

Hunt To Declare Energy Crisis

By The Associated Press

Gov. Jim Hunt said today he intends to declare that "an energy crisis exists in North Carolina." His announcement followed a meeting with the Energy Policy Council.

The council, which was set up to coordinate conservation activities, met with Hunt to discuss what effect such a declaration might have on the state and its dwindling energy supplies.

Hunt said he had reviewed the state's supplies of natural gas, heating oil and propane with the North Carolina Utilities Commission and officials of the state energy division. "In a word, it is bleak. Some areas of the state are ranging from none to a three-day supply," said the governor.

"I have seen no evidence yet that the shortages have caused massive layoffs. But there is no question that some people have lost their jobs during this period, and our previous experiences with natural gas shortages show us that North Carolina's economy can be badly damaged in this kind of situation," Hunt said.

He said, "There are no reports of emergency hardships facing residential fuel customers, but we must remain alert to this."

Meanwhile, energy officials were expressing concern that congressional action might deprive North Carolina of the benefits of planning which have so far spared the state from massive energy-related layoffs.

"It is now my intention to declare a crisis situation in North Carolina," Hunt told the legislature Monday night after meeting with the state Utilities Commission and other officials.

Such a declaration, when followed by concurrence of a special legislative committee, gives Hunt authority to order a host of energy-saving measures including shorter school and business hours and lower thermostat settings.

Hunt was to meet with the Energy Policy Council, an advisory body, at 10:30 a.m. today before formally declaring the crisis.

Otherwise, the energy situation remained largely unchanged. Utilities Commission Chairman Tenney Deane said no one but the highest priority gas users was getting natural gas.

But layoffs remained low compared to other states, he said, because North Carolina businesses had been told over the past three years the crunch was coming and had made at least some provision for alternate fuels.

The switch to propane and fuel oil, however, has strained those supplies to the limit, Deane said, and he warned that the Federal Energy Administration might be ordered to divert some supplies of those fuels to other states.

Also in doubt for the same reason, Deane added, was whether North Carolina would get all of new shipments of emergency natural gas which began flowing Monday.

The emergency gas, officials warned, would only keep high priority customers on line and replace gas borrowed from reserves during the coldest weather. It will not permit resumption of service to curtailed customers.

Gas curtailments to North Carolina, Deane said, are just as severe as those to New York, New Jersey and other states that have reported hundreds of thousands laid off because of fuel shortages.

Planning, he said, "is the only thing that saved us." "You remember the old story of the wise virgins and the foolish virgins," Deane quipped. "Well, we've been the wise virgins."

TALKING ON CRIME — Gov. Jim Hunt, seated in front of his speaking stand, tells a news conference in Raleigh that North Carolina's approach to controlling crime has failed. Fuel-Saving Steps Undertaken

By SUSAN QUINN

Prior to Governor Jim Hunt's declaration of an emergency energy crisis in North Carolina Tuesday morning, Greenville and Pitt County officials said that many conservation measures are underway and that all offices are ready to comply with the Governor's request.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne said that he believes that the governor's declaration is the best thing to do for energy conservation.

"At this time we don't know what effect his declaration will have on us, but it is possibly the best thing to do at this time especially for the gas situation. I understand by taking this action that Governor Hunt will be able to hold on to the gas allocated to North Carolina by Transco in the event Congress takes other measures this week," Horne said.

"We still have our firm industrial loads off and are urging commercial users of natural gas to continue to conserve," Horne added.

Greenville City Manager, Jim Caldwell said that the city offices are ready to comply with the governor's declaration.

"We will do everything necessary to comply with the declaration. Last week I asked all city offices to keep thermostats set at 65 degrees. The majority of the city buildings are below 65 degrees. All of the city departments have been instructed to curb the use of energy," Caldwell said.

"At night we are keeping the thermostats at 60 degrees and during the weekends we are turning them back to 50 degrees. City Hall uses natural gas and the Fire Department uses natural gas and we are trying to cut back," Caldwell said.

According to Bill Weston, gas manager of the Utilities Department no information concerning relief of the natural gas shortage has been issued.

"We have received no information at all about relief. Of course we don't know what will happen. Right now we are planning it day by day. It seems that the propane is holding out okay and we seem to be keeping up with the propane load," Weston said.

Pitt County School Superintendent Ott Alford said that the county school officials have been making plans to assist the conservation efforts prior to Hunt's declaration.

"Prior to hearing Governor Hunt's declaration I have planned to ask the board of education today to open schools one hour later each day for the rest of February to cut down on a little use of energy. We will have to see what the governor says before we make any further plans," Supt. Alford said.

Cliff Moore, Vice Chancellor of Business Affairs at ECU said Tuesday that the declaration of an energy crisis will not be an insurmountable problem for the university.

"The energy crisis is a problem but not an insurmountable problem for the university. We will do whatever the Governor declares. We haven't ordered the turning back of thermostats to 65 degrees, but many of the departments have," Moore said.

Find Overcharging By 3 Power Firms

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court ruled today that the state Utilities Commission permitted three power companies to over-charge fuel charges and ordered the companies to repay their customers a total of $35 million.

Aides in the attorney general's office, which brought the appeal to the Supreme Court, said Duke Power Co. would be required to reimburse about $18.5 million; Carolina Power and Light Co. about $13 million; and Virginia Electric and Power Co. about $3.5 million. The court divided 4-3 over the case.

Justice J. William Copeland filed a dissenting opinion to the majority ruling, which was written by Justice I. Beverly Lake. Chief Justice Susie Sharp and Justice Dan K. Moore joined Copeland in the dissent.

In ordering the case remanded to the utilities commission, the Supreme Court majority opinion said, "The commission's order permitting Duke to impose the surcharge here in question was in excess of the commission's authority and without justification either in law or in the name of fair play."

A utilities commission official said the Duke surcharge which the court knocked out amounted to .069 cents per kilowatt hour for the 12 months between September 1975 and August 1976. He said the figure for CP&L was .089 cents per kilowatt hour for the same period and for Vepco .224 cents per kilowatt hour.

For a customer using 1,000 kilowatts of power per month this aide figured Duke would be required to refund a total of $8.28. For CP&L the total refund for such a customer would be $10.68 and for Vepco the total refund per customer would be $26.88.

However, the way the refund would be made would depend on the commission's order to the power companies.

The amount could be spread out over several months or possibly credited to future bills.

The case developed from the action of the 1975 legislature which terminated as of Sept. 1, 1975 the fuel clauses then in effect. The new law permitted the utilities commission to add fuel charges to the company's basic rates.

Under the old fuel clause, the utilities were permitted automatically to add extra charges for the cost of fuel needed to generate electricity, based on prices paid for fuel two months previously, which were their latest figures.

The legislature required under the new law that the fuel cost not be applied automatically but applied only on prior approval of the commission.

In addition, the General Assembly intended that the fuel charge be considered part of the basic rate instead of a special charge.

Alaskan Gas Pipeline Has FPC Support

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Power Commission hearing officer today recommended approval of a 4,000-mile pipeline across Canada to carry natural gas from northern Alaska to the lower United States.

Administrative Law Judge Nahum Litt said the trans-Canada system proposed by the Arctic Gas Study Group would be clearly superior to two competing proposals by El Paso Alaska Co. and Alcan Pipeline Co.

Litt's recommendation now goes to the full Federal Power Commission for its review and a final recommendation to the President, due by next May 1 under legislation authorizing such a pipeline and setting a schedule for federal decisions.

The President's recommendation is due by next Sept. 1 but may be postponed until Dec. 1; then Congress is to review it within 60 days.

The Arctic Gas Study Group includes four pipeline applicants: Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co., Canadian Arctic, Northern Border, and Pacific Gas Transmission Co.

The Arctic Gas project would be designed to carry some 2.25-billion cubic feet of gas daily to U.S. markets, while the two competing projects would be designed for about 2.4-billion cubic feet.

But Litt said the Arctic Gas project could be expanded more easily than the others if additional gas deliveries are needed.

The project would carry gas not only from the Prudhoe Bay area of Northern Alaska, estimated to contain some 22-trillion cubic feet of gas, but also from reserves in Canada's MacKenzie Delta.

The proposed pipeline would cross the Alaskan Wildlife Range, but Litt said its impact there would be small. In any case, he said, fuel reserves probably will be developed in the range.

After crossing into Canada, the pipeline would turn south-east up the MacKenzie River and continue on to the vicinity of Calgary. From there, it would branch into two separate legs, one heading south into the states of Washington, Oregon and California, and the other crossing into Montana, then going on through North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois.

The Alcan project would send its pipeline south from Prudhoe Bay, avoiding the wildlife range, then cross into Canada and meet up with a separate pipeline from the MacKenzie Delta, and continue past Calgary along a similar route to Illinois. A separate connection to the U.S. West Coast could be added.

Opportunity To Resume School

BOONE, N. C. (AP) — Beginning today, Watauga County high school seniors have the opportunity to get back in class. Not high school classes but Appalachian State University classes.

Tom Corbitt, university news director, said the high school seniors are being given permission to attend special university classes as long as county schools are closed because of the weather.

Corbitt said members of the college faculty volunteered to open certain classes for the high school seniors.

"This will be done on a space available basis," Corbitt said. Watauga County schools have been closed since Dec. 20 and more than 44 inches of snow has fallen since then.

Governor Outlines Anti-Crime Plans

RALEIGH (AP) — Here are the highlights of Gov. Jim Hunt's anti-crime proposals, made before the General Assembly Monday night:

STATE GOVERNMENT
—Create "one department responsible for fighting crime" — a new Department of Crime Control, Public Safety and Veterans, and put it into action by April 1. It would include the Highway Patrol, Alcoholic Beverage Control enforcement unit, the present Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, Civil Preparedness, Civil Air Patrol, National Guard and state boards concerned with crime control.

—Reorganize the Governor's Law and Order Commission into the Governor's Crime Commission and make it "the nerve center for planning our fight against crime."

—Create a Juvenile Code Revision Commission which to undertake "the first concentrated, coordinated and independent evaluation of our juvenile justice efforts," and instruct it to have a report ready for the anticipated 1978 special session of the General Assembly.

CITIZEN ACTION

—Create a new Office of Citizen Affairs to implement a statewide community watch program involving citizens in anti-crime efforts. "We must be willing to join our neighbors in learning to watch out for each other and each other's homes."

LAW ENFORCEMENT

—Raise minimum salaries of police officers from the current $6,500 a year to $7,600.

—Raise police training requirements from the current 160 hours to 240 hours with the additional 80 hours possibly coming in the second and third years of employment.

—Provide $1 million liability protection to police officers in the event they are sued for acts committed in the line of duty.

—Train officers to deal with rape cases and the victims.

CRIMINAL LAW
—Allow judges to require persons convicted of a crime to make restitution to the victim. It could be part of an active sentence or come after the offender is released.

—Establish "certain-sentencing" laws to let a potential criminal "know in advance what his punishment will be if he is caught and convicted."

—Impose the death penalty for first degree murder only, and guarantee indigent defendants an experienced attorney in capital cases.

—Require a jail sentence whenever a person is convicted of using a gun in commission of a crime.

—"Strengthen our completely inadequate laws against receiving stolen goods." That would be aimed at putting "Fences"—those who buy from thieves as a business—out of business.

—Require a jail sentence against habitual bad check offenders "and those who intend to defraud" with bad checks.

—"Decriminalize drunkenness and treat it as a disease, using jails only for the safety of the drunk."

—Urge police "to concentrate on the pushers of hard drugs."

SPEEDY TRIALS
—Require trials within 90 days of a person being indicted. To be phased in beginning July 1, 1978.

—Expand the Superior Court

NOT TOLL-FREE

Please give me the toll-free number of the N. C. Attorney General's Office. R. W.

There is no toll-free number for the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office, although there used to be. This and a number of other toll-free lines to state agency offices were taken out at the beginning of this fiscal year.

We asked Charles Edwards, a former Pitt County who is a consumer specialist in the Consumer Protection office, if there is any chance of getting this service reinstated. He said he does not believe so, that not having it seems to have eliminated the not-so-serious calls, that the persons who have serious complaints still call or write.

Persons wishing to have this service reinstated, however, may contact Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

The mailing address of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division is Box 629, Raleigh, N. C. 27602. The phone number is 733-7741. The prefixes of all state government phone numbers, by the way, have been changed from 829 to 733.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

LATCH NEEDLE

In response to Hotline's item published Tuesday locating a reweaver for a reader, another reader, Carolyn Setzer, has called with some helpful related information.

She said that when fabrics have threads pulled, but the fibers not broken, as is especially prone to happen with knits, a latch needle may be used to pull the thread back through to the "wrong" side, thus making it virtually impossible to see where the pick or pulled thread has been. The needle has a latch on it which may be closed so as to hold the thread securely while it is being pulled through. Most stores which stock sewing supplies would sell this type of needle, she said.

One brand name of such a needle is "Knit Picker," a local merchant told us.

Deny Evidence Missing On 'Wilmington Ten'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials say charges that potentially important evidence in the controversial Wilmington 10 case was missing are "without substance or merit."

Secretary of Administration Joseph W. Grimsley said a state Justice Department probe of the accusations had turned up nothing to support them.

The Wilmington 10 were convicted of charges stemming from the firebombing of a store during 1971 racial disturbances in that city.

Benjamin F. Chavis Jr. was among them. But the Rev. Aaron Johnson, now a Fayetteville minister, said he had written reports showing Chavis was trying to defuse racial strife in the town, not stir it up.

Johnson was on the staff of the Human Relations Commission and said he was among those who urged Chavis to go to the town and check up on his activities while he was there. Johnson said last year the reports he wrote, which might have been of some use in Chavis' defense, were no longer in the commission's files.

Investigators found no such reports when they checked up on Johnson's claims, nor any evidence that they had been there.

"It looks to me like Aaron Johnson backed off about 90 per cent of what he told the newspapers," Grimsley said. "He never seems to be able to say exactly what specific piece of paper was missing."

The Wilmington 10 case is to be the subject of an upcoming segment of CBS' "60 Minutes."

One of the show's reporter hosts, Morley Safer, has taped interviews with Gaston County Dist. Atty. Jay Stroud, defense attorney James Ferguson of Charlotte and Chavis.

Half-Shell Avocados Are Elegant

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
At this time of year some of the most delicious avocados are in season. They have smooth skin that's forest-green in color and delectable flavor within.

Served on the half-shell as a first course, they can make a supper menu with a thrifty main course suitable for the most finicky of guests. This way of serving avocados we add, as further persuasion, couldn't be easier. Offering avocados on the half-shell means that you serve halves of the fruit in their skin with a savory dressing that contrasts well with the delicate flavor of the avocado itself. The dressing may be prepared well ahead, but the avocados are cut and seeded just before serving so their surface won't darken. A spoonful of dressing is poured into each cavity and the avocados are offered on salad plates with teaspoons for scooping away the flesh from the skin.

