Prime Minister Indira Gandhi Expected Resign

By MYRON L. BELKIND
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi probably will resign today following the loss of her seat in Parliament and reverses suffered by her Congress party in the Indian general election, official sources reported.

Mrs. Gandhi's foes already had begun talks to try to put together a government.

With returns in for 283 of the 542 seats in the lower house of Parliament, the new Janata (People's) party had 135 and could count on the support of nine more. Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party, which won two-third of the seats in the 1971 election, had only 103. Independents, regional groups and a handful of minor parties accounted for the rest.

Hours after the announcement that she had lost her own seat, the 59-year-old prime minister ordered the end of the state of emergency, under which she imprisoned thousands of her opponents, and the restoration of all civil liberties.

Proclaimed in June 1975 to keep her in office after her conviction on a charge of campaign irregularities, the emergency sparked a voter revolt that contributed to her downfall, the defeat of her son Sanjay in his first bid for office, and the eclipse of the ruling dynasty her father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, established 30 years ago.

The chief contenders to succeed her are two former leaders of the Congress party who broke with her, Morarji Desai and Jagjivan Ram.

Desai, now 81, was Mrs. Gandhi's deputy prime minister in 1969 when she split the party in a struggle for power with conservative leaders. He and other conservatives formed the Opposition Congress, and in January it merged with three other opposition parties to form the Janata.

Ram, the 68-year-old leader of India's Untouchable caste, was the agriculture minister in Mrs. Gandhi's last cabinet. He broke with her last month and formed the Congress for Democracy, which won seven seats in the early returns.

There was speculation that Mrs. Gandhi's defeat would produce more defectors from her Congress who would rally behind Desai or Ram. Although separate parties, the Janata and Ram's Congress campaigned together and pledged to work together in the new Parliament.

No major shift in foreign policy is expected since the Janata's manifesto pledged adherence to India's traditional policy of nonalignment "free from any attachment to any power bloc." The party also pledged to restore all civil liberties and repeal the legislation Mrs. Gandhi put through during the emergency restricting freedom of the press and the independence of the judiciary.

Mrs. Gandhi lost her seat in Uttar Pradesh by 55,000 votes to Socialist leader Raj Narain, whom she had defeated in 1971 by 110,000 votes. Her 30-year-old son Sanjay, running for office for the first time after taking over leadership of the youth wing of the Congress party, lost the district adjoining his mother's by 75,844 votes.

VICTORIOUS — A garlanded Jagjivan Ram, left, emerges from a crowd of well-wishers as opposition parties roll up victories in India's national election. Ram, a former supporter of Indira Gandhi, led the break-away Congress for Democracy Party. (AP Wirephoto)

Budget-Cutting Dream Is Faring Badly In Congress

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Items from a billion dollar budget: — In the 1955 edition of the Congressional Directory, the staff of the House Agriculture Committee takes up eight lines. In the 1976 edition, it takes up 39 lines.

— The Congressional Budget Office, created partly to help hold the line on governmental costs, has a staff of 208 persons. Eighty of them make more than $27,000 a year.

— Two offices in a House building are being converted to Ways and Means Committee hearing rooms. The estimated cost is $200,000.

These straws in the winds of congressional spending are part of what former President Gerald R. Ford was talking about in his farewell State of the Union message Jan. 12 when he said the number of congressional employees in the 1970s "has increased substantially, although the membership of the Congress remains at 535."

Ford noted the total budget for the legislative branch now exceeds $1 billion for the first time in history and said: "Congress now costs the taxpayers more than a million dollars per member."

But most members of Congress reject the title "billion dollar Congress," arguing that nearly three of every 10 dollars in that billion is spent for purposes other than running Congress.

Legislators who review the Congress' budget also say they vigorously try to keep down expenditures. Some members of Congress dispute this.

Deputy Comptroller Robert B. Keller, in a Feb. 25 letter to Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., said $765 million of the $1.05 billion legislative branch budget is for Congress' operation. Huddleston is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on legislative appropriations.

Other items include such things as $10 million for the Library of Congress to prepare brittle materials for microfilming; $10.3 million for General Accounting Office branches in Frankfurt, Bangkok, Panama City and Honolulu, which check on U.S. spending abroad, and $1.3 million for the U.S. Botanical Gardens.

However you slice it, it's part of the legislative branch budget. And it is immune from budget cutting by the president's Office of Management and Budget. The only review is by Congress itself.

Much of the spending is also exempt from the kind of auditing the General Accounting Office applies to the executive branch. Comptroller General Elmer Staats cited "statutory prohibitions against questioning certain types of transactions" by Congress and in testimony before a House subcommittee said his office can audit congressional committees, but not accounts of individual members.

Staats said such audits don't go beyond official records to determine whether expenditures were made as reported.

Keller disputed Ford's implication that Congress' costs are growing faster than executive branch costs. He said the congressional hike in the current budget is $70 million, or 8 per cent, compared with a 9 per cent increase in President Carter's over-all spending proposals.

France Sees Leftist Win

PARIS (AP) — The French stock market fell sharply today after the Socialist-Communist alliance won a popular vote majority and control of more than 70 per cent of the big cities in Sunday's local election runoff.

One broker blamed the slide, which averaged about four per cent, on "jittery Black Monday trading" and added, "you can't say where it will go."

Sunday's results spelled the biggest defeat ever for the conservative-centrist coalition the late President Charles de Gaulle forged after he established the Fifth republic 19 years ago.

It opened a year of hard political fighting in preparation for National Assembly elections, scheduled for March 1978.

Observers said the stock market seemed to react in particular to leftist plans to nation-alize French industries if it takes power.

The French franc held firm in currency trading at just under five to the U.S. dollar, but a trader said the government was intervening heavily to protect the currency.

Leftist leaders said Sunday's voting showed the French people no longer feared the prospect of leftists in power.

"There's a strong wind blowing," said Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand.

"I don't say victory in the future is a sure thing, but it's certainly a good sign for the future," said Communist party leader Georges Marchais.

"They've been saying for years that the left in power means the Apocalypse, but the people don't believe that anymore. We talk about what we're going to do and nobody gets scared."

Tanker Breaks Up Off Coast Of N.C.

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Coast Guard said 27 of the 39 crewmen of a Panamanian tanker were rescued today by merchant ships and aircraft after the tanker split in two off the North Carolina coast.

The other 12 crewmen of the tanker Claude Conley were missing and unaccounted for, a Coast Guard spokesman said. Five of those rescued from the foundering ship were reported injured.

The 676-foot, 20-year-old, Japanese-built Conley, reportedly empty of oil, was outward bound into the Atlantic when it apparently was rent by an explosion Sunday, the Coast Guard said.

Its stern, on which most members of the crew had congregated, and the bow were spotted early this morning by another merchant vessel, the Moss Point.

Three other merchant ships and a Coast Guard helicopter sped to the scene and picked up survivors throughout the morning in clear, calm weather, apparently removing most them from the tanker's stern section.

"As far as we know, no one was taken from the water," the Coast Guard spokesman said. "Some of them could have been in lifeboats, but there are no confirmed reports of that."

The Coast Guard said some of those rescued were taken aboard the merchant vessels at the scene by boat and others were hoisted onto the helicopter, which was taking them to Camp Lejeune, N.C.

In late morning, the Coast Guard spokesman said, the stern and the bow of the Conley were reported to have drifted about two miles apart at the scene, about 125 miles southeast of Wilmington, N.C.

The Coast Guard said the Conway reportedly had been heading out to sea with saltwater ballast when the explosion, believed to have occurred Sunday, tore her apart. It did not know her destination.

Seas were reported calm with winds at 10 knots and visibility five miles at the scene as rescue efforts went forward this morning.

"The weather sounds good," the Coast Guard spokesman said.

An oil slick was reported at the scene, but the Coast Guard said it had no information on how extensive it was.

Board Meeting

The March meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education will be held 8 p.m. tonight in the central office at 431 W. Fifth Street.

Among agenda items are the sale of the Lynndale site and possible sites for relocating the Extended School Program.

Two Local Measures Introduced In Assembly

Two bills, which would give the City of Greenville additional condemnation powers and the authority to make assessments for street improvements without the necessity of a petition from property owners have been introduced in the North Carolina House and Senate and have been sent to committees in both chambers for study.

The condemnation bill would bring the city's condemnation procedures in line with State Highway Department procedures for condemnation in that the city could have the property to be condemned appraised, put up the money for the property and the property owner would then have one year in which to file proceedings against the city.

Using the "quick-take" procedure, the property owner would be able to draw on the money put up for the property and the city would be able to go ahead with the project for which the property was condemned.

Now the matter has to be disposed of in court before the property owner can receive any payment for the property.

The street assessment bill would give added powers of assessment to the City Council if the council finds that: a street is unsafe for vehicular traffic; that it is in the public interest to connect two streets already improved; it is in the public interest to widen a street already improved; or that a street needs repair.

The bill also authorizes the council to make sidewalk improvements without the necessity of a petition and make assessments just as in the case of street improvements.

Two other local bills, one providing for the election of members of the Greenville City School Board and the abolishment of the elective office of coroner in Pitt County have been ratified by the General Assembly.

Corporate Profits Up During Fourth Quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — After-tax profits of U.S. corporations rose $1.8 billion in the fourth quarter of 1976 to a total of $86.9 billion, the Commerce Department reported today.

But it said corporate profits from current production, which excludes increases in the value of inventories, declined $3.9 billion in the fourth quarter, to an annual rate of $118.1 billion.

The department revised slightly upward its figures on real growth in the nation's gross national product (GNP), showing a fourth quarter rate of growth of 2.6 per cent, up from the latest previous estimate of 2.4 per cent.

However, the revised rate of growth still is considerably below the four per cent rate that economists say is necessary to keep unemployment from worsening.

The fourth quarter growth in GNP, which measures the value of total output of goods and services in the economy, compared with growth rates of 3.9 per cent in the third quarter, 4.5 per cent in the second and 9.2 per cent in the first.

Most economists agree that the economy has rebounded from its 1976 doldrums and will show fairly good growth of around four to five per cent in the first quarter of this year, followed by a growth rate possibly as high as eight to nine per cent in the second quarter.

Current production profits are profits computed without counting profits from inventories, where the value of goods often rises with the inflation rate and does not result from actual production.

Inventory profits did increase in the fourth quarter causing and contributing to the rise of before-tax book profits of $4.3 billion to a total of $154.5 billion at an annual rate.

PEDESTRIAN PROBLEMS

I walk or ride the city bus everywhere I go. If I ride the bus out to Pitt Plaza and then want to walk across to Winn Dixie, I have a terrible time getting across Greenville Boulevard on foot. The stoplight doesn't stay red long enough, and even if it did, the people turning right on red don't consider pedestrians at all. Mrs. L. S.

Hotline talked to N. C. Department of Transportation Division Engineer Gerald England about the situation at the intersection of U. S. 264 Bypass (Greenville Boulevard) and Arlington Boulevard as it relates to pedestrians. He confirmed that little or no consideration was given to pedestrians when the signals for this intersection were planned because "the warrants for pedestrian signals require that for eight hours per day there are 150 or more pedestrians per hour crossing the major street."

Asked about the possibility of restricting right turns on red to accommodate pedestrians who conceivably would increase in number when the Greenville Square Shopping Center is opened, he again cited guidelines of the DOT: "The restrictions of right turns on red are made primarily when the sight distance is restricted or when the signal indications might allow motorists to assume they have the right of way and be struck by a vehicle making a right turn on red. The right turn on red restriction is not justified at the location solely based on the pedestrian volume or pedestrian conflict."

The RTOR law states, he said, "...any vehicle, after coming to a complete stop for a red light facing the vehicle may make a right turn after yielding to pedestrians and other vehicles..."

Couple Weds In Private Ceremony On Sunday

AYDEN — Miss Karen Michelle Davis became the bride of Robert Allen Daniels in a private ceremony performed at the home of the bride here Sunday at 2:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory Davis and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Virgie Daniels of Williamston, and the late Mr. James Oscar Daniels.

The Rev. Gilbert Mister of Ayden officiated at the double ring ceremony. The house was decorated throughout with greenery and mixed spring flowers. The staircase was entwined with greenery and white satin bows.

Mrs. Tom Norris of Ayden presented the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel sweep of traditional white bridal satin and crocheted lace. The fitted bodice featured a crocheted lace bib effect outlined with a lace ruffle and full length satin bishop sleeves cuffed at the wrist ending with a ruffle over the hand. A crocheted lace ruffle encircled the flounce hemline of the gown.

Her veil of silk illusion was made by the mother of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies.

Miss Caroline Peach Davis, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a floor length gown of yellow satin fashioned with a lace bib effect on the bodice. She carried a bouquet of daisies.

Jimmy Daniels of Charlotte served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Davis selected a floor length gown of mauve quiana and wore a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length gown of aqua polyester.

Mrs. P. B. Whittington, grandmother of the bride, of Florence, S. C., wore a formal length gown of aqua organza and a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Larry Davis, paternal grandmother, chose a blue formal length gown of quiana and wore a white carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, guests were directed to the refreshment table by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Stocks, aunt and uncle of the bride.

