

Foes Of ERA Throw In The Towel

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Because of Tuesday's 64-52 tentative approval of the Equal Rights Amendment in the North Carolina House of Representatives, opponents apparently threw in the towel today.

Davenport has led the fight against ERA in the House. He conceded that opponents now will have to muster their forces to halt ERA when it reaches the Senate.

They were deluged following Tuesday's approval. One legislator commented that there were so many calls to his residence that his wife took the telephone off the hook.

It was not known whether ERA supporters or opponents were in the majority in the calls and telegrams. Tuesday's surprising 12-vote victory came after three hours of debate which was dominated by proponents.

Miller reportedly was considering calling for the final vote immediately this afternoon rather than having another day of debate. Because it was his bill, Miller has the right to call for a vote on the measure at any time, meaning the vote would be taken immediately if a majority of the House agrees. Joining those lobbying for passage of ERA Tuesday was First Lady Rosalynn Carter. She called four lawmakers who were considered undecided. Two of those she called voted for ERA and the other two did not.

Because the Senate has not considered ERA this session, a House victory is the halfway mark for ratification by North Carolina. But, proponents say they are confident of their strength in the Senate even though it is headed by an opponent of the measure, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. Two years ago, the measure was killed by five votes in the House. Green was House speaker during that session. Four years ago, the measure was defeated in the state Senate by a two-vote margin.

Commissioners, Board Talk School Bond Issue

By STUART SAVAGE

Pitt County Commissioners and members of the Pitt County Board of Education met last night to discuss the possibility of a bond issue to fund capital improvement needs of the school system.

At the opening of the session, county school superintendent Ott Alford said the session was suggested, "to see where we stand on this business."

representatives of the city board of education told commissioners that the county school board was not receptive to the idea of a bond issue and had refused to meet with city board members to discuss such funding.

Commissioner Bob Martin noted that funding $1.3 million "last year in capital outlay" was "a little bit strenuous. Give us some release by seeking a bond levy. We need some relief on capital outlay in our budget. You'd be doing us somewhat of a favor."

Carter Says Complaints 'Justified'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are putting their stamp on President Carter's economic stimulus program in ways that could test the president's stated eagerness to prolong his honeymoon with Congress.

broadcast news conference was devoted to repeating his pledges to work closely with Congress and also to trying to calm some of the congressional uneasiness over Warnke.

Carter held his first full-scale news conference on Tuesday and said he thought he could accept the changes Congress was likely to make in his proposals to create jobs and cut taxes. He also said complaints from congressional leaders about his failure to consult often enough with them were justified.

Meanwhile, Senate Public Works Committee chairman Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said expansion of the jobs program had tentative approval from the White House.

However, on the changes in his economic program, Carter warned that "if such drastic changes were made in it that would cause me to doubt its effectiveness or its viability, I would, of course, veto it."

"I have a feeling the administration is favorable to the $4 billion and might be favorable to condensing it into a short period of time," Randolph said.

As he spoke, Congressional Democrats were putting the finishing touches on a public works jobs bill twice the size of the program Carter requested. And some of his tax proposals, including a plan for a $50 rebate to most Americans, have run into serious opposition on Capitol Hill.

At his news conference, the president referred to his economic proposals as "a comprehensive package of two-year duration that is well-balanced. There is a limit on how much money you can spend on public works without wasting money."

In the delicate area of arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, there also were signs of future trouble between the new president and Congress in opposition that has emerged to his appointment of Paul Warnke to head the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

He didn't mention the plan to double the size of the jobs program or suggest whether such an increase would still keep it within the limit that could be spent without waste.

Despite opposition from senators who say Warnke would be too willing to compromise with the Russians, his nomination appeared headed for approval by the Senate and he received a new endorsement from Carter.

Old Fuel Charge Rate Formula Is Adopted By Utilities Commission

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night adopted an amendment to the approved fuel charge rate which will allow for computation of rates by the old formula set by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

fuel charges as compared with paid fuel charges. In other action, the commission voted to grant a five percent cost-of-living increase to all employees, except department heads and the director, and accepted a recommendation to continue to retain Network Computing Co. for its billing services.

The report concluded with a prediction for similarly high or higher February bills, due to continued cold weather and an increase in the approved fuel charge.

The commission also accepted a state grant for wastewater system improvements valued at $27,409. The grant, which comes under the Clean Water Fund, will aid in the construction of a wastewater collection system.

CROSSOVER?

Why isn't there a crossover in the median in front of the Super Dollar Store on Memorial Drive? If you're coming from the south, you have to go all the way down to the Third Street intersection and turn around and come back up probably a fifth of a mile. I don't think it's fair to the store to have its potential customers so inconvenienced. I'm in no way connected with the store, except that I'm an occasional customer. R. A.

Division Traffic Engineer Gerald England of the N. C. Department of Transportation answered this Hotline question in a letter. He said, "The requested crossover would fall within 250 feet of the existing signalized Fifth Street intersection. The existing left turn lane and taper for left turning southbound traffic on Memorial Drive extends past the Super Dollar Store frontage. Therefore, a crossover would not be allowed at or near the store due to the conflicts with the left turn lane and the signalized Fifth Street intersection. It may be inconvenient for motorists to drive to Third Street to make a left turn, but they are protected by a signal with a special left turning phase there. If Fourth Street is ever extended to Memorial Drive, a crossover may be provided at that location. At present, we do not recommend any additional crossover between Third and Fifth Streets."

W-2 FORMS—WHEN?

I don't have my W-2 form yet. Is there a particular date by which an employer should have these forms out to his employees of the past year? E. W.

Hotline got this answer from the Federal Tax Information and Assistance toll-free number, 800-822-8800. W-2 forms should be mailed to employees on or prior to Jan. 31, according to an Internal Revenue Service ruling on the subject.

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Goldsboro has annexed Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, but a Wayne County citizens group says it will continue to fight the move.

Hostage And Captive Are Still Holed Up

By STEVE GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A gunman who said he was "ready to die" remained holed up in an apartment today with the mortgage company executive he had taken hostage with the muzzle of a sawed-off shotgun wired to his neck. Police reported the gunman was growing edgy.

Authorities drafted papers offering immunity from prosecution for Anthony G. Kiritis, 44, of Indianapolis, for possible use in negotiations that continued as the drama passed the 24-hour mark this morning. Kiritis, who had demolition training in the Army, claimed he had the third-floor apartment rigged with explosives.

Members of the Indianapolis police special weapons and tactics team, garbed in black, maintained a watch during the night. An Army bomb squad from nearby Ft. Harrison was on hand to disarm any explosive devices that might be found.

Police said reports were not true that dynamite was found wired to the ignition of Kiritis' car Tuesday.

Kiritis was described as distraught over a loan transaction

333 Pints Given To Bloodmobile

The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected 190 pints on Monday and another 143 pints Tuesday in Greenville, for a total of 333 pints of blood. Twenty-two would-be donors were turned away.

The bloodmobile is at Ayden-Grifton High School today. "We tried awfully hard" commented O.J. Smith, project chairman of the sponsoring Moose lodge on the two-day Greenville visit. "I understand this visit was more successful than the one here last February. Many people helped achieve those 333 pints that were given, and I appreciate it. The support and encouragement the blood bank gets in Greenville is heartening; but somehow we must increase the ranks of new donors," he said.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross termed the bloodmobile turnout "very good."

"I want to thank the 355 people who came to give blood," she said, "as well as the Service League, volunteer nurses, Women of the Moose, the Moose lodge and the people who worked in behalf of the bloodmobile yesterday and Monday," she said. "It was a very good response, and a major assist to the Pitt blood program"

In some isolated instances,

Henna For Hair Is Popular Again

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Henna, a red color used on hair, is again going to the head after four decades. The natural organic substance made from a green-leaved, red-tinged plant, popular after World War I and into the '30s, is being used by many hairdressers to provide red highlights for the hair.

To many individuals the vegetable dye used thousands of years ago in Egypt and other countries is a mystery. Women often associate henna with the brassy, orange-red hair color that was frequently the result of mixing henna with metallic substances, henna expert, Peter Landsman of Toronto, said. He has been working with henna for 24 of his 38 years, he said.

"In Egypt women applied henna to their hair, then wrapped their heads in turbans and sat in the sun to bake the color until it had set. It needs heat," he explained. "But in the '30s in fashionable Paris and other cool climates, it was improperly used and often mixed with metallic substances, which gave the hair a peculiar red look. Ammonia in permanent waves was also ruinous to henna. From improper use with other products, the hair often fell out, and henna fell into disfavor."

Landsman had used the old-type henna, he said, when he was an apprentice and hairdresser in London. A while back he teamed his knowledge with an Israeli family who had been in the henna business for four generations in Egypt until they were forced to flee the country some years ago. He began laboratory experiments to see how henna could be successfully used in cool climates and how other organic things might be added to provide more color tones.

"Combined with indigo, you can get black henna, which is popular in Israel, Mexico and Latin countries. With charcoal you can get a pretty ash brown that appeals to Americans, French and Australians. Hair salons are adding spices and other organic matter—cloves, walnuts, chestnuts and even lemon juice—to get some interesting color tones," he said.

But henna can't be used on gray hair unless it is tinted—hair needs pigment which is missing from gray hair or a tint which puts color in the hair shaft so that henna can be effective. Henna seals the outer layer of hair, locking in the color. On brown hair henna should provide a dark red gloss.

"The average young girl is content with her own hair color. She may just want some highlights and henna doesn't leave a line of demarcation at the roots. It just fades away," says Landsman, who has for three years been president of Colora, which makes henna products for beauty salons.

"Another plus for henna is the body it gives hair. It thickens it temporarily, which has a lot of hairdresser appeal as they are doing many more haircuts and flattering results are provided when the hair has good body."

Landsman is traveling around training hairdressers in how to use his salon products. He cautions women who might use henna at home to avoid using it with metallic substances or on permanent waves that use ammonia.

In salons the henna product is mixed in a bowl with hot water, home henna users should remember. After a shampoo the henna is applied from the roots to ends of hair with a brush, the hair being parted as it is for a tint. It is then worked well into the hair with gloved hands.

Hair is brought to the crown and covered with a plastic cap before one sits under a hot dryer for 30 minutes. The plastic is removed and another 15 minutes is spent under the hot dryer.

The hair is then rinsed well with water for 5 minutes and a first-quality, acid-balanced shampoo is used. If an alkaline permanent wave is to be used on hair, the hair is rinsed in a solution of one-half apple cider vinegar and one-half water.

Future Fabrics May Be Odor Retardant

By CYRIL GUERRERA
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Deodorant manufacturers may shudder at the thought, but in a generation or so you might be able to buy clothes that kill body odor.

Scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Southern Regional Research Center say preliminary tests have been successful in finding an odor retardant solution and applying it to fabric.

When they began the project two years ago, it was not with the goal of relieving Americans of underarm embarrassment.

"Actually, the deodorant feature is not what we consider the most important feature," said Dr. Clark Welch. "We're most interested in controlling skin infection and in medical uses."

Welch said the aim was to reduce cases of infection spread by bacteria in hospital and hotel linen supplies.

He and two co-workers sought a way to treat the textiles with a bacteria-killing agent that would remain effective through repeated washing.

Using a mixture of hydrogen peroxide (a common household bleach) and zinc salt or zirconium salt, Welch has succeeded in keeping the finish on cotton fabric for 20 to 50 washings.

The zinc salt or zirconium salt is a bonding agent that keeps the hydrogen peroxide on the fabric. Zinc is preferred because it is cheaper and lighter, Welch said.

He said the process works on all-cotton or blends of cotton and polyester, but not on 100 per cent polyester.

It has potential as an odor killer because bacteria causes body odor.

"Body odor is due to the action of bacteria on perspiration," Welch said. "As I understand it, perspiration would be essentially odorless if it were not for bacteria."

"So we think we can make fabrics that won't become malodorous by applying an antibacterial finish to the fabrics."

However, commercial production and accurate cost estimates are many years away, he said.

Research thus far has been limited to testing various mixtures. There have been no tests on animals or human beings, so the scientists do not know what possible allergy problems they might have to overcome.

SNACKS FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Snacks are especially important for the young child. Whether he is given a mid-morning or mid-afternoon snack should depend on the child's growth needs as well as his appetite at mealtimes. Snacks should be counted as part of his overall meal requirements. If snacks are served they should not dull the child's appetite for the next meal. Raw fruits and vegetables offer needed energy, vitamins and minerals as well as help the child develop his chewing ability and supply necessary roughage.

Sweet snacks, candy, sweet cake and cookies and pop tend to dull the child's appetite. They furnish calories, but little nutritive value. Such high calorie snacks should be avoided if they are replacing foods needed by the body, such as milk, fruits, vegetables, and enriched breads.

Mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks are especially important for the child attending nursery school. His busy new life requires extra energy and nutritious snacks are the answer. It can also prevent lunchtime problems when the child is over tired.

Some snack ideas for young children are:

Chunky Pretzel Sticks—Alternate slices of hot dogs and cheese cubes on pretzel sticks.

Treasure Logs—Cut thin slices of beef, ham or bologna. In each piece roll a slice of cheese.

Fruit Kabobs—Slip onto a toothpick colorful piece of fruit.

Black and Orange Pick Ups—Stick cooked dried prunes or apricots on the end of a crisp carrot stick.

Merry Go Rounds—Spread peanut butter on a thin slice of apple. Stand an animal cracker in the peanut butter.

Polka Dot Open-face Sandwiches—Cut bread into unusual slices with cookie cutters. Cover with a meat spread. Put a small cube of cheese on top. Brown under the broiler.

Get out of the carrot stick rut—Use some unusual vegetables as snacks. Tasty raw zucchini wheels, wafer thin slices of turnip, cherry tomatoes, cauliflowers, green onions, red and green peppers and mushrooms. Vegetable tidbits make wonderful treats.

For that refrigerator raid keep thinly sliced vegetables in a container or plastic bag. Why not pack a bag of vegetable treats for their snack at school or trip to the playground.

Banana Shake
1 cup milk
1/4 cup vanilla ice cream
1/2 banana, mashed
Combine ingredients, beat with rotary beater or blend in blender until foamy. Pour into tall chilled glass.

Confetti Punch
Fill and freeze ice cube trays with orange, grape or any juice preferred. Serve different colors in glasses of juice. Popsicle sticks may also be placed in cubes just before frozen and served as popsicles.

'Bagelmania' Growing In The United States

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Julie and Rosanne Vitola, Italian-American sisters in San Antonio, Tex., call themselves "bagel maniacs."

"A Jewish friend turned me on to them," says Julie, 18, "and I haven't been able to stop."

"I started eating them six to eight months ago," Roseanne, 23, added as they stuffed themselves on egg and cinnamon raisin bagels filled with cream cheese at the city's first bagel bakery. It was established a few months ago by Lee Goltzman, 39, a native of Corpus Christi.

Asked how often they dropped in for a bite, the two weight-conscious sisters laughed in unison: "Too regularly."

