Carter Says He Will Shoulder The Blame

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, preparing to spell out details of a tough new energy policy, is telling Congress that he will shoulder the political blame for asking Americans to sacrifice and pay much more for fuel.

Carter appears before a joint session of Congress tonight, his second nationally televised speech on energy in three days. The 9 p. m. address will be carried by all three commercial television networks.

In the final step of a week-long energy blitz, Carter also has scheduled a Friday news conference to defend his energy package.

The package is expected to include a standby tax of up to 50 cents on each gallon of gasoline starting in 1979 unless Americans conserve gas.

Briefing 35 House members and senators Tuesday, Carter said the lawmakers can blame him for the stringent energy conservation measures he is asking them to approve.

"If you want to call it the President's program, that's okay with me," Carter said.

"He seemed very much aware of the political realities," said Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., the assistant House majority leader.

Some of those realities began to emerge on Capitol Hill even before the Carter plan was formally announced.

Various members of Congress who attended a White House breakfast or were briefed by Carter's energy advisers confirmed widely published reports that the energy proposals will include the standby gasoline tax, new taxes on crude oil and a "gas guzzler" tax of up to $2,500 on cars that get low gas mileage.

Much of the opposition in Congress is expected to form along regional lines.

Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said the plan to use taxes to raise domestic crude oil prices to the level charged on the world market by 1981 would fall unfairly on producing states, which have been more accustomed than other regions of the country to benefiting from cheaper oil.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of a committee that will handle much of the energy package, said of the standby gasoline tax: "I don't think that's meaningful. I don't think it will work."

Carter, however, drew full support in advance from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. "I appreciate the toughness of the President's program," he said. "but I also appreciate the emergency that faces the nation."

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, who heads a select committee that will pass on the energy proposals, said the plan to raise crude oil prices to world market levels will also mean sharp increases in the price of gasoline at the pump, as much as seven cents a gallon by 1979 and four or five cents more by 1981.

"The implications of that obviously haven't been fully realized by the American people or the Congress," he said.

Ashley and other House members said the administration has yet to decide on a means for returning the extensive tax revenues to low and middle income persons who can ill afford dramatically higher energy costs.

That decision will come after the energy package goes to Capitol Hill.

Board Approves Purchase Of Hospital Equipment

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The purchases of varied equipment for the new hospital was approved by the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees last night.

Some $19,850 will be spent on equipment for the Brooks Memorial Hemodialysis Unit. This will be paid by a donation from Burroughs-Wellcome Company.

Also to be paid for out of money for donated through the Hospital Gifts Committee are emergency room equipment at $8,150; rehabilitation equipment at $5,504.25; critical care equipment at $7,950; respiratory therapy equipment at $3,321.86; plastic surgeon's equipment at $7,120.50; and a Zeiss operating room microscope at $17,915.

The American Legion gift of $1,000 will be used for a flag pole costing $745.60 and for indoor plants to be used in the lobby.

Items to be bought out of regular hospital funds include four IBM correcting typewriters for medical records at $3,663; shelving for medical records at 744.40; carpeting at $9,638.62; equipment for making identification cards at $5,040, and a parking gate at $30,000.

It was announced that the hospital's cost of parking and security has been reduced because the county has picked up the tab for $60,000 worth of lighting for the grounds.

Chairman Kenneth Dews appointed Mack Edwards chairman of a parking committee, along with Eugene James, William Neal, and D. T. Jones. He asked that the group meet as quickly as possible to work out details of the parking plan for the new hospital which will open a week from Saturday.

In a close vote, it was decided that hospital would honor what some members believed to be a verbal, if not a written, commitment to Planters' National Bank to borrow $110,609.05 at five and a fourth per cent interest to buy television equipment for the new hospital. Since this commitment was made, offers of 4.75 and 4.375 per cent have been received from other institutions, but the majority felt that the original agreement should be stood by, even though the cost overall will be about $1,500 more.

Jack Richardson suggested that the hospital hold off on its organ transplant program until a brain death policy has been dealt with in the N. C. legislature.

First it was decided that the hospital's insurance policies should be changes as of Sept. 30 from being handling entirely by Kurt Ficklen of Moseley Brothers Insurance to the Pitt County Insurance Exchange, which would have C. Frank Dail as its agent of record. It was pointed out that the hospital insurance accounts have traditionally been handled through the Exchange, with an agent of record doing the work and dividing the premium profits among fellow members of the Exchange. It was also pointed out that Ficklen has provided excellent service. Toward the end of the meeting, Trustee Dean Rich said he did not understand the whole situation and felt that most of the other trustees also did not.

Large Gain Reported By Gross National Product

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Gross National Product increased at an annual rate of 5.2 per cent in the first quarter of 1977, the largest gain in a year and a signal of an improving economy, the government announced today.

The GNP indicator, which measures the market value of the goods and services produced in the country, might have been bigger still except for the severe winter weather, the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

"The extremely cold weather in January and February reduced the increase in real output and final sales and boosted prices in the first quarter. The extremely cold weather probably reduced the increase in real output by 1.5 percentage points at an annual rate ... the bureau said.

The rate of inflation was put at 5.8 per cent, the same as in the previous quarter.

The first quarter increase was the highest since a rise of 9.2 per cent registered in the first quarter of 1976.

The dollar value of the nation's goods and services was put at slightly less than $1.3 trillion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

Consumer spending also increased in the first quarter, and was up $34.8 billion over the fourth quarter compared to a $33.5 billion increase between the third and fourth quarters of 1976.

Spending on motor vehicles showed a more than 10-fold increase over the increase recorded in the fourth quarter. Such spending rose $1 billion in the fourth quarter and an additional $10.5 billion in the first three months of 1977.

The increase in purchases of durable goods was up more than 250 per cent, or $11.4 billion over the $4.4 billion increase during the previous quarter.

The indicator showed the purchase of nondurable goods increased $7.7 billion, down from the rise of $14.2 billion in the previous three months.

The bureau said the slowdown in the increase in purchases of nondurables was mainly in clothing and gasoline, following very large increases for these categories in the fourth quarter of 1976.

While the disposable income of Americans increased $29 billion, they were spending more — $35.2 billion — the figures showed. As a result personal savings declined $6 billion with the savings rate dropping from 5.6 per cent in the fourth quarter to 5 per cent for the first three months of 1977.

Two Killed By Pistol Wounds

Two persons are dead as a result of an apparent murder-suicide that occurred Tuesday night on Rt. 6, Greenville.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who said that his office is continuing its investigation of the twin deaths, identified the victims as Peggy Jenkins Owens, 40, and her husband, Claude B. Owens, 40, of Rt. 6, Box 19, Greenville.

Sheriff Tyson said that Mrs. Owens appeared to have been shot three times in the neck and head while Owens suffered a single gunshot wound in the head. He added that a .22 caliber pistol was found by Owens' hand.

Mrs. Owens was dead when deputies arrived at the couple's mobile home, according to the sheriff, while her husband died approximately one hour later in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 11:14 p.m.

Sheriff Tyson reported that a daughter and her boyfriend were apparently at the mobile home when the shooting began and they fled. Owens may have fired at his daughter, he added.

Both Owens and his wife were found in a front den of the mobile home and officers discovered two bullet holes in the structure. The incident was reported at 10:10 p.m.

Autopsies will be performed, Sheriff Tyson reported.

He said that the couple had lived in Pitt County several years ago but had moved. They had recently returned here to live, he added.

Hunt Nominees Given Approval

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate and House utilities committee gave unanimous approval today to two of Gov. Jim Hunt's nominees to the state Utilities Commission.

The nominations of Dr. Leigh Hammond and Bob Koger now must be confirmed by the full House and Senate. The committees decided to ask for a delay on that until Hunt's third nominee — Sarah Lindsay Tate, a Raleigh attorney — can also be considered in committee.

Only one witness appeared before the committees to speak on the nominations of Koger and Hammond, and he urged that they be confirmed.

The committees decided to ask Ms. Tate to appear before them for questioning next Wednesday. If the panels also recommend that she be confirmed, a joint meeting of the Senate and House will be scheduled and the nominations voted on.

J. Mark McDaniel of High Point, co-chairman of Citizens for Responsible Regulation of Utilities, was the lone witness to appear before the committees today.

Cannot Require

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may not force citizens to display mottos or other ideological messages on auto license plates or other personal property, the Supreme Court ruled today.

The justices voted 7 to 2 to affirm a lower court's decision striking down a New Hampshire law making it a crime to obscure the motto "Live Free or Die" on car license plates.

The court said such laws violate the First Amendment's protection for freedom of expression.

"We are faced with the question of whether the state may constitutionally require an individual to participate in the dissemination of an ideological message by displaying it on his private property ... that it may be observed and read by the public," the court said. "We hold that the state may not do so."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote the court's majority. Justices William H. Rehnquist and Harry A. Blackmun dissented.

The court's decision was a legal victory for George and Maxine Maynard of Claremont, N.H., who said they put tape over the state motto to stress their disagreement with its message. The Maynards, practicing Jehovah's Witnesses, called the motto repugnant to their moral, religious and political beliefs.

WHERE'S THE FOGGER?

Why doesn't the insect fogger come around throughout Greenville any more? Mosquitoes are getting worse each year. W. W.

Public Works Director Mayo Allen said the fogger is operating eight hours a day, from about 3 to 11 p. m., to try to protect Greenville citizens from the mosquitoes, which, for some reason, have arrived or revived early this year. He said the fogger is usually put into use in May, but that it was put on the road Tuesday, Apr. 12 because of the need seen.

He cautioned everyone to check around their homes to rid yards of mosquito breeding places. Even something like a car tire half full of water or a pail or jar or discarded can may be a place for thousands of the pesky things to develop, he reminded.

Imperial Tobacco Plans To Close Facility Here

The American Leaf Organization of Imperial Tobacco Limited, with headquarters in Wilson, said last week that a reorganization of the company will result in closing its Greenville facilities and possibly lead to the ultimate sale of the property.

V. E. Brooks, ALO president said beginning with the 1977 season, all of its purchases of United States tobacco will be processed in Wilson.

The changes, he said, "are part of an overall effort to adapt Imperial's organization to current business conditions."

Imperial's holdings in Greenville include building and lot valued at $668,250 according to 1977 Pitt County Tax Department records, with an additional $108,800 in equipment in the plant.

At the end of the company's last fiscal year, Imperial had an inventory totaling some $233,000 located in Greenville and $16,769 in vehicles owned by the company were located in Pitt County.

Imperial's Greenville plant manager James F. Davenport Jr. said today that the reorganization will affect the firm's operations in North and South Carolina and Virginia.

He noted that the local plant may be used for storage or sold. No decision has been reached at this time, he emphasized.

The local Imperial factory was built in 1902 — the first facility built in the United States by the English firm — while the last addition to the facility was constructed in 1965.

He noted that Imperial used to purchase 95 to 99 per cent of all its tobacco in the United States, but said much of the company's leaf is purchased in other countries now.

Zaire Puts Cola On Its List Of Defense Needs

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Zaire government, fighting an invading army with Moroccan troops, French pilots and Belgian arms, now is pleading with the United States for massive wartime shipments of Coca-Cola.

The Carter administration says no. "Well, you know, (on) foreign military sales, Coca-Cola is not an item that falls under that," a State Department official said Tuesday when asked about the request from Zaire.

The official said President Mobutu Sese Seko placed Coke on the military shopping list he sent to Washington after Katangan troops rumbled across the border between Zaire and Angola last month.

Morocco is backing the Zaire government with about 1,500 troops involved in the fighting against a force of Katangan gendarmes. France dispatched 11 transport planes and pilots to ferry supplies for Zaire and Belgium sent armaments to Mobutu's army.

Other countries have promised aid if it is needed, and the United States has authorized about $13 million in "non-lethal" aid for the embattled Zairean government.

But the Carter administration, deciding against shipping arms requested by Mobutu, also ruled out the Coca-Cola as being too non-lethal.

