

Unemployment Rate Dips To 7 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped from 7.3 to 7 per cent in April, its lowest level in 29 months, as a half-million Americans found jobs, the government reported today. Labor Department analysts said the improvement "very definitely shows a strong expansion" in the economy following the severe winter weather that disrupted production and pushed unemployment up earlier this year. At 7 per cent, the nation's jobless rate was at its lowest level since November 1974 when it stood at 6.7 per cent during the last recession. The rate has dropped by one full percentage point in the last five months and is down two points from its May 1975 recession peak of 9 per cent.

April's decline in unemployment followed a two-tenths of a per cent drop in March from 7.5 to 7.3 per cent. It was also the second month in a row that employment improved sharply. Total employment increased by 548,000 in April, "reaching a milestone of 90 million persons," the government said. Employment had also increased by about a half a million in March and has risen nearly 2.3 million since last October, for an average of 380,000 a month.

The number of persons unemployed dropped by 330,000 in April to 6.7 million, with most of the decline among persons who had lost their last job.

The nation's improving job picture contrasts with reports of accelerating inflation. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices last month rose another 1.1 per cent, an annual rate of more than 13 per cent.

While administration officials are concerned over inflation, they are more confident about reducing unemployment. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal predicted earlier this week that the administration's goal of reducing joblessness below 7 per cent by year end "is going to be achieved ahead of schedule."

Leasing Of Idled Fire Station To JCs Is Arranged

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A lease agreement was approved last night by the City Council with the Greenville Jaycees that will allow the chapter the use of the old fire station on Chestnut Street as a meeting place and office.

Under the $1 per year lease arrangement, the Jaycees will participate in interior repair work at the facility and then maintain the building.

The Council, after discussing the matter, agreed to appropriate $3,000 in Community Development money toward major repair work that is necessary at the station.

Phil Dixon, representing the Jaycees, informed the Council that the organization proposed to use the facility as a general membership meeting site as well as an office. In addition, he pointed out that the Higgs Neighborhood Association had expressed an interest in using the building for monthly meetings.

The $3,000 in CD funds had been earmarked for improvements in the Higgs Neighborhood.

Dixon, saying that the Jaycees will handle utility and insurance costs, noted that the club has some 160 members so manpower to maintain the facility will not be a problem.

The spokesman pointed out at an earlier meeting that the Jaycees had appropriated $1,000 to pay for some of the repairs at the building.

Dixon told the Council that the Jaycees feel they can return to the city at least ten times the money spent by the city at the facility in community service.

The Council, after conducting a public hearing, approved the request of Agri Supply Co. for rezoning approximately 13.6 acres out on the north side of Greenville Boulevard, Northeast, from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to Highway Commercial.

Thomas Anderson, representing the petitioners, said that Agri Supply requested the rezoning in order to build a structure at the site that would house a farmer's supply and hardware business.

Anderson noted that the firm intends to "be a good neighbor" and would have a substantial investment in the development. He said that the company was asking for an extension of an existing zone so spot zoning is not an issue.

According to Anderson, no subdivision of the property is planned at this time and he said that it is conceivable that the firm would use most of the tract to accommodate expansion needs in the future.

Opposition to the rezoning was expressed by David Eastwood and B. T. Eastwood who suggested that some other type of zoning would benefit the area more. Potential devaluation of the adjoining property was also cited as well as the uses allowed in the commercial zone.

Anderson said that access to property on the rear of the Agri Supply tract would be provided.

Council member Mrs. Mildred McGrath said that she could not visualize the property along the northern bypass being anything other than highway commercial. She expressed delight that the commercial development was in this area and not in a residential section.

Council approval of the rezoning was unanimous.

The Council, after agreeing to get a ruling on whether zoning controls the issuance of beer and wine permits, voted to allow two permits that had been issued in R-6 (residential) districts to be renewed pending the ruling.

The problem of beer and wine permits in the residential zone surfaced when the Council realized that it had approved the permits in the past, possibly in violation of the zoning ordinance.

The two requests, submitted by Tar River Swim Club and Bridges Discount Store at 403 W. 12th Street, involved renewal applications for on-premise beer licenses.

Mayor Percy Cox said that he felt that in view of the fact that Bridges and Tar River Swim Club had been allowed to sell beer in the R-6 zone in the past, they should be allowed to continue with the stipulation that the licenses may be revoked if the ruling from the Attorney General's office indicates an ordinance violation.

Five other requests for beer or wine permits, involving on and off premise authorizations, were approved by the Council. None of the five involved R-6 zoning.

The Council denied a sixth request for on-premise beer and wine permit approval until Inspection Department standards are met.

In other business, approval was given to a request by the Boys' Club of Pitt County for rezoning approximately 1.3 acres located at the southeast corner of Tenth Street and Wright Road from Office and Institutional to R-9.

It was pointed out that the parcel, located at the entrance to College Court, involves basically one lot and subdivision covenants prohibit any development other than residential.

Approval was given to a petition by the owners of Courtney Square for annexation of approximately 10.5 acres located south of the intersection of Arlington Boulevard and Red Banks Road if it were extended. Water, sewer and electric service lines have been installed and the necessary easements have been provided, according to City Manager Jim Caldwell.

The Council adopted a resolution approving the submission of an application by the Housing Authority to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for financing of 50 units of public housing in the city and for a preliminary loan for initial project work.

Guilty On Spy Counts

BALTIMORE — A Pitt County North Carolina native, Edwin Gibbons Moore II, was convicted here yesterday by a federal jury of attempting to sell Central Intelligence Agency secrets to the stealing secret documents and attempting to sell them to Soviet agents.

The jury convicted the 56-year-old Bethesda, Md., resident on two counts of espionage and three counts of unlawfully possessing classified documents.

Moore had entered a plea of not guilty due to insanity, but the jury refused to acquit him on that ground.

Although U. S. District Judge Frank A. Kaufman delayed sentencing, Moore faces a maximum sentence of life in prison on the espionage counts and 10 years' prison and $10,000 fine on each of the other charges.

Moore was arrested in December after a package of photocopies of a CIA telephone directory was found on the grounds of a Soviet residence in Washington, D. C.

Moore testified that he placed the package in the yard on orders from a CIA operative he identified as "Joe".

Earlier he told the jury that the CIA had planned to use a hotel he owned at Nags Head as a haven for Cuban defectors from the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion and said another CIA contact was interested in using other property he owns in Elm City as a meeting place.

Moore was acquitted on charges of burning his Nags Head hotel in 1961 to collect insurance payments on the property.

Moore testified that he thought the attempted sale of the classified documents to the Soviet Union was part of a CIA mission.

Moore, an office worker in the CIA's Soviet materials section, was placed on leave without pay at the time of the burning of the hotel, but was reinstated after his acquittal.

Wellcome Middle School Dedicated Thursday Night

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
Wellcome Middle School, a namesake of the founder of its industrial neighbor, Burroughs Wellcome, was dedicated in ceremonies Thursday night.

Paul Taddiken, Pharmaceutical Production Manager at Burroughs Wellcome, was one of the guest speakers at the dedication. "We at Burroughs Wellcome are proud of the name selection for the school, not because of its physical location of the building, rather for a man who during his life promoted education. Henry Wellcome was ahead of his time in the spreading of medical research and the implementation of developing educational material worldwide."

Taddiken explained that Burroughs Wellcome has continued to promote research and education worldwide including various universities of North Carolina. He also charged teachers and students to continue to work to learn more.

"Education never ceases in industries. Our industries can only be successful if the students, our employees, have a good education. We must depend on you teachers to inspire the students. And the students must take advantage of learning."

Five student speakers including Amanda Holliman, Jimmy Teel, Paul Tucker, Felecia Gilbert, and Lisa Carraway presented remarks about the opportunities at Wellcome Middle School.

The student speakers discussed the five "Lamps of Wisdom" necessary to make Wellcome Middle School's students and faculty continue to grow.

Ms. Holliman discussed the lamp of courtesy.

"Courtesy breeds courtesy and its magic powers win happiness and success," she said.

The second lamp discussed was the lamp of ambition. "The higher our ambition, the greater the school will be. We must plan to keep the fires of ambition bright," Teel said.

Tucker talked about loyalty. "We first of all must be loyal to ourselves. We hope to instill a strong and sincere feeling of loyalty among our faculty and students," he said.

Ms. Gilbert talked about the lamp of humor. "Humor is necessary to endure the hardships and it keeps us from being too serious," she said.

Imagination was the last lamp discussed. "This school's purpose is to awaken imagination and to discipline it through the gathering of facts. Imagination is an adventure and education is the discipline of the greatest adventure of life," Ms. Carraway said.

J. H. Hudson, contractor of the building presented the key of the building to Cameron Dudley, architect of the school. Dudley presented the key to J. B. Congleton who accepted the key on behalf of the Pitt County Board of Education. Congleton presented the key to Gene Tucker, Chairman of the Wellcome Advisory Council, who in turn presented it to principal Richard Stevens.

"It is with deep honor that I accept the key of this school."

Patrolman Is Injured In A Rescue Attempt

FARMVILLE — A North Carolina State Highway Patrolman was injured near here late Wednesday night as he was attempting to free an injured driver pinned in a wrecked car.

Trooper W. A. Basnight of Farmville received a laceration on his head which required 10 stitches to close when a pry bar he and Trooper Coy Taylor of Greenville were using to force the car door open slipped, striking Basnight in the head.

Trooper Taylor said Joe Butts of Wilson, the driver the officers were attempting to free, was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of internal injuries and was charged with driving under the influence in connection with the 11 p.m. collision on U.S. 264 one mile West of Farmville.

This school will be a landmark in Pitt County education and a monument to the communities which it serves. The students have made a good beginning here. We hope to make our students better citizens," Stevens said.

Pitt County Commissioner Bob Martin charged the students with the responsibility of continuing to progress.

"We now have a fine facility and the teachers should do an equally good job with instruction. Students should help preserve the school and work hard to find the truths that you seek here in this namesake of a man who promoted education," Martin said.

Bill McLawhorn, Pitt County Board of Education member from Ayden presented a plaque commending Associate Superintendent Tom Craft for his work in assisting in planning the school's facility and function. The plaque will be mounted in the school.

Following the speakers' remarks, the seventh and eighth grade chorus under the direction of Ms. Barbara Plummer, presented two musical selections.

A reception followed the dedication.

Building Data
The building is located on 26.27 acres of land on Highway 11 near Burroughs Wellcome. The building as constructed includes 66,277 square feet. The total cost of the project was $1,636,267.12. Its pupil capacity for its 27 teaching stations is 810 students.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

WALLET RETURNED

I'm giving to Hotline a wallet. (empty of money, but with lots of I. d. material someone might want back) found behind the Dixie Queen Restaurant in Winterville. There don't seem to be any connections with Pitt County in it and there are several addresses for the apparent owner, so I don't know what to do with it. E. N.

Hotline went through the wallet, which, as you said, held a number of addresses, including some in the Columbia, S. C. area and some in Roxboro and Durham. We finally saw on a job application that the apparent owner's choice of a person to contact in case of an emergency was a person who worked at a particular Hardee's Restaurant in Durham. We contacted this person and learned she was the mother of the young woman whose purse was missing. She asked us to mail it C. O. D., which we did. We were never able to determine just how the purse got to Winterville.

Considerable Damage In Series Of N.C. Storms

By The Associated Press

One person was knocked out of a boat, presumably by lightning, during the one of the series of heavy thunderstorms that pushed across the state Thursday night.

Stanley Barnes, 22, of Wilson, was returning with his father from a fishing trip on the Roanoke River near Weldon. The Roanoke Valley Rescue Squad was unable to find the body Thursday, but was planning to resume the search today, with the aid of other rescue squads.

Elsewhere, the blustering storms uprooted trees, destroyed buildings and cut power and phone service to some areas.

Turbulent winds forced a light plane with two men aboard to make a crash landing near an unpaved airport runway just north of Raleigh. Neither man was injured.

In Roxboro, gusts sent a large tree crashing down on a brick home, demolishing it, police said. Residents reported that a tornado touched down about six miles south of the town.

Hail the size of a quarter was seen in Jones County, and a trailer was blown over in the Bushy Fork area.

The storms featured gusts up to 40 miles per hour. A number of trees fell on power lines and roads and highways.

One farmer reportedly lost two tenant houses, a barn and the roof of another barn to high winds.

Chefs Push For 'Kitchen Lib'

By ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — The great cuisine of France is more or less a man's world. Now the few women chefs are winning recognition for their own style of cooking.

On May 3 their own liberation organization, L'Association de Restauratrices-Cuisinieres, will observe its first anniversary with a review of its accomplishments so far. Its 40 members credit their group for breaking through the discrimination in their trade.

Members post labels in their restaurant windows to try to get diners in the habit of seeking women cooks.

They are preparing a directory of restaurants with women chefs. They are asking tourist guide publishers to note when restaurants have women chefs.

