuttled the ship in mid-Atlantic to avoid capture by the British.

In 1950, General Dwight Eisenhower was named commander of military forces under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In 1968, Socialist Norman Thomas, who had run for President six times, died at the age of 84.

Ten years ago: The United States asked UN SecretaryGeneral U Thant to do whatever he could to bring about talks leading to a cease-fire in Vietnam and pledged full cooperation.

40 Years Ago Today

December 19, 1936

Quick congressional approval was sought today for President Roosevelt's request for an immediate $500 million relief appropriations.

Current funds are expected to last only another month, making action necessary early in January if the Works Relief Program is to proceed without interruption.

Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday he would ask for the appropriation designed to meet WPA costs until June 30 during the first week of Congress. It convenes January 5.

A. L. Fletcher, state labor commissioner, said today North Carolina should have a 43-hour work law for all manufacturing establishments and as a start toward this he would ask the 1937 legislature to enact a 43-hour work law.

He said he would also ask ratification of the federal child labor amendment and enactment of a model child labor law in his program "for labor legislation in line with the platform, state and national, of the Democratic party and with the recommendation of President Roosevelt.

TRUE LOVE

There are three Greek words for love. One is "philia," meaning friendship and good will. Another is "eros," meaning romantic or sexual love. The third is "Agape."

The latter is a strictly Biblical word for which there is no single equivalent in English. As usual by Paul in the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians it is translated as both "charity" and "love". But even these translations are inadequate to convey the true meaning of agape. It is an emotion and a moral purpose people have because they are children of God, because they are made in God's image and after his likeness. It signifies also the love God has for mankind, and the love He expects men to show toward their fellows.

The life of agape is the noblest life of which mankind is capable. Whenever everything else in the world has been shown to be hollow and wanting, sacrificial service and endurance remains. "Agape never faileth."

Other Intriguing Questions

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While everyone wonders who Jimmy Carter will choose next for a high administration position, there are some other intriguing questions to which we might not soon have any clearcut answers.

1. How does Arthur Burns do it? The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, which controls monetary policy, has already served under Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford.

Throughout his years in office he has been under criticism that sometimes he declined to cooperate with Johnson in the President's guns and butter policy of 1968.

At various times he has been accused of being overly conservative, and sometimes it has been said that he accommodated monetary policy to the political aspirations of the incumbent, but nobody has ever pinned this down.

More recently he has been criticized by the President-telect, who feared that the Fed's independence might be too great, and there was much speculation that he would be under pressure to resign.

Through it all, Burns has as if he will continue to serve willingly, happily, and on invitation of Carter.

2. Will George Meany support Carter uncritically? The President-elect now has the strong support of the AFL—CIO, which recently quoted Carter as saying "I'll do everything I can to reduce unemployment."

Meany, president of the AFLCIO, was once a mild supporter of President Nixon, but when he turned he did so with a torrent of adverse criticism. And he maintained that Ford's administration was just as bad.

An article in the AFL-CIO News describes the legacy left to Carter an unemployment equivalent of the combined populations of Alabama, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming.

But, the first year goal of Carter is for a reduction in the 8.1 per cent unemployment rate by 1.5 per centage points, and even that, the President-elect has observed, will be difficult to obtain.

Based on the present labor force of just under 96 million, a 1.5 per cent reduction would eliminate from the above list only the equivalent of Rhode Island and Hawaii, leaving close to 6 million still without

Many Favor Controls

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — President-elect Jimmy Carter's decision not to ask Congress for the authority to impose a wage-price freeze comes at a time when public opinion is closely divided on the question of controls.

The latest nationwide survey shows 44 per cent saying they would favor having the government bring back wage-price controls, 41 per cent opposed with another 15 per cent not expressing an opinion.

Support for a freeze is slightly lower today than it was in the last Gallup survey on the subject, in August 1974, at a time when the nation was suffering double-digit inflation. That survey showed 50 per cent in favor of a return to controls, 39 per cent opposed and 11 per cent undecided.

Arguments Pro

Those surveyed who favor a return to controls argue primarily that such legislation would' (1) check inflation and the wage-price spiral, and (2) bring some stability to the economic situation in this country.

Said a retired teacher from Texas: "Every time strikers are granted a raise, everything you buy increases — I wonder when it will all end."

A 33-year-old salesman from Olean, N.Y., had this to say: "We've got to have controls so we can at least slow down the rapid pace we have put ourselves in — so we can plan the future with a more solid foundation."

Others maintain that controls have worked in the past, with some singling out President Richard Nixon's. Phase One economic program and others pointing to the World War II and Korean War periods.

Arguments Con

Those opposed to a wage- price freeze make these points: (1) controls hinder free enterprise and take away incentive; (2) they would be unfairly applied, and (3) controls would create shortages of goods.

"It would be treating the symptoms, not the disease," said a 29-year-old male computer analyst from Alexandria, Va. "The entire system is very complex and wage- price controls would be overly restrictive and impossible to put into effect fairly and effectively."

A young electrical engineer with the Air Force in Dayton, Ohio, had this to say: "The bureaucracy and unfairness which go along with controls are worse than high prices." Following is the question asked and the findings:

"Would you favor or oppose having the government bring back wage and price controls?"

The survey findings show members of union families and non-union people holding closely similar views. Democrats are somewhat more likely than are Republicans to favor the re- imposition of controls.

Persons over 50 years of age tend to be slightly more in favor of a freeze than do younger adults. One reason for the 46-37 vote in favor of controls among older adults may be that many in this group are on Social Security or a fixed income and are unable to earn enough to keep up with rising prices. A 67- year-old cabinetmaker from Towson, Md., commented: "It's rough going for me — since retirement I find my financial burden growing each month."

Here are the results for the nation and by key groups:

	Favor	Oppose	No Opinion
NATIONWIDE	44%	41%	15%
Labor union families	44	43	13
Non-union families	44	41	15
Republicans	42	44	14
Democrats	48	37	15
Independents	40	47	13
18-29 years	44	39	17
30-49	42	48	10
50 and over	46	37	17

History Of Attitudes

Nearly four decades of public opinion measurements have found the public in favor of wage-price controls during periods of war and severe inflation. A decade ago, in 1966, opinion was fairly evenly divided between those who favored and those who opposed wage-price curbs, but as inflationary pressures increased during the late '60s, opinion began to shift toward support for a wage-price freeze.

In a survey conducted only a few weeks prior to Nixon's introduction of his Phase One economic program in August 1971, public support for controls had grown to the highest point since the Korean War, with 50 per cent in favor and 39 per cent opposed.

Surveys conducted at regular intervals during the first three phases of Nixon's economic program showed the public to be consistently on the side that controls should be made stricter rather than less strict. The Nixon administration removed all controls on April 30, 1974.

The latest results reported today are based on in-person, in-home interviews with a total of 1,507 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Dec. 3-6.

said. "It would be bery, very thin."

He said staff members are just beginning to add up the cost of the promises, but a total figure is "a long way off." The costs will be incorporated into the various programs the Carter administration put into effect. Staff members say they may never have a total figure for the promises alone.

Rubenstein said Carter's statements are being parceled out to aides to be used as guides in drawing up specific policy proposals.

They Don't Like Tutus On Elephants

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The elephants, you see, were wearing tutus. This is hard to explain. A tutu is a kind of stiff skirt worn by ballet dancers, and the elephants, if you get the idea, were doing a ballet. This was in a textbook published by the Silver Burdette Company. The tutus made it evident that these particular elephants were female elephants, and, well, there is no way to get out of this paragraph.

The Silver Burdette people were trying to sell a textbook in California. To deduce from a recent account in the Washington Post, this was a children's arithmetic textbook. You will have to figure out for yourself how elephants in tutus, or mother-naked elephants for that matter, got in a children's arithmetic textbook, but there they were. A whole herd de ballet.

Members of the California selection committee gazed upon the tutus and found them offensive. John J. Williamson, president of Silver Burdette, explained the difficulty in a speech last May. Certain women's organizations had reviewed the textbooks up for adoption. Their spokespersons had protested the tutus. "It was argued to the adopting committee," said Williamson, "that the tutus would impair the development of the proper self-image among female pupils."

The tutus were removed.

What is one to make of this nonsense? Noel Epstein, the Post staff writer, rounded up a dozen such examples of the unisex trend in textbook publishing. The general idea, it appears, is for textbook authors and illustrators to depict American society not as it is, but as the women's libbers would like it to be. This is the same goal laid down 18 months ago by the editors of Macmillan in defining "today's egalitarian standards."

The Macmillan folks, if you recall, established guidelines for their artists. Where once an artist might have depicted "mother bringing sandwiches to dad as he fixes the roof," in the brave new world of unisex we are to have "mother fixing the roof." If a sports illustration were appropriate, an artist should reject the stereotyped picture of "boys playing ball, girls watching." A more suitable illustration would show "boys watching a girls' team play."

This solemn lunacy continues. A few years back, Holt, Rinehart & Winston published a textbook called "Inquiring About Technology." An illustration depicted father and son coming into the family kitchen from the garden. Father, in workshirt, was lugging a heavy bushel basket of tomatoes. Mother, in pretty dress and apron, was at the kitchen sink. Daughter was at the kitchen table, putting labels on jars of homemade pickles.

All this has changed. In the recently revised edition, mother is lugging the heavy basket of tomatoes. She is wearing a work shirt, hanging out over her jeans. Daughter also is carrying produce. Father, in apron, is at the sink. Son is at the table working on some vegetables. Same family, same farm, same kitchen, same baloney.

Who is kidding whom? Of course women are part of the labor force; of course women are active in the professions, in white-collar jobs, in blue-collar jobs, and everywhere else. No rational person could object to textbook illustrations that fairly and reasonably depict these changes in American life.

But the zealots of unisex have so cowed the selection committees, and the pusillanimous editors of the publishing houses have so abdicated their function, that typical human relationships have been turned on their head. The day may come in the United States, as it came long ago in the Soviet Union, when the roles of men and women in civilian life are in fact largely identical. But that day is not yet, and for all the whooping and hollering for women's rights, there is no convincing indication that the American people want it that way.

It is the tutu complaint that boggles the mind. In a long life of observing classical ballet, I must have met fifty female elephants. Every one of them wore a tutu. I cannot recall an elephant ballerina who wore anything else. The choreographers would not have it otherwise. To strip them of their tutu may improve the self-image of California's girl children, but it won't do a thing for Swan Lake.

Getting In Schoolhouse Was Booker's Paradise

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — He was not sure of his birthdate (historians have since established it as 1856). He never knew his father; he was simply Booker for many years until he chose his own last name. Booker T. Washington's mother was a plantation slave with little time to spend with her children. They lived in a small log cabin with a dirt floor and no windows, only openings in the walls that let in light and cold.

While a slave child, Booker helped clean yards, carried water to men in the fields, carried corn to the mill to be ground. Ocassionally he was obliged to go as far as the schoolhouse door with one of his young mistresses to carry her books. He remarked later, "I had the feeling that to get into a schoolhouse and study would be about the same as getting into Paradise."

When slaves were freed in 1865, he and his family moved to Malden, West Virginia, where he began to attend school part time, when he wasn't working in the salt mine. Soon he heard of a service position in the house of General Lewis Ruffner, owner of the mine. Mrs. Ruffner was severe and taught the young boy to be a perfectionist. In later years he said, "To this day I never see bits of paper scattered around that I don't want to pick them up—I never see a filthy yard that I do not want to clean it..."

He heard two miners discussing "a great new school" for blacks—Hampton Institute—and after a year and a half with the Ruffners, he decided to try to attend. It was 500 miles away; Booker had no idea how much it would cost to get there. He went part of the way by train, part by stage coach, later descended to walking and asking for free rides. Arriving in Hampton with 50 cents to cover his educational expenses, he didn't exactly make a favorable impression after so long without proper food or change of clothing. Nevertheless, the head teacher accepted him as a student when he learned of his skill with a broom. He hired him as a janitor to help pay school expenses.

School life was a revelation in many ways. "The matter of having meals at regular hours, eating on tablecloths, using a napkin, the uses of the bathtub and toothbrush, as well as sheets on the bed, were all new to me," he said. He excelled, especially in the debating society, and graduated in 1875 well liked and respected by the principal, General Armstrong.

At 20, Washington began teaching at Malden, W. Va., his former home. He was a dedicated teacher with a concern for the whole community. Soon, he opened a night school for older youth and adults who were craving education, wrote letters for illiterate people started a reading room for the black community and was involved in debating societies modeled after the one at Hampton.

When he was 22, he decided to pursue an interest in politics and law in Washington, D.C. After a year General Armstrong asked him to return to teach night classes at Hampton. And then, more good news: a black school in Tuskegee, Alabama, asked Armstrong to suggest a principal for their new school. A strong recommendation got Washington the job.

Classes began in a delapidated shanty, but Washington's determination prevailed, and Tuskegee become a well-known industrial school where blacks learned trades. The school has continued to grow; today it is a world renowned education center. When a major speech on racial justice in Atlanta brought the educator cheers from blacks and whites, and national prominence, Washington began receiving invitations from Presidents invitations from Presidents Cleveland and McKinley, and later was an adviser to Roosevelt and Taft. Despite an honorary degree from Harvard, visits with Queen Victoria, Mark Twain, Susan B. Anthony and others, and the writing of several books, his greatest interest was Tuskegee. In fact, he seemed to redouble his efforts in its behalf. In the early 1900s, a student remembered seeing Washington "come down to the students' dining room and go from table to table inquiring into their comfort. 'Are you getting enough to eat? If not, come to the office and report it."

For Washington, success did not alleviate the need for attention to details. "I have always looked upon fame as something to be used in accomplishing good," he said.

Brown has advocated surrender of the U.S. cruise missile if necessary to achieve a SALT II agreement.

He is, moreover, described by one hard-liner as "absolutely theological" in adhering to the McNamara doctrine of "mutual assured destruction" — that is, mutual ability of the two nuclear superpowers to destroy each other's population centers enforces a strategic standoff. That doctrine, abandoned by the Defense Department under James Schlesinger, logically leads to reduced need for more and better strategic weapons systems.

But if the Soviets consider the doctrine erroneous (as many experts now believe they do) while the U.S. accepts it, the danger is obvious. So, the way Harold Brown, unquestionably one of the brightest, adhered to a faulty doctrine for winning in Vietnam because it seemed rational to him raises no little concern on the eve of his possible assumption of far more portentous burdens.

Just Carried Away By That Santa Claus Role

This Christmas season has been a particularly exciting one for me because it's my first chance to play Santa Claus. And I have assumed that role with a vengeance. I can't control myself. I go into a store for ribbon, and by the time I come out, I've cornered the market on Fisher-Price. Phillip was very patient with me for awhile, but he finally put his foot down.

"I'll help you finish with the Christmas shopping today," he said last Saturday. "But you've got to promise not to buy anything for Meg."

"All right," I said. I was willing to promise anything in order to have someone carry my packages for a change instead of having to balance them between my knees. And I didn't have any trouble keeping my promise - until we got to the first store.

"Oh, Phillip, look!" I said, pointing to Digger the Dog. "Wouldn't Meg love him?"

He grabbed me by the ear and pulled me past the checkout counter.

"But it's educational. You don't want your child to grow up intellectually deprived, do you?"

"Knock it off," he said.

"Oh, Phillip, look!" I said in the second store. "What a sweet little doll. I think she just winked at me."

"My mother is getting her a doll."

"But I wanted to give her a doll," I said. "Santa Claus is supposed to give little girls dolls."

"Next year Santa Claus will give Meg a doll. This year she'd probably rather have a dump truck."

"Speaking of which . . ." I said, pointing toward a display of Tonka Toys. "Would you cut it out . ." he snapped. "She has so many toys now that she doesn't know what to do with them. The only time she plays with them is when she throws them all out of the toybox so that SHE can sit in it.".

"You're no help at all," I grumbled. "It's a good thing you aren't an elf."

"And it's too bad I'm not a millionaire. Now, I've got to go buy your present, so you wait for me here. And don't you dare go near that toy counter, you hear?"

I waited till he got out the door and raced for the toy counter. I grabbed for a Shape-Sorter; then I stopped. "Phillip's right," I said. "I've got to control myself, or I'll be sorry in January."

So I waited for him with empty arms. About 20 minutes later he came back with a bag marked, "Happily Ever After."

"You're not going to tell me you got my present in a toy store," I said. "What's in that bag?"

"A mumblemumbmu," he said.

"I didn't hear you. What did you say?"

"A mumblemumbmu."

"WHAT is in the bag?" I demanded.

He grinned sheepishly. "A wooden train," he said. "And don't look so angry. It's educational."

Black, Middle-Class Families Abandoning Nation's Inner Cities

JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Black middle-class families — fleeing crime and seeking better schools for their children — are moving out of the nation's large cities in growing numbers.

They are following millions of whites who have moved to the suburbs over the past three decades.

"Blacks have the same aspirations as most whites," says Craig Avery of the Los Angeles planning department. "They're looking for better value for their dollar; they want upward mobility." Says a New Orleans planner: "As soon as they can afford to leave, they're gone."

The number of black families leaving the cities is becoming a growing concern for city officials, uspet over further erosion of both the tax base and talent from the cities. Many central cities, especially in the Northeast and Midwest, already have lost much of their white middle-class tax base and can ill afford to see well-to-do blacks move to the suburbs.

An Associated Press check of major cities found "black flight" in metropolitan regions ranging from Newark to Los Angeles, including Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Louis and Washington, D.C.

A U.S. Census Bureau official says the trend is national, although some areas are exceptions. Boston officials, for example, said blacks are not moving into outlying areas, with one civil rights leader explaining, "There is more segregation now than before between the city and its suburbs."

Migration of whites from the cities is now well documented. In the 1970 to 1975 period, suburban areas gained 12.7 million persons while losing 7.3 million. Central cities lost 13 million and gained only 6 million. As for black migration, the census bureau says there's no question it's occuring, but the exact numbers leaving and other data won't be known until the 1980 census.

"Any estimate of changing city populations would show, I'm sure, that more large cities have started to show an overall migration of blacks during the past five years," says Larry Long, a Census Bureau population specialist. But he concedes, "Between census years, one has to rely on hunches and interviews."

Black flight is most visible in two cities with large black middle-class populations, Washington, D.C., and Detroit — communities where street violence is common in black neighborhoods and public education is considered far from adequate.

"If it's not one thing, then it's another — crime, schools, fear. I'm leaving," said a Washington attorney who is buying a home in Montgomery County, Md. "Parts of D.C. are safe," he said, "but they're mostly all-white anyway, so why stay?"

Some middle-class blacks who have moved to the suburbs say the move into predominantly white areas hasn't been easy.

One prominent black who moved back into Detroit from a suburban town recalls, "No matter what, I knew out there I was just another nigger.

"You can run," he says, "But you can't hide."

City officials view the flight of the black middle-class as another symptom of urban financial problems. While the nation's cities want to improve services to become competitive with suburbs, they can't because they don't have the money.

Bernie Moore, spokesman for Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson, says:

"When people feel they can get better services — schools, health, police, housing, public works — and a better lifestyle, they move. Let's face it, when a guy starts making $25,000 a year, he's gone."

Gibson is seeking to upgrade city services "so people would move only for a choice of location, not for a lack of services."

A report by two Brookings Institution researchers, comparing 56 cities with their suburbs, found only 10 cities that compared favorably in such key areas as employment, housing and income.

The movement of blacks from the central city to the suburbs isn't new, but it has accelerated with the growth of the black middle-class and the desegregation of once all white towns. In some of the older suburbs surrounding St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles and Atlanta, blacks are becoming the majority.

In the Chicago area, black flight began years ago and now is bringing a second generation of blacks to several older suburbs.

Many blacks are reluctant to leave the city because they are comfortable in their neighborhoods, and because they believe a committment to the city is a necessary social or political statement.

Francis Kornegay, director of the Urban League in Detroit, says successful blacks should set an example for inner-city youths, but he doesn't advise against black flight.

"It's a human urge as a person climbs the economic ladder to spend and get his best for his family. And where is the best now? In the suburbs."

South Korean Kid Remembers

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — Twenty-three years ago, "Mike" was a South Korean orphan in baggy fatigues, carrying a .45-caliber pistol in one hand and a basketball under his arm. It was the basketball which led Suh Won Suk — now one of South Korea's most successful businessmen — to a warm reunion with his best war buddy, Louis Isbill.

Suh was separated from his family in November 1950 at age 10 as the Chinese Communists poured across the border and a frantic sea of refugees fled south.

"He was starving when we found him," sayd Isbill. "We gave him an old set of fatigues and a .45 so he could protect himself

"He wasn't legal and our commander disapproved of him, but the kid didn't have anywhere else to go."

So Fox Company of the 2nd Division, 23rd Regiment, adopted the boy and he became Isbill's close friend.

"He took care of me," Isbill says. "He'd look at my M-2 carbine and fuss at me because it was so dirty. then he'd grab it, break it down and clean it for me.

"Because I was dragging guys around a lot, Mike would tape the pins on my hand grenades so they didn't off accidently," the former medic said.

All Mike wanted for Christmas in 1953 was a basketball. So Isbill wrote his brother in Massilion, Ohio, and asked him to send one.

The brother sent the basketball, and the Massillon Evening Independent carried a story about it on the front page.

The Isbill was shot in the shoulder during an enemy attack and evacuated. The Pentagon sent Mrs. Isbill a brief telegram saying her husband had been wounded, but did not say how seriously.

"My family and I were worried to death," she recalls. "Then I received a letter from Mike. He said he had been with Lou and that he was going to be all right. I was so happy and relieved."

Now managing director of of Dai Song Industry Co. Ltd. in Seoul, Suh came to America last week as part of Korea's small industry trade mission.

After completing his official duties, he flew to Akron, caught a cab and asked to be taken to Massillon. But he couldn't find Isbill in the telephone book.

So he went to the newspaper where he found the name of Isbill's sister, called her and found his old friend had moved to Tennessee.

"As soon as I found out, I called Cleveland and told Mrs. Isbill I was on the way," Suh says. "It was the first time she had heard from me since 1953 when I wrote to her and told her husband was going to be all right."

Mrs. Isbill was stunned, but elated.

"What a wonderful reunion. You should have seen them," she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the time being, the clothing salesman who gets a price cut on purchases from his employer's store, and the airline worker who flies at less than full fare may not have to worry about paying income tax on the value of those discounts.

The Treasury Department had been considering a change in rules that would tax these and similar fringe benefits, but sources said Friday the proposal has been vetoed by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

The total value nationwide of such untaxed fringes has been estimated at $100 million.

What doomed the plan may have been heavy protests from beneficiaries of the untaxed fringes and concern that the change might create a monstrous record-keeping burden for the affected taxpayers, their employers and the Internal Revenue Service.

Still, it could be revived, either by Treasury or IRS since nothing in tax law specifically exempts many fringe benefits from taxation. They are permitted by an administrative ruling that could be revoked at any time.

There was no explanation why Simon killed about a dozen proposed revenue rulings that would have required many individuals who receive such fringe benefits to pay taxes on them. Simon also dropped plans for a general statement of principles calling for exemption from taxation of only those benfits that are available to all employes and do not cost their employer anything.

The fringes include such diverse things as discounts that sales clerks receive on purchases in their own stores, free use of demonstrator automobiles by car salesmen, and cut-rate and free fares for airline workers and travel agents.

Not affected by the decision is a previous proposal by the IRS to tax free or reduced tuition given to the children and spouses of university professors. That proposed change comes up for a public hearing Jan. 7.

Rep. James G. Martin, R-N.C., a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, had said earlier this week that the sweeping fringe benefits proposal would cause serious burdens on taxpayers and the IRS.

One Dollar, 20,640 Lbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Phyllis Konishi picked up a real bargain of a Christmas gift for her 5-year-old son Weston and his playmates on Roosevelt Island off Manhattan's east side.

She bought a real fire engine for $1 Friday from Municipal Services Administrator John T. Carroll.

Now the 20,640-pound bright red pumper — with ladder, hoses and motor removed and all hoods and cabinets welded down — is installed on wooden blocks in a blacktop parking lot that serves as a playground for this new residential community.

Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan agreed to Mrs. Konishi's request that the island be given the 1962-vintage engine, which was ready to be taken out of active service. The island used to house the fire department's training school.

Propose Oil Stockpiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has proposed to purchase some 500 million barrels of oil, from petroleum companies or perhaps directly from foreign governments, for stockpiling against the threat of another embargo.

Acting under a legal deadline, the FEA sent the plan to Congress Wednesday and said it would cost at least $7.5 billion to $8 billion to store that much oil underground by 1982.

FEA Administrator Frank Z. Zarb told a news conference the cost probably will run even higher by that time, due to inflation and oil price increases.

Seeking Source Of Weapons Stockpile

By JAMES J. DOYLE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities in two California counties are seeking out the source of tons of weapons, ammunition and explosives secretly stockpiled by a racist paramilitary group and one of the largest caches of illegal munitions in America's history.

Three men have been arraigned separately in Los Angeles and San Bernardino Counties on a series of charges involving possession of illegal arms and explosives.

"There is enough to equip a 200-man company of military personnel," Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess said. "We are satisfied it was placed by a paramilitary organization.

"It could very likely be a group who planned to overthrow our form of government."

In their search for the origin of the weapons stockpile, authorities so far have announced only that they have traced that of an old Japanese machine gun.

The weapons began to be discovered more than a week ago when concrete bunkers, laid bare by wind-blown sand, were found by children in the Mojave Desert near Lancaster north of Los Angeles.

For days the quiet desert landscape rumbled as bomb squads detonated more than 1,300 pounds of explosives they said were too unstable to move.

Donald Wiggins, 42, Ontario, Calif., and his half-brother, Arthur Methe Jr. 20, were arraigned in Los Angeles on 19 felony counts Friday for allegedly stockpiling the weapons. Wiggins was arraigned earlier in Ontario, Calif., 35 miles east, after more weapons, unstable dynamite and a barrel of cyanide powder, were found at his home and a foundry he operates.

They were ordered to appear for a preliminary hearing Feb. 14. Wiggins was free on $15,000 bail, Methe on his own recognizance.

Arrested originally with Methe, who worked at the foundry, were his mother, Edna, 64, and his father, Arthur Sr., wwo dropped dead of a heart attack shortly after his apprehension.

In San Bernardino County, Michael Stringer, a Glendale gunshop owner, was also arraigned Friday in connection with a cache of weapons found near the mountain hamlet of Wrightwood. Stringer, 33, of La Crescenta, said he was "an innocent bystander."

He surrendered in the presence of two attorneys Friday for arraignment and was charged with reckless possession of explosives in a private habitation, possession of an explosive device and a machine gun.

He was released on $10,000 bail and ordered to return for a preliminary hearing Jan. 26.

In addition to the caches of weapons and explosives found in Lancaster, Ontario and Wrightwood, officials said tons of materiel had been scattered over hillsides, apparently abandoned, in the San Bernardino Mountains. They were not immediately tied in with either case but believed to be part of the stockpile found in Ontario.

In each case pieces of literature were found stuffed into into drums along with the weapons—all similar and all bitterly anti-semitic or anti-black.

Kidnapers Say Official Alive

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The kidnapers of Spain's No. 4 government official sent a message Saturday that he was still alive despite their vow to kill him Friday night unless the government freed all political prisoners.

A new message from the kidnapers Saturday was accompanied by a note from their victim, Antonio Maria Oriol y Urquijo, which the kidnapers said was a guarantee he was not dead.

News Briefs

Second Look At Superports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil companies that have permission to build the nation's first two superports may take another look at their plans in light of limitations placed on them by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr.

Coleman announced Friday that he was granting permission for two consortiums of oil and chemical companies to build two superports in the Gulf of Mexico to handle the massive oil tankers that cannot get into conventional ports.

The secretary, however, imposed several major economic restrictions on the way the ports must be operated. Those restrictions, designed to make certain that the port owners do not discriminate against oil tankers owned by competitors, will reduce the profits that the consortiums hoped to make from the ventures.

Few Would Volunteer Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top federal health official says swine flu vaccinations will resume when "we are sure there is no risk," but many state officials say that barring an epidemic, few people will volunteer to take them.

Officials from New York, Ohio and other states said Friday that even a clean bill of health for the swine flu vaccine could not restore enough public confidence to salvage the program, which was suspended Thursday nationwide.

The state officials also said it might be too late in the flu season to resume the program after completion of a thorough investigation to determine whether the vaccine caused Guillain-Barre Syndrome, a paralytic disease also known as French polio.

No connection has been established between the shots and the disease.

Flotilla Sponsoring Boating Skills Course

The Greenville Flotilla of the Coast Guard Auxiliary has announced its annual Boating Skills and Seamanship Course to be conducted at Pitt Technical Insititute beginning in January.

Jim Hecker, vice commander of the Greenville Flotilla, announces that beginning January 5 and continuing through March 30, the course will be taught at PTI from 7 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday.

A nominal charge will be required to cover the cost of text and workbook for the course, in addition to the registration feel for Pitt Tech.

This 13 lesson course provides a comprehensive basic introduction to newcomers to the sport of boating. In the past three years, many Greenville area people age 15 and up have completed the course.

Hecker notes the early months of the year before the full swing of boating activities get underway is an ideal time to take the course.

Registration will take place at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, January 5.

Henry Kissinger Set To Leave Office

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger, the "Lone Ranger" of U.S. foreign policy, leaves behind a record that is remarkable, a legacy that is uncertain.

His secret and celebrated negotiations for the 1972 nuclear weapons agreement with the Soviet Union, for the reopening of relations with China, and for an end to the Vietnam war, all conducted without the portfolio of secretary of state, established a mark for virtuoso diplomacy.

And once he moved into the job officially, becoming the most powerful man in Washington as the Nixon administration crumbled, his reputation as part-Superman, part-magician grew as he guided the Arabs and Israelis away from war and toward peace.

The "stable, new world order" that the former Harvard professor had set as his goal still eludes him at the end, as it did Austria's Metternich and Britain's Castlereagh, the 19th century masters of statecraft who influenced Kissinger's course.

But the world was at peace, and that, Kissinger has said, is "the most moral" goal of all.

Cyrus R. Vance, who comes after him, will suffer the fate of a great man's successor: large shoes to fill and the uneasy sense that someone's looking over his shoulder.

So strong was Kissinger's imprint on foreign policy that even the Carter administration, however much it intends to eschew one-man diplomacy and advance "morality," will be under its influence — in dealing with the Russians and the Chinese, in trying to head off a new war in the Middle East, in promoting black rule in southern Africa and a more equitable relationship between the industrial and the developing nations of the world.

Kissinger was fond of saying the United States could no longer operate with the supreme self-confidence that it is "the world's policeman" and predominant power, but he enhanced its authority among the Arabs and the black Africans while acrobatically balancing the Chinese against the Russians.

For a while, the traditional allies, western Europe and Japan, felt slighted, but in the end most analysts agreed that U.S. ties with them were strong.

The Middle East was most typical, perhaps, of Kissinger's range, stamina and persuasive skills, but also of the uncertainty of Kissinger's accomplishments over the long run.

Africa and the Third World typify, meanwhile, his flexibility and, again, his uncertain legacy.

Carefully calibrating U.S. military support for Israel so that the Jewish state would neither be overrun nor score a clear-cut victory, Kissinger, who is Jewish, then moved in to neutralize the Russians in Cairo by persuading Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that he could get Israel to pull back in Sinai and on the Golan Heights front with Syria.

Kissinger accomplished what he had promised. Through painstaking "shuttle diplomacy" he first separated the tangled Israeli and Egyptian armies along the Suez canal, and then worked out a series of interim agreements that returned some territory to Egypt and Syria in exchange for a promise from Cairo that it would tone down its economic and propaganda warfare against the Jewish state.

Kissinger's involvement in southern Africa and with the so-called Third World came late and represented a shift in his thinking. The dissolution of Portugal's empire and the intervention of Russia and Cuba on the side of black insurgents convinced him that the United States must pressure Rhodesia to yield political power to its black majority and South Africa to relax apartheid. The alternative to negotiated concessions, he warned, is race war.

His interest in economic theory and in the plight of underdeveloped countries also came late, but by the end of his tenure it had become almost a preoccupation. The United States took the lead in international conferences on the prices of raw materials and fishing rights, declaring that this, after all, is an interdependent world.

Kissinger's quest for "global stability" permeated his dealings with Moscow and Peking. Detente — an easing of tensions with the Soviets — produced the 1972 treaty limiting the two powers' missile defense systems and missile launchers, a ban on most weapons tests and a spate of agreements ranging from cancer research to the docking of spacecraft. Balanced against this was the 1972 opening to China after 22 years of hostility.

The strategy was to trade western technology and acceptance for Moscow's commitment to a more peaceful world, one that could begin to emerge from the shadow of "nuclear holocaust." As Kissinger frequently reminded critics: "Each side has the capacity to destroy civilization as we know it."

That capacity remains, with the growth of new weapons systems unchecked because of a deadlock over terms for a new strategic arms limitation treaty. Detente has been damaged by what the Ford administration sees as Soviet adventurism in Angola and its "mischievous role" in Rhodesia's racial strife.

To get as far as he did, Kissinger had to overcome opposition within the Pentagon and among hard-liners who said that he had allowed the Russians to catch up with the United States militarily and did not apply enough pressure on Moscow in behalf of eastern Europeans and Jewish dissidents.

Although a trade agreement with the Russians finally came apart over the Jewish issue, Kissinger was able to move ahead with detente — until negotiations for a second strategic arms limitation treaty collapsed this year.

The Citadel Rolls Past Pirates, 70-62

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The Citadel's basketball team broke a two-year jinx against East Carolina University Saturday night, providing Coach Les Robinson with his first win over the Bucs, 70-62.

Robinson's Bulldogs had bowed in the last five games against East Carolina, three times in 1975 and twice in 1976. Prior to the game, East Carolina was the only Southern Conference team Robinson could not claim a victory over.

The loss shoved East Carolina into the cellar of the Southern Conference, all by itself. The Pirates are 0-2 in league competition, while The Citadel climbs to 1-1. East Carolina is 4-3 overall and the Bulldogs are 3-2.

The Pirates didn't play well at all. They were outplayed all the way, largely because the Bucs didn't fullfil their assignments, according to Coach Dave Patton.

"This was a good example of not doing what you're told to do," the disgusted coach said. "We lost it mentally. Our heads were not in the game. We were not thinking. We were already home for Christmas.

"They didn't beat us, we beat ourselves," he added. "If you can't step up and make a 15-footer, I just don't know. It's the best shot in basketball and we had it all night, only nobody would take it."

What killed the Bucs however, was their inability to cash in at the free throw line. They hit on just four of 13 attempts for a miserable 30.8 percentage. From the floor, the Bucs canned 43 per cent of their shots, and actually made two points more than did The Citadel, which hit one less field goal.

The Citadel hit on 50.9 per cent of its shots, and made 73.7 per cent of its charity chances for 14 points there. The ten point difference made the difference.

In rebounding, the Pirates pulled off 41 to The Citadel's 39. East Carolina also had an edge in turnovers, committing 15 to 16 for the "Dogs."

Larry Hunt led the Pirate rebounding with 12.

East Carolina grabbed the initial lead in the game, but The Citadel came back to take the lead for the first time at 10-8 on a basket by Bob Jacobs. He hit two more baskets, and Robert Hoak added another for a 14-8 edge.

The Pirates fought back and regained the lead at 20-19 on a steal by Lou Crosby, and they held the lead most of the rest of the way thanks to the shooting of Herb Krusen, who made 12 points during the half.

Still, the Bulldogs rallied and regained the lead at 28-27, only to lose it again, 31-30, before David Pendergraft gave them a 32-31 lead on the final shot of the period.

East Carolina fought back and took the lead at 42-40 as Jim Ramsey came in and made seven straight points. That left the Bucs in a 44-40 edge.