A bagel is what Jewish comedians call "a petrified doughnut" or "a doughnut with rigor mortis." It resembles a doughnut in shape only. The traditional variety is a non-sweet roll of very dense, chewy yeast dough that has been boiled, then baked.

The Vitolas are not the only non-Jews to develop a taste for this ethnic food. In San Diego, bagel baker Ron Silverstein estimates that 80 to 85 per cent of his customers are not and oddities like green ones for St. Patrick's Day. The first green ones were "... a real bummer," he said. A couple of years later, he advertised the same variety and had customers lining up.

In a real ecumenical switch, Silverstein also has offered Christmas bagels: red and green lime and strawberry flavors and fruit fillings.

Although bagels are considered a Jewish ethnic food in the U.S., legend says they were invented by a Pole who founded Vienna's first coffeehouse. He supposedly was trying to make stirrup-shaped breads called beugels to honor the army of the king of Poland for repelling a Turkish invasion.

Immigrants who left Austria and Germany took the bagel concept with them, and another ethnic food began to spread to foreign shores.

The traditional way to eat them is to split them horizontally and spread with cream cheese and slices of lox, or smoked salmon. Nowadays, fast-food restaurants and delicatessens have ranged far afield, using them for all kinds of sandwiches—even peanut butter and jelly.

Stop Competing, Start Improving

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am jealous of my younger sister. She's 16 and I'm 18. She's prettier than I am and has a great figure, and I'm too fat. She's also smarter than I am. She even has more personality and character than I have. (She's an extrovert and I'm an introvert.) She has lots of friends and I don't have any. How can I get over feeling so jealous?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: It's apparent that you have a very low opinion of yourself. First, quit competing with your sister and do the most with what you have. You can improve your appearance by diet and exercise, and by trying to look as good as you can. Everyone can't be beautiful, but anyone can be attractive and well-groomed.

You can develop a more appealing personality by getting out of your shell and showing a genuine interest in others. Improve your character by listening to your conscience and acting accordingly.

Pray for the strength and determination to carry out the above self-improvement program, and you'll have nothing to be jealous about. Write again in six months and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I got a call from a man named Micky, asking me to tell my husband to stay away from my wife, Carol. He said a friend of my husband's had tipped him off.

When I asked my husband about it, he denied everything and said he didn't even know a "Carol."

A few nights later the same man called to say that his wife had confessed to having an affair with my husband. She said it was the first time she ever did anything like that, and she promised never to see my husband again.

Again I spoke to my husband and again he denied everything. He said someone must be playing a joke on me. Well, my husband has stepped out on me in the past, but the last time I caught him, he put his hand on the Bible and swore he'd never do it again.

I don't know who to believe. This Micky sounded very sincere and said he wanted to keep his marriage together because they have small children.

Abby, I have to get to the bottom of this. How do I go about it? Are lie detector machines available to rent? Have you any advice?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: If you COULD rent a lie detector machine (which is unlikely), I'd advise you to skip it. Better get the Bible out and ask your husband to renew his promise.

DEAR ABBY: I'm dating this girl I care for a lot, and she claims it's mutual, but here's the problem: She smokes and I don't, and her smoking really bugs me. She promised she'd stop smoking if I grew a mustache. Well, I grew one, but she's still smoking.

Please tell me how to deal with this annoying situation.
TOM IN FLUSHING, N.Y.

DEAR TOM: You could resign yourself to the fact that: (a) your girl's promises are about as permanent as smoke; (b) she's hooked and won't quit for you or anybody else. Or you could get rid of the mustache AND the girl.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: St. Valentine's Day is just around the corner, so be a sweetheart and take a shut-in out for a drive, invite a "single" over to relieve his (or her) loneliness or send someone you like a funny card, some flowers or a little gift. Or call someone you love and say, "Hey, I love you!"

Exciting Development In Pitt

The Pitt County commissioners are studying the development of a county wide water system which could make water available to most rural homes.

This is an exciting development in planning that could have huge benefits for our county.

The commissioners received a report from Bob Pittman of Rivers and Associates at their meeting Monday which outlined the possibilities for development and funding of the system.

Initially a water distribution system of seven deep wells and pumps, and three 200,000 gallon elevated storage tanks would be constructed at a cost of $4.5 million. Such a system would serve 1,660 customers, or around 80 percent of the potential customers in the proposed service area.

Later phases of development would involve the purchase of the Stokes, Bell Arthur and Eastern Pines water systems if they chose to join the county system.

Various financing is being looked at, including Farmers Home Administration, State Clean Water Bonds and Coastal Plains Regional Commission grants, as well as a possible loan from the Farmers Home Administration. The loan would be repaid from revenues from the system.

The monthly charge to customers could be $7.35 for the first 2,000 gallons of water if the grants materialize. The rates, of course, could be higher if there is less grant money and larger loans are necessary.

The proposed plan to develop a county-wide water supply system has fantastic possibilities insofar as rural living is concerned. It is often difficult to sink a well at a planned rural home site because of soil conditions. If a piped in water supply were available this problem would be eliminated for the prospective home builder.

Availability of water should also mean better fire protection for rural homes. A good system of rural fire departments has already been developed, but often the volunteer firemen are hampered by lack of water when they arrive at the fire scene.

If the county water system is developed we would hope that the county planners would make certain that it is adequate for fire protection. Also the system should be designed so that it could be integrated into the various municipal systems of the county should the need arise.

The county water system could change rural living just as electricity, the telephone and rural paved roads once did. Consequently it could mean the preservation of an ideal way of living for our traditionally rural county.

We hope the county commissioners will proceed with the planning and development of this water system.

The Point Is Personality

RALEIGH—Do politicians lay their careers on the line with every vote cast when the General Assembly is in session?

Far from it, says State Rep. Carl J. Stewart, Jr., D-Gaston, who is a veteran of 10 years in the Legislature, and speaker of the house this session.

"Elections are not won or lost on the basis of how a member of the assembly votes on a particular issue... but on how you get along with the people at home," Stewart believes.

Pressure comes from many sources to convince legislators to swing one way or another on particular issues. Letters are pouring in this session on the Equal Rights Amendment up for its third round of debate in the General Assembly.

Do such emotional displays really influence assemblymen?

"Not very much. Most are interested in what their people at home think. But the members must also exercise leadership.

Take A Stand

"If they take a stand on a controversial and emotional issue, and explain that position clearly and honestly, then even people who disagree will normally accept the position," Stewart said.

What really counts, says Stewart, is how the legislator behaves: if he expresses genuine interest in local problems; if he relates to the people and keeps in touch; if he doesn't get arrogant and egotistical, letting the position go to his head, then local support will generally remain secure despite particular stances.

But when a legislator begins to feel "above the people," and takes advantage of the position, defeat is imminent, Stewart thinks.

There may be one exception to the rule: liquor-by-the-drink is clearly of such emotional importance that voter reaction may be swayed by that particular vote. For that reason, Stewart believes the issue will not come to a head in this session. Legislators have "more important things on which to risk their careers."

That contact with the home folks is playing an ever more important role in legislative matters. The most effective lobbying organizations have recognized that pressure exerted in Raleigh is not nearly as powerful as subtle influences applied at home... legislators pay more attention to what their friends and neighbors say at church, at the club, at local get-togethers than they do to the professionals hanging around the State House.

BILL NOBLITT

Lobbying

The highly rated League of Municipalities and County Commissioners Association operate through local contacts more and more.

That technique is also coming to the attention of legislative leaders. Stewart said there are efforts to hold critical votes on emotional issues (such as ERA) rapidly; calling in the decisions in one or two days and avoiding weekend breaks during which minds can be changed.

Does the growing tendency to remain longer and longer in Raleigh each session, and to hold sessions each year instead of every two years tend to take lawmakers out of touch with the homefolk; turning them into professional legislators?

There is that danger, Stewart thinks, but that point has not been reached. He predicts this year's session will run six or seven months, and that shorter three-month session will be held in 1978. If that pattern holds, then legislators have ample time (especially given the long weekend breaks from Friday noon till Monday night) to remain in touch with home, he feels.

Stewart also finds little exciting in the financial disclosure statements now required of legislators. He said the Raleigh news outlets focused on those reports, noting that the assembly is largely wealthy and many have close ties to banks.

That comes as no surprise to the people at home, Stewart said. The people already knew who had money and who didn't, and what kind of businesses they are connected with.

A Lot Of It Is In Mind

WASHINGTON—It isn't easy to keep warm when the President asks everybody to keep the thermostat down to 65 in the daytime and 55 at night. A psychiatrist friend of mine insists, though, that a lot of it is in the mind, and if you can think "warm" thoughts it will help you keep warm. I'm not certain if he's correct or not, but I'm willing to make my small contribution to the energy crisis by giving you some examples of warm thoughts to think about.

Zelda walked along the beach. It wasn't easy because the hot sand almost burned the soles of her feet. She found a spot around the cove out of sight of the other sunbathers. After spreading out her beach blanket she started to put suntan oil on her brown skin. Then she took off the top of her bikini and lay down on the red towel on her stomach. The rays of the sun gently engulfed her body as she started to doze off. Suddenly, a tall bronzed man appeared and cast a shadow over her.

"Is this spot taken?" he asked with a mischievous grin.

Zelda pretended she was annoyed, but in fact she was happy to have company. The man spread out his towel next to her.

"Would you like some suntan lotion?" she asked him. "The sun is awfully hot."

"No," he said. "I'm used to the sun. And if I get too hot I can always go into the clear blue water."

Zelda thought to herself, "I hope we don't get into a heated discussion over where we can go for dinner."

The Johnsons sat down to dinner. Mr. Johnson was at the head of the table. His wife brought in a steaming bowl of oyster stew and placed it in front of him. He helped himself to some in his plate and then passed the bowl around the table.

"Well," said Mr. Johnson, "what have you children been up to today?"

"I got three A's on my report card," Gerald, his older son, said, "and I made

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Carter reaches an agreement with the Russians not to deploy mobile missiles, it could save the United States up to $30 billion while neutralizing a worrisome new Soviet weapon.

40 Years Ago Today

February 9, 1937

A wave bombardment helped ponderous crests sustain flood perils along the mid-Mississippi today, but strained levees, as the Red Cross began mapping rehabilitation plans for the Ohio Valley.

Northwest winds of up to 39 miles an hour rolled crests against the sturdy dikes, but army engineers reported no major damage to the peak past Memphis and reiterated the belief the worst was over.

Red Cross officials' faith in this view was reflected in the shaping of a tentative month-long rehabilitation program for 75 refugee camps in Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and western Kentucky.

In order that as many farmers as possible may have an opportunity to hear the 1937 Soil Conservation program explained, the Pitt County farm agent's office has arranged a schedule of township meetings to be held during February.

R. R. Bennett, county agent, declared that provisions for the 1937 program have been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Mr. Bennett suggested both landlords and tenants attend the meetings.

To the editor:

Hurray! Congratulations, children of Greenville! I just returned from a visit to my friendly bank and when I gave a negative nod to the drive-in teller (my signal for NO LOLLIPOPS), she held up a balloon! Well, it made my day! I appreciate the thought behind lollipops—the banks and merchants like children and want to do something nice for them. It is just that more and more the consumer and interested mothers are seeing evidence that sugar is not something nice for children. It leads to tooth decay, as well as the unhappiness of childhood obesity, and upsets the natural "appetite". There are many mothers who are really concerned about nutrition and try to provide a low-sugar diet for their families. I am so happy that NCB understood our negative nods and switched to balloons. Possibly the kids that are most blessed are the ones whose mothers accepted the suckers. Balloons are great! They sometimes last a long time, can be bath toys, indoor toys, and outdoor toys. They are fun for all ages and can be played with in many different ways. I hope more stores and banks will follow NCB and offer balloons or sugar-free gum instead of lollipops. It couldn't hurt!

I'm sure there are some other businesses that offer substitutes for lollipops already. I know Dr. Jasper Lewis and Greenville Pediatrics do. There are surely others.

If I seem a little out of breath—well, I just blew up two balloons, of course.

To the editor:

I was most disappointed tonight (Feb. 7) in the opinion concerning the ERA issue expressed by Rep. Horton Rountree in an interview on Channel 9's evening news. The opinion being "the issue should be gotten out of the way as quickly as possible, so as to get on to important issues."

Whether he is in favor of the issue or not, I feel he is doing a disservice to many of his constituents who do feel most strongly that the Equal Rights Amendment is a very important issue to both men and women.

I trust Rep. Rountree does not treat all issues so lightly and apparently irresponsibly.

Top Economists Are Wondering

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — In this second week of February, in the third week of the Carter presidency, in this the year of the big freeze, the nation's best economic minds are hassling about these considerations — will President Carter and Chairman Arthur Burns manage to work out their differences or will Carter's fiscal push be negated by Burns' monetary drag?

Early this week those questions couldn't be answered, but for those who continually contemplate the impossible, that's no reason not to wonder. The questions arise because of the mysterious stance taken by Burns last week.

Testifying before Congress, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, which seeks to control money supply, both praised and damned the Carter package, and nobody quite knows now if in practice he will support or oppose it.

As head of the Fed, Burns has enormous power. The chairman and his board can make their decisions largely in private. They do not have to comply with the President's wishes. They can choose their own course no matter what Carter does.

While seeking to understand the intricate and confusing position that Burns may or may not have taken — his most clearly expressed opinion was that spring will surely come — some concerned spectators believe they can see the handwriting on the wall, or more precisely, the headline in the newspaper: "Burns cool, Carter burns."

Equally mystifying is what the unemployment figures for January mean. While trying to estimate what impact the cold spell will have on the February jobless, nobody seems to know what happened in January.

Even Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, doesn't seem to know why the rate plunged to 7.3 per cent from the previous month's 7.8 per cent.

The most likely explanation is that job-seekers gave up seeking and remained in out of the cold. If that is so, it points up some remarkable aspects of the employment figures:

1. How easy it is to generate out of adversity, with statistics, what might at first glance appear to be the most remarkably good economic news we've had in some time.
2. How meaningless that

January figure is, a statistical effort that might have meaning to statisticians but which is essentially unusable by anyone else.

What is the total impact of the cold weather?

Economists are now seriously wondering if they should attempt to enter into their calculations the possibility that the frigid air will persist, not just for one season but for several.

The issue is even broader. Weather patterns appear to be changing, and this year's incursion of Arctic air is believed to be part of the same pattern that is bringing sharp changes in precipitation elsewhere.

There could also be a connection between summer droughts and this winter's cold, and perhaps connections with other natural phenomena as well.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter And Solzhenitsyn

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Carter's conflicting desires to promote both detente with and dissent within the Soviet Union collide again on this question: will he fulfill his unannounced promise to meet personally with Russian exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn?

To the Kremlin, novelist Solzhenitsyn, the anti-Soviet critic now living in the U.S., is more obnoxious than scientist Andrei Sakharov, whose spirited defense by the Carter administration angered Moscow. Rather than damage detente, Mr. Carter toned down his ardor for defending Soviet dissidents.

