

Energy Warning By Pres. Carter Tonight

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is preparing to warn the American people that "the sky is falling" as far as energy is concerned and that there must be sacrifices now to hold off abrupt and painful shortages in the future.

Carter is beginning an intensive campaign to win public acceptance of his national energy plan, which he will outline tonight. The nationally broadcast speech, originally dubbed another "fireside chat" by some, will be a more formal affair, delivered from the Oval Office of the White House.

The energy policy will be revealed in depth on Wednesday when Carter addresses a joint session of Congress.

The Oval Office address has been dubbed by some White House officials as Carter's "the sky is falling speech." It will begin a week largely devoted to persuading the public and Congress that stringent mandatory measures are needed to meet the nation's energy needs.

One White House official familiar with the prepared address said Carter "will tell them we must conserve now to avoid real hardships later on."

Carter's address will be broadcast on television networks at 8 p.m. EST.

The official said Carter will describe in straightforward terms the history of the energy crisis worldwide back to the 1930s, then will ask in advance for support of the tough energy package to be unveiled before Congress on Wednesday night.

Tonight, Carter is expected to compare the gravity of the energy problem to America's part in World War II, with a personal appeal to national unity and sacrifice designed "to avoid another Pearl Harbor," the White House official said.

The President remained in Washington over the weekend to put final touches on the energy package. Aides to White House energy adviser James Schlesinger said final decisions on parts of the program were still being made Sunday afternoon.

The proposal has not yet been made public officially, but its major elements were one of Washington's worst kept secrets and were widely reported last week.

One source said over the weekend that an additional federal gasoline tax, which could rise to 50 cents a gallon by the mid 1980s, will be included in the plan. The federal gasoline tax now is four cents per gallon.

The source said there are other potentially controversial items, which remain unknown outside a small circle of presidential energy advisers. He declined to reveal them.

Carter will make three separate television appearances during the week to talk about energy problems and his proposals, which he has acknowledged will cost him 15 to 20 points in public opinion approval polls.

Besides tonight's speech and the address to Congress, the President also has scheduled a news conference Friday to discuss energy.

In addition to the gasoline tax, Carter's program also is expected to offer tax incentives for homeowners to insulate their houses; require utility companies to convert to coal; allow domestic oil prices to rise to the world price level set by the 13 Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Congress Returns, Faces Uncertain Tax 'Package'

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is returning to Washington to hear President Carter's proposals for a broad new energy program and to decide how to handle the remnants of the administration's economic stimulus package.

Before leaving for a 10-day Easter recess, the Senate had scheduled the big Carter tax bill for immediate attention on its return today. The House already passed a version that included Carter's plan to send $50 rebates to most Americans in a one-shot economic stimulation effort.

But Carter has given up on the $50 payments and Senate handlers of the bill now seem certain to put off action while they decide whether to consider the measure at all. They could decide to salvage portions of Carter's plan by attaching them to other measures.

Republicans, meanwhile, were repeating their demands for a permanent tax cut in place of the one-time rebates and other payments, even though Carter said at a news conference Friday he would veto any legislation containing such provisions.

With the removal of the immediate prospect of a long debate over the $50 payments, Congress turned its attention to Carter's proposals for a national energy program. The President is to present them formally at a joint House and Senate session Wednesday, but is to outline them to the country in a broadcast talk tonight.

It already is generally known that the energy package combines mandatory conservation measures, such as an increase in the gasoline tax of as much as 50 cents a gallon over a period of several years. The package also is expected to include a tax of up to $2,500 on new gas-guzzling cars, along with incentives to both individuals and businesses to conserve fuel.

Among features of the Carter tax bill considered certain to be retained in one way or another are continuations of tax reductions now in effect, but due to expire.

The bill would extend through 1978 a general tax credit that allows a taxpayer to take off his bill $35 for himself and each of his dependents, or alternatively to take a 2 per cent credit, up to $180, on his income. Also to be extended is an earned income credit up to $400, benefitting low-income working families. A temporary cut in the tax on the first $50,000 annual income of corporations also is likely to survive.

Another provision of the bill likely to be saved is one that would simplify tax forms and give an estimated tax cut to 46 million couples, while raising taxes for about two million single persons.

This provision, applying only to those who do not itemize their deductions, would provide new flat standard deductions of $2,200 for single persons and $3,200 for couples filing jointly.

Oil Crunch In Soviet Future

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia now is self-sufficient in oil, but in a few years it will face an energy crisis that is likely to sharpen U.S.-Soviet rivalries in the Middle East, CIA analysts predict.

This is one of the most startling and, in the view of analysts, significant conclusions in a still-secret report to President Carter. That report, mentioned briefly by Carter last Friday, warns of a potential global oil shortage in less than 10 years.

Until the new CIA analysis was made, most experts had regarded Russia as the only major power without any serious worries about future energy supplies.

Russia now ranks as the biggest oil-refining nation in the world and has been lavish in exports, especially to its East European allies who receive an estimated 75 per cent of their oil supplies from the Soviet Union.

Russia also sells oil to West Germany, Denmark, Iceland and other NATO countries. On occasion, particularly during the Arab oil embargo after the 1973 Mideast war, oil exports gave Moscow a tool for applying political pressure.

U.S. intelligence analysts believe a sharp decline in Soviet oil supplies will force Russia to compete with the United States and Western Europe for Persian Gulf oil.

That, in turn, likely will sharpen U.S.-Soviet political ri-

General Assembly May Provide Governor Anxious Moments

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1977 General Assembly, which so far has gone along with Gov. Jim Hunt's major proposals, may give him some anxious moments in the week ahead.

Succession, Utilities Commission revamping and testing bills are again expected to be in the limelight. All are major items in the governor's legislative program.

The measure that would move most of the Utilities Commission staff to a new agency with a director appointed by the governor and instruct it to represent the public in rate cases will be on the Senate calendar Wednesday. It won the approval of the Senate Utilities Committee this week. House Speaker Carl Stewart and some other legislative leaders have opposed the measure.

All-America

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — This Edgecombe County town has been named one of the nation's 10 All-America cities for 1976-77 and Dr. Moses A. Ray, mayor pro tem, says the honor is "deserved."

"People here, regardless of race, have faced community problems and tried to do something about them," Ray said. "And we have dealt with them without any violence of problems of that sort."

The awards were to be announced formally today by the National Municipal League, but town officials had been privately notified in advance.

The All-America awards cite communities whose citizens have addressed problems in their areas. Tarboro was the smallest community to receive this year's award.

The town was cited for its efforts in housing, voter registration, community development and historical preservation.

Specifically cited were the East Tarboro Citizens' League and the Edgecombe County Historical Society.

N.C. Crop Outlook: More Soybeans And Less Tobacco, Corn

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina farmers will plant more soybeans, but less tobacco and corn this year, according to a survey conducted by the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The survey indicated acreage for flue-cured tobacco dropping 15 per cent below 1976 levels to 375,000 acres. That reflects a decrease in the base allotment for 1977, the service said.

Burley tobacco was expected to remain at the 1976 level of 9,000 acres.

Soybean acreage was expected to increase 17 per cent from last year to about 1.4 million acres, but corn acreage was expected to fall by two per cent to 2 million acres.

Intended plantings for peanuts was set at 169,000 acres, reflecting little change from recent years, but still other crops were expected to rise.

Cotton planting was predicted to total 90,000 acres, a 20 per cent increase, while summer Irish potatoes were forecast for a five per cent climb at 4,600 acres.

Some 365,000 acres of hay and 185,000 acres of oats, reflecting increases of four per cent and six per cent, respectively, were expected in 1977.

Expected declines included sweet potatoes, down three per cent to 34,000 acres; barley, down 11 per cent to 65,000 acres; and sorghum, down 12 per cent to 110,000 acres.

COMPLAINT ABOUT ADVERTISING

I have just received "$25 worth of name brand cosmetics" which I ordered for $4 ("a double order"). It's a bunch of nothing, yet I've seen an advertisement for this offer in at least two nationally distributed publications. To whom may I complain? I know I have no hope of getting my money back. Mrs. S.

Hotline gave you the address of the National Advertising Review Board, which the Consumer Complaint Guide says "was created to handle complaints about national advertising."

It goes on to say that the NARB is concerned primarily with truth and accuracy in national advertising. Your complaint can be about advertising in newspapers, magazines, displays in retail stores, in service showrooms, on billboards, on television, radio, or even on the packages you buy.

It promises that your complaint will be acknowledged and referred to the operational staff of NARB. If it is considered valid, it will be brought to the attention of the advertiser, who will be asked to provide substantiation for claims or statements in question. The evidence will be evaluated and a decision made. If, after an examination of all the facts, they determine that your complaint is valid, they will request the advertiser to make changes. If he agrees to do so, and thereby removes the basis of your complaint, the case is considered closed. They may also decide that your complaint is not valid and take no further action on it.

If negotiations with the advertiser are unsuccessful and the advertiser won't make changes, the staff will refer the matter to the chairman of the NARB for Board action. If the advertiser still refuses to make changes, the Board will publicly refer your complaint to an appropriate government enforcement agency. When it refers your complaint to government for action, it will issue a statement to the press disclosing both its own position and the advertiser's.

The professional staff of the NARB deals primarily with matters of truth and accuracy, but will accept complaints concerning general content, including such matters as taste, morality and social responsibility.

The address is National Advertising Review Board, 850 Third Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022.

You say you are drafting a complaint to send to this Board, as well as to consumer protection agencies of North Carolina and the State of Ohio and the City of Cleveland, the city out of which the makeup offer people are operating.

Books On How To Kill Or Sabotage Marketed

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Pornographic books, sure to spark an emotional argument anywhere in North Carolina, would pale beside certain "how-to" books readily available in this city's bookstores.

"How to Kill," "The Anarchist's Cookbook," and "Destruction by Demolition, Incendiarism and Sabotage" are just a few titles legally sold to the public.

The Fayetteville Times, in a tour of area bookstores, found that store operators generally refuse to sell to minors, but admit the books probably end up in minors' hands.

Besides civilian works, books include training manuals from the Army, Marine Corps and Central Intelligence Agency on such topics as booby traps, incendiaries and other unconventional weapons.

Some detail how to bomb a car, slit a person's throat, make poison from snuff and buy bomb materials without attracting attention.

"I won't sell them to a kid," said Bill Tosco, a retired

Army major and owner of B&A Militaria. "I've had them try to buy these books...Of course, there's nothing to stop them from getting some adult to buy them, once you get right down to it.

"And, of course, you can order all this stuff by mail," he said. "They advertise it in all kinds of magazines. When you send for it by mail, how do they know how old you are?"

"I wouldn't sell them to minors, because the books do mention household chemicals that a kid might mess around with and get hurt," said Barbara Guy, owner of Ranger Joe's Militaria.

Why would a kid want the books in the first place?

"Their minds run kind of military," she said, a reference to the city's proximity to Ft. Bragg and Pope Air Force Base.

Tosco said the FBI once investigated his store when a Ft. Bragg officer reported he could buy manuals at B&A when the Army wouldn't.

Tosco said soldiers sometimes tell him they have Dixon said he's particularly worried because area children have easy access to bomb components stolen from Ft. Bragg, adding such components are frequently found in public school lockers.

"A civilian might think there's a lot of mystique, but these things (in the books) are generally common knowledge," said Col. William Crompton, public affairs officer at the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance. "Everybody knows how to make a booby trap if they want to do it."

Animal Carvings Star In Accessory Designs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There had to be pigs in the future of Italian designer Emilio Bergamin of Milan, he explained in discussing his collection of decorative accessories that include some charming carved wood pigs, and other animals, as well as ceramics, glass, metals and "a different kind of acrylic."

"When I was a little boy, my father would buy a pig and we would play with it, and then when it got big he would want to kill it and everyone in the family would cry," he said. He had eight brothers and sisters so it was quite a howl, he says.

It was something Emilio remembered when he was designing a collection of homes accessories. His artisans carved pigs of Swedish pine, small as one with a cigarette lighter in it, large as the jolly-looking pig four feet tall that holds a tray which is at the entrance to the New York showroom of his American partner, Keith Smith.

In another room a pair of boars' heads at either end of a long serving tray is on tall, crossed legs, making it appear to be a piece of furniture.

In glorifying the pig, Emilio has had to put a fancy price on its head. Little pigs are about $100, but it takes six months to carve the $3,000 boars tray.

Other animal carvings include handsome giraffes that flank a magazine rack. One pair of giraffes that form the posts of library steps "was sold from a photograph." There are turtle cigarette lighters and a large turtle shell wall decoration. A pair of horse-head sconces on the wall made an enormous hit when shown recently at their showroom in Dallas, where 20 orders were taken.

"We meet with the women every evening Ms. Dixon explains," and give them the facts:

"Fact No. 1: About 75 per cent of the patients who have had heart attacks will be able to resume a reasonably normal, productive lifestyle when they recover.

"But be positive," adds the nurse. "Don't let your guilt cause negative vibes. The poor-man-what-will-become-of-him attitude is destructive.

"Fact No. 2: The patient should not be pampered or shielded. Don't exclude him from the everyday decisions and problems of family life. Don't overprotect him if you want him to regain his confidence and self-esteem."

A curious thing happens during the group session, Ms. Dixon reports. Relieved of their sense of guilt, the women open up and start expressing some of the thoughts that had been haunting them since their husbands became ill:

"I felt responsible for Sam's heart attack because we had a big fight an hour before."

"Tom always said I was too extravagant; he worried about our not saving money."

"I shouldn't have looked for a career of my own. I should have helped Jim more in his business."

Ms. Dixon says that once it was made clear that their husbands' heart attacks were probably unrelated to these situations and that, in time, their husbands would again lead active lives, "the women went to the patients' bedrooms with lighter hearts. And the men usually felt the change in attitude and responded."

Group Discussions Help Heart Patients' Wives

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Wives of men who have had heart attacks often have unnecessary guilt feelings, says a nurse clinician at a medical center that specialized in cardiac disorders and open heart surgery.

Nurse specialists at Long Island Jewish-Hillside medical Center here, in talking with the wives of cardiac patients, became aware of how common these unfounded guilt feelings are, says cardiac nurse Bernadette Dixon.

"Wives of men in their middle years worry about a hard-working husband having a heart attack," she says. "And if he is actually stricken, the woman asks herself, 'What did I do wrong? Could I have somehow helped alleviate the pressure on him? Did I demand too much of him?'"

"Wash the guilt out of your mind because, in most cases, it has no basis," she advises.

The nurses felt that "these women needed help, not only for their sakes but for the patients' as well," Ms. Dixon says. As a way of extending this help, the cardiac nurses started a discussion group for the women whose husbands were in the hospital's coronary care unit.

"We meet with the women every evening Ms. Dixon explains," and give them the facts:

"Fact No. 1: About 75 per cent of the patients who have had heart attacks will be able to resume a reasonably normal, productive lifestyle when they recover.

"But be positive," adds the nurse. "Don't let your guilt cause negative vibes. The poor-man-what-will-become-of-him attitude is destructive.

Author Says 'Men No Longer Prefer Blondes; They're Wary'

By RANDI ROSENBLUM
NEW YORK (AP) — Do gentlemen still prefer blondes? Anita Loos, who created the durable tale of man's weakness for fair hair a half century ago, says no.

"It's changed, and I think it's women's lib that's done it... They've spoiled the whole racket," says Miss Loos.

"Now men are wary. They back away from blondes. The women's libbers got the idea of getting up on soap boxes and saying that women are smarter than men."

"And we are. But we should keep our mouths shut."

Anita Loos, 4 feet 11 and going on 84, talked profusely during an interview in her Manhattan apartment where she works every morning. Her third memoir, "Cast of Thousands," has just been published and she now is writing about the Talmadge sisters, Dorothy and Constance.

