Scientists Learn Planet Uranus Has Five 'Rings'

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif.

(AP) — Scientists say they have made the first major structural discovery in the solar system in nearly 50 years — the cold, mysterious planet of Uranus has rings like Saturn.

Until now, Saturn was the only one of the nine known planets encircled by rings of space particles.

"The possibility of the rings had been vaguely speculated before, but the discovery caught everyone by surprise," Dr. James Elliott, a space researcher at Cornell University, said of the discovery, details of which were announced today at a news conference.

Elliott and his co-workers were studying the stars around Uranus, seventh planet from the sun, when they spotted the five thin rings.

The team was working in an airborne laboratory 41,000 feet aloft. The aircraft, operated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center here, was flying over the southern Indian Ocean when the sighting was made on March 10.

The rings weren't seen earlier, Elliott explained in an interview, because light reflected from the planet is usually so bright it obscures the ring's lesser reflections.

He said the plane's altitude and position on the nightside of the Earth provided just the right combination of light conditions for observing the heretofore unseen rings.

After the first reports of their discovery, observatories around the world were told the conditions under which the rings could be spotted and were asked to confirm the finding.

Last week, the Smithsonian Astronomical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said an Indian astronomer saw the rings from an observatory near New Delhi. And an astronomer from the University of Arizona also sighted the rings from an observatory near Perth, Australia.

Elliott said the rings are similar to the famed colored rings around Saturn, but are much thinner. He named them after the first five letters of the Greek alphabet, alpha, beta, gamma, delta and epsilon.

"We don't know why they are so thin," he said. "They are only a few miles thick, and the thickest one is 30 to 60 miles. Saturn's rings are thousands of miles thick."

"We can't really tell what the rings are made of," he said. "One good guess would be some type of ice. One theory about Saturn's rings is that they are made out of snowballs."

"We still have a lot of data analysis to do. We want to figure out what they are made of and work with other astronomers."

One possibility, he said, is that the rings are composed of material present during the formation of the solar system that never coalesced into moons or are remnants of a broken-up moon.

The last major scientific discovery in the solar system was the planet Pluto, most distant planet in the solar system, in 1930. Uranus was discovered in 1781.

Plans Remedial Medicaid Action

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation that would make an estimated 69,000 poor children eligible for medical care is being prepared for introduction by state Sen. Edward Renfrow, D-Johnston.

Renfrow says his bill would correct a shortcoming in present law which makes poor parents choose between sacrificing their marriages or their children's health.

Parents in that category are poor enough to qualify for benefits but are unable to claim them because they are living under one roof.

State health officials say federal law permits inclusion of children of happily married parents in Medicaid, but state law ties the Medicaid program here to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, whose benefits are only for families in which a parent is gone.

"In order for us to help people qualifying for one form of money, we require that they go on the dole for something

CALL MEETING

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a special call meeting Thursday at 5 p.m. to consider the erosion control plan for the Greenville Mall. The meeting will be held in the first floor conference room in City Hall.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crime declined in virtually every corner of the country last year, but a surge in thefts in some big cities prevented the over-all national crime rate from falling, the FBI reports.

Preliminary statistics for 1976 show no change from the previous year in the number of crimes reported to state and local police. It marked the first time in five years that the crime rate did not increase.

The number of murders across the country dropped 10 per cent, and a decline in the murder rate was reported in every population category and in all geographic regions.

The FBI issued the report today.

PTI Grant

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced yesterday the approval by the Coastal Plains Regional Commission of grant funds in the amount of $50,000 to be utilized by Pitt Technical Institute for the purpose of implementing a physicians' assistant program.

The program has been reviewed extensively by 27 physicians and health educators across eastern North Carolina and found to be feasible and urgently needed. The first class, consisting of 10 students, is expected to begin September 10, 1977 at Pitt Technical Institute.

Two Survivors Of 747 Disaster Die

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — "Stand by, I will call you for takeoff," were the last instructions from the Santa Cruz airport control tower to the KLM jumbo jet that collided with a Pan American jumbo as the Dutch plane was making its takeoff run, a Spanish government official reported today.

A Dutch investigator admitted on Tuesday that the KLM plane had not been cleared for takeoff Sunday. But he claimed the American plane should not have been on the runway where it was hit, a claim Pan Am disputed. Meanwhile, two survivors of the collision died during the night, raising the death toll in aviation's worst disaster to 577. They included 323 Americans, all but four of whom were aboard the Pan American plane, according to airline sources.

One of the survivors, Isabelle Lord of Long Beach, Calif., died on a U.S. Air Force transport taking 53 of the 71 persons who escaped from the fiery collision to the United States. The other, Col. Marvin Waters of Petaluma, Calif., died at midnight in a Santa Cruz hospital.

Most of the other 52 survivors flown to the United States were being taken to the U.S. Army Burn Center in San Antonio, Tex., for treatment.

One survivor, stewardess Carla Johnson from the Pan American plane, was still hospitalized in Santa Cruz.

Pan American said it was arranging commercial transportation home for other survivors.

The bodies of the dead were laid out in a hangar at the edge of the Santa Cruz runway where experts were working 18 hours a day identifying them and preparing them for shipment home. Officials said the repatriation could not begin until Sunday.

The admission that the airport control tower had not authorized the Dutch plane to take off came from Franz van Rejsen, head of the Dutch Civil Aviation Authority's team investigating the collision. He said the taped conversations between the tower and the two Boeing 747 jets showed the KLM pilot had been given preliminary clearance but not final clearance to take off.

"But the KLM plane started, which is not in accordance with normal procedure," the investigator said in a statement. "We presume there was a misunderstanding in the KLM cockpit regarding the position of the Pan American plane on the runway."

SAW IT COMING — Capt. Victor Grubbs, above, pilot of the Pan American 747 jet which collided with a KLM 747 jet Sunday at the airport in Santa Cruz de Tenerife, saw the Dutch plane coming and screamed over his flight recorder, "This man is crazy...What is he doing? He is going to kill us all", according to the Madrid newspaper Pueblo, Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

Accreditation Of ECU Med School Seen 'Next Week'

The Liaison Committee on Medical Education, the joint accrediting agency of the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges, is expected to approve accreditation for the School of Medicine at East Carolina University next week.

The LCME meets in Washington, D. C. Tuesday and Wednesday, and is expected to act on a survey team's recommendation — based on an on-site visit to the ECU campus in January — that provisional accreditation be granted for 28 students beginning this fall.

Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the School of Medicine, said the LCME has given the university permission to begin "conditional processing of applications."

Dr. Laupus said a report on the LCME action next week would be in the form of a letter, possibly "a few days after their meeting."

Dr. Laupus said medical school officials are, "very concerned about being fair to all North Carolina applicants," and indicated he does not anticipate any out-of-state students to be enrolled.

The dean said processing of applications can take "several weeks to several months" because of the necessity to review prospective students' undergraduate transcripts, medical capability aptitude test scores, letters of recommendation and formal application, as well as personal interviews.

The four-year medical school was authorized by the North Carolina General Assembly in 1974, and if provisional accreditation is granted next week, the school will probably operate under the provisional status until its first class has completed its study.

Assassinations Investigator Quits His Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Sprague, embattled chief counsel to the House assassinations committee, resigned after being convinced the House would kill the investigation if he remained on the job.

The House votes today on whether to continue the investigation of the murders of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. If the vote fails, the investigation ends at midnight Thursday.

Sprague submitted a two-sentence resignation, effective immediately, after a 3½-hour meeting Tuesday night with committee Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, and several other members of the panel, sources said.

"He was convinced by some members that a head count indicated strongly that the resolution to reconstitute the committee would fail on the floor of the House if he remained," a source said. "He was shown figures. He felt there was nothing left for him to do but resign."

The source said Sprague would not retract his resignation even if asked. "It's unrevocable on his part."

Sprague was reported to be out of town and was not immediately available for comment.

Sprague had become controversial after he requested $6.5 million a year to conduct the probe for two years. The House balked at that figure, despite Sprague's argument that he needed the money because he could not rely on existing agencies like the FBI or the CIA since their conduct was a part of his probe.

This dispute developed into an angry battle between Sprague and the committee's first chairman, Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., who resigned earlier this month, complaining that Sprague was trying to undermine his authority with the staff and would not cut costs.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the chairman of the panel, disclosed that Sprague offered to quit Monday, but the panel decided he should stay.

The committee's fate was further clouded by the death of a witness the panel's investigators had contacted in the probe of President Kennedy's murder. Police in Palm Beach, Fla., said George de Mohrenschildt, who was an acquaintance of Lee Harvey Oswald and his wife Marina, died Tuesday of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun blast.

The Warren Commission, which concluded Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy in Dallas in 1963, took testimony from de Mohrenschildt. He said he knew nothing of Oswald's plans to kill Kennedy.

Van Rejsen said the American plane was told to pull off the main runway onto a parallel taxiway at an exit called "C-3" and was beyond that point when it was rammed by the Dutch plane. But a spokesman for Pan Am, W. H. Waltrip, said the American plane was ordered onto the third taxiway on its left, which the crew interpreted as being C-4 since the first taxiway was closed to traffic.

William Haley, the chief U.S. crash investigator here and a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Dutch and American officials had made a request to the Spanish government to send the cockpit voice recorders from the planes to Washington for monitoring.

Haley said he anticipated they would be despatched Thursday in the custody of a Spanish official.

The Santa Cruz newspaper, quoting sources it said heard the recording of the traffic between the tower and the planes, gave this account of the final conversation:

KLM plane: "Ready for takeoff."

Tower: "Maintain position."

Tower to Pan Am plane: "Have you left the runway?"

Pan Am: "No."

Tower: "Do it, and advise when the runway is clear."

A Spanish official said there was one final instruction on the tape before the KLM plane began its fatal takeoff run:

Tower to KLM: "Stand by. I will call you for takeoff."

The Dutch pilot, Capt. Z.A. Vedhuizen van Zanten, was killed along with the other 248 persons aboard the KLM jet. The Pan Am pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., survived.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your reflector or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

NYC PARKING CITATION

My husband and I have received a parking citation from New York City dated Mar. 17, 1977. The violation was supposed to have occurred May 17, 1974. We wrote a letter stating that we had never been in New York until 1976, when we flew there, so the car we own could not have been there in '74. We have now received a final summons notice. We are being charged $40-$15 for the ticket and a $25 penalty. How can we get help without going there? Mrs. H. B.

Hotline called the Parking Violation Bureau of the New York City Transportation Administration and tried to explain your circumstances. The woman we talked to would say only that you must send in the notice you have received, at which time you will be afforded a "hearing by mail" and may state your case.

You say you will do this, sending along notarized statements from both you and your husband's employers that you were in Greenville on the date in question, plus a statement that your car has never been stolen or borrowed by anyone who could have taken it to New York. You'll keep copies, of course, and send the letter by Registered Mail.

Hotline will publish a feedback later on how successful you are in fighting this charge.

Violent Crime Down, But Thefts Snowballing

Attorney Gen. Griffin Bell called the statistics "an encouraging sign for the criminal justice system and for the public."

But he added, "We must not ease our efforts in this struggle, because the incidence of crime still remains far too high."

Though the over-all rate held steady and violent crimes declined, stealing rose 5 per cent nationally and by much higher percentages in some cities. In Houston a startling 42 per cent increase in larceny and theft was reported.

The FBI compiles the figures from data submitted by more than 9,000 law enforcement agencies. The statistics cover only the murders, rapes, robberies, assaults, burglaries, thefts and motor vehicle thefts reported to police.

Other studies have indicated that many crimes never are reported to authorities.

The FBI keeps no national statistical summary of such crimes as arson, fraud, embezzlement and other white-collar offenses.

The preliminary report includes actual crime figures for 166 cities with 100,000 or more residents and percentages for the nation and for various population and geographic regions.

The final 1976 report due in the fall contains the raw figures for the nation and more detail about the nature of the crimes.

Of the seven crimes measured, only the category of larceny and theft reflected an increase. It was up 5 per cent from the 1975 figures. The category includes shoplifting, purse-snatching, thefts of bicycles, and thefts of such items as CB radios and stereo tape decks from automobiles.

Larceny increased the most — 10 per cent — in cities of one million or more. The increase hovered around 5 per cent in smaller cities. Larceny rose 12 per cent in the Northeast and from 1 to 3 per cent elsewhere.

The rise in big-city larceny, and in some locations burglaries and vehicle thefts as well, left some cities with over-all increases in their crime rates.

The figures showed a 15 per cent over-all increase in Houston, 13 per cent in New York, and 20 per cent in San Francisco.

But the over-all rate declined 9 per cent in Chicago and Washington, 8 per cent in Philadelphia, and 1 per cent in Los Angeles and Detroit.

Unusual Finds Go Into Jewelry

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Writer
Travel to archeological digs and other remote areas of Tunisia, Nepal, Burma, Morocco, India, Indonesia and other cultures on vacations with her husband turned a hobby of collecting artifacts and unusual antiquities into a jewelry business for Ruth Frank of Pittsburgh.

Her interest in ancient relics and crafted objects began when she "hit the market place" in Afghanistan, where she was visiting her son.

"I had never seen such beautiful things. I took home as many pieces as I could," she explained. "I designed some necklaces for myself and a few for friends and then I went on to make a collection for a nearby store, six years ago.

"After that it just took off. The Indian jewelry craze was peaking and my last child was off to college. I was doing some volunteer work and putting about," explained Mrs. Frank, mother of four and grandmother of five.

The one-of-a-kind necklaces usually have one dramatic piece combined with other things. Animals predominate because she thought they were "cute," but she discovered "women like to wear animals." Dagger handles, elephants, foo dogs, Chinese philosophers and silver lions — finials from a maharajah's bed post — are some of the adornments in metals, jades and ivories, that are likely to be combined with agates, Tibetan prayer beads, yak horn beads, turquoise, Iranian carnelians, silver disks, Turkish carnelian, Ceylonese gold.

Everything is strung on strong metal chains from Germany.

Locks that "weren't really locks," she says, were given to Chinese babies at a time the infant death rate was high, as a sort of protective symbol; the calligraphy inscribed indicates whether it was for a boy or girl.

Mrs. Frank combined one such old lock of brass with Tibetan turquoise and Iranian ivory.

"When we leave home our luggage is very light because we must cart things around in each country until we get a large enough load to ship.

"Interest in ancient civilizations becomes all-consuming. We saw a temple made out of a two-ton stone. It really makes you think." Anything found of museum value is given to museums, she says.

She makes about 200 pieces a year that are in stores. At New York's Saks Fifth Avenue, where she was arranging a display at the jewelry counter, her pieces wore price tags from $200 to $2,000. But she makes only one or two of the top-priced pieces each year more or less as a challenge. The $2,000 piece on display there was old jade taken from Chinese mandarin necklaces and interspersed with gold beads from Iran. Most pieces range in price from $350 to $700.

Sometimes she hesitates to relinquish a favorite piece, such as the one with temple lions that she was wearing. But eventually she does put a price tag on such items. She works only between October and May — the great thing about a hobby business is that you can control its volume, she points out. She designs the necklaces, but her husband does "all the other things," she says.

That included getting permission for a forthcoming visit to China, a trip she is ecstatic about. After trying to arrange such a trip for a long time they were finally accepted on the basis of a business trip, she said. "They know what we want to buy and when we arrive a contact man will be assigned to take us to places where the things can be found," she said.

RUTH FRANK, whose necklace designs combine relics of many ancient cultures, wears brass and gold beads highlighted by brass salamander from Persia.

Consumers Baffled, Unmotivated To Read

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Six studies at Purdue University confirm what everybody's been saying since nutritional labeling was introduced on American food products a few years ago:

The average consumer neither understands nor uses the information on food packaging.

Simplifying the information won't help, says psychology professor Jacob Jacoby, not unless people can be made to understand the importance of using the information and motivated to use it.

Jacoby is a past president of the American Psychological Association's division of consumer psychology and of the Association for Consumer Research, an independent organization of about 800 persons, including home economists. He also is a consultant to a food manufacturers' trade group and the Federal Trade Commission.

Agriculture secretary Bob Bergland said recently he expected people to avoid junk foods when the USDA begins telling them about nutritional values.

"Nonsense," said Jacoby in a telephone interview from West Lafayette, Ind.

"He fails to consider motivation and cultural and social factors."

For example, if someone doesn't like grits, he's not going to eat them, no matter what their nutritional value, the professor said.

The studies he referred to were made in Tippecanoe County, Ind., of which Lafayette is the county seat. The university is in West Lafayette.

A total of 1,032 persons were asked, among other things, to select the information they wanted about foods. They were asked to define or interpret the information.

Jacoby said the group included people from the university world, industry and farming, women ranging in age up to 85 years, educational levels from grade school and below to university doctorates. One group consisted of undergraduates, another of supermarket shoppers. Incomes ranged from below $7,000 to

"Most just didn't understand terms like carbohydrates, protein or fats.

"They have to understand why (nutrition labeling) affects them, why it is important to them," he said.

Although 90 per cent of the respondents in two studies called nutrition information on one label "perfectly clear," only half could use even part of it correctly.

To no one's surprise, brand name and price proved to be the most often acquired facts. Two studies indicated they probably also are the most influential factors in consumers' shopping.

Jacoby thinks labels contain "much too much nutrition information. It's difficult to understand without a computer, even for intelligent people."

He also thinks the order in which ingredients are listed needs to be revised.

"It should be in alphabetical order, with the most important ingredient listed first." In a protein-type product, he would list the meat or poultry or other major protein ingredient first.

If it's high in carbohydrates, the ingredients containing those nutrients should head the list.

Jacoby said shoppers use less label information when buying a lot of things than they do when buying a few.

Too many choices of brands also contribute to the confusion. "You might have 16 brands of breakfast cereal and 40 to 50 kinds of information to read."

Not only is this a hit-or-miss basis for disseminating nutrition information, he said, but it also adds tremendously to retail food costs.

Even so, he thinks motivation and comprehension are more important than simplification.

He agrees with those who suggest establishing an independent national organization "to conceive, develop, disseminate, coordinate and evaluate all consumer education efforts in the United States," including nutrition.

Embroiderers Guild Meeting Is Announced

The North Carolina Chapter of the Embroiderer's Guild of America will meet Monday, April 4, at 9:30 a.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

"Color" is the theme of the meeting which will be discussed by Edward Reep. A professional painter, Reep is artist-in-residence at East Carolina University. His paintings have been shown extensively throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and Italy.

