

Carter Names Team To Combat Inflation

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After scrapping his plan to give Americans $50 tax rebates, President Carter today named a labor-business team to monitor the government's war against inflation.

Carter said that AFL-CIO President George Meany and General Electric Chairman Reginald Jones will head a new labor-management group to fight inflation.

"Our goal is to reduce the inflation rate by two per cent by the end of 1979, which is a very difficult task to undertake," Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference.

In announcing his long-awaited anti-inflation plan, Carter flatly ruled out any wage and price controls.

He said it is evident that inflationary pressures have been intensifying all year, with the average level of price increases running at an annual rate of nine per cent.

The President said he will deal with that "difficult and pernicious problem" without sacrificing economic expansion or jobs, and without resorting to compulsion or coercion.

Carter said Meany and Jones would work with other business and labor leaders, as well as government officials, to develop economic objectives for the nation, including goals for jobs and inflation.

"Most importantly, this joint effort must be voluntary and cooperative and not be based on coercive or self-defeating controls," Carter said.

He said Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal will head government representatives who will work with the panel.

There were few features in the anti-inflation program that had not been previously disclosed by the President himself and other administration spokesmen.

Carter also told the news conference that he hopes to meet with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in the United States later this year. "I would welcome a chance to meet with Secretary Brezhnev on a continuing basis, annually at least..." he said.

The President said he thinks the Soviet response to his initial strategic arms limitation proposals, which Moscow rejected, "has been predictable." He said he sees no reason "to change our proposals."

"I don't consider the SALT (strategic arms limitation) talks at this point to have reached an impasse," Carter said. He said there are continuing discussions between U.S. and Soviet representatives.

Carter also said that if Congress voted to substitute a permanent income tax cut for his discarded $50 rebate, "I would veto it" as inflationary and irresponsible. Carter said he doesn't think Congress will pass a tax cut.

Republicans in Congress have been pushing for a permanent tax cut as the alternative to the Carter rebate plan, which the President scrapped on Thursday.

Carter acknowledged that the energy program he will announce next Wednesday will itself drive up some prices. He said he will try to minimize that impact. Carter said energy conservation will serve to ease the effect on prices.

The President said he hopes the inflationary impact of the energy program will be less than one-half of one per cent as measured by the index of consumer prices.

On other topics, Carter said:

—The Central Intelligence Agency has just completed a survey of world energy supplies, and it shows that reserves are smaller than had been estimated before.

—He dropped the tax rebate not because it would have fueled inflation but because he concluded it was not needed. He said the economic upswing it was intended to produce "has simply already occurred and it's not necessary any more."

—The administration farm program provides for price supports much lower than many farmers wanted. "We've tried to give in the new farm bill a proposal to maintain farmers' income at a break-even point on individual crops," he said. Carter said that with adequate production and storage, "We can remove the violent fluctuation that has characterized food prices in the past." He also defended the administration's decision to increase milk price support levels, saying that was a special case in which there had to be action to help the farmer despite the impact on prices.

—He has made his decisions on the future of 30 dams and other water projects which the administration had marked for possible elimination from the budget. Carter said he will disclose his list early next week, and also will announce new and very strict criteria to be met before the government launches new projects.

VEPCO Discloses Big Rate Increase Will Be Requested

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Rate increases of more than 25 per cent for the Virginia and North Carolina municipalities and rural electric cooperatives to whom it sells power at wholesale for distribution will be sought by the Virginia Electric & Power Co. Vepco's senior vice president for commercial operations, William W. Berry, said Thursday the company will ask the Federal Power Commission to approve:

—A rate hike of $15.4 million, or 26.3 per cent, for the 19 electric co-ops it serves in the two states.

—An increase of $12.3 million, or 33.5 per cent, in the rates for 21 municipalities in the two states. The company plans to file for the new and higher rates on or after June 15, with a request that they be made effective 30 days later, Berry said. Vepco's 1.2 million retail customers in the two states will not be affected.

Vepco has written each co-op and municipality to be affected by the proposed rate boosts and asked for discussions in "the hope we might reach a mutually acceptable agreement in advance of filing" the applications with the FPC, Berry said.

The increases are designed to yield a 9.84 per cent rate of return from the utility's 40 wholesale customers in Virginia and North Carolina, he said.

Berry said Vepco now is receiving a rate of return of less than 7 per cent on wholesale sales, which represent 9 per cent of its revenues. The FPC has authorized a 9.02 per cent rate of return.

Since Vepco's last rate hike for wholesale customers in February 1975, "rapid inflation has resulted in increases in the cost of providing electric service," Berry said.

The North Carolina co-ops are Cape Hatteras Electric Membership Corp., Buxton; Halifax EMC, Enfield; Tideland EMC, Pantego; Albemarle EMC, Hertford; Edgecombe Martin EMC, Tarboro; and Roanoke EMC, Rich Square. Virginia rural cooperatives that would be affected are B-AR-C Electric Cooperative, Millboro; Community EC, Windsor; Mecklenburg EC, Chase City; Northern Piedmont EC, Culpeper; Prince William EC, Manassas; Southside EC, Crewe; Virginia EC, Bowling Green; Central Virginia EC, Lovington; Craig-Botetourt EC, New Castle; Northern Neck EC, Warsaw; Prince George EC, Waverly; Shenandoah EC, Dayton; and TriCounty EC, Leesburg.

The North Carolina co-ops are Cape Hatteras Electric Membership Corp., Buxton; Halifax EMC, Enfield; Tideland EMC, Pantego; Albemarle EMC, Hertford; Edgecombe Martin EMC, Tarboro; and Roanoke EMC, Rich Square.

Virginia municipalities that would be affected are Blackstone, Elkton, Harrisonburg, Manassas, Culpeper, Franklin, Iron Gate and Wakefield. The North Carolina municipalities that would be affected are Belhaven, Enfield, Greenville, Hertford, Scotland Neck, Washington, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Hamilton, Hobgood, Robersonville, Tarboro and Windsor.

Late? You're Not Alone

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers still struggling to meet tonight's midnight deadline for filing 1976 federal income tax returns may take some consolation in knowing they are not alone.

About 20 million couples and individuals are racing to meet the annual April 15 deadline, and post offices in some cities will be equipped for a rush of last-minute returns.

If the confusing and numerous changes in the 1976 Tax Reform Act have you stumped, there is still time to file for a 60-day extension, or let the IRS compute your tax.

Whatever strategy you choose must be accomplished by midnight, however, to avoid the possibility of a penalty.

To get an automatic extension to June 14, send in Form 4868. You must estimate how much you owe and include that, too. If the estimate is too high, you will get a refund when you file the completed form. If the estimate is too low, you will have to pay 7 per cent annual interest on the unpaid balance.

The IRS will figure out your taxes if you fill in the essential figures. Most people who earned $20,000 or less and take the standard deduction may use that option.

Letting the IRS compute the tax relieves you of having to calculate the standard deduction and the general tax credit, and may decrease errors, the IRS says.

IRS officials say it may take six weeks to get any refund. So far this year, the average refund check has been $448, or $31 more than last year.

If you are planning to ignore the filing deadline because you expect a refund, remember you may be penalized if an audit later shows you owe taxes.

Supreme Court Dismisses Drug Conviction Of Best

The North Carolina Supreme Court overturned the conviction of Dr. Andrew Best on drug law violation charges Wednesday, ordering charges against the physician dismissed.

Best, a member of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina

University and the recipient of many public service awards in past years, was charged with the sale and delivery of prescription drugs "not within the routine course of his professional practice" to State Bureau of Investigation undercover investigators two years ago.

He was convicted in Pitt County Superior Court on two counts in November, 1975. The North Carolina Court of Appeals upheld the conviction in November, 1976.

Dr. Best this morning said, "this is a great day for the people of North Carolina... a great day for every doctor, because his freedom to practice medicine was involved... a great day for me as an individual."

According to Best, "It's very encouraging to know that the system has worked and I have been vindicated, with the position we have taken all the while having been sustained."

"I am not bitter," Best said, "about the overall pressure I have suffered or the hours of anguish I have suffered. I am glad the truth has finally come out and hopefully all of us will be better and stronger for having lived through this experience."

Best emphasized that he feels there was no racial motivation involved in the charges.

In a split decision, the Court of Appeals' majority opinion said "a practitioner who distributes drugs other than within the normal course of professional practice has no more exemption from the law than does an illicit street vendor."

An SBI agent testified that she visited Dr. Best's office posing as a waitress and prostitute and asked for something to help her stay awake. She said the physician gave her a prescription for a stimulant, Ritalin.

She said she returned to the office on two other occasions and had the prescription refilled without any examination.

It was on the charges based on refilling the prescription that Best was convicted.

The dissenting opinion of the Appeals Court said that since the agent did not complain of any ill side effects on her return visits to the physician's office, that Best "could reasonably assume without further examination that the prescribed drug had been effective...and that refilling the prescription was justifiable..."

The Supreme Court this week said the state law that prohibits the "sale and delivery" of drugs did not apply to doctors writing prescriptions.

Associate Justice Frank Huskins wrote in the court opinion that if anything, Best may have violated a law that prohibits physicians from prescribing drugs "outside the normal course of professional practice...and not for a legitimate medical purpose."

The court opinion said the General Assembly has made clear its intent to treat doctors and lay persons differently in the regulation of drugs. While the law does not give physicians a "free rein" it protects them from prosecution so long as they comply with accepted medical practices.

The Supreme Court decision bans further prosecution of the physician on the 1975 charges.

Neither District Attorney Eli Bloom, nor Best's defense lawyers would comment this morning on the Supreme Court ruling.

HOTLINE gets things done for you. Call 752-1336, and tell your problem or sound-off, or mail it to HOTLINE, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, NC, 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE APPEALS

CHECKING ON LIVE-ALONES

I understand that the Farmville Police Department is soon going to start a program to have any person living alone who wishes to be checked on daily call the department before nine o'clock each day. If not, an officer will be assigned to check on him or her. This will be especially beneficial, I feel, to the many elderly people in Farmville. I think perhaps Hotline could help with an appeal for persons wishing this service to contact the police department. Mrs. S. F.

The program is already underway, begun Saturday, Apr. 9, according to Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper. Anyone living in the Farmville town limits is welcome to participate, he said. About 12 persons, are taking part so far, he said.

The Police Department would like to hear from anyone living alone who would like to be checked on in the event that he or she does not call the Department any particular morning. The name, address and phone number of a close relative is kept by the department to contact in case of emergency.

The police department phone number is 753-4111.

SEEKING WITNESSES

Joe Brown Jr., who was involved in a two-car collision at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets (the Hardees, McDonalds, Crow's Nest corner) here Thursday, has asked Hotline to appeal for witnesses to the accident.

The wreck occurred about 1 p. m. He said he knew there were a number of people who saw it, but he was unable to talk to any of them at the time. He may be called at work, 758-5140 during the day or at home in Arapahoe, collect, 249-0961 in the evenings.

Avers Russians Bombed Zambia

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — President Mobutu Sese Seko claims the Russians and not his air force bombed a Protestant mission hospital and two villages in neighboring Zambia.

There was also an unconfirmed report of heavy fighting after a lull of nearly two weeks in the vest-pocket war in southern Zaire.

"The Russians themselves bombarded the Zambian villages to place us in difficulty with our Zambian friends in the hopes of deflecting the attention of world opinion from their responsibility in the affair of Shaba," said Zaire's president in a statement issued Thursday.

There was no comment from the Soviet Union. But a spokesman for the Katangan rebels in Shaba province claimed 50 French pilots were flying the Mirage fighter-bombers Mobutu bought from France.

Earlier in the month-old war Mobutu accused the Soviets, the Cubans and the Marxist regime in Angola of supporting the exiles who crossed into their mineral-rich native province — known as Katanga when Zaire was the Congo — on March 8 from Angola. All three denied the charge.

The Zambian government reported earlier this week that on Saturday and Monday Zairean planes bombed two villages and the Kalene Hill mission in the northwest corner of Zambia adjacent to the area now under control of the Katangan rebels. Zambia said there were some casualties and damage, and Mobutu sent a delegation to Lusaka, the Zambian capital, to investigate.

The claim that French pilots were flying for Mobutu was

Meeting Said 'Constructive'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina President William C. Friday, returning from a meeting with civil rights authorities in Washington, said Thursday it had been a "constructive" session.

Friday and higher education officials from five other southern states met with Peter Libassi, general counsel to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to discuss desegregation guidelines.

The guidelines, now being drafted by HEW, were required by an April 1 order of U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt, who ruled the 16-campus University of North Carolina system had not devised a plan to meet requirements of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Friday sharply criticized Pratt's ruling last week and said he would not attend Thursday's meeting unless HEW told him in writing the reason for the session.

Upon returning, however, Friday said the UNC system had been given its best opportunity ever to present its views on desegregation.

Libassi and other HEW officials did not comment on North Carolina's position, Friday said, but they "took notes and said they understood."

Friday said he expected another meeting between HEW and higher education officials within the next few weeks.

Also attending Thursday's meeting were officials from public higher education systems in Florida, Georgia, Oklahoma, Virginia and Arkansas.

Local Tax Offices Will Be Closing At Regular Time Today

Tax payers have until midnight tonight to file their State and Federal income tax returns, or face a five per cent per month penalty, plus interest charges.

However, if individuals need help from federal or state tax offices in Greenville, the "deadline" for federal assistance is 4:45 p.m. today, while the North Carolina Department of Revenue office remains open until 5 p.m.

Both state and federal tax offices in Greenville said their offices will close at the normal time today, stressing that there will be no extended hours for taxpayer assistance.

U. S. Postal Service spokesmen said, however, that postal employees will be on hand to postmark tax returns delivered to the main post office on Second Street by the midnight deadline, as a special service. They emphasized, however, that the returns should be delivered to the main post office by the midnight deadline.

Individuals filing their state and federal returns after the deadline will be subject to a five per cent per month penalty. In addition, the state charges a one per cent per month interest fee, while the federal interest charge averages nine per cent per annum.

Both state and federal tax offices reported they were busy this morning helping last minute filers.

Succession Bill Backers In House Expect Victory

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House supporters of a constitutional amendment allowing North Carolina governors to seek a second consecutive term say they have more than enough votes for passage, following Senate approval Thursday.

Rep. Tom Gilmore, primary sponsor of the succession legislation in the House, said after the Senate's action that he had commitments from 78 representatives to vote for the measure.

Being a constitutional amendment, the measure needs approval by three-fifths of the House before it can be put to a statewide vote.

The Senate approved the measure 45-5 after opponents ended efforts to delay action. Approval was never really in doubt, since 37 senators co-sponsored the legislation, which needed 30 votes for passage.