Sometimes an "extra" is added to each cavity before the dressing is poured in. In the case of a dressing with a tomato base this can be a few cooked shrimp or lumps of crabmeat. In the following recipe, much enjoyed at our house, we added orange sections because they are compatible with the citrus dressing.

ORANGE AVOCADOS ON THE HALF-SHELL

- 4 medium-size oranges
 - 1/4 cup olive oil
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 3/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
 - 4 medium-size ripe avocados
- With a sharp knife cut rind away from oranges so no thick white membrane remains. Over a bowl, slice each orange into sections by cutting the pulp away from the dividing thin membranes; or if the thin membranes are very tender, as in some oranges, cut sections so each segment of pulp encloses a thin membrane in its center. Cut each section in half crosswise. Chill oranges, reserving the small amount of juice inevitably left after sectioning.

Whisk or shake together 2 tablespoons of the reserved orange juice, the olive oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper; chill.

Just before serving cut avocados in half lengthwise; twist apart; remove seeds and any brown inner skin that adheres. Place avocado halves on salad plates. Arrange oranges (minus any juice that may have collected) in cavities. Whisk or shake together the dressing again and spoon a tablespoonful of it into each cavity. Serve at once.

Makes 8 servings.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Cindi Jensen suggested in a recent column in the Whethersfield (Conn.) Post that the world was ready for an Erma Bombeck doll. This would be a believable replica of a housewife with "lumps in all the wrong places, an oversized sweatshirt covered with paint, and gray roots in her hair."

Naturally, I'm flattered, but face it, Cindi—I can't compete with Barbie's 2 1/2-inch bust, Cher's concave stomach and the Bionic Woman's fingernails which open a can of tuna in two seconds flat.

Besides, I just received a doll that could not only replace my encounter group, it should be in every kitchen in America. It's a Voodoo doll. It stands about nine inches high, has a nondescript face and a few strings of black yarn for hair. Printed over its entire body are cures and curses (pending on your assets) which can be enhanced by white pins (for the cures) and black pins (for the spells).

Listed on the female doll are areas such as migraine, tennis elbow, droopy panty hose, split ends, double chin, hairy legs, yellow teeth and flat chest. The male counterpart has bullseyes clearly marked for athlete's foot, trick knees, varicose veins, pot belly, gas, loose dentures, broken zippers and ring-around-the-collar.

The doll was sitting on my countertop when Mayva came in for coffee the other morning. "Who does this belong to?" she asked.

"Me."

"Oh for crying out loud. Didn't anyone ever tell you you're big for 12? What's it do?"

"A lot. Whenever I see a size 10 that gets on my nerves, I just grab a black pin and give it a thrust and immediately every size 10 in the country feels rotten."

"Are you saying to me that you really believe in this nonsense?"

"One store in Philadelphia alone sold 1,500 of them," I said defensively.

"If you ask me, I think someone put a pin in your brain."

This morning, Mayva called and said, "I've had popped in sooner, but I've been feeling lousy, like someone sewed my mouth shut."

Mayva exaggerates. I only took a tuck in it with two small black pins.

Wide Style Choice Gives Glasses New Fashion Flare

By RANDI ROSENBLUM
NEW YORK (AP) — Women often make passes at men who wear glasses, says a New York optician, who adds that it all depends on the style of the spectacles. Changing glasses can make a man look younger, jazzier or more sophisticated, he says. And it can do the same thing for a woman.

"A new frame style can do what a new dress or a new haircut can do," says Vienna-born Alfred Poll, who has been making glasses for almost three decades.

In the last five years wearing glasses has become so fashionable that top designers like Christian Dior, Pierre Cardin, Givenchy and Pucci began making spectacle frames, and many people today wear glasses who don't need them to see. "I only wear these for glamour," said one Manhattanite, twirling her large, non-prescription, gray-frosted specs.

When Poll first started grinding lenses 27 years ago, people had very little choice in frames, he recalls. "They could have standard square, oval or slightly upswept ones," he said. Today there is a much wider choice.

Large, large glasses are still the most popular ones, for both women and men, said Poll. "Jackie Onassis started that trend." But, he cautions, big lenses must be ground more carefully to insure that the focal center of the glass matches the focal center of the eye. Narrower shapes are popular for nighttime wear.

Strong lenses can be made to appear weaker by beveling, surface coating and a suitable frame, he said. There are also new glasses without center circles for people who have had cataracts removed.

And there is even an attachment, the ptosis crutch, which fits inside the frame and is designed to help keep the eyelid open.

Glasses today are also more specialized, Poll points out. There are specific glasses made for tennis, golfing, boating, fishing and skiing. There are glamour glasses for evening, fold-up glasses for the opera and even the monocle is making a minor comeback, he said.

For many, glasses have become not only a necessity, but also a major accessory, Poll notes. "After all," he says, "isn't it the face that people will remember — more than the shoes, gloves or hat?"

She Likes Her Life As Actress, Wife

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Ask male moviegoers for their opinion of actress Katharine Ross and answers will include "beautiful," "dynamite," "reminds me of Grace Kelly," or some such flattering remark that may reflect the age of the admirer. A 23-year-old boy said, "she's the nice old-fashioned girl type," as if he knew.

In person she is that — the nice, old-fashioned, pretty, girl-next-door-type. She doesn't have complaints about producers, directors, male or female stars, today's movies or her roles as many actresses do. She has liked actors and leading men. But then she's been lucky. They've included James Stewart, Dustin Hoffman, Robert Redford, Paul Newman, Jim

Garner and John Wayne. And she accommodates autograph seekers. They were in hot pursuit at the New York hotel where she and her husband were staying. "They call me at all hours wanting to know when I am going out. And there is no point in lying," she explained as she put down the phone once more. "But it becomes a little unnerving. Some seem to be professional autograph seekers. Day after day I see the same faces in the crowd and some have cameras."

She gets letters from teenagers and college kids, "always nice and complimentary, and sometimes very personal." Looking taller than her height of 5 feet 4 inches and younger than her 33 years, Katharine has hazel eyes and wears her long, straight reddish-blonde hair in that swinging look. It is washed every day. She has been promoting the film, "Voyage of the Damned," in which she had a "small, meaty role," three days' work in England. These days if your part doesn't run through a movie they "schedule your entire part so that logistically, you do it all at once. They don't have to pay you for a lot of wasted time," she said.

She has had some real screen plums from the beginning, including "The Graduate," which won her an Academy Award nomination and gave her early recognition. And there has been a succession of good breaks, including "The Hellfighters" with Wayne, who is her favorite actor. "He is a real presence. He knows who he is and is great to be around. He is helpful, funny, fascinating. Redford is not easy to know well but he is charming and likeable," she continued. "Newman becomes involved in the project he is working on and I was surprised he had a funny side to him. Jim Garner is an all-around nice guy. Doesn't change at all and has a very dry sense of humor."

She considers herself "a very happy person." She met her husband of one year, New York born Tom Liici, when he was doing technical work on the set of one of her pictures. They are living in a large two-part trailer on their property at Malibu, where they plan to build a small house.

"I'd like it to have a lot of glass. There are streams running through and lots of trees, kind of a Connecticut feeling, but the setting is so beautiful, the house should be incidental."

Born in Los Angeles, Katharine majored in English at La Rosa College and waited until she was 32 to get married, but doesn't necessarily recommend late marriage.

"It depends what you want out of life. I was never a person to date a lot. I'm not very social and I like to get to know someone. Then, too, you may not know what you want of a person. You finally just meet the right one and that is it."

The right one had to be understood because "Being an actress makes it sort of difficult for a man when you are working and people are fussing over you just because you are in the movies."

Reply Brings Back Memories

DEAR ABBY: You told CANADIAN that it wasn't considered proper to mop up every last drop of gravy with a piece of bread. This brings back memories:

When I first went to Washington, D.C. as the late Franklin Roosevelt's secretary, I often dined informally with him and Mrs. Roosevelt, and was appalled to see Eleanor mop up her plate with a piece of bread on her fork!

I finally got up the nerve to ask her if that was correct, and shortly afterward in her column, "My Day," the following appeared: "Not only is it all right to mop up everything on one's plate with a piece of bread, that's the best part of the meal."

So now you can recommend sopping up every bit of gravy on one's plate.

ROLAND HILL

DEAR ROLAND: Assuming that your recollections are accurate, just because a famous lady fractures a rule of etiquette doesn't change the rule, but it probably will serve as a sop to other "soppers."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old single man. I started seeing a 19-year-old waitress, and we got serious. She said she was on the Pill, but somehow she turned up pregnant. I promised to marry her, but I kept putting it off until it was too late for her to get an abortion, so she had the baby. I admit I gave her a hard time, saying I wasn't sure the baby was mine. We ended up in a big fight, and she told me to get lost.

Well, she had a boy, and now he's 13 months old and she won't let me come near her or the baby. She even refused child support from me, saying she wants nothing to do with me.

I have taken Jesus Christ as my personal Savior and am truly sorry for my past mistakes. All I want is a second chance. Can I force her legally to let me be a father to my son? Or doesn't a father have any legal rights?

A CHANGED MAN

DEAR CHANGED: From where I sit, I'd say the young woman is holding all the aces, but if you want to know your legal rights, engage a lawyer. Beyond that, I recommend prayer.

DEAR ABBY: I reply to the woman whose Scorpio husband refuses to bathe regularly or use a deodorant. Well, if he's a typical Scorpio, nagging him about it will only make him more stubborn. (I know, I'm also married to one.)

The wife should say to him, "Oh, honey, I just love it when you smell so clean. You come on so sexy that I can hardly stand it!" (Of course, she'll have to catch him sometime when he IS clean.)

If he doesn't take the hint, she could prepare a nice warm bubble bath for herself and ask him if he wants to jump in.

IT WORKED FOR ME

DEAR WORKED: Congratulations!

Finland Looks To Mushrooms For Aid

By HARALD MOLLERSTROM
Associated Press Writer
HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Not only might mushrooms help stave off starvation in the poor Third World countries, but they could also be a healthy contribution to the Finnish economy, which depends too heavily on timber production, says a high Finnish official.

The Finns, who have embarked on a unique project to exploit their resources, claim there could be an annual harvest of about 765 million tons of various kinds of mushrooms, of which only a tiny percentage is used now. The Finns are also harvesting 25 million tons of different sorts of berries, which is only 5 per cent of the estimated amount available.

A study, announced recently by the Forestry Institute, showed that the value of mushrooms, blueberries and lingonberries in the woodlands is comparable to the value of timber production in the same area.

This opens up new possibilities for a nation that relies heavily on timber, a raw material in decreasing supply.

The interest in mushrooms has snowballed here the last few years, but still cultivated mushrooms imported from Asia dominate the market, despite the fact that the home-grown mushrooms are said to be tastier and more nutritious.

An international nutrition symposium in Hamburg, discussing the worldwide economic importance of mushrooms, concluded that the situation of hungry nations could be improved drastically if their people learned to eat mushrooms. Finland hopes to increase its exports.

In an unprecedented program here, authorities are training "mushroom consultants" who in turn train an army of mushroom pickers. Today this northern nation has 1,200 consultants and 38,000 active pickers.

The number of different varieties of mushrooms in the Nordic countries exceeds 3,000, of which about 300 could be used as food. The number of lethal mushrooms is less than a handful.

Pohjola said the consultants pass through a seven-day crash course to learn to recognize about 30 commercial varieties of mushrooms.

A dense network of assembly points has been built up throughout the nation, mainly dairies and cooperatives, which purchase the mushrooms and transport them to processing plants.

Particularly in the underdeveloped areas such as eastern and northern Finland, many families live only on their tax-free income from picking mushrooms and berries.

Govm't Experts Show Firms Can Break Computer Security

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's own experts breached the defenses of a federal computer system, showing that private companies could have browsed through confidential information on millions of Americans. But the same experts now say the gaps in the security system of the Social Security Administration's computer have been patched.

Agency spokesmen said there was no indication private companies tried to exploit the weaknesses in the giant Social Security computer, located in Baltimore.

Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell revealed the gaps in the computer's security system in a letter to four congressmen who were worried about the privacy of records on Social Security recipients, Medicare beneficiaries and older Americans on welfare.

"This gap is, I am afraid, typical of the kind of human error that renders ineffective even the best designed safeguards contained in automated data systems," Cardwell said in the letter.

The information that the weaknesses left vulnerable to unauthorized access included family income and assets, marital status and medical information. Also in the computer are records of payments to the millions of Americans who get Social Security checks or Supplemental Security Income payments.

The government contracts with 125 private organizations — called carriers or intermediaries — to process Medicare bills. These organizations, including insurance companies and Blue Cross, need the information in the computer on Medicare recipients to process bills for medical treatment.

This includes information on an individual's eligibility and medical benefits that already have been paid.

To speed processing of bills, the government set up a system linking the computer with two terminals that can be used to ask the computer for Medicare information. The two are located at Aetna Life and Casualty Co. in Fort Washington, Pa., and Hawaii Medical Services Association in Honolulu.

The computer also contains information on Social Security recipients and others, which the Medicare organizations do not need and to which they are not supposed to have access. Local and regional Social Security offices have computer terminals that can get that information in order to help those with problems with the programs.

But prior to October, the private businesses could have asked the computer for information like that on Social Security recipients, and the computer would have provided the information on the television-like screen of the terminal.

That weakness was cured in October, making it secure against unauthorized access to data, the agency told the Privacy Protection Commission.

But as government computer experts tested the new security safeguard, the other two holes in the system were discovered. They were plugged the next day.

Congressman's Foot Removed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons removed the infected left foot of Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., Monday, one month after he entered the hospital.

Teague, 67, had injured the foot in World War II. A press aide said the congressman has had bad circulation in the foot in recent months.

Teague, chairman of the Science and Technology Committee, will remain in Bethesda Naval Hospital for further surgery on the leg. No date has been set for him to return to his office, the aide said.

Two Collisions Here Yesterday

An estimated $2,000 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:03 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue, 48 feet East of the 14th Street intersection involving a truck driven by Shade Frankie Hardee Jr. of 101 Berkshire Rd. and Samuel Michael Weston of 1301 East Wright Rd.

Damage was estimated at $900 to the Hardee truck and $200 to the Weston car.

An 11:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets involved vehicles operated by Phillip Edward Smith of 303A Scott's Dorm and Lucinda Smith Hall of 1311 Willow St.

Investigators estimated damage at $500 to the Smith car and $400 to the Hall vehicle.

Good Guidelines For A C-of-C

Charlie McCullers, a former Chamber of Commerce manager, spelled out some pretty good guidelines for an active Chamber which wants to make its community better last week.

