Pres. Carter's Ultimate Goal: Banning Nuclear Weapons In The World

By FRANK CORMIER and LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is calling for a halt to all nuclear testing, "instantly and completely," as part of a broader program to curb the spread of nuclear weapons and ultimately ban them from the earth.

In his first interview as President, conducted Sunday for publication today, Carter acknowledged that he did not know whether the Soviet Union would agree to his proposal for a quick halt that would stop even underground testing. But, he said, "They have sent an encouraging message back."

The fledgling President, meeting in his Oval Office with four reporters for The Associated Press and United Press International, also expressed optimism that there will be "fairly rapid ratification" of a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviets.

And he said his National Security Council is in agreement on the need to reduce overseas sales of American-made weapons, but that he does not anticipate "a moratorium" on such sales.

On strategic arms talks, Carter hinted that he might be willing to bypass for later consideration a long-standing East-West debate over how to deal with the U.S. cruise missile and Soviet backfire bomber in any new strategic arms pact. He declared: "I would not let those two items stand in the way of some agreement."

Asserting that he "very deeply" meant what he said in his inaugural address about ultimately eliminating all nuclear weapons everywhere, Carter, in his most detailed national security-foreign policy statement to date, envisioned a three-step effort aiming toward that end.

—First, he said, the two superpowers would have to "put firm limits on ourselves," as the objective of a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT).

—Then the United States and the Soviet Union would go a step further and actually reduce their own stockpiles of atomic weapons which would, he said, "demonstrate to the world we are sincere."

—From that point he would seek "reductions including all nations, even those who have a relatively small inventory now."

"I would like to proceed quickly and aggressively with a comprehensive test ban treaty," he said. "I am in favor of eliminating the testing of all nuclear devices, instantly and completely." He said this included underground testing as well.

And, the President said, the United States will use "every means available to us" to keep nuclear arms from spreading to countries that do not have them now.

Carter's apparent optimism about prospects for negotiations with the Soviets was matched by an expression of confidence that a Middle East peace conference is "very likely this year."

Asked if he would approve Palestinian representation at such a meeting, the President said the matter has not been decided but that Palestinian participation "would probably be as part of one of the Arab delegations."

In a relaxed mood, Carter spoke softly, discussing these other topics, ranging from

Doubt NATO Able To Contain Attack

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — NATO's armed forces are in such disarray and poor condition that they possibly could not withstand an attack by the Warsaw Pact nations of Eastern Europe, says a new Senate report.

In an unusually grim report to the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said Soviet forces in Eastern Europe have the capability to launch, with little warning, a "potentially devastating" attack in central Europe.

"The significance of a Pact capability to launch such an attack from virtually a standing start cannot be exaggerated," said the report, released as the Armed Services Committee prepared to open annual hearings on U.S. military posture and weapons needs.

The head of a French think tank, meanwhile, said in an interview that the debate in the United States about the possibility of the Soviet Union having achieved military superiority is a false one and U.S. forces are still "clearly dominant."

The statement came from Gen. George Buis, who retired in 1972 as director of the French armed forces' Center for Superior Military Studies. He is now president of the Foundation for National Defense Studies, a three-year-old organization partly financed by the French government.

Buis said recent comments by American military and political leaders that the favorable balance of power was slipping away from the United States were part of "an old operation that we've seen before."

"The facts don't back up the statements of alarm," he said.

"They happen, though, every year when they're about to vote on the U.S. military budget and right on schedule with the NATO annual general meeting."

The Senate report, made after a tour of NATO countries, called for a top priority conference of NATO political and military leaders.

It said U.S. strategic planning assumptions concerning the likely warning time and duration of a European war must be revised, while NATO forces undergo extensive overhaul and modernization to give them a "quantum jump" in conventional firepower.

U.S. military policy in Europe assumes three weeks' warning of any major attack and that NATO's forward defenses, by falling back to absorb the impact, could be reinforced in time to halt the onslaught.

The Senate study said NATO deficiencies would cut the time to prepare a defense and ability to maintain it. It said that could mean the loss of so much German territory that civilian and military authority could be demoralized, and the country lost.

And it said Soviet tactical nuclear forces exceed NATO's in range and destructive force, meaning the Soviet force would be more effective if used after NATO conventional units had been driven back.

A Pentagon-authorized study last year by former Gen. James L. Hollingsworth urged that NATO forces be deployed farther forward and that they be prepared to fight a short war. Last week, outgoing Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld warned that the Soviets could commit half a million men, all in armored or other mobile units, to a "blitzkrieg" type of surprise attack against NATO.

From Mondale To NATO: More U.S. Help Planned

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale told the North Atlantic Alliance today that President Carter is considering increases in the U.S. contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization despite his plans to cut the Pentagon budget.

Mondale, in a speech to the North Atlantic Council, said the new President is determined to reduce waste and inefficiency in U.S. military spending.

"His new budget and these efficiencies will not result in any decrease in planned investments in NATO defense, and these plans involve some growth," Mondale said.

He added that Carter told him he is prepared to consider increasing the U.S. investment in NATO's defense.

The speech, a highlight of the first stop on Mondale's 10-day tour of America's leading allies, was made behind closed doors, but copies were made available later.

Mondale told the council: "It is easy to lose sight of the need for adequate defense," particularly in a time of détente. "But this need is inescapable. It demands continuing efforts in common," he declared.

The vice president's day started with a promise to Belgian Premier Leon Tindemans that the European Common Market would have its own separate representative at the summit economic conference of leading industrial non-Communist nations this spring.

Mondale and Tindemans met over breakfast. The vice president told reporters afterward the Belgian gave him "good wishes and many fine suggestions that we can use in the development of our policies."

Mondale's pledge that the Common Market would be represented by its own delegation at the summit and not by its biggest members was in response to complaints of Belgium and other smaller members that they were not properly represented at the two previous meetings held in France and Puerto Rico.

Mondale said this first meeting of his 10-day tour marked the start of a "very close, cooperative, respectful relationship with the governments of Western Europe."

Cutback In Bureaucracy And Adding New State Jobs Compatible: Hunt

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt sees nothing contradictory between his call for a reduction in the state's bureaucracy and his advocacy of programs that would add 5,683 jobs to the state payroll.

In all, the budget presented to the General Assembly last Monday carried funds for 7,690 new jobs, including those in the Hunt program.

The governor's proposals would add 5,401 teacher aides for the Hunt reading program, 94 persons in the court system for the speedy trial program, 102 additional jobs, mostly guards in the prison system, 74 employees to carry out the governor's program to open schools for community participation and 12 others.

Hunt has called for a 2 per cent reduction in the state bureaucracy next fiscal year and an additional 1 per cent the following year. But he said the reduction would be obtained outside the classroom.

In justifying the 5,401 teacher aides needed for his reading program, Hunt said that "one thing the people spoke clearly on (in the November election) was the reading program."

The 2,013 new jobs called for in the proposed budget in addition to those in the Hunt program would include more than 600 in the Department of Correction, mostly prison guards; more than 300 new teachers to reduce class sizes in kindergarten, and 168 new positions in the Department of Human Resources, mostly orderlies and nurses for mental institutions.

The new jobs would expand a state payroll that already totals 149,489 jobs. The list includes 78,410 jobs in public schools, 7,281 in community colleges, 9,275 university faculty and administrative positions and 51,409 general government workers under the State Personnel Act.

The 7,690 new positions in the proposed budget compare to 7,333 positions added in the present biennium, 13,329 added in 1973-75 and only 1,688 added in 1971-73. The total for 1973-75 and the present biennium included a large number of teachers added to man the

BATTER-LITE?

I have heard of a sugarless cake mix called Batter-Lite, but have been unable to find it in the stores in which I've looked. I'm supposed to be on a sugar-free diet, and would like to try this to see if it appeases my sweet tooth. J. J.

Mary Ann Barnes, a local dietician, did the leg work for us on this item. She called various local grocery stores, asking if they carry Batter-lite products. All said no. But Roy Thomas, assistant manager of Harris' Supermarket No. 1 soon called her back to report that he had found a distributor which carries the product and that the Harris' chain would soon be stocking it as a result of her call.

In the meantime, she checked the Diabetes Association literature and learned that the product does, indeed, contain no sugar. She was concerned because, although a food may sometimes be labeled "dietetic—contains no sugar," it usually contains calories, which a diabetic must also watch very carefully. She learned, though, that the Batter-lite dietetic cake mix contains approximately 110 to 120 calories per serving and would be incorporated into the diabetic's meal plan by counting it as one bread exchange and one fat exchange.

We appreciate Mrs. Barnes' help on providing you this answer.

NO MORE JULIET JONES—WHY?

Why has the Reflector's comic strip, Juliet Jones, been canceled? A. C.

Managing Editor Alvin Taylor says Juliet Jones was dropped because, according to our survey of reader preferences made last year, it was the least read comic strip carried by The Daily Reflector. Our respondents told us that 27 per cent read it regularly; 12 per cent occasionally; and 61 per cent seldom or never. This seemed to follow the national trend, which seems to be away from continued comic strips, he said.

Juliet Jones is being replaced with a strip that has rated well in other cities, "Frank and Ernest." We hope it's liked here.

Demo Meeting Slated Tonight

The Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the Riverside Restaurant on N. Green Street.

Betty Speir, county chairman, said that the State Democratic Executive Committee announced that county precinct meetings will be held on Feb. 10 and conventions are scheduled in the counties for March 19.

Carter Tells Cabinet They'll Be Administering Government

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter held his first business session today with his Cabinet and pledged to "run the affairs of the federal government through you" and to be "always available in person and by telephone."

Carter and his Cabinet members took seats around the long table in the White House Cabinet room. A fire crackled in the fire place.

"This is going to be a learning process for all of us, especially at first," Carter said and invited suggestions at any time for improvements in the way he runs what he has called his "Cabinet administration of our government."

"If there is a message you'd like to get to me I'm always available in person and by telephone," Carter said. "I'm going to run the affairs of the federal government through you. This hasn't been the case in the past."

A dozen Cabinet members and Cabinet-level officers were sworn in Sunday at the White House, and Carter emphasized then that his White House staff will not dominate Cabinet secretaries. Three more Cabinet members still await confirmation by the Senate.

New N.C. Death Penalty Assured

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A survey of 170 state legislators shows a new death penalty law is a foregone conclusion, but the fate of the Equal Rights Amendment is another matter.

Although more than half the legislators expressed general support for ratification of the ERA, the survey showed an insufficient number of hard commitments in each chamber of the General Assembly to ensure its passage.

ERA supporters have failed in two previous ratification attempts, in the 1973 and 1975 sessions.

Indiana last week became the 35th state to ratify the proposed amendment. Approval is needed from 38 states before it becomes law. Ratification in North Carolina requires a majority in both the Senate and House.

The survey was a joint effort by capital reporters of seven North Carolina daily newspapers. The legislators were interviewed over a two-week period.

The death penalty bill is considered a lead pipe cinch to win passage, replacing the law that was struck down last summer by the U.S. Supreme Court.

However, the new law probably would not encompass rape, since there is considerable sentiment against making rape a capital offense.

However, only nine senators and 27 House members said they opposed the death penalty for first degree murder.

State Prisons 'Not Even Close' To Requirements

PRISON OVERFLOW — Inmates bunk in the hallway at the foot of a cellblock in Central Prison because there are more than 1,400 inmates and fewer than 1,000 spaces. (AP Wirephoto)

Editor's note: North Carolina officials only have to look as far as Alabama to learn what one federal judge believes are constitutional guarantees of prisoners. Here is how North Carolina stands.

WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Conditions in North Carolina's prisons fall piteously below the minimum standards established for Alabama by a federal judge last year.

The state does not come close to supplying the court-required amount of living space per prisoner, houses most inmates in dormitories rather than cells and doesn't have enough guards, plumbing or activities for those it keeps.

A number of pending inmate suits in this state could theoretically inspire such a ruling. Its effect, if similar standards were applied, could force the state to spend vast amounts of taxpayers' money.

"We're just sort of waiting for the other shoe to drop," said Jim Johnson, a General Assembly staff researcher working with a penal study commission.

As in Alabama, he said, the court could take control of everything from the amount of living space down to how often each prisoner gets clean bed-sheets.

Amos Reed, the newly-named North Carolina secretary of correction, was with the Florida prison system when a federal judge passed similar action there. He said he expects the courts would look for reasonable attempts by the state to provide decent conditions and protection from violence.

"But as a generalization, any of the federal mandates laid down around the country would call for massive injection of dollars, new resources and additional staff," he said.

The Alabama order was issued in a class action suit by an inmate, Jerry Lee Pugh, against the state and its prison officials. The judge held that conditions conceded by lawyers for the state violated Eighth Amendment guarantees against cruel and unusual punishment.

A "minimum constitutional standard" of the court was that the number of inmates in each prison not exceed its design capacity.

In North Carolina, however, prisoners are jammed side by side in dormitories, hallways and cellblock floors. The system is one fourth above capacity. There were 13,369 inmates one day this month in a system designed for 10,980.

"We were sleeping so close together I could stretch my arm out and hit the next guy," a recent parolee from a rural prison camp said. "And I don't like sleeping that close to another man."