That might point the President as far away as possible from Solzhenitsyn at the moment he wants a quick arms agreement with the Kremlin. But Mr. Carter went on record favoring such a meeting in an exchange of letters with an obscure, Deep South Republican politician.

Rep. Malcolm Mabry of Dublin, Miss., a Ronald Reagan delegate at the national convention, began the correspondence shortly after the election. Still smarting over President Ford's snub of Solzhenitsyn (at the advice of the State Department), Mabry asked whether the President-elect would meet the Russian.

Most politicians might have finessed this question with a form letter saying nothing — or no letter at all. But Jimmy Carter sent this handwritten note to "Cong. (sic) Malcolm Mabry" from Plains on Nov. 26: "I do intend to meet with Mr. Solzhenitsyn (no time set). Thank you, Jimmy."

In the two months since then, Solzhenitsyn has not heard from Mr. Carter. Carter aides, a bit cautious after the Sakharov affair, are saying nothing.

A footnote: Ford agents worried late in the campaign that Solzhenitsyn would appear in Plains before the election to praise Mr. Carter. They were particularly nervous about contact in New York City between Solzhenitsyn and Zbigniew Brzezinski, then a Carter foreign policy adviser and now director of the National Security Council.

Labor And Trade

The last hope of big labor for a top Carter administration official of their own choosing has hit a snag with business and farm opposition to former Rep. William Green of Pennsylvania as Special Trade Representative — the nation's top international trade negotiator.

The AFL-CIO hierarchy, disappointed on so many Carter selections, pushed hard for Green, who was defeated for the Senate last November. But free-trade lobbyists counter-attacked, claiming Green would too closely reflect the AFL-CIO's protectionist views.

In particular, agri-business interests who want open channels of trade were worried about Green and started a campaign for former Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, now the head of a firm providing services for multinationals. He has the quiet support of a fellow Minnesotan — Vice President Mondale.

Some signs at the White House point to a Carter finesse of the conflict, bypassing Green and Freeman for some little-known compromise. "That wouldn't surprise me a bit," one labor operative remarked. "We haven't gotten anybody else we wanted."

A footnote: The free-trade campaign against Green was intensified when the House Ways and Means Committee elected Rep. Charles Vanik of Ohio chairman of its Foreign Trade Subcommittee. Vanik was strongly backed by the AFL-CIO against a free-trader, Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida.

A Tip For Tip

The embarrassment of House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill in learning from the press that President Carter's first major Massachusetts appointment was Republican Elliot Richardson will not soon be repeated.

With O'Neill understandably making no effort to conceal his humiliation, two of constitute a morbid preoccupation. Life is a training ground, a school, out of which God takes us when we have finished our course. No one knows when the moment of his or her calling will come.

But people who are prepared — as William Cullen Bryant says in "Thanatopsis" — can enter the mysterious realm of death with the unflinching trust of one who wraps the draperies of his life about him and then lies down to pleasant dreams.

Two-Day Band Clinic Is Scheduled At ECU

Band students from 40 eastern North Carolina high schools will be taking part in the annual East Carolina University Band Clinic on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 11 and 12.

The young student musicians, selected for the clinic by audition, will be organized into two bands — the Symphonic Band, to be conducted by Frank Erickson, noted composer and conductor; and the Concert Band, to be conducted by Kenneth Ginn. Ginn is director of the Greene Central High School Band of Snow Hill.

Sponsored by the N.C. Music Educators Conference and the East Carolina University School of Music, the ECU Band Clinic is directed by Herbert Carter, School of Music faculty member, and David J. Jones, Jacksonville, chairman of the Eastern North Carolina band directors.

Allan Dean, trumpet soloist and professor at the Eastman School of Music, will be a featured guest musician at the clinic. Dean is also a current member of the famed New York Brass Quintet.

Events connected with the clinic include a dual concert Friday evening with performances by the ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble and the ECU Jazz Ensemble. The Wind Ensemble was the inaugural band at Governor Hunt's inauguration; and the band has just returned from a tour of schools in northern Virginia.

Another public event will be performances by the two student bands in Wright Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. At this performance, Erickson will conduct several of his own compositions; and Dean will be featured trumpet soloist.

The public is invited to attend and there is no admission charge.

Dean At ACC Plans Retire

WILSON — Dr. Lewis H. Swindell Jr., dean of Atlantic Christian College, will conclude a 36-year career in the field of education upon retirement from his position with the college at the end of the current academic year.

Known throughout the South as an outstanding educator, Dr. Swindell became dean of Atlantic Christian College in August in 1963. He came to Atlantic Christian College from East Carolina University where he served for two years as associate professor in the School of Education.

Prior to his appointment at ECU, he was executive secretary of the N.C. School Boards Association. A graduate of Wake Forest College in 1941 with the B.S. degree, he earned his M.A. degree at ECU in 1948 and Ed.D. degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He is a past president of the Washington Rotary Club, a Mason and a Shriner. He has also served as past president of the Northeastern District, division of Higher Education, and a teacher and superintendent of the Methodist Church.

EARNINGS CLIMB
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Gannett Co., a nationwide newspaper group, reported Tuesday that 1976 net earnings climbed 24 per cent over 1975 and fourth-quarter income was up 26 per cent over the previous year.

flames shot up, lighting her beautiful face. Paul handed her a glass of brandy which she took nervously. His eyes burned into hers as he said, "Why don't you take off your coat?"

"I should be going home," Renata said. "It's awfully late."

Paul sat down next to her on the cushion and gazed into the red-hot embers. "You know you don't want to go."

Renata blushed, and a strange heat overwhelmed her. "I guess I don't," she said, touching Paul gently on the cheek. He looked at her and then slowly, gently but forcefully, took her into his arms. The crackling of the logs in the room was the only sound that could be heard except for an occasional sigh.

Well, that should get you through the day or my psychiatrist friend is all wet.

Evans-Novak...

Mr. Carter's top White House aides — Hamilton Jordan and chief congressional lobbyist Frank Moore — have instituted what is supposed to be an airtight fail-safe system.

That system requires a four-stage series of initialed sign-offs before any major appointment can be announced: by Jordan, Moore, White House press secretary Jody Powell and the agency preparing the final nomination papers. No public announcement can be made until all four have initialed the nomination, supposedly blocking premature announcements.

In the case of Richardson (named ambassador for Law of the Sea negotiations), Secretary of State Cyrus Vance personally cleared the nomination with Mr. Carter, then announced it. With not one White House aide informed, there was no one to tip off the Speaker, or even ask his consent, before the news was published.

Flood Insurance In Final Stage

For the last three years, the city has participated in the Emergency Flood Insurance Program of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's Federal Insurance Administration.

Mandated under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, the city is required to administer flood plain regulations in order that local citizens residing in a flood hazard area may purchase subsidized flood insurance.

The city, according to City Manager Jim Caldwell, is now entering the final stage of the flood insurance program which will double the amount of protection for residential owners and commercial owners.

Caldwell pointed out that on Dec. 27 and 28, a notice of determination of the flood elevations was published for the flood hazard areas along the Tar River, Green Mill Run, Fornes Run, Parker's Creek, Hardee Creek, Bell's Branch, Reedy Branch, and Meeting House Branch.

A map delineating these flood hazard areas is available for public inspection at the city engineer's office at city hall. Caldwell said that these flood hazard areas will be used to regulate development in the designated areas in accordance with the regulations of the FIA and the city.

The city manager pointed out that Greenville has until March 28 to notify the FIA of any technical errors in the flood hazard area maps.

Any property owner or lessee of real property adjacent to the named streams should examine the maps to determine if they are affected by the proposed flood elevation determinations, Caldwell observed. He said that all appeals must be made by the city and must be based on information that indicates the flood elevations to be scientifically or technically incorrect.

Should any property owner or lessee of real property wish to file an appeal, it must be filed in writing to the city manager by Tuesday, March 15.

Caldwell said that any property owner with questions concerning the Flood Insurance Program, the proposed floodway elevation determination or the city's flood plain regulation should call city hall at 752-4137.

Fewer Lives Lost

Although there were more accidents in Pitt County investigated by the North Carolina State Highway Patrol in 1976 than there were in 1975, fewer people lost their lives.

Highway Patrol Troop A commander Capt. John T. Jenkins reported there were 852 collisions investigated during 1976 as compared with 834 the year before. Some 312 of the mishaps in 1976 resulted in injuries while in 1975 people were injured in 285 of the mishaps investigated.

Jenkins said 15 people lost their lives in mishaps investigated by Highway Patrolmen in Pitt in 1976, while 525 others were injured. He said in 1975, 17 individuals were killed and 285 injured.

According to Jenkins, the 13 troopers and two sergeants assigned to the county issued 7,038 citations for motor vehicle law violations during the bicentennial year. Of those, Jenkins said, 818 were arrests for driving under the influence.

Two Concerts Slated Friday

Two concerts by members of the faculty of the School of Music, East Carolina University are scheduled for Friday, Feb. 11 in Wright Auditorium. The first will begin at 8:15 p.m., with the second to follow immediately after the completion of the first.

Both concerts, supported by the ECU Student Government Association, are being presented in connection with the two-day annual East Carolina Band Clinic being held here Friday and Saturday.

Herbert Carter is conducting the ECU Wind Ensemble in the first concert. Seven selections are to be performed by the Wind Ensemble — Clifton Williams' Caccia and Chorale; Four Scottish Dances by Malcolm Arnold; R. Vaughan Williams' Folk Song Suite; Little English Girl by D. Delle Case; two Percy Grainger compositions, Ye Banks and Braes O' Bonnie Doon; and Australian Up-Country Tune; and P.D.Q. Bach's (Peter Schickele) Grand Serenade For An Awful Lot of Winds and Percussions.

The second concert will have George Broussard conducting the ECU Jazz Ensemble featuring trumpeter soloist Allan Dean. Selections for the Jazz Ensemble concert are Les Hooper's Chickenscratch; Nestico's arrangement of Duke Ellington tunes, Tribute to the Duke; Somewhere Along the Way arranged by John LaBarbera; and Dominic Spera's Make a Joyful Noise.

Both concerts are open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Estate-Planning Seminars Set

The Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service with the cooperation of the Pitt County Farm Bureau will sponsor two estate planning seminars Tuesday, February 15 at the Farm Bureau building.

A morning seminar will begin at 10 a.m. and end at noon. An evening seminar will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. Dr. R.C. Wells, Extension Economics and Business Specialist will conduct the seminars.

The seminars will discuss the 1976 Tax Reform Act and its changes in estate taxes in 35 years.

Husbands and wives are encouraged to attend the sessions together. Interested persons may pre-register by calling 758-1196.

Moose Save

Lodge Governor Jim Fleming announced Monday night the Moose Lodge board of officers had adopted a series of energy-saving measures for the duration of the energy crisis.

"In addition to setting back our thermostats," he said, "the board voted to alter hours for the clubroom and recreation rooms, reducing their use by 17 hours per week."

Weekly lodge meetings are planned to be held in the smaller Western Room rather than in the main auditorium, a step that is anticipated to considerably reduce the building's heating requirements.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR NORTH CAROLINA

Partly cloudy with near normal temperatures for state Friday through Sunday. Highs in the 50s, except the low 60s in the southeast. Lows generally in 30s, with 40s on south coast.

Poor Weather Adds To Usual Hazards Of Motorist

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

There is always the danger of being involved in an accident while operating a motor vehicle and poor weather conditions during the winter months simply add to the danger, according to North Carolina State Highway Patrol Capt. John T. Jenkins.

Jenkins, commander of Troop A, with headquarters in Greenville, suggested a vehicle's condition, as well as safe operation are factors in accident-free winter driving.

Brakes, he said, should be balanced, with equal pull on all wheels to avoid skids, and tires should have good tread to bite and grip the roadway. Snow tires, the officer said, help on loose snow, while chains are a must in heavy or hard-packed snow and ice. He also suggested carrying a shovel and bucket of sand in the trunk for use in ice and snow.

Jenkins said a vehicle's exhaust system should be checked for leaks. A leaking exhaust system can allow deadly carbon monoxide gas into the passenger compartment. He suggested leaving a window open slightly with the heater blower running to prevent build-up of the deadly gas.

Batteries and lights should be checked frequently, with care being taken to wipe light lenses free of dirt. A dirty headlight lens, he said, can cut visibility by 50 per cent or more.

The captain emphasized that one of the greatest hazards to winter driving is obstructed vision—driving with frost or snow on windshields, as well as side and rear windows.

"You shouldn't be a peep-hole driver," Jenkins warned. "Good visibility is important. Take time to brush snow off all windows, and wipe off fog or dew and get rid of ice and frost," before venturing out on streets and highways.

In addition to the normal good driving habits, Jenkins pointed out several other things that might help in preventing winter driving mishaps.

He suggested that drivers allow "plenty of extra time" for making trips, noting that speed limits are set for perfect, dry conditions. The officer noted that driving half the normal speed limit on icy streets "might be suicide".

Jenkins also suggested that drivers operate their cars in snow, fog or winter murk with low-beam headlights turned on in order to be more visible to other drivers and said four-way flashers should be used in any emergency situation or emergency stop.

The captain said too, that ice forms first on bridges and in shady areas along highways and lasts longer in these locations. "If you hit a patch of ice," he said, "take your foot off the accelerator and let the car roll through the area" rather than trying to brake, accelerate or down-shift.

He said when roads are slick, hitting the brakes hard can cause wheels to lock and force the car into a skid. "A light pumping action on the brake will give better braking power under such conditions," he said.

If the vehicle begins to slide, take your foot off the accelerator and steer in the direction the rear of the car is skidding, Jenkins said.

Jenkins said drivers should maintain at least two vehicle lengths for each 10 miles per hour on ice and snow and he emphasized that seat belts should be worn at all times.

"If you get stuck, turn your wheels back and forth a few times to push the snow out of the way, shift to 'drive' with automatic transmissions or second gear with straight drive, and touch the gas pedal lightly."

He said such action would give the tires an opportunity to grip the surface. He said if drivers "gun their motors" the wheels will spin and dig in deeper.

the current cold weather. Above Mrs. Debbie Reutter clears ice from the car windshield on a frosty morning. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest).

Discover Body In Sand Pit

An autopsy on the body of a 52-year-old man discovered Tuesday near a sand pit off Mumford Road has resulted in a ruling of death due to exposure by Dr. Jack Wilkerson, Pitt Medical Examiner.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the body of C. O. Godwin of 408 Pitt Street was found Tuesday afternoon some 20 feet from one of the sand holes located near the Meadowbrook Theatre.

Sheriff Tyson said that Godwin's clothes were wet when he was found and he had apparently fallen into the water and then crawled out on the sand where he died.

Godwin's car was found nearby, the sheriff said.

Ordain Ayden Man At District Meet

The Middle District Union of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association met at the Macedonia Baptist Church last week.

