Gunmen End 2-Day Reign Of Terror In Washington

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A band of 12 Hanafi Moslem gunmen surrendered early today and ended a two-day reign of terror in the nation's capital. As part of the agreement, which freed their 134 hostages without further harm, the terrorist leader was released without bail.

Before Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis and his followers surrendered, the terrorist leader threatened repeatedly during the confrontation to cut off the heads of his hostages if his demands for revenge against Black Muslim leaders were not met.

The speed with which Abdul Khaalis was brought to court for arraignment and subsequently set free enabled the terrorist to reach his home in northwest Washington at about the same time many of his captives reached theirs.

"See you later," he said to newsmen as he was escorted up the walk toward the stone house with barred windows. Two men carrying long curved swords stood guard in the front yard.

The Egyptian ambassador said he and his diplomatic colleagues set the stage for surrender by reading from the Koran "songs of compassion, forgiveness, understanding — the things our Lord orders us to do."

Superior Court Chief Judge Harold Greene, in ordering Abdul Khaalis freed on his own recognizance, said, "The court is mindful of the events in this city of the last three days. Nevertheless, the safety and release of the hostages depended on the release of the defendant."

The judge said he was following the recommendation of U.S. Atty. Earl Silbert in releasing Abdul Khaalis.

Abdul Khaalis and his 11 followers, who held the hostages in three buildings, were charged with kidnaping while armed.

Greene set the following conditions for Abdul Khaalis' release: He may not keep or possess firearms; he must remain in Washington and he is barred from discussing the case before trial.

The judge asked the terrorist leader if he understood the conditions of his release.

"Yes, I do," Abdul Khaalis replied in a barely audible voice. In his court appearance, the terrorist's meek demeanor contrasted sharply with the fear he had generated while holding hostages and issuing threats in a deep, booming voice.

The 12 heavily armed terrorists struck at midday Wednesday and occupied three buildings, including city hall.

The hostages, captives for up to 38 hours, were examined at George Washington University Hospital, where a doctor said none required admittance. Most were quickly reunited with relatives.

One young woman held hostage in the B'nai B'rith building where Abdul Khaalis made his headquarters told how she and other captives were ordered to lie in neat rows on their stomachs and touch the toes of the person in front.

"I thought we were gonna be executed," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "Waiting was agony."

As their ordeal dragged on, she said their captors grew more sympathetic.

"They were not kind," she said. "But they were sympathetic to everyone's needs ..."

Bernard Simon, spokesman for B'nai B'rith, said that at one point, one man was picked out from the hostages, bound hand and foot, and was told he would be the first to be beheaded. He said the man was not harmed.

"They alternately threatened us and were kind to us," he said.

San Francisco Assistant Named ECU Cage Coach

NEW COACH NAMED . . . East Carolina University named Larry Gillman, an assistant from San Francisco, as its new head basketball coach today. From left to right are Troy Pate, chairman of the Board of Trustees; Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, Gillman, and Athletic Director Bill Cain. Gillman will take over as soon as San Francisco, ranked number one for most of the year, completes its season. The Dons open NCAA play Saturday. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Larry Gillman, an assistant coach at the University of San Francisco, was named this morning as the new head basketball coach at East Carolina University.

The announcement came after a search committee recommended Gillman to East Carolina chancellor Leo Jenkins, and the Board of Trustees gave approval.

Gillman, 28, replaces Dave Patton, who resigned earlier after serving three years as head coach of the Pirates.

For Gillman, the job will be the first head position he has held. He has held assistant jobs both at San Francisco and the University of Minnesota. He also has coached on the high school and college levels in graduate assistant and assistant roles.

Dr. Jenkins, in making the announcement of Gillman's hiring said, "This young man brings an outstanding record of achievements with basketball programs that are nationally known for their excellence. The choice was a unanimous decision by the (search) committee and he was selected from a list of highly outstanding prospects across the nation."

"We are confident that he will bring success to the basketball program at East Carolina University and add great strength to the overall athletic programs at the university."

A native of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Gillman attended Tuckahoe (NY) high school, where he was an All-County selection. He played basketball for a year-and-a-half at Pace University before an ankle injury ended his career.

While still an undergraduate, Gillman served as an assistant at Mt. Vernon High School, where the team twice won New York State titles, a feat never accomplished by any New York team before then or since.

From there, he went to West Chester Community College as an assistant coach, where the team put together a 35-3 record and were Mid-Hudson Champions.

He then served as a graduate assistant at the University of Houston, prior to moving on to San Francisco as an assistant coach.

He left there two years ago to serve as an assistant coach at the University of Minnesota on the first staff recruited after the scandal there that cleared out the staff. The Minnesota team that year won 16 games and this year was the Big Ten runner-up.

At the start of the present season, Gillman returned to San Francisco as an assistant.

He was to fly back to Tucson, Ariz., this afternoon to join San Francisco as it opened its quest for the NCAA championship against Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday. He will return to Greenville to take over the reigns of the Pirate program when the Dons end their season.

Gillman and his family will return here then to begin work with East Carolina. "I plan to have an aggressive team both on offense and defense. We will have colorful team, and I think the people of this area will enjoy watching them play."

KINSHASHA, Zaire (AP) — President Mobutu Sese Seko's government said today its forces had recaptured two towns from an invading "army of mercenaries" from Angola.

Officials said a battalion of Zaire troops had taken the small towns of Divuma and Kasaji in Shaba Province, Zaire's richest, and were moving toward the captured towns of Dilolo, Kapanga and Kisengi.

U.S. Embassy officials in Kinshasha said the mercenaries in Kapanga were holding eight American Methodist missionaries under house arrest — one more than had previously been reported by the U.S. Department of State.

Shaba Province was known as Katanga before Mobutu Africanized names in the former Belgian Congo. It is Zaire's southernmost province and the center of the country's big copper industry. The invasion, however, took place in an area of cattle ranches and farms.

Diplomatic sources in Kinshasha said they knew of no actual fighting between the two sides. The two towns listed as recaptured had not been mentioned previously as occupied by the invaders.

The Zaire government said several columns of troops "in the pay of the Angolan government" had advanced 50 to 100 miles into southern Zaire, moving into the westernmost part of Shaba Province.

Kapanga, where the missionaries were being held, is about 1,200 miles from the Zaire capital. Dilolo is a key railroad center for copper shipping and the most strategically important of the towns reported captured by the invaders. (Kinshasha is a mining center. In Washington, the State Department said seven missionaries had been captured and Dr. Juel Norby, executive secretary of the United Methodist Church in Africa, said they worked at a medical station. He said they had sent radio messages indicating they were all right.)

Mandatory Limit On Heating Lifted

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt today lifted mandatory limits on heating hours for retail businesses, saying warmer weather and improved fuel supplies have eliminated the need for such controls.

Hunt warned, however, that the energy crisis will continue and issued a list of guidelines for citizens to save energy that includes a recommendation that men dress cooler in summer months by discarding ties when possible.

"The most important thing we must do in the weeks and months ahead is to save gasoline," Hunt said. "I'm instructing the state highway patrol to strictly enforce the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit. It's the only way we can avoid another gasoline shortage."

The mandatory controls on heating put into effect earlier this year had limited businesses to 48 hours of heat per week.

Hunt's conservation guidelines include restricting the use of air conditioning, installation of storm windows and doors in homes and greater use of insulation.

The governor said he also is studying legislative proposals "designed to help make conservation a way of life in North Carolina. Among those legislative proposals are a tax credit for installing insulation, heat pumps or solar energy systems. It also includes a higher registration fee for new cars that get low gas mileage and stronger enforcement of energy related building code standards.

Hunt recommended that air conditioners be set at 78 degrees during the daytime and 85 degrees at night. He also encouraged the use of fans instead of air conditioners, and recommended that citizens wear cooler clothing during the summer months.

"For instance, the elimination of ties except when required adds a great deal of comfort," he said.

Hunt said he believes the energy crisis of recent months has not had a large economic impact on the state. "I think our efforts to deal with it have been successful," he said.

Find 150 'Reye' Cases

ATLANTA (AP) — An influenza surveillance program has found about 150 cases of suspected Reye syndrome throughout the United States since Jan. 1, the national Center for Disease Control reported today.

This is the largest number of cases since 1973-74 when 379 cases were reported, the CDC said.

Although all of the 152 cases reported were not confirmed in the laboratory as Reye syndrome, the CDC said researchers suspect that are.

The current cases, as well as the 1973-74 outbreak, are associated with Influenza B, which now appears to be on the wane, the CDC said.

There were 18 deaths, but the CDC said that because of public awareness and the influenza surveillance program, the disease is being spotted much sooner than usual and the number of deaths is not like to be much higher.

between the beginning and end of the academic year...either in the Fall, or in January."

