Leases Cancelled On Offshore Drilling Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — The $1.1 billion sale of off-shore oil drilling rights in the Atlantic Ocean to a number of major oil companies was declared null and void today by a federal judge.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack B. Weinstein, sitting in Brooklyn, acted on the grounds that Thomas Kleppe, former secretary of the interior, had violated the National Environmental Policy Act in allowing the sale of the drilling rights.

The ruling was revealed in a 132-page decision which followed lengthy hearings.

The oil companies bought the rights to drill for oil and natural gas in the so-called Baltimore Canyon, which extends along the continental shelf from Long Island to Delaware.

"The parties are enjoined from further proceeding with the exercise of any powers reportedly granted by" the sale of the leases, Weinstein said. "The leases are declared null and void."

He added that his order was "stayed pending the completion of appeals, if any."

Weinstein said there was no indication "of illegal acts by the oil companies. The fact that they must suffer because of the secretary's (Kleppe) failures was considered by the court. The public's rights and equities are paramount and must prevail."

Weinstein noted that the oil companies which successfully bid for the 93 lease tracts "have begun to take preliminary steps required for full exploitation of their leaseholds." He ordered that they stop all activity.

Sale of the leases last year was viewed as a major victory for energy interests, which had long wanted access to the Atlantic shelf's oil and gas reserves.

Weinstein ruled that there was "substantial evidence" that Kleppe's decision to allow sale of the leases "was not based upon a good-faith consideration of relevant documents, but on decisions made privately and in advance of public hearings."

In a five-point, summary of findings, Weinstein said Kleppe had:

—"Ignored the practical effects of local governmental licensing, permitting and review powers ..."

—"Failed to consider the environmental impact of specific probable pipeline routes from the outer continental shelf, 'in spite of the fact that the projection of such routes is routinely made by industry and could have been made by the secretary or his agents."

—"Greatly overstated peak oil and gas production from the tracts and 'significantly understated the cost of such production, including pipeline construction. This resulted in a serious lack of consideration of the likelihood and attendant dangers of increased tanker traffic and an overestimate of the net value of the entire project."

—"Failed to consider the possible impact of particular tracts "on the feasibility and sites of pipelines; there was no consideration of the alternatives of either excluding industry-preferred tracts, or including less highly desired tracts in the final sale offer because of related on-shore impacts and developments."

—"Failed to consider the alternative of separating exploration from

May 'Back Into' The Congress Pay Raise

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some House members may try to prevent the House from adjourning for the weekend in order to force a vote on their $12,900 pay raise that takes effect automatically Sunday.

But it appeared all but certain that the increase from $44,600 to $57,500 for members of Congress and similar pay boosts for judges and other high officials will go into effect without a vote.

An attempt to force a recorded vote in the House failed Wednesday. Members who object to the raise or to the method of getting it then focused their efforts on House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill.

They insisted O'Neill has enough clout with the Rules Committee to push through a special procedure allowing a vote on resolutions to kill the raise. Under regular House rules, there could be no vote before the deadline. The Post Office and Civil Service Committee has not voted out any of the resolutions and a subcommittee on Wednesday recommended against them.

O'Neill, who favors the raise and has said he would vote for it on the record, insisted the speaker has no power to take the resolutions out of committee jurisdiction and send them to the floor.

The issue is already dead in the Senate, which is not in session this week. The House is scheduled to adjourn for the weekend today after hearing a speech by President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico.

The time for blocking the automatic pay raise proposed by former President Gerald R. Ford and supported by President Carter runs out Saturday at midnight.

"It looks like things are stacked against us, but we'll fight until the last minute," said Rep. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa.

One strategy, he said, would be to try to hold the House in session until leaders agreed to ask for a Rules Committee meeting.

Grassley and others said that even if they did not succeed in blocking adjournment, a roll call vote on the issue of remaining in session would give some indication of how members stand on the pay raise.

In addition to the congressional pay hikes, other pay raises include:

Vice president, chief justice, House speaker, from $65,600 to $75,000; associate Supreme Court justices, $63,000 to $72,000; Cabinet members, $63,000 to $66,000; majority and minority leaders in Congress, $52,000 to $65,000; district judges, $42,000 to $54,500.

Raising the pay of the government's top 2,000 officials would also lift the lid on civil service pay scales, now frozen at $39,600. Some 20,000 top-level civil servants would receive boosts of up to $7,900.

Mortar Blast At Ft. Bragg Wounded 15

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A high ranking officer remained in serious condition today with injuries suffered in an 81-mm mortar live ammunition training accident which injured 10 other men.

The accident occurred Wednesday morning and the exercise was immediately suspended along with a similar exercise that had been scheduled for the afternoon, a public affairs spokesman said.

Military authorities immediately sealed off the firing range for an investigation, a spokesman said.

The exploding mortar round wounded 15 officers and enlisted men of the 82nd Airborne Division. Eleven of the injured were hospitalized at Womack Army Hospital here, including a lieutenant colonel in serious condition.

Four enlisted men were treated and released following the accident.

Maj. Gen. Roscoe Robinson, division commander, immediately appointed an investigative board to determine the cause of the accident, an Army spokesman said Wednesday night.

The men were injured when the mortar round "fell outside the target area" and exploded near the soldiers' position, the spokesman said.

Lt. Col. Eugene Fluke of Tulsa, Okla., remained in serious condition today after undergoing several hours of surgery, a hospital supervisor said.

Fluke suffered multiple wounds in the chest and face, the supervisor said.

Those reported in stable condition were: Lt. Col. Frank C. Rauch of Sarasota, Fla.; Capt. John T. Thompson of Briggsport, W.Va.; Capt. Burt A. Vanderclute of Valley Stream, N.Y.; Sgt. Steven Garcia of Tucson, Ariz.; Spec. 4 Scott Marshall and PFC Robert Clemons, both of Nashville, Tenn.; Pvt. Cheyenne P. Powers of Arcadia, Tex.; Pvt. Brian D. Battersby of Farmington, N.H.; Pvt. Frank J. Zarazua of Topeka, Kan.; and Pvt. Aubrey Lindsey, Cumming, Ga.

The FPC chief credits the emergency gas act signed by President Carter on Feb. 3 and a break in the cold weather for preventing a cutoff of natural gas to the homes of hundreds of thousands of Americans.

"Very definitely there were homes that were about to go cold a day or two before the act became law," Dunham said in an interview Wednesday.

Laupus Says Med School Could Have $25 Million Impact On Pitt County

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the ECU School of Medicine told the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors Wednesday that the ECU Medical School may possibly have a $25 million impact on the Pitt County area by 1985.

"I do not know what sort of an exact impact the Medical School will have on the area but a conservative guess is that by 1985 it will have a $25 million impact on the area in addition to a growing university," Dr. Laupus said.

Laupus said that the Medical School should be admitting about 28 students in the fall of 1977 and approximately 30 residents, but the school has the potential of growing to have an enrollment of 200 students within a few years. He added that in 1975 the school had 13 faculty members, it presently has 41 faculty members and will continue to add to the faculty. He said that 1975 the Medical School's budget was $1.2 million and is $4.2 million in 1977.

"Our state budget is likely to plateau at about $10 million in addition to federal monies which should increase our operating budget to $15 million or $20 million. The bulk of this money, at least 60 per cent, will be for personnel and this will be getting out into the community," Dr. Laupus said.

He explained that the Medical School has grown substantially in the past year and a half.

"When I came here 1½ years ago we were confined to the North Building of the Science Complex. Now we are located in the old Ragsdale Hall. We could have admitted students in September of 1976 but we still lacked much in the development of our Ph.D. programs in six areas," he said.

According to Dr. Laupus the Medical School's affiliation with the new Pitt Memorial Hospital will be a benefit to the hospital.

"The Medical School will be giving $950,000 of equipment to the hospital which is about one half of the amount that will be given to the hospital this year by the state. The hospital will continue to receive supplements from the school," Dr. Laupus said.

Dr. Laupus said that the increase of beds in the new hospital will meet requirements of the Medical School. He explained that the Pitt Memorial Hospital will be changing from a 215 bed hospital to a total of 370 beds.

According to Dr. Laupus the Medical School will propose to have an open door policy and to add to the community rather than change it.

Asked how the businesses in the area can help the ECU Medical School, Dr. Laupus said

$603,178 Received By Pitt In Sharing Of Tax Proceeds For Quarter

Pitt County received $603,178 in net distributable tax proceeds for the quarter ending Dec. 31, according to Mark G. Lynch, Secretary of the State Department of Revenue.

On a per capita distribution basis figured relative to population, Greenville received $160,037 of the total amount. Population for the city was listed in the Revenue report as 34,240.

Farmville, based on a population of 5,220, received $24,398 of the total distribution, according to Lynch, while Ayden, with a population of 3,860, received $18,041.

Other Pitt towns, their populations and receipts, included: Grifton (Pitt's share), 2,180, $10,189; Winterville, 2,010, $9,394; Bethel, 1,750, $8,179; Simpson, 480, $2,243; Fountain, 450, $2,103; Grimesland, 420, $1,963; and Falkland, 140, $654.

Total population for Pitt County was listed as 78,300 with the county itself receiving $365,973 of the total proceeds and the balance allotted to the ten towns in the county.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $36,975 in net distributions with $34,441 going to the county itself and the balance allotted to Snow Hill, $1,926; Hookerton, $366; and Walstonburg, $240.

Arrest 36 For Expired Tags

Greenville Police yesterday arrested 36 persons on charges of driving with expired license plates.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the deadline for displaying 1977 registration plates — both city and state — was midnight Tuesday.

The three dozen drivers charged yesterday, according to Cannon, had either failed to purchase 1977 registrations, or had failed to display them on their vehicles after the Tuesday midnight deadline.

Some $456,057 was received by Lenoir County on an ad valorem basis with $346,685 going to the county and the rest distributed to Kinston, $98,074; La Grange, $8,208; Pink Hill, $2,837; and Grifton (Lenoir's share), $251.

Martin County, figured on an ad valorem levy, received $161,922 with $129,112 of the total distribution going to the county and the balance allotted to nine towns.

Towns in the county receiving shares were: Williamston, $25,562; Robersonville, $5,216; Jamesville, $685; Oak City, $560; Hamilton, $311; Everetts, $286; Parmelee, $85; Bear Grass, $58; and Hassell, $41.

Beaufort County totals, figured on a per capita basis, included $279,366 in total distributions and $206,089 of the total allotted to the county itself.

Seven towns shared in the balance.

EASTER SEALS SOCIETY MAY HELP

I have a physical handicap that's come on me just recently. I need a rolling chair. Mrs. B. D.

Hotline referred you to the Easter Seals Society, located at 313 W. Second Street. Director Susan Clark said she would be glad to talk to you and find out if her agency can help you, or if not, which agency, if any, might be able to. Her agency, she pointed out, is for people of all ages and is eager to either assist or refer for assistance any physically handicapped person. Her office phone number is 758-3230.

THANKS FOR MESSAGE

Jacksonville resident Anne Davila has asked Hotline to help her thank the person who left a message on her 1974 brown and gold Plymouth Duster telling her the license number of the car which hit hers while it was parked in the Pitt Plaza parking lot Feb. 2. "The person did not leave his or her name and address so I cannot thank him or her personally," she said, "but he or she surely saved me a lot of trouble and expense."

Natural Gas Crisis Of Winter May Be Over

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Power Commission says cautiously that the natural gas crisis of the winter of 1977 may be over, thanks to emergency legislation and a break in the weather.

"I am confident today that the threat is not nearly as dangerous as it was two weeks ago," said Richard L. Dunham.

The FPC chief credits the emergency gas act signed by President Carter on Feb. 3 and a break in the cold weather for preventing a cutoff of natural gas to the homes of hundreds of thousands of Americans.

"Very definitely there were homes that were about to go cold a day or two before the act became law," Dunham said in an interview Wednesday.

Dunham emphasized that his predictions assume that Americans will keep their thermostats at 65 degrees or lower and that temperatures do not drop too far below average. "If an Arctic blast comes, there is no guarantee of anything," he warned.

Dunham said the emergency law — allowing the sale of natural gas at higher than current federal price limits — gave the government enough freedom to ensure that homes, hospitals and other top priority users will get enough gas for heating fuel for the rest of the winter.

"A margin of safety has been built into the system," he said.

The National Weather Service's long-range forecast through mid-March shows slightly below-average temperatures for much of the Midwest and the eastern states, but nothing approaching the record-breaking cold weather of December and January.

A second FPC commissioner, John Holloman III, and John O'Leary, head of the Federal Energy Administration, have predicted that plants shut down by the natural gas shortage would likely stay closed into spring and summer, causing serious unemployment in several states.

But recent Commerce Department figures have shown layoffs caused by the shortage dropping from 1.5 million to 500,000 now.

In the interview, Dunham indicated he expected factories to continue to reopen and increase production, putting more workers back to work.

But he said "pockets" of energy-related layoffs would persist.

Ballet Leaping Ahead In Japan

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — Tutus and toeshoes have not been long in Japan, but suddenly the ballet is making itself known here in a field dominated by the Soviet Union, the United States, England and France.

Coming to this country only a half century ago, ballet has grown quickly in popularity and professionalism.

Yoko Morishita won the grand prize for female dancers at the seventh international ballet competition in Varna, Bulgaria, in 1974, the first Japanese to do so. Hidetaru Kitahara, a leading dancer and a ballet company artistic director, last year became the youngest, at age 35, to receive one of the education minister's culture prizes.

The first "Tokyo World Ballet Concourse" took place early in 1976 and joins the Varna and Moscow competitions as a regular international event.

While there is no figure for the total number of ballet dancers and students in Japan, there are an estimated 200 small, private schools. The government supports four groups — the Japan Ballet Association, which has 430 dancers and teachers as members, the Tchaikovsky Memorial Tokyo Ballet Company, the Maki Asami Ballet Troupe and the Star Dancers Ballet Troupe.

The Tchaikovsky Memorial Tokyo Ballet Company, usually called the Tokyo Ballet Company, is one of the country's largest and best known. It was founded 13 years ago by Tadatsugu Sasaki, then a young opera producer and now the company's director. He made more than 50 trips abroad to find teachers and regularly invited Soviet dancers to work with his company.

"This brought a level of professionalism previously unknown to ballet in Japan," he said.

"We are using the Soviet technique and adding it to the Japanese style. The smallness of Japanese dancers gives them an ability to perform jumps and turns particularly well," he said.

Without a national ballet academy or theater, working conditions vary widely in Japan. Dancers are quick to decry the lack of government support for cultural activities in general and Western performing arts in particular. There are plans to build a national theater for ballet, opera and orchestra similar to the one located in central Tokyo for Kabuki and other traditional Japanese arts. But the problem is land, of which there is none available in Tokyo now of the size needed, said a Culture Agency official.

The agency's budget for a year's cultural events is $2.3 million. The promotion and support of ballet amounts to $192,000.

The popularity of ballet in Japan was aided by tours of the country by the Bolshoi Ballet, the New York City Ballet, the Leningrad Ballet, the British Royal Ballet, L'Opera de Paris, the Stuttgart Ballet and others.

It was not until 1920 that Iliana Pavlova came to Japan from Russia and started an interest in classical ballet.

"In the past several years the technical ability in particular of Japanese dancers has advanced very quickly," said Chieko Hattori, president of the Japan Ballet Association.

"Japanese dancers train very hard, but if we hurry too much, we will lose something important. Sometimes we get stuck on technique. When we see something new, right away we want to try it, without understanding the feeling and most important, the reason why."

She said the lack of a ballet academy and the great number of private studios result in haphazard, uneven ballet education, weak especially in history and theory.

But Sasaki countered: "If we have technique, we can do anything. It's the same in gymnastics, or even in cooking. Without it, we can't do anything."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
In Czechoslovakia cooks usually put pickles in their potato salads — or so we heard. Sure enough, when we looked into "The Czechoslovak Cookbook" by Joza Brizova (Crown) we found that both the recipes given for potato salad called for just that savory addition.

