Greenville Utilities Add Good And Bad News To Natural Gas-User Cost For N.C. Assembly

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

Greenville Utilities added a tracking cost to gas during December and Director Charles Horne said that further increases are anticipated.

A tracking cost is a charge added locally to cover additional costs passed on by the suppliers. Horne said the average cost per million cubic feet for gas is up 51 percent over last year.

The commission meeting Tuesday night, approved a resolution accepting a state grant for water system improvements. The grant comes from the N. C. Department of Human Resources from Clean Water bonds. The amount is $38,948 and the funds will be used for water line extensions and the drilling of a new deep well.

Also passed was a resolution awarding the contract for a new deep well to Layne-Atlantic Co. The amount is $56,600. The resolutions notes the project was advertised twice and only one bid was received.

The commissioners considered the purchase of a sub compact pick up truck for meter readers. The truck was recommended by Director Horne as an energy saving experiment. City Manager Jim Caldwell pointed out that the purchase should be legally advertised and action was postponed until this is done.

Commissioners approved replacement of a section of the Fieldcrest sewer outfall line for $15,000. The work will be done by the Utilities crews and the line will extend from the Fieldcrest Mills area to Evans Street.

Horne reported that a higher fuel adjustment charge is anticipated for the next several months. A letter from Virginia Electric and Power Co., Greenville Utilities electric supplier, said that nuclear generation decreased in October, November and December. The increased cost will be reflected in the fuel charge for the next few months.

Materials and equipment contracts awarded during December were:

- Westinghouse, for conduit, $4,528.
- Westinghouse, duct sweeps, $308.
- Westinghouse, wire, $10,654.95.
- Westinghouse, aluminum wire, $17,773.50.
- HESCO, transformers, $12,588.
- Westinghouse, transformer, $3,800.
- HESCO, transformers, $8,280.
- Pheps Chevrolet, Nova Sedan, $4,357.09.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It's a good news and a bad news year for North Carolina legislators as they convene their 1977 General Assembly today.

The good news for the Democratic majority is that they have a compatriot in the Executive Mansion.

The bad news is that inflation is eroding tax dollar spending power, and legislators face a continuing struggle to balance revenues against Gov. Jim Hunt's desire to upgrade state programs and services.

Money will be the legislature's central concern, but there will be sideshows aplenty to divert them:

—New legislation to reestablish the death penalty for first degree murder and first degree rape will be among the earliest headline contenders this year.

—Advocates of the Equal Rights Amendment are ready to make another strong bid for ratification. A close vote is expected, with Hunt and House Speaker Carl Stewart, D-Gastonia, in favor and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green opposed.

—Liquor-by-the-drink, always good for an exciting floor fight, is on the agenda again, with contenders on both sides already promising death struggles.

—Hunt will press for constitutional amendments which would give the governor veto powers and permit them to run for consecutive terms, a measure on which his political future hinges and which, with his help, is expected to marshal greater support than it has in the past.

After their swearing-in today, House members will elect Stewart speaker and Sen. John Henley will be reelected Senate majority leader.

Democrats hold 114 of the 120 House seats and 46 seats in the 50-member Senate.

"We're so pleased to have a chief executive we can work with and I know the Republican minority will work with us too," Henley said Tuesday.

One potential friction point is what Henley calls the "difference in philosophies" between Hunt and Green.

"But both of them have told me that they'll be trying to work together," he said. "And I'll be in the middle helping them."

Frigid Cold Across N.C. As Energy Crisis Builds

By The Associated Press

Temperatures plunged to frigid levels again early today as the latest cold snap hung on tenaciously, but if it's any consolation, the National Weather Service said it would not be quite so cold later in the day as it was yesterday.

High temperatures by afternoon were expected to range mostly in the 30s, and even climb to the 40s in the south-east.

Some overnight low readings this morning included 5 degrees at Asheville, 7 at Greensboro, and 8 at Raleigh, which was a new low for the date for the state capital.

Hickory recorded 9 degrees, Elizabeth City and Rocky Mount 15, Charlotte, Fayetteville and Goldsboro 16, and Wilmington 17.

The mercury did not climb above freezing Tuesday over a wide area of North Carolina, holding to a high of 25 at Greensboro, 26 at Asheville and 28 at Raleigh and Rocky Mount.

Driving still was hazardous over a wide area of the mountains. Main roads were generally open but required caution for icy spots and secondary roads were described as treacherous.

Schools remained closed in a number of mountain counties, including Surry, Wilkes, Yadkin, Forsyth, Watauga, Ashe, Alleghany, Caldwell and Stokes, and in Elkin, Madison-Mayodan, Mount Airy and Eden.

Meanwhile, the state's burgeoning energy crisis remained as the continued bitter cold pushed energy use to record levels.

Pipes burst, 2nd graf

Pipes burst, heaters caught fire and one man froze to death in Wilson County, as the cold snap that followed the week-end's winter storm refused to budge.

Duke Power Co. reported Tuesday its customers drained more than 9.1 million kilowatts from its system, about 1 million above the previous record.

Duke also funneled half a million kilowatts to the Tennessee Valley Authority, caught in the cold with four plants out of service.

Carolina Power & Light Co. customers also set a new record — more than 5.1 million kilowatts, about 42,000 kilowatts above the previous high.

The gas situation also remained critical, with industrial users facing severe curtailments. A Thursday Federal Power Commission hearing was to decide whether the state might get emergency supplies from Texas.

Gov. Jim Hunt and U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., both said they would be at the hearing.

Ocracoke Island's 650 residents and another 2,000 on Hatteras Island were still shivering in cold imposed on them by breakdown of a power cable.

What energy was available from auxiliary generators had to be shared, and many residents had been without hot meals or baths since Sunday, not to mention heat and light.

"We can keep wrapped up warm in bed, if nothing else," said 66-year-old heart patient Sue Fleig.

"I've never been so cold in my life," said Durham attorney William Y. Manson, on Hatteras Island for a week of goose hunting. "Last night I had so many blankets on I couldn't turn over. I'm leaving. I can't take it."

Five Men Held Here On Rape, Assault Charges

Five Farmville area men are in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond following their arrests early today on charges stemming from the rape of a 23-year-old Rt. 8, Greenville woman.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the five are charged with raping the woman after forcing their way into her home Tuesday between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Charged with first degree rape, first degree burglary, and assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury were Alton Ray Curmon, 17, of 906 George Street, Farmville; Roy Lee Barnes, 21, of 404 Action Place, Farmville; Sylvester Joyner, 19, of 107 Nicksnook Street, Farmville; Rhoderick Thomas Joyner, 16, of 107 Nicksnook Street, Farmville; and Roy Chester Ebron, 23, of Rt. 2, Box 141-F, Farmville.

Sheriff Tyson said that the victim, who had a three-year-old child at home, reported the five men went to her house and asked to borrow a chain. She said that when she closed the door and refused to let them in, they forced open the door.

She told officers that all five men raped her and then held a gun at her head and assaulted her after the rape. A gun was also found on the child, the victim

Unemployment Declines; Wholesale Prices Rise

By ROBERT A. DOEKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment declined from 8.1 to 7.9 per cent last month, the government said today, but the good news was offset by another sharp jump in wholesale prices, particularly for food.

Coffee, pork and poultry costs were the chief ingredients in the biggest rise in farm and food prices in eight months and pushed over-all wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a per cent in December. Industrial price increases slowed, with natural gas costs turning down after rapidly increasing for several months.

The improvement in the nation's job picture was an indication the economy is beginning to revive after a summer-fall period of stagnation and rising joblessness. The pause in the business recovery had aroused concern among economists and prompted President-elect Carter to propose a two-year package of tax cuts and rebates and job-creating measures.

The 7.9 per cent unemployment rate in December was still slightly higher than the rate at the beginning of the year, when 7.8 per cent of the labor force was jobless in January.

Unemployment had dropped from a recession peak of 8.9 per cent in May 1975 to a low of 7.3 per cent last May. The rate then started rising and stuck on a plateau of 7.8 to 7.9 per cent from July through October, before jumping to 8.1 per cent in November.

The unemployment rate in 1976 averaged 7.7 per cent for the year, down from 8.5 per cent in 1975.

The Labor Department said the number of Americans unemployed in December dropped by 210,000 to a total of 7.6 million. Total employment rose by 220,000 to a record high of 88.4 million, with most of the increase among adult men.

After holding steady from July to October, total employment has risen by nearly 600,000 over the last two months.

The size of the civilian labor force was virtually unchanged last month at 95.9 million. It had expanded sharply throughout most of the year, rising by 2.8 million workers, the majority of them women.

Within the 7.9 per cent total unemployment rate last month, joblessness declined from 6.5 to 6.2 per cent for men over age 20, and edged down from 7.7 to 7.6 per cent for women over 20. The rate for teenagers declined from 19 to 18.9 per cent.

Unemployment for white workers dropped from 7.4 to 7.1 per cent, while the rate for blacks and other minorities was unchanged at 13.6 per cent.

For the key breadwinner group — heads of households — the rate dropped from 5.4 to 5.2 per cent.

Pitt Property Owners Are Reminded To List For Taxes In January

All property, both real and personal, must be listed for tax purposes during the month of January, Pitt County Tax Supervisor Phillip Michaels reminded today.

Michaels noted that in order to facilitate the listing of property, 15 local listing places are opened each weekday and a half-day on Saturdays during the month. He noted that persons visiting the listing places should bring with them their motor vehicle registration cards and their Social Security number.

"The sooner property is listed, the shorter time it will take," Michaels said.

"In the first week of listing, 23 per cent fewer people listed at the Greenville listing place than last year," he noted. "If the rate of listing does not increase, the lines will be considerably longer than last year at the end of the month," Michaels pointed out.

Michaels said that all business personal property, this year, must be listed at the Greenville office, unless the business uses the mail copy of the abstract sent to them.

The tax official also noted that exempt organizations which have purchased real estate during the past year should visit the Greenville listing place to file an application to exempt that property.

Michaels noted that property purchased by exempt organization in prior years for which an exemption application has already been completed and approved, will require no action other than the normal listing.

The tax official noted that persons 65 or older, or those totally and permanently disabled and unable to work, may qualify for an exemption if they receive less than $7,500 per year.

Michaels explained that the $7,500 income limit includes all Social Security, retirement payments, and any monies received by either husband or wife during the calendar year 1976.

He added that disabled persons must supply a signed statement from a licensed physician verifying the disability.

Republican Party Has Healthy Bank Balance And A Trust Fund

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican party has a healthy bank balance and a $1 million trust fund to pay any leftover bills of a campaign in which President Ford's organization appears to have shortchanged itself.

A party official said $1.8 million raised by the Republican National Committee and earmarked for the Ford campaign went unspent because nobody asked for it.

"If we'd known they weren't going to use it, we could have spent it on congressional campaigns," the official said.

In addition, the Ford campaign apparently spent substantially less than the law allowed in public funds.

The final accounting is not yet complete, and there may still be campaign bills to be paid. Final reports on the expenditures of both President-elect Ford and President-elect Carter are due by Jan. 31.

The reports of unspent Republican campaign funds came Tuesday amid maneuvering over selection of a new GOP national chairman on Friday.

Ford had endorsed James A. Baker III, his former campaign manager, to take over the party chairmanship, but Baker withdrew on Monday, saying it was clear his candidacy would not contribute to Republican unity.

It was evident that rival Republicans were prepared to challenge Baker's management because of the money that went unspent in the close contest with Carter.

But William Greener, spokesman for the President

Ford Committee during the campaign, said that was not a factor in Baker's decision. Greener said no campaign task went undone for lack of funds. He said there was a tendency to hold down spending because of the rigorous limits imposed by the new campaign finance system. "One thing was certain, we weren't going to overspend," he said.

He also said there was no dissatisfaction at the White House with the way Baker managed the campaign and its budget.

STOPLIGHT NEAR NEW SCHOOL?

I'm speaking for the public at Stokes-Pactolus School. We would like for a stoplight to be erected out near the new Wellcome School at the intersection of Rt. 903 and U. S. 13-NC 11. We do not want our children hurt. N. N.

Department of Transportation Division Traffic Engineer Gerald England said in a letter, "The requested signal at Rt 903 has been reviewed in light of the current project on US 13-NC 11. At the time of the project planning and letting, the conditions of traffic volume and accident patterns did not meet the minimum volumes required to warrant signalization. The railroad crossing IS to be signalized with the standard railroad signals. When the project is completed, a new study of this intersection will be conducted IF the intersection becomes a hazardous location."

Pitt County Schools Superintendent Arthur S. Alford said the School Board has "instructed us to make whatever contacts are necessary and possible" to see that every precaution is taken at this intersection that is going to become much, much busier as of next Monday when Stokes-Pactolus students move to Wellcome School.

The Return Of Campus Service League Reports Given Greeks Is On Upswing

By CHARLES J. CANNON
United Press International

College fraternities and sororities which "hit bottom" in the Vietnam war protest years are growing again since student unrest has quieted down.

It's partly a nostalgic return to the days of beer busts and moonlight pinnings, homecomings and floats and drunken toasts to the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."

Fraternity and sorority officials throughout the country claim their organizations, which started losing members in big numbers in 1966, are now on an upswing.

Undoubtedly one reason is there are more students on campus today. But there are other factors as well.

"We heard about all the fun our parents had doing things like this when they were in school and we wanted to do it too," said Martha Bittner as she and her "sisters" were decorating their Pi Beta Phi sorority house for homecoming at Colorado.

"A few years ago, everybody was into drugs and apathy but now it's 'in' to be a cheerleader."

But even some campus "Greeks" don't agree it's a welcome trend.

"I think Greeks are dying out and as far as I'm concerned, I think they should," said Bob Lair, president of Alpha Delta Gamma at Loyola University at New Orleans. "I think they're worthless. I don't think people have time and it costs money, which college students don't like."

And Jerry Gallups, assistant dean of students at Georgia Tech and secretary of the Southeastern Interfraternity Council, said campus social life is on the wane.

"The days of debutante teas are dead," Gallups said.

Nevertheless, membership in fraternities and sororities is growing again.

Jack Anson of Indianapolis, executive director of the National Interfraternity Conference, said fraternities averaged 49 members per chapter at their peak in 1965. He said they "hit bottom" in the Vietnam campus disruption period with an average of only 34 per chapter, but are now back up to an average of 44.

At the same time, Anson said, the number of chapters has increased from about 2,500 at the end of World War II to 3,900 in 1965 and 4,600 today.

In Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Robert L. McKeeman, chairman of the executive committee of the National Panhellenic Conference, said the sororities' membership growth rate dropped to the low of 4 per cent between 1971 and 1973. But there has been a 9.6 per cent increase over the past two years.

There are several reasons, probably.

Fraternity or sorority affiliation often is viewed as a stepping-stone to business or social contacts which could be valuable later in life. Others join simply because mom or dad did.

"The legacy part is still evident at Ole Miss," said David Hall of Memphis, Tenn., vice president of the Interfraternity Council at the University of Mississippi.

Then there is the human trait of needing to belong.

"We all have a need to belong to and participate in exclusive, intensive associations in closed groups, just as we need to engage in mass

The Greenville Service League held its first meeting of the year Monday at Elm Street Recreation Center. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Leon L. Moore Jr., president.

Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, Bloodmobile chairman, reported that 158 pints of blood were collected during the Dec. 8 visit of the Bloodmobile at the Moose Lodge. On Dec. 9, 249 pints of blood were collected at the Bloodmobile's visit to the DuPont Plant. Sixty members assisted during the visits.

Five emergency calls were answered by the Service League during December, according to the report of Mrs. F. L. Longino. Twenty baskets of food were contributed to needy families.

Hospital tray favors and Christmas wreaths were prepared for Pitt Memorial Hospital by a committee headed by Mrs. Don McGlohn. Special decorations for the children's floor of the hospital were also made by the committee. The 4-B and 4-A patient floors were judged winners of the first and second places respectively in the holiday decorating competition participated in by various patient floors and hospital departments.

One wheel chair was furnished a patient by the group in December.

Mrs. William S. Corbitt, sustaining membership representative, announced a coffee for new members at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 18 at the home of Mrs. Charles Howard.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES STATON

Couple Renews Vows On 40th Anniversary

The 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Staton was celebrated Sunday at the Bachelor Benedict Club.

Some seven per cent of all babies in the United States are born with birth defects, according to the March of Dimes, a voluntary agency that supports nationwide research programs into the prevention of birth defects.

The average 65-year-old woman today can expect to live to age 82, says the American Council of Life Insurance, but a 65-year-old man can expect to reach only 78.

The couple renewed their wedding vows in a ceremony performed by Bishop W. L. Jones.

Members of the wedding party included Julius Murphy, best man, Mary J. Murphy, honor attendant, Nicole Streeter, flower girl, and Aaron Barnhill, ring bearer.

Organ music was presented by Roger Ingram and Mrs. Rosa L. Harris.

The couple was greeted by many friends and also remembered with gifts.

POTLUCK PARTY

- Three-Bean Casserole
- Salad Rolls
Fruit Cheese
- THREE-BEAN CASSEROLE
- 1 or 2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 to 4 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- 1 to 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 1/2 cup catchup
- 1/2 cup (or more) red wine
- 16-ounce can dark red kidney beans, well-drained
- 16-ounce can garbanzos, well-drained
- 16-ounce can New England style (no tomato) baked beans, undrained
- 1 pound ready-to-eat turkey ham, cubed
- A few slices onion, separated into rings

In the hot butter gently cook the chopped onion and garlic until onion wilts. In a 2 1/2-quart casserole stir together the sugar, mustard, catchup and wine until sugar dissolves; add the onion-garlic and the remaining ingredients except the onion rings; stir gently but well. Add more wine if necessary to have beans almost covered. Top with onion rings. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbling-hot — 45 to 60 minutes. Makes 8 servings. New Breed Of Father Enjoys 'Mothering' Role

By CONNIE GRZELKA
NEW YORK (AP) — For nearly two years, James Levine crisscrossed the country talking to fathers who have willingly stepped into the shoes of mothers.

The result of those conversations is his recently published book on men and child care, "Who Will Raise the Children? New Options for Fathers (and Mothers)." In it, Levine examines what he terms a new phenomenon in the United States — the growing number of men who have a taste for fulltime fatherhood.

These men, says Levine, include househusbands, single men who have decided to adopt, men who have sought and won child custody and men who arrange to work parttime so they'll have more time with their young children.

In his travels for the book, Levine spoke with more than 120 men who have taken a different view of family living.

The 30-year-old Levine, who is married and the father of two, is a consultant on day care and child care in Wellesley, Mass.

Given the newness of the idea of men as fulltime givers of child care, the author said in an interview here that few statistics are available on how many men have taken to what he calls "parenting."

Numbers are important, he asserts, "but we can't hang this on numbers alone — it's much more of a conceptual phenomenon. We've always thought of women in child-rearing roles and the fact that men are doing this is something new in itself."

Available figures show that 13 per cent of families in the United States are headed by single parents and 8 per cent are headed by men, Levine states.

The study he conducted with the aid of a Ford Foundation grant yielded this finding: A man's role reversal from family provider to child rearer needn't portend disaster — but can be a viable, effective choice that offers a fresh approach to family living.

Etching a profile of the man who typifies this new breed of father, Levine says he has found him to be:

"Very independent minded, with a lot of ego strength and self-assuredness; open-minded and flexible; supportive of the women's movement; and usually somewhere between his late 20s and early 40s."

Levine then lists the benefits he feels focused fatherhood offers to the family unit.

The bonus for parents, he says, is a "wider range of choices which lets them arrive at lifestyles that work for both the mother and father. If parents have more choices about what they want to do, the quality of child care improves."

A major plus for the father, Levine continues, "is deriving an understanding of what women's lives are like, especially in terms of taking care of another person. A man also can develop an emotional closeness with his children, which many men can't express now."

Mothers benefit because more choices open up for them in terms of new jobs and educational opportunities and other ways of fulfilling themselves as individuals, says Levine.

"Women who feel that child-rearing is their responsibility and that they must succeed as mothers will be relieved of some of their guilt," he maintains.

The child gains "by experiencing a breakdown of many barriers." The author adds:

"It's important for kids to see more men in nurturing roles — for them to see that it's okay to be caring and to be a male. This can have a big effect on kids' lives. When they see their parents share feelings as well as tasks, children can only become more flexible."

YEAR-END RESULTS and NEW YEAR HOPES

How have you and your family fared as consumers in 1976?

- Did you acquire the goods and services needed?
- Are your finances in the "black" — that is did you take in more money than you paid out?
- Can you meet the payments for your debts?
- Are you saving on a regular basis? Will these savings be adequate to meet future goals?

Now is the time to take inventory to evaluate your financial standing and to determine adjustments needed for coping during the New Year.

In reality, inflation is still with us, but its pace has slowed somewhat and incomes have increased for most Americans. However, few consumers live on or even near "East Street, U.S.A."

According to a Detroit bank, the typical American wage earner is living "hand-to-mouth" and will be at least $500 in the hole by the end of the year because he refuses to change his life style. He is trying to maintain a moderate standard of living that costs, and average of $14,333 a year on an average annual income of $13,847.

Such action can only lead to financial disaster. Dr. Thelma Hinson, N.C. State University Extension Family Resource Management Specialist, suggests periodic check-ups on your consumer behavior and financial situation to avoid severe money problems. Now is the time to face the reality of your family living situation and plan and act to achieve any improvements desired. To do this, said Dr. Hinson, you will need to identify: (a) what has been in 1976, (b) what is desired for 1977, and (c) what can be in 1977 with your means for achieving. Then act accordingly."

Family Action To Assure Economic Success For 1977

1. Family works as a team in deciding what is important in its life, planning how to achieve the type life desired, and working together as a team for successful achievement.

2. Take an inventory of 1976. Make two lists that identify for the family group and for the individual members:

a. Successful achievements—include all types of satisfactory achievements (values, goods and services, such as: group memberships, vacations, furniture, house repairs, etc.)

b. Desires and attempts that were not satisfactory.

Study inventory lists and discuss what was responsible for the success or lack of success during 1976. Evaluate the effect of each item in the list on the family's economic well-being.

3. Do a Net Worth Statement for 1976.

a. Make a list of all your assets (what you own—house, land, money, equipment, furniture, cash value life insurance, etc.) and value each at the price it would bring if placed for sale in today's market.

b. Make a list of what you owe and the amount owed.

c. Determine the difference between the dollar value of what is your family's net worth. Are you satisfied with your Net Worth? If not, determine how much you would like to increase it during 1977.

4. List hopes or achievements desired for 1977 (and future years if possible).

5. List all means (or resources) available for family use during 1977—be sure to include: expected income; opportunities for earning income; human resources of family members such as time, knowledge, and talents; material resources such as money, cash value of insurance, possessions; and public resources such as schools, libraries, health department, Extension Service.

6. At this point, you have a realistic picture of what was in 1976, what is desired for 1977 and maybe future years, and your available tools (means or resources) for attaining what is desired. Now work out a Plan of Action that tells exactly: (a) what is to be achieved and when, (b) which resources and how much of each can best be used and when, (c) who will participate and the course of action each will take, (d) what records are to be kept and how, (e) how the success of each achievement will be measured.

This is your guide for achieving the type of life desired in 1977. Be sure each person understands and does his part. At least monthly do a quick check on progress and make needed changes. Twice a year do a more thorough check on progress.

Reader Replies To Abby Letter

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter recently from a former G.I. who said he's yet to see an Army chaplain who would help a G.I. marry a girl who wasn't round-eyed, Anglo-Saxon and Christian. I agree with you; that was an unfair knock to chaplains. But we're hardly a "melting pot" in this country yet, either.

Years ago, I was in love with a wonderful girl I'll call "Rosita." We worked and saved—even picked prunes together. We had a few acres and a shack picked out. I put a tractor together from salvage parts, and we went shopping for used furniture. God knows how much I loved that little dark-haired girl!

But she was Catholic and I, Protestant. She, Italian and I, English. After a struggle with parents, preacher and priest, they finally said they could overlook the difference in nationality, but religion—NO! Each side insisted it had to be their church all the way. Nobody would give in, so we had to say goodbye. Now I see how foolish we were.

Religious freedom? What a joke. Were I to do it again, I'd tell the whole bunch to go fly a kite. A man has only one love like this in a lifetime.

BLEW MY CHANCE

DEAR ABBY: It's no wonder so many girls and women are raped these days. They go around without bras, wearing halters and skin-tight pants, and some of them even leave their whole midsections bare naked. They practically ask for it!

I'm not saying we should be easy on the rapists who commit these terrible crimes, but the way some girls dress I can understand how a man can be tempted beyond his ability to control himself.

GRANDMA: GARDEN CITY, N.Y.

DEAR GRANDMA: The theory that girls "ask for it" by the way they dress is not valid. What's so tempting about a 10-month-old baby wearing a diaper? Or an 85-year-old woman in a babydress?

Rapists are more interested in humiliating and degrading a female than in satisfying themselves sexually. Any female (of any age) will do.

One piece of advice to women on how to dress to protect themselves against rape: Wear shoes you can RUN in.

DEAR ABBY: The continuing discussion in your column regarding "recycled dentures" brought to mind an old limerick, which you may have heard:

"There was an old man of Tarentum
Who gnashed his false teeth 'till he bent 'em.
When they asked him the cost
Of what he had lost,
He replied, 'I can't say, for I rent 'em.'"

My research reveals that 70 years ago, British weekly newspapers carried this advertisement: "Old artificial teeth bought. If forwarded by post, utmost value per return or offer made..."

So you see, Abby, what happens to old dentures has intrigued people for a long, long time.

M.E. RING, D.D.S.

DEAR M.E.: Thanks to the editor of the Bulletin of the History of Dentistry.

Cooking Is Fun

WAFFER SQUARES
Requested recipe. ¾ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 large eggs
2¾ cups very finely crushed
vanilla-flavor wafers (about 70 from a 12-ounce package)
¾-ounce can flaked coconut
1 cup finely chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Orange Sauce, see below

In large bowl of electric mixer cream butter, sugar and vanilla; at low speed beat in eggs, one at a time, alternately with the crumbs. Fold in coconut, walnuts and orange rind. Pour into a buttered 15 by 10 by 1 inch jellyroll pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester comes out clean — 25 to 30 minutes. Cool completely on wire rack. Cut into squares. Serve some of the Wafer Squares with Orange

Sauce and top with whipped cream. (For softer texture and mellower flavor, wrap squares individually in plastic wrap and store overnight before serving.)

Orange Sauce: In a saucepan stir together 1-3rd cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon salt; gradually stir in 2 cups orange juice, keeping smooth. Add 2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Serve warm. Makes about 2½ cups.

Plan Ahead When Packing Lunchboxes

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — A lunch packed to eat away from home can be attractive as well as tasty and nutritious, says an Extension staff assistant in nutrition at Oklahoma State University.

"When packing a lunch be a creative artist so your meal will appeal to your taste and to your eyes," advises Jeannie Sneed. "To do this, cut sandwiches into designs or use garnishes."

Planning ahead and using the freezer can help in the preparation of lunchbox meals, she adds. If you're having roast beef on Tuesday dinner, plan to have roast beef sandwiches Thursday noon from the leftovers. Put the sandwiches into the lunchbox from the freezer and they will be thawed out by lunchtime.

To avoid food poisoning when taking a lunch, keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot, she warns. Freezing food and putting it into the lunchbox just before leaving home is one way to keep food safe. Vacuum containers also keep foods hot or cold.

And for a special surprise, add a note, poem, puzzle or cartoon to make take-along lunches exciting, she suggests.

Many Problems For Assembly

The North Carolina General Assembly convened today, under strong Democratic control.

Carl Stewart of Gaston County will serve as speaker of the House, with Pitt County's Horton Rountree serving as speaker protem. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green will preside over the Senate. The governor's office is again in the hands of the Democrats with Jim Hunt now inaugurated.

The Democratic leadership will have many problems to face, with the solutions to most of them revolving around the availability of money.

There will be demands for large pay increases for the state's teachers and public employees. Any kind of salary increase means millions, or even hundreds of millions, of dollars.

The state's prisons will need new appropriations if a crisis in this area is to be avoided.

Gov. Hunt has promised a reading program and an anticrime package, both of which will be costly.

There are, of course, issues that don't involve money. The Equal Rights Amendment is expected to be back for debate, as will be the liquor-by-the-drink question.

All that the Legislature has to consider will be done against a backdrop of living within the funds which the present tax structure provides. Those who sought office have done so overwhelmingly on a pledge of no new taxes. There is, of course, the possibility of adjustments within the present tax structure, but almost no one expects any major tax increases.

A possible source of new funds might be bond issues for highway construction and to replenish the Clean Water funds.

Beyond the immediate budget problems which the Legislature faces, it still must be recognized that our state lags far behind in per capita wages. The answer to this must lie in bringing in more desirable industry. Perhaps the answer might come from Gov. Hunt's proposal to transfer industrial development from the Department of Natural and Economic Resources to the Department of Commerce.

The Legislature and the governor have the immediate problem of providing needed services for our state from the revenues available. The long-range problem to solve is how to provide more equitable incomes for all our citizens.

It is virtually up to the Democrats to find the solutions to the state's immediate and long-range problems, and the Democratic leadership will be judged on the way these problems are handled.

"Now is the winter of our discontent... Made glorious summer by this sun of optimism."

Politics Hurt The Patrol

By BILL NOBLITT
RALIEGH — Politics—both internal and external—is the root of problems in the North Carolina Highway Patrol, members of a special committee probing the agency have determined.

The internal politics are creating an enormous number of problems, particularly for the men on the road.

At command levels, external politics—reaching out for high-level support from legislators and other top governmental officials in hopes of future reward—take on strong implications.

The study group was set up by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and reports to him this week with findings and recommendations. A major shaking at the top of the patrol is indicated.

his "territory" almost as if it were a familiar beat to a cop. He kept up with what went on among his people, took phone calls at all hours about souped up cars or booze runners.

Many patrolmen, not so many years ago, spent uncounted hours patrolling their areas when they weren't "on the clock."

A sign of the decline in morale, say members of the study commission: troopers no longer have that sense of individual commitment to their jobs. It has become a clock-punching, hurry-up-and-quit sort of occupation.

has the right political connections—both within and outside the patrol. The result, say commission members, is resentment of a lot of patrol officers by their fellow troopers who do not respect their supervisory capacities.

