

Reorganization Plan Adopted By City School Bd.

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville City Schools Board of Education last night approved a plan for executive reorganization at its regular monthly meeting.

Under the new plan, an assistant superintendent will serve as second in command and be responsible for the coordination of plant operations and maintenance, school food services, fiscal services and general administrative services.

A new coordinator of general administrative services will be responsible to the assistant superintendent, and will coordinate teacher certification and other administrative tasks.

A third new position, director of instruction, provides for a coordinator of the total instructional program. Responsible to the director of instruction will be the coordinators of elementary instruction, federal programs, pupil personnel services and exceptional child programs and secondary instruction. Leadership teams at each school will provide involvement for teachers in programming. The teams will be composed of teacher and counselor representatives, and will be responsible to the school principal.

The reorganization plan will serve as a goal toward which the Board will work. Personnel to fill the newly-created positions have not been named.

The Board considered several personnel changes. Resignations were accepted from Kemp H. Baldwin, William R. Cox, Carmen M. Dawkins, Martha B. Martin and Robert J. Alligood of Rose High School; Louise T. Griffith of E. B. Aycock; and Vivian D. Selby of Agnes Fullilove.

Johann E. Bleicher was named director of the Extended School Program. Principals for the 1977-78 school year will be as follows: Margaret White, Sadie Sauter; Bettie Sue Forrest, South Greenville; John Carstarphen, Third Street; Charles M. Dickens, Agnes Fullilove; Dr. Rexford E. Piner, Wahl-Coates; and Paul H. Rasberry, E. B. Aycock. No confirmations on principals at Rose, Eastern Elementary and Elmhurst have been made.

The Board authorized superintendent Glenn Cox to request from the Pitt County Schools Board of Education a list of all Greenville residents currently enrolled in county schools.

Energy-Saving Proposals Under Attack In Congress

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's plan to tax big inefficient cars and give rebates for small economical ones is drawing heavy fire from both Democrats and Republicans on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Along with the already controversial proposal for a standby gasoline tax increase, the "gas guzzler" tax and rebate plan doesn't stand "a snowball's chance in hell of passing on the floor," said Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn.

And Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the committee, predicts "substantial changes" will be made by his panel in the tax portions of the administration's energy program.

Four top administration officials were scheduled to testify before the panel today in support of the energy plan: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus and Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Ullman said that while there may be enough votes in Congress to pass the proposed tax on big fuel-inefficient cars, the related proposal to give rebates for fuel efficient cars "is in trouble." He said the proposal for a standby gasoline tax, which could hit 50 cents a gallon if gasoline consumption continues to rise rapidly, "has always been in trouble."

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal testified on Monday that the administration is not prepared to abandon either the controversial standby gasoline tax or the rebate proposal for small cars. Dropping these items "could unravel" the administration's entire energy blueprint, Blumenthal said.

President Carter called for a tax of up to $2,500 by 1985 on the least fuel economical cars and rebates of up to $500 for cars that get the best mileage.

Opponents say foreign imports could benefit most under the rebate plan, while the proposed gas guzzler tax would fall more heavily on the U.S. auto industry, which has traditionally made large cars.

Blumenthal said negotiations are underway with foreign governments to establish ground rules to make sure that the U.S. auto industry isn't put at a competitive disadvantage by the automobile tax-and-rebate plan. At the same time, these negotiations are designed to reduce the likelihood of possible trade retaliation by other nations if the rebates are not extended to imports, he said.

But Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., said the approach tries to accomplish through taxes and rebates "only what we expect of the auto industry anyway."

Rep. Martha Keys, D-Kan., claiming that rich people would have no trouble paying the proposed gas-guzzler tax, called for a law prohibiting manufacturers from making fuel-inefficient cars.

Not Much Help In Description

DETROIT (AP) — Two gun-toting bandits robbed the Checker Cab Co. garage of $2,340 but the victims had little to offer police in the way of descriptions.

They said Monday that one man, who weighed about 300 pounds, wore a nylon stocking over his head.

The other wore the headpiece from a gorilla costume.

1,200-Acre Forest Fire Controlled; Now Mop-Up

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP) — Firefighters have seized control of the flames that have blazed across 1,200 acres of coastal timberland since Sunday, when the fire was apparently deliberately set, a forest service spokesman said.

"We do have it controlled now," Ralph Collom, "fire boss" of the firefighters, said Monday. "We're continuing to do a mop-up job. There's still a lot of fire around the ditches."

Firefighters attribute their progress against the raging blazes to special irrigation equipment that was brought up from Kinston and Hyde County. The equipment was needed because the soil had caught fire. "This is organic soil," explained John Beyton, planner for the crew of 60 men battling the flames. Workers Monday moved the equipment along the roads and pumped water through the pipes to soak the soil. Beyton said the irrigation system drenched the soil similar to the way a rainstorm would.

The large aircraft tankers used Sunday remained idle Monday, but some of the smaller firefighting aircraft flew once or twice to hold back the fire line until the ground equipment could be moved in, Beyton said.

The blazes began as two fires that broke out Sunday afternoon in southern Beaufort County. The flames merged and spread swiftly into coastal Pamlico County, razing timber on the 1,200-acre tract, most of which is owned by the Texas Gulf Co., he said.

"We think the two fires were deliberately set. The fire towers spotted smoke in two separate areas, close together. There were way back in woods," Collom said. He supervised the firefighting operation from the fire tower at Grantsboro, near the center of Pamlico County about seven miles south of the fire's leading edge.

Officials said the hot, dry weather contributed to the spreading of the fire. Elsewhere in the state, over 800 acres of forest land were destroyed by more than 70 wildfires over the weekend, the forestry service reported.

The state forestry service has canceled burning permits in 13 eastern North Carolina counties because of the hot, dry conditions.

Action Completed On New Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tax bill that began as the centerpiece of President Carter's economic stimulus program is returning to the White House for final consideration. The President's signature would mean a new permanent tax cut for 46 million couples or individuals.

Those who get the tax cuts should see the changes in paychecks received after June 1.

Congress completed action on the bill Monday. The Senate passed it by voice vote without objection following a 383-2 vote in the House.

Although the bill contains business tax breaks that the Carter administration says are not needed, congressional leaders say they have no doubt that the President will sign it.

The major new tax cut in the bill would benefit only the 69 per cent of taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. By increasing the standard deduction, the legislation would cut taxes by $111 a year for a typical four-member family earning $15,000 a year.

A single person earning $10,000 would get a $110 tax cut. But two million single persons earning more than $13,750 likely would find their taxes increased by about $1 a week.

In all, American individuals and businesses would pay $3.1 billion less in taxes over the next 28 months.

In addition to raising the standard deduction to $3,200 for couples filing a joint return and $2,200 for single persons, the bill would greatly simplify tax returns for 95 per cent of the individual filers. In most cases, a taxpayer could figure his taxes simply by looking at a tax table and without computing any percentages or using multiplication.

The Internal Revenue Service says the more-generous standard deduction will make it more beneficial to 6.7 million couples or individuals to stop itemizing deductions. The changes will eliminate tax liability above that withheld for 3.3 million returns.

One section of the bill affects almost every taxpayer. It extends for one year, through Dec. 31, 1978, the general $35-per-person tax credit (or 2 per cent of the first $9,000 of taxable income); continues the special credit of up to $400 a year for poor working families, and lowers tax rates for corporations.

Sabich Parents Suing Claudine

DENVER (AP) — The parents of the late skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich have filed a $1.3 million lawsuit against Claudine Longet, who was convicted of criminally negligent homicide in Sabich's death.

The suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court here, alleges that Miss Longet acted with "malice, insult and a wanton and reckless disregard of Sabich's rights" in the shooting incident March 21, 1976.

The French-born entertainer is scheduled to be released from the Pitkin County Jail Wednesday after serving a 30-day sentence.

The action was brought by Vladimir Sabich Sr., 62, a retired policeman, and Frances Sabich, 64, who runs the post office in the couple's home town of Kyburz, Calif.

COFFEE DAMAGE
NEW YORK (AP) — Cold and windy weather has caused new damage to the hard-hit Brazilian coffee crop, the Brazilian Coffee Institute reported today.

Found Hanged In Jail

An autopsy will be performed on the body of a 41-year-old woman who apparently hanged herself in her jail cell here early today.

Chief Pitt County Deputy Brooks Oakley said that Gracie Moore Kennedy of Rt. 2, Box 641A, Ayden, was found dead in her cell at the Pitt County Jail at 4:58 a.m.

He said that the woman, who had been placed in jail at 3:20 a.m. on a charge of driving under the influence, apparently buttoned her sweater around her neck and fastened the back of the sweater to a metal hook on the wall.

Oakley reported that she was hanging from the hook when discovered by jail personnel. He added that she had been checked twice from the time she was placed in jail until her body was discovered.

According to the chief deputy, the woman had been arrested by police in Ayden on the driving under the influence charge.

Investigation of the incident is continuing by the Sheriff's Department.

Pitt Tech Referendum Bill Pending In House

A bill, authorizing the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to hold a referendum to determine whether Pitt Technical Institute should be converted to a community college was ratified last week by the North Carolina Senate and sent to the House for action.

The measure would give the Pitt board authorization to hold a referendum on the question without submitting the question of funding to the voters.

In the past several months, PTI officials have asked commissioners to support the proposed change. All the members of the Board of Commissioners have voiced support for community college status for PTI, but several have said they thought voters in the county should have a voice in the decision since a measure, which included a special tax for support of the school, was defeated several years ago.

A ruling by the North Carolina Attorney General several weeks ago indicated that the board had no authority to hold a referendum simply on the question of whether or not PTI should be converted to a community college. The ruling said under present legislation, the only question that could be submitted to a vote was the question of funding the change in status.

Commissioners then adopted a resolution asking that Pitt's representatives in the General Assembly seek to have a local bill passed which would authorize a referendum simply on the question of change from a technical institute to a community college.

Hopeful Candidate For Senate Seat Meeting The Public By Walking

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dave McKnight walked 280 to 300 miles to get to Greenville, from Manteo. He came by way of Elizabeth City, Edenton ... Washington, Grimesland, Blackjack, Shelmerdine, Calico, Ayden and Winterville and many crossroads in between.

McKnight, born and raised in Charlotte, resigned as an editorial writer for the Fayetteville Observer to begin campaigning for the U.S. Senate in 1978.

The 29-year-old Democrat, a Duke University History graduate who wrote for Durham and Raleigh newspapers before going to Fayetteville two years ago, began a campaign walk across the state at Manteo April 2. He plans to end the 1,300 mile trek at Murphy in October.

"The walk is a chance for me to meet a whole lot of people on a one-to-one basis before the more formal part of the campaign begins in the fall," McKnight said.

"It's a chance for me to talk about my principal concerns and hear their views on a number of matters as well," he said. "My emphasis has been on listening and learning as I prepare for the campaign. It's great exercise and a good way to meet people...especially in smaller towns and communities in the state."

McKnight's walk will cover about 50 of the 100 counties in North Carolina. The others he will visit at least once this year by car for get-acquainted visits, before the 1978 campaign gets into full swing.

"After six months," McKnight said, "I will have been more places on foot than some of my opponents will ever see by car," and noted that "I've seen an awful lot of snakes on the road...snakes on the East and bears in the mountains."

The theme of McKnight's campaign is, "we need to do more with less. We need to do more with less," the candidate said, "because of the increasingly scarcely energy supply of energy and raw materials in the world." And a principal issue as far as the economy is concerned, according to McKnight, is his desire to "rejuvenate small businesses in the economic system that we have."

Another issue is the "need to insure that the vital agricultural programs that we've had will continue, since they've for the most part worked so well for us...including tobacco."

"Overall the programs have worked well and helped the small farmer. To me the small farmer, just like the small businessman plays a very important role in our economy."

According to McKnight, "we need to do as many things as we can close to home, locally, efficiently, with a minimum of bureaucracy. Smaller units of economic enterprise help so much to increase local concern for local communities."