Then Blanka Kmoch, who now lives in New York but who received a degree at the Home Economy Institute in Kolin, Czechoslovakia, confirmed the addition. Blanka gave us another good idea: "In America potato salads are usually served with ham or turkey on a cold buffet. In Czechoslovakia we serve them with hot dishes: fried fish fillets, roast chicken or breaded pork chops."

CZECH POTATO SALAD A LA BLANKA
4 pounds potatoes
2 medium carrots
Salt
2 cups mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons dill pickle liquid
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1/2 cup finely diced dill pickle
1/2 cup finely diced onion
1/2 cup finely diced celery
1/4 cup minced parsley
1/4 pound finely diced cooked ham (generous 2-3rds cup)
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
1/2 cup cooked green peas
In a large saucepot bring 4 quarts water and 2 tablespoons salt to a boil; add the scrubbed, unpeeled potatoes and carrots. Boil, covered, until tender when pierced with a fork. Drain. Remove skins from vegetables. Slice potatoes — there should be about 2 quarts. Dice carrots — there should be about 1/2 cup.
In a large bowl or refrigerator container stir together the mayonnaise, pepper, sugar, pickle liquid, vinegar, 3 tablespoons water and the oil. Add potatoes, carrots, dill pickle, onion, celery, parsley, ham, eggs and peas. Toss thoroughly but lightly. Serve at room temperature or chill. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked egg and dill-pickle slices.
Makes 12 servings.

Couple Observes Anniversary
GRIFTON — Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Penuel celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary Friday night at their home here.

Special guests were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Queen of Hickory, who were celebrating their 30th anniversary.

A color scheme of red and white was used in the Valentine motif.

Approximately 30 guests attended.

Marriage Postponed
The wedding of Willie House, Jr. and Annie Roberson, has been postponed until a later date.

Grifton Personals

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cameron Sr. have returned from a recent visit in West Palm Beach, Fla., with his sisters.

Guests Saturday for a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Holton were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Rouse and son, Tad, of Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Stocks of Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Holton and daughter, April, and Miss Cindy Hill of Kinston.

Guests of Mrs. Mazie Stancill during the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stancill and daughter, Tina, of Suffolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Brown of Greenville.

Miss Hazel Patrick and Mrs. Letha Wingate spent Sunday in Raleigh as guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Lynn.

Mrs. Edna Burbage has returned from a week's visit in Bath with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Brinn.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gower left last week for a visit in South Windsor, Conn., with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rusty Gower.

Mrs. L. L. Mewborn is visiting in Woodbridge, Va., with her daughter, Mrs. John LaCava, Mr. LaCava and children.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Mazingo of Farmville announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn, of Raleigh, to Austin Kirby, of Raleigh, son of Mrs. Clara Kirby of Kenly, and the late Mr. Clarence Kirby. The wedding will take place April 24.

Family Dinner Held Saturday

GRIFTON — Miss Susan Koon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Koon, celebrated her fifth birthday at a family dinner, Saturday.

Donald Koon also celebrated his birthday, which was Feb. 15. Miss Koon's birthday was Monday.

Pig Picking Held Saturday

GRIFTON — Mrs. Wilbert Reaves entertained Saturday night at a pig picking in honor of her husband's birthday.

Approximately 30 guests were present.

WHEAT GERM AND PRUNE MUFFINS—Rich in nutrients.

Prepare Muffins As A Dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When I was a little girl in Manitoba, Canada, once in a while my mother decided that we children were eating too many sweets. On some of these occasions dessert would be a batch of muffins, made with a minimum of sugar, and holding nuggets of fruit. They would be served hot from the oven, to be slathered with butter and perhaps honey. The honey was thick, sugary and clover-flavored and, if I remember correctly, made by the Trappist monks in Quebec. We children loved it because it was easy to spread thick!

Serving muffins for dessert is still a good idea. With this in mind here's a recipe, tried at our house, that calls for rich-in-nutrients wheat germ and prunes. A reminder: wheat germ should be refrigerated after a jar is opened. Because this cereal contains the oil of the wheat kernels, it may turn rancid if left at room temperature for any length of time. It's also a good idea to refrigerate a package of prunes, after it has been opened, to keep them moist.

WHEAT GERM AND PRUNE MUFFINS
1 cup flour, fork-stir to aerate before measuring
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup vacuum packed unsweetened wheat germ
1 large egg
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup corn oil
1 cup (about 17, half of a 12-ounce package) pitted prunes, cut up (see Note below)

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar; stir in wheat germ.

In a medium bowl beat egg, milk and oil until blended; add wheat germ mixture and stir until the dry ingredients are completely moistened; stir in prunes. Ladle into muffin-pan cups (each 2 1/2 inches across the top and 1 inch deep), filling about three-quarters full.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center of a muffin comes out clean — about 18 minutes. Loosen edges and remove. Serve hot with butter.

Makes 12.
Note: To cut up prunes use a kitchen scissors and snip each into lengthwise quarters, then snip each quarter crosswise into pieces about the size of raisins.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One of these days a new sport will be added to the Olympic games, called simply, "Convention."

Hardened athletes from all over the world will come together to compete in one of the most gruelling events in sports history: surviving a convention.

The event will be a combination of marathon running, drinking relays, freestyle lying and a creamed chicken eatathon. But all eyes will be upon the winner of the Convention Decathlon — a series of 10 events to test the physical and mental endurance of the athletes.

1. 100-Meter Elevator Dash. Two elevators are situated in a hotel boasting 525 rooms and hosting 1,500 conventioners. The meetings are scheduled in the Promenade Room which is on the mezzanine between the third and fourth floors, and is serviced by elevator No. 1 between the hours of 3:00 and 6:00 a.m. No one knows this.

2. Outlasting the "Keynodder" Speaker. This has been compared to waking up in the recovery room and being asked to applaud. A conventioneer in Miami once sat through 15 keynod speakers in four days. They say his cigar burnt right through his index finger and he didn't even feel it.

3. The Name Tag Hurdle. Some smart-aleck will always leave his name tags in his rooms and you are forced to look at his face. This could throw a "lapel man" who goes through the entire convention smiling and conversing with chests.

4. The Surprise Visit From The Wife High Jump. The record for this one was set in 1954 by a cookbook salesman from Gary, Ind., who tried to convince his wife he was nearsighted and thought the sign read, "Message Parlor."

5. Small Talk Bull Throw. A five-day, non-stop talking competition in which the talker must carry on a conversation without saying anything worth repeating.

6. Challenging The Great Divide. A week of dividing dinner checks 20 ways, dividing room service 40 ways and bar bills nine ways. This is culminated by dividing the cost of a taxi ride to the airport in which Frank got off at TWA, Fred rode on Eric's lap, Harvey went to Braniff, Rod to American and Neal left his luggage at the curb at the hotel.

7, 8, 9, 10. The last four events are related to one another. After the conventioneer has overeaten, overindulged, overstayed, and overestimated his worth to the company, he must return home and explain to his employer why the seal on his convention kit is still not broken and why an item on his expense account reads, "Tongue shaved ... $5 plus tip."

Birthday Party Held Monday

Miss Mario Maria Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Little, celebrated her first birthday Monday at a party held at her home.

A Valentine motif was used in colors of red and white.

Guests attending were Patrick Lewis of Farmville, Jason Weatherington of Winterville, Angie Congleton, Clinton Crites, Natalie Fleming, Jill Jackson and Bobby Myers, all of Greenville. Each guest was remembered with a party favor.

Mrs. Barbara Luce, aunt of the honoree, assisted at the party.

Mrs. White Is Speaker

GRIFTON — Mrs. Mary Kathryn White of Kinston was speaker at the meeting of the Grifton Garden Club held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dave Bosley.

She spoke on tole ware and gave a history of the item.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. L. D. McCotter. A nominating committee was named including Mrs. H. C. Oglesby, Mrs. Leon Lamb and Mrs. O. H. Young. It was decided to delay the club project of planting trees on the school campus due to the weather.

Mrs. Anna Fernandes was assisting hostess.

ANNOUNCING NEW STORE HOURS AT BELK TYLER

We Are Increasing Our Store Hours From 48 Hours To 54 Hours Per Week In Accordance With The Governor's New Guidelines.

When the Governor made his Emergency Energy Conservation Proclamation, Belk Tyler immediately took action to cooperate by cutting back store hours to 48 hours per week. Many food stores and many retail stores held to the hours only one day, or at the most only three days, and then went back to full operating hours as though nothing had happened.

BELK TYLER REMAINED AT 48 HOURS PER WEEK AS ASKED!

This past weekend the Governor changed his proclamation from 48 hours per week to 54 hours per week. In accordance with this, we are increasing our hours to 54 hours even though many of our competitors are still acting as though there is no emergency by keeping their stores open on a full schedule.

WE MUST COOPERATE AND CONSERVE ENERGY IF WE ARE GOING TO INSURE THAT WE HAVE ENERGY TO HEAT OUR HOMES AND TO KEEP EACH OTHER IN A JOB.

Our New Hours Are:

Monday	10 a.m. until 6 p.m.
Tuesday	10 a.m. until 6 p.m.
Wednesday	10 a.m. until 6 p.m.
Thursday	10 a.m. until 9 p.m.
Friday	10 a.m. until 9 p.m.
Saturday	10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

We ARE concerned . . . and we are doing something about it!

Our Positive Program To Conserve Energy

For quite some time Belk Tyler has been vitally concerned with the conservation of all energy resources; and indeed, we gathered information and came to grips with the real and serious shortage of energy sources.

WE BELIEVED . . . WE EVALUATED . . . WE DID NOT WAIT . . . WE ACTED . . .

We put all company vehicles into the economy class in order to save gasoline. We carpooled as many buying trips as possible and even use a bus-like van to transport as many company personnel as possible per gallon of gasoline used.

We instituted the use of "Watt-Miser" electric bulbs and fluorescent tubes. We cut back on the number of hours our lights are in full use. In many instances we even removed bulbs. And as a result we have made sizable reductions in the number of kilowatt hours used in our stores.

We cut back on our thermostats and reduced the amount of fuel used in our store. Today, all thermostats have been cut back to the levels requested by our Governor and the President of the United States. Toy makers
Looking To Christmas

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There are more than 250 shopping days left until Christmas, but the nation's toy makers aren't wasting any time. They have already introduced the products they hope will capture millions of consumer dollars in the 1977 holiday season.

Buyers can expect more electronic toys and games; a revival of a few old favorites; tie-ins with television, movies and sports figures; and a wide range of mock Citizens Band radios. Some of the more elaborate playthings will retail in the area of $50.

David A. Miller, chairman of the board of the Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., said 1976 sales at the wholesale level were $3.1 billion, up 14 per cent from 1975. He predicted 1977 sales would be 8 to 10 per cent higher than last year's.

There seemed to be less emphasis on violent toys than in past years. Toy guns occupied only one page of a 75-page catalogue distributed by one company. Mattel Toys, the world's largest toy maker, offered a line of "Shogun" warriors, complete with battle axes and rockets.

The Ideal Toy Corp. linked two fads with its Evel Knievel CB van — one of several additions to the Knievel line, introduced five years ago. One model cycle was tied to an upcoming Knievel movie. An Ideal spokesman said the company had sold $125 million worth of Knievel toys.

Among the highlights of the fair: —The "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" game produced by Reiss Games. Described as "Fun for All Ages," the board game features the less-spicy episodes of life as portrayed in the syndicated television series. "We left out everything risqué," said a spokesman, who added that the game would retail for $8.

—"Slime." A greenish-yellow substance — 95 per cent water and 5 per cent chemical compound — designed to slide through your fingers. The manufacturers describe it as "yucky." One spokesman said it "feels like thick Jello — only heavier."

—Dolls that develop a "tan" in one minute when placed in sunlight or close to an artificial light. The extra color lasts for an hour.

—Several offerings loosely tied to current events: "Lie, Cheat and Steal," described as "the game of political power;" "Changeover," a board game designed to help the player adapt to the switch to the metric system; and a plastic bank in the shape of a peanut, complete with a big grin on the front.

Deputies Nab
Pinetops Man

A Pinetops man was arrested Tuesday night by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and charged with a break-in and larceny at a Rt. 1, Robersonville residence. Jim Henry Bullock, 29, was charged by deputies with a break-in at the residence of Robert Henry Leder sometime between Dec. 24 and Jan. 10 while Leder was away, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

The sheriff said that Leder reported the theft of $850 worth of household property, including a couch, chairs, bed, springs and mattress, television set, washing machine, stove and kitchen table. Some of the merchandise was recovered, it was noted.

Bond for Bullock was set at $5,000.

Affiliation Outlook Is Good

Several changes were made in the ECU School of Medicine and Pitt Memorial Hospital affiliation agreement by the UNC Board of Governors Planning Committee last week.

While there was some concern expressed by members of the planning committee on some of the change, Dean William E. Laupus assured them that they were not major.

Following the meeting Dr. Laupus told The Daily Reflector that he and others are pleased that the agreement has "held up so well."

Laupus revealed that the dean of another medical school which is anticipating an affiliation with an existing hospital, had requested a copy of the local agreement. That school had been referred here by an accrediting agency which saw the local agreement as a model one.

There is nothing simple about converting a county hospital — even a new one with the modern facilities of Pitt Memorial — into a teaching facility.

On the other hand there is every reason to feel that the medical school affiliation will be effective, and the basic functions of the county hospital can be maintained.

The new hospital is, after all, not simply a building in the old concept of a community hospital. It is a complex of buildings and units embracing all areas of medicine. And the complex is rapidly growing to accommodate the functions of the School of Medicine.

The medical school affiliation has gone along very smoothly so far; and in fact, the hospital already has some experience in accommodating medical students through the one year medical education program which was conducted at East Carolina University.

Find Idleness Inexcusable

By BILL NOBLITT
(Last of Three Articles)

RALEIGH — With thousands of inmates sitting idly in their cells with nothing to do—yet complaining about dirt on the floors or roaches in the building—the solution would seem obvious.

Put the men to work looking after the buildings. And that is the suggestion put forth by the Commission on Correctional Programs which this week is delivering to the General Assembly its findings and recommendations on North Carolina's criminal justice system.

While many of the proposals call for legislative action and will create heated debate as change is sought in limiting the discretion of judges in sentencing convicted criminals; in abolishing discretionary paroles; in spending millions for prison construction, etc., the commission pointedly suggests that the management of the prisons system could put the men to work... Now.

Must Work

And let there be no confusion over one point, say members of the commission:

while they call for participation in rehabilitation programs to be on a voluntary basis, there is no hint of allowing prisoners to decide for themselves whether they shall work or not.

"Many inmates welcome the opportunity of work, and those who do not should be encouraged or made to work. Paint and brush would greatly enhance the living atmosphere of units, and also, it creates activity for the inmates," the report states.

On visits to prison units, commission members found roofs leaking, pipes in disrepair, cafeterias which were dirty, floors filthy, and almost all units in need of painting.

"In many units trash and debris are thrown down on the floor... Unit Commanders need a mandate from the Secretary to require basic daily cleanliness of floors, showers and bed facilities. A little elbow grease will go a long way to improving prison life," the report prepared by the commission chaired by former state senator Eddie H. Knox states.

"Certainly, the department

has the authority to require inmates to keep their quarters in a sanitary and liveable condition by their own labor... Personal hygiene of inmates also needs upgrading. Every inmate should be afforded (and encouraged) to bathe daily. Adequate clean clothing should also be provided... the cost is not prohibitive."

In short, the commission reports that these steps could be taken immediately and without additional funds. The sloppy conditions result "solely by an absence of discipline and control by the Department."

Many Idle

Out of 13,244 inmates in the system last year, more than 3,500 were sitting idle; additional thousands were working only an hour or two daily.

In meeting the need for additional prisons space, the commission calls for small (150 to 300), single cell units of campus style and simple construction scattered widely across the state.

And in building those units or revamping existing buildings, the commission recommends that prison labor be used wherever it can.

"The benefits of such a plan are threefold: First, it will reduce idleness; second, if properly managed, it can be integrated into a vocational training program which would assist the inmate to develop marketable jobs skills; and third, it would dramatically reduce the cost of construction and save the taxpayer money," the commission concluded.

