Ice Damage Threatening A Second Bridge In N.C.

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
EDENTON, N.C. AP — Ice-choked waterways in northeastern North Carolina have caused severe damage to one major bridge and now threaten another. Workers began two weeks ago to replace 46 severed wooden piles on the 3½-mile long Albemarle Sound Bridge and drifting ice now poses the same problem to the Roanoke Sound Bridge, Department of Transportation officials said. Some 40 transportation department employees have braved freezing temperatures and brisk winds to buttress the 40-year-old Albemarle Sound Bridge with steel girders.

Pressure from ice floes in the river caused the wooden piles to break and splinter, said Harvey Ferrell, supervisor of one of four repair crews working 10 hours a day over frigid Albemarle Sound.

Workers beneath the bridge must contend with winds that rock their scaffolds while cross beams are welded to twin support beams on each side of the bridge, Ferrell said.

Ferrell said Tuesday he did not know how long the work would continue and a bridge maintenance official in Raleigh said an underwater inspection of the wooden piles must be completed.

"We're estimating a cost of about $200,000 and that we'll open the bridge about March 28," said Jim Lee, head of bridge maintenance in the department's division of highways.

Ice floated throughout the river Tuesday and large piles of ice dotted the shorelines of Chowan and Washington counties, which are connected by the bridge on N.C. 37.

The Roanoke Sound Bridge, which connects Roanoke Island and Nags Head, is being threatened by ice drifting out of Albemarle Sound, said A.M. Harris, bridge maintenance supervisor.

No damage to the bridge had been reported Monday, but Harris said the ice floes were the worst he had seen in 30 years and added, "There are a few loose braces to be repaired when the weather clears."

ERA Partisans Eye Struggle In Senate

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite bright prospects for Senate approval and final ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in North Carolina, neither side of the controversial proposal is taking anything for granted as the end of their long battle nears.

"There's not going to be any letdown," the Rev. Maria Bliss, president of North Carolinians United for ERA, said Wednesday night.

ERA cleared the North Carolina House of Representatives 61-55 Wednesday afternoon and was sent to the Senate where an Associated Press survey indicates the measure now has sufficient strength to win approval.

"We will be doing the same kinds of things we did this time with the emphasis on constituent influence," Mrs. Bliss said. While the measure was before the House, ERA supporters were urged to write and visit their legislators to show support for the measure.

As to the prospects, Mrs. Bliss was optimistic: "I don't think there's any doubt but that it's going to pass."

Meanwhile, opponents—who had exerted considerable pressure on lawmakers with petitions, letter writing campaigns and visits—also plan to keep working hard.

Marilyn DeVries of Raleigh, who has led some anti-ERA forces, said the opponents plan to ask the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee to have public hearings and to invite former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. to speak. "He will come if they invite him," Mrs. DeVries said. Ervin is a staunch opponent.

Much of the opposition effort, she said, will be aimed at asking the Senate to call for a public referendum on ERA. A similar effort in the House failed.

"About the only thing we can do now is get people to write to their senators and to pray," Mrs. DeVries said.

Wednesday's approval by the House was the first time ERA has passed either chamber of the General Assembly. It was defeated in the House two years ago and in the Senate four years ago.

The AP survey showed 25 senators in the "for" column, 18 against and seven undecided with three of them appearing to lean for and three appearing to lean against.

The survey was conducted Wednesday when the senators knew they would eventually be voting on ERA.

Sen. Jerry Popkin, D-Onslow, said he will decide how to vote by counting his mail for and against as of the day of the vote. The freshman senator said, however, he didn't know which side was responsible for the most mail.

Counted as leaning against ERA were Sens. Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham, and J.J. Harrington, D-Bertie, who both voted against it four years ago, and Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, who is considered an ally by some opponents.

Counted as leaning in favor were Sens. Luther Britt, D-Robeson, and Livingstone Stallings, D-Craven, who voted for it in 1973, and Sen. Joe Palmer, D-Haywood, who was pledged, but was not called upon to vote for it in 1975.

Heating Bill Help Talked In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your family budget has been jolted by this winter's home heating bills there could be some financial relief coming from the federal government.

The Senate Budget Committee is recommending that the government pay up to $250 of the fuel bills of families in the areas hardest-hit by the uncommonly cold winter.

And, according to committee chairman Edmund S. Muskie, President Carter is expected to announce his support of such a plan today.

Muskie's panel wrote in the special fuel-bill payment plan Wednesday as it approved an emergency resolution that is necessary before Carter's program of tax cuts and federal spending to stimulate the economy can be considered by Congress.

The committee, which aims to set economic policy for the Senate, approved a $16.8-billion package of tax cuts and spending for the next eight months, about $1.8 billion above what Carter proposed. The House Budget Committee earlier voted for $17.3 billion.

Carter has said he could go along with some changes in his own package but has cautioned Congress against any sharp increase. Senate aides say the White House has expressed no great concern about the changes prepared by the two committees.

The two budget committees' actions would accommodate the $50-per-person tax rebate envisioned by Carter as well as any other type of tax-cut proposal, so long as it cost no more than $12 billion this fiscal year. However, neither committee is locked into supporting the rebate.

The Senate committee did endorse, on an 8-to-6 party-line vote, Carter's plan to mail a $50 bonus to each of the 36 million recipients of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income and railroad-retirement benefits. The House panel okayed the provision last week.

The Senate panel increased what Carter had asked to spend over the next eight months for special aid to cities, counties and states; public-works projects, employment training and public-service jobs, such as in hospitals and parks.

The Senate panel went along with its House counterpart in recommending that an extra $508 million be spent to ensure that jobless persons in all 50 states be eligible for 52 weeks of unemployment compensation. Without congressional action, jobless benefits will drop to a 39-week maximum on March 31.

The plan to have the federal government help low and middle-income families with their winter fuel bills was proposed last week by two liberals, Muskie and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Propane Gas Shortage Not Yet Felt In Area, Distributors Report

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

The propane and natural gas shortages which are affecting businesses throughout the country are not affecting the Greenville area at the present, according to local oil and gas businesses and industries.

Ervin Evans of Pargas Company said that his business has not suffered from the gas shortages.

"At the present we have not been affected by the shortage. We have managed to keep a three to four days supply. It doesn't look like we will have any problems," Evans said.

R.P. Grady of Allied Petroleum said that the business' oil supply is sufficient. "We are not having any gasoline shortage nor oil shortage at this time. So far we have a good supply of oil," Grady said.

Exxon, North Carolina's largest supplier of propane, announced Thursday morning that it would stop selling the fuel to industrial customers. The Federal Energy Administration ordered Exxon which provides 25 per cent of the state's propane to cut off supplies to industries in four states including North Carolina, to be able to serve residential and agricultural customers. Bill Pearson, manager of Exxon LP Gas Service was unavailable to comment what affect this would have on local Exxon gas users.

Jim Hecker, plant manager of Empire Brush Company said that the company is using energy reduction methods to fight predicted shortages.

"We first naturally tried to minimize gas usage. We do heat with gas. We have turned the thermostats back to 55 degrees while in operation and lower it when closed. The employees have been great to put up with the cold. We are presently looking into the possibility of a mixer system which would mix natural gas and propane gas for use," Hecker said.

Richard Licko, plant manager of Eaton Corporation said that the gas shortage is not affecting the business.

"This plant is totally electric. We only use natural gas minimally and then we have a sufficient amount of propane back-up on the site," Licko said.

Beverly Congleton of S&C Gas and Oil Company said that his company has experienced some shortages.

"We were getting short on kerosene, but we received an allotment of 8,000 gallons yesterday. Our February allotment was supposed to be zero. If we don't get more this month I am afraid that we will not have enough to last through the next month. We have about 350 customers burning at least 100 gallons every 30 days. At this time we are making 100 gallon deliveries only," Congleton said.

Tom Shea, director of engineering at Burroughs Wellcome Company said that the shortage has not affected the company.

"We have not been affected because at this point we only use gas to heat and manufacture steam. We have cut down on usage and attained additional storage," Shea said.

WITHOUT A PAPER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The nation's fourth largest city was without a daily newspaper today after union members sympathizing with striking workers at two other papers refused to print or distribute the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Requests for reservations and banquet tickets should be addressed to Mr. Tommy Taft, P. O. Box 588, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Holding Out

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A vengeance-seeking gunman, thinking he is "a marked man" for life, continued to hold a hostage in a booby-trapped apartment today while his lawyers studied an offer of immunity from prosecution.

Anthony G. "Tony" Kirtitsis asked this morning that his attorneys examine the immunity papers which local prosecutors approved in an effort to break the tense standoff which began Tuesday at Kirtitsis' apartment.

The papers, read to the gunman Wednesday night from an apartment across the hall, were picked up and delivered to the lawyers by Kirtitsis' brother, James.

Authorities said Kirtitsis indicated he would accept his attorneys' judgment.

The papers, read to Kirtitsis Wednesday night from an apartment across the hall, were picked up by his brother, James, and then delivered to the lawyers by a deputy prosecutor.

A spokesman for negotiators said there was no reason to believe Kirtitsis would issue any new demands, and authorities were hopeful the ordeal would end when Kirtitsis' attorneys verified the documents.

"He (Kirtitsis) is optimistic. We're optimistic," the spokesman said.

In a pre-dawn telephone interview with WIBC radio news director Fred Heckman, to whom Kirtitsis has spoken several times in the past two days, Kirtitsis said, "I've already lost all my self-respect. I'm going to be a marked man all my life."

N.C. Economic Troubles Are Seen Growing

By The Associated Press
The state's energy crisis unemployment has swelled to 7,100 and officials said that with propane supplies from Exxon cut off, North Carolina was on a "collision course" with more economic trouble.

Exxon, one of the state's major suppliers, has been ordered by the Federal Energy Administration to divert propane intended for North Carolina industries to other states.

FEA officials said they could not divulge how many jobs would be affected. But said the impact would be "substantial, although not enormous."

Copland Fabrics Inc. of Burlington has already been forced to shut down and lay off 1,200 workers, the largest single reported energy-related layoff so far.

But other firms were known to be depending on Exxon for propane to replace natural gas supplies cut off last month when the crunch hit.

"We're on a collision course now," said Raymond J. Nery, head of the natural gas section of the state Utilities Commission.

"There's no natural gas for industries, and now propane is being withdrawn from that market, so what's an industry that relies on those two fuels going to do?" Exxon, which supplies 25 per cent of North Carolina's propane, was ordered to halt industrial shipments to three other states as well.

The FEA said its orders were designed to protect residential and farm propane users from shortages, including customers in North Carolina.

Bogus Bills In Martin County

WILLIAMSTON — As of 10:30 this morning, a total of 14 counterfeit twenty-dollar bills have been located by two banks in Williamston.

A tip off that the possibility existed that counterfeit money might be coming into the area led bankers, and now merchants, to be on the lookout for money in twenty-dollar denominations bearing five different serial numbers.

The five serial numbers — furnished by the Williamston newspaper, "The Enterprise," are B22415635E.

Week Of Waiting

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Employment Security Commission announced Thursday that jobless workers filing unemployment claims on or after next Wednesday will be subject to a one-week waiting period before they become entitled to payments.

The 1975 General Assembly suspended the waiting period from Jan. 29, 1975 through Feb. 15, 1977 because of the sudden and rapid increase in joblessness at the start of the recession.

Restoration of the waiting period means jobless workers filing after Wednesday will not receive payment for their first week of unemployment. However, if the worker qualifies for 20 weeks of benefits, he still will receive the full amount if he continues to be unemployed.

Statewide, the number of workers filing initial claims for benefits currently is averaging between 10,000 and 12,000 each week, the commission said.

B26539210E, B24146067E, B27482633F and B48022573F.
Lee Reynolds, editor of "The Enterprise," said the information they had on hand at mid-morning reveals that 12 of the bogus bills have been reported by Wachovia Bank and two by First Citizens Bank.
Reynolds said local police are assisting federal secret service personnel in efforts to trace the source of entry of the illegal bills, but that at this time no leads have been uncovered.