Changes in welfare programs also concern McKnight. "We need to simplify the program and tie it to work on jobs. We need to help people who need help...need to find work for those who can work."

Two other principal issues of the campaign, McKnight said, will be simplification of the federal tax code.

"One great thing about this walk," McKnight said, "it has brought me closer to truth in

Claim Seeing 'Sasquatch'

MISSION, British Columbia (AP) — It was seven feet tall, furry and lumbered across the highway, say the eyewitnesses. Exactly what it was no one can say, but the sighting rekindled visions of the legendary Sasquatch or Bigfoot.

The sighting on Sunday along Highway 7, 35 miles east of Vancouver, occurred as a Pacific Stage Lines bus driven by Pat Lindquist was westbound a mile east of Lake Erroch on the Harrison Hot Springs-to-Vancouver run.

The passengers and Lindquist caught, ahead of the bus, a glimpse of something they all described as a seven-foot tall beast of about 300 pounds with dark brown to black fur or hair and a light-colored face.

"At first we thought it was a prankster in a fur suit," said Lindquist, 28, a reserve Vancouver city policeman. "But people were shouting 'what is it, what is it', so I slammed on the brakes to have a look."

Royal Canadian Mounted Police described Lindquist as "very nervous and pale" when they arrived on the scene.

"The first thing I noticed was the smell," Lindquist said later. He called it "a horrible smell like very rotten meat. The bush was thick and I was pushing the branches apart when I saw it about 20 or 25 feet away. I just couldn't believe it."

"At first I was mad. But then I went to awe and then to fright and I began to shake. I couldn't stop shaking and then I got out of there."

The smell has been a common element in the reports from numerous people who claim to have been close to the Sasquatch, also known as Bigfoot.

Lindquist, who is 6-foot-2, said the thing before him was no more than seven feet tall, only "much heavier than I am."

"It had flat, flared nostrils like a monkey and large, wide eyes. It didn't make any sound except heavy breathing. It had a broad chest and it was heaving up and down."

"It could have taken two steps and grabbed me, but it didn't do anything. It didn't growl. It didn't show its teeth. It just looked at me."

RCMP Constable Robert Eyford said the passengers' descriptions were "consistent, they all saw the same thing." He said RCMP were taking the sighting "quite seriously."

ALPHABETICAL LISTING COMBINED

We in Farmville are very dissatisfied about the proposed format of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Phone Directory for 1977. We understand that the alphabetical listings in the books to come out this summer are going to have all the towns combined in one list. Imagine it when every Jones from every town is combined into one many-paged list! We feel our town is losing its identity in one more way, making each citizen more "just a number" than ever. We have petitions signed protesting the move and now have about a thousand names. We hope other concerned citizens will follow suit. Mrs. F. M.

Carolina Telephone Area Manager Don Collier confirmed that the listing will be combined in the next directory, which has already been sent to the printer as of May 11. Its system-wide policy to combine area phone books into one list. It's already been done in the Raleigh, Wilson and Rocky Mount areas, among others, he said. He maintains that it will make finding a particular person more convenient, since there will be only one place to look. He has met with Farmville leaders to discuss the change, but said he could offer them no hope of the action's being reversed. He said he has had little comment from any town other than Farmville.

He said there "may be" some savings from having the combined listings in both the individual directories and with Directory Assistance, and that, if so, the ultimate result would be savings in customers' rates.

He said he will be glad to hear from any customer disturbed about the change.

Susan D. McClintock, East Carolina University mathematics major from Kinston, has been selected the first recipient of the Pignani-Archer Mathematics Award.

Pignani and the late Mrs. Leone D. Archer, provides the sum of $100 to be awarded annually to the senior mathematics major who has accumulated the highest overall academic grade point ratio at ECU.

The award, established as a tribute to the late Dr. Tullio J. Pignani served as chairman of the ECU mathematics depart from 1964 until his death last September. Mrs. Archer was the mother of Mrs. Dannellet Archer Alley, who was a member of the ECU mathematics staff for 10 years.

Ms. McClintock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. McClintock of 2312 Woodview Road, Kinston, is a member of the university honor society, Phi Kappa Phi, and is vice-president of the mathematics honor society, Pi Mu Epsilon. She has also been chosen to receive the outstanding senior award in mathematics given annually by the ECU math department.

New Winterville Jaycee Club Honored At State Convention

ASHEVILLE — The newly organized Winterville Jaycees and its charter president Steve Evans were recognized with key awards here this past weekend during the annual convention of the North Carolina Jaycees.

The Winterville chapter, representing Population Division One, received the Henry Giessenbier Memorial Trophy as one of the six most outstanding Jaycee units in the state.

The award, named for the founder and first president of the U.S. Jaycees, is presented to the local organizations judged as having the most outstanding programs in each population division.

Evans, who recently completed his tenure as the club's first president, was cited as one of the top five local presidents in Division One.

The Outstanding Local President Award is given annually by the state organization to top club presidents throughout North Carolina.

Evans is currently serving as chairman of the board of directors of the Winterville Jaycees.

In addition to the club and president award, the Winterville chapter also received the Milestone Award as one of the top three first-year clubs in the state.

A third place award in the Parade of Chapters judging, which examined the individual and community development aspects of the chapter was earned by the club.

Other awards received by the Winterville group during the convention included: third place in Programming Award competition for individual development and community action; Double Up Award for doubling the club membership; second place for membership recruitment for the year; third place in personal growth judging; and Blue Chip Award given to the top 30 per cent of all chapters in the state meeting guidelines established by the state Jaycees.

David Hooks, newly elected president of the Winterville club, was named one of ten SPOKE Award winners in the state. The award is given to first-year Jaycees.

The Winterville Jaycees organized in September of 1976 and received its charter in October. Membership has grown from its initial 24 members to 54, according to Evans.

Mother Of 9 Honored

MRS. NAOMI STATON

Mrs. Naomi Staton of Wynne's Chapel Baptist Church, Bethel, was named Mother of the Year by the Pitt County branch of the NAACP Sunday.

Mrs. Staton, a resident of Greenville, is the mother of nine children. She will represent Pitt County next Sunday in the state contest, to be held at 2 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh.

Mrs. Viola Boyd of Phillippi Baptist Church, Simpson, was first runner-up and Mrs. Arnold Taft of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, Greenville, was second runner-up.

The contest was held at Phillippi Christian Church in Greenville. The Rev. D. D. Garrett presided and Mrs. Rebecca Norcott was mistress of ceremonies.

Monday Saw 2 Accidents

An estimated $850 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9 a. m. collision on 14th Street, 100 feet West of the Elm Street intersection when a truck driven by Linwood Earl Whichard of 201 Dellwood Dr. and a car operated by Robert Christopher Thacker of 103 Lakewood Dr. collided.

Police, who charged Thacker with following too close, estimated damage at $250 to the Whichard truck and $200 to the Thacker car.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to the Southern Rail Road overpass on Dickinson Avenue about 8:45 a.m. when a truck driven by Ashley Joe Garris of Ayden, attempted to go under the structure and a crane being carried by the vehicle struck the overpass.

Police, charged Garris with having an over-height load.

South Florida Blackout Due To A Faulty Switch

By CINDY ROSE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Buzzing dental drills fell silent. Elevators stopped between floors. Drawbridges gaped open, clogging major traffic arteries. People couldn't buy gasoline or even withdraw money from banks.

The blame for the chaos went to a faulty $50 relay switch that short-circuited on Monday and caused a blackout affecting almost three million people over 15,000 square miles in south Florida.

No deaths or injuries were attributed to the outage, which lasted seven hours in some places.

A dentist in Miramar, southeast of Fort Lauderdale, said he was fixing a man's mouth plate when the power went off.

"I was just to the point of smoothing everything out," he said. "He's going to spend the day with a very rough mouth."

Carolyn Cutting, a hairdresser, said customers were sent home in rollers. "It's amazing how dependent we are on electricity," she said.

The sudden loss of power kicked on emergency generators — except at Miami Beach's Mt. Sinai Hospital. Surgeons there successfully finished an open-heart operation by flashlight.

The outage also stopped pumps at service stations, cooled off food at restaurants and stopped registers at banks.

"We can't pump gas, we can't work on cars. Even our tools are power," lamented Jay Tillman, owner of a Miramar service station, during the blackout. "I tried to get some lunch and can't even get a cup of coffee."

"I can't make a deposit at my bank. I went down there and everybody's just standing around because their machines are all electric."

The short circuit shut down a nuclear-fueled generator at Turkey Point south of Miami at 10:12 a.m. (EDT), said officials of the Florida Power & Light Co.

For a shaky 12 minutes, automatic devices allowed other generating units in the giant utility's network to absorb the loss.

But attempts to keep the juice flowing failed at 10:24 a.m. as major plants toppled. Operators manually shut down one nuclear unit because of wide fluctuations in voltage. That triggered the automatic shutdown of five oil-fueled generators.

In short order, FPL customers from Marathon in the Florida Keys up the coast to St. Lucia, just north of Fort Pierce, were without power. The outage stretched across the state to Naples on the Gulf Coast.

Some were without power until shortly before 5 p.m. Others, such as those in Naples, were out for about 10 minutes.

Former Addict Leading Revival

The Rev. Mike Canady, 23, is conducting a revival at the Church of God at the corner of Spruce and Skinner Streets here through Sunday night.

Rev. Canady says he received "a deep deliverance through Jesus Christ after having been an addict of diversified drugs, including main line hard core ones, and a distributor-pusher of drugs for four years." He is now a student at East Coast Bible College in Charlotte and is a member of the "Pioneers for Christ" Evangelistic Team.

Special music will be offered, along with prayer for the sick.

Services begin at 7:30 each night.

Two Precinct Meetings Set

Greenville Precincts Six and Four will meet in their respective polling sites at the Fifth Street Fire Station and Boys' Club on Skinner Street on Thursday evening at 8 p.m.

Betty Speir, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, noted that two previous attempts to organize the two Greenville precincts on May 5 and May 12 were unsuccessful.

CAR WASH

The D. H. Conley Sophomore Class is sponsoring a carwash to be held May 21 at 9 a.m. at the Winterville Fire Department. The cost will be $2 for cleaning the inside and outside of the car and $1.50 for cleaning the outside only.

Saint Gabriel's School is sponsoring a fish fry at the school Saturday, May 21 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. All tickets are $1.75.

Sponsoring A 'Contest'

The Pitt County chapter of the Concerned Women for Justice is sponsoring a Miss Justice contest to be held Sunday at 5 p.m. at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church auditorium.

The contestants are: Flora Smith, daughter of Mrs. Flora Whichard of Simpson, who attends G. R. Whitfield School and is a member of Simpson Chapel Free Will Baptist Church; Bonita Crandol, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Crandol and a sixth grader at Wellcome Middle School;

Patricia Ward, 15, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Ward and a ninth grader at North Pitt High School;

Barbara Taft, 14, daughter of Mrs. Jessie Taft and a student at E. B. Aycock Jr. High; Sharon Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Harris and a student at Wellcome Middle School, where she is a member of the Pep Club; and Melanie Hope Streeter, daughter of Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter and a seventh grader at Agnes Fullilove School, where she is a member of the Career Club.

Elected To Post In N.C. Ass'n

Norman Wilkerson of Greenville was elected secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina Funeral Directors Association at its 90th annual convention May 10-12 in Winston-Salem.

Other new officers are T. Earl Yarborough of Charlotte, president; J. C. Sossoman of Morganton, president-elect; W. Paul Hayworth of Rural Hall, first vice-president; and Melton Caison of Tarboro, Ray Adcock of Spring Lake, Garland E. Smith of Moncure, Mark Lanier of Denton, Barney Hampton of Boone and Grier Ivie of Murphy, district directors.

Re-Zoning Is Given Okay

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Adjustments voted to amend the zoning ordinance to allow Mitchell's Funeral Home to locate in a residential area at a recent meeting.

According to the town planner, Bob Clark, the board found that the funeral home plans meet the required conditions set by the planner and board, and the funeral home will not subject injury to the value of adjacent properties. The funeral home will be located at the corner of Boyd and Mills streets.

