New Fire Station Is Dedicated Yesterday

The city's new Fire Department sub station on Memorial Drive at West End Circle was dedicated in ceremonies yesterday afternoon.

Mayor Percy Cox, the principal speaker at the dedication, said many people have questioned the location of the new fire station. He explained that the half-acre site was the "only centrally located site" that was approved by the Fire Insurance Rating Bureau to give the best fire insurance rates for the residents.

The new facility, Cox said, designed to accommodate four engines and 24 men, is "another sign of what you see going on in Greenville, every day. Things are blossoming out and growing."

The $224,000 fire station includes an office, lounge, kitchen, dining and storage area separated from the six-bedroom area by the apparatus room.

Architects for the project were Dudley and Shoe of Greenville, while general contractor for the facility was J. H. Hudson of Greenville.

The keys to the station were turned over to Fire Chief Ray Smith and Mayor Cox by George Shoe of Dudley and Shoe.

City Manager J. E. Caldwell presided at the program.

The new station replaces an old facility on Chestnut Street.

HOTLINE gets things done for you. Call 752-1336, and tell your problem or sound-off, or mail it to HOTLINE, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, NC. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

FIRE VICTIMS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Holton in Washington, N. C. burned early Sunday morning, May 1, and their son, Dougie, nine, died in the blaze. They are former Pitt County residents.

Holton, an employee of Burroughs-Wellcome Company, was seriously burned when he went back into the house to search for Dougie. He is doing very well, but does not know when he will be released from the Richmond Burns Center, according to his mother, who lives near here.

Ann Holton, his wife, who is a former employee of the East Carolina University Political Science Department, received burns and a broken leg in the escape from the upper story of the house. She has been released from Pitt Memorial Hospital and is recuperating at the home of her parents in Richmond. The couple's infant son, Joshua, received only minor burns and is being kept by friends in Richmond.

Friends of the family have asked Hotline to appeal for gifts for the family, since everything they had was lost in the fire. Contributions and inquiries may be directed to Holton's mother, Mrs. Virginia Holton of Rt. 8, Box 492, Greenville. Her phone number is 756-0224.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

RESPONSE "EXCELLENT"

The response to the Hotline appeal for Sam Nanney, the disabled Farmville veteran who needed donations of no longer usable small appliances for parts and study has been "excellent," according to Mrs. Nanney. She said she has made several trips to Greenville to pick up items and that her husband now has a backlog of appliances to repair and return, as well as many to save and use. Both she and her husband expressed appreciation to every person who took responded.

Hotline has been called by several persons who said they had only small items and hated to ask Mrs. Nanney to come all the way into Farmville, Greenville or wherever to pick them up. We have arranged with Dick's Exxon Service Station at 611 W. Wilson Street, Farmville and S&H Dry Cleaners at 301 S. Main Street, Farmville to be drop-off places where items for Nanney may be left and picked up occasionally by his wife. Any business in Greenville or other Pitt County towns which would also like to be such a drop-off point may call Hotline at 752-1336 and leave a message.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld the Watergate cover-up convictions of former Atty. Gen. John D. Mitchell and onetime White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Mitchell and Haldeman have remained free pending the outcome of this appeal. Ehrlichman already is in prison. The court's action today means Mitchell and Haldeman likely will be imprisoned soon.

The justices rejected the claims by the three powerful officials of former President Richard M. Nixon's administration that the three-month trial that ended in their convictions Jan. 1, 1975 was unfair.

The justices made no comment in refusing to review the case. There were no recorded dissents, but Justice William H. Rehnquist noted that he took no part in deciding the case.

On April 21, National Public Radio reported that the court had voted 5-3 at its private conference April 15 to turn down the appeals but that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger held up announcing the decision in an attempt to muster enough votes to grant review. The votes of four justices are needed to grant review of such cases.

Lawyers for the cover-up defendants asked the court for permission to argue that the justices should reverse the convictions because of the news leak. The attorneys said the report had tainted the court's deliberations, adversely affecting the rights of their clients.

The court denied that request on May 2.

Mitchell and Haldeman were sentenced to 30 months to eight years in prison for conspiracy, obstruction of justice and giving false testimony under oath in what prosecutors said was an attempt to conceal governmental misconduct in the Watergate scandal.

Ehrlichman, also convicted of conspiracy in connection with the 1971 "plumbers" burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, last October chose to begin serving his prison terms pending appeals of both convictions.

He also was sentenced to 30 months to eight years for his role in the Watergate cover-up, and drew a 20-month to five-year prison term for the burglary conspiracy case, the sentences to be served concurrently. Ehrlichman is now a prisoner at the Swift Trail Federal Prison camp at Safford, Ariz.

On Feb. 22, the Supreme Court turned down his appeal of the burglary conspiracy conviction.

In their appeals, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman said their trial should have been postponed to allow the "massive and extraordinarily extensive" publicity surrounding it to die down.

They also contended that: —U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided at the trial, should have excused himself from the case because of alleged bias against the defendants.

—Mitchell's testimony before the Senate Watergate committee should not have been admitted as evidence in his criminal trial.

—The trial should have been delayed long enough to allow the defendants a chance to subpoena testimony from Nixon, either in person or in writing.

In urging the court to reject those claims, Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff said, "There is no basis for further review." He said the extensive publicity consisted mainly of "straight news stories (that) did not focus upon the alleged guilt of the three."

He said other contentions were unsubstantiated.

Terrorists Seize Dutch School, Hijack A Train

GRONINGEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Two groups of heavily armed South Moluccan extremists, striking two days before the Dutch general election, seized an elementary school and hijacked a train in the northern Netherlands today, a government official said.

An estimated 130 children and teachers were being held captive in the school and 100 passengers were aboard the train, authorities said.

It was the second double terrorist action in less than 18 months by the Asian immigrant group in The Netherlands. South Moluccan activists demand that their homeland, a former Dutch colony, be separated from Indonesia. The Dutch have called the demand unrealistic.

There was no report of casualties in today's twin strike, and the attackers made no immediate demands.

Police said they did not know how many gunmen were involved in the two attacks, which came at about the same time and about 10 miles apart.

Hans Uffing, a spokesman for the Dutch railway system, said the engineer and conductor of the commandeered train reported that about 50 passengers escaped after the gunmen seized the train 90 miles northeast of Amsterdam during the morning rush hour.

The two crewmen either were forced to leave the train or escaped when it was stopped, Uffing told a reporter in a telephone interview.

A government official said the terrorists forced their way into the village school at Boven-Smilde at the start of morning lessons and covered the windows from the inside with paper.

Several South Moluccan children were soon allowed to leave the school, the official said.

Armed police surrounded the train, halted on a rural stretch of track, and the school. But there had been no communication with either group of gunmen by midday.

Some of the hijackers boarded the train at Assen, 20 miles south of Groningen and just north of Boven-Smilde, rail officials said.

Carter Spokesmen Are Sent To S. Korea; Will Consult On Withdrawal

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sacking an Army major general for questioning his Korea policy, President Carter is sending two top aides to Seoul for talks on his controversial troop withdrawal plan.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. George Brown, and the State Department's top political officer, Philip C. Habib, left Andrews Air Force Base near here this morning on a flight to the Korean capital to begin intensive consultations.

There are 33,000 ground troops in South Korea, about the same as the number of Americans who died in the Korean war a quarter-century ago.

Carter's plan is to withdraw ground troops over four to five years. But it is understood Habib and Brown will inform the Koreans about the withdrawal strategy for only the first two or three years.

Some Americans share Korean concern about the withdrawal. The most conspicuous example is Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, who was fired by Carter on Saturday from his post as U.S. chief of staff in South Korea.

Singlaub angered Carter by saying publicly that the withdrawal plan is an invitation to a renewed attack on the south by North Korea.

But the feeling here is that the strategy of gradual withdrawal will be more politically acceptable to South Korea than a specific withdrawal timetable covering all U.S. ground troops. Carter's plan represents the most fundamental change in the U.S. security commitment since the Korean armistice was signed 24 years ago.

Meanwhile, the Korean National Council of Churches, no friend to the regime of President Park Chung-hee, held a prayer rally in Seoul on Sunday to protest the proposed pullout. Speakers urged Carter to keep the U.S. troops in Korea to protect the religious freedom of 37 million South Koreans.

And the Korea Times, in a comment on Carter's pledge to stand by Korea after ground forces have been pulled out, said: "The North Korean communist group is well aware of the fact that the U.S. administration's defense commitment on paper to now-defunct South Vietnam resulted in naught."

The Seoul government has declined comment on the Singlaub matter, however, saying it is an internal U.S. problem.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Sunday that Singlaub would be reassigned and was removed from Korea because "having expressed views in contradiction to policy, (he) can't serve there effectively."

Officials say Carter thinks South Korea, with 100,000 more men under arms than North Korea, is capable of defending itself on the ground.

In light of U.S. experience in Vietnam and continued concern in the United States about the human rights situation in South Korea, some officials say there is doubt whether American public opinion would support a prolonged U.S. combat involvement in a new Korean War.

County Receives $591,664 In Tax Proceeds

Pitt County received $591,664 in net distributable tax proceeds for the quarter ending March 31, according to figures reported by Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

On a per capita distribution basis figured relative to population, Greenville received $156,982 of the total amount. The population here was listed in the report as 34,240.

Farmville, based on a population of 5,220, received $23,932 of the total distribution. Lynch reported, while Ayden, with a population of 3,860, received $18,041.

Other Pitt towns, their populations and receipts, included: Grifton (Pitt's share), 2,180, $9,994; Winterville, 2,010, $9,215; Bethel, 1,750, $8,023; Simpson, 480, $2,200; Fountain, 450, $2,063; Grimesland, 420, $1,925; and Falkland, 140, $641.

Total population for Pitt County was listed as 78,300 with the county itself receiving $358,987 of the total proceeds and the balance allotted to the ten towns in the county.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $37,309 in net distributions with $34,752 going to the county itself and the balance allotted to Snow Hill, $1,943; Hookerton, $370; and Walstonburg, $242.

Some $445,249 was received by Lenoir County on an ad valorem basis with $338,469 going to the county and the rest distributed to Kinston, $95,750; La Grange, $8,013; Pink Hill, $2,770; and Grifton, (Lenoir's share) $245.

Martin County, figured on an ad valorem levy, received $156,039 with $124,421 of the total distribution going to the county and the balance allotted to nine towns.

Towns in the county receiving shares were: Williamston, $24,633; Robersonville, $5,027; Jamesville, $660; Oak City, $540; Hamilton, $300; Everetts, $275; Parmele, $82; Bear Grass, $56; and Hassell, $40.

Beaufort County totals, figured on a per capita basis, included $257,637 in total distributions and $190,060 of the total allotted to the county itself. Seven towns shared in the balance, including: Washington, $44,850; Belhaven, $11,413; Aurora, $3,469; Chocowinity, $2,966; Washington Park, $2,664; Bath, $1,106; and Pantego, $1,106.

Miss Judy Gay Nobles Is Bride Stocks-Musselwhite Vows Solemnized

Miss Judy Gay Nobles and Charles Alton Lewis Jr. were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. at Grace Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Nathan Hanchey, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gay Nobles and the late Mr. Ishmael Worth Nobles of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lewis Sr., also of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Bob Karl, organist, and Mrs. Jane Randlett, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church altar was centered with a fifteen-branch brass candelabra holding an arrangement of white and yellow gladioli, chrysanthemums, carnations and pom poms. Each side was flanked by two pyramid twenty-branch candelabra holding matching floral arrangements. Palms of emerald greenery were used throughout. A three-branch brass candelabra was used for the candle ceremony. For the benediction, the couple knelt on a white wrought-iron prie-dieu. Family pews were marked with white satin ribbons and emerald greenery.

The bride, escorted by her brother, Fred G. Nobles, wore a formal white gown of silken organza over peau de soie. Venise lace appliques trimmed the jewel neckline, empire waist and long sheer fitted sleeves. Wide lace braid bordered the square sheer yoke. Motifs of lace adorned the skirt front and back of the chapel length train. She wore a three-quarter length mantilla edged with alencon lace attached to a Camelot cap of lace and bridal pearls.

The bride carried a colonial nosegay of white daisies and baby's breath with white lace streamers.

Mrs. Cheryl O. Jones of Zion, Ill., was the matron of honor. She wore a sleeveless formal length gown of yellow knit designed with a cowl collar and empire waist. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies with white carnations, baby's breath and white ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Margie Nobles, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Kathy Outland, Miss Kim Wooten and Miss Pam Wagner, all of Greenville. They were dressed identically to the honor attendant and carried identical nosegays with yellow ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Tony and Wayne Lewis, brothers of the bridegroom, Cornelius S. Hanchey, cousin of the bridegroom, and J. W. Flake, all of Greenville.

Miss Emily Nobles, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of yellow and white and carried a white basket of yellow petals with a spray of yellow daisies and ribbon. Richard Lewis, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow with a spray of yellow daisies and ribbon.

The bride's mother chose a formal length gown of mint green knit. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal length gown of apricot knit. Both wore white corsages.

MRS. CHARLES ALTON LEWIS JR.

Mrs. Carolyn Sweet of Concord, cousin of the bridegroom, presided at the register. Rice bags were given out by Lynn Nobles, niece of the bride. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Peggy Paige of Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given in the educational building of the church by the parents of the bridegroom. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Dickerson, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Elks. Mrs. Louise Lewis, aunt of the bridegroom, served cake and Miss Margaret Lewis, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

Mrs. Hilda Alexander, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the bride's table and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams said good-byes. The table was decorated with a white lace trimmed cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed spring flowers.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of Rose High School. The bride is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute and is employed at Carolina Neurological Associates, Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of Cape Fear Technical Institute and is self-employed.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Winterville.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nobles, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Sarah Janet Musselwhite became the bride of Michael Dean Stocks at 3 p.m. Sunday at Boyd Memorial Presbyterian Church. Officiating at the double ring, candlelight ceremony was the Rev. DeWitt Helm, and Miss Debra Speight served as organist.