But there was doubt whether opponents would try for further delay, such as they did Wednesday when Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green ordered the bill sent to the Appropriations Committee for review.

The amendment is one of Gov. Jim Hunt's major proposals and Green's action Wednesday threw him in direct opposition to the governor, a position he has found himself in on several occasions recently.

The amendment would allow Hunt and later governors to seek a second consecutive four-year term and would allow lieutenant governors to do the same. Gilmore said North Carolina is one of only seven states banning consecutive terms.

"This issue has been debated for 40 or 50 years, but this is the first time it ever has come out of one chamber of the General Assembly," said Gilmore. "We're real pleased with the support for it in the Senate, and I would assume those who oppose it would have a hard time gathering support in the House."

Supporters overcame Green on Wednesday by calling a special appropriations meeting immediately after the session and giving the measure a favorable report with an amendment to fund the election. Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, a leading opponent of succession, argued that the measure might set up a special election and require an appropriation.

The bill calls for the referendum at the next statewide general election. Some legislators said that would likely put the vote this fall, since bond issues for roads and clean water are expected to be set then.

Allsbrook tried to have the Senate amend the bill to set the vote for November, 1978, but that was defeated 37-13. The Senate approved the measure on a second reading 44-6 and then took the final vote.

Voting no on the final reading were three Republican senators, Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, Donald Kincaid R-Caldwell and Robert Somers, R-Rowan, and two Democrats, Allsbrook and Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, switched his no vote to yes on the final reading. "I've been for it all along. I was just against Jimmy Hunt or Jimmy Green succeeding themselves," Lawing said. "But I didn't see any point in being a martyr."

Rules Contempt By School Bd.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education has been found in contempt of court by violating the state's open-meeting law, but the judge who made the ruling refused to impose criminal sentences because the state law is "too vague to subject anybody to criminal penalty."

Mecklenburg County Superior Court Judge Frank Snepp handed down the ruling Wednesday in an action against the board by a local group of newspaper and broadcast newsmen.

The meetings which led to Snepp's ruling Wednesday occurred in 1975 and 1976. They included a closed session on March 12, 1976, to discuss a trip two board members took at the expense of a textbook publisher and how the board should handle publicity about the matter; a meeting April 20, 1976, in which then Supt. Rolland Jones' contract was renewed; and a session April 27, 1976, during which the board adopted Jones' recommendation for filling positions in his reorganization plan.

State law requires government boards to meet in public except when considering real estate, personnel or legal matters. To meet in private on those issues, the board must first vote to go into closed session.

Snepp was scheduled today to hear a similar complaint against the school board which the journalists' group brought last month. That complaint alleges the board met secretly to interview candidates for school superintendent and in doing so, violated the law and a 1973 court order against illegally closed meetings.

Snepp had previously asked the school board and the journalists' group to draw up guidelines to advise both groups on what is permitted under Snepp's 1973 court order. The guidelines were submitted to Snepp and he included them in his ruling Wednesday.

N.C. Ports Unaffected

By The Associated Press
Because state ports in Morehead City and Wilmington handle little containerized cargo, the International Longshoremen's Association strike will have little impact in North Carolina, a port official said Thursday.

The walkout called Thursday at ports from Maine to Texas was aimed at three American shipping companies and four foreign lines, officials said.

The strike is over handling of containerized cargo and local units are honoring the walkout, but the Wilmington port usually handles only one such ship a week, said Bill Stover, communications officer for the State Ports Authority in Wilmington.

"Basically, we're not affected at all because only one line that was targeted for the strike docks here and a ship from that company due here late Wednesday stayed in New Jersey," Stover said.

"If the ship had come, it would have just sat there," he said. "The men wouldn't have unloaded it."

ICC Rumbles Over Operation Of A One-Man Bus Business

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Scotty Milloy is the ultimate small businessman. He owns a bus — one bus — and he books charters on it, drives it, and fixes it. He can't understand why some government bureaucrats won't let him take Florida schoolchildren to visit the national capital.

Interstate Commerce Commission officials say his business might someday threaten the bank accounts of the giants, Greyhound and Continental Trailways, which have a total of 4,570 buses.

That doesn't make much sense to the 63-year-old Scotsman as he stacks up his one-man operation, Highland Tours Inc., against their fleets and offices across the country.

"I don't know how I can be a thorn in their side. I only have one coach," he exclaimed in a telephone interview from Jacksonville, Fla.

Milloy got some powerful support Thursday when the Justice Department took up his fight against the commission, which regulates interstate bus travel.

"It is absurd to conclude that Highland could divert substantial revenues from Greyhound or Trailways," department antitrust lawyers told the commission.

A native of Scotland, Milloy operated a charter tour service in the British Isles before immigrating to the United States in 1950 because he thought the weather in this country would be better for his health.

He opened the tour business in Jacksonville with the idea of taking students on trips to Washington and on tours of the 13 original states. Milloy said he thought it would help American youngsters learn the history of their country.

"This is an educational must for children," remarked Milloy, who purchased his nine-year-old bus from Greyhound for $27,000.

Though he won approval from Florida officials to run tours within the state, he had to ask permission from the ICC to do business outside of Florida. That was three years ago.

Greyhound and Continental Trailways protested his application, and last September an ICC administrative judge agreed with the big companies.

If the commission allowed Milloy to run his bus north, Milloy ultimately "could gear up to handle much more business," wrote Judge Isabelle R. Cappello. She said this might cause economic harm to the big bus companies and that, in turn, might "have some adverse effects upon the public interest."

She also decided the Jacksonville community had no real need for Milloy's tours.

The law allows bus companies to go into the interstate charter business if they can prove that the service is needed and that it would not threaten the existence of existing bus companies.

Justice Department lawyers argued that many other companies have been allowed to offer charter tours and that the ICC judge interpreted the law too strictly.

"I don't see how the heck they can sit up there in Washington and decide what is good for Jacksonville," Milloy declared.

Cruelty Charges Filed In Starving Of Cattle

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — The caretaker of a 1,200-acre farm was to go on trial here Friday on charges of cruelty to animals — starving over 100 head of cattle.

"There's been a lot of talk around here," Lt. Joe Quinn of the Rutherford County Sheriff's Department said Thursday. "Some of the folks are pretty well upset about this."

Kenneth Edward Ellis, 34, was arrested by Quinn on March 23 and charged with cruelty to animals and improper disposition of domestic animals.

The charges were filed after Quinn went to the farm, which straddles the South Carolina border 15 miles south of this western North Carolina town. Neighbors on nearby farms had complained of foul smells in the area and when Quinn investigated, he found "a terrible thing."

"There were 25 or 30 starved cattle on the pasture land. Some had been dead for months and they'd decayed to skeletons," he said. "We found some that were alive, but we had to destroy some because of malnutrition."

To Quinn's surprise, he found a barn full of hay, and more. "There were about 80 cattle buried in shallow graves on the farm. Parts of them were sticking above the ground," he said.

Neighbors estimated that the herd, which belonged to three Florida men who also own the farm, originally was about 320 head. Quinn found nearly a third of them dead.

"I don't know what to make of it. I've never seen anything like it," he said.

He questioned Ellis, who lives of part of the farm just inside the South Carolina line, and was told the animals had "some sort of disease."

Eddie Burgess, Rutherford County animal control officer, investigated. "We looked for about 15 different kinds of diseases. We didn't find any," he said.

The sheriff's department issued warrants charging Ellis with starving the animals and he was released on $2,000 bond.

Ellis, who apparently worked the farm alone, could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Quinn said the owners are from the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., area and identified one as Sam Leder, a veterinarian.

Leder also was unavailable for comment Thursday, but Quinn said he and his co-owners had been contacted.

"So far, none of them have come up here," he said.

High Price For Old Farmhouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie tycoon Joseph E. Levine says his $750,000 asking price for the weathered Maine farmhouse made famous by Andrew Wyeth's painting, "Christina's World," is not excessive.

"It's not much more than I've spent," he said. "I took that place apart board by board to restore it and put it back board by board."

A quarter-million dollars is an average price for a top quality work by the American master. However, New York's Museum of Modern Art, which owns "Christina's World," declined to say at how much that painting was appraised for insurance purposes.

The 16-room house, which was put up for sale on Thursday, is set on 26 acres of farmland on the St. George River in the small town of Cushing, Maine.

Levine, who owns what is considered the world's finest Wyeth collection, had bought the house to turn it into a museum and home for his collection.

Private Property Week Proclaimed

With praise for the pride that Greenville citizens take in their community demonstrated by the care they give their homes and property, Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed April 17-23 as Private Property Week.

In his proclamation, Cox saluted members of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors and commended them for their diligence "to protect every citizen's right to private property ownership."

The mayor described the Realtors as "among the chief architects of the economic and civic growth" of Greenville.

He said the membership of the board had "earned the trust and gratitude of our people by the degree of their social responsibility, fidelity to high standards of professionalism, and uncompromising, voluntary allegiance to a rigid Code of Ethics."

Cox said the organization has contributed in many ways to the community's economy. He singled out board membership efforts in finding "and offering secure investment opportunities" and in "encouraging and promoting private home ownership."

He urged area residents to join with the local organization, the state association and the more than 500,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates across the nation in the observance of Private Property Week.

Miss Robinett Weds On Sunday How To Tell Quacks From Counselors

MRS. MICHAEL ALLEN WROUGHT

FARMVILLE — Miss June Christy Robinett became the bride of Michael Allen Wrought Sunday in a double ring ceremony performed in the First Baptist Church here. The 3:30 p.m. ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ronald Lee Davis.

The church was decorated with four candelabra holding white cathedral tapers. The choir loft was graced with arrangements of pink and white dogwood and palms. A program of nuptial music was presented by Ronnie Hobgood of Farmville, organist. Miss Sandy Sikes of High Point sang "The Wedding Song." Mrs. Donald Saunders of Greensboro sang "In This Quiet Hour" and "Lord Give Them This Day," as the couple knelt for the benediction.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wrought of Farmville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Bentley of Brookhaven, Pa. She wore a formal gown styled with a self-train, fitted bodice with high fitted lace midriff and V-neckline, accented with self-pleated ruffles. The full length sleeves ended in gathered lace ruffles.

Her Juliet cap featured an illusion veil and lace. Her only jewelry was a gold cross, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a classic cascade of mixed spring flowers accented with pastel ribbon streamers. The bride's gown was made by Mrs. W. E. Fulford Sr.

Miss Jane Warhola of Brookhaven, Pa., was maid of honor. She wore a formal peach crepe gown. Bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Bentley and Miss Kim Bentley of Brookhaven, Pa., sisters of the bride, and Miss Pat Moore of Farmville, cousin of the bride. They wore formal gowns of green, blue and yellow. They carried nosegays of spring flowers and wore yellow daisies in their hair.

Candis Butler of Summerville, S. C., was flower girl for her cousin. She wore a formal gown of ivory crepe with daisies in her hair. She carried a basket filled with spring flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen were brother of the bridegroom, David Wrought of Farmville, Bobby Allen of Farmville, and Dexter Crawley of Kinston.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of light blue crepe fashioned with a V-neck and sheer sleeves. The bodice was accented with seed pearls. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of green knit with sheer sleeves. Both wore corsages of white daisies.

Mrs. Effie Moore of Farmville, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. J. H. Blanton of Wallace, and Mrs. W. D. Wrought of Aurora, Ill., grandmothers of the bridegroom, wore white carnation corsages.

For a wedding trip to Garden City, S. C., the bride changed into a white pants suit. The couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Sun Valley High School and the bridegroom attended Farmville Central High School. Both are employed at Collins and Alkman, Farmville.

Immediately following the ceremony, aunts and uncles of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moore.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Vassar Fields and Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Davis.

The refreshment table was covered with a linen and lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers flanked by three branched candelabra holding lighted yellow tapers. After the couple had cut the first slice of the wedding cake, it was served by Mrs. Pittman and Mrs. Bobby Moore. Mrs. Brock poured punch. Mrs. Herbert Moore, Kathy Brock, Mrs. Eddie Tew and Mrs. T. F. Styers assisted in serving.

Grandmothers of the couple presided at the guest register table which was highlighted by a three branch candelabra with yellow tapers and a ceramic bride doll.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Moore.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Price greeted members of the wedding party, friends and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Lucille Quinn served appetizers. The head table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with seasonal flowers.

DEAR ABBY: I have noticed that you frequently advise your readers to see a marriage counselor. A married friend of mine once went to a marriage counselor she found through an ad in the paper, and you wouldn't believe some of the suggestions he made to her. He told her to get herself a "boyfriend"—and the younger, the better. He also encouraged her to join a nudist colony.

He said HE was a member, and he even showed her one of the "camp" magazines. She paid him for a year's "counseling" in advance, and after five weeks she went to his office for an appointment and found that he had moved and left no forwarding address.

I am not saying all marriage counselors are like this one, but how is a person supposed to know the honest ones from the crooks? They all call themselves "Doctor" and their walls are covered with diplomas that look "real" to the average person.

MRS. H.W.S.

DEAR MRS. H.W.S.: Yours is an excellent question. If you are uncertain about the qualifications of those who advertise themselves as "marriage counselors," ask your family doctor, clergyman or the Better Business Bureau to recommend one. If there is a university in (or near) your town, write to the head of the psychology department for a recommendation.

If the above sources are unavailable to you write to The Auxiliary tables were covered with Damask cloths and featured daisies interspersed with greenery. Cake was served by Mrs. Joyce Hamm.

The bride-elect was dressed in an ivory formal with capelet of brown and beige with a corsage of yellow mums.

The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from Paul's wife whose husband had the annoying habit of salting his food before tasting it reminds me of a supposedly true story.

A personnel director who was responsible for hiring executives would always invite the job applicant out for lunch as part of the interview. If he salted his food before tasting it, he deduced that he made decisions without first investigating.

Interesting?

Mrs. Lang Named 1977 Pitt RIHA Chairman

MANTEO — Mrs. Catherine G. Lang has been named Pitt County Chairman for the 1977 membership campaign of the Roanoke Island Historical Association (RIHA).

Mrs. Lang's appointment was announced by Mrs. Robert B. Morgan, who is general membership chairman for the annual fund-raising drive for the 1977 RIHA, producers of Paul Green's drama "The Lost Colony."

Mrs. Lang, the wife of the late John A. Lang Jr., is the mother of four children. She is a graduate of Greensboro College and is a member of the St. James United Methodist Church, where she is a member of the church's administrative board and the Council on Ministries.

A member of the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club and the East Carolina Art Society, she plays violin in the ECU Symphony Orchestra.