He has worked in major film studios as a scenic painter, set designer and illustrator. In 1956 Reep traveled throughout the world for "Life" magazine and in 1971 was sent to Germany to document in a series of paintings, the 10th anniversary of the Berlin Wall.

The needlework exhibition held at the Greenville Art Center in February was viewed by over 800 people. Mrs. Polly Little's blue and white quilt received the majority of votes as the "most popular choice."

Friday Night Dance Planned

The Greenville Cotillion Dance Club will sponsor a dance Friday night at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Dancing will begin at 8:30 with music furnished by Larry Sadler, Sounds Limited, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rogers will serve as chairmen of the event along with a group of hosts and hostesses.

All members are urged to be present.

Party Given Bridal Couple

Bridal couple, Teresa Diane Cayton and Norman Ray Pollard Jr., and their immediate families were entertained at a cook out Saturday afternoon.

Hosts and hostesses were the bride's aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Sellers Gurganus and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Mills.

Wedding Invitations

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Bowen request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Connie Lou, to Jerry Earl McLawhorn on Saturday at 5 p.m. in the Saints Delight Free Will Baptist Church near Ormondsville. No invitations were mailed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cayton request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Teresa Diane, to Norman Ray Pollard Jr. on Sunday at 3:00 p.m. in the Peoples Baptist Temple.

KEEP A CAN OF MEAT ON HAND

You just got the news; unexpected company is coming for dinner. But the grocery stores are closed. And the roast is frozen. And you're at a loss for a menu idea.

Many people find themselves in this situation at one time or another. And one way to be prepared is to have canned meats or seafood on hand. These may provide

You can store canned meats right in your cupboard. A cool, dry place is best. So avoid storing canned meats near steam pipes, radiators, furnaces or ranges.

Large items, such as hams, may need refrigeration—but the label will say so. It's best to use canned meats and seafood within twelve to eighteen months.

To prepare, just follow the directions on the label. Or use this convenience food in a casserole or other main dish combination.

So, buy a can of meat or seafood. And the next time you need to prepare a meal-in-a-hurry, reach in the cupboard for your main dish.

FROZEN CANNED FOODS SAFE?

Frozen water pipes and cars that won't start aren't the only problems caused by this winter's cold weather. Some canned and stored foods are freezing in basements, pantries and kitchen cupboards.

Some of these products may still be safe to use—while others should be thrown out.

When commercially canned goods freeze, the can bulges as the liquid inside expands. Usually you'd throw away such a can. But if you know the bulging is caused by freezing—and not microbial action—it still might be safe to eat the food inside.

So let the can thaw out at room temperature. Then if there's no bulge—no seam spread—and no sign of leakage—it's safe to eat the food in the can.

Home canned foods that freeze are safe to eat only if the seal is still intact. But if the seal or jar is broken, throw out the food.

However, any canned food that has been frozen—whether commercially canned or home canned—is going to have a mushy texture and some change in flavor and appearance.

As for root vegetables that are stored without canning—these are freezing this winter in storage places that usually don't get that cold. Potatoes and onions, for instance, freeze at about thirty degrees. And once they've frozen, they spoil quickly. So these might as well be thrown out.

But you may be able to save frozen canned goods—as long as the seal is not broken and there's no other evidence of leakage.

Music Educators Urge Early Start On Lessons For Kids

CHICAGO (AP) — Eight was once considered the ideal age to start piano lessons but now leading music educators are recommending that lessons begin at a much younger age.

That's one of the findings revealed in a recent survey conducted by the National Piano Manufacturers Association, which says that because the piano is the nation's most popular musical instrument — more than 200,000 are sold annually — thousands of youngsters begin piano lessons each year.

To assist parents who are considering investing their money and their children's time in lessons, the association polled educators at some of the nation's top music schools.

"Kids are very creative at the age of 4, 5 or 6," says Dr. Robert Pace, professor of music education at Columbia University Teachers College. "It's usually the best time for them to start."

He offers these guidelines for parents: "Children who can read and recognize primary colors, and who have normal finger dexterity and coordination for their age, are probably ready for piano lessons."

Five is a good age "for a mature child whose parents have a helpful attitude and an interest in music," according to Tinka Knopf, associate dean of Baltimore's Peabody Conservatory. Dianne Flagello of the Manhattan School of Music concurs: "At that age, their minds are so open that it becomes almost a way of life."

A teacher who motivates children to want to learn can make an enormous difference in achievement levels, those polled agree. The educators offered a variety of suggestions for evaluating a potential teacher:

Kalman Novak, director of the Music Center of the North Shore in suburban Chicago, believes that one mark of a good teacher is whether pupils learn how to sight-read fluently.

"Many piano teachers fail to teach sight-reading," he says. "I think it's the largest single cause for children dropping piano lessons after the second or third year, yet even children who are not terribly musical can learn how to sight-read."

The San Francisco Conservatory of Music's May Kurka recommends choosing a teacher who has had special training in working with young people at the piano. And Dr. Knopf advises, "Look for a teacher who attends workshops and who is interested in self-improvement as well as improving students."

Many of the educators suggested that parents consider group rather than private lessons. Fernando Laires, of the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., says, "Group lessons have great advantages. For the average young child, 30 minutes alone with a teacher can be too much."

The Manhattan School of Music offers an unusual group program. "We enroll youngsters with their parents in small groups," says Dianne Flagello. "The parents learn at the same time as their children."

There are also nonmusical reasons why teachers recommend group piano lessons. Clare Barker of Northwestern University School of Music points out that "a group situation is good for either an aggressive or a shy child. It calms one down and draws the other out."

Dr. Pace, creator of Contemporary Group Piano, a teaching concept used by 8,000 piano teachers here and abroad, says, "In a group, a child can see his own unique abilities as compared to those of others. A good group teacher stresses the individuality of each pupil." The peer interaction involved in group piano also motivates children to learn, he says.

"Teaching the piano fosters reading, discipline for study and memory," says Dr. Knopf.

"It gives you a whole set of tools to use in other areas of your life," Ms. Barker points out. "Children who start out with piano understand music in a total way. Whatever instrument you go to later, you pick up much more easily."

And Dr. Pace notes, "The same creative processes involved in music are involved in all problem solving. Music is a key subject in developing creative thinkers."

Dear Abby

Studies Show A Shortage Of Tradesmen

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe the unemployment figures. On one side, people are screaming they can't find jobs. And on the other side, just try to find someone to do carpentry, painting or remodeling.

We've been trying to get someone to add a bathroom to our house, and were told we will have to wait for at least six months. My sister tried to get someone to remodel her kitchen, and she hasn't had any luck, either.

Everyone who does work like that is "busy" and can't get to it for another six months at least. That doesn't sound to me like there are a lot of unemployed people who are eager to get to work. Where are they? Something is wrong somewhere, Abby.

PUZZLED IN FLORIDA

DEAR PUZZLED: National studies show an acute shortage of tradesmen capable (or willing) to undertake home repairs. Most of those qualified to do carpentry, painting or remodeling will accept only larger jobs. Few such craftsmen are to be found amount the unemployed.

This particular shortage (estimated by the Wall Street Journal to be in the thousands) is causing a rush on community colleges and vocational schools by homeowners learning to do their own work.

DEAR ABBY: Bet you've never had a problem like mine. I'm in my middle 20s and I talk in my sleep. It wouldn't be so bad, but my mother has a tendency to listen, and there are some things I'd prefer she didn't know about.

Is there something I can do about blabbing in my sleep?

TIPPING MY MITT

DEAR TIPPING: Review your concerns. If you're worried about what you SAY in your sleep, better worry more about what you DO when you're awake.

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but laugh through my tears at the back and forth letters from THE OTHER WOMAN and THE DOCTOR'S WIFE in your column recently.

I have been both, and learned a lot from it. Mostly, I learned I don't want to be either. As long as I am "a doctor's wife" or "the other woman," I am not ME. And ME has got to come first.

Frankly, I think being ME first is important: to myself, yes, and to all the others whom I touch. I am a psychologist, a mother, a mother-in-law, an ex-wife, an ex-other woman, a dog-lover, a hobby nut, an undiscovered poet and lots more. But these are my roles, not the summation of ME. As long as we know we have certain roles to fulfill, we're OK. But when the role becomes the totality of ME, I'm in trouble. Because, when all is said and done, it's ME I live with 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

My advice to anyone who signs herself "the other woman" or "the doctor's wife": Honey, that ain't where it's at. And "it" is in you, your own special version. And when you know you, and you like you, baby, you're home free.

New Hospital An Eye-Opener

It was an outstanding day Saturday as they dedicated the new Pitt Memorial Hospital. The weather cooperated perfectly and the governor and a large crowd were on hand to officially open the hospital.

Afterwards there were tours, on Saturday and Sunday, so that the public, which is paying for the complex, could see what their tax dollars had purchased.

For most the reaction was astonishment that the facility was so large and included so much specialized equipment inside. The walking tour — from the bed towers to operating rooms, emergency area to business offices, utilities area to rehab center — took an hour and a half, without any short cuts.

It was obvious to those who made the tour that the space and equipment was here for an especially good hospital of a regional nature.

Not everyone could comprehend the extra effort that went into the planning of the facility by so many people.

The governor did, however. "The facilities we are dedicating today were planned and built to meet the needs of today and for many tomorrows," he declared. He cited the hospital as an example of "people becoming involved, people working together to help meet their needs."

"This is a day that many said would never be."

The governor pointed to the affiliation agreement which was worked out after long months of negotiation so that the under-construction Pitt Memorial Hospital could become the primary clinical facility for the ECU Medical School.

"The affiliation agreement which protects the rights of Pitt County and its practicing physicians while clearly meeting the teaching needs of the medical school is now viewed nationally as a model agreement."

Gov. Hunt saw more growth for the complex ahead. "It is obvious to all of us here today that hospital and health care and health-related construction will be ongoing in and around this medical center for some time."

The new hospital "means making medical care and hospital services of the most modern, technically superior type available to untold thousands of people... a task that is tremendously important to a very large region."

And that is what all the health care planning and arguing has been about for a long time.

BUT THE CROWD MAY LIKE THE TUNE!

MORRIS

Well, That's Show Biz!

WASHINGTON—There was a time when being President of the United States was the highest office that any American could aspire to. But in recent years the Presidency is only a steppingstone to fame and fortune in show biz. A recent article in the New York Times revealed that the William Morris Agency has made deals for President Ford, Mrs. Ford, Jack Ford, Susan Ford and Steve Ford. The former President and his wife have contracts for two books with Harper & Row and Reader's Digest worth a million dollars. Ford will also work for NBC for the next five years doing documentaries, for which he will get a million dollars.

Jack Ford has been signed as an assistant to the publisher of Rolling Stone; Steve Ford will act in a television series in Hollywood, and Susan Ford has just sold her photographs to Good Housekeeping.

Even President Nixon, who was driven out of office in disgrace, stands to make two or three million dollars from his book and TV appearances.

With this kind of money being thrown around no one has any idea what President Carter's worth will be. But several big-name agents are already working on Mr. Carter's future as soon as he leaves office. I spoke to one of them.

He was very excited. "We'll get more money for the Carters than for any family that has ever lived in the White House. We're talking mega-bucks when we're talking about the Carters."

"But isn't it kind of early to start packaging the Carter family?" I asked. "He's only been President for a couple of months."

"We have to move fast. Carter's hot right now. In four years the bidding could go way down. I can get more money for Amy's memoirs now than for Ford's and Nixon's."

"I hope she's keeping a diary," I said. "Guess what I've cooked up for Miss Lillian?"

"I have no idea."

"I've been talking to CBS about her being co-anchorwoman with Walter Cronkite on the evening news."

"Does Walter know about this?"

"It's not his decision," the agent said. "ABC sports wants Rosalynn Carter to do Monday Night Football with Howard Cosell."

In The Name Of Reform

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's an untidy, incoherent and exhausting process — and it put Jimmy Carter on the path to the White House. Now there is a push in Congress to overhaul the presidential primary elections into a streamlined system before 1980.

In the name of reform, assorted bills have been proposed to make sense, or try, out of the tangle of state laws that spawned 32 presidential primaries in 1976.

That has been tried before, but political attention spans being what they are, the effort has fundered for lack of interest between presidential elections. And change becomes virtually impossible when the calendar vests the interest of a new crop of candidates.

"It seems as though we spend each leap year bemoaning the chaotic, irrational, over-complicated primary system that delivers up our presidential nominees, and then we drop the subject as soon as the votes are counted," says Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., who qualifies as an expert on primaries. He lost so many he took to calling himself "Second-Place Mo."

Sheer numbers may keep it on the congressional agenda this time. There were 32 separate elections, on 14 voting days, stretching from late winter until late spring, with the prospect of even more in 1980. It takes an atlas and a hefty rulebook to figure out the process. Some states vote for candidates, some vote for delegates, some for both. Turnouts are low; 18 per cent of the electorate participated in 1976. There is a case for change.

Calling it reform is another matter. After all, the primaries were invented by reformers to take the nominating process out of the political clubrooms and put the people in charge. When Democrats reformed their delegate selection process, seeking to make it more representative, the product was a new crop of primaries.

And there's no guarantee that tinkering with the system won't make matters worse.

There are four real options, counting the one most likely, which is to keep the present system by leaving the whole

Lots Of Feedback Results

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — At a recent weekend retreat at Chapel Hill, Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and top members of his team engaged in some very deep problem solving.

In one room, cabinet appointees who head up agencies exchanged ideas and attitudes; problems and stumbling blocks.

In another, Hunt staff people compared notes on who said what to whom and why.

Gov. Hunt and his chief aide, Banks Talley, scurried back and forth from one group to the other. Each visit found a new set of notes on public display on a chalkboard.

Encounter

"I think it was fascinating we worked on team building, individual expectations, roles, a review of the administration programs so all would know what was happening, and get lots of feedback," says Eugene R. Watson, head of the new Executive Development Institute which is now being organized. Watson, an associate professor in education at UNC-Chapel Hill, is on loan to the program.

At the Chapel Hill retreat, earlier at a similar gathering at Quail Roost, and monthly in the future, the Hunt team is learning to openly share their ideas, perceptions, mistakes, problems, and frustrations.

But it is not, Watson says, a "screaming, encounter group... we don't get into personal attacks... The goal is to bring people together on mutual expectations... a shared perspective of how you approach things from a common frame of reference."

Nonetheless, personalities do come into play as the officials share with one another in an effort to resolve conflict openly as a team. The governor is frequently put on the spot with tough questions about what he plans or hopes to gain from specific moves. Those involved confess there have been some heated exchanges.

The encounter sessions are just a part of the approach to creating the Development Institute which Watson and his assistant, James C. Keyton, on loan from the Manpower Development Corporation, say is the "only thing like it being done in the country."

Other Ways

Watson and Keyton are making contact with federal officials, and private industry, to search out training programs which might be valuable to improved management in government with the aim of enrolling state officials. "It would be to the advantage of private industry to let one or two of our people in... any improvement in state government efficiency and management is beneficial to the private sector as well," Watson said.

As Hunt's top administrators gain knowledge and experience in management problem solving, the techniques will be carried back to the individual departments and encounter sessions.

seminars, and training sessions will be conducted down through the ranks.

The objective is to create a unity of involvement in decision making, problem solving, and carrying out the work of state government, Watson explained.

The employee survey is a first step in that total involvement, as workers were asked to respond to questions about how they view their jobs, what they like or dislike, and a most revealing section in which they are invited: "If you had an hour alone with your boss, what would you say?"

"Employees want to have a piece of the action... to participate in improving their departments, and to feel that the people who control things are listening... and we do intend to listen," Watson said of the program.

He says the survey has shown that "People really do want to do a better job, serve the public better. A surprising 85 per cent say they like the work well or very well... but they don't like politics being played with their jobs."

THE INSIDE REPORT

An Inauspicious Mission

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev is expected to greet Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in Moscow Monday by digging a May 29, 1972, document out of the files and demanding a definition of "peaceful coexistence" under President Carter.

Indeed, Brezhnev is perceived by Soviet specialists along Washington's Embassy Row as (in one diplomat's description) "boiling over" in anger at Mr. Carter's human rights campaign. In that mood, he is unlikely to permit his first talks with the Carter administration to move into the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) question until he is given that new definition.

This means Vance, a novice both in high-level negotiating and in the tortuous art of Marxist dialectics, enters his first major test under highly inauspicious circumstances. And that test comprises what could be the most portentous mission to Moscow by a U.S. diplomat since the 1940s.

The May 1972 document signed by Richard Nixon and Brezhnev in Moscow is titled "Basic Principles of Relations" between the U.S. and the Soviet Union. It pledges both sides to "non-interference in internal affairs" of the other — the one specific agreement between Moscow and Washington that might seem to support Brezhnev's noisy complaints against the new President's bold and aggressive decision to exploit the immense Soviet weakness on the human rights issue.

This question is being asked here about Brezhnev and the skilled and seasoned negotiators under Andrei Gromyko, Soviet foreign minister for 20 uninterrupted years: will they drive Mr. Carter's untested team into a corner with their claim that the new President has violated those "basic principles"?

Vance may be unable to convince Brezhnev, Gromyko and Co. that Mr. Carter's human rights campaign is limited enough to fall within the May 1972 "principles." In that case, the Russians may simply postpone serious SALT talks until a new set of non-interference "principles" is negotiated. Compounding Vance's difficult bargaining position are two other facts of life:

First, the fact that the Soviet ruler, no hothead, was outraged by the President's comment to congressional leaders that "some people are concerned every time Brezhnev sneezes." One astute Kremlinologist from a neutral country told us: "Translated, that comes out Carter telling Brezhnev he doesn't amount to much in Carter's Washington." In other words, it was Carter talking down to the super-sensitive Russians — a claim of U.S. superiority the Soviets will insist must be corrected.

Vance's second liability is more complicated and more serious: the fact his boss is publicly committed to obtaining a SALT II agreement at the earliest possible time. The negotiating advantage this gives the Soviets is substantial.

Vance arrives in Moscow with two SALT proposals. One is essentially Gerald Ford's Vladivostok agreement, coupled with Mr. Carter's suggestion that negotiations on the U.S. cruise missile and the Soviet Backfire bomber be deferred; the second or back-up proposal would accept drastic limits on the cruise missile that defense-oriented Senators would never vote to ratify.