"Who can afford to retire?" she asks, eyes snapping behind oversized sunglasses.

Miss Loos, sparrow-like and well preserved, has written more than 200 screenplays, novels, plays and musicals.

During three decades in Hollywood her works have been the vehicle to stardom for the likes of Douglas Fairbanks, Jean Harlow, Clark Gable, Carol Channing and Audrey Hepburn.

But she may be the last of her breed. She says the day of the screenwriter is past. "This is the day of the director. It changed when directors got better and found out they could do their own films better than anyone else. For instance, Lina Wertmuller. Certainly no writer could ever write her films the way she does."

Miss Loos began her career as a child actress in San Francisco, a natural bent for the daughter of a man who divided his time between the newspaper business and the theater. She soon turned to writing scenarios for D.W. Griffith.

"The day came when I could make more money in half an hour of writing than in a week in the theater," she says. "I decided this is where I spend my time."

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the light-hearted story of a light-headed Lorelei Lee who knows that diamonds are a girl's best friend, is her best-known work.

"I think I wrote that book because I was jealous of a blonde," says the once very brunette Miss Loos. "No, I wasn't jealous. I didn't want to be like her. I was resentful of the stupidity of the men who fell for her. I said 'I'll fix her' ... but how she fixed me! I mean she fixed me for life."

She was married to John Emerson, the director. She says he was the weak partner, but she remained with him to the end, including his 16 years in a sanitarium. After their marriage, they retired to New York in the late '20s to enjoy the fortunes of Hollywood, but the crash of '29 drove them back to Southern California and Irving Thalberg's MGM.

For Thalberg she wrote "The Red-Headed Woman," which vaulted Harlow to fame.

Memories of the 16 years she spent at MGM and the people she encountered fill "Casts of Thousands." Of F. Scott Fitzgerald she says: "The strangest thing about Fitzgerald was that he had only one ambition in life, and that was to write motion pictures. He was so far above anything he aimed at, and it really was a tragedy of his life that he never got a script on film."

Of Aldous Huxley: "The trouble with Aldous is that once in a while a genius isn't very smart."

Thalberg died in 1936. "When Irving died, I said 'The jig is up. I'm going to get out of here,'" she says.

While Miss Loos works on her book about the Talmadge sisters, "Happy Birthday," the comedy she wrote for Helen Hayes in 1946, is being made into a musical.

Of all of her hits, her favorite is still "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which has been translated into 14 languages, has been twice a movie and twice a Broadway musical. It last played Broadway in 1974 as "Lorelei," retitled at the insistence of Carol Channing, playing the lead role.

An Apology To West Virginians

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For many years we West Virginians have been trying hard to let outsiders know that we are not all barefoot, illiterate, backward mountain folk. But no matter how we try to point up our economic strengths, our flourishing industries, our symphony orchestras and our cultural progress, someone always shoots us down.

The media also does its part by playing up every West Virginia coal mine disaster, prison riot, or national tragedy or scandal.

Can you imagine our delight when in a recent basketball game, we West Virginia Mountaineers defeated Notre Dame, the perennial powerhouse Irish, before a television audience of millions!

We are not all dumb Hillbillies; Cyrus Vance, President Carter's choice for secretary of state, Robert C. Byrd, the majority leader of the U.S. Senate, Pearl Buck, the famous author, the late Pete Lisagor, a highly respected newspaper correspondent, Peter Marshall, host of the Hollywood Squares, actors Don Knotts and Fuzzy Knight, and sports idol Jerry West were all from West Virginia.

We were very disappointed when you, Dear Abby, our favorite columnist, ran a letter in your column that read in part: "Should we allow our daughter, a fifth-generation American, to be married without dignity like a West Virginia Hillbilly?"—and you made no effort to correct that writer.

Surely, an enlightened writer like yourself can't share that bigoted misconception of our beautiful Mountain State.

I think you owe us West Virginians an apology.

PROUD WEST VIRGINIAN
MARTINSBURG, W. VA.

DEAR PROUD: You are right. I plead guilty to the sin of omission. I should NOT have allowed that blatantly bigoted remark to go unchallenged.

As you know, I try to keep my answers brief, but that is no excuse for failing to set that woman straight.

I didn't realize the seriousness of my mistake until I received an avalanche of letters from irate West Virginians.

I have learned a very valuable lesson. I apologize. Thank you for taking me to task. I had it coming!

Very truly yours,

DEAR ABBY: About unwanted visitors in a hospital: When a patient has an unwanted visitor, if the patient will just close his eyes and pretend he has dropped off to sleep, the visitor will quietly leave.

I am a Gray Lady and I often suggest this to patients who complain that company wears them out.

DEAR GRAY LADY: Take it from an old Gray Lady (either way): Never underestimate the persistence of some visitors. Some have been known to sit for hours waiting for the patient to "wake up."

DEAR ABBY: In reply to DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO, you wrote: "One of life's most baffling mysteries is what people 'in love' see in each other."

Health Systems Agency OKs Initial Draft For Objectives

The Governing Body of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency (ECHSA), at its regular meeting Wednesday night, accepted the first draft of the Health Systems Plan for the 29 eastern counties of North Carolina.

Dr. William E. Laupus, Chairman of the Plan Development Committee, presented the draft on behalf of the committee and noted that the first draft is the result of several months of study and preparation by the Plan Development Committee.

The ECHSA Health Systems Plan assesses the current health status of the 29 county area and attempts to define goals, needs and long range objectives for particular health services such as medical and dental care, hospitals and nursing home services. In the Health Systems Plan the Members of the ECHSA Plan Development Committee have made recommendations on how best to meet the health care needs of the people of Eastern North Carolina.

The Health Systems Plan will be studied in the next two months by members of the ECHSA Governing Body and by the public. The Governing Body will conduct a workshop in May to review and discuss the plan in detail. The plan will be modified based on ideas submitted by all members of the Governing Body before public hearings begin in June.

In other business the Governing Body nominated four members to the North Carolina Health Coordinating Council. They are as follows: Mrs. Ila White of Hertford, Lee Morgan of New Bern, Mrs. Ruth Cherry of Rocky Mount and Mrs. Lucille Gorham of Greenville. These four names will be submitted to Governor Jim Hunt who will select two to serve on the Council. The Governing Body also elected Mrs. Easter Dozier of Moyock as Secretary, replacing Mrs. Ruth Cherry who has assumed the office of second vice chairman.

A formula for determining the number of nursing home beds needed for the area was approved by the board. The board will recommend the formula to the State Health Planning and Development Agency.

The Governing Body endorsed an application by the Tyrrell County Hospital for grant funds to be used for improvement of hospital facilities.

A resolution was adopted by the board in support of a bill currently in the N.C. General Assembly to establish a statewide school health education program in North Carolina.

A bill currently in the U.S. Senate, which would permit Medicare/Medicaid reimbursement to rural clinics staffed by physician extenders, was discussed and a resolution in support of this bill was tabled to allow further study.

Dr. W. K. Wassink of Camden, a new member of the board was introduced.

Pitt County members of the Governing Body are Dr. William E. Laupus, Mrs. Lucille Gorham, Dr. R.W. McConnell and Ed Warren.

Identical Twins; Identical Hurts

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Even in a minor traffic accident, a pair of identical twin sisters remained true to form.

Ann C. Snell of Atlanta and her sister, Florence C. Bernstein of Richmond, Va., received everything in pairs while they grew up in rural Virginia. After 43 years, apparently nothing has changed.

Each received a neck injury and a bruised right knee when Mrs. Bernstein's car crashed into a street excavation during the weekend.

"Identical injuries," Mrs. Bernstein said from the hospital.

"There were even two police departments investigating," she said, explaining that the car rolled from the city limits of Decatur across the street and into unincorporated DeKalb County.

Joan Mondale At Arts Meet

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Joan Mondale is here to meet with artists and arts officials as part of a trip to find out "how government can assist the arts."

The Vice President's wife, who arrived on Sunday, said she plans to be a "lobbyist and an advocate" for the arts.

She also has visited Kansas City, Chicago and Los Angeles.

New Carribean Countries Seen

By PIETER VAN BENNEKOM

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — At least three more small Caribbean island nations seem ready to join the ranks of the independent countries this year, even though independence is still a hotly debated issue on the islands themselves.

The governments of St. Kitts, Dominica, and St. Lucia, all former British colonies, have announced their intentions to seek full independence from London in 1977 and, according to their present constitutions, Britain must grant independence upon request.

The premiers of the three island-nations have just been to London for talks with the Foreign Office and all three argued that the overwhelming majorities of their peoples wanted independence now even though opposition leaders, who also made the trip, held the opposite view.

There are some similarities in the issues for and against independence on each island, but the situation is fundamentally different in all three.

On Dominica and St. Lucia, the opposition parties have

New Position For Rumsfeld

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Former Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld has been elected president and chief executive officer of G.D. Searle & Co., an international health care company.

Rumsfeld, 44, an ex-Illinois congressman and chief aide to former President Gerald Ford, will assume his new positions June 1. No salary was announced.

Rumsfeld, who is teaching at the Northwestern University Graduate School of Management, was elected on Sunday by the executive committee of the Searle board of directors.

argued that their governments do not have a mandate from the voters to lead their nations into independence and should call a plebiscite first. The governments have rejected the plebiscite as unnecessary.

But while the government of St. Lucia's Premier John Compton is considered moderate against an opposition which includes radical Socialist Robert Odum, the situation is exactly the reverse on Dominica.

There, Premier Patrick John heads a government which according to one opposition politician seems to be drifting into a leftist "quadrangle" with Cuba, Jamaica and Guyana. John's wife recently led a cultural mission to Cuba.

On Dominica, the opposition Dominican Freedom Party is the moderate force.

A common factor is the fear among opposition politicians that their governments, granted independence, may curtail some of the democratic liberties enjoyed under the British parliamentary system of democracy.

However, there is little evidence to support those fears. In the six former British colonies in the Caribbean area which have already become independent — Jamaica, Trinidad, Barbados, Grenada, Bahamas and Guyana — democratic systems of government are still firmly in place and no military or other dictators have emerged.

On St. Kitts, the main issue is the territorial boundaries of the new independent state and how many islands it will include.

When Britain granted "associate statehood" — something in between colony and independence — to St. Lucia, Dominica, St. Vincent, Antigua and St. Kitts in 1967, St. Kitts was grouped together with two neighboring islands, Nevis and Anguilla.

However, Anguillians ran Kit-titian policemen off their island in 1969 and have not been effectively a part of the three-island federation since then. Separatist sentiment on Nevis is also running high, to the point that the official St. Kitts opposition leader, Simeon Daniel, is the leader of the fight to make Nevis once again a separate colony of Britain.

St. Kitts, whose economy is like many other sister islands is based on sugar and tourism, has an area of 65 square miles and a population of about 50,000. Nevis has about 12,000 people in an area of 35 square miles and Anguilla about the same land area with only 6,000 persons.

Dominica would be the biggest of the new independent nations with a total land area of about 290 square miles — about the same as Long Island's Nassau County — and a population of about 75,000. It is wedged between the two French islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique.

St. Lucia, just south of Martinique, has an area of 238 square miles and population of just over 100,000.

Two Beach Fires

By The Associated Press

Fires at Morehead City and Carolina Beach destroyed two movie theaters Sunday night and early today, and authorities say arson is suspected in at least one of the blazes.

Fire broke out at the aging City Cinema in downtown Morehead City at about 10:15 p.m., during the last show of the night. Fire Chief Edward Earl Guthery said the same theater had been damaged by a fire two weeks ago, but "this time she went right to the ground."

"Arson is definitely a possibility," Guthery said.

At Carolina Beach, the Wave Theater on the back boardwalk was destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin this morning.

No injuries were reported in either fire, and no estimates of damage were available.

At Carolina Beach the fire was limited to the theater, but a novelty shop nearby suffered some smoke and water damage. Firemen from three volunteer departments fought the blaze, which was brought under control around dawn.

Four fire departments were used in fighting the Morehead City fire.

From a budgeting standpoint, things may be a little better for Greenville Utilities customers in the fiscal year 1977-78.

The Utilities Commission last week adopted a flat fuel adjustment charge billing plan for the coming fiscal year.

That means the commission will anticipate what the total utilities fuel charge will be for the full year, average it out over 12 months and bill the customers on this basis.

It doesn't, of course, mean that electric customers will escape all or part of the hated fossil fuel charge. It will simply mean that, rather than endure the big fluctuations of this year, the customers will be able to anticipate the fuel charge for personal budgeting purposes.

If the fuel charge, which is billed to Greenville

Utilities by its supplier VEPCO, appeared to be running ahead what is anticipated, further adjustments would have to be made.

In the long run the customer would still pay the fuel charge, but the customer wouldn't be faced with situations such as we had this year where the charge was actually a minus figure one month, and in others was a large percentage of the basic bill.

In addition to helping with personal budgeting, the new plan will help the customer who is careful to conserve electricity during exceptionally hot or cold months to see the results of his conservation.

The flat fuel charge looks like a pretty good idea to us. The total fossil fuel bill will have to be paid sooner or later, but at least it can be done on a more orderly basis.

One Loophole In The Saccharin Uproar

It now appears the Food and Drug Administration might leave a loophole in the Great Saccharin Ban.

A ban on saccharin as a food and beverage additive is still planned, but the drug sale will still be allowed over-the-counter.

Many years ago margarine users had to add their own color to the butter substitute, to avoid conflict with natural butter.

Who knows? Maybe now some soft drinks will be marketed without sugar or saccharin. Possibly the users will add their own artificial sweeteners.

Local Control Is The Key

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Sponsors of land use legislation for North Carolina say they learned their lesson well in the early stages of action in the Coastal Area Management Act implementation.

Local involvement is the secret of success. County governments and municipal boards, local planners, and citizens by the score have been directly involved in the process.

If nothing else has been accomplished, the legislation has prompted local people to take stock of what they have; and the doing of that invariably leads to a critical look at problems and commitments to protect the good while correcting the bad, state planners and legislators who push land use now believe.

Providing that local involvement was not an easy matter. During heated legislative infighting as the Coastal measure was enacted three years ago, things started out with strong state control — both professionals and elective or appointed officials.

Local Citizens

A major compromise was establishment of the Coastal Resources Commission, with the law specifying local citizens of particular interests who would be named to that supervising board.

The battle grew so involved and bitter that sponsors backed off the statewide land use proposals, choosing to enact the Coastal bill and leaving the remainder for later. Legislative leaders are glad they waited, for now the General Assembly has before it this session the material put together by the Land Policy Council which worked for months to prepare the measures for land use management in the 80 counties outside the Coastal Management Area.

This time around, local involvement is already written into the law which was prepared by the Land Policy Council and pushed by the principal sponsor State Senator Willis P. Whichard, D-Durham.

A statewide commission called the North Carolina Land Resources Commission will form the supervising board, with 32 members. In each of four sections of the state there will be District Committees made up of six people, with those same people serving on the statewide commission. Additionally, the members of the governor's cabinet will round out commission membership.

Every five years, the local plan is supposed to be updated, and it can be amended in the meantime only after public notice and hearing of any proposed changes.

Thus, the public would be involved if major change was needed to accommodate any new development — public or private — whether it be a housing project, industry, apartment project, shopping center, airport, or whatever.

Many Duties

On most day-to-day supervisory tasks, the district committees will be able to handle things: reviewing the land classification plans and maps, overseeing implementation of regulations governing public services and protection of conservation areas, settling disputes between county and municipal governments over jurisdiction, and supervising the requirement that counties which join one another must review and endorse each other's land use plans.

In each district (mountains, Piedmont, Coastal Plains, Coast) locally elected officials will be nominated to serve on appointment by the governor.

