

Moluccan Terrorist Gang Stirring Anger

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan separatists holding 105 children and six teachers in a country school fired two bursts of shots into the air today, apparently to speed up delivery of breakfast. Anger was growing among parents in the town.

The extremists, who also held as many as 80 persons on a hijacked train, demanded release of 21 jailed countrymen and asked for a jumbo jet to take them out of the country by Wednesday.

"As far as we know, none of the children was hurt. The shots were just to keep us on our toes," a police spokesman said after the automatic weapons fire echoed from the village school in nearby Bovensmilde. Six terrorists were believed inside.

About 10 miles away, just north of this northern Dutch city, a second band of seven South Moluccans held hostages aboard a train. Police sharpshooters had the train and school surrounded, but a government official said "the risk was to high" to storm either location.

Tension heightened among the parents and other villagers in Bovensmilde. "We're sharpening the knives," said Mrs. Ina Smit, 58. "These people will accept a lot of nonsense but when you touch their children it's like putting a knife in their heart."

Some threatened to form vigilante groups to seize children from the South Moluccan immigrant community in Bovensmilde.

The gunmen fired shots at 9 a.m. to alert police they wanted breakfast, and again shortly after 10 a.m. before the food arrived. A second food delivery was made at noon.

Government officials said the terrorists, who seized the train and school Monday morning, demanded a jumbo jet to fly them, the freed prisoners and some hostages out of the country.

They set a deadline of 2 p.m. local (8 a.m. EDT) Wednesday and threatened to kill their hostages if the government attempted mediation, Dutch radio reported.

It was believed that among the prisoners whose freedom they sought were 14 South Moluccans jailed after a similar twin terrorist strike in December 1975. At that time two gangs commandeered a train and occupied the Indonesia consulate, demanding that the Dutch government help them win independence from Indonesia for their homeland. Four hostages were killed.

The extremists did not specify where they wanted to be flown in the jumbo jet, which has a range of more than 6,000 miles.

A medical official reported that medicines accepted by the gunmen at the school Monday night included a special prescription for a girl suffering from a heart condition. "If she does not have this her life will be in danger," he said, adding she needed five doses a day.

A special package of toys and candy was sent to the school building and accepted by the gunmen.

Police said the South Moluccan hijackers were holding between 50 and 80 persons on the four-car train, stopped in rolling pastureland near the village of Onnen. Some of the 100 passengers had escaped after the train was commandeered.

A state rail official said 160 lunch packs were delivered to the train at "exactly noon" today in a rail trolley. The gunmen had refused food in the morning because it "was delivered late," the official said.

The two bands of extremists seized the school and the train about 9 a.m. Monday in an apparently coordinated attack two days before the Dutch general elections.

The extremists fired shots at both locations Monday. No casualties were reported.

Prison Nearer For 2

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Mitchell, the former attorney general of the United States, and ex-White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman have 25 days to try to avoid becoming inmates of a federal penitentiary.

It's a long shot. The Supreme Court all but sealed the fate of the two confidants of former President Richard M. Nixon when it rejected their Watergate cover-up conviction appeals. The court also rejected the appeal of former top White House official John D. Ehrlichman, who already is serving his prison term.

Attorneys for all three men said they will ask the court to reconsider its decision. That request has to be made within 25 days, but that is little more than a legal formality. The court grants such rehearings in only a minuscule number of cases.

Mitchell and Haldeman, who have remained free since their Jan. 1, 1975, convictions, could be sent to prison by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica within the next month and probably no later than the end of summer.

Sirica presided at the Watergate cover-up trial and his handling of the case was a key point in the three defendants' appeals. They claimed Sirica was prejudiced and biased against them.

Now it is Sirica who may determine how long they stay in prison. Each was sentenced to 30 months to eight years for obstruction of justice and giving false testimony. But they could draw reduced sentences for extenuating circumstances, if any are found.

Ehrlichman, 51, chose last October to begin serving time while he appealed. The former top Nixon administration official for domestic policy currently is a prisoner at a federal prison camp in Arizona.

Mitchell, 63, could become the first attorney general in history to serve time for a criminal conviction. Haldeman is 50.

Meanwhile, in an important decision giving organized labor a major victory, the court ruled that state, county and city employees can be required, under certain union contracts, to pay the equivalent of monthly dues to a union they refuse to join.

The justices said in a decision written by Justice Thurgood Marshall that public employees have the same right as workers in private industry — that of bargaining for a so-called agency shop.

Under such an arrangement, all employees benefitting from collective bargaining waged by the union selected by a majority of the workers to represent them must support the union financially, even if they choose not to join.

The rainfall which Pitt County received Tuesday may be worth millions of dollars to the county according to Pitt County Agriculture Extension Chairman Ed Yancey.

"The rain is just tremendous. It is just the kind we need for our crops—a slow and steady rainfall. This general rainfall may be worth many millions of dollars to Pitt County. When you consider the many hundreds of acres of corn and soybeans and tobacco being saved by the rain it could mean millions of dollars to the county," Yancey said.

The fire permit bans were lifted Monday at 9:30 a.m. ac-ording to the Pitt County Fire Marshal's office and the Forestry Service. These services reported that an overall rain had been received in the county and fire bans could be cautiously lifted.

Cooler temperatures accompanied the rainfall in the Pitt County area. Monday the high temperature was recorded at 80 degrees and the low temperature was recorded at 63 degrees. Tuesday at 8 a.m. the temperature was 66 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Commission. Rainfall was not recorded by the utilities department Tuesday morning but the river was measured at 4 feet, according to the National Weather Service River Level Chart.

New Tax Cuts Will Be Taking Effect On June 1

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

About 46 million workers will find their paychecks a little fatter next month, the result of the new tax cuts that begin June 1.

The average reduction in weekly withholding tax will be $2.13.

A family of four earning $10,000 will pay $200 less in federal income taxes a year, a drop of about 30 per cent. At $15,000, the tax reduction will be $111 a year.

President Carter, in signing the tax cuts into law Monday, called them "a very great benefit to the American average family." He said 80 per cent of the estimated $5 billion in tax cuts will go to people earning less than $15,000 annually.

The reductions, a key part of the economic program Carter proposed shortly after taking office, will benefit only taxpayers who claim the standard deduction when filing their tax returns. Taxpayers who itemize will not be helped.

The new standard deductions are $3,200 for married couples filing a joint return and $2,200 for single persons and heads of households. The old standard deductions ranged from $2,100 to $2,800 for couples and $1,700 to $2,400 for single persons and household heads.

The new law will, however, raise weekly withholding about $1 for 2.2 million single Americans who earn more than $13,750 and claim the standard deduction.

There are several other benefits to the tax cut legislation. By standardizing the deduction, about 3.3 million low-income families won't have to pay income taxes.

The law makes it advantageous for 6.7 million taxpayers who had itemized deductions to use the standard deduction.

And the new law extends temporary tax reductions voted in past congressional sessions, including lower corporate taxes, the 35 per person tax credit and the earned income credit.

The total amount of tax help, including the extensions of past reductions, is estimated at $34.1 billion over the 28-month period ending Dec. 21, 1978.

The bill contains simplified procedures for computing tax liability for nearly all taxpayers. The entire package is retroactive to the start of 1977. The law also contains a tax credit for businesses to enlarge their work forces.

Cites Unique Problems Confronting S. Africa

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

South Africa must not be "singled out" for condemnation in the Carter administration's concern for human rights, according to Theo Vorster of the South African Consulate General.

Vorster was in Greenville yesterday and today to address a meeting of the American Legion. "We laud President Carter's stand on human rights," said Vorster.

"But we wonder if this standard will be applied universally, or will certain countries be singled out?"

"South Africa in the African context is only bettered by two countries in terms of human rights, by one country in Asia and by none in Eastern Europe."

"We realize we have a lot of problems. All we ask the world is that they apply the old philosophy that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

Vorster said he feels U.N. Ambassador Andrew J. Young is "a very capable person."

"He has a lot of new ideas for American foreign policy," said Vorster.

"And I'm glad he's getting to know South Africans."

"But I hope when he does judge South Africa he will do so in the context of the entire African continent, and not single us out."

"The problem is that we are white, but we are also Africans. People tend to judge us against the background of European civilization."

"We get criticism as to why we don't apply the American blueprint for human rights. We simply cannot implement one."

He noted several differences in racial composition between the United States and South Africa.

"In talking about South Africa, people seem to want to compare the United States during the eras of slavery and civil rights to South Africa now," he said.

"But in South Africa we don't have one homogeneous white group and one homogeneous black group."

"The black population in South Africa consists of nine nations, each with its own language, history and culture. We also have an Asian population, the colored population (consisting of persons of mixed racial heritage) and the whites."

"It might appear there is continual racial strife in South Africa, but that's not true. We are bent on resolving problems such as those in Soweto as soon as possible."

Vorster said he foresaw no change in South Africa's apartheid policy.

"The essence of apartheid is to at least give each one of the different nations a chance to determine its own future," he said.

"I can't foresee the resolving of this multinational development. We want the policy to come to fullest evolution."

"Eventually we hope to have a loose cooperative of interdependence in the form of sub-African communities."

"South Africa has vast resources of minerals, and our black nations have vast resources of labor. So it's natural to have an exchange on both sides."

State Achieved Part Of Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina already has achieved one of President Carter's national goals by producing electricity almost totally without the use of oil or natural gas, but at the same time, the state must continue with its energy conservation program, Gov. Jim Hunt said Monday.

Speaking at the World Energy Conference here, Hunt said the state produces almost all of its electricity with coal, nuclear or hydro power. Carter, in his energy program, encourages utilities to use coal or nuclear power to generate electricity.

Fahd Is Greeted Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter began critical talks today with Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, whose oil shipments to the United States give it a strong voice in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"We wish nothing more for our area than peace and stability for all concerned," Fahd said.

But he forcibly nudged Carter to exert American influence against Israel by declaring the United States has the "moral and material capability" to shape a Middle East settlement.

