

IF ALL GOES WELL — This is how engineers plan to cap the blown out well which has spilled more than 3 million gallons of oil into the North Sea. They hope rams operated by hydraulic pressure will close off the well so that a four-ton assembly consisting of spool piece and safety valve and mud pump can be placed on the well. With this in place mud will be pumped down the well until the weight of the mud in the shaft stops the oil flow. Diagram by AP staff artist Carl Fox. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Cuba have set preliminary maritime boundaries between the two nations and reached an agreement that will allow Cuban fishermen to take surplus catches within 200 miles of the American shoreline.

Terms were reached in two rounds of talks in New York and Havana and a joint announcement was issued today by the State Department. Details of agreements between the two countries, both of which have adopted 200-mile fishing limits, were not immediately disclosed. The boundary agreement was needed because Cuba is only 90 miles off the U.S. coast. The fisheries agreement brings Cuba in line with several other nations, including the Soviet Union, which regularly fish near the U.S. coast and have applied for permission to catch specified numbers of fish within the zone.

The accord represents a growing accommodation between the two countries after a 16-year split in normal relations. However, there was no immediate indication whether the negotiations, headed on the American side by Asst. Secretary of State Terence Todman, ranged beyond fishing rights to more substantive issues.

President Carter, in a recent policy speech to the Organization of American States said, "We are seeking to determine whether relations with Cuba can be improved on a measured and reciprocal basis."

Among the obstacles to establishing ties with Cuba are Cuba's support for insurgent movements in Africa and human rights violations at home, according to U.S. officials.

Todman is the first U.S. diplomat to visit Havana since relations were broken in 1961. The first round of talks with the Cuban team headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Pelegrin Torras were held in New York City last month, followed by those in Havana this week. U.S. officials here have said that one option under consideration is setting up an American interest section in the Swiss Embassy in the Cuban capital to be manned by permanent American diplomats. The Cubans would have a matching interest section in the Czechoslovak Embassy here.

The United States has allowed several countries to fish within 200 miles of the U.S. zone with prearranged permission. This has led to some incidents, most notably with the Soviet Union. Two Russian vessels recently were intercepted for violating terms of their exemptions.

Since the distance between the southern tip of Florida and Cuba is only 90 miles, the new 200-mile U.S. and Cuban fishing zones overlap and a compromise had to be arranged.

soon as possible and thoroughly."

This was an indication that the government would not be hurried into a decision on test drilling off northern Norway, an area that so far is closed to the oil companies. The well-capping crew led by "Boots" Hansen and Richard Hattberg worked on the rig from daybreak until early afternoon Wednesday, then suspended operations when wrestling with a balky gasket tired them out.

Hansen and Hattberg are members of Red Adair's oilwell trouble-shooting outfit in Houston. The blind rams were forced over the spurting wellhead by hydraulic pressure. A company spokesman said after the first attempt that the blind rams had closed for about one minute, then reopened under the force of the gas that is pushing the oil up from 10,000 feet below.

The well has been gushing 36,000 gallons of oil and shale an hour into the North Sea since it blew out late Friday night during a maintenance operation. The spill has created a slick about 31 miles long and 12½ miles wide in the Ekofisk oil field, but no coastline was threatened yet, and Norwegian fishery experts said they did not expect any "mass killing of fish."

Norwegian Prime Minister Odvar Nordli said the blowout would not halt oil operations off the Norwegian coast. But he added: "The accident has showed that all aspects of the North Sea activities must be studied, as machinery used today failed, the crew might try to winch a four-ton capping device over the gusher.

"It's difficult, but it's been done before," he said.

The crew, stationed on a nearby barge, boarded the runaway Bravo oil rig at dawn in good weather to begin what was hoped would be the final phase of the capping operation. The rig is situated 170 miles southwest of Norway.

Preliminary Maritime Boundaries Agreed To

Rhodes Rezoning Request Approved

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
In a unanimous vote last night, the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission endorsed the rezoning request of Wilson Rhodes Electrical Contractors and recommended that the City Council rezone the Rhodes tract on Hooker Road from RA-20 to Highway Commercial.

The Rhodes request, which was tabled at the March planning board meeting, has generated considerable discussion and neighboring residential property owners have voiced opposition to the change to Highway Commercial.

The residents, most of them new homeowners in nearby Cambridge Subdivision, indicated that they were not opposed to Rhodes remaining at his present location and they considered him a good neighbor, but they opposed the area opening up to commercial development.

Rhodes explained that when he built his business on the one acre tract, located on the east side of Hooker adjacent to Cambridge Subdivision, the property was located outside the city limits. An annexation in 1972 brought his property into the city and subsequent agricultural zoning.

As it now stands, it was explained, Rhodes business is a non-conforming use in the RA-20 zone and if his facilities were destroyed by fire, he would be unable to replace them. Rhodes said that the rezoning was being requested in order to protect the future of his business for his sons.

A spokesman for the Cambridge residents asked if the grandfather clause of the zoning ordinance could be changed to allow Rhodes to rebuild in the event of a loss if less than a majority of the adjoining property owners opposed the rebuilding.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, commission chairman, said that she viewed the situation as spot zoning and she would oppose it on those grounds.

City Manager Jim Caldwell observed that, "You have to consider that he (Rhodes) was there first."

Commission member Eddie Howell noted that Rhodes was put into the situation as a non-conforming use by the action of the city. It was noted that he has not encroached on the new property owners but rather they have encroached on him.

Rhodes request was discussed informally at the April City Council meeting during consideration of another request for commercial zoning. The other request, submitted by Harold Taunton, was denied on the basis that the request constituted a subdivision.

In business on the Joint City-County Commission agenda, preliminary discussion was held on the development plan for the US 264-NC 11 corridor and in a

Agents Protest Indictment Of Their Colleague

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In scores of letters and telegrams to President Carter and the Senate Judiciary Committee, FBI employees are protesting the criminal indictment of their retired colleague, John J. Kearney.

"It is astounding to me that the President could pardon draft dodgers and deserters and at the same time the government could indict an FBI agent for performing his patriotic deeds," wrote Thomas W. Kitchens, Jr., special agent in charge of the FBI office in Cincinnati.

Some of the mail comes directly to the committee. Other protests are copies of letters mailed to Carter.

One protest was signed by 200 agents in the Washington office of the FBI. Another came from 26 agents in Columbus, Ohio.

The writers call Kearney's indictment outrageous, absurd, disgraceful. They appeal to authorities to remember the bombings and terrorism of only a few years ago, acts which led to the assignment for which Kearney was indicted.

Kearney, a former supervisor in the FBI's New York City office, is charged with illegal wiretapping, mail opening and conspiracy in surveillance activities in the early 1970s. He allegedly committed the offenses while overseeing surveillance of persons believed to have been in contact with the Weatherman, an underground terrorist group.

Agent Richard T. Worst of Albany, N.Y., wrote Carter: "Remember what it was like in the late 1960s and early 1970s with the bombings, killings, demonstrations, protests and over-all civil unrest."

Worst said the public asked at the time, "What is the FBI doing about this? How can the radicals be stopped?" And with these questions, he said, "came the implied statements that 'we don't care how you do it, just get the job done.'"

"Now, all of a sudden, everyone is crying that their rights have been violated," Worst wrote. "What about the lives, property, jobs, etc., that were saved?"

Both Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell and FBI Director Clarence Kelley, were questioned this week by a Senate appropriations subcommittee about the FBI's handling of domestic security cases.

During Kelley's testimony on Wednesday, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said there is no excuse for FBI agents to break the law in their investigations, even with approval from higher officials.

Troubleshooters Fail In 3 Tries To Curb Gusher

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Troubleshooters failed in three attempts today to choke off the runaway well in the North Sea in what was described as a severe setback.

Phillips Petroleum officials also disclosed that a "blowout preventer" had mistakenly been placed upside down on the wellhead before last week's accident.

Phillips officials acknowledged that today's failure to shut off the well was a severe setback in their efforts to save the North Sea from further massive pollution.

The oil company said that the half moon-shaped steel discs called "blind rams" that were used today to try to close off the well had been tested to withstand only 4,000 pounds per square inch of pressure, but that the force of the oil spurting to the surface from the seabed was estimated at 4,350 pounds of pressure per square inch. Each time the seven-man team put the rams in place today, the oil pressure forced them open and continued to spurt crude oil into the sea.

Robert Archambeault, Phillips director of engineering for the midsea Ekofisk oil field, told a news conference about the misplacement last week of the device designed to stop such blowouts.

"It's a good possibility that the well could have been sealed if the blowout preventer had not been installed in an inverted position sometime last week," he said.

By noon, Norwegian officials estimated that 6½ million gallons of oil had gushed from the well since it blew out Friday night.

Archambeault, of Dayton, Ohio, had told reporters Wednesday night that if the machinery used today failed, the crew might try to winch a four-ton capping device over the gusher.

"It's difficult, but it's been done before," he said.

Endorse Davis' Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jefferson Davis may soon join Robert E. Lee in regaining U.S. citizenship lost after the Civil War.

The Senate passed a resolution Wednesday restoring citizenship to Davis, who served as president of the Confederate States of America. The resolution now goes to the House for action.

Congress acted last year to restore citizenship to Lee.

The resolution noted that Davis had served as an Army officer in the Mexican War, as a member of the House and Senate from Mississippi and also as secretary of war in the administration of President Franklin Pierce.

Davis was arrested in 1865 and held for two years without trial in Ft. Monroe, Va., under what the resolution described as "the most inhumane conditions."

"Despite his never being convicted of any crime or even brought to trial for any crime, Jefferson Davis was denied full citizenship rights as a United States citizen after his release from prison and was specifically excluded from the general amnesty bill of 1876," the resolution said.

The measure would restore full rights of citizenship to Davis, effective Dec. 5, 1968.

Recognized His Stolen Cart

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — The Calvary Baptist Church here held a contest for people who arrived for last Sunday's services using energy-saving transportation methods. And first prize went to a man who showed up in a four-wheeled pedal cart.

But another Holland resident, watching news coverage of the event on television, recognized the prize-winning cart. It had been stolen from him.

Police said the pedal-cart has been returned to its owner, who is considering whether to press charges against the man, who won a Bible.

Downtown Ass'n Gives Plaque To Gene West

The presentation of a special plaque to former Mayor S. Eugene West and Certificates of Appreciation to various members highlighted Wednesday's annual meeting of the Downtown Greenville Association.

The plaque presented to West was an exact replica of the dedication plaque located on Evans Mall in his honor. The presentation, it was noted, was the result of a thought generated by a group of West's friends who wished to salute the former mayor.

President George Coffman presented the certificates "for efforts and contributions resulting in the growth, progress and continuing viability of the Downtown Greenville Business District."

Receiving the certificates were members Morris Brody, Greenville Banks, Clarence Tugwell, Billy Barrington, Helen Pope, Donna Tabar, John Shan-nonhouse, Bronson Matney, William H. Taft Jr., Mike Brocato, Wade Trask, Joe Johnson, Danny Jacobson, Crockett Webb, Leroy Cherry and Ken Watkins.

Coffman announced that there are now 93 dues-paying members, an increase from the 67 reported at this time last year. He noted that a new member campaign will be launched in May. The president congratulated the chairmen and members of the Trade Promotion and Parking committees on a year of good accomplishment.

Two bylaws were amended by the membership. One of the amendments increases the number of directors while the second revision changes the boundaries of the association membership from the CBD area to the Downtown Business area. The new section will include Dickinson Avenue to the railroad, east on Tenth Street to Cotanche, and north on Cotanche to the original line, it was explained.

The membership also heard a report on the annual audit and committee action summaries by Mrs. Helen Pope for trade promotion and Clarence Tugwell for parking.

In fact, I had lunch with one the other day and didn't even realize it until we went to the parking lot for his car. The lot was crowded and his little sports number was centered squarely between the lines of two spots.

He looked a little embarrassed about it and said, "It's my doors. You park next to another car and you get your doors beat up."

"May you get sideswiped by a

"What's the point of all that?" he asked. "Let's just say in case of an accident, he'd want us to save the doors!"

Wedding Bells Signal Happiness For Seniors

By D'VERA COHN
BOSTON (UPI) — Older people are remarrying at a fast clip, and are happier when they do than their younger counterparts.

So says Boston University researcher Barbara Vinick. She claims both society and relatives of the elderly have no trouble accepting the trend.

"In many ways, the remarriages really conform to an ideal of calmness and serenity that is lacking in early marriage, she said.

Under a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, Mrs. Vinick recently studied two dozen remarried elderly couples in two Massachusetts towns. The average age for brides was 67 and for bridegrooms, 73.

"It's a trend that's increasing," she said. "From 1960 to 1973, the number of brides 65 and over has more than doubled to 16,000, and the number of grooms has almost doubled to 33,000. In 1940, there was hardly anyone I could have interviewed."

"It's not true that elderly men are trapped into marriage by eager women, she said.

"Men needed marriage more than women. In many cases, they said they were lonely. They were not as close to other people as women."

And a lucky thing for elderly women, too, since there are three times more of them than men. Mrs. Vinick suggested that elderly women who want companionship think of alternatives such as communal living.

Mrs. Vinick thinks social planners should make it easier for the elderly to marry by setting up more places for them to meet. She also favors reform of pension and social security laws to insure elderly don't lose benefits if they remarry.

"Remarriage among older persons is becoming more accepted by society in general," she said. "People's relatives really approve of the remarriage. That way there is someone there to relieve the burden."