In other Alabama standards, North Carolina is likewise lacking: —Dormitories. Only minimum custody inmates may be assigned to dormitories, the judge ruled in Alabama. In North Carolina, "the vast majority" of all prisoners, more than 10,000 of them, are housed in dorms, prison officials say, even though only 4,560 are in minimum custody.

—Living space. Each prisoner shall have 60 square feet of living space under the judge's ruling. In North Carolina, few prison units have half that much space. Some, such as the Mecklenburg and Guilford units, average as little as 17 square feet per inmate.

"Three or four units might meet the test. Beyond that, we're pretty deficient," Johnson said.

—Guards. Guards were ordered stationed inside all living areas, including dormitories, at all times. "There's no way our staffing pattern even remotely resembles that," Johnson said.

In most rural prison camp dormitories an officer is stationed outside barred doors at night, and state correction officials admit guards do not go inside after lockup, even in the event of violence, until reinforcements arrive.

—Plumbing. There should be one working toilet and urinal per 15 inmates, and one lavatory per ten inmates, the federal judge said. "We couldn't approach that without a lot of expense," conceded prisons Director Ralph Edwards.

Conversations with inmates from camps all over the state included repeated complaints of inadequate toilet facilities, with as few as three, two or even one working toilet in dormitories for 60 to 100 men.

There are other areas named by the federal order where North Carolina fails to come even close to providing the minimum, such as a job for every inmate and a full-time recreation director at every prison.

The order says each prisoner shall have a bed off the floor, but 50 to 60 prisoners sleep on mattresses lying on the floor of the Western Correctional Center, a 16-floor prison at Morganton that is the state's newest institution.

The order also eliminated the flow of currency inside prison — a flow allowed in North Carolina, where inmates can have up to $15 at a time.

Central to the intervention in Alabama was that state's lack of a classification system for inmates, to distinguish between minimum, medium and maximum security risks. "In procedural matters, at least on paper, we're in much, much better shape than Alabama," Johnson said. "Now whether that's the case if you went in and looked at the facilities here, I don't know...The classification system in North Carolina has pretty much broken down."

"At Central, (Warden) Sam Garrison's decision on whether to move to a new classification is contingent pretty much on whether a bed is available," he said.

Decline Laid To Economy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "When you have a good economy, people tend not to be interested in our type of education," said Julian C. Wingfield, director of operations for the state department of community colleges.

That's just one of several reasons for declining enrollment within the system of 57 community colleges and technical institutions.

In one year, officials have watched enrollment of Full-Time Equivalent (FTE) students in the system drop from 102,451 to an estimated 97,000.

Drops in other statistics have paralleled that of enrollment. During the fall of 1975, 33,163 community college students were receiving veterans' benefits. The number dropped to 22,719 last fall — a reduction of 10,444.

The reason for the drop was that benefits expired last spring for veterans who served in the military between 1955 and 1966.

Accompanying the other declines, all state agencies suffered a $10 million budget reduction during the last quarter of fiscal 1975-76, forcing a number of community colleges and technical schools to reduce their programs during the summer session, Wingfield said.

In turn, he said, the improved economy caused some students to enter the job market as job opportunities became available instead of enrolling in school.

Wingfield termed the decline a temporary "aberration" and official projections are for 114,724 students in the system next year and 122,845 the following year.

Prison Rackets Persist Despite Added Control

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Central Prison is the keystone of the state corrections system and one of the system's principal headaches, but its warden contends changes have been made to lessen the problems that sparked Central's last major disturbance. Rackets which provoked the riot still exist, says Central Warden Sam Garrison, but the hobby shop and other areas where the rackets festered are under tighter control.

Six inmates were killed and scores others injured when troopers fired on rioting inmates in the prison's open courtyard in April, 1968. V. Lee Bounds, head of the prison system then, said his attempts to limit highly-profitable inmate rackets sparked the riot.

"The inmate bosses running the rackets knew we were trying to get an incentive wage (for prisoners)," said Bounds, now a University of North Carolina professor. "They saw in it the loss of their kingdom — they would lose their inmate-slaves."

The worst racket was in the hobby shop, he said, where inmate leaders were selling large amounts of inmate-produced crafts to outside sources and keeping the profit.

"They were making more than I was," Bounds said.

The riot, which began as a refusal by inmates to return to work after lunch, came after a series of fires in the Prison Enterprises building and after officials segregated the suspected racket leaders, Bounds said.

Release of those leaders from isolation was one of several demands rioting inmates made.

Now, Central Warden Garrison says, rackets still exist inside the granite walls. But only 25 inmates have access to the hobby shop, he said.

"There are rackets in every prison in the United States," Garrison said. Small wages of up to $1 a day have eased the problem, he said, but there are not enough paying jobs.

Only 450 inmates are paid for their work, he said, out of the prison's population of more than 1,400. "I've got a lot just walking around the yard with nothing to do," he said.

Completed in 1884 after 14 years' construction, Central has spaces for fewer than 1,000 inmates. It accommodates the additional 400 men in hallways and leaking dorms which resemble warehouses from the Industrial Revolution.

It is the state's designated maximum-security unit. In reality it is a salad bowl of prisoners of different classifications because there are not enough facilities to segregate all the hardened felons.

N.C. Traffic Kills Thirteen

By The Associated Press
Thirteen persons died in weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina, raising the state's total for the year to 64, the Highway Patrol reported Sunday night.

Sixty-nine persons died during the same period in 1976, the patrol said.

Four persons died Saturday when a car ran a stop sign and into the path of an oncoming tractor trailer rig near Hendersonville, the patrol said.

The dead were identified as David Heatherly, 32, of Breward; his son, Timmy, 10; his sister-in-law, Patty Heatherly, of Hendersonville, and her 4-year-old daughter, Buffy Ray.

Five others were injured in the accident, including three seriously.

Lucille Page Carter, 58, of Bladensboro, was killed Sunday when the car she was driving went off Interstate 95, crashed into a bridge support and burned. The patrol said the accident occurred just north of Saint Pauls.

Kenneth W. Vestal, 18, of Randleman, died early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off a road and hit a tree in Randolph County.

A South Carolina teenager, identified as Jerry Smalley, 17, of Chesney, was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off a road in Rutherford County.

Two Vale men were killed early Sunday when the car in which they were riding ran off a road in Lincoln County and overturned. They were identified as John Tallent, 29, and Randy Wayne Cook, 27.

An 8-year-old Rowland boy was killed Saturday when he was struck by a vehicle on a rural road south of Pembroke. He was identified as Barry Dean Lowery.

Marvin Godwin, 55, of Four Oaks, was killed when his car rammed the side of a freight train at a rural crossing near Erwin.

Ricky Allen Banks, 20, of Asheville, was killed when his car went out of control on an Asheville street and struck an embankment.

Hardin Wyatt Jarrett Jr., 56, of Eden, died when the car he was driving struck the rear of another vehicle, overturned and burned. The accident occurred on N.C. 14, five miles south of Eden, the patrol said.

Six-Year-Old Killed By Dog

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department said officials would talk with legal advisors to see what should be done with three Great Dane dogs, one of which killed a 6-year-old boy Sunday.

Michael Earl Shaw apparently was playing with the dogs, two of which are grown, in the backyard of his home when one of the bigger dogs attacked him, said Cumberland County Sheriff O.F. Jones.

"The mother missed the child and she and the babysitter went out in the backyard and found him dead. There were no witnesses. The mother heard nothing," Jones said.

The youth had some marks about his throat, authorities said.

Michael was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Shaw, to whom the dogs belonged, Jones said. The father, a military man, is stationed Korea.

Argentine Hikes Its Allowance

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The Argentine government has increased the foreign exchange allowance for residents going abroad from $1,500 to $2,500.

Only $250 of the total foreign exchange is provided in cash. The remainder is in the form of fund transfers to the countries to be visited.

'Lulubelle' Wiseman Will Vote On ERA According To Her Mail

Young Careerist Named By Local BPW Club

The Business and Professional Women of Greenville held its Young Careerist contest recently and named Julie Wilson as winner.

A graduate of ECU with a B.S. degree in interior design, Miss Wilson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wilson of Greenville. She is employed by A. B. Whitley, Inc. Interiors and also teaches interior design at Pitt Technical Institute through its extension program.

A member of the First Christian Church, Miss Wilson is active as a choir member, Vacation Bible School teacher and is a past president of the N. C. State Christian Youth Fellowship.

Miss Wilson will compete on the district level of competition this spring and the state competition will be held in June. All state winners are then honored on the national level.

The Young Careerist program is sponsored by the Business and Professional Women to elevate, encourage and promote better business interest and standards for women in business and careers.

Judges for the evening were Janice H. Faulkner, Daniel LeRoux, Juanita McCarthy and Rebecca Starkey.

Bridge Winners Announced

Wednesday morning duplicate winners at Planters Bank were: Mrs. Stuart Page and Mrs. Gretchen Skinner, first; tied for second were Mrs. Lib LeConte and Mrs. Eloise Gabbert with Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Smiley.

Wednesday afternoon winners were: Mrs. George Martin and Neil Bellinger, first; Mrs. W. R. Harris and David Proctor, second; Mrs. Frank Moseley and Claude Goodman, third;

Mrs. Helen Harris and Mrs. Mavis Smith, fourth; Mrs. Harold Forbes and Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, fifth.

Saturday afternoon Membership Tournament winners at First Federal included:

Mrs. F. C. Aldridge and Dave Proctor, first; Suzanne Cunningham and Lewis Newsome, second; Mrs. M. L. Eason and Mrs. Robert Exum, third; Mrs. Glenn Land and Mrs. Wesley Webb, fourth; Mrs. Robert Barnhill and Mrs. Joyce Lamm, fifth; Mrs. Nellye Knight and Mrs. Dorothy Ritchy, sixth.

Program Given By Mrs. Spilman

The January meeting of the Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Harriet Roseveare.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, guest speaker, spoke on "Progress of Women Since Colonial Days to the Present Time."

She stated that women began to rise after the war between the states. In 1839, in Mississippi, was the first time a woman was allowed to own land in her own name. Mrs. Spilman named 12 ladies who not only played an important part in homemaking but in the political world from Colonial Days to the present time.

Mrs. Robert Ison, Mrs. Doris Ballinger, Mrs. Eleanor Heine and Mrs. W. S. Kinger were welcomed as new members by Mrs. Ethel Ricks' chairman.

It was announced that the Arts Festival will be held at the club building Feb. 18-19.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joyce Hastings.

Hostesses were Mrs. Roseveare, Mrs. Thelma Lanier, Mrs. Cleve Wallace, Mrs. Meryl Austin, Mrs. Cotten Smith and Mrs. Eula Mae Cannon.

Miss Taylor Is BPW Speaker

"How To Conduct A Meeting" was the program topic for the monthly meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club held Thursday evening at the Ramada Inn.

Parliamentarian Alya Rae Taylor conducted the program.

It was announced that State President Joette Rinehart will be the speaker at the February meeting. Irma Worthington reported her interest in the upcoming consideration of ERA and encouraged members to write to the legislators and congressmen.

Guests for the meeting were Dorothy Sullivan, Marguerite Wilson, Barbara Pate and Rachel Croom.

Hostesses for the evening were members of the Telephone and Yearbook Committees.

The meeting was concluded by President Ruth Scott.

of Inglewood. "I loved the work," she mused, "but I had been doing it for 38 years and I just decided it was time to relax."

Despite the trend, Miss Knudson was optimistic that another generation of doll doctors may be coming of age now. An increasing number of young persons are enrolling in crafts classes she teaches at her shop, she says.

SPRUCE PINE, N.C. (AP) — Myrtle "Lulubelle" Wiseman will talk about the Equal Rights Amendment, but mostly because she was taught that ladies respond politely when they are asked a question. It is not one of her favorite subjects.

The ERA has caused her pain and anguish. It brought villifying letters from people she never met. It made her break down and cry in public.

She knows she will have no choice but to talk about it soon enough, when the legislature in North Carolina, and the legislatures of 15 other states, battle over ERA once again.

Mrs. Wiseman, a retired singer, had never heard of the Equal Rights Amendment until just after the 1974 elections.

Watergate dragged down a lot of Republicans that year, including the incumbent representative of the state district that includes Mrs. Wiseman's home county of Avery. She was the Democratic nominee.

Hers is a rural district, like so many districts in the 16 states reconsidering ERA in 1977; districts that have resisted the feminist movement and the ERA. It is hard by the Tennessee border and full of rugged, pine-covered mountains, farms wedged in narrow valleys, and roads that twist and

Key To Problem Fits The Car

DEAR ABBY: As many others have said, I never thought I'd be writing a letter to Dear Abby, but I must confess, I don't know where to turn.

Our 17-year-old son has become interested in a girl. We've always wanted him to have girlfriends, but this one might not be good for him. A week ago Saturday, on their first date, they went to a movie. (We let him use the family car.) He came home at 7:45 Sunday morning!

He said that after the movie, he went to her house to watch television and they both fell asleep. Last Saturday night he went out at 7 p.m. and came home at 4:30 Sunday morning.

Wouldn't you say that something is drastically wrong with a mother who would allow a 15-year-old girl to keep such hours?