Miss Musselwhite is the daughter of Mrs. Sallie Musselwhite and the late Mr. Charles A. Musselwhite of Winterville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Stocks of Greenville.

The bride was escorted by Robert Musselwhite, her brother, and given in marriage by her mother. She wore a formal gown of white silken organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with an empire waist, a colonial neckline and bishop sleeves. The bodice featured appliques of Venise lace with a sheer yoke of Brussels lace. The sheer sleeves were designed with lace appliques and flowerettes with lace flowerettes encircling the cuffs.

Matching lace appliques were scattered on the full skirt which extended into an attached chapel length train with Venise lace flowerettes accenting the deep flounce. To complete her attire, the bride wore a Juliet cap covered with Venise lace featuring a chapel length veil appliqued with matching lace. She carried a nosegay of phalaenopsis orchids, baby's breath, yellow sweetheart roses, stephanotis and miniature greenery tied with white bridal satin.

Mrs. Melinda Woods of Winterville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Jo Ann Hines of Winterville. They wore formal length gowns of sheer nylon flocked with spring flowers on a pastel blue background. The dresses featured a scooped neck outlined with a ruffle, an empire waist and a sweeping A-line skirt with a deep ruffle. They wore white picture hats with long streamers of blue satin ribbon. They carried long-stemmed yellow roses with matching ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Debbie Smith, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Carolyn Musselwhite, both of Winterville, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Bonnie Harris of Accokeek, Md., cousin of the bride. They wore gowns of pink, yellow and green, respectively, styled identical to the honor attendants. They wore white picture hats with material and ribbon to match their dresses, and carried long-stemmed yellow roses tied with matching ribbons.

Dean Stocks of Greenville, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were John Woods of Winterville, brother-in-law of the bride, and Ray Smith of Winterville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Musselwhite chose for her daughter's wedding, a pink polyester knit formal length dress fashioned with an empire waist, square neckline and short bell sleeves. She wore a corsage of white daisies.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length gown of yellow sheer nylon on a yellow background, featuring full sheer sleeves, a high neck with white lace and an empire waist with yellow belt. She wore a corsage of white daisies.

The grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Fannie Mae Stocks, wore a pink polyester dress with matching jacket. She was remembered with a corsage of pink miniature carnations.

The church was decorated with two arrangements of white gladioli, white daisies and baby's breath. The couple knelt for the closing prayer on a profile prie-dieu. The bride's veil and the attendant's gowns were designed and fashioned by Mrs. Mary Forlines, aunt of the bride, who also directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony a reception honoring the wedding party and guests was held in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. Teresa Smith served the cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Punch was poured by Miss Donna Lambert, and Miss Dawn Branch presided at the register. Good-byes were said by Mrs. Winnie Harris and Mrs. Corina Keel, and rice bags were given to the guests by Mrs. Ann Ward.

The wedding party, friends and out-of-town guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner given by the parents of the bridegroom at Parker's Barbecue.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley and attended UNC-Chapel Hill. She plans to continue her education at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

The bridegroom is in the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Kelly Air AFB, San Antonio, Tex.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in San Antonio.

Let Grandmother Help With Child

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our first child in August, and my mother has already notified me that she is coming to "help me" with the baby. This will be her first grandchild, so we can appreciate her eagerness to "help," but I hope you will publish this letter. It may save our happy relationship with Mom.

We want Mom to know that we have taken a course in how to handle a new baby, so if she really wants to help, she can pitch in and do the laundry, cleaning and cooking. But when it comes to handling the baby, that will be OUR responsibility.

All too often "Grandma" moves in to "help" and she takes charge of the baby completely, making the new mother feel as though she is not yet capable of being a mother.

I'd like Mom to know that I love her, but I'm fully prepared for motherhood, so if she's traveling 2,000 miles to "help" me, I hope she sticks to the housekeeping duties.

HER LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If your mom doesn't see this, and makes the trip anyway, please let her hold her grandchild once in a while, dear.

She's not traveling 2,000 miles to do your laundry.

DEAR ABBY: We don't know whether we have a problem or not, but many of our friends have suggested that we might have.

Our son (I'll call him "Buddy") has asked if he could take ballet lessons. He is nearly 10, and is a perfectly normal boy in all respects, but this request of his has us worried.

His father is afraid this might be a sign that his son isn't going to be "all man," and I'm afraid we might not have any grandchildren. (He is our only child, and I've had a hysterectomy.)

Buddy is graceful and well-coordinated, having taken figure skating for two years, but his father had hoped he'd get interested in contact sports.

What is your thinking on this?

BUDDY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It takes a great deal of "manly discipline" for a boy to excel at ballet. If your 10-year-old son wants to take ballet lessons, don't discourage him.

DEAR ABBY: If the husband is all dressed up in a pale blue jacket and light slacks and looks like he's going to Hawaii, shouldn't the wife dress accordingly, instead of wearing a black gabardine suit like she's going to New York?

How can I tell these friends of ours that they look like they don't belong together? It's odd, and people talk.

Should I mention this to the wife? Or should my husband mention this to the husband?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I don't recommend talking to either one about it. More important than whether people "look" like they belong together is whether they FEEL like they belong together.

Mrs. Peele Reports On Convention

The Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha held its meeting Thursday night at the home of Shirley Westbrook.

Mrs. Linda Peele gave a report on the 25th ESA State Convention. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woods, Woody Peele, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Priestley, Mr. and Mrs. James Hecker, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Westbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Zicherman and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Spain attend the convention held in Charlotte May 13-15.

The Alpha Omega Chapter was awarded a third degree education award, a social award and a travel award. Mrs. Barbara Parker received the Education Gold Link Award. The chapter was also recognized for its contribution to St. Jude's Research Hospital for Children.

Mrs. Zicherman and Mrs. Spain were appointed by the state president, Ruth Ammons, to succeed Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Westbrook as the state finance co-chairmen.

It was announced that the 1978 convention will be held in Wilmington.

The Philanthropic Chairman told of plans for a supper to be held for the clients of ADAP June 9.

Mrs. Priestley, social chairman, reported on the wine and cheese party held for members and their husbands at her home. She said that the June social will be held at the Beef Barn June 16. Mrs. Westbrook will make plans for a summer project.

Mrs. Woods gave the program on the services of the REAL Crisis Center.

Andrew Young Advises Black Boycott In S. Africa

ASIAN KILLER — This is a male and female Schistosoma mansoni, curled one inside the other, which attacks the blood vessels. It was photographed by biology graduate student Bob Miller with an electronic microscope at Texas A&M's Electron Microscopy Center at College Station. There is no known cure for this infection which GIs brought home with them from the rice paddies of Viet Nam. It is transmitted through snails and irrigation water, affects 300 million people in the world and can cause cirrhosis of the liver, enlargement of the spleen and even granulomas in the brain, kidneys and genitalia. The infection is widespread in the Middle East, China and S.E. Asia. (AP Wirephoto)

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer
LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young, who ended a two-day visit to South Africa with a call for a black boycott, defended the non-violent approach to solving southern Africa's racial problems before a sometimes hostile audience of 1,500 students.

The black U.S. ambassador to the United Nations arrived from Johannesburg Sunday and went straight to the University of Zambia where he addressed nearly the entire student body assembled in a gymnasium. "Coming to free Zambia is a breather after our trip to South Africa," Young said.

His entrance drew cheers and his opening line brought even louder ones. But the highly politicized, Marxist-oriented students were soon shouting comments, groaning and jeering some of Young's remarks.

Students accused Young and the United States of doing nothing for southern Africa. "I'm doing what I can," Young began. "Talking," shouted a student, whose remark brought laughter from the audience. "The brother said talking and that's true," Young said. "Zambia would not be free if President (Kenneth) Kaunda had not done a lot of talking. Don't ever put down talking."

"Most of the problems of the world are solved by talking and when talk is backed by economic and political power, talk can be quite effective," Young told the students.

Young is to meet Kaunda today and then leave for Sudan, the last stop on his second African tour since becoming ambassador.

Western policy in southern Africa also stirred student comment.

"France and West Germany supply atomic weapons to South Africa, and the U.S. is the head of these gangsters," shouted one student. "Why did you come to people who are helping suppress us?"

"What I said to the South Africans is that they will be the first black nation with atomic weapons," Young said. There were more groans.

"We are attempting to help the process of liberation in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)," Young said. He was drowned out by more loud moans.

Young met with mostly white groups of businessmen, students and newspaper editors in South Africa and embraced a black nationalist leader. On Sunday, he accused Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime of "systematic oppression and death-dealing" and said the same applied to South Africa with "minor exceptions."

Asked at a news conference in Johannesburg whether he would like to see South African blacks pressure the government with economic boycotts to end racial segregation, Young said, "I sure would."

Former Siberia Prisoner Is Awaiting Daughters' Arrival

DETROIT (AP) — An American imprisoned for 18 years in the Soviet Union and allowed to return to the United States only last year, 19 years after he was freed, can hardly wait for the arrival of the two daughters he left behind.

When they get to New York on Wednesday and see this country for the first time, "they won't believe it," says Victor Herman. The oldest daughter, Svetlana, now 25, was a baby when the family survived by eating rats in Siberia.

Svetlana and Janna, 20, will be moving in with him in a Detroit suburb. His fight to get them to the United States took more than a year, but it wasn't nearly as long as his own battle to come home.

Herman, 61, was born in Detroit. In 1931, he sailed to Russia with his parents and 300 other Detroit families to help build an automobile plant under the auspices of the Russian government and Ford Motor Co.

"It was the first American-Russian trade agreement," he said in a weekend interview.

He never gave up his American citizenship and never intended to stay, Herman said.

"I was working parttime at Ford, and my boss told me if I went and stayed in Russia a few years and got a good education I could come back to a good future."

But after he became well known as an athlete and stunt pilot in the Soviet Union, he decided to remain there.

He said that in 1938, when he was 22, he was arrested without explanation.

He spent the next 18 years imprisoned in Siberia.

Herman remembered being beaten for 54 consecutive nights, and said he avoided starvation at his labor camp by trapping and eating rats. He and his wife, Galina, and infant daughter lived in a dugout, and during the blizzards, he told his family what he remembered of America.

In 1956, Herman said, he was sent to another slave labor camp in the southwest Soviet Union.

He was released a year later, then spent almost 20 years trying to get back to the United States.

He won permission in March 1976 and boarded a plane in Moscow, leaving his family behind.

His wife divorced him "to avoid government censure as the wife of a man who chose to leave Russia," he said.

From the day he returned, he tried to get his daughters to join him. About a month ago, after he contacted the U.S. State Department, the American Embassy in Moscow and the Committee for Soviet Jewry, Svetlana and Janna were told they could join their father.

His daughters are expected to arrive in New York on Wednesday. They will move with their father into a brick duplex in Oak Park, a suburb of Detroit. Herman said Ford had promised to help his daughters get training as computer programmers.

"When the girls get here," Herman said, "they will try to bring their mother over."

Arrest Woman In Gun Slaying

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MURRAY, Utah (AP) — A Colorado woman has been arrested in Carrollton, Tex., on a warrant charging her with criminal conspiracy in the shooting death of polygamist leader Dr. Ron C. Allred.

The arrest of Nancy L. Chynoweth, 28, was announced on Sunday. She was held in the Dallas County Jail in lieu of $150,000 bail.

Police Chief Calvin G. Gillen declined to give details of the arrest, including whether Mrs. Chynoweth was a member of a polygamist group and whether there were other suspects.

Police said last week they were questioning members of the Church of the Lamb of God and that they were looking for its leader Ervil LeBaron.

Salt Lake City television station KUTV quoted a source as saying Mrs. Chynoweth is one of four wives of Victor Chynoweth and described him as a leader of the Church of the Lamb of God, a polygamist group in the Denver area.

Allred, a naturopathic physician, was shot six times by two women who entered his office here the afternoon of May 10. Police said several persons witnessed the killing.

Allred was an excommunicated Mormon whose followers numbered several thousand in Utah and other western states. He had never been recognized publicly as a religious leader before his May 14 funeral.

Allred had at least six wives — police sources say the number is 11 — and more than 40 children. He had several homes in the area.

Gillen would only say that Mrs. Chynoweth "was arrested by Murray Detective Gary Pedersen and Salt Lake County investigator Richard Forbes, assisted by Carrollton City Police, Texas Rangers, Texas Public Safety and Dallas City police."

Most of the polygamist groups are offshoots of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), which allowed polygamy until the 1890s. It now excommunicates polygamy advocates.

107-Year-Old 135 Are Initiated Died Sunday By Honor Society

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 107-year-old man, who once attributed his longevity to avoiding hard work, died Sunday.

Walter Dickerson, who was born on Feb. 13, 1870 in Tate Springs, Tenn., according to Social Security Records, died in a nursing home where he had lived since 1971.

"I didn't smoke, and I didn't drink, and I went to church, but mostly I think I've lived a long time because I took care of myself when I was young. I didn't do no hard work," he once said in an interview.

Dickerson had been married twice, but had no children of his own.

"But I raised a lot of children," he said of his experiencing working for families in Tennessee and Asheville. His last position was butler for the family of Col. Allen M. Burdett Sr.

The colonel's son, Gen. Allen M. Burdett Jr., is now stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and remembered Dickerson's times with his family.

"My father was an Army career man, and every time he moved somewhere, Walt moved, too," Burdett said.

Dickerson received a telegram on his 103rd birthday from then-President Richard Nixon.

East Carolina University's Lambda chapter of Gamma Beta Phi honor society has initiated 135 new student members.

The new members, from 48 North Carolina counties and nine other states, received certificates in a recent campus ceremony.

A national honor society, Gamma Beta Phi accepts new members who have demonstrated unusual academic achievement and worthiness of character.

Media Society Meets Tuesday

The Pitt-Greenville Media Society will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the E. B. Aycock Junior High School Media Center-Library.

Hostesses will be Beatrice C. Maye and Martha W. Blackwelder.

Aycock's Media Program will be shared by tape. A session of idea-sharing concerning programming and publicity will follow.

Members are urged to attend.

It was chartered in 1964 by a group of South Carolina educators and now has 50 chapters with members in eleven southern states. One of its chief purposes is the improvement of education through appropriate service projects.