In some cases, she said, remarriage meant an elderly spouse did not have to enter a rest home, because there was now someone to take on nursing duties.

Mrs. Vinick said both courtship and remarriages are less highly charged among seniors than the young.

"The people who were the most satisfied were the ones who did not have to make drastic changes."

"They also don't fight much. With younger marriages, the idea is you should communicate all you're feeling. With these couples, the idea is that you should hold it all in."

The lack of energy doesn't rule out sex, but does tone it down, she said.

"The physical act was not what they stressed. What they stressed was the warmth, the closeness."

Not that elderly remarriages are without problems. Mrs. Vinick says children sometimes get in the way, especially if they find financial handouts from their parents cut off upon remarriage.

Mrs. Vinick said the elderly who remarry are far from the stereotype of the quarrelsome stay-at-homes.

"They were very active for the most part, very independent. It was sometimes hard to schedule interviews because these people were so busy."

Moore-Phillips Vows Exchanged Recently

GRIFTON — In a ceremony on Saturday, April 16, at high noon, Miss Monica Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips of Denver, Col., and Jay Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Broadus Moore of Grifton, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Ray Harrison officiated at the double ring ceremony in the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church.

Mrs. Kay Davis, pianist, and Mrs. Pauline Owens, soloist, rendered a program of wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Floyd A. Roberson of Halifax, wore a formal gown of white maracaine. The fitted bodice featured a sheer tucked yoke outlined in alencon lace and high neckline, edged in lace. The Gibson Girl sleeves had deep cuffs with button closings and bands of lace. The full skirt and built-in chapel train were bordered with lace.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from at Juliette cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds encircled with white daisies.

Mrs. Frank Moore of Bladenboro, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Mrs. Ann Ricks, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Frank Moore of Bladenboro, brother of the bridegroom, and Leo Ricks, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride is a Lakewood High School and State University graduate of Lakewood, Col. The bridegroom, a graduate of Grifton School and Lear Sigler, Silver Springs, Md., is a sergeant in the U. S. Air Force. He is an integrated avionics component instructor at Lowry AFB, Denver, Col.

After a wedding trip to coastal North Carolina, the couple will be living in Denver.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the fellowship hall given by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth and held a bouquet of white daisies and pink snapdragons flanked by tapers in silver holders.

Have Lawyer Write A Correct Will

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As a lawyer, I would like to comment on your answer to SPEECHLESS, wherein you advised her to tell Grandma to "write down" how she wanted her jewelry, silver and heirlooms to be divided after she died.

Abby, please tell your readers that unless Grandma "writes it down" in the form of a will, the only way her favorite loved ones are going to get what she wanted them to get is to climb through the back window while they're carrying Grandma out the front door.

Please correct this as soon as possible, or all my clients for whom I have prepared wills will think I have overcharged them, and they'll be out in the parking lot slashing my tires.

LAWYER

DEAR ABBY: You're right. I should have told SPEECHLESS to advise Grandma to engage a lawyer to draw up a proper will because most of those handwritten do-it-yourself wills aren't worth the paper they're written on. In matters having to do with the law, it's wise (and cheaper in the long run) to hire a lawyer and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman with a problem I am almost ashamed to admit, but I need an answer, and you're the only one I can ask without embarrassing myself, so here goes:

I've been seeing a 15-year-old boy, and we really dig each other. He's very mature for his age (physically, that is) so when he told me he was 20, I believed him.

I admit, it was dumb of me, but we were at his house and his parents walked in on us and caught us "in the act."

I know that an adult male who is caught having relations with a minor girl can be arrested for statutory rape, but does the same hold true for an adult female and an underage boy?

His parents said they are going to have me arrested. Can they get me for statutory rape?

WORRIED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR WORRIED: No, but in California, you can be charged with "contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

DEAR ABBY: I have just experienced one of the most uncomfortable afternoons of my life. I had a luncheon for three close friends, one of whom is a widow. The other two women spent the entire afternoon bragging about the gifts their husbands had given them, the trips they had taken and their plans for future trips. The little widow had nothing to contribute to the conversation, so she just sat and listened. I could tell she was hurt.

Don't women realize how often they do this? I am furious because this happened in my home. I haven't as yet had the opportunity to tell those two women how inexcusably rude they were, but I hope you will mention it in your column because they both read it.

DISGUSTED IN DALLAS

DEAR DISGUSTED: I shall. But don't hesitate to let the offending women know your feelings. And should you ever find yourself in the company of such thoughtless and insensitive people, steer the conversation to another subject.

Costs Hit University Students

Cost of education went up a little for East Carolina University students last week with a raise in dorm rents.

The board of trustees decided to increase the dorm room rentals from $390 to $432 annually. There was also an increase in activity fees to about $81 annually — an increase of $9 per year.

The raises in rates were attributed to increased utilities costs and pending pay raises for employees.

Like everyone else the university has been paying constantly higher costs for electricity — Vice Chancellor C. G. Moore put the electric bill at a million per year.

Some $85,000 a year in additional revenues was said to be necessary to meet increased utility and salary costs for the dormitories.

The increases weren't approved without reluctance on the part of the trustees. It is, after all, just another way that rapidly rising costs of energy are affecting the family budgets.

Families which are sending their young people to college will have to scratch up the extra cash, and students working to pay their own way will be particularly hardpressed.

It is an extra cost that is not peculiar to the dorms since students who live in apartments out in town are also paying much higher electric bills, as we all are.

It's a situation where there doesn't seem to be much relief — except to pay in order to have a place to stay while attending school.

County Office—Moving Lies Ahead

The county will be doing some major shifting of offices once the new Pitt Memorial Hospital is fully occupied and the old building vacated.

Many of the county offices will be moved from the court house and other buildings into the old hospital building.

Plans are also being made for additions to the court house annex to provide additional space for the sheriff's department.

County citizens can expect to see many county offices in new locations in the next few months.

Chilly View Of Litter Tax

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The proposed special tax on merchandise which produces litter is an idea whose time isn't ripe in North Carolina.

State Revenue Secretary Mark G. Lynch has produced a three-page analysis of the litter control measure which finds much fault with it; and in sum pronounces it full of "substantial administrative problems" and some compliance problems for the taxpayer.

would be taxed by the state at the rate of 15 cents per $1,000 for articles specifically labeled as litter producing.

Food, groceries, cigarettes and tobacco products, soft drinks and carbonated beverages, beer and other malt beverages, all alcoholic beverages except those sold by state ABC stores, newspapers and magazines, household paper and paper products, glass containers, metal containers, plastic or fiber containers, cleaning agents and toiletries, non-prescription drugstore products, and tires and batteries are specifically described as litter items.

The Department of Revenue would collect the tax for a fund to provide matching dollars to local units of government for purchase and service of refuse operations especially in tourist areas; for state refuse collection at parks and other state facilities; to experiment with recycling programs; and to offer public education regarding litter.

State bureaucracy creeps into the proposal as the General Assembly is asked to allow the Department of Human Resources to adopt regulations on standard litter receptacles, placement, and servicing; an anti-littering symbol; and recycling rules.

The proposal goes on to ban pull-tab cans and the plastic loops often used to hold cans in six-packs.

Secretary Lynch pointed out problems in deciding which items in a store are subject to the tax and determining how to collect the tax on sale.

BILL NOBLITT

from some nuisance tax on merchants. One box would be taxed three times: at manufacture, at wholesale, and at retail. Then in many towns, you pay again for garbage collection of that same box.

State Rep. Barney Paul Woodard, D-Johnston County, agrees. "The philosophy is good... but administering such a tax would prove impossible."

As one example, a newspaper carrier who must keep records and pay 15 cents on $1,000 in sales would spend more in recording and mailing the tax to Raleigh than the system would yield.

Secretary Lynch pointed out problems in deciding which items in a store are subject to the tax and determining how to collect the tax on sale.

"The enforcement problems would be substantive and additional personnel, equipment, and office space would be required. In many instances, and possibly overall, the amount of tax collected may not justify the expense..." Lynch commented.

The proposal grew out of a study commission on solid waste disposal, and was introduced by State Rep. Charles Holt, D-Cumberland.

A companion proposal would make the driver of a vehicle legally responsible for litter thrown from the machine.

"Now, all I hafta do is prune out all th' bad branches, without disturbin' any of th' good uns."

Not Good, But Not Bad

Jimmy Carter winds up his first hundred days this weekend. Under Section 11 (b) of the Regulations Governing the Practice of the Trade of Punditry, it is required that every certified pundit deliver his appraisal of the period. My own appraisal of Mr. Carter's beginning: Not good, not bad.

That is a nice ambivalent, wishy-washy appraisal for you, but the passing years persuade me that things are seldom all black or all white. A hundred days after he hit town, Mr. Carter remains the new boy on the block. In fact and in law, he is indeed "Mr. President," but the title still falls on the ear like an off-key note. These have been a hundred days of busy activity — days of symbols, gestures and cardigan gimmicks. In terms of public relations, the record is spectacular. In terms of political accomplishment, the record is not much.

Raymond Moley once speculated that the tradition of a "hundred days" goes back to Napoleon in the spring of 1815, covering the time that elapsed after Elba and before Waterloo. In our own political experience, we look back to Franklin Roosevelt's inauguration on March 4, 1933 and we still marvel at FDR's record with the 73d Congress.

That was some record. On March 5 came the bank holiday, on March 9 the Emergency Banking Relief Act, on March 20 the Economy Act cutting veterans' pensions and reducing federal salaries by 15 percent. Then followed the Beer and Wine Act, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the abandonment of the gold standard. In May Roosevelt signed acts providing emergency relief, establishing farm subsidies, creating the TVA and regulating securities. In June came the National Recovery Administration, the Banking Act, the Home Owners Loan Corporation and another Farm Credit Act. The exhausted Congress adjourned on June 15.

Mr. Carter can offer nothing to compare with that impressive string of political fish, but no other president since Roosevelt has approached that record. FDR had things going for him that Mr. Carter has not. By the time he took office, Roosevelt had been in and out of Washington for 20 years; he was intimately acquainted with the leaders of Congress; he had won election by a landslide; he had a true national emergency on his hands, and he had some bold and brilliant fellows round him.

Mr. Carter's balance sheet reflects none of these assets. The gentleman from Georgia ran as the anti-Washington candidate, and he remains an alien presence. Much of Washington looks upon Mr. Carter as the Japanese looked upon MacArthur, as a proconsul governing by right of conquest. Ours is a city of good ole boys, of back-scratchers, wheeler-dealers, fellows you can have a drink with. Mr. Carter is not a good ole boy. There is no small talk in him. He rarely kids around.

In other contexts, these may be admirable traits. In the case of Mr. Carter, they produce an antiseptic chill. He seems to have no idea of how the Washington machinery works, how it is oiled and greased, how it is kept in tune. This inexperience is reflected in large ways and in small ways also.

For a large example: Mr. Carter grievously offended a dozen Big Mules on Capitol Hill by his maladroit abandonment of the $50 tax rebate plan. In months to come, he will need the enthusiastic support of such men as Russell Long in the Senate and Al Ullman in the House. He will have a hard time getting them happily back in harness now.

For a small example: Every president sends framed photographs to his party members on the Hill. Customarily, these are lavishly inscribed by presidential hand. Lyndon Johnson's inscriptions were fulsome masterpieces of the lapidary art. But Mr. Carter's portraits arrived the other day immaculately untouched by personal tribute. It was non-pro. Little things, as the song goes, count a lot.

Mr. Carter's hundred days have been devoted largely to cultivating popular support in

40 Years Ago Today

April 28, 1937

There is only one sovereign remedy for war, said Sergeant Alvin York in his address last night at the college, and that is the cultivation of the spirit of peace in the hearts of men.

The burly World War hero, speaking here for the Emergency Peace Campaign, emphasized throughout his talk the folly of foreign wars and the need of education for peace.

Many have said, he reminded his audience, that there can be no prevention of war, that war just rolls around as inevitably as the weeks or the months.

However, the number of wars we have engaged in is no sign war cannot be stopped if we go at it in the right way, he said.

Congress learned today President Roosevelt favored a proposal to give him discretionary authority to reduce federal appropriations by 15 percent.

Speaker Bankhead announced he was authorized to state Mr. Roosevelt favored the 15 per cent discretionary reduction plan.

That was the first inkling of what the President had in mind to give force to the economy pronouncements made in his recent relief message to Congress.

HUNT PROPOSALS ANALYZED

Reading Plan Low-Rated

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed reading program has already received a poor grade in a report prepared for the joint Senate-House appropriations subcommittee where the proposal is expected to have a rough time next week.

"We're going to give it a fine tooth comb analysis," said Sen. Ed Renfrow, D-Johnston, head of the Senate part of the subcommittee.

His House counterpart, Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, expressed a similar view. "What we're really trying to do is give the committee a look at all sides of the question," he said.

Dr. John Martin, a researcher working for the committee, analyzed the Hunt proposal at Huskins' request. The report has not been released, but The Associated Press examined the document Wednesday.

The Hunt program would put a teacher's aide in each classroom in the first three grades and rely partly on volunteers to help teach pupils to read. It would cost $45 million in the 1977-79 biennium and cost $52 million by 1981.

A pilot program in the 1975-77 biennium tested the proposal in 117 classrooms and the Hunt administration has based its proposal on the success of that.

Martin earned a doctorate in education at Harvard and specialized in program evaluation. He is working with the legislature as part of his post-doctorate studies at Duke.