The bridal table was covered

MRS. ROBERT ALLEN DANIELS

with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed spring flowers. Mrs. Barrett Sumrell Jr. poured punch and Mrs. Larry Drye cut the cake.

Mrs. Roy Garris presided at the guest register and Mrs. Bob Johnson directed the wedding.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bridegroom is employed by Rivers and Associates.

The Usual Can Be The Unusual In Her Job

By DOLLIE L. SMITH
UPI Capitol Reporter

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Kay Daughtry, receptionist-hostess for Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., has learned quickly to expect the usual to be the unusual in her job.

In her first three weeks in Hunt's Capitol office, the 53-year-old veteran legislative secretary has had the diplomatic task of fielding telephone calls ranging from the White House to those from a woman who has a "crush" on Hunt.

"I've got the impression that the governor's telephone number is written on the door of every men's room in every mental institution and every penal institution in North Carolina," said Mrs. Daughtry, recruited from the general assembly March 1 after serving more than five terms as secretary to some key legislators.

"We get a lot of crank calls, but it seems a lot of them originate there. And when it's a pay station call you're always suspicious."

As the first person you are likely to talk to either in person or by telephone in Hunt's office, the effervescent former state Democratic party secretary serves as Hunt's front-line public relations officer.

Mrs. Daughtry, the only woman on the Garner Town Board, estimates on an average day there are about five calls a minute on the 10 incoming telephone lines to the governor's office. That, she adds, is a "conservative estimate."

About 15 calls a week are a little hard to handle, such as the one from an elderly minister who said he had a "vision from God" about what man wanted to warn the governor "there were going to be some killings in Washington" during the recent siege by a group of Hanafi Muslims.

While most callers identify themselves, one woman, who called Hunt on the day the Senate killed ERA, refused to give her name, saying only "that she just wanted us to know that all elected officials were crooks and the governor, the President and the President's wife should be sent out of the country."

"Most of the people want to talk with the governor, but if you talk with them long enough you learn what their problems are and direct them in the right direction to get the right response," said the former secretary and campaign worker for Herbert Hyde, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

The mother of two sons directs many of the callers and visitors to the governor's four-member ombudsmen team which seeks out answers to their problems from the various cabinet departments.

"One day a man called to say his fuel bill was $190, his light bill was $90, his income tax was due, the county was about to take his property for taxes, the bank was calling for payments on a loan, and he had terrible troubles and he wanted the governor to know he had terrible troubles and to do something about it," she said.

How did she respond? "I sent him to the ombudsmen," she said. "He was too much for me."

She said a middle-aged woman, who describes herself as a consumer advocate and who has a "crush" on Hunt, has called six times in two weeks.

"She's trying to get a grant from our office because her phone bills are $165 a month, and I believe it," Mrs. Daughtry said. "And she wants us to put in a WATTS line."

When Mrs. Daughtry began one day by answering the telephone, "Good morning, this is Governor Hunt's office," the woman caller said, "Boy, have I ever got the wrong number," and hung up.

While her job is to filter calls for Hunt, he "returns just as many as possible because he feels that it is important to keep in touch with the people," she said.

And Hunt makes it a point, she said, to greet visiting school groups when he's not in conference.

As spring approaches, she said the number of visitors "who just want to look" has increased. If the governor is not using his office, she gives visitors a personal tour of it. There was one call, she said,

Open Marriage A Sex Smorgasbord

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You told a woman who was in love with a married man: "Send him home to his wife and children..." Abby, this is 1977. Why didn't you tell her to ask her married lover to be honest with his wife about her, and try to develop an "open marriage" that would include the girlfriend too?

A marriage doesn't have to be exclusive to be good. Each of us can love more than one person. Why be hypocritical? If there were fewer "either/or" ultimatums, there would be fewer divorces.

After 28 years of a monogamous marriage, my wife and I decided to "open" our marriage to include others. I now encourage and help my wife to have outside relationships with other men, and she does the same for me with other women. Our open marriage has revitalized us and strengthened our marriage.

OPEN AND HAPPY

DEAR OPEN: I didn't suggest an "open marriage" because I wouldn't advise anyone to do what I myself wouldn't do. Marriage is (or should be) a sacred covenant between two people, and to "open" it to include others is a violation of that covenant.

It may be possible to love more than one person, but in a civilized society, it's one at a time. The "group" thing, which includes many partners, is not a "love feast"—it's a sexual smorgasbord.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your comment about the 73-year-old woman signed TALKS TOO MUCH. "Your son did you a kindness to tell you so."

However, I have a better way to find out if I'm talking too much. If someone interrupts me, I just keep quiet. And if nobody asks me what I was saying before I was interrupted, I know I've been talking too much.

D.D.J. IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

DEAR D.D.J.: Hooray for you. Most people would say, "As I was saying..."

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter about a sixth grade teacher telling a dirty joke to his class:

I have six children (the youngest in the seventh grade) and have worked as an aide in an elementary school for eight years, and I have a message for parents:

If you dislike something your child tells you happened at school, talk to the teacher. Sometimes a child misunderstands or, unfortunately, lies. If the teacher's explanation doesn't satisfy you, go to the principal.

If it is something serious or dangerous, and you are CERTAIN of your facts, state your concern in writing and send it to the personnel department of your school district.

Get involved; see what is happening at your child's school. But remember, too, that neither your child nor the teacher is perfect.

Smoke Detector Rules Invoked

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of Americans are installing smoke detectors in their homes to provide an early warning system in case of fire.

The National Fire Prevention and Control Administration says 33 states already have regulations requiring the use of smoke alarms, usually in new houses, mobile homes and developments. Other states and some cities are considering similar rules.

The agency says it would like to see the devices in 25 per cent of all American homes by 1980 and in 75 per cent by 1990. About eight million smoke detectors were sold last year, up from only 50,000 in 1972.

Smoke detectors work by sensing the rising smoke from a fire and sounding an alarm loud enough to wake even heavy sleepers. They can detect smoke far from the origin of a fire and often will sound the alarm before flames are visible.

As the popularity of smoke detectors has grown, so has the number of models and brands on the market, making it more difficult for consumers to choose.

You should make sure you select a detector which has been approved by one of several major testing laboratories. There is no shortage of such detectors. Underwriters Laboratories Inc. says 98 brands of smoke alarms meet its standards. Prices for the detectors generally range from $20 to $70. Extra features such as test buttons are included on the more expensive models.

There are two basic types of smoke detectors: photoelectric and ionization chamber.

The photoelectric smoke detector contains a light bulb and a photocell. When smoke enters the detector, light from the beam is reflected from smoke particles into the photocell, triggering the alarm.

The ionization variety contains a small radiation source that produces electrically charged air molecules called ions. The presence of these ions allows a small electric current to flow in the chamber. When smoke particles enter, they attach themselves to the ions, reducing the flow of current. The change in the current sets off the alarm.

According to the fire prevention and control unit, "Both types of detectors are equally effective in the home." Ionization detectors generally will react more quickly to flaming fires; photoelectric detectors will generally respond faster to smoldering fires.

Ionization detectors generally operate on batteries. You have greater freedom of choice when it comes to deciding where to place the detector, but you also have to replace the batteries. Replacement batteries generally cost between $2 and $10.

Photoelectric detectors usually run on household current. They may be plugged into a wall outlet or wired permanently into your home's electric system. The permanent wiring should be done by an electrician and costs about $25 to $50. Like the battery-operated alarms, the photoelectric detectors include a device — usually a light — to indicate that the power is functioning.

Further information on smoke detectors is available in a free Commerce Department pamphlet, "Smoke Detectors:

What they are and how they work." Write to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Mini-Still Is Amateur's Job

MINI-STILL — Cleveland County Sheriff Haywood Allen examines a tiny still found at a Shelby trash dump. "It's a cute little still. But it won't work" he said. (AP Wirephoto)

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A Cleveland County man thought he'd found evidence of serious lawbreaking when he came across what appeared to be a small, homemade distillery discarded in a Shelby trash dump.

Cleveland County Sheriff Haywood Allen set him straight in a hurry.

"It's a cute little still," said Allen, who has seen bigger ones in his time. "But it won't work."

The still was small, made from a large paint bucket, two old-time molasses buckets and copper tubing.

"It might make a pint, if it were constructed right," Allen said. "This is definitely an amateur's job. I think that's why it was thrown on the trash dump."

The still appeared in the Shelby Daily Star, and after that the amateur manufacturers stepped forward.

It turned out the still was a prop for a Roaring '20s charity ball put on by the Cleveland Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

"It could be made workable, but I'm not going to tell how," Allen said. "Lucky it didn't work," he added, explaining it could have caused death by lead poisoning.

"I understand they actually had it fired up during the dance," Allen said. "But I'm sure nobody got anything to drink out of it."

Two Injured In 3 Sunday Accidents

Two persons were injured and an estimated $6,100 property damage reported in three collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Cars driven by Gerry Landis Fisher of 2710 South Memorial Drive and Edward Lee Pollard of 2816 Edwards St. collided about 5:58 p.m. according to police, on Tenth Street, 35 feet West of the Heath Street intersection, causing an estimated $1,800 damage to the Fisher car and $1,500 damage to the Pollard vehicle.

Both drivers were reported injured by investigators who said there were no charges.

Cars driven by Barbara Kay Gibson of 801 East Fifth St. and Thomas Michael Henderson of Winterville collided about 9:45 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets, resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Gibson car and $2,000 damage to the Henderson car.

No charges were reported by officers who reported the Henderson car overturned 1½ times following the collision.

A 12 noon mishap on Watauga Avenue, 30 feet East of the Line Avenue intersection involved cars driven by Glenn Robert Edwards of 104C Lakeview Apts. and Oliver Kinion Brantley of 511B Watauga Ave.

Police, who reported no charges, estimated damage at $300 to the Edwards vehicle and $100 to the Brantley car.

Glum Indicators For U.S. 264

First the good news: A Department of Transportation official says a preliminary consultant's study recommends that both U. S. 64 and U. S. 264 should be improved, rather than to resort to a single corridor between the two.

Then the bad: The improvement of U. S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson is in the third, or lowest, priority recommended.

Ted Waters, manager of the Planning and Research with the N. C. Department of Transportation made the report to the local Chamber of Commerce last week.

The study was done by William Pollard Associates. It recommends as first priority the improvement of U. S. 64 from Rocky Mount to Tarboro. Second priority would be improvement of U. S. 264 between Greenville and Washington. The final priority would be the Greenville-Wilson link of U. S. 264.

While the report is preliminary the final version will be submitted to the state in approximately six weeks, Waters reported.

To give an idea of how far off the Greenville-Wilson U. S. 264 improvement would be, the total work on the two highways in this area encompasses a time frame of 20 years.

To put off the construction of a new U. S. 264 between Wilson and Greenville for that number of years is totally unacceptable, as anyone who drives on this congested section of antiquated roadway almost any day will attest. It is impossible for us to believe that any study would show that anything less than highest priority should be assigned to developing a new Wilson-Greenville corridor for U. S. 264.

If the William Pollard and Associates study shows that both U. S. 64 and U. S. 264 should be improved then we would say that it is headed in the right direction. But if it shows a low priority for a new Wilson-Greenville corridor then we think it might as well be thrown the waste basket as another useless study.

Everything points to rapid development of the U. S. 264 link — the projected growth of East Carolina University, Greenville, Wilson, Washington and other municipalities along the route, as well as the congestion on the present Greenville-Wilson section of U. S. 264 today.

We think citizens living along U. S. 264 should be given quick assurance by the administration that their highway needs will be met.

Bookkeeping Error Makes A Difference

It is difficult to understand how a $4.2 million bookkeeping error concerning medical malpractice insurance could be made.

Nevertheless it is good news that discovery of the error will mean rate reductions of up to 25 percent for doctors and hospitals in North Carolina.

Malpractice insurance rates have skyrocketed and it is the patients who finally wind up paying the bill. Any relief is welcome.

THIS AFTERNOON

Education, Jobs Related

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The building blocks are being slowly moved into place for major restructuring of North Carolina's economic development approach.

Considerable attention has been given the shifting of industry-hunting efforts to the Department of Commerce under Sec. D. M. Faircloth; to creation of an economic development board to shape policy and aggressively seek out new growth; to the involvement of Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. in a direct role in industry hunting.

Directions which will be put into gear when the organizational changes are completed at mid-year are fairly well visible as well: "targeting" local communities and industrial prospects which appear to match; dispersal to small town and rural settings; creation of "parks" containing several related operations; exploration of steps to make this state a center of the "knowledge industry" where research, storage and retrieval of information becomes the foundation of a growing business.

Raise Wages

Those efforts, it is hoped by state officials, will produce immediate results in terms of economic growth and a boost to per capita income for Tar Heels. The object is to boost the state out of bottom place in wages; near-bottom in per-capita income.

Other considerations aside, availability of an adequate labor supply is a prime one for landing new business.

A little-noted part of the reshaped economic growth plan now being hammered together in Raleigh has to do with the labor supply. Officials confess this operation will take much longer, and will not be as noticeable.

Studies carried out by the Department of Natural and Economic Resources and the Research Triangle Institute are being used to show a distinct relationship between educational levels and salaries.