College President And Wife Honored By County Alumnae

St. Mary's College will continue to concentrate on development of the "total person," even though there is a trend today among colleges to focus primarily on academics, John T. Rice, president, said here Tuesday night.

Citing long-range goals for the Raleigh women's school, Rice said that St. Mary's intends "to remain very involved with the social, emotional, and physical aspects of growth, as well as the educational ones" for its students.

"We are still willing to accept a responsibility for our students outside the classroom," Rice said. Many colleges and universities, faced with expanding enrollments, cannot handle individual attention to student development outside the academic area, Rice pointed out.

Rice, in Greenville to attend a reception hosted by Pitt County alumnae at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Clement, assumed presidency of the Raleigh college in July.

Noting that enrollment has increased among both boarding and day students, Rice says he feels "St. Mary's, with its concern for the total person and the social development which many schools are trying to get away from, is attractive now." Current enrollment includes 208 high school and 296 junior college students.

Other long-range goals for St. Mary's include keeping "its ties and its feelings strong as a church-related institution," Rice said. He noted that a recent poll on the Episcopal Church related campus indicated that students, when given a choice, prefer to keep the present chapel schedule. Student enrollment includes Protestant denominations as well as Moslem and Jewish.

The school also intends to continue and expand its service to the Raleigh community through continuing education programs open to the public, such as a Coast Guard Safety course, real estate course, and the summer tennis camp it operates.

These kinds of programs "not only enrich our students, but also help our school to be known by a wide spectrum in the community," Rice said.

Though ties with the past remain strong at the school through tradition, St. Mary's dropped its "finishing school" image as the students themselves changed.

Since 98 percent of the student body transfers to institutions of higher learning and 70 percent expect to join the working force, the school has to provide a sound liberal arts basis for degree oriented women. Students "expect education to be leading toward a goal, and if they think it is not, they will let you know," Rice said. "We want to make sure that our graduates are getting the liberal arts core that will enable them to go into any field," he continued.

As a member of the Cooperating Raleigh Colleges Agreement, St. Mary's students can take courses for credit at six other area colleges, as well as enroll their students. Other cooperating schools include Meredith, N.C.State, Peace, Shaw and St. Augustine.

Pointing out that a school such as St. Mary's can justify itself only by "being the best of its kind" and providing quality, Rice said attention in the immediate future is to be given to faculty development through enrichment and continuing education programs.

The school's library today contains the fourth largest collection of Thomas Wolfe memorabilia in the country, including one of the original copies of "Look Homeward Angel," pictures of the author, handwritten letters (including one of five pages) and personal mementoes from Wolfe's brother Fred, who gave the collection to the school.

Prior to assuming duties at St. Mary's on July 1, Rice was dean of student affairs at Sweet Briar College. He received a B.S. degree with honors in sociology from Virginia Polytechnical Institute in 1961 and earned the Master's degree in sociology in 1963 from the University of Tennessee.

He was accompanied last night by his wife Grace and Mrs. Jane A. Rabon, alumnae director.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My typewriter developed a case of hiccups the other week that nearly drove me up the wall.

Every time I hit the "S" it would rat-a-tat-tat to the end of the line and hiccup in place. I didn't think it was too serious until I got the bill.

"Of course you have a policy on the typewriter, don't you?" asked the repairman, his pencil poised in mid-air.

"Oh sure," I giggled. "My husband and I took out an endorsement on it the day it was born. That way we don't have to worry about its education."

"I am quite serious," he said. "A policy on a typewriter is not unusual. Or for that matter, neither is a policy on your washing machine, lawn mower, dishwasher, furnace, picture window, septic tank, or the picture tube on your television set."

"You mean people buy insurance policies on all those inanimate objects?"

"They're the most unpredictable kind. We can pretty much determine the life span of people, but these little turkeys can go just like that!"

"How much money are we talking about?"

"Well, to insure this machine for a year with a minimum of three service calls, including the yearly service and cleaning and a guarantee on the 'S' key against hiccuping would run somewhere in this neighborhood." He slipped me a piece of paper with a figure on it.

"That's some neighborhood. For a few bucks more, I could have the column carved on stone tables on Mt. Sinai. That typewriter would be worth more to me dead than alive."

"Others have considered that!" he said stiffly.

"Are you saying that some people 'do their appliances in, just to collect the insurance?'"

He smiled. "Let me just say that there are a lot of little old ladies touring Europe every summer on the insurance money left by their dead dishwashers!"

I told him I'd think about it, but when he left I sat down at my typewriter and got a letter off to his company.

Dear ir: peaking a writer of atire, I mut protet.

Without an - on my typewriter, communication I impoible. I ask you, how can I be cinitilating with my ming. The price you ak for an insurance policy i in exce of the ervice.

omehow, I will tumble along without it. Jut remember, thank to you ex i now a two-letter word. Let that be on your onciou.

Taking Alcohol In Combinations

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has apparently contained its heroin problem, but the state has a new and equally serious monkey on its back now.

Alcohol, always the worst drug problem, is being combined with various kinds of medicines in addictive and potentially lethal combinations.

So says Dr. R.J. Blackley, deputy Mental Health Services director for alcoholism and drugs.

And in a disturbing tribute to the feminist movement, women are turning up with alcohol and drug problems in equal numbers with men.

Blackley's section is in the process of drawing an updated profile of the state's drug problem, based on statistics from treatment clinics around North Carolina.

Although heroin is still a serious problem, the report will reflect this new drug abuse trend, Blackley said.

"There's a question whether some of the harder drugs like heroin are as available now as they once were because of enforcement efforts," Blackley said. "Our big problem now is with alcohol and drugs."

Women and young people are a larger part of the alcohol and drug picture now than they have ever been.

Blackley said that might be because women are out in the world now and their problems are more visible. He also said they are now under the same kinds of tensions and burdens

$2.5 Million Suit Being Filed

WILLIAMSTON — A multi-million dollar suit in the amount of $2,522,403 is being brought against Martin County and the Town of Williamston.

The suit seeks damages in this amount as the result of the death of Joey Gordon Bailey on April 18, 1976. Bailey, 19 years old at the time of his death, drowned when he fell into the Roanoke River while using a dip net from a public dock at Moratoc Park in Williamston. The suit is being brought by T. Perry Jenkins, administrator of the Bailey estate, alleging liability on the part of the two governmental units in the drowning death. The plaintiff is represented by Herbert Frank Allen, a Tarboro attorney, who filed the papers last Friday on Mayor Robert H. Cowen of Williamston and Chairman John L. House of the Martin County Board of Commissioners.

Bailey's wife Jean, now 15 years old, is the mother of a six-month old child.

A breakdown of the suit shows that $2,403.88 is being asked for reasonable funeral expenses; $250,000 in compensation for pain and suffering of the decedent; $270,000 for the decedent's heirs to replace the net income of the decedent; $1,000,000 for the heirs for the loss of service, protection, care and assistance; and $1,000,000 for the heirs for the loss of society, companionship, comfort, guidance and kindly offices and advices (of the decedent).

The suit claims that the Moratoc Park pier at the time of Bailey's death had no guard or railings; that no emergency equipment — ropes, life preservers, etc. were available; and that no warning signs of danger or restricted use signs were posted.

Town officials have stated that a reply to the suit would be submitted in due time and it is expected county officials will also prepare a reply at a later date.

Gunman Gives Up After Siege

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)

— A young man armed with two rifles holed up in a suburban Washington, D.C., bank for seven hours, first taking and then releasing unharmed seven hostages before surrendering to police early today.

The man, identified as Stephan Gregory, 27, of Silver Spring, Md., walked into the bank with two rifles after an argument with his girlfriend, police said. He drank several cans of beer and munched on a steak sandwich while negotiating with police by phone and occasionally spraying rifle shots through the door of the bank and into its ceiling.

Sgt. Douglas McFee of the Montgomery County, Md., police said after the siege ended that Gregory made no threats and few demands. He said the gunman placed a rifle at the ear of one of his hostages once during the evening and demanded to talk with a policeman.

McFee said he responded by approaching the back door of the bank as instructed, and Gregory sent a rifle shot over his head.

"He advised me if he truly wanted to he could have killed me, and I believe him," McFee said.

There were no injuries reported although police estimated Gregory fired more than 200 rounds of ammunition from his two rifles.

Gregory walked into the bank at about 6 p.m. with his rifles in plain view and ordered the customers and two employees outside, police spokesman Phillip Caswell said.

He kept seven bank employees, including three women, as hostages, but released them one-by-one as the evening wore on. He traded one of the hostages for a police bullhorn.

When he discovered another bank employe hiding under a counter several hours after the siege began, Gregory allowed him to leave.

At Gregory's request, McFee said, police placed a call to his girlfriend, who apparently convinced the gunman police would not harm him if he surrendered.

Alcoholics Plan Ready

The N. C. Division of Mental Health Services has announced that copies of the 1977-78 State Plan for the Prevention, Treatment and Control of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism are available to interested citizens and groups who wish to review the Plan and make suggestions for additions, deletions or amendments.

The Plan describes the alcoholism problem in the state and outlines strategies for the prevention or treatment of the disease at the state and local levels. It also describes plans for the expenditure of approximately $1,500,000 in Federal Formula (Hughes) Grant money. This money is available to nonprofit agencies and groups involved in the field of alcoholism. Guidelines are included in the Plan.

The Plan may be reviewed at the Department of Human Resources Regional Office here or at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center here or at the Central Mental Health Office by contacting Larry Earle, Room 1114, 325 N. Salisbury St., Raleigh 27611.

BURKETTE RAPER, president of Mount Olive College, will speak at the evening worship service at Rose of Sharon F.W.B. Church in Martin County Sunday at 6 p.m. The pastor is the Rev. N.B. Barrow.

Look Worse With Every Move

Government officials in charge of the flu immunization program look worse with every move.

The immunization program has been on and off so many times since it was begun there it is understandable why the public is thoroughly confused.

The latest halt in the program came after the possibility of Guillain-Barre syndrome, a rare paralysis, was suspected as being caused by the vaccine. There were few cases of the disease, but the health authorities quickly halted the whole program. Now there is the possibility of an epidemic of A-Victoria flu and there has been a partial lifting of the moratorium on flu vaccinations. The problem is it may be too late for immunizations now to keep most people from having the flu.

The federal health authorities knew at the outset of the immunization program that it was not totally without risk to every person. No injection or medicine ever is. It is up to the public health authorities to weigh the risks, explain them to the public and then proceed on the best course.

We feel that the way the flu immunization program has been handled this winter is going to do much to destroy public confidence in mass immunization programs in the future. And that might mean disaster when we face the threat of some new epidemic.

Luckiest 'Loser' On The Scene Today

It isn't enough the country has had to endure a history making winter of cold and snow with all the attendant miseries. Come spring, we're told, Americans can look to floods and fires.

Even now, the National Weather Service cautions, a sudden thaw in the Northeast could unleash floods of disastrous proportions.

The fires? They could be a part of the spring scene too. A lot of trees and branches have fallen from the weight of our unprecedented snows and ice.

All this, coupled with a continuing shortage of energy and the stage set for more domestic and foreign crises, makes Gerald Ford just about the luckiest "loser" on the scene today. The memories of Plains, Georgia, must have a golden glow about them for the man in the White House today.

"When I promised I have these fireside chats, I had sumptin' a li'l different in mind."

THIS AFTERNOON

A Hard Look At Pay Scale

By BILL NOBLITT
(First of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — State employees and teachers launching lobbying efforts for another major pay raise are about to run head on into growing opposition in the General Assembly.

Underlying resistance is the little-known fact that governmental employees are already making consistently and considerably more than the average taxpayer on his private job.

How much more? Generally, state salaries run between $1,000 and $2,000 per year more than those paid in private industry. In some more rural counties, the difference soars as high as $4,000.

Some legislators are beginning to take a hard look at the figures contained in a collection of complicated charts and graphs drawn from various sources such as the Employment Security Commission office, agency personnel shops, the U. S. Census, and various other state reports.

Higher Than Most
The bottom line is startling even to those who have been close to state budget operations for years: the average state salary and wage payment is well above $10,000 per year.

The average private industry salary and wage payment is $8,647. Those are statewide figures. The disparity varies sharply from one area of the state to another.