The existence of the back-up proposal in Vance's pocket signals that the U.S. may desert its preferred SALT II treaty at Brezhnev's first "nyet." Besides encouraging Russian bullying, this could give Brezhnev bargaining ammunition to try and force President Carter to silence his human rights campaign. Mr. Carter's pledge Thursday of being "unswerving" on that fundamental princi-

To the editor:

I was disappointed to see The Daily Reflector feature Ms. Connie Drath in a front page article.

When I see all the suffering that this abominable cigarette habit causes an individual, it hurts very much to see the Tobacco Institute send a representative to advocate smoking with half truths.

I smoked excessively for many years. When I finally became mature enough to quit, I began to understand some truths: 1. The chronic bronchitis slowly disappeared—the bronchitis I had blamed on a lingering cold. 2. I was able to realize the discomfort I had caused others whose home I visited, or cars I had shared.

Now that I can smell again, I realize what a terrible odor I left in other people's clothes and homes. Now I try to avoid being subjected to a smoke-filled room. I find myself turning down opportunities to go on different outings if the group's majority smokes.

I honestly believe that most smokers are not aware that they cause so much discomfort to non-smokers. If they were aware, no laws would need to be made to limit smoking in certain areas.

The non-smokers need to break the silence and stop doing our "talking to each other behind the smokers' backs. We need to speak up when we would rather have unpolluted air. That's the only way we will ever have it."

Ms. Drath may continue to address groups and the media, but I cannot see how she has the gall to claim she is presenting "accurate scientific information about smoking."

Joan Bourdreux
Greenville

To the editor:

Your editorial of Mar. 23 completely missed the point of laws banning smoking in public places. These laws are not intended to protect the smoker—that could be done only by banning smoking in private as well as in public.

Rather, the laws are designed to protect the nonsmoker from the noxious fumes which befoul the hair and clothes, irritate the eyes and sinuses cavities, cause the heart to work harder, and increase the likelihood of respiratory disorders; this all happens to those around smokers, as well as to the smokers themselves!

Perhaps it is unreasonable to ban smoking in private where the smokers harm only themselves. However, I see no reason why nonsmokers should be subjected to such an assault on their bodies whenever they venture into a public place.

White House Pay Hike Argued

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In the midst of what researchers say is a growing concern about inflation, recent pay increases to 48 White House aides are being criticized as lacking the proper symbolism for the nation.

At the same time, the increases, which exceeded 25 per cent in some instances, are defended by some economists and others questioned about the consequences if ordinary workers sought similar raises.

"Another one of these cases of wanting to look for a basis for grouching and griping," said Walter Heller, chief economic adviser under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. "In substance, I think it's defensible."

Heller and others noted that White House aides had received no appreciable increases since 1969, and that a study committee representing a range of opinions had recommended that even larger increases be granted.

But Jack Carlson, chief economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, commented that "to have such large increases across the board, irrespective of experience, is bad symbolism."

Some of the workers involved, he said, had little or no previous experience, and yet are being paid as much as others with considerable expertise and experience, and who are holding down jobs with greater responsibility.

Carlson, assistant interior secretary under President Ford, said pay adjustments clearly were needed to keep highly qualified people in government, but he suggested that increases be given on merit.

In granting the increases last week, President Carter indicated they were a compromise between old salary levels and a new law that permits even greater increases for executive-level employees.

Raises at the highest level went to $56,000 from $44,800. A middle group of aides rose to $51,000 from $42,000, and a third group to $48,500 from $39,000. The percentages ranged from over 21 to nearly 26.

"It about borders on the disgraceful," said Pierre Rinfret, a Republican, informal economic adviser to earlier administrations, and self-described as a man generally impressed by Carter's performance to date.

But Rinfret's criticism came in a very precise context. He would like to see a restructuring of pay scales Informed sources said today Chrysler strike negotiations had progressed to a position where agreement was in sight.

An air of expectancy prevailed in the vicinity of the conference, now in its seventh day with the twelfth session called at 11 a.m.

Little remained in the composition of differences in the dispute, which for more than three weeks has kept 60,000 Chrysler employees idle along with thousands of wage earners in related fields.

Tarboro police chief Robert Worsley said today he had instructed his force to arrest "anyone" found parked back of the city high school "necking or petting."

Objections to the lover's lane, he said, would cause it to be patrolled nightly.

Strength For Today

THE FIFTH WHEEL
The expression "the fifth wheel" is often used to describe something utterly useless. It should be remembered, however, that in the case of automobiles the fifth wheel is extremely important. It is the steering wheel.

Religious agnostics have no use for the fifth wheel — the steering wheel. They see everything happening in the universe as the result of blind, impersonal force. To them the steering wheel is a ridiculous assumption, and the being behind it — whom unthinking people call God — is nothing but a projection of infantile longings on the part of people who have never completely matured.

But just as an automobile soon runs off the road if there is not a firm and purposeful hand on the steering wheel, so society will run into the ditch if no attention is paid to the steering wheel and the God behind it. Four wheels on a moving vehicle, or a moving society, are not enough.

Here's How N.C. Congressmen And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 17-23.

HOUSE
PICKETING—Defeated, 205 for and 217 against, the common situs picketing bill (HR 4250). It sought to allow a single building trades union to close down an entire construction site, even though its dispute was with only one subcontractor at the project. An uncontroversial section of the bill sought to improve collective bargaining procedures in the construction trades industry. Senate action on the bill this Congress is possible but doubtful.

Organized labor — particularly the building trades — had viewed enactment of the common situs picketing bill as a major legislative priority in the 95th Congress. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the Associated General Contractors of America and other employer groups were among the most active opponents.

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), a supporter, said: "... all the bill really does is provide for union workers in the construction industry the same rights which have long been accorded to industrial unions and their members. That is why the bill is entitled 'equal treatment of craft and industrial workers.'"

Rep. Mickey Edwards (R-Okla.), an opponent, said the problem with common situs picketing was that it expanded a strike "beyond those union members who are affected to other people, including non-union members — the innocent carpenters, electricians, plumbers, roofers, tilers and others who may be put out of work by the effects of this legislation."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Bryhill (R)10 and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "nay."

PICKETING—Adopted, 212 for and 209 against, an amendment which narrowed the employer category which narrowed the employer category which could be struck in a common situs picketing action. The overall bill (HR 4250) later was defeated (see above vote).

This amendment was favored by business groups such as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and opposed by organized labor and other proponents of common situs picketing.

In effect, it said that picketing at a construction site could be carried out only against employers "engaged primarily in the construction industry." Thus insulated from the strike would be employers physically connected to the construction site but not involved in the project.

Rep. John Ashbrook (R-Ohio), the sponsor, said the amendment "permits an employer who is not primarily involved in the construction industry to remain protected from involvement in construction industry labor relations problems."

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), an opponent, pointed out that the amendment would exempt from a strike "persons picking up or making deliveries to the construction site," as well as many other categories of nearby non-construction workers. Therefore it would deny picketing construction workers "the right of appeal to employees present at the site in a dispute."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Gudger, Bryhill, and Martin voted "yea."

Rose voted "nay."
SENATE
OUTSIDE INCOME—Rejected, 35 for and 62 against, an amendment leaving in effect the current $25,000 annual limit on a senator's income from outside activities such as giving speeches and writing articles. Defeat of the amendment left in the new Senate ethics code a lower limit of $8,625 (15 per cent of a senator's $57,500 annual salary) on such outside "earned" income. There is no ceiling on "unearned" income such as stock dividends. The code (S Res 110) was later adopted and put into effect. House concurrence was not required.

Supporters of the amendment argued that senators without great wealth were most in need of the $25,000 supplemental income potential.

Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Me.), the sponsor, said to one opposing colleague: "The senator... is putting a cap on my income and he has not given a damn... as to what the consequences on my personal financial life or that of my family may be."

Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.), an opponent, said that "the American people expect the Senate to enact a strong code of ethics" and that "a limit of 15 per cent on outside 'earned income' (is) a necessary ingredient in that code, especially when tied to the recent pay increase."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and

Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

ETHICS CODE—Tabled, 72 for and 20 against, an amendment prohibiting senators from receiving speaking or writing fees from organizations which are registered as lobbyists or maintain political action committees.

Those voting to table the amendment opposed the ban on such forms of supplemental income. The amendment was proposed to S Res 110, the new code of ethics later adopted by the Senate. Earlier the Senate had voted to limit speaking and writing honoraria to 15 per cent of a senator's salary, or $8,625. This amendment sought to go further and outlaw fees senators receive from special interest groups.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wisc.), a supporter of the move to table, said: "We decided that the limitation of 15 per cent was an adequate control to avoid the question of conflict, if that is the problem, or the appearance of conflict."

Sen. John Durkin (D-N.H.), a sponsor of the amendment, said: "I do think all citizens in America have uneasy moments when they think that senators are accepting honoraria, speaking fees, fees for writing articles, or receiving funds for their personal use. That is how it is perceived back home."

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE—Rejected, 30 for and 67 against, an amendment to the code of ethics (S Res 110) scuttling many of the code's provisions and requiring instead detailed financial disclosure by senators and their immediate families.

The amendment sought to require that itemized statements of net worth be published in a document readily available to the public, so that voters could make up their own mind on whether their senators were engaging in conflicts of interest.

It would have abolished most other regulatory parts of the code, such as the limitation on outside income and the ban on holding second jobs in law, medicine and other professions.

Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), the sponsor, said that his "no-exceptions policy of financial disclosure will insure accountable ethics rather than a muddle of self-regulation... Lay it on the table and let the people decide. Their decisions on who should serve, rather than those of Common Cause, the U. S. Senate or the news media are still good enough for me."

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) said he opposes the amendment because it knew anything about football.

"It doesn't matter. Rosalynn is interested in mental health and what better place to talk about it than with Howard during a pro football game."
"Billy Carter's tied up with another agent now so I guess you can't use him," I said.
"It doesn't matter. By the time the President is out of office Billy will be overexposed."

"What have you lined up for President Carter?"
"I have a firm $3 million offer for his book. NBC is offering $2 million for a documentary on how he brought peace to the Middle East and another $2 million to host the Saturday Night show, as well as to fill in for Johnny Carson when Carson goes to Las Vegas."

"You've really been working," he said.
"You know Carter's sister," he said.
"You mean Ruth Stapleton, the faith healer?" I replied.
"No, dummy. Gloria Carter Spaan, the one who rides a motorcycle."
"Of course."
"I got an offer from the Dallas State Fair. They want her to fly over 15 Greyhound buses on her bike in tandem with Evel Knievel."
"What about the President's sons, Chip, Jack and Jeff?"
"Playboy wants all three of them."
"Gosh, I didn't know there was that much money in being President of the United States."

"Are you kidding? Any agent who can't get a minimum of $10 million for a former President and his family shouldn't be in show business."

ple, however, is accepted here as firm.
Some diplomats who publicly praise Mr. Carter's human rights crusade warn privately that Brezhnev will never accept it as a price for doing business with the U.S. Consequently, they regard Vance's mission as a possible precursor of a major Soviet propaganda attack on the U.S. designed to test both the new President's will and the bonds between the U.S. and its European allies.
This recalls Nikita Khrushchev's attempt to bully another new President, John F. Kennedy, in June 1961 at Vienna. Khrushchev drastically underrated Kennedy and ultimately paid for it with his office when Kennedy forced him to back down in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. U.S. officials, worried that Soviet treatment of Mr. Carter may take a similar course following Vance's mission to Moscow, note one spectacular difference: Soviet military power is now at least the equal of America's; in 1961, the U.S. had a huge superiority.
That explains why Vance enters Moscow carrying the heaviest load of any U.S. diplomat to go there in many years. It also explains the sincere concern here over his trip.

business to the states.
Udall is sponsoring a bill to group the primaries by dates, one election day a month beginning on the second Tuesday in March. Any state that holds a primary would have to pick one of those dates.
There also are bills in the House and Senate seeking regional primaries, which would group the elections by area and, again, have them all on four or five dates set by Congress.
The other way out is a national primary, with the entire nation voting on nominees just as it votes on presidential candidates in the fall. There would have to be runoff if nobody managed a majority. There isn't much support for that idea, which would alter the current process beyond recognition.

Carter skipped the subject in his election reform proposal. "There is no consensus, here or in Congress, as to direction," a Carter aide said.
Carter once said he hoped New Hampshire always would have the first primary. He said there should be a place where candidates had to walk the streets and see the people, one by one.
That may have been campaign flattery. But it isn't a bad idea.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers and rain are due today for the East Coast as well as in the Gulf Coast states. Snow is anticipated for parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota with flurries and rain predicted in the Southwest. Elsewhere fair weather is expected. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Heavy rain has fallen in sections of North Carolina, prompting a flash flood watch this morning for the central and southwest mountains, the eastern slopes and foothills and the Piedmont.
A flash flood warning was issued for the headwaters of the French Broad River and along the French Broad from Rosman to Blantyre in western North Carolina.
The rain was expected to taper off to scattered showers and thundershowers this afternoon and tonight. A cold front will move into the mountains tonight and across the state Thursday, bringing clearing conditions.
Rain since Tuesday measured up to three inches in some sections of the central and southwest mountains and heavy rain spread during the night into the southern Piedmont.
By this morning, Charlotte had recorded a little over three inches of rain and police reported some streets flooded. Charlotte streams were rising as were several streams in the Gastonia area.
Asheville recorded nearly two inches of rain and Hickory had nearly an inch and a half. Raleigh had nearly an inch.

OVERWEIGHT?

As advertised in the April, 1976 issue of McCall's magazine best diet & exercise as well as CONSUMER'S DIGEST, "Rating The Diets."

QUIET DIET REVOLUTION HAS REACHED GREENVILLE

By creating a loud noise in communities in North Carolina recently introduced to NATURLIM. In 3 short weeks, Mrs. Lorie Klein lost 12 lbs., Mrs. Ruth Fowler, 15 lbs., Mrs. Grace McDonald 13 lbs. in 2 short weeks. In 1 week, Mrs. Bertha Davis lost 5 lbs. and Mrs. Susan Evans lost 20 lbs. in 1 month.

In 2 short months, hundreds of area residents have been introduced to NATURLIM, which unlike so many around, requires no meetings to attend, no exercises, no drugs or shots, and best of all, for those who try it, no hunger pangs. According to Mr. Robert Martin, representative for the product in North Carolina, the key to the program is a powder used twice a day to make a variety of milk shakes. These provide 2 high-protein meals and allow the user to eat anything he or she wants for dinner. Also provided are vitamins necessary to maintain the required daily needs. The powder can supply 2 meals a day for a month. The milk shakes are made with 1 tablespoon of powder called NATURLIM, combined with 8 ounces of low-fat milk, or unsweetened fruit juice. Extracts, honey or artificial sweeteners are also added, according to taste.
The ingredients are all combined in an electric blender for several minutes. Recipes include such tasty shake combinations as mocha, banana, chocco/maple, coffee, jello, yogurt, juice and diet soda. The unusual part of the diet, says Mr. Martin, is that there are no restrictions on the third meal of the day, dinner. This meal is unrestricted and can consist of many of the so-called "forbidden foods." Perhaps this is what has attracted so many residents to the program in such a short time.

Mr. Martin states that the reason the program has so much appeal is that there is no weighing in, no weekly meetings, no criticism from an instructor, and no fees or penalties. No wild promises of overnight miracles, just steady believable results without starving yourself. Further, the diet is tasteful, easy to take, and the main meal is no different from non-dieters'. It is the first time the food, manufactured in California, has been available here in North Carolina. NATURLIM has been sold.

Find $43,466 Was Improperly Spent

RALEIGH (AP) — The Wake County District Attorney's office has an audit report that shows $43,466 of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners money was spent improperly, association officials said Tuesday.

The former executive secretary of the organization, John T. Morrissey Sr. has submitted his resignation after being suspended in January when questions about expenditures first arose.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Randolph Riley said he planned to ask the State Bureau of Investigation to follow up the audit which was performed by an accounting firm at the organization's request.

Association president Sam Noble said the group will attempt to recover the full amount it says was spent improperly from the firm that handled Morrissey's fidelity bond.

Morrissey had been in the post 12 years and made $38,000 annually plus liberal benefits.

Not One Objection To Corporate Tax Change

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP) — Not a single objection was raised Tuesday when a public hearing was held on a proposed change in North Carolina's corporate tax laws that could result in a windfall of more than $90 million for the state.

Rep. Robert Farmer, D-Wake, chairman of the House Finance Committee, ended the hearing after sponsors of two similar tax bills spoke for their legislation and no one opposed to the plan stepped forward. Farmer had called the public hearing after receiving complaints about the bills from five or six persons, who said they wanted to be heard.

Opposition is expected to surface when Farmer calls for a vote, however, probably within the next two weeks. A similar proposal died in a close committee vote last year.

The bills would change tax collection methods for medium-size corporations from annually to quarterly. Sponsors said the result would be a one-time windfall to the state of between $91 million and $94.5 million during the change-over period.

One bill, sponsored by Reps. Al Adams, D-Wake and Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, would appropriate the money to capital improvements in Central Prison, all 16 University of North Carolina campuses and state facilities for the mentally ill and mentally retarded, including Dorthea Dix Hospital.

The other, by Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, and Rep. Sandy Harris, D-Alamance, would put the money in the state's general fund for later appropriation.

Adams' bill would apply to corporations with taxable incomes of less than $100,000 and greater than $3,000, while Smith's bill would set the minimum at $2,000.

"Every business in North Carolina that's not incorporated, myself as a professional man, and anybody else who has an income not from wages...has to pay every quarter," Adams said. "Nobody has explained to me why corpo-

N.C. Vet School Awaits Funds

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Like practically everything else, whether North Carolina is going to have a veterinary medical school of its very own depends on money — lots of money.

Well over a majority of both houses of the General Assembly recently signed bills to appropriate $9.3 million for the first phase in the construction of a veterinary school at North Carolina State University. Ultimately construction costs would total $35 million or more.

It all depends on availability of money. "That's determined around June 1," said Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, who was joined by 29 of 50 senators in introducing the vet school bill.

"I don't believe we've got $9 million," said Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

"Based on current projections, I don't think the prospects of finding $9 million for a vet school are good," said House Speaker Carl Stewart. He said, however, it would be several weeks before final budget estimates are available.

Gary Pearce, press secretary for Gov. Jim Hunt, said the governor favors building the vet school, but realizes that it may have to wait a while until money is available.

For many years, North Carolinians seeking to become veterinarians have studied in vet schools in other states through contractual arrangements under which they are permitted to pay in-state tuition in the other state.