Steps must be taken to move present students to higher levels, and to reach back for those who missed out. The state's low level of education is seen as both a result of—and a reason for—the low per capita income in the state.

BILL NOBLITT

As proof, the economic growth experts offer these statistics: This state is 45th nationally in median years of school completed (10.6) and seventh in numbers of people with less than five years of school (10 per cent). Nationally, more than half (52.3 per cent) of the people have a high school diploma. Here, ranking 48th, only 38.5 per cent are high school graduates.

Dropouts

The dropout rate in public schools is running about one-third of the students between ninth and 12th grades, the state has for some time ranked fifth nationally in number of men who fail mental requirements for military service.

Other school problems bleed over into employment: school dropouts are more likely to be job dropouts; discipline problems are likely to show up in resentment of supervision; tardiness and absenteeism patterns are repeated.

Most Tar Heel high school graduates are aiming at job—not college degrees. A survey of 1975 graduates showed 19,068 going straight to work, and 15,067 entering community college or technical institutes. Senior college was the destination for 22,261, and 2,250 enrolled in junior colleges. Another 2,612 went to a trade, business, or nursing school, and 3,556 entered the armed forces.

One of the goals in the reorganized economic development program will be creation of a manpower coordinating agency to pull together the various activities of the Department of Labor, Employment Security Commission, public school, community colleges, and representatives of business and industry in an effort to identify needs and develop skills for future jobs.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Stockpiling Of Resentment

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The reason prominent New York Democrats are hiding their anger over the sacking of Kenneth Axelson as Deputy Secretary of the Treasury is quickly found in President Carter's soaring popularity. No mere politician wants to run into that buzzsaw.

At the same time that the Carter administration decided it would rather switch than fight for Axelson's nomination, a reputable local pollster showed the President's approval in New York City at 87 per cent (compared with 40 per cent for Mayor Abe Beame). Eyeing that glorious evidence of Mr. Carter's honeymoon with the American people, New York politicians held their tongues about poor Axelson.

But resentment over what they consider shabby treatment is retained, to be boxed up until such time as the President's hold on the public may decline. In his handling of the Axelson incident, as in many other matters, Mr. Carter is stockpiling resentment which is likely to be unleashed against the President if and when his public support declines.

Anger over the treatment of Axelson is limited largely to New York. But other incidents are having similar impact.

Item: Western politicians, particularly governors, privately accuse the President of being oblivious to the calamitous drought. That resentment is fueled by their feeling that some presidential aides (if not Mr. Carter) are intent on ignoring a region swept by the Republicans last November.

Item: The George Meany wing of organized labor privately grumbles that its unprecedented activity in Mr. Carter's behalf last fall is repaid by neglect. After repeated inability to get through on the telephone to the presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan, one top AFL-CIO official concluded it was no inadvertence; he stopped placing calls to the White House about two weeks ago.

Item: The periodic rumblings of Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd reflect deep-seated apprehension among congressional Democrats that the President is going over their heads to the public. On Capitol Hill, public praise for the President's radio call-in triumph was matched by private distress.

But the most personalized example of suppressed hostility is Axelson, the J.C. Penney Co. senior vice president who earned the respect of the political community as Beame's deputy mayor for the past troubled year. To have dropped Axelson because of a grand jury investigation that had generated no evidence of wrongdoing breaks all the rules of the political game as played in New York.

Actually, the immediate decision to drop Axelson was made by the man who tapped him for the post: Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal. Blumenthal for weeks fought off associates who urged him to get rid of Axelson but finally agreed after reading the grand jury

QUESTION OF THE AGES

Why does a world presided over by an all-powerful and all-wise God contain so much trouble?

This question has always baffled even the most sincere believers. Some primitive African tribes explain this paradox by saying that although God is all-wise He has a half-witted brother who continually causes the divine plans to miscarry.

This naive legend has a grain of truth in it. God does not have a half-witted brother but He has a multitude of half-witted children who, because of their selfishness, perversity, and willfulness, cause His perfect plans to come to naught.

Man is the cause of the desperate state in which in every generation he finds himself. The present is not much different in this regard from the past. But an alternative is always held out to us: "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God has prepared for them that love Him."

I Am Only A TV Camera

I am a TV camera. My restless eye searches out the terrorists in the night, holding hostages with guns and machetes on the top floor of a building. I watch helmeted police in flak jackets clamber across roofs with their rifles at the ready. I try to pierce the painted windows looking for shadows of angry men who threaten to send heads rolling through the streets if their harsh demands are not met.

I am a TV camera. I sit and watch as police cars with their red lights twirling go flying through the streets. I see the ambulances loading up the wounded and go screaming off into the dark. I pick up the lonely correspondents standing in the cold waiting to report that nothing is happening.

I am a TV camera. I close in on the anguished faces of relatives waiting fearfully for word of their loved ones. I search for tears. I look for heartbreak, for any kind of emotion. I seek out a police official, a government spokesman, anyone who will say anything into my lens so I can transmit it to your screen. Every time my red light goes on, the crowds that always stand around me wave their arms to get attention and hope their friends at home will see them at the scene.

I am a TV camera. I play an all-important role in any act of terror. Everyone wants to be famous and it isn't enough to get your name

Other Editors Say Rights Elsewhere

(Greensboro Daily News)

As a signatory to the Helsinki Agreement, the United States is obligated to take an interest in the state of human rights in Eastern Europe. And as a matter of historical fact, the Communist regimes of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union are oppressive tyrannies.

Nonetheless, because President Carter has taken a strong personal interest in the fate of Soviet and East European dissidents in his first days in office, there has been a concern in some circles that the administration views human rights selectively.

Nothing could be further from the truth. In his press conference last week, President Carter noted, "I've expressed my concern about imprisoned political prisoners in South Korea, in Cuba... in several countries... in South America and I'll continue to do so. I have never had an inclination to single out the Soviet Union as the only place where human rights are being abridged."

The President's campaign statements about human rights are generally credited with inspiring the release of 300 political prisoners by the military regime in Chile shortly after the American election. Now the State Department has given further evidence of the universality of American concern for human rights by reducing foreign aid to three human rights violators — Argentina, Uruguay, and Ethiopia.

Of course, the foreign aid reductions are also selective. There are many other governments which violate human rights. Some of them, such as South Korea and the Philippines are judged to play a role in our national security. The three governments penalized are ones with slight ties to the United States receiving small amounts of American aid.

But this concrete action, while selective in its immediate effect, sends a universal signal to friends, enemies, and those in between—the United States is serious about human rights.

I can transmit fear far beyond the printed word, beyond anything people have ever seen before. I can do it live and in color.

Air Of Action Faded

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — When the Equal Rights Amendment furor died down three weeks ago, so did the General Assembly.

When ERA was hot, there was a feeling of action in the Legislative Building and the pace was rather fast. But, in the three weeks since the Senate killed ERA, the legislature has slowed its pace and become more deliberate, legislators seeming almost lethargic.

At first, it seemed as though legislators were taking a needed respite after six weeks of an almost constant barrage of ERA propaganda. Three weeks is more than enough for a rest, however.

The quiet now is actually the lull before the storm.

Sessions of the General Assembly traditionally begin cautiously with the pace gradually increasing over the months until the closing days when lawmakers frantically ram legislation through in an attempt to get their bills enacted before the adjournment hour.

This legislature had a different beginning. As predicted by legislative leaders about a month before the session began, the legislature jumped off to a rabbit start. The leaders had boastfully predicted that the 1977 General Assembly would be the most productive in the state's history, and it started out that way.

A major reason, they said, was that the Democratically controlled General Assembly had been fighting a Republican administration for four years. Finally, they said, Democrats were back in power and the legislature would be able to work cooperatively with Gov. Jim Hunt.

That initial rush has slowed. For one thing, Hunt has sent his bills over a little at a time rather than dump the full load on the lawmakers at one time. That has spread the workload and kept the pace slower.

Secondly, some legislators are waiting to file their bills. In some cases, they are still working on their proposals, but there are others who are waiting until more bills are in the hopper.

A fact of legislative life is that bills filed early in the session, when there isn't a lot of work to do, get picked apart in committee and on the floor. But, if a bill is filed later in the session, its sponsor usually doesn't have to fear that intense scrutiny.

That is not to say that lawmakers are trying to sneak anything through (though that has happened in the past). Rather, most legislators would just like to spare themselves the grief of their bills undergoing microscopic examination when a magnifying glass would suffice.

If the the future can be seen in the past, there is a lot of work ahead for the legislature. In 1975, 2,236 bills were filed in the General Assembly, 1,284 in the House and 952 in the Senate. As of Friday morning, there were 262 bills on file in the Senate and 501 in the House with about 150 disposed of so far.

Stability Of Bonds A Myth

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In the folklore of the market, bonds are stable and stocks are relatively erratic. Bonds also are predictable; they plod along, reacting to the major economic news in expectable ways.

That's the myth, and smart analysts of the market place, such as Sidney Homer of Salomon Brothers, pay about as much attention to popular impressions as they do to the Delphic oracle. Instead they seek evidence.

This is the evidence: Atchison General noncallable 100-year gold 4s, issued in 1895, rose from 70 to 105, fell to 70, rose to 140, fell to 50 and then rose to 63. Forget the long title; remember the price action.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Securities

Industry Institute at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, Homer reminded everyone that fluctuations don't belong just to the past. British Consol 2½s, he noted, have fallen from 99½ in 1946 to a recent price of 15.

Homer, a notorious, merciless puncturer of myths, will always have plenty to do, because myths are forever rising and floating about, the result perhaps of an educational system that attempts to clarify by simplifying.

There is the myth that "inflation is always with us." Said Homer: "In the 76 years in this century, the wholesale price average for the United States has not risen at all in 29 years, rose only nominally in 11 years..."

Including the war years, prices have risen significantly in 36 years, and in the years since World War Two they have risen by meaningful amounts in 16 years, but as the record shows, we have been free of the monster in some periods.

While Homer has a large catalog of myths to disbelieve, there is one that has particular importance for today, when everyone seems to be watching the Federal Reserve's actions in an attempt to foretell interest rates.

In Homer's compilation, it is Myth No. 12, that "interest rate forecasting is a science," a belief he calls "the most glamorous of all myths."

Many people, he believes, hold to the notion that an astute analyst, armed with monetary data and an array of computers, can forecast future interest rate levels, even though the miserable record of failure shouts a warning. It can't be done, said Homer in these words:

"The trouble is that even with all available economic statistics, levels and trends and with correct interpretations of this data, the analyst is not aware of a good half of the pertinent variables, for instance:

"The future of detente, events in China, in Africa, the future of Great Britain, the unwinding of international debts and credits, the trend of political and social opinion here and in Europe, and so on and so on."

What a fine admission by one of the finest analysts of interest rates. What a lesson to be remembered in this, the age of forecasting, the age that can't seem to do much with itself so is always trying to look into the next.

Not Much Individual Can Do On Electricity Costs

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article in a two part series about utilities rates and utility consumers' problems. This part of the series discusses public concern about utility problems and proposed methods to solve some of the problems.

Most days during the early morning hours in Greenville and Pitt County, the landscape is dark. About 5:30 a.m. tiny lights begin twinkling and by 7:15 a.m. thousands of lights are illuminating the sky, thousands of hair dryers are blowing, electric toothbrushes are buzzing, toasters popping and coffee pots percolating. The city and county become alive and this liveliness is visualized in measurements of units of electricity.

The necessity of electricity and its influence upon average living conditions today are causing increased electrical consumption and increased electrical rates.

A family who uses approximately 1,500 kilowatts in the Pitt County towns of Greenville, Winterville, and Ayden which are customers of Virginia Electric Power Company (VEPCO) will have an average electric bill of $100-$150 per month.

Many of these average families are accustomed to using additional electrical appliances but are not accustomed or prepared financially to pay the additional costs of electrical bills.

One of the main problems concerning the increase of utility bills is the fuel factor charge and its ability to skyrocket monthly bills. The constant fluctuation of the fuel factor charges makes it impossible to budget wisely. Some people, in dealing with the problems that the fuel factor charges involve, have said that the fluctuation of the rates is the real problem.

Charles Horne director of the Greenville Utilities Department said that most people would probably be able to cope with high fuel factor charges if they were a steady rate.

"If we could have the same fuel factor charge each month for 12 months most people could get along with it all right. At the end of the 12 months, an adjustment could be made and a new rate could be established. People would agree with this method much better," Horne said.

Senator I. Beverly Lake, Jr. is also concerned about the fluctuation of the fuel factor charges and has questioned the validity of the increases in the fuel factor. Senator Lake has filed a bill in the General Assembly which will rewrite the state utilities law particularly concerning fuel factors.

Sen. Lake spent five years with the state attorney general's office and headed the staff that represents the public in cases before the Utilities Commission.

"The basic problem now is that the utilities companies and the commission operate as though the companies have a right to a certain profit whether they operate efficiently or not," Lake said.

"We've lost sight of the fact that they've got to earn the right to it," he said.

