Revenge Motive In Taking Of Hostages

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Machete-wielding terrorists, bent on revenge against Black Muslim leaders they blame for a 1973 mass murder, held more than 100 hostages in three buildings today, and threatened to chop off captives' heads unless demands for retribution are met.

Police and the terrorists were at a standoff after a tense night during which a man who identified himself as Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, the leader of the gunmen who had invaded and occupied three buildings, talked frequently with reporters by telephone.

Asked if he expected his demand that Muslim leaders be delivered to him to be met, the terrorist said, "If they don't, the worst is to come, yet, the worst is to come... I'm prepared to die."

City officials said unidentified diplomats were involved in efforts to negotiate with the terrorists. Abdul Khaalis confirmed he had talked to representatives of foreign nations.

The gunmen all were believed to be members of the tiny, predominantly black Hanafi Moslem sect. They seized the headquarters of a Jewish social service organization, an Islamic mosque and the District of Columbia City Hall.

During the takeover of City Hall, a black reporter for a Washington radio station was killed and a city councilman and three other persons were wounded. Eight other persons were injured during the takeover of the building housing the headquarters of B'nai B'rith, the Jewish service organization. Three of those eight were still hostages.

Shortly after dawn, the gunmen released a woman from the B'nai B'rith building after they were told she had a heart condition. She was taken to a hospital where a spokesman said she was unharmed.

Police said the men were armed with rifles, shotguns, automatic weapons and machetes. The siege continued through the night with police uncertain how many hostages were being held and how many terrorists were in the buildings.

The largest group of hostages was being held in the eighth-floor cafeteria of the B'nai B'rith headquarters, seven blocks north of the White House. An official of B'nai B'rith estimated that as many as 118 people were in the hands of the terrorists.

Another 14 hostages were being held at the Islamic Center on Washington's Embassy Row and seven were inside the District Building, located on Pennsylvania Avenue within sight of the White House grounds.

In a telephone conversation from the B'nai B'rith building, the apparent leader of the terrorists, Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, was asked if he would hold out indefinitely. He told an Associated Press reporter "Don't worry, when the heads start dropping out the window, then you worry."

Abdul Khaalis is the head of the tiny Hanafi Moslem sect. Abdul Khaalis' son-in-law, Abdul Aziz, said from Hanafi headquarters in another section of the city: "Heads will be chopped off. A killing room will be set up at B'nai B'rith and heads will be thrown out of windows."

In swift succession late Wednesday morning, gunmen took over the three buildings, and seized scores of hostages. Police surrounded the occupied buildings, all within two miles of the White House, and tried to determine what the gunmen were demanding.

The chief grievance seemed to be the brutal 1973 murders of seven Hanafis, mostly young children, in their Washington home. Five Philadelphia Black Muslims were convicted of the crime and each was sentenced to 140 years in prison.

Abdul Khaalis, 54, is the father of several of the slain Hanafi Moslems.

In telephone interviews with various reporters, Khaalis demanded:

—That authorities turn over those responsible for the slaying of his children. He named heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, Muslim leader Wallace D. Muhammad, his brother Herbert Muhammad and former Philadelphia Muslim leader Jeremiah Muslim Shabazz.

—That authorities turn over the murderers of Malcolm X, who like Khaalis was a member of the Black Muslims before breaking with them.

—The return of a $750 fine assessed against him for shouting at the Muslim defendants during their trial for the 1973 Hanafi murders. Police returned the money Wednesday night.

Food Prices Boost Index To New High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The higher cost of coffee, poultry, fruits and vegetables helped push wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a per cent in February, the government said today. It was the biggest increase in 16 months.

Labor Department analysts said they were unable to determine how much of the increase could be attributed to the severe winter. But the jump in the inflation rate at the wholesale level comes against a backdrop of drought in Western states and a citrus and vegetable freeze in Florida.

Fuel prices also were up sharply during the month. Department analysts said the increase appeared larger than the true underlying rate of price rise because natural gas producers were refunding money to customers in the months prior to December, and that kept prices for those months lower than normal.

The latest over-all increase compared to a five-tenths of a per cent rise in January and marked the biggest gain since the 1.2 per cent advance in October 1975.

The monthly increase for February worked out to a compound annual rate of about 11 per cent and left wholesale prices 6 per cent ahead of where they were a year ago. The wholesale price index stood at 190, signifying that the goods which cost $100 in 1967 now cost $190.

Although increases in wholesale prices are not translated dollar-for-dollar into higher consumer prices in succeeding months, the wholesale price index does provide an indication of the inflationary pressures percolating through the economy.

Attorney Says Questioning 'Accusatory'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal attorneys leading an investigation into convictions of the "Wilmington 10" attempted to imply impropriety on the part of the prosecution, former assistant Dist. Atty. Jay Stroud said after more than six hours of testimony before a grand jury.

"They were very accusatory in their questioning. As time went on they were more accusatory," Stroud said after the grand jury concluded its two-day examination of the case. "In my opinion they were trying to imply impropriety on my part."

A pair of attorneys from the civil rights division of the U.S. Justice Department conducting the investigation left for Washington after the grand jury hearing, refusing to comment on the findings.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell requested the investigation and asked that he be given a report by the middle of the month on whether prosecutors violated the constitutional rights of the Rev. Ben Chavis and nine others in their 1972 trial.

The nine black men and one white woman who became known as the Wilmington 10 were sentenced to long prison terms in 1972. They were convicted of arson and assault on officers in the firebombing of a white-owned grocery store during racial unrest in Wilmington in 1971.

Stroud was the fourth subpoenaed witness to testify in secret before the grand jury. Others were Allen Hall 23, Jerome Mitchell, 22, and Eric Junious, 17, each of whom testified for the state at the original trial.

Hall and Mitchell said Tuesday that they lied on the witness stand in the original trial, and that their false testimony was encouraged by Stroud and his superior, Dist. Atty. Allen Cobb. Hall also alleged that Cobb offered him $40,000 to leave the state after he publicly recanted his testimony last August. Cobb has declined comment.

Stroud, looking weary after his full day of questioning, said the federal attorneys aimed their questions at linking him with a conspiracy against Chavis. "It's clear to me that they have a goal...It's to connect me with a conspiracy to get Ben Chavis," he said.

Chavis, 29, was director of the Commission for Racial Justice for the United Church of Christ, and considered leader of the ten. The church group reportedly sent him to Wilmington to help quell racial disturbances, which began in the coastal city's desegregated schools.

Stroud, an assistant U.S. attorney for two years and now assistant district attorney in Gaston County, said the federal lawyers reviewed search warrants issued during the investigation of the Wilmington 10 and his personal notes made in pre-trial interviews with the prosecution witnesses. Those papers were subpoenaed and kept by the lawyers.

"They wanted to try the case all over again, and I didn't think this was the proper place to do that," Stroud said. "I thought that had already been decided."

Families, Friends Wait Amidst Tension, Anger

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Relax and be patient," says the sign under the big red cross on the door of the church. But the people inside are not relaxed. They are not patient.

"How can we relax? Our mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers — the people we love are there," asks a girl who waits.

Ebbing and flowing, about 100 people wait for word about the fate of their relatives and friends who were taken hostage by terrorists Wednesday at the B'nai B'rith headquarters several blocks away.

They wait in a brightly lit, cot-lined basement of the Foundry Methodist Church. The mood is quiet, almost fragile. People speak very gently and politely. Two women hold hands, relatives embrace. But there is a current of anger. Here and there, angry young men in jeans and track shoes huddle and mutter. They come in. They leave without explanation.

One young man exercises on the floor, stretching his legs, while a man being interviewed on television spouts hatred for Jews. The young man curses and sneers.

Later in the evening, the families meet with Dan Thurst, executive vice president of B'nai B'rith. He is trying to compile an accurate list of hostages, and he begins reading names from payroll records, guest books and any other source he can find. These are the people he thinks were in the building when the terrorists struck.

About 50 hushed people cluster around. Occasionally, a name is called and someone says that person is safe. "Are you sure?" Thurst asks. A name is taken from the list.

But that happens rarely, and when Thurst is done, there are 120 names still on the list, still presumably on the eighth floor of the B'nai B'rith building. "I think it's going to be a long wait," Thurst says.

Everyone clusters around the television for news bulletins. Afterwards, the room is almost silent and the television becomes a grotesque silent movie of comedies, commercials, singing and dancing.

One woman takes out her knitting. One woman listens to a radio. A girl with a T-shirt that says "Shalom" picks away at a plastic cup. One man puffs a cigar. Another straddles a chair and buries his head in his arms. A woman declines a tranquilizer and gulps strawberry soda. Someone munches tuna sandwiches and ginger snaps. Joking, someone wonders if the hostages will be allowed kosher food.

"They are very quiet and very controlled but the place reeks with fear, anger, and resentment," says a woman by the window.

In the bathroom, a Red Cross nurse took her hair out of pin curls and shook her head. "Wouldn't it be awful if they chopped off the hostages' heads and threw them out the window," she says, in a reference to one of the terrorists' threats.

After hearing of the gunmen's demands, the people who wait shake their heads.

"Fanatics," says one man. "They're crazy," says another. One young man asks under his breath, "I wonder if there's any talk of exchanging hostages?"

He gets up suddenly and goes.

Warm, But Restrained Applause For N.C. Symphony In New York

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt of North Carolina called it "a coming of age," but protestors said it represented "the North Carolina of the textile mill owners, the governor's mansion and the executive suites."

They were talking about the North Carolina Symphony orchestra's performance Wednesday night at Carnegie Hall.

The 90-member ensemble received a warm, but restrained reception after performing Dvorak's "Carnaval Overture," Poulenc's "Stabat Mater," Rorem's "Assembly and Fall" and Stravinsky's "Petrushka: Burlesque in Four Scenes" before a sell-out crowd.

Hunt, one of nearly 500 North Carolinians to make the trip north for the concert, was booed loudly by more than 100 members of the New York Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression when he arrived at Carnegie Hall. They were protesting the imprisonment of civil rights activists known as the "Wilmington 10" and the "Charlotte Three."

The demonstrators called on Hunt to grant pardons to both groups and a spokesman said: "At the very least, he should instruct his attorney general to join defense motions for bail and a new trial."

Hunt said he had no immediate plans to grant a pardon, saying, "That is being looked into by the appropriate people. I'm waiting for the courts to act."

At a reception he hosted at the Essex House overlooking Central Park, Hunt explained that the 45-year-old North Carolina orchestra gets 40 per cent of its funds — or about $610,000 annually — from the state. Hunt says that represents the largest amount of support any state provides for an orchestra.

"The really significant thing is that it's a peoples' symphony orchestra," the governor said. "It's involved in helping our people burgeon out with what talent's in them."

Other state officials said the concert would bring additional prestige to the state and rectify, what they consider to be, the failure of other states to recognize North Carolina's devotion to arts and cultural affairs.

Her wide brimmed ivory hat was trimmed in a lace ruffle with imported illusion waist length ribbon and lace streamers decorated in lace motifs. She carried a bouquet of carnations surrounded by shasta daisies centered on a Bible with ivory streamers.

