

Retaliation Strategy Likely To Continue

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The advent of Dr. Harold Brown as defense secretary probably means that massive retaliation again will become the dominant U.S. plan for deterring a Soviet nuclear attack.

Under this concept of "mutually assured destruction," both superpowers are afraid to attack because each has enough protected strategic nuclear weapons to ride out a surprise blow and to devastate the attacker's cities in return.

This long was the pre-eminent concept in U.S. deterrence doctrine. But former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger pushed to the front nearly three years ago a different option called "flexible response," and that policy was retained by his successor, Donald Rumsfeld.

Brown, a senior Pentagon official for eight years in the 1960s, has shown in the past that he disagrees with Schlesinger's approach and that he believes "assured destruction" is the surest policy for discouraging Soviet attack.

Schlesinger changed U.S. targeting doctrine to emphasize a capability for selective, relatively small-scale nuclear retaliatory strikes at Soviet military and military-related targets.

He argued that this would give the United States flexibility to reply to possible limited Soviet nuclear strikes on U.S. military forces, or to overwhelming conventional aggression against U.S. allies in Europe, without launching massive attacks on Soviet cities.

Schlesinger contended this flexibility — and Soviet awareness that the United States was prepared to resort to it — would reduce the danger of nuclear conflict.

"The aim of this modification of policy is to make lower level nuclear conflicts as well as conflicts involving the large-scale destruction of cities even less likely," Schlesinger wrote Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., in early 1974.

Brown's disagreement with the emphasis on a "flexible response" policy was expressed in a talk he made last year before the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow.

Brown said contingency planning for possible strategic nuclear strikes against military targets "ought to be severely limited" because it may erode deterrence and thus "increase the likelihood of catastrophe."

Brown said no one should be "deceived into thinking that the existence of forces, options and plans for a strategic counter-military exchange makes survival of either the United States or the U.S.S.R. in a nuclear war at all likely."

This suggests the future of some new weapons developments pushed by Schlesinger, including more accurate and more powerful warheads for U.S. land-based intercontinental missiles, may be in doubt.

Schlesinger will be in the new cabinet, but as energy czar.

Final Rites Tuesday For Michigan's Philip Hart

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip A. Hart, who influenced major civil rights and consumer protection legislation during three terms in the U.S. Senate, is dead at 64.

Hart, a Michigan Democrat, died at his Washington home Sunday, a victim of cancer.

Often called "the conscience of the Senate," Hart worked hard for passage of civil rights laws and for measures that would protect consumers from powerful big business interests. He sought unsuccessfully to win approval of legislation to dismantle the nation's largest businesses.

Hart was a leader of the Senate liberals and had announced in June of 1975 that he would not seek a fourth Senate term because he believed "that the guard should be changed with some regularity."

A month after his announcement, Hart discovered he had cancer.

A spokesman for Hart's office said he died of malignant melanoma.

President-elect Carter issued a statement from his office in Plains, Ga., praising Hart as "a man of unquestioned integrity" who "exemplified the highest of moral and ethical standards in public service. He was a friend of the American consumer and a tireless worker against injustice."

SEN. PHILIP A. HART

Carter called Hart's death "a tragic loss."

President Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., expressed "deep regret" over Hart's death.

Fellow Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called Hart "a giant in the Senate ... His voice never shook the rafters, but touched the conscience of every senator who worked with him."

According to a spokesman for Hart's office, funeral arrangements were planned by Hart and his wife. The spokesman said a public memorial Mass will be celebrated at St. Matthews Cathedral here Tuesday. Hart's body will be cremated and the remains taken to Mackinac Island, Mich., on Wednesday for private burial in St. Anne's Catholic cemetery, the spokesman said. The Harts have a home on the island.

Donald W. Riegle, another Democrat, is to succeed Hart in the Senate next month. Reigle was elected to the House as a Republican in 1966, became a Democrat in 1973 and won the Senate seat last month.

Hart's strong feelings about civil rights and about the rights of consumers in the American marketplace often had him standing alone against members of his own party.

Hart headed the Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on antitrust and monopolies for years, staging hearings on big business that he called "poorly attended lectures on the evils of economic concentration."

Those hearings produced what Hart called "a modest little bill" to break up the nation's largest and most powerful conglomerates, including General Motors, the single most powerful economic influence in Hart's home state.

For 10 years he fought for the idea, finally coming close to victory in September when the Senate came within five votes of adopting his proposal to break up the 20 largest oil companies.

"In theory, we have a free enterprise system," Hart once said. "But in fact, in each of our basic industries, a handful of corporations calls the shots, immune from the pressures of competition."

Greenville residents enjoyed a quiet holiday this weekend, but early this morning the bustle resumed as shoppers crowded the stores to make exchanges and take advantage of after-Christmas sales.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the weekend was "very, very quiet" and noted this holiday was "one of the quietest we have had for a long time."

Lt. Carl Gilchrist of the Highway Patrol reported traffic over the weekend was "a little heavier than normal, but not real heavy."

"We were extremely fortunate during the holidays in this area,"

According to Frank Havens of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. Christmas is the busiest day for the telephone networks, but holiday call traffic was less a problem in Greenville due to the absence of the college students.

"On Christmas Day we worked 35 employees and handled 24,000 call attempts," said Havens.

"Calls were up six per cent from last Christmas. The congestion in the network nationwide was more than last year, and we had much more difficulty this year in getting calls through.

"Overseas calls were almost impossible to complete because of the overload."

Frances Shirley of Western Union said she was pleased with how telegram and telegraphic money order traffic was handled over the weekend.

Al Bohler of Western Union said they handled "a fantastic number" of telegrams and money orders.

"Last year, one person handled it," he said.

"This year we brought in extras so we could get all the messages delivered on time. We handled 25 to 30 per cent more than we did last year."

Skip Stallings, control room operator for the Greenville Utilities Commission, said there were no major power problems over the weekend.

"Everything seemed to be real quiet," he said.

"It was the quietest Christmas we have had since I've been here. There were no big power losses whatsoever."

Greenville florists were kept busy making deliveries over the weekend.

"It was really hectic," said Shirley Russell of Ina's House of Flowers.

"We had a lot of deliveries. Business always picks up at Christmas, and this year it was as good as, if not better than, last year."

John Causey of John's Flowers and Gifts also noted an increase in volume of sales.

TRANSITION—President Gerald Ford and President-elect Jimmy Carter confer on the transition between administrations in Washington three weeks after the election. Said Carter, "There could not have been a better demonstration of friendship and unity and good will than shown me by President Ford."

By RANDI ROSENBLUM
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In November James Earl Carter narrowly defeated President Gerald R. Ford to become the first President elected from the Deep South since before the Civil War. The story of his election and the campaign preceding it was voted the top news story of 1976 by the editors and news directors of Associated Press member newspapers, radio and TV stations.

The other top stories in order were: (2) the deaths of Mao and Chou and the changes in China that followed; (3) the Bicentennial celebrations; (4) the U.S. economy; (5) the Legionnaires' Disease; (6) the Mars landing; (7) the Washington sex scandals; (8) the Patty Hearst trial; (9) the Israeli raid on Entebbe airport; (10) the California school bus kidnapping.

1. After a 22-month-long campaign, Jimmy Carter was elected the 39th president of the United States. Just two years ago, the ex-governor of Georgia was all but unknown outside his home state, but with grim determination and a campaign strategy mapped out by young aide Hamilton Jordan, he won the Democratic party nomination. It had been the longest primary contest in the nation's history.

After the Democratic Convention in July, his popularity reached a high of 62 per cent, according to the Gallup Poll, against President Ford's 29 per cent. Many people felt that his 33 point lead meant an easy victory.

But with the hoopla of the conventions and the divisive challenge from Ronald Reagan past, Ford's popularity began to climb, and some saw him staging a Truman-like comeback. It was not to be.

Many of Ford's problems were not of his own making. He was haunted by the legacy of Watergate and the slow-to-end Vietnam War. He had to fight the image of himself as an accidental president and to cope with the lingering angry reaction to his pardoning of Richard Nixon.

As elections drew near, he had problems with subordinates such as Butz and Brown, who made inopportune remarks. Sometimes, as during the second debate when he declared that Eastern Europe was not Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

DORMEYER BOWL

I would like to know where to get a large bowl for my Dormeyer electric mixer. Now at Christmastime is when I really need it, but I'd like to have it whenever I can get it. Mrs. S. H.

Hotline gave you the address of the Dormeyer Manufacturing Company Inc., 3418 N. Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, Ill., 60641. However, if any of our readers know of a local or nearby dealer who might stock such parts, we'd be glad to pass the information along.

GOT DEED

I finished paying last July 30 for some land I'd been paying on for five years. But National Realty Inc. of Lexington has never sent me the deed. And now just recently I got a bill for $11.99. It's a small amount, but I don't know why I owe it, plus, as I said, they seem to be withholding my deed. I wrote a letter asking, but never got an answer. C. B.

Hotline called National Realty and learned that the $11.99 was for taxes, somehow not included in the payments you've been making. The lady we talked to, though, said, while they hope you'll pay this amount, it's not reason enough to withhold your deed. She promised she'd send a notice right away to the department that sends out deeds to send you yours. Apparently she did, since you report only a few days later that you have your deed.

Possibility Of A Civil War Eyed By Trudeau

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau says he would not lead Canadians into a civil war if predominantly French-speaking Quebec tries to break away from the rest of Canada. But he says he does not treat the possibility of such a war lightly.

"We have the examples of Lebanon and Cyprus and Northern Ireland and Bangladesh," Trudeau said in a television interview Sunday. "We have all kinds of contemporary examples of the absurdity of trying to solve the differences of ethnic and religious principles by arms. You star shooting and you don't easily stop."

"I'm just saying I would not be the man to lead Canada into a civil war, but I don't say there wouldn't be others who would want to take up arms, and hence the danger is not one that I am minimizing."

Trudeau said he was determined to counter the separatist movement in Quebec by working through Canada's democratic structure.

However, the prime minister cautioned that merely giving provincial governments more power in some form of federalism would not be enough to sway Quebec's new ruling party away from its policy of eventual independence.

Rene Levesque of the separatist Parti Quebecois PQ was elected premier of the province last month, after his French-speaking party scored an upset victory in provincial elections. Levesque said he plans to call a referendum on independence within two years. Trudeau has said a national referendum would follow if separation was endorsed by a strong majority in Quebec.

"My course is to keep a strong federal government but to make Quebecers feel that they have a role to play in that government," Trudeau said in the interview.