They take on apprentice chefs, but only females. "Women chefs always have been in the shade," said association president Gisele Berger at her restaurant, La Bonne Table, in the Paris suburb of Clichy.

"People don't talk about women chefs in France, only of men. Men chefs have refused to admit women to their national association. So we formed our own group."

The women were inspired to organize by France's leading restaurant critic, Robert Courtine of the Paris newspaper, "Le Monde." Courtine says women's cooking is best because it is simpler and comes from the mother-and-family heart.

Until now, only male chefs have been heralded in the press. Thought association efforts, member chefs recently have been written up in French gastronomic publications. They have even been starred in "Lui," a glossy men's magazine. It sandwiched their photographs between studies of nude girls.

"We have received some recognition and we hope for more," said Mrs. Berger. "People are beginning to realize we exist. We get more clients, people are looking for women's restaurants. Bit by bit we make progress."

Chef Berger thinks female chefs differ from the men "because the men went to cooking school to learn how to make cuisine. I learned from my mother when I was growing up in the Savoy region."

Mrs. Berger's uniform is the usual garb for France's female chefs, a white smock over a dress.

Few wear the chef's toque blanche, she said, "because it isn't pretty." The hat is part of the traditional male chef's garb of navy blue-and-white checked trousers and white tunic.

In France, a restaurant owner's life is hard. Mrs. Berger is at the food market at 6 a.m. She prepares lunch, sometimes returns to the market for more food and, without rest, goes back to the kitchen to prepare dinner.

Her husband greets customers, orders wine and runs the business end.

"Nearly all the ARC members are married," Mrs. Berger said. "In this business you need two."

One dilemma faced by man-wife partnerships is illustrated at Restaurant Allard in Paris's Left Bank Latin Quarter.

Certificates of honor on the wall include one from the Comite National de Gastronomie inscribed to Monsieur Andre Allard. Mrs. Allard, the chef, is not mentioned.

Still, she praises ARC for "giving us distinction for our cooking, which is simple cuisine, not tricked up, not complicated as male chefs' cuisine. The cuisine of women is quite different, more digestible, a 'cuisine bourgeoise' as one makes for the family."

"... it's a hard life for a woman. We have to carry very heavy pots, for example," said Mrs. Allard as she briskly stirred a sauce, lit three gas burners with one gesture, dumped a plateful of vegetables into the sauce, ordered two young male sub-chefs to get started on the roast lamb with garlic and duck with olives, and sliced beef into steaks.

Despite their progress, France's women chefs are far from full recognition and status. The complicated, elaborate "haute cuisine" of France's top, expensive restaurants remains a male prerogative.

But Mrs. Berger is optimistic:

"That will come to a woman some day. Why not?"

SPRING CLEANING MEDICINE CHEST

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Checking and reorganizing your home medicine chest should become a part of your spring cleaning routine, suggests Donna Manczak, Extension health specialist at Michigan State University.

She advocates discarding nonprescription drugs more than a year old, any medicine that has changed color or consistency, and dusty or soiled gauze, bandages and cotton, as well as any other dirty or broken supplies.

Greek Cypriot Woman Laments Single State

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
KYRENIA, Cyprus (AP) — Tears streaming down her weathered face, Maroulla Kyrianiou complained, "Social tradition and partition of Cyprus have given me a raw deal."

At 58 she's still unmarried "because proposers shun penniless girls."

Maroulla is one of 14 Greek Cypriots who refused to flee Kyrenia when the Turkish invasion jolted Cyprus and took control of the northern mountain range in the summer of 1974. About 3,000 other Greek Cypriots still live in Turkish-dominated areas.

She said the 14 in Kyrenia were so poor and despondent that they decided to stay put and face death if need be. But the Turks, as many had warned, and "that was bad luck for me," she said in an interview.

Maroulla wiped her tears, forced a smile on her slightly wrinkled face, waved a 15-year-old portrait and boasted, "I was very pretty. And my body was extremely nice and shapely."

But men were uninterested, she said. Traditionally, Greek Cypriot women have to offer sizable dowries and fully furnished houses to their grooms. In some cases brides have to present grooms with cars and assure them of handsome income from real estate.

"Only real strong love can help a girl find a husband. But this type of love is so rare that most poor girls cannot hope to be married ever," she said. "Men find money and real estate more attractive than physical and moral beauty."

Maroulla lamented the "good old days" when she used to average $35 a week as a dressmaker in the then bustling tourist city of Kyrenia. Things have been pretty rough since 1974, when some 3,000 Turkish Cypriots from southern Cyprus displaced fleeing Greek Cypriots.

"We left our homes in the South and had to find new homes here. No usurpation. We only want to live," said Ali Mehmet, a 60-year-old Turkish truck driver. "We harbor no animosity and would like to live as brothers and sisters with Greek Cypriots. Ask Maroulla if she was ever harassed."

"No, Turks don't bother me," responded Maroulla. "They buy me Cokes and tea when I visit their coffee shop. But they don't help me beyond that."

"We are broke. Our Turkish neighbors are not much better off than we are. There is not much for us to exchange with them except boredom and despondency," said Maroulla's Greek Cypriot neighbor, Mrs. Christella Carasava, 68.

Kyrenia's dust-tormented church has been deserted since its priest fled the city in 1974, along with about 200,000 Greek Cypriot refugees who are not allowed to return to the Turkish-controlled northern areas.

Both women said it was immaterial to them whether their area is ruled by Makarios or the president of the Turkish Federated State, Rauf Denktaş.

"Politics? We know no politics. We want food and peace."

Whoever gives us food and peace is our leader and friend. But we don't seem to have either," said Maroulla.

Couple Commends Clinic Counseling

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My spouse and I were in desperate need of counseling and we knew it. We saw three therapists, who charged $40, $27 and $17.50 per hour respectively. We could afford none of them. They all said that we indeed needed help and that they would be glad to wait for their payments. It was kind, but the weight of the anticipated financial burden created one more problem for us.

Six months passed, things got worse and I took your recommendation to contact the local mental health clinic. The cost was based on our income, which for us came to $9.90 a visit. We could pay each time we went or at the end of the month.

It is such a good feeling to know that we are not charity cases or indebted to the tune of one to two thousand a year.

We feel that our progress is part of a joint effort. This particular center also cared enough to ask us how well we felt we were doing with a particular therapist. We switched a couple of times and hit a bonanza with our third. He was nearer to us in age, a product of similar social forces and we've seen him every week for six months now. At first, things got worse, but the last couple of months have gone from good to better, and now I couldn't be more optimistic!

So thanks, Abby, for your recommendation. And to your readers in similar situations, our advice is "go." It's an investment in your future!

BUD AND CARLA

DEAR CARLA: Thanks, I needed that! I'm frequently accused of copping out when I refer readers to their local mental health clinics.

I hope your testimony will encourage others who know they need professional counseling, but keep putting it off because they can't afford it.

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter concerning a 13-year-old boy being in trouble for getting a 14-year-old girl pregnant.

My high school teacher who studied such things says that no 13-year-old boy is able to get a girl pregnant. Did you consult your doctor advisor?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: I did. And he assured me that it is possible for a 13-year-old boy to father a child.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column every day and have yet to see a problem like mine. I get up at 5 a.m. and fix my husband a good breakfast with homemade biscuits, sausages and eggs. I do the washing and ironing, and clean up the house spic and span. I look after a vegetable garden, feed the livestock and bring in the firewood. And when my husband comes in from work, I bathe and shave him. But he chases other women. What for?

AGNES IN INDIANA

DEAR AGNES: It's not to fix him breakfast, do his washing, ironing, or housecleaning. And it isn't to look after the vegetable garden, feed the livestock or bring in the firewood. And it's not to bathe him and shave him, either. What's left?

Teen-age Girls Wear Contacts Longer

Death Penalty Bill Clears House, Sent To Senate

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP) — A bill restoring the death penalty in North Carolina has passed the House and is now before the Senate where Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is expected to refer it to the Judiciary I Committee. The committee, which already has a death penalty measure before it, is expected to begin its consideration of the House bill Tuesday. Questions of constitutionality were raised Thursday as the House passed the bill by an 82-34 vote. Passage came after a brief discussion on the third day the House has considered the death penalty issue. During the discussion, Rep. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, a foe of the death penalty, asked Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, a supporter of the death penalty and chairman of the judiciary committee which drafted the measure, if he considered the bill constitutional. A reason for Michaux' question was that the U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the state's capital punishment law unconstitutional. Since then the state has had no death penalty. Davenport answered that he did not think anyone could be certain what the U.S. Supreme Court would rule. Later he elaborated on his reply to newsmen. "There is no guarantee in my opinion that any bill or bills will be ruled constitutional," Davenport said. He expressed the opinion the measure follows guidelines laid down by the high court. He said he considers the bill "better than the Georgia law because it gives more protection to the defendant." The high court has upheld the Georgia law. The bill provides that the punishment for first degree murder and murders committed in the commission of a felony shall be death or life imprisonment. The measure provides for holding a second hearing after a defendant is convicted of first degree murder to decide whether the punishment shall be death or life imprisonment. In deciding this, the jury would be guided by the presence or absence of aggravating and mitigating circumstances. When the House took up the measure Thursday, Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford, sponsor of the bill, offered an amendment under which a persons receiving a life sentence for murder would be required to serve at least 25 years without possibility of release. However, House Speaker Carl Stewart ruled the amendment out of order because it embodied a major portion of a bill which the House defeated Tuesday. During the House discussion of the measure, Rep. Tom Sawyer, D-Guilford, also questioned its constitutionality. He recalled North Carolina has not had an execution for more than 10 years. "I am willing to predict there won't be one in the next 10 years no matter what you put on the books," he said. Sawyer told the House he learned about killing in combat while in the Army and acquired "an abhorrence of killing." However, Rep. Fred Dorsey, R-Henderson, reminded the House that polls indicated of North Carolina favor the "about 85 per cent of the people death penalty."

Change Won't Come Too Soon

There is hardly anyone who will disagree with President Carter about the need for welfare reform.

It has been talked before and efforts have been made to revise the welfare system, with the federal government getting in deeper each time.

The result has been a hodge-podge of federal, state and local programs that leave vast inequities between various regions and communities of the nation.

President Carter recently said that the present system should be thrown out. He did not however, have specifics for establishing a new program. He said he intends to consult with state leaders before making proposals for changes in the welfare laws.

He described the present program as "worse than we thought." HEW Sec. Joseph A. Califano called welfare reform "the Middle East of domestic politics."

The president did give an inkling of the program which might be ahead. He said it would provide jobs for those who can work, cash for those who can't and income tax credits for the working poor.

There was also an indication that the federal government might eventually absorb the entire welfare program as many state leaders would like to see. Carter said the burden on state and local governments "should be reduced as rapidly as federal resources permit."

There is every indication that the Carter administration will propose radical changes in the welfare program. We currently have an antiquated system and the changes won't come too soon.

Significant For Its Historical Role

David Frost's first interview with resigned President Richard Nixon was significant because it dealt with an era that will be an important part of our nation's history.

Aside from that it revealed little new concerning the Nixon-Watergate tragedies.

The former president admitted to "blunders" but not to any crime... "mistakes of the heart, rather than the head," he called them.

In face of that we still must remember that Nixon could have been impeached, if he hadn't resigned... and he could have faced a criminal trial, if he hadn't been pardoned.

THIS AFTERNOON

Dedicated Are Frustrated

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — Government is an "oddball situation" in which to work, says Pete Jenkins bluntly.

Jenkins, former county manager in Union, then Stanly, counties, heads the staff of 10 working with the Productivity Commission in State Government, headed by State Senator J. J. (Monk) Harrington, D-Bertie.

For one thing, policy is determined from above by people who generally don't know enough technically to make sound decisions.

For another, government seems to do everything for "some general statistical range" of people everywhere rather than zeroing in on specific people in particular communities with definable needs.

Also, at the same time the public demands that tax burdens be eased it demands more services and more quality in those services.

Frustrated
But above all, says Jenkins, the whole system frustrates the creativity and professional responses of truly good people.

Typically, a new managerial hierarchy is imposed (politically) from the top as each administration brings in "key people" to run governmental agencies.

The "career employee" must spend a lot of time jockeying to protect himself and his job, and trying to teach his bosses. Many really good state employees refuse to accept the task of running an agency which they could do well because political changes down the road would cost them their jobs and their retirements. Many typically wait until four, or so, years from retirement to finally accept a top management job.

Jenkins and his staff will spend a lot of time probing managerial process in state government and reporting to Harrington on recommended changes. Harrington, who by appointment from Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., chairs the Productivity Commission, said he fully intends to at least make a start on changing the atmosphere and structure of the bureaucracy.

"Doing something about it is the challenge. Nobody has found the formula yet... but if we can just find one, and make a start, the effort will be worthwhile," Harrington believes. He is so deeply into the effort that he confesses he turned around on the question of gubernatorial succession over this one issue.