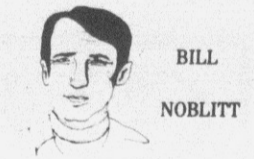

In Camden County, for example, the average state salary is over $9,000; average private salaries run $5,519.

Legislators are reluctant to get into the subject. Teachers and other state employees are well organized and active politically; legislators will tell you bluntly they have to be careful not to alienate those 140,000 organized votes.

Privately, it's a different story. Instead of public pronouncements of having to offer attractive salaries to attract and hold the best people in state jobs, a powerful member of the General Assembly admitted the pay scale has gotten far out of line.

"It has gotten there through the continuous flow of propaganda put out by the highly paid lobbyists of the North Carolina Association of Educators, and the State Employees Association," that veteran lawmaker remarked bluntly—off the record.

BILL NOBLITT

A state senator is presently pulling the information together from state and national sources to back up his contention that while state employee and teacher pay in North Carolina ranks around 10th or 12th in the nation; average per capita income and average manufacturing wages consistently run at or near the bottom nationally.

May Balk
That senator says privately that if his research proves his contention, he will call a news conference and publicly spell out the disparity and call on his colleagues in the General Assembly not to grant a major pay raise this year.

The figures are already available in a published report languishing on the shelves of the Legislative Library. The data is buried in a technical research study of tax-exempt state-owned property conducted by a legislative committee chaired by State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison.

The major rationale used by that study commission for not recommending state payments to local governments in lieu of local property taxes is the healthy impact on local economies of the state employees quartered in those state governmental centers.

The statewide percentage of state employees as compared to total employees is 7.7 per cent; while state salaries are 8.85 per cent of total salaries paid. Thus, fewer workers receive more money, and that report states flatly: "State employee salaries are higher than salaries of other types of employees."

At another point, that document states: "The average annual state salary per employee generally is $1,000 to $2,000 higher than the average for private industry employees..."

EASING TERMS?

Envoys To Panama Set

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's special envoys are preparing to leave for Panama amid reports that the Carter administration is ready to ease U. S. terms for a new Canal Treaty.

Major elements of Carter's projected compromise remain secret, but U.S. officials say they expect the President, represented in the talks by Washington lawyer Sol M. Linowitz, to move nearer Panamanian demands on several key issues.

As U.S. negotiators prepared to leave Sunday for Panama, Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino

Boyd resigned Wednesday in a dispute with strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera over the canal talks.

Torrijos named as Boyd's replacement, Nicolas Gonzalez Revilla, Panama's current ambassador to the United States.

U.S. sources say the canal talks issues on which U.S. movement is expected relate to the duration of the new treaty, circumstances in which the United States can exercise primary rights to defend the canal, the size of the 533-square mile Canal Zone, arrangements that would give Panama a bigger share of Canal tolls and other revenue and ways of expanding the waterway so that it can handle big new ships.

$2 Bill Needs A Push

By R. GREGORY NOKES,
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Having failed on its own, the government now is considering paying an advertising agency $300,000 to convince Americans they need the $2 bill.

Officials admit disappointment in the public reception given the $2 bill since it was brought back with considerable fanfare about 10 months ago.

In fact, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has stopped printing the bills, at least temporarily. Of the approximately 415 million that were printed, about 222 million actually went into circulation.

But that number is not as impressive as it might seem. Millions of the $2 bills apparently were hoarded away as souvenirs.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

In the instance you mentioned in your recent editorial, Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram can take no credit for the reduction in the rate request for private passenger auto liability insurance. The N. C. Automobile Rate Administrative Office reduced the request after it detected errors in the individual statistics submitted to it by some of the companies. The statutes require the Rate Office to file requests which reflect rates which are adequate, but not excessive. The amendment to the filing was in response to that statutory duty.

The same statistics were submitted to the Commissioner of Insurance. If his Department found the errors, they failed to say so until after the Rate Office amended its filing.

Commissioner Ingram has "held down" almost all rates, but because he has been successful does not make it right. He has exercised "price control" of insurance rates, but nothing for which insurance pays is under price control. No one wants to see any prices go up (unless that person is selling). However, it makes no sense to allow uncontrolled costs and then impose price controls on the end product.

The public tends to believe the Commissioner of Insurance, but its primary interest is in holding down rates, even if such price control is illogical and harmful in the long run. The public, Commissioner Ingram and the companies all have points of view influenced by their own interests. The only impartial observers, the courts, have repeatedly overruled the Commissioner. He has lost, but the companies have not won because justified and documented rate relief has not been granted. This impasse is being reflected in sharply declining availability of insurance. Soon the public will question Commissioner Ingram's past performance.

THE INSIDE REPORT

A Bad Memory Is Revived

By ROWLANDE EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — An early tactical error by President Carter in his forceful efforts to redeem his campaign pledge of reorganizing the bloated federal bureaucracy threatens to revive, at the outset of the supposed honeymoon, the old confrontation over presidential vs. congressional powers that dominated the Nixon era.

Mr. Carter's mistake seems trivial. He has insisted on his own plan for reorganization authority instead of a more restrictive one proposed by Rep. Jack Brooks of Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee. But Brooks, strong-willed and tough-talking, is sticking to his guns — with results unanticipated at the White House.

The threatened struggle of "face" between the President and chairman Brooks has taken on aspects that recall to some lawmakers the bad old pre-Carter days of Vietnam and Watergate. That climate, if it gets much worse, will not favor ratification of the reorganization plans intended by Mr. Carter to fulfill his earliest, often repeated and best received campaign promise.

President Carter inadvertently set the battle lines for the reorganization struggles of 1977 on Jan. 12. Following up his pledges to streamline the federal government as he claimed to have streamlined Georgia's government, he sent a hand-signed note to every member of Congress from his home in Plains.

"I need your cooperation," Mr. Carter wrote. "My request is that I be given the same reorganization authority granted to Richard Nixon when he became President in 1969. Your early action will permit us to begin work soon after the inauguration."

That private presidential pressure, intended only as a straightforward play for congressional support on the President's priority issue, is proving offensive to some members of Congress — on two counts:

First, it reminded the present Congress of the sweeping reorganization plan for a centralized federal establishment in Richard M. Nixon's second term. Regarded on Capitol Hill as a dangerous grab for power, the Nixon plan failed when Congress refused to extend his reorganization authority in the spring of 1973. Soon thereafter, Nixon was fatally embroiled in Watergate.

The second problem with Mr. Carter's Jan. 12 letter was that it collided head on with Brooks, whose committee handles reorganization authority. In a special trip to Plains Jan. 3, Brooks spelled out his opposition to the reorganization powers that the new President wanted. When Brooks left Plains after that visit, he and Mr. Carter, as one insider told us, "were definitely not in a 100 per cent meeting of the minds."

Brooks is insisting that the old authority given many Presidents for reshuffling government agencies and bureaus eroded congressional powers. Under that authority, now desired by Mr. Carter, a reorganization plan became law unless vetoed by either the House or Senate.

Brooks told Mr. Carter he could reorganize the government almost as easily by sending his plans to Congress for affirmative votes in both Houses, just like an ordinary bill, with ironclad guarantees against congressional delays such as a Senate filibuster.

Thus, Mr. Carter's private communication to Congressmen was an effort to outflank Brooks. Moreover, repeated assurances to Mr. Carter by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that he assuredly would get the reorganization authority he wanted rankles Brooks and some members of his committee. O'Neill did not start lobbying Brooks to support the Carter plan until long after the Carter letter. The speaker's latest effort, a meeting with Brooks Jan. 31, failed to break the deadlock.

With compromise seemingly out of reach, the battle lines are now forming in the Government Operations Subcommittee.

Strength For Today

THE NOBILITY OF SERVICE

Before Jesus came into the world, the last thing anyone wanted to be was a servant. Then came the humble teacher of Nazareth preaching a doctrine that transformed many of the beliefs and practices of mankind. Among other things, Jesus declared that it was noble to serve. He insisted that the highest calling was to be servant of God and of mankind.

It is significant that people running for public office now declare in one way or another that they are the servants of the public. In marked contrast to the rulers of ancient, pre-Christian times, they insist that they will endeavor to serve their constituents in every way possible.

The greatest man who ever lived not imparted to mankind a sense of the nobility of service; he lived such a life of humble service himself that he gladly laid down his life in bringing that service to a climax. And even more important, he made us aware that we are all servants of God.

Trading Stamps; You're Ready

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP
Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Remember trading stamps, those little manifestations of the carnival spirit of the 1960s that, in the hearts of shoppers anyway, seemed about to replace the official coin of the realm?

Well, they're coming back! But, you say, you've heard that story before, almost every year in the past three or four. True. But now they're really coming back, the stamp people say because — are you prepared — you're ready for them.

Stamp people do have some expertise in this area, their survival being dependent upon how well they appeal to the instincts, desires and needs of shoppers. And they do have some evidence, although it may not yet make a case.

Still, H. W. Greenough, president of the Trading Stamp Institute of America, proclaims: "Most areas of the country will see a return of stamps in the next year."

Some chains are signing up again. The industry's volume was up 15 per cent last year. The games, books and sets of dishes, all meant to keep you coming to the same store each week, are said to be losing their appeal.

Most important of all, discounting, the biggest competitor to stamps, is believed to be on the way out. If it isn't, say some grocery officials, the food store industry might be.

In 1968, the height of the stamp mania, $900 million worth of them were put into the hands of consumers. Seventy-two per cent of the 32,000 supermarkets were said to be stamp-givers.

It took close to two decades of growth to reach that 70 per cent level. It took only four years or so to reverse the percentages. By 1973, only 30 per cent gave stamps. Many of the others stressed discounting, or price-cutting.

Price-cutting might have seemed the most perfectly logical development then, as it does now. What greater appeal to shopper instincts than a lowered price? None, apparently, none at all.

But storekeepers found price-cutting didn't necessarily breed loyalty. Instead, shoppers scurried around to benefit from specials at various stores, and down went store profits.

"When people shopped around, the store's mix went down the drain. They bought only the specials, and it reduced gross profits by 1.5 to 3 per cent," said Greenough.

The situation became critical for many stores. Several large chains fell into precarious financial positions and some were forced into bankruptcy proceedings.

The stamp people were poised. Gold Bond Stamps, Greenough's company, combined stamp-saving with price-cutting, permitting customers to trade their stamps for whatever special product discount the storeowner chose.

"I don't think stamps will ever again have 70 per cent of stores," said Greenough, "but they are on the way back." His own company, one of the privately owned Carlson Companies of Minneapolis, had a 20 per cent gain in 1976.

40 Years Ago Today

February 10, 1937

Its eleven occupants given up for dead, a wrecked United Air Lines plane was found early today under water except for its tail in South San Francisco Bay, where it plunged last night after passing up a landing field.

"There is no possibility anyone on board is alive," said B. M. Doolin, San Francisco airport manager, after returning from inspecting the damage.

Several prominent westerners, including a millionaire, were on board. A derrick and deep-sea diver were ordered to the scene.

Action spoke louder than words when Rep. William B. Bankhead of Alabama, Speaker of the House of Representatives, went backstage in a Washington theater to congratulate his daughter Tallulah for her performance in "Reflected Glory."

There was a big hug and kiss from the Speaker when Tallulah asked him if he liked her on the stage.

Mark 50,000th Bus Passenger

The 50,000th passenger plateau was reached Wednesday by the Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) system.

The city marked the occasion by recognizing the system's 50,000th rider with a bouquet of carnations and 40-ride pass for future transit convenience.

Mayor Percy Cox was on hand to present the pass to Elizabeth Tucker of 109-A, Howard Circle after she was designated as the 50,000th user of the city's public transportation system. Mrs. Tucker was a passenger on Route Three of the system Wednesday.

The chairman of the Public Transit Commission, Ms. Linda Hix, presented the carnations to Mrs. Tucker following the Route Three bus arrival at Evans Mall shortly after 11 a.m.

GREAT initiated operations here on July 29 of 1976 and reached the 25,000 passenger milestone on Nov. 19 after only three and a half months of service.

The bus service averaged 347 passengers per day through January, according to Ms. Hix and experienced its best month in December with a daily average of 453 riders.