Sen. Lake said that he feels that the utilities laws are antiquated. One provision of his bill will require rates to be based on what the companies actually paid for equipment or invested in it rather than the "fair value" estimate which is higher because of inflation making it more expensive to replace. Lake's bill calls for a more thorough investigation for fuel adjustment increases posed by power companies.

Lake said his bill will include a provision abolishing the fuel adjustment, a factor that has been used for only three years.

"The adjustment rates which are based on fluctuating costs ought to be considered more carefully. The utilities commission basically rubber stamps the power companies' requests. A formal request for a change in the fuel charges ought to be considered more carefully. The increase of the fuel charge is considered without the consideration of the regard of the varying up and down prices on other products' costs," Sen. Lake said.

Lake's bill also recommends that a private company be hired to conduct a management audit to determine whether the commission is being operated efficiently; and that the utilities commission investigate future power needs as mandated by the 1975 legislature.

"I have spoken to several members of the legislature and I feel certain that the bill will have a good chance of passing," Lake said.

Another proposed method of curtailing the soaring costs of utilities and fuel factor charges is the peak load price plan.

The Electric Utility Rate Design Study Group has reported that the idea of charging more for electricity during peak periods of usage has gained more popularity in industries and some residential areas.

According to the study group, peak-load pricing would encourage more usage in off-peak periods. It would also make electric rates more closely follow a utility companies' costs.

The Ayden Town Board discussed the possibility of purchasing equipment that would operate in a peak-load pricing method at its Monday meeting. Town Manager, Don Russell explained that such equipment would be the customers' only salvation from fluctuating fuel factor charges, but would be cost millions of dollars.

Individual retail customers such as Linda and Mike Pierce of Ayden are cutting down on their consumption of electricity, but the high fuel factor charges still plague the conservation-minded individual.

At the present time, unfortunately the individual's only successful battle against high utility rates is well disciplined conservation of usage. Legislators and utility officials will continue to study the possible ways of lowering the costs of utilities for individual consumers.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY,
County Extension Chairman
More profit! That's why corn farmers need to do a better job with corn planting. The number of plants per acre is critical to maximum yields, according to research carried out by N. C. State University.

Dr. Gene Krenzer, Extension

Crop Specialist, reported research carried out at the Plymouth and Rocky Mount research stations which show that yields increase up to plant populations of about 22,000 plants per acre yielded 163 bushels. At Rocky Mount where moisture was limited there was only a two bushel increase. (Corn planted 7.5 inches in 42 inch rows will give a plant population of 20,000/Acre.)

Krenzer notes that it is important to plant a given variety at the population recommended by the plant breeder. Most varieties will fall in the range of 18,000 to 22,000 plants per acre.

To insure proper plant population it is important to use the recommended planter plate and slow down the speed of the tractor. Tests show that a planter calibrated for 22,700 plants per acre at 3 miles per hour will only seed 21,100 when the speed is increased to 5 miles per hour.

Land Utilization Survey

A new way of collecting data for the annual Land Utilization Survey will be used in 1977. Until this year landowners have been asked for the information by tax lists. Now, however, a 10 per cent sample will be surveyed by a mailed questionnaire.

The N. C. Department of Agriculture will mail the questionnaires to a representative 10% of landowners. It will be in the mail in a few days. If you are among those selected please give careful attention to the information requested.

The N.C.D.A. summarized the data for each county and distributes it to agencies and others who can make use of it. The Land Utilization Survey provides a basis for many of the decisions made by government and industry. The information is especially important to Agriculture. So, please fill out the information requested and return the form as soon as you receive it.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Joy Temple Holiness Church located on Dickinson Avenue and Eighth Street, will have a church anniversary this week. Beginning Monday night through Friday night services will be held at 8 p.m. Guest speakers will present the service each night. The public is invited.

transcript. While showing no wrongdoing, that transcript made impossible an immediate clean bill of health for Axelsson.

Blumenthal was not acting in isolation. He could not help but feel pressure from senior presidential aides — White House counsel Robert Lipshutz and, to a lesser extent, Jordan — described at the Treasury as "antsy" about what was going to be done with Axelsson.

Although not described as antsy, Jimmy Carter himself was also making clear his intense interest. While there is no evidence of the President pushing Blumenthal to get rid of the problem, there is no evidence whatever of Mr. Carter trying to save Axelsson.

New York politicians believe a presidential salvage operation was in order since Axelsson had carefully alerted the administration to his potential tax difficulties when the appointment was first privately offered. By the code of the politicians, once Axelsson was given the green light to pull up stakes in New York (selling his apartment, quitting his job), Mr. Carter was constrained to fight for his nominee in the absence of hard derogatory information against him — information lacking at this writing.

The private indictment of Mr. Carter for breaking that New York political code is harsh. "Just what you would expect from puritan Jimmy, a cheap-shot puritan act," one non-puritan Democratic leader told us. A more thoughtful appraisal from another New York Democrat: "Carter has no friends outside his inner circle and he keeps showing he has no interest in making friends, so long as he's up in the ratings."

Those ratings form the bulwark against this stockpiled resentment. Should President Carter experience the drop in popularity that has befallen all his predecessors, he can expect those private complaints from the West, Capitol Hill, organized labor and New York to go public.

ARRESTED — Ex-President of the Congo Republic Alphonse Masamba-Debat, above, has been arrested on charges of organizing the four-man squad that assassinated President Marien Nguabi, it was announced over Radio Brazzaville. Masamba-Debat was deposed by Nguabi in a 1968 military coup. (AP Wirephoto)

U.S. Is Warned By Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev said today that relations between the United States and the Soviet Union cannot develop normally as long as the Carter administration defends Soviet dissidents.

"Washington's claims to teach others how to live, I believe, cannot be accepted by any sovereign state," Brezhnev told a congress of trade unions.

He said normal development of relations is "unthinkable" under these conditions, and he would not tolerate "interference into our internal affairs."

Brezhnev said there had been a "stagnation" in relations between Washington and Moscow since President Carter took office. He deplored this but expressed the hope that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's visit next weekend would change this situation.

Brezhnev said he hoped for an improvement in Soviet-American relations, but there must be "a certain level of mutual understanding and a minimum of mutual correctness."

Speaking about the dissident issue for the first time publicly since Carter and other members of his administration came out in defense of the opponents of the Soviet regime, Brezhnev said: "Some sort of ersatz is being invented and the semblance of an 'internal opposition' in socialist countries is being created by means of false publicity."

"That is the reason why the clamor about the so-called 'dissidents' is organized, why a hullabaloo is raised about 'violations of human rights' in the countries of socialism."

"In our country it is not forbidden to 'think differently' from the majority, to critically appraise various aspects of public life."

"It is another matter when some people who have broken away from our society come out actively against the socialist system, embark on the road of anti-Soviet activity, violate laws, and, having no support inside the country, turn for support abroad...."

"Quite naturally we have taken and will take against them measures envisaged by law," Brezhnev said to loud applause.

Three leading dissidents and several lesser dissenters have recently been arrested, and it is expected they will be brought to trial. Carter personally came to the defense of one of them, Alexander Ginzburg. He also sent a letter to the leading Soviet dissident, physicist Andrei Sakharov, promising a "firm commitment to promote respect for human rights not only in our country but also abroad."

Speaking to the United Nations on March 17, Carter declared: "No member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business."

Appointed To Naval Academy

George Preston Davis, Jr., a senior at Ayden-Grifton High School, has been notified by Senator Robert Morgan that he has received an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy as a member of the class of 1981.

Davis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis of Grifton, is a member of the varsity baseball team, the science club, the Key Club, the National Honor Society and was a member of the varsity football team.

Davis has also received a four year Naval ROTC scholarship.

YOUNG SCIENTISTS DISPLAY WORK — A whirling motor, a bell ringing, and the chatter of many scientific students filled Minges Coliseum Friday afternoon during the annual Eastern Regional Science fair. According to James Nicholson, director, the fair covered eight areas, and awards were given to student winners and teachers. There were only two entries in each category allowed by each school, making the total entries, according to Nicholson, about 300. The fair Nicholson said, is the only one of its kind in the state at this time. The fair is sponsored by the Science Education Department at East Carolina University. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Kite-Flying Contest Held

Winners in the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department kite-flying contest held Saturday are as follows:

Regular kite class: Brett Gibbs, 5-7 age group; Leslie House and Nancy Johnson, tied for first in the 8-9 age group; Billy Hall, second in the 8-9 group; Stephen Johnson, age 12-14 group.

Bird or bat kite class: Chris Pittman, first place in the 5-7 group; Sean Frelke, Kevin Ricks, Michael Nischan and Mark Cox, all tied for second in that division; Scott Davis, first in the 8-9 group, followed by Stephen Fredericks (second) and Walt Pollard (third); Stuart Pittman, first place in the 10-11 division, with Craig Ricks (second) and Derek Dickens (third); Greg Davis, first place in the 12-14 bracket, with Jack Cox (second) and Kent Greene (third).

Ollie Maye won the homemade kite division. Michael Cox placed second and David Lee, third.

Competes For Scholarship

Miss Margaret Yelverton of Farmville has been invited to participate in the March 25 competition for the Julia Hamlet Harris Scholarships offered by Meredith college. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yelverton of Farmville.

The Harris Scholarships at Meredith range from $100 to $1,200 per year. Winners will be notified of their selection April 1.

Dog Obedience Classes Set

A ten week program of dog obedience lessons begins at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 29 in the Elm St. Gym. Each dog must be at least four months old. Registration fee is $25, with the instructor providing a collar and lead. Interested persons are to pre-register by calling the Recreation and Parks Department at 752-4137.

Involvement By Seniors Urged

MOREHEAD CITY — A satisfying life for senior citizens can come through involvement and placing people above all else, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins suggested Monday.

"This is a very appropriate theme for senior citizens — involvement," he said. "The person who leads a satisfying life places people above all else."

"This fights off isolation and loneliness."

"This person knows that human value cannot be measured in terms of productivity, or gauged by the esteem of others. This inner need can only be satisfied by human involvement."

Dr. Jenkins, veteran president and chancellor of East Carolina University, spoke to the Carteret County chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons here.

He recalled that some 15 years ago he wrote an article published in the North Carolina Medical Journal about preparing for the late years in life.

"My perspective is not much different now," he said. "In other words, I do not think age depends entirely on years. It depends on health and mental outlook."

"Some men are born old. Some never grow so."

In less than 25 years the number of Americans over 65 years of age will be almost 31 million, Jenkins said.

"This is a great hunk of our society that cannot be allowed to withdraw."

Outrage Due To Accident

FARMVILLE — A Farmville woman was injured and a large part of the town was without electrical power for about 20 minutes Friday night following an automobile accident on S. George Street here.

The driver of the car which hit a utility pole in the 200 block of S. George Street here told the investigating officer, Sgt. J. W. Ellis, that he was suddenly unable to control the steering of the car. Sgt. Ellis identified the driver as Johnny Earl Williams, 20, of Rt. 4, Greenville. The only passenger, Shirley Jean Thomas, 19, of 205 Zeno Street was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The owner of the car was listed as William Thomas Gorham of Falkland. Damages to the car were estimated at $700.

Damage to the utility pole was listed at $600, with $200 damage to Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company lines.

No charges were made in the 8:55 p.m. accident.

Near Inch Of Rain Sunday

The first day of spring was wet in the Greenville area, as almost an inch of rainfall was recorded at the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station.

Precipitation was measured at 0.94 inches. The high temperature yesterday was 54 degrees, and the low was 43. The Tar River was measured at 11.7 feet on the National Weather Service gauge.

Now that spring is officially here, planting will begin, according to Gaylon Ambrose of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension service.

"This week and next week we'll be involved with land preparation for the tobacco crop and the planting of corn," he said.

"We've got a lot of work to do. If Mother Nature cooperates and gives us some fair weather, we'll be O.K."

Researchers Report No Damage By Marijuana

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — There is no evidence that heavy marijuana smoking changes the structure of the brain or central nervous system, two research groups conclude, despite earlier evidence that part of the brain wasted away under prolonged smoking.

The new studies, carried out independently, are reported in the March 21 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

The earlier study was reported in 1971 in Lancet, a British medical journal, in which researchers testing 10 young men who were heavy users of marijuana found evidence of atrophy in the brain.

The British study, conducted by Dr. A.M.G. Campbell of Bristol Royal United Hospitals and his colleagues, was done with an X-ray technique involving injection of air or gas to outline portions of the brain.

The new studies involved a recently developed X-ray technique, called computerized transaxial tomography, in which no gas injection is needed to outline sections of the brain as the head is scanned.

One was conducted by Dr. Ben Co, of the Washington University school of medicine in St. Louis, and by Dr. Donald Goodwin, of the University of Kansas school of medicine in Kansas City, Kan., and their colleagues.

The second was carried out by a team of Harvard medical school researchers headed by Dr. John Kuehne.

The first of the two studies involved 12 young men who had smoked five or more marijuana cigarettes a day for at least five years.

The Harvard team studied 19 males from middle-to upper-class socioeconomic backgrounds who were heavy marijuana smokers. They were kept in a hospital research ward so their behavior could be closely watched. They smoked five or more marijuana cigarettes, obtained from federal sources, daily for 21 days.