"There is only one person who can bring the bureaucratic beast to heel... and that is the governor. The General Assembly can't do it. Nobody else can do it. Only the governor."

BILL NOBLITT

Report

"One problem is that too many state employees don't do what they are told to do. And nobody tells the governor what is really happening out there. That is what we are going to do."

"And it can't be done in just four years. It will take eight years to change things around," Harrington insists.

What are some of the problems, and possible solutions?

Harrington and Jenkins agree that all too often governmental employees point to obscure federal or state law or regulations as the reason for doing certain things—or not doing them. A research system is needed to quickly pinpoint whether such restrictions truly exist, or whether tradition is being followed.

Bureaucracies tell their bosses—the governor and the General Assembly—only what they want them to hear, and that which is favorable to the agency's aim. Data which can be relied on is essential.

Legislators often tie the hands of state employees with red tape in the law. That needs to be ferreted out and law rewritten to allow creativity and individual initiative.

Job tenure tends to produce state employees who become "protected and satisfied... that needs a complete study," Harrington said.

Experienced and qualified technicians on the state payroll find themselves living in fear of the whims of somebody who is not a qualified manager.

"I'm not saying I've got the answers," Harrington said. "But we are going to look for them."

Energy Man's Answers

Q—Why is there an energy shortage?

A—Because not enough dinosaurs died so they could rot and make oil to last us beyond the year 2040.

Q—Why don't we raise more dinosaurs and kill them and bury them in the ground so they will rot and provide oil for us?

A—Because the environmentalists won't let us kill dinosaurs. They are a protected species.

Q—What about foliage and other fossils? Why can't we bury them so we can have more oil?

A—It takes a billion years for vegetation and fossils to rot and turn into oil. Most people don't want to wait that long.

Q—What happened to all the oil we were supposed to East?

A—That oil is going to be shipped to Japan and we will get the oil that Japan would ordinarily buy from the Middle East.

Q—Won't that make us more dependent on Middle East oil than we were before?

A—No comment.

Q—What does President Carter propose to do to solve the energy crisis?

A—Declare moral war on it.

Q—How do you fight a moral war?

A—By taxing people who use gasoline. He expects to raise the price of gasoline by five cents per gallon until people use less of it.

Q—Won't that be a burden on people who need their automobiles to go to work?

A—They will get rebates providing they don't have gas-guzzling cars.

Q—How will I get my rebate?

A—By filling out IRS Energy Form 1987E listing your name, address, Social Security number, number of dependents, as described in Paragraph C. You will add the weight of the car to gallons of gas consumed, and then divide the total by the number of cylinders you have in your engine, and then multiply this figure by your earned income, making an allowance for state and city taxes as described on page eight of the amended IRS Energy Form 1218, Article 3A. This figure will then be noted on page three, line 6B and subtracted from your date of birth on line 6C. Once the form is filed, no later than April 15, or unless you ask for an extension, under the IRS Energy Act S-304 you will receive a rebate of as much as $50 or pay a penalty of $200, which of course can be appealed.

Q—Will the oil companies benefit from the President's plan?

A—Only to the extent that the price they will receive for their "new" oil will be competitive with what we are now paying the OPEC nations.

Q—Does this mean the price of gasoline will go up for the consumer?

A—Does the sun rise in the morning?

Q—What is a gas guzzler?

A—A gas guzzler is any car that gets less miles to the gallon than the car you own at the present.

Q—The Supreme Court just ruled that you could spank children in school. Does President Carter plan to spank people who drive gas guzzlers?

A—Not at the moment. But the Department of Energy as a standby plan in case its goals on the purchase of small cars are not met. They would set up a Government Spanking Bureau and before you would be permitted to buy a big car you would have to go there and get 20 whacks on your backside.

Q—There are some people who like to be spanked and who might buy a big car just to get beaten. What will you do about them?

A—The government has their names in a computer, and if it finds out they bought a big car just to get spanked they will be refused the privilege and will be asked to pay an excise spanking tax instead.

A Lake And Hill For City

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
FARGO, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota's largest city doesn't have a hill. Ed Clapp is going to build one.

The City of Fargo also lacks a lake. Clapp says he's going to fix that too.

This east-central North Dakota city of 60,000 is located in the fertile Red River Valley. The terrain around here is mostly table-top flat — the city's elevation is 900 feet. An arrow-straight horizon stretches unbroken for miles.

Clapp, 58, a retired Army officer and director of a local bank, is a Fargo native. "I've lived all over the world," he says.

"I figure this is a good town for children to grow up in, but it would be a lot pleasanter to live on a lake and be near a recreation area like a ski hill would provide."

Clapp, an artillery officer in World War II and the Korean War, plans to take clay soil from his land at Fargo's south edge and build a 100-foot-high hill from it.

The holes left by the departed dirt will form three interconnecting lakes ranging in size from 12½ to 15½ acres, he says.

But there's a problem connected with hill-making in Fargo. The hill might sink.

"There's quite a bit of moisture in the Red River soil," says Clapp. "Engineers are afraid that when we put a big pile of heavy clay on top of it, the ground beneath will act like jelly and pop up some place else."

"So we're going to put up a 40-foot test hill — about 450,000 cubic yards... We'll let it stand a year to see what happens so we can anticipate what a full-sized hill will do."

If it works, the cost of the big hill — containing about a million cubic yards of dirt — will be about $750,000, Clapp estimates.

There will be additional costs for a ski lodge, snowmaking equipment and landscaping on the 20-acre site. Clapp says the Fargo Park District "will accept the ski area for a public park."

40 Years Ago Today

In fear that a bomb might be disguised as a wedding gift, police maintained close scrutiny of packages for the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Police take each parcel from Tours' post office to Mrs. Simpson at Chateau de Cannes where she gingerly inspects the senders' addresses.

If she does not recognize them she instructs the officers to return packages unopened.

Preparations for the marriage, meanwhile, seemed virtually complete for the ceremony soon after Edward's brother, George VI, is crowned in London next Wednesday.

The first game of the Coastal Plain League to be played on the local diamond will take place here tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. at the Third Street School park.

The official league season gets underway this afternoon, with the Greensies meeting Ayden in that city.

WASHINGTON TODAY

Re-Run Of National Agony

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well, our long national nightmare is back — the Watergate agony in televised rerun.

After nearly three years, it is like an instant replay. The same man is out, and he hasn't stopped arguing with the umpire.

No crime, no impeachable offense, said Richard M. Nixon in the first of four interviews that will pay him at least $1,923.08 for each televised minute.

It is the same story, with the same flaws, based on the same selective memory that Nixon recounted before he resigned from the presidency in the face of likely impeachment conviction.

That is when Gerald R. Ford pronounced the national nightmare over, only to have it and the pardon he granted Nixon haunt him throughout his own White House days.

Interviewer David Frost paid Nixon $600,000 and a cut of the television profits for the retelling that began with Wednesday night's broadcast.

Nixon used to tell the story for nothing as he fought futilely to save his presidency.

Nothing he says now is likely to change minds that were made up against him long ago, or to shake the support of those who stuck with him through scandal and resignation.

It is easy to poke holes in Nixon's self-serving account of his own downfall, and to criticize the man himself. But it doesn't advance the case.

After all, Nixon has virtually confessed, not to the original impeachment charges, but to his own, modified version of them.

He denies obstruction of justice on grounds that he sought "pure political containment" of the scandal, and that this was not a corrupt motive.

He admits that he lied. He admits that he did not meet his responsibility as president to see that the laws were enforced.

That, as amended by the accused, is at least two out of three of the impeachment charges the House Judiciary Committee lodged against him.

More to the point now is the question of Nixon's future.

"My political life is over," he said. "I will...never again have an opportunity to serve in any official position."

Maybe I can give a little advice from time to time."

He's tried. Three times he has offered to brief President Carter on his contacts with world leaders.

Carter says Nixon has written him several letters "and we have exchanged telephone calls."

It is evident he would like to do more.

There are three more 90-minute interviews to come, and during those programs, Nixon talks about the subjects he likes best, about his foreign policy, the opening to China and the effort at detente with Moscow.

The reaction to those programs, and the climate they create may determine how far Nixon can try to go in reemerging publicly.

For now, he is part of the past. It pays well — first the interview fee, then the memoirs for which he is said to be receiving $2 million.

But Richard Nixon always wanted more than money.

Strength For Today

COMRADSHIP UNDER GOD

Many people, if asked to define the church, would start out by saying that it is an organization. But every word of the New Testament protests against this interpretation. In fact the church is so little of this that our Lord left the earth without establishing any sort of organization other than a band of disciples.

We are told in the second chapter of Acts that on the day of Pentecost following our Lord's ascension, the Holy Spirit fell upon about 120 persons and constituted them the Christian Church. The Church, therefore, is a spiritual body, a supernatural creation. The organizations of the different branches of the Christian Church simply act as agents of the Most High in effecting his purposes among men.

This lays upon us a solemn responsibility. God's hand brought the Church into being and his mighty power still sustains it. Therefore, membership in the Church is a great honor.

Jimmy's Kind Of White House

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hamilton Jordan, one of President Carter's key aides, has said isolation is a problem at the White House.

"It's like being in a big submarine over there," Jordan told a day-long meeting of Democratic campaign contributors last week.

Whether Jordan was entirely serious is another matter. He made the remark following publication of a newspaper report, widely unadmired among top White House assistants. That report likened Carter's work habits to those of the President's old Navy boss, Adm. Hyman Rickover, "father of the nuclear submarine" and a celebrated martinet.

When Jordan took the floor at 2:42 p.m. he announced he would not have time to make a speech because "I have an appointment with President Rickover at 3."

Jordan, who has a reputation for often being inaccessible, was asked by one contributor, "how does one get to see you?"

"Next question," he replied. As laughter subsided he suggested that a call to his secretary might help.

Another questioner suggested that some of Carter's early actions involved more symbolism than substance. Jordan's reaction:

"It may be symbolic but I don't have a limousine. But I get out in the morning and catch a damn cab, so it seems substantive to me."

Carter appeared before the same audience and indicated he remains interested in the peanut business, although a trust arrangement has been set up to isolate him from such concerns.

When Henry Melgin, a North Carolina farmer, told Carter he raised peanuts and had sold some to an Italian buyer, the President immediately asked, "Are peanuts up?" He was assured that goober prices are rising.

A luncheon guest of Vice President Walter F. Mondale was puzzled to find at his place a napkin bearing the monogram "SR." Unfolding the napery, he discovered the letters were encircled by the legend, "Southern Serves the South."

Mondale's press secretary, Al Eisele, was at a loss to explain how a napkin from the Southern Railway reached the vice president's table. He suggested, "It's just part of this administration's austerity program."

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, spurred by urgings of its people, have headed the church toward new, broadened efforts for faith, peace and social justice.

A five-year "plan of action," born of a grass-roots consultation, got a preliminary go-ahead, in part, at a closing session Thursday of a three-day meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

against contraception and for backing ordination of married men and women.

"As bishops, we cannot compromise Catholic teachings," they said, declaring the proposals unacceptable.

Nevertheless, on a motion by Archbishop William D. Borders of Baltimore, the bishops asked "theologians to join us in a serious study of the issues" behind the Vatican's recent declaration against ordaining women.

Ponder Where To 'Find' God

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Through the evolving circumstances of history, the locale of God seems to shift about in the human viewpoint—from the heavens above, from crusading armies to feats of science to the privacy of individual contemplation.

Where is he to be found now? The question, and the changing perspectives of time and cultures, were examined by Christian and Jewish scholars at a conference at the University of Chicago Divinity School. They sounded a common theme—that the modern age tends to focus on a new setting of transcendence.

Each generation has "its own way of looking" at reality, said Rabbi Lawrence Hoffman of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City. He said an older generation sensed "a lofty and majestic God" in awesome dimensions, but nowadays he is increasingly conceived in more intimate, inward terms.

"Today's young people seek religious expression through relationships community and personal," he said.

That intangible, greater-than-self existence that seems to come about through inter-personal exchange and sharing was cited by several participants as the zone in which the contemporary generation seems best to realize the presence of an "Other"—of God.

"The Relational Revolution," the new orientation is termed by the Rev. Bruce Larson of Waco, Texas. He sees the current emphasis on the primacy of inter-personal forces as a reaction against a tide of depersonalization.

The late Jewish philosopher Martin Buber held that through human encounter and inter-action, through the community of "I" with "Thou," there emerges an in-between reality beyond both lives, a "glimpse through to the Eternal Thou."

It is along such paths suggested by Buber and others of similar emphasis that the modern consciousness seems most attuned to recognizing divine presence, said the Rev. John T. Pawlikowski of the Catholic Theological Union in Chicago.

The conference there was sponsored by the university's Divinity School and the organizational arms of Reform Judaism, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Rabbi Sanford Seltzer of Boston said that in the recent past, people tended to look to the "God of science" as the center of highest wisdom to solve problems and "provide all our needs." Even religious institutions yielded to that perspective, he said, and "began packaging themselves, talking and acting like the technocratic and corporate world" around them.

