No Soviet Response To U.S. Proposals

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union failed to respond to American nuclear arms control proposals today as talks resumed between
Secretary of State Cyrus R.
Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Vance at a meeting Monday afternoon gave Gromyko
the Carter administration's proposal for a comprehensive new arms accord requiring both governments to reduce their nuclear weapon stocks sharply.

However, he added that if the Russians will not go that far, the U.S. government is ready to negotiate a less ambitious agreement based on the accord Ford and Brezhnev reached at their meeting in Vladivostok. It called for a treaty limiting each nation to 2,400 long-range bombers and missiles, with not more than 1,320 of the missiles to be equipped with multiple warheads.

Gromyko reportedly expressed his support for a pact
based on the Vladivostok agreement and repeated the Soviet demand that the American Cruise missile be included in the weapons subject to restriction. This renewed the dispute over inclusion of the Cruise and the Soviet Backfire bomber which has deadlocked the strategic arms limitation talks for the past year.

Vance said the Soviets indicated they would reply to his arms control proposals before the end of his visit. But Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Gromyko in a toast at a luncheon he gave for the secretary of state told the Americans:

"It is required ... not to reject what we have managed to achieve in this matter at the cost of great efforts, but to lean on the foundations already laid. We mean the well-known Vladivostok accords achieved by our two states at the highest level."

Vance said the discussion
Monday was "businesslike."

"I'm not going to characterize it as either optimistic or pessimistic," he said. But he added that the exchanges of opinion were in themselves signs of "some progress."

Brezhnev at the opening of the talks Monday warned Vance that "constructive development of relations between the two countries is impossible" as long as the U.S. government continues to support Soviet dissidents. But Vance told reporters the Russians are not requiring a change in the American position on human rights as a condition for progress toward a new nuclear arms treaty.

Vance said he told the Soviet Communist party chief the United States will "continue to do what we believe appropriate in the over-all question of human rights." He added that he did not believe this would come up again in his talks.

THE STREETS WERE CAROLINA BLUE — Univ. Of North Carolina students put a coat of "Carolina Blue" paint on their main street in Chapel Hill last night after the Tar Heels finished second in the NCAA finals. The students appeared happy with the finish and painted to celebrate with the "blessing" of local police who did not interfere. (AP Wirephoto)

Sky-Blue Paint Sold Out

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — If nothing else, North Carolina's appearance in the NCAA championship game enabled paint dealers to do a wholesale business in this small university town.

"We've got reports all the stores are sold out of blue paint," said Lt. Arnold Gold of the Chapel Hill Police Department, minutes after the Tar Heels fell to Marquette 67-59 Monday night.

Thousands of students were expected to ease the pain of defeat after the game and, with one minute remaining in the contest, the town's 60-man police force abandoned a television and began sealing off four blocks to traffic.

"The fellow at Rose's told me tonight he sold a whole lot of spray cans — blue paint," Gold said and the paint boom was soon evident.

Slogans such as "Go to Hell, Marquette" and "Go Heels" could be seen in sky blue letters on several streets.

The only vehicle to be seen on Franklin Street, the town's major thoroughfare, was an old station wagon painted entirely blue, including the wheels. "Heelmobile" was lettered in white on its side.

"We'd been expecting eight to ten thousand out here tonight if we had won," Gold said. "It looks like there may be that many now."

The streets, which minutes earlier had been deserted, began filling with people as local bars disgorged their patrons.

"I'm gonna drink to forget," muttered one young man as he stumbled toward a policeman at an intersection.

"Yeah, but it was a great season," the cop replied with a wink.

Expanding Field

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Hunt administration officials are still finding jobs they regard as "policy making" positions, exempt from state personnel protection under state law.

Gov. Jim Hunt said in January he had the legal right to replace as many as 169 of the 40,000 workers in the nine departments under his direct control.

But Hunt aides have been going over the state payroll in more detail since then and have discovered another 176 jobs which they say could be regarded as Hunt's to fill.

"We're finding out who's making policy and who isn't," said one administration official, adding that there would be still more positions found before May 1.

That's the deadline Hunt must meet for submitting his list of exempt jobs to the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House. After that, no further jobs can be placed outside civil service protection.

Tax Rebate May Be Scrapped In Senate Decision

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If

you've already figured out how to spend that $50 tax rebate President Carter wants to give to most Americans, think again. There are increasing indications the Senate may scrap the rebate and substitute a permanent tax cut.

Senate debate on the tax proposals will begin in another week and may not be completed until after Congress returns in mid April from its Easter recess.

And what members of Congress hear during trips home may be the decisive factor in determining whether a rebate or a permanent tax cut is in the bill that goes to the White House.

The fight over the rebate carries the potential for the most serious conflict to date between Carter and Congress, more serious than clashes over protocol and water projects that have marked the first 60 days of the Carter presidency.

Carter is pressing for the rebate as the way to give a quick boost to the economy. But congressional support for the rebate, even among Democrats, is, at best, lukewarm.

"I plan to vote for it," said Senate Majority Leader Robert

C. Byrd, D-W.Va., when asked his opinion of the rebate.

"Enthusiastically?" he was asked.

"No," replied Byrd. But, he said, "It's the President's program. It's part of his economic stimulus program."

On the Republican side, the votes are lined up, 38 to 0, against the rebate.

"There's an excellent chance we will defeat the rebate and substitute a permanent tax cut," said Minority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn.

Baker is certain of some support among the Democrats as well as of the vote of Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia, an independent.

When the Senate Finance Committee voted to keep the Carter rebate in the bill rather than substitute a permanent tax cut, the tally followed party lines, with the 10 Democrats voting for the rebate and the 7 Republicans plus Harry Byrd opposing it.

Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., made it clear they don't think the rebate is a good idea, but were supporting it out of a desire to give the Democratic President a chance to try out his ideas for stimulating the economy.

Zaire Fighting Reported Near Copper Center

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) —

Fighting between government troops and Katangan exiles from Angola was reported near the copper-mining center of Kolwezi, in southern Zaire. An American engineer said he had seen many wounded soldiers arrive in the city from the west.

The engineer, contacted by telephone, is one of about 40 Americans with the Morrison-Knudsen Corp. of Boise, Idaho, working on a $40 million electric relay station near Kolwezi. Their families were evacuated last week to Kinshasa.

Unofficial sources in Kinshasa said there had been fighting since Sunday around Kolwezi, in mineral-rich Shaba province, which was known as Katanga when Zaire was the Belgian Congo.

Government officials continued to deny claims that Mutshatsba, the government headquarters in the province about 60 miles west of Kolwezi, had fallen. But they confirmed that there had been fighting near the town since Sunday.

Pitt County Wins 'Keep N.C. Beautiful' Honors

Boys' Club of Pitt County Inc., Mrs. Joyce Cutler, chairman of the '76 campaign; Mrs. Mattie Dixon of Grifton; and Gerald Rogers of the Simpson Pushers 4-H Club.

Pitt County and Pitt organizations received six different awards during recognition ceremonies of the Keep North Carolina Beautiful effort in Raleigh yesterday. Gov. Jim Hunt presented most of the awards.

Pitt was recognized as one of the outstanding counties in its efforts to clean up and beautify. Mrs. Joyce Cutler, 1976 County beautification coordinator, received a special award, one of three given in the state, for "excellence in program development."

Grifton received a third place in the division of towns with 1,000 to 5,000 population, and Simpson, a certificate of recognition for the villages under 1,000 population division.

The Boys' Club of Pitt County Inc. received second place for its efforts and the Simpson Pushers 4-H Club, third place.

The governor presented all these awards, except that of Mrs. Cutler, which was presented by Mrs. Barbara Deverick, chairman of the Operation '76 program.

Arms Sales To Allies Okayed

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who calls past U.S. arms sales policy too unrestricted, cynical and dangerous, has approved $2 billion worth of military construction contracts and arms sales, primarily for NATO allies, administration sources say.

But the sources said Monday that Carter still is reviewing an additional $3 billion worth of military sales proposals.

Carter will notify Congress about his military sales decisions soon, one source said. The decisions are expected to be made public after the notification. Administration spokesmen at the White House and in the State Department refused comment.

"The approval is primarily for construction projects already underway and for arms primarily for NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization)

tee, said a national trial program on litter control is underway in her city. It has been so successful that an estimated 65 to 70 per cent reduction in littering has been noted. The approaches are education, better equipment and effective anti-litter ordinances, she said.

It was pointed out that littering is a habit which can be changed, but that it has to be a matter of personal responsibility on each person's part. "North Carolina's beauty is everyone's duty," said Mrs. Norma Cates, president of KNCB.

Pitt County was given special recognition for having worked through its churches, as well as its schools and other organizations, to stress the importance of personal responsibility in litter control.

More than 1,240 separate groups, representing civic, church, youth, and women's groups participated in the statewide effort. Represented in Raleigh yesterday were 60 N. C. counties, representing as many as 105,000 persons taking part in the campaign for last year. A total of $218,600 was spent by the groups on various clean up and beautification programs and projects, it was pointed out.

This year's campaign will have May as its focus month.

New Station Is Operating

The city's new Fire Department sub-station has been placed in service with the transfer of men and equipment from the old sub-station on Chestnut Street.

The new station, constructed at a cost of more than $242,000, is located on Memorial Drive near the West End Shopping Center.

In addition to the one first-line pumper transferred from the old sub-station, one other pumper has been transferred to the new facility from the Fire Department's central station at the intersection of Fifth and Greene

Streets. The opening of the new facility brings to an end the use of the Chestnut Street station that has served the city as a fire station since March 1953 when the former curb market was opened as the city's first fire department sub-station.

Construction on the new new facility began in February 1976, after bids were awarded December 18, 1975.

Dedication ceremonies for the new station are expected to be held sometime in April.

ADMIRE FLOWERS

I've noticed the daffodils and other flowers planted in the traffic dividers downtown. I'd like to thank everyone responsible for the idea and for the work involved. It makes our city prettier and more cheerful. These flowers really brighten up my days and I'd like to know if more such projects are planned and if there's any way an individual or organization can help out. G. H.

Charlie Holliday of the City Engineering Department expressed appreciation for your compliments. He said the city does plan to do more beautifying traffic dividers and possibly parking lot dividers and borders, also (Such a proposal was to have come before the Planning and Zoning Board this week.) He suggested that anyone wishing to assist in any way contact his office or that of the city manager, both 752-4137.

747 Disaster Survivors Being Flown Back To U.S.

BY FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — U.S. and Spanish officials began preparations today to fly survivors of history's worst aviation disaster back to the United States for treatment.

The U.S. Army Burn Center in San Antonio, Tex., said it was preparing to receive about 60 of the 70 survivors from the collision Sunday on the Santa Cruz airport runway of two Boeing 747 jumbo jets in which 575 persons were killed.

Sixty-seven of the survivors and 321 of the dead were Americans, according to information from the airlines.

Meanwhile, Spanish, Dutch and American officials continued their investigations to determine the cause of the collision, which occurred as the Pan American and KLM jetliners were preparing to take off in fog from this Atlantic island. Spanish authorities ruled out sabotage and claimed there had been no errors in control tower communications with the two planes.

Officials said they would inspect the 10,000-foot runway, which has been closed by wreckage and bad weather since the collision of the two planes, to determine if there was enough space clear for a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport to land.