The statewide program lacks training of aides, testing of pupils, and supervision and coordination over the program that was part of the pilot program, Martin said in an interview

Wednesday. "That means, in essence, the statewide program will not be the same as the pilot program and the results of the pilot program cannot predict what will happen in the state as a whole," he said.

While Martin praised the idea of making the commitment, he said the Hunt program would not allow sufficient flexibility for local school districts to adapt it to their needs. He also said the emphasis on hiring aides would be expensive and that would prevent funds being spent in other ways to teach reading.

The program would spend $212 per child per year with $206 of that going to the cost of the aide and $6 for materials. Studies have shown that aides do not necessarily add to the teaching effort and can take away from it, he said.

"This money should be spent to help every North Carolina child to read; it can be spent more wisely than in PRP (primary reading program)," he said in the report.

Martin also said the program is weak because it does not adequately provide for testing the children, which he called an essential element. Testing to determine the success of the program and to find the needs of each child would be part of a separate Hunt proposal to set up a statewide testing program.

Huskins said the House amended the testing bill, taking out the requirement that the first three grades be tested. "The amendments are not consistent with the primary reading program," he said, adding that the state Board of Education could decide to use the testing funds for other grades, damaging the reading effort.

Gary Pearce, Hunt's news secretary, rejected the Martin conclusions. "That's the same thing we've always heard," he said. The inflexibility of the program is part of the design because it is aimed at putting an aide in each classroom for those grades, he said, adding that the aides will gain experience and any help for the teacher would benefit the children.

As for the testing problem, Pearce said it was intended for the testing program to tie in with the reading proposal and the governor will try to get the required testing of

To the editor:

Your Daily Reflector printed an article the other day of title, "Revenue Sharing Hearing Slated" about Greenville's fiscal 1977-78 program. The city manager, Jim Caldwell, was to explain to the citizens how the city proposed to spend the $751,660 revenue, and requested the public to present their suggestions.

As 1977 president of Greenville, N. C. American Association of Retired Persons (AARP Chapter No. 2016), I asked our club to have a small representation at this hearing. We sat in a small group of six people, both to listen and also to state our suggestions as elderly people.

Mr. Caldwell explained the Revenue Sharing Program and its objectives. He stated approximately one-fourth million dollars of the above monies were to be for a library, the remainder, one-half million dollars was non-committed.

Now the object of this letter: Aside from our group of six, and the city manager, there were approximately eight more persons attending. Our group made all the suggestions. Please advise the city of Greenville (by printing this) that such small response and attendance represents their public apathy.

The next hearing (this time with the City Council) will be held for the same purpose Thursday 5 May. I hope public attendance will be better.

Strength For Today

DELAY CAN DESTROY

A noted composer tells in his autobiography how one night there suddenly came to him the melody and structure of a symphony. Its different parts sang through his mind. For some reason he was too busy at the time to make notes. The next day the symphony returned with not quite the vividness of the night before, but nevertheless with sufficient clarity that he might well have captured it. The third day, when he was ready to work on the symphony, all recollection of it had departed. The golden opportunity had passed.

Parables without number have been written about the necessity of taking advantage of opportunity when it arises.

Not enough has been written, however, on the persistent tendency of human nature to procrastinate and put off the doing of anything definite until the hour of decision becomes imperative.

Every time we neglect the doing of a right thing, we increase the difficulty of right and wholesome action.

Changing U.S. Foreign Policy

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is not only changing the way American foreign policy is conducted. He is changing the policy itself.

The most obvious examples are Soviet affairs and the Middle East.

Carter's unorthodox style is to enunciate in public his outline of an arms agreement and an Arab-Israeli settlement.

His policy is to go beyond limitations to disarmament itself and to support a "homeland" for the Palestinians, along with "defensible borders" for Israel.

Both in his approach to the Russians and the Middle East, the President is sweeping away a cautious diplomacy employed by the last two administrations.

Plugging away, that measured method produced partial arms and peace accords.

Carter intends to be bolder. He wants the Russians either to permit continued development of the potent American cruise missile or to agree to terms that would hit hardest at their land-based missile force.

And he wants the Arabs and Israelis to sit down together in Geneva before the end of the year and work out a lasting solution that provides a "homeland" for the Palestinians, secure borders for Israel and real peace.

No step-by-step diplomacy for this President.

Actually, Carter's campaign gave little hint of so ambitious a foreign policy program.

The former one-term governor of Georgia stressed the economy and other domestic affairs.

Overseas, he emphasized human rights, which have become a hallmark of his policy.

There were some signs of the "hang-tough" attitude he has taken toward the Russians and none that he would champion the Palestinian cause. In fact, Carter attacked former President Gerald R. Ford for making Israel "a scapegoat."

His populism, tinged with religious moralism, foreshadowed his style, however.

It's as if Carter is taking periodic polls on foreign policy:

Do you want disarmament? Are the Palestinians entitled to a state?

With it all, there is a downplaying of the experts who advise him, even sometimes of the perils at hand.

There is no reason, the President says, to get upset "every time Brezhnev sneezes."

Almost daily, one press account or another is dismissed as wrong or even "fiction," suggesting only direct communication with the people can be trusted.

As for the experts, Ambassador Andrew Young dealt with them this way last week in a speech at the State Department:

"I guess I am very suspicious of all kinds of experts. But that doesn't mean I don't listen to experts.

"It just means that experts should never have the final answer in a democracy — that the final answer should rest with the American people."

Record Profit Noted By GM

DETROIT (AP) — Citing record sales of big cars, General Motors Corp. has reported record first-quarter profits of $903 million, up 13 per cent from 1976, on record sales of $13.6 billion.

GM's net earnings, equal to $3.14 a share, easily surpassed its previous first-quarter record of $817 million set in 1973, the company announced Wednesday.

Optimistic Wall Street analysts had been looking for even higher earnings — $930 million to $960 million.

GM earned $800 million, or $2.78 a share, in the first quarter of 1976. Sales in the latest quarter were up 18 per cent from $11.4 billion in the same 1976 period.

Earlier in the week, Chrysler Corp. reported it earned $75.4 million in the first quarter, up 5 per cent from a year ago, and the second highest profit for the period in company history.

Small-car specialist American Motors Corp. said it had profits of $2.5 million — double its quarterly earnings of last year, despite a severe auto slump. Ford Motor Co., the nation's No. 2 automaker, is expected to show record first-quarter earnings when it releases results later this week.

GM showed record sales and profits for the period even though unit factory sales of vehicles worldwide did not set a record.

Industry analysts said the firm's sharply improved profit reflected strong sales of high-profit big cars in the United States. GM and Ford are the leading makers of large models.

Research Grant For Professor

A grant of $2,400 has been awarded Eugene E. Ryan, professor of philosophy at East Carolina University, by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The award will support Dr. Ryan's research project in the philosophy of the Italian Renaissance and enable him to participate in a summer seminar on the Italian Renaissance at Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island.

The eight-week seminar is an interdisciplinary gathering, involving specialists in history, literature and anthropology as well as philosophy.

Prof. Ryan previously received grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Carnegie Corporation for studies of ancient Greek philosophy.

power officials show that only 47 per cent of the Army's recruits in January through March were high school graduates.

This is about 9 per cent below the Army's minimum objective and well under levels reported by the Marines, Navy and Air Force.

The continued downward trend in the Army's recruit quality seems likely to fuel a debate over continuation of the all-volunteer concept.

Some Congress members, including Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, contend the draft should be restored. Defense Secretary Harold Brown disagrees.

Army officials, who blame recruitment problems partly on congressional cutbacks in funds, could turn to the acceptance of more women as a way of bolstering quality.

Sources said about 90 per cent of the women recruited into the Army have high school diplomas, which the Army has said "is the best measure of quality as it relates to motivation, discipline and probability to complete the full term of enlistment."

The Army now limits its uniformed women to about 50,000 out of a total force of about 775,000.

Some officials argue that women have shown they can perform well in a wide variety of military jobs and that the doors should be opened wider to them. But certain Army traditionalists oppose increasing the number of women in the service because they are barred from combat duty.

Military manpower experts have long forecast that an improving economy would make it more difficult for all the services to attract volunteers, particularly young men with the potential to fill skilled civilian jobs.

Army officers claim the winter months traditionally are poor for recruiting. But they cannot explain why the Army did so poorly compared with the other services in terms of quality volunteers in the January-March quarter.

The committee is not taking anything for granted, Renfrow said. A consultant from Washington has been hired to advise the panel and a public hearing will be held next week, he said.

the country. This was a necessary task, considering his narrow victory last November, and he deserves great credit for his success in this field. He also scores high marks for his evident sincerity, his firm sense of purpose, and his sheer industry on the job. The gentleman works.

What we perceive, I suppose, and what contributes to an ambivalent view of his record, is the absence of a presidential presence. Doubtless, this will appear in time. It hasn't appeared in the first hundred days.

Army officers claim the winter months traditionally are poor for recruiting. But they cannot explain why the Army did so poorly compared with the other services in terms of quality volunteers in the January-March quarter.

Yarbrough Talks To Association

Tinsley E. Yarbrough of the East Carolina University Department of Political Science addressed a Chicago gathering of political scientists last week on the Burger Supreme Court.

Dr. Yarbrough's presentation, "The Burger Court and Unspecified Rights," was given at the annual meeting of the Midwest Political Science Association.

He was one of a public law panel of political scientists from UCLA, Northern Illinois University, and the Universities of Texas, Minnesota, Massachusetts and Connecticut who discussed aspects of the Supreme Court as a "continuing constitutional convention".

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is described as "ready, very much so," for months of heated congressional debate on energy and other volatile issues because he is a political professional "who knows how to get things done."

This was the assessment of Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, as the first major debate of the Carter presidency — over energy policy — was getting under way.

And looking back over the first 100 days of the Carter presidency, Lance, one of Carter's long-time governmental partners and proteges here and in Atlanta, was reminded of a Carter campaign statement that "I want to be tested in the most severe way."

"He's ready, very much so," Lance said in a telephone interview. He said Carter is particularly ready to be tested on energy because he enters the debate with a "deep sense of commitment" that favorable action on his blueprint is essential.

There is near-universal agreement in Washington that the unveiling last week of Carter's controversial, many-faceted energy blueprint marked a turning point for the new administration — away from a "honeymoon" period and toward long months of intensive jockeying over the nuts and bolts of government.

Asked if he believes Carter is prepared for the energy compromises that many observers regard as inevitable, Lance declined to embrace the premise that major compromises can be expected. But he asserted:

"First of all, the evidence speaks for itself. He's an awfully good politician. He knows how to get things done. He might not call himself a trader, but he knows where he wants to go and how he intends to get there."

Hamilton Jordan, a key Carter assistant, acknowledges that with the end of the first 100 days there has been a turning point in Carter's relations with Congress and the people, brought about by the President's energy proposals.

While he said there has been no change of attitude or mood at the White House, Carter aides were pleased that at this point "a lot of plans are ready to be translated into policy and legislation."

Energy issues are only part of what promises to be a marathon test of Carter's ability to implement sweeping campaign pledges to simplify the tax system, revise welfare programs and prune the federal bureaucracy — all questions that will be ready for congressional debate by the end of this year.

Consciously, Carter set out in his first 100 days to gird himself for the battles ahead by successfully campaigning to elevate his own popularity rating, recorded at a lofty 72 per cent in the most recent Gallup Poll. In the process, he has come close to elevating political symbolism into an art form.

In Carter's view, symbolism and substance are inseparable, with the latter flowing from the former.

If wearing sweaters, holding "town meetings" and mothballing chauffeured government limousines helped to make him popular and enhanced an image of trustworthiness, Carter is convinced his opportunities for dealing successfully with tough problems are correspondingly increased.

As he told some visiting journalists last month:

"The authority and the power and leadership capabilities of any president are derived almost completely from the support that I have from the people of the country."

Lance recalled that Carter's efforts as governor to reorganize the Georgia bureaucracy were the biggest drag on his popularity in that state.

Asked if impending reorganization battles here were likely to yield a similar result, Lance said he thought the opposite might occur.

Although the budget chief said reorganization plans, which will start flowing from the White House in June, will mightily upset a wide range of special interest groups, he expressed the view that there is a broad national demand for reorganization.

In that situation, he said, Carter may actually enhance his national constituency.

Carter's constituency was slim indeed when he entered office, having collected a bare 51 per cent of last November's votes. From the outset, in his inaugural address, the new president moved to appeal for broader support, saying:

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are."

So he walked to his new home from that ceremony, rationed renditions of "Hail to the Chief," avoided limousines that looked like limousines, held a fireside chat, starred in his own radio call-in show, revived regular news conferences and enrolled daughter Amy in a public school.

Richard E. Neustadt, Harvard professor and author of "Presidential Power," told The Associated Press in early February that he was optimistic Carter could make a success of such uses of symbolism, although acknowledging, "it's going to be very hard to keep it from ... appearing phony or falling of its own weight."

Neustadt added: "If gestures — these symbolic statements — are arresting, noticeable, widely approved and popular, they will widen your mandate ... Voters don't pass bills, but the climate that's created makes an enormous difference."

Jimmy Carter obviously agrees. Taking note of his 70-plus approval rating, he predicted last month that his energy program would cause him to "lose 10 or 15 per cent of that." But he added, "I'm willing to give up some of my own personal popularity among the people of this country to require them to face the brutal facts" about dwindling supplies of oil and natural gas.

The question is: Would Carter show a similar willingness to spend his political capital if he still could claim no more than 51 per cent approval?

That's the real nub of Carter's argument that symbolism and substance have partnership roles in making successful presidential leadership possible.