But the exaltation of technology, he added, has been shattered by the tromp of events—the Nazi holocaust, the atom bomb, erosion of the earth's resources, poisoning of the air—and people became disillusioned with the "God of materialism, technology and the computer."

Britons Give Carter Warm Welcome

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON, England (AP) — Jimmy Carter, making the first overseas visit of his presidency, basked in a welcome of cheers and flags in northeast England today and saw George Washington's ancestral home before heading into the hard bargaining of a weekend economic summit.

The warm-hearted people of the cradle of British industry made Carter an honorary "Geordie" — the nickname for England's northerners — and waved American and Confederate flags in 20-deep ranks along the road as Carter rode into this old town.

"Everything always happens in London. We're absolutely thrilled that the president of the United States wants to come and visit us here," said June Thompson, echoing the enthusiasm voiced by thousands of others.

"He's a real nice chap, he is — a gentleman," declared glassblower Norman Davidson, 43, after making a large chemical flask for Carter's edification at a branch of the U.S.-owned Corning Glass Co. in nearby Sunderland.

Carter stood in the din and 100-degree heat of the furnace room for the demonstration and then moved outside to receive a souvenir blown glass sculpture of St. George and the Dragon.

From the grim factory area Carter and British Prime Minister James Callaghan drove to this quaint village to visit Old Hall, the manor house where the ancestors of America's first president lived from 1183 to 1613.

Callaghan and his wife, Audrey, had greeted the President after Air Force One brought him from London for a 4½-hour visit to nearby Newcastle, a coal and shipbuilding center and sister City of Atlanta, Ga.

For his day in the country, Carter donned a special blue suit whose pinstripes were the tiny initials "J. C." in vertical rows. It was made from cashmere wool cloth given to Carter by Callaghan — another J. C.

— during a recent visit to the United States.

As several thousand of the curious craned their necks for a look, Carter planted a ceremonial tree in the Washington town common. A little boy presented him with a miner's lamp — a symbol of one of this area's main industries.

Later, as the two leaders departed for London and their weekend talks with the leaders of Canada, Japan, West Germany, France, Italy and representatives of the European Common Market, rain began to fall on what had been a sunny spring day after four days of clouds.

The most thorough security precautions ever arranged in the area were not apparent to the eye as Carter stopped several times to shake hands with residents who yelled greetings and reached out for him.

Lord Mayor Hugh White of Newcastle told Carter at a massive ceremonial gathering: "Mr. President, sir, you are a Georgian. You have now become a Geordie." Northerners are called Geordies because they supported King George II, the George after whom Georgia is named, in England's 18th century Jacobean wars.

Carter delighted the Newcastle crowd with a regional greeting, actually a soccer fans' cheer: "Awa' the lads" — up with our boys.

Callaghan praised Carter for "hard-headed common sense with an idealism that has given a new thrust" to the United States.

The sightseeing tour provided Carter with a day of relaxation before his round of summit meetings Saturday and Sunday.

The President, who is staying at the U.S. ambassador's residence in London, on Thursday moved some of his top advisers, including Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, out of the posh Claridges hotel and into the lesser, though still comfortable, Britannia.

submitted by the Traffic Commission were approved after discussion. Approval was given for the extension of "No Parking" on both sides of Fifth Street, 150 feet east of Elm Street, and on Elm from Fifth to Sixth; the designation of "No Parking" from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m. on S. Harding Street from Fourth to Fifth Streets;

Placement of stop signs at the southern and northern approaches to the intersection of First and Pitt Streets; increase of the speed limit on Greene Street from First to Dickinson Avenue from 20 miles per hour to 35 miles per hour; and for the establishment of a loading zone on the west side of Cotanche Street between Fifth and Reade Streets in the neighborhood of Belk-Tyler.

The Council, with Councilman William Hadden opposing the vote, denied the recommendation to designate "No Parking" from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m. on both sides of Reade Street between E. Fifth and E. Fourth Streets.

A proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinance which would require vegetation islands in parking lots was referred back to the Planning and Zoning Commission for action. In referring the matter back to the commission, which recommended denial of the initial amendment, the Council stipulated that a 30-day limit be placed on the new work by the planning board.

Cox said that he did not think the planning commission was against the concept of the amendment when it recommended denial but was against the way the ordinance was drawn up. He recommended that the board only be given 30 days to come up with the new regulation.

Approval was given to a proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinance defining dine and dance establishments. Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller voted against the amendment, noting that the measure was more stringent than he thought it would be.

Cox explained that the amendment puts dine and dance establishments in a non-conforming use status in the downtown section. No special use permits are allowed for the establishments under the ordinance and therefore no additional businesses of that nature will be added in the section.

Cox, referring to the businesses as "beer joints," noted that the amendment was the "only way I know of to get rid of them."

Hadden said that the Council wanted to prohibit the proliferation of the businesses.

Caldwell explained that the concern of the city was that the extreme congestion of people, as in the case of a nightclub, gathering, poses a threat to life and property.

A third amendment, regarding the notification of property owners who adjoin proposed rezoning acreage, was also given the approval of the Council.

Officers Named By Pitt Safety Council

Carl Whitfield, field representative for the Governor's Highway Safety Program, was elected president of the Pitt County Safety Council Thursday.

He succeeds Ed Askew as president.

John Watson of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Ambulance Service was elected vice president and therefore program chairman for the year.

For the 25th year, Mrs. Polly Dail will serve as secretary.

In Thursday's meeting Gerald R. Fleming, professional engineer and chief of occupational safety and emergency planning for the N. C. Department of Transportation spoke to the Council.

He told the functions of his office as they relate to more than 14,500 employees in the D. O. T. "These employees are involved in such varied occupations as construction of buildings, bridges and roadways, landscaping, equipment maintenance and the operation of a ferry fleet," he said. "We devise and implement plans for the evaluation of hazards and a set of rules for management to insure compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act requirements."

He also described emergency planning in case of national disaster, another function of his office.

The Safety Council will meet again Thursday, June 2, at 12:30 p. m. for a luncheon meeting at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Visitors are welcome.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

"WE WAITED A WEEK AND STILL COULDN'T GET ANY SERVICE"

You might have heard this comment from friends who just couldn't get parts or service when they needed it. The biggest problem a service customer can have is to wait and wait. Then he's told the parts were not available and he will have to bring his car back.

Another big complaint of service customers is how the service is performed and how much it costs to get a relatively small item repaired. Our mechanics are factory trained. They know your car and are specialists in repairing Toyotas. They can, and will, do the job faster, better and get it right the first time. We never stop training them and they never stop learning. Most important of all is that they have the best parts supply available to them in the industry. Better than any other manufacturer.

So, when you bring your Toyota in to an authorized Toyota dealer, you can be assured of the best parts availability. No guess work. And no substandard parts being installed in your automobile.

WHAT ABOUT THE DIFFERENCE IN MECHANICS AND PARTS?

There is the same big difference in specialization in automobiles as there is in medicine. In medicine your life could depend on your specialist. In automobiles, whether your car runs or not, depends on your specialist. Toyota mechanics are factory trained technicians. They know your Toyota best. They also can repair it quicker, more efficiently and usually for less money. Most important of all, they are trained to do it right the first time.

The genuine Toyota parts they use are not the so-called "universal parts" Toyota parts are built to the same highest quality standards that the car is. They are the best parts your dealer can buy, and in the long run, we believe the most economical. If you had a fine color TV set I am sure you would want the same excellent quality parts and picture tube that give you the good picture you have, instead of substandard, or universal parts. Genuine Toyota parts are the same as those that were designed for the car and installed when it was built.

Your Toyota dealer sells quality cars and then services them with trained, expert technicians and genuine Toyota parts. We want your car to last longer, run better and be a source of pleasure to you. So when the time comes for you to consider another car, it will be another Toyota. Please come see us soon.

Sincerely,
Jim Moran

Arrest Seven In Probe Of 2 Local Break-Ins

Greenville police this morning arrested seven persons on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with two break-ins here earlier today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers were investigating a break-in at Cox Armature Works on Memorial Drive at West End Circle when a patrol car discovered four persons at the scene of a break-in at Barnes Motor Parts on Dickinson Avenue at West End Circle at 2:47 a.m.

The chief identified the four found at the Barnes break-in as Brain Daniel Waters, 23 and Debra Riggs Waters, 18, both of River View Estates, Joyce Ann Brann, 17 of 602 Mumford Rd. and Clarence Howell Jr., 44 of 207 Columbia Ave.

Cannon, who said the four were charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with that case, reported entrance to the building was gained by cutting a lock from a door. Five water pump motors valued at $100 each and four cases of oil valued at $52, reportedly had been taken from the Barnes Building.

Further investigation led to the arrest of three other persons in connection with the Cox break-in which was discovered at 1:30 a.m.

Charged in connection with the Cox incident were Arthur Lee Brann Jr., 21 of 602 Mumford Rd., and Willie Glenn Anderson, 17 and Murjil Lander Anderson Jr., 18, both of 1709 Smith St.

Cannon said entrance to the Cox building was gained through a garage door window. About $84 in cash and a quantity of parts were reported taken from the Cox business.

Bertie Runs Off With Track Crown

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Bertie Senior High School turned what was supposed to be a tight battle for the Division I track crown into a runaway yesterday as the Falcons easily outdistanced the rest of the field.

By the time all 16 events had been completed, the Bertie thinclads had piled up 173 points, to Wilson Fike's 127. Wilson was supposed to have challenged Bertie for the title, but the threat failed to materialize as the Titans didn't perform as well as expected.

Northeastern of Elizabeth City finished third with 94, while Rose High School was far back in fourth with 42. Rocky Mount was fifth with 32, followed by Northern Nash with 23.

Nine records fell in the meet, with only one current record holder extending his mark. Greg Artis of Wilson, who was the lone double winner in the meet, set two records. His triple jump leap of 49-0 broke the mark of 46-1 1/2 set last year. He also snapped the 1975 long jump mark of Rose's Lindberg Morris of 21-9 with a leap of 23-5.

Bertie's Quetton Watford broke the high jump mark with a leap of 6-7 1/2, a half-inch better than the old standard of 6-7 set by Bertie's Armstead Gilliam in 1975.

Mike Meads of Northeastern won the shot with a record toss of 55-3, breaking last year's record of 54-11, held by Rose's Doug Paschal. Paschal's discus mark of 145-4, also set last year, was surpassed by Reggie Speller of Bertie at 146-1.

Verlim Williams broke the mark of Delbert Powell in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.53 seconds. The old record was 9.6, and both runners were from Northeastern.

Bertie's Walter Bond won the 220 in 21.65 seconds, snapping the old mark of Rose's William Joyner of 21.8, also set last year.

Bertie won both of the relays in record time. The 880 mark of 1:29.8, held by Northern Nash, was lowered to 1:29.25, while the mile standard of 3:26.9, set last year by Bertie, was dropped to 3:25.85.

Overall, Bertie took first place in six individual events, as well as the two relays. Wilson won three, as did Northeastern. Rocky Mount and Northern Nash each had one winner, while Rose was shut out of the winners' circle.

Those runners meeting state qualification times will compete next Friday in the Northeastern Sectional at East Carolina University.

Ken Brett Won't Have To Check Papers For Brother George's Day

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

George Brett could not look at brother Ken Brett ... and Ken Brett will not have to look at today's newspaper.

"I look in the paper every morning to see how he's done, but I guess I can skip tomorrow's paper 'cause I already know," Ken said Thursday night after George tagged him for a pair of doubles in the Kansas City Royals' 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Not only did George's second double drive in what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning, it sent Ken to the showers.

"I didn't even look at him. I couldn't," George said. "I'd be the last one to want him to get hit hard like this. I'm always pulling for him and he's always pulling for me."

Hal McRae and Amos Otis also had two hits apiece for the Royals while Otis and Al Cowens homered and Mark Littell notched his fourth save with strong late-inning relief.

Ken gave up 10 hits in 62-3 innings, including George's first double in the fifth. George scored on a single by McRae.

"I want to see him go 0-for-4 every time he plays the White Sox," Ken said. "I play for the team, with a team concept, and so does he."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's cooled off the New York Yankees 5-2, the Toronto Blue Jays edged the Milwaukee Brewers 9-8 and the Boston Red Sox downed the Seattle Mariners 5-2.

A's 5, Yankees 2
Mitchell Page's two-run homer in the first inning and a two-run triple by Bill North in the second backed Vida Blue's 10-hit pitching as Oakland ended the Yankees' five-game winning streak. The A's quickly jumped on Catfish Hunter, who was making his first appearance since being injured on opening day.

Besides his homer, Page singled twice, stole two bases and made two outstanding plays in left field.