A C-130 from a base in Spain was waiting at Las Palmas, on the neighboring island of Grand Canary, for clearance. The homeward-bound Americans were to be transferred at Las Palmas to an Air Force C-141 to be flown to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. A spokesman for the burn center said 10 of the survivors to be flown to Texas for treatment were in serious or critical condition and 20 others were in better cases.

U.S. officials said the airlift would also include some survivors who did not require hospitalization, but no names were announced.

The KLM jetliner was hurtling down the runway at about 150 miles an hour for takeoff when it rammed into the Pan American plane as it was turning off the runway onto a taxiway, Spanish officials said.

They said both pilots were told to taxi down the main runway, with the KLM craft in the lead. The Dutch pilot was told to turn around and prepare for takeoff but to hold his position until given clearance, while the Pan Am jet was to turn off at a taxiway and wait for the KLM plane to clear, they said. Gov. Antonio Oyarzabal said the planes collided nearly head-on, and the "key point" was whether the KLM pilot had permission to take off.

The Dutch pilot, Z. A. Velthuis van Zanten, was killed along with the other 248 persons reported aboard his plane. But KLM president Sergio Orlandini said the pilot was one of the airline's most experienced fliers and he doubted he would have begun his takeoff without clearance.

The Pan American pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., was among the 70 injured survivors from his plane, but no explanation from him of what happened was made public.

Cold Winter's Deferred Bills For Heating Are Falling Due

By RHONDA SEEGAL
AP Business Writer

Thousands of Americans unable to pay higher heating bills during the unusually cold winter are being threatened with loss of service if they don't pay soon.

Many utilities, allowing a grace period because of the cold winter, postponed service shutoffs until the end of the heating season.

But the end of the season is at hand, and an Associated Press survey found that notices warning of electric and gas shutoffs are in the mail to thousands of Americans.

The number of overdue bills ranged from 3 per cent to 20 per cent more than last year, the utilities reported. Some utilities and state agencies are trying to find solutions short of cutoff for those who can't pay.

"We'll start catching up with the winter leftovers and our termination will reach a thousand a month or more," according to a spokesman for the Public Service Co. in New Hampshire, the state's largest supplier of electric power. It usually terminates about 250 customers a month in winter.

In a number of states, utilities had to comply with state-imposed moratoriums against cutting off heat to households. But by March 31, generally considered the end of the heating season, most will have ended and service cutoffs can be enforced.

A number of states and cities are working with federal agencies to make money available to the needy, either in the form of loans or grants. The average household had to pay $139 more to keep warm this winter than last, a Senate subcommittee concluded in a study.

In Connecticut, for example, Gov. Ella Grasso set aside $250,000 to be used to pay emergency fuel needs of the 40,000 families eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Here are some of the hardest-hit areas where families, particularly the poor in northern states, will have to find some way to pay:

—In Rhode Island, the moratorium was lifted last week. The Providence Gas Co. said it is sending out about 400 warning notices per day. The company said about 40 per cent of its customers have overdue accounts.

—In Pennsylvania, the Public Utility Commission (PUC) called off its two-month-old moratorium on terminations, effective March 31. Fifteen major gas and electric utilities report 600,000 of about 4.7 million customers are behind in their payments.

—In Ohio, a Public Utilities Commission order on Jan. 25, 1977, prohibited gas utility shutoffs until March 31. The ban on cutoffs ended March 20 for East Ohio Gas, which has sent out 50,000 delinquency letters.

—The Wisconsin Gas Co. of Milwaukee has sent out 25,000 disconnect notices that will take effect April 22, the day after the state's moratorium on fuel cutoffs ends.

—The Potomac Electric Co., which supplies electricity to the District of Columbia, resumed cutoffs this week. Eight per cent of its accounts in February were delinquent, compared with 5 per cent in February, 1976.

Most utilities insist that customers will have a chance to straighten out their finances before they lose their power.

Area Supervisor Is Speaker At Mid-East Regional Board Meet

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Cay Cross, Area Supervisor for Emergency Medical Services, in the Mid-East Region and three other regions, spoke to the Mid-East Commission Board Thursday night and introduced Al Miner, the commission's new regional coordinator for emergency medical services in the five county planning area.

The regional coordinator serves in an advisory capacity to the region's Emergency Medical Services Council and to the Commission, conducts rescue vehicle inspections for state certification and holds classes to train rescue personnel as Emergency Medical Technicians, according to Ms. Cross.

Although the EMS Council was originally designed to function like the other program committees under the Commission, it has become almost autonomous and is no longer representative of the entire region, according to Ms. Cross.

The EMS Area Supervisor emphasized to the board, the need for a strong functioning EMS Council in light of the expanding role the group will soon be expected to play in overseeing paramedic programs and categorizing hospitals according to their ability to handle certain cases. The commission board voted to change the EMS Council's name to the EMS Committee.

The Commission Board voted to reorganize the EMS Committee membership to include more representation by EMS personnel in the region.

Ted Shaw was designated to serve as the Mid-East staff liaison to the EMS Committee.

Regional Planning Director Ricky McGhee, explained that three recommendations for reorganization of the Regional Planning Board were being presented for the Commission Board's consideration. McGhee said that the recommendations would make the board more functional and representative of the region.

The Commission Board passed the following recommendations, changing the name to the Regional Planning Advisory Committee, nullifying the bylaws and reorganizing the committee to be composed of ten members; two representing each county.

Louis Randolph presented a report from the group assigned to study the Assistant Director's position.

"It is the consensus of the group that the Board consider hiring a Technical Assistant to work with local governments, instead of hiring an Assistant Director," Randolph said.

Jack Runion reported that six of the Manpower programs in the region recently received additional Title I funds, amounting to $390,237.

Sue Singleton, Nutrition Director told the board that 120 additional meals have been allocated to the region and that no local money will be required to match the extra meals.

"I am in the process of writing the mayors in Murfreesboro, Aulander, Hamilton, Ayden and Aurora to make them aware of the available meals and to determine their interest in establishing a nutrition site in their towns," Ms. Singleton said.

Ms. Singleton also announced that the Farmville nutrition site will open April 4.

Older Adults Program, Director Kathy Donoghue reviewed the local projects funded through Title III of the Older Americans Act in each county this year and explained that unspent Title III monies from the program's Regional Coordination budget would probably be allocated to the counties.

Other reports from the Aging program focused on the recent establishment of the two Councils on Aging in Beaufort and Martin counties. It was announced that the statewide Aging Conference will be scheduled for July. The Mid-East Aging Program will hold a regional hearing on the needs of older persons April 14, at the Williamston High School.

In other business the Commission Board:

—Appointed a nominating committee to submit the names of board members for consideration as secretary of the board.

—Were informed of the $480,000 Economic Development Administration grant to Beaufort County Technical Institute for the construction of a vocational education building.

—Agreed to accept the recommendations of the Regional Economic Development Advisory Committee which will rank Coastal Plains Regional Commission projects on April 1.

—Approved 20 clearinghouse applications for project funding.

—Were presented the 10 proposed new policies for the Governor's Crime Commission by Ted Shaw.

Weed Control Factors Cited

To plan an effective weed control program there are four things a grower must consider in selecting herbicides for weed control, according to Gaylon Ambrose, Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent.

The four considerations are the crop to be grown; the weeds species present, the soil type and a knowledge of herbicide capabilities.

Herbicides are very specific in respect to crops they can be used on and vary widely in ability to control certain weeds. To choose a herbicide before knowing what weeds are present would be like taking a shot of penicillin for an illness before knowing what particular illness one has, according to Ambrose.

Soils with high clay content or high organic matter content require higher rates of preemergence or preplant herbicides. Extremely light sandy soils require low herbicide rates so crop injury can be avoided. Many preemergence herbicides are greatly affected by organic matter and minor changes or less than one per cent can require a change in application rate. Under application can lead to poor weed control. Over application can lead to crop injury, wasted money, and possible environmental pollution, Ambrose added.

The fourth important factor in choosing a herbicide is its capabilities. Many herbicides are useful for grass control, and others are effective mainly on broadleaf weeds.

Once all the background information has been obtained concerning the crop and the weeds, intelligent decisions regarding proper herbicide programs can be made. The grower should be able to supply the first three things; crop to be grown, weeds present, and soil type. Information about herbicide capabilities can be obtained from the Pitt county Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196.

Veiled Yemeni Women Find New Ways

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer
TAIZ, North Yemen (AP) — Although a few women have forsaken the veil, many Yemeni women are happy wearing it and being at the bottom of the totem pole.

In fact, most girls can't wait until they're old enough to cover up like their mothers and become, in public at least, faceless, nameless, black-draped phantoms ignored by everyone. There are exceptions, but most women still adhere to the Islamic tradition which commands them to be completely covered before all men except their fathers, husbands and brothers.

In Yemen this covering consists of a mask hiding the mouth and chin, a scarf over the hair, and two black face-veils that drop down over the eyes. A black cloak over the upper body, and a black skirt and black trousers underneath complete the concealment.

Despite the drudgery of their cloistered life, many women are happy and have a keen sense of humor. Their get-togethers consist of squatting on rugs around the living room wall and chewing qat, a green leaf that is a mild amphetamine.

Yemeni men are among the most friendly and gregarious in the world. But the Islam-based culture in this Arab land, enmeshed with centuries of tradition, is to Western eyes as alien as Mars. When it comes to women and what goes on in the home, it is impenetrable to outsiders.

But a number of American girls, volunteers in the Peace Corps, have gotten a rare inside view of the daily chores, recreation and discrimination against the average woman here.

Two of the volunteers, who speak Arabic, have lived with Yemeni families or have developed friendships deep enough to get through the cultural barrier, winning them a privileged look inside the Yemeni home, which is the perimeter of a woman's life.

Sue Jones, of Kansas City, Kan., is a 27-year-old university graduate who spent a year teaching English in Ibb, a market town 30 miles north of here.

"Some of the women complain about the veil, to me at least, and say they want to go to America," Miss Jones said. "But a lot of them are happy with it and don't want to stop having one baby after another. They are content with their place in life at the bottom of the totem pole."

place in life at the bottom of the totem pole.

"Most kids can't wait until they're old enough to wear veils all the time like their mothers," she added. "Usually, by the time they are 12 or 14, they put them on and think it's a great thing. But one woman I know who remembers how thrilled she was when she became old enough to cover up said that later on in life it wasn't such a great thing after all."

A woman's day is devoted to going to market, taking care of the kids and, when there is time, visiting friends. In rural areas, where most of Yemen's 2.5 million girls and women live, they work in the fields as well.

Sue Watson, 22, an English teacher from Phoenix, Ariz., lives in Sana, the capital. She has a friend across the way called Jumaa, a young girl who doesn't know her own age but who must be about 20. She has one child and is expecting another.

"The family live in one room in which they eat, sleep and do everything else," she said. "Her husband is a municipal laborer who earns $22 a month."

"Jumaa has never really heard of birth control but she came to me asking for advice because she knows she doesn't want any more children," Miss Watson added. "I didn't think it my place to interfere, so I didn't help her."

The government is tentatively encouraging some girls to work in civil service jobs, or as teachers. This is still a new proposition and it leads to some ambivalent situations.

At the Ministry of Information, for instance, the two receptionists at the door are girls. They wear veils, and sometimes throw back the layers so that their eyes show. But they crouch on the floor out of sight behind a partition and don't speak unless directly addressed. In that case, they push the veil back down before replying.