John Rodgers also came in to do a job for the Bulldogs, hitting three straight to pull back into a tie. Finally, two baskets by Dale French pushed The Citadel back ahead, 50-48, and they never trailed again.

Rodgers and Pendergraft both hit, and French added two free throws to run the lead out to 56-48 with 5:45 left, and that was it. The Pirates never came closer than four after that, and eventually fell back by 11, 70-59, as The Citadel made good from the line as the Bucs were forced to foul to get the ball.

French led the Citadel scoring with 16 points, while Rick Swing had 15 and Hoak had 10.

East Carolina was led by Krusen with 14, with Ramsey adding 11 and Don Whitaker, 10.

The Pirates are idle until December 29, when they travel to Raleigh to meet Duke in the first game of the Holiday Doubleheader.

STABLER WINS HIS OWN GAME — Quarterback Ken Stabler of the Oakland Raiders dives into the end zone for the winning touchdown against the New England Patriots in Saturday's AFC playoff game in Oakland. Rodriguez And Washam In Tie

MIAMI (AP) — Pert little Jo Ann Washam and Chi Chi Rodriguez came from two shots back with a third consecutive 68 and moved into a tie for the lead Saturday after three rounds of the $200,000 Mixed Team Golf Championship that has men and women touring pros competing together for the first time iin a decade.

Jo Ann and Chi Chi birdied six of eight holes at one stretch and actually held a two-shot margin at one stage but then dropped back into a tie with Sandra Post and former British Open champ Tom Watson. Miss Post and Watson, who had a second-roound 63, managed a third round 70 in the bright warm sunshine.

The two teams completed 54 holes in 204, 12 under par on the Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

This selected drive alternate shot competition, in which both players hit from the tee, pick the one they want then play alternate shots on the same ball, appeared to have developed into a two-team race.

It was another four strokes back that Penny Paulz and Australian David Graham composed a 70 and a 208 total.

Sylvia Bertolaccini and Jim Colbert were next at 69-210 followed by Marlene Hagge and Dr. Gil Morgan at 72-211.

"You have to expect a letdown after shooting a 63," Watson said, "And after those first four holes we were sure having one."

He and Sandra were two over par for the day at that point before Miss Post's deadly putting rallied them again.

She birdied the fifth from 10 feet, needed only a three-footer after Watson's bring-it approach on the ninth and Tom kept them within sight of the Rodrigues-Washam team with a 10-foot birdie on the 10th.

Sandra scored from 15 feet on the 12th, and Watson's approach to three feet set up the tying birdie on the 15th.

The veteran Rodriguez called his partner, "The best woman player I have ever seen. She swings like Ben Hogan. I call her 'Little Hogan'. It's just a matter of time before she takes over the ladies tour."

They operated primarilly off Jo Ann's drives in the birdie streak that started on the fifth hole.

Chi Chi put his approach to two feet there, Jo Ann scored from 15 feet on the next and they made it three birdies in a row with Chi Chi's approach to four feet on the seventh.

Jo Ann dropped a pair of 25-footers on the ninth and 12th and pitch to 18 inches on the 11th.

Oakland Rallies To Nip Pats, 24-21

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — Quarterback Ken Stabler scrambled to his left and dove into the end zone with 10 seconds remaining Saturday for the touchdown which concluded an Oakland comeback and gave the Raiders a dramatic 24-21 National Football League playoff victory over the New England Patriots.

The Raiders, who were behind 21-10 after three periods, advanced to the American Conference championship game for a fourth consecutive season and will play here next Sunday against the winner of Sunday's game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Baltimore Colts.

Two penalties against Oakland in the third period had seemed fatal, helping the young Patriots march 80 yards and 55 yards on touchdown drives.

But a penalty against New England middle guard Ray Hamilton proved to be the costliest of the game. Hamilton decked Stabler after the quarterback had thrown an incomplete pass on a third-and-21 play with 52 seconds remaining in the game.

The Raiders were awarded a first down at the Pats' 13-yard line because of the penalty and completed their 68-yard winning march in four plays.

Stabler passed five yards to tight end Dave Casper, then handed off to running backs Clarence Davis and Pete Banaszak on two plays before surprising New England with his roll-out TD run.

The Raiders, AFC West champions, were slight favorites against New England despite suffering their only loss of the regular season, 48-17, to the Patriots on Oct. 3.

They have won 11 games in a row since then.

The Patriots, 11-3 in the regular season and the AFC wild card qualifier, carried a six-game winning streak into their first playoff test in 13 years.

RECEIVING—New England, Francis 4-96, Stingley 2-36. Oakland, Biletnikoff 9-137, Casper 4-47.
PASSING—New England, Grogan 12-23-1, 167 yards; Francis 0-1-1, 0. Oakland, Stabler 19-32-0, 233.

Fred Biletnikoff, the veteran wide receiver who tormented New England's defense with nine receptions for the day, caught two passes from Stabler on the winning drive which started with 4:12 remaining.

In the final minute of the first half, Biletnikoff fought off New England cornerback Bob Howard in the end zone and pulled in a 31-yard scoring pass from Stabler, which gave Oakland a 10-7 halftime lead.

The Patriots dominated the first half statistically, running 42 plays to Oakland's 25. New England scored first on Andy Johnson's one-yard plunge which ended an 86-yard drive highlighted by tight end Russ Francis' one-handed catch of a 40-yard pass.

Late in the first period, Oakland's Errol Mann kicked a 40-yard field goal to make it 7-3.

In the third quarter, Pats' quarterback Steve Grogan threw 26 yards to Francis for the touchdown that sent New England ahead again. Late in the period, former Raider Jesse Phillips ran three yards for a TD, making it 21-10. On both drives, covering 80 and 55 yards, respectively, the Raiders forced New England into punting situations but were called for penalties on the kicks, giving the Patriots the ball back.

The Oakland fourth-period comeback began with a 70-yard drive. Stabler hit Biletnikoff, who totaled 137 yards on his receptions, on passes of 17, 11 and 10 yards, keying the march.

That made it 21-17 with 11 minutes to go. But the Raiders went nowhere on their next possession and the AFC West champs seemed doomed when the Patriots drove into Oakland territory with five minutes left.

But another New England penalty, an offsides infraction on a third-and-one play at the Oakland 28, hurt the Patriots. After an incomplete pass, John Smith missed a 50-yard field goal attempt the Raiders took over for their final, winning drive.

Redskins Angered Over Several Of Minnesota's Scoring Plays

By GENE LAHAMMER
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Safety Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins was in the middle of two big plays Saturday which resulted in touchdowns for the Minnesota Vikings.

The two TDs vaulted Minnesota into a 21-3 halftime lead as the Vikings whipped the Redskins in the first round of the National Football Conference playoffs.

The first play left Houston with a "helpless feeling," but he was clearly angry over the second TD.

Minnesota was leading 7-3 late in the first quarter when quarterback Fran Tarkenton, on a third-and-nine play, sent rookie wide receiver Sammie White cutting over the middle. Houston cut in front of White to intercept the ball on the five but it fell out of his hands.

White caught the ball while on the ground and rolled into the end zone.

"It's a helpless feeling when you can't do anything about it. It was a good play," said Houston. "After I had it, he broke it up. The ball bounced straight up but he recovered."

The 10-year pro said there was no question that White had caught the ball. "My question was it should have been downed on the half-yard line, not a touchdown."

About seven minutes later, Houston met Chuck Foreman head-on at the Washington two-yard line and stopped the Viking star running back. But Foreman struggled away and slipped into the end zone for a touchdown. Houston and cornerback Joe Lavender argued with officials that the play should have been blown dead.

"We held him long enough for a whistle to blow," said Houston. "I let up and Joe did, too. The guy was up and stopped—no doubt about it. It was a real late whistle."

Despite those two controversial touchdowns, Houston said Minnesota clearly outplayed Washington and both Coach George Allen and quarterback Billy Kilmer agreed.

"The reason they were so good today is we didn't shut off any part of their game," said Houston. "They ran the ball well and they threw the ball well."

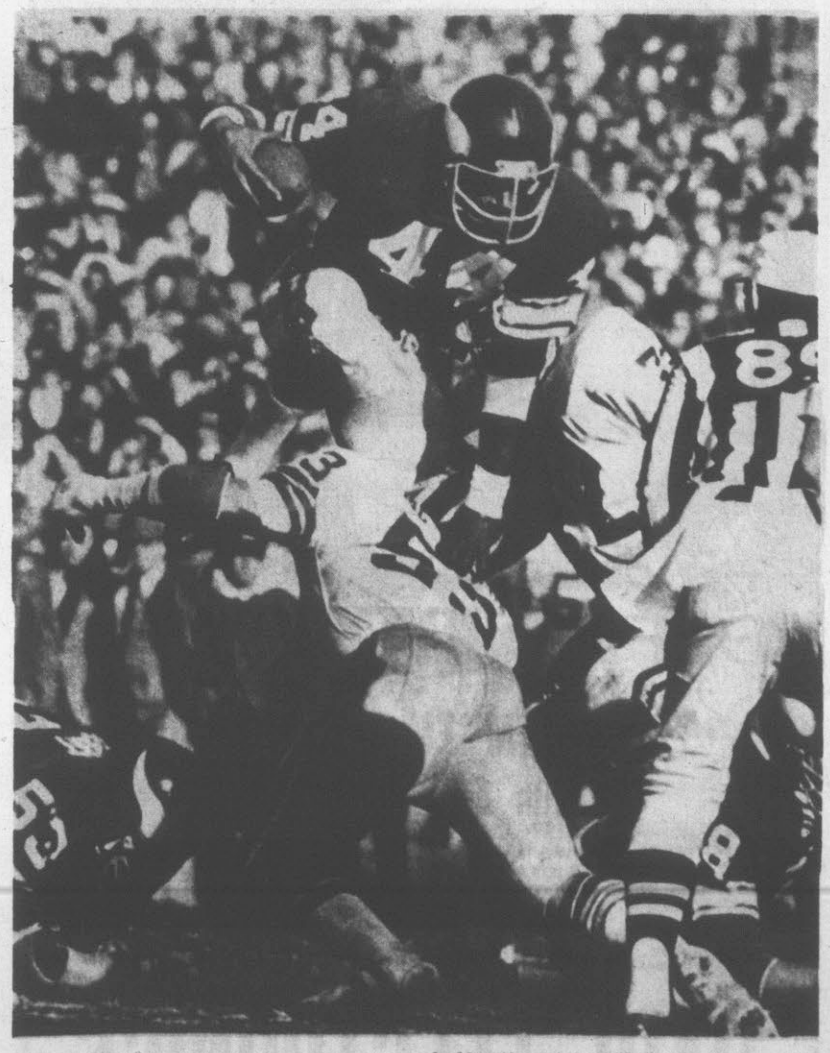
"I give the Vikings all the credit in the world," said Kilmer, who competed 26 of 49 passes for 298 yards and NFC playoff records in all three of those categories.

"They shut our running game down pretty good, so we went for the pass," Kilmer added.

"That Tarkenton had a good day and Foreman showed the great back he is," Coach Allen said. "And Sammie White gets my vote for rookie of the year. They have a balanced offense. They have a good passing game and a good running game."

It was the third straight time that Allen has lost a first round playoff game to the Vikings at Metropolitan Stadium. His Los Angeles team lost 23-20 in 1969 and his Washington club was eliminated 27-20 by Minnesota in 1973.

Vikings Pillage Washington, 35-20



FOREMAN IS FOUR UP — Minnesota Vikings running back Chuck Foreman tries to leap over Washington Redskins tackler Harold McLinton (53) and gains four yards on the play in first half action of the NFC playoff game in Bloomington, Minn., Saturday. BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Fran Tarkenton fired three touchdown passes and Chuck Foreman rushed for two more scores as the Minnesota Vikings routed Washington 35-20 Saturday, advancing to the National Football Conference championship game for the third time in four years.

The Vikings strung together three successive 66-yard scoring drives, rolling to a 21-3 lead in the first 22 minutes of the first-round playoff game. Tarkenton's 18-yard touchdown pass to tight end Stu Voigt put Minnesota ahead 7-0 only 99 seconds into the contest.

Sammie White's sprawling catch of another Tarkenton pass in the final minute of the opening period boosted the Vikings to a 14-3 lead. Foreman barged in from two yards out midway through the second quarter.

A 30-yard scoring burst by Foreman early in the third period gave Minnesota a 28-3 lead. The Vikings added some insurance in the final minute of the third quarter when White beat Joe Lavender to haul in a nine-yard scoring pitch from Tarkenton.

The Vikings will keep the home field advantage next Sunday against the winner of the Dallas-Los Angeles playoff. That will be for the NFC championship, a game Minnesota has not lost in three previous appearances. Minnesota finished the regular season with an 11-2-1 record, the best in the NFC.

Washington, which had been limited to a pair of field goals by Mark Moseley, finally scored a TD on Bill Kilmer's 12-yard pass to Frank Grant with 10:42 left in the game played under sunny skies and in 42-degree temperature. Kilmer connected again in the final minute, hitting Roy Jefferson with a three-yard touchdown toss.

Kilmer connected on 26 of 49 for 298 yards. Tarkenton was 12-21 for 170.

Foreman and runningmate Brent McClanahan each went over 100 yards in the game. Foreman netted 105 yards in 20 carries, and the 5-foot-10, 192-pound McClanahan picked up 101 in 20 attempts.

McClanahan, aided by curnching blocks from Voigt and Foreman, burst through the right side of the Washington line for a 41-yard run to the Redskins 25 on the first play from scrimmage.

After short gains by Foreman and McClanahan, Tarkenton and Voigt combined on an 18-yard scoring pass play on third down. Voigt caught the pass at the 10, bowled over Bill Brundige at the five and dragged Harold McClinton to the goal line for the TD.

Fred Cox added the extra point and Minnesota led 7-0 with 1:39 gone in the game.

Following successive interceptions thrown by Kilmer and Tarkenton, Washington scored on Mark Moseley's 47-yard field goal with 8:20 left in the first period.

An acrobatic catch by rookie wide receiver Sammie White boosted the Vikings to a 14-3 advantage with 52 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

On third-and-nine, Tarkenton's pass down the middle was tipped by Washington safety Ken Houston. But White tipped the ball free and snagged it as he slid toward the two-yard line. He crawled over the goal line to complete the 27-yard scoring play.

Foreman bulldozed in from two yards out to boost Minnesota into a 21-3 lead midway through the second quarter. The fourth-year running back from Miami slipped a tackle by Houston at the line of scrimmage and then overpowered linebacker Chris Hanburger at the goal line.

The Redskins lost a scoring opportunity with 16 seconds left in the half when Frank Grant dropped a 43-yard pass from Kilmer in the end zone.

Minnesota's offense gained 143 yards in the first quarter while holding Washington without a first down and 18 yards total offense.

Vikings' middle linebacker Jeff Siemon pulled a calf muscle in the second quarter and was removed from the game. Minnesota officials said his status for the NFL championship game Dec. 26 is uncertain.

Vikes: Team Is The Best Ever

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have been to the Super Bowl three times, but the players are convinced this is their best team.

"We've got more weapons than we've ever had," said quarterback Fran Tarkenton following Minnesota's 35-20 victory over Washington Saturday.

Tarkenton nodded toward rookie wide receiver Sammy White as he described the Vikings' arsenal.

"I don't know how any team can defense this team," Tarkenton said. "I wouldn't like to try to figure out a way."

White caught four passes for 64 yards and two touchdowns, including a spectacular rolling catch on a 27-yard scoring pass from Tarkenton in the first quarter.

"That's desperation, man," said the 21-year-old Grambling product. "I can't say I was really thinking about how I was going to catch that one."

Running backs Chuck Foreman and Brent McClanahan each rushed for more than 100 yards. Foreman gained 105 yards and scored two touchdowns and McClanahan added 101 yards in 20 carries, including a 41-yard burst on the first play of the game.

"We're going to show the older guys the way this time," said Foreman with a laugh. "They've had their chance."

McClanahan disputed the idea that the Vikings are an old team.

"This is a young team," contended the squat, fourth-year running back from Arizona State. "Everyone says we're an old team. Take a look at our offense."

The Vikings, hoping to become the first team to make four Super Bowl appearances, evened their playoff record at 7-7 over the last nine years.

Minnesota, which has never lost in the National Football Conference title game, will keep the home field advantage next Sunday against the winner of the Dallas-Los Angeles game.

The Minnesota players aren't concerned about which team they play.

Rampants Claim First Victory, 72-69

NEW BERN — Greg Guthrie pushed through two free throws with 2:07 left to inch Rose High School into the lead Friday night, and the Rampants bulled out to a nine-point edge after that, before clinging to a 72-69 win.

The victory was the Rampants' first of the season, after four straight losses. It was also the first defeat for the Bears, who had won five in a row, including a victory over Rose earlier in the month.

Just ten seconds after Guthrie's free throws, Anthony Bryant swiped the ball and took it in for a layup to pad the lead to three, and Guthrie scored another 15 seconds later after another New Bern turnover. Rose followed that up with four free throws to take a 72-63 lead with 35 seconds left to go.

The Bears, on a full-court press, managed to trim six points off that margin, but couldn't do it quick enough to put on a real rally.

Guthrie and fellow guard James Hawkins led the way for the Rampants, each dumping in 24 points.

Rose actually won the game with good shooting. They hit on 31 of 72 shots from the floor, while the Bears were much worse off, getting but 28 of 85 shots. Their rebounding kept them in the game, as they pulled off 66 to 55 for the Rampants. Rose also had less turnovers, 20 to New Bern's 25.

The Bears got the initial lead, pushing out to a 3-0 lead before Rose broke the ice after a minute. The Bears came back with two more baskets after that, however, for a 7-2 edge before the Rampants finally got going.

The two stuck closely after that, with Rose finally pushing ahead with 53 seconds left at 18-17 when Hawkins hit off a fast break. But Willie Beatty scored from underneath with six seconds to go, giving New Bern a 19-18 lead at the horn.

Rose regained the lead at 22-21, but couldn't hold it. Neither could the Bears, who fell back again, 24-23, on a shot by Guthrie off a rebound. He hit again off a fast break to give Rose a 26-23 lead with 5:09 left in the half.

The Rampants moved out to their biggest lead of the half on a free throw by Guthrie and a basket by Hawkins near the two minute mark, 35-29. They managed to hold onto the lead, and take a 39-36 edge into intermission.

The Rampants went cold in the third period, however, hitting just five of 22 shots. And New Bern used this to push back into the lead on four straight baskets by Beatty at 44-43 during a period when Rose missed 12 straight shots.

Still Rose, stuck with the Bears, and trailed only 51-49 at the end of the quarter.

New Bern inched back out by four early in the final period, but Rose tied it at 53-all on a jumper by Guthrie, then took a 56-55 edge on a free throw by Anthony Bryant and a basket by Derek Brewington. During the next few minutes, the lead changed hands five times until the Bears held a 63-62 edge with 2:43 left.

Just over 30 seconds later, Guthrie was fouled, hitting both ends of the one-and-one to put Rose ahead, this time for good. From there, the Rampants pushed out to the nine-point bulge and just watched as the Bears hopelessly tried to pull back once more.

Beatty led the Bear effort with 27 points, high for the night, while Russell Scott had 16. Bryant added 10 points to the Rose total.

Rose also won the junior varsity game, 66-57. The Rampant Cubs inched out 17-16 in the first period, then pulled into a 36-26 lead by halftime. They extended that to 50-39, and coasted home to the victory.

Durwin Clemons led Rose with 19, while Randy Lane had 16 and Ronnie Chapman had 10. New Bern was led by Mike Taylor with 15, Tommy Shird and Rodney Militier, each with 12, and Jeff Henderson with 10.

Rose returns to action on December 29, hosting the Holiday Doubleheader event at Rose High gym.

NCAA, NAIA Talk Problems

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, sometimes bitter rivals in the past, disclosed Saturday they have been talking over conflicting dates, playing rules and international competition.

Their joint announcement said negotiators held their first meeting Dec. 1 and there will be another in late January or early February.

Each organization was represented by two officers from member schools and by its executive director.

The announcement said their discussion covered seven areas:

—Common dates for schools to declare whether they will compete in the NCAA or NAIA championships in football, basketball, baseball, soccer, hockey and volleyball.

—Coordination of postseason football playoffs and bowl games, including NCAA recognition of the NAIA playoffs.

—Amateurism and limits on financial aid to athletes.

—International competition.

—Government problems.

—Common playing rules.

—Television coverage.

Government problems presumably include those stemming from federal insistence upon equal support for women's sports.

A statement issued by the presidents of the two groups said:

"We feel the lines of communication are wide open, and the first meeting reflected a great deal of common interest and mutural respect. We believe a great deal of progress can be made to bring our two associations more closely together."

For years, there was a tendency for larger colleges and universities, particularly those with big sports programs, to join forces in the NCAA while smaller schools flocked to the NAIA. There has been some duplication of membership and a tendency for the NCAA to court rapidly growing schools with expanding sports programs.

Steven Senko, director of athletics at Rutgers, is president of the NAIA. His colleagues in the first discussion were Clark Swisher, an NAIA executive committee member who is director of athletics at Northern South Dakota State, and Harry Fritz, NAIA executive director.

John A. Fuzak, faculty athletic representative at Michigan State, is president of the NCAA. He was joined by Stanley J. Marshall, who is the NCAA's secretary-treasurer and director of athletics at South Dakota State, and by Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA.

Pro Football Draft: Will It Be? Or, What Price, Tony Dorsett?

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How much is a Tony Dorsett or a Ricky Bell worth on the open market?

They soon may find out, if the National Football League and its players association cannot reach a compromise on the college draft.

A federal court has declared the college draft, the major method by which NFL teams stock their rosters, illegal and in violation of the antitrust laws. That sets up three possibilities for bringing new talent into the NFL in 1977:

—The open market, which would be the result should labor and management not reach an agreement.

—The present draft system, which was ruled illegal but could still be resurrected by an appeals court.

—Some middle ground.

"You can't eliminate any of the three possibilities. We haven't," said Terry Bledsoe, an official of the NFL Management Council, the league's bargaining body. "The possibility still exists for reaching agreement with the union. We haven't forsaken hope. I don't think the union has either."

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, has made several suggestions for modifying the college draft:

—Conduct the draft as usual, and, if a player hasn't signed a contract by May 1, an arbitrator is brought in to decide the length of contract and salary.

—Have separate drafts in the NFC and AFC.

—Have the college players chosen by a maximum of three or four teams.

—Not have a draft at all, but limit the number of rookies a team can sign.

Garvey says if no agreement is reached, "what's left will be the open market." He would, of course, be happy with the open market—similar to the vehicle which recently made millionaires out of some of baseball's top free agents. They weren't rookies, however.

In a year when baseball and basketball have resolved their labor disputes, football looks like the defensive back who's been burned by a long touchdown pass—alone and embarrassed.

The NFL hasn't had a labor contract since 1974. Both sides are still talking about such things as benefits, pensions, the Rozelle Rule and the draft. But so far, it's been just talk.

"We talk and show a little progress, but nothing substantive," said Bledsoe. "They haven't accepted the draft, and we haven't gone for unrestrained bidding."

The draft is just one issue that divides the NFLPA and the NFL into labor and management.

The other important issues are the reserve clause, which binds one player to one team, and compensation. In the NFL, compensation goes by the name of the Rozelle Rule, which allowed Commissioner Pete Rozelle to decide what compensation a free agent's former team gets from a free agent's new team. The rule, however, was struck down by a federal court and is being appealed by the NFL.

The NFL doesn't have friendly legal decisions to fall back on. So it is looking for collective bargaining to limit the impact of the unfavorable court rulings.

This is where the cat-and-mouse game begins. Garvey says that the draft and Rozelle Rule are not mandatory subjects of collective bargaining, meaning he doesn't have to discuss these items at the negotiating table. He does say, however, "We'll talk about anything."

The NFL says the union must bargain on these issues. "Unquestionably before the federal court decisions there was a reluctance by the owners to negotiate," said Ted Kheel, the NFL's chief negotiator. "But a funny thing happened on the way from the court house. The players association is now reluctant to bargain."

If asked, the National Labor Relations Board might force the union to bargain on these issues. In that case, Garvey says he might recommend dissolving the union.

"If we don't have the strength to get a good agreement, and the NFL says 'accept it or else,' then we might be better off without a union," Garvey said.

Garvey's position is that since the courts have struck down the draft and the Rozelle Rule as restraints of trade, they won't accept any collectively bargained modifications, unless it looks like they are the result of negotiations between two equal parties.

Garvey says his union, which doesn't have a checkoff dues system and has been riddled with dissension, is weak—an unequal force against the powerful NFL. In the decision striking down the Rozelle Rule, the court found the NFLPA to be a weak union.

The NFL says full freedom for free agents would destroy competitive balance in the league. Garvey says he will accept something less.

"If the problem is competitive balance, then we're prepared to accept the Rozelle Rule for playoff teams," Garvey said, pointing out that the other 20 teams could improve the league's balance by picking up free agents without having to compensate the former teams.

The National Basketball Association had labor problems similar to football's. But the league went a long way toward resolving them in a landmark contract reached last February. In that agreement, drafted college players can sit out one year, be redrafted, sit out another year and then become free agents.

The settlement also permits free-agent compensation for five years before the policy of giving the free agent's club the right of first refusal—matching the best offer—takes over in 1981.

"I congratulate basketball for its milestone agreement," said Kheel, management's man, at a recent labor seminar.

"I also congratulate basketball for its settlement," replied Garvey, the union man. "If Ted Kheel likes it so much, why don't we just take it lock, stock and barrel?"

"Is that a proposal?" Kheel shot back. "If so, he'll get an answer."

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Reserve forward Leroy McDonald came off the bench in place of injured Rod Griffin Saturday night and scored 18 points to lead 12th ranked Wake Forest to an 84-73 win over the University of North Carolina-Asheville.

Griffin, the team's leading scorer with a 23.8 average, suffered a knee injury after 7:30 of play. Coach Carl Tacy said the extent of the injury was not immediately known.

McDonald, who plays a lot taller than his 6-5 frame, also pulled down 13 rebounds as the Deacons fought off a stubborn Bulldog team for their sixth straight victory without a loss.

The Deacons opened a 15-point lead in the first half, but the Bulldogs managed to battle to a 37-30 haltime deficit. The Bulldogs came back to within three points, 41-38, with 16:31 left in the game, before the Deacons forged ahead to a 16-point lead late in the game.

The Bulldogs' climbed back behind guards Bam Jones and George Gilbert and forward Carl Redd. Jones scored a game high 24 points, Redd 18, and Gilbert 17.

Lady Pirates Are Defeated

The Appalachian State girls' basketball team broke open a close struggle with East Carolina late in the second half and charged to a 98-73 victory Saturday night.

Though they shot only 42 percent for the game, the Lady Apps threw up 104 shots, while the Pirates managed but 69. East Carolina shot 45 percent, connecting on 30 of 69. The Apps hit 44 of their shots.

The Pirates maintained their distance with Appalachian in the first half, never letting them get as far ahead as six points. The second half proved to be the death blow for the Lady Pirates as the Apps surged ahead to stay with over six minutes left in the contest.

Only two players scored in double figures for the Lady Apps, but all eleven players who participated scored at least two points. They were led by Madeline Frosch with 24. Black and Brewer added 16 and 10, respectively.

Debbie Freeman led the Lady Pirates, now winless in two games, with 23 points. Rosie Thompson scored 19 and April Ross had 10 points.

The Lady Pirates next action will be in the Carolina Invitational Tournament in Chapel Hill starting Tuesday.

Jaguars Nail Eastern Wayne

NEW HOPE — Kenno Farrell connected on a three-point play with 31 seconds left in the game to preserve a 77-74 win over Eastern Wayne Friday night.

The win culminated a perfect night for the Jaguars. Their junior varsity defeated the Warriors, 50-39, and the Lady Jaguars held on for a 51-42.

Farmville Central raced to an early 30-12 lead in the first period, and coasted to a 49-38 halftime edge. The Jaguars took their biggest lead of the night in the third quarter at 63-47, but the Warriors staged a late rally and began their march with the fourth and final frame.

Larry Gardner tied the game for Eastern Wayne at 68 with 3:48 left. Jeff Fields, who finished the night with a game high 29 points, countered with a free throw, and Farrell, who scored 27, added two buckets to up the lead to five at 73-68. Leo Caswell brought the Warriors back to within two at 74-72 before Farrell's decisive three-pointer.

Gardner led the Warriors with 18 points, followed by Caswell's 14. David Allen chipped in with 12.

The Lady Jaguars jumped to an early 30-12 halftime advantage, then held off the Warrior girls, who outscored them 30-21 in the second half.

N. Johnston Tops Roanoke

ROBERSONVILLE — North Johnston High School rallied in the final period to deadlock the score, then overcame Roanoke in overtime Friday night, 59-54.

Roanoke's girls rolled to an easy 43-24 win in their game, while the Roanoke junior varsity took a 44-37 win.

In the boys' varsity game, the Redskins inched into a 15-14 lead during the first period. They pulled further out in the second quarter, building a 26-21 halftime margin.

The Redskins continued to be in charge in the third period, pushing their margin out to 39-31. But in the final period, things went the other way for the 'Skins, who saw their lead vanish as the Panthers fought back. Marion Frazier hit with less than a minute to go, tieing the score at 49-49, and although both teams had chances to score after that, neither could.

In the extra period, North Johnston continued its sway, outhitting the Redskins, 10-5, to win the game.

Dana Moore led North Johnston with 23 points, while Frazier added 18. Tim Highsmith paced Roanoke with 12.

In the girls' game, Roanoke gained an 8-5 lead after the first period. North Johnston hung with them through the second quarter, trailing 14-12 at the half.

In the third period, however, Roanoke pulled away, outscoring the Pantherettes, 12-7, for a 26-19 lead. Roanoke finished the contest with a 17-5 margin in the final period.

Dee Stanley led Roanoke with 12 points, while Carolyn Duggins added 10. Frankie Woodall led the Pantherettes with 16.

Roanoke returns to action on December 28 in the Williamaston Holiday Tournament.

Bertie Tops Vikes, 60-48

HOLLYWOOD — Bertie Senior High School took revenge for a defeat earlier in the week by sweeping D. H. Conley's Vikings Friday night. The Falcon varsity took a 60-48 win, while the Lady Falcons came up with a 44-43 overtime win. The junior varity wound it up with a 47-45 victory.

In the girls' game, Conley inched out into the lead after one frame, 9-8, then pulled further away in the second frame. By halftime, they had pushed into a 21-13 lead.

Neither team could put anything together in the third period, despite each hitting 15 points. That left the Valkyries in a 36-28 lead. But in the final period, Bertie put on a rally, and in the final minute of play, erased a six-point Conley lead to tie it at 40-40 at the horn.

Bertie then outhit Conley, 4-3, in the overtime to capture the win.

H. Freeman led Bertie with 22 points, while C. Perry had 10. Annie Hardy led Conley with 18 points, while Alice Costen had 14.

Bertie's boys doubled the score on Conley in the first period, as the Vikings couldn't seem to get on track. By the end of the period, it was 12-6. Bertie continued to pull away in the second period, holding sway, 32-23 at intermission.

Another flurry by Bertie in the third period, 15-9, pushed the Falcon margin out to 47-31. Conley came back with a 16-13 advantage in the final period, but it was not enough.

Arthur Gaskins led Bertie with 30 points, while James Hardy added 14. Al Tyson had 22 for Conley, with Johnny Streeter and Shawn Little each hitting 10.

The Vikes return to action on Tuesday, traveling to North Pitt.

East Carolina Gymnastics Team Must Overcome Its Inexperience

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's gymnastics program might well be termed in a rebuilding year, although that might be also somewhat pretentious.

Gymnastics, one of the women's athletic programs, is still building, with the sport only in its second year with a full-time coach, Steveda Chepko.

But following last year's winless season, Ms. Chepko finds her team all but wiped out by graduation and injury, and her reliance based mainly on freshmen.

Only one senior is among the seven girls on this year's team, Betsy Adkins. And she is the only girl on the team with any competitive experience. "This is going to hurt us," the coach said, "but I still look for a better year this season."

Miss Adkins will be the team leader this season, and Coach Chepko looks for her to be an all-around leader. Her strength, however, will probably be in the uneven bars.

"Last year, we didn't win a meet, but this year, I think we can win several," Ms. Chepko said. Although she has no girls on grants, Ms. Chepko does see things improving. "We did sign one girl to a grant, but she decided to go somewhere else. Actually, it's hard to find good gymnasts in North Carolina right now on the high school level. Most of the good ones are still in junior high or lower."

Last year, the coach was hoping that the team would be able to average five points a meet individually. They were not able to do so. But this year, she feels that this goal is attainable. "Betsy should average over seven a meet, and this will help the overall average."

Still this year finds Ms. Chepko feeling as if she were starting all over with the program due to the inexperience. None of the other six have any experience in meets, but she feels they've done well in practice so far.

"We were also hurt when Lynn Utegaard didn't come around from any injury she sustained last year," the coach said. "She's still in rehab, and probably won't be able to gym until too late to help us this year."

Of the new six gymnasts, most are freshmen. Ms. Chepko rates Nan Baker as one of the brightest in the floor exercise. Donna Pendley looks promising on the bars, while Susan Jarrett is coming along well on the beam. Junior college transfer Leah Carver should work well in the all-around events, while Karen Johnson also should do well in all-around. Pam Bite, the sixth newcomer, has absolutely no experience, even in non-competition.

"The future looks good for us," Ms. Chepko said. "The girls have worked hard so far, and they've learned a lot. But they've still got a lot to learn."

How quickly they learn will decide this year's fate.

Panthers Keep Streak Going

BETHEL — The North Pitt Panthers made short work of South Edgecombe Friday night, burning the Dragons, 78-37. The Pant-HERS also won, doubling the score on the Dragon girls, 38-19.

Only the Panther junior varsity ran into trouble, as the Baby Dragons gained a 73-56 win.

The Panthers gave the Dragons the opening basket, then tiptoed their way to a 9-4 first quarter lead. Adding 28 points in the second quarter staked North Pitt to a comfortable 37-16 halftime lead.

Melvin Wooten led the Dragons with 10 points. Donnie Perkins scored 18 points for the Panthers, followed by Virgil Pilgreen and Kenneth Robinson with 12 each.

In the girls' game, the Pant-HERS outscored the Lady Dragons 8-0 in the third quarter to gain a decisive victory. Ellen Dixon led the Pant-HERS with 16, while Jackie Harrell led the South Edgecombe attack with eight.

Mills Is Honored

WILLIAMSTON — Dink Mills, football and baseball coach at Williamston High School has been nominated for a national honor by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association.

Mills is the 1977 nominee from North Carolina for National High School Baseball Coach of the Year. The award is based on career coaching performance in the sport, service to high school athletics and to the coaching profession.

He will be in competition with coaches from other starts from the district for the honor. The winning coach will join winners from seven other districts in attending the awards banquet in the Hampton, Va., area, during June, 1977.

Mills has won several state baseball championships while coaching in Williamston.

Bolding Picked For Star Game

East Carolina University's outstanding defensive back, Jim Bolding, has been selected to play in the American Bowl in Tampa, Fla., on January 2.

Bolding is the second member of this year's Southern Conference championship team to be invited to play for the South squad in this annual post-season game at Tampa Stadium. Defensive end Cary Godette was selected earlier.

The 5-11, 170-pound safety from High Point finished his career at East Carolina with 22 pass interceptions to rank fourth on the NCAA career list. The national record is 29.

Bolding was named All-America by the Associated Press as a junior after leading the nation in interceptions in 1975 with ten. He was named honorable mention this year. He was also selected to the second team All-America squad by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The former Ragsdale High School star set new East Carolina records for most interceptions in a single game, season and career, along with most punts returned in a career. He had three single game interceptions against Western Carolina in 1975, ten for the 1975 season, and 22 for his career. His punt returns numbered 47 for 379 yards.

