

Economic Trends Sharply Up, Say Govm't Indicators

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to foreshadow future economic trends registered its largest increase in 20 months during March, the Commerce Department said today.

The composite index of leading economic indicators rose 1.4 per cent from February, the biggest jump since July 1975. It was the second consecutive monthly increase for the index after a drop in January caused by the severe winter weather.

Most of the economic statistics that have been announced this month have recorded gains, although the administration also has revised upward its projection of the annual inflation rate, saying it would be 6.7 per cent instead of the 5.3 per cent originally forecast.

The index showed continuing improvement in the economy, with six of the index' 10 indicators showing increases, including the average work week and new orders for consumer products and materials. Building permits also were up.

The index now stands at 129.7, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said. This was 1.4 per cent higher than the revised February index of 127.9 per cent.

Contributing most to the March increase was new orders for consumer products and materials, which registered a 4.6 per cent gain. The average work week for production and manufacturing workers was 40.3 hours, up from the revised February figure of 40.2 hours and the highest in six months.

Other indicators registering improvements were the layoff rate, vendor performance and change in sensitive prices.

The four indicators that decreased were total liquid assets, contracts and orders and plant and equipment in 1972 dollars, stock prices, and money balance in 1972 dollars.

Total liquid assets actually increased but at a declining rate, the department said.

The index of 500 common stock prices was at 100.57, down three-tenths of a per cent from the February figure of 100.96. The March figure was the lowest in the last six months.

Two of the indicators — changes in inventories and the new business formation index — were not available for compilation, the department said.

Move Into New Hospital Proceeds At Rapid Pace

By CAROL TYER

The parking lot lights are going up, the vending machines are stocked, the supply closets are in apple pie order, the air-conditioning's running, and beds from units in the old hospital now vacant are making the quarter-mile trip to the bed towers of the new Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

As of 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the move to the new hospital was 70 per cent complete, Assistant Administrator Buck Sitterton estimated.

Almost everything that could be moved ahead of the patients was being moved then, as equipment and supplies have been for the past week. There was a steady stream of North American Van Lines trucks on the short route between the two hospital facilities.

According to Donald Taylor of ABC Moving and Storage, which has the contract for the move, his employees had worked until about 9 o'clock on Wednesday night and were looking forward to more overtime. He said, however, that everything was going according to schedule, crediting the relative ease of the move to exceptionally good planning on the part of the hospital administration.

Every bed, every trash can, every box of charts has been labeled for about a month with a number denoting the department to which it should go and the date it should be moved.

A member of each department is stationed in his or her department in the new building to point out to the moving crews just where every item should go and to assist in getting it to its rightful place.

Intensive care nurse Vickie Kenzie, stationed in the Intensive Care Unit of the new hospital, didn't look busy when she was interviewed. She said that there is little in her unit that can be moved before the patients are moved. "So much of our equipment is life-sustaining and, therefore, must stay with the patient," she said.

About 110 Patients

The population of the old hospital, as was planned for and predicted, is down because of the termination of elective surgery as of the end of last week. Nursing Administrator Jean Owens said this morning that there are likely to be about 110 patients to move tomorrow. All except a few orthopedic patients in traction will be moved in ambulances. They will go in vans which will accommodate their beds and traction stands. As of now, there are two premature babies to go in their incubator units, she said, and three neurological patients, all in good enough shape to be moved in ambulances.

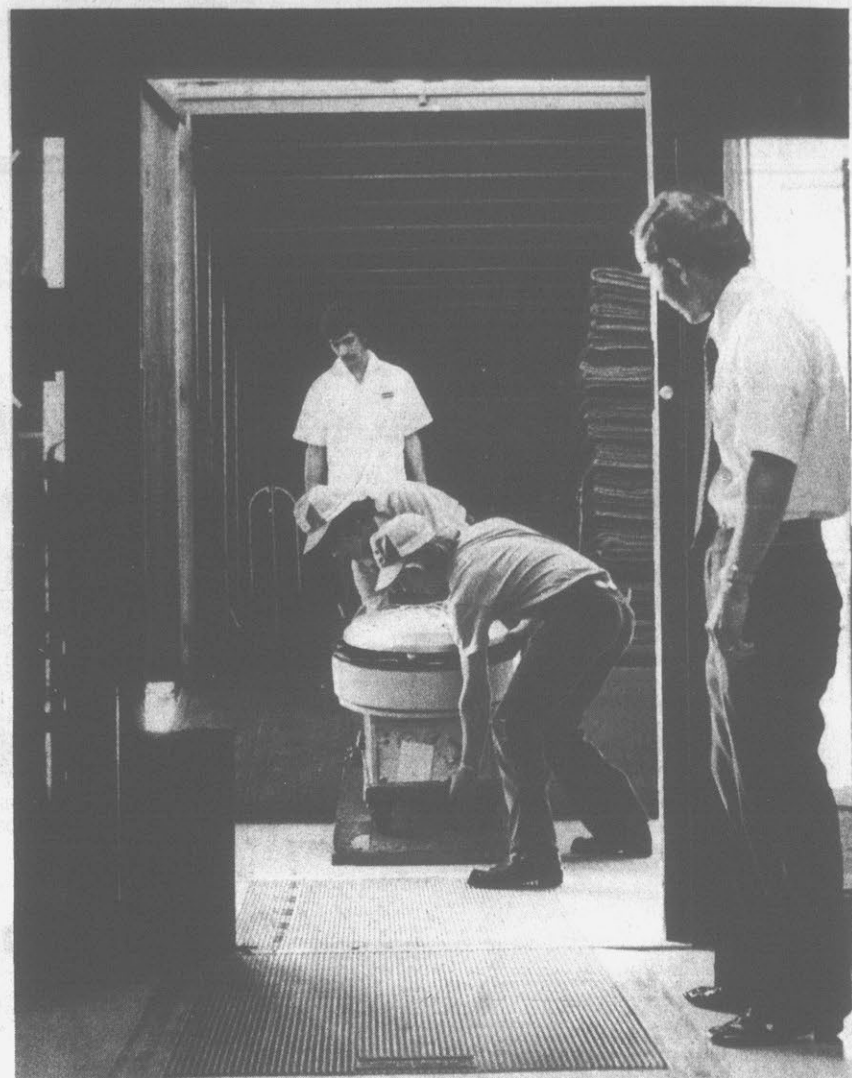

Some departments like the laboratories and medical records are already under partial operation in the new hospital. The business office has been moved for more than a month, since before the dedication.

Many other departments will have their moves virtually finished today, but work will continue up to the last minute in the old hospital, as it must since the patients are still there. For instance, even though much of the kitchen equipment and supplies are already moved, breakfast tomorrow morning will be cooked in the old building, but by lunchtime the move will be complete and lunch will be prepared in the new kitchen.

Hours Noted

Any person having a true emergency tomorrow morning should be brought, beginning at 6 a. m., to the new hospital emergency room, which may be reached via a drive which turns off the Nursing Home Road between State Road 1200 and

Suspect Missing Uranium In Israel

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Israel is believed to have been behind the disappearance of 200 tons of uranium being shipped by sea from Belgium to Italy in 1968, a former U.S. Senate expert on nuclear proliferation said today.

Paul L. Leventhal's statement about the vanished uranium coincided with similar reports in the New York Times and the Los Angeles Times.

The newspapers quoted U.S. and European intelligence officials and suggested the Israelis may have used the fuel to run a small nuclear reactor that can produce the raw material for nuclear weapons.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli Atomic Energy Commission denied any Israeli connection with the disappearance.

Leventhal, former counsel of the Senate Government Operations Committee, said that several weeks after the ship failed to make its scheduled call at an Italian port with the uranium, "it reappeared with a new name, new registry, new crew, but no uranium."

He said intelligence sources from several countries investigated the incident "but eventually closed their probe of the case."

"It is assumed that it was unloaded in Israel," he said.

Leventhal, who gave no further details and did not identify his source for the information, was speaking at a conference on "A Non-Nuclear Future," a gathering of critics of nuclear energy from 20 nations.

He told the participants that the 1968 incident illustrated the need for more rigorous safeguards of nuclear fuel and "the importance of international escort services for shipments of nuclear materials."

Israel has said its 26-megawatt Dimona reactor in the Negev Desert, bought from France in the late 1950s, runs on uranium obtained as a by-product of phosphate plants at the Dead Sea.

The reactor cannot be inspected by the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna because Israel has not signed the treaty that is the basis for the agency's operations. Inspectors from the IAEA would check to make sure the uranium is not used to make nuclear weapons.

The Los Angeles Times quoted a senior European nuclear official as saying inspectors from Euratom, the European atomic energy organization, tried to trace the ship's movements when it failed to arrive in Italy.

He said the uranium was unquestionably stolen in what he called the largest disappearance of nuclear material in history, the newspaper reported. The shipment would have been worth $3 million at the time, it said.

A New York Times report on the incident said it involved a commercial German-flag ship.

Israel has never issued a clear-cut denial of persistent foreign reports that it has — or can quickly build — nuclear bombs. When asked about the reports, government spokesmen consistently respond that "Israel will not be the first to introduce nuclear weapons into the Middle East."

Reject Petition For Bail

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court today rejected a petition for bail for a band of imprisoned civil rights activists known as the "Wilmington 10," convicted in 1972 in connection with racial violence in Wilmington, N.C.

The court declined to review the decision by a lower court refusing bail to the defendants while their attorneys prepare for a post-conviction hearing in Pender County Superior Court, set for May 9.

The lawyers have now argued unsuccessfully in Superior Court, Appeals Court and state Supreme Court that they cannot adequately prepare for the May 9 hearing with the nine defendants scattered across the state in separate prison units.

The 10th defendant in the case, a young white woman, was granted parole earlier.

The "Wilmington 10" were convicted on charges of firebombing a grocery store and firing on police and fire officials during racial disturbances in the coastal city in the winter of 1971.

Specialist At The Scene

By JOHN VINOCUR

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Paul "Red" Adair, the Texan regarded as the oil world's premier blowout specialist, arrived today to take command of a new attempt to shut off a runaway gusher that has spilled some six million gallons of oil into the North Sea in seven days.

The 62-year-old Adair and his team will seek to cap the Ekofisk Bravo well by pushing a four-ton stopper through oil moving at the speed of sound.

Adair told reporters: "We'll wind it up in a couple of days or sooner. We got a whole bunch of tricks. We'll fix it. I'll stay until we close it. It's no big thing. We do this for a living."

As Adair was preparing for a helicopter trip to the rig 168 miles west of Stavanger in the North Sea, members of his Texas disaster control team were preparing equipment for a new try at capping the well after three failed attempts on Thursday.

The attempt involves limiting the size of the flow from the wellhead to two inches in diameter so that a four-ton assembly can be swung through and over it to eventually stop the flow.