Memberships in the RIHA include the following: regular, $5; sustaining, $10; sponsoring, $25, and patron, $50. These entitle the 1977 member to one reserved seat ticket for each $5 value of the membership and a copy of The Lost Colony 1977 souvenir program upon request. Life memberships are available at $100 with each life member receiving a lifetime pass to the production. Donor members at $250 receive two lifetime passes. Benefactor members at $500 receive two lifetime passes and their names are inscribed on the Benefactor's Panel in The Lost Colony Building at Fort Raleigh.

Members are invited to attend the annual luncheon and RIHA meeting held each year as part of North Carolina Culture Week activities.

"The Lost Colony" opens its 1977 season on Friday, June 17.

Credit Conference Opens Saturday In Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. — Dixie Council Credit Women-International, Associated Credit Bureaus, International Consumer Credit Association-III-IV, and Dixie Health Professions will hold their 55th Southern Consumer Credit Conference at the Atlanta Hilton Hotel Saturday through Wednesday.

The theme for the conference is "The Challenge of Change." This will be the 39th annual conference of Dixie Council Credit Women-International, which is composed of over 90 clubs throughout eight southeastern states.

Three members of Greenville CW-I will be attending the conference which will begin with an education workshop Saturday and end with a banquet and dance Tuesday.

Local members attending are Carol Hardee, past president, North Carolina CW-I, first vice president of the Greenville club, and official club delegate to the conference, Angelene Venter, member of ICCA and third vice president, North Carolina CW-I, and Clara Seago, an honorary member of the Greenville club. Mrs. Hardee is a member of ICCA, a past director of Dixie Council CW-I, and is currently serving as chairman of the District Scrapbook Committee.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

A friend of ours introduced us to a new way of preparing carrots that we want to share with you because it went over big at our house. It's a casserole dish that is a fine accompaniment for meat, poultry or fish.

It's delectable, too, as part of an all-vegetable main course. In the '20s and '30s such a main course was known by the unprepossessing name of "vegetable plate." No wonder it faded away! Now that it's coming back into fashion isn't it time we gave the good ole vegetable plate a new name? Any suggestions?

CARROT CASSEROLE
 2 pounds carrots
 1/4 cup butter or margarine
 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
 1-3rd cup finely chopped green pepper
 2 tablespoons sugar
 2 tablespoons flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 cup milk
 Several sprigs parsley minus stems, minced
 1 egg
 Cut tops (and root ends if any) from carrots; scrub thoroughly in cold water; do not pare; steam until tender. Puree through a food mill and measure 3 cups to use in this recipe; refrigerate any extra puree to use in some other dish. In a medium saucepan over low heat melt the butter; add the onion and green pepper and cook gently, stirring often, until tender but not brown. Stir in sugar, flour and salt. Gradually stir in milk; cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Off heat, stir in the carrot puree and the parsley; vigorously stir in the unbeaten egg to blend. Turn into a 1 1/2-quart shallow baking dish (about 10 by 6 by 1 3/4 inches). Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, uncovered, for about 1 hour. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Good Intentions Aren't Enough

State Sen. I. Beverley Lake, Jr. of Wake County says he is preparing a bill which would allow local governments and citizens to bring civil suits to declare adult book stores public nuisances. It will be one of several bills in the Legislature designed to curb pornography. There is some pretty bad stuff peddled out of the so-called adult book stores. . . but we don't believe Sen. Lake or anyone else can draw up a law such as he is talking about which can't be used against almost any establishment selling any reading material. The proprietor of a conventional news stand might win his case, but not before he had been put to legal expenses which could put him out of business. It all comes down to an old question. There are plenty of individuals who are more than willing to protect us from pornography, but who is to protect our presumably free society from the censors?

States Should Share Escalating Tax

Apparently a key part of the Carter energy conservation plan will be an additional federal tax on gasoline. The Wall Street Journal reported that the initial additional tax recommended would be five cents per gallon at the pump and several dollars per barrel on domestic oil.

This tax could escalate and might possibly be returned to the taxpayers in the form of tax relief in other areas. If the tax is instituted, a part of the funds should be returned to the states, many of which are hard pressed to carry on even adequate highway maintenance because of escalating costs.

State Set For Full Study

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — Status offenders — children in training schools for reasons other than criminal acts — will stay there another year or two, the North Carolina General Assembly has determined. But in making that decision, lawmakers have set the stage for the full-scale probe of the state's juvenile system and subsequent report calling for complete revision. The immediate result will be an increase in reformatory population across the state as local communities are not required to provide alternatives to the training schools. The long-term result will be appointment by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. of a study commission which will be given the task of reporting back in time for action in the 1979 General Assembly. No Deadline This summer (July 1, 1977) was supposed to have been the deadline for community alternatives for non-criminal youngsters. The state put up $250,000 for planning purposes in local efforts to come up with programs. That money didn't go far; only 31 counties were able to get actively involved. Almost all the counties (97 of the 100) expressed willingness and intention to come up with alternative treatment programs. Several moved ahead on their own, developing plans and actually putting into operation some residential centers, rehabilitation and counseling facilities, and programs pulling together the various existing services which could be used to work with youthful offenders. But the lack of money — from both state and federal sources — proved a stumbling block which ultimately caused serious delay in most sections of the state, and meant the local governments could not in reality create the new programs necessary. The state government never came up with anything near the dollars which local officials felt necessary. Federal funds which many hoped would come from the Law Enforcement Assistance Act channelled through the Governor's Law and Order Commission were effectively blocked by three members of that commission under the administration of former Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr.

Opposition Former Corrections Secretary David L. Jones opposed applications for local grants because he remained rankled at transfer of the Youth Training Division from his agency to Human Resources. Courts Administrator Bert L. Montague opposed local programs because they would be operated by an agency other than his own, and he insisted that the children were under court jurisdiction. Some legislators and local officials oppose the change because of the time pressure, and absence of funds. A legislative commission is recommending some $3 million for funding the programs, and continued legislative pressure to close some training schools and push local communities to create at-home treatment. The General Assembly appears willing at this time simply to let the whole matter remain up in the air for two years — postponing the deadline and leaving things alone until the commission which Gov. Hunt plans to appoint can report back. Hunt, in discussing that study project, says he wants it to look at a thorough restructuring of the juvenile system, with rehabilitation the central theme.

Billy Moves To Suburbs

By ART BUCHWALD WASHINGTON — The news that Billy Carter has decided to leave Plains, Ga., and move to the suburbs was greeted with despair by the town fathers of this thriving metropolis. The reason Billy said he was getting out of Plains was that it was too noisy and there were too many people around — the same reason that New Yorkers, Philadelphians and Detroiters have given for moving to the suburbs. Plains, Ga., has a population of 683 people. When Billy moves out that will leave Plains with 676 citizens (Billy has a wife and six children), and Plains is worried that it will have to raise the tax rate of the people who are left to compensate for Billy's departure. One worried townsman told me, "This is a blow to downtown Plains. When you have an exodus the size of Billy Carter's family it affects everything in town. We could lose federal funding, the quality of our schools could deteriorate, and it will mean a serious cutback in our services. It's pretty sad when people work in Plains and then go home to the suburbs at night and leave the town to wither and die." "Why don't you institute a commuter's tax?" I suggested. "Make people who live in the suburbs pay for the services that Plains provides." "We're thinking of doing that," the townsman told me. "But Billy Carter has a lot of political clout in Washington. His nephew works in the White House, and he could lean on him to keep us from putting in a commuter's tax. It's very serious because if other Plains people move out of town we may have to default on our bonds." The townsman said, "I can't understand why Billy would move to the suburbs when Plains has so much culture to offer a person. We have a restaurant, two boarding houses, a gas station and a general store. They don't call Plains the Paris of the South for nothing!" "I'll bet Billy will have second thoughts when he has to commute to Plains from the suburbs every morning and every night during rush hour," I said. "The cars will be bumper to bumper." "Suburbanites don't think of that," the townsman said. "They have a fantasy that once they get out of the big city life will be all beer and honey. But they take their problems with them. They think they can avoid crime by moving out of Plains but they find it follows them. They believe their kids won't be touched by drugs and booze, but they find just as much drugs and booze in the suburbs as they do in Plains. The advantage of living in a metropolis like Plains is that it toughens you to life's realities. You become street-wise and you're not wrapped in a false cocoon." "Are the town fathers doing anything to stop the exodus?" "Yes. New York has a 'Big Apple' program to keep the middle class from leaving the city. We're instituting a 'Big Peanut' campaign. "Our slogan is 'Come back to the Big Peanut. Anyone who doesn't live in Plains, Ga., doesn't know what living is.' We're also hoping to get a federal grant to pave our streets. We want to prove that Plains is a viable, healthy place to raise a family. We also hope to get urban renewal funds so that people can get housing at a price they can afford. We are not

Other Editors Say Slows Governor

(Chapel Hill Newspaper) The power struggle between Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green continues, and thus far the Lt. Gov. seems to be winning most of the battles. A bill was introduced in the House yesterday by Rep. Mary Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, that would automatically make the lieutenant governor chairman of the state Board of Education. Mrs. Nesbitt states that she has not discussed the proposition with Green, but that it would be better for the lieutenant governor to hold the job because he is a full time state official who is always accessible to the public. What the bill really does is place North Carolina back where it was 20 years ago. When Luther Hodges became governor after the sudden death of Gov. William Umstead, it was felt that education and politics did not make a good mix, and that the chairman should be appointed by the governor. There is a much better chance to have a good chairman if the governor makes the appointment instead of the job automatically going to the lieutenant governor. A person can be a good lieutenant governor, and still not have the background to be chairman of the State Board of Education. It was obvious last week that such a bill would be introduced sooner or later. Gov. Hunt named his choice to become chairman of the Board. Speculation became abundant that Green wanted the job and would like to keep it over the next three years. If Hunt expects to carry out his campaign promises he might slow down just a little and mend some of his fences. Right now Jimmy Green is eating him alive, and the in-fighting keeps legislative action in Raleigh moving at a slow pace.

40 Years Ago Today April 15, 1937 European nations today acted to enforce a "no arms, no men" ban in the Spanish civil war. The non-intervention subcommittee in London ordered a land and sea patrol of Spain's frontiers put in operation at midnight next Monday. Warships of participating nations in the "hands off Spain" agreement will watch the coasts to prevent landing of arms and men for either side in the Spanish conflict. Frontier agents will keep a watch by land. Youths have taken the town today, 3,000 strong, as they joined in the celebration of the second E.C.T.C. High School Day. The day's events featured an address by President Meadows, a Glee Club concert, a barbecue picnic, a movie, a dance and a baseball game between the Pirates and the Duke B team. —Barbara Mathews

Right-To-Work Is Argued

By DAVID R. NELSEN Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to modify the state's right-to-work law is considered virtually certain of defeat in the legislature. The measure was argued in a public hearing Thursday before the House Manufacturing and Labor Committee and the panel's chairman, Rep. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, predicted it would get only two or three favorable votes. Sponsored by Rep. Thomas Sawyer, D-Guilford, the bill would allow an "agency shop" provision in labor contracts. An agency shop requires workers to pay union fees, though not everyone must be a union member as would be the case in a "union shop." Now, such contracts are banned by state law and workers in jobs covered by a union contract do not have to join or pay union dues. Federal law requires the union to represent non-union workers in disputes with management if such a worker requests it. Union spokesmen argued that the law is unfair and management spokesmen argued that requiring workers to pay union fees would amount to coercion. "Most North Carolinians resent free riders in the work place as well as in general society," said Wilbur Hobby, president of the North Carolina State AFL-CIO. "The so-called right-to-work law gives no one the right to a job and no unemployed person will find work because of this law. What it plainly does is to keep wages low by weakening trade unions," he said. Hobby was the chief labor spokesman during a public

Small Business Is Encouraged

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — A three-hour White House meeting with top officials of the Carter administration has left some small-business leaders more encouraged about their role in the economy than in many years. The March 29 meeting was attended for a time by President Carter and later by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, along with many top White House, department and agency personnel, and by members of various business associations. "Potentially it was the most significant meeting we ever had with a president," said Milton Stewart, president of the National Small Business Association. The talks covered a vast range of issues, including the frustrating paperwork load that some businessmen claim is almost destroying their efforts, and the inability of small business to obtain what it considers to be a fair percentage of federal procurements. The business leaders said they were especially encouraged by the promise of continued access to White House officials, perhaps on a regular monthly basis, rather than because of any specific promises. Said one: "Suddenly we've got entree; people are willing to listen to us. Never has there been a time when a president would recognize small business as a national force." Herbert Liebenson, a legislative officer with the National Small Business Association, commented afterward that "Now we have a counterforce to the Business Roundtable," an organization of chief executives of the nation's very largest companies. Small business has for years attempted to counter what it claims is a preponderance of power wielded by big government, big business and big labor, none of which it says speaks for the small-business man. Stewart called on the President to expand small business's share of federal procurements by $9 billion to $10 billion a year, giving small business a 35 per cent share as against 24 per cent now. He also proposed that small business's share of federal research and development expenditures be increased from what he said was a "scandalous" 3.5 per cent to 10 per cent or more. And he suggested also that business be relieved of the myriad informational forms it must provide the govern-

Strength For Today

"LEST WE FORGET" Rudyard Kipling, the great English poet, by a narrow margin missed being nominated poet laureate of England. Kipling was requested to write a poem for Queen Victoria's Jubilee. He did so and called it "Recessional." In it he summoned the English nation not to forget its spiritual values. The court was offended because the poem made no reference to the Queen. So when the poet laureate was appointed, Kipling was passed over and a second rate poet was chosen instead. The Recessional is a great poem because it proclaims that nations and civilizations disintegrate when the character of their people is corrupted. Across the pages of history is written the dismal story of how almost every generation has crucified, hanged, beheaded, burned, or in some other way persecuted its deliverers. "Lest we forget!" This is a plain and mighty warning written on the wall. by Elisha Douglass

Longshoremen Reject Shippers' Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike by longshoremen in ports from Maine to Texas entered its second day with dock workers rejecting an offer from seven shipping companies.

Details of the offer were not released but a longshoremen's source here called the proposal "completely unsatisfactory."

The workers, who belong to the 35,000-member International Longshoremen's Association, struck at 12:01 a.m. Thursday because of a contractual dispute over wages and diminishing job security because of "containerization" of cargo.

One of their chief complaints concerns a "make-work" provision in their contract with the shippers which the National Labor Relations Board struck down as illegal. The clause permitted longshoremen to open cargo containers, empty them and then reload the containers before they were transported.

