Child Hostage Is Freed By Gunmen In Dutch School

By DAVID MINTHORN Associated Press Writer ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) - South Moluccan terrorists holding 105 children in a nearby village school today released their first hostage since the initial takeover, a small girl who complained of feeling ill.

The girl, 7 or 8 years old, was wrapped in a blanket and taken away in an ambulance shortly after noon. A second group of gunmen today pushed a bound and blindfolded man, dressed in symbolic white to signify execution, from a hijacked train where they are holding 55 hostages, Dutch officials said.

The hostage stood on the tracks for about 20 minutes with a rope around his neck and his hands tied before being yanked back into the train, a spokesman for the Dutch Justice Ministry said.

In the Moluccans' native East Indies, prisoners about to be killed are dressed in white, the official explained.

The four yellow cars of the hijacked intercity train were sitting in open pastureland just north of this northern Dutch city. The school, where the terrorists also held six teachers, is in Bovensmilde, just south of here.

The terrorists, who staged the twin takeovers Monday, refused food at both locations Wednesday.

A justice ministry spokesman said the terrorists at the train, believed to number seven, apparently were trying to impress authorities that they were serious. He said he did not think they were about to kill anyone.

The militants, who are seeking independence from Indonesia for their native islands in the Pacific, forced three hostages onto the tracks Wednesday night after allowing a deadline for meeting their demands to pass without incident earlier in the day.

Carter Threatens Veto Congressional Price Tags

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today threatened to cast the first vetoes of his presidency if Congress refuses to reduce the price tag of major bills dealing with farm projects and water projects.

"I certainly reserve the right to veto bills if I consider that necessary," Carter told a questioner at a nationally broadcast news conference.

In an opening statement, Carter noted that the farm bill, passed Tuesday night by the Senate, "has a very high cost, much greater than I think is necessary." The Senate bill authorized price support levels that could have a total price tag of $4 billion.

Carter also singled out a public works bill, approved Wednesday, by the House Appropriations Committee, which included funds for water projects the President sought to kill. Carter said the measure was $3.5 billion higher than his request.

The President avoided using the word "veto" in his opening statement, but the implication was clear and he later used the term in response to a reporter's question.

Carter caled inflation "the main concern at this point on the economic scene," and added that too high a rate of government spending would "put excessive pressure on the ability to finance needed programs in the future."

Asked about the arms control discussions in Geneva between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Carter said "compared to the Moscow meeting, the Geneva meeting was very upbeat."

An earlier session in Moscow had ended abruptly when the Soviets flatly rejected the U.S. arms limitation proposals presented by Vance.

Carter said there was a display of mutual goodwill at the Geneva meeting although "I think there are substantial remaining differences between ourselves and the Soviets."

On other topics, Carter: -Complained that Congress has failed to eliminate federal "impact" aid to schools in wealthy communities. The money is designed to compensate financially stricken school systems for the loss of property-tax dollars from nontaxable federal property.

-Said the withdrawal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea will not jeopardize that nation's independence because South Korea has developed a strong economy that "makes it possible for them to grow into a position of defending themselves."

-Stated that any decisions to build military installations in the Northeast rather than the South would be made "on the basis of merit and not on the basis of politics."

-Said Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, the former U.S. chief-of-staff in South Korea, was not being punished for publicly criticizing Carter's plans to remove U.S. ground troops from that nation, but was instead being transferred to another important position.

-Declared there has been good cooperation between Congress and the executive branch, but said a potential problem existed over size of the federal budget deficit.

-Reaffirmed his position that Israel should withdraw to the 1967 borders to effect a Middle East settlement, but added that "we do not have a Middle Eastern settlement plan."

-Said he doesn't "want to benefit financially" by selling his status as a former president when he leaves the Oval Office.

-Declared that his campaign promise to overhaul the nation's welfare program was proceeding on "a very expedited schedule" and should be completed before Congress recesses in August.

-Expressed his belief that the recent election of new leaders in Israel does not pose "an insuperable obstacle" to a Middle East settlement.

Escapee Is Back In Jail

SNOW HILL - The man who escaped from the Greene County Jail last Thursday night is back there this morning. He was apprehended in Fayetteville about midnight.

Sheriff P. L. Barrow said Raymond Cooper was stopped by law enforcement officers in Fayetteville for a traffic violation, but drove away when he was asked to show his driver's license. In the chase which followed his car was wrecked and he then was pursued on foot until caught. He allegedly was driving a stolen car.

A car believed stolen by him in Snow Hill last Friday morning was found abandoned in Goldsboro last Saturday, Barrow said.

A hearing for Cooper is set for tomorrow in District Court, Sheriff Barrow said. He said he understands Cooper is wanted in Craven, Harnett, Robeson and Sampson Counties, as well as Greene.

N.C. Senate Tension High

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Conflicts caused by the rift between Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green have become so acute that several state senators told reporters privately they were considering not running for re-election next year.

"It's getting to the place now, it could conceivably cause the people of North Carolina to suffer for it," said Sen. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, a key Green ally.

Many senators described the Senate Wednesday as a political pressure cooker, and politicians in both chambers of the General Assembly have expressed concern that the split is threatening the broad Democratic Party unity that resulted in the party's sweep of state offices last fall.

"The state cannot stand four years of this," said Sen. Melvin R. Daniels Jr., D-Pasquotank. Hunt built up strong loyalties when he presided over the Senate during his four years as lieutenant governor. He is now in a position where he can reward supporters.

Green, as lieutenant governor, has replaced Hunt as president of the Senate, and can control committee assignments and chairmanships and influence legislation.

The root of the conflict, Lawing said, are the driving political personalities of Hunt, Green and House Speaker Carl Stewart, who has attempted to bridge the gap between Hunt and Green.

"They are all ambitious, all energetic, and all have their disciples," said Lawing. "It's getting pretty hairy around here."

Veteran Sen. Ralph H. Scott, D-Alamance, who has watched more legislative fights than just about any other lawmaker, said of his Senate colleagues, "A lot of them feel the die is cast. You either go with Hunt or go with Green."

Some say the tension has affected freshmen senators the most.

Sen. Robert B. Jordan, D-Montgomery, who has tried to maintain cordial relationships with Green and Hunt, said, "There is a feeling that you can't win."

Parking Lot Greenery Requirement Studied; Another Meet Needed

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

A special call meeting will be set soon by the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission to consider the adoption of a proposed amendment to the City Code regarding required vegetation areas in new parking lots.

The board, after discussing a new suggested amendment to the ordinance, agreed that another meeting would be necessary before final action could be taken and a recommendation made to the City Council.

The meeting will be held prior to the June 9 regular Council session in order that a new recommendation can be made to the city governing board in time for a public hearing to be scheduled in July.

An initial amendment was considered by the planning board several months ago and when members could not agree on the proper wording of the document, a recommendation was made to the Council to disapprove the amendment. The Council agreed at its last meeting to give the commission 30 days to come up with another recommendation.

Last night, City Planner

John Schofield discussed the treatment given by seven other cities to buffer and landscaping requirements for off-street parking lots. He said that Cary and Goldsboro tried to regulate internal landscaping layouts in parking lots while Rocky Mount, Wilson, Wilmington, Tarboro and Raleigh had very little regulation of vegetation in parking lots.

Commissioners considered a possible new amendment that would require, "All off-street parking areas of 20,000 square feet and-or containing more than two rows of parking stalls shall provide and maintain areas of vegetation in accordance with the following standards:

(a) all parking lots within the Office and Institutional, Downtown Commercial Fringe, Neighborhood Commercial, Medical Arts, Highway Commercial zoning districts shall maintain a front setback of 20 feet from all street rights-of-way and such setback will be devoted to vegetation;

(b) all parking lots within the Shopping Center, CH, Unoffensive Industry, and I zoning districts shall maintain a front setback of 20 feet from all street rights-of-way and such setback will be devoted to vegetation;

(c) these setbacks shall apply to the entire lot frontage with the exception of driveways and shall apply to all parking lots within a parcel abutting a street right-of-way;

(d) vegetation within these setbacks shall provide an adequate sight distance factor in accordance with Section 32-93 of this code;

(e) all internal rows of parking stalls shall be required to have and maintain a vegetated island of three feet per row bordered by curbing and equivalent elevated wheel stops."

Commissioners questioned several areas of the suggested amendment and agreed that the planning staff should look at ways to incorporate worthy sections of both the initial amendment and the new proposal.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, chairman, said that since last night was the first time that the commission members had a chance to see the new proposal, she did not think it would be fair to take a vote.

Mayor Percy Cox explained that the Council will have the item on the June 9 agenda and set the matter for a public hearing in July. He said that some action on the ordinance is needed in view of the growth of the city.

A date for the special call session will be announced to the public, it was pointed out.

In other business on the joint agenda, it was agreed that the Commission will hold two open meetings in order to gain public input regarding the U.S. 264 Bypass corridor study.

The planning staff has been asked to prepare a draft corridor study for the area including the land east of Red Oak Crossroads (US 264 and 264 Bypass) to Memorial Drive. The study area encompasses approximately 1,194 acres of urban transitional land along two miles of the bypass.

Action on requests for rezoning in the area, particularly along the bypass, has been delayed pending the study. Included are requests by H. G. Stocks and J. T. Manning for rezoning property along the bypass.

Schofield and staff planner Skip Browder discussed with the board members possible

A grocery store in my neighborhood of Greenville evidently cannot confine its trash. Our neighborhood is covered this morning. D. W.

Holtline relayed your complaint to Leavy Brock of the Sanitation Division of the Greenville Public Works Department. He said he appreciates your report and will talk to the store owner. The procedure is, he said, to study a commercial establishment's plan for storing refuse and talk with the owner or manager about how it is being done and make suggestions for changes. Usually the storekeeper complies he said, but if he or she does not, the matter is turned over to the Inspections Department which can take legal action, if necessary.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"DIDN'T KNOW ANYONE CARED"

By 4 o'clock of May 12, the afternoon a Hotline appeal for a couple with twin boys and deeply in debt ran, someone had already taken a load of clothes and toys to the children. The phone at the service station designated as the place to take gifts for the family "rang off the hook" for another week and a half, Mrs. Carolyn Heburn, friend of the family said.

There were offers of 12 cooking ranges (One was accepted and one passed on to another family for whom Hotline had appealed.) and numerous other gifts. One person offered to go and plow a garden spot for the family. Another invited them to come to a yard sale and take anything at all they could use.

Mrs. Heburn quoted the young man as saying, "This is just like Christmas. I really didn't know that anybody cared about anybody any more. Now I know they do."

House Subcommittee Asks More Korea Data

By JIM ADAMS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House subcommittee wants top military officials to reveal intelligence information that reportedly shows the North Koreans are preparing to invade South Korea.

Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub told the subcommittee Wednesday that military generals oppose President Carter's plan to withdraw the 33,000 U.S. ground troops from Korea because intelligence reports show North Korea has been building up its forces. Singlaub said military officials believe the withdrawal could prompt North Korea to attack South Korea after the American departure.

Singlaub, fired as U.S. chief of staff in Korea for criticizing Carter's troop withdrawal plan, testified that he does not know any military official who does not agree with his statement that the pullout "will lead to war."

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the House armed services investigations subcommittee, said he will call for testimony from members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and that he may call more generals in from Korea.

Meanwhile, a White House official downplayed Singlaub's concern about a new invasion of South Korea, saying President Carter had the same intelligence information when he made the decision to withdraw the U.S. ground troops from Korea. Carter's plan would leave U.S. air, naval and supply forces in Korea.

"He's obviously made his decision on the basis of intelligence estimates and advice that withdrawal of the troops over the next four or five years is not going to upset the military balance in that area," the White House official said of Carter.

"Our intelligence has concluded for some years that South Korea could adequately defend itself against an invasion, provided it had our air and naval support," the official said.

And he added: "We're not talking about removing our commitment. We're talking about removing our ground forces."

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown said meanwhile that both he and the chairman of the joint chiefs have "full confidence that the Republic of Korea can successfully assume the full ground combat role in the next four to five years."

But Singlaub told the House subcommittee that he and the senior generals in Korea believe South Koreans cannot take over their own defense that fast.

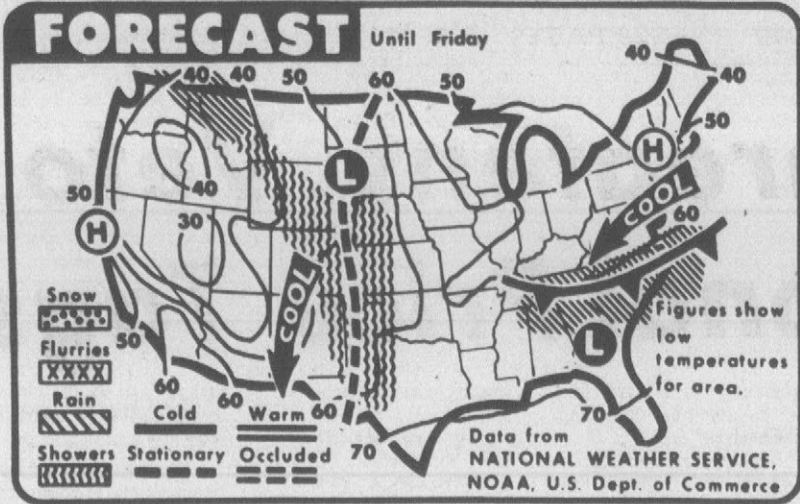

Singlaub testified that U.S. intelligence discovered in 1975 that North Korea had increased its tank force from 500 to 2,000. He said the intelligence experts then re-examined other facts about the North Korean capability and "came up with a whole new picture within the past year."

He said North Korea is militarily superior to South Korea, even with the Americans there.

STICKS BY STATEMENT - Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee Wednesday, reaffirming his view that President Carter's troop withdrawal plans for South Korea would lead to war.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are due today from west Texas into the northern Plains. Rain is expected from upper Mississippi Valley to the mid-Atlantic coast. Cool weather is forecast in the West and Northeast but the rest of the country will see mild temperatures. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press on through Raleigh and Durham to well north of Rocky Mountain. The rain was spreading to ranging from east of Charlotte ward the northeast and indications were that the precipitation would end about midday. Meanwhile, dense fog covered much of the southern coastal area of the state below Jacksonville. Visibility was reported as low as zero in some sections before the fog began to lift.

The Lumber River this morning was four feet over bankful and the National Weather Service predicted it would rise another half-foot before cresting, although showers still are expected through Friday.

Rainfall for the 24-hour period ended at 8 a.m. today showed more than two inches at Jacksonville, more than an inch and a half at Wilmington and more than an inch at Raleigh-Durham and Rocky Mount.

The rain was lighter to the west as Charlotte, Hickory and Asheville all measured less than half an inch.

A cold front is expected to push southward across much of North Carolina tonight. This will bring partial clearing over the state's northern sections and cause a decrease in rain over the state by Friday.

However, there still is a chance of showers and thunderstorms again during Friday although this chance will prevail mainly over the mountains and southern portion of the state during the afternoon and evening.

Temperatures are expected to continue in the 70s during the day.

The wet weather of the last few days should have generally disappeared by the Memorial Day weekend.

Find Coffee Is Harmless

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Coffee prices may cause heartburn, but scientists at Duke University Medical Center say their research indicates the aromatic beverage itself is harmless.

