

Carter Sworn Today As President

WASHINGTON (AP) — In soft Georgia accent, uttering the simple oath set out in the Constitution, Jimmy Carter came to power today and promised a government "both competent and compassionate."
Carter's first words as President were words of thanks to Gerald R. Ford for all he has done to heal the nation.
Amid applause that swelled to cheers, Carter paused to shake hands with the man he had just succeeded. Then he spoke of the future:
"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are," said the President who leads America into its third century.
"Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust ... let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath to the former governor of Georgia at two minutes past the appointed hour of noon.
"Congratulations," he said, as the transfer of power was concluded in the oath as old as the Republic, and a 21-gun salute boomed from Army cannon on the Capitol grounds. Carter stood, first solemn, then with a momentary smile on his lips, as the strains of "Hail to the Chief" sounded in salute.
Vice President Walter F. Mondale was sworn in first, his oath administered by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.
A crowd estimated by Capitol police at 150,000 stretched across the plaza before the inaugural stand.
Carter's inaugural address was a brief one — 12 minutes.
In the amity that marked this transition, the 38th president and the 39th, chatted over coffee in the Blue Room before driving together to the Capitol for the swearing-in ceremony.
The vice presidents, old and new, and their wives, joined the Fords and Carters later.
"I feel great, looking forward to it," Carter said of the coming ceremony and parade as he left for the service at the First Baptist Church. He returned from church to Blair House, then walked across the street for the traditional meeting with the outgoing First Family.
Earlier, Ford said goodbye to 75 members of the staff that served him in his presidency of 29 months and 11 days.

Text Of Address Carter Points To A New Beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a text of President-elect Carter's inaugural address:
For myself and our nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land.
In this outward and physical ceremony we attest once again to the inner and spiritual strength of our nation.
As my high school teacher, Miss Julia Coleman, used to say, "We must adjust to changing times and still hold to unchanging principles."
Here before me is the Bible used in the inauguration of our first President in 1789, and I have just taken my own oath of office on the Bible my mother gave me a few years ago, opened to a timeless admonition from the ancient prophet Micah:
"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Micah 6:8)
This inauguration ceremony marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all. A President may sense and proclaim that new spirit, but only people can provide it.
Two centuries ago our nation's birth was a milestone in the long quest for freedom, but the bold and brilliant dream which excited the founder of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.
Two centuries ago our nation's birth was a milestone in the long quest for freedom, but the bold and brilliant dream which excited the founders of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.
Ours was the first society openly to define itself in terms of both spirituality and of human liberty. It is that unique self-definition which has given us an exceptional appeal — but it also imposes on us a special obligation — to take on those moral duties which, when assumed, seem invariably to be in our own best interests.
You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you,

Jenkins Cheered By Med School Survey

East Carolina University chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins said this morning that he expects students to be enrolled in the four-year School of Medicine here in September.
His comments were based on conversations with a four-member accreditation site team representing the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which completed a three-day on-site inspection here yesterday. The LCME is the joint accrediting agency of the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges.
In a brief statement this morning, Jenkins said, "President Friday (William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina) and I are very pleased by the verbal report given to us by the accreditation site team.
"We confidently expect that we should be enrolling students in September.
"We will know conclusively, however, after formal action by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which meets in April."
Jenkins added that "we are confident that this will be an affirmative report."
William Laupus, dean of the School of Medicine, had, in the past, said ECU would not seek accreditation for the medical program and ask for an on-site visit by the LCME until the school was in a position to meet the strenuous accreditation requirements.
Dr. Ed Monroe, vice-chancellor for Health Affairs said the LCME would specify the number of first year students the medical school could enroll. He said the number would probably be from 28 to 32.
If the 15-member LCME grants accreditation in April, Monroe said, there would be no problem in starting classes in September.
Members of the survey team included: Dr. Andrew Hunt, dean of the Michigan State Medical School; Dr. John Stetson, dean of the University of Florida at Gainesville Medical School; Dr. Ira Singer, director of medical research for the American Medical Association, and a Nebraska internist.

and to exemplify what you are. Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Your strength can compensate for my weakness, and your wisdom can help to minimize my mistakes.
Let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right.
The American dream endures. We must once again have full faith in our country — and in one another. I believe America can be better. We can be stronger than before.
Let our recent mistakes bring a resurgent commitment to the basic principles of our nation, for we know that if we despise our own government we have no future. We recall in special times when we have stood briefly, but magnificently, united; in those times no prize was beyond our grasp.
But we cannot dwell upon remembered glory. We cannot afford to drift. We reject the prospect of failure or mediocrity or an inferior quality of life for any person.
Our government must at the same time be both competent and compassionate.

Pitt Crime Prevention Officer Nabs Five In Wake Of Store Holdup

WORTHINGTON'S CROSSROADS — Alert action by the Pitt Sheriff's Department's crime prevention officer Wednesday night resulted in the arrest of five persons shortly after an armed robbery was reported at a store here.
According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the armed robbery at the W. H. Wooten store on Rt. 7, Greenville took place at approximately 7:30 p.m.
Sheriff Tyson said that Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards, who was in the area when the incident was reported, met the suspected vehicle near Haddock's Crossroads south of here and a chase followed when he gave pursuit.
Edwards was able to stop the car, the sheriff reported, and other deputies arrived shortly after and assisted in the arrest of five persons in connection with the robbery.
Wooten told officers that three men entered his store around 7:30 p.m., two of them armed with pistols. He reported that the three wore ski masks and gloves with stockings pulled over their heads.
Sheriff Tyson said that the store owner reported one of the men fired a shot under the cash register and pistols were held to the heads of Wooten and his wife. Wooten said their lives were threatened unless they gave up all of their money.
Approximately $175 in cash, including some money from a billfold and purse, as well as the cash register receipts, were taken, it was pointed out. Wooten told deputies that he was told to cut the store lights out while the robbery was taking place.
Arrested and charged with armed robbery were: Calvin Van Ore, 18, of 218 Harding Street, Washington; Oscar Ray Keys, 22, of 425 Gladden Street, Washington; Louis Norfleet, 31, of Rt. 2, Box 977, Washington.

Horace Lee Jones, 16, of Rt. 1, Box 18-A, Chocowinity; and Mary Louise Carmon, 36, of Rt. 2, Box 977, Washington.
Sheriff Tyson said that two of the persons allegedly waited in the car outside the store during the incident.
He noted that the arrests were made some 15 to 20 minutes following the robbery report. The car stopped by Edwards was registered to Mary Louise Carmon, he said.

Deputies recovered $136 in cash and two pistols, in addition to ski masks, stockings and gloves, Sheriff Tyson said.
The five were placed under $5,000 bond each with a preliminary hearing scheduled for Jan. 21 in District Court in Greenville.
Investigation of the robbery is continuing.

FEA Forecasts Tighter Energy Supplies Ahead

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration is greeting incoming President Carter with a grim forecast of tight energy supplies and rising prices for years to come.
In a report issued Wednesday, the energy agency predicted a near doubling of residential fuel costs by 1985 as a result of inflation and real energy cost increases.
The outlook beyond that may be even worse, the report warned.
The FEA says the world's demand for oil will bump up against the limits of its production capacity in the mid or late 1980s. That supply-demand collision is likely to spark even steeper price increases.
The report's relatively good news was that U.S. energy demand was expected to increase more slowly than previously predicted, a trend that will make it easier to reduce U.S.

dependence on foreign oil.
Compared with a historic growth rate of about 3.3 per cent a year before the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, U.S. energy consumption was predicted to rise at about 2.5 per cent a year, slightly lower than last year's 2.8 per cent forecast.
The FEA said the slower growth is due to the combination of energy conservation measures and fuel price increases.
John Christie, assistant administrator for energy information and analysis, said in an interview that the FEA is assuming continued inflation ranging from last year's 5.6 per cent down to 4 per cent by 1985, forcing energy prices up a total of 58.4 per cent by then.
Regardless of inflation, the FEA estimated, residential energy prices will reflect annual real cost increases of about 3 per cent if imported oil prices rise by 2 per cent.

Where can I find earmuffs? My daughter wants some because a toboggan messes up her hair, yet she's out and around the UNC campus a lot and needs something warm on her head. She's looked in Chapel Hill and I've looked here to no avail. A. C.
Our checking turned up no earmuffs either. Perhaps our readers have some suggestions. We'll pass along any we get.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK
FATHER AND DAUGHTER REUNITED
The father of Mrs. Irene Thomas visited the Daily Reflector office early the morning after the Hotline appeal about her search for him was published. Braddy Moore said he's thrilled to know his daughter wants to see him and he supplied details to show that he is the man she is seeking. He gave us not one, but three phone numbers she could use to contact him.
We called Mrs. Thomas at her home in Virginia and told her that her father wants to see her and also that her grandmother is alive and well in Baltimore and doubtless would like to see her, also. "This is the happiest day of my life," she said, and she promised to visit the Reflector office with her father in the near future if at all possible. If possible, we'll share a picture of the two with Hotline readers at this time.

School Officials Talk Possibility Of Closing

Temperatures were warmer, but still freezing in the Pitt County area Wednesday night and Thursday morning. The high temperature was recorded at 31 degrees Wednesday and the low temperature was recorded at 10 degrees. Thursday morning at 8 a.m. the temperature was 23 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Department.
Because of continuing cold temperatures school officials have considered closing schools to conserve energy. Pitt County School Superintendent Ott Alford said Thursday morning that if the cold weather continues that the Board of Education may have to curtail school hours.
"If the weather doesn't break soon, and should the state officials be correct in saying that we may not be able to receive more than 80 per cent of the fuel that we need, the board may have to look at curtailing the school hours. It could be that we would have to close the schools a week or possibly operate four days a week as a last resort," Alford said.
"We burned 10,000 gallons of fuel last week. We heat 45 per cent of our schools with oil. This week we expect that we have used about 15,000 gallons of oil because of getting the boilers ready at night," he added.
The Pitt County Schools have opened one hour later several days this week in an effort to conserve some of the fuel.

Home Savings And Loan Ass'n Shareholders Meet

The 71st annual shareholders meeting of Home Savings and Loan Association was held Tuesday in the offices of the association with president H. L. Hodges, presiding.
In the annual report to the members, J. Larkin Little, secretary, reported that at year-end the assets of Home Savings reached $41,873,799.07, an "encouraging" 20 per cent increase over a year ago.
Home Savings paid a record amount of interest to its savings depositors, $2,252,340, and added $264,688 to its reserves, Little said, bringing the total reserves up to $1,948,388.
"Savings deposits from our customers during 1976 amounted to $4,789,943.91," Little pointed out. "The increase in savings deposits allowed us to take care of the needs of our local and surrounding markets."
The secretary observed, "As 1976 went forward, the housing market in this area picked up to a marked degree, showing that much of the uncertainty on the part of the public had been replaced by a feeling of cautious optimism."

Little added, "Looking forward to 1977, it is likely that savings deposits will continue to come in good quantity and thus we will be able to support what should be a year of even further improvement in the housing market."
He continued, "In 1976

Home Savings financed a total of 350 homes and apartments in and around Greenville, Bethel and Plymouth. The total number of mortgage loans made during the year numbered 366 for a total dollar volume of $11,344,400."
Little told shareholders that, "Last year was an excellent year for the association, and as it looks right now, 1977 should also turn out to be a year of continued progress."
Following Little's address, members of the board of directors were elected for 1977. They are Carl L. Bailey Jr., Kenneth K. Dews, David A. Evans Sr., Clifton W. Everett Sr., James S. Ficklen Jr., Howard L. Hodges Jr., W. W. Speight, W. H. Taft Sr., H. W. Lee, David J. Whichard II, Julian J. White Jr., Charles V. Wilkerson Sr., Billy Laughinghouse, and Dr. Allen Taylor.

The board of directors met after the shareholders' session and elected officers for 1977. They include: Kenneth K. Dews, chairman of the board; David J. Whichard II, president; Howard L. Hodges Jr., vice president; Herbert W. Lee, executive vice president; J. Larkin Little, vice president and secretary; Faye G. Adams, assistant secretary; Carlyle W. Hall, assistant secretary; Mary H. Seymour, treasurer; and Carolyn B. Rollins, assistant treasurer.

New Jersey Program Seeks To Change Police Officers' Image

roduced model rocketry into the local school system but also while off duty conducts an evening course in the fast-growing hobby at George Washington School One.

As a result of McDaniel's efforts, the Elizabeth-Newark area has a lot of enthusiastic model-rocketeers — and the area's youth has a healthy respect for its police department. For the last four years McDaniel has been a member of Elizabeth's Community Relations Unit, visiting schools in an attempt to give the children a different view of police officers.

It was on one of these visits that a youngster showed the officer a picture of a rocket he had drawn for his arts and crafts class, saying that his teacher had mentioned that they would soon be studying rockets.

"I brought in my display," McDaniel said. "The kids were really interested, so I offered to launch some for them outdoors."

Once knowledge of McDaniel's unusual hobby had spread through the schools, he was asked to demonstrate his rockets to more classes, as well as to Boy Scout troops and community groups. Response was so enthusiastic that an after-school model rocketry program was set up by the Elizabeth Board of Education. A rocketry class is also being offered in the city's junior high schools.

The Newark school system has started a rocketry program due, in large part, to McDaniel's demonstrations. Each day, classes from the Newark community schools visit the Aerospace Center located at Newark International Airport to view the display of rockets, space capsules, and other items donated by NASA.

"With model rockets, youngsters can learn the principles of aerodynamics and propulsion — the things that make jets fly," McDaniel explains. "You can also get involved with photography, trigonometry, biology and calculating G-forces. The velocity and altitudes these rockets can reach, a thousand feet or more, are so surprising it's no wonder they turn on kids and grownups. What's more, they're fascinating to build and to launch."