"We are not going to use foreign military sales credits to buy Cokes," a State Department spokesman said. "If they want to buy Cokes, that is their business, not ours."

Undeterred, Mobutu sent word back to Washington that he was willing to shell out $60,000 from his wartime treasury to purchase Coca-Cola that Americans wouldn't give him under the military assistance program. He did get a C-130 cargo plane, though, and it was seen as a possible delivery wagon for the Cokes.

Officials at the Zaire embassy in Washington could not be reached for comment. No one answered the phone.

Coca-Cola officials in Atlanta said they knew nothing of Zaire's request, although one spokesman expressed surprise, saying he thought his firm already has a bottling plant in the African nation.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Evening Ceremony

Trinity Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding ceremony of Sherry Catherine Wooten and Elbert Burtis Jones.

The double ring ceremony was performed at six o'clock by the Rev. Edward Walker. A program of wedding music was presented by Amy Mills and Arlene Gurganus, vocalists, and Eloise Jackson, organist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Wooten and Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Jones, all of Greenville.

In the center of the church was a semi-circle candelabra flanked by seven branched candelabra with a palm. At the altar was a prie-dieu and arrangements of mums and pom poms. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with an Elizabethan neckline outlined in sculptured Venise lace beaded with pearls. Appliques of the sculptured lace trimmed the long fitted sleeves and the ruffled cuffs were edged in miniature Venise lace. The modified A-line skirt repeated the appliques of the sculptured lace and miniature lace trim edged the hemline and attached chapel length train.

The bride wore a fingertip veil of silk illusion edged in scalloped lace attached to a Camelot cap of Venise lace and bridal pearls. She carried a full cascade bouquet of white daisies, blue baby's breath, English ivy and a white orchid tied with white ribbon.

The matron of honor was Linda Westbrook of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Barbara Jones, sister of the bridegroom, Linda Jones, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and LeAnn Edwards, all of Greenville.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of blue knit designed with an open V-neckline and featuring a full bertha collar and short caplet sleeves. The gathered empire bodice, centered with a blue self-fabric rose, fell into a full swinging skirt. They wore imported blue braid garden hats encircled with blue satin ribbon accented with Dior bows and long streamers in back.

The best man was Charles Jones, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers included George Burroughs, Burley Bullock and Tony Riggs, all of Greenville.

The attendants carried nosegays of spring flowers consisting of blue, white and pink daisies with clouds of baby's breath tied with long streamers.

The mothers wore white carnation corsages and the grandmothers wore white pom poms corsages.

The wedding was directed by Becky Bell.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Homemaker's Haven By Evelyn Spangler Pitt Home Agent

WIVES NAG ALL YOU WANT. . . . about proper use of chemicals, that is. Gardeners and farmers are out in full force applying numerous chemicals to increase yields.

If fumigant-type materials are spilled or splashed on the applicator or his clothes, Gaylon Ambrose, Pitt County Extension Pesticide Agent, recommends that the clothing be removed at once, the area washed with soap (detergent is better) and water, and clean clothes be put on. Even if the material is splashed on the shoes or boots, the entire footwear needs to be changed. Failure to do this can result in painful blisters.

Materials such as Dasanit, Vydate, Mocap, and Furada are absorbed by the skin and move in the blood stream. Gaylon feels that these non-fumigants are actually more dangerous than the multi-purpose materials. There will generally be visual signs of damage done by the multi-purpose materials, but the non-fumigants may hurt before you realize you're in trouble.

WIVES NAG
Make sure your husband is dressed properly when he applies chemicals. He should wear a long-sleeved shirt and pants long enough to cover the top of his boots. When he comes in for lunch suggest that he take a relaxing bath and change clothing before eating.

Encourage him to work with the wind to his back blowing fumes away from him at all times. Many safety-conscious farmers use face masks for added protection.

Make sure he has soap and a big bucket of water handy so he can wash his face and hands frequently while working. Severe burns can result if these materials are allowed to stay on the skin for even a short time.

If there is an accident, first remove the contaminated clothing, immediately wash with soap and water, then get the victim to the hospital or doctor as soon as possible. Read the label for specific emergency treatment and be sure to take it with you to the doctor. This will help him determine the antidote to use.

Symptoms of trouble include dizziness, watery eyes, excessive sweating, rapid heartbeat, vomiting, stomach cramps, and diarrhea. Dispose of garments which are completely saturated with the chemical. For general care of clothing worn while applying chemicals, wash separately from other laundry. Use the hottest water possible (at least 140 degrees) and use a phosphate-type detergent. Also use a disinfectant and chlorine bleach.

Ignorance Not Always Bliss

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote to you saying that ignorance was bliss, and you replied, "No one said ignorance was bliss. The quotation to which you refer is: 'If ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.'"

Abby, if you attempt to correct someone's misquotation, be sure to get it right yourself. It is "WHERE ignorance is bliss...etc."

Yours, for more careful writing.
J.M.L.: CHEVY CHASE, MD.

DEAR J.M.L.: I was indeed blissful until you pointed out WHERE my own ignorance lies. I'll take 10 whacks with "THE CAREFUL WRITER" by Ted Bernstein, a most valuable book that has been on my desk for 10 years.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 15-year-old son who is a good boy and an honor student with many friends. One young couple (his age) come here several nights a week to use my parlor for a lover's lane.

These kids sit in the dark, hugging and kissing for hours. I am sure their parents don't know that this goes on. Once I heard the girl tell her mother on the phone that she was "at a party with a bunch of kids" at my son's house. (No one was here but me, the girl and her boyfriend, and my son, who stayed upstairs studying most of the time.)

I am a widow and am invited out occasionally, but I don't like to leave those kids alone in my house. Should I tell my son to ask this couple not to come over anymore? Or should I tell them? And should their parents be told?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: If you refuse the kids the use of your parlor, you'll only force them to find another rendezvous. Here is an excellent opportunity to help two youngsters who desperately need it. They are playing with dynamite and need to be warned against the pitfalls of too much togetherness when they are charged up with natural emotions.

If you can't (or won't) counsel these kids, then you'd be doing them a favor by telling their parents. Enlightenment is in order here, not punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I detest cards. Don't get the idea that I don't have the brains to play cards because I played an excellent game of contract bridge at one time. (My parents were tournament bridge players.)

A few years ago I made up my mind that cards were a stupid waste of time and energy, and I gave up the game. My husband says I am being foolish, that being able to play a good game of bridge is a social asset, and I should take it up again.

I was recently talked into being a "fourth," and I couldn't wait until the game was over. Am I stubborn, selfish and inconsiderate? My husband says I am.

DETESTS CARDS

DEAR DETESTS: Anyone who "detests" cards as much as you apparently do wouldn't add much sociability to a card party, so stick to your original decision, and pass.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

Allotment Cuts Tobacco Crop

Tobacco is still big in North Carolina, but farmers will be planting less of it.

The North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service sees state farmers planting more soybeans and less tobacco and corn.

The tobacco decrease is due primarily to a decrease in the allotment. Flue-cured tobacco acreage is expected to fall by 15 percent below the 1976 level. Burley tobacco will remain at 9,000 acres.

Soybean acreage is expected to increase by about 17 percent to some 1.4 million acres. Corn is expected to fall by some two percent to two million acres.

Peanut acreage will remain about the same, while there will be an increase in cotton, Irish potatoes, hay and oats.

Some declines are expected in the sweet potato, barley and sorghum crops acreage.

The changes don't show any radical shifts in North Carolina agriculture. The decline in tobacco acreage is by design more than anything else.

Still we have a diversified agricultural picture for our farm economy in North Carolina, and it is an indication that our farm production can shift to other crops if demand for agricultural products changes.

Alternative Energy Requires Attention

The world oil outlook forecasts seems to change from day-to-day.

CIA analysts now say that while the Soviet Union has sufficient oil at present, that nation may face an energy crisis in a few years.

This will increase the U.S.-Soviet rivalry for influence in oil rich areas of the world.

And again we see that this nation needs a major project to find alternate energy sources, rather than simply waiting around for oil to run out.

THIS AFTERNOON The Taxpayer Is Entitled

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—A number of readers of this column—especially those employed by state government—have wondered why this column has devoted considerable attention recently to salaries paid teachers and other state employees.

Division. The data was compiled by a research committee of the General Assembly.

A review of the statistics by that legislative study group (The Commission on Tax-Exempt State-Owned Property chaired by State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, former chairman of the House Finance Committee and a member of the Governor's Advisory Budget Commission) led to the conclusion that the state should not pay local governments a property tax because of the value of state-owned facilities to local communities—the principal one being the fact that state employees average more in annual income (ranging from $2,000 to $4,000) than do those employees by private industry.

Many interpreted the reporting of this sort of information as an unwarranted attack on state employees. Many raised the question of why put so much emphasis on salaries.

The emphasis on salaries is already there, witness the action of the State Board of Education which placed its first priority on money for teacher salary hikes at the expense of other recommendations put forward by Public School Supt. A. Craig Phillips.

A number of other proposals were eliminated (items such as reducing classroom size, providing state's public school people, as contained in a pamphlet entitled "Children Can't Wait."

— Increase salaries by 10 per cent across the board for each year of the biennium.

— Add a salary increment.

— Provide longevity pay after 20 and 25 years of service.

— Allot additional teachers for junior high schools.

— Allot teachers to bring kindergarten classes to one teacher for 26 pupils.

— Improve the retirement formula to the level of other Southeastern states.

— Establish orderly negotiations through the passage of a professional negotiations act.

— Enact a professional practices act in 1977.

— Support passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

— Allow for payroll deductions for NCAE dues on a voluntary basis.

The emphasis in that official list is on salary, fringe benefits, or union bargaining rights.

Why the emphasis on salaries? Because that is where the emphasis is kept by those shaping state policy. Witness this outline of the 1977 legislative program of the North Carolina Association of Educators which represents most of the

The End Of The World

WASHINGTON—As many people are aware, H & R Block, the tax people, predicted the end of the world would come on April 15, 1977, when every American was supposed to file his federal tax return. Many people didn't believe Block, but some did.

A group of us gathered deep in our tax shelter fortified with water and exotic canned food and waited for the world to end.

It was very comfortable down there. The oil people had mattresses and silk sheets from Neiman-Marcus. The real estate investors had brought their best wines, the tax-free bond families had stocked up on caviar and vodka, and those people showing losses in cattle produced the best steaks that money could buy.

The tax shelter was air conditioned and a motion picture executive, who had made a million-dollar capital gain on a pornographic movie, provided free films.

If H & R Block's prediction came true we would be the only survivors left in the United States.

Someone asked, "Did Block say the world would end with a bang or with a whimper?"

"I think he said with a whimper. Everyone would file his return and then whimper as he did it," someone replied.

"But if it doesn't end with a bang, how will we know when it's safe to leave the shelter?" an industrialist wanted to

Doubt Levy's Impact

By CHARLES WOLFE

Associated Press Writer
Gov. Jim Hunt's proposal that new cars be subject to an annual license registration fee, based on estimated gasoline mileage, probably will have little impact on the big car market, according to some North Carolina automobile dealers.

Hunt said Tuesday he wanted the levy on cars with an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimate of less than 18 miles per gallon, with a maximum $50 per year for cars rated at 12 m.p.g. or less.

"I agree the energy crisis is serious, but I think people are tired of hearing about what they're going to do, when really nothing ever happens," Bob Barber, general manager of Leith Lincoln-Mercury in Raleigh, said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "I don't think people who can afford luxury cars will be affected by it. If so, we'll just sell the other (compact) cars we have."

"He (Hunt) can propose anything. It still has to go through the legislature," said Tony Galinas, salesman at Arnold Palmer Cadillac in Charlotte. "A Cadillac is a Cadillac and we're going to sell them."

If Hunt's proposal should become law, it should benefit small-car dealers, especially those selling foreign imports, said Doug Brown, sales manager of Goodman Toyota in Raleigh.