The Board of Adjustments denied a request by Ester R. Smith for a variance in the zoning ordinance to allow the placement of a double-wide trailer at 604 N. Mills St. The board did however suggest that regulations concerning placing trailers within the town limits be considered for amendments in hardship cases.

Career Programs Put Students On Right Track

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Tapping alumni for job help may be the newest game on campus. In any event it can help liberal arts students who may be bright and self-motivated, "but really do not know what people do when they get out in the real world."

So says Beatrice "Bunny" Liberman, 37, who is Director of the Career Center which she established at Hamilton and Kirkland colleges, Clinton, N.Y.

At first the career counseling programs at Kirkland had used people in administration and faculty who had worked in other kinds of jobs before they were associated with the university. Using alumni presented the possibility of giving students a chance at job internships and placements, and that program was begun in 1974.

Kirkland, a girls' college, had graduated its first class in 1972, so there were only about 600 alumnae, most of whom were just becoming job-oriented. But the boys' college, Hamilton, founded in 1812, could provide considerably more alumni, Mrs. Lieberman explained.

"The good response to our questionnaire — more than 1,200 from Hamilton and 300 from Kirkland — helped us to develop several on-campus seminars and on-site seminars in the last three years."

Recently, career exploration programs in banking, accounting, management consulting, advertising, marketing and small business have been conducted in various New York offices of alumni of the two colleges, for the second year. They provide students with a close-up view of business situations in fields in which the students are interested.

Kathryn McDonald Nelson of New York, a '73 graduate and production manager in a publishing house, describes herself as "a career fledgling," but she has tried to assist a number of students.

"I have been able to tell them things about publishing houses that I hadn't known myself when I came into the business," she said, "For example, a lot of thought should be given to the kinds of books they would like to work with. If you get into a textbook division, it is hard to transfer to fiction. It's two different worlds — like Mars and Venus. I found out the hard way."

Kathryn had begun in the trade division and now works with medical books. If she wanted to get into another field now "this experience really wouldn't count. They divorce the two kinds of experience," she explains.

In addition to seeing students at her office for on-site job exploration, Kathryn has made two trips to the college to help with the career seminars. You can't get too involved, however, in explaining jobs to students who haven't really caught up with the ground work. You must decide how far you can go because "sometimes there might be a blank stare," she said.

Students are developing a lot of confidence because of the program, Mrs. Lieberman explained. They understand that it isn't really easy for anyone. It takes planning.

"They are being taught how to pull out of their liberal arts careers and recognize they are marketable. They are learning to think analytically and to relate to the world of work, no matter what they have studied," she contends.

Constance Belfiore, a 1973 graduate who went on to law school, is now judicial clerk to an associate judge in a court of appeals and is soon to begin an appointment as an assistant U.S. attorney in Washington, D.C. She credits the college with preparing her to stand on her "own two feet." She "wasn't very assertive," she points out, "but I learned at Kirkland that I could defend my well reasoned viewpoint against people who disagreed with me."

The present alumni program is mainly geared to students who have goals, Mrs. Lieberman explained. "Students are interested in what skills people use in particular jobs, what educational background was needed to attain them, and what a typical day may be in a job."

For students who do not yet have goals, there are courses in career development. Nearly 31 per cent are "undecided," which Kirkland's president, Samuel F. Babbitt, has described as "consistent with liberal arts philosophy which assumes that many undergraduates will shift goals during the course of their college years."

The aim is to get those students out to interview prospective employers.

"It is really the only way you can find out how to do it. You can't do it in the classroom," Mrs. Lieberman contends.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For some reason, Americans cannot work up a scrap of compassion for (a) a Mercedes with a flat tire, (b) a price increase in polo scorecards, (c) the woman who holds down the homefront while her husband travels.

The first two I could understand, but why pick on a woman who is bravely shouldering the responsibilities of both mother and father? The women assure me it is true. A friend of mine kept a log of her week just to prove a point.

On Monday, she went to a parent-teacher conference alone to be told her son stole paper towels from the restroom (the girls), wrote an obscene word in the dust on Mr. Gripper's car, and was flunking lunch. She said her husband travelled a lot and the teacher said she should be glad he was working.

On Tuesday, the dog got hit by a motorcycle, the house payment got lost in the mail and her daughter tried to crush a tin can with her hand like the bionic woman and required a tetanus shot. She told the doctor her husband travelled a lot and he said she was lucky she had a car.

On Wednesday, the television set blew a tube, the car developed a wheeze and she had to cancel a night out with the girls. Her mother-in-law said,

"be thankful you have the children."

On Thursday, as she was making a left-handed turn in her VW Rabbit, a car plowed into the back of her. As she sat there crying softly, "The rabbit died . . ." the rabbit died . . ." a police officer stuck his head in the window and said, "You're lucky lady. Nobody got hurt."

On Friday at the supermarket, so bored she was carrying on a conversation with a broom display, she went through the mechanics of shopping — lashing one kid to the basket, getting another out of the bean display where he "found" a hole in a bag of pintoes, and on finding the third had eaten an unknown amount of fruit, offering to weigh him and anything over 53 pounds, pay the difference. The checkout girl in noting all the convenience foods said, "You're lucky to have your husband gone a lot. At least, you don't have to cook big meals."

On Saturday, she car-pooled it to Little League, two haircuts, one dentist appointment, baton twirling lessons, the cleaners, the post office, and a birthday party. As she pulled in at dusk, a neighbor yelled over the fence, "You're lucky. At least you get out of the house."

On Sunday, she dragged the brood to church. As she extended a limp hand to the minister, he said, "Glad to see you. At least coming to church gets rid of the kids for an hour. Incidentally, if you sleep during the sermon, I'll understand."

He was the only one who did.

Clinic Aids In The Health Of Children

EDITOR'S NOTE — Kids at the Mary Hooker elementary school not only learn that they should brush their teeth, they brush them at their desks. They also get regular dental checkups, have loose molars pulled. It's part of an experimental program to bring health care to children who wouldn't ordinarily get it.

By MICHAEL W. MILLICAN

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Eleven-year-old Mark takes a break from schoolwork to have a tooth pulled. Three classmates stand beside the tilt-back chair and help the dentist yank a loosened molar.

Across the hall, 10-year-old Pablo is learning to brush his teeth with the help of a dental hygienist, and two doors away Alberto is given an antibiotic a doctor prescribed for strep throat.

The tiny clinic is in a red metal prefab building behind the Mary Hooker elementary school on Hartford's southwest side. In the clinic, a dozen or so children watch their friends being treated. Sometimes they help.

It's part of a three-year experiment by the University of Connecticut medical and dental school to learn how to improve the health of children. A central part of the program is participation of children.

At the Hooker school, more than 70 per cent of the children are from families on welfare, and most of the kids never see a doctor or dentist unless they are very sick, says Dr. Margaretta Patterson, who works in the clinic daily.

The most dramatic results so far have been in the dental program. "Many of these kids have lost their most important teeth before they are 10," Dr. Allen Hindin said as he prepared to drill a small cavity found in the mouth of a girl named Wanda. "When we started a year and a half ago, 40 per cent of the 700 kids in the school needed immediate dental work."

As Wanda leaned back in the dentist's chair, two friends helped Dr. Hindin. "The problem is credibility," Hindin said, who wears blue jeans and turtlenecks instead of a white coat. "If I hurt a child, it spreads like wildfire through the school. In dental school we were taught to hide everything, to bring the needle up under the chin so the patient can't see it. We don't do that here. We explain everything and show how it's done."

"We all get a kick out of being in a garage and watching the mechanic work on the car. We want to know what he's doing."

Dr. Joseph Constantine, who oversees the Hooker clinic for the Hartford school system, says federal studies show that fewer than half of the children who qualify for welfare-subsidized medical care are getting it. It just isn't there, either because of a backlog of work at public clinics or because private practitioners don't want to bother with welfare patients and the paperwork involved.

"What we're trying to do is take the care to the children by going to the schools," he says.

Other items on the agenda are review of fund-raising plans for the summer and meetings of persons elected delegates to county political conventions.

All members and prospective members are invited to attend the meeting.

ANAHEIM

DEAR ANAHEIM: A "boob" is one who makes a stupid mistake. An able-bodied person who would deliberately deprive a physically handicapped person of a more convenient parking place is worse than a boob. He's an inconsiderate, selfish hog. (P.S. He's also "handicapped"; he has a character deficiency.)

DEAR ABBY: I had a speaking acquaintance with an attractive but shy man for two years. He is 32 and I am 31. He has never asked to be out, but whenever we met at a church doings or on the street, he seemed glad to see me. About a year ago I got my nerve up and called him on the telephone just to talk. I couldn't get him to say much. About a month later I heard that he was joining the religious life. My heart broke.

After 10 months I heard that he was back home and had to give up the religious life because of illness. I wrote him a letter, welcoming him home, and invited him to a small party. He wrote back and declined.

I want so much to know him better. How long should I wait before I start in again? I'd give anything to get him interested in me.

INTERESTED IN HIM

DEAR INTERESTED: Give up. It takes two to tango, and apparently this man doesn't care to dance. And if he should change his mind, he'll probably want to pick his own partner.

STAY OUT OF MY KITCHEN
By Susan Sawyer

Please stay away from my kitchen
From my dishwashing, cooking and such;
You were kind to have offered to pitch in
But thanks, no, thank you so much!

Please don't think me ungracious
When I ask that you leave me alone;
For my kitchen's not any too spacious
And my routine is strictly my own.

Tell you what: You stay out of my kitchen
With its sodden, hot, lackluster lures—
When you're here, stay out of my kitchen
And I promise to stay out of yours!

DEAR ABBY: Will you join me in nominating for "Boob of the Year" those perfectly healthy, active (and usually young) individuals who park their cars in spaces clearly marked "FOR THE HANDICAPPED"?

Encouraging Population Trend

A University of Illinois professor Pierre DeVise sees future population increases in the United States taking place in cities with 50,000 to 500,000 population.

A recent Census Bureau report shows the nation's largest cities continuing to lose population, while the smaller cities showing the growth.

We couldn't have a better trend in our nation. Most of our largest cities are simply too large and all those millions of people living close together have created environmental and crime problems.

The problem has been compounded over the years because the large cities have represented votes and federal aid programs have encouraged the trends to further municipal bigness.

In our vast nation there is plenty of room for small cities to expand, while the large metropolitan areas have long ago been boxed in.

The federal government will still have to help the largest cities with their myriad problems, and it should. The emphasis should be, however, on helping the big cities become more efficient even as they lose population, rather than to try and bring in more people.

In no way should the federal government attempt to interfere with this healthy trend of our population choosing to live in smaller municipalities. It may be the most significant social movement of this decade.

Every Effort To See Justice Is Done

The State Bureau of Investigation has been ordered into the case of a Delaware student who was shot while travelling through North Carolina on Easter weekend.

Gov. Hunt and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten ordered the investigation after a Harnett County judge dismissed a case against a service station operator due to insufficient evidence.

The use of all SBI manpower and facilities is proper in this case. Every effort should be made to determine the evidence needed to see that justice is done.

THIS AFTERNOON

Seldom Deliver Tax Break

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Thurman Nelson of Bethel, down in Pitt County, has a problem. His is the same as many of North Carolina's elderly who find themselves regularly promised something, seldom delivered.

Let him tell what has happened, then let's explore what is now going on in the General Assembly about that.

"We keep hearing about the working people in the low income group getting a tax break, also about if you insulate your home you may get a tax consideration and on and on — this from the Federal Government," Nelson writes.

"I am going to send you some facts about what the North Carolina General Assembly has done for the retired Senior Citizen on a fixed income of less than $5,000 per year (man and wife).

"I am referring to having to report our Social Security as income (General Instruction Law 17) passed in the 1975 session effective with our 1976 tax.

Tax Doubled
"My tax was more than doubled as you can see by the enclosed information." The enclosed information shows that this did indeed happen to Nelson — and untold hundreds like him. More on that later.