He added that Saudi Arabia has been optimistic about a settlement since Carter publicly declared his support for a Palestinian homeland.

In the next-to-last round of meetings with Middle East leaders, Fahd was welcomed to the White House with "pleasure and pride" by Carter.

"We share a heritage that is completely compatible," Carter said.

Saudi Arabia is the largest foreign source of oil for the United States and a leader of the international cartel that has quadrupled prices since the 1973 Middle East war.

Neither Carter nor Fahd made public mention of the administration's call for a reconvening of the Geneva peace conference by the end of 1977. This prospect has dimmed somewhat with the victory in last week's Israeli elections of the strong-willed Likud party — an event which neither leader mentioned.

Home Health Service Agencies Remain 'Obscure'

By KATHRYN WHITE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Plagued by relative obscurity, Home Health Services agencies in the state provide care for little more than a fifth of the people who could benefit from a less expensive, professional alternative to hospitalization, state officials say.

"The estimated need for home treatment is 68,000 persons in the state. Last year we serviced 14,000, nearly 65 percent of which were elderly," said Margaret Keller, nurse consultant assigned to the Home Health Services Program for the state Division of Health Services.

"We have poor visibility, but we don't have a lot of money to advertise," Miss Keller said.

Through certified agencies in 86 counties, patients who would otherwise require hospital or nursing home care can receive home treatment from a variety of health care personnel, who work under a physician's supervision. Each of North Carolina's agencies is autonomous, but offices generally employ nurses, physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists and home health aids — paraprofessionals who work under the guidance of a nurse.

One of the program's chief advantages is that it allows patients to maintain their own lifestyles and family supports while under medical care. Agencies provide rehabilitative services and often work with members of the patients' families, teaching them how to care for patients.

"Agencies might be used, for example, by an elderly diabetic man, who because of poor circulation, had to have his leg amputated. The service could provide rehabilitation in the home, furnish him with an artificial limb, teach the patient to use it and also teach others in the home how to care for him," Miss Keller said. "Agencies are often used by terminal cancer patients who don't wish to spend their last days in a hospital."

Therapeutic care usually is paid for by a third party — Medicare, Medicaid, Veterans Administration benefits and private health insurance. Patients sometimes pay for services themselves, on a cost basis, and a cost analysis is conducted every year.

Most of the agencies have been created through local public health departments, the southeastern part of the state being the least saturated.

"We provide technical assistance and grant money to start up the agency," Miss Keller said. "There are certain federal requirements that the agency must meet. We help the staffs meet them."

About $80,000 in state funds were earmarked for starting new agencies this fiscal year, and federal sources supplied another $3 million. The health services division has requested $110,000 in state funds for the program for 1977-1978.

To publicize home health care, the N.C. Department of Human Resources and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina have cosponsored a 28-minute color film on the program. The film was created by the department of radio, television and motion pictures at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, in cooperation with other departments.

Julie Writes Book In Seeking Own Identity

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is trying to establish her own identity after years of being known only as the daughter of Richard M. Nixon.

"I want to be accepted as a writer," she said in an interview Monday. "I want to feel that I'm a contributing member of society and not just one of the people who has lived in the White House."

At 28, former President Nixon's younger daughter has just written her first book, "Special People," which is to be published June 6.

15-minute drive from her parents' retreat in San Clemente.

Mrs. Eisenhower said she is afraid her mother will not recover completely from the stroke she suffered last July. "They say that if you're not recovered within a year, you never have a complete recovery, and it's almost a year now," she said. "Mother has a little difficulty walking and can't use her left hand completely, but her spirit is good."

In a choked voice, she said her mother is in pain most of the time because since her stroke she has suffered from arthritis.

"I ask her how she feels, and she'll say, 'Oh, I'm so sick of myself. I'm not going to complain,'" Mrs. Eisenhower said.

Asked for her reaction to her father's interviews with television personality David Frost, Mrs. Eisenhower set her jaw stubbornly, the way she had when she vehemently defended Nixon during the days before he became the only man in history to resign the presidency.

"I don't want to comment on it," she said. "He expressed himself much better than I could. He has to speak for himself. I'm proud of my father."

The local athletes returned to Greenville Sunday morning following the closing ceremonies on that date.

House Enacted Anti-Porn Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — An anti-pornography bill was enacted Monday night after clearing the House without objection.

The bill, already approved by the Senate, allows the courts to hold an adversary hearing to determine whether certain materials are obscene after the arrest or indictment of anyone for its sale.

Some legislators had complained that it was difficult to convict someone for selling pornographic materials because they must get a ruling that the specific picture or film was obscene before it was sold.

The measure won final approval on a 97-0 vote.

In other legislative action:

Arrested In Bank Holdup

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old Charlotte man, who allegedly fled in a taxi cab, has been arrested in connection with the hold up of a branch of the North Carolina State Bank here Monday.

The FBI said James Ray Gathings was arrested and arraigned on bank robbery charges before a federal magistrate. Gathings was ordered held in jail on $50,000 bond.

The cab driver, Robert Jones Sherrill, 36, of Charlotte told Mecklenburg County police that he answered a call to take someone to the bank, waited outside for the passenger and then drove away from the bank. Sherrill said he was unaware a robbery had taken place until he saw a county police car following him.

Police chased the taxi three miles before the cab was halted at a roadblock near Derita on the outskirts of the city.

No one was injured, but the taxicab was wrecked at the roadblock.

DRUGS
The House tentatively approved a bill aimed at cutting down the illicit use of prescriptions for obtaining abused drugs. The measure would make it a misdemeanor for anyone to possess a blank doctor's form for prescriptions, unless they used the forms in their work.

The bill passed second reading on a 99-10 vote.

SBI
The House gave tentative approval to a bill its sponsor said was needed to give statutory authority for a practice already followed by the State Bureau of Investigation. The measure, as amended on the House floor, says the SBI shall have the authority to provide protection for public officials who request it and are judged to need it by the Attorney General.

Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, said the SBI now provides that for the governor and his family, and for others when needed. But he said there was some concern in the Justice Department that they did not specifically have the authority to do so.

The bill passed on a 105-1 second reading, with only Rep. W.S. Harris, D-Alamance, vot-

Faces Trial For Security Fraud

RALEIGH (AP) — Former Pinehurst Mortgage and Loan Corp. president Frederick N. Boswell surrendered to authorities Monday to face charges of security fraud that were filed against him in June, 1976.

Boswell was indicted by the Wake County grand jury last summer, and a warrant issued for his arrest last fall. He is accused with other loan officials of misrepresenting the Pinehurst corporation's finances and causing North Carolina investors to lose up to $2 million.

He was released Monday after posting $20,000 bond and is to appear for trial the week of Aug. 8.

Making a good bourbon takes time. Making a great bourbon takes extra time. Time spent in charred oak barrels that imparts extra bouquet, mellowness and flavor.

Pilot Program To Expand Nationally

By KAREN SOUTHWICK
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Talk to a European food snob about American cooking, and he immediately thinks: hamburger, fast food, pizza.

Times are changing, thanks in part to a Pittsburgh project that is so successful it will lead to similar training nationally at other colleges.

On May 29, the first graduates of the culinary arts program at Allegheny Community College in Pittsburgh will receive associate degrees as certified cooks. Each will have completed three years of study and 6,000 hours of on-the-job training.

The thought of such American-trained men and women running Europe's finest hotel and restaurant kitchens is not pie in the sky, says German-born Ferdinand Metz, captain of last year's U.S. Culinary Olympics Team and president of the Chefs Association of Pittsburgh.

"We have people coming out of the program in May who are as good or better than the program in Europe produces," Metz said.

Its success is leading to national expansion, says Richard Bosnjak, president of the American Culinary Federation. The U.S. Department of Labor is providing $620,000 to implement its spread in 1977-78.

"We are very happy the government sees the need for this program," said Bosnjak. "The restaurant industry spends $70 billion on food each year and opens new restaurants every day. Who's going to run them?"

With a few exceptions, such as the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., no formalized program exists to train certified cooks and chefs in the United States, said Metz. Comparable programs have long histories in Europe.

"Right now anyone who works in a hamburger joint and puts on a white hat can call himself a chef," he said.

Students in the Pittsburgh program are paid a minimum wage or more for their practical work. They earn about $15,000 over the three-year training period. Metz estimated the total cost of tuition and books at about $700, compared with $8,000 for the two-year program at Hyde Park.

Students work five days a week in establishments approved by the chefs association, large-volume feeding establishments such as hotels, restaurants, hospitals and private clubs. They spend one day a week in classes taught by association members.

To earn a diploma, students must pass written and practical exams testing professional ability and administrative and people-handling skills.

In Europe, the title of master chef is achieved after about 10 years of experience. Metz foresees a similar process here.

"There aren't going to be many (master chefs) because there's going to be very high and tough criteria," Metz said.

"What we are trying to do is build up a good core of people who will be proper teachers for the apprentice program," he said. "The higher the quality, the better training an apprentice receives on the job."

The Pittsburgh program may be established at all of the culinary federation's 100 chapters, Metz said.

"We're shooting for 1,500 enrollments within a year," he added, "but we don't want to water the program down."

In Pittsburgh, the original 600 applicants were reduced to about 30 following personal interviews, taste and smell tests.

"We're confident our graduates can go anywhere," Metz said. Several of the first graduates have already received job offers from Georgia and Pittsburgh to San Francisco at an average starting salary of $10,000.

"Unless you're planning on signing your life away. Don't get into it," said Michele Davida, 20, of suburban Pittsburgh, who graduates this month.

Miss David's on-the-job training was at South Hills Country Club.

"It's a lot of hard work, not like going to straight college, but I'm really glad I did it.

"There are definitely not as good opportunities for women. Most of the men in the kitchen don't want you there," she said, adding that the men eventually learned to accept her.

"They want to hire a man first," she said. "As a woman, you just have to show them you can do it."

Nearly 11,000 of the elderly died from falls; 5,700 died in traffic accidents; 1,700 in fires, and nearly 1,100 from suffocation due to ingested objects.

