First Act By Hunt: Setting Ethics Code

RALEIGH (AP) — In his first official act as governor, Jim Hunt this morning signed an executive order imposing a code of ethics that requires policymakers to file financial disclosure statements with a new state board.

The order fulfills a campaign promise to impose such a code at the beginning of his four-year administration. It covers state employees and department heads under the governor, but does not regulate council of state officers.

Hunt has asked members of the Council of State to comply voluntarily with the code, which is aimed at avoiding conflicts of interest and prohibiting state officials from profiting from their official actions.

About 350 people were on hand as Hunt signed the order in the House chamber of the historic capitol, the building where his office is located.

Following Hunt signing the order, seven of his cabinet officers received their oaths of office, administered by Secretary of State Thad Eure.

Sworn in this morning were Joseph Grimsley, secretary of administration; Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of human resources; Howard Lee, secretary of Natural and Economic Resources; Sarah Hodgkins, secretary of cultural resources; Tom Bradshaw, secretary of transportation; Lauch Faircloth, secretary of commerce; and Mark Lynch, secretary of revenue.

"I am completely confident that I have found the very best people possible," Hunt said before introducing his cabinet.

Not on hand for today's ceremony was Correction Secretary Amos Reed, who was in Florida preparing to move his family.

Before signing the ethics code, Hunt noted that North Carolina has had little governmental scandal.

"But the absence of scandal and dishonesty isn't always enough. The public deserves a higher standard and that is the absence of the appearance of dishonesty," he said.

"What we're really talking about is integrity in government," he said. "That means the people of this state must have reason to believe that the fundamental processes of their government are honest, that the officials who serve them are not operating on the basis of their own private gain."

While lieutenant governor during the 1975 legislative session, Hunt was instrumental in pushing through an ethics code covering the legislative branch.

However, that legislature rejected a proposed law that would have imposed an ethics code on the legislative branch.

Under the code, Hunt ordered into effect today, a five-member Board of Ethics is responsible for:

—Reviewing statements of economic interests that all policy-making officials must file to avoid conflicts of interest.

—Setting out rules for dealing with charges of conflict of interest involving top governmental people.

—Evaluating requests by officials that portions of their financial reports remain confidential.

The order will cover about 200 persons, including the governor's staff, heads of departments and their top aides. It prohibits them from engaging in activities that conflict with their official duties, and from soliciting benefits for themselves or anyone else through their official capacity.

In a brief meeting with newsmen, Hunt said he will dismiss anyone who refuses to comply with the standards established in the order.

"The purpose of an ethics code is not to punish people. It's hard enough to get good people to come into state government," he said, adding that the code is aimed only at identifying and removing conflicts of interest.

Hunt set no deadline for the officials to file their financial statements, saying it will take some time because some appointees have extensive holdings.

Hunt, a 39-year-old Wilson attorney, revealed his own financial interests during the campaign. In a statement filed under the legislative ethics code last January, Hunt listed his net worth at about $66,000, most of which involved his Wilson County farm.

Hunt said he has not decided whether he will ask the legislature to make his order into a law. The state personnel act limits the scope of an executive order to non-policy making employees.

Much of what the ethics board does will not be made public, Hunt said, because many charges it investigates could be unsubstantiated attacks on an office holder. But when a conflict of interest is found, he said, that will be made public.

Ford Ponders His Final Actions Of Presidency

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is polishing his State of the Union address and his budget message while pondering several important decisions in the final 10 days of his presidency.

He is weighing whether to grant blanket amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters and evaders, whether to remove gasoline price controls and whether to approve significant salary increases for members of Congress and top federal officials.

He also is urging the election of James Baker, a Texas lawyer who ran his campaign last year, to lead the Republican National Committee.

The President had only one official item on his schedule today — a ceremony to present the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, to 22 Americans.

The recipients include Nobel and Pulitzer prize winners and personalities in politics, science, literature, baseball, labor and the arts. Lady Bird Johnson, Joe DiMaggio and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller are among those on the list.

The President will deliver his State of the Union message Wednesday night before Congress. His budget message is due next Monday and his economic message a day or two later. Congress and President-elect Carter are expected to make major changes in the Ford budget.

Ford ordered a review last month of the question of blanket amnesty for Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters after he was asked to grant such relief by Jane Hart, widow of the late Sen. Phillip Hart, D-Mich.

Ford is not likely to change his opposition to such amnesty though aides said he might consider relief to a few limited categories of offenders. One possibility is restoration of veterans rights to former servicemen who were wounded in Vietnam and who later deserted or committed some other offense that cost them their rights.

Carter has promised he will issue a blanket pardon for Vietnam-era draft resisters and would consider such action for deserters on a case-by-case basis.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said last week it is likely the President will act to remove price controls on gasoline. Congress would have 15 days to override the plan, which has drawn considerable criticism from both congressional Democrats and Republicans.

They claim the action would cause the price at the gas pump to rise five to eight cents a gallon, but Zarb said there is a built-in safeguard under which controls would be reimposed if the price of a gallon rose two cents.

Ford for several weeks has been studying a recommendation from a presidential pay panel for large salary increases for members of Congress and 2,500 high government officials. He said recently he may not act, leaving the decision up to Carter.

Under the proposal, for example, congressional salaries would go up from $44,600 to $57,500 and those of the speaker of House, the vice president and the chief justice would rise from $65,000 to $80,000.

On Friday night the President will host a reception for members of the Republican National Committee, who earlier that day will pick a successor to Mary Louise Smith, who is resigning as chairman.

Supreme Court Refuses Act On South Boston School 'Receivership'

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left untouched a federal judge's decision to take charge of desegregation efforts in strife-torn South Boston High School.

The justices refused to review action taken by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., which previously had been upheld as constitutional by the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

On Dec. 9, 1975, Garrity ruled that black students at South Boston High were not receiving peaceful, desegregated education as provided for in an integration plan for all Boston schools.

He removed the school from the control of the city's school committee, which kept control of Boston's 157 other public schools, and placed South Boston High under the receivership of the court.

The court overzealously designed its own high school and equipped it with wall-to-wall educational policy tightly insulated from the democratic process," the school committee's appeal said.

The Massachusetts Board of Education opposed Supreme Court review, stating that the court's receivership was limited to desegregation policies and not the day-by-day routine of the high school's administration.

"There have been no orders from the district court regarding programs, courses, curriculum, textbooks, teaching style or any other matters that may be characterized as involving educational policy or philosophy," the state school board said.

Boston schools were ordered desegregated by a federal court June 21, 1974, and a limited plan to integrate the school system was issued. A more comprehensive desegregation plan was implemented during the 1975-76 school year.

In November 1975, a group of black students at South Boston High, through their parents, charged that the high school had interfered with their right to obtain an education. Their complaint cited stonings of school buses carrying black students, racial fighting inside the school and constant threats of violence dating back to September 1974. The widespread violence ended after Garrity's order.

Garrity ruled that the black students' complaint was justified, and took his action to offer them some relief. He ordered that principal William J. Reid and the school's football coach be transferred after deciding that changes to be made at the school could not be accomplished while they remained.

NO REFUND

I bought a curling iron on sale at Clow Drugs here. The girl at the cash register was out of tape for receipts. I asked her if I could return it if it would not work for my hair, and she said, yes, not to worry about having no receipt. I took it back since Christmas, and they would not refund my money, saying it was because I had bought it on sale. I work at another Greenville business place, and I'm shocked at such a policy. G. B.

Hotline talked to Michael Wright, who identified himself as the assistant manager of the store. He said your money was not refunded because the curling iron was sold as part of a close out sale, which was advertised, all sales final.

Normally, he said sales items would warrant refunds-IF the person shows a receipt. This policy, he said, is to protect the store against merchandise bought at another store, refunding the full price when an item was bought at a sale price, and against shoplifters who might want to "sell back" merchandise.

If a person honestly does not have the receipt and the item obviously came from his store, he said he might consider letting the person obtain merchandise of equal value.

25 OFFERS

Cynthia Slifer, a public health student nurse, appealed through Hotline Tuesday for a crib for a four-month-old baby of a family with whom she is working. She reports she received 25 offers of cribs.

She says she also has been given a chest of drawers for the family, plus mattresses and baby clothes. She referred all persons whose offers she could not accept to either other student nurses for families with whom they are working or the Salvation Army. "I think it's just terrific the way people respond when they know of a need," she said.

Hearing Is Set In Killing Of 2 Policemen

THOMASVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A probable cause hearing has been tentatively set for Jan. 20 for two men charged in the shooting deaths of two Thomasville police late Saturday.

The two officers were shot dead in a Thomasville home, where they had been called to investigate a disturbance.

They were Dennis Spinnett, 27, and Robert Crawford, 24.

"An investigation is still continuing and witnesses are being questioned to try to determine what happened," said Police Chief Paul M. Shore, adding that the State Bureau of Investigation was helping with the probe.

William Junior Lindsay, 32, and Joe Clevon Medley, 47, both of Thomasville, were arrested and charged with two counts of murder each.

Shore said Medley had also been charged with assault with a deadly weapon on Willie James Meaders, who was shot in the foot at the same house. They were being held without bond in the Davidson County Jail in nearby Lexington.

The two dead officers were found by a third policeman called as a backup.

"A woman told him to go to the house next door where the shooting happened," Shore said. He found the two dead officers inside. Two men had fled out the back door.

Robert Glenn Crawford, the 24-year-old Thomasville policeman killed in the line of duty Saturday night was a Pitt County native.

His maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bert Allen of Farmville, said he lived in Farmville and in the King's Crossroads area when he was a child, and that he attended Falkland School before his family moved to Thomasville.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Allen, he has another Pitt County grandparent, Mrs. Penny Crawford of Greenville.

A Final Tanker Search

BOSTON (AP) — Five search planes and a Coast Guard cutter, trying to beat an approaching storm, planned a 12,000-square-mile sweep of the north-west Atlantic, seeking some sign of crewmen from the missing tanker Grand Zenith.

The Grand Zenith has been missing since last Dec. 30 and is presumed to have sunk. Searchers believe some of the 38 Taiwanese crew members could have survived in life boats or rafts if they had watertight canopies.

An 11,500-square-mile area covered Sunday centered on the spot 330 miles east southeast of Cape Cod where two life jackets and other debris from the Grand Zenith were found Friday.

"We found nothing," said the Coast Guard spokesman Sunday, "but conditions afforded them an opportunity to get a good look at the area, and raised the opportunity for detection."

Sinatra Family Begins Funeral Preparations

SINATRA PLANE CRASH SITE — Searchers unload equipment from a helicopter on a ridge a short distance uphill from where a small jet carrying the mother of singer Frank Sinatra crashed after taking off from the Palm Springs airport 25 miles away. The jet crashed Thursday night. (AP Wirephoto)

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A mourning Frank Sinatra stayed secluded at his estate here as family members arranged the funeral of his 82-year-old mother, killed in the crash of a private jet plane on Southern California's highest mountain.

Recovery teams were to resume at daybreak their climb up the steep slopes of snow-covered Mt. San Geronio to retrieve the remains of Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra and three other victims.

The wreckage of the jet, its wings and tail sheared off by the impact of the crash, was spotted Sunday. Recovery attempts were hampered by freezing temperatures, darkness and forbidding cliffs. A search team said it appeared the four died on impact.

Sinatra has refused to talk with reporters since the plane was reported missing Thursday night as he opened at Caesars Palace Hotel. He played two shows after learning of the disappearance, but canceled the remainder of his week-long engagement.

A family spokesman said simultaneous rosary services will be held for Mrs. Sinatra Tuesday evening at the St. Louis Catholic Church in Palm Springs and at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills, where comedian Danny Thomas will give a eulogy.

A funeral service is scheduled for noon Wednesday at the St. Louis Church, with burial to follow at Palm Springs Cemetery.

Mrs. Sinatra left here on a chartered flight to Las Vegas along with an old friend, Mrs. Anthony Carboni, and two crew members, Donald Weier, 36, and Jerold Foley, 43, both of Las Vegas. She planned to watch her son's opening show.

But less than 10 minutes into the half-hour flight, the plane apparently strayed off course and slammed into the 11,502-foot mountain. The jet hit less than 200 feet from the top of a ridge.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said the normal flight pattern was 45 miles from the peak, but the jet for some reason never made a crucial turn away.

"The bodies were pretty well dismembered," said San Bernardino County Sheriff Frank Bland. "There were no signs of life ..."

Parts of bodies were found in and around the debris, he said, and pieces of clothing were strewn in trees around the crash site.

Hopes had dimmed as searchers spent nearly three days scanning the snows of Mt. San Geronio for signs of the tiny white jet. When the grim discovery was made, Bland said a Sinatra family spokesman told him, "They expected it."

Mrs. Sinatra was born in Genoa, Italy, a stonegrinder's daughter. She came to America as a young girl, settling in Hoboken, N.J. She married Anthony Martin Sinatra and was 20 when Francis Albert was born.

In 1953, the elder Sinatras moved to a luxurious home in Fort Lee, N.J., an anniversary gift from their son. Anthony Sinatra died in 1969. Mrs. Sinatra moved to Palm Springs in 1970 to be near her son.

Divorce Insurance Logic Being Argued

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Divorce insurance? It may sound incongruous, but there's a movement afoot saying divorce insurance is as logical today as protecting yourself with auto, life, fire and theft insurance.

The insurance industry is taking a dim view. Most companies fear couples in financial trouble would divorce simply to collect the benefits. And with the rising divorce rate (it's nearly doubled in the past decade), premiums are bound to skyrocket, too.

"It would be initiated at the time of marriage and used in a divorce to help provide a breathing period for both spouses to work out the future," said lawyer Diana DuBruff, who coined the term divorce insurance. "Periodic payments in the first few years after divorce would provide minimal child support."