An official of Phillips Petroleum, operators of the rig, said the velocity of the flow when it is cut from 4 1/2 to 2 inches will be 1,300 feet per second or 886 miles per hour — more than the speed of sound at sea level.

A Phillips spokesman explained that the oil flow would be about 800 pounds of pressure per square inch, which represents a reduction even though it is escaping at higher velocity.

Adair refused to call the abortive efforts so far at capping the well a failure. Adair said he was particularly concerned with backing up Boots Hansen, whom he dispatched here with Richard Hatteberg after the well blew last Friday night.

Phillips officials said their estimates were that 4.4 million gallons of oil were on the water at noon today. This took into account an estimated evaporation rate of 18 per cent.

Norwegian officials reported that no dead fish or birds were found and that two marine biology boats found very few dead fish eggs or larvae.

"There is no major ecological damage yet," the government spokesman said.

The weather, which stopped work several times earlier this week, was again favorable for the second day in succession for the well cappers.

WILLIAMSTON — Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources, Howard Lee commended the efforts of local government at the Ninth Annual Mid-East Commission meeting Thursday night.

"Government closest to the people makes the difference in the lives of the people," Lee said.

"I accepted the position as Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development because it is an excellent challenge to work with the people of the state. Local governments have risen to the challenge historically, and delivered when state and federal governments have failed," he continued.

"In restructuring our department we must make an effort to clear clarify the role of the state. We must not do for, but do with; not take

MARRIAGE NOT RECORDED

I have an employe whose wedding was conducted last June by a local minister. Apparently the minister never sent in the proper form(s) to register this marriage. The Register of Deeds for Pitt County and the City of Greenville have informed my employe that his marriage is not legal in this state. We have contacted the minister in person, over the phone and by mail of this problem, but nothing has been done to correct it. This couple has a baby due in four months and needs this matter taken care of. D. R.

Hotline called the minister, who said he did, indeed, perform the wedding of your employe and his wife last summer. He said he does not know what happened to the forms which he believed he had sent in, but that he would check on the matter.

We called back some time later and he promised to go to the Register of Deeds office that very afternoon. Later, you report an appointment was arranged for the couple, witnesses and the minister to attest before the Register of Deeds to the ceremony's having taken place last June. You report that your employe and his wife are pleased to be, at last, legally wed.

Alligood Considers Washington County Offer

Rose High principal Robert Alligood this morning confirmed that he is being considered for the position of Superintendent of the Washington County School system for the coming school year.

Asked whether he had made a decision to accept or not, Alligood said "at this time we are in the middle of considerations, and I have not yet reached a decision."

"I told officials in Washington County that I would need a little time to reach a decision," Alligood added.

"I am taking a look at all the facts and will make decision within a few days, possibly by next Wednesday."

The most recent issue of the The Roanoke Beacon, a newspaper published in Plymouth, reported that the Washington County Board of Education on Tuesday night "voted to offer the position of superintendent to Robert J. Alligood, principal of Rose High School in Greenville."

Because of salary considerations, it would be necessary for the Washington County Commissioners to provide a local salary supplement amounting to several thousand dollars more than is provided for the retiring superintendent, S. D. O'Neal.

O'Neal now makes $24,636, with $20,640 coming from his state pay scale and $3,996 provided locally, mostly from a Weyerhaeuser Foundation grant.

According to The Roanoke Beacon, a principal in certain situations — based on education certification, years of experience, and the size of the school of which he is principal — can make more in salary than a superintendent of a smaller school system.

Because of this, the newspaper noted that "if he accepts, he will reportedly get over $27,000 a year, which is the state average for superintendents, and a four year contract."

Based on these facts, if Alligood accepts the offer, his state base salary would be $19,104.

The Washington County Commissioners have told school board members "they would consider appropriating more funds" if the school board feels Alligood is the man who "could best do the job."

Alligood has been principal at Rose High since July 1970.

Right-To-Die, Testing Plan Advance In Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — Two measures advanced in the General Assembly Thursday, one of them Gov. Jim Hunt's competency testing plan, the other a "right to die" measure.

The testing bill, a companion to another bill calling for statewide testing in the elementary grades, would require high school students to meet minimum requirements before they could graduate.

The "right to die" bill that would allow North Carolina doctors to discontinue extraordinary life support procedures for persons who were incurably and terminally ill.

Both bills were approved by overwhelming majorities, the testing bill on a final, 100-3 vote and the Senate measure on a 44-3 vote.

Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, who guided the testing measure to passage, told the House it was an "attempt to add accountability to the educational system in North Carolina and to improve the education of our young people."

Rep. Albert Martin, D-Yadkin, who served as a school principal for 39 years, told the House that it was a good bill and predicted "we are going to see quite a bit of difference in the effort put forward by students."

In other legislative developments:

AUTO TAGS
The House voted tentatively to approve a bill that would permit Charlotte and municipalities in Cumberland County to charge up to $5 for city auto tags. All cities in the state are now limited to a $1 charge for city tags. Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, told the House that if the bill is passed, Charlotte likely would boost its tag prices to $3.

As the House considered the bill, Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, told the members that if it passed, they would be asked to give other cities and towns the same authority. Rep. R.D. Beard, D-Cumberland, said that prices had risen so that the cities cannot buy and issue metal auto tags for $1.

JUDGE

The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill validating the judicial decisions made by a District Court judge found to be over the mandatory retirement age. Sen. Roger Sharpe, D-Burke, said the bill would make binding the rulings of Judge Benjamin Beach, who resigned from the bench earlier this year after it was learned he was nearly three years past the retirement age of 70.

TREASURER

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles said he would ask the state Board of Education to support legislation tightening budgetary and fiscal controls on the state's community college system. Boyles said he would ask the board at its meeting next Thursday to call for drafting such legislation, following the concept of laws now governing counties, cities and public schools.

EDUCATION

The House and Senate agreed to meet Tuesday in a joint session to consider confirmation of Gov. Jim Hunt's three appointees to the state Board of Education. The three, David Bruton of Southern Pines, Ben Battle of Cullowhee, and John Tart of Goldsboro, have been approved by House and Senate committees. Agreement came after Gov. Jimmy Green ended his delaying tactics on approval of the governor's nominees.

LIQUOR

Supporters of a statewide local option, liquor by the drink proposal were reportedly still searching for a sponsor before filing a bill in the Senate. Supporters claim they have enough commitments in the Senate to ensure passage, but are trying to find someone from outside Mecklenburg County, considered the stronghold of pro-mixed drink sentiment, to sponsor the measure.

Meanwhile, the Christian Action League reaffirmed its opposition to the mixed drink proposal in a resolution approved by its Board of Trustees.

AGENCY SHOP

The House Manufacturing and Labor Committee killed a bill that would have allowed labor unions and companies to sign an agreement that every employee covered by a contract won by the union would pay union dues even if an employee chose not to join the union. The state now has a "right-to-work" law which forbids such contract provisions.

Rep. Tom Sawyer, D-Gulford, sponsor of the measure, had argued earlier that it is unfair for an employee to enjoy the benefits of a union contract without paying his share of the cost. Opponents argued that it is unfair to force a person to support an organization and said the state's law now makes it easier to attract industry.

HOUSING BONDS

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles and Howard Lee, secretary of natural and economic resources, took opposing stands on a bill to move the North Carolina Housing Finance Agency from the treasurer's office to the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

The agency uses money raised by the sale of bonds to help finance homes for low income families, allowing them to mortgage a home at a lower interest rate than is available on the commercial market.

Boyles argued that his office needs to control it so the state's credit record is not damaged. Lee argued that his department is closer to the communities and the people who need the program and said the treasurer's office would still oversee the bond sales.

Three Hurt In Accidents

Three traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Police resulted in three persons being injured and an estimated $4,575 property damage.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene and Fourth Streets involving cars driven by Timothy Grady Ford of 807 West Fourth St. and Clyde Erwin Murchinson II of Route 1, Bethel.

Police, who reported both drivers and a passenger in the Ford car were injured, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Ford car and $800 to the Murchinson car.

Murchinson was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of the collision.

An estimated $600 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 2 p.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 177 feet South of the Reade Street intersection.

Investigators identified the drivers involved as David Lee Simmons of 706 East Mumford Rd. and Sharon Kay Jones of 412 Fletcher Dorm.

A 2:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Airport Road and Memorial Drive involved a truck driven by Linwood Earl Lee Sr. of Kinston and a car driven by Dorothy Best Daniels of Route 5, Greenville.

Damage was estimated at $375 to the Lee truck and $200 to the Daniels auto.

Operation Fails To Interrupt Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The removal of a benign lump from First Lady Rosalynn Carter's breast won't interfere with her busy schedule, a White House spokeswoman says.

"She is up and about and in great spirits," said Mary Finch Hoyt, press secretary to Mrs. Carter. "This will not affect her schedule."

The non-cancerous growth, discovered during Mrs. Carter's routine six-month checkup Thursday afternoon at Bethesda Naval Hospital, was removed immediately. Mrs. Carter was back at the White House by 5 p.m.

The 40-minute operation was performed by Capt. William Fouty, chairman of the hospital's surgery department. The operation was followed by a biopsy, a microscopic examination, that showed the lump was benign.

Mrs. Hoyt said Mrs. Carter, who had no history of lumps in her breast, was alone at the hospital since the checkup was expected to be routine.

Betty Ford, who preceded Mrs. Carter as first lady, underwent a radical mastectomy for removal of her right breast on Sept. 28, 1974. Doctors detected her cancerous growth during a similar routine examination at the naval hospital in suburban Maryland.

Mrs. Hoyt said the First Lady was given a local anesthetic for the surgery, but received no additional medication afterward.

Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician, telephoned President Carter before and directly after the operation. Carter awaited his wife's return in the family living quarters, Mrs. Hoyt said.

Mrs. Hoyt declined to say which of Mrs. Carter's breasts was operated on.

"I'm not willing to ask," the spokeswoman said. "If it had been malignant, that would be something else."

Salesladies Fight Over Customer

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I had a terrible experience yesterday and I would like your opinion.

I was shopping in a department store when a saleslady offered to help me.

I said, "Thank you, I'm just looking," and then I proceeded to look at some sale merchandise out on the counter, and the saleslady disappeared.

I found several things I wanted, but the salesperson who had approached me was nowhere in sight, so since I was in a hurry, I handed my merchandise to another salesperson who was standing near me.

Suddenly No. 1 saleslady appeared, and when she saw No. 2 writing up my sale, she ran to her, tore my merchandise out of her hand and said, "She was MY customer!"

Then No. 2 gave No. 1 a shove, and it soon developed into a hair-pulling brawl! Other store personnel came running, and it took two women and a man to separate them.

What I want to know is this: Just because that saleslady offered to help me, did that make me "her" customer?

Nobody really waited on me. I found what I wanted myself.

STILL SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: Her offer of help did NOT make you "her" customer, and since she was nowhere in sight to write up the sale, it was your right to ask another salesperson to do so.