Blue Jays 9, Brewers 8
Ron Fairly's solo homer with two out in the seventh inning broke a tie in a weird fog-delayed game. Fairly homered off Bill Castro, capping the seasaw battle which saw the lead change four times.

The Brewers had taken a 6-4 lead with four runs in the fifth inning as fog rolled into Toronto's waterfront Exhibition Stadium. Charlie Moore led off with a triple which right fielder Fairly lost in the fog and Von Joshua singled him home.

With one out, Cecil Cooper drove the ball to straightaway center field but Gary Woods never saw it until it was over his head. The ball rolled to the fence and Cooper circled the bases for an inside-the-park home run.

The fourth run of the inning scored on a two-out walk and a fog-aided triple by Sixto Lezcano which fell between three Blue Jays. Play was then halted but resumed after a delay of one hour and Toronto regained the lead with three runs in the bottom of the inning. Otto Velez delivered two runs with a single and the other came home as Fairly bounced into a double play.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 2
Two-run homers by George Scott and Jim Rice backed Fergie Jenkins' seven-hit pitching for Boston. The Red Sox' barrage came after veteran Diego Segui had blanked Boston for five innings on just two singles.

The Men's Member-Only Tournament will be held on May 14-15. The Men's Member-Guest Tournament will be held on June 18-19.

Signups for both tournaments are now underway.

Grifton Golf and Country Club

Bill Isner recorded a hole-in-one on the seventh hole at the Grifton Golf and Country Club. The ace came on the 127-yard hole with a six-iron.

Playing with Isner were his wife, Connie, and Bill and Lorraine Smith.

Two eagles have been recorded during the past week. Gerald Morris eagled the par-five 487-yard third hole, hitting a four-wood to the green on his second shot. Playing with him were Freddie Powers, Steve Rogers and Don Cheung. The other eagle was on the par four second hole, by Ron Hardison, who was playing with Cliff Adams.

The club will switch the configuration of the club layout shortly, with the present third hole becoming the new starting hole.

Bannister Learns Why Chicago Is Nicknamed

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Rookie pitcher Floyd Bannister of the Houston Astros now knows why Chicago is called the Windy City.

Bannister took a beating from Mother Nature and the Cubs Thursday, surrendering wind-aided three-run homers to Manny Trillo and Jerry Morales in the first two innings as Chicago built an early lead en route to an 8-7 victory over the Astros.

"Pitching in Wrigley Field with the wind blowing out is a new experience for me," said Bannister, who developed his craft in the less hectic climate at Arizona State University and was the No. 1 selection in the amateur draft last June. "I made a few mistakes and got the ball up. Normally, I'm a low ball pitcher."

Cubs Manager Herman Franks knows all about that capricious Wrigley Field breeze. "You're leading 8-0 and they come back with seven," said Franks. "That will give you a heart attack."

Or, if you stay in the wind too long, like Bannister did, it could give you a loss.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles slugged New York 7-2, Montreal ripped San Francisco 7-1, and Philadelphia downed San Diego 8-5.

Dodgers 7, Mets 2

The wind also must have been blowing out at Dodger Stadium. Dusty Baker walloped a two-run homer, then Ron Cey added a slump-snapping grand slam in a seven-run fifth inning, helping Los Angeles rout Tom Seaver and the Mets.

Cey had been hitless in 15 at-bats before connecting for his 10th homer of the year and raising his National League-leading RBI total to 33.

Rick Rhoden, who also singled in a run in the Dodgers' big inning, won his fifth straight while Seaver lost his first after four victories.

Expos 7, Giants 1

Steve Rogers used his arm and bat to beat San Francisco. The Montreal right-hander scattered nine hits and drove in two runs with a pair of singles.

Rogers singled home the first Expos run in the second inning and delivered another run following consecutive doubles by Del Unser and Gsry Carter in the fourth.

Dave Cash also drove in two runs for Montreal.

Phillies 8, Padres 5

Rookie left-hander Randy Lerch won his fourth game for Philadelphia and San Diego dropped its 10th in the last 12 starts.

Fourth-inning singles by Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt ignited a four-run Phillies rally. Then, when the Padres cut the deficit to 5-4 in the seventh on Dave Winfield's fourth home run of the year, Schmidt tagged a two-run shot, clinching the victory.

Winfield drove in three runs for San Diego with his homer and a single.

Lions Run By Jaycees

The Lions rolled to a 15-1 victory over the Jaycees yesterday in the North State Little League.

The win left the Lions with a 2-0 mark, while the Jaycees are now 0-2.

Troy Hudson gave up only three hits to the Jaycees, all in the first two innings.

The Jaycees struck first, getting their run in the first. Toby Fisher singled and moved up on an error. Lewis Fletcher doubled him in.

The Lions came back with six runs in the bottom of the first. Patrick Rand walked, as did Marshall Rand. Troy Hudson reached on an error, scoring Patrick Rand. Steven Staton then hit a three-run homer. David Jester kept it alive with a single and Allen Smith got a hit. Chris Evans reached on a fielder's choice that scored Jester, and another brought in Smith.

Two more crossed in the second as Hudson singled and Staton again homered.

The Lions then added four more in the third and three in the fifth.

Staton, in two games, has now hit four home runs.

A-G Gains Victory

WHEAT SWAMP — Ayden-Grifton High School gained a 12-5 victory over North Lenoir in a girls' softball game yesterday.

The Chargerettes pushed over three runs in the second inning to take the lead. North Lenoir later took a 5-4 lead, but two in the sixth and six in the seventh sewed it up for Ayden-Grifton.

Danielle Elks pitched the win for the Chargerettes. Shonda Brock led the A-G hitting with three, while Pam Fulford, Vivian Ellis, Mary Rowe and Patricia Cannon each had two. Fulford and Ellis each had homers.

Rhodes and Franks each had two for North Lenoir.

Ayden-Grifton is now 4-8, and plays host to C. B. Aycock on Tuesday.

Unexpected Year From Pirate Mound Rookie

In the world of collegiate athletics, freshman are not counted upon heavily by their coaches to contribute a great deal to the team. Everyone knows they need experience and time to properly develop their talents before entering the big time.

But for Mickey Britt, a freshman pitcher on the East Carolina baseball team, the rule doesn't apply. The Hope Mills native did the job for the Pirates during the 1977 championship season, leading the pitching staff with nine victories against no losses.

Britt appeared in 12 games, starting nine of them. He completed eight, and pitched a total of 72 innings. His 9-0 mark was the best ever for a Pirate pitcher, giving him the record for the most wins in a season, and for the most consecutive wins.

He had one one-hit contest, and the lone hit came with just one out left to go in the game and was a fluke hit at that.

He gave up just 17 runs, 56 hits, while striking out 26 and walking 19. Of the 17 runs, just 12 were earned, giving him a sparkling 1.50 earned run average.

The 56 hits included just nine extra base hits, eight doubles and one triple.

The no-hit dream of Britt came close to being a reality, and was perhaps his biggest disappointment of the season.

"I started thinking about the no-hitter around the fourth inning," Britt said. "I kept telling myself to keep the ball down and not let them have anything decent to hit. Coach (Hal) Baird (East Carolina pitching coach) told me to relax and keep the ball moving. When I got down to the last batter in the seventh, I really thought I had it."

But it was not meant to be. The last man between Britt and the gem played the role of spoiler. He chopped down on an outside pitch and sent the ball bouncing high over the pitcher's mound. Britt could not reach it, and ECU second baseman Pete Paradossi grabbed the ball barehanded and threw to first. The play was close, but the umpire's decision was...safe.

"There was no way he should have gotten to that pitch at all," Britt lamented. "It was low and away and he just barely got his bat on it at all. Even so I thought he would be called out. On a similar play in the previous inning, our guy had a hit taken away when he was called out. I figured that that was the way that umpire called the close ones.

"After I lost the no-hitter, I concentrated on getting the last man out. I was pretty mad," Britt said.

The result was his fifth strikeout of the contest, and a one-hit shutout.

The Pirate pitcher is very modest about his early success at East Carolina. He says he is and he isn't surprised about it.

"I felt sure I'd win this season, but I didn't think that I'd be this consistent. I give most of the credit to the eight other guys. They have given me good support, and have gotten me out of some tight situations."

One of those tight situations came on the final play of the second game against The Citadel last Saturday night. With the Bucs leading 3-2, Britt gave up two singles. The next batter then slashed one in the hole between first and second. But first sacker Sonny Wooten chased it down in time to flip to Britt and end the game. The result was an outright Southern Conference title for the Pirates.

Britt also gives credit to his catcher, Raymie Styns, like himself, a freshman. "He and I think alike," Britt said. "A lot of times I'll be thinking of a certain pitch I want to throw, and he'll end up calling that very pitch. I guess we're on the same wave length."

The success of the freshman came as no surprise to pitching coach Baird.

"We thought all along that Mickey had what it takes to be a good pitcher," Baird said. "We've been pleasantly surprised with his progress, though. I predict that before he leaves East Carolina, he'll go down as one of the finest pitchers ever here."

Britt claimed that he had no personal goals for the year, aside from winning the Southern title. That is a reality now. So he could be thinking of a regional title next. The Pirates start play in that event on May 20.

Ewes Dump Aycock

PIKEVILLE — Greene Central's softball team scored three runs in the seventh inning to break a 6-6 tie and grab a 9-6 victory over C. B. Aycock yesterday.

The Ewes got a run in the top of the first, but Aycock came back with a pair in the bottom of the frame for a 2-1 lead. Greene Central went up 3-2 with a couple of tallies in the second, but the Falconettes scored three in the bottom of the third and added another in the fourth.

Greene Central tied things up at six with three runs in the fifth and then got three in the seventh, while holding off Aycock for the win.

Linda Bynum was the winning pitcher for the Ewes. Iris Pridden, Alberta Sutton and Regina Washington all went 2-4 at the plate for Greene Central. Pridden added a homer.

Aycock's hitting was led by Tammy Gardner (3-4) and Emily Pitt (2-4).

Greene Central is now 10-4 overall and 7-2 in Eastern Carolina Conference play. The Ewes play again Tuesday when they host Southern Nash.

Jabbar, Walton Clash Tonight

By JACK STEVENSON

AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former UCLA All-American centers Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bill Walton battle each other tonight in the opening game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference final playoff series and statistics show it could be close.

During the regular season, the Lakers won three of four meetings with Portland and Abdul-Jabbar averaging 25 points and Walton 24.3. Walton averaging 21 rebounds and Abdul-Jabbar 13.7.

In the four games, Walton did not appear in the third game and Abdul-Jabbar saw limited service in the fourth, a 145-116 rout by the Trail Blazers.

Both Walton and Abdul-Jabbar were No. 1 draft choices after finishing their collegiate careers. Abdul-Jabbar was chosen by Milwaukee in 1969 and was traded to the Lakers for the 1975-76 season. Walton was Portland's top choice in 1974.

The Lakers, using the home court advantage to its fullest, beat the Golden State Warriors 97-84 in the seventh and deciding game of their West semi-final series, winning all four of their games at their Forum home.

Rough Day For Pros

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Preston Trail Country Club played Thursday like a monster manufactured for the U.S. Open.

Winds gusting to 31 miles an hour, knee-high rough choking narrow fairways, new bunkers, lengthened tee boxes and mirror-slick greens turned some of the finest players on the professional golf tour into five-handicappers.

It was the toughest day to break par in the 10-year history of the Byron Nelson Classic — a feat only 10 players managed. Young Lyn Lott, a Georgian who has yet to win a pro tournament, overcame a sputtering start to birdie five of the last seven holes for a three-under-par 68 over the 6,983 yards of par 35-36 treachery for the first-round lead.

Seattle Slew's Downfall Might Be Pegged On The Jockey's Ride

By DICK JOYCE
 AP Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

"If Seattle Slew has a hole (flaw), Jean Cruguet will find it," said a trainer who preferred his name not be used. "Two minutes is a long time for Jean Cruguet to go without making a mistake," said trainer Johnny Campo, who made the statement loud and clear for all to hear.

Hardly talk you'd expect to hear about the jockey who has the mount on the odds-on favorite, Seattle Slew, in America's most famous horse race, the Kentucky Derby.

If the 103rd running of the Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday goes according to form, the French-born Cruguet will be $21,470 richer Saturday by guiding Karen L. Tayler's colt to a front-running victory.

Fourteen other 3-year olds were named Thursday to oppose Seattle Slew, who is unbeaten in six career starts and has three triumphs this year, including the Wood Memorial and the Flamingo Stakes. If all go to the post, the gross purse will be $267,200 with $214,700 awarded the winner. The jockey earns 10 per cent of the purse.

"It doesn't bother me," Cruguet said of the criticism being rained Thursday. "If people talk about you, that's okay. That means you're alive."

The 37-year-old Cruguet, who rode in France and served in the French Army before he began riding in the United States in 1965, is regarded as a journeyman rider compared to other jockeys he usually campaigns against in New York.