Miss Jones has come across an exception to the veiled life, that of the Badawi family with whom she lived for a time in Ibb.

Mrs. Badawi, in her 40s, is a widow who has always worn the veil and always will, Miss Jones said. But her late husband, a senior government employee, insisted that his seven daughters go uncovered.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When women speak of police brutality, they are referring to one thing — their obligation under oath to give their right age on their driver's license. If they don't, under the false swearing law, they are guilty of a misdemeanor.

The Arizona House Judiciary Committee, in reviewing these laws recently, saw the error of the system and is wisely considering change. As one committee member said, "If we're going to hold everybody accountable for everything they do or say, I think a lot of people are going to be upset."

And that is the greatest understatement since Mary Worth was caught in a hotel lobby posing as a philodendron saying, "I don't mean to meddle."

Happily, I've never been one of those silly, sensitive creatures obsessed with age. If you ask me, I'll tell you right off, "I'm ffffffffoooooo . . . give me a minute, it'll come."

I had a grandmother who lied so much about her age she couldn't remember how old she was. She lied on each of her children's birth certificates — with each birth getting younger, which eventually made the "baby" of the family the oldest, despite the fact her mother gave birth at the age of 12.

As I have always said, being ffffffffoooooo . . . forrrrr . . . is nothing to be ashamed of. I mean being ffffffffooooo is better than being 30 and looking 60.

I know some women who not only lie about their age on their driver's license, they lie about their weight, height, and their hair color. Small wonder some police officers' after looking over the license, can only assume they are driving a stolen car.

Goodness gracious, this has to be the biggest flap over nothing I have ever heard in my life. What does it matter that the old biddy who cashes a check for you in the supermarket looks at your identification and announces your age over the loud speaker? Or that the turkey who made your car repairs knows you weren't blonde on your license three years ago. As I told my husband, "It's not so bad being ffffffffoooooo . . ."

"What are you trying to say?" he asked.

"Ffffffffoooooorty!" I said, holding onto the table to steady myself.

"You're 50!" he said. "So arrest me!"

Don't Shelter Children From Disappointment

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to MOTHER, whose daughter was one of the few not invited to a classmate's party, missed a point I think is important.

Granted, the party invitations should not have been passed out at school unless the whole class was invited, but the incident should have been used as an object lesson. This world is full of rude and thoughtless people, and life is often a series of snubs, disappointments and frustrations, which children should learn to handle early.

Eleven-year-olds who have not learned how to deal with rejection have been overprotected, and overprotected children develop into adults who can't cope with everyday life.

Parents should not shelter their children from common occurrences, and they shouldn't be too sympathetic. And above all, they should never try to soothe injured feelings with a gift or reward.

It's too bad when a child is "left out," but when this happens—as it surely will—he shouldn't be allowed to wallow in self-pity or indulge in "get-even" tactics.

GRAMMY
DEAR GRAMMY: You make a good point. Overprotected children do develop into adults who can't cope with life's everyday problems. But to deny or repress our true feelings instead of accepting them and dealing with them is unhealthy.

Feeling "hurt" when rejected is normal at any age, and nothing to be ashamed of. Unfortunately, our society and culture has made a taboo of crying in public.

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from TIREDD whose husband didn't want to be bugged about household maintenance.

My husband also hardly knows how to change a light bulb. So I tinker with the plumbing, hang shelves, fix broken locks, etc.

There is a difference, however. My husband was willing to learn the basic safety procedures of shutting off power, gas and water, in case of emergency. Children should learn these things, too. Everyone who lives in a house should be able to act knowledgeably in an emergency.

BETTY
DEAR BETTY: A sensible idea. Safety precautions should be a family responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: How do you address mail to couples who are living together but aren't husband and wife? I just can't address a letter to "Mr. Jack Jones and Miss Valerie Johnson." And it wouldn't sound too good to address it, "Mr. Jack Jones and Shack-up." I'm not condemning it, I'm just confused.

Can I just leave off the last names and address it to Jack and Valerie?
It is certainly a problem that needs to be put straight. How about it, Abby? Please give us old-fashioned folks some help.

D.D. IN SAN DIEGO
DEAR D.D.: Address mail to "Mr. Jack Jones and Valerie." Or "Valerie Johnson and Jack."

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

of Beatrix Potter, the author of "The Tale of Peter Rabbit." To remedy that situation Anne Emerson, an authority on the life and works of the writer, has come here from England in connection with the 75th anniversary of the publication of the children's classic.

Ms. Emerson is senior editor of Frederick Warne & Co., the British literary house that has been publishing Peter Rabbit since its first edition came out in 1902. She has been editing Potter books for 20 years, including "The History of the Tale of Peter Rabbit," brought out for the anniversary year along with "Peter Rabbit's Natural Foods Cookbook," by Arnold Dobrin.

"Beatrix Potter's becoming a cult in England," said Ms. Emerson during an interview in her hotel room where the bed and dresser were covered with the book's original drawings and watercolors, to be put on display at the Grey Art Gallery and Study Center of New York University.

"It's hard to say how many copies of Peter Rabbit have been printed but a conservative estimate would be that 20 million copies have been published in 13 languages, including Braille," she said. "More than 100,000 a year are sold in the United States alone."

In addition to Peter Rabbit, Miss Potter, who was a naturalist and an accomplished artist, wrote and illustrated 22 other stories in the series. "At the age of 47, she married William Heelis, a realty solicitor, gave up writing and took to farming in a big way, and became an authority on sheep breeding," Ms. Emerson said.

Although the famed writer of children's books never had children herself, "I don't think you have to have children to write for them," Ms. Emerson pointed out. "You just have to remember what it's like to be a child."

"If she had had children I don't think she'd have written so many books. Probably they were the substitutes."

Business Meet Held Thursday

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held its regular business meeting Thursday night at the Post Home.

Mrs. Carrie West, president, announced that the Department Convention will be held June 23-26 in Winston-Salem. The District Two meeting will be held in Kinston May 15.

A birthday party will be given for the veterans at the Fayetteville Hospital Wednesday night, March 30. Persons interested in donating magazines should contact Mrs. West.

The group will send a veteran's child at O'Berry Center to camp for a week.

Miss Ada Jones, legislative, reported that she had sent letters to Congressman Walter Jones and Senators Robert Morgan and Jesse Helms to support the veteran's legislation.

Mrs. Lucy Hannaford and Mrs. Louise Cox were enrolled as new members.

Mrs. Margaret Brown, Miss Vicki Brown and Miss Jones served refreshments.

One Can Look, And See A Need

Following months of study, the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission last week voted against a zoning ordinance amendment which would have required tree and vegetation islands in parking lots.

The commissioners voted seven to one against recommending that the proposed amendment be sent on to the City Council.

Proposals for requiring the islands in parking lots had been changed a number of times but apparently a consensus of what requirements would be best could not be reached by the commission.

It moved City Planner John Schofield to comment, "Personally, I don't know what else we can do with it." He said the commission could approve the ordinance, make changes, send it back to the planning staff for more study or defeat it.

The commissioners, apparently tired of wrestling with the problem chose to defeat it.

That is too bad.

One only has to look at large parking lots without islands to realize that, not only are they unattractive, but, more important, they are not as safe as they could be.

The installation of islands in large parking lots provide channels to properly move traffic, while at the same time providing space for the planting of trees and shrubs.

The Joint City-County action in turning down this parking lot amendment is short sighted, indeed. There clearly needs to be some city control over the development of vast parking lots, and it is up to the Planning and Zoning Commission to find the answers.

The commission should immediately go back to work on this problem and come up with some reasonable solution.

Balanced Budget Is Still The Target

Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said in Raleigh last week that President Carter still intends to have a balanced national budget by the fiscal year 1981.

That was a campaign promise of Carter's, and apparently the goal is still considered possible.

We can think of nothing that would do more to bring inflation under control than a balanced budget for the federal government.

It remains to be seen whether this will be accomplished.

THIS AFTERNOON

Agency Builds Framework

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina has something unique among state governments: the Executive Development Institute.

Little has been heard of this new agency which is even now building the framework for what is hoped to be a tested method of developing abilities and talents throughout state government.

It has started at the top: Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., his chief aide, Banks Talley, and his cabinet appointees and staff are already engaged in the process.

Plans are to extend the program through the ranks of the bureaucracy as methods are tried and improved.

Teamwork

At the heart of the approach to government with a new sensitivity to individual response is training in team building, intergroup confrontation, data feedback, and other modern tools of management designed to create a sense of ownership in common objectives.

The two key men are Eugene R. Watson, a Kanapolis native with wide experience in management development and currently an associate professor in the division of organizational development of the school of education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; and James C. Keyton, a personnel expert on loan from the North Carolina Manpower Development Corporation at Chapel Hill.

A federal grant has been secured to launch the program. It will not, both Watson and Keyton insist, develop into another growing state bureaucracy, but remain a small, central unit using consultants and training sessions to accomplish the goals.

What are those goals? They developed during the transition period under the guidance of Joe Grimsley, Hunt's secretary of administration and a top aide during the campaign.

Using the governor's own top organization and executive team as a model, and drawing on some proven — other experimental — management techniques to move toward the goal of insuring "all people an opportunity to pursue and develop their full abilities and talents and to assist them in reaching their full potential." One phase is executive development: share values, policies, philosophies of state government and the Hunt team; develop skills; improve ability to plan, coordinate, measure, and control efforts of state government; increase knowledge and understanding, is the mission spelled out in the grant application.

Ownership

The other phase is organizational development:

create sense of ownership throughout the work force in objectives of the Hunt team; more systematic problem solving on the job; manage conflict openly in work teams to reduce wasted energy and effort; encourage decisions made from competence rather than role or structure.

Watson says from his experience that one of the major weaknesses of team building and management work of this sort is the "difficulty of making a transition from the training seminar back to the home setting. Follow through on the job with new techniques is much below the pay off expected."

He hopes to avoid that by getting into the program at the very outset of the Hunt administration. The agency heads of new, not committed to the status quo, and anxious to learn. Early efforts are especially directed at methods for involving people in decisions and solving conflicts, gathering information, time management and other skills. "They know they need help, and are anxious to get information and directions."

Starting at the top and working down to the smallest units, Watson hopes to see the approach take hold throughout state government. To involve all employees, an attitude survey is now being made in all agencies under the governor's direct control (that excludes those with elected heads: education, justice, treasury, labor, agriculture, state, auditor, insurance).

Meanwhile, the governor and his staff are holding regular encounter sessions.

The Election Proposals

President Carter last week sent up his package of proposals for electoral reform. A sorrier package seldom has been dumped on the congressional stoop.

The President's plan contains four principal elements. The first, and worst, is for a constitutional amendment to provide for the direct election of presidents. A second measure would extend federal subsidies and controls to congressional elections. A third would scrap the Hatch Act, thus politicizing the federal civil service. The fourth would create an elaborate scheme for registering voters on election day.

On the surface, the four-part package exudes the innocence of a gurgling grandchild. These reforms, it is said, would promote the principle of one man, one vote. They would increase political participation. They would strike a blow against the special interests. They would enhance the democratic process. But one is reminded of John Randolph's dead mackerel in the moonlight: The proposals both shine and stink.