Divorce insurance, she argues, "could keep children off welfare, save unemployable divorcees from hasty remarriages ... and protect guilty-ridden fathers from avoiding their children because of delinquent payments."

Richard Mink of the Life Insurance Institute, a New York-based association of 450 companies writing 95 per cent of the industry's policies, said he wasn't certain divorce could be insured.

He defined an insurable event as one of sufficiently low frequency as to allow the risk to be spread over many people. The event normally must be beyond one's control.

Robert Mnookin, a professor of family law at the University of California, sees other problems. "Those who take out such insurance would be the highest risk types in terms of getting a divorce," he said. "If people think this program should be mandatory, it is a misnomer to call it insurance. Rather it is a taxing system — taxing all married people on behalf of those who break up."

Ralph Warner, who has helped author such books as "How to Do Your Own Divorce" and "The People's Guide to the California Marriage Law," rejects the concept of divorce insurance.

"It won't work for the obvious reason that everybody would get a divorce just to collect," he said.

Lucille Athearn, a prominent San Francisco divorce attorney, favors an entirely different approach to divorce.

"I have often thought a person considering divorce should be treated like the defendant in a traffic court with several moving violations," she said. "The courts have provided an educational system that compels such a driver to attend classes a certain number of times."

"Each parent should be required to spend one afternoon per week in Juvenile Court to see first hand the effects, day after day, of the broken home. This is education in life. This would really be insurance."

Thief Collected Six Rare Birds

SEATTLE (AP) — The thief who stole six rare birds valued at more than $6,000 from a local pet store probably has had an earful, the store's manager says.

"Somebody that knew birds did this," said Jeannie Dineen. "They selected the most valuable birds in the store."

Stolen Saturday were a scarlet macaw valued at $2,000, a cockatoo worth $1,500, a blue crown parrot that sells for $1,000, a Mealy Amazon parrot valued at $500 and a yellow head parrot valued at $300.

There were signs the thief had a difficult task; feathers were all over the store.

The manager said the birds can also talk, especially the Mealy Amazon, Bernie. "It wouldn't do any good to ask him to be quiet," she said.

A number of parrots were left behind, but they weren't talking — at least not about the robbery.

Push Probe Of Israel Scandal

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Opposition forces in parliament and the Israeli press demanded today that an investigation of corruption charges that drove Housing Minister Avraham Ofer to suicide be pursued despite a cabinet ruling that the case against him was closed.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and his cabinet decided at their weekly meeting Sunday that Ofer must be presumed legally innocent of the allegations against him because he can no longer be proven guilty in court.

The cabinet ordered an end to the investigation of Ofer's case. But it agreed to a recommendation by Attorney General Aharon Barak that the police should continue to look into related corruption charges against other members of the ruling Labor party.

The right-wing newspaper Yediot Aharonot said it feared the attorney general's report "does not augur an end to this affair."

Ofer declared his innocence of the allegations in a suicide note before shooting himself last Monday. But Ofer's final plea and the decision to stop the investigation of him were not expected to dispel questions in the minds of the public about the charges.

Corruption in the Labor party, which has dominated Israeli politics since the Jewish nation came into being, is expected to be a major issue in the national election May 17. Four other former government officials or former top executives of government companies have been accused of corruption since Rabin took office in 1974, although Rabin's administration has won some credit for exposing the cases.

Davy's Vacation Money Comes Off The Ceiling

By GARY R. PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
DAYTON, Nev. (AP) — Wavy Davy keeps his vacation money pinned to the ceiling of his business.

"We are just going to wait until we get a bunch more up there, then when it's time for a vacation, we just grab a ladder, fish it down and go," said Davy.

reer was preceded by stints as a physical education teacher, life guard, taxi driver, bill collector and more.

Not long ago a friend turned him onto sleepy Dayton, and he's been here since.

The right-wing Likud opposition bloc asked today for an urgent debate in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, on allegations that some $476,000 was diverted in the Labor party's campaign chest from the semi-official construction firm which Ofer headed before he entered the cabinet. The charges appeared in the newspaper Haolam Haze.

The conservative daily Maariv said: "When suspicions are raised against a minister, he is not alone in being under investigation. The over-all propriety of administration and public procedure comes under question."

Maariv suggested that the investigation be handed over to Bills of several denominations and from a bunch of nations festoon the wide open area above the End of The Trail Bar.

It cost a reporter a buck to find out the trick.

Davy puts a tack through the center of the bill, puts a half dollar against the tack head, folds the bill into a neat package and hurls it point up at the ceiling. It works.

His bar was named for the famous statue, the End of the Trail, which now sits in bronze in Visalia, Calif., and in fact at the National Cowboy Museum in Oklahoma City. It first appeared in the San Francisco Exposition in the early 1900s.

"I'm not going to get rich here, but this is simplicity, it's, you know, peace of mind. This probably will be the end of my trail so the name of the bar is appropriate," he said.

Wavy Davy, really John D. Spangler, 36, hails from Newport Beach, Calif. He is a character.

"If it doesn't stick, the customer gets the money back and a free drink," said Davy, who admits he doesn't often give up a free drink on the trick.

Dayton was once a booming mining town. Today all that's left are some old buildings, some old mine works and about 300 people on a crowded day.

The weekly newspaper said that before Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews leaves office he will put into effect regulations banning discrimination against qualified handicapped people in hiring, firing and promotions.

His nickname comes from his abundance of curly locks. His favorite pastime is tending bar. Like many of his peers, he has a gimmick.

Davy came to this tiny town in Nevada's Silver Mining country from a tavern at nearby Lake Tahoe where he tended bar for several years. That ca-

Across the street from Davy's is the Lyon County Sheriff's substation, down the street is the Gold Leaf Bar and the Fox Hotel.

What do Daytonites do? "Well, mostly they just hang around or work in Carson," Davy said.

The regulation expands considerably the antidiscrimination rights of the handicapped persons," the paper said. "If Mathews signs the version his staff recommends the rules also — and here's the clincher — would extend to alcoholics, drug addicts and the mentally ill the same job protection rights accorded blind, deaf or crippled persons."

At first they appeared to be a normal wild bunch of kids," Daly said on Sunday after 10 members of the gang had been accused of trying to set fire to a car the night before. "We were not aware they were deaf and mute."

It was not until Daly and his partner had chased the gang members about three blocks from the crime scene that he discovered their common handicap. Even then he was skeptical, he said.

Davy said his clientele come from nearby Carson City or Fallon or Yerington.

The matches in his ashtrays are complimentary. Not all advertise the End of the Trail. Some come from a nearby brothel. Davy says the several brothels in the area attract customers who also patronize his business.

"I taught school 30 years, and I know administrators must have the right to expel students on dope and to refuse to hire alcoholic teachers," she was quoted as saying. "Don't throw our schools to the dogs by calling such people handicapped. Great guns! No good learning atmosphere can be conceived with dope heads and alcoholics."

Captured Gang Of Deaf Mutes

By BERNARD COHEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Youth gangs are no strangers to the Bronx, and from a distance the Crazy Homicide gang looked like all the rest to Detective John Daly. He had never heard of a gang of deaf-mutes.

Daly said the Police Department's Bronx Youth Gang task force was familiar with the Crazy Homicide as a gang of deaf-mutes from around the city, many of whose members have been arrested previously.

Daly said the Police Department's Bronx Youth Gang task force was familiar with the Crazy Homicide as a gang of deaf-mutes from around the city, many of whose members have been arrested previously.

"The problem comes because the regulations do not define alcoholism, drug addiction or mental illness, the paper said. It quotes HEW's Gwendolyn Gregory, who helped write the rules, saying there was widespread misunderstanding over them. She says alcoholics and the mentally ill could not meet the "qualified" requirement.

"What will count is what the other person thinks about the handicapped," Ms. Gregory was quoted as saying. "If someone thinks you are an alcoholic, or are addicted to dope, or have a mental illness, and discriminates against you because of this, then you are covered under the regulations. But this kind of discrimination, of course, is always hard to prove."

Portrait Can Be Used Effectively In Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Family portraits are becoming accessories to home decorating, and many of her clients now are interested in being painted in jeans, T-shirts, "the whole bit," explains Zita Davison, well known New York artist. "I think that kind of casual dress has become as dateless as overalls. We'll always have turtleneck sweaters, classic shirts, long wool skirts, tweed pants and jeans," she maintains.

ZITA DAVISSON

In addition to adjusting to clothes demands, she is into a whole new idea of environmental painting as an adjunct to room decoration, as portrait painting enjoys a renaissance.

"Gloria Vanderbilt started me on the idea and I'm finding it great fun. You work with someone in their own habit, a certain room perhaps with its interesting colors, patterns, flowers or whatever, and when the painting is hung in that room it becomes sort of a trompe l'oeil. The fool-the-eye effect can be charming. One couple was painted with a garden that could be seen through the window which was framed in the portrait with indoor shutters. It became part of the room's decorating effect."

She is not talking about matching woodwork to the colors in a painting or anything like that, she said at an exhibition of her art at the Bergdorf Goodman store's gallery in New York, where she has a permanent art corner. It is just that the place where the portrait is viewed should be an important consideration just as the color, frame and size are.

When Miss Davison painted Gloria Vanderbilt and her two young sons, Gloria, an artist herself, brought her own patchwork quilt and pillows to the studio and it made a handsome painting.

People often have ideas about how they would like to be painted, but they may not be gifted enough to convey the right message, she says. Some people are more difficult for her to paint than others are, but she has not been able to figure why that is so.

"Men are included more in family portraits now and they love it. They really are more concerned than women and always arrive beautifully groomed and want an exact likeness. On the other hand women often arrive slightly disheveled."

A big trend is a painting of children given as a surprise gift to a parent. One painting on exhibit — six children sitting on a lawn — was an overwhelming surprise for one father, she explained.

Often she sketches the children individually outdoors and does the finished portrait in her studio. Her own children, 17 and 19, have been painted six times, and that is another trend, she says. Many people have their children painted as they reach different ages.

When she is abroad on commission, her painting habits change. In England men dress more formally. Indoors they want the feeling of their home — a fireplace, favorite chair, a dog — captured on canvas. English women like to be pictured in a cultivated setting like a garden. Americans usually leave the background up to her.

In France an hour sitting is likely to stretch to three. She had a show in Monte Carlo where she painted Princess Grace and her children, and she found that many of her French clients always arrived at least one-half hour late and liked to sit about in relaxed chit-chat.

"I've learned a lot about the mores of countries in traveling about. After painting one Indian princess in India, she asked me to paint her 14-year-old daughter who was about to be married."

Dress Normally, But Don't Dance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother passed away early in November after a lingering illness. She knew she was dying, and her last wish was that my sister's son go ahead and get married on the scheduled date, which will take place in about three weeks.

My question: Do you think my three sisters and I should attend the wedding in our mourning clothes? And should we dance?

IN MOURNING

DEAR IN: Don't sadden an otherwise happy occasion by appearing in mourning clothes. (Your mother wouldn't have wanted you to.) Dress as you normally would for a wedding, but don't dance.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-eight years ago my husband and I adopted a baby girl. I'll call her "Jean." Jean has always known she was a chosen child. Her natural parents had three other children and insisted they couldn't afford to raise a fourth.

Jean, now married with two children of her own, set out to find her biological parents. She succeeded, so she and her husband left their younger child with us and took their 7-year-old son to visit Jean's "real" parents. (She lied, saying they were going to visit her husband's relatives.)

Jean told our grandson that they were her "real" parents, and he should call them "Grandma and Grandpa." Naturally, the boy was confused.

In anticipation of Jean's visit, her biological parents had sent out 75 invitations—in the form of a "birth announcement," giving Jean's CURRENT weight, height, name and birth date, but naming THEMSELVES as the proud parents.

Abby, how can people who didn't want a baby 28 years ago now claim her as their own—completely ignoring us who raised her since she was 5 days old?

What do you think of all this? Suddenly we feel excluded and unloved.

PARENTS ONCE REMOVED

DEAR PARENTS: For what may be the best commentary on your understandable dilemma, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I feel an overwhelming need to respond to the letter from the 15-year-old adopted girl who felt it would be a poor "thank you" to her adoptive parents were she to search for her biological parents.

As a mother of three adopted children who know they're adopted, I could fully understand their desire to meet their biological parents. And that desire has absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with the love they have for us—their adoptive parents.

My children have given me the greatest pleasure of my life. Of course we have had our problems, all families do, but the love we have for each other far outweighs the problems, and will last forever.

Every child loves more than just his parents. There are grandparents, friendly, eventually a mate, and then children of their own whom they will love. When we love, it doesn't mean there's less love for someone else; it only increases our capacity to love. And if ever my children come to know and love their natural parents, it will show that they grew up in an atmosphere where love was not something that had to be held tightly and exclusively, for fear that it would be lost.

For my children to search for their biological parents is no more threatening to me than their search for a mate.

I need no more "thank you" than just having been allowed the privilege of raising them, and sharing their joys and sorrows.

A GRATEFUL MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: An uncommonly civilized viewpoint, beautifully stated.

Grits, A Base For Breakfast In Southland

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Someone has called grits the potato of the South, and it's a fact that down below they do lean heavily on this early American food as an accompaniment for a host of dishes from bacon and eggs to country-cured ham with red eye gravy.

For uninitiated Northerners, grits are a hot cereal made from ground hominy which consists of hard corn kernels that have been hulled, washed and dried.

Hominy, in case you didn't know, is derived from an Algonquin Indian word which roughly means corn that has to be skinned. The tribe passed on their formula for hulling the pebble-hard kernels to the first colonists from Jamestown and Plymouth, according to a report by the National Geographic Society. Colonial cookbooks carried such quaint directions as the following:

"Boil white-wood ashes in an iron kettle with plenty of water until the mixture is stout enough to float an egg. Drain off the ashes; place the shelled corn in the liquid. Boil the corn carefully until the hulls rub off. Rinse in several waters so that no lye remains. Boil again in salted water until tender."