"I think it will help everything small," Brown said, but added he did not know whether such a measure would stand a chance of passage in the General Assembly.

"I definitely think the legisla-

April 20, 1937

A British freighter today ran the Spanish insurgent-attacked blockade and carried a week's food supply to the inhabitants of insurgent-besieged Bilbao, capital of northern Spain's Basque provinces.

The international patrol of Spain's coastal waters and boundaries went into effect last night, but it was designed only to keep volunteers and munitions from Spain.

The British ship left France an hour before the control scheme went into operation. The vessel's owner reported she had reached Bilbao safely despite the British government's refusal to protect British craft going all the way into the port. The British officials have contended the harbor was dangerously mined.

Rep. Lindsay Warren of Washington said today President Roosevelt has agreed to make an address August 18 on Roanoke Island to commemorate the birth of the first child of English parentage on the American continent, Virginia Dare.

The celebration will also mark the 250th anniversary of the disappearance of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony.

Warren said the President also had approved a special stamp for the occasion.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Meat-Axing Arms Sales

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—An April 12 meeting of the Carter administration's top policymakers for national security moved toward reduction of U.S. arms sales abroad drastic enough to dislocate foreign policy, thereby showing what can be accomplished by middle-level officials unknown to the public.

The Policy Review Committee heard, without significant dissent, a proposal for a meat-ax cut of 25 per cent in foreign arms sales. That followed by one month submission to President Carter of a confidential memorandum which criticizes in the Pentagon fear would hand absolute control over arms sales to Leslie H. Gelb, director of political-military affairs at the State Department. Indeed, the arms sales proposals—along with a great many other things in the Carter administration—bear Dr. Gelb's imprint.

This points to the principal worry of defense-oriented members of Congress. Whereas President Carter has forced a tougher arms control (SALT) bargaining position than his middle-level appointments preferred, lesser questions—arms sales, for example—will be decided well below the Oval Office.

It is here that the one-sided nature of Mr. Carter's appointments immediately after his election will be felt. National security machinery is now controlled by what was frequently called the network—youthful liberals on Capitol Hill and in tax-exempt institutions who operated a government-in-exile during the Nixon years. Gelb, 39, a diplomatic correspondent for the New York Times the past four years but a Brookings Institution staffer before that, is a network member in good standing.

Although hard-liners have come to see the President himself as their best hope within the administration, in the case of foreign arms sales Mr. Carter would not only have to overrule his subordinates but also contradict his own positions. In the second presidential debate, he twice criticized the U.S. for being "the arms merchant of the whole world" and contended that is "contrary to our long-standing beliefs and principles."

There is little debate that foreign arms sales did get out of hand under Henry Kissinger, particularly to Saudi Arabia and Iran. Fiscal year 1976 figures total $8.6 billion with $2.5 billion to the Saudis and $1.4 billion to the Iranians.

While this could stand some trimming, a 25 per cent meat-ax is something else. Iran might well turn to Moscow for arms. While unable to take that step, Saudi Arabia might become less cooperative with Washington on Middle Eastern peace and oil prices. Furthermore, reduced arms sales would exacerbate U.S.

difficulties with Latin American states. Indisputably, drastic cuts in arms sales drastically change international relations.

With this background, a "confidential" State Department memorandum of March 17 to the President stirred national security circles. The memo warned Mr. Carter of "a substantial risk" that Congress would pass its own arms sales proposals which "would impose new restrictions on your authority." The solution: an extraordinary "joint executive-legislative branch working group" to draft new legislation.

While signed by Secretary Cyrus Vance, the memo was prepared by Gelb. Since Gelb was no champion of executive prerogative the past eight years, the irony is obvious. But beyond irony, the memo was interpreted as part of Gelb's energetic drive for a pivotal role in policymaking; here he could pack the arms sales "working group" with like-minded colleagues from Congress and the executive branch.

The arms sales question is now in the hands of Gelb and Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:
Poison ivy time is here again. Many people go through an entire life with apparent immunity, while others have periods of several years of immunity, alternating with times of sensitivity.

The rash can be prevented by thorough washing with heavy lather. Since the poison can be transferred from the hands to other parts of the body, a full bath is recommended. This washing should be within an hour of contact, but may be preventive in up to three hours.

After the blisters have formed, there is usually about a week of misery before healing. Relief may be had by using one of three types of preparations available from drug stores: 1. those with calamine and phenol which leave a cake covering which cracks when dry; 2. similar non-cracking preparations with added soothants and latex to reduce cracking, often with "rhuli" in the name; and 3. non-calamine, noncracking lotions, such as zemaol.

The most effective "treatment" is elimination of the plants. They are perennials, sending up new plants from roots. New plants may also grow from seeds distributed by birds which eat the berries. Poison ivy blossoms, mainly high in trees, and there do the birds find the berries. This distinguishes poison ivy from poison oak, which is a non-vining shrub up to three feet tall. Poison ivy is easily identified by the hairy stem which clings close to the tree trunk. It is subject to control by killing the tree vines, best done in late April or early May. By this time the food reserve, stored in the roots during the previous year, will have been used for growing new twigs and leaves. Cutting the vines at this time will leave the roots exhausted, avoiding sending up new plants.

I urge everyone to look at the trees subject to our control and cut all hairy vine stems that may be found. Poison ivy can be eliminated if we truly want to do so.

Tough To Accept Curtailment

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—It's tough for Americans to accept the notion that they cannot continue to consume as they have. It goes against their grain. It conflicts with what they were taught. It is viewed as a restriction of freedom.

No wonder. What youngster hasn't been educated to believe that this is the land of plenty, of the good life, of the life that gets better with each generation, of the high material standard of living?

What adult hasn't been conditioned by advertising and marketing to believe that consumption is a joy and a right? And who hasn't in some small way or large consumed conspicuously because material possessions are admired?

The consumer has been exalted, encouraged, exploited. He and she have been honored as the driving force of the economy. Economists eagerly study the consumer's mind for indications of future economic strength or weakness.

And now the consumer is told to cut it because the country must re-emphasize production, of energy at least, as in the days when the country was developing into the world's premier industrial power.

If we don't cut our energy consumption, we are told, we won't have much of anything else to consume. And that if we don't increase our production of energy, the industrial and social superstructure built upon it might collapse.

And so, like the smokestack that once symbolized industrial might before it was toppled by the reality of pollution, the brilliantly lighted office building that stands empty in the night seems destined to be viewed as an ugly symbol of unconscionable waste.

The change is sudden, but only because so much of the nation refused to heed what it was told—that fossil energy sources are exhaustible.

And those reluctant to conserve aren't to be found only among those who didn't know better.

Within the past decade, owners of office buildings sometimes were told by utilities seeking to boost their sales—that it was good advertising to leave your office lights shining like a beacon in the night.

And the Federal government embarked on an enormous highway building spree with money that some people thought should have gone into mass transportation facilities that would have consumed less energy.

Instead of accepting the warnings, many Americans chose to view the energy crisis as a hoax perpetrated by those who stood to gain from such a line. And surveys show that many people still believe so.

It was partly for this reason that President Carter felt the need to use the phrase "national catastrophe" to describe the potential danger, and "moral equivalent of war" to describe the fight that must be waged.

Nevertheless, there will remain a good many people who will not be convinced that the big oil companies didn't conspire to bring about the shortage for their own greedy ends.

And there are others who will be so highly displeased and greatly inconvenienced that they will find it difficult to accept the level of sacrifice they are called upon to make.

Chicago Elects A New Mayor

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Bilandic, brought up through the ranks of city politics by the late Mayor Richard Daley, paid tribute to Daley's family after winning nomination for the unexpired two years of Daley's sixth term.

Bilandic, 54, acting mayor since Daley's death, swept aside five Democratic challengers in Tuesday's primary election.

Alderman Dennis Block, hand-picked by Gov. James Thompson, won the Republican nomination.

One of Daley's few political confidants, Bilandic said in a victory statement that he wanted to "express my gratitude to the Daley family." Opponents had called him a stand-in for the late mayor's son, state Sen. Richard Daley, and other figures from the city's 11th Ward, which long has dominated Chicago government.

Alderman Roman Pucinski, the No. 2 man in the race, said he was "somewhat sad that we did not quite make it." State Sen. Harold Washington, who finished third, conceded defeat but charged "massive vote fraud."

Edward Hanrahan, former Cook County state's attorney who finished fourth, told supporters: "I say uncle."

With 2,886 of 3,085 precincts reported, it was Bilandic with 342,301 votes, Pucinski 217,495, Washington 73,705, Hanrahan 26,748, attorney Anthony Martin-Trigona 6,142, and attorney Ellis Reid 3,879.

Block had 14,913 votes in the Republican contest. His closest rival, South Side undertaker A.A. (Sammy) Rayner, received 6,351, with pest exterminator George Manning getting 1,531 and 69-year-old precinct captain Frank Ranallo 1,157.

The Republican primary was regarded as largely academic. GOP leaders acknowledge that their resources are dwarfed by those of the Democrats. There has not been a GOP mayor of Chicago since Democrat Anton Cermak defeated William McHale Thompson in 1931.

But Block, a 32-year-old member of the City Council, pledged to make a fight of the June special mayoral election.

Bilandic, a political unknown when he was brought into the City Council in 1969 and rapidly promoted by Daley, said when chosen acting mayor by aldermen in December that he would retire from politics in June but later changed his mind.

So, the State Department had the field to itself at the April 12 policy review meeting. Amid much talk about slashing Saudi and Iranian arms shipments, there was little comment from either Secretary of Defense Harold Brown or the representative of the Joint Chiefs, Lt. Gen. William Smith.

Even if Secretary Brown and the President wanted to ease Gelb's drastic proposals (which certainly may not be so), they scarcely can devote sufficient time to this area. Thus, the significance of Les Gelb and others whose appointments aroused defense-oriented Democrats in January, becomes clear: unable so far to control SALT, their influence elsewhere can profoundly affect foreign policy in the months ahead.

There was no mention of the world ending with a whimper or even a bang.
"Could Block have been wrong?" a cattleman asked.

"We all look like fools hiding in a tax shelter on April 15th," I cried.

Mr. Block came on the air. "I am happy to inform the American taxpayers that if they haven't filed their 1040 Form today, they can file Form 4868, which is an application for an automatic extension of time to file your individual return in two months. Therefore, I am revising my original estimate and I now predict the world will end on June 15th, 1977. Thank you and good night."

Postal Hike Seen For '78

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — It probably will be next spring before we have to lick 16-cent stamps to send first class letters. The delayed postal increase is due to a surprising $45.5 million operating surplus for the U.S. Postal Service.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar said the surplus came from a decrease — through attrition — in the number of postal employees, down from 740,000 to 653,000 during the past two years.

The surplus for the six months ending March 31 compares to a $1 billion deficit during the previous fiscal year. Postal authorities were checking records to try to find the last time a surplus existed.

"For the first time since postal reorganization, we have a firm hold on our costs and are successfully managing our resources," Bailar said Tuesday at the National Postal Forum.

"As a result, we have been able to put off the need for rate increases until sometime in the springtime of 1978," he said. At that time, he said, the cost of a first-class letter will probably increase to 16 cents.

"Higher rates — or additional income from some source — will be necessary to meet the costs of wage increases that are built into our national collective bargaining agreement and the continuing impact of inflation on all our operational costs," he said.

Bailar said uneconomic services, such as Saturday deliveries and some rural post offices, must be eliminated while night mail processing may be curtailed.

Arts Council To Meet Tonight

A meeting of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council will be held tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the School of Music, East Carolina University.

Dr. Charles Moore, acting director, invites all interested citizens and representatives from organizations to attend tonight's meeting.

Now an established council, the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council currently consists of three local qualified organizations — Greenville Art Center; Greenville Boys' Choral Association; and the Greenville Community Choir.

Early in 1976, concerned persons including representatives of local arts organizations met to discuss procedures necessary in founding a local Arts Council.