McDaniel got into model rocketry some years ago when his son was about 9 years old.

"I read a magazine article that talked about model rocketry as a low-cost hobby," he explained. "I thought it might be interesting for my son to try so I sent for the catalog and then for a kit. We put it together, launched it, and that was it. We were model rocketeers."

Although model rocketry has become an important part of McDaniel's police work in improving relations with the community, he says it is still an enjoyable hobby. He is currently building a German V-2 rocket model — whenever family and job responsibilities give him enough free time. McDaniel still gives demonstrations, including one recently for a 4-H Club meeting at Rutgers University.

Don't Plan The Funeral Yet For Women's Movement

By INA FRIED
Duke University
News Service

The crowd of drummers sounding the death knell for the women's movement are likely to be disappointed. Instead, the movement may lead to a more "nourishing" environment for both men and women, a Duke University medical psychologist believes.

Dr. Elaine Crovitz said in a paper delivered at a symposium at East Carolina University here Wednesday that historically the women's movement has succeeded whenever women "tied their fates to values of greater liberty."

The movement today will succeed, she said, "if it allies itself to the need of our era to introduce an expanded awareness of human interdependence and the primary value of human existence."

Programs of a successful women's movement, she predicted, will "see men as allies, not enemies; they will see in marriage a possible haven for mutualism; they will see children as independent personalities who are also facets of our own identity as they link us to the future and pay tribute to our belief in the worthwhileness of living."

Dr. Crovitz said the women's movement might advocate changes that would make it more difficult to marry, while establishing limited partnerships just for living with another person.

She said changes in the labor market might be necessary to allow both men and women more equal shares of work and leisure and the opportunity to participate in early childhood development. A new structure might include four-hour days, two-and-one-half day weeks, job rotations or job sharing as well as adequate child care facilities.

Education for parenting might become a part of the educational curriculum, she suggested. The women's movement is not a new phenomenon, she emphasized in her paper, "The Women's Movement—Past, Present and Future," presented at an Influence Systems Symposium.

As long ago as the 1350s Giovanni Boccaccio wrote "De Clericis Mulieribus" or "Concerning Famous Women," a treatise describing the lives of 104 women intended to inspire other women to greatness.

At the end of the 14th century, a woman writer, Christine de Pisan, defended her sex and took a stand against the prevalent denigration of women, Dr. Crovitz said.

"For nearly 200 years after Boccaccio and Christine de Pisan, an epidemic of eulogies devoted to the glorification of the long-secluded sex raged," Dr. Crovitz said. "That women emerged so suddenly from a state of ignorance, superstition and mystic dreams to a position of intellectual distinction and virtual though not legal equality with men is one of the relatively unknown facts and marvels of the Renaissance."

The French and American Revolutions "with their insistence on the consent of the governed and inalienable human rights gave a marginal impetus to the idea of women's equality," Dr. Crovitz said.

But it was around the issue of abolition in the 1830s that American women acquired their first political experience and developed methods for changing law, namely petition and agitation to educate the public, she said.

After the gain of women's suffrage in the 1920s, the next wave of activity was sparked in the 1960s by the Civil Rights Movement.

Today, Dr. Crovitz said, the formal women's movement organizations continue to challenge sex discrimination through traditional influence strategies while non-structured "rap" groups are creating a vast reservoir of conscious feminist sentiment.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Today, the 39th President of the United States takes office. There are a lot of things I don't want to know about him.

I don't want to know his golf scores, his tennis scores, his bowling scores or see his spills if he is a skier. (It makes me nervous to see a President fumble a ball on first base.)

I don't want to see his scars if he has had surgery, especially if it involves taking off his necktie.

I don't want to know if he and the First Lady share a double bed or go singles. (I like to believe that a President's sex life is like that of my biology teacher whom I had a crush on in the eighth grade . . . non-existent.)

I don't want to see him stumbling off of Air Force One, or falling asleep during a commencement exercise at which he is the featured speaker.

I don't care what sign he was born under or whether or not he cheated in college. (It's too late to do anything about either one of them.)

I don't care to know what the First Family has for dinner or what they bought one another or where and if they attend church services on Sundays.

I don't want to know about the men/women who crept into their lives through back doors and secret meetings.

I don't want to know how he felt about Rhett Butler or whether or not he would have married Melanie or Scarlett.

I don't want to know what dress designer the First Lady uses or particularly what size she is.

I don't have to know what their living quarters in the White House look like, or what books they read and where they go when they leave for a weekend.

I don't want to intrude for a moment on their joy, their grief, or the dignity of their private lives which some feel they owe us.

What I do want to know are the men and women he picks to surround him, his stand on major decisions, his feelings for people, his concern for us and our problems and how he intends to carry out those 35 words that he speaks today:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

That's really all the President owes us.

Dear Abby

Grandma Tired Of Entertaining

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Approximately a year ago you ran an article about a mother who never made her own Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner. Instead, she went to her mother's or mother-in-law's. She wrote to say that she wishes now that she had developed her own holiday celebrations.

That letter was terrific. If you could publish it again, it would be a great help to a lot of people.

Believe it or not, I am a grandmother who wishes my married children would make their own holiday dinner and invite me as a guest.

PAID MY DUES

DEAR PAID: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" Your answer has always been: "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year—as our children are ready to strike out on their own—that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself, and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't.

Abby, please urge young marrieds to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "Do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FOR CENSORSHIP": I agree, there is an excess of garbage passing for "literature" these days, but this is what one great American champion of human rights had to say about "censorship" 175 years ago: "I am mortified to be told that, in the United States of America, a question about the sale of a book can be carried before the civil magistrate. Are we to have a censor whose imprimatur shall say what book may be sold and what we may buy?"

"Shall a layman, simple as ourselves, set up his reason as the rule for what we are to read? It is an insult to our citizens to question whether they are rational beings or not."

Sunglasses Chosen To Fit, Can Enhance Face

LEOMINSTER, Mass. (AP) — Fashion-conscious women are discovering that the right pair of sunglasses can be both a beauty and personality accessory, according to a stylist for a firm that manufactures them.

"When frames complement the face, sunglasses can truly flatter. They also tell the world something about the wearer," explains Maureen Owens.

Selecting sunglasses to enhance facial contour is easy, she points out, offering this rule of thumb: Choose sunglasses with frames having a different shape from the face.

To establish what that shape is stand in front of a mirror, hair wrapped in a towel, she suggests. Use soap or cream to draw the face's outline on the mirror. Then simply stand back, observe and decide what shape is reflected there.

Ms. Owens, a stylist for Foster Grant here, offers this advice about selecting sunglasses.

Women with round faces do well in modified square or octagonal frames that don't extend beyond the face. They should stay away from sunglasses with round lenses. A faceful of circles adds pounds to the appearance.

Square faces need round or oval-shaped sunglasses. Pear-shaped faces look better in frames that slant slightly upward.

For faces that narrow at the forehead and widen at the jaws, the right frames will be thicker above the eye and thinner below. Conversely, broad foreheads and narrow jaws need sunglasses with straight-line upper rims and oval-shaped lenses.

Women with thin or long oval-shaped faces are lucky, Ms. Owens notes. They can wear almost any frame style except for those super skinny ones.

"By the way," she adds, "sunglasses can help modify certain less than perfect features. Round, wide frames and a low-riding bridge 'shorten' a long nose while slender, horizontal frames with a bridge perched high on the nose will 'lengthen' it. Wide nostrils look narrower with sunglasses having a wide, keyhole-shaped bridge. Pointed chins 'soften' with frames having flowing, rather than angular, lines."

Once the wide range of styles has been narrowed somewhat, selecting sunglasses that reflect a mood or overall personality can be an interesting challenge, Ms. Owens says.

We have already found a high degree of personal liberty, and we are now struggling to enhance equality of opportunity. Our commitment to human rights must be absolute, our laws fair, our natural beauty preserved; the powerful must not persecute the weak, and human dignity must be enhanced.

We have learned that "more" is not necessarily "better", that even our great nation has its recognized limits and that we can neither answer all questions nor solve all problems. We cannot afford to do everything, nor can we afford to lack boldness as we meet the future. So together, in a spirit of individual sacrifice for the common good, we must simply do our best.

Our nation can be strong abroad only if it is strong at home, and we know that the best way to enhance freedom in other lands is to demonstrate here that our democratic system is worthy of emulation.

To be true to ourselves, we must be true to others. We will not behave in foreign places so as to violate our rules and standards here at home, for we know that the trust which our nation earns is essential to its strength.

The world itself is now dominated by a new spirit. Peoples more numerous and more politically aware are craving and now demanding their place in the sun — not just for the benefit of their own physical condition, but for basic human rights.

The passion for freedom is on the rise. Tapping this new spirit, there can be no nobler nor more ambitious task for America to undertake on this day of a new beginning than to help shape a just and peaceful world that is truly humane.

We are a strong nation and we will maintain strength so sufficient that it need not be proven in combat — a quiet strength based not merely on the size of an arsenal, but on the nobility of ideas.

We will be ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice, for those are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshalled.

We are a proud idealistic nation, but let no one confuse our idealism with weakness.

Because we are free we can never be indifferent to the fate of freedom elsewhere. Our moral sense dictates a clearcut preference for those societies which share with us an abiding respect for individual human rights. We do not seek to intimidate, but it is clear that a world which others can dominate with impunity would be inhospitable to decency and a threat to the well-being of all people.

The world is still engaged in a massive armaments race designed to insure continuing equivalent strength among potential adversaries. We pledge perseverance and wisdom in our efforts to limit the world's armaments to those necessary for each nation's own domestic safety. We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth.

We urge all other people to join us, for success can mean life instead of death.

Within us, the people of the United States, there is evident a serious and purposeful rekindling of confidence, and I join in the hope that when my time as your President has ended, people might say this about our nation:

That we had remembered the words of Micah and renewed our search for humility, mercy and justice;

That we had torn down the barriers that separated those of different race and region and religion, and where there had been mistrust, built unity, with a respect for diversity;

That we had found productive work for those able to perform it;

That we had strengthened the American family, which is the basis of our society;

That we had ensured respect for the law, and equal treatment under the law, for the weak and the powerful, the rich and the poor;

And that we had enabled our people to be proud of their own government once again.

I would hope that the nations of the world might say that we had built a lasting peace, based not on weapons of war but on international policies which reflect our own most precious values.

These are not just my goals, but our common hopes. And they will not be my accomplishments, but the affirmation of our nation's continuing moral strength and our belief in an undiminished, ever-expanding American dream.

Legionnaires Disease Studied

By HANS LINNARTZ
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Discovery of the agent responsible for last year's Legionnaires' disease poses "an exciting new set of problems and possibilities" for scientists, an official at the national Center for Disease Control says.

The CDC announced Tuesday that researchers had isolated a single-cell, unnamed, bacteria-like organism believed to be responsible for the upper respiratory infections which killed 29 persons and attacked 151 others in Philadelphia last Summer.

"We obviously have a lot of work to do on the mechanics of what happened" to the victims, many of whom were participating in a Pennsylvania American Legion convention, Dr. William Foege, assistant CDC director, said Wednesday.

"We're looking for the source of this organism and how it spread," said Dr. David W. Fraser, a medical epidemiologist who helped a research team that worked in Philadelphia.

Among unanswered questions, Foege said, are: "How did it get to people; why didn't it spread among individuals; were other factors needed for it to spread?"

Tests on the organism indicate it was responsible for eight unsolved deaths at a Washington hospital in 1966, the center said.

"We have an indication that it's happened twice," said Foege, "so why couldn't it happen again? That will be an intriguing problem to approach." Researchers are sorting through cases trying to determine how many of the 180 persons stricken in Philadelphia were suffering from infection by the agent.

All were treated with a variety of medicines, Foege said, "and I imagine we will discover that some of them worked better than others. Much of our lab work will be geared to discovering what counteracts this agent best."

But discovering the organism which attacked the Legionnaires means more than solving one set of mysterious deaths, he said.

"I used to wonder what it was like when Pasteur came up with a new organism; I used to think it must have been exciting. It is exciting, not only that we have been able to do this, but that we have been able to share it with so many via mass communications."

The discovery of the organism, Foege said, "makes you wonder about the current state of our knowledge. How much do we really know?"

He said investigation of the Legionnaires' disease may solve other mysterious deaths or illnesses. "Nothing of great magnitude was unsolved before," he said, "but we might clear up numerous individual cases."

Researchers said a new round of work on the organism may take months, but the discovery of the agent was clearly a breakthrough.

"We've got something to look for now," Foege said. "We have a specific agent which can tie these deaths and possibly others together. I'm much more optimistic than I was a week ago."

Students Share Job Experience

Career Guidance students of E. B. Aycock Junior High School will be out in the community today for a day of work experience with different agencies and businesses.

Under the direction of Mrs. Pam Penland, Career Guidance teacher, the students will be "at work" all day at one of the businesses or agencies in Greenville that have volunteered to work with students.

There is no pay involved in work to be done by students.

Participating agencies and businesses are Joli's Boutique, H. L. Hodges, Nichols' Discount City, White Stores, Overton's, Mill Outlet Cloth, Mini-Skool, Hungate's, Parker's Barbecue, Warren's Texaco, Plaza Gulf, Burroughs-Wellcome Co., Greenville Fire Dept., Wahl-Coates School, South Greenville School, the Department of Social Services, Dr. H.E. Lowery, Barwick's Veterinary Hospital, and Dr. J. C. Bateman, B.

TB Is Rare But Around

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Tuberculosis is rarer than it once was in North Carolina, and it's almost always curable, but "we haven't licked it yet," a state health official says.

Two active cases were found among school children late last year in Wilmington, where health officials plan a massive testing program to determine how widespread the disease is.