The constitutional amendment would be absolutely destructive of one of the oldest, soundest, and wisest principles of American government: the principle of federalism. In a hundred ways, ours is of course "one nation." We have one Constitution, one flag, one currency, one defense establishment, and so on. But the great genius of the American plan is that diversity underlies the uniformity. When we act politically, we act not as citizens of the United States, but as citizens of the separate states. Politically we are not one consolidated nation; we are a federation composing a federal union.

No amount of pitter-patter about "equalized voting" can conceal the revolutionary nature of Mr. Carter's proposal. In asking that the old system be scrapped, he is striking at the very heart of our political process. Only three weeks ago the President himself seemed to realize this. In response to questions on March 9, he appeared uneasy about the proposed amendment. But someone, probably Vice President Mondale, abruptly turned him around. One should not get born again so quickly.

The proposal for public financing of congressional

The Supreme Court upheld two major acts of the Roosevelt administration today and affirmed the principle of minimum wages for women.

Reversing its previous stand on the question of state control of minimum wages, the high tribunal upheld the constitutionality of the Washington law establishing minimum wages for women.

It also upheld the validity of the railway labor and Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage acts.

The high court unanimously upheld the railway labor act, requiring railroads to engage in collective bargaining with their workmen in an effort to settle industrial disputes.

The crash of cannonade and the fierce crackle of rifle fire broke an Easter truce of fatigue today and signalled general attacks on well-separated fronts by the government and insurgent armies of Spain.

It was disclosed the government troops had moved swiftly and silently into their positions while the insurgent forces were leading their efforts to stop their reverse in the Guadalajara front, to the northeast.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Why Carter Spilled Beans

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind President Carter's surprise decision to go public with his Mideast peace plan is his worry that Israel would mount a major lobbying and propaganda campaign in the U.S. to build support for its own positions.

Such foresight by Jimmy Carter has paid off handsomely. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who is not devious, last Sunday came right out and said that his country would have to begin an information drive in the U.S. No country in the world has so many political and media assets to influence U.S. opinion or so much genuine sympathy among American voters.

But that drive has been countered in advance by Mr. Carter self-leaking highly sensitive parts of his Mideast settlement plans in his March 9 press conference and during his town meeting in Clinton, Mass., March 16. He thereby tied himself to public positions that are now less susceptible to change by Israeli pressure.

In addition to this long-range Carter strategy, there was an element of rebuke for Rabin in the President's insistence — while Rabin was still here — that Israel withdraw from all conquered Arab lands except for "minor" border alterations.

One diplomat told us the rebuke stemmed from disagreement over Israel's desire for co-production rights to U.S. F-16 fighter aircraft. Another diplomat sharply questioned that view, saying that any intentional rebuke resulted from Rabin's hard line and combativeness when exposed to the new President's even-handed diplomacy, so different from candidate Carter's pro-Israel formulations.

The strongest factor influencing Mr. Carter to leak his own Mideast plan was fear that effective Israeli propaganda might force him to make concessions under pressure from supporters of Israel in and out of Congress. By spilling the beans before this pressure could build up, the President in effect insulated himself; to back down now, even though the plan is seen in Israel as favoring the Arabs, would require an unacceptable loss of presidential face.

This shows more than anything else the President's real intentions to break three decades of deadlock and wars between Israel and her Arab neighbors. It also shows why Arab leaders, despite their public dismay at some of the pro-Israeli positions retained in the Carter White House, have much to be grateful for.

When ambassadors of the four Arab states bordering Israel — Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon — went to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's office for an explanation of Mr. Carter's new settlement formula, they got more than any previous administration ever offered. It has not been disclosed, for example, that Vance pledged "mutual" treatment of demilitarized areas along new Arab-Israeli borders.

This concept of mutuality was obliquely touched on in Mr. Carter's press conference when he said ambiguously that "demilitarization is guaranteed on both

Strength For Today

PUTTING THE PIECES TOGETHER

A great building, to be made of cut stone, is in progress on a certain university campus. In the vicinity one walks among thousands of pieces of carefully hewn stone. They all bear numbers indicating exactly where they are to go in the process of construction. Within the next year they will all be put together and the beautiful building will take shape. But to one walking about among the stones now, it seems as if they could never be assembled in any rational pattern.

But behind this chaotic mass of stone is a carefully chosen team of masons, foremen, engineers — all working under the chief architect who has envisaged and will create this building. Behind the apparently random and detached events of life is also a team headed by an Architect. The team is made up of Christian men and women who understand the Architect's plan, at least in part, and someday a new world will arise because of the combined efforts of all of them.

Watch Out For Interpretations

By JOHN CUNNINGH
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You not only have to watch the numbers, but you have to watch those who interpret them.

A well-known educational and research organization this week reports that students whose families make between $4,000 and $10,000 a year dropped from 43 to 13 per cent of new university enrollments from 1966 to 1974.

There is little reason to doubt the figures. Figures do lie, we all have been taught, but in this instance it is unlikely they do. But the interpreters seem to have slipped on an analytical banana peel.

Why? Because they use the numbers to document a claim that lower and middle income families have been hard hit by the spiraling cost of higher education in the United States.

Since this statement also is true, what's the complaint? Just this: The evidence, the figures, don't document that conclusion at all.

What the numbers do say is that American families have moved up out of those lower pay scales that prevailed in 1966. They improved their incomes in real dollars; and inflation distorted the incomes to boot.

In 1966, the median family income was about $7,500. In 1974 it was close to $13,000. Most of the gain was inflation; in every year from 1966 through 1974 consumer prices rose at least 3 per cent, topped by 12.2 in 1974.

It is easy to see, therefore, why so few students are coming from those families earning only $4,000 to $10,000: There are fewer such families.

One can also attempt to claim that youngsters from the relatively well-off families are making up a larger percentage of new university enrollments by noting that in 1966 only 26 per cent came from households earning more than $15,000, while the percentage in 1974 was 57.

Put the incorrect interpretation on those numbers and you can wrench the hearts of those who fight the oppression of the poor, whose plight is difficult enough and doesn't need support of that kind.

But those who are aware of the yeast in those incomes won't be duped; they'll realize that the figures aren't evidence of the growing privileges of the rich, but of the value erosion of the dollar.

The National Chamber of Commerce is among those who know better — who know that some startling contrasts can be drawn between certain years by including inflation in dollar measurements.

It can show, for example, that the 1978 budget of $19.7 billion for natural resources-energy is 294 per cent greater than the $4 billion expenditures for the same category in 1968.

But this startling increase is diminished in meaning by two things: First, we are confronting an emerging shortage and have ordered the government to do something about it; second, inflation is counted in the figures.

When we count inflation in such analyses we are, so to speak, holding our thumb on the scale, and holding it there very heavily too. By 1978, the value of the 1968 dollar will not be 100 cents but something over 50 cents.

What is said for the rose — a rose is a rose is a rose — cannot be said for the dollar.

Dollars differ. And to use the differing dollar to compare two years separated by a decade is the equivalent of using a 12-inch ruler to measure one year and a 7-inch ruler to measure the other.

Suspects Pres. Carter Doesn't Want To Get Along

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As Jimmy Carter's honeymoon

with Congress looks more and more like a case for the divorce courts, Max Friedersdorf looks on with a mixture of understanding and bemusement. For six years he wooed, pampered and fought with the Democratic Congress as a lobbyist for Republican Presidents Nixon and Ford. But congressional Democrats didn't expect as much from a Republican administration in the way of personal favors and pampering. Shortly after the political conventions that nominated Carter and Gerald Ford for the presidency, Friedersdorf told Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., that "you're going to have a lot more trouble with the Carter administration than with us if we're elected."

In an interview, Friedersdorf talked about his own experiences dealing with Congress and about the continuing problems Carter is having. "Carter will have an easier time on legislation and a harder time on patronage," said the former lobbyist who now is the top staff aide on the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Since Carter moved into the White House two months ago, congressional leaders, including House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., have complained frequently that they were being bypassed by the White House and that the new President was off to a dismal start in his relations with Congress.

Carter acknowledged at a news conference that he and his chief congressional lobbyist, Frank Moore, had made mistakes. They would try harder, said the President.

But it was all downhill from then on. The White House announced that 19 water projects, each one dear to the heart of several members of Congress, were under review and might be canceled. The list grew to 30 and congressional outrage grew with it.

Friedersdorf says he's not sure Carter wants to get along with Congress. "You begin to wonder," he said. Maybe Carter, the Washington outsider, has a better understanding of how the American people feel about a lot of issues, including pork barrel public works projects. "As long as his popularity stays so high, he can go his own way," said Friedersdorf. "No one up here is going to get up on their hind legs and oppose him."

"There's nothing in the Constitution that says a president has to be popular with Congress," he added. "It's just a naturally antagonistic relationship."

Shortly after the election, Frank Moore asked Friedersdorf for advice on how to deal with Congress. "I told him the best thing he could do was get some experienced Hill people.... I don't think he did that very well," said Friedersdorf.

"He told me he thought we had too big a staff. He also said he was going to answer his own phone calls from members of Congress and that Carter was going to answer all his calls. I asked him, 'When are you going to have time to go to the Hill?'"

"He had no conception of the magnitude of the job."

the mail service in 1985 as drawn by a federal commission studying the future of the financially troubled Postal Service, sources said Monday.

Recommendations to Congress from the Commission on Postal Service are due by April 18, but participants said the panel has voted to recommend:

—Ending Saturday mail delivery to save $400 million per year.

—Increasing taxpayer subsidies by removing a ceiling imposed at the time the Postal Service was reorganized from the old Post Office Department in 1971.

The chances of Congress approving the recommendations appear slim.

But without these measures, the first-class rate would have to be increased to 28 cents by 1985 to cover the sharply rising cost of delivering the mail, sources said the commission determined.

Under the commission recommendations, the first-class rate would be held to "only" 22 cents per letter by 1985, the sources said.

First-class rates jumped from 10 to 13 cents on Dec. 31, 1975.

One commission member acknowledged that the recommendations will be unpopular. "We decided not to pay attention to what would be politically popular. We decided to recommend what we felt is needed," he said.

But, he added, "I don't think Congress is willing to accept elimination of Saturday delivery."

The commission decided not to make a recommendation on whether money-losing rural post offices should be closed, the sources said. The Postal Service has talked about closing some of its 30,000 post offices as an economy move, but there has been heavy opposition from Congress members representing rural districts.

The commission also decided to urge the Postal Service to "get seriously involved" with electronic communication, one source said. The mail agency has been considering electronic message services that would avoid some of the costs of sorting letters.

elections is accompanied by psalms of piety and virtue. By limiting fat-cat contributions, and by subsidizing the candidates' campaigns, the invidious special interests will be thwarted. Who could oppose a plan of such noble intentions?

Humbly! The President's pious little bill is the sweetest scheme ever devised for insuring the election of incumbents unto the end of time. An incumbent member of the House or Senate already has every imaginable advantage over an unknown challenger. In the hundred-yard dash of a fall campaign, the incumbent starts about 30 yards down the track. Public financing would hand him 10 yards more.

The bill to scrap the Hatch Act sweats the same bogus perfume. The idea is to make the 2.8 million federal employees whole citizens again — to let them participate fully in partisan political activities. Only those in exceptionally "sensitive" positions would be inhibited hereafter. But the reasons for the Hatch Act are as sound today as they were when the act was adopted in 1939. Indeed, with the rise of public employee unionism, the reasons are all the more compelling. This is a bill to create a Democratic political machine. It cannot be successfully disguised.