McCullers spoke at the annual meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

"A Chamber of Commerce is an organization of intelligent, ambitious, unselfish people dedicated to working to make a better place to live, work, play and worship, and working and playing together to promote the social and economic activities of the area," McCullers told the Chamber members and guests.

He cited the special needs of a Chamber:

- Community awareness of the role of the chamber and its potential.

- An important role of the Chamber in government.
- Adequate financing.
- Potential impact on proper and orderly community growth.
- Citizenship.

Through its membership and supporters a good Chamber of Commerce brings together the most potent forces of leadership and energy that a community has to offer.

If these forces are directed properly that can do wonders in building the livability of the community, and this in turn will benefit individual citizens and business alike.

That is quite a challenge for any of Chamber of Commerce and we hope it is one that the local Chamber will fully embrace.

We Will Remember The Winter Of '77

This bitter cold winter is creating many problems.

Up in Boone the students went back to school after a 25 day vacation caused by the heavy snows. In surrounding Watauga County, however, the schools still had not reopened last week and it was not known when they would open.

The time, of course, will have to be made up next summer disrupting plans for students and teachers alike.

It's a winter that will be talked about for a long time.

The Schools In Jeopardy

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The walls of educational jargon and rejection of parental viewpoints as worthless in the face of professionalism are creating hurdles which place North Carolina public schools in jeopardy, a number of top state officials fear.

So far, North Carolina has avoided public reactions which have hit schools in some isolated sections of the nation: defeated bond issues, refusals to fund the schools, tax strikes.

But there is a void. School patrons are demanding change in the public schools, and are frustrated by the refusal of some educators to even listen, let alone recognize the validity of parental input.

That is the crux of the public school problem which Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. seeks to attack in his proposed Community Schools Act now being readied for legislative consideration.

Tough Job

The governor, top officials in the State Department of Public Instruction, and knowledgeable educators across the state agree on one thing: the toughest part of bringing about a successful Community School program will be breaking down those bureaucratic walls in the local schools.

"The single most damaging attitude that presently exists within and about the public schools (is) isolationism. For those who feel this contention is unsupported," participants at a round-table seminar on public school problems contended, "we cite the following as evidence:

"—The infrequent presence and involvement of parents and other members of the community in the schools; the scarcity of effective communication (written, oral, or otherwise) between the school and parents, and; the absence, generally, of any comprehensive system within the schools for referral of school-age children whose needs are not being met to appropriate agencies outside the school."

The authors of that indictment were people from the state's universities, community colleges, social workers, school librarians and staff, and state agency people working with children.

The setting was a seminar sponsored by the Learning Institute of North Carolina.

U.S. News and World Report in the Jan. 17 issue spotlighted the trend toward volunteers in the schools: "Schoolteachers and officials, often inclined to discourage 'meddling' in schools by outsiders, now are concluding that if communities are to be called on for more money, schools must invite community involvement in day-to-day operations of schools."

Bad Attitude

Gov. Hunt agrees that the attitude of the educators in some, if not many, public schools is the biggest bugaboo in his push for community school involvement: "But, our plans are to bring the communities into a strong partnership with the schools. We are all committed to that." Hunt has been meeting with superintendents and principals to urge their commitment.

"Education is done at the local level. That is where it belongs. We can't just wave a magic wand in Raleigh and make it happen. It will have to be done by the educational process and led by the governor . . . and that is precisely what I intend to do."

"My entire proposal focuses on getting people involved, and creating an atmosphere in which the schools will be open and honest with them . . . that is essential," Gov. Hunt says.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction A. Craig Phillips thinks state funds to pay for opening up school buildings and handling the details of locking, cleaning up, etc., will help relieve much of the anxiety of principals over community use of the schools.

Beyond that, however, Phillips is telling local school officials that the public is slowly, but inevitably, demanding a partnership in their schools . . . the void in lack of understanding is going to be filled; either by embracing that partnership, or eventually by mandate from Raleigh.

Fabian Progress Grows

One of the dullest books ever printed just came from the Council on Wage and Price Stability. It is also one of the most chilling books ever to come across this desk. In the quietest kind of monotone, the council has raised a cry of alarm.

The book is a study of federal regulation of the iron and steel industry. Does the topic grab you? No. Put with more telling accuracy, the book is a study of the slow triumph of socialism over a major American industry — not by dramatic decree, but by steady indirection instead.

We have a classic pattern here. Back in 1884, when a group of English intellectuals conceived the socialization of Great Britain, they formed themselves into the Fabian Society. Their model was the Roman general, Quintus Fabius Maximus. He was known as Cunctator, the delayer; he gained lasting fame by harassing Hannibal with marches, countermarches, distant skirmishes. He avoided direct engagements. In the end, he wore the Carthaginian out.

The same thing is happening through the Fabian tactics of federal authority. If it ever were proposed to nationalize the steel companies outright, Congress would reject the proposition out of hand. Socialism! But over the years Congress has created so many regulatory agencies, and imbued them with such suffocating power, that the end result can scarcely be distinguished.

The council's study found that the steel industry is subject to more than 5,000 separate regulations stemming from 29 agencies administering 57 major programs. The effect is subtly to transfer the critical decisions from the private sector to the public sector. With few exceptions, company executives scarcely can move without federal approval. Ostensibly, the company managers are running their plants; for most practical purposes, the bureaucrats are.

Five thousand regulations! And these are not all. The council study was confined to steel manufacturing; it excluded mining and transportation. The study looked only at federal regulations, except where state regulations were mandated by federal law. Scores of other studies have been made of federal regulations in general; this is the first study ever completed of regulation in terms of a single major industry.

One of the most ominous findings is that the Fabian progress is both changing and growing.

It is changing in this way: Until 10 or 15 years ago, the federal approach was proscriptive. Laws, rules and regulations were drafted to tell the industry what it could not do — for example, the companies could not enter into conspiracies in restraint of trade. Now the significant shift is to regulations that are prescriptive — to rules that tell the industry what it must do.

The scope of government intervention expands inexorably. The number of agencies directly affecting the steel industry remained static at 13 from 1950 to 1960. Between 1960 and 1965, four new agencies were established. By 1970, the study reports, five more had been added. Between 1970 and 1975, seven others emerged.

The study also notes: "The reach of these regulations has extended more and more into the daily routine of plant operators and workers. Prior to 1970, most regulations, such as those governing taxes and securities, did not interfere in the day-to-day operation of the manufacturing process."

The most pervasive regulations are those that float down, like a great net, from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Other rules affect equal employment, pollution of air and water, the issuance of securities, the maintenance of pension plans. No aspect of steel production is left untouched.

As I say, it is a dull book. Outside the steel industry, only a handful of scholars and business leaders are likely to

The Supreme Court refused today to pass on litigation challenging the constitutionality of the federal Social Security Act and the Massachusetts unemployment insurance law.

The litigation, brought by Howes Brothers Company of Boston, had been dismissed by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court in Suffolk County. It ruled the federal law did not violate the constitutional right of the petitioners.

Howes Brothers Co. contended the state law was ineffective because the federal statute which it supplements was unconstitutional.

THE INSIDE REPORT

'The Boys' Have Arrived

By ROWLANDEVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In answer to who was responsible for the surgically adroit elimination of Greg Schneiders from President Carter's inner circle, the consensus reply consists of two words: "The Boys."

"The Boys" are the intense, largely anonymous, slightly left-of-center young men who owe their eminence to key Carter staffer Hamilton Jordan. Schneiders, slated to be Mr. Carter's appointments secretary until derogatory FBI reports about his financial background emerged, was never one of "The Boys." Whether or not "The Boys" actually engineered his fall, that half-suspicion has intensified their power within the new administration.

Indisputably, Jordan's circle has taken over the White House machinery, using the intimidating sense of power that generates fear and authority in a bureaucracy. With Carter aides privately questioning whether the new President's concept of cabinet government will work, the Jordan circle's impact may soon spread to the executive departments. Today, the White House; tomorrow, the government.

During the campaign, the youthful staff around 33-year-old campaign manager Hamilton Jordan became known, pejoratively, as "Hamilton's Boys" or simply "The Boys." But as with sophisticated Nixon staffers who belittled the crew-cut, eager young aides of H. R. Haldeman as "the Beaver Patrol" in the early Nixon days, the smiling condescension has disappeared in the Carter camp.

Jordan's ability to brush aside rivals Peter Bourne and Jack Watson has been well-publicized, but a potential competitor remained. Schneiders was clearly not one of "The Boys." His congenial contacts with journalists worried Jordan's cir-

To the Editor:

I was amazed to read Evans and Novak's recent story of the supposed intrigue surrounding my appointment to the White House staff. The reason their "inside story" has not appeared elsewhere is because there is no basis for it. Literally dozens of other reporters were responsible enough to contact me and get the facts before writing on the subject; Evans and Novak did not.

The truth is that President Carter, Charles Kirbo and Hamilton Jordan made every effort to treat me fairly in a very difficult situation and it is primarily due to that fact that the problem was successfully resolved.

Sincerely,
Greg Schneiders

cle. Most menacing, as Mr. Carter's personal aide on the campaign trail, Schneiders was filtering information from "The Boys" to the candidate. In the strategic post of appointments secretary, he could block access to the President.

Next came disclosure of derogatory financial information about Schneiders to eliminate him as appointments secretary, quickly followed by his exoneration and selection for an innocuous "special projects" job in the White House. In fact, Carter insider Charles Kirbo applied the coup de grace to Schneiders, and Mr. Carter himself was unhappy about Schneiders' alleged leaks to the press.

"It was no 'Boy' who got Schneiders, but a man — maybe the President," one staffer confided to us. But the prevailing view at the White House is that Kirbo and the President acted on information supplied by the Jordan circle — a view of great importance at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. "Everybody sits with his back to the wall at the 7:30

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

This letter is in reference to the editorial that appeared in the Sunday, Jan. 30 issue of The Daily Reflector concerning solid waste disposal for Pitt County. The editorial stated that the County Commissioners had "heard recommendations for placement of 40-cubic yard trash containers at strategic locations throughout the county."

In my opinion, this is a viable alternative that should have been considered several years before now. But I am glad to see that a plan such as this is being considered. The lack of solid waste disposal can cause serious health problems that are not limited by any means to the actual disposal locations. Some of our neighboring counties have implemented plans such as the one proposed for Pitt County with seemingly good results. However, I am concerned with the problem of these containers' becoming filled to capacity, which results in bagged garbage being left standing next to the container. Rodents, stray dogs, and other rural environment life find "homes" in these situations. The needless spread of disease and bacteria often may occur, not to mention the fact that the garbage left outside of containers has the possibility of becoming strewn throughout the surrounding vicinity by the animals and the wind.

Another problem for consideration is that the covers on the containers do not always remain shut. The spread of disease and bacteria may occur in this situation, also. But of equal importance is the factor involving odor emissions. The containers should be strategically located in accordance with their proximity to domestic activities.

I am sure that plans of this nature receive the necessary environmental input; therefore it should be brought to the citizens' attention that such a plan will work efficiently only if it is used correctly by the service population.

Economic Forecasts 'Chilled'

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The continued flow of arctic air southward over the industrial heartland of the nation is also paralyzing the analytical powers of many economic forecasters.

Never before have some of them faced quite the challenge they now see before them, a challenge for which there are really no guides in the textbooks and few or no criteria to borrow from earlier studies.

Most other destructive rampages of nature have been brief in duration, such as windstorms and earthquakes. Or they have been geographically limited, such as floods, droughts and frosts, or limited to certain crops or industries.

The frigid weather has not who could easily gauge the impact of crop loss resulting from drought or blight are perplexed about how and where to begin measuring the economic impact of the big freeze.

Nevertheless, they are pressed to make their estimates for banks, brokers, manufacturers and others.

Up to now, the major business economists have continued to stick with their earlier forecasts of a steady but unspectacular improvement through much of the year. And some even suggest we are in for a more prolonged period of improvement.

The index of leading economic indicators rose in December for the third straight month, but of even greater significance, it rose by 1.6 per cent, the largest gain in well over a year.

But this was before the severest weather. Throughout the fall — in October, November and December — temperatures were well below normal through much of the East. But that was before the coldest months.

The question that economic forecasters cannot possibly answer is whether the cold weather will continue. The truth is that the meteorologists can't tell either. About all they can say is that the pattern that produced the cold weather is still holding, and from what they can see it will continue to hold. An opinion.

And for already perplexed economic forecasters, that isn't exactly the kind of material they can feed to the electronic computers.

THE SPIRIT OF ADOPTION
"For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again unto fear, but ye have received the Spirit of adoption; whereby we cry, Abba, Father."

Here is one of the great verses of the Bible. There is a precious spiritual truth described in the word "adoption." It means that we belong to the spacious household of God. When people believe that, the bondage of fear departs; the spirit of adoption comes in to possess them.

No people ever had more in life to drive them to abject terror than the early Christians to whom St. Paul wrote these words about the bondage of fear. They were rejected by their generation, scourged, despoiled of their property, persecuted, dragged before magistrates. Many were killed in a variety of cruel fashions. Yet in the midst of such circumstances they displayed a calm courage.

These Christians were without fear because they knew that they belonged to God — they had been adopted.

Demands For Human Rights Rising In East Europe

EDITOR'S NOTE — Tens of thousands of East Germans apply to emigrate to the West. Worker protests in Poland force the Communist regime to rescind food-price increases. Czechoslovak intellectuals demand their government adhere to human rights commitments. Dissidence is growing in Eastern Europe. Its depth and seriousness are surveyed in this first of two articles.

By OTTO DOELLING
Associated Press Writer
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A human-rights movement spawned by Soviet dissidents demanding more freedom and a better way of life has spread to many of the East European Communist nations.

The East bloc dissidents have been buoyed by international public opinion and even Communist parties in the West. Their purpose: to pressure Communist regimes into granting more human rights as pledged by the Helsinki protocol, signed Aug. 1, 1975, by President Gerald R. Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, along with 33 other leaders of the East and West. The dissidents have met with government reprisals such as harassment, interrogation and sometimes arrest, but this is kid-glove treatment in contrast to the executions and wholesale jailings that prevailed in earlier years. But dissidents themselves warn that the currently mild response of Communist authorities could turn harsh. Reprisals by the government in Czechoslovakia brought sharp criticism last week from the U.S. State Department which charged that the Communist regime by arresting and harassing human rights advocates had violated the provisions of the Helsinki protocol.

Human rights activists in Prague deny the existence of a coordinated blocwide campaign of dissent. Former Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek, a key figure in the 1968 "Prague Spring" liberalization movement of Alexander Dubcek and spokesman of a new human rights initiative known as "Charter 77" says if there is any contact between regime critics in various East bloc states "it would be a spontaneous one. But I know of no direct links."