"Yes, I insulated my home to save fuel and also to save on the high cost of heating," Nelson continues.

"But will the Federal or N. C. Government make this tax retroactive? I think not."

Nelson expresses his own conclusion about whether tax breaks for insulation will be forthcoming, and by all odds he is right on that score. The legislators and bureaucrats will doubtless conclude it would prove unmanageable to try to back up and help those who have already done the job.

On the other subject — the doubling of his local property tax bill — Nelson is also the victim of legislative fiddling with the state's homestead exemption for the elderly.

The General Assembly wanted to "help" the elderly, so the law allowed people with incomes below $5,000 to avoid paying local taxes on the first $7,500 worth of property. The law referred to income alone — exempting Social Security (and that picked up a bunch of other exclusions like Railroad Retirement which comes under the Social Security law), state employee retirement income (some figured that wasn't fair), federal retirement income (including military), but not excluding military disability pay.

From that surface explanation, it is easy to see that a nightmare had been created insofar as determining what is and isn't income; how much is counted or isn't; fair treatment for everybody (why should a government retiree be treated any differently than a retiree from private industry?).

BILL NOBLITT

No Exemptions

So the General Assembly decided to strike out all exemptions and make the law read "all income," and of course that hit Nelson in the pocketbook. His local property tax bill shot up nearly $100. Enough people were hit that local county and municipal governments took in about a million dollars more once the exemptions were ended.

Legislators and state tax officials alike concede the result of law change actually reduced benefits and penalized a number of elderly people — and that came at a time when inflation with one hand was pushing them to the wall; local property revaluations with the other were doubling, even tripling, the values fixed for local taxation purposes.

In fact, the whole idea of homestead exemptions for the elderly has been all but destroyed by revaluation and inflation. The typical elderly citizen is getting between $50 and $100 per year savings on his local tax bill from the much-heralded legislative attempt to aid them.

Now the General Assembly is at work on the situation once more. The House of Representatives has approved raising the income level to $10,000 from any source; with people earning less than that getting a $7,500 property exemption. The Senate is balking at that. The Senators seem to favor no income limits at all, but with the property exemption lowered to $5,000. Either way, local governments already losing $7 million yearly through homestead exemptions would lose another $5 million — and they're resisting that.

Right now there isn't an expert around who can say whether the individual elderly taxpayer will be helped or hurt by the legislative consideration.

THINKING OF HIM WHILE HE'S GONE!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Tennis & Constitution

William Proxmire of Wisconsin, the Senate's top-seeded hell-raiser, took off the other day on the topic of tennis courts. He swept game, set and match.

The senator awarded his Golden Fleece for May to the National Endowment for the Humanities "for making a $2,500 grant to Arlington County, Virginia, to study why people are rude, ill-mannered, cheat and lie on the local tennis courts." The grant, he said, was also to determine "why tennis players hog the courts and become frustrated when they have to wait to play."

Reading from the sponsors' application for the grant, Proxmire said the county proposed: (1) to hire the consulting services of a professor of ethics and philosophy, (2) to survey the attitudes of about 300 local tennis players, and (4) to conduct two public meetings "where among other things the professors guide the local tennis players in role-playing activities where they take the part of the suffering local tennis buffs."

Proxmire called the study "ridiculous," and noted that $2,500 represents the entire federal income tax paid by a typical American family. Wham!

The senator's overhead smash went out of bounds in one regard. The funds in question were allocated not by the National Endowment for the Humanities directly, but rather through the authority of the Virginia state board in charge of such things. Otherwise his shots landed fairly within the bounds of senatorial hyperbole. The study was indeed substantially as he described it. The county's recreation director, concerned that some local players had to wait four hours for a court, learned that the players were willing to try to monitor themselves.

"I thought that was fascinating," she said. So she put in for the $2,500 grant, and the money followed. Only $1,800 was spent.

So much for the story; and thank you, Senator Proxmire. The senator could perform an even more significant service if he would look into the constitutional justification for these follies. My guess is that he would find none.

In my own old-fashioned view, the power of Congress to tax the people and to spend the people's money is strictly limited by the terms of the WASHINGTON (AP) — A major nuclear conflict would destroy both the United States and the Soviet Union as great powers no matter what kind of defenses they erect, a congressional committee concludes.

The Joint Committee on Defense Production declared in a report issued Monday that the much-touted Soviet civil and industrial defenses would not provide the Russian population or industry with any reliable protection against U.S. strategic forces.

Nor could the United States satisfactorily protect its economy as a superpower, even if it spent huge sums of money constructing industrial defenses, the committee said.

"We said it doesn't matter who comes off the more bloodied, but whether either could continue to operate as a major power after a nuclear attack," said William H. Kincaide, the committee's staff director.

"We concluded neither could," he said.

The report mainly studied industrial defenses that attempt to protect the nation's economy in the event of a nuclear attack, rather than civil defenses, which try to protect the population.

"It doesn't seem to be either militarily or cost effective to put a lot of money into industrial defense since it can easily be overcome by selecting crucial economic targets that are incapable of passive protection," Kincaide said.

The 100-page report, the product of a year's study, concludes that the United States would waste its money by trying to match the Soviet's defense program against nuclear attack.

"By changing U.S. targeting plans slightly and by structuring our attack over a certain time period we could overcome any benefits they gained" from their industrial defenses, Kincaide said.

Even the three members of the committee who dissented from the majority report did not suggest that the United

One of the Hindenburg's riggers who was on duty close to the spot where the destructive flames burst forth from her stern gave the Department of Commerce investigating board his opinion today that a gas cell started the disaster.

Hans Freund, the only one of the dirigible's three riggers to survive, was the first witness called who was able to give any account of what took place in the stern when the fire occurred.

His story emphasized the speed and lack of warning which characterized the destruction of the Nazi dirigible.

The Greenies were unable to boost their standing over the weekend, losing to New Bern 5 to 3 yesterday and dropping the Saturday encounter to the same team 3 to 2.

Soviet Tactics On Spain

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MADRID — Intimidating tactics by the Soviet Union against Spain as it ends 41 years of totalitarian rule by military dictatorship and seeks admission to the Western community reached a momentary peak late last year when a low-ranking Soviet commercial attaché telephoned Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez and demanded an audience — at 3 a.m.

Although warned in advance that such an untimely demand on the Spanish head of government would constitute a diplomatic offense, the Soviet diplomat — Sergio Bogomolov — refused to back off. He had his instructions in a cable from Moscow, he said, and he would carry them out.

The instructions were forthwith to inform Suarez that the November meeting of the Warsaw Pact in Bucharest had adopted a three-point political doctrine, the third point of which had incited both the telegram and Bogomolov's rudeness: that no new members were to join either the Warsaw Pact (which would have to search far for any new participant) or NATO (which Spain, rid of Franco and moving toward free elections, very much wishes to join).

In the prime minister's house early that post-midnight hour an aide angrily informed Bogomolov that his diplomatic note would have to wait till morning. At 8 a.m. Bogomolov arrived at Suarez's residence with his message from Moscow. The prime minister refused to see him and the note was left with an underling, but its impact was profound: Spain's dedicated and thus far successful drive toward genuine democratic reform after four decades of fascism is being perceived in Moscow as both a threat — and an opportunity.

Indeed, the intimidating rudeness of Bogomolov (now established here as ambassador following restoration of full Spanish-Soviet diplomatic relations) is only the tip of the iceberg of Soviet machinations to block Spain's two external objectives: joining NATO and the European Common Market.

Yet, under present conditions, the Kremlin is unlikely to have any more impact on these two goals of the new Spain than Bogomolov had in his attempt to barge in on Prime Minister Suarez at 3 a.m. But conditions in Western Europe are in a dangerous state of flux, Spain particularly not excepted. The mere fact that Moscow is making such an effort has prospective importance.

The first Soviet scheme is to block Spain's entry into NATO. With three of NATO's Mediterranean members — Turkey, Greece and Italy — presenting varying states of political jeopardy to the alliance, the importance of Spain's future membership is brutally obvious.

Even without Gibraltar (under British sovereignty despite rising pressures here) Spain holds a key to the door from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean Sea, and the Mediterranean is home to the U.S. Sixth Fleet and the link to Greece, Turkey and the Middle East.

For now, Moscow's stick of intimidation of Spain over NATO is having no effect whatsoever, except as a possible inducement for more favored treatment by

To the editor:

I have heard that a large sum of money has been allocated to Greenville to be used for public buildings and roads in the Greenville area. I feel like some of this money should be used toward new facilities for the Greenville Rescue Squad. Being a former member of the squad, I feel qualified to speak on their behalf.

Relations between the firemen and rescue men are never as they should be. When a volunteer rescue man goes to the fire station to pull time, he is made to feel like he is out of place and not wanted. They have recently expanded their membership to include women, but there are no facilities for them to use when they are on duty. These men and women are dedicated and proud to be doing the citizens of Greenville a tremendous service. They take up their own time, training and working to save lives, because it is a very rewarding experience. I know by my own experience that this is true.

The Rescue Squad is currently answering about 1,600 emergency calls each month. All they want is a place they can call their own, along with a Chief of Rescue who makes the decisions regarding rescue work, rather than the Fire Chief doing it for them and I think they should have it. They call on us so rarely, yet when there is a life-threatening emergency, we are never hesitant to call on them.

To Some, It Is A Big Rip-Off

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Each year at annual meeting time a few caustic remarks are made about executive salaries and bonuses, but the noise soon fades because annual meetings, of course, are held but once a year.

This year the noise was perceptibly louder, and the message might be remembered a bit longer. Investors are irked by what some of them view as a management ripoff.

Their anger was especially evident at the Chrysler Corp. annual meeting, where they complained about bonuses granted to 1,500 key officers and other employees. The $18 million involved equaled the dividends of 217,000 shareholders.

After having had several dividend payments omitted in 1975, some shareholders — call them owners — felt more of those profits should have been directed their way.

Salaries, bonuses, opportunities to buy stock at below-market prices and other devices in the past year fattened total corporate income of some executives to more than a million dollars.

In a few instances in the past, bonuses were collected for performance that some shareholders thought might be recognized more appropriately by some form of penalty.

After retiring, many an executive remains on the payroll as a "consultant" with a guaranteed income, sometimes for life, even though he might never be consulted on anything substantive.

Consulting fees even have been granted to executives who were asked to leave.

Daniel Haughton, chairman and chief executive officer of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. during a period when it fell into deep financial problems and was charged with unethical payoffs, receives $75,000 a year for 10 years.

Benefits aren't always measured in cash.

Noting a line of corporate jets at the Augusta airport during a recent professional golf tournament, the Securities and Exchange Commission decided to learn whether work or play was involved. The decision is awaited.

In a highly publicized legal case, executives who were personally charged with making illegal payments defended themselves at company expense — in the amount of $850,000.

That case involved, among others, Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp. Explaining the decision to angry shareholders at the annual meeting last year, he said a firm of outside lawyers recommended the fees be paid because the executives acted in good faith.

The benefits don't end there. Club memberships, cars, suites and unlimited expense accounts are among other types of compensation.

Most shareholders, it would seem, might recognize the need for some degree of these

Strength For Today

HEARING UNPLEASANT TONES

Deaf people sometimes complain that they hear unpleasant tones with much greater clarity than the pleasant ones; and this situation distresses many deaf people. The explanation sometimes advanced is that they have lost the capacity to hear the lower, dulcet tones which give pleasure, but retain the capacity to hear the higher, harsher tones.

Actually, there are many people with perfectly good sight and hearing who have come to the place where they see and hear nothing in life but the unpleasant. Mention the name of a person, for example, and they can tell you immediately some whispered scandal or point out an unworthy trait in this person which you had never before observed.

These people should remember the words of St. Paul: "If there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." It is the duty of Christians to recognize and acknowledge everything good in their fellows.

Witness, On Tape, Says He Lied On Stand

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
BURGAW, N.C. (AP) — Alen Ray Hall, who testified last week he lied to convict the Wilmington 10 in 1972, returned to the stand Monday in a dramatic series of taped phone conversations and said he was lying last week to free them.

