All That Rain Proved To Be A Mixed Blessing

WATER DAMAGE — The heavy rainfall recently was just too much for some of the area tobacco crops. An estimated 40-50 per cent loss, involving five to six acres, was reported on the W. H. Mills farm tended by Irene Stallings on Rt. 3, Greenville. Excessive water caused the young plants to flop over and Mrs. Stallings noted that soda will be used in an attempt to salvage some of the acreage that sustained less damage. Spotty damage was reported to an additional five to six acres on the farm. (Reflector Staff Photo)

TOBACCO LOSS — Part of the crop on the J. B. Stokes farm on Rt. 3, Greenville was lost due to the excessive rain. Other crops in the area, including corn in an adjoining field, appeared to stand the heavy rain much better. This photo shows part of a field located approximately one mile off the New Bern highway, some ten miles from Greenville. (Reflector Staff Photo)

U.S. High Court Refuses Consider Giving Up Canal

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to immediately consider whether the Carter administration has the constitutional power to surrender control of the Panama Canal Zone to Panama.

The justices turned down a request by six members of Congress and a U.S. citizen living in the Canal Zone that the court expedite consideration of their appeal from a lower court.

The appeal charges that the President and secretary of state have no power to enter into a treaty giving away control of a U.S. territory. It claims that such power is reserved specifically for Congress by the Constitution.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last month upheld a lower court's ruling that the suit was not "ripe for judicial determination."

In seeking a quick review by the Supreme Court, the congressmen argued that not only is the constitutional question "ripe," but that it may be rendered irrelevant very soon because of the Carter administration's commitment "to a completed treaty proposal which will deliver the Canal Zone or some major part of it to the Republic of Panama within the next few weeks."

The court's action today does not mean the court never will consider the merits of the appeal. The justices still can vote to hear arguments in the case at a later date.

The lawsuit challenging the administration's power to take such action was filed in January 1976 by Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., James McClure, R-Idaho, and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., Reps. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., Lawrence McDonald, D-Ga., and Gene Snyder, R-Ky., and William R. Drummond, a civilian living in the Canal Zone.

Moluccans Want 'Intermediaries'

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 or more hostages aboard a Dutch train have asked the government for "intermediaries" to discuss their demands, a Justice Ministry spokeswoman said today.

He declined to give any details about the request. But another highly placed government source cautioned against optimism, saying he considered it "a small change" in the situation.

He pointed out a second group of Moluccans holding four hostages at a schoolhouse had made no similar request for intermediaries. But unofficial observers thought the request from the terrorists on the train might open the way to decisive negotiations.

Several psychiatrists have been in contact by telephone with the Moluccans, listening to their demands and transmitting to them the government's reaction. But they are representatives of the government.

The terrorists previously refused to accept offers of mediation from moderate leaders of the South Moluccan community in The Netherlands.

Earlier today a Justice Ministry spokesman said the government was trying to get the terrorists to give up their guns as well as their hostages in exchange for a flight out of the country.

Officials said the Moluccans offered Monday to release their prisoners if they were supplied a plane to take them to another country. The Justice Ministry spokesman said the Moluccans were told they would have a better chance of getting a plane crew to take them if they also gave up their weapons.

The terrorists did not reply immediately, the spokesman said.

He said the Moluccans have made no mention for several days of their demand that 21 South Moluccans imprisoned for previous terrorist acts be allowed to leave the country with them. But "as far as we know they still want the release of the others," he added.

There was no indication where the Moluccans might want to go or that any country was willing to give them refuge. One unconfirmed report said they might ask to go to Vietnam, but a government spokesman said that destination had not been mentioned in the negotiations.

Seven to 10 Moluccan extremists are holding between 55 and 57 hostages on a commuter train they took over May 23 outside Assen, in northeast Holland, while four others are holding four teachers in the Bovenmilde elementary school 10 miles to the south. The terrorists in the school released 105 children last Thursday and Friday after many of them became ill with a stomach ailment.

Doctors said seven of the children were still hospitalized but would be sent home today or Wednesday.

Exchange Of Diplomats Is Offered Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cuban government is considering a U.S. proposal for an exchange of diplomats, a step that would draw the two neighbors closer than they have been for 16 years, but still leave them without full diplomatic relations.

The State Department confirmed the U.S. proposal on Monday. The confirmation came after U.S. officials traveling with First Lady Rosalynn Carter in Latin America revealed the suggestion was made during earlier talks on maritime issues.

President Carter, seeing his wife off at a Georgia airport on Monday at the start of her trip, said, "I think that we will have indications in the next few weeks of strengthened diplomatic relations with Cuba, far short of recognition." But Carter also cautioned against being "too optimistic."

The United States and Cuba, without diplomatic relations since 1961, completed negotiations earlier this year on a proposed treaty governing fishing limits for the two countries, separated by only 90 miles. Carter has submitted the treaty to Congress for action. A State Department official said the proposed exchange of diplomats was first broached by the United States during the maritime talks, first in New York in March and again in Havana last month.

The U.S. diplomats accompanying Mrs. Carter, on a 13-day tour of seven nations, said a written proposal submitted on May 10 dealt with establishing "consular interest sections" to allow the posting of diplomats at neutral embassies.

They said U.S. diplomats would work out of the Swiss embassy in Havana, while Cuban officials would be in the Czechoslovakian embassy in this country.

A similar arrangement was made between the American and Egyptian governments prior to their resumption of diplomatic relations in 1974.

Since the United States and Cuba broke relations, the Swiss embassy in Havana has been representing the U.S. government in Cuban affairs. The Czechoslovakian embassy in Washington has been representing Cuban interests here.

Seek Tragic Fire's Cause

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — The hunt for bodies has given way to a search for clues to the fire that in moments consumed the Beverly Hills Supper Club, killing at least 160 diners and nightclub patrons.

Late Monday, a giant crane began ripping down the brick and wood facade, finishing what the fire started.

It revealed the original colonial face of what had been one of the Midwest's slickest night-spots, perched on a 17-acre bluff across the Ohio River from Cincinnati. Officials got their first look inside the Zebra Room, just above where the fire is thought to have started in a basement boiler room area.

They saw rubble but no bodies. Red Cross volunteers standing by sighed in collective relief. It had been their job to put charred corpses into body bags before transport to a makeshift morgue in a nearby Fort Thomas, Ky., armory. Southgate Fire Chief Dick Riesenberger said he is "absolutely certain" the rubble will yield no more victims.

Kentucky Highway Patrol Commissioner Ken Brandenburg said families and friends had reported 58 persons missing by Monday. Of the 160 bodies found, 118 have been identified.

"I don't know yet how many of the still unidentified dead will be on that missing list, but the fact that there are more people listed as missing than there are unidentified bodies does not necessarily mean there are still some victims left in the club," he said.

"Some of those reported missing may simply not have made contact with their relatives as yet."

Brandenburg, who is coordinating the investigation, added, "You can't expect us to come up with any possible explanations until at least the end of the week." The cause of a 1970 blaze that destroyed an older club on the site was never determined.

Investigators have tentatively ruled out arson and earlier theories that the fire started in a basement generator or leaking oil tank, but have no explanation as to why the fire spread so quickly.

Some survivors said the flames flashed through air conditioning ducts and broke out through all the walls simultaneously.

"They told us to leave. We got up. We noticed smoke, and then, wham, fire all around," said a survivor from the Cabaret Room, where singer John Davidson was to have performed moments after the fire routed a crowd of at least 1,000 Saturday night.

Regular Inspection Of Local Clubs Hopefully Will Prevent Disaster

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Regular inspections for fire hazards and building defects, and pre-fire planning by firemen, hopefully will prevent a disaster here similar to the one which took at least 160 lives in Southgate, Ky., when a night club burned Saturday night.

"Some people say we're too hard. I don't think so," Alton Warren, the city's inspections chief said today.

"After a fire, it's too late then," Warren said. That's why the city's building and fire prevention inspectors make regular checks of the night spots in Greenville.

Generally, inspections are made jointly by the building and fire prevention inspectors, although at times, the bars and other night spots are checked independently by each division.

In addition to looking for structural defects, building inspectors check electrical wiring, fire exits, storage areas and emergency lighting in local night spots.

The city's chief fire inspector, Jerry McLawhorn said fire prevention inspections of local night spots also include checks for wiring defects and unobstructed exits, but things such as trash build-up and other things as well.

Overcrowding of the facilities is checked by both inspection agencies, Warren noted, during unannounced spot checks at night when most of the businesses are in full operation.

State law, he said, allows operators of bars with no moveable seating to have one person for each six square feet of floor space. Establishments with moveable seats have to allow 15 square feet of space for each patron. And the capacity of the building is posted so patrons can see how many people are allowed inside, Warren said.

Club operators many times count the number of persons entering the building so as not to overcrowd the club, Warren indicated.

Sprinkler systems are not required for the establishments, Warren said, but all night spots in Greenville have two-hour fire rated ceilings designed to retard the spread of flames if a fire does erupt.

In the past Warren said, clubs have been closed here for overcrowding and for having exit doors locked. "We try to make them comply. After a fire, it's too late," he emphasized.

Both Warren and McLawhorn said their enforcement powers include the right to remedy any violation of fire or building code regulations in any manner they see fit, including closing a night club on the spot if, in their opinion, the violation is a serious one.

If the violation represents no immediate threat to the public safety, then club operators may be taken to court.

However, Warren said "bars in Greenville have really cooperated with us 100 per cent. We are well pleased with the condition of the bars."

He said another enforcement tool involves the club's beer license review by the City Council on an annual basis. "If we have repeated problems with one business," and nothing is done, we can recommend to the council that the license not be renewed.

Fire Chief Ray Smith said

Russia Still Testing Anti-Satellite Weapons

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's latest test of a satellite destroying weapon, conducted despite an appeal from President Carter for a ban on such weapons, ended in apparent failure, U.S. intelligence sources believe.

A Soviet interceptor satellite went past its target satellite at a distance of less than 50 miles in the test last week, Russia's first in about five months, the sources say.

U.S. experts acknowledge it is difficult to tell whether such a test is a success or a failure without knowing Soviet technical objectives at the current stage of development. But U.S. study of the results has produced a consensus that the

May 23 intercept test failed.