Monroe said ECU was "asked to investigate the feasibility of doing this by the Department of Human Resources and the North Carolina Schools for the Deaf (NCSDF), and the University of North Carolina General Administration."

"We said it was feasible if the money was available to bring someone in to put the program together," Monroe explained. "With the help of the UNC General Administration, money that can be used for planning the program has been made available, and we're recruiting somebody to head it up," at the present time.

"This is a milestone for the deaf in our state," Rance Henderson, director of NCSDF said. "This is the first time our students have had a choice in selecting a place to get a bachelor's degree."

About 10 students are expected to enroll for the first year of the program, spokesmen for the Department of Human Resources said, with enrollment increasing each year thereafter.

He indicated that the University would provide deaf students with support such as interpreters, note takers, tutors and special guidance, but emphasized the students would be integrated in classes with other students.

Henderson said ECU has always been open and broad-minded about special students, such as the blind and others physically handicapped. "The climate is ready at ECU and Lenoir Rhyne," he added. "The instructors are willing to have interpreters in their classes and will be receptive to the deaf students."

Post-secondary education for the deaf in North Carolina was initiated by NCSDF in 1975 when the administration began talking with various universities and colleges, telling them of the need to make this education available to deaf youngsters.

Henderson said NCSDF representatives have suggested that ECU and Lenoir Rhyne pattern their programs after California State University's post-secondary education program, which has proven to be effective.

Cancel Treaty

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Brazil today canceled its 25-year-old mutual defense agreement with the United States following a dispute over human rights.

The Brazilian Foreign Ministry handed a note to U.S. Ambassador John Crimmins advising him of the action.

The U.S. Embassy said the "decision was one made by the Brazilian government acting within the terms of the mutual defense agreement." The agreement was signed in Rio de Janeiro in 1952.

The diplomatic crisis surfaced last Saturday in an exchange of notes in which the Brazilians rejected more than $50 million in U.S. military assistance because it was linked to observance of human rights.

DISTURBED BY MOTORCYCLE

My wife and I live on Stancill Drive in what used to be a quiet neighborhood. Now we're disturbed every day that weather permits by a motorcyclist who speeds up and down the street behind us. We dislike the noise and fear for the children in the area. W. L.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said that he also received a letter from you about this situation and that he already has asked an officer to talk to the person in question. Police will suggest that he ride elsewhere, for recreation, so as not to disturb his neighbors, he said. He pointed out, however, that the man is no doubt a licensed driver of a legal vehicle, and that, as such, he is not breaking the law riding his motorcycle on a public street.

GOT PAPERS

I never believed I'd be writing to Hotline, but I've tried everything else. I bought a Labrador retriever puppy born Sept. 6, 1975, and sent in the proper form to the American Kennel Club for registering him. They later told me they never received my check, so I sent a second one, which they cashed. I still haven't received the papers, despite several letters. B. W.

Hotline wrote to the AKC on your behalf, enclosing a photostatic copy of your canceled check. We soon got a copy of a letter sent you by them saying that the duplicate registration was mailed in August, but apparently was misssent or lost in the mail. They said they were reissuing a duplicate registration, which you say you have received.

Ready For Presidential Visit

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN Associated Press Writer CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — Eva Hester's neighbors have given her 100-year-old frame house a spring cleaning and want to make homemade Irish bread and spaghetti and meatballs for Jimmy Carter's supper.

But loyal Democrat Hester may be out as presidential hostess because of a political tempest over where Carter will spend the night in this mill town during his first "meet-the-people" visit March 16 and 17. A political rival said Miss Hester, 56, is not the "regular, everyday, down-to-earth person" Carter wants to meet because she's too involved in politics.

Despite spending most of Wednesday with a Washington team planning the visit, Miss Hester said Thursday she hasn't had any word from the White House about her prospective guest since her friend, Rep. Joseph Early, D-Mass., told her on March 1 that Carter was coming.

Carter is scheduled to arrive in time for a 90-minute town meeting, where he'll answer questions in the evening, then leave early the next day for appearances in Charleston, W.Va., and New York City.

"I would be very happy if he stayed with us," she said. "But if for some reason he can't, if they can't secure his safety, I'll understand. I hope it happens, but the President's safety is the prime consideration of all of us."

But published reports in Washington said the White House had decided against her house for political, not security reasons.

Miss Hester is a member of the Electoral College and Democratic National Committee and works for the Ways and Means Committee of the state House. Perhaps of more concern is her campaign in the 1974 Democratic primary for lieutenant governor, losing to Thomas P. O'Neill III, son of House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

Miss Hester said that she and O'Neill were good friends, and some political observers say her drawing votes away from stronger candidates actually helped O'Neill win the election.

But Carter already has had brushes with Speaker O'Neill about giving appointments to Republican Elliot Richardson and former Republican Evan Dohelle, both possible candidates for governor in 1978 against the younger O'Neill.

"We think it is kind of ridiculous," said Lt. Gov. O'Neill's press secretary, Peter Broer. "Who is Lt. Gov. O'Neill to tell the President where to sleep? It would be extremely presumptuous.

"I think, perhaps, it's understood that what Jimmy Carter wants in this sort of visit is to get close to regular people."

Then he pointed that with Miss Hester's political activities, "she is not your regular, everyday, down-to-earth person."

Carter Press Secretary Jody Powell has said no decision has been made about where Carter will spend the night but that it would be in the Clinton area.

Miss Hester said she heard the White House was taking over most of the rooms of two inns in this town of 13,500 persons — a motel and a midtown hotel, next to an Irish bar and restaurant and two traffic lights.

Until the final word comes, Miss Hester said, her neighbors on Park Street are assuming the President will be her guest.

Lincoln County Board Is Upset

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — The Lincoln County Board of Commissioners is a little upset over Gov. Jim Hunt's proposal to relieve some of the overcrowding at state prisons by placing inmates in county jails.

The board has instructed County Manager Fred Hauser to write Hunt a letter opposing the plan.

The members also threatened at a meeting earlier this week to sue the state over the county's share of public service employment money and decided to file a formal protest over the proposed new route of N.C. 19.

County Commission Chairman Jim Warren said Hunt "is going to want us to keep prisoners and not pay for their upkeep. The state's taken over the courthouse and now they want to take over the jail. If the governor doesn't want to fund anything for keeping these prisoners, then he can just go fly a kite."

Advised that Hunt has said the state would pay for housing the prisoners, Hauser replied:

"They say in Raleigh they're going to do this or that, but it generally falls back on the counties to come up with the money. In the windup, the General Assembly doesn't appropriate the money."

Commissioner Harry Ritchie agreed with Warren, saying, "Tell the governor they're his prisoners and he's going to have to board them."

Lincoln County is uncertain whether it will receive enough public service jobs money to keep 110 county employees for the rest of the fiscal year ending in September. Hauser told the board he has enough money to keep the public service employees on the county payroll through March.

Child Survives Dog's Attack

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A seven-year-old boy was in satisfactory condition Thursday after being attacked earlier this week by a Great Dane.

Adam Clifton Ayers was playing in an unfenced yard two houses down from his own Wednesday when the incident occurred.

While playing with a male Great Dane, the boy fell down near a second, chained dog, according to an investigator's report.

The second dog, a 2-year-old female Great Dane, seized the child by the neck and dragged him to a dog house.

Another child, 9-year-old Timothy Edmiston, ran to get the boy's mother, Wynne Ayers.

"I came across the yard screaming and a neighbor, Steve Milsap, ran out to help me," said Mrs. Ayers.

Investigators said Milsap, 34, pried the dog's mouth open and freed the child who was conscious the entire time.

"He lost a lot of blood, but in the ambulance on the way to the hospital his blood pressure was fine," Mrs. Ayers said. "He's just a very hearty child. I think I went into shock more than he did."

Doctors used 40 stitches to sew up wounds in his neck. Other puncture wounds in his neck were left open to drain.

The female dog was destroyed and its owners are moving out of the neighborhood, said Mrs. Ayers, who plans no legal action because of the incident.

A spokesman for the Watauga County sheriff's department said the dog had been given its rabies shot recently.

Grifton Zoning Ordinance Is Amended By Bd.

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board amended the zoning ordinance Tuesday night to combine lots of property in town to meet minimum zoning requirements.

The board also received the resignation of Chris Parisher of the Utilities Department and appointed Kevin Spain to replace him.

Board members voted to allow the Fire Department to use stalls in a town building formerly used by utility vehicles.

In other business, the police report was presented by Pat Kilpatrick, the building report was presented by Ralph Thaxton and the utilities department report was presented by Doug Quinn. Quinn was also appointed the Safety Director of Grifton.