She pointed out that Thursday, Feb. 3, designated as Dollar Day in Greenville, marked the highest one-day passenger total

Show A Profit In Hunt For Runaway Fathers

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Finding divorced fathers who don't make their child support payments has become a big business in North Carolina, and for the first time last year it turned a quarterly profit.

"For the first time from October to December we collected more money than we spent," says Edwin C. Riley, chief of the Social Services Division child support enforcement section. "We're just now becoming cost effective."

Now, Riley says, the section can concentrate on its ultimate goal — getting abandoned mothers and children off welfare and onto child support.

Riley's section went into business in April of 1975. Its major task was to make sure through the courts that all welfare mothers who were supposed to be getting child support could collect it.

The mothers get their welfare, and the child support money is used to reimburse the welfare program. Ultimately, Riley says, the goal is to raise child support payments above welfare levels and get the mothers off the dole.

But the service is not exclusively for welfare mothers. Anyone can use it for $100 — less than a private attorney would cost — and Riley says the program has been just as useful for keeping families off welfare as it has for getting them off.

The program, with its 250-member staff, is expensive — about $2.5 million a year.

It cost taxpayers more to run the program for its first five quarters than they got back in support payments from delinquent fathers.

But in the last quarter of 1976, Riley says the program spent about $600,000 and brought in approximately $750,000, not a bad investment of the people's money.

And it will get better, Riley promises. By the time the program is in its fourth year, he predicts, it should be bringing in support payments totaling $15 million annually on a $4 million budget.

Most of Riley's 40,000 cases involve welfare mothers, the fathers of whose children live in North Carolina.

But about 300 cases per month involve seeking the money from out of state, which Riley's staff can do through reciprocal agreements with other states.

And about 8 or 9 per cent of Riley's caseload are non-welfare mothers, a source of work which Riley expects will increase in the months ahead.

There are about 600 species of parrots, most of which live in the tropics.

nirs soon after they were issued last April 13, and have been unused since.

James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said he is encouraged that four million of the $2 bills showed up in circulation in December, the last month for which a count is available.

Conlon said in an interview that he thinks consumers want the $2 bill but just aren't getting a chance to use it because retail merchants aren't distributing it.

"The apparent reluctance by retailers to utilize the notes in making change ... that's the key focal point," he said.

Conlon said there is no danger yet that the new $2 bills will go the way of the old $2 bills, which were phased out of circulation in 1966 because people weren't using them. "We're firm in our intention," he said.

He said the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Federal Reserve Board are proposing a "more positive" public relations campaign than has been tried before to win acceptance for the $2 bill.

If Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal approves, Conlon said, the agencies will seek bids from advertising agencies and others to undertake the campaign, which would cost about $300,000.

The purpose in reissuing the $2 bill was to replace some of the $1 bills in circulation and save the government up to $7 million a year in printing costs.

It costs about $15 to print 1,000 bills, regardless of denomination.

committee on Legislation, which Brooks also heads. Even if Brooks loses there, the issue moves to the 43-member full committee, where the chairman has shown himself unchallenged master.

If this proves true again, White House experts are talking bravely about clipping Brooks in the House itself. But they may be overlooking the weighty factor of prerogatives in a Congress that is flexing muscles developed during the Watergate disgrace of the White House.

As one Democratic leader in the House told us: "This is starting as a personal struggle between Jimmy and Jack but the hotter it gets, the more it will turn into an institutional balance-of-power fight." Indeed, the White House may be overconfident in assuming the Senate will quickly give Mr. Carter the power he wants, whatever happens in the House. Some Senators are all too willing not to give Jimmy Carter what they gave pre-Watergate Presidents all the way back to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But Mr. Carter's confidential letter, intended to boost his reorganization plans, has frozen him into a no-compromise posture and turned a relatively insignificant difference of opinion into a test of wills. That is not the easiest way to achieve a top-to-bottom housecleaning of the federal leviathan — one of the most difficult tasks a new President ever set for himself.

Fall Leasing Bill Offered

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced that he has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives to tighten procedures for fall leasing of tobacco marketing quotas.

The move is aimed at reducing speculation associated with such leasing. The bill applies to leasing which takes place after June 15 of each year. Leasing between two farms could occur only if at least 80 per cent of the tobacco allotment had been planted. The present law has a 50 per cent requirement.

Congressman Jones explained that this fall leasing program was originally designed to help farmers who actually planted their allotments. In the past a few persons have held onto allotments until the fall leasing period with the hope of leasing at artificially higher prices.

Canal Treaty...

The Canal Zone is likely to shrink considerably below the 270-square-mile area previously proposed by U.S.

negotiators, but it is unlikely to be as small as the 55-square miles Panama proposed.

The U.S. garrison of 10,000 military personnel and their dependents now stationed in Panama almost certainly will be cut under probable U.S. concessions.

The Carter administration also seems certain also to raise Panama's share of canal revenue, which now totals $2.3 million annually.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Unseasonably mild weather is forecast for today from the central and northern Rockies to the middle Atlantic region. Seasonable temperatures are expected for most of the nation. Showers are due in Texas and the western Gulf and rain is expected for the Northwest with possible snow flurries. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
High pressure continued to dominate North Carolina's weather today along with moderating temperatures. Clear skies were the rule as temperatures rose.

The forecast called for high readings today ranging from the mid 50s to the low 60s with lows tonight from the mid 20s in the mountains to around 40 on the Outer Banks.

With a continuing warming trend, temperatures Friday should be mostly in the 60s. Saturday's skies will be partly cloudy as moisture from the Gulf of Mexico begins to work its way into the state on increasing southwesterly winds. It will be dry and mild through Saturday with a chance of some showers Sunday.

High temperatures Wednesday found reporting points generally in the 50s with lows this morning in the 20s. The high readings included: Asheville, Charlotte and Fayetteville 54, Hickory and Greensboro and Raleigh-Durham 53, Wilmington 54, Rocky Mount 51 and Elizabeth City 50. Cape Hatteras could get no warmer than 46.

Lows this morning included 20 at Asheville, 29 at Charlotte and 26 at Greensboro, Raleigh-Durham and Wilmington.

Public Health Nurse's Long Service Is Ended

Mrs. Addie Griffith retired recently after serving as public health nurse with the Pitt County Health Department since May 2, 1949.

She organized the midwife program of the Health Department, maintained her own nursing district which included eight Pitt County schools, was charge nurse for varied clinics, was instrumental in the establishment of the local Crippled Children's Speech and Hearing Clinic, was supervisor of nurses in the satellite clinics, and since 1972 had served as Pitt County's "roving nurse."

Her boss, Roger J. Barnaby, health director, said, "Mrs. Griffith's service to this agency and this area has been outstanding. Her experience and knowledge have given her a great awareness of community health problems and her compassion for people has proven her a fine example of a genuinely concerned public health nurse."

Gilda Volkman, charge nurse for the Health Department pediatric clinics, told of her experience with Mrs. Griffith. "As part of my orientation to the agency, I had to spend a day with her. At first, the thought of this wasn't too exciting to me. I mean, I knew as one of the older nurses here, her ideas were probably eccentric, her methods outdated, and probably in the time it took her to do one home visit, I could have done five.

Boy, was I completely wrong. I sometimes think that my "love affair" with Mrs. Griffith began on that first day. It simply amazed me how she could pick any country road in Pitt County, ride along and tell who lived in each house, how old they were, and what type of health problems they were having. As if that wasn't enough, if she didn't know a particular family, she'd make it her business to stop, talk with them, ask them if there was anything she could do to help them, and then tell them about the health services available to them. The people she visited didn't just accept her, they loved her. When her car would pull into a yard, children would flock around it and you hear someone yelling, "Miss Addie's here, Miss Addie's here."

Mrs. Griffith and her husband are now living in the Charlotte area.

Long List Of Items Is Studied By Martin Bd.

WILLIAMSTON — In a busy session, members of the Martin County Board of Commissioners Monday considered a long list of items, many of which required no immediate action.

One of the major items approved was that of the receipt of an $8,000 grant from the state of North Carolina for a Jamesville Junior League Ball Park. Approval carried a stipulation that the county be considered the purchasing agent with the county abiding by state laws in the handling of these funds.

Another item acted on favorably was that of an attendance and leave plan for the Tideland Mental Health Center, of which Martin County is a member county. Submitted by Faye Rogers, the plan is similar to the personnel policy of North Carolina.

A request made by Jean Biggs, director of the Martin County Dept. of Social Services for $3,500 to cover expenses of eight children brought into county custody was tabled until a review of funds can be carried out by the county accountant.

A request that the Alliance for Progress concept programs for Martin County be submitted to the National Association of Counties Awards program won county approval.

Action was tabled until later on a request from the Onslow County Board of Commissioners, who are seeking support from various counties for a brief mandatory jail sentence for persons found driving under the influence of alcohol.

Ben D. Courtney was named to a three year term on the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin (BHM) Regional Library Commission. Courtney succeeds D. R. Davis.

Average Data On Homebuyer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average American home buying family has an annual income of $21,615 and is paying between $40,000 and $45,000 for a house, according to a survey by the National Association of Home Builders.

The typical head of household is 33 years old, has already owned a house, and moves from less than five miles to 25 miles away from the previous residence.

The main source of financing comes from personal savings or equity from the sale of a previous home, economists of the NAHB found.

JUMPS — Marc Salinger, above, son of former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, jumped to his death Wednesday from San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge, the county coroner's office said. Salinger, 28, was a San Francisco resident. (AP Wirephoto)

See Chance Of Rural Fire Dept. Funds

The Mid-East Commission has received information that state funds may be available to rural fire departments.

In a continuing effort to assist rural fire departments in North Carolina, the Department of Agriculture is releasing funds to the state. Congress appropriated $70,000 under the 1972 Rural Community Fire Protection Act for Fiscal Year 1977, the final year of the pilot program.

North Carolina's funds will again be administered through the Division of Forest Resources of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Wayne Harris, Local Government Coordinator with the Mid-East Commission is encouraging all interested rural fire departments in the region to seek financial assistance, through the Federal program.

The maximum amount available to a rural fire department is $2,000; although, up to $5,000 will be considered for special projects if a request for the extra funds is accompanied by added justification.

The following criteria are necessary to secure a grant: The population served by the rural fire department must be less than 10,000. The department must have a legal basis for existence. The department must answer fire calls without discrimination. The department must agree to furnish at least 50 per cent of the funds required for equipment purchase.

Program emphasis will focus on assisting interested communities to establish an organized fire department and on aiding recently organized fire departments, and those fire departments with little or no equipment.

Rural communities seeking the funds should contact Harris at the Mid-East Commission office, 122 North Market Street, Washington, N.C. or call 946-8043 to obtain the necessary forms. Written requests for funds must be received by April 1, 1977 in the Division of Forest Resources Office, 443 North Person St. Box 27687 Raleigh, N.C.

The North Carolina Forest Service has acquired a limited number of Federal excess 3/4 ton and 1 1/4 ton class vehicles which will also be available to rural fire departments on indefinite loan, provided they be converted to pumpers within a specialized time. To assist in defraying a portion of the conversion costs, on vehicles obtained from the Federal Government and other sources, rural fire departments may use Rural Community Fire Protection Funds.

SBI Director Says Combatting Crime Is Everybody's Problem

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
Haywood Starling, Director of the SBI was the guest speaker at the Greenville Kiwanis Club's kick off meeting of their "Safeguard Against Crime" program.

"Safeguard Against Crime" is the Kiwanis International major emphasis theme for the year 1976-77. Starling was asked to help kickoff the local club's activities during Crime Prevention Week February 7-12.

Starling told the Kiwanis that combating crime is everyone's problem. "Combating crime is not only restricted to law enforcement but requires active citizen involvement as Governor Hunt has pointed out in his crime message," Starling said.

"It affects each of us. We pay out of our pockets in the future for crime if we don't curb crime now. We in North Carolina must take a new look at the way in which we fight crime. We take an after the fact look at crime and seem to be reactors not actors. We need to take a fresh look and work to prevent crime and all segments of society must help," he said.