The nations that signed the 1975 Helsinki Protocol on Security and Cooperation in Europe are to meet in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, this June. Although the protocol is non-binding, East bloc governments have come under moral pressure from home and abroad to live up to the provisions on human rights.

The Soviet bloc has made some token concessions in this direction, but primarily have been concerned with gaining Western technical know-how and increased trade through the Helsinki agreement. Ota Sik, a former Czechoslovak deputy premier now in exile in Switzerland, said he believes this dependence and growing indebtedness to the West, estimated at about $40 billion, has weakened domestic control.

(daily morning staff) meeting — for protection," one aide told us.

Whoever is truly responsible, "The Boys" gained from the replacement of outsider Schneiders as appointments secretary by Jordan aide and campaign field director Tim Kraft, one of "The Boys" despite his advanced age of 35. But the most typical and potentially most powerful of Jordan's men is 24-year-old Rick Hutcheson, who in little more than a year has emerged from youthful obscurity to precocious dominance.

Fresh out of graduate school at Berkeley, Calif., as a $5,000-a-year "intern" at Democratic national headquarters here in 1975, Hutcheson sought a $7,000 pay increase (to $12,000). Turned down, he joined the Carter campaign in Atlanta and soon worked his way up to chief delegate hunter under Jordan.

Now about to earn at least $37,800 a year as one of Jordan's deputies (and maybe $48,000 after the raise), Hutcheson will be traffic cop over the White House paper flow — an immensely influential post in past administrations. Whereas Jordan is administratively disorganized, personally ingratiating and ideologically indistinct, Hutcheson is cold, competent and clearly liberal. "Keep your eye on Rick Hutcheson," recommends one Carter insider.

The other "Boys" placed in high-paying White House posts are similarly left of center: Landon Butler, 32; James Gammill, 22; Bill Simon, 22. Still another Jordan deputy, 25-year-old Phil Wise, was supposed to run the Democratic National Committee until he turned it down.

Not only do Jordan and Co. enter the White House with hands on the sensitive levers controlling access to the President of persons and papers, but there are no rivals of stature. One rival might have been veteran political operative Anne Wexler as top female White House aide. But she was shunted over to the Commerce Department by Jordan. Instead, the senior White House woman is Midge Constanza, an early Carter backer as vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., who is not regarded as a threat.

Having already assumed staff dominance over the Carter White House, the question now is whether "The Boys" will also move for control over executive departments. One day after the inauguration, they were complaining among themselves about the audacity of Secretary Joseph Califano in ignoring the White House while setting policy and picking personnel at his Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Califano, trusted White House lieutenant of Lyndon Johnson when some of "Hamilton's Boys" were in fourth grade, might ponder the fate, in this order, of Peter Bourne, Jack Watson and Greg Schneiders.

score their commitment to help bring about black majority rule in southern Africa.

Young goes first to London, to meet with Ivor Richard, the chairman of the stalled Geneva negotiations to arrange a peaceful transfer of power in Rhodesia. He flies on Wednesday to Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania, for meetings with black Rhodesian nationalists and the presidents of Tanzania, Mozambique, Angola, Zambia and Botswana — the "frontline" states actively supporting the black guerrillas fighting the white Rhodesian regime.

"It's really a get-acquainted visit," Young told reporters. "I'm prepared only to listen to the front-line presidents and see exactly what their view is on this situation and come back and report to the secretary of state and to the President."

"It's very difficult for the United States of America to assume responsibility for the problems of Africa. We're very sensitive to those problems and concerned about them, but essentially I think our role will be a supporting role."

Young has said it is imperative for the Africans themselves to find solutions to the problems of southern Africa. He said he has no plans to meet with the heads of the two white-minority governments in the area, Prime Ministers John Vorster of South Africa and Ian Smith of Rhodesia. He also said he does not intend to discuss the presence of Cuban troops in Angola.

From Tanzania, Young will fly back across Africa to Nigeria, on the west coast, for the Second World Black and African Festival of Arts and Culture.

recorded on major roll call votes conducted January 20-26. There were no House votes during the reporting week as the lower chamber continued to organize itself for the new Congress.

GRIFFIN BELL Confirmed, 75 for and 21 against, the nomination of Atlanta attorney Griffin B. Bell as the Carter Administration's attorney general.

Major issues during floor debate were alleged "cronism" stemming from Bell's closeness to President Carter, and Bell's civil rights record as a federal appeals court judge and as a close advisor to former Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver on school segregation policy in the late 1950's.

Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), a supporter, said: "Judge Bell's commitments for future high quality judicial appointments are clear," adding that perhaps we should not be so pious as to establish our own judgments on standards that were met by people 20 years ago..."

Sen. Charles Mathias (R-Md.), an opponent, said much of Bell's performance "was designed to retard the march of the law toward equality and justice at a difficult time in our history."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

RAY MARSHALL Confirmed, 74 for and 20 against, the nomination of F. Ray Marshall of Austin, Texas, to become President Jimmy Carter's secretary of labor.

Debate centered on the University of Texas economist's views on right-to-work laws, government jobs programs and minority hiring. Also at issue between conservatives and liberals was whether organized labor has become too powerful.

Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.), a supporter, said of Marshall: "He has an exceptional sensitivity for the problems of working Americans, but particularly for the plight of the poor... of minority groups, of disadvantaged women."

Served As Page In Legislature

Miss Linda Diane Strickland of Greenville was selected by Speaker Carl J. Stewart Jr. to serve as a Page in the North Carolina House of Representatives January 24-28. She was appointed by Representative H. Horton Rountree of the Eighth District. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin J. Strickland of Greenville.

Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah), an opponent, said: "His views... appear to be totally in line with organized labor which in many ways may be prejudicial to the goals and objectives of the vast majority of American workers..."

Helms voted "nay." Morgan voted "yea."

uity is not possible. Yet we want to show our people a sensible approach in this direction... The main thing for me is that so many diverse people with diverse philosophies have banded together in this action. The reaction of the regime is secondary."

The dissidents have won the support of Communist parties in the West, and East bloc governments are demonstrating extreme sensitivity to criticism from them.

In a recent front-page editorial, the Italian Communist party organ L'Unita said repressive measures in Czechoslovakia "widens the division and unheals the wounds caused nine years ago" when Dubcek's "Prague Spring" was crushed by Soviet tanks.

The French Communist party newspaper, L'Humanite, has printed a comment by Arthur London, a former Czechoslovak foreign minister, charging that authorities in Prague were reverting to the tactics of the 1950s through repression, insults and calumnies.

Without specifically mentioning Czechoslovakia or any other country, French Communist leader Georges Marchais, has said, "We have already expressed our disapproval of this or that limitation on individual liberties, whether it is a question of liberty of expression or creation, of the right to move about or the right of contestation. For us it is a question of principle. We defend these liberties everywhere in the world."

For the first time, disenchanted Marxists in the East bloc have a strong alternative model of communism that appears in their eyes to be poles apart from the Soviet police-state system imposed on Eastern Europe after World War II.

East German protest singer Wolf Biermann was stripped of his citizenship and now is living in West Germany. He told a news conference in West Germany that the evolution of the Western Communist parties had allowed "critical Socialists" within East Germany to become "more audacious, less embarrassed, more courageous and more clear-sighted."

Hajek, the former Czechoslovak foreign minister, says detente and Eurocommunism, are promoting the "social tendency" toward a less restrictive form of Marxism. Czechoslovak human rights activists also have received the support of 31 Hungarian intellectuals, who signed a letter protesting the reprisals taken by authorities in Prague.

Western observers find it difficult to gauge the support that regime critics enjoy in the various bloc countries. One Western diplomat in Prague appraised the human rights supporters there as an "intellectual fringe who are not united amongst themselves."

Cold Closes Thousands Of Factories In Midwest

By The Associated Press
Frigid temperatures persisted in most of the Midwest and Northeast today as thousands of factories closed by the drain on natural gas supplies remained shut but some schools in at least one state planned to reopen.

divert natural gas supplies to areas hit by the crippling cold. The emergency energy measure proposed by President Carter was approved by the Senate 91 to 2 Monday night. House leaders were hoping to bring it to a vote and send it to the President's desk today. It would give Carter authority to divert natural gas supplies to areas that need it the most because of the cold weather and would free some natural gas from federal price controls through Aug. 1. The bitter cold has left more than 75 persons dead and forced up to 1.5 million workers out of work after factories and businesses were closed to conserve heating fuel. At least 11 states ordered emergency measures to deal with the weather and energy crisis. Industry has been hit the hardest by the shortage of natural gas. In Ohio one million workers have been laid off. And an unemployment claims office spokesman in Columbus said he was bracing for a 500 per cent increase in applications. The federal government said Monday that the unusual demand for unemployment compensation due to weather-layoffs will put added pressure on state unemployment funds that are $3.6 billion in debt.

But a few districts said they might stay closed at least another day. About 2,541 of the state's public schools and about half of the 1,000 parochial schools burn fuels other than natural gas. Schools that heat with natural gas will be reviewed district-by-district by the state and the utilities, Gov. Milton Shapp said Monday. However, businesses employing 90,000 workers remained closed. Even as the bitter winter loosened its grip Monday on Ohio to let temperatures hover in the teens throughout most of the state, the gas cutbacks were expected to keep an estimated 500,000 factory workers and 150,000 teachers out of work. About two-thirds of Ohio's school systems will close for varying periods of time because of the gas shortages. Special programs in newspapers and over broadcast facilities were being prepared so students can continue their education at home. Major Ohio industry using natural gas was halted Monday as Columbia Gas of Ohio Co., the state's largest gas utility, ordered severe cutbacks except to residences and small businesses.

Another state utility had already ordered the same cutbacks, a third continued supplying minimal gas to only some industries and businesses and a fourth was holding industrial customers at maintenance levels. In Wisconsin the cold weather began to ease somewhat, and the Wisconsin Gas Co. has allowed 1,780 of its industry and public building customers to resume burning natural gas. However, the natural gas shortage in New York is affecting the lives of three-quarters of a million people, keeping them out of work or out of school. This is expected to last at least through the week. More than 1,000 schools that heat with gas are closed, giving about 500,000 pupils an unexpected winter vacation. And Gov. Hugh Carey estimated Monday that 2,145 industrial plants and commercial businesses have shut down in the face of inadequate gas supply. Twelve persons have died in Buffalo and there is little relief in sight for parts of snow-smothered western New York. Looting reports diminished Monday, after Buffalo police reported six times as many burglaries as normal over the weekend and 59 accused looters were arraigned in City Court.

First Non-Lawyer And Woman Is Filling Chair

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — For the first time, a legislative judiciary committee is headed by a woman who is not a lawyer. That precedent-breaking chairman is Rep. Patricia Stanford Hunt, D-Orange, head of the House Judiciary I Committee.

Mrs. Hunt's chance to prove herself came because of two men who control separate factions in the General Assembly. She was appointed chairman by House Speaker Carl Stewart. He insisted she take the job, she said, even though she was hesitant about not being a lawyer.

"It was his wish. He wanted a woman to do something different, to strike out into something new," Mrs. Hunt, a law student, said.

Paving the way for Stewart's break with tradition was Jimmy Green, now lieutenant governor and two years ago speaker of the House. Stewart was Green's opponent for speaker that session.

In the 1975 General Assembly, Green appointed Mrs. Hunt and Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, to a judiciary committee even though neither was a lawyer. They were the first women and the first non-lawyers to serve on a judiciary committee.

"I think that was the straw that put me into law school," Mrs. Hunt said. In the fall of 1975 she began full time law studies. She is now 48 years old and is two-thirds through the law program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

She had been accepted three previous times to UNC's law school, but her responsibilities as a mother kept her out.

In 1950, Mrs. Hunt graduated with honors from UNC, a Phi Beta Kappa student majoring in journalism. Both she and her first husband, the late Donald McIver Stanford, had been admitted to the law school.

"They (the faculty) were really hot on us because we were a couple. It was unusual," she said. But, she never got started because she was pregnant and the demands of law school are too much to allow a person to be a full time mother, she said.

Stanford finished law school and his wife stayed at home having four boys. But, when the youngest went to school, so did the mother. First as a history teacher then counselor and finally as a graduate student in history at UNC earning a master's in 1966.

Her second law school acceptance came in 1966 but again she was unable to attend because the school made no provisions for parttime students and she could not handle full time responsibilities, she said. Meanwhile, Stanford was a lawyer and dairy farmer and busy getting elected to the county commission then the General Assembly for six years. When Stanford died in May 1970, his widow was named by Gov. Bob Scott to the remaining months of the term. The legislature did not meet in that time and Mrs. Hunt did not run that year. She sought her first elected term in 1972 and married Tom Hunt of Durham shortly after winning the Democratic primary. Hunt moved to Chapel Hill, giving up a seat on the Durham city council. The legislature is virtually a full time job while in session every other year. To make up for missing this semester, Mrs. Hunt attended summer school last year, putting her one semester ahead. Because the legislature may meet again next year, she plans to attend summer school again this year, hoping to graduate in May, 1978. "Lord knows, I'm late enough getting over there," she said of finally starting law school.

Law school is demanding and much more difficult than other fields of study, Mrs. Hunt said. "I think the hardest part for me is the rote learning, memorizing," she said, adding that study of accounting and other exacting fields would be good preparation for law school.

"I got in because my grades were very good, but that was 1950," she said, noting that most applicants for law school are rejected. Her 1950 grades are not necessarily comparable to grades today, she said.

About 15 of Mrs. Hunt's former students are now classmates. "It's kind of hard to get them to call me Trish," she said, adding, "It's really funny." The younger students have an advantage, she said. Their youth allows them to put in long hours of study and sleepless nights that she cannot match at 48, she said.

In addition, she has friendships with some of the faculty through her legislative service and living in the college town for so many years. So far, she has managed to avoid taking any classes taught by a friend, she said.

There also have been instances of professors commenting on legislative actions. "It doesn't really bother me. I don't take blame or credit for all of it. I think it was a little harder on my fellow students, being embarrassed for me," she said.

However, businesses employing 90,000 workers remained closed. Even as the bitter winter loosened its grip Monday on Ohio to let temperatures hover in the teens throughout most of the state, the gas cutbacks Schultze said the cold wave may cost Americans up to $5 billion in additional heating bills. He held open the possibility that the severe weather could make it necessary for President Carter to increase his proposal of a $50 rebate for almost every individual.

In Florida, meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland said Monday that $30 million in federal funds will be made available to growers and displaced workers in 35 Florida counties.

Extreme northern Florida and parts of the South were hit Monday with a mixture of rain, sleet and snow, causing accidents and closing some roads.

The states most affected by weather-related unemployment and school closings were Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York.

Schools in Pennsylvania that are heated by fuel oil, coal or electricity were permitted to open again today, ending a three-day cold weather vacation for some of the state's more than 2 million students.