Hardest hit by the strike has been the New York-New Jersey area where some 5,000 dock workers left six ships owned by the seven struck lines stranded with an estimated 75,000 tons of cargo and an undetermined amount of mail.

"Nothing's being loaded on and nothing's coming off," said an official of Sea-Land Inc., one of the seven companies being struck.

The other six companies are Seatrain Shipping, Dart Containerline Co., Bolt-Atlantic Container Line, Hapag-Lloyd Line, United States Lines, and the Russian-owned Baltic Lines.

Thomas "Teddy" Gleason, a reed to continue unloading perishable cargo and passenger ships, so there has been only minor public impact so far.

In Savannah, Ga., about 800 longshoremen and nearly 100 clerks and checkers awaited word from New York headquarters on how they were supposed to behave since no ships from the affected lines came into the port Thursday.

In fact, union officials in many other ports reported no walkouts because vessels belonging to the struck companies were still at sea.

In Galveston, Tex., a federal judge denied a request Thursday for a temporary restraining order that would have forced Houston workers back to the docks. The West Gulf Maritime Association had filed for the order.

Meanwhile, three ships sat idle in port. One Houston I.L.A. official denied there was a work stoppage; he said there simply were not enough workers available. Zack Guillory, vice president of I.L.A. Local 872, said, "If there was no gang, it was because we didn't have an ample amount of men."

Ralph Massey, president of the South Atlantic and Gulf Coast District I.L.A. in Galveston, has said he would not authorize a strike by members here because the union has a valid contract with the maritime association until Sept. 30.

Besides the "make-work" provision of their contract, the dock workers also want restoration of a clause giving them the right to handle all containerized cargo within 50 miles of the waterfront.

The union is also demanding an hourly wage hike from $8 to $10 and a shortened work week from 40 hours to 32.

Computers Require A Lot Of Precious Water

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The City of San Francisco, still asking residents to cut water use by one fourth during the current drought, guzzles 100 gallons a minute to cool City Hall computers.

That's enough precious water to supply 500 families a day.

"It's ridiculous, when you think that you're scratching around to save five or six gallons every time you don't flush the toilet," said John Molinari, a member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Deborah Petrie, an aide in Molinari's office, said most businesses that use computers recycle their cooling water. But then, she said, businesses pay for water, while the city gets it free.

"The Bank of America uses 37,500 gallons a day," she said, "and they have three floors of computer equipment. We only have two tiny rooms, and we use 140,000 gallons a day."

Molinari said engineers are working on a plan to end the water waste.

Under one plan, he said, the city would stop using water from city pipes for its computers and use instead water from a well drilled below City Hall decades ago, but unused for years.

After the computers used the water, he said, it would go into the city Fire Department's reserve water supply system, which now draws 150,000 gallons a day out of the city's supply.

Adding the gallons used by the fire department and those with such countries as Japan, West Germany, Australia and Britain, none of which recognize us diplomatically.

In general, said Wu, "countries want to expand trade so we still can expand trade relations with them."

Where lack of diplomatic relations is a handicap in the areas generally covered by governmental rather than private agreements, such as setting quotas, tariffs and preferential treatment for developing nations, he added.

"In case of difficulties in these areas, we must find an indirect way to contact that foreign government," he said.

K.T. Li, former finance minister and now minister without portfolio, suggested greater recognition for the Republic of China would help it benefit other countries, too.

"We have 20-odd farm teams working outside the country," he said. "They would be more productive if international financing agencies recognized this."

Having just moved through the early stages of development from an agricultural to an industrial economy, Li said, this country is in a good position to appreciate the problems of newly emerging countries and use its experience to help them.

In 25 years, he said, Taiwan's farmers have dropped from 61 to fewer than 30 per cent of the population, compared with the current 85 per cent in Indonesia, for example. The country still is self sufficient in rice.

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board received a request from Gene Coley, plant manager of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District for an alarm system to be connected with the police department at the board's meeting Tuesday night.

Coley explained that the alarm would be connected between the plant and the police department to alarm both plant employees and police officers of trouble at the plant. The board took no action on the request.

The board approved a contract with Carolina Power and Light Co. for electrical service to the Town of Grifton sewer pumping stations.

Carr Tucker, president of the Grifton Baseball Improvement Association, requested that the board grant permission to use $1,768 of next fiscal year's budget to purchase needed equipment. The board agreed to grant the request.

Jan Haseley requested that an additional street light be placed between Queen Street and River Road near the Civic Center.

In other business the board:

- Voted to not collect debris on the trash truck larger than four inches in diameter and six feet long and separate limbs from leaves.

- Voted to allow swimming pool owners who do not use the sewer to dump water in, a break on the sewer charge.

Praying Mantis A Step Closer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The praying mantis has come a step closer to becoming Connecticut's state insect, despite an argument that the bug can be rather beastly.

The insect won unanimous committee approval on Thursday even after an off-the-record speech by a lawmaker who asked the committee to remember that the female praying mantis "carnivorously consumes" the male after mating.

"That," said the lawmaker, "explains why so many male praying mantis wait until late in life to marry."

Report Hog Had 2 'Mouths

BELL FORKS — The Andrew Dawson farm near Bells Fork reported having a hog with two mouths Thursday. The pig was born recently on the farm with several other pigs.

The two-mouthed pig which had two eyes between the mouths lived for several days but died Thursday according to Lula Mae Patrick, a farm worker.

Police Knew He Was A Thief

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Police knew they had their jewelry store thief when he stashed his loot under an unmarked police car — with two detectives sitting inside.

Authorities say Victor H. Capers, 23, of Atlantic City, took a $115 watch from a jewelry store and fled.

Within minutes, a police broadcast described the suspect as wearing white clothing and a red stocking cap.

Detectives Ronald Sutton and John Lo Presti said they were sitting in their unmarked car a block away when Capers ran toward them and flung the watch under their car.

"We're police. You're under arrest," the officers said.

Capers was charged with larceny and possessing stolen property.

Questions Pile Up For The IRS

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — "I respectfully request a 30-day extension to file my tax return" a man wrote the St. Paul office of the Internal Revenue Service. "My year-old son ate the W-2 and I have to get a duplicate."

That's just one of the 6,000 questions IRS personnel at the office received this week. The filing deadline is midnight Friday.

Most calls about tax matters can only be taken seriously, said Bill Knight, IRS public affairs officer.

Since Jan. 1, the St. Paul IRS office, which has 63 workers who answer questions, has received more than 360,000 queries from taxpayers.

They included one from a man who wanted to know if he could claim three taverns as exemptions "since they depend on me for their livelihood?"

LOCAL DELEGATES

J. Belton Newman and Mrs. Lillie Randolph of Greenville will be delegates to the North Carolina Jurisdictional Convention of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society April 15-17 at the Great Smokies Hilton Inn and Country Club, Asheville.

Baptists Include Most Black Members

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — American Baptist Churches, the mainly northern wing of the Baptist tradition, has a larger proportion of black members than any other major, predominantly white denomination, a comparison shows.

The denomination's 1.6 million members includes 200,000 blacks or about 12 per cent of the total. Most of them, however, are in 600 mainly black congregations, some of them dually aligned with black Baptist denominations.

American Baptists, with headquarters in Valley Forge, Pa., also count 1,000 blacks among 6,000 active clergy.

Comparative figures on black participation in the country's mainly white church bodies show that overall, blacks total about 2.2 million of the combined membership of 112 million, or an average 2 per cent.

Most blacks, 18.5 million of the nation's nearly 25 million blacks, belong to seven predominantly black denominations, Baptist, Methodist and Pentecostal.

While other blacks in the primarily white denominations mostly belong to black congregations, a growing proportion worship in the mainly white congregations, nearly half of which now include some blacks, a new Gallup poll finds. This is a fivefold increase from 25 years ago.

The Episcopal Church ranks second in proportion of black members, with about 150,000 blacks among 2.9 million members, or 5 per cent. But 85 per cent of these blacks are in black congregations, including the denomination's largest parish, the 3,900-member St. Philip's in Manhattan.

Among the 11,500 Episcopal priests are 400 blacks, including six black bishops, four of them active.

In third places comes the United Church of Christ, a modern merger including Congregationalists. It has 70,000 blacks among 1.8 million members, 4.3 per cent of the total, and 300 blacks among 9,500 clergy.

The Roman Catholic Church, with 1 million blacks among 48.8 million members, or 2 per cent, with four black bishops and 230 black priests among 58,847 clergy and 700 blacks among 130,995 nuns.

The Lutheran Church in America, with about 53,000 blacks among 3.1 million members, or 1.7 per cent, with 30 blacks among 7,000 clergy.

Most black Lutherans are in integrated congregations.

Southern Baptists, about 135,000 blacks among 12.5 million members, 1 per cent, with 400 blacks among 54,150 clergy. Most of the blacks are in black congregations, many dually aligned with black Baptist denominations.

The Presbyterian Church U.S. (southern), about 6,000 blacks among 896,203 members, less than half a per cent, with 600 blacks among 8,500 clergy.

Ambassador Young Says Declines A Second Term

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Young says he has never had a reprimand from President Carter or Secretary of State Cyrus Vance — "not ever" — for his controversial public statements.

"I did talk with Cy Vance ... about my willingness to say things that in a sense involved the American people in the discussion of foreign policy," the 45-year-old American ambassador to the United Nations said in an interview Thursday.

"I said that though at times these might be controversial, if it did not disturb him, that I was willing to run the risk and bear the consequences."

Young said he had no understanding with the President about his statements "because I really believed, and I understood the President to believe, that the American people needed to be involved in the thinking about foreign policy issues before they became policy."

"After all, they pay the bills for our foreign policy and if that policy is faulty, they share in the suffering. I think they have a right to know not only what the policy of the government is, but what some of the preliminary thinking about policy is."

Young said people wouldn't become confused because "the American public is one of the most intelligent and informed publics in the history of mankind."

frained from advocating majority rule in South Africa.

But Young pictured eventual majority rule for South Africa as State Department policy and indicated he thought the transfer of power might come in five years.

"Majority rule is a process that needs to begin immediately," he said. "But it's a process — it's not something that happens tomorrow."

This was at sharp variance with previous U.S. policy toward South Africa. Previous American administrations have consistently voted against African resolutions declaring the South African government illegitimate, and Henry A. Kissinger while secretary of state re-framed from advocating majority rule in South Africa.

NEEDLE and THREAD

Amazing the miracles that can be wrought with needle and thread!
Provided, of course, the needle and thread are in the right hands.

Tools and materials are never more important than the skills of the craftsman who uses them.

In the realm of the spiritual, God has provided us with many resources. They inspire constructive living, dedicated service, devotion to high ideals.

But what we accomplish in our spiritual quest depends most of all on the skills we acquire through parental example and religious training. The churches of our community are helping us train a new generation to design a better tomorrow — using God's pattern.

Hunt Likely To Win OK

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's two nominees to the state Utilities Commission seemed likely to win legislative approval after the first round of confirmation proceedings, lawmakers said following a public hearing Thursday.

Bob Koger, head of the commission's engineering section, and Dr. Leigh Hammond, a North Carolina State University economics professor, were questioned by the Senate and House utilities committees. Several committee members later said both candidates seemed to be qualified.

Before they can be confirmed, however, the committees must hear from interested citizens next Wednesday and make recommendations to the full House and Senate. Koger has been nominated for a four-year term and Hammond would serve until July 1, 1985.

The candidates expressed similar views in a number of areas, but Koger was able to give greater detail in his answers because of his 10 years working on the commission's professional staff.

Hammond described himself as an analytical economist and said he is committed to "social and economic equity and justice." He also predicted that he would be "an effective and fair member of the North Carolina Utilities Commission."

Koger said he also would be fair and objective, and said his goal would be to keep rates low, but high enough "to permit the utilities, with good management, to earn a fair return on their investments."

Commissioners are paid about $31,000 a year. Both candidates supported the notion of trying to make sure that state efforts to beef up the economy through industrial development would be

Spain Not Ready For 'Guernica'

PARIS (AP) — Pablo Picasso's "Guernica," depicting the horror of the Spanish Civil War, will not be sent to Madrid for several years because political liberalization in Spain is still incomplete, Picasso's attorney says.

The 11-by-25-foot painting, a black, gray and white symbolic rendering of the terror of the 1937 Fascist bombing and strafing of the Basque town of Guernica, has been on loan to the Museum of Modern Art in New York since 1939.

Attorney Roland Dumas said Thursday Picasso told him in writing that while "Guernica" belongs to the Spanish Republic, it should not be sent to Spain until "civil liberties" are re-established.

aided by actions of the commission.

"We don't want to do anything that would tend to limit our efforts to raise the per capita income through industrial expansion," Koger said.

Also, both claimed no social dealings with officials from the major utilities.

Proposals to provide a minimum amount of electricity at below cost to ease the burden on the poor were not endorsed by either candidate, though both expressed sympathy for the problem. Koger said such proposals should be decided by the legislature, not the commission.

Koger also revealed that a "major utility" will announce a plan for helping homeowners finance additional insulation. The utility will collect the payments on a bank loan for the insulation.

Under questioning, Hammond said he had no "environmental hangups" but said he is "sensitive to possible environmental damage" and "I'm willing to pay my share" for ecological protection.

Hammond also told the legislators he would support night commission hearings and hearings away from Raleigh. The current commissioners have been criticized for not doing that.

Neither candidate was very specific about the role of nuclear power in generating electricity.

Petition On Bail Ruling

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys for the Wilmington 10 petitioned the North Carolina Court of Appeals Thursday, asking that courts be allowed to grant bail pending a post-conviction hearing.

Judge Russell Lanier ruled Tuesday in Wilmington that superior court judges can not grant such bail requests because state law makes no such provision.

The petition argued that, because state law does not specifically address the issue, courts should be given discretionary powers to grant such bail requests.

James E. Ferguson II of Charlotte, chief defense counsel, said he might be forced to request a delay of his clients' May 9 post-conviction hearing if they can not be released from prison.

Nine members of the group of civil rights activists remain imprisoned for their 1972 convictions on arson and conspiracy charges.

Because they are scattered about the state in eight separate prisons, it would take an unwarranted amount of travel and time to consult with them prior to the hearing, Ferguson said.

"It's very important, of course, that we have this hearing as soon as possible, but it's even more important that we be well prepared even if we have to ask for additional time," he said. "We're trying like hell to get ready. It's a problem, I'll tell you."

Seek Prison System Chaplains

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's prisons, with more inmates than places to put them, is also lacking in religious counseling, say a large group of legislators sponsoring bills that would change that.