However, he said, "if there is a referendum on Quebec independence, I think I can clobber the PQ so badly, at the referendum that they will no longer have any leg to stand on, and either they'll resign or have to renege on their separatism commitment."

Trudeau said the quickest way to settle the issue would be "to clobber the separatists very strongly at the next provincial election, and this can be done by the opposition parties in Quebec."

Increased Mail

A lot of Christmas greetings and presents were delivered through the mail this year and most were delivered safely, according to the Greenville Post Office officials.

According to Johnny Foell, Assistant Postmaster, the Greenville Post Office handled an increase of five per cent of all types of mail during the Christmas season.

"We had 103,994 parcels, both in-coming and out-going during the holidays. We averaged about 23,000 to 26,000 parcels per week," Foell said.

The Post Office had requested citizens to mail Christmas cards and parcels earlier this year because of an additional mail load caused by the United Parcel Post strike in the southern states. When Foell was asked about early mail load in Greenville he said that the citizens of Greenville had cooperated with the early mailing.

"The people of Greenville cooperated very well with our request to mail early and we were almost back to our normal schedule on the Wednesday and Thursday before Christmas," Foell said.

Brazilian Marmita Is A Simple Lunch Pail

By PENNY ROGERS
MONTES CLAROS, Brazil (UPI) — Marmita — it could be the title of a song, or a poem, or even the name of a lovely lady. It has a musical sound as it rolls off the tongue.

It is a Brazilian institution found everywhere. Recently it even became a protest symbol in the Montes Claros jail 400 miles north of Rio de Janeiro where each prisoner beat one against the bars demanding decent food.

What is a marmita? Simply the Brazilian lunch pail. Somehow it doesn't quite live up to its romantic sounding name. But what it lacks in beauty, it more than makes up for in popularity and practicality as far as the local people are concerned.

Every day, shortly before the lunch hour, scores of women and children of all ages can be seen on dusty roads in small interior towns, each carrying a towel-wrapped, lidded tin pot in their hands or on their heads or even hobo-fashion, at the end of a stick over one shoulder. They are headed for factory or construction sites where fathers, husbands, brothers or sisters are at work. There they wait for the recipient to eat his meal and then carry the empty marmitas back home, often several miles away. For the working class especially, this saves a great deal of money. Rarely do factories have cafeterias and if they do, the cost is high for employees on a $75-a-month minimum salary. Besides, it lacks that home flavor.

To the question, "What's inside the marmita today?" comes an avalanche of giggles from small, barefoot children who find it strange that anyone wouldn't know. "Rice, beans and meat, of course," is the answer, implying that Papa wouldn't eat anything else.

Most workers leave their homes at sunup after a bit of bread and coffee, and so, by 11 a.m., they are ready for something substantial. Despite the hot climate, the main hot meal of the day comes at midday no matter where they are. A sandwich and a couple of carrot sticks just won't do. It has to be the standard rice, beans and meat fare with farinha (manioc flour) sprinkled liberally over everything. Sometimes a bit of green vegetable rounds out the menu. The meat content varies from several chunks to a bare hint, depending on the food budget for the day.

One outlying factory, realizing the importance of the noon meal and the difficulty in transporting it, gave its workers a bonus recently. A special truck passes pickup points where crowds of women and children load on the marmitas for working members of the family and the rations arrive warm at the factory.

For some of the other industrial areas, several enterprising boys have developed a marmita delivery service. They pedal from house to house along a route with wooden crates attached to their bicycles and load them with hot marmitas for their clients. One young entrepreneur has 31 customers who pay 20 cruzeiros a month each (about $2.00) for his door-to-door service.

One of the young bicyclists spreads his load of gaily wrapped lunch pails next to the factory fence. None has a name tag. "Each man knows his own. Maybe it's the color of the towel or bag wrapping or the way the wife ties the knot with a fork sticking out of the top," the boy reported. Sure enough, as each man came out of the factory, he homed in on his own lunch without hesitation and settled down in the meager shade for some nonstop eating. There was no chatting until the last forkful signaled the end of serious business. Then it was time for joking or a short siesta.

All over Montes Claros it was the same, whether the marmita had arrived by truck, bicycle or thanks to a family member who had often trudged miles. One hard-hatted worker looked up from his empty marmita and said, "I don't care who brings it, just as long as I get my food."

So much for romance.

Contact Teacher About Reports

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about a male teacher in a public school telling his sixth grade students dirty jokes? I don't mean cute little off-color suggestive stories; I mean jokes in which he used vulgar four-letter words.

My 11-year-old sister came home from school one day with one such joke that her teacher had told the class. She said the kids thought it was "neat" that their teacher treated them in such an "adult" manner. He also said, "And if you tell anyone I've told you these jokes I won't tell you any more."

My mother and I are very angry with this teacher and wonder what action we should take, if any.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Get in touch with the teacher and tell him what you've heard. If he denies it, you may need supporting evidence from at least one other student. The offending teacher should then be reported to the principal.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I fell in love with a married man who has three children. We didn't plan for this to happen, it just did. It's not one of those fly-by-night affairs; we genuinely love each other.

Lately the subject of leaving his wife keeps coming up. He is all for it, but I'm not so sure. I would love to marry him, but I don't want to cause his family any grief. From what he's told me, his wife is a lovely person and a good mother, and I know he's crazy about his children.

I feel like a homewrecker, but I don't want to lose him. I had almost given up on the male species before I met him. Abby, he is by far the sweetest and most loving man I've ever known, and I'm sure he really loves me.

Any suggestions you might have would be greatly appreciated. I'm terribly mixed up and don't know what to do.

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: Send your married man home to his wife and children and tell him to stay there.

You can't build happiness on the misery of others, and that's what you'd be doing were you to allow him to leave his wife and family for you. And by the way, nobody "falls in love." They dig their way into it.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote: "Hitting a child hard enough to hurt him will only teach the child that violence is the answer to all conflicts."

Your words caused me to recall a quote from the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s book, "Why Can't We Wait?" "Man was born into barbarism. He becomes endowed with a conscience. And he has now reached the day when violence toward another human being must become as abhorrent as eating another's flesh."

DEAR ARTHUR: A beautiful quote from a "Prince" by a "King." Thanks for sharing.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Near East Spread Goes U.S.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
A Near East spread that has come into favor in this country in the past dozen years is made, with chick peas and sesame paste plus seasonings. It's called Hummus. Now an American cook has developed an unusually delicious version of it using frozen baby green lima beans. Don't take just our word for this. All our tasters were enthusiastic — some asking for the recipe, others trying to figure out for themselves what ingredients went into it.

This variation of Hummus is a lovely pale green color. It looks and tastes delectable served with cherry tomatoes, cucumbers (sliced or in sticks) and pita bread — thin disks, each about 5 inches wide, that are pouched. Pita, once available only "loose" in Near East shops, now may be had in see-through bags in regular markets.

Like its ancestor, Hummus, this Lima Bean Spread may be used as a salad to offer as a first course, with a main dish or by itself. In this case, surround it with lettuce and sliced tomatoes and cucumbers plus, if available, Mediterranean-style black olives.

LIMA BEAN SPREAD
10-ounce package frozen baby green lima beans
Salt

1-3rd cup lemon juice
1-3rd cup tahini, see Note
2 medium scallions, coarsely cut
2 medium garlic cloves, sliced
2 large sprigs parsley, large stems discarded
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Cherry tomatoes
Cucumber ¼pared if waxed,

sliced or cut in sticks
Mediterranean-style black olives, if desired
Pita bread, see Note
Cook the lima beans according to package directions using 1 cup boiling water and ½ teaspoon salt; drain. Turn into an electric blender with the lemon juice, tahini, scallions, garlic, parsley, ½ teaspoon salt and

At serving time, turn the lima bean spread into a small serving bowl on a tray and sur-

The Saga Of A Soup Called Vichyssoise

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The French have always been great soup eaters and in the provinces they often make soup the main course at supper.

Most French housewives take chicken carcasses and ham and beef bones and simmer them with herbs, save the liquid and use it for stock. This is the base for most French soups, enriched with some chopped fresh vegetables tossed in butter and sometimes with a handful of noodles added to give it body.

There are also tasty light soups that the French serve as a first course for a formal meal and in the summer they are often chilled.

Such a soup is vichyssoise, which has an interesting history. This delightfully refreshing dish was the creation of Louis Diat, the famous chef who presided over the kitchens of New York's Ritz-Carlton in its heyday.

Diat liked to recall how he hit upon this soup, which became so popular both in this country and in his native France. It seems he grew up on a farm in the French countryside near Vichy, and his mother used to make hot leek and potato soup frequently. In the summer the children would cool the soup with milk.

Years later when he had become a noted chef, Diat, casting about for a warm weather dish, remembered the soup that had so often sustained him as a child and how he used to cool it.

After experimenting one afternoon, Diat came up with an epicurean creation by adding chicken broth, butter and cream. He tried the soup on members of his staff and they pronounced it delicious.

Then came the problem of giving his brainchild a name. Diat recalled that his home had been near Vichy and that many of his wealthy patrons took the cure at this famed health spa and would know the name well. Hence Vichyssoise.

Vichyssoise began appearing on the hotel menu and it was a stunning success. Here is his original recipe, which appeared in "Cooking a la Ritz" by Louis Diat (Lippincott 1941).

4 leeks, white part only
1 medium onion
2 tablespoons sweet butter
5 medium potatoes
4 cups water or chicken broth
1 tablespoon salt
2 cups milk
2 cups medium cream
1 cup heavy cream
Slice fine white part of leeks and onion and brown lightly in butter. Add potatoes, also sliced fine. Add chicken broth and salt. Boil gently 35 to 40 minutes. Crush and rub through fine strainer or whirl in a blender. Return to heat and add milk and medium cream. Season to taste and bring to boil. Cool and rub again through fine strainer. When soup is cold, add heavy cream. Chill, add finely chopped chives, if desired, and serve. Serves 8. Good with chilled, dry white wine.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be careful during the day-time of troubles with other persons which are not likely to be immediately evident on the surface, but which nevertheless are present. In the evening you are able to have a new look at whatever your long-range plans happen to be.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to come to a better understanding with partners by avoiding touchy subjects and get ahead faster. Tensions ease up by evening and you can be happy then. Show more affection for family.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You feel limited during the day and hardly know what should be done about it. But by evening you make up for lost time. Consult with an adviser that you trust. Make sure you pay important bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that personal aim and concentrate on something of real importance to you now. Evening is best time to be with a good friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Tackle civic duties that are important to your welfare early. Try to improve credit, also. Evening can be a happy time within the circle of your own family.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Evening is best time to go after some appealing new interest when you can get together with bigwigs. Show them that you adhere to rules and are dependable. Take no risks with reputation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle any responsibilities you have conscientiously and efficiently. Don't argue with a loved one and make this a happy evening together. Avoid one who wants to make trouble for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to cooperate more with associates and get better results in the future. A civic matter could be annoying but it works out satisfactorily by evening. Have more faith in your outlook on life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan more time for work ahead of you and get it done properly. See about getting health matters improved. A fellow worker is not very cooperative. He or she is under pressure of some sort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into practical affairs during day and avoid expensive fun. Have fun this evening, but stay within your means.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take care you do nothing to cause arguments at home or to upset conditions there. Get rid of whatever is causing friction, but use tact in doing so. Pay bills and live more within your means.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are clever today, but are apt to make mistakes so be more poised. Evening is best time to make new plans with associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you follow the ideas of a bigwig you find you gain the goodwill of this person and are more successful. Use your own practical sense, too.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand how to solve problems wisely and should have the education slanted along lines of trouble-shooting for best results throughout the lifetime. Upon retiring, your progeny will get into philanthropic work that is helpful to the public at large.