Based on the pattern of past Soviet tests, American analysts believe Russians are trying to perfect a close approach technique.

So far, it is believed, the Russians have not attempted to destroy a target satellite in five tests over the past year and a half.

Officials said the Soviets have not tried to hit any American satellites, but have confined their tests to all-Russian space vehicles.

But the resumption of Russian anti-satellite flight tests in 1976 after a four-year lapse has aroused concern among U.S. officials. Three of last year's Russian tests were rated probable successes, the fourth one a failure.

Carter, reflecting U.S. concern, said at a news conference on March 9, "I have suggested (to the Russians) that we forego the opportunity to arm satellite bodies and also to forego the opportunity to destroy observation satellites."

Observation satellites are used by both countries to monitor each other's military developments, including testing of strategic weapons, missile base construction and other important indicators.

Such spy satellites are considered essential in assuring compliance with agreements to limit strategic nuclear weapons.

The 1972 U.S.-Soviet SALT agreement bars interference with reconnaissance satellites, but that agreement is due to expire Oct. 3.

Resumption of Soviet anti-satellite tests has spurred increased U.S. space defense spending. The budget for such work has been doubled for next fiscal year to about $1.26 billion.

Much of the U.S. effort is aimed at enabling American satellites to maneuver out of harm's way and at "hardening" them against blinding or neutralization by laser beams or radiations from nuclear weapon explosions.

U.S. scientists also are working on a U.S. system to knock out Soviet satellites, a project still in the research stage. The first flight tests are at least three years away and the first deployment may be possible in five years.

Heavy Rains Deter Jamaican Tour By First Lady

Demonstrated Professional Help For Communicative 'Disorders'

May has been observed in Pitt County Schools as Better Hearing and Speech Month. The month has been filled with numerous events to inform the children and the public about hearing and speech problems and where to go for help. The theme used for the month was "Human Communication: The Key To Life".

An estimated 10 per cent of the people in Pitt County suffer from hearing and speech problems. Communicative disorders constitute our number one handicapping disability, affecting more than 22 million Americans nationally, according to clinicians.

The Better Hearing Speech Month activities were geared toward informing the public because many people who suffer from a communicative disorder will not seek professional assistance.

Three Pitt County clinicians involved students in most of the elementary schools in learning more about language, speech and hearing. Students were visited in their classes by the clinicians who presented lessons about the speech and hearing process and the recognition of communicative disorders. Posters and bulletin boards were displayed to emphasize the theme.

Books were displayed in the media centers to supplement the presentations made by the clinicians. In addition, clinicians screened hearing in fifth and seventh grades, appeared on television talk shows, talked with PTA groups, made intercom announcements in the mornings and continued treatment sessions with those already identified as communicatively disordered in the Pitt County Schools.

Special activities were conducted in the Occupations Lab at Bethel Elementary School. The students were informed about the profession of Speech Pathology and Audiology. Some students participated in the hearing screening procedure. A film entitled The Alphabet Conspiracy was shown to seventh and eighth graders.

Other events involving Pitt County and other agencies included attendance at the ECU Speech and Hearing Symposium and a poster contest in cooperation with the Greenville City Schools.

For further information about speech and hearing disorders or the role of the clinicians in the Pitt County schools contact the clinicians at the Media Resource Center in Winterville at 756-1622.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Heavy rains that reportedly took the lives of at least six Jamaicans wiped out Rosalynn Carter's chance to meet with sugar cane cutters and wield a machete today.

Instead of touring a sugar plantation cooperative in the countryside, the First Lady was visiting the Central Kingston Upgrading Project, a program aimed at improving conditions in the slums of the Jamaican capital.

Mrs. Carter on Monday spent the first day of her seven-nation Latin American swing at official receptions and high-level meetings with government officials, discussing such subjects as Cuba, Jamaica's economic crisis — and the rain.

The heavy rain, which started as a "mixed May blessing" several days ago, has affected a large area of the Caribbean. Besides the six persons reported killed in flooding, hundreds were made homeless by the torrential downpours.

On her way from the Kingston airport Monday, Mrs. Carter was mobbed by an enthusiastic crush of children, and Prime Minister Michael Manley stopped her car briefly so she could greet the youngsters, who had been let out of school for her arrival.

A light drizzle was falling as Mrs. Carter arrived from Georgia, and Manley apologized for the lack of sun. But he said since his guest came from a farming community, she "would appreciate that rain after three years of drought was a very good thing for Jamaica."

The weather shrank the number of invited guests at an official outdoor dinner party at the prime minister's home from more than 200 to fewer than 50 and forced them inside. But Mrs. Carter said she'd like to take some of the rain home to Georgia, "where we've had to stop planting peanuts because of the drought."

The First Lady had a three-hour working lunch with Manley and leading members of his government. She said she covered all the issues listed in her notebook for discussion — Cuba, the Panama Canal, energy, trade policies, human rights and Jamaica's economic problems.

Mrs. Carter said she was "really pleased" with the conversation, which her press secretary, Mary Hoyt, described as "brisk, candid, informal and substantive."

Relations between the Jamaican government and the Nixon and Ford administrations were rocky because of Manley's socialist policies and his close ties with Fidel Castro's Communist regime in Cuba. But Assistant Secretary of State Terence Todman, who is traveling with Mrs. Carter, said that close association enabled the Jamaicans to provide information that would be "extremely useful" in the future normalization of relations between the United States and Cuba.

Todman said as a followup to their recent fishing agreement, the U.S. and Cuban governments were discussing exchanging small, lower-level diplomatic delegations as a step toward full relations.

Mrs. Carter also took a complimentary line toward Manley's socialism, telling him in her arrival remarks at the airport: "You have roused the admiration of the people of our country by your democratic achievements."

Couple Exchanges Vows On Saturday Morning

HICKORY POINT — In a Saturday morning ceremony, Nancy Jane Hooker and Belvin Maynard Tucker Jr. pledged their marriage vows before the Rev. Philip Keel, Aurora Methodist Church, and the Rev. John Yount, a former minister of the church.

The ceremony took place at 10 o'clock in a double ring ceremony at the summer home of the bride's parents at Hickory Point.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carr Hooker Sr. of Aurora, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Earl Curry of Cleveland, Ohio, and the late Mr. Belvin M. Tucker of Greenville.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Joe Galloway.

The lawn was decorated with a register table with a portrait of the bride and a brandy snifter centered with a bridal candle and lily-of-the-valley. A white prie-dieu was flanked by baskets of spring flowers. Tall globe candleholders with white lighted candles tied with satin marked family pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of silk organza over peau de soie. The bodice was covered with re-embroidered chantilly lace with a seed pearl design at the sweetheart neckline. The A-line skirt was floor length with two bands of alencon lace on the bottom. The shepherds sleeves, with deep cuffs, had lace motifs with pearl designs.

Her veil was a cathedral length mantilla of silk illusion bordered with alencon lace and pearls attached to a Juliet cap of malace with pearl trim. Her jewelry included a cultured pearl and amethyst lavalier and pearl earrings worn by her grandmothers, Mrs. W. A. Thompson Sr. and Mrs. Helen Hooker, respectively, on their wedding days. She carried a nosegay with touches of blue tied with white and blue ribbon.

The maid of honor was Miss Keenan Lazzo of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Jane Buck, Aurora, Tess Hammond, Greenville, and Mrs. Nellie Ann Mills Carter, Morehead. They wore formal gowns of blue interlocked polyester with an empire waistline. They wore pastel flowered overblouses tied at the waist and blue horsehair picture hats with streamers. Their nosegays were of pastel summer flowers fashioned like the bride's.

Ronnie Brothers, Aurora, served as best man and ushers were John Carr Hooker Jr., Joseph L. Hooker and William N. Hooker II, brothers of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of maize chiffon with a jeweled yoke. She wore a yellow cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom was dressed in a light green floor length polyester gown with full sleeves. She wore a white cymbidium orchid.

Grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Lula Vendrick, Aurora, and Mrs. Gladys Irene Harris, Greenville, were presented white orchids.

The bride is a student at Pitt Technical Institute. The bridegroom has studied at ECU and Pitt Tech. He is currently head of the Solid Waste Department of Pitt County.

Mrs. Marcia Bennett, Aurora, assisted the wedding party during the ceremony.

For a wedding trip to Mount Mitchell, the bride changed into an off-white quiana lace trimmed pant suit and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will reside in Ayden.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents.

Summer arrangements and potted plants were used throughout the outside area, where the receiving line formed. Magnolia leaves with pine and burning tapers were used in the dining room.

The bride's table, covered with a hand-crocheted cloth, was centered with a magnolia candelier with lighted candles. Mrs. Eleanor Henries, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs.

Neighbor Has Unusual Pasttime

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a six-unit apartment house that is small, so we have gotten to know our neighbors.

My next-door neighbor is my problem. It seems that his biggest enjoyment in life is going through the trash barrels that sit on the side of our apartment building. These barrels contain the trash of everyone residing in this building, including my own.

How do I deal with this annoying situation?

N. HOLLYWOOD

DEAR NORTH: I fail to see how your neighbor's fascination with his neighbors' trash could present a "problem" to you. If it's his "biggest enjoyment in life," why not regard it as a weird and somewhat childish pleasure, and let it go at that.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old liberated woman. I've tried sex and I don't dislike it, but it's not worth all the trouble.

Sex never was a very important part of my life, but most people think there is something wrong with a person who doesn't have a strong sex drive.

I am not frigid; I am very affectionate. I can lie in my lover's arms and enjoy the feeling of closeness, but if it doesn't culminate in the sex act, it's all right with me.

Am I weird? Or do you understand what I'm saying?

CONTENT

DEAR CONTENT: I understand what you're saying, and you are NOT weird. I think you are an intelligent, honest woman who values love above sex. No need to apologize for it.

DEAR ABBY: I clipped and saved the above from your column because I felt exactly the way CONTENT felt, and I applauded your answer.

I am a woman in my 50s, married 25 years, and I have a happy home and family life with my husband and three college-age children.