As to regular rehabilitation programs (work, study release; school; job training) the commission finds many inmates participate only to get "good time" for early release. Prisoners should take part only voluntarily after committing themselves to change and try to learn skills to make a living without getting back into crime, the commission believes.

HOME TO ROOST!

MORRIS

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Going Away From It All

SCRABBLE, VA. — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, the junior senator from New York, is considering the introduction of a bill that may secure his place in history. At the request of his Buffalo constituents, so the story goes, he is thinking of a bill to abolish February.

Because this is a piece of humane legislation I have been promoting for 25 years, the senator's initiative naturally impresses me as sound. President Carter may get modest acclaim for ridding us of limousines,

White House staffers and 500 advisory committees, but the Moynihan Act, if it is written into law, will prompt jubilation across the frozen land.

Mr. Moynihan, in his own audacious fashion, would begin by abolishing February straight-out. Reportedly he would add one week to April, two weeks to June and one week to October. In leap years, there'd be one more day for New Year's Eve. The birthdays of Washington, Lincoln and Harrison would be relocated by appointment of the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House. Valentine's Day would fall on May 14. It sounds too good to be true.

The effect of all this would be to give the country a running start on spring. Right after January, we'd be into March — and March is a month we can live with. March has a good name. It comes highly recommended. People rarely speak a harsh word about March. How much snow do they get in Buffalo in March? A darn sight less than they get in Buffalo in February, that's for sure.

Here is Rappahannock County, Va., up in the Blue Ridge Mountains, we haven't had anything approaching the hardships of Buffalo, Cincinnati and Fargo, but it has been miserable all the same. Ordinarily, we get a few inches of Christmas card snow, and I write a pretty country piece about the pines in ermine and the fields vanilla frosted, and then the snow politely goes away. This year the snow had hung around like a bad case of sniffles. The water pump froze, a pipe burst, the tractor congealed and wouldn't start. The birds have been learning to ice-skate, but their hearts aren't in it.

There is nothing good to be said of February. The month is beyond redemption. It is dark in the mornings and dark in the afternoons. The firewood gets wet and the kindling won't ignite. The Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

Twice this past week the President of the United States has discussed the importance of the American family. Monday morning Pres. Carter informed his Cabinet that he wants them to remain in contact with and share moments with their respective families. Then Thursday at HUD he joked about family problems, but in a more serious tone emphasized the traditions of family involvement and importance.

This week a study was released depicting changes the American family is undergoing. In Washington, D.C. last year, for example, more children were born illegitimately than were born in wedlock. In this country more divorces were recorded in the past year than ever before. In this same research, the rate of Americans "shacking" was shown to have doubled in the last six years.

The President's emphasis on the traditions of the American family is quite admirable. No civilization ever achieved any success without the family serving as the core in which proper values, sound decision-making skills and worthwhile attitudes were instilled. Many individuals voice the opinion that this country is disintegrating. If this premise is true, be reminded that is not being destroyed by China, Russia, Panama or any other external force; rather, this country is being destroyed by internal problems of vandalism, by juvenile and adult delinquency, and by lack of respect for people.

Last month millions of Americans viewed Roots. The major theme in Alex Haley's masterpiece is the success of his family even though many obstacles had to be overcome. Whereas the family in slavery had dilemmas to confront and to defeat, the family of today has numerous opportunities for improvement and for advancement.

The message which Pres. Carter extols is until American families perform their functions and thereby reverse the statistics which this past week were revealed, this nation's progress will continually be threatened.

To the editor:

I say let's stop the battle of the letters and ask for a referendum on the ERA. It appears to me it has turned out to be a test of who can write the most letters for or against ERA to our legislators. This amendment deserves more attention than that. It will affect every man, woman and child in the U.S., not only now, but for generations to come. Let's wake up, America, and take a look at what is happening to us!

I for one am not willing to give this gigantic grab for power over to the federal government: the Congress, the executive branch and the federal courts. Remember Section 2 of the ERA reads, "The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article."

40 Years Ago Today

February 17, 1937

Senator Martin of Davidson, dry floor leader in the upper division of the state legislature, announced today he would not seek a reconsideration of the vote by which the county option liquor bill passed late yesterday.

Martin changed his vote from "aye" to "no" when the Senators voted down his amendment proposing a state-wide referendum so he could be in position to seek a reconsideration.

The senate-amended measure was due to go to the house this morning for concurrence.

After an all-night search over four counties, a group of over 30 officers under the direction of Oscar Pitts, acting director of the state's penal division, reported today no trace had been found of the seven convicts who escaped from Caledonia prison farm Monday.

Pitts said the party covered every possible movement of the escapees after the discovery of their abandoned car, yesterday. He said the search was made in Guilford, Forsyth, Randolph and Davidson counties.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Bert Lance's Tin Triumph

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The backstage success of the Carter administration in moderating big steel's latest price increase, while reflecting the velvet-soft approach to price restraints favored by Bert Lance, still may prove too tough for businessmen nervous about Big Uncle's long arm.

The 4.8 per cent increase in the price of tin mill products by U.S. Steel Corp., announced on Feb. 1, in fact represented a substantial reduction at the request of the administration. What's more, the triumph came without headlines, without rancor and without legislation. That is precisely what Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), has been aiming for as a wage-price policy.

But a much bigger problem today than runaway industrial prices is the anemic state of business confidence, as shown by listless money markets and insufficient capital investment. One reason has been pervasive fear by business, spawned by President Carter's campaign oratory, of economic controls imposed by the new Democratic administration.

Accordingly, the very success of Lance's system in its debut on the tin products case casts some shadows. If it indeed continues to work, will it be interpreted by business as a control mechanism souring the climate for investment that Lance feels is essential for true economic recovery?

Banker Lance has realized from the start that fear rather than confidence would prevail in the business world if Mr. Carter fulfilled two campaign promises: standby authority to control wages and prices and mandatory advance notification to the government of higher prices. Lance convinced the President to junk those business-baiting proposals, along with any return to the wage-price "guidposts," — specific though voluntary — of Kennedy — Johnson days.

But some vestige of government-imposed restraint was needed, partly to satisfy liberal Democrats. Lance talked about voluntary advance notification of prices without specific guidposts. The evolution of this somewhat hazy system into a specific case began the week of Mr. Carter's inauguration when Edgar B. Speer, chairman of U.S. Steel, placed a telephone call to Lance.

In keeping with a promise to Mr. Carter and Lance when they had unsuccessfully jawboned against a steel price increase shortly after the election, Speer gave advance notice of intent to raise tin prices. Just how big a raise he intended is a well-kept secret but it is believed to have been closer to 10 per cent than to 5 per cent.

At Lance's urging, Speer held off announcing the increase and instead agreed to meet in Washington the next week with Lance, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Charles Schultze, the President's chief economic adviser. As a result of that meeting, Speer trimmed down his increase to 4.8 per cent. In return, when U.S. Steel announced it Feb. 1, there were no complaints from the administration.

A jubilant Lance would like to see that congenial scenario repeated: a corporation would voluntarily inform, the administration of its pricing plans, leading to a meeting of the minds. There are no guidelines to tempt a profit-hungry businessman to bust through, no public jawboning putting industry into a defensive posture, no claustrophobic feelings of restraint by business. Moreover, Dr. Schultze is working on the difficult task of voluntary advance notification of proposed wage demands by unions.

But elation here over the tin triumph should be tempered by this economic reality: this is not an inflationary economy. "I would guess steel would be happy to have the government endorse any price increase today," one skeptical Wall Street economist told us.

As the economy begins to heat up, these two questions will become pertinent: will corporation presidents be as cooperative as U.S. Steel's Speer in volunteering their plans? If they do, how will they react to the administration's attempts to restrain them?

Beyond this is the opinion by some hard-nosed business executives and consultants that any governmental intrusion into the realm of business decision-making — even the unobtrusive Lance system — will be resented as deeply as outright controls. One consultant who believes fear and lack of liquidity are stifling capital investment sees even the tin triumph as widening that fear.

No Carter official is so concerned about the state of business confidence as Bert Lance. Accordingly, he should now consider whether that fragile relationship between the big corporations

BLIND TO TRUTH

Someone has made the acute observation that we can no longer recognize the truth if we give up telling it.

The liar breaks down in his own thinking the solid wall which divides truth from falsehood, and the result is such a churning together of things true and things untrue that for the life of him the purveyor of falsehood cannot tell the one from the other.

It is not possible to have satisfactory human relationships without veracity. If businessmen lie to each other, the foundations of economic life are destroyed. If husband and wife deceive each other, the warning of disaster sounds with awful foreboding. Parents who twist the truth and equivocate set an example to their children which will handicap them in later life more than the loss of an arm or a leg. In fact, what they do is to teach their children to become blind in the sense that they can no longer distinguish truth from falsehood.

Regulations Pose A 'Snakepit'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — When the Council on Wage and Price Stability set out to catalog all the federal regulations that affect the steel industry it did not know it was descending into a snakepit, but it was.

Regulations slithered off in all directions at once, so entwined it was sometimes impossible to tell where one ended and another began and, especially, where the whole meandering mass was headed.

When asked for their lists of regulations affecting the steel industry, said William Lilly III, acting director, "they (agencies) told us they were unable to provide them because they simply didn't know what regulations impacted on which industries."

The council persevered, and now its catalog is complete — insofar as can be determined. It is 235 pages long. It lists more than 5,000 regulations from more than 25 agencies, and that doesn't include state regulations.

"Astonishing," exclaimed Lilly. "Our catalog portrays how a major industry, such as iron and steel, can hardly make even routine decisions without taking into account the directives of some federal agency."

Sympathy seldom is wasted on the steel industry, but the enormous list compiled by the wage and price people might make any intelligent observer wonder if it wouldn't be better to begin again.

The catalog certainly is provocative enough to make most rational beings wonder if we in the United States are now working to make and accommodate ourselves to regulations, or to the production of products.

A comment by Lilly, when broken down as follows, illustrates how he — and presumably others on the council whose job it is to seek the greatest production at the lowest fair cost — was provoked:

"Steel is an industry whose production procedures are increasingly prescribed by government... whose costs are substantially influenced by government..."

"...whose market share exists as the sufferance of government..."

"...and whose profitability is affected a good deal less by innovation and enterprise than it is by what it must spend to comply with a mushrooming list of federal rules and regulations."

Later in the report, Lilly commented:

"What started off as a widely supported effort to accomplish certain socially desirable objectives through regulation has now grown so gigantic that the industry is having an increasingly difficult time accomplishing its most socially beneficial objective, that of producing iron and steel."

While regulation has a long and necessary history, Lilly said "The scope of government intervention is growing by leaps and bounds."

The number of agencies affecting the industry remained static at 13 from 1950 to 1960, he said, but rose by 4 from 1960 to 1965. By 1970, 5 more had been added; and between 1970 and 1975, 7 additional.

The number and extent of programs creating regulation has also risen as Congress has given new rulemaking powers to existing government offices, states the synopsis accompanying the catalog.

Howard Hunt Getting Out Of Prison In Time For Law Suit

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — E. Howard Hunt Jr. is getting out of jail, perhaps just in time to appear as a defendant in a $2-million lawsuit brought by the men he recruited for the Watergate burglary.

If the civil trial begins next Thursday as scheduled, Hunt may see some familiar faces from his Watergate past.

The roster of his co-defendants includes these former officials of the 1972 Richard Nixon re-election committee: John N. Mitchell, Maurice Stans, Jeb Magruder, Hugh W. Sloan Jr., Herbert L. Porter and G. Gordon Liddy. The Committee for the Re-election of the President and its finance arm, which still has more than $1 million left over from the campaign, also are defendants.

Hunt's lawyer, William Snyder, paid Hunt's $10,000 Watergate fine Wednesday, clearing the way for his release on parole next Wednesday. Snyder said Hunt will come straight from the federal prison camp at Eglin AFB in Florida to Washington for the trial. He will be freed two days earlier than the date set by the parole board so he can be in court.

The suit was brought by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis, who were arrested inside Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate Office Building.

The four, all from Miami, claim they were tricked into taking part in the June 1972 break-in because the defendants led them to believe they were working for a national security intelligence agency.

All four had participated in CIA operations, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. Hunt spent 21 years as a CIA agent before going to work for the White House and the re-election committee.

"You never heard the full story from the Cubans. Nobody has," said their lawyer, Daniel Schultz. "Why they went in there (Watergate) is what the whole case is all about."

Portrait Night

AYDEN — The Floral Club of Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church is sponsoring a family portrait night Monday, Feb. 28, from 5-10 p.m.

Bishop S. Jones, pastor, announced that a small fee will be charged for the portraits.

For further information, interested persons should contact the following members: Leolia S. Dixon; Jessie M. Outlaw; Myrtle Bizzell; Minnie Bell Thigpen; Alma Lee Edwards; Nina S. Phillips; Martha Jones; Clemmie McCarter; Rhoda Jones; or L. P. Ormond.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey has scheduled a pre-trial hearing on Friday and he still must rule on some pre-trial motions. Those factors, along with an out-of-court settlement that has been discussed, could delay or stop the trial.

Even if the trial goes forward, it might be less than a Watergate reunion. The defendants in a civil suit are not required to attend trials, although they often choose to do so.

Hunt was sentenced to serve 30 months to 8 years after he pleaded guilty to conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. By Jan. 10 he had served the minimum and became eligible for parole. His release will leave only one original Watergate defendant in prison, Liddy.

At least the electric power hasn't gone blooey — it hasn't gone blooey so far — but that's the best thing that can be said for electric power. The electric bills are horrendous. In our neck of the woods, everybody knows what Mr. Carter can do with his $50 rebates. He can send 'em to the Northern Piedmont Electric Cooperative, Box 352, Culpeper, Va. Or to Mr. Alvey at Pyrofax Gas. Or to the fuel oil folks.

You wouldn't believe the firewood situation. The wood dealers have become the merchant princes of the Blue Ridge Mountains. They consult with customers by appointment only. A few years ago, you could get an honest cord of wood for $20. Now, as a favor, they offer a pickup load for a hundred bucks. A hundred bucks! That was the price one of these green-oak tycoons quoted my wife, and he wasn't especially eager to sell it here in Rappahannock. In the Maryland and Virginia suburbs of Washington, these country capitalists are hawking firewood door to door at 50 cents a log.

There is but one thing to do, and I'm doing it. I am taking two weeks' vacation and heading for Savannah, Sea Pines and New Orleans. The immediate consequence will be a warning trend in Rappahannock County, temperatures in the 60s, crocus on the lawn, and bluebirds on the wing. The cherry trees will start to bud in Washington, and the Moynihan bill will die in committee. When I get back, February will be gone. Believe me, it won't be missed.

Pentagon officials said the aerospace industry has been applying weight through congressmen representing districts with production plants.

Despite congressional entreaties, the Carter administration is likely to recommend scaling down production of the B1 bomber from eight to five planes next year.

The whole future of the B1 is under review by the administration and a White House decision is likely in a month or so.

Thomas M. Shea, Director of Engineering, left, receives Industrial Professional Development Award from Ben Wilson for Burroughs Wellcome Company at recent Winter Meeting of Professional Engineers of North Carolina in Greensboro. The award is given each year by Professional Engineers of North Carolina to an industrial employer of engineering personnel who has adopted and implemented progressive employment practices for engineers.

Chinese New Year Is Beginning

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

At midnight tonight, hundreds of millions of people will begin celebrating the most festive event of each year — the beginning of the Chinese (or Lunar) New Year. Tomorrow is the first day of Lunar Year 4,675, the Year of the Snake.

In Greenville as in countless communities in practically every nation on earth where the Chinese population is a minority one, the celebration will be happily observed, though on a much smaller scale and for a shorter duration.

But still, it will be a joyful time, a moment out to remember and to keep alive at least a vestige of traditions that are rooted in the ancient history of China. The Chinese New Year is a time of family reunions, of feasting, exploding firecrackers, honoring the return of the spirits of departed ancestors, of visiting relatives and exchanging gifts of money for children and the unmarrieds, and of hoping for a prosperous year to come.