The result was dried and ground to produce grits, an old English term for cracked bran. Grits soon became a southern institution. The Marquis de Lafayette tried the cereal in 1824 and said it was one of the things he liked best about the South. Ulysses S. Grant was credited with being the first president to bring the cereal to the White House.

America's fondness for grits has not abated. In 1975 Americans ate 140 million pounds of it, mostly south of the Mason-Dixon line. Today grits find their way into pancakes, waffles, muffins and even souffles. You may find them garnished with shrimp paste or folded into fish cakes. Cold grits, sliced and fried, form a basis for many a southern breakfast or brunch.

Here's a dish to serve for brunch or light supper.
1 1/4 cups grits, uncooked
3/2 cups boiling water
1 roll garlic cheddar cheese.
1/2 cup butter
2 eggs
1 ounce dry white wine
1 cup milk
1/2 cup Swiss cheese grated
Cook grits in boiling water, crumbling cheese and butter into cooked grits after they have boiled about 10 minutes. Blend eggs, wine and milk together and mix with grits, cheese and butter. Pour into greased 2-quart casserole baked in preheated 350-degree oven for 45 minutes uncovered. Sprinkle with grated Swiss cheese and bake till cheese is melted. Good with chilled dry white wine. Serves 6-8.

Training Session Held For WOTM Officers

Women of the Moose officers from 12 eastern North Carolina Chapters gathered in Greenville Sunday afternoon for an executive training session at the Moose Temple.

Miss Ada Jones of Greenville, past deputy grand regent for North and South Carolina, presided over the four-hour session which started at 1 p.m.

Greenville Chapter No. 308 was hostess for the session and chapter officers entertained the visitors at a buffet luncheon prior to the afternoon meeting.

Miss Jones outlined procedures and that WOTM chapters should follow during the last six months of the current fiscal year to qualify for an award of achievement. The requirements for individual WOTM members to attain membership in the Academy of Friendship were also given.

Chapter officers were also urged to stress the importance of attendance at the annual Mid-Year Conference of the N. C. Moose Association and Women of the Moose at the Royal Villa, Raleigh, March 18-20.

Chapter represented at the meeting were Richlands, Swansboro, Elizabeth City, Wilson, Snow Hill, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, New Bern, Newport, Washington, Jones County and Greenville.

Ingram Appears To Win A Point

At times State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram gives the impression of fighting windmills; however it does appear now that his efforts to hold down auto liability insurance rates have paid off.

In July 1975 the N. C. Rate Administrative Office requested an increase in auto liability rates of 15.9 percent. If it were not granted, it was maintained, a 25 percent increase would be needed the next year.

Ingram didn't grant the increase and in 1976 the rate office asked for an increase of only 7.9 percent, saying that a 10.6 percent increase would be needed in 1977 if the 1976 increase were not granted.

Now citing clerical errors, the insurance industry has cut its request for an increase to only five percent.

Hanging over it all is a 13.4 percent reduction ordered by Ingram in 1974 which is now being contested in the courts.

We don't know how the rate reduction order will come out in the courts, but at least the whopping increases in liability rates are being pared down, and that is a plus for all of us who pay for liability insurance.

Exciting Four Years Seen For N.C.

Jim Hunt formally became governor of North Carolina in ceremonies held in Raleigh Saturday.

The former lieutenant governor moved into office replacing James Holshouser, the first Republican governor of this century.

Gov. Hunt has some dreams for his state, and he has outlined some practical programs for bringing those dreams about.

We anticipate some exciting years, with Gov. Hunt leading North Carolina.

THIS AFTERNOON

Hunt Asks New Beginning

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. is proclaiming a theme for his administration in North Carolina as he begins his first week in office.

"A New Beginning" is the underlying philosophy; an atmosphere both symbolically and realistically hoped for by the new governor. Ethics, Hunt says, is the keyword.

On the first working day in office, Hunt is gathering into the historic old House of Representatives chamber in the State Capitol the people who will run the various agencies in his administration.

There, amidst the gleaming walnut and mahogany of antique desks, the gleaming brass of candelabra from another century, the massive, glowering portraits of governors and Presidents past, Hunt is trying to firmly establish a tone of honesty for the coming four years.

Tradition
In that history-steeped chamber, now restored to its former grandeur, the governor is reminding his cabinet officials of the traditions of public service in North Carolina.

In his first official act, the governor is proclaiming his key people subject to an Executive Ethics model in which they must declare publicly their financial position and interests.

Why the emphasis on ethics?

Watergate, in a word, has brought about a new public mood regarding government. But even before Watergate, Hunt was pushing ethics legislation in the General Assembly affecting key elected officials both locally and at the state level.

Further, in the wake of Watergate, Hunt's own political pollsters determined that citizens no longer look as closely at experience and qualifications in their political leaders as they do at honesty.

Honesty
In a report to legislators last year, Hunt called on the Peter D. Hart organization to talk to that point: "In the wake of Watergate — a scandal caused by one of the most experienced Presidents in our history — experience is no longer a quality much valued by the public.

"We find that when we ask voters to volunteer what qualities they want in a public official, usually fewer than one in 10 mention experience," the Hart group reported.

What qualities do they want? "First, of course, honesty. Typically, more than half the voters volunteer honesty as a quality they look for... The other quality... is what we would call responsiveness... someone who cares, who understands the problems faced by ordinary people, who listens and communicates."

Full disclosure of financial interest not only for elected officials, but those appointed by the governor, then becomes the first order of business for the Hunt administration. Then, Hunt tells his appointees, that theme of honesty must prevail throughout the coming years, coupled with demonstrations of responsiveness to the public.

Plans now call for the ethics mandate to reach pretty far down in the ranks of state employees, even beyond those appointed by the governor and hired as policy makers by those appointees.

Disclosure rules may be placed on any employee making more than $20,000 yearly. Then, legislation will be sought in the General Assembly to make executive ethics law rather than gubernatorial edict. That would serve two purposes: extending the practice to future incoming administration; and establishing legal sanctions for dismissal or other action against officials who either refuse to cooperate, or willfully violate the rules.

Your Vacation Pleasure

WASHINGTON—The problem after a Christmas vacation is that parents of college students can never be quite sure if their children had a good time or not.

I've taken a leaf from Holiday Inns, Howard Johnson motels and Hilton to solve this problem. In many motel and hotel rooms there is a form the management asks the guests to fill out regarding the service of the establishment.

As a public service I am printing a similar form that parents can mail to their children at school to find out if they were satisfied with their vacation visit. Just clip it out and stick it in with the next check you send to your loved ones.

Dear Guest, In order to improve our service at — (write in address) we are asking you to fill out the following form. Your answers will help us in our desire to improve our guest operation and to guarantee that you will come back again. A stamped return envelope is enclosed for your convenience.

1. Were you happy with the hotel service you received from your mother? —. Your father? —. Other members of the family? —. If you weren't please tell us where you felt they let you down in the blank space on when they dropped by? Were they satisfied with their accommodations when they decided to sleep over? Yes — No —. Were there any complaints about the room service?

4. Did you find the house quiet enough when you slept late in the morning? Were you disturbed by anyone coming into your room asking when you were getting up? Was your room cleaned up satisfactorily while you were in the kitchen having breakfast?

5. How did you find the laundry service? Were there always fresh clothes in your drawers and did our staff pick up the dirty ones every day which you threw on the floor?

6. Was there enough hot water for your bath or shower? Did you find your father's hairbrush when you needed it? Were you happy with the brand of cosmetics you borrowed from your mother's dresser? Did you have enough clean towels every day? Did your mother pick up the dirty ones after you bathed, in a satisfactory and cheerful manner?

7. What was your opinion of our limousine service? Was there a car always available when you needed it or did you have to wait until a member of the family completed an errand? Did the doorman park your car or did you have to do it yourself?

8. How would you rate the help? (a) friendly and on the job; (b) willing to drop everything to resolve a request, no matter how

Status Of SHP In Doubt

By DAVID R. NELSEN

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Possible removal of the Highway Patrol from the Department of Transportation poses a special problem for Gov. Jim Hunt. If he does that, where will he locate it in North Carolina's tangled bureaucracy?

Shortly after his election in November, Hunt named a special study commission to investigate reports of morale problems in the patrol. He also asked the seven-member commission to recommend ways to solve any problems it discovered.

The commission completed its work last week. It did not make its report public, but several members discussed its major findings.

The commission found morale problems in some parts of the state. Areas where the problem was not significant had strong leadership among sergeants or other ranking officers, the panel said. That strong leadership insulated the troopers from confusing and sometimes contradictory orders from Raleigh, the commission said.

Where it was found, low morale was chiefly blamed on weak leadership in the Department of Transportation. The commission noted that in the four years of the Republican administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser, there were four transportation secretaries.

The study commission recommended putting the patrol directly under the governor. For budget and administrative purposes, the patrol should be in the Department of Administration, it recommended.

Hunt says he wants the patrol commander to answer directly to him. But, he said last week on two occasions that he is having a difficult time deciding where it should be in the bureaucracy.

If it is in the Department of Administration, that will be an additional department with a police agency under it. There has been some speculation that the patrol should be under the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs which has the National Guard, the energy office and handles state business

THE INSIDE REPORT

Cyrus Vance Under Fire

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the facade of smoothness that has marked much of Jimmy Carter's cabinet construction, rising discontent tinged with anger is being directed by pro-Carter liberal Democrats at an unlikely source: Secretary of State-designate Cyrus Vance.

This criticism of old Washington hand Cy Vance is based on inexplicably inept handling of high level appointments to the State Department — not so much the appointments themselves (although non-liberal foreign-policy hardliners are nursing multiple grievances) but the unsmooth manner in which Vance or his agents have been making them.

What is so surprising about the inelegant, offhand manner in which Vance has allowed the identity of his top-level team to leak out is that it has created major political problems for the skilled, hard-driving White House lobby staff now being put together by one of Jimmy Carter's oldest hands: Frank Moore, Carter's chief congressional persuader.

Furious at reading about high-level appointments in the press, key congressional Democrats are blaming the Moore staff for not giving them early notification of such appointments as Deputy Secretary of State, Vance's No. 2.

But President-elect Carter's White House lobbyists are indisputably innocent. So careless has the Vance staffing operation become that Carter's top staff men are not always informed before leaks appear in the press.

Thus, one of Moore's own aides was dumbfounded to get the word not from the transition staff or from Vance but from the press that Warren Christopher, the former Johnson administration Deputy Attorney-General and now a San Francisco lawyer, would become Vance's No. 2 man.

With such lack of advance notification, there was no chance of even the most routine clearance of Christopher's appointment with ranking House Democrats on the International Relations Committee. That lack of clearance is opening political wounds, justifiably but unnecessarily, in the sometimes thin skins of many congressional Democrats.

For example, Rep. Dante Fascell of Florida, probably the most influential single Democrat on the International Relations Committee, told us with singular understatement that "it would have been very nice to have been consulted" about Christopher's nomination.

Fascell is about to become chairman of the subcommittee that made former Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio, victim of last year's Elizabeth Ray sex scandal, the man most feared on Capitol Hill by the State Department.

Called the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, it can wield more power over the department's day-to-day operations abroad and some of its internal mechanics than any other congressional panel, including the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and both Appropriations Committees. But if Vance figured that a tete-a-tete meal he had with Fascell in Manhattan several weeks ago guaranteed permanent cordial relations, he is sadly mistaken.

Behind the congressional unhappiness with Vance lies the massively advertised transition hunt for top-level talent to staff Mr. Carter's principal cabinet-level departments.

"They told us they wanted our ideas," Rep. David Bowen, one of Mississippi's Democratic leaders who helped save that state for Carter last November, told us. Bowen and other Democrats sent Carter's transition staff suggestions for sub-cabinet level jobs, both party operatives in their states and experts in various fields. According to Bowen, these names were dropped in to the transition hopper and disappeared without a trace.

"Some of us are shocked," said Bowen, "to pick up the newspapers and read that Vance is going to name this person or that person to a presidentially-appointed job at State, and then see the postscript that this has to be cleared with the President." Bowen's point: not only have congressional Democrats been completely ignored in the staffing operation, but Vance was not even clearing his top aides with Carter, Hamilton Jordan, overall chief of staff, or the White House lobby staff (Carter's Capitol Hill armor).

Bowen's point is well taken. Vance's consultation for staffing State, as a discerning Carter insider noted, is limited to the transition staff assigned by Carter to the State Department — the mostly youthful foreign policy liberals who publicly broke with Henry Kissinger over Vietnam and Cambodia and are now about to take over many top policy desks in the State Department.

One Carter ally spelled it out: Carter's transition staff for State "didn't tell anybody anything, but they sure did well for themselves." Time will tell whether they will do as well for Vance, whose process of selecting them has hurt him on Capitol Hill.

Strength For Today

TOLERANCE IS PERSONAL

We have a perfect right, without manifesting the least intolerance, to try to answer the question, what is Christianity? But we do now have the right to answer the question, who is a Christian?

The Bible tells us that the Lord knoweth those that are His. The Lord knows who is a good Christian and who is not, but we have no such knowledge. We are tempted to say that a person whose beliefs are different from our own is not a Christian. How do we know this? Have we been able to look deeply enough into his heart to pass such a judgment upon him?

Soundness of belief is only one of the characteristics of the Christian life. Some people have very unorthodox beliefs and still manifest many moral qualities which the Christian gospel commends.

Combined Strategy By Carter

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —

President-elect Carter's economic stimulation package is combined of fiscal conservatism and a liberalism that believes government itself can spend the economy into recovery.

As such, it contains elements that will satisfy parts of the entire spectrum between rigid advocates of free enterprise and adherents of the big government philosophy. But it will leave them unsatisfied in some respects also.