FALLS KILL

CHICAGO (AP) — The major killer of senior citizens is falls, according to the National Safety Council.

The council says recent statistics show about 11,000 persons over 65 or older die each year as the result of falls. It says that even when a fall does not kill it often inflicts severe injury requiring long hospitalization and convalescence.

Hairdresser Predicts Beauty Salon Changes

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The beauty salon as we have known it may be on the way out. More emphasis will be put on giving a woman what she wants, at a price she can afford and within the time at her disposal.

That prediction comes from Jean-Louis David of Paris. American salons are already in such an atmosphere of change, the well known hairdresser points out.

"There will be new possibilities in a beauty salon, expensive and inexpensive," as he sees it. "Like dress designers who offer both couture clothes and ready-to-wear; a new kind of beauty salon will offer to pamper at a price, or a woman can merely have a hair-do without the extra services — manicure, pedicure, whatever."

The quick service is already operating at Henri Bendel, a fashionable New York retail store, where Jean-Louis has opened his first American salon. Two of his top stylists will hold the fort there when he travels.

"It does not mean that only particular women will gravitate to those services," he explained. "A woman may want the ambience of deluxe service occasionally, stretching her budget to get it, and a woman

NEW LOOK—For the bulky, long-hair look, Jean-Louis David of Paris cuts hair in oval shape, sloping down to nape of neck, and curls by braiding hair with pins. The roots and ends are left free and hair is dried naturally or with a minimum of heat, to achieve a spectacular look on a youthful face.

who can afford lots of pampering may want to avail herself of quick service from time to time."

In a way, the alternate beauty salon idea is designed to appeal to many women who might have done their hair at home to avoid fuss and expense.

But other things have changed. In fact, Jean-Louis has introduced some spectacular hairdos that take on new form. "Geometrics are out," he said. "It's a new kind of long hair — sexy, anti-coiffeur, natural."

He illustrated it on his wife, Danielle. After cutting the long hair in an oval shape, "blending it downward," he began setting it with pins. It can be "with or without a perm."

"First, there is a way to get the hair to the right kind of bulk," he says, using hairpins, braiding strands of hair over each prong and then bending the pin to hold it in place. Hair at roots and ends is kept free.

"Next we blow with a drier to warm the curls," he said. Combing it out, he explained,

"You see it does not look Hollywood '30s. It is modern and different."

The hair frames the face in tremendous bulk and has a kind of indefinite look about it. It is a stunning look for a youthful face.

"It is not for every woman, one reason hairdressers must have rapport with clients. Each haircut should bring out the natural flow of hair. The hair is dried naturally or with lamps."

He has so much faith in his system that he has put it on videotape "so the cassettes can instruct hairdressers around the world.

"It is being done on a pyramid system — we do a technique, a movie, and we train a salon manager who trains hairdressers in the variety of hairdos from the tape. In Paris we are doing 1,200 clients a day in four salons, all different, but all modern and free.

"Young girls like the feeling of the streets. Fashion comes from the street, not from the designer. I am an artist, but not as before. The new feeling of hairdressers must be 'I'm not working for the client, I'm working for the client.' I am not doing what I like to do. In fact, some things I do, I don't like, but it is important to be in fashion."

A third generation of a family of hairdressers, Jean-Louis David has worked with Carita and Alexandre of Paris, two greats in the world of hairdressing. But at 26 he had his own salon.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In the mid-20s, physiologist Ivan P. Pavlov made a rather interesting discovery. Every time he brought food to a dog, he would ring a bell and the dog's mouth began to water. Later, just by ringing the bell, he could bring about a reflex action of saliva.

In the late '40s, Erma Bombeck, a simple housewife in Ohio, made another interesting scientific discovery. By announcing to her family, "Dinner is ready," it was noted that the entire family swung into action like a precision drill team. For no apparent reason, her husband would exit to clean out the medicine chest, one child would pick up the telephone and begin dialing, another would go to the bathroom and lock the door, and once one of them took a bus to Detroit.

After awhile, she wouldn't even have to say anything. When she appeared at the door, they all just took off and scattered. Just when it seemed her frustration had reached a breaking point, she observed yet another phenomenon. Hours later as the family sat around the table and raised their forks for the first bite, the phone would ring. It became as predictable as rain the day you washed the car, and it was driving her crazy.

She tried everything. She scheduled meals at odd hours. She tiptoed to the table. She once went to the living room where they were all seated around the TV set and instead of announcing dinner said, "I'm not here to announce what you think I am." But the group could not be fooled.

Every night they sat down to warm lettuce and cold French fries, while members of the family filed in and out like they were visiting a 7-11 market. And every night as they prepared to eat the first bite, the phone rang.

Her husband said she was imagining things until one weekend Erma was flat on the sofa with a virus and he was in charge of dinner. Flushed with heat from the stove, and the pressure, he ran into the living room and announced, "Dinner is ready."

One son stood up and went to the mailbox, another went to the car to look for his tennis racket, the dog went to the door and scratched to get out and Erma started to exit.

"Where are YOU going?" he asked hysterically.

"I'm going to be sick."

"Couldn't you wait until after dinner?" he asked miserably.

"I've worked like a dog to get the fish sticks, the chili, and the potato chips to 'come out even.'" Twenty minutes later as we all gathered around the table, we waited to hear the inevitable ring of the phone. There was silence for five minutes . . . then 10 . . . then 20 minutes.

A smile crept across my husband's face. "I guess your theory has just sprung a leak," he said. "We're eating and the phone is not ringing."

I didn't have the heart to tell him he was only half right.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

Can't Shield Child From Facts Of Life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our 9-year-old daughter, who is in the fourth grade, loves to read. Each week she goes to the library and brings home books, which she devours. She also loves to read your column.

Abby, I can explain murders and riots to her, but how can I explain some of the things she reads about in your column? This week she asked me what a "homosexual" was. She also wanted to know how you get a "venereal" disease, and what "rape" was!

I told her that a homosexual was a person who had a problem getting along with the opposite sex, that a venereal disease was a serious infection, and that rape meant overpowering and hurting a woman.

Must I hide the newspaper from my child? Do you really receive a sufficient number of letters of this kind to justify printing them? Or was this just a bad week?

UPSET DAD

DEAR DAD: Yes, I really receive a sufficient number of letters of "this kind" to justify printing them. You are fortunate to have a child who loves to read and doubly fortunate that she asks you to explain things she does not understand.

Few children reach maturity without hearing a good deal about the subjects you mentioned, and what better place than home is there for them to learn the facts? You can "hide" the newspaper from your child, but you cannot hide from her the realities of life.

Children who are old enough to ask are old enough to know. Answer all her questions truthfully.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for four months, and everything is perfect except one small detail. My wife insists that I sleep in pajamas. Abby, I've been sleeping in the nude since I was a freshman in college. My wife says that only animals sleep in the nude.

I don't insist that my wife NOT sleep in nightgowns. The other night she gave me a present—a pair of silk pajamas, and when I refused to wear them and told her to return them and get her money back, she became hysterical.

Abby, my wife is not a prude and our sex life is fine, so I can't understand why she doesn't want me to sleep in the nude.

Maybe you or your readers can convince my wife that I'm no animal—that millions of men sleep nude. Thanks.

NO ANIMAL

DEAR NO ANIMAL: What you sleep in is between you and your wife, but some men (women, too) find greater freedom and comfort sleeping in a natural.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you six weeks ago asking if the Salvation Army could locate my missing brother, and I still haven't heard from you. You say that you answer all your mail. What happened?

STILL WAITING

DEAR STILL: I am under no obligation to answer a letter that is not accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for my reply.

Fiscal Responsibility Needed

Sen. Robert Morgan has proposed something interesting in the U. S. Senate — old fashioned but interesting.

In his recent news letter to his constituents he took up a cause that has long been espoused, but seldom is anything done about it.

Noting that $38 billion in interest will be paid on the national debt this year, he said he had voted against several recent new spending proposals because of the mounting annual deficit.

"Because I believe we must call a halt to these ever-increasing deficits, I have co-sponsored a resolution in the Senate which would call for an amendment to the Constitution that would provide that the national budget must be balanced each year, just as our State Constitution mandates that the North Carolina budget be free of a deficit.

"The resolution proposes an amendment to provide for a balanced budget within four years of ratification, and to require that five percent of the national debt to be paid off each year after that, so that by the end of the 20th century the nation would be completely out of debt.

"The resolution provides for suspending these conditions if a national emergency arises, but it would have to be a real emergency and designated as such by a three-fourths vote of the Congress.

"The interest we are paying on the present national debt is larger than the appropriations for any department in the government except the funds voted for National Defense and for Health, Education and Welfare.

"We need to — we must — put our financial affairs in order."

Like we say, it's an interesting idea — even radical to some. If it isn't carried out, when the federal treasury gets in the same shape as Social Security is today, we will all wonder why Morgan's concept of fiscal responsibility wasn't adopted.

Counts On The House

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt says he is confident the House will defeat a Senate-approved measure that would make the lieutenant governor permanent chairman of the state Board of Education.

With Lt. Gov. Jim Green presiding, the Senate voted 31-18 Monday night to approve the bill, sending it to the House where a similar measure has been bottled up in the Education Committee since early April.

"I'm confident the House will defeat it," Hunt legislative liaison Charles Winberry said after the Senate action. "I anticipate it will be defeated in the committee."

Opposition to the bill mushroomed over the weekend. On Friday it won tentative Senate approval with Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, casting the only negative vote.

Winberry denied any weekend lobbying in the Senate by the governor's supporters, however, and said he had concentrated opposition efforts in the House.

Sen. William Smith, D-New Hanover, who on Friday voted for the measure but requested the delay in final action, said he changed his mind after talking with local education officials over the weekend.

"Over the years, we have had some outstanding lieutenant governors," Smith said, "but that did not necessarily qualify them to be chairman of the Board of Education."

Smith said the bill was approved by the Senate State Government Committee without public notice, and that education leaders in his district were upset because they did not get an opportunity to speak against the proposal.