Miss Peggy Slate of Petersburg was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of burgundy velvet with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline, empire waist and gathered skirt. She wore a crown of baby's breath with ivory streamers and carried a long-stemmed white chrysanthemum with satin streamers.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The American people can — and do — put up with a lot of inconsistencies.

They live in hope that someday there will be a standard battery sold that will fit everything from a camera to an electric football game... a one-size-fits-all sweeper bag... or a regulation bulb that will plug into any string of Christmas tree lights.

One of the things, however, that they are becoming quite militant about are the inconsistencies in labeling restrooms. This is clearly something that has gotten out of hand in this country with each business trying to outdo the other one in cleverness.

Believe me when I say the most pathetic sight I ever saw in my life was a farsighted woman with her nose pressed against a restroom door, following the outline of a little figure in a hooped skirt.

The restaurants were the first to get cute. In keeping with their decor, they decided to label their restroom door with the appropriate names for women and men. Thus you had Senors-Senoritas, Monsieurs — Madames, Cowboys — Cowgirls, Chiefs — Squaws, and Tarzan and Jane.

Some of the more sophisticated businesses came up with fictional characters like Samson and Delilah, Romeo and Juliet, and Scarlett and Rhett. As I said to my husband one night, "You've been to the restroom."

"Give me a hint. What am I looking for?"

"Mine was called 'General,'" he said.

"Terrific! I'll try for Motors." The cutesies we could have lived with, but in recent years they've added a new dimension — the animal kingdom. Finding your restroom is like a romp through Disneyland.

I have literally lurked behind potted faked plants waiting to see who were the bucks and we were the does... the heifers and the steers, the stallions and the mares, the chicks or the chicklets, the pointers or the setters.

The other night, a woman rushed frantically back to her table and said, "Here's your dime back and let's go."

"I thought you wanted to use the restroom," said her husband, puzzled. "And I thought you had to go to LA to see the Rams, but that's before I found out I was a Ewe and that Rams don't need change, and let's get out of here and I'll tell you about it on the way home."

Handiwork Can Be Therapeutic

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A friend has asked me to play "Dear Abby" and mediate a fuss between her and her husband, and I honestly don't know what to tell her.

It seems that her husband is bugged because she is always doing knitting, needlepoint or some kind of handiwork when they're watching TV or just visiting.

He says she has all day to do whatever she wants, and when he comes home, she should give him her undivided attention. He wants her to look at him while they're conversing.

She says she can hear every word he says, and she DOES look at him almost constantly, so he has no legitimate beef. I can see his point, Abby, but I can also see hers. Do you think he has the right to ask her to quit doing needlework in his face? And should she—just to please him?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: He hasn't the right to ask her to quit. Handiwork for many (men as well as women) is therapeutic. It's relaxing and relieves tension. Tell her I said she should stick to her needlework—but look up a little more.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old man who is in Rutland, Vt., doing 30 years to life for second degree murder. I killed a 15-year-old girl. No reason. I just went off my rocker.

Now the problem: I read in your column that a lot of people need kidneys. I know that kidneys have been transplanted successfully, and I want you to put me in touch with someone who needs one so I can donate one of mine. I don't mean after I'm dead. I mean right now. I know a person can live with only one kidney so if I could give one of mine now maybe I could sleep better.

I realize I can't bring back that poor little girl whose life I took, but I could give some other person life. It won't balance the scales, but it would give some meaning to my life, which is practically useless now.

This letter was not written in haste. I've thought about it for a long time.

I'm not very religious, but God knows this is a sincere request. Can you help me get it granted, Abby?

GEORGE H.

DEAR GEORGE: I don't know the laws covering such a donation, but if you're sincere (and I believe you are) tell the chaplain of the correctional institution what you've told me, and he will advise you. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but annoying problem I need help with. It seems that whenever I telephone a friend I haven't spoken to for some time, his or her first words are something like, "Well, I don't believe I am actually hearing from you," or, "My goodness, I thought you'd dropped off the edge of the earth, etc..." (I'm sure you get the idea, Abby.)

It irks me to be put down with such a negative reception, when I have finally taken the initiative and called someone, as though it were MY obligation to do so.

It's the same kind of guilt some elderly folks or shut-ins lay on those who haven't been around to see them for a while. In other words, how does one cope with people who make you feel guilty?

IRKED

DEAR IRKED: No one can make you feel "guilty" unless you've earned the guilt. (Irritated, put down and even outraged perhaps, but not guilty.) There's no way to prevent others from needing you. Develop a tougher hide.

Justice Sharp Backs Merit Selection Of Judges

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) - In giving her "wholehearted support" to a merit selection plan for choosing North Carolina's judges, Chief Justice Susie

Sharp of the State Supreme Court has described some of the state's district court judges as "highly unqualified." Justice Sharp gave her backing to the merit selection plan in a letter read Wednesday to the Senate and House Courts and Judicial District committees at a public hearing. Justice Sharp said she believed the merit plan before the legislature "is vastly superior to our present elective system and that it will provide us with superior judges." She wrote that although the state has many excellent district court judges, "a minority of these judges are so highly unqualified that they are damaging the image of that election; and if we continue to elect such judges, they will inevitably tarnish the image of the entire judiciary."

The merit plan sponsored by Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, and Sen. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, calls for the creation of a 150-member Judicial Nominating Commission. The governor would appoint judges from nominees recommended by panels drawn from the nominating commission.

The plan also provides that judges would be subject to a retention vote at the next election after their appointment. Voters would decide whether to retain them in office. If 40 per cent said "No" the judge would be voted out.

Helms said the plan was intended to select judges "solely upon the basis of personal and professional fitness."

The Mecklenburg legislator led off a parade of seven speakers favoring the merit plan with Salisbury attorney Bob Davis voicing the only objection.

Ralph Stockton of Winston-Salem, president of the North Carolina Bar Association, told the legislators that the plan, prepared by bar association committee, would allow judges to carry out their duties "free of partisan pressures." Stockton said the present plan under which judges usually are appointed initially by the governor to fill vacancies and thereafter are subject to election "does not work" because the judge seldom have opposition. Davis contended the election system should be retained because it has given the state some excellent judges. Even if good judges were chosen under the merit plan, "there is no assurance they would be better than the choice of the people," Davis said.

Rose Page Wilson of Durham, who represented the League of Women Voters, said the plan would "enable all our judges to be top notch." She called the present plan of electing judges "a farce."

Charles Day, law professor at the University of North Carolina and president of the North Carolina Black Lawyers Association, said his group endorsed the plan, but wanted two changes. He said the law should require that the nominating commission reflect the racial composition of the state's population and that it be changed so that judges would be retained on a simple majority vote. He said any other provision "would appear to be quite arbitrary."

Amateur Bike Race Scheduled Mar. 27

An amateur bike race will be held Sunday, March 27 in the downtown Greenville area.

The race, entitled "The Miller High Life-Greenville Bike Classic," is to be sponsored by the Miller Brewing Company, John's Bike Shop and the Greenville Jaycees.

David Duffus, a Jaycee member, is co-chairman of the event. According to Duffus, riders have already signed up from Vermont to Florida.

The race is expected to draw some of the best amateurs on the East Coast. The following clubs are expected to be present: Greenville All Stars, of Greenville; Tumbleweeds of Raleigh; Hearts Racing Club of Chapel Hill; Cross Creek Cyclists, Fayetteville; Georgetown Cyclists of Washington, D.C.;

Tidewater Cyclist, Norfolk, Va.; Tarheel Cyclists, Charlotte; and the Carolina Cyclists, Greenville, S.C.

According to Duffus, a number of races will take place and will include a race between fraternities and sororities. The main races will consist of the following: Noivoce class, Intermediate class, Junior class, and Senior 1,2,3 and 4. Approximately 100 of the most experienced riders are to compete in the Senior 1 and 2 race. The riders in the Senior race will ride for approximately two hours and will average 35 m.p.h.

All local persons are invited to attend or participate in the races. An awards ceremony will be conducted immediately following the races. Awards will include trophies and prize money.

Prefers Prison To A Changing World

LAKE BUTLER, Fla. (AP) - A 63-year-old man who spent 14 years in prison before being paroled says he's come back home to a Florida jail because the outside world has changed too much for him to make it on his own.

William H. Privette showed up at a state prison here Wednesday saying he wanted to be put back behind bars. But it wasn't that easy.

Prison officials debated all day whether to grant his request. Finally, the Florida Probation and Parole Commission took him into custody at least temporarily on a parole violation warrant.

A hearing will be scheduled to determine whether to revoke his parole.

"Not many want to come back," said Kenneth Simmons, assistant director of the commission in Tallahassee. "I don't recall any under the same circumstances."

Privette was paroled last December after serving 14 years of a 20-year sentence for killing his wife. A condition of parole was that he stay out of Florida.

Simmons said prison officials weren't delighted to take Privette back. "But under the circumstances we felt it was necessary. We're dealing with an elderly man who went to prison years ago for killing his wife," Simmons said. "Apparently he does not have any money. We were concerned what he might do to get himself back in prison."

Simmons said Privette had been under psychiatric treatment in the past.

Privette said that he wanted to return to prison without committing another crime.

"I didn't want to mess around and get in trouble," he said. "I've never committed a crime in my life, except for that one time."

After his release Dec. 8, Privette said he returned to his former home in Monroe, N.C., but couldn't get a job.

"I've got bad diabetes," he said. "I need to take insulin regularly. And I've got emphysema and what they call congestive heart problems."

He said medicine was costing him $63 a month and doctor's visits were at least $25 each.

"I knew there was no way I could stay out," Privette said.

Plan Hypertension Checks For Pupils

A hypertension screening program will be performed at the J.H. Rose High School March 15, 16, and 17 and will include all interested tenth grade biology students.

In order to be eligible for blood pressure measurement, the student must have the written permission of a parent or guardian.

This survey is part of a Good Health Habits learning experience and will be done in cooperation with the ECU Medical School, Department of Pediatrics, and the ECU School of Nursing. Any student found to have persistent high blood pressure will be referred to his doctor for a diagnostic work up or if he chooses, appropriate follow-up can be through the Department of Pediatrics at the Medical School.

Recent studies suggest that 23 million Americans, or one out of every seven adults, have high blood pressure. About 30 per cent of Americans are unaware of the problem. Since the time of onset of this elevated pressure is often unknown, a number of high school screening programs have been instituted across the United States. As many as five to 10 per cent of the students in some of these surveys have been found to have high blood pressure.

Set A High Price On Perjury

It is apparent to all that the truthfulness of witnesses in court is all-important in the pursuit of justice. To ensure such truthfulness, witnesses are required to take an oath that what they are about to say is true, and are literally calling upon God to witness the truth of what they say. It cannot be taken lightly.

Now two witnesses in a 1972 Wilmington trial claim they lied, and their testimony led to sentences of many years in prison for the ten accused. One cannot be certain of what to believe: either they lied in 1972, or they are lying in 1977...for a person capable of perjury in 1972 is equally capable of perjury in 1977.

