'Dream' Shopping List Of Proposals Put Before City Recreation Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A nearly one million dollar "dreamer's shopping list" and discussion of a suggestion by a representative of Radio Station WRQR for a raft race-show in the spring were the two topics considered at the February meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

At a meeting without any action being taken, commission members looked over what Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee called a "dreamer's shopping list of recreation projects."

In presenting the list compiled by his staff, Lee noted that for the sake of planning, the complete scope of projects, including those of pressing need and within the realm of possibility, as well as hoped for future projects, were included in the list.

"This list will go to the different department heads in the city and from there recommendations will go to the City Council," Lee commented. "The items recommended will be included in the two public hearings on Community Development funds to be held by the City Council on January 20 and February 3."

A broad look at the shopping list discussed by commission members reveals a total of 13 projects, ranging from improvements and additions to existing facilities to new long-range projects.

The list, in order of priority established by the Recreation Department staff is:

— West Greenville Center — $115,000. This project would include replacement of the roof; interior repairs; paving a parking lot; tennis courts; and handball courts.

— River Property - Phase I — $75,000.

— Guy Smith Park — $100,000. Items that would come from this proposal would include lights for the baseball field; storage, shower rooms and bathrooms; tennis courts; and paving the parking lots.

— Mobile Recreation Units; Maintenance Building and Storage; Equipment Loan Program; Arts and Crafts Supplies — $77,000.

— Land Purchases — $50,000. For purchase of land in Club Pines, Greenfield Terrace, and Lyndale.

— Equipment for West Greenville and South Greenville — $15,000. To include bleachers, scoreclocks, pool tables, table games, etc.

— Evans Park Field; and Playgrounds — $20,000. To light the unlighted softball field at Evans Park and to provide hard surface multi-purpose areas in two parts of town.

— Cover Swimming Pool — $200,000. Covering the present pool to give year-round use.

— Public Golf Course — $300,000.

John Seid, an announcer and account executive at Radio Station WRQR presented commission members a proposal for holding a raft race-show in the spring to be sponsored by that station with all proceeds beyond actual cost of putting on the show to go to a recreation fund.

"This would be drawn up as a non-profit event," Seid said, "with complete accountability of all proceeds and expenses furnished."

As envisioned, the radio station would publicize the event, would secure services of the Coast Guard Auxiliary for safety supervision, and would handle administrative details of receiving and processing applicants for the raft race-show. Entry fee per participant would be $10, with the winner being accorded a prize.

The proposed starting point would be the launching ramp at Town Common with the race to end at Port Terminal. Only persons 18 or older would be permitted to enter.

Commission members expressed appreciation to Seid and agreed that before a decision could be made it would be necessary to check out all legal angles and the subject of liability. Seid was asked to make a check with other towns who have had similar events for more information on all phases of planning a raft race-show.

Ford Emphasizes Accomplishments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pausing briefly in its preparations for the administration of Jimmy Carter, Congress heard "an old friend," President Ford, bid an emotional farewell in a State of the Union address that looked back with pride and forward with hope and prayer.

"Touching... a nice eulogy... a good swan song," were the comments from members of Congress, Democrats and Republicans alike, at the conclusion of Ford's Wednesday night address.

Throughout the day, delegations from Congress held meetings with Carter, who will be sworn in as president a week from today.

Acknowledging that "the people have spoken," and the new president would outline his program in his inaugural address, Ford said, "I will not infringe on that responsibility, but rather wish him the very best in all that is good for our country."

Rather than present Congress with a list of legislative requests, Ford chose to emphasize accomplishments of his 30-month presidency.

Ford entered the House chamber where he served for 25 years and was greeted by prolonged applause. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., introduced Ford as "an old friend, the President of the United States."

The President-elect had no immediate comment on the Ford address.

"It was a nice eulogy by a nice man," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex. "It was a good, fair administration by a man who did his level best to improve the country, with some success and some failure."

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee called the speech "magnificent, the most touching State of the Union message I've ever heard."

"It was a good swan song," said Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, assistant Senate Republican leader.

His voice breaking, Ford closed his speech with a prayer that "God guide this wonderful country, its people, and those they have chosen to lead them."

Earlier, he told the joint session of Congress that "the state of the union is good... today we have a more perfect union than when my stewardship began."

Ford recalled that when he took office Aug. 9, 1974, "our nation was deeply divided and tormented. In rapid succession, the vice president and the president had resigned in disgrace.... In January 1975, I reported to the Congress that the state of the union was not good.... A year ago, I reported that the state of the union was better — in many ways a lot better — but still not good enough...."

"Now, after 30 months as your President I can say that while we still have a way to go, I am proud of the long way we have come together."

He cited the fact the nation was at peace and no Americans were fighting anywhere in the world.

Turning to domestic concerns, Ford said his administration had "successfully cut inflation by more than half.... We have created more jobs."

But the continuing high level of unemployment, he called "my greatest regret as I leave office."

Assembly Begins Session Amidst Happy Confusion

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite a mishap or two and some occasional confusion, the North Carolina General Assembly has opened its 1977 session on a positive note, apparently ready to begin work in earnest.

A retired schoolteacher from Onslow County took an unwary step backward and found herself sitting in one of the Legislative Building's five fountains Wednesday morning. One of the woman's representatives— Wilda Hurts, a Democrat from Jacksonville—groaned. "Everything happens to Wilda."

In the Senate chamber, the electronic voting machine aroused howls of protest after it failed to record the votes of several members. The House, meanwhile, still doesn't have its voting machine, which was to be installed and working for this session. Wires for the boards that will display the votes were hanging from the balconies, though.

Meanwhile, as new legislators, new employees in the building and newsmen facing their first session tried to find their way around the confusing structure, the old hands were generally wandering the halls Wednesday morning, offering warm greetings to all.

"Happy legislature," said a secretary to a lawmaker she passed in the hall. "Or maybe I shouldn't say that because it may not be so happy," she added. The legislator chuckled.

State Rep. Ronald Earl Mason, D-Carolier, appeared jovial following the first session of the House. The rotund Beaufort real estate man grinned widely when asked how he will vote on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"It won't be like last time," he said. "The way the mail's going now, I'm going to vote for it."

In 1975, Mason reneged on a campaign promise and voted against ERA on second reading. But, when the vote was deadlocked, he switched in favor of it and voted against it again on final reading. His switch on the close vote sealed the fate of ERA because it prompted others to reverse their stands and oppose it, believing it was dead.

A large crowd was milling most of the day on the Senate side of the building. "Senator Popkin" buttons were in profuse evidence.

"They are the good folks from Onslow County," Sen. Jerry Popkin, D-Onslow, said when asked what was going on. The buttons were volunteered by supporters who also chartered seven buses to haul mostly retired school teachers to Raleigh to watch the session begin.

SMOKE DETECTORS WHOLESALE

A Hotline reader has provided us with the address of an organization which reportedly sells smoke detectors at a wholesale price, non-profit. GOOD RESPONSE

The families of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby White have asked Hotline to thank everyone who responded to the Thursday, appeal on their behalf. The mobile home of the couple and their six-month-old daughter burned last Tuesday night.

Mrs. White's sister, Mrs. Renae Williams, said the couple received almost everything they needed to start keeping house again as a result of the appeal.

Three Killed At Crossing

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — Three persons, including two young children, died when a freight train struck a car Wednesday at a crossing in rural Warren County.

The victims were identified by Dr. Charles Bunch, county medical examiner, as Nancy Marie Henderson, 25, and her two daughters, 5-year-old Laurie and 7-month-old Latoria.

Mrs. Henderson, a Warren County native, reportedly had returned to attend a funeral.

The crossing where the accident occurred was not equipped with electronic warning signals, said Chief Deputy Dorsey Capps of the Warren County sheriff's department.

"We've had quite a few people killed there," said Capps. "A train goes by there about three times a day and there's no signal."

The accident occurred before dusk about one mile east of the Macon community, Capps said, adding that the impact of the collision carried the death vehicle about three-fourths of a mile down the track.

Grifton Honors Its Outstanding Citizen Of '76

GRIFTON — Mrs. Mattie J. Caple Dixon was named Outstanding Citizen of Grifton for 1976 by the Grifton Chamber of Commerce at a banquet held Wednesday night at the American Restaurant in Grifton.

Mrs. Dixon was presented a plaque by outgoing acting President, Leigh Fleming.

A lifelong resident of Grifton, the award committee decided that Mrs. Dixon was an appropriate recipient during the Bicentennial Year because of her knowledge of Grifton.

Mrs. Dixon, born May 27, 1903, has been active in church and civic affairs in Grifton for many years. She has served as a guest panelist at a discussion in Greenville entitled "Then and Now: Pitt County Women Through 200 Years", a featured speaker representing citizens over 70 years old at the 1976 Shad Festival, and is a charter member of the Grifton Resources Improvement Program. She is also a member of the Bicentennial Committee of Grifton, Historical Museum Committee, and the Grifton Chapel F.W.B. Church where she is an elder. She is chairman of the Mother Board of the church.

She is a former school teacher and taught in Pink Hill after receiving certification in 1928, and substituted at the Grifton Elementary School.

Mrs. Dixon has been a leader in the black community and has been instrumental in bringing the races together in Grifton.

The Outstanding Citizens Award is selected by a committee and is not restricted to service in any particular year, nor to any age group. Nominations are received at large and the selection is made after all nominations are reviewed by the committee.

New officers for the coming year were also named at the Chamber meeting. They are as follows: Dave Bosley, president; Richard McLawhorn, vice president; Joyce Harrell, secretary; and Catherine Condon, treasurer.

FARMVILLE — Approximately 150 area school board members, educators, and officials met at Farmville Central High School Wednesday for the Annual District II meeting of the North Carolina School Board Association (NCSBA). The theme of the meeting was "Public Education-Heritage and Horizons."

Dr. Hugh Wease, Associate Professor of the History Department at ECU was the guest speaker at the after dinner session.

Dr. Wease explained that in the past, it has been the responsibility of the public schools to prepare the students for citizenship in the city, the state and the nation, but since the Space Age a more global approach is necessary. Dr. Wease said that the public schools now have the added responsibility of preparing the students for citizenship in a global society. He added that the expanding of educational horizons could accomplish international understanding.

At an afternoon session, a report was presented by Pitt County School Superintendent, Ott Alford concerning the nominating committee's recommendation for new officers. The following were elected: Jack Wright, member of the Washington City Board of Education, president; Durward M. Cooper, member of Tyrell County Board of Education, vice president; and Jasper Lewis, Superintendent of Washington City Schools, secretary.

Dr. Raleigh Dingman, Executive Secretary of NCSBA, presented a report from the State Association. According to Dr. Dingman, the NCSBA will be working to change the position of State Superintendent of Public Instruction from an elected office to an appointed office, and for having two separate boards, one for community colleges and another for elementary and secondary schools.

Katheryn Lewis, Pupil Personnel Director of Pitt County Schools presented a report and a slide presentation about the Middle School Counseling programs in the Ayden Grammar School and Farmville Middle School.

Gene Cosby, of the staff of the State Board of Education reported on the legal aspects and problems of public education. Cosby discussed the Tenure Act, corporal punishment and Due Process. He feels that two things that during his term will be to have legislation passed requiring the testing of students in grades 1-3 and make the test scores public, as well as to require an examination for graduation of high school seniors.

Sue Branch of Pitt County Schools, presented a report and audiovisual presentation about a fundamental reading program. Mrs. Branch discussed reading problems, available assistance for reading problems, and teaching methods.

The district meeting according to Mark Owens, Jr., of the Pitt County Board of Education and past district president, was one of 18 district meetings held throughout the state between January and March.

Miss Gloria Jean Morgan Weds Stars Look Down From Walls Of Poster Shop

Miss Gloria Jean Morgan became the bride of Richard Marcum Davis Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at the Friendship Free Will Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Walter Reynolds, pastor of the bride.

The church was decorated with five candelabra with greenery, accented with a bouquet of white mixed flowers on both sides. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Tyson Morgan of Snow Hill. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Davis of Hawthorne, Calif.

A program of music was presented by Miss Susan Beamon of Farmville at the piano and organ. Mrs. Donna Morgan of Snow Hill sang "Whither Thou Goest." "The Wedding Prayer" was sung as the benediction and Miss Beamon sang "More."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of organza and alencon lace encircled with seed pearls. The fitted bodice featured a split V-neckline and full bishop sleeves. Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls adorned the bodice and organza ruffle over the hand. The full length flared organza skirt extended into a chapel train accented with a bow at the waist back.

The bride chose a fingertip layered veil of illusion applied with alencon lace attached to a lace cap etched with seed pearls. Mrs. Rose Cook of Walstonburg, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of red sheer organza designed with a portrait neckline featuring a wide collar edged in a self-ruffle and short capelet sleeves. The natural waistline was encircled with a corded train and enhanced by a large sheer bow in back. The full circular skirt was styled with a ruffle at the hemline.

Bridesmaids were Miss Julie Morgan of Snow Hill, sister of the bride, Miss Trina Holloman, cousin of the bride, of Walstonburg, Miss Gina Davis of Walstonburg, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Debra Strickland of Farmville. Their gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant and each carried a long-stemmed white mum.

Miss Crystal Usher of Wallace, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her attire was similar to the attendants. Wayne Eastwood of Wilson, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Alan Bagley of Walstonburg served as best man and ushers were Marvin and Mike Morgan of Snow Hill, brothers of the bride, David Sherrill and Fitz McKeel Jr. of Walstonburg.

The mother of the bride wore a blue polyester formal length gown with a high neckline with long sheer organza sleeves.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a pants suit and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will reside at Rt. 2, Walstonburg.

The bride is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed at Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed by A. C. Monk Co., Farmville.

MRS. RICHARD MARCUM DAVIS

Miss Brenda Morgan, sister of the bride, presided at the register. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Gladys Oakly of Farmville.

On Saturday evening, an after-rehearsal party was given for the couple in the fellowship hall of the church by the parents of the bride, assisted by Mrs. Bessie Holloman and Mrs. Ruth Morgan. The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

Stars Look Down From Walls Of Poster Shop

By WILLIAM POOLE

EDEN, Vt. (UPI) — Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman, Andy Devine and Frankenstein look down from posters on the walls of a weathered barn in this northern Vermont town.

They're part of Tom Dewitt's poster art collection. The transplanted Pennsylvanian operates a poster sales shop just off a back road in this hilly New England community.

The poster of Bogart and Bergman and their movie "Casablanca" is not for sale. "No one is getting 'Casablanca' away from me," says Dewitt. "There are some things a guy can't part with. You have to draw the line somewhere."

And if Dewitt hadn't decided to draw the line, the price of a Bogey poster would be high.

"When you're talking Bogey," says Dewitt, "you're talking 50 bucks to start."

Another "classic" Dewitt says he won't part with is a "Citizen Kane" poster. But there are others he's willing to sell, including a bigger-than-life still of Ronald Reagan in "Tugboat Annie Sails Again."

He's also willing to part with "Trail of the Vigilantes," a movie starring Franchot Tone, Warren William, Broderick Crawford and Andy Devine.

Or how about those all-time favorites — Frankenstein and the Wolfman. Then there are posters featuring Clark Gable, Claude Rains and Jimmy Stewart. Next to the horror movie posters, Gable is the most popular seller, Dewitt says.

Dewitt admits his supply is not inexhaustible, but says he has enough to trade and sell for quite a while.

For instance, there's "Henry Aldrich for President" and "Blondie Goes Latin." And if you're in a less upbeat mood, there's the "Mad Ghoul" and the "Fiend Without a Face."

For further escape, try "Attack of the Puppet People," "Love Slaves of the Amazons" and "The Return of the Fly."

One group of poster collectors, Dewitt notes, specializes in "Mummy" posters.

"If I had a big stock of those old horror posters I'd be set for life," he said.

But the poster business apparently isn't based on the free and unhindered forces of the market place.

Dewitt says the only way he can get more old posters is to deal with the large collectors. He claims there is no profit in that.

The largest poster firm in the country, he says, is "an out-and-out monopoly" which destroys any movie poster more than 10 years old.

"It makes you want to cry," Dewitt moans. "They just take 'em out to the incinerator and burn 'em."

Dewitt began his own business in the early 1960s when he started buying used posters from Pennsylvania theaters for 25 cents each.