"It seems to me that this is a grievous oversight, and I think they should be heard from before we act on this bill," he said.

40 Years Ago Today

May 24, 1937

The Supreme Court, in a momentous decision, held constitutional today the unemployment insurance and old-age pension provisions of the Social Security Act.

Justice Cardozo delivered both opinions on the top-ranking administration legislation intended to care for future joblessness and to cushion the nation against another depression.

In another decision, the tribunal upheld state unemployment compensation laws to supplement the federal act.

John D. Rockefeller, the founder of the world's greatest "dollar dynasty" lay still in death today, just 26 months short of his cherished goal to live to be 100.

He would have been 98 years old July 8.

The aged capitalist died Sunday morning at 4:05 at his winter home, the Casements, drifting peacefully off to his final sleep after complaining he felt "very tired."

His physician attributed death to hardening of the heart muscles.

"A funny thing happened on the way to the Mideast peace conference..."

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Negative Side Is Aired

In a speech a few weeks ago—a speech that should have been more widely reported—Senator Jesse Helms documented some of the costs that go with Federal regulation of higher education. These are costs in money, in time, in academic integrity—and there are human costs also.

The North Carolinian's purpose was to introduce a bill intended to halt the excesses of Federal regulation. When the Higher Education Act of 1965 was passed, few of its consequences were clearly foreseen. The act was designed chiefly to extend and to expand the modest programs of Federal assistance that developed after Sputnik in 1957. Only a handful of prophets saw the flood of rules, regulations, forms, reports, and stultifying controls that lay ahead.

Today the colleges and universities are drowning in the turgid rivers of Federal beneficence. Helms pulled together some figures. Harvard must allocate 60,000 hours of faculty time every year to compliance with Federal rules. A survey by Change magazine indicates that the schools spent $2 billion in 1976 on federally mandated programs. Duke's costs of compliance have soared from $58 per student in 1968 to $451 in 1975. In the same period, Georgetown's costs have grown from $16 to $356.

The greatest cost results from the government's demand that the recipient institutions maintain "affirmative action" programs for hiring minority faculty members. Merely to develop its plan cost the University of Michigan $350,000. The University of California at Berkeley put $400,000 into its program.

Computed in dollars, the cost of "affirmative action" is bad enough. Computed in other values, the cost is worse. San Francisco Community College must file a monthly "Ethnic Survey" of its employees. In March of this year, by way of example, the college's employees were 9.97 black women, 3.89 per cent Hispanic men, 9.19 per cent Asian Pacific Islanders (male), and 0.31 per cent American Indians or Alaskan Natives (female). In terms of meeting its quotas, the college was low on whites, high on blacks, and exactly right as to Hispanics.

Senator Helms quoted from letters sent out by various colleges in their desperate efforts to meet minority hiring goals. Claremont Men's College had to fill a vacancy: "We desire to appoint a black or Chicano, preferably female." Another institution wrote an applicant for a teaching post: "All unfilled positions in the university must be filled by females or blacks. Since I have no information regarding your racial identification, it will be possible for me to contact you for a position only in the event you are black."

Critical Time For Crops If No Rain

Area crops are in a critical time insofar as rainfall is concerned, as Farm Agent Ed Yancey has pointed out.

Rain today should be helpful to tobacco and particularly to corn and soybeans.

There is some irrigation of tobacco in our area, but generally the farmers have to depend on nature to provide the necessary moisture for good crop growth.

It is a time when the skies are watched with anxiety.

THIS AFTERNOON

One Freshman's Big Fight

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A freshman legislator from Rocky Mount is breaking a lot of legislative rules about keeping quiet and not rocking boats — but there are some pretty good odds he will win his fight.

The goal for James E. Ezzell, Jr., D-Nash, is a rebirth of the concept of re-education centers for children having difficulty at home.

It was back in 1960 that some forward-thinking state officials decided to take a look at the re-education concept.

Simply put, that approach takes kids who don't fit the regular channels of private or public aid for specific problems. They have some emotional, mental, or other "gap" in their makeup, and seem to be always running into trouble — at home, at school, at church, or around town.

One Time

A study led to establishment of Wright School in Durham as a demonstration project, and with a 24-bed capacity, many youngsters have been helped; there are numerous demonstrated successes.

But 14 years later — nothing else has happened in North Carolina.

Now, comes the young attorney from Rocky Mount who sees two big plusses in the re-education concept.

First, he admits openly, is a political benefit: the now-vacant Fountain Training School in Rocky Mount could be turned into such a re-education center for eastern North Carolina.

That resolution of a sticky problem would work to the advantage of children, the state, and his community, Ezzell thinks. The Fountain School was closed as a juvenile training facility and turned over to the Department of Corrections for use as a prison.

Local residents fought that move vigorously, and funds were blocked to keep prison officials from moving in that direction.

Ezzell's idea meets approval back home, and he is attempting to get the property transferred back from Corrections to the Department of Human Resources, and some half-million in funds to get the re-education center underway.

Secondly, there is the even more significant benefit of the thousands who would be served by the facility over the years, Ezzell believes.

In Trouble

The children would be those

having problems fitting into things at home. "They may or may not be in trouble with the law; they could be referred by schools, courts, social workers or others.

"Then we would have four months of intensive, round-the-clock counseling and studying of the child and his problems as we try to put the puzzle back together," Ezzell explains.

Many of those to be helped have been in training schools — with little change. Others fall in the gaps between rigidly defined service programs which are available. Most communities offer few programs.

Why? "The children have no lobbyists. Their problems are easily put aside because nobody is here to convince the Legislature of the needs. The time has come, though, when this General Assembly has got to make some decisions and follow through with them," Ezzell says. Children, he adds, have no vote; the training schools have no effective alumni association.

What does Ezzell think of his chances of getting such a program underway? "I really don't know. I feel we may have some chance.

"But I'm just a freshman. If I knew more about political maneuvering, or if I was a committee chairman and could use that clout to gain support for this, I know I could do it.

"But right now? I just don't know."

INDUSTRY LOOKING AHEAD

Mideast Turned Scarier

By ROWLAND EVANS

WASHINGTON — Not only have the odds on a new Middle East war escalated with the surprise election of hard-line Israeli nationalist Menachem Begin and his right-wing Likud party, but the region's entire political fabric has been ripped to shreds.

Begin blessed with steely purpose and singleminded devotion to a "greater" Israel, has kept the lights burning into the wee hours at the White House. One reason is the suddenly escalated odds on a new Arab-Israeli war, but there are other disturbing political factors at work that may undermine U.S. Middle East policy:

*Moderate Arab leaders, such as Syria's President Hafez Assad, Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, Jordan's King Hussein and Saudi Arabia's King Khalid, now have their political necks in the noose. They will be challenged to turn militant and retrieve Israeli-occupied Arab lands, or face overthrow at home.

"The brilliant U.S. strategy that has insulated the Arab world from Soviet influence is now in tatters. With the possibility of a fifth Arab-Israeli war looming, President Carter is likely to come under irresistible pressures from American Jewish leaders — backed by Congress — to stop all U.S. military aid to the Arabs. This will only push them back to the Soviet Union.

*The careful settlement formulations of Mr. Carter, spelled out in greater public detail than any predecessor ever dared, may now have turned to ashes. The prospective Israeli prime minister will never accept a Palestinian "homeland" west of the Jordan River and will not relinquish the Palestinian West Bank.

Begin's commitment to an enlarged Israel is not to be doubted. A man of great self-confidence and deadly serious purpose, he has always seemed immune from foreign pressures. He would not likely be moved even if Mr. Carter could somehow impose on Congress his own desire for moderate Israeli policies.

That prospect seems dim. Some Mideast experts in the Carter administration doubted that — even if Defense Minister Shimon Peres had kept the Labor party in power by winning Tuesday's election — the President could have persuaded Congress to accept his even-handed policies. That doubt stemmed from the ease with which Mr. Carter was forced to retreat from his arms-export control plans by the pro-Israel congressional bloc. Begin's wishes for an enlarged Israel have been spelled out frequently, not only in his important book "The Revolt" but in interviews such as one we had with him in the spring of 1975. On that occasion, he told us Israel would "never" descend from the Golan Heights, "never" retreat from the Jordan River and "never" yield Sharm el-Sheik controlling the waterway into the Gulf of Aqaba.

But that fails to capture the essence of Begin, who told us with forceful clarity: "Zionism is one of the greatest movements in history, but make no mistake: we don't want to be a protected state, the way we used to be protected Jews - Schutz Juden. Just give us the tools and we will defend ourselves. If it were not for this little country, this whole region would have been taken over by the Soviets. The enemy is at our doorstep, and you should be worried not that we are asking too many arms from you, but too little."

Many Israeli politicians talk tough before elections, or to create bargaining positions that can later be modified. (continued on page 5)

To the editor:

The Greenville Rescue Squad proves its worth every second of the day. There are hundreds of moms, dads, boys, girls and just plain little kids in this town who can testify that there is not a day that goes by that we do not hear the sirens of the Rescue Trucks. What does that mean? It simply means that one of us has gotten injured or seriously ill. It means that we have become one of those moms, dads, boys, girls and just plain little folks that needed help.

We receive that help from an organization in this town who now need our help and support. I say let's give it to them in any manner that will assure their continued success and dedication to this community.

The Greenville Rescue Squad has the distinction of being the first Rescue Squad in the United States to win the World Championship in rescue competition. They have won over 10 State Championships. There have been many second and third place finishes in rescue and first aid work over the years. Now I think we can prove we are a World Champion Community by providing the squad with a new building, a Chief of Rescue and the equipment they need to protect our health.

No Strain To Make Ends Meet

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Are American families struggling to make ends meet?

Some of the latest statistics from Washington suggest it isn't so.

Personal income rose strongly in February and March, and the improvement continued into April, when $11.1 billion was added to the total, bringing the seasonally adjusted annual rate to $1.5 trillion.