Arrest Man On Larceny Count

Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning police yesterday arrested Ronald Lee Brown, 23 of 1505B Halifax St. on larceny charges following an incident at Sunup and Sundown at 510 Cotanche St.

Cannon said Brown allegedly took a wallet containing $540 in cash from beside a cash register in the store about 2 p.m.

Brown, the chief said, was taken into custody on the charge about 6 p.m.

Restricting Operations

The Greenville Pizza Hut restaurant is one of 62 Pizza Huts in 32 North Carolina communities that is voluntarily restricting operating hours in an attempt to help ease the state energy crisis.

The announcement, which followed a telegram informing Gov. Jim Hunt of the action, was made by spokesman for Pizza Hut Inc., operators of 22 company-owned units, and CWG Enterprises Inc., the Pizza Hut system's largest franchise organization and operators of 40 North Carolina units.

It was announced that the new hours will include: 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday.

Pizza Hut said that the new business times, which represent a reduction of 26 per cent from normal operating hours, will be in effect for at least seven days or until a dramatic decrease in the severity of the energy crisis is announced.

Revival Series Is Underway

Elder I. J. Roberson of Kinston will conduct a week long revival at Joy Temple Holiness Church January 31-February 4. Services will begin each night at 8 p.m. Consecration will begin on the first three nights. The public is invited. Mable Hargrove will be the hosting pastor.

GOP Asks Economic Stimulus

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are calling for an economic-stimulus program that features permanent individual tax cuts instead of the $50-per-person instant rebates proposed by President Carter.

The cost of the GOP plan, measured in revenue lost by the government, would be somewhat less than the $31.2-billion two-year price tag on the Carter proposal. And Republicans say their plan would mean more jobs for Americans and a sustained bolstering of the economy instead of the one-shot stimulus sought by Carter.

Final details of the package were to be considered today by the conference of the 38 Senate Republicans, even as Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal was testifying before the House Appropriations Committee about Carter's plan.

worsening inflation.

The centerpiece of Carter's program is $11.4 billion worth of tax rebates and special payments to Social Security beneficiaries, at the rate of $50 each for most Americans. The aim is to get that money into the spending stream as quickly as possible.

Many conservatives oppose the rebate because of its cost, insisting that much of the money is likely to end up in savings accounts with little immediate impact on the economy. Organized labor says the money could be better spent in job-creating programs.

A key provision in the Republicans' tax cut for individuals is expected to be an increased personal exemption. The GOP has made several efforts in the past three years to raise the exemption from the current $750 to $1,000. Democrats have said such a plan would mean more, proportionately, to wealthy taxpayers.

Aides who drafted the GOP proposal say two things are certain:

—It will not contain a rebate, despite the political appeal of such an approach.

—It is likely to include a new tax break for business that would have the government pay the first 5 per cent of the wages of each new worker hired in times of high unemployment. That has been pushed by Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, last year's GOP vice-presidential nominee.

Republicans say the Dole plan would target federal help where it is most needed. It would substitute for a Carter proposal to allow businesses to choose either a higher investment tax credit or, in effect, have the federal government pay the first 4 per cent of the Social Security payroll tax on employees.

Moose Crank Up For Next Visit By Bloodmobile, February 7, 8

Work and planning for next week's visit by the Red Cross Bloodmobile moved into its final stages Monday night at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Project chairman O.J. Smith announced 500 reminders had been mailed to prospective donors and described steps taken to induce as many donors as possible to participate in the two-day visit — Feb. 7, 8 — at the Moose Lodge.

"Early February has a record of being a poor time for bloodmobile collections", said Smith, "but we have arranged special hours for next Monday, from noon to 6:00 p.m., to accommodate people whose working hours ordinarily conflict with the bloodmobile hours."

"Also, we are making extensive efforts to contact as many regular donors and potential donors...bringing to their attention the bloodmobile visit and encouraging their participation."

Tuesday's bloodmobile hours will be from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Smith announced a number of posters had been prepared for distribution and display at business firms, and assistance has been promised by many businesses to help promote the event. "We have a goal of 600 recipients," said Smith, "and the encouragement and support we have been given makes that goal seem well within reach."

Other business before the lodge included announcement by Sports chairman Bill Pilgreen of a meeting this week for the lodge softball team to begin planning for the coming season.

Entertainment chairman Paul Rasberry announced a dance Saturday night with music by The Country Kings. Rasberry also reported dance classes, both for beginners and advanced categories would begin Feb. 15.

James Harris reported on the Legion of the Moose Ceremonial held over the past weekend in Goldsboro, and that two Greenville Moose were initiated into the second degree of the fraternity at the session. They were Philip Smith and B.T. Eastwood. Harris said the Legion had voted to help underwrite expenses of the degree staff, made up of Greenville lodge members, to the ritual competition in California in March.

Two visitors at the meeting were recognized. They were Robert McCall, President of District 11, and Sam Fulcher, both of the Washington lodge. McCall invited the membership to a District meeting to be hosted by the Williamston lodge tonight.

Nineteen new members were enrolled into the Greenville lodge Monday evening. They are: Gino M. Abessino, Orren W. Babcock Jr., John M. Clark, Richard Cutler, Carroll Ray Hudson, Ron Kensky, Richard Kimmel, Wm. M. King, Richard Littlefield, Wm. E. Luethke, Jeffrey L. Miller, Lanney F. Pauley, Hughie C. Powers, Larry E. Riegel, Robert Peele Roberts, Wm. P. Shepard, Jas. A. Stephens, James Villano and Jas. Ray Warren.

Mrs. Taft Will Be Chairman Of Kidney Drive

Mrs. Cheryl Taft will serve as 1977 Greenville Chairman of the First Annual Door-to-Door Campaign for the Kidney Foundation of North Carolina. The campaign will be conducted in Greenville during the weekend of March 25-27.

The local campaign is part of a statewide campaign being conducted in 59 towns in North Carolina. Programs served by the Kidney Foundation of North Carolina include public education, professional education, the Organ Donor Program, research and patient services.

Mrs. Taft, as chairman of the Greenville campaign will begin recruiting 33 other captains to assist in recruiting 330 workers for the campaign. The community goal is $1,652.

Senator Loses Part Of Lung

NEW YORK (AP) — Oklahoma Republican Sen. Dewey Bartlett, hospitalized here since Jan. 12 for cancer surgery that removed part of his lung, has been released, doctors say.

Bartlett, released Monday, was to return as an outpatient today and Wednesday for skin and blood tests on his immunological system, said a spokesman for the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Underscore Needs For N.C. Womens's Prison

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative research commission has made 22 recommendations to the 1977 General Assembly, mostly dealing with increased vocational training and custodial operations at the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women here.

The facility was hit by rioting 18 months ago and has been beset by administrative difficulties.

"Greater emphasis should be placed on vocational training which will enable inmates to become productive members of society upon their release," the study said.

The report recommended the prison laundry be converted into a vocational training center, but conceded that adequate physical facilities for training were largely nonexistent.

It also was recommended that Wake Technical Institute be given more money to enable it to conduct classes at the prison and that private industry be encouraged to give inmates jobs that could be completed within the prison.

Other recommendations included:

—Review of policy prohibiting minimum security, non-honor or grade inmates from receiving off-campus work and minimum custody inmates from working in mental institutions "where their services are needed."

—Increased use of inmates' teaching and tutoring skills.

—Elimination of rigid prohibitions on the parole of inmates without jobs.

The study recommended that only registered nurses or physicians be allowed to conduct pelvic examinations during body searches, adding that charges that such examinations were conducted by unqualified attendants were "very serious."

A security building used for punitive isolation of inmates also was criticized in the report, which referred to "Spartan" conditions, but did not cite specific complaints.

"The committee feels that such inhumane treatment, although used very infrequently, has no place in the...system," the study said.

The prison staff, in a reply, disagreed with the report's conclusion that the isolation building was not needed, noting that 42 per cent of the inmates are serving time for crimes of violence.

Prison staff members said eight staff personnel had been assaulted in the past year, not including the inmates' throwing of food, garbage and urine, adding that "the staff feels that neither the commission nor the public is aware of the abuse."

Bus Driver By Day; At Night Tough Marshal

LA CENTER, Wash. (AP) — Paul Jackson drives a school bus by day, but at night he becomes a town marshal so tough he once hauled his own daughter off to jail.

Jackson, 49, said he's "naturally nosy, and this gives me a legal reason for seeing what people are doing. I think some people bring problems to me they wouldn't even bring to their preacher," such as suicide and marital woes.

He is on call 24 hours a day but Jackson usually works at night "when your crooks go to work" in this town of 450 persons.

Jackson has been the law in La Center, north of Vancouver, Wash., for seven years.

"We had five car thefts (last year). I got all the cars back," he said.

A few years ago Jackson took his daughter down to the city jail after he discovered her "at a wine-drinking party with five other kids."

Holshouser Failed Yield

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arthur C. Palmer, a Southern Pines building contractor, was extremely upset Monday when a 1977 Cadillac smashed into his new van — until he saw the other driver.

"I was right ready to tear into him," said Palmer. "When I saw who it was, I said, 'Oh no! It would have to be you.'"

The driver of the Cadillac, former Gov. Jim Holshouser, suffered a broken collarbone, but was expected to be released today from Moore Memorial Hospital here.

Palmer was not seriously injured and was given a checkup at the hospital.

Holshouser failed to yield and, in the accident report, "would be listed as (having made) an unsafe movement," said Sgt. William Paulus of the Pinehurst Police Department.

Holshouser's shoulder was not placed in a cast, but was heavily bandaged, said Dr. Louis B. Daniel Jr., an orthopedic surgeon, adding that Holshouser's arm would be placed in a sling.

"He's all right," said Daniel. "He has a fracture of the outer end of his clavicle, which is his collar bone. And he had a few bruises and other things. Frankly, we admitted him for observation because he had some tenderness in his abdomen, but he's not even complaining about that anymore."

George W. Little, former secretary of natural and economic resources under the former Republican governor, said Holshouser was driving in his new Southern Pines law office when the crash occurred.

Duplicative Packaging Ends

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A firm that makes cheeseburger-shaped radios decided to make it a federal case when a rival firm started selling hamburger-shaped radios in the same packaging.

After a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge Charles Weiner on Monday, Windsor Industries of Melville, N.Y., agreed to stop boxing its hamburger radio in yellow and orange and to remove a cheeseburger picture from the box.

Amico, Inc., of Philadelphia, which makes cheeseburger radios, had complained in a suit that Windsor was trying to steal its business by duplicating its packaging.

The judge refused to bar Windsor from producing the hamburger radio, saying Amico had not been in the burger radio business long enough to have cornered the market in the minds of consumers.

THIS WINTER IS SHAPING UP AS A COLD ONE. THAT MEANS HIGH ENERGY BILLS UNLESS YOU DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT.

The biggest ways to save energy this winter are right at your fingertips.

If you really want to save energy—and keep your bills down—start with the things that use the most. As the chart shows, more than half of the energy you use in your home goes to heat it, whether your home uses gas, oil or electricity. So the more of this energy you save, the more you can save on your heating costs.

Begin by putting your finger on those heating costs. You can do this by keeping your thermostat set at 65 degrees or less during the day—and turning it back five or ten degrees at night. (Heat pump users should not set back their thermostats at night as the morning recovery period will offset the efficiency of continuous operation.)

Another tip?

Make sure you have plenty of insulation. Six inches in ceilings and three inches in floors and walls are the minimum you should have—nine inches in ceilings and six inches under floors are desirable. (If you are planning to build a home, look into the new construction techniques that will permit you to put six inches of insulation in outer walls.)

Storm windows and doors pay for themselves in energy savings. Weather stripping and caulking are also good, inexpensive ways to keep in the heat. And if you're building a new home or changing your heating system, consider the heat pump—one of the most efficient ways available to heat your home.

DON'T LET MONEY GO DOWN THE DRAIN.

Since water heating is the next biggest winter energy consumer, look at these ideas.

Set your hot water heater no higher than 140°F. Do only full loads in your washing machine and dishwasher. When you're doing the laundry, use cold water to do the job whenever possible. And to save even more, take a quick shower instead of a tub bath. Surprisingly enough, you'll use a lot less water.

Also, fix those leaky hot water faucets. One drop per second adds up to 200 gallons a month. And that's a lot of hot water and money down the drain.

COVER POTS WHILE COOKING.

And when it comes to cooking in the oven, try cooking in double quantities. What you don't use right away, you can freeze for later use.

Use countertop cooking appliances or a microwave oven if you have them instead of your electric range. They usually use less electricity.

Keep refrigerator door opening to a minimum. And when you do open it, shut it as soon as possible.

Be sure to avoid overchilling. 40 degrees is recommended for refrigerators, 0 degrees for freezers.

Last Chance To Catch The Panthers

Larry Hunt

Hunt Southern Player Of Week

East Carolina's Larry Hunt has been named the Southern Conference Player of the Week. He is the second Pirate to be honored in the past three weeks.

Hunt was cited for his efforts in the three games of the past week, two of them losing contests for the Pirates.

During the three-game span, Hunt scored a total of 49 points, a 16.3 average, and pulled down 43 rebounds, a 14.3 mark. He hit 52 per cent of his shots from the floor.

The first game of the week was a losing effort against Furman University, in which Hunt scored 22 points and pulled in 13 rebounds against his top two opponents in that department Jonathan Moore and Jim Strickland.

Then, against Old Dominion, he scored 14 points and got 15 more rebounds, this time against strong Wilson Washington, Old Dominion's top player.

Hunt wound up the week with 13 points and 15 rebounds against Davidson. In that game, Hunt paced a domination of the boards by the Pirates, which saw the Bucs limit Davidson to only six individual rebounds in the second half.

"This week capped off the way Hunt's been playing," Coach Dave Patton said. "The three games represent the best in his career."

Two weeks ago, Louis Crosby was the first Pirate of the year honored as Player of the Week.

Keydets Near Southern Crown

By The Associated Press

Virginia Military Coach Charlie Schmaus says his defending Southern Conference basketball champion Keydets are "right on schedule" — toward the No. 1 seed and a bye in the league's season-ending championship tournament.

The redhot Keydets ran their winning streak to 16, their overall record to 17-1 and their conference mark to 7-0 with a 99-86 conquest Monday night of Furman's Paladins, now 4-2 in the league and the only team with any real hopes of overhauling VMI.

While VMI's relatively easy victory might have been unexpected, the biggest surprise was turned in by Davidson's last-place Wildcats, who shocked William and Mary's Indians 69-52 in another league game.

It was Davidson's first victory in six conference starts and only its fourth in 19 games over-all. William and Mary fell to 4-4 in the league and 12-9 against all opposition.