The taped calls from Hall, in the Onslow County Jail, to former Wilmington prosecutor James T. Stroud, were made last Thursday and Saturday, Stroud testified Monday. In them, a voice identified as Hall's said his original 1972 testimony against the 10 was true and that his recantation of that testimony here last week was false.

"It doesn't destroy our case, but I can't say we're pleased by it," James Fuller, an attorney for the 10, said after court recessed for the day. "But it really doesn't speak to our main point, which is the inducements that were offered for the original testimony," Fuller said.

led by the Rev. Ben Chavis, the 10 — nine black men and a white woman — are seeking to overturn their five-year-old convictions for arson and conspiracy, which stemmed from the burning of a white-owned grocery during racial unrest in Wilmington in 1971.

The tapes, and testimony about an earlier, unrecorded call from Hall to Stroud on Tuesday night, came as the state began presenting its case in the second of the post-conviction hearing.

Hall took the stand last Tuesday and continued his recantation testimony Wednesday, saying it was he alone who burned Mike's Grocery.

Judge George M. Fountain overruled the objections of defense attorney James Ferguson and admitted the tapes as evidence in the hearing, allowing them to be played in open court.

Midway through the first recorded conversation, Hall asked Stroud if he was being recorded, and Stroud replied, "No." In the Saturday tape, Stroud told Hall of the recording. "Oh, no," Hall said.

Before telling Hall of the taping, Stroud asked him, "Everything you testified to at the trial, was that true?" Hall answered, "Yes, it was."

Stroud asked, "Was any part of it false?" Hall answered, "No."

Hall's voice was often unintelligible when the recordings were played in court, but toward the end of the second tape when he had been told of the recording, it sounded emotional. Hall appeared to contradict himself again late in the Saturday tape when he said, "I am the one who burned Mike's Grocery."

After the trial was recessed, members of the Wilmington 10 Defense Committee said outside the courtroom that Hall called their Washington, D.C., headquarters three times last week. A spokesman said Hall also placed a collect call to the mother of Chavis in Oxford, N.C., Saturday, but the call was refused because she was not at home.

Most of the talking during both tapes was done by Stroud. In the first tape, Hall said, "Right," when Stroud said, "You and I know everything you testified to the other day you one false story right after another."

Also in the Thursday tape, Hall said he had falsely named Stroud's former boss, Wilmington Dist. Atty. Allen Cobb, as offering with Stroud promises of early release from prison in exchange for Hall's testimony.

"I felt like it could get you off the hook," Hall said. State attorney James Blackburn said during a court recess that the secret recording was not illegal because federal law requires only that one party to a conversation must be aware of the taping. There is no state law on wiretaps, he said.

State attorneys also said the tape recorder was provided by the State Bureau of Investigation and taken home by Stroud when he went to Gastonia over the weekend.

Stroud was on the stand all day Monday and denied promising Hall and another witness early release in exchange for their testimony, as they had charged last week. Stroud also denied giving Hall and Jerome Mitchell any papers to study before testifying except copies of their own earlier statements.

Stroud denied offering a third witness, Eric Junious, a mini-bike for his testimony, as Junious had said. Stroud said he and another officer gave Junious a used mini-bike after the trial because, "I had some very strong feelings about Eric, just as a young man."

Club Sponsoring Horse, Pony Show

The Ayden-Grifton Kiwanis Club will sponsor a Horse and Pony Show Saturday, June 4 beginning at 11 a.m. at the Grifton Stables. The event is sanctioned by the Coastal Plain Horse Circuit.

There will be a total of 35

Lunch, prepared by Kiwanis Club will be served at the site.

Proceeds from this event will be used in community service projects. Funds from the proceeds of this first of what is hoped will become an annual event by the Ayden-Grifton Kiwanis Club, will be used to assist in the creation of a band program at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Shoplifting And Drug Charges

Willie Earl Gilbert, 22 of 1803 West Third St. was arrested here last night on charges of possession of marijuana and shoplifting, Chief Glenn Cannon reported today.

The chief said Gilbert was arrested about 11:55 p.m. on shoplifting charges after allegedly taking a pack of cigarette paper from the Fast Fare store on Memorial Drive, near the Sixth Street intersection.

Following his arrest on the shoplifting charge, police found a quantity of marijuana in his possession and charged him with the drug law violation, Cannon said.

States try to match the Soviets' nuclear defense effort. They said the United States should continue to study and analyze the Soviet program.

Kincade said that focusing on Soviet civil defense efforts was meaningless since the United States' nuclear strategy always has been aimed at destruction of enemy industry rather than population.

"We felt people fomenting the Soviet civil defense gap were being dishonest with the public in saying we couldn't kill the Soviet population we didn't want to kill," he said.

The report says the U.S. civil defense program is mismanaged, however. For example, "most fallout shelters available are in urban areas that would be likely targets (for a nuclear strike). Fallout shelters should instead be in rural or other areas that don't make good targets," Kincade said.

The committee, headed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., also concluded that the Soviet civil and industrial defenses may preserve that nation's economy against an attack from a secondary nuclear power like China. But under no foreseeable circumstances could it survive a significant attack from the United States.

Constitution itself. Appropriations must be made "by law," and the laws, to be valid, must be made in pursuance of the Constitution. The Constitution plainly sanctions appropriations for the armed forces, for the postal service, for the federal courts, and for a seemingly endless parade of programs in the name of the Commerce Clause.

But you can sit up all night, reading the Constitution line by line, and you will find nothing that authorizes the spending of federal tax funds for a study of bad manners in the tennis courts of Arlington County. No stretch of the imagination will suffice. Members of Congress who vote these funds are winking at their oaths of office.

It is generally said, by those who defend a free-and-easy spending policy, that Congress has the power, after all, "to provide for the general welfare." But a hundred Supreme Court justices, jumping up and down, never will persuade me that the phrase empowers the Congress to appropriate funds for anything and everything. Such a loose construction reduces much of Article One to mere surplusage; it mocks the ancient doctrine of enumerated powers; and it nullifies the sound doctrine that our Constitution was intended not merely to empower, but also to restrain.

Off and on for 30 years I have whooped it up for a change in the rules of the House and Senate. My thought is to require that every bill carry a preamble reciting the specific constitutional authority on which the authors of the bill rely. Such a rule might not deter those members who are grandly agreeable to studying the frustrations of tennis players, but it might inhibit a few fellows who take the Constitution seriously. Trouble is, not many do.

Washington. Less certain in the future, however, is the effect of Moscow's carrot to seduce Spain out of the Common Market.

France and Italy have shouted their intention to veto Spain's entry, partly for fear of Spain's earlier harvest dates of spring citrus and vegetable crops, partly to exploit the rising nationalism within Western Europe for narrow political gains.

As for Spain, Common Market membership would expose its fragile industrial structure to competition from Europe's highly industrialized societies, but that is a risk Spain is prepared to accept.

Moscow is trying to take advantage of this. Using non-government commercial and banking channels, the Soviet Union is wooing Spanish businessmen against the market by promising all the oil Spain can use, to be paid for not in scarce foreign currency but in barter.

The Soviets desperately need new light industries, textile plants, hotels and other consumer industries which Spain, now running a $4 billion trade deficit, can supply. The Soviet approach is skillful and without subtlety: Soviet agents are reminding Spanish businessmen that the U.S. is trying to reduce the import of Spanish shoes while the Common Market is trying to block imports of Spanish agriculture. Try us for a while, Moscow pleads, because we need what you have and we are serious people on the move; the U.S. and Western Europe are in the early stage of decline.

Such siren songs are being rejected here. Yet Spain is in tenuous transition and Spain has not been part of "Europe" for many generations — an island outpost behind the towering Pyrenees pointing south to Africa. Thus, the Soviet campaign holds a potential threat for the West which, given the speed of political change these days, is not frivolous.

The borrowing power of a home: How to use it.

Buying a home gives you more than a place to live.

It gives you borrowing power. With The NCNB Homeowner Loan.

Using the equity you've built in a home, you can probably borrow a lot more money than you expect.

And make much lower monthly payments than you expected. (In some cases, as much as 50% lower than regular installment loans.)

Here are some examples.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume came to 541 million shares over the first hour.

Most of the Dow's loss stemmed from declines in U.S. Steel, which fell 1 1/4 to 43 3/4 and led the active list, and Bethlehem Steel, which gave up 1 1/2 to 31 1/2, also in active trading.

A spokesman for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith said the firm had issued a report on the two big steel issues Monday night.

Analysts said the resultant selling in those stocks tended to drag down the market as a whole.

Franklin Mint, also active, lost 1/2 to 15 after a 2 1/2-point drop Monday, when the company said it didn't expect its second quarter earnings to match the level of the comparable period a year ago.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .03 at 54.32 at 11 a.m.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .10 at 114.58.

schools. Cox will present a recommendation at the June meeting regarding the closing of transfers between city and county schools.

The Board adopted a new attendance policy for students at Rose High School. Under the new policy, teachers will notify the assistant principal and parent or guardian of a student who has missed a class or homeroom five times. After 20 absences, a conference with the student, parent or guardian and all the student's teachers will be called by the assistant principal to determine if the student should withdraw from school.

Teachers will be required to designate a minimum of two hours each week when they will be available for students to make up work.

The attendance record for 1977-78 will be compared to the 1976-77 record to determine effectiveness of the new policy.

A new policy regarding certification of graduation was adopted. A senior who meets requirements of the N.C. State Board of Education and the city Board of Education will be considered graduated on the 180th school day designated by the principal for recording senior grade reports.

The Board approved purchase of the lot at 1006 Pennsylvania Ave. for $5,000. The 50 by 150 feet lot is located next to Sadie Sautler School.

Progress reports were heard on construction of the Greenville Middle School and repairs at Third Street Junior and E. B. Aycock School High.

The Middle School construction is on schedule and should be completed by the original completion date, December, 1977. Re-roofing at Aycock is complete and work at Third Street is 90 per cent finished.

The Board of Education expressed gratitude to the City Council for permitting the Extended School Program to continue meeting at the Memorial Baptist Church Building at the corner of Fourth and Greene Streets.

The program will continue to use the building until early in 1978, when it will relocate at Agnes Fullilove.

The Board authorized Superintendent Cox to secure bids for furniture for the Third Street School, and accepted a ESEA Title IV-C Strengthening LEA allocation in the amount of $14,633 for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

It was noted summer school at Rose High will begin June 20 and conclude July 29. The Board voted to reaffirm the '77-78 school year calendar as originally proposed.

A vote of confidence in principal Paul H. Rasberry and the administration of E. B. Aycock Junior High was presented to the Board by Diane Coble, a teacher at Aycock. The petition was signed by all staff and faculty members at the school.

Margaret Worth of the League of Women Voters read a commendation approving the school board policy of allowing public inspection of the proposed budget.

Several calendar items were noted for the closing of the school year. The All-Sports Banquet will be held May 23 at 6:30 p.m. at the Moose Lodge. Awards Day at Rose High will be June 3 at 2:30 p.m. in the school gym.

The baccalaureate service will be June 5 at 2 p.m. in the gym, and graduation will be June 10 at 8 p.m. at Ficken Stadium. In case of inclement weather, commencement exercises will be held in Minges Coliseum.

The next Board meeting will be June 20 at Agnes Fullilove School. Reorganization of the school board and the board chairmanship will be discussed.

Investigation Of Porn Network Is Burgeoning

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - An investigation here of an alleged pornography enterprise in which women were reportedly recruited in Fayetteville and flown to Syracuse, N.Y., to participate in hardcore pornographic movies has burgeoned into a widespread probe of a possible prostitution network.

The latest of a series of warrants was issued Monday for Raeford aviator Paul F. Rose, who was charged with transporting women for the purpose of prostitution, police investigator William Johnson said. Rose remained at large Monday, Johnson said.