But this we know: our courts and sense of justice cannot tolerate perjured evidence. Conviction of perjury frequently results in heavy penalties, but in instances such as this, some kind of drastic penalty is in order so as to make clear the absolute necessity our system places on honesty.

To underline that position, it would seem only fair a convicted perjurer face the prospect of serving the sentence his victims suffered. Such a non-nonsense approach would go far to clearing away any doubts a witness might have as to the stakes involved before a court of law.

Tax Plan Would Mean Much To ECU

Legislative leaders have come up with a plan for speeding up collection of state corporate income taxes.

If the bill embracing the plan is enacted it will mean a one-time windfall of $90 million. These funds would be divided up for prison construction, for facilities for the mentally retarded and for financing capital improvements at state universities.

Included in that is $2.7 million for renovation of the old Wahl-Coates building at ECU for use by the speech and drama departments.

This has been a long delayed project on the local campus and its funding this year would be welcomed.

THIS AFTERNOON

Rejects Small Town Blame

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Dispersal of industrial development to North Carolina's smaller towns and rural areas is the very backbone of the philosophy which has been followed in this state for many years.

And according to Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., it will continue to be so.

Flatly rejecting the contention of a University of North Carolina professor that small town dispersal is partly to blame for the state's low industrial wage structure as "wrong," Gov. Hunt says he intends to continue to press for statewide dispersal of economic growth.

He is Wrong

"He is wrong, number one, in saying that small town dispersal is a major factor in the industrial wage picture; and number two, even if there is some effect on income with regard to lower wages in those areas, I'm willing to pay that small price for North Carolina to have a dispersed population pattern," the governor commented of the findings recently unveiled by Barry Moriarty, director of the University of North Carolina Institute of Economic Development.

Moriarty's work places him in a critical role regarding future economic development, a factor which has caused considerable alarm at his comments—especially in smaller communities.

Moriarty said a study from 1969 through 1974 shows that 70 per cent of North Carolina's expanded industry located in small communities—many in coastal plain and tidewater areas—where lower wages prevail.

Moriarty concluded with the suggestion that industry go to the cities where larger wage scales prevail, and urged the state to try to attract more industries with reputations for higher wages.

Gov. Hunt wants the higher paying industries, but he doesn't want them jammed into an urban complex producing more congestion and urban problems for the future.

What he seeks is a "good urban-rural balance in which people can live in their own communities, close to their family and their friends and where they have real roots... that situation produces good citizenship, and a good work force," said the governor in an exclusive interview in his private office recently.

It is the close ties between their communities and their jobs which make North Carolina's people one of this state's major attractions for industrial growth, he believes.

BILL NOBLITT

Main Attraction

"There are two important elements: our natural resources such as geography and climate and location; and the attitudes and values of the people of our state," he commented.

The state's "rural values" which influence Tar Heels to give "a good day's work" are a major selling point, he said, and if the state moves away from that balance of rural-urban dispersal the quality of the work produced is likely to decline.

The solution, says Gov.

Hunt, is neither to redirect industrial growth to urban areas nor to encourage only low-wage development in small communities.

"There is no reason we should not have high-paying, quality industrial growth in rural areas. Low pay industries are not the only ones you put out there... and we have many already out there which are good industries, and whose experience has been so good they are already committed to significant developments in North Carolina in future years," the governor said.

He thinks that while immediate gains may require some lower-skill operations to take up the farm-to-city shift and provide entry level jobs for untrained people, the major emphasis should go to upgrading worker skills through education so that down the road the people will be ready to handle bigger jobs at bigger pay.

Immediate benefits may not be as noticeable, he has said, but future rewards would be greater.

In my honor, I will do my best...

A Little More Equal

From time to time, the Supreme Court is charged not with merely interpreting the Constitution, but with effectively amending the Constitution. From time to time, the charge is true—and the charge is true today in the matter of the Court and the Fifteenth Amendment.

Last week's decision in the New York redistricting case marked another mile along the road. Step by step, the Court is writing language into the Fifteenth that the framers never put there. In its solicitude for black voters as a class, the Court is giving an Orwellian twist to the doctrine of equal protection: Black voters, as a class, are to be a little more equal than others.

The New York case, affecting state legislative districts in Kings County, arose under the Federal Voting Rights Act. In obedience to an effective order from the U. S. attorney general, fixing a minimum quota of 65 percent nonwhite voters, the state drew new district lines. These new boundaries split a community of Hasidic Jews. They took their protest to court. Last week the high court dismissed their protest and affirmed the quota plan.

The effect of the Court's ruling is further to cement a bizarre doctrine the Court has been busily building in recent years. This doctrine holds that blacks voters, as a class, have a right and as a privilege accorded to no other group in America's political life: They have a right never to have their bloc political power "diluted."

Alone among all the ethnic, economic, social, regional and special-interest groups in the nation, the black minority is to be protected against nullification of "its ability to elect the candidate of its choice." By this decision, the Court establishes a "constitutionally valid mandate of maintaining nonwhite voting strength."

It is hard to fathom where in the world the Court dredged up this remarkable construction of the law. The Fifteenth Amendment says that the right to vote shall not be "denied or abridged" on

To the editor:

Who needs community college status for Pitt Technical Institute?

According to Janet Boyd's recent letter to the editor, she and many other Pitt County high school seniors do—plus those who cannot meet the stringent entrance requirements of major universities.

As for finances, tuition for a non-boarding ECU student is $161 a quarter; PTI's is $40—almost exactly one fourth. At the same time, tuition costs will remain the same. Moreover, funding other than county taxes is available to assist the change of PTI to a community college. In the first year, our institution would receive approximately $100,000 from state government and about $250,000 every year thereafter based on enrollment.

Local college status will allow many members of the community to better their education. Now many Pitt County students commute daily to other counties because of the status symbol of a community college as opposed to a technical institute. Why not keep in Pitt County the many dollars being spent for education in other counties by Pitt County students and their parents?

The addition of a college transfer program would mean only a slight cost increase for maintenance and utilities. PTI already has funds for a new shop-classroom facility.

PTI intends to add late afternoon, night and Saturday classes to accommodate college parallel students. Who can cope with community college status without noticeably burdening the county tax payers—yet better serve the community? Pitt Technical Institute can!

Who needs a community college? Pitt County residents and high school graduates—especially those who do not meet other similar institution requirements and will have to get 45 transferable hours to be considered for admission. In conclusion, an Associate of Arts college graduate is more employable and has greater confidence than a four-year professional degree dropout or one who could not attend at all.

40 Years Ago Today

March 10, 1937

President Roosevelt put on record today a blunt declaration that he would not appoint to the Supreme Court "spineless puppets" who would decide specific cases as he wished.

"No president fit for his office would appoint and no Senate of honorable men fit for their office would confirm that kind of appointees to the Supreme Court," he said.

He asserted however, in his second appeal for enactment of his judicial reorganization program he would choose justices "who will act as justices and not as legislators."

"If that can be called packing the court," he said, "then I can say that I, and with the vast majority of the American people, favor doing just that thing—now."

Efforts were underway here today to have Pitt County's legislative delegation secure enactment of the anti-slot machine bill as a local measure applying to Pitt County, if it fails as a statewide measure.

Proponents of the measure had worked for a bill to ban the machines over the entire state, but declare that if this is impossible the next best thing would be to outlaw them in the county.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Merely Window Dressing?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the pulpit from which Ambassador Andrew Young is trumpeting sometimes controversial opinions about U.S. foreign policy, a different, unheralded set of changes ordered by President Carter is transforming Young's United Nations office.

The Carterization of Andy Young's new job is leaving a crusty old diplomatic hands breathless, but the key unanswered question remains: Will Young truly influence U.S. foreign policy, as most of his predecessors never came close to doing, or is this window dressing to amortize Mr. Carter's debt to the black voters who played the critical role in electing him? That question is being widely asked, nowhere so much as in the elegant foreign embassies in Washington and the UN chancelleries in New York.

Already Ambassador Young has become sole beneficiary of the following unpublicized exemptions from President Carter's highly visible moves to trim the federal bureaucracy and impose controls over selecting U.S. ambassadors:

Exemption One: For the first time, Young as chief U.S. delegate will have a special UN staff in Washington. Mr. Carter is asking Congress for a supplemental appropriation at an annual rate of about $250,000 to finance three full-time officers and two secretaries plus additional sums for "travel expenses." That strongly implies that some in the ambassador's State Department office will go with him as contact points between him and the White House.

Exemption Two: Alone among the multiplicity of new ambassadors to be appointed by Mr. Carter, Young's top UN ambassadorial aides need no clearance through the new Commission on Ambassadorial Appointments.

Young has already selected his top two UN deputies and the head of his new Washington staff. At the UN, James Leonard, who is white, is the new No. 2 and Donald McHenry, who is black, is the new No. 3. Neither one is in the foreign service (though both used to be). They replace two foreign service officers with impressive diplomatic experience.

Young has chosen Dr. Anne Forrester Holloway, a 35-year-old international relations Ph.D. who is black, to head his new Washington office. Her initial staff, certain to balloon under the unbreakable rule of the Washington bureaucracy, includes a congressional UN lobbyist, the first ever, a regular foreign service officer adviser and a secretary. This new bureaucracy contradicts Mr. Carter's promise to reorganize the government down, not up.

But that is not all the new President has given to Andy Young. In his effort to persuade Young to leave Congress and take the UN job, Mr. Carter gave him carte blanche to choose the Assistant Secretary of State for International Organizations. The man chosen for this job (filled by a career foreign service officer for the past 16 years) is Charles William Maynes, 38, most recently secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Some diplomatic experts here feel this extraordinary treatment of Andy Young, hand-in-hand with Young's apparent license to say what he wants on complex foreign issues, is more symbolic than substantive. "This is just more Jimmy Carter cosmetics," one told us.

In fact, however, that may be grossly erroneous. The explanation given the House Appropriations subcommittee for the $130,000 supplemental money (covering only five months) for Young's Washington operation was specific: Andy Young will sit

Strength For Today

NOT MUCH, BUT GLORIOUS

A short time ago a man in this city died whose quiet Christian influence had a profound effect on the lives of many people, particularly young men. This man held no important position in the business world, was not wealthy, and had modest intellectual capacity. Yet hundreds of people came to his funeral.

Every Sunday during his adult life this man had two extra places set at his table for strangers, particularly young people, whom he met at church. Many of his guests were strongly attracted to him, and came back to talk with him on later occasions. His home finally became a center of religious influence.

This man never made speeches, or tried overtly to influence people. But he believed that the way to show his Christianity was through friendship, extended particularly to the young and lonely.

This person did not do much in life, but he did it with such love in his heart that it became a great Christian work.

Risk-Reward Concept Eroded

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Among the very basic issues being discussed in business and financial circles with mixed frustration and hope, issues that underlie and affect more specific, immediate concerns, are these: —Is appreciation of the risk-reward principle eroding?

In the past, it was assumed that the individual who assumed responsibility, who took on the greater challenge and therefore accepted the greater risk, should receive the greater rewards if successful.