DEAR ABBY: Last year, around this time, my wife and I would be awakened every morning by a mockingbird who sat on the wire behind our house singing its heart out. My wife just loved to hear that bird. She even recorded his singing and played it back often.

Now my dear wife is dead, and that bird is back, and every morning when I awake to the sound of that mockingbird, it brings back memories that just break my heart.

I love all of God's creatures just as my lovely wife did, but I must either destroy that bird or I will surely go out of my mind.

I tried to shoot it away, but it comes back every morning. Is there another way to get rid of it?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Please don't destroy that bird. Your wife would have wanted it to live a full life. Perhaps some kind of scarecrow will do the trick. If there's another way, I'm sure my bird lovers will write in and let me know.

DEAR ABBY: In your column, which I read each day with amusement, you refer quite often to husbands who are philanderers.

Did it ever occur to you that these fellows are that way because they have a Frigidaire in the kitchen and a "Frigid Dear" in the bedroom?

"COULD BE"

DEAR "COULD": There's no such thing as a "Frigid Dear"—only clumsy men.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Atlanta, Ga. Those attending from here were Mrs. Hardee, Miss Seago and Mrs. Venters. A North Carolina member, Lorna Collins, of Winston-Salem was installed as district first vice president. It was announced that the International Conference will be held in Boston June 19-22.

Mrs. Hardee announced the program for May will be presented by James T. Cheatham, local attorney, who will speak on "Modern Day Bankruptcy."

Care In Choice Of Sitter Urged

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's vitally important to select baby sitters carefully. They are, in effect, parents-in-absentia, and can wield a tremendous influence upon the child," warns an authority on child development.

Irene Clepper of St. Paul, Minn., offered parents advice on hiring a sitter during a Workshop for Baby Sitters she conducted here recently, sponsored by Kenner Products, a toy manufacturer.

Mrs. Clepper, past director of public health and education of the Minnesota State Medical Association, has conducted seminars on child development and play for teachers in the Minneapolis public school system.

"If you pay attention to certain fundamentals, you can be sure that the baby-sitting experience will be an untroubled and even rewarding one for your child — and for yourself," says Mrs. Clepper, who is currently working on her doctorate at the University of Minnesota, where she is involved in a research project on child development.

What is a good sitter?

"She — or he — is alert, conscientious, knows some first aid, and enjoys playing with children," Mrs. Clepper says. The latter is very important, she adds, because "play is the way a child learns, and parents just don't play enough with their children today."

How does one find a good sitter?

"Ask neighbors who have used one before," she suggests. "Using a neighbor's older child is good, too, because then the sitter will be familiar." If this is impossible, call a reputable agency. "But always, always ask for references — and check them," she cautions.

Agree in advance on rates, says Mrs. Clepper. Rates will depend on the number of children, ages, local rates, sitter experience, carfare costs and duties required.

"Whatever you do, remember, that the sitter's prime responsibility is to watch the children," she admonishes. "Don't load them down with so many duties that they are distracted for long periods. That's dangerous."

On the night of the sitting, request that the sitter arrive early so that the child — and family pets — can get used to the new visitor.

Have ready a list of important information for the sitter. List the following telephone numbers: family doctor, where you will be, a neighbor, police and fire departments.

Furnish the sitter with personal information about each child, Mrs. Clepper urges, including nicknames; allergies or other physical problems such as fainting spells; snack times, and what is allowed; favorite stories, television programs, toys and activities. The sitter should also know sleeping habits and bedtime.

When the sitter arrives, go over the list and give him or her a tour of the house. While on the tour, check for obvious safety hazards — sharp or pointed objects, open medicine cabinets, loose rugs, locations of cleaning fluids and household cleaners that are potential poisons, matches.

Show the sitter how to regulate the heat or air conditioning, how windows and doors work, where telephones and light switches are located. If necessary, show how the kitchen stove works.

Then, stay for a few extra minutes to see that the sitter and "sittee" are getting along.

A 'Break' For Area Travelers

Travellers from this area will get a break on traffic at New Bern this summer with the opening of the new U. S. 70 bridge and bypass.

Even though most traffic from the Pitt County area doesn't follow the new bypass at New Bern, its opening will take considerable traffic off the intersection of U. S. 70 and U. S. 17. It is there and on the old U. S. 70 bridge that tremendous pile-ups of cars have occurred on busy Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer.

It was about to be that way again this summer. Even though the bridge and bypass were almost completed, they weren't scheduled to open until the fall, since that is what the project deadline called for.

The New Bern Sun-Journal called for more prompt action. The Civilian Employees Association at Cherry Point wrote letters to Gov. Jim Hunt complaining about the situation.

Gov. Hunt called on the Department of Transportation to see what could be done to open the bypass. Arrangements were made to get it opened, and tentative plans now call for turning traffic on the bypass by mid-June.

It could have been another miserable summer for motorists travelling through New Bern. Fortunately, though the cries for help were heard and the U. S. 70 bypass will soon be in use.

Offers Release From Unnatural State

A "right-to-die" bill has been approved by Legislative committees and appears headed toward approval.

It should be approved. Patients, families and physicians should be free to make decisions on removal of life support systems in hopeless cases without fear of legal action.

It is a horror of modern medicine that the body can sometimes be kept living even after the brain is clinically dead. This is an unnatural state and death should be allowed to come naturally. For the family or physicians the possibility of legal action often hangs over cases such as this.

Hopefully the passage of the "right-to-die" bill in North Carolina will eliminate that threat.

Fuel Conservation Effort

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is really no other way for the public to play much of a part in overcoming the nation's energy problems than through conservation.

The part which state government can play is also very limited. Nonetheless, Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. believes both individuals and state government must try — despite the frustrations.

"We're into this for the rest of our lives, and the lives of generations to come... If we don't act now, they will curse our names," says the governor.

Last week, as President Jimmy Carter put forward his energy plan for consideration in the U. S. Congress, Hunt placed one of his own before the North Carolina General Assembly.

Critics immediately labeled the steps proposed by Hunt as too little and not forceful enough to mean a great deal.

Not Flashy
To that, the governor responds that his scheme "is not flashy, nor does it make any revolutionary change in our living habits."

But it does set up the symbols of trying—or not trying—and create an atmosphere in which social pressures can be brought to bear to enhance voluntary conservation efforts by the people.

"It would be a gross error for all of us not to take some steps, then 10 or 15 years from now have people asking why they didn't do something when they had the chance," Hunt feels.

Critics also jumped on President Carter's proposal for a graduated federal gasoline tax hike of a nickel per gallon per year pegged to public restraint in consumption. The Carter approach would also place a heavy penalty on gas-guzzling automobiles while good-mileage cars would come cheaper.

Hunt produced a similar plan: escalation in the state's present $15 per year auto registration fee. Cars getting good mileage would remain at $15. Cars getting below 18 miles per gallon would pay higher rates until a $50 maximum is reached.

A Symbol
That isn't much, Hunt acknowledges, but "it is a symbol... if they want it, they have to pay for it." Close scrutiny of the Hunt measure who backed Hunt's proposal overall declined to go along with the auto registration hike, and it would be introduced as a separate measure from the energy package.

Thast set of proposals calls for tax breaks to insulate homes; tax breaks to encourage solar equipment; building code enforcement on insulation; elimination of master meters in new apartment complexes; and authority for the governor to gather information on fuel supplies in the state. That least measure is an indication of the weak position state officials are in regarding management of energy problems.

Top energy officials say this summer presents no threat of gasoline shortages for travelers, except possibly of no-lead gas in isolated areas and particularly at discount stations as opposed to the larger brand operations.

Still, Gov. Hunt feels that both his proposals and those put forward by the President represent a beginning effort to focus attention on the energy situation and demonstrate a willingness to come to grips.

If nothing else, says Hunt, we can develop a "social consciousness" in the state in which driving a gas guzzler, for example, will lead to comments and reactions from fellow citizens which will tend to discourage such waste.

DRINK ONLY WITH THINE EYES!

So Just Have A Cookie

WASHINGTON — Washington is going to need a wailing wall after President Carter's energy proposals. I have never seen so much crying and anguish in a city since the President addressed Congress.

I was walking by the White House when I saw a man in a pin-stripe suit sitting on a curb sobbing uncontrollably.

Usually I don't like to get involved, but in this case I sat down next to him and gave him my handkerchief.

"What's the matter, fellow? Are you lost?"

"No," he said. "I'm the President of a Detroit automobile company and I've come to Washington to tell them we can't do it."

"Can't do what?"

"We can't make small cars that run efficiently and are comfortable and get good gas mileage."

"Why can't you?" I asked him.

"We don't know how!" he cried. "And even if we did no one would buy them."

I put my arm around him. "Surely you can. Detroit can do anything if it sets its mind to it. After all, you are the motherland of automobiles. Why don't you say to your designers and engineers, 'We're going to make the best small car that money can buy. And with our vast advertising resources we're going to persuade the American public it's to their advantage to buy one.' Rex Harrison could do it all by himself."

"But it would mean retooling our factories, moving assembly lines, changing consumer attitudes. Our people are not up to it."

"You just say that. But why don't you think of it as a new challenge, a test of American industrial ingenuity. Remember the story of the little train that couldn't? Well, you know what happened to him."

"But that was a train. We make cars."

"It's the same thing. You could pretend your car was a train."

ART BUCHWALD

He sniffed. "I'll think about it," he said.

"Here," I said, "have a cookie."

I got up and walked a few more blocks. Then I saw a man sitting on a bench. He was wearing a hair shirt and seemed to be in agony.

"Why are you wearing a hair shirt?" I asked him.

"I'm in the oil business," he said. "Everyone 'in the oil business' is wearing a hair shirt since Carter announced he wanted to tax gasoline and give the money back to people."

"Doesn't the shirt hurt?"

"Of course it hurts," he said, "but what would you do if the President wanted to raise the price of your product but refused to give you enough profit to search for new oil? How are we going to eat and support our families?"

"I understand the oil business is very good."

"That's because you read the newspapers and watch television. If you knew the real story, you'd know we can barely exist on the few trickles of oil we get out of the ground and an occasional foot of gas we can sell on the side."

"Here," I said, "have a cookie."

Other Editors Say New Commander

(Greensboro Daily News)

According to a trooper who has served under him, the new commander of the N.C. Highway Patrol, Captain John T. Jenkins, is "real military... he's sharp, his uniform is sharp, his haircut is sharp." His reputation as a strict disciplinarian, coupled with his close relationship to troopers in the field, are what Governor Hunt is banking on to rescue a patrol that has had its problems.

Commander Jenkins, an Eastern North Carolina native, was drawn from the ranks of the Highway Patrol, as all but two of his predecessors have been. Most recently, the 30-year veteran has been commander of Troop A, headquartered in Greenville. When Jim Hunt, then Governor-elect, commissioned a study last fall to determine patrol problems, Captain Jenkins's troop was found to have the highest morale of any in the state. That may have been a key factor in the Governor's choice.