Chao-sheng Cheng, a librarian in the Health Affairs Library, East Carolina University, talked about plans for Greenville's Chinese community to mark the Year of the Snake. Cheng, a native of Taiwan, is married to Ellen Chae Kwok, an American born Chinese from Pittsburgh, Pa. The Chengs have two young sons, Daniel, 5, and Timothy, 3.

"There will be about 50 Chinese, families and their children, who will be celebrating the New Year in Greenville," Cheng said. "It will take place at the Lake Ellsworth Clubhouse. It will be held on Friday night and can celebrate late into the night without having to worry about getting up early."

"There will be many Chinese dishes," Mrs. Cheng noted, "all the different traditional Chinese food. We also plan to have a Chinese movie to show."

Relating traditional customs and practices still important to Chinese after nearly five centuries, Cheng observed that changing times have touched the celebrations. "The older people still wear the traditional dress at this time," he said, "but many of the young people do not. It is expensive."

One of the most important customs comes at the beginning of the New Year celebrations. "At the Chinese New Year dinner," Cheng said, "all the family returns to their home. If one cannot come, a seat is reserved for him, with chopsticks and a bowl placed at the table for that person."

IN GREENVILLE — two young Chinese boys, Daniel Cheng, 5 (left) and his baby brother, Timothy, 3, are like children anywhere, restless as their father keeps them away from television while talking about the Chinese Lunar New Year. On Friday night, the two will be among about 50 Chinese in Greenville who will for a brief time remember times past in celebrating Chinese Lunar Year 4,675, the Year of the Snake.

It is also a widespread custom to invite to the dinner anyone known to be alone, away from their home and unable to be with their family.

"Traditionally," Cheng continued, "we go to bed on New Year's eve with all our clothes on so that when the spirits of ancestors come back to visit they will not find us with pajamas on. Money given to children in a family is taken to bed and the children sleep with the money."

Also, though fish is always served as one of the foods at the festive dinner, nobody eats it. "In China," Cheng said, "fish is a symbol of abundance. Nobody wants to eat up their abundance at the beginning of a new year."

"On the first day of the year," Cheng related, "people visit their relatives. They take with them gifts of money, always put in bright red envelopes, to children and to unmarried persons in the house being visited. In turn, relatives repaying visits bring their gifts of money."

Usually, the third day of the Chinese New Year is one for visitation of friends and acquaintances.

"Until recent times," Cheng said, "the celebration of New Year went on for as much as 15 days. Now it is only two or three days."

1977 (or 4,675), the Year of the Snake, is one of a cycle of 12 years named for animals. The cycle begins with The Year of the Rat and ends with The Year of the Pig. In between are years designated as that of the: ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, chicken, and dog.

"In China," Cheng explained, "one ancient tribe regarded the snake as a creator. The snake was worshipped by this tribe as a symbol of the beginning of everything. The snake was able to sleep through the cold winter, and to awake when spring came. A sort of reincarnation."

Today, the Year of the Dragon is considered to be the best of all possible years. "Every time the Year of the Dragon comes," Cheng said, "the population increases as people are anxious to have children born in that year. And a family with three people, let us say a husband, a wife, a child or an in-law, all born in the Year of the Dragon, is said to be a most fortunate family."

An entire cycle in the Chinese calendar comprises a span of 60 years. This is because each of the 12 animal years occur once each in connection with the five fundamental elements — earth, air, fire, water and stone — to complete the 60 year circle.

Cheng pointed out that many people have wondered why the cat is not included in the group of 12 animals for which years are named. "It is an old story," he said, "one that children love to hear."

"Long ago, when the gods decided to arrange a time cycle, they invited all the animals to come to a certain place and to be there at a certain time. The animals were told that the first 12 to arrive would be honored by having their names given to a year."

"At that time, the cat and the rat were friends, and they started out together. On the way, the rat became jealous of the cat and pushed the cat into the river. The cat, being a proud animal, did not want to arrive dirty and wet and so returned home to clean up, and so arrived too late. Therefore, the rat got there early. Actually the slow ox, knowing he was slow, started early and was the first to arrive. But the rat, being sneaky, slipped under the other animals and was the first to jump to the front of the line."

"That is why today the cat hates the rat and will chase him whenever he sees him," Cheng said.

And in this time of celebrating another New Year, millions of children will listen with delight to a tale that is one part of a long history of traditions being honored in observances of the Chinese New Year.

Conley High School Marks FBLA Week

The Future Business Leaders (FBLA) at D.H. Conley High School observed National FBLA Week February 6-12 in cooperation with National Education Week.

Each day the club was allowed to announce information about FBLA over the intercom. During the week, the goals of the club were read, pertinent historical facts about the organization were stated, the creed was read, the club was opened for membership and the FBLA Song was sung.

Those taking part in the week's activities were Wayne Worthington, president; Wendy Carrioco, Gail Thompson, Hannah Paramore, Catherine Dews, Paulette Hill, Gwendolyn Wilson, and Tammy Stocks.

Vicky Smith, a member of FBLA has prepared a speech entitled "The Free Enterprise" and is presenting it to each United States History Class at Conley.

The Conley Chapter of FBLA also helped the Winterville Jaycees with their Jelly Sale to raise funds for the N.C. Burn Center in Chapel Hill.

There are over 125,000 students enrolled in FBLA from all 50 states. North Carolina has approximately 5,500 members. There are 56 business students who are members of the D. H. Conley Chapter of FBLA.

Planners At ECU Session

Approximately 65 persons attended a conference on the "Built Environment" at East Carolina University Friday.

The meeting was the second of three regional hearings sponsored by the N.C. chapter of the American Institute of Planners for 1976-77.

The first meeting, on the "Natural Environment," was held at Appalachian State University Jan. 6, and the third, on "Social Environment," is scheduled for UNC-Chapel Hill April 1.

The NCAIP environmental hearings are hosted by the three N. C. campuses which offer degrees in city and regional planning.

ECU's conference was co-hosted by the N.C. chapter of AIP, the ECU Regional Development Institute, and the Urban and Regional Planning Program, a part of the ECU Department of Geography.

Conference coordinator was William W. Hankins, director of Urban and Regional Planning at ECU. He was assisted by John Schofield, Greenville City Planner; Mack Simpson, Regional Development Institute senior planner; and Joe Durham, president of the ECU Student Planning Association.

Featured at the Greenville conference was an address by Spurgeon Cameron, assistant director of the N.C. State University Center for Urban Affairs, who spoke on "Our Built Environment, Energy and Change—Future Directions."

Mini-Circus Is Staged For Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Three Spanish clowns sang "Granada" and 15 white doves chirped away to tunes from "My Fair Lady" in a special circus performance put on for a delighted Pope Paul VI. Members of the Orefei circus of Italy entertained the 79-year-old pontiff Wednesday at the conclusion of his general audience. The scene-stealer was 11-year-old Ambra Orfei, an accomplished bird trainer, who said: "To perform in front of the Pope is so unusual that I'd like my doves to understand what it means."

Death Penalty Foes Argue It's Not A Deterrent

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Opponents of the death penalty have told North Carolina legislators that it does not deter crime and would not save the state money if used.

Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment announced, meanwhile, that former Sen. Sam Ervin would appear at a rally here next Tuesday.

The arguments on the death penalty before House and Senate judiciary committees were to wind up this afternoon. The committees are considering legislation to restore the death penalty for rape and murder. The state has had no death penalty since the U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the state's capital punishment law was unconstitutional.

Rep. H. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, argued against the death penalty and in support of his bill that would substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty without possibility of parole or sentence commutation for at least 25 years.

Speaking for reinstatement of the death penalty was Milo Holt, a Siler City insurance agent who said he based his belief in capital punishment on his fundamentalist religious convictions.

ERA BATTLE
Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment announced they will have a rally next Tuesday featuring former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., a long-time ERA opponent. The rally will be in Dorton Arena at the State Fairgrounds at 1 p.m.

Ervin will be among the opponents to appear at a public hearing before the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee at 3:30 that afternoon. A group of senators opposing ERA also said they will push hard to get the issue put to a public referendum.

Meanwhile, ERA supporters vowed to continue their efforts as before. Carolyn K. Hervey of North Carolinians United for ERA said the emphasis will still be on having supporters ask their senators to vote for ERA.

FOOT DRAGGING
Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green chided the Senate for foot-dragging and urged the senators to speed up their committee work. He noted that, of 113 bills introduced in the Senate, 77 have not been acted on.

"We're not busy now but we're going to be busy in May and I want those boxes worked on," Green said referring to the boxes where bills are stored while waiting committee action.

PORTS
A bill that would transfer the State Ports Authority from the Department of Transportation to the Department of Commerce received the approval of the House State Government Committee.

Gov. Jim Hunt is backing the bill that would end the terms of the present authority members. It would create a new board composed of nine members. The governor would appoint seven, the House speaker one and the lieutenant governor one.

NEW BILLS
New legislation included bills to:
—Prohibit tattooing except by a licensed physician, introduced by Rep. Barney Paul Woodard, D-Johnston.

—Eliminate the provision in the unemployment insurance law that denies unemployment benefits to workers idled by labor disputes in some plant other than the one in which they work, introduced by Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake.

—Fix the speed limit in municipalities at 25 miles an hour unless another speed is posted, by Rep. Richard Erwin, D-Forsyth.

—Express disapproval at the previewing of PG-, R- or X-rated movies while a G-rated motion picture is on the program of a movie theater, introduced by Sen. George Marion, D-Surry.

—Increase the number of judges on the state Court of Appeals from nine to 12. The governor would appoint the new judges initially and their successors would be elected. Introduced in the Senate by Marion and in the House by Rep. Peter Hairston, D-Davie.

—Increase the number of Superior Court judges by 14 and the number of assistant district attorneys in order to speed up work of the courts. Introduced in the Senate by Marion and in the House by Hairston.

—Appropriate $800,000 to fund regional education training centers for children with special needs, introduced by Sen. James Garrison, D-Stanly.

—Shift the state's primary election from August to the second Friday in May. Introduced by Rep. Clyde Auman, D-Moore.

—Repeal the state law requiring motorists to carry automobile liability insurance, introduced by Rep. Claude DeBuhl, D-Buncombe.

ABC RULES
The Senate approved a bill that would repeal a law making it a criminal offense for a person to violate the rules of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. The present law makes violations a misdemeanor punishable by as much as two years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The bill was amended so that anyone convicted in the past would have it expunged from his record. It now goes back to the House for concurrence on the amendment.

SEX BIAS
The Senate approved and forwarded to the House a bill that would give men the same rights for support that women have if they are institutionalized for insanity. Now, a wife has rights to support if her husband has the ability, though a husband does not, said Sen. Kathy Sebo, D-Guilford, sponsor of the measure.

HER VALENTINE PRESENT — Hymie Singer gives his wife, Ruth, a kiss Wednesday after purchasing the 301-foot SS Catalina steamship for his wife's Valentine present. Singer, a Beverly Hills real estate developer, outbid others for the Catalina, known as the Great White Steamer to the millions it has ferried to Santa Catalina Island over the past 50 years. Singer bid $70,000 for the vessel which cost $1 million in 1924. (AP Wirephoto)

Mobile Home Rules Eased

RALEIGH (AP) — Effective June 1, mobile homes 14 feet wide can be hauled on primary and secondary roads in North Carolina.

The State Transportation Board voted unanimously Wednesday to approve the policy change. The previous board had rejected it 10 months ago. The present maximum width is 12 feet.

Some of the primary and secondary roads in the state are only 16 and 14 feet wide.

"It's another form of progress," said William C. Herring of Wilson, one of four appointees by Gov. Jim Hunt who were sworn in before the meeting. The others given the oath were Michael Fleming of Greensboro, T.G. (Sonny Boy) Joyner of Garysburg and Oscar Ledford of Franklin.

Three legislative members also were sworn in. They were Rep. David Bumgardner Jr., D-Gaston, appointed by House Speaker Carl Stewart Jr.; Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, appointed by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, and Rep. Thomas Rhodes, R-New Hanover, by the joint minority caucus.

Of the mobile home change, Joyner said, "I don't see where two more feet will make much difference, but for the sake of the industry, we ought to do it."

Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw said safety guidelines prepared for the policy change were adequate and the state's mobile home industry would suffer without it.

Hunt attended the swearing in ceremony and reiterated his plans to seek restructuring of the transportation board, abolition of the Secondary Roads Council, and a $300 million road bond issue.

Weather-Wearied Travel To Find That Sunshine

By The Associated Press
While much of the nation pokes its head out of month-long hibernation caused by heavy snowfall and the coldest January on record, weather-weary tourists are heading South and West for sunshine.

"We're up to our armpits in people," said a spokesman for the 1,200-room Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood, Fla.

Many Florida officials say the current jam — compounded even further by the upcoming Washington's birthday weekend — will compensate for tourist dollars that were lost when much of the nation's travel came to an icy halt a few weeks ago and even Florida was experiencing freezing temperatures.

"This has always been a big weekend for us, but it's looking like it's going to be especially good this year," said Phil Halpern of the Miami Beach Tourist Development Authority.

In Naples, Fla., officials asked residents to offer overnight housing for tourists because all hotel rooms were filled for the holiday.

In Orlando, Fla., officials at hotels and campgrounds near Disney World said they were expecting capacity crowds by the weekend.

And a Miami-based spokesman for a large auto rental firm said his company has suspended reservations for the rest of the week and the weekend.

Meanwhile, planeloads of shivering Easterners and Midwesterners are keeping resorts in California, Nevada and Arizona busy.

Temperatures in southern California have been setting record highs. It was 88 degrees Wednesday and has been over 90 in the past few days.

"The only cancellations we're getting are from people who can't get out here because of the weather," said Wanda Sadler, a switchboard operator at a plush Palm Springs, Calif., hotel.

Some of those fleeing the freezing temperatures don't even bother to make hotel reservations, one tourism official in Palm Springs complained.

"They just grabbed the first plane out. Then walk in here and say, 'Here we are. Find us a room.'"

At the Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Los Angeles, an official said several guests from cold sections of the country refused to leave when their reservations were up.

"They just don't want to go back," said Stephanie Courtwright.

Optimistic For Tourism

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Representatives of North Carolina's travel and tourism industry don't feel that the energy shortage will hurt the state's tourist business unless gasoline is affected.

State Travel Director William Arnold and Robert High of the Private Travel Council of North Carolina said Wednesday higher fuel bills and other effects of the economy could affect travel patterns.

However, they said they feel that the people will be ready to head for coastal tourist areas when the weather gets warm.

"Frankly, I'm not concerned about it," Arnold said. "I think they are going to take off and travel."

High and Arnold were in New Bern for a Travel Council seminar.

Meanwhile, Arnold released figures which showed that North Carolina's travel and tourism industry had record revenues of $1.2 billion in 1976, a 17 per cent increase over 1975.

A total of 43.9 million out-of-state travelers visited North Carolina, up by 3.9 million from 1975. They spent $855 million in the state's resorts, attractions, cities and communities.

Tar Heels spent $425 million within their confines, Arnold reported.

Travelers and tourists, he said, contributed $145 million in state and local taxes during the year.

The travel industry generated jobs for 153,850 North Carolinians and provided $478 million in personal income for Tar heel citizens.

The Social Security Act was signed in August 1935.

Assassinations Inquiry Sinks Deeper Into Limbo

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Committee on assassinations is deeper in limbo after its members overrode their chairman's demand for a showdown between himself and the staff director.

The panel voted 8-1 on Wednesday to adjourn until Monday rather than act on the attempt by Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., to oust Richard A. Sprague as head of the committee staff.

The vote, which left Gonzalez without apparent allies, was a surprise move that amounted to a personal rebuke for the chairman, who cast the lone dissenting vote.

It led Gonzalez to predict that the beleaguered panel might never achieve its assigned mission, to probe anew the slayings of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

Gonzalez said that he "cannot imagine" the House extending the committee's life beyond its present March 31 deadline unless the members change their attitudes.

Gonzalez said the committee has serious financial problems, and even though staff workers have already accepted a 35 percent cut in pay, outstanding bills can't be paid without further cost-cutting.

He laid the blame for most of this on Sprague, whom he said had promised staff members salaries beyond reason and refused orders to cut back on the committee staff as a cost-saving measure.