In discussing the problem and prevention of juvenile delinquency, Starling said that citizens must work to make a good impression on children and help them become good citizens.

"It is my belief that families, churches, and schools are agencies that are responsible for crime prevention. We must help these impressionable young minds become law abiding citizens. The most important factor is the quality of the home life. The solutions to the juvenile crime prevention are to become a living example of obedience of the law, seek facts on crime problems, support the enforcement of laws, and practice crime prevention," Starling said.

Starling commended the Kiwanis Club for its efforts in crime prevention and solicited its continuing support.

Bill Roberts, chairman of the major emphasis program, introduced Starling and explained that the club's crime prevention brochure is being distributed to 6,000 families in the Greenville area.

The crime prevention brochure entitled "A Message To Women", outlines residential protection, and walking, driving, and at home precautions.

Dr. Dave Stevens, president of the club, said that a copy of the brochure had been sent to Henry Burness, Carolina District Chairman of the major emphasis program.

Burness sent a copy of the brochure to Governor Hunt and explained that the Greenville Kiwanis Club will be distributing them throughout the Greenville area in an effort to promote citizen awareness about crime and self protection. Stevens also said that several Kiwanis clubs are interested in reproducing copies of the Greenville club's brochure and distributing them in their towns.

Arrests In Drug Sweep

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Several months of undercover police work culminated Wednesday in a series of drug arrests in Gaston County.

About 40 police officers, some wearing bullet proof vests, gathered at the county police department, formed into teams and then spread out over the county.

At last report they had arrested 17 of the 26 suspects for whom there were grand jury indictments as a result of the probe.

"I think a hit of heroin will be hard to find on the streets of this county tonight," said Vance Furr of the State Bureau of Investigation, who coordinated the arrests.

Most of the suspects were charged with possession of heroin. Bond for each was set at $5,000.

Police also seized 17 pistols at the home of Finland Black, 28, of Gastonia, when they arrested him on two charges of possession and sale of heroin.

Retain Law On Scalping

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill that would have made it legal to "scalp" or speculate in tickets to athletic events in North Carolina has been killed by the North Carolina Senate.

After a brief debate Wednesday, the Senate voted 41-7 to defeat the bill sponsored by Sen. William G. Smith, D-New Hanover. The vote came after several senators spoke against the measure.

One of them, Sen. Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, said that President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina favored keeping the law which makes it illegal to sell a ticket to an athletic event at a price higher than the price on the ticket.

Hill also told the Senate the law carries a substantial penalty and "is a deterrent to the Mafia" from moving into the ticket scalping business in North Carolina.

Smith said the law had been largely ignored and that Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten favors its repeal.

"It's a ridiculous thing to clutter up the lawbooks with this sort of thing that no one pays any attention to, Smith said.

Drugs Stolen In Local Break-In

Chief Glenn Cannon said a break-in at Hollowell's Drug Store on West Sixth Street early today netted thieves a quantity of drugs.

Cannon said entrance to the building was gained by throwing a cement block through a glass door.

Reported taken were 600 Tuinal tabs, 500 Librium tabs and 500 Valium tabs.

The break-in occurred about 2:53 a.m.

Detectives Capture Four 'Best' IRA Terrorists

LONDON (AP) — Four gunmen of the Irish Republican Army who for 18 months waged a terror campaign of murder and bombing in England were sentenced today to life imprisonment and 47 times over and to additional prison terms totaling more than 600 years among them.

The four men — Martin O'Connell, Edward Butler, Harry Duggan and Hugh Doherty — were found guilty Wednesday of 25 counts of murder and bombing.

The judge, Sir Joseph Cantley, who at the start of the 13-day trial was told he was on the terrorists' death list, said the four men should serve not less than 30 years each on the murder charges.

In Britain, a life sentence can be reviewed and shortened at any time by the Home Secretary, and judges frequently recommend the minimum time they feel should be served.

The convictions put the police on the alert for a new wave of bombing. One Scotland Yard officer reported: "We expect the IRA to hit back at any moment. ... The terrorists have already publicly stated they plan a bombing campaign far worse than anything they have done before."

"We're the best there's been," Butler boasted to Yard men who captured them 14 months ago.

The Yard grudgingly agreed. "They were considered the most important terrorists in Britain until they were caught," a senior officer commented. "They were all Public Enemy No. 1."

"They were a tight-knit unit, well disciplined, closely integrated and without misfits. They were also the most violent and ruthless cell active in England."

Butler and the other three men were convicted at London's Old Bailey court Wednesday on 25 counts of murder and bombing. Sentencing was set for today.

The squad was part of a crack IRA team trained in the Irish Republic in 1973 to create havoc and panic in England's major cities, Scotland Yard said. The aim was to pressure the British into ending their rule of Northern Ireland, where the Roman Catholic IRA has been fighting for seven and a half years to force the British out of the Protestant-dominated province and unite it with the neighboring Republic.

The leader of the squad was Joseph O'Connell, a 25-year-old Irishman from County Clare on the Republic's west coast. The others were Butler and 24-year-old Harry Duggan, both Irishmen, and Glasgow-born Hugh Doherty.

They surrendered on Dec. 12, 1975, after a six-day siege in an apartment in central London. Among their victims were anti-IRA campaigner Ross McWhirter, a prominent right-winger and co-editor of the "Guinness Book of Records," and cancer specialist Gordon Hamilton-Fairley, who was killed by a car bomb intended for a member of Parliament in whose home Caroline Kennedy was staying.

Scotland Yard sources said the four were the last of a network of about 20 IRA Provisionals believed responsible for at least 12 killings, more than 50 bombings and a score of shootings between early 1974 and December 1975.

Known as No. 1 Active Service Unit Overseas, they ran an elaborate cell system in England's major cities with bomb factories in rooming houses and suburban villas, hideouts, arms dumps and a gelignite smuggling pipeline from the Republic.

Police said letters found in the unit's hideouts listed suggested operations that included poisoning London's water supply and flooding the subway system.

Rampants Entering Final Cage Week

IT'S A STEAL — Davidson's John Gerdy takes the ball away from North Carolina State's Al Green (10) during first half action in Wednesday night's game in Raleigh. N.C. State held off the Wildcats for a 67-55 win. (AP Wirephoto)

The coming week will climax the regular season in basketball, and also bring wrestling to an end except for those qualifying for state competition in Rose athletics.

Both the boys and girls basketball teams wind up their season with games this weekend plus two more next week.

Wrestling started the final countdown this morning when the Division I tournament, with Rose favored to win another title, opened in Wilson.

That affair will wind up this evening. Most of the Rose grapplers will then be in competition next weekend in the sectional tournament, which sets berths for the state tournament.

Rose High's girls' basketball team is also in action tonight, playing host to Bertie.

Monday, they return to action facing Northern Nash on the road.

The boys' basketball team has two important games, both at home, during the next seven days. Friday night, they entertain Northern Nash, while Tuesday, Wilson visits.

"I'd be the happiest person in the world if we could win two of the next three games." Basketball coach Jim Brewington said. "I feel we can beat Wilson if we get a good effort from all of our kids. Northeastern (next Friday) will be tough to beat up there."

Rose Roundup

Turning to the first task, Northern Nash, Brewington pointed out that some of the regulars were not in top shape for the first game, won by the Knights. "We just don't have the bench that other teams have," the coach said. "We have to depend on our regulars to do the job most of the time. If we get a 100 per cent effort out of all five, then we can win against anyone."

Brewington said that, looking back over the year, he can see that the team has come a long way. "I think that this means we have a good future ahead of us. We lost a couple of games by wide margins, but in most of the conference games, we have had a chance to win."

Getting the effort from all five starters was one of the problems in the defeat Tuesday to Bertie. "We only got the good effort from two people. William Barnes is playing real well now. He's improved a lot.

"Fouls have hurt us. Our kids are trying so hard that we've made a lot of unnecessary fouls. We can't win that way."

Brewington, looking to next year, said that the Rampants should have a much stronger bench next year, since only one member of the team, Derek Brewington, graduates. "We'll have a lot of guards, and we still need a good big man. But the conference loses a lot of people, so we should be in pretty good shape."

Conley Again Reigns As Wrestling Champ

BETHEL — D. H. Conley's Vikings again captured the Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling championship, easily outdistancing the rest of the field last night.

The tournament trophy will be added to the regular season title already won by the Vikings.

Conley piled up 208 points in the meet, well ahead of Farmville Central, which finished with 116½. Southern Nash came in a strong third at 111, while North Pitt was fourth at 79½.

Ayden-Gritton trailed with 52 points.

Conley ended up with ten individual championships in the meet, while Farmville Central had two and North Pitt, one.

North Pitt's Aubrey Wynne, the winner at 157-pounds, was named the meet's Most Valuable Wrestler.

Farmville Central's champs included Horace Williams at 121 and John Dupree at heavyweight.

Conley's winners were Gary Harris at 101; Alton Crandall at 107; Floyd Crandall at 114; Ronald Harris at 128; Larry Powell at 134; Curtis Dixon at 140; Marvin Hardy at 147; Charles Hanson at 169; Paul Bridges at 187, and Jesse Davis at 197.

Conley's Lo Carmon, the favorite at heavyweight, had to drop out in the semifinals due to an injury.

The match wound up the regular season for the Eastern Carolina teams, who participate in the sectionals next weekend at Rose.

Southern Nash Defeats Jaguars

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash handed Farmville Central's Jaguars another loss last night, 78-65, but the Eastern Carolina Conference champion girls from Farmville came away with a 45-40 win.

In the boys' game, Southern inched out into a 12-9 lead in the first period of play. They were able to extend that by two points in the second quarter, and led, 34-29, at the half.

Another point went up in the third period, as the Firebirds held the lead at 45-39. Southern finished off the Jags with a 33-26 margin in the final quarter.

Julia Moye led Farmville with 16 points, while Shirley Hall had 17 for Southern.

Farmville closes out the regular season Friday, traveling to North Lenoir.

Miller Has Some Problems

By BOB GREEN, AP Golf Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller was discussing the problems attendant to playing a round of golf with former President Gerald Ford, Bob Hope and Sammy Davis Jr.

The foursome played before a massive, enthusiastic, shouting gallery that lined every fairway four or five deep, was constantly moving, clicking cameras and calling words of encouragement.

"It's difficult," Miller said. "There is no advantage to playing in that group."

Then he paused and a mischievous grin flashed across his face.

"Wait until (Billy) Casper plays with him on Saturday," Miller said of Ford's fourth-round partner, a normally-placid veteran who angers only at crowd noises and camera clicks. "There'll be even more people. And Billy will finish with all his hair in his pocket."

Miller, who has won the last two Bob Hope Desert Classics, could do no better than a 74 in the company of the celebrities who drew a huge gallery to the Indian Wells Country Club for Wednesday's first of five rounds. This is a unique, 90-hole event that is spread over four courses in the desert resort where Ford plans his retirement home.

"That's about par, 74," Miller said. "That's what Arnold (Palmer) had at Pebble Beach" in another pro-am event with the former President as his partner last month.

While Miller was slashing his way to a two-over-par effort on probably the easiest of the four tournament courses, Rik Massengale, the runner-up last year, fired an almost errorless round of 64 in which he hit every green, missed only one fairway, didn't have a bogey and dropped putts totaling more than 50 yards in length.

He holed two birdie putts of 20 feet, two more of 30 and one from about 45 in establishing a three-stroke lead over Alan Tapie and Bruce Lietzke, the young man who has had such a sensational start this year. Lietzke's five-under-par effort, like Massengale and Miller, was at Indian Wells and marked the 17th consecutive round this season — 22nd going back to last year — in which he has been par or better.

A group of seven, headed by Hubert Green and Lanny Wadkins, was next, two more strokes behind at 69. Palmer, a five-time winner of this tournament, had a 73, while South African Gary Player opened his American season with a 70.

Individual amateur's scores are not compiled, since they are required to pick up once they are out of a hole. Ford's three-man team, however, was 11 under par, including their handicaps.

"The President has a good swing, a real good swing, but he was a little nervous starting off in front of all those people and was getting a little quick," Miller said. "I got him to slow down his tempo and he helped the team maybe four shots."