Currently, about 140 students are being taught under this program at an annual cost of $640,000 to the state of North Carolina.

That sounds like a bargain when it's weighed against the $35 million a North Carolina vet school would cost and the $4.5 million a year that would be needed to operate it.

But those arguing the need for a North Carolina vet school say the state needs more veterinarians than can be trained in other states. They also say the current plan is not dependable since other states are constantly under pressure to cut down on the number of out-of-state admissions.

The University of Georgia, once a major source of North Carolina veterinarians, recently stopped taking North Carolina students. Fortunately Auburn University and Tuskegee Institute in Alabama took up the slack.

Those pushing for a North Carolina vet school point to the state's livestock industry which grosses more than $1 billion a year.

They say a home-grown vet school would not only train more vets, it would offer post-graduate degrees, would perform research, provide continuing professional education for veterinarians, and its animal hospital would provide services similar to that of a teaching hospital at a medical school.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says a vet school would "give our boys and girls an opportunity to study veterinary medicine at home." He said that to make the state's livestock industry grow and keep it healthy "we need veterinarians and we don't have enough of them now."

"I'm saying North Carolina needs a veterinary school and needs it badly," said Graham. "I think North Carolina can afford it."

A veterinary school plan as proposed by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors contemplates getting $9.3 million this year to begin construction. To complete the needed buildings, it said another $25 million would be needed and that the school would require at least $4.5 million a year to operate.

Plans are to open the school in 1981 with enrollment eventually reaching about 300.

John Sanders, UNC vice president for planning, said the board of governors had tried to make it plain "that this is an expensive enterprise and the General Assembly should not embark on it without being fully aware of the cost."

He said the legislature should understand that after getting the $9 million, the university will be back in two years seeking $26 million more.

But White does not see it that way. "No sir," he said. "They're talking about $35 million over the next 10 to 15 years. That's my opinion. You're not going to build the whole school at one time. It's not going to start off with maximum size classes."

One possible source of the $9 million is a $90 million windfall that would be produced by legislation to change the way corporate income taxes are collected. It would require many corporations to pay their state income taxes quarterly during the tax year instead of after the year is over. However, whether that bill will pass is still in doubt.

Mapping New Fire Ant War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department and several southern states are planning a massive, last-ditch campaign against fire ants with a pesticide available only until the end of the year.

An official familiar with the program said Tuesday aerial spraying of an estimated two million acres in Mississippi with Mirex already has begun, although the Agriculture Department said spraying in five states would begin by the end of the month.

About 6.5 million acres are involved in the program in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Mirex has been shown to cause cancer when fed to laboratory rats in large doses. As a result, registration of the chemical by the Environmental Protection Agency will expire next Dec. 1.

In advance of stopping use of the chemical, the EPA has ruled that no area can be sprayed with Mirex more than once a year.

Fire ants, which inflict painful stings and bites, were inadvertently imported into the United States from South America in 1918. Since then they have spread throughout much of the South, affecting an estimated 190 million acres.

Under spraying practices in use until 1973, areas were sprayed with Mirex twice a year.

The bait used to combat fire ants consists of Mirex, soybean oil and corn cob grits. The ants eat the bait and die.

Officials said the federal government is paying 50 per cent of the estimated $8 million cost of the spraying, with the states picking up the rest of the tab.

Five Appointed To State Boards

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt made five appointments Tuesday to state boards.

Four men were named to the Board of Commissioners of the Law Enforcement Officers Benefit and Retirement Fund.

They were Highway Patrol Lt. Carl Gilchrist, Greenville; Eugene F. Groce, Winston-Salem; Transylvania County Sheriff Milford Clyde Hubbard; and Greensboro Police Maj. Conrad R. Wade.

Dr. Ramey F. Kemp of Davie County was named to the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners.

Judge's Merit Plan Is Killed By N.C. House

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation aimed at removing the selection of North Carolina's judges from partisan politics has been killed by the House.

The action came Tuesday on a 58 to 56 vote against a merit selection plan for choosing judges. A three-fifths vote of the 72-member House was required to pass the measure since it proposed a change in the state constitution.

The bill called for the creation of a 150-member Judicial Nominating Commission. Under it, the governor would have appointed judges from lists of persons recommended by panels drawn from the commission.

Judges would have been subject to retention votes and would have had to receive the approval of 60 per cent of those voting to remain in office.

Sponsors of the bill said the plan would result in the selection of better judges, but opponents disagreed.

"The purpose of this bill is to provide for the selection of judges purely on a basis of merit and free of politics," said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, sponsor of the bill.

"My observation is that through the years we've had judges of high caliber, devoted to their duties," said Rep. Sam Bundy, D-Pitt, in opposing the bill. Bundy said that instead of taking selection of judges out of politics "it will put more politics in it."

"You're taking away from the people the right to rule," said Rep. George Hux, D-Halifax, in opposing the bill.

"I'm sorry to say our judiciary in this state is not what it ought to be," said Rep. Peter Hairston, D-Davie, in supporting the bill.

Billy Carter No Fan Of Tourism

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Billy Carter, who's moving 19 miles outside Plains, Ga., says he knows what he does NOT want his kids to be when they grow up: tourists.

The President's brother said Tuesday he has purchased a house north of Plains where he will move at an undetermined date to escape the tourists visiting Plains.

In brief remarks to about 200 delegates attending the Travel South USA convention Tuesday night, Carter said, "Asking me to talk to a tourism group is like turnin' a hog loose in the potato patch."

"They say all roads lead to Tennessee," he said. "I wish they did."

Carter, dressed in a snappy tan vest suit for his speech in a plush, high-rise downtown hotel, then asked for questions.

Advice for Yankees? "Stay home."

The outlook for tourism? "I'm against it."

Opinions of the Russians? "As long as they don't come to Plains, I like 'em fine."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved ahead today as the government reported an uptick in its index of leading economic indicators.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose nearly a point in the early going, and gainers opened up a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening the Commerce Department reported that the leading indicators index climbed 0.4 per cent in February after a 1.2 per cent slump in January when adverse weather disrupted the economy.

The index is designed kind of economic crystal ball, and its February showing gave some support to the argument that business activity is staging a comeback from the winter setback.

Today's early prices included American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/8 at 62 1/2; General Motors, ahead 3/4 at 69 1/2, and Dow Chemical, unchanged at 38 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average, down 41.89 points in the past eight sessions, rebounded 5.90 to 932.01.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 5-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 17.03 million shares, against 16.71 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .34 to 54.19.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .21 at 111.90.

Strange Money Was Accepted

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — This city is about 100 miles from the Canadian border, so employees at a shopping center and a supermarket didn't think much of it when two men said they would have to pay in Canadian currency — from "eastern Canada."

Police say one man went into the shopping center last weekend, picked up a pack of cigarettes and handed the clerk a "$25 bill." The store clerk, Pauline Lorang, said she used the normal discount rate for Canadian currency and gave $23.25 in change.

"It had the funny color of Canadian money," she said.

Another man later did the same thing in the supermarket, this time handing the clerk a "$50 bill," police said. The clerk gave the man change of $46.53 and his pack of cigarettes.

But there was a problem. Police say the currency had Cyrillic printing — the kind used in Russia and east Europe, not east Canada.

Child Abuse Awareness Program In Pitt, Too

In a program developed by a public relations firm under contract with the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Division of Social Services of the N.C. Department of Human Resources has been given overall responsibility for the coordination of a campaign designed to foster public awareness of child abuse in North Carolina.

In the organizational plans, a group of 24 individuals from various public and private human services agencies and organizations in North Carolina were asked to help plan and organize the campaign.

In Pitt County, Alice Keene, of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, has been named as contact person for the Statewide Child Abuse and Neglect Public Awareness Campaign (SCANPAC).

Committee members serving with Ms. Keene are Juanita McCarthy, Pitt County Mental Health Association, and Becky Starkey, Social Services Division. The committee will be expanded as needs in the area are identified.

Estimates reveal that since July 1971, over 25,000 children have been abused or neglected in North Carolina, with at least 100 deaths resulting from these conditions.

As part of the public awareness campaign, Governor Jim Hunt has proclaimed the month of March as Child Abuse and Neglect Awareness Month, with emphasis on creating statewide awareness of the scope of the problem that affects every community.

Trustees board members stated that this legislation was discriminatory since it did not apply to trustees serving on private two and four year colleges and universities.

Clifton Everett, Sr., chairman of the Board's Building Committee, told the trustees that plans for the new shop/classroom facility are progressing. Everett said that according to George Shoe, architect for Pitt Tech, the architectural drawings are 90 per cent completed; other drawings were reported to be 70 to 90 per cent completed.

Plans and outlined specifications are to be reviewed by the Office of State Property and Construction March 29.

"Mr. Shoe expects to have all documents completed and ready for final review and approval by all concerned within ten days after the design development review; bid dates could be set following final approval," Everett said.

The first phase of the master drainage plan for the PIT campus was approved by the board. Funds are currently available to complete this phase. The institute is planning to advertise for bids on this project within a few days.

Found Inside The Chimney

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A fugitive from the county jail, apparently trying to enter an apartment complex, wedged himself in the chimney and was found with his hand poking into the lounge area's fireplace.

Rodney Arthur Salas, 23, was discovered Tuesday upside-down near the bottom of the 18-foot long chimney.

Shortly before 6 a.m. a housekeeper at the complex called firemen, who said that Salas told them he had been placed in the chimney by fraternity brothers at the University of Pacific. He said he needed to be extricated by 8 a.m. in order to attend athletic practice.

The suspicious firemen summoned Patrolman Mark Lujan to the roof as they pulled Salas, 5-foot-9 and 170 pounds, free with a rope. Police said Lujan was questioning the young man when Salas grabbed the officer's gun and the two rolled down the roof to a ledge.

After briefly holding the 24-year-old Lujan hostage, Salas leaped the 25 feet from the ledge to the ground, fired a random shot and climbed over a fence to an adjoining yard, police said.

About 40 officers were summoned to the area and Salas was talked into surrendering. Salas had been serving a one-year sentence for burglary.

Child Abuse Bill Approved

NASHVILLE (AP) — The first of a series of child abuse bills prompted by the death of 4-year-old Melisha Gibson was approved today by the House Judiciary Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Mike Murphy, D-Nashville, creates a new crime, aggravated assault, applicable both to children, adults "or the assailant's" spouse.

Aggravated assault, under the definitions in the bill, would be intentional, knowingly causes bodily injury or involves the use of a deadly weapon. The penalty, on conviction, would be two to 10 years in prison.

The present penalty for child abuse in Tennessee is 11 months and 29 days in the county workhouse, although serious cases can be prosecuted under stronger laws.

In the death of the Gibson girl at Cleveland last Oct. 13, her mother, Wanda Maddux, and stepfather, Ronald Maddux, were convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 99 years in prison each.

The Greenville Rotary Club members attending the conference will present reports concerning local projects and a written comprehensive history of the Rotary Club of Greenville.

News Adds Luster To His Predicting

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University freshman Lee Fried added an eerie twist to his fame as a magician by predicting a week ahead of time that an airliner tragedy would kill more than 500 persons and that Marquette would defeat North Carolina for a national basketball championship.

Fried's written predictions, made on March 21, were removed from a sealed envelope Tuesday on a Durham television program by Paul Vick, Duke's director of community affairs. The envelope had been locked in Duke President Terry Sanford's desk since it was sealed.

Fried said at the time his aim was to predict newspaper headlines.

He wrote that he expected to see this headline in the Monday morning edition of the News and Observer of Raleigh: "583 Die in Collision of 747's in Worst Disaster in Aviation History."

He was one day and several fatalities off.

The Tuesday morning edition of the News and Observer had this headline: "530 Killed as Jets Collide in Fog," with an overline reading, "Worst Air Disaster in History." The death toll since has risen to 577.

"I kept hoping I was wrong," Fried said after the Tuesday television program. "I've been wrong so many times before. If I told someone, I didn't think they would believe me."

Another near-correct predition involved the North Carolina loss to Marquette in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship basketball game in Atlanta.

Fried had predicted this Tuesday morning headline for the Durham Morning Herald: "Marquette Burtis (Bursts) UNC Bubble; Wins 68-58."

The Herald's second edition headline was: "Marquette Pokes Hole in Tar Heels Bubble." The final score of that game was 67-59.

Fried, a New Orleans native who says he has wanted to be a magician most of his life, does not claim powers of extrasensory perception. He simply says, "The human mind is shrouded in mystery."

Fried predicted that page one of The Durham Sun Monday afternoon would have a headline reading, "The Supreme Court Hears 4 Cases on Capital Punishment."

The Sun's first edition headline was, "4 Separate Death Penalty Cases Argued by High Court."

He was one day and several fatalities off.

NCNB 7 1/2% Six-Year Certificates: How to supplement your income in a changing "Money Market."

Recently, financial institutions across the country have lowered their interest rates on savings. So have other plans. For example, the U.S. Treasury Bill rate has fallen as low as 4.15% from the 1974 peak of 8.96%.

So it's harder than ever to find a "sure-return" plan. But, at NCNB, our 6-year, $1,000 Certificates are a sure way to supplement your income. They pay 7 1/2% a year, and you have a choice of interest payments. We'll 1) mail you a check, for the interest periodically, 2) add the interest to your Certificate, or 3) credit it to your NCNB Checking Account.

For the complete details, stop in at any NCNB office. NCNB 7 1/2% Certificates, and the NCNB Savings Program. Just one way "Cash-Flow" Banking works to help you make the most of the money you make. And save. NCNB

Rose Tennis Team Hopes To Finish High

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Despite getting away to only a 3-2 start on the season, Coach Gwen Waller is pleased with the way things are going for the Rose High School boys' tennis team.

"This is a rebuilding year for us," Coach Waller said. "We lost most of the people who played on a regular basis last year, so the people playing this year are largely inexperienced."

Because of the heavy losses due to graduation, the team lacks depth, with only eight players this year. "It's really kind of hard to tell what the future holds for us," Miss Waller said.

In conference competition, however, Rose has gotten off to a 2-0 start. They have matches this week with Rocky Mount and Northern Nash, today and tomorrow, respectively.

"The results of these two will tell us a lot about how things are going to go in the conference. Of course, I still have to look at Wilson as the favorite. They have a strong program over there, and it is really a big help to them."

Miss Waller said Rose's eight players are all pretty much on the same level. "They're all doing well. We've had a lot of close matches so far, and the players are working very hard. They make up for their lack of experience with a lot of hustle."

Craig Logue is currently playing the number one singles and although he is a senior, this is his first year of high school competition. He is also on the Rose golf team, and this does cause some problems. "Bobby Thomas (the golf coach) and I probably both wish that he'd just play one or the other, but there are only three conflicts on the schedule so we can live with it. Both of us said it was okay for him to do it."

Logue, who transferred here from Virginia, could play only one sport at his former school, and chose golf.

He, along with Don Tucker and Jim Edgerton are the lone seniors on the team. There is one sophomore, Lance Cain, while the other four are juniors.

"This will mean we'll have to do some rebuilding next year, too," Miss Waller said.

Tucker currently is the number two singles player, with junior Michael Hinsley at number three. Cain is the number four player, followed by juniors Jim Barnaby and John Farley, in that order.

Tom Johnson, Johnson, a junior, is the other member of the team. He usually sees action in the doubles.

Miss Waller usually has Logue and Tucker at the number one doubles, with Johnson and Farley at three. Hinsley and Edgerton play the number two spot, but she notes that this unit is subject to change.

"I really think that we can be in the battle for second place this year," Miss Waller said. Rose finished second last year, too. "It really depends on how strong Rocky Mount is, and how we do against the teams that we had close matches with in the first rounds. But I think we have a good chance."

Bears Keep String Alive

BELHAVEN — Bear Grass won its sixth straight baseball game yesterday afternoon with a 7-6 victory over Belhaven's.

The Bears came up with two runs in the fifth inning to break a 5-5 deadlock and then held off the Bulldogs for the win.

Ray Wynn and Robert Harrison were the leading hitters for Bear Grass. Wynn was 3-4 and Harrison 2-2. Mike Adams paced the Belhaven attack, going 3-4.

The Bears came up with three runs in the top of the first, but Belhaven gained the lead in the bottom of the inning, scoring four.

Bear Grass took a 5-4 edge in the second, before Belhaven tied things at five with a tally in the fourth.

In the fifth inning, Robert Harrison got a base hit for the Bears and stole second. He went to third as Alton Cratt reached second on a fielding error. Junie Wynn's single scored Harrison; and Cratt came home when the Belhaven catcher overthrew second on Wynn's steal attempt.

Belhaven loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning, but could score only one run when Mike Adams walked home.

The win gives the Bears a 6-0 record for the year. They will play again Friday when they travel to Chocowinity.

Greg Lee drove in five runs on two doubles to lead Rose High School to a 9-2 victory over Bertie Senior yesterday.

The victory evened the Rampant record at 3-3 overall and 1-1 in conference play.

Bertie fell off to a 1-2 overall mark and a 1-1 conference mark. Rose pushed over five runs in the first inning to get the jump on the Falcons, and despite a two-run rally by Bertie in the third, Rose was in control all the way. They added three more runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Perry Worthington picked up his second win against no losses in the game. He scattered four hits, two of them in the scoring inning, while walking one and striking out seven.

For a while, there, it was unsure whether Rose would be able to score again. Bertie switched pitchers after the first inning and reliever Mike Dawson held Rose in check for the next three innings, allowing only two baserunners, one who reached on an error and one who was hit by a pitch. No one hit a ball out of the infield against him until the fifth.

Bertie put a runner as far as second in every inning except the fourth, sixth and seventh, when the Falcons went down in order. But only in the third, when they scored, did the Falcons put anyone past that base.

Rose opened up the scoring in the bottom of the first, coming up with five big runs.

John Coffman led off with a walk and stole second. With one down, Mike Shank singled to right, moving Coffman to third. As Shank attempted an early Ray Scharf, head swimming coach at East Carolina University for the past 10 years, was named last weekend as a Master Coach by the College Swimming Coaches Association.

The Master Coach Award is one of the highest honors presented by the College Swimming Coaches Association. In order to receive the award, a coach must satisfy four of seven criteria and have coached at least ten years.

The seven criteria are: win 50 per cent of dual meets, win a conference championship, produce a national swimming champion, produce an Olympic team member, be actively involved in C.S.C.A. committees, conduct coaching institutes or schools or participate in institutes or schools as a member of the faculty and earned a masters degree.