Fayetteville police began investigating allegations of the pornographic enterprise in March. The probe led to allegations that young women recruited as "models and hostesses" have engaged in sexual acts for pay at parties for businessmen in area motels, according to statements filed with the police intelligence division.

The statements say two to six "hostesses" were paid $20 for attending the motel parties, and $40 each time they engaged in a sexual act with a party guest.

"We are still interviewing women who answered the ads," Johnson said. "It will be at least a week before we finish that part of the investigation."

"There are so many ramifications to this case. Apparently we are just beginning to get into the thing and much more is to come," said Police Chief Danny Dixon. He said more than 100 persons had been interviewed since an investigation began.

Already charged in the case is Frederick Carl Franzen, a former employee of Ft. Bragg Recreation Services office, for allegedly soliciting for prostitution, aiding and abetting in prostitution, arranging assignments, worthless checks and operating a loan business without a license. He was still being sought Monday.

Cal Tenhet, recreation supervisor with the town of Spring Lake, and Michael York, former manager of the Sportsman's Lounge in Fayetteville, have been charged with conspiring with Franzen in soliciting for prostitution. Johnson said they had been released on $500 bond pending a trial set for June 20.

Tenhet has been suspended with pay from his Spring Lake job by Town Manager Donald Sawyer.

"There's a whole lot more to this, involving a whole different aspect. Information is being relayed to federal authorities for possible federal charges," Johnson said.

Little Coach Of The Year; Bucs Pace All-Conference Selections

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)— Pitcher first baseman Richard Wieters of The Citadel and East Carolina coach Monte Little have received the top individual honors in Southern Conference baseball.

Wieters has been chosen Player of the Year for the second straight season, and Little has been named Coach of the Year after directing East Carolina to the league championship in his first season.

East Carolina also dominated the 1977 All-Southern Conference baseball team announced Monday. The Pirates placed four players on the 15-man squad.

Both Wieters and Little were nearly unanimous choices in balloting by the conference's coaches.

Wieters, a senior from Charleston, posted a 7-3 pitching record with a 1.69 earned run average and batted .336.

Wieters was also named to the All-Southern Conference team along with East Carolina pitchers Mickey Britt and Pete Conaty, first baseman Sonny Wooten and outfielder Eddie Gates.

Western Carolina shortstop Wayne Tolleson led the voting for the all-conference team with eight of a possible nine votes. Appalachian State third baseman Randy Ingram, Furman outfielder Everette Smith, and Wieters were all named on seven ballots.

John Rulli of Marshall, Kelly Lombard of Virginia Military, and Bob Lapple of Davidson tied for the catcher spot with two votes apiece.

Appalachian's Chris Plemmons is the second baseman on the squad.

Furman's Randy Howell and William and Mary's Dave McElhany join Smith and Gates in the outfield. Keith Ebersole, who led the conference in hitting with a .423 average and 48 runs batted in, was voted designated hitter.

Pistons' Marvin Barnes Leaves To Begin His Year Prison Term

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) —

As the blue state-prison van pulled away from the curb, Marvin Barnes' girlfriend rubbed her tear-swollen eyes and his sister, Alfreda, shouted: "Marvin, we love you."

Barnes, a former Providence College basketball All-American and most recently a Detroit Piston forward, sat calmly inside with his back to the door, his hands cuffed in his lap.

"I don't know what he's gonna be like when he comes out," said his mother, Lula, on Monday afternoon. "Going to prison makes you harder and meaner ... when you come out. It's a bad setup."

Inside the courthouse moments before, Superior Court Judge Anthony A. Giannini had denied Barnes' last-minute appeal to delay the start of a one-year prison sentence for a probation violation.

Barnes had the night before hired a new attorney, James L. Feinberg of Detroit, and the lawyer wanted more time to prepare.

But, Giannini said any challenges to Barnes' 1974 assault conviction and subsequent sentence "may be pursued while he's incarcerated."

Barnes, dressed in a beige suit with a white shirt but no tie, was immediately turned over to three state marshals. They took Barnes into the anteroom next to Giannini's chamber and handcuffed the basketball player.

The 6-foot-9 Barnes, who is expected to serve only four months before becoming eligible for parole, refused all comment to reporters.

Barnes, 24, had been scheduled to surrender at 9 a.m. Monday.

First Federal Bombs Pepsi

First Federal pushed over eight first inning runs and went on to take an 18-1 over Pepsi-Cola in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

First Federal is now 4-1 in the league, while Pepsi falls off to an 0-5 mark.

Pepsi scored first, in the top of the inning. David Woronoff doubled and scored on a single by Ken Mackenzie.

In the bottom of the first, First Federal got all it needed with its eight runs. Randy Warren walked and stole second. Two errors on the play let him score. Mont Brown was then hit by a pitch and Mont Carter and Keith Stocks walked to load them up. A wild pitch scored Brown, and Carter scored on Horace Barrett's sacrifice fly. Stocks scored on a wild pitch as Tyrone Barrett walked. Leon Moore also walked, as did William Waugh. A wild pitch brought in Barrett, and a double by Warren scored Moore. Waugh scored on an error and a wild pitch brought in Warren for the 8-1 lead.

First Federal added five more in the second, three in the third, and one each in the fourth and fifth. Barrett slapped a home run for the final tally. Pepsi-Cola 100 000—1 5 6 F. Federal 853 11X—18 11 1

Randy Didn't Leave Philadelphia In The Lerch In Aiding Rotation

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writers

The Philadelphia Phillies, riding a five-game winning streak, may have found a patch to keep together the quilt they call their starting rotation.

Relying on a rotation that includes sometimes four, sometimes five pitchers, Phils Manager Danny Ozark took a long look Monday night at rookie Randy Lerch. Lerch threw seven innings, picking up his fifth victory against two losses, and worked out of some tough situations while the Phillies were beating Los Angeles 10-6.

In the fifth, Lerch found himself with none out and runners at second and third. Philadelphia led 7-5. But the gutsy rookie, a 6-foot-3 southpaw, struck out Steve Garvey, Rick Monday and Dusty Baker in succession, ending the threat.

"He just threw super pitches to those three hitters," said Phils catcher Bob Boone.

And Ozark added, "Maybe I ought to start him every fourth day instead of fifth."

The Phillies — hurt in the stretch last year by inconsistent pitching — have been going with Lerch, Steve Carlton, Larry Christenson, Wayne Twitchell and sometimes veteran

Jim Kaat as starters. Of the five, only 1972 Cy Young Award winner Carlton, 5-1, and Lerch have winning marks. The 28-year-old Twitchell is 0-3 and Kaat is 0-1. Christenson has won three and lost three.

The Phils did their damage in the third, scoring five runs, two on Garry Maddox' single. Monday homered for Los Angeles in the eighth.

In the only other National League game, the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 9-6. In the American League, Minnesota trounced Cleveland 8-1. Boston nipped California 8-7 in 11 innings. Seattle clipped Baltimore 8-3 and Oakland downed New York 8-4.

Cubs 9, Padres 6
Gene Clines had four hits, including a two-run homer, and drove in five runs, helping the Cubs extend their winning streak to five games. Clines drove in a run with a first-inning double, homered in the third and singled in two runs in the fifth.

Twins 8, Indians 1
Geoff Zahn, 6-1, went the route, despite sitting out a 1 hour, 43 minute rain delay, and scattered seven hits in Minnesota's victory over Cleveland and the Indians' $2 million right-hander, Wayne Garland, 1-5.

Rod Carew had three hits and drove two runs in the Twins' fourth straight victory. The first-place Twins opened a two-game lead over idle Chicago in the AL West.

Red Sox 8, Angels 7
Denny Doyle singled home Dwight Evans with two out in the 11th inning, giving Boston its victory after the Red Sox had squandered a 7-3 lead in the ninth.

California sent the game into extra innings on Bobby Grich's RBI single and a bases-loaded triple by Gil Flores in the ninth.

Mariners 8, Orioles 3
Lee Stanton cracked a three-run double in the seventh, and the Mariners roughed up Jim Palmer, 5-3, for three runs in the second on only two singles. Palmer yielded five walks before leaving with a 2-0 count on Ruppert Jones in the second.

A's 8, Yankees 4
Wayne Gross smacked his 10th homer, tying him for the AL lead with Chicago's Richie Zisk, and Earl Williams homered in Oakland's victory over the Yankees, who slipped to third in the East, a half-game behind Baltimore and Boston. Oakland scored five runs off Ken Holtzman, 2-3, in the first

Pirates To Face Deacons First

COLUMBIA, S.C. — East Carolina University will take on Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champion Wake Forest in the first round of the Atlantic Regionals starting here Friday.

The Pirates and Deacons will collide in a 3 p.m. game at the University of South Carolina's baseball field. Host South Carolina and South Alabama, both independents, will meet in the 7:30 p.m. game.

The double elimination tournament will continue on Saturday, with the losers of the first day's games meeting at 3 p.m., while the winners meet at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday, two more games are planned. The first will pit the two survivors of the losers' bracket together, with the winner of that game taking on the unbeaten team at 7:30 p.m. A final game, if needed, will be played on Monday.

East Carolina goes into the tournament with a 30-10 record, while Wake Forest currently posts a 29-11 mark, after dumping regular season leader Clemson in the ACC tourney.

South Alabama is ranked second in the nation, while South Carolina is in fourth. Wake is ranked 11th.

Jaycees Romp Past Kiwanis

The Jaycees came up with two big innings to post an 18-7 Little League victory over the Kiwanis Club yesterday.

The Jaycees scored nine runs in the second inning and nine in the third after falling behind 3-0 in the first frame.

William Smith led off the first with a walk for Kiwanis and Todd Jordan followed with a base on balls. Bryan Hill doubled them in and he scored on a passed ball.

In the second, Timmy Ellis, Scott Pollard and Mark Harris walked for the Jaycees. Toby Fisher singled to knock Ellis in and Pollard and Harris scored on Jim Swinson's double. An error on the play allowed Fisher to score and Swinson to move to third. He came in on another Kiwanis misplay.

Marcus House then walked and Jordy Smith followed with a single. Ellis, up for the second time, doubled in Marcus House. Pollard and Mauly Harris were dealt bases on balls to score Smith and Harris followed with a single to knock in Ellis and Pollard for the final runs of the frame.

Kiwanis scored four runs in the top of the third to cut the Jaycee lead to 9-7, but the Jaycees came back with nine more in the bottom of the inning. Toby Fisher hit a home run for the Jaycees in the third.

Ali Coasts To Easy Victory In Defense

By GORDON BEARD
Landover, Md. (AP) — Muhammad Ali still has some fights in his future, but with each outing the question grows over how much talent is left in the heavyweight champion.

Even Angelo Dundee, Ali's long-time trainer, found it difficult to evaluate the champ after he scored a unanimous 15-round decision Monday night over lightly regarded challenger Alfredo Evangelista of Spain.

"Is this the best he can do?" Dundee said. "Who knows? He's still a great fighter ... at 35, and still dancing like that. He was comfortable. Not breathing hard."

Like Dundee, Ali talked mostly of his ability to dance at the age of 35. No one in Ali's camp discussed his punching power, or lack of it.

The champion did most of his scoring with left jabs as he backpedaled across the ring in the Capital Centre, where a little more than a year ago he was awarded a controversial 15-round decision over Jimmy Young.

All weighed 221 1/2 for Evangelista, compared to 230 for the Young bout. But he didn't pack the punch to put away an opponent who only four times previously had only gone as many as eight rounds.

"I tried to knock him down but I couldn't do it." Ali confessed during his post-fight monologue which included a pitch for the upcoming motion picture based on his life and a need for reporters who had previously downgraded Evangelista.

Dundee said he thought Ali made a definite effort to floor Evangelista in the eighth and ninth rounds, and claimed he almost succeeded once after the challenger missed a roundhouse left.

"But the guy was awkward," Dundee said. "He covered pretty good, and Ali's not the greatest body banger in the world."

Referee Harry Cecchini scored the bout 71-65 for Ali, with judges Terry Moore and Ray Klingmeyer each giving the champion a 72-64 edge.