This spirit, we are told, was vital to the development of the United States, but now a good many critics say it is being smothered in legislation, regulation, taxes, and high interest rates.

Often expressed, the view was re-stated this week by the chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, William Batten.

"What is needed now," he said, "is for the administration to convert awareness — and campaign promises — into action that will encourage risk-taking."

Batten said he referred specifically to tax reform designed to accelerate capital formation and encouraging investing, such as the double taxing of dividends and the "unrealistic" tax treatment of capital gains.

But in general, he said, the business community faces a tremendous if not impossible task in "trying to educate policymakers, opinion leaders and much of the public itself to the crucial economic lifeline between risk-taking and job for mation."

While the business community expresses itself in these words, however, some critics ask if the business community isn't also contributing to what is seen as a loss of the entrepreneurial spirit.

These critics refer to the tendency of some businesses to attempt to reduce risk by controlling markets, by seeking government assistance for especially risky projects and to limit foreign competition, by insisting on cost-plus contracts, and by avoiding innovation as dangerous boat-rocking.

—Can we house the nation properly while continuing the use of traditional mortgage instruments?

The question might seem academic at the moment, because housing markets by the day. But, while the averages and over-all statistics might look good, the breakdown reveals defects.

The major problem seems to be that housing costs and down payment, monthly installments, taxes, interest charges — have put private housing beyond the hopes of many young families.

Older people are complaining too. Having paid off the mortgage, they now find themselves faced with rising operating costs and taxes, and pensions that don't keep pace.

The lenders are griping as well, particularly about being locked into 20 to 30-year commitments at fixed rates of interest when, they observe, nobody is able to tell what rates will be six months from now.

with the National Security Council, and of course with the cabinet; he will be closer to multi-lateral diplomacy in the UN than Vance can be on the seventh floor at State; and his advice will be crucial in Carter foreign policy.

Subcommittee members were wide-eyed, and showed it by voting an unspecified $200,000 cut in the overall $1.7 million asked. "Everybody likes Andy Young," Republican Rep. Elford Cederberg of Michigan told us, "but this is something else."

Moreover, U.S. allies, particularly in Europe and Africa, are spinning like tops to keep up with the diplomatic sayings of the preacher-politician turned diplomat.

After Young's stirring speech at Howard University here Wednesday night, in which he said American blacks "can never be free" until blacks in South Africa are free, one Western European diplomat hurried to cable his foreign minister not to be alarmed. U.S. policy, he said, had not changed. Perhaps not. Yet, the special world that Mr. Carter has created for Andy Young may argue differently. His new office here, his unique standing in the Oval Office and his role as the authoritative voice of black America may give him influence beyond any Mr. Carter had in mind. At the very least, it has placed Andy Young at the pinnacle of a foreign policy machine fully equipped to compete with Vance and the State Department.

CONFIRMED — Paul Warnke, above, was confirmed Wednesday as the U.S. arms negotiator — by a 58-40 vote in the Senate. The margin of the vote was viewed as advance warning to Pres. Carter and the Soviet Union that a new SALT treaty will undergo the most vigorous Senate examination. (AP Wirephoto)

account of race. The amendment says nothing about "diluting" the political power of a racial bloc. This is the Court's own homespun construction.

In the case at hand, neither Kings County nor the State of New York denied or abridged any citizen's right to register and vote. The black man, the Puerto Rican, the Hasidic Jew—all of them, as individual citizens, had identical rights. But under the Court's ruling, black voters are treated as a specially favored class. They are to be guaranteed, in particular districts, a "substantial majority," and this is to assure their opportunity to elect a "black representative."

The Court split wide open. White announced the Court's judgment and wrote the principal opinion, but he could sell his reasoning, in toto, only to Stevens. Brennan and Blackmun had different ideas. Stewart and Powell concurred in the judgment. Rehnquist dissented in large part, but didn't say why. Marshall sat this one out. Chief Justice Burger came down in total dissent.

Mr. Justice Brennan was plainly troubled. The case, he said, "carries us further down the road of race-centered remedial devices than we have heretofore traveled." The idea of affording "preferential treatment to disadvantaged nonwhites generally" must raise "serious questions of fairness." But if Brennan's conscience gave him pain, he had an analgesic salve for fast relief: New York's discriminatory quota system amounted only to "benign" and not to malign discrimination. The Voting Rights Act sufficed to justify the use of overt, numerical devices in electoral districting.

All this was too much for Burger. He had thought it unconstitutional for a state to

Objections To Film On Mohammad Mystifies

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowing to the demands of Hanafi Moslems holding hostages in Washington, the American distributor of a movie about the life of the prophet Mohammad says the film will not be seen in the United States "for the immediate future."

Irwin Yablans, the national distributor of "Mohammad, Messenger of God," said all advertising and promotion has been cancelled.

"When we found out this was a real situation and that these demands were being made, we immediately asked people to leave the theaters (in New York) and did the same in Los Angeles," Yablans said Wednesday, the movie's opening day.

He said he did not know why the Black Muslims would object to the film. "Reaction to the film has been marvelous," he said.

Salah Hassanein, president of United Artists Eastern Theaters, said authorities appealed to him to halt showings at his New York theaters after the leader of the Washington gunmen demanded the movie be withdrawn because he considered it an affront to his Moslem religion.

Producer-director Moustapha Akkad said the film was released in Egypt, Libya and other countries about two months ago without any objections to its content.

The movie, which chronicles 23 years in the life of Mohammad from the prophet's spiritual awakening at 40 to his death at 63 in 632 A.D., stars Anthony Quinn, Irene Pappas, Michael Ansara and a Syrian-born actor named Johnny Sekka.

Sekka said in New York Wednesday he was mystified by objections to the movie. "I made the film to bring the story of Islam, the story of 700 million people, to the West," Sekka said.

The most commonly suggested solution is the variable rate mortgage, now being used in California and some other areas, the cost of which rises — and conceivably even falls — with prevailing interest rates.

Another mortgage would require small payments early in the contract, when the young homeowner presumably would have relatively small income and big expenditures, and larger payments later on.

For older people the reverse mortgage has been proposed. It would permit the elderly homeowner to use the equity in his or her home as an annuity that would provide a certain sum for life.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose members make up the nation's largest mortgage-lending group, believe that before it can be implemented, current federal and state regulations would have to be updated.

—Which way will interest rates go?

Everyone is asking. Involved in this question are issues so fundamental such as 8 plant construction, housing, jobs, prices, the stock market — that it might be the number one economic issue of the moment.

But nobody knows the answer.

the jails to ease serious overcrowding in the state prison system. The prison system was designed to hold about 10,000 inmates but it now has more than 13,000.

Ms. Maletto used judicial districts as a regional approach to using jails. That would allow one jail in the district to be designated for women and another for youthful offenders so there would be no need for separate provisions in each jail, she said.

Still needed before a bill can be filed to implement a program of using county jails for short term inmates would be a study showing the cost of keeping inmates in jails compared to keeping them in prison, she said.

"There are a lot of advantages to having prisoners in county jails," Ms. Maletto said. They would be close to their families and it would be easier for them to be in programs such as work release, she said.

"It's a lot more humane than throwing them into the central system," she said.

Reed commented that he was pleased with the study but would like to have inmates serving up to a year be in county jails.

Alleged Terrorist Leader Is Son-In-Law Of N. Carolinian

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a dentist, minister and civil rights leader whose son-in-law was identified as a leader in Washington terrorism, said today he was praying for the hostages and those holding hostages.

"I'm praying for the safety of all concerned," said Hawkins, a two-time unsuccessful candidate for governor of North Carolina. His daughter is married to Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, identified as a leader of attacks at three different locations in the nation's capital Wednesday.

Five children and two adults, including three of Hawkins' grandchildren, were killed in a 1973 attack on Washington headquarters of the Hanafi Moslems, of which Khaalis described himself as a leader. Hawkins said he was willing to do all he could for all persons involved in the Washington incident, but he declined to say whether he had had any communication with the terrorists. "This world and this country need to realize that this type of frustration and violence are going on all over the world — in Ireland, in Africa, in South America, and even in this country — and we need to wake up and alleviate this human condition," said Hawkins in a telephone interview. "This seems to be the year of the violence. We need to be concerned for people all over the world," he added. "I've been trying for 15 years to alleviate this kind of frustration." Hawkins, for years a militant civil rights leader in North Carolina, twice sought the Democratic nomination for governor, in 1968 and again in 1972. "I had all kinds of violence done to me in those races," he said. "I don't condone violence and I have never used violence against anyone." "I am praying for the hostages and for the families of those killed and wounded and I'm willing to do all I can for all of the people involved," he added. "I think we seem to be headed for human destruction because of the frustration of all people across the world. There is between the haves and the havenots. Governments are being completely biased," he said.

SOUGHT — The apparent leader of a group of terrorist gunmen holding hostages in the B'nai B'rith headquarters in Washington, has demanded that authorities turn over to him the former Philadelphia Muslim leader Jeremiah Muslim Shabazz, shown above in a 1976 file photo. (AP Wirephoto)

Price Rise For Can Of Nothing

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The price of "nothing" has gone up in this tourist area of Central Florida. A can of pure Florida sunshine which used to sell for 49 cents in most variety and souvenir shops has gone up to 69 cents in some and as high as 98 cents in others.

The canned commodity, advertised as "Genuine Florida Sunshine," is chock full of nothing. But its label reads:

"The contents of this can consist of 60 per cent pure Florida sunshine mixed with 12 per cent tropical breeze and 28 per cent pure Florida air. All ingredients are homogenized to make up a mixture that cannot be duplicated anywhere else."

Nobody knows why the canners, Canned Florida Inc. of Pompano Beach, raised the prices. No one from the company was available for comment.

Radio Reporter's Assignment To City Council Is His Last

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maurice Williams' assignment as a reporter for the Howard University radio station was to cover a news conference by Washington City Council Chairman Sterling Tucker. The assignment was his last.

As he stepped out of an elevator in Washington's District Building shortly before 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, he was cut down by a shot fired by one of a group of terrorists who had taken over the city council chambers in the building.

As the siege of this capital city's City Hall continued, acquaintances recalled Williams as a cheerful young man with a strong dedication to his chosen profession of journalism.

Williams, 24, a native of Washington, first worked at the station as an intern while he was a student at the predominantly black university. After his graduation in 1975, he was hired as a professional member of the staff. He covered the District Building regularly.

"In every outfit there is some guy who is always cheerful and effervescent," fellow newsman Ben Johnson said. "That was Maurice. He joked all the time and kept everybody's spirits up."

In a separate interview late Wednesday, Wallace Terry, a professor in the Howard University Communications Department, said that "apparently Maurice was simply a chance victim of this tragedy."

"As a matter of fact he had not planned to go to work today because he had a stomach virus."

Terry said he had just come from visiting Williams' parents, Otto and Millie Williams, whom he described as "in a state of shock."

"Many of his classmates from Coolidge High School were gathered at the house tonight asking, 'Why did this have to happen? Why to Maurice?'" Terry said.