Of course, performance also figures in the President's equation. He has said it is important that Americans see him as a man who will do what he promises.

After the election, Carter had his staff compile his campaign commitments in book form, as a reminder to himself. Acknowledged to be incomplete, it lists 645 separate "promises."

If Carter is to make good on all of them, he must, on the average, fulfill a different promise every 2 1/4 days during the balance of his term.

To date, he has redeemed a number of them, including pardoning Vietnam era draft resisters, speaking up for human rights abroad, seeking cutbacks in nuclear arms levels and working for the creation of a new energy department.

Only one campaign commitment has been scrapped — and that happened before the inaugural. Carter no longer seeks standby wage and price controls.

No Profit In Monkey Travel

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Greyhound can attest that monkey business is not profitable.

A 10-foot stuffed monkey named Rip had to be lodged in the Greyhound station here Tuesday night on its way to a new owner in Lancaster, Pa.

Mrs. Thelma Wright won Rip in a contest sponsored by the Ripley's "Believe It or Not" Museum in Myrtle Beach, S.C., by virtue of her building a five-foot boat from matchsticks.

Greyhound agreed to deliver the monkey for $78.10 after airlines balked at the request and truck drivers demanded too much money.

However, Rip was too big for the luggage compartment and had to be lodged in two seats behind the driver.

The same seats would have netted $100 from ordinary passengers.

Cruises Mark Revolution

MOSCOW (UPI) — Intourist, the Soviet agency for foreign tourism, will be offering special sea cruises this year to mark the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Intourist Vice President Anatoli Bondar said cruise routes in the Baltic and Black seas will permit tourists to spend up to two days in Soviet ports without visa formalities. Stops include Leningrad and Odessa.

The aim of the tours is to show off the Soviet Union's accomplishments, the history of the revolutionary movement in Russia and prospects of Soviet development, Bondar said.

Special services will be held tonight and Friday night at Cherry Lane FWB Church.

The Rev. W. J. Best will be present tonight. He will be accompanied by the choir, ushers and congregation of Sweet Hope FWB Church. The Rev. Matthew Best will be present Friday evening. The choir, ushers and congregations of Best Chapel and Simpson Chapel Churches will be present.

Liquor Bill Moonie's Mother Standing By Arrested, Released

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A prime backer of liquor by-the-drink legislation says a measure is ready for introduction to the Senate where its chances of passage are considered good.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, said mixed drink supporters cancelled a planned final strategy session Wednesday when Senate debate on other matters ran into late afternoon, but added the measure was ready without the final meeting.

The present draft would allow counties to hold referendums of allowing mixed drinks to be served in restaurants. Only those counties in which liquor is sold by the bottle would be affected by the law.

Liquor by-the-drink forces have been more optimistic about chances of passage in the Senate than in the House, and Lawing said Wednesday he had commitments from 29 of the 50 senators to vote for the local option bill.

Lawing said he did not yet know who would sponsor it, but mixed-drink forces have said previously that it would not be a legislator from Charlotte and Mecklenburg Counties, recognized as the stronghold of proxied drink sentiment the state.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The mother of a member of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church has been released on her own recognizance after being arrested and charged with kidnapping and assault in connection with an alleged deprogramming of her 25-year-old daughter.

The daughter, Karen Marie Mischke, accused her mother, Anne N. Metzger of Raleigh, and seven other persons of abducting her and holding her for a week in a Raleigh motel where they allegedly tried to persuade her to leave the church.

Montgomery County, Md., authorities issued arrest warrants for the mother and other persons, and Wake County, N.C., authorities served the warrants this week after receiving them Tuesday.

If convicted, the eight could be jailed for up to 30 years on the charges.

Miss Mischke claims she was abducted last month while visiting friends in Durwood, Md.

"Five people jumped her on the street and took her to Raleigh where she was locked up in motel for seven days," said States Atty. Timothy Clark of Montgomery County, Md.

The group allegedly left Raleigh with Miss Mischke on March 21 and headed north for further deprogramming, a process in which an attempt is made to break the emotional bonds that tie the cult member to the church, Clark said. Miss Mischke escaped the group during a stop in Maryland.

Mrs. Metzger refused comment on the case.

"We're going to contest this thing at every stage," said Samuel Johnson, attorney for the six North Carolina suspects.

Week-Long Institute Set

The Free Market Still Exists On Saigon Streets

BUSINESS IS STILL BUSINESS — Two years after Saigon was taken by the North Vietnamese, the open air street markets continue to flourish, selling

REMNANT OF THE PAST — A pizza sign advertises the only European restaurant still open on Saigon's Tu Do street. All the French eating places in Saigon, now re-named Ho Chi Minh City, have been closed in the two years since the takeover. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two years ago, on April 30, 1975, Communist forces entered Saigon, and American troops and civilians as well as tens of thousands of Vietnamese fled the fallen nation. What has happened since then in the former capital of South Vietnam? In this dispatch, an AP correspondent who covered the war in Vietnam told of the "new" Saigon he found during a recent visit there.

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN, Associated Press Writer SAIGON, Vietnam (AP) — The old U.S. Embassy stands vacant, guarded by a military policeman. Former President Nguyen Van Thieu's palace is a museum and a sightseeing must for the curious. Abandoned American aircraft rot at the airport.

The Continental Hotel, once a favorite gathering spot for Americans, is now the Simultaneous Uprising Hotel.

Two years after the Communist victory on April 30, and the flight of Americans, everything — yet nothing — has changed in Saigon.

The new unified government has renamed it Ho Chi Minh City but it still remains what it was during the war — tawdry, dirty, quieter, perhaps, but still a place with something to sell — for a price.

A carton of American cigarettes costs the equivalent of $120 if Vietnamese dong are bought at the official rate of 50 cents each. The same carton costs $24 if dong are bought on the black market, where they can be had for 10 cents each.

Tan Son Nhut Airport was the first change noted by a correspondent who returned to Vietnam after two years with a group of Australian and other foreign tourists. The correspondent had identified himself as an Associated Press correspondent to the Vietnamese authorities in applying to join the group.

The airport once was the busiest in Asia, with U.S. jet fighters, helicopters and transports loading, landing and taking off in what seemed intervals of only seconds.

Now the parking bays are filled with dozens of U.S. helicopters, C7 Caribous, C130 transports and spottier planes, many of them wrecked by Communist rockets during the final days of the war. There are no guards, pilots, airmen or people of any kind in sight.

But workmen are busily finishing the international terminal, started with U.S. aid money several years ago and now almost complete, down to Swiss digital clocks, German pay telephones and French television screens to announce the arrivals and departures if and when Saigon opens up again to world travel.

At the Continental Palace terrace, known as the Continental Shelf to the Americans and other foreigners who drank there, only coffee and ice cream are now served.

Up To Do street, the chic stores display Pierre Cardin ties, Coty perfume, Du Pont lighters and Rayban sunglasses. But stocks are getting low and there are blank spaces in the windows.

All the French restaurants are closed. The last of the Corsican proprietors left several months ago.

Along the Saigon River, where two years ago people were dying in their scramble to escape before the Communists took over, all is quiet, even serene. Young couples stroll hand in hand along the sidewalk.

Groups of farmers, peasants and schoolchildren and foreign visitors are given guided tours of the gray-columned Independence Palace, Thieu's former headquarters across the street from the U.S. Embassy.

"This is where Thieu used to meet important people, like U.S. Ambassador (Graham) Martin," said the guide ushering us into the Thieu's private office. "This is where Martin and his advisers sat in specially made chairs. This is Thieu's desk. Note that it is raised up on a platform so he could be higher than anyone else."

Visitors are told that Thieu slept with six feet of sandbags on his bedroom roof.

The Ho Chi Minh City Tourism Company also organizes tours to the former U.S. military warden's compound at Le Qui Don and Vo Tanh streets. Now it is the U.S. and Puppet Government War Crimes Museum.

On the surface, life in Saigon seems relaxed.

Three-man squads of soldiers carrying AK47 rifles are seen occasionally. But few buildings are guarded, and most soldiers in the streets are unarmed, apparently on leave. Saigonese say the soldiers are polite and don't cause trouble.

Foreign tourists are allowed to roam the city at will, but Saigonese are cautious when talking to them. They look over their shoulder at the door if they are alone with a foreigner.

The Communists are coming to grips with the economic system in the South and things could get tougher.

"We estimate it will take us three years to eliminate the free market in the south," said a North Vietnamese party worker.

In a bar on Tu Do street, a girl speaking American-accented English complained about the new government and the effect it was having on her bargainer business.

"They'll never send me to the new lands to build monkey house out of bamboo," she said referring to the unsettled or abandoned New Economic Zones in the countryside to which many South Vietnamese are having to move. "No way, honey. I'm gonna get out of here."

Warm Weather Means Pond Safety Measures

POND SAFETY — Lorenza Lyons, Engineering Aid, shows standard safety devices conveniently located at a farm pond for use in case of an accident. Shown are the life ring, long rope, and long pole.

"With warm weather coming to North Carolina, we need to be safety conscious about the many farm ponds in Pitt County," Robert G. Little, Chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District said.

We are already seeing an increase in fishing, and soon the youngsters will be using these ponds for swimming. Landowners should require that the "buddy system" be used with more than one person going fishing and swimming," Little added.

The chairman pointed out that most farmers do not want to deny the use of ponds on their land to their neighbors.

"Very few ponds have fencing or similar barriers, but we should make sure that everybody using the ponds is safety conscious," he said.

Little said that Pitt County has 1,392 ponds, and over the entire State of North Carolina more than 67,000 ponds have been installed with technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service.

Green Objects To No Hearings

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said he objected to a Senate committee's failure to hold a public hearing on the governor's three nominees to the state Board of Education, but denied Wednesday that he was seeking to block their confirmation.

Green, presiding over the Senate, won another in a series of delays in the confirmation process when he "temporarily displaced" a resolution to hold a joint session of the House and Senate next Tuesday to consider confirmation Gov. Jim Hunt's nominees.

Both Hunt and Green are by most accounts seeking to control the education panel. Green was named interim chairman to fill the term left by Dallas Herring, whom Hunt refused to reappoint, and has expressed interest in winning the full two-year chairmanship at the board's June election.

But Hunt wants one of his appointees, Dr. David Bruton of Southern Pines, as chairman. And Hunt says he has enough commitments from board members to ensure Bruton's election if all three nominees are seated in time.

Although the joint session resolution was postponed a day, Green said he did not do so to delay the confirmation vote and was not trying to keep the Hunt appointees off the board until it selects a full-time chairman. The resolution was to be considered today.

"That is not true. There is not a soul in North Carolina that will tell you under oath that I have told a single person over there...please vote for me for chairman," Green said.

A source close to Green, however, said the lieutenant governor had the chairmanship in mind and was hoping to postpone General Assembly confirmation as long as possible, at least until after next Thursday when the state board holds its May meeting.

"He thinks as long as he can keep them off the board, he's got a chance at it (the chairmanship)," the source said. "He knows he can't be it if they're on it."

Hunt press secretary Gary Pearce refused to comment on the significance of Green's latest delay, but said the governor was "concerned" by the postponement. "He would hope they (the nominees) would be on the board when it meets next week," Pearce said.

Green said he believed the Senate Education Committee, which approved the nominations, should have held a public hearing before voting. "A public hearing is required for public decency for important matters," Green said.

If the Senate approves the measure on two readings by Friday, the House could get the resolution in time to agree to the joint session Tuesday. But one more delay could put final confirmation off until after the board meeting.

Suspicious Planes Are Checked Out For Drugs

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration lately has been on the watch for large aircraft acting suspiciously, an FAA official says.

And so it was that when a four-engine Air Force surplus transport plane arrived at Memphis this week with one engine dead and its windows painted over that FAA inspectors' interest was aroused.

And when the plane's crew refused to permit the FAA on board, customs officials and finally local narcotics agents were summoned to seize the plane and the cargo of marijuana discovered when authorities finally gained admittance.

James Wright, chief of the control tower at Memphis, said the FAA has developed a growing interest in large military surplus transport planes because of their suitability for the lucrative but illegal marijuana trade as well as because of a series of accidents by non-scheduled transports engaged in otherwise legal activities.

"When we see a large aircraft that acts suspicious in any way, shape or manner, we check 'em out," said Wright.

There was a lot to be suspicious of Tuesday when the plane landed.

"To begin with, he never identified (on the radio) himself as a large aircraft," said Wright.

Then there were the dead engine the pilot neglected to report and the crew's attitude toward the refueling crew, an FAA inspector and a customs agent.

There was also some difficulty with the aircraft identification numbers—the crew identified the plane as N6901F to the tower, but the number taped crudely on the tail was N2901F.

Whatever the correct number, the plane and its pilot, Brian J. Corp, were seized along with an estimated 5,419 pounds of what officials called high-quality Colombian marijuana. Two other crew members fled before the marijuana was discovered and were still being sought.

Corp, 29, of Tucson, Ariz., was charged Wednesday with possession of marijuana with intent to sell and held on $250,000 bond.

Approximately 90 At Session

Approximately 90 persons from 24 North Carolina counties, Virginia and South Carolina attended a conference on children's literature Friday at East Carolina University.

The conference focused on "The Image of the South in Children's Literature," and featured presentations by professors of children's literature from Radford College, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Clemson University, ECU, Wake Forest University and Longwood College.