Knowing that a 36-year-old woman also felt that sex isn't worth the trouble gave me a great deal of comfort. So much emphasis is placed on sex these days that one gets the feeling that it is the ultimate in a relationship, and that love, understanding and affection are not enough.

How about running a survey, Abby? It would be interesting to find out how many women (and men) feel that sex is not really worth the trouble. Let's hear it from...

THE AFFECTIONATE SILENT MAJORITY

DEAR SILENT: Were I to ask my readers for responses to the question of how men and women feel about the importance of sex, the results would not be conclusive because: (a) those who readily volunteer information about their sex lives tend to be exhibitionists and therefore not typical; (b) I suspect that people lie about their sex lives more than any other subject.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PHILOSOPHY MAJOR": Schopenhauer, the great philosopher, said: "It is easy to let the adulation of the Dicty make amends for the lack of proper behavior towards men. And so we see that in all times and in all countries, the great majority of mankind find it easier to beg their way into heaven by prayers than to deserve to go there by their actions."

Miss Katherine Leggett Weds

WILLIAMSTON — The marriage of Miss Katherine Marie Leggett and William Joseph Wahl Jr. took place in a three o'clock ceremony Saturday, May 21, in the First Christian Church here.

The Rev. Claude MacDonald and F. Torrence Osgood officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Garland V. Thomas, organist. Mrs. James C. Pfohl, voice instructor of ACC, was soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled in cluny lace. The fitted empire bodice was styled in a bib effect with a sheer English net insert beaded in a cameo design with scattered bridal pearls. Panels of beaded lace trimmed in ruffled cluny lace outlined the bib effect and were featured on the bishop sleeves with matching lace trim. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train repeated panels of the lace.

Saffron is expensive, so try adding a little turmeric to yeast dough that you want to look golden in color. Turmeric, instead of saffron, may also be added to rice for "yellow" rice. Turmeric is, of course, much less expensive than saffron.

I sat next to a really neat lady at a luncheon the other week who got to talking about braces on the teeth... hers.

She said, "How come you never mentioned my braces?"

I stared awkwardly into her fruit cocktail and said, "I don't know... I guess I didn't want to make you self-conscious."

"I'm not," she said. "You are. It's funny, kids are great about it. They'll come right up and say, 'When do they come off?' or 'Wouldn't you kill for a caramel?' but not adults. They act like they don't see them."

It occurred to me adults are that way about a lot of things. People make such a flap about face and body lifts. I personally considered Eleanor Roosevelt the most beautiful woman I ever met, but if something bothers you and you can still get the parts, I say go for it!

Or, as a wise friend of mine once said, "To heck with my ironing board, let's put the silicone right up front where everyone can see it."

There is something admirable about a woman (or man) who works on perpetual maintenance. My mother-in-law went through extensive and expensive bridge work at the age of 74. Another woman in her 60s got a face lift and it made such a difference to her. Too often, we're intimidated by age. Everything becomes predictable. At age 20, the teeth go, at 30, the skin dries up, at 40, the eyes dim, at 50, all the muscles relax and bag around your knees, and at 60 you fall asleep during a tax audit.

I defy you to gather together a group of women (or men) and find one who is totally happy with the way she looks. One friend of mine confessed she hated her nose.

"What's wrong with it?" I asked, "it works, doesn't it?"

"That's not the point," she said. "It looks like George C. Scott's."

"So?"

"So, I can't act."

She had the nose altered and I swear I never saw the difference, but she did.

The mind is also not exempt from the self-improvement route. People who are college graduates are the first to admit it's overrated. I knew people who graduated with honors who couldn't operate a pay toilet. But another friend of mine lived for the day when she could enroll in the university and unlock the doors of ignorance.

Whatever stands in the way of your self-confidence... whether it's an overbite, toeing inward, a 30-pound honker, hips like saddlebags, weak eyes, a quest for Thoreau, wrinkle city, hamster hair or a concave chest, fix it.

I know I never started to live until I lost 10 pounds... five off of each upper arm.

Bergland's Reassuring Words

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland was reassuring to farmers in a talk to members of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. in Raleigh last week.

He assured them that "talk of eliminating the farm programs begun in the 1930s is nonsense."

Bergland described the price support program as essential since weather conditions and international markets can't be predicted.

"I've been farming 27 years and I've had average weather for two years," he quipped.

Bergland expressed an interest in learning all he could about tobacco and said he would support tobacco's role in the Food for Peace program.

"So long as there are countries that want to buy the tobacco, we are prepared to finance it," he declared.

The secretary's approach to farm programs in general and tobacco in particular seems positive to us.

There are those who don't understand the farm programs. They should, however, be able to understand that we have the most productive farming sector the world has ever known. If they understand this, they should recognize that government farm programs have played a part in it.

Opportunities Awaiting ECU Grads

Some 2,900 graduates participated in ceremonies at ECU Sunday afternoon.

They heard Troy Pate, chairman of the ECU board of trustees, urge on them a commitment to a "life of good leadership and unselfish aims."

The graduates represent probably the greatest diversity of programs of any who have ever graduated from ECU. And they have as great an opportunity for service as any group which has ever graduated.

We wish them all well as they begin their careers.

Legislators Are To Blame

By BILL NOBLITT
(First of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — Members of the North Carolina General Assembly regularly try to point the finger of guilt at various places for the runaway growth in the state's bureaucracy.

The legislators would like to blame the governor (the present Democratic one, or the previous Republican one); or "public demand for service," or political trickery on the part of this or that state agency chief.

In truth, a minority of lawmakers will confess, the blame lies only in the General Assembly where whatever else is done, legislators must ultimately approve budget requests, or say no.

The problem is legislators—being political animals—are most reluctant to say no. Refusing a request makes somebody angry. And once a given state program (with resulting employees and offices and equipment) is established, it is even more difficult to cut it back.

No Courage

"We have nobody but ourselves to blame. We don't have the kinds of leaders who are willing to stand up on that floor in full public view and accept the responsibility we don't have the courage," says State Senator I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe.

Crawford has for several years spearheaded a study commission called the Governmental Operations Commission. Over the years, that study group has produced some astounding information: roadside restrooms costing a million dollars each; the state's advertising agency charging for work not done; dollars wasted on unneeded consulting jobs; duplication of architect and engineering fees in state building; misuse of millions of dollars collected by various agencies in public receipts, but not reported through the regular budgetary process, among others.

Crawford and members of his study commission made some efforts to expand the operation, but with little success. At one point legislation was introduced to give the commission teeth, and a companion measure called the Executive Budget Act would have brought the governor and top agency people (who objected loudly) more directly under legislative scrutiny. Neither was adopted.

Those efforts took place while Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser was in office, and objections often centered around the appearance of legislative power grabbed from the executive for political purposes.

Now, with Democratic Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. in office, there is even more reluctance to meddle with the structure of the balance between legislative and executive branches.

Sleeping Giant

But the net result, some lawmakers now concur, is a Legislature which is a "sleeping giant" not exercising the powers available to it; not really performing its duty in terms of oversight in government.

The pressures on legislators to continue this course are many: state employees in ever-increasing numbers—and teachers among them—are better organized and politically savvy, with clout at the voting booths; agency people have all day every day to scheme up ways to get their programs past the unwary, ill-informed, often disinterested legislator; politics is an ego thing, and allowing staff to do the work is simply not one of the things which lawmakers appreciate.

What has happened in state government? The growth is astonishing, as can be seen in one simple fact: In 1970-71, North Carolina spent $939 million from the general fund. This fiscal year, expenditures will be $1.9 billion from the general fund—in just six years, the general fund budget has increased more than a billion dollars; more than doubling. Add highway, federal and other funds for the total state budget, and the increase in just six years has been $1.8 billion.

Some legislators are now convinced that the responsibility to bring this kind of growth under control must be exercised by the General Assembly.

Texas-Sized Grievance

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

HOUSTON, TEXAS — The Texas Hospital Association staged a Texas-sized convention here last week, and the five thousand members and associates came to town with a Texas-sized grievance. They were sore at Joe Califano and at Jimmy Carter also. Let me sort out the rights and wrongs.

A month or so ago, the President sent a special message to Congress asking for legislation to contain the costs of hospitalization. Mr. Carter proposed to put a ceiling on the annual increase in hospital revenues. His formula is complex, and in some areas almost incomprehensible, but generally it would limit hospitals to a 9 percent increase in the 1977-78 fiscal year. Secretary Califano was on the Hill last week testifying eloquently in support of the plan.

There is much that is right in Mr. Carter's effort. Secretary Califano says the increase in hospital costs is "outrageous," which is perhaps a mite strong, but the increase is plainly disturbing. By some accounts, hospitalization costs have increased by 1,000 percent since 1950. The White House looks back 25 years, when a typical hospital room was $16 a day. Now that same room goes for $154 to $175 a day.

Costs are soaring in every area of health care. By HEW estimates, Americans spent $139.3 billion in the 1976 fiscal year on drugs, doctors, hospitals, nursing homes and related expenses. That was an increase of $17 billion over the preceding year. Costs continue to mount by more than a billion dollars a month. Within five years, if these increases cannot be checked, the total will double — to about $280 billion. And the largest item in this stunning total is the hospital bill. Mr. Carter is quite right: Something has to be done.

But the Texas hospital administrators are equally right in their protest that Mr. Carter's bill is the wrong way to go about it. What Mr. Carter is attempting, they contend, is the kind of half-baked price control that never has worked and can't possibly work.

The cost of a hospital stay embraces all kinds of expenses. O. Ray Hurst, president of the Texas association, asks indignantly what Messrs. Carter and Califano propose to do about the wages of hospital employees. Are these to be frozen? What are the hospitals expected to do about the soaring costs of food, fuel, telephones and electric power? What about the built-in cost of malpractice insurance?

Don Cosper, administrator of Physicians and Surgeons Hospital in Irving, says flatly that the President's cost containment act "won't work." Salesmen have been quoting 15 percent increases on his supplies. A shortage of trained nurses results in steady increases in the nursing salaries that have to be paid. If Congress imposes a 9 percent "cap," services will have to be cut back.