His interest grew over the years and a friendship with Mitch Pantzer gave him a chance to make it big in the poster business.

"Mitch was the kind of guy you'd call 'Pop' if he owned an ice cream parlor," Dewitt says.

According to Dewitt, Pantzer had a big, old building with three or four floors filled with old posters. He used to sell them over the counter to kids, but offered to sell them "lock, stock and barrel" to Dewitt.

Dewitt raised the money and moved to Wilkes-Barre, Pa. to set up shop.

But things didn't go too well there and the financial "angels" who backed the business became impatient and the company folded.

For 12 years Dewitt worked as a public defender in Pennsylvania and then he decided to "drop out."

The place to drop out to, he decided, was Vermont. Taking his posters with him, Dewitt moved to northern Vermont near the Canadian border. He worked for a year managing a Jay Peak ski area and then discovered the flea market circuit.

It was on that circuit Dewitt found that there might be a market in Vermont.

"I'm sure happy I moved to Vermont, I should have done it a lot sooner," he said. "I sit there in the sun, talking to people and selling my posters and it just doesn't seem like work."

Don't Take Chances With This Sickness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Reading about the father who molested his daughter has given me the courage to write.

Quite a few years ago, when my daughter was 12, I learned that her father had been bothering her. (She finally got scared and told me.) It happened over several months. It was just serious foreplay, but I felt it would lead to the final act sooner or later.

I confronted her father, and he admitted it. I told him he was sick, and he had to either see a doctor or leave. He refused to see a doctor, so needless to say, he is not with us any longer.

I should have realized something was wrong sooner because my daughter never wanted to be left alone with him. She begged to go with me everywhere I went.

My daughter feels that I did the right thing in giving her father an ultimatum. However, my doctor told me I handled it badly. He said that sort of thing is quite common and had I let it go, it probably would not have gone any further. He said most mothers just put a lock on the girl's door.

I would like your comments on this.

NO NAME, NO CITY
DEAR NO: I think you handled it exactly right. I disagree with your doctor. Your husband is SICK! And for you to have "let it go," or simply put a lock on your daughter's door, instead of insisting that your husband either get help or get out, would have made you as guilty as he, had his molesting continued.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just returned from Las Vegas, where we married off our 17-year-old daughter to her boyfriend of two years. (No, she's not pregnant.)

Our daughter had been the ward of the court for two years because she had repeatedly run away from home. She had been placed in I don't know how many places, but she managed to escape from all of them.

The court released her to marry because they ran out of places to put her.

My question: Should I give her a reception, send out marriage announcements or just forget it?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: Disregard her hectic record and treat her as you would a loving daughter who had just married. But consult her first.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define old age?

GETTING THERE
DEAR GETTING: To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder.

But I would say that you've reached it when: You need your glasses to find your glasses. You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for.

People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking. You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your hair.

Mayva's a real winner. The other night she said, "You know that blue dress you bought a few years ago that was two sizes too small that you were going to diet down to? Well, I saw it the other night on the mother on Happy Days."

"What's that supposed to mean?" I asked.

"It means that dress has been in and out of style five times since you bought it."

"I didn't want to mention it," I said lowering my voice, "but there's something weird about that dress."

"Like what?"
"You'll think I'm crazy."
"Trust me."
"Okay, the truth is that dress is shriveling."

"You're crazy."
"I knew you'd say that. You didn't believe me when I had that fake fur coat that grew in the closet every summer."

"That was different," said Mayva.

"No it wasn't. You saw me hem it every single October. I put it away knee-length, but when I got it out again, it was always back to my ankles."

"I've never heard of a dress shrinking before."

"I didn't say 'shrinking,' I said 'shriveling.' There's a difference. You know how I've been watching my weight. How many pounds would you say I've lost since I bought this dress?"

Mayva thought a moment. "Three hundred and seventy-two."

"Whatever. Well, I get the dress out every year and try it on. I tell you it's getting smaller."

"Can you wear it at all?" asked Mayva.

"Of course I can wear it. From one angle I actually look like Joey Heatherton."

"What angle is that?"
"Flat on my back with my arms outstretched."

"Look! Why don't you just get rid of the dress? You can't wear it and you're not going to. You just have to face up to that."

I jerked it out of her hand. "This dress is my Xanadu, my Miss America, my Pillsbury bake-off, my Academy Award, my Reader's Digest Sweepstakes — don't you understand, Mayva, it's my dream!"

"You know something? Mrs. Walton was wearing that same dress the other night."

Garden Club Meets Tuesday

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. A. T. Bilbro Tuesday. Mrs. J. F. Baumann was assisting hostess.

Initial plans for the annual Garden Club Fair to be held in early April were discussed. Mrs. Baumann and Mrs. Joseph M. Laney Jr. will act as co-chairpersons for the fair.

After the business meeting, members went to the East Carolina University greenhouse where Dr. Donald Jeffries, a professor in the biology department, conducted an informal tour of the greenhouse.

The next meeting of the club will be a pot luck luncheon Feb. 8 at the home of Mrs. J. H. Harrell when members will celebrate the club's 23rd anniversary.

Unfair Exemptions In Effect

Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Housing Authority, reported to the commissioners last week that heating costs had soared because of a State Utilities Commission ruling.

Laney said the commission ruled that housing authorities and public schools would no longer be exempt from bearing the increased cost of emergency gas purchases, as they were last year.

The result was an increase of one-third in the cost of gas purchased by the housing authority for heating purposes. That will mean an additional $25,000 in charges over the next four months.

Surprisingly under the ruling residential users retained their exemptions from the extra costs.

Laney, who is also president of the Carolinas Council, Redevelopment and Codes Officials, complained that it was unfair to impose the rate on low income residents of public housing.

In addition, he said, the housing authorities were not given the chance to testify prior to the change.

It doesn't seem fair to us either that the higher rates would be applied to public housing, while residences are exempt. It seems that if the exemption is applied to residences, it should apply to public housing units, which, after all, are residences, too. The exemption was granted last year; and it should have been continued this year.

Much Rides On Professional's Work

North Carolina obviously has problems in its prisons system and Gov. Hunt has turned to a professional to run the system during his term.

Amos Reed, now deputy secretary of the Florida Department of Offender Rehabilitation, was chosen for the position.

Hunt called Reed "a giant in his field."

Some have warned that the prison system may come under federal court jurisdiction, if improvements aren't made.

It is encouraging that Hunt has turned to a professional in the field to serve as North Carolina's corrections secretary.

Water Needs Management

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is plenty of water in North Carolina to meet future needs.

The problem is simply one of management, a report delivered this week to the state's Environmental Management Commission concludes.

"If we are willing to pay the price both in dollars and in some constraints in terms of subjecting ourselves to management, there is no reason why there should be any shortage of water in this state to meet all reasonable social, environmental, and economic needs.

"In one form or another, the water is here," flatly states the extensive report on "Policy for Water Resources Planning" prepared by John Wray of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Future Directions

The policy guidelines contain numerous findings of problems and recommendations for consideration by state agencies and the General Assembly in developing an overall water use policy for the state.

The guiding philosophy of planning water use is spelled out in the policy paper: "We should think first not of water but of people and their aspirations and needs in which water plays an important role."

Following that guideline, the proposed policy charts specific directions for economic development, environmental protection, and combinations of those two interests in all of the state's various "hydrological study areas" of one or more river basins.

The year-long project resulted in a 332-page book which catalogs specific areas which have problems of flooding, drought, erosion, or uneven distribution of water. Some 1,000 proposed water resource projects of various sorts are listed, including projects under study for flood control, reservoirs, water and sewer lines, parks, greenways and wilderness areas, access to public water recreation and land for future needs, and harbor or navigation proposals.

A statewide policy has become essential, the policy guide suggests, because water is a "multiuse but finite resource and its allocation must meet a diversity of demands. . . . Important tradeoffs must be considered. . . ."

One-Sided

"Many special-interest groups propose solutions which reflect the singular mission of the group rather than the overall scope of problems. . . . Once a simplistic solution has been proposed, its proponents are faced with the task of supporting it. . . . The public doesn't know whom to believe."

Thus, the running battle between economic growth and development, environmentalists who oppose growth at any cost, and the public which is caught in the middle can only be resolved through a political process.

Policy recommendations listed follow the principle of water for people, with much emphasis on expanded recreational use of water, flood control through building restrictions rather than artificial controls, concern for wildlife in future water use decisions, and stringent anti-pollution measures.

The proposals get deeply into future industrial growth in recommending that the state "encourage large water-using industries to locate in water rich areas, namely: the lower reach of Yadkin-Pee Dee, Roanoke, Cape Fear, Catawba, French Broad, Neuse, and Tar-Pamlico."

Likewise, future power plants should be in those water rich areas, and should be restricted in water withdrawals during drought periods.

Flooding comes in for major attention, with the growing problem of heavy water runoff from developed areas blamed for downstream flooding in many cases. More emphasis should be given to restricting building in floodplain lands, and to computing the effects of buildings and parking lots on nearby streams.

Modernizing The Club

WASHINGTON — The United States Senate is the oldest gentlemen's club in town. Like other such institutions, it is rich in tradition; it is enormously expensive to keep up; and it is ruled by crustacean committees who look upon change with suspicion and alarm.

In this hard-shelled milieu, new ideas penetrate slowly, the old lobsters who run the Senate are unwilling to be hurried. One of the duties of the Senate pages, as the 95th Congress convened, was to replenish the supply of snuff from which each senator, if he chooses, may fill his personal snuff box. Until recent years, the pages also provided quill pens.

One sighs, therefore, to contemplate the hard work, the constructive spirit, and the sound common sense behind last month's report of a special commission on modernization of the Senate.

So many excellent recommendations! So little prospect of their adoption!

The commission was headed by Harold E. Hughes, a former governor of Iowa who served one term (1969-75) in the Senate. The Senate experience so affected him that he gave up politics and took to prayer instead. Hughes and his colleagues, with the help of a competent staff, came up with a report that is very nearly a model of its kind — a report at once persuasive, moderate and reasoned.

Other Editors Say Highways Debate

(Washington Daily News)

It is rather amazing to us in many respects that after so many years the debate continues between the people who want Highway 264 four-laned and improved and those who want Highway 64 four-laned and improved.

Over the past several years while the debates continue, a great deal of work has taken place on both highways.

Some eight years ago the then incoming governor, Bob Scott, said that both highways ought to be four-laned and improved. And he set about getting started in that direction.

Many segments of both highways today are four-laned. If we go toward Greenville from Washington, the four lane road begins on 264 some eight miles East of Greenville. Go on to Wilson and you find several segments four-laned. It appears to be a patchwork pattern, but between Wilson and Zebulon, we find four lane roads on Highway 64.

We go to Williamston and head from there toward Rocky Mount and then onto Zebulon and again we find a patchwork pattern of four lane roads on Highway 64. So in reality we already have what might be termed a part way job.

But the argument as to which one shall take precedence over the other continues. The associations formed to promote each highway are busily engaged in the promotion.

Politically speaking, it is going to be most difficult for any North Carolina governor to choose one of these highways over the other. Jim Hunt of course lives adjacent to Highway 264. It might be natural for many people to conclude that he surely will favor 264 over 64. And he might make that choice somewhere along the line. But insofar as we know he has not made it yet. He has many friends and supporters living on both highways.

When the new Highway Commission enters into a discussion on these two roads, again it is going to be well nigh impossible for it to make a decision between the two.

It would again make common sense and a great need would be fulfilled if Jim Hunt would say "all right, let the state four-lane both highways."

We do not know what he will say nor do we know what his commissioners will say. It just appears to us that had we spent our energies several years ago in the effort to get both highways four-laned, by this time we might have realized many more four-laned miles than we now have. If both groups would get together and work together for both roads, it might get the double-barreled program finished far ahead of what appears now to be the schedule.

Both highways are widely travelled. Both ought to be four-laned. It is time for Eastern North Carolina to get a better break in road work.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Labor Split Over Defense

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The split inside the labor movement over defense and detente has deepened in the battle for control of the United Steelworkers union, reflecting the true nature of that bitter election fight and perhaps affecting its outcome.

Edward Sadlowski, insurgent candidate for union president to replace retiring I. W. Abel, recently published a remarkable commentary writing off defense spending as wasteful, excessive and a subsidy for incompetent corporations. Nowhere does he relate it to the massive Soviet arms buildup, the true explanation for U.S. arms spending. The cost of U.S. arms, though finally rising, is a much smaller proportion of the economy than Soviet arms spending.

Sadlowski's commentary has now become an unexpected dividend for supporters of Lloyd McBride, his Abel-backed opponent. Sadlowski's venture into foreign policy, they feel, buttresses their claim that he is the candidate of the far left and of "new politics" liberals and one who takes a position on defense offensive to union's rank-and-file.

Sadlowski echoes foreign policy views of liberal union chiefs who clashed with and defeated the AFL-CIO hierarchy on picking President-elect Carter's Secretary of Defense. Whereas few if any of these liberal labor leaders support Sadlowski's steelworkers' candidacy, his elevation to so powerful a union would immeasurably strengthen their viewpoint in the labor movement.

Superficially, Sadlowski's campaign has been the traditional insurgent's claim of bringing greater militancy to the collective bargaining table. In response, McBride has tried to paint Sadlowski as not the usual bread-and-butter insurgent but an ideologue whose philosophies clash with the average steelworker's.

In particular, Sadlowski's opponents have hoped that disclosure of his soft-line views on foreign and defense policy would offend his substantial following among fiercely anti-Communist steelworkers of Eastern European origin. But until recently Sadlowski had frustrated that hope by steering clear of this dangerous territory.

One small exception was his interview with Penthouse magazine when he called AFL-CIO president George Meany "simply terrible" on foreign affairs, adding: "On detente, Meany was absolutely incorrect. I'm not against detente... there's nothing wrong with Russians or Chinese or Arabs or Jews." Fuzzy perhaps, but hardly damning.

Consequently, McBride's campaign was delighted to discover Sadlowski's column appearing on the opposite editorial page of the Dec. 14 Boston Globe, a piece that broke his silence on national security issues. Declaring that labor leaders "cannot mindlessly defend unnecessary and exorbitant programs like the B-1 bomber simply because it will generate some jobs,"

Sadlowski charged the defense budget contains "hidden subsidies to incompetent big businesses like Lockheed."

"Wasteful expenditures for defense" must be slashed to permit "labor-intensive and socially constructive" federal spending for a "humane economy" and "socially useful" goods and services. Sadlowski proposed converting defense plants to "more benign and labor-intensive uses," but never suggested that the purpose of defense spending is national survival in a world becoming more dangerous.

To the contrary, Sadlowski refers to the "hideous overkill capacity" of U.S. arms and says the U.S. cannot be the world's "arms merchant and policeman" any longer, thereby joining the battle with Meany, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland and other anti-Communist leaders of American labor.

Despite these and other formulations that fit the ideology of the far left, the true inspiration for his foreign policy more likely stems from "new politics" liberals such as Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith. Vigorously backing Sadlowski from the Galbraiths while justified

WHERE TO LOOK

Look forward, not backward; look out, not in; look up, not down. Here is a three-fold rule for living a wholesome and happy life.

Some people spend their whole lives looking back regretfully on things that can never be changed. Others every day miss the wholesome joys of living because they constantly center their thoughts inward upon their emotions, their aches and pains, and their resentments.

The sun shines brightly, the landscape beckons with graceful hands of beauty, but still these two types of people remain miserable, their thoughts fixed upon themselves or upon the past.

Above all, look up—above the turmoil of selfish men to the perfect justice of God. Common sense and religious faith urge us to look up from a world which would drive us to despair, and to keep our eyes fixed on the eternal principles of life which God established as securely as He established the stars.

Catastrophe Theory Outlined

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of explanations have been offered for the reluctance of capital spending and the stock market to rise but nobody seems to offer the catastrophe theory.

As expounded by one small investor, Catastrophe Charlie, the theory seems to be built on Murphy's Law, which maintains the worst not only can happen but will. The catastrophe theory adds a superstructure of current evidence.

Isn't the dollar in trouble? Aren't Italy and Britain being sucked down the tube? And the rich nations getting richer and the poor poorer? And isn't our very existence threatened by the oil shortage?