In a departure from normal procedure, Ford was scheduled to play with different amateur partners today — Flip Wilson and Saul Kamin, along with PGA champion Dave Stockton.

Farmville Central's girls' basketball team accomplished two things in their game at C. B. Aycock Tuesday night.

The Lady Jaguars avenged an earlier loss — their only one of the season in league play — and also clinched the regular season girls' title in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

In their earlier game at Farmville, the Falconettes had pulled out a hard-fought 52-50 victory over the Lady Jags.

Tuesday night, Aycock froze the ball the entire evening against Farmville, but the Lady Jaguars were able to gain a 21-16 victory in the final period behind Julia Moye's nine points.

The win leaves the Farmville girls with a 14-2 overall record and 11-1 league mark, clinching the top spot with two games left to play. Aycock was the only team with a chance to catch the Lady Jags before the game, but they were eliminated as their record fell to 9-4.

Moye paced Farmville, as she has done all year. She is the leading girls' scorer in the area with with a 15.8 average.

Guard Jennifer Counterman quarterbacks the squad and is scoring just under nine points per game. The Lady Jags also get help from Dianne Barrett and Ilean Phillips.

A first-place finish during the regular season is certainly something to be proud of, but Farmville still must get through the conference tournament in order to make it to the state playoffs.

A power failure in Bethel Tuesday night means at least a couple more days of suspense for Ayden-Grifton's boys team.

The Chargers are still hanging tough in the conference race, but one more win by North Pitt will assure the Panthers of the regular-season title.

North Pitt was scheduled to play North Lenoir Tuesday night, but a wreck caused the lights to go out in the gym at halftime of the girls' game and the games were postponed until tonight.

North Pitt is 11-1 in the league, their only loss was to Ayden-Grifton. The Chargers are 9-3. If North Pitt should lose its last two games, and Ayden-Grifton win its last two, the schools would finish tied.

The Panthers are, of course, favored against the Hawks tonight and could end the suspense for the Chargers with a win. The girls' game will begin at halftime at 7:30 tonight with North Lenoir holding a 20-19 lead.

Keydets Lone Southern Winner

By The Associated Press
East Carolina's Pirates host William & Mary's Indians tonight in a game that could leave the two teams tied for fourth place in the Southern Conference basketball race.

The Indians, who routed the Pirates 79-54 in the first meeting of the teams this season, are 4-4 in league play while East Carolina is 3-5.

Virginia Military, The Citadel and Davidson all went against nonconference foes Wednesday night and, predictably, only the 20th-ranked Keydets came away victorious.

VMI jumped to a quick 10-2 lead behind Will Bynum and

Southern Roundup

then coasted to a 98-84 victory over Morris Harvey's Golden Eagles.

It was the 19th straight win for VMI, now 20-1.

Bynum led all scorers with 28 points while John Krovic added 20 and Ron Carter scored 18 for the Keydets.

VMI hit 79.2 per cent from the field to take a 47-29 halftime lead and shot 66.7 per cent for the game.

Nate Davis tossed in 30 points as South Carolina's Gamecocks crushed The Citadel 85-66.

It was the 11th straight loss for the Bulldogs, now 5-16.

Rick Swing topped the losers with 21 points.

John Gerdy hit 17 of 28 shots from the field and led all scorers with 37 points, but it wasn't enough as Davidson fell to N.C. State 67-55.

The Wildcats jumped to an 8-0 lead with Gerdy scoring three baskets, but the Wolfpack grabbed a 21-20 lead on Al Green's jumper with 8:19 left in the first half and never trailed again.

Kenny Carr led the winners with 14 points.

Marvin Lively and Rod Owens were the only Davidson players to score, tallying 12 and six points respectively.

Coach Dave Pritchett did not substitute and the Wildcats, now 5-16, worked the ball to Gerdy for most of the shots.

Gerdy was averaging 20.9 points per contest before the game. His previous highs had been 30 against Wofford and 29 against Virginia.

Hawkins Sparks Nets; Jabbar Smokes Braves

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Bubbles Hawkins exploded on the basketball court and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar nearly exploded off it.

Hawkins, whom the New York Nets signed as a free agent just two months ago, put on a one-man show Wednesday night, scoring a career-high 44 points to lead the Nets past New Orleans 93-89 in overtime in the National Basketball Association.

Abdul-Jabbar went into the Buffalo stands to "discuss things" with a heckler after leading Los Angeles back into first place in the Pacific Division with a 105-90 verdict over the Braves.

"I still don't think I've arrived yet," Hawkins said after hitting for eight of the Nets' 14 overtime points in New York's comeback victory. "But it sure is nice to show people I can handing Detroit its fifth home loss against 20 wins.

Detroit hit on 57 per cent of its shots, scored a team-record 43 points in the second quarter but, according to Coach Herb Brown, "we didn't play any defense."

San Antonio shot 56 per cent and had four players score more than 20 points, led by Larry Kenon's 29. Bob Lanier had 30 for Detroit.

Pacers 110, Knicks 109

Dave Robisch grabbed an offensive rebound and scored with two seconds left to cap Indiana's comeback. It was the first time the Pacers led since early in the game when they were on top 11-10.

Billy Knight scored 28 points, and John Williamson hit for 26 in his first game as a Pacer. Bob McAdoo scored 36 for the Knicks.

76ers 107, Bucks 104

Lloyd Free scored 22 points to lead Philadelphia past slumping Milwaukee, which lost its fifth game in the last six and 13th out of 16.

Rockets 108, Bulls 103

The Rockets moved to within one-half game of first place Washington in the Central Division as Calvin Murphy scored 28 points.

Hawks 99, SuperSonics 98

Seattle collapsed in the final half-minute and allowed the Hawks to steal the game.

The Sonics Dennis Johnson, who led his team with 19 points, missed three straight free throws with 30 seconds remaining and Seattle ahead 98-95. After Atlanta's Len Robinson sank a pair five seconds later, the Hawks stole Slick Wats' pass. John Drew fired in a short jump shot with 15 seconds left for the victory.

South Korea Might Host

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government is favorably considering a proposed world heavyweight title bout between champion Muhammad Ali and an unnamed challenger here in early May, a local sponsor announced Thursday.

The newspaper Hankook Ilbo said that it already has initiated an agreement with American promoter Paul Covino for staging the fight in Seoul.

Covino told the Korean daily that Ali wanted to defend his title in Seoul when the promoter first approached the paper through its New York bureau last December, Hankook Ilbo said.

The champ was impressed when he was here last June at the invitation of Korean taekwondo (karate) officials after a fight against Japanese wrestler Antonio Inoki in Tokyo.

During the visit, Ali received a hero's welcome from South Koreans and said he would come back "soon" while visiting with American soldiers at Camp Casey, the site of the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division, north east of Seoul.

The would-be sponsor said that no financial problem was expected as the Korean side would be required to put up $5 million dollars in fight money and other expenses against $10 million of revenue from worldwide television relay rights.

A spokesman for the paper said that special seats would be arranged for American soldiers in Korea in consideration of the significance of the U.S. military presence here.

Heels Drub Maryland; Duke Defeats Virginia

By The Associated Press

There was lots of action but little excitement and no surprises in last night's Atlantic Coast Conference games.

The only game of any significance to the league was the University of North Carolina's 91-67 thumping of much-abused Maryland, a victory which came so easily, the Tar Heels didn't even bother to use their fabled four corners offense.

Walter Davis led the Tar Heel attack on their home court with 25 points, his third straight game at that formidable scoring level.

ACC Roundup

The loss dropped Maryland to 4-4 in league play and put a serious dent in the Terps' hopes to remain in contention for a top spot in the standings by season's end.

Meanwhile over in Durham, Duke and Virginia fought another round in what could be regarded as the ACC's consolation rivalry.

Duke won it, 65-49. It was their second league victory of the season, both of which they owe to the Cavaliers, who are now winless after nine ACC games.

"It was an exercise in total frustration," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said of the game, though he might have been talking about the whole season.

"We didn't go to the basket with any authority," he added. "Right now, we're not playing with a lot of confidence."

The game was disappointing to spectators, who saw too many turnovers and not enough good shooting. Jim Spanarkel and Mark Crow were the exceptions, leading the Blue Devils with 24 and 20 points respectively.

"We've had to rely on our defense a lot more since Tate's been out," said Duke coach Bill Foster, referring to star guard Tate Armstrong, whose broken wrist continues to sideline him.

N.C. State didn't even seem to be thinking about what they were doing as they stumbled past Davidson, 67-55, in Raleigh. Kenny Carr led the scoring as usual for the Wolfpack, but with only 14 points.

Still, Davidson might not even have been in the game at all, had it not been for the inspired shooting of John Gerdy, who amazed everyone with a career high performance of 37 points.

"It wasn't that we planned to overlook Davidson," Wolfpack coach Norm Sloan said after the game as he reflected on his team's distracted play. "It would have been the same performance if the opponent had been anything other than a nationally ranked team."

The league is idle until Saturday night, when Clemson meets Maryland, N.C. State meets league leading Wake Forest, UNC squares off against Tulane at Greensboro, Duke hosts St. Joseph's and Virginia plays Old Dominion.

McGuire Gets Warriors Up

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Al McGuire starts screaming at his team, shutting the door on sports writers and recriminating himself, you know something's up.

Actually, it's the Marquette Warriors.

Psychologically, the Marquette coach has no peer. McGuire knows how to get a basketball team higher than a dunk shot — and that's apparently what he did Wednesday night to inspire Marquette to an 81-71 victory over Loyola of Chicago.

The ninth-ranked Warriors, mindful of a post-season bid to the NCAA playoffs, blew a 12-point lead in the first half and this inspired a fierce confrontation with McGuire at intermission.

"I thought at halftime we were in serious trouble," McGuire said. "We had to do it at the start of the second half, which we did. But I told them the second half might be the most important 20 minutes of the whole season, because if you blow it you'll never forgive yourselves."

Translated, that meant McGuire thought that a fourth loss would greatly injure the Warriors' chances for an NCAA bid.

Obviously dead serious about a national championship in his last year as coach, McGuire refused to allow newsmen to interview his players after the game. He said the policy would continue for a week so that the players can concentrate on their goal of a tournament bid.

Elsewhere in college basketball, sixth-rated Louisville routed Southwestern Louisiana 103-82, 12th-ranked Cincinnati defeated Eastern Kentucky 78-60, 14th-ranked North Carolina walloped Maryland 97-70, 16th-ranked Providence turned back DePaul 84-73 and 19th-ranked Detroit beat St. Bonaventure 78-62.

Butch Lee and Bo Ellis each scored 22 points for Marquette. The Warriors held a slim 36-33 lead at the half, but pulled away after intermission behind their top scorers. A 10-point flurry gave Marquette a 50-37 lead and later it was 68-51 with 5:55 left.

Louisville tied a school record by winning its 15th straight game. Rick Wilson and Darrell Griffith each scored 18 points for the Cardinals, who twice led by 34 points in the second half.

Brian Williams scored 15 points, Bob Miller 13 and Steve Collier 12 in a balanced Cincinnati nati attack that led the Bearcats over Eastern Kentucky. Cincinnati held a 40-26 halftime edge and led by as many as 29 points in the second period.

Walter Davis produced 25 points and 12 rebounds to lead North Carolina past Maryland. The Tar Heels led the entire game and at one juncture held a 29-point advantage.

Bob Cooper scored 24 points and collected 10 rebounds, leading Providence over DePaul. Terry Tyler amassed 21 points to lead the University of Detroit past St. Bonaventure.

In another game, Freeman Williams, the nation's leading scorer, poured in 71 points to lead Portland State past Southern Oregon 142-85. Williams' figure is the third highest in Division I history, surpassed only by Frank Selvy's 100-point outing for Furman against Newberry in 1954 and Bill Milky's 73 against Wilkes for Temple in 1951.

ROBERSONVILLE —

Roanoke High School swept a trio of games from Bear Grass High School last night. The boys won their game, 74-51, while the girls took a 47-29 decision. The junior varsity wound it up with a 55-40 victory.