But the situation isn't particularly alarming, according to Dr. Roy V. Berry, who heads the tuberculosis control branch of the state Division of Health Services.

"Among young school children we expect to find one out of every 200 has been exposed to the disease," Berry said. "That doesn't mean they have the disease, just that they've been exposed."

Active cases among children, Berry said, are generally easy to treat. But a child can carry the disease in a dormant state until adulthood, when it can become active.

North Carolina in the early 1950s reported between 2,500 and 3,000 new adult cases each year.

With the introduction of drugs to treat the disease, the number had dropped by the early 1960s to about 1,200, Berry said. Since then, it has declined much more slowly to its present level of about 900 cases.

"It's kind of a stubborn, low-level problem," Berry said, adding that it probably will be a generation or two before it disappears completely.

Ship Sinks

MIAMI (AP) — Seven sailors were killed and 13 others were missing today after a Panamanian cargo ship sank in the Gulf of Mexico in heavy seas.

The captain, Alejandro Felix, and two crewmen of the 410-foot Ukola survived, the Coast Guard said.

The Ukola, carrying bulk sugar from the Dominican Republic to Galveston, Tex., sank Wednesday about 200 miles northwest of Key West in seas up to 12 feet high and winds up to 35 knots.

Felix, picked up by the Coast Guard, was treated at a St. Petersburg hospital and released. The crewmen were rescued separately by other ships.

Choked Up In Last Goodbye

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger has said his last goodbye to the State Department.

In contrast to his usual departure route from the department basement, this time Kissinger walked out through the main entrance.

Before a crowd of several hundred Wednesday, he stopped and, for the first time in several weeks of bidding farewell, his voice cracked with emotion.

"I want to tell you how much it has meant to me," he said of his three years and three months as secretary of state. "I'll never forget you," he said with a sob.

Promising Programs By Hunt

Gov. Hunt offered some promising programs in his State of the State address to the General Assembly Monday night.

He first offered his opposition to any new taxes. "Our citizens are hard pressed already by inflation and taxes," he said. "I am opposed to any tax increases."

This doesn't rule out a spending program which moves the state ahead, however. Hunt promised to propose a program of cutting state expenditures without reducing services.

The governor asked for a $300 million bond issue to catch the state up on road building. The emphasis would be on east-west highways and the projects would boost economic development. It would be paid back from existing revenues. For us in a road starved area, that proposal seems extremely sound.

The governor would establish a single transportation board to oversee all transportation needs, including roads, airports, mass transportation. It should treat all counties fairly, he said.

Education was a prime topic with Gov. Hunt as he sought the office and he put emphasis on it in his address. He asked for $15 million to emphasize reading in the first grade, with the program to be fully implemented in four years. He proposed standardized tests for students to determine the progress they have made. And he would expect that by the Spring of 1979 every graduating high school senior would be required to pass a minimum reading and math test.

The governor saw the use of school facilities for other community activities.

Hunt gave his support to programs to aid underprivileged children and the elderly. He plans a Division for the Aging within the Department of Human Resources.

The governor recognized the growing crime problem and requested time for a future message to the Legislature dealing with this problem.

He called for a $150,000 fund to encourage volunteer participation by citizens of the state in service activities, noting that volunteer work in the state is now valued at $2 billion annually.

And he supported a 6.5 percent pay increase for teachers and state workers, hopefully more if the economy increases.

We see here the outlines of a solid program which could solve some of the state's most pressing problems. The roads are needed, and the bond funds could do much to alleviate the problems.

We will be getting down to the basics of what is wrong with education if we can produce students who can read and do acceptable math.

We need programs which will deliver services to our elderly, our underprivileged. We certainly need to solve the problem of crime, before it totally engulfs us. The teacher-state worker pay raise proposed is relatively modest, but it is a raise and it might be more if additional funds become available.

We are beginning to see the basic outlines of what Jim Hunt will attempt to accomplish in his four-year term. Hopefully in the next few months we will see the practical implementation of the proposed programs.

Pottstown Band Legend

This is Inauguration Week in our town. Old-timers tell tall tales of other Presidents, other parades. The loveliest such tale was spun eight years ago by John McKelway in the Washington Star. It is a true story—as true as any other tall tale—and deserves to be told again, and again, and again, just as McKelway told it then.

Somehow they're marching, marching, marching Throughout the distant land. They missed the turn at Fifteenth and Penn, The Pottstown Piping Band.

The story goes 'round and 'round again every four years, when tales are told of old inaugurations, of balls and bands, top hats and teas.

No one has ever been too sure when it happened, under what administration, or what President, or what Cabinet. But old-timers tell of it with wet eyes late in the evening and some believe there must be something to it. For the Pottstown Piping Band has never been found. And they'll never be forgotten.

Little is actually known. But, 'tis said, the leader was a distinguished-looking man with a bristling snowy white mustache who went by the name of Col. John P. McSousa. He was known to have served in several wars and then, upon retirement, dabbled in Pennsylvania politics while deciding early one morning, over his kipper, to organize a pipe band.

After a time, and under the stern discipline of the colonel, the band of eight members exhibited a certain dash and wailing at city functions and began building a reputation throughout the state — but always in cities that held marches on straight main streets.

Of course the biggest honor eventually came — an invitation to play in the Inaugural Parade. Col. McSousa graciously accepted and the band was on its way.

'Tis said the band stayed at the Willard, although others say it was at the old Patent Office Building, in temporary quarters. Be that as it may, the colonel got his instructions from the Inaugural Committee for those times; he was to form down near the Bartholdt Fountain and follow a string bassoon band from New Mexico, all dressed in white.

There is always some factual fabric to legends and no one can ever forget, 'tis said, how the Pottstown Pipe Band moved off on a day that was snowy and late in the afternoon.

Once on the avenue, they broke out in "The 74th's Farewell to Edinburgh," a tune McSousa had selected for that spot on the march route, both sad and, yet, in a way joyous.

And as the snow came down in increasing numbers of flakes, the pipers appeared as ghostly figures on some distant motor piping a tune of death mingled with a sense of new beginnings. And while the crowd could not see them too well, they knew something was moving. Many cried in the snow and were treated, later, by the Red Cross, at a tent set up next to General Sherman, for iced eyeballs.

But the Pottstown Pipers moved on, up the avenue, with Col. McSousa's eyes directly on the back of the last man in the string bassoon band from New Mexico. What was on his mind was the difficult turn from Pennsylvania into 15th, and then from 15th, back into Pennsylvania. He had charted the course for the band, lectured at great length about the obvious difficulties, and, for the first time in his life, he was actually worried.

Passing the Willard they broke into "The Duke of Rosburgh's Farewell to the Blackmont Forest," a good, solid tune, and made the turn well, and then greater flakes began falling. The leader of the New Mexico aggregation, extremely uncomfortable at the time—his bassoon was freezing—decided to call the whole thing off and retreated as quietly as possible into a warm restaurant on F Street.

The gallant men of the Pottstown Pipers marched on, swinging into "Bonnie Charlie," and by the time blindly approached Penn-

Florida Kite Fly-Off

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
LIDO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The news was unusually weighty and profound this week. Some people, however, in this great disorganized land, gave their attention to lighter matters.

Kites. With airy disregard of the inauguration, the execution, the budget, the weather and all other cares of the moment, a swarm of kite nuts, summoned hither by Will Yolen, the world champion flier of kites, arrived with chins up.

They found a cobalt blue sky above a whitewashed beach beside the calm green water of the Gulf of Mexico and were united in purpose.

Their aim was to decorate that gorgeous sky with kites. Success was rampant.

They flew kites of every shape and color. Kites as big as small airplanes, as small as big butterflies. Kites cumbersome and shapeless, tethered by ropes. Kites as sleek and graceful as the pelicans gliding by in formation applauding the show with leisurely wingbeats. Hundreds of kites in the bright southern sky. A galaxy of kites. An exaltation of kites!

The display persisted until dusk's first chill when lines were untangled and thirst set in.

The thing about kite flying is that it is no big deal. There are no stultifying rules, no bosses or referees. Just let fly, feel the tug, watch it soar.

Thus it was last Sunday despite the official-sounding billing of the event: the Ninth Annual International Kite Fly-off.

Yes, one kite did bear a maple leaf design and a certified Canadian was found attached to it, but, in truth, the flyoff, whatever that is, was "international" purely by dec-

40 Years Ago Today

January 20, 1937
President Franklin Roosevelt dedicated himself anew at the start of his second administration today to removal of "cancers of injustice" that caused want in the midst of plenty.

In his inaugural address, delivered beneath a storm-darkened sky to thousands gathered on the capital plaza, he pictured uncounted poor families living in disaster, and said:

"We are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern."

Progress in recovery is obvious, the President said, but the "new order of things" brought about since 1933 means more than that.

Restating his philosophy in broad terms and leaving his specific program to the future, he spoke of using new materials of social justice "to erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the use of future generations."

Moments before he made his address he had taken the presidential oath again from Chief Justice Hughes. With justices from the Supreme Court among his listeners, he spoke of the Constitution, but said nothing of the courts.

This year, Mr. Roosevelt recalled, marked the 150th anniversary of that fundamental charter.

THIS AFTERNOON

It's Costly To Hire More

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The North Carolina budgets for the coming pair of fiscal years now in the hands of the General Assembly graphically unveil a simple fact of life in paying for a labor-intensive operation such as state government. It will cost every Tar Heel man, woman, or child $53 each just to pay or raises and new employees.

The budget calls for adding 7,689 people to the state payroll by July 1, 1978. And it calls for an average salary increase of 6.5 per cent for all employees and teachers beginning July 1, 1977.

A close inspection of those two factors alone reveals major "future shock" to state economists and budget makers.

Big Dollars

The pay raise is for one year alone, leaving open the question of salary hikes in the second fiscal year of the two-year budget period. That doesn't mean no pay raise—it means the politicians will wait until later to make their promises on that.

The cost of the one-year salary increase: $115 million in fiscal 1977-78.

Of course you don't give a salary hike one year, then drop it. So to continue the salary hike in effect, and cover the anticipated new state employees, in the second fiscal year will cost $118 million—a total of $233 million for the biennium.

Then there is the base salary cost of adding on those 7,689 people—a total of more than $60 million.

Thus, new "people costs" make up a large percentage of the state budget growth—topping $293 million over the next two years.

On July 1, 1975, North Carolina had 155,600 authorized slots for all state employees: public school and higher education personnel as well as all other state employees.

One year later (July 1, 1976) that figure had jumped to 162,600; an increase of 7,000.

In the proposed new budget, total state employment would be set at 167,000 on July 1, 1977 (up 4,400); and at 171,000 on July 1, 1978 (up another 4,000).

A large share of the people growth is in education, with public school kindergarten being the major increase in the past two years; with the reading emphasis in lower grades adding a classroom side in each class from kindergarten through grade 3 being the major area in the coming two years.

For Reading

The reading program being pushed by Gov. James B. Hunt will add 5,401 teacher aides in reading. Cutting kindergarten class size from 28 to 26 will require another 308 teachers and aides.

Bus drivers and mechanics to eliminate standees and provide transportation for students newly eligible due to consolidations or district changes make up a block of 630 new employees.

Another Hunt program will take a lot of people: speedy trial legislation will require 94 new court officials—14 judges, 14 clerks, 14 court recorders, and 28 district attorneys. Obviously there will be a major fight in the General Assembly which counties will be those new jobs.

'And the Department of Corrections rounds out the major job increase area. Hunt's proposal to build modular prison units for quick relief in overcrowding would require 102 new officers and guards; increased security elsewhere would take another 300 new guards. There would be 95 new probation and parole officers, and 44 youthful offender specialists.

Children in care of the Department of Human Resources come in for some major attention as well: there would be 161 specialists to look after emotionally disturbed children housed in adult mental hospitals; and 27 people to staff six developmental evaluation centers.

Then there are a host of clerks, data processors, guards, boll weevil eradicators, water and air analysts, building maintenance, personnel, park development, orderlies, nurses, psychiatrists, tax experts—all in various areas to take care of growth in state business.

LOOKING AHEAD

Carter Plans Are Readied

By RICHARDE MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter will promote his domestic programs with a two week national tour in March and will open a drive to reach a new strategic arms agreement by October, if he follows a plan that aides hope will give him the image of a "can-do" president.

In a proposed six-month White House agenda, the aides also have suggested:

—An economic State of the Union address to Congress week after next.

—Meetings next month in Washington with the president of Mexico and the prime minister of Canada; sessions between Feb. 15 and March 5 with officials from Israel and the Arab nations, and a meeting after April 1 with a representative of mainland China.

—A speech to the United Nations the week of March 6.

—Beginning a National Youth Opportunity Program to create jobs and ending the Office of Telecommunications Policy to eliminate waste and express "commitment to a free and vigorous media."

The 29-page agenda, proposed by aides including pollster Pat Caddell, combines "substantive and political" appraisals of activities necessary in "the first six months, and especially the first three months, when initial judgments will be made by the press, the public and Congress about the leadership of the Carter presidency."

It was not known how Carter has responded to the proposals, made in mid- or late December. But some recommendations already have been followed, and top Carter aides have said others will be.

Aides call the agenda "a working paper," not "a master plan," but sources say as far as they know it has not been superseded.

A copy of the agenda was obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press.

It says Carter must play these roles in his first 200 days: The unifier, who heals past divisions; the shaker, who prods the entrenched bureaucracy; the leader, caring and compassionate about the American people; and the manager, energetic and effective in solving national problems.

"It is suggested that effective leadership be demonstrated through a series of early legislative victories projecting the image of a 'can-do' president," the agenda says. It adds: "The new administration cannot afford any major early legislative defeats." The word "any" is underlined.