The committee spent the day working on rules while Sprague, who had come to the meeting with his own budget plans and proposed operating procedures, waited in silence for the expected showdown with Gonzalez.

But before the issue was resolved, Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., moved over Gonzalez' objections to adjourn for a few days to "settle our internal difficulties ... in some orderly fashion."

One congressional source said that the vote reflected a "disenchantment with Gonzalez as chairman that is of longer standing than the Sprague matter," and that the rebels, led by Preyer, wanted to develop a course of action that might include asking House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to appoint a new chairman.

It was Sprague's alleged defiance of Gonzalez that led to his being fired last week, only to be immediately reinstated by the committee's other 11 members. They said the chairman lacked the dismissal power.

Newspaper Uncovers Hoax To Practice Law In S. Carolina

COLUMBIA (AP)—A young woman, who claimed to go to a high school that has no record of her attendance and using the identity and transcript of a Vassar College graduate, received a law degree and was licensed to practice law in South Carolina, a Columbia newspaper has learned.

The woman received her law degree from the University of South Carolina School of Law in 1975 and was sworn into the State Bar on Dec. 1, 1975. The State reported in its editions today.

She became a member of the state bar after passing the bar examination and undergoing a routine background check by the South Carolina State Law Enforcement Division.

She obtained her degree and authority to practice law in the state under the name Gabrielle Ann Scott Elliott and signed the Roll of South Carolina Attorneys, a state Supreme Court record, in that name.

During her years at the law school she worked as a student clerk for the South Carolina Attorney General's Office and later as a law clerk in a private firm.

Acting Law School Dean Harry J. Haynsworth says he remembered the woman as a "bright, capable, young woman."

Haynsworth said the hoax proves "that obviously we are not infallible. We don't go around checking people's names and Social Security numbers. We rely on what the student tells us."

Law school and university officials have generally refused to comment on the case beyond that.

Miss Elliott's educational pursuits apparently did not end with her law degree. Records at the University of Washington Law School in Seattle show that she studied from the fall of 1971 to the spring of 1976 for a masters degree in environmental law there, but did not receive it.

In entering the USC School of Law she said she was a graduate of Beaufort High School, Vassar College and the daughter of the William Elliotts.

However, officials of the high school in Beaufort, S.C., say they have no record of her attendance, the Vassar transcript she used belonged to another woman and no William Elliotts could be found in Beaufort with a daughter.

The Vassar transcript was that of Ann Scott Elliott, now Mrs. Alan F. Blanchard, a housewife and mother residing on Park Avenue in New York City.

In a telephone interview, Mrs. Blanchard, a 1964 Vassar graduate, said she was notified of the hoax in the late spring or early summer of 1976 by the South Carolina Attorney General's Office.

"It was definitely my transcript," Mrs. Blanchard said.

A Martha Elliott, widow of William Elliot of Beaufort, was contacted, but she said she has no daughter and never heard of Gabrielle Elliott.

Mrs. Elliott lives on the road that Gabrielle Elliott listed in the USC student directories as where her home was located.

Mrs. Blanchard said she was told the hoax was discovered by a USC Law School professor who was reviewing Miss Elliott's file about a year after she graduated and noticed that in order for her to have been born in 1945 she would have had to have graduated from college at the age of 18 or 19.

STILL SMILING — Kip Hayes, 18, paralyzed from the neck down since Nov. 12 when he was injured in a football game for his El Cajon, Calif. high school, is ordering his cap and gown for graduation and plans to go on to college for a degree in environmental biology. The young man for whom doctors initially held little hope is getting good grades as he studies from his hospital bed, with classmates providing him tutoring and other help. (AP Wirephoto)

Trapped By Handwriting

NEW YORK (AP) — A would-be robber with sloppy handwriting was arrested because the teller said she couldn't decipher the stick-up note and told him to write another one that was readable. While he did, she pushed the silent alarm.

"He was dopey, that I know," said teller Kitty Madden. "I think that's why I was so brave, because he just appeared very stupid."

When the alleged bandit walked into the European American Bank branch in Brooklyn on Wednesday and handed Ms. Madden a badly scrawled note. She told him, "I don't understand you. You'll have to make it out again."

As the suspect, identified as Keith Baynes, 23, was filling out a fresh withdrawal slip, silent alarms were sounded and a customer wrestled him to the ground, police said.

Authorities said Baynes told them he had better luck about two weeks ago at the same bank when his hard-to-read note netted him $1,500.

Two Injured In Traffic Mishap

A collision at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard about 3:50 p.m. yesterday injured two people and caused an estimated $5,500 property damage, Greenville Police reported.

Officers identified drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap as William Gary Elks of Grimesland and Alfred Johnson Norris of Dunn.

Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the Elks car and $3,000 to the Norris car by investigators who charged Elks with failing to stop for a stop light.

Police reported Norris and a passenger in the Elks car were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Losing Jobs In Phase-Out

TARBORO — A phase out of the weaving operations at the Burlington Greige Fabrics plant here soon will result in the loss of jobs for some 300 employees, the firm announced this week.

The firm reported that the plant will be transferred from the Greige Fabrics Division to Burlington Sportswear and involve the phasing out of operations in the weaving production area over the next ten to 12 weeks.

A plant spokesman said that yarn production at the facility will continue for the Sportswear Division and approximately 300 persons will remain in their jobs in the yarn operation.

The spokesman cited continued deterioration of markets for the plant's unfinished light weight apparel fabrics as the reason for the decision to phase out weaving operations.

time he goes out of office," Lee added.

In a report to the commissioners on the proposed joint Recreation-Library Building to be built at Jaycee Park, Lee reiterated action taken by the City Council earlier this month in approving funding for the building.

"The council agreed to appropriate two payments from revenue sharing, some $346,600.

"The architect (William Friend) is now putting specifications together for bids, which should be back to the City County for the April meeting.

"So by May 1," Lee pointed out, "construction may be underway for this building to which so many in Greenville have eagerly looked forward and worked hard to get going."

Lee said for North Carolina, "it will be the first joint Recreation and Library facility."

Action on a proposed raft race was tabled since the originators of the proposal could not be present at last night's meeting.

The published 1976 Annual Report was reviewed by Recreation Division director Charles Vincent and Parks Division director Walter Stavach. The two referred to highlights of new programs and developments during 1976 contained in the publication. (A limited number of copies are available at Elm Center for at a cost of $1.00. The annual report sets forth in detail statistics and descriptions of all existing programs and projects under the jurisdiction of the Recreation Department.)

About 40 East Carolina University students, members of two Recreation and Parks classes, were on hand as special observers at last night's meeting.

that the businesses could at this time take on a supportive role. He also said that businesses may be approached later for private contributions.

In other business the board of directors reviewed and passed budget changes. It was announced that a Congressional Preview Conference will be held at the Greenville Moose Lodge Monday at 4 p.m. The conference sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce will allow business leaders to discuss legislative and congressional problems with Congressman Walter B. Jones and other governmental officials. An open forum with N.C. representatives and senators will also be held Monday. The meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. at the Eastern Carolina Workshop.

Retirees Meet On Saturday

production leasing. "Adequate consideration of these factors might have led to modifications" in the program "resulting in greater environmental protection without impairing reasonable exploitation of off-shore hydrocarbon resources."

The suit against the sale of the leases was brought by the two counties which comprise Long Island — Nassau and Suffolk — by several towns on Long Island and by the Natural Resources Defense Council, an umbrella organization representing several environmental groups.

A total of 4,043 pages of testimony was taken during hearings on the suit.

Annual Tobacco Meet In Williamston Feb. 22

Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation, the grower organization which administers the price support program for flue-cured tobacco, will hold its 19th annual district meeting for North Carolina growers in District No. 6.

According to James T. Hill, Jr. of Kinston, Director from District No. 6, and Fred G. Bond,

General Manager, the meeting will be held in the Town and Country Restaurant in Williamston, February 22 at 2 p.m.

District No. 6 includes the following flue-cured counties in the N.C. Eastern Belt: Beaufort, Bertie, Carteret, Craven, Dare, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pitt, Tyrrell, and Washington.

The Cooperative's operational report for the calendar year will be presented. Discussion concerning the large inventory build up of down-stalk grades of tobacco in Stabilization's inventory will be held.

Stabilization's stocks totaled 608 million pounds as of January 1, 1977, a large percentage of which consisted of down-stalk tobacco. Hill said that on January 1, 1975, Stabilization held just under 100 million pounds of tobacco in inventory. Over 535 million pounds of tobacco moved into Stabilization's inventory from the 1975-76 crops. Hill also said that Stabilization's sales for the past two calendar years have totaled less than 28 million pounds which has caused further concern, as normal sales activity over a two-year period amounts to more than 250 million pounds.

Reports will be presented by representatives of Tobacco Associates Inc.; Tobacco Growers' Information Committee, USDA-AMS Inspection Service; and other allied organizations.

A brief business session will be held for the election of Stabilization's Advisory Committee members for the coming year.

Local Government Employees Here

The North Carolina Local Governmental Employees' Retirement System is conducting its annual spring pre-retirement conference at the Willis Building here Thursday, Mar. 3.

Some 20 such conferences are being held throughout the state. Each will begin at 1:30 p.m. and last about two and a half hours.

These conferences are designed for members of the Local Governmental Employees' Retirement System who are planning to retire this year, and for personnel officers and others who handle retirement matters. All employees 60 and older would find these conferences beneficial, since they are to acquaint those attending with procedures to be followed in the retirement process.

For more information one may contact the Information Section of the Employees' Retirement and Health Benefits Division at 733-2646.

Career Exploration Week Is Observed

The Career Exploration Club of Agnes Fullilove School led the student body in daily activities during Occupational Education Week February 7-11.

Monday was Dress Up Day and students wore clothes representing the occupations of their choice.

Tuesday was Clean Up Day. An environmental project was carried out in the classrooms, on the campus and in the buildings.

Wednesday was Boss (Teacher) Appreciation Day. Students were especially nice to office personnel and faculty members.

Thursday was Occupational Misfit Day. Students mismatched their clothing to represent the employees who are not well suited for the jobs they have chosen.

On Friday a talent show was held. The following students participated in the show: Danny Dupree, Chip Little, Shelia Murphy, Lisa Ward, Gaye Bryant, Art Pittman, Donna Akin, Leslie McPherson, Cora Jones, Ann Halvey, Lynn Brinson, Robin O'Neal, Annett Joyner, Ishan Schgal, Vicky Hardee, Chris Jensen, Sharon Allen, Vicky McLoy, Faith Lee, Joey Burroughs and Martha Ann Ferrell.

Rose High student, Jackie Payton also performed with background music provided by Bobby Whitchard and Ray Davis.

Danny Dupree and "The Crazy Eight Band" featuring Art Pittman on the drums will represent Agnes Fullilove School's Career Exploration Club at the State Convention to be held April 1-2 in Raleigh.

Board Of Health Meets Tonight

Dr. Charles Fitzgerald, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Health, has announced that there will be a board meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Three Steers Restaurant.

At its January meeting, the Board reelected Dr. Fitzgerald of Farmville as its chairman and Ed N. Warren as its vice-chairman.

Health Director Roger Barnaby indicated that agenda items include a report on satellite clinics, a report on the progress of the health department's construction program, and division activity reports from each of the division chiefs and the health director.

Dinner Honors Local Pastor

Members of Philippi Church of Christ honored their pastor, Rev. Elbert B. Williams, at a birthday dinner Saturday evening at the church.

The dining area was decorated with a Valentine motif.

During the evening, members of the church and friends gave testimonials concerning the honoree.

Among the guest ministers and wives who joined the Rev. and Mrs. Williams were the Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Jones, the Rev. and Mrs. Brown, the Rev. and Mrs. O'Kelly Lawson, Eldress Lucy Jones and husband and the Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Norfleet.

The Rev. Williams was remembered with gifts and a Valentine signed by guests.

Saudi King In London Hospital

LONDON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's King Khaled will spend about a week recuperating from hip surgery at Wellington Hospital before returning home. The 63-year-old king was making good progress, a spokesman reported Wednesday. Saudi national radio has reported that Crown Prince Fahd, running the country in the king's absence, released a number of prisoners from jail in a gesture of thanks to God for the success of the operation.

Conducting An ECU Seminar

Charles W. Finch Jr. of Wilson, graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry, will conduct the regular Friday afternoon departmental seminar Feb. 18.

Finch will report on his research in a program entitled, "Diffusion of Gases in Solids."

The program is scheduled for 2 p.m. in 201 Flanagan Building and is free and open to the public.

Snow Melts But Cold Returns

As the snow melted the temperatures dropped in the Pitt County area Wednesday afternoon. Wednesday's high temperature was recorded at 43 degrees and the low was recorded at 24 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Department. Thursday at 8 a.m. the temperature was 23 degrees and the river level measured 5 feet according to the National Weather Service River Level Chart.

Furman Runs Past East Carolina

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Furman University spotted East Carolina an early nine-point lead, then came roaring back to gain a 74-66 victory over the Pirates last night in Minges Coliseum.

Furman's second place team in the Southern Conference had its problems right at the start, as the Pirates cut its man-to-man defense apart, but after switching to a zone, Furman had more success and began to eat away at the Pirate lead.

After taking the lead at 18-17, the Paladins never trailed again, and built up leads of as much as 15 points in the second half.

East Carolina put on rally after rally, but each time, after drawing within ten or eight points, they would make costly mistakes that took them right out of the rally.

"We just lost it all tonight," Coach Dave Patton said afterwards. "We lost the ball game there in the middle of the first half. After that, we had no spirit, no life, no hustle."

Patton added that the five-game losing streak, and the continuing problems of the team in trying to jell is getting to his young players. "We seem to have no confidence whatsoever now. We can't keep going on like this without having some success."

The coach said that every time the Pirates got close to the Paladins, they would throw the ball away or make some other bad play. "We were running with the ball at the start of the game and playing well. But when they shifted from a man-to-man to a zone, we started standing around. And as soon as they started coming back on us, we just lost our confidence."

The coach added that the Bucs got no performance from their guards, who shot a combined four for 20 from the floor. "(Lou) Crosby did play good defense, however."

Patton added that the coaching staff had done all the talking it could now. "We've tried everything. Now, we just need a win to get our chins off our chests."

After a poor shooting first half, just 32.4 per cent, the Pirates came back to shoot 53.1 per cent in the second half, and matched Furman in scoring, 40 to 40. But the eight point lead that the Paladins built up in the first half held up.

For once, the Pirates were beaten from the floor, as Furman hit 33 field goals to 28 for the Pirates. Furman was eight for 15 from the line, while the Pirates were 10 for 16.

Oddly enough, East Carolina enjoyed a 48-35 rebound advantage over the taller Paladins.

East Carolina took the initial lead on a basket by Greg Cornelius, then added a basket by Larry Hunt and a pair of free throws by Crosby before Furman finally got on the scoreboard.

Hunt hit and Herb Gray followed with two in a row for a 12-3 lead before Furman finally started putting it together.

After the Pirates took a 14-5 lead, Furman outhit the Pirates 13-3, to push into an 18-17 lead with 9:09 left in the half. Bruce Grimm provided the go-ahead shot, and Jonathan Moore followed with a jumper to run the lead out to three.

From there on out, Furman upped its lead to as much as ten, and settled for a 34-26 lead at intermission. In the second half, Furman quickly built up a 16 point margin at 44-28, but the Pirates trimmed it back to as little as nine before falling back again, this time by 15. They cut the lead again, this time to eight, at 66-58, but again, Furman was able to pull away, moving out by 14 once more. Finally, in the waning seconds, the Bucs pulled back to the eight point margin once more, but got no closer.

Grimm led the Paladins with 22 points, while Jim Strickland added 17, Moore had 15 and John Cottingham had 12. Strickland led the Furman rebounding with 10, while Moore had seven.

For the Pirates, Gray and Hunt each had 16 and Crosby had 10. Cornelius led the rebounding with 10, while Gray had nine and Hunt had seven.

The Pirates close out the Southern Conference season Saturday, hosting The Citadel.