The evidence is there if you'll only look about. Did you come to work through the rush hour this morning? Don't you agree that civilization cannot continue this way? And that nobody does anything about it?

Look at the way inflation keeps shadowing up like the hangman, leering at the helpless victims.

We Americans have been shocked into expecting the worst. Watergate, and Billingsgate every day. Corrupt businessmen and sex-crazed congressmen, and various fat cats purring at the ordinary person's expense.

A sense of the fragility and evanescence of the planet is pervasive. The feeling, for instance, that we'll never be satisfied until we spend ourselves to insensitivity. Or that we'll be blown apart before we can get "them."

permental guinea pig who is jolted by a charge of electricity whenever it reaches for food.

Catastrophe Charlie adds to Murphy's Law a belief that you can depend upon the unexpected.

The believer in impending catastrophe feels we'll all get punished for the transgressions, even if others are at fault. Like the person who lives so well on credit and says he'll let his life insurance pay the bills when he's gone, while you dutifully pay your bills and live so poorly.

If you agree with all this you can understand why those who invest and spend haven't been eager to get a piece of the future. As the poor catastrophe sees it, there's nothing out there to bet on anyway.

A sense of our contradictory nature is an ingredient of the theory. Haven't you asked yourself how we can continue to have the good life while simultaneously despoiling the environment that provides it?

Those big cars! How is it that we keep buying them while understanding perfectly that this can't go on forever or else we'll run out of fuel to power them and space to drive them?

What'll we do about crime in the streets? Dope? Alcohol? Why is the strongest economy in the world not able to figure out its unemployment problem? Will the species survive? Should it?

The nervous system of the person suffering from the catastrophe syndrome is programmed like the ex-

Income 'Bites' Mount

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If your salary is just keeping up with inflation, your spending power actually isn't keeping pace because federal taxes take bigger and bigger bites of your earnings.

That is the conclusion of a new government study which notes that income tends to rise to keep up with inflation. But the bad news is that taxpayers are moved to constantly higher tax brackets while, at the same time, the inflation erodes the real value of tax exemptions, credits and standard deductions.

The study said this problem may continue to plague American taxpayers through 1981 if there is no change in tax law and if inflation grows at an annual rate of 5 to 6 per cent between 1977-81 as forecast by the Congressional Budget Office and the executive branch.

The report by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations recommends changes in federal and state tax laws to soften this impact. One solution set forth is to tie the amounts allowed for personal exemptions, the standard deduction and some credits directly to each year's rise in the Consumer Price Index, the inflation indicator.

As inflation rose, so would those tax return items that lower a person's taxes.

Similar proposals have been made by a number of congressmen and senators. Several countries, including France, the Netherlands and, since 1974, Canada, already are using this type of a tax system.

The commission said that such a revision of U.S. law, known as indexing, would work to wipe out any unintended tax increase caused by heavier than normal inflation.

The report said the country since 1972 has been ex-

40 Years Ago Today

January 13, 1937

The first bars of golden bullion that are to make Fort Knox, Tenn., the greatest gold depository in the nation were unloaded today under conditions that smacked of world war days.

There was an estimated $200 billion in gold, but nobody saw it. The few speculators whose credentials had been scrutinized and re-scrutinized saw only machine guns and treasury guards and United States soldiers in the new combat cars of the first cavalry mechanized.

Brigadier General Daniel Van Voorhees, vice commander of Fort Knox, and Mrs. Nellie Ross, director of the mint, and other treasury officials were on hand for the initial shipment.

Bills to make kidnapping a capital offense in North Carolina, provide a statewide referendum on liquor, prohibit the sale of fireworks, change the days and hours for primaries and to reorganize the highway commission reached the state legislature today.

A liquor study commission recently filed a majority report recommending a state supervised system of county operated stores approved by county election. The new bill will provide no machinery if the state should go "wet."

Unfair Exemptions In Effect

Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Housing Authority, reported to the commissioners last week that heating costs had soared because of a State Utilities Commission ruling.

Laney said the commission ruled that housing authorities and public schools would no longer be exempt from bearing the increased cost of emergency gas purchases, as they were last year.

The result was an increase of one-third in the cost of gas purchased by the housing authority for heating purposes. That will mean an additional $25,000 in charges over the next four months.

Surprisingly under the ruling residential users retained their exemptions from the extra costs.

Laney, who is also president of the Carolinas Council, Redevelopment and Codes Officials, complained that it was unfair to impose the rate on low income residents of public housing.

In addition, he said, the housing authorities were not given the chance to testify prior to the change.

It doesn't seem fair to us either that the higher rates would be applied to public housing, while residences are exempt. It seems that if the exemption is applied to residences, it should apply to public housing units, which, after all, are residences, too. The exemption was granted last year; and it should have been continued this year.

Much Rides On Professional's Work

North Carolina obviously has problems in its prisons system and Gov. Hunt has turned to a professional to run the system during his term.

Amos Reed, now deputy secretary of the Florida Department of Offender Rehabilitation, was chosen for the position.

Hunt called Reed "a giant in his field."

Some have warned that the prison system may come under federal court jurisdiction, if improvements aren't made.

It is encouraging that Hunt has turned to a professional in the field to serve as North Carolina's corrections secretary.

Water Needs Management

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is plenty of water in North Carolina to meet future needs.

The problem is simply one of management, a report delivered this week to the state's Environmental Management Commission concludes.

"If we are willing to pay the price both in dollars and in some constraints in terms of subjecting ourselves to management, there is no reason why there should be any shortage of water in this state to meet all reasonable social, environmental, and economic needs.

"In one form or another, the water is here," flatly states the extensive report on "Policy for Water Resources Planning" prepared by John Wray of the water resources unit of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Future Directions
The policy guidelines contain numerous findings of problems and recommendations for consideration by state agencies and the General Assembly in developing an overall water use policy for the state.

The guiding philosophy to planning water use is spelled out in the policy paper: "We should think first not of water but of people and their aspirations and needs in which water plays an important role."

Following that guideline, the proposed policy charts specific directions for economic development, environmental protection, and combinations of those two interests in all of the state's various "hydrological study areas" of one or more river basins.

The year-long project resulted in a 332-page book which catalogs specific areas which have problems of flooding, drought, erosion, or uneven distribution of water. Some 1,000 proposed water resource projects of various sorts are listed, including projects under study for flood control, reservoirs, water and sewer lines, parks, greenways and wilderness areas, access to public water recreation and land for future needs, and harbor or navigation proposals.

A statewide policy has become essential, the policy guide suggests, because water is a "multifaceted but finite resource and its allocation must meet a diversity of demands. . . . Important tradeoffs must be considered. . . ."

One-Sided
"Many special-interest groups propose solutions which reflect the singular mission of the group rather than the overall scope of problems. . . . Once a simplistic solution has been proposed, its proponents are faced with the task of supporting it. . . . The public doesn't know whom to believe."

Thus, the running battle between economic growth and development, environmentalists who oppose growth at any cost, and the public which is caught in the middle can only be resolved through a political process.

Policy recommendations listed follow the principle of water for people, with much emphasis on expanded recreational use of water, flood control through building restrictions rather than artificial controls, concern for wildlife in future water use decisions, and stringent anti-pollution measures.

The proposals get deeply into future industrial growth in recommending that the state "encourage large water-using industries to locate in water rich areas, namely: the lower reach of Yadkin-Pee Dee, Roanoke, Cape Fear, Catawba, French Broad, Neuse, and Tar-Pamlico."

Likewise, future power plants should be in those water rich areas, and should be restricted in water withdrawals during drought periods.

Flooding comes in for major attention, with the growing problem of heavy water runoff from developed areas blamed for downstream flooding in many cases. More emphasis should be given to restricting building in floodplain lands, and to computing the effects of buildings and parking lots on nearby streams.

Modernizing The Club

WASHINGTON — The United States Senate is the oldest gentlemen's club in town. Like other such institutions, it is rich in tradition; it is enormously expensive to keep up; and it is ruled by crustacean committees who look upon change with suspicion and alarm.

In this hard-shelled milieu, new ideas penetrate slowly, the old lobsters who run the Senate are unwilling to be hurried. One of the duties of the Senate pages, as the 95th Congress convened, was to replenish the supply of snuff from which each senator, if he chooses, may fill his personal snuff box. Until recent years, the pages also provided quill pens.

One sighs, therefore, to contemplate the hard work, the constructive spirit, and the sound common sense behind last month's report of a special commission on modernization of the Senate. So many excellent recommendations! So little prospect of their adoption!

The commission was headed by Harold E. Hughes, a former governor of Iowa who served one term (1969-75) in the Senate. The Senate experience so affected him that he gave up politics and took to prayer instead. Hughes and his colleagues, with the help of a competent staff, came up with a report that is very nearly a model of its kind — a report at once persuasive, moderate and reasoned.

Back in the glorious days of Webster, Calhoun and Clay, when the pace was a good deal slower, Congress typically met for three months in one year and six months in the next. The two chambers combined might see a thousand bills and resolutions introduced. The 94th Congress of 1975-76, by contrast, ran on for 22 months and saw 24,000 measures in the mill. The Hughes Commission found that the typical senator works 11 hours a day. Among the conscientious fellows, who try to get some reading done at night, the figure is probably closer to 14 or 15 hours a day.

The reading never gets done. The senator has not been born who could read more than a small fraction of the bills, resolutions, reports, hearings and other papers that flow through his office in tidal waves. The two chambers combined will require more than 750,000 pages of printed material in the coming year. Who possibly could read all that stuff?

The printing is monstrously expensive. Much of it still is done on antiquated hot metal equipment. The Government Printing Office is forever cannibalizing old linotype machines. At some point in the distant past, a few of the lobsters decreed that Senate bills must have very wide margins, and very large type, and very good paper. The waste is prodigious.

Printing costs are large, but they pale beside the costs of personnel. In a desperate effort to keep up with the mail, and with increasingly complex issues, and with the

Other Editors Say Highways Debate

(Washington Daily News)

It is rather amazing to us in many respects that after so many years the debate continues between the people who want Highway 264 four-laned and improved and those who want Highway 64 four-laned and improved.

Over the past several years while the debates continue, a great deal of work has taken place on both highways.

Some eight years ago the then incoming governor, Bob Scott, said that both highways ought to be four-laned and improved. And he set about getting started in that direction.

Many segments of both highways today are four-laned. If we go toward Greenville from Washington, the four lane road begins on 264 some eight miles East of Greenville. Go on to Wilson and we find several segments four-laned. It appears to be a patchwork pattern, but between Wilson and Zebulon, we find four lane roads on Highway 64.

We go to Williamston and head from there toward Rocky Mount and then onto Zebulon and again we find a patchwork pattern of four lane roads on Highway 64. So in reality we already have what might be termed a part way job.

But the argument as to which one shall take precedence over the other continues. The associations formed to promote each highway are busily engaged in the promotion.

Politically speaking, it is going to be most difficult for any North Carolina governor to choose one of these highways over the other. Jim Hunt of course lives adjacent to Highway 264. It might be natural for many people to conclude that he surely will favor 264 over 64. And he might make that choice somewhere along the line. But insofar as we know he has not made it yet. He has many friends and supporters living on both highways.

When the new Highway Commission enters into a discussion on these two roads, again it is going to be well nigh impossible for it to make a decision between the two.

It would again make common sense and a great need would be fulfilled if Jim Hunt would say "all right, let the state four-lane both highways."

We do not know what he will say nor do we know what his commissioners will say. It just appears to us that had we spent our energies several years ago in the effort to get both highways four-laned, by this time we might have realized many more four-laned miles than we now have. If both groups would get together and work together for both roads, it might get the double-barreled program finished far ahead of what appears now to be the schedule.

Both highways are widely travelled. Both ought to be four-laned. It is time for Eastern North Carolina to get a better break in road work.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Labor Split Over Defense

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The split inside the labor movement over defense and detente has deepened in the battle for control of the United Steelworkers union, reflecting the true nature of that bitter election fight and perhaps affecting its outcome.

Edward Sadlowski, insurgent candidate for union president to replace retiring I. W. Abel, recently published a remarkable commentary writing off defense spending as wasteful, excessive and a subsidy for incompetent corporations. Nowhere does he relate it to the massive Soviet arms buildup, the true explanation for U.S. arms spending. The cost of U.S. arms, though finally rising, is a much smaller proportion of the economy than Soviet arms spending.

Sadlowski's commentary has now become an unexpected dividend for supporters of Lloyd McBride, his Abel-backed opponent. Sadlowski's venture into foreign policy, they feel, buttresses their claim that he is the candidate of the far left and of "new politics" liberals and one who takes a position on defense offensive to union's rank-and-file.

Sadlowski echoes foreign policy views of liberal union chiefs who clashed with and defeated the AFL-CIO hierarchy on picking President-elect Carter's Secretary of Defense. Whereas few if any of these liberal labor leaders support Sadlowski's steelworkers' candidacy, his elevation to so powerful a union would immeasurably strengthen their viewpoint in the labor movement.

Superficially, Sadlowski's campaign has been the traditional insurgent's claim of bringing greater militancy to the collective bargaining table. In response, McBride has tried to paint Sadlowski as not the usual bread-and-butter insurgent but an ideologue whose philosophies clash with the average steelworker's.

In particular, Sadlowski's opponents have hoped that disclosure of his soft-line views on foreign and defense policy would offend his substantial following among fiercely anti-Communist steelworkers of Eastern European origin. But until recently Sadlowski had frustrated that hope by steering clear of this dangerous territory.

One small exception was his interview with Penthouse magazine when he called AFL-CIO president George Meany "simply terrible" on foreign affairs, adding: "On detente, Meany was absolutely incorrect. I'm not against detente. . . there's nothing wrong with Russians or Chinese or Arabs or Jews." Fuzzy perhaps, but hardly damning.

Consequently, McBride's campaign was delighted to discover Sadlowski's column appearing on the opposite-editorial page of the Dec. 14 Boston Globe, a piece that broke his silence on national security issues. Declaring that labor leaders "cannot mindlessly defend unnecessary and exorbitant programs like the B-1 bomber simply because it will generate some jobs,"

Sadlowski charged the defense budget contains "hidden subsidies to incompetent big businesses like Lockheed."

"Wasteful expenditures for defense" must be slashed to permit "labor-intensive and socially constructive" federal spending for a "humane economy" and "socially useful" goods and services. Sadlowski proposed converting defense plants to "more benign and labor-intensive uses," but never suggested that the purpose of defense spending is national survival in a world becoming more dangerous.

To the contrary, Sadlowski refers to the "hideous overkill capacity" of U.S. arms and says the U.S. cannot be the world's "arms merchant and policeman" any longer, thereby joining the battle with Meany, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland and other anti-Communist leaders of American labor.

Despite these and other formulations that fit the ideology of the far left, the true inspiration for his foreign policy more likely stems from "new politics" liberals such as Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith. Vigorous backing for Sadlowski from the Galbraiths while justified

Strength For Today

WHERE TO LOOK
Look forward, not backward; look out, not in; look up, not down. Here is a three-fold rule for living a wholesome and happy life.

Some people spend their whole lives looking back regretfully on things that can never be changed. Others every day miss the wholesome joys of living because they constantly center their thoughts inward upon their emotions, their aches and pains, and their resentments.

The sun shines brightly, the landscape beckons with graceful hands of beauty, but still these two types of people remain miserable, their thoughts fixed upon themselves or upon the past.

Above all, look up—above the turmoil of selfish men to the perfect justice of God. Common sense and religious faith urge us to look up from a world which would drive us to despair, and to keep our eyes fixed on the eternal principles of life which God established as securely as he established the stars.

Catastrophe Theory Outlined

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of explanations have been offered for the reluctance of capital spending and the stock market to rise but nobody seems to offer the catastrophe theory.

As expostulated by one small investor, Catastrophic Charlies, the theory seems to be built on Murphy's Law, which maintains the worst not only can happen but will. The catastrophe theory adds a superstructure of current evidence.

Isn't the dollar in trouble? Aren't Italy and Britain being sucked down the tube? And the rich nations getting richer and the poor poorer? And isn't our very existence threatened by the oil shortage?

The evidence is there if you'll only look about. Did you come to work through the rush hour this morning? Don't you agree that civilization cannot continue this way? And that nobody does anything about it?