The agenda suggests that Carter announce "a Vietnam veterans unemployment proposal ... prior to the pardon of drafters." It says the proposal might be "an employment-related initiative to be incorporated in the economic stimulus package..."

"As part of the pardon message, the President might then refer back to the Vietnam veterans' proposal, stating his deep personal feelings that those who served during the war deserve to be honored," the agenda says.

To the editor:

I am saddened and repulsed by Monday's display of barbarism by our society. The execution of Gary Gilmore is a denial of the sanctity of human life by answering one murder for another. That sort of logic calls for the raping, maiming and mass murdering of people who commit those crimes. For instance, the person who places a bomb in a car and kills someone should have the same thing done to him or her. I wonder if our blood-thirsty society is ready to go this far. Unfortunately, it seems that it is.

If there is one thing we learned—well, should have learned—am from the Vietnam War, it is that you can't let others make moral decisions for you. By executing Gilmore, we are once again abnegating our responsibility and taking the easy way out, saying it's the "law," as we once said in Vietnam that we were "only following orders." When a country takes up killing people to maintain law and order (sadly enough, it has not been demonstrated that killing people accomplishes this) it creates an atmosphere where life is cheap and opens the doors to fascism.

Now that we have gotten a taste of blood, the next thrilling news is that there are some 300-odd people waiting to die on Death Rows around the country. Why, we could knock off one person a day, almost, or perhaps one a month, in order to build up a really titillating media blitz for each one—solely for the "deterrent" value, of course. Of course.

GREATNESS SHINES THROUGH

Joseph Hayden was a musician who made a life of sorrow and humiliation contribute to the production of great masterpieces.

He was married to a woman who had no respect for his genius and so little appreciation of the value of good music that she sometimes tore up the scores of his immortal pieces to make curling papers. Hayden lived in a day when musicians occupied a low social status. For thirty years he conducted Prince Esterhazy's orchestra. All this time he wore the livery of a lackey and took his meals with the servants.

But Hayden had great religious faith. He believed that he had a gift which he must use to perform a noble service. He constantly petitioned God for inspiration in composing his music.

People of purpose take hold of life as they find it and make its circumstances, happy or unhappy, contribute to the living of a brave and effective life.

Selling Municipal Bond Funds

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Like many items sold through the mail, most municipal bond funds can honestly promise no salesman will ever ring your doorbell. Many of them haven't got salesmen of the kind who appear in person.

Instead, they receive orders from individuals acting on their own initiative, but motivated by advertisements and other promotions that rely heavily on the message that, like the rich, you too can earn tax-free income.

The interested person often responds by calling a toll-free number or writing a letter, receiving in return a packet of information that includes a prospectus, descriptive literature and an application form.

Almost certainly there also will be included a chart comparing tax-exempt income and taxable income, beginning perhaps with the 31 per cent tax bracket, which applies to a single return on taxable income of $14,000.

In that bracket, a 5 per cent municipal bond — a bond issued perhaps by a town or school district or a public authority — provides income equal to that of another bond yielding 7.25 per cent on which a tax payment is required.

Mutual funds bought through the mail or by telephone are called "no-load" funds, meaning they are sold without payment of a sales charge. But there are load funds also, sold by brokers or a fund's own sales staff.

A big difference between the load and no-load funds is the sales or commission charge, which may amount to 4.75 per cent on orders of less than $25,000. For a $10,000 order, therefore, a customer pays a one-time charge of $475.

Upon learning this, many customers suddenly become aware that in the first year their earnings won't be what the charter indicates, but instead will be the interest minus commission. A pretax yield of 5.75 per cent would become just 1 per cent.

Again, not all muni funds, as they are sometimes called, have sales charges, but all have annual management fees, at present generally from four-tenths of 1 per cent to six-tenths of 1 per cent of a person's share value.

A fund that earns 5.5 per cent would be reduced by the amount of that fee, in the instance cited from 5.75 per cent to 5.35 or 5.15 per cent, depending upon whether the fee is four-tenths or six-tenths.

Still, the returns can be highly attractive for some investors, especially those in the higher tax brackets. A couple in a 55 per cent bracket — $64,000-$76,000 — can earn the equivalent of 11.11 per cent on a net 5 per cent yield.

Such well-off individuals can, however, purchase individual bonds of their own choosing, and enough of them to obtain the security of diversification. They may not need a mutual fund. Many of the ads therefore are aimed at smaller investors.

An individual may open an account with $1,000 or even

Pardon Given To Tokyo Rose

TOKYO ROSE — Iva Toguri D'Aquino, known to millions of World War II servicemen as "Tokyo Rose", speaks to the press in Chicago. (AP Wirephoto)

By CHERYL DEBES
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "Now I have a government to protect me," said Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was cleared by President Ford of treason for her "Tokyo Rose" broadcasts after living for nearly three decades as a woman without a country.

"After all these years, it's hard for me to believe that it's all over and the pardon is really true," said Mrs. D'Aquino, a slight, 60-year-old Japanese-American woman whose voice was known to millions of World War II servicemen.

Mrs. D'Aquino, who spent more than six years in prison but consistently maintained her broadcasts did no harm to the Allied cause, had lost two previous bids for a presidential pardon. The pardon restores all her forfeited rights, including citizenship.

Now working as a shopkeeper in her family's gift store on Chicago's North Side, she spoke at a hastily called news conference Wednesday after announcement of the pardon, one of Ford's last acts in office.

As Iva Toguri, a native of Los Angeles and a UCLA graduate, she had just passed her 25th birthday in July 1941 when she sailed for Japan to care for a sick aunt. Because of her hurried departure, she failed to obtain a U.S. passport and was stranded in Tokyo when the war began after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

She described those years as "living hell." Because she refused to give up her U.S. citizenship, she was considered an "enemy alien" and, without a food ration card, found it difficult to live even at subsistence levels.

In August 1943, she took a part-time job as typist at Radio Tokyo. Three months later, Japanese officials ordered her to take part in the English-language program aimed at demoralizing U.S. troops.

She agreed, she contends, only after imprisoned officers convinced her she could actually help the Allies, by voicing subtle absurdities which the Japanese wouldn't understand. Those officers testified on her behalf at her 1949 San Francisco trial for treason.

The only one of 14 women who were on Radio Tokyo's "Zero Hour" program accused of treason, she was held without trial for two years, convicted on one of nine counts, sent to jail and fined $10,000.

"I only mouthed the things that were written by the Allied prisoners of war ...," she said Wednesday. "If you can find any propaganda material in that, I will give up the citizenship I gained back today."

In Washington, California Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, one of many who felt Mrs. D'Aquino was victimized by postwar anti-Japanese sentiment, said she had "remained loyal to the United States despite the fact that the United States treated her unjustly."

Toastmasters Install Officers

Bart Hoernig was installed as president of the Greenville Toastmasters in Installation Ceremonies held January 12.

Other officers installed are as follows: Joe Sherwood, vice president; Ted Deveaux, educational vice president; Paul Topper, treasurer; Evelyn Cottam, secretary; and Mary Murrell, sergeant at arms.

The Greenville Toastmasters meet the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at Sambo's Restaurant at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in attending the meeting should contact Sherwood at 752-5302.

laration. Kite fliers come to play, not to quibble; a little exaggeration is part of the game.

Take Will Yolen, the pied piper of the event. The way one discovers that Will Yolen is the World Champion Kite Flier is by reading the back of his T-shirt, which is documentation enough.

Yolen is one of this nation's freer spirits. He has been hooked on kites more than half his 69 years and this spring will teach a kite-flying course at Yale. Non-accredited, he acknowledged.

Last year, at the Eighth Annual International etc., Will Yolen sent aloft 178 kites on a single line — a word record, according to kiting's unimpeachable source.

"When the line broke it sounded like a cannon," Yolen said. "It was thrilling. Those kites were last seen sailing high over the city of Sarasota, all attached. They have never been found. It was one of the historic moments of kite flying."

Will Yolen conceived the idea of an International Kite Flyoff and held the First Annual one, by himself, in 1969 when he and his wife were wintering here at the Sandcastle Hotel.

"It was Jan. 17, Ben Franklin's birthday, the hotel is on Ben Franklin Drive, there was a nice breeze. It you were a kite flier, what would you do?"

So he flew his kites, this sprightly man who has his world on a string.

less in many of the funds, and thereafter can add to holdings in amounts of $100 or more. And he or she can redeem shares at net asset value.

Convenience is a big selling point. One fund proclaims "You will avoid the unpleasant details of direct ownership of municipal bonds. Details like coupon clipping, safekeeping, watching the calendar for maturities."

Continuous professional management is stressed. Municipal issues for the funds will be "carefully and continuously analyzed," and alternative investments will be "constantly monitored" in an effort to increase the return.

On some of these points there is little dispute. But the claims of professional management especially are being examined critically by some people in the securities industry.

Some of these critics maintain that without a record of success in trading a portfolio of municipal securities, some fund managers may be offering a bit more than they can accomplish, a bit less than buyers expect.

Next: Among the peculiarities: Tax-exempt bonds are taxed.

Pamela Anne Bath: Morehead Finalist

Pamela Anne Bath, a senior at Rose High School and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath of Greenville, is one of six students selected as a Morehead Scholarship finalist from the 18 county area of District I in eastern North Carolina. Finalists were chosen from 23 nominees at interviews conducted in Williamston on Jan. 17. Those considered were from Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrrell and Washington Counties.

Other district finalists are Cathy Ann Alston, Nashville; Randolph Herman Harry, Moyock; Gaddy Matheson Lassiter, Ahoskie; Bradley Kent Weisner, Roanoke Rapids; and Joel Walter Hulton, Edenton.

interviewed during that time. Finalists selected as recipients for a John Motley Morehead scholarship will receive an all-expense paid undergraduate education at UNC-Chapel Hill, which has a value at this time of $11,000.

There are now 212 Morehead Scholars studying on campus at Chapel Hill. Since the founding of the program in 1951, more than 1,000 Morehead Scholarship winners have attended UNC.

The Morehead Scholarships were established by the late John Motley Morehead, a native of Spray and an 1891 graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill. An engineer and one of the founders of Union Carbide Corporation, he lived in Rye, N.Y. until his death in 1965.

His Own Time, Money Went Into A Conviction

NEW YORK (AP) — Three members of the Savage Skulls "Gestapo squad" pleaded guilty to a brutal assault on a young woman after a detective spent his own time and money to bring the victim back from Puerto Rico.

Before Detective Robert Werner persuaded the still-disfigured 20-year-old woman to return to testify against the gang members, there seemed little hope that Monserrat "The Rat" Irrizary, 21, Melvin Nunez, 21, and Jorge Pierna, 19, would pay for their vicious attack.

But when the trio saw the woman enter a court hearing, Werner said, there was a quick huddle between their attorney and a representative of Bronx Dist. Atty. Mario Merola's office. The guilty pleas followed.

Their admissions of second-degree assault, reduced from the original charge of first-degree assault, could send them to prison for six years, Merola said.

He praised the 28-year-old Werner for "extraordinary police work which has succeeded in removing these aptly named savages from the streets."

Werner, a member of the youth gang task force, said in an interview at his suburban home that the guilty pleas were "a satisfaction, but only a momentary one."

"The Skulls have been around so long that somebody else will take over the Gestapo duties," he said. "We didn't eliminate the Skulls with this, only put a crimp in them and maybe some day we'll wear them down."

The victim of the attack was visiting from Puerto Rico when she rebuffed the sexual overtures of a gang member and he ordered the squad to teach her a lesson.

Caught in a Bronx hallway on the morning of last July 31, she was beaten and stomped with studded boots on the face and body until she was almost unrecognizable.

She fled back to Puerto Rico in fear of the gang, but Werner used his vacation time and paid his own airfare to go there and bring her back, promising her protection from the Skulls.

Lenoir CC Courses Set

Two new courses are to be offered at the Greene County Unit in Snow Hill of Kinston's Lenoir Community College.

Beginning Tuesday, Jan. 24 at 6:30 p.m., a course in understanding sign language will get underway and will continue through April 18. Classes will be held for three hours each Monday night.

Fee for the course is $5 and it is open to anyone 18 years old or older.

An extension course in nurses aide will begin on March 1. Persons interested in enrolling must report to the Greene County unit for pre-testing prior to March 1. This course has a $5 tuition fee.

Lenoir is also seeking qualified adults to teach extension courses in a variety of subjects including ceramics, cake decorating, creative crafts, oil painting, decoupage, crocheting, sewing, Bible survey, motorcycle repair, C.B. radio repair, upholstery, accounting, and basic art.

Persons interested in the courses or in more information on teaching courses are asked to call 747-2451.

Raynor Speaks To ECU Class

Tuesday Jerry Raynor, Sunday editor of The Daily Reflector spoke to Ira Baker's journalism class at East Carolina University.

Raynor, eight years an employee of the Reflector, presented an impromptu question-and-answer session not only on facts pertaining to the newspaper, but also to his personal views on controversial issues concerning the media today. The questions ranged from his opinion of the publicity given the Gary Gilmore case to how the Reflector chooses its comic strips. Asked what the most rewarding part of his work is, he said, "Getting out and meeting people—travel. I am still very much nomadic. I especially enjoy interviewing people."

sylvania again, the gloomy shapes were mourning "Scotland the Brave."

Most people maintain today that they never saw the turn; some say they vanished at the intersection. A great number of people say they marched on up 15th, past McPherson Square, past the Washington Post and the Pick Lee House, and it was there that Col. McCosua took a left turn and headed out Massachusetts Avenue, playing, incidentally, "The Barren Rocks of Aden," which is reasonably gripping.

Some say they went as far as the Naval Observatory; in the early 1950s there was a report they were still playing in the snow around Glen Echo; golfers have seen them in the mists around the Burning Tree Country Club, frequently.

But, actually, they have never been found.