Their latest study, conducted as part of an ongoing U.S. Public Health Service research effort launched in 1960, showed that "high coffee consumers" — those who drank five or more cups a day — did not significantly differ in terms of death rates from "low coffee consumers" — those who drank four cups or fewer, according to Dr. Siegfried Heyden, professor of community health sciences at Duke.

Heyden said the results confirmed the outcome of a preliminary investigation he and his associates conducted four years ago.

The research examined the coffee-consuming habits of 2,350 adults in rural Evans County, Ga., and the relative incidence

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The T-shirt craze has clearly gotten out of hand.

The other day, I encountered three propositions, four declarations, two obscene suggestions, and a word so bad I stopped the car and covered the wearer's body with a road map of Phoenix's downtown area.

Maybe I'm a prude, but T-shirts are not for everyone. I saw one the other day worn by your basic full-figured woman. I nudged my mother. "Why would anyone wear around an aerial view of the graduation class of midshipmen at Annapolis?"

"It's not an aerial view of the graduation class of midshipmen at Annapolis," she said. "It's a pizza."

"I guess I've never seen pepperonis that size before." "The trouble with you," she said, "is that you do not have the figure for it."

"Oh, c'mon," I said. "Is that what you think? Why, I could walk into any store in the shopping center and get dozens of T-shirts that would look stunning on me."

"Try it," she said dryly.

When I told the first salesperson I wanted a T-shirt, she said, "What do you want it to say?"

"Something clever," I said.

"How about, 'IRONED SHEETS

ARE A HEALTH HAZARD?'"

"Your chest can't handle that many words," she said.

"I told you so," said mother.

"Then, how about your standard, 'HAVE A GOOD DAY?'" I pressed.

"Your arms would cover HAVE A and DAY, and the GOOD would wrinkle."

"How about 'VOTE!'" said mother. "You could handle that."

"Here's one that's popular," said the salesperson. She held up a T-shirt with one word on it — "BABY" — with an arrow pointing downward. "That's ridiculous," I said. "I'm not expecting." "No problem," she said. "This one comes with an infant T-shirt for the newborn that reads, 'RIGHT,' or after nine months you can buy a new arrow that points to your head."

"I don't believe this," I said. Later, as mother and I headed for the car, we saw a large blonde with jeans so tight her hipbones looked like towel hooks. Tucked inside was a T-shirt that read in big, black letters, "SPACE FOR RENT." "You can say what you want," said mother, "but she's certainly well read."

Wants To Kick Older-Man Habit

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old college girl with a high I.Q., but I have a big problem concerning men. I relate very well to older men, but college men seem so immature that I can't work up any romantic interest in any of them. Believe me, I've tried.

This year I've had two affairs with older men. I never thought I'd be "that kind of girl." It would really hurt my parents if they knew, so I'm very discreet about it.

These men weren't just men I'd picked up somewhere, but people I'd known a long time.

Abby, I want so much to be held and loved, but I don't want to be on the receiving end only. When a man gives me his love I do everything possible to give as much as I get.

Right now I'm flirting with a married man who is 47. I'm sure nothing lasting can ever come of it, but I can't seem to help myself.

Lately I've been having recurring suicidal thoughts and that scares the daylight out of me. Please help me.

WANTS TO BE LOVED

DEAR WANTS: You're normal. EVERYBODY wants to be loved, but you may have some deep-seated emotional problems that need to be resolved.

If there's a Suicide Prevention Clinic in your town, call them. They offer excellent counseling. Or call your mental health clinic for an appointment. If your college has a counseling service, take advantage of it.

Please write again and tell me which of these recommendations you've pursued, and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Over drinks, my friend of 25 years informed me that the cocktail I was drinking contained more alcohol than the bottle of beer he was drinking.

I told him I thought there was as much alcohol in his bottle of beer as there was in my cocktail. An argument followed, and now we have a bet on. I'm sure I'm right, but I can't prove it. Can you help me?

A BET AT REILLY'S

DEAR BET: One shot of whiskey (one and one-half ounces), a glass of table wine (five ounces) and a pint of beer (16 ounces) all contain approximately the same amount of ethyl alcohol.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the same age, but he prefers older women. I don't know why he married me. He didn't have to. Soon after we were married, I found out he had been living with a woman in her forties since he was 18. (He was then 23). He wanted to keep on seeing her, but I put a stop to it. Then he started seeing a neighbor's wife. She was in her early fifties. We had to move away from there before she broke up our marriage.

When our first child was born, I hired an ugly old woman in her sixties to help me. I thought surely my husband could be trusted with her, but I was wrong. He was with her every chance he got.

Everybody tells me I am nice looking. Is there something wrong with me? Or is it him?

VEGAS

DEAR VEGAS: It's him.

A House In Needlepoint Makes A Nice Decoration

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

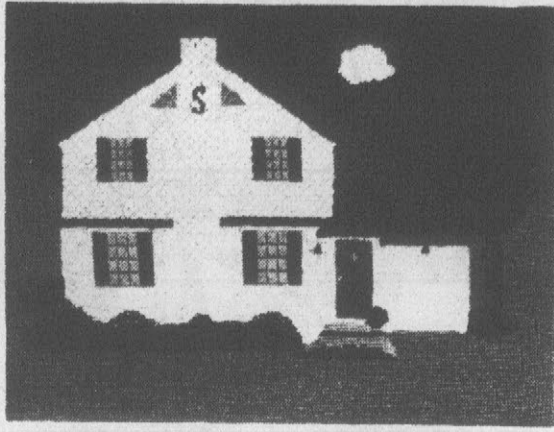

Your house in needlepoint can be a fashionable wall decoration, a modern way of saying "Home, Sweet Home." It can also make a great family heirloom. Or it may be used as a pillow or put under glass on a table top.

Handsomely illustrated, step by step, "Your Home in Needlepoint" by Barbara L. Farlie and Constance C. Sloan proves that you don't need special artistic talents to needlepoint a picture of your house and landscape. But you need planning and patience.

To chart a house, a photocopy of the canvas mesh will be more accurate than putting the design on graph paper, the authors say. Photocopy machines may be found in some banks, post offices and libraries. Because the canvas will probably be larger than the photocopy area, a number of copies should be made and pasted together to the size of the canvas. A photograph of the house is used in charting the canvas.

In addition to the needlepoint, some details are worked in overlay embroidery — for example, French knots for flowers.

Charting the house helps unfold possibilities in scale. Ten different houses in the book illustrate design and stitching problems that might be faced with particular styles of houses. Original black and white snapshots, chart stitch codes and finished needlepoint houses in color emphasize the different kinds of stitches used (for landscape, house, embroidery and background) and how they achieve texture and definition. A slanted Gobelin stitch might be used for clapboard, but a Parisian stitch is better suited to wood shingles. A Checker stitch can emphasize stone work.

COLONIAL HOUSE in needlepoint has a wide variety of stitches, including French knot embroidery for flowers and bargello for shrubbery. The background is tan, house white.

The authors have done a lot of meticulous work in suggesting variations and alternatives to the basic idea. A bonus is provided — instructions on blocking and finishing the canvas.

The authors suggest using Persian yarn by strands. One yard (90 cm) consists of three 2-ply threads which are separated for use. Two of the three threads in a strand would be used on a size 13 or 14 Interlock mono canvas, they say.

Many needle workers like to do their own patterns and designs without consulting books or experts. Before undertaking any big needlework project, it is a good idea to acquaint yourself with the various yarns that are used on needlepoint canvases. It is the key to good needlework, advises Nancy Edwards, art director of Trio 3, makers of art needlework. Three-ply, Persian-type yarn can be used for 18, 14 and 10 hole canvases, although only one strand of the three-ply yarn should be used on the 18-hole canvas. Two strands are used on a 14 hole and three on a 10 hole canvas. Four-ply yarn can be used only on a 10 hole canvas.

Yarn is now widely available in open stock, Miss Edwards says, so colors in a home decorating scheme can be coordinated and matched. Just be sure to keep color substitutes consistent so that the design is not altered.

Unless instructions say otherwise, always do the design first, needlepoint row upon row from right to left, if you are right handed. Do dark colors first, then light (especially white) to avoid getting dark fuzz worked in. Hold your work straight and never turn it, she advises.

Find the needlework alphabet in a book or lay your initials out on graph paper and count stitches for monogramming or for signing your work, says Miss Edwards. A good book, "Needlepoint Letters and Numbers" by Carol Cheney Rome

District Governor Installs Officers

The May meeting of the Pilot Club of Greenville was held Monday night. Mrs. Ozell Howard, newly elected governor of District VI, installed the new officers in a candlelighting ceremony.

Paper chains containing words of cooperation, leadership and responsibility were presented to each of the following officers for 1977-78: Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, president; Mrs. Irene Pruitt, first vice president; Miss Mavis Brown, second vice president; Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, corresponding secretary; Miss Ouida Deber, recording secretary; and Mrs. Nancy Warren, treasurer.

The Board of Directors includes Mrs. Addie Jenkins, Mrs.

Margaret Nelson and Mrs. Louise Downing. The coordinators for the new year are Mrs. Louise Downing, Outreach Division; Mrs. Barbara Clark, Project Division; and Mrs. Frances Johnson, Internal Affairs. Mrs. Winona Daniel recited the Code of Ethics as the conclusion of the installation.

The slides from the slide library, started in 1972, presented by Miss Ruth White. The slides show various activities of the club.

The Greenville Club recently won the "Pilot Information Award" at District VI meeting in Charlotte April 29-May 1.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Howard, Miss Margie Snell, past president of the Anchor Club, and Miss Carol Levy, vice president of the Anchor Club for 1977-78, Mrs. Margaret Parker, Pilot Club of Kinston, and Ms. Jeanne Krumm, Pilot Club of Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, Fla.

The next meeting will be a covered-dish supper June 27 at the home of Mrs. Whitehurst.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson, of Rt. 5, Greenville, were entertained at a silver anniversary party at their home Sunday, May 15.

Host and hostesses were their daughter, sisters and sisters-in-law, Jacqueline Robinson, Marye Robinson, Nina Helms, Melba Robinson, Frances Briley, Pauline Tetterton, Lillian Gurganus, Janice Robinson and Shirley Land.

The house was decorated throughout with spring flowers interspersed with baby's breath. The refreshment table, covered with a lace cloth over green, was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers flanked by a silver candelabrum with white candles.

Ms. Jacqueline Robinson, daughter of the honored couple, presided at the guest register and hostesses assisted in serving during the afternoon.

The couple has two children, Jacqueline and Leslie. Approximately 75 guests attended the reception.

and Donna Reidy Orr, has diagrams and instructions for 28 decorative letters and styles of numbers.

Needlework novices should really begin with a small 10 hole canvas with just a few colors, a limited amount of outlining, big blocks of color and large areas of background, Miss Edwards points out. She likes the beginner crewel kits because of the simplicity of the stitches. Crewel is best worked on a frame or hoop.

Family Reunion Set For Sunday

The Joe Smith family and descendants of Zeb, Jim, Gus, Maggie, Cora, Clarence, Ernest and Addie Smith are invited to attend the Smith family union Sunday beginning at 10 a.m.

The reunion will take place at the home of Bernie Smith, son of Zeb Smith, in the Clay Root community near Gardnersville.

A spokesman for the reunion announced that barbecue will be provided. Persons attending are asked to bring a picnic lunch.

The reunion was organized by Mrs. Lela Belle Smith Stallings of Raleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Smith of Clay Root, and Mr. and Mrs. Major Smith of New Bern.

When you are broiling lamb or pork chops, cut away the excess fat from around the edges. And snip the remaining fat at intervals so the chops won't "curl." One caution: when broiling pork chops, make sure they are thoroughly cooked.

Honors Retiring Member

ECU News Bureau
A dinner in honor of Ruth Lambie, retiring associate professor in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics, was held Sunday at the Colonial House Restaurant, Farmville.

Guests included members of Miss Lambie's family and her colleagues in the School of Home Economics.

A member of the ECU faculty since 1947, Miss Lambie holds degrees from Carnegie Mellon University and the University of Chicago. She also studied at the University of Tennessee, Tufts University, and Vassar College.

She is the author of articles in "Parents Magazine" and the "Journal of Home Economics" on early childhood education. During the summer of 1973 she toured Sweden, Denmark and Finland as part of ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins' "Pockets of Excellence" project, which was funded by a grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

Miss Lambie's Scandinavian tour involved study and a visiting lecturership at the University of Gotenberg and visits to educational and social service programs for pre-school children.

As a result of her study and tour, she organized several workshops on the Swedish Lekotek concept: physical and mental stimulation through planned play activities for nursery-aged children.

In addition, she established a toy loan library through the ECU School of Home Economics, which lends challenging educational toys for infants and toddlers in homes and child care centers. The toy library program was based on her observations of similar programs in the Scandinavian nations.

Ruth Lambie helped charter ECU's Beta Eta chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron honor society in home economics and has been the chapter's faculty advisor for the past nine years.

Beta Eta chapter recently established a new scholarship award program, the "Ruth Lambie Phi U Scholarship," to be given annually to an outstanding member of the society.

Annual May Luncheon Held

FARMVILLE — The Major Benjamin May DAR Chapter held its luncheon meeting Saturday at the Colonial House here. The Col. Alexander McAllister Chapter of Greene County was in attendance.

Hostesses were Mrs. Charles H. Carr, Mrs. Allen C. Darden and Mrs. C. Reynolds Kernan.

A meeting followed the luncheon at the DAR Chapter House. Mrs. Carr, regent, conducted the meeting and welcomed the visiting chapter members.

Miss Elizabeth Lang introduced Robert Martin, director of Crossnore School, Inc., as speaker. He spoke of Dr. Mary Martin Sloop, who founded Crossnore School, Inc., in 1913 for mountain children unable to attend school due to poor roads, rugged weather and conditions. The purpose of the school is a child care agency licensed by the state providing year round home and educational facilities for children, primarily in grades one through 12, ages six through 18.

Mrs. and Mr. Martin displayed handwoven articles. DAR members gave clothing to be sold at the Crossnore School Sales Store.

Mrs. Randolph Eagles, regent of the Col. McAllister Chapter, gave a report on the 1977 Continental Congress held in Washington, D. C. Mrs. F. McCoy Tripp gave a national defense report.

Mrs. Carr reported that she had attended the ROTC award day at ECU, where she gave an award to an outstanding student. She announced that the flag had been presented to the Farmville Middle School.

Mrs. F. F. Hendrick was named a new member.

Fairness Even If Facts Aired

Convictions of former Attny. Gen. John Mitchell and ex-presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman in the Watergate coverup have been upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court. A basis for the appeals was that the trial should have been postponed until "massive and extraordinarily extensive" publicity could subside.

There is no doubt that that the Watergate publicity was overpowering, but the disposition of this case by the Supreme Court should reinforce the contention that society can be given the facts in a case and still provide a fair trial for defendants.

The pre-trial publicity argument has been over done to the point of becoming a legal dodge. The courts should consider carefully this latest Supreme Court ruling before bending to any prejudicial publicity argument.

Over-Reacted To General's Comments

President Carter recalled Maj. Gen. John Singlaub from South Korea for publicly suggesting that withdrawal of U. S. ground troops from Korea would lead to war.

The president's hasty action put all concerned in a position where Maj. Gen. Singlaub could not be returned to Korea and consequently will be reassigned.