The Texas administrators have a further complaint. The Carter plan, in their view, would penalize the frugal and efficient hospitals, while rewarding those institutions that have failed to run a tight ship. The Texans are proud of their record. Two years ago the association created a Statewide Hospital Productivity Center. Its purpose was to find managerial ways of cutting costs. The program still has a long way to go, but some tangible results already can be observed. Costs of hospitalization nationally average about 20 percent higher than the same costs in Texas. Mr. Hurst puts the demonstrable savings in 18 months at approximately $28 million.

What the Texans fear — and the fear is shared by

Travel Rules Eased

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for summer vacation, new rules are going into effect permitting travelers on most overseas flights to carry a lot more luggage.

Beginning Wednesday, free baggage allowances on most flights will be based on the number of pieces a passenger is carrying and on their size rather than on weight, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

Passengers holding first-class tickets will be allowed two bags, each limited in size to no more than 62 inches, plus a 45-inch carry-on bag. The size of a bag is the sum of its length, width and depth.

Economy-class passengers can check two free bags, totaling 106 inches, provided that neither exceeds 62 inches. They also are entitled to a 45-inch carry-on piece of luggage.

Based on standard baggage sizes, the total of 106 inches would permit a passenger to carry free of charge a man's two-suit and a three-suit. The 45-incher would match bags designed to fit snugly under an aircraft seat.

Present free baggage allowances on overseas flights limit first-class passengers to 66 pounds and economy class to 44 pounds. In the latter case, that usually limits a passenger to one checked bag and one small carry-on.

For several years, U.S. airlines have permitted travelers on domestic and Caribbean flights two large checked bags and one carry-on, with no weight restriction.

The new rules apply to most countries, but exclude travel between the United States and countries in Central and South America. A CAB spokesman said several Latin American airlines are declining to participate because they can make money on excess baggage charges.

Other countries not participating are the United Kingdom, Spain, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Iran, Yugoslavia, Nigeria, the

THE INSIDE REPORT

Warsaw Pact Build-Up?

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Unquestionably prodded by the successful, early May London meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), Moscow-dominated Warsaw Pact countries of Eastern Europe have already held one four-day session in Prague and scheduled another for June 1, site unknown.

The Prague session was privately billed by Communist operatives as a "business as usual" chat. However, Communist and Western experts are certain the major purpose was to review NATO's new goal for 3 per cent higher NATO spending annually to start the long process of building the alliance's conventional military power somewhat closer to the Warsaw Pact's.

Under Moscow's whiplash, the Warsaw Pact states now have the highest conventional strength ever, particularly in forward-based arms and supply depots that may have made NATO vulnerable to "blitzkrieg" attack.

A key objective of the NATO commander, Gen. Alexander Haig, is to bring "front line" British and Dutch units forward to permanent positions far closer to the real Central European front on the West German plain. That plan is designed to thwart a lightning Communist strike into Western Europe that would quickly outflank NATO forces assigned to "front line" duty, but in fact positioned far behind the front.

As usual, no announcement was made about the Prague meeting. But its military intent, according to experts, was to consider leapfrogging the new NATO decision by an immediate increase in its own strength.

The June 1 Communist session will bring foreign ministers of the Warsaw Pact together, probably for another strategy preview of the Belgrade conference next month, a follow-up to the Helsinki agreement of 1975.

'CARTER'S CONGRESS'?

The abysmal failure of President Carter to compromise his bitter struggle with Congress over those 18 unwanted water projects reached a humiliating peak when not one of the 37 Democrats on the House Appropriations Committee spoke in his defense Wednesday when the committee approved 17 of the projects.

Moreover, the White House made not the slightest effort to win economy-minded Republicans to the President's side. Neither Rep. Elford Cederberg of Michigan, ranking committee Republican, nor Rep. John Myers of Indiana senior Republican on the public works subcommittee, has ever met any member of the overworked White House lobby staff. Neither was asked for help on the water projects.

More worrisome for Mr. Carter was the silence of his own Democrats despite his ardent appeals for help — at least four separate appeals to Rep. Tom Bevill of Alabama, chairman of the public works subcommittee. Although a presidential veto of the bill is not certain (the Senate may cut three or four additional projects when it acts on the bill), Republicans are salivating at the prospect.

"What we are soon going to be witnessing," Cederberg told us, "is Jimmy Carter running against his own Congress." That prospect also worries House Democratic leaders, headed by Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill and majority leader Jim Wright, who have repeatedly warned Jimmy Carter they do not relish the idea of the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress overriding the first veto of a new Democratic President.

To the editor:

President Carter recently signed the Public Works Job Bill which has as one of its major provisions the intention to create jobs for America's youth. There is unquestionably a need to relieve youth unemployment. Many of this country's young people have talents and skills which can possibly cure some of our society's ills; moreover, many of today's youth would like to make a viable contribution to their country.

Although money is urgently needed for youth to locate employment, a feature article in U. S. News and World Report within the last month indicates various jobs are available for which the young can work, but refuse. Positions as gardeners and as blue-collar workers are plentiful in most areas of this nation. However, many youth feel too proud and too educated to work with their hands and to get their bodies sweaty. Thus, they prefer to remain unemployed and to receive welfare, rather than to accept gainful employment, and therein develop pride in doing a job well.

Pres. Carter and the Congress can set forth legislation to make youth the beneficiaries of jobs for as long as federal funds last. But until we citizens at the local levels instill in our children, our neighbors, our friends and our students the value that it is more blessed to earn a living than it is to rip the system off, inflation will continually exist, unemployment will remain high and the future generation of Americans will be one which lacks knowing the value of an honest day's work.

40 Years Ago Today

May 31, 1937

At least 19 persons, including five women and a child, were killed today in a German bombardment of Almeria, Spain, "without warning," official Spanish sources declared.

A hasty survey of the wreckage left by the shells from five German war vessels counted at least 55 persons injured, 34 homes destroyed and eight others badly damaged.

More than 200 shells were pumped into the city, exploding in various quarters, the reports said.

The 1937 commencement exercises for the High School got off to a good start last night with the sermon by the Rev. Thomas Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The music provided by the High School Glee Club and Mixed Chorus was declared especially good.

The exercises were presided over by J.H. Rose, superintendent of the school.

CHRISTIANITY NEAR DEMISE?

Someone once said to the English man of letters, Thomas Carlyle, "Don't you know that Christianity is on its last legs?" "Oh yes," replied Carlyle, "I know; but Christianity is always on its last legs."

By this he probably meant two things. In the first place, people have been prophesying for the last 2,000 years that the Christian church was on the verge of demise. In the second place, Carlyle probably meant that there is never a day when Christianity is not perilously near defeat.

Morally, you and I walk along the edge of a precipice almost every day of our lives. Just as some countries of the third world are perilously near starvation at some periods of the year, so the human race is perilously near spiritual starvation all the time. When the forces of good win over the forces of evil, they win by a narrow margin.

But it is a victory no less, and there will be many others if we do our part.

Economists Are Conservative

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and others warn that the country could soon be overrun by lawyers, but nobody seems to warn about a similar threat from the economists.

Once somewhat removed from the decision-making process in many companies, economists today are in a position to greatly influence management decisions. They have made their place in the corporate hierarchy.

At the same time, it might be argued, business seems to have become more timid, reminded by its economic seers how fearsome is the future, how filled with traps for those who charge ahead.

There is the danger of rising interest rates, of resurging inflation, of re-emerging recession. There is the uncertainty about Federal Reserve policy, tax policy, energy policy, regulatory policy.

The future once meant proceed to the next opportunity. Now it's a red light. Economists often control that light.

Generally called upon today to be forecasters, economists are little more qualified than anyone else. First, economists always see the dangers ahead; second, they see the dangers to themselves in being bullish.

Bullishness calls for capital commitments, for expansion and modernization to meet the coming demand. If the demand isn't forthcoming, the economist might as a consequence find himself departing.

Safety, personal and corporate, demands that forecasters be restrained, and they are. But great companies never were built on caution. And equally cautious are economists' first cousins, the stock market analysts.

Except for a relatively few stocks that individual brokers are pushing — brokers are always suggesting certain stocks for purchase, even in poor markets, because that's the way they make a living — analysts of late have been timid.

They have been telling the big institutions to be prudent, which is to say, be cautious. Whereas risk-taking always has been the vitality of strong markets, the analysts now say the conservative, balanced portfolio is to be sought.

If you add to the fears of economists and analysts the belief of some regulators that any innovation can be challenged in the name of justice or equality or environment, you have a grim picture.

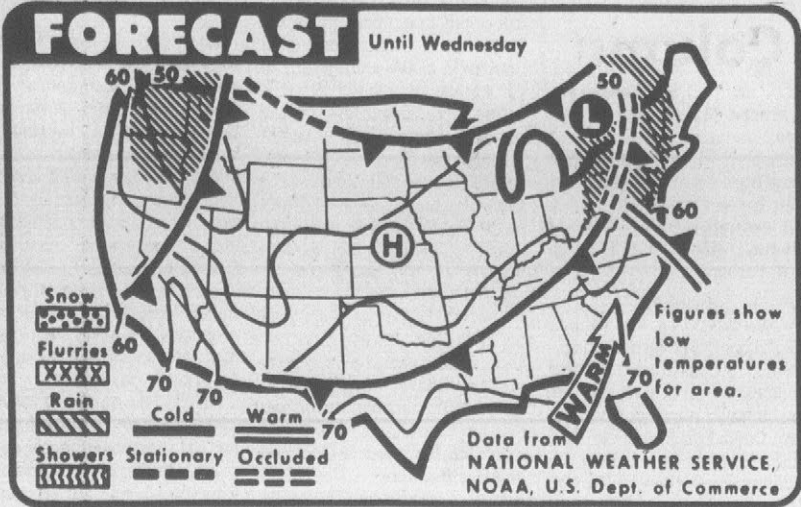

You might even wonder how anyone can do anything. You might wonder if the people are fighting themselves in an undeclared and unrecognized civil war.

Whereas economists sometimes make brilliant insights into the affairs of man, they don't always recognize the virtues of man. You may be sure they'll seldom overestimate his capacity; his capacity for innovation, for example.

Working with numbers that disguise the purpose of their work, which is man, they are inclined to merely project what is now or was in the past into the future. No wonder so many forecasters are grim, that they lack faith.