So the story continues, passed down through the years, much as the mandate for change has been. And on each Inaugural Day, you will hear them tell of the Pottstown Pipe Band when they missed the turn at Fifteenth and Penn. It is not hard to believe—once you consider. Perhaps, it was better that way.

Banquet Tonight For Boys Club

The annual Awards Banquet of the Pitt County-Greenville Boys' Club is being held at 7 p.m. tonight at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The highlight meeting of the year will see a number of individual awards given to members of the club, with the Boy of the Year announced at the banquet. This is the highest local award to be given to a member of the Boys' Club.

Credit Union Meets Friday

The Board of Directors of the Eastern Tar River Credit Union will conduct its Thirty-Third Annual meeting at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 21 at the Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Roderick M. Phillips, president, urges all board members to be present for the meeting.

Continuing Cold Strains U.S. Energy Resources

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY
Associated Press Writer

Despite a lull in subzero temperatures, the current cold spell is putting mounting strain on generating plants, gas pipelines and water traffic in the eastern two-thirds of the nation. Hundreds of thousands of workers and school children were staying home as factories and schools remained closed to conserve fuel.

Oranges froze on trees in Florida and fishermen were kept off the frozen Chesapeake Bay. A 160-mile stretch of the frozen northern Mississippi River was officially closed, stranding hundreds of barges and towboats — many of them carrying fuel supplies.

Temperatures were still cold throughout the region, with little change expected today.

In Miami, snow flurries fell Wednesday for the first time since the National Weather Service began keeping records in the 1880s. The afternoon high was a chilly 47 degrees — the lowest recorded high temperature ever there.

An all-time record low for West Palm Beach was set this morning when the temperature dipped to 27 degrees. The previous low was 29 degrees, reached on Jan. 10, 1970.

The mercury fell to 31 degrees in Miami, 20 degrees in Orlando, 26 degrees in Tampa, and 23 degrees in Daytona Beach. All readings broke or equaled record lows for the date.

The frigid temperatures severely damaged the citrus crop, said Earl Wells a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual. Damage to citrus crops begins when temperatures remain at 28 degrees or below for four hours or more.

"In many areas, we've had 25 degrees and below for eight-nine hours," Wells said. "We've suffered severe crop damage, although we can't put our finger on how much yet. In many areas, we've probably suffered major tree damage."

In North Dakota, they were calling the 20- and 30-degree readings a January thaw after the extreme cold earlier in the week. The higher readings, however, posed a new problem.

"A marked increase in the cases of the common cold and other illnesses have been noted to correspond with warm periods during the cold season."

weathermen at Bismarck warned.

The common cold was not worrying officials in at least 21 states. They were concerned with "energy emergencies" — shortages, near-shortages, or severe strain on power plants or pipelines that carry natural gas to residences, businesses and industrial plants.

Warnings were phrased variously, but the message was the same: Conserve.

Officials of the Dayton (Ohio) Power & Light Co. said Wednesday they would tell business and industrial customers that when they exceeded their winter natural gas allotments, service would be terminated.

Electric power customers in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and parts of Missouri were told Wednesday to conserve or face "periodic interruption of electric service" during peak demand daytime hours. The warning came from Middle South Utilities Co., a distribution system for power companies in the four-state area. There were disruptions to businessmen and farmers:

The 7,300 persons who make their living harvesting clams, oysters and fish from Chesapeake Bay have suffered losses of $20 million, said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel. He asked the Agriculture Department for federal aid.

Winter vegetables and fresh citrus fruit from Florida may become scarce. The cold weather froze tomatoes, melons and cucumbers on the vines and so many oranges froze that the state citrus commission said it might impose an embargo on the crop Monday.

The Federal Power Commission offered some relief from the strain on natural gas supplies. It said Wednesday that the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. would be allowed to tap a reserve supply of 3 billion cubic feet over the next 60 days. The company, based in Houston, has customers from Texas to New York.

Plans To Share Wealth From Oil With People

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — As Alaska's huge oil reserves are tapped and taxed, much of the state's profit would go right into its people's pockets under a proposal that Gov. Jay Hammond calls the "ultimate in grassroots revenue sharing."

Hammond's plan, announced Wednesday, would establish an investment fund called Alaska, Inc. Every adult who has lived in the state for five years — about a fourth of the state's 400,000 residents — would receive a share. People over 65 would get two shares. For every five years they spend in the state in the future, Alaskans would pick up another share.

With the trans-Alaska pipeline scheduled to open in July, state income from oil and gas taxes and royalties is expected to total $420 million by the end of 1977 and more than $1 billion a year by 1980.

The governor estimated that dividends on each share would be $57 the first year and $460 by 1985.

Hammond said he's pushing the plan because he's upset over the mushrooming growth of Alaska's state government during the oil boom.

"Rather than permitting government to spend all public monies earned through exploitation of the public's resources for what government thinks best," Hammond said, "let's grant shares to Alaskans and let them determine what services they want enough to permit government to recoup those shares in taxes."

"Nothing could do more to curb excessive growth of government."

Hammond, a Republican, said the scheme should be attractive to fiscal conservatives, because it limits the growth of government, and to liberals because it will help the poor.

Jerry Lewis Show Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Jerry Lewis' Broadway debut in the elaborate revue "Hellzapoppin'" has been called off.

A spokesman for the show, which was financed at $1 million, announced Wednesday that it was being withdrawn at the end of a three-week tryout engagement in Boston next Saturday.

The only explanation given was that the show's producer, Alexander H. Cohen, decided that despite generally favorable audience reaction in Boston and during previous stops in Baltimore and Washington, the show was not ready for Broadway and could not be shaped up in time for premiere Feb. 13.

Previews were to have begun at the Minskoff Theater here Jan. 25.

Cohen was not available for further comment.

The show was to have been spotlighted in a 90-minute program over the NBC television network on opening night.

Mayor Beame To Perform Rites

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame will perform the wedding ceremony of Elsie Stillman Proxmire, daughter of Sen. William Proxmire, and Dr. Alan Robert Zwerner at the Colony Club on Park Avenue on April 16.

Proxmire, D-Wis., one of the harshest critics of New York City's fiscal policies, asked Beame to perform the ceremony, the mayor's office said.

The engagement of Miss Proxmire and Dr. Zwerner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Zwerner of White Plains, was announced last Sunday.

New Garb For The Cattlemen

DENVER (AP) — Members of the Hare Krishna religious sect are temporarily laying their long gowns aside in favor of cowboy-style dress to solicit money from patrons at the National Western Stock Show.

Officials of the show, an annual mid-winter event that draws thousands of Denver and ranch families to Denver, have complained to city officials about the solicitations, Deputy City Atty. Bill Van Duzer said Wednesday.

Van Duzer speculated that the change in clothing has prevented harm from coming to members of the religious sect, many of whom shave their heads. "If they came in their yellow robes, they might not get a very friendly reception from some of the cowboys," he said.

Jack Mahoney, a spokesman for the sect, said the stock show's own security personnel have been "very, very friendly" to the half dozen Hare Krishnas at the site. But he charged that city policemen hired as extra security have been "very blasphemous."

Research Hope For Kidney Patients

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — The migrating habits of a Scottish salmon could lead to a new cure for people throughout the world who are waiting for a kidney transplant or survive only with the help of an artificial kidney machine, according to the results of research currently being carried out at Glasgow Royal Infirmary.

The man behind the research is 39-year-old Dr. James Dobbie, a consultant physician in the Infirmary's kidney diseases unit and a senior lecturer in medicine at Glasgow University. He describes the findings to date as a completely new concept in the treatment of kidney disease.

He hit on the present line of inquiry purely by chance, he says. While examining the kidney of a young fish in the electronic microscope during a research project last year it was discovered that it apparently showed a disease of the filtering units similar to nephritis in man.

"Further research," says Dr Dobbie, "showed that it was not a disease at all, but a quite natural body change occurring when the fish was getting ready to move from fresh to salt water. While in salt water, the fish makes very little use of its kidneys and the filtering units are, if you like, set at 'low'. When it returns to fresh water they are switched back to 'full'."

The killer kidney disease, nephritis, says Dr. Dobbie, is an inflammation of the filtering units causing the kidneys to be "switched off," and it is usually impossible to switch them back on again. What he and his team then set out to do was find out how the salmon switched its kidneys on again when it returned to fresh water. The answer, they found, was a hormone called prolactin which, in humans, is secreted into the bloodstream of nursing mothers.

"Once we had got that far," says Dr. Dobbie, "we wondered whether it would be possible to apply these discoveries to man and, through a substance like prolactin, switch damaged kidneys back to normal working conditions, and already we have definite evidence that the mechanism will work in man."

Rampettes Still Seeking First Win

Pirates Set Football Slate

Three first-time opponents, five home games and the first appearance in the Oyster Bowl highlight the 1977 East Carolina University football schedule, released today.

The Pirates will meet the University of Texas at Arlington, the University of South Carolina and the University of Southwestern Louisiana for the first time ever. The UT-Arlington and Southwestern Louisiana games will be played in Ficklen Stadium, while the Pirates will meet South Carolina at Columbia, S.C.

In addition to UT-A and SW La., the Pirates will also face Virginia Military Institute, Southern Illinois University, and the University of Richmond in Ficklen Stadium. Homecoming is scheduled against Southern Illinois and Band Night against Southwestern.

The Pirates make their initial appearance in Norfolk's Oyster Bowl on Nov. 12, against William & Mary. East Carolina will be the host and home team for the game, which closes out the season.

East Carolina opens its schedule on the road against N.C. State on September 3. Other road games include the University of Toledo, South Carolina, The Citadel and Appalachian State University.

"Our schedule for 1977 is an indication of the upgrading we are doing with our football scheduling for the future," Athletic Director Bill Cain said. "The addition of teams like South Carolina, Texas-Arlington and Southwestern Louisiana makes our schedule much tougher. All three have very fine programs that will be tough tests for our team."

"Next year's schedule should be the toughest in school history. I, along with Coach Pat Dye, am very excited about the changes we've been able to make for the next year. This is truly an intersectional schedule, as we will face two Southern Conference teams, two Southland Conference teams, one Mid-American Conference team, one Atlantic Coast Conference team, one Missouri Valley Conference team, and four major independents."

The Pirates will be playing as a major independent next season, following the withdrawal from the Southern Conference at the end of this school year. This marks the first time a Pirate football team has not been eligible for a conference title since 1964, when the Pirates were first admitted to the Southern Conference as a probationary member. The last true independent status for ECU was in 1963, the year prior to ECU's joining the Southern.

The schedule:
September 3, at N.C. State (7 p.m.); September 10, Texas-Arlington (7 p.m.); September 17, at Toledo (7:30 p.m.); September 24, Virginia Military Institute (7 p.m.); October 1, at South Carolina (7:30 p.m.); October 8, Southern Illinois (1:30 p.m. — Homecoming); October 15, Richmond (7 p.m.); October 22, at The Citadel (7 p.m.); October 29, Southwestern Louisiana (7 p.m. — Band Night); November 5, at Appalachian State (1:30 p.m.); November 12, William & Mary (1:30 p.m. — Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va.).

Rampants Run Past Eagles

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School's wrestlers continued to roll through Division I competition last night, romping to a 63-9 victory over Northeastern High School.

Rose captured wins in 11 of the 13 classes, taking two by forfeits and seven by pins. The two decisions saw one major and one superior decisions.

Three Rose matmen remained unbeaten as Cliff Hagan, John Lawler and James Cherry ran their records to 14-0. Jesse Baker upped his record to 12-1, while Johnny Harris went to 11-1, Ronnie Reddick to 12-3, and Rocky Butler to 12-2.

The Rampants resume action tonight, hosting Rocky Mount.

Summary:
100: Cliff Hagan (R) won by forfeit.

Jaguars Pin Panther Matmen

BETHEL — Farmville Central's wrestling team rolled to a 49-8 victory over North Pitt last night.

The Jaguars boosted their record to 10-4 with the win, while North Pitt fell off to a 3-8 record.

Farmville Central won all but two of the 13 weights, taking two by forfeits and two by pins. Both of North Pitt's wins were by decisions, one a superior one by Aubrey Wynne, who ran his record to 11-0.

The Jaguars return to action on Friday, hosting Williamston, while North Pitt is idle until January 31, when it pays a return visit to Farmville.

Summary:
100: John Simpson (NP) decided Mike Baker, 12-6.
107: Joe Ebron (FC) decided Clay Pilgreen, 17-0.
114: Jeff Ebron (FC) won by forfeit.

Vikings Rip West Carteret

MOREHEAD CITY — D. H. Conley's Vikings romped past highly-regarded West Carteret in wrestling last night, 55-12.

The Vikings remained unbeaten in 11 dual matches as they rolled to the easy victory. Conley took 11 of the 13 events, losing one by a pin and one on a forfeit.

Of the Conley wins, five came on pins and two on forfeits. At 128 pounds, Ronald Harris raised his record to 17-0 by gaining a decision over David Heverly, last year's sectional champ and state runner-up.

Jesse Davis also remained unbeaten at 17-0, while Gary Harris raised his record to 13-2; Alton Crandall to 14-3; Floyd Crandall to 14-1; Marvin Hardy to 15-2; Charles Hanson to 16-1; Paul Bridges to 10-1; and Lo Carmon to 15-1.

The Vikings return to action on Friday, hosting Southern Nash.

Summary:
100: Gary Harris (C) pinned Harry Smith, 1:14.

When you're down 0-5 in the second year of your existence, things might look mighty dark to you, but Rose High School girls' basketball coach Billy Byrd feels that there may be some lighter moments ahead.

The girls' basketball team, which was winless in its first five games (not counting last night's game with Northeastern), may still be looking for win number one. Byrd feels that it won't be a dry year for the Rampettes, however.