In no way does this incident compare with the McArthur-Truman differences, where the question was how to conduct the war.

President Carter simply overreacted to the Singlaub comments. It indicates to us that, as president, he has a lot to learn.

Little Savings Do Add Up

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — State agency people typically "pad" their budget requests on the premise that legislators will trim them.

Assemblymen do—but obviously not enough.

A special study group called the Joint Base Budget Subcommittee has completed several months of detailed digging into those budget requests. One technique used was to get computer printouts of the actual "spending line" currently being followed in a given operation; and comparison of that pattern to the amount of money authorized.

The conclusion is simple: if an agency is spending consistently less than the amount authorized, then they either didn't need that much money to start with; or they are squirreling some away for an unauthorized spending program to come later on a crash basis to "use up the budget."

present spending levels simply carried over another year. The "expansion budget" contains all the new, expanded programs proposed.

"Most of the cutting we have done is on little things—items tucked away in the small, line items of agency budgets. Our goal is to try to stop this padding of little items: things like other services, an extra desk, an understatement of receipts, a job set up with no intention of filling it," explains State Senator Donald R. Kincaid, R-Caldwell County, co-chairman of the subcommittee.

"I am convinced after this experience that we (the legislators) could cut anywhere from five to 10 per cent from the state agency budget requests without harming services at all.

"If we had the time to go in and do this on a regular basis, the benefits would be tremendous. Yes, some would say this is nibbling at little dollars... but that is what it takes to get at big total dollars," Kincaid believes.

While it is popular at home for political leaders to talk about bringing the bureaucracy under control and state officials from the governor on down frequently mention the subject, little is actually done. Where does the blame rest?

"We are to blame... we members of the General Assembly. It is our duty and responsibility, but we either don't have the time to do it properly, or we allow political considerations to get in the way, Kincaid said.

Political

The base budget review process was set up two years ago by the Democratic-controlled assembly to monitor then-Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., a Republican. How did Kin-easier to withstand political pressures from Democrats who run the agencies.

While he thinks the process was perhaps politically motivated to start with, he now thinks it is terribly important to continue: "It is good that we started it... every administration needs strong legislative oversight, and I hope we continue."

But the process is a frustrating one. While working long hours to find and suggest saving $25 million, the subcommittee members one morning looked over their shoulders at another study group which was authorizing the spending of $28 million from the general fund to operate the State Highway Patrol in its new departmental location.

The Patrol had been in the Department of Transportation where funds came from gasoline and other Highway Fund sources. That other committee recommended leaving the money in Transportation; and pulling new dollars together to continue the Patrol funding.

"We cut it with one hand... they spend it with the other" complained members of the cutting crew.

BILL NOBLITT

caid, a Republican (one of nine in the Legislature) land the job of guiding the cutting? He was named by Lt. Gov. James C. Green, and the selection was obviously designed to provide impartial leadership.

"We had to stand tremendous pressure not to cut certain items," says Kincaid, who agrees that his being a Republican made it

JUST LIKE SACCHARIN

Cigarette Sales Curbs?

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of organizations opposed to cigarette smoking are trying to force the Food and Drug Administration to regulate the sale of cigarettes as strictly as the agency plans to regulate saccharin.

The anti-cigarette Action on Smoking and Health, along with other groups and individuals, prepared today to file with an FDA hearing officer a petition that asks the agency to prohibit the sale of cigarettes containing nicotine, except by pharmacies.

The FDA has maintained that it does not have jurisdiction over the sale and use of cigarettes, but the petition by the anti-smoking groups challenges this on legal grounds.

"This is one of those funny petitions that nobody says will work," said John F. Banzhaf-III, a law professor at George Washington University and the executive director and general counsel of ASH, the smoking and health group. "I think it will work. Nobody has proved to me that it won't."

He recalled in an interview that in past campaigns his organization won the right to free air time to reply to cigarette commercials, won an eventual ban on cigarette advertising on the air and got separate sections for smokers on airplanes, trains and buses.

But a spokesman for the FDA said "it is our clear understanding that Congress never intended for us or any other federal agency to regulate the use of cigarettes."

Banzhaf's group was joined by 10 other organizations and by two former U.S. surgeons general: Dr. Jesse Steinfeld and Dr. Luther Terry.

The FDA plans to ban the use of the artificial sweetener saccharin as a food additive, but permit its sale over the counter. It recently held public hearings on the ban, now scheduled to begin in July.

The saccharin ban is based on tests in which rats were subjected to massive doses of the artificial sweetener.

The anti-cigarette groups' petition said the FDA had based its saccharin ban on "unproven assumptions." The petition noted the FDA "has suggested that the exposure of 200 million Americans to a reasonable amount of saccharin could

Special Office Closing

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Special Watergate Prosecutor will soon close up shop, but chances are good that Congress will create a standby successor to investigate future crimes by a president or members of his administration.

After four years of trying, supporters of a special prosecutor's bill believe they will win the approval of both Houses before summer's end.

The Senate Government Affairs Committee voted May 12 to give the attorney general the power to ask a federal court to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate specific allegations against top federal officials.

A similar bill will be voted on in a House Judiciary subcommittee within two weeks.

The special prosecutor, once appointed by a three-member federal court, would be empowered to investigate the president, vice president, Cabinet members, the FBI and CIA directors, the director of the Office of Management and Budget and other senior officials.

The proposal has been given added momentum by President Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell, who have endorsed creating a mechanism outside the Justice Department for investigations of official wrongdoing.

On Wednesday, Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff announced he will finish his work by mid-June.

Previous special prosecutors were responsible for investigations that ended in convictions against several White House and governmental officials and the resignation of former president Richard M. Nixon in August 1974.

Ruff said that with the Supreme Court decision not to hear the cases of Nixon aides John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, and John D. Ehrlichman, all convicted in the Watergate cover-up trial, little work remains for his office.

Machine gun bullets from an insurgent fleet of war planes downed a French "Air Pyrenees" transport plane near Bilbao today and wounded the French pilot and a Spanish passenger.

The plane was damaged badly both by the bullets and the force of a "pancake" landing on sandy soil 13 miles north of Bilbao behind Basque government war lines.

The wounded pilot and the Spanish passenger, one of four, were brought by car to Bilbao and placed in a hospital. Both are expected to recover. All the passengers were Spaniards.

The American farm crop picture, tragically darkened in 1936 by the great drought, carried brighter and more optimistic tints today.

Although farm experts said the long summer ahead may alter the current outlook, a survey of the broad mid-continental agriculture belt showed most regions this year had experienced weather conditions warranting an expectation of a good harvest.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Staying At Arm's Length

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In the equivocal, even cryptic, remarks he made to Sen. George S. McGovern in a telephone chat May 10, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill proved beyond doubt that he does not play the role of Jimmy Carter's lieutenant in the House.

In that conversation, O'Neill did not repeat his previous day's public chiding of McGovern for criticizing President Carter's right deviationism. He did use the word "great" in describing McGovern. Although O'Neill says he did not mean to endorse McGovern's speech, his "great" could be — and indeed was — interpreted precisely that way by the Senator.

Apart from displaying his Boston pol's skill at imprecise prose, the speaker was signalling the fact that Mr. Carter cannot count on automatic support from congressional Democratic leaders as did John P. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. The new arm's-length relationship between Capitol Hill and White House is taking shape not as an alliance and not as sustained hostility; rather, it is best described as separate and equal.

Accordingly, O'Neill has not played the role of this century's previous Democratic speakers — particularly John McCormack — in carrying the President's banner. While often praising Mr. Carter, the speaker has not hesitated to criticize him, occasionally in public but more often in private conversation with individual Congressmen and other Democratic politicians.

When McGovern on May 8 in his keynote address to the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) attacked the Carter administration for creeping conservatism, he was only voicing O'Neill's own criticisms in strident McGovernite style. The substance was close to what the speaker had told the President over breakfast at the White House two weeks earlier.

In a private meeting that same evening with prominent Democratic politicians,

Public Forum

To the editor:

A few weeks ago, Robert J. Alligood, principal of J. H. Rose High School, announced his resignation effective July 1, 1977, in order to assume the duties as Superintendent of the Washington County Schools. Many teachers, parents and students associated with Rose High share my gratitude to Mr. Alligood and my concern regarding the imminent selection of his successor.

Throughout my years at Rose High School, I have been impressed with the calm leadership and dedication which Mr. Alligood possesses. Under his administration, Rose High has progressed and matured academically, athletically, and socially. Mr. Alligood led Rose High through a tumultuous period of strife and turmoil during the integration process. He has been an inspiration to students, faculty members and administrators throughout the Greenville School System. This progressive kind of leadership has given the school an educational atmosphere that is both friendly and enjoyable.

Soon the Greenville Board of Education will be faced with the task of selecting Mr. Alligood's successor. The Board's decision will ultimately affect the lives of many young people in the Greenville area. It is my hope that the Board will select someone with personal attributes similar to those of Mr. Alligood. I am concerned about the selection, not only as a graduating senior at Rose High, but also as a citizen of Greenville.

Strength For Today

THE SOUL FINDS REST

When Jesus asked his disciples whether they would remain loyal to him or desert him, Peter replied, "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life."

The basic teaching of revealed religion is that the human soul has nowhere to go unless it goes to God Himself. If we think for a moment that anything will suffice to satisfy our souls save the generous and loving providence of God, we are mistaken.

The poet John Milton lived in times of great social discord. But his faith in God never wavered. In Paradise Lost he wrote:

"Instruct me, for Thou know'st
What in me is dark
Illumine what is low, raise and support,
That, to the height of this great argument,
I may assert Eternal Providence,
And justify the ways of God to men."

'Think Tank' Has Unique Role

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The offices of The Distinguished Fellow do not have that lived-in look, but the rest of the place is thriving. The fellow is Gerald R. Ford, and his loss was scholarship's gain.

Since Ford's defeat and the dismantling of the Republican administration, the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research has become something of a government in exile.

It is Washington headquarters for the former president, although he hasn't spent much time here since leaving the White House.

A half-dozen people who served in his administration have joined the institute, too, full or part time, some to pursue research in the areas that were their specialties in the government.

"We give them an opportunity to stay plugged into a public policy switchboard," said William J. Baroody, president of the institute. That way, he said, their experience in government can be tapped, to become part of the debate on future government policies.

So, for example, former solicitor general Robert Bork is there, working on studies of the Supreme Court and antitrust policy. John W. Barnum, a former deputy secretary of transportation, is examining international transportation policies.

The list goes on. There are about 100 people on the staff, about half of them directly engaged in the research, writing and forums that are the basic work of the organization.

For some, the place is a way station between the government and the jobs they want in private life. That isn't one of the advertised functions, but it can be handy.

The organization has assorted titles, among them resident fellows, visiting fellows, and the former president is the only "distinguished fellow."

So far, most of Ford's work for the American Enterprise Institute has been afield, on college campuses. The organization set up his three-day appearances at the University of Michigan and the University of Southern California. There are to be more campus visits next fall and winter.

William J. Baroody Jr., executive vice president of the institute, son of its president, and a White House aide to Ford, handles the arrangements. He's used to it. On the Ford staff, his job was to set up the White House conferences that were held periodically around the country.

In the Washington think tank business, AEI has always been the other one, a junior rival to the larger, wealthier Brookings Institution. That is the research outfit Richard M. Nixon's people once talked of firebombing.

During the Republican years, the Brookings image was that of a shadow Democratic government — a description its leaders rejected as vigorously as the American Enterprise Institute rejects identification with Republicans.

"I couldn't identify our professional staff on the basis of political affiliation," says Baroody Sr. "We've been attracting more and more people who consider themselves to be Democrats."

At Brookings, officials boast of their Republican staff members.

Scouts Take Canoe Trip

Troop No. 30 of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church including 16 Boy Scouts and five adults completed a 35 mile canoe trip on the Tar River from Old Sparter to Port Terminal last weekend.

The group began the trip at 8:30 a.m. Saturday after spending the night at the N.C. Wildlife Commission Boat Ramp at Old Sparter. The group traveled 15 miles in three and a half hours and stopped at the N.C. Wildlife Commission Ramp at Falkland.

The canoes were portaged to the Pitt County Wildlife Club where the troop had lunch and spent the second night.

Sunday morning the group started the second leg of the trip which was 20 miles to Port Terminal. Two breaks were required for this part of the trip which took five and a half hours to travel.

Parents met the group at Port Terminal. The scout group is encouraging families and other groups to make the canoe trip.

Scouts participating in the trip were as follows: Tom Proctor, Dennis Simko, Larry Bordeaux, Henry Wooten, Joe Goodson, Jr., Robert Welch, Brad Griffin, Sean Collins, Jeff Lanco, Jimmy Hodge, Curtiss Ebbs, Eric Bowman, James Caldwell, Duncan Whitehead, Mike Crane, Jeff Whittington. Adult leaders were Joe Goodson, George Williams, Dr. Jack Welch, Robert Griffin and Knott Proctor.

reports out of McGovern's office have O'Neill applying the adjective "great" to McGovern's ADA speech. Everybody agrees that O'Neill neither criticized the Senator nor defended the President (as Speaker McCormack would have quickly done for President Johnson).

O'Neill's posture marks a substantial shift away from the close partnership between Democratic congressional leaders and Democratic Presidents which had evolved during this century. That trend reached its zenith when Speaker McCormack became a virtual agent of the White House in 1962-1968. Vietnam, Watergate and Richard Nixon generated a demand for congressional autonomy that makes life on Capitol Hill much more difficult for Jimmy Carter. Even more important than the new authority (Budget Act, War Powers Act and others) which Congress voted itself during the Nixon years is the residual anti-White House attitude in Congress that has continued after Nixon's departure.

Moreover, O'Neill frequently talks about the new independent breed of Democratic Congressman, who serves his constituency so faithfully that he is politically invulnerable and has his own ideas about everything. There is no chance whatever that O'Neill would stand up for the President against these young Congressmen.

Accordingly, President Carter's problems with Democratic congressional leaders have been both magnified and understated. There is no open warfare, but neither is there real prospect for a warm, intimate partnership.

Tip O'Neill, who has surprisingly shown in four months the potential to be a great speaker of the House, is fine-tuned to the mood on the Hill. That mood will keep him at arm's length from the President, not as his intrepid defender from George McGovern and other Democratic critics.

But, the petition says, cigarettes "needlessly kill over 300,000 Americans each year and cause more cancers each year than saccharin has been suggested to kill over a lifetime."

The petition also said the evidence of cigarettes as a cancer-causing agent is "overwhelming," adding that the cigarette evidence "consists of hundreds of studies on human beings (not just rats) at conventional (rather than massive) dose rates."

Evans-Novak...

O'Neill declined to defend the President from McGovern's onslaught. Instead, he described Mr. Carter as badly confused about congressional prerogatives and ill-served by his White House staff.

But over national television the next day on ABC's "Issues and Answers," O'Neill felt constrained to call McGovern's attack "very unfair." McGovern, who says he had been advised for weeks by newsmen of similar Carter criticism from O'Neill, was upset.

So, McGovern telephoned O'Neill the next day to tell him: "Tip, I can take on the President all right, but I don't want any trouble with you.

According to O'Neill, he replied: "You're a great guy, George, and you'll have no

Model T Remains Most Revolutionary Of Autos

DETROIT (AP) — The last of the Model T Fords are 50 years old today, but the simple black "Tin Lizzie" still stands out as the most revolutionary of automobiles.