With more than 14,400 inmates to minister to, there are only three fulltime chaplains hired by the state Correction Department, said Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson. Johnson, himself a minister, says the number is surprisingly low when compared to other states and ought to be increased. He has more than 90 House members' signatures on two bills that would add 21 chaplains to the Correction Department and five to the Division of Youth Services for its juvenile training schools. "The department has higher priorities, of course, like single cells," Johnson said in an interview. "Yet, there are some problems in the prisons that I think wouldn't exist if there were chaplains. "In many instances, the problems that start in prison end up at home. We feel like this would strengthen ties to the home," he said.

Johnson, a four-term legislator from Fairmont, has pastored a Baptist church there for 25 years. He is president of the General Baptist State Convention, a group of 1,700 churches and 355,000 predominantly black members. His bill for prison chaplains would cost around $600,000 for the next two years and the youth services bill would add $125,000.

But the cost is worth it, he recently told an appropriations committee. "If one chaplain could be responsible for three inmates not returning on a life term, it would pay his salary for 20 years," he said.

Most prisoners with religious beliefs are either Protestant, Catholic, Jewish or Moslem, Johnson said, and the new chaplains should be divided among those faiths. They would be tasked with providing psychological and spiritual counseling, as well as being available when prisoners wanted to talk. "I wouldn't want anyone to go in and try to evangelize or proselytize the place. That could cause other problems. It would be more of a counseling job," he said.

The legislation was recommended by an advisory committee on ministry in the prisons. The group said it found that Florida, with a prison population comparable to North Carolina's, had 26 fulltime chaplains. South Carolina, with 6,700 inmates, had 10 fulltime chaplains and Tennessee, with 4,728 in prison, had 10 chaplains.

U.S.-Asia Relations To Be Topic Of Symposium

"Political Trends in Asia: Implications for U.S. Relations" is the topic of the annual Asian Studies Symposium at East Carolina University April 28-29.

The Thursday morning symposium session will begin with a welcoming speech by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins and include two presentations: "Bangladesh and the U.S. Asian Relationships," by M. R. Siddiqui, Bangladesh Ambassador to the United States, and "Political Process as a South Asian Phenomenon: The Indian Experience," by Dr. Walter Hauser, director of the University of Virginia Center for South Asian Studies.

Thursday afternoon's session will consist of an address by Shri R. K. Rajan, First Secretary with the Indian Embassy in Washington, D.C. on past and future Indo-U.S. relations and a lecture by Dr. Clifton Pannell, University of Georgia geographer on "Emerging Power Structure in Asia: Implications for U.S. Relations."

Thursday evening will feature a cultural program in cooperation with the ECU International Students Club and the Greenville Woman's Club.

Prof. Jose David Lapuz, Philippines professor of international politics and relations, will speak on "The Status of Women and Changing Social and Economic Conditions in the Philippines."

Friday morning's symposium events include two presentations:

"Southeast Asia and Cambodia Today," by Gen. Sak Sutsakhan, former president of Cambodia, and "Southeast Asia in World Politics: Implications for U.S. Relations" by Prof. Lapuz.

All symposium events are free and open to the public. Except for the Thursday evening program at the Greenville Woman's Club Building on Parkview Drive, all sessions are scheduled for Brewster Building, B wing, 102.

The symposium is coordinated by Dr. Avtar Singh of the ECU sociology and anthropology faculty and is sponsored by the ECU Asian Area Studies program, with funding from the ECU Student Government Association.

'Space Junk' Recovery Plan Thought Practical

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An aerospace engineer whose colleagues call him the "garbage man of space" has developed a way to pluck orbiting satellites from space and bring them safely back to earth.

The plan is the first practical method devised for clearing some 3,000 manmade objects now littering the galaxy hundreds of miles above the earth, said Dr. Marshall Kaplan of Pennsylvania State University.

Kaplan said he presented the proposal this week to the National Aeronautics Space Administration, which commissioned his research and is considering the plan for the Space Shuttle program in mid-1979.

The Defense Department also is "very interested" in the retrieval proposal as a way in which foreign satellites could be captured if they posed a threat to the United States, Kaplan said.

"It is getting messy up there, and the Air Force may be thinking it would be cheaper to retrieve the satellites than to continue tracking them," Kaplan said.

He said the main reason for bringing the space junk back to earth is so scientists could study those that failed and relaunch others, saving millions of dollars. The satellites cost between $2 million and $40 million.

"The biggest obstacle to capturing objects in space is the fact that many of them are spinning or tumbling very quickly, making it unsafe for a retrieval vehicle to link up with a target — particularly if there are people in the object," Kaplan said.

Under the plan, the space shuttle would carry a cargo of water and point a giant nozzle at the spinning satellite. Because water in a vacuum freezes when it strikes an object, the satellite would temporarily be coated with ice. As the ice turned from solid to gas, Kaplan said, it would slow the satellite's momentum, permitting a linkup.

Kaplan said satellites that are not spinning pose no problems other than hookup.

Kaplan and Douglas Freeland, a graduate assistant, developed the retrieval method during a 32-month study commissioned by the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

For years the space center has puzzled over what to do about costly satellites orbiting uselessly. Scientists have been concerned that the space junk could cause an outer space collision. While the probability of that happening is small, Kaplan said, the Air Force does track all manmade objects over a certain size.

Billy Carter To 'Invade' Florida

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Billy Carter will attend the Farm City Barbecue in Immokalee, Fla., play on "Billy's Redneck Power" softball team, and dance at a ball in Stoneburner's barn, says the sponsor of the events.

D.L. Stoneburner also says money raised from the activities scheduled for April 23-25 will be distributed among local charities.

Stoneburner said Thursday that the President's brother will honor his contract to attend despite an outcry over his appearance that caused the swamp buggy drivers and the American Cancer Society to withdraw from the events.

The swamp buggy races were canceled when drivers learned that Billy Carter was getting a $10,000 fee. They said the fee should go for prizes.

Originally, the proceeds from the events were to go to the American Cancer Society. But the society, concerned about Billy Carter's chain-smoking image, withdrew its support.

Slides Show Bird Lures

The Soil Conservation Service has produced a new slide set telling interested people how to attract birds to their home, designed for showing to civic and garden clubs, school groups and others.

State Conservationist, Jesse L. Hicks who heads the federal conservation agency in North Carolina, said, "We believe this will be an appealing presentation. Most North Carolinians like to have songbirds around."

Although the set has 75 slides drawn from a wide geographic area, many of the slides were made in North Carolina. Tally O. Bowman of Hickory contributed slides showing mocking birds, baby flickers, the Carolina Wren and bluebirds.

The slide presentation is an accompaniment to the recent color booklet also entitled Invite Birds To Your Home. When available, the SCS county offices have free copies of this publication for interested people.

City Counts 2 Collisions

An estimated $2,700 property damage resulted yesterday from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported an estimated $1,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Roads.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Samuel Wilson Squires Jr. of Route 1, Grimesland and Rosa Lee Lang Harrell of 1106 Rocksprings Rd.

A 12:55 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets involved cars driven by Richard Alen Smart of Greensboro and Joseph Earl Brown Jr., of 133 North Library St.

Damage from that mishap was set at $300 to the Brown car and $400 to the Smart vehicle.

By The Associated Press
A weak cold front has pushed into North Carolina, moving slowly southward and bringing in cooler air. Afternoon temperatures in the mid and upper 80s will end for the time being.

Widely scattered thunder-showers occurred Thursday ahead of the front but generally only trace amounts of rainfall were reported. One thunder-shower, at Cape Hatteras, managed to drop .07 inches.

Temperatures were expected to be considerably cooler today with readings in the 70s over north and west portions, ranging up to around 80 in the south.

A warming trend should begin Saturday and readings will be back into the 80s by Sunday.

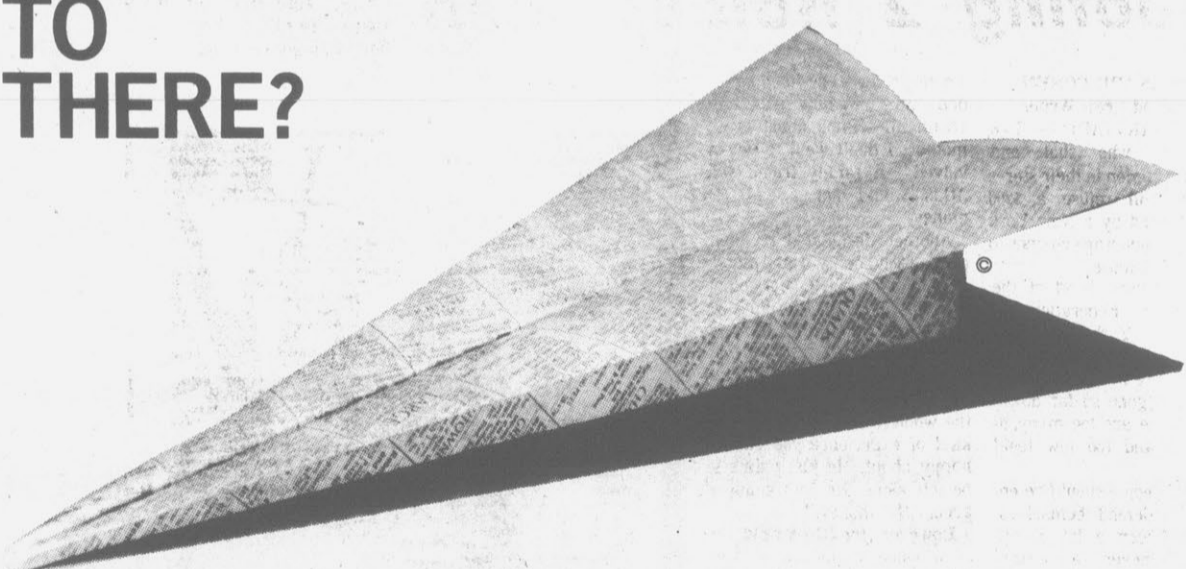

High temperatures around the state Thursday included an 89 at Fayetteville and 88 at Wilmington. Asheville was the coolest reporting point with a 78. Other highs included Charlotte 84, Greensboro 85, and Rocky Mount 86.

1978 Senate Candidate Says Peace Major Issue

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Joe Felmet sees world peace as the "overriding issue" in his campaign for the U.S. Senate in 1978.

The Winston-Salem Democrat, who made a campaign stop in Greenville on Thursday said that he has some ideas on world peace and a key element would be the establishment of a world government.

Saying that he would give the United Nations more power under a world government, Felmet said the "analogy would be the state's relationship to the federal government in our own political system."

He noted that states have surrendered their sovereignty to the federal government and on a worldwide scale that he favors all sovereign nations should surrender "certain amounts of sovereignty" to the world government.

The "states are supreme in their own areas of jurisdiction and likewise nations would be supreme in their own areas of jurisdiction" under a world government, the candidate explained.

According to Felmet, the first international felony should be the possession of a nuclear bomb and possessors "should be subject to arrest and prosecution by the world government."

Felmet acknowledged that he did not like prisons but he admitted that they would be needed in order to provide a means of restraint for offenders of world law.

"I can't think of any worse crime than the possession of a nuclear bomb," he said.

Although the circumstances involving the relationships of nations to the world and states to the federal government would be different, the analogies would apply, Felmet contended.

"For instance, the states have given up the right to coin money," he explained. "The international system could apply there."

Felmet said that new "bodies of law" would have to be created.

The candidate said he expected to step on some toes when mentioning the possibility of giving up sovereignty "but I'm not afraid to step on toes."

Felmet said he considers himself an "issue oriented candidate" and he pledged not to dodge any issues.

"I don't want to be arrogant, but if I could help to achieve world peace, I don't know any better service I could perform," he said.

He said that he is billing himself as the candidate, most committed to a clean environment and to clean politics.

In a position statement issued earlier in the campaign, Felmet commented, "I support the position of Common Cause, the self-styled Citizens' Lobby, that congressional campaigns should be publicly financed as was the presidential campaign in 1976."

Felmet said that he would give criminals convicted of capital crimes an option of volunteering their bodies for scientific research.

In addition, he said he was opposed to commercial billboards on "our streets and highways" and he challenged his opponents to "join me in refusing to use billboards in their campaigns."

Saying that he "loves campaigning," Felmet pointed out that he has "always been interested in politics." His only other political venture involved a defeat in the Democratic Primary in 1974 for the Fifth District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

He worked for the Winston-Salem Journal for some 13 years, he added.

FBI Director Wants Review Of Prosecuting His Agents

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley wants Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to review his decision to prosecute FBI men for illegal investigative tactics. Kelley argues that CIA officials were let off the hook for similar wrongdoing.

Kelley said Thursday night that last week's indictment of former FBI supervisor John J. Kearney has "seriously affected" FBI morale.

"I am arranging a conference between the attorney general, myself and a representative group of FBI agents to personally discuss our concerns," the FBI director said in a statement.

Kelley voiced his concern after 300 off-duty FBI agents demonstrated on the steps of a federal courthouse in New York Thursday prior to Kearney's arraignment.

Kelley promised "to use every means at my command to assure that (Kearney's) current predicament is resolved as soon as possible."

Kearney, 55, was the first FBI agent in history to be indicted for breaking the law while trying to enforce it.

More indictments were expected against other bureau officials involved in allegedly illegal wiretapping, mail-opening and burglaries in a campaign to track down radical fugitives.

Kelley said he has "asked the attorney general to review the matter again with the thought of considering the past problems of the FBI in the same light that was afforded the CIA."

"The thrust of the department's resolution of that matter was based upon the principle that it is not possible to 'indict an era.'"

Former Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi decided in January not to prosecute CIA officials for opening citizens' mail from Communist countries.

Justice Department lawyers said the mail-opening operation was not considered illegal during the years it was conducted, 1953 to 1973. They also cited the poor chance of winning a conviction as another argument against prosecution.

By asking that the FBI be measured by the standards applied to the CIA, Kelley left the implication he wants Bell to stop the prosecution.

But his exact meaning was not clear.

A spokesman for the attorney general, Marvin Wall, said "I don't know exactly what Mr. Kelley has in mind. He's asking him to review it, whatever that means."

Kelley cleared his statement with Bell before making it public, Wall said.

Kearney was charged with illegal mail-opening, wiretapping and conspiracy for directing a squad of New York City FBI agents to rob mailboxes, steam open and copy personal letters, and eavesdrop on telephone conversations from August 1970 through June 1972 in a search for Weather Underground fugitives charged with bombings and other terrorist acts.

The agents used those tactics against New York residents they thought might be in contact with the fugitives.

Kearney retired in June 1972 and is now an executive with Wells Fargo Armed Services Corp.