Additionally, the patrolmen often feel that when they are bypassed for promotion and another man gets the stripe, the loser is transferred to another district. The personnel experts say that is done to keep down resentment and hard feelings. But to the troopers, it is just an unwelcome—and costly—move.

commitments involving influential legislators and other politicians.

The nut of the problem, say some members of the study group, is the absence of strong, independent leadership at command levels—and in both the office of the secretary of the Department of Transportation (immediate boss of the patrol commander) and the governor's office.

Who, the commission wonders, should the commander answer to when the secretary's post has changed four times in four years, and the governor from time to time has forged direct lines bypassing the secretary anyway.

Internal politics is to blame, with troopers convinced that experience, hard work, and merit will no longer result in a better job, more pay, and future growth in the organization.

All too frequently, troopers have told committee members who held gab-fests in patrol station backrooms and out-of-the-way restaurants to get the real sentiments of patrolmen, the worthy trooper is bypassed and another promoted because he

On the Outside

External politics enter the picture as troopers begin to move into the command posts. Although there is partisan political activity, it is not nearly as important to patrol problems as just plain "politicking" for future reward.

Thus, an ambitious trooper who aspires to be commander must start early to grease the skids under the present boss and any others who appear to be in his way; while paving his own path with favors and

Recommended action from the commission is aimed at correcting what they consider the prime illness: make it clear who is the outside boss of the patrol (governor or secretary) and then put in command posts strong people who will run the agency without fear of favor; rewarding troopers for jobs well done, and booting those who are fouling up.

Poland On Ford's Mind

WASHINGTON—Everyone was amazed when President Ford announced in Vail, Colo., that he wanted to make Puerto Rico the 51st state. Washington could not figure out why the President chose to announce it just before he was leaving office.

For one thing, no one in the capital, much less Puerto Rico, knew anything about it. There hasn't been too much enthusiasm in Puerto Rico for becoming a state mainly because it would mean the Puerto Ricans would have to pay federal income taxes.

given great thought to Poland. In the debate he announced that the Polish people were not under the domination of the Soviet Union. Many people, particularly in the American Polish community, took umbrage with this statement, and some said it was Ford's biggest gaffe in the campaign.

France and Germany, apparently adjusting to their Moroccan troubles, veered today toward efforts to effect a "full and lasting settlement" of their political quarrels.

French officials were cautious, but there were indications in Paris and Berlin the Paris visit of Dr. Schacht, Nazi minister of economics and finance, might lead to an economic and then a political understanding between the two nations.

Adolf Hitler and Andre Francois-Ponget, French envoy to the Third Reich, smoothed out the most troublesome Franco-German tangle over Spain with mutual assurances of respect for Spanish and Spanish-Moroccan territorial integrity.

The French were further cheered by an offer from the Spanish Moroccan high commission to prove there is no serious German incursion of that strategic North African zone.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Uncharacteristic Gesture

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Ford's last-ditch maneuver to name Texan James Baker, his 1976 campaign manager, as new Republican national chairman uncharacteristically violated Mr. Ford's private advice to ex-Sen. William Brock of Tennessee in late November that he would be "neutral" in the hottest party fight since last summer's nomination convention.

Indeed, Mr. Ford's surprising decision to sing a swan song for Baker as his last act as leader of the shrinking Republican party defies rational analysis in the opinion of party operatives trying to close the wounds of the vicious Ford-Ronald Reagan primary struggle. "This is the final act of masochism," one Republican state chairman told us.

By throwing his support to Ford-man Baker, the President risks — or perhaps guarantees — continuing strife between the two camps into the indeterminate future. But a neutral party leader could begin the process of healing.

That was the warning bluntly given Mr. Ford during the Republican summit he hosted in the White House Wednesday (Jan. 5), for Reagan, Vice President Rockefeller and Texan John B. Connally. The very morning of that lunch, Mr. Ford had telephoned a stunned Connally to inform him he planned public support for Baker, a political neophyte until the 1976 campaign.

The contradiction between Mr. Ford's cozy assurance for Brock and his later blessing for Baker obviously did not disturb Mr. Ford, because no explanatory warning word was passed to Brock. Indeed, the apparent pledge Mr. Ford made to the conservative ex-Senator, defeated in his bid for reelection, had been repeated by top White House aides to Brock's allies only three weeks ago. Alarmed at rumors that Mr. Ford might enter Baker as a last-minute Ford starter for the Jan. 14 national committee election, those Brock agents were again told: the White House is neutral.

Yet, veiled maneuvers on behalf of Baker that were being stage-managed by the White House had already started. One northeastern Republican chairman, for example, told us he learned well before Christmas that the White House dramatically planned to have Baker present at New York's Kennedy Airport meeting of northeastern state Republican chairmen Jan. 6.

This is Baker's strongest region, far more so than his native South which is split between Reagan's choice, Utah state chairman Richard Richards, and Brock. The liberal Northeast far prefers a conservative Southerner named Baker over Reaganite Richards.

Actually, Baker never did show up at the JFK complex. Indeed, out of a maximum 42 national committee votes in the nine northeastern states (plus the District of Columbia), only 30 members were there, of whom 17 came out for Baker (with at least a dozen more expected to support him before the balloting).

Mr. Ford's support for Baker has far from decided the issue, which tells much about the party power of a lame-duck President who barely won his party's nomination last summer. But Baker would be nowhere at all without the President's personal backing and the lobbying of White House aides. Calls from the White House are being made by Baker's old campaign staff aides around the country.

But Mr. Ford's desperate effort to cling to party power through a chairman wearing the Ford brand has embittered old friends. Howard B. (Bo) Callaway, first national chairman of Mr. Ford's reelection effort, is working for Brock; Rogers Morton, Callaway's successor who yielded to Baker, is staying out.

Some farsighted party leaders now see a melodramatic — and tragic — ending to this last political battle of a President who barely managed his own

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Massachusetts is now beset by a problem that will eventually affect hundreds of thousands of public employees in other states if union lobbyists are successful in their efforts to unionize such employees.

What happened in Massachusetts is disturbing — or ought to be. The legislature and governor of that state capitulated to the AFL-CIO "Alliance," the powerful public sector union which dominates the state, when the union demanded legislation legalizing compulsory unionism for public employees.

The union also demanded — and got — a compulsory "agency shop" provision in its new union contract. That means that the 20,000 state workers who are not members of the union are faced with the choice of either contributing dues to the union or losing their tax-financed jobs.

Said The Lowell Sun: "Something basic in individual rights has been carelessly tossed aside in a weak-kneed giveaway for the sake of avoiding the unpleasantness of standing and manning a fight against something that is wrong."

"It should not stop there. There is a great question about the legality of anything that strips thousands of people of their right to work for the state without paying tribute to a union, and it should be fought in court."

"If the state is not firm enough to protect this right the people should be, and we hope to see a prompt appeal to the courts on the issue of agency fees and the power to fire those who refuse to pay them. Once again the taxpayers have been assaulted by their own government."

Incredibly, though, Massachusetts has no reason to fear taxpayer or employee lawsuits. In a brazen display of contempt for the working people of that state, officials of the union agreed in the new contract to defend the state in any litigation arising from the firing of employees who refuse to pay compulsory union fees.

Massachusetts is only one of 15 states which allow compulsory unionism in the public sector. But as we pointed out at the beginning, the problems now facing Massachusetts state employees will affect hundreds of thousands of other public employees if union lobbyists get their way in their 1977 state legislatures.

With union membership, nationwide, continuing to decline as a percentage of the workforce, union officials have put a high priority on organizing public employees, and they have found that the easiest way to do so is by coercion — by intimidating state lawmakers into passing laws which force public employees to support unions as a condition of employment.

This year will be no different.

he decided he would prove to the American people that he was right and they were wrong about Poland's position in world affairs.

He didn't know how to dramatize it though. Had he been re-elected he planned to ask Poland to join NATO. But since he lost he had to think of something else.

Last week, while he was skiing at Vail, he took a bad spill and as he tumbled down the hill he got a brainstorm. Why not make Poland the 51st state? This would show everyone he hadn't goofed on TV and that he was serious about his warm feelings toward the Polish people. It would make sense to have an American state right on the Soviet border, and would screw up the Warsaw Pact something fierce.

As soon as the President returned to his chalet he told his wife, "Betty, the last act I'm going to do as President is to make Poland the 51st state."

"That's nice," Mrs. Ford said. "Have you told anybody?" "Nope. It's going to be my surprise. I'm going to go out now and announce it to the press."

"Don't slip," Mrs. Ford said. "It's awfully icy on the steps."

The President went outside where the press stood frozen, waiting for any tidbit of news.

"I am happy to announce," President Ford said, "that I'm going to recommend making Puerto our 51st state."

Everyone dashed to the telephone.

Violating Each Other's Turf

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often those people who seek to encourage you to invest your funds in a way that will provide them a commission — the bankers, brokers and insurance men especially — violate each other's turf.

The savings banks obtain checking account privileges once reserved for commercial banks, the commercial banks sell stocks, the brokers sell insurance, the insurers depart from their guaranteed, fixed-return philosophy and offer variable payouts, based on stock market performance.

It's happening again. Brokers have been sizing up the possibilities in the game commercial bankers play. And while the brokers are so occupied, bankers have been moving into the brokers' game.

Regulatory officials eventually will clear the fields, but until they do it's possible the games might become quite confusing, because:

1. Securities firms are seeking to become fiduciaries of trust accounts for individuals and corporations in the same way as commercial banks now handle such business.

Brokers already act as advisers of such accounts, but they do not take title to them as trustees having an obligation to manage portfolios for beneficiaries. The difference is one of degree — but an important one.

2. Commercial banks increasingly have moved into the business of raising money for corporations by putting them in touch with large institutional investors, a middleman's job now considered the province of investment bankers and brokers.

For regulators, this type of activity makes them earn their pay. If a bank lends money to a company and then helps arrange for the sale of shares in the company, is there a conflict of interest? Could be.

For the public, however, the big concern is whether or not such competition results in better service to them. In the past it sometimes has.

Fearing that they were losing business to commercial banks, savings institutions in some states pressed for the right to offer checking accounts. They succeeded, and because of the competition some commercial banks were forced to lower their charges on such accounts.

Not to be outmaneuvered, some commercial banks now would like to see an end to Regulation Q of the Federal Reserve, which limits the interest they can pay on savings to one-quarter point less than the savings banks.

But competition among savings banks and commercial banks can be counter-productive too. Past competition has had negative effects on housing, for example, and has even endangered the stability of savings banks.

The touchy job that regulators have is to let the various money institutions compete just enough for your dollar without endangering their own existence and that of the economy which depends on their investments.

But can it be denied that there is some social benefit also in keeping these institutions on their toes, on guard, a bit uncertain, a little uncomfortable?

That seems to be when the public benefits.

A BIG MAN'S JUDGMENT

During the Civil War, General Robert E. Lee sometimes found himself bitterly opposed by his associates. There was one officer who in particular said derogatory things about the General behind his back.

One day Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, asked Lee whether he thought that this man could fill a certain important position. Lee replied in terms of warmest praise for the man's ability. When some time later Lee's friends expressed surprise that he had spoken well of a man who had spoken ill of him, the great-hearted General replied, "I was not asked for this man's opinion of me but for my opinion of him."

Much of our distress in life arises from the fact that we stumble over our aversions and prejudices. What difference does it make what people think about us? Why must our tender feelings always be catered to? If a good end is to be served, let us be big enough to admit that an adversary may serve it well.

ing, his resignation as attorney general in 1973.

Richardson, who quit office rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, also says he believes the former president, and his White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander Haig, exaggerated dangers of an American-Soviet military confrontation "to shake my resolve" to quit.

The drama that became known as the "Saturday Night Massacre" was enacted on Oct. 20, 1973, when Arab and Israeli forces were locked in combat and American and Soviet authorities were bracing.

Richardson confirmed in an interview this week that after he refused to fire Cox and instead submitted his resignation, he was asked by Nixon to do one of two things: either, in view of the national emergency then existing, not to resign at all, or to defer his resignation until the emergency with the Soviets had passed.

Richardson related that his meeting that night with Nixon at the White House was low-keyed but tense with a lot left unsaid.

According to one new account, Nixon told him that to delay his resignation would be to serve the national interest. Richardson then replied in so many words: "You, Mr. President, should have thought of that before."

Asked in the interview if this account was accurate Richardson responded: "Well, that's approximately correct."

Richardson, commerce secretary in President Ford's outgoing administration, then went into greater detail: "He (Nixon) said to me in effect he regretted that I did not see fit to put the national interest ahead of my personal commitments."

"I replied to him with some force that I believed that what I was doing was in the national interest."

At this point Richardson recalled that Nixon then remarked: "Evidently we do not perceive the national interest in the same way."

nomination: a personal appeal to the national committee, perhaps at a gala dinner next Friday before the balloting begins, with the hoopla of one last hail to the chief six days before vacating the Oval Office.

For supporters of Brock, perceived by many as the only real choice with no ties to Mr. Ford or Reagan, that would be low comedy with this sad conclusion: triumph for Mr. Ford at high expense to his party's future unity; or one more needless humiliation for a President of great decency but wretched political judgment.

Shooting Delays
Murder Trial

MOUNT AIRY — Surry County sheriff's deputies are investigating the wounding of Roy Roger Willard, 51, who was to appear in court Tuesday on a murder charge.

Willard and another man are charged in the fatal shooting last year of Barbara Ann Evans of Mount Airy. The trial has been delayed until late next month.

RECALLED — Mordechai Gazit, Israel Ambassador to France, was recalled Tuesday to underline its outrage over the release of Abu Daoud, the Palestinian suspected of planning the 1972 Olympic Games massacre of Israeli athletes. (AP Wirephoto)

Bookkeeping And Tax Return Office Opened

A ribbon cutting and grand opening ceremonies were held Tuesday morning at McIntyre & Gerry Tax Returns and Bookkeeping Inc. located at the corner of Charles and 14th streets.

The tax return bookkeeping service will offer services including individual tax returns, annual tax planning and year around bookkeeping for both small and large businesses.

Jim McIntyre and Douglas Gerry of Greenville are the owners and operators of the business.

McIntyre, a native of Greensboro, has had four years of experience in the tax return business and has taught tax preparation courses. He attended the University of Maryland and N.C. State University. He has lived in Greenville since 1972.

Gerry, a native of Lewiston, Maine, attended the University of Maine. He holds a B.A. degree from ECU and an Associate of Applied Science from Pitt Technical Institute. Gerry also has four years of experience in the tax return business and is teaching tax preparation. He has lived in Greenville since 1971 and is married to Shirley Anderson Gerry of Greenville.

Specializing in tax returns, McIntyre & Gerry will be open the following hours during the tax season: Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

Quarterly meeting services will be held at St. Matthew's F.W.B. Church in West Meadowbrook, Greenville this weekend.

Friday at 8 p.m. there will be a members' meeting. Saturday night Holy Communion will be observed. Sunday morning worship will be led by the pastor, Eldress Hattie Cobb. At 3 p.m. Elder James Phillips and his congregation from Bethel Chapel Church in Washington, N.C. will lead the service. At 7:30 p.m. Elder Fred Teel will preach.

The public is invited.

Three Named To Ethics Board

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt has named three of the five members who will sit on the board which is to administer his new code of ethics.