The biggest expansion ever in consumer installment credit, some $2.72 billion, was recorded in March. Now the total of installment debt outstanding stands at nearly $180 billion, 11.8 per cent above a year ago.

These numbers really don't give a true indication of just how strong the trend is, because they are net balances, arrived at by deducting loans paid from new loans extended.

In terms of new credit obligations assumed, March was the fourth straight month in which a new record was set. The month's total was $18.25 billion, reduced to a net of $2.72 billion by $15 billion to $16 billion of repayments.

So, you say, people have to borrow in order to keep house and home together. No, that's not the answer. People borrowed to buy automobiles and to improve their homes and to take vacations.

Installment credit, say those who study it, usually is taken out for very positive reasons, to buy something a family might have been considering for months rather than just to make ends meet.

Robert Johnson, executive director of the Credit Research Center at Purdue University, calls credit "an expression of confidence."

People now are feeling right about taking on commitments that might extend years into the future.

And there is good reason for them to feel that way. Johnson points out that in the final quarter of 1976 people added far more to their financial assets than to their debts.

"In total," he observes, "consumers' acquisition of financial assets was almost double the rise in their liabilities." Additions to time and savings accounts alone totaled $105 billion, or $28 billion more than the increase in home mortgage and consumer credit.

The stage was thus set for the next act, which was to go out and make the financial commitments to the future that his financial security permitted. It is now taking place.

Are Americans mortgaging that future?

Not at all, says Johnson. "Repayments as a percentage of disposable personal income in the first quarter were only 14.7 per cent. We've seen it as high as 16 or 17 per cent."

But with all these figures you cannot really dismiss as a myth the complaint of some people that they can barely make ends meet. The figures cited are aggregates. Aggregates produce generalizations and generalizations mean exceptions.

Johnson believes that some middle-income families are exceptions. For them, he says, "it must be an incredible struggle just to keep food on the table regularly."

Such middle-income families, he comments, have none of the advantages of the rich and few of the subsidies of the poor.

Strength For Today

HOPE FOR A BETTER WORLD

Tennyson in one of his poems speaks of our being "Dowered with the hate of hate, the scorn of scorn, The love of love."

In other words, we should not hate individuals, but instead that passion of hatred which leads us to bitter and malicious feelings against our fellows.

As far as scorn is concerned, we sometimes find it hard to control a bitter and sarcastic tongue. Yet Tennyson pictures the ideal man not as a person filled with scorn for others, but instead filled with scorn of the disposition to speak bitterly of other people.

"Dowered with love of love." Here Tennyson is referring to those few choice souls in the world who are always trying to find reasons to speak well of their fellows.

Moreover, they are not always asking to be loved but are seeking individuals or causes upon which they can shower their own love.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are forecast today from western Texas to the northern Plains and for much of the Southeast. Some cool temperatures are expected for the Pacific coast and the Rockies but warm for the rest of the nation. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Welcome showers and thundershowers brought relief to some of North Carolina's parched areas Monday and rain continued over a wide area of the state today.

Morning rains fell in Asheville, Greensboro, Raleigh and Wilmington. Periods of showers will be likely over the state through Wednesday, with scattered thundershowers possibly occurring during the afternoons and evenings.

Besides bringing badly needed moisture, the showers also are bringing a cooling trend. High temperatures today and again Wednesday were expected to range mostly in the 70s with some low 80s along the coast.

Rainfall was generally light Monday, ranging a little heavier toward the coast. Asheville and Charlotte recorded just under half an inch. New Bern had nearly an inch and a half and Wilmington nearly two inches.

Learn No Man Is An Island

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Confronted with tasks that are almost impossible to do alone, troubled youths in the Kennedy Baptist Home's modified wilderness program learn usually over a 12-month period that "no man is an island."

They come into the program arrogant and independent, but they leave as entirely different persons, independent, but willing to work with others in day-to-day living situations, says director Vance Russ.

The program puts them through the isolation of the wilderness, community life in a cottage and planning sessions where they have to use their knowledge to arrange for trips and hikes.

"These youngsters have to learn in all these situations that being a loner gets them nowhere. They have to work together yet each gets to say what he thinks or feels. They have an input into each of the projects they undertake," Russ said.

The state Department of Public Instruction allows the youngsters to stay out of the public school system for the year they're in the program.

"But what he has learned in school and what he would have learned is not forsaken in this program. School is learning how to fulfill one's basic everyday needs and that's what we try to give them here," Russ said.

All projects require planning sessions. If a new tent is desired, the youngsters do not just rush into the woods and start setting one up, Russ said. They decide as a group what kind of tent they want. They compute the size and number of logs they will need. They plan the measurements of the knots, dowl pins and rope.

The boys cleared the spot for their campsite, constructed a hand pump that brings water from a hand-dug well, and built a latrine and a grease pit.

"There (is) no way one youngster could do this alone," Russ said, pointing to the campsite. It (takes) planning and hard work by each of the group," Russ said.

Before leaving on hikes, canoe trips or three-day outings in the woods, the boys must plan their meals for the period.

"The youngsters know what budget we have to work with," Russ said. "Each has a say in the planning of the menus and is given a chance to say what he wants at a certain meal. This has been known to take hours."

When a boy begins consistently showing signs of working well with the others, and helping the more recent arrivals, he is near graduation from the program.

"As soon as we know he means business about contributing to others and society, instead of just taking, then we decide where to move him. Sometimes it will be back into his home, while at other times a youngster might be placed in a foster home or into another program at the Kennedy home."

The Kennedy Home houses about 85 children. Twenty-one youngsters have gone through the wilderness program.

Initiated Into Honor Society

ECU News Bureau
Twenty-one persons have been initiated as charter members of the East Carolina University chapter of Alpha Delta Mu honor society in social work.

ECU's new Theta chapter of Alpha Delta Mu is the only chapter in North Carolina. The society recognizes and promotes academic achievement and contributions to the social work profession.

Guest speaker at the initiation was Peggy Sharpe, executive director of the N.C. State Chapter of the National Association for Social Welfare.

New members of the ECU chapter include two faculty members, Dr. Constantine G. Kledaras and Lauretta Lewis; seven alumni, Sheila Bunch, Rhonda Hatcher, Dwight Harper, Diane Horne, Patricia Keel, Regina Schaar and Deobrah Smith; and 11 undergraduate social work students.

Making Inventory Of Soil Erosion

The Soil Conservation Service is making an inventory to determine the extent of soil erosion in North Carolina, SCS State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks said.

The inventory will supply basic data from which the SCS will estimate the quantity of sediment produced by erosion. It will also provide data on soil and water conservation needs, prime farmland, potential cropland, water quality and land use. The N.C. survey is part of a national examination of the erosion problem being carried out by the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency.

Surveys on water and wind erosion—the two most common types in North Carolina—are being carried out this year, Hicks said. During 1978 gully, streambank, roadside and construction site erosion will be studied. The inventory will cover nonfederal land—both rural and urban—in all 50 states, plus Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Work has already begun in N.C., with SCS field employees visiting various sites to evaluate 20 study factors, including kind of soil, slope, climate, crop sequence and conservation measures in use.

Field work for the first part of the inventory will be completed by Nov. 1. State-by-state data will be available May 1, 1978. Sediment yield estimates will be completed in mid-1979.

Observing Mailbox Improvement Week

"Mailbox Improvement Week", a traditional spring observance which contributes to improved security and appearance of the nation's nearly 24 million mailboxes, will be held May 23-28 according to Postmaster, H. Lloyd Mills.

Held annually, this event has long served as the starting signal for community efforts to repair, repaint and make other improvements to the rural, curbside, and star route mailboxes, 7,783 of which are served by the Greenville Post Office.

Postmasters in many communities around the country have led civic groups, the press and municipal governments in the spring campaigns to spruce up the mail receptacles often damaged by the severe winter weather.

"Because more Americans receive their mail today on rural routes than ever before, Mailbox Improvement Week is more important than when first observed generations ago," Postmaster Mills said.

Postal Service rural carriers serve approximately 13.5 million families along some 32,480 rural routes.

Customers who prefer other designs than the traditional mailbox may check with the them, at least—feel the humiliation keenly. Back in 1972, a black professor, economist Thomas Sowell, happened to receive a mimeographed letter from Professor Frank Cook Pierson, chairman of the Department of Economics at Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania. It appeared that Swarthmore was "actively looking for a black economist." Sowell sent a stinging reply.

"Your approach tends to make the job unattractive to anyone who regards himself as a scholar or a man, and thereby throws it open to opportunists. Despite all the brave talk in academia about 'affirmative action' without lowering quality standards, you and I both know that it takes many years to create a qualified faculty member of any color, and no increased demand is going to increase the supply immediately unless you lower quality."

But Begin is not one of them. A most feared terrorist against British rule of Palestine before 1948, Begin always opposed partition of Palestine between Jews and Arabs. He always demanded all of Palestine west of the Jordan River, based on the Biblical history of the Jewish tribes of Israel.

Begin's claim that Israel should get sole credit for the expulsion of Soviet influence from Arab territories rests on his claim of Israel's military prowess. Therefore, Begin implies, the U.S. owes Israel support for its present boundaries.

Many U.S. experts, however, argue it was the intimate U.S.-Israeli connection that gave Moscow its entree as patron of the Arabs to counter Washington as patron of Israel. To counteract this, the U.S. began serious courtship of Arab leaders following the 1973 war. Even earlier, the Russians had been expelled from Egypt and their influence was waning in Syria and even Iraq—all unrelated to Israel's military might.

The delicate U.S. maneuver now seems doomed unless Begin makes an astonishing and wholly uncharacteristic about-face. Mr. Carter is confronted with the most difficult undertaking of his youthful presidency—fashioning a Mideast policy that at the same time can fulfill national needs of the U.S. and satisfy a new Begin government in Israel. That may be beyond his or anybody else's skill, which is why the odds on war are rising.

Also opposing the measure was Sen. J.J. Harrington, D-Bertie, who said that if the lieutenant governor was chairman, he would undercut the governor's plans for public schools. He also noted that Hunt was elected largely on an education platform, and added, "I can see where we'll have a battle."