"One of his friends said Maurice liked to put it this way: He felt that his role in the struggle for black people was to become a journalist and help expose the contradictions in American life. Apparently he has become a victim of one of those contradictions," Terry said.

Terry indicated Williams considered a career as an artist before deciding to go into journalism.

Williams was single and lived with his parents.

State Senator Wants To Rewrite Utilities Laws

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A state senator says he plans to file a bill that would rewrite the state's utilities law and by coincidence, meet some recommendations of a special legislative committee.

Sen. I. Beverly Lake, said he hopes to have his proposed rewrite of the law ready for introduction within the next two weeks. He spent five years with the state attorney general's office and headed the staff that represents the public in cases before the Utilities Commission.

Meanwhile, the legislative Utility Review Committee, which oversees the operation of the Utilities Commission, issued a report Wednesday that makes recommendations ranging from a management audit of the commission to changes in law.

The basic problem now is that utilities and the commission operate as though the companies have a right to a certain profit whether they operate efficiently or not, Lake said.

"We've lost sight of the fact that they've got to earn that return. They don't have a right to it," he said.

The problem, he said, is that state utility law is antiquated and needs overhaul. The last major change came in 1963, he said.

One provision of the bill, Lake said, will require that rates be based on what the companies actually paid for equipment or invested in it, rather than the "fair value" estimate which is higher because of inflation making equipment more expensive to replace. The review committee recommended that change as well.

The review committee gave major utilities and members of the Utilities Commission an advance look at the report and their replies were included.

Duke Power Co. and Carolina

Power and Light Co. defended fair value as a rating base because it allows for inflation and provides some protection against losses.

Other recommendations in the review committee's report are:

—That the Utilities Commission be more thorough in investigation requests for fuel adjustment increases posed by power companies.

Lake said his bill will include a provision abolishing the fuel adjustment, a factor that has been used for only three years. He said it is not needed and the companies should go through the complete rate increase hearing process if fuel prices should go up. But, he said emergency rate increases would still be allowed if needed.

—That the Utilities Commission investigate future power needs as mandated by the 1975 legislation.

—That a private company be hired to conduct a management audit to determine whether the commission is being operated efficiently.

—That the commission, which is an agency under the legislature, keep the General Assembly informed of its programs and activities.

—That the legislature set up a study commission to investigate whether the state is moving toward too heavy a reliance on nuclear power to generate electricity.

—That state law be amended so that trucks hauling nuclear fuel be required to file their routes in advance with state officials.

In responding to the report, commissioners Scott Harvey and Lester Teal Jr. said the panel had simply attempted to carry out the mandates of the legislature. They generally agreed with the report and Teal suggested that the legislature hire the management audit firm so there would be question about it being impartial.

Gov. Jim Hunt has promised a legislative package on utilities and Lake said his bill would not conflict with that.

"We both have the same objective in mind and that is to improve the service which has declined in the last four to five years," Lake said.

The bill, Lake said, should not be considered a consumer's bill because it will not be aimed at favoring ratepayers at the expense of the companies.

"It will attempt to give the public protection it does not have now and at the same time give legitimate protection to the utilities," he said.

DGA Planning For Activities

The first annual member dinner of the Downtown Greenville Association was held Thursday night with some 70 members, wives, husbands and employees attending.

President George Coffman welcomed those present and Vice President William Taft Jr. presided at the business session. Morris Brody, chairman of the organizing group and the Association's first president, congratulated members on their participation during the year and reminded them that the City of Greenville and the Redevelopment Commission have given them the necessary physical requirements for a fine shopping center. "It is now up to the Association and its members to see that it continues to happen," he said.

Reports on the accomplishments and plans for the Trade Promotion and Parking Committees were given by Executive Director Dave Mosier. The nine successful events sponsored in 1976 would be increased to 21, including special features on the mall each month.

Two more trees on the mall would be wired for permanent lighting out of this year's budget, he said.

Two Parking Committee projects, free parking through the use of tokens distributed by business firms and courtesy overtime parking tickets for out-of-town cars, are doing well, he said. Some 4,545 tokens have been put into meters and 550 courtesy tickets have been issued by the meter maids. The token program began in September and the ticket program in November of last year. Mosier also said that more than 300 employees' cars have been moved from meter parking into leased spaces in city and private lots.

Open discussion followed the reports. The meeting was concluded with a vote of thanks to city officials for their interest and cooperation during the past year.

Capping Ceremony Is Conducted For 36 PTI Nursing Students

Thirty-six nursing students received their nursing caps Tuesday night during Pitt Technical Institute's Practical Nurse Capping Ceremony held at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Greenville.

According to Mrs. Judith Kuykendall, R.N., B.S.N., M.S., director of nursing education at PTI and the speaker for the occasion, the capping ceremony is in effect recognizing these student nurses for what they have accomplished.

In her address to the students, Mrs. Kuykendall stated that those who promote cap wearing among nurses, including herself, prefer to see the nursing cap for what it is, an ornament of distinction.

"It symbolizes a proud profession and a tradition of dedicated nurses servicing their fellowmen," Mrs. Kuykendall said.

Class President Pamela Draffin of Greenville welcomed the parents and friends of the students and introduced the speaker.

Caps were presented to the nursing students by Sally Barnaby and Patricia Earnhardt, nursing instructors at Pitt Tech.

Students receiving their caps were the following: Debra Ange, Katherine Avery, Lynn Carter, Laura Clark, Pamela Draffin, Patricia Forbes, Tess Hammonds, Reina Hannibal, Rebec-

Messenger of God," which was scheduled for its American premiere on Wednesday in New York and Los Angeles. The distributor immediately stopped the film in mid-screening after learning of Abdul Khaalis' demand. Abdul Khaalis said the film was "a fairy tale" that demeaned and distorted the Islamic faith, although few other Moslems have objected to it.

In Chicago, Wallace Muhammad denied responsibility for the 1973 Hanafi slayings and said he deplored Wednesday's violence.

Four to six gunmen, including Khaalis, stormed the B'nai B'rith headquarters around 11 a.m., wounding eight persons and herding 100 or more hostages onto the top floor of the eight-story building. Police said 43 persons either were released

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today as it absorbed the expected news of a surge in the wholesale price index last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off more than 2 points at the outset, was up .50 at 943.40 by 11:30 a.m.

Losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume amounted to 4.37 million shares over the first hour.

At the opening the Labor Department reported that its wholesale price index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.9 percent in February, for the equivalent of a 10.8 percent annual rate.

But the news, unpleasant as it was, had been widely anticipated on Wall Street. And by mid-morning some buyers moved in, evidently hoping to pick up stocks at bargain prices.

The market at the same time was busy responding to a proposed government ban on the artificial sweetener saccharin.

It prompted buying in sugar stocks like Holly Sugar, which jumped 2 to 31. Coca-Cola, which said it had an alternate formula for low-calorie soft drinks and would continue producing them, jumped 3 1/2 to 75 1/4.

Sherwin-Williams, the lone U.S. producer of saccharin, was off 1/4 at 35. The company, whose main business is paints and coatings, said saccharin or escaped the terrorists by hiding.

Of the wounded, two were hospitalized overnight, three were treated and released, and three still were being held by the terrorists. The condition of the wounded hostages was not known.

An hour after the first invasion, up to three more gunmen took the Islamic Center on Embassy Row, apparently without violence or injury. They retained 14 hostages, including center director Dr. Abdul Rauf, the city's highest-ranking Moslem.

One of the gunmen told a reporter by telephone that their actions were coordinated with Khaalis' group, and that "heads will roll" unless demands are met.

At 2:30 in the afternoon two more gunmen opened fire on the fifth floor of the District Building, where Mayor Walter Washington and the city council were at work.

They killed Maurice Williams, 24, an employee of WHUR-FM. City Councilman Marion Barry was wounded in the chest by a ricochet bullet, and two security guards were wounded, one critically. A fourth man, identified only as a building guard, lay motionless for hours under the guns of the invaders and was thought to be dead, but rescuers found him alive when they evacuated him. His condition was not known.

President Carter ordered the FBI onto the case in midafternoon, and director Clarence Kelley and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell shuttled to and from police headquarters during the night.

Police said all three groups appeared to be in communication by telephone.

Perkins Sparks North Pitt To Win

BATTLE FOR THE BALL — Players leap to the floor to fight for a loose ball during action in last night's 3-A state tournament game at Durham. North Pitt players are Virgil Pilgreen (31) and Kenneth Roberson (23). Phillips Parker (12) and Johnny Johnson (42) are from Madison-Mayodan. North Pitt won the game, 66-64, to gain the semifinals. DURHAM — North Pitt was able to overcome a tough Madison-Mayodan run-and-jump press in the fourth quarter to take a 66-64 win over the Falcons in the first round of the state 3-A basketball tournament at Durham Senior High School last night.

Panther standout Donnie Perkins shot it out with Madison-Mayodan's Don Hayes for three quarters, but in the end it was North Pitt's team play which enabled them to overcome the Falcons who stayed close behind Hayes' long jumper, but eventually died by it.

The crowd of 2,500 — including several college coaches and scouts — saw the 6-3 Perkins do it all as he scored 24 points and pulled down 20 rebounds. He was 11 for 20 from the field.

Hayes led all scorers with 29 points, most from long-range but his poor shot selection near the end of the contest was costly to his team.

Perkins, who scored only four points in the final quarter of the game, turned over the offensive duties to teammates Virgil Pilgreen and Kenneth Roberson in that period and went to the backboards for some key rebounds. Pilgreen scored eight points in the fourth quarter and Roberson hit five foul shots to allow the Panthers to hold off the Falcons.

North Pitt led by as many as five late in the game, but had some trouble with Madison-Mayodan's hustling defense and an unusual four-point play by Hayes cut the margin to one with 1:34 left.

With nine seconds showing on the clock and North Pitt ahead 63-62, Roberson stepped to the line for a one-and-one. He hit the first one, but the second came bouncing out. Perkins went high over two Falcon players to snatch the rebound down, however, and a few seconds later connected on two foul shots of his own to ice the win.

"We played a pretty good game for a tournament," North Pitt coach Cobby Deans said afterwards. "They (Madison-Mayodan) made a few mistakes there at the end. We're real lucky."

Deans said the turnout of Panther fans helped his team, adding he was "just happy to be here and happy to be coming back."

In addition to Hayes' 29, the Falcons got 11 points from Johnny Johnson and 10 from Donny Cardwell. North Pitt's Pilgreen was the only Panther besides Perkins in double figures with 14.

North Pitt hit 26 of 48 from the field for 54.2 per cent while Madison-Mayodan shot 41.1 per cent. The Panthers also held a 33-28 rebounding edge, but committed 15 turnovers to seven for the Falcons.

To say the game was close in the initial period is an understatement. The teams traded baskets for the entire quarter and the lead changed hands 11 times but North Pitt emerged with a 15-14 lead.

Perkins hit three straight jumpers early in the second quarter as the Panthers moved out to a five-point margin, but Madison-Mayodan tied it up a couple of minutes later at 23 and got a long jumper from Cardwell to take a 25-23 lead.

