Carter Unveils His Code Of Ethics For Officials

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter today made public a tough ethics code for top government officials and pledged to free himself of any possible conflict of interest by turning over his prosperous peanut business to trustees who will lease or sell it. The ethics code requires presidential nominees, starting with Cabinet members, to divest themselves of any holdings that could conflict with their government duties and to submit detailed statements of their personal wealth. In addition, for the first time, they must sign a pledge to remain in government for their full appointed term, unless dismissed sooner. They also must agree that for two years after leaving government they will avoid any private job that would cause them to deal with their old departments or agencies on matters that concerned them as federal officials. "It is the objective of the new administration to avoid any conflict which could in any way influence any government officer except in the even interest of all the people," said the written guidelines.

Another announcement said Carter's interest in Carter Farms Inc., which consists of agricultural real estate in this area, and Carter's Warehouse, a partnership that buys peanuts from area farmers for subsequent marketing, will be transferred to a special trust.

It was not immediately clear what would happen to $25,781 in common stocks owned by Carter's wife, Rosalynn. A Carter aide had said last September that Carter would sell his stock holdings if elected.

Carter's interest in Carter Farms was valued at $348,444 on Dec. 31, 1975, and his interest in Carter's Warehouse was valued at $330,062.

The land owned by Carter Farms will be retained in the trust so long as he is president and will be rented for an annual fixed amount.

"Thus," the announcement said, "the Carter family will not be affected financially from profits or losses of any of the farm operations."

Carter's Warehouse, in which the President-elect is the principal partner, while brother Billy and mother Lillian have minority interests, "will be either leased for four years for a fixed amount, or sold, at the discretion of the trustee," the announcement said.

In either event, it said, "neither Jimmy Carter, his wife nor children will be affected financially from profits or losses of any of the warehouse operations."

Under the guidelines applying to appointees, those named to the two highest federal pay levels will have to divest themselves of any interests that would "more than rarely" cause them to disqualify themselves because of possible conflicts.

Those named to lower-paying jobs would be required to divest themselves of private holdings only if "disqualification will seriously impair the capability of the officer to perform the duties of the office to which nominated."

It said Carter will issue an executive order to spell out the financial disclosures he will require.

Natural Gas Ruling Said Public Housing Hardship

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A ruling by the State Utilities Commission regarding emergency gas purchases is creating unexpected hardships on housing authorities in the state, including the local housing agency.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Authority, reported Monday night that the State Utilities Commission ruled following a hearing that housing authorities and public schools would not be exempt this year from bearing the costs of emergency gas purchases.

Laney said that the ruling resulted in an immediate gas rate increase of 33 and one-third per cent for the Authority for much of December and into 1977. The increase will cost the Authority an estimated $25,000 in added charges over the next four months, he added.

According to Laney, housing authorities were not advised of the hearing scheduled by the commission and therefore were not adequately represented to present their side of the matter. On the other hand, he said, industrial and commercial customers were well represented at the meeting and their proposal that emergency gas purchase costs be applied to all customers across the board was heeded somewhat by the commission.

Last year, Laney reminded commissioners, when emergency gas purchases were made, the cost of those purchases was born completely by industrial and commercial customers. Exempt last year were housing authorities, public schools and residential users. Under the recent ruling, residential customers retained their exemption.

The Housing Authority is faced with meeting the increased cost load without having the opportunity to arrange for funding budget-wise, the director continued.

Laney said that a protest of the Utilities Commission's ruling is being filed on behalf of the roughly 100 authorities in the state by the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Codes Officials.

He said that the Authority does not feel it is fair for a higher rate to be imposed on low income residents in public housing than on residential users. With the new rate, utility costs amount to $72 per unit which is more than the average unit rent.

"We (housing authorities) were never notified and given an opportunity to file testimony," he said. The precedent was that housing authorities and residential customers were exempt last year.

If the Carolinas Council protest is not heeded, he observed, the Council will pursue the possibility of a formal protest petition which would involve legal counsel and subsequent court action.

In other business, Laney reported the financing prospects for housing development in the elderly here have improved. Financing of the 50-unit apartment complex for the elderly has been a stumbling block.

County Bd. Sets Talks On Airport

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday scheduled a meeting with the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority January 17 to review the recently completed master plan and longrange study of the local air port, and set January 13 as the date for taking bids for the rental of 46,725-pound tobacco allotment owned by the county.

The board was told yesterday that a new solid waste disposal plan for the county would be ready for their consideration by February 15, and agreed to come to some decision on a request by Pitt Technical Institute officials to ask for community college status for PTI by January 12.

The Board met with Pitt legislators to discuss the Pitt Tech question yesterday and asked the law-makers to make recommendations as to how the question of community college status for the technical institute should be handled.

Commissioners indicated that they would meet and come to some decision on the question after hearing the recommendations of the members of the General Assembly.

PTI officials last month requested commissioners to adopt a resolution seeking community college status for the school. Action by the General Assembly would be required to change the school to a community college and allow the establishment of a two-year college parallel curriculum.

Commissioners yesterday also approved a change in the county's personnel policy which would allow employees to receive compensatory time off for overtime worked, rather than pay overtime for excess hours. The compensatory time could be taken within a three-month period rather than within the same pay period the overtime was worked.

Lawyer Again Given Rebuff

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Attorney Jerry Paul's motion for dismissal of charges that he behaved improperly during the Joan Little murder trial have been denied by a Superior Court judge.

A lawyer representing Paul, Phil Hirschkop, charged that the ruling Monday by Judge Edwin S. Preston Jr. "totally lacks any fairness."

He called the charges against Paul "spurious...patently ridiculous...inane," and said the State Bar is "after Jerry Paul because of who he is and the fact that he got Joan Little off."

Miss Little was acquitted in 1975 of murder charges stemming from the icepick slaying of Beaufort County deputy Clarence Alligood in a jail cell at Washington, N.C.

Preston ruled that sufficient legal grounds existed to try Paul on charges that he violated the "canons and disciplinary rules" of the N.C. State Bar.

The bar association has charged that Paul violated rules of ethics laid down for lawyers and used the news media to advertise his law practice. Paul also is accused of making statements that could have jeopardized Miss Little's defense and of calling Judge Hamilton Hobgood, who heard the case, "old fashioned."

Judge Preston said calling a judge "old fashioned" does not in itself constitute a rules violation but could be interpreted as detracting from the effective representation of a client.

Paul has argued the he was within his rights under the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution in making his comments.

Terrorists Machinegun Crowd In Beirut Street

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Six Moslem gunmen in a Mercedes limousine sprayed machine-gun fire at passers-by in a Christian quarter today, killing four persons and wounding several others, the Christian Phalange radio reported.

Christian militiamen chased the attackers through the winding alleys of the Dowrah district, stopped the car, wounded its occupants and took them into custody, the radio said.

The attack occurred just a day after an explosion outside a Christian militia barracks in Beirut killed 35 persons and wounded more than 50. The incidents undermined the precarious, two-month-old cease-fire in Lebanon.

"A quantity of explosives and files belonging to the Communist Action organization were found in the car," the Phalange broadcast said. The Phalange militia is the largest on the Christian side in the civil war.

The broadcast also said an unidentified alien tried to enter the Christian enclave in an auto loaded with more than 40 pounds of dynamite. He was arrested by Christian militiamen and turned over to the Syrian-dominated Arab League force supervising the cease-fire, the radio said.

Phalange leader Pierre Gemayel and Christian National Liberal party leader Camille Chamoun appealed to their followers and residents of the Christian area to remain calm and let the peace force handle the situation.

"Some third party, outsiders... are conniving to mar peace efforts and explode a wave of subversion and sabotage," the radio said.

Christian militiamen firing automatic rifles in the air blocked traffic today in the Ashrafiyeh district, scene of Monday's explosion.

The Phalange radio said Christians in that area went on strike to protest "this vile and barbaric crime." Shops were closed and armed men turned back children on their way to school.

"An increasing number of militiamen are going into the streets with their arms," a source in the area reported. "Sporadic gunfire is heard, and travelers between eastern and western Beirut are turned back at some points."

Most of the militiamen put their weapons away after Syrian troops occupied Beirut and imposed a cease-fire in November.

Tax Package

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today proposed a $10 billion personal income tax cut along with corporate tax reductions and an increase in personal Social Security taxes. The package is nearly a carbon copy of tax cut proposals Congress rejected last year.

Like last year's package, the new proposal includes $2.5 billion in corporate tax reductions. It also calls for a $5.1 billion increase in personal Social Security taxes over a two-year period. Last year's proposal called for a $1.65 billion increase in personal Social Security taxes.

The administration proposal last year was linked to compensating cuts in spending. But this time, Ford's proposal was initially unclear on whether he would seek compensating spending cuts. Ford noted in a message to Congress that he will be sending up his spending proposals with his budget later this month.

Snoopy Got November Vote

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Snoopy, Linda Lovelace, Mickey Mouse and Richard Nixon all were somebody's choice for president of the United States in last November's election, the New York state Board of Elections says.

They were just a few of the names that more than 8,000 voters wrote on their ballots, rather than choosing from the list of candidates already there.

Independent party candidate Eugene McCarthy, ousted from the ballot by a court ruling, was the leader among write-in choices, with several thousand votes, the board said.

Congress Unlikely To Act On Statehood Bill

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early congressional action on President Ford's proposal to make Puerto Rico the 51st state is unlikely because of opposition from congressional leaders and the possibility Ford's term in office may run out before he can submit the legislation.

Leaders of the two congressional panels with jurisdiction over legislation affecting Puerto Rico say they have no intention of holding committee hearings on Ford's proposal.

The stands by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., could mean

Ford's proposal would fail the first test in the congressional process: approval by committees in each chamber.

Jackson is chairman of the Senate Interior Committee and Udall is slated to move up to chair the equivalent House panel. Both panels would have to approve any invitation to Puerto Rico to apply for statehood.

Further doubts about early consideration of the proposal developed Monday when White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the legislation embodying the Ford proposal might not be drafted in time for Ford to submit it to Congress before the President leaves office Jan.

20. Nessen said the legislation "is very complicated." If the legislation is not completed, Nessen said Ford probably would try to make his point in the State of the Union message he plans to deliver to a joint session of Congress around Jan. 12.

It would then be up to the Carter administration, Nessen said. Carter has been cool to Ford's suggestion.

Udall, in an interview, said: "I'm not about to take any part in initiating congressional action on this until we've been asked to do so through the regular democratic processes in Puerto Rico." That would require legislative action by the Puerto Rican legislature and the agreement of the governor of the island.

Jackson told a news conference Monday that Ford's suggestion on statehood reflected his "lame duck status" and was very ill-timed because it embarrassed even members of his own party in Puerto Rico.

The Republican party platform supports statehood for Puerto Rico. The Democratic platform supports "full self-determination" for the island and support for whatever its citizens prefer, whether that be an autonomous form of commonwealth status or statehood.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE APPEALS

FOUR-MONTH-OLD HAS NO CRIB

Student public health nurse Cynthia Slifer has asked Hotline to appeal for a crib for a four-month-old baby. The family of the infant is composed of seven members and there are only two double beds and a single bed in the house, she said. She also said a chest of drawers would be helpful, as there is only one in the house and it has only one drawer intact. Persons feeling they can help Ms. Slifer help this family are asked to call her at the Health Department Student Trailer during the day, 752-2803, or at home, 756-3912 in the evenings.

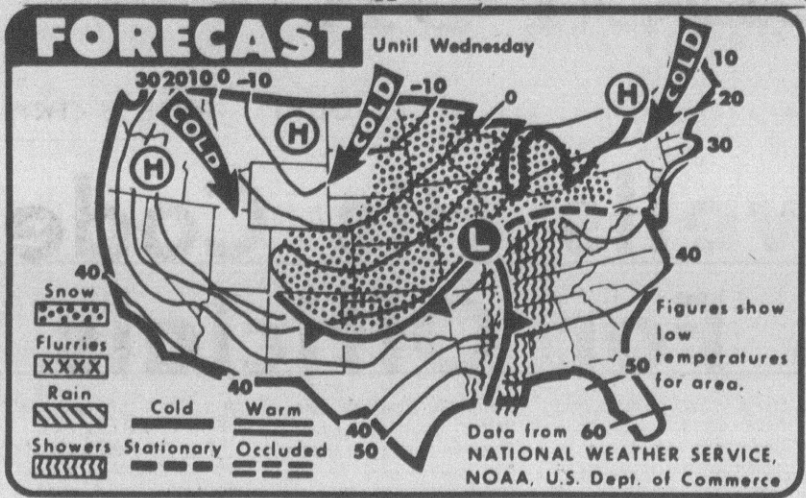

SMALL APPLIANCE REPAIR, DONATION

Is there any place in or near Greenville that repairs small household appliances like toasters, blenders and electric can openers— Also, is there any place a person can donate appliances of this type, perhaps broken, but repairable, that he or she no longer needs or wants— Mrs. E. L.

Hotline ran an appeal of this type many months ago, but perhaps it's time to update it. So we'd like to hear from any business or individual who repairs small appliances. Call 752-1336 and leave a message, please.

We'd also like to hear of a service, if there is one, which might repair used appliances, and donate them to some organization like the Salvation army. Please call the number given above.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Unseasonably cold weather is expected today for most of the nation. Snow is due from the western and southern Plains to the Great Lakes. Showers are forecast from the central Gulf to the Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A travelers advisory remained in effect for most of North Carolina this morning because of snow covered roads in the mountains and slick spots on roads and bridges in central and eastern portions of the state.

Snow accumulations Monday ranged between two and five inches in the mountains and one and two inches in the western Piedmont. Elsewhere a mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain left a thin coating of ice on the ground and highways.

Some of this remained on the roads this morning, especially on secondary roads and on bridges and overpasses on the main highways. Motorists were cautioned to exercise extreme care while driving.