In the girls' game, Roanoke rushed out to a 10-2 lead in the first period. They continued their domination of the game in the second quarter, outshooting the Lady Bears, 15-4, to take a 25-6 lead at the half.

The Squaws were able to add to their lead by two more points in the third period and held a 39-18 lead going into the final period. The Bears were able to cut three off the margin in that frame.

Carolyn Duggins led the Roanoke scoring with 10 points, and was the lone scorer in double figures.

Roanoke's boys edged ahead, 17-14, in the first period, then opened a little more daylight in the second period, 18-14. That made it 35-28 at intermission.

The two teams repeated their scoring of the second period in the third, moving the score out to 53-42. Roanoke then finished off the Bears, 21-9, in the final stanza.

Ricky Duggins led Roanoke with 16 points, while Robert Cofield had 11. Robert Harrison had 12, Jerry Wynne, 11, and Ray Wynne, 10, for the Bears.

No Regrets From Spaulding Company

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — It's like a guy divorcing his wife after many years of conjugal bliss. But there are no tears from Richard M. Geisler. As happens in life itself, he found it necessary to turn to a fresher, younger, more vital interest. "Sure, it's a sentimental thing — very emotional," the youthful-looking president of Spaulding Sporting Goods said in speaking of his company's decision to break off a 100-year tradition of providing baseballs for the major leagues. "It is a commentary on the times. Twenty years ago, we were more team oriented. Today, it's physical fitness, exercise and participation. "Tennis is America's fastest growing sport. Golf and bowling are thriving. The newest fad is cross-country skiing.

Women have become prime customers. And now there are some 300,000 Americans playing amateur soccer. We have become a nation of participants, not just spectators." There was another reason: economics. "We were losing 50 to 75 cents on every ball," Geisler said.

When the Yankees' Roy White looped a fly to Cincinnati's George Foster for the final out of the 1976 World Series, it marked the last ball wearing a Spaulding label to be struck in major league baseball. When players hit the Sun Belts for spring training later this month, the balls will carry a new imprint: Rawlings, a Spaulding competitor.

There is a poignancy about the disappearance of the Spaulding ball from the major league scene, although Spaulding balls will continue to be sold over the counter. The Spaulding ball is entwined with the rich history of the sport. It helped rock the cradle.

Albert G. Spaulding, born in Byron, Ill. in 1850, was one of the game's pioneers, a pitcher who later started a small sporting goods business and helped found the National League in 1876. Until this year, every ball ever used in the major leagues had the word "Spaulding" stamped between the stitching. It was the ball old Cy Young threw for 508 pitching victories, Babe Ruth knocked over the fences for 714 home runs and Hank Aaron for even more, the ball with which Don Larsen pitched a perfect game in the 1956 World Series. It's the ball that sits by the thousands on limitless shelves with autographs of the greats and near-greats.

The ball itself has undergone many changes, even dictating the course of baseball history. First it had a rubber center, changed in 1909 to cork. The "rabbit" ball emerged in the 1920s, the golden age of Ruth, and hitters in the 1950s complained of a "dead ball." "The ball never has been purposely changed to aid either the pitcher or the batter," Geisler said. "Materials have changed but the ball always has had to meet rigid specifications in size and velocity. Spaulding produced 2½ million baseballs a year, 250,000 going to major leagues at around $1.75 each. In seeking to renew a 10-year contract, Spaulding asked baseball for a five per cent price boost, or $1 a dozen. Baseball said "no." So Spaulding closed the door on an era and went for the bottom line.

No Settlement Is In Sight

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There appears to be no settlement in sight in the 3-year-old on-again, off-again negotiations between the National Football League owners and players union over a new collective bargaining agreement.

The result could be another round of law suits against the NFL by player agents who want to put their clients on the market to the highest bidder. There was some confusion over whether the two sides had broken off negotiations over a new contract to replace the one which expired Jan. 31, 1974.

Bob Epstein, spokesman for the players, issued a brief statement Wednesday afternoon on behalf of Ed Garvey, executive director, in which he said: "After two days of negotiations there is absolutely no progress. It is now clear that the Feb. 15 deadline was unrealistic and there is little optimism on our side."

Epstein then said he did not know when the two sides would meet in the near future. When asked for comment, Terry Bledsoe, spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said he had not attended the afternoon session and had no comment except that it was his understanding they were still meeting. A subsequent call to Epstein indicated that the two sides were still together.

The negotiations were being held at an undisclosed location, so all information had to come from the two spokesmen.

Garvey had set the Feb. 15 date as a deadline for reaching an agreement but the owners, although suggesting they also would like to have a signed contract by then, would not be as specific.

The pressure to reach an early agreement came last September when a federal judge declared the draft of collegiate players to be in violation of the antitrust laws. An agreed-to contract would make it feasible to stage the draft.

Both sides agree that there can be no piecemeal solution to the dispute. An entire package must be formulated to include such things as the draft, the Rozelle Rule, the commissioner's position as an arbitrator, the length of the season, pre-season pay and the trade and waiver systems.

Shutout String Comes To End

By The Associated Press
It appeared that goalie Gary Edwards would pick up his third shutout in the four games he has played for the Cleveland Barons. Since being acquired by Cleveland from the Los Angeles Kings on Jan. 21, he had blanked Buffalo and Pittsburgh. Wednesday night, his teammates staked Edwards to a 5-0 lead against the Kings with 3:29 played in the third period. The reception for former Barons netminder Gary Simmons, sent to Los Angeles in the same deal, had been anything but hospitable.

"To me," Edwards said, "playing the Kings wasn't anything different. I tried real hard, but that's like I do in every other game."

It's a good thing he did. Butch Goring beat him at 6:33 of the third period, ending a shutout string of 108 minutes and five seconds. Then Marcel Dionne scored at 8:23 and Glenn Gouldup at 12:10.

In less than six minutes, the five-goal lead was down to two. Then, with 4:30 to go, former King Juhä Widing was sent to the penalty box, giving Los Angeles a chance to come closer.

Dave Schultz had the best chance of the manpower advantage, but Edwards lunged across his goal crease to stop the combative left wing.

In the other NHL games, the Montreal Canadiens blanked the Vancouver Canucks 6-0, the Colorado Rockies outscored the Minnesota North Stars 8-6, the Toronto Maple Leafs downed the Atlanta Flames 5-1, the Washington Capitals and Chicago Black Hawks played a 4-4 tie, and the Buffalo Sabres edged the New York Rangers 2-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Cincinnati Stingers beat the Indianapolis Racers 9-0 and the Phoenix Roadrunners nipped the Birmingham Bulls 4-3 in overtime.

Maple Leafs 5, Flames 1
Center Darryl Sittler, missing from the lineup with torn rib cartilage since Jan. 18, made an impressive return for Toronto by scoring twice to lead the Maple Leafs past Atlanta.

Sabres 2, Rangers 1
Andre Savard's goal with 51 seconds left in the middle period gave Buffalo only its second victory in nine games and continued the Sabres' domination of the Rangers. New York hasn't beaten Buffalo in the 12 games the teams have played since Dec. 27, 1974.

For Third Time, Cattle Herd Is Being Killed Off

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
CEDAR SPRINGS, Mich. (AP) — George Lemunyon, born and raised on a 90-year-old farm, kept up the family tradition: raising dairy cows as good as any in Kent County. Then along came something called PBB.

In the last three years Lemunyon has twice seen his Holsteins die for reasons beyond his control.

After decades of profitable dairying, Lemunyon finds himself perhaps $400,000 in debt and wondering when — and if — he can begin a third time. "Righteousness will prevail," is Lemunyon's job-like response. "It will make us stronger men."

His first 332-animal herd was wiped out in 1975 by polybrominated biphenyl or PBB, a toxic fire retardant chemical accidentally mixed with Michigan livestock feed in 1973. That grief — worsened by some bizarre human maladies — was shared with hundreds of other Michigan farmers whose poisoned herds also were slaughtered and buried.

But now the 67-year-old bachelor is enduring a second, more solitary tribulation. His second herd is dying while government officials ponder the cause.

The chilling possibility is that it's another chemical.

"The one fact is that George Lemunyon and that farm out there have suffered immense, severe and catastrophic problems. And I don't think it's his fault," says John March, Lemunyon's attorney in nearby Grand Rapids.

Although the animals have the same dull eyes, listlessness, stiff joints and running sores as PBB-tainted herds, officials know PBB is not the culprit this time.

Ironically, most experts suspect the new $165,000 barn Lemunyon built for his second herd. In the blood of Lemunyon's cows they have found significant levels of pentachlorophenol, or PCP, a toxic chemical used to preserve the wood in the enclosed barn.

They speculate that constant exposure to PCP may be making Lemunyon's cows grow ill and die.

One expert says the PCP used on the farm may have been chemically faulty because the common preservative has been widely used elsewhere for years.

More than a dozen animals, including a 2,200-pound bull and several shriveled calves lie in Lemunyon's yard, stiff and snow-covered because they can't be buried in the frozen earth. Another 80 animals that died in 1976 are buried over the hill beyond his barn.

"The kids used to go out and put up little sticks for a cross but there got to be so many of them that they couldn't get sticks fast enough," says Lemunyon through the few teeth left in his mouth.

Once 204 healthy animals, his herd now has dwindled to almost 100. The state quarantined it in mid-January, meaning he can sell neither the meat nor the milk, which runs out slowly, yellowed and sometimes clotted like cottage cheese.

"We're working for nothing right now," says Bernie Drent, 36-year-old father of three and Lemunyon's partner for the last 20 years. "We put in a lot of long hours for nothing."

Besides the emotional and financial strain of spending $300 daily to feed a worthless herd, Lemunyon and the Drents also are suffering from physical ailments that doctors tentatively have linked with PBB.

Lemunyon says he feels worse than he did three years ago, but won't elaborate. Yet he nimbly scales fences on his farm and appears younger than his years.

But Drent no longer can drive alone to Grand Rapids, 20 miles away. "I get lost and I black out," he says slowly. "I smashed up a combine in 1975."

But now, state and federal officials say the wood treatment throughout the barn may have been too much for his cows. The barn includes more treated wood than most and his cows rarely leave it for fresh air, officials say. Produced for decades, the PCP used to treat the lumber is not generally believed hazardous, although warnings caution good ventilation is needed.

Dr. John Moore, who is studying Lemunyon's herd for the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, says pure PCP in itself is not likely to be the problem. The illness could be caused by impurities in the chemical, he says.

With no income, things are getting more difficult on the farm. Less than $500 is left in the bank, the partners say. They may have to begin cashing their stocks and selling machinery or maple trees that have been on the farm for years.

Both dairymen say they cannot keep working much longer at a dying cause. Maybe, they say, someone will be hired to shoot the cows unless the state relieves them of the financial and emotional burden.

As for going back in business again with a third herd, Drent says life's too short and he's too discouraged.

But not George Lemunyon. "Sure, we're going to start over again if we can. We hope to," he says.

Problems In Communicating

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Dr. Gerald Phillips said since many people are unable to answer or phrase questions clearly, they fall silent when asked to engage in a problem-solving discussion or can't withstand the pressures of an interview.

"There is no way to escape it; there are communication responsibilities on virtually every job," he said.

Phillips said the problem is primarily poor communication skills, fostered by a lack of emphasis in schools.

He suggests people interested in improving their communication skills enroll in appropriate college courses, such as one he teaches at Penn State, or practice speaking with friends.

Locks Can Be A Fire Hazard

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Double cylinder locks may slow down burglars a bit but are a hazard to a family during a fire, the Oakland Chapter of the National Safety Council says.

Double cylinder locks are the kind that can't be opened from either side without a key.

In case of fire, safety officials say people often panic, can't find the key and find themselves locked in.

No Change Seen In Barbara Walters' Assignments

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Over

a year's time, a ratings point at night can earn a TV network at least $1 million, or what Barbara Walters earns coanchoring the ABC "Evening News" and doing various specials. But Bill Sheehan, head of

ABC News, gets a bit weary when people keep noting that a one-point hike in ratings for ABC's "Evening News" show can pay a year's salary for Miss Walters — making ratings increases beyond that one point sheer gravy for the network.

"That's not what the whole thing is about," he says. "In the first place, we're not relating the two things" — a rating point and her salary — "in any manner. They just don't go together."