In Monday night's other action involving a title-eligible team, The Citadel's Bulldogs, 5-13, were beaten 82-73 by new member Marshall, 7-11, and

If anybody in the Eastern Carolina Conference is going to catch the North Pitt Panthers, they had better do it now; and Farmville Central's Jaguars have the chance to do that — and a lot more — as they face their toughest tests of the season this week.

In one week, the Jaguars will go up against three of the top five teams in the league, starting with North Pitt tomorrow night. "This is a big week for us," Farmville coach Mike Terrell said. "It can make us or it can break us."

"If we can win all of them, we'll be in good shape. But, it's going to be a rough road for us and we'll have to play well."

The Jaguars are currently tied for third place in the conference with Ayden-Grifton. Both teams have 6-3 conference records, a half game behind second-place D. H. Conley at 7-3.

In addition to North Pitt on Wednesday, the Jags must face Ayden-Grifton Friday and fifth-place Southern Nash Saturday. Farmville will be at home for the first two games, but must travel to face the Firebirds.

"We need to win at least two of our three games this week" to stay in the conference picture, Terrell said. "If we lose to North Pitt, we will have to win against Ayden-Grifton and Southern Nash."

The North Pitt games gives the Jaguars a chance to cut into the Panthers' league lead. North Pitt has a 9-1 conference record and "they will begin to walk away with the conference if somebody doesn't do something real quick," according to Terrell. "If we don't beat them, they'll have it sewed up."

"North Pitt is real strong," the Jaguar coach said. The Panthers are balanced with Virgil Pilgreen, Kenneth Roberson and Donnie Perkins, although "Perkins is in a class by himself," according to Terrell.

He is not counting Farmville out, however. The Jaguars defeated the Panthers earlier in the year and "if we play up to our capability, we can do it (again), but we will have to play our best game of the year to do it."

Farmville's win over North

Pitt came in the Rose High Holiday doubleheader and didn't count in the league standings. The teams met one other time this year, at North Pitt, and the Panthers came out on top, 67-45.

"We got embarrassed pretty bad over there," Terrell said. "We probably played our worst game of the season and they played super. I hope our guys will have a little revenge on their minds (for tomorrow's game)."

Terrell is glad the Jaguars will be playing the North Pitt game at home. "They probably have the best spectators in the league," he said. "They are tough to beat at home. I'd definitely rather play here than at North Pitt."

Farmville's game with Ayden-Grifton Friday night is an opportunity for the Jaguars to gain a full game on the team with which they are now tied. The Chargers won the teams' earlier meeting, 64-60, but "the first time we played, (Kenno) Farrow didn't play, and we gave them a good game that night," according to Terrell.

"I think Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central are pretty much alike. We are about the same size and both play about the same type of ball."

Terrell said the Chargers "probably have the best point guard in the league in Willie Forbes. "If he plays well, the whole team usually plays well."

In addition, the Ayden-Grifton lineup includes some other top players: Ogden Braxton, Frankie Dail and James Leggett. "They are a well-balanced team," Terrell said.

The game with the Chargers will also be played in Farmville, but "Ayden-Grifton's gym and our gym is about the same," Terrell said, "so, there's probably not much difference."

The Jaguars are on the road at Southern Nash Saturday night for another big test.

"They're kind of like North Pitt," Terrell said of the Firebirds. "They play real tough at home. They are the only team outside of Pitt County that has beaten a Pitt County school this year."

Southern Nash isn't tall, but they are quick and shoot well, Terrell said. They are led by Willie and Walter Williams.

Willie, the point guard, is "a good playmaker and a very good shooter." Walter is a forward or swing-man, who is "very aggressive, a good shooter and good off the backboard."

Farmville defeated the Firebirds by two points, 54-52, at home in their last meeting. "Beating a team gives you a little more confidence — I'd much rather be playing a team I've beaten than a team I've lost to," Terrell said.

So, the Jaguars have their work cut out for them, even though they haven't been playing as well lately as Terrell would like.

"We haven't played well in our last to games. We've got people who are inconsistent."

Terrell said much depends on the play of center James Baker, who has been up-and-down this year. "We've got to get a real strong performance from each guy on the team. A lot depends on James Baker. If Baker plays at his best, we're capable of beating anybody."

A number of other basketball games are also scheduled this week. Tonight, Bath travels to Bear Grass, Williamston hosts Tarboro, Jamesville entertains Mattamuskeet, Roanoke is at home to South Edgemore and Greenville Christian is on the road at Case.

Wednesday night, Farmville plays host to North Pitt, Conley travels to North Lenoir, Greene Central visits C. B. Aycock and Ayden-Grifton entertains Southern Nash.

On Friday, Conley is at home to Southern Nash, Farmville hosts Ayden-Grifton, North Lenoir is on the road at Greene Central, Jamesville travels to Bear Grass, Williamston entertains Plymouth and North Pitt hosts C. B. Aycock.

Tonight's wrestling sees White Oak at D. H. Conley and Williamston at Tarboro. Wednesday, North Pitt entertains Southern Nash while Ayden-Grifton travels to Washington.

On Thursday, Farmville Central is on the road at West Craven while Ayden-Grifton entertains Camp Lejeune. Williamston travels to Plymouth Friday.

Spencer Doing Good Job Of 'Filling Shoes'

North Pitt guard Larry Spencer had some big shoes to fill this year, according to Panther coach Cobby Deans, and he is doing an "outstanding job."

Spencer took over the spot vacated by North Pitt standout Jesse Harris, after playing behind Harris last year. He is the point guard in the Panther offense and is a top defensive player.

"He runs our offense," Deans said. "He is our defensive and offensive captain — our quarterback on the floor," Spencer "calls all the shots."

A 5-8 senior, Spencer is a "real heady ballplayer — the kind of individual that makes your team go; and is a joy to coach," Deans said.

Playing behind Harris last year has helped his play this year, according to Spencer. He had to guard Davis in practice every day last year and "he was really hard to guard."

In addition, "he always guarded me. He made me look bad sometimes, he was really tough. But, it has really helped me out this year."

Spencer, although a top Panther reserve, didn't mind playing behind Davis. "That was no insult or anything like that because he's one of the best ballplayers ever to come out of here."

The league-leading Panthers have been helped this year by their experience, Spencer said, as most of the top players are seniors. In addition, the bench play has been a good surprise to Deans as several reserves have really helped the squad this year, Spencer said.

Although he doesn't have a large scoring average (a little over four points per game), Spencer helps the team out with about four assists per game and feels his play is improving.

"I think the past couple of games I've been playing better. I don't look to score that much — I don't need to really. I just call the offense and call the defense.

That's what the coach and team looks for me to do."

Besides playing basketball, Spencer also was a member of the Panther football team. In addition to listening to music, he lists running as a hobby, as well as sports.

"I just love sports, if I don't play, I'm watching it."

Spencer plans to attend Winston-Salem State University after graduation and may play football.

"I would love to play football, but I'm not all that gifted of an athlete. I need to put on a little weight over the summer."

"My main objective is to get an education, really. I'm not going (just) to play sports, but I'd love to play."

Rampants Win Another Match

WILSON — Rose High got five pins and won two matches by forfeit on route to a 47-18 wrestling victory over Wilson yesterday.

Cliff Hagen, Jesse Baker, Bernard Paige, Rocky Butler and James Reeves all picked up pins for the Rampants, with Reeves getting his in 40 seconds.

In addition, John Lawler and James Cherry got forfeit victories.

The win raised Rose's dual meet record to 15-1 for the year, while Hagen, Lawler and Cherry kept their unbeaten strings alive.

The Rampants will be back in action Thursday when they play host to Northeastern.

Olympic Pact Signing Set

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Olympic Organizing Committee scheduled a news conference at 1 p.m. EST today for the signing of an agreement on United States television rights for the 1980 Summer Olympics in the Soviet Union.

A committee spokesman would not say who would sign the TV rights agreement. When it was pointed out that both NBC and ABC officials were in Moscow to discuss the TV rights, the spokesman said they would have to work out the matter before the signing.

An NBC official continued to insist that his network had the rights. However, ABC sources said that its network still was in contact with Soviet officials and that it had "not received a 'no'" from the Soviets.

NBC officials had announced Sunday they had been awarded the rights, but the Olympic committee said Monday that no award had been made yet. The committee apparently was referring to the fact that no contract had yet been signed.

Both NBC-TV President Robert Howard and ABC Sports President Roone Arledge were in Moscow for discussion of the rights question.

Any agreement made is subject to approval by the International Olympic Committee. But Carl Lindemann Jr., Vice President of Sports for NBC, said Monique Berlioux, secretary of the IOC, would be present at the signing.

"Technically, of course, the rights cannot be ultimately awarded without approval by the IOC," said Lindemann. "But tomorrow we are signing contracts with the Soviet Organizing Committee and state television."

NBC thus hoped to conclude a long series of negotiations which involved the other two major networks as well as the Satra Corp., an international trading company. CBS dropped out of the bidding last week, saying "the future of the venture is marked by imponderables."

ABC officials declined comment on the matter. Officials at the Satra Corp. could not be reached for comment, but it was learned that John Kapstein, president of Satra's films division and the man most closely connected with the Olympic negotiations, would fly from New York to Moscow today to represent his company's interests.

JV Women Take Win

RALEIGH — East Carolina's women's junior varsity team placed six players in double figures in gaining an 88-62 win over St. Mary's.

The Jayvee Lady Bucs were led by Cinda Sherrill with 19 points, while Kim Clayton picked up 14, Ruthie Watson had 12, Joy Forbes scored 11 and Gaye Hines and Donna LaVictorie each had 10.

St. Mary's was led by Katie Cole, who scored 26 points.

The win raised the team's record to 2-2 for the year.

Wilson Nips Rampettes

Wilson Fike High School's girls rallied in the final period to sneak past Rose High, 35-34, last night.

Wilson inched out into a 4-2 lead in the first period of the game, but Rose came back with an 11-7 second period margin. That left Rose in the lead at the half, 13-11.

The Rampettes added a little more to their lead and took a 23-20 lead into the final period. But in that frame, Wilson rallied, 15-11, and edged in front with a little more than a minute to go. A final shot by Rose was off the mark.

Corbin led Wilson with 12 points, while Sheryl Taylor led Rose with 13.

The Rampettes travel to meet Northeastern in Elizabeth City on Thursday.

Wilson — Barnes 5, Corbin 12, Hester 8, Gordon 2, Holler 4, Do, Eason 2, Davis 2, Smith, Cadell, De, Eason, Rodri, Miltchell, Creech, Howell.

Ranked Teams Capture Wins

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Rick Robey and Jack Givens got most of the points for Kentucky but Jay Shidler got most of the credit for the Wildcats' latest victory.

Shidler scored 12 points — to 24 each for Robey and Givens — but he was the key figure in No. 3-ranked Kentucky's 92-85 Southeastern Conference basketball victory at Mississippi State Monday night.

"Shidler gave us a lift when we needed it most," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall after the Wildcats staved off the stubborn Bulldogs. "He got us going again when we were getting flat."

"Shidler is one of the finest pure shooters I have seen in some time," said State Coach Kermit Davis.

Elsewhere in The Associated Press Top 20, Kentucky's SEC rival, eighth-ranked Alabama, eased past Vanderbilt 96-82, and No. 12 Cincinnati defeated Memphis State 88-82 in a key Metro 7 game.

In other games involving non-ranked teams, Indiana State avenged an earlier loss to Illinois State, beating the Redbirds 100-84, Southern Illinois edged St. Louis 76-73 for Coach Paul Lambert's 200th career victory. Duke mauled Duquesne 76-49. South Carolina stopped Rhode Island 64-54, and Hofstra edged St. Peter's 77-75.

Alabama, which lost to Kentucky last Saturday, recovered against Vanderbilt even though leading scorer Reginald King managed only four points.

Rickey Brown had 17 points as seven 'Bama players hit for double figures.

Center Robert Miller and forward Mike Jones accounted for 21 points apiece in Cincinnati's victory over Memphis State.

The largest crowd in Indiana State history — 10,102 — showed up at Terre Haute and saw Larry Byrd score 40 points as the Sycamores beat Illinois State.

"The first 199 games came pretty tough, too," said Lambert of Southern Illinois' close call against 2-14 St. Louis. A balanced scoring effort by SIU saw five men hit for double figures, led by Mike Glenn's 15 points.

Duke took command against Duquesne in the second half after leading by just five points at intermission. The Blue Devils scored the last 13 points of the game.

A 15-1 scoring burst by South Carolina gave the Gamecocks their triumph over Rhode Island. Nate Davis led the way with 19 points.

Hofstra's Rich Laurel, the fifth leading scorer in the nation, pumped in 32 points and John Irving, the country's No. 2 rebounder, grabbed 17 rebounds, leading Hofstra over St. Peter's. But it took a pair of foul shots by Ken Rodd with 1:04 left to clinch the victory.

WITH OPEN ARMS — Duke Blue Devil guard Jim Spanarkel (34) and Duquesne Dukes forward John Thomas (42) open their arms wide and battle for a rebound under the Duquesne basket during first half action in Pittsburgh Monday night. Duke won the game, 76-49. (AP Wirephoto)

Daniels Looks Forward To His Pro Career

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

This spring will be a momentous time for Greenville native J. C. Daniels. Although he'll still be playing amateur baseball, what he does will have a lot to do with his future as a professional player.

Daniels was recently drafted by the Los Angeles Dodgers organization, for its club in the 2-A California League. But J. C. has set his sights on a higher goal, Dodger Stadium itself.

"I'll sign following the final Louisville game of the year," he said. Naturally, he's hoping that that game will be in the finals of the National Junior College Tournament.

J. C., 22, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie L. Daniels of 103 Ashton Dr., in Greenville, and he graduated from Rose High School, where he was a two-year leader on the baseball team. He was on the 1970 Babe Ruth baseball team from Greenville that won the state tournament and went on to finish second in the Southeastern Regionals. Both of his Rose teams finished in second place in Division I, and he was twice named to the All-Conference team. In 1971, he was named to the All-State team by the Greensboro Daily News.

Following his graduation from Rose, he entered the Army, serving from 1972 to 1975.

"I decided to give baseball one more chance after I got out of the Army," Daniels said. "I gave Russ Frazier (Louisburg coach) a call for a tryout, and he told me he'd give me a fair shake, but that I'd have to get the job on my own."

"I ended up starting at third, then I was switched to the outfield. But I felt that I really needed to be at second, since that's where I had the best chance as a pro. So Coach Frazier gave me another chance there, and I got the job. Since I'm so small, (5-11, 167) that's the only real position I could make it at as a pro."

During his freshman season, Daniels hit .353 and had five home runs. Then, in summer league, he hit .369, tops in the league, and hit 12 home runs, including playoff games.