It capped the industrial revolution, introduced the world to mass production, made $5 a day the standard wage and drove the United States toward a lifestyle based on auto ownership.

Beginning in 1908, Ford turned out more than 15 million Model T's, and the car's popularity was unchallenged until 1927, when General Motors' Chevrolet took over first place. Affluence was spreading and Americans wanted a choice. Model T production was halted by Henry Ford's order on May 26, 1927, at the principal plant in Highland Park, Mich., and a few months later at two other plants.

The 19-year total was 15,456,868 Model T's, a record that stood for 44 years. In 1971, the Volkswagen Beetle became the new champion, but only after 26 years of production. Beetle output now stands at about 18.7 million.

Model T popularity had peaked in 1925, when Henry Ford's assembly-line production facilities were turning out 2,000 cars a day, permitting the base price to drop to $290 and daily wages to rise to $5. His manufacturing innovations put a car within the means of millions of Americans. It was cheap, reliable transportation.

In its first 10 years, the Model T had to be started with an often-difficult crank. Uncounted broken fingers, hands, arms and noses were dispensed when the crank snapped back.

There was no door on the driver's side of those earliest Model T's. The accelerator was on the steering column. The brake pedal was on the right, a reverse pedal was in the center and a pedal for shifting gears — from low to high and back — was on the left.

On His Way To Miami To Campaign For Law

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer
Peter Maroon is on his way to Miami, Fla. to join in the campaign to keep a law protecting the rights of homosexuals and other minorities on the Dade County books. The referendum on whether this measure will remain law is set for June 7.

Maroon is a representative of the Boston Advocates for Human Rights. He spoke here Tuesday night, sponsored by the Eastern Gay Alliance.

Asked if his fight is for gay rights or human rights in general, he said, "I am a gay person, but I have always spoken out for the rights of every person to be what he or she is, without harassment or intimidation from anyone else. I was active in the fight for the civil rights of Blacks during the 1960's when I was in school."

He said he has closed down his painting and wallpapering business in Boston to make the trip to Miami. He expects to be there May 30. On the way he has spoken or will speak in Hartford, Conn.; York City; Baltimore; Md., Greenville, Atlanta, and Jacksonville, Fla., and Gainesville and Orlando, Fla.

The Dade County controversy (Miami is in Dade) came about when the County Commissioners voted to add "or sexual preference" to the County's law against discriminating against anyone because of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, age, etc. An organization called "Save Our Children" was formed with singer, Anita Bryant, its president. Some 60,000 signatures were gathered against a referendum to take the law off the books. This, according to Florida law, can be done if 10,000 names are secured on a petition.

The matter was taken to court and Judge Sam Silver ruled in favor of the County Commissioners.

The Save Our Children members then decided they did not want the referendum in a special election, but wanted it to be a part of the regular election next November, to save the county $400,000. The Commissioners voted, however, five to four, to go ahead with the June 7 date. According to a copy of an advertisement placed by Save Our Children in the Miami Herald Mar. 20, the Save Our Children members call the ordinance "a homosexual recruitment ordinance." They say that "unless repealed, the ordinance will allow homosexuals to provide role models for the impressionable—that is, the right to tell all society, especially our youth, that homosexuality isn't wrong, just 'different'. They say it will "force our private and religious schools to accept them as teachers and to force property owners and employers to open their doors to homosexual no matter how blatant their perverted lives may be."

Maroon said he believes there is no such thing as homosexual recruitment, that sexual orientation is determined in the preschool years of each person's life. He agrees with Miss Bryant that gay people should not be allowed to introduce their sexual orientation into the classroom, but neither should heterosexual people, he said.

He said he believes Miss Bryant and anyone has a right to express his or her opinions, but he questions how responsible her actions have been in that "they have dredged up so much hatred in Dade County and the whole nation."

Charleston Basks In Festival

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Charleston, a city rich in culture before the Civil War, has turned its eyes and ears to the arts once again with the opening of Spoleto U.S.A., an arts festival imported from Italy. The festival opened Wednesday with the inaugural playing of "Fanfare for Charleston" at the 125-year-old cistern of the College of Charleston. The fanfare was written for the American debut of Spoleto by its Italian founder, composer Gian-Carlo Menotti.

An opera by Menotti, "The Consul," is an almost nightly feature of the festival beginning tonight. The schedule of more than 150 events also includes Tchaikovsky's "Queen of Spades" and other major works.

Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr. compared the festival's opening to the city's antebellum heyday at the beginning of the 19th century. "Once again our city is the site of the best the cultural world has to offer," he said.

About 3,000 persons turned out for the opening fanfare and were treated afterward to e.e. cummings' poems put to music, magic performances and acts by some of the 15-foot puppets built as caricatures of festival performers.

The mayor of Spoleto, Italy, Mario Lauretti, and South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards attended the opening of the festival, founded 20 years ago in Italy by Menotti. The Italian festival will be staged in Spoleto for the 20th consecutive year this July.

The Charleston festival features ballet, chamber music, jazz concerts, lectures, and daily "minifestivals" featuring instant dramas, mime and craft displays.

Charleston once thrived on culture. Merchants who made their wealth shipping cotton and indigo to Europe in the colonial era provided the wherewithal to build America's first playhouse, the old Dock Street Theater, 250 years ago. Some of Spoleto's chamber music concerts and other events will be held there.

The merchant families also contributed to Charleston's current ambience through the construction of numerous homes and other buildings of Georgian and Federal design. Virtually untouched by the Civil War, most of the structures are still in use.

Menotti said in an interview that he had toured the United States in search of a place to locate his festival.

"I had almost reached the conclusion that there was no city which had just the precise atmosphere and flavor until I was told to visit Charleston," he said. "The moment I saw it, it was love."

Dutch Premier Won Election

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (AP) — Prime Minister Joop den Uyl and his Labor party were the big winners in Wednesday's elections but the task of forming a new government was delayed by the crisis in northern Holland where Asian extremists hold more than 160 hostages.

Den Uyl met with key cabinet ministers to discuss the hostages being held in a school house and on a hijacked train near Assen.

There was no indication the electorate was influenced by the hostage-takings. Observers had said a last-minute swing to the right was possible as a backlash against the terrorism, but the voting went much as opinion polls indicated it would.

Den Uyl's Labor party reinforced its position in the 150-member parliament by winning 53 seats, 10 more than in 1972. The Laborites seemed likely to continue as the basis for a left-center coalition.

Labor has governed in coalition with the Christian Democratic bloc since the last election.

Christian Democrats — consisting of one Roman Catholic and two Protestant parties — took 49 seats, one more than last time. The right-wing People's Party for Freedom won 28 seats for a gain of six. Small parties, who generally lost representation, garnered the remaining seats.

Most of the attention during the campaign focused on economic issues, including widespread unemployment and an 8.2 per cent annual inflation rate. An estimated 200,000 persons — 5.1 per cent of the Dutch work force — are unemployed.

Found $142,000 In Mobile Home

ATLANTA (AP) — More than $142,000 in $20, $50 and $100 bills has been found in the mobile home of a Georgia woman held for questioning in the May 7 robbery-slaying of a wealthy Indianapolis recluse, the FBI says.

The money was found Wednesday in the mobile home of Robertina Harroll, who was arrested Tuesday night at an Acworth, Ga., trailer park, a spokesman said.

Mrs. Harroll, 53, of Ringgold, Ga., was arraigned Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Atlanta on charges of receiving proceeds of the robbery-murder of Marjorie Jackson and was ordered held on $100,000 bail for a preliminary hearing Friday, FBI spokesman Tom Mitchell said.

Mitchell said the FBI determined that at least "a substantial amount of the money seized was traceable" to the Jackson robbery. He said agents had not completed tracing the serial numbers of the money.

When Mrs. Harroll was arrested, $4,604 was found in her purse, $3,950 of which was traced to the Jackson home in Indianapolis, the FBI said.

Authorities said Mrs. Harroll's mobile home was purchased at Tempe, Ariz., for $21,115 by a woman who identified herself as Robertina Anderson.

Mrs. Harroll is the sixth person arrested in the robbery-slaying of Mrs. Jackson, a 67-year-old grocery chain heiress whose body was found in her burning home May 7.

Howard R. Willard, 38, and his ex-wife, Marjorie Pollitt, 49, both of Mooresville, Ind., who were arrested last week in Phoenix, Ariz., were ordered Wednesday to be returned to Indianapolis to face a federal charge of interstate transportation of stolen property.

They also face state charges of first degree murder in Mrs. Jackson's slaying.

Mrs. Harroll is the sister of Miss Pollitt.

Police say they have recovered $1.6 million from three persons arrested in Indianapolis in connection with the slaying. Another $171,000 was found in the Willard-Pollitt trailer, police said.

Indianapolis authorities said $5 million was found hidden in Mrs. Jackson's house after her death. Another $3 million was believed stolen, they said.

Senate Committee Approves Primaries-In-May

RALEIGH (AP) — State and local primaries would be held in May under a bill that won approval in a Senate committee Wednesday while a measure to call for a study of lifeline utility rates was approved by the House.

The lifeline proposal would direct the state Utilities commission to investigate the feasibility of providing a minimum of electric and natural gas service to customers at low cost. Lifeline rates are promoted as ways to help the poor with rising utility bills.

Spokesmen for utilities have told the legislature that lifeline concepts have not worked in other states. The lifeline issue has been pushed by Carolina Action, a consumer group, which had tried to get the legislature to require lifeline rates be adopted.

The primary election date would be in May after having it in August for the first time last year. The bill approved by the Senate Election Laws Committee would have the vote on the Tuesday after the first Monday in May.

May was the traditional primary date until last year. The panel voted against having the primary on a Saturday after state Elections Director Alex Brock said the turnout would be heavier on a Tuesday.

Also in the legislature:

KIDDIE PORN
Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, filed a bill to make it a felony for someone to procure a child under the age of 16 for an obscene stage performance or film or otherwise participate in using a child in obscene performances or films. His bill would also make it a felony for a parent or guardian to allow a child to be used in such a way.

Other bills in the legislature are aimed at punishing those who use children in making pornographic materials and are not aimed at parents or agents.

PEEP SHOW TAX
A loophole in state law allows peep shows in adult book stores to avoid a privilege tax, Sen.

McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said. He filed a bill to tax each machine $100 a year. Cities and counties would be allowed to impose up to $100 tax as well. Movie theaters are already taxed, he said.

EDUCATION CHAIRMAN
The House Education Committee is scheduled to take up a bill next Tuesday that would make the lieutenant governor permanent chairman of the state Board of Education. The Senate has approved a similar measure.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is interim chairman and wants to keep the job. But, House Speaker Carl Stewart and Gov. Jim Hunt want the board to name its own chairman. Hunt as called on the panel to elect one of his appointees, Dr. David Bruton of Southern Pines.

MIXED DRINKS

The Senate and House Alcoholic Beverage Control Committees have scheduled public hearings on a local option liquor-by-the-drink bill for next Wednesday and Thursday. Opponents will be heard Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. and proponents will be heard Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

REWARDS
A program of offering incentives for state employees to save money has been proposed by Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston. Rauch, who says private industry has been using incentives for years, filed a bill to set up a board to oversee an incentive program.

The committee would select government units to participate. If the unit operated a fiscal year at a cost below the two previous years, the committee could award up to 25 percent of the savings to be distributed to the workers.

DOCTORS
The Senate killed a bill that would allow a doctor to sign a statement rather than appear in person in court cases outside his home county. Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, sponsor of the measure, said it would cut the time a physician must be away from his practice to participate in court cases.

Opponents argued that the bill would give doctors preferential treatment. The bill was tabled on a 25-15 vote after Sen. Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, in an attempt to gut the measure, introduced an amendment that would have included optometrists, insurance agents, oil jobbers and others in the bill.

UTILITIES
The House Utilities Committee approved a bill that would put part of the state Utilities Commission's staff under a director and require it to represent the public in cases before the commission. The bill was proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt.

The measure had been amended in the committee so that it will expire in four years unless extended by the legislature and it would forbid extra expenditures unless approved in separate legislation.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten appeared before the panel and complained that the bill would take away some power from his office, by allowing the public staff to appeal decisions of the commission.

ENVIRONMENT
The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to continue North Carolina's Environmental Policy Act until 1981. It was scheduled to expire Sept. 1. The act contains a statement of the state's environmental policy and permits counties to adopt local ordinances regulating development.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, steadying after the slide of the past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 38.67 points in the past five sessions, was up 2.46 at 905.70 at 11:30 a.m. today.

Losers held a slight edge on gainers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

First-hour volume on the Big Board was a moderate 4.54 million shares.

This morning's activity suggested that the market had found some support at the psychologically important 900 level in the Dow.

But analysts noted persistent concern over inflation and rising interest rates.

Many analysts were forecasting an imminent rise in the bank prime lending rate from 6 1/2 to 6 3/4 per cent. Two weeks ago most banks raised the basic charge on blue-chip loans a quarter-point to 6 1/2.

Bucyrus-Erie, subject of a negative evaluation by an analyst quoted in the Wall Street Journal, fell 1 1/4 to 22 1/2.

U.S. Trade Deficit Sees New Record

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of oil, coffee and transportation equipment contributed to a record monthly trade deficit of $2.6 billion in April, the Commerce Department reported today.

The nation's trade deficit for the first four months of 1977 totals more than $8.5 billion, eclipsing the previous 12-month record deficit of $6.4 billion in 1972.

Carter administration officials blamed the huge deficit primarily on oil imports, saying U.S. trade in other goods and commodities is healthy.

C. Fred Bergsten, an assistant U.S. Treasury secretary, said in a speech in New York today that the nation could have a deficit of $20 billion this year, which would be more than three times the record 1972 deficit.

The amount of oil imported in April declined from March. But petroleum still was the biggest single expense by far on the U.S. import list.

The Commerce Department said the nation last month imported nearly 288 million barrels of oil at a cost of about $3.9 billion. The nation spent about $4.3 billion for foreign oil in March.

Over-all, the value of imported goods during April totaled $12.6 billion, while exports totaled about $10 billion, leaving a deficit for the month of $2.6 billion. The previous high monthly deficit of $2.4 billion was set last month.

During the first four months of this year, the total value of imports was set at $48 billion, with exports listed at $39.4 billion.

While oil imports declined slightly in April, the Commerce Department said this was more than offset by increases of $54 million in imports of coffee, $128 million in machinery and transportation equipment, and $26 million in imports of sugar, along with increases in other categories as well.

Imports increased about 1 per cent during the month, but exports also declined about 1 per cent, largely because of declining shipments of manufactured goods and other nonagricultural products, the department said.

Administration officials professed not to be concerned about the enormous trade deficits, but large trade deficits have in the past caused a decline in the value of the U.S. dollar. A trade deficit means more dollars are leaving the country to pay for foreign goods than the nation is earning from its exports.

zoning action that could be taken in the study area that would meet future development needs. Residents of Country Club Drive north of the bypass have expressed concern about commercial rezoning in the area and the use of zoning that would be restrictive as a buffer between the residential and commercial property.