Information Needs Dual Consent

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You stated that you thought an adult adoptee had the right to information about his/her biological parenting. And at the same time you expressed the opinion that the biological parents also have the right to confidentiality.

This issue of who has the "right" to what information is one that is currently plaguing those who are in some way involved in adoption, the dilemma being that if you take a stand for the "rights" of one party—the adoptee or the biological parents—you automatically take a stand against the other. You can't have it both ways.

DEAR C.: I think an adult adoptee has the right to know as much about his biological parents' MEDICAL HISTORY as possible. But he (or she) should not be told who (and where) his biological parents are UNLESS they want their identities and whereabouts known.

Also, biological parents should not be given information about their child's identity and whereabouts (even when the child is an adult) unless the adoptee wants to be "found."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old college girl who recently started dating a 28-year-old successful attorney. On our first two dates, I prepared dinner for him at my apartment and we sat home and watched television. On our third date "Cheapo" invited me "out" for dinner.

I spent hours sprucing up, only to be taken to a shabby, smoke-filled diner! I felt a bit uneasy sitting beside a table of noisy truck drivers while my date seemed perfectly content eating his greasy french fries.

After dinner he scrutinized the bill and asked me to leave the tip.

On the way out, he filled his pockets with after dinner mints and later informed me that next time it would be my turn to "treat."

Abby, I do like him, but if this keeps up I don't think there will be a next time. What should I do?

CHEAPLUCK

DEAR CHEAP: If you continue dating him, you are bound to find out whether he's conservative, hurting for money or just plain cheap. And when you find out, you'll know what to do.

Ending Of Ban Benefits Few

President Carter announced at a press conference that governmental travel bans have been lifted so U. S. citizens can travel to Vietnam, North Korea, Cambodia and Cuba. The order is effective March 18. We think that is a good move. We wouldn't encourage anyone to go to those hostile nations, but it is part of freedom to be able to go if we choose.

As the president pointed out, little can be done to help American citizens who run into trouble if they travel in the ban-lifted nations, and they should expect to be on their own. We doubt that many of our citizens will be going to North Korea for a restful vacation, but there is no reason why an American citizen shouldn't be able to go if that is what he chooses.

Major New Access Route On Horizon

Bids will be taken for a much-needed link in the city street system on March 31. That day the bids will be opened for construction of Arlington Boulevard from Evans to Hooker Road. Arlington has already been completed from Evans, across Greenville Boulevard to N. C. 43 (Charles Boulevard).

With the opening of this new section, motorists will have a major new access route from the west side of town to the southeast. The route will also provide access to the new middle school now under construction. The Arlington Boulevard extension will be a welcome addition to the city's street system.

THIS AFTERNOON

Bureaucracy Put On Notice

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Harassed by state agency bureaucrats who resist his intentions to trim fat from the budget, Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. is sending a clear signal that they had better cooperate—or else. "I am committed to this course of action, and the state government bureaucracy is going to respond to my leadership or there will be some changes made," the governor said flatly of his attempts to trim the state's payroll by two per cent. Most agency chiefs are responding positively, Gov. Hunt says. "But in some instances we are seeing incorrect explanations being made by agency people as to the extent of the cuts and their impacts on critical public services. Why Wrong? Now whether that misinformation is being given out intentionally, or is just a result of misunderstanding is a question I cannot answer at this time," the governor said. "But where we find a lack of cooperation, we are going to make changes... if the personnel now in state government do not cooperate with my programs and directions, we will make changes necessary to bring about cooperation," he said. The governor plans to send his budget changes setting forth the work force reduction plan to the General Assembly before the end of this month. He will follow that with further budget changes and supplementary requests by April 15. From the beginning, Hunt has said he will cut employment by two per cent across the board, but not trimming people in critical public service jobs: law enforcement, teachers or aides, hospital service people. The cuts would come in middle management and supervisory personnel, he explained. Thus, some employment areas would have to stand five to 10 per cent cuts to achieve an overall two per cent reduction. Yet, seeking to trim back some 2,800 people should not prove difficult since state employment turnover generally runs some 6,000 per year and the governor expects most cuts can be made in job slots; not people.

But cutting job funds runs head into one of the popular bureaucratic games—that of padding the payroll with unfilled jobs so the unspent dollars can accumulate then be transferred to some other budget item which was not originally approved by the General Assembly. Additionally, governmental officials often measure their own "success" by the size of their payrolls and personnel departments much as politicians compare vote returns to see who ran first or last. Change Demanded Gov. Hunt said in a recent private interview that he sees his job clearly in light of the election returns which put him into office: "The people want and asked for a change, and I intend to give it to them." He told in a recent conversation with U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell regarding this subject.

Bell replaced a division chief who protested that such action was being taken—he had done a good job, and would try hard to adapt. But Bell told him, "the people have demonstrated they want a change... that is what we are doing." The changes should not be long in coming to North Carolina, Hunt said. It has taken some time to get organized, and things have been particularly disrupted by the time spent on this winter's energy problems. But now he feels he has "quality people in positions on the cabinet and I couldn't feel better about the progress which is being made in our administration." "It takes awhile for all of us to get on top of things... and we are now in a position for my secretaries to tell me what kind of changes they wish to make." "It is a real challenge to get the bureaucracy to respond to the man whom the people have elected governor... but the people voted to make a some changes," the governor said.

BILL NOBLITT

Separate Bills, Please

WASHINGTON—President Carter was asked many questions at his call-in last Saturday. The one that fascinated me the most was when a young man asked why the President's son Chip and Chip's wife and their son were living in the White House on the taxpayers' money. The President responded by saying, in part, "Well, I think you ought to know that all personal expenses of our family are paid out of my pocket or the pocket of my children. Our food is kept separate; we pay for all of it. All our clothes and so forth are paid for out of our own pocket..." Had I been the questioner I would have followed up with "Mr. President, how do you keep track of what each person eats?" Since I couldn't, I'm going to speculate on what might take place at a Carter family dinner. They've just finished eating and the President takes out a yellow pad and pencil. "All right, now, let's see what everyone ate. Chip, what did you have?" "I had tomato soup, fried chicken, mashed potatoes, cole slaw and cherry pie." "Didn't I see you drink a glass of milk?" the President asks. "I forgot about the milk," Chip says. "I'll bet," Amy says mischievously. "Pa, she's picking on me again," Chip says. "Hush, Amy," Rosalynn Carter says. "Your Daddy's trying to figure out the check." The President says, "Did Caron have the same?" "I had a hot roll," Caron replies.

The President says, "The hot roll comes with the meal. Now, Ma, what did you have?" Miss Lillian says, "I thought I was invited here for dinner." "I'm sorry, Ma, everybody has to pay for their own food at the White House." "Well, you know I don't like chicken, so I had some broiled trout." The President looks up the price of trout on the engraved White House menu and writes it down. "Grandma had cottage cheese, too," Amy says. "But I didn't have soup," Miss Lillian says. "You're not going to charge me for the soup and the cottage cheese?" "No, you can have one or the other." "In most restaurants the cottage cheese is free," Miss Lillian says. "She's right, Jimmy," Rosalynn says. "I was at the Women's Democratic Club yesterday and the cottage cheese came with the meal." "All right," the President says, crossing out the cottage cheese. "Rosalynn, you had the chicken didn't you?" "Yes, Jimmy, and a salad." "What kind of dressing?" the President asks. "Does it make any difference?" "I suppose not, but if we get audited by the GSA I want the records straight. All right, Billy, what did you have for dinner?" "Two beers," Billy says. "He did not," Amy says. "He had four beers. One, two, three, four!" "I brought two of them with me," Billy says. "Besides, I didn't eat anything. I don't see why I should be charged for dinner when I just drank beer." "The food was prepared for you," the President says. "We have to pay for it" (Continued on page 5)