With the groundwork now accomplished, the council is currently seeking a volunteer who can devote a few hours each week to the development of a program and coordination of existing activities.

Once a director is named, the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council will be eligible to submit grant proposals for financial assistance from the N.C. Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Dr. Moore asks that anyone who might be interested in filling this post contact him at the School of Music, East Carolina University, or talk to him at tonight's meeting, in order to get complete details on the scope of the work involved.

Pupils Report On Communist China Tour Findings

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Sixteen students, aged 11 to 15, from Colorado Academy near Denver, spent 18 days in China in March, devoting much of their time to a study of education there. William Sims, a teacher of Chinese affairs and one of three adults accompanying the group, wrote the following article based on diaries kept by him and the students.

By WILLIAM SIMS
Written For The Associated Press

Mrs. Chang Chih-jung, one of our interpreters, returned to our Peking hotel one evening from her home. We had visited our first Chinese middle school that afternoon, and I told her our students were "still buzzing over the visit."

"There's an electricity and magic among young people regardless of language barriers," I told her. "That would be fun to do again."

She smiled in apparent agreement and then told me that her 8-year-old son was unhappy that our 18-day tour of China would take her out of Peking the following week. "My son reminded me of the parent conferences coming up next week at school," she said. "He has a lot he wants me and my husband to see."

That exchange pointed up several aspects of the tour of China by our group of 16 students, aged 11 to 15, and three teachers from Colorado Academy, a private school outside of Denver.

Our students, comprising the youngest group of Americans to visit the People's Republic of China, had been informed by China experts, before leaving on the trip, that the Chinese Communists had been somewhat reluctant in the past about giving foreign visitors too close a look at their schools. I wanted to make sure that day's school visit would be followed by many more. It was.

Mrs. Chang's comment about her son and parent conferences underlined a current we seemed to detect, that more moderate winds were blowing in China since the death of Mao Tse-tung and that among other things they were fanning educational institutions.

"Better Red than expert," was once the predominant education theme in the People's Republic of China, particularly during the great cultural revolution of the late 1960's when many schools closed in disorder and chaos.

Now things were changing, with the campaign against the so-called "gang of four," Mao's widow and three radical associates.

"Better Red and expert," was the new theme we heard. During the great cultural revolution, tests had been eliminated from the schools, and students often criticized teachers publicly. The head of one school revolutionary committee told our group: "We are testing students again, and student-teacher relationships have normalized."

He said Chinese educators were studying the issue of testing "but, in the meantime, our students are being tested during the term with written, oral and impromptu type exams and then finals at the end of each term."

We went to many primary and middle schools in the six cities we visited. Under the Chinese system, students must spend five years in primary school starting at age 7. Most then go on to five years in middle school although there are some 13-year-old dropouts — about 10 per cent in one countryside area we visited.

Primary and middle school students spend eight months of the year in the academic classroom, one month in an agrarian setting and another month in a factory setting. They have two months of annual vacation. All classes are required, and there are no electives.

The upper schools are the universities. Following the great cultural revolution and up to last year, proper ideological and class background was the prime admission qualification. But admission requirements are once again being based at least partially on academic achievement.

Although we detected trends, we also saw obstacles ahead. For example, the classrooms we visited seemed to have an average of 45 to 48 students to one teacher. This large size could be a barrier to more creative teaching methods.

While I looked at the schools as a teacher, the younger members of our party viewed them through student eyes. They were all impressed by the combining of theory and practice, with each school actually manufacturing light consumer goods.

"At a Peking school we saw a workshop where students made flashing circuits for truck lights," Andy Hornbrook, 13, wrote in his diary. "The students said they feel proud when they see a vehicle blinking its lights because they know they are the only ones making these circuits in Peking."

Our students did not ignore the discipline in the schools, nor the evidence of political training. "In the classrooms, the behavior was almost military like," Tom Evans, 13, noted. "When a teacher asked a question, a student would rise stiffly, step to the aisle between the desks and then answer."

We were relieved to see that the Chinese youngsters were not robots, but appealing young individuals. More than once, we noticed some giggling in classrooms and bits of mischief.

"We discovered the Chinese seemed to study everything we do, with English as a foreign language," Bruce Link, 14, reported. We attended classes in English and Chinese languages, math and science. We observed that rote learning predominated and that there wasn't really much class discussion.

However, there seemed to be much emphasis on singing and dancing, specially in the folk arts, and the Chinese students always performed for us. They seemed to be exceedingly talented.

And very warm, too. When we arrived at some schools, one or another of us often had an escort, a Chinese student who would take us by the hand and lead us around the classrooms. Our warmest reception was our last, at a Canton primary school.

Paul Gutjahr, 15, wrote in his diary that he "loved every minute of it. There was the cutest little Chinese girl who sang a solo and had a surprisingly good voice. When we left the school, little escorts took us through the back alleys back to the main street. I was fantastically lucky, for my little escort was the soloist; she looked like a China doll."

UNDER MAO'S EYE — Chinese school children during an English lesson in Peking, learn words such as: imperialism, preamble, constitution and aggression, during a visit by members of the Colorado Academy recently. American children between 22 and 15 years of age were taken on a short visit of Chinese schools, factories, hospitals and homes during a short visit in March. Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Even before one of its members moved into the White House, the Naval Academy class of '47 liked to think of itself as something special.

When members of "Forty Seven — Best on the Severn" got together, they bragged about all the admirals and all the successful businessmen their class had produced. Even the class reunion last fall they acclaimed as "the biggest and best class reunion in the history of the Naval Academy."

But a closer examination of the class of '47, which actually finished its tour of duty in 1946 because of the compressed wartime curriculum, shows little to distinguish it from other classes except for its most famous graduate, Jimmy Carter.

The Navy's roster of active duty flag officers published at the beginning of the year listed 26 admirals from the class of '47. But it also listed 26 admirals from the class of '48 and 31 from the class of '49.

Many of Carter's classmates who left the Navy have gone on to successful business careers as presidents, vice presidents and executive officers of large corporations. But the same is true of the other classes which graduated during that same period.

In fact, a list of high-ranking executives compiled by the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association contains only about half as many names from the class of '47 as from the classes which graduated one year before it and one year after it.

Retired Capt. William S. Busik, executive director of the association, says he "would be very hesitant to mark one class above another. It's really hard to compare them.

"They all do darn well, and rightfully so. It's what you would expect," he said. "Every class has its own tremendous pride, and they've all done well."

"The only way you can single out the class of '47 is that it generated the first Naval Academy graduate to become president of the United States," Busik said.

The oldest academy faculty member in terms of service is Ellery H. Clark, an associate professor of history who was a young teacher and cross country coach when the class of '47 was winding up its three years at Annapolis.

While he recalls some class members with fondness and respect, he doesn't remember the class of '47 as being any more outstanding than the many others he has seen.

Clark does recall a young man on his cross country team from Georgia named James Earl Carter. "Even at that time I sensed there would be quite a future for the young man," he said.

Airs Personal Objections To Death Penalty

Most Reverend Joseph Gossman, the Catholic Bishop of the Diocese of Raleigh, has issued a pastoral letter stating the Bishop's personal opposition to the death penalty.

The letter states, "We oppose the death penalty because we continue to value lives that society sees as beyond redemption. We choose to place our value on life itself and not on the value of a particular life to society."

The Parish Board of St. Gabriel's Parish here has endorsed this message. Raymond Reddick, president of the Parish Board, was asked to send copies of the letter to the four legislators representing Pitt County in the N. C. General Assembly, urging them to give serious consideration to the moral reasoning of the pastoral message.

ECU Program For Deaf Planning Fall Enrollment

East Carolina University's new program for deaf students is in operation and already making plans for admitting the first seven to 10 freshman students this fall.

ECU's administrative staff has been "most cooperative," said Michael Ernest, Director of the ECU Program for Hearing Impaired Students.

"The goal of the program is to provide support services and create an accepting campus attitude which will allow hearing-impaired students to participate fully in the academic and social life of the campus," he said.

"We are actually running ahead of schedule on the planning, and at this point, anticipate a smooth beginning. The first deaf students will be on campus in July for a special orientation session to prepare them for attending classes along with hearing students."

The ECU program will be the only state-supported program in North Carolina which gives deaf students a chance to earn four-year degrees.

Ernest noted that North Carolina's several elementary and secondary residential schools for the deaf produce the nation's fourth largest number of graduates. Heretofore, deaf students seeking college degrees generally enroll at Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., the only liberal arts college for deaf students in the U.S.

"There has been a great need for college-level educational resources for North Carolina's deaf students," Ernest said. "More than half of last year's graduating class at the School for the Deaf in Morganton were qualified for college study."

Rather than create special classes designed totally for the deaf, the ECU program will be developed along the lines of the innovative "mainstream" approach to education: with some special aids, deaf students will be able to attend regular classes and fulfill course requirements with other students.

The campus has accommodated blind and physically handicapped students for several years.

The special needs of deaf students to be met by the ECU program include trained classroom interpreters to translate class lectures into manual communication, note-taking services to supplement the deaf student's own class notes, tutorial services in a variety of areas, and counseling to help deaf or severely hard-of-hearing students orient themselves to the campus.

While the program will utilize a few full-time interpreters for the deaf, most interpreters will be ECU students who will work part-time after receiving sufficient training in the finger alphabet and sign language.

The first interpreters, to be assigned to hearing-impaired students entering ECU this fall, will be persons who already know how to communicate with the deaf.

"There are quite a few students here at ECU who have deaf family members and are quite proficient in signing," said Ernest. "We have been pleasantly surprised at the cooperative attitudes among the students in general, and we'll no doubt have plenty of students willing to become interpreters."

"Several students have even requested that they be assigned deaf students as dormitory roommates."

Ernest will begin a training program for interpreters in May, and plans special classes in sign language for ECU staff and faculty members this summer.

"The more people who are willing to learn manual communication, the better our deaf students can adjust to attending college in the world of the hearing," he said.

Ultimately, Ernest hopes that regular personnel at the campus library, infirmary and guidance counseling center will include at least one person able to communicate with the deaf. "The advantage of a program such as this, as opposed to a separate education facility for deaf students, is that students will become accustomed to living and working in the outside world."

The ECU program will be one of the few of its type in the nation, and is modeled after the program operated by the university of California at its Northridge campus.

ECU was selected as the site of a post-secondary program for deaf students late last year. Responsibility for implementation of a statewide program for deaf students was assumed by the UNC General Administration after requests from the Board of Directors of the N. C. School for the Deaf and several families of deaf students.

"The program will answer a need only partially met by the vocational curriculum for deaf students offered at Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte and at technical institutes in other states," said Ernest.

"Large numbers of deaf students are qualified for academic and professional careers, and several have earned doctorates through the program at California State University at Northridge."

"One of the most potentially effective aspects of our program will be the unique opportunity it provides to recruit and educate hearing-impaired students for careers in the sciences and the health fields."

Ernest is an alumnus of N. C. State University, and earned a master's degree in audiology from ECU two years ago. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee's Orientation to Deafness Program and has worked as a consultant and rehabilitation counselor in state-supported programs for deaf persons for the past seven years.

He represented North Carolina at the 1975 World Congress on Deafness in Washington, D.C.

How's The Weather?

FORECAST Until Thursday

Figures show low temperatures for area.

Data from 70 NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE NOAA US Dept of Commerce

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is due today from northern Texas to the Great Lakes. Warm weather is forecast for the East. Cold weather is expected for the Plains and seasonable temperatures are forecast for the West Coast. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Scattered thundershowers developed around North Carolina during the night and still were moving toward the coast through the eastern part of the state this morning.

By early morning, Charlotte had recorded nearly half an inch of rain and Raleigh had measured a quarter of an inch. The thundershowers were associated with an upper level disturbance that was moving northeastward. Moisture and low pressure remained, however, and a chance of thundershowers, mainly during afternoon and evening hours, will continue through Thursday.

Temperatures climbed to the 70s and 80s around the state Tuesday and they were expected to continue about the same today.