Bolding is a three-time All-Southern Conference player, leading secondary voting for the past two years, a two-time All-State selection by the Greensboro Daily News, was the Outstanding Freshman in 1973, and Most Valuable Player in 1975. (Team awards for the 1976 season have not been presented as yet.)

The selection of the two players mark the first time an East Carolina player has been picked for this game.

Two other Pirates also have been named to post-season games. Reggie Pinkney played in Friday night's North-South Shrine Game in Pontiac, Michigan, and Ernest Madison will appear in the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., on January 8.

Suspensions Didn't Stop Kentucky

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Coach Joe Hall suspended three of his Kentucky players, but it didn't help Bowling Green any.

With Mike Phillips, Jay Shidler and Truman Claytor sitting on the bench in civilian clothes, the Wildcats pulled up their socks, adjusted to a new tempo and ran away from the Falcons in the Kentucky Invitational basketball tournament.

"We got beat by a great ball club," said Bowling Green Coach John Weinert after a 77-59 loss to the nation's third-ranked team Friday night. "The suspension of the three Kentucky players probably hurt us because they beat us with quickness and finesse."

Phillips, the Wildcats' starting center who provides Kentucky with a powerful inside game, and Shidler—a starting guard—were suspended along with Claytor earlier this week for disciplinary reasons.

Utah, which defeated West Virginia 74-70 in another first-round game, won't be as easy a touch for Kentucky, according to Hall.

In other tournament action Friday night, 20th-ranked St. John's defeated SMU 87-71 and Tennesee trimmed La Salle 92-85 in opening-round games of the Volunteer Classic in Knoxville; Memphis State beat Penn State 77-69 and Florida downed Florida State 70-53 in the Big Sun tourney in St. Petersburg, Fla.; Alabama stopped Oklahoma State 70-61 and Virginia Tech nipped Dayton 76-75 in the Dayton Invitational and Toledo turned back Eastern Kentucky 78-62 and Mississippi tripped Marshall 65-63 in the Blade-Glass City Classic in Toledo, Ohio.

Also, Houston outscored Nevada-Reno 100-78 and California-Santa Barbara turned back Texas A&M 69-61 in the Bluebonnet Classic in Houston; Texas-El Paso edged Baylor 70-64 and Missouri beat Southern Cal 87-77 in the Sun Bowl Classic at El Paso, Tex.; Florida State defeated Santa Clara 94-80 and No. 5 San Francisco hammered Pacific 90-73 in the Cable Car Classic in San Francisco and South Alabama nipped New Mexico State 85-83 and Army defeated Samford 67-60 in the Birmingham Classic. In non-tournament games, No. 9 UCLA walloped Rice 107-60; No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas whipped North Dakota State 112-81 and No. 16 Indiana beat DePaul 50-42.

With Phillips and Shidler out of the lineup, Jack Givens took the Kentucky scoring load on his shoulders, pouring in 28 points. Jeff Judkins scored 29 points to pace Utah over West Virginia.

Glen Williams and George Johnson each scored 23 points to lead St. John's over SMU in the Volunteer Classic. A 31-point performance by Bernard King led Tennessee over La Salle in the other first-round game.

John Washington scored 22 points, had 10 rebounds and three blocked shots to lead Memphis State past Penn State. A 16-point effort by Richard Glaspar and a tenacious second-half defense led Florida over South Florida.

Reggie King poured in 20 points to power Alabama past stubborn Oklahoma State. Two free throws by Marshall Ashford with five seconds left provided Virginia Tech with its tense victory over Dayton.

Dave Speicher scored 18 points as Toledo defeated Eastern Kentucky before John Stroud's 17 points paced Mississippi over Marshall. Charles Thompson tossed in 22 points to lead Houston over Nevada-Reno and Wayne Stevenson's 18 points helped California-Santa Barbara defeat Texas A&M.

Tom Pauling and Ron Jones scored 14 points apiece and Pauling also grabbed 14 rebounds as Texas-El Paso trimmed Baylor. Missouri stopped Southern Cal as Kim Anderson scored 23 points. David Thompson and Harry Davis combined for 39 points and 26 rebounds, powering Florida State over Santa Clara. A 26-point, 16-rebound performance by Winford Boynes led San Francisco over Pacific.

South Alabama defeated New Mexico State as Don Hogan led a rally in the last three minutes. Gary Winton scored 15 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Army past Samford.

UCLA sophomores Roy Hamilton and David Greenwood combined for 39 points to lead the Bruins to any easy victory over Rice. Nevada-Las Vegas got 39 points frome Eddie Owens to blast North Dakota State. Mike Woodson hit a pair of free throws, then scored on a driving layup as Indiana ran off the last eight points of the game to defeat DePaul.

Ahoskie Tops Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Ahoskie broke open a close ballgame with accurate shooting in the second half and downed Williamston, 57-49 Friday night to salvage one game of the three game set.

The Tiger junior varsity nipped the junior Cougars, 38-35, while the Lady Tigers thumped the Cougar girls, 46-24.

Leading by only three at the end of the first quarter, the Cougars fell behind with only a nine-point output in the second quarter to lose ground to Williamston at 25-23.

Both teams had failed to shoot 50 percent in the first half, but the Cougars corrected the problem with a 15-point outburst in the third quarter for a 64 percent clip, and a 38-34 lead. The Cougars again outscored the Tigers in the fourth quarter, 19-15, to seal the final margin of victory.

The Tigers reached a high of 40 percent in the second half after shooting only 27 in the first. The turning point came in the last two periods, when the Tigers connected on only 18 and 21 percent of their shots, respectively.

Four Cougars scored in double figures, led by Curtis Vinson with 14, followed by Jeff Benthall with 12. Barry Wallace was the only Tiger to reach double figures with 22.

Though the Lady Tigers were outscored 15-6 in the fourth quarter, the game was well out of reach for Ahoskie. Leading Williamston was Paula Bennett with 11, as seven of her teammates aided in scoring. The Cougars were led by Shirley Brown with 11.

Bullets Bow In Overtime

SWAN QUARTER — Mattamuskeet rallied in the final period to tie Jamesville, and then went two overtimes before stopping the Bullets, 73-67.

Jamesville's girls continued to roll along, picking up a 57-20 victory.

Mattamuskeet pushed out into a 17-14 lead in the opening period of the boys' game. But the Bullets came back in the second quarter to outhit the Lakers, 21-14, and take a 35-31 lead into intermission.

Mattamuskeet stuck close through the third period, but still trailed, 48-46, as the final quarter got underway. In that period, however, they outhit Jamesville, 15-13, and were able to tie it up at 59-59, forcing the overtime.

Each team hit six points in the first extra period, leaving it tied again, 65-65. But in the second extra frame, the Bullets went scoreless, while Mattamuskeet pushed through six to take the win.

Cunningham led the Lakers with 20 points, while Mann had 18 and Beckwith had 13, and Shelton added 14. Eric Davis led Jamesville with 24, with Ricky Whitehurst adding 16 and Tommy DiNardo, 12.

Mollie Hopkins led Bath with 20 points, while Romita Cutler had 12. Patricia Taylor had 12 to lead Bear Grass.

The Bear Grass boys pulled away to lead after one period of their game, 14-8. Bath put together a rally in the second period, 19-12, and took a 27-26 lead into the dressing rooms.

Bath held to its slim lead and added another point to it for a 41-39 lead going into the final period. But the Bears rallied, 13-7, and pulled off the victory.

Adoption In Lieu Of Marriage

WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — They didn't want to get married, but they wanted to live together respectably. So Joseph Comoli 3rd, 33, adopted Elaine Tattersall, 32, as his daughter.

"The daughter can use the name of the father," said their lawyer, Aram K. Berberian. "People will believe they are married because they use the same name. They obtain respectability in the eyes of their peers."

According to town records, Miss Tattersall's parents are still alive. A spokeswoman at the town clerk's office confirmed that the adoption had taken place, and said it was legal because Miss Tattersall "is of age and can be adopted by whomever she chooses."

She added, "Isn't it their own business what they do? I don't understand why newspapers are so interested in this."

Calls to the couple's home were not answered.

"The major factor is here we have two people 'living in sin,'" said Berberian. "To legitimize the cohabitation, they became related."

Berberian said he used the tactic himself three years ago and later married the woman he adopted as his "daughter." He said the arrangement can offer benefits other than respectability.

For example, he said, in the event of a breakup, "The daughter can never force the father to pay alimony." And the "father" gets an added tax deduction if he pays more than half the cost of supporting the "daughter," Berberian said.

He said that when he used the adoption process with his girlfriend, it protected him from charges of immorality leveled by his wife. "The male can legitimize a relationship with his paramour, and the wife can't tell the Family Court her husband is being immoral," he said.

Raise Funds For Injured Nude

NEW YORK (AP) — It was one of those on-the-job injuries: Stripper Patti Wayne was performing a headstand in the nude when an overzealous patron leaped on stage and pushed her over.

But friends rallied round. Early today an assortment of comics, singers and dancers performed free at a Greenwich Village nightclub to raise money for Miss Wayne, sometimes billed as the "Playgirl of Wall Street."

About 300 persons attended the fundraiser at Copperfield's, but not Miss Wayne — she was flat on her back, recovering at the home she shares with seven dogs here.

She said she was in the middle of her act at a Philadelphia club a month ago "when one of the guys got frisky and jumped up on the stage and knocked me down."

Uncertain if she'll ever be able to perform again, Miss Wayne said she is suffering great pain from a wrenched back and neck.

"I haven't been able to work for a month, and money has been a terrible problem. I think it's the nicest thing anyone has ever done for me," she said of the benefit.

The party began warming up late Friday night with preliminary acts. One of the first performers was a singer named Pam, and the reaction to her made it clear that most of those in attendance had come to see the dancers.

Pam belted out a few tunes, then told the crowd, "It's a little warm in here. I'm going to take my coat off." Most of the customers, who paid $5 each, answered back with whoops and cheers.

Pam, apparently indignant, held her velvet jacket to her chest and screamed back, "I'm not a stripper."

Ask Hearing On Fire Ants

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Legal Foundation has requested a hearing in federal court to protest the Environmental Protection Agency's decision to ban the use of the chemical Mirex to kill fire ants.

Ben Blackburn, president of the foundation, said Friday the appeal charges the EPA with halting public hearings before all the evidence was heard.

Fiber Glass Shingles
From CertainTeed

GLASSTEX® and GLASSGUARD® fiber glass shingles offer much more than beauty. They resist burn-through in severe fire . . . remain secure in hurricane winds . . . and prevent interior water damage. In fact, they're rated Class A—the highest UL classification possible for fire and wind resistance.

Because of their fiber glass base, GLASSTEX and GLASSGUARD shingles also last longer. Granule retention is extraordinary. And the shingles won't blister, rot, curl, expand, split or shrink.

GLASSTEX shingles are warranted 25 years. They're the only fiber glass shingles with elegant texture and graining. GLASSGUARD shingles are warranted 20 years and come in a wide choice of colors. You can get either one at lower cost-per-year than ordinary shingles. Don't settle for less.

A Week Marked By Oil Pricing War

NEW YORK (AP) — The shieks and ministers of the world's richest oil nations gathered this week to agree on another oil price increase, but instead a pricing war broke out.

In what could be the most important development for oil importing nations since the formation of the oil cartel, the unity which gave the producers such power over prices appeared badly cracked during their meeting.

The split pitted powerful Saudi Arabia, the world's largest single oil producer, and a smaller Arab state against the other 11 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

With the majority seeking an immediate 10 per cent price boost, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates announced their plans to sell all the oil they can pump out of the ground at only a 5 per cent increase, at least for 6 months.

Because Saudi Arabia alone is capable of flooding the world market each day with 3 million barrels of oil in addition to the 8.5 million barrels it already produces daily, analysts generally believe that the other producers will have to acknowledge the Saudi's price leadership or risk touching off a round of price cutting.

The dissension over oil prices also could liven the bidding next spring on oil for an $8 billion U.S. stockpile.

As expected, the Federal Energy Administration announced this week plans to take rival bids on the emergency supply in a competitive procedure designed to encourage price cutting among the major oil producers.

However, the final plans for the bidding still need the approval of Congress, which last year directed the FEA to put aside 150 million barrels of oil by 1978 and an additional 350 million barrels by 1982, equal to a 90-day supply of imports.

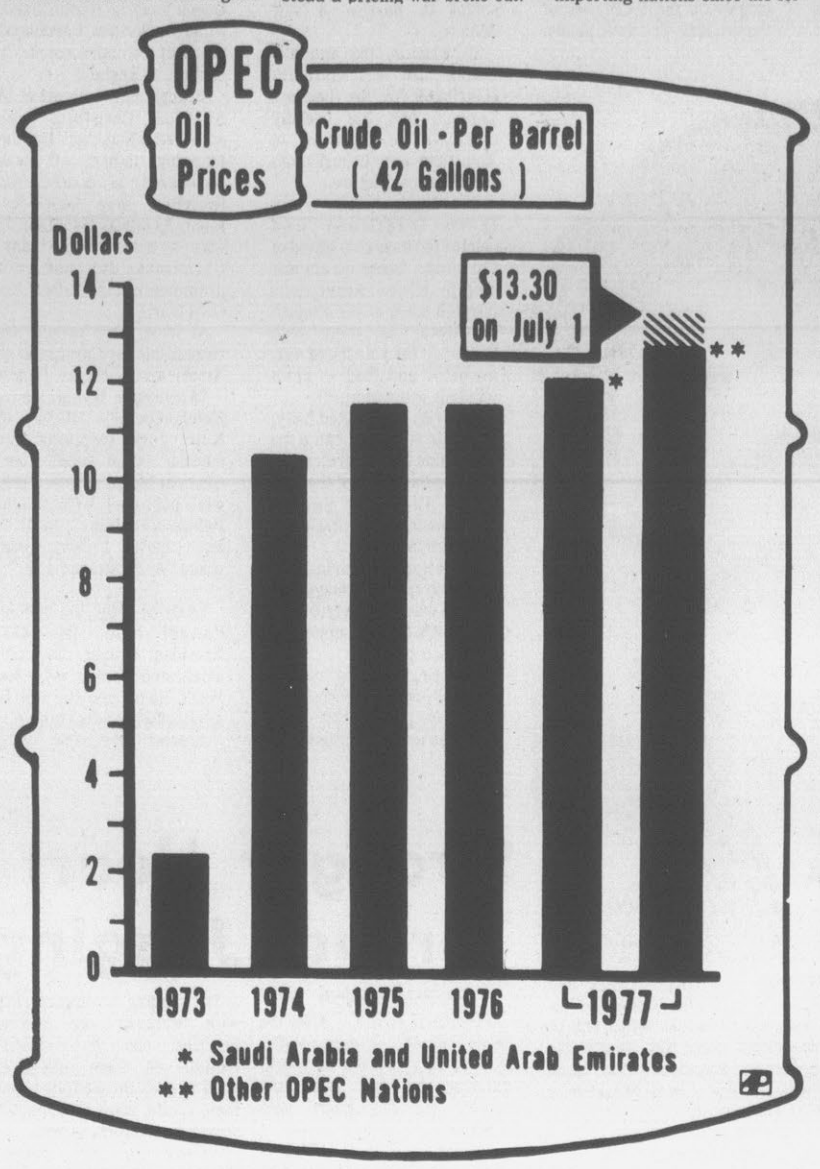
Elsewhere in business this past week, shareholders of General Electric Co. and Utah International Inc. approved GE's acquisition of the West Coast mining firm in a stock swap valued at $2.2 billion.

GE said Utah's uranium, coal and oil resources will improve GE's position in world trade.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the nation's most widely-owned stock, reported a 28 per cent increase in earnings for the three months ended Nov. 30. It was the second consecutive quarter that the giant telephone company earned in excess of $1 billion.

The company said it plans an early repayment of some $350 million of debentures it sold in 1970 whose 8.7 per cent yield is considerably higher than current market rates.

AT&T also said it has slated $11.4 billion of capital spending next year on its Bell telephone system.



RISING PRICES — Chart shows how prices of crude oil from OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) have risen since 1973. The first hike followed the October Middle East war, going from $2.30 to $10.46 a barrel. On Oct. 1, 1975, it rose to the current $11.51 a barrel. For 1977, chart shows Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates will boost their prices 5 per cent, or to $12.09. Other OPEC countries' prices will rise to $12.70 a barrel on Jan. 1, and to $13.30 (shaded area) on July 1. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Improper Actions By First Union

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Admitting there were some "improper" actions, First Union Corp., parent company of First Union National Bank, has revealed that corporate funds had been used for political purposes.

But, in a news release Friday, the company said it has no reason to believe that corporate funds were funneled to political candidates since 1973. The company reported political contributions between 1968 and 1973.

Though the internal audit found "problem areas," the company said it decided against taking disciplinary action against any employe.

The firm said there were "certain activities" between 1971 and 1973 "which could be considered improper."

Included were participation by certain corporate employes in the campaign of Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, unsuccessfull Democratic candidate for Governor in 1972, the company said. Aid to Bowles included use of corporate facilities for fund raising functions and transportation of officers of the corporation to and from such functions.

Bowles, a member of the executive committee and of the board of directors of the corporation, had "disassociated himself" from the corporation during his campaign.

"In 1968, certain expenditures were made by First Union National Bank...which were of a political nature." Approximately $50,000 went for political purposes, the corporation said.

A Good Delay

BELLA BELLA, Canada (AP) — Bad weather forced Robert Ulrich to land his small plane in this British Columbian town and kept him from flying out, but he says he doesn't mind the delay.

"I've got 300 invitations for dinner and there is a dance tonight to go to," he said Wednesday.

Ulrich, 30, who was en route from Sitka, Alaska, to Cleveland for the holidays, was guided to his unscheduled landing on a soccer field here Tuesday by lights from 50 vehicles, portable spotlights and a nearby school.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police organized residents to light the playing field after their provincial rescue center sent word that help was needed.

Origins Of Christmas Are In Old World

By HORACE BECK

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP) — Christmas in many ways is symbolic of the entire pattern of American culture. Like Americans, its origins are in the length and breadth of the Old World.

Traditional Christmas was a combination of two elements — placating the dead, honoring the new born. It combined the old with the young, rich with the poor, the sage and the shepherd.

For Americans it has become a time for goodwill — spending money, a buying forgiveness for past sins. It implies a belief in the supernatural and expresses a hope for a better tomorrow. It's a time to pray, to eat and drink.

Christmas is celebrated Dec. 25, the day after the end of early Christianity's rival Saturnalia celebration. Christmas Day, too, is close to the winter solstice, in Pagan days a time to pray to the Gods to lengthen daylight and restore life back to earth. Its direct purpose, of course, is to honor the birth of the Christ child.

The chief ingredient in a successful Christmas today is Santa Claus, venerable old St. Nicholas who lived in Patura in the 4th Century and died Dec. 6, 343 A.D. Among the many miracles attributed to St. Nicholas are two of great importance.

Hearing that three young girls were to be sold into slavery, he supposedly fashioned three golden balls which he disguised in napkins and tossed over the wall inside which the girls were held — providing each with a secret dowry.

On another occasion he is supposed to have discovered that two boys had been chopped into bits by an innkeeper and salted down in a barrel of pork. The good man fished out the bits, fitted them together and brought the boys back to life.

He became the patron saint of children, travelers and young women in distress, largely on the foundation of the two acts. The three golden balls he devised hang in front of pawn shops the world over, enabling those who overspend to borrow a few dollars.

St. Francis, the animals' friend, also was an early contributor to the holiday. Through him the friendly creatures so important to Yule time were brought into the Christmas picture.

The English drew from these traditions and celebrated their own brand of Christmas, based on ancient pagan rites. Americans adapted some of the English Christmas to their own holiday — the yule log of oak, mistletoe and food — plum pudding, goose and pork.

The Irish contributed holly, and from Germany came the Christmas tree — preferably fir — as the abode of the God Wodin. Attached to the tree are ornaments, originally fertility symbols.

The sleigh and reindeer are from the Dutch, though that picture wasn't complete until America's Rudolph appeared on the scene.

The English sang carols, ate food and lighted fires and even gave gifts of food — but that was on St. Stephens Day (Dec. 26). To them Christmas didn't achieve major proportions until the days of Queen Victoria. Her husband, Albert, a German, introduced many of his native country's customs to England.

Strange as it may seem to America, Christmas was outlawed altogether by the founding fathers. It was recognized, of course, but festivities were kept dormant. As late as 1845, Dec. 25 was a normal work day. Christmas did not win prominence until after the Civil War.

At least three people are responsible for Christmas as Americans celebrate it now -- Washington Irving, whose Knickerbocker's History of New York mentions the curious Dutch celebration; Clement Moore of New York, who published "The Night Before Christmas" in 1837, and Charles Dickens, who wrote "A Christmas Carol."

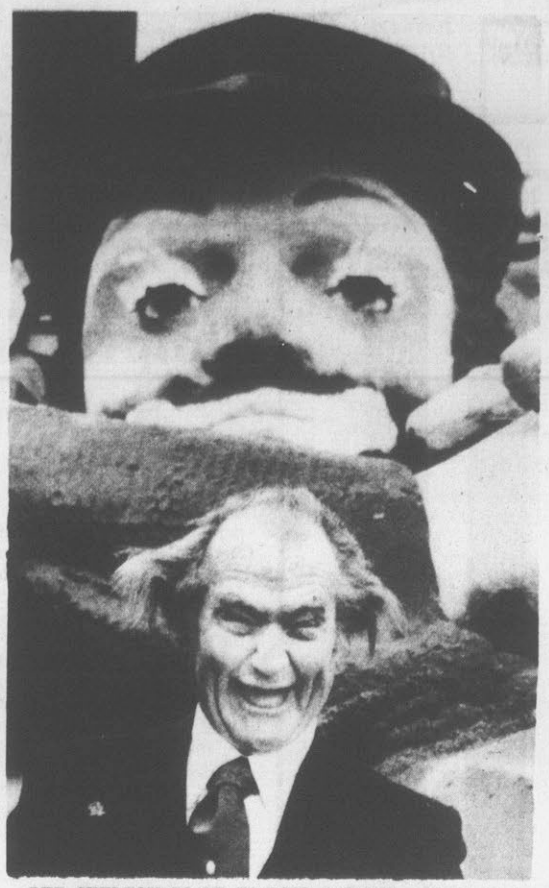
Little by little, the holiday caught hold. In 1891, President Grover Cleveland celebrated Christmas in the White House and the festive avalanche began to rumble.

Around these basic ideas, behind the blatant commercialism, there lurks a mass of tradition handed down from parent to child by word of mouth — babies born on Christmas Day will be lucky; a green Christmas Day will tell your fortune; Christmas Day forecasts the weather for the coming year.

Despite the best attempts of church and state to curtail or eradicate Christmas, the holiday continues bigger, louder and more expensive each year.

St. Nicholas has been removed from the canon of saints and the prelates of the church have shouted against it. But it continues. Attempts to outlaw Christmas trees, colored lights, ornaments, cranberries and even to regulate the kinds of presents one can give have been dismal failures, and those who rail against it are thought of as Scrooges.

And the merchants depend on it, the children accept it as proof of fairyland and even the old and cynical have been known to smile Christmas morning.



RED SKELTON TO BE IN ROSE PARADE — Comic Red Skelton enacts his hobo character "Freddie the Freeloader" as he stands in front of a huge replica of "Freddie" which will be featured on the Sunkist Growers float in the New Year's Day Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena. The giant character will be covered with flowers — as all floats are — before the start of the parade. (A P Wirephoto)

Stronger Heart Through Jogging

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — After his heart attack, Howard Pattiz was running scared. He's still running, but his fears get weaker as his heart gets stronger.

Memorial Day, 1976, is memorable for Pattiz, one of 25 persons in a jogging program at Barnes Hospital. That was the day of his heart attack.

"I was sitting home, having lunch," said Pattiz, 51. "I had had a two-week vacation in Florida and three days of sitting around and doing nothing. All of a sudden, I felt like someone had given me a bear hug or my chest was in a vise."

Now Pattiz and the others, ages 31 through 68, jog on a special track at the Irene Walter Johnson Institute of Rehabilitation.

Dr. Jon Cooksey, a cardiologist heading the program, says it is to see if jogging can prevent persons with a history of heart trouble from having more.

"A couple of studies have been done on so-called 'healthy' people that show if you can get proper exercise, you are one-third as likely to get heart trouble as you are if you are sedentary," Cooksey said.

"What is not known is, once you have developed heart trouble, how well exercise can forestall further trouble. This is the assumption behind the program but it hasn't been proven."

The men — only three joggers have been women — report to the long, brightly lighted room three times a week, before or after work. There is a rubberized track, 20 laps to a mile, ringed by medical equipment set up in case of an emergency that so far hasn't happened.

After warming up exercises, the joggers begin laps. They run when they can, otherwise walk. Their progress is charted readings from periodic tests of heart beat, blood pressure and cardiac output.

The jogging is supplemented with workouts on exercise bicycles and a treadmill. Results on these machines, used to push the participants to their limits, show the program seems to be working well.

"When we see patients inititally," Cooksey said, "we have them on the treadmill for six minutes. Three months later we increase it to 9½ minutes with an increased speed and steeper incline.

"We've measured a 35 per cent improvement — the heart rate is lower by 17 beats and the blood pressure is lower, plus the patients can actually do more."

Pattiz, who entered the program shortly after his Memorial Day attack, measures his improvement in simpler terms. The day he started he was able to jog seven laps. Six weeks later he was up to 34.

"It gives you confidence," he says. "If somebody has chest pains and doesn't know what they are, he starts to worry and they can get worse. The program takes a lot of apprehension out of it."

Frank Boltas is a salesman, like Pattiz, who thinks heart attacks almost seem to come with the territory. Boltas began jogging a few months after his heart attack in May, 1975.

"I've improved a whole lot," Boltas said. "People should have the treadmill test to put them under stress. I think the program makes you more aware of diet and proper eating habits."

Joe Lowder, the exercise physiologist for the program, is the man who puts the joggers through their paces. He says one of the main advantages of the program is helping put persons in closer touch with their own bodies — what they can do, what they can't do and how to deal with things that go wrong.

"Most people in the program realize all they can do is help themselves," Pattiz said.

Archduke Busy On Lecture Trail

NEW YORK (UPI) — He is a neatly turned out man with a warm personality, a bristly mustache, a scholar's passion for his favorite subject — a united Europe — and a profile befitting a descendant of a 700-year line of monarchs.

The Archduke Otto von Hapsburg, former pretender to the throne of Austria-Hungary (if there had been one), was 6 years old when his father's monarchy collapsed in 1919. Today, known simply as Dr. Otto Hapsburg — he has a Ph.D. in political science — he leads a wide-ranging and busy life as a lecturer and journalist.

"I don't have time to get tired," he said in an interview when he came here recently to lecture. Dr. Hapsburg lives near Munich with his wife, Princess Regina of Saxe-Meiningen, and four of their seven children.

He has lectured on every continent except Australia, his weekly newspaper column appears in seven countries, and he also writes for reviews. His 20th book was printed in Germany in September.

Dr. Hapsburg, who speaks six languages fluently, lectures and writes on political science, international affairs, and history.

In 1973 he became chairman of the Pan European Union movement, which has offices in all major countries, a job that takes most of his time now. He also serves as a policy consultant to a German organization.

His mother, the Empress Zita, is 85, the oldest living empress —"she lives in Switzerland and she's in remarkably good health."

As for his goal of a united Europe, Dr. Hapsburg says: "I think we are going to make it. I've seen a tremendous change in the attitude of political parties."

TOYOTA

INTRODUCING

"The Answer"

Corolla 2 Door Sedan
Model 1401

THE ANSWER—With the lowest price and highest gas mileage of any new car sold in America, the 1977 Toyota Corolla two-door sedan is the answer to everything the consumer has been looking for in a small car. Powered by a 1.2-liter, four-cylinder engine, the car has a price of $2,788.*It achieved 49 miles per gallon on the highway and 36 m.p.g. in the city in EPA economy tests. In California and high-altitude areas, the mileage varies because there the car is powered by a larger 1.6-liter, four-cylinder engine to meet stricter emission standards. The two-door sedan features a four-speed manual transmission, new grille design, power front disc brakes, high-back bucket seats, styled-steel wheels and power-boosted flow-through ventilation.

* This price does not include N.C. Sales Tax, dealer prep, title and license fees, etc.

100,000 Miles Or 3 Years New Car Warranty

USED CAR WARRANTY 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Survey Finds Women Want Dignity On Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Dignity on the job, a boss who is fair and work that generates a sense of identity or importance are the three most important job factors to a working woman, according to a survey sponsored by a temporary help service.

The survey, which queried women office workers on assignment for Western Temporary Services in seven states, revealed that women are unhappiest when asked to do trivial tasks, personal favors for the boss or to work for people who are not fully competent.

Do women prefer to work for a man or woman?

Of those who responded, 77 per cent prefer men as bosses; 13 per cent prefer women and 10 per cent said it didn't matter as long as the boss was competent. Those who preferred to work for men had a variety of reasons. Among them:

Men are less catty and easier to get along with; men usually don't flaunt their authority or regard women as a threat; men are easier to please — women bosses are too particular; men don't lose their tempers as fast as women and women bosses always feel competitive with 1t4

Those who would prefer to work for women cited female empathy. Said one respondent: "A woman understands the problems of working women, such as sick children, babysitting needs and the like."

The best bosses were almost unanimously described as "understanding." Said one woman: "I like a boss who understands that a woman — particularly one with children — may have to leave early on occasion and without much warning. Most bosses understand this, but some don't. Insensitive ones think it's all right to play golf all afternoon, but unreasonable for a mother to tend an injured child."

"Others are reasonably businesslike," and "able to view a subordinate as a person as well as a worker."

The worst faults bosses have, according to the women surveyed, are haughtiness, the use of foul language, poor administrative abilities and a patronizing attitude.

Said one: "The boss was never on top of his job. He waited until five minutes to quitting time to give you an hour's work. Then he wondered why morale was low and there were inefficiencies in the office."

Asked whether there was any one thing they would like to change on their job, the women responded with varied checklists; the working hours, the attitudes of coworkers, the need for more variety, the need for more challenging work.

As for why they work as temporaries, respondents cited "flexibility" and "variety" most often. Many said that home responsibilities made it impossible to accept a permanent job. Others pointed to the advantages of meeting new people and new work situations by working as temporaries.

The survey revealed that a majority of married women hold their jobs with their husband's approval. In some cases, the husband approves because the wife's paycheck augments his own. But in most cases, the husband welcomes the creative outlet that work provides for his wife.

A few husbands, however, do not approve. Said one wife: "My husband dislikes the independence work gives me. I think it makes him feel insecure." Another said: "My husband just thinks a woman's place is in the home."

Whether they enjoy working or not, over 50 per cent of the women who take temporary assignments said the main reason they work is financial. However, many women who were not obliged to work for financial reasons did so for the self-esteem that work provides. Said one woman: "I wouldn't have as much knowledge if I didn't work — and in a sense would lack the mental maturity of my husband."

Another said simply: "We'd be able to manage on my husband's salary, but I just enjoy working and being out of the house." She added: "The more successful my husband is, the more incentive I have to work to feel a sense of identity."

The survey covered women performing a wide range of office jobs, including secretary, bookkeeper, receptionist, file clerk and various data processing jobs.

Miss Wanda Kay Elks Is Bride

Miss Wanda Kay Elks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hallian Vernal Elks Jr., of Greenville, and George MacDonald Mackie IV, son of Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald Mackie III of Ramsey, N. J., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Irby Jackson performed the double ring ceremony in Immanuel Baptist Church. A program of music was rendered by Chris Jenkins, organist. Dee Braxton was violinist, and Douglas Newell sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white maracaine designed with a high draped Dior neckline and long fitted sleeves. The empire bodice was accentuated with gathered folds centered with a sheer motif overlayed in floral Venise lace entirely beaded with pearls. The gathered A-line skirt extended to an attached chapel length train.

She wore a fingertip length mantilla edged in floral Venise lace held in place by a profile cap headpiece covered with the floral Venise lace. The bride carried a formal cascade of white carnations, pearl white orchids and miniature holly tied with white velvet.

Mrs. Samuel Adams of Greenville was the matron of honor. Her emerald green nyesta crepe dress was fashioned with an empire waist, high neckline, and full skirt. The matching bolero had long sleeves with marabou trim. She carried a colonial bouquet of red and white carnations, sprays of holly tied with red velvet with long streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Alan Pittman and Mrs. Whitney Miller of Greenville, Miss Sue Spaugh of Charlotte, Miss Lynn Furr of Fayetteville, and Miss Linda Mackie of Ramsey, N. J., sister of the bridegroom. Their dresses and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

Miss Taylor Evans of Greenville was flower girl. She wore a dress of white silk organza with a tucked yoke trimmed with French lace tied with a green sash. She carried a white basket filled with red petals tied with a red velvet bow. Brent Elks of Greenville was ring bearer and carried a white satin pillow with sprays of red miniature carnations tied with red velvet.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Philip McCrory of Greensboro, Ron Hall of Eden, Steve Woodard of Charlotte, Randy Ladutko, of Mahwah, N. J., and Roddy Hoover of Charlotte.

After a wedding trip to the N. C. mountains, the couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

The bride is currently a senior at UNC-CH, where she is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. The bridegroom is also a senior at UNC-CH and is a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall after the wedding. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Vainwright and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Page.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Evans Jr. presided at the guest register.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of Christmas red and white carnations designed in a silver candelabra. The bride's table held a tiered decorated wedding cake flanked by silver candelabra. Throughout the fellowship hall were arrangements of red and white flowers.

Mrs. Harry Jones Jr. served the cake. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Rob Jones, Mrs. J. T. Williams, Mrs. Benjamin Eastwood, Mrs. Johnnie Elks, Miss Sherry Padget, Miss Judy Elks, and Miss Sherri Speight.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Surles.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Candlewick Inn given by Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Vainwright, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Page, Mr. and Mrs. Hank Tribley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. William Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Tripp.

The parents of the bride entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Candlewick Inn for the bridal party and out-of-town guests.

Melted butter, lemon juice and capers make a delectable sauce to serve over steamed fish fillets or fish steaks. Save the juice from the fish, after steaming, for use in a fish chowder.

Couple Weds In Private Ceremony

FARMVILLE — In a private ceremony, Miss Rebecca Anne Brumbeloe and Daniel Wesley Thomas were united in marriage Saturday at 12 noon. The First Baptist Church was the setting of the candlelight double ring ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Ronald Lee Davis.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Brumbeloe Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Russell Thomas Sr. of Farmville.

The church was decorated with candelabra and greenery. The mothers' pews were tied with ivory ribbon and greenery.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. W. C. Mercer of Farmville, organist. Soloist, Mrs. Dixon Sauls Jr. sang "There Is Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal length gown of ivory maracaine. The gown was designed with a high fitted neckline with self-covered button closures extending down the back of the gown to the waistline. The fitted empire bodice fell from the gathered shoulders. The long fitted sleeves featured cuffs highlighted with button closures. A belt of maracaine encircled the waistline and the modified A-line skirt extended to a chapel length gathered train. The bride's attire was complemented with a Juliet cap of ivory lace and she carried a single red rose tied with ivory ribbon.

Mrs. John Rouse attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of deep sapphire blue velvet. The gown was designed with an empire waist and high neckline adorned with ivory lace. She carried a single red rose.

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of emerald green with a matching fingertip length jacket. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of blue and gold brocade, complemented with a full length sleeveless coat.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a private reception was given for the couple at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple will reside in Farmville.

The bridal couple was honored at an after-rehearsal party given by their parents Friday at the DAR Chapter House, Farmville.