Arthur King was ordained at the Sunday afternoon service. King, a native of Ayden, is now stationed at Seymour Johnson A.F.B. in Goldsboro. He is a member of Mt. Olive Baptist Church in Ayden. King was presented by his pastor, Rev. F.R. Peterson. Rev. O'Kelly Lawson pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church in Greenville conducted the ordination service.

The Union Association opened with the Woman's Auxiliary session on Friday afternoon, and a business session was held Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon the session was concerned with youth of the church. Youth leaders R.B. Johnson and Sister O.H. Person conducted the session.

A panel discussion featuring youth from Mt. Olive Baptist Church, Ayden; Macedonia, Farmville; Mt. Shiloh, Winterville; and Cornerstone, Greenville was the featured part of the youth session. "Examine Yourself" was the theme of the session.

A fieldworkers session was held Saturday night under the direction of Sister Myrtle Wilson, president of the Woman's Department. The male chorus and the Walston Singers appeared as special guests. Mother Gorham of St. John Baptist Church in Falkland was presented the Fieldworkers' trophy.

Housemover Was Killed

Housemover Frederick James was killed yesterday afternoon while moving a house in Martin County.

His son, Freddie James Jr. said his father was walking the top of a two-story house to move electrical lines so the house could pass under, while he drove the truck that towed the house. He said his father was lifting wires with a board when he apparently lost his footing and grabbed a wire in an attempt to keep himself from falling from the housetop. He was electrocuted.

The house was not moving at the time, James Jr. said, as he had come to a complete stop for his father to perform the wire-moving task.

Martin County Medical Examiner Dr. Frank Sheldon could not be reached for comment.

James lived in Greenville.

Birth Control Maybe Only Answer To Bird Swarms

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Frustrated state officials who've tried to intimidate, freeze and poison millions of blackbirds this winter in Kentucky are now eyeing birth control as a solution. This winter, several million cowbirds, starlings, grackles and other species of blackbird died after a helicopter doused them as they slept with a chemical detergent that left them vulnerable to cold weather. Several thousand of birds in other counties ate poison bait and died. But killing a few thousand when there's an estimated 30 million roosting and cackling in the state doesn't put much of a dent in the bird population. Coburn Gayle, head of the state's Division of Pest and Noxious Weed Control, says the only answer may be birth control. The birds leave in early spring, so officials are planning now for next year. They've put bands on the legs of many birds, so they know the same ones — and their offspring — come back to the same roosts and each year the problem worsens.

There's a hitch in the birth control idea. The birth control pellets the state wants to spread in feed lots next year have been approved only for use on pigeons.

Gayle said it works on those ancient enemies of statues and hatless heads, but the federal Environmental Protection Agency must say it's okay to use the pellets on blackbirds. Gayle is trying to obtain approval.

The pellets, which look like chicken feed, contain hormones similar to those in human birth-control pills. When birds eat the pellets, the females become sterile for about six months, long enough to cause a reduction in the bird population.

The state will use the pellets this year on pigeons, which Gayle said are posing a threat to a number of bridges in Kentucky. Their droppings tend to corrode bridges and that forces the state to paint the structures more often.

The migrating blackbirds, which help farmers in the north during summer months by devouring insects that feed on crops, are blamed for large agricultural losses in Kentucky.

"If we could achieve six-month sterility over a period of time, we could reduce very humanely the numbers of blackbirds returning to Kentucky," Gayle said.

Not everyone agrees. "Frankly, I don't see anything in the near future where this is going to be much of a help," said Dr. Burt Monroe Jr., head of the biology department of the University of Louisville and a bird expert. "It would reduce the population of anything that ate it. But these birds are prolific. There is a potential you could control them that way, but you'd have to do it every year."

Monroe said he's against using the chemical detergent and he doesn't like the idea of the birth control pellets, either. It needs more study, he said.

Elderly Given Safety Course

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The social services department of Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center is offering sessions for the elderly designed to help them protect themselves on the street.

Held in senior citizen clubs, the course uses hospital social workers, emergency medical technicians and local police and fire department personnel as faculty.

Among the hints offered: "When you're walking on the street, do not hold your handbag by its straps. Keep it close to your body and hold it upside down. This makes it harder for a purse snatcher to grab and, if he does, the contents of the purse will probably empty and fall to the ground."

Eliminating Salt, Sugar

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Another baby food manufacturer says it is eliminating added salt and added sugar from some varieties of its products.

Richard B. Patton, president of the Heinz U.S.A. division of the H.J. Heinz Co., said the change is part of the company's ongoing product improvement program based on consumer and nutritional research. This action eliminates salt from all 108 baby food varieties and increases from 58 to 72 the baby foods without added sugar. Patton said sugar is continuing to be used in fruits such as peaches, prunes and apricots that would be too tart or acidic for a baby to eat without added sweetening.

Swedes Given A New Kind Of Kingdom

By ROLF SODERLIND
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — King Carl Gustaf of Sweden may lack royal charisma but he is a benefit to the export industries and the legendary monarchy lends pomp and circumstance to a bureaucratic welfare state.

The 30-year-old former party swinger has only the title — King of Swedes, Goths and Vandals — in common with his predecessors. The Social Democrats in their four decades of government have stripped the monarchy of all ancient royal powers.

A majority of the Swedes — 69 per cent in the latest poll — are royalists.

But the Communist Party, in its annual parliamentary motion to abolish the monarchy last month, shocked royalists by saying the Royal House gives drunken parties, promotes escapism and stupor and preserves conservatism.

The Swedish press rejected the insinuations.

"The Communists' attack is groundless. I like the King because he is like an ordinary man without any bombastical diva manners," said Ake Angerstedt, 59, owner of a Stockholm kiosk.

"There is no point in keeping a money-absorbing Royal House when the King has no power," said Mrs. Carina Lovén, a 26-year-old school teacher. "But I am enchanted by the pomp and I simply must watch television if there is a program with the King and the Queen."

Last June, Carl Gustaf made 33-year-old Silvia Sommerlath, a West German commoner, his Queen in a glittering Cinderella wedding. Swedes took Silvia to their hearts, encouraged by news media which covered the spectacular wedding intensively and which continues to mirror their everyday life.

The royal couple gave newspapers food for further copy Jan. 17 with a court announcement that Silvia was three months pregnant with her first child.

"People have a need for romance and love and I think the monarchy offers that," said Mrs. Ebba Samuelsson, editor of Svensk Damtidning, a leading pro-royalist magazine.

"I must admit it is escapism, but many people are afraid of too many changes in society. Monarchy is a guarantee that something is preserved."

In this year's national budget, a total of $1.5 million was allocated to Carl Gustaf's function as the ceremonial

Chief of State and the Royal House.

Swedish industry uses the royal gleam in marketing abroad and when the royal couple departs on an official trip to a foreign country, they are often accompanied by a tail of businessmen.

"We use the means that are available in selling Swedish products on the tough world market and the King is one of them," said Sven Eskner, head of public relations at the national Swedish Export Council. "The King has an attention value in our advertisement."

Swedish companies and the government spent $317,000 on product promotion in The Netherlands when the King and the Queen paid a one-week visit there last fall.

"Nowadays we do not look upon the King from the old patriarchal viewpoint," said

Dr. Karl Malmsten, a sociologist. "The King is an ordinary and representative young man. Sociologically, he is a new type of King."

Carl Gustaf ascended to the throne on Sept. 19, 1973, after the death of his grandfather, Gustaf VI Adolf. The new Monarch chose as his motto, "For Sweden, in keeping with the times," aware of demands on a modern King.

"It is an old monarchy in Sweden and the Swedish people are used to cooperating with the monarchy," Carl Gustaf said in a rare meeting with journalists almost a year ago. "Modern Swedes need and want to keep up the monarchy and I think it is a thing that will stay. The King is an easy symbol for the country to get close with."

A total of 62 monarchs — among them only a handful of Queens — have held the Swedish throne over the past 1,000 years. Erik Sagersall, a viking in the tenth century, was the first to be proclaimed King. In those days, a King risked being sacrificed to heathen Gods if the harvest went wrong.

Although the Social Democratic party has never tried to offer the Kingdom on the altar of socialism during its 44 years in power, a formal demand for establishment of a republic has been in their party program since 1897.

The latest Communist motion for the abolition of monarchy said the Royal House is, "A means to strengthen the most conservative and poorly gifted ideals of the capitalistic society."

The motion is doomed to share the fate of similar communist motions in the past as the Communist Party has only 17 members in the 349-seat legislative body.

"Monarchy stands for family and tradition," said Mrs. Samuelsson. "But such ideals are not wrong as the communists say."

Study Benefits Of Hibernation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because animals which hibernate live longer than other mammals of the same weight and size which do not, scientists are speculating on the benefits of hibernation for humans, says National Geographic.

In hibernation, all body processes are slowed, body temperature drops and breathing is reduced and irregular. Food and oxygen requirements are greatly reduced. Dormant humans could live through the centuries needed to make long space voyages, scientists theorize, although they see only a dim possibility of inducing true hibernation in man.

Scientists are not certain what triggers hibernation but they believe it is closely linked to the endocrine and nervous systems.

Youngsters Help Senior Citizen

DETROIT (AP) — "We want to show that young people do care about old people," says 14-year-old Jill Daniels.

So about a dozen Pierson School ninth-graders have been spending their afternoons fixing up and painting the home of Alma Ruehle, an 85-year-old widow. Mrs. Ruehle admits, "This is a blessing to me." The youngsters decided to fix up the aging, tiny frame house as a project for their sociology class. "They wanted to do something right in the neighborhood," explained their teacher, Mary Baldwin.

Parents and neighbors donated materials.

Arms Producers Market Strong

NEW YORK (UPI) — Iran and Saudi Arabia will spend an estimated $12.5 billion on military readiness in 1976-1980, creating a strong market for U.S. and other arms producers, reports a Frost and Sullivan study.

Iran's military procurement is projected at $10 billion for the four-year period, with the United States its major supplier. Saudi Arabia's spending for U.S. military weapons and equipment is projected at $2.5 to $3 billion between 1976-80.

Dissident's Story Of 'Hospital' Care

By ALINE MOSBY
 PARIS (UPI) — Each day the doctor at the Civilian Mental Hospital No. 3 in Leningrad would ask his "patient", political dissident Victor Fainberg, "how do you feel today?"
 "And I would reply, 'How do YOU (caps) feel today,'" Fainberg smiled.
 He quoted from a book by another exiled Soviet dissident, writer Dmitri Panin, on the dissidents' philosophy: "When a man shows his fear of them, the chekists (secret police) are brazen, ruthless and downright bloodthirsty. The main thing is always to stand up to them. Under a steady attack from men of good will, evil always retreats."

Fainberg is one of many Soviet political prisoners sentenced to psychiatric hospitals. Since his release and emigration to the West in 1974, he organized the Campaign Against Psychiatric Abuse (CAPA) and devotes his life in London to organizing protests against internment of political and religious dissenters in Soviet mental hospitals.

In Paris to appeal to French Communists and Socialists to work for the release of civil rights activist Vladimir Borisov from a Leningrad mental hospital, Fainberg, 44, paused after a meeting to speak of his four-year confinement in a hospital. He was arrested with a group that demonstrated on Red Square against the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"They put dissidents in mental hospitals to avoid trials," explained Fainberg, a relaxed, friendly man in blue jeans and a red turtle-necked sweater. "They hope the prisoner's personality will be changed by drugs and he then will be loyal."

"Interrogation of arrested dissidents is done at Forensic Mental Hospital in Moscow by Professor Serbsky and Professor Luntz, head of the Fourth Department for Political Prisoners. They are quite prepared to do what the KGB (secret police) tell them."

"Then, in a month, the prisoner is subjected to tests and told he is guilty of article 100, distribution of anti-Soviet propaganda, but released from accusation because he is mentally ill and irresponsible for his actions and should be in a mental hospital until he no longer is a social danger. Either a civilian mental hospital or a special mental hospital where Borisov, Leonid Plyutch and I were."

"He goes in a prison car to the mental hospital. He is put in a cell with abnormal offenders, mostly murderers. Dissidents are treated the same as abnormal offenders. One hour exercise in the prison yard, food a little better than prison food but also very bad."

"There are wardens in uniform, guards, prisoners locked in solitary cells. The doctors do not wear white coats, but prison uniforms. They are attached to the ministry of the interior (police) not the ministry of health."

"The doctors are all sadists. I was tortured twice by injections of the drug chlorpromazin. It confuses your mind, I could not think clearly. They gave it to me forcibly when I was on a hunger strike and I was very weak. I felt a huge weakness and my heart felt as if somebody was pressing it."

"Often they interrogate you," Fainberg continued, running his hand through his thick, graying hair. "They want you to give evidence against other dissidents. To do so is stupid. It is better to be the director of the scene, to humiliate them, to make them seem amusing."

"They keep saying you will be released when your mind is 'sterilized'."

"The psychiatrists diagnosed my case as schizophrenia with paranoid syndromes expressed in political dissent," and he laughed until his bushy hair shook.

"Every six months the commission came to examine me and ask if I had changed my views. They said if I rejected my views — in three years I would be released," and he laughed again.

"They asked what I would do if they released me. Would I demonstrate, distribute leaflets or something? I would say, when I am released I will advise you what I will do, and they would be angry."

"When some of us in the Leningrad hospital went on a hunger strike, we smuggled out the news of this, and when we figured it was on the BBC and Voice of America, we hammered on our cell doors and gave the doctors a copy of our press release. The KGB summoned the doctors and said why should they learn of the hunger strike from VOA?" He laughed again.

"The doctors would say if Borisov and Fainberg would be released, they would go to church and light a candle and thank God."

Why did the dissidents come out of the hospitals sane and smiling?
 "Because we loved each other," he said. "And because we felt the presence of our friends around the world."

After he threatened twice to commit suicide by tying a towel around his neck, one of the 100 psychiatrists at the 2,500-patient mental hospital, Natalya, persuaded doctors to stop the injections. He said, "She saved my life."

He pulled out a photograph of Natalya and himself.

"I came to the West in June 1974, and she in April 1975. I married her. Her 10-year-old son from another marriage, Misha, was forcibly taken from her. We are trying to get him out."

MARKET TAVERN

This superbly detailed colonial grouping is one of the greatest furniture values we've ever seen. All pieces are of solid hardwoods and veneers, topped with Westinghouse Micarta, a wonderful plastic that resists scratches, mars, even alcohol and cosmetics. The lightly distressed finish is a lustrous maple tone that actually glows with warmth. We've shown but a few of the pieces, please come soon and see them all.

MARKET TAVERN is a totally new concept in Early American furniture... designed and scaled for the young modern.

This vast group has an infinite number of pieces from which to choose. There are 29 separate but correlated items, guaranteed to please the most discriminating. MARKET TAVERN is authentically Early American with a rich distressed maple finish, soft brown in color on selected hardwood solids and veneers.

There are a variety of beds—regular double, twin, poster, panel, canopy, bunk, bunk-trundle, and trundle, plus king size and queen size headboards, all designed with beauty and comfort in mind. Traditional Early American craftsmanship can be found in the large selection of dressers. These are accompanied by mirrors of several sizes in two styles—picture frame-shadow box and vertical.