Spreading the wealth from Troop A to the rest of the state force, however, will be another matter. Commander Jenkins faces a recent legacy of trooper disgruntlement and patrol disrepute. The problems include alleged ticket-fixing, politicking in the promotion process, inadequate pay and fringe benefits, revolving-door leadership above the patrol commander, and the controversy over the fatal shootout on Interstate 85 last November.

Commander Jenkins's new official relationship to the Governor may help him in his endeavors. As part of the new Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, the Highway Patrol — it is hoped — will be more insulated from the politics that plagued it during the Holshouser administration, when the commander answered to four secretaries of transportation in four years. Now, as part of a broad law enforcement agency headed up by former Superior Court Judge J. Phil Carlton, the Highway Patrol can hope for both proximity to the Governor's office and a bureaucratic structure more attuned to its role.

So the patrol new has working for it not only a new chief — who looks well-suited to restore the force's once-vaunted national reputation — but a new position in state government. Here's hoping the combination works.

Split On Media Coverage

By George Gallup
PRINCETON, N.J. — Do the news media place too much emphasis on the coverage of and the holding of hostages?

This question, one that has troubled the media since technological advancements have made instant and sustained coverage possible, was raised most recently when Hanafi Muslims took over three buildings in Washington, D.C., holding more than 100 hostages.

Those who believe that complete or detailed coverage is justified say that such a policy insures the public's "right to know" about events that affect many people's lives. Critics counter that such coverage is often overdone and encourages potential terrorists.

For its part, the public is sharply divided over the question of emphasis, but convinced that such attention encourages potential wrongdoers to commit similar acts.

In a recently completed Gallup Poll, half the public, 50 per cent, expressed the view that such media coverage is necessary, while nearly as many, 47 per cent, think coverage of these incidents is overemphasized.

On the issue of encouraging incipient terrorists, however, 64 per cent of the public hold the view that detailed coverage does, in fact, encourage similar acts, with fewer than half that many, 27 per cent, of the opposite point of view.

DIFFERING VIEWS
Analysis of the public's attitudes concerning the emphasis placed on terrorism yields some sharp differences of opinion among various population groups.

For example, men lean to the view that present coverage is overdone while women tend to believe it is necessary. While whites are nearly evenly divided, non-whites are firmly of the belief the media have an obligation to cover in full these situations.

Analysis by regions indicates that, ironically, it is in the South where the view prevails that this extensive coverage is necessary. In the early days of the civil rights struggle, many Southerners believed it was media coverage of demonstrations and the plight of blacks that exacerbated racial tensions.

Belief that news media coverage of these events encourages other to commit similar acts is the majority point of view in every major group except non-whites, among whom views are more closely divided.

Even among those who do hold the point of view that this coverage incites others to act, as many as one-third, 34 per cent, feel the coverage is necessary to keep the people informed.

Here is the first question asked:

"Some people say the news media place too much emphasis on the reporting of terrorism such as kidnappings, the holding of hostages, and the like. Others say that such reporting is necessary to keep people fully informed. Which point of view comes closest to your own opinion on this issue?"

And here are the national results as well as the results by important groups:

TOO MUCH MEDIA COVERAGE OF TERRORISM?

	Terrorism is overemphasized	Public should be made aware	No opinion
NATIONAL	50%	47%	3%
Men	46	51	3

Strength For Today

LESSON OF THE STORM
William Turner, the famous artist whose skill was particularly apparent in depicting mighty scenes of nature, once painted a picture of a storm at sea. He decided he could not paint the storm without experiencing it, so he hired a fisherman to bind him securely to the mast of his fishing craft and then put out into the teeth of a gale. It was a terrible experience, but Turner caught a vivid idea of the nature of a storm. He expressed it later by saying that the storm

"blew itself into him."

The storms of life can mean something to us and can become significant experiences only if they blow themselves into us. If all we think of is the hurt and terror of the storm, we can never learn much from it.

Out of Turner's experience came a great picture. Out of the experience of the rest of us should come a new courage, a deeper insight, a more complete trust in the God in whose hands all things rest.

'Conventional Wisdom' Faulty

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Association of Realtors has just come up with a finding that seems to destroy one of the oldest myths in the business of buying and selling homes.

Based on the conventional wisdom, there is a hierarchy of home buyers, led by the existing homeowner who moves up to a new, more expensive home, leaving the resale home to a buyer who previously had rented.

Many a salesman measured his prospects in that manner. Because they believed the myth, commercial property managers often overlooked sales opportunities among renters.

Advertising efforts often were misdirected.

Examining U.S. Census Bureau figures on its computers, the Realtors found the conventional wisdom was neither the convention nor wisdom. Previous renters, it found, were just as likely to buy new homes as were previous owners.

While this might not represent a stunning discovery to you, the Realtors felt otherwise. Ken Kerin, director of the economics and research department, calls it "perhaps the most startling and singularly important finding in our computer analysis."

Because of the absence of census data before 1973, the Realtors never before had been able to make such a detailed study of the homebuyer. Now that the study is completed, the timing couldn't be better.

Why? Because the market for housing is booming, and those salesmen who know

Mailing Lists Rules?

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — You aren't just Occupant or Resident to those bulk mailers who have you on their lists. You're an "inquisitive kid" or "a black activist" or some other type.

A government commission says you should be told before someone peddles a list with your name and "label" on it.

The Privacy Protection Study Commission is recommending that the direct mail industry set voluntary guidelines to prevent mailing lists from being sold without permission of the persons on the list.

If that doesn't work, federal and state laws may be needed later to deal with sales of mailing lists, the commission's chairman, David F. Linowes, said Thursday.

But he noted, "There are First Amendment problems in limiting communication with others."

It is common practice for organizations to sell their lists of customers, members or donors to other groups, Linowes said.

"People keep wondering, 'How did I get on that mailing list?' Well, they ought to be told," he said in a speech to a conference of the Direct Mail Marketing Association.

There is an inch-and-a-half thick catalog available to mailers giving the names of the various lists available, Linowes said. "Inquisitive kids" and "black activists" are among the titles of the lists, which give mass mailers some assurance that they are mailing their come-ons to someone who is known to be interested in a specific pitch.

"If your name is on such a list, you can get tagged forever with that sort of identification. And you probably won't even know about it," Linowes said.

Some direct mailers are beginning to send forms to those on their mailing lists allowing President Roosevelt, travelling by special train, arrived in Biloxi, Miss., shortly after 9 a.m. today.

The President left his train and was taken to Gulfport. There he was to resume his train ride to New Orleans and go later in the day on his fishing trip to the Gulf of Mexico.

A large crowd welcomed him on the Mississippi coast.

Meanwhile, White House sources said Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt left by airplane late last night for Seattle, Wash., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr and Mrs. John Boettiger.

The Greenville Coastal Plain League team is having a hard time getting to play exhibition games.

Yesterday the Greenies were scheduled to play the Teachers and today a game was set with the bearded House of David team. Both games were called off on account of rain.

Manager Bo Farley still hopes to turn his players against some competition before May 6, when the season opens for the Greenies in a game in Ayden.

Safety Milestone By Daniel Construction Co. Recognized

SAFETY PLAQUE . . . Harry Sloan (R), local site manager for Daniel Construction Co., receives a plaque recognizing the company's safety milestone from Commissioner of Labor John Brooks. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Daniel Construction Co. celebrated a significant achievement in employee safety on Thursday evening during a dinner gathering at the Candlewick Inn.

C. B. Spivey, president of Daniel Construction Co. of Greenville, S. C., was on hand as Harry Sloan, local site manager, accepted a plaque from N. C. Commissioner of Labor John Brooks in recognition of the company's reaching the two million safe manhours milestone.

Daniel, one of the largest construction companies in the world, reached the two million hour mark on March 37 at the Procter and Gamble site in Greenville, according to Sloan.

He pointed out that Daniel, which handled the major construction of the Procter and Gamble facility, has been in Greenville for over three and a half years at the plant site. Daniel operates on-site offices at Procter and Gamble.

The site manager reported that Daniel had an employee work force of up to 1,100 during the major construction phase at P and G and now maintains a staff of approximately 100 at the site to handle continuing construction needs.

He explained that the company considers itself a geographical employer and hires its construction staff for a particular project within a 50-mile radius. The safety milestone was reached with basically local manpower, Sloan noted.

The safety achievement is based on manhours worked without a loss-time accident, he added. In putting the two million hours in perspective, Sloan mentioned last night that in order for an individual to work that many hours, he would have had to start in the year 1015 and work 40-hour weeks until now to approach the mark.

The Greenville office operates as part of Daniel's Industrial Division. The company has a divisional office in Greensboro.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is due today for the Northeast and Atlantic coast. Warm weather is expected from the Southwest into the northern Plains. Mild temperatures are forecast elsewhere. Showers are due in the Northwest and from the Gulf to the lower Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A cold front that passed across North Carolina became stationary across South Carolina today, bringing an end to rain across northern sections of the state this morning and a tapering off in the south during the afternoon.

The threat of rain, however, will linger in the south tonight as skies become partly cloudy over the north.

A cold front ushered much cooler air into the state, dropping today's high readings to the 60s in most sections. Lows tonight will range in the 40s and low 50s.

Low readings this morning under cloudy, drizzly skies ranged generally in the 50s, with some readings in the 40s.

Cooler weather is in prospect for the state for the next several days but a warming trend should be getting under way the first of next week.

"I'm not a congressman, but maybe I can help you."
"I'm in the coal business. Carter wants the country to switch to coal."

"That should make you very happy."

"Happy?" he wailed. "He wants us to mine the coal without wrecking the environment. He wants us to fill in the holes we dig in the landscape and plant trees and flowers. He wants us to clean the coal before it's burned. Oh, woe is me to be cursed as the owner of a coal mine."

Next to him was another man walling just as loud.

"What's his problem?" I asked the owner of the coal mine.

"He has to haul my coal on his railroad and he says the government won't let him raise his rates."

I opened my paper bag and gave them each a cookie.

Male Priesthood Challenge Is Growing

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A growing aggregation of Roman Catholic groups are challenging the Vatican's insistence that only males are eligible for the priesthood and that women must be kept out of it.

In the midst of the rising dissent, the issue once more is before the Church's U.S. bishops. They're expected to echo the Vatican's position at their meeting in Chicago, May 3-5, rejecting a call from a national Catholic assembly that the bishops support a change allowing ordination of women.

The appeal was among many made by the Church's historic "call to action" conference in Detroit last fall, the first Church-wide gathering of official diocesan delegations. It handed the bishops a raft of proposals. But the widest discussion was focused on the women's issue, a concern heightened by the Vatican's declaration Jan. 27 that women can't be priests because Jesus was a man and priests must have that "natural resemblance."