Officers of the ECU chapter are Johnny Edwards of Greenville, president; Kimberly Simpson of Greenville, vice president; Sarah York of Statesville, secretary; Diana Dolack of Havelock, treasurer; and Connie King of Roanoke Rapids, historian.

Elizabeth Smith of the ECU Department of Library Services is faculty advisor for the chapter.

Names of new area members and their hometowns follow: GREENE COUNTY, Snow Hill — Betty Scott Lane.

MARTIN COUNTY, Williamston — Nancy Tyson, Carol Tice and Polly Williams.

An All-Embracing Name Sought

One of the sticking points on the hospital board of trustees seems to be what name the medical complex should bear.

The plan is to list all units of the complex, but to have a designation which encompasses them all.

A committee proposed Eastern Medical Center, which was countered with a motion that it be known as Pitt Regional Medical Complex.

Maybe we are provincial, but we would like a name embracing Pitt County, given the tradition of the hospital and all the work done in the county which originally got the project underway.

It needn't be a problem, however, since all of the complexes functions will likely be listed on any signs erected on the property.

Road directional signs would probably read "Hospital" or "Medical Center", which is all one searching for the complex really needs to know.

An Invitation To Financial Disaster

President Carter is under great pressure from liberal elements to bring forth a national health care program, and he has promised to do so next year.

He warned, however, that "we cannot afford to do everything". The nation must make hard choices, he said.

We have seen from other federal medical programs that the costs can quickly become staggering. We can only hope that the program the president comes up with will be designed to handle the catastrophic health costs for a family. Attempting to have the government pay for all health care is an invitation to financial disaster.

Sales Tax Data 'Bright'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — If, as the salesman insists, nothing happens till somebody sells something . . . things are happening again in North Carolina.

Comparison of sales figures across the state for the year ending in January, 1977, with the previous year paints a bright picture of the state's economy.

For without sales, there'd be less need for manufacturing, transporting, displaying, advertising, and retailing.

The past year boomed to 13.32 per cent increase over the previous year, according to sales and use tax collections compiled by the State Department of Revenue.

Wholesale retail sales, total sales and use tax collections reached $512.9 million; compared to $452.6 million the previous year—a jump of $60.3 million.

Where does the big money come in state sales and use tax collections? You could guess by recalling the strenuous objections of governmental leaders to any fiddling with the sales tax on food.

Food Tax

That category produced $142.3 million in 1976; compared to $130.1 million the previous year—up 9.36 per cent.

Second to food and beverages was tax collections on motor vehicles, airplanes, boats and machinery (taxed at either two per cent or one per cent rather than four per cent; and with a $120 maximum) yielding $49 million, and boosted by another $37.8 million in taxes on automotive parts and accessories for a total of $86.8 million in that category.

Apparel produced $37.8 million in sales taxes; furniture produced $23.3 million; lumber and building materials produced $46.2 million; and general merchandise produced $95.5 million.

The rebound was general across North Carolina, with a survey of county-by-county collection figures (which typically mirror fairly well local business activity, but can't show across-county-line or state-line shopping activities) proving each of the 100 counties improved.

The slowest improvement last year over the previous was Edgecombe with 5.05 per cent growth. Fastest growth was tiny Camden County in the northeast corner. With no incorporated town and sparse population, Camden recorded a 118.33 per cent increase. But the actual figures don't create that much excitement: sales tax collections climbed from $90,691 to $198,004.

Later Revenue Department figures bear out the generally improved trend portrayed by those contained in the annual report.

March, 1977, collections were up 13.56 per cent over March, 1976.

Actual collections were up 33.3 per cent according to official figures, but it is necessary to discount the new monthly withholding of tax collections on income which is currently producing a windfall for the state coffers.

The first nine months of this fiscal year show total general fund collections of $1.4 billion; up 14.23 per cent over the same nine months of 1975-76.

Members of the General Assembly just now putting final touches to the state's budget will find this information encouraging, and bearing out their projections.

The highway fund, however, is not enjoying the same healthy growth as sales and income tax collections. For the first nine months of the fiscal year, collections totaled $312 million; up only 3.8 per cent over the previous fiscal year.

BILL NOBLITT

County Sales

Mecklenburg continues to be North Carolina's number one market place, with tax collections totaling $57 million; up 12.5 per cent. Guilford logged $37 million in collection; up 13.4 per cent; and Wake totaled $35 million, up 14.6 per cent; followed by Forsyth with $27 million, up 13.6 per cent.

INDUSTRY LOOKING AHEAD

Big Cars Much In Demand

By OWEN ULLMANN

Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Energy crisis or not, Americans are not about to give up their cars and the lifestyles their automobiles has created. The tremendous demand this year for new cars — primarily big ones — is evidence of that.

Slowly, though, the motoring public and the industry which put the nation on wheels are changing course. Cars are getting smaller. So are engines. And, if President Carter's controversial gasoline tax is approved by Congress, people may drive fewer miles.

The trend toward smaller, lighter, less powerful and more fuel efficient vehicles has been a major industry goal for a decade. It was spurred by the Midwest oil embargo in 1973, and is being accelerated again by federal fuel economy laws.

Carter's proposed tax on gasguzzlers and rebates for fuel-efficient models will provide new incentives to think small.

By 1985, according to industry forecasters, the average new car will be about the size of today's compact — 16 to 17 feet long, a little over 1½ tons in weight, able to seat four or five adults comfortably and with a light-weight four- or six-cylinder engine electronically controlled to deliver more than 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Compare that with today's biggest landcruisers — 2½ tons of sculptured steel, iron, chrome and plastic stretching 19 to 20 feet from nose to rear with room for six and powered by a huge, fuel-slurping eight-cylinder engine that provides 12 m.p.g.

There still will be some "big" family size cars in 1985. They won't be as large as today's road-hogs, though, and they'll be powered by efficient diesels or other newly designed engines. Their bodies may be composed of exotic lightweight materials.

Beyond 1985, the possibilities are mind-boggling. Electric cars may be the principle mode of transportation in the 1990s if a lightweight battery able to hold a long charge can be developed.

Electronics certainly will play a greater role in tomorrow's automobile — replacing heavy, space-wasting mechanical components with small, light-weight and precise minicomputers and microprocessors controlling steering, braking, acceleration and other functions.

New fuels may replace gasoline as petroleum becomes scarce. Among those now being tested are water, propane, hydrogen, alcohol and, yes, even peanut oil.

While Detroit's futurists differ in some regards, they all agree the automobile will remain the dominant form of transportation in this country for at least the remainder of the century.

Some forecasters say Carter's energy program will dampen new-car sales by about 300,000 units a year between 1978 and 1980 to 11 million. The record of 11.4 million was set in 1973.

Industry optimists say even with increased government regulation, car sales could approach 14 million by 1985, and the number of vehicles on the road will rise 20 per cent from today's levels to 120 million.

Small-car sales have been on the rise in this country since the 1950s. By 1960, European imports and domestic compacts such as the Valiant, Falcon and Corvair accounted for a quarter of the market.

Americans were becoming more affluent. Those who owned one car, bought a second one, often a small model. Younger people who couldn't afford a car before found they could afford a little one.

The small-car market remained at about a 25 per cent share through the 1960s. By 1970, inflation had priced the big car out of many Americans' reach. So they turned to low priced imports, many now from Japan. Detroit countered with its subcompact Gremlin, Vega and Pinto.

Before the oil embargo in the fall of 1973, small cars — compact in size and under — held more than a third of the new car market.

In 1975, in the aftermath of the energy crisis and recession, small cars had taken more than half the market. It was a temporary aberration, exaggerated by hysteria over long lines at gas stations, skyrocketing fuel prices, fears of future gas shortages and a recession which pinched consumers' pocketbooks.

As the economic storm clouds dissipated in 1976, consumers returned to their normal habits. Traditional big-car buyers who sat out of the market for two years showed up at dealers, while small-car buyers who rushed out and bought a fuel-stingy model during the mid-70s had no plans to trade for a new

The Big Network Race

WASHINGTON—The TV network sports departments were trying to think of a new sports event which would capture the imagination of the American people—and also bring in $120,000 a minute in advertising.

One of the producers said, "I've got it. What about a race between a hare and a tortoise. It's never been done on television before."

"That's it," said the network vice president. "It's a natural. We'll make it bigger than the Kentucky Derby."

The producer went to see the manager of a hare. "We'd like your boy to race against a tortoise on prime-time television. We're willing to put up a prize of $150,000 winnertake-all."

"It sounds interesting," the hare's manager said. "But my boy isn't going to compete against a tortoise on TV for winner-take-all unless he gets a guarantee of $50,000 if he loses."

"Naturally," the producer said. "We wouldn't announce a winner-take-all event unless the loser was guaranteed a purse."

The producer signed the hare up and then went to see a promoter of tortoise races. The promoter said, "I've got 10 tortoises you can pick from."

The producer said, "We want a champion tortoise who has won his last 10 races."

Other Editors Say Past Due

Jacksonville Daily News

Even in this day of women's liberation, it is an all-but-forgotten fact that 1,100 women served the nation as pilots during World War II, flying everything from P-51 fighters to the big-gest bombers.

These were the WASPs—the Women's Airforce Service Pilots. According to an article in the current issue of VIVA, the women's magazine WASP ferry pilots flew airplanes hot off the assembly lines to airports and ports of embarkation. They were also stationed at training fields across the country and were frequently required to test-fly airplanes just out of the repair shop. In addition, they were heavily involved as staff pilots in every training mission preparing males for combat duty.

In the article entitled, "Those Daring Young Women in Their Flying Machines," author Sally Van Wagenen Kell recalls that "WASPs taught men how to strafe, drop bombs, lay blankets of smoke and track enemy aircraft...They taught gunners to shoot airplanes from turrets and tanks and from batteries of ground artillery...As evidence of the reality of their immediate involvement in war, 38 crashed to their deaths flying for their country."

Unlike the men they trained and flew with, however, the women pilots were denied military hospitalization and insurance, and their salaries were pegged a full 20 per cent lower than the men's.

After racking up more than 60 million miles in the air, the WASPs were disbanded on Dec. 20, 1944, when Congress—in a debate spiced with barbs about the alleged inability of women to fly as well as men—refused to grant the group full military status. Ironically, at about the same time, the Army was using women to test-fly the B-29 superbomber to reassure male pilots about the new craft's safety.

All this is more than an interesting footnote to history. Some 850 surviving WASPs have united in the Order of Fifinella, named after the character designed by Walt Disney as their mascot, to fight for the veterans rights and recognition so long denied them. Identical bills have been introduced in bothhouses of Congress by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., to provide these women veterans with the service benefits they would automatically have received had they been men.

At the time of their disbandment in 1944, Gen. H. H. "Hap" Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, told the WASPs, "We of the AAF are proud of you. We will never forget our debt to you."

After more than 32 years, it's time that debt was paid.

"I've got one," the promoter said. "He's working out in the Everglades now, but he should be ready by next month."

"How do we know he's a winner?"

"Here's his record in Tortoise Track Magazine. It's the official book for all tortoise racing throughout the world, and no one has ever questioned it. What's the purse?"

"We're offering $150,000 winner-take-all, with a guarantee of $50,000 to the loser."

"We'll do it provided we keep the advertising rights to the tortoise's back. I think we can sell them to a tire company."

The producer and promoter shook hands on the deal.

Then the promoter went over to a swamp near Kennedy Airport. There were several tortoises snoozing in the sun. "Anyone want to race a hare on television?"

Not one tortoise looked up.

"Listen, there's $150,000 in it for the winner and $50,000 for the loser."

A tortoise peered out of his shell. "That's not bad."

The promoter said, "My share will be 80 percent, win or lose."

"That's a lot," the tortoise said.

"You want your big chance on TV or don't you?" the promoter said. "I know a hundred tortoises who would give their tails for this opportunity."

The tortoise said resigned—(Continued on page 5)

Voice For A Saving

By DAVID R. NELSEN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Thanks to Rep. William T. "Billy" Watkins, D-Granville, the legislature has been caught between that well known rock and a hard place.

Last Thursday, the House was giving final consideration to a bill that would propose a $300 million bond issue for highways. The money would be used over a five-year period at $60 million a year. It would be paid back over 20 years at a total cost of nearly $700 million — that's $400 million interest.

Watkins threw many legislators and the governor into a tailspin when he offered a method of saving the people that $400 million interest and still have the $300 million for roads.

To do it, Watkins proposed letting the people choose between spending $700 million for $300 million worth of roads or paying an additional two cents a gallon gasoline tax for five years which estimates say would raise about $60 million a year.

North Carolina legislators often say the greatest thing about Tar Heel government is fiscal responsibility. The primary reason the state has avoided some of the financial problems suffered by other governments, the lawmakers say, is the ban on deficit spending in the state constitution. In other words, the state cannot borrow to keep itself running and must live within its means.

Bond issues are allowed for special purposes such as road-building, but used sparingly.

Gov. Jim Hunt has urged the bond issue for roads, saying it would help the state's efforts to attract new industry. He has opposed any tax increase during his administration, making a bond issue the only way to get the extra road funds.

Watkins said his proposal would get the governor off the hook because the added gas tax would not be imposed unless the people want it.

He was chuckling over the proposal last Friday because the governor, like the legislature, takes pride in fiscal conservatism. The bond issue would be $400 million spent on interest that could be spent elsewhere or kept by the people if the roads were built with cash rather than on credit, he said.

What could be more sound than saving a total of more than 130 per cent interest? How can anyone oppose saving the people $400 million? How can anyone oppose letting the people make the choice? Watkins pondered the situation, smiled and said, "They can't."

The word from the House leadership is that an attempt will be made to have the Watkins proposal killed when the House resumes debate on the bond bill Tuesday. Justifying that position will take some fancy footwork because Watkins says he's going to put up a strong fight and the veteran legislator is known as a tough scrapper.

Price Levels Reflect A Threat

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer prices rose again in April, as expected, and, as expected, the administration economists who seek to bring the numbers down have proclaimed again their confidence in eventual victory.