Cloudy skies continued over most of the state and there was some rain along the Outer Banks but this was expected to end during the morning as the low center continued to move further offshore.

Cape Hatteras recorded 0.79 inch of rainfall while Wilmington had 0.68.

Temperatures Monday reached highs only in the 30s across the state with only the Outer Banks reporting highs in the 40s and low 50s.

There was little change during the night under cloudy skies but Greensboro was one of the coldest spots just before dawn with a low of 25 degrees.

Considerable cloudiness was expected to prevail during the day with temperatures reaching the upper 30s and low 40s. Meanwhile, a new winter storm is expected to move over the central plains states Wednesday, bringing increasing cloudiness to North Carolina with a chance of some showers in the mountains.

Some warming is likely ahead of the front, the National Weather Service said, with temperatures climbing to the 40s in the mountains and ranging to the low and mid 50s elsewhere in the state.

UAW Presidency Seen Decided

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Douglas A. Fraser, a Scottish immigrant who started out as a metal finisher in a DeSoto plant, has emerged as the likely next president of the 1.4-million member United Auto Workers union.

If elected next May, Fraser, 60, is expected to lead the nation's largest industrial union along the path of progressive social activism blazed by the late Walter Reuther and followed by retiring President Leonard Woodcock.

Fraser, a UAW vice president, appeared certain to succeed Woodcock after two potential rivals gave Fraser their support Monday.

Woodcock said a canvass of the union's executive board showed Fraser had the solid backing of a majority of the 26 members.

The executive board will meet Jan. 11 to select a consensus candidate to put before the UAW's convention in Los Angeles. That choice is virtually assured formal election by voting delegates.

Union vice presidents Irving Bluestone, 59, and Duane "Pat" Greathouse, 61, had indicated they would challenge Fraser for the $47,000-a-year post, but only if they felt they had enough votes.

Several union sources, including both supporters and detractors of Fraser, had said he could count on support of as many as two-thirds of the board members.

Woodcock, who is stepping down in May at the mandatory retirement age of 65, said both Bluestone and Greathouse had "informed me they are not pressing their candidacies" and were supporting Fraser.

Fraser is director of the UAW's Chrysler Corp. and skilled trades departments. He also is in charge of white collar organizing and the union's political arm in Michigan, Community Action Program (CAP).

Bluestone succeeded Woodcock as head of the General Motors Corp. department. Greathouse heads the American Motors Corp. farm implement and organizing departments.

Fraser narrowly lost the presidency to Woodcock in 1970, after Reuther died in a plane crash. A canvass of the executive board showed Woodcock with a 13-12 edge in votes, and Fraser withdrew his candidacy, citing the need for unity at a time when a new round of auto industry contract bargaining was about to start.

Both Fraser and Bluestone served as administrative assistants to Reuther and each is said to have enjoyed a close relationship with him, although the union leader selected Fraser as his protege and designated successor.

Fraser has a reputation as a tough, creative bargainer and a man of high integrity. And he believes in the Reuther legacy — that the UAW should not only serve its members on bread-and-butter issues, but be at the vanguard of major social causes.

Schools Feel Impact Of Cutback In Natural Gas

By MANUEL SCHIFFRES
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Schools in an eastern Kentucky county have been hit by a 40 per cent cutback from their natural gas supplier and are adopting a series of energy-saving measures to avoid a shutdown.

Because of Kentucky's unusually cold winter — daytime temperatures in the teens to low 20s and overnight lows of 10 above zero to 5 below zero — the Columbia Gas Co. of Lexington has used up most of its gas allotment for the next several months. It has been told by its front-line supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission

Corp., not to expect any extra.

So the Lexington firm, which serves 33 central and eastern Kentucky counties, has instituted a series of curtailments to customers — including 100 per cent cutbacks to several businesses which have alternate heating systems that use fuel oil or coal.

Estill County school officials in Irvine voted Monday to close high school greenhouses and move basketball games from a gas-heated high school gym to a gym in another school that uses coal and electricity.

They had considered closing schools altogether for up to a month this winter and making up the lost days in June. On Monday, they rejected that approach — for now.

"Although it's still a possibility, we're not likely to close schools in the immediate future," Supt. Billy White Davis said after meeting with administrators and members of the Board of Education.

"It just creates too many problems.

"We'll continue to operate until someone tells us there just isn't any more gas," Davis said by telephone from Irvine. "We think that by these actions we'll be able to get through to March," said Davis, who supervises seven schools and 3,200 pupils.

Harold McCracken, gas utilization representative for Columbia Gas, acknowledged a "40 per cent curtailment is hard to live with," but he said he didn't think any school systems would have to close this winter.

"This is the winter we've been fearing," McCracken said, adding that temperatures are running 41 per cent below normal. "This is the kind of winter that's had us highly concerned since the energy curtailments started in 1973."

Coffee Boycott Gaining Ground

By The Associated Press
A coffee boycott begun in New York City has spread to Ohio, Massachusetts and upstate New York, with supermarket chains urging consumers not to buy and providing discounts for substitutes — or for coffee.

Ohio's largest supermarket chain, Liberal Markets Inc. with 40 stores in Dayton and Cincinnati, continued selling coffee at $2.59 per pound, but launched a newspaper-and-billboard advertising campaign Monday urging shoppers not to buy.

Shopwell Inc. in New York City is running ads in which the company president says, "The money you and I are being asked to pay for coffee is outrageous." The newspaper ads include 20-cent coupons for tea, cocoa or hot chocolate.

Advertisements for Boston's Stop-and-Shop Co. Inc. also included coupons — for coffee. The ads urged customers to find a substitute, but added, "If you must buy coffee, buy it only when it's on sale," and offered 70 cents off on a two-pound can.

In Syracuse, N.Y., on Monday, the Consumer Affairs Office announced that five major chains representing 33 area supermarkets had agreed to join the campaign.

The boycott began last week when New York City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs, Elinor Guggenheimer, said that a 50 per cent cut in national coffee consumption would reduce prices. She said she was abstaining from her usual 14 cups a day.

Retail coffee prices around the country range up to $3, roughly twice the price of two years ago. Current wholesale prices are also at about $3, which means the retail price is still going up.

Nurses Indicate A Dim View Of Hospital Care

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of 10,000 nurses found that 42 per cent said they had seen deaths among patients which they thought had been caused accidentally by doctors.

The survey, reported in the January issue of the magazine Nursing 77, also found that 15 per cent of the nurses said they had more than once seen deaths caused accidentally by doctors and that 18 per cent knew of deaths accidentally caused by nurses.

Thirty-eight per cent of the nurses wouldn't like to be patients in their own hospitals, the survey found.

It rated nursing care in the United States and Canada at a "low B" grade. The smaller the hospital, the survey indicated, the less the responding nurses thought of the care.

As for nursing homes, 55 per cent of responding nurses who worked in such institutions said they would not want to be patients where they work.

Nursing 77 reported that the nurses blamed insufficient staff, the burdens of paper work and other obligations that took time away from attending to patients as reasons why nursing care of patients is less than excellent.

The magazine last May published a "Probe of Quality Care," listing 78 questions and asking its nursing readers to respond to them. Those responses, more than 10,000 of them, formed the basis of the article in the current issue.

Concerning health care nationwide, said Nursing 77, 3 per cent of nurses rated it as excellent. Half said it was good, the magazine reported, while 42 per cent rated it as fair, and 5 per cent as poor.

The nurses rated physical care as good to high at their hospitals, the report said, but considered emotional or psychological support of patients and families as being only fair and sometimes poor.

Only about one-third of the responding nurses said they thought other nurses gave good or excellent psychological support to patients.

One nurse suggested a reason: "The physical (care) is stressed as all important. If we're found sitting in a patient's room offering support, we're not considered to be working — just talking."

Only 23 per cent said they thought doctors were good in providing emotional support for the sick.

Bring Patience And Your Money

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're planning to attend Jimmy Carter's inaugural celebrations, bring money, patience and your long johns.

And if you haven't already booked a hotel room, be prepared for sleeping-bag-room only.

There's a long list of free events for the public — and some 300,000 just plain folks have been invited — but many will be held outdoors.

For instance, you can take a free sightseeing trip, but it will be in an open air tourmobile normally used in the summer.

If the current low-20s chill continues, expect to bundle up, especially for the swearing-in ceremony, the parade and the early morning prayer service at the Lincoln Memorial — all on Jan. 20, which is inauguration day.

Unlike previous inaugurations, when hundreds of VIPs have been issued free invitations to the main events, only 340 foreign ambassadors and their wives get in free this year.

That may have come as somewhat of a shock to some of the 50,000 people, including members of Congress, the Supreme Court, mayors and governors who have been "invited" to purchase tickets for seats at the parade, for the vice president's reception and for the inaugural parties for $25 each. Or 50 for the VIP couple planned to attend everything.

"It's a 'People's Inaugural' and everyone will pay on an equal basis," said Sue Vogelinger of the Carter inaugural committee.

What that means, she said, is that the committee did not accept corporate contributions for more than $5,000 as inaugural committees did in previous years, so much of the bill for the so-called "People's Inaugural" will be footed by the people who attend.

Mall Became An Embarrassment

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — It was finished five years ago and cost about $250,000, but now it is called an embarrassment. It's the Trade Street Mall.

The mall was built with hopes of helping stir up interest in downtown shopping.

One of the problems cited by businessmen is parking. Another is a bad reputation the area has gained. Another problem is that stores and restaurants are closing or relocating, providing less attraction for shoppers to frequent the mall.

"There's no question about it. We have lost the northern anchor state that is necessary for pedestrian traffic through the mall," said Neal A. Bedinger, president of the Downtown Association.

In 1975, the Belk's store left the corner of Trade and Fifth Street to set up shop in a popular shopping center. Its attraction hasn't been replaced.

A number of other businesses have deserted the block-long mall. Of the 30-odd stores in the mall, about a third are vacant. What's more, the Mall Cinema which opened with a critically acclaimed foreign film soon switched to X-rated films.

"There's lots of parking in this area but my older customers just aren't used to those parking garages," said D.C. Wright, a clothing store owner.

Joe Choplin, a groceryman, said the mall has numerous problems: "The parking situation with meters going all the way to Eighth Street, the general rundown condition of the whole area, the streetwalkers, the winos and outright bums discouraging people to shop. It got worse and worse and people just went somewhere else to shop."

"This little mall has had as much or more bad publicity than anything I know of," said Fletcher Grubbs, a mall shoe store manager.

But, not everyone has given up. "There is an opportunity for some gradual growth back up in the next few years. More and more people are realizing the importance and potential of downtown," Bedinger said.

Military Union Role Is Argued

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon lawyers can't agree among themselves on whether servicemen and servicewomen can be barred from joining labor unions.

But there is general agreement among the lawyers that the Pentagon has the power to prohibit negotiations between labor unions and the defense establishment on military pay, working conditions or anything else.

The debate appears to boil down to an argument over whether a ban on allowing membership in a union would infringe on a service member's constitutional rights.

Pentagon lawyers have been grappling with the problem of how to frame regulations in such a way as to keep them from being voided by the courts.

Army attorneys contend the Defense Department has legal authority to rule out union membership. Defense Department General Counsel Richard Wiley reportedly challenges the Army position. Lawyers for the Air Force and Navy are described as uncertain.

A current defense directive says commanders are not authorized to recognize or to bargain with any servicemen's union.

Many civilian workers belong to the American Federation of Government Employees, which represents them before congressional committees. Government workers may not strike and their pay rates are fixed by Congress. But the union may bargain with federal agencies on working conditions and is available to help individual employes in event of grievances.

The union has been considering for more than a year whether to try to sign up men and women in uniform. AFGE leaders decided last month to delay a decision amid reports of disagreement among them.

The present Pentagon leadership, both civilian and military, is universally opposed to unionization of the armed forces. It is not yet known how the Carter administration will view the question.

Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified last year that "every country that has had unionization within its uniformed side of the military establishment has paid one terrific price in operational effectiveness."

Enriched Bread Improves Diet

Charge Driver In Car Wreck

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — Proposals to enrich bread with nutrients originated with the medical profession, public health officials and the National Research Council in the late 1930s, with the goal of improving the value of the American diet.

They chose bread as the means of getting the B-vitamins and iron into diets because bread is the most universally eaten food, and the additional nutrients would not require a change in food habits.

Actual enrichment of bread began in 1941.

Two Good For One Ear

DOUBLY FASHIONABLE—The twice-pierced ear, a new fashion trend, takes to many clever pair-ups, including this diamond pave star worn with a gold crescent moon that cradles a single tiny diamond of its own. Other charming combinations are a little gold heart with an enamel and stone-centered flower; miniature playing card suits, such as a gold spade with a silver club; or simple geometrics, such as a diamond disc combined with an onyx triangle or a diamond stud with a hoop. Dear Abby

Pills Might Kill More Than Just Mother's Pain

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother always has something the matter with her. It's either a "splitting headache," "dizzy spells" or eating something that didn't "agree" with her. She eats "pain-killers" like you wouldn't believe. If the directions say to take two, she takes four. She buys every kind she can get without a prescription. I've tried to tell her this is dangerous, but she won't listen to me. She reads your column faithfully and thinks you know everything, so maybe you can straighten her out. I'm not exaggerating, and I'm not a child. I'm a 30-year-old married woman who loves her mother and is worried sick about her.

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Tell your mother that Abby said a "pain" is Nature's signal that something is wrong. And to kill the pain and ignore the warning instead of seeing a physician is not only foolish, it could be fatal.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to someone's home for dinner, and when I arrived, the stereo was blaring loudly. All during dinner and even afterward when we were talking, the stereo was turned up so high I could scarcely hear anything else, and I had to practically shout to be heard. Needless to say, I didn't enjoy the evening. In fact, when I left I had a headache.

Don't people realize how rude it is to have a stereo turned on so loud that it's impossible to carry on a normal conversation? I hope you print this.