Scharf met five of the seven criteria, having won 57 per cent of his dual meets in the last 10 years; having won a conference championship each of the last 10 years; having served as chairman of the NCAA International Competition Subcommittee in 1969-70; having worked with schools and institutes in 1967-76 as assistant professor and aquatic director at East Carolina; instructor at University of Arizona in 1961-62 and a member of the AAHPER and CSCAA in Mexico in 1973 and 1975; and having earned a masters degree from Arizona in 1962.

"It's nice to be recognized," noted Scharf. "The College Swimming Coaches Association does everything possible to recognize its members for outstanding accomplishments. This was a good year to be honored as I was among some fine company with all the olympic people being honored. It was nice to be in such fine company."

Scharf is the second coach at East Carolina to receive the Master Coach Award. The first swimming coach at ECU, Dr. Ray Martinez, received the Master Coach Award two years ago.

During his ten years at East Carolina, Scharf has been most successful. The Pirates have dominated the Southern Conference by winning the championship each year under Scharf. Also, he has produced some big wins over ACC competition, including one this year over Maryland.

Never has East Carolina lost a dual meet to Southern Conference competition under Scharf's leadership.

Scharf, a native of Newark, N. J., first came to East Carolina as an assistant coach in 1967.

Varsity-Alumni Game scheduled Saturday

Gridiron stars of the past for East Carolina University will return to the campus Saturday night to face the current Pirate varsity squad in a Varsity-Alumni game, being played this year in lieu of the annual Purple-Gold contest.

The game is slated for 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium and the Purple-Gold game, originally scheduled for April 8, has been cancelled.

With the majority of the players on the alumni squad having played for the Pirates in the past five years, it's likely the varsity team will have its hands full in the contest.

Alumni players expected to suit up Saturday night are: 1976 graduates Mike Weaver, Raymond Jones, Greg Pingston and Nick Bullock; 1975 graduates Willie Bryant, Jimbo Walker, Wilbur Williamson, Larry Lundy and Mike Crusie;

1974 graduates Danny Kepley, Bob Bailey, Don Schink, Skip Russell, Butch Strawderman, Billy Hibbs, Greg Harbaugh, Mike Shea and Jim Howe; 1973 graduates Carlester Crumpler Joe Tkach, Dan Killebrew and Tom Frazier; 1972 graduate Tim Dameron; 1971 graduates Ralph

The other run came in the sixth. Coffman reached when his deep fly to center was dropped. He moved to second on the play and took third on a wild pitch. He scored on Mike Shank's infield out.

The Rampants return to action on Thursday, traveling to face Northern Nash.

North Pitt Smashes Saratoga, 8-0

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
BETHEL — North Pitt's baseball team shut out Saratoga yesterday afternoon for its first win of the season with an 8-0 victory over the Cougars.

was the play of pitcher Jay Bedsworth. The senior left-hander was a leader at the plate, as well as the mound, going 3-3 in the hitting department, including a double, and knocking in one run.

Bedsworth's pitching was equally outstanding. Pitching the entire game, he only allowed five Saratoga batters to reach base — two on hits and three on walks — and only twice during the game did the Cougars get a man in scoring position. In addition, he struck out nine and fielded two hard-hit batted balls without error.

The losing pitcher, Kenny Cherry of Saratoga, dug his own grave early, allowing a run to score in the first on a wild pitch, walking in one of two second-inning scores and then, after walking three straight batters in the third, allowed them all to score on wild pitches. He had a total of eight wild pitches during the five innings he pitched.

North Pitt's hitting was less than spectacular, but the Saratoga pitching made up for it. None of the eight Panther runs was scored without help from the Cougar mound.

In the first inning, Ed Hemingway led off for North Pitt with a hit to left field and stole second. He went to third when Aubrey Wynne got on by an error on the left fielder and came home on Cherry's first wild pitch of the game.

Bedsworth began the second frame with a hit to center and, after Ken Perry grounded to third, Tim Corey and Bentley Jones walked to load the bases. Hemingway came up again and walked to score Bedsworth and then Roy Briley hit a cheap single back to the pitcher to allow Corey to come home.

Jones then tried to score on a wild pitch and was thrown out at home and Lee Andrews struck out to end the inning.

Three consecutive batters, Jeff Hines, Bedsworth and Perry, were walked in the third to load the sacks. Then, they scored one-by-one as Cherry threw three wild pitches before striking out two batters and forcing the third to hit a grounder to first.

North Pitt tallied another run in the fourth when Andrews walked with two out, went to second on Hines' walk, and scored as Bedsworth doubled to center field.

In the fifth, Tim Corey led off with a base on balls, moved to second on Bentley Jones' walk, made third on a fielders choice and scored as Roy Briley hit a sacrifice fly to left field.

The Panthers had two hits in the sixth inning, but failed to

Heinsohn Angry After Celtics Bow To Cavs

By The Associated Press
For the 36th time this season, Coach Tom Heinsohn was explaining why his Boston Celtics lost a National Basketball Association game — which may have made him angry, since he only had to do that 28 times during all of the 1975-76 championship season.

He was bristling after his team's play Tuesday night in a 110-82 loss to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"My team is getting into a bad habit of playing any kind of basketball and thinking we can get back in the second half," he said with the well-known Heinsohn scowl. "I don't like my team's attitude. We played a bumner last week, too. That's why I'm perturbed."

"When you get to this time of the season, you can come up with all kinds of alibis. We were just not mentally ready to play basketball. There's no excuse."

The Celtics could have used a few excuses in the third quarter, when Austin Carr and Jim Chones combined for 26 points to put Boston away. Carr wound up with 24 points, including 14 in the third period, and Chones had 20.

In other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Chicago Bulls 119-113, clinching the Atlantic Division title; the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 100-97, clinching the Pacific Division crown; the Portland Trail Blazers buried the Buffalo Braves 127-101; the Golden State Warriors dropped the Houston Rockets 109-92; the New Orleans Jazz defeated the New York Nets 94-85; the Phoenix Suns drubbed the Milwaukee Bucks 122-110; the San Antonio Spurs topped the Washington Bullets 122-116; the Kansas City Kings topped the New York Knicks 132-126, and the Denver Rockets defeated the Indiana

Pacers 119-105.

Julius Erving scored half of his 28 points in a furious fourth quarter spree for Philadelphia.

Chicago's Mickey Johnson scored 37 points, but aided by the outside shooting of Doug Collins, Philadelphia dealt the Bulls their first loss in nine games and only the second loss in their last 17 contests. The defeat dropped the Bulls to fourth place in the Midwest Division, one-half game behind Kansas City in the battle for the final spot in the Western Conference playoffs.

Lakers 100, SuperSonics 97
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 29 points helped Los Angeles beat Seattle and clinch its Pacific Division crown since 1974.

Trail Blazers 127, Braves 101
Lionel Hollins scored 26 points for Portland and Bill Walton had 16 points, 16 rebounds and five blocked shots, pacing the Trail Blazers' rout of Buffalo.

Warriors 109, Rockets 92
Jamaal Wilkes scored 16 points, leading Golden State's well-balanced offense, and Rick Barry did an outstanding defensive job on Houston star Rudy Tomjanovich as the Warriors coasted past the Rockets.

Kings 132, Knicks 126
Ron Boone scored a career-high 43 points and Sam Lacey had a personal high 28 as Kansas City defeated the Knicks and regained a half-game lead over Chicago in the race for the final playoff position in the Western Conference.

Spurs 122, Bullets 116
George Gervin and Larry Kenon combined for 61 points, giving San Antonio its victory over Washington. The Bullets were paced by Elvin Hayes with 32 points and a game-high 18 rebounds.

Suns 122, Bucks 110
Paul Westphal scored 34 points and Alvan Adams 24 as Phoenix defeated Milwaukee. Bob Dandridge led the Bucks with 32 points, but insists this will be his last season with the team.

Nuggets 119, Pacers 105
David Thompson's 22 points paced five Denver players in double figures as the Nuggets beat Indiana and clinched a playoff spot in their first NBA season.

Jazz 94, Nets 85
Pete Maravich had 26 points and Jim McElroy 20, leading streaking New Orleans past the Nets for the Jazz' sixth straight victory — matching the club record.

Tigerettes Win Again

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's girls' softball team remained unbeaten yesterday with a 12-4 romp past Jamesville.

Williamston pushed over a run in the first inning, then added six in the third. Three more in the fourth and two in the fifth finished off the Tigerette scoring. Jamesville scored three in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Kristi Rogerson hurled the victory for the Williamston team. Valeria Barnhill led the hitting with three, including a triple, while Sharon Speller, Jeannie Rogers and Lydia Singleton each had two hits.

Speller hit a three-run homer in the third inning while Rogers had a two-run roundtripper in the fifth.

Williamston is now 5-0 on the year. The two teams play a return match tonight at 7 p.m. in Jamesville.

Roanoke Wins Fourth Straight

ROCKY MOUNT — Roanoke High School continued to roll along, marching to an 8-1 victory over West Edgecombe yesterday in an Eastern Plains baseball game.

The Redskins pushed over three runs in the fourth and added five in the sixth.

Glenn Cargile led off the fourth by reaching on an error and Wayne Council walked. Ken Gurganus also walked, loading the bases. David Spruill singled in Cargile and Council, and a passed ball let Gurganus score for a 3-0 lead.

The Redskins got five more in the sixth. Spruill opened with a single and Cliff Keel and Charlie Smith both worked to load them up. Lee Smith singled in two runs, and Cargile got a hit to score another. Gurganus was hit by a pitch to reload the sacks, and a walk to Spruill forced in Cargile with the final run.

West Edgecombe's only run came in the seventh. Joe Smith reached on a three-base error, and scored on Allen Gay's infield out.

Roanoke is now 4-0 overall and 3-0 in conference play. They travel to Williamston on Thursday for a non-conference game. Roanoke 000 305 0-8 7 3

Jamesville Romps To Win

MATTAMUSKEET — Jamesville banged out 12 hits yesterday to take a 14-2 win over Mattamuskeet in high school baseball.

The Bullets scored all the runs they needed in the second inning. Jeff Holliday walked and stole second, going to third on an infield out. He then scored when the third baseman was overthrown on a pickoff attempt.

Joe Stallings followed the play walked for the Bullets and errors allowed Toby Holliday and Glen Ellis to reach, loading the bases. Trent Ange's line drive single to left field scored Stallings and Toby Holliday.

The Lakers scored a run in the bottom of the inning, but Jamesville added two more in the third and three in the fourth. The Bullets scored four more in the top of the fifth before allowing Mattamuskeet's final run in the bottom of the frame.

Ange and Jeff Holliday were the leading hitters for

Saddened Geiberger Says He Will Defend Greensboro Title

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Al Geiberger, whose father is believed to have died in a jet crash in the Canary Islands, changed his mind and will defend his title in the $235,000 Greater Greensboro Golf tournament.

"I had a long talk with my brother over the telephone," Geiberger said, "and he convinced me my father was my greatest booster and supporter — had been all my life — and that he would have wanted me to play."

Geiberger originally planned to return to the family in Santa Barbara, Calif., to set up a memorial service for his father, Ray. After the telephone conversation with his brother, however, Geiberger told tournament officials Tuesday night he had changed his mind and would defend the championship he won last year.

"There are no remains," Geiberger said. "All we know is that he was on the Pan Am 747 and that he isn't listed among the survivors. All we could do is have a memorial service."

Wally Armstrong, whose wife's parents died in the same crash, did withdraw from the 72-hole tournament that starts Thursday.

Geiberger, winner of two titles and more than $194,000 last season, is almost certain to be the sentimental choice in this old event with Ray Floyd and Hale Irwin other top candidates for the $47,000 first prize.

Floyd, the current Masters titleholder, and Irwin each had a chance to win each of the last two tour events and both appear to be moving to the top of their form.

Also in the 156-man field is 64-year-old Sam Snead, who won this tournament a record eight times when it was played at the Sedgefield Country Club. The tournament moved to the new location this year, the hilly 6,984-yard par-72 Forest Oaks Country Club.

Among the other standouts are Australian Graham Marsh, who scored his first American victory last week, former Greensboro champion Tom Weiskopf, South African Gary Player, Johnny Miller, J.C. Snead, Dave Hill, Lee Elder and veterans Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Miller Barber. Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC.

Nettles Skips Yankee Contest

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — The American League's home run king is missing.

Third baseman Graig Nettles, apparently angered by the New York Yankees' refusal to negotiate the three-year contract he signed last year, failed to show up for Tuesday's exhibition baseball game against the Toronto Blue Jays and was promptly slapped with a fine of $500 a day.

Nettles checked out of the Tampa hotel where the team is staying during a week-long trip to Florida's west coast and reportedly returned to the Yankees' Fort Lauderdale training camp. A club spokesman said Tuesday night there had been no contact with the third baseman.

Nettles, who signed a three-year contract for a reported $420,000 last summer, was known to be unhappy because the Yankees refused to renegotiate with him while doing out

Wonder What Youngblood Can Do For Encore After First Trip Up

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
What can Joel Youngblood do for an encore?

Youngblood has been a member of the St. Louis Cardinals for one day. He has had one at-bat, seen one pitch ... and slammed one home run.

The 25-year-old outfielder, who failed to hit a homer in 57 official at-bats with the world champion Cincinnati Reds last season, was traded to St. Louis Monday.

Tuesday, he socked a 375-foot homer in the ninth inning, giving the Cards a 1-0 exhibition triumph over the Houston Astros.

Meanwhile, Bob Forsch, Al Hrabosky and Mike Sutton blanked the Astros on five hits.

Gary Nolan, who still is with the Reds, probably wished he were elsewhere Tuesday. The Texas Rangers roughed him up for 11 runs and 15 hits in four-plus innings as they pounded the Reds 13-5.

Elsewhere, Boston's Jim Rice and Cleveland's Bill Melton boosted their spring home run totals to six apiece. Rice, who has four in his last three games, cracked two and drove in five runs as the Red Sox trounced the Minnesota Twins 9-2. Melton settled for one in the Indians' 6-4 victory over San Francisco. Randy Elliott, the Giants' rookie sensation, went 2-for-2 — a single and double — and boosted his amazing spring batting average to .659 on 25 hits in 38 at-bats.

On the mound, Kansas City's Paul Splittorf allowed one hit in six innings as the Royals blanked the Chicago White Sox 4-0. Ken Holtzman surrendered two hits in six innings of the New York Yankees' 3-1 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays, and Phil Niekro yielded three hits in six innings as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Baltimore Orioles 3-0.

Philadelphia's Tug McGraw pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the bottom of the ninth inning, preserving the Phillies' 2-1 triumph over the New York Mets.

California's Frank Tanana was touched for four runs and 12 hits in seven innings but batterymate Ike Hampton homered twice and the Angels pounded the Seattle Mariners 12-4.

Detroit got home runs from Mickey Stanley, Ben Oglivie, Rusty Staub and Willie Horton but the Pittsburgh Pirates ripped rookie Bob Sykes for six runs in the third inning and defeated the Tigers 8-6.

Dave Cash's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the Montreal Expos over the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5, and the Chicago Cubs edged the Oakland A's 9-8 when Bruce Sember doubled in the 10th inning and scored on a single by Joe Wallis.

In other training camp developments: —The Red Sox placed centerfielder Fred Lynn on the disabled list because of a torn ankle ligament. He is expected to be out of action until the third or fourth week of April.

—Pitcher Mark Fidrych of the Tigers was scheduled to be examined at a Detroit hospital today for possible cartilage damage to his left knee.

Carolina Teams Are Given Hero's Welcome

By The Associated Press
Two North Carolina basketball teams returned home Tuesday with second and fourth place rankings, but both were Number One in the eyes of their home crowds.

Some 6,000 fans turned out to welcome the University of North Carolina Tar Heels home to the Chapel Hill campus.

Students and nonstudents gathered in Carmichael Auditorium with signs and cheers for the team which went down in the NCAA final championship game Monday against Marquette, 67 to 59.

Led by senior guard John Kuester, the players mounted a table in the middle of the playing floor. The crowd began chanting, "We're Number One," when junior Tom Zaliaris raised an index finger.

A crowd of 2,000 attended a similar welcome back rally at the Charlotte Civic Center for the University of North Carolina-Charlotte 49ers who lost to Marquette in the semifinal game of the NCAA tournament Saturday.

"You're number four in the nation, but you're number one in our hearts," said one handmade poster.

Downtown workers and shoppers came, including businessmen with green and white berets, the 49ers' colors.

The rally and requests for autographs failed to hide the team's disappointment from the tournament.

"We had such high hopes of winning the championship," said Kevin King. "It was an emotional upset for us. But this shows we have loyal fans in victory and defeat."

Tar Heel senior center Tom LaGarde echoed similar sentiments in Chapel Hill.

"You're all alive still and we're alive still and that's what's important," said LaGarde, who underwent knee surgery during the East Regional playoff and was still hobbling on crutches.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Infielder-outfielder John Lowenstein has been re-acquired by the Cleveland Indians from the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Indians said Tuesday they had sent infielder Hector Torres to the expansion club in exchange for Lowenstein.

Lowenstein was traded to Toronto Dec. 6 as part of a deal that brought designated hitter Rico Carty back to the Indians. The Indians lost Carty to Toronto during the expansion draft.

Lowenstein had been with the Indians since 1968. Last year he hit .205.

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Right-hander Jim Slaton has been chosen as the starting pitcher for the Milwaukee Brewers in their April 7 season opener against the Yankees at New York.

Manager Alex Grammas also said that Slaton would pitch April 12 when the Brewers open their home season against the Baltimore Orioles.

Slaton, 26, started the first game of the 1976 season and beat the Yankees 5-0. After winning seven of his first eight decisions, he cooled off and finished with a 14-15 record.

Grammas picked Bill Travers, 15-16 last season, to pitch the second game of the Yankees series and Jerry Augustine, 9-12 in 1976, to work the third. Moose Haas, 13-9 with the Brewers' Spokane farm club last year before being called up for the closing weeks of the season, will pitch the second game of the Baltimore series.