Plans in the statewide land use legislation would require local governments to produce land classification plans and maps no later than July 1, 1980, with all land within city and county boundaries classified as developed, transition, community, rural or conservation.

The district committees will review that process and help monitor the number, extent, nature, and location of new communities and large scale developments in the state and areas — including those carried out by governmental agencies.

Be It Ever So Humble

WASHINGTON — I just read in the newspaper that they resettled 75 natives on Eniwetok (which, incidentally, was formerly spelled Eniwetok) Atoll in the Marshall Islands. A pang of nostalgia went through me when I read the story. I was stationed on the Eniwetok Atoll for 12 months during World War II with a U.S. Marine fighter squadron, and while it sounds like a short period of time to us now, it felt like an eternity.

Ever since then I have always considered myself a native of Eniwetok, and when I heard the United States was letting people return I was sorely tempted to pack up and move back.

After World War II Eniwetok probably would never have been heard from again except that the United States decided to use it as an atomic testing ground. As a matter of fact, they blew the island of Eniwetok, where I was stationed, right off the face of the earth.

There were about 2,000 or 3,000 men stationed on Eniwetok consisting of Marines, Seabees and U.S. Army personnel. In a few months we had gone native and wore nothing but shorts, hats and sandals. Our skin became very dark and we developed an island mentality. Anyone who didn't live on Eniwetok was a white stranger who was not to be trusted. There were also tribal feuds on the island. The Marines and the Seabees managed to get along, but the Army personnel were considered "Dogfaces" who could not be trusted and, according to our Navy chaplains, had never really accepted the existence of one God.

The main industry of Eniwetok was making home-grown brew from raisins. Each tent had its own still, and with the help of good 'ol boys from the South we vied with each other to see which tent could make the most powerful raisin jack. This was more dangerous than one might think because if you didn't pour it out in time the still could explode, setting off air raid sirens all over the island.

I have always believed the atomic testing at Eniwetok was never accurate. While the scientists measured the power of the hydrogen bomb device they set off, they never figured how much of the destruction was caused by old fermented raisin juice which all of us left behind when we got our orders to ship out.

A second cottage industry from which we all profited was the manufacture of "Japanese flags." The lagoon was used as an anchorage for allied merchant and Navy ships, and every time one came into harbor we went out in boats and sold the flags as war souvenirs to the crews. We made the "Japanese flags" from white sheets and red paint which we had our parents ship us from the States. After carefully drawing the Rising Sun on the linen, we then splattered red paint around it to indicate the flag had been captured during a bloody battle. We circled the ships as natives do, waving our flags and negotiating for meat, fresh vegetables or medicinal brandy. Our "Japanese flags" are probably still decorating basements all over America.

Despite what you see in the movies and on television, not all the islands in the Pacific had beautiful panting nurses on them.

There wasn't one woman on Eniwetok and after six months we forgot all about them. Then Bob Hope came in with a USO show and he had some strange-looking people with him that he kept making jokes about.

One of the fellows in our tent insisted they were girls, and that they were very nice to touch and do other things with.

But the rest of us didn't believe him. "Why would you want one of them in place of a good batch of raisin jack?" someone in the tent asked.

I must admit, though, that after we saw the girls on stage with Bob Hope for a couple of hours, the peace and tranquility of Eniwetok was violently disturbed. People

Salute State's Vols

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Many North Carolinians probably missed one of the big news events of last week — the state is going to have a "Volunteer Week" and it's coming up next week.

It is Gov. Jim Hunt who has given the state this memorable occasion. To show his enthusiasm for volunteerism, he has promised to lead the way next Monday by spending part of the day helping children in one of the Raleigh schools learn to read.

Since he's the governor and can't afford to take a lot of time away from his important duties (like getting succession through the legislature and meeting with people in his office), Hunt has volunteered the teaching services of his wife, Carolyn, for the whole week. Mrs. Hunt hasn't made any comment on her husband's generosity, though.

The pupils will come out better with Mrs. Hunt anyway because it's a sure bet that the governor's teaching stint will be a gala news event complete with a pack of reporters and a bevy of television cameras. How any child can learn to read while blinded by the glare of TV lights is a mystery.

To make volunteering more attractive — at least to the volunteers who have jobs — the governor has called on "businesses, industries and governmental units across North Carolina to take time off during their normal working hours to perform some kind of volunteer work." Bravo, guy!

No question about it, the offer is attractive for the workers. What's more, volunteer week could be fun and quite a learning experience.

For example, if enough people follow Gov. Hunt's example and offer to help in the schools, the teachers will be able to go out and do some other volunteer work.

What an experience for Archibald Addingmachine the accountant to leave the quiet of his office for a day and try to handle 25 first graders who are running in about 50 different directions all the time. The next day Miss Strict, the first grade teacher, might be the very volunteer delivering mail or flowers to Mr. Addingmachine in the psychiatric ward of the hospital.

THE GALLUP POLL

Many Not Yet Convinced

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J. — President Jimmy Carter's speech Monday night on the energy problems facing the nation comes at a time when more than half the public has yet to be convinced that the situation is critical. Forty-five per cent believe the energy situation in the U.S. is "very serious," but 51 per cent say it is only "fairly" or "not at all" serious.

In addition, concern over energy problems is currently far overshadowed by worry over the economy, with four times as many citing an economic problem as the "most important problem" facing the country as those who named the energy situation.

Although many feel the energy situation has not reached crisis proportions — and others feel that the oil companies have created a crisis as an excuse to hike their prices — the public indicates it is able to take steps that would help conserve energy.

Much of the President's attention in his energy talk will focus on the automobile — and for good reason. About 7.5 million barrels a day, or 40 per cent of all oil used in America, is consumed by cars and trucks.

The question is: can America give up its love affair with the automobile? For example, an earlier Gallup Poll has shown that as many as three-fourths of Americans who travel to work do so by car. Not only are Americans far more dependent on the automobile than virtually all other peoples of the world, but the proportion of commuters who drive to work has soared from less than half a quarter-century ago.

When the national sample was asked to suggest ways driving could be reduced in order to conserve gasoline, "better public transportation," "car pools," and "reducing unnecessary travel" were the top responses.

Earlier Gallup surveys have focused on three key areas where driving could be reduced and petroleum conserved: using other means of transportation, reducing driving by one-fourth, and strict adherence to the 55 mph speed limit.

Here are the findings:

- If those who currently drive to work had no car, one-third said they could not get to work. But one-fourth said they could take a bus, another fourth said they would walk, while about one in 10 said they would ride a bicycle and 2 per cent said they would take a train.
- As high a proportion as four people in 10 report they would not find it difficult at all to reduce their driving by one-fourth. Only about one person in four — 23 per cent — says it would be "fairly difficult" to reduce his or her driving by this amount, and one in three — 32 per cent —

says it would be "very difficult."

It has been estimated that if Americans drove just 20 per cent fewer miles, the resulting savings would amount to one million barrels of oil a day.

- Three persons in four (76 per cent) favor retaining the present 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, imposed in 1973 because of fuel shortages. Those who do so cite the saving of petroleum and the decrease in the highway death toll.
- Here are the questions asked in the latest survey and the findings:
 - "How serious would you say the energy situation is in the U.S. — very serious, fairly serious, or not at all serious?"
 - How Serious Is Energy Situation?
 - Very serious 45%
 - Fairly serious 37
 - Not at all serious 14
 - No opinion 4
 - This question was also asked in the latest survey:
 - "What, in your opinion, can be done to make people drive their cars less and therefore save gasoline?"
 - Here are the public's top suggestions, in order of preference:

Other Editors Say Reading Tests

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Take it from two educators, William Blanton of Appalachian State University and H. T. Conner, assistant state superintendent for planning, research and development, about one-third of North Carolina's high school students would fail if required to pass an eighth or ninth grade reading test in order to graduate.

The two educators who have been heard from based their predictions upon past results of selective service examinations and the state's existing testing programs.

However, one cannot gain much encouragement from the 1975 National Assessment of Educational Programs which Blanton said indicate that high school students are more "functionally literate" than they have been given credit for.

This was arrived at, according to Blanton, when it was discovered that those students in question actually had performed pretty well in being able to read a telephone bill, directions on a cat food box, advertisements for jobs and magazine ads.

Blanton then came up with the understatement of the week when he summed it up by declaring "that means that functional illiteracy isn't as much a problem as you might think, but perhaps it (literacy) is not as good as it ought to be."

We must insist that our high school graduates need to be able to do more than read magazine ads and cat food directions.

They need to be able to tackle three-syllable words and do it without moving their lips, too, if this stigma of illiteracy is going to be removed.

It has been most heartening to note that Governor Jim Hunt has entered the fight to bring "accountability" into public education through a program which recently received the full endorsement of our own school authorities.

Johnny simply must be able to read and read reasonably well before getting his high school diploma.

A Most Sensible Explanation

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There are many interpretations of why President Carter abandoned his tax rebate plan, but the one that seems to make the most sense to the investment community here is that it wasn't needed.

For reasons that economists will be arguing over for the next year, the economy that was sluggish in December and frozen in January, erupted in late February and March as if it had been given a hotfoot.

Any more heat, the money men said, would fire the furnaces of inflation, exploding into an unsustainable economic boom that again would leave us with the ashes of a recession, mere months after we had wiped away the dust of an earlier one.

The fear among some bankers, bondmen, stock analysts, portfolio managers and businessmen sometimes seemed to border on hysteria. They were convinced President Carter's policies would worsen inflation, and that he would then fall back on controls to restrain what he had done.

When Carter conceded at a news conference that the $50 rebate formula was meant more for an economy dawdling around looking for a direction in which to go, rather than for an economy already headed forward, investors seemed to be elated.

The spurt in the market was immediate evidence of this relief, but the question now is whether it will be continued evidence. The market has always looked for scapegoats when its performance was poor; it may do so again.

Considering the degree of its worry over the tax rebate plan, there might be enough left over to worry about the Carter economic policy as a whole, including his energy conservation package.

But if the package is approved, and if the Carter people demonstrate convincingly that they have the economy under control, the market could find itself without the pressure lid that capped so many previous ascents.

It is difficult to realize that market prices, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average, are no higher than 10 or 11 years ago, when a dollar bought a lot more than it does today.

Time after time some of the more ebullient analysts have forecast a surge that would pierce the stratosphere of 1,000 points and leave prices without resistance as they soared to a level of 1,500 points or more.

But always that invisible barrier, just beyond 1,000 points, turned back prices and the hopes of those who were riding what they thought was a spaceship. The barrier still stands, waiting for a reason to be penetrated.

Strength For Today

THE PURPOSE OF LIFE

What is the purpose of life? Many answers have been given to this question.

Some consider it to be the acquisition of money, power, prestige. Others consider a day wasted unless it has been filled with pleasure and made exciting with every kind of indulgence. Very few think of life as a school, a proving ground, a discipline preparing them for a higher life to be lived through the eternal ages.

Many people think that people who take this view of life are dull, uninteresting, overserious, and with no capacity for joy in their hearts. Quite the contrary is true. People who think of this life as a preparation for a larger life to come are usually very happy, vastly contented, and kindly.

People truly religious believe that there is a purpose in life, that it is a beneficent one, and that it leads to an eternal destiny.

Here's How Major Bills In N.C. Assembly Stand

RALEIGH (AP) — Here is the status of major proposals in the North Carolina General Assembly:

Death Penalty—Bills to restore the death penalty for first degree murder and first degree rape are before the House Judiciary II Committee and the Senate Judiciary I Committee. Both committees continued their study of the measures last week. The House group has agreed to offer separate bills, one on murder and one on rape. It may act on the issue this week.

Budget—The state's $7.9 billion budget for the next two fiscal years is still under study by legislative money committees. It is not expected to reach House and Senate floors for several weeks.

Merit Selection—The issue is dead since the House recently defeated a merit selection plan for choosing North Carolina's judges.

Governors—A bill to let the people decide whether North Carolina governors will be allowed run for reelection passed the Senate last week and the issue has moved to the House where the Constitutional Amendments Committee may act on it this week. As in the Senate, the bill apparently has more supporters than are needed for passage. Legislation to give the governor veto power has not been introduced yet.

Mixed Beverages—Local option liquor-by-the-drink legislation is still being studied by its supporters and has not been introduced.

Utilities—Hunt administration bills that would change the role of most of the Utilities Commission staff from neutral fact finder to consumer advocate has been approved by the Senate Utilities Committee and will be debated by the Senate this week. A bill to change the basis on which the commission fixes utility rates is before legislative committees.

Insurance—Several bills to take from the insurance commissioner the power to fix insurance rates plus other measures that would increase his powers are before House and Senate Insurance subcommittees.

Testing—A bill backed by the governor to require children in the first, second third, sixth and ninth grades to take annual achievement tests has been tentatively approved by the House and will be up for final House action Tuesday. Bills to require all high school students to pass a competency test before graduating are before the House and Senate education committees.

Reorganization—A bill transforming the Department of Military and Veteran Affairs into the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, one reorganizing the State Ports Authority and moving it to the Department of Commerce and one shifting industrial development activities to the Department of Commerce have been enacted. One reorganizing the state Board of Transportation and abolishing the Secondary Roads Council has passed the Senate and is before the House Transportation Committee.

ERA—The issue is dead since the Senate defeat several weeks ago of a bill to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Armed Robbery Investigated By City's Police

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into an armed robbery at the Fast Fare at 210 East Tenth St. reported at 3:15 a.m. Saturday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said store employee Gregory K. Nethercutt told investigators he was in the store's cooler when four men came in, asked to borrow some money then pulled a gun and forced him to place the contents of the cash register in a paper bag.

Patrolling police found the front doors of the store locked and saw Nethercutt hobbling from the rear of the store and found that his hands and feet had been bound with tape.

Cannon said the bag containing the $96.76 missing from the cash register was found beside the building later in the morning.

Planning Bd. Meet Scheduled

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Law Library at the Pitt County Court House.

Items on the agenda include consideration of final plats on the Pleasant Ridge (Section 1), Rosewood, and Stanton Heights (Section 1) subdivisions.

Also on the agenda is consideration of the Longbranch Subdivision and the possible revision in time limit on final plans.

But in a few weeks we forgot all about "girls" and went back to making raisin jack and Japanese flags and looking for seashells in the lagoon.

I could go on about this glorious period of my life on Enewetak but I'm too choked up. It's nice to read that the real natives have now returned to their islands. I know everyone in my Marine Corps outfit wishes he could be with them now.

Visionary Unveils Model Of His Futuristic City

By DIANNE ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — He put a shamrock plant on his head, shook hands with Mayor Margaret Hance, nibbled an organic salad of watercress and whatnot and watched the audience drink green beer.

Then visionary architect Paolo Soleri said a few words and led the opening day crowd to the unveiling of a model of his futuristic city.

The 18-foot-high model took five months to produce and would have cost $100,000 if made commercially, the wiry Italian said.

The reproduction matches the actual construction of Soleri's dream city being built on a desert mesa 70 miles north of here. The model, like the actual city, was put together on a shoestring budget by dedicated, hardworking students who believe in the man and his work and are willing to pay for the privilege of laboring with him.

"We could have the city built in five years with some capital," said Soleri. "But we are given time, not cash, so that will mean 10 to 15 years. But that's no matter. At least we have no mortgage."

He seems in no hurry to bring his dream to reality, but to enjoy it as it evolves and changes.

"The concept continues as designed," he said. "But we learn as we do and we adapt, improve."

The prototype city Soleri has been building on an 860-acre tract since 1970 is named Arcosanti.

Belgian Premier Quits After Election Setback

By PHILIPPE NEURAY
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Premier Leo Tindemans resigned today after a general election in which his Social Christian party again ran first and won six more seats in Parliament but failed to win a majority.