The Panthers knotted the score again on a shot by Pilgreen, however, and regained the lead on Perkins' long jumper from the right. They went into the locker room at halftime holding a 31-29 edge.

North Pitt stretched its lead to five early in the third period only to see the Falcons again come back to tie the contest at 35. Late in the quarter, the Panthers again moved out to a five-point margin, but Hayes hit a jump shot to cut it to three, 45-42, going into the final period.

The Falcons then took the lead with 5:24 left in the game on a layup by Phillip Parker which made it 50-49.

Larry Spencer hit a jump shot a few seconds later to put North Pitt back on top, however, and Pilgreen followed with two free throws to make it 53-50.

Perkins' baseline jumper from the right with 2:02 left made it 59-54 North Pitt, but a half minute later Hayes went in for a layup and scored and Spencer was called for undercutting, resulting in a two-shot foul. Hayes connected on both for the four-point play and Madison-Mayodan only trailed by one, 59-58, with 1:34 left.

The Panthers then turned the ball over, giving the Falcons a chance to score and go ahead, but they missed on a layup. Jimmy Hardy was then fouled and went to the line for North Pitt. He missed the free throw with 1:19 left, but Perkins grabbed the carom and Pilgreen hit a jumper from the right side to make it 61-58 with 1:05 left.

Hayes came back down the floor and bombed in a 25-footer, but after a missed North Pitt free throw he missed another from the same range and Roberson got the rebound for the Panthers. He got the ball out to Perkins who hit Pilgreen with a long pass for a layup with 24 seconds remaining.

Madison-Mayodan again moved to within one when Johnny Johnson was fouled after pulling down a missed shot. He hit the one-and-one with 10 seconds left.

Roberson was fouled after one second and hit his first charity toss while Perkins came down with the rebound on the second.

Perkins was then fouled and hit his first shot to make it 65-62 with six seconds left. Sensing the game was over, he did a dance which brought the Panther fans out of their seats and then tossed in the second.

Parker hit a follow shot with one second on the clock to make the final 66-64.

North Pitt now advances to the tournament semi-finals on Friday night. They will meet South Stokes 82-71 winner over Pender last night, at 7:00 p.m.

Rebuilding Year For Rampant Baseball Nine

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants open the 1977 baseball season on Friday, traveling to Kinston, and Coach Ronald Vincent dubs the season as one of rebuilding.

"We're going to be young and inexperienced," he said. "On paper, this is probably the weakest team we've had since I've been here."

Vincent said the prospect is due to the lack of experience on the team and the small amount of seniors to provide leadership. There are only six seniors on the team and at times only three of them will be playing.

"Our pitching has got to come through for us to be a challenger in the conference," Vincent said. "We've got a great attitude, however, and this should help us."

Henry Baker is the only experienced pitcher on the team, and Vincent will look for him to start one a week. Jeff Aldridge will probably get the call on the alternate games, with Danny Hester, who saw a little action last year, and Perry Worthington also seeing a lot of action. "Mike Williams can also help us a lot as his control improves," the coach said.

"Hitting has been the big surprise so far," Vincent said. "We've hit well in our scrimmages and in batting practice. Wright Hooks has to hit well and be our leader. But we're also getting good hitting from Mike Shank and John Coffman."

Vincent looks to the defense to be the team's strong point. "Our infield will be real strong, and if the pitchers can hold on, we could have a real surprise season."

While not counting the Rampants out of the conference race, Vincent looks to Northern Nash to be the class of the league. "They won it last year, and they only lost one starter. Bertie will also be strong, and Rocky Mount and Wilson are always tough."

If Rose matures early, however, the Rampants could definitely figure into the race.

Vincent is moving Hooks from third to the job behind the plate this year. Bobby Woronoff and Gary Allen will be the chief backups.

Around the infield, the Rampants will have Mark Conway at first, Ronnie Chapman at second, Greg Lee at short, and Reggie Spain at third. "It's a good, quick infield, with good arms," Vincent said. But there is a lack of experience. Lee was a starter most of the year, and Conway saw just enough action to letter. The rest are newcomers.

Coffman, who started some, will be in left field, with Shank in center and Aldridge in right, when not pitching. Joey Downing or Lance Worthington will act as backup men, with Joey Mattheis the infield utility man.

Rose will also field a "B" team this year, and Vincent said that this will be a vast help in the future. "We'll have our sophomores playing instead of sitting around." A total of 23 people were kept on the two teams, and Vincent said that some of the people on the "B" unit will see some varsity action from time to time.

"But we're definitely in a rebuilding year," Vincent said. "A lot will depend on how quickly we mature and how fast our pitching comes along. If we can win 10 or 15 games this year, then they better watch out for us next year."

LaGarde Still Uncertain, But Davis Will Be On The Sidelines

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina center Tom LaGarde said Wednesday night his injured left knee felt normal after a mile-long running workout, but his status for Saturday's NCAA East Regional game against Purdue was uncertain.

The 6-foot-10 senior missed the Tar Heels' last eight games after spraining the knee in a practice session.

"If it was up to him, Tommy would have played last Saturday (against Virginia)," Coach Dean Smith said. "Every player wants to come back before he's ready."

LaGarde had been on crutches until Monday and a doctor would decide whether LaGarde would be able to play Saturday, Smith said.

LaGarde said he had not tried making any sudden moves and exerting extra pressure on the knee, but had been lifting weights with his leg and receiving heat treatments.

The Tar Heels held their first workout Wednesday night since defeating Virginia 75-69 Saturday for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship, but LaGarde did not join the rest of the team.

He and All-ACC forward Walter Davis, whose right hand was heavily bandaged due to a fractured index finger, were on the sidelines as their teammates ran through defensive drills.

LaGarde shot in solitude at a spare basket while Davis jogged along the sideline.

However, each player stopped in silence whenever Smith's whistle sounded and gave careful attention to the coach's every remark.

"Without Walt and Tommy, you'd think we'd be hurting," senior guard John Kuester said earlier Wednesday. "But that's the amazing part of this team. We just all pull together."

Davis was expected to play in the tournament's second round at College Park, Md., providing the Tar Heels defeated Purdue.

"The doctors said I could play. They gave me some exercises to do and there's a lot more flexibility in the joint than they expected," Davis said.

However, Kuester said the team was preparing for the tournament with the assumption that neither starter would be able to play.

"You have to more or less figure we won't have either one of them," he said, adding that the more experienced players would bear the burden of preparing the freshmen for the tournament.

Anthony Roberts Scores 65 As His Team Beaten In The NIT

By The Associated Press
"Sixty-five points don't mean a thing because we lost," said points by George Mikan in 1945.

In other NIT opening-round games, Virginia Tech beat Georgetown 83-79, Villanova defeated Old Dominion 71-68 in overtime and Houston edged Indiana State 83-82.

Virginia Tech rallied from a 40-37 intermission deficit against Georgetown, and along with the other winners, earned a berth in next week's NIT quarter-finals at Madison Square Garden, against the winner of tonight's Alabama-Memphis State game. Virginia Tech won the NIT title in 1973.

Villanova trailed Old Dominion's Monarchs for most of the game before inching ahead late in the second half. The score was tied 65-65 at the end of regulation.

Houston's victory lifted the Cougars into the quarter-finals against Illinois State, which defeated Creighton 65-58 Tuesday night.

Oregon's Ernie Kent, one of four players assigned to defense Anthony Roberts, shouted "Unbelievable!" as he watched the Titans' star continually fire the ball through the basket.

Oregon took the lead after a 40-40 halftime tie as forward Greg Ballard scored 43 points, helping offset Roberts' one-man show.

In the Virginia Tech-Georgetown game, the Gobblers grabbed the lead on a layup by Marshall Ashford with 14:04 remaining. A drive by Ron Bell and two free throws by Phil Thieneman built the margin to 55-50.

Ashford hit 16 of his 24 points in the second half. Georgetown got a game-high 28 points from Derrick Johnson. The Hoyas twice closed the gap to two points in the final three minutes.

Villanova, 21-9, trailed by as many as 11 points against the Monarchs but pulled even on a field goal by Whitey Rigby with 4:53 to go. A 20-footer by Old Dominion's Jeff Fuhrmann with 1:05 left forced the game into overtime.

In the extra period, Larry Herron's two free throws with 3:45 remaining clinched the victory for the Wildcats.

Houston led by as many as 10 points in the second half against Indiana State but the Sycamores outscored the Cougars 12-2 over a late three-minute span.

With one minute left, Indiana State's Larry Bird tied the score 82-82. With 37 seconds remaining, though, the Sycamores' Dan Rutledge fouled Mike Schultz, who made his first shot but missed the second. Bird got the ball under the basket but his jump shot bounced off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

Houston goes to the quarter-finals 27-7.

In other college basketball action, the University of North Carolina-Charlotte edged New Orleans 71-70 for the championship in the first Sun Belt Tournament. Jacksonville, N.C., rolled over Georgia State 102-72 in the consolation game.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has long been considered one of the best, if not THE best, college basketball conferences in the nation. Few would argue the league perennially sports good teams from top to bottom and it is nearly impossible for one school to go through a conference season undefeated.

In addition, ACC teams usually win many more than their fair share of games against outside competition. This year, the conference had the best record in the nation against outside teams, 77-15.

As always, however, when someone is at the top, the critics emerge. One of the most notable critics of the ACC's reputation recently has been Michigan coach Johnny Orr. The coach of the top-ranked Wolverines has often said the ACC gets all the publicity while other leagues, like his own Big 10, are just as good.

He has a point that a couple of the Big 10 teams can compete with anyone. Michigan and Indiana, another Big 10 school, both made it to the NCAA championship game last year.

The Southeastern Conference is another league which, this year, has outshined even the ACC. Three Southeastern schools are in the top 20, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama. While the ACC has had three teams among the nation's elite at some time this year, only North Carolina and Wake Forest are currently listed.

Some have also argued that the ACC is not as strong as it is reputed to be because only one team, North Carolina State, has brought a national championship to the league in the past 15 years.

These arguments all have some validity, but the real strength in the Atlantic Coast Conference lies in its overall balance. True, only two teams from the ACC are now in the top 20, but three others, Clemson, Maryland and N. C. State, have been ranked at one time or another this year. It's doubtful any other loop could make that claim.

And the teams that didn't receive national recognition were not too far behind those who did. Virginia proved that this year, and last, in the ACC tournament.

Rivalries and jealousies will always occur in sports, they're part of the attraction of athletics, but proving that one conference is any better than another is probably impossible, no matter how much Orr may try.

North Carolina guard Phil Ford was also the subject of some Orr commentary this week. The Michigan coach, not known for his quite demeanor, said the thing he liked best about Wolverine guard Ricky Greene being named to the UPI all-America team was that he made the first team over Ford, who was named to the second team in the UPI voting.

Orr said the people at Michigan were hurt when Ford was chosen to the U. S. Olympic team over Greene last summer. "We didn't think that was right," Orr said. "We were going to prove that he deserved to be on that team. We had that as one of our goals right from the beginning of the season."