Look at the way inflation keeps shadowing up like the hangman, leering at the helpless victims.

We Americans have been shocked into expecting the worst. Watergate, and Billingsgate every day. Corrupt businessmen and sex-crazed congressmen, and various fat cats purring at the ordinary person's expense.

A sense of the fragility and evanescence of the planet is pervasive. The feeling, for instance, that we'll never be satisfied until we spend ourselves to insensitivity. Or that we'll be blown apart before we can get "them."

peramental guinea pig who is jolted by a charge of electricity whenever it reaches for food.

Catastrophic Charlies add to Murphy's Law a belief that you can depend upon the unexpected.

The believer in impending catastrophe feels we'll all get punished for the transgressions, even if others are at fault. Like the person who lives so well on credit and says he'll let his life insurance pay the bills when he's gone, while you dutifully pay your bills and live so poorly.

If you agree with all this you can understand why those who invest and spend haven't been eager to get a piece of the future. As the poor catastrophic sees it, there's nothing out there to bet on anyway.

Income 'Bites' Mount

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your salary is just keeping up with inflation, your spending power actually isn't keeping pace because federal taxes take bigger and bigger bites of your earnings.

That is the conclusion of a new government study which notes that income tends to rise to keep up with inflation. But the bad news is that taxpayers are moved to constantly higher tax brackets while, at the same time, the inflation erodes the real value of tax exemptions, credits and standard deductions.

The study said this problem may continue to plague American taxpayers through 1981 if there is no change in tax law and if inflation grows at an annual rate of 5 to 6 per cent between 1977-81 as forecast by the Congressional Budget Office and the executive branch.

The report by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations recommends changes in federal and state tax laws to soften this impact. One solution set forth is to tie the amounts allowed for personal exemptions, the standard deduction and some credits directly to each year's rise in the Consumer Price Index, the inflation indicator.

As inflation rose, so would those tax return items that lower a person's taxes.

Similar proposals have been made by a number of congressmen and senators. Several countries, including France, the Netherlands and, since 1974, Canada, already are using this type of a tax system.

The commission said that such a revision of U.S. law, known as indexing, would work to wipe out any unintended tax increase caused by heavier than normal inflation.

The report said the country since 1972 has been ex-

40 Years Ago Today

January 13, 1937

The first bars of golden bullion that are to make Fort Knox, Tenn., the greatest gold depository in the nation were unloaded today under conditions that smacked of world war days.

There was an estimated $200 billion in gold, but nobody saw it. The few spectators whose credentials had been scrutinized and re-scrutinized saw only machine guns and treasury guards and United States soldiers in the new combat cars of the first cavalry mechanized.

Brigadier General Daniel Van Voorhees, vice commander of Fort Knox, and Mrs. Nellie Ross, director of the mint, and other treasury officials were on hand for the initial shipment.

Bills to make kidnapping a capital offense in North Carolina, provide a statewide referendum on liquor, prohibit the sale of fireworks, change the days and hours for primaries and to reorganize the highway commission reached the state legislature today.

A liquor study commission recently filed a majority report recommending a state supervised system of county operated stores approved by county election. The new bill will provide no machinery if the state should go "wet."

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The sponsor of a bill to restore the death penalty in North Carolina for first degree murder and rape says he would support an amendment to make the death penalty not apply to rapists.

"I'm sure such an amendment will be offered and I would support it," said Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, shortly after he introduced the measure at the opening session Wednesday of the 1977 North Carolina General Assembly. Noting that the House three years ago had approved the death penalty for first degree murder only, Jones said, "This year I believe the House and Senate will both go along with taking rape out."

Jones said first degree rape "is heinous enough to deserve the death penalty" but pointed out that making the punishment for murder more serious than rape might prompt some rapists to spare the lives of their victims.

North Carolina has had no death penalty since the U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the state's death penalty law unconstitutional.

Other bills introduced at the opening session included three measures to shift North Carolina's primary election back to August and one designed to close a loophole in the state law regulating child day care centering an average annual inflation rate of 9.6 per cent, "a clear departure from the historically mild 2-3 per cent for the U.S. since 1950." The rate for 1976 was around 6 per cent.

The report gave this example of how inflation distorts income taxes. A married couple with two children, who file jointly, have an income of $10,000 and take the standard deduction, had a 1975 federal tax bill of $709.

Assuming an annual 7 per cent inflation rate and that the couple's income grew to keep pace, the couple's 1976 income will go up 22.5 per cent to $12,250, but their tax will go up 58.7 per cent to $1,125.

as fostering union democracy, may be better explained by identical positions on foreign policy.

Moreover, although key United Auto Workers (UAW) leaders look askance at Sadlowski's candidacy, as steelworkers president he would link arms with outgoing UAW president Leonard Woodcock on defense and detente (though perhaps not with incoming Douglas Fraser). The Meany-Kirkland effort to return Dr. James Schlesinger to the Pentagon was effectively undercut by Woodcock and other liberals - vividly demonstrating labor's split.

But the old-line AFL-CIO leaders hold one trump card: the average working man is more apt to agree with George Meany than Ed Sadlowski on national defense. That is why Sadlowski's column could undermine his struggle for power.

ters. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, resulted from a fire that killed two children in a Winston-Salem day care center last year.

In other action, the House quickly elected Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, as its speaker. The Senate reelected Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, as its majority leader and chose Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, as its assistant majority leader and whip.

In a brief talk to the Senate over which he presides, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green spoke out emphatically against tax increases and called for consideration of "sunset legislation" under which spending measures would expire automatically "every few years...unless the program is re-examined and re-adopted by the General Assembly." He said states that have such laws "are well pleased" with them.

power of the White House, the Senate somehow has acquired 6,500 employees. Let me run that figure by you again: Six thousand, five hundred employees. There is no place to put them. The typical staffer has 65 square feet of working space; that is a cubicle 8 x 8. If a secretary sits on a press aide's lap, it may not be hanky-panky at all; there may be no other place to sit down.

The Hughes Commission was especially concerned with the conflicts that eat at a senator's time — not conflicts of interest, but conflicts of obligations. Senators dwell on a political Olympus; they are sometimes thought divine; but they have mortal limitations: They can be in only one place at a time. They cannot simultaneously attend two committees, appear on the floor, and meet a constituent. The commission suggests a sensible system by which the committees could meet three days a week and the Senate two, or vice versa. Why has no one thought of this before?

Well, one answer is that intelligent students of the Senate have thought of all this before. Former Senator James L. Buckley of New York, whose loss to the Senate is a loss to the nation, once proposed that a two-year congressional session be neatly divided — one year for committee hearings, one year for floor debate. Nothing came of Buckley's idea, and little is likely to come of the Hughes proposals.

But one hates to be pessimistic. The Senate has 18 brand-new members. It has 27 others who have been around for only six years or less. These are baby lobsters, not grown ones. The old club may be modernized yet — but don't hold your breath.

Under Jones' bill, a jury would hold another hearing after it convicted a defendant of first degree murder or rape to decide whether the punishment would be death or life imprisonment.

In the second hearing, the jury would hear testimony relating to aggravating or mitigating circumstances of the crime. For the penalty to be death, the jury's verdict would have to be unanimous. In cases where the jury could not agree on a death penalty, the sentence would be life imprisonment.

Jones said the measure had been carefully drafted to meet the objections that the Supreme Court found in the North Carolina law.

DAY CARE

Davis said his bill is needed because day care centers in the past have operated after the state licensing board revoked their licenses. He said that was true of the center in which two children were killed in Winston-Salem.

The Forsyth legislator said that under present law the only way the state board can force a day care center to close is to persuade a court to convict the operator of operating without a license. He noted that courts often are reluctant to convict operators of a crime.

"It's cumbersome," Davis said, "and in Winston-Salem it was not effective simply because the operator had enough good will in the community to make it impossible to get a conviction."

PRIMARY

Bills to shift North Carolina's primary election from August to May were introduced by Jones, Sen. Dallas Alford, D-Nash, and Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland. The Jones and Alford bills would set the primary on the Tuesday after the first Monday in May. The Raynor bill would set it on the Saturday after the first Monday in May.

ELDERLY TAXES

Another bill by Davis would amend the law that gives persons over 65 with a yearly income of $7,500 or less a $5,000 exemption on their property tax valuations. The bill would extend the exemption to those with income of $10,000 or less a year.

A bill by Rep. Thomas B. Hunter, D-Richmond, would give elderly and disabled persons a flat $5,000 exemption on their homes, regardless of income.

CRIME

Rep. R.D. Beard, D-Cumberland, sponsored a bill that would require a person convicted of armed robbery to serve five years before he would be eligible for parole.

A bill offered by Rep. Hector Ray, D-Cumberland, would set a minimum five-year prison sentence for anyone convicted of breaking into a private home.

MOTORCYCLES

Jones also introduced a measure that would repeal the law requiring motorcyclists to wear crash helmets. Last Labor Day weekend, hundreds of motorcyclists converged on Raleigh to protest the law, claiming that helmets are ineffective.

SCHOOL STARTS

A bill sponsored by Rep. Robert Falls, D-Cleveland, would set the day after Labor Day as the day for schools to open throughout the state. Opening day now varies among the school districts.

Four Collisions In City Investigated

An estimated $4,575 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 6:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive involving cars driven by Deborah Jones Johnson of 400 Manhattan Ave. and Ava Jones Brown of Ayden.

Investigators charged Mrs. Brown with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety and estimated damage at $1,200 to the Johnson car and $575 to the Brown auto.

Essie Lee Wooten of 507 Darden Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:50 a.m. collision on Fifth Street, 20 feet East of the Bancroft Avenue intersection.

Officers reported the mishap involved cars driven by Thomas Harvey Owen of Route 8, Greenville and Annie Ruth Roberson of 1800B Kennedy Cir.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the Owen car, $200 to the Roberson auto and $300 to the Wooten vehicle.

Cars driven by Jimmie Lynn Baysden of Route 2, Richlands and Hesta Gaye Waters of Route 2, Greenville collided about 2 p.m. on James Street, 200 feet North of the Ninth Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $600 damage to the Baysden car and $350 damage to the Waters vehicle.

A 9 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 200 feet West of Plaza Drive involved a truck driven by James Anthony Caraway of Route 4, Tarboro.

Officers reported the Caraway vehicle struck the curbing and overturned as the driver swerved to avoid a collision with another vehicle.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $950.

Branch Marked 'Twelfth Night'

The Greenville Branch of the English-Speaking Union, organized last October, observed "Twelfth Night" with a candlelight cocktail party at the Candlewick Inn on Jan. 6.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Light Blue Orchestra, and typical seasonal delicacies were served guests.

Members from Winterville, Farmville, New Bern, Grifton, Snow Hill, Cove City and Greenville were in attendance. Among those present were three native-born Englishwomen — Mrs. Gordon Smith of Snow Hill, Mrs. Edward J. Nassef of New Bern, and Mrs. R. C. Ipock of Cove City.

Redevelopment Items Talked By Board

WINDMILL ON THE MOVE — An old windmill dating back to 1856 is moved from its site in the town of Hoodoortop, the Netherlands, to a new location in the same village. The mill had to be moved to make way for new buildings to be built on the mill site. The mill is just over 36 feet high and weighs 160 tons. Arms and sails were removed prior to the move. Tarpaulin on top of mill protects it from rain until it reaches its new home. (AP Wirephoto)

WILLIAMSTON — Efforts will be made by the Williamston Town Board and the Redevelopment Commission to see what can be worked out in the acquisition of a vacant lot. At the monthly meeting for January, Mrs. Addie A. Cox indicated she was in opposition to the Williamston Housing Authority purchasing a vacant lot she owns on Washington Street; a lot needed for further development of a neighborhood housing project.

In another redevelopment matter, members of the town board will have a special meeting Jan. 17 to take final action on a snag in redevelopment plans for a municipal parking lot in the area behind stores on Washington Street. In the contract let for the parking lot, an access road was called for. The road plan has been blocked by a warehouse belonging to a local merchant. At first, an offer was made by the merchant to permit ten feet to be removed from one end of the building and be rebuilt on the other end — at town expense. This was not acceptable, and now the merchant has proposed that the cost for the modification be shared jointly by the owner and the town. A decision will be reached at the

Jan. 17 meeting.

A go ahead has been given on a contract with Revelle Builders to construct a Butler type building to replace the old utilities building. After the contract was let, the building firm wanted changes made that would not require them to purchase a performance bond. When the firm was told the contract could not be valid without the performance bond, the firm agreed to make the necessary purchase.

The Dog Control Ordinance, subject of earlier public hearings, has been adopted and will go into effect Jan. 17. The ordinance is modeled after an ordinance recommended by the League of Municipalities. As an interim measure, fireman James Bunch has been assigned the duty of supervising the program in its early stages.

A request that the Town Board act as sponsoring-contracting agent for the purchase of a 15 passenger type van bus for senior citizens use has been tabled until the February meeting. Since the town attorney was not present at the January meeting, board members felt it would be wiser to wait for his ruling relative to any liability that might result if the town acted in the role of sponsor-contractor. No town funds are involved in the purchase of the bus.

A public hearing on Feb. 7 has been scheduled to consider a recommendation that the zoning ordinance be amended to include a public library as a permitted use in a commercial area. Other possible amendments will also be considered at that time.

Appointments made by the town board include those of town commissioner John Haden to serve as town representative on the Mid-East Commission; Police Chief Willie Rogers as the representative on the Mid-East Criminal Justice Policy Committee; and Police Commissioner as John Rogers alternate representative on the same committee.

On the matter of hiring an expert to conduct a study-survey of emergency medical services in Martin County, County Commissioner Russell Griffin told town board members that commissioners believed this study could be accomplished with city-county employees rather than spending about $6,000 for contracting a specialist. The town and county commissioners will meet an early date to make a firm decision on which course to take.

Suspect Bomb Death 'Error'

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Neighbors speculate that a bomb that killed a 30-year-old X-ray technician Wednesday afternoon was intended for her husband.

Linda Larrimore Tate, an employee of Forsyth Memorial Hospital, was killed instantly when a powerful explosion literally ripped the van apart outside her home in Country Club Apartments in a middle-class neighborhood on the west side of the city, according to police.

Her dog also was killed in the explosion. Neighbors told reporters that her husband, Walter, a motorcycle race promoter, apparently had a fight recently with a motorcycle gang and the explosive device may have been intended for him. Police could not confirm this Wednesday night.

Police Maj. J.E. Masten said the blast likely was caused by several sticks of dynamite. A source close to the investigation estimated three to six sticks of dynamite were used.

The blast ripped apart the interior of the van and blew out the sides and top. Its force pushed the driver's seat two to three feet back into the van and scattered pieces of the vehicle for several yards. The windshield on a car parked next to it was shattered.

A witness, Mark Goodson, said he was sitting in his car near the van when he heard the explosion. He said there was a fire under the vehicle and he saw the dog run from the van, bleeding heavily.

The van bore the lettering "Superstars, Motorcycle Drag Racing Series."

U.S. Army bomb experts from Ft. Bragg, assisted by a dog trained to sniff out explosives, searched two other cars belonging to the Tates, but police said the search failed to produce any other explosives.

Investigators from the State Bureau of Investigation and the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service were called in to assist in the investigation.

Ingram's Office Said No Factor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The decision by Jefferson-Pilot Fire and Casualty Co. to discontinue liability insurance for lawyers had nothing to do with disputes with Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, says the company president.

Excessive damage awards and an inability to secure adequate rates prompted the decision, said Edward Council.

"The reason was just that we didn't seem to be able to make any money on it," he said. "I don't want it inferred that the insurance department was involved. To be critical of the insurance department in this case would be doing them an injustice."

However, Council conceded the action might not have been taken had Ingram not been commissioner. Council said the company applied for a 40 per cent rate increase in October, but decided in November that it really needed a hike of 300-400 per cent.

Ingram has refused most industry increase requests and "I would have been a damned fool to go down there for a 300 per cent rate increase," Council said, explaining why the request was dropped.

Jefferson-Pilot's decision means some lawyers may have to pay $200 to $300 a year for malpractice insurance — up to four times what they now pay, said William Storey, executive vice president of the N.C. Bar Association.

Trees Replanted

The ten unhealthy oak trees taken down by the city last spring on E. Fifth Street have been replaced, the city announced.