Daniels says that his main goal is to get himself established in the Dodger organization first, then try to make a move upward. Naturally his overall goal is to play for the parent club, and hopefully to get into the World Series. He feels at his age, that he has an excellent chance at it.

"I want to develop as fast as I can and move on to 3-A, maybe even this year. But I'd like to be up with the Dodgers by 1980."

He'll have good training since former Dodger Maury Wills will be his running and hitting coach.

"I'd like to thank all the people who've helped me along the way, and especially my parents and coach Frazier."

Frazier believes that Daniels can make it all the way.

"Without a doubt, J.C. is one of the best players we have had here at Louisville. He has all the tools it takes to play professional baseball and I expect him to go a long way before he is through. One of his chief assets is his drive to play and in most cases that makes all the difference in the world."

Rusie Is Good Choice For Hall

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is entirely appropriate that in this winter of baseball's free agent discontent, the late Amos Rusie, a turn of the century pitcher, has been elected to the Hall of Fame.

He was, after all, one of the game's very first revolutionaries.

Rusie came along 75 years before his time. Now holdouts and contract hassles are fashionable. Rusie, however, had them during baseball's dark ages, when club owners ruled supreme.

Named by the Veteran's Committee along with shortstop Joe Sewell and Manager Al Lopez, Rusie will be inducted in the Cooperstown shrine Aug. 8.

Ernie Banks, named earlier this month by the Baseball Writers Association of America, also will be inducted that day.

For 10 National League seasons before 1900, Rusie compiled an impressive 243-180 record. In eight seasons with the New York Giants he won 230 games, including three 30-victory years.

But those weren't peaceful times for the big right-hander they called "The Hoosier Thunderbolt." Twice, he had bitter contract battles with the Giants that were never really resolved.

In 1896, after leading the league in strikeouts for six consecutive seasons, Rusie balked at contract terms. The Giants wouldn't budge and the result was that the pitcher held out for the entire season.

Cooler heads finally prevailed and Rusie returned for the 1897 season, leading the league with a 29-8 mark. But when he slipped to 20-10 in 1898, management got tough again at contract time.

In those days, there was no option clause escape hatch. Rusie, however, wouldn't be bulldozed and again refused to sign. The result was a suspension that caused him to miss the 1899 and 1900 seasons.

Finally, in 1901, with agreement no closer, the Giants decided to trade Rusie to Cincinnati. Even with his string of spectacular seasons, the Reds were hesitant about the deal because the pitcher had sat out two seasons. The best they would offer New York in exchange was a rookie right-handed pitcher.

The inactivity apparently robbed Rusie of any effectiveness. He pitched in just three games for the Reds. The Giants, however, had no complaint with their end of the deal.

Christy Mathewson, you see, reached the Hall of Fame in 1936, when the doors opened for the first time. It took Rusie the revolutionary 41 years to join him there.

Sewell played from 1920-1933 as a shortstop for Cleveland and the New York Yankees; He had a career batting average of .312 and struck out only 114 times in his career, a record low.

"I'm very grateful," he said. "I've been waiting for this a long time. But you know, anything worthwhile is worth waiting for."

Lopez managed Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox for 16 years, winning American League pennants with the Indians in 1954 and the Sox in 1959. Those were the only years from 1949-1964 that the New York Yankees failed to win the AL title.

"You keep hoping this is your year," said Lopez. "This is really something."

Wake Up To Fifth As Heels Tumble To 13th

In a week of upsets, the No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4 teams in last week's Associated Press Top 20 college basketball poll lost and the No. 1 team just barely averted the same fate.

No. 2 Michigan was upset 99-87 by Northwestern and fell to No. 7. Third-place Alabama dropped an 87-65 decision to Kentucky and dropped to eighth, while No. 4 North Carolina lost 67-66 to Wake Forest and 93-73 to Clemson, skidding to 13th.

Santa Clara, after trailing Santa Clara by 16 points, beat the Broncos 71-70 on a shot by Chubby Cox with two seconds remaining. The Dons, 21-0, had defeated Santa Clara 74-68 earlier in the week and remained No. 1.

UCLA, now 16-2, was the big winner of the week, vaulting from eighth to second. The Bruins edged Notre Dame 70-65 before routing Southern Cal 77-59 and Tennessee 103-89.

Kentucky, 14-2, sixth a week ago, beat Mississippi 100-73 before upsetting Alabama and jumped from sixth to third.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 16-1, did not play, but moved up from fifth to fourth.

Wake Forest, 16-2, beat North Carolina and Appalachian State 83-73, vaulting five spots from 10th to fifth.

San Francisco garnered 50 of 56 first-place votes, with UCLA getting three and Kentucky, Nevada-Las Vegas and Minnesota one each from a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Marquette beat DePaul 85-64, moving up from ninth to sixth.

Michigan beat Ohio State 92-81 and Wisconsin 69-64 before losing to Northwestern and plunging five places.

Alabama beat Georgia 78-74 in overtime, before being upset by Kentucky.

Louisville, 15-2, humbled Long Island University 107-68, edged Dayton 76-71 and defeated Rhode Island 105-87, moving up two spots to ninth.

Minnesota, 15-1, leaped three places to 10th, beating Big Ten Conference rivals Michigan State 75-70, Indiana 79-60 and Ohio State 77-67.

Tennessee beat Mississippi State 68-59 before losing to UCLA Sunday on national television and fell from No. 7 to 11th.

Cincinnati beat Wichita State and Duquesne, and remained 12th.

Arkansas, 17-1, inched up a spot to 14th, defeating Southwest Conference rivals Texas A&M 72-58, SMU 77-59 and Baylor 68-59.

Providence beat Canisius 86-69 but was forced to go to overtime before prevailing over Niagara 71-63. The Friars dropped a notch to 15th.

Clemson, by virtue of its victory over North Carolina, jumped three spots to No. 16.

Syracuse remained 17th. Purdue beat Wisconsin and Illinois and held 18th place.

Arizona lost to Wyoming and fell three spots to 19. Detroit, 16-1, cracked the Top 20, rounding out the poll at No. 20.

Memphis State was the lone team to drop out of the Top 20.

Expect Miller To Be Named

DENVER (AP) — Robert "Red" Miller, offensive coordinator for the New England Patriots, was expected to be named head coach of the Denver Broncos today, replacing John Ralston, who resigned Monday.

The Broncos scheduled a press conference today, presumably to announce Miller as the team's eighth field boss.

Miller recently was interviewed for the vacant job of offensive coordinator at Denver, but reportedly turned down the position to stay in contention for other National Football League head coaching jobs, at Detroit and Atlanta.

Broncos General Manager Fred Gehrke, acknowledging that Miller would be in Denver today, said the 50-year-old Patriots' assistant "is probably one of the three top coaches in the NFL as far as offensive football is concerned. That's what I want, an offensive coach."

Lack of a strong offense plagued the team during the 1976 season. The Broncos compiled a 9-5 record — the best in their history — but the lack of an imaginative offense spawned fan discontent. In December, after owner Gerald Phipps announced that Gehrke would assume the general manager's duties from Ralston but that Ralston would remain as coach. 22 Broncos players signed a statement expressing a lack of confidence in the coach's leadership.

Ralston, in announcing his resignation Monday, denied that the player revolt influenced his decision.

"None whatsoever," Ralston said. "I talked to those players since then and this (resignation) did not enter into it."

Ralston said that after six weeks of working under the club's new organizational structure, "I believe it is in the best interests of all concerned if I relinquish my duties of head coach effective immediately. This allows Fred Gehrke to bring in a coach of his own choosing."

Ralston, who came to Denver after two consecutive Rose Bowl victories while head coach at Stanford University, promised he would take the Broncos to the Super Bowl.

Teams In Pair Split

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School and Wellcome #One split a pair of games yesterday.

Farmville won the girls' game in an overtime, 36-32. E. Gorham led Farmville with 15 points, while D. Streeter had 10. M. Gay led Wellcome with 16, while T. Pippens had 12.

Welcome won the boys' game, 46-42. Gordon Dunn led the winners with 18 points, while Cary Best added 11. Ricky Dixon had 18 and Ronald Dixon had 11 for Farmville.

Clemson, State Battle For 2nd

By The Associated Press

Clemson and North Carolina State settle their second place Atlantic Coast Conference tie in a regionally televised basketball game tonight.

Both teams sport 4-2 conference records. Clemson, 15-3 on the season, is fresh from its 93-73 victory over North Carolina and has the home court edge.

"They are one school in our league demonstrating a home court advantage," said Wolfpack coach Norm Sloan. "There are a combination of reasons for this, but the enthusiasm of the crowd and the play of (Wayne) Tree Rollins are certainly very important."

"Rollins is now a senior and he's playing like the dominating player he was supposed to be when he came," Sloan added. "It's a veteran team. We're faced with a very difficult game against a team that's running hot."

The Wolfpack has some assets of its own in Charles

"Hawkeye" Whitney and hot-shooting Kenny Carr, team leaders in both scoring and rebounding.

For the second straight week a panel of conference writers and broadcasters have named Whitney ACC rookie of the week.

"We need to get additional board help from Glenn Sudhop to go along with the work Kenny Carr and Hawkeye Whitney have been doing," Sloan said.

In Monday conference action, Duke broke a three-game losing streak with an easy 76-49 victory over Duquesne in Pittsburgh.

The Blue Devils are now 12-6 on the season but stand sixth in the conference at 1-4.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 2, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New beginnings are possible today by which you can gain advancement in the days ahead. Make sure that family members are aware of your desire and let them be part of it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get the approval of higher-ups where new arrangements are concerned before you go ahead with them. Avoid one who is talkative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your money position and know how to better it in the future. The evening can be enjoyable from a social standpoint.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consider every angle of any talk you have with a higher-up so that you come up with the right answers. Study new outlets.

MOON CHILDREN (July 22 to July 21) You have been wanting to make some changes for a long time and this is a good day to do just that.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try not to harm others in your pursuit to get ahead. Show increased affection for mate and you get a fine response.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An older friend could be belligerent today, so steer clear of this person and avoid an argument. Handle accumulated duties early in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care you don't irk higher-ups today, otherwise trouble could ensue. Show others that you are an excellent citizen.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Making some new acquaintance could prove very fine for you later on. Use wisdom in all your undertakings today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use good judgment in handling an important business matter early in the day. Be sure to keep promises you've made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Many situations arise today that give you true facts and figures to advance in your line of endeavor. Be poised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Schedule your work well so it is done efficiently and on time. Eradicate an error made and be more successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in a new form of recreation that will lift your spirit and make you feel happier. Show more devotion for mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she many want to do more than is humanly possible, so teach to first complete one project before tackling another, otherwise you will have a jack-of-all trades and master of none on your hands instead of a successful person. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

world's great duplicate players. In a recent Philip Morris European Cup tournament, however, he lost this battle of wits with Karl Rohan, president of the Austrian Bridge Federation.

When North could rebid his diamonds freely, Hoffman ventured two no trump on the South cards despite the fact that he had no spade stopper. With a good six-card suit and the ace of the enemy suit, North's raise to game was faultless.

West led a spade and the opponents continued the suit until declarer won the ace perforce on the third round. This attack was doubly devastating because it not only established West's long suit, it also knocked out the only entry to dummy's long diamonds.

Hoffman led the jack of hearts from dummy, hoping to coax a cover from East—if East showed up with the king of hearts, the odds on West holding the king of diamonds for his overall would be improved. When East followed with a low heart, declarer began to like the hand less and less.

He rose with the ace of hearts and could find no alternative to the diamond finesse. He ran the ten of diamonds and East played low smoothly. Declarer knew there was no possibility that he was being "taken," but to lead a diamond to the ace on the second round was strictly an anti-percentage play, especially since East could have won the king of diamonds and put West in with a heart to cash two spades to defeat the contract one trick.

Therefore, declarer repeated the diamond finesse, and the roof fell in. East gathered in the king, and four diamond tricks in dummy withered on the vine. Declarer had to be satisfied with three aces, the ten of diamonds and the queen of hearts for down four and an absolute bottom on the board.

Claudine Gets 30-Days For Killing Her Lover

By BILL PARDUE
Associated Press Writer
ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A weary Claudine Longet went home with ex-husband Andy Williams at her side to tell their three children that their mother must spend a month in jail for killing her lover.

"I'm not sure how I'll tell them," the tiny, dark-haired Miss Longet said as she left her attorney's office Monday.

Miss Longet was also ordered to pay $25 as the cost of a probation report. She could have been jailed for two years and fined $5,000.

Her lawyers said they were preparing a motion to ask for a new trial, but they stressed it would be her "ultimate decision" whether to fight a 30-day jail term and two-years' probation ordered by a state district court judge.

A nun who visited Miss Longet after the trial said she appeared to her "a beaten woman."

The 36-year-old French-born entertainer was convicted Jan. 14 of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, in the shooting death of champion skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich last March.

Miss Longet said she would stay in Aspen regardless of the outcome of her case.

"Because of the cards and letters I've received, and the prayers, I feel very good about everybody," she said outside the courtroom as she blinked back tears. "I feel very good about Aspen. People are very warm and sensitive. I realize people are very beautiful."

But Judge George E. Lohr said much of the publicity given to the case had been hostile toward Miss Longet, and added, "It appears the talk in this community has also contained an element of hostility in it." He noted that Sabich was a professional skier greatly admired in this Rocky Mountain ski resort.

Lohr said he feared that letting Miss Longet off without a jail term "might undermine respect for the law."

But the judge expressed compassion for the children — Noelle, 13, Christian, 11, and Bobby, 7, and said Miss Longet could choose any time before Sept. 1 to spend her month in jail. That provision would allow her children to spend their summer vacation elsewhere while their mother was in jail, the judge said.

After sentencing, Williams rushed to comfort Miss Longet, hugging and kissing her. They were divorced in 1975 but still are friends.

Miss Longet was arrested the night Sabich was slain with a single .22-caliber bullet in his stomach. She told jurors that she accidentally shot him as he taught her to use the gun.

CLAUDINE LONGET

He Remembers Sale As Slave

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Smith, the oldest person in the United States, didn't watch the television serialization of Alex Haley's book, "Roots." He was there.

"I knows what it was like," says the 134-year-old Smith, who was just a boy when forced aboard a slave ship in an African port town in Liberia and sold in the New Orleans slave market in 1854.

Smith recalls being bought by a rancher named "Captain Smith" and taken to Galveston, Tex., but prefers not to dwell on the subject. His past, though, is as evident in his tough leathery hands as his age is evident in the deeply etched lines on his face.

He tells the story of his roots slowly. "My name is Mitchell Watkins. I have lots of names, that's one," he says.

Researchers have found that two Watkins families were living in Liberia in the 1840s about the time Smith was born. Former slaves who settled in Liberia in the early 1800s used American names.