Names of area participants in the literature conference follows:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Deborah E. Ballinger, Martha Blackwelder, Lena W. Carawan, Hermine Caraway, Tom H. Forbes, Margaret S. Hadden, Martha Hester, Antoinette Jenkins, Ludi Johnson, Patricia Moore, Mona Moye, Joanne Newton, Phoebe Owens, Lillian Scott, Floretta Smith, Mildred Tardif and Lily Weaver.

Winterville — Linda Craft and Leah McGlohon.

Thomas 'Zeke' Graves argued for the high bond because Corp has "no roots in this community" and may have been engaged "in many flights outside the United States."

Sheriff Eugene Barksdale said he thought the flight originated somewhere in Colombia in South America and was en route to Detroit. Authorities said earlier the flight probably originated in Venezuela.

Barksdale said the plane possibly made stops between Colombia and Memphis because the pilot probably "wouldn't have come out of there (Colombia) with a light load."

Meanwhile, customs officials have begun tracking ownership of the plane.

The FAA's records center in Oklahoma City said the aircraft was sold by the Air Force last July to Cryderman Air Service, Inc., at 7002 Highland St., Pontiac, Mich. But an FAA official said the company has indicated the plane has been sold to a San Francisco leasing firm.

The leasing firm could not be located at the address provided by the FAA.

Man Arrested On Morals Count

Chief Glenn Cannon said today that George Gregory Joyner, 28 of 1302 Colonial Ave. was arrested yesterday by local officers on crime against nature charges.

Cannon said the local man was arrested on a warrant for Beaufort County authorities in connection with an incident in Beaufort County on July 2, 1976, involving a male juvenile.

Law Library Access OK'd

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Prisons Director Amos Reed said Wednesday he supports the U.S. Supreme Court's order for state's to provide inmates with law libraries, but said he hoped the court would allow either a mobile or central library.

"It does not bother me as a man in penology," he said. "My concern is, how many, where and to what degree. If we're talking about a mobile library or a central location where prisoners could check out books or write to have questions answered, that's one thing. If we're required to establish legal libraries in 77 locations, then that would be unreasonable and prohibitive."

State Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten opposed the idea in court, arguing that such access would permit prisoners to build "kingdoms for themselves within the prison walls." He could not be reached for comment after the ruling.

University of North Carolina Law School professor Barry Nakell, who originated the lawsuit, praised the ruling as a "sweeping, forceful judgement which explained the scope of previous law on inmate rights."

He said under the ruling that inmates would not have to rely on "jailhouse lawyers."

He also called the ruling "not only a great victory for prisoners, but also a great victory for the Department of Correction."

Nakell said the case was his first Supreme Court appearance after 15 other cases had been denied hearings.

'Fishbait' Has Tales To Tell

ATLANTA (AP) — William M. "Fishbait" Miller collected a lot of seamy stories as a "father confessor" to low-level government employes in Washington.

When he was ousted from his $40,000-a-year job as doorkeeper of the House of Representatives in 1974, he wrote a book about congressional indiscretions, based mostly on back-corridor tales.

But, said Miller, who now lives in Atlanta, "this kind of thing was common knowledge. It is hearsay, but I stand by it."

For 24 years, the Mississippian was a Capitol Hill fixture as he announced presidents, statesmen and celebrities to the House with the familiar "Mistah Speakah."

Miller said many of the tales in the book came from elevator operators, policemen and congressional aides who saw noted politicians in suspicious circumstances.

"They'd be pretty tongue-tied at times and want to get it off their chests," he said. "I was their father confessor."

Miller said 10,000 copies of his gossipy memoir, "Fishbait," have been published for the first run and his publisher expects to print 25,000 more on the basis of early sales.

He spent 19 months writing the book in collaboration with Washington author Frances Spatz Leighton.

The book includes tales of men like the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who Miller said was "the worst wamizer of the Senate, if not the Hill."

Miller also writes of congressional tipplers.

"There used to be a liquor store on Independence Avenue; you could look out and see certain congressmen headed right for it when it opened in the morning," he said.

Despite his stories of congressional indiscretions, Miller said he believes no more than 50 percent of the members of Congress are problem drinkers, and only 10 percent are philanderers.

The third annual ILLUMINA Art Show and Competition of East Carolina University is now on view at the Mendenhall Student Center Gallery.

In Return, President Offers Support

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It all began with a walk. Walking, figured Travis Britt, would be the best way to show that he was supporting Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign.

So last summer, in mid-presidential campaign, Britt walked from his home in Riverdale, Md., to Plains, Ga., where he shook Carter's hand and they talked of changing the country, ending racial discrimination and giving blacks new hope.

But it brought Britt, who is black, a lot of trouble. He and his son, Travis Jr., a ninth grader, are meeting with the President today in the Oval Office at the White House. Carter hopes the meeting will end the trouble.

"I am glad you walked to Plains, Mr. Britt," Carter wrote him after hearing of the family's trouble. "I was proud to shake your hand."

The trouble started last fall after Britt got back from his walk to Plains and his son went back to school. Black youngsters taunted him about his father's walk. He slugged one of them.

Somebody slashed the tires on his father's car. Then somebody overturned another family vehicle and rolled it down a hill behind the Britt's apartment.

Charlotte Mayor Sees Unjustified Conclusions

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte Mayor John Belk, responding to reports that federal agents are investigating tax allegations within the Belk department store group which he heads, said Wednesday that he believed the reports were based on "unjustified conclusions" from 374 tax cases which the stores have pending in federal court.

The Associated Press reported earlier this week that federal agents were probing allegations of inventory and profit manipulation to avoid some taxes in the 400-store group strung across the South. The AP report was based on statements from two former and one current Belk auditor, with confirmation of the investigation from federal sources.

Sources close to the investigation have told The AP the 374 pending cases were unrelated to the allegations now under investigation.

Belk and other company officials have said they are unaware of a current investigation and have no knowledge of any wrongdoing.

In a printed statement, Belk said, "What we suspect has happened is that some people are taking information which has been a matter of public record for some time in cases filed with the United States Tax

Court (in Washington) and have reached unjustified conclusions."

Federal officials in Washington confirmed that Belk stores filed 374 separate suits in 1975 challenging Internal Revenue Service proposals for back taxes after IRS audits determined that the stores' system for valuing its inventory did not conform to IRS requirements. The officials said the IRS has asked that all the cases be consolidated into one but Belk attorneys have not replied.

An IRS official said the pending cases, which cover a period from 1966 through 1972, contain no indication of fraud or penalties.

In his statement, Belk claimed the 374 cases concern an alleged net back-tax liability of $7.5 million.

Belk said the stores received a ruling from the IRS in 1967 "concerning the manner in which inventory would be valued. Since that time our stores have done their best to conform their practices to the IRS ruling."

"Subsequently the IRS has raised questions about the method of valuing inventory. Since the stores were unable to reach an agreement with the IRS as to the detailed procedures used, each store brought a suit...to have the procedures clarified."

He said the stores believe their inventory procedures are in accordance with IRS regulations.

Without elaborating, Belk said the proposed IRS adjustments "will have the effect of a tax credit in subsequent years so that the overall tax impact should not be material to the companies financial position."

More than 300 scientists reported on research at the meeting to some 600 biologists from 17 Southeastern states attending the three day conference.

Slides Tell Of Forests

A new slide set, now available through the Soil Conservation Service offices in North Carolina, tells of the conservation benefits and economic importance of forests in North Carolina and other southern states, according to SCS State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks.

The show, approximately 11 minutes in length, utilizes 100 color slides to show woodland improvement practices, good and bad forest scenes and problems, and conservation work in wooded areas.

The program includes several commercial uses of timber, including pulpwood, sawtimber for housing, furniture manufacturing, and turpentine and related products.

It also shows the value of forested areas as habitat for birds, small game and other wildlife, and tells the conservation role that trees fill wherever they grow.

Arrangements to show the slide set can be made by contacting local offices of the Soil Conservation Service or local soil and water conservation districts.

Arrest 2 On Drug Counts

Two men were arrested by local officers in connection with drug law violations in separate incidents here yesterday, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

George Franklin Smith Jr., 21 of 100E Eastbrook Apts., was charged with possession of peyote, valued at $80, after Greenville police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation stopped his car near the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard about 10:30 p.m. and found a quantity of peyote in the auto.

Investigators seized the car pending action by the courts in the case.

A 5:30 p.m. search of a first-floor Jones Dormitory room by Greenville officers and East Carolina University police resulted in Kenneth Lee Dempsey, 18 of 139 Jones Dorm being charged with possession of marijuana.

Cannon said searchers uncovered about $25 worth of marijuana in the room.

ARRIVES FOR PAPAL MEETING — Dr. Donald Coggan, center, the Archbishop of Canterbury, arrives Wednesday at Rome's airport for a series of meetings and prayers with Pope Paul VI. He was greeted by Jan Cardinal Willebrands, left, who is Archbishop of Utrecht and president of the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity, and Msgr. Giovanni Benelli, the Vatican's deputy secretary of state. The meeting between Coggan, primate of the Church of England, and the Pope may remove some of the obstacles to unity of the Anglican and Catholic churches. (AP Wirephoto)

In Wyoming, The Governor Will Answer The Phone

By MARY ELLEN HASKETT
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) —
The telephone directory here lists, "Herschler, Ed, governor." And he answers when just about anyone calls.

In fact, Gov. Herschler was following a "meet the people" campaign and making himself available for telephone calls from the public two years before President Carter made the ideas nationally popular.

The 58-year-old politician and rancher said most of the people who call him at home in the new governor's mansion are citizens having problems who need advice.

"I'm supposed to be governor 365 days a year and not just during office hours," Herschler said. "I feel that the people are entitled to call me if they need some help."

Some who call the governor at home have been stymied and frustrated in their attempts to get action from state agencies.
They tell him bureaucrats say they cannot do anything without the governor's approval. So they call Herschler to lay their case before the final authority.

He has co-signed a bank loan for a state employee.
Another time, he provided food and lodging for a girl stranded in Cheyenne waiting for a bus without money.

His availability on the phone is just one outgrowth of the Democratic chief executive's informal approach. He does not travel with aides and seldom uses the chauffeur supplied for him.

"I suppose I'm not used to it," he says. "I frankly don't feel in Wyoming I need a lot of security. I'm just not that concerned with it."

He goes without his chauffeur simply because he prefers to do the driving himself.
Often, he stops to fill up his car with gasoline at the state pumps along with other state employees.

"I've been driving with my own car for a long, long time and I felt that, so be it — even as governor. I didn't make any conscious decision — that I was trying to show off or anything like that."

As for traveling alone, he sees no reason to take an aide unless he has a specific need for one.

When it comes to making phone calls, he often places them himself instead of asking his secretary to call.

He has surprised the beauticians at Mrs. Herschler's beauty parlor by calling to make her appointment or to see if she is ready to have him pick her up.

"Most people who've been in Wyoming all their lives get pretty set in their ways," he says. "I don't think I'm any different than anyone else with a Western background would be in similar circumstances."

The governor's wife, Casey, feels the same.

"We're typical Wyoming people. We have that independent spirit," she says. "We all have the 'don't fence me in' attitude."

Take the cooking, for example.

The Herschlers have a housekeeper, cook, secretary and maintenance man in the new 7,000-square-foot, ranch-style governor's mansion they share with their dog, Big Red, a gift from friends and named by Nebraska Gov. James J.
Exon.

But, says the state's first lady, "I do most of the cooking."
"I'm not too shabby a country cook. The governor cooks, too. We're just like any other family."

The Herschlers' two children, Jim, 29, and Sue Hunt, 31, and their two grandchildren — Mrs.

Hunt's children — live on and operate the family ranch in Kemmerer, homesteaded by the governor's grandfather in 1880.

"I was only back to the ranch once in 1976," said Herschler, a tall, lean, gray-haired man with rugged features. "I don't get there as often as I'd like. It's a long way from here and there always are state matters to attend to."

If he could get the time, he would do some golfing, fishing and hunting, all of which he enjoys.

Also an accomplished pool player, he took the opportunity to beat several legislators and win a charity pool play-off in February.

"There isn't much time for hobbies, but he takes advantage of an opportunity when it arises," said Mrs. Herschler.

GOV. ED HERSCHLER made himself available for telephone calls from the public two years before Pres. Carter adopted the idea. He shuns much of the pomp of his office, and in this photo chats with teenagers on the lawn of the

Minichecks Turned Into New Collector's Item

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY
ROME (AP) — Minichecks, the latest stopgap remedy for Italy's chronic shortage of small change, have already become collectors' items.

A 100-lire — 12-cent — certified check put out last year by Banco di Napoli in Reggio Calabria might get turned down by a wary newsstand dealer.
But you could get as much as 250,000 lire — $283 — for it at current market prices among collectors.

"I have sold 200,000-lire-worth of minichecks already today and only 20,000-lire-worth of Roman coins," a coin dealer said during a busy Sunday morning at Rome's flea market. "The Roman coins are 2,000 years old, and these minichecks are less than two years old."

His stand is just one of a half dozen in the flea market doing a thriving business in min-ichecks.

The original idea behind the minichecks was to fill the gap caused by the government mint's inability to keep up with the demand for coins. The simplest chores had been immen-sely complicated by the search for change — producing the 50-lire fare on the buses or to pay highway tolls, purchasing a newspaper or a cup of coffee, mailing a letter or buying an aspirin to deal with the other headaches.

Shoppers without change often returned home with a pock-etful of bartered goods — a piece of hard candy from the coffee bar, a sprig of parsley from the market, a bandage from the pharmacy, an extra stamp from the post office.