Cheatham and others for the annexation of 3.02 acres located adjacent to the Carriage House Apartments and recommendation of approval by the Council; and Recommendation for Council approval of an annexation request by Fred Mattox, trustee for 16 acres on the north side of State Road 1200 and adjacent to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

In business on the agenda of the Greenville board, action on requests by W. S. Moye Jr. for rezoning 20,050 square feet on the east side of St. Andrews Drive from R-15 to Highway Commercial, and by the J. H. Ward trustee for rezoning 31,964 square feet on the east side of St. Andrews from R-15 to Highway Commercial, was postponed pending a workshop meeting.

Mrs. Trevathan said that one of her "greatest concerns" about the area was that there is no buffer zone between highway commercial property and residential. She noted that, "If you are going to put a buffer there, now is the time to do it."

In response to a suggestion that Office and Institutional zoning be utilized as a buffer, Cox contended that R-6 zoning would be better since it is more restrictive.

John Williams, a resident of St. Andrews Drive who served as a spokesman last night for a group of residents, said that the residents of the area liked the idea of a buffer being utilized. In opposing commercial zoning, Williams cited increased traffic, decline of property values, and protection of residential investments as factors that should be considered in the matter. A petition was submitted from the residents of St. Andrews Drive.

Other action included: acceptance of the Erosion and Sedimentation Control Plan for the Lowes Companies on Memorial Drive adjacent to the bowling facility;

Schofield said that the staff and commission are just beginning to get involved in the matter and a lot more work will be needed before a plan is ready for adoption.

He reminded the commissioners that when work was done on the comprehensive Medical District Development Plan involving the new hospital and surrounding area, an initial concept was offered and the maps underwent changes from meeting to meeting as input was gained.

"We are not through with this thing by a long shot," he added.

The dates for the meetings will be set, it was noted, and the public will be encouraged to attend and offer input.

Commissioners approved the final plat of Section III of Westhaven, revised, with the acreage designated for recreational use.

Other action included: approval of the preliminary plat of Westside, located north of State Road 1200 (Stantonsburg Road) approximately one and one-half miles west of Memorial Drive adjacent to State Road 1203;

Approval of the final revised plat of Section II of North River Estates (change involved new drainage easement pattern);

Approval of request of James Cheatham and others for rezoning of 3.02 acres on the east side of NC 43 south (adjacent to the Carriage House Apartments) from RA-20 to R-6 in order to continue with a new section of the apartment development, and recommendation to the City Council;

Two persons were arrested Wednesday by Pitt County deputies and charged on marijuana related counts.

Cooper was charged with possession and manufacturing of marijuana, according to the sheriff, while Yates was charged with manufacturing of marijuana.

Deputies confiscated 11 marijuana plants valued at $500, the sheriff said. Bond for each of the men was set at $500 and hearings have been scheduled for Friday in District Court here.

Deaths Said Accidental
Dr. Jack A. Koonce, Pitt County Medical Examiner, has released reports on the causes of the recent deaths of two Pitt County persons.

The deaths of both James Ashley Ross, five, and Mrs. Faye Braxton Boykins, 34, were ruled accidental.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Ross of Homestead Trailer Park near Belvoir was found submerged in a body of water Saturday, May 14. He died in Pitt Memorial Hospital May 19. Dr. Quentin Mewborn, Medical Examiner, ruled "accidental drowning."

Mrs. Boykin's body was found the morning of Thursday, May 12, pinned beneath the door of her car in a ditch on Rural Road 1128 near Winterville. Dr. Koonce said the autopsy showed she died of accidental "sphyxiation," that breath was cut off by the weight of the door on her chest.

Steve Krisiloff Doesn't Think About Danger In Indy Driving

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Crashes in the Indianapolis 500 can be spectacular and deadly, but driving in the world's richest auto race is "just like going to work," says Steve Krisiloff. Krisiloff, a 30-year-old driver from Parsippany, N.J., will start his seventh Indy race on Sunday after qualifying at 184.691 miles an hour, the slowest in the 33-car field. He sweated out the final 90 minutes of last Sunday's qualifications while three slower cars were bumped from the field. The danger is constant, Krisiloff acknowledged, but no driver can really afford to give it much of a thought. Not if he expects to win, or even survive. "Concentration is the most important thing," he said, contending actual driving skills and quick reactions to adverse situations don't really matter. "By the time something happens on the track, it's too late to react," he said. Statistics show it's safer driving in the Indianapolis 500 than on a normal highway — and it's getting safer all the time.

There have been 61 deaths at the Speedway since it was opened in 1909. Thirty-seven drivers have died either in the race, in practice or in tests at the Speedway; 13 mechanics, two track workers and nine spectators also have lost their lives.

But there have been no deaths, and very few serious injuries, since 1973.

Following the 1973 race, in which drivers Art Pollard and Swede Savage and crewman Armando Teran were killed, the U.S. Auto Club adopted a number of regulations that — for the time being — cut speeds but also improved safety.

Speeds, which were nearing 200 m.p.h. — Johnny Rutherford set a record of 199.071 during qualifications in 1973 — dropped about 10 miles per hour. And there were no more deaths.

This year, USAC eased up on its restriction on manifold pressure. And a complete resurfacing of the 2½-mile track, along with great improvements in tires, engines and chassis designs, pushed the speeds upward drastically.

Tanana Raises Record To 8-1; Perry Captures Third Straight

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

California Angels Manager Norm Sherry may come up with a new twist on the old Boston Braves saying: "Spahn and Sain and pray for rain." "Other than Tanana and Ryan, our pitching hasn't been that good until lately," Sherry said Wednesday night after Frank Tanana spun a three-hitter, giving California a 4-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Tuesday night, Nolan Ryan hurled a three-hitter as California edged Detroit 2-1. "I'd hate to make a living facing them every day," moaned Detroit Manager Ralph Houk. "They both lose some games each year. You just hope some of them are against you."

Tanana raised his season record to 8-1, the most victories in the major leagues. He struck out 11 in posting his second consecutive shutout and fourth of the season.

Ryan is 7-4. He struck out 12 Tigers Tuesday in earning his 100th AL victory.

In other AL games Wednesday, Minnesota swept a doubleheader from Boston 13-5 and 9-4; Kansas City and Baltimore split a doubleheader, the Royals winning the opener 4-1 and the Orioles taking the nightcap 7-2; Texas downed New York 1-0 in the second game of a doubleheader after losing the opener 3-2; Oakland edged Toronto 6-5 in 10 innings; Cleveland nipped Seattle 2-1 in 12 innings, and Milwaukee defeated Chicago 7-4.

Bobby Grich's sixth homer of the season in the second inning was all Tanana needed. Bobby Bonds slammed a two-run homer in the eighth.

Yankees 3-0, Rangers 2-1
Gaylord Perry limited New York to just six singles as Texas won the nightcap and gained a split of its doubleheader with New York. Perry walked none in winning his third straight game.

Dave May and Toby Harrah opened the second inning of the nightcap with singles and moved up on a sacrifice. May scored the game's lone run on Jim Sundberg's sacrifice fly.

Yankees rookie Gil Patterson, picking up his first major league victory in the opener, was aided by three doubles, a triple and Roy White's fourth home run of the season.

Twins 13-9, Red Sox 5-4
Ron Carew rapped seven hits and Larry Hisle batted in six runs as Minnesota unleashed a barrage of 35 hits — 24 in the first game — in sweeping a doubleheader from Boston. The sweep boosted the Twins' AL West lead to three games.

Royals 4-2, Orioles 1-7
Al Cowens chased home three runs for Kansas City in the opener and Rick Dempsey batted in three for Baltimore in the nightcap as the teams split their twinbill.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver and shortstop Kiko Garcia were ejected from the second game. At the start of the fourth inning, the Orioles staged a brief protest when they delayed coming out of the dugout.

In the first game, the Royals smashed six doubles and a triple among their 10 hits. Hal McRae launched two rallies with doubles, giving him six doubles and two home runs in the last six games.

Indians 2, Mariners 1, 12 innings

Jim Norris scampered home on Bruce Bochte's single in the 12th inning as Cleveland edged Seattle, giving the Indians their fourth straight victory.

Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley, 4-3, gave up just five hits — all in the first 4 1-3 innings. Eckersley faced the minimum 23 batters over the final 7 2-3 innings.

Brewers 7, White Sox 4
Sixto Lezcano drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and Don Money added a solo homer, powering Milwaukee over the White Sox. Jim Spencer homered for Chicago.

Moose Haas, 4-2, allowed just two hits over the final eight innings, retiring 18 of the last 19 White Sox' batters he faced after having failed to last two innings in his previous start.

A's 6, Blue Jays 5, 10 innings
Manny Sanguillen doubled home Rodney Scott with the go-ahead run, then scored the eventual winning run in the 10th inning as Oakland edged Toronto.

Rich McKinney slammed a pinch-hit home run and Tony Armas had a two-run homer for Oakland and reliever Dave Giusti got his first victory of the season.

Not For Women?

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — When veteran stock car driver David Pearson finished his first race against a field that included Janet Guthrie, he insisted, "NASCAR racing is no place for a woman to be."

"She has done a real good job in some places and she did a real good job here — for a lady. But she's not racin'. She's only ridin'."

The 1976-77 sports season was a successful one for the Pitt County members of the Eastern Carolina Conference and especially so in two of the three so-called "major sports" — football and basketball.

The league's football season was dominated by two of the county's four members, Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton. The other two Pitt ECC members, North Pitt and D. H. Conley, joined the Jaguars and Chargers in taking the top four spots in the conference basketball race.

Farmville Central was the big story of the past football season. The Jaguars went through the league schedule unscathed, finishing with a 7-0 ECC record. Ayden-Grifton finished in second place at 6-1, losing only to the Jaguars.

Running backs Kenno Farrow and Ted Dunn paced the high-scoring Farmville attack, under the direction of head coach Gene Brewer. Carroll Griffin was the quarterback of the team, finishing the year with excellent statistics. His main targets were Farrow, Dunn and flanker Mike Jenkins.

Jenkins and Dunn were also standouts on the Jaguar defense, which had an outstanding year. They manned the backfield while the line was anchored by John Dupree, among others.

That offensive and defensive combination rolled over many opponents after a shaky start. Losing two of their first three games, the Jaguars went on to win nine in a row, including two 3-A playoff contests. Big margins of victory were the order of the year for Farmville and it wasn't unusual for the Jags to win by 40 points.

Farmville avenged one of its early-season losses in the first round of the state playoffs when it met Northeastern Conference champion Williamston. Farrow scored three touchdowns in the game to lead the Jaguars to a 21-6 victory.

The next week, the Jags went up against White Oak, a team reputed to have one of the better defenses around. Farmville's offense was more than up to the occasion, however, rolling up 42 points behind two TD's each from Dunn and Farrow. The Jaguar defense played just as well, shutting out the Vikings for a 42-0 victory.

The put the Jaguars into the Eastern 3-A title game against the Dark Horses of Clinton. The game had been originally slated for a Friday night at Clinton, but heavy rains forced it to be moved to Saturday night at Southern Wayne High School in Dudley.

An offensive battle from start to finish, the Jaguars built up a 27-14 halftime lead, but saw it melt away in the third period. It took a touchdown by Mike Jenkins with just over four minutes left to tie the game at 34, sending it into a sudden death playoff.

Under the high school rules, each team got the ball with four downs to score from the opponent's ten yardline. The Jags went first and put it over with a pass to Jenkins. They missed on the extra-point attempt however, one of their few misses all year.

Clinton scored in just two plays on its possession and booted the PAT for the win, leaving Farmville with second place in the East.

Panthers Second In State

North Pitt's Panthers were the big story of the basketball season, coming very close to winning the state championship. Not a tall team, the Panthers relied on hustle, determination and, to use coach Cobby Deans' favorite word, "pride," along with a 6-3 forward named Donnie Perkins.

The high-jumping Perkins led North Pitt to the regular season ECC crown and the championship of the conference tournament, getting help from Kenneth Roberson, Virgil Pilgreen and Larry Spencer.

The Panthers moved into the District I 3-A tournament in Williamston and proceeded to sweep it, gaining victories over Roanoke Rapids, Williamston and Ayden-Grifton. The Chargers had pulled off the biggest upset of that tourney when they knocked off highly-touted Washington.

That put North Pitt into the state finals in Durham. The Panthers had to go up against favored Madison-Mayodan in the first round, but Perkins was in rare form that night, scoring 24 points and pulling down 20 rebounds to lead them to a 66-64 win.

The second contest pitted the Panthers against a much-taller South Stokes squad, but they outthusted the taller team and won by a 47-39 score in a defensive-oriented game.

The next night was the finals of the state 3-A tournament. After getting by two tough opponents, North Pitt appear to have a slight advantage over Wake Forest-Rolesville. The Panthers jumped out to a lead in the first half, but things fell apart under a pressure defense by WF-R and North Pitt lost, 48-42.

Pitt County's schools didn't fare quite as well in the other major sport, baseball. Farmville Central was the only local school in contention for the ECC crown, finishing a distant third in the race.

C. B. Aycock was the winner with a 12-2 conference record, achieving the championship by downing second-place Greene Central in the final game. The Rams finished 11-3.

All-in-all, however, the area teams — and league itself — couldn't have asked for a more successful and productive year. The ECC placed high in the state in football and basketball. It remains to be seen how Aycock will do in baseball.

Several of the conference's outstanding athletes have received athletic scholarships including Farrow's grant with East Carolina University and Perkins' with N. C. State.

If this year's success continues over the next few years, the ECC will gain a reputation as one of the powerhouse leagues in the state.

Pearson Nips Petty To Grab Charlotte Pole, Prize Money

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "I'm gonna run for it as long as you put up that kind of money." David Pearson declared Wednesday after grabbing the $11,500 pole prize for Sunday's World 600 stock car race.

"With one or two laps, it's like a short race. Man would be a fool not to go all out for it."

Pearson took the money with a run of 161.435 miles per hour at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. His Mercury will line up for the $302,550 NASCAR event on Sunday alongside Richard Petty's Dodge, which posted a 161.112-m.p.h. lap Wednesday.

Sensing a classic dual between Pearson and Petty, speedway officials announced that an extra $1,000 bonus would be awarded to the driver who leads the first lap in the 600-mile race.

"I'm sure not gonna let him jump me on the first lap," Pearson said after hearing of the bonus. "We'll be running for lap money. That's what we're in here for — to make money. I'm sure not in just for the fun of it."

Speedway officials claimed the pole prize was the largest ever offered for any race, and Pearson, Petty and other top drivers who were among the 15 qualifiers Wednesday had predicted a close, fast run for the money.

Cale Yarborough nailed down the inside spot on the second row by whipping around the 1.5-mile oval at 159.499 m.p.h. Yarborough, who set a track record at Charlotte in 1969 with a 162.162-m.p.h. qualifying lap, will sit beside Darrel Waltrip, who checked in at 159.297.

Donnie Allison and Buddy Baker each topped 158 m.p.h., but Allison edged Baker by .010 seconds to take the inside track on the third row.

Pearson was one of several drivers who geared their engines for short, quick speed in hopes of getting the pole prize. When Pearson took the track after a 20-minute delay because of rain, he sped through his first lap to shoot into his eighth consecutive pole position in races at the Charlotte track.

"If you don't do it on the first lap, you gotta put it down," the Spartanburg, S.C., driver proclaimed. "You're gonna run faster on the first lap because everything is cold. The tires get hot and the engine gets hot after that."

Speedway officials used the faster of a driver's two laps to determine qualifying, instead of the two-lap average used last year.

If the average had been used, Petty would have beaten Pearson for the pole.