The GALLUP POLL

Most Want Ford To Run

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J. — In scanning the political landscape with an eye on the 1980 elections, Republican party officials might do well to consider a familiar name — Gerald Ford. The former President has not ruled out another run at the White House. And whether or not this is simply an effort by the party's titular head to keep the GOP leadership from Ronald Reagan is, of course, conjectural, but the fact is most of the Republican rank-and-file still look to Ford as a man with an active future in the party. In a nationwide Gallup Poll conducted two weeks after Ford left office, 60 per cent of Republicans across the nation said they would like to see him run again for the presidency. About three in 10, 28 per cent, however, would prefer he not make another attempt, while 12 per cent are undecided. It is entirely possible, of course, that his standing among party members will fade as 1980 nears and other party luminaries make clear their plans. Ford's 1976 intra-party rival Reagan, for example, remains politically active — accepting speaking engagements at party functions and producing newspaper and radio columns each week. And Sen. Howard Baker's election as Senate minority leader will help him maintain a high political profile. PARTY POPULARITY That another Ford attempt to win the presidency should be popular among Republicans does not come as a complete surprise. He closed out his term in office with 80 per cent of party members approving of his conduct in office — the highest rating he ever received from Republicans. And, in 1976 he was far and away the favorite of the GOP rank-and-file for the presidential nomination. Ford's conduct in office earned him a reservoir of good will not from Republicans alone. His graceful transition from President to private citizen was the first since President Dwight Eisenhower's not surrounded by a national trauma. And although most America thought history would rate Ford no better than an "average" President, the public singled out his restoration of faith in the White House, his work for peace, and in general his "healing of the nation" after the Vietnam war and the Watergate scandal as his greatest achievements in office. PRECEDENT EXISTS Another run at the presidency by Ford, a defeated ex-President, would not be without precedent. After winning election in 1884, President Grover Cleveland lost the 1888 contest to Benjamin Harrison (even though Cleveland won the popular vote, Harrison received a majority of the electoral votes) but then defeated Harrison in 1892. Furthermore, defeat in a national election need not necessarily rule a candidate out of further contention. In addition to Cleveland, five other Presidents (including Thomas Jefferson and, most recently, Richard Nixon) were defeated in national elections and subsequently won the White House in their own right. Here's the question asked in the survey:

"Former President Gerald Ford has not ruled out the possibility that he might run again for President. Would you like to see him run again, or not?" And here are the nationwide results as well as the views of Republicans, Democrats, and independents: FORD RUN FOR PRESIDENT AGAIN? Yes No National 36% 47% Republicans 60 28 Democrats 24 58 Independents 38 47 The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with a total sample of 1,586 adults 18 and older, including 351 Republicans, taken in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Feb. 4-7.

Other Editors Say Turning Them Loose

(The Raleigh Times) It's not likely that Gov. Hunt will rush out, keys jangling, to unlock the cell doors of some 500 marijuana users in response to Attorney Gen. Rufus Edmisten's impulsive call for wholesale commutation of their sentences. And he shouldn't, although marijuana users should be among the first to receive consideration for shortened terms in the state's two-pronged effort to improve its rehabilitation record and relieve prison overcrowding. Edmisten's proposal is contradictory. In one breath he advocates the simultaneous release of 500 youths serving time for marijuana possession. Yet in the next he says that he, at the moment, is opposed to decriminalization of marijuana possession. Probably the biggest benefit from Edmisten's suggestion is the additional focus it places on our marijuana laws, the need to review them and the abusive inequality they encourage through our courts system. For example, youths in Eastern North Carolina can, and often do, receive up to two years for simple marijuana possession. Meanwhile, in Wake County some young people get off with court costs for the same offense. Unfortunately the length of the sentence in too many cases is dependent upon the prevailing prejudice of the geographic region and the presiding judge. Governor Hunt could take a significant step toward correcting this imbalance in the justice system by reviewing the sentences of those now serving time for simple possession. He could, if he chooses, arbitrarily select some term length — six months, a year, etc. — and parole now those who have served that much time, automatically paroling others when they have served the time specified. This kind of humane yet realistic approach to the problem seems more practical, and certainly more publicly acceptable, than Edmisten's suggestion that the Governor swing wide the jail door for all 500 serving time for marijuana possession.

Awards were announced last night at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention in New York City. Greenville tied for first place in competition with schools with enrollments up to 800 from all over the nation. Insurgent artillery blasted anew at Madrid today as government commanders reported their war-tired "militicians" were holding an army of 30,000 Italians in check on the northeastern front 44 miles away. Shells exploded in an important thoroughfare and struck the power building of one part of the city. Several persons were believed hit and screaming ambulances raced to the shelled area. Several other persons were killed or injured yesterday in another of the countless bombardments of the four months' siege. Barbara Mathews

Strength For Today

EAGERNESS TO SERVE John Wesley once said: "If I had three hundred men who feared nothing but God, hated nothing but sin, and were determined to know nothing among men but Jesus Christ and him crucified, I could transform the world." Although Wesley did not have all of these things, nevertheless in starting the Methodist movement he made a considerable transformation in the spiritual life of eighteenth century England. He demonstrated what a man can do if his heart is completely given to God. Most of us have a long way to go before we can equal Wesley. We claim to be servants of the Lord, but our lives are marred rather often by slow-downs and sidown strikes. We read in the New Testament that the kingdom of heaven is at hand. The celestial powers are lined up and are ready to advance, but we are not ready to cooperate. If we were only remotely like the men of the army Wesley hoped to raise, we could begin a great transformation in our own world.

Saccharin Ban To Change Lives

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer If you're one of the millions of Americans who cut calories by using artificial sweeteners, you face a drastic change in your eating habits. The proposed Food and Drug Administration ban on saccharin leaves you without any artificial sugar substitute to turn to, and the so-called natural sugars such as corn syrup or honey generally have just as many calories as the refined product. "There aren't any alternatives. Now you have no choice," said Bob Gelardi of the Calorie Control Council, an Atlanta-based trade association of manufacturers of diet foods. Diet foods are a $2-billion-a-year business, according to Gelardi, who says that an fundamental approach to weight loss is reduction of total calories." Just remember: If you substitute sugar for an artificial sweetener, you will have to cut back on something else. Not all diet foods have saccharin in them. A spokesman for the Chicago Dietetic Supply House said only 35 items out of several hundred in the company's line contained saccharin. There are two basic kinds of low-calorie diet foods: Those that are artificially sweetened with saccharin and those that are not sweet at all. Dietetic canned fruit, for example, may be packed in its natural juice instead of a sweet syrup. A good tip-off to this type of product is the word "unsweetened" on the label. Most of the five million pounds of saccharin consumed in the United States each year went into soft drinks. Manufacturers say they will have reformulated, low-calorie products ready for market by the time the saccharin ban goes into effect. The soda makers aren't saying what they will put into their products, but nutrition experts agree that if you want a sweet taste, you'll have to have some form of sugar. This does not mean that diabetics and dieters will have to eliminate all soft drinks or other products with sugar. Dr. Alan Forbes of the FDA said that most experts in treating diabetes agree that the "controlled and moderate use" of sugar is allowed, but he added, "The words controlled and moderate must be underlined." The same is true for dieters, Forbes said. "The dicate that the American marijuana user is most likely to be a young man in a big city of the West or the Northeast. More men than women use marijuana; more young adults than any other age group; and more big city residents than small town dwellers.

One out of every 10 men between the ages of 20 and 24 uses marijuana daily, the report said. Excluding those who never smoked marijuana, the ratio is one out of every five.

Dupont had good news and bad news for marijuana smokers.

He reported that new experiments last year contradicted a 1971 British study that suggested heavy use of marijuana would shrink the user's brain.

But Dupont declared, "marijuana is not safe. The idea that it is safe, although accepted by some of the public, is clearly not endorsed by the research community."

Dupont also said marijuana could change personality, metabolism and heartbeat rates.

"If I had known I would have to pay for dinner," says Billy, "I would have gone to a bar."

"How much do I owe?" Amy asks.

"We'll pay for you," the President says. "Well, let's see—it seems to add up just right. Wait a minute. I seem to be short 20 cents."

Amy says, "You forgot the baby's warm milk."

"That's it. I forgot the baby!" the President says. "Does anyone want more coffee?"

Miss Lillian says, "No, thanks. On my Social Security I can't afford it."

Special Meet On Annexation

AYDEN—The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners held a special meeting Monday night to discuss the annexation of one half a mile of state right of way, and to discuss a resolution to release several portions of state owned streets to the maintenance of the Ayden Town Street System.

The commissioners voted to annex one half of a mile of state right of way 1,390 feet on E. Second St. east to the Highway 102 intersection and 1,300 feet on W. Second St. west of Loringburg St., west to the old Jolly Road. The annexation of the property will allow the town to control the speed limit in the area and will make the town able to apply for additional Powell Bill Funds.

The commissioners passed a resolution that requests that the streets listed above and a portion of Snow Hill St. from W. Third Street to N.C. 11 and another portion of E. College St. between Second and Third streets be released to the Town of Ayden street system.

Paid Tax On Wrong Land

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.—A Cumberland County family has been paying taxes for more than 30 years on 148 acres of farm land, but the county says the family owns only half of it.

The dispute over land first belonging to Tracy Hall Sr. and now his son Tracy Hall Jr. arose because the state wants two-tenths of an acre of land for a highway right-of-way.

The younger Hall is taking the case to a superior court judge Monday to settle the question.