But above all, economists are cautious, often failing to appreciate that life is synonymous with risk, and that risk can be eliminated only with death.

theless worried ten select Senators when he gave them a description of what he said was worrying the Kremlin. The description came May 19 when senior Senators of both parties were called to the White House to discuss the latest phase of strategic arms talks (SALT). Mr. Carter revealed nothing specific about Geneva but he did discuss the general international climate — including alleged Soviet concerns. The President said the Russians were worried about U.S. "first-strike capability" — that is, U.S. ability to hit the Soviet Union with so much nuclear force it could not retaliate. In fact, the U.S. is not close to such capability, and the Russians know it. Mr. Carter next suggested that the Kremlin is deeply worried about revived German militarism. That echoed a familiar Soviet propaganda theme even further removed from reality than U.S. first-strike capability. "This was not the time or place to argue with the President," one defense-minded Senator told us. "But I, for one, was worried." When Mr. Carter's remarks were followed by news accounts that the Russians fear the mysterious new first-strike capability, some Senators began to suspect a plot hatched by Mr. Carter's disarmament advisers. Its purpose: to soften the way for major SALT concessions. A footnote: At the May 19 meeting several Senators told the President they saw no need for a quick SALT agreement and urged him to stand fast. Although liberals were present, no dissenting view was expressed.

hospital administrators everywhere — is that the proposed 9 percent ceiling is only the beginning of total federal control over their operations. Already their institutions must divert substantial sums merely to the preparation and filing of various federal forms. The hospitals depend heavily upon Medicaid and Medicare payments. Said one administrator, who acknowledged that he feared reprisals if he were identified, "if Joe Califano wants to know why our costs are so high, let him look in the mirror: The federal government is more to blame than any other factor." Sorting out the rights and wrongs isn't easy. Beyond doubt, many hospitals have let their costs get out of hand. They have bought expensive equipment that is too seldom used. They have kept patients extra days merely to collect additional income. They have over-built: Every day 100,000 hospital rooms in the nation are vacant. As one consequence, hospitals and doctors alike have attracted public animosity. It's an unhappy situation — but it isn't likely to be corrected by Dr. Carter's one-way plaster cast on hospital income.

Have-Not Countries Cautioned

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Sen. Jacob Javits warned the Third World today to react "with reasonableness" to the Carter administration's offers or risk losing the sympathy of the American people. The New York Republican and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., both defended the administration against complaints from underdeveloped nations that it is offering them nothing new to solve their basic economic problems. The senators, who are attending the 27-nation "North-South" Conference on International Economic Cooperation, said the developing nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America need to understand that the new administration cannot act overnight. "You can't solve all these problems in two days," said Ribicoff. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, in a speech at the opening of the three-day conference Monday, said the United States would support creation of a fund and reserve stocks to stabilize the prices of some raw materials produced by the developing nations. He also pledged a $375 million contribution to the $1 billion program proposed by Britain to aid the poorest nations. And he called for the 18-month-old negotiations between the industrialized and underdeveloped nations to continue instead of ending Wednesday with the conclusion of the current session as planned.

"We have heard no new proposals, no counter-offers to what we have put on the table," said Messaoud Ait Chahal of Algeria, the most militant of the 19 underdeveloped nations at the talks. "I am not pessimistic because I have never been optimistic about the outcome," he added. Vance's proposals in effect rejected the poor nations' demands for a moratorium on their foreign debts, the pegging of prices paid them for their raw materials to the prices of the manufactured goods they import from the industrial world and a new international economic order that will promise them steady improvement in their situation.

Lion-Hunt In Old Stores

LONDON (AP) — Maurice Hopkins' search for a very special lion has taken him into the deepest, darkest and dustiest recesses of London's antique stores. But the safari has yielded no sign of the lion that killed Hopkins' uncle back in 1894. The lion is stuffed. The maneater has become something of a holy grail to the retired London businessman. The family tale began in 1894 along the shores of Lake Nyasa, which now divides Malawi and Mozambique. Hopkins' uncle, Dr. Elrington Francis McKay, was out hunting one day when he and the golden beast tangled. McKay, although mortally wounded, managed to shoot the lion. When the doctor died a few days later the dead jungle cat was stuffed, sent back to England — and lost. Another uncle learned of the lion's whereabouts during World War II but lost track of the stuffed beast before the family could buy it.

Your biggest investment: How to improve on it.

If you're like most people, your home is your biggest investment. All told, you've got thousands upon thousands of dollars involved. And, since you've got so much in it, it makes sense to improve on your investment. (It can also be much more economical than moving.) Maybe your house needs repairs. Maybe you need another room. Considering the winter we had, maybe you should improve your insulation and add storm windows to hold down utility bills. Here's an idea of some costs.

FIXING UP YOUR HOME: WHAT IT COSTS
Remodel Bathroom	$1,000-$3,000
Remodel Kitchen	$3,000-$6,000
Adding a 12 x 15 Room	$6,000-$8,000
12 x 18 Patio	$1,500-$2,000
Attached Garage, 12 x 24	$2,500-$5,000
Replace Plumbing Pipes	$1,000-$2,000
Replace Furnace	$700-$1,500
Attic Insulation	$250-$500
Storm Windows	$20-$40 each
New Roof	$1,000-$1,500
Enclose Side Porch, 8 x 15	$1,800-$3,000

The range of prices depends on the extent of the job you want done. Estimates are for finished job, including labor. These are average figures; the location, size and age of your house might mean higher or lower estimates.

Any of these improvements can pay off in your home's increased value, and, at NCNB, we'll be happy to help with the money you need. Because, as a homeowner, you've proven that you know how to handle credit. So come see us. Let's talk over what you want to do, and the best way of doing it. It could be a Personal Loan, or it may be an NCNB Homeowner Loan, with lower monthly payments, over a longer period. Either way, the people who make loans at NCNB will work with you to help improve the investment you have in your home. After all, that's the basic idea of 'Cash-Flow' Banking: information, services and people to help you in making the most of the money you make. And the money you borrow.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a broad loss today, picking up where it left off before the extended Memorial Day weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed below 900 Friday for the first time in more than 16 months, dropped another 3.99 to 894.84 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading increased to a moderate pace. First-hour volume on the Big Board totalled 4.81 million shares.

Analysts said the Dow's inability to hold above 900 on Friday had brought in further selling.

They also noted an absence of any developments in the current news picture to change the market's preoccupation with rising interest rates.

A quarter-point increase in the bank prime lending rate to 6 3/4 per cent kicked off Friday by New York's Citibank continued to spread in the banking industry today.

Twentieth-Century Fox, the most active NYSE issue, climbed 1 to 16 and established a new high for the year. Heavy buying in the stock recently has been attributed to excitement over the company's movie "Star Wars."

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index slipped .16 to 52.52.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index advanced .22 gain to 112.29.

Inspections...

that in addition to regular inspections, firefighters hold pre-planning schools and tours in an effort to familiarize firemen with the various buildings and the most effective way to attack fires which may develop in them.

He noted that the pre-planning and inspections are not limited to night clubs, but include facilities for sporting events and other buildings where large numbers of people may be involved.

Smith suggested state laws or municipal ordinances could be changed to require sprinkler systems to be installed in such public facilities as a measure to help control the spread of any fire that might erupt.

The fire chief cautioned patrons of public places against panic when fire erupts. "Panic kills most of them," he said, explaining that people pushing toward exit doors "jam them by pushing and shoving", making it impossible to get out.

He said people should walk rapidly to exits, but should not run or push.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said clubs in Pitt County outside municipal limits are not inspected for fire hazards or building code compliance.

Wake Jail Case Begins

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After months of investigation into allegations of irregularities at the Wake County Jail, local and state law enforcement officials were scheduled to begin presenting evidence to the Wake County Grand Jury today.

Special prosecutor Joseph B. Cheshire V said Monday he has drawn indictments to be considered by grand jury, but he would not disclose how many.

The investigation reportedly has centered on allegations that jailers or former jailers accepted bribes, had sex with female prisoners and meted out favorable or abusive treatment to inmates.

Among those named in reports as having received favorable treatment, is Leslie (Ike) Atkinson of Goldsboro, who was housed in the jail last summer during his federal trial and conviction for importing almost half a billion dollars worth of heroin into the country from Thailand.

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee voted 18-9 today to kill a bill that would make the lieutenant governor permanent chairman of the state Board of Education.

The nine supporters of the measure gives them sufficient strength to have the bill presented to the full House as a minority report. If a majority of the House votes to accept the minority report, the Senate-passed bill will be debated by the full House.

The bill is part of a struggle between Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green over control of the Board of Education. Green is now interim chairman of the board, but Hunt has called on the panel to elect one of his appointees — Dr. David Bruton — chairman. The board will have the election Thursday.

Cary Captures Second Victory Over Greenville By 13-4 Score

Cary's American Legion baseball team gained its second straight lopsided victory over Greenville last night, taking a 13-4 win.

Earlier, Cary had rolled to a 12-6 win over Greenville. As in the first game, errors played a big role as Greenville committed seven, while Cary had only one. Wild pitches, four, helped Cary along too.

Cary struck first, getting five runs in the third inning. Blair Kerkhoff walked and moved up on a passed ball. Andy Smith reached on an error and Mark Scaff walked, loading the bases. Rick Hunter singled in Kerkhoff, and Larry Mangum singled to score Smith and Scaff. Hunter scored on a wild pitch, and Mangum came in on an out. Greenville came back with two in the fourth. Ronnie Chapman doubled and scored on another double by Wright Hooks. Nuggie Worthington walked and Mike Shank reached on a fielder's choice. Greg Lee then doubled to score Hooks. Cary added two more in the fifth for a 7-2 lead. Mangum singled and Neil Woodall got a hit. An error on the play scored Mangum, and moved Woodall to third. He scored on Kirk Pollard's single. Cary went on to add two in the seventh, one in the eighth, and three in the ninth.

Greenville picked up another in the seventh. Lee reached on a two-base error and Kevin Adams walked. Greg Lassiter walked and a walk to Chapman forced in Lee.

The other run came in the ninth. Will Sanderson singled, moved up on a walk to Chapman, and scored on a hit by Hooks.