Utilizing a $500 donation made by the Greenville-Pitt Board of Realtors, the city purchased ten Darlington Oaks as replacements. The Recreation Department planted the oaks recently.

Of the ten trees removed, one was dead and the others were dying due to rotting and disease.

As the newly planted trees grow and mature, it is anticipated that they will fill the gaps in the remaining trees lining Fifth Street.

Through proper care and attention, the tree canopy on E. Fifth Street will be maintained in the future, a city spokesman observed.

New Challenges Await Gilmore

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore, described by his attorney as "cool as a cucumber and fit as a fiddle," faces new legal challenges of his right to die by firing squad next Monday.

The U.S. Supreme Court rejected the latest bid to stop the execution Wednesday, but American Civil Liberties Union attorney V. Jinks Dabney said more suits seeking to delay it would be filed today in federal and state courts.

Dabney, though declining to say specifically what the actions would involve, said, "I'm confident of one thing: Gary Gilmore is going nowhere on Jan. 17."

Gilmore, who would be the first person executed in the United States since 1967, released a letter Wednesday thanking "the thousands of people who have written me letters during the past several weeks."

Gilmore thanked the "rural bumpkin in Georgia who mailed me the rope. As you know, it was returned, unused. Prison regulations forbid ropes. But I appreciate your concern, too, buddy."

The convicted killer of Provo motel clerk Bennie Bushnell has demanded that his execution be carried out in accordance with the law and has asked death-penalty opponents to "butt out" of his life.

Last weekend, however, the ACLU told Gilmore: "Sorry, but we won't let you turn us into killers."

The U.S. Supreme Court on Wednesday issued a one-sentence denial of a request by Douglas A. Wallace of Vancouver, Wash., to delay the execution. Wallace, an ex-communicated member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), filed the request in the name of a corporation he called the Latter-day Saints Freedom Foundation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today in a technical rebound from the selloff of the past two sessions. Trading was fairly active. probably will take until Friday. A favorable decision would mean that North Carolina would get a transfusion of 1.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas over the next 60 days. That would enable the state to live through the winter, according to North Carolina Utilities Commission gas expert Raymond Nery.

The extra gas would be expensive, compared to the federally regulated interstate rate of 50 to 60 cents per thousand cubic feet. Nery estimated that the emergency gas, which would come from unregulated intrastate supplies could cost as much as $2 per thousand cubic feet.

But according to Hunt, Sens. Jesse Helms and Robert Morgan, all 11 of the state's congressmen, Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, and a host of others, the alternative would be worse in terms of human suffering.

Audible Street Crossing Signal Installed At Intersection Here

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Department of Human Resources services, for the Blind and the Easter Seal Society with assistance from the City of Greenville have installed an audible street crossing light at the intersection of Fourth Street and Evans Street Mall.

During the last few seconds of the walk period for crossing the street, the buzzer alerts pedestrians that the traffic light is turning green and that they should not walk across the street.

Approximately 17 months ago Pat Parker, a Human Resources Rehabilitation Counselor for the Blind of Pitt County, Phil Morin, System Director of the Easter Seal Society and Charles Branch of Human Resources Services for the Blind corresponded with different counties and other countries about the audible pedestrian lights. According to Morin, the group found the system that Greenville is using at the intersection of Fourth Street and Evans Mall as the most economical and effective.

"I've been on so many (interim) commissions that I've been down here almost constantly," Webster said. But, he was looking forward to a hard working session. "I think it's going to be a knock-down, drag-out session," he said, citing a number of issues that will come up such as capital punishment, ERA and gubernatorial powers. "I think you're going to see more close votes this session than ever before," he said.

Rep. Edd Nye, D-Bladen, who was in the Senate last session, was positive about the new session. "I think the legislature will have some leadership from the Hunt administration that it needs," he said. As for the ERA, "I predict it'll pass the House and be killed in the Senate," Nye said.

mean that other exemptions would have to be allowed?" Hollings replied that he was aware that the precedent might undermine the entire structure of regulated interstate gas prices. But he told Watt that Congress was going to revamp that structure, anyway, this year. Watt, apparently still dissatisfied, called the request a "Band-Aid approach" that would not solve the underlying supply problem.

Mysterious Object Fell Into Farm Pond

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — National Guard and state Civil Defense authorities were dispatched today to a small New Hampshire farm where a mysterious object broke a hole in the ice of a pond.

One or two representatives of the Guard were to join the Civil Defense authorities, at the farm of William McCarthy in Wakefield, a National Guard spokesman said.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Thomas Rath said tests have been made on the object, which is still in the pond. Rath said he hoped to issue a statement on the results later.

Rath also said the pond may be drained later today. Meanwhile, a spokesman at the North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., said "no artificial satellites have fallen into the area."

Most inquiries were referred to Gov. Meldrim Thomson. A spokesman for the governor said Thomson was receiving reports from the scene in Wakefield, a small town on the Maine-New Hampshire border. The spokesman said he would issue no statement until some facts were available. McCarthy, who owns the farm, said officials had told him not to discuss the object. He termed the attention given to the hole in his ice "ridiculous." He said he didn't know what kind of object made the hole.

"All I think we should say is we have a hole in the ice that does not belong there," said McCarthy.

McCarthy said the hole was made during a snowstorm Monday.

PRESENT CERTIFICATE — Edgar Eatman, Jr., second from left, presents a certificate of appreciation to Mayor Percy Cox, thanking the City of Greenville for assisting in installing the audible street light. City of Greenville about the audible light and the city contributed $150 for the initial installation. Ron Sewell, Assistant City Engineer, helped design this type of audible light," Morin said.

The audible traffic light will serve the blind, the visually impaired, the handicapped and will serve as a general alert system to shoppers, according to Morin. According to Branch, the light was constructed at the Fourth Street intersection because of the construction of the Evans Street Mall eliminating the noise of parallel traffic for blind shoppers walking down the mall. With the buzzer the pedestrians will know when to walk.

Wrestling Had Appeal To Lawler; Seeks His Second Championship

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

When you're not much over five feet tall and weigh not much over 100 pounds, what can you do athletically?

Not a whole lot, really. You can't play football. One good tackle by some 200 pounder and you're gone for the season. You can't play basketball. You'd need a ladder to get the ball over those big fellows.

That was the problem facing Rose High School's John Lawler when he came to the school as a sophomore. But he quickly found an athletic niche, one that he's excelled in.

His sport is wrestling, and as a senior, he's posted a 12-0 record to date, and is hoping for another Division I title, and a shot at a state championship.

"It's an individual sport," he said. "When you're too small for something like football, it's a good outlet for your energy and time. And it takes a lot of time. You learn a lot of things."

The 107-pound level wrestler looked for a sport when he got to high school and talked with Coach Ron Williams. "I just decided to come out and try my luck," he said. "Size doesn't seem to make as much of a difference since you go against people your weight."

Last year, Lawler won the Division I title for his class and was second in the Eastern Sectionals. He did not place in the state meet, however.

"I'd like to go back to the state meet. There, people are all about the same caliber. So you've got just as good a chance as anyone else."

Lawler feels that the East is a strong wrestling area. With such teams as Rose, Conley, East and West Carteret and Jacksonville, there is plenty of good competition.

Perhaps the biggest problem for him and other wrestlers is keeping his weight within the

John Lawler

107-pound limit he now wrestles at. "It's just part of wrestling," he said. "It means skipping an occasional meal and working hard in a sweat suit. It has to bother you, and you really get to appreciate food pretty much."

During the fall season, Lawler ran cross-country, but said that was mainly to get in shape for wrestling. "I also enjoy golf and tennis," he added.

Next year, Lawler plans to carry on his education on the college level, and admits that he wouldn't mind wrestling there. "I know that it would be tough to start as a freshman or a sophomore." He's already been accepted at North Carolina, but is also considering Duke and Virginia.

His chief goal for the next few weeks, however, will be to continue winning as many matches as he can, shooting for another trip to the state meet.

"I want the team to do well too. I think we have a shot at the sectional title if everyone does their best."

Grid Clinic Scheduled

The Sixth Annual Greenville Coaching Clinic has been scheduled for February 12-13 at the Ramada Inn, it has been announced.

The clinic, annually sponsored by the Greenville Rose High School coaching staff, has grown each year.

Bill Dooley, head coach of the University of North Carolina, will be one of the featured speakers for the meeting, along with other successful coaches.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday morning, Feb. 12, with the meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. Glenn Cox, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, and Pat Dye, head football coach at East Carolina University, will make welcoming addresses.

The rest of the day will be spent in various clinical discussions, featuring Jerry Tolley, defensive secondary coach at Elon College; Jack Huss, head coach at Lenoir Rhyne College; Herb Goins, High Point Andrews High School; Charlie Adams with the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, and Dooley.

A morning session will also be held the next day. Registration forms are available from Dave Bumgarner, Rose High School, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Pirates Entertain Maine Swimming Team

East Carolina University's swim team returns to action tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Natatorium for its first action since before Christmas, hosting the University of Maine.

ECU swim coach Ray Scharf said that even though the Pirates defeated Maine last year, he expects a tough meet this time.

"We swam Maine for the first time last year," said Scharf, "and we beat them in a very close meet. They are undefeated so far, and they are a good team. Some of our swimmers who have not had a chance to prove themselves will get the chance in this meet. Some of the ones who do well could possibly make the trip to Maryland on Saturday. This doesn't mean we're taking Maine lightly, though."

The East Carolina swim team features two swimmers and one relay team that are ranked among the nation's best. John McCauley is fifth in the nation in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 21.27 seconds. John Tudor is ranked 12th in the 200 yard individual medley with a time of 1:58.39. The ECU 400-yard freestyle relay team is sixth with a time of 3:09.00.

The Pirate tankers will travel to College Park, Md. on Saturday to face the University of Maryland.

All the rest is prologue now for the Rose High School Rampants.

Friday night, the Rose cagers open the Division I schedule, and what has gone before goes out the window. Now the games are played for real.

The Rampants open their conference year against the team that Coach Jim Brewington feels is the team to beat for the Division I title, Rocky Mount. The Gryphons will be visiting, with the varsity affair starting between 7:30 and 8 p.m.

The game is the only one during the coming week for the Rose round-ballers, who continue to have a hit-and-miss schedule. They are idle after Friday until next Friday.

But elsewhere, Rose teams will be busy. The wrestling team has two matches scheduled. Tonight, they host Wilson at 7 p.m., then travel to Northeastern on Monday.

The girls basketball team will be looking for its first win of the year Saturday night when it visits D. H. Conley (along with the boys' junior varsity). The Rampettes also have a game Monday, hosting Northeastern.

Rose's swimming team also returns to action seeking to record its third straight win, as it hosts powerful Chapel Hill. That meet is Saturday at Minges Natatorium starting at 12:30 p.m.

"I think Rocky Mount is the team to beat in the league, and we're going to have to play errorless ball to beat them," Coach Brewington said. "I feel we can do it. We played a good game against Washington Saturday. We were never down much and we had the chance to win it."

Key to the chances of the Rampants will be holding down Rocky Mount's big man, Charles Williams. "If we can keep him under 20 points and not let anyone else break loose, we might be able to do it," Brewington said.

"We've got to cut down our mistakes. We got good shooting from our guards the other night, and we played good defensive ball. We've had all week to get ready, too."

Brewington feels that the open dates of the Rampants, this week and next, will be an aid to the Rose hopes. "I think with a young team like ours, it helps. A veteran team might not do as well with the open dates," he said.

Despite the fact that Bertie drubbed Washington by 12 points, and Northeastern is 8-1 right now, Brewington bases his prediction of Rocky Mount's strength on its schedule.

"They've played a much rougher schedule. They're just 3-5, but they've lost to people like Goldsboro, and just the other night, they beat Durham, the team rated best in the state. Elizabeth City hasn't played the same type schedule. And Bertie lost to Washington by 20 the night they played in Washington."

The game could be a pivotal one for the Rampants. A victory could turn the season around for them, but a loss could add to the problems. "I'm sure that they're going to try and blow us out to show that their record is just a fluke," Brewington said.

"We've got to stop Williams. If we can, then it might be a different game."

Clemson Nips Duke In Overtime

By The Associated Press
The only sure thing before Clemson's game against Duke

ACC Roundup
Wednesday night was that Bill Foster would be the winning coach.

The Tigers, who had fallen to 17th in the polls after being pulverized by Marquette and North Carolina, were seeking to regain the form with which they led the nation in scoring during the first part of the season.

Duke was seeking to stretch its winning streak to 11 games since its opening loss to Wake Forest.

The Blue Devils, maligned for a lack of bench strength, had consistently edged past opponents both great and small, showing a penchant for last-second victories.

Added to all this was the fact that both coaches were named Bill Foster.

In the end, it was Clemson's foster with the winner's smile as the Tigers surged to an 80-73 overtime victory against their Atlantic Coast Conference foes.

In the only other game involving an ACC team, Virginia avenged an earlier loss with a 55-50 conquest of Virginia Tech at Hampton, Va.

Clemson's Stan Rome was held to just seven points while the Tigers and Blue Devils battled to a 71-71 deadlock in regulation time, but matched that total in the extra period as Duke scored just two points.

The Blue Devils lost a chance to win in regulation, but Tate Armstrong's corner shot in the closing seconds rimmed out and the ball was knocked out of bounds.

The play was set up during a timeout with 16 seconds remaining after Duke held the ball and prevented any scoring after 3:34 in regulation.

Armstrong had won previous games against Washington State and Richmond by taking his man one-on-one and hitting from the key.

This time, however, he was unable to get a clear shot over Rome and Derrick Johnson. The Cavaliers iced their win over the Gobblers on four free throws by Billy Langloh and two by Bobby Stokes in the final 2½ minutes.

That was fitting since Virginia managed just 13 field goals and a frigid 28.9 per cent average in the game, but cashed in on 29 of 40 free throw attempts. The win avenged last month's

65-60 loss to Virginia Tech in the finals of the Richmond Times-Dispatch Invitational. In tonight's action, the national spotlight will be on Winston-Salem where No. 5 North Carolina meets No. 7 Wake Forest for the second time this season. The Deacons, 11-1, handed the Tar Heels, 10-1, their only loss earlier this season with a 97-96 overtime decision in the Big Four Tournament finals.

VMI Rolls Past William & Mary; Mounties Top Furman In Overtime

By The Associated Press
Ron Carter had four slam dunks among his game-high 26 points that gave Virginia Military's defending champion Key-the final blow, so I wanted to figure the nastiest way to do it, to end it once and for all," said Carter of his final basket.

It was the 10th straight victory for the Keydets, 11-1 overall, and their 3-0 conference record is now unchallenged in the wake of Appalachian State's 80-78 overtime victory over Furman's Paladins, the only other team unbeaten in the conference going into Wednesday night.

Two title-ineligible conference teams also saw action, Western Carolina, 3-7, dropping a 96-79 decision to Old Dominion, 8-2, and Marshall, 5-8, winning over Ohio U. 79-71.

All teams are idle tonight. William and Mary, won 2-2 in the conference and 7-6 over-all, lost to VMI despite eight more field goals, a 49-30 rebounding edge and fewer turnovers. The key was at the foul line, where VMI hit 36 of 47 shots to seven of nine for the Indians.

The Indians had a 13-1 run in the second half that enabled them to close the gap, and VMI Coach Charlie Schmaus said "great credit" was due Indian Coach George Balanis "for getting those boys to come back. That first half, we dominated in every respect."

Will Bynum had 24 points and John Krovic and Dave Montgomery 16 each for the Keydets. John Lowenhaupt led the Indians with 24.

A 15-foot jumper from the corner by Tony Searcy with 36 seconds left in the extra period won for Appalachian State's Mountaineers over Furman, which fell to 1-1 in the league and 6-5 over-all. Appalachian is 2-2 in the conference and 6-6 against all opposition.

The Paladins, whose Bruce Grimm had a game-high 30 points, led 78-77 before Searcy hit his basket and Mel Hubbard added a free throw. Searcy and Walter Anderson had 19 points each and Hubbard and Calvin Bowser 16 apiece for the Mountaineers.

Freshman Ronnie Valentine scored 23 points and Little All-American Wilson Washington added 22 and grabbed 17 rebounds for Old Dominion, which ran its winning streak to six against Western Carolina. Bubba Wilson had 28 points for the Catamounts.