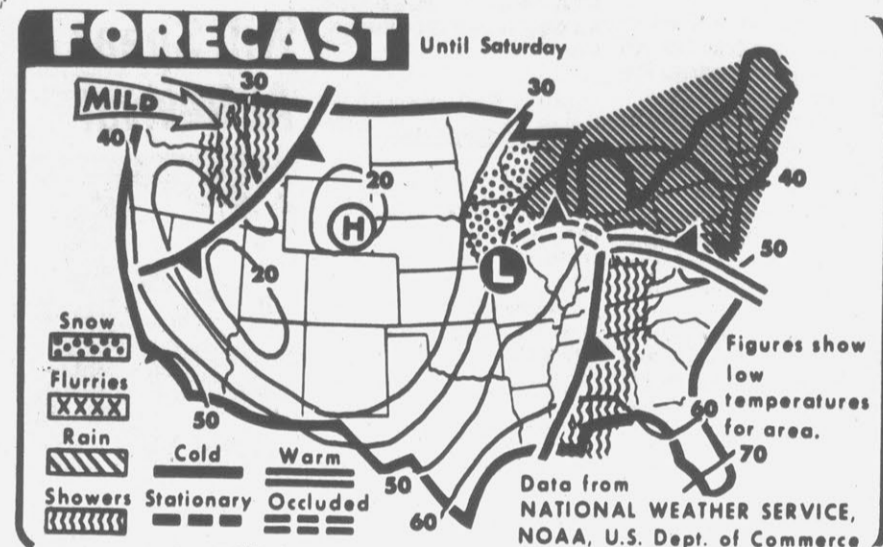

A search of county records conducted by the state disclosed that in April 1940, the elder Hall was unable to pay a $2,757 tax bill on the acreage located between Rockfish Creek, the Cape Fear River and N.C. 87.

The normal procedure was for the county to foreclose, which it did, and the ownership was transferred to the county.

Three years later, the elder Hall told the Cumberland County Board of Commissioners that he wanted to purchase the property. He paid $3,259 for the land, but the record said he only bought back one of the two land parcels listed on the foreclosure. Each parcel contained 74 acres.

However, the Hall family has been taxed since then for all 148 acres in addition to farming it continuously.

ASSURANCE
He gave the first full, eyewitness details of events on the archbishop's last day at the capital in Kampala to which all of the country's top church leaders had been summoned on Feb. 16. The bishop recounts: At 9 a.m., the church leaders, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and others, along with government officials were assembled in an outdoor square, ringed with soldiers and security guards. On display in the center were weapons alleged to have been smuggled into the country to overthrow the government. Three prisoners were forced to read documents outlining the purported plot. Officials made lengthy speeches denouncing "these subversives." "What shall we do with these people?" demanded Amin's press president. "Kill them!" shouted the soldiers. "Kill them now!" The churchmen sat silently. A senior military officer made remarks insinuating they also were involved. They then were ordered into an adjoining conference center. It was 2 p.m. Just before Amin himself arrived to speak, the churchmen were ordered into a separate room. They could hear his voice and applause but not what he said. Afterward, a military guard of the president entered and told them they could go home, but that "his excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." Another bishop sought to accompany the archbishop, but was stopped at the door. "No, no, you're not wanted," the guard said. "Only the archbishop."

Others waited for him outside at his car for two hours. On seeing the archbishop being led by two military officials into the Nile Hotel, the waiting bishops went to inquire. They were told he still was busy with Amin, and were ordered to leave. It was just after 5 p.m.

Describes Slain Prelate's Final Day

NEW YORK (AP) — "His excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." That polite word from a military guard, summoning Archbishop Janani Luvum before Uganda's President Idi Amin, marked the archbishop's last contact with church colleagues before he was killed, one of them related here. "I wouldn't be surprised if Amin himself shot the archbishop," said the fellow bishop who was present on that final occasion and who subsequently slipped out of the country under threat to his own life while military men hunted for him. "Everybody in Uganda knows the archbishop was murdered," he said. "There's no question about it. He was murdered on orders of the one who had him arrested." Just who pulled the trigger remains indefinite, "but we know he was shot on the president's orders."

The fellow bishop, one of four Anglican bishops who have fled Uganda in the last month with a fifth exiled, spoke only with assurance he would not be identified, pointing out this would endanger the lives of many others still in Uganda. He gave the first full, eyewitness details of events on the archbishop's last day at the capital in Kampala to which all of the country's top church leaders had been summoned on Feb. 16. The bishop recounts: At 9 a.m., the church leaders, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and others, along with government officials were assembled in an outdoor square, ringed with soldiers and security guards. On display in the center were weapons alleged to have been smuggled into the country to overthrow the government. Three prisoners were forced to read documents outlining the purported plot. Officials made lengthy speeches denouncing "these subversives." "What shall we do with these people?" demanded Amin's press president. "Kill them!" shouted the soldiers. "Kill them now!" The churchmen sat silently. A senior military officer made remarks insinuating they also were involved. They then were ordered into an adjoining conference center. It was 2 p.m. Just before Amin himself arrived to speak, the churchmen were ordered into a separate room. They could hear his voice and applause but not what he said. Afterward, a military guard of the president entered and told them they could go home, but that "his excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." Another bishop sought to accompany the archbishop, but was stopped at the door. "No, no, you're not wanted," the guard said. "Only the archbishop."

Here is a man who can walk a steel girder hundreds of feet high — as casually as if he were hiking down a highway. Yet last summer he nearly panicked when he took his kids for a boat ride on a subterranean river at the bottom of a cavern. What one man can do easily another flinches from. It really seems as if God planned it that way. He made us in varying sizes, shapes and colors. He gave us all different talents. When you add up the sum total it means that each of us is unique. Next time you're feeling down, think about the uniqueness. You are you — you even have fingerprints that don't match those of any other person in the world. Being you is important. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise. Why not take that important person to church next Sunday?

Another Hunt Govm't Reorganization Bill Enacted

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) - Another of Gov. Jim Hunt's government reorganization bills has been enacted and two others have been introduced.

A bill to transform the present Department of Military and Veterans Affairs into the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety was passed by the Senate Thursday and enacted when the House agreed to a minor Senate amendment.

Hunt had called for the new agency in his special crime control message to the legislature in January.

Meanwhile, the House was tentatively approving bills to reduce inheritance tax payments by increasing the amount of exemptions.

A bill introduced by Rep. Ben. Tison, D-Mecklenburg, would transform the state's industry-hunting agencies to the State Department of Commerce, and Sen. J.J. Harrington, D-Bertie, sponsored a measure to revamp the state

Transportation Board. Legislative developments included:

CRIME CONTROL
The new department of Crime Control and Public Safety would include the State Highway Patrol, the Crime Commission and the enforcement arm of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in addition to the National Guard. The new department would go into operation April 1.

INDUSTRY HUNTING
The Tison measure would place economic development under the Commerce Department as promised by Hunt in his campaign last year. It would establish an economic development board and a labor development council in the Commerce Department.

TRANSPORTATION
Harrington's measure calls for a state Transportation Board consisting of 22 members, two of them legislators with the other 20 appointed by the governor. The measure would abolish the Secondary Roads Council as called for by the governor.

INHERITANCE TAXES
The House held a lengthy debate as it approved two bills that would reduce inheritance tax payments by boosting exemptions. One, sponsored by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, would boost from $20,000 to $50,000 the exemption on proceeds of life insurance policies where husband, wife, children or other relatives are the beneficiaries. It would raise from $2,000 to $10,000 the exemption on insurance proceeds where brothers and sisters, nieces and nephews, uncles and aunts are the beneficiaries.

The other bill, by Rep. W.S. Harris, D-Alamance, would raise from $10,000 to $30,000 the inheritance tax exemption for all property.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE
A 114-page bill recommended by the Criminal Code Commission would rewrite, codify and clarify procedure in the state's criminal courts during the trial and appeals stages.

The bills, introduced by Rep. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, and Rep. William McMillan, D-Iredell, would clarify the laws on contempt of court and equalize the number of peremptory challenges the state and defense would have. The defense has the advantage under the present law.

CONSERVATION
A bill sponsored by Rep. Carolyn Mathis, R-Mecklenburg, would give state income tax credits for the purchase of energy conservation items. The tax credit, which would be limited to $5,000 a year, would go for such items as insulation, storm windows and doors, water saving toilets, and electric cars.

GOVERNOR
A bill to amend the state constitution to permit governors and lieutenant governors to run for a second consecutive term was introduced by Rep. Daniel Hall Jr., D-Alamance.

The measure provides that when the people voted on the constitutional amendment they would also decide whether the amendment would apply to Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

LABOR
Spokesmen for county and city governments reiterated to the House Manufacturing and Labor Committee their opposition to a bill that would permit governmental units to enter into collective bargaining agreements with their workers.

Opposing the bill sponsored by Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, were Municipalities, the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and the North Carolina School Boards Association.