It may be all right for Orr to criticize the fact that his conference is not getting enough publicity, but to carry this vindication to the point of attacking an individual player on another team is taking things a bit too far.

North Pitt forward Donnie Perkins, considered one of the top college prospects in the state this year, certainly did nothing to hurt that reputation last night.

Playing in the state 3-A tournament before a host of college coaches and scouts, the 6-3 senior hit 11 of 20 shots from the field and came down with 14 rebounds, as well as playing excellent defense, which included a couple of blocked shots.

The most spectacular play of the game was Perkins leading a two-on-one fast break. Dribbling down the right side, he faked a pass, went behind the defensive man and took the ball in for a dunk.

Perkins is already being looked at by about 20 colleges, including all the "Big Four" schools and East Carolina University. If he continues to perform as he did last night, he should be able to write his own ticket.

Erving Lost Only The Battle

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The red, white and blue ball and the three-point basket are things of the past, but the American Basketball Association lives on.

Julius Erving squared off against David Thompson Wednesday night in a matchup of two of the old ABA's brightest stars. Erving lost the battle 40-38, but he won the war.

Erving's Philadelphia 76ers trimmed Thompson's Denver Nuggets 129-125 in a double overtime thriller between two of the National Basketball Association's strongest clubs. And Erving said the victory might have given Denver something to think about.

"They're definitely one of the best clubs in the league, but they've got to respect us because we've beaten them three out of four," said Erving, who sent the game into overtime by scoring on a bank shot, a dunk and two free throws in the final 70 seconds of regulation play, wiping out a six-point Denver lead.

Philadelphia took the lead for good on a jumper by Doug Collins with 2:42 to go in the second overtime. A jumper by Thompson that would have tied the score with 15 seconds left bounced off the rim.

Erving's 38 points were his season's high, while Thompson's 40 tied his top output of the season.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, the Seattle SuperSonics routed the Boston Celtics 114-86, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Washington Bullets 109-107 and the Houston Rockets beat the Phoenix Suns 105-100.

The 76ers, playing before a near-sellout crowd of 18,021 at the Spectrum in Philadelphia, fell behind 60-46 at halftime.

"When we came into the dressing room," said Philadelphia's George McGinnis, "Coach Gene Shue told us all off — and quite deservedly, because we were not playing well."

The 76ers responded by outscoring Denver 33-19 in the third period, then pulled it out in the second overtime.

McGinnis had 24 points, Collins 21 and Steve Mix 17 for the 76ers, while Mack Calvin and Bobby Jones had 18 apiece for Denver.

Sonics 114, Celtics 86
Slick Watts had 26 points as the Sonics took the lead early and held it the rest of the way. Boston's Sidney Wicks, meanwhile, reached the 1,000-point mark for the sixth consecutive season with a third-period basket.

Bucks 109, Bullets 107
The Bucks led by 10 points midway through the second half, then held off a late Washington rally. Bob Dandridge led the way for Milwaukee by scoring 20 of his game-high 26 points in the second half, including a clinching basket with 22 seconds left.

Rockets 105, Suns 100
Rudy Tomjanovich scored 21 of his 32 points in the first half as Houston took a 49-43 lead, then the Rockets hit on 70 per cent of their shots in the third quarter, boosting the lead to 14 points. Moses Malone grabbed 20 rebounds as Houston handed injury riddled Phoenix its fifth straight loss.

Japan To Televis

MOSCOW (AP) — Japan's N.E.T. television company has signed an agreement to televise the 1980 Moscow Olympics in Japan, the Tass news agency said late Wednesday.

The agreement, signed with Moscow's "Olympics-80" Organizing Committee, also includes radio broadcast rights, Tass said. It requires formal approval by the International Olympic Committee.

The agreement came just over a month after the signing by NBC of rights to exclusive United States television broadcasting of the Games for a reported $85 million. Terms with the Japan N.E.T. were not announced.

Charlotte Wins Tournament By 71-70

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina at Charlotte basketball coach Lee Rose, having sweated through two nights of close wins in the Sun Belt Conference tournament, acknowledged that it had not been easy to motivate the 18th ranked 49ers for the tournament.

"I tried," Rose said after his team nosed New Orleans, 71-70, for the championship of the inaugural conference tournament.

The 49ers suffered from a case of looking ahead to their spot in the opening round of the NCAA playoffs.

"To get the team up for the first ball game was really hard," Rose said, referring to a semifinal win over Jacksonville Tuesday night.

"The second ball game was different — we were playing for the championship."

There was a question of who was going to get the tournament crown until UNCC center Cedric Maxwell, who scored 22 points despite playing with four fouls through most of the second half, hit a foul shot to give the 49ers a 69-66 lead with 2:20 left.

Jacksonville routed Georgia State, 102-72, in the consolation round.

The 49ers had to play without forward Lew Massey, a 20-point man who sat out the game to let an injured ankle heal for the NCAA playoffs.

And UNCC encountered an awesome performance by Privateers' 6-foot-10 center Wayne Cooper, who was the game's high man with 25 points.

Rose said there was little he could say about Cooper. "He said enough with his stats," the 49er coach said.

"You can't ask anymore than that the players give their hardest effort and they did," New Orleans Coach Ron Greene said.

A crowd of 9,506, heavily favoring the hometown 49ers, saw UNCC have to struggle for a 38-38 halftime score on a last second shot by guard Jeff Gruber.

But Greene was not taking anything away from the 49ers.

"I haven't seen Massey, but obviously with him in there they could play with anybody," he said.

In the consolation game, Jacksonville rolled to an 18-point halftime lead and exercised a height advantage over Georgia State to up the margin to 30 in the second half.

The Dolphins played 13 men, with four of them scoring in double figures. Forward Felton Young had 16 points.

Panther guard George Pendleton was high man for the game with 19 points.

Maxwell was named outstanding tournament player by writers and broadcasters covering the tournament. Joining him on the all-tournament team were guard Chad Kinch and Melvin Watkins, also of UNCC; New Orleans' Cooper; and Jacksonville guard Kent Glover, who scored 18 points against Georgia State.

Olga Has Her Wedding Gown

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Russian gymnast Olga Korbut, television darling of the 1972 Olympics, purchased a wedding gown last December in St. Louis while on a tour with the Soviet team. She wouldn't reveal the name of her fiancé or the wedding date.

An interpreter indicated there is a Russian superstition about discussing wedding plans and that's why Olga wouldn't talk about them.

Diabetics May Be Allowed Saccharin

By WAREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Diabetics and others who can't eat

sugar might be able to get saccharin as a prescription drug after the proposed federal ban on the artificial sweetener goes into effect.

The Food and Drug Administration announced the ban on saccharin Wednesday, citing a Canadian study that found large doses of the sweetener caused cancer in laboratory rats.

Canada simultaneously banned saccharin.

The FEA said it would take at least 120 days to put the ban into effect, but it called on manufacturers "to discontinue use of saccharin as soon as possible."

In announcing the ban, the FDA said it would consider allowing some limited use of saccharin to continue because no substitutes for it would be available in the near future.

But Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner said any decision on the prescription approach was still months away. Canada said those on restricted diets will be able to buy pure saccharin only in drug stores after Sept. 1.

Diet soft drinks account for three-quarters of the five million pounds of saccharin used yearly in the United States. A spokesman for the National Soft Drink Association said the industry would try to develop new low-calorie beverages without saccharin.

The Coca-Cola Co. said it regretted the FDA's action, but would comply with the request to discontinue saccharin use as soon as possible.

"We will have reformulated low calorie drinks ready for the market" before the FDA ban takes effect, Coke executive vice president Charles W. Adams said in a statement from Coke's Atlanta headquarters.

The Canadian study showed that the sweetener caused bladder cancers in rats fed a diet of 5 per cent pure saccharin for their entire lives. To consume an equivalent amount of saccharin, a human would have to drink 800 12-ounce diet sodas a day for a lifetime, Gardner said.

Gardner said that while he could not assess the economic impact of the decision, it would be "substantial, no question about it."

While diet food industry spokesmen disagreed with the FDA over the scientific evidence, they agreed with the economic assessment.

The ban "will kick the legs from under us," said William L. Brooks, 7-Up bottling plant manager in Reno, Nev.

"Any call for a ban of saccharin is an outrageous and harmful action," said Marvin Eisenstadt, executive vice president of Cumberland Packing Co. of Brooklyn, N.Y., which uses saccharin in its Sweet 'N Low, the leading table top sweetener.

He charged that the action was based upon "flimsy scientific evidence" and goes against more than 30 other health tests since 1970 that cleared saccharin of possible harm.

Under the FDA order, it will take the agency 30 days to draft and publish the ban. After allowing 60 days for comments from interested parties, the agency will take another 30 days to finalize the rule.

This means the ban could not take effect until July at the earliest.

New Variety Of Wheat Readied

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station here has developed a new wheat variety moderately resistant to the wheat streak mosaic virus and a new high-yielding barley variety.

The new wheat, named Rall, was bred specifically for the Oklahoma Panhandle and Western counties where this virus has been a major problem for growers.

The new barley variety, named Post, has outyielded two of the major varieties used in most of this state. It is named for the Oklahoma aviator Wiley Post.

Two Fine Shows Are 'Competing'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Superior-show fans may grumble tonight, CBS has a fine two-hour drama, "A Circle of Children," competing with an excellent hour of Cole Porter's music on ABC. Take your pick.

The CBS show starts at 9 p.m. EST, concerns a school of emotionally disturbed youngsters and stars Jane Alexander, the Oscar nominee who also appears Sunday as Eleanor Roosevelt in an ABC drama. In "Circle" she plays an affluent suburbanite who with her Women's League club visits the school on a do-gooder's tour. The visitors are warned not to respond to the children. She violates the warning, innocently winks at one emotionally troubled child in the arms of Helga, a seemingly stern, no-nonsense German-born instructor. Pandemonium breaks out among the kids. Asked to leave by a thirtyish male instructor (David Ogden Stiers), the visitors flee. But Miss Alexander, moved by what she's seen, returns to apologize for the trouble she's caused. After a scene in which it's made clear she faces life alone — her marriage is dying and her only child, a daughter, is in college — she returns to the school, asking to work as an unpaid teacher's aide.

And the lady, holder of a master's degree in sociology, is assigned to work with Helga (Rachel Roberts), a woman of little formal education but brilliant instincts for effectively helping her young charges.

Miss Roberts makes no bones about distrusting volunteers. At one point, she accuses her new aide of wanting to work with the disturbed kids "so they can solve your problems, not you solve theirs."

But Miss Alexander nonetheless plows nervously ahead, learning by trial and error and with Helga's gradual acceptance how best to help the autistic, schizoid or brain-damaged kids at the school.

Amid all this, there's a gentle, unobtrusive subplot about her relationship with Stiers, cast as a bachelor who's never been married and fears the commitment of marriage.

The show, written by Steven Gethers, is fairly well-paced, although it occasionally seems to depict too rosy a view of the progress the adult teachers make with the emotionally disturbed kids.