Three Accidents In Tuesday's Traffic

A community forum for citizens from 20 northeastern counties will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Allied Health and Social Professions Building on the ECU campus.

The forum is sponsored by the North Carolina Conference for Social Service in cooperation with the North Carolina Humanities Committee and is one of a series of community discussions on the topic, "Social Change and Changing Attitudes in Social Service Policy."

The special emphasis for the Greenville meeting is on the family and the effect of social change on structures which support the family. Dr. John Ball of ECU is chairman of the local planning committee and the meeting is open to the public.

Featured speakers will be Dr. Richard Sanders, Duke University; Dr. Joel J. Schwartz, UNC-CH; and Dr. Ellen Winston, former Commissioner of Welfare, HEW, Raleigh. Presiding will be Dr. Andrew Dobelstein of the School of Social Work, UNC-CH, president of the Conference for Social Services.

A panel of local specialists will include John Allison, member of the Scotland Neck Town Board; Ben Blackburn, social worker at Nash General Hospital; Ben Terrell, principal of Scotland Neck High School; and Mrs. Mary E. Whitted of the Bertie County Department of Social Services.

Community Forum Will Be Held Here Thursday

Three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday resulted in an estimated $6,250 property damage.

Investigators reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Country Club Road involving cars driven by Darrell Evans Rudisill of Greenway Apts. and Dana Noble Kendrick of 2004 Pinecrest Dr.

Police, who charged Rudisill with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $4,000 to the Rudisill car and $1,200 to the Kendrick vehicle.

Mary Hinson Ellwanger of Rockingham was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 1:40 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Pitt Streets.

Officers reported the Ellwanger car collided with an auto operated by Robert James Page of 1510 Myrtle Ave., resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the Page car and $400 damage to the Ellwanger auto.

No charges were reported in connection with the third mishap, a 5:15 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 270 feet West of the College Hill Drive intersection.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Ann Louise Cochran of Raleigh and Daughtrey Winston Spivey of Route 1, Chocowinity.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the Cochran car and $50 to the truck operated by Spivey.

Plan A Week Recreation And Parks Meeting

A report on bids received on the Recreation Library facility; discussion of fees for facilities; and distribution of Parks-Recreation Manuals are the three items on the agenda for the April meeting of the Recreation and Parks Commission.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. tonight in the City Council Chambers on the third floor of City Hall.

A revival will begin Monday night, April 25, and will continue through Sunday, May 1, at the Winterville Petecostal Holiness Church.

The Rev. C. J. Peyton of Dublin, Va., will be the guest evangelist.

The services will begin nightly at 7:45 and on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The Rev. James McCandless, pastor, invites the public to attend.

REV. C. J. PEYTON

Rosalynn Plans Effective Role

CHICAGO (AP) — Rosalynn Carter has presided over her first meeting with the President's Commission on Mental Health, and has served notice that "I'm planning on it being effective."

The First Lady's title is honorary chairwoman, but she took charge of the meeting Tuesday, steering the discussion and busily taking notes before a gallery of spectators at the Federal Building.

"She's fantastic," said the official chairman, Dr. Thomas E. Bryant.

En route from Washington to the meeting here, Mrs. Carter had said, "once you become involved, there's no way you can walk off and leave it."

Sets Radiologic Technology Week

Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has declared the week of Apr. 18-24 as Radiologic Technology Week in North Carolina to commence the annual meeting of the North Carolina Society of Radiologic Technologists.

The meeting will be held at the Regency Hyatt House in Winston Salem Apr. 21-23. Educational programs are planned with emphasis on patient care and the protection of patients from the effects of ionizing radiation. Sessions will be held each day to provide continuing education for the participants, and technologists and students will present scientific papers and exhibits for state competition.

Karate Classes To Be Formed

An organizational meeting for karate classes is being held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 21 in the Elm Street Gym.

For further information interested persons are to call the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at 752-4137, extension 220.

Neighboring States Say Testing Program Valuable

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — If the experience of neighboring states is any example, a proposed testing program in North Carolina public schools could be valuable to teachers, parents and state officials. A bill now pending in the General Assembly would require annual statewide achievement tests for children in the first, second, third, sixth and ninth grades. The measure was proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt. South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia each have testing programs. Education officials in those states praised their programs in telephone interviews Monday. "If we can solve the problems in our schools, this will help solve some of our other problems," said Rep. Tom Gilmore, D-Guilford, citing a high rate of draft rejections for learning problems and the nation's lowest industrial wage as examples. Some educators have opposed it because a testing program could be misused by comparing pupils, classes, schools or school districts. To allay that fear, the bill was amended to state that the legislature does not intend that the program be used for comparisons. "I think most parents want their kids tested so they'll know how they're doing," said Rep. Robert Farmer, D-Wake. "Teachers have a lot of kids and it's hard for them to give individualized attention. A testing program could help teachers evaluate children and find learning deficiencies," he said. There has been broad public support for it, said Gary Pearce, Hunt's news secretary. "I think as a whole, there is a lot of concern and there is a lot of support for it," Gilmore said. All but one or two of South Carolina's 92 school districts participate in the testing program, said John Suber of the state Department of Public Instruction in Columbia. Children in the third, sixth and 11th grades were tested this month. Test results are used by teachers and school boards to evaluate local programs and pupil needs, Suber said, adding, "The statewide results are used by the state Board of Education to show if basic skills improvement efforts are working out." Georgia has had statewide achievement testing for several years but now it is being downgraded, said Dr. Joe Edwards, deputy superintendent of schools in Atlanta. The emphasis has shifted to finding learning needs of individual pupils, Edwards said. A test was developed specifically for Georgia schools. Called a "criterion referenced test" (CRT), it gives specific weaknesses and strengths of each child on individual computer print-outs, he said. The statewide achievement test gives a broad indication of a child's ability. It might reveal that a child's reading ability is a year behind the national average for that age group, for example. But, the CRT would reveal the specific problems and say the child has trouble with verbs or is confused by punctuation, for example. "This CRT, it's just great. I haven't heard a parent or teacher complain about it yet," Edwards said. The achievement tests had limited effect, mostly just directing attention to problems and making people more concerned, he said. It is used on second and fifth graders. "Children should be tested to learn where their weaknesses are and to concentrate on those weaknesses, not to compare schools or teachers," Edwards said. The Georgia legislature allocates $12.5 million a year for a staff to do only remedial work in grades one through five and the CRT results help determine where the effort is most needed, Edwards said.

CRT results can also be compiled for classes, schools, districts and statewide, he said. Edwards complained that achievement test results have been used by the media to compare schools and districts. "It would be most difficult to rate the school systems on the basis of a paper and pencil test," Edwards said, adding that other factors have an effect. Virginia requires tests in grades four, six, eight and 11. Claude Sandy, head of the state testing program, said Virginia is also moving toward a greater emphasis on individual analysis and CRT. "We've found a lot of value in a statewide testing program," Sandy said, adding, "You need a statewide testing program to reflect the needs of individual students."

The testing program reveals deficiencies in the educational program and helps educators come up with solutions, he said.

Six Ways For CBer To Get FCC Action

GETTING THE FCC'S EAR — There are specific violations of CB radio channels to which field inspectors give priority. The heaviest penalty is a $10,000 fine and a year in jail for using indecent language. (AP Wirephoto Drawing)

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Charlie, as the Federal Communications Commission is known, offers CBers six ways to get his prompt attention. Acknowledging it does not have the manpower to police all of the abuse on citizens band radio channels, the FCC's Field Operations Bureau is putting its enforcement emphasis on what it considers the worst offenders.

"We have set up six trigger violations to which field inspectors give their priorities," says James C. McKinney, the bureau's deputy chief. They are:

—Failing to use the radio operator's "numbers," or FCC call sign.

—Using linear amplifiers, devices that boost a CB unit's power from the legal four-watt limit to as much as 2,000 watts.

—Transmitting on frequencies other than the 40 allocated for CB use.

—Using indecent, obscene or profane language.

—Using CB frequencies to violate state, local or federal law, such as burglary or kidnapping.

—Working "skip," or transmitting farther than the 150 miles permitted by FCC regulations.

Penalties for all but the indecent language violations could be fines of $500 a day, although McKinney says the actual fine usually is $100.

Using indecent language is a criminal violation subject to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail. But even with its enforcement program focusing on the "trigger" list, the FCC is unable to rid the CB airwaves of abuse, as any CBER with ears quickly hears.

McKinney acknowledges the enforcement problem and says it often is the first topic brought up at CB forums and meetings he attends. The problem, he says, is manpower.

"This bureau has approximately the same number of people in the field now that it had in 1948," he explains. That totals about 400 persons, who are responsible not only for CB enforcement but for all FCC programs.

The growth of CB has put a heavy burden on the Field Operations Bureau. The FCC says it issued 678,000 licenses in February, boosting the total to nearly nine million.

The Electronic Industries Association, a trade association, estimates 22 million CBs now are in use.

To police all infractions, McKinney says, "would require a veritable army" of FCC agents.

Long-Time Search For Old Treasures

By JOY STERLING
HAMER, Idaho (UPI) — In 1865 gold bullion and money totaling $180,000 — stolen from a Wells Fargo stagecoach — was thrown into Mud Lake in southern Idaho by escaping bandits.

Mel Nielsen, an incorrigible old treasure hunter, has been searching the lake for it for 30 years. Nielsen, 69, says, "I'll bet everything I own that it's there." Nielsen owns a store, a pool hall and gas pumps in Hamer.

Nielsen estimates that more than $4 billion in lost treasure is scattered throughout the United States — robbers' loot buried by people like Jesse James and Ma Barker "until the heat dies down," but never recovered because the robbers were shot or hanged before they could retrieve it; incredibly rich gold mines whose owners died without revealing their locations; and, of course, the treasure in Mud Lake.

"History says the gold is buried there and the metal detectors prove it," he said. Nielsen said a stagecoach bound for Salt Lake City was attacked by the notorious Uptake and Guinness gang in 1865. Four of its passengers were killed and the driver was knocked unconscious.

Nielsen said at least $100,000 in valuables was taken from the wealthy passengers, along with $80,000 in gold bullion from the stage's strongbox. The driver and the surviving passengers made it to McCammon, Idaho, where they told their story. A posse quickly formed and tracked the gang to the Mud Lake area. Nielsen said the outlaws were trapped next to its murky waters.

"The robbers threw the gold in the lake, but somehow the posse couldn't pinpoint the exact spot," he said. Nielsen is convinced the gold is still in the muddy bottom of the lake, or buried in lake fill. He said he has spent $7,000 looking for it.

"I thought this winter we'd have it, but we didn't. We'll start searching again this summer when the lake gets down a little."

Nielsen said he would have to pay inheritance taxes on the find but added, "It's still worth digging for."

Historic Saloon Sign Preserved

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP) — While restoring an 1876 building in this historic town, artisans have recently uncovered a sign for the "Centennial Saloon" of New Harmony. The advertisement for the saloon, painted directly on the side of the building, is now being treated with preservatives, so that the building — one of the prominent restorations in New Harmony's historic district — may again wear its original sign. Instead of a saloon, however, the building itself will now house 19th century antiques on view and for sale to visitors.

Mondale To Be Speaker On J-J Day

Vice President Walter Mondale will be the keynote speaker for the Jefferson-Jackson Day celebration on April 30 at the fairgrounds in Raleigh.

According to Betty Speir, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, plans call for holding a reception at the Arts and Crafts Building at the fairgrounds, followed by a barbecue and chicken dinner and program at Dorton Arena.

Special emphasis, she said, has been placed upon wide participation by all party workers, and the usual $50 per person cost has been lowered to $20 and will include both the reception and the dinner.

Other events scheduled in Raleigh for the Jefferson-Jackson weekend include a Friday night dance at the Hilton Inn sponsored by the Young Democrats and the traditional Jefferson-Jackson Day breakfast on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the Hilton Inn ballroom. Mrs. Emily Preyer, wife of Congressman Richardson Preyer and president of the Congressional Wives Club, will be the speaker for the event.