The chairman will be former North Carolina Law School dean Dick Phillips, now a professor at the school. The other two are former Common Cause president Gerry Hancock and retired State Treasurer Edwin Gill.

Survey Group Visited Schools

By Susan Quinn
Reflector Staff Writer

A Survey Group from the State Department of Public Instruction visited Pitt County Tuesday and conducted a preliminary study of the Ayden-Grifton Middle School proposal, according to Associate Superintendent Tom Craft.

"The study group visited the two schools in Ayden, Ayden Grifton High School and the Grifton School and looked at the facilities and talked to the staffs and principals about the curricula offered in each school. The group has access to state teacher allotment figures through their office and they, I anticipate, will run a population projection survey through the State Planning Department," Assoc. Supt. Craft said.

According to Assoc. Supt. Craft, a public hearing has been tentatively scheduled for January 24 at Ayden-Grifton High School at which time the study group will present a preliminary report and individuals may make remarks and ask questions. Following the public hearing, the study group will later submit a final report which will include information concerning the feasibility of the combined middle school in the Ayden-Grifton area.

In a special meeting of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council meeting in September, the combined Ayden-Grifton middle school proposal was approved. The Advisory Council sent the proposal to the Pitt County Board of Education in October, requesting that the middle schools be combined and that the school be built in the vicinity of the present Ayden-Grifton High School located on Highway 11.

Since the initial proposal was presented, several public meetings have been held to allow citizens to question, commend, and protest the proposal. During the November meeting of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council, it was decided that an evaluation of the feasibility of the proposed middle school should be conducted by the State Department of Public Instruction. The councils agreed at that time to delay plans to purchase land for the new Ayden Grammar School, until after a report could be presented concerning the feasibility of the combined middle school, no later than the end of January.

Read-a-Thon At Ayden School

A "Read-a-Thon" to encourage reading and also raise money for the N. C. Association for Retarded Citizens has been held at Ayden Grammar School.

Principal Gaston Monk said each participant acquired sponsors to pledge to donate a certain amount for each book read during a two-week period. Students Monica Stokes and Deborah Speight were awarded "bookworm knapsacks" for collecting more than $20 each. At the close of the two-week project, $112.29 has been collected for reading 144 books. Coordinator of the project was Mrs. Lois J. Haddock, Monk said.

Opposition To Forest Search

MORGANTON — U.S. Forest Service officials say they are surprised at the volume of citizen opposition to uranium prospecting in the Pisgah National Forest.

The prospecting was disclosed in a Morganton News-Herald article Nov. 16, and officials said groups and individuals have written about 25 letters against the activity.

Officials said just because prospecting is under way doesn't mean mining will follow. They said hearings and studies would have to precede it.

Recreation And Parks Meeting

Two items, both new business, are on the agenda for the January meeting of the Recreation and Parks Commission meeting to be held tonight at 8 p.m. at Elm Street Gymnasium in the office of director Boyd Lee.

The first item is a raft race in conjunction with WRQR; and the second item is a proposed Community Development Projects for Recreation and Parks Department, 1977-78.

The Mayor And City Council Invite You To Join Them In The Development Of An Application For $1,909,000 In Community Development Funds.

IN 1976, THE CITY COUNCIL ADOPTED THESE GOALS TO GUIDE THE CITY'S COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM:

- The utilization of City and Federal resources to substantially reduce the number of sub-standard dwelling units and to improve the living environment of low-income areas.
- To conserve the maximum number of deteriorating dwelling units and preserve transitional neighborhoods to prevent future blight.
- The development of an improved street system in low-income areas and to provide for a more efficient inter-neighborhood traffic flow.
- The expansion of the City's recreational and cultural opportunities for all citizens, with an emphasis on income and age group interaction.
- The completion of the Central Business District plan and related plans.
- To continue the improvement in the City's planning capacities and decision-making abilities and to simultaneously bring the citizens of the City closer to the City government.

To meet these policy goals, the following specific projects have or are being planned and implemented:

- West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Project
- South Evans Redevelopment Project
- Housing Rehabilitation Loan and Grant Program
- General Neighborhood Improvements in Higgs, Riverdale and Greenfield Terrace
- Paving of Unpaved Streets
- Construction of Arlington Boulevard and Widening of Cotanche Street
- Development of an Elderly Activity Center
- Comprehensive Code Enforcement and Planning

The City is now developing its application for the 1977-1978 Community Development Program and is very interested in receiving citizen suggestions for specific projects and broad policy goals that will provide the overall direction for the program. Should the Community Development Program be directed toward:

- Housing improvements
- Redevelopment of substandard areas
- Neighborhood conservation
- Economic development
- Recreation
- Social services
- Transportation improvements
- Public service improvements or are there other areas that need improvement?

The effective use of these funds will depend, in part, on the goals developed by the City Council and the citizens. All Greenville citizens are urged to help the City develop a workable program for the 1977-1978 Community Development Program. Two public hearings will be held on January 20 and February 3, 1977, at 8:00 p.m. in the City Council Chambers. Any suggestions you have should be presented to the City Council at the January 20 hearing or contact the City Manager's or City Planner's office at 752-4137 or write P.O. Box 1905, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.

Novelist's Talk Show Tales Based On Real Life

By DOUG ANDERSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Not many among the millions of Americans who respond nightly to such familiar intros as "Here's Johnny!" realize what a remarkable achievement they are watching when their favorite talk show comes onto the home screen.

It takes months to produce a major motion picture and weeks to get a play on the boards. Even if you're making a movie "quickie" or putting on a play in stock, it takes at least a week to get it ready.

Talk-show producers have less than a day to work on each of their presentations. The format is different, but what they do is comparable to putting on a new play or movie every night.

"There are a lot of parts that go into the making of a show," says Dick Delson, a movie publicist who had extensive experience with the late-night shows when they originated in New York. "You've got a producer, an associate producer, one or more talent coordinators, secretaries, writers..."

"All these people must combine their efforts to make the host of a late-night talk show bright, witty and urbane 90 minutes a night, five nights a week, usually 52 weeks a year."

Delson presents an intensive exploration of the world behind the scenes of the talk shows in his first novel, "Goodbye Ruby Tuesday," a recently published paperback (Berkley Medallion: $1.95).

The book is presented as fiction — "to protect the guilty," Delson says. But most of the events it describes actually happened.

A good deal of space is devoted, of course, to personal relationships — conflicts, scandals, explicit sex. But those you could get in just about any paperback, and these days you usually do.

What makes the book unusual is its description of the mechanics of producing the shows that have become very much a part of American life. So far as Delson knows, his novel is the first book that has tackled this subject.

"Ruby Tuesday," incidentally, is not a special day like, for instance, Maundy Thursday. It's the name of a woman, and like most of the principal characters, she is drawn from life — with the modifications allowed the literarily licentious.

There have been some interesting real-life repercussions to the publication of "Ruby Tuesday."

"About three weeks ago, I was walking down the street and who should I meet but Ruby Tuesday herself," Delson says. "I hadn't seen her for maybe four years."

"She asked me what I'd been doing, and I told her about the book. I showed her the cover (featuring a woman dressed only in underwear and an apparently nude man who is taking off her brassiere) and the first question out of her mouth was 'Is that me?'"

"I told her, 'Well, I guess you'll have to buy the book to find out.' I know she bought the book. I haven't heard from her since."

"The host of the late-night talk show is a man named Woody Peoples," Delson says. "Woody Peoples is a compilation of a lot of the people who are working in late-night talk shows."

"Without mentioning names, everybody knows who they are. 'Bill Sarazzin, who produces 'Midnight with Woody Peoples,' a girl named Courtney Hayward, who is a talent coordinator, and Ruby Tuesday are patterned after three people I know who have worked in the late-night talk shows.

"Not everything in the book is 100 per cent of what they've done, but I would say that of the three characters I have just mentioned about 75 per cent is actually the way these people live."

The terms used in talk-show parlance require a world of explanation. The titles producer, associate producer and director are self-explanatory (although it should be understood that a television director is a technical expert without much to say about the shape of a show; his job is to carry out the plan devised by the producer).

Talent coordinators interview and book guests for the shows. It is usually a talent coordinator, with some talent of his own, who "warms up" the studio audience with a few jokes, then coaches them on what they should do during the show.

Writers are an apparent anomaly on a show that appears to be run off the cuff. But each day they cull everything from The New York Times to the New York Telephone book for anything topical that can be turned into a joke.

By about 2:30 p.m., they are expected to have 50 one-liners ready for the host. He will select about a dozen for his opening monologue.

The writers also provide a few "savers" for the host to use when one or more of his jokes falls flat. Things like "You're the kind of an audience that would have given Custer an Arrow shirt at the Little Big Horn."

There is the musical director. He rehearses the band in incidental numbers, works with musical acts on special accompaniment, and often functions as a "second banana" to the host.

The host and his on-and-off camera staff are professionals accustomed to working under the pressure. They do their work well, or there are some changes made. What grays the hair of talk-show hosts is an unpredictable element of their work — the guests, usually show-business people or authors intent on promoting a new book. Most talk-show guests are public personalities. It would appear there should be no great difficulty in getting them to talk on the air.

But actors who appear articulate and charming on stage or screen using somebody else's words are often tongue-ted or boring when they make up their own dialogue.

Delson cites one instance in which a host had great difficulty getting more than a "Yup" or "Nope" out of a superstar (not Gary Cooper).

For the purposes of the book, the host is called Cass Michaels, the guest, Jon Doyle.

"Finally, I guess out of sheer frustration, Michaels asked Doyle why he refused to talk," Delson says. Quoting Sarazzin, "Doyle — and I've got to admire the guy for his honesty — says 'I really don't consider myself interesting, and I just don't feel I have anything interesting to say.'"

Program Is For Singles

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lonely? Come to San Diego and tune to Channel 6, where you can take a gander at prospective mates on a new program called "Singles Matchup."

On each half-hour program, Dr. Tom Gillette, a sociology professor, interviews three singles who are looking for long or short-term relationships. He said the show offers an alternative for people who don't want to go to singles bars or get involved with matchmaker firms.

"The reaction has been very positive," said Dr. Ed Eisman, a psychologist involved in formulating the production.

Participants so far have included a divorced businessman, an attractive young woman looking for a husband and a male computer specialist seeking "a nontraditional marriage."

Julian Kaufman, general manager of the independent station, XETV, whose transmitter is in Tijuana, Mexico, considers the program as public service time.

He says Channel 6 is taking a "calculated risk" with such a broadcast, but adds that "Mail response has been very heavy. It looks like the program will be around for a while."

Pair Scrambled With Pet Lion In Front Seat

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — Maybe Stanley just wanted companionship. Or maybe he wanted to drive.

At any rate, when the 500-pound lion smashed through a partition and crawled from the back of a moving van into the driver's compartment, the two women up front quickly stopped and scrambled out.

Stanley remained in the driver's seat for nine hours despite efforts to coax him into the back with food.

Finally, a physician from the Fresno zoo shot Stanley with a tranquilizer dart Monday and closed the truck door. Stanley let out a loud yowl because his tail was caught in the door.

Court Ruling Assures Local Govm't Sets Zoning

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor urban blacks or other minorities who dream of leaving the inner city for the more affluent suburbs cannot necessarily count on the Constitution for help in finding low-income housing, the Supreme Court says.

Lawyers involved in housing suits indicated the court ruling did not necessarily sidetrack similar cases and said the justices left them other avenues to pursue.

The high court said Tuesday that communities are banned from intentionally keeping anyone out for reasons of race.

But, the court said, nothing in the Constitution requires predominantly white towns to change zoning laws to allow construction of low-income housing that would attract poor minority residents.

The court did list standards that lawyers in similar cases could use to demonstrate that a zoning body had an illegal intent to discriminate. Lawyers, for instance, could show a zoning board departed from normal administrative procedures to draw up rules barring low income housing.

The court also left open the possibility that existing federal statutes might be used to attack such zoning laws.

In their decision, the justices reversed a lower court ruling and found the Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights did not unconstitutionally discriminate against blacks by refusing to alter its zoning code to permit construction of low income housing.

The court's 5-3 decision evoked sharp criticism from James Compton, executive director of the Chicago Urban League. He said the court's action means blacks and low income families will continue to be trapped in disproportionate numbers in deteriorating inner cities.

"It sets progress back considerably. The Nixon-Ford era has been a damaging one as far as progress in housing, jobs and social legislation is concerned," Compton said.

But Arlington Heights Mayor James Ryan said the decision protects the rights of local governments to preserve the character of their communities through reasonable zoning standards.

"It means that zoning is going to be a matter decided at the local level, rather than 1,000 or 2,000 miles away in Washington," he said.

The plaintiffs had attacked the zoning laws as unconstitutional under the 14th Amendment's safeguards of equal protection.

The court's decision expanded a major discrimination ruling handed down last year. The justices said then that the Constitution bars only intentional racial discrimination.

In the Arlington Heights case, the court said those persons who think they have been discriminated against must prove discriminatory motives practiced by government officials.

It is not enough to point to the "ultimate effect" relied on as proof by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the justices said in an opinion written by Lewis F. Powell Jr.

Martin Board Seeking Portrait Of Asa Biggs

WILLIAMSTON — A resolution to have the portrait of Judge Asa Biggs brought to Williamston was approved by the Martin County Commissioners at its January meeting.

Boy Admits Setting Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police arrested a 10-year-old boy who they said admitted setting a fire in the apartment house where he lived that killed 10 persons during Christmas week.

Police Lt. Richard King said the boy, arrested Tuesday, admitted starting the fire at the Witmer Street building near downtown Los Angeles.

King said the youngster, not named because of his age, was booked for investigation of murder and arson and released to his parents. Authorities said he probably would be turned over to a county probation department caseworker.

King said the boy admitted starting the Dec. 20 blaze at 335 South Witmer St., using matches to set fire to an old couch under a stairwell.

King said the boy then told of running back to his family's apartment without saying anything to his parents. The boy and his parents escaped the burning building unharmed.

Senate, and the N.C. State Convention from 1835 to 1861. He was also a U.S. District Judge of North Carolina and a Confederate Judge.

The portrait, which for many years was stored in the basement of a state building in Raleigh, was taken from there and hung in the federal court room in Washington, N.C. through efforts of Judge John Larkins.

Now that the federal court room in Washington has been closed, the town board is seeking to have the portrait moved from Washington to Williamston.

In other actions, the County Commissioners reappointed five people to serve additional three year term on the Martin County Economic Development Commission. Those reappointed are J. R. Crandall, member at large; Wendell Griffin, Williams Township; Leroy Harrison, Bear Grass Township; R. B. Wilson, Robersonville; and Francis Worsley, representing the County Commissioners.

Commissioners also endorsed a request made by Billy Tadlock of the Farmer's Home Administration (FHA) relative to obtaining funds for a new fire truck for the Oak City Fire Department.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

A chance of rain, Friday through Sunday, possibly beginning as snow in the west on Friday. Milder temperatures with lows ranging to 30s along the coast.

Scotts Will Push ERA

RALEIGH (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott and his wife will head the North Carolina group seeking legislative ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

It was also announced Tuesday that a 26-person board of advisers will help in the campaign. The Scotts will serve as co-chairman for North Carolinians United for REA, a coalition of 32 organizations.

Rep. George Miller Jr., D-Durham, said he would introduce the amendment early in the legislative session.