Two great singers, Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, are doing the honors in ABC's Cole Porter musical, which starts at 10 p.m. They and visitors Bob Hope and Ethel Merman make it a dandy salute to the Broadway tunesmith.

It's a crisp, imaginative hour. But if you can spare a few moments for it, tune in about 15 minutes after it begins and watch a group called the Swingle Singers do "Just One of Those Things."

Live Shell Was A 'Toy'

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Wilmington police Wednesday detonated a military shell which was found by children in the third day of such discoveries across the state.

Police Capt. W.M. Lewis said the 40-millimeter shell was found by children in a wooded area and could have exploded if the children had dropped it.

The shell was detonated at an old city landfill by police department explosives experts. Lewis said the children took it to a woman who later brought it to police.

At Fayetteville, Ricky Bryant, 13, of Rt. 1, Parkton, was in satisfactory condition after being injured Tuesday when one of seven military shells he and relative were playing with exploded.

Ronald Cummings, 17, of Rt. 1, Hope Mills was not seriously injured and was not taken to the hospital.

A third child who was injured Monday was in guarded condition at Cape Fear Valley Hospital. James McNeil, 13, of Fayetteville was playing with a 40-millimeter shell when it exploded.

Fast-Draw Champ In New Field

BY GARY PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
RENO, Nev. (AP) — Old fast draw champs never die, they just hang up their guns and make custom belt buckles to be sold in the United States, Japan, Yugoslavia and Canada. That's what Robert W. "Bill" Boyd, once called "Fastest Gun Alive," is doing these days. He sells his fancy buckles around the world, and finds time to make some up for Hollywood movie stars.

Like his fast draw career, Boyd just fell into the buckle-making business and turned it into a money-maker. His Reno shop specializes in buckles, but does silver and gold inlay work on rifles, pistols, spurs and you name it. If you've got the money, Boyd has the product you want.

He said persons around the globe are fascinated with the western movies still being shown on television, and provide an increasing market for his products.

His buckles sell from $75 to $6,500, the latter being a huge job with four $20 gold pieces and an opal. His specialty is setting gold and silver coins in fancy arrangements for buckles or bracelets, but he wouldn't mind plating your hunting rifle with gold or silver. He just finished a pair of silver overlay spurs for actor Jack Mahoney.

Boyd, 44, hung up his guns in 1966, but before that perfected the fast-draw to an art. He appeared on a number of television shows and in exhibitions around the country to demonstrate his skills. He used the "thumbing" method to cock his Colt .44 and said he was one of only a few persons who could do it proficiently.

"Things started to change in the fast draw competition. People started fanning (with the palm) and putting spurs on the hammer, so I just decided it was time to get out."

He gunned down actor Clint Eastwood a couple of times in Las Vegas, and set some impressive records for speed, but decided to get into another line of work: the coin business.

"I wanted to start setting my coins in buckles and found out no one really did that kind of work, so I hired some craftsmen and started my own operation," he said.

"I met a lot of people in my fast draw days who now are coming to me for special items. It's a growing business," he added.

Boyd worked in movies as a child in California, has been a model, worked as a master of ceremonies on a television show in the east and more.

Just recently he was named an honorary ambassador to Virginia City, the famous mining town near Reno, not far from where he first took his Colt .44 into the desert and just began practicing.

"I still don't know why I did that, but look what it led to," he said.

Chavis Hope Is 'Pressure'

MCCAIN, N.C. (AP) — The Wilmington 10 will be freed from prison because of public pressure, not on account of court action, predicted the group's leader Wednesday.

"The grand jury is meeting today because of public pressure, not because some judge all of a sudden decided there should be an investigation of the case," said the Rev. Ben Chavis in an interview with The Fayetteville Times.

All residents and taxpayers of Winterville and the surrounding area and all other interested persons are invited to attend said hearing. This 7 day of March, 1977. Etwood Nobles Town Clerk. March 10 & 17, 1977

As Chavis spoke, a federal grand jury met in Raleigh to investigate allegations of impropriety in the 1972 trial of ten defendants who were later sentenced to long prison terms in connection with the fire-bombing of a Wilmington grocery during racial strife there.

Chavis, who is serving his sentence at the McCain Prison Unit, said a gross inequity exists in the judicial system "when a defendant has to depend on publicity or public pressure to bring justice."

Despite those harsh words, the ordained United Church of Christ minister said he holds no personal grudge against Jay Stroud, the man who prosecuted the case.

"I've already forgiven Stroud and all of them for what they've done to us," he said. But he remains firm in his belief that Stroud coerced three witnesses to testify against him and the others.

"The state has charged us with conspiracy while actually the state, through Jay Stroud, was conspiring against us. And when public officials break the law, then there's no justice for anybody," he said.

The three witnesses have recanted their trial testimony. Stroud, a former assistant district attorney, has maintained his innocence of those charges and contended Wednesday that federal attorneys are trying to implicate him in a conspiracy against Chavis.

Barkeeps, Beauticians Grooming For Therapy

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Got a problem? Don't know where to turn? See a Fargo bartender or hairdresser. They may offer you more than booze and beauty and tell you where you can get help.

Some area bartenders and beauticians — daily recipients of woe and worry from troubled customers — are being groomed to help patrons find ways to deal with life's challenges.

Workshops for barkeeps and beauticians are being held because they "are in unique professions to promote mental health and prevent mental illness," says Lois Quam, publicity director for the Cass County Mental Health Association, a workshop cosponsor.

"Patrons have found that bartenders are willing listeners who don't make damning judgments when they hear of a person's problems," she says.

Seventy beauty college students recently completed a workshop, called "Shampoo, Set and Sympathy," to help guide women who don't know where to turn with their troubles.

"What we're trying to do is train them to be good listeners, and to recognize people in trouble and inform them as to where mental health resources are available" in such problem areas as family, job and alcoholism, says Mrs. Quam. "This is for anybody with problems."

Workshops consist in part of role playing so that participants might learn how to react to a client who, for example, suddenly cries because of a heavy burden, she says.

Mrs. Quam says workshops also stress that troubled people are usually reluctant to seek professional help because they feel it carries a stigma, but will readily confide in a bartender or beautician.

Dr. Will Wells, director of the alcohol program at the Southeast Mental Health and Retardation Center, a cosponsor of the workshops, giving the barkeep an opening to respond with helpful suggestions about professional help.

Sooner or later, most everyone wants to talk to the bartender, and familiarity with him breeds some degree of comfort, says Dr. Wells. "With comfort comes openness."

But whether a troubled drinker will respond to the bartender's advice isn't known, Wells says. "We encourage bartenders to call us and tell if he's making a referral."

Bar owner Kenneth Habinger, 44, Casselton, is one of the workshop speakers.

"I'm sure almost every bartender on occasion has had a chance to help somebody out when they have a tough situation to face," says Habinger. "The main thing to remember is that a bartender is not a psychiatrist. He should just try to refer customers to the proper people who will help them."

Reorganizes N.C. Dept.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A reorganization within the state Department of Human Resources, which will include a cut in personnel, was announced Wednesday by Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of human resources.

Included among the changes will be a dismantling of the Office of Children and the creation of two new assistant secretary posts.

The reorganization will be phased in over the next few months, she said.

An overall personnel reduction of 8 per cent or about 16 positions will result from the consolidation or shifts in functions.

The new assistant secretaries will handle children and problem users of alcohol and drugs. Responsibility for the massive Title 20 program which this year brought some $63 million in special federal welfare funds into the state will be moved from the Division of Social Services to a new Plans and Operations Division. An estimated 30 regional positions in the 36-employee Office for Children will be eliminated to remove "conflicting and duplicative functions," said Gene Barrett, an assistant to Dr. Morrow.

Volunteers Are Termed The Key

Volunteers are a vital part of the Easter Seal Society, according to Ted Kershaw, Executive State Director who spoke at the Northeast Chapter Board meeting in Greenville Tuesday night.

Kershaw cited the expanding responsibilities of volunteers to include public relations for the Society, increased self-organization among volunteers, and a greater coordination between employed staff and volunteers.

According to Susan Clark, Executive Director of the Northeast Chapter the commitment of the volunteers makes the organization possible.

"Without a strong and well organized volunteer commitment, the amount of money and service returned to patients and clients would not be as high as it is," Ms. Clark said.

She said that 75 per cent of the money collected in each county is returned to that county in direct patient service.

Current fund raising activities were also for the handicapped were mentioned and Ms. Clark said that arrangements are being made to obtain sponsors for campers who cannot meet the financial costs of the camps. Any person or organization wishing to sponsor a child or adult for summer camp should contact the Easter Seal Society office in Greenville at 758-3230.

Guests at the meeting were Bill Kisman, Ted Kershaw, Shirley and Hester Latham.

NATURE'S ARTISTIC SIDE — Mud, left baking in the sun by receding water at Pardee Reservoir near Jackson, Calif., craked into surrealistic patterns as the Northern California drought continues. The reservoir, apparently 103 feet below normal for this time of year, supplies the San Francisco East Bay Municipal Utility District with the much-needed water. (AP Wirephoto)

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Human Rights Body 'Condemns' Chili, Not Uganda

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The U.N. Human Rights Commission, with U.S. support, has condemned repression by Chile's military junta, but the 32-nation panel rebuffed a British bid for public debate of mass murder charged to President Idi Amin in Uganda.

The United States voted for the anti-Chilean resolution Wednesday although the Carter administration repudiated the admission by its representative at the meeting that the U.S. government had a part in the "subversion" of the elected Marxist government overthrown by the junta.

The resolution denounced "constant and flagrant violations of human rights" in Chile and was adopted by a 26-1 vote. Uruguay cast the negative vote, while Jordan and four Latin-American nations — Peru, Panama, Costa Rica and Ecuador — abstained.

The United States during the Nixon and Ford administrations abstained on similar resolutions critical of the Chilean junta, but this time it was among the sponsors of the resolution, along with the Soviet Union and Cuba. The change presumably reflected President Carter's stated concern for human rights throughout the world.

By a vote of 17-8, the human rights body also adopted a Cuban motion to take up in private session a British resolution calling for an inquiry by the commission into the human rights situation in Uganda. As usual, the Africans and Soviet Bloc members voted together and were expected to kill the British resolution if it ever comes to a vote. The United States, Canada, Britain, West Germany, Sweden, Italy, Uruguay and Costa Rica voted against the secret debate.

Washington, meanwhile, called U.S. delegate Brady Tyson home for having expressed to the commission on Tuesday "profoundest regrets for the role some (U.S.) government officials, agencies and private groups played in the subversion" of the Chilean regime of Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973.

Carter told a news conference Wednesday that Tyson's remarks were "inappropriate," and Tyson said he "exceeded instructions." But the President said he was determined to fight for human rights in other countries, and "Chile may be one of them."

A U.S. Senate committee reported in 1975 after an investigation that it found no direct coup, but it said the United States tried to foment a coup in 1970 to keep Allende from taking office. Carter during his campaign for the presidency last fall charged that the Republican administration "overthrew an elected government and helped establish a military dictatorship" in Chile.