Mrs. Speir said that tickets for the dinner and reception are being sold by all Democratic precinct chairmen in the county or tickets may be purchased from her by calling 825-5461 in Bethel.

CARE Card For Mothers

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mother's Day in this country is traditionally a time for remembrance, but at CARE it means helping needy mothers and their families overseas," says Frank L. Goffio, executive director of the international aid and development agency.

"A contribution to CARE in your mother's name will send aid that can make a significant difference to the daily lives of families in developing countries," he explains. "That includes food to help fight malnutrition, rural self-help projects to bring water and schools to their villages and vital community health programs."

Contributions — minimum $2 per name — and card orders may be sent to CARE Mother's Day Plan, 660 First Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016 or any of the organization's regional offices.

"The special Mother's Day card will be returned to you for mailing or, to save time, mailed direct to CARE to any woman you choose, informing her of your tribute," Goffio says, adding that to assure delivery by Mother's Day, May 8, orders should be placed promptly.

Pears Plentiful In April Survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The April supply of fresh winter pears is 50 per cent greater than a year ago, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture in its monthly "Food Marketing Alert" newsletter. Most other fresh fruit supplies are only adequate.

The canned vegetable picture is better: the USDA reported plentiful supplies of canned sweet corn and canned green peas, up 29 and 45 per cent respectively over the canners' 1973-75 average. Frozen corn-on-the-cob and cut corn inventories were 39 and 11 per cent above average for the same period.

Stocks of fresh potatoes were at a record high on March 1, seven per cent above a year ago and 14 per cent above the three-year average.

Other plentiful for April are peanuts, rice, wheat, corn and dried beans.

Mail Speeded By Automation

NEW YORK (AP) — Today, over 60 per cent of America's mail is sorted mechanically, says Fred T. Allen, chairman of Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of mail handling systems and equipment. This represents a 25 per cent increase in mechanization since 1970, the result of Postal Service modernization.

A crew of 18 can sort up to 40,000 letters an hour using one letter-sorting machine — nearly double the amount the same 18 people could sort by hand.

"Facer-canceller" machines turn envelopes to their address faces, locate the stamps and cancel them electronically. A single machine can process 36,000 letters in an hour.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today with a lift from a favorable report on economic growth in the first three months of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going, and gainers took a slight lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening the government reported that the Gross National Product grew at a 5.2 per cent annual rate in the first quarter, after adjustment for inflation and seasonal factors.

That marked a sharp increase from the 2.6 per cent rate reported for the fourth quarter of last year.

Analysts said the response to the news was muted, however, by continuing caution over the energy situation. President Carter is due to make his energy proposals in a speech to Congress tonight.

Today's early prices included Bandag, steady at 15 1/4; Exxon, down 3/4 at 52, and Eastman Kodak, unchanged at 69 3/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 3.99 to 938.77 after a 5-point drop Monday.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a little less than a 4-3 spread on the NYSE.

Big Board volume was a moderate 19.51 million shares, up from 17.83 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .20 to 54.50.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gave up .09 to 112.40.

Hospital Bd....

His suggestion that the matter be turned over to a committee to meet with Ficklen and further study the situation received a favorable vote.

Trustees were invited to a trustee education program to be held at the Holiday Inn Thursday at 6 p.m. Carl Parrish, who in the past has served as a visiting surveyor of Pitt Memorial for the Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals, will address the meeting.

During the move to the new hospital weekend after next, it was announced that there will be no visitors except immediate families of patients allowed all day Saturday and Sunday.

Construction Manager Ralph Hall reported that final inspections by the Health Department, the city building inspector, and the State Division of Facilities Services are now underway and that favorable reports are expected.

It was announced that there will be at least 12 fire drills for all shifts at unannounced times during each year.

Smoking in the new hospital will be limited. All ambulatory (able to walk) patients will be requested to smoke only out of the bed. Bed patients can smoke only if a responsible adult is in the room. Waste cans are not to be used for ashtrays and are to be of non-combustible material. There is to be no smoking in halls, elevators, or stairwells, and smoking in nursing stations is to be confined to dressing areas.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals survey will be held May 17 and 18, Rick Gilstrap said. The hospital has requested that it be put off until after the move, but only 17 days' leeway was allowed, he said. Surveyors will include one physician, one nurse, and one hospital administrator. The survey has to be paid for by the local hospital and must be passed in order to receive certain needed funding like Medicaid and Medicare.

Approved, based on recommendations from the medical staff, are Dr. Seymour Bakerman for provisional privileges in laboratory medicine; Dr. John Hale for provisional privileges in general and vascular surgery; Dr. Loftus Hengeveld Jr., provisional privileges as an emergency room physician; and Dr. Ernest W. Larkin III, provisional privileges in anatomic and clinical pathology.

Dr. Julian Coleman was advanced from provisional to active privileges as an emergency room physician. Mrs. Josephine Hookway, RN, was given approval as a nurse midwife, upon receipt of a North Carolina license.

Dr. Joe Welch reported on two medical audits made recently. The topics were bacterial meningitis, vaginal hysterectomies, and fourth

Gaskins, Cox Speak At LWV Session

Pitt County Commissioners chairman Charles Gaskins and Greenville Mayor Percy Cox were guest speakers at the annual meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County Chapter of the League of Women Voters (LWV) held last night in the Fellowship Hall of St. James United Methodist Church.

In his talk to the group, Cox gave an overview of plans being made for the growth of Greenville for the next five years. The mayor said that in the immediate future, emphasis will be on highway planning, a revised structure of the administration of the city and county schools, and the increase to a third position on the county commission for better representation for Greenville.

Among outstanding events visualized by Gaskins for the coming five year period were several dramatic possibilities — i.e., "Billion dollar plant located here;" "ECU taken into the ACC;" "Soybean and tobacco production doubles;" and "New stadium completed."

Gaskins also speculated on planning proposals, and touched, too, on the difficulties in planning because situations are constantly changing.

New LWV officers elected for the coming year are: Margaret Wurth, president; Anne Frost, 1st vice-president; Pat Dunn, 2nd vice-president; Janet Peoples, secretary; directors for two-year terms — Mary Ellen Joyce, Camille Archie, and Ricki Grantmeyer. Also elected were: Mildred Indorf to fill a one-year unexpired term as publicity chairperson; Irene Hannifer, nominating chairperson; and Rhea Resnick and Nell Paul, nominating committee.

Rhea Resnick, outgoing president, presided over the annual meeting. During the business meeting, the new budget was adopted.

Projects voted on for forthcoming action by LWV are: election and appointment of county officials; formations and functions of boards and commissions; responsiveness to citizenry; and apportionment and representation.

Ambassadorship Said Declined

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, president of Duke University, reportedly has turned down an offer by President Carter to serve as ambassador to France.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported in its "Under the Dome" column today that Sanford declined the offer, first to Carter and then to Sen. Robert B. Morgan Jr., D-N.C.

Sanford, who briefly sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 and 1976, said it would be "inappropriate and improper to comment on any conversations with the president of the United States."

The Dome quoted sources close to the situation as saying Sanford rejected the offer and later rejected it again when Morgan talked with him on Carter's behalf.

Sanford told The Dome, "I'm not going to leave North Carolina or Duke University for any job."

Carmon and four other Farmville area residents were charged in connection with the case in which the five allegedly forced their way into her home, raped the woman and assaulted her three-year-old child by pointing a gun at the child's head — threatening its life if the woman did not cooperate with their demands.

Roy Chester Ebron, 23 of Route 2, Farmville, entered a plea of guilty to second degree rape in connection with the case in Superior Court, last week.

The jury for the trial — five women and seven men and one alternate — was selected yesterday and heard testimony from the alleged victim of the attack.

Several Sheriff's Department deputies took the stand this morning and related what they found at the scene of the incident just West of Greenville.

The four-engine plane, bound from Kennedy Airport in New York to Panama and Peru, carried 63 passengers and a crew of eight, an Air Force spokesman said.

One woman passenger was treated at the base hospital for hypertension and was released, the spokesman said. Otherwise, the delay was without incident and the plane resumed its trip shortly before 10 p.m.

Passengers and crew received dinner at the base Officers Club.

Unearned Runs Let Gryphons Win, 5-4

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Rocky Mount pushed across an unearned run in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 deadlock and take a 5-4 win over Rose High's baseball team last night.

In a game riddled with 12 errors, the Gryphons had come from a 4-1 deficit to tie the game at four with three unearned tallies in the third inning. The Rampants committed three of their six errors in that frame. Henry Baker, pitching in relief of starter Mike Williams, was the loser for Rose. His record drops to 1-4. Philip Bunn picked up the win for Rocky Mount, raising his record to 5-3.

Each team had six hits in the game, but the Gryphons made theirs count, leaving only two men on base to Rose's nine.

The Rampants scored two in the top of the first to take an early lead. Ronnie Chapman led off with a walk and stole second. He was sacrificed to third by Greg Lee. Then, on a squeeze attempt, John Coffman's bunt was erred by the Gryphon pitcher, allowing Chapman to score and Coffman to make it safely to first.

Coffman stole second base and went to third on a passed ball, scoring on Mike Shank's single left field.

In the bottom of the inning, Williams got into a little trouble, putting the first two batters on base with a single and a walk. The Rampants came up with a double play, however, when catcher Wright Hooks caught a fly ball and pegged the man going back to second. Williams caused the next batter to hit a foul fly to third baseman Danny Hester.

Rocky Mount got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the second with one run. Leadoff batter Dee Whitley bunted safely and then went to second on a pickoff error.

Whitley made third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

In the top of the third, Rose came back to take a 4-1 lead, scoring two runs. Lee led off with a walk and went to second when Jeff Aldridge's grounder was erred by the second baseman.

The ball rolled out into center field and Lee headed toward third. The Gryphon center fielder overthrew third base, allowing Lee to score and Aldridge to come to third.

Aldridge scored when Hooks reached on an error.

Rocky Mount tied things up in the bottom of the frame, however, with three unearned runs. The first batter flew out to right field, but the second reached on an error by the Rampant third baseman. Williams almost pitched himself out of trouble, striking out the next batter but then he gave up three straight hits.

Mike Upchurch singled to right field, sending Clark to third. Clark scored and Upchurch went to second on Linden Wills' base hit. Dee Whitley singled to score Upchurch and move Wills to second. An error on the Rose center fielder allowed Whitley to go to second and Wills to make third. Wills scored on a wild pitch.

The Gryphons then came up with the winning run in the fifth inning against Baker, who replaced Williams in the fourth. Clark singled with one out and then stole second. He went to third on an infield out and scored when Upchurch reached on an error.

Rose had a man on third in the sixth inning and moved a runner to second in the seventh, but was unable to push the tying run across.

The Rampants' record drops to 7-6 overall and 2-4 in Division I play. Rocky Mount is now 6-6 overall and 2-3 in the league.

Rose will play again Friday night, on a road game at Bertie.

John Welborn Resigns As ECU Wrestling Coach After 10 Years

John Welborn, highly successful wrestling coach at East Carolina University for the past ten years, has resigned that position to devote his full time to the administration duties he holds with the university.

His coaching resignation takes effect immediately. He will continue as assistant athletic director of the University.

"I did not feel I could effectively be head wrestling coach, assistant athletic director and teach at the same time," Welborn said. "I would like to devote more time to my administrative work as assistant athletic director, so I decided now would be the best time to get out of coaching."

During his ten years as Pirate head coach, Welborn guided his teams to an overall record of 94-14-3. He coached his teams to Southern Conference championships in 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975 and 1976, the first time ever for one team to win the title for five consecutive years. Welborn also had four second-place teams and one third-place team to his credit in the conference.

Welborn coached 44 individual champions in the league, including East Carolina's only All-America, Bill Hill. Five times, Welborn was named Southern Conference Coach of the Year.

Only one team in the state of North Carolina defeated a Welborn-coached team during his tenure. One of Welborn's highlights was never losing a match to the University of North Carolina.