Cared For Ill, Facing Eviction

SPANAWAY, Wash. (AP) — A group of elderly nuns will be evicted if the state can prove that the convent where they now live serves as an uncensored nursing home.

State inspectors say the convent, where sisters of the Catholic order of St. Dominic of Marymount retire, should be closed because nuns are allowed to reside there even when ill.

"This is my home," said Sister Philomena, 86, who has called Marymount Convent home since she came from Ireland at the age of 21. "I don't think I'd want to leave."

The Department of Social and Health Services filed a suit against the nuns in Pierce County Superior Court earlier this month, seeking an order to force them to meet state licensing requirements or stop "rendering nursing care." A court date has not been set.

"We cannot possibly meet all those licensing requirements," said Sister Pauline Igoe, business manager of the household.

Road Bond Issue Good Idea

Gov.-Elect Jim Hunt has said in a recent interview that he plans a major reorganization of the Department of Transportation.

He said he will also work vigorously for a road bond issue totalling at least $300 million.

Hunt said he would revamp the present seven year highway program to establish new priorities. The governor-elect also expressed his opposition to any increase in the gasoline tax.

It is not surprising to us that Hunt intends to restructure the Department of Transportation. That is done with almost every new administration.

The system installed by Gov. Holshouser to administer the highway program hasn't worked any better than the previous ones, so a new system could be beneficial.

As for the bond issue, we are heartily behind Gov.-Elect Hunt on this. There are some road needs which are critical to development in some areas of our state. U.S. 264 is, in our opinion, one of these. It will take a large amount of money in a lump sum to get some of these stalled projects moving and a bond issue is the best way to do this.

True the money will be borrowed, but it is well to remember that it is going to cost much more to build the same roads in the future.

It is possible that the governor may have to look closely at his stand on increasing gas tax. We don't like a tax increase of any kind, but, as the basic cost of gas goes up, the state's percentage of the price of a gallon of gas is rapidly going down. At the same time increased energy costs are sending road construction cost soaring.

At any rate extra money is going to have to come from somewhere to get the state's road construction program moving. We believe the proposed bond issue is the best and quickest way to get the needed funds. If a gasoline tax increase is later needed we will all have to be prepared to pay the cost.

State Parks Have Thrived

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—North Carolina more than doubled the size of the State Parks System during the past four years, entering on the biggest expansion program ever.

Nearly 50,000 acres of land were acquired—much of it through direct purchase from state funds rather than the historical practice of waiting on somebody to donate property.

The result will be 12 new state parks, or recreation areas, and expansions at several existing parks.

The need now is to develop the property for use. "Acquisition was the emphasis in the area of parks and recreation the previous four years. Development should be for the next four," says George W. Little, secretary of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Within Reach
 "Many more North Carolinians now have state parks within easy reach of their homes. But many of those parks have hardly any facilities or they have worn-out facilities.

"A major commitment to the continued development of the state zoo will also be needed during the next four years," Little said in a recap of the activities in his department during the administration of Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr.

Dismal Swamp and Jockey's Ridge were important natural features saved by the parks expansion program; Eno River, Crowder's Mountain and South Mountain are parks added to the system with reach of heavily populated areas; and Goose Creek, Merchants Millpond, and Medoc Mountain represented parks established in areas previously without state parks.

Little places the parks and recreation activities as tops on his list of things accomplished during the past four years, adding that his agency helped local governments launch public recreation programs: up from 52 in 1972 to 89 in 1976 for city programs, and up from 14 counties in 1972 to 42 counties now.

Listed by Little are authority to include Linville and New rivers in natural and scenic rivers system; first phase of state zoo begun; Heritage Trust program set up to preserve important natural areas; a State Trails System plan started; master plans with public participation set up for development of state parks; a 50-mile stretch of Core Banks transferred to the federal Cape Lookout National Seashore Park development; and some $10.4 million funnelled into local and state recreation projects.

Solid Job
 Little said he is proud of the activities of the agency under his direction, and that of his predecessor James E. Harrington.

Gov. Holshouser labels the department the most successful one in his administration.

In recapping the programs, Little said he believes progress in state programs should "from time to time be put in some sort of perspective. These accomplishments couldn't have been achieved without assistance from the citizens of this state... and despite all that was said about bipartisan conflicts, a great deal was accomplished through cooperation of the legislative and executive branches."

Among other highlights Little recalls are record industrial development to a record $1 billion in 1976; attainment of clean air standards in all areas except one pollutant problem in Hecklenburg County; establishment of four small state forests to demonstrate programs for students and the public; launching of a stream sedimentation effort to alleviate flooding and control water runoff; work on land management approaches; setting up of field offices to facilitate information and licensing procedures; record levels for tourism, including a 1976 boom of $1.3 billion; and acceleration of the Wanchese Harbor seafood park project.

THE INSIDE REPORT

That Different Drummer

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The most revealing aspect of President-elect Carter's unexpected selection of Griffin Bell as Attorney General was that it stunned and dismayed his own advisers even more than outsiders.

Not only had Bell's name been absent from the Attorney General lists meticulously prepared by Carter's huge transition staff, but key aides actually recommended against him (including one written memo). "I think Jimmy missed the boat on this one," a Carter insider confided to us. "He missed a chance to make a really innovative selection that would go over with women and blacks."

But Carter was marching to a different drummer, seeking a tough legal administrator and an Attorney General he could trust. Ignoring black complaints that Bell was insufficiently pro-integration as a U.S. appeals court judge in New Orleans, Carter discussed the appointment with Sen. James O. Eastland, a near legendary hate-symbol for liberals, warmly applauded the choice.

This selection process for the Justice Department, plus similarly twisting paths in reaching his Treasury and Defense selections, adds up to cabinet-making lacking both ideology and system. Behind the facade of his expensive transition system methodically searching out cabinet members fitting preconceived needs, Jimmy Carter was working out of his hip pocket on instinct and personal perceptions.

Griffin Bell's name was excluded from those early lists, mainly because the list-makers took seriously Carter's campaign proposal for a non-political Attorney General completely removed from the President. Bell, a Georgian and law partner of Carter intimate Charles Kirbo, could not seem further from that description.

What's more, Carter aides believed that the President-elect intended to shatter recent precedent by naming a total stranger, well outside his political circle, as Attorney General. Accordingly, the list included blacks, women, federal judges, district attorneys, former Kennedy administration officials — sharing two common characteristics: all were strangers to Carter and all were acceptable to his important black constituency.

The list began shrinking, with Carter striking off some names and others declaring their own unavailability. A few Carter insiders, however, feel the President-elect, like John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon, always wanted an Attorney General intimate enough to protect his interests. Whatever the reason, Carter by mid-December had turned to Griffin Bell.

Some Carter staffers darkly suspect a hand played by Jim Eastland, former Southwield symbol of segregation and instrumental in carrying Mississippi for Carter. During Eastland's meeting with Carter in Georgia Dec. 13, Bell for Attorney General was discussed ("in a roundabout way," Eastland told us). Eastland, who has known Bell for years, strongly endorsed him.

Later that week, Carter informed Kirbo that Bell seemed the Attorney General who could best revive the Justice Department and the FBI and asked whether he would accept. For the sake of his Atlanta law firm, Kirbo replied, he hoped Bell would refuse, but did not seek to dissuade Carter. On the next day, Bell was summoned to see Carter at the governor's mansion in Atlanta at 7 a.m. and was offered the job.

Once he picked Bell, the President-elect consulted neither Attorney General-hunters on the transition staff, his closest advisers nor his black supporters. Surely anticipating an unfavorable response, Carter did not court it.

Bell is not the only Carter cabinet member quite different from original specifications. While Carter began by seeking a Treasury Secretary certain to reassure business, he ended with a choice — Bendix Corp. chief Michael Blumenthal — not well known by businessmen and considered several shades too liberal by those who know him. Carter was so impressed by Blumenthal's scope and style during an economic briefing in Plains that he abandoned his original intentions.

Conversely, the President-elect's early preference for Dr. James Schlesinger as Secretary of Defense, based on non-ideological admiration of Schlesinger for his command of geo-politics, collided with hysterical opposition from Carter's soft-line supporters. Carter then turned to Cal Tech's Dr. Harold Brown, similar to Schlesinger in articulate self-assurance but totally opposite in global strategic concepts. Here again, personality transcended ideology.

"Nobody knows what's going on," one Carter aide told us, "unless they know what's going on inside Jimmy's head." The selection of Griffin Bell emphasizes that what goes on there is bound by no system or philosophy but is eclectic, pragmatic and in-

TV Has Come Of Age

WASHINGTON—Nobody seems to know it but the father of television was a German named Paul Nipkow who received a patent on his invention in 1884. He was followed in the development of the system by J.L. Baird of Scotland and C.F. Jenkins and V.K. Zworykin of the United States, who in the 1920s all worked on ways of bringing TV signals into a machine.

By the end of World War II television sets were ready to be marketed.

The big problem at that time was nobody knew what to put on them. The invention was there but it had no useful purpose.

One of the manufacturers, Sid Magnavox, said, "Look, why don't we put on plays and movies and quiz shows and sports events until we think up a purpose for TV."

The other manufacturers, who had tremendous amounts of money invested in their sets, agreed. They went to radio networks, the motion picture companies and sports promoters, the game show packagers and the news agencies and said, "We have this thing called television, but we can't think of any reason why people should buy it. Let's make a deal. We will purchase films and shows and football games and newsreels on a temporary basis until our research people figure out what TV can be used for."