The smaller than anticipated package is likely to be encouraging to business people who fear that heavy spending by Washington inevitably unbalances budgets, raises private enterprise taxes and costs them power.

The two-year, $30 billion package, made up of tax cuts and added spending, will be viewed by many as a compromise. But to business, the mix is likely to be unsatisfactory.

The hope among many private sector officials was that the emphasis would be on stimulating jobs through incentives to business to train workers in skills needed by manufacturers and others.

The Carter package would create 800,000 jobs in perhaps a more direct and arbitrary manner and place them on government payrolls, an activity that business people in the past have maintained is hardly related to increases in productivity.

It is increased productivity, the business community stresses, that makes the economic pie grow, enabling more and more people to obtain a bigger piece without stealing from each other.

In the view of some, the greater the market place activity by Washington, the greater the burden is on private enterprise — mainly through taxes they feel are often levied to pay for the inefficiency of public works projects.

The Carter package does include a job incentive program for business, but as yet it is not entirely clear whether it will be in the form of lower Social Security payments or a rise in the investment tax credit.

Regardless, it seems likely that many business people will consider the $2 billion program to be a less than satisfactory one, especially if it comes in the area of Social Security payments.

Being considered is a 5 percent reduction in the employer's payments into the Social Security fund, whose financial stability already is a source of worry to so many conservatives.

There is little doubt that business people would prefer an increase in the tax credit, which is designed to encourage purchases of more, bigger, and more efficient and modern production facilities.

Those who believe in tax credits argue that industry must be encouraged to expand, thus spurring activity throughout the economy, particularly by creating more jobs — and, they would stress, productive jobs.

With the Carter recipe apparently designed to satisfy various elements of economic society, it might very well end up satisfying nobody completely, and probably not encouraging them especially either.

Religious Leaders Disappointed Over Graham Teetotalism Views

RALEIGH (AP) — A recent statement by Billy Graham in which the evangelist said the Bible does not teach teetotalism has brought expressions of disappointment from some North Carolina religious leaders. Some said they are awaiting a clarification of Graham's views.

Reports said Graham has received so many questions about the statement that he plans to devote a sermon on his "Hour of Decision" radio program to explain his position.

"I'd be very disappointed to know that he changed his position," said the Rev. Coy Privette of Kannapolis, president of the Baptist State Convention, former president of the Christian Action League and a leader of North Carolina dries. "But knowing Mr. Graham like I know Mr. Graham I don't think he has changed his position."

Reports from Florida Dec. 27 quoted Graham as saying: "I do not believe that the Bible teaches teetotalism. Jesus drank wine. Jesus turned water into wine at a wedding feast. That wasn't grape juice as some of them try to claim."

Privette said perhaps Graham was not so much condoning drinking as declining to condemn those who drink. He said Graham had always supported the Christian Action League stand against liquor-by-the-drink in North Carolina.

Forrest Boyd, an official in the communications office of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association in Minneapolis said that in his radio sermon, Graham will reaffirm his opposition to alcohol.

Dr. Cecil Ray, general secretary of the Baptist State Convention, agreed with Graham's interpretation of scripture, but said he still contended that while Jesus drank wine, the overriding teaching of the Bible is sobriety.

Bishop Robert Blackburn of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church, said he "deeply regretted" Graham's remarks. "It was completely unnecessary for him to say it and I think it was just another liberalization of the mainline church's stand on the alcohol problem. He is supposed to be a prophetic voice and many people will be influenced by him," Blackburn said.

Marse Grant, editor of the Biblical Recorder, organ of the Baptist State Convention, termed Graham's statement "unfortunate."

"I don't think we should mark off the considerable ministry of Billy Graham," Grant said. "All of us make mistakes."

with military veterans. Another place the patrol could go is the Department of Justice which now has the State Bureau of Investigation under it. But, that would give the attorney general some authority over the patrol and Hunt says he wants it under him.

Transportation, which also has a police agency for investigating auto theft, in a sense is the logical place for the patrol.

While speculating, why not consider Wildlife Resources? The game wardens are police officers.

At any rate, the governor wants the patrol commander to have what amounts to special status. Because he would answer directly to the governor, his position would be nearly as lofty as a cabinet officer.

There is a plus in the commander answering to the governor: there will be no question about who is to blame if there are any problems in the patrol.

Hunt's appointment of Amos Reed as secretary of correction could well be one of the most significant appointments he will make. The prison system is badly troubled by overcrowding and underfunding.

Because of its problems, the prison system is certain to be a center of attention during the legislative session, and some prison experts fear the system may be on the brink of a takeover by the federal courts.

Reed is a lifetime corrections professional and is nationally recognized as a leader in the field.

That reputation should be helpful and end some of the hassles over corrections, particularly in the legislature. Whatever qualities former secretary David Jones had as an administrator, he—a former used car salesman—did not have the influence that a lifetime professional would have.

Israel To Ask France For Massacre-Plot Suspect

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel announced today it would ask France to hand over an arrested Palestinian wanted on suspicion of plotting the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympics in Munich. A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the government had asked France to detain Mohammed Daoud Audeh, better known as Abu Daoud, until a formal extradition request could be made. The move marked the first time Israel has sought the extradition of a Palestinian guerrilla. But Israelis appeared pessimistic about the chances that France would cooperate.

French counterintelligence agents seized the Palestinian after an arrest warrant arrived Friday from authorities in Munich, West Germany, official sources in Paris said.

A West German government spokesman said the arrest was asked by the Bavarian state government under an agreement last year by the nine Common Market countries for joint action against terrorism.

Sources in Bonn indicated the West German government might be reluctant to press for Abu Daoud's extradition because of the threat of Palestinian reprisals.

Palestinian leaders protested the arrest and warned that it could upset relations between Arab countries and France. Arab sources said Syrian Ambassador A.A. Karim protested to the French foreign ministry. Protests also have come from Libya, Algeria and Iraq.

French official sources said Abu Daoud came to France as a member of the Palestine Liberation Organization's delegation to the funeral Saturday of the former head of the PLO's Paris office, Mahmoud Saleh, who was assassinated last Monday.

The sources said he traveled on an Iraqi passport issued to Youssef Raji Hanna.

Abu Daoud is reputed to be one of the founders of the Black September terrorist group that planned the 1972 Munich raid in which 11 Israelis and four guerrillas were killed. The three surviving guerrillas were captured, but the Germans freed them the next year to ransom a Lufthansa airliner hijacked by a group of Palestinians.

Daoud, while under arrest in Jordan three years ago, made a statement admitting he provided passports to the seven Palestinian terrorists who invaded the Israeli quarters at the Olympic village. Israeli officials believe he had a more important role in the planning.

Jury Will Be Sworn In Today In Longet Trial

By BILL PARDUE Associated Press Writer ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — After mapping strategy with her lawyers on what would have been her lover's 32nd birthday, Claudine Longet returns to court today to hear contrasting versions of how she came to bleed to death from a bullet in the abdomen.

A jury chosen from her neighbors in this Rocky Mountain ski resort town was to be sworn in today, after which prosecution and defense would present opening arguments in the manslaughter trial. Photographers were to be allowed to snap pictures inside the courtroom during the first few minutes of today's session. The arrangement was in accordance with a state law allowing cameras in the courtroom if all parties agree.

Many potential jurors — including some of those picked — admitted during selection last week having thought at one time or another that Miss Longet was guilty of shooting professional skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich last March 21 as he dressed for dinner in the bathroom of the chalet they shared here.

However, defense attorneys Charles Weedman and Ronald Austin said the former showgirl can get a fair trial here, and they did not seek a change of venue. The two chief prosecutors, Dist. Atty. Frank Tucker and his deputy, Ashley Andeon, said they planned to call up to 30 witnesses. The trial in the high-ceilinged 19th Century courtroom of state District Court Judge George Lohr is expected to last an additional two weeks.

Miss Longet, 35, who could spend 10 years in jail if convicted of the reckless manslaughter charge, spent much of the weekend secluded with her three children by former husband Andy Williams. But she met Sunday with her lawyers. Williams has been subpoenaed by the prosecution and was expected in court this week. He said when jury selection began last Monday that he was unsure what the nature of his testimony would be.

Miss Longet contends that the shooting was an accident, that Sabich was showing her how to use the .22-caliber pistol when it went off. Some witnesses are expected to testify that Miss Longet has admitted she pointed the gun at Sabich and playfully said "bang, bang." The jury must determine whether Miss Longet acted recklessly.

Woman Will Seek Astronaut Job

PATUXENT, Md. (AP) — Lt. Judith A. Neuffer, who says she hung out at airports as a child, now wants to hang out in a spaceship.

One of the first women accepted after the Navy opened its pilot training program to women in 1972, Lt. Neuffer wants to become the nation's first woman astronaut.

The 28-year-old Wooster, Ohio, native, stationed at Patuxent Naval Air Test Center, applied recently to join the space program, and expects to learn by summer whether she made it.

She got her pilot's wings in 1974, and was assigned to hurricane assignment in Florida. That meant flying giant RP3 Orions through the storms at 10,000 and 500 feet, to check on the hurricanes' intensity and direction.

Human Nature Can Fool You, Says Consulting Psychologist

Editor's Note: Salvatore Didato is a consulting psychologist in New York City. In this column he asks some thought-provoking questions about human nature, then explains his answers. Dr. Didato says most people should get at least four correct answers. By SALVATORE DIDATO NEW YORK (AP) — Isn't it funny that most of us think we know about human nature just because we're human? We believe we understand people because we're people.

It seems there must be a little of the psychologist in each of us. But all too often we're led astray by popular beliefs which have been proven wrong. Here is a quiz which might help show some of our untested assumptions about what it means to be human.

Answer each item true or false, then read the explanations that follow. TRUE or FALSE 1. A shifty-eyed person is more likely than not to be dishonest.

2. Infants instinctively fear the dark.

3. People who are good with numbers usually are good with words.

4. Compared with high IQ kids, low IQ kids turn out to have better health, job success and marital adjustment.

5. Mentally ill persons don't realize they are sick.

6. If a worker is dissatisfied he will produce less.

7. A hypnotized person can be led to do something antisocial.

8. A person's photograph reveals very little about his or her personality.

ANSWERS and EXPLANATIONS 1. FALSE. There is no connection between eye-gaze fixity and honesty. One study showed that psychopathic liars actually maintained steadier eye contact in speaking with others. 2. FALSE. Studies at the Gesell Institute of Infant Research at Yale University found that infants have only three instinctive fears. These involve loud noises, sudden changes in surroundings and loss of physical support.

3. TRUE. Surveys of thousands of tests scores show that good ability with numbers is related to general intelligence.

4. FALSE. Lewis Terman, a psychologist at Stanford University, exploded the stereotype of the bright child as sickly and frail. Actually, bright kids have better mental and physical health, grow up to be happier in their jobs, and live longer, too.

5. FALSE. The overwhelming majority of patients have insight into their irrational behavior tendencies.

6. FALSE. Although industrial psychologists can't explain why, repeated studies show that workers with job blahs do not slack off in their work productivity.

7. TRUE. Experiments have shown that under special conditions, hypnotized subjects can be induced to steal, lie and inflict injury on others provided they are convinced of the necessity to act in these ways.

8. TRUE. The findings show that a person's IQ or personality cannot be judged accurately from his picture.

mother, was arrested Sunday and charged with child cruelty when she arrived in Newnan from Dayton, Ohio, where she now lives.

Five Dead Due Auto Mishaps

By The Associated Press Despite dangerous driving conditions over much of the state Sunday, only five fatal weekend traffic accidents were reported by the Highway Patrol, none of them directly attributed to the weather.

Three pedestrians were among the five people killed, well below the average state weekend death toll. North Carolina's fatality count for the year now stands at 22 compared to 28 for the same period last year.

Lisa Adair Blalock, 16, of Rt. 2 Canton perished early Sunday when the car in which she was riding left N.C. 215, went over an embankment and overturned several times. Three other persons were injured in the accident that was about six miles south of Canton. Killed Friday was Rudolph J. Laughinghouse, 74, of Rt. 6, New Bern. He was struck by a vehicle a mile and a half north of Bridgeton in Craven County.

Killed when struck by a pickup truck was Jiles Henry Cave, 58, of Rt. 2, State Road. He was hit four miles north of Elkin on U.S. 21.

Another pedestrian, Harvey Jenious Cozart, 40, of Rt. 5, Oxford, died Saturday on a rural paved road six miles north of Oxford when struck by a vehicle traveling at a high speed, the patrol said.

A two-car collision Saturday claimed the life of Carl Dean Whitfield, 72, of Rt. 12. The accident occurred Saturday on a rural paved road 12 miles north of Durham.

Workshop Set For Joint Body

The Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission has scheduled a workshop for Jan. 17 on a request by the Environmental Advisory Commission to amend the Zoning Ordinance to require tree and vegetation islands in parking lots.

The request was discussed at the commission's meeting last week and tabled to allow for a workshop on the amendment.

Anyone interested is invited to the workshop, it was pointed out at the meeting. The advisory commission will be invited to participate in the session.

In presenting the request, the EAC pointed out, "Trees and tree islands along with other landscaping within open off-street parking areas can help control circulation of vehicles and pedestrians, identify entrances and exits, provide shade, furnish open ground for drainage, improve the appearance of parking areas and provide environmental and aesthetic benefits."

The proposed amendment to Article VII stipulates, "All open off-street parking areas with more than one aisle, two rows of parking stalls and area of 10,000 square feet or more, exclusive of access drives, shall provide and maintain canopy-type shade trees hardy to this region in tree islands totaling not less than five per cent of the total area of the surfaced portion of the parking lot."

The amendment also states, "At least 40 per cent of this planted area shall consist of tree islands within the surfaced portion of the parking lot. The minimum size of a tree island shall be 70 square feet. Trees to be planted shall be at least six feet in height, one and one-half inches in diameter, balled and burlapped and a type hardy to the region."