The ERA was turned down by two votes in the Senate in 1973 and five in the House in 1975. Backers are more confident this time because of the support of Gov. Jim Hunt and President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Thirty-four states have approved the amendment. Three more are required for ratification.

The amendment states: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Mrs. Scott said, "I sense a change in the attitude in many people who in the past might have opposed."

"Never before," she added, "has so noteworthy a citizenry joined together" to support such legislative enactment.

Marked Her 50th Year As A Member

Mrs. Edna Biggs Graves was honored by the Greenville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority recently when they celebrated with her her 50th year as a Delta member.

The wife of Dr. C. R. Graves, a Greenville dentist, Mrs. Graves was an English teacher at C. M. Eppes and J. H. Rose High School for 23 years. She also has taught at Tennessee State University and in the Edgecombe County Schools. She has belonged to various state and local teacher organizations and is a life member of the National Education Association.

A native of Greenville, S. C., she was initiated into the Beta Chapter of the Sorority while she was an undergraduate at Wilberforce University in Wilberforce, Ohio in October, 1926.

A Link and, a former member of the Carver and Sheppard Memorial Library Boards of Trustees and, the Pitt County Mental Health Association, she is a member of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

In other business, the Sorority, which met with Mrs. Charles M. Dickens, planned for Founders' Day in Raleigh Jan. 14, planned for the celebration of Black Awareness Week the week of Feb. 13, and were told that Mrs. Earnest Eaton would host the February meeting.

The Secret Is In The Superior Construction...

SOFA TIPS FORWARD FOR EASY CLEANING

... It's easy to clean under and behind your sleeper sofa... simply remove the cushions, unfold the mattress halfway, then tip the sofa forward. The unit will rest firmly in this position until you do the cleaning... then simply push back to original position... it's that easy.

1. Deluxe healthfully firm, foam mattress opens in seconds, sleeps 2 adults comfortably.
2. Sturdy, maintenance-free nylon bearings and counter-balanced "lift" springs make opening and closing so easy a child can do it.
3. Scientifically formulated seat height and seating angle. "Floating seat" made with triple layers of spring, fiber, and foam cushioning produce a remarkably soft seating surface.
4. Frames are hardwood, glued, doweled, and corner blocked for durability.
5. Full depth, contour-cushioned back unit for added comfort when seated.
6. Full width tubular steel support for added stability, no sharp or protruding edges. Outer edge on each side of the unit is contoured to produce seating comfort all the way to the arm.
7. Newly designed center leg supports prevents sagging.
8. Extra-firm foundation support of galvanized, rust-proof link springs prevents mattress sag.
9. Supporting cross-member is not rigid. It provides pivotal floating action to move with body weight for maximum comfort and support.
10. Headrest support for TV watching, reading or lounging.

Concur State Needs Nuclear Power Plants

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission and the energy industry agree North Carolina needs more electric power and ought be building nuclear plants to supply it.

The problem, it appeared from hearings Tuesday aimed at developing a state energy plan, will be difficulties surrounding nuclear plant construction, including where the money for them will come from.

The hearing, ordered by the General Assembly, continues today and is expected to consume the rest of the week and more time at the end of the month.

The commission staff found its projection of state power needs jibed fairly well with the industry's own estimates. And the assessment of both sides was that nuclear power was the best way to meet future demand.

Wilson W. Morgan, a Carolina Power & Light executive, said in prepared testimony commission projections "are quite close to those that have been made by CP&L."

But Morgan added CP&L's construction plans, at present will leave the utility with dangerously low power reserves by the early 1980s because "our construction plans have been tailored to the amount of capital which we can reasonably expect to attract in the future."

Three citizen witnesses also testified Tuesday.

Dr. Gerald Meisner, associate professor of physics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, said nuclear plants are dangerous and fuel is running out, while coal is still plentiful.

Harley Schlanger of Charlotte said industrial expansion should proceed apace on the faith that nuclear fusion energy will soon be available.

Brad Stewart of Chapel Hill presented evidence against nuclear fission power plants.

Four Collisions In Greenville Tuesday

More than $3,800 property damage resulted from four collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 6:50 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard involving cars driven by Robert Willie of 409B Eastbrook Apts., and Gloria Eileen Gray of Route 1, Scranton.

Police, who charged Willie with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $750 to the Willie car and $1,000 to the Gray auto.

A 7 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Charles Streets involved cars driven by Kathleen William Hardee of 1700 Spruce St. and Debbie Ann Jackson of Hope Mills.

Damage was set by officers at $600 to the Hardee car and $400 to the Jackson auto.

Sheridan McCorn Carter of 1207 East 14th St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement following investigation of a 9:05 a.m. mishap on 14th Street, 110 feet West of the Dalebrook Circle intersection.

Investigators reported the Carter car collided with a vehicle driven by Cassie Weatheri Chaune of 210 Adams Blvd., causing an estimated $485 damage to the Chaune car and $125 damage to the Carter car.

A 4:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Reade Streets involved vehicles driven by Ernestine Parker Smith of 705 East Fourth St. and Glenn Woodson Moore of 100 North Holly St.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $275 to the Smith car and $200 to the Moore auto.

activities and intimate family relationships," said Hernan Veragody, a sociology professor at the University of Florida where 13 per cent of the student body is Greek-affiliated. "We'd go crazy if we didn't belong to them."

Some Greeks claim the downturn was reversed when their organizations altered their goals. They like to stress their charity work.

Chris McKown, Sandy Creek, N.Y., membership chairman of the Interfraternity Council at Penn State, said fraternities today "have adapted to student needs."

"We stress academics, service, leadership opportunities and athletics," said McKown. "Last year, Penn State fraternities raised $60,000 for numerous charities."

The desire to become involved in charitable or community services is one of the prime reasons students join fraternities or sororities, according to Louise D. Smith, a University of Texas graduate and national executive secretary of Delta Delta Delta.

"We really believe in what we are doing," said Mrs. Smith, noting her group has contributed more than $750,000 to various charitable groups since 1946. She said Tri-Deltas on campuses throughout the nation raised money for college libraries and research on cancer in children.

Joan Forest, president of the Panhellenic Council at the University of Florida, said sororities there donated more than 200 pints of blood and contributed $5,000 to the Kidney Foundation and cystic fibrosis funds last year.

"We had a disco party recently and raised $450 for the cancer fund," said Tim Herd of Logansport, Ind., president of Sigma Nu at the University of Kentucky. "We also collect for the heart fund and held a voter registration in our lobby this year."

Herd said the Greek resurgence was due in part to the organizations' "recognition of individualism."

"I think the dormitory is rather impersonal but the fraternity is personal," he said. "I like the closeness of the friendships that can be developed in a fraternity."

Kim Puller, president of Alpha Chi Omega at Idaho's Boise State University, said she joined because "I didn't know anyone. I was uninvolved. And I was, to put it bluntly, bored."

"A sorority is not necessarily a mating bureau. It's more a matter of a lot of friends and getting to know people and it's kept me here at school."

Set Deadline For Ski Trip

January 19 is the deadline for registration for a ski trip sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department. The trip, scheduled for Feb. 21 and 22, will be to Appalachian Ski Mountain at Blowing Rock.

At the resort, the French Swiss Ski College offers skiing for $9.50 per day, which includes slope fees, accident insurance, equipment and a lesson of one and one-half hours.

Motel accommodations are available for $7 per person (two to a room); $6 per person (three to a room); or $5 per person (four to a room) per night. The plan is to travel to Boone on Sunday, spend Sunday and Monday nights, and ski on Monday and Tuesday.

An advance deposit of $10 is required at the time of registration to cover room and skiing reservations. For further information call 752-4137, ext. 220.

Square Dancing For Beginners To Be Offered

Square dance lessons for beginners is being offered under the sponsorship of the Greenville Recreation Dept. The classes, conducted by Jerry Powell, caller for the Tar River Twirlers, began Tuesday, Jan. 11.

The next session will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 19, with the remainder of classes being held each Tuesday evening for approximately three months.

Classes run from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on Fourth Street.

Anyone interested in classes may attend any or all of the first three sessions without any obligation. For further information, call Jerry Powell at 752-1094.

The origin of the name of Oregon is unknown, but it was first used in 1765 to refer to a mythical river of the West.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground again today, faced with the news of a 0.9 per cent rise in the government's wholesale price index last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell more than 3 points in the early going, and declines took a 5-2 lead over advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government's wholesale price figures for December, issued as the market opened, reflected a sharp jump in food prices. Industrial commodities rose at a modest 0.3 per cent rate.

Today's early prices included Citicorp, off 3/4 at 32 1/2; Middle South Utilities, up 1/4 at 16 1/4, and Texaco, off 1/4 at 27 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 10.22 to 96.65, erasing its 8.81 advance in the three previous sessions.

Loser outdistanced gainers by close to a 5-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 24.10 million shares, up from 20.86 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .54 to 56.34.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .87 at 110.01.

Officers Named For Heart Ass'n

Officers of the Pitt County Heart Association were named at a recent meeting of the organization's Board of Directors, according to Dr. A. Dan Warren, president of the local voluntary health organization.

Those officers chosen, in addition to Dr. Warren, include Ed Harper, fund-raising chairman. Harper will appoint a city chairman and a rural heart director. Mrs. Jane Bradbury will continue as public information chairman and Mrs. Sara Jenkins will be secretary-treasurer.

Other directors are Mrs. Nancy Warren, Jack Tyson, Evelyn Perry, W. B. Chalk, Dr. Frank Saunders, Mrs. Mildred Thompson, Ray Massey, Richard Pike, Dr. Robert Thurber, Curtis Hendrix, Mrs. S. E. West, Mrs. Barney Barrett, Dr. Eric Fearnington, Cleve Whatley, Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, Mrs. Clyde Owens, Mrs. Janice Buck, Nancy Smith, Mrs. Charles Burnette, W. S. Corbitt, Mrs. Peggy Corbitt, Dr. Al Woodworth and Dr. Jon Tingelstad.

The board reviewed last year's Heart Fund campaign and made plans for the coming year. The group was reminded that heart disease is the single largest health problem. It is important that we undertake medical and community programs as our part in reducing the toll of productive people from heart disease, they were told.

Deep Chill Over County

Temperatures remained cold Tuesday night in the Pitt County area. The high temperature Tuesday was recorded at 32 degrees and the low temperature was recorded at 17 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Department. Heavy frost covered most of the county during Tuesday night. Wednesday at 8 a.m. the temperature was recorded at 20 degrees at the Greenville Utilities Department.

The strong winds which resulted in low chill factor temperatures Monday night and Tuesday morning, have calmed and were recorded Wednesday morning at approximately 5 m.p.h., according to the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The weather forecast includes cold temperatures for Wednesday night, North and North-Western winds as well as cloudy skies.

Most Can Read Faster

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Most of us can learn to double or even triple our reading speed, says a Purdue University professor, but the 10,000-words-a-minute speed-reading-school prodigy "is about as rare as a Mozart," he contends.

Prof. Merrill May, director of developmental reading at Purdue, heads the developmental reading courses offered to students here. Each semester about 800 students plunge into the one-credit hour course they call "speedy reading," hoping to make next term's assignments more bearable.

"Almost anyone can be trained to do better, but most poor readers are that way because they haven't read enough," says May.

Garrett Is Re-Installed

D. D. Garrett was installed to another term as President of the Pitt County Branch of the N.A.A.C.P. Sunday.

D.D. GARRETT

Other officers and committee chairmen were also installed at the ceremonies held at the Reddicks Chapel Church in Bethel.

Following the installation services, a business session was held and a $20,000 budget was adopted. Approximately $11,000 of these funds were allocated for legal defense.

PRICES FALL
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky burley tobacco prices fell an average of 16 cents per hundred pounds as only 14 of the state's 30 markets were open for sales Tuesday.

No Prosecution Faces Callaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will not prosecute President Ford's former campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, for an alleged conflict of interest involving his ski resort in Colorado.

The department notified Callaway Tuesday that, after six months, it was dropping its investigation and had no plans to pursue it. Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard Thornburgh made the letter to Callaway public.

Callaway was traveling Tuesday and could not be reached for comment, his son said by telephone from Mount Crested Butte, Colo.

One of his attorneys, Brian Gettings, said, "We knew it would end up this way from the beginning, but we are a little disappointed it took so long."

For Callaway, the charges have already been damaging. He was forced to resign his post with the President Ford Committee last April, despite his denial of any wrongdoing. Ford aides reportedly felt that the cloud over Callaway's head was hurting the campaign.

The matter began in 1975 when Callaway was concluding his service as Secretary of the Army. At the same time, he held a majority interest in the Crested Butte Development Corp., a company which operates a ski area.

The company wanted U.S. Forest Service permission to expand onto a federally owned mountainside adjacent to its property. In Colorado, local Forest Service officials recommended against the expansion.

On Callaway's last day at the Pentagon, he was visited by two friends, J. Phil Campbell and Richard Ashworth, who worked for the Department of Agriculture. The Forest Service is part of the Department of Agriculture.

They brought with them Rexford Resler, associate chief of the Forest Service. During the course of the conversation, Resler was asked to talk by telephone with Callaway's brother-in-law, who was running the resort in Colorado. The brother-in-law, Ralph Walton, argued the resort's case for the expansion permit.

Afterwards, Campbell wrote to ex-Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, asking that the decision be reversed in Callaway's favor. Campbell and Ashworth also were notified Tuesday that the investigation of them was over.

PNEUMONIA VICTIM
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — William E. Paul, who lived with a transplanted heart for nearly 8 years, died Monday of pneumonia at the University of California hospital. He was 66.

WILLIAMSTON — At a brief January meeting, members of the Martin County School Board directed Superintendent Eugene Rogers to follow up on efforts to secure approximately one and one-half acres of land adjacent to the East End School in Robersonville. County Commissioners have previously given approval to efforts to secure the additional land to add to the school's space.

Action was turned down for the time being on a request from the Methodist Church of Williamston to purchase part of the old Williamston Grammar School property which adjoins the church property. The consensus of the school board is that the property cannot be considered for sale at the time since the building and grounds are being utilized as an administrative complex for the school system.

Approval was given to a resolution endorsing the idea of International Understanding and Travel studies for the county schools. The idea also encompasses the possibility of future travels to foreign lands by students. In that connection, the school system is engaged in tentative planning with the American Institute of Foreign Studies.

Board members were among a large turn-out of persons honoring the retirement of Hack Gaylord, the school system's Maintenance Supervisor. Gaylord retired after 30 years of state service, with the last 20 years of that time spent in the Martin County Schools.

TOBACCO GROWERS TALK ABOUT VIKING SHIP® CALCIUM NITRATE

"We depend on Calcium Nitrate for all of our crops"

James A. Bryan
Newton Grove,

"We like the fast action of Calcium Nitrate and use it on both our tobacco and produce crops. On peppers I find that 'CN' and good land selection fits my total pepper management. It's just as fast acting after a rain or applied ahead of rain. I know I can depend on 'CN' in the field and in supply."

Pirates Eek Past Davidson, 51-49

DAVIDSON — For a change of pace, East Carolina used the free throw line to get a victory last night, and it was a missed free throw by Davidson that finally pulled it out.

The Pirates managed to outlast the Wildcats, 51-49, in Davidson for the victory, their first on the road, and in the Southern Conference this winter.

The victory moved the Pirates out of the league basement and gave them a 1-2 league mark. East Carolina is 6-6 overall. Davidson fell to 0-3 in the conference and to 2-12 overall.