The house was enhanced with poinsettias, red carnations, greenery and candlelight. The party was highlighted with the cutting of the four-tier wedding cake by the bridal couple Entertainment included Mrs. Ronald Crisp of Stokes, pianist, dancing, and the musical debut of the "Pitch-Hickers" of Farmville, a barbershop quartet comprised of Jay Brumbeloe, Billy Wooten, Charles Davis and Buck Tredway.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Chester Outland Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Moses Moye. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Winborn and Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Davis.

The register was attended by Mrs. Robert Lane Brumbeloe and Mrs. E. H. Louder Sr. Punch was poured by Mrs. John Rouse assisted by Miss Ruth Russell. Cake was served by Mrs. Edward Russell Thomas II and Mrs. Aaron Callihan.

Mrs. Bonita Coward, Miss Lela Russell, Mrs. M. T. Helms and Miss Cathy Cogdell assisted. Miss Linda Barefoot, Miss Cindy Jackson, Miss Donna Jackson, Miss Elaine Sanders and Miss Becky Coward, who are members of the Farmville First Baptist Church's Acteen group, also assisted.

Ask Him To Leave Vitamin 'I' Off

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem small to some, but to me it's very important. My husband and I have been married over 30 years, during which time he has been a good husband and provider. He has only one fault, which really irritates me. He surely must take vitamin "I," because that's his favorite word.

When he talks about a trip we took together, he says, "When I went to Yosemite," or he'll say, "I have a grandson," or "I own some land." He talks as though he doesn't have a wife. I may as well be dead. It makes me feel so small and insignificant. It's terribly humiliating.

Is it wrong to feel hurt about this? Don't suggest that I talk to my husband. I have, and it's done no good.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Your husband's overdose of vitamin "I" has probably become addictive by now, but if he's a good man, he'll make a conscious effort to avoid hurting you. Remind him that vitamin "WE" is good for marriage, and ask him to leave vitamin "I" on the shelf for a while.

DEAR ABBY: I and several friends have hit upon an idea for losing weight, as far out as it may seem. We pull our shades down, lock the doors and then clean house in the NUDE.

We noticed overweight women do NOT tend to look at themselves in mirrors as much as more slender women. Well, in cleaning house (which is itself exercise) we force ourselves to look at our bodies. Our only rule is, try to keep the stomach muscles pulled in while cleaning. It's hard at first. But actually seeing the muscles tightened helps one to keep them taut after the body is clothed.

Most of us have mirrors in every room. As we go from room to room cleaning, we can't help but come face to face with ourselves. This may sound crazy, but I promise it works if done in earnest.

"AUSTIN"

DEAR "AUSTIN": Now, in addition, if you could arrange to watch yourselves EAT, you might have it made. (P.S. And should you decide to COOK in the nude, do wear an apron while frying bacon.)

DEAR ABBY: I hate to hurt people's feelings, especially nice ones. But this 55-year-old man who is very nice, very kind and very successful, keeps asking me out. I'm only 18, but I can subtract—he's 37 years older than me!

Fifty-five is not over the hill, but then again, it's a little more than adolescence. How, Abby, do I made him understand without making him feel rejected? I'd like to be friends, but as a lover, I just can't handle the idea! Remember, Abby, he is the kind of man you don't want to hurt.

ROBBED FROM THE CRADLE

DEAR ROBBED: Don't tell him he's too "old" for you—tell him you're too "young" for him. Or tell him that he reminds you of your father. And if that doesn't work, make it your grandfather.

Miss Judith Carson, Dr. Smith Speak Vows

BETHEL — Miss Judith Carol Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wade Carson of Bethel, and Dr. Joseph Roy Smith II, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Roy Smith of Hilton Head Island, S. C., were united in marriage Saturday at 4:30 p.m. in the Bethel United Methodist Church.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Ellis J. Bedsworth, minister of the church.

Organist, Mrs. Robert Harold Staton of Bethel presented a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony. Mrs. Norman Wilkerson of Greenville, sang "O Perfect Love" and "Ich Liebe Dich." Emery T. Davis of Bethel sang "Walk Hand In Hand" and "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a formal gown of white silkened organza over sata peau. The gown was fashioned with an empire waist, a colonial neckline and long fitted sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were covered in English net and rosepoint lace and the sleeves closed with traditional bridal buttons. The A-line skirt fell from the empire waist into a cathedral train. Panels of lace and net enhanced the front and back of the skirt, continuing into the wide scalloped border with swirls of seed pearls and iridescents embellishing the gown.

Her cathedral length mantilla, bordered with rosepoint lace adorned with seed pearls and iridescents, fell from a Camelot cap covered in matching lace. Lace appliques were applied on the illusion. The bride carried a formal cascade bouquet of stephanotis, white orchids and white roses interspersed with variegated holly.

Miss Barbara Kay Carson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of Christmas green velvet with an empire waist. The sleeveless gown featured a removable colonial capelet jacket and matching picture hat. She carried a marabou muff accented with red sweetheart roses encircled by variegated holly.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Tadlock Carson, Miss Deborah Staton Weeks, Miss Eugenia Louise Whitehurst, Miss Deborah James Purvis, all of Bethel, Mrs. Jerry Allen Carson, Mrs. John Hilton Carson, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Jerry Truman Gibson of Ayden. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to the honor attendant.

Miss Susan Leigh Roberson of Robersonville was flower girl. She wore a long dress of Christmas green velvet with colonial sleeves accented by white lace. She carried a basket of red sweetheart roses, white pom pons and variegated holly.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Thomas Clayton Carson III, Don Hardison Jr., both of Bethel, Dr. Ronald Honeycutt of Clinton, Dr. Harvey Thompson of Franklin, Va., Roy Albert Wentz III of Alexandria, Va., Michael German of Washington, D. C., and Gregory Backstrom of Worcester, Mass.

The mother of the bride wore a lacquer green handkerchief tiered chiffon formal dress and carried a white cattleya orchid fastened to her handbag. The mother of the bridegroom chose a chiffon formal dress in shades of ivory, mocha and dark coffee and wore a white cattleya orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wade Carson entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

Assisting at the wedding and reception were Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clayton Carson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ebern Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Samual Taylor Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Whitehurst Jr., Mrs. Roy M. James, Mrs. Ralph Carson and Mrs. James Crandell, all of Bethel, Mrs. Reginald Etheridge and Miss Margaret Register, both of Greenville

On Friday evening, the bridegroom's parents honored the wedding party and out-of-town guests at an after-rehearsal party at the Tarboro Inn. The dinner was followed by a dance given by friends of the bride.

A wedding breakfast was given by relatives of the bride at the Candlewick Inn Saturday morning.

The bride attended Peace College and is a graduate of ECU. She is associated with Carson Gas and Peanut Companies.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry, Chapel Hill. He is in private practice in Bethel.

After a wedding trip to Florida and the Virgin Islands, the couple will reside in Bethel.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I went shopping for dolls yesterday with my neighbor, Lorraine, and was I in for a shock. The toy industry has never heard of the Pill. There were dolls sitting around talking, laughing, crawling, walking, crying, burping, slobbering and filling their diapers.

"I cannot believe this," I gasped. "I used to get choked up when my doll's eyes closed."

"It's a whole new ballgame," she said tiredly. "See this one.. It has a battery-operated mouth."

"Don't all children?"

"It also comes with packets of food that you mix and feed with a spoon. An hour or so later, you have to change the diaper."

"If you know this, why would you feed it in the first place?"

"Did you catch the brother doll that is anatomically correct in every detail?"

We both squinted for a closer look and stared at one another numbly. Finally, I said, "That's pathetic."

"Well," she snapped, "what did you expect for $5.95?"

"Do you know what I think?" I observed. "I don't think there's any need for women to go through all the business of having babies anymore. In fact, I'd think twice before I even took on the responsibility of a doll."

"I know what you're saying," she nodded. "Last year, we took on two baby dolls, three teenage dolls and a bionic woman. We're in hock up to our eyeballs. The diaper service runs us $22 a month, the special food $32, and the batteries $18. One of our teenage dolls split. Got her own apartment and . . ."

"She got married?" I asked.

"I don't want to talk about it," she mumbled. "Then the bionic woman was desperate for a bionic beauty salon." Seeing my disbelief, she added, "She can't go to an ordinary shop, you know. She has to have read-outs and tests on her bionic ears."

"I never had a doll with ears until after I was married."

"We've been plagued by trouble," she sniffed. "G.I. Joe became a civilian and needed an entire new wardrobe' Cher became pregnant, and the Sunshine Family went through an ugly divorce. And I hate to tell you what happened to Stretch Armstrong. He's the muscle doll made of rubber who stretches to four feet. His arm got sucked up in the sweeper and now it looks like a tow rope. Frankly, I'm worried about myself. Yesterday, I did a bad thing. I took the batteries out of Little Bubbles."

"What's a mother for?" I said softly.

Dallas Nurse Directs Health Program

DALLAS (AP) — Deanna Sebestyen is representative of a new breed of nurses who are taking their work out of doctors' offices and hospitals and into the community.

Mrs. Sebestyen, 28, who received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Baylor University, Waco, Tex., five years ago, rejected the traditional role and set out, instead, to follow an independent path as a Nurse Practitioner.

For her achievement in creating and directing one of the nation's most innovative public health programs for children here she won the American Nurses Association's Honorary Nurse Practitioner Award this year.

Four years ago, while she was chairperson of the District Community Health Conference Group, Mrs. Sebestyen prepared a paper urging the city of Dallas to improve its health services for children in day care centers.

This paper soon grew into the Dallas Department of Health Day Care Enrichment Program, with Mrs. Sebestyen as coordinator. Today the program services more than 400 day care centers — some publicly supported and some church affiliated.

"Prior to our program," she says, "each of the city's public health nurses carried a caseload of 30 to 40 day care centers, besides many other responsibilities."

Though the overburdened nurses could and did prescribe what the children needed, they had no time to follow through or to develop close community ties, she pointed out.

Mrs. Sebestyen's first goal was immunization for communicable diseases, and with the support of parents, teachers and day care center directors, she and her staff immunized over 7,000 children in 1975.

Next, she developed an imaginative Community Health Helpers Program using a variety of audio-visual aids including film strips, records and books to teach young children about health care. Toddlers and preschoolers are shown equipment such as stethoscopes and clean syringes, which they are permitted to handle. They perform play procedures on puppets, on each other, and sometimes on the supervising nurse.

The busy Mrs. Sebestyen's schedule now includes a local radio program dealing with health care, classes on behavior management, special counseling to parents of children with developmental disorders, and a child health class for day care teachers. In addition she is studying for a master's degree in Child Development at Texas Women's University, Denton, and is writing a book for day care teachers on child health.

"Sometimes solving a child's health problem is as challenging as a jigsaw puzzle. The information comes through in bits and pieces, but how satisfying it is when all the pieces fit together," she says.

YOUNGSTERS TURN the tables on Deanna Sebestyen, coordinator of the Dallas Department of Health Day Care Enrichment Program, as they become familiar with equipment used in the program.

Chatham Club To Celebrate Anniversary

Plans are being made to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Chatham Book Club in April, 1977.

The name of Chatham was given to the club as Pitt County was named for Sir William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, who served as prime minister of England two times.

Mrs. N. S. Beard, now of Mullins, S. C., served as first president of the club. Mrs. R. H. Evans is now club president.

On Friday morning, April 16, 1937, 14 young women met at the home of Mrs. J. B. Kittrell for the purpose of organizing a literary club. Mrs. Kittrell, who is a member of the Sans Souci book Club, was sponsor for the Chatham Club.

There are seven charter members still active in the Chatham Club. The club has an active membership of 19 members and three honorary members. Charter members include Mrs. Carl Adams, Mrs. Frank Bendall, Mrs. Luther Bowling, Mrs. E. Lee Moore, Mrs. W. P. Moore, Mrs. A. C. Ruffin and Mrs. R. W. Stark.

The club is interested in the civic, social and cultural improvement of Greenville and Pitt County. The club's motto is "While we live, let us live to some purpose."

A portrait of Sir William Pitt was unveiled last Sunday in ceremonies held in Greenville.

A CANDY WREATH. . .was created by Tammy Lockhart of Greenville for the Pediatrics floor at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A different type of holiday wreath has been prepared by Tammy Lockhart of Greenville.

She covered a round styrafoam base with 16 types of candy and bubble gum. Working for about three hours, she attached the goodies by stringing each piece with a needle and heavy twine.

The finished product will be given to the pediatric floor of Pitt Memorial Hospital for the children, who are hospitalized there during the Christmas season.

Tammy saw a similar type idea in a magazine and decided she wanted to create one.

Tammy is a former candy striper and worked on the pediatric floor at the hospital. She now works at the Greenville Hemodialysis Center in the mornings and at a toy store in the afternoons. In addition, she attends Rose High School from 12 noon until 3:30, where she is a senior student.

In addition, she is a member of the VICA Club, Keywanettes and is head majorette at Rose. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lockhart of Greenville.

Tammy says she is interested in becoming a nurse after graduation from high school and that she would eventually like to work either on the pediatrics floor or in the nursery of a hospital.

About the seven and a half pound candy wreath, which is adorned with a large red bow at the top, Tammy says it was just fun!

Food Survey To Show How Americans Eat

By LINDA KUNTZ LOGAN

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — New Yorkers eat bagels, Southerners eat grits, and everybody eats pizza.

But what's lunch to somebody in Ohio is dinner to somebody in Alabama. While some Georgians consider red-eye gravy just this side of heaven, other Americans would sooner starve than eat that concoction made from ham fat and black coffee thickened with flour.

And then there's the question of soul food in the East and several versions of enchiladas in the West.

These and other regional food preferences are being studied by the Society for the North American Cultural Survey, whose membership consists largely of geographers and folklorists. The information they gather will be used in a comprehensive atlas of North American culture.

John F. Rooney, Jr., the society's executive director, says the food survey is the first and most detailed part of the project.

"We're trying to find out if there are regional differences in what people eat and drink, in how they prepare it," Rooney said in an interview.

He is a cultural geographer on sabbatical to the University of South Carolina from Oklahoma State University. He said a random test done last summer in Washington, D.C. showed enthusiasm among participants.

He said the project includes both laymen and academics.

"I think there is a groundswell of public interest in popular culture and folklore," Rooney said. "The eventual publication would be aimed at both the public and academic communities."

The society hopes to finish data collecting and editing by the middle of 1978 and publish the atlas by 1980.

Its first survey is underway in New York State, which Rooney said is tough because of the state's ethnic diversity and large population. Tests also will be conducted during the 1976-77 academic year in Oklahoma, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, and possibly California.

A representative sampling of about 1,600 persons in New York will be asked about when they eat, what they eat, and what they call it.

The atlas will also look at America's drinking habits.

"Booze is very regionalized," Rooney said. "For example, Wisconsin consumes the highest amount of brandy in the United States, almost 12 times the national average."

Insurance Women Hold Holiday Party

McCants is a resident of the center and was adopted by the club last year. Mrs. Marlowe is a social worker at Caswell. Gifts from club members were presented to McCants.

The club also sponsors a welfare child in the Pitt County area and the child will be remembered with gifts.

Special guests for the meeting were Kenny Jenkins, LeeEllen Jenkins, Nina Bland, Bill Lee, Lou Wilson and husbands of many of the members.

Tied Up For A Festive Evening

DO IT YOURSELF—To form an evening blouse with dramatic butterfly sleeves that may be worn as shown, left, or over any basic evening dress, two large square scarves are knotted together end to end. The knot goes behind the neck so that each scarf drapes over a shoulder. The two front corners are then knotted, as are the remaining four, under each wrist. At right, vibrantly colored floral print scarf is easily transformed into a bare-back halter. One end is sewn over a gold neckring and the two side corners tie in back to create a one-of-a-kind look for evening. (Scarves by Vera.)

Good trick: make small slits in lamb that is to be roasted and stuff the slits with a mixture of crushed garlic and crushed rosemary.

Beef in a sour-cream sauce is good served with rice, noodles, buckwheat groats or bulgur. Take your choice.

Some good cooks like to roast fresh ham with a barbecue sauce.

Some good snack cooks like to serve heated frankfurters on toasted buns topped with chili.

Boys' Town Has A Different Image

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer

BOYS TOWN, Neb. (AP) — Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney wouldn't recognize the old place any more.

It's grown. It's changed. But this time every year it still asks for contributions to continue its work, despite a reputation of once having raised more than it could spend.

Boys Town has come a long way since Father Edward J. Flanagan started it as his "Boy's Home" in 1917 with five homeless boys in an Omaha house.

Public donations and an enterprising sense of business has built it into a 190-acre establishment with an endowment fund that comes to $1 million an acre and a total worth of $240 million.

Remember: "He ain't heavy. He's my brother," and the picture of the young ragamuffin carrying his sleeping brother? That was the classic image of Boys Town. But today the orphans are different.

"We're dealing with what I call 'social orphans,'" says the Rev. Robert P. Hupp, the 61-year-old director. "When Flanagan started the home, an orphan was someone that the rest of society didn't want. Today, adoption lists are so long you don't see orphans anymore."

Today's Boys Town residents are the products of alcoholic or divorced parents and broken homes who "have gotten into trouble or are sure rehearsing for it."

The Rev. John Farrald was an orphan who graduated from Boys Town in 1940. He now directs one of the four "communites" of the new Boys Town.

Today, less than one per cent of Boys Town's 400 boys are real orphans. All but 17 per cent come from one-parent families.

Boys Town officials admit there have been discipline problems until very recently.

Father Hupp says that when he took over in 1973, the boys "didn't know what discipline was. The list of AWOLs was long by the time I got in in the morning."

Many blame Hupp's predecessor, the Rt. Rev. Nicholas H. Wegner, who was 75 when he retired.

"Administratively, things began to suffer as Wegner got older," says Father Farrald. "We also lost priests because the Archdiocese (of Omaha) just had a shortage ..."

The school went to a system of cottage counselors, but the counselor "was more or less there to yell fire," says Dr. Lonnie Phillips, who came to Boys Town last year to direct its youth care program. "He didn't hassle a kid because he wanted his eight-hour shift to go smoothly."

"Kids were sullen, the cottages, were dirty," Phillips says. "Boys Town had a good academic program, but the rest of the school was in deterioration."

Phillips ordered a renovation of cottages and construction of 16 new homes that will open early next year, housing no more than 10 boys per unit. He closed the cafeteria and laundry, saying a family atmosphere cannot be maintained if boys shuffle in line to eat and send out their clothes. He fired many house parents and advertised for couples willing to spend 24 hours and some of their vacations with the boys as "teaching parents." They are required to train in a course worth 30 college credits toward a master's degree.

"The ship was sunk, as low as it could go, by the time Wegner retired," says Charlie Bagley, the 17-year-old mayor of Boys Town, who has been on the campus since his mother died 10 years ago, leaving him an orphan. "The training of the house parents has made a dramatic change. The kids now realize they don't just live here, they've got somebody behind them."

Boys Town is changing the way all child care institutions should, he says.

"The courts have held that you can't just warehouse a kid. You've got to do something for him, and you've got to attempt to do it close to his home," Phillips said.

So Boys Town is opening satellite homes. Each has a small group of boys and uses the "teaching parent." The homes are evaluated by a team of Boys Town specialists.

Six such homes are opening this year in Las Vegas, Houston and in Montana. Boys Town's investments in these homes, and in other projects, were stimulated at least in part from disclosures in 1972 that Boys Town earned or collected more money than it spent, despite the appeals for help at Christmas.

While Phillips arrived from the University of Kansas to direct child care operations, Dr. Ronald Feldman brought a string of credentials in social work research to the new Boys Town Center for the Study of Youth Development.

Feldman and a crew of researchers are operating in temporary quarters while they await the completion next year of a $10-million center that will house computers, a research library and accommodations for visiting research fellows.

Some $40 million was committed by Boys Town for the center, being built in Omaha, and for research at Stanford University at Palo Alto, Calif., and the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

Work at the campuses and the center will be aimed at developing better research methods, training graduate students in research on youth development, and translating the results of research into language and programs that can be used by parents and childcare workers.

Another new thrust at Boys Town is the Institute for Communication Disorders in Children.

For The Would-Be Skier: How You Can Get Started

By FRED T. FERGUSON

NEW YORK (UPI) — "It's being on top of a mountain in the early morning with 'pogo-nips' shimmering all around you and rime ice on the trees, clouds below you filling the valleys and blue sky above."

This is the New England Ski Areas Council talking — about skiing, of course. It explains pogo-nips are frost particles that float in the air.

Such descriptions are among the enticements bringing an estimated 11 million Americans to the slopes this winter. The problem for those who have not skied before is how to start.

Doug Pfeiffer, former ski school director, racer, Skiing Magazine editor and a leading originator-promoter of freestyle skiing — ballet, hot dogging, acrobatics — took time out from lecturing on ski safety and giving advice on ski equipment at the National Ski Show here to talk about it.

"Before you ski, get some advice. Ask a good skier you know or, go to a ski shop and ask their advice. Rent equipment at the shop or at the ski area you select.

"An advantage of renting at the shop is you don't have to wait in line to rent and have adjustments at the ski area. But it may be best the very first time to rent at the ski area because they often have a package deal for first timers that includes rental, lift ticket and that all important first lesson.

"Look for the smaller, family ski area. There are any number of little day areas where you can ski at half the price of some of the bigger ones.

"Rent equipment for at least the first three weekends. Ski equipment is a sizeable investment. For top equipment, it will run in the neighborhood of $200 for high boots, $100 for bindings, $200 for skis and poles, $250 for clothes. That's $750.

"But serviceable new equipment can be had for less than half that, about $325: low boots $75, skis and poles $100, bindings $50, clothes $100."

Pfeiffer said a package deal is often available for less than that. He did not go into it but there are other ways to cut costs.

Operating a booth nearby at the ski show was Mrs. Honor Jones, herself a ski mother and now president of Donner Designs, Reno, Nev. Her firm produces ski clothes kits for those who sew. She says purchase of a kit and sewing the precut fabric at home will cut the cost of ski clothes 50 per cent.

"My son is a racer and I got into this making clothes for him," she said. Now she has a business employing 30 workers producing the kits.

Then there are the swap shops. Many ski areas have them. As skiers move up to equipment keyed to improved skills, they sell their other equipment through such shops. Doing a booming business with his Ski Swap center at the show was Jerry Krahnert, who noted he also makes available some new equipment he obtains from manufacturers' overstocks.

Whatever the new skier does in terms of equipment, Pfeiffer noted good boots and bindings are all important. Having the bindings fitted and adjusted to the skis and boots so they release properly in event of a fall is even more important for safety.

A reputable ski shop must do this. Ski areas invariably have their own. If looking for one closer to home, Pfeiffer suggested asking the advice of a knowledgeable skier and lacking that, look for the shop that tests the bindings and boots and skis with the skier in them and also with one of the machines that gauge the pressures needed to cause the bindings to release.

One more thing. If considering purchasing equipment, many ski shops will credit a portion or all of the initial rental of that equipment toward its purchase.

You've had a taste of skiing over a period of several weeks. You really dig it. What next?

"The best way to learn to ski is a ski week. At other than holiday times, many areas offer package rates — room, board, lift tickets, lessons, equipment rentals for the whole week at a bargain," Pfeiffer said. "You'd be two or three years ahead of the game if you could go for a ski week."

Claudine's Trial Set Next Month

By DEBORAH FRAZIER

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Nine months and two Colorado Supreme Court appeals later, Frenchborn singer Claudine Longet will stand trial next month in the slaying of her lover, ex-ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

The former wife of singer Andy Williams has been charged with felony manslaughter for allegedly shooting Sabich March 21, 1976, with a .22-caliber pistol in the posh $250,000 home they had shared for almost two years.

Miss Longet, 35, called authorities to the natural stone and glass home overlooking this Rockies resort town on a sunny Sunday afternoon. They found Sabich, clad only in his underwear, fatally wounded in the stomach.

As Sabich lay dying on the ambulance ride into town, petite Claudine cradled his head in her lap and cried. She later told officials he was showing her how to use a gun when the safety catch released.

Miss Longet, a one-time Las Vegas showgirl who has retained a strong French accent, pleaded innocent to the charges June 10. If convicted in the trial set for Jan. 3, she would face a sentence of up to two years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The trial first was scheduled Aug. 30 but was delayed because the prosecution appealed an order by District Judge George Lohr to suppress Miss Longet's diary and medical tests.

The red bound volume was confiscated from Sabich's house as evidence. In her diary, Miss Longet allegedly detailed the cooling of her love affair with Sabich and discussed her feelings about an April 1 deadline he set for her to move out.

Blood and urine tests were performed on Miss Longet the night of the slaying to determine if she had used alcohol or narcotics.

That court appeal, still unresolved, is the second legal battle brought in the case. The first was filed by more than a dozen news media organizations to gain admission to a closed evidentiary hearing.

Although the first appeal reached the U.S. Supreme Court, reporters were denied access to the hearing. However, Lohr later released a transcript of the hearing.

Lohr has reserved his walnut paneled courtroom in a restored Victorian era court building for a month for the trial. Other estimates on trial duration range from two days to two weeks.

Since she was charged, Miss Longet has purchased a $153,000 home in town with a clear view of Red Mountain where she lived with Sabich. She teaches twice-weekly French lessons to second graders, continues a busy social life and attends local parties with a variety of escorts.

Sabich's home, located in an exclusive development also inhabited by singer John Denver and writer Hunter Thompson, has been taken over by the skier's brother Stefan, 29, who owns a construction business in Aspen.

Sabich won the World Pro crown in 1971 and 1972. He competed in the 1968 Olympics, but was plagued by injuries in recent years.

The Placerville, Calif., native won less than $700 on the tour in 1975 and supplemented his income by lending his name and handsome face to car, ski equipment and clothing ads.

Miss Longet's three children by her marriage to Williams lived with the couple in their mountain love nest and Sabich was close to the youngsters, often preferring their company on the slopes to that of fellow racers.

Noelle Williams, 13, reportedly was in the house when Sabich was killed, but she was not listed among the 36 witnesses District Attorney Frank Tucker said he planned to call.

Bob Beattie, coach of the Pro Cup Tour and a close friend of Sabich, will be called as a witness as will 11 sheriff's deputies, Stefan Sabich and numerous friends and neighbors.

Charles Weedman, Miss Longet's attorney who defended a member of the Charles Manson gang on murder charges in 1971 in Los Angeles, has not released his list of witnesses.

TRIAL COMING . . . Frenchborn singer Claudine Longet and former ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich were arm-in-arm at ski races in December, 1975. Miss Longet will stand trial next month in the slaying of her lover, Sabich, for allegedly shooting him with a .22 caliber pistol in the posh $250,000 home they shared for almost two years. Buffett Works On Film Project

By RICHARD H. LOWE
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jimmy Buffett, who created a cast of zany characters for six record albums, is putting some of their antics on film in a project with writer Thomas McGuane.

Buffett said he and McGuane, a longtime friend, are working together on "Mangrove Opera." He said the movie will be shot in Florida next March.

"It's set in the Everglades along Alligator Alley. It's about these reprobates who run a reptile serpentarium and get involved in a cocaine smuggling operation," said Buffett, 29.

Buffett said he met McGuane five years ago. He was playing the bars in Key West, Fla., and McGuane was finishing his third novel, "92 in the Shade."

"We were down there at a time when we were broke and didn't know anybody," Buffett said in his slight Alabama drawl — he's from Mobile. "I was just playing in the bars and having a good time, but recognition came along and sort of stymied that."

From Buffett's imagination came a string of comic characters — the TV quiz show emcee, a lamenting dope smuggler who blew all his profits, the drunken reveler of life, a moonshine-loving bear and a man who quests for a "good 10-cent cigar."

"If you can't laugh, you're really lost," Buffett said in an interview. "If you can laugh at things, you won't find them as menacing."

Buffett graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in journalism and showed up in Nashville in 1969. He worked awhile for "Billboard," then tried his hand at recording.

It was singer Jerry Jeff Walker who beckoned him back to Nashville — from Key West — in 1973 to record "A White Sport Coat and a Pink Crustacean."

The "Key West Troubadour" has said he avoids any attempt to label his music.

"Buffett is dedicated as ever to certain indecencies and, shall we say, reversible brain damage," said McGuane. "And as a souvenir of some not so terrible times, this throwback altarboy of Mobile, Ala., brings spacey up-country tunes strewn with forgotten crab traps, Confederate memories, chemical daydreams, Ipana vulgarity, ukelele madness and, yes, a certain sweetness."

Buffett's hit single, "Come Monday," was included in his 1973 album, "Living and Dying in ¾ Time." Vintage Buffett — he claims he was unaware of the song's popularity until he heard it playing on a radio in a laundromat in London.

Eastern Skiing More Varied, Accessable

By PETER MAY

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — When President Ford was fighting his New Hampshire primary battle with Ronald Reagan, the state's ski-area operators suggested he skip Vail, Colo., and do his Christmas vacation skiing in the White Mountains.

It was reasoned the visit would be a boon to eastern skiing and buoy the President's chances in New Hampshire's first-in-the nation contest.

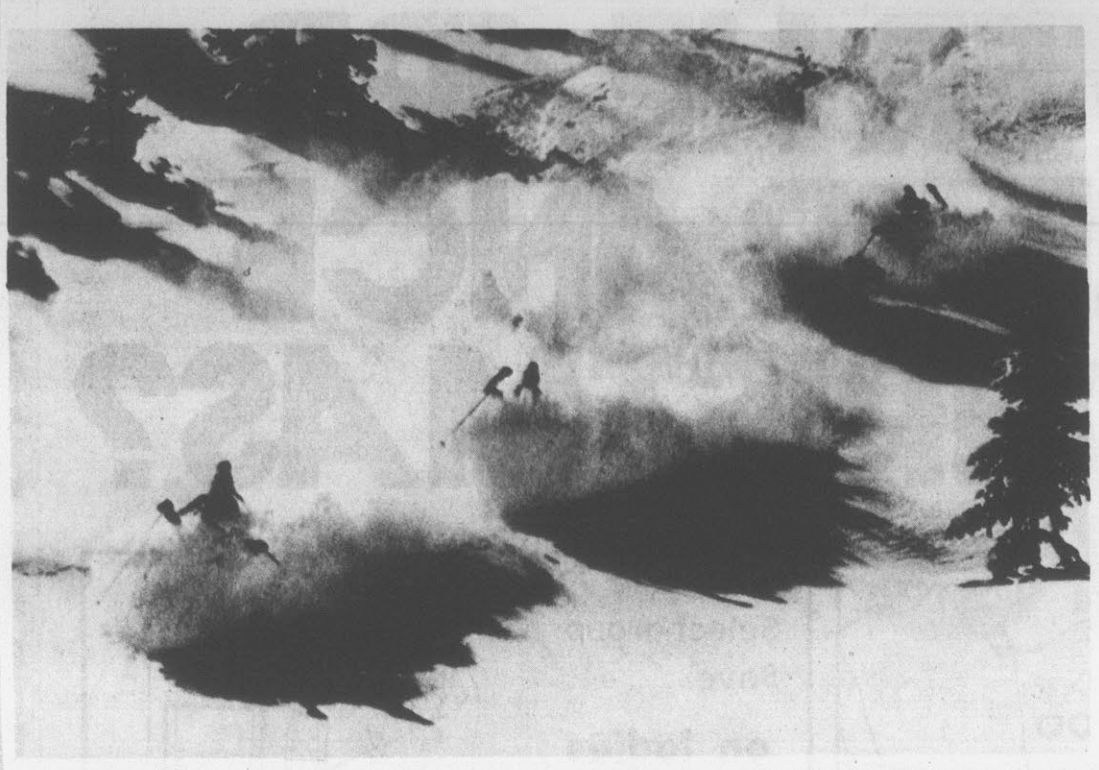
There was no visit, and the state's ski industry turned hostile when Press Secretary Ron Nessen said eastern skiing in December was "too icy, unpredictable, and generally unreliable."

Susan Ford later skied at Mt. Cranmore in the Mt. Washington Valley and had no complaints, a wise move in publicity-conscious New Hampshire. There were "a few icy spots," but no more than "anywhere," she said, pledging, "I'll be back."

No member of the First Family returned to New Hampshire to ski, but that hasn't dimmed the optimism of eastern ski operators, who tend to couch comparisons with the West in "if, then" terms.

If the West has what skiers call "champagne powder," and the East has what's known as "boiler plate ice," then the eastern skier is better equipped to handle all snow conditions than someone accustomed only to the best powder.

If the West is more spacious, the East is more accessible.



COMPARISONS . . . Eastern ski operators tend to make comparisons with the West in "if, then" terms. If the west has what skiers call "champagne powder," and the east has what's known as "boiler plate ice," then the eastern skier is better equipped to handle conditions than someone accustomed only to the best powder. These skiers skim through powdered snow in Vail, Colorado. (UPI Telephoto)

Began In 1936

If the West has the movie stars and the President, the East has the tradition and the down-home approach.

Operators feel the only things the East lacks are Coors beer and a counterpart to John Denver's paeans to the Rocky Mountains.

Downhill skiing in America had its start in 1936 in New Hampshire's Mt. Washington Valley when Carroll Reed borrowed $1,000 to import Benno Rybizka from Austria to run a ski school. Sharon Bross of Ski-East at Topsfield, Mass., said the East now has more than 400 ski areas from the Canadian border to North Carolina, offering greater variety and selectivity than the West affords.

"The biggest thing eastern skiing has is its variety. Ski areas were built at different times for different reasons," she said.

Challenging Bumps

But people ski on snow, not on selectivity and variety. For that reason, the conditions about which Ron Nessen spoke bring varied reactions from skiers.

An engineer at General Electric in Schenectady, N.Y., got tired of what he called "white asphalt" in the East and moved to Denver. But a couple of upstate Vermonters, disconsolate while skiing in the Alps, demanded, "where's the challenge — the steep hills, the icy trails and bumps?"

Bob Cochran, 24, of Richmond, Vt., world class skier and brother of Olympic gold medalist Barbara Cochran, trained for the upcoming season at Waterville Valley, N.H.

"Training in the East is superior to training in the West because the snow is too soft in the West and gets rutted very quickly," he said. "It's also important to have a choice of shorter and longer lifts so that you don't have to ride a long lift just to ski a short trail."

The U.S. Ski Team chose to train at Killington in Vermont, not so much because of the snow there as the lack of it elsewhere. Coach Hank Tauber said it was the best session ever.

Massive Snowmaking

Killington was able to accommodate the racers because of a distinctly eastern phenomenon — snow farming.

Because of the lack of snowfall in the East, many areas rely more and more on snowmaking and grooming equipment to keep up with the demands of skiers. Most areas, after a late fall planting and round-the-clock tending, have no problems getting bumper crops.

Killington last year spent almost $400,000 on snowmaking operations. The Vernon Valley-Great Gorge area near the New York-New Jersey state line produces 110,000 cubic feet of snow an hour. It says it has the world's largest snowmaking system.

Snow farming begins once the weather turns cold enough to make snow. Workers use a snow gun to shoot water which turns to snow before it hits the ground. Snow tractors are used to pack the snow at night to curtail melting.

"With snowmaking, you can make it light and fluffy or bulletproof," said Foster Chandler of Killington. "The team loved it."

The 1980 Winter Olympic games will be at Lake Placid, N.Y., where a new lift has doubled capacity and work has begun on Whiteface Mountain, New York's highest peak.

Fashions: Men Flashier

But to many, the opening of a new ski season heralds the arrival of the latest in ski fashions, equipment, food, drink and entertainment.

Bart Bossidy, buyer for Carroll Reed's Ski Shops, said women this year are buying grays and browns while the men are going with the harsh greens and blues. "The ladies are prettier but the men are flashier," he said.

Bossidy said men primarily wear parkas while women don suits and bib pants, an overall-like garment. They don't come cheap. An Albany, N.Y., mother of two who has skied once in her life recently bought a $250 ski outfit. Once the whole family was suited up, the bill exceeded $1,000.