To help solve the problem, the banks last year began printing minichecks in 50 to 300-lire denominations as certified checks or as checks against the accounts of specific customers. Soon there was a flood of minichecks to tatter in everybody's pockets.

Some judges questioned their legality and an undersecretary in the Treasury Ministry issued a widely publicized statement recently that the minichecks were of doubtful legitimacy.
This raised doubts in the minds of some merchants, who began refusing to accept the minichecks. But it created a boom business for collectors, and the craze is beginning to spread abroad, especially to West Germany, dealers say.

The latest minicheck catalogue on the flea market stands includes an editor's note which says the lack of endorsements as the checks pass from one person to the next "attributes to them the function of substitute money, reserved by law to the state and the Bank of Italy."

"This led to the intervention of some zealous functionary of the judiciary who put out warnings in regard to this money of necessity, to whom we owe our heartfelt thanks for the enormous interest raised in these bills."

The catalogue lists more than 850 different issues of minichecks by banks all over Italy, with individual issues ranging from a few hundred to as many as 50 million minichecks.
Though colored and designed like checks, they are about one-quarter the normal size.

This compared to the 900 million coins which the mint has as its production goal this year.
Even if the mint reaches its goal, officials admit that it will be years before there are enough coins in circulation to meet the country's daily needs.

Set Up Music Scholarships

A fund for scholarships in the School of Music, East Carolina University, has been announced by Mrs. Nancy Lay White in memory of her late husband, Charles A. White, Sr.

The fund, to be known as "The Charles A. and Nancy Lay White Endowment Fund," is to be used to provide scholarships to worthy students seeking degrees from the ECU School of Music.

Mrs. White and her late husband have long been supporters of the arts in Greenville and especially have given support to the music program at ECU. Mrs.
White is a distinguished musician and for years has taught music in Greenville.

One of the White's children —
Anna White Hann, last December presented a memorial piano concert in honor of her late father. The concert was in Mendenhall Student Center.

Commenting on the endowment, ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins said: "Dean Pittman and the faculty and students of the School of Music join me in expressing our gratitude to Mrs.
White. It is a particularly appropriate tribute to a gentleman whose civic consciousness extended to all facets of Greenville's needs, particularly where the arts were concerned."

chapters at American colleges and universities, seeks to recognize outstanding ability and achievements in Romance

Terrorists Convicted

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Three leaders of the Baader-Meinhof gang of urban guerrillas were convicted today of four counts of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, a Stuttgart court announced.

Andreas Baader, 33; his blonde mistress, Gudrun Ensslin, 36, and Jan-Carl Raspe, 32, were also convicted of 32 counts of attempted murder and forming a criminal conspiracy for anti-state terrorism in West Germany in the early 1970s.

They were charged with bomb attacks on U.S. Army posts in Frankfurt and Heidelberg in May, 1972, in which four American servicemen were killed and with the killing of a German policeman.

Another woman defendant, Ulrike Meinhof, 41, the cofounder with Baader of the gang, was found hanging in her jail cell last May. The government said she committed suicide.

Three weeks ago the chief prosecutor of the case, Siegfried Buback, was assassinated in Karlsruhe, and a group calling itself the Commando Ulrike Meinhof claimed it did the killing.

The trial has been going on for nearly two years at the maximum security Stammheim Prison in a Stuttgart suburb.

The three surviving defendants were not in the courtroom to hear the verdict. They have been on a hunger strike for a month protesting official eavesdropping on their jail-cell conversations with their lawyers.

Edmisten Aides Confer On Possible Senate Bid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Aides to Atty. Gen. Rufus L. Edmisten have met with a political pollster to discuss a survey that could play a major role in Edmisten's decision about the 1978 U.S. Senate race. Charles H. Smith, Edmisten's administrative deputy and past campaign manager, told the News and Observer of Raleigh that he and another aide met with a "nationally known pollster" recently, but he would not identify the pollster.

"We do not know if we're going (to run) but want to be ready if we do," the newspaper's "Under the Dome" column quoted Smith as saying.

Republican Sen. Jesse A. Helms' seat will be at stake next year and a number of prominent Democrats are already lining up. Among them are Charlotte banker Luther H. Hodges Jr., state Sens. McNeill Smith of Greensboro and Lawrence Davis of Winston-Salem. Smith said Edmisten could be called an "unofficial candidate" for the seat.

Smith expressed confidence that Edmisten could win the primary and runoff, but cautioned that fighting within the party combined with Helms' strong financial base nationwide could make unseating him extremely difficult, Dome reported.

"Can anyone, Rufus included, go through two different Democratic primaries, then beat Jesse Helms in the fall when he's obviously going to be financed with a couple of million dollars?"

"I'm not being pessimistic, I'm being realistic, in asking that question. This is where the survey will help us," Smith said.

The session with the pollster was to discuss costs and dates and "analyze the potential candidates," he said.

Smith said it would "be July or August before we sit down and get our ducks in a row." The survey would follow in late August or September.

He suggested that "Rufus can wait longer than the others...because his name-identification factor is very high and is increasing daily; we have a test organization in 100 counties, and the fund-raising capability."

In early to mid-summer, Edmisten's political associates will begin contacting key supporters around the state to determine their feelings about a Senate candidacy, Smith said.

$100 Won't Buy Coffee

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — You can't buy a cup of coffee in Bob Bordenaro's restaurant — not even for $100.

Irked by skyrocketing prices, Bordenaro said he wouldn't pay 50 cents for a cup of coffee and he wouldn't ask anyone else to do it, either.

The "Sorry, No Coffee" sign went on the door Monday night, and Bordenaro declared that "you couldn't buy a cup of coffee in my restaurant for $100."

On Wednesday a man walked into his Ristorante D'Italia and ordered coffee. When Bordenaro replied that he didn't serve coffee anymore, the stranger took out a $100 bill and put it on the counter. He didn't care how much it cost, he wanted coffee, the customer said.

Still, Bordenaro said no. The man had a beer instead and left.

Bordenaro said the boycott hasn't hurt business so far, with most customers substituting iced tea or a soft drink for coffee.

Planning-Zoning...

(Continued from page 1) related item, a request by H. G. Stocks for rezoning approximately 32.6 acres on the south side of the bypass from Highway Commercial and RA-20 to Highway Commercial and Office and Institutional was withdrawn until more study can be given to the corridor plan.

Staff Planner Skip Browder explained that the study is in the preliminary stages and commissioners will have a chance to become more familiar with the situation at a workshop session.

Mrs. Trevaugh set May 11 at 8 p. m. as the workshop date.

According to Browder, the area under study includes the land east of Red Oak Crossroads at US 264 and 264 Bypass to Memorial Drive. The study area encompasses approximately 1,194 acres of urban transitional land along two miles of the bypass, he noted.

The preliminary plat of Kings Arms Apartments, located north of 14th Street, east of Charles Street between 12th and 14th Streets, was approved contingent upon half of the tract being rezoned to accommodate apartment usage. Half of the tract is zoned for neighborhood commercial use and the remainder for office and institutional usage.

Approval was given to the sedimentation control plans for Singletree Subdivision, Section II, and Twin Oaks Subdivision, located at the northwest intersection of 14th Street and US 264 Bypass.

Howell suggested that some misunderstanding may have resulted from the joint board's decision not to recommend adoption of the ordinance amendment involving tree and vegetation islands in parking lots.

The commissioner recommended that the City Council refer the matter back to the board in order that it may work on a new ordinance. Howell noted that, "We want to see a workable plan. This one (considered initially) wasn't."

Commissioners agreed that the matter should be referred back to them for more work.

Greenville board commissioners gave approval to the preliminary and final plats of Elks Subdivision located on Forns Road and also approved revised preliminary and final plats for two other developments on Forns Road. They are Maplewood Subdivision and Bond-King Subdivision.

Commissioners voted to table for 30 days action on the final plat of Section V of Club Pines Subdivision in order for the developer to make changes in the street pattern to accommodate recreational acreage.

The commission could rezone the bypass highway commercial in its entirety; rearrange commercially zoned property to conform to those areas with acceptable soil conditions; make no changes in the zoning pattern until sanitary sewer service is made available; or allow no additional commercial expansion into the area.

Commissioners endorsed an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance that would allow theaters as a permitted use in Shopping Center zones and recommended adoption of the amendment by the Council.

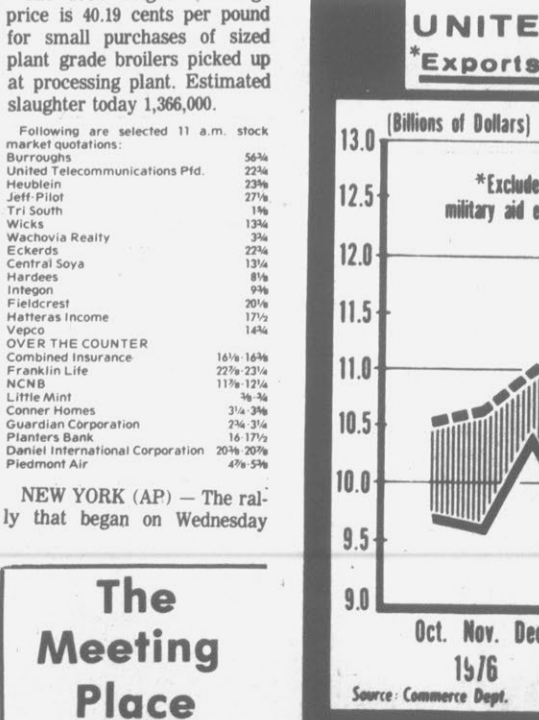

As part of the Airport Development Master Plan, the commission's endorsement was also given to a revised airport zoning ordinance that sets exact zoning limitations in the airport district. The revised ordinance will be recommended to the Council for approval.

Other business on the joint agenda included: approval of final plat of Section II of River Hills located opposite Pinewood Cemetery on the old Washington Highway;

RECORD TRADE DEFICIT IN MARCH — Chart shows record trade deficit of $2.4 billion suffered by the U.S. in March, according to a government report on Wednesday. Total imports of all goods were valued at just under $12.5 billion in March, while exports were nearly $10.1 billion. Government experts attributed the increased deficit to a 22 per cent boost in oil imports resulting from an unusually cold winter. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Pirates Chase Track Championship

East Carolina's track team will be looking for its second consecutive Southern Conference track championship at Furman University this Friday and Saturday.

The Pirates won the 1976 title by a 187-134 margin over William and Mary, which had taken the crown for the previous nine years. The Pirates are the favorites for this meet, but will have to withstand strong bids by the host Paladins, William and Mary and VMI.

East Carolina returns champions from seven of 1976's events. George Jackson won the long jump with a leap of 23-11 1/2 last year and has gone 24-3 1/4 this season. He should get a strong challenge from VMI's Andre Gibson and Furman's Carl Anderson.

Marvin Rankins captured the 120-yard high hurdles in last year's meet in 13.9 seconds. Just a sophomore, Rankins had gone 13.7 twice this season in the 110-meter hurdles and turned in a 13.81 second electronically-timed performance last week. That is one of the top electronic times in the nation this year.

Charlie Moss, who won last year in the 440 with a 48.5 clocking, has gone 48.0 this season, but will be pushed hard for the title by Furman's Ken Middleton and a host of his own teammates.

Carter Suggs, who has claimed the 100 title for the past two years, is getting back to top shape after early season injuries. He will have to go some to win this year, as Otis Melvin and Larry Austin, both Pirates, and Western Carolina's John Burson have better times to date.

The Pirates took both relays in last year's meet and are expected to do the same this year, barring a false start or missed baton exchange. ECU ran 40.6 to win the 440 relay and 3:15.9 in the mile relay a year ago, but have turned times of 40.1 and 3:12.26 this season.

Herman McIntyre, the Bucs' nationally-ranked triple jumper, has lost only three times all season, indoors and out. His jump of 52-6 1/2 at the State-Record Invitational is one of the 10 best in the nation among collegiate jumpers. He lost the indoor title to VMI's Malcolm Grimes, although he, Grimes and Anderson all topped the conference record.

Robert Bailey is the top weight man for the Pirates. The freshman from Pfafftown has thrown the discus 161-6 1/2 this season and was named the MVP in the field events at the Mountaineer Relays in West Virginia last weekend.

Other Pirates competing include Ben Duckenfield, Tony McKoy and Jay Purdie in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles;

Mike Hodge in the long and triple jump; Mike Harris in the shot, discus and hammer; Lafan Forbes in the javelin and hammer; Alston, James Rankins and Donnie Mack in the 100 and 200;

Robert Franklin, Jay Purdie, Terry Perry, James Freeman and James McCullough in the 400; Keith Urquhart, James Willett, Mel Duckenfield and Wayne Chaison in the 800; Lynn Phelps and Ray Moore in the 1,500; Moore and Jim Dill in the 5,000; Dill, John White and

Charlie Powell in the 10,000 and Bobby Phillips in the 110-meter high hurdles.

East Carolina coach Bill Carson thinks the conference championships will be a "dogfight for the finish for the top four teams. This may be one of the closest meets ever in the Southern Conference."

This will be the last track title the Pirates will have a chance to grab, as they will be leaving the Southern Conference next year. They would love to get this last one.

East Carolina Signs All-America Guard

Oliver Mack, only one of three players ever to make the All-Tournament team twice in the National Junior College Tournament, has signed a grant-in-aid with East Carolina University.

The 6-3, 198-pound guard, is a first team Junior College All-America selection as well. He is the first player signed by new ECU coach Larry Gillman.