And he says, those who think ABC hired her as a relatively inexpensive way to boost ratings failed to consider that ABC also boosted its 1977 news budget in "many multiples of Barbara Walters' salary" as part of a big push to improve the quality of the network's news operation.

He declined to specify, in cash terms, what those "multiples" come to, but said the matter of the magic ratings point and her salary "isn't something that causes any conversation here at all."

Miss Walters began coanchoring the ABC "Evening News" with Harry Reasoner on Oct. 4. How are the show's ratings compared to last year? An A. C. Nielsen official in New York, tallying completed estimates from the start of each season, provided these averages:

From mid-September 1975

through mid-January 1976, the Walters-less show was seen in 7,120,000 homes each week night.

From mid-September through mid-January this year, ABC's program, seen in about 4 million fewer homes than watched the top-rated CBS "Evening News," still was firmly holding down third place among network news shows.

But it was seen in more than 7.5 million homes, a gain of sixth-tenths of a ratings point. Sheehan was asked if that's about what he expected to happen.

"Honest to God, I didn't know what to expect," the ABC News chief said by phone from New York. "But I think we're on a steady upward curve — and not dramatic in terms of big percentages — of a perceptible increase in the (audience) levels. And that's what counts."

"You don't turn news audiences around very quickly," he added, meaning a massive shift of viewers to any network's news show. "It doesn't happen that way. Nobody has a quick turn-around."

During the interview, Sheehan denied a report (in the Chicago Daily News) that ABC is considering splitting up its New York-based news anchor team by moving Miss Walters to Washington this spring to coanchor the show while Reasoner stays in Fun City handling his end of it.

"The fact is, we don't have any plans to move her," he said, adding that not even a trial separation is planned.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning is not a good time to make definite plans of action. Later you find that all kinds of opportunity are present to extend your horizons and to adopt a philosophy of life that can serve you well in the days ahead. Make sure you consider well any travel plans you may have.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Any new conditions that arise today can improve the future for you, so handle them wisely. Making a new contact who can be of assistance to you in the days ahead is good. Be clever.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tap your subconscious and know what is best for you to do now and follow through on your hunches. Avoid the limelight tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to understand better what your partners expect of you and cooperate more with them. A situation arises that gives you a clearer picture of your position within the community in which you reside.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy and clear up unfinished business, duties so that the weekend will be free of worry. Get into policy matters with co-workers also. Plan the weekend well tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to handle duties well and then you can enjoy entertainment you like. Get together with congenials at creative activities. Do nothing of a dangerous nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Even if you have to be out in business, consider well the interests of home and kin; how to better them for the future. Study deeper into some new project that is interesting to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you handle important correspondence immediately and it could bring you fine results now. Contact an expert for suggestions and ideas you need to become more successful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show that you have practical sense where finances are concerned and get good results in dealing with others. An expert in such can also be helpful if you contact early. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan just how to gain your fondest aims in the shortest possible time and then take the right initial steps. Good evening for being with good friends for an enjoyable time together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get into policy matters today that are important and forget all that detailed work for now. Show more affection for mate and get fine response. Avoid a hypocrite who poses as a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to express that gregarious quality for which you are famous and make new and worthwhile acquaintances. Get work done early and enjoy the social later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact the most powerful persons you know and gain their support for any worthwhile plans that you may have. Get into public work also that can aid you in your career.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very blunt in dealing with others and should be taught early to use tact instead. Your progeny will get into much trouble and accomplish very little if this is not done. There is the ability to think big and get big here and to become successful in whatever the forte may be.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Trump Coup Tommy derived one simple pleasure from a game of bridge. He did not mind how much he lost, how many hands he and his partners butchered, just as long as one hand came up that was suited to his peculiar talent. As readers of this column are aware, when it came to playing hands with an abominable trump break, Tommy had no peer.

As usual, Tommy was not backward in bidding the hand. Most Souths would have rebid three clubs at their second turn. That would have led to the same final contract. But switch North's minor suit holdings around, and Tommy's way of getting to game would have resulted in a very poor contract.

West led a low diamond, and the play seemed routine. East won the ace and continued the suit for Tommy to ruff. He laid down the ace of hearts, and when East discarded a spade, Tommy was in his element.

Simple souls would have relied on the club finesse to bring home the contract, but not Tommy. A few moments study proved that the hand was laydown if West held at least three spades and one more diamond. Tommy demonstrated that he could dispense with the club finesse.

He led a spade to the ace and ruffed dummy's last diamond. Next, he cashed the king and queen of spades, and half the battle was won when these lived. After cashing the ace of clubs, Tommy led a club to the king. That was declarer's eighth trick.

Tommy now simply exited with a club, and he did not care who won the trick. If West won, he would be down to nothing but trumps. He must exit with a high trump, which Tommy would win, and dummy would have to score the ten of trumps for the game-going trick.

As the cards lay, East won the trick as West discarded his diamond. But then East had to return a minor-suit card. Whichever suit he chose, Tommy would follow with his remaining club and West would be trapped. If he ruffed high, he would be endplayed and would have to lead a trump into declarer's combined K-10 tenace. If he ruffed low, dummy would overruff.

Three Big Interest Items Before House

By Sam D. Bundy
Rep., N.C. General Assembly

Three things last week were uppermost in the minds of the members of the General Assembly. First, the Governor's Crime Message. He called for a Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, along with the Governor's Crime Commission, and a Juvenile Code Revision Commission. He emphasized citizen action and improvement in the training and pay for law enforcement officers. He stressed changes in the criminal law, and the need for speedy trials.

He outlined a program to lessen the overcrowding in our prisons. Secondly, the ERA. The House Constitutional Amendments Committee gave a favorable report to the bill calling for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, and it was placed on the calendar as first order of business for Tuesday, Feb. 8.

The third thing that has been a topic of considerable interest is the energy situation. Under emergency powers granted to him in the 1975 session, the Governor is putting state agencies, not including universities, state hospitals, etc., on a four-day work week. This means that most state workers will work four days a week at 10 hours a day, rather than eight hours a day for five days. In addition, the Governor is calling on commercial establishments and industry to use all means possible to conserve energy by cutting down on hours. The general public is exhorted to cut thermostats to 65 degrees in the daytime and 60 degrees at night.

Mrs. Bundy and I were guests for dinner at the Governor's Mansion on Thursday evening. See you next week.

Fossils Of Dinosaur On High Plateau

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — Dinosaur fossils 160 million years old at altitudes ranging up to 14,000 feet.

That is the highest altitude dinosaurs were ever known to have lived, according to an extensive scientific survey conducted on the plateau by the Chinese Academy of Sciences.

Scientists participating in the survey discovered "valuable dinosaur fossils" which the survey described as "of vital significance" to the study of the cause for the high elevation of the plateau, sometimes called the rooftop of the world.

In a three-month period, the scientists collected more than four tons of dinosaur and fish fossils in an area covering only about 10 square kilometers in Tibet's Changtu Prefecture, Peking Radio said in a report on the expedition.

"This is the first instance, not only in China but also in the world, in which dinosaur fossils were discovered in such a high-altitude area," the broadcast said. The discovery includes fossils of spines, ribs, limbs, parts of skulls and a large number of fossilized teeth.

"Preliminary examinations indicate that there are 11 categories of dinosaur fossils discovered at this time," the broadcast said. Most of them are of the "sauropod" type, which lived in the early and middle Jurassic period, about 160 million years ago.

"This discovery is of vital significance to the study of the cause of the high elevation of the Tsinghai-Tibet plateau and the geological history of the area," the survey said. "It is also of great importance to the study of the evolution of prehistoric forms of life."

Excavation and recovery of the fossils began after workers involved in road repairs found some of them.

The survey, conducted last year, also resulted in a number of other important findings, the broadcast said.

"Several sites of the culture of prehistoric mankind were found 4,500 to 5,200 meters above sea level during the survey," Peking Radio reported. "Geologists on the expedition found in the marine palaeozoic rocks animal fossils including a wealth of stromatopora, moss animals, coral, sponges, lampshells... These fossils are of great scientific value."

The northern Tibetan plateau, the highest and coldest place in China, covers more than 300,000 square kilometers. Long described as a wintry desert, it is mostly uninhabited.

The report said the survey showed that the area was more livable than scientists had believed before.

"The area is a natural highland zoo. Members of the scientific expedition saw Tibetan antelopes, argali sheep, gorals and wild asses on grasslands, grey-tailed hares, Tibetan foxes, snow leopards and brown bears on mountains and bar-headed geese, black-collared cranes and mergansers and ruddy sheldrakes on lakes. Tibetan loaches, a kind of fish that lives at the highest altitude so far known, were found in mountain streams 5,200 meters above sea level."

'Some Kind' Of Insurance Revamping Needed

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) - A joint General Assembly committee is likely to endorse legislation revamping North Carolina's regulation of the insurance industry, its chairman says.

"We've got to pass some kind of bill and it's got to be some kind of drastic change," said Sen. Carl Totherow, chairman of the Insurance Committee.

"There's a breakdown in insurance availability and it's because the commissioner and the industry have no communication whatsoever," he said. Totherow's comments came after the joint committee held its second day of hearings on proposals to change rate-setting practices. The latest proposal, from a lobbyist for North Carolina's independent insurance agents, would allow companies to put rate increases in effect before a final ruling on the new rate is made.

John Bode, legislative counsel for the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina, said his group's proposal would not abolish the office of commissioner—as some other reforms would do—and would not allow rate competition among insurers.

"This proposes to go ahead and put rates in effect if companies feel they have a good case," Bode said. "If they win, they won't have suffered any. If they lose, they'll pay back the consumers at prime time interest rates and the public won't have suffered any."

The proposal came after several insurance agents repeated complaints that refusals by Commissioner John Ingram to approve rate adjustments have resulted in insurance companies dropping coverage and cutting off arrangements with independent agents.

Paul Hoover, of the Carolinas Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, told the panel more than 50 companies cancelled agencies in North Carolina during the last half of 1976, and nearly 80 companies imposed restrictions on policies for automobile collision and comprehensive coverage, as well as homeowners insurance.

"Relief can only come with responsible regulation of this industry in our state," Hoover said. "We must have rate increases granted when and where justified."

Also speaking to the committee was Gordon Allen, an insurance agent and former president pro tem of the Senate, who said "it has become nearly impossible to place new automobile physical damage and workmen's compensation insurance," because of rate rulings. Bode, in an interview, said the industry has not had a rate increase in six years on auto liability and four years on workmen's compensation insurance. Totherow said the committee will also consider plans that would replace the commissioner with an appointed commission, would deregulate insurance rates, and would allow companies to file their rates individually and implement them automatically. Totherow said the committee would draft its own reform bill later in the session, perhaps combining some of the industry proposals.

Investigate Police Raid

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A police raid on a pinball and game room here is under investigation after Police Chief Thomas A. Surratt said personal searches of customers may have been illegal.

Those searched included five girls, taken to a women's restroom and ordered by a female officer to strip completely.

The Saturday-raid on the Game Station was conducted with a search warrant drawn by officer D.R. Wilson. At least 80 young people, including some juveniles, were searched.

"The legality of the search of persons not named or described in the warrant is questionable," Surratt said.

The chief said three officers had been assigned to investigate raid. He also apologized to those who were searched.

Wilson took seven other patrolmen with him on the raid after an informant told him there were drugs at the game center and Wilson said he saw two apparent drug sales there earlier Saturday.

Arcade manager Robert Russell said police did not identify themselves except for one who flashed a badge as he ordered everyone against the wall. Russell said he thought it was a customer playing a joke.

Bats In School Cause Holidays

HALLSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hallsboro Elementary School students start a two-day vacation today, but not because of the weather or the energy crisis.

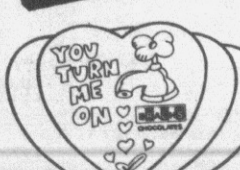

Pupils found about 30 bats, both dead and alive, in their classrooms Wednesday. Some children carried the dead ones outside.

For the live ones, officials plan to spread about 20 pounds of moth crystals through the school and leave windows open for the bats to leave.