Gluwein and Veal

The Swiss-born owner of the Four Ways Restaurant at posh Waterville Valley said his customers go for Continental cuisine and gluhwein, a spicy hot wine, or hot buttered rum. Andre Meyer, who has served the Kennedy clan, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and singer Andy Williams, says the most popular dish is veal Piccata Milanase — veal with mushroom sauce.

And there is apres-ski, the skiers' term for rest and relaxation. Country music twangs, rock music wails. Skiers lined up six deep for a beer in the lounge at the opening of Hunter Mountain in New York.

Some, the true skiers, hit the sack early and hit the slopes early the next day, said Nano Bliss of Mt. Washington Valley.

"People who are really into skiing stop the night life. It's more for the snow bunnies, more for people who aren't that dedicated."

Day Trip Debate

The apres-ski business booms more in the West because eastern skiing is more of a day-trip activity. Clint Rand of Waterville Valley said the accessibility of New England ski areas makes possible a day trip from as far away as New York and New Jersey.

"But you don't go to Alta for the day unless you live in Salt Lake City," he said.

Todd May, 28, a rug salesman in Boston and avid New England skier, worked and skied for a year in Aspen. He prefers Colorado and dismissed the notion the East was more family-oriented.

Horses Family Affair

By FRED T. FERGUSON

NEW YORK (UPI) — As far back as she can remember, Donna Abecasis has loved horses.

One time — nine years ago — her father, Robert, broke down and told her he would pay for just one riding lesson if she would try harder in school. She did and he did.

"Once she got on a horse, her eyes sparkled so much I told her I would never take her off," says Bob Abecasis, a dispatcher for the New York City Transit Authority. "And from there I went into bankruptcy."

It was the start of an activity that eventually took up the entire family's leisure time. It also took Donna to Madison Square Garden to compete with the nation's best young riders and, like the name of her horse, gave her a "Precious Moment."

After that first lesson, Donna's parents — her mother, Dorothy, works at a hospital near their Wappinger Falls, N.Y., home — hired horses for her to ride and paid for more lessons. A goodly portion of the family income was going to horses. They figured they might as well go all the way and buy one.

First, they got "a pet." Finally, little more than a year ago, they bought Precious Moment, a five-year-old chestnut gelding. Donna's riding instructor, Kip Rosenthal, figured Precious Moment could be taught to jump.

"Donna worked awfully hard," says her mother. The horse learned. Donna began to ride in horse shows. This was one time Bob Abecasis got a financial break. Most parents of horse show children are well-to-do. They buy mounts trained to jump — a far more expensive proposition. A "basic" horse for such classes generally costs at least $2,000, usually closer to $10,000, some much more.

Showing meant the purchase of a trailer to haul Precious Moment. It meant entry fees — $5 to $15 a class, several classes to a show. It meant boarding and shoeing Precious Moment. This generally runs $250 per month in the East.

And it meant a riding outfit. To buy one new, according to Dave Wright of M.J. Knoud, one of the better known saddleries, it would have meant: coat $150, breeches $50, boots $200, hunt cap $30, stock shirt $12.50, stock tie $3.50, stock pin $3.50 and gloves $12.50. Dave says riding gloves are essential but a man's shirt and tie can be substituted for the shirt stock tie and pin.

But he adds, "Try going skiing and see what it costs."

Despite such high costs of horse showing, more and more families of relatively modest means find ways to get around some of the costs and participate.

There are ways to cut costs. The Abecasis family did. Initially, at least, riding clothes and such things as spurs, bat, saddle, bridle, horse blankets, and grooming tools can be had secondhand or as hand-me-downs. But, for the National, Donna had a new outfit, except for boots, which she already had.

Among those who do it for less are the children of professional horsemen bound for a possible career as trainers of other young riders.

Polly Howard, 15, of Temperance, Mich., whose father and grandfather own a riding stable there, was one of the young riders who competed with Donna at the National Horse Show. Mrs. Judy Helder of Augusta, Mich., allows Polly, who also finds time to play center on her high school basketball team, to ride her mounts.

And whole family participation helps. No grooms for the Abecasis. Donna's father drives when they "trailer" Precious Moment. He helps with just about everything else, including making show entries. Her mother keeps track of paraphernalia and does the mane and tail braiding. The two younger Abecasis children — they now ride "the pet" — help with the care and grooming.

"Every weekend, it's off to a show," said Abecasis.

Last spring and summer, Donna rode in 18 horse shows before qualifying for the finals of the top horsemanship event, "The Maclay." She had to win four Maclay classes to make the finals. That was a feat in itself.

Most young people who reach the finals have been showing for several years. Often, their horses have been at it much longer.

Fire Eating Clowns Clowned Way Across U.S.

By JOSEPH A. GAMBARDELLO

NEW YORK (UPI) — Karen Gresch was under the table and didn't know what was happening. Jessica Hentoff's rubber gloves were on fire and Claudia Constant was running around trying to stomp out flames.

The crowd roared with laughter.

"We had never gotten such a response from the audience," Karen says. "I wondered what was going on. I didn't know what was happening."

It was one of the hazards of the trade. Karen, Jessica and Claudia are clowns who include fire eating in their act. In the last year they have clowned and juggled their way across the continent from the Olympics in Montreal to California and now, back to New York.

They call themselves Triplopy. It means triple vision.

It was at a California amusement park that Karen — who, with a board across her front, bends over backward to become a table — knocked over the fuel for the fire eating act.

One thing led to another and Karen and Jessica soon were aflame and Claudia was trying to stomp out the fire.

The audience thought that it was part of the act. Maybe someday, if they can perfect it, it will be.

Fortunately, there were no injuries and because only the fuel burned, there was no damage to any of the group's property. It made Jessica think of her mother's fears.

Because of her fire eating, Jessica says, "My mother is sure that I'll have an early death."

Triplopy got its start in 1974 when Jessica and Claudia, now both 21, became interested in clowning while taking circus classes in college at Purchase, N.Y. They organized a juggling act of their own and that summer the two New Yorkers found a vacation job with the Circus Kingdom.

Karen, 25, holds a fine arts degree from Pace College. She has been involved in performing in one way or another since she was 13 and became interested in clowning through people she met while working as a magician's assistant.

Karen went to work with a group called Piccolo Circus and met Jessica and Claudia when the two girls went to watch a performance of that outfit.

Since then Triplopy has appeared both on stage (recently at the Courtyard Playhouse in New York) and television (Sun Up, a San Diego morning program). But they've made their real income from impromptu street performances where they depend on the charity of equally impromptu audiences.

They say street work provides an "erratic income." But working the streets and plazas of Montreal during the Olympics this past summer, they were able to make over a thousand dollars. "It was enough money to get us to California," Jessica says.

Having experienced the audiences in Montreal, they were able to make a comparison with the street audiences of New York, where they usually work.

"The people of Montreal were very kind and receptive," Karen said." In New York it can be tough. You can draw some rather hostile crowds."

The trio produced their own show at the Courtyard Playhouse. They had planned to add another week but the absence of backers prevented it.

The girls practice in a studio that is part of Karen's loft-apartment. They schedule their sessions around three things:

— When the studio is free, as Karen rents it out to other groups for extra income.

— When Claudia isn't working at her part-time waitress job.

— When Jessica isn't attending college classes for a degree in sociology.

CLOWNS — Claudia Constant, Karen Gresch and Jessica Hentonn are clowns who include fire-eating in their act. In the last year, they have clowned and juggled their way across the continent from the Olympics in Montreal to California and now back to New York. (UPI photo)

Kissinger Is Supported

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger not only has public survey approval for his conduct in office — he's become an honorary, nonplaying member of the Harlem Globetrotters.

The Harris Survey reported Thursday that Kissinger got a positive rating from 58 per cent of 1,330 adults interviewed last month and a negative rating from 33 per cent, while 9 per cent declared themselves unsure.

The research organization said Kissinger was one of few public officials surveyed in recent years who never got less than majority support.

In his letter of acceptance for an honorary spot on the Globetrotters basketball team, Kissinger said he was not much on the fast break, "but I'm strong on defense.... My only worry is how I will look in short pants."

Cocaine Nearly Ruined Singer

By WILLIAM SAUL
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cocaine may be resurfacing as the chic drug of the '70s. But it nearly ruined the career of singer-songwriter Hoyt Axton, a beefy, free-wheeling man who writes hits like "Snow-Blind Friend" and "The Pusher."

He wasn't hooked, as the cocaine joke goes, he just used the stuff for about 10 years and failed in several serious attempts to give up the pristine white powder.

Axton, built like a punchy ex-pro linebacker, would walk into tiny hotel room toilets, flush his stash down the drain and dance on tippy-toes around the room exclaiming: "I'm free, I'm free."

But he wasn't. A few hours later, he'd be on the telephone to score just a little more, "In case I needed it."

Axton is candid about all this, a refreshing attitude uncommon to most music business figures.

He tells how several fans, including members of a popular contemporary country band, walked out in disgust over shoddy work during a nightclub performance in Denver a few years ago.

The entertainer was not in good shape. He had been living high, using cocaine and booze to fuel his days, then smoking some potent hashish to help him nod off at night.

He didn't exactly remember the Denver performance when he awoke the next morning. His road crew took down the sound equipment as he watched, but he didn't remember that either.

"My life was a mess," he said. "On the way to Kansas City from Denver I decided to give up the coke once and for all. You could say I've fought my battle with drugs and won."

True enough — his career seems to be hitting another peak — though the girls at his record company say he still enjoys an occasional taste of tequila.

Recently, he's nailed down several acting stints on television, including one as a country singer for an upcoming "McCloud" episode entitled "The Moscow Connection." And his Denver performance prompted "The No-No Song," a hit for ex-Beatle Ringo Starr.

Ringo Starr is one of many performers who have recorded Axton-penned numbers.

What kind of man can come back from a 10-year fling with cocaine coupled with divorce, hit the road with a touring band and perform for television audiences?

Axton, 38, is the guy who portrayed the grinning Big Mac in those television commercials of a few years ago. He also made appearances in several television series, including "Ironside."

He definitely has an eye for the girls and says he's really a gentle person under that rough exterior.

Axton is an individualist from his shaggy graying hair to the bottom of his pointy-toe cowboy boots.

His brand of music is difficult to label.

He calls it "literate country." But it's really more like country-western, boggie-woogie, gospel rock 'n' roll.

Rosalynn's Dress Knocked

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Rosalynn Carter's trip around the dance floor inauguration night will be a sentimental journey, her dress designer says.

Despite criticism from the fashion industry, she will wear the blue chiffon and taffeta gown she wore in 1970 when her husband, President-elect Carter, was inaugurated as Georgia governor.

A dress industry spokesman described the gown as "a sleeveless coat that goes over the dress. They called it back then 'a starlight blue chiffon, interwoven with sapphire blue lurex, with all-over gold embossed design edged in gold-embroidered bead trim.'"

CARTER INVITATION — This is President-elect Jimmy Carter's inaugural invitation which is being mailed to dignitaries, old friends, early supporters and political leaders. Some 300,000 general invitations are being sent for the January 20 event. (AP Wirephoto)

Shari Belafonte Wants To Be A Producer

By SCOTT MACLEOD

PITTSBURGH (UPI) - Petite Shari Belafonte can't sing. She's not wild about becoming an actress. And she doesn't want to "make it" on the credentials of her father, entertainer Harry Belafonte.

So then what's a girl to do, if she's committed to a life in the arts?

Shari, 22, wants to become a producer. She is finishing studies at Carnegie-Mellon University, a prestigious theatre school.

Far from what she views as the tedious work of memorizing lines and faking tears, Shari has picked up a hammer and nails to build a set for a school production of Bertolt Brecht's opera "Mahagonny."

She is technical director for the show.

"The business end of entertainment is draining," she says. "But you're not exposed. I don't know if I could — because I've watched my father all these years — do things like sign autographs all the time.

"Besides, almost all the actors I know are nuts. They are a little on the looney side. Oh, God, the student actors are worse. They are all eccentric, and think they are on the best Top 10 list.

"There is something warped about walking around with your nose up in the air. The problem, though, is that you are doing so many parts you don't know what role you're assuming today. They are all schizoid. Even my father, whom I love dearly, goes from one extreme to another."

In Shari, there is no mistaking the Belafonte nose, eyes, and to be sure, the deep Belafonte voice.

"Acting doesn't fit my personality," she says. "But really, I am always acting. It's great."

Shari has also taken courses in business, including accounting — "Yecchh!"

"In order to be successful in any field of entertainment, you have to touch on all aspects of it," she says. "I was in acting, I've done directing, design and the technical end of things. But you also have to have a head for business, too."

Her parents, who were divorced when she was two years old, never forced her into entertainment. She spurned acting as a career, however, mostly out of a desire to "make it on her own."

"I am interested in becoming famous," she says. "But when you get into the visual aspects of entertainment — if I was in acting or the movies — people would always say the only reason I got there was because ...

"Whereas in the business end, there is no direct relation to my father. So it's much more challenging to me. I really wouldn't have to know my stuff if I was in acting.

"Whatever I do, I want to do well. I will always have my father's name trailing me. I don't mind that entirely. Some people say, 'I want to be known for me, not for what my father is.' They go out and change their names. I am really glad I have this name because it gets my foot in the door."

Sinatra First Hall Soloist

LONDON (UPI) — Frank Sinatra will become the first solo artist to perform for a week on the stage of the historic Royal Albert Hall, where he will appear for seven concerts starting February 28.

The first show will be a Royal Gala Evening with Princess Margaret expected to attend. All proceeds for that night's show will go to Britain's National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Madrigal Music Acted Out As In Old England

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — If you attend a concert by the St. Louis University Madrigal Singers and suddenly feel as if you've stumbled onto a party of lords and ladies in an Elizabethan manor house, then Joseph Beck has done his job.

Beck and his 12 student performers have taken secular music of the Renaissance and added authentic costumes and dramatic staging. The effect is a re-creation of the upper-class environment of nobility that inspired the creation of madrigals centuries ago.

Beck was studying in England when he fell in love with the songs of unrequited love and the pastoral life. He enjoyed the concerts by singers in costumes but felt something was missing. There was no movement.

"I know the impact of movement and choreography," he said in an interview. "Many of these pieces were originally done with dances.

"I don't think an evening of straight madrigal music of one and one-half hours would survive today, and in fact it isn't. Programs like that are usually attended by three people, plus the ushers."

Beck's group is an interdepartmental effort, with contributions from music, theater and art professors, plus students from nearly all divisions of the university. It is an elite offshoot of the larger University Chorale and has performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington.

The illusion the singers create — performing their songs in English, German, French, Spanish and Italian — is heightened by elaborate costumes copied from old drawings and paintings for authenticity. Special hairdos and grand gestures complete the picture of Renaissance nobility.

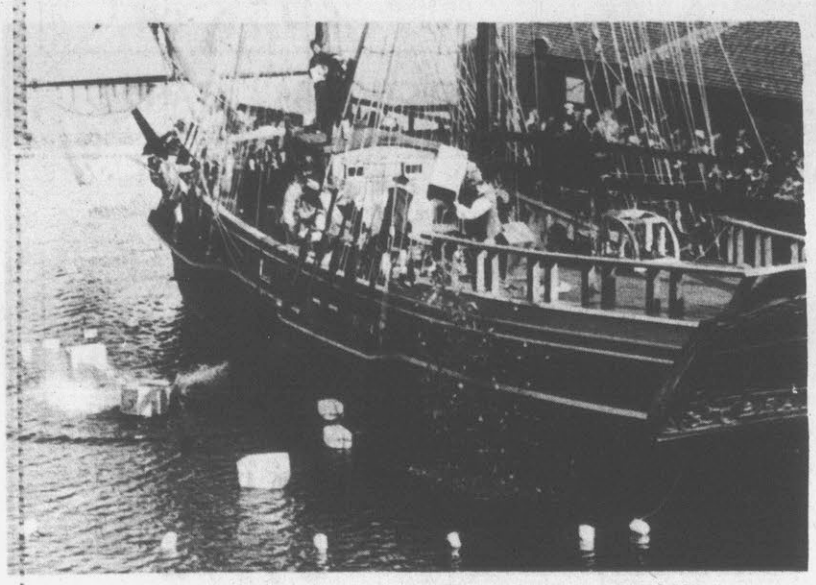
Such trappings are important to help the performers get into the proper mood, according to Jim Wamser, a junior theater student. It would feel strange to woo milady in blue jeans.

"When you get into costume it feels more natural," he said. "It's harder to get some of the newer people to make the exaggerated gestures when we're blocking the songs out in rehearsal."

The characters of that period thought they were better than everybody else, Beck explained, so it's important that the singers convey that impression too.

The roles they fill range from the lusty Henry the Eighth type to the fawnlike embodiment of true love to the vivacious coquette. Beck said the students tend to keep their everyday character traits but transport them to an earlier time.

"We try never to say, 'Be this or act like that'," he said. "It's more of an attitude that you should be yourself as you would be in the Renaissance. The more subdued or more active ones in real life tend to be the same in the madrigals."



'TEA' DUMPERS — The 203rd anniversary of the Boston Tea Party is celebrated Thursday from the deck of the Beaver II, a replica of the original tea party ship, as militiamen in colonial costume dump "tea" overboard. They are actually dumping ordinary tree leaves and recoverable boxes so as not to further pollute the harbor. (AP Wirephoto)

Hypothermia–Number 1 Killer Of Outdoorsmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cold can kill you. And sometimes it kills at air temperatures most people believe are safe, an Agriculture Department safety pamphlet for winter recreation-seekers warns.

Hypothermia — subnormal body temperature — is the number one killer of outdoor recreationists, according to the new Winter Recreation Safety Guide prepared by the Forest Service in cooperation with the U.S. Ski Association.

The trouble is, many people don't recognize the danger.

"Most hypothermia cases develop in air temperatures between 30 and 50 degrees. Most outdoorsmen simply can't believe such temperatures can be dangerous. They underestimate the danger of being wet at such temperatures — with fatal results," the pamphlet said.

"Fifty degree water is unbearably cold. The cold that kills is cold water running down neck and legs, cold water held against the body by sopping wet clothes ... don't ask 'how cold is the air,' ask instead 'how cold is the water against my body,'" experts added.

To avoid the dangers, the pamphlet recommends:

— Avoid exposure and exhaustion. When you lose heat faster than your body produces it, your natural responses — like exercise — drain energy reserves. Without being aware you're in trouble, you can slide into hypothermia. If you can't stay warm and dry using the clothes you have with you stop skiing, head in.

— Take woolen clothing, including two-piece woolen underwear or long wool pants and a sweater or shirt. Use a knit cap to protect your neck and chin. Cotton underwear is worse than useless when wet.

— Choose rainclothes which cover the head, neck, body and legs and protect against wind-driven rain. Polyurethane coated nylon is best, but coatings won't retain waterproofing indefinitely and should be tested under a cold shower before leaving for a winter trip.

Wind and waterproofing are important because if you allow ordinary clothing to get wet, it loses about 90 per cent of its insulating value. Wool loses the least, cotton, down and synthetics lose more.

— Beware of wind and recognize the wind-chill factor. For a dry, properly clothed person, a wind of 25 miles an hour in 30 degree air temperature is the equivalent of a 0 degree reading on your skin surface. If your clothes are wet, the effect is even worse.

— Never ignore shivering. Persistent or violent shivering "is clear warning that you are on the verge of hypothermia."

— When traveling cross country during winter, get out of the wind or rain if hypothermia symptoms such as shivering, fumbling hands, memory lapses, stumbling, drowsiness, exhaustion or vague, slowed speech appear.

— In cold weather, carry "trail food" — nuts, dried meat, candy. Keep nibbling during hypothermia weather. For trail trips, carry a stormproof tent or shelter and a gas stove or reliable fire starter.

— Watch out for dehydration. An adult needs up to four quarts of water daily for strenuous activity. There is a 25 per cent loss of stamina when an adult loses 1.5 quarts of water.

— Check for signs of frostbite, which is tissue damage caused by a reduced flow of blood to fingers, toes, and exposed noses and cheeks in subfreezing temperatures.

In Two Wings, At A Cost of $4.2 Million

Long Awaited School of Art Building Completed

After five years of planning and construction, East Carolina University's new School of Art building is completed and now in use, except for a few finishing touches.

The $4.2 million building, dominant feature of the ECU campus landscape along Greenville's Fifth Street, was constructed in two stages. The first phase was completion two years ago of a 65,000-square-foot wing housing studios and classrooms for painting, sculpture, ceramics and design.

A larger second wing, boosting the total to 142,000 square feet of space, includes a gallery, administrative offices, a library, an auditorium and instructional facilities for communications arts, art education, art history and printmaking.

The building stands on an historic, landmark site—that of East Carolina's once famed and cherished Old Austin.

Appropriately, it faces directly across East Fifth Street toward the home of the Chancellor of ECU, the home occupied for the past 16 years by Leo W. Jenkins, for whom the new building has been named.

The ECU Board of Trustees, in May, 1973, voted unamimously to name the building in honor of the man who during two decades had been the prime mover in achieving ECU's national reputation as a center for education in the fine arts, particularly art and music. The suggestion to name the new building in Jenkins' honor was made by U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., then presiding at his final session as chairman of the school's trustees.

Formal dedication of the Jenkins building, is scheduled for early Spring, 1977.

Completion of the Art building has long been a goal of ECU officials. The ECU School of Art needed additional space and modern facilities for many years. Nearly a decade ago, the ECU School of Music moved into the now well-known A.J. Fletcher Music Center on the opposite side of the main campus, on Tenth Street, but the growing Art School had no permanent home.

The Leo W. Jenkins building is easily recognizable by its most striking feature, rows of rectangular bay windows facing north. A huge glass window near the front entrance reveals two stories of interior brick wall, perfect for mounting large paintings.

The structure was designed by the Charlotte architectural firm of Odell and Associates. The design not only provides room for growth but makes a "visual statement" about art and the ECU School of Art.

"We wanted to develop an up-to-date facility, with first-class equipment for educational purposes," says Odell architect Walter Bost.

"But we also wanted to plan a building whose design was in keeping with the reputation of the ECU School of Art, which is known as one of the best art schools in the eastern U.S.," he added.

"The effect we were seeking was a sophisticated design suited to the qualty of art instruction at ECU."

The new building indeed makes a visual statement. One of its most remarkable features is the light and airy second floor gallery in the new wing.

Its 9,000-square-foot is covered in a rich parquet of golden oak, and it is lighted by overhead spotlights on tracks. To the side, a kitchen was installed for serving refreshments at art receptions, as well as a preparation room for mounting objects to be displayed.

One of the gallery's many-windowed walls overlooks a raised sculpture terrace, where shrubs in built-in surrounding planters will provide a natural setting for large sculptures. The gallery is located independently, so that exhibits can be viewed by the public on weekends and holidays when the studios and classroom areas might be closed.

Its flexible design will make possible a variety of art exhibitions, of works by ECU faculty and student artists and works in traveling shows. The gallery is to be named for Dr. Wellington B. Gray, dean of the ECU School of Art since 1956.

Other second floor features of the new wing include a suite of administrative offices, a conference room and a 250-seat auditorium with a projection booth.

Below, on the first floor, are studios and laboratories for printmaking and communication arts. Five sizable darkrooms, with 18 enlargement booths, will allow entire photography classes to work at one time. The photography area also has print rooms for color and black-and-white printing, and an editing studio for working with still photographs, film and videotape. Since most of the first floor is below ground level, an illustration studio at one end is artificially lighted with special daylight-simulation fixtures.

On the third floor are classrooms, studios and workshops for commercial art, art education, color and design, and drawing. In addition, the third floor includes an art library with space for viewing color slides.

The art education laboratory is visible through a one-way glass window, enabling students to observe art education classes which ECU sponsors for local children.

The three floors are connected by a circular stairwell at the end of the new wing. From the outside, the stairwell is visible as a large, round tower, lighted by long windows.

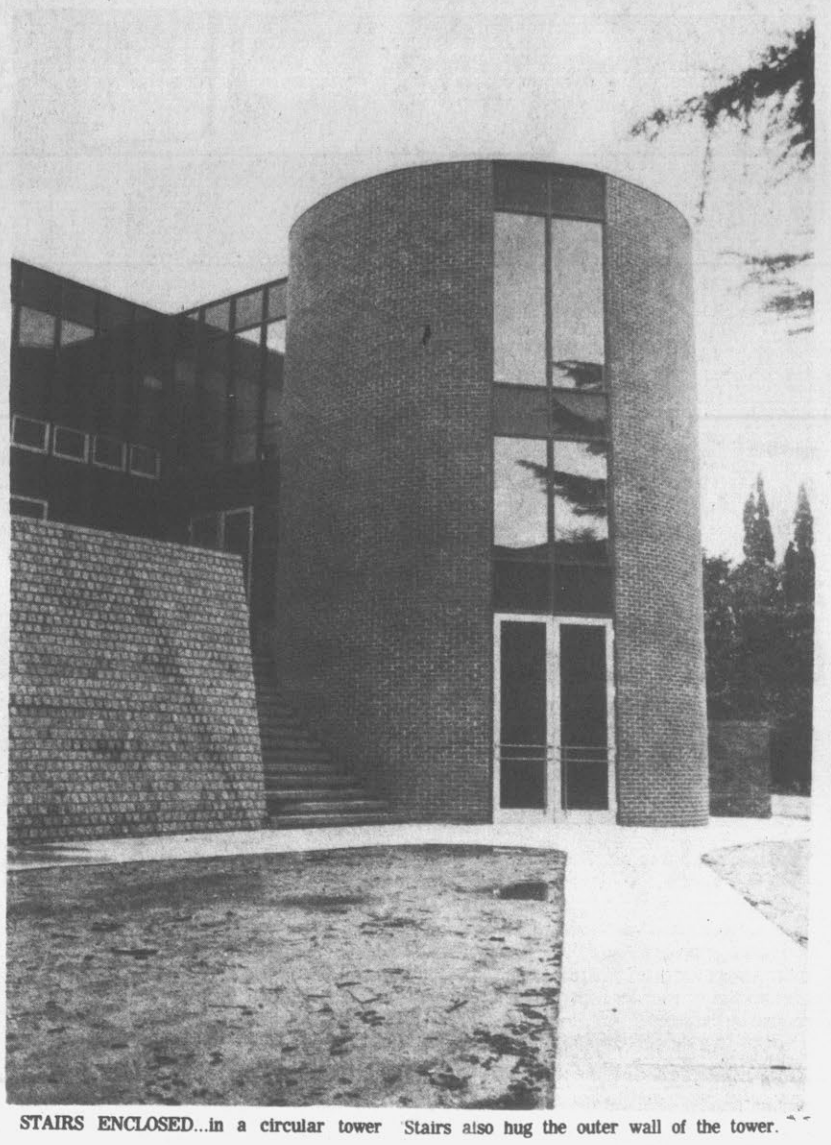
Throughout the building, walls are painted brightly in warm tones of orange, yellow and creamy white, and in the new wing, rooms on the halls are arranted at angles, avoiding the "long-narrow corridor" effect.

When the building is dedicated to Chancellor Jenkins a bronze bust of Jenkins by ECU faculty sculptor Robert Edmiston will be mounted near the entrance.

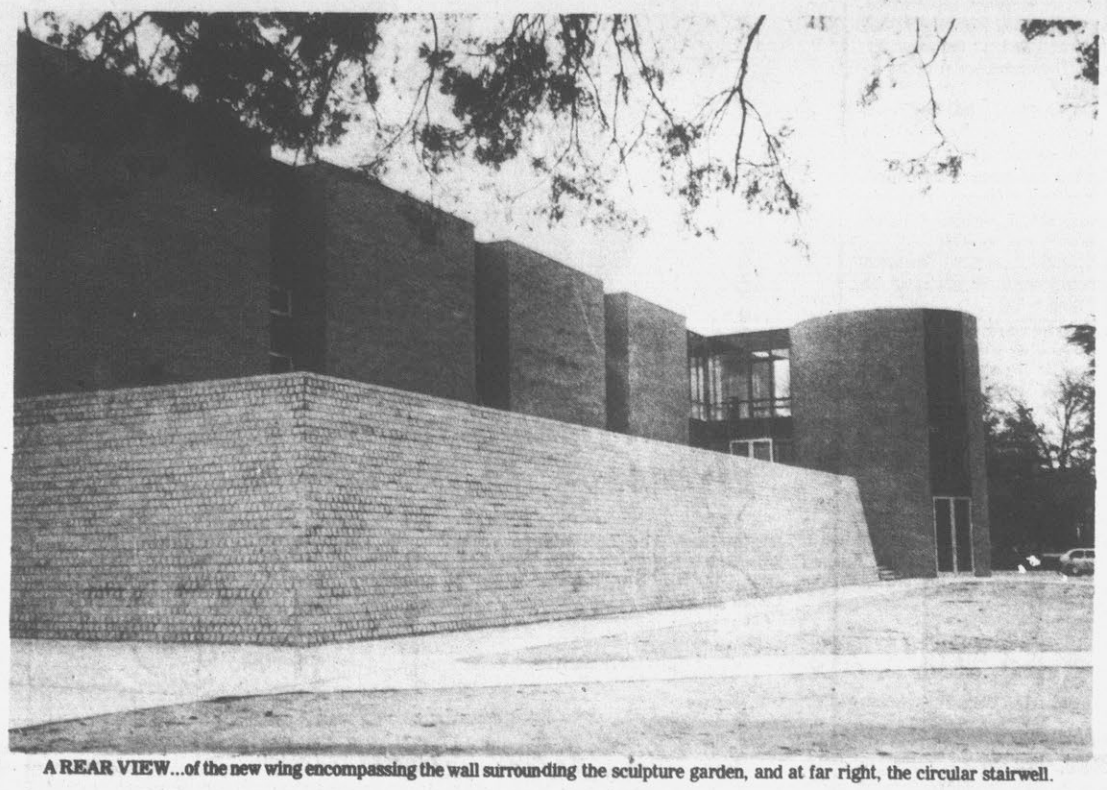
Organized groups may tour the building, by prior arrangement with Dean Gray's office.

Now that the new building is being readied for occupancy, ECU's School of Art is free to grow to its projected enrollment of 1,000 art majors and 50 faculty members.

The ECU School of Art offers eight degrees in art, including degree programs in art history, art education, and studio-professional fine arts in various media.



STAIRS ENCLOSED...in a circular tower Stairs also hug the outer wall of the tower.



A REAR VIEW...of the new wing encompassing the wall surrounding the sculpture garden, and at far right, the circular stairwell.

New Lease On Life For The Governor's Mansion

Governor and Mrs. James E. Holshouser, Jr., and the people of North Carolina have received the Ruth Coltrane Cannon Award for their exceptional contribution in the field of preservation — the preservation of the Executive Mansion.

Originally completed in 1891 and first occupied by Governor Daniel G. Fowle, the Executive Mansion at 200 North Blount Street has been the official residence for twenty-three North Carolina governors and their families. Its beauty and usefulness have embraced almost nine decades. North Carolina sandstone and hardwood were used for the Mansion's exterior trim; and North Carolina pine and hardwood, much of it elaborately detailed, were used extensively for the interior. Considered a perfect example of "Queen Anne Cottage" architecture, the stately brick structure stands today as a symbol of the rich heritage that is ours while possessing all the criteria for making it a National Register site — architectural, historic, and cultural significance.

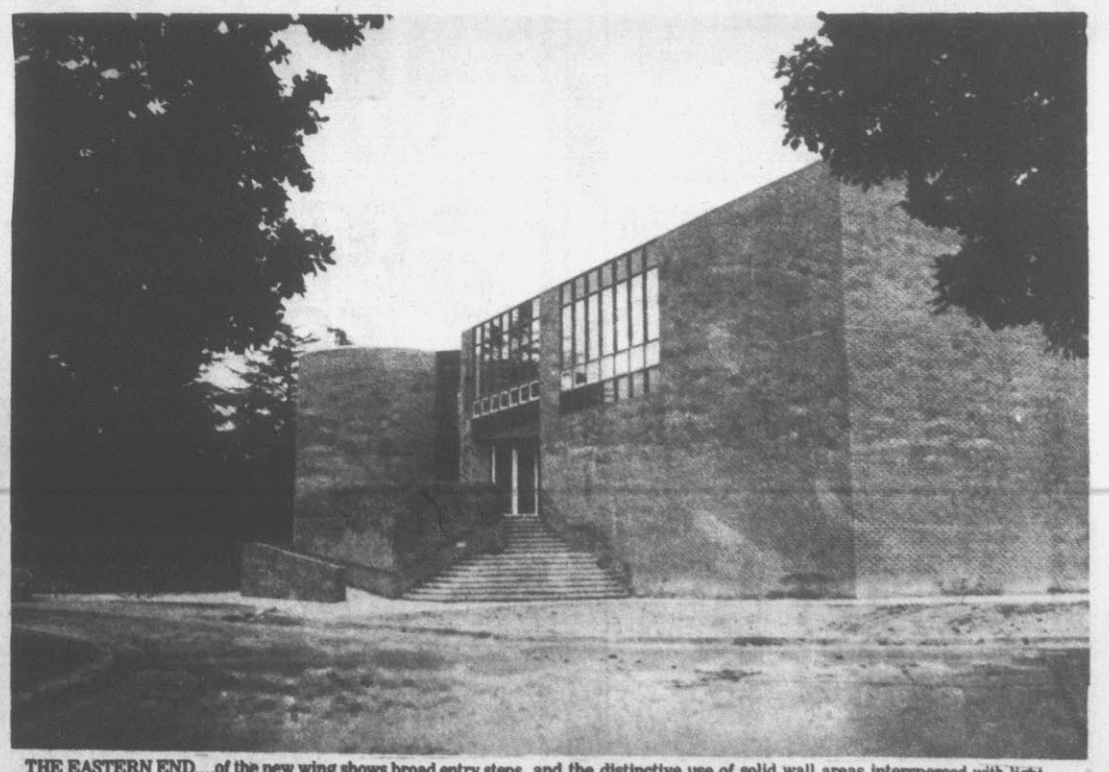
However, in spite of all these outstanding qualities, the future of the Executive Mansion at the beginning of this decade seemed quite uncertain. There was talk of a new executive residence in the suburbs and talk of 200 North Blount becoming a museum. The Historic Preservation Society admired and appreciated James E. Holshouser, Jr.'s announced intention to preserve and use the Executive Mansion prior to his election as governor and his perserverance in carrying out that promised intention after his election. For without his leadership and tenacity of purpose, the Executive Mansion might have become a ghostly shell, void of its living vitality.

The Society recognized the efforts that Mrs. Holshouser has made in moving out and back into the Mansion during the Governor's term of office and the personal attention she has given the renewal of the Mansion.

The Historic Preservation Society is also aware of the role of the General Assembly in appropriating tax funds, made possible by all of our citizens, for the preservation of the Mansion.

THE CONNECTING POINT...between the first constructed wing (at right) and the new wing is the glass fronted building entry. The view here is of the side of the building facing East Fifth Street, and shows one of the series of windows featuring an unusual design.

THE NORTH CAROLINA...Governor's Mansion, fully restored and renovated, is winner of a 1976 Ruth Coltrane Cannon Award, given to Governor and Mrs. Holshouser and the people of North Carolina jointly.



THE EASTERN END....of the new wing shows broad entry steps and the distinctive use of solid wall areas interspersed with light giving window units.

200 Years Of American Illustrations

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's like reading a diary of my life," a middle-aged man said. "Almost everything here reminds me of some event."

"I know," his wife said. "Some of the memories are good, some not so good." She nodded toward the famous "I Want You" poster of Uncle Sam pointing his finger. "That one, for instance."

But it was more than the diary of one life, it was a diary of the national life.

As a Bicentennial event, the Society of Illustrators took the trouble to collect all the pictures they could find, covering 200 years, that are familiar to most Americans.