"Both of my laps were right at 161," Petty said. "Oh, well, sometimes they add 'em and some times they don't."

Petty was unimpressed by the lucrative pole prize.

"You know how I feel on putting a bunch of money on the pole position," the Randleman, N.C., native explained. "I feel like they should put it on the race. But, this is their way of doing it. They're putting the money up so I guess they can put it where they want to."

Unlike Pearson, Petty turned his faster lap the second time around.

Pearson, defending World 600 champion, was the favorite for the pole by some accounts because of his success at Charlotte in past years.

None of the drivers who will start behind him Sunday admitted disappointment at missing the pole.

"You can't be disappointed about running the best you can," Yarborough said. "I figured the only chance we had to win the pole was for it to rain before the rest of the guys went out."

Waltrip said he never thought he could win the pole but, "I think we have a pretty good shot at winning this thing Sunday."

Another 15 spots in the 40-car field will be filled today, with qualifying closing on Friday.

Bucs Are Far Back

ATHENS, Ga. — East Carolina University's golf team, after nearly a month layoff since the Southern Conference tournament, is far back in the pack at the Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament following the first day of play.

The Pirates stand 22nd in the 24-team field with a team score of 313.

Georgia leads the field with a 281 score, followed by Texas A&M at 288. Kentucky is third at 289, followed by Houston at 291 and North Texas State at 294.

Other area schools include North Carolina, sixth at 295; Clemson, seventh at 296, and Marshall, tied for eighth at 299.

Chip Beck of Georgia leads the individual field with a 67.

Donnie Owens of East Carolina leads the Pirate team with a 74, while David Brogan carded a 78. Mike Buckmaster had a 79, with Keith Hiller firing an 82. Phil Bell had an 85.

The field will be cut to the top 15 teams following today's second round. East Carolina was 12 strokes behind the 15th place team after the first round.

Games Hit By Rain

Rain again forced the postponement of area baseball games and other activities yesterday.

The three state playoff games involving area baseball teams were all three again reset for today. Roanoke will again go to Dixon for a 4 p.m. game in the 2-A ranks, while Bear Grass will be at Creswell in the 1-A playoffs. That game is set for 8 p.m.

Also tonight at 8 p.m., Williamston will be hosting C. B. Aycock in the 3-A battles.

Other games delayed include all Little League and recreation softball games in the city, and the junior high school conference track meet. The latter was rescheduled for today.

A baseball game between Bertie and E. B. Aycock was cancelled.

Shortstop Darrel Chaney of the Atlanta Braves was a star quarterback in high school.

Club Donates Sum For Police Cadet Program

The Greenville Exchange Club has made a contribution to the Greenville Police Junior Cadets program to aid the continued efforts of the youth corps.

Exchange Club president Norwood Hood presented a check this week for $50 to Police Chief Glenn Cannon and Hugh Benson, the Police Department's juvenile officer who serves as program advisor.

Hood pointed out that the money was raised through the club's annual fund raising project, the Magic Show in April. He noted that the funds may be used by the cadet corps in any manner it sees fit to assist the program.

Benson, who formed the program here in 1973 with Cannon, explained that the corps involves a group of young people between the ages of 14 and 18 who belong to the Explorer Division of the Boy Scouts of America.

The local group is designated as Law Enforcement Explorer Post 33, sponsored by the Greenville Police Department. Currently 23 young people hold memberships in the organization, which has no official funding source.

"The purpose of the program is to teach young people what is involved in being a police officer," Benson observed. "They (cadets) receive the same training over a four year period as our regular officers."

Activities of the group are police oriented, he noted, and while members function without any official authority or duties, their assistance in the areas of security, traffic control, parking, aid to various civic organizations, and participation in East Carolina Council scouting events are very important. Their most frequent activities involve security roles at area ballgames, fairs and parades, he added.

Police Cadets are often permitted to ride with local police officers on weekends at the discretion of the individual officer.

Benson said that the youth run their own program and may call on several adult advisors, including police officers. The group elects its own officers and meets twice a month. Current officers include: Dale Morris, president; Stu Respass, vice president; David Johnson, vice president; Bobby Evans, secretary; Ken Harrington, treasurer; and Eric Kingsberry, public relations officer.

A tenure ranking system has been initiated whereby cadets

The seminar is sponsored by the Alcoholism Training Program at East Carolina University in conjunction with the N. C. Division of Mental Health and the N. C. Task Force on Alcohol Abuse in the Black Community.

Among the conference speakers are Dr. Howard Fitts of N. C. State University; Rev. Arthur Calloway and Dr. R. J. Blackley of Raleigh; Dr. Frederick Harper of Howard University; Dr. James Carter of Duke University; Dr. Charles King of N. C. Central University; Dr. Carolyn Thornton of the Lincoln Center; Lavonia Allison, director of the N. C. Health Manpower Programs and Dr. Faheem Ashanti.

The ECU Alcoholism Training Program was established to help solve the alcohol abuse problem through education of health and social science professionals who work with alcoholics.

Resuming Talks In Schlitz Strike

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Company and union representatives will resume talks Friday in Chicago in an effort to settle a United Steelworkers Union strike against the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co.'s container division.

Of the 1,000 workers involved, 430 work in Winston-Salem. Their contract expired at midnight, April 30 and negotiations broke down the same day. An effort to revive them earlier this month failed.

Friday's talks will be held under the auspices of the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

ON DEAN'S LIST The following Pitt County students received dean's list honors during the spring semester at Appalachian State University: Linda Elizabeth Davenport and Dennis Waverly Oglesby of Farmville; Terri Kim Fox of Statesville, and John Leonard Sheppard and Nell G. Moseley of Greenville.

ECU Student Finishes Work Role With NASA

ECU News Bureau Bill Hammond of Rockingham, East Carolina University senior foreign language major, has returned from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) where he worked as a Cooperative Education student in the Office of International Affairs. As a Co-op student, Hammond alternated one quarter of work with NASA with academic studies here at ECU.

At NASA, Hammond, who speaks fluent German and some French, worked with one of 24 divisions as a technical foreign language person.

"I worked at the Office of International Affairs. We deal and negotiate with countries the world over — especially Europe," Hammond said. "Much of our work was with ESA (European Space Administration), the European equivalent to NASA." Hammond said the main duties of the OIA were to "iron out" contract difficulties and to make monetary decisions.

"As an aid to Mr. John Sakks, an OIA official, I represented him in meetings when he wasn't available," Hammond said.

He added that NASA is very diverse in its activities. "Lots of things done seem to be unrelated to the space program. They make meals for the handicapped the way they do for astronauts and they make fire-proof equipment," he continued.

One of Hammond's most rewarding work experiences was his involvement with the U.S. State Department in aiding flood-damaged Bangladesh.

"I went to the State Department for the first time through AID, a program which was working on aiding Bangladesh after its recent flood damage.

"We aided them with supplies and finances. By satellite, we were able to snap photos which showed how many people were hurt and the extent of damage in an area," he said.

East Carolina University offers students cooperative study-work arrangements in several academic areas. Cooperative education in institutions of higher education is a type of career education which provides an opportunity for full-time students to alternate periods of academic study with periods of off-campus employment.

Tobacco 'Leaching' Due To Excessive Rainfall

Rainfall in excess of four inches in the Pitt County area during the past few days is causing some leaching of tobacco in the area, according to Gaylon Ambrose, Pitt County Assistant Agriculture Extension Agent.
 According to Ambrose many cultural practices affect the quality leaf produced but only the weather affects quality more than nitrogen fertilization.
 Most farmers have already applied nitrogen at planting time, now is the time they will have to estimate rainfall and adjust for leaching.

Every farmer should consider a rain gauge a necessary piece of equipment. If the farm is large or widespread, more than one may be needed. The point, is that a record should be kept of all rainfall after the first fertilizer application.
 In addition to keeping a record of the rainfall, an estimate should be made following each rain as to the amount of runoff that occurred. This is only a guess but such observation as to how fast the rain came, time span, dryness of the soil and slope of the land will aid in making this determination.

Soils in which tobacco is normally planted will hold from approximately .7 inches to 1.5 inches in the tobacco root zone. Growers having made these determinations would subtract the runoff and the amount the soil will hold from the total rainfall, and this gives the amount of leaching rainfall.
 For example, if three inches of rainfall occurred in an average tobacco soil with a one inch water holding capacity, and it was estimated that one inch runoff occurred the net leaching water is one inch.

 A prime consideration for leaching is the age of the tobacco at the time of rainfall. The older and larger the tobacco, the lower the amount of adjustment needed for a number of reasons. First, the larger the tobacco, the larger portion of the total amount of nitrogen needed has been taken up by the plant.
 Secondly, the larger the tobacco, the greater the umbrella effect of the plant over the fertilizer bands, reducing the amount of water moving through the fertilizer, thus leaching nitrogen.
 Third, the root system is larger on older tobacco and more of the nitrogen is absorbed.
 Most Pitt County farmers' tobacco was transplanted from four to six weeks ago.
 Nitrogen must be essentially

Vigoda Relishes The Recognition

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Abe Vigoda, who as ABC's "Fish" plays the nation's best-known old detective with hemorrhoids, slid into the booth at a Beverly Hills eatery and was promptly spotted by the waitress.

A shy man, he still was visibly pleased. He exchanged a moment's small talk with her. Later, he said no, the wide recognition he's gotten from his work in "Barney Miller" and "Fish" hasn't disrupted his life.

"It's a very nice feeling that people recognize you, particularly when it happens in middle age and you've been at your field for so many years and nobody knew you," said the 56-year-old actor.

"It's a happy feeling... they represent what's happening to me, which is being able to do the things I've been doing."

The doings include:
—A costarring role in a new Neil Simon movie, "The Cheap Detective."
—A planned trip in mid-June to Australia — his first overseas voyage other than the one to Staten Island — to promote "Fish."

comedy by Allen Boretz. "The Flying Elephant," cast as a middle-aged lawyer who, he says, "falls in love with a Texas hooker."

Vigoda, who comes from Brooklyn, speaks as slowly and gravely as his Fish character, but without the character's dour, all-is-lost outlook.

And though the tired slouch of Fish seems a subliminal warning by the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Vigoda actually is a firm believer in exercise. He plays handball, jogs and recently took up golf.

Still, he says, ever since his first acting job — at age 6 in a school play — he's usually played old men.

"There's something about my countenance, my demeanor if you wish, that suggests I have the world on my back," he said, almost wistfully.

"It's probably one of the reasons Danny Arnold (executive producer of 'Barney Miller' and 'Fish') hired me. I was jogging the day I came into his office and I was a little tired."

"And he said, 'Geez, this guy looks like Fish to me.' And he gave me the part right then and there. But inside I don't feel that way. Inside, I'm an athlete and feel like a man of 35."

Opening lead: Ace of ♥.

South, declarer at four spades, allowed himself to be panicked by the opponents' defense. As a result, he found less than the best method of attack.

East took advantage of the vulnerability to make a pre-emptive jump overcall of North's opening bid. West raised in an attempt to make it more difficult for North-South to reenter the auction, but North's hand was just too strong to be shut out by these tactics. He competed with a double—primarily for takeout since South had not yet bid—and then raised South's spade response to game.

West led the ace of hearts and East signalled by dropping the king. One glance at dummy was enough to convince West that declarer had no way to get to his hand to take the trump finesse so, instead of routinely continuing with a heart, West found the excellent defense of shifting to a club.

Declarer won on the table and, in an attempt to prevent a club ruff, continued with ace and another spade. West won the king, crossed to his partner with a heart and obtained a club ruff for down one.

Both the odds and the auction favor a 3-1 break of the four missing spades. Instead of trying to stop the ruff, declarer should have been looking for a way to profit from it.

After winning the club, declarer should have cashed the ace-king of diamonds and then cut communication between the defenders by exiting with a heart. East can win and give West a club ruff, but West will be end-played. If he exits with a trump, he gives declarer a finesse. If he exits with a heart or diamond, declarer ruffs in his hand and can take the trump finesse himself. Either way, declarer's only losers will be two heart tricks and a ruff.

Except For Encore, Nixon Answers On Record

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Except for an encore to be culled from the cutting room floor sometime this fall, Richard Nixon's answers to the Six Hundred Thousand Dollar Questions are finally on the record.

In his fourth television interview Wednesday night, Nixon talked about how he felt after resigning — "No one in the world, no one in our history could know how I felt."

He talked about the resignation of his vice president — "...It was a no-win proposition."

And he spoke of the news media that recorded the fall of his presidency — "I respect some, but for those who write history as fiction, on third-hand knowledge, I have nothing but utter contempt. And, I will never forgive them, never."

While he was enriched by a $600,000 fee for the interview series, and a share of the profits that probably will increase his share to more than $1 million, the nation's knowledge of his role as the "unindicted co-conspirator" of the Watergate scandal reached no new heights.

The real value to the four 90-minute programs probably must be determined, as Nixon suggested from the beginning, by the individual viewers. "I'll express my own opinion," he promised. "They may have a different opinion."

But it was apparent Nixon's opinions of Watergate and his role in the scandal hadn't much changed after nearly three years — Richard Nixon still holds himself innocent of any impeachable offense.

The shows did have their emotional moments. There was Nixon on Wednesday night, saying he would have preferred "the agony of a trial" to accepting a pardon that connoted guilt; that his resignation meant "life without purpose as far as I was concerned."

"No one in the world, and no one in our history could know how I felt.... Is that punishment enough? No, that isn't," he said.

But "We have to live with not only the past, but for the future... whatever it brings, I'll still be fighting."

Strong feelings also were drawn out in a discussion, without naming them, of Watergate reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein and their book "The Final Days."

Nixon called both the men and their book "trash," and said "Mrs. Nixon read it and her stroke came three days later."

"The doctors don't know what caused the stroke," he hastened to add, but "it (the book) sure didn't help."

In the book, the authors said the Nixons had not had sexual relations for 14 years and that

Mrs. Nixon sought liquor from the servants quarters in the final days in the White House.

"I certainly hope that we did not cause her stroke," Woodward said Wednesday after hearing Nixon's remarks. "I doubt very much that we did, from what I know about medicine."

Woodward noted that despite Nixon's bitterness, the former president himself confirmed some of the major incidents related in the book, including a scene in which Nixon cried and prayed with his secretary of state, Henry A. Kissinger.

Nixon said he later phoned

Kissinger to suggest: "Why don't we just keep that incident to ourselves."

Wednesday's show also had Nixon saying he knew Spiro Agnew would never survive the investigation into his financial dealings, yet his vice president was "an honest man... a courageous man" who was persecuted because he was a conservative.

Nixon said he tried to block the election of Salvador Allende as president of Chile because he feared a Communist revolution would sweep Latin America.

And Nixon said he never considered pardoning himself, that he was afraid pardoning his top aides would look like "the ultimate coverup" and that he never discussed his own pardon with Gerald R. Ford, who replaced him in the White House.

Over-all, the television series seemed — as did the famed White House tapes — to bring out something of the inner Nixon.

He admitted to poor judgment on "the little things," yet insisted he committed no legal wrongdoing. He admitted to lying, but not to covering up. And he spoke of his "paranoia for peace" as justification for acts beyond the normal letter of the law.

Already the teasers are out on the fifth program, to be aired several months away, purportedly based on the mysterious 18½-minute gap in a crucial White House tape and the question of why Nixon didn't simply destroy the evidence that eventually toppled him.