The balance among the boys' basketball teams in the Eastern Carolina Conference is becoming more evident with every game. The three top teams are tied for first place while the next three teams are in a tie for fourth place.

North Pitt, Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton are all tied for the top spot with three wins and one loss in the conference. The Panthers, who are 8-2 overall, lost to Farmville in a non-conference game during the Rose Holiday Doubleheader, and to Ayden-Grifton in their only conference loss.

Farmville Central, which beat North Pitt in the Holiday Doubleheader 74-59, lost to the Panthers Tuesday night, 67-45. And Ayden-Grifton, 4-6 overall, blew a chance to hold down first place alone by losing to Southern Nash Tuesday in overtime, 63-62.

The other Pitt County school, D. H. Conley, is in a tie for fourth place with North Lenoir and Southern Nash. All of these teams have 2-2 conference marks. North Lenoir has the best overall record, 8-2, while Southern Nash is 5-5 and Conley, 4-6.

The Vikings' 74-56 rout of North Lenoir Tuesday prevented the Hawks from also being in the tie for first place just as Southern Nash knocked Ayden-Grifton off. These three teams have all shown that they can compete and are definite threats in the conference.

Farmville Central visits Ayden-Grifton tomorrow night and North Pitt is at C. B. Aycock (0-4 in the conference) so, unless the Panthers are upset, it looks like it's going to be a two-way tie after Friday's games.

North Pitt forward Donnie Perkins had the kind of game against Farmville Central that Panther fans have been waiting for. The 6-3 senior's scoring output wasn't particularly high (21 points) but he was a valuable man all over the court.

Along with pulling down more than his share of rebounds during the game, Perkins made several key steals and had several assists as well as blocking two Jaguar shots as the Panthers built up a 26-point lead and coach Cobby Deans cleared his bench.

Perkins displayed quick hands, some smooth moves and an outstanding jumping ability, breaking free for baskets both inside and outside. He hit about half his shots, many from long range, and passed up some opportunities he could have taken to set up his teammates for baskets.

Perkins' team leadership and unselfish play are traits which impress many college coaches, a few of whom have already scouted the Panther stand-out this year.

Farmville Central's girls' team has jumped out to an early lead in the conference race with a 4-0 record. They will also face a challenge when Farmville travels to Ayden-Grifton tomorrow night. The Chargerettes are currently 2-2 in the league.

Southern Roundup

dets a commanding lead in the Southern Conference basketball race, but it was the last one — a reverse slam — that proved the killer.

William and Mary's Indians, seemingly blown out of the game when VMI took a 40-22 halftime lead Wednesday night, had cut the lead to five points and were down by 86-77 with 35 seconds left when Carter hit the key basket in the Keydets' 92-79 victory.

Kentucky Upset By Tennessee

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Ray Mears has coached 387 college basketball victories, but the latest one was something special.

"In the 14 years I've been at Tennessee, this has to be one of the biggest victories," said Mears after his Vols invaded 23,300-seat Rupp Arena at Lexington, Ky., Wednesday night and posted a 71-67 overtime upset of No. 2-ranked Kentucky.

The loss is likely to cost Kentucky its high ranking, as third-rated Cincinnati — which trailed the Wildcats by just nine points in this week's Associated Press poll — raised its record to 11-0, routing Dayton 84-61 before the largest college basketball crowd in Ohio history, 17,009, at Cincinnati.

"Anyone who places the University of Kentucky in front of us is not knowledgeable about basketball," said Cincinnati Coach Gale Catlett. "And I said that before Kentucky lost tonight."

"I'd like to play San Francisco on a neutral court right now," Catlett said of the top-ranked Dons, who are 17-0. "We beat them last year (89-88 at Cincinnati) with three of our guards sick with the flu."

Only one other Top Twenty team was in action — No. 17 Clemson, which edged Duke 80-73 in overtime in an Atlantic Coast Conference clash.

"This may be the worst game we've played this season," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, whose team dropped to 2-1 in the Southeastern Conference and 9-2 over-all. "We shot 26 per cent in the first half, and when you can't buy a basket that magnifies your other mistakes."

Tennessee led 32-28 at intermission, fell behind by seven points with 7:39 to play and climbed back ahead only to have Kentucky reserve Truman Claytor sink a 12-foot jumper with nine seconds to go, tying the score 61-61 and sending the game into overtime.

A layup by Bernard King sent Tennessee ahead to stay 67-65 with 2:28 left in the extra period, then Mike Jackson clinched the victory with two free throws with 39 seconds left.

Ernie Grunfeld led Tennessee with 22 points, while Reggie Johnson added 18 and King 16. King also had 19 rebounds. Jack Givens of Kentucky took game scoring honors with 23 points.

The victory raised Tennessee's record to 10-2 over-all and lifted the Vols into a tie with Alabama for the SEC lead at 4-0.

Robert Miller scored 18 points and grabbed 22 rebounds for Cincinnati, which ran off 13 straight points in building a 48-27 halftime lead over Dayton, 10-2, and never was in trouble.

It was Cincinnati's 53rd straight home court victory, a streak that dates back to 1972. In six seasons under Catlett, the Bearcats are 60-1 at home.

Stan Rome scored seven of his 14 points in overtime as Clemson 11-2, defeated Duke. Clemson pulled into a 71-71 tie with 3:34 to go in regulation on a basket by Colin Abraham. Duke then held the ball for the last shot, but a try by Tate Armstrong bounded off the rim.

Rome then took command in overtime.

NCAA Votes To Keep Coaching Staff Limits

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Charley Scott had some delegates to the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention wondering if still another law suit was on the way.

The convention rejected Wednesday a proposal by the University of Alabama to rescind a regulation limiting the size of football and basketball coaching staffs.

Scott, faculty athletic representative from Alabama, pointed out that the rule had been declared in violation of state law by the Alabama attorney general.

When the proposal was voted down soundly, Scott remarked, "We believe that fulfills our obligation to the NCAA."

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said he did not understand what Scott was saying.

"Charley's an articulate fellow and I usually understand what he's saying, but I didn't understand what he was saying today," Byers said. Scott said in his presentation that Alabama had been told by the NCAA to get the matter resolved at the convention or simply leave the NCAA.

"That's a cavalier answer to a very serious problem," he said.

At the conclusion of the convention's final business session, Scott was asked about a possible lawsuit and said, "We are not contemplating any law suit. I was just pointing out that when two lawyers disagree, you have the basis for a lawsuit."

There is pending in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court an appeal by two Alabama assistant coaches who challenged as individuals the NCAA limitations. The suit was rejected in a lower court.

NCAA officers said during the convention that lawsuits were costing the organization $6,000 a week. They urged that members exhaust all appeals within the NCAA before going to court.

The convention also turned down several proposals that would have changed the limitations on football scholarships allowed, leaving it at 30 per year and no more than 95 in effect at any one time.

The delegates referred to the Committee on Academic Testing and Requirements a proposal to abolish the 2.0 grade average for athletic eligibility and reinstate the 1.6 projection rule used several years ago.

There was a cost-saving measure approved Wednesday, but it was short-lived, failing on a vote of reconsideration. The proposal would have chopped from 80 to 60 the number of grants available in all sports other than football and basketball.

Divisions II and III approved an eligibility proposal that would allow an athlete to sit out his freshman year and retain four years of eligibility. Division I prohibits the redshirting of freshmen.

Commission Proposes New Central Organization For Amateur Sports

NEW YORK (AP) — Amateur athletics in the United States should be run by a new central organization composed only of the various national bodies, the President's Commission on Olympic Sports recommended today.

Noting that "incessant organizational squabbles waste time and talent and threaten the fundamental rights of athletes" to compete, the 22-member commission called on Congress to create the new organization on the structure of U.S. Olympic Committee.

The two-volume, 613-page report, which took 18 months and $1 million to compile, was submitted to President Ford and President-elect Carter earlier this week and was outlined at news conferences today here and in Los Angeles.

"United States sports organizations are fragmented, not bound by common purpose or any effective coordinating system," the report noted. "No clear policy or direction in amateur sport, physical education or physical fitness can be or has been maintained."

The panel, which included four U.S. senators and four members of the House, said the new USOC "is proposed as the highest congress of a representative, vertically integrated American sports system, with appropriate checks and balances built in."

Under the proposed organization, each national governing body, such as those that administer and operate sports like badminton, cycling, luge or weightlifting, would send a maximum of five representatives to an annual Congress. The Congress would elect a 15-member board of directors, containing at least three athletes, which would be the major policy making body of the central sports organization. The recommendations of the panel include binding arbitration of franchise disputes, a bill of rights to guarantee an athlete's right to compete, a means to finance amateur sports more effectively and a central policy making forum to identify sports problems and effect solutions.

The commission said if its recommendations were implemented, disputes similar to one between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association would be solved.

"Power blocs which have crippled the USOC in the past will be eliminated," the report said. "Athletes' rights will be more adequately guaranteed, and funding of amateur sports will reach across the whole system rather than remain confined to a few niches of influence."

The report is a result of months of hearings, meetings and research by the commission and staff.

The panel suggested that the government issue commemorative Olympic coins, use the federal tax form to make contributions to amateur athletics, place an excise tax on admissions to professional sports events, implement a modified lottery system in states which presently utilize them, and give tax credits or deductions for an athlete or an athlete's parents who sustain the burden of preparation for competition.

The panel suggested the creation of national training centers and sports institutes and said it "believes that an amateur athlete should be able to accept all sport-related revenues, except those offered for competition itself."

Celtics Spoil Good News As They Drop Game To Indiana

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
It was a banner day for the Boston Celtics — then they went and spoiled it by playing a basketball game.

NBA Roundup

The good news came from Dave Cowens, the all-star center who had taken a leave of absence Nov. 8, saying he would not return to the team until next fall. Wednesday, Cowens announced he had a change of heart and would be back in uniform as soon as possible.

"It's great, just super," was the reaction of Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn, whose team has stumbled to a 15-13 record without Cowens and who knows that the big center can mean the difference in the fight for a playoff spot.

Then the Celtics showed up at Boston Garden for a game against the Indiana Pacers, and the rosy picture took on an ashen tone.

In the opening minute of play, high-scoring guard Charlie Scott tumbled to the floor under the basket, landing on his left arm. He was taken to University Hospital, and moments later the Celtics got the bad news — two broken bones in the forearm.

The rest of the game did not go much better for Boston. Billy Knight, Indiana's scoring star, poured in 33 points, including eight in a row during the second half that nailed down a 112-101 victory for the Pacers, their sixth consecutive National Basketball Association triumph.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Houston Rockets 102-97, the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Buffalo Braves 124-118, the Chicago Bulls topped the Washington Bullets 99-85, the Milwaukee Bucks outscored the San Antonio Spurs 127-121, the Denver Nuggets downed the New Orleans Jazz 110-99 and the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Detroit Pistons 121-99.

76ers 102, Rockets 97
Lloyd Free scored a career-high 39 points and Julius Erving added 25 as Philadelphia erased an early 15-point deficit and beat Houston, despite 40 points by the Rockets' Rudy Tomjanovich.

Hawks 124, Braves 118
Tom Henderson tallied 11 of his 22 points in the last seven minutes as Atlanta dealt Buffalo its fifth straight loss. Henderson also had 15 assists.

Bulls 95, Bullets 85
Reserve guard John Mengelt scored a season-high 20 points for Chicago, which moved out to a 52-36 halftime lead, then clinched the victory with a 13-0 fourth-quarter burst.

Bucks 127, Spurs 121
Milwaukee trailed by 14 points in the first half before overtaking San Antonio behind 28 points by Junior Bridgeman and 27 by Bob Dandridge.

Nuggets 110, Jazz 99
Denver raised its home record to 20-1, jumping to an 11-point lead in the first quarter, turning back a Jazz comeback in the second period and stretching the lead to as many as 19 points in the third quarter.

Sonics 121, Pistons 99
Fred Brown scored 20 points, helping Seattle to its fifth straight victory. Detroit was without star center Bob Lanier, who was sidelined with a sprained knee.

Cowens Back With Boston

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — "I'm ready to play basketball again."

With that simple statement, Dave Cowens, the Boston Celtics' All-Star center, ended a 63-day unpaid leave of absence Wednesday, agreeing to rejoin the National Basketball Association's defending champions.

"You're back on the payroll as of right now," Celtics President and General Manager Red Auerbach said.

Cowens, who walked out on his reported $280,000 job on Nov. 10, did a sudden turn-about, admitting that he had wanted to remain away for the remainder of the season.

However, he announced his decision to rejoin the club after a one-hour huddle with Auerbach and Celtics owner Irv Levin. The 28-year-old veteran from Florida State University stayed away from Boston's game against the Indiana Pacers Wednesday night, but promised to be at practice today.

Cowens said jokingly that "I may not be in shape until next September." However, he will be in uniform Friday night when the Celtics meet the Portland Trail Blazers at Boston Garden.

Alternating seriousness with jest, Cowens said he has been working out lightly, weighs about a normal 225 pounds, but "I'm not in playing shape."

"I left for personal reasons and I'm coming back for personal reasons," the 6-foot-9 Cowens said in hedging on why he decided to return.

HEADING HOME — Young Cindy Nelson, the best downhill skier America has ever produced, waits in the Seattle Airport for a flight to Reno, Nev., Wednesday, where she will meet with her doctor to examine the ankle she broke in a race in West Germany on Tuesday. Miss Nelson, 21, had flown to Seattle from London earlier in the day. She plans to return home to Lutsen, Minn., later in the week. (AP Wirephoto)

NCAA Executive Director Sees Problems Before Restructuring

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association says the organization "may go into convulsions" before resolving its restructuring problems.

Walter Byers said Wednesday that failure to reorganize the various divisions "could be destructive, but I don't think it will be."

Reorganization probably was the key issue that faced the NCAA during its 71st convention which ended Wednesday, and it was defeated.

"I see it as both necessary and inevitable," Byers said at a news conference. "I don't minimize the problem. The NCAA was born in crisis and has survived with considerable turmoil."

There was speculation following defeat of the Division I reorganization proposal that danger existed that the larger football-playing schools which provide most of the financing for the NCAA might leave and form a National Football Association.

Proponents of the CFA have repeatedly insisted that they want to resolve their problems within the NCAA.

"I have reservations about the CFA as a solution to the problem," Byers said, because it deals only with one sport. "I will say they have further reasons to pursue it now."

There are 247 schools in the highest classification; 137 participating in football.

Byers said it is difficult for the division to come to grips with a reorganization proposal because of extreme interests involved — football powers wanting one thing, schools with only major basketball programs wanting to retain their rights. As a result, he said, those that take a modest course down the middle decide the issue rather than those at the extremes.

Another major proposal that failed was one requiring athletic grants in aid to be based on need. Academic scholarships are based on need — the students' ability to pay — while most athletic scholarships are "full ride."

Kuhn Testifies He Got Varied Advice

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he received conflicting advice from some of the game's top officials on whether to void the sales of three Oakland A's stars for $3.5 million.

Kuhn testified Wednesday in U.S. District Court in a $3.5-million suit filed by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley after Kuhn blocked the deals last June.

Finley was expected to return to the stand today. The trial is expected to end this week. Judge Frank McGarr then will consider his decision.

During a conference call last June with baseball's Executive Council, Kuhn testified, American League President Lee MacPhail and National League President Charles Feeney recommended that he let the sales stand. But Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ed Fitzgerald of the Milwaukee Brewers told him something should be done.

Kuhn decided to disapprove the sales of pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to Boston for $1 million each and pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

He said he was attending a White Sox game in Chicago last June when he was notified of the sales.

"I asked the White Sox to get Mr. Finley on the phone and we had a conversation. I said 'Charlie, these deals are disastrous to baseball. They are troublesome and I don't know if they can stand.' His response was strong. He said 'Commissioner, you shouldn't be butting in' and suggested we get together. We later met in the lobby of the Pick-Congress Hotel.

"Finley argued vigorously against the wisdom of my doing it (possibly negating the deals), but he never mentioned that I didn't have the authority," Kuhn testified.

"I said Charlie had created a disastrous situation and he told me he had difficulties signing the players and that he also had financial problems. He told me about the difficulties he had

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pitcher Pat Zachry, National League co-Rookie of the Year in 1976, has signed his 1977 contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

Zachry, who shared rookie honors with San Diego pitcher Butch Metzger, had a 14-7 record with a 2.74 earned run average, the best among Reds starters. He also won one game each in the National League playoffs and the World Series.