PAT FROM PARKLAND

DEAR PAT: I'll print it for: those who aren't aware that loud stereo music is often more irritating than entertaining, plus those who timidly tolerate it rather than ask their host (or hostess) to please turn it down—a reasonable request.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a grown man who cheats at cards, and when confronted, throws the cards up in the air, runs to his room and broods for the rest of the evening?

Abby, this man has a Ph. D. in nuclear physics and holds a $40,000-a-year job.

We have been playing bridge regularly for over three years. This past weekend when I caught him cheating, I confronted him and asked for a re-deal. He literally threw a tantrum. We're not speaking now as a result of all this.

Should I have kept my mouth shut, or was I justified in letting him know I was on to his sleight-of-hand trick?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You should not have kept your mouth shut. But had you waited to tell him privately instead of humiliating him before the others, you could have avoided an ugly scene.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Fashion Designer Pleased By Femininity Look

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

On this winter's social scene women have the opportunity to be "heroine types" once again. New fashions can get them out of the "hard man-tailored look" many have favored. It is almost a plea with fashion designer Dominic Rompolo, who is in his 30s.

"Remember Linda Darnell in 'Forever Amber,' Bette Davis in 'Jezebel,' Vivien Leigh in 'Gone with the Wind' and Katharine Hepburn in 'Philadelphia Story.' They were real heroines and we haven't seen their likes lately in the movies. Why? Not because of a shortage of romantic stories — women simply don't look like heroines any more. But more feminine clothes would help."

Rompolo has had his own fashion business for six months. He worked with Geoffrey Beene for two years during Beene's "high empire structured clothing period." It was a good time for a young designer who was architectural-minded, just out of Parsons School of Design, which awarded him three golden thimbles at graduation for excellence in original design. Later he worked for Teal Traina for five years.

"We've been into haberdashery for a long time and women have proved their point. They've won their causes. It's time to show the neckline, the shoulders, the legs — American women have the loveliest legs in the world. They may not get the opportunity again if they pass it up," he says.

Although he has done peasant designs, everyone need not wear big skirts, he explained. There are soft, fluid, clingy clothes that move with the body for day or night wear, ideal subtlety for any woman, but "especially for Mata Hari types that men like to pour their hearts out to," Rompolo contends.

Bareness, strapless dresses (held up with elastic), natural fibers like cotton, peasant and fantasy dresses, all promote femininity, he believes. "You can be a working girl and still look feminine, especially after five," he emphasizes.

Color combinations include luscious cornflower with Spanish melon, lime with cornflower, grape and Spanish melon, ming green and strawberry in filmy peau de sole, matte jersey, georgette, chiffon and combinations of them.

For evening there are dresses with poncho-type covers of georgette or chiffon, a delicate, flowing look over peau de sole. Some skirts go down to the shoes, some fall just below the calf, "but they all have a feminine look that men like," says Rompolo.

His goal has been to try to design beautiful garments in a reasonable price range and he thinks he is succeeding. His economy measures include no zippers, trim, buttons, embroidery or belts that require special labor.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Barbara Walters once related how she was invited to a state dinner in the Philippines. The dinner was to begin in 10 minutes and Barbara had not brought along a long dress. She was about to decline the invitation when she had a flash. She would wear her red bathrobe, thus saving the day.

I have two acquaintances who have worn nightgowns to dinner parties. One was on the campaign trail and also didn't have a long dress and the other just thought her nightgown too pretty to waste in bed.

Don't those stories just turn your stomach?

I don't have a nightgown in my drawer that would get me through an eighth grade prom — or a house call from my doctor, for that matter. Somehow, I cannot imagine myself showing up for a state dinner in the Philippines in a pair of blue scuffles, a flannel robe with a stomach button missing, spit-up on the shoulder (the baby is 18 years old) and pockets bulging from nose tissue that smells like vapor-rub.

I took a turn the other day through the lingerie department and frankly, I can see how they got away with it. I've never seen so many beautiful gowns and robes in my entire life.

"Here's one that's a luv," said the salesperson.

She held up a satin gown. (The last time I saw anything that narrow, there was toothpaste in it.)

"I'm afraid not. I have made it a rule of thumb that I do not wear anything to bed I have to wear a girdle under."

"What about this one?" she asked, holding up a transparent bit of nylon.

"I have also promised myself that I would never wear anything in bed that you had to wear a coat over."

"What did you have in mind?" she asked.

"Something with sleeves, a turtleneck . . . and a zip-in floor."

Then she held up a robe that was a knockout. Let me put it another way. If I had worn it to the ball when my husband was elected Governor, it's something I'd wear again to his inauguration as President.

"I'll take it," I said impishly. Last weekend, I took the plunge and decided to wear it as an evening dress. As I entered the room . . . all eyes were upon me when my husband looked up and said, "Hurry up and get dressed. We're leaving in 10 minutes."

Whatta wanta bet? Barbara Walters could have worn the same thing and looked like a million dollars.

blows — because "a woman cannot be raped."

On the June television show on rape, Jean Ullmann, the male judge of the Paris assize court, said, "You are not going to change men."

Mrs. Fargier does not agree. As she concluded in her book on rape, "Rape is, certainly, first of all a cultural problem. A tragic symptom of a social sickness called virility."

Women's Militants Say French Men Feel Rape Doesn't Exist

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — In this land where chivalry was born, the prevailing male attitude appears to be, "Rape? It doesn't exist."

But women's liberation militants have launched a vigorous anti-rape campaign throughout France that is slowly changing this "machismo" tradition.

As rape has been suffered in silence and not even recognized by the law as a major crime, the new anti-rape movement has shaken and shocked the French even more than the campaign for abortion in the early 1970s.

"Rape had never been raised before as a problem in French society, possibly because this is a Latin country," said one of the anti-rape movement militants, Maryse Wolinski.

"To French women rape is much more shocking to discuss than abortion."

Mrs. Daniele Granet, journalist for the magazine L'Express, says flatly that in France, "for men there is no such thing as rape."

Now the veil of silence has been ripped away.

The first French book on rape has been published: "Rape" by journalist Marie-Odile Fargier. It has been widely reprinted and commented upon by the news media.

For the first time, rape has been discussed on French television, on a special program last June during which a girl called Liliane told how she was raped when she hitchhiked a ride from Paris to Nice.

More and more women are reporting rape cases to the police instead of observing the usual French custom of remaining silent.

For the first time accused rapists are being tried in assize courts instead of in correctional courts that handle only minor offenses. And for the first time in the nation's history the trials are open, not secret.

Several courts have handed down prison convictions in rape cases this year, a rarity in France.

The anti-rape campaign was launched by the heroine of the French women's liberation movement, attorney Gisele Halimi, and her movement, "Choisir" (to choose).

It was Mrs. Halimi who led the fight for legal abortion in France by defending a girl tried in suburban Bobigny in 1972 for undergoing an abortion.

The resulting abortion law, and one on legal contraceptives, were the first two victories of the women's liberation movement in France.

Then it waned, until revived by the anti-rape campaign.

In 1975 two Belgian girls, Anne Tonglet and Araceli Castellano, asked Mrs. Halimi to represent them at a trial of three youths who they said raped them while they were camping in a tent near Aix-en-Provence. The girls say they are lesbians and obviously not seeking men.

Mrs. Wolinski, the editor of the Choisir movement's newspaper said, "Halimi decided to take the case and make it a trial principle, as she did with the abortion trial in Bobigny in 1971. That is, to break the wall of silence. With the Belgian case people began to talk of rape, more and more."

At the first hearing of the case in Aix, Mrs. Halimi insisted it be tried as a major crime in an assize court and not as a minor offense. The court agreed and an appeal court confirmed the decision — a revolutionary change in France. The much-awaited trial opens next February.

Since the front-paged case of the Belgians, 20 other women have asked Mrs. Halimi to take their rape cases to court.

Choisir has raised money in France for these trials and even received contributions from feminists in the United States.

Mrs. Wolinski said that Mrs.

Halimi's getting the courts to recognize rape as a major crime to be tried in assize courts already has been a major victory. So was opening the trials to the press. For the first time in history a rape trial in Paris was open to the public when a pastry worker, Gerard Ghuzel, 24, was convicted and given a 10 year prison sentence Dec. 3 for five rapes.

Mrs. Halimi was summoned to speak on rape before a parliamentary committee on liberty and a government committee investigating all forms of violence.

"These meetings were very important," said Choisir leader Mrs. Wolinski. "Things are changing slowly."

The Choisir militants insist it is not their goal to see men in jail. They would prefer that a convicted rapist's name be posted at his place of work and in the town hall of his community and that he lose civil rights for five years.

Mrs. Wolinski admits "that will be difficult to get."

But the Choisir militants know that an even knottier problem "is to change attitudes, to bring about a new mentality in men."

Rape is the only crime, they say, in which the victim has to prove — to male policemen and male judges — that she herself is not guilty. As Mrs. Fargier said in her bestseller, "Rape," women "are guilty of being pretty, guilty of being desirable . . . yet rape can happen to any woman old or young, ugly or pretty. Rape is an affair of men. So is justice."

"Of men who throw back on the woman the responsibility of the problem: she only has to go to the party, only not to dress like that, only not to be so pretty, only not go out of the house to work."

"Or like the judge, after the police refused to register her complaint of rape, inscribed the crime only as 'injuries and

APPLE ROLLS—Delightful to serve to the family or company or to give as gifts.

Prepare-Ahead Cooks Like These Apple Rolls

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Prepare-ahead cooks may appreciate these new Three-Use Apple Rolls. They may be served as cake, tea bread with cream cheese or pudding with lemon or foamy sauce. They're useful for both family and company; one roll may be offered as soon as baked, the other stored in the refrigerator or freezer.

As cake or tea bread, slices of a roll are good to pack into a lunchbox. If the pudding use interests you and a roll has been stored, it may be sliced and reheated over boiling water. These rolls are also excellent for gift-giving.

The good cook who worked out this recipe baked the rolls in coffee cans used as is — and she achieved a "mushroom" effect. But alas, when we tried this our rolls ran over in the oven. Don't ask us why because we don't know. For safety's sake, we suggest that you do what we did when we tried the recipe again — tie bands of foil around the cans before they are baked.

THREE-USE APPLE ROLLS

- 4 cups diced (¼-inch) pared apples
- 1 cup coarsely broken pecans
- 2 cups sugar
- 3 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¾ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 large eggs, slightly beaten

Grease and flour two 1-pound tall coffee cans.

In a medium bowl, stir together the apple, pecans and sugar. Let stand 1 hour, stirring often so mixture makes its own juice.

In a large bowl, stir together the flour, baking soda, salt, allspice, nutmeg and cinnamon. Add apple mixture and stir well. Stir in butter and vanilla. Stir in eggs.

Turn into prepared coffee cans. Tie a 2-inch-wide band of double foil around the top of each.

Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 1 hour and 15 minutes.

Place cans on a wire rack to cool for 10 minutes. Remove foil. Turn out onto wire rack. Serve warm as a cake; or with a sauce as a pudding; or cold as a teabread, accompanied if you like with cream cheese.

Makes 2 rolls.

Difficult Future For Trudeau

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada has one of the most difficult situations that the leader of a nation can face in front of him.

The question is how to deal with the separatist movement in the Quebec province of Canada. The separatist party won in the provincial elections and a separatist premier was elected for the province.

Trudeau recently mulled over the situation in an interview. He said he would not be the one to lead his nation into civil war if Quebec should attempt to break away. But the possibility of war would exist.

For now Trudeau says he will work through the democratic processes to keep Canada united.

"My course is to keep a strong federal government but to make Quebecers feel that they have a role to play in that government," he said.

He thinks that in the event a referendum is held the separatists will be badly beaten.

Trudeau saw war as futile in solving the problem and pointed to Lebanon, Cyprus, Northern Ireland and Bangladesh.

Avoiding civil strife over the issue would, of course, be important to Trudeau and other responsible Canadians. Trudeau was careful not to compare with the similar situation to the south in the United States a little more than a 100 years ago. Here the south attempted to withdraw from the Union and a terrible war resulted. No one can condone the bloodshed, but without the war the United States would be fragmented today.

Prime Minister Trudeau faces a critical situation. He leads a great nation of the Western Hemisphere, and we pray that he can find the peaceful means to keep his country united.

Grifton has something good started in this historical museum. It can be expanded in future years so that it could become a major tourist attraction in Eastern North Carolina.

THIS AFTERNOON

Open Market Plan Eyed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A modified open market plan will be pushed in the 1977 General Assembly for automobile and casualty insurance.

The Legislative Committee on Fire and Casualty Insurance Rates has prepared a report on insurance rating problems in North Carolina, along with the proposed "new and competitive method of rate regulation . . . and preventing monopoly and collusion in rate making."

The proposal will not provide a completely open market system for casualty insurance. For one thing, the Commissioner of Insurance will supervise all policies and forms used by the insurance companies. Also, the commissioner will be empowered to sue insurance companies which charge excessively, don't collect enough to cover costs, or otherwise engage in shady practices — but the burden of proof will be on the commissioner.

Use And File
Labeled a "use and file" system of charging, the proposed method will allow an insurance company to set its own rates for coverage of a client, and start charging that rate, while the rates are filed with the commissioner for his later consideration.

A fully open competition system would not serve this state best, the committee chaired by State Rep. J. Guy Revelle, D-Northampton, determined. A completely open market would cause substantial rate hikes; standard policies are essential to comparison; and an open market would allow an "irresponsible company with financial troubles to move quickly with inadequate rates causing damage," the committee reported.

The use-and-file modified system, the committee felt, would provide healthy competition on rates without competition on hidden exclusions; protect consumers by focusing state regulation on rate matters; allow quick adjustment of rates to market conditions; allow rates to correspond to risk encouraging market expansion in the industry; provide stability for companies; and the threat of having to roll back rates and refund money if the commissioner wins his suit will cause "very responsible filings to be made."