The 39-year-old native of Boone joined the staff at East Carolina in 1967, took a struggling wrestling program and developed it into a nationally ranked team over the past four years.

"John has been a tremendous asset to our program at East Carolina," said athletic director Bill Cain. "We all wish John could continue as our head wrestling coach, but we know he will do an outstanding job in the administrative end and it will be time-consuming. He's just a winner in any position."

There was no word on when a successor would be named.

Robinson's Clout Sparks Orioles

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Brooks Robinson gave it his best shot — then gave it his best trot.

Baltimore's Invisible Man made one of his infrequent appearances count Tuesday night with a three-run homer in the 10th inning, giving the Orioles a dramatic 6-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

"This was my biggest thrill in a long time," said the 39-year-old Robinson. "It's a day-to-day thing for me. I was lucky to get a contract this year."

The hit was the 2,842nd and home run No. 268 for Robinson in a shining career that extends back to 1959. But it was only his third appearance this season, since he has been reduced to part-time status in the twilight of his outstanding career.

The Indians had taken a 5-2 lead with three runs in the top of the 10th before the Orioles rebounded. When Robinson moved into the on-deck circle, just before Lee May lashed a run-scoring single, he elicited a strong reaction from the Baltimore fans.

Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson talked with reliever Dave LaRoche and decided to let the left-hander pitch to the right-handed hitting Robinson.

"Frank probably looked up and said, 'Here comes old Brooksie. It's a tailor-made double play," said Brooks Robinson.

But the ball went up and out instead of into the ground, as the Cleveland manager had hoped.

In other American League games, the Toronto Blue Jays beat the New York Yankees 8-3, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Oakland A's 5-4, the Boston Red Sox clobbered the Detroit Tigers 11-3, the Kansas City Royals belted the Minnesota Twins 11-3, the California Angels routed the Chicago White Sox 11-2, and the Texas Rangers beat the Seattle Mariners 3-1.

Blue Jays 8, Yankees 3
Toronto rookie Jerry Garvin tamed punchless New York on eight hits for his third consecutive victory as the expansion Blue Jays beat the defending American League champions for the second day in a row. Toronto collected 11 hits, including three doubles, off three New York pitchers, and ex-Yankee Otto Velez drove in two runs for the second consecutive game with a single and double.

A jeering crowd of 9,954 at Yankee Stadium voiced its displeasure with cascades of boos as the Yankees dropped their fifth straight game and eighth in their last nine.

Brewers 5, A's 4
Jamie Quirk doubled and pinch hitter Dan Thomas tripled as Milwaukee rallied for two runs in the ninth inning and beat Oakland. The A's took a 4-3 lead in the eighth when Earl Williams and pinch hitter Rich McKinney hit two-run homers.

It was the fifth straight victory for Milwaukee, the American League East leader, while the A's absorbed their third consecutive loss.

Red Sox 11, Tigers 3
Rick Burleson stroked three hits, including a two-run homer and a triple, pacing Boston's 17-hit attack against Detroit.

Burleson's homer, his first of the season, highlighted a six-run second inning. Rick Miller got a double and two singles and drove in three runs. Jim Rice also had three hits and Carlton Fisk and Dwight Evans two each.

Royals 11, Twins 3
Light-hitting Frank White drove in three runs with a homer and a double in the same inning as Kansas City batted around in the fifth and trounced Minnesota. White's leadoff homer snapped a 3-3 tie and ignited a seven-run burst off Twins starter Pete Redfern and reliever Don Carrithers.

Angels 11, White Sox 2
Frank Tanana scattered six hits, leading California over Chicago for his third straight victory. Joe Rudi tied an Angels' club record by scoring four runs. He also had three singles and a three-run homer, his third of the season.

Bethel Wins Game
BETHEL — Bethel Elementary gained a 10-3 baseball win over Snow Hill yesterday afternoon.

Leading hitters for Bethel were Ronnie House, Barry Grimes and Bob Hemingway. Each of them went 2-5 at the plate. David Price was the winning pitcher.

Rangers 3, Mariners 1
Toby Harrah's three-run homer with two out in the ninth led Texas over Seattle. Harrah, who had grounded into double plays twice earlier, ripped the first pitch from Seattle starter Gary Wheelock into the left field seats, scoring Mike Hargrave and Ken Henderson.

Until Harrah's blast, Wheelock had scattered six hits through the first eight innings and struck out six in his bid to become the first Mariner pitcher to hurl a complete game.

Jamesville Doing Well

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

The fact that this is only the first year of a softball team at Jamesville High School has not caused too many problems for the Lady Bullets, according to coach Deborah Wilson.

Jamesville is just under the 500 mark overall with a 2-3 record and is 2-1 in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference. This is also the first year the conference has had a softball program.

"Some of the other schools (in the conference) have had teams before," Miss Wilson said. "The fact that we're 2-1 in the conference speaks pretty good."

Most of the girls on the team have actually played organized softball before, in summer leagues and such, so they know about the game, Miss Wilson said, and this has been a plus.

The Lady Bullets had about 25 girls at tryouts earlier in the year — pretty good for a first-year program — and have narrowed the team to 18.

Miss Wilson said there is a lot of depth in the 18 remaining girls. "I think it's going over real well. The community is sports-minded and we've had some good crowds at the games."

"As far as any problems, I don't foresee any. Things are working pretty well for us."

Miss Wilson said she has a few top players and the rest are about equal in ability. She generally makes a lot of changes in the lineup.

The top pitcher for Jamesville is Mika Ellis. In the hitting department, there are a number of good performers, including center fielder Sandy Rogers and first baseman Lorey Modlin.

Short fielder Mary Floyd knocked a homer over the fence earlier in the season, while third baseman Kim Hardison and second baseman Donna Hardison also did well at the plate.

"Those girls are really doing a lot of hitting and pulling some runs around for us and doing a good job in the field," Miss Wilson said. "The rest of them are about the same."

There are six teams in the B-H-M this year. Three, Bath, Chocowinity and Bear Grass, had teams last year while the other three, Jamesville, Belhaven and Mattamuskeet all have first-year programs.

The Lady Bullets have beaten Belhaven and Bear Grass, but lost to Bath. Despite the first-year teams, "it's still a pretty good conference," Miss Wilson said.

She feels Bath probably has the best chance right now to win the league title, but "I feel like we could take first if we keep going strong like we are right now."

All it would take is for a couple of some other teams to defeat Bath and the Lady Bullets could be right in the thick of things.

Ayden-Grifton In Triple Play

WASHINGTON — Washington High School nipped the Ayden-Grifton softball team, 18-17, yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton took an early lead with four in the first and six in the second. Washington came up with two in the first, and added six more in the second to trail 10-8. But the Lady Pack added nine runs in the third to take the lead for good. They pushed over what proved to be the winning run in the sixth.

Ayden-Grifton pulled off a triple play in one inning. Washington had the bases loaded with none out, and a pop-fly was hit near the line. The A-G pitcher got under the ball, but dropped it. The runners had held, and thought the ball was foul, and Ayden-Grifton relayed it from home to third to second in time to pull off the unique play.

Margie Kelder was the winning pitcher for Washington.

Karen Haseley had two hits for the Chargerettes, including a homer, while Ruby Gardiner had three, Patricia Cannon and Dolly Burney had two each, and Shanda Brock and Vivian Ellis each had homers.

Glanda Asby had four, while Carrie Andrews had three, and M. Gibbs and Sheila McDebett each had two for Washington.

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-6, is home to Southern Nash on Thursday.

Tigerettes Take Win

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's girls' softball team romped to an 11-8 win over Tarboro yesterday.

Joy Lassiter was the winning pitcher for Williamston, while Lydia Singleton led the hitting with three, including a homer. Lisa Roberson had two hits, while Valeria Barnhill had a home run.

Williamston is now 10-1 overall and 2-0 in Northeastern Conference play.

EARL ONCE A CENTER
NEW YORK (AP) — Earl (the Pearl) Monroe of the New York Knickerbockers of the NBA is 6 foot 3½, on the small side for a pro basketball star. But he jumped center in high school competition.

"In those days I always played with my back to the basket," Earl recalled. "I learned many scoring moves which I still use in the NBA."

Opposing players and coaches insist now, however, that many of Monroe's moves were not learned in high school. "I've always had the ability to ad-lib," he explained.

Stas Gets New Honor

A second honor in a short time has been accorded the late Clarence Stasavich, former athletic director at East Carolina University.

Stasavich was inducted into the Lenoir Rhyne College Sports Hall of Fame last week, and it has been announced that he will be inducted into the Helms Hall of Fame in June.

The Helms honor is for athletic directors, and Stasavich will be one of 15 in the group. The ceremonies this year will be held on June 20 at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev. Stasavich is already a member of the Helms Hall of Fame for football coaches, along with being a member of the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame and the East Carolina University Sports Hall of Fame.

Following a tenure of 16 years as head football coach at Lenoir Rhyne, Stasavich moved to East Carolina, where he was football coach and athletic director. He served in the latter capacity for 13 years until his death in 1975.

Washington Rallies After Poor Beginning

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"If you've got to fall behind 16-1," said Washington Coach Dick Motta, "it's best to do it at the start of the game."

Motta's Bulls did precisely that in the opening game of their National Basketball Association quarter-final best-of-seven playoff series at Houston Tuesday night, then rallied and beat the Rockets 111-101.

"There was no place for us to hide in the first quarter," said Motta. "If I could have gone home then, I would have."

Instead Motta stuck around and watched his club outscore the Rockets 23-5 in the final six minutes of the second quarter for a 46-46 halftime tie. The Bulls went ahead to stay 71-69 on a jumper by Phil Chenier with 3½ minutes left in the third period and pulled away despite 14 points in the fourth quarter by the Rockets' Mike Newlin.

Washington's bench provided the impetus, rookie center-forward Mitch Kupchak pouring in a career-high 32 points and guard Larry Wright scoring 14. Among the starters, Elvin Hayes scored 22 and Chenier 20.

Newlin led the Rockets with 24 points and Rudy Tomjanovich scored 19.

The loss erased the Rockets' home-court advantage and was the second time a team which had received a bye through the first round of the playoffs lost to one which played in the first round.

Boston beat Philadelphia 113-111 Sunday in the opener of their series, which resumes tonight at Philadelphia.

The other two quarter-final series begin tonight, with Portland at Denver and Golden State at Los Angeles.

Hayes said he was not worried by the Bulls' slow start. "We've been down 30 points before and came back to win," he said, "so we just tried not to panic and just stay in it."

Coach Tom Nissalke said his Rockets "got off to a good start but we got out of what we were doing that got us the lead."

As a result, the Rockets will be behind 1-0 when the series resumes Thursday night at Houston.

Boston has to be buoyed by its last-second victory over Philadelphia in their opener, fashioned on Jo Jo White's off-balance jumper. But 76ers forward George McGinnis says, "Look at it this way: I only scored six points and we were still in it to the end. In order for us to win, I don't have to score 30. But I do have to score some, rebound some and concentrate on defense."

The Portland-Denver series matches two of the league's best running teams. Portland, however, has an edge under the boards with Bill Walton and Maurice Lucas fueling the fast break. It will be up to Denver's big men, Dan Issel, Bobby Jones and Marvin Webster, to negate the Blazers' two solid rebounders.

Los Angeles, with the best regular-season record in the league, takes on playoff-tested Golden State in a series which features two of the dominant players in the game — Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Warriors forward Rick Barry.

Ruthven Runs Record To 3-0

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Disregard Dick Ruthven's spring training record. It is the regular season that counts.

The Atlanta right-hander ran his record to 3-0 Tuesday night with a five-hit, 10-strikeout, 4-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

During spring training, Ruthven was cuffed around for a 9.43 earned run average. But on the baseball calendar it is no longer spring.

"Somebody rang a bell," Ruthven said of the regular season. "As soon as the season started, I knew I would be ready. I might have given somebody ulcers in the spring, but not me."