In addition to his All-America status, Mack was named to the All-Texas Junior College team, and was the leading scorer in the conference for two straight years. This past season, he averaged, 27.0 points a game.

He also was named to the All-Tournament team for two years in the San Jacinto Classic, and in the Lee Classic. His team at San Jacinto Junior College finished seventh in the nation two years ago, and was second last year.

He carries an overall 25.0 average for his two years in junior college.

In addition, he also averaged nine rebounds and six assists per game for his two-year career.

A native of Queens, N. Y., he attended Bryant High School. As a senior, he scored 25 points a game, and 18 rebounds, gaining consensus All-American status.

He played in the national Junior College East-West All-Star game in San Antonio on April 1, and will be in the Texas Junior College All-Star game on Friday in Waco.

"We're elated that Oliver has decided to join us here at East Carolina. He will definitely add a new, exciting dimension to our basketball program. Oliver comes out of two fine programs in Bryant High School in New York with Coach Lou Hacker, and San Jacinto Junior College in Pasadena, Texas, with coach Wayne Ballard.

"Oliver is one of the truly quality players in the United States this year, high school or junior college. He definitely will be a true All-America candidate next season for us.

"Oliver is one of the finest all-around high school athletes I've ever seen. As an example, he high jumped 6-10 as a sophomore in high school when he was 15.

"Not only is Oliver an All-America player, he's a tremendous person as well," Gillman added.

"I'm elated over this," Athletic Director Bill Cain pointed out that Mack is one of the top players in the country and was highly sought after. "This shows Coach Gillman's outstanding ability as a recruiter. Oliver is the most sought-after player ever at East Carolina."

Mack was highly recruited by Southern California, Arizona State, Houston, California, Georgia Tech, Las Vegas, Michigan and San Francisco.

Bucs Third In Southern Golf

FLORENCE, S.C. — Furman held off a last day rally by Marshall University to win the Southern Conference Golf championship yesterday at the Country Club of South Carolina. East Carolina rallied from nine strokes behind Appalachian to tie the Mountaineers for third place in the tourney.

The Paladins finished the tournament with 1,126 strokes, two better than the Thundering Herd. East Carolina and Appalachian finished with 1,166.

Kenny Ezzell of Furman overtook teammate Bobby Bumgardner for the individual title. Ezzell finished the tournament with a total of 216, even par. Bumgardner shot a fat 79 to finish in second place four strokes off the pace. The Paladins' Ken Wiland tied for third with Marshall's Benny Bowles at 222.

East Carolina's Mike Buckmaster took seventh with a 228 total, and Keith Hiller of ECU finished in a tie for ninth with Marshall's Jay Guthrie at 231.

Games Will Be Broadcast

The East Carolina-Citadel doubleheader, which will be for the Southern Conference baseball championship Saturday, will be broadcast locally over WOOW radio.

The games will get underway at 6:30 p.m. in Charleston, S. C., with air time set for 6:15 a.m. Jim Woods will handle the play-by-play, with Bill Tucker doing the color.

East Carolina goes into the games with a 13-1 Southern Conference record, while The Citadel is 10-2. Western Carolina, which has completed its schedule, has a 14-2 record and still has a chance at the title also.

The Pirates shot a 387 total for the day, just five strokes off Marshall's best score. Coach Mac McLendon was happy with the comeback.

"We had a good round for the day," he said. "We did better than we expected in the tournament. Appalachian State was favored to take third, but they faltered in the last round. We were in the clubhouse two hours before they came in."

Following the Pirates and Mountaineers, came Western Carolina at 1,199; The Citadel 1,205; VMI 1,231; Davidson 1,243; and William & Mary 1,247.

Other East Carolina scores included David Brogan at 234; Donnie Owens 236; Stan Stewart 242; Frank Acker 244; and Phil Bell 246.

Walkers 'Sorry'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "I don't have any regrets about coming here. 'I'm just sorry it didn't work out,'" said Robert Walker, before he packed up his family and a box of high school basketball trophies Wednesday and headed home to Indiana.

Walker's sons, Steve and Brian, quit the North Carolina State basketball team at the end of the season and said they probably would transfer to Purdue.

The elder Walker quit his job as a tool room attendant for a construction firm in Lebanon, Ind., and moved here with his wife last season. They wanted to see their sons play basketball.

Denny Records Fifth Victory For Cardinals

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
John Denny of the St. Louis Cardinals is the first pitcher in the major leagues to win five games this season, but it is no surprise — he has had more than a little help from his friends.

In his five mound appearances, the Cardinals have backed Denny with 52 runs. Wednesday he was the beneficiary of 19 hits and 21 runs as the Cards pounded six Chicago pitchers for a 21-3 triumph over the Cubs.

"I'd like to think the guys have a lot of confidence in me and they'll swing their bats for me," said Denny. "This year I think they're averaging 10 runs a game for me, and that's nice."

The 24-year-old right-hander, who was 11-9 last season but led the National League in earned run average, credits his development as a pitcher to a more mature attitude he has acquired in the past year, when he says he began to understand the meaning of Christianity.

"Over the last year I've had a lot of spiritual experiences," said Denny. "Through the help of teammates like Bob Forsch and Don Kessinger, I've accepted Jesus Christ. He comes first; pitching comes second." — In other National League games Wednesday, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3, the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 3-2, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the San Diego Padres 7-6, and the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Houston Astros 3-2.

Hector Cruz and Ted Simmons wielded the big bats for the Cards, driving in four runs apiece. St. Louis scored four runs in the first inning and two in the second, then broke it open with eight runs in the fifth. Simmons and Lou Brock each drove in two runs in the big inning.

Reds 3, Braves 1
Pat Zachry allowed just five hits in dealing the Braves their fifth straight loss as Cincinnati completed a sweep of its three-game series at Atlanta.

"Now it will all level off," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson, confident his team has broken out of its early season slump. "We should play .700 ball for a while, I think."

Dodgers 7, Padres 6
Ron Cey, who has hit safely in all 17 of Los Angeles' games this season, tied the major league record of 27 runs batted in for the month of April with two against the Padres on a single and a homer.

The mark was set by Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh in 1971 and equaled by Reggie Jackson, then with Oakland, in 1974.

Pirates 7, Phillies 3
Pittsburgh posted its fifth victory in a row, behind Bruce Kison, who held the Phils scoreless until the ninth. Dave Parker hit two doubles, driving in two runs and scoring one, leading the Pirates' attack. Philadelphia's record dropped to 5-9.

Expos 3, Mets 2
Dave Kingman's third-inning error opened the way to three unearned runs for Montreal, the last two on Ellis Valentine's homer, and Steve Rogers made them stand up with a six-hit, striking out nine.

Giants 3, Astros 2
Darrell Evans belted a two-run homer in the eighth inning, lifting the Giants past Houston and tagging the loss on J.R. Richard, who had San Francisco scoreless over the first five innings.

Pirates Seek To Improve

East Carolina's tennis team, led by Henry Hostetler and Mitch Pergerson, will be competing in the Southern Conference Tournament this weekend at Davidson College.

The Pirates, who have finished seventh in the past three tournaments, will be trying to upgrade their finish in their final league appearance.

Hostetler, playing at number five singles, led the Pirates this season with a 12-5 record. Pergerson finished 10-7 at number four. Tom Durfee and Doug Getsinger, at numbers one and two, respectively, had 7-10 records.

Durfee and Getsinger played together at number one doubles and compiled the best mark at 10-7. Jim Ratliff and Pergerson played number three doubles and finished 8-4.

First year coach Randy Randolph has led his team to their best dual mark in ten years at East Carolina, 9-8. He said he hopes "each man will play up to his potential at the tournament and do as well as he can."

The Pirates played three conference matches this year, losing 9-0 to conference favorite Appalachian State, and 8-1 to strong William & Mary and Davidson. The Indians and Wildcats, along with Furman are expected to challenge the Mountaineers for the title.

Conference Is Planned

East Carolina University will host the seventh annual Sports Medicine Athletic Trainers and Coaches Conference May 13-14 it was announced today.

The program will be headed by ECU Sports Medicine Director Rod Compton and his staff, in conjunction with the East Carolina Division of Continuing Education. Rich Moran is the Division Representative to the conference.

There are a limited number of applications available, with Compton stating that the program will be limited to 110 people. Applications will be accepted in the order received prior to the May 7 deadline.

Those needing further information are asked to contact Rod Compton, Sports Medicine Director, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C., 27834; or Rich Moran, c/o Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University.

Two Women Netters Ink Pirate Grants

The first ever grants-in-aid for women tennis players at East Carolina University have been signed. Cynthia Averett, women's coach, has announced the signings of Debra Ann Spinazzola and Diane Keough to those grants.

Spinazzola is a high school All-America from Altoona, Pa., while Keough, a native of Vienna, Va., will transfer from Chowan Junior College.

Spinazzola has been playing number one singles for Altoona Area High School for the past four years and has compiled a 47-4 record. She was named Central Pennsylvania Most Valuable during 1974 and 1976. She was ranked number one in Central Pennsylvania for the 16-and-under group in 1976, and is currently ranked number three in the 18-and-under division.

Keough was the star of the men's tennis team at Chowan as a freshman last year, compiling a 10-2 record against the men from other junior colleges. She is currently a sophomore on the team. She attended George Marshall High School in Vienna, playing number one on the women's team for three years. She went to the regional championship in Virginia all three years of high school.

"Both girls will fit into our program real well," Miss Averett said. "They both get along with the present team members well. This is a step up for our program."

The two join five letter winners back from last year's 11-3 Lady Pirate team.

Yanks, Oakland Trade Players

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was a carefully structured trade between two of baseball's most skilled flesh dealers. George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees and Charlie Finley of the Oakland A's prepared to swap players.

The matter was clear-cut. Steinbrenner could have Oakland right-hander Mike Torrez if he agreed to surrender pitcher Dock Ellis, infielder Marty Perez and minor league outfielder Larry Murray.

Things bogged down a bit over Murray. "Steinbrenner offered me $200,000 if we wouldn't take Murray," recalled the A's owner. "I turned it down, and I think that's important because some people are saying I'm trying to dismantle this team to get cash. That's 100 per cent untrue." Fine. All was agreed. What remained was a little added attraction, so Steinbrenner "threw in two choice seats for the Kentucky Derby. He's going to enter his horse—I think the name is Steve's Friend — in the race tomorrow," said Finley.

"He also promised me I could lead the horse from the victory circle after he wins the Derby."

Seattle Slew might have something to say about that, but Finley spent a number of years leading his late mule mascot, Charlie O, around at various places, so Finley would be well prepared for such duty.

Finley, the Derby tickets notwithstanding, claims to have come out ahead in "one of the better deals I've made in baseball." He got Ellis, the right-hander who won 17 games for the AL East champions last year. He got Perez, who like Ellis was unsigned but will "help at second base." And he got Murray, who played just eight games for the Yankees last year but is "one heck of a prospect. We like speed, and he stole 59 bases last year at West Haven" of the Eastern League.

New York Manager Billy Martin got something too, it seems. A little more aggravation from his boss. The two have not seen eye-to-eye on a number of matters.

Twin Fireman Cools Off Red Sox, 5-3

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Bill Campbell's treasure map led to Boston, but the Minnesota Twins still turn to their bullpen for some riches of their own.

Things looked bleak for the Twins when Campbell, the American League Fireman of the Year in 1976 with 17 victories and 20 saves, played out his option and signed with the Boston Red Sox, who made him a rich man. But Tom Johnson is doing the same things Campbell did for Minnesota while Campbell is having his problems with his new club.

Although he was scored on Wednesday for the first time in seven appearances this season, Johnson notched his third consecutive triumph, with Butch Wynegar's two-run single capping a three-run seventh-inning rally.

The Twins have won three straight and nine of their last 11 games and are tied for the lead in the American League West with the surprising Oakland A's, who came from five runs behind and beat the California Angels 7-5. Elsewhere in the AL, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Boston Red Sox 4-2, the New York Yankees edged the Baltimore Orioles 4-3, the Detroit Tigers outlasted the Chicago White Sox 10-9, the Texas Rangers blanked the Kansas City Royals 5-0 and the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Cleveland Indians 6-5 in 12 innings.

A's 7, Angels 5
Home runs by Manny Sanguillen and Earl Williams helped Oakland overcome an early five-run deficit. Trailing 5-4, the A's took the lead in the fifth inning when rookie Mitchell Page singled and Sanguillen hit his first American League home run off Paul Hartzell. Williams provided an insurance run in the seventh with his fourth homer.

Brewers 4, Red Sox 2
Robin Yount singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run eighth inning and Sixto Lezcano belted a two-run double in the fourth as the Brewers boosted their record to 10-5, their most victories ever in April. Yount's single followed a walk and a sacrifice, and he later scored on an error and Dan Thomas' single.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

Reggie Jackson's second sacrifice fly of the game scored Willie Randolph with the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning, giving the Yankees their seventh triumph in the last eight games. Randolph reached base five times on three walks and a pair of doubles and scored three runs.

Tigers 10, White Sox 9

Rookie Steve Kemp broke an 8-8 tie with a two-run single in the sixth inning and the Tigers held on despite five Chicago home runs by Richie Zisk — his seventh, most in the league — Royle Stillman, Eric Soderholm, Chet Lemon and Oscar Gamble. However, Detroit's Jason Thompson hit a grand slam and Milt May also connected for the Tigers.
Rangers 5, Royals 0

Juan Beniquez, batting .150.

hit his first home run in two years and Bert Blyleven fired seven-hitter for his sixth career shutout against Kansas City. Beniquez connected off Dennis Leonard in the third inning following a walk and a hit by

Blue Jays 6, Indians 5
Bob Bailor, who homered leading off the game, singled in the winning run in the 12th. The Indians tied the score with four runs in the ninth, the final three on Bill Melton's two-out pinch double.