Tindemans was expected to form a new coalition government. He indicated he would ask the opposition Socialists, who ran second, to join the government.

The premier's resignation, delivered to King Baudouin, was customary after an election. The king accepted it and asked him to remain in office as caretaker premier until a new government is formed.

Tindemans said he hoped "a government of national union could be set up." Observers believed this was the prelude to an overture to the Socialists. There was no immediate indication from the Socialists, who campaigned against the premier's austerity program.

The Interior Ministry said returns from 3.6 million of more than 6 million votes cast Sunday indicated the 212-member House of Representatives would include 78 Social Christians, a gain of six; 61 Socialists, a gain of two; 33 Liberals (no change), 21 Flemish Volksunie (People's Union) members, a loss of one; nine from the Democratic Front of French Speakers (no change), six members of the Rassemblement Walloon, a loss of seven, and four Communists (no change).

The government said the Social Christians had 1.5 million votes, the Socialists 944,059 and the Flemish party 479,131.

Also at stake were 106 seats in the Senate and 720 seats on provincial councils.

Tindemans' three-year-old left-center coalition with the Liberals and the Rassemblement Walloon collapsed when the Walloons defected on a budget vote. A coalition of the Liberals and Social Christians would have a majority, but it would be only 10 votes.

Belgium is in the grips of the worst recession since World War II. Labor unions have staged a series of one-day strikes to protest the government's decision to cut spending by $540 million and hike taxes by $420 million. Nearly 10 per cent of the work force is unemployed.

Belgium is divided into Flemish-speaking Flanders in the north and French-speaking Wallonia in the south, but the regional language parties that demand autonomy were the only losers.

When he returned to Arizona, Soleri established the Cosanti Foundation in Scottsdale in 1956, a nonprofit educational umbrella through which his philosophical and construction work is done. Cosanti means

Undismayed By His Criticism

ATLANTA (AP) — United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young says he'll continue to speak out on controversial issues even though he feels a bit self-conscious about the impact of his words.

"I think the American people really enjoy it," said Young, whose freewheeling statements have drawn criticism as well as praise since he became ambassador.

Neither President Carter nor Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has rebuked him for his remarks on a variety of world topics, he said Sunday.

"President Carter has said he wants foreign policy discussed," Young said Sunday. "When we finally agree, I'm loyal to that policy. But when it's being discussed, I'll say what I think."

Striking At L & M Plant

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — About 1,700 employees of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. went on strike at midnight Sunday, picketing the firm's cigarette plant in the downtown area when their work contract expired, Union leader J. T. Carthen said.

There was no immediate word on a resumption of talks today.

Carthen, president of Local 176 of Tobacco Workers International, said the union had voted to strike if agreement on a new contract had not been reached at the expiration of the old contract.

The two issues on which agreement still had not been reached in negotiations were a cost of living clause and a provision for wage adjustments which the union feels are overdue in several classifications, Carthen said.

Joe McKenna, communications representative of the firm, declined to comment on the issues that resulted in the impasse.

Three Injured In Sunday Accident

Three persons were reported injured and an estimated $950 property damage caused from a 5:54 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 77 feet East of the Memorial Drive intersection Sunday.

Police, who charged Dennis Major Hart of Route 2, Farmville with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, identified the driver of the other car involved as Robert Lonnie Gatlin of Route 1, Swansboro.

Damage was estimated at $250 to the Gatlin car, $600 to the Hart auto and $100 to a boat and trailer being towed by the Hart vehicle.

Police said two passengers in the Gatlin car and one in the Hart vehicle suffered injuries in the mishap.

Unity Smothers GOP Contest

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — A blanket of party unity smothered a contest for the chairmanship of the North Carolina Republican Party on Saturday before the contest really got started.

Jack Lee, former Fayetteville mayor and political ally of Sen. Jesse Helms, breezed into the chairman's job on a unanimous vote after his only opponent, Bill Hiatt of Mount Airy, conceded midway through the election at the party's biennial convention here.

"I'm realistic and I realize that Jack Lee has this thing sewed up," Hiatt, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for lieutenant governor last year, told the convention after watching Lee take all votes in 17 counties and lead in most of the others that had already voted.

The election surprised no one. Most of the 982 delegates had made up their minds before the vote began and, perhaps in realization of that, the two candidates did not make their pitches to the 982 delegates until the county organizations had already caucused and tallied their votes.

Lee, a 54-year-old businessman and former broadcast executive, was known to have the support of Helms' conservative organization in the party although Helms did not publicly endorse anyone.

"I asked Sen. Helms not to endorse me. I didn't want him in any factional fight," Lee said. He confirmed that he agreed with Helms' ardently conservative approach and design for the state party.

Lee echoed a common Helms phrase when he told the delegates that he was worried about "the slide this country is taking into socialism."

Lee succeeded Bob Shaw, a Greensboro businessman who served a two year term as party chairman then stepped down.

Mary Jane Holiday of Buncombe County was elected vice chairman of the party, defeating Alexa Jordan of Alamance County by 164 votes.

The two-day session was highlighted by the appearances of Helms, former Gov. James Holshouser and U.S. Rep. James Martin.

Martin, the state's 9th District congressman, delivered the keynote address Saturday, calling for the resignation of Andrew Young as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The convention ran on a theme of party unity, with leaders attempting to avoid any clash of Helms' conservative element and the moderate segment once led by Holshouser.

Neither Helms nor Holshouser attended the election of the new chairman, with both claiming prior commitments.

Helms denied charges he was trying to take over the state party although he said he favored the party taking a more conservative approach.

"Unless the GOP does that, the chances of its survival are seriously in question," Helms said.

After his victory, Lee said the party was still struggling from the setback of elections last year but the division within the organization "is not that deep."

"When you take a lickin' at the polls, everybody kind of goes home and licks their wounds. It takes a while to come back," Lee said.

Shaw, in leaving the chairman's job, said he thought it would probably take another three years before the party can make "a substantial comeback" because of last year's elections and the lingering effects of Watergate.

The division within the party "was a problem when both Helms and Holshouser were in North Carolina but not anymore," Shaw said. "It's still realistic to a few hundred people but not to the rest of the 560,000 Republicans in the state."

Lee and Hiatt ran low-keyed campaigns, circulating among the delegates and handing out literature. Hiatt portrayed himself as "someone who is not tied down to one faction and not a hand-picked candidate."

Selective 'Bingo' Ban Proposed By Tar Heel Urban Legislators

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Some urban legislators have proposed local laws that would allow weekly "bingo" nights to continue at churches and clubs, but ban professionals who make a living by running the games.

"We've had considerable problem with people who are commercially minded trying to make a buck out of the poor people of Mecklenburg County," said Rep. Roy Spoon, R-Mecklenburg. "But we didn't want to ban it because a lot of churches and other groups play for fun."

Under North Carolina's gambling statute, bingo, raffles and other games played for money or prizes are illegal except in counties, such as Mecklenburg, where the General Assembly has agreed to an exemption.

But the law hasn't stopped the games from being run in many other counties, and a number of bills have been introduced — some already approved — that would make the games legal in smaller counties without trying to limit the professionals.

"They're going to do it anyway, so why make them get another permit," said Rep. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, who sponsored legislation allowing it in his county and several others.

But W.H. Potter, director of research for the General Assembly, said all the exempting laws might be open to successful challenge. "They're all unconstitutional," he said. "This is just one lawyer's opinion...but how can you say something is legal in one place and is illegal and carries a criminal penalty in another?"

Under most of the local bills, violations would be misdemeanors.

Spoon's bill, which was co-sponsored by a group of representatives and also applies to Buncombe County, would require game operators to have a letter from the Department of Revenue certifying that they were tax-exempt, and would limit them to one, six-hour session a week.

A similar bill introduced in the Senate by the Wake County delegation would do much the same, but would allow two sessions a week.

"We had a fellow that set up in a storefront in Charlotte and was running these games every night, and making a lot of money," said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg. "They tried to prosecute him but couldn't, I'm told, because he satisfied the law. He said he was a non-profit organization."

That was what led them to include the Revenue Department letter in the bill, Helms said. "Then we found out anybody could get one of those. All you have to do is fill out a form and they'll mail you one. So we limited it to one time a week," he said.

Spoon said he plans to amend his bill to include one more limit requiring that all proceeds from the games go to the non-profit organization. That is to prevent professionals from running the games for churches or clubs, then raking off most of the profit for themselves," he said.

Shipping Strike In Its 4th Day

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike by 35,000 dock workers in ports from Maine to Virginia entered its fourth day today as union negotiators prepared to discuss proposals from shipping lines.

The walkout against seven containership companies occurred when the International Longshoremen's Association terminated the current contract with the Council of North Atlantic Shipping Associations.

The contract was canceled because of a government finding that "make-work" provisions of the pact were illegal.

The make-work clause, included for security of jobs threatened by increased containerization of cargo, allowed longshoremen to unload containers and then reload them on the docks before the cargo was sent on its way.

The effects of the strike have spread to include Gulf Coast ports as far away as Houston.

The three American carriers struck by the ILA were Sealand, Seatrain and U.S. Lines. The foreign lines struck were Atlantic Containership, Dart Containership, Hapag-Lloyd and Baltatlantic-Blasco.

The wage-scale committee of the International Longshoremen's Association was to meet and discuss new proposals at the Downtown Athletic Club here at 2 p.m. today.

The new terms came out of a Friday night meeting in Washington involving longshoremen President Thomas W. Gleason James J. Dickman, president of the shipping council and Francis X. Burkhardt, assistant U.S. Secretary of Labor.

The workers are seeking compensation for loss of job guarantees in handling containerized cargoes, an increase in the hourly wage from $8 to $10, and a shortening of the work week from 40 to 32 hours.

The shippers have offered to increase job-related benefits.

Concert Choir Here In Special Program

A special choral concert by the University of Pittsburgh Heinz Chapel Concert Choir will be presented at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church on Wednesday (April 20) at 7:30 p.m.

The 40-member choir is composed largely of students from the University of Pittsburgh. The public is invited to attend. A nursery will be provided for preschool children.

The choir has had an impressive history of performing throughout the U.S., Canada and Europe. Notably, the tours have included a command performance with Pope Paul VI, a concert at the music festival in Prato, Italy; performances at Trinity Chapel, Cambridge, England, and a number of performances in France and Germany. The choir has also appeared on national radio and television.

Grover Wilkins III is director of the choir. He has degrees from Stetson University and the Univ. of Michigan. He has also studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, and at the Aspen School of Music.

The program is diversified, appealing to a broad audience of all ages with its versatility and variety.

More and More NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA INSURANCE OWNERS ARE GETTING UNITED

If you're a policyowner of Coastal Plain Life Insurance Company, you're getting United on April 1. Effective April 1, 1977 Coastal Plain Life Insurance Company was merged into United Insurance Company of America, and former Coastal policyowners, principally from North Carolina and Virginia, were added to the United Insurance family of happy policyowners.

Folks around here seem to like the Home Service way of doing business. In an age when most business is getting increasingly impersonal, it's nice to know that your insurance agent is going to pay a regular personal visit to your home to see to it that your insurance is in force and you're getting the service you need. That's what Home Service is.

Home Service was the Coastal way of doing business and it's the United way too. United Insurance is proud of it's tradition of 58 years of Home Service marketing, and we're pleased to have the opportunity to serve our many new Coastal friends. If you're one of the Coastal Plain policyowners who came to United April 1, you'll probably continue visiting with the same friendly agent who's been serving you over the years... first with Coastal, now with United. Whether your agent is from our Home Service Marketing Operation or from one of our versatile, fast-growing General Agencies, you may be confident he's a professional who puts service to policyowners first. We have offices throughout the area; so you can be sure "we'll be around" to service your insurance needs.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

YOU WON'T GET THE GAS MILEAGE ADVERTISED.

No, sir, you won't.

There's a slight possibility you'll get more, but you'll probably get less. The only gas mileage figures we are allowed to use in our advertising are given to us by the government. The Environmental Protection Agency (E.P.A.) test runs all models of cars in a laboratory on a dynamometer. We don't know anybody who drives a car in a laboratory. But we know a lot of people who drive on city streets and country roads.

SO, WHAT MILEAGE CAN YOU EXPECT?

With some cars and in some cases, you can expect as little as half the E.P.A. estimates. On the other hand, if you have your car fine tuned by an expert, properly inflate your tires, don't carry any passengers, luggage or turn on the air conditioning...if the wind conditions are right and you drive with an egg under the gas pedal — you might come pretty close to that E.P.A. mileage.

TOYOTA'S E.P.A. ESTIMATE IS 49 MPG HIGHWAY — 36 MPG CITY.

That's for our Toyota Corolla with the standard four-speed transmission. You possibly won't get that mileage. Road Test Magazine stated, "...our 52 mile real world driving cycle with its potholes, hills, traffic, and weather forced that (E.P.A.) number down to 38 mpg." That's still mighty good. So, when you buy a Toyota, you buy a thrifty car that's stingy on gasoline. It's quality designed and engineered, yet good-looking enough to be proud of and comfortable enough to ride in. If gasoline mileage is your only consideration and you're not interested in carrying passengers or luggage and don't mind getting rained on — buy a motorcycle. You just might get that 50 or 60 miles per gallon.

Wouldn't you really rather drive a Toyota and have everything you want?

Sincerely,
Jim Moran
Jim Moran, President
Southeast Toyota Distributors, Inc.

Hogs
RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market was steady to .50 lower today. Wilson, unreported; Rocky Mount $5.50-36.00; Kingston unreported; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson $7.00; Tarboro and Bethel $5.00-35.50; Salisbury $5.00.

Poultry
RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady with supplies adequate, demand moderate to good.
 The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 41.03 cents per pound for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers picked up at processing plant. Estimated slaughter today 1,304,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back a bit today while traders awaited President Carter's energy message tonight.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 3.05 at 944.71.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume was a moderate 4.39 million shares over the first hour.

The Dow climbed 28.88 points last week for its best weekly showing in more than a year, in a rally inspired partly by Carter's withdrawal of his plan for a $50-a-person tax rebate.

But by the end of the week Wall Street's attention had begun to shift to the President's long-awaited energy plan, to be disclosed in speeches tonight and Wednesday night.

With the Dow up substantially in recent days, some traders evidently decided to lighten their holdings a bit today in advance of the unveiling of the energy proposal.

Auto stocks gave ground amid anticipations of Carter proposals to curb gasoline consumption. In addition, it was reported today that Carter would advocate giving the auto industry only one extra year to meet scheduled emission standards, rather than the two years the industry has sought.

General Motors fell 1 1/2 to 68 1/2; Ford Motor 3/4 to 56 1/2; and Chrysler Corp. 5/8 to 17 1/2.

Losing Ground

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite an increase in income, the average American household lost ground to inflation between 1974 and 1975, the government says.

The Census Bureau reported Sunday the median income of households rose 5 per cent, to $11,800, in 1975. But prices went up by 9 per cent, resulting in a 3 per cent loss in purchasing power.

The figures also show that in March 1976, 11.6 per cent of all households were receiving $25,000 or more a year, 30 per cent of all the income.

At the other end of the scale, nearly 20 per cent of the nation's households were earning under $5,000 annually. They accounted for only 4 per cent of total income.

Plane Is Stolen At Wilson Field

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A small private airplane was taken from a local airport Friday night, flown for about four hours and returned the following morning with about $12,000 in damages, officials said.

Wilson Municipal Airport manager Lloyd Adams told police his office was opened with a key, and a key to a Cessna 172 airplane was taken sometime during the night.
 Adams estimated the plane was flown for about four hours. He said it was returned to its space at the airport, but only one side was tied down. The wings and underside of the plane were damaged during the flight or landing, officers said.