No Rate Setting
The various rate-setting bureaus currently operating would be disbanded and replaced by a voluntary agency supported by the insurance companies to assist in rate setting. Presently, the rates are set by law for all insurance companies in the state. The proposed new system would allow a big firm with experience in the state to set its own rates; a smaller firm, or new one, could draw on the expertise of the rate bureau to help in setting rates.

Raleigh Attorney J. Ruffin Bailey, who is counselor to the American Insurance Corporation, was active in writing the proposal. It is not, he insists, an "industry bill," but it is one which the industry can support.

It provides "maximum protection for the buyer, and maximum flexibility in pricing insurance," Bailey contends. He is active as a lobbyist for the association of insurance companies which provide coverage through the numerous agencies across the state.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has not studied the proposal in detail, but is likely to oppose it, those close to him report.

One of the big problems is that the burden of taking action and proving a problem in a particular rate matter is on the commissioner; a court suit may take up to two years, by which time the damage would have been done, according to a spokesman for Ingram.

Another is that the proposal eliminates protection against age and sex discrimination, one of Ingram's major running battles with the insurance industry. He believes rates should be set on records, not on age or sex. Insurance spokesmen disagree, contending that figures prove the risk is greater among young people and women in particular.

Carter Cabinet, Ho-Hum

WASHINGTON — The past few weeks have provided lean pickings for the political pundits. In the absence of news of small consequence, which is to say, on Mr. Carter's Cabinet choices.

Only five of these positions truly matter. The rest of the jobs are as worthless as bull calves on a dairy farm. The five posts that count for something in official Washington are State, Treasury, Defense, Attorney General and Budget Director. In a separate and vital classification is the Director of Central Intelligence.

The remaining Cabinet posts are entirely forgettable. It is perhaps no more ignominious to be named Secretary of Housing than it is to be chosen Vice President, but the jobs share the same anonymity. Who, quickie, can name the past Secretary of Commerce? Of Agriculture? Of Education? Of Transportation? Of Energy? Of Health, Education and Welfare? Their names are nowhere chiseled on the mind.

The old-line departments of government, with few exceptions, are concerned mostly with the gathering of facts and the shuffling of papers. Now and then a secretary rises above the bureaucratic seas and makes a little news: Secretary Coleman turns down the air bag. Such surfacings are rare. In the outgoing Cabinet, Earl Butz is remembered for a stupid joke and John Dunlop because he quit. Skip the rest.

The secretaries have declined in importance because the action has moved somewhere else. Businessmen, for example, can live with Juanita Krebs as Secretary of Commerce; they could live with anyone as Secretary of Commerce. They are far more concerned with appointments to the Federal Trade Commission, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. A couple of other agencies, technically a part of old-line departments, actually operate as independent principalities: the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Food and Drug Administration.

Add to this list the specialized agencies that control tariffs, truck routes, rail rates, air fares, power licenses, TV and radio stations, environmental protection and labor relations. Add the names of the Federal Reserve Board and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. This is where the action is. The old-line secretaries are little more than mannequins in a window.

Even the five that matter are not likely to matter greatly in Mr. Carter's administration. Cyrus Vance, as Secretary of State, is no Kissinger and was not meant to be. Harold Brown, who will serve as Secretary of Defense, will make no remarkable waves. Griffin Bell, the incoming Attorney General, is Mr. Carter's old and dear friend. So is Bert Lance, the Budget Director. The one question mark is Michael Blumenthal in Treasury; he is a certified liberal; he has a large intellect; and he will have large powers.

As a member of the loyal opposition, I voice deep dismay at only one of Mr. Carter's choices: Theodore Sorensen to head the CIA. Sorensen has undoubted gifts as a speechwriter, but his background in foreign affairs is virtually nil and his experience in intelligence, alas, is not quite so extensive. This bizarre choice makes a mockery of Mr. Carter's campaign promise to make major appointments wholly on a basis of merit. In a post that demands a dedicated

40 Years Ago Today

January 4, 1937
Ships or men of every major power in Europe were caught today in the spreading net of Spain's "little world war" while fascist insurgents in that menacing conflict rained aerial bombs on the center of land and sea hostilities, Madrid and Bilbao.

Forty were killed today in Madrid; 20 were reported dead from a Sunday air raid on Bilbao, where Basque sea patrols are defying the "reprisal" tactics of German warships in the Bay of Biscay.

Belgian newspaper reports said Baron de Borchgrave, an attaché of the Belgian embassy in Madrid had been found beaten to death. He disappeared last month. The Madrid censor refused to permit transmission of an Associated Press dispatch in connection with the case.

Other Editors Say Chief Staff Person

(Greensboro Daily News)

American vice presidents have been promised responsibilities before, and have wound up sitting behind clean desks twiddling their thumbs or attending funerals of minor foreign dignitaries. So Jimmy Carter's declaration the other day that Walter Mondale, as vice president, will be his "chief staff person" at the White House must be taken with a grain of salt.

Still and all, if Carter means what he says, the pledge is of some significance. It signals the President-elect's willingness, already evidenced in the cabinet selection process and transition policy meetings, to exploit the Minnesota Senator's considerable personal talents and knowledge of the federal government. In Carter's words, Mondale will be "shoring up" the areas where there are gaps in Carter's experience and contributing a thoughtful voice to executive decisions — a voice unencumbered by the interests of one federal agency or another.

After January 20, reportedly, Vice President Mondale will occupy an office in the White House itself, instead of next door in the Executive Office Building, the haunt of his predecessors. Jimmy Carter also has talked about merging the presidential and vice presidential staffs, and told his aides that Mondale is to be regarded as "their boss."

While this is refreshing news for Fritz Mondale and for the government, it also says something commendable about the President-elect's own self-confidence. Previous vice presidents, whether they have been ciphers or statesmen, have been excluded routinely from the President's inner circle because of the political threat they posed. Similarly, any appearance of meaningful activity on the part of the heir-apparent often was scrutinized for its potential to upstage the President — never mind that in the last four decades, vice presidents have become president more often than not and could have used some on-the-job training.

President-elect Carter also has told his Cabinet appointees that they are to have unusual independence in running their departments, and that the orders they receive from the White House will originate with him and not his staff, even if his staff relays them. If this good intention, like the others regarding the new vice president's role, is borne out in practice, the departure from precedent will be most healthy.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Elusive Defense Promises

By ROWLANDEVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. — Two years of seeming to promise an unattainable lowering of defense spending caught up with Jimmy Carter here at precisely the wrong moment: just as he and his prospective cabinet were stressing the desperate need to establish credibility with the public.

Ten minutes before Carter's cabinet convened for a pre-inaugural session at this coastal resort, Secretary of Defense-designate Harold Brown told newsmen in a hotel lobby the immutable truth: net defense spending under President Carter will rise, not fall — perhaps even beyond inflationary increases.

This was followed by a 6 1/2 hour cabinet session where little was said about defense spending but heavy emphasis was put on the necessity of fulfilling campaign promises to combat rampant public cynicism. So, when Dr. Brown's comments were learned, Carter staffers claimed the President-elect had never promised a smaller defense budget.

But the record is abundant with Carter's repeated calls to cut defense spending by $5 billion to $7 billion. Some, though not all of his statements, contain semantic escape hatches. Nevertheless, average voters could reasonably conclude only that Carter was promising less, not more, spending at the Pentagon. Actually, reduced defense spending was not a major Carter campaign issue and was seldom mentioned after his nomination. The President-elect has had excellent opportunities since the election to acknowledge, as Brown did here, the realities of defense requirements. Instead, he doggedly repeated the 5 to 7 billion-dollar cut,

Encouraging Market Outlook

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most encouraging stock market outlooks, one that if correct would mean a Dow Jones industrial average of 1700 within five years, has been issued by the conservative Wright Investors Service.

Claiming "the basic economic forces which have depressed both the American economy and security prices have now decisively reversed their longterm trends," John Wright suggests that "realistic optimism" is now justified.

Wright, whose organization supplies the basic research for hundreds of millions of dollars in trust and pension funds, made the evaluation in his annual message to the New York Society of Security Analysts.

In it he stated that a high of 1150 points or better might be realized before the end of 1977, and that following a relatively minor bear market reaction in 1978, the general upward thrust will be resumed.

During this time, he said, a well-diversified portfolio of high quality equities which is held throughout minor cyclical ups and downs will "unquestionably outperform the market average and any so-called index funds."

Wright, who bases his forecasts on fundamental economic and market research, is highly regarded by other investment advisers, many of whom base their own estimates in part in his organization's studies.

The past 10 years have witnessed the evolution, and the past five years the end of an era, Wright said, during which formation and distribution of investment capital was "eroded, dissipated and exported."

The result, he continued, was "to bring down around us the structure of security valuations and distribution." This "sorry and destructive era" now is behind us, and a new progressive period is ahead, he said.

Chief among the reasons, in his opinion, is that the decline of capital formation through personal savings has been reversed as a result of an "enormous buildup" of funded, tax-deferred employee benefit plans.

Rising at an 8 per cent compound annual rate, these funds now total more than $400 billion, Wright noted, and must by law be invested in bona fide capital items, mainly corporate equity and debt.

He listed as among the other reasons for his bullishness:

"The outflow of corporate capital to industrial applications abroad has been reversed as the aspirations of foreign workers and the inflation of foreign production costs rose to and beyond the point of competitive parity with the U.S."

"The decline of the dollar and the flight of investment capital have been replaced by renewed world confidence, making the dollar 'once again the principal international 'currency of refuge.'"

"The fundamental causes of the excessive inflation of 1973/1975 no longer exist."

"The very long-term trend towards higher interest rates has been reversed. Future prime rates should be much closer to 6 per cent than to either the excessive highs of the past 10 years or the lows of the great depression of the 1930s."

Strength For Today

COST OF SACRIFICE

One of the most notable religious characters of a past generation was Sadhu Sundar Singh, a Christian native of India. He was a member of the warlike Sikh tribe and came from a very wealthy family. His conversion to Christianity was a blow to his friends and his family.

On one occasion his uncle took him into a room in his house and showed him an abundant treasure in money and jewels which was stored there. The uncle promised all these things to the young man if he would return to the faith of his fathers.

But Sadhu turned away from his uncle's offer, choosing instead a life of poverty and Christian ministry.

Jesus spoke of two ways of life — the broad highway of comfort and the narrow way of discipline. Few have the courage to endure the rigors of the narrow way of denial. But the career of Sadhu Sundar Singh reminds us that there are rewards which are cheap at the cost of renunciation and death.

Selection Of Jury Underway In Claudine Longet's Trial

By BILL PARDUE
Associated Press Writer
ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — With prosecutors saying they might call singer Andy Williams to the stand, six jurors were tentatively seated in the trial of his ex-wife Claudine Longet on charges of killing her lover.

Williams escorted the 35-year-old singer-actress to the Pitkin County Courthouse on Monday in this posh ski resort community where she faces up to 10 years in jail and a $30,000 fine if convicted.

Jury selection was to resume today for the manslaughter trial in the March 21, 1976, shooting of 31-year-old professional skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich in the $250,000 home he shared with Miss Longet.

During a recess Monday, Williams said he was uncertain why prosecutors subpoenaed him to testify. Dist. Atty. Frank Tucker refused to discuss why Williams was summoned. The singer left for Los Angeles after the noon break, saying he expects to return next week.

Wearing no makeup, Miss Longet sat quietly through about six hours of proceedings. She occasionally brushed back her straight brown hair, held by barrettes, and glanced at the press section, filled with about 30 reporters and artists.

Few residents of this celebrity-filled town showed up in the second-floor courtroom, but dozens lined up in the first-floor lobby to get new auto license plates which became available Monday. Low numbers — a status symbol in Aspen — are given out to first comers.

Tucker, wearing blue jeans and cowboy boots along with a jacket and tie, said the fame of both victim and defendant was making it difficult to find impartial jurors.

Any of the four men and two women tentatively seated Monday may be disqualified later through further challenges from defense or prosecution. Jury selection is expected to take about one week.

Airline Reports Improved Year

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A stronger national economy has been credited for an improved business year in 1976 for Piedmont Airlines.

T.W. Morton, Piedmont's senior vice president, said the company enjoyed a profit increase to $2.4 million, or 94 cents per share, in the first 11 months last year compared to a $1 million loss for the same period of 1975.

The Winston-Salem-based airline, which serves 12 states, reported it carried 3.54 million passengers in the 11 months, up 8 per cent.

Miss Longet says the gun fired accidentally while Sabich was teaching her how to use it. Noel is one of Miss Longet's three children by Williams, from whom she was divorced two years ago.

Colorado's two-year-old manslaughter law requires prosecutors to show that Miss Longet "consciously disregarded a substantial and unjustifiable" risk to Sabich when he was shot. Minimum sentence upon conviction would be either one year imprisonment or a $2,000 fine.

New C-of-C Vice Presidents And Chairmen For New Year Named

As of January 1, 1977, Lawton Nisbet is the new president of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce succeeding Don Collier.

According to Nisbet, the Chamber of Commerce is looking forward to its best year. "We have a very challenging 'Program of Work' for 1977 and it will take all of us giving our best," Nisbet said.

New vice presidents for the four major divisions of the Program of Work and their Committee Chairmen are as follows:

Community Development Division: A. T. Galya, vice president; Education Committee, Billy Laughinghouse, chairman; Law Enforcement Committee, Mickey Herrin, chairman; Livability Committee, Mike Aldridge, chairman; and Transportation Committee, Wilfred Burt, chairman.

Business Committee, Andy Warren, chairman; Commercial Development Committee, Bill Clark, chairman; Economic Education Committee, Dr. James Bearden, chairman; Industry Development Committee, David Whichard, chairman; Labor Relations Committee, Howard Moe, chairman; Merchants Committee, Morris Brody and J. Fred Baumann, co-chairmen; Tourism and Convention Committee, Dr. David Middleton, chairman.