The amendment would be considered by the City Council following a recommendation by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The EAC was created by the Council some 18 months ago to advise the governing board on environmental matters.

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va. (UPI) — Turbulence is nothing new to the tiny community jutting out at the point where the Shenandoah and Potomac Rivers joined eons ago to force their way through the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The one-time armaments center that became the setting for John Brown's abortive attempt to establish a black state was battered by both armies during the Civil War. They destroyed her factories and cleared her shoreline forests, leaving her naked and unprotected against the ravages of floods.

Now, slightly more than 100 years after the 1870 flood that wiped out Harpers Ferry, the town is a bustling tourist center with a share of problems that seem disproportionate to a place its size.

Flooding remains a threat, but added to it are the temptations and strains produced by an influx to West Virginia's only national park of as many as 1.2 million annual visitors.

Where tourists flock, commercialism inevitably follows, and many of the 500 townspeople are torn between the lure of big bucks and a desire to preserve the area's historic character.

Four years ago, when Martin Conway became superintendent of the Harpers Ferry National Historical Park, he discovered the previous foster parents had been woefully neglectful of their ward.

Despite 18 years of Park Service tenure, a collection of rotting structures tottered on the verge of collapse.

"You should have seen this place," Conway said. "Just a bunch of pigeons flying in and out."

Today, a number of the federal-style buildings have been restored. Together, they comprise a tableau of mid-19th century life.

Among the superintendent's contributions are a working blacksmith's shop, a simulated apothecary and a dry goods store where costumes for the entire park system are sewn.

Current projects include the refurbishing of an old-time hotel and saloon.

Breaking the mood, however, are a series of shoddy souvenir shops and fast-food emporia abutting the time-capsule Shenandoah street. Garish signs compound the clutter.

In a report issued in October, Conway lamented the "large, inescapable effect" of these enterprises on the illusion he is trying to create. But his hands are tied because the property on the two offending streets is privately owned and unrestricted by zoning.

"It's unfortunate that when the state of West Virginia donated the land for the park, they didn't buy up that part, too," he said.

Several of these shops belong to Dixie Kilham, a Baltimore lawyer who came to Harpers Ferry in 1955 to start a theatre company and stayed to become the town's busiest entrepreneur.

A take-charge kind of guy, Kilham is a guiding spirit behind such projects as a semi-annual crafts fair that draws some 25-30,000 visitors.

In his view, the main obstacle to progress is an "unimaginative" mayor, Bradley Nash, 76. The two have clashed over the businessman's proposal to develop an empty lot that once formed the town square.

"Dixie doesn't miss a chance to make a dollar," remarked Nash, echoing the sentiments of several of his neighbors.

"When you're a mover and you take action, you're not always going to be understood," sighed Kilham, a co-owner of a new wax museum sporting the only sign in town that is visible from the banks of the Potomac.

Kilham is also the proprietor of Hilltop House, the town's only inn. While visitors are impressed with its magnificent view of both rivers, many complain that the hotel is shabby and overpriced.

The many concerns of the $200-a-year mayor, a former undersecretary of commerce, revolve around the burden of entertaining so many outsiders on an annual budget of $20,000.

A burgeoning Jefferson County, within easy driving distance of both Baltimore and Washington, has the potential to "overwhelm" a town populated largely by retired people, Nash explained.

The official noted that following concerted lobbying, he had been able to secure federal funding to pick up most of the tab for a $1.2 million sewage system. But inadequate water lines and what could be an insufficient water supply remain what he termed "serious problems."

The Park Service itself is partly responsible for the drain on local resources. Two national operations — the Mather Training Center and the Interpretative Design Center — are located in Harpers Ferry, on the site of the defunct Storer College.

The presence of 300-plus park personnel, most of them non-residents, is a source of particular resentment s Ferry, on the site of the defunct Storer College.

The presence of 300-plus park personnel, most of them non-residents to create a Park Service compound here — a government town," wrote Preissler in one of his "reports."

An architect by training, Preissler also bemoans what he sees as an attempt to "establish a copy of a latter-day Williamsburgh."

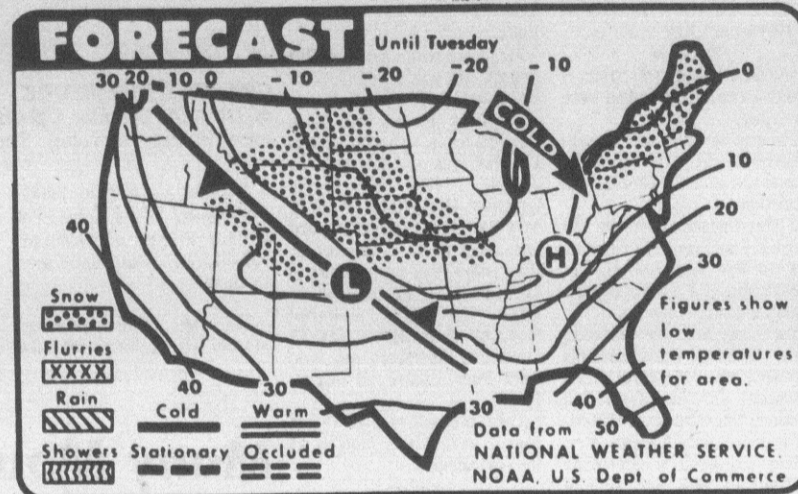

In doing this, he said, the Park Service had missed an opportunity to showcase "a town where crafts in the first part of the 19th Century changed to industry, where the industrial genius of America took root and worked to make this county what it is today."

Preissler wants private industry to recreate the armory that once produced 10,000 weapons a year. And he dreams of a day when the town that John Brown raided might become a national monument to the end of slavery.

But quixotic visions are not Conway's line. Right now, he said, he'd be pleased if local merchants would go along with his proposed ban on the auto traffic that is "strangling" the historic district.

In two or three years, he thought, he might be able to bring them around.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Very cold weather is due today in the northern half of the nation from the Rockies to the Northeast. Snow is forecast for most of the Plains and for most of New England. Below-normal temperatures are poised for much of the South. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY, County Extension Chairman
We've been growing tobacco plants for over 300 years in North Carolina so why all the fuss about plant bed management in 1977?

The main reason is that the whole business of producing tobacco is more complex now and quality transplants are a key to a successful crop. For example, the machinery used for harvesting tobacco makes it necessary to have a uniform crop. On the larger farms it may be a good practice to have staged plantings so all fields will not be ripe at the same time.

Another reason for the fuss is that a new regulation (established to help prevent the spread of diseases) will make it more difficult to bring in plants from other producing areas. Vein Banding, believed to be spread by imported plants, was a problem for many growers in 1976.

The three biggest problems we have observed with plant production in Pitt County are caused by (1) Too little moisture at seeding, (2) too much fertilizer, and (3) seeding too early. The following "Recipe For Growing Plants Under Perforated Plastic" has been developed by research and years of on-farm plant bed tests. It has been successful in eliminating most risks associated with plant production when it is followed completely — not eliminating or modifying a single step.

Recipe For Growing Plants Under Perforated Plastic
1. Seed 80-100 sq. yds. of bed for each acre of tobacco to be transplanted.
2. Prepare a good seed bed.
3. Apply 50-75 lbs. of 12-6-6 fertilizer per 100 sq. yds. and disc into top 2 to 3 inches of soil.
4. Fumigate with methyl bromide when soil moisture is right for cultivation and air temperature is 55 degrees F. or higher — preferably in the fall. Aerate soil 48 hours after fumigation, but leave solid plastic on bed until seeding time.
5. Perforate plastic with 1/4 inch holes, 2 inches apart, before removing it from bed to seed.
6. Seed bed 65 days prior to beginning of normal transplanting date, used 1/6 ounce of seed per 100 sq. yds. of bed.
7. Support cover with a thin layer of clean straw.
8. Irrigate enough to thoroughly wet soil immediately after seeding, using 1/4 to 1 inch of water, depending upon soil moisture.
9. Cover with perforated plastic immediately after irrigation.
10. Observe bed frequently and treat for insects and damping off when needed.
11. Start blue mold treatments when plastic cover is removed.

More details on tobacco production are available in the 1977 Tobacco Information bulletin. Contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office for your copy.

No Charges As Cars Collide

An estimated $250 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a collision yesterday on Memorial Drive, 90 feet North of the Moore Street intersection. Investigators identified drivers involved in the mishap as Amos Collins Foreman of Route 1, Farmville and Annie Sanders Duncan of 518 Vance St. No charges were reported.

New Policy On Abortion

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — South Korea plans to legalize all abortions and increase the legal age for marriage from 16 to 20 in an effort to keep annual population growth steady.

The proposals, which will be made by the ruling Democratic Republican Party's population problems subcommittee, will be linked with other measures designed as incentives for small families, the daily newspaper Kyunghyang Shinmun, said.

Under the plan, the abortion policy would be broadened for social and economic reasons to allow abortions under any circumstance. Present abortion laws permit them only in cases of bad health and rape.

The party also plans to recommend that families with two or less children will enjoy various legal favors including shorter military duty for male members. South Korea maintains a conscription system in which all males on reaching 20 years of age must serve for two and a half years.

Nixon Observes Quiet Birthday

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon spent a quiet 64th birthday with his wife, Pat, and a few friends by watching the Super Bowl football game telecast at his seaside estate.

It was Nixon's third birthday at the former Western White House since his resignation as president on Aug. 9, 1974.

Fire Claims Two Children's Lives

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Two children were killed when fire destroyed a house near Elizabeth City Saturday.

The victims were identified as Serita White, 7, and Denita Poole, 10. They were staying at the home of Percy Thomas, 63, of Weeksville.

Thomas' son, Percy Lee, 38, was reported to have discovered the fire and successfully rescued his father and an infant. But attempts to rescue the two girls failed.

They were identified as Steven Harris, 5, and David Harris, 7.

The Murphy High School band, on its way home from the Raleigh inaugural of Gov. Jim Hunt, was stranded Sunday night in Sylva by heavy snow. The 70 teen-agers were fed and sheltered in the Sylva-Webster High School gymnasium.

The snow and sleet along with the rain along the warmer coastal regions were expected to end today with highs forecast in the 20s in the mountains to the 50s on the coast.

The National Weather Service said temperatures tonight would drop into the teens in the northwest, and the 20s in the east.

School Board Ass'n Meets On January 12

Approximately 150 area school board members, educators, and officials will gather Wednesday, January 12 at the Annual District No. 2 Meeting of the North Carolina School Boards Association. The theme for this year's meeting is "Public Education—Heritage and Horizons".

The meeting, scheduled to begin at 4:15 p.m., January 14, will be held at Farmville Central High School in Farmville and will feature sessions and a banquet.

Dr. Hugh Wease, Associate Professor of History, at East Carolina University will be the featured speaker.

The meeting is one of a series of 18 district meetings held throughout the state between January and March according to Mark Owens, Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education and District Secretary.

In addition to Owens, other District No. 2 officers include, Jack Wright of the Washington City Board of Education and District vice president, and Otis Alford, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools and District Secretary.

District No. 2 of the North Carolina School Boards Association includes school administrative units in Beaufort, Hyde, Martin, Tyrrell, Pitt, and Washington counties as well as the cities of Washington and Greenville.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market built on the gradual upturn it began late last week with another modest advance today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.49 at 985.62, and gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was moderate. The Dow rose about 5 points last Thursday and Friday after a 26-point slide in the first three sessions of the new year.

Analysts said investors were still in a cautious mood after the market's post-New Year's setback.

But they also noted a generally favorable economic news background. A survey by the Conference Board, for instance, found a sharp rise in confidence among consumers in the last two months of 1976.

Bausch & Lomb topped the active list, up 1 1/4 at 34 1/2 after a 4 1/2-point jump on Friday. The company said Friday it had settled a legal dispute with National Patent Development over the soft contact lens market.

National Patent slipped 1/4 to 9 3/4 on the American Stock Exchange.

General Electric, which announced an internal reorganization plan last week, climbed 3/4 to 54 1/2 in active trading.

The NYSE's composite index added .10 to 56.89 in the first hour, and the Amex market value index was up .06 at 111 even.

Coffee Substitute

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — C. C. Granger, an inventor with an orange picker among his more notable achievements, now has turned out a mysterious but cheap product he says tastes like $3-per-pound coffee.

"I took a thermos down to the boys at the bank," he said. "They couldn't tell the difference, but they did think it was instant."

Granger, 59, who said his inventions come to him in visions while in bed at night, refuses to disclose the contents of his product until he has patented the process.

He will only say that the base of his unnamed product is a common foodstuff and that the product contains no chemical additives.

"I lay in bed at night and I think about things for 15 or 20 minutes," Granger said as an explanation for his gift for invention. "The designs kind of come up in my head like a vision. Next day I make a drawing. Somehow it seems to work."

His inventions — mostly mechanical — have gotten him within "splitting distance" of $1 million, he said, "but I give most of what I make away or sink it back into the business."

He holds more than a dozen patents from the United States and Canada. His latest project involves what he calls a shock-wave engine that he hopes could go as far as 125 miles on a gallon of fuel.

Spurred Anew On Mining Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With encouragement from President Carter, Congress is ready to try again to impose strict, far-reaching standards on surface and strip mining.

Twice in the last session of Congress, strip-mining bills survived the shoves and tugs of mining and environmental factions and were sent to the White House. Twice, President Ford scuttled the effort with vetoes.

Ford agreed with industry that the bills would hamper production, cost jobs, and increase reliance on foreign oil. This time, supporters of the legislation are cheered by Carter's campaign statements that he would have signed the legislation.

Environmentalists claim that Carter's election denies the mining industry its White House ally. Environmentalists believe the coal industry's strategy this session will be to try to gut the bill in committee and on the floor.

Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, puts it this way: The industry is concerned with obtaining a bill that will increase production. Bagge says the legislation introduced by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., is nothing more than "a land use bill which has the explicit purpose of discouraging surface mining."

In an interview, Bagge said the industry will try to convince the Carter administration that the best way to increase production is to forget federal action and rely on state regulation.

Environmentalists are still working out their strategy. Louise Dunlop of the Environmental Policy Center, an environmental lobbyist, says they likely will work to strengthen the bill to require more extensive reclamation, and to ban strip mining in western alluvial valleys, often prime agricultural land, and on the steep slopes of eastern mountains.

Over half of U.S. coal production comes from strip mines. Western coal, with its low sulfur content, burns cleaner and therefore is more desirable.

Seniors Club Held Meet

George Fleming was the guest speaker at the Elm Street Senior Citizens Club meeting Thursday. Fleming discussed coins and books.

The newly elected officers presided at the meeting. Mrs. Sarah Ashton presided at the business meeting.

Lee Williams reported that $65 was collected by the senior citizens and sent to the Foster Children's Fund.

Mrs. Ashton appointed Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, Mrs. Ruth Harris, and Mrs. Alma Letchworth to serve on a committee to make plans to visit and entertain patients at the nursing home.

Mrs. Ruby Parkenson, Sunshine Chairman, reported that Mrs. Lena McLawhorn has been a patient of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Kathleen W. Harris, Mrs. Kathleen Woolard, and Dr. Mildred Southwick.

Issue APB For Their Snowman

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Police were not sure where to begin looking for the snowman reported missing by a woman caller this week, but they did know when to start the search.

Police Chief Lawrence Nowery said Mrs. David O'Neal called to say that she and her daughter, with the help of a friend, had constructed a nine-foot snowman Thursday afternoon.

When the family arose Friday, she said, the frozen figure was missing.

"This has got to be a first," said Nowery. "We'll issue an all-points bulletin and just hope we can clear the case before warm weather."

In an interview, Bagge said the industry will try to convince the Carter administration that the best way to increase production is to forget federal action and rely on state regulation.

Environmentalists are still working out their strategy. Louise Dunlop of the Environmental Policy Center, an environmental lobbyist, says they likely will work to strengthen the bill to require more extensive reclamation, and to ban strip mining in western alluvial valleys, often prime agricultural land, and on the steep slopes of eastern mountains.

Over half of U.S. coal production comes from strip mines. Western coal, with its low sulfur content, burns cleaner and therefore is more desirable.

Pirates Look For First Conference, Road Victory

East Carolina University's Pirates, still looking for their first wins both on the road and in the Southern Conference, get a chance at both Tuesday night when they visit Davidson.

The game will send one of the two teams into sole possession of the basement in the conference. Both enter the game with 0-2 league records. East Carolina has been defeated by defending champion VMI and The Citadel, while Davidson has lost to Appalachian, and Saturday night, bowed to Furman, 69-58. Both of those games were played on the Wildcat courts (ASU in Davidson, and Furman in Charlotte Coliseum).

Davidson sports only a 2-11 record overall, while the Pirates are 5-6.

"They gave Furman a very good game," East Carolina Coach Dave Patton said. "And you always hate to go in to face a team that's on a losing streak. It will be a very difficult game, but I think if we can play like we did Saturday night, we will be okay."

That might seem like a strange statement from a coach who saw his team lose to Richmond, 72-62, but Patton did feel that his Pirates played a good game in the defeat.

"The biggest disappointment was our free throw shooting again. In the last five games, we've only had one game that we shot over 50 per cent from the line. If we had shot the 74 per cent that we started out with, we would have won two of the four we lost, The Citadel and Richmond."

Still, Patton said, he saw some things that he liked in the game. "Right now, I'm more optimistic than I've been all year. One thing that has been hurting this team is not being aggressive or active, and we were Saturday night. This was one of our goals for the game. If we'd had a decent free throw percentage, it would have been a win for us."

Patton was also disappointed in the officiating in the game. "It was the worst we've had this year," he said.

"There were times," he added, "that we could have broken through and taken the lead, but we just couldn't get the ball to fall for us. After being down ten, we came back to within three, and had a chance to cut the lead to one, but we just couldn't hit. Richmond went seven minutes with only one field goal and still was able to hold onto its lead."

Nevertheless, Patton felt that it was the best effort of the Pirates this year. "Given the free throws and good officiating, it would have been a different game. We played good defense, and we didn't have a lot of turnovers except in the first couple of minutes of the game."

Davidson will present somewhat of a different problem. For one thing, the Pirates will be going out of one of the largest coliseums it plays into the smallest it will see during the year.

And the Bucs will be facing one of the best shooters in the south in Davidson's John Gerdy. Prior to this past week's three outings, Gerdy was second in the league with a 20.0 average. Pat Hickert and Rod Owens were also in double figures, Hickert hitting 11.9 and Owens, a freshman, 11.7.

"We've got to keep our poise," Patton said. "We've got to take advantage of our chances, something we haven't done even when we've played well. We've got to cut down on mistakes and we've got to hit our free throws."

"And we have got to start playing some people on human terms. It seems like we can hold down the super stars to a certain extent, but it's the people who haven't been doing the job that do it on us. For Richmond, John Campbell hit five of six shots from the floor and scored 12 points for them. For the year, he'd hit only 27 per cent of his shots and averaged just over two points. How do you explain it."

"But I'm still optimistic, more so than I have been. This team is going to be a fine one before it's over," Patton said.

"They better get us now!"

Game time in Davidson Tuesday night is 8 p.m. The Bucs return home on Saturday to meet Appalachian State.

Oakland Rolls To 32-14 Super Bowl Win

HE TOPPED THE RUSHERS — Running back Clarence Davis (with ball) of Oakland, who led the Super Bowl rushers with 137 yards, takes off behind teammates' blocking Sunday. Davis was named the player of the game by the Associated Press as Oakland took a 32-14 win over Minnesota. (AP Wirephoto)

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — They are starting to call the Super Bowl "Grant's Tomb."

Bud Grant, the Minnesota coach with the emotional ferocity of an iceberg, brought his Vikings out of the frozen tundra for a fourth shot at a National Football League title against a fourth opponent, in Super Bowl XI.

The Oakland Raiders allowed them twice as many points as they ever had scored against Kansas City, Miami or Pittsburgh — and beat them a lot worse than had the Chiefs, Dolphins or Steelers.

"They beat us badly," Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton said after Sunday's 32-14 thumping in the Rose Bowl before a Super Bowl record crowd of 100,421. "But really, what difference does it make if you lose by a point or by 20?"

The scoreboard said they lost by 18, but they really lost by a lot more. Some other numbers are more indicative.

Like the Super Bowl record 429 yards rolled up by the Raiders, surpassing the 358 by Green Bay against Kansas City in 1967.

Like the 266 yards rushing by Oakland to the 71 by the Vikings.

Like the 134 yards in punt and interception returns by Oakland to the 14 by the Vikings.

Like the 21 minutes Oakland controlled the ball during the 30 minutes of the first half, when the Vikings might just as well have pulled off their cleats, tossed in a few towels, gone out and watched the magical Disneyland halftime show from the stands and let the 16-0 score stand as a final result.

The first time the Raiders got the ball, they showed Minnesota just what they could do with it — which was just about whatever they pleased.

With Clarence Davis unleashing the opening salvos of a career-high 137 yards rushing, and with Ken Stabler connecting with Dave Casper for the first 25 of his 180 yards passing, Oakland rumbled from its 34-yard line to the Minnesota 11 before Errol Mann missed a 29-yard field goal attempt, kicking the ball into the left upright.

If the Vikings wanted to do anything when they had the ball, they were keeping it a secret. But they had a not-so-secret weapon at their disposal and, with about five minutes to go in the first period, they unveiled it — just as they had 15 times during the regular season.

In four full seasons, punter Ray Guy of the Raiders never had a kick blocked. Fred McNeill took care of that, steaming in from the left side of the Minnesota line, and at about the Oakland 25-yard line, swatting it back toward the goal line.

It bounced lazily toward what seemed to be a Minnesota touchdown — then suddenly bounced back. McNeill pounced on it at the three. It would take only a couple of plays, it seemed, for Minnesota to do something big.

That was right — sort of. On the first play, Chuck Foreman punched into the line for one yard. On the second play, Brent McClanahan tried it. He lost a yard, and when he ran into middle guard Dave Rowe, McClanahan lost the ball, too.

Inside linebacker Willie Hall grabbed it, the Vikings remained pointless and, unbeknownst to anyone, Oakland was about to move out and never look back.

On third-and-seven at the Oakland six, Davis turned the left corner and did not stop running until 35 yards later. A Stabler pass of 11 yards to Carl Garrett, a 25-yard pass to Casper and quickly, the Raiders were on the Minnesota seven. Again they failed to get a touchdown, but this time they got Mann's 24-yard field goal.

"If you have to pick one play of theirs that made a big difference to us," Raiders Coach John Madden said of McNeill's block and McClanahan's fumble, "it would have to be them giving up the ball right after the way they had gotten it. And then, of course, our busting away when we had our backs to the wall and winding up with some points when they were expecting to get some. That had to knock a little bit of the air out of them."

If that drive did not do it, the next two certainly did.

After the field goal, Minnesota again went where it had been going throughout the first period: nowhere. A Neil Clabo punt gave the Raiders the ball at their 36. Stabler hit a couple of short passes, Davis and Mark van Eeghen ran for a couple of short gains, then Stabler and Casper hooked up for 19 yards, Garrett stutterstepped for 13 more and Fred Bilet-nikoff caught a pass just shy of the goal.

It seemed time for a run, but Stabler sent Casper out into the left corner of the end zone — all alone, as it turned out. The nearest Vikings player was a distant five yards away when the big tight end caught the one-yard touchdown pass.

Now about seven minutes remained in the first half with Oakland ahead 10-0. Minnesota got the ball, went nowhere again, and punted. Neil Colzie ran the kick back 25 yards to the Vikings' 35.

One run by Davis, and two by van Eeghen gobbled up 17 yards and Stabler's pass to Biletnikoff produced 17 more. Again the ball was at the Minnesota one — and then it was over the goal line on Pete Banaszak's plunge through right tackle.

Mann missed the extra point — this time he nicked the right upright. But so what?

Instead of coming back, the Vikings dropped back, to 19-0 on Mann's 40-yard field goal with about five minutes to go in the third period.

That is when Tarkenton and the Vikings finally woke up. It was Oakland linebacker Ted Hendricks who helped wake them by running into Clabo during a punt and allowing Minnesota to keep the ball.

Tarkenton, who had completed only five of 12 passes for 59 yards in the first half, clicked on tosses of 15 yards to tight end Stu Voigt, 21 to wide receiver Ahmad Rashad, 10 to Foreman and, finally, eight yards to rookie wide receiver Sammy White for the touchdown.

It came with 47 seconds left in the third period.

The next time Tarkenton tried to pass, Hendricks chased him halfway across the field. A poor throw was picked off by Hall and returned 16 yards to the Oakland 46.

On the third play after the turnover, Stabler flipped the ball from midfield to the Vikings' 35, where Biletnikoff gathered it in and raced to the two before being hauled down. Banaszak's TD run on the next play was anticlimactic.

It also was the killer. The Vikings really were in trouble, trailing 26-7 with 7½ minutes to play. Two minutes later, they were trailing 32-7 when Brown stepped in front of another desperation Tarkenton toss and raced a Super Bowl record 75 yards with the interception for a touch-

Davis Player Of Game

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The names Mike Garrett, O.J. Simpson, Anthony Davis and Ricky Bell bring to mind the top running backs in recent years at the University of Southern California, but none has yet to achieve what Clarence Davis had done.

With 16 electrifying runs, some key blocks and a bearful of enthusiasm, the 5-foot-10 running back led Oakland's Raiders to a Super Bowl title Sunday in a 32-14 victory over Minnesota, and for his efforts was named Player of the Game by The Associated Press.

Davis, who weighs in at 195, gained 137 yards. He had 118 after three periods as the Raiders built a 19-7 lead and had taken command of the game. By that time, the Raiders had firmly established their rushing game, "to keep them honest," said Davis.

"I must say this is the best game of my pro career," said Davis, who once ran for 120 yards in an NFL game.

"The job was all done up front," he said. "Our offensive line doesn't get that much credit, but this shows how really good they are."

But Davis wasn't all modesty when he said, "This is everything in your football career. You try to get to the Super Bowl, you try to win, you try to become the top rusher, and I think, without a doubt in my mind, I was the top rusher today."

Davis matriculated at Southern Cal from East Los Angeles

Junior College, where in 1968 he broke Simpson's national rushing record with 1,582 yards. But when he enrolled at USC, he was following two years of shouts "O.J., O.J." and the name Clarence Davis didn't have the same dramatic ring.

"I had some better days than this in college, some 200-yard days," he said Sunday, "but nothing compares to this." Davis gained much of his yardage to the left side, and he explained, "You have to give the line credit. We ran to that side where there are guys like (Art) Shell, (Gene) Upshaw and (Dave) Casper. That gives me three all-pros to run behind. They do their job and my job is easy."

Keydets Reaching Peak

By The Associated Press
Virginia Military's defending champion Keydets appear to be hitting a peak just in time to begin their drive for the regular season title and a bye in the opening round of the Southern Conference basketball tournament.

The Keydets, 9-1 over-all, posted their eighth victory in a row Saturday night at the expense of small college Emory and Henry, routing the Wasps 107-71, as they warmed up for tonight's invasion by Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 5-5. Appalachian fell out of the league lead Saturday when the Mountaineers, now 2-1 in the conference, dropped a 68-63 regionally televised decision to William and Mary's Indians, 2-1 and 6-5.

That left VMI and Furman's Paladins, who opened their league season with a 69-58 triumph over Davidson's Wildcats, tied for the conference lead at 1-0. Bringing up the rear at 0-2 are Davidson and East Carolina's Pirates, who fell to 5-6 over-all in a 72-62 defeat by Richmond's former league member Spiders, 6-6.