Note the beautiful symmetrical design of the legs, each of which is a separate unit securely attached to a massive base frame. For versatility in design theme, individual legs are not used in the "space saver" pieces and the bases extend to the floor. Creative design and workmanship are also apparent in the exciting highlight pieces such as the hutches, cabinets, and desks. All cases have waterproof, scratch, alcohol, burn and cosmetic resistant Westinghouse Micarta high pressure plastic laminate tops in matching maple finish. The top drawer fronts are extra thick to enhance the beauty of the design.

The superbly crafted die-cast hardware is especially designed to blend with the fine detailing of MARKET TAVERN.

There is no finer example of Early American craftsmanship than MARKET TAVERN—by Sumter Cabinet Company—a name synonymous with superb quality, original design, and high styling.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices headed lower today, continuing their extended early-1977 decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off a fraction in the early going, and losers took a small lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors were showing little motivation to buy with economic statistics from the government in the next few weeks expected to reflect the negative effects of this winter's bad weather.

A winter crop forecast was due today; January retail sales data on Thursday, and the wholesale price index on Friday.

Today's early prices included National Semiconductor, down 1/4 at 19 1/2; Pittston, up 1/4 at 34; Mobil, down 1/2 at 66 1/2; and Eastman Kodak, up 1/2 at 72 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.07 to 942.24, its lowest close since finished at 938.08 last Nov. 17. Losers outnumbered gainers by a small margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 24.04 million shares, up from Monday's early-1977 low of 20.70 million.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .15 to 55.33.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .02 at 113.24.

Three Men Charged In Tractor-Trailer Theft

FARMVILLE — Three men have been arrested and charged with two counts of larceny each in connection with the theft last Thursday of a tractor-trailer loaded with fertilizer.

Lt. W. G. Barber of the Farmville Police Department has reported that Richard Walker, 23, of Saratoga; David Earl May, 22, of Woodland Hills Trailer Park in the Farmville area; and Johnny Taylor, adult, age unknown, of Fountain were arrested Tuesday and placed under $2,000 bond each.

Barber said that a fourth arrest is expected in connection with this case today.

The tractor-trailer with its load of fertilizer valued at a total of $20,400 was reportedly taken from the Morgan Grain and Fertilizer Company in Farmville at about 11:30 Thursday night.

Barber, Earnest Williams of the Farmville Police Department and Billy Braswell of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department have been involved in the investigation of the larceny.

Barber said that the tractor-trailer was recovered at 1 p.m. Saturday about five miles out of Falkland off Highway N.C. 43. The value of the tractor is placed at $14,800 and that of the trailer at $2,500.

The load of fertilizer, which Barber said had a value of $2,940, was recovered Tuesday on the W. A. Walston farm near Macclesfield in Edgecombe County.

Pirates Host William & Mary

East Carolina's hopes for a home court berth in the first round of the Southern Conference tournament are still alive. Whether they still will be Saturday night is a question that will shortly be answered.

Thursday night, the Pirates entertain William & Mary, then on Saturday, they travel to Boone to meet Appalachian State. East Carolina badly needs to beat both of these teams to have a good chance to earn a home court slot for the tournament.

William & Mary's Indians come into the game with a 13-12 record overall and a 4-4 league record. Should the Pirates beat them — then win the rest of their conference games, the Bucs could do no worse than a fourth place finish, and would more likely finish in third place.

A defeat at the hands of the Indians, however, would still leave a chance, but again, it would mean the Pirates would have to win the other three conference starts.

East Carolina comes into the game with an 8-12 overall record and a 3-5 Southern Conference mark. Both teams will be coming off defeats. The Pirates lost to Old Dominion on Monday, while the Indians were bowing to West Virginia.

"We need these two. This is our whole season," Coach Dave Patton said.

Patton added that he was proud of the way the Pirates played against Old Dominion, a team that has lost twice.

"What happened to us in that game is the history of our whole season. We have a five minute or so gap that puts us out of the game. We play them even or ever catch up some the rest of the way, but we've too often been too far back to catch up."

Patton noted that the Pirates did not get into a one-and-one situation against Old Dominion.

"They pressed us the whole night and got only ten fouls on their court. We should have been at the line more. We beat them by six points from the floor but lost it at the line. That's history now, but we should have gotten to the line more than we did."

The coach said the up-and-down play of the Pirates is a characteristic of the youth of the team. "But I do feel that we will have no problem in getting our people ready to play William & Mary Thursday night. They beat us bad, worse than anyone else in the conference has done (79-54). They humiliated us, they embarrassed us, and I don't think the type of kids we have will accept this. They will want to do something about it."

Saturday, however, the Pirates will have a different situation. They'll be played a team they embarrassed, on their home court. "Our people are just going to have to prepare themselves to play a 'must' game against Appalachian," Patton said.

The coach added that if the Pirates win both of the games, he feels the team will then have an "excellent" shot at one of the home court berths.

William & Mary will be led in the game by John Lowenhaupt, who is averaging 16.9 points a game. Big center Matt Courage is right behind with a 14.9 mark.

East Carolina is led by Larry Hunt with a 12.8 average. Hunt is also the league rebounding leader with 12.0 per game.

Overall, however, William & Mary leads the league in rebounding, capturing 54.2 per cent of the loose balls.

It comes down to being perhaps the key game of the remaining ones for the Pirates. A win would send the Bucs to Boone on an up-beat. A loss, while not-killing, would seriously jeopardize their home-court hopes.

Slaughter Tells Of Pro Career

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Enos (Country) Slaughter, who by his own accord should be a member of Baseball's Hall of Fame, was the guest of the Greenville Sports Club yesterday, and talked of his long career in the major leagues.

Slaughter, who has been up for the Hall honor for the past several years, but who has fallen short each time, has said on many occasions that he deserves the honor, and his career speaks for itself.

The former St. Louis Cardinal and New York Yankee star told the Sports Club that he felt the policies of high salaries and playing out options would eventually ruin baseball.

"I was fortunate in my career," he said, telling of signing right out of high school in 1934. The following year, however, he was nearly cut because of his speed. But he learned to run up on his toes instead of flat-footed, and cut four steps off his time to first. "At 40, I was still in the Top 20 in the league in going to first base," he said.

Slaughter was famous for having run to his position and back in each inning. That came about, he said, from running in one time to the foul line, then walking the rest of the way. "The manager told me that if I was tired, he'd find someone to replace me. I ran from then on from the first step out of the dugout until I got back."

Slaughter called the 1942 World Champion Cardinals the best team he ever played on, but it was on the 1946 Cards that he made his famous run from first to home on a single. "I had been given the steal sign on the play, so I had a good jump on the ball. When I got to second, it was still in the air and I could tell it would fall in. I knew then that I could score. I don't know to this day what the third-base coach was telling me: to go or to stop."

Discussing salaries, Slaughter said he was told he was "too old" to merit such salaries, but he went onto to play ten more years after being told that. "I got $75 a month my first year in baseball and $400 a month my first year with the Cardinals. My top salary was $25,000. Now a guy who hits .250 gets a $25,000 raise."

Slaughter, whose career ended in 1959 after he was struck in the foot by a pitch, said that it would be difficult to single out the best player he played against, but settled on Ted Williams. But he also called teammate Stan Musial the best all-around player.

Next week's speaker is former Duke basketball player, now assistant athletic director at Duke, Jeff Mullens.

Panther Game Is Postponed

BETHEL — A power failure at halftime of the girls' game forced the postponement of last night's scheduled basketball game between North Lenoir and North Pitt.

The Panthers, already assured of a tie for the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season title, were out to clinch the crown with a victory.

The game has been rescheduled for Thursday, with the second half of the girls' game set to start at 7:30.

WINDSOR — A balanced scoring attack, good shooting and control of the boards for most of the way sparked Bertie Senior High School's Falcons to an 83-58 win over Rose High's Rampants last night.

Bertie placed five men in double figures as they stayed right in the race for the Division I title with a 6-2 league record, second only to Rocky Mount's leaders. Rose meanwhile, had only three in double figures as their inside men had trouble against the superior height of the Falcons.

The Rampants led throughout the early going of the game, leadin until nearly five minutes of play had elapsed. But Bertie gained the lead at 10-9 and never trailed again, finally shaking off the Rampants late in the second quarter to go out by as much as 16 before the half ended.

The Rampants went through a cold shooting night, hitting just 24 of 61 shots from the floor, a poor 39.3 percentage. Bertie, however, was red hot, connecting on 36 of 70 for a fine 51.4 per cent.

Bertie held only a 43-41 rebounding edge, but Rose made a comeback on the boards in the final period to erase a stronger deficit. The Rampants also suffered 19 losses of possession, as compared to just 12 for the Falcons.

And even though the Rampants were down and out, late in the game, Bertie kept its regulars in until the final minute of play, and kept full-court pressure on the Rampants.

Rose led first on a free throw by William Barnes, but fell behind on two free throws by James Hardy. Baskets by Anthony Bryant and James Hawkins pushed the Rampants out by three, 5-3 with 6:36 left in the period.

The Rampants held onto that margin until a slam dunk and a follow-up basket, both by James Robbins pushed Bertie into a 10-9 lead with 3:28 left in the period. After that, it was all Bertie.

The Falcons upped their lead to three when Edward Outlaw stole the ball for a 12-9 edge. Finally, just before the period ended, Hardy tapped in a shot for an 18-13 lead.

Early in the second period, Bertie pushed its lead to seven, 22-15, and then to eight, 24-16. Rose was unable to cut it back, and a series of seven points late in the period ran the lead out to 13. Arthur Gaskins started the streak with a jumper, and Robbins added a free throw. Gaskins then hit two more shots for a 35-22 edge. Two final baskets in the frame ran Bertie's lead to 43-27 at intermission.

Rose was unable to get back into the game the rest of the way. Bertie extended its lead to 24 points at 59-35 late in the period, and held a 59-37 margin at the horn.

The margin finally reached 30 points in the closing stages of the game, at 81-51 with 58 seconds to go, after which Bertie cleared its bench.

David Bell led Bertie with 22, while Ricky Bunch had 17, Willie Capehart had 14, and Cal Ballance had 10.

Rose was led by Durwin Clemons with 18.

The Rampants return home on Friday, hosting Northern Nash.

IF WE JUST WAIT HERE LONG ENOUGH, IT'LL COME DOWN — Rose and Bertie High School players seem to pause under the basket to watch the ball bouncing on the rim. From left to right are Edward Outlaw (20) of Bertie, Anthony Bryant (45) of Rose, James Robbins of Bertie, and Derek Brewington (43) of Rose. Bertie rolled to an 83-58 win in the contest. Chargers Battle Back To Top Vikings

Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — An Ayden-Grifton cold spell in the third quarter allowed D. H. Conley to build up an 11-point lead, but the Chargers battled back in the final period to take a 62-59 victory.

Ayden-Grifton's Terry Maye stepped to the line with five seconds left and coolly sank both ends of a one-and-one to stretch a one-point edge to three and ice the game for the Chargers.

Viking had Johnny Streeter made good on a three-point play with 5:54 left in the contest to give Conley a 10-point lead, 49-39, before Ayden-Grifton started its drive.

The Chargers quickly narrowed the margin and finally tied it up when Ogden Braxton hit two free throws with 3:03 left to make it 55-49.

The score was tied again at 57 and 59 before James Leggett hit a free throw with eight seconds left for Ayden-Grifton and Maye followed with his two charity shots to win it for the Chargers.

Braxton led all scorers with 17 points. Maye, who picked off more than a few key rebounds, scored 14 while Frankie Dall had 12 and Willie Forbes 10 for Ayden-Grifton.

Daryl Thompson and Al Tyson each scored 12 to pace Conley while Mike Cox added 11 for the Vikings.

Ayden-Grifton hit 25 of 57 shots from the field for 43.9 per cent. Conley was 23 of 64 for 35.9 per cent. The Chargers held a 42-39 rebounding edge, but committed 26 turnovers to 22 for Conley.

The teams played to a 14-14 tie during the first period. The quarter was sloppily-played with pressure defenses by both teams accounting for 14 turnovers.

The Chargers took a 4-0 lead early in the contest on two short shots by Maye and held it for most of the quarter.

Ayden-Grifton led by four, 10-6, when Conley scored eight straight points to take a 14-10 edge. Tyson, who ruled the boards in the early going, picked up four of the eight on a tap-in and layup.

The Chargers scored the last four points of the quarter to tie it up going into the second period.

Braxton hit on a turnaround from the lane and a layup in the first 40 seconds of the second quarter to put Ayden-Grifton up 18-14 before Thompson hit from the lane to pull Conley to within two at the 6:48 mark.

Neither team scored again until 3:37 left in the half when Thompson hit again for Conley. Ricky Rountree then hit two straight shots to put the Vikings up 22-18 with 2:04 left.

After Dall connected on a follow shot to pull the Chargers to within two, Tyson hit an alley-oop and Randolph King made a layup to stretch the margin back out.

Dall's jumper with four seconds left in the half made it 28-22 at intermission.

Ayden-Grifton tied it up again with 6:11 left in the third period when Maye's layup made it 28-28. But then the Chargers fell onto hard times and could manage but one point — a Maye foul shot — over the next 4:51.

Over that span, the Vikings scored 10 points with Tyson getting a tap, Cox hitting from underneath, Ken Dawson hitting a turnaround and shot from the lane and Thompson making a short shot.

Cox scored the first five points of the final period to put Conley up by 11, 46-35, with 7:18 remaining. The Vikings led by 10 on Streeter's three-point play with 5:54 left before they, too, hit a cold spell.

That allowed Ayden-Grifton to cut the margin to two, 49-47 with 4:51 left on Braxton's layup. The Chargers had a chance to go ahead at that point as Conley was slapped with a technical foul, but Braxton missed the free throw and then they turned the ball over.

Ayden-Grifton finally did tie it when Braxton connected on two from the line to make it 55-55 with 3:03 left. The Chargers went ahead a few seconds later when Willie Forbes hit a layup.

Thompson came back with a driving layup for Conley to tie things again at 57 with 2:34 remaining before Braxton scored two to put Ayden-Grifton back in front.

Both teams missed opportunities at the line, but Thompson hit a 20-footer to knot the score at 59 with 17 seconds left.

The Chargers held the ball until Leggett was fouled in the act of shooting with eight seconds remaining. He made the first free throw and missed the second, but Maye came down with the rebound for Ayden-Grifton.

He drove to the corner and was fouled. He sank both ends of the one-and-one to put the Chargers ahead 62-59 with five seconds left.

Conley was called for a five-second violation on the inbounds play, turning the ball back over to Ayden-Grifton and it was all over.

Ayden-Grifton also took a victory in the girls' game, but had to hold off a furious Conley rally in the last two minutes to do so.

The Chargerettes built a 16-15 halftime lead to 35-26 at the end of the third period and were up by 21, 53-32, with 2:22 left.