TEACHERS
The Senate Education Committee gave its approval to a bill that would permit a teacher or other school employee to serve as a member of a board of education other than the one by which he or she was employed. Present state law forbids teachers or other school employees to serve on any school board, but it was struck down by the courts. The bill would make the law conform with the court decision.

A Review

Elaborate Program By Rodgers Dance Group

In case it slipped past eastern North Carolina audiences, there has been and continues to be an amazing growth in modern dance in America. Companies are being formed at a phenomenal rate not only in New York but in other areas of the country as shown by our own North Carolina Dance Theater.

As a result of this heightened interest (plus funding from the National Endowment for the Arts), the Rod Rodgers Dance Company appeared in Greenville on Wednesday and Thursday.

Recently, groups like Alvin Ailey and the Dance Theater of Harlem have given new perspective to dance under the direction of black choreographers who include African movement, rhythms, and music in the context of their work.

Rod Rodgers is a part of this movement — but he goes beyond limitations of Afro-American styles and form. His work and that of his company have absorbed parts of the black experience and uses them within a vast range of movements and images from eastern Tai Chi to American jazz.

Their program here opened with Tangents 1968, an interesting, though at times tedious, geometric interplay of lines and shapes with a percussive African score. Another dance, Creature, was a strong, sensuous solo vehicle performed by its choreographer, Shirley Rushing. Dancing to a Herbie Hancock score, Ms. Rushing creates an almost mythological air out of subtle, feline motions. She is a fascinating dancer capable of building mystic subtext with only slight movement.

Box 71 is a social tale of imprisonment dedicated to George Jackson and the men massacred at Attica. Instead of being heavy handed, this work transcends the usual political fairy tale to become an intense view of confinement and illusions of freedom with a stark setting by Chip Largman.

A solo excerpt from Intervals II was danced by Jeanne Moss. The key traits of this company are strength and power, and Ms. Moss certainly has both. Her cool precision and crisp, finely honed style give her a beauty that is perfectly suited to this piece.

She also danced in Intervals I, 1975 in a brief but striking duo with an outstanding male dancer, Thomas Pinnock. This impressive, almost symphonic work moves dancers off in groups then back to intricate visual themes and variations. It is one of two larger scale works on the program and is accompanied by a contemporary score written by dance composer Gwendolyn Watson.

As a kind of relief, a beautifully simple solo and duet, Love Flower, to the music of Ashford and Simpson, features the soft beauty of Tamara Gullebeaux in the solo, coupled with Thomas Pinnock in the duo. It is a wistful love story, calm and peaceful—obviously popular with the audience.

Rhythm Ritual thundered in with an elaborate array of gongs, congas, and cymbals played by Mr. Rodgers, supplemented by smaller bells and wood blocks played by the dancers in a flashing combination of Oriental Tai Chi, Sumurai movements, ethnic dances and modern techniques. The aural and visual rhythms sparkled and rang like a pagan celebration.

Arrested On Two Charges

Johnny R. Crandall, 20 of Grand Forks Air Force Base, N. D., was arrested yesterday afternoon on charges of possession of marijuana and carrying a concealed weapon.

The Rodgers Dance Company gave fine performances here of an art form that is in the creative forefront of America today. It gave local audiences an opportunity to see at first hand why dance is attracting an ever growing audience.

LWV Book Is Available

A 31 page volume, A Directory of Reading Resources in Greenville and Pitt County, has been published under the auspices of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County.

Compiled by a volunteer group of citizens concerned about the high rate of illiteracy in the community, the booklet hopes to provide an impetus to those seeking help for themselves or their children in up-grading their reading proficiency.

The task force for the project, headed by Myree Hayes and Rhea Resnick, enlisted the expertise of a wide spectrum of individuals in preparing the publication.

Publication was provided by the Greenville City Schools. Copies, free of charge, are available at the Central School Office, 431 W. Fifth Street. Reference copies are available at Sheppard Memorial Library and at branch libraries.

Allen To Oakland

By The Associated Press

Baseball fans who don't like controversy must have an eerie feeling today. The phantoms have joined forces... Dick Allen has agreed to play for Charles O. Finley.

"He's kind of like me, a great phantom," Allen said after agreeing in Mesa, Ariz., Thursday to a one-year contract with the Oakland A's. He hasn't shown yet."

The 35-year-old Allen was alluding to frequent disappearances during his playing career and to the fact that equally controversial Finley has not yet presented a contract for signing.

There was no mention of how much Finley will pay Allen.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., the New York Mets let it be known what they will NOT pay slugger Dave Kingman.

Kingman said he was demanding a bonus and definitely wanted more money than the three-year, $700,000 contract given last year to ace pitcher Tom Seaver.

It looks like flesh has won out over wood, with General Manager Joe McDonald saying the Mets would not pay Kingman more for his bat than they paid Seaver for his arm, and that it is against club policy to give a bonus.

In another salary battle, five Cincinnati Reds remained unsigned but the world champions did not invoke the optional renewal clause. The players are third baseman Pete Rose, shortstop

Dave Concepcion and pitchers Gary Nolan, Rawley Eastwick and Pat Darcy.

The Reds also announced that catcher Johnny Bench had strained a knee and was told to restrict his physical workouts at the Tampa, Fla., training camp.

Everybody apparently was happy on the Los Angeles Dodgers, but the sun refused to shine on them. The Dodgers took a two-hour bus ride from Vero Beach, Fla., to Winter Haven for a game against Boston, which was rained out. Then they rode back to Vero Beach for a planned intrasquad game. It also was rained out.

"That's the first time I've ever been rained out twice in one day," said rookie Manager Tom LaSorda.

There were several other rainouts, but five games were played.

The brand new Seattle Mariners of the American League pounded out 20 hits and scored 10 runs. But before the Mariners scored their first run, Oakland already had 12. And the A's won 16-10 at Mesa. Rookie Dennis Wooten hit a two-run homer and Larry Lintz clouted a two-run triple in a seven-run Oakland third inning.

At Yuma, Ariz., the San Diego Padres and the California Angels had much more success getting their bats on the ball than they did their gloves, committing a total of 12 errors in a game won by the Padres 14-13. Bobby Valentine tripled home the winning run in the eighth inning.

Supel Paces Pirate Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University kept its bats swinging yesterday, with Bobby Supel and Sonny Wooten leading the hit parade to a 15-2 romp past Old Dominion.

Supel cracked out back-to-back home runs and added a single in four trips to the plate, scoring three runs and driving in five. Wooten was two for three, with a single and a double and three runs batted across.

Rick Koryda, who had some troubles on the defensive end of the game, made up for some of it with a two-for-four day, adding two more runs batted in.

Overall, the Pirates banged out 13 hits, with two other extra base hits, a triple by Pete Paradossi and a double by Scott Layden.

Starting pitcher Pete Conaty had a no-hitter going until the sixth inning, when Old Dominion picked up a freak hit, then added a solid blast. Terry Durham allowed another hit in two frames, striking out five, and Rusty Nelson went the last frame, retiring the side in order.

Old Dominion scored its first run in the fifth inning. Gip Ridley reached on an error and moved on to second on the play, where another miscue allowed him to reach safely. Joe Breeden reached on another error, and Mike Silber reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Ridley.

The other run, also unearned, came in the sixth. Bo Wiseman hit a grounder to third, but Supel slipped trying to field it, and Wiseman then beat the late throw. He moved to second on a passed ball and scored on a hit by Alan Price with two away.

One other Monarch reached third, and another got to second.

The Pirates pushed over two runs in the first inning. With two away, Eddie Gates was hit by a pitch and stole second. Wooten doubled to center, off the fence, and that brought Gates home. Three straight walks, to Supel, Raymie Styons and Robert Brinkley brought Wooten around.

After threats in the second and third, when Pirates reached third in both, the Bucs added seven more runs in the fifth. Billy Best led off with a bunt single and Gates singled off the mound. After both moved up on a passed ball, Wooten was intentionally walked. Supel singled to left, driving in two runs, and Styon was hit by a pitch, loading them again.

Brinkley singled in Wooten, and a wild pitch brought in Supel. Koryda singled to score courtesy runner Jerry Gibson and Brinkley, and a triple by Paradossi scored Koryda.

Supel's solo homer in the sixth made it 10-2, and the Pirates picked up five more the seventh.

Koryda singled and Jerry Caraway replaced him to run. Charlie Stevens walked and both advanced on a wild pitch. Best scored Caraway on a sacrifice fly, and Gates walked. Wooten singled in two runs, and Supel finished it off with his second homer, scoring Wooten ahead of himself.

The victory brought the East Carolina record to 3-0 on the year, while Old Dominion is now 1-5.