The entertainment companies were reluctant to get involved in something on such a short-term basis, but they finally agreed to provide a product for TV at least until the TV manufacturers could come up with something that would make the purchase of a set worthwhile.

In no time at all shows were produced, sports events were covered, press conferences were held and pictures were provided of news events. There were panel shows and documentaries and children's cartoons.

The screens had something for people to look at. They bought the sets and an entire industry took off.

But all the time the TV manufacturers fretted and stewed because they knew that the American people would sit just so long before their sets watching entertainment until they lost interest in the fad.

They pressed their research people hard. "You have to find a real reason for people to own TV," they said, "or we'll all go down the drain. How long can we keep Americans glued to pictures? They're not idiots and if you fill their screens with police shows and situation comedies and talk programs they'll throw their sets out the window." For 30 years scientists worked on the problem and then one day an MIT graduate named Abner Blomworth working in a TV research laboratory saw a dot on his screen. He accidentally touched a wire. The dot bounced from one side of the screen to the other and his assistant, a Miss Bonnie Wilby, playfully hit the dot back to him. He hit it back to her and each time they touched a wire the hit went "pong."

Blomworth was incredulous: "I think we've got it!"

"What have we got?" asked Miss Wilby.

"A real reason for television. It's a game. Two people can play tennis or basketball just by hitting a dot back and forth across the screen."

"Why didn't we think of it before?" Miss Wilby said, clutching Abner close to her warm body.

"This invention will change the leisure habits of the American people. No longer will they have to sit in their chairs as spectators. They can be participants. TV is a participant sport."

"What will they do with all the TV programs they now put on the air?"

"Scrap them," Abner said. "There's no need for them any more. TV has finally come of age."

The rest is history. This year over 3 million TV screen games were sold at Christmas. Next year the manufacturers expect to sell 40 million. By 1979 every home in America will be equipped with games you can play on your TV screen and as each family buys a game adaptor another television program will fade from the air. It took a long time in coming, but it was worth the wait. Who wants to watch Kojak when by twisting a dial you can go "pong, pong, pong" all night long.

Other Editors Say Terrorism Accord

(Rocky Mount Evening Telegram)

One of the rising problems in the world in the past decade or so has been the onslaught of terrorism in all parts of the world.

And so it is encouraging to see that even Third World nations, which often harbored terrorists and their organizations, showed a rare display of unity with Western nations last Friday in seeking a plan for an international treaty against the taking of hostages.

A resolution sponsored by West Germany and 37 other nations was adopted by consensus in the legal committee of the U. N. General Assembly. Approval by the full assembly is expected to be a formality.

The resolution calls for establishing a 35-nation panel to draft a treaty committing governments to prevent the taking of hostages and to punish those who take them.

The treaty would be the first U. N.-sponsored antiterrorism measure seeking jurisdiction that could cover all areas. Thus, hijackers and terrorists would find it difficult to find refuge after committing their crimes.

Of course, any success such a treaty might hope to realize will be contingent upon the full cooperation of all members of the pact.

Given that condition, it is possible that potential hijackers and terrorists would hesitate before putting the lives of hundreds of people in jeopardy.

Hijacking and other extremist actions have been on the General Assembly's agenda every year since Israeli athletes were massacred at the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

But Arab and other Third World countries have been reluctant to condemn actions used by Palestinians and other so-called liberation movements.

Terrorism has spread and it has more and more the character of criminal terrorism, and therefore there is now much more readiness to cooperate in this regard.

Americans' Income Now Sixth

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans slipped another notch on the list of the world's wealthiest people in 1975, and there are now five countries where per capita income is higher, the World Bank says.

The World Bank also said there has been a virtual stagnation of growth among industrialized nations since 1973 and continuing increases in population among developing nations.

The United States' per capita income of $7,060 was exceeded last year by Kuwait, $11,510; United Arab Emirates, $10,480; Qatar, $8,320; Switzerland, $8,050; and Sweden, $7,880, the World Bank said in a report leased Sunday.

Per capita income is figured by dividing a nation's gross national product, or total production of goods and services, by its population.

Qatar, an oil-producing nation, was a new addition to the World Bank list in 1975. The other nations listed above the United States had higher incomes than the United States in 1974 as well.

Other nations with incomes near the United States were Denmark, $6,920; Canada, $6,650; Germany, $6,610; and Norway, $6,540. Denmark and Norway made substantial gains and could surpass the United States in the 1976 list, if the trend continues.

The World Bank cautioned, however, that its figures for 1975 were preliminary and based on tentative information in some cases.

The United States per capita income was up from $6,670 the year before, the bank said. However, the increase was not adjusted for the impact of inflation, which would make the gain somewhat less.

The bank said there were 19 nations with per capita incomes exceeding $5,000 in 1974 with combined total populations of 412 million.

By contrast, there were 75 nations with populations totaling 2.3 billion where income was less than $500. There were 33 nations with populations of more than 1.2 billion where income was less than $200.

The bank said significant changes in the relative value of currencies in recent years has caused the shift in income-ranking among developed nations.

For example, the German mark and Swiss franc have How's The Weather?

FORECAST

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is due today from the Plains through the Great Lakes and upper Midwest to the Northeast. Cold weather is expected for most areas but milder weather is forecast for the Southeast. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated press
There's snow in the North Carolina mountains and cold air over the rest of the state today.

The national Weather Service reports that a series of cold fronts have passed through the state during the past 24 hours. One front put an end to the rain and helped produce one to three inches of snow over sections of the mountain area.

During the early hours today another surge of cold air moved into the state to reinforce the rather cold conditions. Although skies were mostly sunny east of the mountains, the brisk west to northwest winds added a chill to the air today and were strong enough to warrant the posting of a small craft advisory along the coast.

Another winter storm was developing in the northern Rockies today. Its trailing cold front is expected to reach North Carolina by late Tuesday or Wednesday. Thus another threat of precipitation is expected by Wednesday and probably as early as Tuesday night.

A little over one inch of rain fell over the eastern two-thirds of the state Saturday night and Sunday morning. An average of little under one inch fell in the western counties.

Area's Ham Ranks Swell

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club (BARC) has worked during the past year to promote the interest of Ham radio operators in the Pitt County area.

Through the cooperation of Pitt Technical Institute administering an amateur radio course sponsored by BARC, there are 30 new Ham operators in the surrounding area. Many of the new operators are citizen band operators who want to join the amateur radio operators so they can communicate on more than one band, are not confined to local contacts and can also legally adjust or repair their own transmitting equipment.

Since the fall class, 14 students have successfully completed an approved course of study in Amateur Radio theory and practice. Plans have also been made to start another class in February.

Probing Display

Window Theft

Investigation is continuing into the theft of two wicker plant baskets from a display at the Gazebo at 201 East Fifth St. sometime Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves broke out a window at the shop and took two wicker baskets, valued at $18, from the display window.

The theft was reported Sunday night.

Won Suit Over Her Son's Failing Grade Miami Beach Hotel Workers On Strike

LANSDALE, Pa. (AP) — When the North Penn School District told Margaret Maust that her son Vincent had, in effect, flunked kindergarten, Mrs. Maust was not amused. She sued.

"I just couldn't believe they could do something like that," she said. Neither did a federal district court jury, which this month awarded Vincent $6,000 in damages, concluding that the school board's 1973 decision had violated his constitutional rights.

The school board is considering an appeal.

"We haven't had a chance to fully analyze the decision yet," said president Mary Gehman.

"But if it means that every time you fail to pass a student you take a chance of getting hit with a damage award, then a lot of school districts may find they can't do what they think is best for the child."

Attorney Stephen R. Signore Jr., who represented Mrs. Maust, said Friday that the verdict doesn't prevent a teacher from holding back a kindergarten pupil.

"But it does say that in order to hold a child back, the school must have sufficient and valid reasons to do so, and it has to let the parents know what those reasons are," Signore said. In the case of Vincent, who is now in third grade, school officials said they thought that instead of starting first grade a month before his sixth birthday, Vincent should repeat kindergarten "to have a satisfactory learning experience."

The jury award was Mrs. Maust's second court victory. In September 1973, when she refused to send Vincent back to kindergarten, the school board took her to court for violating school attendance laws. A county judge acquitted her.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As thousands of guests served their own food, carried their own bags and made their own beds at six hotels, a hotel workers union pledged to continue and expand its strike.

Herbert "Pinky" Schiffman, president of the 11,000-member Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Employees Union Local 355, said the strike, which began Saturday, would spread today to more hotels. He declined to say which ones.

Picket lines were up at the Doral Country Club, the Carlinlon, the Deauville, the Eden Roc, the Shelbourne and the Doral Beach. All are on Miami Beach's famed Collins Avenue except the Doral, which is in northwest Miami.

The hotels would not say how many guests were being inconvenienced, but most are close to capacity at the holidays.

Edwin Dean, head of the 40-member Southern Florida Hotel and Motel Association, said late Sunday that negotiations were deadlocked over wages, benefits and tips.

He said that service was hurt by the strike but that some employees were crossing picket lines and new workers were being hired.

Schiffman said the union has been working since September without a contract.

He denied statements by the hotel association that a union demand for a $1.50-per-day gratuity charge on guests registering with group tours or conventions is holding up a settlement.

DIDN'T GET WISH — The song "All I Want For Christmas Is my Two Front Teeth", was all Robert Wayne Vester, age 7, sang the day before Christmas. But unfortunately that was something Santa Claus couldn't do anything about. Robert lost his first tooth on Dec. 17, and his second front tooth on Dec. 24, with a little help from some string and his mother. Though he didn't get his front teeth for Christmas, his mother assured him that the tooth fairy and Santa probably crossed paths. (AP Wirephoto)

Water Heated By Car Engine

LAKE VILLA, Ill. (UPI) — A new beverage maker for use in cars is a fuel saver. The manufacturer says its heating system uses engine heat that otherwise would be wasted to heat water for instant coffee, tea and other hot beverages.

When the car engine is running, its liquid coolant is automatically circulated inside a double-walled heat exchanger coil through the beverage maker's water supply tank. The unit's water capacity is one gallon, enough for 20 cups of hot beverages. The water reaches mixing temperature in seven to 10 minutes, the manufacturer says.

Return Of Skirts Sells Hosiery

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey by a trade magazine indicates that the fashion trend back to dresses and skirts has increased sales of both stockings and pantyhose.