The numbers so far give little support to that faith.

The Carter administration goal is 4 per cent inflation by the end of 1978. Last year consumer prices rose 4.8 per cent. A 1977 goal of 5.3 per cent was originally set. Later it was revised to 6.7. The latest rate is 9.6 per cent.

Increases in wholesale prices, which are said to precede retail price increases, have been at a 12 per cent rate in recent months. These wholesale prices might not work their way to the retail level, but the threat is there.

The administration recognizes the dangers but it recognizes also that to admit to fears and to act weak in the face of the inflation threat is to promote the inflation it seeks to avert.

Inflationary expectations are incendiary. Individuals who fear inflation rush to buy before prices rise more. Businesses that expect higher costs prepare themselves by raising prices.

But for an administration to accompany the monthly statistics with still more professions of faith is to risk credibility.

It happened in the Nixon administration, when Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, announced month after month, simultaneously with the discouraging statistics, that the worst was now behind. It wasn't.

But in the present situation the Carter administration is not alone in its expectations. Many bank and business economists also expect the inflation rate, even as measured by the Consumer Price Index, to begin declining soon.

Above all else, they offer the prospect of good food-growing weather to support their expectations. A large part of the eight-tenths of 1 per cent rise in the April CPI — 9.6 per cent on an annual basis — was caused by food prices being forced up by adverse weather. A return to "normal" is to be expected, they say.

That assumption can be risky. What we call unusual weather seems to be the norm. We might refer to "freak" storms or unseasonal weather patterns, but in so doing we merely

RECOGNIZING OURSELVES

A famous cartoonist once drew cartoon pictures of everyone attending a dinner party and then passed the pictures around for the guests to examine. Everybody recognized everyone else's picture, but no one recognized his own.

Here the cartoonist revealed the fact that few of us would recognize ourselves as others see us. To be sure, we recognize our own faces in a mirror or in a photograph, but when the cartoonist sketches in our character as it comes across to others, many of us would see only a stranger.

Most of us would get a shock if we really saw ourselves as others see us. We may think we are impressive; others think we are vain. We may think ourselves intelligent; others might think we are merely pretentious. Or we might have some failure of character which we consider thoroughly hidden. Yet the cartoonist sees it — as plain as the nose on our face.

FORECAST

Until Tuesday

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast for scattered regions across the nation today, including northern New England, much of the Southeast, the northern Rocky Mountain states, as well as a band of states ranging north from Texas to Nebraska. Seasonable temperatures are expected for most of the nation. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Scattered showers and thundershowers are in prospect for North Carolina through Tuesday, but they are most likely over the mountains and southern sections of the state, occurring mainly during the afternoons and evenings.

Some showers occurred around the state Sunday, ranging from a trace recorded at Asheville, Hickory and Cape Hatteras, to nearly an inch recorded at Goldsboro.

Charlotte, Greensboro and Wilmington also reported showers.

Sunday's heaviest downpour, however, was reported in the mountains at Rosman, where nearly three inches were recorded.

Temperatures ranged generally in the low 80s Sunday, except for some upper 70s in the mountains and they are expected to continue about the same through Tuesday.

Overnight low readings will be mostly in the 60s.

car for another few years.

As a result, the small-car share of the market has dropped off to about 45 per cent. The industry says that's exactly where the long-term small-car growth trend would be today if there had been no oil embargo.

Today, demand for new models is strongest at the extremes:

—Big cars with big engines are being grabbed by those who believe this is their last chance to buy a full-size model.

—Low-priced, fuel-stingy imports are selling in record numbers to Americans who either can't afford a big car or are conserving energy voluntarily without waiting for a congressional mandate.

For those who would continue to build, sell and buy gas-guzzling cars, Congress had passed one law and is considering another proposed by Carter.

The current law requires Detroit to meet a minimum fuel economy standard which begins in 1978 and toughens each year through 1985.

All 1978 cars produced by each company must average at least 18 m.p.g. That allows a firm to build some cars that get only 12 m.p.g., but it must also build enough models getting 24 m.p.g. to meet the average. The penalty for missing the standard, even by one-tenth m.p.g., could run into millions of dollars.

Even if it were profitable to sell big cars and pay the fine, industry officials have said their firms would not intentionally break the law.

The standard is 19 m.p.g. for 1979, 20 m.p.g. in 1980 and reaches 27.5 m.p.g. in 1985.

Just to reach the 18 m.p.g. mark, the industry has had to revamp its cars, which averaged only about 12 m.p.g. in 1972. General Motors made its full-size cars smaller for 1977 and will do the same to its intermediates for 1978. Ford and Chrysler also plan to replace big cars with smaller versions and drop their least efficient models.

In addition, Detroit has been bringing out new, roomier compacts and subcompacts with smaller engines. It's all part of a well-planned strategy to ease America behind the wheel of a smaller car without creating a sudden, dramatic shock that could result in lost sales.

The industry argues that a tax on gas-guzzlers and rebate on fuel-stingy models is unnecessary because the fuel economy laws will achieve Carter's energy conservation objectives. No matter what the demand, Detroit will be able to build only a limited number of big cars and still meet the mileage figures.

The tax-rebate plan, which has a good chance of passing Congress, lets consumers go on buying all the big cars they want if they pay the price, and they surely will, Detroit says.

But the industry also fears government intrusion into new car pricing, a private domain the industry jealously guards because of the great impact price has on market demand.

The tax-rebate plan would affect new cars retroactive to May 1. It would start at $52 for cars getting less than 18 m.p.g. and increase to a maximum $449 on those with less than 13 m.p.g. Detroit is not expected to sell any 1978 cars with that low a rating, however. The tax gets stiffer each year, reaching $2,488 on 1985 models getting less than 12.5 m.p.g. — again academic since the industry won't be building such gas-guzzlers. A maximum rebate of nearly $500 will go with cars getting 39 or more m.p.g. through 1985.

ly, "Okay. Anything to get out of this swamp."

Once the contracts had been signed the network flacks went to work promoting the event.

The buildup was unbelievable. By the evening of the race, which was held in the capital of Zaire, 60 million people had tuned in for the "greatest sporting event in television history."

Howard Cosell and Eddie Arcaro were sent over to do the commentary. Howard and Eddie both agreed there was no question in their minds that the hare would easily win.

When the gun sounded, the hare took off and led by 3,000 lengths. The tortoise crawled along. The hare looked back and decided he was so far ahead he would take a nap. But he overslept and when he woke up he saw the tortoise cross the finish line.

The hare started to bite Howard and protested that the race had been fixed. Howard was shocked and said the network would hold a full investigation. There was, and the vice president of sports at a press conference declared he was canceling all future hare-and-tortoise races.

Then the network sports people met and the vice president said, "Okay, what do we do next week?"

Familiar Talk At White House

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

There is a familiar ring to the economics lectures at the White House these days as a new team grapples with old problems. At times, it sounds like a rerun.

It has Republicans boasting that their administration was right all along. It has a few Democrats complaining that President Carter's economic policies are too timid. It proves neither argument.

Instead, it shows that no politician and no political party has found the cure to the nagging problems of unemployment and inflation.

Carter has said he inherited a floundering economy that has perked up because of growing confidence among businessmen and consumers.

Republicans contend that he took charge just as conditions were improving anyhow.

The decline in unemployment this year has been accompanied by an increase in the rate of inflation. And it happened before Carter's economic recovery policies of job creation and tax cuts for the average worker could be adopted, let alone implemented and felt in the marketplace.

That makes it difficult if not impossible to assign the credit or the blame to the policies of government.

There is an ironic parallel between Carter's pronouncements now and those of Gerald Ford as he faced similar problems a year ago.

"Last month, the number of Americans with jobs in the private sector of our economy went over 90 million for the first time in our history," Carter said last week. "Unemployment now stands at its lowest level in 29 months — down a full percentage point since last November. But at 7 per cent, it is still too high."

Now back up to Sept. 14, 1976, and Ford's discussion of the same problem, at a time when the unemployment rate was a shade under 8 per cent:

"The unemployment statistic is too high, but bear in mind that we have 88 million people working today, which is an all-time high in the history of the United States."

Or take Ford's statement in campaign debate: "Most importantly, consumer confidence ... is at the highest since 1972. In other words, there is a growing public confidence in the strength of this economy."

Ford has told Republicans they should be complimented "that the new administration seems to be emulating so many of our policies." He also complained that an inflation rate which had been declining is now increasing.

Carter has acknowledged the rekindled threat of inflation, and is seeking voluntary wage and price restraint. One of his vehicles is a labor-management advisory group that was set up three years ago to work with Ford.

But on that side of the problem, too, it is hard to see how programs the Democratic administration has not yet been able to implement can be assigned the blame for an increase in prices. The spurt in inflation appears to have more to do with the harsh weather of the past winter than with the decisions of politicians or economists.

That doesn't diminish the political problem for Carter. Whatever the economic forces that create change, the political fact is that the President gets the blame or the credit.

Status Of Key N.C. Measures

RALEIGH (AP) — Here is the status of major legislation in the North Carolina General Assembly:

ROAD BONDS — A bill to let the voters decide if they want a $300 million road bond issue is before the House. It was amended Thursday to give voters the alternative of voting on a temporary two-cent per gallon gas tax to save the $400 million interest the bonds would cost.

SUCCESSION — The proposal to let the governor and lieutenant governor seek second consecutive terms has been enacted and will go to the public in the next statewide election.

VETO — The House Constitutional Amendments Committee killed a bill that would have let the people vote on whether the governor should have the veto power.

LIQUOR — A bill to allow cities and counties with ABC stores to have referendums on liquor by the drink was filed last week and is pending in the Senate ABC Committee.

DEATH PENALTY — A death penalty bill for first degree murder has been enacted into law and takes effect June 1. A Senate judiciary committee has begun deliberations on extending the penalty to first degree rape.

SCHOOL BOARD I — A bill to make the lieutenant governor permanent chairman of the state Board of Education will get final consideration in the Senate Monday. It is expected to face a tough battle in the House.

SCHOOL BOARD II — A bill to propose a constitutional amendment to make the superintendent of public instruction appointed by the Board of Education rather than elected and to change the method of choosing board members is up for Senate debate next week.

PORN — Several bills aimed at regulating pornography are still under consideration with one Senate-passed bill up for final consideration in the House next week.

Cars Collided At Intersection

An estimated $1,200 damage resulted from an 11:48 p.m. Saturday collision at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets Police reported.

Officers identified the drivers of the cars involved as James Sutton Sherman of Fayetteville and James Douglas Roach of Route 2, Grimesland.

Damage was estimated at $750 to the Sherman car and $450 to the Roach vehicle by police who charged Roach with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and with driving while his license was revoked.

Found Potted Marijuana

Two 23-year-old residents of 33 Village Greene Apts. at 800 Heath St. were charged with possession of marijuana following a search of their dwelling about 10:15 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Bobby Michael Guy and Ervin Eugene Leonard were arrested after officers found three pots with 12-inch tall marijuana plants growing, eight more pots with sprouts growing and about an ounce of marijuana seed.

No other fungicide stops leafspot better than DU-TER

FUNGICIDE.

High peanut yields for low cost.

In more than 100 commercial peanut test plots, DU-TER has shown:

- Unsurpassed control of cercospora leafspot.
- Effective, economical control when used in an alternating spray program.
- Comparable, or higher yields when used alone vs. other leading fungicides.
- Minimum foliage burn when used as directed.
- No known leafspot resistance.
- Suppression of two-spotted mite infestations.
- A better pod at harvest when tank-mixed with sulfur.

Based on the recommended 6-ounce rate, DU-TER costs less than $3.00 per acre. That's nearly $2.00 per acre less than some leading fungicides.

So, get the most out of your leafspot control program with DU-TER. See your nearby farm chemical supplier today.

Two Bills Would Alter N.C. Credit Relationships

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Two bills now pending before the General Assembly would alter the relationship between North Carolinians who use revolving credit accounts and their banks or stores.

One bill would allow a minimum charge for use of the cards and allow a different way of computing interest. It would also allow banks to charge merchants more to participate in BankAmericard and Master Charge plans which could affect prices.

The other bill would allow banks and merchants to repossess merchandise purchased on the cards. The problem with that, said Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, is that a customer wouldn't know what items are still mortgaged and which are paid off.

Lillian Woo, head of the Consumer Center of North Carolina, said the bankers have a good chance of getting the measures through.

"Consumer efforts in the legislature are focused primarily on maintaining the status quo, keeping the situation from eroding for the average citizen. If we can do that we've done a great deal because it is impossible to move ahead with more progressive issues," she said.

The bills have been offered before and were beaten in earlier legislative sessions, Mrs. Woo said.

The repossession bill has already cleared the House and now is before the Senate. Under that bill, items purchased on revolving accounts would be considered mortgaged until paid off. Since numerous items are purchased with credit cards, a complicated percentage formula is used to determine how much of a monthly bill applies to which items, Miller said.

Consequently, a customer does not know which items are paid for, he said.

For example, a person could purchase a $400 refrigerator with a card then purchase small items totalling $600 over four months. If the person paid $500 in that time, he would have covered the cost of the refrigerator, but it wouldn't be paid off and it could be repossessed.

The other bill is in the Senate Banking Committee. Sen. Carl Totherow, D-Forsyth, said he filed it at the request of the banking lobby.

One provision of the bill would allow a 50-cent charge on customers who pay their bills on time to avoid interest. Bankers say about 30-35 per cent of the cardholders do that.

Totherow argues that it would make the person help pay the cost of the convenience the cards offer. But, Mrs. Woo points out customers bear the cost through the price of merchandise which reflects all business costs.

Another provision of his bill would hit the other two-thirds of the cardholders. It would allow the use of "average daily balance" or the "previous balance" in figuring interest.

Previous balance is now required by law. If a person owes $200 and pays $10, the next bill includes $3 interest no matter what new items are on the bill.

Average daily balance allows new purchases to be counted in computing interest. If a person paid $10 on his $200 statement and had $300 in new merchandise added to the bill, the interest could be as high as about $7.50, depending on the when new items came on the bill and when payments were made.