The Pirates take to the road this weekend for three games. They play a doubleheader in Raleigh Saturday against N.C. State, then are in Burlington on Sunday for a single game against Elon College. Home on Monday to meet Eastern Connecticut State College in a single game.

Southwest Conference champion Arkansas and Big Ten contender Purdue level their sites at the Atlantic Coast Conference this weekend as the ACC's Wake Forest Deacons and North Carolina Tar Heels move into national playoff tournaments.

Arkansas, owning 18 straight victories, clashes with Wake Forest Saturday in Norman, Okla., and Purdue confronts fourth-ranked North Carolina in Raleigh in first round action of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) regional tournaments.

"Carolina scared the heck out of me," said Purdue Coach Fred Schaus, whose Boilermakers finished 19-8 and third in the Big 10 conference. "My God, they looked super against Louisville on television."

Schaus brings an experienced team to the match, led by forward Walter Jordan, scoring leader with 18.7 points per game.

The Tar Heels will be led by All-America guard Phil Ford and Dean Smith, named coach of the year in the ACC.

Arkansas' Eddie Sutton says the squad he will pit against the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest is the "best team I've ever coached...Our offense has been a big asset and we've been shooting the good shots."

The NCAA playoff invitation, however, has revived an Wake Forest squad left exhausted by the pressure of a regular season race against the Tar Heels, which the Deacons lost in the final games. The Deacons will be led by the ACC's top scorer, all-conference strongman Rod Griffitt.

Another North Carolina team, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, which won the inaugural Sun Belt championship tournament this week, plays in the NCAA tournament Sunday against Central Michigan in Bloomington, Indiana.

When UCLA's Gene Bartow first found out about the NCAA pairings earlier this week, he expressed surprise and disappointment.

"Gee," said the UCLA basketball coach, starting at the list, "I thought they were going to seed the teams this year. Louisville is a tough first-round draw."

UCLA was ranked No. 4 at the time of the pairings and Louisville No. 10. Had the teams been seeded, as Bartow had wished, then UCLA conceivably would be meeting an easier opponent than Louisville this Saturday.

But if Bartow was unhappy about facing Louisville, you can imagine how Louisville felt about having to meet UCLA.

"We could have gotten an easier draw," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum, reflecting on his upcoming game with the Pacific-8 champions in the West Regionals at Pocatello, Idaho.

Louisville has had little success with UCLA in past NCAA tournaments, losing twice in the last five years. Crum, incidentally, is a UCLA "alumnus," having coached under John Wooden there for many years before breaking out on his own.

UCLA, ranked No. 2 in the country this week, and No. 14 Louisville weren't the only teams that have mutually tough first-round games.

In a West Regional game at Tucson, Ariz., third-ranked San Francisco meets No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas. Another Saturday contest, this one in the Midwest at Omaha, Neb., pits No. 11 Cincinnati against No. 16 Marquette. In a Midwest affair Sunday at Baton Rouge, La., it's No. 7 Tennessee vs. No. 10 Syracuse.

These contests highlight a flurry of 16 first-round games over the weekend that will ultimately lead to the national finals in Atlanta March 26-28.

Among the other pairings in the West, No. 19 Utah meets St. John's at Tucson, Ariz., and Long Beach State plays Idaho State at Pocatello. In the East Regionals, fourth-ranked North Carolina plays Purdue and VMI takes on Duquesne at Raleigh, N.C., while Princeton meets Kentucky and Hofstra challenges No. 15 Notre Dame at Philadelphia.

Middle Tennessee plays No. 17 Detroit in the other Midwest regional game at Baton Rouge. Also on Sunday, top-ranked Michigan meets Holy Cross and Central Michigan plays No. 18 North Carolina-Charlotte in Bloomington, Ind.

Along with the Cincinnati-Marquette Midwest game at Omaha, Southern Illinois faces No. 20 Arizona. In a Midwest doubleheader at Norman, Okla., it's Kansas St. vs. No. 13 Providence and No. 8 Arkansas against Wake Forest.

This week's winners among the 32 teams advance to the regional semifinals and finals March 17 and 19, leaving the four regional champions to compete in Atlanta for the national crown.

South Stokes Tops Tigerettes

HICKORY — Brenda Hairston scored 27 points to lead South Stokes to a 50-47 win over Williamston in the first round of the state girls' 3-A basketball tournament.

The Sauras jumped out to an eight-point edge in the first quarter, leading 18-10 at the end of the period. But Williamston came back and pulled to within one, 27-26, by halftime.

The Tigerettes were able to knot the score at 35 midway through the third period and the game was tied, 39-39, going into the final quarter.

Hairston scored a basket at the beginning of the fourth period to put South Stokes ahead and they held a one to three-point margin for most of the quarter.

Behind 48-47 with less than a minute left, Williamston had the ball with a chance to go ahead. The Tigerettes missed on a shot, however, and the Sauras came down with the rebound. Hairston was fouled and hit both foul shots for the final 50-47 score.

South Stokes had one other player in double figures, Jan Baker with 11, while Williamston was led by Paula Bennett with 19 and Jo Anna Lilley with 10.

East Carolina's defending Southern Conference championship track team will open its outdoor season Saturday by hosting Baptist College of Charleston, S. C.

in the 880 and the Pirate relay teams.

The Pirate mile relay team turned in a time of 3:16.7 indoors this year, barely missing the national qualifying time. That time is just three seconds off the outdoor school record. James Freeman, Ben Duckenfield, Calvin Aiston and Robert Franklin will try for the outdoor record in the meet. The Bunting Track record of 3:13.1 will also be a goal of the Pirates.

UNC's Smith Named ACC Coach Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dean Smith continued in the Tar Heels' winning habit Thursday when he was announced as the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball coach of the year.

Smith coached his team to the ACC championship this season and a spot in the NCAA tournament playoffs Saturday against Purdue.

He was named on 47 of the 108 ballots by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association who have voted him the honor four other times.

Jags Grab Tennis Win

BEAUFORT — Farmville Central's tennis team rolled over East Cartaret by a score of 9-0 yesterday afternoon for its first win of the year.

The Jaguars had little trouble during the match, although two of the singles contests went three sets.

The Jags are now 1-2 on the year and will play again Tuesday when they are at home to C. B. Aycock.

Second place in the voting was Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy whose Demon Deacons posted a 20-7 record, losing their last four games by a total of only 10 points. The Deacons lost to Virginia in the opening round of the conference tournament.

Coach Bill Foster of Clemson finished third with 16 votes. Others receiving votes were Terry Holland of Virginia, Bill Foster of Duke and Norm Sloan of N.C. State.

Smith, who has been with the team for 16 years, guided the Tar Heels to the ACC championship despite the loss by injury of Tommy LaGarde and Walter Davis. Late in the season, the Tar Heels moved past Wake Forest for first place in the regular season standings.

College basketball is not Smith's only experience with the sport. He was coach of the U.S. Olympic basketball team which won the international event last summer. Four of his players were on the squad and three were starters for UNC this season.

He has compiled a career record of 336 wins and 112 losses and has taken the Tar Heels to national tournament participation 11 seasons.

Rams Win Over Tarboro

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's tennis team managed only one win, in a doubles match, and dropped an 8-1 decision to Tarboro yesterday afternoon.

The team of Benny Herring and Tim Stocks was the only bright spot for the Rams as they gained an 8-6 doubles win. But Tarboro rolled by the rest of the Greene Central players for an easy victory.

Patience Was Hard Lesson

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Patience was a hard-learned lesson for big Andy Bean.

"I had to eat some words, some things I'd said about what I'd do when I got out here, before I learned to have patience," Bean said Thursday after he'd joined the seemingly endless parade of young men who are dominating the pro golf tour this year.

"I didn't know it then, when I first came out, but I think now you have to play the tour for a couple of years, get that much time under your belt before you know how to play on the tour, before you know what you're doing and what you can do."

Bean, a powerful 6-foot-4 player once intrigued with the sheer distance he could hit the ball, has just about that much apprenticeship behind him.

He joined the pro golf tour in the fall of 1975 fresh out of the University of Florida and now, at the age of 23, is making his first big splash. He's already won $25,408 this year — more than doubling his previous earnings on the tour — and Thursday patiently powered his way to a five-under-par 67 that gave him the first-round lead in the $200,000 Doral Open.

Patience, control of a temper that Bean admits once was fiery, was the key to his round.

"I made a couple of mistakes, but I didn't let them get to me," he said.

The patience paid off. He finished with a one-stroke lead over Miller Barber, Leonard Thompson and long-shot Bob Erickson, tied at 68, four under par on the tough 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Larry Ziegler, former Doral champion Buddy Allin and Bill Garrett were another shot back at 69.