Co and Goodwin said "the only prudent conclusion to draw" from their study is that "young men with extensive exposure to cannabis (marijuana) over a number of years do not necessarily show evidence of cerebral atrophy." That statement was echoed by the Harvard researchers.

Parties Expired

Alex K. Brock, executive secretary-director of the State Board of Elections, announced in a memorandum to county elections boards that three state political parties have expired after failing to poll enough votes in the general election last November.

Brock noted that the American, Labor and Libertarian Parties "failed to poll at least ten per cent of the entire vote cast in the state for governor or for presidential electors...as required by General Statutes 163-97, and they have therefore expired."

The official directed the county boards to change the registration record of all individuals on current registration rolls who are affiliated with the three parties to the designation, "No Party."

Registrations are valid now for Democratic, Republican and Independent Parties, as well as under the No Party designation.

Set Secretarial Clinic Mar. 23

The clinic is open to all secretaries in the Greenville area, as well as the secretarial students at ECU and Pitt Technical Institute.

Study sessions and instructors include the following: Margaret Whitehurst and George Clack of "Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company," "Telephone Techniques"; Bunny Powers of Overton and Powers Realty Company, "Grace In Motion"; Helen Howell and Lisa Kanne of La Kosmetique Beauty Salon, "Hair Care and Styling"; Billie Jean Trevathan of Lady East Cosmetics, "Skin Care and Use of Cosmetics"; and Mary Jo Beck of C. Heber Forbes, "Wardrobe Extenders".

Brayom E. Anderson Jr. will be the speaker at the luncheon and will discuss "Adventures In Attitudes".

Mrs. Thadys Dewar, Associate Professor, Bus. Ed. and Office Adm., will direct a role-playing session depicting awkward office situations; Dr. Harold McGrath Professor Bus. Ed. and Office Adm., will discuss organizing time and work and Dr. John Swope, Assistant Professor, Bus. Ed. and Office Adm., will assist participants in determining their "AYARP" IQ. Dr. Frances Daniels, Professor, Bus. Ed. and Office Adm., will moderate a panel discussion.

Informal modeling will be held and various office equipment will be displayed.

Sponsors Say 'Lifeline' Is In Trouble

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Even the sponsors of "lifeline" electric rate legislation admit it is in deep trouble.

The bill, intended to help the poor meet the spiraling costs of electricity, ran into hostile questioning the two times it has been considered by legislative committees. The measure would require power companies to place their lowest rates on the first 350 kilowatt hours of power their residential customers use each month. In the past the utilities have charged their highest rates for this power.

"I'm beginning to feel the bill is in a lot of trouble," said Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland, one of several sponsors of the bill.

"I do feel that the lifeline rates bill is in trouble," agreed Sen. Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham, another sponsor.

"I think the federal government is going to have to issue stamps or something to help people on a fixed income meet their power bills," Webster stated. "We've got to do something up here for these senior citizens who are on a fixed income," Raynor added.

Legislative public utility committees will hold a public hearing on the issue Wednesday afternoon.

One of the most outspoken foes of the lifeline proposal at legislative committee meetings has been Sen. Jack Childers, D-Davidson. "I do object to picking out this private enterprise and using it for dispensing social service," Childers said.

Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said the present electric power rate structure "has some subsidy in it for large volume users." "The lifeline proposal will force us to look at the subsidy issue and make a policy decision that if there is to be a subsidy then the first 350 kilowatt hours might as well get it as anyone else," Smith added.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, said that helping low income citizens pay their utility bills is commendable, "but I have grave doubts this proposal (lifeline rates) will accomplish that end."

"Personally, I think it should be defeated and the poor people should be helped in some other manner," said Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, said that what the power companies would lose by applying their lowest rates to the first 350 kilowatt hours used by a residential customer would have to be made up by increasing other rates, possibly industrial rates. He said if an industry's costs go up it would increase its prices so that the same people benefited by lifeline rates would have "to pay more for food, shoes and other things they buy."

"I think the people they're trying to help need help," Lawing said, "but I don't think the lifeline method is the best way to do it."

Legislature Shows Rise In Activity

By SAM D. BUNDY
N. C. House of Representatives
Things are booming now. The lethargy and inactivity are now giving way to a faster pace and more activity. Bills are now flowing in faster than the computer can handle them.

Ninety bills were introduced this week, which runs the total well over 500. Twenty-seven were put in the hopper Friday.

Although the ERA did not pass in the North Carolina General Assembly, several bills dealing with "no sex bias" have been introduced and are being studied by committee. Moreover, three or four such bills have already been passed and ratified.

Probably the bills drawing the most interest this week were the ones providing for statewide testing. One bill calls for annual testing in Grades One, Two, Three, Six, and Nine. The other one is a bill to require a competency test in high school before graduation. Lines are being formed on the right and left and the battle lines are being drawn. The stated purpose of these two bills revolves around the accountability of the public schools and an assessment of the educational process. Two public hearings have already been held by joint meetings of the Senate and House Education Committees. The testing program is one initiated and backed by Gov. Hunt.

See you next week.

Shad Fishing Moves Slowly; Few In Contest

GRIFTON — Shad fishing has been going slowly according to the employees of the Grifton Sport Shop, the official weighing station for the Grifton Shad Festival Fishing Contest.

Few people have entered the contest. The largest fish registered weighed two pounds and eight ounces and was caught by Mike Baldree. Two other fish in the adult division weighed one pound and 12 ounces.

In the junior division Felix Croom III entered a fish that weighed two pounds and four ounces.

The smallest fishes entered were a fish entered by R. T. Daughtey weighing 10 ounces and a fish entered by Bill Worthington weighing seven and a half ounces.

Student Team In Competition

Four Farmville students will take a written test Tuesday at Plymouth High School to try to qualify for the state championship of the Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest.

Louis Peadar, Falkland; Billy Gibson, Greenville; Joe Pickett, Farmville; and Ronnie Everette, Greenville; have qualified in the school's competition for the contest.

The state finals will be held at the state fairgrounds May 5 and national finals are scheduled for June in Atlanta.

Return From A 2-Day Session

A delegation of Jehovah's Witnesses from this county has just returned from a two-day convention in Fayetteville.

'Men From UNCC' Tournament's Cinderella Story

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Top-rated Michigan and third-ranked Kentucky bit the dust Saturday, No. 2 UCLA bowed out two days earlier and San Francisco, which held the top spot for much of the season, has been long gone from the National Collegiate basketball championships. But the "Men from UNCC" are still alive.

The "Men from UNCC" isn't a TV spy story. It's more a Cinderella tale in which a school whose basketball history only dates back a dozen years knocks off the No. 1 team in the nation to make the championship round-of-four in Atlanta next weekend.

If you're not aware of it by now, UNCC stands for the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, as differentiated from THE University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which also advanced to the national semifinals and which hereafter shall be known simply as "North Carolina."

College Roundup

Joining them are Marquette and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Saturday afternoon's nationally televised semifinals sends fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas against No. 5 North Carolina, followed by the "Men from UNCC," rated 17th, against seventh-ranked Marquette.

The pairings came about last Saturday when North Carolina upset Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional, the "Men from UNCC" shocked mighty Michigan 75-68 in the Midwest, Marquette trimmed Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest and Nevada-Las Vegas ran away from Idaho State 107-90 in the West Regional.

If UNCC meets UNLV in the finals, it might be mistaken for a spelling bee. And North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has suggested that the NCAA's name be changed to North Carolina Athletic Association. Imagine if Wake Forest had made it, too.

The No. 1 Man from UNCC is a lanky 6-foot-8 center with the catchy handle of Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who led the 49ers past Michigan with a 25-point, 13-rebound show. Lew Massey added 19 and Kevin King helped hold Michigan center Phil Hubbard to just 14.

"We've never played guys like that before," marveled Michigan All-American Rickey Green, who led the Wolverines with 20 points. "Their arm reach was so long I couldn't believe it. No matter how high you'd get your shot, it seemed like they'd be waiting to tip it."

If UNCC is Cinderella, veteran Marquette Coach Al McGuire, with his past penchant for drawing costly technicals, certainly isn't Prince Charming. However, McGuire will have plenty of followers in Atlanta, having announced his retirement at the end of this season.

McGuire would have been granted early retirement but for a career-high 18-point performance against Wake Forest by 6-9 substitute Bernard Toone to go with Bo Ellis' 20 and Butch Lee's 19. Toone, a sophomore, will be back on the bench when the ball goes up against UNCC. And he'll probably be off the bench in a hurry if the Warriors fall behind again.

North Carolina was comfortable most of the way against Kentucky's physical Wildcats despite the loss of foul-plagued, sore-elbowed All-American Phil Ford for the last 19 minutes. While he was in there, Ford scored only two points. But his back-court mate, John Kuester, took over, running the Tar Heels' four-corner offense down the stretch and hitting four crucial free throws in the final 72 seconds after Kentucky had whacked a 15-point deficit to just one.

The injury-plagued Tar Heels also played without center Tommy LaGarde, out for the season with a knee injury, while Walter Davis scored 21 points despite a broken index finger on his shooting hand.

Ford, LaGarde and Davis all were members of the United States gold medal-winning Olympic basketball team.

It would have been Cinderella vs. Cinderella had Idaho State beaten run-and-gun Nevada-Las Vegas. But after trailing 52-51 at the half, UNLV's Runnin' Rebels caught fire following a pep talk from Coach Jerry Tarkanian and outscored the Bengals 20-7 in the first seven minutes of the second half.

"I gave them a scolding," Tarkanian reported. "The first half, we played like we were in a trance. We didn't play with any intensity. We're not a good basketball team unless we play with intensity."

Eddie Owens scored 13 of his 24 points and Robert Smith had 12 of his 18 in the second half.

Wind Helps Hayes In Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The youth movement continues.

His victory in the Tournament Players Championship came as a mild surprise to Mark Hayes. But the quiet, 27-year-old used the wind as his ally and extended for still another week the youthful revolution that has shaken the pro golf tour.

With the season 11 weeks old, only Jack Nicklaus has been able to win against the horde of youngsters who, week after week, have bettered the best efforts of golf's established stars.

This time the supporting cast included some of the game's greatest names — Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd. All fired and fell back in the howling winds that turned the alligator-infested Sawgrass course into an unbeatable monster.

Hayes' credentials — two victories and more than $150,000 in earnings last year — are such that his triumph couldn't be classified as an upset. But even he didn't expect it.

"I really wasn't in it over the front nine," said the Oklahoma State product, who joined the tour in the fall of 1973. "But then all the leaders started to make bogey and kind of came back to me."

Mike McCullough, a non-winner who had led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, claimed second with a birdie on the last hole. He had a 75, a 291 total and the biggest check of his five-year career, $34,200. Hayes won $60,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

Irwin, with a closing 74, and Australian Bruce Devlin, 72, tied for third at 292. At 293 were defending champion Nicklaus, 74; veteran internationalist Graham Marsh, 71, and Tom Watson, 77. Floyd, in the title chase most of the way, went to a 78-296.

CORNBREAD FOR TWO — North Carolina-Charlotte center Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell goes up for a rebound against Michigan's Phil Hubbard in Saturday's NCAA Midwest regional tournament. Maxwell scored 25 points, dominated the boards with 13 rebounds and helped his team defeat the top-ranked Wolverines, 75-68. (AP Wirephoto)

Petty Takes Atlanta 500

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — There is a sign on the wall in Richard Petty's garage which says, "There are good years, and there are bad years...and then there was last year."

Petty had fewer victories last year in Grand National stock car racing than at any time in his career since 1961.

But now there is this year. Things have turned around completely for the six-time national champion.

"We've won two out of five so far this season, and I suppose with a little better luck, we could have had a chance to make it five out of five," Petty said after winning Sunday's Atlanta 500.

"There are only three or four cars that can win everytime out—the ones that don't have trouble win, and the ones who do not."

"We were never really in a position to do it last year."

But with some diligent work in the off-season, Petty's crew came up with some extra horsepower.

"Yes, we have more horsepower, but most of them out there are pulling substantially more horsepower."

Pirate Golfers Must Improve To Win League

East Carolina's 1977 golf team will show a lot of inexperience mixed in with a few pressure-tough veterans.

"Right now, Furman and Marshall look to be the class of the conference," Coach Mac McLendon said recently. "Furman returns all of its team that won the conference last year (by 20 strokes over East Carolina). Marshall is a really tough team and should push them."

McLendon said the Pirates will have to lower their scores considerably to win the conference. "We've been set back quite a bit by the cold weather. We need a few weeks of good weather to get some practice in."

East Carolina returns five members from last year's team which finished second in the Southern. Keith Hiller finished seventh last year and is the top returnee. Mike Buckmaster, Frank Acker and Phil Bell also return and should see a lot of action.

"Our experienced people are going to have to get their scores down by the end of the season," McLendon added. "They are the ones we'll have to depend on. Phil Bell is doing a good job right now. He has lengthened his drives and his putting is coming around."

McLendon is happy with a couple of freshmen who are starting out the season with scores comparable to the vets.

"I was real pleased with the scores of David Brogan at Pinehurst," McLendon said. "He had a 74 in his practice round and rounds of 80-73-80 in the tourney. That was on the number two course, one of the toughest in the world."