Any advice his father and I give him causes nothing but back talk. We've always had a good relationship with our son until now. What do you suggest?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: I suggest that his father have a man-to-man talk with the boy. Of course the girl's parents should place some restrictions on her with regard to the hours she keeps, but since they do not (or she ignores them), it's up to you to put some on your son. Tell him what time you want him home, and if he doesn't comply, the key to the situation is the one that fits the car.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the following situation:

When friends just drop in, should the hostess excuse herself and put on a pot of coffee, or get a cold drink and serve it with a sandwich, cake, cookies or whatever she has on hand? Or should she ask her guests if they would like a hot drink, a cold one or a sandwich?

My husband and I are on opposite sides of this argument and need you to settle it for us.

MILLIE IN MARYLAND

DEAR MILLIE: The gracious hostess does not inquire. She acts. (P.S. Drop-in visitors should not expect a feed-in.)

DEAR ABBY: For the last 12 years I have gone to the same hairdresser once a week for a shampoo and set. It now costs $6 plus a dollar tip and the cost of parking.

Every Christmas I have given my hairdresser a lovely gift, carefully chosen—something I would like to receive myself.

It just occurred to me, Abby, that inasmuch as I tip my hairdresser every week, SHE (or the owner) should be giving ME a small present at Christmas in appreciation of my business.

Next year should I ask, "Which would you prefer, a tip every week or a nice Christmas present?"

I would appreciate your opinion and those of your readers and hairdressers.

TIRED OF GIVING

DEAR TIRED: Don't ask. Those who perform personal services NEED tips, but feeling as you do, skip the Christmas gift.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Marriage Announced

Mr. Thomas A. Buck of Greenville, and Mrs. Mary Alene Buck of Tabor City announce the marriage to their daughter, Sheryl Lynn, to Randall Bullard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thelbert Bullard of Tabor City, on Jan. 9, 1977. The couple is residing in Thomasville.

them petty, to which women had been subject for generations. It also would add to their responsibilities.

Mrs. Wiseman was forced to consider exactly where she stood on feminism. She had never considered herself a women's liberationist. She went to Raleigh still uncertain.

As a shy freshman, Mrs. Wiseman was happy to find new friends among the 11 women in the 120-member House. All of them wanted her to pledge her vote for the ERA, and that decided her. She gave them her commitment.

But by early 1975, just after Mrs. Wiseman's arrival, it was clear that the ERA was not going to sail smoothly into the Constitution, as had once seemed likely.

Congress endorsed the amendment in 1972, and in rapid order, it won the approval of 30 states. But in 1974, only three additional states ratified. The amendment requires the ratification of 38 states.

In 1975, they won just one state. None was added to the ERA column in 1976 and Nebraska and Tennessee voted to rescind their ratifications.

The lobbyists for both sides stalked the halls of the North Carolina legislature every day when ERA was on the agenda in 1975. The pro-ERA women stopped in only occasionally to make sure Mrs. Wiseman wasn't wavering.

In contrast, her tiny office was overrun by lobbyists against ERA. The easiest to deal with were those who baked bread for legislators as a reminder of where they felt a women's work should be done.

The hard ones were those who rode to Raleigh in groups for a day, traveling in church buses and sporting "STOP ERA" buttons. They crowded into her office, reading Bible verses they felt showed that God was against ERA. It all made Mrs. Wiseman uncomfortable.

"It was hectic during those weeks. People were all either blindly for it or blindly against it. They just tore me to pieces," she said.

The pressure was intense from Mrs. Wiseman's home district, an area that has resisted most social change as stubbornly as it resisted the repeal of prohibition.

The people of the district began writing letters to Mrs. Wiseman. Most of them, she recalls, were against the ERA.

The galleries were jammed when the North Carolina House began voting. Mrs. Wiseman, near the end of the alphabetical roll, cast her "yes" in a timid voice. The ERA passed, 60-58, on its first reading. The second reading required by the state was the next day.

Mrs. Wiseman can't remember all the people who called her during those 24 hours to demand that she change her mind.

She buckled. "I was afraid. I have to live with my friends and neighbors for the rest of my life and I didn't want them hating me."

When the clerk reached her name the next day, Mrs. Wiseman answered "no." There were gasps in the gallery. She buried her face in her arms and cried. The amendment failed, 61-57, and angry feminists vowed to defeat Mrs. Wiseman and three other rural legislators who had reneged on earlier commitments.

But when she hit the campaign trail in 1976, not one person, Mrs. Wiseman says, ever asked about the ERA. In Mrs. Wiseman's rural district, there was no feminist movement.

Yet, it is in states like North Carolina and districts like Mrs. Wiseman's that the ERA must succeed. The 15 other states that have not ratified the amendment are Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Utah and Virginia.

"It would be fair to say that the women's movement has had the least impact among fundamentalist religious groups and in rural areas," says Sheila Greenwald, executive director of ERAmerica, the national pro-amendment lobbying group.

Lulubelle Wiseman has already decided what she is going to do about the ERA. She is getting off the hook.

She has announced to her constituents that she will save every legitimate piece of mail on the ERA that she receives. When the day of reckoning comes, she will count the letters for and the letters against. And she will vote accordingly, no matter who calls.

Doll Doctors Are Seeing Upsurge In New Patients

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A renewed interest in refurbishing dolls — both for sentimental reasons and for antique collections — is bringing more patients to a small, and until recently diminishing, group of "doll hospitals."

Doll doctors — "Dolls get sick, too, just like people," one of them observed — aren't new, but they have been making a comeback in the past few years because of the trend toward nostalgia.

"I'm just inundated," said Betty Kilgore, 50, who operates Betty's Doll Shop and Hospital in suburban Huntington Park. Most of the year her shop is open five days a week, but during the recent holiday season she stayed open three days to have the rest of the time to work on dolls slated to be given as gifts.

One of the youngest local doll surgeons, Ingrid Knudson, 28, said the busiest time in her Long Beach shop, Ingrid's House of Arts and Crafts, is after the holidays.

"People go to visit their Aunt Harriet for Christmas and she gives them a doll she got from her grandmother. And the next week they're in here asking me to restore it," the former art student said.

The type of doctoring the dolls need ranges from replacing torn-off limbs to transplanting hair. One wooden doll even had a bad infection of termites.

"There's a lot of satisfaction in this work," Mrs. Kilgore said.

"You can take a doll that has been badly battered and someone was going to throw away, and you can fix it up again."

James White, 69, said most of the people who come to his American Doll Hospital and Toy Shoppe in Los Angeles are collectors, and most of the dolls they bring are of the wood-and-sawdust composition genre popular in the 1930s, many of them styled after such actresses as Shirley Temple, Deanna Durbin, Margaret O'Brien and Judy Garland.

"Some of the dolls that were least popular in their day are the most popular now," said one doll restorer, "probably because there were so few of them made that they are collector's items."

But White said an era in doll repairing may be coming to an end.

"Almost everyone who worked at refinishing the composition dolls of the '30s has retired or died," he said.

A quick check of phone books for the Los Angeles area showed that three doll hospitals had closed their doors for the last time within a year.

One of those who closed up shop was Vivien Williams, 82,

Suggestions Given For Organization

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — If getting organized was one of your New Year's resolutions, a family economics and management specialist has suggestions for how to go about it.

First, don't hide valuable papers that should be kept at home. Hiding them usually makes them accessible only to curious small children and experienced thieves, says Kathy Prochaska, an Extension specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Instead, she suggests a standard filing system that is always accessible, making it easy to file each item as soon as it arrives.

You'll need:

A tax file with a separate folder for each year and space enough to hold six years' worth, in case back returns are questioned;

An action file for unpaid bills, sales slips for items returned to stores but not yet credited to your account, installment loan payment books and any pending family business;

A warranty file for appliance warranties, instruction booklets and bills showing dates of major repairs;

A check file for monthly bundles of cancelled checks and deposit slips with corresponding bank statements. Any that relate to tax returns should be kept, like the returns, for six years;

An alphabetical file for miscellaneous items such as insurance policies, copies of wills, diplomas, school record transcripts, important letters, membership cards for organizations and lists of investments.

Ms. Prochaska also recommends safe-deposit box storage at your bank for such items as stock and bond certificates, expensive jewelry worn infrequently, military service discharge papers, a lot survey indicating house boundary lines if you are a homeowner, loan agreements, leases and passports.

Show Place Quickly Outgrown

A few years back North Carolina's then new Legislative building was considered one of the show places for a State Legislature in the nation.

It was 13 years ago when the building was constructed and the Legislature moved from the old historic Capitol building to the far more roomy quarters a few blocks away.

There was much praise for the structure and the facilities it offered at that time. The building even attracted national attention.

Alas, now it is being said that the building is inadequate and that a $7.5 million annex is needed.

Clyde Bell, Legislative services officer, says the building is inadequate "because of the unforeseen development of staff and the needs of legislators which mushroomed almost immediately after this building was completed."

The expanding staff included research and service staffs. The General Assembly members were provided small offices in the new building. Now, however, they have secretaries and it is felt that offices should be revised to provide two room suites for the lawmakers.

Ball justifies the rapid increase in staff by pointing to a Citizens Conference on State Legislatures which put North Carolina's Legislature 47th among the state. Cited was lack of effective staff support.

That may be correct, but it appears that the staff has grown tremendously if the legislative building has been outgrown.

Before we make funds available to build an annex, we think there should be a careful study made of the staff already on hand to make certain that the numbers of employees can't be held down.

Does every legislator need an individual secretary, or could a secretary's pool be more effective? With careful organization, could the present staff efficiently do the job without adding additional people?

With the construction of an annex, we can be sure that the legislative staff will expand to fill it up. Let's be certain we need those additional people before we provide space for them.

Must Come To Grips With Reality

The energy crisis is real enough and the Federal Energy Administration is forecasting tight supplies and rising prices for years in the future.

Sooner or later our nation is going to have to come to grips with that reality. Then we will require that autos get 35 miles per gallon — is presently feasible — rather than 12 or 15 miles per gallon. This will be required by law.

Through building codes we will require more adequate insulation to conserve fuel.

And we will get serious about alternate energy sources.

If we continue to ignore these things we can be sure we are heading for an energy disaster.

Ethics Rule Enforceable?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Has Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. created a "no-win" situation with ethics rules for top executive in his administration?

There are some clear signs that future conflicts will develop parallel to those which have been witnessed recently involving the Judicial Standards Commission.

That ethics-enforcement agency is widely regarded as an in-house organization for judges which, by reason of rigid secrecy regulations, raises as many questions as it resolves.

And while Gov. Hunt's Ethics Board is still in the formative stages, it is certain that similar secrecy will surround its deliberations.

The Governor's executive order creating the Ethics Board makes it a part of the State Department of Administration. Filings of stock and real estate holdings and sources of income are to be revealed publicly.

Charges Made

The problem comes, however, when a complaint is made regarding some alleged violation of the ethical conduct code by a top official.

The governor's executive order sets up the frame work for secrecy surrounding such a complaint, the investigation and hearing by the Ethics Board, and the resolution of that complaint.

Gov. Hunt says there is some flexibility for the Ethics Board to formulate its own rules regarding public disclosure in such an event. But he goes on to add that public disclosure of frivolous or malicious charges and unsubstantiated claims from an allegedly wronged citizen could be damaging to a member of his administration.

When a recommendation for action is made to the governor by the Ethics Board, and he responds, Hunt says, then would be the time for public disclosure of the charges and report of the investigation.

But just as has been seen in the workings of the Judicial Standards Commission, that procedure leaves room for some serious questions: what if the Ethics Board concludes there is no reason for even pursuing an allegation; what if the Ethics Board concludes after preliminary investigation that further consideration is not warranted; what if the Ethics Board does decide there is a problem, but it could be easily fixed by a pledge from the wrongdoer; what if the Ethics Board makes a recommendation to the governor, but the governor decides not to go along with that, taking no action instead?

No Answers

In such cases—just as with the Judicial Standards Commission—the public would be left wondering.

That commission—and presumably the new Ethics Board as well—will not even admit that it had a case under active review unless the person under investigation requests such disclosure.

Until this past year, the Judicial Standards Commission had investigated numerous allegations, but had never sent a recommendation for censure or

To the editor:

The news item, 'Bills To Remedy State Tax Laws Are Filed' that appeared in the Jan. 16 issue of The Daily Reflector states that Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, filed a bill that would use a tax break as an energy conservation enticement. Under the measure a homeowner who installed solar heating and cooling equipment would be allowed to take a tax credit of 25 per cent of the equipment cost, up to $1,000.

However proper the motivation or intent, such a bill could be considered unfair in that people of modest means cannot afford installation of solar heating and cooling equipment. Therefore, they are not in the position to have the tax credit work for them. Whereas the people who can afford installation of such a system would be the ones taking advantage of the tax credit. Obviously, the bill would be working in favor of this group of people.

Furthermore, it was stated that bills to relieve taxes that are considered unfair are introduced each session, but most fail to win approval because legislators commonly say they are reluctant to impose new taxes to make up lost revenues—not much consolation to the victims of North Carolina's unfair tax on food.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Further Period Of Strain

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Senate's refusal to accept Theodore Sorensen as the nation's intelligence chief has raised more questions than it answered, pointing not to a quick resolution of a nasty affair but a further period of tension between Congress and the new President.

Although the Sorensen fiasco guarantees that Democratic Senators will insist on advance consultation for the CIA second choice, Jimmy Carter is so irritated by rejection of the first choice that he may not be inclined to be helpful.