It's the third Derby for Cruguet, who was scheduled to ride highly-regarded Hoist The Flag in the 1971 Derby before the colt broke down. He wound up with a mount on Bold Reason that year and finished third.

The last time he was here, 1975, he rode Media to a fifth-place finish, prompting Campo to publicly blast Cruguet's ride.

As for Saturday's strategy when breaking from the No. 4 post position, Cruguet said, "I'm going to leave him alone and let him run his race. He's the best horse I ever rode. We don't have to go to the front at the start, but we'll be close to the pace no matter what."

Seattle Slew's trainer, Billy Turner, said his colt was fit but he admitted he was worried about what the track conditions would be on Saturday after a heavy downpour hit Louisville Thursday morning and more rain was forecast for Friday and possibly showers on Saturday.

Thursday's rain caused Turner to postpone the Bold Reason colt's final workout until today. "I think the four position is good," Turner said. "But I'd rather be in the 10th spot."

The track handicapper made Seattle Slew the 1-2 morning line favorite, but the odds are expected to drop when the more than 100,000 fans jam this historic track.

The Smiley Adams-trained entry of Run Dusty Run and Bob's Dusty was installed as No. 2 choice at 5-1. Run Dusty Diego, who'll have Darrell McHargue in the saddle, is the best of the entry, having posted three straight seconds, including the Blue Grass Stakes. Run Dusty Run goes from the No. 8 post.

For the Moment, the Blue Grass winner, has the No. 10 hole and will have Angel Cordero Jr. in the saddle and is rated at 8-1.

The rest of the field is listed as longshots. Affiliate is next at 15-1, while Hollywood Derby winner Steve's Friend and Wood runnerup Sanhedrin were rated 20-1 along with Western Wind, Nostalgia, Giboulee and Get the Axe. At 30-1 were Illinois Derby winner Flag Officer and the mutual field of Sir Sir, Best Person and Papelote.

North Slope Oil Lure Bordered

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is proposing that oil companies producing petroleum on Alaska's North Slope be allowed to increase their revenues by $2 billion over the next four years, but officials say that will not raise consumer prices.

The pricing rule, proposed Thursday by the Federal Energy Administration, would raise government-controlled prices to let oil companies charge an extra $2 per barrel for Alaskan oil.

The administration proposal came as a House committee was voting to deny U.S. energy companies the right to buy foreign oil directly, even from their own overseas subsidiaries. The House Government Operations Committee's action was seen as a sharp blow to huge U.S.-based oil companies and to President Carter's plans to establish a new Department of Energy.

Opponents of the proposal were seeking to overturn Thursday's 18-16 vote today, but committee aides said such a move might be difficult.

Under the new pricing rule proposed by the FEA, oil producers would be allowed to charge the extra $2 per barrel to refiners. That would give producers the extra $2 billion in revenues and keep the Alaskan oil prices below world oil prices, which now are $13.50 per barrel.

The administration says the added revenue will be an incentive for oil producers, and the price of Alaskan oil will still be low enough to get refiners to buy it instead of the more costly imported oil.

Federal officials say the change will not raise consumer prices and will not mean that oil producers will make outlandish profits.

The Government Operations panel was nearing completion of work on the President's energy department proposal late Thursday when it unexpectedly approved the amendment sponsored by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich. Supported by nearly every Democrat on the committee, the amendment would create a new Public Energy Administration within the proposed new department.

This agency would act as the "sole importing agent" for foreign crude oil and petroleum products.

Conyers said the measure would dismantle what he called a honeymoon relationship between U.S. energy companies and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

U.S. firms would be barred from dealing directly with the oil cartel under the proposal. Conyers predicted less expensive oil for U.S. consumers would be the result.

Meanwhile, the Senate Government Operations Committee was grappling with a compromise measure that would require the secretary of the new energy department to share his authority for setting domestic oil and natural gas prices with a three-member board.

However, under terms of the compromise worked out by the White House and senior committee members, the President would have the final say in resolving disputes between the energy secretary and the board.

Inaction In Ethics Body

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A special legislative committee supposedly keeping track of ethics in the General Assembly isn't doing anything, disgruntled members say.

The chairman, Sen. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, said he hasn't had time to do anything with the group. Besides, he said, "I haven't been told what my damn job is."

But some committee members blame the lack of activity on Lawing's lack of leadership. They say that tasks that are supposed to be performed in the current session are being left undone.

"Not one thing has been done," said Rep. R. Roy P. Spoon Jr., R-Mecklenburg, House minority leader.

"I don't think we've had any strong direction," said Rep. Harold J. Brubaker, R-Randolph.

Democratic members of the committee said the same things, though they were reluctant to criticize Lawing publicly.

The committee was set up in 1975 to enforce the Legislative Ethics Act, which requires disclosure by legislators of their economic interests. The committee also was supposed to prepare a list of "ethical principles and guidelines" for legislators to use in judging potential conflicts of interests they might have.

The committee spent its first year preparing a disclosure form for legislators. They were to concentrate on the guidelines in the current session, but so far committee members say nothing has been done.

U.S. Agencies Order Recalls

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Due to potentially harmful defects, federal agencies are announcing recalls of 2.2 million General Motors cars, 24,000 cases of green chili peppers and more than three million Mr. Coffee machines.

Although GM is the only automaker to issue a recall order so far, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said it also was investigating reported defects in Ford Motor Co. and Volkswagen vehicles.

The GM recall, the largest in four years, involves the power brake booster on 2.2 million 1976 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks, Cadillacs and GMC trucks.

The Volkswagen investigation, begun because of 59 owner complaints, centers on an alleged design weakness in throttle cables in about 370,000 cars. The weakness can result in loss of control over a vehicle's speed. The complaints include nine property damage accidents, five with injuries, the government reported.

The models being investigated are 1975-76 Rabbit and Scirocco; 1974-75 Dasher; 1973-75 Audi; 1975 Beetle, and 1976 vans.

The probe of 192,053 Ford

Econoline and Club Wagon models from 1975-77 was begun after three reports of accidents, two noncollision and one low-speed collision, in which plastic instrument panels allegedly shattered and left sharp edges that could harm occupants of the cars.

Meanwhile, the Food and Drug Administration ordered the recall of 24,162 cases of chili peppers manufactured last year, saying the canner's failure to control acidity during processing may enable bacteria to grow in the products.

The peppers are canned under various brand names, including Western Valley, Old El Paso, Mountain Pass, Million Star, Nobel, Silver Rey and Nugget.

The recalled chili pepper products can be identified by code numbers stamped on the can. Those involved in the recall will have a code number that ends with 76.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said the 1975 Mr. Coffee coffeemakers were being recalled because they may pose shock and fire hazards.

The GM recall, at no cost to consumers, involves replacing a charcoal fuel filter in the vacuum line between the engine and the power brake booster.

GM said it would notify owners of cars being recalled after the automaker conducts further tests and stockpiles filters to be installed.

North American Systems Inc. of Bedford Heights, Ohio, initiated the recall of the Mr. Coffee machines with letters G through L and the number 75 — for example K-75 — etched in the upper right hand part of the back cover plate.

If you own a Mr. Coffee machine with such letter-number combinations, write to P.O. Box 22132, Cleveland, Ohio, 44122. Give your name, address, telephone number and the machine's code number. The company said it will contact customers, telling them where to take the machines for free modifications.

Anti-Nuclear Protest Group Files Large Suit

By MARGARET NELSON
Associated Press Writer
CONCORD, N.H. (AP) —

About 1,300 anti-nuclear demonstrators who claim their confinement at state armories violates their constitutional rights have filed suit seeking freedom or an estimated $30 million in damages.

Meanwhile, the state Supreme Court was scheduled to rule today on a separate request by lawyers for the demonstrators being held in lieu of cash bail be released on personal recognizance.

The class-action suit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court claims food, living quarters, health care, eating and sanitary facilities at the armories are inadequate. The suit also claims that the demonstrators, who are charged with criminal trespass in last weekend's sit-in at the Seabrook nuclear plant construction site, do not have adequate places to meet with their attorneys.

Clamshell Alliance Attorney Anthony McManus, who appeared before the state high court Thursday to obtain the release of the demonstrators, said that the decision to request cash bail bond was a decision made by "the executive branch."

He said "it was a political decision, not a constitutional or a legal decision."

State Atty. Gen. David Souter charged that McManus was being arbitrary by asking the court to unilaterally grant personal recognizance. He said that individual court hearings on reduced bail were open to each demonstrator.

Also on Thursday, eight demonstrators were found guilty in Hampton District Court of criminal trespass by Judge H. Alfred Casassa, who fined them $100 and sentenced them to 15 days in jail.

Casassa set bail at $500 each pending appeal to Rockingham County Superior Court.

Souter rushed to Hampton after Casassa gave Murray Rosenblith, the first demonstrator to go on trial, a suspended sentence. Souter recommended 15 days in jail and $200 fines, calling the weekend demonstration "one of the most well-planned acts of criminal conduct in the state or the nation."

Rosenblith, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was fined $100 and was sentenced by Casassa to 15 days in jail but the sentence was suspended on the condition of good behavior. Casassa said good behavior means not trespassing on the Seabrook site again.

Rosenblith appealed his sentence to Rockingham County Superior Court.

Many Tar Heels Surprised By Intolerant Policies

By Dr. H. G. JONES
Curator, North Carolina Collection
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Around midnight on Feb. 24, 1875, Joseph Williams Thorne was expelled from the North Carolina House of Representatives because of his religious views.

Six months later his fellow citizens of Warren County elected him to the Constitutional Convention by nearly a three-to-one margin, and the following year he was elected to the state Senate.

Perhaps it was a surprise to the people of the state that their constitution, considered so liberal when it was adopted seven years earlier, disqualified from holding office any person who denied "the being of Almighty God."

Until 1835 Catholics were disqualified; until 1868 Jews were legally excluded; and still, even after the Civil War, there remained a religious qualification for officeholding.

The case relating to Thorne was prejudiced from the beginning. After all, he was a "carpetbagger," a Republican, a vegetarian, a teetotaler, a poet and a critic of evangelical religion.

Besides, he had written a pamphlet which, when read aloud by the clerk of the House, shocked the sensibilities of the pious and gave delight to the Conservatives who would use any issue against the Republicans.

Thorne was born in Chester County, Pa., on Christmas day, 1816. He married Mary J. Pusey and fathered three children. Originally a Quaker, he joined a splinter group, the "Society of Progressive Friends."

He was characterized by Congressman Washington Townsend as "a lecturer and debater on moral reforms...a radical reformer, seeking to reform the abuses and sufferings arising from war, intemperance, denial of female suffrage, and slavery, and anxious to promote the welfare of all men."

His reform zeal brought Thorne southward from 1869, and he settled first in Shocco Township and then at Ridgeway in Warren County. He became active in the Republican Party, and upon the death of William H. Williams, was elected to the House of Representatives in 1874.

His zeal also quickly got him into trouble, for Thorne wrote letters and articles on controversial issues. He championed the freedmen, condemned the Conservatives (as the Democrats were then called), and castigated orthodox Christians who, he charged, had "always stood in the way of just and equal liberty."

Such heated statements led to charges that Thorne was in contempt of the constitution. An infidel, an atheist, he was called.

Rep. Paul B. Means of Cabarrus introduced a resolution questioning Thorne's fitness for office. For nearly a month the Committee on Privileges and Elections wrestled with the matter.

The accused stoutly proclaimed his belief in God, though not necessarily the same one that his political enemies believed in.

When the matter was reported to the floor without a recommendation, Rep. Hanson T. Hughes of Granville County introduced a resolution charging that Thorne had advocated a sacrilegious doctrine "subversive to the principles of the Constitution" and calling for his expulsion.

Ironically, Hughes was a black and a Republican. Much of the debate centered on Thorne's view of God. The constitution, he insisted, only required him to believe in God; it did not require him to believe in someone else's definition of God.

When Rep. Platt D. Walker of Richmond County expressed dismay at Thorne's interpretation of God as a spirit without a body, Thorne handed him a copy of the Book of Common Prayer and asked him to read the first article of religion.

With grave embarrassment, Walker, an Episcopalian, hesitantly read, "There is but one living and true God, everlasting, without body, parts or passions."

When other members exhibited amazement that Thorne rejected the literal interpretation of the entire Bible, he asked them if they meant to say that the Jews, who rejected the new testament, and Martin Luther, who rejected two books of it, were unbelievers.

And when asked where hell was, Thorne answered, "You are at liberty to locate the disagreeable thing in any place you may judge most convenient to have it."

Neither cleverness nor reason could save the seat of J. Williams Thorne, however, for it was his politics rather than his religion that was at issue.

The Conservatives sought to portray all Republicans as dangerous radicals, and the "Great Ecclesiastical Trial," as Thorne later titled his booklet on the episode, was reported in papers across the state.

Nearly all Democrats voted to oust Thorne, and all but two Republicans defended him. By a vote of 46-31, his seat was vacated.