But the Valkyries came back, scoring 17 points in 1:40 to cut the margin to 53-47 with 17 seconds remaining. They couldn't score again, however, and Connie Smith hit a layup with five seconds left to make the final 55-47.

Chargerette Karen Haseley, who scored 17 of her game-high 25 points in the second half, led all scorers. Vertha Dixon added 14 for Ayden-Grifton.

Alice Costin led the Conley scoring with 14 and Annie Hardy had 13.

Both teams will play again this week — their last games before the conference tournament. Ayden-Grifton will travel to Greene Central on Thursday and C. B. Aycock Friday. Conley will host Greene Central Friday night.

Tigers Split With Edenton

EDENTON — Edenton pulled off a 42-40 upset of the Williamston girls last night, while the Tiger boys managed to hold on for a 62-59 win in their game.

The loss was the second in Northeastern Conference play for the Tigerettes, who finished their season with the game. They will return to action next week in the conference tournament.

Edenton broke on top with a 16-10 first period advantage, and Williamston never caught up. Edenton upped its lead to 26-18 in the second period, and took a 32-26 lead into the final quarter. In that, Williamston rallied, but never could quite catch the Lady Aces.

Lou Ann Bunch led Edenton with 17 points, while Cheryl Redman added 15. Paula Bennett led Williamston with 14, with JoAnna Lilly adding 10.

Williamston's boys inched out into a 9-8 lead in the first period of their game. Edenton came back to outwit the Tigers, 22-14, in the second frame, taking a 30-23 halftime lead.

Williamston put on a third period rally, 15-6, charging back into a slim 38-36 lead as the final quarter opened. The Tigers held them off, 24-23, in the final quarter to gain the win.

Barry Wallace and Ronald Brown led Williamston with 19 each. Overton had 19 for Edenton, while J. White added 18.

Boys Home Coaches Chosen

Farmville Central head football coach Gene Brewer, who led his team to the Eastern 3-A finals this year, has been selected as an assistant coach for the South squad in the fifteenth annual Jaycee Boys Home Game to be held here in July.

Brewer, who played in the first Boys Home game in 1963, has compiled a 60-22-2 coaching record over eight years at Farmville and was Coach of the Year this past season. He will work with head coach Don Saine of Gastonia's Hunter Huss.

Saine has been head coach at Huss for 11 years and has the longest winning streak in 4-A schools — 14 games. He has been Coach of the Year four times and served as head coach in the 1972 East-West game.

Also on the South coaching staff is Siler City-Jordan Matthews coach Sonny Wilburn. Wilburn has an overall record of 65-31-6 during 11 years. He has one conference championship and has been Coach of the Year two times.

Pete Stout, coach of Walter Williams High School in Burlington this year, has been chosen head coach of the North team. In 18 years of head coaching, his has built a 135-44-14 record with six conference championships. He was an assistant coach in the 1965 Boys Home game and head coach in the 1968 East-West game.

Doug Henderson will serve as an assistant on the North team. He is a resident of Greensboro and head football coach at Western Guilford High School with a lifetime record of 120-59-3. The other assistant for the North will be Bill Hodgkin, head coach at J. H. Webb in Oxford. He has won one conference championship and four second-place finishes in 13 years.

The Boys Home game is sponsored by the North Carolina Jaycees with proceeds going to Boys Homes of North Carolina, Inc. It is scheduled for July 23 in Picklen Stadium at East Carolina University.

Coaches Clinic Slated For Sunday

The annual Greenville Coaching Clinic will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Ramada Inn.

The program gets underway Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. with a welcome by East Carolina head football coach Pat Dye.

Principal speaker for the clinic will be North Carolina head grid coach Bill Dooley. Various high school coaches will talk on other aspects of the game during the remainder of the session on Saturday and Sunday.

Information on the clinic can be obtained from Dave Bumgarner, football coach at Rose High School.

Home Court No Help To Deacons

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — "The fact that we were playing at home didn't seem to be an advantage," said Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy after his fourth-ranked Deacons were upset 70-66 by No. 15 Clemson in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

"We didn't really deserve any better fate," Tacy said. "We didn't put the ball in as we normally do on the fast break and 22 turnovers is just not our ball club. We just didn't play with intensity."

Clemson, now 6-2 in the ACC and 18-3 over-all, didn't fare much better in the turnover department with 21 Tuesday night.

Wake Forest, 7-2 in the league and 18-3 over-all, managed to cling to first place in the league as the second-place Tigers inched closer with less than a month to go before the season ends.

"Now, our task is to prepare for the final days of the season," said Tacy. "We can't take long to think about this game."

It started out like a good night for Wake Forest with the Deacons quickly taking a 10-2 lead in the first four minutes. Then, Clemson went on a 12-1 scoring spree to take a 14-11 lead during the next six minutes.

The game was tied twice, 20-all with 7:30 left in the first half and 64-all with 3:41 in the second half. The Tigers held a 35-32 advantage at the half.

Clemson went ahead to stay with 2:05 remaining in the game on a 12-foot jump shot by Stan Rome, who led the Tigers with 15 points. And, during the final 35 seconds, the Tigers made four out of seven free throws to provide the winning margin.

Jerry Schellenberg led the Deacons with 15 points.

Firebirds Top Greene Central

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash took a pair of games from hapless Greene Central last night, getting a 36-31 win in the girls' game and 55-48 victory in the boys' contest.

Greene Central outscored the Lady Firebirds 12-3 in the first quarter but Southern Nash battled back to trail by only three, 20-17 at halftime.

The Lady Firebirds took the lead in the third period and held on to grab the win. They were led by Shirley Hall's 16 and Zulene Minga's 10. None of the Ewes scored in double figures.

The score in the boys' game was knotted at 25 at halftime and the Rams trailed by only one, 37-36 at the end of the third quarter.

They were outscored 18-12 in the final period, however, as the Firebirds got the win.

Southern Nash was led by Wilber Pridgen and Ronnie Taybron with 12 apiece and Walter Williams with 11. Ernest Thompson paced the Rams with 18 points.

The loss drops Greene Central's record to 1-11 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. They will face Ayden-Grifton at home on Thursday.

Farmville Boys, Girls Get Wins Over Aycock

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central's girls basketball team wrapped up the regular season Eastern Carolina Conference title last night with a 21-16 victory over arch-rival Charles B. Aycock.

Farmville's boys made it a clean sweep with a 77-62 victory over the hapless Falcons.

The win for the Farmville Central girls boosted their record to 11-1 against conference competition. The lone loss came on Farmville's home court to the Falconettes, so it was only just that their title victory should come on the Aycock court.

Aycock, attempting to freeze the ball all the way, fell behind, 3-2, after one period. Neither team scored in the second quarter.

In the third period, both scored five, leaving the Lady Jags in an 8-7 lead as the final quarter opened. Farmville was finally able to pull away, 13-9, during the final stanza to claim the win and the title.

Julia Moye led the Farmville scoring with nine points, while Ilene Phillips added eight.

In the boys' game, Farmville edged out into an 18-12 lead in the first period. They were able to add only a point to that in the second frame, and took a 36-29 lead into halftime.

But the Jaguars were able to extend that lead in the third period, 21-14, as the score climbed to 57-43. Farmville finished off the Falcons, 20-19, in the last quarter.

Kenno Farrow led Farmville with 25 points, while James Baker had 14, Jeff Fields had 12 and Timmy Ward had 10. James Whitley led Aycock with 28, while Harold Best added 11. The Jaguars travel to Southern Nash tonight.

Mid-East Commission's Committees Restructured

During a special called session Thursday night, the Mid-East Commission Board met to review and reorganize committee structures within the Commission. Reorganization followed a series of county sessions held to discuss existing program committee organization. Criminal Justice Director Ted Shaw, explained the proposed membership of the new Governor's Crime Commission which will become effective February 28.

Shaw told the board that five categories would be represented, including the following: county commissioners, municipal officials—sheriffs, police chiefs, and citizens, a majority of whom are involved in some aspect of criminal justice work.

The Criminal Justice Director asked that the board nominate individuals from the Mid-East Region to be recommended for appointment to the commission. elsewhere. Snow is forecast for the Dakotas and Minnesota, rain for western Oregon and Washington, and showers for south and central Texas. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The warmup continued over North Carolina today as temperatures climbed to more seasonable levels. And the National Weather Service says it will be even warmer Thursday.

feeling the effects of the moderating trend first. Some localities in the mountains were expected to be as warm or warmer than along the coast.

Temperatures will climb to the 50s Thursday and the dry, warming weather will continue through the weekend.

High readings around the state Tuesday began to show the moderation, climbing generally to the low 40s. However, this morning's lows still were cold.

Asheville and Raleigh-Durham recorded lows of 11 degrees. Elizabeth City was 14, Greensboro 15, Hickory 16, Charlotte 20 and Wilmington 23.

The forecast for tonight calls for low readings mostly in the 20s.

Mixed Results For The ERA In Three States

By The Associated Press
For the Equal Rights Amendment the results were mixed: A setback of questionable effect in Idaho, a disputed victory in Nevada, and an initial victory in North Carolina helped by First Lady Rosalynn Carter.

In each state the voting in the legislature Tuesday came after protracted debate. But even after the rhetoric and the votes, the nationwide tally had not changed.

Thirty-five states have ratified the amendment so far and three more must approve it prior to March 29, 1979, for it to become part of the U.S. Constitution. This is what happened Tuesday:

The Idaho legislature completed action rescinding its approval of the ERA. But whether the state can do so legally is open to question.

The Nevada Senate approved the ERA, but the way the voting was conducted was immediately challenged on the floor. In any event, the state House of Representatives must still approve.

The North Carolina House of Representatives gave the ERA a first vote of approval, but it still must cast a final vote and then the Senate must also agree. Mrs. Carter lobbied for the bill by phone.

Idaho, among the first states to ratify the amendment shortly after Congress approved it in 1972, became the third state to rescind ratification so far. The others are Nebraska and Tennessee.

The effect of such a turnaround is problematic. Congress has never accepted such action by a state legislature withdrawing previous ratification of an amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Not Underground

Greenville Public Works Department Director Mayo Allen said that the Sanitation Department will not pick up household refuse stored in underground containers.

Allen said the ruling was made several years ago, because it was found that the containers presented problems for both the owners and the garbage collectors involved. He said none of these containers have been seen here for a number of years, but just recently they have begun to be sold in this area again. He said he has not been able to learn the identity of the firm or individuals making these sales. He would like to talk to those selling these containers, he said.

He asked that anyone having bought or considering buying such a container contact Levy Brock, director of the Sanitation Department for further discussion of the city ruling. The phone number is 752-4137, Ext. 244.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You eager to get your affairs arranged on a more solid structure, but it seems that there are all sorts of delaying conditions that prevent you from feeling that you are achieving this important objective. Be more objective with others, too, and more aware of your long-range plans and then you won't be disappointed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 10) Make sure you know what the influential expect of you and try to please to the best of your ability. Use care in the handling of some credit affair and avoid later trouble. Be wiser to the ways of others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't jump into new interests without further study or you can make glaring errors. Get busy at important tasks ahead early. Avoid one who is acting overly independent and could give you trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Deal more intelligently with those who owe you money and vice versa in business especially. Your closest tie is too demanding, but use tact. Avoid one who has ulterior motives. Be careful in driving.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get partnership affairs on a better basis where associates are concerned and be more successful in the future. Situations arise that are not to your liking, but use tact and all will be fine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Tackle all those duties ahead of you and don't run off on any tangents. Keep promises you have made. Take the treatments that will give you more strength and vitality. Be careful in political matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to get into amusements far afield from the norm, but you would regret it later, so be circumspect. Be kinder with your mate and have more harmony, happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't be too critical about the conditions at home or it gets worse. Do what you can to better conditions there quietly. Try to be more cheerful and lift the spirits of others. Handle money matters wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't upset good friends or they could resent it and you would lose them. Be careful in driving, walking and avoid accidents that could easily occur today. Steer clear of gossips.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't commit yourself to further expense where some new project is concerned if you are not sure of it. Add more to bank account instead. Cut down on expenses wherever you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to antagonize others because you are not at all in a good mood today. Take better care of your health and you soon feel more cheerful. Be careful of those who have an eye on assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to get busy on new activities but have other things to handle before you can do so successfully. Take care you do nothing that could later bring you trouble with your mate. Be loyal.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Friends may be disappointing to you but only because they are under pressure of some sort. But later they can be helpful. Don't be forceful to gain some desire which you think means much to you but you later realize is hardly worthwhile.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to solve difficult problems, but the education will have to be slanted along lines of trouble-shooting for best results. Teach early not to get involved in problems with others, but to stay on the impersonal level and the financial, the mercantile. Give good spiritual training early.

Nixon TV Interviews Are Selling Well

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seventy-five TV stations and four national sponsors have signed up so far for the four 90-minute interview programs talk show host David Frost will soon tape with former President Richard M. Nixon.

That's the word from Leon Koch, executive vice president of Syndicast Services, a New York syndication firm Frost's production company hired to market the Nixon television interviews in the United States and overseas.

And by the time the first Nixon-Frost show airs on May 4, Koch said, he expects to have placed the four programs on more than 100 stations, reaching 90 per cent of the viewing audience in the United States.

The shows will be edited from 12 two-hour interviews Frost will start with Nixon late next month at Nixon's home in San Clemente, Calif. They're being offered stations on what is called a "barter basis." The three commercial networks earlier rejected proposals to buy rights to interview Nixon, citing policies against buying "hard news" stories.

In August 1974, a year after Nixon resigned from office in the wake of the Watergate scandal, Frost said he'd bought the rights to interview him for TV. He refuses to disclose the price paid Nixon, and Koch said he doesn't know how much the fee will be. But big bucks clearly are involved for all.

Each Nixon show has 12 minutes set aside for commercials, Koch says. He said stations in Syndicast's barter deal won't have to pay for the programs and can sell six minutes of each show's commercial time.

In return, he added, his firm can sell the remaining six commercial minutes of each show to advertisers. He said that time is being sold national sponsors for $125,000 a minute.

That could work out to a whopping $3 million in national advertising revenue for the four-show package.

But so far, Koch said, only two sponsored minutes of each show have been bought — in 30-second units — by four national sponsors. He said they've asked him not to disclose their names right now.

He said other sponsors have placed tentative orders totalling two more minutes of each show, and that he expects to have the series fully sponsored by the time the first Nixon-Frost interview airs in May.

He was asked if the fact the series' commercial time isn't sold out now was due to a reluctance by national advertisers to sponsor a show involving Nixon, a man who left office in disgrace.

"I don't think so," Koch said by phone from New York. "I think, sure, certain companies didn't want any part of that, although nobody has said that to us."

He theorized it may be because Syndicast originally tried to get just one or two advertisers to fully sponsor the series, then tried to get them to sponsor half the entire series and failed each time. "To that we found sales resistance," he said. "Now we don't know whether it was because of Mr. Nixon or Mr. Frost, or because of the fact we were asking a goodly amount, millions of dollars, but it was hard for us to sell."