Beyond such personal factors lies the possibility that Mr. Carter really does contemplate basic changes in the very nature of the Central Intelligence Agency. If so, Ted Sorensen was not an aberration but a foretaste of bitter struggle.

When transition chief Jack Watson, then at the peak of his short-lived power, decided on Sorensen as the intelligence chief and sold him to Mr. Carter, the word was passed to Senate Democratic chieftains as final. Moreover, several key members of the Senate Intelligence Committee were not even given advance notice of the Sorensen choice.

"That's not going to be allowed to happen again," one liberal Democrat on the Intelligence Committee told us. With other Democrats, he was gratified at the ease with which Senate Democrats imposed their will on the new administration.

Carter aides agree the Senate has no intention of letting lack of consultation happen again. But based on their deeper knowledge about Jimmy Carter, these aides feel he will be loath to depend on Senate guidance for his new CIA director precisely because of the gratification shown in the Senate over Sorensen's defeat. "Jimmy will be even less inclined to consult now that he's lost one," a high Carter operative told us.

Thus, the road to the CIA is newly mined with booby traps planted in the wake of the Sorensen disaster. The Senate, having drawn the first blood from President Carter, is in no mood to roll over for him now, and the new President is in no mood to crawl to the Senate.

Mr. Carter's only sure way to avoid trouble would be a CIA director from the ranks of Congress itself. Out of half a dozen top prospects now being considered, there is one Congressman — Rep. Richardson Preyer, a moderate liberal from North Carolina highly regarded by Mr. Carter.

One liberal Democratic member of the committee has quietly suggested to the Carter White House another possible way of avoiding trouble: draft James Schlesinger and let someone else take over energy problems.

Schlesinger ran the CIA for five months in early 1973 and gained a reputation as a tough, even ruthless, administrator, despised by many CIA professionals. But intimates say not even a presidential draft could lure Schlesinger back to Langley, Va.

Another deceptively obvious option for Mr. Carter is Paul Warnke, who, despite ardent support for nuclear arms control progress, would be acceptable in the CIA to many conservative Republicans. But Warnke's friends say he would no more accept the CIA job than he would an earlier offer from Mr. Carter to run the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA).

"Paul was led up to the mountaintop by Carter," a Warnke admirer told us, "with the implied promise of becoming Secretary of Defense. Instead, they offered him ACDA—not even cabinet-level." He turned it down.

All such discussion of possible candidates Mr. Carter may or may not choose begs this deeper question: how much was Mr. Carter's choice of Sorensen based on a conscious effort to remove the CIA from control by the intelligence community and put it into a different mold, effectively ending its foreign operations and forcing it to shed all remnants of the cold war era?

Some non-political experts are convinced this was indeed Mr. Carter's desire. "Jimmy Carter does not understand the function of American intelligence," one expert told us. The Sorensen fiasco has led members of the Senate committee to similar conclusion, buttressed by Sorensen's statement to the committee that Mr. Carter chose him precisely because he was cut from such different cloth.

That is another reason the committee will now insist on full consultation on Mr. Carter's next nominee. A majority now fears that the choice goes far beyond personality and experience, that it is tied in to a dangerous effort by Mr. Carter to change the nature of the intelligence game.

Strength For Today

STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

The poet, Robert Browning, was a man of robust health, but his wife, who was almost as distinguished in literary circles as Robert himself, was almost an invalid. At times she lamented this fact, saying how much she might be able to support and strengthen her husband in his literary endeavors if only her health were better.

Her husband protested vigorously against her sorrowful attitude. He wrote her on one occasion saying, "My strength needs your weakness as much as your weakness needs my strength."

Sometimes the people who strengthen us the most are the people who have to lean most heavily upon us. Parenthood, for example, is an inspiring example not because of what the children give the parents but because of what the parents give the children. Responsibility confers nobility upon those who accept it. The strength of the strong and the weakness of the weak are both required to make the world full of love and moral purpose.

Institutionalized Role Slowed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange has found what it wanted to find in its latest examination of public trading, that the growth of institutional activity might have slowed.

Not that it doesn't want the business of these money-rich organizations, but it also wants the business of individuals, who provide the random activity that enables the exchange to match buy with sell orders.

Institutions are bad for liquidity. They tend to think alike. They analyze the same companies in the same manner, so they tend to buy and sell the same stocks at the same time.

Moreover, they seem inclined to buy and sell merely because the other institutions are buying and selling. Sometimes they analyze their competitors more than they analyze the stocks in their own portfolios.

This being so, there is a tendency for institutions such as mutual and pension funds, insurers, commercial banks and trust companies, to gather on one side or the other, to congregate as buyers or sellers.

You can see, therefore, why the Big Board, which likes to think of itself as the world's most important daily auction, likes those individuals who do their own thinking and thus provide a random assortment of orders.

An auction market with all buyers or all sellers doesn't work very well. But an auction market that has a great variety of buy orders at assorted prices, and a variety of sell orders at assorted prices, can get the job done.

During the 1950s and the 1960s, the growth of institutions was swift, transforming the market in the process. By the 1970s the mix of activity had become 60 per cent institutional, 40 per cent individual.

But this told only part of the story. These institutions accounted for even more of daily activity when that activity was measured in dollar terms. Sometimes the percentage rose to 80 per cent or more.

Now the exchange reports that there has been little change in the volume percentages in the past few years. The latest study shows 57 per cent of activity accounted for by institutions, 43 per cent by individuals.

Nevertheless, the dollar figures remain very high. Seventy per cent of the estimated daily average in

People Should Decide

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — In the debate over whether to enlarge the powers of North Carolina governors, those who would amend the state Constitution to permit governors to run for two successive terms would appear to have better of the argument.

A constitutional provision which denied the people the right to vote for the continuance in office of a governor who has compiled a good record is fundamentally undemocratic.

It is significant to note that members of the Council of State, judges and even members of the General Assembly are under no such limitation and are legally permitted to run as long as they wish and are able to serve as long as they can win the support of the people.

Past governors have complained that the present constitutional provision, which effectively limits them to four years in office, has been a real disadvantage. They argue convincingly that by the time they get their programs through the General Assembly and into operation, it's time for their terms to expire and they don't have the time to follow through on their programs.

It's also a disadvantage to governors in their attempts to win legislative approval of their programs that they are unable to seek reelection. A governor who stands a good chance of being around for four more years stands a much better chance of having his legislative proposals approved than does one who is literally a lame duck five minutes after he takes the oath of office.

Most governors in recent years have contended that they should be allowed to seek reelection, and to have veto power. Gov. Jim Hunt appears to have embarked on a more determined campaign to get them approved by the legislature and submitted to the people for their approval. "The people should be able to decide whether our governor should remain the only one in the country without the veto power," Hunt told the lawmakers in his "State of the State" speech last Monday night. "The people should be able to decide whether they want the opportunity to elect to a second successive term a governor who has proven himself responsible and effective."

Some legislators have expressed the opinion that the succession proposal stands a better chance of legislative approval than the veto power.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, a veteran lawmaker, predicted after Hunt's speech that the legislature likely will approve letting a governor seek two successive terms, but "the veto will be a little harder."

Sen. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, a thoughtful legislator, said he thinks the North Carolina legislature is more responsive to the will of the people since the governor lacks the veto power. Whichard meant that in states where the governor has the veto power there is a tendency for the legislature to enact irresponsible legislation, feeling certain that the governor will veto it. It lets the legislature "pass the buck to the governor," Whichard said.

Of the two issues, the more important to let the people decide is the possibility of a second term for the governor. Whether he should have the veto power can wait until later.

Possibly Some Return On Big Watch Swindle

By BILL DENSMORE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The 100,000 people who were bilked of $16.95 each when they mailed Christmas orders for a digital watch may get back some of their money.

An Illinois assistant attorney general for consumer fraud said Friday that those who ordered the watches from Teltronics Ltd. and received nothing should mail the advertisement and their cancelled checks to the state attorney general.

The letters will be tabulated and records checked to confirm each order was received by the firm. In about 90 days consumers should receive at least half their money back, said Donald Mulack.

Dennis Roberts, 45, was arrested by postal authorities Friday at his home north of here in Lake Forest in connection with the alleged mail fraud that officials said grossed $1.8 million.

Teltronics accounts at two Chicago banks containing almost $1.1 million remain frozen under court order. Prosecutors said they are attempting to recover the other $700,000. Postal inspectors had sought a John Rodine in Mexico since December, when newspapers first reported consumer complaints and television stations showed the firm's offices in suburban Des Plaines, Ill., to be deserted. The inspectors said they used telephone records found at the office to arrest Roberts, whom they believe to be Rodine.

Roberts, ordered held in lieu of $800,000 bond, admitted at the bond hearing that he served a 37-month prison term on a 1952 auto conviction.

The apparent ripoff began in December when "TV Guide" magazine and "Parade," a Sunday newspaper supplement, carried advertisements for Teltronics digital watches.

Mulack said the firm had several hundred watches on hand and sent them to early customers.

"They send out the stuff to about 1 per cent of the orders so they will have something to show that they are legitimate to anyone that asks," said Mulack.

After the complaints started Rodine was thought to have fled to Mexico. Authorities said he withdrew $650,000 from one account and transferred it to the National Bank of Mexico.

Mulack said a man identified as Rodine "called me on Dec. 29 allegedly from Mexico and he tried to get me to release the money from the court. He said he needed the money out to close a big business deal on a big plant down there. He said if he didn't get the money he would have to default on the deal and it would be a big loss."

"I told him that if he was legitimate, he should get a lawyer and come back to answer questions. I never heard from Effective Feb. 1, requests for spaying applications may be made by calling Mrs. Frost between 7:30 and 11 p. m. or by mailing requests to Box 1155, Greenville.

All members and interested persons are requested to send in their annual dues to the treasurer, Miss Beasley. Monthly meetings are scheduled for the third Thursday of each month in the meeting room of Planters National Bank's downtown office.

Arrest Man On Larceny Count

Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning that police arrested Arthur Lee Brann Jr. of 602 East Mumford Rd. on charges of larceny by employee Friday night following an incident at the In and Out Grocery on North Greene St.

Cannon said Brann allegedly took $60 in cash from the store's cash register. The incident was reported at 11:45 p. m.

Brann, the chief said, was employed by the firm.

Radio Club Is Organized

Organization of a new club, the New Bern Amateur Radio Club (NBARCO) took place at the Bern Restaurant in New Bern (January 15). Officers were elected and various activities planned for the future.

Three members of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club of Greenville were in attendance, Charles Garoutte, Bob Knapp and Charles Knowles. It was pointed out that one of the activities for the new club should be the coming national simulated emergency test sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, and scheduled for the week end of January 29-30.

BARC President and Emergency Co-ordinator for Pitt County, Daniel Sullivan, advised that locally plans are to simulate a snow storm wherein cars will be stranded along the highways due to the sudden storm. The Greenville 2 meter repeater will be used extensively in this simulated test.

Club members will be alerted sometime during the week end and portable and mobile amateur stations will be set up to assist in the disaster to establish a communications network to transmit messages for aid and assistance.

That incident was reported at 9:30 a. m. An estimated $2 was taken from a drink machine at North Carolina Equipment Co. on Memorial Drive by thieves who gained entrance to the building through a rear window and forced open the drink vending machine.

Cannon said that break-in was reported at 10:42 a. m.

Investigation of the break-ins is continuing.

Set Mini-Course For Secretaries

The local chapter of the National Secretaries Association will sponsor a mini-course entitled, "Updated Punctuation in Business Correspondence" February 9, 16, and 23. The sessions will meet from 7 to 9 p. m. and are open to NSA members and all secretaries who are interested in the study session.

For further information contact Dorothy Dausmann, Program Chairman, NSA Greenville Chapter, 752-4032 after 5 p. m.

Trying Deputy On Rape Count

YADKINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A former Yadkin County deputy goes on trial today on a charge of raping a young female prisoner at the county jail last August.

L. C. Jester Jr., 50, is charged with committing sexual assault on a 16-year-old East Bend girl who was serving a 20-day sentence for public drunkenness.

Sixty-two Yadkin County residents have been summoned as prospective jurors in the Superior Court case.

Confederate General Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson was killed at the Battle of Chancellorsville, in 1863.

Risky Practice

Chief Glenn Cannon said today that both a Greenville City ordinance and State law make it illegal for persons to solicit rides while standing in the travel portion of any street or highway.

The Chief said hitch-hikers standing in the street or on a highway create a traffic hazard and run the risk of being struck by passing vehicles.

In general, the chief noted, hitch-hiking is risky. He said females soliciting rides run the risk of inviting sexual assaults. Both males and females, he noted, may find themselves faced with a would-be robber.

Cannon said too, that drivers who pick up persons soliciting rides also face the possibility of being robbed by the person they are intending to help.

He suggested the best plan is not to solicit rides and not to pick up hitch-hikers.

Subfreezing Cold Began Day

Monday morning, like the seven mornings preceding it, the temperature was recorded as subfreezing. According to the Greenville Utilities Department, the temperature was 28 degrees at 8 a. m. Monday. Sunday the high temperature was recorded at 36 degrees and the low temperature was recorded at 16 degrees.

The river level measured 5.1 feet Monday morning, according to the National Weather Service River Level Chart. Ice remained around the banks of the river and in most ditches.