Organization and Membership Development Division: David Womack, vice president; Accreditation Committee, Curtis Hendrix, chairman; Annual Meeting Committee, Larkin Little, chairman; Chamber Facilities Task Force, Jeannette Cox, chairman; Credit Bureau

Committee, Bruce Baker, chairman; Membership Committee, W. Douglas Starr and Janice Buck, co-chairmen; and Membership Service Committee, William Mitchum, Chairman.

Peace Meet Day Changed

During January and February the Greenville Peace Committee will meet Thursdays instead of Wednesdays, according to one of its members, Edith Webber.

The Peace Committee meets weekly at noon at 610 S. Elm Street, Greenville.

The committee is concerned with finding more efficient ways to resolve tensions than blows and bombs, Mrs. Webber said. It conducted vigils against the Vietnam War and helped sponsor appearances by people from Cuba and South Korea, by the international crew of a sailing ship with an ecological message and by others interested in changing the priorities of the U. S. government. Currently it is concerned about the B-1 Bomber: Peace Conversion Campaign.

Anyone interested in these areas is invited to attend this Thursday noon or any Thursday in January or February, Mrs. Webber said.

Seven Traffic Collisions Here

An estimated $7,030 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 12:30 p.m. mishap on Tenth Street, 50 feet West of the Verdant Street intersection when a car driven by Sabrina Holloman Whitley of Route 2, Walstonburg collided with a truck driven by John Thomas Lemons of Winston-Salem.

Officers, who charged Mrs. Whitley with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Whitley car and $300 to the Lemons truck.

A 1 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenville Boulevard involved a truck driven by James Redmond Payton Jr. of Route 1, Winterville and a car driven by Thomas Warren Mewborn of Grifton.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the Payton truck and $600 to the Mewborn car.

Mewborn was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Linda Ann Bradley of Route 1, Grimesland was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:21 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 40 feet West of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Police said the Bradley car collided with a car driven by William David Thomason of Fayetteville, causing an estimated $675 damage to the Bradley auto and $345 damage to the Thomason vehicle.

Drivers involved in a 5:20 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet West of the Charles Street intersection were identified as Rita Kessler Durham of 1203 Drexel La. and Mary Louise Hudson of 1613 Beaumont Dr.

Mrs. Hudson was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety by officers who estimated damage from the mishap at $200 to the Durham car and $700 to the Hudson auto.

Barbara Davenport Whitehead of Tice Trailer Pk. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:12 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets.

Investigators reported the Whitehead vehicle collided with a car driven by GERALYN CIMINO ROGERS of 205 Belvedere Dr. and estimated damage at $600 to the Rogers car and $150 to the Whitehead vehicle.

An estimated $800 damage resulted to a car driven by Redden Walter Leggett of Route 2, Chocowinity when the vehicle collided with a car driven by James Redmond Payton Jr. of Ayden, about 5:15 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 150 feet West of the Charles Street intersection.

No damage was reported to the Payton car.

A 5:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene Street and Gum Road involved vehicles driven by Hezekiah C. Clemons of 415 Moore St, Geraldine Porter Harris of Route 6, Greenville and James Alton Mitchell of 113 Oak Grove Dr.

Police, who made no charges, estimated damage at $10 to the Clemons car, $450 to the Harris auto and $800 to the Mitchell car.

Cannot Find 'Safe' Child

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A man charged with kidnaping a 6-year-old girl was released on $2,000 bond Monday after Charlotte police said the child was safe in Fayetteville. But, Fayetteville police said later they were unable to find the child.

Garth Richard Crestfield, 44, appeared in Mecklenburg County District Court Monday and had his $15,000 bond reduced to $2,000. Charlotte police told the court the child was in Fayetteville where Crestfield had told them she was.

Crestfield had been arrested Sunday on a fugitive warrant from Dade County, Fla., accusing him of kidnaping Tameka Clark. The warrant charged him with taking the child from her grandmother's Miami home Dec. 26 where she was visiting with her mother, Dorothy Clark, 28, police said.

After Crestfield's arrest, officers began a search for the girl and they reported finding her in Fayetteville where she had been attending public school since Sept. 23. She was staying with a relative of Crestfield's, Charlotte police said.

flationary increases, and added he was not sure that even a gross reduction of 5 to 7 billion dollars in savings could be accomplished. Beyond what Brown said, it may be impossible to reduce President Ford's $123-billion Pentagon budget for next year.

This problem was not discussed seriously as the cabinet meeting here agreed on the necessity to keep faith with the public. Accordingly, press secretary Jody Powell vigorously denied that Carter had ever promised an absolute reduction in defense spending.

But emerging from dinner with his cabinet that night, the President-elect still would not publicly acknowledge the uncuttable defense budget. While declaring, "We'll spend whatever is necessary to defend our country," he again invoked that magic 5 to 7 billion-dollar defense cut without adding this would not lower overall defense spending. Anxious though he is to restore governmental credibility, Jimmy Carter showed stubborn reluctance to be seen moving away from a campaign pledge even when that is indeed the case.

professional, Mr. Carter has placed a well-meaning amateur. But the CIA has survived George Bush, who has a few qualifications, and perhaps it will survive Ted Sorensen also. The choice is disappointing all the same.

The happiest selection, because of its sweet poetic justice, will put Joe Califano at the head of Health, Education and Welfare. As a member of the Johnson administration, this amiable fellow fathered many of the HEW programs he soon will inherit. He will find his teenaged offspring wholly unmanageable. They all want bigger allowances, later hours and rooms of their own. Every parent, similarly situated, will wish him luck.

Those of us in the opposition camp will wish them all luck. A President, in my book, is absolutely entitled to have his Cabinet nominees confirmed. Mr. Carter's choices, as a group, are not notably good, bad or indifferent. They are his. Okay. Let us get on with the show.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a rerun of Monday's uncertain, erratic showing. Trading was moderately active.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4 at 995.01. Gainers clung to a slim lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

That marked a continuation of the split-personality behavior that the market began to show last year, with blue chips under pressure and many secondary issues doing well.

S.S. Kresge topped the active list, down 3/4 at 39 1/2. Philip Morris fell 1 1/4 to 58 1/2 in brisk trading. The stock lost 1 1/4 on Monday as an influential brokerage firm sounded a note of caution on its prospects.

In blue chips, General Motors fell 1 1/4 to 76 1/2; Du Pont lost 1 1/2 to 133 1/2, and U.S. Steel slipped 3/4 to 49. The NYSE's composite common-stock index gave up .11 to 57.58 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .24 at 110.84.

Await Ford On Gasoline Controls

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is setting the stage for one more battle with Congress in his last 16 days in office as he moves to lift federal price controls on gasoline. The President was to announce his proposal today as the new 95th Congress opened. Congress then will have 15 days in which to veto Ford's proposal. If Congress does not act, the lid will be off gas prices on Jan. 19, the day before Ford leaves office. Gasoline is the last major oil product remaining under price control at the retail level. The ceilings were imposed in 1973 when petroleum shortages following the Arab oil boycott caused prices to rise.

Administration officials admit that avoiding a congressional veto may be a close call for Ford because of increasing sentiment among the lawmakers for leaving this issue to incoming Democratic President Carter. There is wide disagreement about the impact of any end to price lids. Administration spokesmen contend that ending controls on gasoline will have little immediate effect on prices at the gas pump. And they say in the long range it will provide incentives for the industry to increase exploration and refinery capacity. Oil companies now are charging less than they are allowed for gasoline, a White House spokesman pointed out, because of competition and lack of demand.

The Federal Energy Administration estimates the price of unleaded gas could go up two cents a gallon. The FEA estimates the average price nationally for regular gasoline now is 60 cents a gallon. Congressional critics, however, claim consumers could see much higher price boosts and that there would be increased inflation and higher unemployment as a result. They estimate that lifting price controls, coupled with recent price boosts by the oil exporting countries, could cost consumers as much as $8.9 billion. A study by the Congressional Research Service asserts that the end of controls would add up to eight cents to the price of a gallon of gas. The study was released Monday by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who predicted Ford's decontrol plan will be defeated in Congress. Jackson said Ford's bid was timed so that the end of controls would result in no immediate price hike because winter demand is traditionally slack and storage tanks are full. Instead, Jackson said, the increase would come in June when vacations start.

Judge May Open Doors To Filming Executions

DALLAS (AP) — Executions at the Texas state prison could be filmed and later televised under terms of an order prepared by a federal judge. Judge William Taylor said Monday that he expected to sign today an order allowing electronic media as well as print media to record electric chair executions at the prison in Huntsville.

"There could not be any distinction as far as electronic media were concerned," Taylor said. His order would not allow executions to be carried over live television. On Jan. 14, Mark Milton Moore, 25, convicted of a 1973 murder in Dallas, is scheduled to be executed in the Huntsville electric chair. Appeals have not been exhausted in his case. No executions have been carried out in the United States since 1967.

Taylor's action came as the result of a suit filed by Tony Garrett of Dallas public television station KERA. Garrett, 39, had sought permission to film an execution and interview inmates awaiting capital punishment. "Very simply, I said the news media are entitled to have representatives there, following a policy that had been followed for a number of years," Taylor said. "That is that the representatives of The Associated Press and United Press International would serve as Pool reporters and also that there could not be any distinction as far as electronic media were concerned."

Mr. Garrett would be entitled to be there with his camera on the same basis... that is, as a pool reporter."

Pool reporters represent the media, sharing news reports and observations with their colleagues.

Garrett said Monday that he expects the Texas Department of Corrections to appeal Taylor's order through the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

A spokesman said the corrections department would have no comment until Taylor's order has been signed. Department director W.J. Estelle Jr. had testified against Garrett's request.

No Dam Threat In Morgan View

RALEIGH (AP) — There apparently is no threat that President-elect Jimmy Carter will require a reconsideration of the Falls of the Neuse dam project before it can go ahead as scheduled, several North Carolina political leaders said Monday. Gov.-elect Jim Hunt, Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., and Rep. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Sen. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., each said they had complained to Carter representatives about the chance that the project would need further study. The project is considered essential to solving Raleigh's water supply problems. Last summer and fall, the city experienced a severe water shortage caused by a prolonged drought. City officials said the dam project would prevent similar problems in the future.

The Falls project was one of 61 water projects on a list the Carter transition team had suggested for re-evaluation on the basis of costs and benefits and environmental and safety considerations. The list was given to Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus, designated to be interior secretary. Morgan said the list was no more than an option list and an aide to Helms said the matter "has been blown out of proportion."

"I fully expect this project to go forward as scheduled," Morgan said in a prepared statement. "I, for one, intend to use any influence I have to see that this happens."

been made in federal regulations concerning Section Eight housing whereby the federal government will guarantee payment of debt service for one year in the case of vacant units. The government used to guarantee payment for only 60 days and mortgage banking institutions considered the risk too high. The change helps to improve the financing situation, he said.

In addition, the prime rate has gone down and the Authority stands a better chance now of securing a seven per cent, 30-year tax exempt conventional loan for the Section Eight program.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved the preliminary plans for the Authority's proposed 111-unit housing development in Southside, Laney said, and has given the go-ahead for the preparation of contract documents.

The Authority is in the process of preparing working drawings, detailed specifications and bid documents for the project, according to Laney. The Authority hopes to have the documents finished by the end of January and in HUD hands so that the project can be advertised for bids in February and accepted for bids in mid-March.

Included in the project bid documents will be the specifications for an addition to the community building located in the Newtown project that will be used for the Authority's new central offices. The building will be located on Broad Street just off 14th Street. The present central office facility in Moyewood will be sold.

Only one vacancy occurred during December in the 531 units operated by the Authority, according to Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs. Average rents in the five project areas included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $54.81; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $63.63; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $64.59; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $62.83; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $56.73. Overall rent in the five areas averaged $61.82, according to Mrs. Streeter.

The housing staff has completed the purging of application files for the year and the up-to-date file shows that the Authority has 100 applications for one bedroom units, 203 for two bedroom units, 89 for three bedroom units, 16 for four bedroom units, and six for five bedroom units.

Approval was given by commissioners for attendance of one staff member at a housing workshop scheduled by the Southeast Regional Council of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials for Feb. 9-11 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Attendance was also authorized for a Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Workshop sponsored in February by the Gas Engineering Section of the N.C. Utilities Commission.

Motor Vehicle License Sales Well Under Way

North Carolina Automobile License Tags and stickers have sold steadily since the first sale day, January 1, 1977, according to Anna Garris, N.C. License Agent of Greenville.

"We have sold 1,600 stickers since Saturday. We have sold 81 private truck licenses, 20 freight trucks, 68 trailers, and four transfers. We have been steadily busy and the sale is running about the same as last year at this time," Ms. Garris said. Ms. Garris suggested that Greenville citizens not wait until the last days of the license sales to buy their 1977 licenses. "It would be a lot of help to us if they would go ahead and buy their licenses. Persons purchasing licenses should bring their registration cards with all of the information including the name of the insurance company and the policy number completed. The 1977 license stickers cost $15 this year and must be displayed on vehicles by February 15," she added.

In Greenville citizens may purchase automobile license tags at Home and Auto Supply Company located on Dickinson Avenue. According to Ms. Garris license will be sold Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Pastor Sets Retirement

The Rev. Irby B. Jackson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church here, announced to his congregation last Sunday his plans for retirement.

REV. IRBY JACKSON

Jackson told the congregation that he will retire from the pastorate of Immanuel effective April 30, 1977.

The minister and his family moved to Greenville on March 21, 1956. The church, located in 1956 at 214 W. Eighth Street, relocated at its present 1101 S. Elm Street site on March 8, 1967.

On Jackson's 20th anniversary as pastor at Immanuel, the membership presented to him and his wife a promissory note paid in full on their home at 1702 Rosewood Drive.

The Jacksons plan to remain in Greenville following retirement.

When we lay your plans on the table, we lay our reputation on the line.