Colombia Church Bells Of Gold

GIRON, Colombia (UPI) — Many people believe the most sonorous church bells in Colombia are to be found in the town of Giron — they are made of gold.
 Giron was founded by the Spanish in 1631 on the banks of the river of gold, which still bears great quantities of this precious metal.

Obituaries

Cooper

Funeral services for Mrs. Carrie Cooper, who died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Saturday morning, will be conducted Tuesday at 4 p.m. at York Memorial AME Zion Church by her pastor, Rev. Luther Brown Sr. Burial will follow in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Annie Mae Duncan of the home, Mrs. Mamie Lee James of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Nora Speight of Greenville; a son, Harkles Sanders of Greenville; 10 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Annie Barrett of Greenville, and Mrs. Nannie Lee Foster of Portsmouth, Va.; three brothers, Elder Warren Cooper of Tarboro, Elder Henry Cooper and Jasper Cooper, both of Greenville.

Approves Scout Sale Project

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced approval of a request by Boy Scout Troop 124 of Oakmont Baptist Church for permission to conduct a barbecue sale on April 23 at Elm Street Park and to sell tickets to the barbecue during April.

Caldwell said the request was submitted by George F. Hamilton of Greenville.

Set Underwater Poker Record

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A group of students at the University of Missouri-Columbia played poker underwater for 72 hours this weekend, according to a spokesman for the university Scuba Club.

Club safety officer George Lottes said the group began its ordeal at 4 p.m. Thursday and continued until 4 p.m. Sunday.

About 30 members of the club, some 20 men and 10 women, played for an hour and a half at a time with plastic cards and buttons for chips. Three divers were underwater during each shift at the University pool.

Lottes said the group broke its old record of 50 hours of continuous underwater poker, set in March 1976.

This weekend's marathon raised about $1,500 for the Easter Seal Society.

Visitation will be held tonight from seven to eight o'clock. The body will remain at Phillips Brothers Mortuary until one hour prior to the funeral.

Taylor

Mrs. Marjorie Stallings Taylor, 61, died at her home on the Bethel Highway Sunday.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by her pastor, the Rev. Franklin Brinson. Burial will be in Cedarwood Cemetery in Hertford at 3:30 p.m.

Mrs. Taylor, a Perquimans County native, was a member of Sweet Gum Grove F.W.B. Church. She had been employed at the Colonial Heights Soda Shop.

Surviving her are her husband, Jerry B. Taylor Jr.; two sisters, Mrs. Earl (Hazel) Jackson of Rt. 4, Elizabeth City and Mrs. William L. (Mary Ruth) Rogerson of Rt. 3, Hertford.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Wall

ELIZABETH CITY — The Rev. Ivy James Wall Jr., 38, pastor of Riverside United Methodist Church here, died Saturday.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a. m. today at his church. At 4 p. m. today, a second service was conducted at Epworth United Methodist Church by the Rev. Ellis J. Bedsworth. Burial was in the Epworth Church Cemetery.

A Washington, N. C. native, the Rev. Wall was a graduate of High Point College and Candler Theological Seminary and Emory University. Since June, 1975 he had served as minister of the Riverside Church.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Lynn Testerman Wall of the home; two sons, Ralph Ellis and James Randolph Wall, both of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivy James Wall of Rt. 2, Ayden; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Lyndel Peterson of Vanceboro; a sister, Mrs. Jerry (Judy) Whitford of Vanceboro and three brothers, Charles T. and Jeffery E. Wall, both of Greenville, and Tommy H. Wall of Rt. 2, Ayden.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is working to extricate himself from a political tangle of his own making, while keeping his promise to curb the government's beaver-like ambitions to dam the nation's rivers and flood its flatlands.

Carter is recommending a halt in 1978 funding for 15 water projects, cut in funding for five more, continued review for two projects and full funding for eight. His recommendations have been disclosed by sources in Congress, state governments and environmental groups.

The President is announcing the recommendations today.

Before the announcement, information about his decisions showed they could save taxpayers an estimated $120 million in fiscal 1978, which begins Oct. 1. About $109 million would come from halts in funding.

Doctor Raps Discrepancy

RALEIGH — A legislator terms as "insane" the law which says a doctor may perform an abortion on teenagers while requiring parental permission before dispensing birth control devices.

Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Orange, has taken exception to the way the law now affects patient-doctor privacy.

The law as it regards abortions grew out of a U. S. Supreme Court ruling, which said physicians may perform abortions on minors without consent of the parents. Persons under 18 are minors under North Carolina law.

Mrs. Hunt proposes changes in the law which would help to prevent abortions and unwanted pregnancies by encouraging teenagers to seek birth control advice.

Under current law, doctors may not even advise minors on birth control methods.

In addition to birth control, Mrs. Hunt's bill would affect treatment of minors for venereal disease, alcohol or drug abuse, and emotional problems. Parental consent, as now required, frequently discourages minors from seeking help, Mrs. Hunt says.

Her legislation, which failed in 1975, passed the House Judiciary III Committee of which she is chairman, but was sent back to the committee before making it to the House floor where it awaits action.

Correction

The name of an ECU music student to perform in senior recital tonight was incorrectly given as Nancy Powers in yesterday's Daily Reflector.

Nancy Field Beavers will perform at 7:30 tonight in the recital hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center on campus.

Mrs. Beavers was first place winner for the National Association of Teachers of Singing in the 1975 regionals, was soloist at "The Lost Colony" this past summer, and will perform at Busch Gardens in the summer of 1977.

There is no admission for the recital and the public is invited to attend.

WONT REHIRE

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Members of the Plains Baptist Church have voted not to rehire their former pastor, Bruce Edwards, who resigned earlier this year after controversy arose over an integration attempt at the all-white church where President Carter was a member.

The remainder would be from the partial cuts.

Congress has final say over how much money each project gets.

Carter promised during his campaign to halt unnecessary dam building by the Army Corps of Engineers and to support cutbacks in water projects under such agencies as the Bureau of Reclamation.

His first move to redeem that promise was to order a review of 340 water projects for economic feasibility and environmental safety. Most are the pet projects of members of Congress who are not adverse to government spending in their home districts.

On Feb. 19, administration sources said Carter would delete funds for 18 of the projects from the 1978 budget. Members of the House and Senate, some of whom had not been told in advance, expressed anger. On Feb. 20, Carter announced his request and added a project in

Rabin Plans An Extended Leave

By ARTHUR MAX
 Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — A district judge fined Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's wife $26,852 for keeping $21,101 in two illegal Washington bank accounts, and Rabin announced he would take an extended leave of absence starting Friday.

Rabin, who was fined $1,611 last week because he was a co-holder of the accounts, said he would turn the government over to Defense Minister Shimon Peres. Peres succeeded Rabin as leader of the Labor party after Rabin's attempt to cover up the size of the account failed.

Rabin accompanied his wife, Leah, to the Tel Aviv district court for her trial Sunday but kissed her and left before the hearing started.

"I am guilty," the 49-year-old woman told Judge Dov Levine in answer to the charges of violating Israeli currency laws.

The Rabins opened the accounts while he was ambassador to the United States and apparently maintained them after they returned to Israel in 1973 so she could continue to buy clothes and the like in America. Israeli law required that the accounts be closed and the money transferred to Israel within six months.

Mrs. Rabin's attorney, Shimon Alexandroni, told the court: "She is very sorry about her negligence and mistake."

Built Plant In Back Yard

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Charles Stone worked hard to get the state legislature to look into the practicality of turning garbage into fuel, and then he built a contraption in his back yard that does it.

Stone, a consultant to the Joint Legislative Committee on Job Development, spent months persuading the California legislature to establish a pilot project in pyrolysis, which means chemical change brought about by heat.

The bill got through, but the project lagged. So Stone recruited John Tatom, a pyrolysis specialist formerly of Georgia Tech, and built his own plant with 80 man-hours and about $100 in materials such as steel barrels, pipes and insulation.

This weekend they fired it up. About an hour after pouring sacks of rice hulls, sawdust and peanut shells into the top, a light fuel oil, methanol, dribbled out the bottom.

It also produced a black powder that Stone says can be pressed into charcoal briquets, and a burnable gas.

Stone says he'll try to improve the plant to produce enough gas to power irrigation pumps on his small ranch.

his home state of Georgia, the Richard B. Russell Dam, to the list.

Carter defended the deletions, saying the projects would be reviewed again before a final decision and that cutting projects was needed to keep his promise to balance the budget by 1981. Carter economists estimate the budget deficit next year will be some $55.2 billion.

Within three weeks, the Senate amended a $4 billion public works bill to restore the projects. The Senate Budget Committee agreed to put money for the projects back into the budget. And by the end of March, five House committees, including the budget committee, recommended restoring money for these projects or providing additional money for other projects. All these moves are awaiting final action.

Carter added to his "hit list" on March 23. He upped the number of endangered projects to 30, saying he would subject all to the final review he promised for the first 19. The additions included the huge Tennessee Tombigbee Waterway, touted as a benefit to some 26 states.

On April 1, budget director Bert Lance, said some of the projects obviously would survive the review. "And as each

Winning Bucs Can All But Wrap Up Title Today

By The Associated Press

East Carolina's Pirates, already the winningest team in the school's history, have a chance today to end just about everything but mathematical possibilities in the Southern Conference baseball race.

The Pirates, leading the conference with a 10-0 record and 24-7 over-all, invade Western Carolina to face the secondplace Catamounts, 7-1 in the league and 17-4 over-all.

A sweep by the Pirates would just about end the suspense, but anything else would leave it a three-way scrap which also involves The Citadel's Bulldogs, 8-2 in the conference and 18-7 over-all.

Marshall's Thundering Herd, now 14-13 over-all, began last week with a good shot at the title, too. But they lost four of six league games during the week and fell to 5-5, tied for fourth with William and Mary's Indians, 7-7 in the league and 13-18 over-all.

Out of the running also are Davidson's Wildcats, 4-8 and 11-21; Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 3-7 and 15-12; Virginia Military's Keydets, 1-7 and 31-2; and Furman's defending champion Paladins, 1-9 and 9-22.

East Carolina and Western Carolina kept pace with each other Sauray by sweeping doubleheaders, but The Citadel fell slightly off the pace by getting no better than a split with Marshall.

The Pirates dumped Appalachian State twice, 2-0 and 12-6, while Western Carolina knocked off William and Mary, 7-2 and 4-1. The Citadel beat Marshall in their opener 3-1, but the Thundering Herd took the nightcap 5-1.

A fourth doubleheader saw Davidson win two from VMI, taking the opener 12-1 and the nightcap 11-10 in 13 innings. Furman went outside the league for a 7-4 victory over Wofford.

The highlights of the weekend action:

ECU 2-12, ASU 0-6

Mickey Britt tied a school record with his seventh consecutive pitching victory in the opener, in which he gave up six hits, as he started East Carolina on its way to a school mark for most triumphs in a season.

The Pirates slammed out 14 hits off five Mountaineer pitchers in the second game with Pete Paradossi, Eddie Gates, Sonny Wooten and Jerry Carraway driving in two runs each.

WCU 7-4, W&M 2-1

Tim Deweese and Jerry Reed combined for a five-hitter for the Catamounts and Mark Reeser drove in two runs with three singles in the first game. William and Mary contributed a dropped fly each to Western Carolina's three-run fourth inning and four-run sixth.

A five-hitter by Ricky Adair and Wayne Tolleson's three-run homer in the second inning were all Western Carolina needed in the nightcap. A perfect throw to the plate by leftfielder Chip Kootz cut off an Indian rally in the sixth, in which they got three of their hits.

Citadel 3-1, Marshall 1-5

Richard Wieters pitched a five-hitter and drove in a run in the first game for the Bulldogs. In five seven-inning league games, Wieters has completed and won all, giving up three runs, 18 hits and nine walks while striking out 35.

A three-hitter by Albie DeYoung won the nightcap for the Thundering Herd. The lone Bulldog run came on three walks and a bunt single in the first inning. Jon Rulli had two singles and a double and drove in one run for Marshall.

Davidson 12-11, VMI 1-10

Bob Lapple hit a two-run homer, Tim McDowell had a two-run single and Pete Lagler had a single and two doubles for the Wildcats in the first game as Tim Barr pitched a six-hitter.

Barr was knocked out in a seven-run VMI sixth inning while trying for a double in the nightcap, which was tied 10-10 after six innings. Stan Brown's single drove in the winning run in the 13th after six scoreless innings. Bruce Bollinger had a two-run homer and Rick Blinkhorn drove in two runs for Davidson. Billy Hardy had four hits and Russell Puckett three RBIs for the Keydets.

Lietzke Impresses Nicklaus

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus was vastly unimpressed with a golfing milestone he passed — but he was very considerably impressed with young Bruce Lietzke.

"I look to Bruce to be one of two or three guys in the future to dominate the game," Nicklaus said after beating Lietzke in three holes of sudden death for golf's prestigious Tournament of Champions title Sunday.

"He's long. He's strong. He plays very well. He thinks well," Nicklaus said in assessing the powerful, 25-year-old Lietzke, one of the leaders in the youth movement that has swept the pro tour this year.

"He will win a lot of golf tournaments. He has all the equipment."

He also positively idolizes Jack Nicklaus.

"He's been my idol since I was 8 or 10 years old," Lietzke said. "I got in a lot of fist fights defending him when I was a kid. You know, he was a young player then and coming along and beating Arnold Palmer and a lot of people didn't like it."

"Then, when he got on top and stayed on top, I felt good because he'd always been my man. And now, to play with him, well, I just feel like I've grown up with him."

And there was no disappointment involved when Nicklaus rolled in an 8-10 foot birdie putt on the third extra hole to beat Lietzke in the chase for a $45,000 first prize.

"It's a great thrill," said Lietzke, who has won twice and finished second twice already this season. "I'm not at all disappointed.... To lose to a man like Jack Nicklaus is nothing to be ashamed of."

Nicklaus, once five strokes off the pace, had six birdies, five bogeys and seven pars on the way to a 71 and a tie with Lietzke at 281 for the regulation 72 holes. Lietzke birdied four of six holes in one back-nine stretch on his way to a six-under-par 66 on the 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course.

It was Nicklaus' second title this year and the 62nd of his career. It put him in a tie with Ben Hogan on the all-time victory list, behind Sam Snead's leading 84.

"It's not an accurate record," Nicklaus said. "Nobody, really knows how many Sam won, or how many Ben won. It's just a guess that's in the record books. At one time they counted my four-ball wins, then they took them away. Some others haven't been counted for one reason or another. It's not a record I've paid a lot of attention to."

Tom Purtzer, who needed a birdie on the final hole to make it a three-way playoff, took a bogey instead and was tied for third with Australian Graham Marsh and Johnny Miller.

Purtzer shot a 73 and had a 283 total.

Marsh, a 33-year-old globetrotting veteran but a rookie on the American tour, blistered the front nine in a course-record 29, played his first 11 holes nine under par, had a clear lead and was threatening to run away with it until he bogeyed three of the last four, tough holes. He finished with a 66.

Miller had a 69 and may have written an end to his frustrating slump with his best performance of the season in this tournament that is sponsored by Mutual of New York.

Yarborough Overcomes Illness, Competition; Wins Southeastern

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — For veteran Cale Yarborough of Timmons, S.C., the toughest thing about the Southeastern 500 Grand National stock car race was a battle with the flu.

He didn't have nearly as much trouble with the competition.

"I'm sure hot. I'm just give out," Yarborough said Sunday after he breezed to a seven-lap victory over Ford driver Dick Brooks at Porterville, Calif., in the final 500-lap National Association for Stock Auto Racing event to be run at Bristol International Speedway.

"When we started, I didn't know whether I could make it all the way," said Yarborough, who was on the pole at the beginning of the race and in the lead for all but two laps.