Plan Sock Hop Saturday Night

At 8 p.m. on Saturday night, Feb. 12, the doors at Elm Street Gym will open for the festive third annual benefit Sock Hop to raise funds for the Special Olympics program of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Division.

Again hosted by Danny Jacobson's radio station WOOW and his staff, the event will feature music and dances of the fifties.

Bill Tucker and Howard Marshall, disc-jockeys at WOOW are this year's Sock Hop coordinators. They will select and play music from the 1950s such as Neil Sedaka, Frankie Avalon, Elvis Presley, Chubby Checkers and Connie Francis.

Dancers will be encouraged to request their favorite song or performer — which will be played if in the radio station's library.

The Special Olympics program, directed by Miss Alice Keene, has grown steadily year by year. "There's now more than 275 people taking part in the Special Olympics activities," Miss Keene said. "This is about 75 more than we had a year ago."

Noting that last year's Sock Hop resulted in $425 raised in proceeds, Miss Keene said, "we feel and we hope this will be an even better year. We'd like to see twelve to fifteen hundred people turn out, not all at one time of course, but during the four hours the Sock Hop will take place."

Again this year, prizes will be given to couples for various types of dancing as well for the most authentic costume and grooming typical of the 1950s.

"It's really a fun thing that means so much to what we are able to do in helping the handicapped," Miss Keene commented.

Admission is 75 cents per person at the door. Hours are from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday.

HEARS HOW HE SOUNDS — Hairdresser Casey Adam gestures as he cuts a tape at a Manhattan studio that offers 30 minute recording time to a pre-recorded, full orchestration. The studio's owner, Ed Chalpin, thinks there are thousands of people like Adam, who will pay $99 for the chance to see how they sound backed up by a big band. (AP Wirephoto)

Opening lead: ♠

In two recent Bols Bridge Tips, Tony Friday suggested that defenders attempt to camouflage their holdings in key suits and Benito Garozzo advised defenders to attack against slam contracts. Both these facets are featured in today's hand. Study the auction and decide on your opening lead, bearing in mind that it could be crucial.

Let us analyze the auction. The fact that South did not follow up his four no trump inquiry with five no trump suggests that North-South may be missing an ace. Thus, West knows that declarer has reached a slam with no more than 30 HCP in the combined hands—perhaps fewer. It looks as if the momentum—to use a term much beloved by sportscasters—of the auction carried the opponents to slam.

North is short in hearts and South in spades. The hand might be played on a crossruff, so the possibility of a trump lead should be considered. However, neither opponent has shown a long trump suit and both appear to have club length. In such cases, it is seldom necessary to stop a crossruff because declarer is unable to cash enough tricks in his side suit—in this case, clubs—to bring his total to twelve.

Your king of spades should flash a danger signal. If declarer needs a twelfth trick, he may attempt the spade finesse. Is there anything you can do to divert him to some other line?

If partner does have an ace, it is likely to be the ace of hearts. Even if he doesn't have that card, he might have the queen. So be brave and lead the king of hearts! When that trick holds, shift to a spade. If the full layout is as above, declarer might decide that the spade finesse is an unnecessary risk, since you are "marked" with the ace of hearts. All he needs is a ruffing finesse for the ace of hearts, and another heart ruff to come to twelve tricks.

With any other lead, declarer will be forced to take the winning spade finesse and make his slam.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Publication Held Obscene

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — "We'll just sell more copies now," a defiant Althea Leasure said of Hustler magazine after a jury found it obscene and a judge sentenced her husband, publisher Larry Flynt, to a seven-to-25-year prison term.

But civil libertarians and the man who prosecuted the case — considered a major test of whether communities can dictate obscenity standards — said the outcome will have far-reaching effects.

"Moral boundaries have been established in this county and this country which will put limitations on how far smut peddlers will be allowed to go," Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr. said Tuesday.

Leaders of the ACLU said the verdict "actively chilled the exercise of constitutional rights" throughout the nation.

Flynt's attorneys said they would appeal the conviction to day and ask the state appeals court to release him on bail temporarily.

Flynt himself repudiated pleas for leniency after the verdict and asked Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William J. Morrissey to sentence him immediately.

"This court has not made an intelligent decision during the entire proceedings and I don't expect one now," the 34-year-old millionaire publisher said. "I don't want mercy. As (executed Utah murderer) Gary Gilmore said, 'Let's do it.'"

Morrissey imposed a seven-to-25 year sentence and a $10,000 fine on a conviction for engaging in organized crime and a concurrent six-month sentence and $1,000 fine on the charge of pandering obscenity.

Ohio law defines organized crime as the combination of five or more participants in an illegal activity for profit.

The national men's magazine, which is published in Columbus, Ohio, and has a circulation of 1,448,000, was fined a total of $11,000 on the two counts. Flynt's wife, who is executive editor of Hustler; his brother Jimmy, business manager of the publication, and magazine vice president Al Van Schaik were acquitted on the same charges.

The verdict came after seven men and five women had spent four days studying 11 issues of Hustler.

"We read every one of those babies from cover to cover," said one juror who asked to remain anonymous.

Bertha Miller, another juror, said she found Flynt and Hustler guilty because "magazines like that shouldn't be around, younger kids can get hold of them and I wouldn't want my children to read that. She said the other defendants knew what was "going on," but "Mr. Flynt was the main one."

The ACLU said the conviction "shocks the conscience of all who believe in freedom of the press."

"Those involved in the prosecution and the judicial process not only have made Cincinnati a laughing stock but actively chilled the exercise of constitutional rights throughout the nation," said a joint statement by national ACLU director Arny Neier and Ohio director Benson Wolman.

GOP Meetings Set In March

Mack Howard, chairman of the Pitt County Republican Party, announced that the 1977 county GOP precinct meetings and county convention will be held on Thursday, March 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the District Courtroom of the Pitt Courthouse.

Howard said that the precinct meetings will convene at 7:30 p.m. and following the election of precinct officials, the county convention will be held the same evening.

All registered Republicans residing in Pitt County are invited and urged to attend, Howard added. The county convention will elect delegates for the district convention which will be held on April 2 at 2:30 p.m. in the Pitt Courthouse.

The chairman pointed out that the precinct gatherings and elected for the state convention which will be held on April 15 and 16 in Charlotte.

Sales Pitch Includes Fall

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Insurance salesman Robert Greer fell 20 feet into a dry well while he was trying to sell an accident insurance policy to a farmer.

Greer, 27, of Durham, just added the fall to his sales pitch, which he continued from the bottom of the well while he waited for rescuers to pull him out.

"This is a good example of why you need this accident policy," Greer reportedly told farmer Roy Bass from the bottom of the well. "This could have happened to you instead of me."

While Greer talked, Bass lowered a ladder, which promptly came apart. Greer was finally yanked out by a rope thrown down by Garner Rescue Squad members. He suffered a skinned leg.

Bass said he had covered the well with boards, but Greer must have kicked one of them aside.

When it was all over, Bass told Greer he didn't need any insurance today, thank you.

Solicitation Is Approved

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced approval of a request by the Kidney Foundation of North Carolina Inc. for permission to conduct a door-to-door solicitation here on March 25, 26, and 27.

The request was submitted by Charles Lee on behalf of the Kidney Foundation.

Believers Say Pyramids Can Do Wonders For You

By CINDY ROSE
Associated Press Writer

According to a widening circle of devotees, pyramids provide new power for the people. They can sharpen razor blades, sweeten wine, cure sick plants, lessen pain, improve sex life and boost psychic energy.

The lack of scientific evidence to support such claims hasn't daunted the legion of believers: housewives, athletes, gardeners — and pyramid salesmen.

"It seems so funny. Who wouldn't laugh? It seems like a big hoax, like a pet rock, until you try a pyramid yourself and see that it really does do some things people claim it does," says Rick Tiller, a 26-year-old pyramid proponent from Pittsfield, Mass.

It all works, if you believe the faithful, by putting yourself or whatever you want treated under or directly over the apex of a precisely positioned scale model of the Great Pyramid of Cheops in Egypt.

The scientific community has greeted such notions with resounding skepticism.

"I never saw the energy," says Dr. George Alexandrakis, head of the physics department at the University of Miami. "I think physicists just dismiss this pyramid thing completely. It has nothing to do with reality."

But the scientists' frowns haven't stopped the pyramidologists.

—The Toronto Maple Leafs started Stanley Cup hockey playoffs with a single pyramid under the bench but soon had multi-colored ones scattered in strategic positions around the rink.

"They send a vibration, a wonderful vibration," Coach Red Kelly said after a winning game. He wasn't so enthusiastic when Toronto lost the series 3-4.

—When Ted Sizemore played for the Los Angeles Dodgers last year he put a foot-square pyramid in his locker and said the team lost most road games when he didn't have the pyramid along. "There's gotta be something to it," he says.

—A Winter Garden, Fla., car dealership opened three showrooms under pyramids. Owner Al Ewing got into it unwittingly and laughed when he discovered he had joined a fad. "But I started asking the salesmen, and they say cars really do sell better under the pyramid," he says.

—A slew of razor blades are reposing inside scale-model pyramids in bathrooms in Europe, Canada, the United States and behind the Iron Curtain. Users claim the pyramids keep the blades sharp.

—Drs. Leonard Linkow of New York and Paris Garefis of Los Angeles, both dentists, are experimenting with pyramids to determine if the geometric shape improves a patient's ability to accept dental implants. Garefis has 72 pyramids hanging in two rows from an operating room ceiling. "We haven't stopped any conventional dental methods, so there is no way I can tell you whether the pyramid really works," he says. "But a lot of people think it helps. Maybe it's just psychological."

—A colony of believers has started construction on a dozen pyramid-shaped homes on 110 acres near the Central Florida community of Bell.

—An eight-page newsletter published bimonthly in Santa Barbara, Calif., claims circulation of 6,000. Subscribers pay $6 a year.

Nobody's gathered figures on the number of pyramid power devotees, but through advertisements and word-of-mouth support the fad has become widely visible.

"It's blowing my mind," says Shelly Seigel, production manager of a Santa Monica, Calif., wholesale firm that supplies pyramids. "There are always the fanatics who say their fingers work better under a pyramid — a segment of the population is always a little screwy. But then there are people who just say it works."

Seigel got into it solely as a business. "It's just a fact to me whether they're selling or not selling. And they're selling."

Seigel says sales records for his firm show that more than 100,000 people have bought six-foot pyramids at $89.95 retail in the past five years. He figures a recent order for 25,000 boxes of 9-and 12-inch pyramids, selling upwards from $6.95, will be gone within a month.

"What's important, though, is that for every person who buys a pyramid, there's at least an equal number building their own," he says.

Tobin says anybody can try it simply by cutting four isosceles triangles with two equal sides 11.4 inches and base 12 inches square, taping them together, making sure the angles of the base are exactly 90 degrees, and aligning any side of the pyramid with a compass along the earth's magnetic north.

"I've used pyramids to sharpen razor blades, help sick plants get healthy, sweeten wine. I use the pyramid in meditation and in my work in hypnosis with athletes," Tobin says.

While pyramids have long fascinated dabblers in the occult, the current craze seems to have its inception in a book called "Psychic Discoveries Behind the Iron Curtain." The book, published in 1970, told about a Czech, Karel Drbal, who may have been the first to claim the razor blade affinity for the pyramids. He patented the shape in 1959 and soon produced miniature cardboard pyramids for the bathroom.

Pyramidologists like to point to G. Patrick Flanagan as a scientist who takes the pyramid seriously. Flanagan, 32, was listed in "Who's Who in American Science" at 15 because of his work with lasers, microwaves and other energy forms.

He became interested in pyramids in 1970, proclaiming his enthusiasm for pyramids as powerful receptacles for a form of energy he called "biocosmic." Since then, dozens of companies have become involved in pyramid promotion and sales, as has Flanagan himself.

Flanagan likens the pyramid to a directional antenna. "The energy is already there, and the pyramid just transmits it," he says. "There's phenomenon connected with the pyramid."

What about those ancient originals, the pyramids of the pharaohs? Most scholars consider them tombs — elaborate, majestic, built in conformity with Egyptian religion and ritual, but just tombs. Today's pyramidologists believe the Egyptians knew all about pyramid power.

Researchers who take the time to experiment with pyramids tend to be people who want them to work, Dr. Marshall Gittula, a Miami psychiatrist, says. He suggests the pyramid might work like a placebo — medicine without effectiveness in itself but which the patient thinks helps him — and which therefore does help in a way.

Grace your home with colonial charm!

Sierra Club Topic Given

"Three Viewpoints On Clean Air" is the principal topic to be discussed at the Monday, Feb. 14 meeting of the Joseph LeConte Chapter of the Sierra Club.

The meeting will take place at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church at the corner of 14th and Elm Streets.

Looking into clean air for North Carolina, issues will be raised as to whether it can be maintained or whether it must be sacrificed to industrial development.

Participants on the discussion panel will bring three views of the problem. Those speaking will be Jim McCole of the State Office of Air Quality; Anne Taylor, Sierra Club LeConte Chapter chairman; and Y. J. Lao of the East Carolina University Department of Environmental Health.

The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Song Concert Here Sunday

"Little Mahalia Jackson," Jeneva Jordan, will be in concert at Nazarene Temple Church Sunday at 3 p. m.

The program was scheduled to be held at the Moyewood Recreation Center, but due to the energy crisis, has been changed to the church.

The church is located on Eighth Street and the Rev. Lillian Harris is pastor. The program is being sponsored by United Recording Studio.

The public is invited to attend.

Aerobatics Is Not Just Stunt Flying

By STEVE GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Clark and Betty Everest are likely to be found Sundays spinning, rolling, looping or diving their funny-looking little airplane as they practice precision aerobatics.

And please, don't call them stunt pilots. That term, guaranteed to bring a scowl to Betty's face, is reserved for those who indulge in the risky business of flying under bridges or cracking up planes for the benefit of movie cameras.

The Everests take their flying seriously — so seriously that Betty was the lone woman member of the U.S. team at the World Aerobatic Championships held near Kiev in the Soviet Union last summer.

"I decided I wanted to make the team, so I went out and practiced — a lot," she says. "They weren't going to take any women, so I had to show them I could compete." She showed the judges who awarded her the bronze medal in the women's division. And she got a doll with an inscription in Ukrainian, though she's not sure what she got it for.

"I think I got it for being the youngest competitor but I can't find anybody who speaks Ukrainian," she says. "When they presented the awards they did it in Russian with no translation."

When not rolling the Everests' Pitts Special biplane about the sky, Betty, a soft-voiced 29-year-old brunette, rolls pills for a Boulder pharmacy. Separated from her airplane, she gives little indication she specializes in a type of flying that leaves behind the faint of heart, not to mention stomach.

Although some aerobatic pilots fly airshows, Betty and Clark eschew the practice, saving their time and money for competitive flying.