Open Statehouse Awes Refugee From Soviet Union

GENNADY SHKLIAREVSKY sits in the balcony of the Virginia General Assembly. What struck him first was the ease with which he walked through the doors of the Capitol building. (UPI Photo)

By KAREN T. RYPKA
RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — To residents of Virginia, as in other states, the democratic process seems like a cozy old pair of slippers. For Gennady Shkliarevsky the slippers are silver.
 Shkliarevsky, 29, is a Russian Jew, a refugee from a country where he says democracy is a much touted illusion.
 Two months after beginning a new life in the United States, Shkliarevsky visited the Virginia General Assembly. What struck him first was the ease with which he walked through the doors of the capitol building designed by Thomas Jefferson.

"That's it?" he said. "You can just walk in without showing a passport or permission?"
 In the Soviet Union, he said, an ordinary citizen could not attend a session of a governing body without showing an array of often unobtainable passes and permissions.
 It is unlikely an ordinary citizen could watch the Soviet, comparable to state legislatures, he said. "To speak is out of the question."
 He saw state senators hear public complaints during a committee meeting.
 "It is quite amazing to me that a man came and he spoke and they listened," he said.

 He was surprised to see school children sitting in the gallery. He was stunned to be introduced as a guest by one of the legislators.
 "For my name to be spoken in such a high assembly is not to be believed. I am not yet even a resident of this country."
 An intense intellectual, Shkliarevsky left the Soviet Union largely because of his belief that a man with a question could not be heard. He describes participation in the Soviet governmental process as a series of Catch 22 style contradictions.
 For a Russian to seek change in any public policy, an organized, unified effort is the only hope, he said. But, "when you gather five people together, you will be punished."
 Only officially sanctioned or party related groups are allowed to gather in the Soviet Union, he said, making it nearly impossible for dissenting viewpoints to gain momentum or organization.

 Shkliarevsky's insistence on defying Soviet laws on illegal gatherings was the final impetus for his flight from the country. He said he was involved in a seminar group that met to discuss a variety of subjects, from math to psychology.
 The Soviet secret police, the KGB, tried many times through harassment and even force to stop the meetings in private homes.
 Shkliarevsky's leave taking, with his wife and young son, was permanent. There is no going back. He fears for the welfare of the family members he left behind.
 The Russian describes the Soviet constitution as a seemingly democratic style document with numerous loopholes allowing for arbitrary power.
 "If I want to stage a demonstration, yes, it is allowed. But there is no provision for who is responsible for it — where you can apply. If I go to the local authorities they will say, 'I am not responsible for it.'"

 The result is a single, predetermined candidate for each opening in government. But everyone votes. "To abstain is an act of courage."
 Shkliarevsky says his former countrymen have little respect for their government and its hold on their lives. Russian authorities are the butt of many private jokes, he said, and there are constant attempts by citizens to cheat the system. "Everyone steals from the government when they can."
 He says a system which may sound unbearable to many Americans is borne by most Russians because it is the nature of humans to adapt to adversity.
 But adapting was finally too much for Shkliarevsky.
 "Don't call it my country," he says of Russia. "I don't live there any more."

Dues Required To Use Temple

MIAMI (AP) — Despite a couple's plea that people shouldn't have to pay to pray, their synagogue filed suit and now a judge has ordered Nina and Richard Kaufman to pay $90 in back dues.
 "Religion's on trial here," Mrs. Kaufman told the court Tuesday. "You're blackmailed. You can't enter the temple to praise God. I wasn't allowed to go in the synagogue during the High Holy Days unless I made that payment."
 But Sheldon Mills, executive director of Temple Beth David, said the suit for 1974-75 membership dues involved a contractual obligation, not religion. "Judaism is not a business," he said. But "where it is housed is."
 Mills said the temple has sued 20 other families for non-payment of pledged dues, but most have settled out of court. He said $6,000 to $10,000 of the temple's $600,000 annual budget was involved.
 The Kaufmans, both real estate agents, said they told temple officials they couldn't meet their $180 dues assessment because of hard times but paid $30 and intended to pay the rest later. They joined Beth David in 1974.

 Circuit Judge Edward Swanko ruled that the Kaufmans would have to pay, but he cut the fee to $90, partly because the couple had made a large donation of toys to the synagogue.
 "Temple must exist," Swanko said. "We must have religion. The only way it can sustain itself is to depend on the membership for support."
 "I've received phone calls and about a dozen letters expressing feelings pro and con," Mills said of the suits. "A couple of synagogues asked us to keep them posted on the status of the case."
 He said mail, which has come from as far away as Canada, is running about 50-50.
 "I think it's normal for a temple or church to run a deficit. But when somebody makes a pledge of a certain amount, we count on that to pay teacher's salaries and to run the building."
 "This gives them the go-ahead," Mrs. Kaufman said. "It sets a precedent allowing churches to use the courts to collect pledges from their congregations."

Designer Says Success In Pinball Is Ego Trip

CHICAGO (AP) — The success of a hot pinball machine is making the player feel he's on an ego trip, an industry designer says.
 "It's all psychological. You've got to build up a player's ego, give him enough skill shots so he feels he's a real pinball wizard even if he's not," says Jim Patla of Bally Manufacturing Corp., considered the world's top seller of slot games and pinball machines.
 "The fact is a lot of it is just luck," Patla says. "But you don't want the player to know that. For them, the bells, the flashing lights, the real high scores — it's all a big ego trip."
 Another Bally designer, Greg Kmiec, says the industry is gearing up to switch from mechanical to electronic machines because such models are easier to maintain.
 "I'm not saying it won't work out, but I've always loved the feel, the thump of the game, and you just don't get that with electronics," says Kmiec.
 A true pinball player won't be drawn into playing any old game because of some flashing lights or nifty artwork, Kmiec says. He looks at the machine for a fair number of skill shots requiring deft use of the flippers and a steady ball-plunger hand, he says.

"A good game is self-explanatory," says Kmiec. "If players have to pore over the instruction card, it's not good. I like to give them immediate gratification in my games. If I turn on a light, and the player hits it, he gets something for it right away. And if I see a player get mad at a game and give it a whack, I know it's good."
 Kmiec, 27, designed the playfields for the two hottest-selling games ever, The Wizard and Captain Fantastic.
 "Maybe one in 10 designs will be a real dog," he says. "I got the idea for a game we call the Night Rider when I was driving along and came to an expressway underpass. I was dazzled by the sight of all the stoplights turning amber in sequence."

 Norm Clark, Bally's chief design engineer, says, "We design about 10 new flipper games a year. And once among the players, a new design is anybody's game. Competitors watch each other very closely."
 Clark says manufacturers get weekly dollar reports from arcade owners about how much each game takes in. If one company's machine is getting especially good play, it's not unusual for a competing firm to send someone out to spy on it.
 Recently, Clark flew to San Jose, Calif., to hang around a hot machine reported there. He said he watched the players, talked to the manager and tried to determine what was so great about the machine.
 "Most of the time people know they like a particular game, but they don't know why," says Clark. "The sound of the play is very important and flashing lights have some effect."
 "But the most important thing is to design a game that is just tough enough so the players can get close to making the specials, but not so close they feel they can beat it."

Piano Student Recital Mar. 31

Gail Betton, senior piano student in the East Carolina University School of Music, will perform in recital on Thursday, March 31 at 9 p.m. in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall.
 Her program will include Papillons by Robert Schumann and the Brahms Trio, Opus 40 for horn, violin and piano. She will be assisted by Dee Braxton, violin; and Andrea Harmon, horn.
 There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Museum Opens On Sailing Ship

PORTHMADOG, Wales (UPI) — A ship museum has opened on one of the last surviving merchant sailing vessels in Porthmadog harbor.
 Exhibits on the 84-ton, 70-year-old ship, "The Garidstone," include the records of her first trading voyage to Porthmadog and models of other schooners popular in her day. The pier where the boat is docked has been restored as a 19th century slate harbor.

Young Woman Prexy Of Capitol Press Corps Is Earning A Reputation

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Brenda Summers is earning a reputation around the legislative press room as an activist, a troubleshooter, a mother hen and a moderating influence on independent-minded reporters.

At 25, the reporter for WPTF radio in Raleigh is the first woman president of the Capitol Press Corps, an unstructured gaggle of 25-30 reporters.

To the surprise of the press corps, she has taken firm control of the organization and, veteran capitol reporters say, has made the presidency more than a title.

"She is uppity enough to tell some of us when to stuff it. She brings people down to size," said Martin Donsky, chief political writer for the News and Observer of Raleigh.

"She's started carrying the ball. It's been sort of an inactive position in the past. She's doing things that need to be done," said the dean of the Capitol Press Corps, Noel Yancey of the Associated Press. Yancey began reporting on North Carolina government in 1937 and is a former press corps president himself.

To Gary Pearce, Gov. Jim Hunt's press secretary, Ms. Summers has been a bonus.

"My job is right at the conflicting apex of two completely different worlds," he said. "I don't believe I could adequately do my job without someone like Brenda around."

The press corps elects its president every two years when the legislature opens. In the past, the toughest job faced by the president was to arrange for parking spaces for those who needed them. Beyond that, he did little more than hold the title.

Ms. Summers, however, has been an activist. On the day of her election, she appointed a committee to put an end to the continuing war between print and TV reporters over placement during news conferences.

A week later, the problem was solved with Ms. Summers announcing that front row seats were for print and radio reporters, TV cameras were to be set up behind them and the new plan would be followed. No one argued with her.

When several reporters complained that Hunt was not accessible enough, she stepped in, spoke with Pearce about it, and the complaints stopped.

A native of Mocksville, N.C., Ms. Summers graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1973 and covered her first legislative session in 1974. It was difficult for a long time because legislators thought she was a page.

"If you're a woman, you have to work harder at making your contacts, at proving yourself," she said.

"I feel really strange being head of the group that I just became part of three years ago," she said, adding that handling problems in the 2½ months the legislature has been in session has eased that feeling considerably.

"Somebody has got to iron out the problems," she said.

One important factor in choosing Ms. Summers for the job, Donsky said, was that, as a radio reporter, she is able to bridge the gap and ease conflicts between print and TV reporters.

Capitol Press Corps members have praise for her, but there's also some sympathy.

"I think Brenda has done an excellent job. I am afraid we are putting her in the position of having to deal with a lot of nit-picking stuff, though," said Ted Harrison, reporter for WFMV-TV in Greensboro. "I think what we are asking her to do is be a den mother and housekeeper."

"I see a lot more cooperation, a group effort. I think it's because of the leadership," said Dollie Smith, capitol reporter for United Press International. "I am surprised to see what's happened and I'm pleased."

"She's working very hard," Donsky said, "but she's not going to be able to solve everything."

"I think because the press is not an organized thing...they can take on the appearance and character of just a pack of jackals," Pearce said. "She can head that sort of thing off."

Pearce has been on both sides of the fence, working about 10 years for the News and Observer before joining the Hunt campaign in the fall of 1975.

Raleigh 'Born' 180 Years Ago

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — On March 30, 185 years ago, a site committee voted to establish the new capital of North Carolina on a Wake County farm, and within a few months the town of Raleigh was formed.

Seventy years earlier, Edenton had become the first fixed seat of government, but not for long. The population was scattered and traveling was slow, so the colonial legislature adopted the custom of meeting at various places.

New Bern finally was chosen as the capital, and Tryon's Palace was completed in 1770 as the governor's residence and meeting place for the council.

The palace at New Bern became a casualty of the Revolution. Because of British threats, the war governors and legislatures sought protection inland, and the building was seldom used.

The center of population also had shifted and when the military threat disappeared, up-country legislators determined to move the capital westward.

Several communities sought the honor and the General Assembly unable to resolve the issue, delegated the matter to the convention which met in 1788 in Hillsborough.

The convention voted to fix the capital within a radius of 10 miles of Isaac Hunter's inn in Wake County, leaving selection of the exact spot to the General Assembly.

Due to legislative opposition by those who supported Fayetteville, the assembly delayed until early 1792 the appointment of a commission to determine the location.

After exploring various plantations in the vicinity of Hunter's inn, the commissioners took rooms at the home of Joel Lane of Bloomsbury, the county seat. Whether his hospitality swayed the commissioners is not known, but they voted March 30, 1792 to purchase 1,000 acres from Lane for the sum of 1,378 English pounds.

From that point, events moved rapidly. William Christmas surveyed the wilderness and laid out a town which provided near its center a six-acre "Union Square" on which the state house was to be built.

His plan also laid out streets and lots, reserving four blocks for permanent public use, one each named for the independent state's first three governors and current attorney general.

The lots were sold and the income was applied to the construction of the state house, with preliminary work beginning before the end of the year.

Among the purchasers of lots was Gov. Alexander Martin and four other men who later became governor.

Eight streets — those intersecting or passing Union Square — were named for the judicial districts of the state: Edenton, Fayetteville, Halifax, Hillsborough, Morgan, New Bern, Salisbury and Wilmington.

Commemorating their own role in selection of the capital, the commissioners also named nine streets for themselves: Bloodworth, Blount, Dawson, Hargett, Harrington, Jones, Martin, McDowell and Person.

Appropriately enough, streets on the outer edge of town were designated North, East, South and West.

The remaining streets honored contemporary leaders: Senate Speaker William Lenoir, House Speaker Stephen Cabarrus, Gen. William R. Davie, and, not to be overlooked, Joel Lane.

Gov. Martin had nothing named for him. Martin Street got its name from the site commissioner James Martin.

With the site finally settled, the General Assembly directed that in 1794 the public officers move to the city "with all the Public Papers and Records." However, the building was not ready until December 1794.

Gov. Martin noted with satisfaction that at last "the public officers will be brought together, heretofore detached to too great distances — archives of the state collected and preserved — and the different departments of government conducted near each other, to the quick dispatch of business and ease to the citizens."

Thus the government had found a home and the city began to grow around Union Square where the Capitol now stands.

Conference Slated On Family Planning

The First Family Planning Conference for the Southeast will be held at Sacred Heart College, Belmont, N.C. April 29-May 1.

The conference will be open to anyone interested in the most modern methods of natural family planning.

The faculty of the conference consists of four doctors, among them Dr. Kenneth Wiebe of Duke University Medical School, and Dr. John Brennan, OB, Gyn., of Milwaukee, Wis.; nurses sociologists, and couples experienced in the field of teaching fertility awareness.

The sessions will be bilingual. A young couple from Mexico who has worked for four years in government clinics will lecture in Spanish.

Bulky Diet For Pet No Problem

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Cats and dogs have a decided advantage over humans in the case of bulky foods, fiber and intestinal disease.

Veterinarian C.W. Schulz says recent emphasis on the need for additional food fiber or bulk in the diet to prevent intestinal ailments in man has raised a similar question about pets' diets.

Schulz said dogs and cats not only have different food needs from man, but also many of their ordinary commercial foods have very low digestibility, compared with food for humans. In addition, he said, incidences of intestinal tumors, gastric ulcers and hemorrhoids are extremely rare in dogs and cats.

Tourist Bargain In N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Inclusive weekend holidays at $5.10, or week-long farm guesthouse vacations at $22.10, are among the 1977 tourist bargains in Northern Ireland, the country's tourist board says.

In its recently published annual accommodation list — All the Places to Stay 1977 — the board lists over 700 hotels, guesthouses, farm and country houses and other approved accommodation.

All accommodations are inspected and approved by the tourist board. The publication is available from the British Tourist Authority.

IF YOU THINK THIS TURKEY'S A HAM, WE'LL SEND YOU A DOLLAR.

Try just one bite of our ham and you'll gobble it up. It looks just like ham. It tastes as hickory-smoked delicious as ham. But it's actually a newly developed turkey ham.

Then, why turkey ham instead of pork ham? One big healthy reason: it's better for you. Plantation's new turkey ham has fewer calories than pork ham. And it has more protein content. No bones. No fat to trim. It's all pre-cooked and ready to serve.

So let's talk turkey. Simply try a Plantation Turkey Ham that's available in the fresh meat section of your supermarket. Then, just send in the label with this coupon and we'll send you a dollar.

And from now on, if you ever get confused about whether this turkey's a ham or this ham's a turkey, remember. Plantation Turkey Ham is the one that's better for you and your family.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time when you can easily open up new avenues of expression and make much headway with your present vocational outlets. A fine day for entertaining long-time friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Gain the support of higher-ups on a new plan you have in mind. Do what you most prefer during your spare time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to expand in career matters. Be careful of outsiders with strange ideas. Use extreme care in motion today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find a new outlet that can give you more abundance and increase happiness. Sidestep one who wants to waste your time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You know how an important monetary matter should be handled, so get busy on them early in the day.

EO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to do what you most desire. Social affairs are good during the day but not in the evening. Avoid a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact one who has the data you need and also get advice on how to improve conditions around you. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to comprehend what associates expect of you. Be sure to accept an invitation to a big social event.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your good judgment in handling an important career matter today. Evening is fine for enjoying fine music.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make new friends of those whose experience is different from yours. Make plans to improve your surroundings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be alert in the handling of business affairs today. Make long-range plans for the future with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Many things come up now that will reveal what is best to do to solve problems you may have. Safeguard your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't get discouraged because you have much work ahead of you, but delve into it and later you can rest on your laurels.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much charm and can be a force for good in the world. Education should be directed along humanitarian lines. A naturally brilliant person in this chart. Be sure to give ethical training early in life. Sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

CBS May Start Trend In West Coast Move

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since 1947, when the CBS-TV network began, two of its most powerful departments — programs and business affairs — have been run from New York, where most TV production once was.

On May 1, B. Donald Grant and Gerald Rubin, the respective heads of CBS' programs and business affairs, and CBS' No. 2 man, Robert A. Daly, will run things from Los Angeles, where most TV action now is.

The idea is to have them where most entertainment shows are made, to do their executive deeds here, rather than by phone or memo from New York or during busy visits to what they call "the Coast."

Don't get the idea all of CBS is leaving Fun City. CBS-TV chief Robert Wussler says he'll stay based in New York, as will CBS News and the network's sales promotion, finance and sports departments.

But the relocation of this much CBS power here possibly could start a trend, even though NBC and ABC say they have no plans to move their program and business affairs gurus here from New York.

Wussler said in a phone interview this week that since most network entertainment shows now are made here, it's conceivable that some day the head of CBS-TV will be based here.

CBS' corporate shifts go back to the days of his predecessor, Bob Wood, who ran CBS from 1969 to last May, when he resigned to start a production company here under a CBS contract.

Wood said two years ago he proposed relocating not only CBS' programs and business affairs headquarters here, but also his office, simply because the bulk of TV production had long since moved here from New York.

He got nowhere then: "Nobody said it was a lousy idea. They just felt for me to be out here . . . would raise serious operational problems."