But the heat on the track — about 20 degrees higher than the 70s in the stands — bothered the other drivers more than Yarborough with a number seeking relief help in a race in which the caution flag was out just twice for 12 laps.

That lack of trouble allowed Yarborough to set a Southeastern 500 record in his Chevrolet with a speed of 100.989 miles per hour, wiping out the mark of 97.053 m.p.h. set two years ago by Dodge driver Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., who was third Sunday.

Yarborough, who became the first driver ever to win three races in a row on the .533-mile track since its turns were high-banked, narrowly missed the track record of 101.074 m.p.h. set in 1971 by Charlie Glotzbach in the Volunteer 500.

Ed Sneed Wins Tourney Playoff

By IKE FLAHERTY
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — "I know how disappointed he must be," tour veteran Ed Sneed said after calmly sinking a 12-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole and beating Lon Hinkle in the Tallahassee Open golf tournament.

The tall, blond Sneed, from Pompano Beach, Fla., and San Diego State graduate Hinkle finished regulation play tied at 12-under-par 276 Sunday in the $80,000 PGA tournament.

Sneed, who had two previous PGA victories, birdied three of the last four holes to force the playoff.

"I thought I had it really under control after the 16th, but it didn't work out," said Hinkle, whose total earnings in five previous years on the tour were $11,058.

Sneed won $16,000 and Hinkle $9,120. At the 16th, 33-year-old Hinkle took the lead when Bobby Walzel of Missouri City, Tex., hit his tee shot into the trees and took a triple bogey seven.

Sneed, who was two strokes behind Hinkle, birdied that hole, parred the 17th and birdied the par-four 18th from 20 feet for the tie.

White Rallies Boston To Win

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Boston's Jo Jo White started out like he might have to buy a ticket for the next game. White had four first-half points and picked up his fifth personal foul 6:03 before halftime.

But before he was through, his Boston Celtics' teammates were pounding him on the back.

White scored 17 points in the second half, including the final two of the game, as Boston rallied for a 113-111 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Sunday and a 1-0 lead in their National Basketball Association best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series. The second game is scheduled Wednesday night at Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, the NBA's best-of-three preliminary rounds were decided. The Washington Bullets defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 104-98 to enter the East semifinals; the Golden State Warriors advanced to the Western Conference semifinals with a 109-101 victory over the Detroit Pistons, and the Portland Trail Blazers also moved into the West semifinals, besting the Chicago Bulls 106-98.

The Bullets open their series against the Rockets Tuesday night at Houston and Portland faces the Nuggets at Denver and Golden State meets the Lakers at Los Angeles Wednesday night.

The 76ers' Julius Erving had tied the score 111-111 on a driving dunk shot with eight seconds remaining. But Erving, one of the great clutch players in the history of pro basketball, missed both ends of a two-chances-to-make-one free throw opportunity.

With six seconds left, White took the inbound pass and shot. The ball rebounded to the Celtics' Sidney Wicks, whose shot was rebuffed by Erving.

The ball bounced to White along the baseline. He shot again, and with the ball in the air, time ran out. His 21-foot jumper went in, capping a Boston rally that began from 13 points back in the first half and 10 behind in the second.

"I feel empty," said Erving, who led both teams with 36 points. "We came to win and we don't have anything. We're 0-1."

Doug Collins collected 27 points for Philadelphia. White wound up with 21, as did Dave Cowens. Wicks tallied 23 and John Havlicek 19 for the Celtics.

Warriors 109, Pistons 101
Rick Barry scored 35 points, lifting Golden State past Detroit in a game marred by a brawl in which Warriors' fans tangled with Pistons' players.

Detroit's Eric Money and Golden State's Charles Dudley began swinging under the Pistons' basket with Detroit leading 67-64 and 6:10 remaining in the third period. Before they could be pulled apart by players, coaches and the referees, fans had joined the action and one of them slugged Pistons forward M.L. Carr.

"We expended all that effort helping each other out in the fight and had nothing left," said Detroit center Bob Lanier, who scored 33 points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

Bullets 104, Cavaliers 98
Tom Henderson collected a season-high 31 points, carrying Washington past Cleveland.

The Bullets blew a 13-point fourth-quarter lead, but Henderson scored eight points in the last three minutes, keying the victory for Washington, in the postseason playoffs for the ninth consecutive season. Washington had been eliminated by Cleveland last season.

The Cavaliers were paced by Elmore Smith's 20 points.

Trail Blazers 106, Bulls 98
Guard Lionel Hollins scored four points in the final 15 seconds, helping the Trail Blazers hold off Chicago. Portland led by 16 points in the second half but Chicago rallied, cutting the deficit to 100-98 in the final minute. Bob Gross led the Blazers with 26 points. Mickey Johnson paced Chicago with 34.

Palmer Hurls Three-Hit Shutout; Seaver Just Misses A No-Hitter

AL Roundup

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Jim Palmer is pitching like ... well ... Jim Palmer. And that means he's taking dead aim at a third consecutive Cy Young award.

The Baltimore ace gave up just three hits in leading the Orioles to a 5-0 victory over the Texas Rangers in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader. Ross Grimsley's six-hit paced Baltimore to a 6-1 victory in the nightcap for a sweep of the twinnings.

"I can't expect to pitch much better than I have the last two games," Palmer said after picking up his 44th career shutout.

For Palmer, it was his second consecutive shutout. He has allowed only five hits in the last 18 innings. And he has yielded just 14 hits and two runs in 23 innings this year in compiling a 2-1 record and a sparkling 0.64 earned run average.

In other AL games Sunday, Boston and Cleveland split a doubleheader, Boston winning the first game 4-1 and Cleveland taking the second 10-5; the Chicago White Sox defeated Toronto 4-2; Minnesota clobbered Oakland 10-2; Kansas City nipped Detroit 6-5; Milwaukee blanked the New York Yankees 2-0, and Seattle downed California 11-7.

lowed Palmer's lead in the second game.

Smith hit his first major league homer and also collected two singles in the first game and then added three singles in the nightcap. Singleton doubled and singled in the opener and added three hits in the second game.

Brewers 2, Yankees 0
"I didn't have good stuff at all today," Milwaukee's Bill Travers said after hurling the Brewers past New York. "My fork ball still isn't there yet. I must have thrown at least 75 per cent fastballs."

But it was enough as Travers stopped the Yankees on six hits. Milwaukee scored its first run in the third when Jim Wohlford walked and came home on Charlie Moore's triple. Robin Yount homered in the sixth for the Brewers' other run.

Mariners 11, Angels 7
Home runs by Dan Meyer and Lee Stanton led Seattle to its first road victory ever as the Mariners downed California. Meyer slammed a three-run blast in the first inning while Stanton hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

California tied the game at 5-5 in the third on a two-run double by Dave Chalk, a run-scoring single by Joe Rudi and an error by Seattle shortstop Craig Reynolds. Bobby Bonds also homered for the Angels.

Red Sox 4-5, Indians 1-10
Fred Kendall's solo homer snapped a 5-5 tie and Cleveland went on to a 10-5 victory in the nightcap after Boston won the opener 4-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Reggie Cleveland.

Royals 6, Tigers 5
John Mayberry's home run in the eighth inning snapped a 5-5 tie and gave Kansas City its victory over Detroit.

Detroit had jumped into a 3-0 first-inning lead as Ron LeFlore doubled, Tito Fuentes singled and Rusty Staub homered. Staub also tripled in the top of the eighth to knot the score at 5-5.

The Royals, who snapped a three-game losing streak, scored four runs in their half of the first behind George Brett's double, an error, Mayberry's single, a fielder's choice and Buck Martinez' double.

White Sox 4, Jays 2
Pitchers Ken Brett and Bruce Dal Canton combined to toss a four-hitter as Chicago downed Toronto for the White Sox' fifth straight victory.

Alan Bannister scored the first Chicago run when he opened the bottom half of the first inning with a walk, moved to third on Jorge Orta's single and scored on Richie Zisk's sacrifice fly. Losing pitcher Bill Singer walked the first three batters in the third, and the Sox scored two runs without the aid of a hit as Royle Stillman and Orta delivered sacrifice flies.

Twins 10, A's 2
A bases-loaded triple by Rod Carew sparked Minnesota's seven-run second inning and carried the Twins to their victory over Oakland.

NL Roundup

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver has won three Cy Young Awards as the best pitcher in the National League. He's led the league in strikeouts five times, in earned run average three times and in victories twice. He's carried the New York Mets to two pennants and one world championship, earning the nickname "the franchise" in the process.

But he's never thrown a no-hitter. It's perhaps the only thing lacking from his brilliant pitching record. He's come close many times, but never come up with the gem.

"I'd like to have one, it would be fun to have," said the 32-year-old right-hander, who came close again Sunday — a 6-0, one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs.

It was Seaver's fifth one-hitter, and he claims that at this stage of his career, a no-hitter is no longer a primary objective.

The one that got away came in the fifth inning. Steve Ontiveros was the batter.

The ball looped out to right field. Ed Kranepool, usually a first baseman but playing right field in an attempt by Mets Manager Joe Frazier to beef up the attack, raced in to try to make a play. He dove for the ball but could only trap it.

In other National League games Sunday, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 7-6, the Atlanta

Braves beat the Houston Astros 5-4, the Montreal Expos nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1, the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Diego Padres 4-1.

Dodgers 7, Giants 6
A Cap Day crowd of 47,273, largest ever to see the Giants in San Francisco, saw the home team take a 6-5 lead with four runs in the seventh inning, three on a pinch homer by Darrell Evans. But Ron Cey tied it with a leadoff homer in the eighth, then pinch hitter Lee Lacy doubled home Steve Garvey with the winning run later in the inning.

Braves 5, Astros 4
Rod Gilbreath's double scored Gary Matthews with the winning run in the eighth inning as Atlanta completed a sweep of its series with Houston.

Expos 2, Phils 1
Philadelphia's record dropped to 1-6 thanks to Ellis Valentine, who hit his third home run of the season in the eighth inning for the Expos' winning run. Valentine connected off Gene Garber.

Cards 4, Pirates 3
Bake McBride drove home the winning run by beating out a bunt to cap a three-run surge in the fifth inning that carried the Cardinals past Pittsburgh.

Reds 4, Padres 1
Pat Zachry, 14-7 last year as the National League's co-rookie of the year, scattered seven hits as Cincinnati beat San Diego.

Here's a little quiz for all you baseball fans out there.

Joe Jenkins of our advertising department came up with it, and I'm passing it on to you fans. If any of you can come up with the answer, drop us a line with the solution.

The situation is this: it is possible for a team to record six base hits in an inning, yet not score a run. How?

Rose High School's victory in the Williamston Sports Club Invitational Tournament Saturday night was the second in four appearances in the tourney. The last time the Rampants won it, in 1975, they went on to win the state tournament.

Actually, the winner of the event has always won the state title that year. Back in 1973, the first year of the event, called the Gaylord Perry Tournament until this year, Robersonville won it, beating Rose in the finals. Robersonville went on that year to win the state 2-A title.

The next year, in 1974, Richmond County won the tourney, then captured the state 4-A crown. In 1975, Rose, after not playing in the Perry tournament in '74, returned to Williamston, and won. That year, the Rampants were state champs in the 4-A ranks.

Last year, Williamston won the title, and went on to take the crown in the 3-A ranks.

Well, this year, it went to the Rampants again, the first repeat champions. Now the question arises: can they do it?

Rose's wins in the tournament, however, were brought about by their best play to date. They played good solid defense, and they hit the ball with authority.

Should the Rampants continue to play the same way they have these past few night, then they just might be a challenger for the title.

East Carolina can take a giant step toward the Southern Conference title with a sweep of Western Carolina today.

The Pirates got a little help from Marshall on Saturday, as the Thundering Herd split with The Citadel. That gives The Citadel two losses now. Western, going into today's twin bill at Cullowhee had lost but once, but they still had games with not only the Pirates, but with Marshall (at Huntington) and with Appalachian, home and away.

If East Carolina can do as well as a split, they would be in the driver's seat with just four games left. A sweep would be almost beyond imagination.

The answer to our question at the top of the column will be given next week. Or at least the answer we feel is the right one. You may have another.

Yanks Drove Hard Bargain

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Hall of Famer Joe DiMaggio says that during his salary holdout against the New York Yankees in 1938 he asked to be traded to what then was the worst team in major league baseball — the St. Louis Browns.

"I was trying to tell the Yankees that I didn't care if I played for a last-place team if that team was willing to pay me the kind of money I thought I should be paid," DiMaggio says.

The Yankees, naturally, refused to trade him. Not only that, "they wound up docking me two weeks pay for holding out," he says.

Women's Track Has Come Long Way

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
The women's track program at East Carolina University is still in the building stages, according to Coach Laurie Arrants, but it has come a long way in just two years.

"I've had some surprises this year already. And then there are some things that haven't been as good as I'd hoped. But overall, after four meets, we've done pretty well."

The East Carolina women won their own invitational, and have performed well in the others. They have two meets left on their schedule.

Perhaps the most disappointing thing for Arrants is that no one has qualified for the national AIAW competition so far. "I thought that Debbie Freeman might have a good chance to qualify in the shot put, but so far she hasn't done as well as we expected. I think now that if she did qualify, it would surprise her as well as me."

There will be no state-wide competition in women's track this year, either. "Last year, when we started the program here, we were the only school in the state with a track team," Miss Arrants said. "Earlier this year, I checked around and I found that we'd have only three teams, so we decided not to hold a state meet. Now, it turns out that there are six schools with track programs. It's too late to set one up for this year, but we'll be sure to have one next year."

Basically, the women's track team goes through the same events as do the men. And ironically, where East Carolina's men's team is blessed with sprinters and lacking in the distances, the women's team is just the opposite.

"We hope to have some good sprinters next year, but right now, we just don't have any."

"My biggest surprise has been the way our half-milers have come around. We have three real good ones," the coach said. The three are junior Barbara Brantley, who moved up from running the 440 last year, along with two freshmen, Kathy Smith and Joy Forbes.

"If all of them stay healthy next year, they all could qualify for the nationals," Miss Arrants said.

The prospects for the next year look brighter when one considers that Kathy Addison, new to the mile, has run that event well, and that Kathy Taylor, this year's manager, will be running the two-mile next year. Both are expected to be strong challengers for national qualifying.

Right now, Miss Freeman is the top competitor for the track team, leading the way in three events. She's the top shot putter, the leader in the javelin, and the best in the discus.

She gets held in the javelin from Debbie Knight, and in the discus from Linda McClelland. Minnie McPhatter handles the high jump, and since switching from a roller to a flopper, has shown a great deal of improvement. Currently, the Lady Pirates do not have a long jumper.

Likewise, the Pirates do not have anyone in the 100-yard dash.

Linda Mason runs the two hurdle events, the 110 and the 440. Jeanette Whitfield is the 220 runner, while Kathy Jones and Debbie Jones handle the 440. Both of the latter have been injured, however, and are currently out of action.

Linda Christian adds to the depth at the mile, while Sherry Rape is handling the two-mile.

"Our mile relay team has done real well, but it's the only relay we've been able to put together so far," Miss Arrants said.

There are currently 17 women on the Pirate team, and the coach looks for that number to climb to 22 next spring.

"Our future is ahead of us. I think we've done real well so far, considering this is just the second year of the program. We have some fine people coming in next year, so we should be quite improved. With a little luck we could have the best team in the Carolinas next year."

Umpires Walk Off In Atlanta Over Showing Of Instant Replays

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Umpires don't appreciate the way the Atlanta Braves are using owner Ted Turner's new toy — a $1.6 million electronic scoreboard capable of showing instant replays.

Appalachian Sweeps ECU

BOONE — East Carolina's tennis team went down to their third conference defeat in as many tries yesterday when it lost a 9-0 match to powerful Appalachian State.