East Carolina dumped in 10 of 11 free throws during the first 39 minutes of the slowly played game, and then nearly blew it by missing three in the row during the final minutes. But Larry Hunt hit the first of a one-and-one with six seconds left to sew it up for the Bucs.

Davidson had missed with 32 seconds left when Pat Hickert went to the line with a one-and-one and couldn't hit. It was only the second free throw missed by the 'Cats all evening.

"It was a classic example of two teams struggling to gain their confidence," a happy Dave Patton said afterwards. "Knowing that we've won one will help our confidence. You can talk about it all you want, but you need success to do it."

Patton said that the Pirate defense was one of the keys to the victory. East Carolina played a stiff man-to-man that forced the Wildcats to work long for their shots. Davidson hit 50 per cent of its shots (and actually made one more field goal than did the Pirates), and that was one of the reasons for the low scoring contest.

"If we had not made the mistakes we've made earlier (in the season) and shot our free throws like we did tonight, we could easily be 8-3 or 9-2 right now," Patton said. "But I guess that's part of being young and growing up."

The Pirates hit a cold string at the start of the game, and then went through another in the second half, giving them only 40 per cent for the night. They got only three field goals during the first ten minutes of play, falling back by nine points. But they struggled back and took a ten point lead by halftime.

The second half cold streak, which saw the lead whittled away, saw only two field goals during the first 12 minutes of play, but when the Pirates needed them, they were able to come up with them.

"We've worked hard on intensity and confidence, and I guess it finally paid off for us. I'm glad we had the confidence to go ahead and win it," Patton said.

The cold start helped the Wildcats to build a lead during the first part of the game. John Gerdy, who was held to just four field goals in 17 attempts by the Buc defense, hit a free throw for the initial lead. Rod Owens and Marvin Lively followed with baskets and it was over three and a half minutes into the game before Ty Edwards broke the ice for the Pirates.

Davidson eventually moved out to a 15-6 lead before the Pirates finally came to life. Don Whitaker got the Pirates started, and Herb Gray finished the job. Greg Cornelius hit two free throws, then Gray got a shot from the corner to cut the lead to 15-14.

Gray went in for a dunk and was intentionally fouled, and Herb Krusen shot for him, putting the Pirates up, 18-15. They gradually stretched that during the final five minutes of the half out to 32-22, a ten-point bulge. Jim Ramsey hit three field goals and Whitaker hit two to key that drive.

The cold spell in the second half enabled Davidson to make a slow comeback, finally taking the lead on two Lively free throws with 7:59 left at 41-40. East Carolina got it back, however, on a jumper by Whitaker at 44-43, but lost it again at 45-44.

Krusen hit a couple for a 48-45 Pirate lead, but again Davidson rallied, taking a 49-48 lead with 1:50 left as Gerdy hit from the baseline.

Then, with just under 50 seconds left, Hunt put through a rebound for a 50-49 Pirate lead, and the Bucs managed to hold it to the rest of the way, thanks to a missed free throw by Davidson.

East Carolina outrebounded the Wildcats, 32-26, with Hunt pulling off 10 and Cornelius, 8. Owens and Lively each had six for Davidson.

Gray was the lone Pirate in double figures with 14, while Ernie Reigel had 13. Owens had 12 and Gerdy, 10 for Davidson.

East Carolina returns home Saturday night to face arch-rival Appalachian State at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Canadian Football Has Some Differences

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Not too many people in Greenville, North Carolina, are too familiar with the Canadian Football League.

But for those who follow East Carolina football, perhaps they should become a little more aware. For there are four former Pirates playing professional ball in the league.

Yesterday, one of those players, Danny Kepley, spoke to the Greenville Sports Club, outlining some of the differences between the Canadian pro league and the National Football League, its "Big Brother."

Kepley has just completed his second season with the Edmonton Eskimos. Bobby Myrick and Kenny Moore are playing with Ottawa, and Ken Strayhorn is to be with Montreal next fall.

The CFL is divided into an Eastern and Western Conference, Kepley told the Sports Club. "We play four pre-season games, then a 16 game regular season. We play each team in our conference three times and each one in the other twice," Kepley said. The preseason is in July and the regular season runs from August to late November, including the playoffs.

The Canadian field is somewhat different. It is 60 yards wide and 110 yards long, bigger by 10 yards each way than the American counterpart. The end zones are 25 yards deep instead of 10. "You get only three downs instead of four, so this gives you a wider-open game. You also have 12 men on the field. On defense, the extra man is usually a defensive back, while on offense, he's usually a wide receiver or a back. The defensive line has to stay a yard off the ball before the snap, and there is no limit to the number of backs who can be in motion.

"On punts, there are no fair catches. But you cannot come within five yards of the receiver until he's caught the ball. And blocking below the waist away from the line of scrimmage is forbidden, so there are a lot less knee and ankle injuries."

Scoring, Kepley said is the same with one exception. On field goals, and punts, a kick out of the end zone counts one point for the kicking team. A free ball in the end zone can be recovered for a touchdown by the kicking team. So if the ball is kicked into the end zone, without going through the goal posts, it is certain to be returned. If the returner is stopped in the end zone, it counts a point for the kicking team.

"There are some other differences, and I learned one of them quickly. When I got to Canada for my first season, there were only four games left. I was in there calling defensive signals and couldn't get the signals from the bench once, so I signalled a time out to the ref. He just looked at me. I found out that there are no time outs in Canada except for an injury."

Kepley feels that the first team of each of the Canadian teams could make the NFL rosters, and he intends to try again in the NFL after his upcoming third year in Canada. "We don't have the same quality depth, however, and that's one of the biggest differences."

Next week, Chuck Mills, head football coach at Wake Forest University, will be the speaker for the Sports Club.

Reorganization, Need Proposal Are Killed

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Rev. Edmund P. Joyce of Notre Dame has succeeded again in his fight against college athletic financial aid based on need.

This time, however, he left some scars.

Father Joyce's argument against a need proposal at the 71st National Collegiate Athletic Association convention Tuesday evoked a bitter retort from J.D. Morgan, athletic director at UCLA.

The issue of need was one of two controversial measures rejected — the other was a proposal to reorganize the NCAA's highest classification, Division I.

Opponents of the need proposal contend that it could lead to widespread cheating, and Father Joyce said that UCLA and some other West Coast schools had violated recruiting regulations 20 years ago.

"They were caught red-handed and then they screamed that the rules were not feasible," he said.

"I am aghast at what has happened in this assemblage," said Hill. "I resent Father Joyce's remarks at my university. I believe I have seen the low of all time."

Father Joyce, executive vice president and faculty moderator for athletics at Notre Dame, later apologized, saying his remarks were not directed at current UCLA personnel.

The apology came shortly after Division I schools defeated by a 102-146 vote the proposal to place athletic scholarships strictly on a need basis.

Several other need proposals, some which exempted football and basketball, also fell in both Divisions I and II.

It was an impassioned plea by Father Joyce at the NCAA convention that was credited with killing the need issue a year ago.

The reorganization plan, prepared by the policy-making NCAA Council during almost one year of work, was turned down in only 10 minutes when the convention voted to table it.

That defeat was regarded as a victory for big time college basketball schools which don't play football.

The plan would have required a school to field varsity teams in football, basketball and six other sports to attain Division I status. A table of performance standards to maintain the classification was included in the package.

The convention adopted a resolution to waive a requirement that a Division I team play 50 per cent of its games against Division I opposition, and permitted eight predominantly black Southern schools to join the division immediately for football.

Those schools were Alcorn State, Florida A&M, Grambling, Jackson State, South Carolina State, Southern U., Tennessee State and Texas Southern.

YVARS NIPS LOCKWOOD LAS CROABAS, P.R. (AP) — Sal Yvars, a member of the 1951 National League champion New York Giants, won the best ball scramble threesome baseball golf tournament over the El Conquistador course with 66-64-130, beating Mets relief pitcher Skip Lockwood by four shots.

Yvars' White Plains, N.Y., neighbor, former Dodger pitcher Ralph Branca, finished third with a 36-hole total of 138.

Nunzie Marchese of Northport, N.Y., and Arthur Golden of Great Neck, N.Y., won the guest segment of the event at Las Croabas, Fajardo with a 136. They finished first after a match of cards with Roland Hautsch of Babylon, here on his honeymoon, and Morris Feuer of East Meadow, N.Y.

Edenton Tops Tigs

EDENTON — Edenton High School won the final four matches to gain a 41-24 wrestling victory over Williamston High School last night.

Overall, Edenton captured seven weight classes, while Williamston took five. One ended in a tie. Four of the Edenton wins were by falls, while Williamston took one by a pin. Williamston also had one forfeit victory.

The Tigers, now 3-6, play host to Washington next Tuesday.

Conley In Romp

FARMVILLE — D. H. Conley's wrestlers romped to a 53-6 victory over Farmville Central last night, winning their ninth straight dual meet.

The defeat was the fourth in 12 starts for the Jaguars this season.

Farmville managed only two wins in the 13 matches against the tough Vikings. Five of the Viking wins came on pins, and another on an injury default.

Two Vikes remained unbeaten, running their strings to 15-0 in the match, 134-pounder Ronald Harris and 187-pounder Jesse Davis.

Farmville plays host to Southern Nash on Friday, while Conley goes to West Carteret next Wednesday.

Summary:

North Pitt Routs Farmville Central

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — North Pitt served notice last night that they are still alive in the Eastern Carolina Conference, rolling over Farmville Central, 67-45.

The Panthers had been in a tie for third place with a 2-1 record before the game but now they and Farmville have identical 3-1 conference marks.

North Pitt was never really threatened in the game, which avenged an earlier loss. The Panthers led by as much as 26 in the fourth quarter after a 26-14 halftime edge.

Donnie Perkins played an outstanding game for the Panthers, leading all scorers with 21 points, as well as making two blocked shots. Kenneth Robertson scored 18 for North Pitt and Virgil Pilgreen had 15.

Farmville was led by Jeff Fields with 14 and Kenno Farrow with 12. James Baker picked up 10 for the Jaguars.

The game started out on a slow pace, with North Pitt taking a 6-0 lead before Farmville got on the scoreboard on a long jumper by Farrow with 4:45 left in the period.

Perkins scored six points for the Panthers as North Pitt was able to penetrate the Jaguar zone for five field goals in the quarter. That, combined with two free throws by Pilgreen, gave the Panthers a 12-4 lead at the end of the quarter.

North Pitt built the lead to 16-4 in the second period on jump shots by Perkins and Jimmy Hardy before the Jaguars finally scored with 5:54 left.

The Panthers then reeled off six straight points while holding Farmville scoreless for nearly four minutes, taking a 22-6 advantage.

The Jaguars were able to cut the lead to 12, 26-14 by halftime, outscoring the Panthers 8-2 for the remainder of the second period.

North Pitt really began to pile it on in the third quarter. After allowing Farmville the first score, the Panthers hit eight straight field goals, for a 36-16 lead. North Pitt hit a fantastic 10 of 14 during the quarter, most from long range and led by 22, 44-22 with 1:11 left before Farmville cut it to 46-26 at the end of the quarter.

In the final period, North Pitt, despite ten turnovers, continued to build on its lead. A three-point play by Pilgreen with 6:50 left gave them a 51-28 lead and, a minute and a half later, Robert son hit a layup to put the Panthers up by 24, 56-32.

The Panthers scored eight straight points late in the game to give them their biggest lead of the night, 66-40, before both coaches emptied their benches for the final minute.

North Pitt outshot Farmville for the game, connecting on 31 of 60 for 52 per cent while the Jaguars could manage but 20 of 64 for 31 per cent. In addition, the Panthers outrebounded Farmville, 42-32.

In the girls' game, Farmville Central held off North Pitt in the fourth quarter to take a 58-51 victory.

The Lady Jaguars, up by as much as 10 in the final period, saw their lead dwindle to six, 55-49 when Ellen Dixon connected on a long jumper with 54 seconds left.

The Pant-HERS cut it down to four, 55-51, with six seconds left when Sue Grimes hit a long jump shot, but Diana Gordon hit the first of a two-shot foul with two seconds left and when she missed ed the second. Lady Jag Ilean Phillips grabbed the rebound and stuck it back in to give Farmville a final seven-point margin.

Phillips paced the Lady Jaguars with 15 points while Diane Barrett hit 12, Julia Moye 13 and Jennifer Counterman 10. Sue Grimes had 15 for North Pitt. Ellen Dixon hit 12 and Mable James scored 10.

Farmville also won the junior varsity game, taking a 66-60 win over the Cubs.

Both teams will play again Friday night in conference matchups. North Pitt will travel to C. B. Aycock while Farmville will be at Ayden-Grifton.

UNC Women Down Lady Bucs

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina's lady basketball team took advantage of a first half ECU dry spell and superior size to down the East Carolina Lady Pirates, 81-64, last night. The loss was East Carolina's fifth of the year against no wins.

The Lady Pirates stayed with the much bigger Lady Heels early in the game, midway through the first half, tying the score at 20-20. It was at this point that East Carolina went flat offensively and the Lady Heels surged to a 13-point halftime margin of 40-27.

Rosie Thompson was missing from the Lady Pirate lineup, having suffered a stress fracture of her leg. Her presence in the game was obviously missed. She's expected to miss two weeks of play. That, coupled with poor execution at times, prevented the Lady Pirates from catching up in the second period.

In the latter stages of the game, Carolina's team took advantage of its size to turn the game into a physical contest, another problem for the Lady Pirates.

Debbie Freeman paced the Pirate attack in scoring with 20 points, while Gail Kerbaugh had 13 and Kathy Suggs had 10.

The Lady Pirates will try and regroup for three games this weekend in Harrisonburg, Va. On Friday night, the Lady Pirates will face Illinois State, followed on Saturday morning with West Chester State, and then Madison College in the afternoon.

Pantego Beats Jamesville

PANTEGO — Pantego took a pair of games from Jamesville last night, winning the girls' contest, 42-30, and the boys', 70-56.

Pantego, led by Carter with 24 and McCloud with 21, ran out to a 39-22 halftime lead and coasted home from there for the win.

Jamesville is now 5-7 for the year. The Bullets will play again on Friday night when they travel to take on Belhaven.

Jamesville actually outscored Pantego in second half by three points, but it wasn't nearly enough to cut into the wide margin.

Eric Davis led the Bullet scoring with 20 points while Tommy DiNardo had 15 and Trent Ange added 13 for Jamesville.

In the girls' game, Jamesville led 14-2 at the end of the first quarter, but Pantego had cut the lead to 24-17 by halftime. Then, Pantego outscored the Lady Bullets 18-4 in the third quarter to take a 35-28 lead. They held it to win, 42-30.

D.H. Conley Rolls Over N. Lenoir Hawks

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley knocked North Lenoir out of a chance to move into a tie for first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference last night with a 74-56 romp past the Hawks.

The North Lenoir girls took their game, 43-33, while Conley won the junior varsity contest, 40-36.

Conley zoomed away to a 14-4 lead in the first period of play. North Lenoir began to hit in the second period, but still lost to a point as Conley built its lead to 35-24.

North Lenoir outit Conley by two in the third period, but was still down, 47-38. Conley wound things up with a 27-18 final period to win going away.