The hose with tears and runs women hang onto to wear under pantsuits just won't do with the new fashions, a Midwest hosiery buyer told "Hosiery and Underwear" magazine.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices pushed ahead gradually today in an atmosphere of anticipation of a possible yearend rally.

Trading was moderate. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.50 at 988.12 after a gain of 6.56 last week.

Advances outpaced declines by about a 7-4 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said some investors were buying on the hope that the market could duplicate its strong late December-January showings of the past two winters.

They also noted general encouragement over the economic news.

Machine-tool orders, for example, registered their seventh consecutive rise in November.

And the Conference Board forecast a relatively peaceful year in labor-management negotiations for 1977, with fewer strikes and smaller wage increases.

IBM led the advance with a 2 1/2% rise to 274 1/2. An analyst quoted in the Wall Street Journal said he expected the company to declare a 3-for-2 stock split early next year.

An IBM spokesman said the forecast was "pure speculation" on the analyst's part.

The Big Board's composite index picked up .14 to 56.63 in the first hour.

The American Stock Exchange market value index was up .24 at 106.14.

Swimmers Brave Wintry Chill

NANAIMO, Canada (AP) — The 500 swimmers who braved 46-degree temperatures Fahrenheit in the 18th annual Boxing Day polar bear swim at Departure Bay received their just dessert — a hearty serving of ice cream to boost morale.

They also were treated to Hawaiian music and dancers, a giant bonfire to keep imaginary mosquitos away, and a large amount of ice tossed into the water to combat temperature conditions.

The swimmers received two silver dollars each for their feat on Sunday, watched by about 2,000 spectators.

SELL HOME YOURSELF?

I'm sure you've heard it said: "Why should I sell my home through a REALTOR? I can sell it myself and save a lot of money." Right? Wrong! This kind of thinking usually turns out to be financially unwise. The prospects will usually start by mentally deducting the commission and then start negotiating from there. On the average, a homeowner saves NO money when he sells his own home. In fact, the opposite is true. Studies over a ten year period show that the net proceeds from owner-sold property are LESS than the REALTOR-sold piece of real estate, even after the payment of commission. As a private seller you're at a great disadvantage in the intricate areas of financing, negotiating and protecting yourself from all sorts of do-it-yourself pitfalls. You've got a lot invested in your home. It makes sense to list it with a REALTOR. He'll sell it for you — without hitches — for the best price and in the shortest amount of time.

 If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 119 W. Third St., Greenville. Phone: 752-6163. We're here to help!

Chicago Factions Again Prepare A Compromise

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Factions in the fight to succeed Mayor Richard J. Daley have worked out another compromise designed to head off a threatened revolt by black Democrats.

Under the agreement, explained by aldermen from Daley's organization, Alderman Michael Bilandic of Daley's 11th Ward will be selected acting mayor when the City Council meets Tuesday and has agreed not to run in a special election which must be held within six months.

Alderman Wilson Frost, black president pro tem of the council, who earlier had proclaimed himself acting mayor, will replace Bilandic as chairman of the Finance Committee, a coveted position.

The City Council also will create a position of vice mayor, which immediately will be filled by one of the 13 Polish-American aldermen.

The proposed settlement came out of a series of meetings Sunday.

Thomas Donovan, Daley's patronage aide, was reported to have been instrumental in the compromise — the third which has been worked out since Daley's death a week ago.

Frost reportedly took part in the negotiations but was unavailable for comment.

Black supporters of Frost were angry when they heard of the apparent deal.

"If it's true, you couldn't even print my reaction," said independent state Rep. Jesse Madison, D-Chicago. "But I just don't believe it's true."

Alderman Roman Pucinski, possibly in line for the newly proposed post of vice mayor, said the most recent compromise will avoid "a clash with serious racial overtones."

In an advertisement in today's Chicago newspapers the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH (People United To Save Humanity), said, "Wilson Frost should not be the interim mayor because he is black, nor any person because of his ethnic heritage."

The advertisement, signed by more than 100 community leaders, most of them black, criticized an earlier agreement under which two City Hall power brokers, Aldermen Edward R. Vrdolyak and Edward Burke, agreed to support Bilandic in return for increased importance in the council.

Four Arrested On Pot Charges

Four persons were arrested on possession of marijuana charges last week, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said Greenville police charged William Jerry Murray Jr., 22; Mary Margaret Bell, 18; Patricia Harris Wilson, 18; and Aubrey Keek Register, 19; all of Scotland Neck on felony possession charges about 11:15 p.m. December 23 following an incident at 23 Village Green Apts.

Cannon said two pounds of marijuana were found in the apartment in which the four were located and said several ounces of marijuana were found outside the apartment under a window where the illegal weed had apparently been dumped.

Raiders And Vikings Find Way To Pasadena

Oakland Dominates To Gain Second Trip

Special Teams Block Rams

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — For the Pittsburgh Steelers, the magic Super Bowl number ended at two — two championships won but not a third because of two stars who couldn't run.

And for the Oakland Raiders, the number two may be only the beginning.

Sunday's American Conference championship, the final step before the National Football League extravaganza with the Roman numerals, was painfully one-sided, painfully decided by the apin Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier endured.

Between them, they had rolled up 2,164 rushing yards during the regular season, two massive reasons why the Steelers had averaged 212 yards per game on the ground, why quarterback Terry Bradshaw could be selective and successful in his passing, why the defense, so well rested between appearances, could do its job so frighteningly well.

But Harris, with bruised ribs, and Bleier, with a sprained toe, never set foot on the Oakland Coliseum field during Sunday's game. Without them, the Pittsburgh ground game went nowhere, Bradshaw had to pass much too often with limited success, the defense burned itself out — and the Raiders, with some solid running and passing of their own, won 24-7.

And so Oakland, which hasn't been to a Super Bowl since the number II when it lost 33-14 to Green Bay will be in number XI on Jan. 9 in Pasadena, Calif., facing Minnesota. The Vikings are making their fourth Super Bowl appearance and still looking for a winning one following their 24-13 National Conference title victory over Los Angeles earlier Sunday.

Just how much the absence of Harris and Bleier hurt the Steelers depended on who was doing the talking.

Coach John Madden, whose Raiders are riding a 12-game winning streak, said it meant nothing. "Sure, Franco and Rocky didn't play," he acknowledged, "but that didn't make any difference. Hell, no! You put the men you have out there for 60 minutes. We've played the Steelers in games with people missing, too, you know."

But Chuck Noll, whose Steelers' winning streak ended at 10, said the handicap was enormous. "It's tough to come into the biggest game with your hands tied behind your back, with two of your big weapons out."

In each of the last two years it was the Steelers who beat the Raiders for the AFC title.

This time it was very clear very early that the Steelers weren't going to go out and take the title. If they were going to get it, Oakland was going to have to give it to them.

The Raiders never even came close to offering up a post-Christmas gift. Ken Stabler, who completed 10 of 16 passes for 88 yards and two touchdowns, never threw an interception. The Raiders never fumbled the ball away.

Pittsburgh, with reserve running back Reggie Harrison gaining 44 of the team's 72 yards rushing three of them on a touchdown run in the second period, failed to get a first down for the first 19 minutes of play.

By then the Raiders led 10-0 on Errol Mann's 39-yard field goal and Clarence Davis' one-yard TD dive, the latter coming three plays after linebacker Willie Hall picked off a Bradshaw pass and returned it 24 yards to the Pittsburgh one.

Stabler's four-yard scoring pass to tight end Warren Bankston, a former Steeler, with 19 seconds to go in the half made it 17-7, then Stabler put the game away with a five-yard TD toss to Pete Banaszak in the third period.

The Steelers put Stabler away on that play. Linebacker Jack Ham leveled the Oakland passer just as he let go of the ball. "I got rapped in the head and hit in the ribs," Stabler said. "I could have played. I could have thrown short passes. But it would have been painful."

So he sat out the remaining 19 minutes or so of the game, and it didn't hurt a bit. The Raiders, with Mark van Eeghen finishing with 66 yards rushing, Davis adding 54 and Banaszak getting 46, controlled the ball for long stretches and they controlled Pittsburgh when they didn't have it.

Bradshaw, throwing almost every time the ball was snapped as the game wore on, finished with completions on 14 of 35 attempts for 176 yards.

There were fears that the game would degenerate into a brawl, mostly because of the concussion Pittsburgh receiver Lynn Swann had suffered when safety George Atkinson slugged him during the opening game of the season. A few punches were, in fact, thrown, but nothing serious developed.

"It was a good, solid football game," Stabler said. "Nobody was out there taking cheap shots."

And for once, it was the Raiders who came out on top, ending a string of six AFC title games in which they came out second best to another team. "We've lived with this thing for a long time," Madden said, "the talk about not being able to win the big one. Well, this year we finally did it right."

Beginning Of The End

Minnesota Vikings' defensive back Nate Allen (25) blocks a field goal attempt by Tom Dempsey (10) in the first quarter of the NFC championship game at Bloomington Sunday. Vikings' defensive back Bobby Bryant (20) caught the ball on the bounce and ran 90 yards for a touchdown. (AP Wirephoto)

Dooley Never Wanted To Be A Head Coach

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina coach Bill Dooley, whose Tar Heels play Kentucky in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta Friday, never dreamed of being a coach.

Dooley studied business administration at Mississippi State. When coach Darrell Royal asked him to stay on as a graduate assistant, Dooley said he saw it as a way to get his master's degree.

"Coaching got in my blood that first year," he said in a recent interview, "and that's when I decided I wanted to go into coaching as a profession."

Dooley, 43, has been head coach at North Carolina since 1967. During that time he has compiled 61 wins, 49 losses and a tie, giving him the "the winningest" record in Tar Heel coaching history.

His current team will take a 9-2 record into the Peach Bowl.

UNC Athletic Director Bill Cobey says Dooley's "conservative style" fits the university.

"Off the field especially, he controls his temper and is very careful what he says," Cobey stated. "I don't think this institution could tolerate a coach who is too outspoken. Some coaches tend to draw the spotlight to themselves, but he has never done that."

Pat Watson, Dooley's offensive coordinator, agreed, saying: "I've known him since 1960 and I can't ever remember him really losing his temper."

Dooley acknowledged, "I'm guarded about what I say, yes. I've seen a lot of guys get their foot stuck in their mouth."

Davis-Built Raiders Hope For Supremacy

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The team that Al Davis built — and injuries threatened to tear down — is returning to the Super Bowl.

"We've got one more game to play, and we're going to be champs," vowed linebacker Monte Johnson, one of the younger Oakland Raiders, after Sunday's 24-7 dethroning of the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Football Conference title game.