In the wake of that declaration, reaffirming the Church's age-old rule against women priests, there have been spreading repercussions of disapproval — in words and actions. Theologians have dissented. Nuns and other women's groups have protested and demonstrated. Petitions have been relayed to the Pope. Representatives of the country's priests have urged admission of women to their ranks.

In an "open letter" to the Pope's U.S. representative, all but two of the 25-member faculty of the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley, Calif., called the Vatican declaration a "serious mistake," misrepresenting Scripture and Church tradition.

The "sacramental sign necessary" to represent Christ "is to be located within the human person, rather than within masculine or feminine sexuality," the theology professors said.

They added that "exclusion of women from priestly ordination in our day does not reinforce 'the image of Christ' for a growing number of people, but rather symbolizes sexual discrimination within the Church."

The National Federation of Priests' Councils, representing most of the country's priests, also registered disagreement with the Vatican declaration.

At their annual meeting in Louisville, Ky., in March, they urged U.S. bishops and Pope Paul VI to remove the Church laws prohibiting the ordaining of women.

Eight national sisters' organizations, involving a big proportion of the country's 131,000 nuns, issued a joint statement calling for further consideration of the matter.

The statement termed the Vatican declaration disappointing, but added, "We are not without hope."

Church Marking 7th Anniversary

The seventh anniversary of Nazarene Temple Free Will Baptist Church will be observed next week.

The following services have been scheduled beginning Monday at 7:30 p.m. and continuing through Friday:

Monday, Rev. Namol Jones, Jones Chapel F.W.B. Church Choir, ushers and congregation of Aurora; Tuesday, Elder Dink Smith Jr. and Chapman Chapel F.W.B. Church choir, ushers and congregation; Wednesday, Vice Bishop R. E. Worrell and Holly Hill F.W.B. Church Male Chorus, ushers and congregation of Belvoir;

Bishop Mark Ebron and Whichard Chapel Holiness Church choir, ushers and congregation of Stokes will be present Thursday; Friday, Bishop J. O. Randolph and St. John F.W.B. Church, choir, ushers and congregation of Blounts Creek.

Earlier, the "Women's Ordination Conference," carrying on its drive launched in 1975 for admission of women to the priesthood, sponsored prayer vigils and other demonstrations in that cause at cathedrals in several major cities.

"If we cannot represent Christ in the priesthood, I wonder if we can represent Christ at all," said Sister Rosaria Salerno of Boston.

The conference, which set up offices in Washington, D.C., began a Church-wide survey in April to collect details on Catholic women seeking ordination. An estimated 500 Catholic women now are enrolled in seminaries.

Bishops generally have supported the Vatican declaration, but say it does not foreclose discussion. As for the general Catholic attitudes, surveys indicate only 30 per cent of the laity favors admitting women to the priesthood.

Sponsor Sunday Evening Service

The Rev. J. Dixon, the Traveling Choir, and reserved ushers will render services at Rock Spring F.W.B. Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The Deacons' Board is sponsoring the service. The public is invited.

Pledge Continue Study Of Unity Will Speak On Sunday

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI and the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Donald Coggan, embraced in a "kiss of peace" today and issued a joint declaration that study should continue so that the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches "may be led along the path towards unity."

The declaration, on the next-to-last day of Dr. Coggan's ecumenical visit to Rome, conceded serious obstacles to unity between the world's 600 million Catholics and 60 million Anglicans, but it added:

"Christian hope manifests itself in prayer and action — in prudence but also in courage. We pledge ourselves and exhort the faithful of the Roman Catholic Church and of the Anglican communion to live and work courageously in reconciliation and unity in our common Lord."

The declaration was issued after the 67-year-old archbishop and the 79-year-old Pope prayed together and embraced at a Christian unity service in the Vatican's Sistine Chapel.

The statement said that dialogue between the churches thus far has cleared away many misconceptions but that important differences persist, particularly regarding remarriage after divorce.

The statement also appeared to touch on what the Vatican sees as a new obstacle to unity — the ordination of women as priests in the Episcopal Church in the United States, which is part of the Anglican communion. This seemed to be what the declaration meant by "serious obstacles remain both of the past and of recent origin."

In brief remarks during the prayer service Dr. Coggan spoke of the difficulty the church sometimes encounters and said that in countries such as Uganda church members "work in considerable strain. Our brethren suffer greatly."

The Anglican archbishop of Uganda was killed earlier this year after having been arrested by President Idi Amin's regime. The circumstances of his death are still unclear.

Honoring A '76 Promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is keeping his campaign promise to meet with 68 pupils from an elementary school in Concord, N.C.

Carter issued the invitation in March 1976, when many people were only beginning to take seriously his promise to win the Democratic nomination and the presidential election.

In that primary season, Carter spoke to many grade school audiences.

Often he would ask the children to push his candidacy with their parents, relatives and neighbors.

As a further inducement, he often invited whole schools to visit him in the White House after he was inaugurated.

The Bevery Hills elementary school in Concord, N.C., accepted the invitation. A local fund drive raised some $9,000 to pay for the trip, which should culminate in the meeting at the White House today.

The students also were scheduled to meet with Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., speaker of the House of Representatives.

Distribution Of Books Scheduled

A second distribution of books by the Pitt County RIF Project will be held June 5-10 at the Carver Library.

Over 750 paperback books were distributed to 379 participants in the project in November.

The project is sponsored by the Greenville chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

CHOIR CONCERT

Sister Mary Streeter and the Undenominated Choir of Farmville will render concert at Antioch Holiness Church in Bell Arthur Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Inventor's Rescue Machine Is Patented

A MANEUVERABLE RESCUE MACHINE, invented by a former Greenville resident, Curfield Peterson, has been patented by the U.S. Patent Office and is now being offered to manufacturers.

United States Patent Number 3,997,135, dated December 14, 1976, has been issued to a former Greenville resident, Curfield Peterson.

For Peterson, this is the realization of a dream after long, hard years of work and patience.

Officially, Peterson's invention is labeled "Maneuverable Auxiliary Vehicle." Unofficially, Peterson speaks of his invention as a machine for rescuing people from high rise buildings and other inaccessible places.

Basically, Peterson's rescue machine is an enclosed, compact vehicle that is lightweight enough to be lowered and raised by cables and pulleys suspended from a helicopter.

It carries its own lighting system, both for operations in and around the machine and for providing location signals to rescue persons on the ground and in the helicopter.

The rescue vehicle can be used with equally good effect in high rise buildings and other inaccessible areas such as steep ravines, mountain ledges, flood waters and similar areas that a helicopter can come in close proximity to.

"I have now released my invention to a brokers firm in Ohio," Peterson notes in a recent letter. "Now it will be presented to manufacturers."

At this stage, chances are good that an interested manufacturer will invest in the invention and in the not too distant future, the "maneuverable auxiliary vehicle" will be coming on the market.

One recent interview, Peterson indicates, is very heartening to his long held dream to see his idea completed and marketed.

"The Chief of the District of Columbia Fire Department, Chief Burton Johnson, gave me a two hour interview in the District building on April 14," Peterson noted. "He said he felt that it was a very, very valuable idea."

A native of New Holland in Hyde County, Peterson lived in Greenville as a young man in the 1940s before moving to Washington, D. C. to make his home there in 1950.

He still visits Greenville periodically, and had plans to be "at my Greenville home at 505 West 14th Street this weekend."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

WHAT GOOD IS A CAR IF YOU CAN'T DRIVE IT?

It's absolutely no good. Nothing could be more frustrating than to have a car for which you have paid a good price and not be able to use it. Has a shortage of parts ever tied up your car because your dealer doesn't have, and couldn't get, the parts for days or even weeks? You can take this statement to the bank — Toyota Dealers have the best parts fill and replacement system in the U.S.A. No other dealers, no other factory, no other automobile manufacturer that we know of has a better parts system and fill for his customers than a Toyota Dealer.

WE WORK 24 HOURS A DAY.

"We" is our computer. It never sleeps. Southeast Toyota and its dealers were the first to use an integrated computerized parts system and program. A telewriter in every dealership is connected directly to one of the largest parts warehouses in the world. There are $8 million worth of parts in the giant warehouse in Jacksonville and another $10 million worth of parts at the dealers in the southeast. Is our parts system perfect? No, nothing is, but it's the best in the industry.

IS OUR TOYOTA CAR 100% PERFECT?

No one or thing is perfect, but a Toyota is the next best thing to a perfect car your money can buy. So if you have a problem, you can get parts quicker and better service at your Toyota Dealer. And if by some chance you need a slifty pin or a gizmo bolt that your dealer doesn't have, you can get it in a hurry. Yes, we are interested in your automobile business. We think we merit and deserve it because we have a better product at a better price with the best parts availability and service in the southeast. We'd really rather have you driving a Toyota. We know you'll be a lot happier and a lot better off with the money you save in its initial low price and the money you save at the gas pump when you fill up its 13 gallon gas tank — once in awhile.

Sincerely,

Jim Moran

McGrath Is Appointed A Danforth Associate

Virginia Gravelly McGrath, assistant professor in the East Carolina University Department of Mathematics, is among 450 faculty members of U. S. colleges and universities receiving appointments as Danforth Associates.

Each Associate, selected on the basis of dedication to teaching and interest in scholarship and improvement in student-faculty relationships, is appointed for a six-year term, beginning June 1.

The Danforth's program is unique in its inclusion of Associates' spouses in full participation in program activities. Prof. McGrath's husband, Edgar F. McGrath, is a real estate broker and builder in Washington, N.C.

The McGraths will attend regional conferences of Danforth Associates, designed to strengthen their efforts to humanize the educational process.

A member of the ECU faculty since 1963, Prof. McGrath has been responsible for major innovations in ECU's mathematics curriculum. She has also been active in the campus Faculty Senate and on several faculty committees.

She is a graduate of UNC-Greensboro and received the MA degree from ECU.

The McGraths, parents of three children and grandparents of two, are active in civic and community affairs. Prof. McGrath is a member of the Community Involvement Council of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, and her husband is president of the Beaufort County Cancer Society.

VIRGINIA McGRATH

No Yearbook

Graduating seniors at ECU will do without one memento of their college years this year.

For the first time in more than 50 years, ECU's yearbook, The Buccaneer, will not be published.

Editor Susan Rogerson said funding problems and the recent theft of several thousand dollars' worth of photographic equipment have forced cancellation of the 1976-77 yearbook. A special section of the 1977-78 edition will cover this academic year's activities.

The book has been beset with problems the entire year. The original editor and staff resigned in November to protest staff and budget cuts made by the Student Government Association.

Plans by the new staff to circulate the book on a subscription basis were met with lack of enthusiasm by the student body. Finally the theft of the photographic equipment from the school's photo laboratory made it impossible for deadlines to be met.

Miss Rogerson, a freshmen from Hertford, said "a rather large appropriation" will be needed to set the annual back on its feet for the next year.