Most of the game's premier attractions, including new sensation Bruce Lietzke, the leader of the youth movement that has been the over-riding trend in the game this year, were strung out well behind. Lietzke, a winner of two titles and a leading $123,350 before his streak was interrupted by the death of his father, returned to action with a 73, one over par and an end to his string of 26 consecutive rounds at par or better.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 12, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a good time to do some entertaining and extend favors to those who have been annoying at times. Difficult planetary aspects are replaced by a warm and friendly cooperation between persons, who generally are taut.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you do not make any radical changes or go off on a long trip. Do not take advice from one whose ideas are so different from your own.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to please the one you love more and cut down on present tensions. Your intuition is not good regarding the handling of some important responsibility. Use your own good judgment.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what is expected of you from and by others and try to please while also gaining your own aims. An annoying situation can work out to your advantage if you handle it wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of pressing chores now if you expect to have time for planned activities later. Don't spend too much for new clothing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into creative work and forget the recreational, which could prove very disappointing now. Don't argue with a close tie who may see things differently.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more understanding at home today and ease tensions considerably. Not a good day for starting new ventures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may not be able to get the information you need today, so wait for a better time. Think along more constructive lines. Be careful while traveling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of spending more money, try being more practical and economize instead and build up a reserve. Try being more cheerful with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be calm during emergencies and you save the day. Forget a social invitation if it is not to your liking and turn to other activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Spend needed time improving conditions at home and forget outside affairs for the time being. You have a new plan in mind, but keep it to yourself. Avoid a tendency to overspend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to help friends with their problems without imposing yours on them. A person you are very fond of can do you a big favor now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle those affairs well that give you added support from bigwigs and the public in general. Take care of credit matters wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have to be taught to be more tactful and diplomatic and thus avoid a good deal of trouble during the lifetime. Add foreign languages to the educational curricula since there is apt to be much travel in this lifetime.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." what you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

'Pig' In Water Lines Was Another Headache

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP) — If flaking of pipe in the new $12 million regional water system was not enough headache for Henderson City Manager Melvin Holmes, a complaint he received recently may develop into a gigantic one.

Just recently, the city announced plans to run a "pig" through the miles of water line in an effort to clean the flaking off the inside lining.

An irate citizen, after reading about the plans, called the city manager and threatened to report him to the humane society for cruelty to animals.

Just to set the record straight, Holmes explained the company doing the work is not using a real live pig, but several different kinds of artificial ones, including a series of sponges and carbide.

The city manager said the "pig" is placed in the water line at the filtering plant on Kerr Lake and the pumps are cut on. The pig is shaped similar to a bomb and turns as it goes through the pipe, causing the black flaking to peel off.

A section of water line was taken out near the northern city limits near U. S. 1. A pit was dug and a portion of pipe was turned up where the pig could exit, Holmes explained.

Holmes pointed out that the line was blocked at that point and no water could come into the city system. He said the city still is using the old water system until the flaking could be corrected.

Holmes said the problems of the water system which eventually will serve Henderson, Oxford and Soul City, could be cleared up by April 1 — if an injunction by the Humane Society doesn't stop the cleaning operation.

As the pig neared the end of the line Thursday afternoon, workmen standing on the side of the pit were heard calling "Suey-suey," the accepted call for pigs. It apparently worked because the "pig" came flying out of the pipe.

Fertilizer Plant Feels Squeeze In Natural Gas

TUNIS, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina's major supplier of nitrogen fertilizers says it is still feeling the effects of the energy shortage and may have to close if natural gas prices don't go down.

N.C. Nitrogen Complex in Hertford County supplies about 16 per cent of all nitrogen fertilizer used in eight southeastern states. When in full operation it consumes 27 million cubic feet of gas per day, making it the state's largest gas customer, said Donald V. Borst, executive vice president of CF Industries.

CF Industries of Chicago operates the plant.

"We're going to be paying about $2.85 per thousand cubic feet of gas and at that rate we can't compete and produce fertilizer," Borst said. "Most fertilizer plants are paying on the order of a dollar or $1.25, and we're paying close to $3. In es-ence we're being priced out of business."

Borst complained that the North Carolina Utilities Commission is unfair in requiring heavy industrial gas customers to bear the burden of emergency natural gas supplies.

The commission has given natural gas companies permission to charge higher rates to industrial customers with lower rates going to residential and commercial users.

Residential and commercial rates have increased, also, but Borst said other states have more equitably distributed the costs for the more expensive emergency supplies.

The fertilizer plant has not been in full production since late November, when equipment failure stopped operations. The plant will make a trial run of its equipment in a few days, Borst said.

But now that gas is available, he said it may be too expensive to operate the plant. The factory employs 200 workers.

Hostility To U.S. Blamed

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrew Young, ambassador to the United Nations, says some African nations have been hostile to Israel because of frustration in dealing with the United States.

"The greatest challenge of our times is to understand the interrelatedness of all peoples," he said in speech Thursday at a luncheon of 2,000 members of the National Council of Jewish Women.

"At the U.N., as I talked to my African brothers privately and asked what they felt, I found there was no hostility against Israel. There was no hatred against Israel. In fact, there was great admiration.

"But there was hostility in Africa to the United States because, time after time, when a measure came up in the Security Council for freedom in Africa, these measures were vetoed by the U.S.A. ... We were too strong, so they sought to take out their frustration on our smallest ally, Israel."

Offers $25,000 For A 'Floater'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A movie executive is looking for someone whose feet aren't on the ground and will pay $25,000 if they can stay that way "without trickery, fakery" or wires.

Ralph Nussbaum of Burbank International Pictures says the search for floaters will help promote a movie, "Journey into the Beyond."

He said to qualify a person will have to float in daylight in view of a panel of scientists and newsmen and stay up in the air long enough to convince the skeptics. He said hopefuls won't know in advance where their levitations will be scheduled.

"I have some doubt that levitation is possible, but can you tell me with total assurance that it's impossible?" he said at a news conference.

Man Is Charged After Break-In

A Martin County man was arrested by Pitt County deputies and charged with first degree burglary and intent to commit second degree rape as a result of an incident early today on Rt. 1, Stokes.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested Leon Cross, 25, of P.O. Box 876, Robersonville on the burglary and assault charges.

According to Sheriff Tyson, the Sheriff's Department received a call at 2:02 a.m. from a woman who said that someone was trying to break into her home. Deputies were dispatched to her house.

She later told investigating officers that someone knocked on a window at her home around 1:55 a.m. and she called the Sheriff's Department. She said that a man then kicked the front door in, held a knife at her neck and began removing her clothes.

Sheriff Tyson said that she ran out of the house when deputies arrived and told them that the man was inside. Deputies arrested Cross at the home.

Second Term Chance Good

RALEIGH (AP) — House Speaker Carl Stewart appeared in strong position Thursday to break tradition and serve a second consecutive term as leader of the state House of Representatives.

A memo circulated in the Legislative Building Thursday invited lawmakers to a breakfast next Wednesday in honor of Stewart. It was sent by Rep. Barney Paul Woodard, D-Johnston, and 78 other Democratic representatives were listed as supporters of Stewart.

"It looks like things are pretty much under control," Stewart said Thursday afternoon.

The speaker is selected by secret ballot during the Democratic caucus about a month before the legislature convenes. Election of the speaker on the opening day of the session is a formality.

The only representative running against Stewart for the 1979 speakership is Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville. Stewart defeated Watkins for speaker this session.

"Fifty-seven members of the House are committed to me and he has 79 on the list. It is apparent that some of them think they can vote twice," Watkins said.

Stewart's apparent strength was not enough to make Watkins quit the race, though. "I'm just going to work harder. Things like this make you work harder," he said.

Some of those pledged to Stewart may be defeated in the 1978 elections, possibly changing the score, and Stewart himself must seek reelection.

"I reckon on secret ballot we're going to find out who they're going to vote for," Watkins said, adding that he intends to speak with those on the Stewart list who have also pledged to support Watkins.

Spaggiari, a photographer and former French paratrooper, leaped through a window, landing on a car roof ten feet below, and escaped on a motorcycle, apparently with the aid of an accomplice, it was announced. Crowd Formed

A crowd, estimated at between 250 and 300 persons, gathered downtown and for a time blocked Cotanche Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets early this morning, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

The police official said the crowd began gathering on sidewalks about 1:15 a.m. when patrons started leaving downtown night spots. He noted that by 1:30 a.m., the people had moved onto Cotanche Street and some were jumping on vehicles trying to make their way along the street.

He said officers blocked traffic from Cotanche Street after at least one car was reported damaged while driving through the area.

Cannon said too, that eggs were thrown at a police car on Reade Circle, near the intersection of Cotanche Street.

The chief said the crowd began to disperse about 2:15 a.m. and the streets were clear at 2:45.

No arrests were made, Cannon noted.