Good construction firm reputations are the result of two factors:
The first is good people. Both ours and our customer's. For only with competent, professional people working together toward the same goal, can the second factor be achieved.
Results. Happy customers. Customers who got the quality building they needed, when they needed it, for the money they had to spend.
Over the years, we've satisfied quite a few people's building needs. Satisfied them so well, in fact, that they came back when they needed a second building. And a third. And a fourth.

Jags, Vikes Clash In Key Game

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

With the Christmas break over, it's time for Eastern Carolina Conference teams to turn their attention to the conference races in boys' and girls' basketball and wrestling.

Most teams will compete in conference play this week and one of the big match-ups will be the Farmville Central at D. H. Conley basketball game tonight. Although the Jaguars defeated the Vikings 77-68 last week in the Rose High Holiday Doubleheader, several of D. H. Conley's players did not play in the game and both coaches are expecting a tough game this week.

"This will be a real good game for the spectators," said Viking coach Shelly Marsh. "Farmville has a real good, balanced team. They can score and they're tough on the boards."

"I wasn't surprised at all when they beat North Pitt" in the Holiday Doubleheader.

"They have two outstanding players in Jeff Fields and Kenno Farrow," Marsh said. "They have a veteran club and that may give them an edge."

The Vikings will be nearly full-strength for the game for the first time this year, Marsh said. Randolph King is nearly full-speed after an ankle sprain and several players have returned to the lineup after being suspended.

The outcome of the game is a "toss-up," according to Marsh as his team, now 0-1, will be trying to even its conference record. "We don't want to be two games out of first place in the conference."

Marsh said he has been pleased with the play of sophomore guard Darryl Thompson thus far this year, noting his ten-of-ten free throw shooting at the end of the game with Rose High last week which helped the Vikings to a win.

He also said he was pleased with the play of Kenneth Dawson and Mike Cox in the Doubleheader.

Farmville coach Mike Terrell said, "I expect a real tough game. I think they've got a good team. They may have the potential to be the best team in the league."

Terrell admits that the Jaguar win over D. H. Conley last week came at a time when the Vikings weren't at full strength. "They played without 6-10 (Alton) Tyson or 6-5 Dawson so when we beat them, we didn't beat their best people."

Terrell said his team has looked fairly good so far this year. "We couldn't look too much better than we did the other night against North Pitt."

The North Pitt game was the best so far for James Baker, Terrell said, adding that Kenno Farrow has had several good games this year.

"When we get everyone playing together, we will have to be considered one of the best teams in the conference."

Terrell said he was impressed with the play of Viking Bernard Hawkins in the Holiday Doubleheader. "He shoots the ball very well."

In addition, Dawson and Cox also played good ball and Tyson can score well as well as being intimidating on defense, Terrell said.

The Jaguars are currently 1-0 in the conference and will be seeking to grab an early hold on first place against the Vikings.

In other area basketball games tonight, Ayden-Grifton will be at North Lenoir, Saratoga will travel to Roanoke, North Pitt will host Greene Central, Jamesville will be at Bear Grass and Tarboro will entertain Williamston.

Friday night, Farmville Central will be hosting Greene Central, North Pitt will be at Ayden-Grifton, Roanoke will travel to South Edgemore, Matamusket will be at Bear Grass, Plymouth will host Williamston, Aurora will meet Jamesville, Conley will be at C. B. Aycock and Greenville Christian will entertain Wake Chapel.

A number of wrestling matches are also slated for this week. Tonight, Farmville Central travels to Ayden-Grifton while Williamston hosts Tarboro. Wednesday, Conley is at Southern Nash.

Ayden-Grifton travels to North Pitt on Thursday while Farmville Central entertains Rose.

Friday, Plymouth is at Williamston and Conley hosts North Pitt while on Monday North Pitt is at Washington.

Pilgreen Likes His Cage Role

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

After a frustrating season as a standout on the North Pitt football team, Virgil Pilgreen has now turned to basketball and the Panthers are one of the favorites to win the conference crown.

"I like basketball the best," Pilgreen said. "But I play football to try to help the team."

The basketball Panthers are currently 6-1 and many feel they are the best team in the Eastern Carolina Conference. "I know we have a winning team," Pilgreen said. "We have three starters back (Pilgreen, Donnie Perkins and Kenneth Roberson) and that helps the team a whole lot."

The Panthers were defeated in their last outing, a 77-68 loss to Farmville Central. "Personally (the loss) hurt me," Pilgreen said. "But, I think we will learn something from that loss."

"We just had a bad night, but I think it will help us."

Despite that loss in the Rose Holiday Doubleheader, Pilgreen was named to the all-tournament team and said, "It was great because it was my first time."

Pilgreen is currently averaging around 17 points and 10 rebounds per game, according to his coach, Cobby Deans.

"Virgil Pilgreen is what coaching's all about," Deans said. "He's a good athlete and everytime he comes on the floor he'll give you everything he has and he'll do this whether you win or lose."

Deans said Pilgreen plays all areas of the game well — shooting, rebounding and defense. "He's the kind of guy you like to have on your team. I wish this school had about 20-30 more of him."

"He's a joy to be around and he really loves basketball."

Virgil Pilgreen

Pilgreen doesn't have any definite plans after high school. Although he would like to go to college, he hasn't decided on a school yet.

He enjoys fishing and music although he has little spare time. In addition to football and basketball, Pilgreen also runs track in the spring.

Clemson, UNC On TV

The North Carolina-Clemson basketball game will be carried over WNCT-TV Wednesday night beginning at 8 p.m., it was announced today.

The station has added the game to the regular ACC slate announced earlier.

Following the game, Jim Thacker will host a preview show featuring the seven coaches of the ACC.

State Blisters A & T After Slow Getaway

By The Associated Press

Despite a slow start that allowed a 20-20 tie with 13 minutes played, North Carolina State led by Tony Warren came alive in the second half to trounce North Carolina A&T 107-46 Monday night.

The only other Atlantic Coast Conference basketball team to see action Monday night was Virginia which put down Davidson with a 67-48 margin. Tonight, Maryland will take on Richmond.

Wolpack Coach Norm Sloan said his team was playing sluggishly against A&T early on because the players are looking forward to next Sunday's televised contest with Maryland.

"Sure, Maryland is uppermost in our minds," Sloan said after the game. "If you go out and play badly, you aren't looking ahead, you aren't thinking of anything. If you're looking ahead, and you're concentrating and the adrenalin is flowing, you should play well."

The Wolfpack took a 38-25 lead to the locker room at halftime but came back ready to play basketball. In the first 10 minutes of the last half, the Wolfpack outscored the Aggies 32-4 to take a 70-29 lead.

"We went to work in the second half," Sloan said.

Warren racked up 20 points for the Wolfpack. Kenny Carr and Glenn Sudhop had 17 each. Al Green came up with 15 and scoring 12 each were Brian Walker and Clyde Austin.

Gregory Branch was top scorer for the Aggies with 14. L.J. Pipkin had 12 and Mike Glaspay came up with 10.

The win improved the Wolfpack's record to 6-4 while the Aggies dropped to 0-7.

Freshman Garland Jefferson gave Virginia's Cavaliers three straight baskets to push the team to a 13-point lead and open the door to the decisive defeat of Davidson.

The Cavs, now 5-2, had a 29-18 halftime margin and improved that to 65-38 with but three minutes left. The loss pushed the Davidson record to 2-9.

Game high shooter was John Gerdy of Davidson who hit for 29 points, the only Wildcat in double figures.

Jefferson rolled up 12 points as did Mike Owens. William Napper put in another 10 points for the Cavaliers.

Bryant Is Top Player

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland freshman Bill Bryant racked up 38 points in two games in last week's Maryland Invitational Tournament and that has earned him the title of Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

The 6-foot-6 Bryant was playing guard opposite team leader Brad Davis as he helped the Terps to their eighth and ninth consecutive wins of the season.

Notre Dame In Another Defeat

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
AP Sports Writer

It's back to the drawing board to work on fundamentals today for Notre Dame's slumping basketball team and dejected Coach Digger Phelps.

Notre Dame, No. 8 in this week's Associated Press poll, absorbed its second straight setback Monday night, losing on the road to unranked Princeton 76-62.

The Tigers utilized a tenacious defense and had little trouble solving Notre Dame's full-court press. The Fighting Irish failed to rattle Princeton, which worked the ball around for good shots and hit with consistency.

Bill Omeltchenko and Tim Olah, the Tigers' guards, displayed sound ballhandling ability. They dribbled around the Irish kill time and consistently hit the open man, passing off with precision to set up the shots.

"But the other thing that beat us was turnovers," said Phelps. "I can't overemphasize this, both in our loss to Kentucky and tonight — they killed us."

Notre Dame gave away the ball 26 times and also sent Princeton foul shooters to the free throw line 34 times.

The Fighting Irish had won their first seven games, including victories over Maryland and UCLA, and had been ranked second nationally last week. But last Thursday night, Notre Dame traveled to Kentucky and was beaten by the Wildcats 102-78.

Notre Dame hit on only 39 per cent of its shots against Princeton's tough defense, the stingiest in the country. Don "Duck" Williams, the leading scorer for the Irish, connected on only three of 13 shots. The Tigers, in raising their record to 7-2, have allowed only 55 points per game.

Bob Slaughter topped Princeton with 19 points and Frank Sowinski hit six-for-six from both the floor and foul line and scored 18 points for the Tigers, who led 35-25 at halftime. Bill Paterno topped the Irish with 15.

In other games Monday night involving Top Ten teams, third-ranked Kentucky outlasted Georgia 64-59 in overtime; Alabama, No. 4, edged Auburn 74-71, and ninth-rated Nevada-Las Vegas turned back Colorado 113-91.

James Lee powered Kentucky past Georgia, hitting a layup and two free throws for a rare four-point play with 1:22 left in overtime. With the Wildcats holding a one-point lead, Lee scored a basket after a steal, then made both of his free throws after an intentional foul had been called.

Jack Givens topped Kentucky, 8-1, with 17 points and Rick Robey, who scored the Wildcats' last eight points in regulation, added 16. Walter Daniels was high for Georgia with 20.

Alabama boosted its record to 10-0 at the expense of Auburn with freshman Kent Lookey converting four free throws in the last 31 seconds as the Crimson Tide overcame a five-point deficit in the second half. Auburn's Stan Pietiewicz led all scorers with 18 points.

Eddie Owens and Reggie Theus provided the scoring impetus in keying Nevada-Las Vegas' conquest of Colorado. Owens hit for 24 points and Theus contributed 22 as the Rebels won their 11th game in 12 outings and posted their 49th straight home court victory.

Bob Wellman is the new manager of the Jackson, Miss., team in the Texas League.

Pirates Shine In Grid Games

Three East Carolina University football players have completed post-season play, while another will play in his game on Saturday.

Reggie Pinkney was the first of the four Pirates named to post-season games, playing in the North-South game in Pontiac, Mich., prior to Christmas.

Pinkney started in the defensive backfield for the winning South team, picking off an interception. He also returned a kickoff for 30 yards during the game.

Cary Godette and Jim Bolding played in the American Bowl in Tampa, Fla., this past weekend, both gaining starting roles. Godette was used both as a middle guard and a linebacker and was one of the leading tacklers on the team. He played most of the way but was injured during the final period. Bolding also played the entire game.

Godette's injury, to his left knee, was to be checked here today by East Carolina physicians. It was believed to be either a sprain or a ligament tear. Godette, in addition to being a starter in the game, was also the defensive captain.

Saturday, Ernest Madison will wind up the Pirates' post-season play, appearing in the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

Raiders Take Advance Look At Facilities Panthers Take National Crown

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leave it to Al Davis to leave nothing to chance.

The mysterious, sometimes sinister, and always secretive head man of the Oakland Raiders Monday sent his advance troops to the battleground of Super Bowl XI a day before the team's arrival to scout the training facilities.

The troops: Head coach John Madden and all his assistants. Their mission: Checking all the nooks and crannies of the University of California at Irvine.

That might not seem like such a big deal — but Minnesota Coach Bud Grant can surely understand the Raiders' apprehension and thoroughness.

Remember Super Bowl VIII in Houston? Grant does. His Vikings were totally unprepared for what they found when they arrived, namely a high school field assigned to them for practice. And it took a 20-minute bus ride every day to get the Vikings there from their hotel while the Miami Dolphins could simply stroll across the street to their facilities, the Houston Oilers' practice field.

"Sparrows in the showers," Grant muttered after getting his first look at the Vikings' workout scene. It became a cause celebre — and Grant became $1,500 poorer when National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle fined him for his editorial comments.

No one knows whether the Raiders are pleased with their UC-Irvine training camp or their Newport Beach hotel a 10-minute bus ride away — and if Madden is any sort of diplomat, we'll never know.

It's already known, though, that Grant doesn't like the idea of the Vikings being quartered in Costa Mesa, 10 minutes from their training camp, the Los Angeles Rams' in-season training site at Blair Field in Long Beach.

The problem, Grant points out, is that it's perhaps a two-hour bus ride north from Costa Mesa (and from Newport Beach, for that matter) to Pasadena and the Rose Bowl, the scene of Sunday's game. So Grant and the Vikes will be pulling up stakes in Costa Mesa on Friday and sequestering themselves in Pasadena for the final 48 hours or so.

And the Raiders also may be less than thrilled with their location. It is understood that Madden and his players will check into a motel near Pasadena a day or two before Sunday's game.

So much for logistics. One of the most meaningful statistics of this game is that one of the teams has to come out of it a winner, a major change for both of them.

The Raiders, perhaps more than any other team in the league, have been symbolic of life's losers. In nine of the last 10 years they have won division titles. In only one of those previous eight have they managed to make it through the playoffs and into the Super Bowl. And in that one, they were throttled 33-14 by the Green Bay Packers in Super Bowl II.