It was a complete whitewash for the Pirates as the Mountaineers won all nine matches in two sets each. Appalachian upped its Southern Conference record to 7-0, while the Apps' overall mark improved to 15-6. The Bucs fell to an even .500 at 8-8 with the loss.

The Pirates will travel to Wilmington Wednesday in an attempt to get back above the .500 mark against UNC-Wilmington. East defeated the Seahawks 6-3 earlier this year.

Summary:
David Babb (ASU) d. Tom Durfee, 6-2, 6-4.
Randy Redfield (ASU) d. Jim Ratliff, 6-3, 6-1.
Dan Weant (ASU) d. Doug Getsinger, 6-1, 6-0.
Avano Romano (ASU) d. Mitch Pergerson, 6-2, 7-5.
Fravin Maharag (ASU) d. Henry Hostetter, 6-1, 6-4.
Adnan Khan (ASU) d. Kenny Love, 6-2, 6-2.
Babb-Weant (ASU) d. Durfee-Getsinger, 6-4, 6-2.
Romano-Maharag (ASU) d. Robert Moton-Mike Murad, 6-1, 6-1.
Redfield-Khan (ASU) d. Pergerson-Ratliff, 6-3, 6-4.

The crew working Atlanta's 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros Sunday stalked off the field and threatened to forfeit the game after fans booed a video replay showing Bob Watson scoring for Houston on a passed ball in the fourth inning.

"I knew something like this would happen," said Ed Sudol, the crew chief who led the umpires in a walkout that lasted a minute.

Sudol said the umpires' basic agreement with baseball forbids the showing on an inpark screen of any controversial play because of the possibility of inciting a crowd.

"Christ almighty," Sudol said, "Put yourselves in our shoes. We could have gotten killed. It's dangerous. You get people beered up and you don't know what could happen."

Sudol and the other umpires, Terry Tata, Bruce Froemming and Dick Stello, returned to the field after Bill Lucas, Braves' director of players development, ordered the person operating the scoreboard to stop showing close plays.

The same crew had threatened to walk out Saturday night when the scoreboard replayed balls and strikes, but that was averted when the operator stopped.

The scoreboard incident overshadowed the game which gave the Braves a sweep of the three-game series and moved them into a second place tie in the National League West with the Astros.

Atlanta broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning when Rod Gilbreath drilled a double to center field, scoring Gary Matthews, who had beaten out an infield single and advanced to second on Biff Pocaroba's sacrifice.

The Braves also got runs on sacrifice flies by Jerry Royster and Pocaroba and on a single by Jeff Burroughs. The other run came from Willie Montanez, who doubled in the fourth, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball.

Park Service Expects Record Crowds

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today for the West and for most northern states. Warm weather is expected in the South and East. Rain, with some snow, is due for the western Plains, rain is forecast for part of the Midwest and showers are due in north Georgia and the Western Carolinas. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Fine spring weather continues to prevail over North Carolina but along with it will come some April showers. Scattered thundershowers were forecast over the mountains this afternoon and evening and thundershowers will be scattered over the state back from the coast Tuesday.

Little change in temperatures is expected today. Highs will be mostly in the upper 70s to low 80s, except along the beaches and over the northeast portion of the state where the highs will be in the 70s.

High readings around the state Sunday were generally in the 80s.

High pressure, centered over the Chesapeake Bay, was still in command of North Carolina's weather today, but the high was drifting out to sea, indicating a turn to more southerly winds Tuesday.

Twelve Die In Traffic During N.C. Weekend

By The Associated Press

Twelve persons died on North Carolina's highways in accidents during the weekend, bringing the year's total to 342, compared with 375 during the same period in 1976, the Highway Patrol said today.

Two women died when their cars collided head-on Sunday morning in Columbus County, the patrol said.

The victims were identified as Beatrice C. Stubbs, 52, of Delco, and Pamela B. Fowler, 24, of Bolton. The patrol said the accident occurred on a rural paved road 4½ miles south of Delco.

A Norlina man was killed Sunday afternoon when a car turned into the path of his motorcycle, the patrol said. The victim was 21-year-old Alphas M. Kearney of Norlina. The accident occurred on U.S. 1 in the Warren County community of Ridgeway.

Henry J. Stewart, 76, of Brevard, was killed when his car ran off U.S. 64 in Transylvania County and struck an embankment. The Sunday evening accident occurred five miles west of Brevard.

A head-on collision Saturday night killed Weldon E. Worsham Sr., 53, of Vincent, and Roger Lee Spivey, 49, of Sanford. The patrol said the car driven by Spivey crossed the center line on N.C. 27, 14 miles west of Lillington, and struck Worsham's car.

A Conover woman, identified as 22-year-old Donna Jean McGee, died early Sunday when the car in which she was a passenger crossed the center line and struck another car. The accident occurred in Catawba County, 3½ miles south of Hickory on a rural paved road.

Donna Jean Vaughn, 18, and Terry Ernest Creed, 18, both of Mount Airy, were killed early Saturday in a head-on collision near Mount Airy. The patrol said Miss Vaughn was fleeing a Mount Airy police car when her vehicle collided with the car in which Creed was a passenger.

A car-pedestrian accident Saturday resulted in the death of Clyde Wallace, 68, of Thomasville, who was struck by a car at Trinity.

An Elizabeth City man was killed and four others were injured Saturday when two vehicles collided on N.C. 17, five miles south of Edenton. The victim was Ivey James Wall Jr., 38.

The patrol said Jean-Antoine Threatt DeContades, 20, of Concord, was killed Friday night when his car ran off U.S. 29 and struck a utility pole. The accident occurred five miles south of Concord.

A Better Job, Says Mondale

DETROIT (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale says he's got a better job than President Carter.

"Just think about it. On Inauguration Day, I rode all the way ... the President had to walk," Mondale said in a tongue-in-cheek speech at the Michigan Democratic party's annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

"And you notice when I get off a plane, I'm not carrying any luggage. I've got a man to do that. The President has to carry his own," the Vice President said.

"And look where we travel — I go to Paris, Rome, London. He goes to Pittsburgh, Springfield and Charleston, W.Va.

"When I went to London, I stayed with the queen at Buckingham Palace. He went to Clinton, Mass., and stayed with beer distributors."

Simpson Council Meets Tonight

The Village of Simpson Council will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at 8 p.m. at the Fire Department. Three items of importance are on the agenda.

Items to be discussed include: streets and driveways; planning and zoning; and the Neighborhood Watch Program.

Associated Press Writer

The National Park System expects crowds this year to top the record bicentennial turnout. It's time to plan if you expect to be among the millions visiting federal sites this summer.

Ninety-nine areas in the national park system, including 37 national parks, have campgrounds. In all, there are 293 sites in the system, such as monuments, memorials, historic houses and battlefields, according to spokesman Duncan Morrow.

Morrow said there were 238.8 million visits to the national park system in 1975 and 267.8 million in 1976. The service expects about 280 million visits this year.

The most popular period at national parks is from mid-June to Labor Day, Morrow said. He said the Park Service more than doubles its staff during the busy months, adding 10,000 employees to the permanent staff of 8,000.

The familiar parks such as Yosemite, Yellowstone and Grand Canyon will be crowded as usual, Morrow said, but many lesser-known facilities offer equal attractions with more elbow room.

Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, for example, gets more than 10 million visits a year. Eighty miles away, the Cumberland Gap National Historic Park, which includes a section of wilderness trail cut by Daniel Boone, draws only half a million visits.

Visiting national parks involves two fees — one for entrance, another for camping. Entrance fees per carload of visitors range from nothing at some spots to $3 at Yosemite and Carlsbad Caverns. If you arrive by other means, such as by bicycle or bus, the charge is 50 cents per person.

Camping fees also start at zero, although Morrow warned: "If you're paying nothing, you're getting just about what you're paying for, a space." Most camping fees range from $1 to $4 a day per campsite, depending on such items as restrooms, electrical connections, water and security forces.

There are ways to cut costs, particularly if you plan to visit more than one park or site in a year.

The Golden Eagle Passport costs $10 and is good for admission to all national park system areas during the calendar year in which the pass is issued. One passport admits a carload of people to drive-in attractions such as parks or a family to walk-in sites such as historic houses. Write to the National Park Service or the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (both in the Interior Department), Washington, D.C., 20240. Make checks or money orders payable to "Golden Eagle."

Persons 62 and older can get free Golden Age Passports entitling them to free admission to park system areas and 50 per cent discounts on camping fees. You must apply in person at a national park, supplying only proof of age.

Advance planning can help you avoid crowded areas, but there is not much you can do in the way of reserving a campsite. Only four national parks — Acadia in Maine, Grand Canyon in Arizona, Mt. McKinley in Alaska and Chickasaw (formerly Platt) in Oklahoma — accept reservations.

Several low-cost government publications offer help to would-be park visitors. All are available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Succession Bill Is Given Good Chance

By Sam D. Bundy
N.C. House of Representatives

The Governor and Lieutenant Governor Succession Bill is on the way to the House. Senate Bill 293, after a slight delay, was passed by a 45-to-five vote Thursday. This exceeded my expectation somewhat, as I had predicted a 40-to-10 vote. The bill will be voted out of the Constitutional Amendments Committee of the House and will be on the floor of the House within a few days. My prediction is that it will receive a minimum of 90 "Yes" votes in the House. It will then become a matter for the people of North Carolina to decide.

The state-wide testing program for Grades 1,2,3,6 and 9 has begun its journey in the legislative process. After two hours, debate in the House Thursday, the measure passed by an overwhelming vote, after a few clarifying amendments had been adopted. It will come up for third reading Tuesday, Apr. 19, and there appears no obstacle in its final passage, and then on to the Senate it will go.

House Bill 204, which deals with proficiency test for graduation, did not get out of committee due to a controversial amendment. When this is resolved, the bill will be in the House for debate and vote. I predict its passage, but not with as great a majority as HB 205.

It was my privilege and pleasure to have had Kimberly Dupree of Bethel last week as my page.

See you next week.

The break began at noon April 9. Classes met today on a regular schedule.

Found Nixon Sad, Tragic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Nixon is described as a brooding Napoleon in exile and a "sad, tragic" figure by two women who worked on the David Frost television interviews with the former president.

"I didn't know what I was going to feel for the man after Watergate. But my heart went out to his loneliness," said Sandy Blake. "He is now a prisoner in his own home. He is surrounded by security. Every single item on the set had to be cleared with him before it was used."

She and Arline Genis, both interior designers, worked to create what they call a "homey ambience" for the interviews. Frost paid a reported $1 million to get Nixon on video tape for a four segment presentation beginning May 4.

The interviews had to be moved from Nixon's San Clemente compound to a home in nearby Laguna Beach after it was learned Coast Guard radar near San Clemente would interfere with taping.

"The biggest technical problem we had were the bookcases," said Ms. Genis. "The titles were very important. We had to handpick all books in camera range. We were told that it would be very embarrassing if someone blew up the titles behind Nixon and found 'All the President's Men,' for example. The Frost people, specifically wanted books on the history of the United States, poetry, classics, law. Nixon sent us part of his collection."

One More Norman Lear Production Is Launched

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Having produced "Mary Hartman" and a genre called Deadpan Outlandish, Norman Lear is starting another bag — The Raised-Consciousness Switcheroo — in about 40 cities today and tonight.

It's "All That Glitters," a daily syndicated series about what happens if sex roles are reversed and women, not men, dominate life, love and business. It may cause a bit of comment in coming weeks.

For starters, it postulates that God is a woman, that she first created Eve and, learning Eve was lonely, relieved her of a rib and created Adam. And that women have been first ever since.

Set in modern America, it has 11 regulars, six laboring in the Wilmington Ale Division of a conglomerate, Globatron Corp., which is to the series what the hamlet of Fernwood is to "Hartman."

In four well-acted segments, the opening show sets up a world of hard-driving career women, male secretaries with little hope of advancement, and two husbands who are No. 2 in the scheme of things.

At dawn, we see Andrea (Louise Shaffer), a young lady lawyer, waking in bed with her lover, Michael (David Haskell).

He's a secretary who complains all she desires is sex. He desires a home and marriage. He shares his apartment with another secretary, Dan (Gary Sandy), a sexually voracious hustler who, like Andrea, has no eyes for a home and marriage. Michael suggests that she fall in love with Dan.

"He's much too aggressive and competitive," she sighs.

Then we see a married couple, played by Anita Gillette and ex-Dodger Wes Parker. She's fretting about a big advertising campaign she's planned, he's an ex-actor planning to resume his career.

"I'm not just some slob of a husband who all of a sudden decided to get out of the house and become an actor," he says at one point. "I had a very good career before I married you."

Another married couple is Bert (Chuck McCann), an overweight househusband who nags at his lovely life, Christine (Lois Nettleton).

She's a top Wilmington Ale executive who, it develops, is having an office affair with her secretary, the one named Dan.

To round out the cast there's L.W. Carruthers (Barbara Baxley), the domineering, cruel head of Globatron. Seems this fiftish executive still has an eye for the boys, the old rascal.

In a boardroom scene, as the camera focuses on the aft section of Dan as he leaves the room, L.W. leers: "Sweetest little bottom in the whole corporation, wouldn't you say?"

The premiere of this series by Lear and Ann Marcus is quite an interesting, entertaining attitude exercise. It'll hearten liberated women, amuse male chauvinists, anger traditionalists, titillate civilians.

Lear hoped to have sold it in 80 markets by now, but his office says just 40 have bought in, so far. Still, the number may rise if it gets a reputation as the radical new TV show of 1977.

Whether it lasts beyond 13 weeks, though, depends on how well "Glitters" avoids the dullness that can come just from the grind of trying to be funny, profound and controversial five days a week.

Coronary Signs In Suburban Children

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Suburban children show more signs of coronary-prone behavior than do rural children because of a lifestyle that stresses success but offers few guidelines for achieving it, a researcher says.

Ingrid Waldron, a biologist at the University of Pennsylvania, found that suburban children are more competitive than their rural counterparts after testing 174 Pennsylvania and New Jersey children ranging in age from 10 to 18.

The tests, given in rural and suburban schools, were adapted from those given to adults to spot behavior which typically leads to death from heart attack and heart disease.

"The primary difference between the rural and suburban samples was a slower pace of life in the rural setting," Ms. Waldron said in findings released Friday.

"These patterns reflect the working class character of the rural community, and the type of more limited and well-defined goals held by working class parents for their children," she said.

In the rural community, "expected adult roles of worker and wife are relatively easy to attain," she said.

Suburban children, on the other hand, seem to have acquired "the open-ended goals characteristic of their middle class parents," Ms. Waldron reported.

The children were asked questions such as: "When you play games with little kids, do you purposely let them win?"

Suburban children were more likely to respond "no, never," and rural children "yes," the study showed. The "no, never" response was considered an indication of coronary-prone behavior.

Of the suburban children tested, 91 per cent said they would characterize themselves as "trying hard" rather than "easy going," Ms. Waldron said.

Object To Yogurt Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A vegetarian group said it asked the Federal Trade Commission Saturday to ban yogurt commercials it says falsely imply that eating the yogurt makes you live longer.

The target of the American Vegetarians group are the Dannon yogurt commercials, which portray elderly Russians, aged from 80 to well over 100, eating the product, smiling and looking healthy.

"The ad implies a relationship between yogurt and their longevity," an AV spokeswoman said. "Their longevity is really based on the mountain and their vegetarian society."

The AV complaint to the FTC said it opposes the commercial because: "American cow's milk is high in heart disease-related animal fats, carcinogenic insecticides and intestinal cancer-related animal protein. It also contains dangerous levels of radioactivity, polychlorinated biphenol and antiperspiration mucus."