The Rampettes have two games upcoming during the next week. Tonight, they travel to Rocky Mount, and next Monday, they are again away, traveling to Bertie.

The girls' games are just part of the week's slate for the Rose athletic teams. The wrestling team is host to Rocky Mount tonight, and will meet Washington on Monday.

The basketball team entertains Bertie on Friday, and travels to Northern Nash next Wednesday. The swim teams will be in Wilmington to take on Hoggard on Saturday.

"We've made some progress during the first five games," Byrd said. "New Bern and Kinston are two of the better teams in the area, and we gained some experience against them. I was disappointed that we didn't do better against Conley, however. I thought we played good defense, but we didn't score enough."

Byrd said he felt that the girls just haven't been able to get the ball into the basket often enough. "We're getting the shots, we're just not getting them to drop for us."

Morale on the team is still good, however. "The girls are disturbed by losing, but they are not losing faith. They know that it is a young program and they have a ways to go before they can be competitive. They know they are learning and that it takes time."

Byrd added that the long layoff between playing their last game before the Christmas holidays and playing Conley last Saturday hurt the Rampettes.

"It was like starting the season all over again."

The coach feels that once the Rampettes get into the swing of the conference race, things will improve. "The conference is not that strong overall, so we should be able to do better. We're at the point where we're playing pretty good defense, but we just have to score more. Once we start scoring 40-50 points a game, we'll win some."

"It's just a matter of experience. I can see improvement. We're not making as many silly fouls, we've got better ball-handling, and better rebounding. And we've cut our turnovers too."

How soon the Rampettes are able to start winning, however, revolves around how quickly they find their shooting eyes.

Taylor Leads Efforts To Build Rose Team

By WOODY PEELE

From the back yard to the basketball court isn't a long ways for most boys. But not often does a girl find this way to the basketball court.

Sheryl Taylor of Rose High School may be an exception. That's where she learned her first basketball lessons, and what she learned is helping to pay off for the Rampettes second year efforts.

While Rose hasn't won (not counting last night's game) they are trying, and Miss Taylor has been the leading scorer for them. She's hitting 12.2 points a game, one of the top averages in the area.

"My brothers played a lot in the back yard, where we have a basket," Miss Taylor said of her early cage experiences. "I learned to enjoy the game from that."

While she probably has more basketball experience than most of the other girls on the team, the rest probably only gained their knowledge of the sport from physical education classes. "We don't have the experience that other teams have, and this is one of the reasons we haven't been able to win. We're still learning."

Despite her abilities, Miss

Taylor doesn't see herself as a team leader. "I try to help where I can," she said. Her only organized experience in the sport comes from physical education classes, too.

A junior, Miss Taylor only played basketball last year, but said she is now thinking of trying softball this spring. "I enjoy almost any kind of sport. I also like crafts and sewing."

She hopes to be able to continue her education after high school, and has plans to major in physical education and eventually teach.

And she feels that Rose can have a winning program in girls' basketball. "We can do it. Most of the girls are very young with very little experience. But we should be able to put it together by next year. We'll have a lot more experience then, and I think there will be some good girls coming over from Aycock too."

"If we could score more points, then we might be able to win more this year. But I guess some of the girls get nervous, not having played much before."

But does Sheryl get nervous? "No, not a bit!"

State Tips Heels; Wake, Clemson Win

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
"San Francisco would have trouble playing here, if State played the way they did against us," said North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith, indicating the top-ranked Dons would get no more respect than did his fourth-ranked Tar Heels Wednesday night.

The Wolfpack, a young, talented team seemingly unable to find the right combination this season, shocked the Tar Heels, 75-73, before 12,400 screaming partisans at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh and further tightened the Atlantic Coast Conference race.

In other ACC games Wednesday night, No. 9 Wake Forest trimmed Duke, 85-73, while the Blue Devils' Tate Armstrong watched from the bench, and Clemson jumped to an 18-9 lead enroute to humbling No. 13 Maryland, 93-71.

"Winning when you're losing is like getting health when you're sick," rejoiced N.C. State Coach Norm Sloan, whose team seemed on the verge of being blown out after North Carolina amassed a nine-point lead in the second half.

However, Clyde "The Glide" Austin's 20-foot jump shot with 6:06 to play gave the Wolfpack a 66-65 lead, their first since 5:22 of the first half. The slim advantage held up, however, as North Carolina never caught up again.

The backbreaker for the Tar Heels came with 19 seconds remaining when Kenny Carr nestled home a lob pass under the basket, then raced to the other end to block a jumper by Phil Ford.

Carr was fouled on the block by North Carolina's John Kuester and sank one of two free throw attempts to give his team a 75-71 lead with eight seconds remaining.

Ford ended the game five seconds later with a pair of free throws.

Carr led the Wolfpack with 23 points, but Ford topped all scorers with a career-high 32, including 20 in the first half.

Ford's performance, however, did not compensate for North Carolina's weakness inside. Mike O'Koren and Walter Davis were the only other Tar Heels in double figures with 14 and 12, respectively.

But Davis fouled out with 10:39 remaining and center Tom LaGarde, who scored seven points in the first period, was held scoreless in the second, mainly due to Carr's defensive pressure.

"We've got to work on this shooting with contact," said Smith, "but I'm not worried about Tommy."

Carr, Charles Whitney and Glenn Sudhop took control of the boards in the second half and the Wolfpack held a final 45-33 rebounding advantage.

The win raised N.C. State to 9-5 overall and 2-1 in the ACC. North Carolina suffered its second loss in 14 games and stands 4-1 in the ACC.

"We shouldn't deserve consideration (in the polls) any more so now than we have in the past several weeks," said Sloan, putting the win in perspective. "And this game shouldn't hurt North Carolina too much. It's just one game and they are really a fine team."

"I don't see how they (N.C. State) got beat by Michigan State," said Smith. "I think State is turning it around now."

Armstrong squirmed in frustration on the sidelines as his Blue Devils teammates, leading 39-38 at halftime, succumbed under long-range bombs by Jerry Schellenberg and Skip Brown in the second half and bowed to the Deacons, 85-73.

"Wake was very quick and explosive," said Duke Coach Bill Foster. "When they got going they were very difficult to stop. We were wounded by Tate's loss, but we shouldn't let this kill us."

Armstrong squirmed in frustration on the sidelines as his Blue Devils teammates, leading 39-38 at halftime, wilted under the long-range bombs of Jerry Schellenberg and Skip Brown in the second half and bowed to the Deacons, 85-73.

"Wake was very quick and explosive," said Duke Coach Bill Foster. "When they got going they were very difficult to stop. We were wounded by Tate's loss, but we shouldn't let this kill us."

Wake Forest grabbed a 54-52 lead with 12:40 remaining and Coach Carl Tacy decided to slow things up a bit.

"We went to the spread offense, not to stall the game out, but to get Duke out of the zone," said Tacy. "The zone forced us outside in the first half more than we would like. The key to our set play was getting it inside."

Tacy then ordered a full-court man-to-man defense and Foster said his team's lack of execution was fatal.

"I thought we played very well for 30-31 minutes until our ball handling caught up with us," said Foster.

Freshman center Mike Gminski led all scorers with 28 points. Brown led Wake Forest with 22, matching Duke's Jim Spanarkel. Rod Griffin added 19 for the Deacons and Schellenberg finished with 18.

The win gained Wake Forest a first-place tie with North Carolina at 4-1 in the ACC and put the Deacons at 13-2 on the season.

Duke fell to 11-4 overall and 1-3 in conference play. Clemson connected on nine of its first 10 shots from the floor and Maryland could never catch up as the Tigers routed the Terrapins, 93-71, in Clemson, S.C.

Wayne "Tree" Rollins dominated first half play with 10 points and 13 rebounds, but Maryland was ice cold from the field, hitting just 26 per cent of its shots to Clemson's 64 per cent.

Rollins finished the game with 22 points, 23 rebounds and three blocked shots in only 25 minutes of playing time. Teammate Colon Abraham came off the bench to pour in 20 points as the Tigers raised their record to 12-3 and 2-2 in the ACC.

It was Maryland's first game away from home this year, except for a game with Navy at Landover, Md. The Terrapins played their first 13 games in Cole Field House and Coach Lefty Driesell probably was anxious to get back to friendlier country.

The loss was Maryland's worst since a 100-76 drubbing by North Carolina in 1971 and Virginia was idle Wednesday night, but returns tonight for the only ACC game scheduled. The Cavaliers, currently in the ACC cellar with a 0-4 mark host Delaware.

Virginia forward Mike Owens, the team's third leading scorer, will be lost for at least five weeks with a broken jaw. Owens suffered the injury when he passed out and fell in his dormitory room. He reportedly had been ill with the flu.

Banks Into Hall Of Fame

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The wonderful thing about being a baseball player," said Ernie Banks, "is that years after you're through hitting home runs and playing in All-Star games, people still remember you."

The Baseball Writers Association of America remembered Banks Wednesday, naming him to the Hall of Fame as the only candidate to receive mention on 75 per cent of the ballots in the annual election.

"This is the greatest moment in my life," said Banks, who earned election in his first year of eligibility. Banks received 321 votes of the 383 cast by veteran members of the BBWAA, easily passing the required three-quarters figure of 288. Eddie Mathews was second in the vote with 239, missing election by 49 votes. The late Gil Hodges was third with 224 followed by Enos Slaughter with 222 and Duke Snider with 212.

In winning election on his first chance, Banks joins an elite set of Hall of Famers. Only seven others, Sandy Koufax, Mickey Mantle, Ted Williams, Jackie Robinson, Bob Feller, Stan Musial and Warren Spahn, gained immediate acceptance to Cooperstown.

Banks knew that his 512 career home runs gave him a good shot at the Hall of Fame on his first go-round. "I was getting jittery about it," he said.

Rampettes Are Beaten

Rose High School's girls went down to their sixth straight defeat last night, bowing before Elizabeth City Northeastern, 49-23.

Northeastern shot away to a 15-4 lead in the first period of the game, and was never in danger after that. They outscored the Rampettes, 15-2, in the second quarter, and were quite comfortable at the half, 30-6.

Rose did stage a comeback in the third period, outthitting the Lady Eagles, 10-6. That cut it back to 36-16. Northeastern finished up with a 13-7 margin in the final quarter.

Deborah Hardy led Northeastern with 12 points, while Kathy Streeter paced Rose with eight.

The Rampettes return to action tonight, traveling to Rocky Mount.

Chargers In Loss

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash High School's wrestlers rolled to a 56-12 victory over Ayden-Grifton last night.

The defeat was the 12th straight for the hapless Chargers. Ayden-Grifton managed two victories, both by pins, as Guy Dixon and Johnny Cannon came up with them.

Southern Nash's 11 wins included six falls and one forfeit. Ayden-Grifton hosts Wilson tonight.

Summary:

Tomorrow night marks the halfway point of the Eastern Carolina Conference 1976-77 basketball season and the conference race is still a wide-open affair. Only C. B. Aycock and Greene Central appear to be out of contention at this point.

A full slate of conference games is scheduled for tomorrow and, after those games, each team will have met every other team in the league.

Tuesday night, North Pitt took an 86-76 win over North Lenoir while D. H. Conley was defeating Ayden-Grifton in overtime, 87-85. Those two games propelled the Panthers into sole possession of the conference lead with a 5-1 record.

Ayden-Grifton, which had been tied for the top spot with North Pitt, is now in a three-way tie for second place with the other two Pitt County schools, D. H. Conley and Farmville Central. They all have 4-2 conference records.

Behind them are North Lenoir and Southern Nash with 3-3 marks and then comes Greene Central at 1-5. C. B. Aycock brings up the rear with an 0-6 record.

So, with six teams within two games of the lead, it could come down to a photo finish next month.

The reinstatement of the dunk has added a new dimension of excitement to basketball this year. This is especially true on the high school level where the stuffs are fewer and farther between.

A well-timed slam-dunk in front of the home crowd at a high school game can generate enough momentum to turn a game around. Several times this season, we have seen opposing coaches call time out after a dunk like many will call time to try to slow down another team's rally.

Anthony Bryant of Rose and Donnie Perkins of North Pitt have produced the best slam-dunks we've seen this year, although several other players in the area are capable.

An area of concern, however, is the player who attempts and misses a stiff, especially when the game is close.

Besides the risk of injury to the player who loses his balance in midair, there is also the loss to his team of two points. Several times this year, we have seen players miss on dunk shots when the game was close enough for those two points to have made a difference.

It's certainly understandable for a player to want to bring the crowd to its feet with a rousing dunk shot, but in a close game, he should be sure he is going to make it before he risks losing a basket.

Only three points separate Ayden-Grifton's Chargers from a perfect conference record. Both the Charger leagues losses this season have been in overtime. Southern Nash defeated them 63-62 on Jan. 11 and Tuesday night they lost to D. H. Conley, 57-55. If they had won those two, they would be in sole possession of first place with a 6-0 record.

Ayden-Grifton hasn't lost all of its overtime contests, however. They defeated league-leading North Pitt in another overtime game, 60-59, the Panthers' only conference loss.

Nostalgic Look At The TV Pioneers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cecil

the Seaside Sea Serpent. Harry Owens and His Royal Hawaiians. Sheriff John. Dick "Old Leatherbritches" Lane. Space Patrol. Korla Pandit. Gorgeous George. Hopalong Cassidy.

Just names? Hardly. They're 100-proof local history, part of the vast sonata of entertainment available in the golden, gonzo era of Los Angeles television in the late 1940s and the 1950s.

Said era began Jan. 22, 1947, when the West's first commercial TV station — KTLA, Channel 5 — cranked up. Bob Hope enceed the event, seen live in grainy black and white on perhaps 300 sets here.