Like Haley's ancestor Kunta Kinte, Smith was kidnapped from Africa by slave traders. But he says his lot was easier than the life of Haley's ancestor.

The rancher who purchased the crying, skinny 12-year-old treated him "like his own son," Smith says. The rancher gave Smith his name and set July 4 as the child's birthday.

Smith says he lived in the rancher's house and played with the rancher's children until slaves were freed in 1865.

He then bounced around the west as a cowboy and worked as a logger until settling in Florida at the age of 100. At 109 years old, he was running a small grocery store in Polk County.

But the ancient ex-slave, who now lives in a nursing home in this central Florida town, says he wasn't among the millions of Americans who watched the Haley series.

"No, I don't watch TV at all," he says.

Smith, whose age has been certified by the Social Security Administration on the basis of geriatrics tests, exercises daily and his nursing supervisor says Smith seldom complains.

"Don't nothin' got breath in him want to die," Smith says. "Ain't nobody been to heaven or hell come back. I want to live all my days — that's how long I want to live. I want to live forever."

Richard Loo Emerging From Roles As 'Heavy'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Loo. The name may not ring a bell. But watch him, listen to his flat, nasal, vaguely ominous voice tonight in the small but key role he has on NBC's "Police Story."

Then, if you're middle-aged, or favor such World War II flicks as "God Is My Co-Pilot" on TV late at night, when insomnia is your copilot, it'll hit you: He was Hollywood's Classic Japanese Heavy then.

But Loo, an actor for 51 of his 73 years, also is Hollywood's all-purpose actor when the role calls for any Asian, saintly or wicked.

He's played a Mongolian prince in "State Department File 635," a Nationalist Chinese officer in "War Correspondent," his first movie, made in 1930; a fiery young revolutionary in "The Good Earth," and a Chinese Communist in the Indochina war in "The Quiet American."

"For a change, I once was in the American Army," he laughed, referring to the infantryman's role he played in the classic Korean War movie of the 1950s, "Steel Helmet."

Loo, a soft-spoken, humorous man despite his frequent casting — and widespread image — as an Oriental no-good, says he didn't plan to be an actor. He planned a career in business.

A Chinese-American, born in Maui, Hawaii, he majored in foreign trade studies at the University of California in Berkeley, then set out for post-graduate work at Columbia University in New York.

That fell by the wayside when he heard a stage company needed an Asian actor for a small role in a play named "Fiesta." For kicks, he tried out. He got the job. After that, he moved to San Francisco to work at an import-export firm.

Although he insists he never got the acting bug back then, he continued to act part time in local plays. One thing led to another, and he wound up in Hollywood, a full-time actor, an ex-businessman.

In addition to quickly getting a reputation as one who could play any Oriental role, he also started getting parts we could generally categorize as "The Guy Who Gets Killed."

"I would estimate that's happened at least 100 times because I've done about 500 pictures and around 300 television roles, so I'm always getting killed one time or another," he chuckled healthily.

He kept getting deceased, he says, because he mostly played baddies, "but when the role is sympathetic, the heavies do me in."

I can't reveal his fate in tonight's show, in which he plays a nice guy, but at one point he does not feel well permanently.

'Resister' Wants More

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina draft resister says President Carter should have pardoned military deserters and those with less than honorable discharges.

"I see no real moral difference in what I did and what they did," said Edward Martel of Hillsborough.

Martel fled the country seven years ago to Toronto, Canada, where he is established now with a job and a family. He doesn't plan to move back, at least not right away, but it's nice to know he can now if he wants to.

"In the next 10 years, I may decide to come back home to live, but right now I have a good job and a family there," he said. "It's just good to know I can come home."

"Oh, I've waited so long, so very long," said his mother, Mrs. Norma Martel, who has had to visit her son in Canada all those years.

Martel, 29, said he "disapproved of the war strongly on moral grounds." He is now a radiation therapist technician in a Toronto hospital.

Disclaims Tactic Of Delaying ERA

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. John Ed Davenport has labeled as "a bunch of hogwash" claims that he is engaging in a delaying tactic by trying to get the House Constitutional Amendments Committee to invite former Sen. Sam Ervin to appear before the committee Feb. 9 to voice his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment.

When asked why he wanted the committee to hear Ervin when every member knows how he stands and when every member has received a statement from the former senator outlining his position, Davenport said:

"Because there are undecided members who have told me they want to hear from him (Ervin) and hear what he's got to say. Sen. Ervin is recognized as one of the leading experts on constitutional law in the state of North Carolina. He has studied the Equal Rights Amendment at every stage. I think he has expert opinions that would be of benefit to anyone that will listen to him."

Davenport said Monday he intends to press a motion for the committee to invite Ervin when the committee meets Wednesday. He said Ervin has signified he would be ready to appear on Feb. 9.

Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, committee chairman, said he would oppose Davenport's motion and would call for action on the bill which would give North Carolina's approval of ERA. The proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution would forbid any legal discrimination based on sex.

"I'll oppose it," said Gamble of the proposal to invite Ervin to appear Feb. 9. He said if Ervin were invited, "Then we'd hear from Roselynn Carter two weeks from now and there would be no end to it. This is just an unnecessary and unfortunate refusal to face the issue."

"I would gather that there are enough votes in there in favor of giving the bill a favorable report, and I dare say there are enough votes to defeat Mr. Davenport's motion if he makes it, which I deem very inappropriate," Gamble said when asked how he felt the committee would vote.

"It seems to me Mr. Davenport has lost sight of the fact that Mr. Ervin sent a copy of his speech to every member of the committee," Gamble said. "It arrived on Tuesday before the hearings on Wednesday. He had a number of days advance notice of our hearing and apparently decided to send his speech instead of coming."

Davenport said he had no idea how the committee would vote on his motion to hear Ervin. "I think some of the ERA proponents feel just as strongly as I do that this is an important issue and they want it to be fully debated," Davenport said.

He said that he would press for a roll call vote on his motion. When asked why, he said: "I want to see who's afraid to have him come."

The Equal Rights Amendment has been ratified by 35 of the 50 states. The approval of three more is needed before it can become law.

Hearings on the issue were held by the Constitutional Amendments Committee last week. It heard an array of opponents last Wednesday afternoon and from supporters Thursday.

Davenport, who is chairman of the House Judiciary II Committee, said he had tentatively scheduled public hearings on the death penalty issue for Feb. 9 and 10.

"I'm going to try to give everybody who wants to be heard an opportunity to be heard," Davenport said, "but I would like to limit the public hearings to those two days... I don't want to rush the committee members, but I don't want any interminable delays."

He said he hoped the committee could "get down to the nitty gritty the following week."

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week, the committee will hear professors from the state's five law schools discuss the legal aspects of the death penalty, including analyses of decisions by the state and U.S. Supreme Courts on the issue.

Davenport said the Senate Judiciary I Committee, which is handling death penalty legislation in the Senate, would sit in on the hearings.

Bills before the two committees would restore the death penalty in North Carolina for first degree murder and first degree rape. The U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the state's death penalty law unconstitutional. The sponsors of the bills before the legislature say they are drafted to get around the high court's objections.

Professor Is School Visitor

Professor Byron Burlingham conducted a presentation about the Cell and Microscopic Organisms Wednesday morning at Wellcome Middle School.

Burlingham received his B.A. degree in Microbiology in 1961 from the University of Iowa. In 1965 he received his Master of Science and 1966 his M.D. from the Rockefeller University in New York City.

He has served as assistant professor at the University of Maryland College of Medicine, the Department of Cell Biology and Pharmacology and was an associate professor, at Kansas State University division of Biology. He is presently serving as professor at the ECU School of Medicine Department of Microbiology and Immunology.

Vegetables Are Costlier

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of inflation in the price of vegetables appears to be well underway.

The Agriculture Department reported Monday that prices farmers get for raw products rose 1.5 per cent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 15. It was the second straight month in which overall farm prices have increased. Prices jumped 3 per cent from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15, reversing a steady decline that began last spring.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for produce staples like corn, soybeans and commercial vegetables accounted for most of the increase. Prices declined for eggs, potatoes, cotton, oranges and milk.

Produce prices will probably rise higher when the full effects of this winter's weather are felt. The report issued Monday did not reflect the recent freeze damage to Florida citrus and vegetable crops, which occurred when temperatures dropped on Jan. 18, 19 and 20.

Although overall food prices are rising, they are still 2 per cent below the level recorded one year ago. And the prices farmers must pay to meet their expenses continued to climb, jumping 2 per cent during the month. Farmers now are paying 4 per cent more to meet their expenses than they paid a year ago.

Auditors Want Agnew Tax Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew have been ordered by a federal judge to turn over his records for use in a tax audit.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt ruled Monday that a subpoena against the firm of Bickstein, Shapiro & Morin for records of their fee arrangements with Agnew must be enforced. The Internal Revenue Service is auditing the 1973 tax returns of Agnew and his wife Judy.

The Justice Department says the IRS wants verification of Agnew's claims about services of the firm, which had refused to obey the request on the grounds of attorney-client privilege. The firm represented Agnew in the federal investigation that led to his resignation of the vice presidency on Oct. 10, 1973.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a charge of evading 1967 federal income taxes. The Justice Department says the current audit is unrelated.

Mrs. Trudeau Visiting U.S.

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Margaret Trudeau, wife of Canada's prime minister, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, will fly to Washington by commercial jet Wednesday for a two-day visit, a spokesman says.

Mrs. Trudeau plans to have tea with President Carter's wife Rosalynn that afternoon in the White House and dine later at the home of Jake Warren, Canadian ambassador to the United States.

Wednesday night she plans to attend the opening of an exhibition of Canadian art at the Smithsonian Museum, part of the Smithsonian Institute, the spokesman said.

He said Mrs. Trudeau is taking a commercial flight rather than a government plane because the invitation to the art show was personal.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold temperatures are due today for most of the country east of the Rockies. Milder weather is expected in Oklahoma and in the West. Rain and showers are expected to be about the same or a fraction higher, and if the winds subside, it will feel warmer.

By The Associated Press
Clear skies and continued below normal temperatures were in prospect for North Carolina today but a little relief is on the way.

The National Weather Service says Wednesday will be just a little warmer and the winds will subside.

West to northwest winds were to add their chill to today's temperatures, which were expected to range from the 30s in the mountains to the 40s along the coast.

High readings Wednesday are expected to be about the same or a fraction higher, and if the winds subside, it will feel warmer.

The continued cold air flow over North Carolina is related to an intense storm in Canada and high pressure stretching from the Dakotas to Arkansas. The high should be over North Carolina Wednesday.

Monday's weather brought a touch of snow to the southeastern part of the state, where it is seldom seen.

A trace fell at New Bern and Cherry Point with .4 inches at Jacksonville and .6 inches at Wilmington. The snow stuck on cars and lawns but the roads were just wet. By 2 p.m. it had all melted.

Monday's high temperatures ranged generally into the 30s and 40s. Wilmington, in spite of snow, climbed to 43. Charlotte had a high of 41. It got no warmer than 33 in Asheville.

This morning's low readings had Raleigh-Durham as the coldest reporting point with 12 degrees. Other lows included Asheville 14, Greensboro and Charlotte 17 and Wilmington 23

Hospitalized Knievel Vows He Will Return

RECOVERING — Stuntman Evel Knievel lies in a bed Monday at Chicago's Michael Reese Hospital after an unsuccessful attempt to leap a 90-foot pool of sharks. Knievel crashed during a practice jump, fracturing a collarbone and forearm only hours before the event was to be nationally televised. The leap was canceled and Knievel was listed in good condition according to a hospital spokesman. (AP Wirephoto)

CHICAGO (AP) — The sharks were none the worse for wear. Just maybe, the evil-toothed beings had evil-eyed the Evel man. Because Evel Knievel sure was the worse for trying to take a jump over their large fish tank.

The celebrated daredevil-stuntman took a practice leap Monday over a 90-foot-long pool filled with 13 lemon sharks, billed by promoters of the event as "man-eaters." Knievel cleared the pool, but that's when his troubles began, because, according to a spokesman, he landed on the exit ramp on the wrong wheel — his front — and lost control.

He was reported resting comfortably early today in Michael Reese Hospital on Chicago's South Side, a few miles from the International Amphitheater, with a fractured forearm that needs surgery, a fractured left collarbone and assorted other aches and pains. Lying in his bed late Monday night, the motorcyclist vowed to come back: "I will return ... I'm not a quitter." Of the mishap, he said, "There was so much impact ..." upon landing that he lost control.

He had made the practice jump, he said, "because the jump was so dangerous I couldn't bring myself to do it cold turkey." And, he said he was sorry to disappoint viewers awaiting his performance.

He had been scheduled to star in a 90-minute CBS television production, "Evel Knievel's Death Defiers," and though he couldn't be there in person, he was viewed via videotape. The network replayed his crash.

Marty Pasetta of Pasetta Productions, executive producer and director of the television show, said he understood that the stuntman still would receive his $500,000 fee agreed to beforehand. Spokesmen for CBS were not available for comment immediately.

Arrest Woman On Drug Count

Loretta Lowe Reeves, 38 of New York was arrested yesterday at 901B Tyson St. on charges of possession of cocaine, chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said Mrs. Reeves was charged after officers found a quantity of cocaine in her purse during a search of the dwelling, about 5:15 p.m.

The chief estimated the value of the drug at $100.

Bond for Mrs. Reeves was set at $1,000.

Public Health Law Workshop Slated

Professional liability and privacy laws will be among the topics discussed at a one-day workshop, "Public Health Law: A North Carolina Focus" to be held in February in Greenville, Winston-Salem and Asheville.

More than 100 people who provide direct care to clients, including doctors, nurses, social workers, therapists and health aides, are expected to attend each workshop.

The Greenville workshop will be held February 14 at the School of Allied Health and Social Professions Auditorium on the ECU campus.

The workshop is part of a state-wide series co-sponsored by the School of Public Health and the Institute of Government at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Patrice Solberg, an attorney on the faculty of the Institute of Government specializing in public health law, will teach the workshop.

A registration fee will be charged to cover lunch and take-home materials.

For further information contact Cindy Stubblefield, Continuing Education, School of Public Health, UNC-Chapel Hill, (919) 966-4032.

Church Holding Youth Night

Youth Night services will be held tonight at Wells Chapel Church at the corner of Fifth and Hudson Streets.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Milton D. Sutton of Elizabeth City. The public is invited.

Local Director At Workshop

Ms. Betsy Warren, Right to Read Director for the Greenville City Schools will attend a week-long Right to Read training session January 31 through February 4 at the Mid Pines Club in Southern Pines.

Sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction's Division of Reading, the workshop is the first in a series designed to prepare the Right to Read Directors to serve as reading resource people to teachers in their local schools.