The ad is a "total lie since there is an inverse relationship between dairy product consumption and longevity," the vegetarians claimed.

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONERS' RE-SALE OF REAL PROPERTY
North Carolina
County of Pitt

WHEREAS, under and by virtue of an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, made and entered in Special Proceeding No. 74 SP 213 pending in said Court and entitled "Benjamin T. Eastwood, Jr. et al vs Lillian R. Eastwood," the undersigned Commissioners sold the land described hereinbelow at public sale;

AND WHEREAS, within the time allowed by law an advanced bid was filed with the Clerk Superior Court and an order dated April 13, 1977, issued directing the Commissioners to re-sell said lands upon an opening bid of One Hundred Three Thousand Six Hundred Eighty-five Dollars ($103,685.00);

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of said order of Court, the undersigned Commissioners will offer for sale upon said opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, at the premises on the land hereinafter described, at Secondary Road 1222 (Rams Horn Road) about one (1) mile northeast of Greenville, North Carolina, on Friday, the 29th day of April, 1977, at 11 o'clock a.m., those certain tracts or parcels of land lying and being in Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

FIRST TRACT: Lying and being situated in Pacolus or Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and containing 27.1 acres, more or less, and being more particularly shown on that map made by McDavid Associates, Inc. dated February 17, 1976, entitled "Property of Benjamin Thomas Eastwood and wife, Lillian R. Eastwood" of record in Map Book 25, Page 82, Pitt County Registry, reference to which map is hereby made for a more particular description.

Also conveyed will be the non-exclusive rights in and to the 25 foot path as shown on the map, as well as any extension of said path.

To be sold with this tract will be all crop allotments assigned to this land, but which have already been rented for the year 1977.

This land is not contiguous to but is located between Secondary Road 1222 and the eastern By Pass and is adjacent to that tract sometimes known as Nichols Commercial Subdivision (formerly the Norman Bennett property).

OTHER TRACTS: Lying and being situated in Pacolus or Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and being all of Tracts One (1) through Nine (9), containing 10.2 acres, more or less, and more particularly shown on that map made by McDavid Associates, Inc. dated February 16, 1976, entitled "Property of Benjamin Thomas Eastwood and wife, Lillian R. Eastwood" of record in Map Book 25, Pages 83 and 83A, Pitt County Registry, reference to which map is hereby made for a more particular description.

Also conveyed will be the non-exclusive rights in and to the 25 foot path as shown on the map, as well as any extension of said path.

Two of the above tracts have residences on them and one has mobile home spaces rented thereon. One of the tracts is suitable for pasture land and several of the tracts are suited for building. The sale will be subject to the rights of the present occupants of the homes and mobile home spaces situate on the above-described tracts to continue their occupancy until one month after confirmation of the sale, immediate possession, upon confirmation of the sale, will be given subject to this right.

The land will be sold subject to 1977 ad valorem taxes.

The successful bidder at this sale will be required to deposit ten per cent (10%) of his bid to show his good faith, and said sale will be made subject to confirmation by the Court.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY GABRIEL GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable with 70 on score you hold:
♦AKQ8532 ♦K7 ♦A8 ♦6
What is your opening bid?

A.—While this hand would not normally qualify for a forcing two-bid, we would tend to relax the requirements in this case. There is a danger that partner, with a smattering of useful values, won't keep the bidding alive. By opening two spades and rebidding the suit at every opportunity, you are unlikely to get too high and will alert your partner to slam possibilities.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦107642 ♦AK7 ♦K85 ♦A6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand is too strong for a jump to four spades because your wealth of controls offers real slam possibilities. Your first step should be cue-bid of four clubs. Your next action depends on partner's response.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦6 ♦KJ98752 ♦J8 ♦J62
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—You have no story to tell other than hearts, so you should rebid your seven-card suit one more time. Although partner can't have more than one heart on this auction, it would be wrong for you to take a preference to a minor suit. If partner is really that strong in either minor, he is not barred from bidding again.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK872 ♥8 ♦QJ7 ♦K872
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The hand will surely make at least six clubs. What you have to do is leave the maximum room for exploring grand slam chances, and the best way to do that is to fix the trump suit at the lowest level possible. A raise to four clubs fits the bill perfectly.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J7 ♥J ♦A8 ♦KJ1076542
What is your opening bid?

A.—Since you hold nothing in the majors, you want to make it as difficult as possible for the opponents to enter the bidding. Your hand qualifies for a preemptive bid, and we do not fault you if you chose to open three clubs. However, we would be prepared to forego the possibility that three no trump might be our best contract and go the whole hog with an opening bid of four clubs.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AKQJ6 ♥A6 ♦AJ52 ♦A8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. Thus far, partner has promised nothing of value. You have eight tricks in your own hand at a no trump contract, and probably the same number in spades. It might be easier to make nine tricks at no trump than ten in the suit. If partner has a distributional hand, he can still correct to four spades.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦J43 ♦AK105 ♦KQ ♦AQ72
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The normal call would be two no trump, to show your 19 points. However, that might not work out too well because of the doubton, king-queen of diamonds. We suggest a reverse to two hearts to see how partner reacts. If he rebids his spades, we would prefer a contract of four spades to three no trump.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AKJ764 ♥843 ♦K6 ♦93
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand has just improved markedly—your king of diamonds has become a very important card. Partner is at least 6-4 in the red suits, and a mere bid of four hearts doesn't come close to expressing the full value of your holding. A jump to five hearts would both show your concern about the club suit and your interest in slam.

Vow Killing Of Supports

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The American Cancer Society (ACS) is determined to knock federal price supports from under the tobacco industry, which has placed the society's North Carolina chapter in an awkward position.

"If the grower, the distributor, the wholesaler, the supplier and the businesses that the tobacco industry supports in North Carolina refuse to contribute to us, there is no American Cancer Society in North Carolina. It's that simple," said David Stone, associate executive vice president.

Congress now spends about $60 million dollars a year for tobacco production and marketing.

"Each (state) division has to set its own targets and its own objectives and its own priorities," said Irving I. Rimer, ACS vice president for public information. "It's an extremely sensitive issue in North Carolina and we're sensitive to the needs of the people of North Carolina."

The state group already has accepted three ACS goals opposed by the tobacco industry — reducing the number of adult smokers to 25 per cent, of teenage smokers by 50 per cent, and the toxic elements in cigarettes by at least 50 per cent.

Laser Device To Aid Studies

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The Bowman Gray School of Medicine's Cancer Research Center here has acquired a laser device for research of cancer-fighting drugs.

The instrument, a Coulter Laser microfluorometer costing $60,000, is a laser beam to measure cell size and determine the condition a cell has reached in its reproduction cycle.

Certain drugs in cancer treatment are useful only when cancer cells are dividing rapidly. Other drugs are used when cells reproduce slowly.

Less than a dozen of the machines are in use in the U.S.

Researchers say the instrument will not be used immediately in patient care. Techniques for preparing the cells for laser use must first be developed.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are delays and difficulties now followed by strange or unpredictable happenings that will perplex you. A good opportunity to show just how well you can handle them by your own ingenuity and resourcefulness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Profit from a recent experience you had. You get right answers now which have eluded you in the past. Be wary of strangers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more objective and look at present obligations in a more practical way in order to solve them properly. Stick to principles.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have personal problems that require you approach them from a different angle. A loved one is in a bad mood, but it is temporary.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make an effort to take care of routine chores although your heart isn't in it. A good friend comes to you for help. Show your loyalty.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A routine problem has you upset because of the tension it causes, but study it objectively and you will be able to solve it. Take care of a credit matter also that you have been postponing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are eager to make some changes but it is best that you wait another day. A new attitude toward an old problem sees you solving it wisely. Have second thoughts before giving an answer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Check your facts before you confront a bigwig. A loved one may be having problems and could be cranky at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may not like some of the news that you receive, but don't worry about it. Some of it will be good and reassuring. Romance could enter the picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep your poise and avoid arguing with a co-worker. Don't rely on unasked for advice; make up your own mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to go off on some silly jaunt at the expense of important work you should be doing. Help loved one with a problem and improve relations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get an early start and take care of pressing matters. Forget about entertaining now. Something is bothering you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be extra careful in motion of all kinds during this time. Be more tactful and avoid arguments. Become more friendly with neighbors.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a problem solver early in life. Education should be slanted along trouble-shooting lines, police work, the law and the like, or in real estate and property management. A good chance for your progeny to become a big wheel in the community.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Exodus Due Leaf Mechanization Termed Unlikely

Disruptions to tobacco harvest workers as a result of mechanization will be smaller than many agricultural officials and others had feared, according to two economists who have been studying the subject for some time.

Some migration of workers from tobacco farms will occur as more and more leaf growers begin using mechanical harvesters and bulk curing systems, but it will not be massive in nature, the economists said.

Fears arose in the early 1970's concerning the potential impact of rapid harvest mechanization on tobacco-farm workers and their families. These fears were based to a large extent on drastic upheavals in the Cotton Belt caused by rapid adoption of mechanical pickers in the 1950's and 1960's.

To examine the prospects for flue-cured tobacco workers, the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station developed a study supported by the U.S. Department of Labor and coordinated with research by the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Economists Dale Hoover of NCSU and Leon B. Perkinson of USDA have been leaders in the project.

An eight county area in eastern North Carolina was selected to obtain data on tobacco harvest work in 1972 and examine the prospects for 1980.

The counties selected — Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin, Pitt, Greene, Jones and Lenoir — produced 19 per cent of North Carolina's flue-cured tobacco crop in 1972.

Basically the researchers sought an answer to the question, Will rapid tobacco harvest mechanization in the next few years unleash a substantial migratory flow of workers that could affect both rural and urban areas adversely, depressing the area losing population and congesting areas gaining population?

The study is unique in that lost harvest earnings and potential migration response are reported in a household context. In addition, since the adoption of mechanization is still in its beginning stages, the migration responses are those that could be anticipated.

In 1972 there were 16,400 households with harvest workers in the study area—11,100 households with hired workers and 5,300 with family farm workers.

With no change in the level of tobacco production and with expected mechanization by 1980, about 1,700 households with hired harvest workers and 2,200 with family farm workers could lose at least $500 from harvest earnings according to Hoover and Perkinson. So, if all households losing over $500 migrated, about 3,900 families would be in the migration stream according to the report.

Not counting families where the household head was 65 years of age or over and those losing less than 10 per cent of their income, the migrant stream would be reduced to 2,757 or about 345 households annually.

Under these conditions, less than one half per cent of all families in the region would move out, compared with an annual net out-migration rate of about one per cent for the population of the study area between 1960 and 1970.

It is not likely that even this low estimated gross out-migration rate would be achieved, according to Hoover and Perkinson. The economists said that educational attainments are no more than eight years except for the youngest households. Also, many farm households have substantial investments in agricultural enterprises which would be expected to reduce potential migration.

The extent of these factors would reduce migration is unknown, but it is unlikely that all or even most of the 345 households per year considered as having the highest potential for migration will move out as an alternative to lost earnings from tobacco harvest according to the study.

Mechanization will affect some households adversely but probably will not cause a drastic out-migration or a large increase in government food stamp or welfare payments unless participation rates increase. The difficulty will be identifying those households affected adversely and developing programs to assist them, Perkinson and Hoover concluded.

Offer Plan To Control Mosaic

The estimated cost of Mosaic Disease to Pitt County Tobacco growers last year was $420,000. The use of suggested control methods should cut losses in half and this means an extra $210,000 for tobacco growers, according to Gaylon Ambrose, Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent.

Mosaic is caused by a virus that is highly contagious and spreads by mere contact. This virus does not exceed free in the soil like many diseases producing organisms, but is carried over in undecayed tobacco crop residues, stalks, roots and stems. It is present in practically all manufactured tobacco products, including cigarettes, snuff, chewing tobacco, cigars and tobacco scrap. Horsenettle is the only known weed host for this virus, according to Ambrose.

Growers have two broad methods of control. The first is to use a resistant variety and the second is to follow the five steps of Knock Out Mosaic (KOM).

KOM offers a simple plan that provides effective control. The following are the five steps of KOM.

Step 1: Avoid using tobacco products in any form while working in the plant bed site, or when hauling plants.

Step 2: Milk in any form, whole milk, skim milk, powdered milk mixed with water at the rate of one pound per gallon, inactivates the virus. This means it would be advisable for growers to have a bucket of milk at the bed site so that all workers could dip their hands before handling plants.

Step 3: Avoid using those burlap sheets that were used to market the crop for wrapping the plants. These sheets are full of tiny pieces of tobacco scrap and provide an excellent source of the virus.

Step 4: Check fields following transplanting. Remove the few plants with the mottle leaf systems and destroy. This will prevent down row spread as the crop is cultivated.

Step 5: Carry out that all important R&P job, stalk and root destruction, immediately following completion of harvest. The virus that causes mosaic does not excess free in the soil, but is a carry over from one crop to the next in undecayed tobacco crop residue.

Mosaic losses are high and growers are encouraged to follow with the KOM plan to reduce the losses for the 1977 crop, Ambrose concluded.

Inaugurate New College Prexy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John Thomas Rice was inaugurated Sunday as the 10th president of St. Mary's College here.

Rice, 38, a Richmond, Va., native graduated with honors from Virginia Tech in 1961 and received a master's degree from the University of Tennessee.

The inaugural address was delivered by Dr. Harold B. Whiteman Jr., president of Sweet Briar College, where Rice was dean of student affairs before coming to the 135-year-old Episcopal school.

What are your cattle going to be eating this summer? Summer annuals may be the answer. After this past winter when hay was in short supply, cattlemen may want to use annuals such as pearl millet and sorghum-sudan hybrids for summer grazing, releasing permanent coastal bermudagrass pastures for hay production. Summer annuals also serve as an important source of feed when other pasture crops are in short supply.

Millet and sorghum-sudan hybrids are erect summer annuals that will grow 3 to 6 feet tall. They grow from May to October with peak production during June, July, and August. They can be harvested 4 to 6 times and total season yields of 6 to 7 tons per acre are not uncommon.

The primary use of both millets and sorghum-sudan hybrids is for grazing. However, they can be used as greenchop, silage, or hay. When cut for hay, a crimper is beneficial since drying of the stems may present a problem. The feed value of these crops is quite high with a TDN (total digestible nutrients) value of 60% and a crude protein content of 15%.

Both millets and sorghum-sudan hybrids are adapted to most medium to well drained soils. The millets are generally better adapted on the sandy soils of the Coastal Plains than are the sorghum-sudan hybrids. Both crops will tolerate fairly acid soils but perform best when a soil pH of 6.0-6.5 is maintained. Fertilizer according to soil test and topdress with 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre when 6 to 8 inches high and follow each cutting or grazing with 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Plant the pearl millets at 6 to 10 pounds per acre in rows or 20 to 25 pounds drilled or broadcast. The sorghum-sudan hybrids should be seeded at higher rates of 15 to 20 pounds in rows, 35 to 40 pounds drilled or broadcast because of larger seed size. Both may be seeded from mid-April to mid-June but best results are generally obtained during May. They will usually be ready to graze in 4 to 5 weeks.

There are several pearl millet and sorghum-sudan hybrids on the market. Many of these have been tested in the forage variety testing program, conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service. Results of these tests are available at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 203 W. 3rd Street in Greenville.

Summer annuals can be an important part of any forage crop program. By staggering plantings and rotating grazing high quality forage can be maintained throughout the summer.

FINED — Leah Rabin, wife of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, steps from elevator at Tel Aviv district court Sunday after pleading guilty to charges she held two illegal bank accounts in the United States. She was fined $26,852 and faces an alternate penalty of one year in jail if the fine is not paid. At right is an unidentified police guard. (AP Wirephoto)