The Reds still have five starters unsigned — Pete Rose, Ken Griffey, George Foster, Dave Concepcion and Joe Morgan.

"I've found that calcium has great benefits for tobacco"

Charles H. McLamb
Clinton, N.C.

"From my experience tobacco needs calcium as much as nitrogen. Its use has been neglected, but I've found calcium has great benefits for tobacco. Calcium Nitrate gives me more texture in the leaf... they're not as slick as when I used 'soda.' 'CN' holds right, and I see the right weight at market. Even in dry weather 'CN' gives me leaves with stretch and fullness."

People Of Ponape Slow Over Accepting Progress

By BOB BARR
Associated Press Writer
PONAPE, Caroline Islands (AP) — They've been talking about finishing the road around this island for some time — since the turn of the century as a matter of fact.

Then the Japanese. Now American officials are trying to finish a 60-mile road around this rain-soaked island nearly 6,000 miles from the U.S. West Coast. There are 30 miles to go, but this stately pace suits the Ponapean preference for warily tasting change before swallowing. "The people of Ponape want development, but not in a hurry," says Ilor Harris, speaker of the district legislature. "We will be very, very cautious. The people have to understand the need for development, even if it means changing their customs."

who is directing the road project.

"Maybe they would be better off without development. But they have come far enough that they won't be happy with breadfruit anymore."

There are a few modest new buildings in Kolonia, the main town, and open trenches testify to an expanding utility system, but dirt roads and ramshackle establishments give Kolonia the look of a 19th century Dodge City with palm trees.

A few years ago Ponapeans rejected a major hotel development, partly because local businessmen opposed it, but also because the people feared large-scale development.

At about the same time opposition to the road was so strong that there were doubts that it would be built. Now, people along the route are enthusiastic.

"So far, we have not paid for one square foot of right-of-way," says Barnard. "It was all donated by the people." And local people do much of the work.

"They do it — I don't want to say cheap — but practically for groceries, because they want the road," Barnard said.

Completing the road will take five years, Barnard said, and paving is a distant goal.

PROBLEMS IN PONAPE — Charles Barnard, a 70-year-old engineer fresh out of the Peace Corps, is chief of a road project designed to run some 60 miles about the rain-soaked island of Ponape, in the Caroline Islands. First planned by the Germans, the road is now being constructed by Americans; but there are still 30 miles to go, and not everyone welcomes the progress that completion of the road will mean. (AP Wirephoto)

U.S. Network Is Looking For British Talent

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — British actors do not as a rule find it easy to mimic an American accent, but for some reason they can almost always sound like old suth'n gen'lemen. That is why NBC-TV had no qualms about the casting of Lord (Laurence) Olivier in the role of Big Daddy in Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

David Tebet, NBC's Senior Vice President in charge of talent, on one of his periodic trips in search of new shows and new ideas for the network, had a chance to hear what Olivier has done with the role of the dying patriarch and was impressed with the way the British star has captured the right regional nuances.

"It's a great southern accent," he said.

He was equally happy about Olivier's hand-picked costars — Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood, who coached the great Briton on some of his dialogue.

Tebet is the man who brought Sanford and Son (known here as Steptoe and Son) to the United States and regularly cruises abroad in search of talent and programs that can be adapted to American tastes.

One of the new captures is Fawty Towers which starred John Cleese, one of the Monty Python team, when it played here on the BBC. Cleese also wrote the show but probably will not be in the American production under present plans.

"It was a very funny series," Tebet said, "as you might expect from a Monty Python expert. Cleese played the harassed owner of a small hotel always in the wrong and frantically trying to wriggle out of his errors under the cold eye of his businesslike wife."

Another program that NBC has taken is "Yes Honestly," which owed a lot to the performances of two of Britain's brightest young actors, the husband-and-wife team of John Alderton and Pauline Collins.

"Somehow," said Tebet, "this show has something of the feel of George Burns and Gracie Allen about it although it is a situation comedy of sorts rather than standup humor."

Tebet also saw some of "The Life of Christ," which Franco Zifferelli is directing for Lord (Lew) Grade's ATV production company. This has been placed with NBC and Tebet said it was "an enormous project" which the great Italian director was determined to make worthy of the subject matter.

Tebet said not as many ideas worthy of transporting to the United States were turning up these days. Many countries were concentrating on less costly variety or dramas which were not easy to pick up because of language problems. But the immensely popular European game show between nations, "It's a Knockout," should find a niche in the United States.

One of the things Britain did by its television example was broaden the base of American comedy. This had been restricted by some sponsors who did not want their products associated with working class backgrounds. But Sanford and Sons, in its English setting, spent most of its time in a junkyard and now nearly anything goes.

A promising new show on the British commercial network, "Down the Gate," is set in Billingsgate fish market. Tebet said he would look it over before returning home.

Just before he left London Paul Gallico died in Monte Carlo and Tebet recalled that the famous author of "The Snow Goose" had recently been asked to submit a one paragraph story line to NBC for a future project.

"He didn't turn in one paragraph, he turned in 10 pages," Tebet said. "We said we would buy that as a treatment and he sent us another 120 pages. That led to a contract for a NBC film and that, in turn, brought him a deal for a novel. All because when you asked a talented man like Gallico for something you always got back 10 times more than you had hoped for."

"We'll miss him."

Alabama Priest Also Chief Of Police

GAINESVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The Rev. Edward Cate has an unusual opportunity to watch over the souls and the safety of residents in this tiny Alabama town.

He serves as an Episcopal priest and as Gainesville's chief of police

Father Cate took over three churches in the Gainesville area after more than 20 years as a priest with the police force in Frankfurt, Germany.

He was appointed police chief last February when Gainesville formed a volunteer police department.

The two roles mix well, he says. "If a police officer is not a good Christian, then he's not going to be a good policeman."

Father Cate says racial prejudice "makes me madder than anything else," and he's appointed a black man as assistant chief.

"I took a nice comfortable chair out of the house, padlocked it to a pecan tree and handcuffed him to the chair. I gave him a big glass of lemonade and a book to read and told him that when he felt he'd calmed down enough, I'd come let him go."

Miami Plans Big Expenditure To Lure Tourist

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Southern Florida, once the nation's most popular winter playground, is battling this winter vacation season for every tourist dollar it can get.

Facing aggressive competition from both warmer and colder areas, and from less expensive resorts, Florida has seen its biggest industry change drastically in recent years.

Central Florida is understandably happy over the fame and fortune that Disney World has brought to the Orlando area, whose hotels reach 30 per cent occupancy Christmas week, according to tourist industry spokesmen. But Miami Beach is hustling to reawaken tourist interest and to attract young visitors.

No figures were issued for Christmas week hotel occupancy in Miami and Miami Beach, but calls to three major hotels showed that rooms were available without reservation during one of the busiest weeks of the tourist season.

The hotels here and in the rest of South Florida traditionally attracted most of their guests from the Northeast and Canada. Now there is a turn toward Latin America for new customers to help replace those perennial guests of the '50s and '60s who have changed their habits in old age.

Many of those oldtimers still come to Miami, but not to the hotels.

In addition, many younger people, instead of enjoying Miami's hotel-and-beach routine, prefer water skiing, scuba-diving, tennis and back-packing.

"It is alarming to me that young people are not responding to Florida," said Wayne Berens, who owns four travel agencies in Trenton, N.J. "Ten years ago, we sold many, many honeymoon packages to Miami, but now Miami is a honeymoon destination is no longer prime," he added, echoing the views of six other travel agents interviewed in the Northeast and the Midwest.

"We have a tremendous need for a major, first-class attraction," said Hal Cohen, director of the Miami Beach Tourist Development Authority.

Berens said that a week in Miami Beach, including airfare, a room at a good hotel within three blocks of the beach, and three meals a day cost a couple about $1,000. Accommodations at one of the first class hotels along Collins Avenue would raise the figure by several hundred dollars.

For about the same $1,000, the newlyweds could ski for a week at Aspen, scuba-dive in Bermuda or visit a Caribbean Island such as Aruba, where there's a better beach than Miami's equivalent night-club entertainment and the lure of casino gambling.

In addition, charter tours now are available from the East Coast to Hawaii at about $900 per couple including airfare, hotel room and meals.

There are other problems. The beach has eroded badly in spots along Miami Beach. The federal government is about to begin a $60 million, two-year restoration project, but in some areas now the surf washes up to within yards of hotel patios.

"Among young people with small children, we get a lot of movement to Disney World, but not to Miami. Near Disney World, there is Sea World, Cypress Gardens, Cape Canaveral, etc. They can spend a whole week there," said Marilyn Green, a travel agent in Bowie, Md.

Although central Florida's tourist trade is booming, the visitors are not as easy with their money and often don't have to be as those who once crowded into Miami Beach.

Daytona Beach, located about 40 miles northeast of Orlando, allows beachfront parking on its 23 miles of hard-packed sand. It calls itself the "Affordable Florida."

Daytona Beach has grown by 5,000 hotel rooms since 1970 and cut-rate accommodations are the rule.

College kids, families with young children and singles looking for a good time make local merchants happy, but police are a bit nervous. Last year, Daytona Beach had the highest crime rate in Florida.

"Our tax base is 54,000 people," said police Capt. Charles Willis Jr. "So we have equipment and personnel for 54,000, even though, when the tourists are strong, our population is 200,000."

"It's not violent crime, but if you come on vacation and you've got a lot of money with you, somebody may try and take it from you."

Many of those who travel to Central Florida do so by automobile, and that worries state tourist officials. Other Southeast states, most notably Georgia, have been trying to get some of the visitors passing through to stay a few days and spend some of the $10 billion all tourists were expected to spend in Florida in 1976, according to state officials. In 1975, it was $8.8 billion.

"We just want to get our share," said Ed Spivey, the Atlanta-based director of the Georgia Tourist Division. "We've got the home of the future president (Plains, Ga.), and that will help us get some people off the interstate."

Bot Whitley, Florida's tourism director, said the Sunshine State is fighting back.

"If those people spend a day or two in another southern state, that means they'll spend less here," Whitley said. "We have to concentrate on fighting by using more promotional advertising."

Meanwhile, officials in Miami are trying to give those central Florida visitors a reason to travel 240 miles farther south. A $43 million aquatic park and amusement-entertainment area has been proposed for Watson Island, near downtown Miami.

They also are working to ensure that Latin Americans continue to visit South Florida. The Fontainebleau has opened up six offices in foreign countries and a state bureau is dedicated to seeking foreign tourists. City officials estimate that 450,000 Latin Americans visited Miami Beach last year.

And then there's casino gambling. Business interests in Miami Beach have pressed for legalized gambling, but Gov. Reubin Askew has been a staunch opponent. Supporters failed to get a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot this year, but promise further attempts.

Complicate Tax Returns

CHICAGO (UPI) — With the major changes made by the 1976 Tax Reform Act, the upcoming tax return picture becomes more complex than ever, notes Commerce Clearing House.

For individuals, there is an expanded and simplified credit for the elderly that replaces the old retirement income credit. In lieu of the former child and dependent-care expense deduction, a credit for such expenses is available to all eligible taxpayers, whether or not they itemize their deductions.

On the other hand, CCH noted, the former exclusion for sick pay is replaced by a more restrictive disability income exclusion. Further, all individuals, whether or not they itemize their deductions and regardless of the size of their income, must compute their taxable income.

For business, the lower corporate tax rates and general 10 per cent investment credit that applied last year are continued for 1976.

Other points to bear in mind, CCH said, are important 1976 tax law provisions as well as new rules spelled out by the Internal Revenue Service and key court decisions on the federal tax front.

Highspots of all these 1976 developments — explained in the 544-page 1977 edition of CCH's "U.S. Master Tax Guide" — the 60th Edition — show how this year's tax activity in Congress, the IRS and the courts will affect 1976 tax returns.

Eskimos Have A Sweet Tooth

EDINBURGH (UPI) — A Scottish company has made export history by selling 60 tons of snowballs to the Eskimos.

The firm, John J. Lees Ltd., of Coatbridge, in Scotland's central belt, manufacture confectionery and the 'snowballs' are their best selling line all over the world. Lees' chairman and managing director, Andrew D. Sims, says the special North American order was probably their biggest ever single production line run.

"We had been despatching consignments to our agent in Nova Scotia for about four years," he says, "before we realized that Eskimos, like nearly everybody else, have a sweet tooth."

Hard study invades out-of-class hours but brings its reward: Recruit Guggenheim graduated with the highest grades academically ever achieved on 17-week Academy course. Now Police Officer Guggenheim is assigned as patrolman to one of the city's eight districts.

PATROLMAN'S PREP

Getting through the New Orleans Police Academy "is definitely not easy," says Police Officer Fay Guggenheim. She's in a position to know because she's just done it, as these pictures verify, and emerged with the highest grades academically ever achieved there.

In inches, though, she wasn't top—at 5 feet 5 she was the shortest in a class that included three other women recruits. It was the elimination of a 5 feet 8 inches minimum height requirement that brought her from eight years behind a desk in the police intelligence division and into the Academy. "The work just seemed so interesting. As soon as they lowered the height requirement, the next day I went and applied to take the exam. There were no second thoughts."

New Recording Group Leads Grammy Choices

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Star- and Vocal Band, new to the recording game, led a field of otherwise familiar names in nominations for the 19th annual Grammy Awards.

Starland rolled up nominations for best new artist of the year and record of the year, and their sensuous love ballad, "Afternoon Delight," is up for song-of-the-year honors.

Otherwise, in the pop music categories, the same old faces were back for the music world's annual accolades.

Paul Simon's "50 Ways to Leave Your Lover," Barry Manilow's "I Write the Songs," Chicago's "If You Leave Me Now" and George Benson's "This Masquerade" were nominated with "Afternoon" for record of the year.

Stevie Wonder, almost a permanent fixture in the annual Grammy show, was nominated for male performer of the year, and his "Songs in the Key of Life" was nominated for album of the year. Other albums nominated were George Benson's "Breezin'," "Chicago X" by Chicago, Peter Frampton's "Frampton Comes Alive" and Boz Scaggs' "Silk Degrees."

The Grammys, the music industry's version of the Oscars, are presented by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. Nominations are suggested by academy members and record companies, and selected — usually five in each of 49 categories — by academy committees.

Winners chosen by voting members of the academy-at-large will be announced in a nationally televised awards show Feb. 19 at the Hollywood Palladium, hosted by singer Andy Williams.

Williams was to have announced the nominations Wednesday but was in Aspen, Colo., testifying in the manslaughter trial of his ex-wife, singer Claudine Longet. She is charged in the death of her lover, skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

Instead, Natalie Cole, daughter of the late Nat King Cole and last year's female artist of the year, presented the nominations along with Darryl Dragon and Toni Tennille, also known as The Captain and Tennille.

Besides Wonder, nominees for best male performer in the pop field included Scaggs, Benson, Gordon Lightfoot and Lou Rawls.

Lightfoot also won a song-of-the-year nomination for his "The Wreck of the Edmund

The trombone, known in its original form as a sackbut, is a 15 century development of the trumpet.

Fitzgerald" along with song-writers Bill Danoff for "Afternoon Delight," Neil Sedaka and Howard Greenfield for "Breaking Up Is Hard to Do." Bruce Johnston for "I Write the Songs" and Leon Russell for "This Masquerade."

Nominated with Starland for best new artist or group were Boston, the Brothers Johnson, Wild Cherry and Drm Buzard's Original Savannah Band.