The Vikings, too, have made failure a habit of sorts. They've won division titles eight of the last nine seasons. In the previous seven, they managed three trips to the Super Bowl. And in all three they came out on the short end, losing 16-6 to Pittsburgh two years ago, 24-7 to Miami three years ago and 23-7 to Kansas City seven years ago.

RAIDERS ARRIVE FOR SUPER BOWL — Members of the Oakland Raiders deplane at Long Beach Airport Monday as the AFC champs arrive for the Super Bowl. In foreground is defensive tackle Otis Sistrunk. The Raiders will meet the NFC winner, Minnesota, in Pasadena's Rose Bowl next Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

Ron Carter Is Southern Star

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Ron Carter, Virginia Military Institute's 6-foot-5 junior forward, today was named Southern Conference basketball player of the week.

Carter was the standout as the Keydets won the championship of the prestigious All-College tournament in Oklahoma City last week by defeating Tulane, California and Oklahoma City.

The Pittsburgh, Pa., performer was the tournament's leading scorer with 68 points, an average of 22.7 per game. He was named the most valuable player in the eight-team tournament and was chosen on the all-tourney team.

Tournament officials said Carter "was the most exciting player to play there since Pete Maravich in 1968."

California Coach Dick Edwards said of Carter: "It's obvious that he didn't just play over his head for three days. He's a tremendous competitor. I was impressed with his unselfishness. You got the feeling he could score a lot more if he wanted to."

In addition to his scoring, Carter grabbed 16 rebounds, had six assists and stole the ball four times. On five occasions he brought the crowd to its feet with flashy dunk shots.

Carter is now the leading scorer for the Keydets with a 19.8 average. He is the third leading scorer in the Southern Conference.

The Steelers failed to bring a football title to Pittsburgh this season but the Pitt Panthers did.

Barely one week after the defending pro champion Steelers were eliminated from the National Football League playoffs, the unbeaten and untied University of Pittsburgh Panthers were named today as winners of college football's national championship.

Pitt, which wrapped up its first all-winning season in 58 years Saturday by routing Georgia 27-3 in the Sugar Bowl for a 12-0 record, was an overwhelming and near-perfect winner in The Associated Press' national championship poll.

The Panthers received 59 of 62 first-place votes and 1,234 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. It was their first national championship in 39 years and second since the AP poll originated in 1936.

Pitt, ninth in the preseason poll, moved up to third place by winning its opener handily against Notre Dame on the road 31-10. The Panthers then climbed into second place behind Michigan on the third weekend of the season and took over the top spot when the Wolverines were upset by Purdue 16-14 on Nov. 6.

Southern California, which won 11 games in a row — including a 14-6 triumph over Michigan in the Rose Bowl — after dropping its opener to Missouri 46-25, finished second in the final rankings. The Trojans received the other three first-place votes and 1,118 points in moving up from third in the final regular-season poll.

Michigan, which was No. 1 for the first eight weeks of the campaign, slipped from second to third with 847 points. Houston's Cinderella Cougars, unranked before the season, jumped from sixth to fourth with 804 points by upending previously unbeaten Maryland 30-21 in the Cotton Bowl.

Then came defending champion Oklahoma, up from eighth place to fifth with 638 points following a 41-7 Fiesta Bowl rout of Wyoming. The two-time champion Sooners, who got as high as third place early in the season, fell short in their bid for an unprecedented third consecutive national title.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Ohio State, 11th in the previous poll but a 27-10 winner over Colorado in the Orange Bowl; Texas A&M, up from 10th to seventh by walloping Florida 37-14 in the Sun Bowl; Maryland, down from fourth to eighth; Nebraska, the preseason leader, which jumped from 13th to ninth by downing Texas Tech 27-24 in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl; and Georgia, which was fifth in the previous ratings and had an outside shot at the national championship until losing to Pitt.

"That's great, great news," Pitt Coach Johnny Majors said in Honolulu when he was informed that the Panthers officially had been declared national champions. "I hope I get another one in the next 25 years."

Majors, who is leaving Pitt to become head coach at the University of Tennessee, pointed out that Tennessee has not won a national championship in 25 years.

"The bowl game made it overwhelming," Majors added. "I felt if we beat Georgia by a point we could have won it, but after we beat them by so much I felt very comfortable about our chances." The AP's Second Ten consisted of Alabama, Notre Dame, Texas Tech, Oklahoma State, UCLA, Colorado, Rutgers, Kentucky, Iowa State and Mississippi State.

In the final regular-season rankings, it was Ohio State, Colorado, Nebraska, Oklahoma State, Notre Dame, Alabama, Rutgers, Baylor and North Carolina, with Mississippi State and Penn State tied for 20th.

Kentucky made the rankings for the first time all season and knocked North Carolina out by blanking the Tar Heels 21-0 in the Peach Bowl. Iowa State, which finished 8-3 but did not go to a bowl game, appeared in the Top Twenty for the third time this season.

Baylor dropped out by losing its finale to Texas Tech while Penn State bowed to Notre Dame in the Gator Bowl.

Unbeaten San Francisco Moves To Top Of Basketball Ballots

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
AP Sports Writer

The undefeated University of San Francisco Dons, using the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu as a springboard, have displaced Michigan as the nation's top college basketball team in the weekly Associated Press Top Twenty poll.

The Dons, in boosting their record to 15-0 last week, collected 963 points, including 28 first-place votes, in the ballot announced today. Fifty-three sportswriters and broadcasters participated in the voting based on results of games through Sunday.

San Francisco, third a week ago, won three games en route to the championship of the Rainbow Classic holiday tournament. The Dons defeated St. John's, N.Y., 80-70 and Arizona State 114-96 in the opening rounds, then captured the championship with an 86-81 victory over Houston.

Michigan, 7-1, dropped to fifth place in the rankings after an 82-81 double overtime loss to Providence in the Friar Classic last week. The Wolverines had held the top spot all season. Michigan, however, won two games during the week, beating Rhode Island and South Carolina.

Cincinnati, 9-0, took over the runner-up position with 830 points, including six first-place votes. The Bearcats, fifth last week, posted victories during the week over South Carolina and Indiana.

Kentucky, sixth last week, moved up to third with 791 points and 13 first-place ballots. The Wildcats played only once during the week, downing Notre Dame 102-78, raising their record to 7-1. Kentucky also saw action Monday night, outlasting Georgia 64-59 in overtime.

Undefeated Alabama, 9-0, remained fourth, topping Western Michigan in its only game of the week. The Crimson Tide amassed 737 points with one first-place vote. Alabama played Monday night, edging Auburn 74-71.

Michigan accumulated 686 points with four votes for No. 1. North Carolina, 8-1, catapulted from ninth to sixth. The Tar Heels had a lone first-place vote in collecting 528 points. North Carolina beat Oral Roberts, Oregon and Weber State last week.

UCLA, 10-1, jumped from eighth to seventh with 515 points after victories over Southern Methodist, Utah State and Houston. Notre Dame, second last week, plummeted to eighth as a result of its loss to Kentucky. The Fighting Irish, 7-1 through Sunday, compiled 461 points. Notre Dame absorbed another setback Monday night, bowing to Princeton 76-62.

Nevada-Las Vegas and Wake Forest rounded out the Top Ten. Nevada-Las Vegas climbed from 11th to ninth with 219 points and Wake Forest fell from seventh to 10th with 212. Clemson, 10th, a week ago, fell out of the Top Ten after losing to Marquette.

Others in the Top Twenty include No. 11 Arizona, No. 12 Marquette, No. 13 Minnesota, No. 14 Louisville, No. 15 Maryland, No. 16 Clemson, No. 17 Providence, No. 18 Arkansas, No. 19 Syracuse and No. 20 Memphis State.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 5, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find it necessary to adopt a more up-to-date attitude for conditions to improve at your dwelling. Come to a better understanding with the person who means the most to you. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to have more accord at home and increase happiness there. A new venture could prove profitable at this time. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Obtain the data you require so that you can deal more intelligently with associates. Come to the aid of a needy person. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are thinking constructively now and can easily add to present income. Make the evening a quiet and happy one. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you study the methods of higher-ups and emulate them you can make considerable progress. Be more optimistic. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Consult a financial expert and gain the advice you need to get ahead in the business world. Show that you have wisdom. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to be with good friends as much as you can, whether for business or amusement reasons and get good results. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to gain the favor of a higher-up who can help you reach a goal that mean much to you. Show your finest capabilities. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You now have new avenues through which to express yourself better but it requires familiarizing yourself with true facts. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure that you carry through with promises you have made. Be wide awake to any possible danger around you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss any agreements you have with others and make sure there is nothing illegal. Don't lose your temper with anyone. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There is much work ahead of you which should be taken care of without further delay. Don't neglect health treatments. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in creative work through which you can best express yourself. Show more devotion for the one you love. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand the emotional side of life but should be taught to be more practical if the great success her is to manifest itself. The field of merchandizing is good here. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

Argument On TV Violence Heating Up

EDITOR'S NOTE — Psychologists used to say, don't hit the kid, you'll warp his personality. Now there is concern that if the kid sees people hitting each other, it'll warp his personality. Whatever, the argument over violence in television is getting violent. By MIKE GOODKIND Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a real simple way to eliminate television violence from the home. People can turn their sets off — if their kids let them. Now Dr. Thomas Elmendorf, past president of the California Medical Association, wants to help adults exercise their parental control by letting them know in advance if a particular program episode is going to contain any violence. He thinks parents have a right to know if "Starsky and Hutch," for example, are going to knock the teeth out of their prisoner. Dr. George Gerbner, Dean of the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania, doubts that most parents have the authority to control their kids' viewings. "In the average home, children control the dial. What we need is to change programming," says Gerbner. But Elmendorf wants at least to give parents a fighting chance. He believes that violent television "is an element in antisocial behavior." Gordon Van Sauter, CBS' program practices vice president, is less sure. "There is no agreement on the effect of violence," he says. Elmendorf and Sauter agree, however, that it's up to the parents to decide what kids should watch and that public opinion and pressure is a key to what you see on the tube. And Elmendorf is quietly pressing for greater public awareness — not censorship or even a radical change in program format. "We want the networks to have maximum of freedom and a minimum of government interference," says Elmendorf. "I would really like to see the networks release something that would go into the TV listings which would assist parents in selecting appropriate viewing for their children," says Elmendorf, who practices emergency medicine at Davis, Calif. At the American Medical Association's annual convention last month in Philadelphia, Elmendorf sponsored a resolution asking the networks to rate each program episode by a formula they would set up themselves. The AMA turned down the proposal because "the intent of the resolution was already being carried out." In efforts to define TV violence, the AMA has forked over $25,000 to a Washington-based nonprofit outfit called the National Citizens Committee for Better Broadcasting to compile ratings of individual shows. The money, says an AMA spokesman, was directed as a first step to "encourage the TV industry to reduce the amount of violence." The NCCB received widespread media coverage when it ranked each show last summer on its relative content of violence. Over a six week period, the service recorded each instance of violence and how long it appeared on the screen. Then all 63 shows seen on each network were ranked from least to most shows for their own use. "I think it's naive to assume that someone watching Kojak in the fifth year of its existence does not know what Kojak is," says Sauter. "I hope nothing ever comes of the idea" of publishing violence ratings of individual shows, says Kersey. He says the number of violent acts is meaningless unless placed in a creative context which he believes the average viewer couldn't understand. Sauter insists that with millions of viewers "there is no feasible way you can develop a rating system that can be used by that incredible range of people. "We apply a set of standards to all of our programming which we think represents the expectations, the tastes and the standards of the mass television audience." Sauter notes that despite the objections of media researchers, and even powerful national groups like the AMA, "we get very few letters from viewers complaining about violent programming." "If there is popular groundswell, things will change," he notes. "I think we do children a disservice by not luring them to books" and other forms of educational entertainment, says Sauter. "My children (now grown) could watch anything they want on television but they could only watch it for a limited number of hours each week."

Simple finesses are there for all the world to see. However, there are often combinations within a suit that are difficult to spot. Declarer failed to do so on this hand, and paid the price. North judged well when he jumped to four spades despite the fact that he held only 5 points and an absolutely balanced hand. South had shown great strength and distribution by reopening the bidding in a new suit at the three-level. Since North would have been forced to give preference to three spades on a bust, his two key cards in his partner's suits were valuable indeed, and his decision to raise to game was sound. Had his king and queen been in the red suits and, therefore, not pulling their full weight, three spades would have been correct. West led three rounds of hearts, declarer ruffing the third heart with his low trump. He crossed to dummy with the king of clubs and successfully ran the queen of spades. A spade to the nine won, but when West showed out declarer had to concede a trump trick. Since he still had a diamond to lose, he went down one trick. Declarer mishandled the trump suit. Observe the difference if he ruffs the third heart with the nine of trumps. He can spare this card, for if spades are 3-2 and the finesse wins, he doesn't need the nine of spades to pick up the trumps. However, ruffing with the nine gives declarer one slight additional chance. Should trumps be 4-1, declarer can still bring in the suit if West's singleton is the eight. When the queen of spades is run, declarer must underplay the ten. Now, when West follows with the eight declarer can repeat the finesse by leading the seven and playing the six from his hand. This leaves declarer in dummy for a third trump finesse, which is just enough to bring in the suit and his contract. Note that this line cannot possibly cost. If the trumps are 4-1 and West does not have the eight, declarer must always lose a trump trick whatever he does. Have you been running into double trouble? Abzug Talking Mayoralty Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Bella Abzug, whose term ends today with the swearing-in of the new Congress, says she may throw her famous hat into the ring in the 1977 New York City mayoral race. The Manhattan Democrat, who lost the Senate nomination to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, said she was being swayed by voter surveys showing her as the leading candidate. The latest was a New York Daily News opinion poll published Monday. Based on telephone interviews with 273 voting-age residents taken Dec. 13-15, the survey shows Mrs. Abzug receiving 18 per cent — or just under 50 votes — to Mayor Abraham D. Beame's 16 per cent.