"And Donnie Owens, though just a freshman too, has excellent potential. He could help us a lot before the season is over."

The Pirates are playing in two tournaments this week, their last before the Southern Conference Tournament at the end of next month. McLendon says this might be an asset to the team.

"We'll be able to get a lot of flaws out of our game with a month off."

McLendon has another experienced player, Ernie Massei, who has to get his fifth-year eligibility cleared before he plays.

"It would be nice to get Ernie back, he's a good golfer."

McLendon said the veterans would have to "really come on by the end of the season for us to have a chance in the conference. And the young guys will have to mature. It's gonna be a fight for us to finish higher than third."

Other members on the team include: sophomores John Abraham, Robin Saleeby, Bill Bonney and Clay Jordan and freshmen Ben Gilliam and Stan Stewart, as well as junior Mike Wrobel.

Basketball On Minds Of North Carolinians

By The Associated Press
North Carolina had basketball on its mind today even more than usual as the state emerged from the weekend with two teams in the upcoming NCAA national semifinals in Atlanta.

Gov. Jim Hunt got so carried away with the state's good fortune, he couldn't resist the temptation to take a little credit for himself.

"I've been talking a lot about making North Carolina a leader in the nation," Hunt said. "Well, I've only been governor for two months and we've already done something no other state has done — put two teams in the national finals."

The governor's claim that it hasn't been done before was inaccurate — Kentucky and Ohio have sent two teams to the semifinals in years gone by — but Hunt's enthusiasm reflected feelings of fans all over the state.

The fifth ranked Tar Heels of North Carolina swept past Kentucky, 79-72, Saturday to take the Eastern Regionals, and 17th ranked University of North Carolina at Charlotte topped No. 1 Michigan to take the Midwest Regional title.

There was one disappointment. Wake Forest fell to seventh ranked Marquette, 82-68, in the Midwest.

Thousands of fans greeted the two victorious teams upon their return home, the Tar Heels Saturday and the 49ers on Sunday, when an estimated 5,000 people thronged into Douglas Airport.

UNCC meets Marquette in Atlanta Saturday, while the Tar Heels must play Nevada-Las Vegas. If both North Carolina teams win, they meet each other for the national NCAA crown the following Monday.

UNCC appeared to be tired when the team arrived in Charlotte Sunday, but in Chapel Hill the Tar Heels had what could be a more serious problem.

Star guard Phil Ford injured his elbow in last Thursday's game against Notre Dame and scored only two points against Kentucky Saturday.

All Little League managers, coaches, league officials and players should attend this meeting.

St. Bonaventure Gets NIT Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever hear of a basketball player who recruits himself? Greg Sanders did.

"I sent St. Bonaventure a brochure about my high school career," says Sanders, "just to make sure they knew I was alive."

St. Bonaventure got the message — and then got Sanders. It turned out to be a happy correspondence.

Sanders became one of the school's best forwards and led the Bonnies to a dramatic 94-91 victory Sunday over Houston in the final of the 40th National Invitation Tournament.

"This is just a dream come true," said Sanders in the euphoria of the winners' locker-room at Madison Square Garden. "This is just wonderful."

Sanders says that he had 150 offers for his services, but ultimately settled on St. Bonven-ture "because I wanted to be a big fish in a small pond."

He has developed into the team's leading scorer — and Sunday was certainly the big shot on the court. Sanders scored 40 points, including the go-ahead shot with 40 seconds left.

When Sanders first let the ball fly, St. Bonaventure Coach Jim Satalin was not sure it was a high-percentage shot.

"I looked at it and it was one of those 'No, no, no — oh, yes!' shots," said Satalin. "Had it not gone in, that would have been a bad shot."

Crowd Welcomes 49ers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Thousands of happy basketball fans thronged Douglas Airport here Sunday to welcome home an their Cinderella basketball team, the 49ers of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The 17th ranked 49ers shook the college basketball world Saturday by upsetting No. 1 Michigan, 75-68, to win the NCAA Midwest Regional at Lexington, Ky.

Many in the crowd carried signs which proclaimed their team No. 1 already, although UNCC will have to beat Marquette next Saturday if it wants a shot at a firmer claim to that title in the NCAA championship game.

The crowd surged past police when the plane taxied to a halt at the gate and great crescendoes of applause greeted the stars as they emerged, showing signs of tournament fatigue.

Misses Practice, Hits 40 Points

By The Associated Press
If practice makes perfect, you can't prove it by JoJo White of the Boston Celtics.

The stellar guard, the only Boston player allowed to miss practice Saturday so he could rest his sore ankle, scored a career-high 41-points Sunday — 18-of-25 from the floor, 5-for-5 at the foul line, eight assists — to lead the Celtics to a 118-110 National Basketball triumph over the Kansas City Kings.

NBA Roundup

"It was one of the days when things are all going well," White said. "I'm still sore, but my leg felt good and I felt like running and playing. I was getting good shots. It was just a matter of putting them in."

In other NBA games, the Denver Nuggets walloped the Detroit Pistons 133-104, the Washington Bullets trounced the San Antonio Spurs 135-116, the Cleveland Cavaliers downed the Buffalo Braves 115-108, the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the New Orleans Jazz 100-95, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the New York Nets 111-104, the Phoenix Suns topped the Portland Trail Blazers 126-106 and the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Milwaukee Bucks 110-107.

Nuggets 133, Pistons 104
David Thompson's 29 points paced six Denver players in double figures. The victory extended their lead over Detroit to four games in the Midwest Division. Dan Issel contributed 26 points to the Denver attack while M.L. Carr paced Detroit with 29.

Bullets 135, Spurs 116
Elvin Hayes missed 16 minutes with foul trouble but scored 24 points to help Washington run up its largest total of the season, end a five-game losing streak and break a second-place tie with San Antonio in the Central Division, three games behind Houston. Phil Chenier led Washington with 25 points, Tom Henderson scored 23 while collecting nine assists and Kevin Grevey had 21.

Cavaliers 115, Braves 108
Austin Carr and Dick Snyder led a second-half surge that helped Cleveland to its third triumph in as many days. Buffalo's Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 37 points, 22 in the first half.

Lakers 100, Jazz 95
Los Angeles overcame a 46-point performance by New Orleans' Pete Maravich and increased its percentage to .628 to the Denver's .620 in the all-important race for the best percentage in the Western Conference. The team with the best percentage will receive a first-round bye in the playoffs. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 and Cazzie Russell 20 to lead the Lakers.

76ers 111, Nets 104
George McGinnis scored 28 points to lead Philadelphia to its fourth consecutive victory and Julius Erving added 24 points. The 76ers are now tied with Houston for the best record in the Eastern Conference at 43-27.

Suns 126, Trail Blazers 106
Rookie Ron Lee scored 13 points as Phoenix outscored Portland 39-28 in the fourth period. The Suns had six men in double figures, led by Alvan Adams' 27 points.

SuperSonics 111, Bucks 107
Slick Watts' steal and lay-up with 30 seconds left enabled Seattle to snap a 10-game home winning streak and four victories over-all for the Bucks.

Bucs Eleventh In Tournament

DURHAM — East Carolina University stands in 11th place after the first half of play in the Iron Duke Invitational golf tournament at Duke University Sunday.

The University of North Carolina leads the tournament with a total score of 541, followed by N. C. State at 544, Wake Forest at 547, Marshall at 554 and Maryland at 557.

The Pirates are in 11th place with a total of 575 out of 15 teams.

The individual leader in the tournament is Bill Hamilton of NCSU with a 102 for 27 holes. David Brogan is the low man for ECU with a 27-hole score of 110. Other Buc scores are Donnie Owens 112, Frank Acker 116, Mike Buckmaster 118, Keith Hiller 119 and Phil Bell 120.

ECU coach Mac McLendon said he was pleased with the play of the Pirate freshmen, Brogan and Owens, and that he was glad to have Frank Acker back after an illness which has kept him off the team so far this year.

The final 27 holes of the tournament will be played today.

Lyle Wins Split

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Boxing's heavyweight division took another turn Sunday when power-puncher Ron Lyle of Denver hammered out a 12-round split decision over British heavyweight champion Joe Bugner.

Bugner was the fourth-ranked contender going into the fight. Last Thursday, it was the boxer, Jimmy Young, who upset the brawler, George Foreman.

From the beginning, Lyle, 218, went after the bigger Bugner, 229½, never backing away. Lyle said he tried to go for a knockout early but found Bugner a "very good defensive fighter."

So the strategy was changed. Lyle moved inside, using a vicious right to relentlessly pound Bugner's mid-section, then moving with left and right upper cuts to Bugner's face.

Investigative Team Says Corruption War Sagged

By The Associated Press
Published accounts of a series by a team of investigative reporters focus on the political and business activities of Arizona Gov. Raul Castro.

The stories appearing in print say that when Castro took office in 1975 "he attacked the climate of corruption with gusto and a hint of sincerity. Perhaps it is too early to state there has been a dramatic fall from that lofty promise, but signs of slippage are evident."

Published accounts of the report appeared in the Monday editions of the Indianapolis Star available Sunday night

Castro was in Washington to attend Interior Department hearings on the Central Arizona Water Project. A press aide said Castro would not respond until after reviewing the published reports.

The series is the work of the Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., and is based on a six-month probe of organized crime in Arizona. The project, involving journalists from 24 newspapers and two broadcast outlets, was started after the murder of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles. The stories were released to participating newspapers starting Sunday March 13.

Published accounts of Monday's installment — the ninth — listed these findings:

—Castro failed to report as income in a state declaration a vacation home in San Carlos Bay, northern Mexico, given to him in 1974 in payment of a legal fee. According to the stories, Castro received the house — worth $25,000 to $40,000 — as payment for preparing contracts for the San Carlos resort development. "The house ... does not appear in his sworn declarations of income with the secretary of state for 1974, 1975 or 1976. It does appear ... as a property asset."

The published accounts quoted an exchange between Castro and IRE reporters in which Castro said he would have to check with his accountant to see if he had reported the house as income on his 1974 U.S. income tax statement. "Two weeks after the interview, the governor's office said he was still checking," the printed stories said.

—Castro "held meetings in the governor's office and a Washington, D.C., hotel with a former client he himself describes as a 'con man ... schemer ... swindler' ... The former client paid Castro with a $10,000 check which he never cashed," the published accounts of the series said.

—The governor "dismisses suggestions of conflict of interest as well-intentioned mistakes," the printed stories said, detailing Castro's appointment of Kemper Marley to the state racing commission. Marley was

Castro's largest single campaign contributor and the biggest liquor wholesaler in the state, according to the published accounts, which add: "Marley was forced to resign, not long after his appointment, because reporter Don Bolles wrote a series of articles on Marley's past associations with liquor tax rackets and malfeasance while serving on the state fair and highway commissions."

Marley has been accused in a police affidavit filed in court of ordering Bolles' murder. He has not been charged. One man has pleaded guilty to second degree murder in Bolles' death; two are awaiting trial.

According to the published accounts, the IRE found that Castro knew about Marley's background before appointing him to the state racing commission. The stories said the reporters found that Marley had been recommended for the job by Dwight Patterson, who served as state-appointed trustee for Emprise Corp., half owner of Arizona's dog racing monopoly, while Emprise was appealing a federal court conspiracy conviction. The conviction involved hidden ownership of a Las Vegas casino by Detroit mob figures.

The stories in print said that when the Emprise appeal was rejected, the company set up a new corporation, Ramcorp Metals, to take over its Arizona interests.

Marley's appointment to the racing commission, the published accounts said, represented "a potential conflict of interest" since he had been selling liquor to Emprise concessions for 30 years.

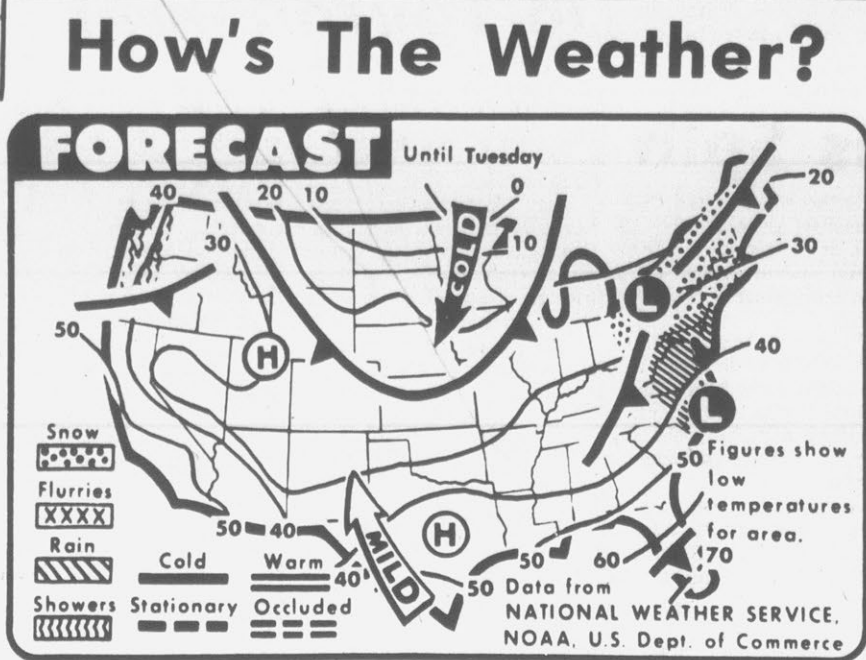

Published accounts of the series said that when the Arizona Republic "first confronted the governor with information on Marley, Castro said he intended to go through with the appointment in deference to a 20-year friendship with Marley. Then he would ask Marley to resign — which he did."