Totherow's bill would also allow the banks to increase the merchant discount to 6 per cent. It is now 4 per cent. Now, a merchant who participates in BankAmericard or Master Charge pays up to $4 for each $100 charged on the cards. The percentage is negotiated and depends on volume of business and average amount charged.

Tar Heel bankers have told The Associated Press in the past that the amount charged the merchant is about what is needed to cover the costs of offering the credit card service. The profits come from the 18 per cent interest that 65-70 per cent of the customers pay, they said.

John Jordan of Raleigh, the banking lobbyist, said last week he could not comment on that in reference to the request for still higher charges because banks do not reveal such details.

Adopt New Standards Upgrading Leaf Quality

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has adopted new standards to upgrade the quality of flue-cured tobacco as a benefit to both producers and buyers, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Bob Meyer told the Flue Cured Advisory Committee in Raleigh recently.

The rapid build-up in loan stocks of low-stalk grades of flue-cured tobacco and the accompanying problems of sand and other foreign matter have lowered the overall quality of tobacco program, Meyer told the committee.

More stringent uniformity requirements and waste tolerances have been established in the nondescript grades and a precise definition of foreign matter has been spelled out.

"We hope this precise definition will serve as a deterrent to marketing an undesirable product and encourage producers to improve the quality of this tobacco," Meyer said.

USDA will consider the 1977 flue-cured season as a trial period for the new standards and should the measures prove inadequate, stronger modifications will be instituted one year from now.

USDA will assist state departments of agriculture, farm and tobacco organizations and cooperative state extension services in providing full information on the new grade changes in the five major flue-cured producing states, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Virginia.

Energy-fuel and electricity-is essential for tobacco production. The majority of the energy consumed is during the curing process. Therefore, energy becomes crucial in terms of maintaining the profitability of the "Golden Leaves."

Energy lost in bulk curing occurs in two forms. First, conduction losses through the wall ceiling and roof accounts for an estimated 15 percent of energy lost. Secondly, excess loss of heat through over ventilation is estimated to be 85 percent of energy lost.

Pitt County growers therefore have two avenues for energy conservation. Energy lost by conduction can be reduced by insulation of barn walls, ceilings and floors. Also, stopping all air leaks to outside in walls and around doors will reduce energy lost.

The most important means to conserve energy is to guard against excess ventilation. Proper ventilation can be achieved by the understanding and use of a wet-bulb thermometer. According to Rupert Watkins, extension agricultural engineer, North Carolina State University, "Trying to cure efficiently without a wet-bulb thermometer is like trying to drive 55 mph without a speedometer: You can never be sure exactly how fast you are going."

When the ideal leaf temperatures are known during different stages or curing, and how to make sure you get these readings, the fresh air damper on the barn can be adjusted properly at all times. When the wet-bulb temperature changes, the dampers should be opened or closed to keep the wet-bulb temperature in the correct range for more efficient curing.

WHAT IS MORE IMPORTANT ENERGY OR FOOD?

Energy conservationists have been making comments recently about the amount of fuel and other energy forms consumed by farmers.

In the United States we burn 13 to 14 petroleum calories to produce a food calorie. China is seven or eight times more efficient than we are in reference to the number of calories used to produce a food calorie, according to Gaylon Ambrose, assistant agricultural extension agent.

For example, raising corn in the United States requires only nine man hours per acre. While raising corn largely by hand in parts of Mexico requires 458 man hours per acre. But doing it by hand, the Mexicans are nearly 50 times more energy efficient, Ambrose added. Hand labor may be more efficient from an energy standpoint but it certainly is not practical. The countries that are using it are the ones that are starving and need our food aid. The point is that more research is needed in order to find ways for United States Agriculture to be less dependent on petroleum.

Calculations indicate that it would require 25,000 people wielding hoes to hand weed Pitt County's 100,000 acre corn and soybean crops. In other words, all of Greenville's permanent residents. This does not include tobacco or peanut acreage, according to Ambrose.

The Point: Energy is important, but let's keep it in perspective.

Selection Committee Is Expected By Mid-June

Recognition For Seniors

Senior Citizens Recognition Day was held at the Grimesland Fire Department for the residents of Simpson, Black Jack and the Pactolus area Friday.

The workshop which was one of a series of workshops sponsored by the Pitt County Council on Aging and the Mid East Commission throughout Pitt County recently. The workshops are designed to provide information to older adults, community leaders, and the general public interested in services and opportunities available to older adults.

Kathy Donaghue, Mid-East Commission Aging Director, conducted a panel presentation concerning what communities can do for senior citizens. Bonita Sannett discussed Home Health Care; Polly Dail discussed Transportation; Sue Singleton discussed Food and Nutrition; Sue May discussed Housing and Home Repairs; and Beth Clark discussed Living Within an income.

Following the panel discussion a musical program was presented by the Chapelettes of Chocowinity Union Chapel F.W.B. Church.

The local planning committee for the workshop included Mrs. J. D. Heath, Mrs. Guy Mayo, Sr., and Mrs. Minnie Tucker.

Troy W. Pate Jr. of Goldsboro, Chairman of East Carolina University's Board of Trustees, says he expects to complete the formation of a selection committee by mid June that will recommend a successor to ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo W. Jenkins.

Jenkins, President and Chancellor at ECU since 1960, has announced that he will retire at the close of the 1977-78 academic year.

Pate said he is pleased with those that have already been nominated to serve on the committee. "They are highly representative of the major areas within the University and possess the expertise that this important task requires." He also expressed his appreciation for the outstanding support of those submitting the nominations.

Pate said he would not complete the naming of nominees to the selection committee until the pending appointments and reappointments to the ECU Board of Trustees are made. These actions are forthcoming from the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and Gov. James B. Hunt.

Local Students Named Pages

Two local students have been appointed to serve as pages in the North Carolina Senate May 9-13.

Greg Stokes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Stokes, and Denise Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dennis, were appointed by Lt. Gov. James C. Green.

Will Preach On Three Nights

Minister Bobby Wooten will be the speaker for three nights at the Joy Temple Holiness Church beginning Wednesday.

Services will begin at 7:30 nightly and will continue through Friday.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook: Veteran In Public Service

ALLSBROOK LISTENS — Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook (D-Halifax) listens intently to debate of a bill on the floor of the North Carolina Senate. (AP Wirephoto)

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Julian Russell Allsbrook's first experience in politics came as student body president at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and he swore at year's end that he was through with public office.

That was in 1924, and Allsbrook recalled, "I told them if they ever heard of me running for public office again to go over to Dorothea Dix Hospital and bring a strait jacket and two strong men to take me away."

The drawbacks of public office eventually diminished, in his view.

"Experience takes care of a lot of that," said Allsbrook, who, as state senator from Halifax County, has racked up the experience. Since 1935 he has been in and out of enough state senates (mostly in) to qualify as that body's senior member.

As student council president, he worked on the same kind of hectic schedule he has maintained as a legislator.

"I had 37 scheduled meetings a week," he said. "Some people say as you get older you sleep more and some people say you sleep less, but I've been pretty steady all through. Being generous, I'd say I sleep four hours a night."

Allsbrook passed his bar examination at age 20, but didn't receive his license until several months later, on his 21st birthday. He said the clerk of the court told him the state was "not in the business of licensing infants," but his license would be in the mail on his birthday.

He first ran for the Senate in 1934, after terms as city commissioner and school board trustee in Roanoke Rapids, where he was born in 1903.

"There were a number of political issues which developed," he said in explaining his decision to run. He returned to practice law in Roanoke Rapids after his term, but in 1941 re-joined the legislature in the House of Representatives.

Allsbrook was the Democratic nominee for State Senate the next year, but he resigned to enter the Navy. He recalled being assigned to the same platoon as now-Judge Clement Haynesworth, whom he called "one of the most brilliant men I've ever known and one of the finest."

Allsbrook lobbied with another old friend, the late Sen. Estes Kefauver-D-Ten., for Haynesworth's appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court, an appointment which eventually failed in the Senate. "He would have made a brilliant man on that court," Allsbrook said.

He himself was offered a superior court judgeship by Gov. Kerr Scott after Allsbrook shepherded most of Scott's legislative program through the General Assembly the first year he was governor. Allsbrook said he had set a unique record by serving under Scott, whom he described as "similar as a governor to Harry Truman as a president," and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor for four years, and many years later serving under the team of Gov. Bob Scott and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor Jr., sons of the first pair, for another four.

Allsbrook turned down Scott's judgeship offer, because, "I told him he did not owe me anything. I had simply done my duty to the people of the state of North Carolina."

Allsbrook had another reason for declining the offer, explaining that he "never wanted to have a full-time political office on which my living depended. It makes you more prone to determine which is the popular side of an issue instead of where, in your opinion, the more meritorious side exists. As a senator, you are called upon at times to render a conscientious decision which is tremendously unpopular."

Observers have noted that Allsbrook votes as freely and independently as anyone. And he practices what he preaches by maintaining his law practice in Roanoke Rapids where he is the senior member of an eight-man firm.

After the war, Allsbrook returned to the Senate in 1947 and stayed there until 1953, when he

Four Date Problems As Beginning On Mayaguez

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frank Conway began to drink heavily. Raymond Friedler had nightmares. Albert Minichello's hair fell out. Darryl Kastl couldn't keep his hands from shaking.

All four say their problems date from May 12, 1975, when the merchant ship Mayaguez was seized in the Gulf of Thailand by Cambodian forces.

In a lawsuit on today's schedule in San Francisco Superior Court, the four Mayaguez crewmen are asking $6.4 million in damages against Sea-Land Service, Inc., owner of the ship. Similar suits by two other Mayaguez crewmen were settled by Sea-Land for $85,000 and $48,000.

Lawyers say the issues will include what the ship was carrying and what its mission was, but today was expected to be limited to procedural wrangling and jury selection.

The crewmen say in their suit that the seizure of the Mayaguez and their own three days of terror can be traced to negligence on the part of the ship owner.

The suit also blames what their lawyer calls Sea-Land's "evil" scheme to "reap excessive profits ... at the expense of the health and safety of the crew."

Sea-Land's lawyer calls the charge "irrelevant mudslinging."

The Mayaguez incident, coming shortly after the Khmer Rouge communists took power in Cambodia, was regarded as an important test of U.S. willingness to protect its interests in the area. President Ford's popularity soared after he ordered U.S. forces to intervene and the crew returned safely.

The Cambodians held the 39 Mayaguez crew members for three days after seizing the boat on the Thailand-Hong Kong run, then released them as Marines launched an attack on the Cambodian island of Koh Tang. Forty-one U.S. soldiers were killed in the operation.

In a statement filed with the court during settlement negotiations, Martin Jarvis, attorney for the four crewmen, claimed the ship was carrying "military cargo destined to be used against the vital interests of the people of Indochina, including Cambodia."

Sea-Land concedes the ship was carrying drug and toilet supplies for a U.S. military installation in Thailand, but insists there were no armaments aboard.

Whether the ship was in international waters and whether it was, as Sea-Land says, "a merchant vessel in innocent passage" also are debated in pretrial legal papers.

Sea-Land attorney Francis Tetraault argues in his trial brief that "it is insufficient to assert, as does plaintiff's attorney, that defendant is a 'bad guy' without connecting that charge to some reason for the vessel's having been seized."

Expect Test Of Death Penalty

By SAM D. BUNDY
N. C. House of Representatives

The Senate this week passed House Bill 5, which restores the Death Penalty in North Carolina. Only one amendment was added, one which many think strengthens the bill and will serve to make it even more constitutional. There is no doubt, of course, but that it will be tested in the courts and will finally reach the U. S. Supreme Court.

A joint session of the House and Senate was held Thursday to consider the appointments of Gov. Hunt to the Utilities Commission. The five nominees were all approved with one or two dissenting votes here and there. The five are Dr. Robert Fischbach, a research scientist; Dr. Leigh H. Hammond, Assistant Vice Chancellor for Extension and Public Service with N. C. State University; Robert K.

Koeger, Director of the Engineering Division of the Utilities Division; Ms. Sarah Lindsay Tate, a lawyer; and John Winters, a realtor and builder and presently a member of the State Senate. On balance, the five appointments appear to be good and it is hoped that they will not be a "rubber stamp" for the Utilities Companies, as in the past few years.

Wednesday the House approved the 300 million-dollar road bond issue for a referendum to the people; however, an amendment on Thursday which carried by a 74-42 votes and calls for a choice of a bond issue or a "pay as you go" two-cent gas tax for five years. The basic issue here is the saving of the interest amounting to a sum slightly larger than the principal based on 20 years. Consideration was continued until Tuesday, May 24.

See you next week.

Nearly 2,900 Will Graduate At ECU

ECU News Bureau

Nearly 2,900 students will march in the traditional procession, clad in cap and gown, to receive degrees Sunday, May 29, in the annual Commencement Exercises at East Carolina University.

ECU will confer degrees on 2,836 candidates for graduate and undergraduate degrees in ceremonies in Ficklen Stadium, beginning at 2 p.m.

All academic officials, Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, vice chancellors and deans and departmental chairmen will participate in the processional affair which marks not only the end of this academic year, but the end of the quarter system which will be replaced next August by a two-semester system for the academic year in all ECU schools and departments.

The semester system is being adopted at ECU after more than two years of planning.

Troy W. Pate Jr. of Goldsboro, chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, will deliver the Commencement address. Pate was chosen for the address by the ECU administration and trustees to project a picture of the future of East Carolina University and its role as an educational center for the state and nation.

YOUNG HONOR GRAD — Eric C. Jablow, above, will become the youngest graduate of Brooklyn College, a division of the City Univ. of New York, when he receives his diploma in June, at age 15. He will also graduate Summa Cum Laude, having earned an A in every course except third year French and bowling. Next fall he will enter Princeton University to pursue a doctorate in mathematics. Harsh Winter Killed Pond Fish

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The state Department of Conservation says thousands of small farm ponds scattered across the state were the hardest hit of water bodies affected by harsh winter conditions.

Mike Conlin, supervisor of the Division of Fisheries for the department, said the ponds represent thousands of acres of water which suffered partial or total fish kills.