Greenville, now 1-2, will play host to Smithfield tonight at 8 p.m.

College View And Planters Take Wins

College View won its second straight game in the Babe Ruth League last night, capturing a 5-4 win over Pepsi-Cola.

In the other game, Planters Bank won its first game, 8-1, over Carolina Dairy.

In the opener, College View pushed over four runs in the fourth inning to take the lead. Mark Jones singled and Reggie Morris reached on an error. Steve Hawkins singled, scoring Jones, and after both runners moved up on a passed ball, Arthur Fletcher walked. Darryl Joyner then singled to score both Morris and Hawkins. Lee Hardee singled to reload the bases, and a walk to Ricky Sutton forced in Fletcher.

Pepsi, now 1-1, picked up one run in the fifth. Ricky Ullman singled and moved to second on a passed ball. Chip Davis singled and Billy Dough reached on an error, scoring Ullman. Pepsi added three more in the seventh to tie it up. Andrea Williams walked and stole second. He scored on Dough's double. Bob Morehead then doubled in Dough, and the final run scored when Morehead came in when Todd Galloway reached on an error.

But College View got the winning run in the bottom of the frame. Lindsay Winstead singled, stole both second and third, and scored on an error when Patrick Wilson reached on a fielder's choice.

Doug and Ullman each had two hits for Pepsi, while no one had more than one hit for College View.

Planters Bank, 1-1, spotted Carolina Dairy, 0-2, a run in the first. George Wilson reached on an error and moved up on an out. David Carroll walked and Lenn Jackson reached on a fielder's choice. Skip Hill was safe on an error, scoring Wilson.

Planters came back with one in its half of the inning. Calvin Jones singled and Charles Daise got a hit. Micah Dixon doubled in Jones.

It stayed that way until the fifth, when Planters added five runs. Jamie Adams reached on a walk and moved to third on an error, from where he was sacrificed in. Jones was hit by a pitch and scored on Daise's double. Dixon reached on an error, scoring Daise, and Rusty Davenport walked. A pair of errors allowed both Dixon and Davenport to score.

The final two runs for Planters came in the sixth.

Daise led the Planters hitting with three. Roger Clemons

First Federal made it 7-0 in the second, while Moose scored three in the third. First Federal added three more in the fourth and five in the fifth for a 15-3 lead before Moose score the final run of the game in the bottom of the fifth.

Dark Breaks In As New Padre Manager In Sweep Of The Giants

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"We've got a lot of young players, a lot of good ones. I've got to find out who can do what," Alvin Dark said.

The new manager of the San Diego Padres took a look at just about everyone and found out that Mike Ivie can hit the ball.

The Padres set a National League record by using 41 players in their doubleheader sweep of the San Francisco Giants 12-8 and 9-8 Monday and the teams set a major league record by using 74 players in the twinbill.

"Well, I got a look at all of them," said Dark, who took over his new job a few hours before the Memorial Day doubleheader and made one key change — moving Ivie from the No. 5 spot to third in the batting order.

Ivie responded with seven hits for the day, including a record-tying five doubles.

"It's the kind of day you dream about," Ivie said.

In other NL games Monday, Montreal swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 5-1 and 3-2. St. Louis crushed the Chicago Cubs 14-0. Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 6-4. Cincinnati downed Atlanta 7-3 and Houston stopped Los Angeles 5-3.

"I always thought he (Ivie) would be a good No. 3 hitter because he makes good contact," Dark said. "He's not too fast, but when he hits the ball like that, he doesn't have to be."

Ivie tied a major league mark when he doubled twice in a seven-run seventh-inning burst that carried the Padres to victory in the opener. His five doubles in the twinbill tied a NL record shared by three other players.

George Hendrick homered in each game for San Diego, which extended its winning streak to four games.

Cardinals 14, Cubs 0
Lou Brock had four hits, driving in four runs, Jerry Humphrey chased home three runs and Ken Reitz smacked a two-run homer, powering St. Louis past Chicago.

The Cards battered Chicago pitching for 21 hits as left-hander Pete Falcone, 2-5, pitched a six-hitter. St. Louis scored three runs in the fourth, chasing loser Mike Krukow, 4-3.

NL Roundup

then erupted for nine runs in the sixth, snapping the Cubs' winning streak at five games.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3
Joaquin Andujar, with last-inning help from Ken Forsch, pitched a five-hitter and Houston erupted for four runs in the second inning in handing Los Angeles its third straight defeat — the longest Dodgers losing string of the season.

Houston scored four runs in the second inning on singles by Enos Cabell, Art Howe and Cesar Cedeno and Dodgers shortstop Ted Martinez' error.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Tim McCarver slammed a three-run double in the first inning and Ted Sizemore cracked a fifth-inning homer as Philadelphia handed Pittsburgh its fourth straight defeat. Steve Carlton, 7-2, went the route as the Phillies gained their fourth straight triumph.

Reds 7, Braves 3

A two-run triple by Ken Griffey sparked a four-run eighth-inning rally, giving Cincinnati its victory over Atlanta. Pete Rose singled home Cesar Geronimo, snapping a 3-3 tie. Griffey scored pinch-runner Ed Armsbrister and Rose with his triple and Joe Morgan singled home Griffey.

Expos 5-3, Mets 1-2

Tony Perez slammed a two-run homer in the first game and Andre Dawson connected with one on in the nightcap as Montreal swept a doubleheader from New York.

Steve Rogers fired a four-hitter in the first game and Perez socked his sixth home run of the year. In the nightcap, Dawson's second home run of the season gave Stan Bahnsen, making his first appearance for the Expos since being acquired from Oakland, the victory.

A.J. Passes Million Mark In Indy Money

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Aging but ageless A.J. Foyt, pocketing the biggest paycheck of his long and already legendary racing career, humbly called himself "just the stooge" who does the driving.

"I'm really a man of few words. There's not much to say," the first four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 somberly told about 2,000 persons at the annual victory banquet Monday night.

Foyt, who finished 28 seconds ahead of runner-up Tom Sneva in Sunday's 61st running of the 500, earned $259,791 — more than $88,000 more than he received for his third victory 10 years ago.

This year's top prize was not a record, but it made the 42-year-old Foyt the first $1 million winner in Indy history.

"We've had good days, and we've had bad days," said the Houston driver, who extended his Indy record to 20 consecutive starts. "It's been a long, long wait. But myself and my crew, we were not going to quit. We never quit. We just kept coming back."

Foyt finished second to Johnny Rutherford in last year's rain-shortened race — one which he felt he could have won had it gone the distance. He complained bitterly at that time that Rutherford, similarly locked into second place a year earlier when rain gave Bobby Unser the victory, had taken unfair advantage of yellow caution lights to improve his position.

But no protest was filed, and Foyt — angry but not discouraged — vowed to keep trying.

Foyt, Rutherford and Mario Andretti all topped 200 miles per hour during practice this year, and Foyt qualified in fourth position — behind pole-winner Sneva and the Unser brothers, Bobby and Al, both two-time Indy winners.

Rutherford, who started in the middle of the pack after an unsuccessful gamble to wrest the No. 1 spot from Sneva, was the first to be forced out. He blew an engine on the 11th lap and finished 33rd, but his paycheck of $19,472 still was a record for last place.

Most of the race was a duel between Foyt and Gordon Johncock, who led 129 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile track.

Johncock fell behind by 22 seconds before Foyt made a crucial pit stop on the 182nd lap, but the 1973 winner regained the lead the next time around when Foyt went in for his final pit stop. Johncock passed Foyt just as he was leaving the pits, setting up what appeared to be a wheel-to-wheel race to the finish.

But on the next lap, Johncock's engine blew. He slowed up and stopped as Foyt took the lead for good. Sneva, who set official records of 200.535 m.p.h. for one lap and 198.884 for four laps in qualifications, moved up to second. But Foyt's lead at that time was an insurmountable 35 seconds.

It turned out that Sneva, finishing 28.63 seconds behind Foyt, actually lost the race in the pits. He made 10 stops to Foyt's nine, and spent 48 seconds more than Foyt in the pits.

Sneva, who led only three laps during the race, earned $109,947.

Al Unser, whose $271,697 prize for winning the 1970 race is the record, pocketed $66,232 for third place this year. Wally Dallenbach, fourth-place finisher at Indy two years in a row, won $41,192, and Johnny Parsons, son of the 1950 winner, received $33,170 for fifth place.

The rest of the top 10 were Tom Bigelow, $30,466; Lee Kunzman, $29,129; Roger McCluskey, $27,256; Steve Krisiloff, $26,653; and Jerry Sneva, Tom's younger brother, $23,416. Jerry, driving in his first championship car race, got an additional $2,000 as Rookie of the Year.

Johncock, his total boosted by an extra $150 for each of his 129 laps in front of the pack, wound up with $45,417 for 11th.

Rookie Janet Guthrie, the first woman driver in the Indy 500, said it was "still somewhat incredulous" finding herself in the company of the 32 male drivers. She won $16,556 — her largest paycheck ever — for a 29th-place finish.

"I will definitely be back next year," said the 39-year-old Miss Guthrie.

The total purse — topping $1 million for the eighth straight year — was $1,116,807, breaking the former record of $1,037,276 set last year.

Don Hahn of the New York Mets holds the record for times at bat in a World Series. He had seven official times at bat in the second game of the 1973 classic against Oakland.

Mobil introduces a whole new idea in engine lubrication. A synthesized lubricant that outperforms nature's best motor oil.

Mobil 1

13. How can a 5W-20 oil be as good as a 10W-40? Mobil 1 is better than 10W-40 premium conventional oils. In fact, Mobil 1 exceeds the theoretical performance of the entire SAE 5W-50 range. These numbered ratings are not measures of quality. They just measure resistance to flow at low and high temperatures. Mobil 1 flows more easily at all temperatures, and so has a lower rating numerically. And, because it protects much better at all temperatures, including the highest extremes occurring under the severest hot weather conditions, it is a higher quality lubricant. This is possible because Mobil 1 is synthesized, not refined.

Foyt In Ranks Of 'Immortals'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Ol' grandpappy did it again — No. 4 at Indianapolis' fabled brickyard. Auto racing will wait a long time before it sees another like A.J. Foyt.