Awaits A White House Reply

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Republican State Sen. John Stull was a bit startled by a card in his mail from the White House.

Signed by James King, special assistant to the president, it thanked Stull for his letter "expressing interest in a position with the administration," and said it was being given "serious and careful consideration."

Stull, a retired naval commander who once headed the San Diego gunnery school, fired off a reply.

"Although I did not initiate such correspondence, I assume I was asking to be secretary of the navy," he wrote. He enclosed his biography, listing a lifetime of Republican activities.

Stull said Thursday he awaits further word from the White House. He said he has no idea how King got his name.

Hijacking Pact Expiring Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1973 U.S.-Cuban antihijacking agreement expired today, a highly successful diplomatic venture that fell victim to the lingering uneasiness between the two countries.

However, Cuban President Fidel Castro has indicated that Cuba will continue to abide by the terms of the agreement despite the absence of a contractual obligation.

Castro announced last October he was calling off the agreement in retaliation for what he said was a series of CIA-sponsored terrorist acts against Cuba, including the crash of a Cuban jetliner off Barbados.

The antihijack agreement permits either side to cancel with six months' notice. That period expired this morning.

Combined with stricter security measures at U.S. airports, the agreement had put an end to an epidemic of air piracy involving the United States and Cuba.

Between 1961 and 1973, 87 U.S. airplanes were diverted to Cuba. Since the agreement was signed — exactly 50 months ago today — Cuba-bound hijackings have been limited to one private plane and one vessel.

Hijackings from the other direction have been restricted largely to rowboats seized by Cuban political refugees.

"On the whole, we have regarded the agreement as very useful," a U.S. official said Thursday.

The accord committed both countries to extradite or prosecute persons engaged in the hijacking of airplanes or ships from one country to the other.

Castro has indicated that Cuba will continue to abide by the terms of the agreement despite the absence of a contractual obligation.

Will Refuse Bounty For Shooting 2 Holdup Men

By BERNARD COHEN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two shopkeepers who shot and killed holdup men in their stores say they will refuse a $200 bounty offered by a New York gun club to encourage citizens to arm for self defense.

Gerald Preiser, head of the 5,000-member Federation of Greater New York Pistol and Rifle Clubs, said in offering the award, "We're at a point where the city has gone so far downhill that there are too many illegal guns and too few legal guns."

"We feel people should be encouraged to defend themselves. There has been a lot of applause whenever a citizen strikes back. Face it, you've got a war going on here in New York City."

Preiser had singled out as an initial winner Arthur Atlas, who shot and killed a robber and wounded another in his Harlem clothing store last Friday after one of the gunmen seriously wounded his mother.

Asked if he would accept the bounty and a scroll from the federation, Atlas replied, "I would prefer to be left alone. I don't want anything. All I care about, all I think about is my mother. I don't want to get involved." A family friend said Atlas would not accept the money.

Another designated recipient of the $200 bounty was Amando Acuna, who killed two holdup men in his East Harlem jewelry store. His partner, Antonio Picado, said:

"He's not going to talk to anyone. He's very upset about the whole thing. This is not the kind of experience you can be happy about. He just wants to be left alone. He isn't going to accept the money."

However, the 23-year-old son of a Queens pharmacist who teamed up with his father Nov. 29 to kill one robber and wound a second in their store, said he would accept the bounty if it's offered:

"... It was meant to let you know that people were behind you, to say, 'we agree with what you did,' who feel strongly enough to give you something because they agree with you," said Steve Holman.

"I don't wish anybody to get into my position. It's not a pleasant thing for anybody to go through. I did it out of necessity, out of survival," he said.

WILLIAMSTON — Rose High was one of four teams yesterday to advance in the winners' bracket of the Williamston Sports Club Baseball Tournament.

The Rampants got a 7-2 win over Greene Central in yesterday's second contest. In the first game, South Granville defeated Bertie, 4-2. Plymouth downed Roanoke 11-8 in the third game while Williamston got a 12-11 victory over Saratoga Central in the nightcap.

Today's action saw Roanoke face Greene Central at noon and Bertie face Saratoga at 2:30. Rose is slated to meet Plymouth at 5 p.m. while Williamston will play South Granville at 7:30.

Rampants Romp
Rose jumped out to a 7-0 lead against Saratoga Central and had little trouble holding off the Cougars, who pushed across two runs in the final inning.

Winning pitcher Mike Williams threw erratically in the three hitter, his third win against no losses. He pitched three innings in which he allowed no one on base, but he loaded the bases in three more and had two men in on another.

Twice, Williams pitched out of trouble with the sacks full — once with no outs and a second time with one out — but, the third time he loaded the bases, in the bottom of the seventh, he gave up a two-out single which scored the two Cougar runs.

An error on the Greene Central catcher allowed the Rampants to take a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Leadoff batter Ronnie Chapman walked and stole second base. The catcher erred on the throw to second and Chapman scored.

In the second inning, Wright Hooks led off with a walk and courtesy runner Danny Hester, running for Hooks, went to second on a balk. Designated hitter Gary Allen sacrificed him to third, but he was caught in a rundown between third and home on a squeeze play attempt.

Mark Conway then walked for Rose, however, and Reggie Spain got on by an error, sending Conway to third. Chapman knocked Conway in with an infield hit and went to second on the throw home. Then, another error on the Ram catcher scored Spain and Chapman, giving the Rampants a 4-0 lead.

Jeff Aldridge reached for Rose on a fielders choice in the top of the third and went to second on a balk. He came home when Allen singled to right field.

In the bottom of the inning, Williams gave up a double and then two walks to load the bases. He got the next three batters out, however, to end the Greene Central scoring threat.

The Rams loaded the sacks again in the fifth when the first two batters walked and, after a strikeout, a third batter got a base on balls. Williams struck out the next man, though, and the following batter popped up to the pitcher.

In the top of the seventh, John Coffman got a single and went to third when Mike Shank got a base hit to center field. The center fielder's throw to third was high and Coffman came home. Shank, who had gone to second on the fielders choice, went to third on the error.

Aldridge followed with a third straight hit for Rose to score Shank from third and put the Rampants up, 7-0.

Williams gave up a base hit and walked two to load the bases in the bottom of the seventh. Then, with two out, Donald Holloman singled to center field to score Dal Blizzard and Jay Carraway.

The win evens the Rose record at 5-5 for the season while Greene Central is now 9-3. Holloman was the losing pitcher for the Rams. His record falls to 4-1.

Vikings Win

A big fifth inning allowed Plymouth to take an 11-8 win over Roanoke in yesterday's third game.

The Vikings got help from the Redskin battery during the frame as it scored eight runs. Roanoke went through three pitchers and committed three wild pitches, two passed balls and two errors.

The three wild pitches all scored runs while one of the passed balls allowed a man to score.

Plymouth had taken a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Jappy Harris led off with a single, stole second, was sacrificed to third and came home on a passed ball.

The Redskins tied things up when Doug Lane scored in the third, but Plymouth came back with another run by Harris in the bottom of the inning to take a 2-1 lead.

Roanoke tied the game again in the top of the fifth when after Bill Swain's fourth-inning homer for the Vikes, it got three hits to score Ken Gurganus and David Spruill and make the score 3-3.

But, in the bottom of the frame, Harris led off with a walk for Plymouth and stole second and third. He scored his third run of the game on a fielders choice.

Ray Leggett then walked and went to third on an error on a pickoff attempt. He scored when Earl Brinkley got on by an error.

Brinkley stole second and went to third as designated hitter Wade Adams singled to the shortstop. Brinkley scored and Adams went to second on a wild pitch.

An infield out moved Adams to third and he scored and Brady Pinner made first on a third-strike passed ball.

Bill Swain then walked for the Vikings. Pinner scored and Swain went to second on another wild pitch. A passed ball moved Swain to third.

Ricky Jones then got the Vikings' second hit of the frame to score Swain. That brought up Harris for the second time in the inning. He tripled to drive in Jones and then scored on a wild pitch for his second run of the inning — his fourth of the game.

Roanoke scored a run in the sixth and then got four in the seventh, bringing the tying run to the plate, but couldn't overcome the Viking lead.

Swain was the winning pitcher for Plymouth, which raised its record to 9-1. Roanoke is now 7-3 for the year.

Tigers Rally

Williamston came up with four runs in the sixth inning to come from behind and went on to take a 12-11 lead over Saratoga Central.

A total of 10 errors were committed during the game, a windy nightcap to the first day of tournament action.

Shortstop Mike Koesy led the Tiger attack, going 2-2 at the plate and scoring four runs. He also had two runs batted in. Chris Gardner scored three times for Saratoga.

Williamston took the lead in the top of the first when Koesy walked and Allen Peaks reached on an error. They both scored on Lee Pearson's single to center field.

The Tigers added two runs in the top of the second to move out to a 4-0 margin. Hank Edwards and Merritt Taylor scored the two runs.

Saratoga came up with a pair of tallies in the bottom of the inning, however. Kenny Cherry and Terry Ellis each reached on base hits to left and scored when Ralph Bailey singled to center field.

The Cougars cut the lead to 4-3 in the bottom of the third as Gardner walked, stole second, and scored on two wild pitches.

In the fourth inning, Taylor reached on an error for the

Protest Gives Jaguars Pitt Track Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A protest on the two-mile finish ended another two year hold by Rose High School on the Pitt County Track Championship yesterday, as the Farmville Central Jaguars slipped to a point-and-a-half victory.

Rose High School's Chris Smith captured the two-mile run with a supposed record time of 10:37.53, but Conley High School Coach Chuck Dunn entered a protest on the race, claiming that Smith had run outside the border of the track on several turns. His protest was upheld, and Smith was disqualified.

That cost Rose six points in the event, and moved Farmville Central into a three and a half point lead with just one event left. Rose took first in that, the mile relay, but Farmville took second and held onto the slim lead.

When it was over, Farmville Central had piled up 71½ points, while Rose had 70. Conley finished a strong third with 55½, while Ayden-Grifton had 25. North Pitt did not participate.

An earlier challenge on a protest by Farmville Central was not allowed. That came in the mile run, where Conley's Joe Greene nipped Farmville's Chris Connell at the tape. Jaguar Coach Gene Brewer claimed Connell had been bumped just before the finish by the drifting Greene, but the results were allowed to stand.

For the first time, no new meet records were set, since the two-mile time was officially not fast enough after Smith's disqualification.

There were two double winners. Conley's Bernard Hill won the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dash. Rufus Mayo of Farmville Central captured the long jump and the triple jump to be the other double winner.

Hill also was second in the long jump, while Mayo was second in the 440-yard dash, giving both runners 16 points on the day, tops for individuals.

The victory for Farmville Central was their second in the meet. They had won in 1974, snapping a two-year hold by the Rampants that year. Overall, Rose has won the title four times.

Rampants Win Golf

The Rose High School golf team edged past Tarboro in a match on the Tarboro course yesterday.

Rose finished the day with a team total of 303, while Tarboro completed its four counting rounds with a total of 309.

Mike Moye led the Rampants with a 73, while Craig Logue and Sid Ashby each had 75. Til Jolly rounded out the team with an 80.

For Tarboro, Wright had a 75, McIntyre and Isley had 76's, and Edmondson had an 82.

"This was the best performance in a long time for a Rose team," Coach Bobby Thomas said. "They really did a good job."

Lady Jaguars Down Rampettes

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girls track team rolled to a 71-43 victory over Rose High School's Rampettes in a dual meet yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars won eight events, while Rose took three. Farmville won one of the three relays, while the Rampettes took the other two.

Ilene Phillips was a double winner for Farmville Central, winning the shot and discus, while Teresa Manning took both of the hurdle events.

Cardinal Kiddie Korps Steal Show At Shea

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was Senior Citizens Day at Shea Stadium but the St. Louis Cardinals' Kiddie Korps stole the show.

"St. Louis might be the dark horses," said New York Manager Tom Seaver after the high-flying young Cardinals disposed of the Mets 4-1 Thursday and boosted their record to 5-1, all on the road.

After winning three games in Pittsburgh, the Cards were shut out by the Mets' Tom Seaver Tuesday, but bounced back with a pair of victories. The hungry Redbirds are beginning to make believers of preseason experts who consigned them to fourth place in the National League East.

"Pittsburgh and New York are strong enough clubs to make or break you," said 37-year-old left fielder Lou Brock, the club's elder statesman, "and usually they break you more than make you."

Brock is caught up in the club's early-season spirit of success, but it doesn't surprise him.

"I got that feeling the last six weeks of last season," he said. "This club was 80 per cent young, inexperienced players who were just happy to be in the major leagues and were awed by the opposition. But the last six weeks they adopted the attitude that they would stand up and fight and not be denied. What you see now are guys determined to prove they're big league ballplayers."

The young lions include first baseman Keith Hernandez, 23; shortstop Garry Templeton, 22; right fielder Hector Cruz, 24; and rookie relievers John Urrea, 22, and Johnny Sutton, 24. Templeton and Hernandez each drove in a run Thursday while newcomer Tony Scott, who has less than two years of service in the majors, slammed a two-run triple while filling in for center fielder Bake McBride.

When the Mets nicked winner Bob Forsch for a run in the seventh, Urrea came on and struck out Felix Millan, annually one of baseball's toughest hitters to fan. That ended the threat and Urrea allowed one hit over the last two innings to record his second save in as many big league appearances.

In the only other National League game Thursday, the San Francisco Giants outscored the San Padres 8-4 as Jim Barr pitched a seven-hitter and Bill Madlock and Willie McCovey belted two-run homers.

Madlock also had an RBI single to go along with his second homer in two games as the Giants took the series from the Padres 2-1. Barr evened his record at 1-1 with the victory, striking out a career-high 11 men and walking two.

Jerry Turner and pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund hit solo homers for the Padres while Gary Thomasson, Darrell Evans and Madlock all collected two hits to pace the Giants' 12-hit attack.

North Pitt Softball Team Struggling Now

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
North Pitt's softball team has so far this season been having its troubles in a much-improved Eastern Carolina Conference, according to coach Peggy Taylor.

The Pant-HERS are currently 1-3 overall and 1-2 in the conference. The lone league win came against Ayden-Grifton.

"Right now, they're looking kind of dismal," Miss Taylor said of the team. "We're not doing too well; we're making a lot of errors."

She does, however, hold out some hope for the Pant-HERS. "The potential is there. It's just that it hasn't come through yet."

"We've got kids who played last year, but aren't playing up to what they did last year — it's just slow coming around."

The weak link for North Pitt is probably the outfield, Miss Taylor said, although all but one of the positions there is filled by a veteran.