They hung them in the New York Historical Society building, and a Saturday stroll though those corridors was like eavesdropping on the American family rummaging through its photo album.

The shame is that most of the illustrators who left so many indelible impressions on American minds are anonymous to most of us.

The Frederick Remingtons and Norman Rockwells and Thomas Nasts are represented, and everybody knows who they are, but shouldn't the name Ernest Thompson Seton be as familiar?

He illustrated the Boy Scout Handbook, 1911 edition, by which every Scout over 40 learned, on pages 140 and 141, to tell the difference between a mink, skunk, badger, raccoon, opossum and squirrel.

"Here's to Ernest Thompson Seton," one such old scout remarked.

And here's to Leo Rackow, a man with an unambiguous message. He drew the World War II poster proclaiming the Air Corps as "America's Arm of Defense." Sure enough, it shows an arm, with the attached hand holding airplanes.

Another war poster drew its share of scorn from a later generation of feminists passing by. It was the World War I poster, drawn by Howard C. Christy, showing a middle-bloused sweet young thing in a sailor hat saying, "Gee I wish I were a man, I'd join the Navy."

To a nation grown accustomed to the television commercial, an exhibit of advertisements during the country's age of innocence excited more curiosity than shock of recognition.

For one thing, air pollution seemed a good thing to promote at the turn of the century. A calendar drawing of George Ehret's Hell Gate Brewery seemed as proud of its smoke as its product.

J. & P. Coats Co. was similarly proud of the origin of its spools of thread. Its ad showed happy black cotton pickers in an idyllic field, and other happy, barefoot folk loading bales down at de levee.

'Rocky' May Be Vital Sleeper

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Are movie audiences ready for hope and love on the screen?

Perhaps so, judging from the overwhelming reaction to a $860,000 movie called "Rocky." The film trade is calling it the Sleeper of the Year, maybe of the decade.

Critics have been mostly enthusiastic, although a few exhibit perplexity. After a steady diet of violence and hopelessness, they seem unable to adjust to a little film that shows one of life's losers suddenly turning into a winner. Reviewers have had to hark back to "Marty," "On the Waterfront" and Frank Capra's films of the 1930s to find comparisons.

All this delights Sylvester Stallone, the brawny 30-year-old who made it all happen.

"I didn't invent this formula of the little guy who beats the system," says the author-writer. "Frank Capra did very well with it, and so did Charlie Chaplin. If 'Rocky' proves anything, it's that old formulas never die.

"The bottom line is humanity. You gotta go inside the citadel, the private world where most people are living. You gotta get to their emotions and give them a chance to root for themselves. They haven't been getting that in movies. I hope 'Rocky' becomes trendy, for that reason."

Trendy or not, "Rocky" has produced today's superhero in Stallone. After years as a bit player he is thrilled but wary.

"The pressure I'm getting now is unbelievable," he remarked. "Everything I do from now on will be suspect, whatever I do will undergo heavy scrutiny. I'm no longer Sylvester Stallone the bit player; I've got to produce a level of quality from now on."

Stallone arrives for an interview resplendent in tan boots, square-patch jeans, flowered tie, jean vest with embroidered bird on the back. His full black hair frames a handsome face with limpid eyes and Dick Tracy chin.

He was born in New York City, son of an Italian immigrant father and a mother with French and German ancestors. The boy grew up as a brawling troublemaker in Montgomery Hill, Md., and at least part of his trouble stemmed from his name.

"Kids called me Sylvia or Silvio or Sillyvester or worse," said Stallone, who goes by the diminutive Sly. "The names resulted in quite a few fights."

His parents put Sly into a foster home to straighten him out. After high school he taught diplomats' children at a Swiss college. He returned to graduate from the University of Miami, turned to acting with dim results.

Married and father of a young daughter, his career going nowhere, Stallone decided time was running out.

"I decided to write a script that had heart, energy and humor, that showed off my best sides, acting and physical. What about a boxing story? There hadn't been a fight story for a long time. I sat down and wrote the first draft of 'Rocky' in three and a half days," Stallone said.

Tip May Not Get To Waiter

LONDON (UPI) — The 12 and a half per cent service charge added to your bills at British hotels and restaurants may be going into the coffers of those establishments rather than to their service personnel, the British Automobile Association charged recently.

The AA said it has studied tipping practices and found that few hotels and restaurants distinguish between surcharges and service charges.

Surcharges are spent on improving staff salaries, conditions and staff training, the AA said. Service charges are distributed among the hotel or restaurant service staff.

They called for an "honest declaration" by proprietors of where the charges go.

Large Turnouts By New Mexico

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico voters continued their tradition of high turnout in the Nov. 2 general election.

Unofficial records show 78.5 per cent of the state's registered voters went to the polls on election day.

Voter turnout in previous elections has been as high as 82 per cent in New Mexico.

B & G is owned and operated by Bruce Jones and Glenn Bowen, Jr. Two men with two different opinions and each man being able to eexpress his views with no hard feelings from the other. B & G is open today, Dec. 19, but don't drop by expecting to find Bruce. He won't be there and he wasn't there Sunday, Dec. 12. Being in the Ministry, Bruce felt HE would be a stumbling block for someone else and said for that reason he wouldn't work in the shop on Sunday. He said, "I love and appreciate all people and I Wouldn't want to do anything to hurt or hinder the spiritual growth of anyone. I then ask you for help and support, by having your business Monday thru Saturday and your prayers Sunday through Saturday."

Acting Company Coming In January

The East Carolina Playhouse has announced it will host John Houseman's professional touring theatre group, The Acting Company, January 25-29. The troup, which was popular with audiences last year in Greenville, will perform three plays during their 1977 residency.

Houseman, known for his work in theatre, television and films, formed The Acting Company from the first graduating class of the world famous Juilliard School, Drama Division. Operating from a New York base, the Company is the only American professional troup to tour classic and contemporary plays from coast to coast.

Since their formation in 1971, The Acting Comany has received high praise. They have been nominated for or won awards such as the Drama Desk Award, Broadway's "Tony," and the off-Broadway "Obie." The Acting Company's production of "The Robber Bridegroom," well received by Greenville audiences last year, is currently enjoying a successful run in New York.

This year, while in Greenville the Company will perform "Love's Labour's Lost," by Shakespeare, Arnold Wesker's "The Kitchen," and Tennessee Williams' "Camino Real." The performances will be in ECU's McGinnis Auditorium and ticket sales begin January 17.

Nelda Ormond's Concert Praised

Ayden native Nelda Ormond was praised by critic Joan Reinthaler in "The Washington Post" following a recent performance at the Phillips Collection in Washington D.C.

NELDA ORMOND

"She...(is)...able to handle the delicacy of Handel and Mozart with the same aplomb as she does the romanticisms of Strauss and Duparc," Ms. Reinthaler wrote.

A graduate of Howard University (for both a bachelor and masters degree), Miss Ormand in 1967 was awarded a scholarship for study at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. She also studied privately with Jennie Tourel and Mrs. Juanita King.

She was awarded a grant to study with the Metropolitan Opera Studio by Metropolitan assistant manager John Gutman and is the recipient of a first place award in the Juilliard's Marian Anderson Award.

In recent years she has performed extensively in many states and as guest soloist in many churches in the metropolitan Washington area. In 1975 she taped a TV special for WRC TV on Black American music.

Best Broadway Shows From Other Places

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The best Broadway shows of 1976 came mostly from somewhere else.

There wasn't any sudden drop in local production. It was simply that eight of the 10 plays and musicals most likely to be remembered longest were products of off-Broadway, regional and European endeavor.

The dependency trend — discernible for several years — didn't send any shock waves through the theatrical community.

Inflating costs are commonly cited as the basic reason for the growing dispersion of creative effort and the willingness of Broadway impresarios to pick up already tested products.

The prime example among the Top Ten of the economic risks of bold artistic innovation directly on the Great White Way was "Pacific Overtures," an exotic musical composed by Stephen Soldheim and produced by Harold Prince.

The story of the Westernization of Japan, a daring score ranging from Kabuki to Gilbert & Sullivan parody, and an all-Asian cast, it won the New York Critics Circle award, ran 193 performances — and closed with a loss of $1.3 million.

The successful musical among the season's Top Ten — "The Three-Penny Opera" by Kurt Weill and Bertolt Brecht — took a different route to SRO vitality. Under the auspices of the New York Shakespeare Festival, the non-profit conglomerate created by Joseph Papp, which relies largely on foundation and government subsidies, "Three-Penny" began as a limited run offering.

Here in alphabetical order are the eight other arrivals during the calendar year that stand out the brightest among the three score productions that reached Broadway during 1976.

"Comedians," by Trevor Griffiths, about a group of workingmen who strive to become stand-up comics. The bizarre serious comedy is enhanced by several outstanding performances. Imported from England, still running.

"Days in the Trees," an elliptic, intriguing account of a woman's relation with her grown-up son, distinguished by a portrayal by Mildred Dunnock. Translated from the French of Marguerite Duras by Sonia Orwell, the play achieved fame in Paris prior to its limited subscription run at the Circle in the Square, a grant-supported theater.

"For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow Was Enough," an unusual choreodrama of poems by Ntozake Shange. Still running after a tryout odyssey that began on the West Coast, shifted to off-off-Broadway, then to off-Broadway and finally the Main Stem under the auspices of Papp's organization.

"Knock, Knock," a fantasy-satire by Jules Feiffer, which clicked brilliantly off-Broadway, moved uptown and eventually succumbed after new directing and glamor casting backfired.

"No Man's Land," another witty puzzler from England by Harold Pinter, which besides an intriguing text boasted grand performances by Sir John Gielgud and Sir Ralph Richardson for a limited engagement.

"Streamers," a searing drama by David Rabe about military trainees that won the New York Critics Circle citation as the best play by an American. Originally done by the Long Wharf Theater in New Haven, Conn., it reached New York under the auspices of the Papp apparatus. Still running.

"A Texas Trilogy," by Preston Jones. Hailed as an outstanding new writer during pre-Broadway runs in many regional theaters and at Washington's Kennedy Center, Jones was less unanimously admired by New York critics. His skills at brisk dialogue and vivid characterization boded well, however, for future dramas bout small-town Texas life.

"The Belle of Amherst," a glowing glimpse into the life of Emily Dickinson, compiled from her poems and diaries by William Luce. The one-woman show, brilliantly performed by Julie Harris, was staged primarily for long tours both before and after a Broadway visit.

University In Minnesota Has Microfilmed Rare Manuscripts

By LOTTE SEIDLER

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (UPI) — More and more scholars of medieval manuscripts — those highly artistic and ornate books of the sacred and the profane — are heading for Minnesota instead of Europe.

The Hill Manuscript Microfilm Library, on the campus of St. John's University here, offers 50,000 such manuscripts. All were filmed during the past 11 years in monastic and lay libraries in Europe.

The serenity of St. John's easily matches that of any European monastery. Situated by a lake, it is considered one of the most beautiful small college campuses in the United States. Its new buildings were designed by Marcel Breuer, the noted architect. Its old ones were built brick by brick by the Benedictine monks who founded and still run the school.

The staff at the manuscript library, headed by Dr. Julian G. Plante, has catalogued many of he works by author, subject, and the first words of the manuscript. This work requires an intimate knowledge of Latin and other languages and of medieval customs and cultures. It also takes infinite patience.

"It's like visiting 24 libraries in one," said one scholar.

Scholars come from across the nation. They also have come from Tokyo, Scotland, West Germany and Denmark.

Centuries ago, in a monastery's scriptorium or writing room, there was a book designer, calligraphers to write the text, a colorist for the pictures and illuminated letters and someone to apply gold leaf. There were artisans to make the parchment, the inks and the bindings.

It took a great deal of time to create a book. Most turned out wondrously beautiful — works of art. A monk might spend hours or days on an initial letter.

St. Benedict was a key figure in the growth of monasteries in Europe. It was his rule that monks spend six or seven hours a day in work and as many more in reading. Soon, the monks spent much of their working time creating books.

The project began in Austria. At first, some of the monasteries were concerned about the safety of their irreplaceable treasures. Plante recalled that looting at the end of World War II was still fresh in the minds of many. He said St. John's link with St. John's Abbey, a Benedictine monastery in Europe, helped overcome those fears.

Russian Pop Band First To Record In The United States

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Despite a monumental language barrier and minor problems with an organ and guitar string, a Russian pop band has become the first Soviet group to record in the United States.

"Pesnyary," recorded with the New Christy Minstrels at the Columbia studio Friday where country music star Lynn Anderson had cut a record a few hours earlier.

"This is an experiment," said Sid Garris, manager of the New Christy Minstrels. "We need something like this in our business. In the interest of detente, I'm smiling a lot."

Communicating was a major problem because none of the eight-member Soviet group spoke English and a translator had to be used.

"She's the difference between life and death," said an engineer. "But they understand a smile."

At one point, engineers asked through the translator for the drummer to play his snare drum. However, there is no Russian equivalent for "snare drum."

When studio employes helped the band set up their equipment, the members showed their satisifaction by flashing the "ok" sign with thumb and forefinger.

The first real problem developed when the organist didn't understand the double keyboard on the instrument provided him. After a 15-minute lesson from Columbia vice president Ron Bledsoe, he had it mastered.

Shortly thereafter, another band member discovered he had a bad guitar string. He bought a new one nearby and purchased a 1977 electronics catalog from a radio supply store.

Diplomacy was not forgotten during the precedent setting session. Band members passed out lapel pins, showing the Kremlin and Russian cannons, to studio workers and reporters.

The two groups recorded various types of music for some eight hours and material will be lifted from the session for either an album or a single. The release date is uncertain.

Garris said the two groups "have had a ball" during a nine-day concert tour in the United States. The tour is the first of its kind by a Russian pop group.

"We've given gifts back and forth and had parties," he said. "None of our conversations has been about politics. We'd rather talk about Miles Davis and people like that."

RUSSIAN GROUP — Members of a Soviet Union pop band, "Pesnyary," take a break during a recording session in Nashville. The group recorded with the New Christy Minstrels. Recording officials say it is the first time a Soviet musical group has recorded in the United States. (AP Wirephoto)

'Art On Paper' A Solid Success

By STEVE GILLIAM
UNC-G News Bureau

GREENSBORO — When he thinks about it, Gilbert Carpenter says it really hasn't been so long since Weatherspoon Art Gallery began planning the first Art on Paper Show back 11 years ago.

"It was a very interesting time in American art," said Carpenter, who is director of the UNC-G gallery. "We were interested in planning a show that would be good for the artists, the gallery and the students here."

Carpenter and James Tucker, Weatherspoon's curator, had discussed the show's prospects several times in hopes of finding a way around the gallery's modest finances and avoiding the heavy expenses to artists for exhibiting their works.

So after much consideration of the financial problems that artists would incur by shipping framed works—especially oil works—Carpenter and Tucker decided on a show of art works on paper. The show would include drawings, paintings, prints of then emerging art forms on paper, which carried only a fraction of the expenses.

Among the more practical concerns—if not the most practical—was that of a sponsor who could underwrite the show's expenses through financial support.

At the urging of the late Herbert Falk, who was then president of the Weatherspoon Gallery Association, Carpenter and Tucker approached Stark S. Dillard and his firm, Dillard Paper Company.

"Some people might think the show started as a gimmick—a show of art on paper which was sponsored by a paper company," said Carpenter. "That's not the way it was; we didn't have that in mind although I have to admit the connection appears quite obvious."

The 12th annual show, which opened Nov. 14 is dedicated to Stark Dillard, who died Dec. 25 of last year. His firm's donations to the show, including $15,000 for the current exhibit, now total $147,000.

The gallery has purchased works from each of the 12 shows for its Dillard Collection, which now totals 295 artworks by 19th and 20th century American artists. It is exhibited nationally.

"The prestige of this collection and value of the show itself are indicative of the value of patronage and Dillard's regard for art," said Carpenter. "It is a prestigious collection and it reflects trends in 20th century art."

Approximately two-thirds of the annual Dillard grant is spent on acquring artworks for the Dillard Collection.

Wants To Be Top Graffitist

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Pretty Boy" was in third grade when he "saw a bunch of dudes mark up the El (subway) one day." When no one was looking he scribbled his initials on a building. He liked what he saw.

Today, at 16, he's one of the star graffiti vandals in the city, blowing spray paint on practically anything from marbled downtown buildings to the wooden storefronts of his native north Philadelphia.

"Before I got into graffiti I used to get into a lot of trouble," he said in an interview Thursday. "Now all I do is write on walls."

Pretty Boy belongs to a graffiti club called the Hip City Swingers. He says he and about 90 other members meet regularly to line up supply thefts and to map out new targets.

Philadelphia's graffiti kids have literally painted the town, prompting a city councilman to introduce a bill that would require businesses to keep spray paint under lock and key. Few aerosol artists pay for their tools.

"It's out of control," says councilman Joseph Zazcyzny, the bill's sponsor. "It's even here on the fifth floor of City Hall. Right on the wall! Right outside City Hall chambers!"

Most grafitti in the city never gets removed, although the city's transit authority alone spent over $1 million on graffiti clean-up last year.

"I would like to know why they are doing it," says Zazyczny.

The real goal, says Pretty Boy, "is to have some other guy come up to you and say, '"I saw your name, and I like it."'

Pretty Boy was expelled from school for writing on walls. He says he is looking for work and would prefer a painting job. But he says he can't promise to give up the graffiti completely until he's 18.

He wants to be No. 1. Right now he figures he's No. 4. He figures two years and a heavy finger on the nozzle should put him on top.

"There are a lot worse things I could be doing," says Pretty Boy. "I don't take drugs or hurt people ...

"I think it would be wrong to write on somebody's house. But I write on buildings. And I don't think anybody cares about buildings."

Student Michael Moye's Play Is Chosen 'New Play Winner'

KINSTON — Tilt, a comedy by Lenoir Community College student Michael Moye, has been chosen "New Play Winner" for the Southeast Region of the ninth annual American College Theatre Festival (ACTF). The play, produced at LCC in November, will be one of the six plays to be performed at the ACTF Regional Festival on the Wake Forest University campus February 17-20, 1977. At the Regional Festival plays will be screened for presentation at the CTF National Festival in Washington D.C. in April, where the play for National Student Playwriting Award will be selected.

"Tilt" was one of the 36 entries, including two other new plays, in the 11-state Southeast Region and is the only production by a North Carolina College or University to be produced at the Regional Festival. New plays are judged separately and are compared to one another rather than to the works of established professional dramatists. Production, however, must meet the same high standards required of all Festival plays.

Up to ten plays, chosen from the 13 Regional Festivals may be invited to participate in the National Festival. The American College Theatre Festival was organized to encourage excellence in the total theatrical production: acting, directing, design, and writing. The Festival seeks to honor the best with national recognition and to strengthen the rest. The ACTF is presented by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Alliance for Arts Education, produced by the American Theatre Association, and sponsored by the Amoco Oil Company.

To Tape N.C. Concerts

RALEIGH — A series of concerts by the North Carolina Symphony will be taped by WUNC-FM for broadcast during 1977, according to station manager Donald Trapp.

Trapp reports that WUNC-FM is the recipient of a grant of over $1400 from the North Carolina Arts Council. This grant will enable the station to pay for broadcast rights, hire additional production staff, and promote a series of concerts by the Symphony.

The first taping of the North Carolina Symphony was the November 14 concert in Memorial Hall on the campus of UNC-Chapel Hill. This concert featured guest cellist Leonard Rose as soloist in Elgar's "Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra." Other selections to be taped for future broadcast include Mendelssohn's Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Symphony No. 3" by Tchaikovsky.

WUNC-FM is planning commentary to accompany each concert broadcast, the dates and times for which will be announced in January.

Turn back the pages of time and relive the days of radio with newscaster, Lowell Thomas. GOOD EVENING EVERYBODY recreates the fascinating life story of one of the most remarkable men in U.S. history. Thomas, coming as alive in print as he did on the air, provides a vivid account all the way from his youth in Cripple Creek, Colorado, through his later exciting adventures, wide wanderings and strange encounters all over the face of the earth. Known not only as a newscaster, but equally famous as a foreign correspondent, lecturer, biographer, explorer, and business executive, Thomas writes with an off-the-cuff raconteur style that holds the reader spellbound through his fabulous narrative. GOOD EVENING EVERYBODY recreates the pioneer days of radio journalism and presents many of the people, places, and adventures of nearly half a century of daily broadcasts.

J. Paul Getty, probably the world's richest man, died as the American edition of his autobiography, AS I SEE IT, was going to press. With wit, insight and disconcerting candor, it comes close to recreating the essence of the man himself. He tells how he amassed his staggering fortune, gives key points success-oriented men should know about women, discusses his several marriages and his many liaisons with famous women. He also writes about his fabled stinginess and the often bizarre problems confronted by the super-rich. The cast of characters who populate his intimate anecdotes reads like a Who's Who of the twentieth century. This fascinating narrative was his final published verdict on himself, on his many famous friends and associates, and on his times.

In A GOOD MAN: THE LIFE OF SAM J. ERVIN, Dick Dabney presents a fascinating, complex, and often contradictory figure — a homespun intellectual, a brilliant legal scholar, a champion of the Constitution who has emerged as one of our chief defenders of personal liberties. Senator Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina will always be remembered as the droll and relentless gentleman quoting Shakespeare and the Bible in the Watergate hearing room. This is not just another Watergate book, but a throughly researched biography told with a talented novelist's flair for character and narrative, a wonderfully colorful examination of a man who has become an American folk hero. It's also an intensely personal book, which records Dabney's confrontations and conversations with Ervin, his friends, his classmates, his aides, and his Senate colleagues. More than just the portrait of a man, A GOOD MAN portrays the South and the rise of that special breed, the Southern politician.

Sacred Circles

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — "Sacred Circles" — acclaimed by international art critics as the most important exhibition of North American Indian art ever assembled — could mean $37.5 million to the Kansas City economy during its two-month display next year at the Nelson Gallery of Art, officials said.

The vast exhibition now on display at the Hayward Gallery in London, will make the Nelson its only stop in the Western Hemisphere April 16 through June 19, 1977.

"We think 'Sacred Circles' may draw 375,000 — 100,000 more people than the Chinese art exhibition last year," said Nelson Gallery Assistant Director Ralph T. Coe, who compiled the collection over a period of four years.

The title, "Sacred Circles," was taken from the use of cosmic shapes — spider web charms, the four cardinal directions, circles of the sun, and the like — found in much Indian art, Coe explained.

He said there will be special gallery hours for the show including being open on Monday and four nights each week when the gallery is normally closed, but the regular admission charge of 50 cents will apply during the exhibition.

Stars Salute Christmas, Issue Holiday Greetings

STARS SALUTE CHRISTMAS — Merry Christmas and Happy New Year from the ABC, CBS and NBC NETWORK STARS, who bring you hours of entertainment each week in your home. Pictured above are: Mary Tyler Moore, Angie Dickinson, Jack Lord, Robert Conrad, Hal Linden, Lee Majors, David Soul, Cloris Leachman, Telly Savalas, Dennis Weaver, Henry Winkler, Ronnie Howard and Paul Michael Glaser.

Christmas is a time of giving, a time of receiving and a season of great happiness. It is also a time of parties, a time of visiting with old friends as well as making new acquaintances.

We've welcomed so many stars into our homse via television, I'm sure that — if they could — they'd gladly reciprocate during the holiday season.

Cloris Leachman ("Phyllis") would be delighted to have us in her wooded Mandeville Canyon home that she shares with her three younger children. Vegetarians will especially enjoy Christmas dinner with Cloris, a health food addict, whose sticks closely to fresh fruits and vegetable dishes.

Paul Michael Glaser extends a warm invitation to his bachelor pad high in the Hollywood Hills, but don't expect any delicacies from 'Starsky's' kitchen — it will probably be from the nearest deli. You see, Paul emphatically states that he is no cook!

You'll find the opposite is true when you visit with Patty and Gavin McLeod ("The Mary Tyler Moore Show"). They both attest to being gourmet cooks, and their house is centered around the kitchen. What's more, they're coffee connoisseurs who grind the coffee beans each time they brew a pot of the black liquid.

Walking to the door of Gavin's fellow cast-mate, Ed Asner is like visiting your next door neighbor. Ed's and Nancy's house is a large, bright, friendly one and in the driveway there's a 10-year-old Chevy and a station wagon.

Jack Lord's Christmas will be Hawaiian-style, because that's where he and his family reside. Come to think of it . . . Christmas Day spent under the palm trees wouldn't be such a bad idea!

Carroll O'Connor ("All in the Family"), who's no 'Archie' in real life, plans to put his tree in the book-lined living room of his spacious Santa Monica home. His TV wife, Jean Stapleton and her family hope to forsake their Los Angeles home during the holidays to spend a few days in their 68-year-old converted log cabin in a Pa. State Park.

Angie Dickinson can hardly wait to see her daughter, Nikki's reaction to all the goodies Santa's promised to bring her, and I'll bet Henry Winkler will spend the entire day opening all the gifts his many admirers have sent him.

So, to you, their loyal fan, a very, Merry Christmas from Telly, Mary, Lee (Farrah, too!), Dennis, Hal, Robert and Ronnie — to name a few.

Chapter Five Of 'Once An Eagle' Shows Thursday

Currently airing on NBC's "Best Sellers" is "Once an Eagle," Anton Myrer's 1968 novel about two military men — one dedicated to his men, the other seeking only personal gain.

Sam Elliott and Cliff Potts star in the nine-hour series, which is seen Thursday, 9 to 10 p.m., on Channel6-7-28. This week in Chapter Five, one of the men, Sam Damon (Elliott) contemplates an offer to leave the military life and save his marriage.

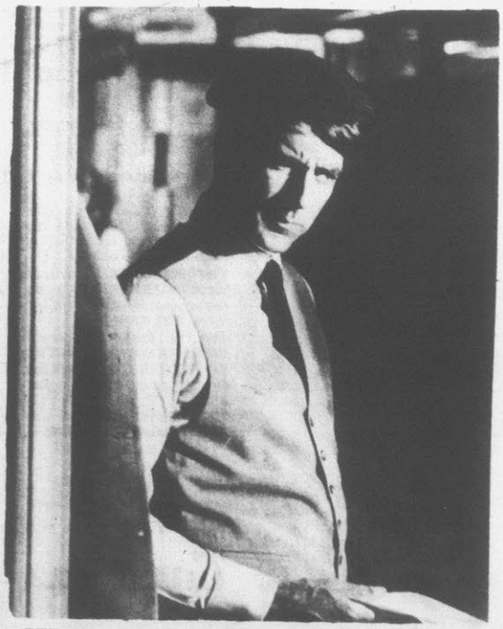
The first two chapters took viewers through World War I, and the middle chapters are concerned with the peacetime army and the military buildup for the coming conflicts with Japan and Germany. The final two hours are centered around the war with Japan.

"In covering a span of almost 30 years," says producer-writer Peter Fischer, "we had to condense a lot of things. The book is excellent, but a lot of it centers on Damon and What's in his head. Therefore, we had to take things that were very briefly covered in the book and create more incidents to put something up on the screen."

Fischer says that the spirit of the book is examining the role of the military through two wars and the attitudes of the general public. "Nobody likes a soldier, unless there's a war on," he admits candidly.

World War I series were filmed in California's beautiful wine country around Napa Valley to represent France; world War II scenes were done in Hawaii to represent the South Pacific isles and New Guinea.

As with "Captains and Kings," "Once an Eagle" has one to two and a half-minute recaps at the beginning of each hour to give the essentials of the plot for the viewers who might have missed an episode.



BETWEEN WARS — Sam Elliott (portraying Sam Damon) appears in civilian clothes as he contemplates an offer to leave the military life and save his marriage in Chapter Five of "NBC's Best Seller: Once An Eagle" to be colorcast Thursday, Dec. 23 (9-10 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

'Sounds Of Christmas' Presented Christmas Eve

Christmas Eve's late night programs on TV hold much in store for viewers as they scurry around attending to all the last-minute details. While you're wrapping those last few gifts, awaiting Santa's visit, or just putting your feet up while you enjoy a cup of egg nog, turn your television set on, and you're in for a very special holiday treat.

Doc Severinsen hosts "The Sounds of Christmas Eve," a special in which the joyous Yuletide season is celebrated in music and words. The program begins at 11:30 p.m. on NBC-TV, and sharing the stage with Severinsen are pianist-composer Henry Mancini and actor Victor Buono.

Included in the program: a medley of Christmas songs (including "White Christmas" and "The Christmas Song") conducted by Severinsen; Mancini, at the piano, playing and conducting an original composition, "A Carol for Another Christmas"; Buono offering a humorous, original recitation with a musical background.

Also, the choir sings Vittorial's "Ave Maria" and Mancini conducts a performance of "The Little Dummer Boy." The finale includes "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," "We Three Kings" and "Silent Night."

Following 'Sounds' is "Christmas, Rome 1976," airing from 12 midnight to 1:15 a.m. The Christmas Midnight Mass from St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City will be televised. The liturgical celebrant is Pope Paul VI, and the music will be sung by the Sistine Choir. Father Angellus Andrews, O.F.M., will give the English commentary.

CBS-TV's Christmas Eve highlight is the Christmas season at Graymoor Christian Unity Center, located near Pearkskill, New York, beginning at 11:30 p.m.

At midnight, the service from the Grace Baptist Church in Mount Vernon, N. Y., will be televised live, also on CBS.

Former Mayor of New York City, John Lindsay, hosts "Christmas In New York," airing on ABC-TV from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Joining Lindsay at Rockefeller Center are Diahann Carroll, The King Sisters, The King Cousins, The Voices of East Harlem, and the Ice Capades."

If Christmas Eve finds you still not in the holiday moon, try any — or a combination of these programs.

Actor Is Lucky

It's difficult for Larry Haines to believe he's been playing the part of Stu Bergman in CBS-TV's "Search For Tomorrow" 25 years. During this time the show has brought him close friends — among them Mary Stuart and Millee Taggart and her husband — and warm memories of a pleasant working base from which he's been able pivot in other areas.

When Haines auditioned for the part, the producers of 'Search' assured him that the part was his for the rest of his life. His portrayal of nice guy Bergman, everybody's next - door neighbor, has been so convincing that there's every indication he'll be playing the part for another 25 years.

"I've been lucky in my career," he says, because I haven't just been doing 'Search' all this time. I've been in several Broadway hits — I was in several films — and I've done a lot of nighttime TV and radio as well.

Reminiscing, Haines thought back: "Television was a new medium then. Things were a lot more hectic in those days. The equipment wasn't as good as it is now, and there was a lot of tension on the set because it was all live — no such things as taping. But it was a challenge, and I took it."

Larry's career began back in the mid-30s with a job at a small radio station in New York. "I worked 7 days a week, but I loved it. I auditioned for every show, and I guess I did about 15,000!" He had a running part in "Rosemary" and "The Second Mrs. Burton," both daytime serials on radio, and he occasionally does radio mysteries on CBS now.

He and his wife, Trudy, live in Weston, Conn., where they can actively pursue two of their favorite pasttimes — golfing and boating. "I don't take my work home with me. Once I finish a scene, or a day's work, that's it." His is indeed a well - balanced life, and he enjoys his time with his wife, their daughter and their friends.

Larry has seen many changes in daytime drama during his years of involvement He is pleased with the changes, and looks upon the new freedom of expression and the most notable one.

Festival On CBS

"A Nation of Nations," a CBS News religious presentation, featuring the annual Christmas Around the World festival of Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, will be broadcast on Sunday, Dec. 19, 10 to 10:30 a.m.

"It's been said that nowhere in the world but America is Christmas observed with a greater variety of customs, traditions and languages," says Alan Harper, producer of the broadcast. "Our Christmas celebrations are a rich composite of those of the whole world, and this festival truly takes not of the universality of the Christmas spirit."

For the past 36 years, many of Chicago's ethnic groups have participated in the museum's festival by decorating 25-foot-high Christmas trees in the style of their native lands and singing their traditional Christmas music.

Appearing on the broadcast are some dozen representative groups, including the Hungarian Reform Church Chorale, the St. George Antiochan Orthodox Church, the young adult choir of the First Congregationalist Baptist Church, and L'Estudiadina d'Oro Troubadours. Also appearing will be Chinese, Lithuanian, Swedish and Croatian groups.

'Christmas Around The World' To Be Presented Sunday

CHRISTMAS SALUTE — Jonathan Winters, as Maude Frickert, recites Clement Moore's " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," as one of several guest stars on "Christmas Around the World," NBC-TV's "The Big Event," to be colorcast Sunday, Dec. 19 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

Vikki Carr, William Conrad, Gene Kelly, Marcel Marceau, the team of Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis Jr., Liv Ullmann, Dick Van Dyke and Jonathan Winters guest-star in "Christmas Around the World," a festive holiday entertainment special depicting in words and music how Yule-time celebrations in many lands have become woven into the American tradition, to be presented on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Sunday, Dec. 19, 8 to 9:30 p.m.

"Christmas Around the world," two years in production, was produced by Lee Mendelson, winner of numerous broadcasting awards.

The special, which will also introduce singer Larry Finalyson, will be part of a "Big Event" double treat Dec. 19. It will be followed by the conclusion of "The Moneychangers," starring Kirk Douglas and Christopher Plummer.

For the holiday program, camera crews traveled to many parts of the world to film traditional Chirstmas festivities — Norway, Australia, Canada, Sweden, Trinidad, Germany, The Holy Land, England, Mexico, Wales, Italy, Ireland, France, Switzerland, Denmark, Holland and Austria, as well as cities in the United States.

Several of the world's most illustrious musical groups will perform, including the Pendyrus Choir of Wales, The Young Dublin Singers, The Despers Steel Drum Band of Trinidad, the Robert Lyon Singers (Oakland, Calif.), Les Troubadours Choir of Belgium, Les Montechos Choir of Canada, the Borganskoren Choir of Sweden, the Alauda Choir of Switzerland the the Duke University Choir.

Archie Gets An Agent

Dennis Brown, the young redhead who will portray the comic strip character, Archie, in the comedy special, "Archie," airing Sunday, Dec. 19, 7 to 8 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-12, made his first television appearance to get a girl, but got an agent instead.

Dennis explained: "My mother is determined to see me married. She took matters into her own hands and arranged an appearance for me on 'The Dating Game.' Although I didn't get the date, I did get calls from an agent and an acting coach."

Since his appearance on "The Dating Game," Dennis has guest starred on several television productions.

Funicello Goes To Disney's Toyland

Annette Funicello, the attractive brunette who won national fame as a Mouseketeer on "The Mickey Mouse Club" two decades ago, returns to television in a special Christmas presentation of Walt Disney's delightful adventure in the land of make-believe, "Babes in Toyland."

"Babes in Toyland" comes to "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings, Dec. 19 and 26 at 7 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28. Walt Disney's very special brand of imagination, Victor Herbert's music and the talents of Ray Bolger, Tommy Sands, Ed Wynn and Annette all combine to bring this enchanting motion picture fantasy to life.

Annette was discovered in 1955 by the famous producer in a children's ballet troupe. He signed her for "The Mickey Mouse Club," and she became one of that show's more prominent stars. In addition to her singing and dancing, she also played dramatic roles in serials like "Foreign Correspondent," "Spin and Marty," and her own serial, "Annette."

After the "Mouse Club," Annette guest starred on various TV series, and her first feature film, "The Shaggy Dog," was followed by major roles in two-part segments of "The Wonderful World of Disney."

Personally cast by Walt Disney for the female lead in "Babes in Toyland," she began a new cycle of feature films for Disney Studios which included "The Monkey's Uncle" and "The Misadventures of Merlin Jones." She then co-starred with Frankie Avalon in a string of 'beach party' pictures.

"But I've since outgrown my bikini contracts," smiled Annette, while she was back in front of the cameras to make a guest appearance on "The Mickey Mouse 40th Anniversary Show."