Nothing good can be said of the President's scheme for election day registration. Ostensibly, the idea is to remove those terrible "antiquated" and "arbitrary" obstacles to voting. Under Mr. Carter's bill, states would be compelled to register and to give a ballot to any person who stammers, stumbles, is led or bribed to the polls on election day. The bill bristles with formidable penalties for fraud, but these are the kind of fictitious penalties, like $500 fines for littering, that never are imposed. There would be no practical way of detecting or punishing the phantom voters who could be herded like sheep to the polls.

The package, in brief, is a bad bill of goods. The measures might be great for the Democratic party, but if they pass, Lord help the Republic.

sides." Vance, pressed by the Arabs, cleared away the vagueness; if Syria or Egypt accepts demilitarized portions of their territories on the Golan Heights or in the Egyptian Sinai, Israel will have to demilitarize its own side of those borders.

No such concept had ever been promised the Arab states. Moreover, Vance agreed with the Arab envoys that the history of Mideast wars following 1948 Israeli independence shows two preemptive attacks by Israel on the Arabs, in 1956 and 1967, compared with one attack by the Arabs in 1973 ostensibly to regain their own territory. Past administrations have tended to view Israel as the victim of aggression.

Later, Mr. Carter put the U.S. on record for the first time supporting a "homeland" for Palestinians, including refugees, during his town meeting in Clinton. That deepened even more the administration's worry about a sharp public relations counterattack from Jerusalem.

To understand this worry, it is necessary to focus on events triggered almost exactly two years ago when Henry Kissinger returned from a peace mission in the Mideast privately heaping blame on Israel for being intransigent. President Ford immediately ordered "reassessment" of U.S. policy toward its long-time closest foreign friend, putting a temporary "hold" on millions worth of military equipment. The result was a letter signed by 76 Senators demanding immediate resumption of aid and full U.S. support for Israel.

The Ford administration bowed to that heavy pressure without ever disclosing the outline of its settlement plan. This revealing bit of history is well known to Jimmy Carter, who does not want to be similarly taken. By letting his Mideast cat out of the bag, he is stuck with it, which puts him exactly where he wants to be.

Dog Vaccination Clinic Dates In Pitt Are Set

The Pitt County Community Health Department is offering dog vaccination clinics in Greenville and throughout Pitt County to help prevent the occurrence of rabies. Health Director Roger Barnaby announced today.

All dogs four months and over are to be vaccinated. Dog receive ing their first vaccinations should be given the vaccine again in 1978. Subsequent vaccinations are good for three years. The General Statutes of North Carolina require that all dogs be vaccinated and that their vaccination tags be displayed at all times.

There have been no reported cases of dog rabies in this county since 1958, Barnaby said, and he said he believes this is largely because of the efforts of the Rabies Control Program. Between 2,500 and 3,000 dogs are picked up by dogs wardens each year and about 6,000 dogs are vaccinated each year.

The vaccination fee at public clinics is $3 per dog. The fee at a veterinary hospital is $4 per dog. The schedule is as follows:

Monday, Apr. 4 — 6:15-6:45 p. m. Turner's Store at Belvoir, 7 to 7:30 p. m. Falkland Police Dept., and 7:45 to 8:15 p. m. Fountain Police Dept.

Tuesday, Apr. 5 — 6:15-7:15 p. m. First Federal Savings in Farmville and 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Post Office at Webb's Store in Bell Arthur.

Wednesday, Apr. 6 — 6:15 to 7:15 p. m. Bethel Police Dept. and 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Roebuck Parker Store in Stokes.

Thursday, Apr. 7 — 6:15 to 7 p. m. Davenport's Store in Pactolus and 7:15 to 8:15 p. m. Grimesland Post Office.

Friday, Apr. 8 — 6:15 to 8:15 p. m. King's Department Store in Greenville.

Monday, Apr. 11 — 6:15 to 7:15 p. m. Ayden Police Department and 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Griffon Police Department

Tuesday, Apr. 12 — 6:15 -6:45 p. m. Venters Crossroads and 7 to 7:30 p. m. Stokes & Lane Store at Gardenersville.

Wednesday, Apr. 13 — 6:15 to 7:15 p. m. Winterville Town Hall and 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Bailey's Store at Black Jack.

No Takers For Bumper Sticker

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — When North Carolina lost to Marquette 67-59 in the NCAA basketball finals, local merchant Richard Armfield felt the hurt worse than most.

"The trouble is, I thought we were going to win," Armfield said, pointing to a stack of 1,000 posters and 1,000 bumper stickers he printed for the game.

"Tar Heels No. 1, 1977 National Basketball Champions," they read.

"If it just didn't have the date on it, we'd have been all right," said Armfield, a frozen yogurt vendor.

Armfield said he and a partner lost about $400 on the bumper sticker venture because of the Tar Heels' loss.

The items were printed in time for quick sales at 50 cents per bumper sticker and $1 per poster.

Armfield's partner watched the game on television while sitting beside his printing press, ready to run off even more if the outcome had been different.

"If we had won, we'd have 10,000 of these out on the street," Armfield said.

Saying he was getting into the spirit of the celebration, Armfield was selling his yogurt for whatever amount customers happened to have in their pockets.

"I'm not stupid. This is great advertising," he said.

Besides, he added, "I don't even like yogurt."

Most students were too busy painting the street blue to notice the yogurt bargain, however, and several stopped just to use the bathroom.

Retired Lawmen Organize Ass'n

GREENSBORO (AP) — Some 130 retired law enforcement officers, meeting over the weekend, have formed the North Carolina Retired Peace Officers Association Inc.

Justice M. Tucker of Winston-Salem was named president, Stanhope Lineberry of Mecklenburg vice president and E. R. McKay of Concord chairman of the board of directors.

Tucker said there were an estimated 1,000 retired law enforcement officers in North Carolina and that the group will work to improve their welfare. Tucker said the group also hopes to elevate standards of the profession.

N.C. Shrimp Harvest Cut

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Winter cold killed off most of the white shrimp off North Carolina, and state officials have decided to limit the spring harvest in order to assure that those remaining can spawn.

"We're very much concerned," said Edward G. McCoy, director of the state Division of Marine Fisheries. "The whole white shrimp fishery could be a flop. We don't know."

Recent samplings have turned up few of the species, which cannot survive in water temperatures below 45 degrees. The division plans to close the Cape Fear River to white shrimp fishing in the spring.

Most of the state's shrimp harvest is made up of brown and pink shrimp, although the white shrimp are important to some areas in the southern part of the state.

Officials in South Carolina, Florida and Georgia, where the white shrimp make up a larger percentage of the annual harvests, have also taken steps to protect the species in their waters.

The largest harvest of white shrimp in North Carolina waters occurs during late summer and fall.

School Buses In Minor Mishap

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Several junior high school pupils were examined at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, at their parents' insistence, after a school bus rammed the rear of another school bus, but no injuries resulted, officials said Monday.

The driver of the trailing bus said the brakes failed and the vehicle could not be stopped from the ramming the lead bus, which was slowing for a passenger stop.

The buses and pupils were from Coulwood Junior High School.

Re-Hearing On Quota Policies

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals will rehear a racial quotas case involving two University of North Carolina student organizations, according to state officials.

The next hearing will be some time after April 15, Andrew A. Vanore, deputy attorney general, said Monday.

The appeals court ruled in January that requirements for specific racial representation on two organizations in Chapel Hill were unconstitutional and the rehearing petition was filed.

Vanore, who is handling the case for the university, said he would present arguments that the court was wrong in reversing a lower court's decision and that there are sufficient reasons to justify the racial quotas.

"Basically, we had not had an opportunity to present our evidence on the reasons for the racial policies," Vanore said.

Two white student plaintiffs in the case claimed their civil rights were violated by a requirement that the 18-member Campus Governing Board include at least two males, two females and two members of a minority race.

They also contended that a university honor court provision was unconstitutional because it allowed a student defendant to request that four of the seven judges in any particular case be of his or her race and sex.

The court agreed on those points, but rejected a challenge to the funding of the university's Black Student Movement since it was open to all students, regardless of race.

Priority To Basketball

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Basketball took precedence over most other matters in a brief night legislative session Monday.

Several senators grouped around a portable television during the NCAA basketball tournament consolation game between North Carolina-Charlotte and Nevada-Las Vegas.

Meanwhile, final action was delayed on a bill that would allow security guards to be armed with chemical mace.

The Senate met one hour earlier than usual and adjourned after 30 minutes so members would be able to see North Carolina and Marquette battle for the NCAA championship.

The House adjourned even quicker, dealing with only two technical bills in a 15-minute session.

Several legislators were absent, having gone to Atlanta for the tournament or stayed at home to watch it on television.

Sen. John Winters, D-Wake, offered an amendment to the mace bill, stipulating that guards must have received "proper training according to standards prescribed by the State Bureau of Investigation" before being allowed to use the chemical.

Winters' amendment had already cleared the House and passed its second reading in the Senate.

Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, opposed the amendment, saying it is not illegal for private citizens to use mace. The bill was placed on the Tuesday calendar, allowing the Senate to adjourn.

The quality of a building depends on the quality of the people who build it.

On paper, any commercial or industrial building looks good. But, you're not going to run your operation on paper. So, no matter how good your building looks on the blueprints, its ultimate quality rests in the hands of the people who build it for you.

We've been in the building business long enough to know that without good people, you're not going to get too many good customers. That's why our people, all of them, are building construction professionals. Which makes it easy for them to work well together. To work well for you and with you.

Because of our people, we can do the entire job for you, from site location to landscaping. Or any part of it. As much or as little as you want us to. Either way, you're assured of quality, professional workmanship. Efficient workmanship that gets you under roof faster, and saves you unnecessary construction delays and dollars in the process.

When you decide to build a quality building, call us. We'll put our quality people to work for you.

Marquette Surges Past Tar Heels

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — For a team that was going nowhere earlier this season, the Marquette Warriors certainly ended up in the right place.
An enigmatic, inconsistent team, Marquette reversed its field dramatically at just the right time and followed its own yellow brick road to the top of the college basketball world.
Al McGuire couldn't explain it—he could only enjoy it after Monday night's 67-59 victory over North Carolina gave him the national championship in his last game as a college coach.
"I honestly don't know what happened to our team," said McGuire after winning his first NCAA championship in the finals at the Omni. "Maybe they stopped listening to the coach."
McGuire, who is retiring from basketball to go into private business, never thought he'd be at the NCAA playoffs this year, much less be wearing the winner's crown.
But his team played mistake-proof basketball against North Carolina to give him that distinction.

"I think they fell apart in the second half," McGuire said of North Carolina. "We hung in there."
If any of McGuire's 404 victories in his career could be called a "coaching" victory, this one might be it. Even McGuire admitted to playing a determining role in the outcome, something he usually doesn't do.
When North Carolina made a spectacular rally in the second half, the Marquette coach called timeouts at crucial moments to try to stop the Tar Heels' momentum.