Of the three new title-ineligible members, Tennessee-Chattanooga, 9-2, was the only Saturday night winner, beating Eastern Illinois 101-80. Marshall, 4-8, lost to Jacksonville 96-91 and Western Carolina, 2-6, was whipped by Georgia Southern 88-72.

William and Mary plays tonight at Virginia, 5-4, of the Atlantic Coast Conference and The Citadel's Bulldogs, 5-5—the only team idle Saturday night—goes to Charleston Baptist. Western Carolina plays host to North Carolina A&T in tonight's other game. The Indians turned back Appalachian and avenged an earlier defeat even though they learned just before the game that Ron Satterthwaite, an All-Southern choice as a sophomore and a second-team selection last year, had been declared ineligible academically.

Coach George Balanis called on his reserves, the "gold" team, to hold off the Mountaineers while he rested his regulars for a spell, and they did just that. "I go to our gold unit when I feel like the team is flat," said Balanis.

But the real hero for the Indians was Matt Courage, who jammed six of his 23 points into a brief span midway the second half that sent the Indians ahead for good.

Calvin Bowser had 19 points and Tony Searcy 14 for Appalachian, which closed the gap to 62-61 with 2:13 left before John Kratzer's layup and two free throws by Lowenhaupt wrapped it up for the Indians.

Furman's hopes of regaining the title it won three years in a row before last season have taken a turn upward with the return of Bruce Grimm, a freshman star for the Paladins who transferred to Providence but then came back.

Grimm, whose appearance in the last three games has been his first in 2½ years at Furman, scored 21 points as the Paladins, 6-4, over-all, pulled away in the second half to beat Davidson, which has won just twice in 13 starts.

Freshman Jonathan Moore and John Cottingham scored 14 points each for the Paladins. Davidson's John Gerdy had a game-high 22.

VMI, which won the prestigious All-College tournament in Oklahoma City in the week after Christmas, had its second laugh of the week against Emory and Henry.

Ron Carter scored 19 points, Dave Montgomery 14 and Will Bynum, John Krovic and Jeryl Salmond 13 each for the Keydets. Montgomery also grabbed 14 rebounds. East Carolina never got closer than three points against Richmond in the second half as Craig Sullivan and Jeff Butler scored points each and Mike Dow and John Campbell 12 apiece for the Spiders.

Herb Gray had 16 points and Larry Hunt 13 points and 13 rebounds for the Pirates. "It got a little sloppy at times, we let them get back close, but every time it got close, we came up with some baskets," said Richmond Coach Carl Stone.

Coach Dave Patton of East Carolina said "that's the way it's been all year. We'd get it back, then make mistakes."

THE CRITICAL PLAY — Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff catches a Ken Stabler pass on the Minnesota one-yardline in what his coach, John Madden, said may have been the critical play of the game. Jeff Wright (left) and another Viking safety come up too late. Oakland scored on the next play. (AP Wirephoto)

Oakland Defeats Minnesota

down. So devastating was that blow that it knocked Tarkenton out of the game.

"We conferred on the sidelines and decided that it was in order, since we had no chance to win the game at that point," said Tarkenton, who wound up completing 17 of 35 passes for 205 yards.

Bob Lee came on and got Minnesota's final touchdown, on a 13-yard pass to Voigt with 25 seconds to play.

There were varying explanations in the Minnesota locker room on why the Vikings were so thoroughly beaten — but they all sounded similar.

"We just didn't play any football at all," said the dejected Tarkenton, who virtually had guaranteed a Vikings victory a couple of weekends ago after Minnesota had beaten Los Angeles for the National Football Conference title.

"I think we were ready to play and had sufficient emotion to be ready to play — yet, when you come right down to it, we didn't make a single big play all day except for the blocked punt. And when we didn't score after that play, it hurt," Tarkenton said.

What hurts more, no doubt, is that the Vikings now are the only team in the NFL still wearing a "Can't-win-the-big-one" collar. The Raiders had worn one — until Sunday.

Before then, they had won eight American Football Conference division titles in nine years but had made it to the Super Bowl only once and had lost that game 33-14 to Green Bay nine years ago.

Their ninth AFC West title led to the conference title two weeks ago with a victory over two-time Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh — and finally to this ultimate step.

"They can't say it any more, that we can't win the big one," said Madden.

How do you hit a free throw? Now that's a good question.

It's also a problem the East Carolina Pirates are having. It's nothing new. It happens to teams all the time. It is a mental frame of mind that a team gets into that is hard to break out of.

Eventually things will snap back into position and the Bucs will be okay at the line. Right now, every miss just seems to drive them nuts.

"It's a problem that I've never had before," Coach Dave Patton said. "I really don't know how to approach it. I've never had teams that were outstanding shooters at the free throw line, but I've never had them this bad before either. They've always been adequate."

Patton added that missed free throws have cost the Pirates at least three losses in their six games that have been defeats.

As a team, the Bucs are shooting close to 65 per cent for the season. They started out well, hitting better than 75 per cent in the first six games. But since then, it's been a downhill plunge.

Practice isn't the answer. The players can sit in the gym and sink shot after shot.

Some years back, when Wendell Carr was coaching the Pirates, the Bucs had the same problem. And it cost them too.

Carr said he didn't know how to cure it. "It's something that you should be able to do automatically," he said, "even blindfolded."

Carr added that he felt anyone should be able to take a few practice shots at the line, then be blindfolded and hit 75 out of 100. And to prove it, he took a few shots from the line at Christenberry Gym, closed his eyes and made a number in a row.

Thirteen years later, ECU assistant Billy Lee did the same thing the other day for the Pirates. He hit 10 of 11 shots with his eyes closed.

"Maybe our guys should try that," I jested to Patton.

"I don't know what the answer is," he replied, "but we've got to snap out of it soon. It's a mental thing that the guys just have to get over on their own. Confidence is the main factor."

Right now, too, Patton feels that a victory, especially one of the road, would do wonders for the team. "We really need to blow someone right off the court. We're one the verge of putting it all together now, and that could do it for us."

Well, Bucs, there's no time like Tuesday night.

Jerry Pate Wins

PHOENIX (AP) — Jerry Pate had a goal for himself when he set out on the pro golf tour this year.

"I want to do better than last year," he said.

That's a tall order. Last year he put together perhaps the most spectacular rookie season since Jack Nicklaus in 1962. He won the U.S. Open, the Canadian Open and the Pacific Masters in Japan. His $153,102 was the most ever for a first-year man.

But now, a playoff winner over Dave Stockton in the Phoenix Open, the first event of the season, the 23-year-old Pate has a running start toward that goal.

"Now I want to win one of the majors. I'd love to win the Masters. It's in the South, in the state I was born in. I'd really like to win that one," he said.

This one didn't come easily. "There was a lot of pressure on me," Pate said. "I was rookie of the year, and co-player of the year. I'd led for the second and third rounds. I had a chance to prove myself, prove that last year wasn't all luck, and I almost threw it away."

He once dropped three strokes off the pace in the cold final round that was delayed 2½ hours by frost and frozen greens.

"On the 13th I just stopped and had a little talk with myself," he said. "I told myself, 'hey, come on. Get your act together. Don't blow it.'"

He birdied the 14th while Stockton bogeyed the 14th and 15th. That put them all square. They parred in to a 277, seven under par on the 6,726 yard Phoenix Country Club course. Stockton, the PGA champion and Pate's partner in the recent World Cup competition, finished with a 72. Pate had a last round, two-over-par 73.

San Francisco: New Star In The West

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The sun doesn't set on UCLA anymore. There's a new star rising in the West.

The San Francisco Dons have replaced the Bruins this year as the No. 1 team in California, to say nothing of the rest of the country.

While the perennial Pacific-8 champions have already lost two games this season, the Dons are 17-0, an admirable record that has been forged on a tough, road-oriented schedule.

"We only played six games at home out of the first 17," says San Francisco Coach Bob Gaillard. "We did this intentionally to give our kids experience."

The latest road triumph was an 81-63 romp over Seattle Saturday night, giving the Dons their second victory in West Coast Athletic Conference play.

Elsewhere in college basketball, No. 3 Kentucky edged Vanderbilt 64-62; No. 4 Alabama beat Louisiana State 80-77; No. 5 Michigan turned back Wisconsin 66-63; No. 6 North Carolina routed Virginia 91-67; No. 7 UCLA whipped Oregon State 83-66 and No. 8 Nevada-Las Vegas hammered Cal State-Northridge 112-72.

Tenth-ranked Wake Forest tripped No. 15 Maryland 86-85 in overtime Saturday, but the Terps rebounded to beat North Carolina State 87-80 on Sunday; No. 12 Marquette whipped South Carolina 65-54; No. 13 Minnesota downed Iowa 78-68; No. 14 Louisville stopped Tulane 90-81; No. 16 Clemson walloped Georgia Tech 98-69; No. 17 Providence trimmed Massachusetts 68-62; No. 18 Arkansas turned back Houston 81-70; No. 19 Syracuse outscored American 90-68 and No. 20 Memphis State routed MacMurray College 109-55.

James Hardy scored 25 points and Bill Cartwright added 22 to lead San Francisco's first triumph in Seattle in four years.

Kentucky had a tougher time with Vanderbilt in their Southeastern Conference game. The Wildcats needed Rick Robey's layup with eight seconds left for the victory. Kentucky had held the ball for one shot after Vanderbilt tied the game at 62 with 1:08 remaining.

In another SEC game, Alabama defeated Louisiana State behind a 23-point, nine-rebound performance by Reggie King. At one point in the first half, the Crimson Tide trailed 24-12, but Don Bowerman and King led an eight-point burst just before halftime that brought Alabama within 36-35. A three-point play put Alabama ahead at the beginning of the second half and the Tide led the rest of the way.

Rickey Green scored 22 points, 13 in the final eight minutes, as Michigan beat Wisconsin and improved its record to 9-1.

Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford combined for 45 points to lead North Carolina over Virginia.

David Greenwood and Marques Johnson scored 19 points apiece, leading UCLA over Oregon State. Led by forward Glen Gondrezick's 23 points, six players scored in double figures as Nevada-Las Vegas outclassed Cal State-Northridge.

Skip Brown's free throw with three seconds remaining in overtime gave Wake Forest a tight victory over Maryland Saturday night. The Terps recovered with Sunday's victory over North Carolina State behind Brad Davis' 26 points.

Marquette won its fifth straight game as Butch Lee scored 18 points. A 20-point performance by Ray Williams led Minnesota over Iowa.

TRYING FOR TWO — South Carolina's Chuck Sherwood (44) tries to sink a jump shot over the arms of Marquette's Bo Ellis during action in the first half of their game Saturday in Milwaukee. Sherwood missed the shot and South Carolina lost the contest, 65-54. (AP Wirephoto)

Portland, Seattle Not Hospitable

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Pacific Northwest is a must to avoid for National Basketball Association teams.

Portland and Seattle again proved themselves to be most inhospitable hosts Sunday night, both clubs setting scoring records — Portland on offense, Seattle on defense.

The Trail Blazers, led by Dave Twardzik and Bill Walton, routed the San Antonio Spurs 150-113 before a near-sell-out crowd of 11,751 at Portland. The Sonics, meanwhile, silenced the New Orleans Jazz 92-76 before a full house of 14,098 at Seattle.

In the only other NBA game Sunday, the Los Angeles Lakers rallied to defeat the Detroit Pistons 124-118 before a national television audience.

The high-flying Blazers, who raised their home record to 22-1 and their over-all mark to 27-13, eclipsed their team record of 146 points set earlier this season against Philadelphia.

Portland led all the way, moving in front 70-44 at the half. Coach Jack Ramsay used reserves for most of the second half, and they did even better, scoring 80 points.

Twardzik and Walton scored 22 and 21 points, respectively, while rookie forward Wally Walker added 19, his pro high. Walton also had 15 rebounds, five assists and five blocked shots, even though he did not play most of the second half.

Sonics 92, Jazz 76

The 76 points was the fewest allowed by Seattle in its 10 NBA seasons. The Sonics also held NBA scoring leader Pete Maravich to 12 points, 18 below his average. The Jazz shot 36 per cent from the field, and Maravich was just six for 28.

Offensively, Seattle was led by guard Fred Brown's 26 points.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Sonics and seventh in their last eight games. Their home record is 18-3, compared to 4-16 on the road.

Lakers 124, Pistons 118

The Lakers, outscored 42-22 in the third quarter and trailing 94-83, went to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Cazzie Russell in overcoming the Pistons in the final period. Abdul-Jabbar scored 15 of his 28 points in the last 12 minutes, while Russell scored 10 of his game-high 35 points in the fourth quarter.

Accept Possible Risks In Salt

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Using rock salt to clear highways of ice and snow may pose some environmental dangers, a state official concedes, but North Carolinians who travel in winter are willing to take the risk.

In some cases they have to, says Dennis W. Patrick, chief engineer for the state Highway Division, because there often is no other way to keep roads open.

The virtues and evils of rock salt as a road clearing technique are vigorously debated each year, and this one is no different.

The Salt Institute has issued a new study which claims rock salt saves lives by preventing accidents and cutting the time it takes for medical help to reach an accident scene.

The institute estimates savings at 472 lives each year and $18.4 billion in property damage and fuel consumption, which the study says increases by 50 per cent in two inches of snow.

But the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has commissioned its own study which claims that rock salt corrodes highways and rusts roads to the tune of $2.7 billion, which doesn't include alleged health hazards caused by runoff of sodium chloride into water supplies.

Patrick says he's heard all this before, but nobody has ever told him how to keep winter roads cleared without salt.

North Carolina road crews use a mixture of salt and sand or fine gravel on most of the state's primary highway system, including the interstates, whenever ice forms or snow reaches depths of an inch or greater.