The key to competitive aerobatics is precision. Loops must be round, not egg-shaped. Lines must be straight and all maneuvers must be performed in an imaginary "box" 3,330 feet long, 2,600 feet wide and 3,500 feet wide.

"It's about like gymnastics or diving," says Clark. "Each maneuver is assigned a difficulty factor and is scored on a scale of 1-10-10."

When going to competitive events, one of the Everests flies the tiny but powerful Pitts while the other drives the car with the luggage and the couple's two large, friendly canines of diluted Collie ancestry. Betty does the competitive flying while Clark does the coaching, calling his observations into a tape recorder for replay after his wife is on the ground.

Clark got into aerobatics after finding straight and level flying too boring. Betty was a flight instructor at a Colorado flying school and decided to try aerobatics — and that's when she found Clark four years ago. "You see there was this guy with a cute little yellow airplane for sale. ..." she says with a broad grin.

Aerobatics are popular in the Denver-Boulder area. Ken Nicholas, who teaches aerobatics at a flying school at the Boulder airport, estimates about 100 persons in the area bat around the region's air with various degrees of enthusiasm. Many of his students are airline pilots looking for a change from the mundane job of getting a big airplane from one place to another, he says.

Newsstand Sale

Level To Rise

CHICAGO (UPI) — Newsstand sales of popular magazines will exceed subscription sales in 1977 for the first time in publishing history, Chas. Levy Circulating Co., the nation's largest magazine and book distributor, predicts.

Newsstand sales took a 49.1 per cent market share in the first half of 1976, and Levy forecasts over-the-counter buying will rise to 51.1 per cent of all magazine sales in 1977.

Fueling the boom, TV Guide — the top selling U.S. magazine — is raising subscription rates by a penny more an issue than newsstand rates, several new newsstand-oriented magazines are scheduled to make debuts this year, and the addition of a 13th issue of "Woman's Day" and "Family Circle" — two newsstand regulars — also should lift sales.

'Super Slurp' May Revolutionize Ways Of Life

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A material that may revolutionize the way we diaper our babies and grow crops in sandy soils is getting even better, its inventors say.

Super slurper, a baffling blend of manmade materials and starch that soaks up water like a bionic sponge, can absorb 5,300 times its weight in distilled water now, government scientists said Monday.

When discovered in 1973, super slurper could absorb 300 times its weight in water, vastly superior to anything else in existence. It has been getting better ever since.

"We're still trying to understand why it does what it does and in doing so we found some new improvements," said Dr. William M. Doane, one of five Agricultural Research Service chemists credited with inventing the material.

A North Carolina firm will begin production of slurper this month.

Super slurper is made by grafting acrylonitrile, the starting material for synthetics used in clothing and carpeting, to starch. Exposed to water, the colorless material congeals water to a gelatin like a room temperature, rubbery ice.

Super slurper was patented on behalf of the public last year by the USDA and its developers from the Northern Research Laboratory in Peoria were honored Saturday as inventors of the year by the Association for the Advancement of Invention and Innovation, Arlington, Va.

USDA Program Specialist Roger A. Eisenhauer is scheduled to present a paper on the newest super slurper innovations Wednesday at the World Technology Transfer Fair in Chicago. He said there is a potential market of 750 million to a billion pounds of slurper a year for agriculture, oil recovery chemicals, pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, towels and other absorbent papers and other uses.

The water absorbency of the compound falls off when used on salt solutions such as blood or urine, and the new type of slurper offers little improvement there, Doane said. But cellulose (including cotton) now used in bandages and disposable diapers only hold about 30 times their weight in such liquids and super slurper is 20 times that effective.

Even more important, Doane said, is that cellulose subjected to pressure "like a squirming baby, only hold its own weight in urine . . . slurper still holds three-fourths of its capacity (up to 75 times) under such pressure."

The list of possible uses is endless but the most immediate application probably will be in agriculture.

The Inter Seeding Co. of Arcola will begin coating seeds with a patented super slurper process this spring.

Executive vice president Jim Hall said seeds coated by the "Moisture Magnet" process could have 30 per cent higher germination under dry conditions.

General Mills Chemicals, Inc.,

Minneapolis, is the biggest firm dealing in super slurper. Super Absorbent Co., Lumberton, N.C., will begin production of slurper this month and hopes to sell a million pounds to industry and agriculture.

Owner Edward Kirkland said some nurseries in North Carolina are already using super slurper as a super slurry, coating the roots of plants to keep them moist. In sandy soil and soil subject to erosion, slurper will be used to increase moisture retention and cohesiveness, Kirkland said.

Advance Polymer Technology, Huntington Beach, Calif., also was created recently to supply super slurper to other companies, and the USDA has had more than 3,000 inquiries about the material.

Study Is Aided By Sunken Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — When American bombers sank the Fujikawa Maru in the Truk lagoon 32 years ago, no one thought they were doing marine biologists a favor. But today the Fujikawa Maru and other sunken Japanese transports, warships and supply craft form the world's largest collection of artificial reefs, and one whose age is precisely known, says National Geographic.

In 1975 marine biologist Sylvia A. Earle began studying the marine growths on the drowned fleet. "It offers invaluable clues to the growth rates and patterns of the abundant marine life that congregates around submerged reefs," she points out.

The marine growths have transformed the warships, garlanding the guns and growing like chrysanthemums out of the decks, Dr. Earle said.

Budget, Critics Hurt French Cultural Effort

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The refurbished theater of the Comedie Francaise has opened again after $13-million-worth of repairs and the event is being taken as an illustration of how French culture has become hamstrung between grandeur and poverty.

The 300-year-old company's Salle Richelieu has a computerized light system that can put lighting effects for a whole season's repertoire on a tape cassette. It also has individual audio boosters for hard-of-hearing spectators, fewer and wider seats, plush backstage rooms for actors awaiting cues and a closed-circuit television system that allows drinkers to filter Moliere through the comfort of the all-marble bar.

The details are a handful of the ones that critics of the government's cultural program use to assert that official culture in France is elitist, limited to Paris and obsessed with show-off tradition.

Almost symbolically, the theater administration had to announce after the opening performance of Alfred de Musset's Lorenzaccio that it could not put on two other plays it planned last fall because the new mechanical grandeur at the Salle Richelieu was a little more complicated than expected.

After a cost overrun of about $3 million at the Comedie Francaise, the $180-million construction of the Georges Pompidou cultural center, which many consider an architectural abomination, and increases in the budget of the Paris Opera, there seems to be a real current of opposition to what a Communist National Assembly delegate called a program of "waste and aberration."

The secretary of state for cultural affairs, Francoise Giroud, has treaded lightly around criticizing the big undertakings, but she has pointed out that nine out of ten Frenchmen have never been to a concert or to an opera, that the provinces need a better share of the budget, and that television is vastly underutilized for spreading culture.

What Mrs. Giroud cannot get around is that about a quarter of her annual budget of $369 million for 1977 will go into heavy equipment like the national theaters and the Pompidou center. But she has been able to explain that the tough economic situation means there will be a pause in the building of spectacular cultural monuments, with the emphasis going into spreading culture.

The bite is that paying for grandeur conceived by people obsessed with keeping France at the top of the cultural big leagues makes the rest of the program a relative poverty case, dogged by the continuing pressures to maintain French status.

So Mrs. Giroud can say: "Above all, France exists through its culture. It's not its military strength, nor its diplomacy, nor the rhythm of its economic development that has made it exceptional in the world. It is, as seen by history, a nation of culture." And then she can add that every Frenchman must be able to take part in the nation's cultural life.

Chores Cut, Pleasure Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of 50,000 women indicates American homemakers are spending less time on housework and enjoying it more.

The chore they most enjoy is cooking, says author Natalie Gitelson in an article in the current issue of McCall's magazine. The majority said they spend one to two hours daily in the kitchen. Four out of five said they spend less than one hour a day straightening up. Half said housework brought them occasional pleasure.

About two-thirds of the women interviewed hold outside jobs, mostly full-time positions. Nine out of 10 are married.

More than half said their husbands did a fair share of the housekeeping, but only five per cent of the husbands make their own beds and even fewer usually cook dinner.

The survey quoted only one woman in 10 as saying she hated housework. Half said their changed views about housework resulted from their mothers' influence; the remainder split the credit between their husbands and their jobs.

Bankers' Hours Are Extended

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An increasing number of banks are using "talking" telephone answering systems that allow customers to make deposits when the banks are closed.

Customers calling a bank here talk to four programmable cassette recorders that ask questions. Unlike traditional answering equipment that asks a limited number of structured questions and then records the responses, the machines carry on a simulated conversation with the customer, asking, for example, for the caller's name and waiting for a response before asking the next question.

Jerry Klein, vice president of Dictaphone Corp., said nearly 100 banks now use programmable answering systems for such telephone services as after-hours fund transfers, loan applications and bill paying.

Likely Target Of Investments

NEW YORK (AP) — According to a recent report in the Institute of Life Insurance's Trend Analysis Program, the development of new energy sources appears to be a likely area of investment for life insurance companies, which were among the first backers of jet airplane transportation.

The Target: Sailing Cup

By BART KINCH
UPI Boating Editor
The "computer-designed" Sverige, the first challenger for the America's Cup from Sweden, has completed more than 4,000 miles of trials and an early spring launch is expected for more testing and refining of the sleek 12 meter yacht.

The Swedes are very serious about their challenge for the cup that has remained in the United States for 106 years and estimate their chances of beating other foreign challengers at better than 3 to 1. They now give themselves a 50-50 chance of taking the coveted cup back to Stockholm.

Australia, France and Great Britain also have submitted challenges to the New York Yacht Club and a series of elimination races will be held off Newport, R.I., beginning in June to select the official challenger.

The United States will be conducting its own elimination series to come up with the most competitive defender. The yachts selected then will battle for the "aud mug" in a best of seven series of match races off Newport in September.

By race time, the Swedes will have invested three years of planning, building, modifying, testing and perfecting of the all aluminum hull. No cost figures were released, but it has been estimated that the challenge will cost its Swedish backers in the millions.

Pelle Petterson, a world renowned sailor, the designer of the Sverige and its helmsman, said at the conclusion of the first series of trials in December, "I am very pleased with the results we have achieved."

"Even in this trial phase Sverige has shown excellent sailing characteristics and remarkable speed potential."

During the trials Sverige was sailed against Columbia, the successful U.S. defender of the America's Cup in 1958.

"The Sverige is faster than our trial horse Columbia in every conceivable situation," Pehr G. Gyllenhammer, president of Volvo Corp. and one of the principal backers, said.

"I think we can say it presently appears that we will give all comers a good run for their money next June off Rhode Island," he said.

To date potential crew members for the Sverige have undergone seven months of rigorous training, including nearly 2,000 sailing hours.

Figge Montan, who trained the crews, said "it's been a hard season with temperatures dipping to freezing. We have covered about 4,000 nautical miles so far, roughly the same as sailing from Gothenburg to New York."

When the Sverige was launched last Sept. 1 and christened by Queen Silvia, many sailing enthusiasts were surprised to note that the yacht, measuring about 60 feet, will be steered by a tiller instead of a wheel. (One new American 12 meter boasts two wheels.)

Designer Petterson is a world champion small-boat sailor and double Olympic medal winner and he prefers the tiller. Petterson said he finds that the tiller works fine.

"I prefer tillers. The tiller system provides very light steering."

Petterson also praised the deck layout and said it "simplifies both maneuvering and communications on board."

During the winter layup, the data gathered during the fall season will be further analyzed and special technicians will go over the data provided by a digital mini-computer on board the Sverige.

The computer already has fed information about hull and wind speeds, heeling angles and other data not disclosed.

Petterson, ever the perfectionist, said "we will continue the development work based on the information and experience we have gathered. There is even more that can be accomplished both above and below the waterline."

AUTO MECHANICS

DETROIT (UPI) — Youngsters looking for career opportunities could find one in the auto mechanic field, according to the Chrysler Corp. The auto firm, in a film being distributed for circulation to interested groups, says 30,000 jobs are available for qualified mechanics each year in the United States.

New CBers Unwelcome

VETERAN vs. NOVICE — New CBers are prone to break the basic rules, say the experienced owners. (AP Wirephoto Sketch)

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — To many experienced Citizens Band users, the new CBers who got their radios for Christmas are about as welcome as a channel full of static.

"Break, how about a radio check?" says the inexperienced voice in the middle of your conversation. Or, another asking, "What's your twenty?" just as you've made proper contact with a fellow CBER.

"Christmas Presents," as the new CBers are referred to, seldom in polite tones, often start their radio experience on the wrong foot because they don't know CB procedures.

We could have followed the same path several years ago when we took up CBing, but our initial hesitancy to talk on the air caused us to spend several weeks of listening before we first keyed the mike.

We learned a lot about CBing during this period and, if you have the patience or similar bashfulness, you might benefit from a short period of monitoring, or "copying the mail" as CBERs call it, to see how its done.

If not, some of the older CBERs are more than willing to lend a hand to their new channel comrades, and hand that often results in new friendships as well as relieving ill feelings on the frequencies.

But before keying the mike and asking the channel for its patience, the new CBER should remember a few basic rules:

—Before asking for a break, listen for a minute to see whether the channel is clear. If not, wait and break only between conversations. And the break should be given only by the last person to sign off or to end his conversation. Any other CBER giving a break usually causes more than one person to believe its their turn and adds to the confusion on the already congested channels.

Always use your call letters with your handle at the beginning and at the end of your transmissions. Besides adhering to FCC rules, you're giving more recognition to your handle which probably is used by more than one CBER in your area.

Always call for a specific station when you get the break. There's nothing more irritating to others on the channel than to have someone get the break and say, "How do you read me?" Who's he talking to, and which of the many stations on the air should respond?

—Abide by FCC regulations that limit conversations to no more than five minutes and, where possible, make your transmissions as brief as you can. No one likes a ratchetjaw or bucketmouth, as long-winded CBERs are called. After your transmission, FCC rules require that you wait one minute before beginning a new one.

—And don't show your inexperience by breaking and asking for a "radio check" or a "10-36." If you're testing a new radio, or have a problem, address your query to a specific station and ask for its help. You'll usually get it.

—Finally, remember Channel 9 is reserved for emergency and road information calls. And regardless of what channel you're monitoring, stand by for any emergency call, or 10-33. It could save a life.

Production Of TV Sets Peaked

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Production of televisions, the fastest growing appliances worldwide in the past 10 years, reached more than 56 million units by 1972-74, with an estimated 41 sets in use for every 100 households, according to Predicasts Inc.

During the 1972-74 period, television ownership ranged from 158 sets for every 100 American households to two in Asia, with the exception of Japan.

The firm predicts television production will slow from an annual growth rate of 7.8 per cent in the past decade to three per cent annually through 1990 when 93 million sets will be turned out.

INSURANCE INCREASE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The global property and casualty insurance industry has increased its insurance commitment to the nuclear energy industry this year by $90 million to $390 million, the Nuclear Energy Liability-Property Insurance Association disclosed.