"Once the avalanche came and we were tied, I tried to stop the avalanche by delays and I called some timeouts," said McGuire. "Usually we try to do it with contact lens timeouts of something like that. You have to stop the momentum no matter what."
There was another intelligent, if more subtle ploy, used by the brainy Marquette coach. When the Tar Heels went into their patented four-corner offense after coming back from a 12-point deficit to tie the game, McGuire found something else with which to struggle them.

"I kept my big men around the basket so they wouldn't be able to score anything easy inside," said McGuire.
The four corner offense had been a boon to North Carolina all season, but it turned into a bust this time. Carrying the momentum of the game, the Tar Heels apparently lost what they had at this point. After their gallant rally tied the score at 45 they slowed down the tempo and eventually lost the handle of the game.

The four-corner offense had suddenly become a double-edged sword.
"The four corners in this instance hurt them," said Hank Raymonds, McGuire's assistant who is replacing him as coach next year. "They lost the momentum and just quit playing."
North Carolina, which got several easy shots off the four corners in Saturday's semifinal victory over Nevada-Las Vegas, simply could not do the same thing against Marquette. After holding the ball for almost three minutes, the Tar Heels finally got off a shot in the second half. McGuire said that set the trend for the rest of the game.

The Tar Heels tied the game once more at 47, but that was the last time they were even with the Warriors. Two foul shots by Butch Lee and a field goal by backcourt mate Jim Boylan provided Marquette with a four-point lead and McGuire's boys eventually built it to 10 at one stage late in the contest.
Lee finished with 19 points and Boylan and Bo Ellis had 14 each while Whitehead contributed 11 rebounds for the new NCAA champions. Walter Davis led North Carolina with 20 points and Mike O'Koren had 14.

Marquette's victory had added impact because of its highly erratic season. The Warriors lost seven games this year—and no other NCAA champion in history can claim that dubious distinction.
At one point of the season when Marquette dropped three straight games and skidded to a 16-6 record, McGuire all but gave up hopes of going to the NNAA playoffs in his last year.

"When we lost our third game at home and were going to a five-game road series, I'd given up."
But while McGuire was throwing in the towel, his players were tightening their belts. Led by Ellis and Lee, the Warriors began playing more consistent ball toward the end of the season.

"Outside of my lucky suit, I don't know what caused it, except maybe the subs coming through," said McGuire. "Subs win tournaments for you. The subs must always play over their capabilities."
The Warriors won four straight games before a season-ending, one-point loss to Michigan. Their 20-7 record was not McGuire's brightest, but it got him into the NCAA playoffs for one last time.

Now at the top of their game, the Warriors humiliated a good Cincinnati team 66-51 in the opening of the Midwest Regional playoffs. Prophetically, substitutes helped McGuire win the next two games—67-66 over Kansas State and 82-68 over Wake Forest.

That last victory secured the Midwest title and got the Warriors into the gold-plated final four at Atlanta. Still, it was hard convincing everybody that they belonged there.
"Everyone who plays us wonders how we beat them," said

McGuire. "People look at Marquette and they always think they're better. But we do what we must to win. We take away the other team's rhythm."
That's precisely what happened in Saturday's semifinals against North Carolina-Charlotte. The Warriors dictated the tempo from start to finish and escaped with a typically breathtaking 51-49 victory on a last-second shot by Whitehead.
"We never blow out a team,"

McGuire said, "that's just our style."

While Marquette was frustrating North Carolina-Charlotte, North Carolina was doing the same to Nevada-Las Vegas. The Tar Heels edged the Runnin' Rebels 84-83 in Saturday's semifinals to set up Monday night's intriguing title game.
It proved to be the perfect going-away present for a coach who has had just about everything.

Rampettes In Easy Victory

Rampants In Track Victory

Rose High School captured a close track victory over Northern Nash yesterday, easing to an eight-point win.
Rose finished with 72 points, just besting Northern's total of 64.

The Rampants won seven individual events, just half of the total, and the two teams also split the two relays. Rose won it on better depth, sweeping the shot put, the triple jump and the long jump. Northern was unable to gain any sweeps.

Jule White took first place in both the high jump and the triple jump, and was the lone double winner of the day.
The Rampants return to action on Thursday, hosting Wilson.

Things Looking Good For Greene Softball

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Despite only one returning starter, first-year Greene Central softball coach Tim Corbett has high hopes for the Ewes this season.

Greene Central won only three games last year — losing 10 — but have almost equalled that win mark in just three outings this season. The Ewes are currently 2-1.

Corbett feels his team has "a possibility of taking the conference. We've got the material, if the girls would just put it out."
The Ewes are a young team, Corbett said, with only three seniors and 10 freshmen. Hitting will be a weak point, but the Greene Central girls could make up for that with hustle and strong pitching, according to Corbett.

Also, the infield needs some improvement, but "it's coming around," Corbett said.
Starting in the Greene Central infield is Cindy Creech at first base. "Defensively, she's very good; offensively, she's a little weak," Corbett said.

At second will be Gail Jones, a strong hitter with a home run this year, but a little slow in the field.
Sarah Taylor is the team's leading infielder at third, Corbett said. "She has a good head on her shoulders about the game

— she understands the game very good," he said.
Renee Barfield plays shortstop and she is "coming around. She's a little slow moving toward the ball and her hitting is moderate, but she does a very good job for us right now."
Moving to the outfield, Carolyn Yelverton plays short center field. She is the team's top hustler, Corbett said, and is a moderate hitter.

Alberta Sutton, one of the stronger of the Ewes at the plate, starts in left field. She leads the team with five RBIs and has also had a home run.
In center field is Iris Pridden. Corbett describes her as "a pretty strong girl." Although he said the sophomore has not yet learned how to hit well, she is a "pretty good" fielder.

The team's only returning starter plays in right field, Nessie Edmundson. She is a fairly good hitter, but is also a little slow defensively, Corbett said.
The catcher is first-year junior Lana Ginn "who is a 'very good catcher, but a very weak hitter.'"

Lynn Shackelford and Linda Bynum are the team's two pitchers, with Shackelford being a left-hander. In her only game so far this year, Shackelford gave up no walks and got behind only two batters, Corbett said.
Bynum has been credited with both the Greene Central wins this year.

Corbett sees the Eastern Carolina Conference race as "very tight." D. H. Conley, Southern Nash and Greene Central all have a shot at the title, he said, although Southern Nash is more experienced than the others and Conley has a "greatly improved team."

Jaguars Best Eastern Wayne

FARMVILLE CENTRAL — Farmville Central romped to an easy victory in a track meet yesterday, downing Eastern Wayne.

Farmville finished the meet with 100-2/3 points on the day, while Eastern Wayne was far back with 35-1/3 points.

The Jaguars won 12 of the 14 individual events and took both of the relays on the way to the victory. Rufus Mayo captured first place in three events, the triple and long jumps and the 440-yard dash. Horace Williams won the pole vault and the two-mile run, Chris Connell took the mile and the 880-yard runs, and Robert Williams won the 100 and the 220-yard dashes.

Farmville Central travels to Tarboro on Monday.

Washington Tops Rams

SNOW HILL — Washington romped to an 88-44 victory over Greene Central in a dual track meet yesterday at Greene Central.

The Pam Pack took first place in all but three individual events. The two schools split the relay events.
Hogan won the 440-yard dash and the 100-yard dash for Washington, while Rogers added both hurdles events and the long jump and high jump.

Greene Central entertails Ayden-Grifton and Conley on Wednesday.

Lady Jaguars In Easy Win

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girls' track team romped to an easy victory over Eastern Wayne yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars piled up 89½ points in the meet, while Eastern Wayne came up with only 23½.

Farmville Central won all 11 individual events, then added the mile relay in forfeit. Eastern Wayne took only the other two relays.
Ilene Phillips was a triple winner for the Lady Jags, winning the discus, shot put and the 220-yard dash. Dianne Barrett took the long and high jumps to be a double winner.

Farmville will entertain Elm City on Wednesday.

Ellis Lets It All Out In Victory

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Marquette's Bo Ellis, the expressionless, unemotional captain and team leader of the Warriors, finally blew his cool. But the 6-foot-9, 195-pound forward had the best of excuses — his Jesuit school from Milwaukee had just captured its first NCAA basketball title and Ellis, along with guard Butch Lee, had triggered the 67-59 victory over North Carolina Monday night. The 22-year-old native of Chicago, a starter since his freshman season, cut the net down from one of the baskets as the Marquette followers chanted "We're No. 1, We're No. 1." Then he placed it around his neck to wear as his own personal trophy. Ellis, then proceeded to pound teammates on the back, grabbed center Jerome Whitehead, who outweighs him by 20 pounds, and placed him in a bear hug as he chanted, "We did it, we did it." "I never dreamed of anything like this in my life," said Ellis who played on the 1974 Warrior squad that lost to North Carolina State in the NCAA final. "I don't believe it. It's the ultimate feeling in my life. Marquette deserved this. We've had so many great teams in the past and came so close," said Ellis, who scored 14 points and grabbed nine rebounds and was named to the all-tournament team along with Whitehead and Lee. Lee, who scored 19 points, was named the tournament's outstanding player. The triumph also was a last hurrah for Marquette Coach Al McGuire, who announced earlier he was retiring at the end of this season after 20 years of coaching.

"It's such a great feeling. Everybody in the world is watching and everything is beautiful right now," said Ellis. "As a freshman, I was younger and didn't really know what the NCAA championships really meant. Now I know." Lee, a junior who was Marquette's leading scorer with a 20-point average, said he was pleased that McGuire went out a winner but that they didn't just win it for him. "We tried to win for everybody," he said. "We're No. 1, we're the champions, and that's all that counts." Mike O'Koren, the 18-year-old freshman from North Carolina, who scored 14 points, jammed in eight at the start of the second half to trigger an 18-4 spurt that gave the Tar Heels a 45-43 lead after trailing 39-27 at the half.

Phil Ford, the All-American who was hampered by an injured right elbow, said he didn't want "anybody to quote me as saying that my elbow affected my play out there or cost us the game. But I feel that I have been useless to the team for the last two games." Ford scored 11 points in Carolina's 84-83 victory over Nevada-Las Vegas and only six against Marquette. "Marquette has a great team," said Walter Davis, who led the Tar Heels with 20 points. "We knew that it would be a 40-minute game tonight. The breaks just didn't go our way though."

Las Vegas Is 106-94 Victor

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — "It was nice to win, ending the season on a winning note, but I still don't like the consolation game idea," Coach Jerry Tarkanian said after Nevada-Las Vegas trimmed North Carolina-Charlotte 106-94 for third place in the NCAA basketball championship. Charlotte Coach Lee Rose doesn't much like a game for two losers, either, because "you come down here to win the championship and when you lose, it's tough to come back." In spite of their feelings, the Monday night game was hard-fought and fast-paced. The 200 points by both clubs broke the consolation game record for most points set last year in Philadelphia when UCLA beat Rutgers 106-92. The 83 field goals also broke the UCLA-Rutgers record of 82.

The Omni was half-filled and the cheerleaders appeared listless at the start of the contest. But the crowd got interested in a hurry as the free-wheeling offenses got untracked. Charlotte took a 55-50 half-time lead, but eventually ran out of gas late in the second half and couldn't keep up with the quickest shooting and highest scoring college team in the nation.