Wood said he felt CBS overcame that by leaving Wussler in New York and moving his second in command, Daly, and the headquarters of CBS' programming and business affairs departments here.

"It's really a smart, good move of the network," Wood added, saying he felt this way because top executives will be available here each day for immediate face-to-face decisions instead of trying to handle things through Los Angeles subordinates or during their next visit here.

Wood also expressed surprise that ABC and NBC haven't made similar corporate shifts from New York to Los Angeles. "To me," he said, "it's such an obvious thing . . . I think you may see, not too many months down the road, one or both of the remaining networks doing the same thing, though that's only a guess on my part."

Free Film Set Friday

"Happiness Is . . ." the Russell S. Doughten Jr. film based on a story of faith is to be presented April 1 in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Co-chairpersons for the presentation of the film are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Morgan. Mrs. Dick Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Harris, Mr. and Mrs. T.R. Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Barr Taylor and Nancy Twigger are members of the planning committee.

This is a free film for the whole family and the public is invited to attend.

The title song "Happiness Is the Lord," is by Ira F. Stanphill. The film provides a view of the lives of three boys who form a secret club and a girl who, when not admitted to the club, is determined to expose it and the boys.

"It is the finest children's film produced to date," according to the Rev. Clarence Balmer. "The gospel message comes through clearly and challenges the viewer to a spiritual decision."

Solicitation Permits Okayed

Two requests for solicitation permits have been approved by City Manager Jim Caldwell.

Caldwell authorized a permit for the Eastern Unit of the North Carolina Society for Autistic Children to sell tickets door-to-door here from March 28 to May 22 to raise funds to support a summer educational program for local autistic children.

The city manager also approved the request of the Pacolus Fire Department to sell advertisements to local merchants from March 25 to June 25 with proceeds from the advertisements going to the fire department and for the publication of a brochure for a horse and pony show sponsored by the department.

Crop Insurance Protection Up

Federal Crop Insurance will offer Pitt County farmers an increase in protection in 1977 according to Betty Lou Jones, County Office Representative.

Flue cured tobacco growers who will be combine harvesting their tobacco crop should check with the local Federal Crop Insurance office for information on acreage meeting recommended combine harvesting requirements. Farmers using automatic tobacco combines are faced with a real problem if hurricane, high winds and driving rains sweep through fields that are ready for harvest or are being harvested. This agreement provides the additional protection that these growers would need at this time.

Because of a change in the Sales Program, there will not be any FCI Fieldmen working this year. All sales will be handled by the Pitt County FCI Office Representative. Farmers interested in all risk Federal Crop Insurance protection may get complete information by contacting the local Federal Crop Insurance Representative, Betty Lou Jones.

The Federal Crop Insurance office is located in Room 103 of the Federal Building. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and the telephone number is 752-0738.

Revival Set April 11-15

Revival services will be held April 11-15 at English Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, 101 Greenville Boulevard, with Elder E. C. Eccamell of La Grange as the speaker for the week.

Guests for the services include: Sycamore Hill Baptist Church choir and ushers of Greenville on Monday night; St. Monica Baptist Church choir and ushers of Grimesland on Tuesday;

Arthur Chapel Free Will Baptist Church choir and ushers of Bell Arthur on Wednesday; Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church choir, ushers and congregation on Thursday; and Holy Hill Male Chorus and ushers of Belvoir on Friday evening.

The pastor, Bishop W. L. Phillips, and the church invited the public to attend the services, which begin each evening at 7:30 p.m.

Thirteen Attended DECA Conference

Thirteen Farmville Central students attended the State Leadership Conference of Distributive Education Clubs of America in Charlotte last week.

Those attending from Farmville Central were Martha Bennett, N. C. DECA vice president; Gayle Flanagan, District I vice president; Linda Barefoot, Linda Peele, Karen McLawhorn, Pam Tyson, Teresa Moore, Donnie Langston, Faye Lanier, Al Perry, Frankie Taylor, Tony Brown, and Scott Vickers.

Vickers placed first in the communications event of the petroleum series and Brown received a proficiency award in food marketing. The Farmville Central Chapter was awarded a 100 per cent membership certificate.

Miss Flanagan was elected the new state vice president for the 1977-'78 school year.

Mrs. Barbara Wooten and Mrs. Janet Knox, chapter advisor, accompanied the group to Charlotte.

More than 1,500 students and faculty members representing some 9,000 DECA members in 205 high schools attended the conference.

DECA operate through the nation's public schools to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution.

Five-Week-Old Strike Is Ended

BESSEMER CITY, N.C. (AP) — A five-week-old strike by 325 production employees of the Lithium Corporation ended this week.

An agreement was reached last weekend between members of the Loca 3802 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union and company management.

The strike began February 16 over pay increases. The settlement includes a 12 per cent pay increase for the first year of the worker's contract and increases of eight per cent each of the two remaining years. The raise represents an estimated 36 to 76 cents more per hour.

The plant produces chemical products. Company vice-president Dick Nielsen said the firm was able to supply customers during the strike.

Active Duty By Reservist

William W. Shaw of Greenville recently underwent two weeks of annual active duty training at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Shaw, a civil engineer for the city of Greenville in civilian life, served aboard the USS Francis Marion, which was undergoing refresher training. He is a member of the Fleet Training Group 506 naval reserve unit at Newport News, Va.

During the training, the 55-year-old reservist helped to instruct and grade regular and reserve personnel aboard the Francis Marion and other ships in training at Guantanamo Bay.

Shaw, who joined the Navy during World War II, served until 1946 and became a reservist in 1947. He wears the rating insignia of a chief signalman and is qualified as a chief quartermaster.

He and his wife, Margie, live at 2623 Jefferson Drive in Greenville.

COMPOSER DIES

MADRID (AP) — Argentine composer Waldo de los Rios, whose pop version of Mozart's Symphony No. 40 was a hit in the U.S., is dead at the age of 43. The news agency Europa Press said he died Tuesday.

Nothing Missing From Break-In

Would-be thieves broke open a window to gain entrance to the offices of dentist, Dr. W. M. Aldridge at 108 Oakmont Plaza during the night, but nothing was reported missing, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

According to the chief, the would-be thieves rummaged through cabinets in the patient treatment areas but nothing was found to be missing.

Aldridge said money and drugs are not kept in the building during non-working hours.

Three Inmates Injured In Fight

RALEIGH (AP) — Three inmates were injured Tuesday night in a fight that broke out in a dormitory at the Polk Youth Center, a prison spokesman said.

Shift Capt. J. E. Thornton said two of the prisoners were treated at the Central Prison Hospital and returned to the center, while the third inmate was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Thornton said the fight occurred in a 40-inmate adjustment dormitory, which houses inmates "who haven't adjusted to the regular prison population."

He said the cause of the disturbance was not immediately determined and the incident was still under investigation.

Believers Say 'Pendulum Power' Rivals Pyramids

EDITOR'S NOTE — Palm readings, crystal balls, Ouija boards, paper pyramids. In search for satisfaction, whether it's for sharper razor blades or a keener sense of self, believing can be buying. Here's something for swingers, or at least those who sway with the times. It's pendulum power.

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Will the faithful gathered at the pyramid swing with the pendulum? In the fast-paced marketplace of the occult, with its appetite for trends, the latest bid comes in a paperback called "Pendulum Power."

It offers the pendulum as an instrument to solve sex problems, diagnose illnesses, prescribe vitamins, locate cavities, answer career questions and tell what colors soothe you most.

In the sweep of mystic powers the authors ascribe to the pendulum, the book is reminiscent of similar occult properties attributed to the pyramid in a recent book by the same publisher (and one of the same authors) called "Pyramid Power."

The pendulum is not the kind on the grandfather clock, but more free-swinging — a weight on a thread, for example. Such a pendulum will release secrets of the brain and, by electrical impulse, point to the solution.
The scientific name that pendulumists give the practice is radiesthesia or radiation physics. The judgment of the scientific establishment is that it's utter nonsense.

But that hasn't deterred the coauthor of the new book, who says the opinions of doctors, dentists and scientists are not surprising.
"I can understand very well why they would be against it," says Joseph Polansky, who describes himself as a professional astrologer, researcher and writer. "It undercuts all the axioms on which they have built their lives."
Polansky wrote the book with Greg Nielsen as a followup to "Pyramid Power," which Nielsen coauthored, and "Sun Sign Success," which Polansky wrote.

"Pyramid Power" has sold more than 300,000 copies in paperback so far and is being translated into seven languages, says Ehut Sperling of Destiny Books, which published both. "Pendulum Power," published last month, has a 100,000 first printing and is doing well, he says. And for those who don't want to make their own, the firm soon will start selling pendulums, too.
The book tells the history of the pendulum, how to build and use it, how pendulum power "can change the shape and future of our entire civilization," and, more immediately, how it can help the individual:
"When put into practice in daily life, pendulum power can provide accurate and spontaneous information which can lead to happier, healthier and more wholesome living."

The building is simple: Take black silk thread — "black vibrates a less disturbing wave than do the rainbow colors" — and attach a button, wedding ring, wooden dowel or any such everyday item.
To learn to use it, draw vertical and horizontal arrows and clockwise and counterclockwise circles on a piece of paper. Begin by holding the pendulum over the vertical arrow.
"Now look at the pendulum and, with the power of your mind, will the pendulum to move up and down in the same direction as the arrow. Do not move it with your fingers or hand. Use only the power of your mind and will.

"Nine out of ten times the pendulum will obey," say the authors. Then you simply do the same thing with the horizontal line and the two circles. Now comes the hard part.
It takes a year to a year and a half of daily practice — five minutes a day is recommended — to learn to use the pendulum to solve problems. But the rewards listed are lavish and many.

A glance at chapter headings tells some of the grander ones. "The pendulum opens the door to the infinite," and "Exploring the hidden powers of your mind." But then there are specifics, too.
Finding a sexually compatible partner, for example. Just write down the names of those available and hold threaded bead or button over each. Clockwise is negative, counterclockwise is love at last. Is there still a choice? The wider the circle, the lovelier the loving. It's good also for overall compatibility and simple old friendship.
Got a career problem? Take the case of "Bob D.," a dentist who lost his taste for teeth. With the pendulum he discovered he was really intended to be a singer, took lessons, appeared in amateur shows and now hopes to break into nightclubs. His success with the pendulum is not surprising; he'd been using it to locate his patients' cavities.

Medical troubles can be located, too. Holding the pendulum over a simple drawing of the body will pinpoint the problem. Then you can find diet for treatment, or vitamins and even dosage — government minimum daily requirements were found to be "pitifully inadequate" for many people.
And should all else fail, use the pendulum to choose a doctor.
Speaking of doctors, the American Medical Association looks skeptically at the pendulum as a diagnostic tool. Said a spokesman: "It sounds like a pretty unscientific way to diagnose human illnesses."
The American Dental Association demurred at providing a spokesman to react to Nielsen's and Polansky's thoughts on dentistry. But it said Dr. Edward Zegarelli, dean of the Columbia University Dental School, might take it on. He did.

"Oh brother," he began. "I've heard many things about dentistry but this is the most bizarre ... I hope you don't mind my laughing."
The American Physical Society also declined to speak or recommend a physicist to comment. In so doing, the society's spokeswoman noted: "Most physicists don't have a very good sense of humor."
But then where to go to get scientific opinion? As Sperling said when asked about the authors' formal scientific training in radiesthesia: "You can't really get a degree in it."

Longleat House Open To Public

LONDON (UPI) — Longleat House, 16th century home of the Marquess of Bath 100 miles southwest of London, is open to the public year round.

It is packed with fine furnishings, paintings and books, and its extensive grounds include a safari park.

Outside attractions include the regimental band of the Royal Corps of Signals who will "beat the Retreat" on the forecourt on June 12, in honor of the Queen's Silver Jubilee. A horse-drawn vehicle rally will be staged there on July 24.

See Changes In Plastics Mart

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Land transportation has surpassed the marine industry as the largest consumer of reinforced plastics, according to the Fiber Glass Division of PPG Industries. A key to this market change is the ability of reinforced plastics to reduce the weight of cars, trucks, buses and other vehicles for greater fuel economy, says PPG, which expects land transportation use for the materials to grow in 1977 by 34 per cent, to 465 million pounds.

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE — "Now, if only we could get the landlord to fix the roof" could be the thoughts of this pair of starlings outside a big birdhouse that has seen better days near Wilmington, Del. (AP Wirephoto)

Soil Treatment Choices Varied

Since most Pitt County tobacco growers have decided on the variety and whether to use rotation or continuous culture, they are now concerned with selecting the proper chemical soil treatment to fit the variety and cropping systems planned, according to Gaylon Ambrose, Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent.

Fourteen materials are available with even more piggy-back combinations, including fumigants and non-fumigants nematicides, multi-purpose materials and transplant water treatments.

Growers who plant tobacco behind tobacco should limit their choice to a multi-purpose material, including Telone C-17, Terr-o-cide 15 D or Terr-o-cide 30. In addition, those who experienced heavy loss to Black Shank, Granville Wilt, or Black Root Rot in previous crops should by all means use a multi-purpose material, according to Ambrose.

Fumigants nematicides, including DD, Telone II are suggested for fields where root knot populations are high. Non-fumigant types, including Mocap, Dasanit and various combinations of these materials with Di-Syston, Vydate and Furadan are suggested for fields where populations are low to moderate. Mocap and Vydate are slightly more effective than Dasanit and Furadan, according to Ambrose.

Transplant water treatments, including Vydate and Nellite, work best when used on top of fumigant and non-fumigant nematicides and multi-purpose treatments. Furadan also provides adequate control and increased performance when used at a reduced rate and applied preceding application of most other chemicals.

There are situations or fields where the impact of control, rotation, chemical soil treatment and resistant varieties have reduced the major diseases to a very low level, according to Ambrose. Chemical soil treatment could be omitted from the control program for these fields.

Chemical soil treatment is an important weapon in the fight against several tobacco diseases.

For further information contact the Agricultural Extension Office.

Keeping Prices At '76 Levels

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The Croatian tourist association, which covers the biggest part of Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, says the prices of hotel accommodation and other tourist services in 1977 will remain at the same level as last year.

It means that a foreigner will be able to enjoy full board at a good hotel for about $10 per day.

Yugoslavia, which earns about $1 billion from tourism a year, experienced a drop in the number of foreign visitors in the 1976 season.

Airlines Trade Attendants

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Airlines and Air India flight attendants will trade places during March as part of a bilateral promotion campaign.

Five United flight attendants will fly Air India routes from Bombay to Kuwait, London, New York and Rome as extra crew members to promote the United States and the airlines to Air India passengers. At the same time five Air India flight attendants will fly as part of United's crews on domestic flights, promoting their country and airline.

Much Land In Federal Hands

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Some Ozark counties are affected heavily by federal ownership of land, according to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

The Corps of Engineers owns about 128,000 acres in Missouri and there are about 226,000 acres in national wildlife refuges. There also are 1.3 million acres in national forest land.

FLY AWAY
NEW YORK (UPI) — A study for a bridal magazine here indicates 45 per cent of all honeymooning couples travel by plane.

Avoids The 'Rat Race' Working In His Boat Yard

By PATRICK A. MALONE
TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Old saw about psychiatrists: You don't have to be crazy to be one, but it helps.

Dr. Herbert Modlin of the Menninger Foundation repeats it with only half a smile.

Modlin, a professor of community and forensic psychiatry at the well-known mental health institution, has treated mentally ill colleagues and written about their problems, including drug abuse, suicide and family breakups.

The odds of a psychiatrist committing suicide are more than 50 per cent higher than the average American, according to figures based on obituaries in medical journals. Psychiatrists have the highest suicide rate of physicians — 19 per 100,000 compared to 16 for all physicians and 12 for the entire nation.

Why so high for psychiatrists? It is not, Modlin emphasized, the often popular belief that all psychiatrists start out a little crazy.

The Menninger School of Psychiatry, as well as other schools, gives rigorous psychological tests and interviews to young doctors who want to specialize in psychiatry. One goal is to find students who need psychiatric help themselves.

"This is a left-handed way of seeking help and we do everything we can to weed them out," Modlin said in an interview.

The dangers for even the most rock-stable of psychiatrists lie in the nature of their day-to-day work.

"We therapists keep too much to ourselves," he wrote in the Menninger Perspective magazine. "Instead of consulting with colleagues, we indulge in self-supervision, self-counseling and self-treatment."

Professional ethics block one outlet most people have for relieving pressure: talking with your spouse. And that can build a communications gap in the marriage.

Modlin described other related occupational hazards in the interview.

"One of the problems the psychiatrist has is, like everybody else, he may take his work home with him. But unlike other professions, if he acts like a psychotherapist in his house, this is obviously inappropriate. He may tend to interpret his wife's difficult behavior or his teen's difficult behavior, but it would be much better if he'd get plain mad."

Family members may rightly resent being manipulated by the same techniques a psychiatrist uses at the office.

Often the psychiatrist may simply be emotionally drained at the end of a day. "Our children may react by turning from us toward the more warmly responsive parent."

The psychiatrist and members of his family are sometimes viewed uneasily in social settings.

"We get tarred with the brush of mental illness,"

Modlin said. "People are afraid of mental illness. No matter how sophisticated on the surface our society is, we're still afraid of madness, and those who deal with madness also are suspect."

In long-term treatment, a patient almost inevitably builds some emotional attachment and may subconsciously put the therapist into the role of a parent or a spouse. This process, called transference, is often a valuable tool for bringing out problems, Modlin said.

"But it is also possible for the therapist, since he is a human being, to develop some irrational feelings about his patient and slip too easily into a parental role or into a marital role, particularly if the patient and therapist are of opposite sexes. It's quite frequent. If he doesn't recognize it, he and the patient are in trouble."

Sex between psychiatrist and patient "happens occasionally," but most legitimate therapists frown on it. "It seems to us very difficult to maintain a proper treatment atmosphere when the relationship in reality becomes erotic."

"Psychiatrists," he said, "are not a breed apart but fellow participants in the human comedy."

Occupational Hazard In Nature Of Their Role

By ARTHUR FREDERICK
GEORGETOWN, Maine — Sam Francis respects things made from wood.

He carved his boatyard out of the wood from the banks of the Back River and he works on boats crafted from wood.

Francis restores pleasure vessels, many of them built in the first half of this century and each one becoming rarer with the passing years.