Mike Cox led Conley with 22 points, while Randolph King had 13 and Bernard Hawkins had 10. Orlandus Maye led North Lenoir with 18, while Johnny Wiggins had 11 and Garland Fisher, 10.

In the girls' game, North Lenoir pushed into a 10-4 lead after one period. They increased that to 19-10 by the end of the half. The Lady Hawks continued to pull away, 15-6, in the third period for a 34-16 edge. Conley came back, 17-9, in the final period, but it was too little.

Denise Beacham led North Lenoir with 13, while Angie Wooten hit 11. Alice Costin had 12 for Conley.

The Vikings travel to Southern Nash on Friday.

JV — Conley 40, North Lenoir 36.

Aurora Takes Win Over Bear Grass, 59-56

AURORA — Aurora held off Bear Grass High School in the final period last night to claim a 59-56 victory. Bear Grass won the girls' game earlier in the evening, 44-37.

Both Aurora and Bear Grass pushed through 10 points in the first period of the game, but the Bears inched out into a 30-29 lead at halftime. Aurora came back to outit the Bears, 17-10, in the third period for a 46-40 lead.

The Bears rallied, 16-13, but it wasn't quite enough to pull it out. Sampson Moore led Aurora with 18 points, while Robert Williams had 12, and Percy Moore had 11. Dwayne Baker led Bear Grass with 20, while Robert Harrison had 16.

The Bear Grass girls zoomed out to a 12-4 lead in the first period and coasted from there. They led at the half, 24-10. Aurora rallied in the third period to cut it to 31-25, but the Bears held them off for the win.

Patricia Taylor led Bear Grass with 20, while Darlene Rogerson added 10. Cynthia Tatum had 14 to pace Aurora.

Dodgers Get Rick Monday From Chicago Cubs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Monday earned national acclaim in the outfield at Los Angeles when playing for the Chicago Cubs last April. Now the Dodgers hope he will do the same for them.

Last season, when two men climbed from the stands and attempted to burn the United States flag on the Dodgers Stadium turf, Monday snatched it away before the spark could be struck.

Now, the Dodgers hope Monday will help them win the National League baseball pennant flag.

The 31-year-old centerfielder was acquired by the Dodgers from the Chicago Cubs Tuesday in a trade for veteran left fielder Bill Buckner. Three other players were involved in the transaction but Monday and Buckner were the most important.

Williamston Downs Edenton

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's boys pulled away in the final period to take a 66-59 win over Edenton, but it took a last minute score by the Tigerettes to pull out a 40-39 girls' victory last night.

Williamston girls, unused to having to battle hard in the Northeastern Conference, nearly were set down for the second straight time, as Edenton almost pulled off the upset win.

Williamston took an 11-8 lead in the opening period of the game, but Edenton came back to cut the lead to 22-21 at the half. In the third quarter, Williamston managed to add a point to the margin, and cling to a 34-32 edge. Edenton fought back and held the lead until Jo Anna Lilley hit a shot with 12 seconds left to give Williamston the 40-39 victory.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 15 points, while Sharon Watts added 10. Cheryl Redman had 15 to lead Edenton.

Williamston's boys had somewhat of an easier time, but they had to hold off an Edenton rally to win it. The Tigers burst out to a 20-10 lead in the first quarter, but saw Edenton come back to cut the lead to 34-28 by halftime.		The Aces continued their rally in the third period, trimming the lead down to 48-45 by the end of the frame. But Williamston outthit them, 18-14, in the final period to take the win.

Ronnie Horton led the Tigers scoring with 19 points, while Barry Wallace and Horace Wynne each had 14. One of the top Williamston scorers, Ronnie Brown, missed the game due to illness.		Johnny White led Edenton with 20 points, while Kelly White had 13 and Greg Overton hit 12.
Williamston is idle until next Tuesday night when the Tigers travel to Washington to meet the Pam Pack.		JV — Williamston 56, Edenton 55.

Rams Win On Foul Shots

SNOW HILL — Greene Central pushed through 34 free throws and powered its way to an 80-62 win over Charles B. Aycock High School in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game last night.

The Rams were outthit by their guests, 48-46, from the floor, but made good at the line on 20 more occasions, winning going away.

Aycock's girls rolled along, downing the winless Ewes, 40-35, while the Ram junior varsity took a 52-51 win.

The Rams rushed out to a 23-16 lead in the opening period of the game. Aycock cut one off that before the end of the half, however, but trailed, 37-31, at intermission.

Greene Central pulled away again in the third period with an 18-14 advantage, building its lead to 55-45. They finished off the Falcons with a 25-17 final period.

Ernest Thompson led the way with 29 points, including 13 at the stripe. Dale Dixon added 15, and Steve Jennette, 10. James Whitley had 25 to lead Aycock, while Jackie Dunn had 12.

Greene Central's girls eased out into a surprising 10-6 lead in the first period, but Aycock came back to take a 23-21 halftime lead. They continued to pull away to a 32-27 lead after the third period, and both teams hit eight each in the final frame.

Delphine Sauls led Aycock with 16 points, while Hellen Jones hit 10. Sarah Taylor and Marilyn Yelverton each had 10 for the Ewes.

Greene Central travels to North Lenoir on Friday.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good day and evening to find out exactly where you stand with others by being observant of what is going on around you. Get right answers by your intuitive perceptions as well as through your mature judgment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some difficult situation with mate can be best solved by using reason and logic. You have responsibilities that should be handled without further delay. Keep active and you are happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what it is that associates expect of you and try to cooperate with them more. You get the right slant on some civic matter that has been puzzling you. Handle it with intelligence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have much to do today so don't waste time in starting work on them. Get at the cause of your tiredness and take right steps to alleviate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into that creative work that can bring you satisfaction and fine benefits in the future. Try not to take your mate so much for granted but show real affection.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can now understand what should be done at home to improve conditions there, have more harmony. Do not neglect some important business matter. Think along less belligerent lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please allies more and gain their goodwill, cooperation. Show more affection for your relatives, too. Make sure that utilities are in good condition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look around and see if you can add to your present holdings through new avenues of expression. Talk matters over with one who has expertise in such matters. Show that you have true ability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have good judgment now and can understand just what you want most out of life and can go after such aims in a positive manner. Accept a social invitation extended to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know exactly what your position is with those who mean much in your living expressions and talk less for best results. Find out what a loved one wants most from you. Try to acquiesce.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a fine friend who is devoted to you who can give you fine ideas how to better gain your desires. Join some group that has about the same ideas and aims as your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get involved in a project that is constructive and make progress. Build on a more solid foundation and get your credit improved also. Be persuasive with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have a good plan in mind so make sure to get all the information you can to make it work successfully. Make new allies who can be of interest to you in the long run. Be careful of reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons who can ferret out information that is difficult for others to do. Slant education along investigative lines. Give the advantage of fine principles, since once an idea has gotten into your progeny's head, nothing can change it.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of our life is largely up to YOU!

ROBBERS PHOTOGRAPHED—Two men leave the Wells Fargo bank in Woodside, Calif., Tuesday after, police said, they demanded money at gunpoint from two tellers. Officials said $17,000 was taken from the branch shortly after it opened. Two shots were fired at pursuing officers, the FBI said. Police combed the estate of the parents of Chowchilla busnap suspect Frederick Newhall Woods after his mother reported she saw two men fleeing across the property. (AP Wirephoto)

Complaints Are Hurting N.C. Lawyers

By The Associated Press
North Carolina lawyers are beginning to feel criticism of their performance similar to the scrutiny to which doctors have been submitted in recent years.

The Greensboro insurance company that has provided liability coverage to 5,000 of the state's attorneys announced Tuesday it was getting out of the business.

And in Raleigh, the State Bar announced it is beefing up its statewide disciplinary program in response to increasing client complaints.

Jefferson Pilot Fire and Casualty Co. said that after Feb. 1 it would no longer offer coverage and existing policies would be allowed to expire.

Company president Edward Council said claims are increasing and the potential is "explosive."

"We had two or three in December," he said. "One was for $120,000 and we had one for $85,000 in November. It's getting out of hand. You're just unable to control claims and define the cost."

Bar association officials said they did not understand the decision but efforts are under way to find a new insurer because most attorneys, who know as well as anyone the potential danger of malpractice lawsuits, regard such coverage as essential.

The association's own disciplinary program is being strengthened with a $163,000 federal grant and a dues hike the group plans to propose to the 1977 General Assembly.

Part of the money will be used to set up a toll-free phone line and beef up staff to handle consumer complaints.

The association's only trouble shooter at present—Harold D. Coley Jr., said he was swamped by 500 complaints last year.

About 65 per cent of them were without merit, he said, but the others required investigation.

Present Gospel Music Thursday

The Hopper Brothers and Connie of Madison will present a program of gospel music Thursday, January 13, at 7:30 p.m. at Deliverance Baptist Temple located at the corner of Fifth and Pitt Streets. No admission will be charged.

The group is active in various radio and television programs and record for QCA Records of Cincinnati. Members of the group include Claude, Will, Steve and Connie Hopper and Kirk Talley.

Rhodesia Blacks Caught Between Army, Guerrillas

By JACQUES CLAFIN
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A rural tribesman described the dilemma that most Rhodesian blacks face in the current struggle between guerrillas and government security forces.

"If we report the terrorists, they come and kill us. If we do not report them, the soldiers come to torture us and to destroy our homes and fields," he said.

The black Rhodesian is caught in a crossfire, figuratively and literally. Since Oct. 1, 13 blacks have been killed because they were standing in the line of fire between guerrillas and security forces.

Since the beginning of the war in 1972, hundreds have been killed by one side or the other for a variety of reasons.

The woes of blacks living in reservation-type tribal trust lands have increased as guerrillas have stepped up their operations and their efforts to secure local support through intimidation, retribution and terror.

Of late the retribution campaign has focused on black soldiers, police, government workers and their families.

Military officials say the campaign has not prompted desertions or a decline in voluntary enlistment. But they regard the campaign as alarming.

For this war is far from being strictly a black-white confrontation.

Fully half the regular army is made up of blacks, most of them serving in the two battalions of the Rhodesian African Rifles, reputedly the best black fighting force in Africa.

Blacks also make up three-fourths of the national police, whose principal duty has become combatting insurgents. Only blacks serve as Internal Affairs Ministry district assistants charged with guarding tribal villages against infiltration.

The guerrillas distribute pamphlets in tribal areas pointing out black troops get paid less than whites and do not enjoy the same living conditions or educational opportunity.

The pamphlets tell black troops in the white-officered forces, "We are going to shoot you. You have decided to sell out your brothers." Further on, they urge, "Turn your weapons on the whites."

Guerrillas then go into villages. They ask to be directed to huts belonging to government employees and their families. The ensuing violence runs the gamut from beatings to murder.

The victims also include villagers who refuse to feed insurgents and those who ignore orders to sever ties with white employers and the authorities.

In December, 1975, guerrillas entered a village in northeastern Rhodesia's Mt. Darwin area. They demanded food from Chikombe Mazvidza, the nephew of the village headman.

After he refused, the guerrillas tied his hands behind his back and beat him, fracturing both wrists.

Then they cut off his ears, lips and part of his chin. They forced his wife to roast and eat the flesh. Later, they burned his mother between the thighs with embers. All three survived to tell the tale from hospital beds.

This month, black gunmen rounded up the black laborers of a white-owned tea estate. As the women and children cringed in terror, they killed 27 men with automatic fire.

Survivors and security forces blamed guerrillas for the slayings. Some guerrilla leaders denied responsibility and blamed Rhodesian security forces.

Official figures show blacks have been the guerrillas' most numerous victims. Between the 1972 start of the war and Nov. 30, 1976, insurgents killed 801 blacks and 58 white civilians.

Official communiques show that from Oct. 1 to mid-December about 120 blacks were killed by guerrillas and about 75 black civilians were slain by security forces.

The black civilian fatalities caused by security forces are in part the product of what appears to be the standard operating procedure: Shoot first, ask questions later.

Police officials say the slaying of black civilians often can't be helped.

But alongside accidents of war, there exists considerable evidence that black civilians are the victims of atrocities by both sides.

Evidence of atrocities by security forces has been published by the Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace in Rhodesia in a 95-page report.

Sanctioned by the Vatican, the commission consists of laymen and clerics. Its stated purpose is "to give witness to the truth and expose injustice wherever and whenever we see it."

Its president is the Rt. Rev. Donal R. Lamont, bishop of Umtali. Bishop Lamont currently is appealing a 10-year prison sentence for his admitted refusal to disclose the presence of guerrillas and his advice to subordinates to do the same.

One case cited in the report deals with the killing of 20 persons in the village of Karima on June 12, 1975.

Witnesses quoted by the report said about 50 villagers were called together by men identifying themselves as guerrillas to witness the beating of the village headman on grounds he was a white collaborator.

As the guerrillas walked away and the crowd dispersed, a grenade exploded. Security forces concealed in bushes opened fire from about 10 yards away.

The dead included women and children, witnesses said. Despite the stress tribal custom places on proper ceremonial burial, the victims were cremated.

A characteristically laconic communique two days later said security forces were summoned to Karima by the sounds of a man being clubbed.

"The patrol came under fire from a terrorist group. In the ensuing fight 20 persons were killed," the communique said.

Some of the villagers said the incident, including the beating of the headman, was staged by security forces. This was denied.

The Catholic commission asked authorities why "20 innocent people, mainly women and children, lost their lives," why no terrorists were reported killed and why the bodies were cremated. There were no replies.

A black parliament member called for a debate of the incident. The government majority discharged the motion on grounds it was "unpatriotic" and debate would be detrimental to troop morale.

Even if a debate had taken place and gross excesses had been brought to light, its perpetrators would not have been liable to prosecution.

An unusual legal document, the Indemnity and Compensation Act of 1975, gives all state employees and appointees immunity from criminal and civil court action for harm done "in good faith for the suppression of terrorism and the maintenance of public order."

The act was made retroactive to Dec. 1, 1972.

The commission's report contains page after page of testimony by tribe members alleging torture by black and white members of the security forces.

One 46-year-old Huchu tribesman told the commission that policemen who accused him of knowing the whereabouts of guerrillas applied electric shocks to his genitals, causing subsequent urinary disorders and impotence.

The man said he was released after 20 days in detention and told by one of his torturers, a black named Sithole: "I thought we had a case against you, but we have discovered you are an innocent man. You may go."

The dilemma of Rhodesian blacks is now at a peak. Far from winding down the war, the current diplomatic efforts aimed at achieving majority rule have brought a dramatic escalation.

Some guerrilla groups have stepped up their struggle because they reject the prospect of a nonmilitary settlement. Others believe military action will give their political leaders greater leverage in the diplomatic haggling.

Attempt To Make Glass Of Rubbish

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The glass bottle you throw out today may become the street you drive on or a brick for your new house next year if research into refuse-derived glass pays off.

Every six weeks, a 50-pound sack of ground-up rubbish from Washington, D.C., arrives at the University of San Diego, where a scientist puts it through "froth flotation" in search of glass particles.

What Dr. Donald B. Peterson is trying to do is match the way nature separates the original sand crystals that go into glass from other materials.

"Froth flotation has been an important process in the cleaning of naturally occurring glass sands for many years," said Peterson. "More recently, it has been applied to recovery of glass from municipal solid waste."

Peterson's work is a small segment of large-scale national research on how to handle the mountains of refuse generated by Americans and recover metal and other elements which at present get dumped.