With the revival of "The Mickey Mouse Club," an entire new audience has fallen in love with the brown - eyed Mouseketeer. This new - found popularity has led to guest spots on "The Mike Douglas Show" and "Dinah."

Annette helps bridge the gap between the old and new Mouse Clubs when she appears as a special guest star on "The New Mickey Mouse Club," which is scheduled to air in January.

Her acting career has become less important to her since her 1965 marriage to agent Jack Gilardi. "Being a wife and mother of three lovely children is what my life is all about," says the radiant Miss Funicello.

"ALICE" TO CONTINUE

"Alice," the series which debuted on CBS-TV in September, has received a mid-season pickup for nine more segments of the half-hour comedy.

SOMETHING NEW WITH NEWS

Five one-minute news programs will be broadcast weekdays on NBC-TV beginning Monday, Jan. 3. The new program has been initiated due to the positive response from viewers and affiliated stations to "NBC News Update."

Lauren Hutton and Vince Edwards have been signed to co-star in "The Rhineman Exchange," a dramatized novel on NBC's "Best Sellers" series.

Special Episode To Be Colorcast

How do you "kill" a horse without hurting it?

Michael Landon and the crew of "Little House on the Prairie" did just that for a scene in "The Hunters," a special 90-minute episode to be colorcast Monday, Dec. 20, 8 to 9:30 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7-28.

The script calls for a scene in which Pa Ingalls (Michael Landon), who has been wounded in a hunting accident, is on horseback trying to reach help. While going up a steep hill the horse falls, rolls down the hill and is killed.

The two key elements of the sequence were (1) a trick horse and (2) a stuntman who would risk getting crushed by a rolling horse.

The entire show was filmed on location high in the mountains of California's Gold Rush country. After picking out the hill for the fall, Landon ordered it "prepared." The crew cleared all rocks from the side of the hill, then covered it with sand and pine needles.

At the bottom of the hill they placed sandbags and a mattress, to catch the horse when it rolled down.

The horse,-a 10-year-old bay gelding named Tumbles, was examined by American Humane Association representative Heff Flores, who was an observer throughout the filming. Trainer Denny Allen explained that Tumbles was trained to fall forward, and down, when given a special tug while his right foot was off the ground.

"Some horses can be trained to fall and others can't," said Denny. "It is just a matter of repetition, until the animal learns that it won't be hurt by the fall."

Landon, the show's star and executive producer, also wrote and directed this episode. He often does his own stunts on the show but when you have a full-grown horse rolling down a hill right behind the rider, you make sure your star is nowhere near when it happens. That's where stuntman Hal Burton earned his way.

Burton, wearing a wig and the same clothes as Landon, was the man who took the fall.

"I'd like to say we got the shot without injury," said Landon, "but that wouldn't be true."

The injury occurred when Tumbles took a perfect flop and Burton, anxious to get out of the way of the falling horse, took a long leap — which shot him right over the mattress and sandbags onto the pavement of the street below, where he landed on his knees.

A few minutes after the scene was filmed, Tumbles was standing in the shade munching grass, but Burton's knees were sore for a week.

BURL IVES GUEST-STARS — Burl Ives portrays a blind recluse to whom Laura Ingalls (Melissa Gilbert) turns for help when her father is injured in "The Hunters," a special 90-minute segment of "Little House on the Prairie" on Monday, Dec. 20 (8-9:30 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Elliott Is An Authority On Casting His Role

Stephen Elliott pretends to worry. "What if they make me a nice guy? All the fun will go out of the part."

He's talking about his starring role in the drama series, "Executive Suite," seen Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m. (on CBS Channel 3N-9-11), in which he plays the hard-nosed Howell Rutledge, who, as vice president of the giant Cardway Corporation, sees profits as the sole goal.

"I usually get authoritative roles," notes Elliott, who played wealthy Bostonian Benjamin Lassiter on the "Beacon Hill" series. "And I even played God on Broadway once."

Elliott insists he got into acting by accident, while working as a golf pro on the "Borscht Circuit." A native New Yorker, he studied at the Neighborhood Playhouse, won a New York Drama Desk Award for his role in "A Whistle in the Dark" and a Tony nomination for "Marat-Sade." In addition to more than 300 television guest roles, he has appeared in the movies "Three Hours to Kill," "Death Wish," "Hospital" and "Report to the Commissioner."

"I can be tremendously persuasive," he says. "It's part of the acting process — you can control things, you can make people laugh, and you can make them cry. So, playing a business executive is exciting, because you're exercising power."

'Camelot' To Be On TV Movie

"A law was passed a distant moon ago here, July and August cannot be too hot.
There's a legal limit to the snow here—in Camelot."

After the hustle and bustle of Christmas Day, accept the loveliest gift of all — your very own "Camelot." What's more, it comes complete with Richard Harris, Vanessa Redgrave and Franco Nero. The Academy Award-winning musical romance-adventure will be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Christmas night, and "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Dec. 27 to 11 p.m. both evenings.

Captain Calls Dragons

During an interview with Toni Tennille, who stars with her husband, Daryl Dragon, on "The Captain & Tennille," someone notified her that she had "A telephone call from another captain."

The other captain was none other than Captain Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the famed undersea explorer and one of the world's most ardent conservation spokesmen.

Captain Cousteau was in the United States and wanted to talk with Daryl and Toni about appearing at several forthcoming conservation events.

Said Toni, "I think he is one of the most incredible men .... he's a saint to me."

Toni and Daryl are both deeply into conservation causes, an interest that predates the forming of their musical team and their subsequent marriage.

Now, both are vegetarians, and Toni says, "I won't even wear anything made of fur. If I have to wear fake fur, I'll do that for the television show, but I'm not crazy about the idea.

"Once my designer made a mistake and showed up at the last minutes with a white fox fur for a number. I wore it that once because it was an honest mistake, but I'm sure he'll remember next time.

"I'm very opposed to taking the life of any living creature. I think that if man hadn't tampered with the balance of nature in the first place we wouldn't be in the situation we are in today.

"I don't know whether our convictions are intellectual, emotional, or a combination of both," Toni said, "but it's the way we've chosen to live and we're never reluctant to encourage others to do likewise.

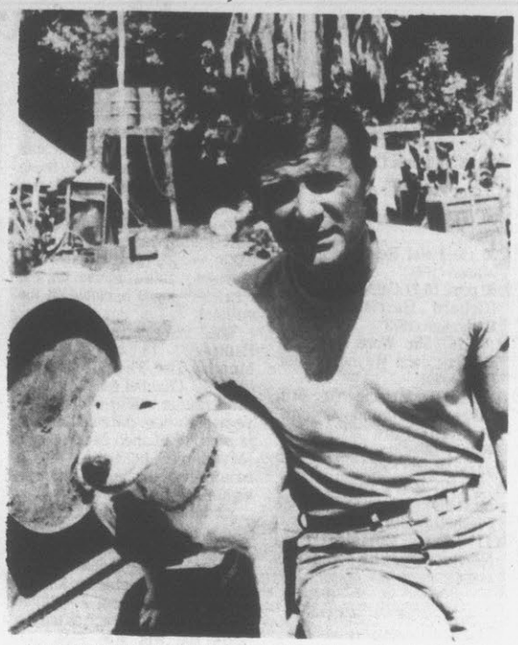
'Black Sheep' Gets Mascot



MASCOT MEATBALL — Pappy, played by series star Robert Conrad, and his mascot, Meatball, who is really a hound named True Grit, share some hair-raising adventures in "Baa Baa Black Sheep" the series based on the real-life exploits of WW II air ace Gregory "Pappy" Boyington. The series is colorcast Tuesdays, (8-9 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

On 'Baa Baa Black Sheep,' seen Tuesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7, there are at least two heroes — Boyington, who is the technical consultant, and Meatball, the bull terrier dog that plays the mascot of Pappy (series star Robert Conrad).

For Meatball, whose real name is True Grit, acting is a sideline. The dog is by profession, training and breeding — a searcher, be it for people or bombs. Working by special assignment only, Meatball's clients include the L.A. City Police Dept., the L.A. County Sheriff's Dept. and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Meatball's first day before the cameras for 'Baa Baa' was probably his most difficult to date. The night before, someone had abused a horse, left it helpless in the desert and fled. Called by the Sheriff's Dept., Meatball and his trainer, Robert McAdam, tracked the suspect for a mile and a half to where automobile tire tracks began. There, sheriff's deputies questioned residents and soon found their man.

On the night following Meatball's 'Baa Baa' debut, he and McAdam were called by the LAPD to find a man who had walked away from an institution for narcotics users. Meatball found the fugitive, McAdam persuaded him to return and all three came back with the escapee holding Meatball's leash.

Making Meatball's first day even more difficult was a crisis on camera. He was asked to bark — after being trained for years not to bark.

"It wouldn't do," McAdam explained, "for a tracking dog to give his position away by yapping. He could get shot and so cold I."

So when Meatball was asked to bark, McAdam had to call time out. He took the dog home that night, re-raught it to bark and came back the next day ready to go.

Meatballs, 4 years old and a solid 45 pounds, is descended from a strain deliberately bred, said McAdam, by an Englishman back in the 1880s. The dog is part white terrier, part bulldog, Dalmatian, Spanish setter and whippet.

"No one thought a white dog could stalk successfully," said McAdam, "but their noses are so good, it outweighs their visability. In Europe they're called silent stalkers.

In "Baa Baa Black Sheep," Meatball works primarily with Conrad and Larry Manetti, who plays Boyle, one of Boyington's flyers.

Conrad has only one complaint about Meatball: "He gets more fan mail than I do."

Doesn't Like To Be Alone

"Basically, under all that leather, Fonzie's heart is filled with giving," said Henry Winkler, who co-stars as the cool motorcyclist in ABC-TV's "Happy Days" series.

He was discussing "Guess Who's Coming to Christmas," the episode to be rebroadcast Tuesday, Dec. 21, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC-TV.

"The reason I enjoyed doing the episode is that it showed the other side of Fonzie. He catches the emotion of the holiday and still maintains his sophisticated image," he added.

The teleplay by Bill Idelson, directed by Frank Buxton, ranges from rollicking humor to poignancy as Richie Cunningham (Ron Howard) accidentally discovers that Fonzie, who has been boasting of a big holiday with relatives, is miserably alone on Christmas Eve. Richie and his dad Howard (Tom Bosley), try to find a way to get Fonzie to share their festivities without embarrassing him.

Fonzie's room is seen for the first time in the series — complete with motorcycle in the middle of the floor and the most pathetic little Christmas tree ever. "I liked this scene because it offered an opportunity to play Fonzie putting up a front for Richie and Mr. Cunningham who find him there when he is supposed to be in Waukesha," Winkler commented. "This is a very tight show. Everybody realy pulled together to create an ensemble."

Personal Experiences Depicted In Movie

OVERCOMES STIGMA — Michael Landon stars as an accomplished runner who becomes an Olympic champion after overcoming a chronic bedwetting problem that lasted even into adolescence in "The Loneliest Runner," a drama to be colorcast on the "NBC Movie of the Week," Monday, Dec. 20 (9:30-11 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Did Little Joe Cartwright ever wet his bed? Heck no!

Did Charles Ingalls ever wet his bed? Of course not!

Did Michael Landon, the star who brought both of those characters to television fame, ever wet his bed?

Indeed he did, and the misery and shame which resulted is the main reason why Landon, the star of "Little House on the Prairie," made a movie on the subject.

The film, "The Loneliest Runner," to be colorcast Monday, Dec. 20, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28, tells of the trauma suffered by a 13-year-old whose parents think he is wetting his bed because he's lazy or defiant. Landon has a brief role in the movie, which he wrote and directed.

"A lot of people smiled when I told them I was going to make a movie about bed-wetting," says Landon. "Some people laughed out loud. They wanted to know if I was going to call it "Piddle House on the Prairie," or maybe 'How the Wet Was Won,' but obviously they've never been bed-wetters, or they'd know that it's a tragic problem."

Landon, who was 14 years old before he stopped wetting his bed, has done a vast amount of research on the problem, and is amazed at the lies and myths that are still accepted by modern-day Americans.

"There's no way that a bed-wetter can be 'shamed' or 'humiliated' out of the habit," says Landon. "There are literally millions of kids in this country who are being emotionally damaged because of our ignorance."

He states that the problem, which hits far more boys than girls, is usually caused by very deep sleep patterns — and is usually hereditary.

"You show me a boy who is still wetting his bed at 12 or 13, and I'll show you a father or grandfather who did the same thing," Says Landon.

He says that his parents refused to buy him a full-sized bed — which meant that he'd never invite friends to his house for fear they'd see it. His mother wouldn't let him have anything to drink after dinner, and made him eat crackers before bedtime.

"I had the driest pillow in town," he laughs, "but I still wet my bed."

Landon is a gregarious, humor-filled man today, but he was shy and worried as he entered his teens. "My mother thought I was just being mean and stubborn," he reports. "She thought I'd stop wetting my bed if she hung my soiled sheet out of my bedroom window for all my friends to see. I was humiliated — but I still wet my bed."

He longed to join his pals at slumber parties, but was afraid he'd shame himself. Trapped into such a party once, he sat up all night rather than risk wetting a friend's bed.

Redford Movie Airs

Robert Redford stars as an ex-soldier who turns his back on civilization in the 1830s to become a fur trapper in the wilds of the Rocky Mountains in "Jeremiah Johnson," one of the top rated movies in television history, will be rebroadcast as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Dec. 19, 9 to 11:15 p.m.

The movie was filmed entirely on location in the mountains of Utah, and Cue magazine critic William Wolf said the film "gloriously captures the majestic desolateness, the danger, and the primitive beauty of the wilderness," resulting in "a heroic document of the pioneer spirit."

Jeremiah (Redford) makes his move into the primitive life with no more skills than the average man and almost starves to death in the sub-zero cold before he meets a grizzled hunter of grizzlies called Bear Claw (Will Geer). The weather-beaten mountaineer invites Jeremiah into his cabin, teaches him to skin a bear, sleep on coals, hunt and trap, and deal with-or avoid-Indians.

Jeremiah's "education" provides him with the basic tools for survival, and soon he has an Indian wife and an adopted son, but nothing can prepare him for the full ferocity of human savagery.

Nun Is Gifted

Debbie Reynolds and Ricardo Montalban star in "The Singing Nun," a musical drama about a young nun with a gift for music, on "The CBS Late Show" Monday, Dec. 20, at 11:30 p.m. The film is based on the true story of Souer Souire. Greer Garson, Agnes Moorehead and Chad Everett co-star.

When Sister Ann (Miss Reynolds), a Belgian Dominican nun, comes to work at Samaritan House to help the poor and underprivileged, she brings with her the guitar on which she composes light-hearted songs. After several months of entertaining her fellow Sisters, the young nun is persuaded to record an album which leads to overnight popularity. Sister Ann is soon faced with the momentous decision of whether to pursue a musical career or remain in the religious life.

Ricardo Montalban portrays Father Clementi; Greer Garson is seen as the Mother Prioress; Agnes Moorehead is Sister Cluny; and Chad Everett plays a recording company executive.

MARY TYLER MOORE SIGNS CONTRACT

The contract calls for her to star in two specials next season, and to star in a new series in the 1978-79 season. All of her shows will be produced by MTM Enterprises, the company she owns with her husband, Grant Tinker.

Lionel Gets Married Christmas

MARRIED — Damon Evans, as Lionel Jefferson, and Berlinda Tolbert, playing Jenny Willis, are married in an unusual Christmas Eve ceremony, in "The Jeffersons," Wednesday Dec. 22 (8:30-9 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Wedding bells and Christmas bells intertwine their chiming Christmas Eve when Lionel Jefferson takes Jenny Willis as his bride. The unusual ceremony uniting these two is the feature of this week's segment of "The Jeffersons" (Wednesday, Dec.22, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on CBS-TV).

Damon Evans, who plays Lionel, calls himself a "J. J. reject." He tried out for the part of J. J. in the "Good Times" series, and lost out to Jimmy Walker. But when he heard of the availability of a part in "The Jeffersons," he went after it. "I always wanted to work with Norman Lear because he educates his audiences." Evans notes that "even though I replaced another actor (Mike Evans) in a role he originated, no one told me how to play the part." In fact, Damon had a surprise for the producers, because when he auditioned, he had never even seen the show. "I was always working at night or going to school," he explains.

Berlinda Tolbert (Jenny) is a native of Charlotte, N. C., and a graduate of North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Her first professional role was in the Carolina Repertory Company's production of "The Wonderful O," in Chapel Hill, N. C. From there she went to a Washington, D.C., Theater Club, then moved to New York. Besides playing numerous roles in regional repertory theaters, Miss Tolbert has appeared in performances at New York's Lincoln Center and Off Broadway.

On TV, she has appeared in guest roles on "Sanford and Son," "Streets of San Francisco," "That's My Mama," "Mannix," "Police Woman," and "Shooting Anything With That Moves." She also appeared in the motion picture "Airport '75."

Miss Tolbert and her husband, actor Ray Vitte, live in Altandena, Calif. Her hobbies include cooking, fencing, and playing the violin.

Sinatra In Late Movie

Frank Sinatra stars as a wild renegade who has the cavalry on his trail, the law at his throat, outlaws at his back and women on his mind, in the Western adventure tale, "Dirty Dingus Magee," to be telecast on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Dec. 22, at 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Also starring in the film are George Kennedy, with Anne Jackson and Lois Nettleton.

Magee discovers his life in jail to be calmer and safer than liberty. When he is freed, he finds everybody is out for his life. He's used as a one-man uprising to keep a sleepy Western town out of bad financial trouble and becomes a target for the U. S. Army and the local sheriff. He's robbed by a bandit and caught in an ambush by the townspeople — all of which obviously keeps him constantly running for cover.

Comedy Series Airs

"This is not a good show. It's not a fine show. It's a great show," commented the title star of "The McLean Stevenson Show," the new comedy series seen Wednesdays (8:30 to 9 p.m.) on NBC Ch. 7-28.

"It's great because it's honest; because it could really happen," McLean continued enthusiastically, "It doesn't go for jokes. The comedy grows out of the situations that develop, situations that could happen to people you know, that could happen to you."

In the comedy program, the former "M*A*S*H" star portrays Mac Ferguson, a middleclass working father whose family has grown up and flown the coop. Humorous complications begin, and situations develop naturally, when Mac's son and a daughter with two children return home to roost on a potentially permanent basis.

"The series deals with four generations of an American family, from my wife's mother at one end to my daughter's children underfoot, and the funny things that happen really could happen," Stevenson reiterated.

Pike's Peeks

HOLLYWOOD — The "Missing Person's Alarm" you've been hearing at the beginning and end of "The Edge of Night" is not a hoax. There is indeed a 13-state missing person's alarm issued for Grace Garment, one of "Edge's,' writers. Grace, the wife of Leonard Garment (The U.S. representative to the United Nation's Commission on Human Rights), hasn't been seen since Dec. 3. She was last seen at Pennsylvania Station in New York City, shortly after having been released from the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic. Anyone with information about Mrs. Garment is asked to phone (212) 374-6920.

Tommy Smothers will be making his debut as a solo performer on the "Van Dyke and Company" variety show Thursday, Dec. 30. Tommy will relate the history of the Smothers Brothers and his future plans.

David Selby (everybody's favorite from "Dark Shadows") has a featured role in the upcoming ABC '77-'78 limited mini-series called "Washington." It's a whopping, contemporary drama based on the John Erlichman novel, "The Company." David plays Roger Castle, a young lawyer who works for the U.S. President, Richard Monckton.

High fashion model and actress Lauren Hutton has been cast in the leading role of Leslie Jenner Hawkewood in "NBC's Best Seller: The Rhinemann Exchange," currently filming in Mexico. Lauren is known as one of the highest-paid fashion models of all time and has appeared in films, including "Paper Lion," "The Gambler," "Gator" and most recently "Viva Knieval."

Carol Lawrence is the first to receive an invite to perform at Jimmy Carter's inaugural ball, Jan. 20.

And the network war goes on — CBS-TV has lured the Miss America Pageant away from NBC-TV for an undisclosed amount of money, reportedly better than $1,000,000, and will air the longrunning beauty pageant from Atlantic City on Sept. 10, 1977.

Christmas Message To Be Delivered

All systems are on "go" for an unprecedented telecast of the message of Christmas, according to Akron-based international television minister Rex Humbard.

The Rex Humbard Christmas Satellite Special will be televised from Jerusalem during prime-time around the world Thursday, Dec. 23, at 10 p.m. on Ch. 7.

"To our knowledge, this is the first time the Christmas story has been beamed around the world like this," Mr. Humbard says.

An estimated 100 million persons on six continents will receive the program. "This is more people than were alive when Jesus was born," Mr. Humbard points out.

The telecast will be launched from Jerusalem. Using three COMSAY satellites, the picture and sound for the program will orbit the earth in a fraction of a second.

The program will be heard in seven languages on more than 300 stations.

It will be televised in English in Nigeria, Canada, the United States, the Philippines, and Australia. It will be beamed by radio in English across Europe.

Leachman Visits Wolf

Cloris Leachman, one of America's most versatile actresses, reveals a personality and lifestyle as varying as her stage and screen roles when she visits "Jeanne Wolf With" Thursday, Dec. 23, at 10:30 p.m. on PBS.

Whether talking with Jeanne Wolf, rehearsing for her appearance in the hit Broadway comedy "Same Time, Next Year," or harmonizing with her uncle Jack Albertson, TV's "Phyllis" is delightfully unpredictable. The resulting "Jeanne Wolf With" program portrays a talented and zany actress who proves equally adept at honestly discussing her off-again, on-again marriage and her committment to health foods, or taking over a poolside cast party.

"ROOTS" TO PREEMPT 8 NIGHTS

In a dramatic move to showcase its $6 million production of "Roots," ABC-TV has scheduled the 12-hour epic over eight consecutive nights, beginning Jan. 23.

Said ABC President Fred Silverman: "We are taking this unprecedented approach to insure maximum impact and continuity for an important dramatic story."

NEIL DIAMOND PLACED IN DRUG PROGRAM

Singer-composer Neil Diamond has been placed on a six-month drug-diversion program to determine if he should go to trial on a misdemeanor marijuana possession charge.

Diamond was cited in Los Angeles last June 30, after sheriff's deputies, acting on an anonymous telephone tip, allegedly found one ounce of marijuana at the singer's Bel Air residence.

'The Homecoming' Returns

If we are to believe the old adage, most weddings are made in heaven. Not so, however, for Edgar Bergen and Ellen Corby. Their "marriage" was made courtesy of RKO Pictures — and it was solely on celluloid.

Bergen, the world - famous ventriloquist, and Miss Corby, a veteran character actress, appear in "The Homecoming: A Christmas Story," the award - winning, two-hour holiday drama special to be rebroadcast on CBS-TV Friday, Dec. 24, 8 to 10 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Recalling his make-believe hitch to Miss Corby, Bergen quipped, "It was one of those modern marriages — no formal ceremony."

Miss Corby and Bergen were newlyweds in the 1948 movie "I Remember Mama," an adaptation of John van Druten's stage hit, drawn from Kathryn Forbes' series of short stories about an American - Norwegian family at the turn of the century. Irene Dunn starred in the film as Mama, and Miss Corby played her middle - aged sister, finally wed to her persistent Norwegian suitor, Bergen.

The two seasoned actors had not met since their movie marriage over a quarter of a century ago. But the habits of a 26-year-old marriage, even a storybook one, are hard to break.

A HOMECOMING — Veteran performers Edgar Bergen and Ellen Corby played a couple who courted and were wed in the 1948 motion picture "I Remember Mama" (left). They had their first meeting since that film when they were cast in roles as grandparents (right) in Earl Hamner Jr.'s "The Homecoming: A Christmas Story," a two-hour family drama special to be rebroadcast Friday, Dec. 24 (8-10 p.m.6 on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Gardening Continues In Winter

Winter's first frost doesn't mark the end of the gardening season. "Crockett's Victory Garden" marches on — through the cold winter and into spring with more valuable information for both the indoor and outdoor gardener every Friday and Sunday afternoons on PBS.

Right next to that now - famous forty - foot by forty - foot Crockett plot that produced such a bountiful crop all summer is a greenhouse that was originally intended to supplement the outside garden. When the fall season was drawing to a close, avid 'Victory Garden' fans demanded more. So host Jim Crockett and his trusty crew made the greenhouse their winter headquartrs.

Now your house plants as well as your outdoor plants can benefit from Jim Crockett's knowledge. He'll demonstrate techniques to take your garden through the winter and explain the care and repair of a wide range of house plants. Holiday poinsettias, African violets, gardenias and orchids bloom. Cucumbers, tomatoes and string beans ripen. Coffee grows, and even mushrooms tip their caps this winter on "Crockett's Victory Garden."

The show's plant clinic continues to treat all kinds of green (or once green) patients. One of the saddest cases showed up one morning wearing a tattered crepe paper cover on its pot and contained something that vaguely resembled a plant. The foundling wore a simple, plaintive message, "Help me." Crockett, always a pushover for a troubled plant, came to its rescue, and the sickly cyclamen is now thriving.

PROUD PARENTS — Helen North (Lucille Ball), a widow with eight children, and U.S. Navy officer Frank Beardsley, a widower with 10 children, meet and decide to marry in "Yours, Mine and Ours," a comedy-drama to be rebroadcast on the "ABC Friday Night Movie," Dec. 24, (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 3W-5-12).

Family Movie Airs

Henry Fonda and Lucille Ball star in "Yours, Mine and Ours," a comedy drama to be rebroadcast as "The ABC Friday Night Movie" Dec. 24 from 9 to 11 p.m. on Channel 3W-5-12. The film is loosely based on the experiences of the Beardsley family and in book form.

In the story, Helen North (Miss Ball), a widow with eight children, meets and marries U. S. Navy Warrant Officer Frank Beardsley (Fonda), a widower with 10 children of his own.

Complications set in right away as Helen and Frank must cancel their honeymoon when one of the children develops a fever. Shopping for a house large enough to accommodate two families poses another problem as does the coming of age of the eldest children.

Van Johnson portrays bachelor Darrell Harrison who freely offers advice to Frank.

MAN ON THE RUN — Wesley Eure must rank as one of the busiest actors in Hollywood, running back and forth (nearly 10 miles) between NBC in Burbank, where he stars as Michael Horton in the daytime dramatic series, "Days of Our Lives," and Goldwyn Studios in Hollywood, where he portrays Will Marshall in "Land of the Lost," a Saturday morning children's show (both on NBC-TV). An average day for Wesley means 6 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the "Days" set and then off to Goldwyn Studios until 10 p.m. when he finishes "Land of the Lost."

Actor Runs Daily Between Networks

Wesley Eure has learned that it isn't always easy to be in two places at once.

He portrays Mike Horton in the daytime drama on NBC, "Days of Our Lives," and he also stars as Will Marshall in the Saturday morning children's show, "Land of the Lost."

Both shows are currently in production, "Days of Our Lives" in Burbank (Calif.) and "Land of the Lost" in Hollywood, almost 10 miles away. This presents a problem in logistics for Wesley. To meet the tight schedules of both shows he must bounce from one to the other — and he isn't made of rubber. Which makes it all the tougher.

Eure does not work every day on 'Days,' but his presence is required every day on the children's show. When working, his hours at NBC are from 6 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Then he must get over quickly to the Hollywood studios where he will work sometimes until 10 p.m. Then he is up the next morning at 5 a.m. to go over his scripts for both shows and the whole routine begins again.

Is it too much for him?

"Not at all," replies Wesley. "I love it. Fortunately, I'm young and can still absorb this kind of punishment. Besides, it's fun to say I'm acting in two network series simultaneously."

There are not many actors who can make a statement like that.

Wesley is proud of the fact that he has always been able to maintain his difficult schedule and has never caused a delay for cast and crew in either show.

But there have been moments of near panic.

"I never take off my makeup after finishing 'Days,'" he explained, "it saves time when I go on the set for 'Land.'"

Miracle Movie Airs

Channel 12 is very pleased to announce a special Christmas gift to their many viewers. "Miracle on 34th Street" will air Christmas night on "Will C's Red-Eye Cinema," beginning at 11:15 p.m.

In "Miracle on 34th Street," a man claiming to be Kris Kringle (Edmund Gwenn in his academy - award - winning role) is hired as Santa Claus for Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade which traditionally signals the start of the Christmas season in New York.

Bowl Classics Begin

CBS Sports' post-season collegiate football coverage begins on Christmas Day (3 to 6 p.m.) when the University of Oklahoma Sooners meet the University of Wyoming in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz.

In the traditional New Year's Day Cotton Bowl football classic in Dallas, Texas, (2 to 5 p.m.) the unbeaten University of Maryland Terrapins battle the University of Houston Cougars.

And, in the Sun Bowl at EKL Paso, Texas, the Aggies of Texas A&M University take on the University of Florida Gators in a contest to be broadcast Sunday, Jan. 2, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Lindsey Nelson and former Green Bay Packer great Paul Hornung will do the commentary in the Cotton Bowl, and veteran sportscasters Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier will do the play-by-play in the Sun Bowl.

Oklahoma, with a record of 8 victories, 2 defeats, and 1 tie, closed out its regular season play last week with a 20-17 win over Nebraska on Elvis Peacock's three touchdown effort, the last coming with 38 seconds to play.

Maryland could lay claim to the mythical national championship if it can extend its unbeaten string to include Houston in the Cotton Bowl, the Cougars claiming the Southwest Conference title in their first season of SWC play.

Houston coach Bill Yeoman, who watched his 2-9 team of last year transformed into an 8-2 winner, said, "This feeling probably tops any feeling I've had in coaching previously."

The Aggies of Texas A&M registered 9 victories in 11 outings this past season, and the Gators of Florida will be sky-high for the Sun Bowl kickoff after closing out their regular season with a 19-10 win over rival Miami (Fla.).

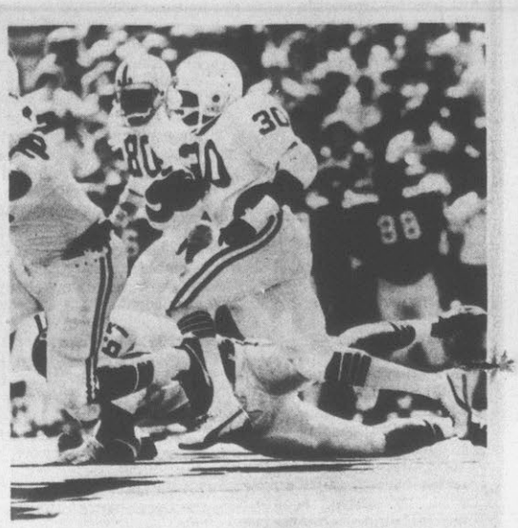
Sooners Meet Cowboys Saturday

Since Oklahoma Sooner Coach Barry Switzer waved goodbye to most of the talent that helped Oklahoma win back-to-back national championships, sports-writers and fans anticipated a drop in their football fortunes to somewhere in the nation's top-ten. Oklahoma finished the season with a 8-2-1 record and in a three-way tie for the Big Eight Championship with Oklahoma State and Colorado. Colorado is representing the conference in the Orange Bowl by virtue of their 42-31 victory over Oklahoma and a 20-10 win over Oklahoma State. Oklahoma State will meet Brigham Young in the Tangerine Bowl, while Oklahoma meets Wyoming in the Fiesta Bowl at 3 p.m. on Christmas Day, Dec. 25, on CBS-TV.

In coach Barry Switzer's four years as the Oklahoma mentor, he has won two national championships and never been out of first place in the awesome Big Eight. Oklahoma's record is a sparkling 40-3-2 under Switzer.

Oklahoma has done an about-face since the season started. They started the year relying on defense as their offense struggled. Then, with almost the entire secondary plus middle guard Reggie Kinlaw out for the season with injuries, the Sooner defense couldn't stop a soul it seemed, but thrived from week to week on a tremendously improved offense.

Oklahoma operates out of the Wishbone offense with two quarterbacks. Dean Blevins, a junior, was the starter at the season's start but has been plagued with injuries, as has the entire Sooner squad. Thomas Lott is a sophomore and was thrown into a starting position when Belevins was sidelined. This young speedster with a 4.5 in the 40 rally gets the Wishbone moving. The Sooners are loaded with an array of class running backs to rank third in the nation in rushing with a 318 - yard average per game. The Sooner runners are all big and fast: Elvis Peacock (6-1, 206) runs the hundred in 9.4; Horace Iovyr (5-10, 198) senior All American with speed and power enough to go inside or outside, and fullback Kenny King (6-0, 204), a sophomore with speed to play halfback and power enough for a 5.7 rushing average.



FOOTBALL — Kenny King the (6-0,204) bruising sophomore fullback is a tough runner with quick feet and the speed to break. Oklahoma will meet the scrappy Wyoming Cowboys in the Fiesta Bowl Saturday, Dec. 25 at 3 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Golf Tourney To Be In Miami

The world's leading men and women professional golfers will tee off together in the same tournament for the first time since 1966 at the Pepsi Mixed Team Championship to be played on the famous "Blue Monster" course at the Doral Country Club in Miami, Florida, from Dec. 16-19.

Live action in the final round of the long-awaited confrontation between the men and the women will be televised nationally by PBS on Sunday, Dec. 19, from 2 to 4 p.m. on UNC-TV. This will be the first time that a major golf tournament has been covered on public television.

Sportscasters Ray Scott, Bob Halloran and Norm Hitzges will describe the shot-by-shot action. Color commentary will be provided by Hall of Fame golfer Jimmy Demaret and by Mary Bea Porter, a rising young golfer on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Sanctioned by the LPGA, the Pepsi Mixed Team Championship is the richest mixed team event in professional sports history with a purse of $200,000 to be divided by the leading teams. A total of 46 mixed teams will be vying to share the top prize of $40,000.

The method of pairing players loosely resembled the format of a Sadie Hawkins Day dance. The 40 leading money winners from the 1976 women's tour, as of July 26, 1976, and six other sponsor invited players comprise the female half of the field. Each woman then had her choice of partner from the men's ranks. She could invite any man from the top 60 money winners on the PGA tour, as of July 26, 1976, or any player who had ever won a sanctioned men's tournament.

Alabama Named Favorite

Despite the loss of 14 starters from last year's team, sports writers still tabbed Alabama the favorite for the Southeastern Conference Title. Alabama always has an abundance of talent and coach Bear Bryant always substitutes generously, yielding 33 veterans on the roster.

This season has not been as successful as Alabama tradition demands, but their eight wins and three losses earned them an invitation to meet UCLA in the Liberty Bowl on Monday, Dec. 20. (9 p.m. on ABC-TV).

As usual, Alabama sports a stingy defense, anchored by All American Bob Baumhower. In discussing 200-pound Rich Wing, who was redshirted a year ago because he was more interested in cracking heads than playing the position, Baumhower says, "He kills his own body. Imagine how he feels about yours."

Offensively, the Crimson Tide boasts of All - American Ozzie Newsome, the leading receiver for the Tide with 25 receptions and 529 yards and 6 touchdowns. Newsome was a high school All American in football and basketball before coming to Alabama in 1974.

Johnny Davis and Calvin Culliver were also high school All Americans and have been big offensive yard - gainers over the past few seasons for the Tide. Culliver is a senior while Davis is a junior with another year left to torment opposing collegiate coaches.

In the Nov. 16th issue of "Football News," Paul 'Bear' Bryant appraised this year's Alabama team as follows: "We've been very ordinary most of the year, but our young players are starting to come along and help us, and we have a chance to wind up pretty good. I hurt us early because I did a lousy coaching job last spring and overlooked a lot of things that are necessary to having a good team. But we've got some talent, and if I stay out of the way, we may still be a good team."

Colts Meet Steelers

After the 1973 season, Ray Chester was pretty well pleased with his professional football career.