NEW A.I.A. PRESIDENT — Mike Bass, a student in architectural drafting, has been elected president of the Phi Technical Institute student chapter of the American Institute of Architects for 1977-78. According to Bass, major activities of the chapter for the coming year will be participation in the state A.I.A. convention and in the "Forum" to be held in Charleston, S.C.

MOORE'S

Bedouins Want Old Land Back

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
SHOVAL, Israel (AP) — The shabby side of the 20th century has caught up with the Bedouin Arabs of Israel's Negev Desert, where the camel-borne nomad of legend is fading into history.

"The best days of my life were before 1952 when I lived on my father's land and when a sheikh was still master of his tribe," said Sheikh Suliman El-Okbi, leader of the 1,800-member tribe from which he takes his name.

Today many of southern Israel's 18 tribes — about 40,000 people — are waging a battle to regain ancestral lands they lost 25 years ago. Instead of brandishing scimitars from the humps of charging camels, they are struggling in the courts and in political parties for the right to live on — and farm — their old land.

But the Israeli government — backed by the courts — says the Bedouin have no legal right to the land. It wants to resettle them in villages where utilities, schools and work can be made available.

Sheikh El-Okbi traces the source of the land dispute back hundreds of years when the El-Okbis, El-Huzayals and others settled permanently in the Negev, carving out tracts of land for themselves.

There were no visible boundaries in the nearly featureless landscape, he said, but every Bedouin knew the limits of his lands and those of his tribe.

Ottoman and British law recognized the right of the Bedouin to register the land, but they never bothered. Now the traditional Bedouin law is registered as state property.

Of the 80,000 Bedouin in the Negev before 1948, fewer than 15,000 remained after Israel won its independence. Like all Israeli Arabs, they were under a military government until 1966. To enhance border security, the army moved the Southern Bedouin in 1952 to a 400,000-acre tract in the Central Negev.

Although most tribes already lived within the area, some were shifted off ancestral lands. The El-Okbis, for example, were moved 25 miles south while the army relocated another tribe on El-Okbi land.

In 17 Bedouin suits against the Israel lands authority, the courts have ruled that the Bedouin have no legal claim since ownership was never filed under any government. In some cases the courts proclaimed the disputed property as "mawat," or dead — able to support agriculture during the winter rains only one year in seven. Under Ottoman law, such land belongs to the state.

For those who were relocated, shanty towns are home. Sheikh El-Okbi has a small hut of wood planks and corrugated metal near Beersheba. The camp has no electric lights, but some huts have television sets run on small generators or batteries.

Another 20,000 Bedouin live in Israel's northern Galilee district, but they have no land claims against the government. The 60,000 Bedouin are among Israel's 500,000 Arab minority — the remnant of the Palestinian people who did not become refugees after the Israeli war of independence.

Although Bedouin behavior codes of strict segregation of the sexes, honor and hospitality are still in force, life for the Bedouin is changing. The tribal sheikh, once a hereditary position, is now a powerless government appointee.

The generation born under Israeli rule wears modern dress and speaks Hebrew fluently. Bedouin men work for Jewish employers in nearby Israeli towns, and about one-third have moved from the desert to find work farther north.

The land issue as much as cultural change divides the generations. Salami El-Huzayel, son of the elderly sheikh of the giant El-Huzayel tribe, has rejected a government offer to buy land cheaply for a house he wanted to build, but his son Sultan, a mathematics teacher, paid.

Benjamin Gur-Aryeh, a government adviser on Arab affairs, says the government hopes to complete a $50 million plan to build seven Bedouin townships within five years. Under the voluntary program Israel would offer a quarter acre of land for $500 as an inducement. The same plot would cost a Jewish Israeli $10,000, he said.

Gur-Aryeh said Israel also had offered a compromise to the Bedouin to pay compensation of 65 per cent of the value of the land as assessed by the government.

"We don't want that kind of compromise," said Nuri El-Okbi, a sheikh's son and unofficial leader of the Committee for Bedouin Rights. "All we are asking is for what has always been ours."

Users Back Rate Hike On Hand Crank Phones

By ELEANOR ADAMS
BRYANT POND, Maine (UPI) — Rates are going up and service hasn't changed much since the turn of the century, but telephone customers in this tiny western Maine community aren't complaining.

They like their phone service just the way it is.

The Bryant Pond Telephone Co. is the last hand-crank phone company on the East Coast. And, even with a 47 per cent rate increase, phone bills are among the lowest in the country.

"Customers just turn the crank, and the operator in our living room puts the call through," said Elden Hathaway, who bought the company for $2,500 in 1951.

Hathaway has eight operators handling calls from his 380 subscribers at two switchboards in the living room of his home. Two are on duty from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day.

During the night, the 60-year-old Hathaway, his wife, Barbara, and daughter, Susan, take turns answering calls.

"We're all friends and neighbors up here," Hathaway said. "I know most of my subscribers personally but not as well as I did in the old days."

When the retired railroad worker bought the Oxford County company 26 years ago, he had about 100 customers. The company now provides service to about 450 telephones — handling an estimated 1,500 incoming, outgoing and local calls a day.

Customers in Bryant Pond, a town of about 1,000, like the friendly, "first-name basis" telephone service so much the Maine Public Utilities Commission didn't have to hold a public hearing on the company's recent rate increase request.

In an unusual twist, town officials and customers wrote letters to the PUC supporting the company's first rate hike in 23 years. It will raise one-party residential rates from $3 to $4.90 monthly beginning May 1.

"Nobody likes to pay out more money, but Elden needs to survive too," said Wanda Johnson, an employee of the Bryant Pond Village Store.

"You have to pay for what you get, and I like our phone service just the way it is," Mrs. Johnson said.

Mrs. Johnson, who says many of the operators are personal friends, said she seldom has to give telephone numbers when making local calls.

"I just ask for people by name and the operator knows the number," she said.

Gordon Tally, the owner of a three-member traveling theater group based in Bryant Pond, said he is "delighted" with the hand-crank telephone service.

"The crank phone system is a trademark for our company," Tally said. "People always remember us because they have to call us through operators."

Tally, who moved to Bryant Pond six years ago, said basic phone service was already $12 a month when he left his native Boston. Yet, in Bryant Pond he said he gets services he couldn't get anywhere else without paying extra.

"The operators even act as an answering service — at no extra charge — whenever my theater group is on the road," Tally said.

"So, how can I complain about a rate increase?" he asked. "The rates I'm paying are probably the cheapest in the world."

Simple Toys For The Ill

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Toys for hospitalized children should be carefully selected to meet the special needs of the youngsters, advises Patsy Banta, family relations and child development instructor at Oklahoma State University.

"The child in a burn unit or in traction needs small items that fit easily on a tray but are not so small they can get lost," she says.

Toys relating to the hospital experience, such as stethoscopes, doctor and nurse puppets and miniature hospitals are popular. "Through role play, the child is able to work out feelings of loneliness and pain related to their hospital situation," Mrs. Banta explains.

Hospitalized children often enjoy toys that ordinarily are appropriate for a younger age group, and such toys as stuffed musical animals appeal to children in a wide age range.

Avoid time-consuming and complex toys, suggests Mrs. Banta, since the hospitalized child is often interrupted for routine procedures and also tires easily.

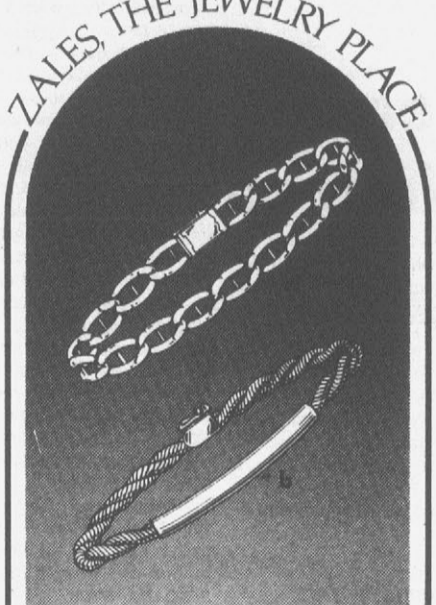

"Keep in mind the amount of adult supervision or participation required with certain toys," she adds. "Checkers appeal only if someone plays with the child. And puzzles will retain their pieces only if someone is there every day to pick up the pieces."

Scale Damages Water Heaters

LOMBARD, Ill. (UPI) — Early failure of immersion heating elements in electric water heaters is often caused by scale deposited by hard water, according to the Water Quality Association.

"Some elements are especially susceptible to scale buildup on their sheaths," says Richard Weickart, Technical Director of the Association. "When an element can't get rid of its heat, the wire in it burns out. There is no real cure other than installing a water softener to prevent the formation of the scale."

Institute Has A Special Role In Bible Land

By ALLEN ALTER
 JERUSALEM (UPI) — The whole concept of the Institute of Holy Land Studies would not be feasible in a different setting or with a different text.

The school on Mt. Zion, surrounded by sacred sites of three religions, is now in its 18th year of teaching young American students of different faiths about the Bible and the history and geography of Israel.

"We've emphasized geography and history and what it can do to Bible-oriented people to understand the Bible better," said Rev. Dr. G. Douglas Young, the energetic founder and director.

The institute occupies a 60-room stone building with a spacious garden of olive, cypress and pine trees. It is a far cry from the original Anglican church school building of 1853 that Young rented and refurbished nearly 10 years ago for a seminar in the Holy Land.

The seminar grew into the institute, originally managed alone by Young and his wife. Later, it was chartered by the State of Minnesota.

The Mt. Zion school, several hundred feet from the site of the traditional Last Supper, is the only Christian educational institution in Israel geared to Bible students from the United States for credit courses towards a bachelor's or a master's degree.

"We're trying to show our solidarity with Israel and the Jewish community because both were part of the same family, although they went different ways 1,900 years ago," Young said.

The mustachioed minister is affiliated with the Evangelical Free Church of America. He said about half the students who have attended the institute eventually enter church-related work.

"We want them to get out of their Christian ghetto and into their Christian ghetto and to help them see how minority groups look at things," Young said.

The atmosphere is more academic than religious. Courses carry titles such as "Biblical and Theological Relevance of Israel's Rebirth."

Students are asked to be active at a church of their choice in Jerusalem.

As the only Mormon at the school, Alec Briones, 24, of Bakersfield, Calif., said he does not feel any special religious pressures.

"Being here has helped me to develop appreciation for Jewish values," the long-haired student said.

Others agreed that specific religious affiliations are not important, although the orientation of the school is Evangelical Christian.

"We believe in personal trust in Jesus Christ as a savior and have a deep commitment to follow his teaching," said Perry Phillips, 33, of Telford, Pa.

Phillips holds a Ph.D. in astrophysics from Cornell University. He went to study in the Holy Land "after I became a Christian, although I was Greek Orthodox."

Because a recent poll indicates 38 per cent of Americans claim to be "born-again Christians," Young sees the function of his institute as rather important.

"Israel's survival is a matter of importance to Bible-believing people," he said.

"I'm not adverse to being called a Zionist, but a Christian Zionist."

To be part of the Jerusalem community, every few weeks Young and his wife patrol the city's streets with other civil guard volunteers, rifles strapped on their shoulders.

The institute currently has 17 full-time students. Several hundred other young Americans join them in classes for periods of three to four weeks during the year. They also make field trips.

Students on the longer program receive intensive training in Hebrew, both biblical and modern.

Brad Cronbaugh, 23, of Kent, Ohio, plans to use the language training for translating the Bible from the original.

William Nelson, 23, of Lompoc, Calif., says "it really does make a difference" coming to Israel and seeing the land in which Jesus Christ lived.

The institute is ecumenical in other ways. Its staff includes a Christian Arab bookkeeper and gardener and Jewish and non-Jewish lecturers.

Young says that the $1,600 per semester charged for room, board and tuition only helps the institute break even in its annual $300,000 budget.

Could Be A Torn Muscle

NEW YORK (AP) — Young athletes engaged in track, football, basketball and other sports who complain of severe groin pain may be suffering from tears in their thigh muscles, say radiologists at New York Hospital.

The tearing injuries affect the pelvis and hips of athletes 17 to 23 years old in sports demanding wide-spreading of the legs, strenuous hip flexing, abrupt directional changes during running and severe contraction of the abdominal muscles. Sprinters, hurdlers and bowlers are also among those affected, say Dr. Robert Schneider and his associates, who recently reported on the x-ray appearance of the muscles involved.

They are called "adductors" and they help move the leg at the hip joint. They can sometimes avulse, or tear out from where they insert into the pelvic bones or leg if the leg is forced sideways or back too far when running, stretching or turning quickly and forcefully, Dr. Schneider explains.

Their five patients had experienced pain in the groin for one month to two years. X-ray studies showed changes in the bone at the point where the muscle or tendon had been ripped away. One athlete required surgery. The others were treated with local injection of corticosteroids, local anesthetics and restricted activity.

World's Biggest Airport Set Off Land Boom; Most Investors Lost

EDITOR'S NOTE — It would be, they said, the world's biggest airport, surrounded by hotels and restaurants and industry and fine homes. It triggered a land boom of staggering proportions. The stakes were high, the action fast. Some won. Most lost. Others are still playing. The airport is there, but the trappings aren't. A look at Airport '77 and the illusion surrounding it.

By MIKE COCHRAN and TOM DE COLA
 Associated Press Writers
 GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Ten years ago, the landscape around this Texas town was as flat as the Wyoming range. Only the skylines of Dallas, 20 miles east, and Fort Worth, 20 miles west, broke the monotony.

Then plans were announced for the D-FW Regional Airport. It would rise in cattle grazing country just south of here. And with it would come a mighty Metropolis of industry, warehouses, restaurants, high-rise hotels, sprawling shopping centers, apartments, homes.

Big men invested big money in land, banking on a quick profit when the building boom began.

"There had been so much PR (public relations) about the airport that selling land was almost like selling pancakes," said two Grapevine realtors, Millard and Bob Dilg.

"We watched land jump from $10,000 an acre to $5,000, then $10,000, $20,000, $30,000," said Ann Carlson, another Grapevine realtor. "Nobody thought it would end."

But it did end, a victim of recession, greed, misinformation, miscalculation, inflation and, perhaps in isolated cases, fraud.

Today, the airport is there, but that's all, except for the cattle grazing on land that changed hands so many times that it was priced out of the market.

"I don't know of any other experience like this in history," said Dallas real estate investor John Kidd. "It is one of the few times I've ever seen the very best miss by 100 per cent."

"Even though I foresaw this and predicted this (the decline), I was not immune," said millionaire realtor Henry S. Miller. "We did get caught up in the hysteria. We did not always follow our convictions. It was only a question of time until the bubble would break."

The speculators and syndicators banked on what Kidd calls "The Greater Fool Theory."

Said Kidd: "Everybody got into the game, thinking a greater fool would follow who would pay even more. What brought it down was we ran out of fools ... we woke up one day and there weren't any new people in the pot to play."

Real estate broker Horace Vail traces the phenomenon back to 1967, when Gov. John Connally signed a bill allowing creation of the airport authority.

Vail said an estimated $56 million in cash was paid to landowners of the original 17,500 acres on which the $700 million airport now lies.

Those landowners, many of them farmers, opted to escape the capital gains taxes on their windfalls and pumped the money back into the land around the airport perimeter, triggering the boom.