When asked what it meant to be going to the Super Bowl, Johnson replied frankly, "I don't know, I've never been there. But I know how the Steelers feel now. I've been in their position the last three years."

The Raiders had lost in the last three AFC title games, sending the Steelers to Super Bowl triumphs in 1974 and 1975, and had been eliminated one step from the Super Bowl six times since their appearance in Super Bowl II, which followed the 1967 season.

"No one deserves this more than us," offensive guard Gene Upshaw said after Sunday's victory. "It's been a long wait."

Upshaw, running back Pete Banaszak, receiver Fred Biletnikoff and cornerback Willie Brown are the only current Raiders remaining from the 1967 team.

"We've lived with this thing a long time, the talk about how we couldn't win the 'big one,'" said Coach John Madden after his team finally did.

"But we overcame a lot of adversity this year, went 13-1 and did it right," added the coach who lost two starting defensive linemen and fullback Marv Hubbard with injuries before the season began.

Madden was in his first year with the Raiders, as an assistant coach in 1967. Davis, the onetime Oakland coach who now is principal owner of the National Football League team, fired John Rauch after the 1968 season and promoted Madden.

"I'm happy for John and the four of us who played nine years ago, but I'm especially happy for Al Davis. Every year, he dies for us," said Banaszak, who contributed 46 yards to the Raiders' solid running attack Sunday and scored on a third-period touchdown pass from Ken Stabler.

A smiling Davis exchanged congratulations with his players and coaches Sunday while Chuck Noll, coach of the Steelers, called it a season with "a lousy end."

Pittsburgh chances of again reaching the Super Bowl seemed dead five weeks into the season when the Steelers stood 1-4. But they overcame the poor start and also a mid-season injury to quarterback Terry Bradshaw to win their final nine games and reach the playoffs.

Sunday, however, the Steelers' pair of 1,000-yard rushers, Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, were out with injuries.

"Nobody feels like fighting a war without weapons," said Noll, forced to use an unorthodox one-running back formation through most of the game.

But the way the Steelers' Joe Greene analyzed it later, "They rose to the occasion. They came at us better than we came at them. We have no excuses."

Records At Stake In Gator Bowl

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Their 1976 records aren't exactly what Notre Dame and Penn State consider up to par, but all that will be forgotten when two of the most famous schools in college football history square off tonight in the Gator Bowl.

"We're 7-4 and they're 8-3," says Penn State linebacker Kurt Allerman, "but you don't think of records in a game like this. You think of two great, traditional football teams, powerful teams with a lot of class.

"It's not that we're 7-4 and they're 8-3, but that we're Penn State and they're Notre Dame. That's where the matchup comes in. You associate college football with Notre Dame because of their fine tradition and national publicity. You hear so much about Notre Dame. I've always wanted to play them."

The fifth meeting in the series — but the first in 48 years — finds Notre Dame ranked 15th in the country and Penn State tied for 20th. The game will be nationally televised on ABC starting at 9 p.m. EST.

A Notre Dame defeat would make it the losingest season for the Fighting Irish in 13 years; Penn State hasn't lost five games in one season since 1966, Joe Paterno's first year as head coach.

Many players in tonight's game were recruited by both schools but probably none has closer ties on both sides than Allerman, a senior from Kinnelon, N.J., and the latest in Penn State's string of outstanding linebackers.

His father, Kenneth, was a teammate of Ara Parseghian's at Miami of Ohio and later helped him coach Miami's freshman squad. And Parseghian was the head coach when Notre Dame went after Allerman.

"Notre Dame went through the normal recruiting process," Allerman recalls. "Ara didn't try to put any pressure on me and my father didn't try to direct me in any way. He was more of a counselor."

"In fact, Notre Dame was kind of late coming after me. I had all my visits planned, but I visited Notre Dame and I liked it. They were one of the top schools on my list."

"I enjoyed my visit and there was no one thing that turned me off. There was nothing I didn't like; it was just that I liked Penn State more. I probably knew more about Penn State because more kids from my area had gone there. And my father really enjoys coming to see me play. Penn State is only a 3½-hour drive; Notre Dame is a little too far."

The Dec. 29-30 Gator Bowl basketball tournament in Jacksonville, Fla., has Michigan State from the Big 10 competing against Florida, Holy Cross and Jacksonville.

Brown Irked After Celtics Break Streak

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nuggets coach Larry Brown wasn't too happy after the Boston Celtics snapped the Nuggets' 15 game homecourt winning streak Sunday night. And part of his complaint was about the officiating as the Celtics beat Denver 103-101 in a National Basketball Association game here.

"I wish I had something constructive to say, but that game and the way it was refereed leaves me with a bitter taste about professional basketball," Brown said. "It was brutal. I don't think we played that great, but I can't remember our guys getting a clean shot away in the last few minutes."

"Referee Dick Bavetta didn't call a foul our way, but he called them the other way," Brown said.

Boston's aggressive defense held the Nuggets scoreless during the final 3:49, and Denver was only able to score three points over the last 5:42 of the contest.

Garver Receives Award

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Right-hander Ned Garver, whose 20 victories in 1951 couldn't prevent the St. Louis Browns from finishing last, will receive the Brian P. Burnes Nostalgia Award during the St. Louis baseball writers' dinner Jan. 24.

Garver, 51, finished with a 20-12 record for the Browns, who won only 52 games in all and finished 46 games back in the American League standings. Garver resides in Ney, Ohio.

Others to be honored at the dinner will be Cardinals pitcher John Denny, the National League's earned run leader, San Diego pitcher Randy Jones, and Manager Whitey Herzog of the Kansas City Royals.

Scheduling Error Hampers Start For North Pitt Wrestling Team

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Reflector Sports Writer
North Pitt wrestling coach Willie Bryant, the former Southern Conference heavyweight champion at East Carolina, says that due to his scheduling of top flight opponents, the Panthers have staggered to a 1-5 start.

"From not being from North Carolina, it's my fault. I made up a bad schedule," Bryant said. "I'm believing it won't happen again."

In their opening six matches, North Pitt wrestled Plymouth twice, D.H. Conley twice, and Rose, all accounting for their losses. The lone win, against Southern Nash was a blessing. The Panthers forfeited three weight classes, yet secured a narrow 24-23 victory.

"If we'd had the team we started with, we would have done a lot better," Bryant explained. He added that due to the losses, some of his first team wrestlers became disillusioned with its performance and left the team. Most of the team's performers are now up from the second string, mainly freshmen and juniors.

At 98 pounds, John Simpson is 2-4. Bryant said most of his matches had been pretty close. Senior Clay Pilgreen wrestles at 105, and has gone without a win. "I'm proud of him just for being out there," Bryant said.

Freshman Timmy Andrews has split his first two matches, but is something of a phenomena at 112. Before the season, according to Bryant, Andrews was at 108. After the Thanksgiving vacation, he weighed in at near 130. Another freshman, Dennis Carroll, is at 119, but inexperience has hampered him, placing him at the 1-5 mark.

Ronnie Massenburt at 126 is another wrestler suffering from the early-match blues. His record is 2-3, but should be starting a turnaround. Donald Manning, though he should be at 126, is wrestling in the 132-lb. weight class. Bryant says he has not yet reached his potential, but that he has some talent to contribute to the team.

Nicky Nichols is lost to the team until late January, so the Panthers are forced to take a forfeit at 138. A new addition to the team is Russell Clifts at 145. His time will come with the start of school. Senior Aubrey Wynn is in the 155 position, and is coming off an injury. Junior Sammy Mayo is in his first year of wrestling ever at 167. He has split his six matches, and Bryant predicts he will improve as the year progresses.

Another first year wrestler is Robert Parker at 185. "He has never wrestled before, but he's got the guts to go out there. I'm proud of that," Bryant said. Returning junior Michael Manning is at 195, with a 2-4 record.

Heavyweight Ricky Stokes has improved despite his 3-2-1 record, and Bryant expects better wrestling from him for the rest of the season.

"Our schedule is not as rough now," Bryant said. "I'm expecting to win a few more matches."

One more problem with Bryant is attrition. He will have to keep most of the wrestlers on the team to remain in most of the matches for the rest of the season. If anymore disillusionment occurs, the Panthers could be in serious trouble.

"If the guys we have stick with us, they'll do pretty good," Bryant added. The trial period starts next year.

Wyoming Still Looks Good

By JIM HATTLEY
Associated Press Writer
TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The 41-7 throttling handed the University of Wyoming by the University of Oklahoma in the 1976 Fiesta Bowl may overshadow for some time the dramatic turnaround made by the Cowboys during the year.

However, Wyoming Coach Fred Akers promises that Saturday's mental mistakes and humiliating loss to the powerful eighth-ranked Sooners "won't be the last time folks hear about the Cowboys."

As the game drew to a close, Wyoming found itself trailing, 41-0. But with 22 seconds left on the clock, halfback Latrail Jones scored on a one-yard run, culminating a drive that began on the Cowboys' eight-yard line.

"Wyoming people can be proud of that last drive. Our players' heads were still high," said Akers. "That shows me they have a lot of respect for the game of football."

According to preseason forecasters, the Cowboys should have never gotten as far as they did. Coming off a 2-9 record in 1975, the Cowboys were picked to finish near the bottom of the Western Athletic Conference this year but instead wound up with an 8-3 mark and tied for the league championship.

It was Wyoming's first winning season since 1969, its first conference championship since 1968 and its first appearance in postseason play since a Jan. 1, 1968 berth in the Cotton Bowl.

"It was hard to accept the loss, but we have a lot of players coming back next year," said a dejected Jones following the game. "We should be back for Fiesta Bowl VII."

"This year was quite an experience," added Paul Nunu, Wyoming's outstanding middle linebacker. "It was our attitude that carried us through the season. We seemed to lose out intensify when Coach Akers decided to go to Texas, but we can't blame the loss on that."

Akers, an assistant at Texas before taking over the Cowboys two years ago, has been hired as Texas' new head coach.

Oklahoma, which entered the game with the nation's third-best rushing statistics, gained 415 yards on the ground in the Christmas classic while holding Wyoming to 153.

The Sooners didn't punt once during the game, and made wholesale substitutions in the second half after building a 20-0 lead during the first two quarters.

Tourney Time For ACC

By The Associated Press
Holiday meals digested, Atlantic Coast Conference basketball players turn their attention this week to the tournaments, and there are several from which to choose.

Undefeated Clemson puts an eight-game winning streak on the line against Milwaukee Classic host Marquette, ranked 6th in the nation.