Natalie Cole was again in the running for the best female performer for her album, "Natalie Cole." Also nominated were Linda Ronstadt for "Hasten Down the Wind," Emmylou Harris for "Here, There and Everywhere," Joni Mitchell for "The Hissing of Summer Lawns" and Vicki Sue Robinson for "Turn the Beat Around."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are likely to have some delay in putting in motion a creative plan of importance. Later in the day you have an unusually beneficial afternoon and evening, for some sudden and unexpected circumstances arise giving you a chance to plan a campaign of action which will be very beneficial.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) After a frustrating morning you can trust your hunches later and get ahead faster in your career. Handle responsibilities intelligently. Placate the one you love who is in a poor humor.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to exercise patience at home and elsewhere because nothing seems to be working out well during the day. By evening everything clears up. Happiness is possible then.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Wait until afternoon to keep an appointment or have business dealings since the morning would yield you little. Get busy at statements and correspondence. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't be depressed over finances in the morning since you see how to improve them easily in the afternoon and on into the evening. You can consult a good adviser before the sun goes down. Be clever.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you do not argue at home during the day, you find that all goes well and that you can entertain there happily in the evening. Study into new projects that can be lucrative for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of worrying about any problems you have, get busy and do something constructive about them. Late afternoon is best for visiting with others. Avoid work that is too strenuous for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Late afternoon is best for searching out the data you need. Take time to visit with relatives later in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to make those changes that will help you have a smoother running life in the future. Steer clear of irate persons in the morning and then the afternoon can be a happy one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may feel stymied in the morning, but don't get impatient or you will lose out on fine benefits which favorable planets can bring you. Solve some problem early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any new beginnings are best handled in the morning. Evening is best time to make needed changes. You may find a friend very trying early but later all works out fine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You tend to be confused during the morning hours, so get hold of yourself. Later you can make up for lost time. Be sure to use tact in handling a credit matter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen carefully to what new contacts say and later you can use your own good judgment, too. Seek out the information you need regarding a new venture and then it can become successful. Take no chances with your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have a tremendous amount of energy and should have activities and education directed along constructive lines. There is a great love of humanity in this chart and your progeny can bring much happiness into the lives of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

After 25 Years, Today Show Is Leading Field

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The early morning television show that began, in the words of one critic, as a "comedy of errors" turns 25 tomorrow with a nostalgic look backward and a hopeful look ahead.

The nostalgia about NBC's "Today Show" originates in clips from past programs and appearances by such old-timers as Dave Garroway, Frank Blair and Jack Lescaulier.

And the hope comes from the latest ratings, which indicate that "Today" may have repulsed challenges mounted by the other two networks. For the second week in a row, that one ending Dec. 31, the show posted a 4.1 Nielsen rating, more than the other two networks combined but somewhat less than former years.

Executive Producer Paul Friedman — who last May took over a show that sustained plummeting ratings and a loss of personalities like Barbara Walters — says "Today" had gotten stiff and stodgy.

"This is basically a good program," he says, "has been for years. It just needed some updating."

So he cut interviews in half, introduced fluffy features and packed more information into the two hours over which Tom Brokaw, Floyd Kalber, Jane Pauley and Gene Shalit now preside. In addition, Friedman sees Betty Furness with a weekly consumer segment, the possibility of a regular travel and leisure feature and more remote live coverage.

"People out there want to be treated intelligently and want information they can use. And that's what 'Today' does," according to the youthful producer, who says the highly profitable program's annual budget is $11.5 million.

Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, who dreamed up the show when he ran the NBC television network, says "Today's" mission has always been "to show people the real world." That has meant putting on a parade of celebrities from every field, he continues.

"There's a depth of what is going on beyond the trouble you read about," Weaver says.

Now president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Weaver was briefly consultant to ABC's entry into the morning market, "Good Morning, America."

He dismisses this competitor of "Today" as "superficial," saying it's not really "a coverage show." And the "CBS Morning News" is too much a coverage show, Weaver says.

If the three programs were publications, he goes on, "Today" would be the New York Times, "Good Morning, America" would be the New York Daily News and the CBS show would be the Congressional Record.

Will there be "Today" 25 years from now? "If there isn't, there will be only one culprit — the NBC management," Weaver replies.

Draws Fine For Having Cocaine

AYLESBURY, England (AP) — Keith Richard, 33-year-old lead guitarist for the Rolling Stones rock group, has been fined $1,275 after being convicted in Aylesbury Crown Court of possessing cocaine.

But Richard, convicted on the cocaine charge Wednesday, was found innocent of possessing the hallucinatory drug LSD. The charges had been brought after police alleged they found the drugs in a search of him and his car last May 19.

The jury returned the verdicts after deliberating nearly three hours at the end of the three-day trial.

The guitarist had denied any knowledge of the drugs.

The Oratorio Singers of Charlotte will open their 26th season on Saturday, Jan. 15 at 8 p.m. in Owens Auditorium with a performance of Joseph Haydn's "The Seasons." The McKenney Trophy is awarded annually to the player winning the most master points in American Contract Bridge League competition. In 1974, the winner was Kerri Shuman of Los Angeles, and she came close to repeating in 1975. This year, she is again near the top of the list. Study her technique on this hand from the Life Master Women's Pairs at the recent Fall North American Championships, held in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Shuman's opening two-bid was weak, showing a hand of less than opening bid strength with a good six-card suit. West overcalled in hearts and North's raise to four spades was a two-way action—the contract might make, or it could be a good save against an opposing West led the king of hearts, and declarer was faced with two heart losers and possibly two club losers as well, since West rated to have the ace of clubs for her overcall at the three-level. However, declarer saw immediately that there was a good chance for an endplay.

After winning the ace of hearts, declarer cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond high in her hand. A trump to the king fetched the ten and provided the entry for another diamond ruff. Declarer drew the last trump by crossing to dummy's nine, then ruffed the table's last diamond to complete the strip of the key side suit. Now she simply exited with the jack of hearts.

West could cash the queen and ten of hearts, but then was faced with a Hobson's Choice. If she continued with a heart, declarer would discard a club from dummy while ruffing in her hand, and would be left with only one club loser. But it was no better for West to cash the ace of clubs, for that established declarer's king as the game-going trick.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" TOUGH GOING ON THE OHIO — Extremely cold weather has slowed towboat traffic on the Ohio River. The Army Corps of Engineers says ice has formed across the river in several locations as much as three inches thick. But the Corps says the ice has not stopped river traffic, only slowed it down. This was the scene at the Markland dam and locks near Louisville. (AP Wirephoto)

See Good Chance Ohio River Will Freeze Over

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It took one towboat captain an hour to move his vessel a mile on the Ohio River on Wednesday. His boat may not move at all today.

Ice has formed "from bank to bank" over many areas of the Ohio, says the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and there's a good chance the river, one of the top five navigable waterways in the world, will freeze over for the first time in almost 30 years.

On the Mississippi, the Corps and the Coast Guard have urged that a 180-mile stretch between St. Louis and Cairo, Ill., be closed to barge traffic because of heavy ice and low water.

"Anyone would be crazy to operate in that stretch until conditions improve," said a towing industry spokesman who helped with the plan.

The Mississippi's problems are aggravated by low water levels caused by last summer's drought. The river stage fell to minus 3.1 feet at St. Louis Wednesday.

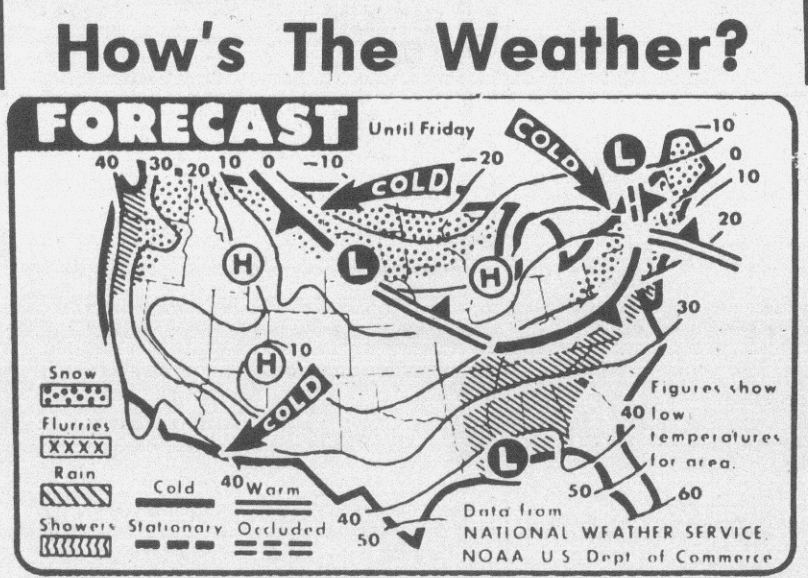

The Coast Guard said 10 ships ran aground between St. Louis and Cairo on Monday.

To the north, unusually bitter cold is forming ice at a near-record rate on the Great Lakes. Lake Erie is frozen almost solid, Lake Huron has ice extending about 15 miles from all shores, and Lakes Superior and Ontario, so deep they never freeze completely, report solid ice along some shorelines.

The 75-mile-wide stretch of Lake Michigan between Milwaukee and Michigan could freeze over for only the second recorded time this century, area observers say. The last time the lake froze across its width was in 1963. It probably froze in 1912 and 1936, but no official records were kept.

All winter shipping on the lakes has slowed, the Coast Guard said. An oil tanker grounded in heavy ice in northern Lake Michigan was pulled free Wednesday, and an ore carrier was cut free from thick ice in Lake Superior Tuesday.

WEATHER FORECAST — Continuing cold weather is awaited over the country today. Fair weather is due from the central Rockies to the Pacific Coast. Rain is forecast on the North Pacific coast and snow from the northern Rockies to the upper Great Lakes. Rain is due from the central Gulf to Ohio Valley, changing to snow in the Northeast. Temperatures showed some slight moderation in pre-dawn readings around North Carolina today but it was not exactly shirt-sleeve weather yet.

Asheville might not have notice any difference with its low of 7 degrees, only two degrees warmer than Wednesday's low. But every degree helps in this latest seige of frigid weather.

Losing Staff Is Biggest Regret

Claudine Describes Shooting

By BILL PARDUE
Associated Press Writer
ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — With ex-husband Andy Williams weeping in a hushed courtroom, Claudine Longet told jurors that her lover cried, "Claudine! Claudine! Claudine!" as he fell dying to the bathroom floor after a gun went off accidentally in her hands.

Williams, a television and recording star, wiped his tears with a pink tissue Wednesday as Miss Longet — holding the fatal pistol as she spoke — described how champion skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich died last March 21 in the $250,000 Rocky Mountain chalet they shared.

"Spider called my name three times, and he sort of slid down, and I told him I would call the hospital, not to move," Miss Longet testified, biting her lips to hold back tears.

Both defense and prosecution said they expected the reckless manslaughter charge against the 35-year-old entertainer to go to the jury today or Friday. If convicted, she faces a maximum 10 years in jail and $30,000 fine.

The prosecution doesn't claim she intended to shoot Sabich, but says she was criminally reckless in handling the gun.

The tiny state district courtroom was packed for the diminutive, dark-haired defendant's testimony. At one point, spectators peering over library shelves in the rear of the room were asked not to stand on law books to watch her.

"I saw her was sort of fainting," Miss Longet said. "So I tried to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but I didn't know how."

Sabich died of a single bullet wound in the stomach from a .22-caliber pistol modeled after the German Luger.

Miss Longet said she had asked Sabich how to use the gun because she was frightened for the safety of her three children by Williams, who lived with her and Sabich.

"I was holding it with both hands," Miss Longet said, gingerly taking the pistol from a defense attorney and holding it flat between her palms.

It was then she began crying. She had not held the gun since the night Sabich died.

"I raised the gun, and I said, 'When that lever is on the red spot, is it safe, it won't fire?'"

The dozen jurors leaned forward to hear the soft-spoken defendant, whose accent still shows strong traces of her native France.

"He said, 'Yes, it won't fire. You've got it. You have it,' or something like that ... I went back to holding it, and it just went off ..."

"I ran to the bedroom, and I called the hospital and told someone to send an ambulance right away. By the time I came back to Spider, my children were standing there, and I sent them out."

"I told them to go to the bottom of the hill to look for the ambulance so they wouldn't go the other way."

During cross-examination, prosecutor Ashley Anderson questioned Miss Longet closely about the testimony of two law enforcement officers.

They said Miss Longet told them at the hospital where Sabich was rushed the night of the shooting that she "playfully pointed the gun at (Sabich) and she gestured at him, saying, 'Bang bang.'"

Anderson asked, "You did not jokingly point the gun and say 'bang bang' and it went off?"

"I wouldn't joke with guns," Miss Longet quickly replied.

Anderson asked her to hold the weapon twice, then asked,

"Are you positive your hand was not on the trigger?"

"I had my hand on the trigger," Miss Longet answered.

Anderson repeated, "Your hand was on the trigger when you raised it?"

"I have to assume it was" because the gun fired, she said, adding later, "I did not raise my hand with my finger on the trigger ..."

A ballistics expert testified for the prosecution that the safety device didn't work, but the trigger had to be pulled for the gun to fire. Miss Longet's mention of the "red spot" referred to the safety.

Defense attorney Charles V. Weedman asked his client about her affair with Sabich, who would have been 32 this week. He had captured the world ski title in 1971 and 1972, but his career plummeted after repeated injuries the next season.

"Spider and I loved each other very much," Miss Longet said. "I think we were the very best of friends."

Williams, his bright blue eyes red-rimmed from crying, began staring at the courtroom's rust carpet. He and Miss Longet were divorced two years ago but still are friends.

He steadfastly defended her character when testifying earlier for the prosecution, then the defense.

Home Damaged In Morning Fire

A 3:10 a.m. fire this morning heavily damaged a bedroom at a 2000 Forest Hill Dr. home and caused smoke damage to the remainder of the house.

Fire officers said the blaze originated in the damaged bedroom of the dwelling, but listed the cause of the fire as undetermined.

However, police said the fire may have been caused by someone smoking in bed.

Investigators reported an occupant of the room suffered minor burns to his feet, but the victim was not identified.

WIND VICTIM...The high, gusty winds that swept over Eastern North Carolina Monday resulted in a freak accident on N.C. 43 near Erul near Vanceboro and New Bern. According to highway patrolmen investigating the accident, a strong gust of wind toppled the mobile home being towed by a truck, turning it upside down on the shoulder of the road. No one was injured and no charges were made in the accident. (Reflector photo by Jerry Raynor).

Israel Described At Hadassah Meeting

Underground bunkers painted with flowers, factory coatracks adorned with jackets and machine guns, young men wearing smiles and rifles—these were some of the startling and unusual observations of Israel presented by Naomi Camnitz at the Kinston-Greenville Hadassah meeting recently.

Ms. Camnitz quoted her husband, Martin, as saying, "I can smell Dachau," when he entered Yad Vashem, the temple built in memory of the Jews who died in German concentration camps. Camnitz served in the U. S. Infantry and was among the troops that entered Dachau to liberate survivors. David Fuchs, board chairman of the local Prepshirt Company, was called upon to say Kaddish, the memorial prayer, beside a large container of ashes of victims.

Ms. Camnitz described the long lists of the dead, the sad wail of the cantor as he sang, and she said she could not help but question why the Nazi slaughter had to take place.

She said Israel is beautiful, yet like a fortress. He told of fields, planted as far as the eye could see, waiting for rain. She told of manmade forest, trees rooted among rocks, eucalyptus and pines.

As she spoke of the view of Jerusalem from her terrace, her words painted pictures of chanting Arabs standing on minarets, Hasidim praying at the Western Wall, and Israeli school boys dancing and singing as they came down the trail on the way to evening prayer.

"Wherever you go," she said, "you see that the Israelis are struggling to stay alive. The Golan Heights, over which the Arab forces want control, are only a stone's throw from Jewish settlements. There is no way we can ever return the Golan Heights," she observed. She remarked that all U. S. young people should visit Israel and be inspired.

"In Israel," she said, "there is no time to be bored, no reason to turn to drugs because the people of that new democracy are filled with the excitement and purpose of a frontier existence."

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — An aluminum recycling company has established a new toll-free number for donors who want to locate the collection point nearest their home or business.

Market director Richard J. Mensing said the numbers operate 24 hours a day to supply addresses and hours of operation of nearly 800 aluminum recycling collection points. The company pays 15 cents per pound for aluminum beverage cans and other clean household aluminum such as frozen food trays and foil.

Additional items are accepted if they are free of foreign materials and no more than three feet long. They include aluminum siding, storm door and window frames, lawn furniture tubing and gutters. Mensing said such products should not be mixed with aluminum cans.

The toll-free numbers for the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Co. are 1-800-243-6000 for residents of every state except Connecticut, where the number to call is 1-800-882-6500.

USED CAR WARRANTY
12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.