It's generally accepted that "airport land" comprises about 100,000 acres, half owned by developers, half available for speculation. At an average cost of $8,000 per acre, the land speculation game was played in a $400 million ballpark.

However, the boom hysteria is said to have influenced land sales and values within a 100-mile radius of the airport.

Syndicators pooled money from large and small investors, doctors, lawyers, mechanics and retail clerks, to buy specific tracts of land.

They were, Vail said, "betting on the come," gambling mostly with other people's money that the land would escalate in value and could be resold quickly at a profit.

But the economy turned sour, a mixture of inflation and recession. Interest rates rose dramatically, contributing to a collapse of the money market.

The run of foreclosures and bankruptcies began.

"Foreclosures triggered a shutoff of lending — 100 per cent," Vail said. "It shut down as fast as I've ever seen anything shut down."

Dallas financier Ken Good, whose ambitious Metropolis office park complex was victim to a shutoff of funding, said: "It was greed and horrible judgment more than outright fraud. You had people not qualified to sell a pair of shoes selling million-dollar pieces of land."

To this day, land that once changed hands 10 or 12 times, that escalated from $2,000 an acre is back in the hands of the original owners.

"You can drive right next door to the airport now and there's still people farming it," said John Kidd. "When you think of how much money changed hands ... and the best, most productive use of the land is still to raise cows, it makes you wonder."

The land prices around the airport are becoming more realistic, the new players say. But the players are more cautious.

Most of those involved feel that the episode will not be repeated.

One investor put it succinctly: "We're back where users can find attractive locations to buy at a price they can afford to pay. They couldn't do that during the height of our madness."

Climatic Center Move Considered

ASHEVILLE — The National Climatic Center may move from the federal building in downtown Asheville to a 10-acre tract on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Asheville.

This move could give the University access to a research center in meteorology, so that, on approval of the UNC Board of Governors, it could offer degree programs in meteorology and climatology and use the Climatic Center staff as adjunct professors to the faculty.

The Climatic Center now has 370 employees and the hope is for growth to some 600. A decision is now being made as to whether to make the move to a specially designed building or to renovate the federal building at a cost of $1.5 million.

The University, through the UNC-Asheville Foundation, would provide land and construct a building to NCC specifications on 10 acres of land and then lease it to the Department of Commerce and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for 20 years.

The Asheville Area Chamber of Commerce is working on assuring a major occupant of the vacated space in the federal building if the move does take place.

The Southeastern Forest Experiment Station currently is seeking approval to move its headquarters-laboratory to another 10-acre tract on the south campus of the University.

Alternative: Floating City

NEW YORK (AP) — By the year 2000, it is estimated that 80 per cent of the world's population will live in "coastal zones" — areas within 50 miles of where land and ocean meet — according to The Compass, a publication of MOAC, a commercial marine insurer.

One way to relieve the crowded seashore is to move the cities, suggests the oceanographer, inventor and futurologist, Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus. "We could design full-scale floating cities on hollow concrete cylinders for floatation," he explains in the magazine.

Instead of going up into the sky, large buildings would extend beneath the surface of the sea — "bottom scratchers," as Dr. Spilhaus calls them.

People would work above the surface; machinery would be beneath the surface. And the overall profile of a sea city would be lower than a land city, Dr. Spilhaus told the publication.

Airline Stewardess Also 'Flies' When She Drives

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
NEW YORK (UPI) — During an emergency aboard a jetliner, stewardess Nancy James always freshens her lipstick before tending to the passengers.

"It gives your smile more credence."

The tall and beautifully built redhead recently entered a wet T-shirt contest at a car race, only to be disqualified when they discovered she was one of the drivers.

"Anyway, the girl who won made me look flat-chested."

The mother of two teenage daughters flies for a living, races cars for kicks and admits she enjoys long lay-overs in other cities.

"I can't stand being around my kids all the time."

All the while, Nancy James, 33, claims to be a "pussycat," a happily unliberated woman.

"My husband, Ted, who's a race car mechanic, is definitely a male chauvinist from the word go, and I love it. I got into racing because he wanted me out in the garage with him."

During a lay-over in New York this California homemaker, who has been racing on the Sports Car Club of America circuit for more than two years, talked candidly about her three lives as mother, flier and racer.

But what goes on in her mind when she's all alone in the open cockpit of her Formula Ford, screaming along at 100 m.p.h. or better?

"When you get on the track your adrenalin starts flowing so fast your brains turn to gravy and you do some dumb things. But fear? No. You have to be something of a fatalist. Death is something you live with."

In 12 years of flying the friendly skies she has not been in serious trouble. But a few years ago aboard a Boeing 720 enroute from New York to Chicago the captain ordered "emergency preparations" when a hydraulic failure was indicated in the landing gear.

"I was frightened, but of course the stewardesses are supposed to exude all this confidence. Everything turned out all right and after we were on the ground an airline executive who happened to be on board suggested that next time I put on some lipstick before going into emergency preparations."

"The next time I did. It helps. It gives more color to the face and credence to the smile."

Back home in Fremont, auto racing is a family affair, with Ted, an airline maintenance foreman, the chief mechanic. Daughters Barbara, 16, and Yvette, 14, also work in the pits and handle the timing.

"Ted and I told both the girls we would not stop them if they wanted to become drivers, but Barbara said she'd never be crazy enough to get in one of those cars," Nancy said.

But they remember that smashup at Sears Point last season when Nancy's car actually became airborne at more than 100 m.p.h. and sailed 20 feet over another car, landing on its wheels.

"I didn't know what had happened until two weeks later I saw the movies," she said. "All I knew was my car was broke."

Twice she has smacked into the wall at that same track, once shearing off the entire side of the car.

"I told the track manager they ought to put my name on a plaque on that wall," she said. "It's my wall."

A graduate of Sunnyville High School and Foothill Junior College, Nancy got interested in racing while hanging around the tracks with Ted, who was always involved in building and rebuilding race cars.

"I just got plain jealous," she said. "I wanted to be out on the race track. When I suggested it to Ted, he grinned and said, 'Go buy yourself a race car and let's go.'"

Today she is ranked in the top 10 among 30 drivers in the SCCA Formula Ford competition and has a sponsor which helps foot the bills, Planters Peanuts.

She says the male drivers treat her "with respect," but in the pits she is constantly reminded that she is an attractive woman.

"Once they got me in a wet T-shirt contest to pick a queen of the race," she said. "They disqualified me when they found out I was a Formula Ford driver."

Nancy is an admirer of Janet Guthrie, today's most famous female race driver.

"She's not a libber like some of the others are. You don't have to go around spouting all this libber stuff."

"I like being treated like a woman. Ted says I'll never be equal."

"I say, yeah, I love it. I don't want to be. I like being treated like a woman."

Many In Japan Sharing A Fear Of Earthquakes

By K.P. HONG
TOKYO (AP) — "It is, of course, the earthquakes," a young American student replied when asked what, if anything, disturbed him most in Tokyo.

"And you'll be surprised to learn that so many people, Japanese and foreigners alike, share the same fear," he added.

Many among Japan's 110-million population worry about the frequent quakes that are often strong enough to wake them from a sound sleep. Hardly a day passes without a tremor in some part of this island land.

The last massive quake disaster came in 1923 when 130,000 persons died in the Tokyo-Yokohama area, and the memory of that lives on in the minds of many of the older generation.

Apprehensions concerning quakes increased several years ago after a widely publicized prediction by a group of Japanese seismologists that another major quake might hit at any time in densely populated Central Japan. Some scientists even pinpointed the Suruga Bay area, 60 miles west of Tokyo, as the possible center of a quake they said could be worse than that of 1923.

A number of major quakes in the past two years in Europe, the Soviet Union, South America, China and other Asian countries further raised fears among the people living around Suruga Bay.

Local disaster prevention committees were formed, some old buildings were torn down, and disaster prevention kits, emergency evacuation ropes and ladders, emergency food-stuffs, and fire extinguishers were sold out.

A series of surveys have followed the prediction concerning the Suruga Bay and other areas by the National Geology Survey Institute, the National Disaster Prevention Science Technology Center, and several university research teams.

"Nothing concrete has been determined so far," said Dr. Tsuneji Rikitake, a noted scientist in earthquake prediction and a professor at Tokyo Institute of Technology.

However, he added, he agrees with many other Japanese scientists that the surveys have not reached a conclusion that would reject the specific prediction.

In the surveys, a series of recent tremors were recorded and analyzed, man-made tremors were set off for studies of seismic wave speeds and the underground geological foundation.

In a recent test, 400 kilograms of dynamite was exploded near Suruga Bay to have the seismic waves from the blast, equivalent to a jolt of magnitude 2 on the Richter Scale, checked at a score of observation points.

Through the surveys and other research, Japanese seismologists hope that future major quakes can be predicted with more accuracy.

There's one field in Japan, however, that does not appear alarmed by threats of future quakes — the construction business.

Tall buildings keep changing the skyline, among them an 800-foot structure — the 60-story "Sunshine 60" — believed to be Asia's tallest building. It is near completion in downtown Tokyo.

The situation is very different from that in the days when Japan limited the height of a building to 102 feet by law. The restriction was amended in 1963.

Make No More Agnew Watches

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — It seems that time has run out on the Spiro Agnew watch.

A family firm which copyrighted the watch stopped making it about four years ago. No more will be made.

In early 1970, Dr. and Mrs. Hale Dougherty and their 10 children hired a graduate art student to draw a caricature of the former vice president. They copyrighted the design and were soon boxing and shipping Agnew watches.

The Doughertys have kept sales figures secret but a published estimate reported sales of 100,000 in the first year. Demand spurted again in 1973 when Agnew resigned.

"The people who have been buying them for the last two years or so are strictly collectors," said Larry Dougherty, 23, general manager of the firm.

Mobil introduces a whole new idea in engine lubrication. A synthesized lubricant that outperforms nature's best motor oil.

Mobil 1

11. Can I rely on Mobil 1 for high temperature performance?
Yes. Under sizzling engine temperatures Mobil 1 will not break down, the way conventional oils do. Rings, valves and other critical engine parts stay cleaner.

We thought that you'd like to know about Mobil synthetic oil... we'll be telling you more about Mobil in the next few weeks.

Colonial Williamsburg Adds New Tour Program

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

American history can come alive for visitors to Colonial Williamsburg, the restored 18th century town which was once the political, social and cultural capital of Virginia.

More than $90 million has been spent since 1926 to re-create and preserve for generations of Americans a slice of life in the days when the New World was still new. One of the finest Colonial restorations in the United States, Williamsburg is a top tourist attraction on the eastern seaboard.

But officials are not resting on their laurels.

Long an exponent of "do-it-yourself" tours of the 173-acre Historic Area, a new program of daily escorted tours will be inaugurated on June 15, according to Hugh DeSamper, director of the press bureau.

Participants will be transported by bus from the Information Center to the area for a two-hour walking orientation featuring an overview of the Williamsburg community in the 1700s, he said in a recent interview. Several major buildings will be visited, but major emphasis will be on architectural exteriors, craft areas, public greens and gardens.

Holdings of Historic Area admission tickets may reserve space on one of the special guided tours leaving the center between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. daily, rain or shine, DeSamper said. (Tour tickets cost $2 for adults, $1 for children 6-11.)

Groups will be limited to 25 persons. He said there will be special tours for families with children under 6 — there is no charge for these small kids.

The new program is an expansion of the existing escorted tours available in the past only to affinity groups reserving in advance, DeSamper said. It grew out of trial tours offered to guests at the Williamsburg Inn during the past six months which proved unexpectedly popular, he said.

The new tours will feature the original plan of the town (which was founded in 1633), the social history of its inhabitants, the major institutions, as well as special attributes such as general history, architecture, crafts, decorative arts and furnishings, gardens and music. Significant political activity which gave Williamsburg its place in revolutionary history also will be reviewed.

Another innovation this year includes a sample of colonial life at Chowning's Tavern, a popular dining establishment on Market Square Green. From 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. nightly, a costumed conjurer will perform sleight-of-hand tricks amid the bustle of a taproom filled with the sights and sound of a colonial night on the town.

Balladeers Cliff Williams and Bob Hutcheson will serenade with the lively and boisterous songs of 200 years ago and encourage patrons to sing along, DeSamper said. In addition, a hostess will teach guests some of the popular card games of the time.

DeSamper said full schedules in the Historic Area will resume on June 20, when all exhibition homes, public buildings and craft shops will be opened seven days a week.

Regular musters of costumed militiamen and fife-and-drum corps will be held on the Market Square Green on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5:15 p.m., complemented by a fife-and-drum program Wednesdays at 5:15 p.m. and parades Mondays and Saturdays at noon.

Beginning July 4, eight selected buildings, including the Capitol, Public Magazine, Raleigh Tavern and the Apothecary shop, will remain open until 7 p.m. nightly except on Sundays, when all buildings close at 5 p.m.

The annual Independence Day program, featuring a military ceremony on Market Square Green and religious services at Bruton Parish Church will be held at 10 a.m. on July 4.

Williamsburg, near the southern tip of the peninsula between the James and York rivers, is easily accessible by road, train and plane.

It is about 50 miles from Richmond on I64 to Norfolk and Virginia Beach and about 20 minutes by car from the Patrick Henry Airport in Newport News serviced by four airlines.

There are scores of inns, motels and hotels in the area, including the Williamsburg Inn and the Williamsburg Lodge, both on the edges of the Historic Area. Advance reservations are recommended.

Warnings Of House Fires

ST. PAUL (UPI) — Electrical fires that damage or destroy hundreds of homes a year often are preceded by warning signs, says Minnesota State Fire Marshal Wes Werner.

The most common danger signals include persistent blinking or flickering of lights that cannot be traced to use of an appliance.

Switchplates or wall outlets warm to the touch. If even the wall feels warm, you may have an electrical problem.

Other warnings include unexplained static in radio receivers, "snow" in a television picture, inoperative outlets or switches, burning odors or discoloration near switches, outlets or their components indicating dangerous heat buildup or repeated blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers.

Werner said all such things should be investigated as soon as possible.

Solve Problem By Competition

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's nothing like competition to lower the cost of collection and disposal of garbage, says Prof. E.S. Savas of Columbia University's business school.

As an example, Savas cited Minneapolis's garbage and trash collection system that was changed in 1971 to permit collection by both private and municipal haulers.

He said trash collected by a municipal crew rose from 5.7 tons per shift to 7.3 tons in four years. Private collection teams haul slightly less, he said, but the cost per ton is slightly lower than those of city crews.

"The clear success of the system in Minneapolis is pragmatic evidence that delivery of at least one public service was improved by introducing competition," he said.

LOW 'TAR' SALES

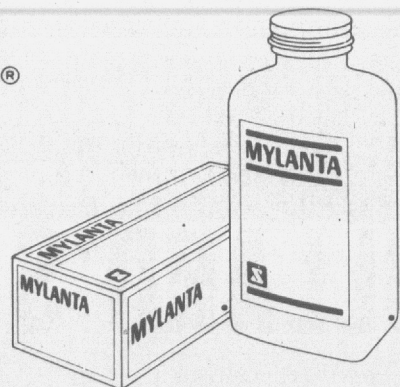

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Low "tar" cigarettes now account for 15 per cent of all cigarettes sold, reports R. J. Reynolds. The low "tar" market in 1976 was up 45 per cent.