Prince Andrew 'Like Pop Star'

TORONTO (AP) — Meeting Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, was "sort of like meeting a famous pop star," says Kirsten Jones, 16, who was in the crowd that greeted his plane here. Andrew, also 16, arrived here Monday night to spend six months at the private Lakefield College School near Peterborough, Ont. "I was so nervous," said Miss Jones. "He asked me if the weather got colder and if he would need more clothes. It was really exciting." London sources said the son of Queen Elizabeth II would take his turn at school chores and participate in camping exercises at the school, which stresses self-reliance. And, he adds, don't hit him in the nose or mess around with his tail.

Wrestling Bear Takes On All Comers For Pop

EDEN, N.C. (AP) — Samson the wrestler has never lost a match, and chances are he will retire undefeated. He'd better. "Or I'll be having bear steaks for supper," says trainer Rip Tyler. But the thing that really motivates the 750-pound black wrestling bear is the half bottle of soda he gets after each victory. "Part of the grizzly family" is all Tyler will say about him. His bouts generally go something like a recent appearance in Eden, where he took on a skinny blond youth named Mike Shane and a larger fellow with a scarlet mask who called himself "Avenger No. 1." Both are professional wrestlers, the only type of opponent Samson is allowed to meet. He took them both on at once. The pair tried to attack him in mid-ring from both sides. Arms flail, paws bat, bodies go flying and Samson has the middle to himself again, his challengers lying in opposite corners. Shane tried to pin the bear from above, but was shaken off quickly. After a few exhausting minutes, Samson laid down on one of them and the fight was over. Then came the prize. Tyler removed Samson's muzzle and handed him the soda bottle, which the bear raised with his forepaws to his lips. Suddenly it's all worth the trouble. "I'm a professional wrestler myself," Tyler says. "About 17 years ago I got double crossed. Promoter booked me into a fight with what he said was one of the biggest stars in the country. Turned out to be a bear. When I got whipped by that bear I decided to go get myself one." Samson is his third. He says the bear took 13 months to train and had to have his claws and front teeth removed and even then he can be dangerous. "I've had my legs broke, arms broke and one ear near tore off by him," Tyler says. "Never underestimate an animal."

Princess Will Christen Ship

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco will christen the new cruise ship, Cunard Princess, in the spring of 1977, while the vessel is berthed here. Since 1840 the British Cunard Line has had its 179 passenger ships named by distinguished women from the United Kingdom, including the Royal Family. This tradition was broken in August 1976 in honor of the U.S. Bicentennial, when Mrs. Janet Armstrong, wife of astronaut Neil Armstrong, named the Cunard Countess, becoming the first American woman to christen one of the line's ships.

ERA Chances Seen Better In Assembly

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Both friends and foes of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) feel that chances of the 1977 General Assembly ratifying the amendment are better than they were two years ago when the House defeated it on a close vote. Many agree that another close vote is in prospect and who will win is anybody's guess.

Since their surprise defeat in the House two years ago, ERA supporters have waged another intensive campaign. They have button-holed every legislative candidate and exacted promises from many to support ERA this session—just as they did before last session.

When asked if he felt ERA would be ratified this session, veteran Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, observed: "If some of the members don't crawl on their campaign promises it's going to pass."

Scott's comment served as a reminder of last session when a couple of members did waltz on their promises to support ERA.

One of these was Rep. Myrtle Wiseman, D-Avery. She had promised backers of ERA she would vote for ratification and she did so when the House approved it on a close vote. But she changed her mind overnight when she received a storm of protest from her mountain district.

Another who changed his mind between votes in the House was Rep. Ronald Earl Mason, D-Carteret. Mason said later he had changed his vote in order to keep then-Speaker Jimmy Green from being put in the politically embarrassing position of having to break a tie one way or another.

One of those who thinks the legislature will ratify ERA this year is Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly.

"It will be a close vote, but I think it will pass," said Garrison. I think the bill will be introduced in the House first, pass the House and then come to the Senate.

"It's going to be close," said Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, the House majority leader in 1975-76. "I would say it is probably weighed a little toward passage in the House. I don't know about the Senate."

Sen. J. J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie, said he voted against ERA in the past but that recent revelations about women facing discrimination in buying insurance caused him to have second thoughts.

"I'm going to take another look at it, a real close look," Harrington said.

"I think it might have a better chance of passing the House this time and not as good a chance of passing the Senate," said Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt.

"I think it has a better chance of passing than it did before," said Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham. "I think it will be very close, but I believe it has got a good chance of passing."

Rep. Ed Davenport, D-Nash, observed that there are more women in the legislature this year but expressed the opinion "it will be close."

"I think it's very doubtful that it will pass both houses," said Rep. Roberts Jernigan, D-Hertford. "There's a mighty strong sentiment against it, you know."

"I think it will probably pass the House. I don't know about the Senate," said Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell.

Fate of the proposal in the Senate is cloudy because Lt. Gov-elect Jimmy Green vigorously opposed it during his campaign, saying he didn't believe it was needed and feared it would take away certain privileges he thought women should retain.

Despite his personal opposition, Green has promised that the measure would be given fair treatment in the Senate, that he would not stack a committee against it and that both sides would have a full chance to be heard.

Because the measure has so many contradictory claims from both sides, Green said he will ask the North Carolina State Bar to help clear it up.

"I know of no other issue during my 16 years of legislative experience, except maybe the death penalty, in which the proponents and the opponents were any more strongly willed in their opinions. There was no lukewarmness there at all," he said.

A study by the Bar would give the legislature some factual and unbiased information on which to judge the ERA, Green said, promising to request the study before the session begins.

'Miss Lillian' Is Out Of Hospital

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter's 78-year-old mother has been released from the Americus-Sumter County Hospital after treatment for muscle spasms in her legs.

"Miss Lillian" Carter smiled and waved Monday to reporters and friends waiting for her in the hospital lobby.

She said she was looking forward to getting her wardrobe ready for the trip to Washington for her son's inauguration Jan. 20.

Miss Lillian was pushed in a wheel chair to a waiting car and driven home by her daughter, Gloria, following the 12-day hospital stay.

"They've been so good to me," she said of the hospital personnel. "If you get sick, come here, hear?"

'Durham Four' Again Indicted

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Four Durham businessmen have been indicted again, this time by a newly-sworn federal grand jury, on charges of misapplication of savings and loan funds and making false statements to federal officers.

The latest indictments were handed up Monday. The four businessmen face trial Jan. 17 on their earlier indictments on similar charges.

Charged Monday with making false statements were William W. Edwards, former president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Durham, and William R. Winders, an attorney acting as a trustee of the association. Winders is charged with giving a false statement to a federal grand jury on Sept. 7 in the government's initial case against Edwards.

Another indictment returned by the new grand jury charges Bobby R. Roberts, a construction contractor, with furnishing false financial statements in an effort to get loans amounting to nearly $3 million for Roberts Construction Co.

One of the loan applications, for $2,115,000, was made to Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greensboro. This is the first time that a Greensboro lending institution had been involved in the charges involving Roberts' transactions.

In another indictment, Edwards and J.B. Harris, former secretary-treasurer and a director of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Durham, were charged with misapplying the association's funds.

In this charge, the grand jury accused Harris and Edwards misapplying funds by making a loan of $375,000 to MIC, Inc. The indictment further charges them with concealing from the association that the loan would really be used by Roberts.

Edwards is accused of telling a federal bank board administrative proceeding on Nov. 7, 1974, that he had discussed details of a loan to Roberts with another bank official when he had not.

Initially 11 persons were indicted on similar charges last summer. Four have pleaded guilty and two others were convicted in October. They are to begin sentences ranging from 18 months to five years in February.

Kissinger Job Rumors Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — Spokesmen for both sides denied it, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reportedly has been talking with William S. Paley as chairman of CBS.

A State Department briefing officer in Washington said he had no knowledge of any such talks, which were reported Monday in the New York Post.

A CBS spokesman told the newspaper no such talks had taken place.

"The Post is told Henry hasn't yet made up his mind but is tempted by the money, the power and the glamorous fringe benefits that would go with the job," the newspaper said in its newly inaugurated "People" page.

Paley, 75, reportedly intends to retire this spring. Kissinger is expected to leave office before President-elect Carter takes office Jan. 20.

GERMAN BAROQUE
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles County Museum of Art has recently acquired a German baroque statue by Ignaz Gunther (1725-1775). The carving is of St. Scholastica, twin sister of St. Benedict and co-founder of the Benedictine religious order.

County School Transport Supervisor Plans Retire

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

When Lelon Forlines, began his work with the Pitt County Schools in the 1930's, transportation in the United States was in its early developmental stages. When he retired, December 31, 1976, after serving 40 years with the schools, the world of transportation had become a master network of communication.

During his career with the Pitt County Schools he worked as a carpenter, maintenance man, mechanic, Mechanic Foreman, Maintenance Foreman and finally Transportation Supervisor.

In recalling events of his career, Forlines said that the transportation systems of schools had changed much.

"In 1941 I was placed in charge of the Maintenance Department, and in 1945 I was placed in charge of both the Maintenance and Transportation Departments of Pitt County Schools. During the war we were unable to get replacements for the buses because of the steel shortage. We had some buses with aluminum sides. Our transportation system has developed from 93 buses in 1945, to 187 buses in 1976, plus we also handle the maintenance of 160 automobiles operated by Pitt County offices," Forlines said.

According to Forlines, the Pitt County Transportation system is presently the largest in Eastern North Carolina.

In 1951 the N.C. Pupil Transportation Association reclassified transportation workers' positions, and Forlines became Transportation Supervisor.

"My work didn't change, just my title. My primary concern is to keep all of the buses in good and safe condition and to assist the principals in arranging routes of transportation," he said.

The position of Transportation Supervisor also included the tasks of checking vouchers, checking routes, some book-keeping, supervising maintenance of the vehicles, and handling reports.

According to Forlines the present transportation system used by the North Carolina schools is outdated.

"We are still operating under the School Machinery Act which was passed in the 1930's. Reform of this legislation needs to be considered," he said.

When the School Machinery Act was passed, bus routes were determined by school attendance in districts. Because of the bus routes being confined to smaller districts the routes were shorter and the speed limit of the buses was regulated to 35 m.p.h. Today, the routes are much longer, but the buses still are regulated to travel no faster than 35 m.p.h. which makes it necessary for drivers to leave home before 7 a.m. in many cases.

Also because of the consolidation of the schools according to grade levels, routes and arrangements must be made for high school drivers who drive elementary or middle school buses.

In addition to his work with the areas of maintenance and transportation, Forlines also helped draw plans and construct many of the older school buildings in Pitt County including, the Home Economics and Agricultural classrooms at Chicod School, classrooms at Bell Arthur School, the old Farmville High School athletic field, and plans for Pitt Technical Institute.

Following his retirement, Forlines plans to travel across the United States to visit friends and a son in Phoenix, Ariz. Forlines is married and has three children.

N.C. Nat'l Guard Has A New Integrated Look

RALEIGH (AP) — There is a new look to the North Carolina National Guard, a look that will be apparent during the inaugural parade Saturday. After years of being for whites only, the guard is now integrated.

As evidence of the integration, the honor unit chosen to represent the guard has a membership that is half black. The unit is from Wilson County because that is the home of Gov.-elect Jim Hunt, the center of attraction that day.

Integration of the guard may be a surprise to some North Carolinians because it remained an organization for whites until 1973.

Until 1963, state law decreed that blacks were not allowed in the guard except in special units commanded by whites. But such units were not formed.

After repeal of segregation laws, the guard remained virtually all white.

Then in 1973, the guard hired for former Green Beret, Carlton Epps, to run its program to attract black members. Epps, of Philadelphia, was the second black commissioned officer in the guard and only about 3 per cent of the members were black.

Now, according to guard figures, of the 11,490 guardsmen, some 2,352 are nonwhite—about 20 per cent which is just below the percentage of blacks in the state's population.

Most of the increase in blacks has been among enlisted men. There are 30 black officers among the 995 in the guard. Most of the black guardsmen are in units around the large cities and other areas where there are large black populations, the guard's figures show.

Col. D.W. Donovan, head of the guard's personnel office, said some unit commanders have expressed concern that the effort to recruit blacks has been so successful that the opposite problem could result.

The guard's policy is to have the units reflect the composition of the community's workforce, Donovan said, adding that commanders have been told that if there are too many black recruits, just try harder to recruit whites. No qualified volunteer should be rejected on the basis of race, he said.

Singles Club Sets Membership Meet

A membership meeting of the Greenville Club will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. at Peppi's Pizza Den.

Any single person 21 or over is invited. Changes in bylaws will be discussed, as follows: membership cards must be presented at all scheduled activities; former members may not attend any activity unless membership is renewed; a prospective member will be admitted to three events before having to join; a register will be signed at all activities; and marriage is a dismissal—no married person can attend any Singles Club activity.

Parents Without Partners are invited at guest rates to a dance Friday at 9 p. m. at the Western Room of the Moose Lodge. Greenville Singles Club members who present 1976-77 cards will be admitted free.

There will be a Board meeting Wednesday, Jan. 12. Kinston Singles Club is holding a dance at the Elks Club, the next weekend. Greenville members will form car pools to attend.

Jan. 17 or 18, members are invited to attend a play written and directed by a Singles Club member. The play, titled, "In the Beginning and Then What?" will be presented at McGinnis Auditorium at East Carolina University at 8:15 each evening.

A meeting to get out newsletters will be held Jan. Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 8 p. m.

Friday, Jan. 21, the Singles Club will bowl at Hillcrest Lanes at 9 p. m.

Friday, Jan. 28, the Inter-Club dance will be held at the Goldsboro Country Club. Car pools will be formed. More information will be in the February newsletter.

For more information on any of these activities, one may call Bill Lincoln at 746-3314; Hugh Stokes at 756-0272 or Jim Howard at 756-4350.