Conlin also says at least 33 public lakes lost complete fish populations due to winter conditions, and at least twice that many had partial kills.

Senate Begins Work On Huge Farm Bill

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is beginning work on a huge farm bill that would continue the controversial food stamp program and establish farm price support payments that help determine how much shoppers have to pay for food.

The farm bill, as sent to the floor by the Senate Agriculture Committee, would cost an average of about $4 billion per year through 1982 in supports for wheat, feed grains, cotton, rice and soybeans. The Senate is expected to begin work on the bill today.

Carver has warned that he will veto the measure if it contains more than $2 billion for crop supports, which guarantee prices to farmers and therefore can influence supermarket prices.

"We have to decide whether we want to risk a presidential veto on this bill," Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said when the panel completed work on the bill.

Committee-approved legislation in the House would set the support level for the five crops at about $2.3 billion per year beginning Oct. 1. The House bill is expected to come up for floor debate next month.

The Senate's farm bill also would extend the controversial food stamp program for two years, through September 1979. But a major modification would allow low income persons to obtain food stamps free. Currently, recipients must purchase the food stamps.

Under the Senate measure, the Food for Peace program would be extended for five years with increased emphasis on agriculture development.

The bill also contains a five-year average cost of $427 million for disaster relief, $52 million in peanut supports and $2 million in payments to dairy farmers whose herds are contaminated by chemicals or radioactive fallout.

In other congressional action, the House this week is scheduled to consider a bill to extend for one year a deadline for automakers to meet tough new auto exhaust standards.

The auto industry has asked for at least a two-year extension on air pollution standards and then softer standards once the extension expires.

The House also is expected to take up again legislation to remove the prohibition on the 2.8 million federal employees participating in partisan politics. The employees now are prohibited from running for office, serving as fund-raisers or managing a partisan campaign.

The bill was considered last week but was withdrawn from the House floor after sponsors decided to seek additional time to rally opposition to an amendment they regard as anti-union.

Among hearings, the House judiciary crime subcommittee looks into "kidporn." More than 120 members are sponsoring legislation to clamp down on interstate traffic of pornography featuring children.

The House Ways and Means Committee will continue working on the tax aspects of Carter's energy plan. Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., said Carter's proposal for a new energy department may come before the full House.

Warns Weather Could Be Critical For Crops

Dryness could become a critical problem for Pitt County crops if it does not rain soon, Ed Yancey, Pitt County Agriculture Extension Chairman, said Monday morning.

Yancey said that while some parts of the county did receive some rain during the weekend, all parts of the county did not get rain.

"A good part of the county is still extremely dry. We have had some indications that the dry weather has caused some problems in getting a good stand with the tobacco, but as of the end of last week the tobacco still looked good.

"We are entering the critical period in which if we don't get rain soon it could be damaging especially to corn and newly planted soybeans which have young roots. We have had some reports that people with gardens are having a hard time getting good stands," Yancey continued.

Asked whether irrigation of the crops has been helpful for most Pitt County farmers, Yancey said that the county is not suitable for irrigation.

"Pitt County doesn't have the equipment or the water supply for irrigation of crops. Some farmers do use it but this is not the general case."

Yancey also said that some hail damage was reported in the Simpson and Black Jack areas Thursday night.

In About 1910 He Bought A House By Mail Order

LINCOLN, Ga. (AP) — When a Lincoln pharmacist built his three-bedroom home for about $2,000 in the early 1900s, it caused quite a stir.

But it wasn't the price that got people talking.

It was the way T. P. Mitchell bought the house—by mail order from the Sears catalog.

Those familiar with today's prefabricated housing might not think it such an odd idea, but in Lincoln about 1910 it was the talk of the town.

"Everybody came by and looked" during construction, said Jim Murray, whose father helped put the house together.

The spacious, two-story home still stands on Humphrey St., looking very different from today's manufactured houses.

Its current residents are Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Turner, a retired county school superintendent and his wife, a junior high teacher, who received it as a gift in 1947. Ten years later, they moved in.

No one can pinpoint the exact age of the house, but estimates are that it was built in 1910. An architect for Sears in Chicago said pre-cut homes were introduced in the 1908 spring catalog.

Sears also got into the home loan and mortgage business to finance the houses it sold, until the depression put an end to the mail-order homes.

The price of the Turners' home, without labor and masonry materials, probably was about $1,103, according to the architect, who found a similar home in the company's records.

The catalog said the house "can be built for about $2,156, including all material and labor."

That price was for a 2,000-square-foot home with four bedrooms, a 14-by-22-foot living room with fireplace and a "reception hall" measuring 13 by 14 1/2 feet.

The Lincoln house has only three bedrooms, but its living room is nearly identical.

Mrs. Turner said she uses the entrance hall as a den because

"it's just too big to be a hall."

Murray said the house came

Opposed By Nat'l Union

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A group of employees at a Cone Mills plant here want to organize a local of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, but the national union wants no part of it because some organizers are professing Communists.

The Revolution plant employs 1,200 persons, who have received letters from the company, also denouncing the organizers.

"Don't be fooled. Their purpose is now, and will always be, to bring confusion, disruption, trouble and even violence to those who get involved with them," the company wrote.

In defense of organizing efforts, Sandra Smith wrote a letter to workers last week stating the organizers are "workers from all over the mill who came together because we all agreed on the need to organize a local of the Amalgamated Cloth and Textile Workers Union." Mrs. Smith is chairman of the Revolution Organizing Committee.

She said some of the 50 committee members are Communists, but denied Communists control the effort.

"Decisions are made democratically, ideas are discussed democratically, and leadership is elected democratically," she said.

National union officials have told the committee that it lacks enough support at the plant to warrant union support.

"We all suspect their motives," said John Kissack, regional organizing director for the national textile union. "We think they are a disruptive force that will do more harm than help."

Vandals Strike At 'Fun Wagon'

Ducky's Fun Wagon was vandalized sometimes Sunday before 3 p. m. Its shed at the Greenville Recreation Department Gymnasium was broken into and the converted trailer was pushed down the hill toward a small pond. It flipped onto its side and sustained damage of about $60 to $75, according to Charles Vincent of the Recreation Department.

The trailer was used as a mobile recreation unit to carry sports and arts and crafts and other supplies from park to park. The Recreation Department would appreciate information about the identity of the person or persons who caused this damage. "It's just so senseless," Vincent said. "Why would anyone wish to be so destructive of such a harmless thing as Ducky's Fun Wagon?"

NAACP Lawyer Attacks Denial

RALEIGH (AP) — The chief attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) headquarters Sunday criticized the recent denial of a new trial for defendants in the Wilmington 10 case.

Nathaniel R. Jones, NAACP general counsel from New York, spoke to 500 persons gathered Sunday for the state NAACP Freedom Day celebration.

Instructional staff for the course will include members of the faculty of the University of London and persons involved in contemporary theatre.

In addition to class sessions, course participants will attend drama workshops and current productions of the London theatre.

76ers Gain Early Series Lead

Violent Steal

Portland's Maurice Lucas rips the ball out of the grasp of 76er George McGinnis (30) Sunday. Moving in to help out are Philadelphia's Doug Collins (20) and Caldwell Jones (11), along with Bill Walton of Portland. (AP Wirephoto)

By ALEX SACHARE

AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gene Shue had a grin on his face and a gleam in his eye, like a kid who managed to empty the cookie jar and escape undetected.

All year long he's heard the sniping remarks — Shue can't coach, his team is just a bunch of individuals, if Philadelphia wins, it is despite Shue rather than because of him.

On Sunday, Shue sat behind a battery of microphones and tried not to exhibit too much elation, but inside he had to be beaming. For it was a strategic wrinkle put in by Shue during closed practice sessions last week that provided the impetus for the Philadelphia 76ers' 107-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers in Sunday's first game of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series.

"We took away their pressure defense by having our centers take the ball up the court," Shue said. "The strength of the Portland team is in the pressure their guards apply, so we attacked them at their weakest link."

While that weakest link, center Bill Walton, laid back at the other end of the court, the Sixers' 6-foot-11 pivotman, Caldwell Jones, took over the bal-handling chores with ease.

To be sure, there were other factors contributing to the victory. Julius Erving scored 33 points and seemed to dominate the game during, parts of the second half, and backcourtman Doug Collins added 30 points. The Blazers never really got their potent running game going, and Philadelphia hit its first 23 free throws and finished 27-for-32, while three Portland starters fouled out.

But the playmaking presence of Jones was the one surprise, the one imponderable, which seemed to tip the scales.

"I think they were really shocked when they saw C.J. bring the ball up," said Collins. "He's the tallest playmaker in history right now."

"It was a good tactic," conceded Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "It worked very effectively. We tried several things against it, but none worked very well."

Walton, who led the Blazers with 28 points and 20 rebounds, parried questions about the game in general and Jones' play in particular.

"They played better than us, so they won," he said. "That's all I have to say."

But Portland guard Herm Gilliam observed, "We've got some things to talk about, lots of things." And Blazers assistant coach Jack McKinney said, "We didn't handle Jones' bringing the ball up very well. You can expect some adjustments."

Whether those adjustments will work won't be known until the series resumes here Thursday night. Until then, the Sixers can savor their hard-earned opening-game victory.

"I'm ecstatic right now," said Collins. "We won that first game! We still have to win four, but we've taken that first step. I feel I played the hardest of my life today. It was tooth-and-nail for 48 minutes."

Nicklaus Wins Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus finished off a round of one-under-par 71 in the Monday morning dew and, some 21 hours after he'd started the final 18 holes of play, won his own, weather-plagued Memorial Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, prime mover behind the tournament that seems destined for major championship status and designer of the storm-lashed Muirfield Village Golf Club course, tried to play down the anti-climax of a day-late finish by calling his 63rd career triumph "one of my most important achievements in golf."

The Golden Bear parred the three holes he had to play Monday and finished 72 holes over the beautifully manicured monster he created from the woods and fields he hunted as a boy with a total of 281, two in front of Hubert Green, the only man who had a chance to catch him over the final few holes that were completed Monday morning.

Green finished with a round of 69 and a 283 total.

The day-late finish was made necessary when a third line of violent spring storms swept through suburban Columbus, Ohio in the gathering gloom of early evening Sunday and, at 8 p.m., EDT, forced a postponement until Monday of the completion of the round. Only 10 men were stranded on the course and had to return.

Bobby Wadkins, the longshot alternate who was second, two strokes back of Nicklaus, when national television coverage ended Sunday, collapsed completely when play resumed. He double bogeyed the 11th hole, taking two strokes to get out of high, wet grass behind the green, bogeyed the next two holes and finished with an 81 and a tie for 11th at 290.

Masters champion Tom Watson was third with 71-285, four back of the winning Nicklaus and not a factor in the title chase Monday.

Lou Graham was the only other player to break par for 72 holes over the 7,101 yards of rolling, wooded hills Nicklaus turned into a course that drew unabashed praise from the elite, invitational field as one of the world's finest. Graham shot a closing 70 for 287, one under par.

Those matching par 288 were Fuzzy Zoeller and Chi Chi Rodriguez. Rodriguez finished off a 69 and Zoeller an erratic 71.

Guthrie Qualifies For Indianapolis 500

By JERRY GARRETT

AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —

"From about the second lap, I thought it was going to blow," Janet Guthrie said. "The engine was making those kind of noises it has in the past just before it's going to let go."

"The oil pressure gauge was going crazy, back and forth all the way down to zero, and there was this terrific rattling noise behind my head. I was just waiting. I never thought it would make it."

But Miss Guthrie, the 39-year-old former astronaut candidate who jumped from little league sports car racing to big time speedway driving last year, kept her green and white Lightning racer together for a sizzling 188.403 miles per hour 10-mile qualifying average Sunday that made her the first woman ever in the field for the Indianapolis 500.

Miss Guthrie's best lap of 188.957 is a women's closed course speed record, but she chafes at the mention of anything but "ultimate" records. "My folks brought me up not to think women can't do things because they are women," she said.

Her average speed was the fastest for any qualification run made the final weekend of time trials for the May 29 speed classic, even though it earned her only 26th starting position.

A few minutes later her joy was tempered with the news that her teammate, Dick Simon, who she credits with making the chassis adjustments that allowed her to "stand on it," had been scalded while shaking down a backup car.

Simon, who qualified one of three Vollstedt team entries at 185.615, suffered second and possibly third degree burns on the rump after a water hose let go inside the cockpit. He was getting the car ready for a qualification attempt by Jerry Karl.

Simon said he expects to be ready to race next Sunday. "I've got a pretty tough hide," he said.

Miss Guthrie's speedy run, which differed from every other driver's attempt in that she got faster with each of the four laps, was the highlight — but not by a landslide — of the final days of trials.

Seventy-seven attempts were made, one short of the all-time record. Bumped from the field as too slow were rookie Joe Saldana, Salt Walther and last year's top rookie here, Vern Schuppan. James McElreath, whose father Jim earned a starting berth, was too slow. Jerry Grant and Spike Gehlhausen crashed during their attempts.

The slowest man in the 33-car lineup is Steve Krisiloff at 184.691. Tom Sneva won the pole position with a qualifying record of 198.884.

The track is now closed for practice, except for carburetion runs Thursday, until race.

Wake, USC Vie In Tournament

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—South Carolina, after an opening loss to South Alabama, has battled back from the losers bracket to face Wake Forest tonight in the finals of the NCAA Atlantic Regionals here.

Coach June Raines' Gamecocks, ranked sixth in a national college baseball poll before the tournament, did it by eliminating second-ranked South Alabama 11-2 Sunday afternoon and then defeating Atlantic Coast Conference champions Wake Forest 5-2 in the night-cap.

The winner of tonight's game, which gets underway at 7:30 p.m., will go to the College World Series which begins June 10 in Omaha, Neb.

South Carolina capitalized on Wake Forest errors to score two runs in the sixth to erase a 1-0 Deacon lead and take command. The winning run scored an inning later.

The Gamecocks got a good clutch performance from pitcher Hal Hutchens, who struggled throughout the contest but repeatedly pitched out of jams with the aid of three double plays.