—In 1975, Castro organized an agricultural goodwill tour of Europe and the Soviet Union. Among the tour members, according to the published accounts, were farmers and ranchers "including applicants for the biggest amounts of water from the Central Arizona Project, the mammoth $3 billion federal reclamation project ... The farmers and ranchers were solicited for the tour — at Castro's request — by State Water Commissioner Jack Shawver, who ultimately would be voting on applications for CAP water." (The project is one of several for which President Carter has proposed dropping funding.)

—A company owned by Castro friends got a state contract by putting in a low bid for the services, "then getting state approval for cost overruns and rent hikes." According to the published accounts, the incident involved office space in Tucson for the Department of Economic Security.

—The stories in print said that "Castro told IRE he did not recognize the names of a series of mob-associated businessmen whose names appeared on a list of Castro campaign contributors."

WEATHER FORECAST — A combination of rain and snow is forecast today for a large portion of the East Coast. Snow is anticipated from Maine south to Pennsylvania, and rain is expected as far south as North Carolina. Showers are also indicated for coastal portions of Oregon and Washington. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A fast-moving cold front pushed storm clouds into western North Carolina this morning, cooling the second day of spring and raising the prospects of heavy winds and rain for much of the state.

The forecast says rain is likely for the west and possible in the eastern portions of the state, with lows ranging from the 30s in the mountains to near 50 along the coast. The advancing cold front is expected to produce storm-like winds and heavy rains in some locations.

The precipitation is expected to clear from the west early Tuesday, with rain lingering along the coast.

An extended forecast calls for fair and cool Wednesday and Thursday, with highs in the 50s and lows in the 30s, except 20s in the mountains.

Courses Are Set At PTI

Pitt Technical Institute will offer the following courses during the spring quarter:

Crewel Embroidery: This 30 hour course will meet each Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 7 on the Pitt Tech campus.

Motorcycle Care and Tune Up: This 15 hour course will meet each Tuesday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 23 of the Pitt Tech campus.

Sewing II: This 30 hour course will meet each Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 207.

Speed Reading: This 20 hour course in speed reading will meet each Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 206 of the Humber Building. The course is designed to increase one's rate of reading while improving comprehension.

To register for one of these courses one must be 18 years of age or older and not enrolled in public school. The registration fee is $5. For further information contact the Continuing Education Division of Pitt Tech at 756-3130, extension 238 or 266.

Nine Weekend Traffic Deaths Across Carolina

By The Associated Press
A two-year-old girl killed in a three-car smashup in Mecklenburg County Saturday was one of nine weekend traffic deaths in North Carolina, the state Highway Patrol reported.

The deaths brought the state's traffic fatalities for the year to 238, compared to 279 at this time last year.

A 20-year-old woman, Vanessa Elaine Pratt, of Durham, died Saturday when the car in which she was riding went out of control while attempting to pass another vehicle and struck a ditch on a rural paved road seven miles north of Durham. The patrol said the woman was thrown from the vehicle, which overturned several times and landed on her.

A three-car wreck on Interstate 85 in Mecklenburg County Saturday claimed the life of Lori Suzette Tanner, 2, of Charlotte. The patrol said she was riding in a car traveling in the northbound lane that was struck when a vehicle in the southbound lane struck another vehicle, knocking it across the median.

Also killed Saturday was James Elmer Daniels, 53, of Taylorsville. The patrol said Daniels was driving a farm tractor that ran off a rural paved road, went down an embankment and overturned in Alexander County. Daniels was pinned under the vehicle.

Janice Marie Parker, 12, of Maysville was killed Friday night when the trailer in which she was riding was struck by a car. The patrol said the trailer was being towed by a farm tractor on a rural road in Onslow County.

William Henry Edgerton, 53, of Henderson, was killed Friday night when he was struck by a car while standing on N.C. 39 about nine miles north of Louisburg, the patrol said.

Laura Rene Spell, 14, of Burlington, died when the car in which she was riding went out of control and ran off a rural paved road in Guilford County Friday night.

Edward Green, 49, of Rt. 1, Hallsboro, died Friday night when the car in which he was riding struck the rear of another vehicle about a half mile north of Lake Waccamaw in Columbus County.

Linda Sue Anderson, 17, of Liberty, died when her car was struck in the side by another vehicle early Saturday. The patrol said the accident occurred early Saturday when another vehicle crossed the center line on a rural paved road about a mile south of Burlington.

Carl Lee Lattimore, 24, of El-lenboro, died Saturday morning when his car went out of control at high speed, struck an embankment and overturned several times on a rural paved road in Rutherford County, the patrol said.

New VYDATE two-shot tobacco plan stops both nematodes and flea beetles.

Now you can apply VYDATE preplant incorporated in your tobacco fields for nematodes, and later add VYDATE to your transplant water for flea beetles and nematodes.

This new VYDATE plan gives you proven, effective protection against your two worst pest problems. With both nematodes and flea beetles under control, you can look forward to vigorous early growth leading to uniform flowering, and larger, more uniform leaves at harvest. Here's the two-shot plan:

Shot one: Broadcast VYDATE preplant and incorporate to a depth of 4 to 6 inches; then form your beds from treated soil. No waiting period is required. The preplant treatment can be made right up to the time of transplanting. VYDATE kills rootknot and lesion nematodes on contact. Then VYDATE moves into tobacco roots for systemic kill of feeding nematodes.

Shot two: Add VYDATE to your transplant water when transplanting young plants. VYDATE quickly moves into the plants to stop flea beetles as they feed.

And this second VYDATE treatment gives you "booster shot" protection against nematodes. VYDATE in the transplant water needs no rainfall to start it working, and the systemic protection won't wash off. Just one economical, liquid product does the whole job.

Check out this new VYDATE two-shot tobacco plan with your dealer now.

As VYDATE is a highly toxic chemical and protective equipment is recommended, read and follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

TV 'Docu-Drama' Hard 'Genesis' Found Superstardom

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Docu-drama is the name given to TV movies that claim to recreate real events. Tonight, a variation of docu-drama is afoot. It's set in Louisiana, and I call it gumbo-drama.

NBC calls it "The Life and Assassination of the Kingfish." It's about Huey Long, the controversial Louisiana populist, governor, senator and, some say, dictator who was fatally shot in 1935 in Baton Rouge.

Starring Ed Asner as Long, filmed in Baton Rouge with at least 14 Louisiana-based supporting players, this two-hour film by Robert Collins is one of the hardest-to-follow historical tableaux I've ever seen.

Woe betide you if you aren't a serious student of Louisiana politics, of Long, his political machine and his machinations.

The show opens with a chap on a front porch at night, being told Long has been shot at the State Capitol and the alleged assailant — Carl A. Weiss, 29, a doctor — killed by Long's gun-toting bodyguards.

The chap, an apparent Long crony, goes to the hospital where the wounded senator, famed for his "Share Our Wealth" plan to soak the rich, is being tended. Long's wife, Rose (Diane Kagan), then arrives.

Which begins a flurry of from-the-hospital flashbacks tracing Long's life, from the day he met his young future bride and told her he'd be president some day to the shot that ended his life at age 42.

(Long was 19 when he married Rose. Observers will note that Asner appears a mite older in the scene of budding romance.)

We get a look at his lean civilian days as a traveling salesman, touting what sounds like "cutlin." Subsequent research indicated the goods were Cotto-lene, a cooking oil.

Then it's back to the hospital, then to his early political days, his plans to redistribute the nation's wealth, and his political start in 1918, when he was elected a state railroad commissioner.

All this is covered in husband-to-wife dialogue, likewise his first race for governor, followed by a quick flashback to the hospital to introduce his brother, Earl (Fred Cook), who banters with reporters.

They ask Earl about his feud with his brother. But not until later do we get an inkling of part of the dispute: Huey, heading for the U.S. Senate, declined to back Earl for Lieutenant Governor.

And so it goes, hospital hubbub, political scandal, cries of "Every man a king!" and noisy peregrinations from state house to U.S. Senate and possible third-party battle against President Roosevelt.

Ill-defined characters float in and out, as do poorly-constructed scenes.

Asner, a good actor, seems miscast. But then he didn't have much of a script from which to work. It makes Long's incredible life and times seem naught but bayou hieroglyphics on a 21-inch screen.

Agents Find Drug Hoard

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — State drug agents fought a brief gun-battle in a remote mountain area Saturday, then seized a large quantity of narcotics, including an animal tranquilizer that produces hallucinations in humans.

Three men were arrested and a fourth person who yelled a death threat and then fired on the agents with a high-powered rifle was being sought. No one was hurt in the shooting.

A spokesman for the Caldwell County Sheriff's Department identified the arrested trio as Joseph C. Wheeler, 21, of Black Mountain; Ronald O. Clough, 16, of Lenoir, and Stephen W. Ward, 20, of Asheville.

All were held in the Caldwell County Jail under $50,000 bond apiece on an assortment of drug charges, the department spokesman said. He declined to specify the charges.

The drugs, worth an estimated $100,000, included the drug PCP, an animal tranquilizer. About 25 state and local officers took part in the raid, including State Bureau of Investigation agents and deputies from Caldwell and Buncombe counties and the Asheville and Hickory police departments.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AK8 ♦AK8 ♦83 ♦KQJ743
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—We would not fault you if you rebid three clubs, but to our mind a jump to two no trump is more constructive. Though you have only 18 HCP, your good six-card club suit makes up for any point shortage. Your hand is essentially balanced, and no trump looks like your probable game.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK8 ♦AKQJ74 ♦6 ♦KJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♥ Pass 2 NT 3 ♦

What action do you take?
A.—Bid three hearts. Even though your hand may not produce a game, you must take this opportunity to tell partner that your suit is self-sufficient and that you are really not interested in defending against a diamond contract. If partner is completely broke, or has wasted values in diamonds, he is allowed to pass three hearts, for if you had ten tricks in your own hand, you would have bid game yourself.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQJ6 ♦A ♦762 ♦KQ843
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand has begun to look distinctly slammish. However, you are not in a position to judge its potential—the fate of the hand depends on the quality of partner's diamonds. If you show heart control with a cue-bid of three hearts, you advise partner of your interest and put him in a position to make a forward-going move.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK8 ♦AKQJ74 ♦6 ♦KJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass 3 ♥

What do you bid now?
A.—Facing a demand bid, you have a very powerful holding. There are alternatives: you could either jump to three no trump, or content yourself with a quiet raise to three spades. Since most demand bids in a suit are made on unbalanced hands, we would select three spades, which leaves the most room for further exploration.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AK83 ♦KJ106 ♦7 ♦K873
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Since partner might have next to nothing for his forced response, don't get too excited about your hand. A raise to two hearts is all you can do. That tells him you have better than a minimum takeout double, and invites him to game if he has a working 8 points or so.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦7 ♦KQ1054 ♦KJ9762 ♦5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠

What do you bid now?
A.—Distributively, you have a tremendously powerful hand; however, it is aceless, so proceed with care. Since you have already bid freely at the two-level, a jump preference to four diamonds is adequate. If you launch into Blackwood, you run the risk of finding partner with only two aces—what then?

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦872 ♦1093 ♦KJ75 ♦KQ6
Partner opens the bidding with two spades. What do you respond?

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AK83 ♦AKQ10865 ♦AK3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass 3 ♥

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner has said he has a long and virtually solid club suit. Since you are void in clubs, his hand may be worthless to you at a heart contract, but your high cards should take care of all of partner's losers in the side suits.

Some Drawbacks In Sugar Substitute

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A substance extracted from grapefruit peels could come into use as a non-sugar sweetener to replace saccharin, researchers say.

Developed at a U.S. Department of Agriculture lab in suburban Pasadena, the substance is 1,000 to 1,500 times sweeter than an equal amount of the natural sugar sucrose.

Its taste also lasts longer, but it does not taste like sugar. Some who have tried it report a slight menthol-like sensation in the back of the throat.

Dr. Robert Horowitz of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Fruit and Vegetable Chemistry Laboratory in Pasadena said the substance — neohesperidin dihydrochalcone (or Neo-DHC) — has been tested for two years in animals and has shown no evidence of causing cancer.

Animal studies relating saccharin to cancer were the basis of the Food and Drug Administration's proposal to ban saccharin.

Horowitz said Neo-DHC is bitter when extracted from grapefruit peels, but becomes sweet through chemical modification. "Its initial applications will probably be in special uses requiring a long-lasting flavor, such as chewing gum, and to mask an unpleasant taste in pharmaceuticals," he said.

Horowitz and other scientists isolated the substance several years ago while exploring the cause of grapefruit's bitter taste.