In three seasons with the Oakland Raiders he had been the starting tight end. He had been AFC Rookie of the Year in 1970. He had been named to the AFC all - star team twice and played two times in the Pro Bowl. He even held the Oakland single-game tight end reception record with eight catches for 110 yards.

Then during the off - season, the Raiders traded Chester to the Baltimore Colts for defensive end Bubba Smith.

Rams Meet Cowboys

As the 1976 NFL season nears its end, one thing is certain — Randy White is definately a success in the pro ranks. White will be in action Sunday, Dec. 19, at 5 p.m., as the Dallas Cowboys meet the Rams in a NFC playoff game, to be broadcast by CBS-TV.

Randy was everyone's All-American at the University of Maryland as a defensive end. As a college player, White received such acclaim as Syracuse Coach Frank Maloney's statement: "He is the greatest lineman I've ever seen, and that includes Alan Page and all the rest." Clemson's offensive coordinator recalled one play: "We ran right at Randy only once, on a fourth-and-one from the Maryland one. He went outside on the play like we wanted him to, but he came back and made the tackle. That's impossible to do, but it's on the film.

Yuletide Airs Saturday

It's a family celebration on "The Carol Burnett Show" as all the regular cast members, Miss Burnett, Harvey Korman, Vicki Lawrence, Tim Conway and the Ernest Flatt dancers, put together a special Yuletide show of music and laughter as a Christmas night treat, Saturday, Dec. 25, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11.

With special lyrics to "Twelve Days of Christmas," Miss Burnett and the full cast decorate a tree and exchange gifts as children carolers knock on the window and serenade the group with Christmas songs.

Comedy sketches include another look at Mrs. Wiggins (Miss Burnett) as she is being taken to lunch by her perplexed employer, Mr. Tudball (Tim Conway); Harvey Korman as a smooth operator hoping to pick up a date in a swinging singles bar; and Miss Burnett as a lady with the same thing in mind.

In "Rich Lady, Broke Lady," Miss Burnett and the cast present a condensed version of a television primetime soap opera with Miss Burnett as Judy Dorsash trying desperately to raise her younger no-good sister, Tammy (Miss Lawrence) after their mother dies. Korman is Jules Ascott, the secret father of Tammy's illegitimate child, who nevertheless marries Judy, and Tim Conway is the tough punch-drunk fighter trying to kill Tammy for blinding him in one eye with a lucky punch while she was America's top lady wrestler.

Welk's Christmas

Like every other family in the world, Lawrence Welk's musical family is proud of its large passel of children, and it's the kids who star this week in Lawrence's annual Christmas program, parading their talents with their parents in a jolly, melodious procession of holiday songs, Saturday, Dec. 25, at 7 p.m., on 7.

"Jingle Bells" starts out the party, with Welk's entire troupe of performers, and the maestro himself, in a Christmas Card presentation. Santa Claus and a group of Irish leprechaun helpers zip through "December 25th," Tom Netherton sings "Christmas Song," and Sandi Griffiths with daughters Jenni, 7, and Amie, 4, sing "Away in the Manger," with little Benji, 10 months old, beaming on the sidelines.

Role Keeps Hughes Working

"You know I'm out of practice for this role," laughed Barnard Hughes as he prepared for his special guest star apperance as Bob Newhart's father in "The Bob Newhart Show" episode to be broadcast Saturday, Dec. 25, on CBS Ch. 9-11.

Hughes, who until just recently starred as Doctor Joe Bogert in the comedy series "Doc," was humorously alluding to that role.

"I played Bob's father once before," he recalled, "two seasons ago for his Thanksgiving show. I've always felt that was the audition job that landed me my own show. Now, I'm back again as Herb Hartley for the Newhart Christmas show — and loving it, I may add."

"I'm first and foremost an actor," said Hughes. "Actually, I believe we're an ambivalent breed that seeks security but thrives on insecurity. I've always been secure about myself, but never about the business. There's a true story that sort of sums up this idea. "It happened some ten years ago when I was filming a commercial with another actor on a train. They were filming us as we traveled from Mt. Vernon, N.Y., to Stamford, Conn. My friend couldn't check his agent by phone while we were aboard the train, but as soon as we stopped he placed a hurried call to find out about upcoming work. As luck would have it, he'd just missed getting a call for the next day. He came back, sat down and said, 'Isn't that just my luck. If I hadn't been working today I could have worked tomorrow.'"

Peter Graves has been signed to guest-star in "Death Flight," a two-hour movie of the week to air on ABC.

FAMILY WEEKLY

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SAM ERVIN, former Senator

At this Bicentennial Christmas, do you think the founding fathers would be pleased with what we have accomplished? What would they find irritating about our system of government?—J.M., Washington, D.C.

● I think they would be delighted with what we have accomplished. During the last two centuries, we have attempted to keep as close to their concepts as is humanly possible. I'm sure they would be pleased that the country which they founded has grown and prospered the way it has. But I'm positive they would deplore the fact that the Government has adopted a welfare program which often robs people of their incentive to strive for financial independence.

FOR CAROL BURNETT, comedienne

As a child, what convinced you there was a Santa Claus? —M.B., Joliet, Ill.

● We'd just moved, and I couldn't figure out how to let Santa know where I was. I hoped when he got to our old home, he'd find the note I left for him with our new address. On Christmas morning I rushed to the tree to see what was there. I wasn't disappointed. There was a tiny box for me with a 25-cent patent leather coin purse inside. That was my best Christmas ever—I knew Santa was smart and that he cared.

FOR FRANK GIFFORD, ABC sportscaster

What was your funniest Christmas experience?—L.R., Flint, Mich.

● Don Klosterman and I were playing in a college all-star football game on the West Coast. Christmas Eve we went partying in San Francisco and stayed out until 6:00 A.M. As we were creeping into our dorm, we came face to face with the coach. "Where have you been?" he demanded. We said very innocently: "Not where have we been—it's where are we going? It's Christmas morning, and we're off to Mass." We ended up in church.

FOR CLEVELAND AMORY, founder of The Fund for Animals

Why doesn't your organization run a campaign at Christmas encouraging parents to buy pets for their children?—A. Sommerville, Fort Myers, Fla.

● Never! A pet is not a toy for children to play with, then tire of, as they do with dolls and building blocks. However, if the parents seriously believe their child will help be responsible for the pet's welfare, I urge you to make your choice at your local animal shelter. The best pet on earth is a mutt or an alley cat.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS,
co-anchor of the ABC Evening News

This year I'm giving my first big Christmas party. Any tips to help me make it a success?—R.J., Elmira, N.Y.

● If it's a buffet, I like to serve things that can be eaten without a knife. Put lots of snack tables around, so your guests don't have to balance trays or plates on their laps. See that every couple knows at least one other pair. At a sit-down meal, I like to shuffle my guests around for dessert (there's nothing wrong with two women or two men sitting together), just for a change of scene.

FOR JULIA CHILD, gourmet

Did you ever "goof up" on a Christmas dinner?—P.N., Altoona, Pa.

● The year we entertained two sets of nieces and nephews. One niece is a fine cook, but the other niece and her family are exactly opposite—they eat mostly convenience foods. Well, I started out with cheddar cheese soup, and the gourmets enjoyed every mouthful. The others said, "Ugh, what's that," and pushed it away. Same with goose and red cabbage; one set wolfed it down; the others looked like they were going to be sick.

FOR DON KIRSHNER, rock impresario

Do teenagers still love carols the way they did when I was a kid?—B.Z., Rome, Ga.

● All in all, I'd say they go for it. As with most things, it's a matter of taste. There's a wider variety of musical styles for youngsters to choose from than ever before. Some enjoy nostalgia, while others favor a modernized version of a traditional carol. Also, newly recorded carols often attract fans because of the artist recording it.

FOR SHELLEY WINTERS, actress

What was your most poignant Christmas?—B.C., Clarksville, Tenn.

● It was during the Depression. My girl friend and I were longing to make our homes look pretty and colorful, and we were flat broke. We "borrowed" a few gold trinkets from our homes and hocked them. We never got to buy the tinsel and stuff, however, because we were discovered before we could spend a cent. And our parents made us get back the stuff we'd pawned.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of The Last Chance

Do you think people who aren't avid readers appreciate receiving books as Christmas gifts?—S.A., Yuma, Ariz.

● Yes, because they are the ones who would never buy books for themselves. Non-bookworms appreciate books in their area of interest (cookbooks, stock-market reports, for example). Anything in the "how to" field or a best-selling novel is a good bet. If you're really stumped for ideas, give a gift certificate. Even if I weren't a writer, I'd still give books because they endure.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I'm fascinated by ghost stories. Do you have a nice Christmas one for my collection?—B.G., Waco, Texas

● We sure do. Heard this from Catherine Schell of TV's Space: 1999. A few years ago she spent the holidays on a huge Virginia estate. Christmas Eve night, Catherine was awakened by the odor of smoke. She went out to the corridor but found nothing smoldering. She went back to sleep, but again she awoke. The smoke fumes were overpowering, but the room was clear. Then, to her horror, she saw the face of a man who was rapping at the window. Behind him was a wall of flame. Catherine rushed to the window, but the vision faded. Next morning she learned that many years ago the wing of the house where she slept had burned down. The cook had rushed through the house, waking the family and hastening them to safety. He, however, perished in the flames.

THE CHRISTMAS I'LL NEVER FORGET

Funny, sad, touching, joyous—here are the unforgettable Christmas memories of some of our best-loved celebrities.

Anna Moffo

Phyllis Diller

Wide World

Jimmy Dean

Mary Welsh Hemingway

Melba Moore

By Neal Ashby

ANNA MOFFO has gone from Wayne, Pa., where she grew up as the daughter of a shoemaker, to sing in the opera houses of the great cities of the world—Vienna's Staatsoper, London's Covent Garden, the Teatro de Colon in Buenos Aires, our own Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

"At the age of 20, I was spending my first Christmas away from home, studying voice with the Rome Opera on a Fulbright scholarship. It was a melancholy time for a girl who'd had a sheltered childhood in a small town. To make matters worse, I couldn't find a Christmas tree to give some holiday atmosphere to my tiny apartment. In Rome, decorated Christmas trees weren't the custom.

"Back in November I had auditioned for singing work at a Rome radio station. But I was never called back and was convinced I wouldn't be. Then, a couple of days before the holiday, the station did call. 'Come over tomorrow morning,' a man said, 'we're going to have a hookup with a lot of stations in the United States, and we want you to sing 'Silent Night' to Italians in America.'

"I rushed over, and they put me in this bare studio with an announcer.

"When I finished 'Silent Night,' someone came in and put earphones on me, and there was the voice of my mother back in Pennsylvania, saying, 'Dear, you sang like an angel!' Mother and I laughed, talked and cried while audiences in Italy and the U.S. listened.

"I didn't have a tree that year, but it was a wonderful Christmas just the same."

JIMMY DEAN, country singer, worked as a field hand and cleaned chicken houses at the age of 10 to help ease the poverty of his family in Plainview, Texas. In his teens, his mother taught him to play the piano, and in the Air Force he blossomed as an entertainer who could also tell country jokes and whimsical stories. His recording of "Big Bad John," which he wrote, was the first of several hit records. Dean has had his own network TV programs and is in demand on talk shows and at state fairs, rodeos and Las Vegas hotels.

"At home in Plainview we were really poor—sugar-sack shirts and all that. Treats that cost money were pretty scarce, and a Christmas tree was a treat! We never had one; just saw them through other people's windows. On Christmas Eve, Mom gave my brother Don and me a stocking to hang up, and on Christmas morning we usually found some hard candy, an orange and maybe one toy in our stockings.

"I finally caught up, and bought my first Christmas tree just after I was married. My wife Sue and I had taken a little place in Seat Pleasant, Md. I went out and bought the biggest tree I could find. We covered it with tinsel and ornaments, but that wasn't enough for me. I added a load of that fluffy, white angel hair. I wanted a tree I'd never forget. And I never have forgotten it, though our trees have been more modest since that first one."

MARY WELSH HEMINGWAY was a magazine reporter in Paris when she met Ernest Hemingway, already a famous author. They married not long after and for 15 years lived an eventful life in Africa, Cuba and Idaho, until his death at 62 in 1961. Ms. Hemingway describes their years together in a new book, How It Was (Knopf).

"I've spent Christmases in Minnesota, where I grew up, in New York City, London, Venice, Paris, Havana and Ketchum, Idaho. But the most unusual one was observed at a place called Kimana Swamp, in Kenya, at the base of Mt. Kilamanjaro, in 1953. Ernest and I were on a six-months' safari, hunting lions, jaguars, antelopes, eland, wildebeest—whatever we chanced to find. As Christmas approached, I thought of the grove of umbrella thorn trees I'd seen a few miles from our tent camp. They had white spiky thorns on them that were at least an inch long. One of those thorn trees would be our Christmas tree, I decided. We dug one up and transplanted it outside our tent.

"I flew into Nairobi with our pilot in our little plane and bought tinsel, old-fashioned wax candles that you clamp on the tree and Christmas presents for Ernest and the 21 tribesmen who were our guides, gun bearers, trackers, skinners and cooks.

"On Christmas Eve we gathered everyone beside the decorated thorn tree, and I made my little speech in horrible Swahili. The men were all Moslem, and I told them this was one of our important Christian celebrations, and I hoped they wouldn't mind. They all stood quite respectfully and quietly in their green konzas, which are like nightgowns. I had wrapped the gifts in Christmas paper and ribbon: a suede vest for Ernest and, for each of the men, a prized pound of lard, pound of tea, pound of rice and a hunting knife. They were all delighted.

"Ernest gave each of us a big bear-hug. It was a very joyous Christmas!"

MELBA MOORE, pop vocalist well-known to television and record audiences, has sung in Broadway musicals and for the President's guests at the White House. Most recently, she's appeared at Paris' famed Olympia Theater and presented a one-woman show at the Metropolitan Opera House, the first woman to do so at the Met.

"I always remember three or four Christmases that were very much alike when I was a little girl growing up in Harlem. My mother was a singer in cocktail lounges and nightclubs, under the name of Bonnie Davis. She was always working at Christmas time. On Christmas Eve, I'd be in our apartment with our housekeeper, a wonderful woman I called Mama Lu. The two of us would work late into the night preparing for the next day. We would clean, iron linens, wax floors, fry chicken and bake pastry until after midnight. I loved all of it, but I'd always be worrying that Santa Claus would walk in on us. Fortunately, he never did.

"The next morning, after a few hours' sleep, I'd get up to find a lot more had been done. The apartment was all decorated, and a lighted Christmas tree was there. And, what was the grandest gift for me, my mother was home to spend Christmas with us."

PHYLLIS DILLER has become probably the nation's top-ranking female standup comic though she never set foot on a stage until she was 37. She's gone far and fast with her bumbling housewife gags, each followed by her raucous laugh. Diller has played all the major supper clubs and TV variety shows, has written books and has acted in plays and in nine films.

"When I was a student at Sherwood Music Conservatory in Chicago after high school, the highlight of my year came one Christmas time. I was hired to sing soprano in a chorus that was to perform Handel's Messiah before a large studio audience and over the radio at a big Chicago station.

"All of the girls in the chorus were to wear long white dresses. I didn't have one. And there wasn't much time to get one. Luckily, a friend said she could lend me a white dress and would leave it for me in the Conservatory cloakroom.

"I rushed in on the day of the performance, grabbed the big box left in my name and dashed to the studio. Dressing with the other girls, I opened the box—and my gown was black! I would have been the wicked witch among the angels!

"All I could think of was to rush around the corner to a department store and buy a white sheet. The girls pinned me into it. A Halston it wasn't, but, in the back row, I guess I blended in passably well.

"I was thrilled to be a part of the performance. But I couldn't laugh about the shock of seeing the black dress until years afterward!" FW

This lovely lady—Rachel Carr, author of "Yoga For All Ages"—IS REPLACING DEADLY TENSION WITH SOARING NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY! Yet, to an outside observer, it looks as though she is doing nothing at all! This is the great marvel of Healing Yoga— that it produces such phenomenal returns in beauty, strength, appearance and vitality for such a tiny investment in time or energy! No wonder it can be enjoyed by 80-year-olds, or arthritics, as well as robust teenagers! No wonder its simple postures (like this one) seem to "smooth away" both years and pounds from the very beginning! Why not try these incredibly-easy "body-reshapers" and "revitalizers" today—without risking a penny!

IS THIS THE World's Easiest Yoga?

So incredibly easy that anyone can master it! And yet so powerful that it may cut years off your appearance...recharge your body with youthful energy... turn back on sleeping "Health Glands" inside your body! And do it all—in just a few glowing minutes each day!

Call It, If You Will, "Healing Yoga!" Made Up Of SIMPLE HEALING POSTURES THAT REDIRECT THE ENERGY FLOW WITHIN YOUR BODY To Help You To:

1) Gently stretch "weak muscles" strong again! So that they gain new strength, new power, new slimming control—not by agonizing effort—but by the super-nourishing blood-flow that these stretches pour into those muscles!

2) Flood with the same super-nourishment the tragically-neglected upperbody tissues of your face, neck and hair—and thus retard the drying and collapsing process that is aging your appearance faster and faster every year!

3) Revitalizes dormant "Youth Glands" inside your body! Put gentle, soothing pressure on them for a few blissful moments each day, so they automatically burn more of the food-fuel you put into your body! So you use the fat stored on your waist, hips and thighs as a brand-new supply of energy, to ward off fatigue and sluggishness at the same exact time that you look slimmer and feel younger than you have in years!

And—perhaps most important of all—

4) Attack directly—with Nature's own health powers—unnecessary sicknesses and breakdowns that may be torturing you today! So that you feel for yourself the effect of these simple postures on such agonizing cripplers as arthritis . . . rheumatism . . . respiratory illnesses . . . high blood pressure . . . back troubles . . . insomnia . . . shattered nerves . . . and a dozen more!

Such startling relief, in fact—so quickly—that the author must share it with you, in these joy-filled words:

"At first I found the sudden intake of oxygen a little startling. I experienced a surge of vitality as though I had opened the window for a breath of fresh air; yet the quieting effect it had in my mind was hypnotic. . . . My step took on bounce, and a wonderful sensation of well-being stayed with me. The pain in my joints and back, which had plagued me for years, subsided. With relief I discarded the traction device I had used nightly . . ."

And All These Benefits Come From Simple Postures That May Seem, At First, Too Easy For You! In Fact, You May Actually Laugh At Them—UNTIL YOU FEEL THE SURGE OF NEW ENERGY COURSING THROUGH YOUR BODY!

Once again, this new, simplified, streamlined Yoga works on the proven scientific principle that you cannot force . . . you cannot strain . . . you cannot torture your body into releasing again the buried reserves of strength and vitality that are now trapped within it!

For example, you know perfectly well how exhausted you feel after ordinary strenuous exercises . . . how they become progressively more and more difficult to practice . . . how your body finally forces you to give them up, and sink right back again into ever-increasing flabbiness, sagging facial and body tissues, an ever-growing sense of feeling "old and beaten" by life!

But—right now—do you have the energy to simply lie on the floor, and breathe in and out five times in a brand-new way? It takes only minutes to learn the method! You may chuckle at it at first! Until you feel the surge of super-charged oxygen revitalizing every tired tissue of your body!

And then, do you have the energy to simply raise your arms over your head—in the special way we show you while you are lying on the floor—and stretch your body gently and luxuriously from head to toe! And feel so much trapped tension drain out of that body that you may actually want to dance around the floor in sheer delighted joy!

Yes, and do you have the energy to play a simple trick on those flabby stomach muscles, that sucks them gently in close to your spine for a few strength-producing seconds . . . and that can make you look inches thinner in just a few blissful days!

And would you like to tighten up the vital muscles in your face, chin and neck—at the same exact time you flood them with fresh nourishing blood—all with one or two simple stretching exercises! Or start slimming over-heavy calves and thighs . . . tone up sagging breasts and hips . . . the hanging flesh on the undersides of your arms—all with the same easy gentle stretching movements!

Once Again, They Produce Results That You Can Gain In No Other Way! For Example:

Cleansing Breaths! Sort of Super-Sighs, that let you breathe weariness right out of your body!

Why the best tranquilizer in the world doesn't cost you a penny! It's yours on page 10.

Blood-Stream Purification. Forces your body to burn up potentially damaging inner secretions that may have been clogging your cells for years. You may feel the difference—thrilling new freedom from indigestion alone—immediately!

Yoga Sex Exercises specifically designed to stimulate lagging sex glands!

What is perhaps the single most powerful pose to delay aging in the human body (page 38). And why it may release a virtual torrent of self-healing processes!

How to re-distribute weight the Yoga way! How you can look like a young person if you have an old person's bulges distorting your figure. Yoga works on those bulges to painlessly redistribute that weight over your entire body . . . and help eliminate ugly bulges that have plagued you for years!

Yoga Revitalizers For Your Face, Your Hair, Your Spine, Your Teeth!

How to flood your face with blood at least once a day—the effortless way—and not only use the power of gravity to help build up instead of tear down delicate facial tissues that are now collapsing into lines and wrinkles, but also: stimulate mental processes . . . irrigate the gums and roots of your teeth to help increase their strength and longevity . . . and flood your scalp and hair follicles with the same rich nourishing blood!

Plus:

A simple way to avoid incomplete elimination!

How to stretch lower back pains away! Make those stiff joints mobile again! That stiff spine as supple as a kitten's!

Deep internal massage! To tone up the liver, kidneys and pancreas . . . firm the stomach . . . increase the gastric fire and therefore the powers of digestion . . . lead to true inner cleanliness!

What Yoga can do for you to improve varicose veins, swollen ankles and feet!

How to restore elasticity to stiff joints—without pain—especially knees, ankles, shoulders, hips, wrists, and finger-joints!

Folds in the neck—they are not inevitable if you know this simple posture on page 30.

How to cleanse nasal passages . . . calm the mind . . . help relieve sinus and other headaches . . . reduce eye strain and fatigue . . . strengthen optic nerves and muscles—all in the same posture!

Health-Power postures that anyone, of any age, can do in a chair!

The great Yoga cure for over-strained nerves! Starts to work immediately, in minutes! May be worth a hundred trips to a psychologist! Its fantastic ability to induce sound sleep, even in confirmed insomniacs, may alone be worth the low price of this book!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The crippling pain of arthritis sent Rachel Carr to the study of yoga. Following the system of exercises she outlines in Yoga for All Ages, she managed to loosen her rigid spine and knee joints and to dispense with the traction equipment she had used at night to stretch her spinal column. From that beginning, she went on to study yoga in depth and to become one of America's most noted teachers of the subject.

But there is so very much more! You really must try these great Health-Power Postures yourself to believe them! Therefore we offer this Complete Streamlined Course to you, to read and use from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Look again at the unretouched photograph of the author above. Realize again that, only a few years ago, this woman was in literal agony from the pains of arthritis . . . in such poor health that she could not sleep at night without traction!

CELEBRITY COOKBOOK
By Marilyn Hansen

How the Real-Life Walton Kids Spend Christmas

JOHN BOY
"In real life, I'm the Christmas cook."

Richard Thomas practically grew up backstage at his parents' ballet company in New York. Christmas was considered "special" by the Thomases, a day when they were all together.

This Christmas, Richard and his wife Alma will celebrate their second Christmas together. Continuing in the Thomas tradition, Richard himself will buy and cook the Christmas dinner. "We're going to have Roast Goose," he says, "with my own 'secret' stuffing as the star of the menu. Then I think we'll top it off with Plum Pudding and Hard Sauce—and, of course, steaming hot coffee."

MARY ELLEN
"This year I'm roasting my very first turkey!"

A native Californian, Judy Norton/Taylor really enjoys being on "The Waltons." "It's given me a better idea of what life was like in the Depression years of the 1930's." She has learned that if families "stick together in good or bad times, things can be worked out."

Christmas means a lot to Judy, too...especially those fabulous holiday dinners. As a newlywed, she's looking forward to Christmas '76, and plans to continue the family tradition with her very first roast turkey dinner.

JASON
"I love Yorkshire Pudding!"

English-born Jon Walmsley is a serious young actor and versatile musician...as well as a gifted soup artist. After late evening jam sessions, he'll frequently serve up some hot soup, blending two or three varieties.

At Christmas, Jon joins his parents for a traditional Walmsley English dinner. "Mother's specialty is Yorkshire Pudding," says Jon, "which she serves with roast beef and garden fresh vegetables."

ERIN
"When I think of Christmas, I think of cakes!"

Believed to be a descendant of Andrew Jackson, Mary McDonough's family heritage goes back a long way. So Christmas is a time for reunion. Long tables are set up, and every family contributes to the meal. "We have turkey, ham, salads, vegetables, and all kinds of cakes. My mother is famous for her Poppy Seed Cake. I can make it, too!"

Of course, the Mc Donoughs aren't the only ones that have to eat. So every Christmas Eve, just before going to bed, the children set out cookies and milk for Santa, and a carrot for Rudolph.

From the angel's hair to the candy canes, the Walton kids enjoy decorating their special Christmas tree.

BEN
"My mother is a cookie specialist."

18-year-old Eric Scott is one of those special people born right in Hollywood. "I think being raised in a show business atmosphere makes you more sensitive to other people," he says.

At Christmas, Eric enjoys being at home with his family and the good spirits the holiday brings. Not to mention the cookies. According to Eric, Mrs. Scott is an expert cookie baker. "My favorite is something Mom calls Spicy Gumdrop Hermits," he says. "She makes them every Christmas."

JIM-BOB
"Ever eat a Candy Cane Sundae?"

As one of the youngest members of the cast, 15-year-old David S. Harper seems almost unaware of his actor status.

Ask him about Christmas, and David will tell you it's great because "there's no school and you have more time to come up with all kinds of gooey ice-cream concoctions." One of his specialties is to crush peppermint candy canes on top of vanilla ice-cream, topped with chocolate sauce, whipped cream and cherries!

ELIZABETH
"I help my mother give 'finger-food' parties."

Since both her parents work, Kami Cotler's family makes every effort to relax and see friends at Christmas. Mrs. Cotler likes to serve "finger-food" buffet parties and Kami enjoys helping. One of Kami's holiday specialties is to fill pitted dates with peanut butter and roll them in sugar. "If you roll some in colored sugar and some in white sugar, you can design them in a box and give them as a present," Kami explains.

Be sure to watch "The Homecoming"–a Christmas story–a special episode of "The Waltons" on Friday, December 24, at 9:00 PM (EST) on CBS.

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT CHRISTMAS?

Why do we use holly? What is "hackin"? What favorite Christmas character is a "squeezing old sinner"?

By Bill Colson

Q. Where did the tradition of trimming the Christmas tree begin?

A. Trimming a tree with ornaments dates as far back as ancient Rome, but Christmas-tree decorations, as such, probably originated in Germany in the 16th century, where trees were adorned with gilded nuts, apples, sugar figures, dolls and shepherds.

Q. How did the custom of sending cards at Christmas originate?

A. It most likely began in England in the early 19th century among the upper classes. Then, when reforms in the British postal system permitted cards to be sent at a uniform penny rate, the custom quickly spread.

Q. Why is St. Francis of Assisi important to Christmas?

A. He began the transformation of the carol from a solemn hymn to a festive song celebrating Christ's birth and is thought to have created the crèche.

Q. According to tradition, what is the proper way to kiss under the mistletoe?

A. Each person kissed is supposed to remove a berry. After the last berry has been picked, the kissing should end.

Q. The carol, "Joy to the World," is based on two famous sources. What are they?

A. The text of the carol is a paraphrase of Psalm 98, and the music is taken from various sections of Handel's The Messiah.

Q. What is the symbolic significance of holly?

A. The red berries symbolize Christ's blood; the sharp thorns His painful crown.

Q. What major American novel of the 1950's is also the title of a famous Christmas song?

A. Go Tell It on the Mountain, by James Baldwin.

Q. Who levied a fine for "observing any such day as Christmas"?

A. The Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Q. What is "hackin"?

A. Until the 18th century, plum pudding was known as "hackin" because its ingredients were hacked (chopped) before being mixed into the dessert.

Q. Match writer or composer with work

a) Tchaikovsky
b) Charles Dickens
c) Clement C. Moore
d) O. Henry
e) Dylan Thomas
f) Martin Luther
g) George Handel
h) J. S. Bach

1) 'Twas the Night Before Christmas
2) The Messiah
3) A Child's Christmas in Wales

CHRISTMAS QUIZ

Continued

Q. Which is the only Gospel to mention the Wise Men?

A. Matthew. Not mentioned, however, is how many Wise Men there were. The number is usually set at three because of the three gifts they brought to the Christ child (gold, frankincense and myrrh), but in some paintings and historical writings their number ranges from two to twelve.

Q. What Christmas plant was named after a United States ambassador?

A. The poinsettia was named after Dr. Joel Poinsett (1851), who served as U.S. Ambassador to Mexico. A native plant of Central America, it was brought by Dr. Poinsett to South Carolina, where it flourished.

Q. What Christian churches do not celebrate Christmas on December 25?

A. Many Eastern Orthodox churches throughout Russia and Eastern Europe follow the Julian rather than the Gregorian calendar and thus are thirteen days behind our dates. They celebrate Christmas on January 6.

Q. What do the following historical events have in common?

a) In 496 Clovis I, pagan king of the Franks, was baptized—an event which was the first real step toward the formation of the French nation.

b) In 800 Charlemagne was crowned Emperor of the West.

c) In 1066 William the Conqueror ascended England's throne.

d) In 1099 Christians celebrated the victory of the first Holy Crusade.

A. Each occurred on Christmas Day.

Q. According to the Bible, what animals were present at Jesus' birth?

A. The Bible mentions no animals at the birth, but later writers often added everything from donkeys to lambs—and even camels.

Q. Why is Thomas Nast, the famous 19th-century political cartoonist, important to Christmas?

A. His sketch for Harper's Weekly in the 1860's (see illustration page 11) was largely responsible for transforming the Christmastime gift giver from St. Nicholas, a slim austere patriarch in bishop's robes, to Santa Claus, the portly, figure in a red outfit.

Q. Who were Melchior, Balthasar and Caspar?

A. The three Wise Men were given these names around 900.

Q. How did Joseph and Mary know to take the infant Jesus to Egypt?

A. According to Matthew 2:13, an angel appeared to Joseph in a dream and said, "Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt . . . for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him."

Q. Name the author of the following passage, the work in which it appears and the person being described in it.

"Oh! But he was a tight-fisted hand at the grindstone . . . a squeezing, wrenching, grasping, scraping, clutching, covetous, old sinner! Hard and sharp as flint, from which no steel had ever struck out generous fire; secret, and self-contained, and solitary as an oyster. . . . He iced his coffee in the dog-days; and didn't thaw it one degree at Christmas.

A. Charles Dickens; A Christmas Carol; Scrooge.

Proof of temporary relief from minor arthritic pain

PHILADELPHIA—Tests at a Philadelphia nursing home have shown that Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub brings hours of temporary relief to minor arthritic pain, and can help improve mobility. The tests were conducted at The Presbyterian Home for Widows and Single Women, with an instrument designed to measure grip strength. Each woman first tested her grip; then applied Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub. Its greaseless, stainless formula warms deep, eases stiffness, soothes pain. Hours later when tested again, the grip strength of most of those tested had significantly improved. Use as directed.

Each seedling grows to 3 or 4 ft. indoors or up to 8 ft. outdoors or you can stop the growth of the tree at any height you wish between 3 and 8 feet. It is super disease-resistant.

Imagine stunning exotic-shaped leaves up to one foot long! Imagine the constant changing show. First the lovely leaves—then a shower of delicate, fragrant flowers—and finally a beautiful array of juicy luscious tomatoes.

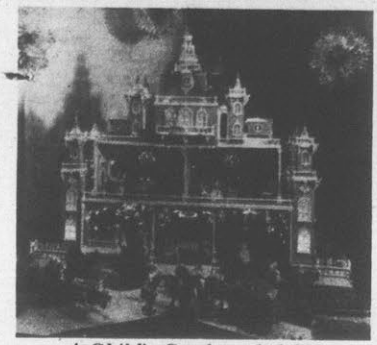
WHAT IN THE WORLD!



A Child's Castle at $10,000

THE MOST EXPENSIVE CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN THE WORLD

Pretend you're a millionaire and can buy anything you want from stores around the country. What would you get? Well, for the kids, why not a $10,000 Dream Castle just waiting to be picked up. It's handmade in Bavaria and the only one of its kind in the U.S.A. In front of the entrance is a lawn setting with a horse-drawn carriage waiting at its edge. Inside, there's a fully lighted hall of mirrors in which miniature dancing figures in 17th-century costumes cavort to the strains of "A Little Night Music."

If fun for the whole family is more what you had in mind, how about really surprising them on Christmas day with Your Own Amusement Park at just $2,000,000 an acre? You provide the land, and the fantasy spot is yours. Price tag includes a former Disney designer, parking, electricity and water. For those more interested in heritage than in high living, you now have the perfect gift—an autographed letter from President Thomas Jefferson to Col. John Taylor, dated March 14, 1821. A steal for only $8,500. It's said that one needs even heat distribution to make a good omelet. So be the hit of your neighborhood with this stocking present—solid-gold omelet pan for $30,000. We only hope it lives up to its promise to create the ultimate omelet each and every time. It features a rosewood handle and a French oak box. Also includes four pounds of white truffles, four dozen double-yoked eggs and a documented essay on the omelet pan.

"Around the World in 80 Days" your secret fantasy? Do it after New Year's with a balloon trip to wherever your heart desires. May we suggest some sensational soaring above the Grand Canyon for $6,000? Includes an FAA licensed balloon pilot, limousine to the balloon and champagne.

You will, of course, want to move now that you're so rich. How about a revolving, round house? It's a steal at $835,000. The entire house can rotate to change the view at will or to follow —or elude—the sun. If you want to check the realtor, take a look at the houses of some of his ex-clients such as Bing Crosby, Bette Davis, various Rockefellers, Jackie Gleason, Guy Lombardo, Dean Martin, Jimmy Stewart, the late Billy Rose, Edmund de Rothschild, the late Duke of Windsor, Mary Martin, Charles Schultz and—last but not least—the Bank of New York.

For where to buy these Christmas "dream gifts," write Family Weekly.

GOOD, INEXPENSIVE, LAST-MINUTE GIFTS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

A Castle for Grownups at $835,000

ON THIS WEEK'S COVER, A SPECTACULAR CHRISTMAS TREE

When Loretta Hines Howard presented her precious collection of Neapolitan Christmas crèche figures to New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, little did she realize that its yearly installation at the foot of the Museum's giant tree would become a cherished event for people around the world. That angel on our cover is only one of 50 equally elegant and heavenly creatures—clad in swirling pastel draperies, their hair knotted by a mystical wind—who, seemingly by magic, hover suspended in adoration over the birth of the Christ child.

There are also shepherds carved to look like the real peasants they were modeled on, dozens of dimpled cherubs, hosts of country people, horses, sheep, oxen, goats—even an elephant. The three Magi are there—splendidly attired in long cloaks of silk embroidered with silver, gold and sequins. The figures are made of terra cotta and wood and are 12 to 15 inches high.

Because in the 18th century the queen of Naples and her ladies were often given the task of clothing the human figures, each is outfitted in exquisite detail. Even the buttons on cloaks and boots are tiny semi-precious stones. The Howard crèche combines two European traditions: the Northern European practice of decorating the Christmas tree, and the custom of Southern Europe, which calls for a re-enactment of the Nativity scene.

Christmas crib building first made its appearance in Italy sometime around 1670. It was the favorite pastime of the leading families of the aristocracy. The beautiful creatures of the Howard crèche may once have belonged to a crib set up by a famous Neapolitan family. But this year, they are in the Sculpture Garden of the Metropolitan. Museum spokeswoman Maggie Burton says, "It's very beautiful, but it's more than that; it's an ideal stage setting for the most powerful drama ever—and in a perfect kind of theater."