RAISING WAGES

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The J.P. Stevens Co. has announced it is raising the wages of its approximately 35,000 production employees in 80 plants across six states beginning June 16.

Nuclear Plant Chances 'Good'

MOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Despite opposition to a proposed Duke Power Co. nuclear plant in Davie County, company officials said Thursday they felt good about chances for the project's approval after a licensing hearing.

Some two dozen persons Thursday spoke in opposition to the plant during an Atomic Safety and Licensing Board hearing.

Attorneys William Pfefferkorn of Winston-Salem and David Springer of Davie County challenged Duke on a number of points, including the proposed use of water from the Yadkin River and Duke claims that the additional productive capacity of the plants is really needed.

The company appeared to gain ground later, as state and federal officials supported key company arguments.

William Raney of the state attorney general's office told the hearing panel that the state doesn't think Duke needs to settle the water rights question before it obtains a federal license.

And G. Thomas Sav, a cost economist with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Washington, supported Duke's projections of electrical demand.

Springer and Pfefferkorn also criticized Duke's plan to alternate construction work between the Perkins Station in Davie County and the Cherokee Station near Gaffney, S.C.

Parachuted Into Rebel Territory

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — About 100 Zairean soldiers were parachuted into rebel territory in Shaba province and captured nine soldiers, the government news agency reports.

Government military sources claimed the rebel forces were continuing to retreat without opposing the advance of the Zairean troops who launched an offensive westward from the mining center of Kolwezi on April 16.

AZA, the government news agency, said the paratroopers jumped from two C130 transports at dawn Thursday and took captives in the first few hours of their operation. The government drive in southern Zaire has reportedly encountered almost no resistance as it moved along the dirt road and railroad that runs west to the Angolan border. Mines in the roads are reported delaying the advance.

There has been no report whether the rebels are fleeing back into Angola, from which they launched an invasion March 8, or if they have moved into the bush to carry on an extended guerrilla war.

Several towns on the border with Angola remain in rebel hands and there has been no report for a week about a government task force moving against the town of Kapanga, in northern Shaba.

About 2,000 exiled Lunda tribesmen crossed from bases in Angola and seized about one-third of mineral-rich Shaba province. They were led by former separatists who fought an unsuccessful war in the 1960s to make Shaba, then called Katanga, independent.

Lily's Humor Is Subject Of Suit
NEW YORK (AP) — Comedienne Lily Tomlin must appear in court next Wednesday to explain why she is listing the name of former opera star Zinka Milanov as understudy for her hit one-woman Broadway show.

Miss Milanov, who starred for many years at the Metropolitan Opera, filed a $2.2 million damage suit Thursday in state Supreme Court here, saying the unauthorized use of her name caused her "shock, humiliation and embarrassment."

George Boyd, stage manager for Miss Tomlin, said Miss Milanov's name was included in the playbill along with the names of other well-known persons or persons admired by Miss Tomlin.

"We have a one-woman show, so it's ludicrous that there could be a standby or an understudy," said Miss Tomlin's stage manager, George Boyd. "The fact that the playbill has certain standard things is in itself ludicrous and we tried to make it satirical and humorous."

Hospital Move...

Highway 43. Persons needing medical care that is not of an emergency nature should visit the outpatient department around the corner from the emergency door.

Obstetrical patients should go before 7 a. m. to the old hospital; after 7 a. m. to the new one. They and any other prior-planned admissions should go to the front lobby of the hospital, where the Admissions Office is located.

Visiting hours tonight in the old hospital are being cut back from 7 to 8 o'clock only, instead of from 7 to 9. Saturday only critical care patients will be allowed to have visitors, and then only family. Sunday visiting for all patients whom doctors deem able to have visitors may do so, but only family. Beginning Monday visiting according to previous held rules and hours will begin.

Among those helping out with the moving of patients and final equipment and supplies tomorrow will be the stand-by ambulance drivers and attendants, members of county rescue squads, and Greenville City police officers and members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol, Quick said.

Hospital employees, many of them, will be going to work at 5 a.m. and others helping out with the move are asked to be present at 6:45.

over, but assist and find resources needed to get the job done. We must not believe that we know everything, but work with the local governments. Our first responsibility will be to look at how we look to local governments. We also want to clear the channels and means of communications among the governments. We must recognize that government frightens many people.

Lee listed regional waste treatment plants, defeat of the repeal of the Coastal Area Management Act and strengthening the field service concept as top priorities in restructuring the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

"We presently have a crisis in that an excess of 100 municipalities in the state cannot grow because of a moratorium caused by inadequate waste treatment plants. We are asking the General Assembly to consider a referendum asking for $200,000 for Clean Water Bonds in this state. We can't expect every little town and county to have its own water and sewer plants. We must go regional," Lee said.

"The repeal of the Coastal Area Management Act would be one of the worst things that could happen to the East. It gives us a tool to plan the future and puts the control in the local government in the areas of beach erosion, high water tables, and planning wetlands. We are working toward a land policy program for the entire state and this would put the eastern part of the state out in front."

"We must strengthen the field office concept and work more closely with local governments. This is a new day, a new challenge and time to create bold leadership," Lee concluded.

Approximately 250 local governmental officials and special guests attended the annual meeting. Ayden Mayor, Ross Persinger, chairman of the Mid-East Commission presided at the meeting.

Certificates of appreciation for service to the Commission were presented to the following: Donald E. Russell of Ayden; Glen Cannon of Greenville; Edward Warren of Greenville; L.T. Livermon, Jr. of Windsor; Rosemary Royce of Murfreesboro; Maude Ramsay of Windsor; David Spivey of Washington; Dale Jones of Raleigh; Jim Campagna of Atlanta; Tom Lowe of Greensboro; and Christine Farrior of Williamston.

Bucs, Citadel Clash For Southern Crown

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"We've got to win one. That's all there is to it," Monte Little said.

Little is the coach of the East Carolina University baseball team, and he was referring to the season-closing doubleheader in Charleston, S.C., Saturday night against The Citadel.

The Pirates currently sit atop the Southern Conference with a 13-1 record. But hot on their heels are Western Carolina's Cata-mounts, finished with the season with a 14-2 mark. The Citadel also can figure in the race, coming into the game with a 10-2 record.

East Carolina needs to win one of the games to assure itself of a tie for first place. That win would eliminate The Citadel. A sweep of the two games would give the Pirates the title outright. Should a tie develop between the Pirates and Western Carolina, a playoff of some kind would become necessary. That would likely take place next weekend at some neutral site in the mid-section of the state.

The Citadel's only chances now would require the Bulldogs to sweep the Pirates. That would send them into a playoff with Western.

"I don't feel like The Citadel can take two from us," Little said. "The most important thing for us to do is to win the first game. That's the pivotal one for us. It will assure us of a tie, and it will take a lot of the pressure off us. Then, too, we'll have the chance to win it outright then."

Little plans to go with senior ace Pete Conaty in the first game. More than likely, Conaty will be going up against Citadel ace Richard Weiters, who was the Southern Conference Player of the Year in baseball last season. Weiters is currently 7-2 on the year and holds a 1.60 earned run average.

Asked if the Pirates were nervous about the contest, Little said he felt that the team might be a little looser than could be expected. "We know where we stand now. After 14 games, we now know just what can happen. We know what we have to do."

He added that both teams will probably be a little tighter than usual, however. "Especially during the first couple of innings," he added. "We need to grab an early lead. If we can do this, we feel we have the people to control the tempo of the game. We also need to get the right people on base at the right time. That's the key to our success."

The Pirates will be going into the game following a five-day layoff, and because of this, Little is unsure how the pitching is going to be. "I'll say this: we're not going to go with anyone long if they aren't sharp. We've got all four starters ready to go, and we'll use them all if we have to."

The important thing for the Pirates is to win at least one. That would assure them of no worse than a tie for first.

"I don't know what type of format a playoff might take. I would assume that it would either be a one game or a threegame situation. If it took one of these forms, I would then guess that it would be played next weekend. We'd probably be playing it up around Winston-Salem. That's a pretty good place and about half-way between the two schools."

The Pirates expect it to be tough to pull out the two wins. Added to the burden of having to win both of them against a contending team is that fact that it will be in the backyard of The Citadel. The cadet corps is expected to be there in force, adding to the degree of difficulty.

The first game starts at 6:30 p.m.

Rampants Edge Past Northeastern By Two Points In Track Contest

Greene Central Downs Hawks

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School gained a 4-3 tenning victory over North Lenoir yesterday.

The Rams scored twice in the first inning, but saw North Lenoir come back to take the lead in the top of the seventh, 3-2. The Rams fought back to tie it in the bottom of the seventh, then won it in the tenth.

In the first, Mike Chase singled and stole second for Greene Central. Jay Carraway singled and Don Holloman got a hit, scoring Chase. Scott Davenport reached on an error, allowing Carraway to score.

In the fourth, North Lenoir scored its first run. Milton Battle singled and moved up on a wild pitch and a stolen base. Jeff Davis reached on an error, scoring Battle.

In the top of the seventh, the Hawks scored twice more for a 3-2 lead. Linwood Thorbs doubled and Jeff Phillips hit a drive into the outfield. A shoestring, diving catch failed, and by the time the ball was chased down, both runners had circled the bases.

The Rams tied it up in the bottom of the frame. Dal Blizard walked, stole second and scored on Carraway's single.

Finally, in the tenth, the Rams got the winning run. Chase walked, moved up when Carraway reached on an error, and scored on Russell Brann's single.

Thorbs had three hits and Battle two for North Lenoir, while Carraway had three and Holloman, two, for the Rams. Greene Central is now 8-2 in the conference and 14-5 overall. They host North Pitt on Tuesday.

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass scored 14 runs in the first three innings and defeated Belhaven 14-1 yesterday in a game that was called after four and a half frames.

The Bears pushed two runs across in the first inning and then scored six in the second and third to run away from the Bulldogs. Belhaven's only run came in the top of the fifth.

The win leaves Bear Grass with an 8-1 conference record and a 16-2 overall mark.

Dickie Williams paced the Bears in the victory. He was 3-4 at the plate, including a triple and a home run, and had five runs batted in. Jerry Wynne, Duane Baker and Ray Wnne were all 2-3 for Bear Grass. The Bears' pitching staff held Belhaven to one hit.

In the first inning, Alton Cratt led off with a base hit, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. After Wynne walked, Williams knocked in both base runners with a triple.

Rose High School built up an early lead and held off Northeastern down the stretch for a slim 68-66 victory in a dual meet yesterday.

Northeastern captured first in the final mile relay, and added firsts in the final two individual running events, but it wasn't quite enough to pull out the victory.

Overall the Rampants won first place in eight individual events, while Northeastern won six. The Eagles won both of the relays.