The temperature is expected to remain in the low thirties Monday night and rain is expected across the state from the mountains to the coast Monday evening and night.

Nation Still Adding Up Cost Of Cold Winter; Loss Runs Heavy

By The Associated Press
Many Kentucky schools are still closed, Florida and Georgia growers are counting crop losses, and laying off workers, and Ohio's governor declared an energy emergency as the impact of one of the coldest winters on record is outlasting the subzero temperatures.

A General Motors assembly plant in Doraville, Ga., was closed until further notice because of a propane gas shortage, a company spokesman said Sunday. The shutdown laid off 4,500 workers.

In Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes met Sunday with fuel industry spokesmen and labor, business and government officials and then declared an energy emergency, but not an energy crisis as some groups had recommended.

Rhodes' action asks residential natural gas users to observe 65-degree temperature limits — the same level urged for all Americans by President Carter in an energy-saving plan announced Friday. The Ohio general assembly scheduled a special session for Tuesday to consider any legislation Rhodes may feel is necessary.

In Florida, agriculture experts were trying to calculate the damage from the state's worst freeze in 15 years, which some predicted at well over $120 million.

"Celery, lettuce and peppers were wiped out," said Frank Pope, chairman of the Florida Emergency Board. "They were ready to harvest. The growers can still replant but a lot of workers will be off for a while."

He said the tomato loss alone would probably hit $43 million.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, taking into consideration that more than 100,000 farm workers may be out of jobs, on Saturday declared a general state of disaster, opening the way for farm workers to get the unemployment compensation they normally could not receive.

In neighboring Georgia, Gene Dyson, president of the Georgia Business and Industry Association, said 50,000 workers have been laid off there. He said the figure could rise to 150,000 to 200,000 if cold weather and natural gas shortages continued through the next week or two.

Officials have said it could be a month before gas supplies are sufficient to reopen such plants closed due to energy shortages.

Although temperatures warmed in some areas over the weekend, numerous schools remained closed today.

About three dozen school systems in Kentucky still were closed, some on an extended holiday that began before Christmas. Most Dayton, Ohio schools were open today but the Dayton superintendent told Gov. Rhodes that chances of remaining open beyond this week were "bleak."

But in Indiana, more than 200,000 pupils returned to classes in the Indianapolis area after being out for one week. Parents were advised their children should dress warmly because thermostats would be turned down in classrooms.

ICY CONFRONTATION — Ice strollers on the frozen Ohio River at Cincinnati scurry toward the Ohio side after the captain of a towboat pleaded to police for help. The captain said he was cursed by walkers who refused to get off the ice as the barge tow headed up the river toward Pittsburgh. Rivermen said it was the first time in 50 years that a ship was stopped on the river by pedestrians. (AP Wirephoto)

Towboat And Pedestrians On The River; Traffic Problem

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — As Capt. W.A. Boudreaux bulled his way up the Ohio River, trying to get 12 barges of oil products to Pittsburgh, he was concentrating on the ice blocking his way. He wasn't expecting problems with pedestrians.

But when his towboat, the City of Pittsburgh, got to the stretch between Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., several hundred people were out for a Sunday stroll on the frozen river — and they were reluctant to see their promenade broken up.

Boudreaux said strollers ignored his whistle, and when he took to his loudspeaker to warn them off the ice, they "cussed us out."

So he came to a stop, 50 feet away.

"What came up to my mind was they are more stupid than I am," he said.

His towboat was pushing 12 barges in a convoy 105 feet across and 1,100 long, and was cracking the ice from shore to shore, he said. The barges were the first to go upriver past Cincinnati since last Monday. Boudreaux said he was delivering fuel and lubricants to Pittsburgh from Cairo, Ill.

He was followed by another tow carrying empty propane barges. Both were "bulling" their way through the ice.

After coming to a halt, the captain called Cincinnati and Covington police through the marine operator, but that presented another problem.

The river technically is Kentucky territory, but neither Cincinnati nor Covington claims to have jurisdiction on the river, so police on both sides were powerless.

"All we can do is warn people of the danger of walking on the ice," said Covington Mayor George Wermeling.

John Beatty, a salvage operator who since Tuesday has been helping local marinas break up the ice, tried to talk people off the ice from aboard his large boat.

"The darn fools wouldn't get out of the way," he said. "I have never seen anything like this and I've been on the river for 50 years."

"One guy asked me to show my bill of sale for the river when I told him to get his kids off."

"I've never seen a barge tow stopped by pedestrians," Beatty added.

The pedestrians also blocked a Conrail train on the river bank for half an hour, said Cincinnati police Sgt. Dan O'Malley, and had jammed a public landing on the river with cars.

"If someone had fallen through the ice, we couldn't have got the emergency equipment through to save them," O'Malley said.

Group Studies Leaf Proposal

The Pitt County Farm Bureau Tobacco Committee, presided over by W. A. Allen of Farmville, met to discuss the amendment, as proposed by Congressman Walter B. Jones, to the Agricultural Act of 1949 which determines price support of tobacco by grades.

Congressman Jones' proposed legislation would permit the lowering of price support on down stalk grades, without raising the support on upper stalk grades.

J. C. Galloway, committee member, pointed out that the 12 per cent reduction in quota should help to alleviate the overstocked Stabilization. He also pointed out that 48 per cent of the 1976 crop bought by Stabilization was "B" grade.

D. R. House, president, said that any additional legislation pertaining to the tobacco program would only aggravate and alienate congressmen from non-tobacco-producing areas and cause them to enact additional amendments that would be detrimental to the total tobacco program.

Atlas Wooten, committee member, said the present framework under the existing law would permit the Secretary of Agriculture to adjust the program in a sufficient manner to alleviate the present problems.

The committee recommends that tobacco farmers write individually to their Congressman in an effort to have this bill killed.

No Charges In Traffic Mishap

No charges were reported following investigation of a 7:40 p.m. mishap Sunday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and the Stantonsburg Road.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Jo Ann Covington of Winterville and William Eugene Hill of 200 Glenwood Dr.

Damage was estimated at $175 to the Covington car and $300 to the Hill auto.

DEATH SELF-INFLICTED
COCOA, Fla. (AP) — James Childress, whose comic strip "Conchy" appeared in 46 newspapers in the United States, was found dead Saturday, apparently of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, police said. He was 35.

Thousands Without Water Due Freeze

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An estimated 3,000 to 4,000 families in Buncombe County were without water Sunday as a result of frozen pipes or mains, said Jerry VeVaun, Buncombe County civil preparedness director.

Rescue squads transported water directly to elderly or sick persons who had no means of transportation, VeVaun said, adding that others picked up water at fire stations and National Guard water trailers.

"In the process, we've also carried a lot of fuel oil," he said.

Textile Imports Soared In 1975

CHARLOTTE (AP) — U.S. textile imports were up by 41 per cent in the first 11 months of 1976 than they were in the same period in 1975, the American Textile Manufacturers Institute reports.

Imports of yarn rose 69 per cent, fabric jumped 58 per cent, apparel imports rose 27 per cent and made-up and miscellaneous goods increased 47 per cent during the period, the institute said.

Mr. and Mrs. George Webb had spent the past week carrying water from a neighbor's house until a Buncombe County Rescue Squad crew arrived Saturday with a 17½-gallon can of water.

Mr. Webb, who has emphysema, and Mrs. Webb, who has a heart condition, had carried water in a plastic gallon jug and mop bucket.

"We do without baths and we use paper plates instead of dishes," Mrs. Webb said. "We needed water to take our medication."

Mrs. Norma Cummingford, who lives atop Sunset Mountain, also benefited from the mercy missions.

A rescue squad brought her water Thursday night, despite icy roads, after a plumber had been unable to fix her frozen water pipe.

"I told them the next day would be all right, but they still persisted in delivering it that night," she said. "I'm so grateful to them. They went way beyond the call of duty to bring that water to me."

"They told me to call when I needed more water," she continued, "but the neighbors have been so good I don't think I'll have to bother the civil defense people again."

Defense Dept. Proposes Standby Draft, Lottery

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is recommending that President Carter create new standby draft machinery, including revival of an annual lottery for young men, to determine the callup order in case of a national emergency mobilization.

Plan Survey Employees

RALEIGH (AP) — The new Democratic administration of Gov. Jim Hunt will conduct a confidential survey of state employees to see what they think of their jobs and how their work could be done better.

"I want all state employees to know that they can and should have a voice in the way state government operates," Hunt said. "If we are going to do the best job possible for the taxpayers, we have to talk to each other and listen to each other. We all have a stake in our state government."

A one-page survey will be included in pay envelopes in coming weeks as part of an organizational effort by Gov. Hunt and his cabinet, the governor's office announced over the weekend.

"It's an effort to bring business management techniques to bear on state government," according to Eugene Watson and Jim Keyton, on loan to the governor's office from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Education, and the Manpower Development Corp.

Employees will be asked whether they like their work, whether they think their departments are serving the public well, whether the employees have a voice in decision-making, whether they are being treated fairly in regard to job advancement and what he or she would say to the department secretary if the secretary and the employee could talk together for an hour.

The survey is to be completed without employees' names or titles and is to be mailed back to preserve confidentiality.

Storaska Talk Site Changed

The East Carolina University Student Union Lecture Committee has announced that the lecture by Frederic Storaska previously slated for Mendenhall Student Center Theatre has been changed to Wright Auditorium. Storaska will appear on the campus on Wednesday, January 26, at 8:00 P.M. He will be speaking from the subject "How To Say No To A Rapist — And Survive."

Tickets for the lecture are available from the Central Ticket Office. Admission for East Carolina University students will be by ID and Activity Cards, and for East Carolina University faculty and staff by Mendenhall Student Center Membership Card.

men within six months after mobilization.

The document estimated that more than 450,000 casualties might have to be replaced in that period if a major war begins in Europe. It assumes at least three months to prepare a draftee for combat.

The Pentagon said the proposed system is not suitable for peacetime.

"It is specifically designed to work only under conditions of full mobilization — during a grave national emergency," said the document.

Among other features, it calls for an annual draft lottery of 20-year-olds in peacetime. Sequence numbers would be assigned by birth date and the results would be widely publicized.

"The idea is to let each member of the 20-year-old cohort know in advance that he is liable to be drafted early or secure from early call by a wartime draft," the document said.

The plan provides for draft deferments, but says these "must be tightly controlled."

The concept departs from the traditional structure of World War II and later years, based on local draft boards made up of civilians.

Instead, the new system would be built around 66 area offices, staffed by about 1,700 national guard and reserve personnel selected and trained in peacetime for wartime draft duty. The area offices would be activated promptly at mobilization.

Review panels, comprising a total of 2,925 citizens, would be appointed to review claims for draft deferment.

The only peacetime elements of the program would be a national office staffed by a cadre of 75 employees and three sector officers with 15 workers each to prepare for a possible wartime draft.

N.C. And S.C. Legislatures Found Worlds Apart

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

The legislature-dominated governments of North and South Carolina are worlds apart, and lawmakers on each side of the border are quick to boast of their own systems while damning the other.

South Carolina legislators, who adhere to a seniority system, say it provides consistency and experienced leadership. They condemn the North Carolina system as being one of chaos caused by frequent changes in leadership.

North Carolina legislators damn the seniority system as being inflexible and susceptible to corruption, and say their frequently changing leadership prevents empire building by ambitious lawmakers. They also claim their system encourages innovation and freshness.

"Under a seniority system, a person has to come up the ladder slowly...and by the time he gets to a position of influence, he is trained and qualified," said S.C. Sen. Marion Gressette, D-Calhoun. He is the state's most senior senator and, some people say, the most powerful official. "In any other system, an unqualified person could be elected" to a position of power, he said.

"Power corrupts. That's true. That's why it's good to have these changes (in leadership)," said Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, one of North Carolina's more powerful senators because he is chairman of the Finance Committee.

In both states, the legislature is the dominant branch of government. The governors are not allowed a second successive term and the North Carolina governor does not have veto power, a tool held but sparingly used by South Carolina's governor.

Legislators in South Carolina are immune from arrest for all but serious crimes while Tar Heel lawmakers have no such immunity.

Seniority reigns supreme in the South Carolina Senate, encouraging long service. Gressette, for example, has been a senator 40 years and ascended to the No. 1 spot just a few years ago.

The lieutenant governor in both states presides over the Senate when it's in session. In South Carolina he has no other significant function and traditionally he busies himself more with running for governor than any other task.

Senators in South Carolina select their committees with senior senators having first choice. Because committee membership is limited, the top panels—judiciary and finance—are filled before junior senators get to choose.

Committee chairmen are elected by the Senate with old hands always winning. Gressette heads judiciary, the most influential panel, with No. 2 Sen. Rembert Dennis, D-Berkeley, heading finance.

There is a clubbiness to the South Carolina Senate, excluding even the lieutenant governor. No one, for example, has been able to find out how many clerks and secretaries are employed by the Senate.

North Carolina Senate committees are appointed by the lieutenant governor, giving him influence over the senators. Consequently, chairmanship of committees changes when a new lieutenant governor takes office every four years.

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, who was first elected to the Tar Heel Senate in 1951, headed appropriations in 1973 and 1975 but now heads only a minor committee. He had supported Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green's opponent in the primary last year.