"With Marquette, we'll be facing our toughest test of the year and going against one of the top teams in the country," says Clemson coach Bill Foster. "Marquette has great talent and tradition and a great coach in Al McGuire."

Clemson, with an 11th ranking nationally, is still averaging more than 100 points per game and leads in rebounding and scoring margin in the conference.

Tenth ranked North Carolina faces Oral Roberts in the opening round of the eight-team Far West Classic in Portland, Ore. The Tar Heels won the tournament in the 1967-68 season.

Ninth-ranked Wake Forest faces tough competition from Mississippi State in the Old Dominion Classic and may have to do without the services of powerful forward Rod Griffin, who hurt a knee last week.

Griffin is locked in a battle with Duke's Tate Armstrong for the conference scoring lead. Armstrong will be busy as Duke, Maryland and North Carolina State all play hosts in two other holiday affairs. The Terps, ranked 15th, take on Xavier to open their own invitational, while the Wolfpack and the Blue Devils take turns facing Rice and East Carolina in the Raleigh Holiday Doubleheader.

Virginia, top defensive club in the conference, meets Virginia Commonwealth in the Richmond Times-Dispatch Tournament.

Virginia's David Koesters and Otis, both starters last year, will be back in the lineup for the tourney.

Koesters was academically ineligible for the first four games, but is back in good academic standing. Fulton has been out with a knee injury since the season opener against Roanoke but will be ready to play when the tournament opens Dec. 29.

Guards Charlie Scott and Jo Jo White combined for 55 points to lead Boston to the win. Boston's Curtis Rowe hit a jumper with two minutes left to put the Celtics ahead 102-101, and John Havlicek added a free throw with 1:26 left to seal the triumph.

When told the loss was the first home defeat for the Nuggets this season, Boston coach Tom Heinsohn said that "makes it even a better win. They're a hell of a ballclub. I have the utmost respect for them, and so it was a good one for us."

CLOSE QUARTERS — Boston Celtic center Jim Ard looks for a teammate as he's guarded closely by Denver's Marvin Webster in action Sunday night. Ard came off the bench to score 11 points and grab nine rebounds in Boston's 103-101 triumph over the Nuggets. (AP Wirephoto)

Southern Teams Face Holiday Tournaments

By The Associated Press

The seven teams eligible for the Southern Conference basketball championship end the Christmas break this week with six taking part in five of the many holiday tournaments around the country.

William and Mary, 4-3, was the last to take a break before the holiday, dropping a 59-55 decision last Thursday night to UCLA, and the Indians will be the first back in action, taking on host Hawaii tonight in the opening round of the Rainbow Classic.

Three more teams get back into the swing of things Tuesday night.

Both the Citadel, 4-3, and Furman, 2-3, will take part in the Poinsettia Classic, the Bulldogs tackling Columbia and the Paladins facing Navy in semifinal games.

Virginia Military's defending champion Keydets, 4-1, go against Tulane in Tuesday night's opening round of the All-College tournament at Oklahoma City.

Getting into action Wednesday will be East Carolina's Pirates, 4-3, who meet Duke in the holiday doubleheader at Raleigh, N.C. The Pirates will be matched Thursday night against host N.C. State.

Appalachian State, 5-3, is the only title-eligible team not playing in a tournament, but the Mountaineers play a regularly scheduled game Thursday night at new member Marshall, 3-5, which isn't eligible for the championship.

Another new member, Tennessee-Chattanooga, 5-2, will be host Tuesday and Wednesday to the Choo Choo Classic. The Mocs go against Nebraska-Omaha in the opening round.

Only new member Western Carolina will be idle the entire week.

under Soviet domination, the inopportune remark was his own. Carter was not free from campaign blunders either. His remarks on Lyndon Johnson's character and his comments to Playboy on lust cost him support.

The three televised debates, the first ever between an incumbent president and his challenger, showed the American voters two evenly matched candidates, most analysts agreed, and on election eve the major polls had Ford and Carter running neck and neck.

Carter was no doubt helped by his choice of running mate. Walter Mondale, the liberal senator from Minnesota, helped pull votes for Carter in the industrial Northeast. His confrontation with Robert Dole in the first vice presidential TV debate was a successful one and an NBC poll taken a week before the election showed Mondale running 18 points ahead of his opponent.

The election was nevertheless a close one and it wasn't until after 4 a.m. (EST), when election results gave Mississippi's 7 electoral votes to Carter, that he made a victory statement to the waiting crowds in Atlanta.

President Ford, who had gone to bed at 3 a.m., conceded the election the next day, giving Carter "my complete and wholehearted support."

Carter won 297 electoral votes from 23 states, putting the old Democratic formula of industrial Northeast with the solid South back together. Ford carried every western state except Texas and Hawaii, 241 electoral votes from 27 states. Nevertheless, Carter won by almost 2 million popular votes—51 per cent to 48 per cent for Ford.

In spite of predictions of an extremely light voter turnout, 80 million Americans went to the polls to choose their next president. Of those eligible to vote, 53 per cent did so, down from the 55 per cent turnout in 1972.

According to an AP election day poll, most voters said they chose the candidate they voted for because they agreed with his stand. But most Carter voters, according to the poll, agreed that although the choice was difficult, it was time for a change.

2. China was already in mourning for two leaders who had died earlier in the year—Premier Chou En-lai and Chu Teh, founder of the Chinese Red Army. But the nation plunged into a frenzy of grief when Hsinhua News Agency announced that Mao Tse-tung was dead.

Mao had been ill for some time and Chu, in fact, had taken over many duties for the ailing chairman. No cause was given for his death, although medical experts who studied films of his most recent appearances said he showed symptoms of Parkinson's disease.

As the government began preparations for the mourning ceremonies, tens of thousands of his countrymen gathered before Mao's portrait in Tien An Men square, holding the Chinese symbol of mourning, a white flower. It was in this square in 1949 that Mao watched his victorious soldiers parade after winning the civil war against Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang.

Mao was the last of the Great Communist Revolutionaries, outlasting Lenin, Stalin and even his old arch-enemy, Chiang. He was born in Hunan Province in 1893 and joined Sun Yat-sen's revolt against the Manchou Dynasty as a young man. A few years later he became one of the 13 founding members of the Chinese Communist Party.

Mao assumed party leadership in 1935 and led the encircled Communists on the Long March, 8,000 miles to the safety of the caves of Yenan.

Said AP writer John Roderick, who knew Mao from the Yenan days: "Mao Tse-tung—like George Washington, Napoleon, Lenin and Gandhi—belongs to that unusual breed of men who combine action with thought. No one of such stature and broad vision survives him in today's China."

China was already in a state of political unrest following the January death of Premier Chou En-lai. Chou, second in power only to Mao, had run the day-to-day affairs of China. It was he who took the lead in rapprochement with the West, first inviting the American ping pong team to visit and finally playing host to President Richard Nixon.

After his death, Hua Kuo-feng, a sixth vice-premier and little known outside China, was named his successor. Most regarded him as a compromise between the radicals, led by Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, and the moderates. Most observers felt that Chiang Ching was a force to be reckoned with in post-Mao China.

After Mao's death, Premier Hua moved quickly to consolidate his position. Chiang Ching and her radical proteges, Chang Chun-chiao, Yao Wen-yuan and Wang Hung-wen, were arrested, and a poster campaign against them decorated the walls of China's cities. After the arrests, Hua was named the new chairman of the Chinese Communist Party.

3. As the man said, it only happens once every 200 years, so America went all out for her Bicentennial. Celebrations went on all year as local and national committees began projects designed to help Americans remember their heritage. Even the Liberty Bell got a new home—in Liberty Pavilion, near Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

Good wishes and gifts, including works of art and music, funds for commemorative buildings, special books and special exhibits, arrived along with thousands of foreign visitors, who included royalty and heads of state. Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, Prince Philip, spent six weeks in Britain's former colony.

Although celebrations had been going on for a year, it was a Fourth of July to remember. Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! who had attended it were stricken with a strange ailment. The symptoms were similar to viral pneumonia, but of the 180 persons infected, 29 died. The death rate of 17 per cent was considered unusually high.

The disease was a mysterious one for many reasons. The middle of the summer was hardly the flu season. And all the victims were in some way connected with the American Legion convention.

At first health officials feared that it might be an outbreak of the dreaded swine flu but this proved a false alarm. Other doctors lay the high death rate to the fact that most of the Legionnaires were over 40 and therefore not as able to resist any virus. But the actual cause remained unknown.

"There's an outside chance we may never find out the cause," said Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. "There are times when diseases baffle all of us."

In November, as medical researchers still looked for the culprit, the Legionnaires' Disease claimed its 30th victim—the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, which had hosted the convention. The hotel, for 68 years innkeeper to Philadelphia's Main Line, had been given a clean bill of health. But the surrounding publicity was too much for the "Grand Old Lady of Broad Street," and when room occupancy, which had run 84 per cent before the Legionnaires' convention, dipped to a mere 8 per cent, the Bellevue Stratford closed its doors.

6. Space travel once again captured the public imagination as Viking 1 made the first successful soft touchdown on the planet Mars in late July.

The landing, which had been postponed from an originally planned July 4 touchdown, left scientists thrilled. "There are tears in my eyes," said Noel Hinners, associate administrator of the U.S. Space Agency.

The July 20 landing marked the seventh anniversary of the date the first man, Neil Armstrong, walked on the moon.

The landing site chosen for Viking 1 was the western slope of the Plain of Chryse. In the photographs beamed back from the lander, it looked very much like the deserts of southern Arizona—minus the cactus.

The successful Mars landing was eight years in the making and Viking 1 had blasted off 11 months before its dramatic touchdown 200 million miles away.

Six weeks later, on Sept. 3, Viking 2 landed amid a partial radio blackout in a field of sand dunes called Utopia.

Both Vikings, equipped with a scooping arm and mini-lab to carry out tests automatically, sent back results to earth at the speed of light.

Neither lander found evidence of organic compounds that would mean the existence of life on Mars, but the Viking 2 mother ship discovered a polar ice cap made of water ice, one of the preconditions for life to exist.

7. After two years of Watergate-related revelations in the nation's capital, it was show-and-tell time again in Washington. Elizabeth Ray told the Washington Post that powerful congressman Wayne Hays had given her $14,000 a year of the taxpayers' money just to be his mistress. Miss Ray's accusation came just weeks before the publication of her novel, "The Washington Fringe Benefit," a 172-page romp through the bedrooms of Washington.