"The sad thing about the whole thing is a kid like Eddie Owens crying," said Tarkanian of his 6-foot-7 senior who sparked the Rebels with 34 points. "I always play to win, that's the way I was brought up. I just try to let it rub off on the rest of the team. I have a lot of pride and respect for the game," said Owens, who explained the tears were because "we could have been playing for the title. But that's all behind me now. I'm just going to look to the future." Center Cedrick Maxwell and freshman guard Chad Kinch led Charlotte with 30 points apiece. Maxwell also had 16 rebounds and was named to the all-tournament team.

"Winning the game is what counts," said Maxwell. "I'm down right now after the loss, but I'm trying to take the loss like a man should and I'll just hope to go on to bigger and better things." Tarkanian, usually fidgety and nervous before the game, said he wasn't Monday—until the contest got under way. "But once the game starts, every coach gets wrapped up in it. It's the competing thing, I guess. As it turned out, I was real pleased overall at how our kids played," he said.

Rose said, "We gave it our best shot. But we got whipped and that's it. We have no regrets." Charlotte, which lost to Marquette in the semifinals Saturday, finished its season with a 28-5 record. Las Vegas, which fell to North Carolina in the semifinals, finished with a 29-3 mark.

"When we lost to Carolina, our season was really finished. All we had left was to go out and have a good effort, especially for our five seniors. I told the kids that this game was for pride and character," he said.

Big Welcome For Winners

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — With deputy sheriffs struggling to hold the clutching hands of wild-eyed fans at bay, an exhausted Al McGuire looked more like a Hollywood celebrity than a college basketball coach.

"I really didn't want to fly back tonight," he said. "I wanted to let my ballplayers fly back. The show was for them." McGuire and his Marquette Warriors, having won the NCAA basketball championship in Atlanta, were confronted by a screaming throng of emotion-fueled patriots as the team's chartered plane arrived at a municipal field early today. Deputies in the two-story Mitchell Field terminal warned security guards on the runway to brace for a welcoming population whose estimates ranged to 15,000 persons. Jerome Whitehead was the first to brave the congestion, his 6-foot-10 hulk confined by a cluster of women seeking autographs. Deputies fended fans as they maneuvered McGuire, his wife Patricia, Gov. Patrick J. Lucie and Marquette President John

P. Raynor to a side exit. It was Marquette's first NCAA championship after several near misses, adding special thrill to the occasion because it was McGuire's final game after 13 years as Marquette coach. Lucey, who flew from Atlanta with the Warriors, was reminded that the victory came hard on the heels of another big score for his state: the University of Wisconsin's weekend winning of the NCAA hockey championship in Detroit.

"To think that the fans of Wisconsin had to sit through two overtime games to pull the Badgers through," he said, "then to see Marquette win like this." "I would really like to think I helped a bit," he continued, "except what good would my Irish luck have done compared to that of Al McGuire?" McGuire, who portrays himself as an alley fighter from New York while his faithful define him as a clowning genius, was reminded he had unveiled a tender side by bursting into tears after the Monday night victory. William and Mary's two triumphs Monday boosted the

Citadel Coach Wins 200th

By The Associated Press
Chal Port, bidding for a second successive Southern Conference baseball title at The Citadel, has become only the second coach to win 200 games in his career since the league was realigned in 1954.

His Bulldogs presented him with his 200th victory Monday, routing Brockport State 14-1 in a nonconference game that topped their over-all record to 10-4. William and Mary's Indians, meanwhile, tightened their grip on fourth place in the league standings by sweeping a doubleheader from Virginia Military's last-place Keydets, 3-0 and 14-2.

Three teams opened their conference seasons last Saturday with doubleheader sweeps that left them tied for the lead at 2-0.

The Citadel wiped out Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 5-0 and 3-2; East Carolina's Pirates blanked VMI twice, 8-0 and 3-0; and Western Carolina's Catamounts made their conference debut with a 9-5, 11-4 sweep over Davidson's Wildcats.

William and Mary's two triumphs Monday boosted the Indians' league record to 6-2. Marshall's Thundering Herd, which split a Saturday twin bill with the Indians, is fifth at 1-1, followed by Davidson at 2-4, Furman's Paladins at 1-3, Appalachian State at 0-2 and VMI at 0-4.

Two of the conference's three new members, Western Carolina and Marshall, are eligible in the race for the baseball title. Only Tennessee-Chatanooga does not play a round-robin league schedule. Frank Galloway, Doug Johnson and Tommy McElwee combined to pitch a six-hitter in the victory by The Citadel, which lifted Port's record to 200-145-1 in his 13th season. Marty Crosby hit a three-run homer and Melvin Williams a two-run double for the Bulldogs.

William and Mary's Kevin Greenan pitched a three-hitter in the opener for the Indians and Dave McElhaney had three hits, drove in one run and scored another.

McElhaney, Bobby Manderfield and Dave Hissey had two hits each in the nightcap, which the Indians broke open with eight runs in the third inning. Doug Melton limited VMI to six hits.

West Craven Captures Win

VANCEBORO — West Craven rolled to an easy victory in a three-way track meet yesterday at the Eagle track. West Craven finished the afternoon with 94 points, while Ayden-Griffon was a distant second with 35. Jones Senior came in third with 32.

West Craven won ten individual events to easily outscore the rest of the field. Jones Senior won three events, while Ayden-Griffon won just one individual event. West Craven and Ayden-Griffon each won a relay.

Butler won the shot put and the discus, while Buck took the pole vault and the 880-yard run, and Green won the high and low hurdles to be double winners for West Craven.

Ayden-Griffon travels to Greene Central on Wednesday. Summary:

"Our Record Of Excellence Speaks For Itself"

'Rocky', 'Network' And Watergate Take Top Oscars

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A scathing satire on the television industry, a Cinderella tale of a second-rate boxer's reach for the top and a Watergate detective story took most of the Oscars at the 49th Academy Awards, but Peter Finch stole the show.

"Finchie," as the film community affectionately knew the late actor, was posthumously honored with the best actor Oscar for his portrayal of a mad broadcaster in "Network." In the most poignant moment of Monday night's nationally telecast awards show, Liv Ullmann opened the Best Actor envelope and read, "Peter Finch, for 'Network.'"

The crowd at the packed Music Center roared its approval, as Finch, who died of a heart attack Jan. 14, became the first actor ever to win the award posthumously.

Faye Dunaway won the best actress award for her blistering performance as the hard-driving "Network" executive who sacrificed all for success.

The Oscar for the best picture went to "Rocky," which was made for a "cheap" $1 million and featured a then-unknown leading man — Sylvester Stallone. The story of a down-and-out fighter's shot at the heavyweight title also won a director's Oscar for John G. Avildsen and another for best film editing.

Some critics said the affair lacked some of the excitement of past Oscar nights, but that was in part by design. "Exorcist" director William Friedkin, who produced this year's show, cut down on some of the onstage chit-chat and offstage glitter in an effort to produce a more dignified show.

What he got was a more dignified show that dragged in parts.

"It looks like we could have used some of that meaningless interchange," one Academy official mumbled in reference to Friedkin's move from two presenters to one.

Unlike last year, when "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" swept all the major categories, this year's homage by the film industry to itself lacked a big winner. "Network" and "All the President's Men," each with four statuettes, won the most. Stallone's "Rocky" took three Oscars.

OSCAR SHOW WAS THEIRS — Sylvester Stallone, creator, screenwriter and star of "Rocky," poses with Mrs. Peter Finch (center) and Faye Dunaway after last night's Academy Awards. "Rocky" was named best picture of the year; the late Peter Finch best actor for his role in "Network," and Miss Dunaway best actress for "Network." (AP Wirephoto)

Kovacs' Comedy For Public TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting April 12, the comic legacy of the late Ernie Kovacs left on videotape and kinescope returns to TV — public TV — in 10 weekly shows called "The Best of Ernie Kovacs."

And Oscar-winning actor Jack Lemmon, a Kovacs friend ever since they met while making "Operation Mad Ball" in 1957, is hosting the shows, serving as a guide to the man and his off-beat humor.

He was asked what sort of guy was Kovacs, creator of such memorables as the Nairobi Trio, Miklos Molnar, the noted cook and poet Percy Dovetonsils for commercial TV in the 1950s and early 1960s.

"Well, he was crazy, first of all," Lemmon laughed. "But his craziness and brilliance were what made him so unique. And the wild, imaginative things only he came up with really were innovations in TV."

"And people tend to forget he was a technical wizard in the use of the camera, the same way Buster Keaton was way back in the silent era. People think of Keaton as a comic."

"But they don't realize he also was one of the great, innovative film makers. Well, Ernie was that way in the early days of television."

Kovacs died at age 43 in an auto accident here in 1962. The Public Broadcasting Service shows featuring his work were compiled and edited by station WTTW in Chicago. Each show is a half-hour in length.

"I never spent 30 seconds with Ernie that were dull, and I don't think anybody who knew him did, either," Lemmon recalled.

An example: He said one night Kovacs invited him and the lady Lemmon later married, Felicia Farr, out to dinner with his wife, actress-singer Edie Adams. Later, they sat around listening to music in a partly finished study Kovacs was building near his house.

Kovacs wouldn't let them leave, Lemmon said. Finally, at 3:30 a.m. he insisted his guests stay overnight in the study, sleep in front of the warm fireplace, and get them a huge bearskin rug.

"He neglected to say workmen were coming at 8 a.m.," the actor said. "So dawn comes, there we are under the rug, and I hear this incredible hammering going on. A guy on a ladder looks down at me."

"He obviously knows who I am, says, 'Good mornrrrrring,' a big smile. Same with another guy putting in sliding doors. I felt embarrassed as hell..."

Lemmon started chucking. "Now, I damn well know he knew these guys were coming in at 8 a.m. or he wouldn't have insisted for 1½ hours that we had to stay there."

But despite Kovacs' legendary zaniness, he said, "he also was a terribly decent man. And that's hard to do when you have a career like his, work for so many people on so many different craft levels."

"Sooner or later — we're all human — you can get mad, do this, do that. But Ernie never hurt a bug, that I know of. He seemed to have no foibles, only greatness."

Leonard Rosenman won an Oscar for his scoring adaptation of "Bound For Glory," while Jerry Goldsmith's score for "The Omen" won for original score.

William Goldman's screen adaptation of Robert Woodward and Carl Bernstein's "All the President's Men" won honors for best screenplay adapted from another medium.

A sleeper, "Black And White In Color," won the Oscar for best foreign language film. The Ivory Coast picture won over such highly-touted foreign movies as "Cousin Cousine" and "Seven Beauties."

Claims Eleanor Blamed Herself

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleanor Roosevelt felt her interest in her own activities drove her husband, the late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, into the arms of another woman and caused his premature death, her son Elliot says in a new book.

Elliot Roosevelt, in "Mother R: Eleanor Roosevelt's Untold Story," says his mother felt she was "pigheaded" and "always so insistent on doing the things I wanted to do."

In excerpts from the book published in the April issue of Ladies Home Journal, Roosevelt wrote that his mother learned of her husband's involvement with Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary in 1918. But he said FDR's mother, Sara Roosevelt, headed off a divorce and persuaded him to give up the woman by threatening to withhold funds he wanted to aid his political career.

Actress Reveals Shyness Trait

MIAMI (AP) — Suzanne Pleshette, who comes across on television and movie screens as witty, self-assured and outspoken, says she's afraid of simple things like ordering dinner.

"I'm shy, even though I work against it by being the loudest one in the crowd," said the costar of CBS' "Bob Newhart Show."