Saturday night, KTLA cranks again with a started 30th anniversary look back at that live, lively, often screwball pioneer era in what now is the nation's second largest TV market, with more than 3.8 million homes equipped with the magic night-light that talks.

Art Linkletter is hosting the two-hour nostalgia blast put together by Arnold Shapiro, a free-lance producer who grew up here in those glory days when even a test pattern caused excitement.

"The theme is fun, nostalgic, warmth and humor," said Shapiro, 35, adding that he had no end of trouble tracking down old kinescopes and tapes of back-then television in Los Angeles.

"We didn't get them from the stations, that's for sure," he laughed. "They kept nothing. We got some from the local Television Academy, the rest from the stars or from people they knew."

He said the wares used on the show feature not only back-then stars of KTLA, but also of six other stations here.

Some stars became biggies, like Johnny Carson. He was paid $50 a week by CBS-owned KNXT in the 1950s to produce and star in "Carson's Cellar," a Sunday variety show.

Others faded from local TV, like Korla Pandit, a beturbaned chap who played piano on his daily show. He drove the ladies wild with his dark, brooding eyes. Shapiro says Pandit never spoke word one in 900 shows, some kind of record for TV.

The producer, who tracked down more than 30 local stars of yesterday for Saturday's show, says he despaired of ever finding Pandit until a KTLA film editor said he had tickets for a concert.

It was a Korla Pandit concert, of all things, in suburban El Segundo, of all places. The musician was booked for the show.

"It's the hardest show I've ever produced, but I'm happy with it," the producer said. "We did it sort of like a live show, by the way. It's on tape, but we did it non-stop.

"So it's got little mistakes in it, just like the '50s."

ECU Students Are Serving As Interns

Two senior physical therapy students at East Carolina University will be clinical interns this winter in England, at the world-famous Stoke Mandeville Rehabilitation Center in Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

Barbara Price of Williamson and Dorothy Day of Smithburg, Md. will complete six-week rehabilitation affiliations at the Center under the direction of Ida Bromley.

Miss Bromley visited ECU this past June to present a workshop on rehabilitation techniques to physical therapists and other rehabilitation personnel in this region.

The two students will have completed a month of general hospital assignment at Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville before their departure for England.

Twelve other physical therapy students at ECU will be working as interns in U. S. hospitals and rehabilitation centers during the

Fellowship Day Planned

The third annual Fellowship Day will be held at English Chapel F.W.B. Church on Greenville Boulevard Sunday.

The Rev. J. H. Lucas and choir from St. John F.W.B. Church, Farmville will be in charge of the 11 a. m. service.

Dinner will be served at noon. At 3 p. m. Dr. W. L. Jones and the Young Adult Choir of Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church will lead a service.

At 5 p. m. a special Senior Citizens service will be held.

At 7 p. m. the Rev. Morris Newkirk and his choir, ushers and congregation of Jericho A. M. E. Zion Church, Kinston, will lead the service.

Sponsors of Fellowship Day are Deacon Marvin Stephenson, the Senior Choir, the Senior and Junior Ushers, and the Trustee Board. The public is invited.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JAN. 21, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES. The morning is the time to wind up matters which were started yesterday. The afternoon and evening gives you a chance to get rid of secret annoyances. Quietly gather the data you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best time to meet with good friends and reach important decisions. The evening is best spent at home with family.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A vocational matter should be handled intelligently in the morning and then you have more time for being with friends later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new contact could be most helpful to you in the future. Your intuition is extremely good now, so be sure to use it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Begin day properly by doing whatever will please your mate. Be to rely on your intuition more now and get fine results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find a common point on which to agree with associates in a project that is important to you. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) First tackle all that work ahead of you and then you can look into a new interest that fascinates you. Take no chances with your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make those appointments early for the recreation you want later in the day. Be more alert to opportunities around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Consult a business expert for advice you need. Later engage in favorite hobby with congenials and relieve tensions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle important correspondence early in the day and then later you can attend to home matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First attend to a monetary matter that is vital to your welfare. Later get in touch with an expert who can be of service to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Organize your plans in a most confidential manner in the morning, then work out financial problems later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan your activities so you can easily gain whatever means the most to you. Attend the social tonight and be cheerful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will require a good education in order to be successful upon reaching maturity. Not much of a mixer early in life but later will want to make many contacts. There is much musical talent in this interesting chart.

The careful declarer looks to see if there is anything he can do to circumvent a bad break in the diamond suit. He should realize that the club suit offers an alternative chance, providing he starts setting it up early enough.

He would win the opening heart lead in his hand and lead a diamond to the king. When he returns a low diamond from dummy, he intends finessing if East follows suit—that guards against East holding four diamonds. When East shows out on the second diamond, declarer still has time to switch horses.

He rises with the ace of diamonds and now starts on the clubs. His shrewd planning is rewarded when he leads a low club to dummy and West produces the jack. Now it is a simple task to force out the king of clubs and make his contract via two spades, two hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Would Increase Merchants' Share Of Tax Process

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A Republican state senator wants to increase the amount which merchants receive for collecting North Carolina's sales tax.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Robert Vance Somers, R-Rowan, would increase from 3 to 4 per cent the amount merchants are allowed to retain from their sales tax collections as recompense for the trouble of serving as tax collectors for the state.

Somers said his bill was inspired by a Salisbury merchant who arose in a public meeting to ask if some relief could not be provided.

"In all these years there has never been any increase for them serving as tax collectors for the state," Somers said.

Figures supplied by the state Revenue Department indicated that the increase would cost the state about $5 million a year. It said that in 1975-76 the merchants' discount amounted to $14.2 million.

Other legislative developments included:

ERA
Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, criticized a schedule calling for quick action to bring the Equal Rights Amendment to the House floor.

"I think that is getting in right much of a hurry," Davenport said of the schedule laid down by Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee. Gamble announced plans to hold public hearings on ERA next Wednesday and Thursday and said he hoped the committee could vote the following Wednesday. This would enable ERA to reach the House floor the second week of February.

DEATH PENALTY
Davenport, who is chairman of the House Judiciary II Committee, which is considering death penalty legislation, announced his committee probably would hold hearings Feb. 2 and 3 at which it will hear from representatives of law schools and the Institute of Government discuss constitutional issues involved in the death penalty issue.

"They will explain what the limits are, what we can and cannot do," Davenport told the House.

DRUG FUNDS
Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, sponsored a bill that would place state and federal funds for drug abuse programs directly under the control of the State Drug Commission.

Roy Epps, director of the Drug Commission, said Barker's bill would close a gap in the present law which leaves no single agency in control of the funds. The bill would also spell out more clearly the duties of the Drug Commission and expand the commission by three members, a dentist, a woman and a member of a minority group.

APPOINTEE
Rep. S. Thomas Rhodes, R-New Hanover, was appointed to another two-year term on the state Board of transportation. Rhodes said the nine other Republican members of the General Assembly unanimously approved him for the appointment which is made by the leader of the Republican Joint Caucus. Rhodes is the leader of the caucus.

HELMETS
A bill that would repeal the state law requiring motorists to wear helmets was sent to subcommittee by Rep. H. M. Michaux, D-Durham, chairman of the House Highway Safety Committee.

Michaux told the committee he believed the issue needed further study.

RED LIGHTS
The House Highway Safety Committee approved a bill that would allow chiefs of volunteer fire departments and local civil defense officials to use red lights as warning devices on their automobiles during emergency trips. The bill would not allow them to exceed the speed limit or violate other traffic laws and would not give them the right-of-way over other motorists.

HOW'S THE WEATHER?
FORECAST Until Friday

Figures show low temperatures for area.

WEATHER FORECAST — Unseasonably cold weather continues today in the east with unseasonably warm weather in the West. Rain is likely to become hazardous as the snow spread across the state. The snow was moving eastward and was expected to end tonight upon reaching the coast.

Meanwhile, low temperatures this morning showed some moderation from the zero to 10 readings that have prevailed, possibly heralding the slight warming trend forecast earlier in the week.

Asheville, Charlotte and Greensboro all had a low reading of 16 degrees, while it was a little colder at Raleigh with a low of 12. Hickory was still colder with 9 degrees, equalling its record for the date.

High temperatures today were expected to range in the teens and low 20s over the mountains and climb to near 40 on the south coast.

Lows tonight will range from 5 to 10 in the northern mountains and in the low and mid 20s along the coast.

The forecast calls for sunny and windy Friday and continued cold, although high readings are expected to climb to the 30s with the exception of 20s in the mountains.

Troops With Machine Guns On Guard In Cairo And Alexandria

By LISETTE BALOUNY
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO (AP) — Army paratroopers with machine guns guarded key squares and bridges and patrolled Cairo's slum districts today after two days of riots over price increases.

Police sources said today 40 persons were killed and 250 injured in Cairo during the riots. The semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram reported 34 persons were killed and 409 injured in Cairo and Alexandria and 439 arrested in the capital.

A 14-hour curfew, Cairo's first since King Farouk was overthrown in 1952, brought calm back to the metropolis. People were moving about the streets normally. Buses were running. Workers began clearing away the rubble and broken glass left by the rioting. Many shops reopened.

The curfew was shortened three hours today. Cairo Radio announced it would begin at 7 p.m. instead of 4 p.m.

Police reported calm also in Alexandria, the port city on the Mediterranean; Suez, at the southern end of the Suez Canal, and towns in the Nile Delta and Upper Egypt where disturbances occurred Wednesday.

The violence was the worst in Egypt since the revolution nearly 25 years ago. Al Ahram said 29 were killed, 267 were injured and 439 were arrested in Cairo. In Alexandria, five persons were reported killed and 132 injured Tuesday.

The rioting was touched off by the reduction Monday of government subsidies that were keeping down the prices of staple foods, bottled gas, gasoline, cigarettes and other items in general use. The subsidies were reduced in an attempt to cut the $3.2 billion deficit in the government's budget.

The intensity of the public reaction forced President Anwar Sadat to suspend the price increases. The president, who was assailed personally in slogans shouted by the demonstrators, returned to Cairo Wednesday night from Aswan, the winter resort 600 miles to the south where he was waiting to entertain Yugoslav President Tito. Tito canceled his visit because of the death in a plane crash of his prime minister.

The finance committee of the People's Assembly was to meet today to seek other ways of reducing the deficit. Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem's Center Party called for higher income taxes, particularly for the wealthy.

It also asked the Arab oil states to show more understanding "for Egypt's hardships and the four wars it fought with Israel in the name of Arab honor."

Young Artists In Competition

Beginning at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 22, with the final stages to be held at 8 p.m. on that date, 19 finalists will compete in the finals of the First Annual Young Artists Competition. The event, held by Mendenhall Student Center in conjunction with the East Carolina University School of Music, will be in the Mendenhall Student Center Theater.

The public is invited to attend performances of the finalists, and no admission fee is charged.

Eight of the artists are voice majors. These are Ms. Claire Hurley, Dayton, Ohio; Vickie Spargo Hilliard, Raleigh; William White, Woodbine, Iowa; Susan Elaine West, Wilmington; Nancy Lynn Thomas, Wilmington; Alan C. Jones, Snow Hill; Beth Bell, Wilmington; and Mary May Fritz, Charlotte.

The 11 other finalists will be performing in instrumental music. These are: Jack Stamp, College Park, Md., percussion;

Senter Back To Old Post

Kipling, N.C. native James P. Senter, a 1946 graduate of East Carolina with a degree in business administration, has been recalled by Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. to serve in Raleigh as Deputy Secretary of the Department of Revenue, a position he held under previous administrations from 1964 until he joined the administration staff of the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem in 1975.

Senter, prior to his recall by Governor Hunt, had served as vice chancellor of financial affairs at the N.C. School of the Arts.

Change Site Of Training Class

The weekly teacher training class for Child Evangelism Fellowship teachers will not meet in the Salvation Army Citadel on Friday evenings as announced, but instead will meet in the director's home at 120 Ange Street in Winterville.

Time for the Friday class will be from 7 to 9 p.m.

The weekly Thursday morning class will continue to meet in the Salvation Army Citadel from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Persons interested in learning how to teach the Bible to children are welcome to attend either class.

Baptismal Rites Are Postponed

The scheduled Saturday baptismal services at the Philippi Church of Christ has been postponed due to the final rites for Preston Atkinson.

All persons scheduled to be baptised Saturday will be notified of a rescheduled date for the baptism.

The announcement was made by the Rev. E. B. Williams, pastor of the Philippi Church of Christ.

Child Injured In Traffic Mishaps

A five-year-old child was reported injured in one of two traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported Elizabeth Marie Board of 200 John Ave. was injured when she allegedly ran from between two parked cars and was struck by an auto driven by Edna Smith Teel of 2710 Edwards St.

The mishap occurred about 2:45 p.m. at the intersection of Rose Street and Cedar Lane.

A 4 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets involved cars driven by Randy Wilson Pritchard of Bethel and James Curtis Smith of 1613 East Wright Rd.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the Pritchard car and $125 to the Smith auto.

Many Skiers Stay By Fire

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Sub zero temperatures at the state's ski resorts has reduced activity to "staying around the old fireplace and making friends and of course sipping a little antifreeze."

That's the assessment from Charlotte Strickland of Resort Management on Beech Mountain, and it was echoed at several other places in North Carolina's ice-locked mountain resorts.

Cars have been crippled, some slopes have been closed and a few fun lovers have spent more time in the mountains than they were planning on.

Beech Mountain resort shut down an advanced slope when the wind chill factor at the top of the mountain plunged to 49 below zero.

"We closed it because some people might not be fully appreciative of what the wind and cold can do to them," said A.G. Marshall of Resort Management.

All the snow was doing to some skiers was keeping them inside.

"Oh, what the heck," said Phillip Breyer, 31, an Atlanta stockbroker whose frozen car was supposed to have him back to work this week.