Etch his name in lasting concrete beside such immortals as Ruth, Dempsey, Thorpe, Bobby Jones and Babe Zaharias. He is one of a kind.

"When I get strapped into a car, everything is beautiful," the hard-nosed Texan keeps telling us. "Racing is my game. The politics, the financing, the sponsorship — all that stuff drives me up a wall."

The 42-year-old demon of speed was climbing no walls in the traditional Memorial 500 when he drove his self-designed Coyote to an unprecedented fourth Indy triumph, ending 10 years of concentrated effort. He last won in 1967.

Foyt is the maverick of the profession — intense, combative, a man of moods. Respected by his peers for his daring and rare driving skill, he nevertheless has left a legion of jealous rivals in the wake of his fire-spitting machine.

He never stopped to accumulate a regimen of close friends. His personality wouldn't allow it. Gracious and charming when thrown into a social atmosphere — not often, if he can help it — he becomes a vicious, snarling tiger when he enters the pits.

A lust for speed and victory courses through his veins. He resents distractions. He has been accused of being cold to his fellow drivers and curt with the press.

"I may be up to my neck in problems while I'm working in the garage," he says, "and some guy will come up and try to strike up a conversation. I say, 'Sorry, I can't talk now,' and the guy goes out and tells everybody I am a slob."

"They keep telling me I gotta do this and I gotta do that. I tell them, 'I don't have to do a damn thing but die.'"

Although five times a national driving champion, Foyt never has been satisfied to confine himself to the big tracks and the big money. He has gone against the best of his trade at Indy, Daytona, Le Mans and Sebring and has shown up at county fairs and obscure outlying tracks to race midgets, sprint cars, sports and stocks. Often he has shown up unannounced in a station wagon or on a motorcycle and asked to be entered in a race. It leaves promoters chagrined that they have not had an opportunity to publicize his appearance. No other auto racing name so excites a crowd.

Like a ghost, A.J. appears, races, wins and then as quickly disappears. He's not much on ceremony.

Anthony Joseph Foyt Jr., was racing at 5 in a car built by his father. He quit school at 16 and took to the road. The U.S. Auto Club says no man ever won more events on as many tracks.

Wake To NCAA Golf

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The Wake Forest golf team received an invitation to the national finals June 8-11 at Colgate University in Hamilton, N.Y., even though the team only finished third in the Atlantic Coast Conference this year after winning 10 straight ACC titles.

"We've been hot and cold all year," said Coach Ron Roberts. "Inconsistency has been the mark of this team. If its our week, if we put it all together, then we have a good shot."

The last time the team won was the Palmetto Invitational in March, the only spring tournament victory for Wake Forest.

The team has been led by a freshman, Gary Hallberg, and Bill Chapman, the Deacon's only experienced player, this year.

"Gary is a real contender for the individual NCAA crown," Roberts said.

No-Hitter Man

Eckersley Hurls Gem At California Angels

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

What does the future hold for Dennis Eckersley? Will anyone ever get another hit off him?

—In 1975, he was named American League Rookie Pitcher of the Year by The Sporting News for a 13-7 record and 2.60 earned run average.

—In 1976, he became only the sixth Cleveland pitcher to strike out 200 batters in one season.

—And Monday night — the record books will record it as May 30, 1977 — the Indians' 22-year-old right-hander pitched a 12-strikeout no-hitter in besting Frank Tanana and the California Angels 1-0.

How about 1978? Perhaps another no-hitter. Maybe even before this year is over.

"This is my first time I caught a complete no-hitter," said catcher Ray Fosse, "but if I'm around Cleveland much longer, I'm sure I'll catch more of his."

In his previous outing, Eckersley had beat Seattle 2-1 in 12 innings and held the Mariners hitless over the final 7 2-3 innings. The no-hitter gave him a streak of 16 2-3 innings without allowing a hit. The major league record is 23 by Boston's Cy Young in 1904.

The Angels did not come close to a hit. They managed only two baserunners — one when Eckersley walked Tony Solaita on a 3-2 pitch with two out in the first inning and the other when Bobby Bonds struck out — on the eighth but reached base when the third strike also was a wild pitch.

In other AL games, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 9-7, the New York Yankees nipped the Boston Red Sox 5-4, the Milwaukee Brewers edged Chicago 4-3 in the opener of a doubleheader but the White Sox took the nightcap 8-3, the Seattle Mariners swept the Texas Rangers 7-4 and 9-3, the Oakland A's downed the Detroit Tigers 6-3 and the Kansas City Royals beat the Toronto Blue Jays 4-1.

But Eckersley, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound right-hander, was the star of the Memorial Day baseball show, giving the 13,400 fans in Cleveland Stadium something to remember.

"I had a good feeling after the fifth inning," he said. "The most exciting inning was the seventh. I got chills. I knew it was coming. I had everything, good command of all my pitches. In the bullpen before the game I didn't have good stuff, but that was a good sign because when you're bad there, you're good in the game."

"I didn't talk to anybody in the dugout. Duane Kuiper came up and tried to talk to me but I

Yankees 5, Red Sox 4
Reggie Jackson and Graig Nettles — drilled consecutive home runs in the second inning for the Yanks — Jackson also singled home the tie-breaking run in the fourth — Mike Torrez scattered seven hits and centerfielder Mickey Rivers, who had three hits, threw out the tying run at the plate in the ninth inning. Carlton Fisk homered for Boston while Bill Lee lost to the Yankees for only the fifth time in 17 career decisions.

Brewers 4-3, White Sox 3-8
Ralph Garr's two-run homer and RBI hits by Lamar Johnson, Alan Bannister and Jorge Orta in the sixth inning helped Chicago win the nightcap behind Steve Stone. Don Money drew a bases-loaded walk off Lerrin LaGrow in the eighth inning of the first game to force in the winning run in Milwaukee's victory. Richie Zisk of the Sox took over the major league home run lead with his 14th.

Mariners 7-9, Rangers 4-3
Seattle knocked out Texas pitching aces Bert Blyleven and Gaylord Perry and swept a doubleheader with a total of 26 hits. Ruppert Jones lashed a two-out, two-run double in the seventh inning of the opener and Bill Stein and Dave Collins homered as Blyleven was beat-told him to shut up because I just wanted to concentrate on the game."

Tanana allowed only five hits but yielded a run in the first inning when centerfielder Gil Flores missed a shoestring try for Kuiper's line drive and it rolled to the fence for a triple. Kuiper raced home on Jim Norris' suicide squeeze bunt.

Orioles 9, Twins 7
Lee May drove in five runs with two homers and Rick Dempsey knocked in three runs with a single, double and triple for the Orioles. Baltimore took a 7-4 lead on May's second homer, a three-run shot in the sixth, and increased the margin to 9-4 on Dempsey's two-run double in the seventh but had to withstand a three-run Twins rally in the seventh plus a rain delay of 1 hour, 40 minutes in the ninth.

Southpaw Tom Zachary delivered the pitch that Babe Ruth hit for his 60th home run in 1927. Two years later, Zachary was pitching for the Yankees, Ruth's team, and had a 12-0 record.

Blazers Give 76ers Some Bad Thoughts

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
PORTLAND (AP) — Suddenly, the Philadelphia 76ers have something to think about.

The Portland Trail Blazers put some thoughts in their heads Sunday, unleashing a torrid fast break for a 129-107 victory and cutting their deficit in the National Basketball Association championship finals to 2-1.

The Blazers can even the best-of-seven playoff series with a victory tonight (CBS, 9 p.m. EDT) on their home floor, where they have won their last 16 in a row and are 44-5 for the year.

It was the way the Blazers won Sunday's game that has got the Sixers thinking. After two lackadaisical performances, they came roaring out of the starting gate and ripped off a 20-4 burst in the first quarter to grab an 18-point lead, then buried the Sixers beneath a 42-point fourth quarter.

"We can't come out Tuesday and dig ourselves another hole like that," said Philadelphia's George McGinnis. "Portland is a good club, and now that the series is 2-1 they have something to fight for."

The 107 points which were enough to win the first two games for Philadelphia were far too few for Game Three.

"Portland played a very aggressive game, especially on defense," said Sixers Coach Gene Shue. "We had too many defensive and rebounding breakdowns. They got control early and we played catch-up all day."

"We want to win Tuesday," said superstar Julius Erving, who led the Sixers with 28 points. "We don't want to come out here empty-handed, so to speak. We won both our games in Philadelphia to keep the home-court advantage, and we really wanted to get at least a split out here."

One problem for Philadelphia is McGinnis, the Sixers' other all-star forward, who remains in perhaps the worst slump of his career. He was burned for 27 points by Portland's Maurice Lucas on Sunday, at times looking lost on the court. He is hesitant about taking his shots and awkward in making his moves.

"I've just got to straighten myself out," McGinnis said as the Sixers went through a loose, free-wheeling practice session at Memorial Coliseum

Monday, just hours after Coach Jack Ramsay ran the Blazers through a precisely planned workout.

Ramsay got good production from Portland's reserves, particularly Lloyd Neal, Dave Twardzik and Corky Calhoun.

Veriato Gained Important Right

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Veriato didn't win, but he did come away from the Atlanta Classic with something important: the right to continue as a professional golfer.

Veriato, 31, had won only $450 on the tour this year and had to have $7,000 by season's end to retain his card as an approved tour player.

In Sunday's final round of the classic, he came in one stroke behind Hale Irwin to finish in second place and take home $22,800.

"Up until now, everything in my life has been a failure," said Veriato. "I've been awfully discouraged at times. I've thought about quitting trying to play golf for a living."

"But this wasn't a failure," he said. "It gives me the courage to go on."

Some of the game's greatest players took their best shot at Veriato, including Irwin, Jack Nicklaus, PGA champ Dave Stockton, and former U.S. Open king Lou Graham.

But the 135-pound, facing pressure he'd never before experienced, calmly carded a four-under-par 68 in the final round and finished with a 274.

"My hat's off to him," said Irwin, who won the title in 1975. The tournament was not played last year.

"He came through when he needed to — and he needed to," said Irwin who took home first-prize money of $40,000.