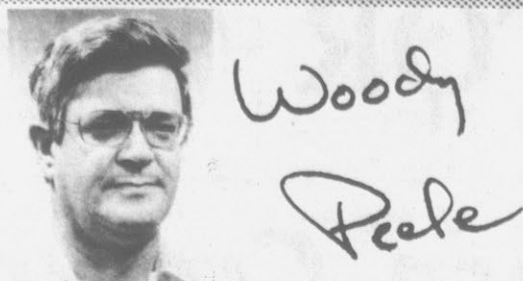

John White was a triple winner for the Rampants, taking the lone jump, the high jump and the pole vault. Williams won both the 100 and the 220 to be Northeastern's lone double winner.

The Rampants participate in the Colonial Capital Relays on Saturday in New Bern.

Former Champs Have Trouble

By JERRY GARRETT

AP Motorsports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) —

When the crucial first day of qualifying ended for Sunday's Winston 500 stock car race, someone noticed something odd:

Four former winners here had failed to make the lineup. Among the 15 qualifiers that day were surprises like Janet

Guthrie, Cecil Gordon, Sam

Sommers, and Bruce Hill.

Surprises mainly because they made it and Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison, Dick Brooks and James Hylton didn't.

A long night of hard work followed.

When qualifying for positions 16-30 rolled around Thursday, there was obvious tension. It had taken better than 186 miles per hour Wednesday to be among the top 15. Many less than that Thursday probably would fail to make the next 15, because everybody else had been working to find more speed too.

Brooks, first out among the quartet, ran the fastest, 186.852 m.p.h., up from 184.534 m.p.h. Wednesday. Baker, winner of three of last four races here, was just a tick slower at 186.783 m.p.h. Both drove Fords. They were fourth and fifth fastest of the day.

Allison was only slightly faster than the day before and his 184.893 m.p.h. effort in a Mataro was 13th best.

Hylton's 183.564 m.p.h. lap was barely too slow. He has to gamble for one of the last 10 spots.

After qualifying ended, Baker sighed, "I'm glad it's over. We can get serious about racing now. At least the speed is better than we usually qualify here."

Baker started 13th last year and won the race with an average speed of nearly 170 m.p.h. over the 500 miles—a world record.

Allison looked at his predicament without too much sadness. "Yes it would be nice to qualify the first day. But remember two years ago here, everybody was down at Cale Yarborough's car with their heads in their hands because he didn't make it the first day. That was the same car basically they have now, and look where they are."

Players Set Batting Order As Cleveland Snaps Losing Streak

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer

"And batting fourth, second baseman Duane Kuiper," the public address system blared out across 78,000 empty seats at the 80,000-seat Municipal Stadium in Cleveland.

It was Manager Frank Robinson's version of baseball democracy.

The Indians, mired in a seven-game losing streak and suffering declining attendance, finally broke through with a 4-3 victory over Toronto Thursday night, using a batting order the players chose themselves.

"I think that's probably the first time in the big leagues a guy with 1,500 major league at-bats and no home runs hit fourth," said Kuiper, a singles-hitter batting .274 this season.

Although Kuiper went hitless in four trips against Toronto, the move worked. Buddy Bell, who normally hits fifth or sixth, chose the leadoff spot, and his two-run single highlighted a three-run third inning that gave the Indians their victory.

"Frank just tried to loosen everybody up," said Kuiper. "I was about the sixth person to pick, and everybody was avoiding that spot (cleanup), so I just jumped in there. I figured I'd never get another chance to hit cleanup."

In the only other American League game Thursday, Seattle beat Minnesota 4-3. In the National League, Houston downed San Francisco 3-1 and Los Angeles whipped San Diego 7-5.

After Bell in the order came Frank Duffy, Rico Carty, Kipper, Andre Thornton, Johnny Grubb, Fred Kendall, Jim Norris and Rick Manning.

"We had to try something," said Robinson, who said he wasn't sure if he would keep the order Friday night at Milwaukee. "They've got a left-hander (Bill Travers) going, and I'm not that superstitious."

The victory, credited to Al Fitzmorris, 1-2, was Cleveland's first since April 17 when the Indians beat Boston in the second game of a doubleheader. Jesse Jefferson, 0-1, got the loss.

Mariners 4, Twins 3

The Mariners scored three times in the sixth inning on a single by Bill Stein, Carlos Lopez' double and a two-run bloop single by Jose Baez.

Steve Braun singled in what turned out to be the winning run in the eighth before Minnesota scored twice in the half of the inning on Mike Cubbage's sacrifice fly and an RBI double by Dan Ford.

Astros 3, Giants 1

Bob Watson smacked a two-run homer, his first of the year, and Joaquin Andujar scattered five hits before he was lifted in the ninth to give Houston its victory.

Andujar had a shutout going through six innings before the Giants scored an unearned run in the seventh. Ken Forsch got the save.

Dodgers 7, Padres 5

Steve Garvey drove in three runs with a double and his sixth home run of the season, and Rick Monday slugged a two-run homer to give the Dodgers a four-game sweep of their series with San Diego.

Papooses Defeated

ROBERSONVILLE — Plymouth's junior varsity baseball team rolled to an 8-2 victory over Roanoke's Jayvees yesterday.

Ricky Bell was the winning pitcher for Plymouth. The Baby Vikings were led by Johnson and Purkett, who each had two hits. Tony Whitfield got three hits for Roanoke.

The papooses are now 0-7 for the year.

Wilson In Net Win

Wilson High School continued its total domination of Rose High School in tennis yesterday, taking its third straight 9-0 victory over the Ramblants.

The Ramblants won eight games during the singles matches, but battled hard during the doubles although they failed to win a match.

The Ramblants travel to Elizabeth City on Tuesday to meet Northeastern.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Logical deduction is no substitute for cold hard facts, as declarer found to his cost on this hand from a recent rubber bridge game.

North was slightly aggressive in driving to slam after West had made a weak jump overcall in spades. There were combinations of cards that would have left declarer with no play for twelve tricks at no trump, especially since North's only long suit suited to duplicate his partner's holding. As it was, the contract depended only on declarer's ability to locate the queen of diamonds.

West led the king of spades, won by the ace. Declarer reasoned that, since West was marked with spade length, he was more likely to be short in diamonds. Accordingly, he led to the king of diamonds and returned a diamond. East's failure to follow proved to be a mortal blow. Declarer cashed his nine winners and conceded the last four tricks to West for down three. He complained bitterly about his fate.

While the fates were, perhaps, unkind, declarer gave the hand somewhat less than the best play. Instead of committing himself early to a guess in the diamond suit, he should have set out to learn as much as possible about the hand.

Correct technique is to duck the first spade lead and win the second. Next, he cashes his six tricks in hearts and clubs. These maneuvers will permit declarer to guarantee the contract. He will have learned that West started with seven spades (East showed out on the second round), two hearts and one club. Therefore, West has to have three diamonds.

Declarer cashes the ace of diamonds in case East was dealt a singleton queen. When the lady does not appear, declarer can finesse the jack of diamonds next, knowing it must win. Now the suit runs and twelve tricks roll in.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" ABC Sports Chief Is Weighing News Role

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — For a month, it's been rumored ABC Sports chief Rooney Arledge will be named head of news as well as sports at the network. For a month, ABC has refused to confirm or deny the rumors.

Still, ABC sources say an announcement is imminent and may come today. If Arledge is tapped for the twin jobs, ABC would be the only network to have one executive running both its news and sports divisions.

Arledge, 45, with only sports in his journalistic portfolio, confirmed earlier this week he's been talking with ABC brass about running the two departments. He declined to say more about the negotiations.

However, Arledge, head of ABC Sports since 1968 and the man who revolutionized TV sports coverage with the instant replay, did offer a few views on network news in a phone interview from New York.

For example, when asked what he feels is a problem with nightly newscasts, he complained of a sameness in the way each network presents the day's news.

He also said they "aren't spending enough time, in my judgment, on the stories that people really care about. I think we've covered (the war in) Zaire, the fighting in Lebanon, things like that, to exhaustion."

And, he said, "I think the average person would like to know if the United States is going to be involved in Zaire, what some of the issues are, or how it affects the rest of Africa."

Another flaw he sees in network newscasts is that American viewers "aren't given enough background to let them become interested or involved" in reports on world leaders and major issues. He cited the Soviet-American strategic arms limitations talks as an example.

"By the time the SALT talks have become an issue, the networks have taken for granted everyone knows what SALT means," he said.

"But take 100 people on the street and ask them what the SALT talks are. They wouldn't have any idea what you're talking about."

He'd present more interpretation, more basic explanation of the issues, and more of the background of the major figures in the story, he said, and do the same with other world news reports.

He was asked if he'd change the much-publicized anchor team of Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters who, in seven months together, have failed to help lift ABC's evening news show out of third place in ratings for network newscasts.

"I don't know," Arledge said. "I don't really have any opinion on that right now. Both Harry and Barbara are good. I haven't really given a lot of thought to what should be done with either of them."

Hail Guarantee For Handicapped

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 24 days of occupying government offices, handicapped demonstrators cheered happily at the news that federal regulations guaranteeing their civil rights had been signed.

But a few hours after the signing in Washington, D.C., on Thursday their joy had turned to uncertainty, and they were huddled behind closed doors at a strategy session to consider their next move.

"The movement will continue," said Mrs. Linda Gill of East Oakland, spokeswoman for a group of blind, deaf and crippled people who took over offices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare April 5 and at its peak numbered about 125.

"So far we are very optimistic," Mrs. Gill said of the new regulations signed by HEW Secretary Joseph Califano. "It sounds as though it was signed pretty much the way we wanted it. But we're still waiting for our attorneys to finish reviewing the regulations."

About 50 protesters chose to remain in the old Federal Building Thursday night while awaiting the return of nine of the 22-member delegation they had sent to Washington.

The Washington contingent is "trying to set up a meeting with ... Califano to discuss implementation, which we consider equally important to the signing," said Jim Pechin, a demonstration leader.

"Our people don't have too much faith in HEW based on past performance," he added.

Dr. Frank Bowe, director of the American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, which sponsored the continuing demonstration, said in Washington that he was "very, very pleased." He congratulated Califano for "courageous, appropriate, reasonable, compassionate and intelligent decisions."

Bowe said he would support Califano in seeing "that the regulation is enforced in the spirit in which it was written."

The new regulation implements the 1973 Rehabilitation Act and is designed to end discrimination against the nation's 35 million handicapped by recipients of federal funds.

It will apply to schools and colleges receiving federal aid, to doctors treating Medicare or Medicaid patients and to employers receiving federal money.

In addition it will affect millions of handicapped children who have been segregated in separate classrooms or institutions. The regulation also requires local public school systems to seek out and enroll handicapped children.

Any architectural barriers to a handicapped person's access must be removed by institutions within three years.

Rock Group Set Stage On Fire

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The 10,000 fans at a Doobie Brothers concert got a bit more excitement than they anticipated. The rock group set the stage on fire.

The Thursday night concert at the University of Iowa Fieldhouse featured a fireworks display. But when the sparklers went out, the curtains went up — in smoke.