"We figured we'd just live it up and let the world go by. We've really enjoyed it. I don't know when I've felt as relaxed as I do now."

But Marshall said the weather wasn't really stranding anybody who absolutely had to get out of the mountains.

"There's nobody here that really doesn't want to be here," he said.

"It's been kind of a mess up here lately," one service station manager said. "But I think it's been fun."

Iowa Farmer Has Party For Just Plain Folk

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The plain folk were there dancing to mellow strains of Duke Ellington's Mood Indigo, then turning around to step high and stomp to Pennsylvania hoedown music.

In one corner of the ballroom, dry martinis, screwdrivers and other drinks were mixed and served. Across the hall, three young men from North Carolina dispensed their new soft-drink, peanut punch. They hope to market it soon, they said, capitalizing on the rise of peanut farmer Jimmy Carter.

It was that kind of party Wednesday night for men and women who described themselves as ordinary people, farmers from Iowa, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, other

Agree To Block Terror Raids Across Borders

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Lebanese Christian leaders and Syrian President Hafez Assad have agreed to prohibit unauthorized Palestinian raids into Israel from southern Lebanon, dispatches from Beirut reported today.

One dispatch which was delayed by censorship and communication difficulties said the newspaper As Safir reported the agreement was reached Tuesday at a meeting in Damascus between leaders of the Christian Lebanese Front and Assad.

Another censored dispatch today identified the Christian leaders as former President Suleiman Franjeh and Pierre Gemayel, whose Phalange Party had the largest militia fighting on the Christian side in the civil war.

As Safir said the three leaders noted the "impossibility of dispatching peace troopers to South Lebanon presently" and agreed it was equally difficult to build a battalion of the Lebanese Army to maintain order in the region, As Safir said.

The leaders agreed to prohibit cross-border raids by Palestinian guerrillas into Israeli settlements "unless a joint Arab understanding was achieved" for that purpose, the paper said.

The dispatch added that the Christians were anxious to avert retaliatory raids by Israel into southern Lebanese towns should the Palestinians resume their forays against the Jewish state.

The Syrian troops who make up almost all of the Arab League peacekeeping force in Lebanon have been kept well north of the Israeli frontier because the Israeli government

Deacons Will Mark 70th Year

The Deacon Board of the Philippi Church of Christ will be celebrating its 70th anniversary Sunday.

The Rev. A. L. Miller and congregation of Warren Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will be the guest church in charge of the 3 p.m. service.

Dinner will be served in the church memorial dining hall at 2 p.m.

The chairman of the Board of Deacons, L. B. Blount, invites the deacons of surrounding churches to be present.

The announcement was made by Blount.

Admitted To Pitt Hospital

Greenville Police reported a man found unconscious on Grande Avenue near the Tenth Street intersection last night was in serious condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital, when admitted.

Chief Glenn Cannon said investigators identified the subject as 40-year-old James Willie Hall.

He said Hall's condition was apparently caused by the man drinking rubbing alcohol.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

The White Family will hold revival services in ministry and song at the Wahl-Coates Elementary School Thursday through Sunday.

Services will be held beginning tonight at 7:30 and Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

Billy Unimpressed Over Newly-Acquired Status

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter, a beer can in hand and a wide grin on his face, is getting acquainted with the city his older brother will dominate for the next four years.

But Billy, visiting Washington for the first time, seems unimpressed by his new status, the people who kowtow to him and the trappings surrounding the incoming president.

He brought a tuxedo to wear to the inaugural parties tonight, but he was dressed in a blue denim leisure suit when he arrived aboard a chartered jet from Georgia on Wednesday for five days of partying.

As the bus carrying his group passed the White House, he was asked whether he would stay overnight there before returning to his peanut warehouse and gas station in Plains.

"No," he replied firmly, sipping from an ever-present can of beer. "I will never spend the night in a mansion."

The 39-year-old Carter, his wife and six children and dozens of Georgia friends and neighbors have taken over the ninth floor of the Washington Hilton until Sunday. Also rooming there are the sons of Jimmy Carter — Jack, Chip and Jeff — and their wives.

The scene was chaotic on the ninth floor Wednesday afternoon, with Carter children running back and forth and Chip, 26, trying to help his family and friends figure out what parties they were going to and at what time.

On Wednesday night, with temperatures in the low 20s, Billy Carter emerged coatless from his suite with his wife, Sybil, to attend several private parties and the inauguration eve gala at the Kennedy Center.

Billy said he enjoys his brother's glory, but he's sorry to see him leave the little Georgia town where they both grew up.

"I hated to see him get the damn job, but I'm glad for him that he won," he said at the airport shortly after he arrived. "I just hate to lose him."

Billy Carter will continue to run the Carter peanut warehouse and his gas station in Plains, although he says he may have his beer-selling license lifted soon. The suspension would come as the result of Billy's recent citation for sale of beer in his station on Sunday in violation of Georgia law.

"They're trying to make an example of me," he said with a shake of his head. An employee, not Billy himself, sold the beer.

But he's not letting that problem spoil his fun in Washington.

"I'm going to have a good time and just send my bills to the White House," he declared with the famous Carter grin.

Asked at the airport if he had a message for the nation on the eve of his brother's inauguration, Billy replied:

"I'm just glad the rest of the country has finally joined the South."

Cold Changed Buying Trends

RALEIGH (AP) — The severe cold weather this year has caused a booming business in the sale of heavy clothing, boots and underwear, but has crippled night time shopping centers in North Carolina.

Thompson Greenwood, executive vice president of the North Carolina Merchants Association, said, "It's been a good January, although stores in some smaller cities in the mountains have not been able to operate because of the snow and cold."

Greenwood said he talked by telephone Wednesday with some merchants and they reported sales had been good, despite the bitter cold.

"The thing about it," he said in an interview, "is that people are having to buy a lot of stuff to keep them warm, heavy clothing, boots, underwear, gloves and electrical heaters."

Greenwood said the comparatively mild winters of recent years had caused North Carolina to get away from topcoats. He added, "I've worn my topcoat more the last three weeks than I have in the last three years."

"The trouble is we haven't been equipped clothing-wise for this type of weather," he added. "We have suddenly become a state with northern weather. The last three weeks have changed our buying habits."

Greenwood said the snows in the western part of the state have caused stores in the larger cities to curtail their operating hours.

As a result, he said, they are losing thousands of dollars.

The shopping centers that stay open at night have been dealt a severe blow, Greenwood said. The people are shopping in the daytime and staying home at night to avoid the bitter cold.

Air Cadets Earn Honors

Sharol Elizabeth Boyd or Rocky Mount, East Carolina University sophomore and cadet in the ECU Air Force ROTC detachment, has been named the detachment's "Cadet Airman of the Quarter."

The title, awarded three times each year to an outstanding student in the AFROTC corps, is based on leadership ability, military bearing, military courtesy and discipline, and ability to communicate.

The detachment also announced eleven cadet appointments for the fall quarter. AFROTC Cadet Corps positions are assigned as part of leadership training and are rotated each quarter during the academic year.

Names and hometowns of the newly-appointed cadet leaders of this area include:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Cadet Captain Charles M. Whitehurst, Education and Training Officer. He is a graduate student in industrial and technical education, and a member of Epsilon Pi Tau honor society and chaplain of Arnold Air Society.

Surprised By Baby's Arrival

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Jacalyn Preston called the doctor to complain of stomach pains.

"Don't worry," the doctor told her Tuesday night, "it's probably gastro-enteritis." If it didn't clear up, he would call round and see her, he added.

Two hours later, the 29-year-old woman gave birth to a baby girl.

The parents were as surprised as the doctor. A specialist had told the mother of three she could not have any more children, and she was also taking contraceptives as a precaution.

Preston explained that the pregnancy probably went unnoticed because his wife is "fairly well built." Mrs. Preston weighs 240 pounds.

Charged In 2 Break-Ins

SIMPSON — Grover Cleveland Moye, 58, of Simpson, has been charged by the Pitt Sheriff's Department with breaking into two homes here and taking over $500 in property.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Moye was arrested on Jan. 16 and charged with the Dec. 31 break-in at a house owned by Thomas J. Butler here.

An amplifier, turntable, eight track tape player and two speakers were reported stolen with total value of the items set at $360, the sheriff reported.

Moye is also charged with the Jan. 15 break-in at a dwelling owned by Charlie L. Hardee which resulted in the theft of a rifle and two shotguns valued at $150. Sheriff Tyson said that two of the weapons were recovered.

Bond for Moye was set at $1,000 on each charge and a hearing on the Hardee break-in scheduled for Jan. 22.

Investigating Theft Of Pigs

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of five pigs from the Howard Flora farm on Rt. 2, Farmville.

The pigs, weighing from 65 to 70 pounds each, were taken from the farm between Dec. 18 and Jan. 14, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

The theft was reported to the Sheriff's Department on Jan. 14. Total value of the porkers was estimated at $275, the sheriff said.

HOUSE NEED PAINTING AGAIN?

It's money wasted!

Protect and beautify your home for good with new BIRD SOLID* VINYL SIDING

This siding has solid color all the way through (not just on the surface). So it won't peel, won't blister, WON'T NEED PAINTING, like wood! And that's not all. Because it's solid vinyl, it can't rust, can't conduct electricity like metal siding!

So whether you're fixing up your present home or planning a new one, let us show you the siding that stays beautiful without painting — Bird Solid Vinyl Siding. FREE estimate.

RussCo BIRD SOLID VINYL SIDING

Look for this symbol of quality on the siding you buy. Another fine product of Bird & Son, Inc., quality since 1795.

*Not a paint, not a veneer, not a coating: just 100% solid, lasting vinyl

YOU ASKED FOR IT. YOU GOT IT. TOYOTA

TARHEEL TOYOTA'S 100,000 MILE WARRANTY

For 100,000 miles or 3 years we guarantee the motor, transmission, and rear end of every new Toyota we sell. This warranty is in the form of a legal document and supplements the new car warranty of Toyota Motor Sales, USA. Commercial vehicles are excluded.

USED CAR WARRANTY 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Your Decision: Standard Or Itemized Deductions

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A key step in doing your income taxes is deciding whether it is better to take the standard deduction or to itemize deductions.

This year that is a decision every taxpayer will have to make because of a change in tax law requiring everyone to compute taxable income. That's the amount of money on which you pay taxes and it will be less than you actually earned during the year.

The Internal Revenue Service does provide some guidelines to help you decide which road to take, but you will have to do some preliminary work before you can make a sound judgment.

Basically, that entails a good estimate on how much in itemized deductions you might have to declare, so you can compare this figure against the new, and higher, standard deduction for this year.

There have been few changes in allowable itemized deductions under the new law, but here's a short reminder on what you can deduct.

Medical — you can deduct, within certain limits, medical insurance premiums, prescription drugs and medicines, doctors', dentists' and nurses' fees, the costs of eyeglasses and special medical devices such as orthopedic shoes prescribed by your doctor. You can deduct hospital costs and travel costs to doctors' offices and hospitals — either the actual costs of cabs or buses, or, if you use your car, the mileage of 7 cents per mile.

If you receive reimbursement from a medical insurance plan you must add this income back in.

Follow the schedule A form for itemized deductions carefully. It will tell you when to apply the two limitations of 1 and 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income to your medical deductions.

Taxes — You can deduct state and other local income taxes. These generally will be the amounts shown on your W-2 as state and local income taxes withheld. But if you made any other income tax payments to the state or other local government at any time in 1976, you can deduct this also. Other taxes you can deduct are real estate taxes, state and local gasoline taxes and sales taxes.

The figure for sales taxes can come from the IRS sales tax table or from receipts that you have saved during the year and totaled up. If you use the table, you probably also will be able to deduct any sales tax you paid on the purchase of a boat, airplane, mobile home or materials bought and used to build a home.

Interest — Just about any interest you pay on a loan you are obligated to repay is deductible: mortgage, charge cards, bank and life insurance loans, even interest you may have had to pay because you paid your last year's taxes late is deductible.

Contributions — Gifts of cash or property are deductible if given to churches, nonprofit charitable organizations and schools. The organization generally knows and will tell you if your gift is deductible. You can also take 7 cents per mile when you use your car, and out-of-pocket expenses for volunteer work done for a charitable organization.

Casualty or theft losses — Losses of more than $100, after any insurance reimbursement, are deductible. If you are covered by insurance you must file a claim. Generally deductible is property that is stolen or damaged by fire, storm or car accidents.

Miscellaneous deductions also are allowed. These can be qualifying educational expenses, alimony you paid, money spent looking for a job in your same field of work, union dues and the cost of safety equipment and small tools used in your job. Also, fees to professional organizations and even a fee you may pay someone to do your income taxes.

Only when you've taken this look at itemized deductions are you ready to decide whether itemizing or taking the standard deduction is to your benefit.

If you file jointly as a married couple, or a qualifying widow or widower, and your adjusted gross income is less than $13,125, you should itemize if your deductions total more than $2,100.

Between $13,125 and $17,500, take itemized deductions if they come to more than 16 per cent of your adjusted gross income. For incomes above $17,500, itemizing will save you money if your deductions add up to more than $2,800.

If you file as a single person or unmarried head of household, itemize if your income is less than $10,625 and your deductions total more than $1,700. For incomes between $10,625 and $15,000, itemize if deductions come to more than 16 per cent of adjusted gross income. Finally, you should itemize if your income is above $15,000 and deductions total more than

$2,400. For those married filing separately, your standard deduction limits are one-half the minimum and maximum amounts for married filing jointly. Judge your itemized deductions accordingly.

Remember, if you itemize you should have receipts or other proof of the expenses in case you are audited.

Whatever you decide to do, the deduction is subtracted from your adjusted gross income. After that you subtract $750 times the number of exemptions claimed and the final answer is your taxable income.