Evangelista, through interpreter Eddie Mafuz, said he was happy he had proven a worthy challenger, but contended he would have won had the fight been held in Spain — where the native of Uruguay has become a naturalized citizen.

Asked if he was satisfied with the decision, Evangelista replied through Mafuz: "Ali is the champion and we were fighting in Maryland, so he was expecting the worst."

While some boos greeted the Ali-Young decision, the crowd of 12,000 seemed resigned to the inevitable Monday night.

All, who is believed building up to a lucrative fourth bout with Ken Norton, will have to be much sharper in his next start.

In his post-fight interview, Ali contended that negotiations were under way for him to face unbeaten Larry Holmes. That fight would be promoted by Don King, probably at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J.

Before the fight, however, it was reported that Madison Square Garden in New York had all but lined up Earnie Shavers, a veteran slugger, to be Ali's next challenger.

Dundee, in comparing the two possible opponents, said: "Holmes is young and coming up; Shavers is a great banger. With him, it's go or no go."

CAMP LEJEUNE — Rose High School's golfers failed to qualify for further competition in the golf state playoffs yesterday as they competed in the sectionals at Camp Lejeune.

Hoggard of Wilmington took the top team honors with a 293, followed by West Carteret at 298. New Bern was third with a 304, followed by New Hanover at 313. Eastern Wayne was fifth at 316, followed by East Duplin at 317.

Rose finished seventh with a 318, with Camp Lejeune next at 331, and Kinston at 341.

Jay Kennedy of West Carteret led the individual qualifiers with a 34-35-69.

Craig Logue led the Rose scorers with a 76, while Mike Moye had a 79, as did Til Jolly. Sid Ashby rounded out the top four with an 84.

The competition ended the Rose season.

ABA Carryovers Have Financial Problems

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The four teams to survive the demise of the American Basketball Association are finding the price of survival to be costly indeed.

"Our four newest members have financial problems, in some instances quite serious problems," said National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien, referring to the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs.

The problems, serious enough to force the teams to seek relief from the NBA, are an outgrowth of the agreement by which the four clubs became part of the league last summer.

In return for places in the pro basketball establishment, the four ex-ABA teams agreed to pay an entrance fee of $3.2 million each; to buy out of the Kentucky and St. Louis ABA clubs which were not part of the merger; to pay legal costs and fees needed to pave the way to merger, and to forego sharing in television revenues until the current contract with CBS is completed. These other factors push the entrance fee upwards of $5.5 million, not counting the lost TV revenue or the territorial indemnity — estimated at $2 million — the Nets had to pay the New York Knicks.

A payment of $200,000 per club, the last part of the $3.2 million, is due June 1. The four clubs asked for a delay, but were turned down by the league's finance and advisory committees.

"Since then, some of the clubs have requested the league review their situations individually in hopes that the league might consider some modifications," O'Brien said. "These reviews will take place at the annual Board of Governors meeting in San Diego June 14-17."

Build into the June 1 deadline is a 30-day grace period, so the teams don't actually have to come up with any money until June 30.

Denver led the league with attendance of over 700,000 but had to cancel a proposed stock sale because of a shaky financial outlook. Indiana is up for sale, which is nothing new for that franchise. The Nets have always had money problems, or else they'd still have Julius Erving. And San Antonio, despite showing a profit for its first season in the NBA, has problems because of the commitments it made jointly with its other ex-ABA brethren.

Cox Takes Two Games

WINTERVILLE — A. G. Cox took a pair of games from Ayden yesterday.

In the girls' softball game, Cox took a 10-5 win. Tammy Streeter was the winning pitcher for Cox. Cassandra Chapman and Sheila Tripp led the Cox hitting. Cox is now 8-1.

In the boys' baseball game, Cox took an eight inning, 5-4 win. Doug McRoy hurled the win. Emory Vines, Greg Tolar and Troy Perkins each had two hits for Cox, while Chapman had two, including a homer for Ayden.

Cox is now 6-3.

It's Not Funny To 76ers Now

HOUSTON (AP) — The light-hearted Philadelphia 76ers, who joke through workouts and put on a dunk show before games, face a very unfunny situation tonight in their National Basketball Association series with the Houston Rockets.

The multi-talented Sixers, leading the series 3-1, had Houston down 17 points in the third quarter of Sunday's fifth game before the Rockets came back to win 118-115.

"Philadelphia is going to have a tough game Tuesday night," Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke said.

The Rockets, not even considered a playoff team before the regular season started, have refused to be counted out in the NBA Eastern Conference finals. A Houston victory tonight would even the series at 3-3 and force the deciding game Thursday night in Philadelphia.

"I didn't want to go out being humiliated," Rocket guard Calvin Murphy said. "Regardless of how good a team you have been throughout the season, people only remember the last game you play.

"We were on national television with millions of people watching, and I didn't want people to think we had that bad a team. I didn't want to leave that impression on the country."

Chicod In Win

GRIMESLAND — Chicod Junior High School romped to a 25-2 victory over G. R. Whitfield yesterday in a baseball game.

Roy Lassiter led the Chicod hitting with three doubles, while Billy Bunting had two hits.

Dixon Page hurled the victory, allowing only one Whitfield hit. Chicod is now 8-1 on the year.

Wellcome Wins Two

BETHEL — Wellcome Middle School gained a pair of wins over Bethel yesterday.

Wellcome's girls took a 9-6 win in the softball game. Sharon Battle led the Wellcome hitting with three, while Laura Manning had three for Bethel.

In the boys' game, Wellcome edged past Bethel, 4-2, in 11 innings. Robert Caraway had two hits to lead Wellcome, while Roger Bell was the winning pitcher.

Swimming Awards

East Carolina University swimming coach Ray Scharf stands with Ted Nieman, winner of the "Outstanding Swimmer" award and John Tudor, recipient of the "Most Improved Swimmer" award at the annual awards program Saturday. Nieman and Tudor, both freestyle swimmers, took the top two awards while backstroke David Moodie received a special "Coach's Award" for his contributions to the team effort this year. Certificates were presented to those swimmers who lettered for the first time during this season, and special awards went to a number of individuals who have supported the team and acted as timers for the swim meets held at Minges Coliseum.

Mobil introduces a whole new idea in engine lubrication. A synthesized lubricant that outperforms nature's best motor oil.

8. Will there be any effect on my engine's oil pressure due to the low viscosity range of Mobil 1?
At idle, with a warm engine, the oil pressure warning light on some cars may come on. Cars with an oil pressure gauge may read lower than usual. The light will go out (or indicator needle will return to normal range) when the engine speed increases. This drop in pressure is because Mobil 1 flows so much more freely than conventional oil. Even at this lower pressure, the same or even a greater amount of oil reaches the bearings for better protection.

We thought that you'd like to know about Mobil synthetic oil... we'll be telling you more about Mobil in the next few weeks.

Strike Against ABC Network

NEW YORK (AP) — Engineers and technical workers struck the American Broadcasting Co. early Tuesday in a contract dispute, but ABC promised no disruption in its nationwide broadcasts.

A spokesman for Local 16 of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians (NABET) estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 members walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. EDT.

Immediately after midnight, ABC issued a statement saying the strike would not disrupt network or local radio and television program schedules. A union spokesman said supervisory personnel had taken over the company's equipment.

The walkout affected ABC's national facilities, based mostly in New York and Los Angeles; local television stations owned by ABC in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit and San Francisco; and the company's seven AM and seven FM radio stations.

Linda Called To Retrial Of Trio

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Linda Lovelace, star of the film "Deep Throat," will be called to testify in the retrial of three men who were convicted on obscenity charges for distributing the film.

The convictions were overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court.

U.S. Attorney James Arehart said the actress and most of the other witnesses from the first trial will be summoned for the retrial, set for July 11.

Stanley Marx, Harry Mohney and Guy Weir were fined $16,000 each and sentenced to three months in jail following their convictions on charges of interstate transportation of obscene material.

But the Supreme Court reversed the convictions, noting that while the jury was instructed to judge the film by "community standards," community standards in this case were established only with the arrest and indictment of the three.

Among the disputed contract issues are an end to meal delay at the company's discretion, the use of parttime workers instead of only fulltime employees, and allowing disc jockeys to do technicians' work such as operating turntables.

An ABC spokesman said the company and NABET had been bargaining over a new contract since the second week in March. The last four-year pact ran out March 31.

Joined Honoring Dr. Freeman

Dr. Douglas R. Jones represented East Carolina University at Campbell College Saturday to honor Dr. J. P. Freeman of Raleigh, who is retiring after 20 years as Director of the Division of Teacher Education of the Department of Public Instruction.

Formal tributes were made by Dr. Elizabeth Koontz, assistant superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Charles F. Carroll, former superintendent, and the Rev. T. R. Cashwell of Hayes-Barton Baptist Church in Raleigh.

Training Grant Awarded Two

ECU News Bureau Merian Frazell and Michael Feldstein, both of Jacksonville, first-year graduate students in the East Carolina University Department of Psychology, have been awarded a training grant of $1,500 to study industrial-organizational psychology at Blue Bell, Inc.

Blue Bell is a multi-national corporation with headquarters in Greensboro. This is the second year the Blue Bell corporation has awarded a training grant to the ECU psychology department.

The two students, both specialists in industrial and organizational psychology, will use the grant to defray expenses incurred while doing on-site research at one or more Blue Bell plants.

'Hit Machine' Is Gone But Dionne Carries On

END OF AN ERA, START OF A NEW — Singer Dionne Warwick, having been associated with the songwriting team of Hal Davis-Burt Bacharach for over 27 years, says the splitting of the team three years ago does not mean she's through. (AP Wirephoto)

By PETER J. BOYER LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I think everyone needs to be slapped down occasionally," said Dionne Warwick, trying to smile while answering a question she'd obviously been asked once too often. "It did me a lot of good."

Dionne Warwick's still smarting from the slap dealt her three years ago by one of the fortunes of the music game — the 1974 breakup of the Hal David-Burt Bacharach songwriting team. The split brought Miss Warwick's own career to a screeching halt.

She's still making occasional trips to the recording studio, but her fans are more likely to see her on television game shows and specials than hear her records being played. Television, always in need of a familiar face, has proven easier than the tough going in the hit record game.

David-Bacharach-Warwick had been a hit machine for nearly a decade, grinding out a string of gold records some thought would never end. The writers and their lady singer hit the charts in 1962 with "Don't Make Me Over," and stayed there through the '60s with "Anyone Who Had a Heart," "Walk on By," "I Say a Little Prayer" and "Do You Know the Way to San Jose?" Dionne Warwick was on top when the '60s became the '70s, with a Grammy and a 20-room Beverly Hills mansion to prove it.

Then came the fall. Her records received less and less attention from critics and — worse — the public. There were a few unexceptional records that became stiff and then, a case of bitterness that the 36-year-old singer is still nursing.

The names Bacharach and David draw a cold response from the former singing end of the musical team.

"There is a lawsuit," she says in a restrained monotone. "Bacharach and David and I were associated musically for the past 17 years. Then came a parting of the ways three years ago that I had nothing to do with."

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now is a good time to think out clearly and logically just where you are headed and what you can best do to advance your interests. This period will keep you on the move both mentally and physically. Mix with a greater variety of people.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to please those around you more and gain their goodwill. Contact experts and get the advice you need to advance in your career.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good time to handle money matters so get your material affairs in order. Consult with experts where necessary.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are able to discuss your views with others and gain their cooperation for your important plans. Make wise concessions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Anything you do for others now will come back to doubled. Your rating is high with those who count. Romance could enter the picture.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Spend some time putting your personal affairs in order. Attend a group affair where you meet interesting persons, make new friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to gain the support of the powerful so that you can get ahead faster in your career. Avoid one whose gossip can cause trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into new avenues of self-expression and you can become more successful. Be specific as to what you want in personal relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Impress a higher-up with the way you are able to handle detailed problems. It could lead to more success in the future. Don't issue challenges or ultimatums.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be realistic and don't allow yourself to believe you should have everything you want now. Don't hang on to the past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a better understanding with co-workers and you increase production. Stand your ground and don't be sidetracked.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take time to be with good friends, but be careful how you spend your money. Use discretion in handling private matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make improvements at home and have more harmony with those who live there. Keep clear of neurotic, high-strung individuals.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those very bright and alert youngsters and should have as fine an education as can be afforded. Business and law are exceptionally fine outlets for this clever mind.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass Pass 2 ♠
Dble. Pass 2 ♦ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Two of ♣.