Hunt has pushed Dr. David Bruton of Southern Pines, one of his recent board appointees, to be elected to the two-year term as chairman. The board is to elect the chairman early next month.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gastonia, said he supported the bill because it would mean the schools "will have more support than they do now."

Under current law, the lieutenant governor serves on the board as an ex-officio member. Green was elected temporary chairman to finish the term of long time board chairman Dallas Herring, whom Hunt did not reappoint to the board this year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slumped again today, continuing the slide of the past three sessions.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.19 at 910.87, following a drop of 24.85 points in the three previous trading days.

That put the Dow below its previous closing low this year of 914.60, reached a month ago. Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 4-1 spread among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 5.82 million shares.

Analysts said inflation worries had been depressing the market since last Friday, when the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index climbed at a 9.6 per cent annual rate in April.

At the same time, brokers noted expectations of a continuing rise in short term interest rates.

The Federal Reserve's policy-setting Open Market Committee confirmed on Friday that it had decided early this month to begin tightening credit.

Chairman James O'Leary of New York's U.S. Trust Co. today predicted a gradual rise in interest rates over the next 12 to 15 months.

Drop Podgorny From Politburo

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was dropped today from membership in the Communist party of the Soviet Union.

It did not indicate whether Podgorny's stepping down was voluntary.

On some occasions, as when Khrushchev was dropped from the party leadership, Central Committee communiques have specified such reasons as age or ill health for the departures of leading officials.

Podgorny's status as president of the Soviet Union, a mainly ceremonial post, comes from a decree of the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament.

If the Supreme Soviet is to drop him as president, it would do so at its first regular meeting of this year, scheduled for June 16.

The Supreme Soviet's executive board, known as the presidium, presumably could also cancel Podgorny's status as president even without a full Supreme Soviet meeting.

Podgorny, who recently toured Africa, proved himself one of the most durable Soviet leaders. He escaped Stalin's purges and the in-fighting that followed Stalin's death in 1953.

In the best Soviet tradition, he comes from a working class family. His father was a foundry worker.

The decision to remove Podgorny from the Politburo, which had contained 15 members before Podgorny was dropped. But recently Brezhnev and his colleagues have appeared to be clearly in control of the central committee as well as the Politburo.

The Moscow radio report said only that "the plenum (the full Central Committee meeting) freed Comrade Podgorny from the duties of a member of the Politburo of the Central Committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union."

Carl T. Hicks, President of Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation, and Fred G. Bond, the Co-op's General Manager, jointly announced today that the 31st Annual Membership Meeting of the co-op will be held May 27 at the Kerr Scott Pavilion, located at the N.C. State Fairgrounds.

The meeting will be held from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. complimentary barbecue lunches will be served to all in attendance.

Bergland worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture from 1961-68. While with the USDA, he served as Chairman of the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and later as a Mid-west Director, administering the agency's programs in that area.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminal behavior is not a mental illness and cannot be reversed by giving people education, jobs or money, says a Freudian psychologist involved in an intensive federal study of crime.

Dr. Stanton E. Samenow has worked for the last seven years at a federally run Washington mental hospital, where he assisted the late Dr. Samuel Yochelson in an ambitious study of how criminals think and what makes them different.

Samenow told a news conference Monday the experience caused the psychologists to throw out orthodox beliefs that people committed crimes because they felt guilty and subconsciously needed to be punished.

Those characteristics included anger, pride, sentimentality, lying, intolerance of fear and procrastination. While many people have some of these qualities, he said, criminals "have them all to an extreme."

"Lying is a way of life to make fools of other people," he said.

After several years of their work, Samenow said, Yochelson discovered his subjects "examined him more than he examined them."

"These men," he said, "rejected their parents, schools and society long before the institutions rejected them. They had made a series of choices early in life that had nothing to do with family, neighborhood, race or socioeconomic factors."

Samenow said he and Yochelson sought to change thinking patterns of the criminals that had developed over a lifetime, and in recent years experienced considerable success.

By intensive retraining of the criminal personality, and by refusing to be fooled by criminals, "change agents" — as Samenow called himself and Yochelson — are able to attain a measure of success.

In the last three years, he said, seven of the 24 hardcore criminals who went through the new treatment have become constructive law-abiding citizens.

The President served on submarines during his Navy duty after graduating from the Naval Academy, but he said this morning that he had not been back to sea on a nuclear submarine since then.

However, he has visited conventional submarines, although since he retired from the Navy, he has not been on a submarine beneath the surface of the sea.

Carter planned to fly to Cape Canaveral Friday morning from Georgia. He is planning to go to Georgia Thursday for a six-day visit over the Memorial Day weekend.

Top Rose Athletes Are Honored During School's All-Sports Fete

By WOODY PEELE, Reflector Sports Editor. Wright Hooks, Rocky Butler and Jule White came away as the top winners at the annual All-Sports Banquet for Rose High School athletes last night.

The banquet was held at the Greenville Moose Lodge, with trophies presented to the top athletes in the 14 sports the school participates in.

Larry Gillman, new head basketball coach of East Carolina University, was the guest speaker for the evening, and outlined some of his ambitions for the Pirates in the coming years.

Hooks was named the winner of the Kiwanis Cup, presented to the Outstanding Senior in Athletics, Scholarship and Sportsmanship. He also was named as the Most Valuable Player on the baseball team.

Butler was the winner of the Dixon Cup, the symbol of the Outstanding Senior Athlete, and he also collected the Most Valuable Player Award in football.

White gathered three awards in track during the evening. He was named the Most Outstanding Field athlete, the Most Valuable Player in track, and the winner of the Steelman Award in track.

In his talk to the athletes and the guests, Gillman urged them to get a good education. "We want all our athletes to be degree-oriented. We want them to get their education, not just play basketball."

He reminded the athletes that a high school student should keep after the books and get a good learning habit before he gets to college. "What happens to the players who can't play pro ball, or when they finish up their pro career if they have no real education?" he asked.

Gillman added that he enjoyed the challenge of going up against the "Big Four" and Charlotte in basketball. "When you succeed, then you feel you've accomplished more when there is a good challenge. I'm not scared of anyone, and we're opening up against Indiana. I feel confident that with the players we have we will do a good job against Indiana."

He noted that the current players on the ECU campus have talent, and that the new players coming in compliment them well. "So win or lose, our opponents are going to know they've been in one heck of a game." Gillman also made a pitch for fans, noting that this is basketball country. "It makes a difference when you have 7,000 fans cheering you on instead of around 2,000. East Carolina hasn't had a home-court advantage."

The coach also noted that there are a number of fine players in Eastern North Carolina, and that he was going to be out after them come next spring.

Besides Butler, other football award winners included Neil Flake, Most Improved; David Murray, Best Lineman; David Northrup, Best Defense; and Macdonald Washington, Best Back. Derwin Clemons was named the Most Valuable on the junior varsity team.

Jesse Baker collected the Most Valuable Player award in cross-country.

Greg Guthrie was named the Most Valuable in basketball, while James Hawkins was Most Dedicated, and Anthony Bryant was Most Outstanding. Clemons was also Most Valuable in junior varsity basketball.

Sheryl Taylor was named the Most Valuable in girls' basketball.

Sid Ashby was named the Most Valuable Player on the golf team.

Serena Matney and Don Tucker were named the Most Valuable Players on the girls and boys tennis teams, respectively and they also collected the Greenville Tennis Club's high school awards.

Fran Gray collected the Most Valuable Player award in softball.

John Lawler was the Most Valuable wrestler, while Raymond Wooten was named Most Improved, and Cliff Hagedorn received the Most Dedicated award.

Janet Gantt and John Bennett received the Coach's Award in swimming, while Susan Tucker and Lance Timmons were named the Most Valuable in that

East Carolina Signs Garland Basketball Ace To Grant-In-Aid

East Carolina University basketball coach Larry Gillman has announced the signing of Garland High School star Roger Carr to a grant-in-aid. This is the third signee for Gillman as the new Pirate head coach.

Carr is a 6-6, 230-pound high school center who will play forward at East Carolina. The powerful Carr scored 700 points as a senior with a 29-point per game average, coupled with a 19 rebound per game average.

Over four years as a starter, Carr averaged better than 25 points per game and 16 rebounds per game. In one game this past season, Carr scored 46 points and hauled down 31 rebounds. During one three-game stretch, he had 120 points, 62 rebounds and 16 blocked shots.

The Garland Bulldogs, under coach Tom Smith, won the Carolina East 1-A Conference this year, while finishing second in Carr's junior year.

Honors won by Carr include all-conference for three years, Player of the Year in the conference for two years, All-East for two years, best all-around athlete at Garland High for two years, honorable mention all-state as a senior and all-conference in baseball as a first baseman.

"We feel Roger will add great strength to our front court," noted Gillman. "In turn, this will allow us to be more flexible with our personnel. We are very happy to sign a quality athlete from Eastern North Carolina, and hope to continue this in the future."

The two players signed earlier by Gillman are Oliver Mack of San Jacinto Junior College in Pasadena, Texas, a 6-3 All-America guard, and Walter Moseley, a 6-1½ guard from St. John's Military Academy in Delafield, Wisconsin.

Teams Set For Playoffs

Three Martin County baseball teams were to open play in the state baseball playoffs today, but one has already shifted its game until Wednesday because of the weather.

The teams will be competing in three of the four levels of high school classifications, in all but 4-A. In the 3-A ranks, Williamston High School's Northeastern Conference champs will be entertaining C. B. Aycock, the Eastern Carolina champion, at 8 p.m. tonight.

Two-A Roanoke was scheduled to travel to Dixon today, but the two schools have postponed their play until Wednesday at 4 p.m. That game will be played at Dixon.

In the 1-A ranks, Bear Grass, the runner-up in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference, travels to Creswell this afternoon for a contest.

Winners in each game continue play, while the losers end their seasons.