Banning use of salt would multiply cost of road clearing four or five times, Patrick says, because sand and gravel are scarce in the western portion of the state where they would be needed most and where conditions sometimes get so bad that no amount of anything but salt would do the trick.

"Basically, the environmentalists only offer complaints," Patrick says. "We have given this every consideration and we have yet to come up with anything else that would suffice."

Patrick says the Salt Institute claim that salt saves lives is correct. And he says eliminating its use without a suitable substitute would be politically impossible.

"We've been doing it for years," he says. "And I expect we'll continue to do it because the motoring public demands it."

More Gas Goes Underground

NEW YORK (AP) — Increased demand for natural gas — which currently accounts for 30 per cent of the nation's energy needs compared to only 7 per cent in 1947 — has intensified the search for underground cavities for gas storage, reports "The Compass," a publication of MOAC, a commercial marine insurance company.

"Underground storage capacity has increased by more than 50 per cent since 1965," says Compass. "Currently some 368 reservoirs in 26 states hold more than 6.3 trillion cubic feet of gas.

"While storage won't solve the immediate problem of dwindling gas supplies in the United States," says the magazine, "it has enabled local companies to add new customers to their systems instead of turning them away or forcing them to wait on line as they had to do during the 1950s."

Dead Guests On See Hepatitis

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A talk show host of bygone days, Steve Allen is doing something new. He's a talk show host of bygone days.

"I hope the program will infuriate some people," he says. "We will have achieved our wildest success to the extent we infuriate people."

The program is called "Meeting of Minds," and the guests will not be the likes of Zsa Zsa Gabor, Tony Randall or Joyce Brothers.

Nor will his "guests" — and that's what Allen calls them — be deadly bore, he says. They will, however, be dead.

And the boredom level will be entirely in Allen's hands, for he created the program and wrote the lines from material already published. The first of six 60-minute programs already completed will be seen over PBS Jan. 10 at 8 p.m. EST.

Allen's "guests," played by actors such as Alexander Scourby, will be Cleopatra, Thomas Aquinas, Thomas Paine, Theodore Roosevelt, Marie Antoinette, Sir Thomas More, Karl Marx, Ulysses S. Grant, Attila the Hun, Galileo Galilei, Emily Dickinson and Charles Darwin.

What he has tried to create is a "theater of ideas that would be entertaining and yet would stimulate the viewer to think himself by introducing him to or reminding him of important thinkers and doers of history."

Americans don't think enough, haven't become well enough informed and aren't therefore very active participants in their democracy, Allen says.

"It is such concerns that cause me to devote so much time to 'Meeting of Minds,'" he adds. "It can help stimulate popular interest in the problems and a rational way of thinking about them."

The talk show takes place in a kind of a living room at a round table. Guests come down a flight of stairs, as if from heaven, rather than through a parted curtain.

The program's path to national television has been a tortuous one at best. Allen, whose "Laughback" show of highlights from past broadcasts is now in syndication, has been trying for 17 years to get "Meeting of Minds" on the air.

A segment with Freud, Hegel, Montaigne and Aristotle was canceled before it could air on the "Steve Allen Show" one Sunday night in 1959. Then the syndicator of a national talk show he was doing in 1971 kept it off the air everywhere but in Los Angeles, where it won three local Emmy awards.

water-borne viruses such as infectious hepatitis. It is the inability to monitor viruses in water that has scientists and public health researchers increasingly concerned about water safety standards.

"We're not waving a red flag," says Dr. D. Gordon Sharp, a bacteriologist in the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. "We don't know necessarily that water-borne viruses are a tremendous hazard. But we do know that there are certain cases where virus epidemics have definitely been traced to bad water."

Sharp, a professor of bacteriology and immunology, says he has studied viruses for more than 40 years. Currently, his research is focused on the well documented polio virus which, like infectious hepatitis, can be transmitted through water.

Sharp and Dr. Don Johnson, a professor in the department of environmental science and engineering in the School of Public Health, are working on a project that is part of a national research program.

The goal of the program is to improve the world's water supply.

Their work is funded by a three-year grant from the Environmental Protection Agency.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Some 50,000 Americans, complaining of fever, loss of appetite, headaches and upset stomachs, will come down with infectious hepatitis this year, according to medical averages.

Most will recover from the liver ailment, but it will be expensive and recovery will mean the loss of weeks, and occasionally months, from job or school.

The culprit is polluted water. Since 1919, when chlorine first was added to a water supply in Jersey City, N. J., bacteria-related diseases like cholera, dysentery and typhoid have been essentially eliminated.

But chlorination of water has not meant the end of polluted water.

Scientists have learned that acceptable levels of chlorine used to kill bacteria in water do not necessarily eliminate

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime can have all sorts of problems for you and especially if you try to push your desires where others are concerned or make mistakes in word or writings. However, the evening finds you able to get others to go along with your standpoints and especially if you let them know you like and value their best points.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show care where any matters with associates are concerned. Changes are not good until evening. Any social invitations extended you should be accepted. Dress nicely, say little.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle duties efficiently and you gain the goodwill of others during the day. Take needed health treatments in the afternoon. Make new plans for the future so that you improve your position in life. Be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show more affection for those with whom you want to enjoy yourself at recreations later. Showing finest creative talents to others is wise in the evening. Avoid a talker who wastes your time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take it easy at home or there could be some difficult arguments there. Handle business matters wisely during the daytime. Don't neglect to pay bills.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be very careful on the road and in motion of all kinds. Take care you do not lose your temper with others in daytime. Then evening is pleasant.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be careful not to overspend where amusement is concerned during day, or to invest foolishly. By evening your mature judgment is good. A business expert should be consulted and ideas followed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Daytime activities could seem futile but by evening all works out to your benefit. Please good friends and then you can go out socially with fine results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You seem unable to get the information you need during the day, but by evening it is available to you. Take care of pesky chores during the day so you have time for enjoyment in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your friends are acting strangely during day, but don't criticize and then all is okay by evening. It is difficult to gain aims during daytime, but by evening all changes in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Safeguard your reputation during day and then you can have a fine time with friends in the evening. Get together with officials later and discuss important matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Studying into new projects is wise now but wait until evening before coming to any definite decisions. A new acquaintance can be annoying, but other friends can bring you happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you listen to the voice of your intuition as well as follow your finest mature judgment. Don't argue with mate during daytime; you can be happy together in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be anxious to learn early in life and should have a fine academic education. Success here can be phenomenal during the lifetime, especially since there is a particular sweetness in this nature.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK983 ♦AJ95 ♠A852

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♠ 2 ♦
What do you bid now?

A.—Since partner entered the auction freely, you mustn't overlook the possibility of slam. The simplest way to convey your ambitions is by cue-bidding four hearts. If partner can do no more than bid four spades, pass—he cannot have the high cards to cover enough of your losers in the minor suits.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ95 ♥A7 ♦542 ♠AK83

The auction has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Again, a slam seems to be in the wind. The crux of the hand should be partner's diamond holding, and you can alert him to your concern about this suit by jumping over game to five spades. If partner then cue-bids six diamonds, showing first-round control, you should show the ace of hearts in an effort to get to a grand slam.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ10 ♥AK ♦AQ873 ♠95

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Whatever you do could be wrong. Partner could easily have a five-card heart suit, but if you support hearts partner might read you for a singleton club which could have disastrous consequences later in the auction. A rebid of three diamonds would give partner an opportunity to clarify his holding, but if he raises diamonds, you could be past your best spot. All in all, a straight-forward raise to three no trump looks like your best bet.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♥8 ♦KJ76532 ♠Q1063

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—It is difficult to lay down rules for bidding freak distributions, especially when the trick-taking potential of a hand is also hard to estimate. In this case, however, we feel there is more to be gained than lost from taking the bit firmly between your teeth and bidding five diamonds.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ8762 ♥7 ♦93 ♠Q643

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—You have reached the end of your string. If you take another bid, partner would be entitled to expect a more substantial holding from you, either in terms of high cards or suit quality. Any further action by you on this random collection would be a highly risky undertaking.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9763 ♥85 ♦Q873 ♠J74

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 NT Pass Pass
Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Partner has a very good hand—indeed, he probably intended to jump in no trump had you responded. Unfortunately, the location of the high cards will make one no trump very difficult to defeat, so don't be dismayed if you pass and the opponents collect seven or eight trick tricks. At worst, you haven't doubled them into game, and any attempt by you to rescue partner could be very severely punished.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q93 ♥AKQ ♦7 ♠AK10972

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. Despite the wealth of heart honors, we do not recommend a jump raise of partner's suit without four trumps. Consider what will happen if partner has only a four-card suit and the opponents attack with a forcing game in diamonds. Partner cannot really afford to ruff with our master trumps, for then he is liable to lose control of the hand.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♥7 ♦AQJ87532 ♠AQJ9

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Three diamonds. Unless you make an immediate jump shift, you may find it impossible to catch up later. Don't worry about the fact that you are void in partner's suit. Your diamonds are self-sufficient, to say the least. One or two key cards in partner's hand will make an excellent proposition, and you should alert him to this possibility at once.

Testing Plastic Drink Bottles

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The no-deposit, no-return soda bottle, under attack in some areas by environmentalists, is appearing in a new form as manufacturers turn to plastic containers which they say are safer and easier to handle.

Residents of two states, Maine and Michigan, voted last November to join Oregon and Vermont in approving measures designed to eliminate non-returnable beverage containers, including cans and bottles. Residents of Massachusetts and Colorado rejected similar proposals.

At the same time, however, non-returnable soda bottles made of plastic have been introduced on the market in several states.

The Coca Cola Co. has led the way, introducing its first plastic bottle in Providence, R.I., in June, 1975. Plastic Coke bottles holding 32 ounces now are available in parts of five states — Rhode Island, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Indiana — and the company says it is gradually extending the program to cover the whole country.

A spokesman for PepsiCo, meanwhile, refused to confirm or deny a report that Pepsi Cola in 64-ounce plastic bottles will debut next year. He said only that the company had concluded all its tests on plastic packaging, including a test last year of more than one million 32-ounce containers in upstate New York.

A spokesman for Coca Cola said the plastic bottles have been "very popular." He also indicated that the company is not unduly worried by the efforts to ban nonreturnable containers. "Consumers in some areas prefer returnable bottles," he said. "But in some areas they prefer nonreturnable bottles."

Opponents of nonreturnable bottles argue that they contribute to litter and encourage waste of natural resources. They also say beverages sold in returnable containers are cheaper for consumers.

The large bottles, however, are heavy. An empty glass bottle holding 32 ounces of soda weighs 19 ounces compared to two ounces for a similar-size plastic container. The risk of breakage — and injury — increases. The National Electronic Injury Surveillance System of the Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that in the year that ended June 30, hospital emergency rooms treated 12,000 injuries attributable to glass soda bottles.

The Food and Drug Administration, in a report issued in September, said that the trend toward plastic soda bottles had both good and bad points.

On the bright side:

- The plastic bottles will not cause any bigger litter problem than nonreturnable glass bottles.
- Large-size plastic replacing small-size glass bottles will reduce the number of containers thrown away.
- There is little risk of toxic gas being produced when the plastic bottles are incinerated as long as there is sufficient air.

On the negative side:

- If the plastic bottles replace refillable containers, environmental pollution will increase.
- Factories making plastic bottles produce more effluent than those making glass.
- Plastic manufacture requires petroleum.

Wilbur Mills Is Considering Job

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, who resigned from Congress last year after being linked to entertainer Fanne Foxe, may become director of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

Mills "could open doors in this country and Arkansas that no other person could open," Gov. David Pryor said Saturday.

Pryor said Mills, who spent 38 years in the House, is considering the job, which has been vacant since last year.

Book Lady Is Welcome

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — Many of Person County's older residents look forward to visits by the county public library's "outreach" book lady.

Ruth Gravitte's job is to get the books, tapes, puzzles and other materials offered by the library out to senior citizens.

"One elderly lady takes a book every time I come," Mrs. Gravitte said. "But she told me it was not because she wants to read the books. She just wants me to keep visiting her each month."

Mrs. Gravitte has been wheeling her little station wagon full of books to homebound elderly folks about a year. She has been affected by the loneliness of some of the citizens.

"More persons should visit elderly people," she said. "You don't realize how much they desire someone to just come and see them. Some of them are very lonely. They have no way of getting out."

Mrs. Gravitte said one of the most interesting and courageous persons on her visit list is Ruth Holloway, who is blind. She quilts and braids rugs despite her handicap.

"Mrs. Holloway told me the Lord shows her how," Mrs. Gravitte said.

The library's outreach program for the elderly also provides large print books and magazines and other specialized materials to persons with poor eyesight.

MAKE THINGS HAPPEN - YOU WILL BE GLAD YOU DID!

AMC thanks you for the tremendous response to our Pacer $253 Cash Rebate Offer in the best way we know how. By extending the offer.

Since we started our $253 Cash Rebate Program last November, two very good things have happened. We've sold thousands and thousands of Pacers. And we've given away more than $2 1/2 million.

The $253 Cash Rebate offer is good on all new 1976 and 1977 AMC Pacers and Pacer Wagons delivered from dealer stock by March 10 or ordered by February 10. Sorry, but no military or fleet sales are included.

Recognizing that you can't get too much of a good thing, AMC is extending the offer. As a way of thanking you. And with the hopes of selling a lot more Pacers, too.

So now you've got two additional months—until March 10—to take advantage of our offer. All you have to do is pick your Pacer or Pacer Wagon and make your best deal with your AMC dealer. AMC will send you the $253. Or you can apply the $253 to the down payment. After you've made your best deal, of course.

BUYER PROTECTION PLAN® II
The only full 2-year, 24,000 mile warranty on engine and drive train.
The only full 1-year or 12,000 mile warranty protecting everything else on your car except tires.