"I'm terrified of simple things like calling up room service and ordering dinner. I don't know what to tip or how to sign the check. I'm not capable of renting a car and driving around a strange city and discovering it for myself."

"On a personal appearance, if the makeup man or the hairdresser doesn't call and say, 'Let's have dinner,' I don't know what to do."

Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post's executive editor. It was Robards' first Oscar nomination.

Beatrice Straight, who lost husband William Holden to Faye Dunaway in "Network," was named best supporting actress. Miss Straight, who spent years on Broadway and did a stint in the quickly folded television show "Beacon Hill," won the Academy's honor on the basis of only two brief scenes in the film.

"I was stunned," the American-born, English-educated actress said backstage, "very stunned. I must have looked like an idiot up there."

"Network" also won an Oscar for Paddy Chayevsky, who wrote the original screenplay.

Despite this year's attempt at cutting what Friedkin had termed the "lackiness" of previous Oscar shows, there were some touching moments.

There were tears aplenty when, in accepting the best actor award for Finch, Paddy Chayevsky stepped to the microphone and said, "There's only one person who should accept this — Mrs. Peter Finch."

Amid a standing ovation, Finch's widow, Eletha, walked to the stage. With tears in her eyes she relayed a message she said her husband had wanted to give to the Academy.

"He said, 'Darling, if I win I want to say thanks to my fellow actors who have given me encouragement through the years, to Paddy, who gave me this part... and most of all, to you, darling, for sending me the right vibes.'"

Back stage, the actor's Jamaican-born widow said her husband had "wanted an Oscar and continued the suit to declarator's king. After some study, declarator worked out a combination which would enable him to make the contract should the spade finesse win. If a defender held just two spades and either a singleton trump honor or both missing high trumps, he could be employed. All that was needed was careful timing in case that defender also held a doubleton club.

Declarator cashed the ace and king of diamonds and then finessed the queen of spades. Matters improved when the lady won the trick. Now declarator completed the groundwork by cashing the ace of spades and was delighted to see the king fall. A club to the queen completed the stripping maneuvers, then declarator exited with a trump and held his breath.

West cashed the king and ace of hearts, to complete the defensive book. Unfortunately for the defenders, he remained with nothing but minor-suit cards in his hand. No matter which suit he returned, declarator would be able to sluff his spade loser from one hand while ruffing in the other, and bring home a well-played game.

West led the top of his club sequence, and declarator was troubled by the mirror distributions. Since both dummy and declarator had exactly the same hand patterns, it seemed that declarator would have to lose two trumps, a club and a spade even if the spade king should be onside. Change a low spade to a low diamond in either hand, and the contract would depend only on the spade finesse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study new project from every angle before putting it in operation. Take no chances with an outsider today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Follow your intuition now and it can help you advance in career matters. Evening is fine for entertaining.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Work out those agreements intelligently with associates and get good results. Do nothing that would harm your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend to routine duties early so you'll have time for personal matters later. Take time to improve your appearance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be endowed with a winsome personality and charm. There ability in this chart that could bring great success. Direct education along lines of working with big corporations. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Livestock Show And Sale On April 5, 6

The 37th Annual Coastal Plain Livestock Show and Sale will be held April 5 and 6 at the Lenoir County Livestock Development Association Arena in Kinston. Three divisions of hogs, Junior, Commercial, and Purebred, will be shown. A Junior Beef Cattle Show will also be held.

Pitt County producers are eligible to enter the Commercial and Purebred swine show. Entries must be made at least five days before the show. Hogs weighing from 180 to 210 pounds will show in lightweight classes. Hogs weighing from 211 to 240 pounds will show in heavyweight classes. An exhibitor may enter either two lightweight, two heavyweight, or one of each in each class. The average weight of pens will determine their weight class.

On Tuesday, April 5, the Swine Hoof Carcass Show will begin at 1 p.m. The Swine Show will begin at 2 p.m. and the Beef Show will begin at 6 p.m. A Junior Judging Contest will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday, April 6. Any 4-H or FFA Livestock Judging Team in North Carolina may participate. At 7:15 p.m. results of the Swine Carcass Show will be announced. Awards for the shows will be presented at 7:20 p.m. with the livestock sale to begin at 7:30 p.m.

For further information contact Mike Regans at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 758-1196.

HUNGRY BEASTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pet food markets a pet product for supermarkets, thanks to sales three times as large as sales of baby food. The retail dollar volume of pet food sales grew eight to 12 per cent between 1975 and 1976, says "Progressive Grocer."

Now That Spring Is

Considering '77 Leaf Marketing Program Changes

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that it is considering changes in marketing quota and price support regulations of the flue-cured tobacco program for the 1977 crop year.

The first change being considered is the eligibility requirements for approving the lease of marketing quotas filed after June 14 of any year. Under this change a farmer could only lease out a quantity of quota equal to the difference between the expected production on the acres he actually plants and the production on those acres.

This in effect would permit leasing in the fall of only 100 per cent of the pounds a farmer failed to produce on his planted acreage. The pounds on the acreage not planted and the pounds above 100 per cent could not be leased after June 14. This would mean there could be very few pounds eligible for lease and transfer if most farmers make a good crop.

The second change is establishing compliance with acreage allotments as a condition of price support eligibility. Under this considered change, a farm on which the certified or measured acreage planted to flue-cured tobacco exceeds 107 per cent of the farm acreage allotment, would be ineligible for price support and would receive a marketing card marked "no price support" to so indicate.

This would require that all farmers plant within 107 per cent of their effective allotment to be eligible for price support. It also would require all farm operators to certify to these planted acreage of tobacco. This would require measurement of some farms and could require all farms to be measured.

Because these proposals will be effective for the 1977 crop year all tobacco producers should be familiar with them before planting their crops. From past experience most proposals become effective unless there is a very unfavorable reaction. If effective they could cause a farm to be ineligible for price support if overplanted. The change in the fall transfer provision could result in pounds that could not be used or leased for the 1977 crop year.

In summary the changes being considered would require planting within 107 per cent of the allotment, certification and measurements. It would limit fall leasing to only pounds not produced on the planted acreage.

For further information concerning the changes, contact the Pitt County ASCS Office or call 752-6112.

Delay Middle School Planning Report

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
A report concerning recommendations about combining the Ayden-Grifton Middle School which was to be presented by the Division of School Planning of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction to the Pitt County School Superintendent by mid-March or the end of March will be delayed until sometime in April, according to Darrell Spencer of the Department of School Planning. Representatives of the Department of School Planning were requested in December by the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council to study the feasibility of combining the two middle schools.

February 7, representatives of the Planning Department met with citizens and Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council members to discuss the combining of the two schools. At the February meeting Spencer said that the reports should be issued during March.

"Probably by mid-March or the end of March we will send a report of our recommendations to the Superintendent. Then, if you would like for us to, we can return to help you implement a program and discuss kinds of programs that you want for your school," Spencer said.

In a telephone interview Monday morning, Spencer said that the planning team's recommendation report will not be available until mid-April.

"We're working on the report now and pulling information together. The delay has been caused by our workload. We do hope to be working full time on the report during the next few weeks and we plan to have the report ready probably by April 22," Spencer said.

Spencer said that he plans to contact the Pitt County Superintendent this week to explain the delay and arrange a tentative deadline.

Church Meet At Simpson

Homecoming For Legion Post

The Pitt County American Legion, Post No. 39, will observe its Annual Homecoming on Saturday, April 2. The affair will be celebrated with a pig-picking which is scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m.

Post Commander Alton Warren invites all members of the post, the auxiliary and their families to attend.

Two Right-To-Read Seminar Programs

East Carolina University will host two "Right To Read" seminar programs for eastern N.C. school administrators and reading program coordinators April 1 and May 13.

Seminar consultant is Dr. Lawrence E. Hafner of Florida State University, author of "Developmental Reading in Middle and Secondary Schools: Foundations, Strategies and Skills for Teachers."

The topic of the two programs is "Reading in the Middle and Secondary Schools." Dr. Mary Lois Staton of the ECU School of Education is campus coordinator for the programs.

Each program will feature smaller afternoon group seminars in addition to the general morning presentation by Dr. Hafner.

Seminar topics and leaders are: Social Studies: Elizabeth Roberson, Martin County Public Schools; Science: Dr. Charles Coble, ECU Department of Science Education; Mathematics: Stella Chambliss, ECU General Assistance Center; and English: Paul Delamar, Pamlico County Schools.

The two seminar programs are sponsored by the ECU Department of Elementary Education in cooperation with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction. Further information about the programs is available from the School of Education, ECU.

Similar seminars are scheduled for N.C.A&T University in Greensboro and UNC-Asheville.

Cheerleaders To Attend Clinic

Cheerleaders from the four Pitt County High Schools will attend the annual Lenoir Community College Cheerleaders Clinic Friday, April 15.

Cheerleaders from Ayden-Grifton High School, Farmville Central High School, D.H. Conley High School, and North Pitt High School will be among 100 high school cheerleaders attending the clinic. The participants will learn pom pom routines, and trampoline and gymnastic stunts.

Elmhurst PTA Meets Mar. 31

An attendance award will be given to the class with the largest representation of parents and friends.

Offering Course For Handyman

Pitt Technical Institute will offer a 60 hour course in Handyman Bricklaying beginning Tuesday, March 29 at 7 p.m. in room 113 of the Humber Building.

The course will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. and will feature "hands on" instruction in the fundamentals of bricklaying. The course is suited for the individual who desires to learn to build patios, flower borders, walks, and other construction. The registration is $5. For further information contact the Division of Continuing Education at 756-3130, extension 238, or 266.

Gave Program For Meeting

Mrs. Georgie Hall, program chairman, presented the program at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Insurance Women held Wednesday evening at the Ramada Inn.

Plans were made for the installation of officers for the coming year which will be held April 27. Mrs. Louise R. Candler, N.C. Association Insurance Women president will be a special guest at the meeting.

New committee chairpersons were announced at the meeting, which was conducted by President Mrs. Joyce Mills.

The Hostess Committee decorated the tables in an Easter motif.

A question and answer period followed the program.

The $50,000 you'll spend on cars: How to manage it.

From 1929 to 1977, an "average American" 65 years old could have spent some $50,000 buying all the cars you see here.

And probably borrowed a lot of money for them, since two out of three people buy "on time".

Chances are, you'll be borrowing a lot of money, too.

That's why the people who make loans at NCNB will help out any way they can.

It's all part of 'Cash-Flow' Banking: information, services and people to help you make the most of the money you make.

(In fact, a booklet fitting your particular situation, wherever you are in life, is yours for the asking.)

As for your car, maybe leasing makes more sense than buying.

Maybe a longer-term loan will fit your budget better than a regular-term auto loan.

Maybe you're spending too much to get your old car ready for trade-in. (Check our 'Cash-Flow' Update Number 1 for the details.)

All told, there's a lot to consider before you buy. So come see us.

We can talk over your financial situation and give you an estimate of the money we'll lend you.

If you like, we can check your credit in advance, so that we need just a few details when you decide on a car. We'll give you a fast, direct answer; not a runaround.

We'll work out the payment plan that works best for you. (If you like, even automatic payments from your NCNB Checking Account.)

In short, we make things easier for you. Which is probably why we lend money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

Now only $1.49