"I didn't expect to be chairman of appropriations again no matter who was elected. We've got some good people in here and we ought to give somebody else a chance," Scott said, unruffled by his assignment.

"This is hardball," Rauch said of the politics in committee assignments. "It was breaks. I supported the right man," he said of his appointment to head finance, a choice assignment.

Differences also abound between the House of Representatives in the states.

In North Carolina, the House speaker serves but one term. In South Carolina, the speaker traditionally has been allowed to serve as long as he wants and is not opposed for reelection.

Speaker Emeritus Sol Blatt was elected in 1937 and retired from that role in June 1973, though he still serves in the House.

The S.C. speaker has the power to appoint committees with lawmakers traditionally reassigned to their committees from previous sessions. The committees elect the chairmen with the returning chairman having preference. For the first time in memory, an incumbent chairman was defeated for this year's session when Rep. Nick Theodore, D-Greenville, beat Rep. Eugene Stoddard, D-Laurens, to head the Education Committee.

S.C. Speaker Rex Carter has pledged to step aside after serving six years. "After that length of time, you have a tendency to live with the power, so to speak," he said, adding that change produces fresh ideas. In keeping with legislative tradition, he said he had no criticism of Blatt.

N.C. House Speaker Carl Stewart has announced his plan to break precedent and seek a second term, a decision that has stirred some controversy.

"I think if we break over and have a speaker for a second term we are headed for the same thing they have in South Carolina," said Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, who so far is the only other candidate for 1979 speakership. "Succession in leadership creates an atmosphere of corruption."

Taking a different view was Rep. Ramon Schwartz, D-Sumter, speaker pro tempore in the S.C. House. "I think experience is one of the greatest attributes a public servant can have. Taking a man who has done a good job and putting him out to pasture in two years is not a good use of people."

Schwartz is heir apparent for the speakership when Carter steps down.

"I don't see any necessity for the speaker being kicked out of his office after two years if he's honest, capable and fair," Blatt said, adding that a speakership just "learns the ropes" in his first two years.

As to the system breeding corruption, Blatt said, "You can't cut a fellow off from serving again just because somebody else might be a bad speaker."

"If he's not doing a good job, the General Assembly would not hesitate to elect someone else," Schwartz said.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, who was chairman of an important committee in the N.C. House last session, is on the sidelines now because he hadn't supported Stewart. But, he still supports the system.

"I think it's good that we have a system with sufficient flexibility to express different viewpoints," he said.

South Carolina's system is not without its dissidents, most of them freshmen senators who are stared down if they try to speak on the Senate floor. That dissent, apparently, is short-lived.

Sen. Arnold Goodstein, D-Charleston, griped two years ago when he was No. 46 of 46 on the seniority list. Now, he is No. 32 because of new senators elected last fall and he's on the Judiciary Committee.

"I'm amazed at how much fairer the system has gotten in just two years," he said. "I feel like a kid in a candy store. I can have anything I want."

The use of dolomitic lime to keep the soil pH of tobacco fields in the desirable range of 5.6 to 6.0 has many advantages. Lime will reduce the risk of aluminum toxicity which reduces root growth, increase the absorption of certain nutrients and increases the quantity of available calcium and magnesium.

Estimates are that 55 pounds of calcium and 22 pounds of magnesium are used in producing 2000 pound per acre crop of tobacco. Only nitrogen and potassium are used in larger quantities.

Traditionally, tobacco fertilizers have contained relatively large quantities of calcium from certain phosphorus sources and lime fillers. With an increased use of phosphorus sources containing little or no calcium and higher analyses fertilizer grades containing less lime filler, there is a greater need for supplying calcium through a liming program.

Magnesium Affected

Also, if the pH is kept within the desirable range by using dolomitic lime, additional magnesium in the fertilizer probably will not be needed. Calcium and magnesium can usually be supplied at a lower cost by a liming program than through fertilizers.

In the past there has been very little emphasis placed on liming tobacco soils. Tobacco can tolerate a relatively low pH and there is a possibility of increasing certain disease problems and causing an imbalance of certain micronutrients if tobacco soils are over-limed. However, soil analyses conducted by N. C. Department of Agriculture, Agronomic Division in 1975-76, show that over 56 percent of the Piedmont and 41 percent of the Coastal Plain tobacco fields needed lime.

Use Soil Test

Liming tobacco soils should be done only on the basis of a soil test. The soil should be analyzed every two to four years and lime at the suggested rate only when the results show it is needed. Excess lime has been associated with increases in black shank and black root rot.

Tobacco may not show as quick a response to lime as crops such as corn, soybeans or forages; however, a good liming program will improve the alternate crops being grown in rotation with tobacco and will improve the general fertility and productivity of the soil. This in turn, will provide better conditions for tobacco production.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady today with supplies adequate, demand moderate to good, weights desirable to heavy.

The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 41.50 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers picked up at processing plant. Estimated slaughter today 1,317,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, pulling back from a modest early gain.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up 1 at the outset, was off 1.16 at 961.27 by 11:30 a.m.

Gainers held a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was moderately active.

Tropicana Products, the most active NYSE issue, rose 1/4 to 27. A 108,400-share block traded at that price.

IBM added 1/2 to 275 1/2 amid expectations of a possible decision by the company this week on whether to declare a stock split.

American Airlines, which posted a $56 million profit for 1976 after a loss the year before, picked up 1/4 to 14 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .02 to 56.17 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .17 at 111.89.

Spanish General Captive

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The president of Spain's top military court was kidnapped today and riot police battled left-wing demonstrators in downtown Madrid for the second straight day.

Four armed men grabbed Lt. Gen. Emilio Villaescusa Quilis, president of the Supreme Court of Military Justice, as he left his downtown apartment to go to his office and drove him off in his army car, news reports said.

An official army statement gave no indication of the probable identity of the kidnapers of the 64-year-old general, but there were reports and allegations accusing both leftists and rightists of the abduction.

Hundreds of left-wing protesters demanding amnesty for political prisoners clashed with police at the Madrid University campus and on the central Gran Via, temporarily blocking traffic on the busy avenue.

At the campus, police fired rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse the crowds and struck fleeing demonstrators with riot sticks. The violence in both locations ended by afternoon.

There were no immediate reports of serious injuries.

Police broke up similar attempts to stage pro-amnesty protests Sunday.

Government leaders gathered at an emergency meeting today to discuss the Villaescusa kidnapping.

The news agency Europa Press said it was believed the general was abducted by GRAPO, the leftist group that kidnapped an adviser to King Juan Carlos, Antonio Maria de Oriol, six weeks ago. But leftist political leaders accused ultrarightists of the kidnapping to provoke an army crackdown on the leftists.

Oriol's kidnapers have been demanding the release of 15 political prisoners, and Europa Press said their last note threatened new attacks unless their demand was met.

A high-ranking government official suggested Jan. 14 that Oriol may have been abducted by rightists instead of leftists, and that "GRAPO is in the service of someone."

Drug Raid Results In Saturday Arrest

A Rt. 2, Farmville man was arrested on drug charges following a raid at his home early Saturday by State ABC officers from Pitt, Wilson, Greene and Edgecombe Counties, along with Pitt deputies.

Danny Dilda, State ABC officer, said that Harry Waller of Rt. 2, Box 28, Farmville, was charged with possessing a controlled substance, marijuana, and placed under $500 bond. Simple possession of marijuana is a misdemeanor.

On Sunday, according to Dilda, Waller was charged with feloniously selling and delivering a controlled substance and placed under a $1,000 bond.

Amy Starts School And Is Late For First Day

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Escorted by the Secret Service, Amy Carter was late for school on her first day today because of Washington traffic, but she made an excited entry to a special welcome from her classmates.

First Lady Rosalynn Carter went to school with her 9-year-old daughter to get her launched and somewhat sheepishly explained to a gathering of reporters that "we miscalculated how long it took to get here."

The school bell had rung twice and it was about 9:12 a.m. when the sleek, black White House sedan drove up in front of Thaddeus Stevens Elementary School, five blocks from the White House. Police and Secret Service agents had roped off the entrance to keep back a crowd of about 50, made up mainly of reporters and a few passersby who stopped to watch.

Wearing a blue and red cap, blue denim jeans and a blue jacket, Amy carried a canvas bag with "Snoopy" written on it and bounded up the stairs with her mother. She paused to turn and wave at those below.

Mrs. Carter said Amy was "really excited" about her first day as a fourth-grader at Ste-state's public kindergarten system, which was phased in during those years.

State Department of Administration officials said Hunt's proposed reductions in the bureaucracy would total about 3,000 jobs — 2,000 the first year of the biennium and 1,000 the second.

Joseph W. Grimsley said he hopes reductions can be made by not filling vacancies and by combining jobs.

Rental Project

WINTERVILLE — The Mid-East Regional Housing Authority is planning a rental housing project for the Town of Winterville.

Twenty-five apartment units will be constructed according to the determination of the citizens' needs in the Town of Winterville. The rental housing project will provide comfortable housing at a reasonable rate, according to Elwood Nobles, town clerk.

A survey concerning the needs of the citizens interested in the rental housing is presently being conducted. Anyone interested in the rental housing project should go by the Winterville town office and ask for an application this week.

Dilda said that Waller's arrest was part of a drug roundup that involved several arrests in Greene County, in addition to the Pitt apprehension.

Undercover ABC officers made several drug buys in Greene County and one in Pitt County over a two-week period, it was reported.

vens. In fact she was so excited she turned down a chance to go bowling with her father Sunday night at the White House so she could get her school materials together, Mrs. Carter related.

The 23 other classmates in the combined fourth-fifth grade class welcomed Amy and said "good morning Mrs. Carter," as they arrived at the class, according to press secretary Mary Hoyt. They had put up a "Welcome Amy" sign and a special mobile with a blue and purple feathered bird as a welcome.

According to Mrs. Hoyt, Amy had on a white sweater with a big red Snoopy on the front and Mrs. Givens was a native of Martin County and a member of Wynne Chapel Church. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Bertha Tyson of Greenville, and Mrs. Mabel Mitchell of Norfolk, Va.; a son, M-Sgt. Jesse L. Givens of San Francisco, Calif.; 19 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

Family visitation will be Tuesday from 8-9 p.m. at Wynne Chapel Baptist Church.

Willoughby
FARMVILLE — Funeral services for Mr. Alonzo M. "Buster" Willoughby of 908 S. Main Street here will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church by the Rev. J. R. Person. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

A retired farmer and merchant and a member of Lewis' Chapel F.W.B. Church, Mr. Willoughby died Friday in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Mary Alice Willoughby of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Burney of the home and Mrs. Loris McRae of Stanford, Conn.; two sons, Alonzo Willoughby Jr. and Gene Willoughby, both of Farmville; eight grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Gorham and Mrs. Mary Jane Newton, both of Farmville.

The body will be at Joyner's Mortuary here after 5 p.m. today. Family visitation will be held tonight from 7 to 8 o'clock.

ALUMNI MEETING
The A and T State University Alumni Association will meet Wednesday January 26, at the Meadowbrook Day Care Center at 7:30 p.m. All A and T graduates are urged to attend the meeting.

she bounded in to hang up her coat, helped by another student, and quickly took her seat at one of the tables. She was familiar with the classroom, having visited there previously before Carter took office.

Amy will eat hot lunch in school daily, at a cost of $1.75 a week, Mrs. Hoyt said. She has enrolled in an after-school Spanish class that runs from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m., Mrs. Hoyt said.

Mrs. Carter blamed the tardiness of her daughter on rush-hour morning traffic. They left 20 minutes for the drive from the White House to the school, Mrs. Carter said, but it took almost 28 minutes.

Secret Service agents looked a bit sheepish about it, and it was obvious they would check out the route again to get her there on time.

The First Lady saw her daughter into the classroom and left about 10 minutes later. Mrs. Carter does not intend to accompany Amy every day.

But the Secret Service agents stayed. They will keep guard outside the classroom door and escort Amy during her school hours.

personnel problems to a self-confessed awe at finding himself living in the home of presidential giants of history:

"I feel quite at ease about the percentage of blacks" named to high administration posts, he said, but declared, "I wish that we could get more women, in particular, in the top levels of government."

He expressed no surprise at the reaction both for and against his blanket pardon Friday of Vietnam-era draft evaders who were not guilty of violent acts. Carter said: "It is something that should have been done. I was very grateful to be the one to do it."

"Within the next week or two," he said, "I will make my first report to the American people on what we have already achieved and the time schedule for additional proposals."

He defended his "economic stimulus" plan, which could cost as much as $30 billion over two years, and indicated there could be room for some give-and-take with Congress, particularly if economic circumstances should change in the next few months.

But he said if Congress tried to drastically alter what he is proposing "it would delay the beneficial impact of the economic stimulus"

Nader And Ray Are Still At It

SEATTLE (AP) — Dixy Lee Ray, former Atomic Energy Commission chief, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader are still at it.

"Gubernatorial lunacy," Nader snorted over the weekend about Miss Ray's becoming Washington state's governor.

The two longtime opponents in the past clashed over the use of nuclear power for generating energy.

Speaking in Spokane, Nader said Miss Ray is "a person subservient to the interests of big business."

But the new governor shot back Sunday: "I would think Mr. Nader would have more respect for the voters of this state than to come here and begin passing his noble judgments before I even have a chance to launch my administration."