Sectional Wrestling Tournament At Rose

Rose High School will play host to 21 other wrestling teams as the Northeastern Sectional Tournament is held Friday and Saturday on the Rampant mats.

The Rampants, along with D. H. Conley and Plymouth High School, will be the favorites in the meet to win the sectional championship. Rose brings a once-beaten record into the meet, while Conley and Plymouth are both unbeaten on the year.

Weigh-ins will get underway at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the Elm Street Gym. Preliminary matches will begin at 11:30 a.m. in the Rose High gym. Quarterfinals will be held starting at 6 p.m.

The Saturday weigh-ins will be held at 12 noon, with the semifinals of the tournament starting at 2 p.m. Consolation bouts for third and fourth place will be held at 6 p.m., with the finals starting at 7:30 p.m.

The champion and runner-up at each of the 13 weight classes will advance to the state tournament, to be held next Friday and Saturday at Winston-Salem Parkland.

The 22 competing teams include Ahoskie, Ayden-Grifton, Broughton, Cape Hatteras, Conley, Enloe, Farmville Central, Wilson Fike, Governor Morehead, Edenton, North Pitt, Northeastern, Northern Nash, Plymouth, Rocky Mount, Rose, Sanderson, Southern Nash, Tarboro, Vaiden-Whitley, Washington and Williamston.

In the area, seven wrestlers will carry unbeaten marks into the sectionals, although two of those matmen have been tied during the year. Cliff Hagan, John Lawler and James Cherry of Rose finished the regular season and conference tournaments without a defeat or a tie. Conley's Jesse Davis also was unbeaten and untied. Aubrey Wynne of North Pitt was also unbeaten and untied.

Williamston's Roosevelt Mackey posted a 14-0-1 mark, 21-0-1.

Overall, a total of 33 wrestlers posted winning records, based on a minimum of 14 matches going into the sectionals.

Following are the leaders in each of the weight classes, based on the class they most wrestled in during the season:

101: Cliff Hagan (R) 20-0; Gary Harris (C) 17-3; Ben Jones (W) 10-5; John Simpson (NP) 8-7

106: John Lawler (R) 20-0; Joe Ebron (FC) 13-4

115: James Cherry (R) 21-0; Alton Crandall (C) 19-3

122: Floyd Crandall (C) 19-1; Jesse Baker (R) 18-2

129: Horace Williams (FC) 15-2; David Newton (FC) 12-3

135: Ronald Harris (C) 21-0-1; Virgil Tyson (R) 12-7

142: Roosevelt Mackey (W) 14-0-1; Johnny Harris (R) 16-1-1; Larry Powell (C) 12-6-1

189: Paul Bridges (C) 14-2; Bernie Fleming (R) 12-7

199: Jesse Davis (C) 22-0; Rocky Butler (R) 17-3; Joe Jenkins (W) 9-7

Heavyweight: John Dupree (FC) 15-2; Lo Carmon (C) 18-3; Ricky Stokes (NP) 9-8-1

Lady Pirates In Tournament

East Carolina's Lady Pirates will close out their regular season this weekend when they compete in the Winthrop College Basketball Tournament. The Lady Bucs will be one of 12 teams in the Rock Hill, S. C. tournament, running today through Sunday.

East Carolina, 3-13 on the season, has had a series of injuries this season and will go into Thursday's opening round game without two starters and with one starter slowed by a leg injury.

Rosie Thompson, all-state last year, suffered a stress fracture in her leg early in the season and has been lost for the year. Her replacement, Kathy Suggs, caught an elbow in the mouth in a recent game, requiring ten stitches. She has not practiced in scrimmages with the team since the injury. She will be on the bench in Thursday's opener. Freshman standout center Linda McClellan suffered a badly-sprained ankle in the last game and is out for the season.

The starting lineup for the first round will be Debbie Freeman and Debbie Tritt at forward, Sheila Bowe at center and Gale Kerbaugh and April Ross or Regina Lacy at guard.

"We are definitely hurting somewhat coming into this tournament," head coach Catherine Bolton said. "We have lost three starters and this can have a crippling effect on a team."

The favorite in the tournament will be Tennessee. Appalachian State, which has beaten the Lady Pirates three times this season, should also be in the running for the top berth.

Other teams in the event include: Anderson College, Georgia, South Carolina, Winthrop, UNC-Greensboro, College of Charleston, Longwood, East Tennessee State and Western Carolina.

The Lady Pirates will open tonight with Georgia at 6:30. ECU beat Georgia last season.

Chicod In Two Losses

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill took a pair of junior high school games from Chicod yesterday. In the girls' game, Snow Hill gained a 17-14 victory.

Snow Hill then downed the Chicod boys, 40-35. J. Edwards led Snow Hill with 13 points, while G. Bryant added 12. Frankie Pollard had 20 and Sammy Whitehurst had ten for Chicod, now 7-3.

Panthers Escape Night Of Upsets

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — North Pitt's boys defeated Southern Nash to advance into the finals, but they were the only higher-seeded team to win in last night's Eastern Carolina Conference tournament action.

The Panthers gained a 74-57 semi-final win over the Firebirds in the third game last night, but in first round games third-seeded D. H. Conley's boys lost to number six North Lenoir and North Pitt's third-ranked girls were upset by sixth-place Southern Nash.

Vikings In Loss

A flurry of Conley fouls in the final two minutes of action prevented a Viking comeback and they were defeated by North Lenoir, 66-59.

The game got out of control late in the fourth quarter as the frustrated Vikings, after losing an eight-point lead, committed fourteen fouls, two of them flagrant, in the final 3:05 of the game.

Although the Hawks hit poorly from the line, they had enough opportunities to enable them to stay ahead. Sixteen of North Lenoir's points came from the free throw line.

Johnny Wiggins had the hot hand in the first quarter to keep the game close. He countered baskets by Conley's Ricky Rountree and Mike Cox with two shots from the corner to knot the score at four.

He connected on a jump shot with one second left in the quarter to pull North Lenoir to within one, 11-10 going into the second period.

The Hawks took a 12-11 lead early in the quarter as Mitchell Wiggins scored a layup off the tip. The teams traded baskets until Daryl Thompson hit two straight jumpers from the 17-foot range to give Conley a 19-17 lead.

The Vikings built that lead to eight points, 27-19, on an Al Tyson hook with 3:01 left in the half and held a 31-25 margin at intermission. Conley's hot hand in the second quarter is what enabled the Vikes to move out in front as they hit 10 of 12 shots in the period.

North Lenoir fought back in the third quarter, however, and took the lead late in the period. Amos Purcell led the way, scoring six points before Johnny Wiggins' two free throws tied the game at 40 with 2:12 remaining.

Mitchell Wiggins hit from the charity stripe a few seconds later to put the Hawks ahead, but the Vikings came back to take a 43-41 lead going into the final frame.

Conley hit its first three shots, as well as scoring three from the line, to take a 51-43 lead with 6:43 remaining, but a North Lenoir scoring burst put the Hawks back in front in a little over a minute and a half. The drive was capped by Johnny Wiggins' three-point play which gave North Lenoir a 54-51 lead with 5:04 left.

Tyson hit a follow shot to cut the margin to one, but the Hawks scored two buckets to take a five-point edge.

Thompson hit from the lane with 2:49 left to make it 60-57, but Garland Fisher hit two free throws for the Hawks.

Bernard Hawkins again cut the edge to three with a pair of foul shots, but they proved to be the last Conley scores of the game and North Lenoir hit four from the line after that in the final minute, which with the fouling, seemed endless.

Johnny Wiggins led all scorers while Mitchell Wiggins scored 13. Purcell added 12 and Fisher 11 for the Hawks.

Conley was paced by Thompson's 18 and Tyson's 14.

Pant-HERS Upset

When Southern Nash's Deborah Edwards hit two free throws with 19 seconds left to give the Ladybirds a 37-35 lead, it was the first time they had held the edge since the midway through the third period. But they made it stick and won by that score.

Southern Nash had to battle from as many as seven points back in the final period but, led by Zulene Minga, they were able to tie the game with 2:17 left and again at the 1:11 mark, before taking the lead on Edwards' foul shots.

The first quarter of the game was all Ladybirds and the second all Pant-HERS as the teams battled to a 15-14 halftime score with Southern Nash on top.

The Ladybirds jumped out to a 13-2 lead in the first period as Shirley Hall scored six points in the frame. North Pitt's lone first-quarter basket came on Mable James' shot from the corner at the 3:35 mark.

The Pant-HERS didn't give up, however, and it was their turn to dominate a quarter. They held the Ladybirds to but two points in the second period and tied the game at 14 on Jackie Clemmons follow shot before Edwards, free throw gave Southern Nash a 15-14 halftime edge.

Cynthia Barnes hit a layup with 4:25 left in the third quarter to give the Pant-HERS the lead for the first time and they built it to seven, 30-23 with 6:45 left in the game.

But the Ladybirds quickly cut it to four and then Minga scored on six successive tries to tie the game at 33 with 2:17 left.

Southern Nash moved in front by two before Sue Grimes scored from the lane to tie it at 35 with 58 seconds left. But the Pant-HERS weren't able to hit after that and Edwards' foul shots gave Southern Nash the game.

Panthers Romp

North Pitt's boys had little trouble with Southern Nash in a second-round game, but it took the Panthers until the final quarter to really break the game open.

Trailing 3-2, Jimmy Hardy hit a follow shot with 4:02 left in the third period to give the Panthers a 4-3 edge. They built their lead to 15-7 on Donnie Perkins' tap with 23 seconds left before Ricky Murray hit a follow shot for the Firebirds to make it 15-9 going into the second quarter.

Goaltending Call Lets Indians Nip Keydets

By The Associated Press

William & Mary's Indians burst Virginia Military's basketball bubble while Davidson's

Southern Roundup

Wildcats came very close to doing the same thing to Wake Forest's seventh-ranked Deacons Wednesday night.

William & Mary's 86-84 victory over Southern Conference rival VMI probably will drop the 19th-ranked Keydets out of the nation's Top 20 teams.

And VMI Coach Charlie Schmaus isn't the least bit dismayed over the prospect.

"It's a relief that this will knock us out of the Top 20," Schmaus said after the game. "Now we can relax and play our games one at a time."

A goal-tending call against the Keydets' Dave Montgomery on a layup at the buzzer by John Lowenhaupt snapped VMI's 21-game winning streak.

George Borojevich's layup with six seconds left had brought the Keydets even at 84 after they had trailed by 13 with 8:45 remaining.

Following a timeout, Lowenhaupt drove in from the right side and put up a shot. The official ruled that Montgomery blocked the shot while the ball was on the way down, giving the Indians their 16th win in 27 games. William & Mary stands 7-4 in league play.

Lowenhaupt paced the winners with 22 points while Matt

Courage had 21.

Montgomery led the Keydets with 24 points and Ron Carter added 21. VMI is now 22-2 overall and 8-1 in the conference.

"We beat ourselves," said Schmaus. "We thought we could beat them inside, but some stupid plays cost us very much."

Freshman guard Frank Johnson hit a last-second 20-foot jump shot to give Wake Forest a 70-68 victory over Davidson.

The Wildcats, who have won but five games, were paced by sophomore John Gerdy, who led all scorers with a career-high 40 points.

Johnson's winning shot came after Gerdy had tied the score at 68 on a the three-point play with 17 seconds left.

The Deacons were unable to work the ball into Rod Griffin and Johnson put up his desperation shot.

Ironically, the play went according to Davidson Coach Dave Pritchett's philosophy.

Pritchett has said he would rather be beaten by the long shot than by a layup or foul shot at game's end.

Guard Skip Brown led Wake Forest with 21 points.

Bruce Grimm scored 22 points to lead Furman past East Carolina 74-66.

Jim Strickland backed Grimm with 17 points and Jonathan Moore added 15.

Herb Gray and Larry Hunt led the Pirates with 16 points each.

The win pushed Furman to 15-9 over-all and 7-2 in the conference. East Carolina fell to 8-16 and 3-8.

In other games involving conference teams, Marshall fell to Eastern Kentucky 81-79 and Tennessee-Chattanooga downed Western Carolina 89-80.

In tonight's only conference action, The Citadel's Bulldogs will try to snap their 13-game losing streak when they host Charleston Baptist.

Pirate Golfers Opening Season

East Carolina's golf team will open its 1977 season today, making its first appearance in the Coastal Carolina Collegiate Invitation in Myrtle Beach, S. C. Other teams involved are N. C. State, Alabama, Memphis State and East Tennessee State, all perennial powers in the District III, NCAA.

Four of last year's top five linksters are back for the 1977 campaign. ECU finished a close second in the Southern Conference to Furman last year and are expected to field a strong team again this year.

Steve Ridge, Keith Hiller, Mike Buckmaster and Donnie Owens will lead the Pirates into action. Frank Acker, one of the top four golfers on the team last year will not make the trip due to illness.

"With two freshmen and one sophomore in our top six participating in this tournament, and with the extremely bad weather we've had thus far, it is difficult to foresee how we'll do," coach Mac McLendon said. "But, we're going out and give it a shot."

Jamesville Girls Bow

PANTEGO — Pantego ousted Jamesville's girls from the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference basketball tournament last night by a 41-37 score.

The Pantego lassies broke out into a 14-6 lead in the first period, then held off a Jamesville rally, 12-10, in the second quarter. That left Pantego in a 24-18 halftime lead.

Both teams scored ten points in the third period, making it 34-28, and Jamesville cut two more off in the final period, but could not catch up.

Delores Harris led Pantego with 14 points, while Ingrid O'Neal added 11. Joyce Manning had 16 to lead Jamesville.

Williamston Is Ousted

TARBORO — Williamston's third-seeded boys were ousted from the Northeastern Conference tournament last night by number two Tarboro, 69-47.

The defeat ended Williamston's hopes of a tournament crown, but will still allow the Tigers to compete in the district tournament next week in Williamston.

Tarboro doubled the score on the Tigers in the first period, as the Vikings poured in 18 to just nine for Williamston. Tarboro again outthit the Tigers, 18-13, in the second quarter, running the lead out to 36-22.

Tarboro continued to pull away in the third period, building its lead to 50-34. The Vikings finished off the Tigers, 19-13, in the final quarter.

Ronnie Everett led Tarboro with 16 points, while Hayward Evans had 15 and Allen Porter had 14. Ronnie Brown led Williamston with 15 points.

Virginia Shocks Clemson Five

By The Associated Press
It was a night for shockers and near-shockers Wednesday ACC Roundup in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Virginia, which had shown no threat of leaving the ACC cellar after nine losses in nine league games, got 28 points from Dave Koesters and shocked No. 18 Clemson 71-65 in Clemson, S.C.

The Cavaliers took a 35-32 halftime lead and sealed the victory by shooting 65 per cent from the floor in the second half. Koesters set the example, hitting 12 of his 17 floor attempts.

The win snapped a six-game losing streak for the Cavaliers and sent Clemson to its second straight defeat. The Cavaliers moved to 9-14 on the season. The Tigers, despite 16 points by Stan Rome, slipped to third behind North Carolina in the ACC at 6-4.

In the near-shocker of the evening, seventh-ranked Wake Forest escaped lowly Davidson with a 70-68 victory in Charlotte.

The Wildcats won by forfeit over Sheltered Workshop.

Frank Johnson provided the win with a 20-foot jumper at three seconds remaining.

Johnson's shot came just 14 seconds after John Gerdy tied the game at 68-68 on a three point play. Gerdy topped all scorers with a career-high 40 points and became only the fourth member of Davidson's 1,000-point club, despite being

Randle Might Take New Coaching Job

WOODSTOCK, Va. (AP) — Sonny Randle, former head football coach at the University of Virginia and East Carolina University, apparently is considering taking the head football coaching job at a military prep school.

Massanutten Academy Supt. W. Crawford Moon said Randle, 41, visited the school here and toured the surrounding area Wednesday.

Moon said he was surprised when he received a call from Randle setting up the visit.