Susie Grimes in left field, Ike Atkinson in short field and Cynthia Barnes in center field all played for the Pant-HERS last year. This season, "they just haven't come around yet; they're not doing what they're capable of doing," according to Miss Taylor.

Right field is currently being occupied by Cynthia Best, Miss

Taylor said, but that could change. "Right now, we're still looking," she added.

The North Pitt pitching has been a pleasant surprise for Miss Taylor. The Pant-HERS lost a good pitcher last year and thought they might have some problems there this year. But, Wanda Leggett has come through well on the mound, according to Miss Taylor.

Sophomore Paula Morris is the starting catcher and has done "a real fine job."

Returning at first base is Mable James. She is improving at the plate, Miss Taylor said, and is "a pretty good defensive first baseman."

Shortstop Rosella Weaver and second baseman Sandra Atkinson are "doing real well at the stick. They've got a lot of RBI's."

The leadoff batter is third baseman Ellen Dixon. "She swings the bat real well," Miss Taylor said. She can also beat out an infield hit and plays well defensively.

In the ECC this year, the competition is more equal, Miss Taylor said. Last year, all the teams were beginners and there has been a tremendous increase in the caliber of play this year.

Miss Taylor said Greene Central is a much improved team, but defending champion Southern Nash is probably the team with the best chance of taking the championship.

Jaguars Pin Rose

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central stunned Rose High School with a 9-0 victory in a tennis match yesterday.

The match was hard fought, with all but one of the six singles matches going into a third set. The three doubles all went to 8-7 or 8-6 sets.

The victory boosted the Farmville Central record to 4-6 overall.

Summary:

Pistons Sour In Second Half

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — It had to be one of the biggest collapses in National Basketball Association playoff history.

The Detroit Pistons trailed by two points, 69-67, three minutes into the second half and lost by 30 Thursday night, 138-108, to the Golden State Warriors.

There is no room, now, for either team to collapse. Their best-of-three opening-round playoff series is tied 1-1. The teams meet in Oakland Sunday to determine who advances to the quarter-finals against Los Angeles.

"We simply got outplayed, that's all there was to it," said Pistons Coach Herb Brown. "We looked like rank amateurs. That's it. I'm too hoarse to talk."

He may have been understating the case.

"Yeh, I was embarrassed," admitted Detroit center Bob Lanier.

Phil Smith and Rick Barry teamed for 63 points, pacing the Warriors' triumph, before a sellout Cobo Arena crowd of 11,220. Barry scored 28 points and Smith had 28 of his 35 in the first half.

Last year, Smith averaged 31 points against the Pistons and 29.5 against them in the playoffs.

"We didn't go to anyone special. We try to think we're flexible enough to run our stuff to anybody," said Golden State Coach Al Attles. "Smith was going good and Rick hit well and we got the ball to them when they were going hot."

The Warriors, who led only 63-59 at halftime, outscored the Pistons 26-10 in a seven-minute span midway through the third quarter to pull away. Barry, Smith and Cliff Ray each scored six points in the spurt.

Ray scored 16 points, hitting all eight of his shots, including several slam dunks. Rookie Robert Parish came off the bench and scored 20.

Eric Money topped the Pistons with 31 points, while Lanier scored 23 and Chris Ford 22. Lanier, who returned from a 15-game absence a week ago after recovering from a broken right hand, grabbed 18 rebounds.

There are three NBA playoff games tonight, with all the home teams looking to even the best-of-three series at 1-1.

Conley In Victory

BETHEL — D. H. Conley romped to a 16-5 victory over the North Pitt girls' softball team yesterday.

Conley pushed over three runs in the second, then added four in the second before North Pitt got its first in the bottom of the third.

Conley added four in the fourth, one in the fifth, three in the sixth and one in the seventh. The Pant-HERS picked up single runs in the fourth and fifth and added a pair in the seventh.

Leanne Keeter was the winning pitcher for Conley.

Tina Dixon and Teresa Hill led the Conley hitting with two hits each. Sandra Atkinson had two hits, including a home run for North Pitt.

The Pant-HERS are now 1-4 overall and 1-3 in Eastern Carolina Conference play.

Pirates Take Win

East Carolina knocked off St. Augustine's unbeaten tennis team yesterday, 6-3, on Minges courts.

The Pirates claimed four of the six singles matches and two of the three doubles matches in the victory.

Henry Hostetter and Mitch Pergerson led the way in the singles. Hostetter dusted off his opponent, 6-0, 6-0, at number five, while Pergerson beat his man, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, at number four.

The Pirates topped the 500 mark with the win. They stand 8-7 on the year, while St. Augustine's is now 14-1.

Summary:
Tom Durfee (EC) defeated Ceron, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.
Hohnhold (SA) defeated Jim Ratliff, 6-3, 6-3.
Bramanright (SA) defeated Doug Gelsinger, 0-6, 7-5, 6-3.

 Lorne Turford of Ontario, Canada, scored a hole-in-one while playing at the Greenville Golf and Country Club this past week. The ace came on the third hole, a 137-yarder.

Sue Hardy broke her own personal best for nine holes twice during the past week. She fired a 45, then came back with a 44 later in the week. Both scores came on the front side.

Harriette White took first low gross in a Ladies Day event at the club. Dardie Longino took first low net, followed by Barnie Rawl. Celeste Wilkerson was third, and Sue Hardy, fourth.

Grifton Golf and Country Club
 A Superball Tournament was held last week for the DuPont employees at the Grifton Golf and Country Club.

Taking first place with a 63 was the team of Charles Odom, Duffy Hart, Bruce Thomas and Keith Kilpatrick. Second place with a 65 went to Ron Hardison, Arnie Hunt, Jack Whitt and Shirly Bryn.

Third place with a 67 went to Dean Wingate, George Herring, Garland Creech, and Merle Latham. Fourth, also with a 67, were Al Drake, Jr., John Thompson, Keith Kish and Barbara Salensky. Fifth went to George Adams, Buck Brown, Bill Mahoney and Gloria Herring. A total of 16 teams competed in the event.

Bill Cothren of Kinston picked up an eagle two on the par four sixth hole.

The Grifton Shad Festival Tournament will be played April 23-24. The field for the event is now filled.

Ayden Golf and Country Club
 Applications are still being taken for the annual Ayden Golf and Country Club Four Ball Tournament. The event will be held April 23-24.

The deadline for entries is Tuesday, April 19. The Pitt County Ladies League held its April meeting at Ayden with 40 women participating.

Donna Lane took the longest drive contest, and Jackie Allen took the prize for the most strokes on the sixth hole.

Barbara Walker took low gross in the championship flight with a 77, while Barnie Rawl and Mabel Blount tied for low net with 73. Pat Joyner won low putts with 30.

In the first flight, Ellen Fleming won low gross with a 98, while Maxine Hawley won low net with an 88. Gay Johnson, Evelyn Ward, Mary Koontz and Bernice Moseby tied for low putts with 33.

Ruby Counterman won the second flight low gross with a 101, while Hilda Duke took low net with a 73. Edna Anderson won low putts with a 33. In the fourth flight, Leatrice Powers won low gross with 108, while Lottie King took low net with 77. Lib Lilley and Lataine Webber tied for low putts with a 36.

The next meeting will be on May 6, at Brook Valley.

 There's something about Duke University that just naturally pumps up Dr. Bob Deyton. Last week, Dr. Deyton was playing golf with Duke Athletic Director Carl James, along with Reynolds May, Willard Wilson and Bo Farley.

On the 550-yard sixth hole, Dr. Deyton unloaded a shot off the tee that went round the corner of the dog-leg. His second shot then cleared the traps and green, Windsor Road, and on out of bounds.

Jeanette Cox recently had her best nine, a 45 on the back side. She had a birdie on the 13th hole.

Bill Friend had his best round, a 35-37-72. Johnny Piner had one of his best rounds, a 74, which included an eagle three at 13. Scrapy Proctor had an eagle on the ninth hole, hitting a driver and a wedge. Steve Woodward had his best round, a 37-35-72.

The grand-slam home run hit by Billy Best Wednesday night against Atlantic Christian came as sort of a birthday present.

As you may know, Best is the son of former Rose High basketball coach Nelson Best, who now lives in Leland. Wednesday was Nelson's birthday, and this was just one of the presents he got.

May have been one of the nicest too' since Nelson was sitting there in Harrington watching the game.

 Tigers and scored on Koesy's double to center. Koesy came home when Lee Pearson, who had six runs batted in for the game, singled to right.

Saratoga moved ahead for the first time in the bottom of the frame, however, scoring five runs to take an 8-6 lead.

Tod Rogers and Mark Worley led off with walks and Ronnie Denton loaded the bases with an infield hit. That brought up Ralph Bailey who tripled to score the three runners. That gave him five RBI's for the evening.

Bailey scored on a wild pitch while Gardner added the fifth run when he reached on an error, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and came home on Cherry's base hit.

The Cougars added a run by Worley in the fifth for a 9-6 lead, but the Tigers came back in top of the next inning to regain the lead.

Taylor led off with a single, went to second on a wild pitch and, after Koesy walked, both runners advanced on yet another wild pitch.

Peaks' walk loaded the bases and Taylor scored when Lee Pearson reached on an error. Tim Hardison knocked in Koesy and Peaks with a base hit to left.

doesn't like to play the week immediately following a major championship, but added, "since I'm here, I might as well get with it, get in the golf tournament. Hopefully, I can get it in position where a good last round will win it."

Tom Watson, who beat Nicklaus in that thrilling stretch run at Augusta, Ga., and Lee Trevino, making a second try at the tour after back surgery last year, were well back with 74s. Trevino highlighted his round with a seven iron shot that found the cup for an eagle two. Ben Crenshaw shot 76 and defending champion Don January trailed the field at 77.

 CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — The last year, said Johnny Miller, "has been a humbling experience."

"I've been playing bad that long, except for the Kaiser and the British Open. This isn't something that's just come up in the last couple of months. I've been playing pretty bad golf for a year."

"But I haven't really been down on myself. I've been learning something from this bad experience. Sometimes, when I was playing good, I'd shoot a better score than I should. It just seemed easy. I think I really needed something to wake me up."

The worst slump of his career served as the wake-up call and sent Miller on a search through basic fundamentals to find the swing that once made him the hottest property in golf. And he's come up with something that works.

"I still haven't got it down pat, but I'm on the right track," Miller said after his no-bogey, five-under-par 67 — by two shots his best round of the season — had tied him with Ray Floyd for the first-round lead Thursday in the prestigious, $225,000 Tournament of Champions.

He shared a one-shot lead over Lee Elder, who once had it seven under par, then ran into trouble on the tough finishing holes at the 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course and fell back to a 68.

Gary Koch and Joe Inman, two of the record 12 first-time players in this elite event that brings together only the winners of regular tour events from the last 12 months, were next at 69.

Jack Nicklaus laced a one iron 12 feet from the flag and ran in the putt for an eagle three on the second hole. But it was his one bright spot of the mild, sunny day. He finished with a 71.

Nicklaus, admittedly experiencing a letdown from his last-round charge that fell short in last week's Masters, said he

 The weather in Milwaukee was just what the doctor ordered for Jim Slaton.

"In warmer weather, I might not have lasted as long," said the Milwaukee Brewer pitcher. Slaton was making his first start of the season Thursday after a long siege with the flu and with the help of 46-degree temperatures, breezed through nine no-sweat innings and handcuffed the Baltimore Orioles 5-0 on three hits.

"I would have sweated a lot more if it was warmer and it would have drained a lot more out of me," noted Slaton, who had lost six pounds during his illness and recovery.

He hadn't pitched since April 4.

In other American League action, the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Detroit Tigers 5-3; the Seattle Mariners nipped the Minnesota Twins 4-3 and the Oakland A's edged the California Angels 8-7. The Texas-Cleveland game was postponed by rain.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead with two fifth-inning runs off loser Rudy May, 0-2. Don Money singled and took third on a double by Dan Thomas. Money scored on a single by Von Joshua and Thomas raced home when Larry Ravello bobbled the ball for an error in short center.

The Brewers made it 4-0 with a pair of unearned runs in the sixth and a single by Cecil Cooper and double by Sal Bando produced their final run in the eighth.

Mariners 4, Twins 3
 Right-hander Gary Wheelock limited Minnesota to four hits in eight innings and center fielder Ruppert Jones drilled a two-run homer to lead Seattle over the Twins.

Jones' third homer of the season off right-hander Pete Redfern in the eighth sent the Twins' starter to the showers and gave the Mariners a 4-1 lead and their eventual winning run.

A's 8, Angels 7
 Larry Lintz scored from second base in the ninth inning on an error by shortstop Bobby Grich to give Oakland its victory over California.

Lintz led off the ninth by drawing a walk off loser John Verhoeven, 0-2, and moved to second on a sacrifice by Matt Alexander. Mitchell Page was intentionally walked and Dick Allen then fled to deep center. Lintz went to third after the catch and scored when the relay throw got away from Grich in short center field.

WINTERVILLE — A. G. Cox took a pair of games from G. R. Whitfield yesterday. In the girls' softball game, Cox took a 12-7 win. Cathy Simpson and Tammy Moore each had homers for Cox.

In the boys' baseball game, Cox rolled to a 16-3 win. Doug McRoy was the winning pitcher, with Emery Vines leading the hitting with two, including a double and a triple.

Chicod In Two Wins
 BETHEL — Chicod swept a pair of games from Bethel yesterday.

In the girls' softball game, Chicod nipped Bethel, 12-11. Monica Fornes had three hits and Stacie Haddock had two to lead Chicod. The Chicod boys took a 9-3 baseball win in their game. Roy Lassiter had three hits and Dixon Page had two for Chicod.

Both Chicod teams are now 2-0.

House OKs Achievement Tests

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The House approved a bill Thursday requiring achievement tests for schoolchildren amid predictions it would change the formula by which state money for schools is allocated.

"We're laying the foundation for a major change in the way we appropriate money for the schools in North Carolina," said Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry, a school teacher, as the House debated the tests which would "assess the effectiveness of the educational process."

Diamont told the House that when the test results showed one school to have scored substantially lower than another, there would be a drive to get more state money to help pull up the low scoring school.

After debating the measure nearly two hours, the House voted 97-8 to pass it on second reading and held it for final House action next Tuesday.

The bill, and a companion which would require all high school students to pass competency tests before they could graduate, are being strongly pushed by Gov. Jim Hunt as a means of making the schools accountable. The House Education Committee is expected to act on the competency test measure Tuesday.

As passed by the House, the bill carried only one change not recommended by the education committee. That was an amendment by Rep. William Creech, D-Wake, which directed the state Board of Education to provide suitable tests for handicapped children. The amendment was adopted 63-43.