Two California firms have applications pending before the FDA to manufacture Neo-DHC for such applications as chewing gum, mouthwashes and toothpastes.

Later, it may be used in a variety of food items.

"We've been working on it for five years now and we think it's a shoo-in (as a replacement) for saccharin," a spokeswoman for California Aromatics and Flavors of Sun Valley said Friday.

The other company that has applied to the FDA is Nutrilite of Buena Park.

Seek Ways To Cut Cost

ATLANTA (AP) — In an effort to combat high energy costs, a research institute set up by the nation's electric utilities is spending $180 million a year, including an experiment in making woodpecker-proof power poles.

The institute also is experimenting with ionizers and electrostatic precipitators and other paraphernalia in an emission control project that could save as much as $15 million in the construction of a 1,000-megawatt coal power plant, representatives of the Electric Power Research Institute told utility executives at a recent Atlanta meeting.

The researchers also are aiming to save money in its search for a substance that would keep woodpeckers away from power line poles.

EPRI said funds also are being used on projects dealing with solar and geothermal energy, coal gasification and improvement of safety standards at nuclear plants.

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The British rock band Genesis has combined spacey electronic music and traditional English folk sound to move from a small cult following to superstar status throughout the United States.

The group, which performed recently at 18,000-seat Madison Square Garden here, first attracted attention in the early 1970s with its elaborate staging, highlighted by lead singer Peter Gabriel's outlandish costuming and a light show featuring grotesque monsters jumping out of back-stage projections.

But the emphasis now is on the music. Drummer Phil Collins moved center-stage in December 1974 to replace Gabriel, who left to form his own band. The monsters have been replaced by a dazzling laser display that adds a sense of awe to the band's music, which is among the most sophisticated and daring in the rock world today.

"We feel it's still building for us," guitarist Steve Hackett said in a group interview before the show here.

Hackett's statement is supported by sales of the band's albums, which have increased after each of the nine releases. The latest release, "Wind and Wuthering," became the all-time top Genesis seller in about five weeks.

The band has a rich, full sound, paying attention to subtle musical details and tonal coloration. While Tony Banks attracts a large amount of attention on keyboards, the group sound is emphasized and instrumental solos are almost non-existent.

Hackett, who as lead guitarist normally would solo the most, says he finds "most solos are boring. I haven't heard a good solo for ages."

The band today is playing down its English folk music roots and stressing electronic rock. The new material was better received by the audience here than tunes from earlier albums, although almost half the show was devoted to the older material.

The group uses its dazzling laser in conjunction with smoke pouring onto the stage to lend an eerie, mystical atmosphere to its fantasy filled lyrics. But the beams present a serious problem to both band members and the increasingly large audiences.

"When you're in a rock group, you pretty much expect to go deaf after a while," Collins said. "But now we also have to worry about going blind."

Genesis is touring the United States the hard way — playing 50 dates in large halls without an opening group to draw additional fans. It never has performed as a second-billed act here, a distinction first caused by the amount of time needed to set up its theatrical and lighting equipment and later because of its rising popularity.

The band's ability to attract large crowds is surprising, considering its relative lack of recording success. Genesis never has qualified for a gold album and the band has had little success on the charts.

Peter Sellers Hospitalized

LONDON (AP) — British actor Peter Sellers is reported in good condition in a London hospital where he was taken after becoming ill on a flight from Nice, France.

Sellers' wife said he was in fine condition and was cracking jokes from his hospital bed.

Sellers, 51, who starred in such movies as "Dr. Strangelove" and the Pink Panther series, was returning from his honeymoon in the south of France on Sunday with his fourth wife, 22-year-old British actress Lynne Frederick, when he became ill.

Too Little Time Said Given Treasure Search

By SUE MAJOR HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — After years of legal disputes and frustration, a search has begun for evidence to prove the existence of a fabled cave full of gold which the late Milton "Doc" Noss said he found in Victorio Peak.

An Army spokesman said at a briefing Friday that the search inside this high-security military reservation was being allowed because, for the first time, recognized claimants to the treasure had agreed to a joint hunt.

And he said a Florida treasure hunting firm, Expeditions Unlimited, was being allowed to lead the expedition because it is nationally known.

At the briefing was Noss' 80-year-old widow, Ova, who has laid claim to the treasure for nearly 40 years, although she never could find the cavern described by Noss.

But her attorney, David Daar of Los Angeles, said she is not represented by the treasure hunting firm hired by her rivals and only gave limited consent to the search.

Daar also said Mrs. Noss "can't be optimistic" about the outcome because the Army is only allowing 10 days for "a quick look around."

"It can't be uncovered in this period of time," Daar said.

Noss claimed to have found a cave stacked full of gold bars and ingots and artifacts suggesting the treasure was left by Spanish explorers or by Indians who had captured a Spanish expedition. There also has been speculation the gold was hidden by thieves.

Noss said the cave entrance collapsed in 1939 when he and an engineer miscalculated on the amount of dynamite they were using to enlarge it. Noss was divorced from Ova Noss in 1946. He was shot to death by a partner in another gold venture in 1949.

Mrs. Noss failed in later attempts to find and excavate the cave. Then, in 1955, the Army took over the site for gunnery and bombing practice and barred outsiders.

Army information officer Maj. Kenneth Abel said that if the search succeeds, "We will be as surprised as anyone."

"If it doesn't, perhaps, we will not be constantly bombarded with questions about it and can concentrate on our mission, which is weapons testing," Abel said.

But Daar said even an unsuccessful search won't stop questions.

"Until someone goes into the caverns, they're not clearing up this legend of Victorio Peak," he said.

Norman Scott, president of Expeditions Unlimited, hired a Stanford University research team to conduct some of the tests. He said their instruments can reveal the location — or absence — of the large underground room which Noss said he found.

Scott said he disagreed on the need for excavation. "Really, all we need to prove conclusively is one little piece of gold in this whole area and this could come about in 10 days," he said.

Scott said he neither believes nor disbelieves the Noss story. His research has shown "80 to 90 per cent is not based in fact. But the remaining 10 to 20 per cent carries enough circumstantial evidence to prompt the search," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a slow, steady decline in quiet trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 4.65 at 956.37.

Losers took a 6-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume totalled 4.59 million shares over the first hour.

Analysts said buying interest had slackened after the market's rally early last week faded on Thursday and Friday.

The government's report last Friday of a 1 per cent jump in the consumer price index during February had been widely anticipated on Wall Street. But brokers nevertheless noted persisting symptoms of inflation fears.

Gold prices, for one thing, jumped again in Europe, and gold mining stocks followed along.

Homestake Mining climbed 1 to 43 3/4; ASA 3/4 to 22 3/4; Dome Mines 1 1/2 to 52, and Campbell Red Lake 3/4 to 29.

Standard Oil of Ohio fell 1 1/2 to 82 1/2. The company projected a substantial decline in first quarter earnings.

The NYSE's composite index lost .07 to 55.29 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .08 at 112.54.

JDL TROOPS — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the Militant Jewish Defense League, speaks to a group of young men wearing Army jackets and motorcycle helmets during a demonstration across the street from the headquarters (background) of the Hanafi Moslems Sunday.

Kahane said the protest was intended to put the Hanafis on notice that any repeat of last week's seizure of B'nai Brith headquarters in Washington would be met with violence. (AP Wirephoto)

'Big Moose' Is Out Of Range

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Big Moose just decided to leave all the static and join the Great Broadcaster, the minister said at his funeral.

Almost every car at the funeral of Mounce Brady Jackson, 60, of Orange, had a citizens band radio antenna, and the services this weekend reflected the hobby of Big Moose, his CB handle.

Jackson died March 14 in a traffic accident. "I was driving on the freeway the other day with my CB on," said the Rev. George Wood, pastor of Lemon Heights Baptist Church and known on the airwaves as Lucky 13. "I gradually faded from the person I was talking to. He went out of my range. "That's what happened to Big Moose. He's just out of range."

Louise Lasser To Quit Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Louise Lasser, who plays the pig-tailed Mary Hartman in the late night soap opera "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," plans to drop out of the series next season, says New York Daily News columnist Liz Smith.

Miss Lasser "has had it" with the character and wants to do other things, Miss Smith said in today's column. The show, one of several Norman Lear offerings, is in its second season.

Leakage Due Bombs Damage Derailment Two Buildings

KENNESAW, Ga. (AP) — A special crew was called in from Texas today to stabilize thousands of gallons of highly flammable styrene gas which began leaking after part of a freight train derailed in downtown Kennesaw Sunday night.

No fire or injuries were reported in the three tank-car derailment which occurred under a highway overpass about 30 miles northwest of Atlanta.

Kennesaw Police Lt. William Claybough said today that an expert from the Dow Chemical Co. in Akron, Ohio had been flown in.

He said the expert advised that the Texas crew would have to build barricades to stabilize the tanks before the cars could be righted by cranes on the scene.

Claybough said three 9,500-gallon tanks of the styrene, a colorless gas used in the production of synthetic plastic and rubber, were involved. One tank was definitely ruptured and another might be, he said.

"We found out styrene gas is more dangerous than we thought," said Claybough, adding that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. had ordered that the crew, which usually fights oil field fires, be flown in.

He said righting the cars could take as long as 10 hours.

More than 100 persons within a 300-yard radius were evacuated from the area on Georgia highway 293 and local traffic was rerouted.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bombs went off early today in two buildings housing New York offices of the FBI and the American Bank Note Co. The Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN claimed it planted the explosives.

A man walking by the Manhattan building in which the FBI has offices was hospitalized with a minor shoulder cut suffered when the bomb went off. The device exploded in a ground floor drug store and damage was confined to merchandise and windows.

The bomb which exploded at the American Bank Note building in the Bronx was described by police as "not powerful."

A letter from the FALN found taped to a telephone booth in Manhattan said the bombings were "armed actions ... against ... two symbols of Yanki repression and exploitation."

The FALN (Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional — Armed Forces of National Liberation) has been linked to some 50 bombings since early 1974 in its campaign for Puerto Rican independence.

The letter called the bank note company "one of the chief tools of capitalistic exploitation" because it prints stock certificates and currency for a number of Latin American countries.

Bing Missed His TV Special

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby, laid-up with a leg injury, missed the television tribute that led to his hospitalization in the first place.

The 72-year-old crooner slept through "Bing," a 90-minute CBS special aired Sunday night, said a spokesman for Huntington Memorial Hospital.

CURIOSITY SEEKERS

If you intend to implant a "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard, be prepared for the inevitable "curiosity seekers". You'll probably spend more time tramping through the house with curiosity seekers than showing it to firm prospects.

Your "For Sale by Owner" sign leaves you open to all types of people and problems. For example, a visitor may present an offer to buy on which he doesn't intend to follow through. You may make plans based on accepting it, only to learn that the "prospect" had no intention of completing the agreement.

A Realtor has the experience to unmask the insincere offer and turn it away before it does any harm. In fact, the presence of a Realtor usually will discharge any attempts of that sort. He will qualify prospects in advance and allow only those who are definitely prospective buyers — not curiosity seekers — to inspect your home.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 119 W. Third St., Greenville. Phone: 752-6163. We're here to help!

Advocating World Food Reserve Plan

Rev. Charles Mulholland, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, and coordinator in the First Congressional District for "Bread for the World" is requesting members of the local Hunger Coalition to join 35 prominent religious leaders in asking for a world food reserve program.

The Greenville Hunger Coalition has been taking collections at Pitt Plaza and the ECU campus to provide funds for drilling fresh water wells in the African Country of Niger. This particular project is sponsored by the United Methodist Church.

Members of the local Hunger Coalition want to inform people about local and international hunger problems and initiate a program of development that will enable all people to provide an adequate diet for themselves, according to Rev. Mulholland.

Thirty-five religious leaders have issued an appeal to Congress and to President Carter calling for the establishment of a U.S. food reserve program, as part of international network of reserves.

Drug Theft Is Reported

Greenville Police are continuing their investigation today into a break-in at Big Value Drugs on Tenth Street which was reported at 8:30 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the thieves climbed to the roof of the store and gained entrance to the building through an air conditioning duct. They went to a locked drug cabinet and removed a quantity of controlled drugs, placed them into two pillow cases and broke the glass from a front door to leave the building.

The chief noted that one pillow case and a quantity of drugs were found next to the broken door, while a second pillow case was discovered a short distance from the store.

Investigators, Cannon said, believe the thieves got away with only a small quantity of the drugs.

"Let Jack's Cook Out For You"

Dear Mr. Tobacco Farmer:

The 1977 tobacco curing season is fast approaching. If you have added any bulk barns to your system since last season, please call the Greenville Utilities Commission's Electrical Engineering Department, at 752-7166, ext. 260. We want to be sure that our service facilities are adequate for your total needs.

Applications for new electric service should be filed as soon as possible. Please do not wait until the last minute to let us know you need electric service. June is a busy month for both house construction and new bulk barn service. An early application for service will help prevent delay in having your bulk barn service cut on.

Information regarding new bulk barn service may be obtained by calling our Customer Service Department at 752-7166, ext. 238.

Thank you for your cooperation.