He said that after talking with Randle, he gathered that the two-time Southern Conference coach of the year while at East Carolina is looking for a permanent job that will allow him to stay in his native Virginia. The head football coaching job at Massanutten became vacant Feb. 1 when Coach Karl Lombel left to become an assistant coach at Virginia Military Institute. In his two years at Massanutten, Lombel compiled a 12-7-1 record.

"Sonny has talked to me about coaching the football team here," Moon said. "He said he is interested in stabilizing his situation. I am interested in someone who can help us, certainly to continue Coach Lombel's program, but someone who could also help us in other ways such as fund-raising as a director of development." "Not being able to afford getting to excited about it, when he called I simply asked him to come up and see me and talk about it, and he did," Moon said.

Randle, who could not be reached for comment, was fired from the Virginia coaching job on Nov. 23, 1975, after posting a two-year record of 5-17.

He posted a three-year record of 22-10 at East Carolina and his 1972 and 1973 teams each went 9-2 and won Southern Conference championships.

Randle broadcast college football games involving major Virginia teams last year.

Teams In Game Split

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School split a pair of games with Ayden yesterday.

Farmville won the girls' game, 25-24. Etta Gorham led Farmville with nine points, while S. Cannon had 10 for Ayden.

In the boys' game, Ayden took a 56-43 victory. W. Chapman led Ayden with 21 points, while Ricky Dixon and David Cherry each had 14 for Farmville.

Barring any upsets tonight in the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament, the two top-rated boys' and girls' teams will be meeting for their respective championships in tomorrow's final games.

But, that doesn't mean there haven't been any upsets thus far in tournament action.

On the contrary. Although the two top teams in the boys' and girls' leagues are still alive, both the third and fourth placed teams have been knocked off.

Monday night's first game saw Farmville's girls winning, as expected, easily over Greene Central, 50-25, and North Pitt's boys romped over Greene Central, 66-37 in the nightcap. In both cases, the top-ranked teams were playing the last-place teams.

But, in Monday's second game, the fifth-ranked Ayden-Grifton girls upset North Lenoir's fourth-seeded Lady Hawks, 54-45.

Then, Tuesday night, Southern Nash's fifth-place boys knocked off Farmville Central 63-62 in the first game while C. B. Aycock's second-place girls squeaked by Conley, 39-38 in the second game. Ayden-Grifton boys claimed a semi-final spot in the third game Tuesday with a 58-39 win over Aycock.

The latest upsets occurred last night when the sixth-ranked North Lenoir boys handed third-place D. H. Conley a 66-59 loss to knock them out of the tournament. Then, North Pitt's number three girls were beaten by Southern Nash's sixth-seeded Ladybirds, 37-35.

These upsets make things a little uneasy for the two fourth-ranked teams — Farmville's boys and North Lenoir's girls. Although it is unlikely, if one of the bottom four teams were to win the tournament, it would knock the fourth-ranked team out of the sectionals.

Since North Pitt defeated Southern Nash last night, Farmville Central's boys must now root for Ayden-Grifton to beat North Lenoir and knock the Hawks out of the spoilers' role. If North Lenoir should get by the Chargers and Panthers to win the tourney, the Hawks would go to the sectionals instead of the Jaguars.

The same is true in the girls' division. North Lenoir is the team in danger here. Is Southern Nash or Ayden-Grifton wins the tournament, the Lady Hawks are out of luck.

The fact that three teams from the lower bracket are still alive makes the final two days of the tournament much more interesting, especially to the fourth-place teams.

The United Press International coaches' poll again failed to recognize Virginia Military Institute's excellent record and rank the Keydets this week.

Although they were nipped by William and Mary last night, the Keydets were 21-1 when the most-recent UPI poll came out. They are probably the only major college team with as good a record which wasn't ranked.

It all goes to show what a big name will do. VMI, which was ranked 19th in the Associated Press poll this week, will probably drop out of the ratings after their loss. But, if a "name" school were sporting the same 22-2 mark, they would probably be in the top ten, no matter who they had played.

But, matters aren't all bad for the Keydets. They are getting there. Their showing in the Eastern Regionals last year, if coupled with a good post-season this year, will probably give them some of the exposure needed to be recognized as a basketball power.

Panthers....

Perkins hit from the corner and on a layup to start the second period and give North Pitt a 19-9 lead before Southern Nash got buckets from Willie Williams and Murray to cut the margin to six.

The Firebirds pulled to within five several times during the quarter and Murray's follow shot with 29 seconds left cut the lead to four, 33-29, at the half.

Virgil Pilgreen hit three field goals early in the second half to help North Pitt to a 41-31 lead with 5:40 left.

In the fourth quarter, North Pitt moved ahead by 19, 69-50 on two foul shots by Jay Bedsworth with 1:50 left and held that edge for the rest of the game, winning by a 74-55 score.

Perkins led the Panther scoring with 19 points while Pilgreen scored 14 and Kenneth Roberson added 10. North Pitt hit 28 of 47 shots from the field — 59.6 per cent.

Southern Nash got 15 points from Willie Williams and 10 from Murray.

The second round of the tournament will finish up tonight as Farmville Central's girls take on Ayden-Grifton in the first game, Ayden-Grifton's boys meet North Lenoir in the second game and C. B. Aycock's girls play Southern Nash in tonight's nightcap.

Little More To Enforce State Immunization Laws

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Outbreaks of measles, one of the most serious of childhood diseases, are increasing at alarming rates in some states, and public health officials are calling for means to curb their spread.

Although most states have laws requiring immunization against measles, an Associated Press survey shows little is done to enforce them.

Peter Crippen, head of Indiana's immunization program, said that state's law has loopholes "so big you could drive a bus through."

Last year 39,585 cases of measles were reported nationally — the largest number since 1971, said the national Center for Disease Control. The all-time low was 28,094 in 1974. Many of the states responding to the AP survey report large increases of measles cases last year over 1975 and many said 1977 likely will be even worse.

Dr. Walter Orenstein, a medical epidemiologist at the CDC, said he believes most states which have immunization laws are not enforcing them.

Orenstein said the mortality rate of the disease is about one in 1,000. In rare cases it can also cause permanent brain damage.

Measles are most infectious before diagnosis, he said, and by then a child can infect an entire classroom unless the children have been vaccinated. Orenstein said a child may have it 10 days before it is diagnosed.

Public health officials attribute the increase to several things.

"One is that many children not vaccinated in the 1960s would have gotten measles then but there was so little virus around they didn't," Orenstein said.

"Now they are in an older age group and they get around more. They are among other children. We are seeing the increase in the 10-plus age group."

Alaska reported 53 cases in Fairbanks and others in Anchorage.

Dr. John Middaugh, Alaska's epidemiologist, said there had been no measles in that state for three and one-half years, and he attributes a decline in immunization to newcomers.

"We didn't know the problem existed until we went into the schools to try to contain outbreaks of measles which occurred in Anchorage and Fairbanks," he said. "We discovered the law had not been enforced and records were poorly kept if they were kept at all — immunizations had fallen dramatically."

Indiana reported 520 cases in 1975 and 4,400 in 1976. Crippen said the outlook for 1977 "looks bad, because we're already above 1976 levels for this time of year."

Indiana has an immunization law but Crippen said, "That doesn't mean every child entering public school is immunized. A parent could object to it."

He said he believes the law is strong enough if it were enforced.

"It's more a question of convincing parents of the worth and necessity of immunization without going after them with a stick," he said.

In Georgia, Dr. John McCroan, state epidemiologist, said 500 cases were reported in 1975. He said there were about 600 last year and "I would say in 1977, we'll have 1,200 cases at least — the way we've started out."

He said Georgia's immunization law apparently is being enforced, but the problem is the state had no immunization law until 1969.

"We still have some children in high school who have not been immunized," he said.

Kentucky reported 758 cases in 1975 and a decline to 166 last year.

"I don't think that we should have the total responsibility for what I believe are the responsibilities of parents," said Dr. Carlos Hernandez, director of preventive services.

Maryland, which leaves vaccination enforcement up to individual school principals, reported 64 cases in 1975 and 719 last year.

Delaware, which has no immunization law, reported 39 cases in 1975 and 130 last year.

In California, measles declined last year but a spokesman said an increase may be on the way this year.

Utah has a law which requires children to be immunized — unless their parents object and then they don't have to.

Utah reported 373 cases in 1975 and 2,351 last year.

Donald Biemiller of Virginia's epidemiology division said he believes that state's immunization law should be enforced uniformly.

Virginia reported 38 cases of measles in 1975 and 844 last year.

Pennsylvania, which saw measles bounce from 626 in 1975 to 2,682 last year, has a law providing for fines and imprisonment for failing to comply, but state health officials say no one has ever been penalized.

One state which apparently enforces the measles vaccination law is Hawaii. That state reported 64 cases in 1975 after three years without any. Last year, there were 11 cases and health officials said they believe that if Hawaii gets measles, the disease will be imported.

In Ohio, there were 1,000 cases last year, compared with 106 in 1975. Public health officials say they fear a possible epidemic. It was noted that more than 100,000 children in Ohio have not been vaccinated.

Carter Seeking Cuba 'Restraint'

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is asking that Cuba pursue a policy of restraint abroad and respect for human rights at home as his price for friendlier U.S. relations with Havana.

Cuba, in turn, is demanding that the United States lift its trade embargo against the island if Washington wants an extension of an anti-hijacking agreement past its scheduled April expiration.

Carter took his White House advisers by surprise when he said Wednesday he has received indirect word that Cuba intends to remove its troops from Angola.

Other U.S. officials said they were unaware of any such signal from Cuba. The most recent State Department estimate is that 10,000 to 15,000 Cuban troops remain in Angola, comparable to the figure cited at the height of the Angolan war, which ended a year ago.

If the Cuban troops were removed, Carter said, "that would be a step toward full normalization of relationships with Angola."

Then the President, speaking to Agriculture Department employees as part of his series of visits to federal agencies, added: "The same thing applies ultimately to the restoration of normal relationships with Cuba."

"If I can be convinced that Cuba wants to remove their aggressive influence in this hemisphere, will not participate in violence in nations across the ocean, will recommit itself to the former relationship which existed in Cuba toward human rights, then I would be willing to move toward normal relations with Cuba," Carter said.

Carter did not spell out what he meant by Cuba's "aggressive influence" in the Western Hemisphere. U.S. officials said Cuba stopped efforts to export its revolution to Latin America years ago. They speculated that Carter may have been referring to Cuba's campaign in the United Nations to promote an independent Puerto Rico.

Cuba's attitude toward the four-week old Carter administration was outlined by Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., who returned from a five-day visit to Cuba where he met with Fidel Castro and other Cuban leaders.

Bingham said Cuban officials made it clear they consider the U.S. trade embargo "an act of aggression" and are demanding its repeal in return for an extension of the anti-hijack agreement.

Bingham added that Cuba would be willing to observe the agreement on an informal basis, even though it would not be legally bound to do so. The accord provides for the extradition or prosecution of persons engaged in hijacking airplanes or ships to one country or the other.

Castro blamed the CIA for the crash of a Cuban passenger plane off Barbados last October and retaliated by nullifying the hijack pact, effective April 15. The agreement was signed four years ago.

Contribute To Library

The Greenville Jaycees have contributed $100 to be used by Sheppard Memorial Library for buying paperback books for the Pediatric Ward at the Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The library has been providing books at the hospital for three years. A cart holding 175 books is kept in the Intensive Care Waiting Room and is used by patients, visitors, and staff. Twice a week, it is pushed through the halls in order to reach patients who are not able to get to the cart.

A second collection of approximately 300 books is kept on the shelves in the Pediatric Ward. Many children in the hospital have few or no visitors during their stay. Books have been very popular with children of all ages.

Altogether, Sheppard Library has made available over 1000 books in the past year. Each book has been used many times in the hospital. The library depends on donation of paperback books in order to maintain its "mini-libraries."

Other small libraries are kept at the jail, the nursing home, and the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. Without donations, these small libraries would not be possible. In the past, children's books have been especially hard to get.

With this donation from the Greenville Jaycees, approximately 150 children's books can be purchased to be used in the hospital.

Soaring Profits In Coffee Are Unevenly Divided

By DAVID C. MARTIN and
TERRY KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writers

If you're wondering where the money you spend on coffee is going, look first to the countries that grow it. Brazil, the world's largest producer, earned $2.3 billion from coffee sales in 1976, about 2½ times more than in 1975, although its exports rose less than 7 per cent.

Colombia, the second largest producer, boosted its coffee revenues by about a third to $917.7 million, despite a nearly 25 per cent drop in exports.

Since July 1975, when a frost hit Brazil, suddenly making future supply uncertain, the retail price of a pound of coffee has jumped from an average $1.27 to over $3 in some places.

Although it's difficult to give an exact breakdown of the retail price, most of what you pay for coffee goes to the producing countries. And indications are that no segment of the American coffee industry has reaped a comparable windfall.

From farm to grocery shelf, the sharing of the new coffee wealth looks like this:

PRODUCERS

Green coffee beans account for more than 90 per cent of the cost of producing a can of roasted coffee.

In Brazil, a 132-pound bag of green coffee sold last month for $240. (That is about $1.82 a pound, but it takes more than a pound of beans to make a pound of roasted coffee.)

Of that $240, according to exporters and officials, the government takes $103 in export tax; local levies, commissions and fees account for $27 and the grower gets $110. He spends about 68 per cent of his share for salaries and production costs, leaving him with a profit of about $35.

In 1975, before prices started soaring, the 132-pound bag of coffee sold for $64. The government export tax was $21 and, according to one exporter, the proportion of money the grower had to spend for local levies, labor, etc. was about the same as it is now. That left the grower with a profit of about $11 or $12.

Prices for beans have almost quadrupled; profits for the grower have just about tripled. The growing nations need coffee revenue to buy oil and American tractors. Earning as much as they can from coffee, industry observers say, is no different from what U.S. farmers do in times of shortage.

"Whether it's right for a producing country to hold back on its coffee or not, it's a free market mechanism," said a commodity analyst. "The alternative is to pass a law that you can't drink coffee."

ROASTERS

There are more than 100 U.S. coffee roasters, who turn green beans into ground and instant coffee.

They sell to grocery stores from their inventory at a price based on the cost of replacing the green beans, although the coffee actually going to the store was bought several months before.

When prices rise, the coffee they have in warehouses is more valuable, a gain known as inventory profit.

Two weeks after the Brazilian frost, Maxwell House, the nation's largest roaster, raised its wholesale prices by 20 cents a pound. Folger, the second largest, cut temporary reductions it had been offering to grocers.

General Foods, the parent company of Maxwell House, said that in the three months ended July 3, 1976, profits were 61 per cent higher than in the same period a year earlier.

"Inventory profits from anticipatory price increases on coffee account for a sizable portion of the recent earnings," the Argus Research Corp. said in an analysis of General Foods.

The big roasters could have reaped even larger inventory profits had they raised wholesale prices as much as green bean prices were rising, analysts say.

Maxwell House says its profit margin actually is lower than it was before the frost. In those days, it took 71 cents worth of beans to make one pound of coffee selling at a wholesale price of $1.26.

Today, it takes $2.69 worth of beans to make a pound of coffee selling wholesale at $3.11. Maxwell House says the mark-up dropped from 55 cents to 42 cents.

IMPORTERS

Although roasters hold about 80 per cent of the nation's coffee stocks, inventory profits were also important for the some 100 importers in the United States, who buy coffee in producing countries and ship it to roasters.

Any importer with a warehouse of coffee when the frost hit made a quick profit. "We made some good bucks right after the frost," said one importer, who didn't want to be named.

Most import firms are privately owned and don't reveal their profit figures, but all agree that the postfrost boom pulled their business out of the doldrums.

"This was a very, very depressed industry," one said. "Only now in the last six months has the coffee importer been able to make a reasonable profit."

The importers are realizing a continuing profit on their inventories since the coffee they buy overseas is worth more by the time they sell it to the roaster.

"Our firm's position was to buy more coffee than we needed," another import executive said. "You always gain a lot more in an up market because your inventory appreciates in value. But you get killed when the market goes down."

SPECULATORS

Although not a direct part of the flow of most coffee, the U.S. and London commodities markets became a source of profit for speculators attracted by the price advance.