South Carolina Claims Title

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—South Carolina has roared back from an opening round defeat to whip Atlantic Coast Conference champion Wake Forest 6-1 and claim the NCAA Atlantic Regional baseball title.

The win Monday night earned South Carolina a trip to the College World Series, which gets underway June 10 at Omaha, Neb.

South Carolina slammed four home runs and righthander Randy Martz struck out 12 batters to climax the Gamecocks drive. It was Martz' 12th win against no losses this season.

Don Repsher staked South Carolina to a 1-0 lead in the second inning with a solo homer, which started the barrage. John Hinkle followed with his 15th of the year in the fourth, and Mark Van Bever and Mookie Wilson smashed out back-to-back homers in the seventh inning.

Wake Forest and South Carolina had eliminated independent South Alabama and Southern Conference champion East Carolina earlier in the seven-game regional.

South Carolina had to come up with two in a row over Wake Forest to gain the title.

South Carolina coach June Raines said Martz pitched "a great nine inning." He added, "Our team has improved daily throughout the season. We have gotten super play from our younger men."

Novice Results

Ann Attmore defeated Sydney Womack to win the singles title at the Greenville Tennis Club's annual novice tournament at Elm Street Park this past weekend.

Attmore, who advanced to the finals by downing Barbara Snow 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, beat Womack by a 6-1, 6-3 score. Womack had made it to the finals by topping Sharon Ricks, 6-4, 6-4.

In doubles competition, Linda Warner teamed up with Attmore to down Snow and Ruth Trevathan 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the finals.

In the semi-finals, Snow-Trevathan beat Womack-Jeanne Adams, 6-0, 6-1 and Attmore-Warner defeated Lesley Ball-Chip East 7-6, 6-4.

Jack Takes Aim On Sam's Mark

By GEORGE STRODE, AP Sports Writer. DUBLIN, Ohio (AP)—Jack Nicklaus has his own version of modern math.

"It would only take three events for seven years or seven events for three years," Nicklaus said Monday, moments after winning the rain-delayed Memorial Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus' multiplication is aimed at Sam Snead's 84 official triumphs, unmatched in professional golf history. Nicklaus' 63rd victory broke a tie for second place with Ben Hogan.

The 37-year-old Ohioan paused and added, "Actually, if I play enough to win 84 events, I should get to $4 million first." With his $45,000 Memorial victory, Nicklaus accomplished: —Career earnings of more than $3 million, the first to reach that plateau. Arnold Palmer is a distant second with nearly $1.8 million.

—Winnings of $200,000 for the seventh consecutive year to go with 15th straight season of $100,000-plus.

—His first hometown victory in 20 years. The last had come in the 1957 Jaycee Tournament when he was a 17-year-old amateur. Those two decades led to a rare case of butterflies for Nicklaus.

"Normally," he said, "I don't get nervous for a tournament. I was pretty nervous this morning for two reasons: I wanted to win badly and knew anything can happen with a two-shot lead on a course like this."

First Federal Nips Big Value

First Federal was able to hold on to a first-inning lead last night and take a 4-3 win over Big Value Drugs in Little League action.

Big Value jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first when Bill Johnson, who got on by a fielder's choice, stole home.

But, First Federal came back with three runs in the bottom of the frame. Randy Warren reached on an error to start things off and made it home on a fielder's choice and pair of wild pitches.

Leon Moore singled and, after moving to third on a passed ball and wild pitch, scored when Horace Barrett belted a base hit.

Horace Barrett made it to third on Tyrone Barrett's single and then scored on a wild pitch.

First Federal added an insurance run in the fifth by Moore. It needed it as Michael Walsh and Jeff Austin scored in the sixth for BVD to cut the margin to 4-3.

Lions Top Jaycees

The Lions scored three runs in the fourth and fifth innings last night to break an 8-8 deadlock and gain a 14-10 victory over the Jaycees in a Little League game.

The Lions took a 5-3 lead in the first inning of play and led 8-3 after one and a half. But, the Jaycees tied it up with five runs in the bottom of the second.

The winning runs came in the fourth when Troy Hudson led off with a single for the Lions. He went to second when Marc Gatlin walked. Steven Staton then hit a home run to give the Lions the lead for good.

Staton added another round-tripper in the fifth inning for some insurance for the Lions. Lions 530 330-14. Jaycees 350 020-10

Old Man Willie Doing It Again

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Willie McCovey, the Jack Benny of the baseball set, would not mind staying 39 forever.

He says his aching knees are better than they were 10 years ago, and who can argue with his success this season?

McCovey, looking menacing again with his big piece of lumber, lashed a double and two singles, keying a 15-hit assault that carried the San Francisco Giants to a 7-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a nationally televised game Monday night.

Left on the baseball scrap heap last season by San Diego and Oakland, McCovey made the Giants' team in spring training and is looking like the McCovey of old and new.

"I'm using the whole field," said the powerful left-handed slugger whose three hits raised his batting average to .318. "People have been trying to get me to quit pulling the ball for 18 years. I can't say when I decided to do it, but when I went to spring training I started to go the other way and stayed with it."

Elsewhere in the major leagues Monday night, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 4-3, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 in 10 innings, the Oakland A's blanked the Toronto Blue Jays 3-0, and the Atlanta Braves downed the San Diego Padres 6-5 in 11 innings. The game between the New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates was rained out.

Giants starter Ed Halicki, 3-4, limited St. Louis to five hits and one run through seven innings, but gave up three straight hits in the eighth for another run. Gary Lavelle relieved and snuffed out the rally with the aid of a double play.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3
Boston's Bill Lee is getting his revenge for a shoulder injury, incurred in a brawl with the Yankees one year ago, that wrecked his 1976 season.

He not only pitched five-hit ball before being relieved by Bill Campbell in the eighth, but served up a home run pitch to Reggie Jackson that may be a source of dissension for the Yankees.

After Jackson's homer, the Yankees slugger declined to offer his hand for the customary round of handshakes as he entered the New York dugout.

Yankees Manager Billy Martin planned to reprimand Jackson today.

Orioles 6, Brewers 5
Pat Kelly's on a hitting tear, but it was his eyes that won the game for the Orioles in the 10th inning. Kelly, who had tied the score with an eighth-inning homer, walked on four straight pitches with the bases loaded in the 10th.

Ken Singleton triggered the winning rally with a double off loser Jim Slaton, 2-5. A single by Lee May brought in reliever Bob McClure, who has a 1.45 ERA in 20 appearances for the Brewers.

A's 3, Blue Jays 0
Oakland rookie Rick Langford ended his three-game losing streak by blanking the Blue Jays on six hits, while striking out eight.

Langford, 4-3, was backed by Tony Armas' two-run homer, which keyed a three-run second inning.

Braves 6, Padres 5
Rookie Barry Bonnell's tie-breaking single in the 11th scored Jeff Burroughs and boosted Atlanta past San Diego. Bonnell paced the Braves' 15-hit attack with a double and three singles.

GCA Award Winners

Harrell (l) was named most improved player, Rodney Harris (c) was cited for team loyalty and Marshall Crumpler was given a trophy for most team spirit. (Reflector photo).

Net-Cutting Time Is Dr. J's Favorite

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Julius Erving doesn't need a calendar to know what time of year it is.

"This is what I call net-cutting time," said Dr. J, the basketball surgeon of the Philadelphia 76ers. "The playoffs — I love them. This is the best time of year, what we work for all winter."

"Not everybody gets the chance to be here, and as long as I'm here I'm going to do something. I'm going to make my presence felt."

Erving put on a dazzling display for the sellout crowd of 18,276 that watched the Sixers win the opening game of their National Basketball Association championship series from the Portland Trail Blazers 107-101 Sunday.

He started with a slam-dunk off the opening tip, then dipped into his doctor's bag for an assortment of twisting jumpers, soaring dunks, spinning layups and sparking passes. By the time he was through, he had 33 points, five rebounds, four assists and three steals.

If Portland is to even the series which resumes here Thursday night, it's going to have to find a way to put the doctor under sedation.

It's not going to be easy, and the Blazers know it.

"It's difficult to stay with him, because the Sixers tend to isolate him so well," said Bob Gross, who fouled out of Sunday's game trying to guard Erving. "He has so much talent, such quick moves, he's just tough to play. He can always have a great game, no matter how hard you play him."

"You try to keep him honest, keep him from the things he likes to do best," said Larry Steele, who chased Erving's shadow when Gross was on the bench. "For example, you try and keep him from going to the basket down the right side and dunking. If he goes where he wants to, he'll score 40. It shouldn't be that difficult to make a guy go left when you want him to go left, but with him it's hard."

And it's especially hard this time of year, during "net-cutting time."

Most Seeded Teams Advance

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — California at Berkeley registered the only upset in the opening day of the NCAA team tennis championships Monday, knocking off No. 7 seed Georgia, the host school, 6-3.

The other seeds won easily with the exception of No. 4 Miami of Florida which edged Texas Christian University 5-4 and No. 8 Southern California which trimmed North Carolina by the same score.

No. 1 UCLA blasted Yale 8-1, No. 2 Trinity, Tex., whipped Oklahoma 8-1, No. 3 Stanford downed Utah 8-1, No. 5 Southern Methodist defeated Princeton 7-2, and No. 6 Texas blanked Michigan 9-0.

In today's semifinal play Miami faces SMU, UCLA meets Texas, Southern Cal takes on Trinity and Stanford meets California at Berkeley.

Berkeley took four of six singles matches and two of three doubles in ousting Georgia. The Bulldogs' only victories in Charlie Ellis with a 6-4, 6-1, triumph over Cary Stansbury and Tom von Dohlen's defeat of John Hubbell 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

TCU captured two of the three doubles matches against Miami but could manage only two victories in singles. Randy Crawford of TCU defeated John Eagleton 6-2, 6-4 and Rick Meyers defeated Ron Myers 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

Walther Buying His Way Into Indy Field

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In 1937, a well-to-do race car driver named Joel Thorne was too slow to make the field for the Indianapolis 500. There were 35 qualifiers that year for the 33 starting positions and Thorne was 35th fastest.