The work is primarily a hobby that provides a few dollars, and Francis wants to keep it that way.

"The boatyard doesn't really have a name," Francis said. "We've been calling it the Back River Boat Works, but sometimes it gets called the Back Yard Boat Works."

Francis, 32, came to Maine three years ago via Massachusetts and Connecticut. He was trained as a psychologist. He was a psychologist in the service, a housebuilder in Massachusetts before coming north.

"It really started as a hobby," he said. "My wife and I have been interested in boats for a long time, and I've done repair work here and there."

"At one point we bought a 40-foot ketch. It needed a lot of work and we rebuilt it. It needed sails and we learned sail making. We had to learn how because we couldn't afford to have someone else do it."

That boat gave way to a 60-foot schooner, and Francis did the same with her.

"We sailed as much as we could, and I became sort of an itinerant boat worker," he said. "We just sort of backed into it."

The move to Maine first involved plans for self-sufficiency. But scratching a living from the earth in northern New England isn't easy, with its long winters and short growing season.

"We originally came with an interest in homesteading," he said. "We do grow most of our own food and we have a greenhouse, we heat with wood and we're semi self-sufficient."

"The boat work provides the cash flow. We're doing all right, but from a purely business standpoint it's hard to say. If we make money, we put it back into the shop."

"I try to stay away from the hard business aspects of it. Mostly I don't look at it as a business at all."

Sitting in the yard now is a beautiful 67-foot yacht named "Hutoka". Francis said she was built in 1904 and won the Bermuda race in the 1920s. The present owner, a Bath family, is having the boat completely refitted.

"When we're done, possibly in the spring, we'll have just about rebuilt her."

Francis would like the boat yard to become something more, perhaps a sort of therapy program for youngsters who are troubled or in trouble with the law.

But the biggest goal is to keep the boat work fun and the living simple, he said.

"It was just woods when we first came here. We put up a tent to live in while we cleared the land, and we didn't have electricity for a year," he said. "Sometimes I worry that we're getting too mechanized."

"That's almost like bringing the rat race up here with you."

Pot Garden For The Sun

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Don't let a shady yard keep you from gardening.

Try containers that can be moved from spot to spot to follow the sun, says Ted Torrey, vegetable breeder for a major seed company here.

Torrey says it works fine, even though almost all vegetables and most annual flowers need at least six hours of sunshine daily.

When in doubt about container size, choose one a little too large instead of a little too small, Torrey added.

He said many vegetables can be grown easily and conveniently in boxes about three by four feet and at least six inches deep.

Plants in containers need a growing medium that does not pack hard, that drains well without drying out too fast, and that supplies enough nutrients for good growth.

New York's Tax Men Defeated

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The tax men in New York State have admitted defeat and agreed to the canceling of one money-raising levy.

State Sen. Hugh Farley, a Republican, told the Senate Monday it was costing the Department of Taxation of Finance $22,000 more to enforce a licensing system for gasoline stations than the department gets in return.

The levy was first imposed in the 1930's as a way of keeping track of the number of gasoline stations.

"Only about 14,000 of the 30,000 filling stations in New York have obtained the license this year," Farley said. "The Department of Taxation and Finance admits that it does not attempt to enforce the tax," because it loses money.

SAM FRANCIS poses in the boatyard he built from the wood on the banks of the Back River in Maine. Francis is a former psychologist who gave up working with the peculiarities of the personality to work restoring wooden-hulled boats, and loves it. (UPI Photo)

Engulfed By The Planners

MODERN LONDON — Except for the tragedy of Dresden, few of the world's older cities have experienced the immense environmental changes that have engulfed inner London. The skyline spires of fifty famous churches have been submerged in a catastrophe of office blocks. (UPI Photo)

By JOHN GOLDBLATT
UPI—Financial Times
LONDON (UPI) — Except for the tragedy of Dresden, few of the world's older cities have experienced the immense environmental changes that have engulfed many areas of inner London.

It is not merely that the quaint old buildings of Dickens' London have vanished but that their more sanitary replacements are for the most part architecturally inferior. Worse still is that the twin demands of town planning and commercialization have squeezed out all semblance of human life from what were once thriving London villages.

It is sad that the skyline spires of The City's 50 famous churches have been submerged in a seemingly geological catastrophe of office blocks that mostly look as though they were designed by chartered accountants rather than architects. But it is of more lasting shame that rising land values have diminished the population of The City from a 19th century 115,000 to its present 5,000.

Outside The City, the once teeming and colourful Elephant and Castle area has been reduced to a windy wilderness of racing traffic and underground pedestrian mazes. Its population has been rehoused in dehumanizing high rise blocks which are monuments to the planners' cherished principle of comprehensive redevelopment.

On the South Bank site, once sacred to theaters, concert halls and galleries, the drab Shell Centre offices stand out like a barbarian thumb proclaiming the triumph of political blackmail.

The urban planner Sir Colin Buchanan once remarked: "Surgeons bury their failures but the mistakes of planners have to be lived with by succeeding generations." The causes of London's depredations are many and complex, but most flower from the main stem of misconceived and bureaucratic planning at both local and national government levels.

The unforeseen veering of the British economy from manufacturing towards service industries very quickly made nonsense of Patrick Abercrombie's 1944 Plan to build New Towns for London's overspill population. The result has been the intensification of the daily commuter crawl back to London offices and the misery caused by urban motorways like Westway, which passes within 20 feet of houses in North Kensington.

After Abercrombie, the 1947 Town and Country Planning Act mistakenly encouraged the zoning of London into separate areas for housing, offices, and so on. It lent authority to the mistaken principle of comprehensive development, which caused the demolition of perfectly sound properties — and their communities — along with the derelict.

Its successor, the 1953 Act, abolished a great many constraints on speculative office building; almost overnight the great London property boom was given the go-ahead, and practically the only curbs placed on the ambitions of property speculators have been the time-consuming and extremely costly delays of the bureaucratic process.

Penny-pinching cannot explain the badness of the great amount of architecture which now disfigures the London landscape. Penny-pinching was endemic in Victorian times, yet it produced the Houses of Parliament and the fairy-tale castle of St. Pancras railway station.

Until recently, London was a property developer's paradise well on the way to becoming an architectural desert. However, the future is not entirely bleak. Environmental planners are learning from their errors; they now realize that longterm planning is impossible because the human and economic variables cannot safely be predicted beyond five years or so.

Even before the present economic slump, grandiose redevelopment schemes were giving way to more humanly-scaled projects of piecemeal infill, and the rehabilitation of deteriorated properties.

Above all, the resilience and adaptability of Londoners is asserting itself. New villages are spontaneously being created out of the planners' wilderness. People are protesting effectively against the conditions in which they have been forced to live and work.

New Food Tray Being Tested

CHASKA, Minn. (UPI) — A food manufacturer here is test-marketing four frozen bake-and-serve vegetable products in coated paperboard trays that can be used in both microwave and conventional ovens.

Each heats in nine minutes in a microwave oven, compared with an average of 45 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit in a conventional oven.

Richard A. Shea, marketing director for the frozen food division of Green Giant Co., said dual capacity trays were developed because microwave oven use is not expected to be large enough to support a separate business for three or four years. Currently, three million households in the United States have microwave ovens. An estimated 1.4 million bought new units last year.

The products are sold currently only in Florida.

Flower Jewelry May Not Last

NEW YORK (UPI) — Flower jewelry is selling well for spring and summer, but some retail store buyers and manufacturers are skeptical of its staying power.

They expect more classic designs, such as thin gold chains and simple pearl and diamond pieces, to be top sellers, according to "Women's Wear Daily." They favor tailored jewelry as a contrast to the summer's frilly, feminine style.

Earl Earned Spot At Top

THE EARL OF HERWOOD is by merit one of the most important figures in British music, an ambition he set out to achieve when he fell in love with opera at 15. (UPI Photo)

By ROBERT MUSEL LONDON (UPI) — "Now," said the Earl of Harewood, "you take Mozart. He knew the quality of the music he wrote and he chose Da Ponte to do the librettos because he wanted them to be of equal strength."

But what happens in almost every opera house in the English speaking world? The operas are sung in Italian or German and the audiences, much as they may delight in the musical setting, miss the humor, the satire and the drama that flowed from Da Ponte's pen.

"There never was a composer who didn't want his works translated so people could understand the words," said the earl in his office on the balcony level of the Coliseum Theater from where he directs the destiny of the English National Opera Company. "You may lose something in the translation but you lose far more if you don't perform it in the language of your audience."

The Earl of Harewood, 54, is a grandson of King George V, first cousin to Queen Elizabeth and 17th in line to the throne. He is by merit one of the most important figures in British music, an ambition he set out to achieve when he fell in love with opera at 15.

He is tall with the bearing of a man who was an officer in the Grenadier Guards in World War II (wounded, captured and then released by a friendly German shortly before the Nazis were to put into effect a plan to trade high-level hostages from their last stronghold.)

From 1945 on he has held a series of important musical posts, including the artistic directorship of the Edinburgh Festival and nine years as director and then administrator of the Royal Opera House in Covent Garden. That great bastion of tradition was not completely receptive to his ideas and in 1972 he became managing director of the English National Opera. He has been editor of Opera magazine and has edited Kobbe's Complete Opera Book, the major reference work in the field, for more than 20 years.

The Coliseum Theater isn't the easiest theater to run. Unlike Covent Garden or the Met, it relies on filling one-third of the house from passing trade — door trade, he called it.

But it must be one of the most exciting.

"Our opera isn't crammed with international stars," he said.

"I'm not looking for a black-tie audience. We've been getting them in blue jeans. I'm against the old-fashioned image of opera houses. The kids don't like it. We keep their old favorites like Verdi and Puccini but the young are surprisingly mature and like 'Tristan.' They are more apt to study the social implications of 'The Ring' than 'The Merry Widow'."

The Coliseum covers the whole range from Wagner's great cycle to new works by Hans Werner Henze and Sir Michael Tippett and the confessions of Lehar, Johann Strauss and Offenbach. And it does them all in English with so traditional a preference for other British talent that it was news recently when Alfredo Silipigni, musical director of the New Jersey State Opera, conducted "Madame Butterfly" whose star was American-trained Nigi Sato of Japan.

"I doubt an American will ever sing with this company if only because old customs die hard," said His Lordship, as his staff refers to him. English voices singing opera in English was the dream of the founder, the late Lillian Bayliss, and Harewood aims to put this combination on the international opera map.

Patrolling his small office in a checked sports jacket, a white shirt with red stripes and a red tie, he returned to the subject of opera in English. He mentioned lightly in passing that the new sofa was not a "casting couch."

"It's unsatisfactory to attend an opera in a language you don't understand", he continued. "You miss so much. The physical jokes are all right — someone tripping or being smacked on the bottom. But the verbal jokes mean nothing. And it isn't easy to translate operas. You just can't make an exact translation."

"Comedies like 'Figaro' and 'The Magic Flute' have to be updated every 20 years or so — the word gay doesn't mean the same thing it meant 20 years ago, to take a simple example. 'Fidelio' is more classical and doesn't. 'Trovatore' requires relatively slight changes but the gain in meaning is enormous."

Harewood teems with ideas. He needs a smaller theater or rehearsal space as well as the Coliseum so he can do Menotti's "Telephone" and other operas that would be lost in a big house.

He wants to show school children the actors on stage in civilian clothes and then have them return as gods and goddesses. He wants to have children attend opera recitals in school time so they won't have to give up their leisure time.

"It would be a contradiction to do it in a foreign language," he said. "The great snag is that we can never stand still. Our difficulty is finding new avenues to explore."

Among this year's projects for Lord Harewood and the English National Opera are two Silver Jubilee galas in honor of Queen Elizabeth's 25 years on the throne. Princess Margaret is attending the first of these. And this is being taken as a sign that after 10 years — ever since a sensational divorce and marriage to Australian Patricia Tuckwell — he is edging back to acceptance at Buckingham Palace.

Lord Harewood was not invited to the wedding of Princess Anne at Westminster Abbey nor to the funeral of his uncle, the Duke of Windsor.

ART CENTER'S NEW PAINTING MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Elvehjem Art Center has recently acquired a painting by the French artist Francois Lemoine (1688-1737). The painting is entitled "The Triumph of Galatea" and is the first 18th-century painting to become part of the center's collection. Lemoine is an artist of the French Romantic School.

Vicious Turn In Rhodesia 'Rustling'

By JANET DAMEN
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Cattle rustling in Rhodesia doesn't involve selling the animals for a quick profit.

It's a special brand of thieving that often results in cows and pedigree bulls belonging to white farmers being mutilated and left to die a slow and painful death so that the flesh remains fresh for several days.

And it's on the upswing. Police say black tribesmen from reserves bordering white farmlands in an area about 50 miles east of the border with Mozambique are stealing the cattle. But they suspect the tribesmen are being put up to it by black nationalist guerrillas who want food.

Hundreds of guerrillas filter in from Mozambique, where they have been trained. Once in Rhodesia, they have to scrounge their food from local tribesmen who can ill-afford to feed extra mouths.

Farmers in the area say the rustlers herd the stolen cattle into neighboring tribal trust lands. Most of the beasts are never seen again because few farmers dare venture into the reserves.

Those that are found have their legs axed off — "ham-stringing," the farmers call it. This way it can take an animal as much as a week to die and during that period its flesh remains fresh.

Farmer Roger Britter, who has lost $8,000 worth of cattle in the past year, had one cow and three pedigreed bulls stolen last month.

"We later found the head of one bull and we also found another of my bulls ham-stringed," he said.

"It had been left in the Weya tribal trust land with its back legs hacked off. It was still alive and had deliberately been left that way to keep the meat fresh.

"It's a good job I didn't catch one of the thieves because I know what I'd do to him."

He said security forces often do sweep through the area, "but as they go through, the tribesmen move out. When the security forces have gone, the tribesmen come back. It's like a yo-yo.

"We are now talking of giving cattle up. With stock worth $8,000 stolen, I have already lost all my profit."

He said all the farmers in the area with property backing on the reserves are suffering. "It has got really bad in the past year, and it's getting worse all the time."

Stiff jail sentences — up to nine years — were introduced last year to curb rustling. But even the prospect of years in prison no longer seems to frighten the thieves.

Derick Atkinson, executive officer of the Rhodesia Cattle Producers Association, said:

"When the sentence was first brought in, there was evidence it was proving a deterrent. But in recent times this deterrent doesn't seem to be working.

"We can understand those people who feel they must give up producing cattle under these circumstances."

Tourist Routine Is Streamlined

MOSCOW (UPI) — Almost 3.7 million foreigners, 60 per cent of them from other Communist countries, visited the Soviet Union last year, according to a tourism official.

Viktor Boichenko, deputy head of the Soviet Foreign Tourism Board, said that in an attempt to streamline and simplify formalities tourist visas will be issued within 10 days of application and will not be required for tourists traveling by cruise vessel and using Soviet Intourist services.

Under the Soviet Union's latest five-year plan, three new Intourist hotels with accommodations for about 40,000 persons will be built by 1980 as well as other hotels and hotel complexes in 27 cities including Moscow, Leningrad, the Black Sea coast, the Crimea and the Ukraine.

Reception Set For Art Show

An opening reception, to which the public is invited, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 1 for the Graduate Student Art Show. The show will be in the Wellington B. Gray Gallery of the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus.

Woman Can Outperform A Computer

By LEO LLOYD
 NEW YORK (UPI) — She can solve complicated multiplication problems in her head faster than a computer.

She can figure the fifth root of seven-digit numbers in seconds.

If you tell her the date and the year of any day in the past 200 years, she can tell you what day of the week it was.

Shakuntala Devi, a mathematical wizard from India performing on tour in the United States, challenges audiences to ask her complicated mathematical problems and dazzles them with her quick answers.

At an exhibition she gave at the United Nations, she showed what she could do. Difficult problems were written on a blackboard for her to see and answer.

"What is the third root of 2,992,209,121?" she was asked. "1,441," she answered quickly.

The third root of 19,683? "27", she replied.

She was asked if she could add all the numbers from one to 100. "5,050," she said after contemplating for a few seconds.

What is the third root of 38,950,081? "79."

The third root of 1,336,336? "34."

Devi gave all the responses within seconds after she saw the problems.

She amazed the crowd when someone asked her for the third root of 6,620,650,447 and she realized immediately that the questioner had made a mistake multiplying the root number. She then helped the questioner with multiplication.

Then she answered dates. What day of the week was Sept. 12, 1968? "Wednesday," she replied.

April 21, 1961? "Friday."

May 26, 1939? "Friday."

One man asked her what day May 10, 1940, was. She said Friday, but the man insisted it was Sunday. She was proven right.

Another kind of problem was written on the blackboard. 777 squared plus 1,111 squared equals X squared plus Y squared.

Within seconds she gave the correct answers. X is 1,355 and Y is 45.

Someone asked her a different kind of problem. If a man deposits $1 in the bank and doubles his deposit every day, what will he have deposited in the bank after 30 days? She thought for a few seconds and replied, "$2,147,483,647."

Ms. Devi cannot explain how she solves such problems.

"I have no idea," she says.

Neither can Prakash Ranadiva, a computer systems analyst who made up some of the questions. He notes that while "there are mathematical shortcuts," he prepared the problems so that the numbers "absolutely did not follow any pattern."

"The numbers which we had given her, I couldn't fit into any mathematical shortcuts," he said. "What she has is some phenomenon."

He marveled over the fact that in presenting the problem of finding the root of 2,992,209,121 "it took Mr. Cashton (an associate) longer to write that number on the board than it took for her to give the cube root of that number."

She will only answer such questions at her shows. "It's got to be written on the blackboard, there's got to be a certain atmosphere of people," she says.

Ms. Devi was born in India and says her parents noticed her math abilities at age 3. It surprised them because no one in her family had a mathematical background.

She has traveled throughout the world demonstrating her talents. She writes books about her mathematical experiences and other subjects.

She plans to stay on the mathematical merry-go-round to "bring happiness into the lives of people."

Exchange Visit To West Indies

ELIZABETH CITY — Frances D. Cooke, Administrative Legal Assistant to Elizabeth City State University Chancellor Marion D. Thorpe, is currently on an exchange visit to Barbados, West Indies.

As the Barbados exchange person, Judge Keith Simmons of the Magistrate's Court is visiting Elizabeth City State University. An advisor to the Prime Minister, he will address an assembly on Thursday, March 31, at 10 a.m., in Moore Hall Auditorium.