In the opener, righthander Ed Lynch held power-hitting South Alabama, now 42-13, to seven scattered hits.

South Carolina supported Lynch with back-to-back home runs from designated hitter Steve King and first baseman John Hinkel in a four-run fifth inning. Rightfielder Don Repsher hit a two-run shot in the eighth.

South Alabama took home a new NCAA record for most home runs in a season, 92. The previous record had been set last year by Arizona State at 87.

South Carolina suffered a one-run loss to South Alabama Friday night, and eliminated East Carolina, Southern Conference champions, in a game Saturday.

Americans Win Italian Tennis

By ENRICO JACOMINI
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — The $185,000 Italian Tennis Open turned into an American sweep this year as two players from the United States won both the men's and women's singles titles for the first time ever.

Vitas Gerulaitis, a 22-year-old from Howard Beach, N.Y., became the first American to win the men's singles title in 17 years on Sunday. He beat Tomaso Zugarelli of Italy 6-2, 7-6, 3-6, 7-6 and collected the $21,000 first prize.

Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., won the women's singles, beating Renata Pomonova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 7-6 for the $6,000 first prize.

"I had been getting the feeling I could never win a tournament," Gerulaitis said. "I have been a semifinalist and even a finalist in many places, but I needed just one big win. It gives me the morale for Wimbledon and Forest Hills which remain the main targets of this season."

Throngs of American tennis players had come to Rome over the years, but none had even reached the final since Barry McKay won the tournament in 1960.

"We have learned to play on clay now," Gerulaitis said. "There are more and more of these tournaments at home and elsewhere around the world and we now know how to play them."

This year's tournament was marked by a string of upsets. None of the top-seeded players made it to the final stages in men's and women's singles.

Gerulaitis was seeded eighth and Zugarelli only 15th. Clay specialists Adriano Panatta of Italy, the top-seeded defending champion Guillermo Villas of Argentina and Ilie Nastase of Romania did not even make it to the semifinals.

Miss Newberry was ranked fifth, and her losing opponent, Miss Pomonova, was unseeded.

Change Of Pace Helps Expos

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Montreal Expos had been doing things in a big way in recent times — a monster losing streak and a marathon game.

What they needed Sunday was a change of pace, and they got that from Steve Rogers.

"He's the stopper on the club," said Dick Williams. Rogers lived up to his reputation by stopping an 11-game spin and helping the Expos defeat the San Diego Padres 3-1.

NL Roundup

"He had all his pitches today and he won on good stuff," said Williams after watching his top pitcher handcuff the Padres on six hit and 11 strikeouts.

Rogers' quick and efficient work was done in 2 hours, 10 minutes, a far cry from Saturday night's game, which the Expos lost 11-8 in 21 innings.

In other National League games, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 11-4, the San Francisco Giants blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0, the Atlanta Braves whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-2, the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Houston Astros 6-3 and the Cincinnati Reds tripped the New York Mets 8-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game 4-3 in 11 innings.

Sunday's victory was the first for Montreal and Rogers since May 10, when the right-hander beat Los Angeles. Loser John D'Acquisto allowed four hits and all the Expo runs in seven innings. D'Acquisto struck out four, issued five walks and threw four wild pitches.

Pirates 11, Dodgers 4

Dave Parker drove in five runs with two homers as Pittsburgh defeated Los Angeles and handed Dodger ace Don Sutton his first loss of the season after six victories.

Sutton yielded a three-run homer to Omar Moreno in the Pirates' four-run second inning and left the game after Pirate pitcher John Candelaria singled home the first run in Pittsburgh's five-run fourth inning. Parker hit a grand slam homer in the fourth and belted a solo shot in the eighth.

Giants 2, Cardinals 0

Jim Barr and Gary Lavelle teamed for a seven-hitter, pitching San Francisco over St. Louis with the aid of Gary Thomasson's solo home run. Barr tamed the Cards on six singles through seven innings. Lavelle permitted only a single in the eighth inning while recording his fourth save.

St. Louis right-hander Larry Dierker walked Derrell Thomas and Bill Madlock in the first inning and Willie McCovey delivered a two-out single for a 1-0 San Francisco lead.

Braves 5, Cubs 2

A two-run homer by Jeff Burroughs and a two-run triple by Gary Matthews backed Andy Messersmith's return to the Atlanta lineup as the Braves defeated Chicago. Messersmith was in control most of the six innings he pitched in his first appearance since suffering a recurrence of a muscle pull on April 30.

Phillies 6, Astros 3

Larry Bowa drove in three runs with a pair of doubles as Philadelphia defeated Houston. Winner Larry Christenson scattered seven hits before needing ninth-inning relief help. Houston starter Floyd Bannister surrendered all six Phillies' runs.

Reds 8-3, Mets 1-4

Slew Running Out Of Competition; May Run Handicap Race This Month

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Seattle Slew will never lack for opposition, but the unbeaten colt is running out of competition.

After demolishing eight rivals with a near record clocking in the Preakness Stakes on Saturday, Karen Taylor's 3-year-old colt needs only to win the Belmont Stakes on June 11 to become the 10th Triple Crown champion in racing history.

With a stranglehold on the 3-year-old division, Seattle Slew may not be severely tested until he hooks up with older horses in handicap races.

Trainer Billy Turner raised the possibility of advancing that timetable while chatting with newsmen Sunday just after Seattle Slew had left Pimlico Race Course by van for his home stable in New York.

Seattle Slew is nominated for the one-mile Metropolitan Handicap on May 30, where the colt might get a 14-pound advantage in a battle with Forego, three-time Horse of the Year.

Turner said it would probably be better to challenge Forego early in the year when the weight scale is more advantageous, and also noted that Sword Dancer, Quadrangle, and Arts and Letters had won the Belmont after competing in the Metropolitan.

But he also indicated the Metropolitan nomination was merely an alternative route, in

Tigers Defeat No. 1 Miami; Go To Finals

MIAMI (AP) — Underdog Clemson, on the ropes against host Miami in the NCAA Southern regional baseball tournament, has advanced to the NCAA finals with a 10-9 victory behind a three-run homer by Robert Bonnette.

The Tigers fell 10-3 to Miami in an afternoon game Sunday and the Hurricanes, ranked No. 1 in the nation, jumped into a quick first inning lead in the championship game. Leadoff batter Wes Robbins hit the first pitch for a home run and two other runs followed.

Miami upped its margin to 5-2 before its overworked pitching staff caved in and Clemson scored five runs in the fourth inning.

Eleven batters went to the plate in Clemson's fourth against three Miami pitchers. Singles by Dave Caldwell, Bonnette and Bill Foley each scored runs and walks to Neil Simons and Pete Peltz scored the others.

Bonnette's fifth inning blast gave the Tigers a 10-5 lead which the Hurricanes could not overcome. The only serious threat — a three-run Miami rally in the eighth inning, was the result of five walks by Clemson pitchers.

Clemson was ranked at the top of the nation's rankings early in the season when it won its first 26 games. But the Tigers then lost the Atlantic Coast Conference title to Wake Forest and got into this tournament as an at-large representative.

They'll take a 41-8 record into the NCAA finals. It'll be the second straight trip to the College World Series for Clemson, which lost two of its first three games in the 1976 affair.

Miami, ending its season with a 44-13 mark, had lost 7-2 to Clemson on Saturday in the double-loss tournament.

The Hurricanes came back to eliminate Southeastern Conference champion Mississippi State 5-2 Saturday night. Mississippi State had ousted Ohio Valley Conference champion Morehead State 5-2 earlier Saturday.

Miami then forced the deciding game by scoring in seven of nine innings in the 10-3 Sunday afternoon victory over Clemson. Rick Montoni led the attack with a two-run homer.

The signing of the contract for a football game between East Carolina and Duke University last week caught no one by surprise—except possibly for the date of the game.

Talk earlier in the week was that the two schools would meet in the final contest of the week, possibly on a regional TV setup. Reportedly, Duke coach Mike McGee didn't want to open against the Pirates if he could avoid it.

That would have meant that the traditional season-closing game with North Carolina would only have been the next-to-last. Apparently, it was felt that tradition was more important, so the Pirates went on the slate in the earlier date.

With the signing of Duke to the schedule, the old Big Four has now all been brought into the East Carolina schedule. Duke was the final holdout, since N.C. State and North Carolina have been on the schedule for some time, and Wake Forest is due to come on in the next couple of years.

And unless something strange happens either to the East Carolina program or to the programs at the other four schools, perhaps now it can be truly said that "That Big Four is Dead, the Big Five is Alive." Ironically, that statement was first used when McGee, the man who avoided the Pirates the most, was the head coach at East Carolina.

Pirates Not Outclassed

Although it was a bitter disappointment, Coach Monte Little, head ECU baseball coach, took losing in the NCAA Regionals like a champ. He had nothing but praise both for his foes and for his own players.

"We weren't outclassed," he told the press afterwards. "We just were beaten."

Perhaps the biggest difference in the Pirates and the two teams the Bucs played was power-hitting. East Carolina is not a hard-slugging team, but a team that relies on its speed and quickness. Defensively, the Pirates were every bit as good. In the pitching, the Pirates were the equal of their opponents.

But in South Carolina's short field, many balls were hit that would have been caught in Harrington. In the first three games of the series, there were 12 home runs. At least half of those would have been routine flies at Harrington.

Excellent Facilities

It is easy to see why South Carolina got the bid to host the Atlantic Regionals. They have an outstanding complex, which allows teams to be housed and fed within steps of the ball park. It was perhaps no more than a 30-second walk from the door to the furthest room in the dorm to the press box area. Cafeteria facilities where also close at hand, as well as off-field recreation and relaxation areas.

Then, when the Gamecocks took the field Friday night against South Alabama, the stands were jammed, and people lined the entire area to view the game.

For an East Carolina fan, it was disappointing to note that there were more people at that game than at any basketball game in Minges Coliseum in the past several years.

South Carolina averaged over 1,400 per game this year. That is something that could be attained here, too.

In fact, the Pirates plan to play many more games at night in the future, and that should boost attendance. Do not mention that since the Pirates are independent now, such teams as South Carolina, Virginia Tech, and the like will be coming in here more and more.

Coach Monte Little has done an excellent job in his first year. Things look promising for the future too. He's already gotten off to a good start in recruiting.

By the time East Carolina gets up to the 13 allowable baseball scholarships, which we hope will be in the near future, Coach Little could have one of the better programs in the South.

There's something about those high-priced pitchers that brings out the beast in the Seattle Mariners.

"We knocked Jim Palmer out of a game early. We beat Catfish Hunter and now Vida," said Seattle's Dan Meyer after the Mariners defeated Oakland's Vida Blue 6-2 Sunday.

Meyer played the big role, driving in three runs as three Seattle pitchers combined to hold the A's to just three hits.

"We seem to play pretty good against the million-dollar pitchers," Meyer said.

And who's next?

"I can't wait for that game," said Meyer, referring to Friday night's contest against the Detroit Tigers—a game in which Mark Fidrych is scheduled to make his first start of the season.

In other American League games Sunday, Baltimore and New York split a doubleheader, Baltimore winning the opener 5-1 and the Yankees taking the second game 8-2; Milwaukee and Boston split, the Red Sox winning 14-10 in the first game and Milwaukee taking the second 6-0; Detroit clobbered Chicago 14-3; Cleveland defeated

Kansas City 7-1; Minnesota downed California 8-5, and Texas stopped Toronto 7-4.

Seattle starter Dick Pole hurled the first five innings, holding the A's to just one hit. After Bill Laxton got one out, Enrique Romo went the final 32-3 innings, giving up the final Oakland run in the eighth.

Red Sox 14-0, Brewers 10-6

Eduardo Rodriguez fired a two-hitter, giving Milwaukee its second-game victory after Boston outslugged the Brewers in the opener of their twinbill. Rodriguez had pitched just 18 2-3 innings in five relief appearances this year before stifling the Boston bats in the nightcap.

The Brewers rapped 18 hits, including homers by Ken McMullen and Jim Wohlford.

In the opener, the two teams smashed 11 home runs, tying a major league record for a nine-inning game set by the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers in 1950 and matched by the Chicago Cubs and New York Mets in 1967. George Scott's grand slam homer capped a seven-run eighth inning for Boston.

Orioles 5-2, Yankees 1-8

Rookie Eddie Murray delivered the winning hit for the third consecutive game for the Orioles in the opener and Graig Nettles drove in three runs with a homer and a double in the nightcap.

Murray's two-run single off Catfish Hunter snapped a tie and gave Rudy May, 5-4, his fifth straight victory over New York since the Yankees traded him to Baltimore last year.

Nettles followed Willie Randolph's triple with his eighth home run of the season in the third inning of the second game. The Yankees broke open the game in the sixth with three runs.

Tigers 14, White Sox 3

Jason Thompson drove in five runs with a homer, a triple and a sacrifice fly, spoiling Wilbur Wood's comeback as Detroit blasted Chicago. Wood was making his first start since May 9, 1976, when his left knee was shattered by a line drive off the bat of Detroit's Ron LeFlore.

Rookie Dave Rozema, 4-1, gave up home runs to Oscar Gamble and Richie Zisk.

Indians 7, Royals 1

Buddy Bell slammed four hits, including a home run, backing Jim Bibby's seven-hit pitching as Cleveland handed the Royals their fifth defeat in six games.

Rick Manning also homered for the Indians, his third of the year, and Paul Dade knocked in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the fifth.

Twins 8, Angels 5

A three-run homer by pinch-hitter Craig Kuskick highlighted Minnesota's five-run sixth inning as the Twins defeated California. The loss snapped a four-game Angels winning streak.