His studies so far show it is possible to isolate glass from such items as bone and pebbles which show up in rubbish and to derive a product that can be used in the making of new glass, as a substitute for asphalt or in the manufacture of bricks.

The investigation by Peterson, a chemist and acting dean of the university's college of arts and sciences, is under auspices of the National Center for Resources Recovery, Inc., in Washington. That's why the ground-up trash comes from there.

Actually, Peterson only receives the glass-pebble-bone residue remaining after the lab in Washington has removed paper, metals and oils by means of other recovery systems.

Then he uses a super version of an electric kitchen mixer (it goes at speeds of over 3,000 revolutions per minute) to stir glass granules out of the other materials.

He's found the ground glass can be attracted into a stiff froth of air bubbles that forms at the surface, but the other materials are not.

Now he's attempting to determine what chemicals can be added to help the glass collect faster.

Peterson said the collected glass particles can be melted back to form new glass. The amber "ecoglass" produced is suitable for many containers.

The material gathered from the separation can also be used to create an asphalt substitute called "glassphalt" for road paving or can be added to brick clay.

The ground glass in brick reduces baking time in the kiln and thus saves energy, he said. The material also allows brick manufacturers to get special texture effects in the finished bricks.

Peterson said the lab in Washington will soon start operation of a pilot froth flotation plant capable of producing 1.25 tons an hour of the glass cullet obtained from municipal waste.

Wm. Bishop Still Wanted For Slayings

By CARL A. VINES
GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — It's been about 10 months since the mother, wife and three sons of William Bradford Bishop Jr. were bludgeoned to death in Bethesda, Md., hauled to a shallow grave in eastern North Carolina, soaked with gasoline and burned.

Last March 18 the trail of those killings ended near here, in the lonely quiet of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, a 500,000-acre wilderness along the North Carolina-Tennessee border.

Bishop, 40 if he's still alive, is charged by Bethesda police with the murder of his mother, Lobelia Bishop, 68; his wife, Annette Wels Bishop, 38; and his sons, William Bradford III, 14, Brenton, 10, and Geoffrey, 4.

"My gut feeling is still that he's dead, somewhere in the park," says Harold Swanson, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Knoxville office. "But I can't assume that. Until we find something to tell us what happened, I've got to assume he's alive somewhere."

The FBI's file on Bishop reveals a puzzling personality. He was a $25,900-a-year State Department official — assistant chief of the special trade activities office of the economic and business section — when he vanished last March 1.

He was born Aug. 1, 1936 in Pasadena, Calif., reared the only child of a wealthy oil company official and his wife in South Pasadena, educated at Yale University, Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vt., the University of Florence in Italy, and UCLA.

Fluent in Italian and Serbo-Croatian, he was troubled enough to seek psychiatric help on three different occasions, first shortly after his father's death while he was studying at UCLA in 1970-71.

His father died March 17, 1969. By then he had been married almost ten years and was the father of two sons. He married the day after his 23rd birthday, Aug. 2, 1959, at San Clemente, Calif.

FBI files show him at Yale in 1954-58, briefly at the Riverside-Alpine Hotel in Truckee, Calif., north of Lake Tahoe, and in the Army in 1959-63. He was stationed with Co. A, 23rd Infantry, at Ft. Benning, Ga., 1959-60, in Monterey, Calif., 1961-62, and at Verona, Italy, 1962-63.

In 1963-64, he was in Florence, Italy, then at Middlebury College in 1964, assigned by the State Department in Ethiopia in 1965-68, in Milan, Italy, 1968-69, and was in Los Angeles in 1970-71 before his move to Washington, D.C. in 1971. Bishop spent 1972-74 in Botswana in Africa, then returned to Washington in 1974 where he remained until last March 1.

On that date, at the family's home in an exclusive section of Bethesda, Md., Bishop's wife, mother and three sons were murdered. The bloody trail of violence led police to conclude that the wife was bludgeoned to death first, then the mother, and finally the three sons, in pajamas, sleeping in upstairs bedrooms.

Bishop left his office about 4:45 p.m., March 1, complaining of a cold. He bought a five-gallon gasoline can at a Sears store and filled it at a Texaco service station.

The next day about noon a forest ranger in Tyrell County, N.C., near the town of Columbia, spotted a fire and went to investigate. In a grave no larger than a bathtub, he found five bodies, soaked in gasoline and burning.

Dr. Page Hudson, North Carolina's chief medical examiner, said the victims had been dead less than 24 hours when they were found. It was a week or more before the Bethesda murders and the bodies in North Carolina were connected.

On March 2, the day the bodies were found, Bishop was in Jacksonville, N.C., 100 miles southwest of the Albemarle Sound area where the grisly discovery was made. He made a $15.50 purchase, using a Bankamerica card, at a sporting goods store.

"We don't know what he bought because nobody remembers the sale and the slip didn't list the items," Swanson said.

On March 18 Bishop's blood-stained, rust-colored, 1974 Chevrolet station wagon was discovered in a parking area at Elkmont in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

"We know it was there March 18," Swanson said. "We have a date. And it could have been there a day or two earlier."

Bloodhounds, and later German shepherd trail dogs, joined armed FBI agents and park rangers in their search for Bishop. But more than four inches of snow had fallen since March 5, and it was so cold that one FBI agent had to leave the park suffering from hypothermia.

The trail dogs pinpointed four spots where Bishop had been, the Sugarlands visitor center where he picked up several park brochures, a locked cottage nearby to which he had walked but had not entered, a spot along Jakes Creek Trail, about 300 yards from where his car was found, and another spot 200 yards farther along the trail where he is believed to have stopped for a time.

Then nothing.

The FBI investigation turned up around 600 persons in 34 states who had camped in the park during February and March. A couple was located who remembered seeing a dog, believed to be a golden retriever, in the Elkmont campground on March 5.

The FBI files show Bishop to be an experienced camper. And he had taken white water canoe lessons a short time prior to his disappearance.

The Bishop station wagon and its contents are the most puzzling and disturbing elements in the case for Swanson.

The FBI has no idea how long it took Bishop to drive across North Carolina. There are no records of gasoline purchases from credit cards. The vehicle, however, still had gasoline when he arrived at Elkmont.

"His sports jacket was draped over back of the front seat on the passenger side," Swanson said. "There was a suitcase on the seat and his shaving kit on top of that. Then there was a heavy car coat folded on top of that. A box of dog biscuits, standing upright, was on the front floorboard on the passenger side."

In the back was a blood-stained blanket, an ax, a 12-gauge shotgun (a Mossberg), a large rectangle of heavy canvas. There was some prescription medicine in the glove compartment (a tranquilizer, Serax, prescribed to treat symptoms of insomnia and depression).

"The way his sports jacket was placed, it couldn't have ridden on the vinyl seat cover without slipping down. He had to remove it when he got out of the car, and place it on the back of the seat," Swanson said.

"The open box of dog biscuits must have been set on the floor after he arrived." And that would indicate the family's golden retriever was with him on his trip. Except for the reported sighting of the dog at the Elkmont campground March 5, nothing of the dog has turned up, either.

"It just makes sense," Swanson said, "that he had no intention of going far when he got out of the car and walked up the trail."

That led Swanson and other FBI agents in this area to conclude he had gone into the park and committed suicide. And they fully expected to find the body, in a day or two, somewhere nearby.

The fact that they didn't leaves open all kinds of speculation.

Perhaps he made his way out of the park, caught a ride to some nearby town, took a plane or bus out of the area and has even managed to leave the country.

Perhaps he used a phony passport because his diplomatic passport, which has not been found, would be too easy to spot. Perhaps he is in Africa or Italy, living like a native of some foreign country; or is somewhere in this country, living under an assumed name, carefully guarding his secrets from the curious.

A close-grid search was made in the park within a mile or two of where the car was found.

But not one shred of evidence was uncovered.

Royal Warrant Is Guarantee Of British Quality

By GAIL GREGG
LONDON (UPI) — In Britain you can spread your toast every morning with Queen Elizabeth's marmalade; shave with Prince Philip's electric razor; buy your boots at Princess Anne's outfitter; or even have your windows washed by the royal family's window cleaner.

A system of granting Good Housekeeping-type seals, called Royal Warrants, is what makes it possible for your shopping list to have so much in common with that of Britain's royal family.

The warrants, which number over 1,000, prove that a royal household has purchased, used and has been satisfied with a certain product or retailer for three years.

Once meted out solely to businesses who supplied royalty exclusively, the warrants now are awarded to some of the same shops where Britain's John Smiths buy their groceries and raincoats and office equipment.

And a glance through the warrant list shows that even though Queen Elizabeth's household includes several palaces and country homes, stables and hundreds of servants, she and her family live much like the John Smiths.

For although furriers, champagne suppliers and elegant jewelers appear on the warrant list, so do firms like: Reckitt and Coleman (manufacturers of metal polish, shoe polish and leather dressings); Temple and Crook Ltd. (suppliers of brushes and hardware); Beecham Producers (suppliers of a cold remedy); and Cyclax Ltd. (manufacturers of cosmetics and beauty preparations).

The warrant registry shows that the royal family is clothed by Anderson, William and Sons (tailors and kiltmakers); entertained by Hamleys (toys and sports merchants) and John Broadwood and Sons (piano-forte merchants).

On the royal household's dinner table are products from James Baxter and Son (purveyors of potted shrimps), D. W. H. Cargill Ltd. (suppliers of seed potatoes) and John Burgess and Son Ltd. (manufacturers of pastes and creamed horseradish).

Britain's top families also buy from J. J. Cash Ltd (manufacturers of woven name tapes); Black and Edgington Ltd. (tent and flag makers) and Beiston Boiler Co. Ltd. (manufacturer of cast iron sectional boilers).

Warrant holders seem to be proud of their warrants much the same way a newly appointed peer is proud of his title "Lord."

"It's a mark of honor," said a spokesman at Fortnum and Mason, the royal family's luxury grocery and clothing shop.

"It's something we treasure very much," said C. W. Bridgeman of John Broadwood piano company.

And warrant holders agree that the awards are good for business.

"I would say that it does make a difference in whether or not people buy our product. One assumes that royalty have nothing but the best," Bridgeman said.

"We feel that a royal warrant helps reassure consumers about the quality of a product and the integrity of a manufacturer," a spokesman for Ardash Tobacco Co., the queen's cigarette supplier, said.

Once a company has served a royal household for three years, it can apply for a warrant, but is "by no means assured of one," a spokesman for the Royal Warrant Association said.

The applicants are screened and warrant holders selected by a palace group, the Royal Household Tradesman's Warrants Committee. And every 10 years, warrants come back up for review.

A royal warrant becomes void by death, retirement or bankruptcy of the individuals, partners or directors in whose names it is granted — or by death of the member of the royal family who awarded it.

Many warrants are renewed by succeeding royalty, so that some holders can trace their original warrants back to King George II (Broadwood pianos) or Queen Adelaide (Hatchards Bookstore).

But warrant holders said the 10-year review and a sense of responsibility to the royalty who grant them their awards keep them from becoming complacent — despite receiving a long succession of the honors.

"You've got to make sure your products are up to standard," Bridgeman said.

In fact, that is the primary function of the Royal Warrants Association — to ensure that "we are good boys, that the warrant is not misused at home or abroad," a Hatchards spokesman said. "It's all laid down very carefully."

And although warrant holders are careful to abide by warrant protocol — which regulates how the seal can be displayed and used by a manufacturer or retailer — they are not shy about making their status as royal suppliers known.

The queen's bankers make certain you know she is among your fellow customers if you apply for an account there. The warrant seal flies above Fortnum and Mason doors and decorates the cigarette packages Ardash sells. And even the queen's window washer has painted his panel truck with a reproduction of his warrant.

It's all evidence that even as Britain's financial foundation is crumbling, its subjects still enjoy the signs of royal presence — and are even happier when they can aspire to royal taste.

Show Collection Of Old Masters

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time a group of master drawings from the renowned collection of the Fitzwilliam Museum of Cambridge University are on display in the United States. The drawings range from 16th Century through 19th Century works and include sketches by Leonardo, Raphael, Rubens, Rembrandt, Titian and Degas.

The collection of 125 drawings will be on display at the Pierpont Morgan Library here until February 1977. It will also be seen in Ft. Worth, Baltimore, Minneapolis, and Philadelphia. The exhibition is sponsored by Sir Peter Ramsbotham, Ambassador of Great Britain.

Poland Trying Aid Consumer After Rioting

By BOGDAN TUREK

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — A new Polish film that has audiences rolling in the aisles shows the hero asking for auto parts in a butcher shop that is totally devoid of meat.

Throughout the film, "A Brown-Haired Fellow at Sunset," the hero and his family eat blood sausage for every meal.

Many Poles are able to laugh. But the humor is sometimes so close to reality it hurts. The meat shortage has spanned three decades of Communist rule. It is one of many consumer problems.

The government is embarked on new programs to deal with them and, in the process, is courting the consumer, for years the neglected Cinderella in an economy heavily committed to industrial development.

The effort comes after an attempt to restructure food prices in June misfired, resulting in strikes and riots.

Food prices are to be frozen until mid-1978. Subsidies are being increased. Some meat is to be purchased in the West. Exports of meat to earn hard currency have already been reduced.

The government has done an about face on its former policy to eliminate private shops and service companies. It now encourages their development.

A bill approved by the Sejm (Parliament) Dec. 2 is designed to promote the growth of private bakeries and private stores selling meat products. The owners will pay little income tax for the first three years of operation.

Meetings of the ruling Communist party are increasingly concerned with other economic improvements that will benefit the consumer. They would boost food production and house building.

The government's current efforts came about as a direct result of its unsuccessful attempt to raise food prices in June.

When the increases were introduced, strikes started in factories throughout the country. Workers from the Ursus tractor plant near Warsaw ripped up main line railway tracks. Rioting erupted at Radom.

The government withdrew the price increase legislation. But it said it would introduce new price legislation later this year. Then it had second thoughts and decided on a price freeze until sometime in 1978.

Even then, any change in prices will be "moderate in order to give the consumer a sense of stability," according to Wlodzimierz Janurek, a spokesman for the government.

He said the state will be subsidizing food prices by 70 per cent in 1977, to a total of $10 billion. This represents a five-fold increase since 1970.

The June disturbances caused other headaches for the regime.

When Polish authorities took a tough line towards workers involved in the rioting and strikes, sending several of them to jail and dismissing many others from their jobs, a committee of dissident intellectuals emerged to defend the workers.

Leaders of the Roman Catholic Church, which claims to represent more than 90 per cent of Poland's 33 million population, criticized the regime for persecuting the strikers and their families. The church further accused the government of deliberately violating religious rights that are guaranteed by the constitution.

Leaflets issued by the "Committee for the Defense of Workers," and an underground "Information Bulletin" that publishes details of trials of strikers, have produced new pressures for greater freedom of information.

Cultural sources said the official censors somewhat surprisingly cleared distribution of a new Polish film entitled, "Good Morning, Do They Beat You Here?" It included scenes of police coercion, at a time when the police have been criticized by the dissidents for using violence to extract confessions.

Polish newspapers have been told to be more frank in treatment of public grievances, according to informed sources.

Edward Gierk, the Polish Communist Party's first secretary, recently told Polish newsmen in a confidential briefing: "Tackle the problems which grieve the people the most."