Even Padres loser Dave Freisleben was impressed.

"He'll lull you to sleep with the change and the curve ball, then throw heat right by you," Freisleben said. "He can throw hard."

In other National League games Tuesday, Montreal blanked Pittsburgh 6-0, Philadelphia edged Chicago 7-5, San Francisco stopped Houston 7-4 and New York defeated St. Louis 5-2.

Rowland Office and Gary Matthews provided the Atlanta power with home runs, but it was Ruthven's artistry on the mound that sparkled.

"At no point did I not feel like I had control until the eighth," when he gave up a walk, Ruthven said. Then Jerry Turner's bouncer through the middle was knocked down by shortstop Pat Rickett, who made a force play at second while flat on his stomach.

"Pat's play was the turning point of the game," Ruthven said. "I had lost my concentration temporarily and that woke me right up."

Expos 6, Pirates 0

A five-hitter by Don Stanhouse and Warren Cromartie's three-run triple carried Montreal to its triumph over Pittsburgh. Cromartie's triple highlighted a five-run sixth inning for the Expos.

Ellis Valentine homered in the eighth for Montreal.

Phillies 7, Cubs 2

A two-run triple by Ted Sizemore sparked a five-run third inning and Larry Bowa's first home run in two seasons in the fourth led Philadelphia to a rain-delayed victory over the Cubs. The Phillies scored all five of their runs with two out in the third.

Jerry Morales drove in four Cubs' runs with two doubles and a single. The game was held up for 30 minutes by rain in the top of the ninth.

Giants 7, Astros 4

A two-run single by Willie McCovey in the sixth inning broke a 4-4 tie and lifted San Francisco past Houston. The hit came off Floyd Bannister, the first selection in the 1976 free agent draft who was making his first major league appearance.

Enos Cabell tied a Houston club record with three stolen bases in the game, the second time he has accomplished the feat this season.

Mets 5, Cardinals 2

John Milner scored the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and singled home an insurance tally in the seventh, leading New York past St. Louis. Winner Jerry Kosman and Skip Lockwood combined to limit the Cardinals to six hits.

Hector Cruz accounted for both St. Louis runs with a homer with one on.

Bulldogs Top S.C.

By The Associated Press

The Citadel Bulldogs got fourth pitching from Frank Galloway and Richard Wieters Tuesday to snap South Carolina's seven-game college baseball win streak with a 4-3 decision at Charleston.

The Citadel overcame a 2-0 deficit with four runs in the sixth inning, three of them unearned, to claim their 19th win against seven losses.

Jim Lewis went the distance on the mound for South Carolina, allowing just four hits. He gave up a single to Al Diket and a double by Rick Jarrell in the sixth when the Citadel scored three unearned runs to go ahead 4-2.

The loss dropped the Gamecocks to 27-8-1.

In other college baseball action, Newberry defeated Benedict 7-2. Coastal Carolina defeated Francis Marion 4-2.

'Clam War' By Poachers

CLAM POACHER — A shellfisherman loads clams into a bucket aboard his boat in Great South Bay, in an area where conservation officials claim it is a polluted zone.

BY JOSEPH A. GAMBARDELLO

GREAT SOUTH BAY, N.Y. (UPI) — Conservation officers took to helicopters and ski-mobiles when even the winter's freeze failed to stop clam poachers on Long Island's Great South Bay.

As the "clam war" escalated, the poachers equipped themselves with CB radios to keep track of the lawmen.

Conservation boats rammed clammer boats, and vice-versa.

"They'll never really stop us," said Cliff Roberts, a 23-year-old shellfisherman and sometimes poacher, working with long rake-like tongs from the windswept deck of his clamboat.

"There'll always be someone who'd be willing to poach. As it is now some of these guys are so brazen they call the cops to let them know they're going out that night to poach.

"I guess they love the chase."

There have been some comic moments in the chase. One clammer, out on the frozen bay fishing through a hole, watched helplessly as his car broke through the ice and sank.

But it's not always funny for Roberts and others who make their living in Long Island's $100 million shellfishing industry, harvesting the rich clam beds of Great South Bay. Sometimes illegally.

The dispute centers on an imaginary line the state has drawn along the bay to divide it into "polluted" and "non-polluted" zones.

The state's Environmental Conservation Department says the water in the "polluted" zone exceeds the federal limit, set in 1941, of 70 Coliform organisms per 100 millimeters of water.

By comparison, swimming is allowed in water with a count of up to 2,400. The baymen contend that the 1941 standard is outmoded.

"The pollution level there is not dangerous," Cliff said from the windswept deck of his clamboat as he worked the mud with his rake-like tongs.

"No one's gotten sick from these clams in years."

The polluted zone is extremely rich in shellfish and most baymen often find themselves "working the other side of the line." Roberts said that when the prices for a 500-count bag are good a clammer can make up to $300 in a few hours of poaching.

But if he is caught, he could end up paying a steep fine, lose his license and have his boat seized.

Suffolk County police and state conservation agents use high speed boats, helicopters and sometimes ski-mobiles.

"Conservation landed a helicopter on my deck once, almost blowing over another clammer near me," Roberts said. Roberts has received three summonses.

"The last time they gave me a summons they were going to seize my boat, but they couldn't find a trailer big enough to take it."

For their part, Roberts said, some of the clammers have CB radios on their boats to keep tabs on the authorities.

So far there has not been any serious violence. But there have been a number of ramblings by both sides and police and conservation department equipment has been vandalized.

During the recent months when the bay was frozen, the clammers would cut holes in the 18-inch ice to dredge up the clams. The clams were bringing $40 to $50 a bushel.

That's when lawmen brought out their ski-mobiles.

"Conservation would come up on their ski-dos to tell us we were working across the line but we'd tell them we didn't see any buoys, and we didn't because they were under the ice, so they just left us alone," said Roberts, now sorting his catch on the deck.

His ruddy face broke into a smile under his beard.

"Some of the guys got lazy though and drove their cars out onto the ice," he recalled. "One of them lost a brand new Toyota when it fell through."

"There was an army of us out there then but we all made good money."

On Long Island shellfishing is the third largest industry, employing 10,000 people.

Long Island legislators have sponsored legislation that would update the 1941 federal pollution standard and hopefully allow the clammers to prosper.

For the clammers it's all or nothing.

Leslie Is Added To MDC Board

Harry Leslie, plant manager at Burroughs Wellcome Co. here, joined the board of directors of MDC Inc. of Chapel Hill recently as a new member.

MDC Inc., formerly known as the N.C. Manpower Development Corp., is a private, non-profit corporation involved in research and demonstration work in the field of manpower and productivity development.

The corporation, it was announced, is undertaking for the U.S. Department of Labor a review of public service employment projects that the Carter administration will use in its efforts to reduce unemployment.

According to MDC's board chairman Luther Hodges Jr., the organization will study 50 public service employment projects in various sections of the nation. He said the aim is to identify those projects that are proving most effective in both reducing local unemployment and providing general benefits for their communities.

In addition to its national contract work for the Department of Labor, MDC Inc. also has federal, state and private foundation grants for other projects in the state and other states in the southeast.

New Labeling Of Canned Food

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Forty to 50 per cent of this year's crop of fruits and vegetables packed by a canner here will be labeled to show solid contents. James T. Schmuck, group vice president of Del Monte Corp., said the information on the front and back panels will tell the weight of solids before liquid was added for processing.

Committed To Tall Ship

By JAMES L. OVERTON HOUSTON (UPI) — Standing at the pilot's wheel of the good ship Artemis, Rick Harrington looked up into the pyramidal-shaped displays of rope and rigging dancing in the Gulf Coast breeze.

Then behind his bushy salt and pepper sailor's beard he broke into a warning grin, his eyes brimming.

"I love this ship. It's a fine old vessel. It's an obsession. It grabs you. This is a ship of peace."

It is almost a natural reflex for Harrington to place his hand over his heart when he talks about her — a 150 foot, 3-masted topsail schooner not unlike the ones which sailed the Gulf Coast and made up the modest complement of the Texas Navy in days past.

"Years ago I had a dream to do this," Harrington said. "Two years ago I started actively looking for a ship, a tall ship, a square rig vessel, a ship that could keep moving, not be locked in concrete. I looked at a lot of ships."

"I saw her July 4 in the Tall Ship parade. I thought she was beautiful. I knew as soon as I saw her she was just right for what we planned."

At 44, Harrington and his wife, Sharron, began their efforts to obtain the Artemis, a wooden cargo hauler of Danish registry launched in 1903. The idea was to restore the vessel and turn her into a floating maritime museum.

To do so, he put his established career as a film producer on the back burner and turned all of his energy and ready cash into the project.

"It's a total commitment," his wife said. "It's like being eight months pregnant. You just can't back out. It's going to be a beautiful baby. That's all."

"The whole thing was to represent the Gulf Coast," Harrington said. "This is one of our primary goals. The restoration and maintenance of Artemis is one of the most important things. As we go, we will acquire more and more exhibits and become a real, living Gulf Coast museum."

The commitment, financially and psychologically, was almost more than they bargained for.

"It has more or less overwhelmed both of us," he said. "It's a long-term project. It will take about 10 years to do all of this."

Artemis is the only wooden ship remaining on the Lloyd's registry of ships and has an insured value of $2.1 million.

"There's not another one alive today. They all were sunk many years ago."

Such vessels once sailed with a crew of 17 officers and up to 100 men onboard.

"Here we are sailing with a crew of seven," Sharron said. "She can take heavy winds," Harrington said. "She's a powerful old ship. We came across the Gulf in nine days. And she had 20 foot waves hitting 80 feet up. She's got a lot of power."

The ship today is seaworthy, but is scheduled for drydocking as soon as a dock can be located to handle the wooden hull. Harrington anticipates spending $200,000 in restoring, refurbishing and setting up the full-ship museum. To do that he plans on applying for grants for maintenance.

The project will take many years and a lot of money, Harrington said, adding, "We're into this forever."

Receive Letters Of Mark Twain

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — It's a story that could have been in a Mark Twain novel: Two miners short of cash are surviving on hard tack and beans, but occasionally splurge on canned delicacies such as oysters, turkey and fruits in syrup.

To impress the other miners, they toss the empty cans in front of their cabin.

Rumors spread that they've struck it rich, but someone thinks it's a hoax and hauls all the empty cans away. The two miners find where the cans were dumped, cart them back to their cabin and begin throwing them out again—a few at a time.

The miners are Samuel L. Clemens, better known to the world as Mark Twain, and his longtime friend and mining partner, Robert M. Howland.

The story is related in an unidentified newspaper clipping accompanying letters from Clemens to Howland over a 20-year period, which have been donated by heirs to the Mark Twain Papers collection at the University of California library here.

As young men, Clemens and Howland met in 1860 and for 1 1/2 years shared the cabin at the Aurora mining camp, now a ghost town 100 miles south of Virginia City, near the California-Nevada border.

The letters are noteworthy because Clemens maintained few friendships from the days he spent in Nevada and in California's gold rush country, said Fred Anderson, editor of the Mark Twain Papers.

The letters were given to UC's Bancroft Library by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gunn, who live across San Francisco Bay in Sausalito.

Gunn, Howland's grandson, said the 13 letters over a 20-year span are only part of the correspondence between the two men. Other letters were not saved.

Anderson said Howland is immortalized in "Roughing It," Twain's epic about life in the West, as "Bob H—," who jumped up in bed one night and knocked down a shelf loaded with bottles of tarantulas. It kept miners in the room up the rest of the night, feeling imaginary spiders crawling up their legs.

Howland was the Aurora town marshal and later became warden of the Nevada Territorial Prison in Carson City, where he met Louise Meyer, daughter of a local rancher. They were later married.

In the first letter of the set, Clemens remarks on his own recent marriage and asks how "Miss Lou" likes marriage. "Better than trotting up and down between Miss Clapp's school and Mr. Meyer's ranch, I suspect," he comments.