Back in Warren County, Thorne's supporters rallied around him. The following August they elected him by a landslide to the Constitutional Convention, and in 1876 they sent him to the state Senate.

Now, 100 years later, history records little more than a footnote about him. Says Manly Wade Wellman, "Thorne is almost unremembered in Warren County today."

Distribution By A General

By ROBERTA ULRICH
PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — When the normally wet Northwest begins to run short of water, as at present, who decides whether the region's 75 dams will be operated for the benefit of fish or farms or factories?

A general in the U.S. Army. Most of the multipurpose dams on the Columbia River system are under jurisdiction of the Army Corps of Engineers. Owners of the others, by agreement, cooperate in decisions made by the corps.

That puts the decisions in the hands of the corps' North Pacific Division engineer, Maj. Gen. Wesley Peel.

"What we really have to do," said Peel, 52, a native of Dallas, Tex., "is distribute the shortages."

"First," he said, "these dams must be operated in accordance with the purpose for which they were built. Most of them were authorized as multipurpose projects for power and flood control and navigation."

"Then we have to weigh the needs, desires and requirements of all those who use the rivers and try to lessen the adverse impacts of the water shortage."

Typical of the problems Peel will face throughout the drought is the most immediate one — passage downstream of salmon fingerlings expected to start about mid-April.

Fisheries interests want water released from dams to increase stream flows to levels which will give the salmon a greater chance of reaching the sea. Releasing the water would deplete reservoirs and decrease the capacity of the dams to generate power later.

"If we save the fish, we lose the power," Peel said.

Peel met recently with fisheries experts from states and federal agencies. "They presented what they thought would be the impact of various flows on fish survival," he said. "What we need now is a report from BPA (Bonneville Power Administration) as to the impacts of those proposed flows on the delivery of power ...

Once we get those, I will confer with the governors and the congressional delegations. Then we shall arrive at what is best for the people — we hope."

Attention: Staff Employees
Pitt Memorial Hospital
Stantonsburg Road
Greenville, North Carolina 27834

Dear Staff:

This letter is written to express my appreciation to each of you for making our moving of the Pitt Memorial Hospital so efficient. Without your efforts this move could not have been accomplished in such a short time.

Some of you worked without pay on your day off to pack boxes, direct our movers and even moved some things yourself.

Many hours of pre-planning went into this move and without this planning the move could not have been accomplished.

The nursing staff was just great. They were trying to assist us, while continuing to look after their patients who were always their primary concern.

Thanks to the staff in records and X-rays; one does not know the tons of records and X-rays that had to be moved and kept in exact order. You worked long and hard and I appreciate it.

Of course enough can not be said for the Emergency Room and Operating Room. To keep Emergency Rooms and Operating Rooms in two locations open at the same time is a mammoth job, but Saturday morning they did just that. You had breakfast at the old hospital and lunch at the new hospital.

I surely do not want to forget to thank the Lab people and the Pharmacy crew that worked so well with us. The Pitt and Greenville Rescue Squads and the Ambulance Service moved the patients with utmost care and, along with them, the Greenville Police and Highway Patrol worked to complete the transfer in a very short time.

From the doctors upstairs to the girls in supply they all did more than their share and the people of Pitt County should be ever grateful.

This was the largest moving job ever to take place in Eastern Carolina. I am very happy that we were able to have a small part in such a great undertaking as building a medical complex for the people of Eastern North Carolina.

Thanks again to all of you from all of us.

Sincerely,

Bill Taylor

W.C. Taylor, Jr.

P.S. I am still looking for the son-of-a-gun that set up this move to start at 4:00 in the morning.

If Money Buys Happiness, Samoans In Paradise

By ROBERT C. MILLER
PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI) — If money buys happiness, American Samoa's 29,000 Pacific islanders have to be the happiest of all Americans.

More than $250 million Washington dollars have come to those South Sea islands in recent years.

And happy they are, the singing, laughing Polynesians who populate six of the seven islands which cover 76 lush, mostly mountainous, square miles of what started out as a Navy coaling station 2,400 miles southwest of Hawaii.

But the Samoans say the more than $40 million a year budgeted for American Samoa is merely sieved through the islands. They say most of it returns home with the highly-paid bureaucrats sent from the U.S. mainland to govern them. For a community the size of Plymouth, N.H., Alliance, Ohio, or Covina, Calif., American Samoa certainly has the most expensive government in the world.

Instead of a judge and local court that you'd expect to find in Torrington, Conn., American Samoa has a High Court whose chief justice gets $49,000 a year.

He is assisted by translators, associate justices, a harem of lawyers, public defenders, attorneys general and the full trappings of a California or Wyoming State Supreme Court — the majority of them mainland political appointees.

The top job at Pago Pago's "city hall" is held by the governor, another political appointee, who gets paid $49,000 a year to run what one governor called "one of the last two dictatorships in the world."

Included in the fringe benefits are a uniformed Samoan security guard who, witnesses said, accompanies the governor's wife to the Burns Philip (cq) supermarket to push her grocery cart.

Neither Plymouth, N.H., Wilson, N.C., or even Milwaukee, owns an educational television system that cost the millions spent on the one to educate the children in American Samoa. No television station in the world has its transmitter atop a roadless 1,600-foot mountain reachable only by a cable car stretched across the beautiful deep water harbor at Pago Pago.

The cost of educating each Samoan child has to be the highest per pupil outlay in the United States, yet the local Community College graduates are not accredited to a single mainland or Hawaiian university.

The Samoans are not citizens of the United States, but are American nationals with unrestricted entry into Hawaii and the U.S. mainland where they often have difficulty assimilating themselves into the strange ways of the Americans and end up with their names either on the police blotter or welfare lists.

It requires some 3,000 employees to govern the 29,000 residents, most of whom live on the main island of Tutuila. The biggest private employers are the two tuna canneries, Star Kist and Van Cam, which employ 1,200 Samoans who pack some 20 per cent of all the tuna consumed in America.

However, union demands for doubling the $1.15 to $1.35 an hour wage scale, plus enticing low-wage offers from nearby Western Samoa have the government worried. Officials fear the two canneries may eventually move to either Apia or Tonga if their labor costs are increased.

Were West Mifflin, Pa., or Temple City, Calif., given the $45.4 million budget bestowed on American Samoa this year, these equally-sized communities would probably spend the funds on public improvements.

But despite the millions poured into the islands, American Samoa still has such an unreliable utility system that two years ago it had to borrow two power plants from the Army to keep its lights lit. Anyone who enjoys a Western-style house in Tutuila can expect to pay a $200 a month electric bill.

And despite a 10.35-inch average monthly rainfall in Tutuila, the main island periodically suffers through water shortages and enforced water rationing.

There are but 42 miles of paved and 40 miles of unpaved roads to show for the millions budgeted annually for public works. Most of Tutuila's roads were built during the 52 years the islands were run by the Navy who considered them so insignificant they sent a mere lieutenant, J.W. Post, down to run them in 1913.

Last year the 84th Engineers from Schofield Barracks in Hawaii achieved a feat that raised the eyebrows of even the most government-bemused Samoans.

They built what critics called the "nowhere road" from Fagasa Pass toward the television towers and then charged the government of American Samoa $500,000 for what had been described as a "training exercise."

The road washed out a week after officials made a triumphant jeep ride over the useless roadbed.

Have these squandered millions brought happiness to Samoa?

Definitely. Rare is the house — thatched roof or tin — that doesn't sport a TV, many of them color sets.

The American Samoa population that was held to 5,196 in 1900 by a variety of tropical diseases and high infant mortality rates is now more than 29,000. And every Samoan's birthright includes free medical treatment and, if necessary, hospitalization at the Lyndon B. Johnson Tropical Medical Center, one of the finest hospitals millions could build.

In addition to its nursery, intensive care unit, emergency room and fully-staffed surgery and medical center, a sound-proof room has been added for audiometry. The medical budget of $3,687,000 in 1975 is expected to be even higher this year.

Every Samoan has a built-in social security system under the traditional Matai system whereby he contributes to his village chief's welfare in return for a guarantee of food and shelter in his village for life.

Any rock-happy Samoan can travel to Hawaii or the U.S. mainland with the same freedom as a native American for a Pan American Airways fare that's the cheapest per mile in the Pacific. There he can seek improved employment or go on welfare with no restrictions other than those imposed on the local recipients.

If there's labor to be done which the American Samoan disdains, he brings over a relative from Western Samoa where a day's wages just about equals the hourly rate in American Samoa. One government official estimated there were 14,000 aliens in American Samoa, 12,000 of them Western Samoans, and 2,000 job-hungry Tongans.

There was but one suicide in 1975 in the entire American-administered territory. Beer consumption rose to nearly 707,000 gallons, an average of 24.3 gallons per man, woman and child, the highest intake of imported suds by any country without a brewery.

Blessed with an average monthly temperature that ranges from 79 to 81 degrees, a bountiful sea at their front door and a soil that would sprout fenceposts in their backyards, Samoans enjoy a most idyllic existence.

The six populated islands — including privately-owned Swains Island — are unique among the world's colonies. Not only has there never been any serious agitation for self-government, but it took years of prodding by Washington and four elections before the voters decided they wanted to elect their own governor.

A high government official conceded that there had been exorbitant amounts spent in these islands 14 degrees south of the equator, but he bristled at the suggestion it had been money poured down a South Pacific rat hole.

"The millions spent here are a drop in the bucket compared to the billions spent in Laos, Vietnam, Cambodia, Pakistan, Afghanistan and the myriad of other countries that accepted our charity and then spit on us," he said. "The money spent here has been spent on Americans, for Americans and the money has stayed in American hands."

Hospital Offers 'Homey' Setting

DENVER (AP) — The room is large and cheerful, bright with color and light from a big window that overlooks the city, with homes, parks and lakes visible through a heavy green cover of elm and oak trees. The Rocky Mountains gleam with snow in the distance.

In the room two young boys are making their beds, with time out for a little horseplay. In the living room a 5-year-old girl is having hair braided by an older girl as they watch cartoons on television. A boy waits for breakfast in the dining area, and several other children are in various stages of starting their day.

Two white-coated adults move through the rooms, tussling a head here, talking briefly to a child there. Except for the white coats, nothing in the scene says "hospital." But it is — a special, unusual hospital — and the children are patients.

The scene is a typical "family unit" at the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center, one of the nation's oldest — opened in 1899 — and largest centers for chronic respiratory diseases and immunological disorders.

The "family unit" represents a new concept, a departure from tradition in the treatment of chronically ill children, says Dr. Fred Leffert, co-director of clinical services, Department of Pediatrics, who explains:

"Separating children into rigid categories of age and sex, as they often are in hospitals, creates an environment strange and frightening to the child. It is foreign to his experience and can increase the trauma of illness and separation from family."

"In the Family-Living units, we create an environment in which children can feel that all-important, comforting sense of familiarity. In this setting, homesickness soon evaporates and the children develop a family-spirit feeling that helps them over the difficult lonely times."

The children live in apartment-like complexes that have been carefully "home-ogenized" to avoid any institutional appearance. A "family" may consist of anywhere from six to twelve boys and girls, from infants to 14-year-olds.

"The arrangement permits as much privacy as required — including temporary isolation for children who may have an infectious illness," Dr. Leffert said. "At the same time, it allows the children to interact and relate to each other much as siblings in a family. They share many group activities, play together, help each other with schoolwork, and develop a group identity that is mutually supportive."

Most important, Dr. Leffert feels, they continue to develop as individuals in society.

"Most of these children have severe asthma," he said. "That means they'll be in the hospital four, six, maybe eight months, or longer, while the asthma is being brought under control. Interruption of the routine of living for such periods of time can leave serious gaps in the social growth of children who have probably already missed a lot of living."

The "Family-Living" program at NJH is designed to offset this disadvantage. Children are encouraged to take part in sports and physical activity within the limits of their illness.

"Often they learn they can extend those limits and live more fully and actively than they thought," Dr. Leffert said.

"As they lose fear, they gain confidence, with a skilled and observant staff always ready in case they overstep."

The bidding: South West North East 1NT Pass 3NT Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Six of ♣.

There are days when it seems that the whole world is against you. However, closer analysis could reveal that you might have been your own worst enemy.

Even though he had a weak doubleton in spades, South elected to open one no trump. He thought that a minor-suit opening bid would lead to too many problems later in describing the hand. North, with 15 points, could have tried for slam, but his hand was absolutely flat and contained no useful fillers, so he settled for the "certain" game.

Declarer was so dazzled with the array of high cards which came down in dummy, he gave the hand not the slightest thought. He won the opening club lead in his hand and led a low diamond to the jack. East won the queen and returned the suit. Declarer won and now tried the heart finesse. This, too, lost, and East exited with a heart. Declarer rose with the ace and led a spade to the queen. East took the king and persevered with hearts.