South made the most of a second chance offered him in the bidding. Unfortunately, his technique in the play was not up to the standard of his auction.

Though East's decision to reopen the bidding boomeranged, it receives our endorsement. You do not win at bridge by allowing the opponents to play at the one-level unmolested. South showed his strength by doubling—since North had not yet bid, it was for take-out. North dutifully introduced his suit and South decided that his secondary diamond fit warranted a shot at game.

West made the obvious lead of a low club. East won the king and continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed and West unblocked the queen. Now declarer tried to draw trumps, but when East showed out on the third round declarer realized—too late—that he could not afford to draw the last trump because, when he surrendered a diamond trick, the defenders could beat the contract by continuing clubs. Declarer tried to salvage the hand by leading ace and another diamond, but West returned a third club when in with the king of diamonds and declarer had to lose a trump trick in addition to a trick in each side suit.

South blew his contract when he surrendered trump control prematurely. From the bidding, it was a sure bet that East had started with five clubs, so West could have no more than three. Since West was more likely to have trump length than East, declarer's aim should have been to exhaust West of clubs quickly to avoid being forced later in the play.

All South had to do was allow East to win the second club trick. On this, declarer should discard his heart loser—a trick he must surrender anyway. Declarer can then ruff the third club and draw trumps, relying on West to hold the king of diamonds. When West gains the lead with that card he is out of clubs and must return a heart, giving declarer the rest of the tricks and his contract.

Promote Activities In Local Schools

Better Hearing and Speech Month will be observed in the local schools with a series of activities with the theme, "Human Communications, the Key to Life".

A poster contest has begun in the city and county elementary schools. Two posters from each school will be chosen for competition. All winning posters will be displayed and judged at Pitt Plaza Friday.

In the Pitt County schools there will be a fifth and seventh grade hearing screening, classroom presentations of a series of lessons on the ears and hearing, speech sounds and hearing aids and other language development programs.

A series of communicative disorders information handouts will be distributed to parents and in several Media Centers there will be displays. Parent coffee-hours will be conducted in many of the schools.

Speech, language and hearing services and information are available in the public schools and at the ECU Speech and Hearing Clinic to communication handicapped persons.

Elaborate Burglar Alarm Systems Now Available

EDITOR'S NOTE: Suburban residents who used to leave their homes unlocked are installing elaborate burglar alarm systems. City dwellers bar their windows and bolt their doors. Here, in the first of a three-part series, is a look at the problem of burglary.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

In little more than the time it takes you to read this sentence, a burglar will have broken into someone's home or business.

It may have been yours. The Federal Bureau of Statistics defines burglary as "the unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft. The use of force to gain entry is not required."

According to the bureau, prevention and detection of the burglary offense poses a most difficult problem to law enforcement. Volume alone is an overriding factor...

The FBI says there were some 3.25 million burglaries in 1975, the latest year for which figures are available. That works out to one burglary every 10 seconds and represents an increase of about 7 per cent from 1974.

Residential burglaries accounted for almost two-thirds of the total in 1975. Over half of them occurred during the day. Losses from these burglaries amounted to $925 million, up 21 per cent from 1974, compared to an increase of only 5 per cent in losses from nonresidential burglaries.

The average dollar loss per residential burglary was over $440.

Could you afford that kind of loss? If not, what have you done to stop it? How well is your house protected? How easy would it be for someone to break in?

A growing number of Americans are asking themselves those questions. And their answers add up to a boom for manufacturers and sellers of equipment to protect homes, not only against crime, but also against such natural disasters as fire.

A spokesman for the National Burglar and Fire Alarm Association said there are no over-all statistics on sales of alarm systems. But she said that the market for consumer alarms — to detect burglary and fire in homes and automobiles — is the fastest growing segment of the business.

The rate of growth in consumer alarms has been 15 to 20 per cent annually for the past several years, she said, and the boom is expected to continue since the market remains far from saturated.

The association spokesman estimated that only 1 per cent of all residences in America are equipped with burglar alarms. Another 1 per cent have some sort of fire alarm system, she said.

Part of the reason for the increase in security systems has been the rise in burglary. Another important factor, however, is that costs have started to decline. "Previously, only the very, very rich could afford an elaborate security system," she said. "But technology has improved tremendously in the past five years, bringing down costs."

Burglar alarm systems now cost from $300 to $1,500, depending on the type of residence and the kind of protection you want. Some systems also involve payment of a monthly fee for security forces.

A recent study by Security World Publishing Co. of manufacturers of security and fire systems showed that sales of all types of protection services, residential and commercial, totaled just over $2 billion last year, up from a little more than $1.5 billion the year before. This year's sales are expected to reach almost $3 billion, the Security World survey showed.

When it comes to fire alarm systems, the biggest growth has been in smoke detectors, available for as little as $30 to $50. Many communities now require installation of detectors in new buildings.

The National Fire Prevention and Control Administration of the Commerce Department says that manufacturers estimated 1976 sales of smoke detectors at $87 million and the agency predicts that sales will reach the $200 million mark by 1980.

Before you consider any sort of security system, you should look at your home to check existing construction for possible areas of improvement.

The National Bureau of Standards says that one of the most common ways a burglar enters a house is by breaking the strike out of the door frame. The strike is the metal plate attached to the side of the door frame where the bolt latches to the door.

If the screws used to attach the strike to the frame are too short, the plate is easy to detach. The Bureau of Standards suggests screws that are long enough to go all the way through the frame and into the wall studs, combined with a longer-than-normal strike. An eight-inch strike plate with three-inch screws — available most places for well under $10 — should be sufficient.

Glass around doors also is a potential danger spot, since burglars can break through, reach in and open the door from the inside. If your home has panes of glass that are large enough to reach through and are located within 40 inches of the door knob or lock, cover the area with protective grillwork or replace the glass with a burglar-resistant material. Among materials to look for are tempered glass, laminated glass, acrylic plastic and polycarbonate plastic.

Jalousie doors, with glass slats that angle out, are another problem, since it is often possible to manipulate the knob or crank that operates the doors from outside. Remove the knob or lever when it is not in use or drill a small hole through the housing and shaft of the knob and insert a pin through the hole to prevent the crank from being turned.

The Bureau of Standards says it is impossible to define the "most secure" door because of the variety of materials and workmanship involved. Generally, however, a wood door of solid core construction, 1 3/4 inches thick, should offer adequate protection. Metal doors of the type often used in apartment houses are even better.

A door opening outward generally is less vulnerable to a burglar than one opening inward, since it is more difficult to pull a door out of its frame than it is to push it in. The outward door also may leave the hinge pins accessible, however. Make sure the pins are not removable or that the hinges interlock when the door is closed.

One way to cut losses in the event a burglary does occur is with federal crime insurance. The program was developed by the Federal Insurance Administration of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and a little more than one-third of the 50 states are participating.

Costs vary according to crime rates in the area involved. Policies generally insure against losses of up to $10,000 resulting from burglary or robbery and policies cannot be canceled because of loss.

AFL-CIO May Retreat On Drive For Repeal Of 14-B

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO may back off its push to abolish state "right-to-work" laws this year, fearing it won't be able to get the necessary votes to block a Senate filibuster.

Not that labor has lost any zeal for its long-cherished objective of repealing these laws, but practical politics are bringing the goal into question.

"The situation has changed and the changed situation may force the council to reconsider the whole thing," said a top aide to AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Sources describe Meany and the 34 members of his executive council as divided — AFL-CIO spokesmen call it "a difference of opinion" — over whether to include repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley

Act in labor's drive to win major changes in federal labor laws.

Section 14B allows states the option of banning union shop agreements that require workers to join a union. Twenty states — mostly in the West and the so-called "Sunbelt" — have such right-to-work laws.

While this was widely thought to have been "labor's year," the congressional defeat of a high priority construction picketing bill and a number of setbacks dealt with the White House have raised questions about labor's clout with the administration and the Democratic Congress it helped elect.

Some members of Meany's executive council, made up of national union presidents, believe the emotional fight that is certain if they press ahead with 14B could kill chances of winning other labor law changes.

The other goals include measures to make the National Labor Relations Board more efficient and rules that would block government contracts for companies that violate the NLRB's rulings.

One argument within the AFL-CIO, the sources said, is that it might be better to forget the repeal drive for now and concentrate on the other changes. Labor could then come back with a separate bill on 14B after mounting a campaign for public support, according to this argument.

A recent Gallup poll found that 63 per cent of the public oppose compelling people to work for a unionized employer to join a union once they have been hired. The poll said 31 per cent support the idea.

A final decision on whether to include 14B repeal — or perhaps to use it as a bargaining chip — will be made by a legislative committee of Meany's executive council. But that won't come until after the AFL-CIO takes a head count in the Senate.

"If we don't have 60 votes to shut off a filibuster, what's the point of beating our heads against a stone wall and losing the rest of the labor law reform package?" asked one source.

Area Students Are Graduated At ACC

Thirteen local students were among the 355 awarded baccalaureate degrees in the arts and sciences at the 75th annual commencement at Atlantic Christian College Friday.

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. was commencement speaker. The graduating class was presented by Dr. Lewis H. Swindell, dean of the college, and Milton L. Adams, acting president of the college, presented the guest speaker.

Honorary Doctor of Laws degrees were conferred upon Gov. Hunt and Judge Naomi E. Morris of the N.C. Court of Appeals.

A special pin presentation was held for nursing graduates prior to commencement. Judge Morris was main speaker for the event.

Degrees were awarded to Paul Kinsman Boyd, Jr. and Donna A. Corey, both of Greenville; Kristie Raper Bailey of Ayden; Wayne Eugene Calhoun and Jackie Woolard, both of Farmville; Lida Elizabeth Gardner of Fountain;

Leon Ira Grubbs of Snow Hill, William Marvin Owens, Jr. of Walstonburg; Jenny James Ayers and Deborah Jo Hardison, both of Robersonville; and James Wayland Elks, Jr., Katherine Marie Leggett and Judy Gay Ward, all of Williamston.

Graduation For Area Students

Elizabeth Hanford Dole of the Federal Trade Commission presented the commencement address, "Shortages in the Land of Plenty," at commencement exercises at Meredith College Sunday.

Meredith president John E. Weems and Shearon Harris, chairman of the Meredith Board of Trustees, presented 294 degrees.

Local students graduating from Meredith were Rhonda Gale Suggs of LaGrange; Janet Howard Thigpen of Williamston; Cherry Ann Croom and Gail Susan Jones, both of Greenville; and Kimberly Darice Dale and Darlene Smith, both of Ayden.

Chess Tourney Scheduled For Two Days

The Eastern Carolina Open chess tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Regional Development Center at the corner of First Street and Reade Circle.

Registration for the tournament, the first ever held in Greenville, will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. Saturday. Rounds will begin Saturday at 9:30 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., and will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. An entry fee of $7 will be used to fund cash prizes to winners.

The tournament will be a five-round rated Swiss system event held under the auspices of the United States Chess Federation and the North Carolina Chess Association. All entrants must be members of the USCF and the NCCA, both of which can be joined at the tournament.

For further information, call Timothy Caspar at 758-3698.

Raised $439.66 Door-To-Door

Mrs. Cheryl Taft of Greenville Kidney Foundation Door to Door Campaign chairperson, announced that the drive recently completed in Greenville raised a total of $439.66.

This was the first door to door campaign done by the Kidney Foundation locally. The campaign was one of 37 conducted in North Carolina by the foundation this year.

The Kidney Foundation uses funds raised to support research, public education, professional education, patient services and the organ donor program.