Philadelphia Learns On Sunday How To Win On Wednesday Night

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers learned something about themselves last Sunday. It paid off Wednesday night with a 110-91 romp over the Boston Celtics and a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

Guard Doug Collins, who led the 76ers with 23 points, said after a victory over Boston last Friday night, that they lost their intensity and were mentally unprepared for Sunday's game.

"The Celtics are such a fantastic team," said Collins, "that you can't let them up for air like that."
Collins said the 76ers are not about to make that mistake Friday night at Boston. Collins played like someone in a hurry to get it over. He hit 11 for 16 from the field and handed out four assists. He was in the thick of the first-half 76ers' spree that broke the Celtics' back.

Collins was aided on offense by Julius Erving, who scored 22, and Steve Mix with 20 in 27 minutes of action. The 76ers shot 51.6 per cent from the field to 39.6 for Boston and out-rebounded the Celtics 59-50. Philadelphia controlled the game, scoring 12 straight points for a 30-20 first-period lead.

Collins, Erving and Mix led a nine-minute, 33-8 spurt from which Boston never recovered. Philadelphia led 62-44 at halftime, by as many as 22 and never less than 12 the rest of the way.
Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue credited defense, especially the job 7-foot-1 Caldwell Jones did on Boston center Dave Cowens. Cowens, who scored 37 in the Celtics' 124-119 victory Sunday, was held to eight Wednesday night. He shot four for 14 from the field and never had a free throw opportunity.

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn simply pointed to the Celtics' shooting percentage and offered it as the story of the game. "We missed shots that we should have made, and that's it," Heinsohn said.
A victory in Game Six at Boston Friday night would send the 76ers into the East final.

Two other NBA quarter-final series, both tied 2-2, resume Friday night. The Washington Bullets visit the Houston Rockets and the Golden State Warriors meet the Lakers at Los Angeles in a contest to be telecast nationally at 11:30 p.m. EDT.

Pond, Guthrie Team For Race

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — If Lennie Pond takes the checkered flag in Sunday's Winston 500 stock car race, it will mean something shattering for the world of NASCAR Grand National racing.

Janet Guthrie has won the race!

No, that scenario is not the product of a twisted mind. It's a real possibility.

Miss Guthrie, the pioneer woman racer, earned a spot, 13th, and in the process established a new women's closed course world record of 186.387 miles an hour Wednesday.

But after her qualifying run, which bettered veterans like Buddy Baker and Bobby Allison, Miss Guthrie disclosed that Rolla Vollstedt, who maintains her Indianapolis car, doesn't want her to race here Sunday.

To dangerous, he says.

"Rolla didn't want me to come here with Indy practice only five days away (May 7 actually). But we have been running real good this year and I wanted to come," she explained. "So Linda Ferrari and Ralph Moody (her stock car supporters) made some phone calls and Lennie Pond is here.

"I don't know if I will get out on the first lap or the first gas stop. Whenever it is, I'm sure going to hate to get out."

Bailey Vending romped to a 26-1 win over Tarheel Toyota. Frank Bissett had four homers to lead Bailey, with Don Shink having four hits with one homer. Elmer Dale had two hits for Tarheel.

Softball Event Is Underway

The Men's Pre-season Softball Tournament opened last night. Eight games were played, moving teams into the second round of the tournament, which continues tonight and Friday.

Moore-King-Sullivan gained an 4-1 victory over the Moose. Smith-Worthington led the Moore-King-Sullivan hitting with two.

Depot downed Eaton, 19-7. Al Heath had four hits, while Cotton Nicholson had three, including a homer for Depot. Peele had two and Lewis had three for Eaton.

Empire Brush gained an 11-9 win over the Jaycees. Perry Morgan had five hits, and Sam Arans had three for Empire, while Mike Van Lendingham had three and Glen Currell had two for the Jaycees.

The Rockets took a 9-2 win over Trinity Two. Charles Byrd had three hits and Clinton Cogdell had two for the Rockets, while Tom Cook and John Harrell each had two for Trinity.

Students Learn, Play Guidance Counseling Role

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Advising a troubled teen-ager to discuss problems with a school guidance counselor too often is like telling Romeo to ask Juliet's father for pointers in dealing with girls.

"Some students at this level are really turned off to adults because of experiences with teachers and at home," said Bill Hensley, a guidance counselor at Parkway Central High School. "Some don't even want to look at an adult, much less talk to one."

So Hensley and Mary Kummer, another member of Parkway's counseling staff, put together a peer counseling program for qualified juniors and seniors as an elective with course credit.

In the St. Louis County school's program, 30 students learn and apply counseling techniques to help solve problems their faculty supervisors may never even hear about.

There were nearly five student applicants for each available position when the course began with 18 students last fall. The peer counselors were trained in psychological techniques and communication skills.

Then, in the early stages of the program alone, there were more than 500 contacts between peer counselors and troubled students.

"In any given period we have counselors in our center here, but the peer counselors are in the halls, the smoking areas and other places to increase the availability of counseling," Hensley said. "They increase our contacts."

"They operate pretty much independently. We don't go around hassling them. We feel they work as hard here and learn as much here as they do in their other classes."

The peer counselors stress that their efforts go beyond routine chats about common concerns. The students come from a wide range of the usual cliques so that they can reach out to as many others as possible.

Talking animatedly about their experiences in the program, they stress the confidentiality they must maintain if they are to keep the respect of their clients. They also talk of how the program has helped them as much as it has helped anyone.

"You start to think a lot more about how you're affecting others," said Jan Douglass, a junior. "Instead of just hearing someone say, 'Oh, I'm really upset,' you really understand what they're trying to say."

"People are not so quick to give advice after they've been in the program," said Marci Kimmel, also a junior. "That's not what we're here for. We're trying to help others reach decisions themselves."

Explaining why peer counseling is often preferred, Douglass said, "I used to stay up nights worrying after I first talked to a guidance counselor about a problem. I really didn't know these adults. I didn't know if they would call my parents with something I had laid out and inform on me."

Some problems handled by peer counselors involve narcotics and pregnancy, but they resent the impression many adults have that all teen-agers are troubled by only those topics.

More often, they said, problems deal with relationships with parents, teachers and friends. Some counselors have gone through the difficulties themselves. They know the problems are serious.

"I had a real hard time last year," said Jim McNamara, a senior. "I hated everything and everybody. But I never thought I could talk to an adult about it. I was close to being put away, and that's not like me at all."

"If I had had peer counseling, it could have helped me a lot. I went through it alone."

With their training and experience, the counselors realize they cannot handle all problems brought to them. They have a complete list of referral services to use, or they may act as intermediaries with the regular counseling staff.

"We know when to stop if we need to hand it over to Bill or Mary or one of the other counselors," said Sheri Beitch, a junior.

Revenue For Trash Man

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Former trash collector Ray Valine decided recently to use his head, and now says he's making $100 a day in advertising revenues.

On one recent day he was advertising a downtown bar on the left side of his scalp, a steel company above his right ear, and a restaurant on the back of his head.

He said the idea came to him when he was shaving his dark, curly locks so he could paint his head like an Easter egg "and be Captain Easter Egg for a gas station."

His wife, Diana, does the painting. Valine promenades slowly through crowds around the Capitol and downtown malls.

Valine, 30, said he needs the money because his wife is pregnant.

His trash collecting job didn't work out because officials "were giving me a hard time" for wearing a bunny suit on Easter, and Santa Claus and Uncle Sam suits during the holidays.

He said he was only trying "to improve the image of the garbage men everywhere."

U.S.C.G. boarding party member shins up rope ladder on inspection visit to Hans Lebanecht, Soviet trawler, off New England coast.

Hans Lebanecht, Soviet trawler-factory ship—with attendant gulls—lies waiting for inspection, 80 miles south of Nantucket.

Coast Guard's Fish Patrol

The U.S. Coast Guard has some new rule books to keep an eye on—the regulations for the 200-mile fishing limits that came into effect in March. Here's an example of what the job may entail. The U.S.C.G. Cutter Decisive, patrolling off New England, comes across the Hans Lebanecht, a Soviet trawler-factory ship, 80 miles or so south of Nantucket. The United States now maintains control over all fishing within 200 miles of its shores, but the Russians and other foreign countries are allowed to do a limited amount. So, the Decisive sends a boarding party to the Hans Lebanecht to make sure the Russians are keeping the new rules. Coast Guardmen and a National Marine Fisheries Service agent check the catch and the nets used, leaf through the ship's log and peer into processing and storage areas. All seems in order and the Coast Guard party returns to the Decisive—where binoculars once more rake the horizon, on the lookout for the next job.

Photographed by Chip Maury.

Seaman Ted Wilson of U.S.C.G. Cutter Decisive sweeps horizon with binoculars on lookout for violators of new fishing laws.

Mesh of Russians' nets is checked to make sure it's wide enough to let small fish through, as stipulated.

Ens. Brian Durham holds hake he's checking, as Ens. Robert Murray consults species book.

The job is done: Coast Guard boarding party returns in motor surf boat, after inspection of Soviet ship.

Broad View Of Television Past

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — In one of TV's periodic navel inspections, CBS News tonight looks back at network television of the 1950s in a two-hour show, "When Television Was Young," reported by Charles Kuralt. It's a sharper-than-usual memory tour of TV in that it goes beyond the usual collection of drama and comedy highlights and self-serving salutes to them good old black-and-white days. Sure, it has its share of Ernie Kovacs clips, quick glimpses of young struggling thespians like Charlton Heston, the late James Dean, Jack Lemmon and Grace Kelly going about their dramatic business. But it also goes into the early days of TV news, including the use of government-supplied and government-narrated film which then was aired under the guise of news, not propaganda. And it recalls the big quiz show scandals, using House testimony to illustrate how some contestants on CBS' "$64,000 Question" got answers to the big and lesser questions in advance. Alas, that is only a recitation of quiz show history, not an attempt to see if such scandals name was in 'Red Channels,' you were professionally dead for years." Okay, the book existed. But he thinks it'd be stronger to take the cases of Loeb and Draper and specifically explain how each man was blacklisted and why it was condoned on the network level. Valuable perspective also could have come in interviews with network and advertising executives (no such interviews are in the show) who went along with blacklisting — provided one could be found, of course. Well, maybe the blacklist should be the sole subject of another CBS News special. This one is fairly good. But by ranging from timid comedy to the televised Army-McCarthy hearings, it substitutes breadth for detail, covers too much in its look back at the tube of the 1950s.

Missionary Pilots Train For Hazardous Flights

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) — The winds that burble over Holston Mountain are enough to make a pilot mutter a prayer on his final approach to the narrow airstrip nestled between the hills.

But it's not just the capricious mountain winds or the final approach with a mountain at the tip of each wing that makes prayer a regular thing at Elizabethton's airport.

This is a place where missionary pilots and mechanics are trained to give the gospel wings so it can reach some of the most treacherous flying country in the world.

The training is part of a no-nonsense 27-month course sponsored by Chicago's Moody Bible Institute.

"Unless they've got some motivation other than the joy of flying, we don't have time for them," says Robert M. Rich, Moody's pre-aviation coordinator. "This is not a glory thing. We're not interested in training people who are in it for the fun of flying..."

Although the missionary airmen and mechanics spend two years studying Bible and college-level courses at Moody's main campus in Chicago before they go to "flight camp," they will never preach.

"Everything is specialized nowadays, even in the mission fields," says one former mission pilot. "We provide the transportation so that others can spread the word of the Lord..."

Moody always has more applicants than it can handle and, during the first week of flight camp at the modern Moody Aviation facility, instructors weed out about half of the 40 finalists.

"We are looking for committed Christians," Rich says. "We aren't training people for the airlines... We don't make them sign a pledge or anything, but almost all of our students go to the mission fields."

The 20 or so who make the final cut earn a private pilot's license and spend a year studying and working for an aircraft and powerplant mechanic's license. The final year is devoted to earning a commercial pilot's license and working in the school's shops for additional maintenance experience.

There is no tuition, but costs of flying time, tools and supplies amount to more than $10,500. Students must foot the bill, and there is no time for part-time jobs.

One of those near the end of training is Mike Childers, 23, a member of an Elizabethton family who dreamed of an Air Force career.

"I wanted to be a pilot at an early age," Childers said recently as he checked the weather for a grueling low-level training flight through East Tennessee's mountains.

Childers was disqualified for the Air Force Academy because he failed to pass a stringent physical.

"It wasn't quite the blow I thought it would be," Childers recalls. "I felt like the Lord had something for me to do for Him."

Like other Moody students, Childers completed two years of work at Chicago, then came home to Elizabethton for aviation training.

Students study airframe repair, electronics and engines. Each must equip himself with about $1,500 worth of tools which get a thorough workout before the course is completed.

Once qualified as mechanics, they return to the air to earn a commercial pilot's license.

The advanced training includes exposure to lack of navigation equipment, narrow mountaintop runways and the lack of comfort they will face in the mission fields. Elizabeth-ton's single paved runway is well suited to show young airmen what happens when blustery winds and mountains join forces. When his training ends, Childers hopes to join the Missionary Aviation Fellowship in Fullerton, Calif., one of several missionary organizations that use Moody graduates. Childers wants to go to South America, but he says he will go "wherever the Lord calls me."