"I have asked," he said, "that all approvals of arms sales, for a change, be submitted to me directly before the recommendations go to Congress."

The President said Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who is on a globe-circling trip this week, will be asking allies who are heavy arms exporters to join the United States in curbing the arms traffic.

Watson Takes Crosby

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — He's one of the brightest of golf's bright young men.

He tries to hide it, but his boyish face registers every emotion, from the dismay of the errant shot that caught the bunker and threw his victory in doubt to the total joy of his head-back shout: "Hot damn, I've won the Crosby."

For several seasons now, Tom Watson has had all the ingredients — save one — of a great, crowd-gathering golf champion. His freckles, red hair and infectious enthusiasm pull the galleries to him in growing numbers.

His obvious intelligence and honesty — at times painful honesty when he's talked with candor of how he lost — have endeared him to the media.

He calls older men "sir," is gracious to the ladies and endures with calm and courtesy the attention of over-zealous fans who approach his hotel dinner table seeking autographs or conversation.

His game shows the power of the rippling, muscular forearms. He's won $100,000 or more for three years, passing the strongest test of tour prowess. He's a consistent finisher in the top 10. His only problem has been a distressing tendency to let the titles get away.

He once had the Byron Nelson in his grasp and hit a ball into the water. A couple of years ago he had a shot at the Crosby — and drove it into golf's largest hazard, the Pacific Ocean. He twice had a shot at the U.S. Open, at Winged Foot and Medinah, and let them escape.

There have been many others.

But he overcame that tendency in his solid, front-running, record-setting, one-stroke victory over challenging Tony Jacklin of England in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

His lead dwindled to a single shot with a bogey six on the 14th. He pulled a three-wood shot on the 16th, but saved par with an excellent trouble shot. He hit his second into trouble and bogeyed the 18th.

That one didn't matter, however. Jacklin, playing in front of him, had three-putted the same hole to give Tom breathing room. The bogey was good enough to win.

"With Tony and Lee (Elder) right there all day, it was a round that had a tremendous amount of pressure to it," the 28-year-old Stanford graduate said.

He finished with a one-under-par 71 over the crags and cliffs of the spectacularly beautiful Pebble Beach Golf Links and, blessed with gorgeous weather for four days, broke by four strokes the record in this tournament with a 14-under-par total of 273.

Jacklin, a former British and American Open champion, ended five years of deep frustration with a strong second-place finish on a 71 and 274.

Elder, wearing a heavily-strapped girdle to support an ailing back, also had a closing 71 and was another stroke back at 275.

No one else really got in the chase.

Bill (Buck) Rogers, who had to qualify to get in the event, was fourth with 71-277 with Bruce Devlin, Leonard Thompson, Hubert Green, Victor Regalado and Craig Stadler tied at 278. Jack Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, had a closing 73 and a 281 total.

Borg Bids For Top Ranking

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

If Bjorn Borg intends to become the No. 1 tennis player in the world, he took a big step in that direction Sunday.

Borg, the defending Wimbledon and World Championship Tennis titleholder, defeated the current No. 1 men's player, Jimmy Connors, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 in the final of the Grand Slam tennis tournament at Boca Raton, Fla. The victory was worth $100,000 to the Swedish sensation, but there was more than monetary value in the triumph.

"This is really a big win for me," Borg said. "After all, I had lost seven straight matches to him."

Among the losses was the final of the U.S. Open at Forest Hills last September, a triumph that solidified Connors' claim to the top spot.

"This time, I knew I could beat him," Borg said after blowing three match points in the second set before recovering in the third set and winning the match. One of the match points Borg blew was an easy return with Connors out of position.

Another player bidding for the world's top ranking is equally stoic Brian Gottfried, who won the $20,000 first prize in the Baltimore International Indoor Championships with a 6-3, 7-6 victory over Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Gottfried credited his mild manner for the triumph.

"I used to go crazy in practice in high school and college," Gottfried admitted after beating Vilas, who disputed several calls and exhorted the crowd to take his side during protests. "But never in a tournament. I was brought up not to show emotions and let the opponent see what he's doing to you."

Also aiming for the world's No. 1 ranking — among the women — is Martina Navratilova. Miss Navratilova, the top seed at the Women's Pro Tournament in Houston, edged Sue Barker of Great Britain 7-6, 7-5 for the $20,000 first prize.

ECU, Furman Vie Tonight

East Carolina University's Pirates play their third straight road game in the Southern Conference tonight in Greenville, S.C., facing the Furman Paladins.

The Paladins downed William & Mary Saturday night, 88-83, while the Pirates were bowing to league-leading Virginia Military Institute, 67-58.

The Bucs will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak in the game, which is set for 8 p.m.

East Carolina returns home on Wednesday to play host to Old Dominion.

Tar Heels Top Bucs

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina's depth and swimmers in the odd strokes proved too much for East Carolina Sunday as the Tar Heels beat the Pirates 65-48 in a swim meet in the Woolen Natatorium here Sunday.

The Pirates ruled the freestyles, winning each of those races, but could not handle the ACC power in the diving and odd strokes.

Carolina went one-two in the 200 individual medley, 200 butterfly, 200 backstroke and 200 breaststroke, as well as taking the 400 medley relay. In diving, UNC won both events.

Ted Nieman and John McCauley continued their winning ways, winning three times each. John Tudor finished the day with

Former UNC Cager To Speak

Lee P. Shaffer, former North Carolina basketball standout, is the scheduled speaker for tomorrow's meeting of the Greenville Sports Club.

Shaffer played for UNC under Frank McGuire in 1958, 1959 and 1960. Each of those teams was ranked number one in the nation at one time during the season.

After graduation, Shaffer was the number one draft pick of the Philadelphia 76'ers in the National Basketball Association and he became a starter on the team. He retired from the NBA at age 26 to join Kenan Transport Company in Chapel Hill; he is now president of that firm.

Shaffer was an all-American in 1959 and 1960 and ACC player of the year in 1960. While in the NBA, he was named to the all-star team in 1962, 1963 and 1964.

He currently resides in Chapel Hill.

The Sports Club meeting will begin as usual with lunch at 12 noon at the Ramada Inn, with the program beginning at 12:30.

VMI Is Glad To Be Staying

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Football coach Bob Thalman and basketball coach Charlie Schmaus say they're happy Virginia Military Institute has dropped its earlier plans to withdraw from the Southern Conference.

The announcement the school has reconsidered dropping out of the league was made Saturday by VMI's superintendent, Lt. Gen. Richard L. Irby, who listed these reasons for the decision:

—The great interest expressed by other members of the conference in having VMI remain a member.

—The accommodations the conference has made, particularly with regard to football schedules, to ensure eligibility for VMI for conference championships in the near future.

—The lack of a decision by the National Collegiate Athletic Association regarding Division I criteria.

"Until this thing with Division I gets cleared up, the best thing for us is to stay in the Southern," said Thalman.

Although the Keydets will play only two football games against league members in 1977 and 1978 and three in 1979, Irby said he had been "assured" VMI would be allowed to count games against East Carolina, William and Mary and Richmond, at least through this year.

North Pitt Hangs On For Win Over D.H. Conley

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — North Pitt's Panthers managed to hold off a determined D. H. Conley team to take a 66-62 win over the Vikings Saturday night. North Pitt also won the girls' and junior varsity game for a clean sweep.

The Varsity Panthers led by as much as 12 late in the final quarter, only to see the Vikings come back, as they had all night, to cut the lead to four. But time ran out on Conley before they could get any closer.

Although down by 10 or 11 points at times, the Vikings always managed to stay fairly close. They were down by 11, 43-32 with 4:30 left in the third quarter before Al Tyson led a rally which cut the lead to four, 48-44 at the end of the period.

Panther Donnie Perkins scored 10 points in the first seven minutes of the final frame to put North Pitt out in front, 62-50, their biggest lead of the night.

Tyson and Randolph King then went to work for Conley and cut the lead to six, 64-58 with 1:19 left when Tyson dunked a follow shot. The Vikings' hopes faded, however, when Mike Cox fouled out on the next play and Tyson was ejected with 30 seconds left.

The teams shot an identical 45 per cent from the field with Conley actually hitting two more field goals (30 of 67) than the Panthers (28 of 62). North Pitt outscored the Vikings from the line, however, 10-2. Conley held a slight rebounding edge, 38-35, and committed two more turnovers, 9-7.

Perkins led all scorers with 20 while Jimmy Hardy hit 15 and Virgil Pilgreen added 10 for the Panthers. Tyson and Randolph King each hit 14 for Conley, Cox added 13 and Johnny Streeter scored 11.

North Pitt jumped out to an early lead and managed to stay in front the entire game. Perkins hit from the baseline and Hardy scored on a jump shot to put the Panthers in front 4-0 with one minute gone.

The teams traded points from there until the 3:35 mark. Then, Larry Spencer scored for North Pitt and Perkins added two jumpers to give the Panthers a 17-8 lead with 2:20 left.

Hardy hit to start the second quarter, which put the Panthers up by 10, 21-11. After two Conley baskets, they went back up by 10, 25-15 with 5:09 left on a jump shot by Kenneth Roberson.

Conley managed to cut the lead in half over the next two minutes as Streeter made good on a three-point play, Cox scored on a follow shot and Tyson added two baskets to cut it to 29-24.

The Panthers took a six-point lead into the dressing room at halftime, 34-28, and stretched it to 11 in the third quarter as Spencer's shot with 5:05 left gave them a 43-32 edge.

Tyson scored six points for Conley over the next four minutes, however, hitting two turn around jumpers and a layup, as the Vikings cut the lead to 48-44 at the end of the quarter.

Then Perkins, who scored 12 points in the final period, went to work and put the Panthers out in front by 12, 62-50. He hit a jumper from the corner, a turn-around from 15 feet, a layup, two free throws and another jump shot, and Pilgreen added a jumper, all within three an a quarter minutes.

Tyson hit a turnaround and Bernard Hawkins connected on a long jumper, however, to cut the lead to 62-54.

Then, after Perkins hit again, King hit from the corner and Tyson dunked a follow shot to make it 64-58 with 1:19 left.

But Cox fouled Spencer a few seconds later for his fifth foul and Spencer hit both ends of the one-and-one to give North Pitt a 66-58 lead.

King hit two long jumpers for the last two scores of the game, one at the buzzer, to make the final 66-62.

The girls' contest stayed close most of the way.

North Pitt, down 20-17 at the half, went ahead with 7:15 left in the third quarter when Mable James' three-point play gave the Pant-HERS a 22-20 edge.

Annie Wooten countered with her own three-pointer for the Valkyries, however, and Alice two wins, while Billy Thorne joined the three in winning the 400 freestyle relay.

Pirate head coach Ray Scharf commented after the meet that it was a "tough one to lose. We won all the frees as expected, but we need a break in the others and didn't get it."

"Coming into the meet, they were better on paper and it turned out they were better in the water, too," he added.

Virginia Military Institute's decision to remain in the Southern Conference caught absolutely no one by surprise.

The school saw quickly that it apparently had no place to go when it announced last fall that it would leave the Southern, along with East Carolina, William & Mary and Davidson, as Richmond had already done.

Now, there seems to be some backtracking. VMI was hopeful of getting into a new conference, but while invited to some of the meetings, there apparently was no great rush to get the Keydets into any prospective loop.

So the school wisely decided to stay where it is—at least until something better does come along.

Meanwhile, there continue to be rumors that Davidson and William & Mary will also reconsider. William & Mary is somewhat hampered by its small football stadium as far as the possibility of another conference is concerned. However, the Indians have a strong schedule for years to come, and its membership in the ECSA gives it an opening into tournament play and NCAA competition.

Davidson, however, has no such ties, and would like not to be an independent. Perhaps, it could join in the new Sun Belt Conference, along with UNC-Charlotte.

Football at Davidson would appear to be settled in a Division II category, which the school wants. So there might be some in the Southern who would not want Davidson back on those terms.

It must be remembered, however, that none of the three schools, VMI, William & Mary, or Davidson, has officially withdrawn from the league, only announced that it intended to do so. They are now members, and until they officially do withdraw, they will continue to be members.

East Carolina has no such option. The school has already officially withdrawn, subject only to the arrival of the date of withdrawal, this June 30. To reenter the Southern would probably take a vote of readmission, although we feel that if it should come to that, the conference would be glad to have East Carolina back.

It is highly doubtful that it will come about, however. Even with the slower-than-hoped talks on a new conference, the university is committed to its role as an independent.

It will create problems in many areas, especially in recruiting, since there will be no conference championship to shoot for in the non-football sports. That sport can exist much easier as an independent.

As we have said before, the university might want to pursue some direction as to joining a "non-football" league, such as the Sun Belt, to give basketball and some of the others a home and a shot at an NCAA berth.

How well East Carolina can compete in that league apparently will be answered early next fall when the Pirates play in the First Union Invitational Basketball Tournament, where a likely opponent will be UNC-Charlotte.

And we all got a glimpse of Charlotte's abilities Saturday night when they came so close to the Wake Forest Deacons.

Lady Pirates End Up Third

HARRISONBURG, Va. — East Carolina University's women's gymnastics team opened their season Saturday night taking third place in a tri-meet here with Madison and William & Mary. Madison won the meet with 92 points, followed by William & Mary with 88.5 and the Lady Pirates with 84.30.