Young Shoplifters Said Active In Summer Months

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — With the Greensboro school year soon coming to a close,

Nancy Hicks, security manager for the city's three Belk stores, foresees a busy summer ahead — nabbing teenage shoplifters.

City merchants estimate that losses from the largely white collar crime surpass $4 million annually, and local police records show that half of all shoplifting crimes are committed by young people under 18.

Most of the teenage thieves come from middle class backgrounds and often have more than enough money in their pockets to pay for their snitches, according to more than a dozen local store detectives and police officers interviewed. Their fathers are bankers, lawyers, even policemen.

"A lot of the time it's psychological," said Ms. Hicks, a young Australian who doesn't fit the stereotype of a hard-nosed store detective. "A lot of the kids are screaming for attention. It's pathetic. Their parents give them everything they want."

There is also a prevalent attitude among youth that there's nothing wrong with ripping off a faceless organization, Ms. Hicks said. High school and college social clubs have even been known to require shoplifted items as an initiation fee, she said.

Children who are caught say they steal because, "they've heard it's easy to steal...to rip something off...they heard it from their friends," said Capt. S. B. Simpson, commander of the city's police youth division. Some youngsters are incredulous that their acts are treated with alarm.

"You're not really going to call my parents, are you?" asked one flabbergasted child.

Most just want to put the merchandise back or make offers to pay, detectives said.

William R. McDowell, executive director of Greensboro Merchants Association, said somewhere in the vicinity of 50 per cent of local stores either prosecute shoplifters or, in the case of teens, call parents. McDowell said smaller merchants, with three or four employees struggling to keep long schedules, often can't spend the time involved to prosecute.

But he said at least 75 per cent of the stores need to press charges to cut losses, partly to spread the word around that prosecutions will take place.

"What we will need is total community commitment," he explained. "It can't be just (the responsibility) of the police department," he added, noting that civic organizations, business clubs, courts, churches, social agencies and others should be asked to participate.

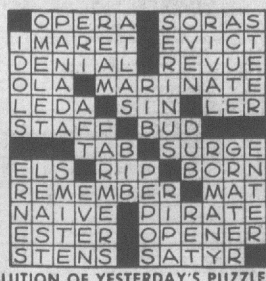

When a store presses charges, teens 16 and over are prosecuted as adult criminals, Simpson said. If they have stolen $200 or more in merchandise, they face felony charges of up to two years in jail.

Smaller children are taken to the Youth Division within the police department, where their parents are called. The ultimate punishment for children is training school, Simpson said.

Udall Concurs On Fuel Fears

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., concurred with President Carter's grim assessment of the nation's energy situation and called the president's plan for action "sound," during a brief visit to the western part of North Carolina Monday.

"A lot of American people don't believe it, but we are in trouble," said Udall, who is chairman of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

"What I'm afraid of is that we'll drift along and hassle each other and delay and stall and nobody will take the strong action that's needed."

The congressman said the country has only a little time left to make adjustments from an economy based on oil and gas to one based on new and different kinds of energy resources.

"I don't know whether the American people are ready for the moral equivalent of war," Udall said, quoting Carter's expression for the urgency of the energy crisis. "Sometimes, I look around and think we're going to give him the moral equivalent of mush."

Udall appeared at a luncheon for local officials before speaking in Cullowhee at Western Carolina University Monday night.

He said Saudi Arabia has the potential to wreck the American economy by holding oil production levels as they are.

"They can continue producing oil at the present level and do grave damage to the whole industrial world," he said.

Double Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

East expected to get rich from his penalty double of five diamonds. Instead, he found he had steered declarer to the winning line.

We approve of West's decision simply to overcall. With a two-suited hand, it is usually correct to plan to bid both suits rather than make a takeout double. Faced with a difficult problem, North elected to show his values by bidding one no trump even though his spade stopper might have been late developing. Thereafter, the bidding proceeded normally to five diamonds, except that East got a little greedy and tipped his holding, although we might have done the same.

With nothing to guide him, declarer would probably have played to ruff a heart in dummy and then lead trumps to try to hold his diamond losers to one. After the double, however, he realized there was a probability of a 4-0 break, and he planned the play accordingly.

Declarer won the ace of spades and led a heart. West played low and dummy's king won. East won the next round of hearts and continued the suit, forcing dummy to ruff. He expected this move to assure him of two trump tricks, but declarer had other ideas.

South led a low diamond from dummy, East followed with the eight and the ten was finessed. The ace of clubs and another to the jack put declarer in dummy for a spade ruff. A club to the king and another spade ruff reduced declarer's trumps to the same length as East's. The trump coup position had been reached.

A trump to the ace left East and declarer each with only two trumps. Declarer simply led a spade from dummy, and whether East ruffed with the jack or the king, he was going to be held to only one trump trick.

Note that declarer's line of play in trumps was not natural. Without a clue from the double, he would more than likely have cashed the ace of diamonds after ruffing the heart, and he would have been booked for a one-trick defeat.

Busboy Walter Bailey Says He Doesn't Feel Like Hero In Fire

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Walter Bailey says, "I don't feel like a hero," but scores of grateful, impressed people have been offering money, gifts, jobs or just congratulations for his heroics in the midst of the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire.

On Monday night, for example, Bailey, his mother and three younger brothers saw their first major league baseball game at Riverfront Stadium in seats provided by Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson.

With them was Jeff Ruby, a 29-year-old Cincinnati motel management executive who was among the last to escape the fire.

"He's accepted a job with us as a lifeguard," said Ruby. "Anybody who can save 1,000 people can work for us — with or without a lifeguard certificate."

Bailey, 18, a busboy at the Southgate, Ky., club, issued the first warning in the Beverly Hills' biggest room, then rescued many patrons trapped in the fire which killed at least 160 people Saturday night.

A waitress told him about the fire. Before flames broke into the Cabaret Room, he took the microphone from two comedians on stage and directed the crowd of more than 1,000 to the exits.

"If that kid didn't take it upon himself to make the announcement, instead of 150 dead there would have been only 150 survivors," said Ruby, of Asbury Park, N.J.

Earlier Monday Bailey said he turned down a cash gift from "an influential businessman who wanted to remain anonymous."

"I told him I wouldn't take

"I'M NO HERO" — Walter Bailey, right, gestures as he talks to Jeff Ruby during Monday night's Atlanta-Cincinnati baseball game at Riverfront Stadium. the money," Bailey said. "Then he offered me a good job. He was among the people who got out. I guess he wanted to do something."

Bailey, who graduated from high school last week, said he plans to work as a lifeguard this summer and enter college this fall.

His life-saving efforts didn't surprise his mother, Janie Hogle, 40, but she said she suffered through hours of anguish waiting for her son to reach home early Sunday.

"I was in hysterics after I heard about the fire. I knew how Walter feels about people and I knew he would try to save somebody," said Mrs. Hogle.

"I feared he had died in the fire. I was holding his high school annual to my chest when he walked through the door at 4 a.m. I screamed and cried. I didn't know he was a hero. I just knew he was alive."

She said her son has been "a father figure to this family since his father died three years ago. He's chipped in money and helped me bring up the boys. I'm so proud of him."

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Wine cocktails and a $2.50 minimum wage were taken up in the North Carolina House Monday while the state Senate gave its approval to moving the state's primary election date back to May, the traditional month.

Under the primary bill which now goes to the House for consideration, the elections will be the first Saturday in May, which will be May 6 next year. The 1975 legislature had moved the primary to the third Tuesday in August but a number of politicians complained that it was too hot and left too long a primary campaign.

The 1975 change to August was aimed at cutting the time and cost involved in campaigns by putting it closer to the November general election. The Saturday vote would also be a return to tradition because that was the day for primaries until a few years ago.

Also in the legislature:

MINIMUM WAGE
A Senate-passed minimum bill to raise the state's minimum wage was amended by the House to make the bottom pay rate $2.50 an hour beginning July 1. It is now $2 an hour. The measure would affect about 35,000 workers not covered by the federal minimum wage of $2.30. A bill is in Congress, however, to increase the federal minimum to $2.50.

The state minimum wage applies primarily to persons who work for companies that have at least four employees but are not large enough to come under the federal law. Exempted are maids, persons under 18, farm workers and others.

Under the Senate version of the bill, the minimum wage would be raised to $2.15 an hour July 1 and to $2.30 a year later. Speaking of those who would benefit, DeBruhl said, "This is a group of people on which the cruel hand of inflation has fallen harder than any other group."

"This applies to a group of workers who if we did not have a minimum wage would not get a pay raise," said Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood.

Final House consideration was scheduled today.

COCKTAILS
"Wine cocktails," a mixture of wine and a soft drink, would be allowed by a bill that passed the House and now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Rep. Roy Spoon, R-Mecklenburg, sponsor of the bill, said the mixed wine drinks lowered the alcoholic volume of the drink at least 30 per cent, which should appeal to "drys," but allows an enjoyable cocktail at restaurants with wine licenses, which should appeal to "wets."

A couple of months ago, state ABC officials issued orders that restaurants must stop the long-time practice of making wine cocktails. The ABC board said it was not clear if the practice was legal so it demanded it ended.

EXEMPTION
As much as $100,000 in inheritances would be exempt from state tax under a bill tentatively approved in the House. Under current state law, which was enacted in 1913, inheritance of $10,000 in property is exempted. For insurance, the law now allows $20,000 to be exempt. Each category would be raised to $50,000 exemption.

"The current law is an anachronism. It's as out of date as the horse and buggy," said Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln.

They Went Back

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — Each made it through the thick, choking smoke to the night air outside the burning supper club. But each returned to the flames, thinking their loved one was still inside.

Everett Neill Jr., 27, a drummer in the house band at the Beverly Hills Supper Club, and his wife of two years, Paula, 23, perished Saturday night along with 158 others, including four other band members.

Mrs. Neill often sat offstage while her husband performed. When thousands of nightclub patrons rushed for the exits after the fire was reported, she made it outside and waited for Neill.

When he did not appear, she went back into the building after him.

Meanwhile, Neill had made his way to safety at another point. He waited a few frantic seconds, then decided to go back to search for his wife.

A band member who survived reconstructed the couple's last movements.