Forty years later, a young driver named Salt Walther found himself in the same position: second alternate. The steps each took to get into the starting lineup were notably similar, except that Walther apparently will be successful.

Thorne, who entered five cars in the 500 that year, decided he would start the race anyway. So he bought the car of the first alternate, and withdrew it, moving his car into that position. Then he set about to buy out one of the 33 qualifiers in the same manner.

The American Automobile Association caught wind of it and said no to Thorne's plan. Thorne contended he could do it. AAA said maybe so, but it isn't fair. Fair or not, Thorne threatened to buy every car in the field and withdraw them all if he didn't get his way.

Finally Thorne relented when AAA threatened to charge him with "conduct detrimental to the sport of auto racing," and suspend him from AAA sanctioned events for life.

AAA is gone, and its successor, the U.S. Auto Club, "is not in a position to say no to something merely because it's morally wrong. I feel Walther's action is morally wrong, in my opinion, but legally acceptable," according to a USAC official.

Walther failed to get either one of his two McLarens into the lineup, despite starting off practice at Indianapolis Motor Speedway with speeds over 194 miles per hour. He was bumped out Sunday, after finding only 184.549 m.p.h. on his qualification run.

So within less than 24 hours, Walther and his father George purchased from ailing Lee Ekins the Eagle that Bill Putterbaugh qualified at 186,800 m.p.h. The selling price was reportedly $60,000, much more than the 6-year-old car is considered to be worth.

Putterbaugh was then fired and given a check for $6,000 — forty per cent of last-place money. (That's a standard driver percentage.)

The move proved unpopular. There was a small, emotional gathering at Putterbaugh's modest Indianapolis home. His phone was busy most of the night with sympathetic callers. One of them was reportedly A.J. Foyt who said he is "not amused" by Walther's action.

Kareem Named Most Valuable

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't think I can play any better or with any more consistency than I did this season," Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said after being named the National Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player.

The dominating center of the Los Angeles Lakers was a runaway winner in the MVP balloting results announced Monday. It was the fifth time he had received the award in the past seven years.

"This MVP award is especially satisfying because it went along with the Lakers' having such a great season," said Abdul-Jabbar, who led his team to the best regular-season record in the NBA.

"Since I've been in Los Angeles, I believe that I've been getting the most out of my potential. Once a player reaches his late 20s or early 30s, his physical ability and knowledge of the game begin to mesh," said the 30-year-old former UCLA All-American.

"That's when a player begins to peak. I've matured as a player and that's the most important part of anybody's potential."

Abdul-Jabbar was the overwhelming winner in the voting by 247 NBA players, polled at the end of the regular season. He received 159 votes to 29 for Portland Trail Blazers center Bill Walton, the runner-up.

The 7-foot-3 1/2 Abdul-Jabbar, a veteran of eight years in the NBA, became only the second player in the league's history to receive the MVP Award five times.

Bill Russell, who played 13 seasons for the Boston Celtics, is the only other five-time winner of the Podoloff Trophy, symbolic of the league's MVP and named after the league's first commissioner.

"It's a great honor to be in the company of Bill Russell," said Abdul-Jabbar, who won the MVP award three times with Milwaukee and last year in his first season with the Lakers.

The Lakers lost to Portland in the NBA playoff semifinals this season, but Los Angeles Coach Jerry West still lauded his center.

"Bill Walton is a great center, and he certainly had a great year," said West. "But he is only the second-best center in basketball."

"Kareem is the best. He is the most dominating player in the game. And he has a tremendous burden because he is expected to do more than anybody in the league — score, rebound, block shots."

Abdul-Jabbar led the league with a .579 field goal percentage and was third in scoring with a 26.2 average. He also ranked second in rebounding, 13.3, and second in blocked shots, 3.18.

NBA scoring champion Pete Maravich of New Orleans finished third in the balloting with 15 votes. Completing the top 10 were Bob Lanier of Detroit, Julius Erving of Philadelphia, Moses Malone of Houston, Elvin Hayes of Washington, David Thompson of Denver, Maurice Lucas of Portland and Artis Gilmore of Chicago.

Nitty Gritty Dirty Band Cheered in Moscow

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day for thinking and adopting new policies and principles under which you like to operate in the days ahead. Also, fine for arranging a specific plan of action that could result in success. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to put your finest talents to work and then go ahead in a most positive fashion.

By SETH MYDANS Associated Press Writer MOSCOW (AP) — The Nitty Gritty Dirty Band, the first American rock group to tour the Soviet Union, ended their visit with a concert that had a Moscow audience cheering, whistling and yelling for more. "At the end we had them bouncing in their seats, which made us feel really good," pianist-guitarist Jackie Robinson Clark said after Monday's concert.

Group members said audience reactions varied throughout the tour from Riga to Tbilisi to Yerevan to Leningrad. In Riga, the audience sat respectfully throughout the concert. "I thought we had bombed," said Hanna. But at the end the auditorium exploded in 20 minutes of applause.

In Moscow several young men and women ran on stage with flowers in the Russian tradition, embarrassing bandmen with kisses. Tickets sold for up to $8 — a day's pay for many Russians — and reportedly went for up to six times that amount on the black market.

Many Russians, who have plenty of rubles but little to spend them on, were glad to pay. A large share of seats went to families of officials and audiences were composed of many middle-aged people. "I wish we'd had the opportunity to play to more young people," said lead guitarist Jeffrey Hanna. "I know there's a big rock 'n' roll audience out there."

"It was definitely worthwhile to come here and put a dent in the door for American music," McEuen said. It is a door that has been opening gradually since the 1960s when the first carefully controlled Soviet groups were allowed to perform. "Our kids know all about American rock," one Soviet said. Many have learned about American rock from foreign broadcasts and there has long been a lively black market in rock records and tapes.

Challenging State Order

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — The trustees of Sandhills Community College voted Monday night to challenge a state order that the college reimburse the state for $9,000 in state money used to pay a fired instructor.

By a unanimous vote, the college board of trustees agreed to appeal to Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten an opinion that the college's payment was illegal. The opinion was handed down last week by assistant Atty. Gen. Ed Speas.

Trustees also voted to refuse to repay the $9,000 until the state Board of Education decides whether to name a committee to investigate the payment.

In his opinion, Speas says the college had illegally used state funds in 1976 to pay Russell Franklin, a former college employe. A.C. Davis, state education board controller, then ordered repayment of the $9,000 in a letter to Sandhills President Dr. Raymond Stone.

Franklin was fired in 1975 after he aired charges of manipulation of the college's high school degree program. The motion approved Monday named a committee to visit Edmisten to claim the payment to Russell was for his salary from the time he was fired in April 1975 until the board denied his appeal in February 1976.

Tentative LEAA Funds Aired

Criminal Justice Director Ted Shaw told the Mid-East Commission Board Thursday that the Region has been tentatively allocated $131,000 in Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds for police projects during fiscal year 1978, which begins October 1, 1977.

The Criminal Justice Policy Committee has established the following priorities for project funding, Shaw said. (1) all second year projects; (2) regional training; (3) general patrol/replacement officer; (4) security system-Williamston; (5) new projects; and (6) all third year projects.

According to Shaw, $98,250 has been budgeted for the six project areas, with the remaining $32,750 to be used for the continuance of juvenile unit projects.

Following Shaw's recommendation that the project priorities by approved, the board gave its assent.

Kathy Donoghue, older adults director, presented recommendations from the Regional Older Adults Advisory Committee for allocating $90,000 in Title III (Older Americans Act) funds for fiscal year 1978.

Services to be funded in each county include transportation, coordination, information and referral and volunteer.

Donoghue said that funds will be disbursed to each county based on (1) the population aged 60 and over, (2) the minority population aged 60 and over, and (3) the below poverty level population aged 60 and over.

Tentative allocations for each county are as follows: Beaufort, $21,263; Bertie, $13,050; Hertford, $12,937; Martin, $12,600; and Pitt, $30,150. The board approved these allocations.

Family Planning Advisory Committee Chairman Nancy Graves, informed the board of House Bill 540, an act to establish a statewide school health education program over a ten year period of time. The board voted to endorse the bill.

Cynthia Faunce, family planning director, gave a report on the growth of the program by comparing statistics over the last three years.

She reported that in 1974, 2,794 clients were served in the region's family planning clinics, and the total number of visits was 12,612. These figures rose in 1975 to 4,467 clients seen and 15,550 visits and rose again in 1976 to 5,895 clients seen and 17,774 visits.

Faunce said that the reimbursable visits to the region's clinics have also increased since 1974 which means that more money from Title XIX and Title XX comes back to the health departments.

In other business the board: -Designated Henry G. Spruill of Bertie County and Mayor H. E. Bunch of Lewiston to serve on the Regional Planning Advisory Committee.

-Reappointed Wilbur Edwards of Williamston to serve another term on the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency Board.

-Approved 14 clearinghouse applications.

Registration Planned For Beef Referendum

The Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office will register beef producers June 6-17 to vote on the beef research and information order, according to Stacy J. Evans, County Executive Director.

Beef producers who fail to register cannot vote in the July referendum.

If over half of registered producers vote in the referendum and two-thirds of those voting approve the order, the Secretary of Agriculture will appoint a beef board, composed of not more than 68 beef producers, from names submitted by producer organizations. The board would collect assessments on sales of cattle and use the funds for beef research and information programs.

Registration may be in person or by mail. Those who wish to register by mail may request the ASCS county office to mail registration cards. The address is P.O. Box 1926 Greenville.

All persons who produced beef during the calendar 1976 are eligible to register. This includes feedlot operators as well as dairymen. Each production entity such as a family, partnership, or corporation is entitled to one vote. A 4-H or FFA member may register, provided he or she produced beef independent of the family operation.

From June 6 through June 17, the ASCS office will daily post a list of producers registered to vote in a conspicuous place. A final list will be posted June 22. Anyone may challenge the eligibility of any producer listed. Evans will resolve challenges.

For further information contact the local ASCS office.