There were no injuries, and fire extinguishers were used to douse the flames.

The band played on.

Trusts T-Shirts Design To Safeguard Children

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A mother of two children has designed a T-shirt that she hopes will safeguard children in this Detroit suburb, where seven youngsters have been abducted and slain in the past 15 months.

The words "I Don't Talk To Strangers" are printed on the T-shirts created by Francine Gold, 35, a former kindergarten teacher, who has two children in Oakland County schools.

"I started thinking about ways to keep the message out in front of people and it struck me that children do identify with messages and heroes and personalities on T-shirts," Mrs. Gold said Thursday.

A department store has agreed to stock 3,000 of the shirts, which sell for $5 each.

Since January 1976, seven youngsters have disappeared and been found dead in crimes that began or ended in Oakland County north of Detroit. Officials from 50 police departments have joined to investigate the murders. Authorities believe four of the seven children were abducted and slain by the same person.

The latest victim, Timothy King, 11, of Birmingham, disappeared about a week after he told his mother he would never go with a stranger.

Timothy was last seen March 16 talking to a man in a parking lot behind a store where he had gone to buy candy. His body was found March 23 along a dirt road 16 miles away.

"That particular kidnapping touched me," said Mrs. Gold. "It struck me that the little boy was very much aware of the dangers of going with someone he didn't know."

"The little boy seemed to be unapproachable, yet he went with someone. It did start me thinking about what you can do to keep the message fresh in children's minds when other publicity dies down."

She said several department store buyers refused to stock the T-shirts.

"Some people have made the comment that I might be exploiting a sensitive issue, but I'm just doing this because I felt I could help children," said Mrs. Gold, who insists the undertaking is a modest money-maker at best. "Even if I got negative reaction, even if I could help one child, it would be worth it."

"I hope that I can reach the next child who is approached so that instead of going with his would-be abductor, he goes home and gives police the description of the person," she said.

ELEGANT AND LUXURIOUS HOME

(First Time Ever Offered)

We are proud to have been selected as the Exclusive Agents for this most unusual offering.

No written word can adequately do justice to the elegance and spaciousness of this lovely home. It is certainly one of the largest and most luxurious homes we have ever seen in this part of the state.

Situated on a 3 acre wooded tract, with a lovely stream alongside, in a neighborhood restricted to a total of only five homes — each of similar size and quality and each on its own 3 acre tract — this is certainly a most prestigious home.

The home and grounds are ideally suited for a large family or those who have guests and wish to entertain in a beautiful and gracious setting.

We will be happy to discuss the details of both the site plans and dwelling plans, and to arrange for a private showing, with those who are interested, qualified, and can afford the very best.

Population Control Given Priority By Bangladesh

Turned To Paleontology After Finding Ancient Shark Tooth

PETER HARMATUK tells of his fossil discoveries that have earned him the praise of the Smithsonian Institute as he stands in a shed behind his home, full of ancient shark's teeth and fossilized bones. (AP Wirephoto)

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
One of Jaws' predecessors by 12 to 15 million years radically changed Peter Harmatuk's life. Harmatuk, now 56, was a plant manager for the Georgia Pacific Corp. in Brington, N.C., just outside New Bern in Craven County, when his son found a little shark's tooth 10 years ago.

He could hardly believe the find, since sharks do not live in the Neuse River near where the boy found the remnant. The discovery was later dated to the Miocene Epoch in history when sharks as big as 60 feet lived in the region when it was underwater.

Harmatuk became intrigued with such antiquities after the shark's tooth incident and took up fossil collecting as a hobby.

Since then Harmatuk has been described by the Smithsonian Institute as contributing the "greatest single advancement ever in knowledge of coastal plain paleontology (the study of fossils)." Similar accolades from the Smithsonian include his reputation as "the principal collector of vertebrate fossils" and as a major collector of invertebrates.

"It's the finding of something new, we're always finding new things," Harmatuk says of the intangible benefits he gets from discovering "new," old things. The Smithsonian Institute heard of him soon after he launched his work on a full scale.

The Institute pays him gas mileage and in turn, he ships most of his discoveries to the Smithsonian in Washington where they can be analyzed and studied by other paleontologists.

Most of the fossils he has found are between 10 to 15 million years old. But animals from many different epochs have been found.

"Today, at Rose Hill (in Duplin County) in a creek bed we found rock from the Pleistocene, the Ice Age, from 14,000 to 1 million years old. And there are different layers some from the Cretaceous, 80 or 90 million years old," he said Wednesday night from Brington in an interview with the Associated Press.

North Carolina has been underwater at several stages in ancient history, which explains the numerous shark teeth, walrus tusks, seals and whales Harmatuk has discovered. Other species are giant beaver, camels, tapirs, horses and a capybara, a large rodent which still lives in South America.

He said his most exciting discovery was that of a 60-million-year-old sea cow which is similar to a manatee.

"It was called the best material found in the western hemisphere. We found it in Jones County, just the lower jaw, but we're going to dig for the rest," said Harmatuk who uses "we" out of modesty when actually referring to himself.

A large portion of his fossils have been discovered near Aurora in Beaufort County near the Texasgulf Lee Creek phosphate mine.

"It's one of the richest fossil-bearing areas in the world and will be even better known when a book is published by several scientists who have been working on the publication three or four years," he said.

North Carolina's plentiful fossil deposits don't guarantee a rare find everytime out, but that doesn't deter Harmatuk.

"We go out most of the time, fall, winter, it doesn't matter," he said. "You've got to be dedicated."

Reflector Staff Writer
Bangladesh is probably the only country in the world to have declared population control as its number one domestic problem and to have established a Ministry of Population Control as an important government bureau.

"There's a good reason for this," His Excellency, Mustafiz R. Siddiqui, said during a lecture Thursday at East Carolina University. "Bangladesh is a very fertile land and its people are equally fertile."

Siddiqui, Bangladesh Ambassador to the United States, pointed out that "my country has 80 million people in a land area of 55,000 square miles. It has been figured out that at the current birth rate, we will have a population of 653,000,000 by the year 2050AD. That's an impossible situation, and the government must take measures to control this. You can certainly understand why birth control is our number one problem." (The land area of Bangladesh is only about 3,000 square miles larger than that of North Carolina).

Other steps being taken in this small country just recovering from a bloody 1971 civil war includes "the payment of money to anyone who will agree to be sterilized. This offer is part of a motivation program, a concern for self, that my government is trying to establish."

"We are convinced that population control is not only necessary, but feasible," the ambassador said. "We have a task force of 26,000 workers devoting full time to introducing methods of birth control and furnishing people birth control items, including the pill."

A family man with five sons ranging in age from three to 19, Siddiqui added rather wistfully he could not in good faith add to his family in the hope of having daughters. "That would not be a good example," he smiled.

The quiet spoken, trim, youthful looking ambassador voiced a belief that the worst is over for his country, which gained its independence from Pakistan in late 1971 after a bloody nine-months strife that resulted in the loss of an estimated three million lives.

"Most of the ten million refugees who fled into India have returned, or been resettled," he said. "The jute factories are in operation again, and have reached a stage of about 85 per cent efficiency in production. Tea plantations are restored, and are once more productive. (Jute, used in the manufacture of burlap, and tea, constitute the major export products for Bangladesh).

In the crucial civil war days, Siddiqui was an active fighter. "I was in charge of the fighting force in the eastern zone (of East Pakistan — now Bangladesh)," he commented. "Later, I was involved in the refugee program in India and was the first ambassador for the Bangladesh government in exile, based in India."

Ambassador Siddiqui came to Washington 18 months ago "for a three year assignment."

A native of Chittagong, now the major port city of Bangladesh and the country's second largest city, the ambassador enjoys fishing. "Near Washington I have taken my sons out for pond fishing. It's one of those places where they release trout for you to catch." Informed of the good fishing grounds of eastern North Carolina, he expressed a keen desire to have an opportunity to return to this area for a visit.

He mentioned the beauty of the land — flat and fertile like his native country, and added "you're very fortunate to have this abundance of good agricultural land with not too many people. It is a land of beauty you have here."

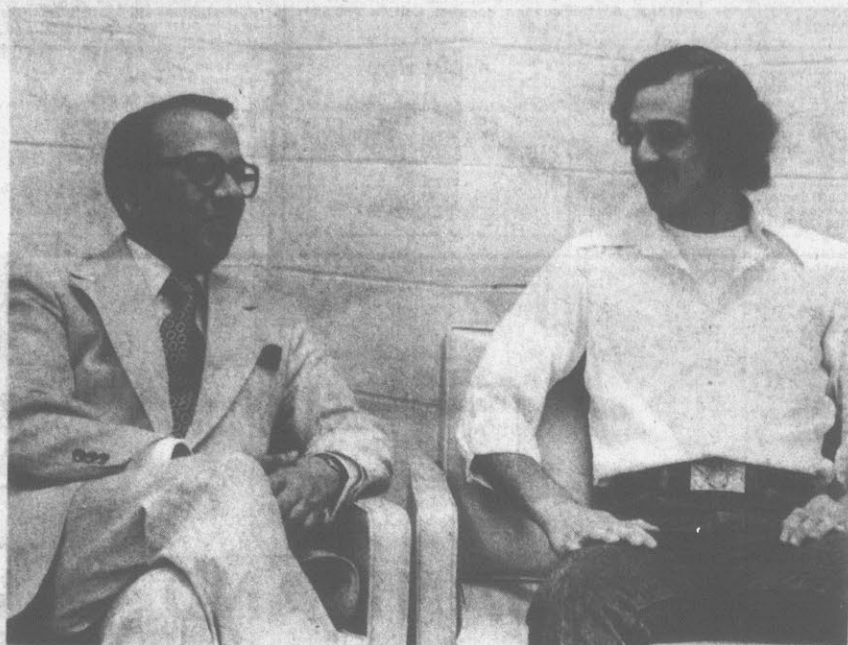

In his talk to an overflowing audience at Brewster, (he was here as a keynote speaker for the two day Asian Studies Symposium), Siddiqui touched on U.S. relations with the entire bloc of Asian countries. He stressed the gradual change in American attitudes from full support of Pakistan toward more sympathy for the Bangladesh dilemma.

Saying that world diplomacy showed indications of realigning thinking from terms of weapons to more emphasis on human rights, Siddiqui said "the first basic right is human rights, the right to live, to food and shelter."

"That is why our government is directed to improving our economy and the quality of human life. These are our basic government guidelines."

Making reference to the stability of government in Bangladesh following several changes in the head of government in recent years (the latest early this month), the ambassador noted that "a mandate will be held this May, with general elections to be held in December 1978."

BANGLADESH AMBASSADOR — to the United States, Mustafiz R. Siddiqui, (left), talks about Bangladesh with history major Don Geary of Jacksonville, following the ambassador's lecture on Thursday at the Asian Studies Symposium.