All was not yet lost. If either clubs broke 3-2 or diamonds divided 3-3, declarer could still get home, but he was doomed to disappointment. He ended up with only eight tricks on a hand that broke most unkindly.

Yet for all the bad luck, the contract could have been made. Declarer missed his opportunity at the very first trick. From West's lead of a low club, it was reasonable to assume that the suit would not split. All declarer had to do was allow East to hold the first trick. If East had a club to return, declarer could still fall back on his other chances. However, if East did indeed start with a singleton club, he would not be employed. Which ever suit he selected to lead would present declarer with his ninth trick.

Our sharp-eyed readers will also note that had declarer made the correct technical play of first cashing one high diamond before leading low to the jack, all would have been well. When East won the queen, he would be employed and would be forced to lead into one of dummy's major-suit tenaces.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Thieves Put Italian Art Down Swiss 'Pipeline'

By NORRIS WILLATT
UPI — FINANCIAL TIMES
LUGANO, Italy (UPI) — Swiss border guards recently handed over to their Italian colleagues at the border point of Chiasso a small masterpiece in oils by Correggio (1494-1534), a nativity.

It had been stolen some time previously from an Italian art gallery. The Italian authorities were very discreet about what had become of it in the meanwhile. They merely reported that it had been "purchased" by a "foreign shareholder-owned enterprise" and deposited in a bank vault in Lugano.

Not quite an everyday event, but it happens often enough to arouse the suspicion that there is a regular traffic into Switzerland of stolen art works from Italy, and from other countries rich in such treasures, such as Greece.

However, Switzerland is believed to function more as an entrepot, from which eventually most of the stolen works are re-exported to other parts of Europe and, indeed, all over the world.

The Swiss police and authorities cooperate — where they can — with the Italians to block this traffic, and to restore any stolen property which comes into their hands. Every so often, the Italian police find a cache of paintings before these can get across the border. But overall, the law manages to make only the occasional haul.

One of their problems is that they are not dealing with amateurs, for the most part, but with specialists. Organized gangs operate from such centers as Zurich and Geneva, often on commission from prospective owners of the masterpieces they set out to steal. Known by such names as the "Etruscan Gang" and the "Anonymous Great Masters of Colour", they work very smoothly and expertly, and cover their tracks well.

This art drain has cost Italy an enormous amount in terms of a denuded heritage.

According to the official government publication, Vita Italiana, the number of such thefts during the late 1960s was running about 550 a year. By the early 1970s it had risen sharply. The total in 1973 was 8,250, a record.

This wholesale looting is certainly helped by the difficulty the Italian police have in watching the gangs.

Great works of Italian masters like Mantegna and Caravaggio, not to mention the lesser "names", are not only found in the famous galleries and big city cathedrals, but also in parish churches and local private collections. Often enough, they are protected by no alarm system and hang comparatively unguarded.

"One of the first charges of Italy's recently created Ministry for Cultural Property is to speed up a national census of Italy's patrimony. Another is to expand the recruitment of guards and custodians for official art galleries and museums. Their number will go up from a quite inadequate 4,500 to twice that figure during the next three years.

But even these measures are unlikely to discourage the art theft gangs. The rewards are said to be too attractive. The operators are often paid a "commission" based on the value of the stolen work, and may well be given it in advance by the eager client.

Who such clients are is also a well-guarded secret. If gangsters are caught, they rarely tell. The choice of Switzerland as a route is encouraged by the relaxed Swiss attitude to art smuggling.

Harvard Prof Claims America Colonized Long Before Christ

By DAVID HASKELL
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Europeans and North Africans populated parts of the American continent in unsuspected large numbers hundreds of years before Christ, according to Harvard University Prof. Barry Fell.

These early colonists carried on an extensive trade with the Old World from about 800 B.C. until cut off by the conquests of Rome. Some of their descendants live on here today, said Fell, a marine biologist and expert in ancient European languages.

Only recently, because of astonishing amounts of new evidence, has this lost chapter of American history been brought into focus, according to Fell and his growing number of supporters.

Fell developed his theories from ancient languages found carved into rocks in widespread areas of the United States. The writings match the ancient scripts known to have been used by pre-Christian Mediterranean cultures — evidence Phoenicians, Celts, Iberians, Basques, Libyans, and Egyptians lived here in rather large colonies, Fell said.

There are, however, those who insist there was no significant European presence in the New World before Columbus' voyage of 1492. Chief among them is Prof. Stephen Williams, head of Harvard's Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology.

Williams said Fell's claims are unfounded and ridiculous. The material upon which Fell bases his theories "just doesn't exist," Williams said.

Undaunted by this official opposition, Fell spends most of his time analyzing mounting evidence brought to his attention since his book, "America, B.C.," was published in 1976 by Quadrangle, the New York Times Book Co. Fell said this new data just reinforces his initial conclusions.

In the book, Fell wrote about materials indicating widespread occupation of North America by cultures directly connected to the Old World, not only before Columbus but before Christ. The epigraphs, or inscriptions, they left engraved in stone were generally ignored, discarded or discredited over the years by those who did not know how to tell what the markings really meant, he said.

"The inscriptions are written in various European and Mediterranean languages in alphabets that date from 2,500 years ago," Fell wrote.

"They speak not only of visits by ancient ships but also of permanent colonies of Celts, Basques, Libyans and even Egyptians.

"They occur on buried temples, on tablets and on gravestones and on cliff faces," Fell said. "From some of them we infer that the colonists intermarried with the Amerindians, and so their descendants still live here today."

Total hostility was the reaction of the traditional archaeological and the historical community, Fell said in an interview at his home here where he maintains a basement museum of artifacts.

Vast trade between Europe and the Americas? Before Columbus? It was a concept that went counter to everything every child in America has been taught from the first grade.

Though his theories do not now find favor with the establishment — which he said was the Harvard-Yale archaeological community — he expects it won't be too long before his finds are incorporated into American history courses.

"Ultimately, I know my theories will be accepted," said Fell, who frequently gives classes and conducts tours through his collection.

Among his recent visitors was African scholar Dr. Ivan Van Sertima whose own book, "They Came Before Columbus," details evidence he believes indicates black Africans made contact in America on at least half a dozen occasions. Busts of faces with Negro features, Sertima said, have been found among ancient Central American artifacts.

Fell succeeded where others before had faltered because of his unique linguistic skills, evolved from his early school-day contact with Latin and Greek.

While studying fossils on Pacific Islands (he's a native New Zealander), the marine biologist came across some strange rock inscriptions which he later determined to be Libyan. It was to learn the secret to these, and subsequently other, markings that Fell through years of study became expert in a half-dozen ancient alphabets.

One of these was Ogam — a type of linear script cut in grooves in stone, a system used by the ancient Celts who populated much of western Europe and the British Isles. Fell's familiarity with Ogam was a key to solving the mystery of the rock writings. Of all the attacks on his conclusions, no one has disputed the Ogam says what he says it does.

Independent of Fell, there existed a loosely knit group of people who believed as he did but lacked the conclusive argument that Fell's translations were to provide. Their paths met two years ago with the help of archaeologist James Whittall, considered by some an authority on New England's antiquity.

Whittall, a Harvard graduate in government who went on to study architecture, has established parallels between megalithic (stone) structures built by ancient cultures in Portugal, Spain and elsewhere in the Old World, and those discovered in New England. He has spent the last 10 years researching this subject on the Iberian Peninsula and elsewhere in the Old World and has the support of archaeologists over there.

Primary among the strange stone chambers and standing stones in the Northeast is the complex at Mystery Hill in North Salem, N.H.

In the summer of 1975, Whittall brought Fell to Mystery Hill, preserved by owner Robert Stone as an important archaeological site.

Fell's eye was trained like no other modern visitor. He looked for markings in the rocks like those he saw in the Old World and in texts about ancient languages. He found them and thus opened a whole new chapter in American history.

There at Mystery Hill he saw stone inscriptions, Iberic punice script and Celtic Ogam, referring to the sun god Bal. These had gone unnoticed because no one had known what to look for, Fell explained.

This link of a god common to the Celts and Phoenicians was significant to Fell. In Europe it was the practice of conquerors in the name of their own faiths and gods to obliterate the religious works of those they conquered. That obviously did not happen here in America.

Fell said it reinforced theories the daring Mediterranean mariners carried the Celts here to trap furs and mine copper to be shipped back to Mediterranean kings and merchants.

Whittall recently learned of two anforetas — small vase-like storage jars used by ancient Iberians — found in the Bay of Castine on the coast of Maine. Whittall believes they were dropped there by ancient mariners from Spain.

Near Boston on the Mill River lies a stone which warns that a burial ground is nearby. The inscription, according to Fell, is in Iberian writing.

Also found throughout the Northeast are huge boulders perched on three smaller rocks. Long dead and almost forgotten cultures built the same sort of structures in the Old World, said Whittall. The American Indians, he said, were not stone builders.

Based on this and other materials which have come to light, Fell concluded Celts occupied New England and related North American sites for some seven centuries from about 800 B.C., on, and that voyages to and from Europe continued at least until the era of Julius Caesar and Augustus.

The Celts were followed by other Mediterranean cultures who left their record in stone throughout the Northeast, in fields in Pennsylvania, along the Delaware River and the Mississippi River, on cliffs in Oklahoma and deep in some caves in Colorado, to mention just a few.

The stone inscriptions were more common than realized, and when Fell's theories began to spread, this evidence began to be brought to his attention in astonishing amounts.

"When American archaeologists first began to send me inscriptions for decipherment and translation, I was astonished to learn that such documents exist here," Fell said.

His previous work had been on ancient tablets and cave inscriptions in the Old World, records of sea peoples of some 3,000-4,000 years ago.

"What I now began to receive from unimpeachable sources in North America were essentially the same types of documents, engraved in stone, and either excavated from some archaeological site, recorded from cliff faces, or photographed on massive rocks discovered by the early colonists.

"I had never seen such materials mentioned or illustrated in books on the archaeology of the Americas and indeed was oblivious of their existence," Fell wrote.

One controversial find, Fell said, is the Davenport stone — found in Iowa in 1874 and since condemned as a fraud and hailed as authentic. Fell said the inscriptions on the stone, used as a calendar, are written in Egyptian hieroglyphs, Iberian punice and Libyan.

Another, the Bourne Stone found on Cape Cod, Mass., records in Iberian script the annexation of the area by a mariner called Hanno. A king by the same name is known to have sailed from early Spain.

"Thus the truth has slowly come to light," said Fell. "Ancient history is inscribed upon the bedrock and buried stone buildings of America, and the only hands that could have inscribed it were those of ancient people."

The pioneers were the Celts and the Iberians of Spain and Portugal, Fell said. The Celts spoke a Gaelic tongue written with Ogam letters; the Iberians spoke a tongue similar to classical Arabic but written in Iberic script.

There are several American Indian dialects "derived in part from the ancient tongues of Iberia and North Africa," Fell said. The descendants of the peoples who brought those languages here may also be found among American Indian tribes, he says.

Also, Fell said Basque sailors left in Pennsylvania grave markers bearing their names. Further south, Libyan and Egyptian mariners entered the Mississippi from the Gulf of Mexico, penetrated to Iowa and the Dakotas and westward along the Arkansas and Cimarron Rivers.

They left behind stone-carved records of their presence. The discovery and preservation of much of this material was credited by Fell to American epigraphic (inscriptions) explorer Gloria Farley of Oklahoma.

She said the inscriptions, among other things, attest to the manner in which the early settlers buried their chiefs. For example, one translates into "Haga rests here." Others were used as boundary markers, she said, such as one found in Oklahoma which reads "Land belonging to Rata," apparently a Libyan colonist.

Dr. Don Ritchey, chief historian of the U.S. Department of Interior, Bureau of Land Management, recently contacted Fell about Ogam engravings deep inside some caves in Colorado.

Fell said Ritchey told him

although the Ogam closer to the entrance is more weathered, those deep in the cave "are as clear as the day they were cut."

An archaeologist named Salvatore Trento is making "exciting finds" of inscribed stones and other artifacts in the Middletown, N.Y. area. Trento claims to have examined hundreds of sites in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut which he believes could have originated some 2,000 years ago when Europeans established outposts here.

Even after Christ, foreigners were no stranger to American shores, according to some researchers. Venturous Chinese mariners apparently knew America's Pacific coast, perhaps about the same time Irish monks were occupying sites along the Atlantic coast, only a few centuries after Christ.

And the Vikings, the seafarers to which much of the inscribed writings had previously, but erroneously, been attributed, did leave both physical and written evidence of their own presence down the New England coast more than a thousand years after Christ, most experts agree.

After Columbus rediscovered the New World, Europeans returned to this continent, ignorant of the previous occupations by offspring of their own ancestors. They spread through the land and, occasionally, came across unexplainable stone structures and markings which looked like they could mean something, only no one knew what.

PROF. BARRY FELL, of Harvard University, claims Europeans and North Africans populated parts of the American continent hundreds of years before Christ. (AP Photo)