Rep. Thomas Hunter, D-Richmond, told the House in debate over the measure that "the people are just not satisfied with what the schools are turning out. They think it is high time the schools were held accountable."

Much of the House debate was centered on an amendment to the testing bill proposed by the education committee. This amendment said, "It is the intent of this testing program to help local school systems and teachers identify and correct student needs in basic skills rather than to provide a tool for comparison of individual students or to evaluate teacher performance." The amendment was adopted by an 82-23 vote.

However, Diamont observed some one from coming in and comparing classes, schools and school districts."

Ayden Bd. Adopts New Water Rate Schedule

AYDEN — A new water rate schedule was adopted by the Ayden Board of Commissioners Tuesday night. The increased rates will become effective with the June billing.

Out-of-town water users will be charged double the amount of the in-town users. The in-town water rate will be $3 for the first 3,000 gallons used and 60 cents for the next 7,000 gallons used. The out-of-town rate will be $6 for the first 3,000 gallons used and $1.20 for the next 7,000 gallons.

The present in-town water rate is $2.25 for the first 4,000 gallons and 35 cents for the next 6,000 gallons. The out of town rate is presently $.50 for the first 4,000 gallons and 70 cents for the next 6,000 gallons.

Two conditional use permits were approved by the board. Conditional use permits were approved for Mrs. Queenie Gardner and Mrs. Carrie Brown. Both were for the placement of mobile homes on their lots. Community Development funds will be used to purchase the mobile homes for $5,000 each.

The board accepted a low bid of $5,174.58 by Leo Venters Motors for the purchase of a new police car.

A Nutrition Program which will feed 25 senior citizens at the Community Building, was approved by the board. The citizens will be fed Monday through Friday. Citizens must only be over age 60 to qualify. There are presently seven other towns in the Mid-East Region who have nutrition programs. Ayden will only provide the facility at which the meals are served.

Natural Gas Action Urged

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Citing America's energy crisis and dwindling natural resources, Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus called Thursday for cooperation among federal agencies responsible for natural resources.

"The time is at hand when we have to sit down and reason together about how we are going to proceed with resource development," Andrus said. "We must have real cooperation. We can't have one agency...preaching environmental protection while another is planning the next environmental disaster."

Andrus, who gained a reputation as an environmentalist while serving two terms as governor of Idaho, was addressing a symposium on U.S. forests policy at Duke University.

Andrus said the Interior Department, in past administrations, has been the scene of intense competition among special interests.

However, he said, the notion that government works best if special interests are simply allowed to fight it out is outdated.

"Each special interest group had its own center of influence within the department," Andrus said. "Some assistant secretaries were so protective of their own special interests that they wouldn't even talk to each other."

Andrus said he has done some reorganizing to give him more control over that kind of infighting.

"Once I've made a decision, any joker who tries to run around us to feather his own nest won't last very long," he said.

New Center Is Business Allure

DETROIT (UPI) — The towering $337 million Renaissance Center bordering the Detroit River is proving to be a beacon for business.

The Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau says that although the spectacular 73-story Detroit Plaza Hotel in the complex isn't even finished yet, its anticipated opening later this year has helped produce an all-time record convention business for the Motor City. During 1976, $104 million in convention business was booked through 1984, a 28 per cent increase over the previous year's bookings.

TV Critics Vote Kind To Producer Susskind

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It looked like Tuxedo Junction. Several hundred men in boiled shirts and ladies in evening gowns were on Stage 4 at station KTTV, right off Fernwood Avenue in Hollywood.

When this many guys appear in penguin suits, it means but one thing: Another awards show. CBS, which aired it this week, called it the first "Television Critics' Circle Awards."

Even talk show host David Susskind of New York was there. It's logical. His firm produced the program and selected the 16 big-city TV critics who nominated 103 contenders in 18 categories.

After the nominating, 225 TV critics nationwide were sent ballots. They even could write in their own choices. Of the 225, 120 critics responded with votes, according to show officials.

Your observer got no ballot. Mr. Susskind's office says it thought your observer still lived in New York and sent it there. But your observer moved here last June to avoid dunning notices and ballots.

Had we received the ballot, we would have written on it, "Please leave three quarts" and resumed the poker game.

Alas, the game was interrupted anyway by orders to cover the TV critics' thing, even though we suggested it meant less to history than the first man to go over Niagara Falls in a beer firkin.

We decamped to the show's press room at Stage 6 at KTTV. There we watched on TV the show going on in Stage 4, a few hundred feet away. Weird, but this is the way award work works.

Stage 6 was divided by a curtain. On one side were those who had to file award news immediately. On the other side were tables at which sundry souls sipped wine, talked and watched the TV show.

Tuxedoed flegmen moved about, aiding scribes when desired and shepherding happy awardees to a pale blue backdrop so they could have their picture took.

It was a good night for producer Susskind. ABC's "Eleanor and Franklin," which his company made, took home five critics' awards, a number matched only by "Roots," which his company didn't make.

And his awards show wasn't bad, as these things go.

It was sprightly and the speeches of awardees were mercifully brief. It would have been much better, though, had not 27 trophies been dispensed. This tended to slow down the entertainment.

Phyllis George

Weds Producer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television sports commentator Phyllis George, 27, and film producer Robert Evans, 46, have been married at a private ceremony at his home in Beverly Hills.

The couple left immediately for a honeymoon in Acapulco after Thursday's ceremony, a Paramount Pictures spokesman said.

Evans met Miss George, who was Miss America in 1971, while he was filming "Black Sunday" at the Super Bowl in Miami in January 1976.

It was his fourth marriage and Miss George's first. He was formerly married to actress All McGraw.

Many Hollywoodians, among them Norman Lear and Mary Tyler Moore, are saying they'll boycott the industry's top back-pat ceremonies.

This is because of a long fight between New York and Hollywood types over control of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. NBC, which scheduled Emmy night for May 15, has postponed it.

It's given the academy until today to come up with an Emmy show for airing, or it'll cancel the whole thing. Hope not. Susskind might propose an awards show honoring the year's best awards show.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day for making new and interesting plans for the future that have long-range implications. It is also a time to put your romantic side of life on a more fascinating basis.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study what your true objectives are and then take definite steps in the right directions toward achieving them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Analyze all information you have in order to put that plan to work successfully. Take time to improve your surroundings.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to be more honest with your good friends and gain their goodwill. Attend the social and make the evening a happy one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Visit congenials who can be of assistance to you and help you to get ahead faster. Avoid a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can start a new venture today or give new impetus to one already in motion and get excellent results. Express happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a new system through which you can handle your responsibilities more efficiently. Improve your appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you cooperate more with your associates, you find that more success is possible in the future. Take better care of your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Become more enthused about the work you have to do and you will be more efficient at it. Express personal happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Engage in favorite hobby with congenials. Give encouragement to mate and have more harmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make needed changes to your surroundings. Do some entertaining at home and bring more happiness into it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Improve on your daily activities so they run more smoothly in the future. Come to a better understanding with mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Pay more attention to finances if you want to live a fuller and more satisfying life in the future. Be clever with friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be full of pioneering ideas that need to be made practical. Be sure to give the best education you can afford. Teach the best kind of religious philosophy that will enable the life to be most successful.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune

West led the jack of hearts, won by declarer's queen. The ace of hearts was cashed and a heart was ruffed with the nine of trumps. Since he could not overruff, East elected to signal with the eight of clubs.

Declarer returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds and continued with a fourth heart. However, instead of ruffing, he made the loser-on-loser play of discarding a diamond from dummy. East did the best he could by ruffing and shifting to a trump, but declarer made no mistake. He rose with the ace, cashed the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in dummy. All declarer had to lose was a trump trick — making five-odd.

Our sharp-eyed readers will have noticed that the contract could have been defeated. Instead of signalling in clubs, East must discard a diamond on the third heart. When declarer discards a diamond on the fourth heart, East does likewise. Now, when declarer tries to ruff a diamond in dummy, East can overruff and West will eventually score the king of spades for the setting trick.

Henri Svarc and Jean-Michel Boulenger of France have been their country's outstanding pair for almost two decades. That they are still among the world's great partnerships was proved by their recent victory in the prestigious Sunday Times Championship held in London over the last weekend in January.

Svarc's opening two spade bid was intermediate in strength—forcing for only one round and not to game. Boulenger intended his jump to game as a close-out, but Svarc felt his hand merited one try for slam. As a result, he became declarer at a tenuous contract of five spades.

Costs Cut Swiss Hotel Visitors

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) - Swiss hotels registered a decline in visitors in 1976 for the third year in a row. The Hoteliers Association blamed the four per cent drop on the high value of the Swiss franc, which makes Switzerland an expensive place to visit on vacation or business. The association said the number of visitors from the United States rose by 16 per cent, but other major categories declined, with Italian visitors down 21 per cent, Britons 14 per cent, West Germans 8 per cent, the Dutch 7 per cent and French 5 per cent.

TOURISM INCREASE

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) - Official statistics from the State Tourism Corporation show that 426,182 foreign tourists visited Venezuela in 1975 against 116,962 in 1970.

Ferries Relieve Strain Of Golden Gate's Traffic

By RICK DU BROW
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Custom will not stale, nor time wither the birth of this wonder structure today stretching across the mile-wide expanse of ocean water where San Francisco's dramatic history began, the Golden Gate. The Golden Gate!"

In the 40 years since this tribute was written for the opening of the bridge, custom and time have been kind to the spectacular, tourist attraction. But it also has become another victim of commuter hour traffic jams.

Officials, coming full circle, are — in the space age — depending on the old tradition of a plush ferryboat fleet to relieve bridge traffic, not to mention carrying on the city's reputation for elegant taste.

But the ferries have their opponents. They claim the cost is an expensive luxury for the number of people who can be served; that added buses would be a more efficient solution. Bridge officials concede higher auto tolls on the Golden Gate are needed to subsidize ferry operation but argue "drivers will be able to move at a reasonable speed — that's the tradeoff."

The San Francisco ferryboat tradition goes back more than 100 years. At one time more than 50 such vessels crisscrossed the bay.

The end of the gracious ferries, with their restaurants, bars and ladies' parlors, came two years after President Franklin D. Roosevelt, on May 27, 1937, tapped a gold telegraph key in the White House, sending a signal to let the first traffic move across the Golden Gate.

The bridge was to be not only a thing of beauty and a link to the great Redwood country to the north, but the answer to the increasing automobile traffic between the city and Marin and Sonoma Counties.

However, increasing suburbanism has caught up with San Francisco. And thus have transit officials turned to the simpler past for a solution to the complicated present of auto congestion.

The result is perhaps the world's most luxurious commute — "walking the decks to stretch legs cramped by eight hours at a desk; breathing the clean salt air from the bay; relaxing totally as you gaze at the patterns of the waves or the sunset or the panoramas of shoreline cities," as one writer put it.

In less poetic statements, the Golden Gate Bridge District says its integrated ferry and bus system is aimed at keeping buried such extreme past proposals as building another deck for the historic span, or even another bridge to parallel the first.

"The number of commuters had been growing at the rate of about 1,000 a year, but the last count indicates that the number increased 2,000 in the last year — which was a stunning rise," said a spokesman for the bridge district.

"Our anticipation is that the ferry system is the key to meeting that growth in future years."

With Californians ever aware of earthquake predictions, the Bridge District also pointed out in a report to the state legislature:

"In the event an earthquake or other disaster should ever close the Golden Gate Bridge ... the ferries could well be the only means of transporting people and goods between San Francisco and Marin until repairs are completed."

There are now half a dozen ferryboats. Two are run by a private firm that also conducts tours. The others belong to the bridge district, but one is still being prepared in San Diego.

About 21,000 cars now cross the Golden Gate during peak commute hours, averaging 1.3 passengers each, or about 28,000 persons. Another 9,000 persons commute by bus. About 1,000 use the ferries.

The District hopes its ferries — with such attractions as bars, snacks, sun decks and cushy seats and surroundings — eventually will attract more than 3,500 commuters, reducing rush hour traffic on the bridge by at least 2,500 cars a day.

It is called progress. One passenger noted as the ferryboat Marin sped almost noiselessly through the bay, "As the French say, the more things change the more they are the same."

Couple Records Old Headstones

John Fowler Mitchell, 90, and his 86-year-old wife, Sheila, have set themselves the mammoth task of recording every headstone in every cemetery in Scotland. It's a hobby that has lasted 20 years.

The collections of information and maps which they publish at intervals have proved invaluable not only to genealogists and historians but also to many ordinary people from all over the world who are looking for clues to the identity of their ancestors.

Mitchell first became interested in cemeteries when he was stationed with the Army in India many years ago. On the tombstones of Delhi, he said, he found a fascinating precis of much of India's history, including details of a succession of invaders, such as Moguls and Persians.

On his return to Scotland, he began to search for traces of his own forebears and discovered that Scottish churchyards are ideally suited for genealogical study.

"For a start," he said, "in Scotland, a wife's maiden name is always included on a gravestone. In the same plot, or nearby, you'll find all the related family and children, so it's just a case of comparing names."

There was also a long tradition of naming the children after their grandparents in a strict order of precedence, and that makes it easier to establish relationships. Another help can be clues such as you find in Perthshire where decorative signs are used on the stones to indicate the dead man's trade.

"A loom or shuttle, for example, would indicate that he had been a weaver, while a knife would mean that he had been a shoemaker, and a hammer that he had been a smith."

The Mitchells have now become well known overseas for their work, and applications for their help arrive daily from the United States, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. One recent problem they successfully solved was to trace the ancestors of a German from Hamburg who was descended from a Scottish ex-ciseman.

When the Mitchells visit a churchyard, they make a plan of the site, marking the position of each stone and its relationship to those on either side.

"It's real detective work," says Mrs. Mitchell. "We cross-check our findings with old records ... and information from any other possible source, such as old lists of university students or, say, landowners — anything, in short, which might give us clues."

"The work must be done methodically or it's of little value and you have to remember to look at the back of each stone as well as the front. In one recent case involving a stone leaning at an angle, we found the name of not only one wife but two more hidden at the base!"

What really fascinates Sheila Mitchell is the continuity. "My grandfather," she said, "was a well known portrait painter in Edinburgh, and very often I'm able to tell people where there is a picture of one of their ancestors so that they can go and photograph it. You would be surprised at how little the features often seem to change."

Four Pitt County students have been tapped for initiation into Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman honor society at North Carolina State University.

The students are as follows: Charles Kernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Kernan, Jr. and Evelyn A. Maurakis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.D.