The Twins were trailing 4-3 when Kuskick homered on the

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 24, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to display your creative skills and gain a feeling of achievement. Do whatever tasks that will enable you to attain those goals that are important to you in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make arrangements with congenials for amusements you desire to have with them. Strive for a happier way of life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new project that looms large on the horizon today is the right one for you. A time you can make a good impression on others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the right sources where you can obtain the data to make you more successful in your field of endeavor.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Show others that you are capable of adding to your present abundance. But stop dreaming impossible dreams.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being more positive-minded now can help you gain the objectives that are uppermost on your mind. Strive to be more successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now make plans that will bring excellent results in the near future. Show that you are an artistic person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) According to your planetary aspects you can easily bring some cherished aims within your orb of influence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze your vocational duties and be sure you are realizing your finest potential. Express your finest talents to a higher-up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Whatever you are considering of an unusual nature is good to carry through now and will help you gain the benefits you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your monetary matters more diligently and you will know just how to improve on them. Try to please the one you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you cooperate more with associates now you will have greater rapport and success in the future. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can easily handle difficult tasks today. Take no chances where your health is concerned. Guard your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need much encouragement in order to do best work. There is great imagination in this chart. Education should be directed toward work with the government, at which your progeny is most adept. There is also music ability here.

Actor Karl Malden Not In Ranks Of 'Insecure'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actors tend to be insecure, even when pulling down big bucks in a long-run TV series. They scramble for other roles when their show takes a break. Not Karl Malden when his series was on.

When "Streets of San Francisco" would finish its seven-month, six-day-a-week shooting schedule in the City by the Bay, he'd repair to his hillside home in suburban Brentwood here and commence loafing.

"I did nothing," grinned the 63-year-old actor, whose series finally was axed by ABC after five seasons. "I came home immediately put on some old clothes and went back to my garden."

"And I just started to weed and pull and plant, anything to get away from using" — he tapped his head — "this."

Malden, a tall, friendly man who somehow seems both relaxed and intense when he talks, currently is laboring on his first TV effort since the cancellation of "Streets."

He's playing the sea captain's role in a made-for-ABC version of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous," to air next season.

He says he took the part because (a) it's a good change from the detective he played five years on ABC and (b) "because I had a feeling they were going to drop the series, just an instinct."

Malden is an alumnus of New York's Actors Studio. But unlike many who emerged from that emporium years ago, he doesn't claim he got started in the Golden Age of TV drama in New York in the early 1950s.

He did exactly three shows there, then promptly fled back to film and theater work, winning an Oscar for his film acting in "A Streetcar Named Desire." He didn't return to TV until "Streets" in 1972.

"Sure, it was the Golden Age when everything was live, but it also was the age when many mistakes were being made and panic reigned," said the Chicago-born son of a Yugoslav immigrant.

He cited one early TV drama he did, "Animal Kingdom," in which he had a small role and Wendell Corey the lead.

"The night of the final dress rehearsal, I saw him running from one set to another. He was changing his shirt, a wardrobe guy was running after him."

"Then he comes on with this girl as if nothing were happening, but he's wringing wet. I said, 'My God, this is ridiculous...'

"I was doing some movie work at the time, and I thought, 'Well, why beat my brains out doing this when I'm doing films?'"

Malden, who's acted in 33 movies, always as a highly regarded supporting player, didn't return to the tube until 1972 for two reasons:

"In theater and films, I always started at the bottom and worked my way up. And I decided that when I do go into TV, I'm going to start at the top."

—When Quinn Martin, producer of "Streets," pitched the series to him, the producer said, "There's no pilot and it's guaranteed for 26 weeks." And I wasn't doing anything at the time... I figured the least that could happen is that I've got a year's work."

Stan Kenton In Hospital Care

READING, Pa. (AP) — Jazz musician Stan Kenton has been admitted to a Reading hospital in guarded condition for treatment of an undisclosed ailment, a nursing supervisor said.

Kenton, 65, was taken by ambulance Sunday night from the Abraham Lincoln Motor Inn to the emergency room of Community General Hospital.

GOREN BRIDGE

AND OMAR SHARIF

Q1.—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ94 ♥Q876 ♦K106 ♣82
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 3 ♦ ?
What action do you take?

A.—Double. East's preempt has accomplished its purpose. You are in an awkward position, and double is the only safe action you have. You might possibly lose a major-suit game by this decision, but your hand is too weak and your suits too short for a free bid of either major at this level.

Q2.—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J7 ♥A965 ♦A4 ♠A1054
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♠ Dble. Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Chances for game are slight. Partner, a passed hand, could do no more than bid a simple two hearts. If there is game in the hand, he would have to have enough for a jump bid.

Q3.—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ10 ♥AQ93 ♦AQ875 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The answer depends, in large part, on partner's expertise. If he is a timid soul, who will pass whenever given the opportunity, we would simply jump to six diamonds. However, if partner is the type who will recognize the power of our auction, we would bid four spades in an effort to elicit more information. After all, there could easily be a grand slam in the cards.

Q4.—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ73 ♥AQ982 ♠AJ10
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—In terms of simple point count, you have shown all you have with your reverse. However, your hand is rich in controls so, despite the fact that you are not thrilled by partner's initial spade response, you should make one more move. We suggest you cue-bid five clubs to see whether that prod partner into going on to slam.

Q5.—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ87 ♥A103 ♦6 ♠AJ1076
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—We would be inclined to jump to six hearts which, at worst, should be on a finesse. Five hearts more accurately expresses the worth of the hand, but there is a very real danger that partner might interpret that bid as a request to go on to slam only if he has at least second-round control of the unbid suit—diamonds.

Q6.—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ7 ♦KQJ106 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Double. This is the only way to show a strong hand with support for the unbid suit. Since partner has not yet made a bid, your double is primarily for take-out, though partner always has the right to convert if his length or values are in the opponents' suit.

Q7.—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ83 ♥K73 ♦K7 ♠AK8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Even though partner is a passed hand, slam is a distinct possibility. However, there is no safe way you can explore without passing what may be your safest game contract. We recommend a straight-forward jump to three no trump. If partner has the distributional values which would offer a play for six spades, he has the option of making a forward-going move at his next turn.

Q8.—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J109762 ♥854 ♦Q7 ♠A8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 3 ♠ Pass Pass
Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Suddenly your hand has become very strong. Partner has forced you to bid at the three-level, so he must have a very fine hand. To bid three spades with such splendid values would be cowardly indeed—jump to four spades.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Seeks Financing Film In Canada

TORONTO (AP) — "It's got everything the French Connection had but 10 times more," promised former New York policeman Eddie Egan, in town looking for money to finance a new detective thriller.

Egan, whose real life police work in a drug-smuggling scheme was portrayed in the movie "The French Connection," says he plans to make three movies in Canada.

One film will be about "the people who are responsible for the importation and distribution of narcotics and I'm going to name names," said Egan. Another film will be about organized crime's influence on the police department and a third will be "the story of the supply of narcotics coming in from Cuba."

The former New Yorker, who now lives in Hollywood, adds: "I can make Toronto look like New York ... I got McDonald's, alleyways, massage parlors, gleaming lights, tall buildings, the dismal grey and dirt. I can make it work here."

Saul Bellow's Ex-Wife Is Suing

CHICAGO (AP) — Author Saul Bellow received $160,000 along with his Nobel prize for literature. His ex-wife wants some of that cash.

Susan Glassman Bellow claims in a lawsuit that he fraudulently understated his income when they divorced in 1968. Two courts agreed and the Illinois Supreme Court in December refused to hear his appeal.

She agreed to a lump sum settlement of $115,000 and $250 a month support payments when the divorce papers were signed. She now claims that Bellow's income was $461,303 last year with the Nobel Prize and she is seeking an increase.

ANTI-MARKIST DIES

Variety Of Air Fares Are Available To Travelers

FORD'S NEW MINICAR — Ford Motor Co. unveiled today in Napa, Calif., a new minicar, Fiesta, which will go on sale in the U.S. in August. Fiesta gets about 40 miles per gallon on the highway and 33 m.p.g. in the city according to the government tests, and the car will be priced just a little less than the Volkswagen Rabbit. Travelers have a wider-than-ever variety of air fares and travel packages to choose from this summer, but figuring out which one is best can be harder than finding your way around a strange city.

Advance planning — and paying — can cut costs considerably. The round-trip air fare between New York and London can range from $259 to $1,312

Hospitalized By Lightning

ROME, Ga. (AP) — Eleven of 15 Marine Corps reservists struck by lightning late Saturday night, have been hospitalized but should be released in a few days, hospital officials said Sunday.

Four of the reservists were treated and released for minor injuries but the 11 were admitted to Floyd County Medical Center in Rome. They were treated for shock and first and second degree burns.

Marine Reserve Capt. Roy Carter said the men were injured when lightning struck their camp site about 11:30 p.m., EDT, Saturday after a thunderstorm moved into north-west Georgia.

Marine officials said the lightning apparently struck a tree and an antennae system and traveled through a communications console before spreading to nearby areas.

Thirteen of the injured were from Johnson City, Tenn. The other two from Rome.

There were about 100 reservists from Georgia, Alabama, Virginia and Tennessee participating in the reserve field exercise near Rocky Mountain, north of Rome.

Facing Cutback Due Shortages

RALEIGH (AP) — A special section of Dorothea Dix Hospital faces possible closing due to nursing shortages, the hospital director said.

An average of three to four patients are kept at the critical care center of the state mental hospital. Director A.G. Tolley said the hospital can't compete salary-wise with other public and private hospitals in the area, especially in attracting nurses trained in intensive care treatment.

Went To Jail To See Just What It's Like

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A group of students and faculty from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill went to jail in Asheville last week to see what jail work is like.

The verdict was boring, confining and a lot of hassle.

"I felt the close confinement in which the jailer works, which was a surprise to me," said Paul Brandes, a professor in the UNC speech division. "It's not only the offenders who feel trapped, but the jailers themselves who feel walled in. I didn't realize the verbal abuse they have to take. I used to take a lot of that in the Army, but not night after night, over and over and without letting any hostilities creep in."

Brandes and the others will use the experience at the Buncombe County jail to help the National Institute of Corrections, a subdivision of the federal Bureau of Prisons, put together a communications program for jailers.

Jailers must work in close cooperation with each other, prisoners and other agencies, Brandes explained in a telephone interview.

"They feel the public doesn't appreciate their job," the professor said after his week-long discussion with 13 Buncombe County jailers.

The 13 sheriff's employees related feelings about their jobs through sessions in transactional analysis and other exercises.

Buncombe County jail, with a 200-inmate capacity, was chosen after being recommended by the federal agency because of its well-known cooperative programs for prisoners with drug and alcohol problems.

The intense study was not the first such project for Brandes' group.

The North Carolina Department of Correction asked them to put together a similar communication program for state prisons in the late 1960s, when a large number of young drug offenders suddenly flooded the state prison system, where no program was in effect to help them.

A new onslaught of prisoners into county jails could begin if pending legislation is approved

Fellowship From Japan

ECU News Bureau

A research fellowship has been awarded East Carolina University geographer Robert Cramer by the Japan Society for Promotion of Science.

Dr. Cramer will study rural settlements and economic activities of eastern Japan's Kanto Plain in collaboration with a group of geographers from the Tokyo Gakugei University. The project will begin this December and end during the summer of 1978.

The Society was founded ten years ago to provide scientists with funds for research in Japan. Fellowships are awarded on a competitive basis.

A professor of geography at ECU, Dr. Cramer is the author of several books and numerous articles in professional journals. From 1974 until 1976 he was president of Gamma Theta Upsilon international honor society in geography.

PATROLMAN SHOT
LEESVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Highway patrolman M.M. Adams was reported in stable condition this morning after being shot by an assailant on Interstate 20 in Lexington County at about 4:30 a.m. near the Leesville exit, 40 miles southwest of Columbia.

for example. But there are restrictions attached to most of the bargains, so it pays to know exactly what you want and when you want it.

The biggest boom has come in charter flights, with some industry sources estimating that 30 per cent of all trans-Atlantic travel this year will be on charter flights. Ten years ago, only 5 per cent of the flights were charters.

Lower prices also are available on regularly scheduled flights under excursion plans involving limits on the amount of time you spend at your destination and, in some cases, requiring payment well in advance.

For excursion fares within the United States, you generally have to stay 7-30 days, buy your ticket two weeks in advance and pay extra if you fly on the weekend.

Excursion fares to Europe are usually available for stays of 14-21 days and 22-45 days. With one exception, you do not have to pay in advance. There is no penalty for cancellation; weekends cost extra.

The exception is the "APEX" fare which allows you to stay 22-45 days and is lower than the regular 22-45 day excursion. In exchange for the savings, you must buy your ticket 45 days before departure. There is a penalty for cancellation, although you can take out low-cost insurance for about $15 to protect yourself against this possibility.

Here is a guide to the basics of the charters:

OTC — The letters stand for one-stop tour charters and the flights have been operating since 1975. You must purchase the ticket from a travel agent. The package includes air fare, ground accommodations and some services such as a guided tour. You have to buy your ticket 15 days in advance for flights in North America and 30 days in advance for flights elsewhere. There is a minimum stay of four days, three nights in North America and seven days, six nights, elsewhere. There is no refund if you cancel.

ITC — Inclusive tour charters, which are often described as "vacation packages." They include air fare, ground accommodations and services and stops in three cities at least 50 miles apart. You do not have to buy your ticket in advance, but you must stay at least seven days. If you do pay in advance, you may face a penalty for cancellation; it depends on the tour operator. The ITC fares are higher than the OTC packages because there are fewer restrictions.

ABC — Advance booking charters are the newest type on the market, authorized by the Civil Aeronautics Board late last year. They allow you to purchase air fare only under a charter plan and are ideal if you want to stay with friends or shop around for your own hotel. There is no minimum stay required for ABCs in the United States; if you want to go to Europe, you have to stay seven days. You must buy your ticket 45 days in advance for Europe and 30 days in advance for flights elsewhere. There is no penalty for cancellation if the tour operator can find a substitute passenger to take your place.

TGC — Travel group charters may include transportation only or may be offered as part of a package with land arrangements. There is a minimum stay of 7 or 10 days required, depending on where you are going, and you must buy your ticket 60 days in advance. There is no cancellation penalty.

Another common type of package is the one based on the GIT (group inclusive tour) fare. This is not a charter; you travel on regularly scheduled flights. The GIT fares require a group of 40 persons or more, but you do not have to put together the group or join an organization. Payment dates, minimum stay and ground accommodations included with the air fare may vary from tour to tour.