A futures contract is an agreement to buy or sell a certain amount of coffee at a fixed price at a later date. If you buy coffee now and the price goes up, you make money. If it goes down, you lose.

An example: a speculator agrees now to have 100 bags of coffee delivered in three months for $60 a bag. If the price were to rise to $80, his profit would be $20, less his broker's fee.

He could take delivery of the actual coffee, or just sell his contract back in the futures market before the delivery date, realizing the profit either way.

Speculators can also profit when prices go down, if they sell before the drop. In this case, a speculator agreeing to deliver 100 bags of coffee at $60 a bag in three months would be able to buy the coffee he needs to make delivery for less than he will receive for it.

How active speculators were in the coffee price advance, and what their profits were, aren't known. One analyst estimated that speculators not in the coffee business account for 25 per cent of active futures contracts.

Most futures trading, however, is done by coffee merchants. They can protect themselves by buying futures equal to their planned purchases of actual coffee or by selling futures equal to their inventories.

For example, if prices plunge, their inventory will decline in value. But if they sold futures, they would realize a profit on the contract that would balance the loss on the actual coffee.

Coffee companies can also trade speculatively, buying or selling more than needed to protect inventories.

RETAILERS

At first glance, many stores appear to be losing money as coffee prices rise.

Before the July 1975, frost, they sold roasted coffee at an average of six cents above the wholesale price. By December 1976, the retail price was 25 cents less than the wholesale price.

But grocery store prices lag several months behind wholesale prices. In all but three months since the frost, the government's average of retail coffee prices has been higher than the wholesale price of two months earlier.

There are signs, however, that grocers — who often sell coffee at or below cost to attract customers into the store — may be feeling the profit pinch. They were the first segment of the trade to urge customers to quit buying coffee.

"The money you and I are being asked to pay for coffee is outrageous," said Martin Rosen, president of the Daitch Shopwell chain in an advertising campaign. "My sincere recommendation to you is that you limit drinking coffee and find a substitute."

How's The Weather?

The forecast indicates there is only a small chance of precipitation through Friday.

Billy Carter To Attend Peanut Show In Ahoskie

Billy Carter of Plains, Ga., brother of the President, has confirmed that he will attend the North Carolina-Virginia Peanut Trade Show. The Peanut Trade Show will be Tuesday, through Thursday, February 22-24 at Farmers Warehouse in Ahoskie. The show will feature current exhibits which will provide an educational opportunity for peanut farmers to see and compare the various methods, techniques, products and services available for use in producing and marketing peanuts.

In addition to the exhibits of products and services by agribusiness concerns, there will be educational exhibits about peanut production which will display the most current production techniques.

The show will begin Tuesday at 10 a.m. Jim Graham, N. C. Commissioner of Agriculture, will be a guest speaker at the opening ceremonies. Exhibits will close at 5 p.m. each day.

Carter will attend the show on Wednesday. He will participate in a forum on the "Outlook for Peanuts." Astor Perry, Peanut Specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service at N.C. State University will also participate in the forum.

A "Cook-A-Peanut" Contest will be conducted Wednesday. The contest is open to all non-professional cooks of all ages in the two states. Peanuts must be one of the main ingredients, and each recipe must be accompanied by an official entry form.

The show will be sponsored by the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, the Coastal Plain Development Association, and the Ahoskie Chamber of Commerce.

Gymnastics For Area Children

Children in commuting area of East Carolina University are invited to participate in a special gymnastics program for youths during the spring quarter.

The program is open to all children aged six or more. Registration fee is $17 per quarter.

Registration for the spring quarter will be held from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, Room 171, March 7-10. Further information is available from the ECU Department of Health and Physical Education, telephone 757-6441.

Staging Classic Ballet Show

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Alexandra Danilova, 70, a former prima ballerina and one-time star of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, is staging the classical ballet "Coppelia" for the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Miss Danilova commutes here weekly from New York and her fulltime job at the American School of Ballet.

She joins Robert Lindgren, another former member of the Ballet Russe, in the production. Lindgren is dean of the NCSA School of Dance and will play the toymaker, Dr. Coppélius.

The full-length ballet will be performed March 1-3 by the NCSA and the North Carolina Dance Theater.

Farm Needs Are Argued

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "A farmer doesn't want to be guaranteed a profit on every sale regardless of his cost of production, but he does want some protection from things beyond his control," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham told lawmakers here Wednesday.

Speaking before Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., Graham said the proposed Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 would provide price and income protection for farmers.

The act also would assure consumers of reasonable food prices, he said.

The hearing was intended for the Senate Agriculture Committee to gather opinion on the proposed bill.

Price safeguards for farmers and consumers alike "are worthy objectives for any legislation," Graham said, "and I sincerely feel that this bill can meet both of these needs."

Graham said the legislation also was needed to provide "some real sharing of the risk in all-out farm production," but added that land planning also was needed in the bill.

"If we do not soon adopt effective and reasonable policies protecting land for use in agricultural production, we will be missing a real need of this industry," Graham said.

Odd Kind Of Rhythms By Electric Orchestra

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trumpeter-composer Don Ellis runs a 21-piece band that's a bit different, and not because it's called the Electric Orchestra. It plays rhythms few big bands would even attempt.

On March 12, for example, on Shirley MacLaine's CBS special, he and his crew will play an old jazz standard, "Sweet Georgia Brown," some of it in familiar foot-tapping tempo, four beats per measure.

But much of it will go seven beats per. The melody still will be familiar, but not the meter, the rhythm. You'll tap your foot, get puzzled and wonder who missed the beat — you or the band.

Don't worry. You'll have experienced what's called an "odd time signature," a shift to an unfamiliar meter. And such changes commonly occur in most pieces the Ellis band plays.

He doesn't consider it a gimmick, only "another color of music," an effort to change a way of listening for generations of Americans used to the steady one-two-three-four beat of pop music and jazz.

A tall, lean Los Angeles native who looks a decade younger than his 42 years, Ellis had pioneered in the odd-meter music world for more than a decade, blending complex rhythms of India with jazz.

A soft-spoken gent whose home here contains the Grammy award he got in 1972 for scoring "The French Connection," he's a Boston University grad, classically trained, but with jazz roots, a veteran of such big bands as those led by Woody Herman and Maynard Ferguson.

Ellis, who started playing trumpet — Dixieland style — while still in grade school, said his shift from conventional rhythms began in the mid-'60s, while he was taking graduate studies at UCLA.

Restless, he sought new forms of music. He met another student, Hari Har Rao, from India, who was studying jazz, of all things.

They exchanged ideas, as the saying goes, about the music of their countries. Before long, they and percussionist Emil Richards, a top studio musician, had formed the Hindustani Jazz Sextette.

Alas, its mix of complex Eastern rhythms and jazz bombed; but Richards, enthused, encouraged Ellis to give the mix another go, this time with a big band. This was done, but it wasn't easy.

Why? Ellis says the veteran studio musicians he initially hired were first-rate — but too used to conventional rhythms. Seven, nine and more beats per measure threw them off, even made some rather hostile.

"They'd come in, I'd count the thing off and after the first bar they were lost, literally lost," he said. "So rather than actually help, it (their years of studio experience) almost hindered things ...

"So I wound up getting younger and younger musicians — at one time the guys were in late high school, early college — because the younger guys didn't have those hangups (about unusual rhythms)."

"They were still just learning, anyway."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 18, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Dramatic changes are likely to occur so make sure you go along with them for best results. You would be wise to use the utmost tact in dealing with others at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle private affairs carefully and do not rely on others so much since they could be under pressure you know nothing about.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Quietly do what will change the attitude of friends so there is more harmony between you. Don't be forceful with anyone.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle routine duties tactfully and get excellent results. Not a good day to engage in civic affairs.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't give up on something you feel is important today because of delays, but hold firm. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your intuition is not working accurately today, so don't follow it. Wait until evening before making any important decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't get into any arguments with associates today or there could unpleasant consequences. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you complete your work today instead of putting it off for another day. The evening can be a happy one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Keep calm if a troublesome situation flares up at home and it will soon blow over. Use care in motion today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your fundamental aims are and how to gain them speedily. A co-worker may be irate but don't become involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you obey traffic regulations and avoid the possibility of accidents today. Make long-range plans for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your finances well and know where to put in economy measure wisely. Follow the advice of a trusted adviser.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Anything of a personal nature could have delays, so be patient and good results will follow. Strive for happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will likely encounter more problems than most others during lifetime so teach to make right decisions. Direct the education along lines of troubleshooting and whatever requires being resourceful. Be sure to give ethical training early in life. Sports are a must here.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

The Bols Bridge tipsters are outdoing each other. First, Per Olov Sundelin suggests that, in many cases, it is right to refuse to win a trick with the king. Now, in the fifth entry of the Bols Bridge Tips Competition, Michel Lebel, the young French star who is known almost as much for the speed of his play as for his brilliance, goes even further in recommending possible counter-measures to shut out dummy's long suit.

The bidding is fairly straightforward. Though South has the strength for a one no trump opening bid, he refrained from that action because of his weak doubleton. When North showed sound values and a good diamond suit, South chose the no trump game.

The low heart opening lead was covered by the jack and taken by the king. Declarer led a diamond to the nine and Lebel, sitting East, ducked in tempo! Not surprisingly, declarer presumed that he had taken a successful finesse. Therefore, he returned to his hand with the queen of spades and continued with a diamond to the ten.

Now Lebel won the jack, and the diamond suit was dead. There was only one entry to dummy, and the ace of diamonds still had to be knocked out. Declarer struggled fruitfully for a while before conceding down two.

Note that had East won the jack of diamonds when the suit was first played, declarer would have had all the time in the world to set up the diamonds while the ace of spades was in dummy as an entry. The contract would have rolled home easily.

Lebel's Bols tip: Sometimes you should hold up the jack of a suit declarer is trying to establish even when you hold no higher card in the suit!

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad send $1.50 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07068. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

Poultry Prices May See Rise

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Poultry prices could rise 15 percent this spring as farmers try to recoup from the cold weather of January and February, experts predict.

"The propane shortage is just going to hit the industry something terrific," said Dr. Robert E. Cook, chairman of North Carolina State University's poultry science department.

"With this extremely cold weather, the chicks take more feed as well as more fuel," he said, "and production costs have gone up an average of 15 percent. It ultimately must be passed on to the consumer and food's going to cost more."

Broiler chicken supplies currently are running 6 percent higher than in February 1976 and prices have been lower than last year, said Charles Brooks, an agricultural economist at N.C. State.

North Carolina ranks fourth among the states in poultry production. Brooks said the industry brought an estimated $537 million gross farm income to the state in 1976.

Broiler chickens now average about 64 cents per pound in most retail groceries and were selling at slightly above 43 cents per pound wholesale Wednesday.

Larry E. Tetterton, a poultry marketing specialist with the state Department of Agriculture, said he believed poultry prices would increase in 1977, but added it is hard to determine how much impact the propane shortage will have on production.

"What we've got here is a very nebulous thing that you can't really put your finger on," Tetterton said.

Cook and Tetterton said broiler chicken eggs stay in electric incubators for three weeks and the chicks need eight weeks after hatching to reach the average marketing weight of four pounds.

During much of the eight weeks, the chicks are kept under a metal brooder. The brooder is initially heated at 95 degrees, but temperatures are

MECHANICAL INSURANCE COVERAGE FOR NEW CAR BUYERS

ASK ABOUT THE POLICY THAT MAKES ANY CAR DEAL A GOOD DEAL BETTER!

When you buy a new car from our dealership, you can also buy Mechanical Insurance Coverage from MIC that will cover repair and replacement of specified major parts of the automobile (subject to a small deductible), except when covered under the manufacturer's warranty. The policy also contains a car rental reimbursement provision in the event your vehicle is laid up for at least one night for repairs of parts covered by the policy. It all adds up to one more good reason why it will pay you to do business with our dealership—where you come first!

100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS NEW CAR WARRANTY

For 100,000 miles or 3 years we guarantee the motor, transmission, and rear end of every new Toyota we sell. This warranty is in the form of a legal document and supplements the new car warranty of Toyota Motor Sales, USA. Commercial vehicles are excluded. Copy of warranty is on display in our showroom.

"THE ANSWER"

The new Toyota Corolla "The Answer" is Toyota's lowest-priced car with the great gas mileage you'd expect from Toyota. In 1977 the EPA estimates "The Answer" at 49 MPG highway, 36 city. Your actual mileage will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment; but, the answer to more miles per gallon is definitely "The Answer." "The Answer". It's here today. You asked for it. You got it. Toyota.

Standard Features: Welded unitized body construction, MacPherson strut front suspension, transistorized ignition, power front disc brakes, styled steel wheels and more.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Bypassed By Progress But 'Blessed By The Lord'

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
SOMEWHERE SOUTH OF HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — America's 51st state proves to be, on inspection, as true to its high purpose as the day it was founded and this sign was raised at its border:

"Entering Nayaug, Capital of Glastonbury. Bypassed by Progress and Blessed by the Lord."

And down below:
"Please walk your horses. Adults at play."

Anyone unaware that America had a 51st state, Nayaug, will be relieved that it is, as Mayor Jim Finne explains, a state of mind. Anyone unaware that America needed a new state of mind hasn't been paying attention to what's important.

Oh, Nayaug is a place all right, a rural square mile bounded by the Connecticut River and Roaring Brook where hypocrisy is unknown and the meek have inherited the earth.

"We just think life is terribly grim," Jim Finne said. "Everybody seems to be running around with gavels and clipboards and causes and taking themselves so seriously. Well, we don't."

To put it mildly, What Nayaugians do instead is skewer the pompous with satire and laugh all the while.

Thus they elected Chet Hodge, village butcher, as Man of the Year, held a parade and also a house tour around Chet's birthplace at which Nayaug Social Director, Ruth Witherspoon, pointed out such historic sites as "the drainpipe Chet slid down, the tree Chet climbed, the window of the room where Chet was potty trained." Overcome, Chet wept.

Thus, they elected village grocer Elmer Gardiner as Governor of Nayaug and when he announced for president from atop a hay wagon at a pancake breakfast, they fired a 2.1 gun salute in his honor, two muskets and a pistol.

Thus they dedicated a section of Mayor Finne's pasture as a Village Green, and after a few appropriate words from the Nayaug Historian, E.P. Mangan, and from the Nayaug Venerable Latin Scholar, John Finney, and a few lines from the Nayaug Poet Laureate and Militant Feminist, Hilda Moe, and kisses all around from the Nayaug First Lady, septuagenarian Ruth Dufford, and advice on the danger of sitting on cold stones from the Beloved Proctologist, Archibald Asculbrooch, and a tune or two on the piano by the Nayaug Musical Director and Ambassador to the Vatican, Joe Puzo, the assembled Nayaugians erected a sign:

"On this spot 357 years ago nothing happened."

Board Sponsors A Musical Tea

The Stewardess Board No. 2 will sponsor a musical preGeorge Washington tea Sunday from 3-4 p.m. at the St. Stephen AME Zion Church, Farmville.

The announcement was made by the Rev. J. E. Aldridge, pastor. The public is invited to attend.

Singing Group At Church

The Traveling Stars of Tarboro will be in concert with the Walston Traveling Choir Sunday, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m. at the Sycamore Chapel Baptist Church.

They will be accompanied by Charles Dudley and Alice Clemons.

The Rev. Hugh Walston is the pastor. The public is invited to attend.

NOMINEE — Drew Saunders, Days III, above, has been nominated by the Carter administration to be the assistant attorney general in charge of the civil rights division. He has been an attorney with the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund. (AP Wirephoto)

Nayaugians go for signs. One sign encourages ball-playing on the green. Another, placed by the Nayaug Conservationist — or was it the Cat Control Commissioner? — warns: Native

Rattlesnake Crossing. Even before all this tomfoolery began, about 15 years ago, the neighborhood hereabouts was known as Nayaug, the southern section of the city of Glastonbury. The name is an Indian word for Roaring Brook. We have that on authority of the Nayaug Archivist. "The tribe was described as a peace loving people often haressed by more warlike neighbors," Mayor Finne said. "We find that appropriate."