Hays at first denied the accusation, then admitted having had a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray. But he contended she had earned her salary as a clerk. One by one he resigned his committee chairmanships and in mid-August he announced he would not run for re-election.

After Miss Ray's splash, Colleen Gardner, another congressional ex-staffer, came forward with accusations of her own. Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska, Reps. Wayne Hays of Ohio and John Young of Texas and retired Rep. Kenneth J. Gray of Illinois were all named in allegations involving women.

In an unrelated incident, Rep. Allan T. Howe was given a 30-day suspended sentence for trying to buy sex from two police decoys acting as prostitutes in Salt Lake City. The Utah Democratic party leaders withdrew their support in August, but Howe, claiming innocence, said he would stay in the race. He was defeated.

8. "The violent nature of your conduct cannot be condoned," said Judge William Orrick, sentencing kidnap victim and convicted bank robber Patty Hearst to seven years in jail. Miss Hearst, who was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4, 1974, announced that she had joined her captors and with four members of the Symbionese Liberation Army robbed the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco two months later. Then she disappeared.

After a 19-month nationwide search, Miss Hearst was arrested in San Francisco. Two years to the day after her kidnapping, a jury was sworn in to try her for the Hibernia Bank robbery. The jury found her guilty, but sentencing was delayed for six months while she underwent psychiatric testing at a San Diego federal prison.

In November, Judge Orrick granted Patty Hearst her freedom—on $1-million bail pending appeals. But her legal troubles are not over. Early next year she faces trial in Los Angeles on charges of kidnapping, assault and robbery.

9. It began as a commonplace hijacking. Air France 139 from Tel Aviv to Paris had just left the ground in Athens when three men and a woman announced they had taken control of the plane.

The Airbus was met at Uganda's Entebbe Airport by President Idi Amin Dada who said he would handle negotiations for the hostages' release. The hijackers asked for the exchange of 63 comrades held in five countries.

But when some hostages released mid-week as a "gesture of good faith" reported that the passengers had been separated into Jews and non-Jews, and that the Ugandan government seemed to be aiding the Palestinian hijackers, Israel decided to act.

Commandos in four planes made the 2,400 mile trip to Kampala. Just before dawn on July 4 they made a surprise raid on Entebbe Airport, gathering up most of the 106 hostages were killed in the crossfire. Amin reacted angrily, bringing Uganda to the brink of war with neighboring Kenya, where Israeli planes had refueled after the raid.

One passenger, 75-year-old Dora Bloch, who carried both an Israeli and a British passport, was left behind in a Kampala hospital where she was taken a few days earlier. She was never seen again.

10. The nightmare began when three armed men with vans stopped a school bus from Dairyland Unified School District coming back from an outing celebrating the end of summer school on July 15.

The men loaded the 26 children and bus driver Frank Edward Ray, 55, into the vans and headed north from Chowchilla, Calif. When they reached the California Rock and Gravel pits outside of San Francisco 11 hours later, the children and driver were forced into a buried trailer and were left.

While California organized a massive search for the missing children, driver Ray was digging a hole in their underground prison large enough for Robert Gonzales, age 9, to slip through. Thirty-six hours after the busnapping, the children and driver were back in Chowchilla.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE Proposed Flood Elevation Determinations for the CITY OF GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

The Federal Insurance Administrator, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.O. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 P.L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 24 C.F.R. Part 1917 (Section 1917 (a)), hereby gives notice of his proposed determinations of flood elevations for the City of Greenville, North Carolina.

Under these Acts, the Administrator, to whom the Secretary has delegated the statutory authority, must develop criteria for flood plain management in identified flood hazard areas. In order to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, the City of Greenville must adopt sound flood plain management measures that are consistent with the flood elevations determined by the Secretary.

Proposed flood elevations (100 year flood) are listed below for selected locations. Map and other information showing the detailed outlines of the flood-prone areas and the proposed flood elevations are available for review at City Hall, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.

Any person having knowledge, information, or wishing to make a comment on these determinations should immediately notify Mayor Percy R. Cox, P.O. Box 1905, Greenville, North Carolina 27834. The period for comment will be ninety days following the second publication of this notice in a newspaper of local circulation in the above-named community.

N.C. Holiday Traffic Accidents Claimed 22 Lives

By The Associated Press
North Carolina traffic accidents claimed 22 lives over the Christmas holiday weekend, including two who drowned

when their car plunged into Lake

Gaston in Halifax County.

The deaths moved the traffic toll for the year to 1,459. That is 34 fewer than were killed during the same period last year, the Highway Patrol said.

John Clifton Kiger, 45, of Pfafftown, died about 6 p.m. Sunday when his motorcycle was struck from behind on U.S. 52 about three miles north of Pilot Mountain, the patrol said.

Nettie Hall Parker, 53, of Garnersville, N.Y., died about 4:20 p.m. Sunday when her car collided with two others on U.S. 58 just east of Gatesville in Gates County.

Julius Percell Alston, 26, of Rt.

1, Roanoke Rapids, and Willie Ray Kerney Jr., 18, of Warrenton, died when their car skidded off a rural paved road and went down an embankment into the lake early Sunday. The accident occurred on a rural paved road seven miles west of Roanoke Rapids.

Victor Locklear, 22, of Pembroke, died Saturday night when he lost control of his car and it overturned on a rural paved road two miles north of Pembroke in Robeson County. Authorities said Locklear was thrown from the car.

Nathaniel Hardee, 57, of Rt. 2, Dudley, died Christmas night when two cars collided on a rural paved road 5½ miles south of Goldsboro.

Killed in another Christmas night accident was Michael Wayne Raulston, 23, of High Point, who died when his car crossed the path of an emergency vehicle, the patrol said.

A 61-year-old Lincolnton woman, Azalee Hubbard Huss died early Sunday in a collision of two vehicles on U.S. 321 near Lincolnton.

Also killed early Sunday was Leroy Martin Jr., 18, of Madison. The patrol said the car in which he was a passenger ran off the road and struck a tree on N.C. 704 in Rockingham County.

Shannon Nicole Tuck, 6, of Roxboro, died Saturday night when the car in which she was riding ran a stop sign and was struck by another car on N.C. 57 about 15 miles north of Hillsborough.

Other weekend fatalities included: Virginia Everett Vaughan, 31, of Murfreesboro; Dean Allen Vuncannon, 3, of Archdale; Kent Douglas Cutler, 6, of Quantico, Va.; Herbert Cornell Williams, 22, of Clinton; Roberta Clark Grier, 22, of Rt. 1, Farmville; James Willie Suber, 36, of Clinton; Nancy Geraldine Bean, 28, of Lenoir; William Roy Cox, 50, of Lillington; Betty Hooker Thompson, 43, of Jacksonville; William Leslie Sprouse, 24, of Bessemer City; Daryl Keith Blood, 24, of Granite Falls; and Harold Eugene Ledford, 45, of Effland.

The Associated Press counted fatalities from 6 p.m. Thursday until midnight Sunday.

Farm Scene

By MICHAEL E. REGANS,
Asst. Agricultural Extension Agent

Wintering steers is similar to other livestock enterprises in that one should not try getting in and out in an effort to outguess the market. Once you are set up to winter steers, you should usually plan to use the facilities each winter. The number of calves purchased in the fall should be based on the supply of feed available. A typical wintering program involves buying beef calves in September or October, keeping them approximately 200 days, and selling them as stockers in April. Calves are normally fed silage, some grain, and supplement.

One factor that makes a stocker program easy to plan from year to year is that the feed is produced before the calves are purchased. Should a person have a bad crop year and find that silage or other winter feed is short, he should cut back on the number of calves bought in the fall. It is generally better to have fewer calves and follow the recommended schedule of buying, feeding and selling than to have to sell stockers early or run the risk of having to purchase expensive feed for them.

A stocker program does not require the level of management needed for most other livestock operations. However, management during the first two weeks after the calves are purchased is critical. The new animal must be checked several times a day for colic symptoms. Any calf showing symptoms should be isolated and treated. Parasite control, both internal and external, is an important part of any stocker program.

Some farmers tend to overfeed calves being wintered. The objective of a stocker program is to allow calves to grow through the winter without getting fat. A gain of about 1½ pounds per day is desired. Calves that gain more tend to get too fat to be sold as stockers but too light to be sold as finished steers. People buying stockers in the spring want healthy animals capable of putting on good gain on grass.

Plenty of beef calves are available for purchase each fall in North Carolina. Graded feeder calf sales are held throughout the state in the fall. There is a ready market for stockers each spring. Many of the stockers sold in North Carolina are shipped to other states to be finished.

Wintering calves has several advantages for some North Carolina farmers. Some of these advantages are: (1) a calf wintering program can make profitable use of winter labor; (2) a wintering operation might utilize existing feed such as field gleanings that would otherwise be wasted; and (3) the initial investment for facilities is low compared with other livestock operations.

Put 'Pop' In Shoe-Shining

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — Ernest Goss has turned a dusty parade of shoes and boots into shining objects the past 49 years by "popping that rag."

Goss, 67, started out as a shoeshine boy in 1927 at a barber shop in Sanford. He has been at his trade except for a few years in the late 20s when he took to the trains as a hobo.

"That was back in Hoover's time when a dollar was a dollar," he recalled in an interview. "Folks didn't have no money then, but I wanted to travel. 'Bout the only way I was going anywhere was to jump a train."

Though he's getting on in years and his back bothers him occasionally, Goss figures he is good for a few more shines.

"Business has fallen off right smart in the last 10 years, what with all them Hush Puppies and no-shine shoes," he said. "Shoeshine boys ain't what they used to be no more. Nowadays, I might make $5 or $6 some days. Then again, I might not make but two or three."

In the heyday of the shoe-shine, folks used to pay Goss extra just to hear him play a rhythmic, toe-tapping tune with the polishing cloth.

"Oh, yeah, the tobacco people used to come in around midnight to get them a breakfast of stew beef and rice across the street," he related. "They'd get 'em a pint of white liquor and come over here and say 'let me hear it pop, Ernest!' They'd give me a little extra just to make it sing."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Cloudy with rain Wednesday through Friday. Seasonable temperatures with daily highs in the 50s with 60s along the coast. Nighttime lows in the 30s with 40s along the coast.

ORPHANS — These baby Caymans, alligator-like reptiles, were part of 250 that were seized by U.S. Customs officers at Miami's International Airport after they were shipped from Costa Rica by air. Also seized were 600 iguanas, 120 lizards, and a large number of Red Legged Tortoises and boa constrictors. They had been incorrectly manifested, causing the Customs to check up on the cargo.