Betsy Adkins was the only individual placer for the Lady Bucs. She took fifth in vaulting, sixth in the uneven parallel bars,

Ralph McDonald Burial Is Today

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Ralph Waldo McDonald, who made two unsuccessful tries for the North Carolina governor's office, was to be buried here today.

McDonald, 73, president emeritus of Bowling Green State University in Ohio, died Friday in a Russellville hospital.

McDonald had served one year in the state House of Representatives when he entered the 1936 governor's race and lost a hotly contested 1936 Democratic primary election to former Gov. Clyde R. Hoey.

Some McDonald supporters claimed he was cheated out of victory by dubious absentee ballots in the western counties.

However, McDonald refused to implicate Hoey in any wrongdoing.

"I made some of my supporters very unhappy when I said in a speech that, if there had been irregularities at the ballot boxes, I was quite certain that these things had taken place without the knowledge of Mr. Hoey. It was a pretty rough campaign," McDonald said in a 1967 interview with the News and Observer of Raleigh.

McDonald lost a second bid in 1944 to former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry.

Backed by the insurgent liberal factions of the state Democratic Party, McDonald opposed candidates of the O. Max Gardner organization, whose

Military Pensions To Top Active Pay

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon will pay more to retired military personnel this year than the Army pays to all active duty soldiers.

This growing pension expense is more than the Air Force has budgeted this year to buy planes and missiles.

And it is more than this year's Navy budget for shipbuilding.

Since 1962, the total defense budget has almost doubled, rising from $51.1 billion to this year's $100.1 billion. But the cost of military pensions has grown nearly tenfold to $8.2 billion.

In 1962, military pensions amounted to 1 3/4 per cent of the Defense Department budget. For 1977, the pensions amount to 8.2 per cent of the defense budget.

In the next fiscal year, the cost will probably reach $9 billion, and it will be pushing $10 billion in the year after that.

Unless changes are made in the system, the annual pension cost could exceed $30 billion by the year 2000, according to an estimate by the congressional General Accounting Office. That estimate is based on holding inflation to 5 per cent a year until then.

The GAO also estimated that the nation would spend a total of $424 billion on military pensions between now and the end of the century. That's more than the current annual federal budget and almost equal to two-thirds of the national debt.

The costs of military pensions have grown rapidly because they are pegged to active-duty pay, which has been increased to attract an all-volunteer force.

The number of military pensioners also has more than doubled since before the Vietnam war. There now are more than 1 million persons getting Pentagon pensions, and the number is expected to increase to 1.3 million by 1980.

This year's $8.23 billion pension bill tops the $8.19 billion budgeted for pay, allowances and travel for all Army personnel, the $6.19 billion for Navy shipbuilding and the $7.92 billion for Air Force missile and aircraft procurement.

The military pension system is more generous than the federal government's civilian retirement system and all major private pension plans. By some calculations, it is several times more generous.

Today, a typical career E-7 sergeant retires at age 41 after 22 years of service. He or she would draw $534 a month in retirement pay, starting immediately, for life.

A typical career lieutenant colonel would retire after 25 years of service at age 46, and would draw retirement pay of $1,282 per month.

Calls for change in the system are now coming from several different directions, including the Pentagon itself. None of the proposals calls for cutting payments to those already retired, and military lobbying groups generally oppose reducing benefits to future retirees.

Town Fights To Keep ZIP

VERNON, Conn. (AP) — Residents of the Rockville section of this Connecticut town are waging a war against the U.S. Postal Services' plan to drop "Rockville" from the ZIP code directory.

The problem stems from the 1965 consolidation of the city of Rockville with the town of Vernon under the name Vernon. Longtime residents resent what they see as "trying to wipe us off the map."

They point out that many town landmarks, the high school, the hospital and library, all bear the name "Rockville."

After word came last October that the new post office would be named "Vernon", angry Rockville residents protested. The Postal Service agreed to change the name to the "Vernon-Rockville" post office.

But Joseph M. Donohue, postal service director of customer service in the Connecticut Valley District, says that has not satisfied many Rockvillers.

One angry resident told Donohue at a public hearing last week, "Since Rockville was forcibly married to Vernon, why can't she retain her maiden name and her married name second."

Rosa Ponselle's Birthday Marked

BALTIMORE (AP) — Members of the opera world gathered here over the weekend to help diva Rosa Ponselle celebrate her 80th birthday.

Miss Ponselle, known as the first American-born and American-trained singer to appear at the Metropolitan Opera, reminisced about singing with "the king of tenors," Enrico Caruso.

"I didn't realize (his greatness) at the time. I was so young," she said.

Integon Life Insurance General Agent
Booger Scales, Integon's Top Agent.

Booger Scales' "Impossible Dream" comes true in Greenville

"Sure, he's the top agent in Integon's 56-year history, but double..."

Try to imagine this. About a year ago, a meeting is held in the Integon Life Insurance home office up in Winston-Salem. Sitting around the conference table are the marketing vice president, regional vice presidents, service people, and the man from Greenville, Booger Scales.

It's more like a congratulations session, actually. The 1975 sales results have just come in, and Booger has clobbered all company records with five and a half million dollars of insurance protection. Once again, he's number one.

The "Impossible Dream."

The meeting quiets for a moment, and somebody asks Booger the inevitable question: "Booger, you've broken every record in the book. What kind of goal have you set for yourself to top 1975?"

Booger leans forward. You can feel the intensity and the sincerity in his eyes. But his answer leaves everyone feeling a little twinge of doubt. "This year I have an impossible dream. I want to double the sales of Integon's number two agent."

"That's a lot of insurance protection, Booger."

People around the table scratch some figures on note pads. The competition at Integon had been intense, and the runner-up to Booger could be expected to sell around $4 million of protection during a 12-month span. But Booger said it, and his word is as good as his record. When the "franchise" promises some goal in sports, you believe him. When Booger says it, you believe him.

Booger's "impossible dream" comes true in Greenville.

By June, the people who attended the meeting have begun to believe he can do it. The runners-up are doing well — extremely well. But the reports coming out of Greenville are incredible.

The year ends, and the final sales report is issued. Of course, Booger reports the top sales for the fifteenth time. And the runner-up looks impressive, too, with about $4 million of protection.

People gather around the sales figures, and shake their heads in disbelief. There it is, in black and white: W.M. Scales, Greenville . . . $8,062,525. Somebody pulls out a calculator, divides by 50 working weeks, and then again by five days a week. The total represents $32,250 a day.

Someone else tries to think of other agents, in other companies, in the state, who have done what Booger has done. They can't think of anybody. This much is sure: No other agent writes the quality of business Booger does — 99 percent of his business stays on the books for a minimum of 2 years which says a lot for the service he provides to his clients.

Congratulations, Booger.

And thank you, Greenville, for your support. With it Booger Scales realized his impossible dream. He touched his unreachable star.

Fell Through Ice And Drowned

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Andre Alvin Davis, a 17-year-old high school junior, drowned Sunday when he fell through thin ice on a pond in west Charlotte, police said.

Two men jumped into the frigid waters in an attempt to rescue Davis, but were unsuccessful, authorities said.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, were staying in a motel because a fire destroyed their house on Wednesday. Andre was staying with an aunt and two other children were staying with friends.

"He was very fearful of water," said the elder Davis, a life insurance broker. "He would not take (swimming) lessons."

Charlotte policeman M.R. Smith said the youth was the fifth person to drown in the pond in the last three years.

Your HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are apt to get into a big and unnecessary argument early unless you control your tongue when opposition arises. By so doing you will later have a very interesting opportunity to express your special talent and ability in an unusual manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care not to argue with a bigwig today, but go after personal aims with precision and get good results. Join with good friends later in the day and interesting things happen.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't try to force your way out of some limitation early or you have more trouble since later all changes and you win out. Listen to what intelligent advisers have to suggest. Follow best of these.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Steer clear of some annoying factor and then you can be happy with congenials. Plan how best to gain your most personal aims, goals. Make sure you do not argue with mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be grateful for what you have. Get finest abilities to the attention of bigwigs for advancement. Be precise in your efforts.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Give more thought to that responsibility ahead of you so you handle it properly. Later you can have a delightful time with a loved one. Your hunches are not apt to be accurate today so rely on your mature judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to help others with their problems and gain their favor. Show you are a humanitarian. Get back into the good graces of a loved one by some special thought, act.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A partner can be annoying during the day but keep silent and then later you know what was bothering him. Make sure you pay important bills. Home and hearth and best bet in evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Clear up some misunderstanding early and then go out later for amusements you like. Being affectionate with persons you like is wise. Handle a business matter wisely, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take a new tack where others are concerned and get along better, especially where those who have wanted to impose on you is concerned. Meet successful persons who can be of help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listen carefully to what kin have to suggest and forget any prejudices you may have. Forget negative thinking. The aspects are fine for gaining important personal aims.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy on important outside activities and forget any anxieties you may have that could hold you back from progressing. Be more enthusiastic and you are more successful. Avoid a hypocrite.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠85 ♠AQ762 ♣Q963 ♣93
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. We are not usually inclined to sell out cheaply, but indications are that partner does not have very much. He could not overcall or make a takeout double, despite indications that he might be short in diamonds. It looks as if West has a very powerful hand, so don't give him a chance to show it.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠987 ♠KQ53 ♠AJ107 ♠Q2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass Pass, 1 ♠
Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. This is rather unusual action at the one-level with only four trumps but you can expect to score three tricks in the enemy suit and have other goodies besides. With so much of your strength concentrated in the enemy suit, you don't rate to make game opposite a partner who could not open in third seat and is now balancing. This decision is based strictly on the vulnerability. If East-West were not vulnerable, it would be wise to play for a small penalty when you have a valuable partnership in the offing.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠983 ♠AJ62 ♠J6 ♠AQ105
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—If partner is an aggressive bidder, you should be satisfied to raise to four no trump—he won't refuse the invitation on any hand that stands a chance for slam. However, if your partner is the kind who wears a belt and suspenders, you should just up and bid the small slam.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10962 ♠Q9643 ♠A7 ♠K8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ 2 ♠ ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. This is not the time to put partner under pressure with a nifty pambly bid of three hearts. The opponents' bidding marks partner with a singleton spade, and the high cards between the two hands are all working, so bid what you expect to make.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J865 ♠A9652 ♠J5 ♠Q4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Dble. ?
What action do you take?

A.—There is no reason not to make your natural bid of one heart, which you would have done had there been no interference. If you pass, you will have no safe way of showing your values on the next round, and your side could get frozen out of the auction when the hand belongs to you.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠1062 ♠93 ♠KQJ7 ♠A97

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Simple addition should lead you to the right bid—six no trump. You have a balanced hand of 14 points opposite a partner who has shown a balanced 18-20. But we don't mind if you stop to bid three diamonds en route. If partner has four-card support, six diamonds might be a safer proposition.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠95 ♠A73 ♠AKQJ963
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that partner passed originally, slam prospects are bright because partner's spade strength meshes nicely with our hand. We suggest a cue-bid of four diamonds. If partner now cue-bids in hearts, we would settle for a conservative five clubs. If he raises diamonds or again rebids his spades, we would gamble on the club slam.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South, with 60 on score, you hold:
♠95 ♠AJ10976543 ♠J7
With what do you open the bidding?

A.—There are two choices. Either pass, and then continue to bid hearts as cheaply as possible in the hope that the opponents will let you buy the contract. Or open four hearts, and hope that the opponents won't risk competing at this high level.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Strike Planned By TV Writers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear, the sad-faced sitcom king, is a bit harried lately. He's been face-lifting "Mary Hartman" and "A Year at the Top," runs eight other shows and faces a possible Writers Guild strike affecting the entire TV industry on March 1.

That date is when the guild's current industry contract expires, and agreement reached in the summer of 1973 after a 3½-month strike that delayed work on most series scheduled for the 1973-74 season.

But Lear sounded quite calm when asked why he: —Recently began personally toiling again on the Hartman show, which some critics groused had become a daily downer of "Serious Social commentary with little of its old, wild, spaced-out humor."

—Got CBS' permission to yank his scheduled (for Jan. 19) "Top" comedy about aged performers who get instant youth from the devil in exchange for their souls and a year's show biz success.

"Top," with eight regulars, including Mickey Rooney, "just wasn't very good," candidly admitted Lear, who returned the show to his emporium for revamping and possibly a fresh start in September.

"It was just too complicated. We were trying to tell too many things and consequently nothing was told. And we just did a bad job."

He still believes in the show's concept, but says its revamping will include a reduction in cast size, a move being discussed now.

"In simplifying it, we will lose some characters, but I don't know which ones yet," he said.

Lear, whose syndicated Hartman show got much praise when it began in early 1975, ran afoul of grumbles from critics and letter-writing fans who said it was getting boring. Ratings slumped briefly.

His diagnosis: "It was taking itself too seriously and consequently so was some of the acting."

The cause: "I let go of the rudder and we went adrift. So I took it back again and worked very hard on it, which was a pleasure."

What happened, he said, was that even after it first clicked, he still spent much time working on it because of its show-a-day schedule. But in September, he felt it was doing well enough for him to ease off.

Then, even before outside gripes came in, persons close to him, friends and relatives, grew less frequent in their praise of the show's various twists and turns. It bothered
